

Council Approves CSI Student Apartment Zoning

After the council heard from opposing residents, a not-so-quick decision was made to approve a zoning change needed for new CSI apartments.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

On the second try, it worked. The Twin Falls City Council approved on Monday a zoning change needed for a proposed apartment complex for students attending the College of Southern Idaho. The approval was 6-0, with Mayor Don Hall abstaining because he works for CSI. But it wasn't a quick decision. The council heard from a handful of opposed residents, including one with a petition signed by more than 400 people with concerns about traffic safety in the neighborhood. In the end, the council put a condition on the zoning change: it must approve any driveway and access plan onto Robbins Avenue West when the college starts building the second phase of the apartment project. Many of the concerns were centered on how increased traffic will impact Robbins Avenue, largely in that second construction phase. The college is uncertain when the second phase will take place, but it could be years in the future. Councilman Will Kezele voted against the amendment, but in favor of the zoning change. The complex will be located on 8.5 acres between Falls Avenue West and

Lending a Hand to Teachers

Every year, teachers dip into their own wallets to buy school supplies for their classrooms. A new bill, co-sponsored by Rep. Simpson, could help ease the burden.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

A group of Harrison Elementary School first-graders, led by special education teacher Amy Kenyon, practiced sounding out words Monday and gripped their pencils as they filled out a worksheet. While basic supplies like pencils may seem like a necessity, some Magic Valley teachers spend hundreds of dollars out of their own pockets each year on classroom supplies. Kenyon purchases pens and pencils, as well as cleaning supplies such as antibacterial wipes and hand sanitizer. "I also buy snacks for the kids, too," she said. Last year, she spent more than $250 of her own money for the classroom, but could only claim a $250 maximum deduction on her tax return. Congressman Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, recently signed on as one of 33 co-sponsors of a federal bill introduced in May that would address that situation. The Teacher Tax Relief Act seeks to increase the maximum tax deduction for teachers purchasing classroom materials from $250 to $500 per year. It would also expand the deduction to allow teachers to include professional development expenses. Nikki Watts, Simpson's spokeswoman, said the current classroom expense deduction for teachers is set to expire Dec. 31 unless Congress reauthorizes it. Unlike years past, Idaho school districts no longer receive state funding for classroom supplies. The Legislature eliminated that line item from the state's budget during the 2010-11 school year. In Twin Falls and Filer, supply budgets are handled at a school level. Twin Falls School District spokeswoman Beth Pendergrass

Idahoans Keep that Neighborhood Connection

A study finds that if you like in Idaho, you're more likely to chat with your neighbors in the driveway than on the Internet.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Are you friends with your neighbors online or in real life? If you live in Idaho, you're more likely to prefer interacting face-to-face. According to a recent study, Idahoans interact with their neighbors on a weekly basis more than the rest of the nation. And even in a digital age, the study from the Corporation for National and Community Service found that a third of Idaho residents never communicate with their friends and family using the Internet. This roughly parallels the national average. Connecting on a social and personal level within a community is critical to rural residents, said Lorie Higgins, agricultural economics and rural sociology associate professor at the University of Idaho. 5 Arrested After Calling in Bomb Threat

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Twin Falls police arrested five people early Monday after they allegedly called in a bomb threat to Walmart. Terry Plew, 21, Cassius Reynolds, 23, Levi Hays, 19, Katherine Plew, 20, and Angel Estabrook, 19, were all booked on conspiracy to commit burglary, as police say they used the bomb threat as a diversion. The real target was a Subway restaurant on Kimberly Road, which they allegedly intended to burglarize. According to statements made to the investigating officers, the suspects' plan was to take money from the restaurant to gamble at Fort Hall casinos. At 1:18 a.m., city dispatchers received a call from a pay phone near a Stinker Station, also on Kimberly Road. Lt. Craig Stotts said officers responded to both the Walmart and the pay phone, suspecting the ruse. Officers spotted a group of people in the vicinity of the Kimberly Road pay phone and stopped them for questioning. Reynolds is accused of making the call, as he is charged with making a false report. He was also allegedly prices have risen more than 8 percent. That means more Idaho residents are cutting back on luxury food items like chips and ice cream because they say the rising cost of groceries is taking a bigger bite out of their pocket-books.

said each Twin Falls school principal determines a budget for supplies for their school.

In the Filer School District, supply budgets have increased.

However, nearly all the teachers still buy supplies out of pocket, Superintendent John Graham said, and they don't receive enough financial assistance.

"What we provide for — that doesn't come close to covering what a teacher spends," he said.

Some school districts, such as Hagerman and Hansen, still have a yearly supply budget for each teacher.

Hagerman School District Superintendent Ron Echols said each teacher in Hagerman receives $250 per year to spend on classroom supplies.

Teachers in the Hansen School District also receive money for classroom supplies, but funding has dwindled over the past few years.

Four years ago, each classroom received $800 per year for supplies. This year, each of Hansen's 13 classrooms received about $540.

"It's not covering what teachers need," Superintendent Dennis Coulter said.

The Twin Falls City Council unanimously approved fee increases at Twin Falls Golf Club.

For season passes, the hikes include raising adult and senior single passes by $20 each, and couple passes for both by $50 each.

Daily green fees would rise $1 to $2 each, and weekend/holiday fees would actually drop by $1.

Councilman Greg Lanting, an avid golfer, said that even with the fee increases, the club prices are still competitive.

It's estimated that the increases will bring in nearly $8,400 in extra yearly revenue if the club's level of usage stays unchanged.

Robbins Avenue West near the Southern Idaho Medical Park. The first phase will have about 40 two-bedroom units and will exit onto Falls Avenue, said Mike Mason, vice president of administration. Construction could start within the next several months and take about a year to complete.

The zoning change allows higher-density housing, which was a point of concern for neighbors at the hearing who said that traffic is already heavy. While the college is within walking distance, students will also be driving, they said.

"Students aren't just going to school," said Janet Renaldi, who got more than 400 signatures of opposition on a petition.

CSI's first attempt at new student housing this year also met with opposition from neighbors. At that time, in April, the council voted 5-0 to reject proposed student apartment zoning on a six-acre sliver on the college's east side.

Councilmembers said they are comfortable with the new project, considering that the college has a history of being responsible.

"The college has been a pretty good neighbor," said Councilman Trip Craig.

Education Reform Description Wrong

A story in Monday's edition about class sizes included incorrect information about how the 1.67 percent in state funding for employee salaries diverted away from school districts this year is being spent. It's being used to allow teachers to earn salary increases for education credits, to increase the minimum teacher salary to $30,000 per year, and to fund the Dual Credit for Early Completers program. Dana Hull works on her family's massive collection of Halloween displays that will be set up this year in the front yard of their Rupert home.

Caskets and Creeps? It's Just Halloween at Hull House

Rupert family's Halloween displays draw large crowds.

BY LAURIE WELCH

lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A Rupert couple's taste for the macabre is manifesting itself once again on the front lawn of their home.

Ghouls crawl across the ground, the undead sit up in their caskets and disembodied legs dangle from trees as visitors walk down the sidewalks bordering Tim and Dana Hull's residence on the corner of F and Ninth streets.

"My grandkids would rather stay here and scare people than go out trick-or-treating on Halloween," said Dana Hull as she straightened an askew skeleton in her front yard on Monday. "Last year we had 3,500 trick-or-treaters and our neighbors are worrying about having enough candy this year. We were the only ones on our block that still had our lights on 30 minutes after the trick-or-treaters started coming last year."

Over the past 10 years, the Hulls have collected and crafted hundreds of interactive displays. Those have now spilled out of their yard and into the yards of willing neighbors — including Genevieve May, who lives two doors down from the Hulls.

"I think it's just fun," May said. She pulls up her blinds and turns off her lights to watch the excitement in front of the Hull residence on just about any October evening, she added. "I think it's great and I enjoy watching everything."

Rupert resident Yolanda Garcia slowed her car and rolled down the window to take a good look at the displays as she drove past the Hull home on Monday.

"I come by here every year," Garcia said. She said her favorite display is a more benign-looking Snoopy, which was one of the first additions to the family's collection.

The Hulls started putting out the displays on Oct. 1 this year. They still have an additional 30 containers full of horrors waiting to be unleashed.

This year, Dana Hull has already spent more than $100 on batteries and another $50 on additional extension cords.

"We'll continue tweaking it until Halloween," she said.

They do get some outside help. Andy Cofer usually donates a stack of hay, placed in the corner as a photo backdrop. This year, they hope someone will volunteer a boom truck to help them put up some of the tree displays.

Dana Hull said archways over the sidewalks are used to prevent any extension cord trip hazards. But they still put up "enter at your own risk" signs and require that people stay on the sidewalks.

The Hulls and a cast of extended family members all dress up for Halloween and gleefully join the monsters in their yard.

"We wear a lot of 'try me' buttons so people think we're part of the displays," Hull said.

JEROME FIRE RESPONDS TO GAS SPILL NEAR I-84 EXIT

TIMES-NEWS

A punctured side-saddle fuel tank led to an afternoon cleanup effort and traffic delays in Jerome on Monday. Jerome firefighters and public works employees aided in the cleanup of nearly 30 gallons of diesel fuel, which was spread along a half-mile stretch of South Lincoln Avenue near the Interstate 84 onramp. Fire Chief Mike Hatfield said a semitrailer driver noticed fuel coming from his rig while driving south through town, but it isn't certain how the side tank was ruptured.

No one was injured and there should be no environmental damage due to the spill.

The fire department responded to the call with a single engine at 2:05 p.m.

"There can be a lot of conflict, everybody sees things differently," he said. "But it also creates a lot of close relationships."

Ragain said whenever he wants to announce news about his family, he can count multiple neighbors he calls or emails to tell them the good news.

Jeneane Glatz, a Twin Falls homeowner, said she interacts with her neighbors weekly and isn't shy about asking them for favors.

"I say hello from my yard and a couple times a week we have long conversations from our driveway. I would say it's a pretty friendly environment," she said.

Overall, Higgins said rural communities are usually open to interacting with one another, but living so far apart can hinder regular interaction. Without meeting on a steady basis, community development slows down.

"A real struggle is not so much failing to interact with each other but with outside power," she said. "A challenge that a lot of smaller communities face is bridging the gap between their town and bigger cities. That way they can access resources and local politicians."

Buhl Man Dies in Camas County after Rolling Truck

TIMES-NEWS

A 69-year-old Buhl man died Monday after failing to navigate a semitrailer up a hill in Camas County.

Idaho State Police report Howard K. Barnes died at the scene, approximately 10 miles north of Fairfield on Little Smoky Road. Barnes was driving a 1996

Peterbilt and pulling an empty cattle hauler, heading northbound and up a hill on a slight curve. The semitrailer tipped over the edge of the road, and ISP reported there were no brake or skid marks on the surface.

The report also noted that Barnes was not wearing a seat belt.

Rusty Pipe Leads to T.F. Road Closure

TIMES-NEWS

The city of Twin Falls has closed a stretch of Canyon Rim Road to repair an unstable, rusty irrigation pipe.

The road from Federation Drive to Grandview Drive should reopen sometime Wednesday, city officials said Monday.

The city Streets Department is working with the Twin Falls Canal Co. on the repairs.

The pipe carries the canal company's water into the canyon, and there are concerns that it could collapse from the weight of vehicles that travel along Canyon Rim Road.

"We closed the road just to be safe," city Streets Superintendent Dean Littler said.

Barring any unforeseen complications, he expected the pipe's replacement to be finished by Wednesday evening.

The 15-inch pipe will be replaced by a larger pipe. Though the pipe carries canal company water, it's the city's responsibility when it crosses under a city road.

Search Continues for Possible Fuel Leak in N. Idaho

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

COEUR D'ALENE • ConocoPhillips investigators continue to probe for reported irregularities in the diesel fuel and unleaded gas pipeline near Cataldo, as results from tests conducted over the weekend haven't pinpointed the possible problem.

Jeff Callender, a ConocoPhillips spokesman, said Sunday that results from a special acoustic testing device didn't show any signs of a leak, but the company will continue its investigation by testing the line with water.

"We don't want to jump to conclusions, it's just one of our tests hasn't shown any irregularities in the line or a any sign of a leak," he said.

The company has replaced the fuel in the 6-mile stretch of the Yellowstone Pipeline between Enaville and Cataldo with water. It will run water through the same stretch of pipe at a higher pressure level, which should make it easier for the company to spot any possible irregularities. The fuel was never removed from the 10-inch diameter pipeline, only flowed farther up the line. A cylinder divider, known as a "pig," separates the water from the fuel.

The company has been investigating the pipeline after a slow drop in pressure was detected Oct. 1, raising questions about a possible leak.

Callendar also said fuel hasn't been detected outside the pipe, but as a precaution floating booms have been placed across the Coeur d'Alene River in two places and absorbent material along the bank in a third location.

ConocoPhillips is currently trucking its fuel to its distribution center in Spokane, Wash.

Workers immediately shut down the pipe when the pressure drop occurred Oct. 1, and that valves at each end of the section have been closed. Workers have been walking the line every day and airplane surveillance is being used to spot any problems. Daily water samples from the Coeur d'Alene River have all come back clean, Callendar said.

Callendar couldn't say how much fuel was cleared from the line, or how much fuel could have leaked should there be one.

Families Facing Higher Food Prices

Extreme weather — lack of rain in some places and too much in others — has affected growers from Texas to Australia, causing prices to rise.

BOISE (AP) • Sarah Nokleby used to be able to feed her five kids on $150 a week. Now it costs at least $200 per week, the Boise resident says.

Food prices are trending higher, with beef setting back buyers some 10 percent more since last August, according to The Idaho Statesman. Fish and seafood prices have risen more than 8 percent.

That means more Idaho residents are cutting back on luxury food items like chips and ice cream because they say the rising cost of groceries is taking a bigger bite out of their pocket-books.

"We've pretty much given up on ice cream," Nokleby said. "We don't do chips unless it's a special occasion."

But even the daily necessities have become tougher to afford. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says dairy prices have risen more than 9 percent between August 2010 and August 2011, with pork rising 7.5 percent and eggs seeing a 14.5 percent increase in price. U.S. retail coffee prices were up 20 percent from August 2010.

Nokleby has resorted to buying two newspapers every Sunday for the coupons. She's also buying some of her food in bulk to help take the pressure off her purse.

"I have 80 pounds coming in two weeks," she said of a shipment of chicken and beef that's arriving soon, for which she'll pay $1.49 a pound. "You have to separate it, wrap it and freeze it. But it's worth it. Then you have it for several months."

The increase in food costs comes after extreme weather — lack of rain in some places and too much in others — affected growers from Texas to Australia. On one day alone in September, the USDA designated 86 counties in four states as natural disaster areas because of weather damage to crops.

Weather in Brazil that was colder-than-normal was a factor behind higher prices for coffee, a staple for many.

Federal officials expect prices to keep rising even as farmers produce more staples like corn, wheat and soy. It will take months for any lower commodity prices to have an effect at the store checkout counter or on restaurant menus.

Chef John Berryhill, owner of Berryhill & Co., said he's noticed the price of grass-fed beef has been on the rise in the past few months — driven up by grain prices. He said prices usually rise in the fall as vegetables go out of season.

"When food costs go up, you've got to make adjustments" like raising prices, cutting portion sizes or reducing staff pay, said Dave Krick, owner of the Bitter Creek Ale House and Red Feather Lounge in Boise.

Sandy Tracy, another Boise resident, said she's skipped dental care and new glasses, so that she can keep her teenage son fed and clothed.

"There are times where I'm juggling our budget, and I'm going, 'OK, we have to buy food, we really do,'" Tracy said. "I don't get a raise, but all the groceries got a raise."

E. Idaho Schools Change Homeschooler Policies

POCATELLO (AP) • Students in eastern Idaho who learn online from home can no longer take one or two classes at public schools without being enrolled at least part-time.

The new policy at the Pocatello-Chubbuck school district, which does not receive funding for students who do not attend at least 150 minutes of class each day, has upset some parents.

They contend students who take online courses from home should also be able to take a music class or participate in a sport at the traditional school district without having to be enrolled in at least three courses, as required under the new policy.

"It is adversely affecting home-school students who want to take music and athletics," said Heather Sandy, of Pocatello. She enrolled her children in an online public charter school in Boise about two years ago.

Her 12-year-old daughter, Harriet, attends the Inspire Connections Academy charter school but also wanted to take an orchestra class at a traditional public school, Sandy told the Idaho State Journal. The family then learned that the district had adopted a new policy this year for students like her daughter, who learn primarily from home, and found that they could no longer enroll in just a single course.

The policy was changed earlier this year amid concerns over attendance and state funding, said District 25 spokeswoman Shelley Allen.

The district previously reported student attendance to the state based on class periods, but now attendance is reported based on minutes, Allen said. For example, a part-time student must attend class at least 150 minutes a day, while a student is considered full-time at 240 minutes.

The district does not receive state funding for a student unless they are enrolled at least part-time, Allen said.

"In June, the board set minimum enrollment so average daily attendance would not be compromised," she said.

Sandy said her daughter is taking private cello lessons rather than enrolling as a part-time student at the local public school so she can participate in the orchestra.

Statue of Mountain Man Unveiled on Henry's Fork

BY JOYCE EDLEFSEN
Rexburg Standard Journal

ST. ANTHONY • For the civic club, individuals and businesses that succeeded in getting a life-sized mountain man statue installed along the Henry's Fork the project was proof of what a community can accomplish together.

But for Deon Davenport the unveiling of the statue was the culmination of dozens of years of effort to erect a public tribute to the area's fur-trapping heritage.

"For me it's like bringing a friend home," Davenport said Saturday just before the ceremony to unveil the bronze work.

"I've studied Andrew Henry," he said. And he has imagined what it might have been like when the fur trader topped a hill, saw the Tetons and heard the beaver splashing in the stream.

"It's a romantic thing to me," says Davenport who has participated in many mountain man rendezvous and has worked specifically on the statue for about five years.

Davenport was the driving force behind concept and the St. Anthony Rotary Club membership was the engine behind a fundraising drive to pay for the statue.

Protestors march through downtown Boise on Wednesday. More Boise protests are planned this week.

Occupy Boise Plans Demonstrations Today, Wednesday

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Idahoans who are part of a national movement to speak out against greed and corruption — an offshoot of the Occupy Wall Street protests in New York City — have announced they will gather and march in downtown Boise this week.

Today, Occupy Boise participants will gather at Capitol Park, near the Statehouse. Throughout the day, there will be series of silent processions to symbolize “how the 1 percent have silenced the other 99 percent in Idaho and beyond.” The processions will depart at 8 a.m., 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

On Wednesday, marchers will gather at 2:30 p.m. at the Anne Frank Human Rights Memorial. The march will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Organizers of Occupy Boise describe it as a “peaceful, egalitarian and non-partisan social movement.”

“We aim to awaken the power of ‘we the people’ in order to repair a broken system where the greed of 1 percent trumps the needs of the other 99 percent,” said a press release Monday announcing the march.

Boise organizers say there are about 2,000 people involved. They are holding regular planning meetings that are open to the public.

About 300 people marched in Downtown Boise last Wednesday.

ENRAPTURED BY RAPTORS

BY JOHN FUNK

Idaho Press-Tribune

BOISE • The peregrine falcon can reach speeds over 200 miles per hour in a dive, making it the fastest living thing on earth.

Mary, the Boise-based Peregrine Fund’s resident falcon, didn’t move quite that fast when she performed for the audience at the World Center for Birds of Prey, but she still displayed mind-boggling speed and agility as she chased a specially-designed lure thrown into the air by trainer Connie Stanger.

Mary was one of four birds showcased at the center’s “Catch a Flight” event Sunday afternoon, along with a harpy eagle named Luigi, a Swainson’s hawk named Griffon, and Rosa, an aplomado falcon.

They flew, they swooped, they perched upon their trainers’ gloved arms as the audience sat transfixed by the grace and beauty of some of the world’s most elegant birds. And if you missed it, don’t worry: They’ll perform again each Thursday through Sunday at 1:30 p.m. for the rest of the month.

While demonstrations are important for public outreach, raptor specialist and bird trainer Trish Nixon said, it’s only a small part of the center’s overall mission.

“People love to look at birds of prey, but they especially like to see how they move,” Nixon said. “And an overall goal of the Peregrine Fund ... is to just impress upon people not only how important birds of prey are in the wild, but how beautiful they are, how well-designed they are to do what they do.”

When they’re not actively raising public awareness, staff members breed raptors for release into the wild, rehabilitate injured birds, and research raptor-related issues all over the world. For example, in India and Pakistan, an investigation led by Peregrine Fund staff solved the mystery of Asian vulture deaths.

“If there’s a decline in population, we try to figure out the cause and what can be done to remedy it,” Nixon said. “We found out that there was a drug called Diclofenac, which is a very innocuous drug like ibuprofen that people used on their livestock.”

Nampa Man Charged with Lewd Conduct

IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

BOISE • Matthew James Dilley, 33, of Nampa was taken into custody on an outstanding felony warrant for lewd conduct with a minor Friday, according to the Boise Police Department.

The warrant resulted from a detailed investigation into allegations of inappropriate conduct that reportedly took place on more than one occasion in 2008.

The lewd conduct was reported to police in April of this year. The victim tells detectives the conduct took place in a Boise home. The suspect is known to the victim.

Detectives have no evidence that indicates other victims were involved at this time. Since the incident was reported the suspect has had no access to the victim.

That investigative information was forwarded to the Ada County Prosecuting Attorney’s Office and resulted in the felony warrant.

Faye Kochneff

May 8, 1921- Oct. 5, 2011

Faye passed of natural causes Oct. 5, 2011, at Rosetta Assisted Living in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Born the daughter of William Allen Holland and Josephine Casten Holland on May 8, 1921, in Wyman, Iowa, she was raised in Iowa. Her father died when she was 5 years old, but Faye stayed with her older sister, Lois, caring for their mother. Faye graduated from Washington High School in 1939, working several jobs to help make ends meet at home. The friends she made in Washington, Iowa, remained lifetime friends of hers.

In the spring of 1948, Faye met the “love of her life,” Alex, when she and a friend decided to take golf lessons. He was their instructor. Alex asked Faye to a dance and walked her there. Faye was apprehensive about accepting the date because she was not sure Alex could dance as well as she (he knew how to dance). Afterward, they sat on the front porch and talked for hour upon hour. Three months later on June 27, 1948, they married and remained married for 62 years until Alex’s death on Nov. 14, 2010. She said she knew she loved Alex because during the short courtship, he could dance and brought her yellow roses when she became ill and saw her looking at her worst.

Faye stayed in Iowa with Alex raising their three children until August of 1970 when they moved the family from Mount Pleasant, Iowa, to Twin Falls, Idaho, to start Alex’s business, Fountain Service of Idaho. She helped Alex find their “dream home” in Twin Falls, where they lived for 40 years. She not only loved that home but she especially loved the weeping birch tree Alex planted there on her birthday. It was fondly referred to as her “birch-day” gift. Here, she helped Alex with the bookkeeping of the business until he retired from that business in the late 1980s. She continued to help with the bookkeeping as he transitioned from Fountain Service into a recycling business, where he worked tirelessly until the age of 91. During those years, Faye made friends wherever she went, whether it was at church, the grocery store, hairdresser, Bridge, bowling, Sojourner Club, or Bible study.

Faye is survived by her three children, William Allen, Thomas Lee (Elizabeth) and Nancy.

Faye will best be remembered for her soft-spoken ways, sweet nature and love of God, family, trees, birds and roses. “God speaks in gentle whispers on the wind, in warm rays of sunshine and in the beauty of nature.”

The Kochneff family would like to thank Hospice Visions and Home Care Options for taking such good care of Faye. They have gone above and beyond in order to provide a much-needed service.

At Faye’s request, no service will be held. Cremation is under the direction of White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.” Memorial donations may be made in Faye’s name to Hospice Visions. To share a memory of Faye or to offer condolences to Faye’s family, please visit www.white-mortuary.com.

OUR VIEW

We Need Fewer Horses: How We Can Control the Existing Population

They're a symbol of the old West: wild, untamed horses, galloping across the desert, recalling stirring images of cowboys and independence.

But this is reality, not a Louis L'Amour novel. The U.S. Bureau of Land Management is currently taking care of tens of thousands of wild horses, and they're costing taxpayers a lot of money.

BLM certainly has a tough job in maintaining mustangs, and it can't seem to please anyone. Accusations of abuse and neglect from horse advocates and concerns about how taxpayer dollars are spent have marred wild horse management in Idaho and across the West.

One thing is certain: We need fewer horses.

According to the BLM, the free-roaming wild horse population exceeds manageable numbers by 12,000. With no natural predators, herds can double in size every four years, leading to concerns about overpopulation and dehydration.

There's nothing romantic about that.

Unlike the Idaho Department of Fish and Game — whose species management is funded by hunting permits — the BLM's wild horse management is taxpayer - supported, to the tune of $63.9 million per year nationwide.

More than half of that — $36.9 million — goes to taking care of horses that the BLM has captured.

Today, the BLM is holding about 41,000 horses in short-and long-term corrals. According to the New York Times, each horse costs more than $500 per year to feed.

At auctions, wild horses go for as little as $5 apiece, and not all of them are sellable. In 2010, the BLM removed 7,000 more horses than it could find new homes for, according to the New York Times.

Thankfully, the BLM is looking at alternative solutions. On Friday, the agency announced plans to apply herd growth-suppression techniques to 2,000 horses, including a fertility suppressant and introducing geldings into herds.

We think they're on the right track. Collecting and holding horses isn't working, and we hope the government will more aggressively pursue birth control measures.

If we're going to manage the wild horse population at the expense of taxpayers, let's look at ways to cull the population before it gets too big. Take the emotion out of management and look at the reality: We need fast, effective solutions for exploding herd populations.

“These events have taken us back several steps. Instead of moving forward to build a modern state on democratic principles we are back to seeking stability and searching for hidden hands — domestic and foreign — that meddle with the country's security and safety.”

Paying Ransom to Corporate Pirates Won't Create Jobs

Scott Klinger

Institute of Policy Studies

Ships laden with tens of millions of dollars of American treasure pull into beautiful ports in places like the Cayman Islands and the Bahamas every day, offloading profits made on sales to U.S. consumers. These voyages — all technically legal — cost taxpayers $100 billion a year.

Now the corporate captains of these pirate ships have sent Congress an ominous ransom note that says: “Allow us to return these profits to American territory at a deeply discounted tax rate of 5.25 percent, or you'll never see your cash again.”

The regular corporate tax rate is 35 percent.

In total, American corporations have stashed more than $1.4 trillion offshore. While some of this loot is derived from U.S. corporations selling goods and services to people abroad, much of it is reaped from accounting tricks.

For example, a drug company will register patents in a tax haven nation, like Luxembourg or the Netherlands, and charge enormous fees for their use. That makes it easier to record huge profits in low- or no-tax jurisdictions while lowering the drugmaker's official profits that get reported to the IRS. In turn, the company's U.S. tax bills wind up much smaller than they'd be if the law made any sense.

Corporate pirates have formed an armada to lobby Congress for the same tax break they got in 2004. That was when they promised to create jobs in exchange for a one-time tax break on repatriated earnings they would return to the United States from abroad.

The salty sea-air must have clouded their memories, for the coalition that calls itself WIN America, is calling for a second “one-time” tax cut, only this time they've made no attempt to promise U.S. jobs or investment. Instead, they're seeking public sympathy for having their profits unfairly trapped offshore. The profits are indeed trapped — by the greed of corporate leaders eager to deliver every last dime of profits to shareholders, even if that comes at a cost of disinvesting in the American economy. The U.S. tax code isn't to blame.

A Candidate with Character

In regard to the upcoming elections for city council members, I offer this letter to voice support for electing Kevin Cope.

It is not his political experience I am writing about but his personal character that I am familiar with. I have known Kevin for more than a decade, throughout which I had the pleasure of working with and learning from his unique methods of leadership. He is a man who leads by example. He treats others how he would expect to be treated, giving people respect and typically earning it in kind. He has a unique knack for judging people's abilities and for inspiring loyalty in those who get to know him.

I can vouch for his decision-making abilities. This is a man who looks at a problem from all angles, who respects every opinion he asks for before making a choice; a man who listens to people, who can understand where they come from because he's been there himself; a man who knows the power of perspective and common sense.

It is from this man that I learned the skills I have today in getting along with and inspiring those around me. It is from this man that I learned to go through life with confidence in my abilities. And it's because of this man that I am succeeding, both in work and in life.

I will vote for him, not because of what he says but because of what he has done for me and others around him. Because I know he has the skills to help lead this town toward greatness and the desire to see it through.

Money and Power

First of all, I would like to remind everybody of the recent Casey Anthony trial. How many of you out there believed solely on the reporting of the news, that she was automatically guilty, simply going on the reporting from newspapers and all other media? Was there not obviously something that the public was not allowed to see?

Since when, have we, as Americans, become the judge, jury and executioner of people that we haven't even seen the complete evidence against? Going simply on what someone else tells us? Why do you people follow so blindly someone that could, ultimately one day, take your freedom away from you simply because he desires power and money? You automatically believe whatever he has to say about something, only because you believe he is an upstanding citizen of our community?

Do you people not see what the head of this witch hunt is trying to do? This year is an election year, and someone will do whatever it takes to get re-elected! Not caring what he has to do to get there! Not caring about the lives that he impacts on his road to supposed success in his career! Do you people really think that these politicians honestly have your best interest at heart? Do you not stop to think that they will say anything you want to hear to get themselves into office and be in the control position to do as they please?

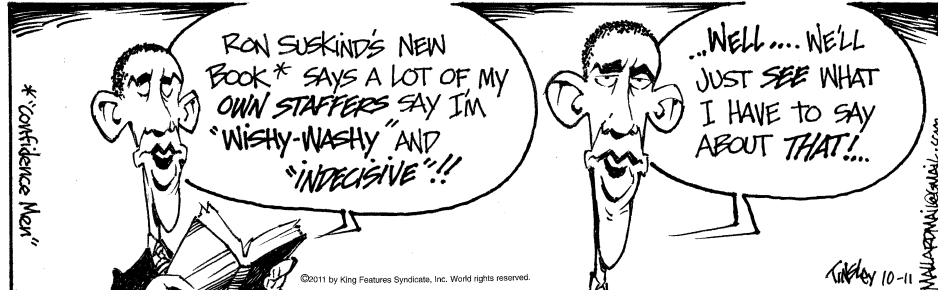

Money and power! Our town prosecutor is now up for re-election and will do whatever is necessary to get into that position! Do you honestly believe that he is thinking of you when he takes it upon himself to make the decision to prosecute a case? I think all of you out there need to re-think what you blindly believe and hear from this man!

City of Eagle to Consider Forming New Tax District

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL
Idaho Statesman

EAGLE • To help pay for the roads, parks, sewer connections and water lines for a 5,610-acre, 7,153-unit in the foothills north of Eagle, the developer of Spring Valley has asked Eagle leaders to create a special tax district.

The Eagle City Council will hold a work session today on the proposal; the initial public hearing is set for Oct. 25. Both meetings begin at 6:30 p.m. at Eagle City Hall, 660 E. Civic Lane.

Spring Valley (formerly known as M3 Eagle) expects to spend $662 million on infrastructure over 20 years for the planned community, located north of Homer Road between Idaho 16 and Willow Creek Road, according to the application submitted to the city.

The developer estimates $183 million of this would be eligible for funding through a “community infrastructure district,” or CID. Established by the Idaho Legislature in 2008, a CID provides a means to secure bonds to finance the construction of public facilities and shift the costs to all future property owners in the zone.

As home sites and land within the district are sold, the new owners would pay a special property tax assessment and/or an annual property tax levy.

The property owners within the district would be legally responsible for paying off the bonds issued by the CID, not the city or its other residents — but the local city council or county commission has to approve the creation of the district.

Along with approval from local elected officials, developers who want to create a CID must hold an election and get two-thirds approval from all property owners within the proposed district.

Learning Turkish in Real Time

Idaho student spends a term abroad in Turkey, with the help of a Fulbright grant.

BY MAUREEN DOLAN
Coeur d’Alene Press

COEUR D’ALENE • Studying in a foreign country is an experience unlike any other, and it can change a person’s life if he lets it, says Devin Sommer.

Sommer, 24, speaks from experience. He is allowing foreign study to change his own life right now.

The 2006 graduate of Lake City High School is 6,000 miles from his Coeur d’Alene home — living, learning and teaching in Turkey — on a grant he was awarded by the Fulbright United States Student Program, sponsored by the U.S. Department of State’s Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

It is not the first time Sommer has traveled to the Eurasian country to study and teach English. He was in Turkey last spring, on a teaching and learning trip paid for by a Benjamin A. Gilman Scholarship, another program funded by the U.S. Department of State.

Although he has applied for funding to study in Turkey more than once, Sommer says he doesn’t feel he chose Turkey as his focus, but that it, rather, chose him.

“The first time I visited Turkey it was on a family vacation ... the year after 9/11,” Sommer wrote in an email interview with The Press.

His family was living in northern New Jersey on Sept. 11, 2001, in close proximity to the World Trade Center.

Sommer was 16 when his family spent two days in Turkey, and he recalls feeling anxious about visiting a Muslim country.

“The Turkish people were so nice, friendly and helpful that I remember being embarrassed by the time I left for having felt any apprehension at all. I think this initial experience inspired me to choose Turkey again when the opportunity for me to study abroad came up,” Sommer said.

One of his life goals has always been to be fluent in another language, any other language, and Turkish has become it. The language is challenging, Sommer said, but he is making good progress and hopes to have met his goal by the time his current grant, through the Fulbright English Teaching Assistantship (ETA) program ends next year.

Meghann Curtis, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of State for academic programs, said Turkey, one of 65 countries where the program is offered, has one of the largest Fulbright ETA programs in the world. This year, there are about 60 ETAs, placed in about 20 universities, mostly in rural areas of Turkey. Sommer is at Canakkale Onsekiz Mart University.

“Devin has been placed in Canakkale, a city in the rural northwest of Turkey which is close to the site of ancient Troy, so the region is very rich in history,” Curtis said. “Devin’s colleagues in Canakkale benefit from his expertise as a young, native speaker of English, while Devin himself has the chance to learn more about Turkey’s rich culture and history.”

Sommer says this is an exciting time in history for Turkey, mainly due to a broad shift in foreign policy and relations with the West.

“Turkey is currently the only democratic Muslim country, which makes it unique, and also very important, unique in the sense that there is really nothing else you can really compare it to, and important because it illustrates that Islam is not at odds with democratic ideals, a free society and the modern world,” Sommer said.

Turkey’s economy experienced 11 percent growth last year, he said.

“Turkey is also starting to embrace the Muslim aspect of its cultural identity a little bit more. In fact, it will be really interesting to see what Turkey’s role becomes as the politics and societies of other Arab countries develop in the wake of the recent revolutions,” Sommer said. “Egyptian youth have already started looking to Turkey to aid in the development of their currently evolving government.”

Sommer graduated in June from Evergreen State College in Olympia, Wash., with a bachelor’s degree in language and diplomacy, after he returned from his spring stint in Turkey. From March to May he was teaching and doing volunteer work in Istanbul, with his Gilman scholarship funds.

He brought a bit of the Lake City with him into the classroom there — the children’s storybook “Mudgy and Millie,” featuring the moose and mouse’s adventures in Coeur d’Alene.

With his younger students, Sommer used the book to teach numbers and nature vocabulary. As a reward at the end of class, they would play a 15-minute game of hide-and-seek, like the storybook characters do. The student seeker counted in English,

“The Turkish people were so nice, friendly and helpful that I remember being embarrassed by the time I left for having felt any apprehension at all.”

Devin Sommer, of Coeur d’Alene and then called out that he was coming in English. “For my 13- to 14-year-old group I used it to practice reading, speaking, pronunciation, and I think I used the text to teach simple past tense lessons,” Sommer said. “These students thought Mudgy was some kind of mutant camel. It was pretty funny.”

Sommer hopes to one day have a career as a Foreign Service Officer for the U.S. Department of State.

He’d like to see more U.S. citizens reap the benefits of international travel and study.

“I had so many friends right out of high school that thought the military was their only option. I want to encourage people to make studying abroad a component of their college careers, because international experience is a significant part of getting a truly augmented and well-rounded education,” Sommer wrote. “There are some things you just can’t learn from a book. You don’t even need to attend a four-year school to make international study a part of your education. The experience is accessible to anyone who wants it enough.”

Group Wants Insurers Out of Health Exchange

BY AUDREY DUTTON
Idaho Statesman

The Idaho Main Street Alliance wants health insurance companies to recuse themselves from a board that may govern a state health insurance exchange.

No legislation has been created to govern the health exchange, which would be a centralized place for small businesses and individuals in Idaho to buy insurance.

Health insurance companies have been involved in early research and planning for the exchange. They hold roles in a state-run governance work group that is responsible for drafting a bill for the 2012 legislative session.

The work group has considered a bill allowing the governor to appoint health insurance carriers to three of the nine board seats. The board would be uncompensated and could hire and fire employees and choose materials and services for the exchange, according to the draft bill.

The alliance plans to hold a conference call this morning to explain how insurers holding controlling seats on the board would have a “direct conflict of interest,” according to a news release.

Utah Skydiver, Student Die in Accident

BY OSKAR GARCIA
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • It was supposed to be a special birthday gift to a grandmother — a family skydiving adventure with a veteran instructor who was one of the Elvis Presley impersonators who jumped from an airplane in the movie “Honeymoon in Vegas.”

But the tandem skydive ended in tragedy Sunday near the Nevada-Arizona border when two parachutes failed to open, sending 75-year-old Claudette Porter of North Las Vegas and instructor James Fannesbeck to their deaths.

Porter’s husband, Jim Porter, said his wife had talked about skydiving for at least 20 years. Their granddaughter arranged the outing to celebrate Claudette Porter’s birthday last month.

“Things like that happen once in a while, and there’s just not a whole hell of a lot you can do about it,” Jim Porter said.

During the jump, the main parachute attached to Fannesbeck and Claudette Porter did not fully deploy, and a backup chute became entangled with the main chute when the instructor deployed it, Mesquite police spokesman Jeffrey Smith said.

The backup chute had only partially opened before Fannesbeck and Porter hit the runway at Mesquite’s airport, Smith said. Fannesbeck died at the scene, while Claudette Porter died at a hospital.

Fannesbeck, 60, was from Weston, Idaho, but moved to St. George, Utah, with his wife and became a skydiving instructor. He worked for Skydive Mesquite in Mesquite, Nev., about 40 miles from St. George.

Skydive Mesquite owner Brad Jessey said Monday he was still trying to figure out why the parachute malfunctioned, especially given Fannesbeck’s nearly 11,000 jumps and his decades of experience as a diver and instructor. Jessey said Fannesbeck had successfully jumped with other customers Sunday before going up with Claudette Porter.

“It just baffles me that it could happen to him,” Jessey said. “I mean, the one thing we all said about him was, ‘You know, he won’t die skydiving.’ Well, somehow it happened, and I have no idea how.”

Jessey noted Fannesbeck was among the team of skydiving Elvis impersonators in the 1992 film “Honeymoon in Vegas,” starring Nicolas Cage and Sarah Jessica Parker. The movie shows Cage and members of the “Flying Elvises” skydiving at night onto the Las Vegas Strip.

Fannesbeck’s Facebook profile page features photos of him and his wife jumping from a plane, holding hands in midair, and together on the ground with a deployed parachute.

“He loved doing it,” Jessey said. “It was obviously his whole life.”

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Mike Fergus in Renton, Wash., said investigators were looking into whether the parachutes had been properly inspected before the jump, and were also checking on the Cessna 206 airplane and its flying route.

He said federal rules require chutes to be inspected every six months. Backup chutes are required to be packed before jumps by an FAA-certified parachute rigger, while main chutes must be packed with at least the supervision of a certified rigger, Fergus said.

Jackson Hole Water Year Finished 2nd to 1997

BY THOMAS DEWELL
Jackson Hole News & Guide

JACKSON, Wyo. • The king has kept his crown.

During the water year that ran from Oct. 1, 2010, to Sept. 30, 4.8 million acre-feet of water passed the gauge in the southern end of the Grand Canyon of the Snake River.

This year's flow from the drainage, which covers 3,465 square miles, including a large portion of Teton County, couldn't surpass what flowed in 1997. In that water year, a record 5.4 million acre-feet of water passed the gauge upstream from Palisades reservoir.

The gauge does not record flows from the Salt and Greys rivers.

Even the 2011 runoff season, April 1 to Aug. 31, could not surpass the runoff of 1997.

This spring and summer, 3.8 million acre-feet of water passed the gauge at the bottom of the basin, less than the record 4.1 million acre-feet set for that period 14 years ago.

Like 1997, 2011 appeared to be headed toward a potentially damaging flood year. Robust April precipitation pushed the amount of water held in the snowpack to 616 percent of average on June 17, more than what remained in the mountains in 1997.

"That kind of started a panic," said Mike Beus, the Bureau of Reclamation's water operations manager.

The runoff did not come fast and swift as some feared, and the bureau was able to manage its dams to prevent major flooding.

A portion of the flows that pass the Alpine gauge are regulated. Not all water that comes down from the mountains in any one year flows to Palisades reservoir, as some is held in Jackson Lake.

From late July to the night of Oct. 2, releases from Jackson Lake Dam remained at 2,800 cubic feet per second.

This past week, the bureau is cutting releases to planned winter flows of 600 cfs.

To put the flows into perspective, if all of the water that ran past the Snake River canyon gauge during the 1997 water year were converted to freshly fallen, light-density snow, it would cover the entire drainage to a depth 24.5 feet, Beus said. For the 2011 water year, the fresh snow would pile 21.6 feet deep.

In the year with the lowest flows, 1977, the snow would pile almost 6 feet deep. Average flows would pile 11 feet.

Issa: 'Fast and Furious' Subpoenas Issued Soon

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • The chairman of the House oversight committee said Sunday that he could send subpoenas to the Obama administration as soon as this week over weapons lost amid the Mexican drug war.

Rep. Darrell Issa, R-Calif., suggested on "Fox News Sunday" that Attorney General Eric Holder knew about the gun trafficking operation known as "Fast and Furious" earlier than he has acknowledged.

"Why are they denying knowing about something that they were briefed on?" Issa said. "Exactly when, the American people want to know, how did it happen?"

In the 2009 operation, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives allowed intermediaries for drug cartels to buy thousands of weapons from Arizona gun shops and lost track of about 1,400 of the 2,000 of those guns. Some of those weapons have been recovered at crime scenes in Mexico.

Operation Fast and Furious came to light after two assault rifles purchased by a now-indicted small-time buyer under scrutiny in the operation turned up at a shootout in Arizona where Customs and Border Protection agent Brian Terry was killed.

Earlier this year, Holder testified to Congress that he hadn't heard about the operation until early 2011. On Sunday, Issa said, "That's just disingenuous on its face."

Rep. Darrell Issa, R-Calif., gives an interview on Capitol Hill in May 2010 in Washington. Issa said Sunday that he could send subpoenas to the Obama administration as soon as this week over weapons lost amid the Mexican drug war. Issa suggested on "Fox News Sunday" that Attorney General Eric Holder knew about the gun trafficking operation known as 'Fast and Furious' earlier than he has acknowledged.

In a letter sent Friday to key lawmakers who oversee Justice Department issues, Holder said his testimony was truthful and accurate and said Republicans are engaging in political posturing when they say otherwise.

"Such irresponsible and inflammatory rhetoric must be repudiated in the strongest possible terms," Holder said.

On Fox, Issa said President Barack Obama "still seems to have full confidence in Eric Holder — something I don't share."

Issa declined to join other Republicans who have called for the appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate Holder. "Congress is well along the way of investigating this operation to find out what went wrong, who knew it and what we have to do in the future to make sure it can't happen again," Issa said.

NORTH IDAHO FUEL PIPE SHUT DOWN AFTER PRESSURE DROPS

BY KEITH RIDLER
Associated Press

BOISE • ConocoPhillips has shut down an underground diesel fuel and unleaded gas pipeline that crosses northern Idaho because of a pressure drop.

Workers on Sunday hadn't yet determined the reason for the pressure drop in the Yellowstone Pipeline, said company spokesman Jeff Callender. Callender said a special instrument sent through a five-mile section of the 10-inch diameter pipe on Saturday between the Idaho towns of Enaville and Cataldo found no leaks.

"We've analyzed the results and so far we don't see any indication of a problem or a potential leak on that line," he said.

He also said fuel hasn't been detected outside the pipe, but as a precaution, floating booms have been placed across the Coeur d'Alene River in two places and absorbent material along the bank in a third location.

"We're trying to err on the side of caution and put everything in place in the event there is any problem with the pipeline," he said.

He said workers immediately shut down the pipe when the pressure drop occurred Oct. 1, and that valves at each end of the 5-mile section have been closed.

He said workers have been walking the line and that an airplane is also being used to spot any problems. Daily water samples from the river have come back clean, he said.

He said there was no estimate on how much fuel might have leaked if a leak was the cause of the pressure drop.

The pipe carries fuel from the company's refinery in Billings, Mont., Callender said, and is piped to Missoula, Mont., where it's taken by train to Thompson Falls, Mont. From there it goes into the Yellowstone Pipeline and to Spokane, Wash. The company is now trucking fuel to the Spokane distribution center.

Callender said that, for proprietary market reasons, the company doesn't give out logistical information about moving fuel and declined to say at what point the fuel is being put in trucks for the trip to Spokane.

"We don't expect any supply disruptions," said Callender.

He said the portion of the pipe where the problem occurred has been filled with water for a pressure test.

Central Idaho Residents Blast Airport Expansion

HAILEY (AP) • A plan to expand an airport that serves the central Idaho resort area of Ketchum and Sun Valley and that's a cheaper alternative to building a new airport farther south has run into tough opposition from some residents near the existing airport.

The Idaho Mountain Express reports that at a packed meeting last week in the Blaine County Courthouse local residents decried the expansion as unnecessary, didn't agree that more tourists were a good thing, and blasted private jet operators as toxic.

The Federal Aviation Administration says that Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailey should be moved because of expanding residential areas and high hills that make the airport too dangerous. Local leaders are concerned about the potential loss of commercial service and the economic damage to the county that could result if something isn't done.

Bill McMahon of Bellevue, about five miles south of Hailey, disagreed.

"There's no assumption that we have to meet (Federal Aviation Administration standards) to ensure the viability of the county," he said. "To suggest that it (failure to meet standards) would destroy the county is absurd."

Local officials are considering expanding the airport to meet federal standards after soaring expenses to more than $300 million made a plan to move the airport south less desirable. In August the FAA said it had stopped work on an environmental-impact study on a new airport because of increased costs of the new airport and potential impacts on wildlife.

The agency said it's now waiting for airport and city officials to decide whether to continue with plans to move the airport south before the agency will continue spending money to complete the study. The study could end up not being necessary if city officials scrap plans to move the airport south.

While Ketchum and Sun Valley rely on tourists, residents in the southern part of the county are less inclined to see increased tourism as a good thing.

"Why are we talking about bigger hotels and more people coming here?" said Kate Woods, owner of the Mountain School in Bellevue. "It doesn't seem to be needed or wanted."

Hailey resident Keith Roark backed the replacement airport.

"Every improvement, every expansion (of the current airport) was an expansion that was brought under the guise of commercial air service," Roark said. "The problem is the uncontrolled, toxic presence of so many private jet operators who have no regard for anyone but themselves."

The airport draws wealthy visitors with private jets, or who have second homes in the area.

Sun Valley Mayor Wayne Willich said those private jets bring an economic boost, noting 11 people who arrived on a private jet and paid $1,100 to eat at a local restaurant.

"Each time you're thinking about the flow of commerce in the whole valley, you have to keep those things in mind," he said.

Roark noted that it was people living next to the airport and under flight paths that had to deal with the noise.

"If this airport is in Wayne Willich's backyard, I love it," he said.

Local officials didn't say when they might make a decision. More public meetings are planned.

Challenger Leads Early in Cherokee Chief Election

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP)

• The man trying to unseat the chief of one of the nation's largest American Indian tribes was ahead after initial vote counts Sunday, but it was too early to declare a winner in an election that has been marred by months of complications.

The Cherokee Nation Election Commission counted votes that were cast in person since the new election began Sept. 24. The unofficial tally showed Cherokee Nation councilman Bill John Baker with 61 percent with 6,223 votes compared to 4,046 votes for former Principal Chief Chad Smith.

But as many as 12,000 absentee ballots still have to be counted. The winner may not be known until Wednesday.

The election was ordered by the tribe's Supreme Court after the results of a June 25 election were invalidated. Smith and Baker were each twice declared the winner in recounts, and questions were raised about how the ballots were handled and stored.

Also complicating the election were lawsuits filed by the descendants of slaves owned by Cherokees, known as freedmen, who won an agreement making them eligible to vote as they fight efforts by the Cherokee administration to cut them out of the tribe.

Voting stretched from Sept. 24 until Saturday to accommodate hundreds of freedmen who were expected to cast ballots.

MARATHON, Fla. (AP) • The U.S. Coast Guard says one woman died and seven people not wearing life vests treaded water in choppy seas for 20 hours before being rescued off the Florida Keys.

Petty Officer Nick Ameen says a person who rescued three of the boaters called the Coast Guard about 8 a.m. Sunday and told them others were still in the water. He says about an hour later a Coast Guard crew found the four who had drifted about four miles from the boat that capsized and sank Saturday afternoon off Marathon.

He says the group was not able to stay together and an 80-year-old woman never resurfaced. He says among those rescued was a 4-year-old girl.

He says the boaters likely were taken to a hospital but did not have their conditions.

‘Unions’ Empower Parents to Push for School Reform

BY CHRISTINA HOAG
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • Shoehorned into a small living room in a South Los Angeles apartment, a dozen parents discuss why their kids’ school ranks as one of the worst in the nation’s second-largest school district. The answers come quickly: Teachers are jaded; gifted pupils aren’t challenged; disabled students are isolated; the building is dirty and office staff treat parents disrespectfully. “We know what the problem is — we’re about fixing it,” said Cassandra Perry, the Woodcrest Elementary School parent hosting the meeting. “We’re not against the administrators or the teachers union. We’re honestly about the kids.”

School parent groups are no longer just about holding the next bake-sale fundraiser. They’re about education reform.

The Woodcrest mothers and fathers, all wearing buttons saying “parent power,” are one of the newly formed “parents unions” that are springing up from San Diego to Buffalo, N.Y., with the same goal — to push schools to improve academic achievement.

Behind the parent empowerment movement is a feisty Los Angeles-based nonprofit, Parent Revolution, which in 2010 pushed through a landmark law giving parents authority to force turnarounds at failing schools through a petition.

Known as the “parent trigger,” the California law was the first of its kind in the nation. It inspired Texas and Mississippi to adopt similar laws and legislation is under consideration in 20 other states. Two states have voted down parent trigger bills.

“Parents have a different incentive structure than anyone else,” said Ben Austin, Parent Revolution’s executive director. “They’re the only ones who really care about kids.”

It’s a compelling argument for many parents.

San Diego mother Teresa Drew founded United Parents for Education after her daughter’s reading and math scores fell below grade level for two years. The district is not doing enough to ensure teachers are effective and weed out bad educators, she said.

“I talked to other parents and found they had the same experience,” Drew said. “I have nothing against the PTA, but the problem for me is there’s a T in PTA. This is parent-led.”

Unions say it’s oversimplistic to blame teachers. Parents should enlist educators in the solution, not dismiss them, they say.

“It’s well meaning, but misguided,” said Frank Wells, who heads the Southern California chapter of the California Teachers Association. “Parents shouldn’t be acting with authority in a vacuum.”

Parents already have a tool to leverage policy change — school board elections, Wells said.

Unions have mobilized against parent-trigger laws. In July, the American Federation of Teachers posted a slide presentation on its website detailing how it successfully won a dilution of the Connecticut parent-trigger proposal so parents can recommend change but have no authority to enact it.

After ensuing media coverage of “Plan A: Kill Mode,” the union took down the document and disavowed it.

Parent Revolution member, Casondra Perry, right, cries as she gets a hug on Sept. 13 after a meeting to discuss how they are pushing change at their Woodcrest Elementary School in Los Angeles. In California, school parent groups are no longer just about holding the next bake-sale fundraiser, they have also begun to push for education reform.

For Austin, union opposition to parent trigger underscores what’s wrong — unions reject reform efforts such as charter schools, tenure changes and new performance evaluation measures in order to protect jobs, but at the same time many schools are failing, especially in the inner-cities.

“The system is calcified,” he said. “It’s designed to go against change.”

In somewhat of an ironic twist, Parent Revolution is organizing parents using old-school, labor organizing tactics, employing a former union organizer with United Farm Workers and Service Employees International Union to lead the effort. So far, more than 20 unions have been formed.

Organizing parents is a lot tougher than workers, said Pat DeTemple, the organizing director. “Simply finding parents is a ridiculous amount of work. Parents don’t know each other,” he said.

And, unlike with an employer, parents don’t usually have common grievances with a school — they all have different experiences depending on their child. Still, parents’ heart-strings are a powerful tug.

“Their kids are at stake, so at a deep level there’s an incentive there to organize,” DeTemple said.

Organizers show parents how to conduct effective house meetings, distribute flyers in front of schools, canvass door-to-door, write letters, and create surveys and petitions. They also inform parents about their rights and students’ rights, and about how educational system works, how to judge a school’s state test scores, for example.

Woodcrest’s Perry said the training has opened parents’ eyes. “We’re not informed so we don’t know what to ask for,” Perry said. “We don’t know where we fit in.” The Parents Union is now surveying parents of Woodcrest students, in the Los Angeles Unified School District, and will present the results to the principal for action.

At a community center in a South Los Angeles park, Spanish-speaking parents from nearby Los Angeles Academy Middle School are starting to organize. They’ve gathered for a training session on a textbook union organizing strategy called “stories of self,” learning how to succinctly tell why they became motivated to stand up for a better education for their kids.

“It brings people together,” DeTemple explained. “It helps them connect by sharing their values through their stories.”

One mother said she became disgusted after seeing kids smoking and bullying another child and reported it to a group of teachers, who were busy gossiping and did not take action, another said she was angry that poor parents and students are treated dismissively.

District officials welcome efforts to get parents more engaged in their kids’ education, especially in low-income areas. Parental involvement is the key factor outside school in boosting student achievement, said Maria Casillas, chief of school, family & parent/community services for Los Angeles Unified.

Parents unions can be an effective tool. “They’re loud, they’re pushy, and they have every right to be,” she said. “We want to promote parents as advocates for their children’s learning. For our low-income kids, that’s the part that’s missing.”

The idea of parent activists is spreading.

In New York, parents formed Buffalo ReformED and wrote a parent-trigger bill for their district after hearing about the California movement.

“There’s systemic dysfunction here,” said Hannya Boulos, ReformEd’s director. “We have a 47 percent graduation rate, 25 percent for black and Latino males. The district has failed to turn the schools around.”

Organizing the parent unions marks a shift in strategy for Parent Revolution, which went through a bruising court fight and divisive community battle with the Compton Unified School District earlier this year over the first use of the parent-trigger law at a low performing elementary school in Compton.

More than half the school’s parents signed a petition to turn over the school to a charter operator, but at the district’s request, a judge ruled the petition invalid — the signatures lacked dates.

Two Romney Challengers Dodge Christian Question

WASHINGTON (AP) • Two Republican presidential candidates refused to say Sunday whether they believe Mitt Romney, a Mormon, is a Christian, while a third said he doesn’t agree with a Texas pastor who called the religion a “cult.”

Businessman Herman Cain and Minnesota congresswoman Michele Bachmann declined to answer questions about Romney’s Mormon religion.

“He’s a Mormon, that much I know,” Cain said. “I am not going to do an analysis of Mormonism versus Christianity for the sake of answering that.”

Bachmann called the issue a distraction.

“I think what the real focus is here, is on religious tolerance. That’s really what this is about,” Bachmann said. “To make this a big issue is ridiculous right now, because every day I’m on the street talking to people. This is not what people are talking about.”

Former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum, who runs in the GOP presidential campaign as a social conservative, was more direct, saying — as Texas Gov. Rick Perry did Friday — that he didn’t consider Mormonism a cult.

“I’m not an expert on Mormonism. All I know is that every Mormon I know is a good and decent person, has great moral values,” Santorum said.

But when asked if he believed Romney is “a true Christian,” Santorum spoke somewhat haltingly: “Mitt Romney is a true, he says he’s a Christian. I believe he said Christian.”

In Romney’s 2008 campaign, Mormons said they felt maligned by claims they aren’t Christian. The scriptures used by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints include the Old and New Testaments, and sacred books that contain the revelations of their 19th century founder Joseph Smith.

The recent questions about Romney’s religion surfaced Friday after a Baptist pastor told reporters after introducing Perry at a forum that Romney was “not a Christian.” Robert Jeffress, who made similar comments in 2008, also told reporters that Mormonism is a “cult.”

Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, another GOP presidential contender, criticized Jeffress’ comments on Sunday, calling them “very unwise and very inappropriate.”

“I think that none of us should sit in judgment on somebody else’s religion,” Gingrich said. “I think he’s a Mormon and Mormons define themselves as a branch of Christianity.”

Cain and Bachmann appeared on CNN’s “State of the Union.” Santorum appeared on “Fox News Sunday.” Gingrich appeared on CBS’s “Face the Nation.”

Civil Rights Icon Lowery Celebrates 90th Birthday

BY ERRIN HAINES

ATLANTA • President Barack Obama and Stevie Wonder are among those wishing civil rights icon the Rev. Joseph Lowery a happy 90th birthday.

On Sunday night in Atlanta, Lowery was praised for his living legacy as he continues to fight against hunger, poverty, racism and injustice. He has lived to see an end to segregation and the rise of the nation’s first black president, and says there is still work for him to do on issues of social justice and equality.

In a brief video tribute, Obama thanked Lowery for his friendship and counsel, saying, “I don’t know where this country would be without your leadership.”

Obama awarded Lowery the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 2010.

Lowery turned 90 on Thursday.

Egypt’s Military Vows to Get Tough After Clashes

Strong words signal the governing military council will tighten its grip on power, further infuriating activists who have demanded an end to army rule.

BY HAMZA HENDAWI and MAGGIE MICHAEL
 Associated Press

CAIRO • Egypt’s ruling military on Monday condemned a surge in deadly violence as an attempt to undermine the state, and warned it will act to safeguard the peace following a night of clashes that drew in Christians, Muslims and security forces. The generals’ strong words signaled the governing military council will tighten its grip on power, further infuriating activists who have demanded an end to army rule and a transition to democracy. Egypt’s Coptic church harshly criticized the government for its actions in crushing the protests and accused it of allowing repeated attacks on Christians to go unpunished. The clashes Sunday night were the worst sectarian violence since the uprising that ousted Hosni Mubarak eight months ago. The riots laid bare the volatility of Egyptian society a month before the start of parliamentary elections that will help define the country’s future political landscape. In a statement, the Coptic Church, which represents about 10 percent of Egypt’s 85 million people, accused security forces of failing to stop anti-Christian agitators from turning what started out as a peaceful protest against church attacks into a sectarian riot in which at least 26 people, mostly Christians, were killed. “Strangers got in the middle of our sons and committed mistakes to be blamed on our sons,” the church said in a statement issued after its spiritual leader, Pope Shenouda III, met with 70 bishops. “The Copts feel that problems are repeated and the perpetrators go unpunished.” The statement reflected the growing fears of Egypt’s Copts, the largest Christian community in the Middle East, at a time when a security vacuum has left them vulnerable to a growing Islamist movement in the post-Mubarak era. The military, which activists blamed for not doing enough to protect the Christian protesters, issued a stern warning that it intended to crack down hard on future protests. In a statement, the military council said it will take the “necessary precautions to stabilize security” and use the full weight of the law to prosecute individuals involved in violence, whether by participation or incitement. In an apparent response to concerns it will use the violence as an excuse to prolong its rule, the council pledged to make good on its promise to hand over power.

Mormon Beliefs Once Again Under Attack

Issue flares after pastor who supports Texas Gov. Rick Perry made controversial remarks Friday about Mitt Romney and Mormonism.

BY RACHEL ZOLL
 Associated Press

When one of Texas Gov. Rick Perry’s supporters publicly denounced the faith of Mitt Romney and Jon Huntsman as a non-Christian cult, he was just the latest in a long line of people who have damned Mormonism. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has struggled for acceptance ever since its founder, Joseph Smith, said in the 19th century that God told him to restore the true Christian church by revising parts of the Bible and adding the Book of Mormon as a sacred text. Many conservative Christians, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, feel they have a religious obligation to point out any teaching they believe would lead others astray and risk their salvation. While this theological debate has often been far from polite, the attacks have sharpened as the LDS church has gained in size and prominence. The church now says it has grown by about 1 million people every three years since the 1970s and now has more than 14 million members. “It’s no accident that this comes at a time when two of the candidates for president are Mormon,” said Richard Mouw, president of Fuller Theological Seminary in California, who is part of a group of evangelical and Mormon scholars who have been meeting to discuss theology since 1994. “People who seem to have a vested interest in ensuring that others see Mormonism as a cult see this as an opportunity to make their case and stir up anti-Mormon sentiment.”

NYPD Costs Rise as Wall Street Protests Continue

BY MEGHAN BARR
 Associated Press

NEW YORK • As the protest on Wall Street enters its fourth week, police officers are keeping their posts around the perimeter of the park at the center of it all. And with no end in sight, the cost of constant police surveillance will continue to rise at a time when Mayor Michael Bloomberg has ordered citywide budget cuts. The New York Police Department already has spent $1.9 million, mostly in overtime pay, to patrol the area near Zuccotti Park, where hundreds of protesters have camped out for several weeks. Though cold weather is on the way in, protesters don’t plan on leaving anytime soon. They’re prepared to stay put for the long haul. “The bottom line is that people want to express themselves, and as long as they obey the laws, we allow them to,” Bloomberg told reporters Monday when asked about the protesters’ staying power. “If they break the laws, then we’re going to do what we’re supposed to do — enforce the laws.” Last week, Bloomberg ordered all agencies to prepare to cut expenses by a total of $2 billion during the next 18 months. Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said the budget cuts may cause the cancellation of a new class of police officers entering the academy in January. Police officials would not comment Monday on whether the Occupy Wall Street protest would have any bearing on how the budget cuts would play out. A spokesman for Bloomberg declined to comment on any financial issues. “We always prefer to not spend overtime, but again, this is a big complex city, lots of things going on,” Kelly said last week, describing the protesters’ effect on the NYPD. “And we have to spend overtime for unplanned operations.”

Wisconsin Woman Accused of Abduction, Cutting Out Fetus

MILWAUKEE (AP) • A woman who faked a pregnancy and panicked as her supposed due date grew near attacked a pregnant mother with a baseball bat and cut her full-term fetus from her womb with an Exacto knife, killing the mother and baby, according to court documents filed Monday.

Annette Morales-Rodriguez, 33, faces one count each of first-degree intentional homicide while armed and first-degree intentional homicide of an unborn child while armed in the death of Maritza Ramirez-Cruz and the boy she was set to deliver next week. Morales-Rodriguez faces mandatory life in prison if convicted.

Morales-Rodriguez made a brief court appearance Monday, standing silent as her bail was set at $1 million. Online court records didn't list an attorney for her, and the Milwaukee public defender's office voicemail wouldn't accept messages Monday afternoon.

"I don't know what she had in her mind," said Maria Garcia, 44, who lives next to Morales-Rodriguez and described her as her best friend.

According to the criminal complaint, Morales-Rodriguez told detectives that her boyfriend wanted a son but she couldn't get pregnant. She told him she was pregnant anyway, but started to grow desperate as what would be her due date approached.

She told investigators she planned for two weeks to find a pregnant woman, take the baby and make it hers, the complaint said.

Morales-Rodriguez drove around on Wednesday searching for a pregnant woman, but found none, authorities said. On Thursday she drove around a nonprofit organization that provides Hispanics with health care and found Ramirez-Cruz.

The 23-year-old had moved from Puerto Rico to join her childhood sweetheart, Christian Mercado, said Mercado's father, Carlos Mercado. They already had three children together and Ramirez-Cruz was carrying their fourth.

Many activists say the generals are likely to take advantage of the nation's tenuous security to stay in power long enough to find a candidate they approve of to run for the presidency.

A timetable floated by the military has slated presidential elections for late next year. If that holds true, then the military will have been in power for almost two years before it steps down.

"We all know that the military council is trying to sow religious strife to stay in power and extend emergency law," said Maha Adel Qasim, a 28-year-old Muslim wearing a head scarf who joined Christians demonstrating outside a hospital where victims' bodies were taken.

"We want international protection," screamed Walid Romani, a Christian, as others outside the hospital chanted for Egypt's military ruler, Field Marshal Hussein Tantawi, to step down.

"The army incites sedition to remain in power," declared Mariam Ayoub, a relative of a slain Christian protester, Michael Mosaad. "They tell all of us that this is what happens without emergency laws."

Sunday's clashes, which raged over a large section of downtown Cairo, began when about 1,000 Christians tried to stage a peaceful sit-in outside the state television building. The protesters said they were attacked by "thugs" with sticks and the violence spiraled out of control after a speeding military vehicle jumped onto a sidewalk and crushed some Christians.

The attack on Christians swelled after state television called on viewers to rush to the army's rescue, casting the Christians as a mob seeking to undermine unity between the people and the military.

The crowd grew to 10,000, and many Christians were set upon by bands of young Muslim men armed with sticks, swords, firebombs and firearms. The assailants later roamed the streets looking for Christians to beat up. In some cases, they pulled men and women suspected of being Christian out of taxis and private cars.

Police and army troops did not intervene.

Three soldiers and an off-duty policeman were among the 26 people killed; some 500 people were wounded.

Netflix Drops Plan to Separate DVD, Streaming Services

LOS ANGELES TIMES

LOS ANGELES • Trying to heal its self-inflicted wounds, Netflix Inc. said it will abandon its controversial plan to separate its DVDs-by-mail business from its online streaming service.

The surprise reversal, coming three weeks after the plan was disclosed, follows the company's unpopular 60 percent price increase in July for subscribers who watch both DVDs and online video. The changes led the Los Gatos, Calif., company to predict it would attract 1 million fewer U.S. subscribers than initially projected for the third quarter, which ended Sept. 30.

Netflix Chief Executive Reed Hastings said Monday that he decided to scrap the proposal to create a stand-alone DVD service under a new name, Qwikster.

He said having two distinct subscription businesses — with separate billing and recommendations — would be too difficult for customers.

"This means no change: one website, one account ... in other words, no Qwikster," Hastings wrote in a blog post and email to customers.

Though the decision to preserve its single service may appease consumers, industry observers say it may take Netflix a while to win back customers still angered by the price increase.

Mormonism

The issue flared last Friday at the Values Voter Summit, a conservative forum in Washington. The Rev. Robert Jeffress, pastor of First Baptist Dallas, introduced Texas Gov. Rick Perry and then told reporters that Romney was "not a Christian" and Mormonism is a "cult." From his pulpit Sunday, Jeffress stood by his remarks.

"Part of a pastor's job is to warn his people and others about false religions," said Jeffress, who has personally endorsed Perry in the Republican presidential race. "Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism and Mormonism are all false religions."

Worshippers in the sanctuary applauded.

Romney did not directly respond to Jeffress but denounced "poisonous language" about faith. Huntsman, interviewed on CNN on Monday, described Jeffress as a "moron." Perry said he does not consider the LDS church a cult.

A spokesman for the church in Salt Lake City directed reporters Monday to the church website Mormon.org, where leaders posted extensive information about their beliefs in anticipation of a backlash. When Romney first ran for the presidential nomination in 2008, the church was besieged by critics; Romney felt compelled to give a major speech about his faith in which he promised that no church authorities would influence his decision-making.

From the beginning, Mormons have seen themselves as Christians — but Christians who are different.

Smith became Mormonism's founding prophet during the religious revivals of the Second Great Awakening. Smith said he had experienced visions during the late 1820s in which he was told not to join any church because they all held wrong beliefs. An angel then directed him to gold plates that had been buried in the ground in upstate New York, which Smith then translated as the Book of Mormon.

Like traditional Christians, Mormons consider the Bible sacred and view Jesus as savior. However, Mormons do not share the concept of a unified Trinity that is part of historical Christianity. They believe that God has called new apostles and prophets and that revelation continues as it did in ancient times, which does not conform to mainstream Christianity. The LDS church also teaches that God has a physical body and that human beings can eventually become like God.

But for conservative Protestants, the Bible alone is the authoritative word of God and the innovations of Mormon teaching are heresy. They do not recognize baptisms by the Mormon church and decry the secrecy surrounding some of its sacraments. Only church members in good standing can enter Mormon temples, where families are sealed, or united, so their relationships can continue in the afterlife.

Evangelicals engaged in dialogue do not expect to reconcile these different views, but hope to find beliefs that they all accept.

Mouw said he has seen a growing emphasis by Mormon scholars on beliefs they share with evangelicals, such as salvation through Christ alone and a focus on atonement and the Cross. He said prominent evangelical church leaders have been meeting with Mormon leaders in recent years "at fairly high levels."

New York University and is a visiting professor at Princeton.

Among their achievements, the two Nobel laureates — working separately for the most part over the years — devised tools to analyze how changes in interest rates and taxes affect growth and inflation.

Their work doesn't provide prescriptions for policymakers to solve today's crises. Rather, their achievement has been to create mathematical models that central bankers and other leaders can use to devise policy proposals.

"We're just bookish types that look at numbers and try to figure out what's going on," Sargent said in an interview on the Nobel website.

Sims said he had no sure-fire advice to offer policymakers in the U.S. and Europe: "If I had a simple answer, I would have been spreading it around the world."

Still, Sims said, "I think the methods that I have used and Tom has developed are central to finding our way out of this mess. ... I think they point a way to try to unravel why our serious problems develop, and new research using these methods may help us lead us out of it."

Sargent and Sims have been friends since the 1960s, when both were Harvard graduate students. They later taught at the same time at the University of Minnesota. This semester, they are teaching a graduate-level macroeconomics course together at Princeton.

Their awards extend Americans' dominance in the Nobel economics category. Thirteen of the 15 most recent winners of the prize in economics have been Americans.

Robert Lucas, a University of Chicago economist who won the Nobel in 1995, said the work of Sargent and Sims is timely now that policymakers are debating whether to do something to stimulate the U.S. economy.

"We want to know what happens if we do it, what happens if we don't, what are the long-term consequences," he said. Sargent and Sims "got their hands dirty, using data, trying to forecast, trying to see what works, what doesn't."

In its citation, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences said Sargent showed how statistical models could help analyze how households and companies adjust their expectations as conditions and policies shift.

Family Fishing Trip Turns Tragic off Florida Coast

MARATHON, Fla. (AP) • Four hours into a family fishing trip, rough waves flipped a 22-foot boat off the Florida Keys, tossing eight people overboard. Seven of them, including a 4-year-old girl, survived by clinging to their capsized vessel and a small blue cooler for almost 20 hours, suffering exhaustion, jellyfish stings and hypothermia.

A 79-year-old woman, the matriarch of the group, was missing and presumed drowned. “When the will to live kicks in, human beings can do amazing things,” Coast Guard Petty Officer Nick Ameen said. Those rescued were taken to a hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

The family left Layton in the Middle Keys around 8 a.m. Saturday to fish in less-than-ideal conditions. It was raining, seas topped 7 feet and winds were whipping up to 38 mph. After they anchored 3½ miles off the island chain, two waves hit suddenly, capsizing the vessel. The women grabbed the girl and the 2½-foot cooler. One of the men tried to rescue his mother, but she slipped through his grasp and disappeared into the water. Almost immediately, the two groups — the three women and girl and three men — drifted apart. Nearly a day later, they were rescued when a commercial fisherman spotted the men Sunday morning and alerted the Coast Guard, which found the women and the blue cooler several miles away in the warm waters. The women said the boat turned over so quickly that there wasn't time to grab life jackets for anyone except the child, said Kendra Graves, a seaman with the Coast Guard.

LAWN & GARDEN

WINTERIZING ANNUAL BEDS, VEGETABLE BEDS

After harvesting your fruits and flowers, remove old plant matter from the garden, placing it in your compost bin. Leaving it behind in the garden would invite plant diseases next growing season. Some people choose to rototill their garden soil at this time, although some experts say that excessive rototilling may do more harm than good. But some people rely on “http://landscaping.about.com/od/helpforconsumers/gr/garden_tiller.htm” small garden tillers to keep down weeds in vegetable gardens. Rototilling in fall may seem premature; but it will make your spring gardening work go much easier. Drain the old gas out of the rototiller afterwards. If you are going to rototill, this is the time to apply lime (if soil tests have indicated that your pH is too low). The effects of liming don't manifest themselves for several months, so liming in the spring is too late for next year's crop. More on winterizing annual beds and vegetable beds: Protect your topsoil from the rigors of winter. You have two options here: You can plant a “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-covercrop.htm” cover crop for large beds. Or you can apply a “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-mulch.htm” mulch. Mulching is more efficient for smaller beds. And landscapers have a ready source of mulch in the leaves that they rake. Some garden experts recommend spreading “http://landscaping.about.com/library/glossary/bldef-compost.htm” compost on the soil as well at this time. I personally disagree with this strategy, feeling that it is a waste of compost. I recommend keeping your compost protected in a compost bin during the winter, waiting until planting season to spread it in the garden.

TIMES-NEWS

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were on vacation out of state with our four young children, staying at a large resort that offered a free buffet breakfast. While my husband tended to the children's beverages and eating utensils, I stood in line to make waffles for everyone. (There were three waffle irons available.)

As I made four waffles for the six of us — as others were doing for their families — a woman began berating me and another man for “monopolizing” the waffle irons. She said we should make only one waffle at a time and then get back in line. She went on to insult our kids by saying that by feeding our kids whole waffles for breakfast, we are responsible for the epidemic of childhood obesity in this country.

Was I being rude? Is there a rule of etiquette regarding waffle-making in a buffet? We like to sit down as a family and enjoy our meal together.

— WAFFLING IN THE SOUTH

DEAR WAFFLING: As far as I know, you broke no rule of etiquette. What you encountered was a hungry woman who was taking her impatience out on you. She is lucky you didn't hand her an egg and tell her to go suck on it.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks before our youngest child's wedding, my husband of more than 40 years suddenly became obsessed with worry that I was unfaithful. It was unfounded and nearly ruined the wedding for both of us. This continued for two weeks after the wedding, until he finally vowed to “let it go.”

My husband is now bending over backward to make it up to me. He is as thoughtful and passionate as if we were on our honeymoon again. While I'm enjoying the attention, I can't help but wonder if he is the guilty one. What do you think?

— TURNING THE TABLES IN ILLINOIS
DEAR TURNING THE TABLES: What I think isn't nearly as important as what YOU think. If you think he has been unfaithful, you may be right. The question now is, what do you intend to do about it? If you no longer trust your husband, then marriage counseling would be appropriate.

DEAR ABBY: I lost my wife and only child three years ago in a car accident. I felt my life ended that day, but I've managed to put the pieces back together thanks to the support of my family and friends. Now I'm at the point where I think I'm strong enough to start dating again.

When do I tell my date what happened? I don't want to scare her away with my story. It's a big part of who I am, but it's not ALL I am. First dates are about getting to know someone and it's hard not to share this, but I'm uncomfortable sharing right away. Do you have any advice?

— TENTATIVE IN MINNESOTA

DEAR TENTATIVE: I see no reason why you should disclose all the details of what happened to your wife and child on a first or second date. If the subject of your marital status is raised, it's perfectly all right to say that you are a widower, that the subject is a painful one, and you will share more details when you know the person better. It would be insensitive for anyone to press you for more information after hearing a statement like that.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“To live happily with other people one must only ask of them what they can give.”

— Tristan Bernard

All the deals this week come from last October’s world championships, held in Philadelphia. In the women’s knockout, both tables reached today’s diamond slam. Not surprisingly, neither West found the killing trump lead.

At one table Sandra Rimstedt of Sweden took an early ruffing spade finesse, which lost. She subsequently ruffed one spade in dummy to pitch her second spade on the top heart, conceding down one when trumps did not behave.

Sylvie Willard of France guessed better. She won the heart lead and took an immediate spade finesse. She then arranged to ruff two spades in dummy. When they split, she had more than enough trumps and entries to come back to hand and run the top trumps, then play on spades for 12 tricks.

This line succeeded, gaining 17 IMPs, but was it best? In the Rosenblum Teams event, where the same boards were in play, both declarers in the match between Jim Zimmerman and Hector Camberos made the slam on a club lead. They won, took the spade ace, and played to ruff two spades in dummy and two clubs in hand. Then they played on trumps, and when the bad diamond break came to light, they cashed the two top hearts, ruffed a heart, and thus scored their last small trump en passant.

This line is better than taking just one spade ruff in dummy (it loses only to spades 5-2 with the short hand having the diamond jack). And it has the merit of being successful, too!

ANSWER: The most likely way declarer will score tricks here is on a crossruff. Lead a trump and plan to continue the suit unless it becomes clear that you need to cash out.

IF OCTOBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have become intensely ambitious and impassioned in the past year and in the next several months you will need to work extra hard to keep the ball of success rolling. The more organized you are, the easier it will be to live up to increasing responsibilities – but don't voluntarily take on anything new. In January, your business sense and investment acumen is better than average, so you might make sound assessments of career, finances or business matters. Sidestep key decisions or changes in March, but instead wait until April when your judgment and luck is enhanced. At that point, you can successfully launch your favorite plans and projects.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Chin up. The job or other responsibilities might keep you from your favorite hobby or from spending time with a loved one. It is always good to remember that anything worth having is worth waiting for.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wisdom that gives you an overview of power and prestige may put you in the driver's seat. Those in charge, however, may be more interested in seeing you salute and obey than in giving you a free rein.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep that backbone straight like a ruler. Refuse to think you deserve a little pity. Others will expect you to shoulder responsibilities without a fuss and will have little sympathy if you slack off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid confrontations. The sand in which you draw a line could turn out to be concrete and permanent alienation could result. If you are lonely, rest assured that true love always comes home to roost.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): “Picky, picky, picky” might be the song you hum today. It's OK to whistle while you work, but only after you organize the calendar and set up a list of priorities. The more organized you are, the better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Current events might shift attention to your piggy bank and financial burdens such as taxes and loans. Mistakes that come to your attention now indicate that it is time to consider a revision of spending.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ambition might be your middle name. Be passionate about things that are worthwhile to achieve objectives. You can't control everything, however, so avoid a tendency to micro-manage others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Earn future vacation hours by keeping your nose to the grindstone. You'd prefer to take a break with your friends, but the boss could be breathing down your neck today. Handle your fair share.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Minor setbacks can put success in jeopardy. Authority figures could be on the prowl for a scapegoat whenever things go wrong. Take care of all the tasks on your list before you stop to play.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Everyone sees your relentless drive and determination. However, you must remain thoughtful and considerate. Remember that being businesslike doesn't mean you must be cold and unyielding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cosmic reminders of mistakes make you cautious. You may hear about someone else's bad luck and decide to implement stringent economies. A penny saved is definitely a penny earned.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't let ambitions get the best of you. You might want to succeed in business without really trying, so it could be very tempting to use tactics that stray into the gray areas of what is right and wrong.

After Long Wait, Facebook Set to Release iPad App

One of the big, enduring questions of the technology world: “When will iPad users get their very own Facebook app?” That question was answered Monday, as Facebook said it was set to release an updated version of its iPhone application, one that’s also designed to fill out the larger screen of the iPad. The lack of an iPad app for the most popular social network in the world has confounded users, ever since Apple launched its tablet computer a year and a half ago. Third-party developers have made money selling their own apps that show Facebook pages.

Bret Taylor, the chief technology officer of Facebook, said in an interview Monday that “We’re releasing it now because it’s done.”

Foreign Insects, Diseases Got into US

ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRESNO, Calif. • Dozens of foreign insects and plant diseases slipped undetected into the United States in the years after 9/11, when authorities were so focused on preventing another attack that they overlooked a pest explosion that threatened the quality of the nation’s food supply.

At the time, hundreds of agricultural scientists responsible for stopping invasive species at the border were re-assigned to anti-terrorism duties in the newly formed Homeland Security Department — a move that scientists say cost billions of dollars in crop damage and eradication efforts from California vineyards to Florida citrus groves.

The consequences come home to consumers in the form of higher grocery prices, substandard produce and the risk of environmental damage from chemicals needed to combat the pests.

An Associated Press analysis of inspection records found that border-protection officials were so engrossed in stopping terrorists that they all but ignored the country’s exposure to destructive new insects and infections — a quietly growing menace that has been attacking fruits and vegetables and even prized forests ever since.

“Whether they know it or not, every

A Look at the Damage

- No fewer than 19 Mediterranean fruit fly infestations took hold in California.
- The Asian citrus psyllid carries a disease that has decimated Florida orange groves.
- Due to New Zealand’s light brown apple moth’s presence in California, in 2008 the government bombarded the Monterey Bay area with 1,600

- pounds of pesticides. The spraying caused respiratory problems and killed birds.
- The sweet orange scab appeared in southern states, imposing quarantines.
- The erythrina gall wasp decimated Hawaii’s wiliwili trees.
- Forests from Minnesota to the Northeast were affected by beetles, many of which arrived in Chinese shipping pallets because regulations weren’t enforced.

person in the country is affected by this, whether by the quality or cost of their food, the pesticide residue on food or not being able to enjoy the outdoors because beetles are killing off the trees,” said Mark Hoddle, an entomologist specializing in invasive species at the University of California, Riverside.

Homeland Security officials acknowledge making mistakes and say they are now working to step up agricultural inspections at border checkpoints, airports and seaports.

While not as dire as terrorism, the threat is considerable and hard to contain.

Many invasive species are carried into the U.S. by people who are either unaware of the laws or are purposely trying to skirt quarantine regulations. The hardest to stop are fruits, vegetables and spices carried by international travelers or shipped by mail. If tainted with insects or infections, they could carry contagions capable of devastating crops.

Plants and cut flowers can harbor larvae, as can bags of bulk commodities such as rice. Beetles have been found hitchhiking on the bottom of tiles from Italy, and boring insects have burrowed into the wooden pallets commonly used in cargo shipments.

Invasive species have been sneaking into North America since Europeans arrived on the continent, and many got established long before 9/11. But the abrupt shift in focus that followed the attacks caused a steep decline in agricultural inspections that allowed more pests to invade American farms and forests.

Trout Growers Feel Pinch of High Feed Prices

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

When it comes to raising livestock, it doesn’t matter whether the animal has legs, wings or fins — feed is expensive.

Trout don’t eat a lot of corn and the Magic Valley is a long way from the Corn Belt, but aquaculture feeds are influenced by many of the same factors that have riled global feed markets. Increasing demand for aquaculture products coupled with tight supplies of key ingredients have pushed aquaculture feed prices up 25 to 30 percent since 2008. Many producers have seen prices increase by 10 percent this year alone.

While the U.S. ethanol market makes a handy scapegoat, the real culprit is the Far East where both consumption and production are rapidly increasing.

Aquaculture now provides just less than half of all fish products consumed in the world and has grown to a $108 billion global industry.

Most of the growth is happening in Asia, particularly China, said Ron Hardy, director of the University of Idaho’s Aquaculture Research Institute at Hagerman.

In 1970, aquaculture accounted for only 25 percent of the fish consumed in China. Today, it’s 70 percent. The country’s annual production growth outpaces both the U.S. and the world.

To meet that demand, China is building more farm ponds, more intensively managing those ponds and feeding fish better.

“Feed is what’s driving aquaculture,” Hardy said during the U.S. Trout Farmers Association annual meeting held recently in Twin Falls.

Asian farmers who used to feed fish scraps or farm-made feeds are switching to pelleted feeds to meet the growing demand for fish products. That switch is increasing demand for feed ingredients — especially fish meal.

Fish feed production has grown from less than 1 million metric tons (mmt) in 1970 to 13 mmt today.

Unlike most other feed ingredients, the supply of fish meal is relatively set. Corn demand can be met by planting more acres or higher-yielding varieties. But fish meal is made up of non-food fish, and stocks of those fish are stable or falling. That means it’s just not possible to keep increasing the amount of fish meal used.

“If we don’t change the amount of fish meal used, we will use everything in the world in four years,” Hardy said.

The market is doing its part to ration limited supplies. Fish meal prices hit $1,873 per metric ton in the U.S. in July 2010 before settling back around the $1,650 mark — still nearly three times the price in 2004.

Livestock producers have found alternatives to the high-priced ingredient. Poultry and swine operations have cut back on what used to be a primary feed ingredient, and some fish species can be successfully grown using grain-based substitutes.

The amount of fish meal fed to trout, salmon and shrimp has fallen dramatically, Hardy said. Producers are also discovering that for fish, the life stage is key to determining how much fish meal is needed in their diet. He was part of a study that showed young Atlantic salmon did not do well when fed fish meal alternatives, but older fish did just fine.

Though some have advocated tilapia as an omnivorous fish that would handle a grain-based diet, that’s not necessarily true, Hardy said. Tilapia are actually carnivorous when young and consume more fish meal than all of salmon production combined.

*Preliminary, subject to change.

Bonds scheduled to mature on two or more of the above-designated maturity dates, may be rescheduled, at bidder's option, to mature as term bonds on one or more dates within that period, in which event the Bonds will mature and be subject to a mandatory sinking fund deposit in such amounts and on such dates as will correspond to the above-designated maturity dates and principal amounts maturing on those dates.

The District reserves the right, following determination of the best bid(s), to reduce or increase the principal amount of each maturity of the Bonds by the amount necessary to properly size the issue so that proceeds available to the District will be approximately $2,497,000.

The purchase price bid shall not be less than 110% of the principal amount of the Bonds ($2,497,000).

Bidders must specify the rate of interest with respect to each maturity of Bonds. Bidders will be permitted to bid different rates of interest for each separate maturity of Bonds, but:

- the highest interest rate bid for any of the Bonds shall not exceed 5.00% per annum;
- each interest rate specified in any bid must be in a multiple of one-eighth or one-twentieth of one percent (1/8th or 1/20th of 1%) per annum;
- no Bond shall have more than one rate of interest;
- interest shall be computed from the dated date of a Bond to its stated maturity date at the single interest rate specified in the bid for the Bonds of such maturity;
- the same interest rate shall apply to all Bonds maturing at one time;
- the purchase price must be paid in immediately available funds and no bid will be accepted that contemplates the cancellation of any interest or the waiver of interest or other concession by the bidder as a substitute for immediately available funds;
- any premium must be paid in the funds specified for the payment of the Bonds as part of the purchase price;
- there shall be no supplemental interest coupons;
- a zero percent (0%) interest rate may not be used; and
- interest shall be computed on the basis of a 360-day year of 12, 30-day months.

Interest will be payable commencing February 15, 2012, and semiannually thereafter on February 15 and August 15 of each year.

The Bonds are not subject to redemption prior to maturity.

The Bonds will be full general obligations of the District, payable from the proceeds of ad valorem taxes to be levied without limitation as to rate or amount on all of the taxable property in the District, fully sufficient to pay the same as to both principal and interest. Additionally, the Bonds are secured through the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program, Title 33, chapter 53, Idaho Code, and the Credit Enhancement Program, Section 57-728, Idaho Code. Moody's Investors Service has assigned its "Aaa" rating to bonds that are guaranteed by both the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program and the Credit Enhancement Program.

Award or rejection of bids will be made at the Tuesday, October 18, 2011, meeting (subject to change) of the District referred to above. The Bonds will be awarded to the responsible bidder offering to pay the lowest effective interest rate to the District computed from the date of the Bonds to maturity and taking into consideration the premium, if any, in the purchase price of the Bonds. The effective interest rate to the District shall be the interest rate per annum determined on a per annum true interest cost ("TIC") basis by discounting the scheduled semiannual debt service payments of the District on the Bonds (based on such rate or rates of interest so bid) to the dated date of the Bonds (based on a 360-day year consisting of 12, 30-day months), compounded semiannually and to the bid price.

The successful binder shall provide a good faith deposit in the amount of $25,000.

A prospective bidder must communicate its bid for the Bonds electronically via PARITY® on or before 9:30:00 a.m., MDST, on Tuesday, October 18, 2011. No bid will be received after the time for receiving bids specified above. For further information about PARITY®, potential bidders may contact i-Deal LLC at 1359 Broadway, 2nd Floor, New York, New York 10018, 212.849.5021 or the Financial Advisor at One South Main Street, 18th Floor, Salt Lake City, Utah 84133-1109, (801) 844-7373.

In the opinion of Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley LLP, Boise, Idaho, Bond Counsel, subject to the condition that the District comply with certain covenants made to satisfy pertinent requirements of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), under present law, interest on the Bonds is not included in gross income under the present federal income tax laws pursuant to Section 103 of the Code. The Bonds are not private activity bonds. Interest on the Bonds will not be treated as an item of tax preference for purposes of determining the alternative minimum taxable income for individuals or corporations, but will be taken into account in the computation of the adjusted current earnings adjustment applicable to corporations for purposes of computing the alternative minimum taxable income of corporations under Section 55 of the Code.

The District intends to designate the Bonds as "qualified tax-exempt obligations" for the purpose and within the meaning of Section 265(b)(3) of the Code.

AVAILABLE FOR ADOPTION:

Donations are greatly appreciated. We are in desperate need of adult and puppy food. Thank you Conway Twitty is a handsome Heeler/Border Collie mix. He is black with some white markings. He is about six-weeks-old and came into the shelter with his sister Loretta. They were found in an ally starving and scared. They are doing really well now and are eager to find there forever homes.

Gypsy was left abandoned in a back yard with 2 feet of chain. If it hadn't been for a good Samaritan neighbor she wouldn't have made it to us. She is a beautiful Australian Shepherd mix with a red brindle coat. Gypsy is probably about 3 years old.

Miracle Max is a 6 month old chocolate Lab. Max came to the shelter about four months ago and has been under medical care. He was tied in the back of a pickup, jumped out and got tangled up with the back tire. The tire acted as a belt sander removing all of the muscle tissue and much of the bone on Max's rear leg. Rather than euthanizing Max or amputating the leg, Dr. Jones and his staff spent the past several months caring for Max with herbal therapies. Max's leg is now fully functional.

Hannah is a 3 month old chocolate Labrador mix puppy. She has a some white markings. She is a sweetheart!

Missy-Mae is a Beagle/Basset Hound mix. She is a young adult, probably about 2 or 3-years-old. Missy is tri-colored and very affectionate.

Kelsey is a female Pointer Border Collie mix puppy. White with large black spots..really cute!

Pepper is a beautiful Wirehaired Pointer. She is a young adult and has black and white markings. Pepper is very sweet and will be a great pet.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Low at my problem bending, Another problem comes..."
— Emily Dickinson

This week's deals all come from the world championships held this time last year in Philadelphia. The swing that arose on this board from the teams event was somewhat random in nature, since a lot depended on the minor suit opened by West. If West opened one club and South ended up in three no-trump without having bid a suit, then it was natural for West to lead either a high or low diamond at the first trick. It did not really matter which card West chose. It was then easy for South to establish diamonds and bring home nine tricks.

By contrast, if declarer received an unhelpful club lead, as happened when Tarek Sadek was declarer in three no-trump in the Rosenblum, there was considerably more work to do. He won the lead in his hand, knocked out one high diamond, then took the spade shift and knocked out the other top diamond. When a spade came back, he could see that he needed to achieve an endplay on West, which in turn required that player to have only two hearts.

So he cashed both top hearts and just two more rounds of spades, ending in hand, then drove out the diamond nine, endplaying West to lead clubs to him for the ninth trick. In the end Sadek took only three spade tricks, but he also scored two hearts, three diamonds, and a second club trick for his contract.

ANSWER: The fact that you have five chunky diamonds outweighs your defensive club holding. Both sides rate to have a nine-card fit here, so you should bid three diamonds and compete to the level of your total trumps, a theory espoused by Larry Cohen and the Law of Total Tricks. When in doubt, bid on with trumps, as opposed to high cards.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 11, the 284th day of 2011. There are 81 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight
On Oct. 11, 1811, the first steam-powered ferryboat, the Juliana (built by John Stevens), was put into operation between New York City and Hoboken, N.J.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1779, Polish nobleman Casimir Pulaski, fighting for American independence, died two days after being wounded during the Revolutionary War Battle of Savannah, Ga.

In 1890, the Daughters of the American Revolution was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1910, Theodore Roosevelt became the first former U.S. president to fly in an airplane during a visit to St. Louis, Mo.

In 1932, the first American political telecast took place as the Democratic National Committee sponsored a program from a CBS television studio in New York.

In 1958, the lunar probe Pioneer 1 was launched; it failed to go as far out as planned, fell back to Earth, and burned up in the atmosphere.

In 1961, actor-comedian Leonard "Chico" Marx, 74, died in Hollywood, Calif.

In 1968, Apollo 7, the first manned Apollo mission, was launched with astronauts Wally Schirra, Donn Fulton Eisele and R. Walter Cunningham aboard. The government of Panama was overthrown in a military coup.

In 1984, space shuttle Challenger astronaut Kathryn Sullivan became the first American woman to walk in space.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev opened two days of talks concerning arms control and human rights in Reykjavik, Iceland.

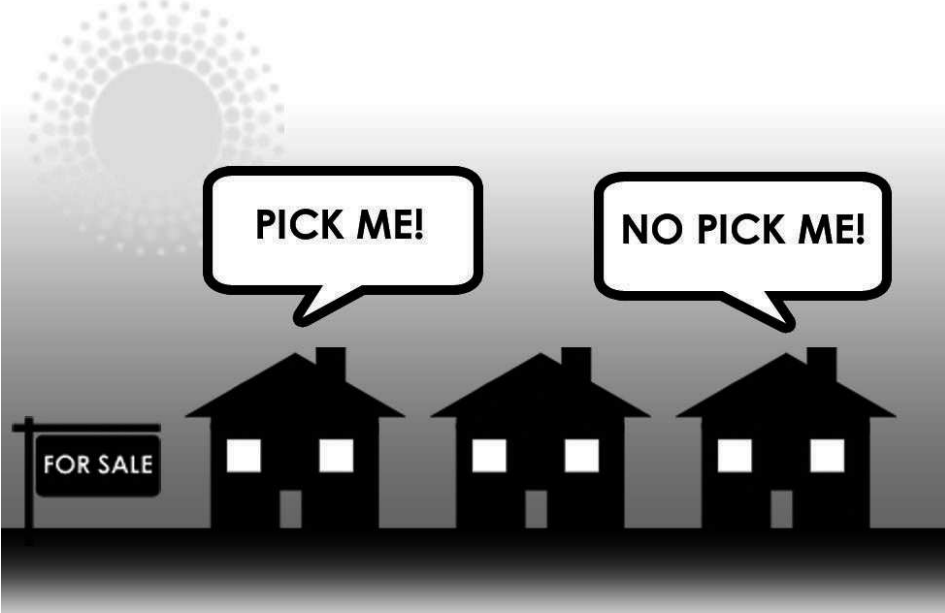

In 1991, testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Anita Hill accused Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas of sexually harassing her; Thomas re-appeared before the panel to denounce what he called a "high-tech lynching." Comedian Redd Foxx died in Los Angeles at age 68.

Ten years ago: In his first prime-time news conference since taking office, President George W. Bush said "it may take a year or two" to track down Osama bin Laden and his terrorist network in Afghanistan, but asserted that after a five-day aerial bombardment, "we've got them on the run." Trinidad-born writer V.S. Naipaul (NY'-pahl) won the Nobel Prize in literature.

Five years ago: A plane carrying New York Yankees pitcher Cory Lidle (LY'-dul) and flight instructor Tyler Stanger crashed into a high-rise apartment building in New York City, killing both men. The charge of treason was used for the first time in the U.S. war on terrorism, filed against Adam Yehiye Gadahn, who'd appeared in propaganda videos for al-Qaida. (Gadahn remains at large.)

One year ago: Rescuers in Chile finished reinforcing a hole drilled to bring 33 trapped miners to safety and sent a rescue capsule nearly all the way to where the men were trapped, proving the escape route worked. Peter Diamond, Dale Mortensen and Christopher Pissarides won the Nobel Prize in economics.

A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from “On My Own in Bloomington, Ind!” (Aug. 5), who needed a ride to her colonoscopy appointment but didn’t have transportation. Your suggestions were admirable, but there is another service you should be aware of.

Many states have a 2-1-1 Information and Referral Service, often sponsored by the local United Way. It has trained information and referral specialists available 24 hours a day, seven days a week to listen to individuals’ needs or questions, help callers make informed decisions, and link them to a variety of community resources that fit their needs.

Those needs could be anything from a volunteer driver for a medical appointment to help caring for an aging relative, consumer help, child-care services, finding a local food shelf, domestic abuse shelter or chemical dependency treatment. When you don’t know whom to call, call 2-1-1. It is available to help you find answers confidentially.

— LYNETTA IN DULUTH, MINN.

DEAR LYNETTA: My readers never cease to amaze me. You always come through with all kinds of suggestions for any situation, as you did again. Thanks to all of you. I’m sure the information will be appreciated. My newspaper readers’ comments:

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have a few suggestions for “On My Own.” She should contact a social worker at the hospital where her doctor works. As you pointed out, many people have this problem, and I bet the social worker will have some solutions.

Second, there is probably a nursing school nearby. She should contact the dean of students to find out whether a nursing student would be available and would like to earn some extra money in this useful way.

— JACQUELINE, R.N., NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY: This is one of the many jobs home-health care aides are hired and trained for. My mother has worked for an agency and has accompanied many clients — seniors and younger people — on doctor and hospital visits. Many businesses that advertise “senior care” also provide services to non-seniors with disabilities, temporary health issues, and people who just need a “friend” for a few hours.

There are also volunteer organizations that provide similar services, although some may not have training or appropriate insurance or be bonded by the organization, as many home-health care businesses do.

— ALEXANDRA IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR ABBY: Many senior centers offer this service for medical appointments and procedures. The drivers are covered by insurance and are trained on customer service techniques. My husband has taken many people for this procedure. He typically leaves his number with the medical staff, who call him when the patient is ready to be picked up. Rarely do patients need someone at home with them afterward as long as they stay quiet.

— HAPPY TO HELP IN IRVINE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: One solution to the problem of not having family/friends available to accompany a single person for a colonoscopy is to trade time. I’ll go with you for yours, and you go with me for mine.

— RICK IN WISCONSIN

DEAR ABBY: There are non-medical in-home care providers in many cities such as Seniors Helping Seniors that can provide the transportation and companionship that is needed. Check the phone book under Home Health Care and Services or Senior Citizens Organizations, or search the Web for non-medical in-home care.

IF OCTOBER 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Whatever infatuating idea has lassoed your heart may occupy every waking minute of your day. During the upcoming months, you must learn patience and the necessity for careful planning. New friendships formed in November can be a source of support and education. Don't volunteer for extra responsibilities this winter, as you need to slow down and control your time and resources. Because you are willing to work hard, you will reach your most important objectives by May — and when opportunity arrives, you will be ready to recognize it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The mirror can reflect all of your flaws when you are placed in an unflattering light. Tonight's full moon in your sign might mark the high tide of dissatisfaction with a relationship — or with yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): When the going gets tough, the tough get going. Use your extra reserves of energy and good judgment to rise to the challenge. It is a poor time to sign agreements or launch important new projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accept your piece of humble pie with good grace. It could be time to digest some pointed criticism. A place for everything and everything in its place is something you aspire to, but don't always achieve.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This evening's full moon might illuminate stresses brought on by obligations. When you already have many responsibilities, it doesn't make sense to take on any more. This is a good time to say no.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't panic when faced by deadlines and demands. A filled-to-the-brim schedule could make you wonder if there are hours enough in the day. Write down your must-do list and tackle it methodically.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tonight's full moon might shed light on a billing error or lack of funds. Suppress any urge to borrow or lend money or make investments. Unexpected bills in the mail could add a little stress to the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The most direct route to success is paved with careful attention to detail. Take it slow and easy and be thorough — even if it takes longer to finish your work. Tonight's full moon rivets attention on errors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A special spark sets you apart from the crowd. Your positive attitude in the face of difficulties, however, could cause others to question your level of commitment. Adopt a serious pose when needed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): First things first. Prioritize to avoid an unpleasant surprise. Those who know you well will trust your judgment, but the rest of the world may be suspicious or cautious under these stars.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You walk the line. You have to remain balanced as you struggle to please others who are in a somewhat critical and exacting mood while making progress with your own burning desire for success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mixed signals from partners may mix you up. Promises made now could be difficult to fulfill. Don't begin any important projects or sign crucial agreements during this brief celestial downturn.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Wait for a better time to start crucial projects. You need to rein in your ambitions and impatience. Your intimates could be concerned with personal problems and unable to respond to your warm concern.

Why Is This Man Smiling?

NBA commissioner David Stern started the NBA down the path of both predictable and unthinkable Monday by cancelling the first two weeks of the NBA season. Where the league goes from here — other than another trip to the bargaining table — is unknown. What is known is this: This labor strife makes the recently solved NFL lockout look like a pillow fight. Both sides seem intent on making the other side submit to their demands, which means the biggest loser thus far is the Average Joe Professional Basketball Fan. More on this story can be found on S3.

Tebow's Move To Starter Inevitable

Broncos coach John Fox refused to make it official for another 24 hours, even though he's known from the moment he arrived in Denver that Tim Tebow would be his starter sooner rather than later. He was just waiting for the bottom to fall out and it did Sunday.

If the whole thing felt preordained long ago, well, that's because it was — but not by the guy you might have in mind. Credit for that belongs to former Broncos coach and failed wunderkind Josh McDaniels.

McDaniels lacked head-coaching experience and was just 32 when he was hired in 2009. Yet owner Pat Bowlen and his advisers were so confident in the Bill Belichick disciple that they doubled down and made McDaniels the de facto general manager as well. In short order, he chased away Jay Cutler, a perfectly serviceable quarterback, then traded away three draft choices the next year to make Tebow a first-round pick and heir apparent. Then McDaniels went to work wrecking the rest of the roster, leaving behind as his legacy plenty of chaos and a 4-12 season — the worst in franchise history.

Fox knew all that when he took the job. So did former Broncos hero John Elway when he signed on as team president. They knew this day was coming even after Tebow failed to win the job — maybe even the backup QB job — fair and square in training camp, and long before fans started chanting his name near the end of games and threatened to plaster their campaign on billboards around town. Why Fox was determined to let it drag on for another day is anyone's guess.

"The way we'll operate is we'll communicate with the people involved and the team long before we announce it to you guys," he told reporters Monday. "So, that won't be happening today because we don't see the team until tomorrow."

Fox had said everything was "up for discussion" after Tebow came on in relief Sunday of starter Kyle Orton and sparked a listless Broncos team to within a last-gasp pass of coming back against the San Diego Chargers. Tebow cobbled together two quick scores against a prevent defense, pumping his fist and breathing fire into his teammates and fans, and effectively ending any real discussion. Never mind that backup quarterbacks playing well late in losing efforts happens all the time, or that Tebow also mishandled three snaps from center in that brief relief appearance. The Broncos have a bye week to work on that before traveling to Miami for their next game Oct. 23, and as often happens at various moments in Tebow's career, the extra week to study the Broncos playbook is hardly the only star aligned in his favor.

Inconsistent CSI Falls To W. Wyoming

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

At this level, naivety always gets punished.

The College of Southern Idaho volleyball team was impressive in spurts but naive when it mattered, and the end result was a 25-22, 25-19, 23-25, 25-18 home loss Monday against Western Wyoming Community College, in a battle of top 10 teams in the NJCAA Division I poll.

Sixth-ranked CSI (15-7) committed 44 total errors, 27 in attack, in essence handing a match to its guest that the seventh-ranked team tried to give away as well (35 errors).

"It's always errors with us," said setter Ashia Joseph. "We need to keep our intensity level up all the time. It's really easy to do when we're winning, but when we're down we need to learn to battle"

Joseph had four kills, five blocks (one solo), nine digs and 38 assists, the kind of all-around performance worthy of a six-rotation setter on a JUCO power.

Although CSI had 11.5 team blocks, continuing its season-long performance on the front line, there were all too often gaping holes in the block, the defense and serve receive.

Olivera Medic had a match-high 20 kills for the Mustangs (26-2), while Viktorija Teivane added 18 to form a strong two-headed attack — no one else had more than eight kills for Western Wyoming.

Beth Carey had 11 kills for CSI, while Emily Ottinger added 10, and Heather Meeuwssen had 22 digs.

But the Golden Eagles couldn't overcome slow starts in the three sets they lost, including 5-0 in the second set and 4-0 in the fourth. By the time they showed any urgency, it was 23-14 in the fourth set and the proverbial horses had already left the stable.

"I'm tired of waiting to see what the outcome is going to be — are they going to be tough, are they going to go easy on us, are we going to have to work that hard for it?" said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "We didn't have to work that hard for it tonight. We need to perform under pressure."

The pressure will be ratcheted up a few notches Thursday when CSI returns to Scenic West Athletic Conference play when it welcomes Salt Lake Community College. That match serves as CSI's "Dig Pink" night, where the team will raise funds to help combat breast cancer. October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Nelson Cruz starts celebrating after hitting a grand slam in the bottom of the 11th inning to lift Texas past Detroit.

TEXAS-SIZED SLAM

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas • Nelson Cruz hit the first game-ending grand slam in postseason history, lifting the Texas Rangers over the Detroit Tigers 7-3 in 11 innings Monday for a 2-0 lead in the AL championship series.

Cruz doubled early, then hit a tying home run in the seventh inning. His second homer of the game was a high drive to left field off Ryan Perry with nobody out in the 11th, and came after a misplay in the Detroit outfield loaded the bases.

"It was amazing," Cruz said. "First two pitches, I was too aggressive. I hit the ball — foul ball, foul ball. So after that, I told myself just slow down and try to hit a fly ball to the outfield."

Cruz, hit on the wrist by a pitch in the ninth, connected for the fourth grand slam in the playoffs this year. Ryan Roberts and Paul Goldschmidt of Arizona and Robinson Cano of the Yankees also hit them.

STATS LLC confirmed that Cruz's shot was the first slam to end a postseason game — with a postscript.

Robin Ventura sent a tiebreaking drive over the fence to finish a New York Mets victory against Atlanta in the 1999 NLCS, but was swarmed by teammates between first and second.

Ventura never made it around the bases and was officially credited with a single. His 15th-inning drive for a 4-3 Mets win in Game 5 came to be known as "the grand slam-single."

The Tigers and Rangers both blew bases-loaded chances in the ninth. Texas shortstop Elvis Andrus made a juggling, over-the-shoulder catch in shallow center field on a flare by Victor Martinez, cradling the ball against his chest to end the inning. Andrus and Texas part-owner Nolan Ryan each flashed a sheepish smile.

PETERSEN SHOWS KICKER LOYALTY

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Chris Petersen isn't too worried about the missed extra point, the blocked extra point, or the fortunate bounce off the upright on a 32-yard field goal in last week's game at Fresno State.

Those points hardly mattered considering No. 5 Boise State was in the process of handing the Bulldogs a 57-7 beatdown.

What matters — at least for now — is that Petersen has the faith and confidence that freshman kicker Dan Goodale has the smarts to fix the flaws that have caused four of his extra point attempts this season to sail wide of the uprights. "Do we think it could come back to get us down the road at some point?" Petersen said Monday. "Yeah, we're well aware that all the games aren't going to be like (Fresno). But he's just got to take the next step ... and get better."

Goodale, a redshirt freshman and Boise native, was wide right on one extra point attempt Friday night, and had another blocked by a Fresno State team that has five blocked PAT's already this season.

And he got a break on his second field goal attempt of the season when the ball clanked off an upright and fell through, spotting the Broncos (5-0) to an early 10-0 lead in the first quarter.

PLAYER, COACH ARE NOW PEERS AT UI

BY JOSH WRIGHT

Correspondent

MOSCOW • The second floor Kibbie Dome office is large enough for two desks, a mini fridge, a flat screen TV that hangs on the wall and not much else. This is the space John McDonell shares with Jason Gesser, the quarterback he helped recruit to Washington State more than 13 years ago.

McDonell and Gesser are now members of the Idaho football coaching staff, and often they find themselves talking about the early days at WSU.

"I can remember watching the tapes of Jason Gesser at St. Louis High School," said McDonell, the Vandals' first-year offensive line coach. "We were all in there and we just loved the way he played."

Working alongside Gesser serves as a reminder to McDonell — a Spokane native and Gonzaga Prep graduate — of his far-flung coaching career and how grateful he was earlier this year to bring his family back to the Inland Northwest.

But Gesser isn't the only one. Just down the hallway, there are other links to McDonell's past.

Torey Hunter, a former Cougar whose college career overlapped with McDonell's time in Pullman, is the newest UI football assistant (his office is a few feet from McDonell and Gesser's). And UI coach Robb Akey played for and

PREP ROUNDUP

Filer Boys Advance To Class 3A State

TIMES-NEWS

The combination of Santiago Alvarado and Zach Clark trumped the regular-season success of the Community School boys soccer team, with each assisting on the other's goal in leading the Wildcats to a 2-1 victory in the District IV Class 3A semifinals and a berth in the state tournament.

Clark's goal proved to be the game-winner, a spectacular shot that even Cutthroat coach Richard Whitelaw couldn't help but admire.

"If you lose to a goal like that, you have no complaints," Whitelaw said. "(Clark) whacked it from outside the area."

"It was a great goal," said Filer coach Gregg Clark, who is also Zach's father. "Just beautiful."

Ceaton Hammond had 10 saves for Filer, but couldn't keep Cassidy Carson from finding the net in the 32nd minute.

Filer hosts Gooding on Wednesday for the district title. Both teams are guaranteed entry into the Class 3A state tournament, although Community School can still get there if it beats Buhl, another semifinal loser, on Wednesday.

GOODING 7, BUHL 2

Jesse Cardanas had a hat trick, including a back-breaking goal that put the Senators up 4-2 midway through the second half, and teammates Rico Mendes and Angel Garcia added a pair of goals as Gooding used a late barrage of goals to give the appearance of a blowout in defeating the Indians.

COMMUNITY SCHOOL 4, BLISS 1

Gabe Perenchio found the net twice and teammates Hannah Dies and Taylor Figge each added goals as the Cutthroats defeated the Bears in a down-pour.

Katie Feldman added two assists, and Figge threw in a helper for Community School, which now travels to top-seeded Buhl on Wednesday to decide the District IV title.

Kendall Martel assisted Demsie Butler for Bliss' lone goal. The Indians play Filer for third place, also on Wednesday.

BUHL 3, BLISS 2

Skyler Barger scored twice and Tyana Weaver added what proved to be the decisive goal on a penalty kick in the second half, and the Indians advanced to the District IV title game. Buhl led 2-0 at halftime.

HANSEN 3, MURTAUGH 2

Connilyn Hursh had 11 kills and six aces, teammate Rebecca Valles added another 11 kills and five aces and the Huskies rallied after falling behind 2-1 in games, 19-25, 25-19, 29-31, 25-16, 15-3

Brooklyn Worthington and Angelica Gonzalez each led the Red Devils with six kills apiece.

Because the Dolphins have trouble filling their stadium in good times — they're winless at the moment — someone in the marketing department decided last summer to stage a promotional event called "Gator Day" at Sun Life Stadium on that very Sunday. The idea was to honor the University of Florida's 2008 national championship team and coax a few alums into buying Dolphin tickets, too. That's because they all remember who won that title in that very stadium two years ago. A guy by the name of Tebow.

For all that, there's a reason Fox delayed the inevitable for as long as he could. Tebow wasn't good enough to be the No. 1 starting the season because his footwork is questionable, he can't throw accurately and if he sees his primary receiver covered, he tucks the football into the crook of his arm and takes off. That worked great when he was pin-balling through college-sized defenses. But he will need luck just to survive the beating he's likely to absorb in the NFL. He should ask Michael Vick, Vince Young and a whole host of other mobile quarterbacks what that's like.

A 1-4 record leaves Fox with little to lose. As a first-year coach, he's got a grace period built in and Elway's implicit blessing for the move buys him more goodwill. All he has to do now is overhaul the offense and find a way to accommodate a skill set that hardly anyone was convinced would fly in the NFL, then let Tebow work his magic. That sounds like a recipe for 1-5 — and worse — but there are few things Tebow loves more than a challenge. It's finally arrived.

Moore Earns MWC Top Weekly Player Honors For 3rd Time

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Boise State quarterback Kellen Moore has been named the top offensive player in the Mountain West Conference for his performance in the Broncos' victory over Fresno State.

Moore was 23-of-31 for 254 yards and three touchdowns in Friday's 57-7 rout of the Bulldogs. Moore left the game in the third quarter with the No. 5 Broncos (5-0) in firmly in control of the game.

For Moore, it's the third time he's won the honor this season.

Moore's three TD passes give him 116 in his career and moved him into sixth on the NCAA's all-time career touchdown pass list.

Idaho Vandals Get New Logo

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho has unveiled a new logo and is urging fans to "Throw the V" a hand signal like a peace sign, to declare their support for Vandal athletics.

The new logo is a gold stylized "V" with a black outline and a banner that says: THROW THE "V"

Athletics director Rob Spear says the new logo is "about Vandals connecting with other Vandals, showing their pride and building a tradition."

He says the university heard from fans who wanted something distinctive. He says they listened and created and licensed the new logo and phrase, which are now available on Vandal athletics merchandise.

The new logo was unveiled for the university's homecoming weekend.

Louisiana Tech's football team beat Idaho 24-11 on Saturday.

Surging Lions Improve To 5-0

DETROIT • Detroit Lions fans counted down the final seconds — as if it was New Year's Eve — when the franchise finished its first Monday night game in a decade.

The Motor City is hoping this party doesn't stop any time soon.

Matthew Stafford's second touchdown pass put Detroit ahead in the third quarter and Jahvid Best's 88-yard run later in the period gave the Lions a double-digit lead in a 24-13 win over the Chicago Bears.

"It was electric," Stafford said. "Our fans came out and did an unbelievable job."

The Lions did a pretty good job, too.

Detroit (5-0) is undefeated through five games for the first time since 1956 — the year before its last NFL title.

Lions coach Jim Schwartz, though, refused to celebrate, pointing to the team's next game on Sunday at home against the San Francisco 49ers.

"We'll start on San Fran in about an hour and a half," Schwartz said shortly after midnight.

The defending NFC North champion Bears (2-3) are off to their worst start since 2007. They are three games behind Detroit and defending Super Bowl champion Green Bay (5-0) in the division.

Detroit and its fans were clearly fired up for the Monday night game.

The Lions had their largest crowd at Ford Field and the 67,861 fans created enough noise to rattle the Bears into nine false starts.

"It was unbelievable," Stafford said. "Especially early on, some of those third downs, you couldn't hear yourself think."

The Bears looked unnerved at times by the raucous crowd. Chicago committed six false start penalties in the first half — an NFL season-high for a game, according to STATS, LLC.

"We were going against a loud crowd, but that isn't an excuse," Chicago coach Lovie Smith said. "Pre-snap penalties kill you."

Chicago quieted the fans briefly by taking a 10-7 lead just before halftime and seemed to make them a little nervous by pulling within eight points with 4:07 left to play.

Best, though, made them roar again with a 43-yard run that was capped by a horse-collar penalty that gave Detroit the ball at the Chicago 22. He ran for another first down that took time off the clock and set up Jason Hanson's 31-yard kick with 1:56 to go to seal the victory.

worked with McDonell at Weber State before joining him and Mike Price as an assistant at Wazzu.

The two have been reunited on the Palouse, only this time Akey is the boss and they're just across the Washington-Idaho border.

"We kind of wanted to get back west," said McDonell, who's made stops at Stanford, Notre Dame and most recently Memphis, Bowling Green and Purdue. "... We were very happy to find a way back home."

The first months on the job haven't been easy. McDonell (pronounced MAC-done-el) has been forced to mix and match players on the Idaho's O-line, which was already inexperienced along the interior, after a series of injuries. Partly as a result, the Vandals (1-4) have the third-worst rushing attack in the nation.

But after nearly three decades of coaching, McDonell, 52, views all these challenges as part of the business he's in. Plus, he's encouraged by recent improvements his group has shown in pass protection.

"Very seldom do you go without getting someone hurt," he said. "You have to adjust. People have to step up. But so far these kids have been great. They work their tails off. The transition has been very smooth."

McDonell, almost fully bald now, is just as intense as he was in the late '90s, Gesser said. He still gets in the face of his players and becomes animated on the practice field, sometimes prompting Gesser and other coaches to chuckle.

Yet he has a knack for finding ways to relate with players.

"He's up-tempo and he'll be your biggest critic," said Mike Marboe, UI's starting center. "He'll be your biggest fan at the same time too. It's a good way that he coaches, and it works."

More than anything else, McDonell noted two things he enjoys about coaching: the bond he's forged with fellow coaches and the players that he's helped mold. He mentioned Akey ("a very close friend"), Bill Doba and Chris and Pete Tormey, both fellow Gonzaga Prep products.

McDonell also brought up Dustin Keller, the New York Jets tight end who was under his tutelage at Purdue. Keller came into the Boilermakers' program as a raw, lightly recruited prospect and ended up a first round NFL draft pick in 2008.

"That's the rewarding part of coaching," McDonell said, "when you take a young man, when you can see him take those steps and by the time they are a fifth-year senior ... he's grown up to be a man with a chance to live a dream."

St. Louis' Albert Pujols slides safely past Milwaukee's Marco Estrada to score during the fifth inning of Monday's Game 2 of the NLCS.

CARDS DOUBLE DOWN ON PUJOLS' BIG BAT

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE • Your turn, Albert Pujols.

The St. Louis slugger had one of the biggest postseason nights of his career in Game 2 of the NL championship series, going 4 for 5 with a home run, three doubles and five RBIs to lead the Cardinals past the Milwaukee Brewers 12-3 on Monday.

Pujols belted a two-run homer in the first, a two-run double in the third and an RBI double in the fifth, then added another double in the seventh. The crowd cheered sarcastically when the Brewers finally retired him in the eighth.

"Sometimes when they come, they come in a bunch," Pujols said.

His big hits came one night after Ryan Braun and Prince Fielder bashed the Brewers to a 9-6, come-from-behind victory in Game 1.

This time, the big bats couldn't bring Milwaukee back — even at Miller Park. The best home team in the majors all season, the Brewers had won all four home games in the playoffs until Monday.

The series now shifts to St. Louis, where Cardinals ace Chris Carpenter faces Brewers right-hander Yovani Gallardo in Game 3 on Wednesday night.

Pujols can become a free agent after the World Series, so a big postseason could raise his price. He was 1 for 4 in Sunday night's loss, hitting into a double play with runners on first and third in the seventh inning. A run scored on the play, but it seemed to be an indication that Pujols wasn't quite on his game. He came into Monday with only one RBI in the Cardinals' first six postseason games.

But he struck a confident tone when asked about his struggles after Sunday night's loss, saying "Tomorrow I can come and blow it out, and what are you going to say tomorrow?"

Blow it out, he did.

Rangers

In the Texas ninth, Detroit first baseman Miguel Cabrera started and ended a nifty double play on Mitch Moreland's sharp grounder. David Murphy hit a flyball to shallow left for the first out, keeping the bases loaded.

Texas relievers combined for 8 1-3 scoreless innings, starting the string shortly after Ryan Raburn's three-run homer off starter Derek Holland put the Tigers ahead 3-2 in the third.

The Rangers' bullpen has pitched 12 2-3 scoreless innings during the first two games of the series, allowing five hits and three walks while striking out 16.

Game 3 is Tuesday night in Detroit. Colby Lewis, 4-0 in five career postseason starts, pitches for the defending AL champion Rangers against Doug Fister.

Michael Young, the Rangers' career hits leader, snapped an 0-for-15 postseason slide when he led off the 11th with a single off Perry, the fifth Detroit pitcher. Adrian Beltre and Mike Napoli followed with singles, the latter on a liner to right-center that looked as though it would be caught. Instead, right fielder Andy Dirks let the ball glance off his glove as center fielder Austin Jackson ran behind him.

The ball dropped for a single that loaded the bases. That brought up Cruz, who also homered in Texas' 3-2 win in the ALCS opener.

After struggling in the first round against Tampa Bay, Cruz is 4 for 7 with three homers, a double and 6 RBIs in the ALCS.

Instead of the scheduled travel day Monday, the Tigers and Rangers were playing Game 2 that had been postponed Sunday because of a forecast that called for more rain that never came a night after the twice-delayed series opener.

Goodale

While Goodale's miscues haven't been too costly, they stand out as one of the only blemishes on a team that has been stellar through the first half of the season in so many aspects of the game.

The offense is humming along in typical Boise State fashion, averaging 40.6 points per game and outscoring foes by an average margin of 26 points.

The defense, led by a dominating front line, ranks 12th nationally in total defense, yields a measly 14.8 points per game and has managed to keep its last two opponents — Nevada and Fresno State — from crossing midfield until late in the second half.

Don't forget most of the special teams units. Coverage teams have blanketed opposing kick and punt returners, enabling the Broncos to win the field position battles that have played a big role in the last two wins.

"The guys on those teams understand how important (kick coverage) is to setting the tone for us," Petersen said. "They've been outstanding."

Despite the early-season miscues, Petersen said he's standing by his young kicker as the Broncos prepare for their Mountain West Conference debut Saturday against Colorado State.

Goodale won the job of replacing Kyle Brotzman, the highest-scoring kicker in FBS history, by putting together a solid spring and fall camp. The walk-on hit on better than 75 percent of his field goal attempts during spring drills to beat out fellow walk-ons Jimmy Pavel and Michael Frisina, who missed an extra point attempt against Toledo in the season's second game. Goodale also missed a PAT in the Toledo game.

In breaking down the misses on film, Petersen and his staff have preached better elevation on kicks and tweaked where the ball is spotted. He said the fixes are focused on minor adjustments rather than concerns about glaring errors in mechanics, fundamentals or a lack of confidence.

"He's young, he's new, he's going to get it figured out," Petersen said.

TCU Says Yes To Big 12; Utes' Wynn Done

FORT WORTH, Texas • TCU accepted an invitation to join the Big 12 on Monday night, seizing an opportunity to be a part of a conference with natural geographic rivals despite the league's recent instability.

The board of trustees unanimously approved the move and Chancellor Victor Boschini Jr. made the expected announcement in front of a packed room of more than 200 people. Athletic director Chris Del Conte fought back tears as he recalled receiving the phone call from the Horned Frogs' new conference last week.

"This is living proof that dreams do come true," he said.

The move could provide some much-needed stability for the Big 12, which lost Nebraska (Big Ten) and Colorado (Pac-12) over the summer and will lose Texas A&M to the Southeastern Conference next year. Missouri is also exploring a move to the SEC.

TCU has a strong football background that includes celebrated athletes from the 1930s — including Heisman Trophy winner Davey O'Brien and All-American Sammy Baugh, who both played in the NFL. More recent alums include New York Jets running back LaDainian Tomlinson and Cincinnati Bengals rookie quarterback Andy Dalton.

The Horned Frogs went 13-0 last season and won the Rose Bowl. They also went undefeated in the 2009 regular season, then lost to Boise State in the Fiesta Bowl.

Utah

Quarterback Jordan Wynn

will have surgery on his left shoulder within the next 10 days and miss the remainder of the season.

The school announced the surgery Monday night.

Utah said last week that Wynn would be out at least two to three weeks because of the injury to his non-throwing shoulder from the first half against Washington.

Junior-college transfer Jon Hays started in Wynn's place Saturday against Arizona State and threw a touchdown pass but also was intercepted three times.
