

The Tech They Voted For

State legislators get a firsthand look at the kind of public school technology they approved millions of dollars for during this year's session.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

At Canyon Ridge High School, technical programs take education beyond textbook learning. As part of their classes, students get hands-on experience on the basics of a possible future career. That was the message delivered Tuesday, as area legislators made one stop on a tour of Twin Falls schools.

Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, has 22 grandchildren enrolled in Twin Falls and Kimberly schools. He said he was impressed by what he saw during the tour of how technology and specialized programs are being incorporated into schools.

"It was good to see how the dollars are being spent," he said, and to see new trends in education.

The tour began at Magic Valley High School, where culinary arts students cooked breakfast for the lawmakers. At I.B. Perrine Elementary School, legislators watched a class of second-grade students participate in a lesson using a SMART Board, which is an interactive whiteboard.

"They were enjoying their lesson so much," Rep. Sharon Block, R-Twin Falls, said.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said one goal in the school district's technology plan is to have a projector and interactive whiteboard in every classroom. The district will pay for those materials with its share of the millions of dollars headed to Idaho public school districts under state schools chief Tom Luna's Students Come First reform package.

"That's what we're looking for

Four Vie to Replace Kezele on T.F. Council

Candidates seeking to take the four-year term in January have a mix of experience and new ideas.

BY BEN BOTKIN

Four diverse candidates are making a run for an open Twin Falls City Council seat.

If voters are looking for past council experience, they have it. If they want someone who has never worked in government, they have that option, too.

Either way, Twin Falls will get a new council member to serve four years on Seat 4 starting in January, replacing Councilman Will Kezele, who isn't running for another term.

Here are the details:

Wayne Bohrn

Age: 68
Occupation: Semi-retired, owner, All-Rite Siding & Construction
Government experience: Currently chairman of the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission. He was on the commission from 1995-2001 and returned in 2008.
Three reasons to vote for Bohrn:

- Bohrn says that he has a love of community and a desire to serve, which he's already done on the planning and zoning commission and the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce board.
- He says sustained growth is needed, provided it doesn't outgrow city infrastructure.
- Bohrn says his background in construction and experience on the commission would help the council make zoning decisions.

In his words: "There aren't any serious burning issues that I have. I don't have an agenda, so to speak, and I don't think that anyone with an agenda should consider becoming a council member. ... I just want to work for the city."

Potential red flags: None.

Will Twin Falls Get Its Rec Center?

Initial floor plans emerge, but specifics are still a long way off.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

Twin Falls.

The Twin Falls Recreation Center Committee met Tuesday to talk about the project, which is estimated to cost about $5.5 million for a 55,704-square-foot facility. If it's built, the center would provide a place for basketball and volleyball leagues to play, and the public could use its batting cages, climbing wall, and elevated running track surrounding four basketball courts.

Those basketball courts would also provide room for eight volleyball courts.

The recreation center is still an idea with specifics that need to be determined before the committee makes any proposal to the Twin Falls City Council, officials said.

"The harder work for us is still to come on how to make it happen," said Mitch Humble, community development director for Twin Falls.

BLM Reviews Grazing in Shoshone Basin

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Even with 125,800 acres, the Shoshone Basin is busting at the seams with activity.

Ranchers use the land for grazing and moving livestock. Sage grouse gather and migrate there throughout the year. Developers have eyed the area as an ideal location for energy ventures like the China Mountain wind project and the Gateway West transmission line project.

The activity hasn't gone unnoticed by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management. For the past month, the agency has collected comments on how grazing affects habitats, wildfires and potential energy projects. The goal is to revise the current document that examines such issues to better address concerns in the area.

"Right now we're in the scoping stage, accepting comments and getting ready to write a draft," said Scott Sayer, natural resource specialist for the BLM.

The new draft could potentially affect grazing renewal permits. The Shoshone Basin contains 30 allotments; 23 are currently being reviewed, and the comments on grazing could affect their renewal.

Lost in T.F Co., Reporter Finds Connection to Her Food

Last Thursday, I ended up horribly lost on my way to Castleford. (Did the town move? I've always found it with no problem before.)

After driving around awhile, I gave up and decided to look for column ideas by knocking on doors. After shying away from a few houses with "TRESPASSERS WILL BE SHOT" signs, I pulled onto a property where a dozen workers were loading boxes of squash onto flatbed trucks.

The supervisor, Alvaro Peralta, took a break from directing the workers and answering calls from distributors to chat with me. He works for Buhl organic farmer Mike Heath, he said.

So this is where my potatoes come from. The day before, I had picked up a bag of Heath's Russets from the Idaho's Bounty cooperative.

It was a nice day, and Peralta wore a wide-brimmed hat and a long-sleeve shirt to shield him from the sun. While we talked, workers shouted instructions to each other in Spanish, then finished loading the squash. Much of the produce is sold in south-central Idaho, Peralta said, but some of it ends up as far away as Hawaii. Other veggies could show up at farmers markets in Hailey, Ketchum or Twin Falls, or in your Idaho's Bounty order this week. Peralta has worked for Heath since 1997. ("It means he's a good boss," Peralta said.) Many of the workers are seasonal migrants, but Peralta has lived in Buhl full time since 1990. He works for the Heaths during the summer months through harvest. During the winter, he said, "I try to stay inside."

Melissa Davlin
The Back of the Notebook

Thursday was sunny, but sometimes it's miserable in Magic Valley fields, Peralta said. He recalled digging potatoes in the rain on a 45-degree day. The digger broke down, and he had to climb under it in the freezing mud to fix it.

That's an extreme example, he said. It's hard work, but "we like to be outside. We like to be free."

Still, I'm going to be a lot more grateful the next time I tuck into a plate of homemade hash browns.

costs and ongoing operational costs. That could go to voters as a bond proposal if the City Council signs off on the idea. But the committee could end up pursuing the formation of a recreation district, which is a separate, independent taxing entity.

City Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said the next step is working up budget numbers on what the costs of running the facility would be and where that money would come from.

That, in turn, leads to further questions, like if the center will have exercise and weight equipment. On one hand, that could draw in more people and revenue, but it could also be perceived as a competitive threat to local gyms, officials said.

There's still work to do on any projections for what a bond's financial impact would be on homeowners.

"We've got to have some fairly stringent numbers," said Councilman Trip Craig.

The design work is still in the early stages. It's undecided, for example, if the multipurpose room would be on the main level with the courts, or on the upper level with the running track.

There's already a location in mind. The committee is interested in building the center east of the city's parks and recreation offices along with technology — continuous improvement," Dobbs said.

At Canyon Ridge High, the tour group was given an inside look at the school's professional and technical education programs.

Automated manufacturing teacher Paul Hamlett said the program is unique, as there's only one other high school in the state with something similar.

"It teaches students about the processes of making goods you see everyday in stores," he said.

Students use different equipment to do tasks such as plastic injection molding, laser engraving and industrial vinyl cutting.

Health occupations teacher Mary Harshman showed the tour group the school's nursing lab, which has eight hospital beds and dummies. Some students also do clinical work in the community.

Canyon Ridge's health occupations programs include sports medicine/athletic training, certified nursing assistant, emergency medical technician and pharmacy technician offerings.

All of the classes are dual-credit offerings that give students both high school and College of Southern Idaho credits.

After touring the schools, legislators attended a meeting hosted by the Twin Falls, Jerome and Mini-Cassia chambers of commerce.

Shawn Barigar, president of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, said the tour was an opportunity to talk about legislative issues that business communities are collectively looking at for the state legislative session that begins in January.

allotments and has used the area for cattle grazing since 1988. He's one of the ranchers in the process of renewing his grazing permit in the Shoshone Basin. His family has used surrounding areas for grazing since the 1920s, he said.

"A lot of people assume grazing is bad for sage grouse, but I disagree," he said. "Grazing has a certain amount of impact on the land but it's not the only thing harming the habitat."

He acts on his beliefs, providing feedback from a ranching perspective and learning to improve his own grazing habits through the Shoshone Basin Sage-grouse Local Working Group.

The overall goal of the group is to improve grouse populations. In 2010, federal officials declared the bird warranted protection under the Endangered Species Act, but it has not yet been listed.

"We have strong concerns for the area if (grazing and wildfire) goes unchecked,"

Have Your Say

Thursday is the last day to submit a comment on how grazing impacts the Shoshone Basin area. Comments can be emailed to id\_burley\_fo@blm.gov, or mailed to 15 E. 200 S., Burley.

said Rich Yankey, a member since the group's inception. "During the past year we've toured with the landowners and permittees to review their allotments and to make recommendations for improvement."

Getting the BLM to notice the ramifications of grazing is important for grouse vitality, said Katie Fite, biodiversity director for the Hailey-based Western Watersheds Project.

"Many treatments like the proliferation of fences are not in fact beneficial to anything other than cows," she said. "Hopefully other BLM offices will take notice what is going on in this area and look at what they can improve in their own EIS."

Suzanne Hawkins

Age: 47
Occupation: Owner of Computer Connection
Government experience: None

Three reasons to vote for Hawkins:

- Hawkins says her business experience would help the council with budgeting and finance-related decisions.
- She says better communication would have helped the city avoid becoming bottlenecked from multiple road construction projects happening at the same time.
- Hawkins says the city needs to start improving its downtown instead of paying consultants who merely tell the city what to do.

In her words: "I'm not unhappy with anything or trying to make huge changes, but I think it's time for some new ideas and people with different perspectives. ... I feel like I have a fresh viewpoint to come in to help bring new ideas, and yet I feel that I'm a good listener and I can weigh information from both sides of an issue and make an educated decision."

Notice Listed Wrong Ages

Due to incorrect information provided to the Times-News, a Thursday notice about Twin Falls School District child screening services listed the incorrect ages covered. TFSD provides programs and services for students ages 3-21.

Age: 48
Occupation: Owner, Jimbo's Drywall & More
Government experience: Member of Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission since 2008.

Three reasons to vote for Schouten:

- Schouten says the council needs commonsense goals and accountability.
- He says the city needs to help businesses more quickly obtain special-use permits necessary for them to open in Twin Falls. He says the existing process takes too long and that he's heard complaints from businesses.
- Schouten says his experience as a business owner who balances his budget and his customers' budgets for projects would be helpful with city finance decisions.

In his words: "I really feel that our council and the city in general need to take care of the people that are here as far as the small businesses because they're really the backbone of our community. I'm a real advocate for small business because they're the ones that make the commitment to stay."

Potential red flag: Schouten pleaded guilty to misdemeanor battery in 2003 following an incident during which police say he grabbed and pushed his adult daughter. He paid a $213 fine and completed six months of probation. Schouten said he paid his fine and has moved on, calling it a family issue in which he was telling his daughter to stop disrespecting her mother.

Chris Talkington

Age: 65
Occupation: Retired from career that included the military, broadcasting and juvenile justice
Government experience: 20 years on Twin Falls City Council, including two years as mayor from 1982-1983. Was last on the council in 2005.

Three reasons to vote for Talkington:

- Talkington says that "quality of life within our budget" is his focus. He says he's against raising property taxes and is mindful that decisions impact citizens' pocketbooks.
- Talkington says better planning is needed to avoid situations such as when the council recently raised utility rates.
- Talkington says the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency's budget needs more oversight, with a focus on improving downtown without pouring thousands of dollars into consultants.

In his words: "I'm very much of a person for open government and I think the current government is going back toward the good old boys' system. That's why I'm independent and I don't like the partisan bickering. It has nothing to do with solving the issues at the local level."

Five Seek Three Bellevue Common Council Seats

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

Five people seek election as aldermen on the Bellevue Common Council during the Nov. 8 election.

Incumbents Dave Hattula and Janet Duffy are among the four candidates who have served on the council, as past council members Tammy Eaton and Shaun Mahoney are joined by city government newcomer Amber Avila in seeking a seat. Elected council members will take their two-year seats in January.

Amber Avila

Age: 34
Occupation: Full-time student, mother and school volunteer.
Government experience: None
Three reasons to vote for Avila:

- She says she does what she says she's going to do.
- She says she's community-driven and forward-focused.
- She hopes to keep Bellevue moving in a positive direction as someone who's not coming in with a personal agenda.

In her own words: "I believe in a transparent government that will represent the voice of the people."

Avila

Janet Duffy

Age: 52
Occupation: Has worked in pharmaceutical research and petrochemical fields.
Government experience: Nine months on Bellevue City Council after April appointment.
Three reasons to vote for Duffy:

- She says she brings a fresh perspective to the council, having lived in small communities like Bend, Ore., and Bozeman, Mont., where she's seen how they solved problems and saw things they should have done and didn't.
- She would like to build a community center for the Bellevue residents who currently are relegated either to the library or bars.
- She says she offers a voice to a "huge population" that is not being heard.

In her own words: "You have to decide you're going to make a difference. If you sit on the sidelines, you can't complain."

Eaton

Tammy Eaton

Age: 42
Occupation: Owner of The Bead Shop in Hailey
Government experience: Bellevue Common Council member from 2000-10
Three reasons to vote for Eaton:

- Eaton touted her experience in writing grants as a community economic developer for the senior center and her bachelor's degree in political science from New England College in New Hampshire.
- She says she has the ability to understand a budget and set priorities.
- She says she has always been creative.

In her words: "I stepped off the council in 2010 for personal family reasons. But I realized my community is my family, also. I feel obligated to serve my community. I'm ready to make sacrifices — that's what you do for family."

Hattula

Dave Hattula

Occupation: Painting

contractor

Government experience: Two years on the Bellevue Common Council, one as council president

Three reasons to vote for Hattula:

- Hattula says he can provide balance and transparency in leadership.
- Hattula says he would push the council to continue to act as a collective governing board with no individual responsibilities.
- Hattula says he and the current council have taken necessary steps to improve the safety and health of Bellevue's citizens — one reason city officials are seeking voter approval of a bond that would fund the purchase of a new fire truck.

In his words: "Let's continue to move forward and upwards as a city and not backwards."

Shaun Mahoney

Age: 51
Occupation: Owner of Mahoney's Bar and Grill
Government experience: Bellevue Common Council member from 2004-10
Three reasons to vote for Mahoney:

- He says he will represent Bellevue businesses that he believes are being ignored by the current council.
- He says he will bring balance to a council that currently doesn't offer much diversity.

- He wants to ensure the council is working on long-range planning when it comes to urban renewal.

In his words: "Having a diverse council makes for better resolutions."

Bellevue Seeks $375K for Fire Dept. Improvements

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

Aside from seating three aldermen to the Bellevue Common Council, voters in the Wood River Valley town will also decide on Nov. 8 whether to increase their property taxes to fund $375,000 in improvements to the Bellevue Fire Department.

What's at stake: The Bellevue Fire Department has been underfunded for years, said Alderman Larry Plott.

Passage of the bond would allow the city to buy a $300,000 pumper fire truck and $10,000 worth of equipment.

It would also allow the city to spend $65,000 to acquire land for a new fire department. City officials are discussing the possibility of exchanging city-owned properties on Main and Cedar streets, plus $50,000, for privately-owned property at 517 N. Second St. Bellevue Mayor Chris Koch called the current fire department building an early 1900s lambing shed that is about to cave in.

"The firehouse is something that's been neglected a long time," Councilman Dave Hattula said.

What it'll cost: City property owners would be taxed an additional $1.40 per month per $100,000 of property value. That amounts to an extra $16.80 per year on each $100,000.

What it'll take: At least two-thirds of voters must approve the bond issue.

Final Charges Resolved in E. Idaho Hazing Case

BLACKFOOT (AP) • A former high school athlete who was charged along with four others in an eastern Idaho hazing case has reached a plea agreement, resolving the last of the charges filed in connection with the alleged bullying incidents.

A jury trial for Anthony Clarke had been expected to start Monday but was canceled after he pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace during a hearing in Idaho's 7th District Court last week. Prosecutors dropped four other charges against Clark as part of the Oct. 11 plea deal.

The hazing case divided the small town of Blackfoot and garnered widespread media attention as Clarke and four other former student athletes were charged last year with various misdemeanors as well as felony counts of forcible sexual penetration using a foreign object.

The bullying incidents took place at the school's locker room and on a bus, according to police.

"This has been an extraordinary strain and taken a huge toll on everyone involved — defendants, victims, families, friends," Bingham County prosecutor Scott Andrew said. "(This decision) will bring final closure and help people move on."

Clarke's plea agreement resolves the last of the charges filed as part of the hazing allegations. Logan Chidester, Nathan Walker and Tyson Katseanes also reached plea agreements in the case, while a juvenile was cleared of two misdemeanor battery charges.

Clarke's father said he was confident that his son would have been found not guilty during trial, but his family needed to reach a resolution after spending more than $40,000 on attorney fees in the case.

"In no way do I think my son was guilty of a crime," Mark Clarke said. "I feel bad as a parent that we allowed this to end the way we did."

His son was sentenced to 30 days in jail, with all but 24 hours suspended. He'll also spend a year on probation and has, according to his attorney, already completed the 100 hours of community service required as part of the plea deal.

Anthony Clarke had walked on to the football team at Boise State University but was suspended when the charges in the hazing case were filed last year.

He and the four other former Blackfoot High athletes were initially charged with felonies after reports of hazing incidents during the 2009-2010 basketball season, but the felony charges were dismissed in January when one witness refused to participate in the case.

Clarke is now a wide receiver and return specialist at Carroll College in Helena, Mont. Chidester and Walker were also ordered to complete 100 hours of community service while Katseanes was sentenced to 40 hours, prosecutors, Bingham County deputy prosecutor Randy Smith said.

"These sentences reflect our interpretation of the level of culpability," Smith said.

Bid to Stop Northern Rockies Wolf Hunt Denied — for Now

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • A federal appeals court on Tuesday turned down an emergency request by wildlife advocates seeking to stop gray wolf hunts in the Northern Rockies. But the court said judges will reconsider the issue in November.

The ruling by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal means hunters can continue for now pursuing an estimated 1,300 wolves in Idaho and Montana. Congress stripped the animals of Endangered Species Act protections through a provision attached to a budget bill that was signed into law in the spring.

A federal judge in Missoula had ruled last year that the animals deserved continued protection, and a lawsuit brought by advocacy groups contends Congress overstepped its bounds.

Oral arguments in the case are scheduled for Nov. 8 before a three-judge panel. Tuesday's order said the 9th Circuit will consider the emergency injunction request at that time.

Wildlife managers from the states say reducing the wolf population by hundreds of animals will help prevent wolf attacks on livestock and big game such as elk. Since August, hunters have killed 65 wolves in Idaho and 11 in Montana.

Michael Garrity with the Alliance for the Wild Rockies says he remains optimistic that the court will eventually rule in favor of hunt opponents.

2 Suspects Plead Guilty in Chubbuck Beating Case

POCATELLO (AP) • Two suspects charged with severely beating an eastern Idaho teen last spring and leaving her in a field on the Fort Hall Reservation have pleaded guilty.

Jamie Nappo and Cody Childers each reached plea agreements with prosecutors Monday that includes guilty pleas for each on charges of kidnapping and being a principal to attempted first-degree murder.

Nappo and Childers, along with Karris Salaz and Stephanie Christensen, were charged in April in the beating of Vantaysha Wallace.

Investigators said the suspects lured Wallace to an apartment in Chubbuck, then hit and kicked her and at times struck her on the head with a hammer. The victim told police she was then put into a car before being beaten again and dumped off a bridge and into a creek running through the tribal lands.

Ultimately, Wallace regained her wits, crawled out of the creek and walked to a house in Fort Hall where she received assistance.

Christensen reached a similar plea agreement in August; Salaz is scheduled to go on trial next month.

The Idaho State Journal reports the plea deals for Nappo and Childers contain different sentencing recommendations.

For Nappo, prosecutors agreed to argue for no more than 10 years of a fixed prison term on each charge, but the judge has some latitude to determine his own punishment. In Childers' case, the judge is bound by a deal that would give him 10 years fixed on each sentence.

In court Monday, Nappo told 6th District Judge Stephen Dunn it was never the intention of the group to kill Wallace.

But Childers painted a different picture and his role in the violence.

Childers said he never took part in the assault at the apartment and that he was outside smoking a cigarette when the attack took place. But he identified the three women as the attackers and acknowledged his role in driving her to the field on the reservation and dumping the body.

"I didn't know what to do, so I put her in my car," Childers told the judge. "They helped me get her out of the car."

Nappo's sentencing is set for Nov. 28, while Childers is scheduled to appear Dec. 5.

Senate Votes for Unlimited Potatoes in School Lunches

BY MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Senate threw its support behind the potato Tuesday, voting to block an Obama administration proposal to limit the vegetable on school lunch lines.

Agriculture Department rules proposed earlier this year aimed to reduce the amount of french fries in schools, limiting lunchrooms to two servings a week of potatoes and other starchy vegetables. That angered the potato industry and members of Congress from potato-growing states, who say USDA should focus on the preparation instead and that potatoes can be a good source of fiber and potassium.

Following a bipartisan agreement on the issue, the Senate by voice vote accepted an amendment by Republican Sen. Susan Collins that would block USDA from putting any limits on serving potatoes or other vegetables in school lunches.

Sens. Mike Crapo and Jim Risch, both R-Idaho, co-sponsored the amendment. And the effort built on similar language inserted into a House appropriations bill by Idaho Republican Rep. Mike Simpson, according to a Monday press release.

The Idaho delegation's arguments on behalf of their state's most famous export focused on the cost and health benefits of the spud.

"With our current fiscal challenges, this rule simply does not make sense," Crapo said in the release. "For less than 5 cents per potato, school meal programs can meet nutrition requirements on several fronts. With only 110 calories, a potato contains more potassium than an equivalent sized banana and more fiber than a serving of broccoli."

Amended was a spending bill that includes dollars for the Agriculture Department. The House amendment was in a similar bill passed earlier this year and including language that would ask the department to rewrite its school lunch rules entirely. Republicans have singled out the potato proposal in criticizing the rules, saying the government shouldn't be dictating what kids can eat.

Advocates and government officials say children get enough potatoes already and should have more diversity in their diets.

"USDA's proposal was about helping kids to eat a very wide variety of vegetables and I think that point has been lost in all this," said Margo Wootan, director of nutrition policy at the advocacy group Center for Science in the Public Interest, which pushed for the standards. "Other vegetables have a hard time competing with potatoes."

Since the guidelines apply to federally subsidized meals, schools are generally fine with broad federal guidelines on nutrition — how many servings a week children are allowed of grains or vegetables, for example. But some schools have balked at the attempt to tell them exactly what foods they can't serve.

Distrust of Vaccines Spreads Old-school Diseases

Tents, signs, protests and chants are all the rage these days for showing our growing distrust of government and big corporations.

Want to know another way that distrust is manifesting in America?

Through whooping cough, measles and diphtheria.

Yup. Stats from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention have gone totally retro, with old-school diseases coming back stronger than pencil skirts.

Why?

Our nation’s parents have a growing distrust of vaccinations, one of medicine’s greatest advances. And we’re not just talking about 2 or 3 percent anymore. The fringe who didn’t believe in medicine for religious and other reasons has exploded into a 10 percent, largely yuppie epidemic.

Petula Dvorak

The Washington Post

A report published this month in the medical journal Pediatrics says that one in 10 parents are avoiding or delaying vaccines in their children because of safety concerns.

So now places such as San Diego and Minneapolis are the backdrops for mini-epidemics of deadly diseases not seen in generations.

GOP presidential hopeful Rep. Michele Bachmann, R-Minn., gave wind to more anti-vaccine hysteria last month when she reported one woman’s alleged horror story with the HPV vaccine, which is designed to protect girls from cervical cancer.

“I will tell you that I had a mother last night come up to me here in Tampa, Fla., after the debate. She told me that her little daughter took that vaccine, that injection, and she suffered from mental retardation thereafter,” Bachmann said.

Now that’s just ridiculous.

The anti-vaccine movement began gaining momentum about a decade ago, when folks started to allege a link between immunization and autism, fueled by studies from a British doctor, Andrew Wakefield. It was seized on by parents desperate to find an explanation for the sharp rise in diagnoses of autism in children, including their own.

The embrace of everything eco- and bio- and whole and organic also drove the rejection of stuff manufactured in a lab that is injected into your babies.

And then the cause was famously taken up by actress Jenny McCarthy, who loudly went on Oprah’s show and concluded that “the University of Google” confirmed that her son’s autism was caused by a vaccine.

Numerous medical studies have debunked the connection between vaccines and autism, but parental resistance keeps rising anyway.

“You have someone like [McCarthy] out there, and then you have CDC scientists,” a frustrated Stewart said.

I asked her whether a more glamorous spokesperson would do the trick. There was a moment of silence before we both agreed on an answer: “CDC Barbie!”

Barbie could put on a tiny lab coat and little white high heels to go with her pro-immunization message. That’s not a far-fetched idea, given the overwhelming data being ignored by parents.

Earlier this year, Wakefield’s study was at last retracted by the British medical journal Lancet because some of the data turned out to be bogus.

Still, the number of parents who won’t trust shots keeps rising, primarily, Stewart said, among “white, educated populations of people with computers.”

Ordinarily, their kids would have to be immunized to attend school, that petri dish of boogers, drool and various germs that children produce.

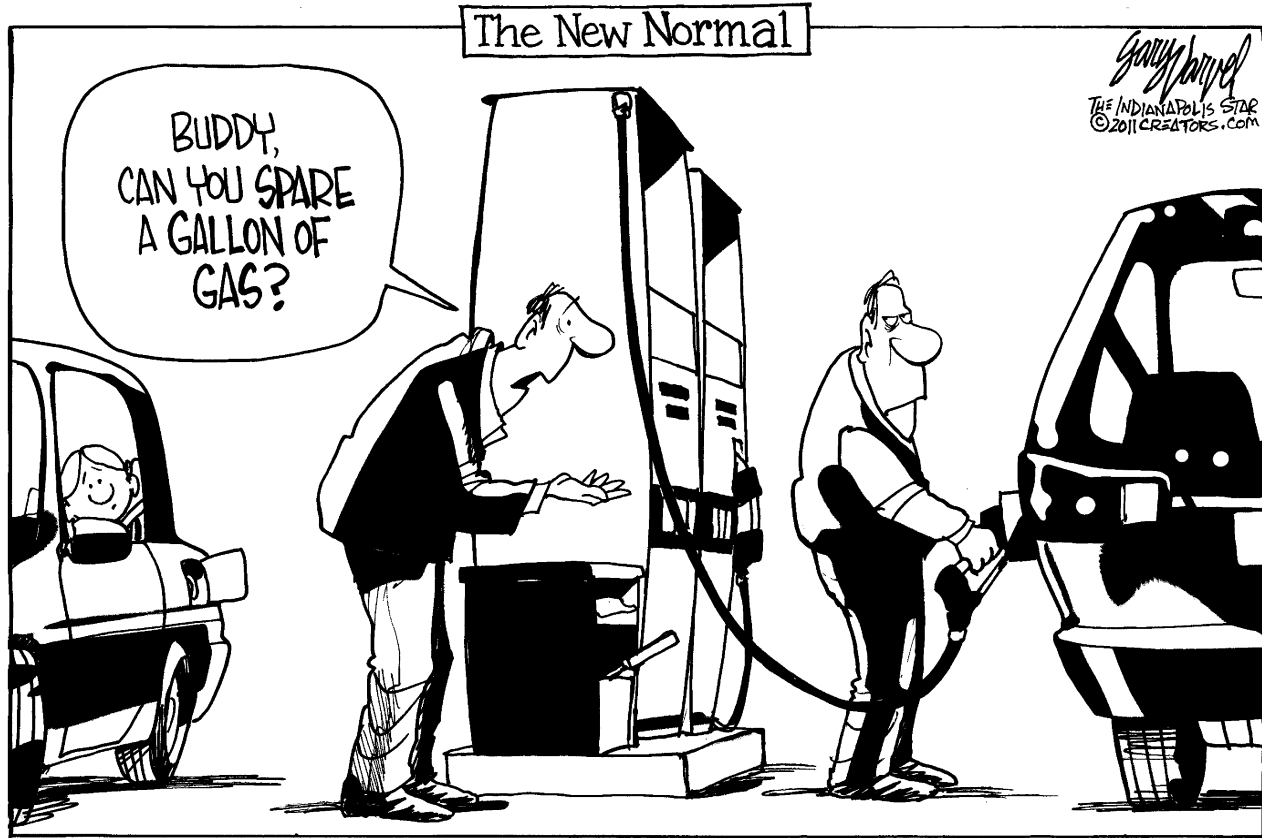

If you have a strong religious opposition to vaccination, or it is proven that your child would medically be harmed by a vaccine, you can opt out. In some states — California and Washington, for instance — there is also a “philosophical exemption” that allows the children of Google-educated worriers into school without shots.

In nearby Virginia, the rates of religious exemptions have been trending upward over the past few years and now account for 1.36 percent of children who aren’t immunized, said Sandra Sommer, the quality assurance and policy manager for that state’s Division of Immunization.

“We’ve been seeing a lot of vaccine hesitancy lately,” Sommer said. “And part of it is that vaccines are victims of their own success.” Not a lot of folks have seen kids die of diphtheria.

For now, the three measles cases that Virginia had last year — “We hadn’t seen that many in a long time,” Sommers said — didn’t become 30 or 300 because so many other children were immunized.

Paging CDC Barbie . . .

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dedicated to Keeping Twin Falls Friendly

I am a candidate for Seat 4 on Nov. 8. I just recently made a trip to California. I parked my car and strolled down the sidewalk of a (friendly) mid-sized city. OMG, how sour and rude the people were. Nod your head in greeting and smile and you get frowns and hand signs. Ask directions and get I don’t know and I don’t care.

We in Twin Falls have the good fortune to live in the friendliest and warmest city in Idaho. My passion for our city and its citizens has made it easy for me to volunteer for many causes and commissions. I want us to remain the friendly, warm and beautiful city we are now.

If you vote for me, I will dedicate myself to that cause. Vote Wayne Bohrn on Nov. 8.

Thank you.

Honor Guard Jumped the Gun at Funeral

To the Twin Falls Honor Guard:

The funeral for Howard Keith Barnes held at Castleford on Monday afternoon was at 3 p.m. It was lovely except that the honor guard (Wayne Goetz) started his presentation before all the people were out of the gymnasium. There was no reason to start until all the people were gathered outside. We had just had his mother’s funeral at 10 Monday morning.

Students Impressed Lecturer

I recently had the privilege of speaking to Jeanne Allen’s law class at Cassia High School, which was formerly known as the Cassia Alternative School. Over the years, I have had the privilege of speaking with students at the school on many occasions. I was so impressed this year that I felt I needed to let the public know how impressed I was with these young people.

All of the students in the school were neatly dressed in matching polo shirts and dark pants. The students I met with were extremely polite and eager to learn. The students asked very thought-provoking questions, and you could tell that they have been taught well and given a lot of thought to this matter.

Congratulations are in order for Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Lauri Heward, the school principal and her staff.

Tolness Stands Out Among Council Candidates

There are eight candidates running for city council here in Burley. I would like to show my support for one individual that I believe to be an honest and caring citizen, and he is Tom Tolness.

Tom has protected and defended our freedoms and way of life by serving in the U.S. Army for eight years. During that time, he has seen how other communities operate and even how things are done in Germany.

He has been the fire cache manager for the Bureau of Land Management here in the Burley area. He ensured that the fire crews were properly supplied and equipped to fight range and forest fires.

Tom is currently the property manager for the Bureau of Reclamation and is responsible for facilities along the Upper Snake River from Jackson Lake in Wyoming to the field office in Burley. He also owns and manages the store T and D Collectibles here in Burley.

Tom has served our country in the past and is currently serving our community and state through his current job. I know that Tom would make a great representative for our city.

Barigar Will be an Advocate to Twin Falls

It is my honor and privilege to highly recommend to the citizens of Twin Falls to place your vote for Shawn Barigar for city council.

I had the pleasure of serving with Shawn on the Twin Falls City Council from 2003 to 2006. Shawn was always extremely well prepared with an attitude of consensus building as we did our best to make decisions in the best interest of all Twin Falls citizens.

Shawn has distinguished himself as a business leader for many years, earning respect across the state.

Shawn’s critical thinking skills combined with his ability to clearly articulate and advocate for Twin Falls citizens makes him an outstanding choice for city council.

Jason Kreizenbeck, the outgoing chief of staff for Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, poses in his office Tuesday in Boise.

Top Otter Staffer Stepping Down

Associated Press

BOISE • Jason Kreizenbeck, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's chief of staff since 2007, is leaving the two-term Republican's administration to form a government affairs business with a longtime Idaho lobbyist.

Kreizenbeck, 39, announced his decision Monday to leave the post in an email sent to Otter's staff and top government officials. "It was not an easy decision for me to leave, but I feel that now is the right time," Kreizenbeck wrote to colleagues in the email obtained by The AP. He will be out of Otter's office by week's end and will be replaced by David Hensley, the governor's current legal counsel.

Kreizenbeck plans to start a business with Skip Smyser, a former Republican state lawmaker whose lobbying clients include Altria, the maker of Marlboro cigarettes, phone company AT&T and oil company ConocoPhillips.

"I've done stuff internationally, in Washington, D.C., and locally," said Kreizenbeck, who worked as a top lobbyist for computer chip maker Micron Technology Inc. and was a vice chairman of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, a pro-business lobbying group, before joining Otter's staff four years ago.

Kreizenbeck said the plan with Smyser became concrete about a month ago. They worked together in the late 1990s, when Kreizenbeck was fresh off working for the first U.S. House campaign of Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, and joined Smyser's law firm as a contract lobbyist.

"Skip's the first guy I worked for in lobbying," Kreizenbeck said. Smyser didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment Tuesday.

Kreizenbeck was named chief of staff in November 2007, taking over for Jeff Malmen, who left the Otter administration to become the top lobbyist for Idaho Power. Kreizenbeck's position paid $130,500 a year.

Idaho has no so-called "revolving-door" restrictions such as those in place in Montana that limit former government officials from immediately lobbying their one-time colleagues. As a result, Kreizenbeck can begin lobbying Otter, cabinet officials and the state legislature after he departs.

During his tenure with Otter, Kreizenbeck played a role in some of the governor's signature legislative wins and losses. Earlier this year, Otter joined with Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna to get Idaho lawmakers to approve public education reforms, including a requirement that high school students begin taking classes online.

But Kreizenbeck was also at the helm during one of Otter's biggest policy failures, a 2009 effort to ram through a series of tax and fee increases to raise millions of dollars to fix and maintain the state's roads and bridges.

Idaho Nonprofit Director Owes Organization $161K

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL and ROCKY BARKER

The Idaho Statesman

BOISE • The nonprofit Idaho Water Users Association, partially supported by taxpayers, listed its assets last year as $453,906. More than one-third of that amount is money its executive director, Norm Semanko, owes the organization.

"This isn't a new thing," said Semanko of the loan, which was made a decade ago.

The money Idaho Water Users loaned Semanko — $136,000 in 2001 and an additional $40,000 in 2007 — was used for a downpayment on a home and to make home improvements, among other things, Semanko said.

The loan is entirely legal, said Semanko, an attorney. True, but the practice is illegal in New York, Tennessee, Illinois and other states.

After Enron and other accounting scandals a decade ago, the practice of making loans to directors or executives was outlawed nationwide for publicly traded companies and strongly discouraged for nonprofit organizations.

The Idaho Association of Counties, Association of Idaho Cities and Idaho Association of Highway Districts are three nonprofits comparable to IWUA. Their revenue consists primarily of membership dues paid by taxing districts.

All three organizations said making loans to officers or employees is strictly prohibited by their boards.

"It is not an allowed practice," said Dan Chadwick, executive director for the Idaho Association of Counties.

"It has not been done, and it will not be done."

The Idaho Water Users Association lobbies for both public and private water interests in the state.

The group has about 300 members from whom it receives dues of about $330,000 annually, its primary source of income. The dues are partially tax-deductible. Members include such government entities as irrigation and water districts and cities, as well as private canal and water companies, businesses and nonprofits.

In 2000, the IWUA board offered Semanko, then an attorney in Twin Falls, its executive director position. He and his wife, Svetlana, had just purchased a home in Twin Falls. Semanko considered commuting to Boise for his new job, but his wife disliked the idea.

The Semankos moved to Boise and rented a house for several months while they waited for their home to sell. Frustrated with renting and not being able to sell their Twin Falls home, Semanko talked to then-IWUA board President Henry Weick.

"To make a long story short, they basically offered me a relocation loan, a bridge loan, to be able to get into a house," Semanko said.

Bridge loans are temporary loans intended to help a homeowner buy a new place before the old one sells. Semanko's loan was not temporary.

The IWUA board in spring 2001 approved a long-term, 30-year loan for $136,000, Semanko said.

In a March 2001 letter to the Semankos' mortgage loan officer, Weick stated the Idaho Water Users loan was for a down payment on a house and to make the mortgage payments on the Twin Falls home until it sold.

"We appreciate your willingness to help our executive director and his family permanently relocate to the Boise area," Weick wrote.

The Semankos purchased

a 3,300-square-foot home in Eagle's Two Rivers subdivision for about $300,000 in April 2001.

Semanko, who makes about $160,000 annually as the IWUA's director, said the personal loan was an appropriate use of IWUA's membership dues.

"The water association is a nonprofit private company," he said. "There are dollars that come directly out of the public purse, but we are not government. The money we spend is not government money when we receive it. It is private nonprofit money."

"All of this was checked with the accountants," he said. "It is not a prohibited transaction."

The loan is an investment for the organization, Semanko said, because he is paying 6.25 percent interest on money that otherwise would be sitting in a savings account earning less interest.

According to Idaho Water Users' 2004 tax form, the earliest IWUA form available online, Semanko owed the organization $136,262 at the end of 2004, three years after the initial $136,000 loan was made. Today, a decade later, he owes $161,305.

The IWUA loan was increased by about $40,000 in 2007 to $176,642, Semanko said, so he could make some home improvements including new hardwood floors and landscaping.

Dale Swenson, director of the Fremont Madison Irrigation District and an IWUA executive committee member does not remember all the details of the loan's 2007 increase.

"I think part of it was that Norm needed the money," he said. "Norm is a valuable employee. He does good work for the Water Users. We want to keep him happy."

A year earlier, Semanko loaned his campaign $37,000 during his failed 2006 run for U.S. Congress. He said the campaign loan had nothing to do with his request to add $40,000 to his existing Idaho Water Users loan in 2007. He paid off the campaign debt this year, he said.

IWUA board President Marcia Herr said she supports the decisions made by her predecessors to loan Semanko money.

"They know a lot more about finances than I do. If they as a group made the choice, then I certainly trust them," she said.

Herr reiterates the transaction was, and still is, legal.

"We certainly have passed it by our accountants and they said it was perfectly all right what we did," she said.

Semanko said the house has been used as collateral on the IWUA loan since it was made in 2001, but the deed transaction was not recorded with the Ada County recorder's office until April 2009, about six months after Semanko's mortgage temporarily went into default.

"What if Norm had been killed in a car wreck and it wasn't legally recorded? It would have been hard for the Water Users. It just makes good sense," Herr said.

Semanko, 45, says he has worked at least 80 hours a week since he was 21 years old.

His position as IWUA's director is a full-time job. He is also chairman of the Idaho Republican Party, an unpaid position, and is an Eagle city councilman, which pays $5,610 annually.

He also is running for Eagle mayor. According to Eagle City Code, the mayor's position is a full-time position. It pays $30,000 per year.

Semanko says he already spends about 40 hours a week on his Eagle City Council work, so the transition to mayor would not pose a problem timewise.

"I will set a new bar in terms of getting the job done for Eagle. I am a workaholic. I am task-oriented, and I get the job done," he said.

Social Security Recipients to Get First Raise Since 2009

The expected 3.5 percent increase would amount to an additional $38 a month, or about $455 a year.

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Social Security recipients will get a raise in January — their first increase in benefits since 2009. It's expected to be about 3.5 percent.

Some 55 million beneficiaries will find out for sure today when a government inflation measure that determines the annual cost-of-living adjustment is released.

Congress adopted the measure in the 1970s, and since then it has resulted in annual benefit increases averaging 4.2 percent. But there was no COLA in 2010 or 2011 because inflation was too low. That was small comfort to the millions of retirees and disabled people who have seen retirement accounts dwindle and home values drop during the period of economic weakness, said David Certner, legislative policy director for the AARP.

"People certainly feel like they are falling behind, and these are modest income folks to begin with, so every dollar counts," Certner said. "I think sometimes people forget what seniors' incomes are."

Some of the increase in January will be lost to higher Medicare premiums, which are deducted from Social Security payments. Medicare Part B premiums for 2012 are expected to be announced next week, and the trustees who oversee the program are projecting an increase.

Monthly Social Security payments average $1,082, or about $13,000 a year. A 3.5 percent increase would amount to an additional $38 a month, or about $455 a year.

Most retirees rely on Social Security for a majority of their income, according to the Social Security Administration. Many rely on it for more than 90 percent of their income.

Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics, said the COLA would give a boost to consumer spending next year, amounting to about $25 billion in government support, or 0.2 percent more economic growth, if beneficiaries spend it all. For comparison, last year's 2 percentage point cut in Social Security payroll taxes was worth $115 billion to U.S. households.

"It is not a magic bullet for the economy, but it will certainly be a positive for households on fixed incomes," he said.

EU Court Restricts Stem Cell Patents.

The European Union's top court ruled Tuesday that scientists cannot patent stem cell techniques that use human embryos for research, a decision some scientists said could threaten major medical advances if it prevents biotech companies from turning a profit. The ruling sets Europe apart from much of the rest of the world, where there are no such restrictions.

Truck With Equipment for Obama Tour Stolen.

In an egg-on-face moment for the government ahead of President Barack Obama's visit to Richmond, Va., someone stole a Pentagon truck containing $200,000 worth of presidential seals, podiums and sound equipment from outside a suburban hotel Monday, Richmond TV stations reported, citing unidentified police sources. Authorities found the truck later in the day at another hotel near the Richmond airport, according to the news reports. — Associated Press

British Writer Barnes Wins Booker Prize

LONDON • It was fourth time lucky for British writer Julian Barnes, who won literature's Booker Prize on Tuesday after a contest that had as many insults, rivalries and bitter accusations as a paperback potboiler. Barnes, a finalist on three previous occasions, finally took the $82,000 prize with "The Sense of an Ending," a memory-haunted novel about a 60-something man forced to confront buried truths about his past after the unexpected arrival of a letter. Former British spy chief-turned-thriller writer Stella Rimington, who chaired the judging panel, said the 150-page novel "spoke to humankind in the 21st century." — The Associated Press

Israeli Soldier Emerges From 5 Years of Captivity

The first captive Israeli soldier to return home alive in a generation was whisked early Tuesday across Gaza's border by a group of armed Hamas militants.

BY ARON HELLER and JOSEF FEDERMAN
Associated Press

MITZPE HILA, Israel • Gaunt and pale, Israeli soldier Gilad Schalit returned home Tuesday after more than five years in captivity, freed in a lop-sided exchange for hundreds of Palestinian prisoners that could greatly complicate Mideast peace prospects and strengthen the Islamic militant Hamas.

The swap set off massive celebrations in Israel and the Palestinian territories, where crowds in Gaza called for more kidnappings of soldiers, chanting: "The people want a new Gilad!"

The 25-year-old Schalit's poor condition, a jarring appearance by masked Hamas men during his release and the prospects of a strengthened Hamas bode poorly for future relations between Israel and the Palestinians.

By winning the release of hundreds of militants accused in notorious suicide bombings of the Palestinian uprising a decade ago, Hamas reinforced its message that Palestinian goals are advanced most effectively through violent struggle, and not the moderate approach of diplomacy favored by Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas.

"Israel was forced to pay the price," Hamas' supreme leader, Khaled Mashaal, boasted in a meeting in Egypt, where he greeted 40 freed prisoners who were immediately sent into exile under the terms of their release.

To Israelis, the return of a young man whose plight had become a national obsession brought a welcome lift. But for many, especially the family of victims who had lost relatives in Palestinian violence, it carried a bitter taste of justice denied.

After being hidden from public view since his capture five and half years ago, Schalit — the first captive Israeli soldier to return home alive in a generation — was whisked early Tuesday across Gaza's border by a group of armed Hamas militants.

A brief video released by Egyptian TV showed the young sergeant wearing a baseball cap and gray shirt, surrounded by Gaza militants with black face masks and green headbands who then handed him over to Egyptian media-tors.

Before he was turned over to Israeli officials, Schalit spoke to Egyptian TV in an interview while masked militants milled around and Hamas' No. 2 leader, Musa Abu Marzouk, hovered nearby.

Postal Service Announces Stamp Rate Increase

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • Nothing lasts forever.

Stamp prices will climb by 1 cent starting in January, the U.S. Postal Service said Tuesday.

The cost of a first-class stamp, also known as a forever stamp, will climb to 45 cents on Jan. 22, the first price jump in more than 2½ years, the USPS said. The cost of sending magazines, standard mail and some package services will also rise, but prices for Express Mail and Priority Mail will stay the same.

The 1-cent price increase is expected to generate an additional $888 million in revenue, postal officials said Tuesday. The jump "is small and is needed to help address our current financial crisis," Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe said in a statement, adding that while USPS continues to "aggressively cut costs" it needs Congress to pass postal reform legislation that he said would make it easier to save money.

CATHOLICS, JEWS SLAM SARANDON'S POPE QUIP

Catholic and Jewish groups are condemning actress Susan Sarandon for referring to Pope Benedict XVI as a Nazi. The head of the Catholic League says her comment was “obscene” and the Anti-Defamation League called on her in a statement to apologize to Catholics for the “deeply offensive” remark. Sarandon won an Academy Award for her role in the 1995 film “Dead Man Walking.”

FRIEND: BOOZE MADE MAN LET GIRL DRIVE

A friend says a Michigan man accused of allowing his 9-year-old daughter to drive him around is a good father who drank too much and did a stupid thing. Shawn Weimer appeared in a Woodhaven courtroom on Tuesday on a child abuse charge and was ordered to stay away from his daughter and anyone else under age 18. Police said the 39-year-old’s daughter was at the wheel sitting in a booster seat when they pulled his van over Oct. 8.

Hospital stays for heart failure fell a remarkable 30 percent in Medicare patients over a decade, the first such decline in the United States and forceful evidence that the nation is making headway in reducing the billion-dollar burden of a common condition. # Senate Votes to End ‘Fast and Furious’ Gun Program

BY ANDREW TAYLOR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Senate voted Tuesday to effectively block the Justice Department from undertaking gun-smuggling probes like the flawed “Operation Fast and Furious” aimed at breaking up networks running guns to Mexican drug cartels but that lost track of hundreds of the weapons, some of which were used to commit crimes in Mexico and the United States.

The 99-0 vote would block the government from transferring guns to drug cartels unless federal agents “continuously monitor or control” the weapons. The amendment’s sponsor, Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, called the vote “just the first step towards ensuring that such a foolish operation can never be repeated by our own law enforcement.”

The Justice Department has already stopped the program.

A Justice Department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because Congress did not ask the department for its views, said the amendment essentially reflects DOJ policy.

In an interview Tuesday with ABC News, President Barack Obama said “we will find out who and what happened in this situation and make sure it gets corrected.”

The vote came as the Senate debated a $128 billion spending measure that would fund Justice Department operations and those of several other Cabinet agencies for the 2012 budget year already under way.

Operation Fast and Furious was a gun-smuggling investigation by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives aimed at tracking small-time illicit gun buyers up the chain to major traffickers in an effort to take down arms networks. In the process, ATF agents lost track of many of the weapons.

Fast and Furious came to light after two assault rifles purchased by a now-indicted small-time buyer under scrutiny in the operation turned up at a shootout in Arizona where Customs and Border Protection agent Brian Terry was killed.

Israeli officials called the interview “shocking.”

Looking wan and uncomfortable, Schalit appeared to struggle to speak at times, and his breathing was noticeably labored as he answered questions asked through an interpreter.

Stumbling over his words, he spoke in Hebrew of missing his family and friends, said he feared he would remain in captivity “many more years” and worried that the deal might fall through after learning about it last week.

At times, the questions seemed awkward and even inappropriate.

Noting that more than 4,000 Palestinians are still imprisoned in Israel, the interviewer asked: “Will you help campaign for their release?”

After a long pause, Shalit replied: “I would be really happy that (Palestinian prisoners) are freed, but they shouldn’t go back to fighting Israel.” Then he added: “I really hope that this deal advances peace and not more military conflicts and wars between Israel and the Palestinians.”

Later, video released by the Israeli military showed Schalit being helped into a military vehicle for the crossing into Israel, then limping as he left a building after changing into a fresh army uniform with the newly promoted rank of sergeant first class.

Military officials said a physical exam had found him to be in “good” condition, though he showed signs of malnutrition; his father later said his son was suffering from shrapnel wounds apparently sustained during his capture as well as psychological scars.

In Schalit’s hometown, the tiny village of Mitzpe Hila in northern Israel, thousands of people filled streets and rooftops to welcome him home, waving flags, uncorking champagne, singing and dancing.

“This is so exciting it warms the heart. No one could imagine such a happy ending,” said Atalia Rosenfeld, a well-wisher. “It reinforces my faith in this country.”

Schalit was captured by Hamas-linked militants in a cross-border raid in June 2006, then dragged to the Gaza Strip. He was kept in isolation, barred from having visitors and seen only once, in a scripted video released by his captors two years ago to prove he was alive.

Woman in Basement Case Investigated in Pa., Florida

BY MARYCLAIRE DALE and PATRICK WALTERS

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA • A lack of accountability and follow-through by police and government agencies may have contributed to the plight of four mentally disabled adults authorities say were locked in a basement while a convicted murderer stole their Social Security checks.

Police in Philadelphia and West Palm Beach, Fla., missed opportunities to help one or more of the victims while the woman charged with orchestrating the scheme was legally disqualified from cashing the victims’ government disability checks because of her criminal past.

Linda Ann Weston, 51, was charged Monday with kidnapping, false imprisonment and other offenses after her landlord stumbled on the four adults, all weak and malnourished, in a dank, foul-smelling boiler room on Saturday. Her bail was set at $2.5 million.

Also charged were Gregory Thomas, 47, whom Weston described as her boyfriend, and Eddie “the Rev. Ed” Wright, 50.

The three remained jailed Tuesday and couldn’t be reached for comment. A lawyer for Weston didn’t return telephone calls seeking comment.

Detectives found dozens of identification cards, power-of-attorney forms and other documents. Philadelphia police formed a task force to investigate the case as authorities try to find as many as 50 more possible fraud victims, Officer Jillian Russell said.

Landlord Turgut Gozlevli discovered the victims Saturday morning after he heard dogs barking in the area. The door to the basement room was chained shut, but Gozlevli got inside and lifted a pile of blankets to find several sets of eyes staring back at him. One man was chained to the boiler.

Police identified the victims as Derwin McLemire, 41, of North Carolina; Herbert Knowles, 40 of Virginia; and Tamara Breeden, 29, and Edwin Sanabria, 31, both of Philadelphia.

Knowles was reported missing in Norfolk in December 2008. According to an investigatory report by Norfolk police, Knowles’ mental health case worker reported him missing when she couldn’t reach him and family members failed to hear from him.

The case worker, who did not return a call from The AP, reported that Knowles’ Social Security checks were going to a Philadelphia address. The report said Philadelphia police went by the address and were told no one there had ever heard of Knowles.

Obama Hits Key Swing States to Tout His Jobs Plan

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

EMPORIA, Va. • President Barack Obama on Tuesday accused his Republican critics of trying to pull one over on voters by claiming that his bid to boost jobs will raise their taxes.

“Don’t be bamboozled,” Obama told a boisterous crowd at Guilford Technical Community College in Jamestown, N.C., noting that he caught an anti-jobs act ad on TV Monday night while watching a football game. “Don’t fall for this notion that somehow the jobs act is proposing to raise your taxes. It’s just not true.

“I want to be clear. The vast majority of Americans would see a tax cut under this jobs bill,” he said.

His admonition came on the second day of a three-day bus trip across the presidential election swing states of North Carolina and Virginia. The trip is intended to boost popular support for Obama’s $447 billion jobs package, which is stalled in Congress, and to position the president in the public mind as trying his best to address the nation’s faltering economy.

Obama said he’s not giving up and will ask members of Congress to pass the bill piece by piece, since even the Democratic-led Senate fell short last week of rallying enough votes to advance it. Republican leaders of the House of Representatives have said that major portions of the bill are dead on arrival there.

“You’ve got to get on the phone or pay them a visit or write them a letter or tweet, and remind them to do the right thing,” he said in the Guilford school’s gymnasium. “Remind them that ‘No, we can’t’ is no way to face tough times.”

Cain Under Fire in Las Vegas Debate

BY KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • Republican presidential contenders attacked upstart Herman Cain’s economic plan as a tax increase waiting to happen Tuesday night, moving swiftly in a fiery campaign debate to blunt the former businessman’s unlikely rise in the race for the party’s nomination.

Old animosities flared, too, as former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney and Texas Gov. Rick Perry swapped criticism in unusually personal terms. “You have a problem with allowing someone to finish speaking,” Romney declared as the two men interrupted one another repeatedly in a disagreement over immigration, one of several vigorous clashes they had.

In a bow to Nevada voters, who will be among the first to choose among the candidates early next year, no one said he wanted to open a proposed nuclear waste repository at Yucca Mountain in a remote part of the state.

The fifth debate in six weeks ranged over familiar and contentious territory — from immigration and health care to the economy and energy, often in antagonistic terms. The candidates engaged each other more directly and sometimes more heatedly than in previous debates.

But Cain’s unlikely rise

from asterisk in the polls to contender was clearly on the minds of his rivals on stage in a hotel along the Las Vegas Strip.

Rep. Michele Bachmann of Minnesota led the verbal assault moments after the debate began, saying his call for a 9 percent federal sales tax would only be the beginning, with the rate rising later.

Former Sen. Rick Santorum of Pennsylvania wasn’t nearly as gentle, citing one analysis that found that taxes would go up for 84 percent of the nation’s households if Cain’s proposal went into effect. “We’re talking about major increases in taxes,” he said, adding that a single person and a couple with children with the same income would pay the same tax under Cain’s proposal.

Undeterred, Cain insisted the charges were untrue. He said he was being criticized because lobbyists, accountants and others “want to continue to be able to manipulate the American people with a 10-million-word mess,” the current tax code.

Cain’s proposal is for a 9 percent personal income tax, a 9 percent corporate tax and a 9 percent national sales tax.

The former pizza company CEO is the latest and unlikely phenomenon in the race to pick a Republican rival for President Barack Obama. A black man in a party that draws few votes from Africans Americans, he had bumped along with little notice as Romney sought to fend off one fast-rising rival after another.

That all changed in the past few weeks, after Perry burst into the race and then fell back in the polls. However unlikely Cain’s rise, Tuesday night’s debate made clear that none of his rivals are willing to let him go unchallenged.

“Herman, I love you, brother, but let me tell you something, you don’t need to have a big analysis to figure this thing out,” Perry said to Cain. “Go to New Hampshire where they don’t have a sales tax and you’re fixing to give them one,” he said, referring to the state that will hold the first primary early next year.

Powerful joint pill flying off drug store shelves

Clinical trial; participants began to feel noticeable results in just days

(UMS) – Imagine a pill that can start helping you get around more easily in just a matter of days.<sup>5</sup>

Then think of how great it would be for your joints to begin feeling better too.

Well there’s no reason to imagine, a team of scientists has delivered an amazing joint health supplement that’s been clinically shown to improve mobility and joint comfort.<sup>2</sup>

Now, after years of development and testing it’s hitting the shelves at all major U.S. pharmacies.

This remarkable joint health pill is called Fast Acting Trigosamine®. It has been clinically shown to produce amazing results; 81% of the participants started feeling better just days after taking the recommended dosage and an incredible 100% reported their joints felt better just midway through the 8 week clinical trial.<sup>2,3,5</sup>

“Our goal was to formulate Trigosamine so that people would start to feel results quickly, and based on the feedback from consumers along with the clinical data I’d say we hit the bulls-eye with this powerful pill,” added Dietz.

National drug store shipments are being delivered, but as of today there’s no way to know which stores actually have product on their shelves.

“Until we know all the shelves are stocked we’ll ship Trigosamine directly to people’s homes. As an added bonus, all local residents who call the Regional Health Hotline at 1-866-941-7632 before the 48-hour deadline expires can also qualify for a significant discount,” said Darla Miller, Distribution Director for the company.

“We’re shipping pills on a first-come, first-served basis; callers just have to be sure they give the bonus approval code of TG17042 when they call and we’ll take care of everything for them,” she said.

“We know that people suffering with joint discomfort want Trigosamine, the phones have been ringing like crazy. We strongly recommend that local readers call right away to make sure they get their fair share,” said Miller.

Trigosamine’s formula has a special combination of ingredients that until now have never been blended into a pill. It’s this special mixture that was clinically tested and is responsible for delivering the incredible results.

One of the key ingredients is hyaluronate, which is a building block of “human joint oil” and known by medical professionals as synovial fluid.

This remarkable molecule can absorb up to 1000 times its own weight in water helping to lubricate the joints which reduces friction while acting as a “shock absorber” allowing for effortless comfortable motion.<sup>5</sup>

“Synovial fluid is part of what allows young people to be highly active without getting sore joints. But as we age we produce less of this fluid which can force bones and joints to grind together causing nagging discomfort,” said Dr. Dietz.

“This remarkable combination of ingredients is what makes Trigosamine work so well. It really helps people to move more freely and with greater flexibility,” said Dietz.<sup>5</sup>

Trigosamine’s powerful results are all supported by a recently completed randomized, double-blind placebo controlled clinical study which is considered to be the “gold standard” for joint health supplements.

While no pill works for every-

■ PROOF THAT IT WORKS: Dr. Philip Howren was so astounded by Fast Acting Trigosamine’s® clinical results that he said; “Yes, I am thoroughly impressed with the clinical data, in fact I now take the pill myself to get the joint relief I need. It’s my number one recommendation to anyone who suffers with joint discomfort,” added Dr. Howren.<sup>4</sup> one, during this clinical trial, every one of the participants that took this amazing supplement reported an improvement in their joint comfort. The data also shows that their joint comfort just kept getting better the entire time they were taking Trigosamine during clinical study.<sup>2,5</sup>

On the other hand, the clinical participants that were taking the placebo experienced much different results. Those taking the placebo developed increased joint discomfort and soreness during the clinical study, which is the exact opposite of what happened to participants taking the Fast Acting Trigosamine pills.<sup>2</sup>

“For participants to get this type of relief is simply amazing,” said Dr. Joe Dietz.

“In all my years of clinical research, I’ve never seen that type of a response before. This powerful supplement is simply remarkable for those suffering with sore joints,” he added.

The tough part now will be how to get it.

“National pharmacy shipments are happening daily, but as of right now there’s no way to know which drug stores have it and which ones don’t,” said Darla Miller.

But for those who want to be among the first to get it the company has opened a Regional Health Hotline so people can have it shipped directly to their homes.

Local readers can also qualify for a huge discount if they’re lucky enough to get through before the 48-hour deadline expires. The number to call right now is 1-866-941-7632.

“Until shipments get to all the drug stores we’re shipping it directly to people who call our hotline,” said Miller. “All they have to do is give the bonus approval code of TG17042 when they call and we’ll take care of the rest,” she added.

That makes the next 48 hours critical for those living in the local area who want this remarkable joint supplement. Those getting through to the hotline within the next 48 hours are not only guaranteed to get the pills delivered directly to their homes, but they can save money too.

Otherwise, those who don’t get through may be hard pressed to get their hands on this medical breakthrough. ■

How Fast Acting Trigosamine® Works

(Actual Size)

Fast Acting Trigosamine combines three powerful compounds to quickly improve joint comfort.<sup>5</sup>

1. HYALURONATE-13:

One tiny molecule of this remarkable compound can hold an amazing 1,000 times its weight in water. This allows naturally occurring hyaluronate to bind water, making the joints extremely slippery allowing them to slide smoothly over one another.<sup>2,5</sup>

2. GLUCOSAMINE SULFATE-15:

Review studies show glucosamine maintains healthy cartilage in the joints by inhibiting joint destroying enzymes. The compound also builds up naturally present amounts in the blood stream used to build healthy cartilage.<sup>5</sup>

3. RAPIDFLEX FORMULA-61:

The patented ingredients in RapidFLEX improve overall joint performance and one ingredient increases the speed in which nutrients are absorbed.<sup>5</sup>

■ HEALTHY JOINT: A Diagnostic x-ray reveals a human knee joint that has the proper amount of synovial fluid to lubricate the joint and act as a comfortable shock absorber.

Clinical strength diet pill delivers 5 times more weight loss

Drug store sales soar; clinical study data confirms results

(UMS) – Over 10 million doses have already been shipped to dieters so far; and sales are expected to climb even higher for the diet pill called Apatrim®.

“We knew we had a great product, but it’s even exceeded our expectations,” said Victoria Shilling, Manager of Call Center Operations.

“People just keep placing orders, it’s been pretty amazing,” she said.

There are some very good reasons for this diet supplement’s remarkable success.

The results from the clinical trial were very impressive. Participants taking Apatrim’s active ingredient as directed lost an average of 5 times more weight than those taking a placebo during the 4-week U.S. study.<sup>1,3</sup>

These results were achieved without changing the participant’s daily diet or exercise routine.<sup>1,4</sup>

While no diet pill works for everyone, an amazing 100% of the participants taking Apatrim as directed either lost weight or inches off of their waistline during the 4 week clinical study. Some participants experienced great results, losing as much as 8 lbs and up to 2 inches off their waist.<sup>1,3,4</sup>

The U.S. clinical study was conducted in Los Angeles; the study included healthy, overweight individuals between the ages of 31 and 73. The caloric intake and level of exercise was not disclosed.

The participants were instructed not to change the food they were eating and not to add any exercise. They were specifically told not to change their daily routine; just take two pills 30 minutes before lunch and dinner.

Apatrim’s active ingredient has a known ability to help control hunger pangs, this allows people to eat the foods they want and always seem to be craving; because they’ll just want to eat less.<sup>4</sup>

Industry researchers believe that Apatrim works by suppressing a person’s appetite.<sup>4</sup>

“By suppressing their appetite, dieters consume fewer calories which can lead to weight loss,” said Dr. Joseph Dietz, Director of Health Science, Research & Development for PatentHEALTH. “But consumers should always keep in mind that there is no substitute for proper diet and exercise when it comes to losing weight.”

Professionals in the weight loss and fitness industries also agree that Apatrim is the real thing.

Mark Loy, a personal trainer, has had some of his clients use Apatrim with amazing success.<sup>2</sup>

“I heard about Apatrim so I checked out the facts then decided to try it as a part of my training program,” Loy said.

Dr. Joseph Dietz was impressed with the quality of the clinical trials as well as the U.S. patent.

“When I read over the clinical results, the U.S. patent and all of the other scientific support I immediately knew we needed to use this weight loss compound,” said Dietz.

All of the big retail pharmacies including CVS/pharmacy, Rite Aid and Walgreens have placed orders for Apatrim.

But to make it easier for people to get it now, the company has set up a Direct Order Hotline for the next 48 hours.

Starting at 8:30 am today, all consumers have to do is call 1-866-964-2349 and ask for Dept. AP12041; orders will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

“For those people who call the order line to have Apatrim shipped directly to them right now, we’ll guarantee they’ll get product and they can also qualify for a 33% discount,” said Victoria Shilling.

“But this discount will only be available through the order hotline for the next 48 hours,” she said.

So for those who choose not to call or miss the deadline you may have to pay more for Apatrim or possibly run the risk of not finding it at the drug store. ■ cross-pollination of crops used for the organic market. The seeds, initially deregulated in 2005, went through a series of legal challenges that led to a temporary ban and the current partial deregulation that's in place until the USDA releases its decision.

Roundup Ready beet growers have chafed at some of the restrictions imposed through current regulations, which include field checks and detailed record-keeping, but USDA has said compliance has been good. Another regulation directs transporters against overloading trucks at harvest to minimize accidental spills. Drivers following beet trucks may applaud that new rule, but its intent is to prevent accidental contamination with seed crops.

Still, growers were thrilled to have the opportunity to plant Roundup Ready beets last spring. "With the spring we had, we were very glad to have Roundup," Duffin said. "It is next to impossible to spray with conventional herbicides and keep ahead of the weeds when it is as wet as it was this spring."

Now, USDA will take public comment through Dec. 13 before it makes a decision on the crop's regulation. Removing regulations is the USDA's preferred option, but it must carefully consider comments before a final rule is issued, said Mark Duffin, executive director of the Idaho Sugarbeet Growers Association.

According to its draft assessment, USDA may decide to ban planting of the genetically modified seed, keep current regulations in place, or grant the crop non-regulated status.

BY JIM GALLAGHER

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

ST. LOUIS • Bank of America's decision to charge $5 a month for debit cards enraged many consumers — but thrilled bankers at smaller institutions.

"Why pay for your debit card?" says an ad for First Community Credit Union, the biggest credit union in St. Louis.

"We're treating it as our bags-fly-free moment," gloated Patrick Adams, CEO at St. Louis Community Credit Union, referring to the Southwest airlines ads mocking fees charged by competitors.

Bank of America is the largest bank in the nation. But as competing bankers happily point out, anyone who wants a free debit card will be able to find one here.

The Great Recession and acts of Congress have turned the economics of checking accounts upside down, and a debit card is part of a checking account. As a result, banks of all sizes have been looking for ways to boost fees for customers.

"Stealth fees are sneaking up in the middle of the night," Adams said.

"Free checking," the most common customer lure of the last decade, is fading fast. Two years ago, 76 percent of banks offered free checking accounts. That's down to 45 percent now, according to an August survey by Bankrate.com, and it's expected to fall further. More banks are requiring customers to keep minimum balances or meet other hurdles to avoid monthly fees.

Now a few megabanks are seeing whether customers will pay for debit plastic as well. Regions Bank, the fourth-largest in St. Louis, is adding a monthly $4 debit card fee for some customers. Some are crying foul.

"It should be free for me to spend my own money," said Liana Kopchak of Florissant, Mo.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rep. Keith Ellison, D-Minn., right, accompanied by Peter Welch, D-Vt., gestures during a news conference on Capitol Hill in Washington on Oct. 13 to respond to new fees being imposed on customers of Bank of America.

She dares not dump her debit card because fewer merchants these days take checks. "Seriously, name me a gas station that will take a check," she said.

A free checking account used to be a rare find. That began changing about a decade ago, and the growth of debit cards is a big part of the reason.

Banks discovered that they could lure customers in with free checking and free debit cards, and make money in other ways. Merchants paid the banks about 44 cents every time a customer used the card. So banks added "rewards" — such as airline miles — to get customers to use the card more and more. Merchants hated that, complaining that the banks charged too much.

Debit cards also made customers more likely to overdraw their accounts by accident — producing a revenue bonanza for banks. A 99-cent iTunes music purchase, paid for with a debit card, could result in a $30 overdraft fee.

Meanwhile, bankers were still making money the old-fashioned way — paying zero interest for checking deposits and lending the money out at 7 percent or more.

Now all that is changing. Lower interest rates on loans are squeezing bank profit margins. Car loans that went for 7.5 percent five years ago are at 4.4 percent today.

But the biggest changes are coming from Congress. The banking industry caught much of the political heat for the 2008 financial crash, which weakened their lobbying clout. "The banks were down and out, and nobody liked them in Congress," said Charles Kim, chief financial officer at Commerce Bank.

Congress started listening to voters angered about bank charges and merchants demanding lower debit card swipe fees.

First, Congress stopped banks from raising interest rates at will on existing credit card balances. That was hardest on the giant banks that dominate the credit card business.

Then, lawmakers forbade banks from imposing overdraft charges on debit card transactions, unless the customer agreed. An FDIC study said that move chopped banks' revenue from deposit accounts by 16 percent.

Our reporter was lucky enough to experience a Basque feast in Phil and Marilyn Sarasqueta’s kitchen. But the couple shared their recipes, so you can create the meal yourself.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

If you have the privilege of eating lunch with Phil and Marilyn Sarasqueta, you’ll walk away with more than a belly full of great Basque food. As you stand in their Twin Falls kitchen, waiting for the meal to cook, the couple weaves tales of Basque family members and friends. The stories about culture, tradition and heritage are a great appetizer for the feast that awaits. Phil and Marilyn are heavily involved with Basque clubs in California and Idaho. Each month, Marilyn oversees cooking for the Gooding Basque Association’s First Friday dinner. As you nibble on an hors d’oeuvre of Spanish tortilla wedges, you’ll hear stories of Phil’s grandparents’ turn-of-the-century boarding house in Shoshone, of the farmers markets the couple visited during their trip to the Basque Country, or of traveling to California to make chorizo from freshly slaughtered pigs. Phil is a knowledgeable, entertaining storyteller, and his stories are as flavorful as the food that awaits.

In the American West, Basque cuisine is defined by lamb, pork and wine. But in the Basque Country, people depend heavily on fish for daily sustenance, Phil said. There isn’t deep-sea fishing in landlocked Idaho, so Basques turned to sheepherding for work when they migrated here, Phil said. Their diets shifted to reflect the career change, and dried cod became their main source of fish in America. As it gets closer to lunchtime, the kitchen fills with smells of pork loin and chorizo. Your stomach will

Avocado Burger, $5.95

Sherm’s Grill, 991 Washington St. S., Twin Falls

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

At Sperm’s Grill, a small but cheerful eatery on Twin Falls’ south side, you’re likely to see a blue-collar work crew at the next table, or a group of retired women on a lunch date.

For both, the attraction is probably Sperm’s low-cost but made-to-order menu.

It’s a fairly standard lineup of sandwiches, burgers and salads. The most daring thing on the menu is the cranberry sauce on a cold turkey sandwich. Or the cod wrap with fruit salsa.

But there’s a lot to be said for a burger done right. Sperm’s Megamonster — with two patties, two cheeses, bacon, ham and pineapple — has a following of eight or 10 guys who order it “religiously, once a week or so,” cook Bruce Spratt said.

With a more demure appetite, I opted for Sperm’s avocado burger with a side of soup, for $5.95.

The hand-formed patty was juicy, the Swiss melted, the bun toasted, the tomatoes truly ripe, the lettuce dark green, the onions thick, the pickles crunchy and — this one’s important — the avocado generous. Check, check, check. There are so many ways to mess up a hamburger, and Sperm’s wasn’t guilty of any of them.

If you’re going to splurge on a burger, this is the way to do it.

The buns are baked next door in the Swensen’s Market bakery, Spratt said, and he uses almost half an avocado on the burger. “Our own little secret spices” flavor the

Restaurant Moves to Twin Falls’ Old Towne

Cucina Gemelli plans a November reopening in Twin Falls’ historical warehouse district after leaving a Blue Lakes strip mall.

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

Cucina Gemelli, a fine Italian restaurant and wine bar, is preparing for an early-November reopening in Twin Falls’ warehouse district after leaving its location in a Blue Lakes Boulevard North strip mall last weekend.

Its new home on Fifth Avenue South is a renovated former industrial space with a bit of Twin Falls history — and just the right rusticity and charm, chef-owner Lynn Sheehan said.

“We’re excited to be part of the resurgence of the downtown, Old Towne corridor,” she said Tuesday.

The move follows an Oct. 3 civil court filing by landlord Centennial Square LLC alleging more than $27,000 in unpaid rent and fees and asking for the restaurant’s eviction from its Blue Lakes location.

Cucina Gemelli general manager Matt VanderNoot on Tuesday disagreed regarding the unpaid rent — by his count, about $13,500 in rent is owed — and said the restaurant had already offered to move out.

“We were leaving anyway, and their eviction notice was unnecessary,” Sheehan said.

Why the arrears? It was a difficult summer, VanderNoot said.

“This summer was a lot slower than usual for all of the businesses that I’ve talked to. And it was a little bit slower for us, as well,” he said. Sales at Cucina Gemelli, which is not quite a year old, were down 25 percent this summer compared with earlier in the year.

VanderNoot attributes the effect to a client base who often travels during the summer; an economy and a late spring that made people feel like being outdoors at the backyard barbecue; and the restaurant’s lack of patio seating. Four weeks ago, Cucina Gemelli’s sales started climbing, and now they’re up to pre-summer levels, he said. The restaurant is also starting to book holiday parties.

“We got a bit behind on the rent this summer and we let our landlord know about it right away,” VanderNoot said. The restaurant asked Centennial Square to reduce or delay its rent payments and offered to pay a portion, he said, but negotiation was unsuccessful.

Cucina Gemelli had already agreed to move when Centennial Square

Fill Up on Soup to Help Slim Down

BY ROCCO DISPIRITO
For The Associated Press

For all sorts of reasons, soup tops my list of quick and convenient meals.

I love the way it feeds a lot of people easily from one big pot. I also love that it's easy to make extra to have simple heat-and-eat leftovers.

And you can feel good about eating soup because it's naturally good for you, especially when homemade. When packed with vitamins, nutrients, fiber, protein and carbs, it can pile on more nourishment in a single bowl than many more complex meals.

But my favorite part is that soup can help you take off weight and keep it off. That's because eating soup can help you feel full while eating fewer calories, which is key to long-term weight-loss success. The reason — soup (obviously not cream soups!) is considered a low energy-dense food, which means it provides more food for fewer calories, so you ultimately feel fuller.

One of my favorite soups is mushroom miso. I love it all year long, but especially this time of year, when there is a chill in the air.

There are a couple of tricks that make this soup great — and great for your weight. The soup is thick, but won't thicken your waistline the way most high-fat creamy mushroom soups will. That's because I use unctuous mushrooms, steeped to pull out all that wonderful flavor.

To build the soup base, I use miso, a traditional Asian ingredient. It's a thick paste that adds body and savory, salty flavor to the soup. Miso technically is "fermented soybean paste," but I'm glad we don't call it that because I doubt we'd use it in cooking. Miso has a much better ring to it! Then I can supercharge the soup even more by adding some leafy greens to it, if I want.

To up the protein for an even more complete meal, add peeled shrimp to the soup. It's the perfect pairing, nutritionally and flavor-wise. And you won't upset the calorie balance by much. Adding just 3 ounces of shrimp adds only about 100 calories to the soup (25 calories a serving).

The soup is an amazing calorie deal anyway. Consider that a bowl of mushroom soup typically costs you 712 calories and 37 grams of fat. My version (sans shrimp) is only 78 calories with less than half a gram of fat. Add the shrimp and it's only 103 calories! You can enjoy it as a filling meal or as a snack, and still keep your day's calories in line.

Mushroom and Miso Soup

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 4.

- 1 quart fat-free, reduced sodium chicken broth
- 1 cup water
- 1 1/4 ounces dried shiitake mushrooms
- 1 1/2 tablespoons miso paste
- 1 tablespoon low-sodium soy sauce
- 10 ounces mixed fresh mushrooms, such as shiitake, oyster and cremini
- Ground black pepper, to taste
- 3 to 4 scallions, thinly sliced

In a large saucepan, com-

Tips:

- Miso is available in numerous varieties. Generally, the lighter the color, the more mild the flavor. White miso is the most common at most grocers, but feel free to experiment with varieties to find a flavor you prefer. Also try mixing them. White and red are great together.
- The sodium level of bine the chicken broth, water and dried shiitakes. Bring to a boil, then immediately turn off, cover the pan and let sit for 10 minutes to reconstitute the mushrooms.

Use a slotted spoon to remove the softened mushrooms from the liquid. Cut off and discard any tough stems, then chop the mushrooms into large chunks.

Return the saucepan of broth to medium heat. Whisk in the miso and soy sauce, then add both the reconstituted and fresh mushrooms. Bring to a simmer, then cover the pot and let sit for 5 minutes.

Remove the cover and bring the soup back to a simmer. Season with pepper, then ladle soup into serving bowls. Top each serving with scallions.

miso can vary among the different varieties, so if you are watching your sodium intake, choose a variety with low sodium.

• This is a great soup base that you can add to. Try grated ginger for some zing, or try thinly sliced snow peas or fresh spinach for added fiber. You even can add some shrimp, diced tofu or fish for more protein.

asked the court for eviction, Sheehan and VanderNoot said.

"We really just never felt that was the right location for us, honestly, in a strip mall," Sheehan said.

Cucina Gemelli's new home will be the Old Towne space that owner David Woodhead currently uses as the Sidewinder Saloon party and karaoke destination, two doors away from his Woody's Sports Bar and Grill.

Sidewinder's karaoke will continue through late October as Cucina Gemelli remodels for a restaurant opening that's planned for the first week of November, VanderNoot said.

Sheehan plans to expand Cucina Gemelli's offerings, creating a separate, more casual wine bar menu and atmosphere to complement its fine dining component. With a more open floor plan, she also plans to introduce live jazz, for which there wasn't room in the Blue Lakes spot. The move is a step up in other ways: covered outdoor dining on the former loading dock; banquet and private-party space; and historical character (think high ceilings and big windows).

"We're really excited to be both here in Old Towne and to be able to present great new recipes to our customers," she said.

Gift certificates issued through a Magicvalley.com promotion were set to expire this fall but will be extended to the end of November, VanderNoot said. Cucina Gemelli's normal gift certificates don't have expiration dates.

ground beef, Spratt said, but he wouldn't elaborate.

The cheddar soup I tried — part of Sherm's regular rotation — starts with a soup base sold at Swensen's, but Spratt and his colleague add big chunks of new potato and bacon, and more than the obligatory bits of fresh broccoli.

Just one note of caution: With only two men working during a typical lunch rush, they'll be running (sometimes literally). So save this outing for a day when you don't have to hurry back to the office.

growl as Marilyn slices crusty French bread to serve with potato leek soup. Piles of cookbooks sit on the counter next to wine cake, the post-feast dessert.

Finally, the payoff: a meal that starts with the soup, progresses to chorizo with garbanzos, salad and pork loin. For dessert, that rich, wine-soaked cake and pears in red wine.

You walk away with a full stomach and a head swimming with stories of the Basque Country. If you're brave enough to try Basque pronunciation — or if you've had enough wine — make sure to tell them “eskerrik asko” as you head out the door.

Basque Boarding House Salad Dressing

2/3 cup cider vinegar
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper, to taste
1/8 teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup canola oil
1 cup mayonnaise

Combine vinegar and garlic and whisk vigorously. Let sit for a few minutes, then whisk in salt, pepper, dry mustard and sugar. Vigorously whisk in oil and mayonnaise. Toss with salad. Recipe courtesy Marilyn Sarasqueta.

Chorizos and Garbanzos

This recipe makes a great side but is hearty enough for an entree. “It always tastes better the next day,” Marilyn Sarasqueta said. She uses her own homemade chorizos, but you can buy them at the store.

1 pound chorizos, sliced about 1/4 of an inch thick
1 clove garlic, thinly sliced
1 small green pepper, diced
1 small onion, diced
3 15.5-ounce cans garbanzos with liquid
1 14.5-ounce can stewed tomatoes
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown chorizo slices in skillet or Dutch oven. Remove chorizo, reserving drippings in skillet. Add garlic, pepper and onion to skillet and cook until translucent. Add chorizo back into pan, then add garbanzos, tomatoes, salt and pepper. Simmer about 30 minutes.

Potato Leek Soup

Traditional Basque meals start with soup and bread. Here is an easy, hearty soup to throw together on a cold autumn night.

2 tablespoons plus 1 tablespoon olive oil
1/2 cup butter
2-4 large leeks, cleaned and chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
5 large Russet potatoes, peeled and cut into pieces
2 quarts water
2 quarts chicken broth
1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper
2 cloves garlic, chopped
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
Salt to taste

In a skillet over medium high heat, saute onions and leeks in 2 tablespoons olive oil and butter for 15 minutes. In a large stockpot, add the potatoes and cover with water and chicken broth. Add the onion and leek mixture and boil until the potatoes are tender.

In a small skillet, heat 1 tablespoon olive oil, and saute garlic and red pepper flakes until garlic is golden. Add the vinegar and let it come to a boil. Add contents of skillet to soup and cook an additional 10 minutes. Salt to taste. Recipe from “The Basque Market Cookbook.”

Spanish Tortilla

These aren't the corn tortillas you're used to. Spanish tortillas are made from eggs and are closer to frittatas. Many recipes include potatoes. This is a great appetizer, but if you are feeding a bigger crowd, simply increase the ingredient amounts. Marilyn and Phil Sarasqueta use homemade chorizo. If you're not up to making your own, buy Gem Basque Brand Chorizo at the Basque Market in Boise. Cut off the casings and crumble the meat inside. (And remember, Mexican chorizo isn't the same as Basque chorizo.)

1/4 pound ground chorizo
1 red or green pepper, chopped
1/4 onion, chopped
6 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook chorizo. In a separate small skillet, saute onion and pepper until soft, but not brown. Add chorizo to mix. Beat eggs. Pour eggs in pan with chorizo, pepper and onion. Lift edges to allow uncooked eggs to cook on the bottom. When the bottom looks cooked, flip tortilla onto a plate, then slide tortilla back into pan to cook the top. Serve in wedges. Recipe courtesy Marilyn Sarasqueta.

Seasoned Pork Loin

1 tablespoon paprika
2 cloves garlic, crushed
3 tablespoons olive oil, plus more for cooking
1 teaspoon salt
1 to 2 pound boneless pork loin

For garnish:

1 clove garlic, minced
1 12-ounce jar roasted red peppers

In a small bowl, mix paprika, garlic, olive oil and salt. Coat the pork loin on all sides with the spice mixture. Place pork in a shallow bowl and cover with foil. Refrigerate at least overnight and up to a few days.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Put a little olive oil in the bottom of a baking dish, then add meat. Bake until internal temperature reaches 160 degrees, or about 1 hour.

After you take the meat out of the pan, deglaze the pan with a few tablespoons of white wine, broth or water. Pour liquid over pork after you have sliced it.

For garnish, saute garlic until soft, then add peppers and cook for 15-20 minutes. Add to top of pork loin. Recipe courtesy Marilyn Sarasqueta.

Pears in Wine Sauce

1 29-ounce can of pear halves
Red wine
1/2 cup sugar
2 cinnamon sticks

Drain pear juice into a glass measuring cup, then add equal amount of red wine. Put in saucepan with sugar and cinnamon sticks. Bring to just boiling, then take off heat and add fruit. Let cool to room temperature before chilling in refrigerator for at least a couple of hours. Remove cinnamon sticks before serving. Recipe courtesy Marilyn Sarasqueta.

Basque Wine Cake

Marilyn Sarasqueta makes this traditional cake recipe easier to throw together with boxed cake mix that has pudding already mixed in. Can't find it at the store? Add a small box of vanilla instant pudding mix to a box of yellow cake mix.

1 package yellow cake mix with pudding
4 eggs
1 cup plus 1/4 cup white wine
1/2 vegetable oil
1 teaspoon plus 1/8 teaspoon cinnamon
1 1/2 cups powdered sugar

Tusind Tak!: Scandinavian Sweets Spread to U.S.

BY SOLVEJ SCHOU
For The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • They come in slippery, tongue-twisting names such as “spandauer,” “hyldeblomst sorbet” and “gelehallon.” And they are spreading across America.

They are the sweets of Scandinavia, treats once relegated mostly to the Midwest, where Norwegians and Swedes have settled for generations. But in recent years stores specializing in the confections have increasingly shown up in urban areas, such as Los Angeles and New York City, ushering in a growing curiosity among foodies.

These stores represent the exotic new kid on the block in places long dominated by Chinese, Italian, Japanese, Mexican, Thai and Indian foods.

“My thing, when I opened, was that everybody here knows what a ‘Danish’ is, quote, unquote, but they don’t really know what a real one is,” said Copenhagen-born Rasmus “Ray” Lee, 41, co-owner of two-year-old Hygge, believed to be the first Danish bakery to open in Los Angeles.

“A real one has marzipan in it. It’s got custard,” he said. “Normally, a ‘Danish’ here is very heavy and kind of glutinous. The flour we use is local flour, lighter.”

What Americans call “Danishes,” Scandinavians call “wienerbrod” (“vee-nuh-bro”), which means “Vienna bread,” since the pastry style has Austrian roots. “Hygge” is a concept central to all Scandinavian cultures: a focus on relaxation and enjoyment, also related to eating and food.

Scandinavians, when asked why sweets are so popular in their part of the world, may chalk it up to needing comfort through long, cold winters. But they also have an appreciation for whole, natural ingredients and smaller portions. Ice cream is made from fresh fruit, and candy is sculpted out of real sugar instead of corn syrup. It’s common for people to munch on sweets with almost every meal.

Lee wanted to create what he’s always loved in Denmark. When he moved to the U.S., he couldn’t find worthy pastries or cakes, he said. Visiting his family, he used to go straight from the Copenhagen airport to a bakery. In Scandinavian countries, he also noted, an active lifestyle offsets an active sweet tooth.

“Also, this stuff isn’t too fattening,” said Lee. “It’s low gluten, low cholesterol.”

At Hygge, a large glass display case boasts dozens of pastries ranging from kringle bars — square and crisp, also popular in Norway — to round vanilla-, raspberry- and apple-filled spandauer (“span-dow-uh”).

The pastries are made from a combination of dough and softened margarine which then is flattened and folded into 27 thin layers, frozen overnight, then steamed, shaped and baked. Hygge sells several hundred pastries a week, said Lee, who plans to open satellite shops.

As for why Scandinavian sweets stores have just started to reach out to coastal urban centers, Lee has one theory, citing “Jante law,” a Scandinavian concept of self-deprecation and modesty.

“Danish stuff should be all over the world. Thai food, pizza, is all over the world,” said Lee. “But you have to be ‘Jante law.’ You’re not supposed to stick out. You’re supposed to blend in. You can’t be too ambitious, or people start ridiculing you. People have very high skills, but they’re not allowed, culturally, to admit it.”

Chokladboll

Want Great Barbecue? Pop Open a Can of Soda Pop

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL
For The Associated Press

The mantra “low and slow” comes from the way authentic barbecue is prepared. Low heat, slow cooking.

And on the weekends, I love nothing more than to spend the whole day smoking a large piece of pork or beef, lazily watching and waiting for it to become meltingly tender.

But when time is of essence, I fall back on my “barbecue quick fix” — grilled pork tenderloin glazed with my Dr Pepper barbecue sauce. Making the Dr Pepper sauce doesn’t take very long and I often make it ahead of time on the weekend. That way, when the Monday-through-Friday dinner bell rings, all I have to do is grill and glaze the tenderloin.

If you are surprised by the Dr Pepper part, don’t be. There is a long tradition of cooking with soft drinks on the competition barbecue circuit, and some “legends” credit it as the secret to their success.

When I first got into barbecue, I was intrigued by the use of soft drinks as a sweetener. I figured it was used because there was always a Coke or Pepsi near the pit master and it’s an easy and inexpensive addition — just open and pour. And, it makes sense. Traditional — not diet — soft drinks are mostly sugar and can easily replace white and/or brown sugar in a sauce. But the cola sauces fell flat on my palate.

As a life-long fan of Dr Pepper, I felt that was a better choice, offering more complexity and deeper flavor. It didn’t take long for me to try it and as soon as I did, I fell in love with both the flavor and the fun of it. Besides tasting great, people get a kick out of the unexpected addition of Dr Pepper.

Over the years, I’ve made the sauce mostly for slathering on baby back ribs. But it wasn’t until a few months ago that I tried it on pork tenderloin. The great thing about tenderloin is that it is quick and easy to grill and, if you season it right, the lean meat has the texture of a great bite of a baby-back rib.

I prepare the meat very simply with my tried-and-true grilling trilogy of olive oil, salt and pepper, then grill it using the combo method. It works by searing the tenderloins over direct heat, getting great grill marks, then moving the meat to indirect heat and brushing it with the sauce. This method is a bit different than my traditional tenderloin method, but it really gives the meat that slow-cooked flavor in a short amount of time. The exterior gets nicely glazed and has time to become slightly burnished and caramelized without burning.

Any time you brush a sweet sauce on food, you have to watch the heat level because sugar burns very quickly. The basic rule of thumb is to only brush with sauce during the final 10 minutes of cooking. Because pork tenderloin takes just 20 minutes over direct heat, we lower the heat and cook for 30 to 35 minutes, brushing it every so often with the sauce.

Barbecue Sauce

Leftover barbecue sauce is great for pulled pork sandwiches, chicken, shrimp, hot dogs, barbecue pizza, burgers or baked beans. Start to finish: 1 1/2 hours (45 minutes active). Servings: 6.

For the sauce:
4 tablespoons butter
1 large yellow onion, chopped
4 cloves garlic, chopped
1 cup ketchup
3 tablespoons tomato paste
12-ounce can Dr Pepper soda (about 1 3/4 cups)
1/2 cup cider vinegar

1/3 cup Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
2 teaspoons ground ancho chili powder or New Mexican chili powder
1 teaspoon white pepper
1 teaspoon kosher salt
For the tenderloins:
2 pork tenderloins (1 1/3 pounds each)
Olive oil
Kosher salt
Freshly cracked black pepper or your favorite barbecue rub

In a heavy saucepan over medium-high heat, melt the butter. Add the onion and garlic and saute until translucent, about 10 minutes. Add the remaining sauce ingredients and simmer for about 15 minutes. Continue cooking until the sauce begins to thicken, about another 20 to 30 minutes. Taste and adjust seasonings with salt and pepper.

Let the sauce cool for about 10 minutes, or until it is warm but no longer hot. Using an immersion or traditional blender, puree the sauce. Let cool and, if not using immediately, pour into a clean glass jar. The sauce can be made in advance and refrigerated for 2 weeks.
To grill the pork, heat the grill to medium.
Wrap the tenderloins in paper towels to remove any surface moisture. This will help you to get great grill marks. Brush the dry meat with olive oil, then season with salt and pepper. Place the meat directly over the heat to sear. Grill for 2 to 3 minutes, turning once or twice, or until you get good grill marks.

Switch to medium indirect heat and move the meat to the center of the cooking grate and cook for 30 to 35 minutes total, turning once during cooking and brushing with the barbecue sauce every 5 to 7 minutes until the tenderloins are done and the sauce has created a glaze. Using a meat thermometer, make sure the tenderloins read 145 degrees at the thickest part.

Remove the tenderloins from the grill, allow them to rest for 5 to 10 minutes, then slice on the bias.

SALT-RIISING BREAD IS FINICKY

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: A friend recently reminded me of the tradition of salt-risen or salt-rising bread. I remember it was a delicacy, and an acquired taste. I also think it was common in the South. Is it still available?

Answer: Salt-rising bread is practically a cult subject among its fans. Because it’s finicky to make, commercial bakeries rarely do it anymore.

Salt-rising bread was common in the 19th century, before the availability of packaged yeast. The origins may be Scottish or German, so the tradition is still found in places that had settlers from those places, such as Pennsylvania, Michigan and central New York state, and through the mountain South, particularly around Western North Carolina and Tennessee.

The bread doesn’t have an unusual amount of salt. The starter uses naturally occurring yeast. The name may come from using warm rock salt, which retains heat, as a bed for holding the dough. The bread is dense, with a cheese-like aroma from fermentation.

For a Quick and Complete Dinner, Try a Frittata

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

It's a complete meal. It's easy. It's fast. It's versatile.

A frittata is simply one of the best choices when a week-night meal needs to get on the table fast.

Think of frittatas as scrambled eggs with other ingredients mixed in. And instead of cooking it entirely on the stovetop, it gets finished under the broiler. This creates a delicious lightly browned top, especially if you toss a bit of cheese on it before popping it in the oven.

Here's how it works. Choose your flavorings. And don't overlook leftovers. Bits of chicken, ham, steak or pork are great choices. Toss in a few vegetables, especially diced onions, perhaps some peppers or asparagus, even broccoli. Sauté them for a bit in the pan, then spread them evenly over the bottom.

Now add your eggs and let the whole thing cook for a few minutes without disturbing it. When the bottom starts to set, top the egg with some cheese and put it under the broiler to cook the top. It will quickly get nicely browned and puffy. And you're done.

In this recipe, oil-packed sundried tomatoes are a better choice than fresh, as they have little water. Don't worry about the oil clinging to the tomatoes; it serves as your cooking oil.

Chard and Sundried Tomato Frittata

Start to finish: 20 minutes.
Servings: 6.

6 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
Salt and ground black pepper
1/4 cup chopped oil-packed sundried tomatoes, plus a bit of oil from the jar
4 ounces sliced white button mushrooms
1 medium yellow onion,

For this recipe, oil-packed sundried tomatoes are a better choice than fresh.

diced
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 cups chopped chard
1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Heat the broiler. In a medium bowl, whisk together the eggs, milk and thyme. Season with salt and pepper, then set aside. Set a large oven-safe non-stick skillet over medium-high heat. Add the tomatoes, mushrooms, onion, garlic and 2 tablespoons of the oil the tomatoes are packed in. Sauté until the onions are soft and the mushrooms start to brown, about 5 minutes. Add the chard and cook until just wilted.

Spread the vegetables in an even layer over the bottom of the pan. Pour the egg mixture over them, then cook, without stirring, for 4 minutes, or until the bottom has set. Sprinkle the cheese over the top of the frittata.

Transfer the pan to the middle rack of the oven and broil until the frittata is puffed, lightly browned and firm at the center, about 2 to 3 minutes.

Remove the pan from the oven and cool slightly before slicing.

OBITUARIES

Linda Jean (Sailors) Money

Sept. 30, 1944-Oct. 14, 2011

GOODING • Linda Jean (Sailors) Money, a resident of Gooding, was born Sept. 30, 1944, in Laramie, Wyo., and after a short and courageous battle with cancer, passed away Friday, Oct. 14, 2011, at the Magic Valley Manor in Wendell, Idaho, at the age of 67 to be with her Lord and Savior.

Linda loved the Lord and being a part of her church community at Desert Hills Community Church of the Nazarene; she was actively involved in its music, children's church and many other functions. She was very passionate in children's Christian education and aside from teaching children's church, she co-founded the first Christian school in Gooding, Idaho, Heritage Christian Academy, where she taught for several years. Linda also loved farm life, growing food and raising animals. She was very active in many of Idaho's farmers markets, baking pies, selling vegetables and was affectionately known to many locals as "The Pie Lady."

Linda was preceded in death by her mother, Marilynne Sailors. She is survived by her father, Kenny Sailors of Laramie, Wyo.; brother, Dan (Jean) Sailors of Alaska; daughter, Carrie (Manuel) Gallegos of Gooding; daughter Gailynne (Kirk) Eld of Nampa; son, Paul (Katie) Money of Verburb, Sweden; son, David Money of Burbank, Calif.; and grandchildren, Jeremiah Booher, Marilynne Booher, Breanna Money, Sierra Money and Matilda Money.

Linda is loved and will be greatly missed by her family and all who knew her.

A visitation for family and friends will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 19, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. A funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20, at the Desert Hills Community Church of the Nazarene in Gooding. Burial will follow at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding.

Anyone wishing to make donations in Linda's name may do so to Desert Hills Community Church of the Nazarene, 129 Sixth Ave W., Gooding, ID 83330.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Marc D. Kottraba

Feb. 2, 1955-Oct. 16, 2011

BUHL — Marc D. Kottraba, 56, of Buhl, Idaho, died Sunday, Oct. 16, 2011, due to a motorcycle accident in Buhl.

Mark was born Feb. 2, 1955, in Sparks, Nev., to Phillip and Norma Alger Kottraba. Mark was a cowboy. He enjoyed people and was a devout friend. When he wasn't punching cows on the ranches of Arizona, he traded in his rope for a guitar and performed many an evening at surrounding guest ranches. He was an accomplished musician and played in the band Headwaters and more recently Idaho Stillwater's band. He enjoyed many all-night "jam sessions" up Slate Creek with Muzzie and the Boys and other local musicians; however, his best harmony was his wife while playing in the band.

Marc was a "Hand." He would drop anything to go help pack a corn pit, take a bale of hay to the neighbor, dig a trench with the backhoe or move cows for a friend. He had a tender big heart and for all his 6-foot 2-inch build, handle bar mustache and his hard-working hands — he was sensitive to others' needs.

Marc is survived by his wife, Jeana Colledge-Kottraba of Buhl; his daughter, Abby Restrepo of Austin, Texas; brother, Phillip K. Kottraba of Wendell, Idaho; stepdaughter, Misha Baxter (Jeremy) of Buhl; stepson, John Leavell of Stanley, Idaho; and two granddaughters; as well as many aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews that he loved dearly. He is preceded in death by his father, Philip Kottraba; mother, Norma Kottraba; and his sister, Rebecca.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, at the LDS Church on Main Street in Buhl. Following the service, please bring your musical instruments and stories to El Cazador Restaurant, 113 Broadway Ave. S. in Buhl, to join with us in celebrating Marc's life.

Ralph 'Gene' Eugene Windle

Aug. 13, 1924-Oct. 15, 2011

Ralph "Gene" Eugene Windle, 87, departed this life Saturday, Oct. 15, 2011.

Gene was born to Roxy Windle and Ruth Christian Windle on Aug. 13, 1924, in Twin Falls, Idaho. He lived on a farm south of Twin Falls until 1937, going to school in Twin Falls and graduating in 1942. While going to school, Gene worked at Scott's Cafe and learned to be a cook. Gene went into the Army in March of 1943, serving in New Guinea, Moroti, Leizon in the Philippines and was honorably discharged in 1946 as staff and mess sergeant.

After leaving the service, he returned to Twin Falls and worked for Cosgiff Sign Company, then went on to work at Co-Op Cheese, later changing the name to Ida Gem Dairymen of Jerome in 1949, working his way up to head cheese maker before it closed in 1977. After leaving Ida Gem, Gene went to work for the city of Twin Falls, working for the street department until he retired in 1987.

When Gene came out of the service, he met the love of his life, Lola Pauline McCune, and they eloped to Elko, Nev., to marry on July 21, 1947. Lola passed away in 2002 after 55 years of marriage to Gene. They spent most of their time laughing, hunting and fishing together. If you saw one, you knew the other was close by.

Preceding Gene's death were his wife, Lola; his two daughters, Lois Suiter in 2008 and Shirley Chess in 1990. Lois had five children, Ron Suiter and JD Suiter (both also passed), Sheri Grant of Sheridan, Calif., Terri Suiter of Elko, Nev., and Glenda Suiter of Las Vegas, Nev. Shirley had three boys, Larry Chess of Thermopolis, Wyo., Dirk Chess (also passed) and Lonnie Chess of Ucon, Idaho. Gene also had seven great-grandchildren, Jesse and Bobbie Chess, Christopher, Jennifer and Katie Grant, and Connor and Kylen Canepa.

A graveside service is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park."

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the World War II Veterans Memorial, the Alzheimer's Foundation, or the Breast Cancer Foundation, all in Gene's name.

CINCINNATI FINANCIER
CARL LINDNER JR. DIES

BY LISA CORNWELL
Associated Press

CINCINNATI • Carl Lindner Jr., a publicity-shy Cincinnati financier known for a shrewdness that forged a business empire, was praised Tuesday for his willingness to help worthy causes.

Linder, whose wide range of businesses over the years included baseball, insurance and banks, died Monday at age 92.

He was surrounded by his wife, sons and other family members when he died of causes related to age, his Cincinnati-based company, American Financial Group Inc., said in a statement Tuesday. A person close to the family told The Associated Press that Lindner had been taken to a hospital gravely ill Monday morning.

Barbara Riedeman

Barbara Riedeman, 77, of Twin Falls, died Monday, Oct. 17, 2011, at home.

Barbara was born June 4, 1934, at Gooding, Idaho, to Harvey M "Perk" and Minnie A. Griffith. She was raised primarily in southern Idaho with an older sister and younger brother. Her father worked on farms near Gooding and Jerome and as an equipment operator and later as an assistant manager and manager for various canal companies, so her family relocated frequently. She graduated from Eden High School in 1946 and was married and divorced twice before meeting Henry W. "Bill" Riedeman in 1965. They were married July 22, 1966. At this time, she was working at the newspaper in Burley.

She had two children, Sherryl Lynn Meester and Kenneth Wayne Meester from her first marriage. Her husband, Bill, worked for the Bureau of Land Management and the family resided in Burley until August of 1969, moving to Safford, Ariz., until November of 1975, and then to Battle Mountain, Nev. In February of 1978, they moved to and pretty much settled permanently four miles south of Twin Falls. Bill farmed for a couple of years and, after a summer on a fire lookout in south-central Oregon, signed on with Amalgamated Sugar Co. in October 1980.

Barbara enjoyed her family and relatives, keeping house (to a lesser degree), sewing clothes for the family, woodworking, upholstery, silversmith work, rock polishing and fishing when the reservoirs where full.

Barbara is survived by her husband, Bill; her children, Sherryl (Rocky) Arnold of Kingman, Ariz., and Kenneth (Terri-Jo) Meester of Portland, Ore.; her sister, Alma (Harry) Shaw of Boise; four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her parents; and a younger brother, Douglas Griffith.

A celebration of life will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20, at the First United Methodist Church in Twin Falls. Pastor Philip J. Airhart will officiate. Services are under the direction of Serenity Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

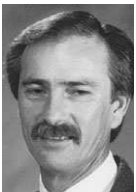

Ralph Sonny Sawyers

WEST MAGIC • Ralph Sonny Sawyers, 63, of West Magic, passed away Saturday, Oct. 15, 2011.

Sonny was born July 7, 1948, to Ralph and Mercedes (Berry) Sawyers in Cottage Grove, Ore. Sonny graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1966 and later joined the United States Navy. He married the love of his life, Mary Foreman, on May 13, 1972, in Reno, Nev. To that union, a daughter, Dusty, was born.

Sonny and Mary lived in Twin Falls, Buhl and California and returned to West Magic to enjoy retirement. Sonny loved Idaho, especially spending time in the outdoors hunting and fishing.

Sonny was preceded in death by his parents and a brother. He is survived by his wife, Mary; daughter, Dusty (Bradford) Page; grandchildren, Dominic, Aiyana, Sunni and Kailiana; sister, Marlane Lewis-Throneburg; aunt, Darlene Brown; and several cousins.

A celebration of life will be held at 3 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

Cremation and arrangements are under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Memories and condolences may be shared with the family at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

NEW YORK • The Big East wants to expand to 12 football teams and “the sooner the better.”

The problem is the Big East can’t be sure if its current members are staying put until Missouri, the Big 12 and the Southeastern Conference figure out what their next steps will be in the on-going drama of conference realignment.

“The overall landscape is still so very unsettled,” Big East Commissioner John Marinatto said Tuesday during a conference call with reporters.

The Big East’s presidents unanimously voted Monday night to increase the league’s withdrawal fee from $5 million to $10 million when an expansion plan is executed, Marinatto said.

Marinatto declined to talk about specific schools the Big East wants to add, but did say the Big East has “identified specific teams, and if any one of those teams commits (to joining the league), the exit fee increases.”

A person with knowledge of the Big East’s plan told The Associated Press that the addition of Navy or Air Force would trigger the increase in the exit fee. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to talk publicly about which schools the league is targeting.

Navy athletic director Chet Gladchuk said in a phone interview Tuesday the Big East and the academy have been in contact, but he was unaware of the league’s most recent move.

“Certainly a reconfigured Big East with stable core members is something the Naval Academy needs to consider,” he said.

Air Force spokesman Troy Garnhart said in an email that school officials would not comment.

Gladchuk said the two academies communicate, but will make decisions independently.

“I’m not convinced that it needs to be a package deal,” Gladchuk said.

The conference’s plan to get to 12 members includes Navy, Air Force and Boise State as football-only members and Central Florida, Houston and SMU for all sports, though that has not been made public by the league.

Navy is an independent. AFA and Boise State play in the Mountain West Conference. UCF, Houston and SMU are in Conference USA.

Marinatto said no invitations have gone out and he could not give a

Filer Boys Reap Rewards

BY DAVID BASHORE

FILER • In many recent Filer boys soccer seasons, players would look at a 4-7-4 regular-season record and be pretty pleased with getting that many wins.

Not anymore. In 2011, Wildcat soccer is serious business.

Accustomed to little more than losing in the past, the senior-laden team ripped off three straight one-goal wins in the Class 3A District IV Tournament, earning Filer its first boys soccer district title and sending the team to state for the first time this century.

A huge accomplishment for a team that two years ago mustered just one win out of 18 games.

“Soccer’s really the only sport I play here, and I’m not the type of person to give up. Even though we weren’t great, the guys were trying hard and I can’t give up on that. This has made all four years worth it,” said Zach Clark, a four-year starter whose overtime wonder goal against the Community School last week punched the Wildcats’ state tournament ticket. Clark also kicks for the football team.

Clark and Ryan Karel both started on that 2009 team, as well as in 2008 and last season. They’ve experienced dry times and now — with fellow seniors Santiago Alvarado, Sergio Campos, Cody Elliott, Ceaton Hammond,

Boise State Offers to Sweeten Petersen Contract

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Boise State officials are proposing a series of tweaks to sweeten the five-year contract of Bronco football coach Chris Petersen.

Under new terms, Petersen’s automatic one-year contract extensions for every season the Broncos win eight games would include a $100,000 raise, double the previous amount.

The Idaho Statesman reports (Petersen’s bonus for earning a BCS berth would increase by $25,000. Under the current deal, Petersen gets $150,000 bonus for a BCS game and $100,000 for winning a conference title.

The State Board of Education is expected to review the contract changes Thursday.

Petersen’s total compensation this year will be $1.5 million. That amount increases by $100,000 every subsequent year to $1.9 million in 2015.

His buyout clause is valued at $650,000.

Bruins Reach District Title Tilt

BY DIANE PHILBIN
dphilbin@magicvalley.com

It was just another typical Great Basin Conference matchup between the Twin Falls Bruins and the Jerome Tigers.

The Tigers played their best in the first set, matching the Bruins nearly point-for-point, but ultimately Jerome suffered a three-set loss, 25-23, 25-17, 25-17.

“We kind of fell short on defense,” said Jerome coach Hannah Clark. “The girls played great and hustled the whole match, but sometimes they were just a little slow to read.”

Twin Falls coach B.J. Price gave his team a “B” for the game performance and an “A+” for what the coach calls “classroom.”

“There was some really good stuff and not too many errors but there are always things to improve on,” said Price. “We just tell them to let the game come to them and trust what they do regarding assignments and adjustments (classroom).”

Sierra Starley led the floor for the Bruins offense with 14 kills, followed by Jade Byce with eight and seven by Taryn Skahill. Twin Falls libero, Brylee Bartlett had a team-high 15 digs, and Dolores Kroese and Allie Johnson each had 10. Johnson posted 37 assists.

Twin Falls also got contribution from a girl in a helmet — an odd sight

Hagerman, Raft River, Shoshone Battle for Final State Berth

BY RYAN HOWE

HANSEN • It took a while for Challis to wake up from its four-hour bus ride, but once it did, the volleyball Vikings rolled to their third consecutive Class 1A Division I District IV-V-VI tournament championship Tuesday.

The Vikings came out sluggish and dropped Game 1, but rallied to beat Hagerman for the title, 20-25, 25-21, 25-12, 25-17.

“We had a hard time getting off the bus, but we just said we came here to do something, and we’ve got to get it done,” said Challis senior Marlae Moss, who tallied 15 kills. “If we all work together, we’re better.”

Challis worked together well, as Madisen Garlie also had 15 kills, all set up by Rachelle Chamberlain, who finished with 44 assists. Taylor Six and Brielle Sheppard had 16 digs apiece.

The defending Class 1A Division I state champions will return to defend their crown, as the Vikings advance to the state tournament, Oct. 28-29 at Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston.

The youngest teams in the district tournament reached the title match, as Challis and Hagerman have only three seniors combined.

But despite Aly Sauer’s kills and Sheala Owsley’s blocks, Hagerman’s youth and inexperience proved more detrimental.

“We have low confidence when it comes to certain things, but once we get everybody ready to play, we’re ready to go,” said Hagerman’s only senior, Katee Hines. “We started getting a little nervous because (Challis) battled back and forth with us.”

Hagerman coach Katie Knight said the Pirates began to lose

Filer

Mat Hass, Isaac Kreft, Andrew Peterson, Marc Ramseyer and Chase Shank — are reaping the rewards of adding to their dedication.

“For a while a lot of the guys just played soccer to keep them in shape for their main sports,” said Karel, who scored the only goal of the game to beat Wendell in the opening round of the district tournament. “When it got to our junior year, though, we started getting close and winning a few games, so it became something where we started pushing ourselves harder to see what could happen.”

A coaching change after the 2009 season helped, with Greg Clark — Zach’s dad — coming in to build a sound game plan around predecessor Bill Sweet’s pillar of unbridled enthusiasm.

That mix of positivity and confidence worked wonders, as the Wildcats showed the makings of a strong defense in 2010 and added attacking verve in the middle of this season to come from fourth place in the High Desert Conference standings and rip off an impressive district tournament run.

That landed them atop a three-team district party headed to the state tournament with lofty expectations: a District IV team has won the 3A title in each of the past two seasons and the district has claimed at least one state trophy in each of the last five tournaments. The sentiment is that the trio of Filer, Community School and Gooding will all do District IV proud.

Filer opens with Bonners Ferry, runner-up last season. While the Badgers are an unknown quantity, hailing from the Idaho Panhandle, there’s cautious optimism in the Wildcat camp.

“The thing I’ve learned is that you don’t really have to worry too much about what the other team can do. As long as you do what you’re best at, the rest works out. You know that if a team is at state they’re going to have a good passing game, solid defense and quick forwards,” said Zach Clark. “The goal is to play hard and do our best. I’m not going to get cocky and say we’re definitely going to take state or anything. As long as we do our best, that’s all we can ask for.”

It goes without saying, of course, that the hope is Filer’s skill and positive outlook is enough to double its win streak and send this senior group out at the highest of heights.

PREP ROUNDUP

DECLO ROUTS GOODING TO REACH DISTRICT TITLE MATCH

TIMES-NEWS

Keva Robinson had 11 kills to pace Declo to an impressive 25-19, 25-17, 25-15 win over Gooding on Tuesday to reach the Class 2A District IV volleyball tournament championship match.

Ryley Payne had eight kills and four blocks for the Hornets, while Sydney Webb had seven kills, four blocks and three of the team’s nine aces.

“The girls played with confidence tonight and they just knew that they wanted this game and they know they want it (today). When mistakes were made we rallied right back and stayed on top of it,” said Declo coach Keri Wilson. “The goal is state and that’s what we’re shooting for.”

The two teams will play again tonight in Gooding for the district title, with Declo needing one more win and Gooding needing to beat the Hornets twice. The winner goes to the 2A state tournament while the loser will have to travel the play-in route to get there.

GOODING 3, VALLEY 0

Gooding eliminated Valley 25-21, 25-22, 25-19 to reach the district championship round, where the Senators will need to beat Declo twice to win the championship.

VALLEY 3, WENDELL 0

Valley strolled past Wendell 25-7, 25-17, 25-23 to set up its match with Gooding, which it lost to finish in third place at the district tournament.

Class 3A

RAFT RIVER 3, GRACE 0

Raft River stayed alive by sweeping Grace 25-15, 25-19, 25-13.

The Trojans are still two matches away from earning a state tournament spot. They will play Shoshone at 6 p.m. Thursday at Hansen High, with the winner moving on to play Hagerman immediately following for the second state berth.

SHOSHONE 3, HANSEN 0

Shoshone beat Hansen, 25-19, 25-15, 25-17, to advance to Thursday’s match with Raft River.

“We set going to state as our goal from the very beginning and the girls responded,” said Shoshone coach Hailey Harris, whose team nailed 10 aces. “I’ve noticed that Raft River has Katy Robison had 14 kills and Kaitlyn Goetz had six blocks as Kimberly beat Filer in four sets to stay alive in the Class 3A District IV volleyball tournament.

Kyra Palmer had 22 assists for the Bulldogs in the 26-24, 25-15, 22-25, 25-20 win.

Class 1A Division II

DIETRICH 3, LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN 1

Moriah Dill and Cheyenne Hubert each had 16 kills as Dietrich reached the Class 1A Division II District IV title match, beating Lighthouse Christian 25-17, 25-18,

Jessica Perron dished out 35 assists and added eight kills for the Blue Devils, while Charley Bingham added seven digs.

CASTLEFORD 3, COMMUNITY SCHOOL 0

Castleford eliminated the Community School 25-10, 25-18, 25-17. No other details were available.

CAREY 3, MURTAUGH 1

Michaela Adamson had nine kills as Carey ousted Murtaugh 23-25, 25-21, 25-19, 25-15.

Carey plays Richfield on Thursday in another elimination match.

Henley Blick has suffered four concussions in the last year, two in softball and two in volleyball. The Twin Falls junior rotates into the game into the serving position only then rotates out, yielding her spot to teammate Kroese.

“During tryouts, I had to have gall bladder surgery,” said Blick. “So I don’t expect to play too much but I do like getting into the game. My main role is to be loud and keep everyone in high spirits.”

The two teams will play again Thursday for the district championship.

WOOD RIVER 3, MINICO 2

It took five games but No. 6 Wood River eliminated No. 4 Minico, 25-21, 23-25, 14-25, 25-17, 16-14.

Lily Richards led the Wolverines with match-high 21 kills and Kori Paradis followed with 20. Paradis had a team-high 17 assists and Richards had 16. Mercedes Powell led Wood River at the service line with 20 service points.

For the Spartans, Chelsea Hepworth had 18 kills and Hannah Bailey finished with 17. Bailey led the defense with 25 digs and Hepworth recorded 16. Senior setter Kaylee Kostka dished out 49 assists.

“It was a very emotional match,” said Minico coach Kris Christensen. “They took the momentum and finished

CANYON RIDGE 3, WOOD RIVER 0

JEROME 3, CANYON RIDGE 0

The Tigers eliminated Canyon Ridge in straight sets and will play Twin Falls on Thursday at 6 p.m.

Big 12 in need of at least one more member.

The Missouri board of curators will meet Thursday and Friday in Kansas City, though it has not announced whether a decision about a conference will be made then.

Big East members West Virginia and Louisville are potential Big 12 replacements for Missouri.

An even worse scenario for the Big East has the Big 12 taking Louisville, West Virginia and Cincinnati from the Big East to get back to 12 members if Missouri leaves.

No Coasting: Cardinals, Rangers Meet in the Middle

BY BEN WALKER
Associated Press

It's a World Series straight out of Central casting.

David Freese, the local boy who became a big hit for the St. Louis Cardinals. Big Tex himself, Nolan Ryan rooting on the Rangers. A pair of teams cut from a center slice of the country, set to meet in the middle.

Makes for a different feel this October, doesn't it?

No coasting in this Series. None of the Derek Jeters, Dustin Pedroias or Chase Utleys from the East we've grown accustomed to seeing. None of the Tim Lincecums or Brian Wilsons we watched from the West last fall.

They begin at Busch Stadium tonight, with C.J. Wilson starting for Texas against Chris Carpenter.

Oh, and no need to change any clocks. Every game is scheduled to start at 7:05 p.m. local time. Kind of nice to avoid those late-afternoon shadows in California and skip those post-midnight final outs in Northeast. Provided there's no rain or extra innings, that is.

other All-Stars involved, it's certainly an interesting matchup. Adding to the intrigue: The teams are hardly acquainted, having played only three games against each other — and that lone series was back in 2004.

According to STATS LLC, the Rangers-Cardinals matchup equals the fewest games between two opponents in the majors, tying Mets-White Sox.

Freese was eager to get going. A prep star in suburban St. Louis, he emerged as the MVP of the NL championship series, helped by his three-run homer in the clinching Game 6 at Milwaukee.

"Thanks for the love yall," Freese tweeted Monday. "For the first time gettin smoked in fantasy football doesn't feel too bad."

Whether sports fans in other spots will watch this Series remains to be seen.

Last year's pairing of the Giants and Rangers drew television ratings that equaled the lowest ever. The numbers were down 28 percent from the year before when the New York Yankees played the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Cardinals still have a national profile, dating to a half-century ago when St. Louis was the most western point in the major leagues. In those days, the vast Cardinals radio network developed a broad fan base all over the country.

This week, the Rangers make their first trip to St. Louis.

"The Rangers are scary. They're a scary team," Freese said. "You look at that lineup, you look at that staff. It's going to be a battle."

Senators Urge MLBPA to Ban Chewing Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP) • U.S. senators and health officials are taking on a baseball tradition older than the World Series itself: chewing tobacco on the diamond.

With the Series set to begin today between the St. Louis Cardinals and Texas Rangers — a team that started life as the Washington Senators 50 years ago — the senators, along with health officials from the teams' cities, want the players union to agree to a ban on chewing tobacco at games and on camera. They made the pleas in separate letters, obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press.

"When players use smokeless tobacco, they endanger not only their own health, but also the health of millions of children who follow their example," the senators wrote to union head Michael Weiner. The letter was signed by Dick Durbin of Illinois, the No. 2 Democrat in the Senate, and fellow Democrats Frank Lautenberg of New Jersey, Richard Blumenthal of Connecticut and Senate Health Committee Chairman Tom Harkin of Iowa.

The senators noted that millions of people will tune in to watch the World Series, including children.

"Unfortunately, as these young fans root for their favorite team and players, they also will watch their on-field heroes use smokeless tobacco products," they wrote. Smokeless tobacco includes chewing tobacco and dip.

With baseball's current collective bargaining agreement expiring in December, the senators, some government officials and public health groups want the players to agree to a tobacco ban in the next contract. A coalition including the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Cancer Society and the American Medical Association has been pushing for one since last year.

"Such an agreement would protect the health of players and be a great gift to your young fans," the senators wrote. Durbin also sent copies of the letter to the player representatives for his home state teams, the Chicago White Sox and Chicago Cubs, as well as the representative for the Cardinals, a team that draws Illinois fans from across the river in Missouri.

Commissioner Bud Selig endorsed the ban in March, but the players union hasn't committed to one.

Weiner said in June that a "sincere effort" will be made to address the issue. Union spokesman Greg Bouris said Tuesday that since the issue is subject to collective bargaining which is currently taking place, it would be inappropriate to comment.

In Senate speech Tuesday, Durbin said, "Let's not let the health and safety of young baseball fans across America be a bargaining chip between the major league players and the owners. Let's win one for the kids across America."

The first World Series took place in 1903, but chewing tobacco in the sport dates well back into the previous century, when the habit was a popular pastime in American culture, not just on baseball diamonds. Players used tobacco juice to soften gloves, keep their mouths wet on dusty fields and doctor baseballs (the juice was part of the spitballer's arsenal until baseball banned the spitter in 1920).

Some baseball players interviewed by The Associated Press last month were receptive to the idea, but others viewed a ban as an infringement on their freedom. Baseball banned smokeless tobacco in the non-unionized minor leagues in the 1990s, and recent call-ups from the minors spoke of "Dip Police" who would come through clubhouses and cite players if they saw tobacco at their lockers, subjecting violators to fines.

The health officials from St. Louis and Arlington, Texas, asked that players in the World Series voluntarily abstain from using tobacco, in addition to calling for a permanent ban.

"The use of tobacco by big league ballplayers at a single World Series game provides millions of dollars worth of free television advertising for an addictive and deadly product," wrote Dr. Cynthia Simmons, the public health authority for Arlington, Texas, and Pamela Walker, the St. Louis interim health director. They said that with tobacco companies banned from advertising on TV, they "literally could not buy the ads that are effectively created by celebrity ballplayers using tobacco at games."

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says smokeless tobacco can cause cancer, oral health problems and nicotine addiction, and stresses it is not a safe alternative to smoking.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS • If this is Albert Pujols' farewell tour with the St. Louis Cardinals, it's coming on the grandest of stages.

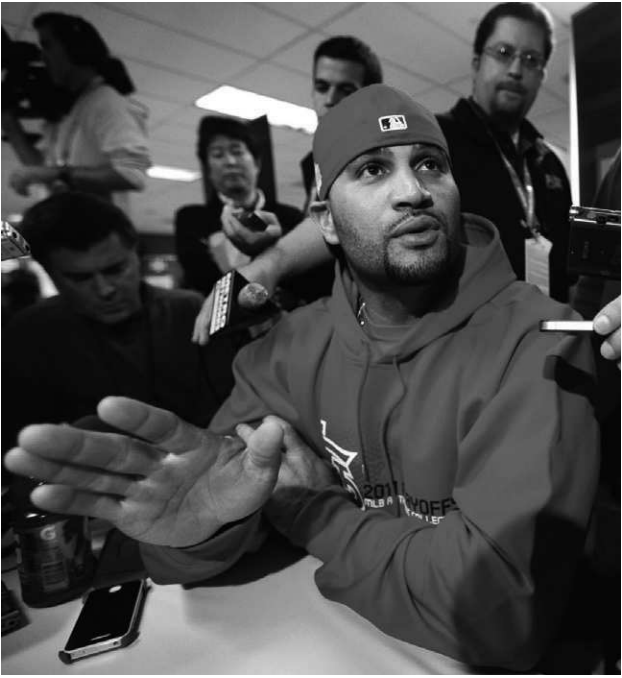

The three-time National League MVP has consistently avoided discussing free agency and was not making exceptions on the eve of the World Series. Swatting aside questions about his future not once but three times Tuesday, the big bat for the wild-card Cardinals was insistent on staying in the moment.

"Let's talk about something else," Pujols said. "Let's talk about baseball. I don't concentrate about that."

Contract talks can wait just a little longer for the front office, too. General manager John Mozeliak declined to estimate the odds Pujols will be batting third on opening day in 2012 for the Cardinals after building a Hall of Fame resume in his first 11 seasons in St. Louis.

Mozeliak has gone all year without addressing that weighty topic after Pujols cut off negotiations on the first day of spring training, and found no reason to break the truce now.

"I think at this point we'll table all free agents until our season ends," Mozeliak told The Associated Press. "The way I'd like to look at things from tomorrow on is just enjoy the experience.

"It's been a very unique ride and it's time to step back and just enjoy it," he added.

Pujols has been at the forefront of a team that dispensed of the 102-win Phillies and Brewers, the club that finished ahead of them to win the NL Central, since completing an improbable comeback to take the wild card. He's batting .419 with two home runs and 10 RBIs and an on-base percentage near .500 in the postseason, keeping his free agent value sky high.

He's very much on the minds of the Texas Rangers. Texas lefty C.J. Wilson, who opposes St. Louis' Chris Carpenter in Game 1 Wednesday night, will be facing Pujols for the first time. He's worried about the big bats surrounding Pujols, too.

his stroke after missing time with a finger injury. Sixth-place hitter David Freese was the NL championship series MVP and is batting .425 with four homers and 14 RBIs overall in the postseason.

"Holliday's the biggest human being I've ever seen," the Rangers' Ian Kinsler said. "He's humongous. And you've got Pujols right in front of those guys."

So there's a lot to consider.

"It's an American League lineup, just like ours," Wilson said. "It's the same way I have to navigate a Yankees game or a Red Sox game or anything like that."

Pujols, he knows, is the key.

"I made a joke the other day, 'Yeah, I'll just throw it down the middle,' because I'm not going to tell you guys what my game plan is," Wilson said. "You can't just go there and try to be macho and throw the ball as hard as you can."

"I think you guys have seen that he's hit like 500 home runs or something like, so it's not really a good idea," Wilson said.

Pujols is the first player in major league history to hit 30 homers, drive in 100 runs and hit .300 each of his first 10 seasons and missed by a hair of making it 11 in a row this year — he batted .299 and had 99 RBIs.

C.J. Wilson the Coolest Person at the World Series

ST. LOUIS (AP) • The coolest person at the World Series is C.J. Wilson.

The Texas Rangers pitcher chilled out as he prepared to face the St. Louis Cardinals in tonight's opener. He spent 2½ minutes in a Dallas cryotherapy chamber, where liquid nitrogen lowered the temperature to a frosty 295 degrees below zero in an effort to speed body recovery.

"So 35 degrees should be no big deal, right?" Wilson said Tuesday after examining the frigid forecast for Game 1 at Busch Stadium, where he starts against the Cardinals' Chris Carpenter.

Wearing a dark ski cap, dress shirt and vest in the interview room, Wilson said he read about the Dallas Mavericks trying out cryotherapy last season, when they won the NBA championship, and had Rangers head athletic trainer Jamie Reed check out the relatively new treatment with Casey Smith, his Mavs' counterpart.

"I'm kind of an experimental guy. I'll go for the hyperbaric chamber, drink a new type of sports drink that's supposed to keep your blood sugar regulated. I'll do whatever," said Wilson, one of baseball's best talkers.

Eric Rauscher, managing director of the Millennium Ice facility that Wilson uses, said the treatment has been available in the U.S. for about three years. It's an improvement over an ice bath, which lowers the skin-surface temperature to about 48 degrees.

"The body goes into fight-or-flight syndrome, and surrounds the major body organs with enriched blood," Rauscher said.

Preparing for the treatment, Wilson stripped down to his shorts, and put on special gloves and socks to keep his fingers and toes from getting frostbite. The rest of the body can tolerate the extreme temperature for that brief period.

"Basically you stand in this freezing can and cold air circulates around you. I did it a couple days ago," Wilson said.

Wilson said he'd like to get to 300 below zero. Rauscher said there's not much additional benefit, if any, at that point.

"Being competitive athletes, they want to outdo each other. I think it's more of an ego thing," he said.

For someone coming in off the street, a single treatment would cost $85, according to Mark Murdoch, Millennium's contact person with the Rangers. For packages of multiple treatments, the rate drops to about $75.

"It gets really cold, really quick. And your body's response is it pulls all the blood from your extremities in around your vital organs, kind of going into safety-survival mode," Reed said. "You walk out about 2½ minutes later, and that blood in theory has been enriched and oxygenated."

Wilson has gone for the treatment twice between starts when the Rangers are at home. Fellow Rangers starter Matt Harrison also has become a devotee. He tried it out after feeling tired legs during a trip to Chicago.

"I've never been that cold before in my life," Harrison said. "Those last 30 seconds in there are pretty miserable. You're in there jumping around, just waiting for that guy telling you you're done."

Wilson, the Texas ace following the departure of Cliff Lee, lost Game 2 to San Francisco last year despite pitching well. He gave up a solo homer to Edgar Renteria in the fifth and a leadoff walk in the seventh that scored off the Rangers' bullpen.

After going 16-7 with a 2.94 ERA during the regular season, the free agent-to-be is just 0-2 with an 8.04 ERA in three postseason starts.

"He just elevated the ball too much," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "He knows what he has to do, and I expect him to do it tomorrow."

Wheldon's Death Raises Safety Questions

BY JENNA FRYER
Associated Press

Dan Wheldon, one of IndyCar's biggest and most popular stars, died in a spectacular 15-car accident that racing veterans likened to something out of a movie scene or a war zone.

Now everyone — even those who never paid any attention to any form of motorsports let alone IndyCar — is demanding answers, just as they did 10 years ago when Dale Earnhardt was killed on the last lap of the Daytona 500.

The death of the seven-time champion in NASCAR's biggest race led to intense scrutiny. Now, two days after two-time Indianapolis 500 winner Wheldon's death, IndyCar is facing similar questions.

It took $1 million and nearly six months of independent investigation for NASCAR to determine a combination of factors killed Earnhardt. Even after the most comprehensive look at safety in NASCAR history, it determined lots of things needed to be fixed, and that there wasn't one simple fix that could have prevented the accident.

Now, IndyCar officials must provide their own set of answers.

IndyCar chairman Randy Bernard did not kill Dan Wheldon. Fans have directed harsh words his way because Wheldon was racing Sunday for the $5 million bounty Bernard had offered him if he could win the race.

Placing blame won't help heal the grieving auto racing community or comfort Wheldon's widow and two young sons. It won't help Wheldon's brokenhearted family, led by his father, Clive, who so eloquently spoke Monday at home in England of a beloved 33-year-old who loved life and, by all accounts, never had a single enemy.

So instead of sending Bernard Twitter hate mail, fans should consider sending a positive note to Wheldon's family. Let Bernard and all of IndyCar focus instead on honoring Wheldon the best way possible — by working to make sure no one else dies.

There's a ton of issues that must be addressed going forward, and although Bernard is the first to admit he's made mistakes in his first two years

First up is the issue of racing on ovals.

The knee-jerk reaction is to call for a ban on IndyCars racing on ovals. Five-time NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson said as much Monday, but he wasn't talking about a flat-out ban. The concern is ovals with high banking, which Las Vegas has, and how it fits with the speeds of an IndyCar.

Faced with an identity crisis and an urgency to build some momentum, the present IndyCar model calls for racing on ovals.

"To me, the most important thing we can do is differentiate ourselves from all other forms of motorsports," Bernard told The Associated Press two weeks before Wheldon's accident. "You have to have your own niche. What we came up with is we want to be known as the fastest race car with the most versatile driver in the world. No one runs the speeds we do with the versatility — the ovals, the super ovals, the short ovals, road and street and we run in the rain. I love that."

To continue on all ovals, though, will require some serious changes. IndyCar must break up pack racing. The only way to do that is to figure out a way that the cars can get some separation and drivers aren't forced to run wide open every lap to avoid being run over by the cars behind them.

Sunday's race was the final event for the series' current car. Wheldon spent this year as the development driver for the new car, which will debut next season with features intended to improve safety such as a wider cockpit, energy-absorbing materials underneath and behind the driver, and wide bodywork designed to prevent interlocking wheels in side-by-side racing.

But there's always room for more improvements, and driver Alex Tagliani on Twitter called on veterans Dario Franchitti, Scott Dixon, Helio Castroneves, Will Power, Marco Andretti and Ryan Hunter-Reay "to get together ... and push drastic changes."

Tagliani's suggestions include: less downforce, which would decrease handling and force more braking thereby making it difficult for drivers to go wide-open in the corners; changes to the nose of the car; and side wheel protection for the oval races.

Paul Tracy and Oriol Servia, meanwhile, want improvements to the catch fencing. Earnhardt's death led to the installation of SAFER barriers at every NASCAR-sanctioned speedway, but the catch fencing has gone unchanged.

When Carl Edwards' sailed into the fence in 2009 at Talladega, the fence bowed but held and kept Edwards' car from sailing into the grandstand. The Las Vegas fence held for Wheldon, but it appeared the open cockpit took a direct hit. So although Tracy has called for plexiglass sheeting along the fences, it's unlikely that would have helped Wheldon. There also has been debate about developing a closed cockpit canopy, and that's certainly something that needs further exploration.

Former Formula One driver David Coulthard called on IndyCar to limit speeds.

"There is no need, in my opinion, to be racing at 225 mph, wheel-to-wheel, around mostly oval circuits," Coulthard wrote in a column in The Daily Telegraph. "You don't need to be doing that to entertain the crowds."

Three-time world champion Jackie Stewart questioned having 34 cars at Las Vegas, where the field had a mixed level of experience. A portion of the field was drivers with limited experience or veterans who only make a handful of starts each year.

"Will the caliber of driver be high enough to be able to control those cars at those kinds of speeds?" Stewart asked. "There were a good many drivers in there who were not regulars and were not full-time IndyCar drivers. I think that's a consideration that has to be looked at."

Bernard and his officials must consider all these factors and more. No matter what safety improvements are made, one thing will never change: It always will boil down to how people choose to race each other.

Raiders Acquire Carson Palmer from Bengals

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) • The Oakland Raiders made a bold move to replace injured quarterback Jason Campbell on Tuesday, trading two high draft picks to the Cincinnati Bengals for Carson Palmer.

Coach Hue Jackson paid a high price to acquire a quarterback he knows well but who has struggled in recent years and refused to report the Bengals this season despite being under contract through 2014.

The Bengals had been adamant about not trading Palmer, who wanted to be dealt from a team that has had only two winning records in the last 20 years.

Owner Mike Brown repeatedly insisted he wouldn't consider Palmer's request for a trade because he didn't want to reward him for holding out. He changed his mind after the Raiders offered a 2012 first-round pick and a second-rounder in 2013 for the 31-year-old quarterback.

The Raiders (4-2) became desperate for a quarterback after Campbell broke his collarbone during a win over the Browns on Sunday. Campbell had surgery Monday and was expected to miss at least six weeks, leaving the Raiders with only Kyle Boller and Terrelle Pryor on the roster.

Jackson's mantra all season has been "the time is now," and he backed that up by dealing for Palmer, who is coming off a 20-interception season last year with the Bengals.

Brown said the play of rookie quarterback Andy Dalton made it easier to trade Palmer.

"We also find ourselves rather suddenly in position of being able to receive real value for Carson that can measurably improve our team, which is performing well and is showing real promise for this year and years to come," he said in a statement. "When this opportunity arose, we felt we could not let it pass and needed to take a step forward with the football team if we could."

Palmer, who had been working out in Southern California, already reported to the Raiders' facility and will immediately start learning the offense. Oakland hosts Kansas City on Sunday and then has a bye week.

While Palmer has not played or practiced since last season, he has a history with Jackson, who was his offensive coordinator for two years at USC and the wide receivers coach for three seasons in Cincinnati.

Jackson was with the Bengals when Palmer had his best season in 2005 when he threw for 3,836 yards with 32 touchdown passes and a 101.1 rating while leading the team to an AFC North title. Palmer tore up his left knee during a playoff loss to Pittsburgh that season.

He came back and had two solid seasons before partially tearing a ligament and tendon in his passing elbow during the 2008 season. He has not been an elite quarterback since, despite getting back to the playoffs in 2009.

Over the past two years, Palmer completed 61.2 percent of his passes for 7,064 yards, 47 touchdowns, 33 interceptions and a passer rating of 82.9 while posting a 14-18 record. Those numbers are comparable to what Campbell has done since the start of the 2009 season.

2012 Tour de France Route: Bigger Climbs, Longer Time Trials

PARIS (AP) • Tour de France riders will face steeper mountain climbs and longer time trials, making for a wide-open race aimed to give stars like defending champion Cadel Evans and Alberto Contador plenty of challenges.

At Tuesday's presentation of the 2012 course, Tour director Christian Prudhomme said "more favorites can potentially be in the mix" in the quest for the leader's yellow jersey over the 2,162-mile route.

The Tour's 99th edition starts June 30 in Liege, Belgium. It will feature nearly 62 miles of individual time trials and 25 tough mountain climbs. The super-steep stretch in eastern France will make its Tour debut in Stage 7.

This summer's Tour winner wasn't decided until the next to last stage. Prudhomme said organizers needed to keep shaking things up.

"The route has been made so more favorites can potentially be in it," Prudhomme said before welcoming hundreds of riders, cycling personnel, sponsors and fans for the presentation at a Paris convention center.

"So a guy who is good in time trials can say 'Ah, I might have a chance,' and others will say, 'Since there are fewer summit finishes, I have to attack from farther out,'" he said. "And there's precisely the layout to allow attacks from farther out."

The Planche des Belles Filles, with a patch of a staggering 20-degree gradient, is but one of nearly a half-dozen new mountain climbs for the Tour. Riders also will struggle up the Col de la Croix in the Jura mountains of Switzerland — a 2-mile climb with an average gradient of 9.2 percent.

"On the Col de la Croix, even without attacking, you have to be in it. It can't be otherwise, it's too steep for there not to be a shakeup," Prudhomme said.

The climb comes just 9 miles from the finish line of Stage 8.

A group of cycling stars lined the front row for Tuesday's glitzy presentation at a top-grade Paris hotel: Evans, new world champion Mark Cavendish of Britain, brothers Andy and Frank Schleck — who finished this year second and third behind Evans — and Belgium's Philippe Gilbert, the top-ranked rider this year in the International Cycling Union scale.

Gilbert will join Evans' BMC Racing team next year.

Major centerpieces for the Tour's last two editions were the centennial celebrations of the race's debut in the Pyrenees mountains — in 1909 — and the Alps the following year. For 2012, the theme will be novelty, Prudhomme said.

"This year we're in the year of new things, with half a dozen new climbs, some of which are really hard," he said.

Competitors quickly analyzed the route, and tried to gauge their chances.

"Riders and fans don't like it when the races turn into waiting games," said Andy Schleck, a three-time Tour runner-up, whose Leopard Trek team is merging with RadioShack. "Next year if you wait, you will lose. We have to be on the offensive from the first stage."

Thomas Voeckler, who wore the yellow jersey 10 days last summer before finally losing it to Schleck on the infamous Alpe d'Huez climb, said the upcoming Tour "is very hilly."

"Like in the past few years, the suspense will keep everyone breathless until the end," Voeckler said.

GREGG MIDDLEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY

"People do not decide to become extraordinary. They decide to accomplish extraordinary things."

MIDDLEKAUFF

No Sign of Epstein in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) • There is still no sign of Theo Epstein in Chicago.

It has been more than a week since word leaked that Epstein was headed to Chicago to join the Cubs after nine years with the Boston Red Sox.

It may take even longer for an official announcement.

Major League Baseball prohibits major news announcements during the World Series, which kicks off today in St. Louis as the Cardinals host the Texas Rangers in Game 1.

A person familiar with the negotiations has told The Associated Press that Epstein has agreed to a contract with the Cubs with a year left on his general manager contract in Boston. The person says compensation issues must be worked out, speaking on condition of anonymity because there has not been an announcement.

Two years ago, a news conference was held to announce that the Ricketts family had acquired the Cubs from Tribune Co. But even that came on a travel day for the World Series teams and it involved a multimillion-dollar deal.

On a cloudy Tuesday near Wrigley Field, the grounds crew was readying the playing field for the winter ahead while other workers repaired lights in the grandstand. No news conference, and no word on Epstein.

The Cubs have declined comment. Red Sox owner John Henry said last week that he wanted Epstein to stay with the Red Sox, while acknowledging the stress of being the Red Sox GM.

If and when Epstein arrives in Chicago, he will have his work cut out for him. The club has chewed up and spit out managers and general managers for decades.

Can Epstein be the guy to end the mind-boggling run of mediocrity, ineptitude, bad luck, strange karma and missed chances, one that has reached 103 years without a World Series winner? Chairman Tom Ricketts apparently thinks so and is ready to hand the 37-year-old Epstein a five-year deal reportedly worth $15 million to $18.5 million.

TRANSYSTEMS IS HOSTING A JOB FAIR

Thurs, Oct. 20th from 3-7 at the Ramada Inn in Pocatello ID
Tues, Oct. 25th from 3-7 at the Fairfield Inn in Burley, ID
Interviews on the spot!
Stop on by or give us a call 866-253-5480

Due to expansion, promotion and a couple of cross-country relocations, the Times-News has immediate openings in the advertising, circulation and news departments.

SALES EXECUTIVE

We need a full-time advertising sales consultant who is ready to achieve success, is highly motivated and goal orientated. This position will manage an existing well-established account list and be responsible for the development of new business from new and existing clients. They will provide excellent service to our clients, selling newspaper and online advertising, specialty publications, and ad inserts.

The successful candidate must have a proven track record in outside sales, developing strong business relationships, possess good oral and written communication skills, be well organized, have excellent follow-through and enjoy working with a variety of people. Previous marketing experience or advertising sales experience a plus.

WRITER

South-central Idaho's best and largest news provider seeks a talented writer to dig deep into the intersection of people and policy to consistently bring our readers the stories they'll keep talking about.

The assignment covers an eight-county area from which the right candidate will seek the most compelling stories from both rural and urban settings. Tasks will range from rooting out the reasons behind utility increases that hit thousands of pocketbooks to profiling a thinning group of Pearl Harbor attack survivors who call the area home.

The reporter's primary responsibility will be to find and develop six snappy enterprise stories per week and pitch in on other beats when needed, such as when our government reporter is covering the annual state legislative session in Boise.

PACKAGING MANAGER

The Times News is seeking an ambitious, team-orientated leader to join our Packaging department.

Qualified individual will be responsible for directing the packaging department in producing a quality product, which meets strategic department, enterprise and corporate goals. Candidate will apply expertise and knowledge to the packaging function to ensure sustained success and growth of the organization. Responsibilities will include developing/managing all departmental processes, maintaining departmental reports and records, and developing and tracking departmental budget. Manager will oversee the recruiting, training, evaluating and supervision of all packaging employees.

Qualifications include broad experience in a production or mechanical background; preferably in the newspaper industry, with 5-7 years of prior supervisory experience. Must be able to demonstrate experience working in a deadline oriented environment, scheduling, safety and cost reductions. Equipment and machinery expertise required as is knowledge of Microsoft Office. The successful candidate will be hands-on, possess excellent communication skills and be customer-driven.

Application deadline is October 31st 2011.

CALL 208-733-0931 ext.2 TODAY!

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 2011. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Oct. 19, 1936, H.R. Ekins of the New York World-Telegram beat out Dorothy Kilgallen of the New York Journal and Leo Kieran of The New York Times in a round-the-world race on commercial flights that lasted 18 and 1/2 days.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1765, the Stamp Act Congress, meeting in New York, drew up a declaration of rights and liberties.

In 1781, British troops under Gen. Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va., as the American Revolution neared its end.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1864, Confederate Gen. Jubal A. Early attacked Union forces at Cedar Creek, Va.; the Union troops were able to rally and defeat the Confederates.

In 1951, President Harry S. Truman signed an act formally ending the state of war with Germany.

In 1960, the United States began a limited embargo against Cuba covering all commodities except medical supplies and certain food products.

In 1967, the U.S. space probe Mariner 5 flew past Venus.

In 1977, the supersonic Concorde made its first landing in New York City.

In 1987, the stock market crashed as the Dow Jones Industrial Average plunged 508 points, or 22.6 percent in value.

In 1994, 22 people were killed as a terrorist bomb shattered a bus in the heart of Tel Aviv's shopping district. Entertainer Martha Raye died in Los Angeles at age 78.

Ten years ago: U.S. special forces began operations on the ground in Afghanistan, opening a significant new phase of the assault against the Taliban and al-Qaida. Some 374 people died when their ferry sank off Indonesia while en route to Australia; most of the victims were believed to be asylum-seekers from Afghanistan and Iraq.

Five years ago: Gunmen ambushed a car carrying Afghan civilians working for a U.S. military base in Afghanistan, killing eight of them execution-style. The Dow Jones industrial average closed above 12,000 for the first time, ending at 12,011.73. The St. Louis Cardinals won the NL pennant, beating the New York Mets 3-1 in Game 7 of their championship series. Actress Phyllis Kirk died in Los Angeles at age 79.

One year ago: The Pentagon directed the military to accept openly gay recruits for the first time in the nation's history. Hosam Smadi, a Jordanian man caught in an FBI sting trying to blow up a Dallas skyscraper, was sentenced to 24 years in prison after telling the court he was ashamed of his actions and renouncing al-Qaida. "Happy Days" patriarch Tom Bosley died in Rancho Mirage, Calif., at age 83.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"In my youth, 'Father William replied to his son, 'I feared it might injure the brain; But now that I'm perfectly sure I have none, Why, I do it again and again.'"
— Lewis Carroll

Some themes crop up more frequently in the fevered imaginations of bridge writers than at the table. But that does not mean that those themes are not both valid and worthwhile — they are.

With that caveat, consider that you will need to play carefully today to guarantee three no-trump, although on the face of it you have tricks to spare, one way or another.

I suspect if the deal were played in the local club, the defenders would lead spades, and declarer would win and play on clubs, with East taking the first or second round to return a spade. South would emerge with nine winners and might well think that the defenders had found the best lead and continuation. True enough, but consider what might happen if East had restrained himself sufficiently to duck both the first and second clubs. Now declarer would have three club tricks not four, and with the spade blockage, would have no re-entry to dummy.

So what is declarer to do? Answer: when the club queen and 10 hold the trick, with West discarding on the second round, South leads his third club to dummy's ace, then plays the fourth club, discarding his spade king! Now the opponents must give him an entry to dummy if they continue the attack on spades. Equally, a shift to either hearts or diamonds merely puts off the evil day when one of dummy's red jacks will provide an entry to the board.

ANSWER: You have enough to raise hearts pre-emptively, but since you expect to be defending a spade game, wouldn't you like to get partner off to a club lead? The best way to do that is to bid three clubs now. As a passed hand, you can't be rescuing partner from his long suit before anyone has passed for penalties. This is a fit-showing call, indicating heart tolerance and a desire for a club lead.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Carmen" for a few years, but in the last year she has started becoming violent when we are having an argument. I think this is domestic abuse, but she claims it isn't because I'm a man.

I'm not someone who can take abuse without repercussions. I'm like a mirror. If someone brings violence into my life, I reflect it back on them. So far, I have restrained my instincts — but eventually I know Carmen will cross the line and I'm going to snap. I have the potential to hurt her badly.

I have tried everything to make Carmen understand how I feel, but she continues to insist it doesn't matter because I'm so much bigger and stronger than she is. When she hits me, it doesn't hurt physically, but the anger I feel is indescribable. I'm at the end of my rope and considering breaking up with her before I hurt her.

I don't want to end the relationship, but I think it's the only way to make her see things from my perspective. Or should I call the cops the next time she hits me?

— BRUISED AND ABUSED BOYFRIEND

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR BRUISED AND ABUSED: You may not want to, but it's time to end the relationship before something happens you both regret. Your relationship with Carmen isn't a healthy one. You will land in jail if you respond the way it appears she wants you to.

Please think ahead — if Carmen resorts to violence when she becomes upset with you, then she very likely will with any children you would have together. She may think her abusive behavior is normal because this was the environment in which she was raised. But we both know it's not — it's a huge red flag. Run!

DEAR ABBY: I have been a holistic health-care and healing practitioner for 10 years. I love my work and being in a helping profession. I'm the one who is always there for everyone who needs help. A good portion of my work is as a counselor, teacher and shoulder to cry on.

My problem? I'm lonely. I have multiple health issues and struggle with money. I need someone to talk with about me and how I'm feeling. Whenever I find a counselor, member of the clergy, teacher, etc., I end up BEING the counselor, teacher, listener, whatever.

Living in a small town, it's almost impossible to find anyone who doesn't know me or my family. I went to a minister and ended up taking him to an AA meeting. I went to a counselor at a nearby university; she began asking me for advice about her health. I'm hesitant to try to find someone online.

I'm not looking for a lover or an "adventure" — just someone to talk with. My batteries are constantly being drained and opportunities to recharge are few and far between. I'm not asking for much, just someone to be there for me the way I am for many others.

I tried talking with my wife about this, but she's so emotionally insecure that even thinking I want someone else to talk with upsets her. Please help me.

— LONELY IN A CROWD

DEAR LONELY: It's not uncommon for therapists to suffer the kind of burnout you have described. They often deal with it by trading services with another therapist because talking about feelings — as you well know — can often relieve them. What you should do is contact the association of holistic and/or integrative medical professionals in your state and inquire about this kind of opportunity for you.

IF OCTOBER 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Enjoy peace and harmony while you can. Keep your nose to the grind-stone during November and abide by the rules – because if you don't, someone will give you demerits. That is when your personal lucky stars seem to hide behind cosmic clouds and conditions are too undependable to take a chance on a new car payment or a new romantic entanglement. Plan to take vacations or launch new projects in late December when you will be given a chance to reap some of the benefits your deserve for all your hard work. April is another month to steer clear of new undertakings. Next June, however, your very own guardian angel may bring you beneficial advice or even a new job.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go with the flow. The mood and politics at the workplace could shift, so remain flexible and adaptable. Brainstorm financial matters or get advice from a professional on any matter crucial to your success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Listen up. A kindly disposed little bird could whisper a bit of beneficial information in your ear. Keep lines of communications open, so you aren't left out in the cold when favors are given.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Creative imagination bubbles away happily in the background even when you are stuck doing mundane chores. Write down inspiring thoughts for future use and pay attention to the symbols of your dreams.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Mend those fences. Misunderstandings can be cleared up with a phone call or a quick chat. Your favorite business contacts will be happy to put in a good word for you, or could offer a lucrative lead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stretch muscles with meaningful intent. Heart-to-heart talks allow you time to make amends or accept apologies. Outdoor activities, sports, or exercise could lead to amorous thoughts or a romantic interlude.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't beat a dead horse when you are beating around the bush. You might suffer from a foggy lack of attention to detail today but no one can accuse you of bringing up the past in a negative way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be generous about giving everyone the benefit of the doubt. Accurate intuitions will keep you at the head of the pack where career and business are concerned. Get important plans nailed down and laid out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Have faith in the future. Rehash dreams and intuitions; you may benefit from subconscious guidance from within. One of your closest associates may be acting on your behalf without your knowledge.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There is a reason the last of the big spenders was the last one. Your generosity is endless. Because you freely share your resources as well as your opinions, you might quickly run out of steam.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The Rock of Gibraltar never gives in. Stick to the truth and the truth shall set you free, or at least give you a firm foundation to build upon. Develop a rock-solid philosophy that holds up under any conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You're poetry in motion. You feel in touch with the inner psyche of your friends and loved ones. Anything you begin now will have a timeless quality and an enhanced sense of harmony.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Climb the ladder of success with the flair of a high-wire artist. A businesslike atmosphere won't keep your showmanship from shining through. Improve bonds of affection by talking over future plans.

Top Otter Staffer Stepping Down

Associated Press

BOISE • Jason Kreizenbeck, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's chief of staff since 2007, is leaving the two-term Republican's administration to form a government affairs business with a longtime Idaho lobbyist.

Kreizenbeck, 39, announced his decision Monday to leave the post in an email sent to Otter's staff and top government officials. "It was not an easy decision for me to leave, but I feel that now is the right time," Kreizenbeck wrote to colleagues in the e-mail obtained by The AP. He will be out of Otter's office by week's end and will be replaced by David Hensley, the governor's current legal counsel.

Kreizenbeck plans to start a business with Skip Smyser, a former Republican state lawmaker whose lobbying clients include Altria, the maker of Marlboro cigarettes, phone company AT&T and oil company ConocoPhillips.

"I've done stuff internationally, in Washington, D.C., and locally," said Kreizenbeck, who worked as a top lobbyist for computer chip maker Micron Technology Inc. and was a vice chairman of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, a pro-business lobbying group, before joining Otter's staff four years ago.

Kreizenbeck said the plan with Smyser became concrete about a month ago. They worked together in the late 1990s, when Kreizenbeck was fresh off working for the first U.S. House campaign of Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, and joined Smyser's law firm as a contract lobbyist.

"Skip's the first guy I worked for in lobbying," Kreizenbeck said. Smyser didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment Tuesday.

Kreizenbeck was named chief of staff in November 2007, taking over for Jeff Malmen, who left the Otter administration to become the top lobbyist for Idaho Power. Kreizenbeck's position paid $130,500 a year.

Idaho has no so-called "revolving-door" restrictions such as those in place in Montana that limit former government officials from immediately lobbying their one-time colleagues. As a result, Kreizenbeck can begin lobbying Otter, cabinet officials and the state legislature after he departs.

During his tenure with Otter, Kreizenbeck played a role in some of the governor's signature legislative wins and losses. Earlier this year, Otter joined with Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna to get Idaho lawmakers to approve public education reforms, including a requirement that high school students begin taking classes online.

But Kreizenbeck was also at the helm during one of Otter's biggest policy failures, a 2009 effort to ram through a series of tax and fee increases to raise millions of dollars to fix and maintain the state's roads and bridges.

Idaho Nonprofit Director Owes Organization $161K

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL
and ROCKY BARKER
The Idaho Statesman

BOISE • The nonprofit Idaho Water Users Association, partially supported by taxpayers, listed its assets last year as $453,906. More than one-third of that amount is money its executive director, Norm Semanko, owes the organization.

"This isn't a new thing," said Semanko of the loan, which was made a decade ago.

The money Idaho Water Users loaned Semanko — $136,000 in 2001 and an additional $40,000 in 2007 — was used for a downpayment on a home and to make home improvements, among other things, Semanko said.

The loan is entirely legal, said Semanko, an attorney. True, but the practice is illegal in New York, Tennessee, Illinois and other states.

After Enron and other accounting scandals a decade ago, the practice of making loans to directors or executives was outlawed nationwide for publicly traded companies and strongly discouraged for nonprofit organizations.

The Idaho Association of Counties, Association of Idaho Cities and Idaho Association of Highway Districts are three nonprofits comparable to IWUA. Their revenue consists primarily of membership dues paid by taxing districts.

All three organizations said making loans to officers or employees is strictly prohibited by their boards.

"It is not an allowed practice," said Dan Chadwick, executive director for the Idaho Association of Counties.

The Idaho Water Users Association lobbies for both public and private water interests in the state.

The group has about 300 members from whom it receives dues of about $330,000 annually, its primary source of income. The dues are partially tax-deductible. Members include such government entities as irrigation and water districts and cities, as well as private canal and water companies, businesses and nonprofits.

In 2000, the IWUA board offered Semanko, then an attorney in Twin Falls, its executive director position. He and his wife, Svetlana, had just purchased a home in Twin Falls. Semanko considered commuting to Boise for his new job, but his wife disliked the idea.

The Semankos moved to Boise and rented a house for several months while they waited for their home to sell. Frustrated with renting and not being able to sell their Twin Falls home, Semanko talked to then-IWUA board President Henry Weick.

"To make a long story short, they basically offered me a relocation loan, a bridge loan, to be able to get into a house," Semanko said.

Bridge loans are temporary loans intended to help a homeowner buy a new place before the old one sells. Semanko's loan was not temporary.

The IWUA board in spring 2001 approved a long-term, 30-year loan for $136,000, Semanko said.

In a March 2001 letter to the Semankos' mortgage loan officer, Weick stated the Idaho Water Users loan was for a down payment on a house and to make the mortgage payments on the Twin Falls home until it sold.

"We appreciate your willingness to help our executive director and his family permanently relocate to the Boise area," Weick wrote.

The Semankos purchased a 3,300-square-foot home in Eagle's Two Rivers subdivision for about $300,000 in April 2001.

Semanko, who makes about $160,000 annually as the IWUA's director, said the personal loan was an appropriate use of IWUA's membership dues.
