Jerome County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Jack Johnson tours the proposed site for a Shoshone Falls viewpoint in Jerome County on Friday. County and Idaho Power officials have rekindled talks of building a public viewpoint of the falls on the north side of the Snake River Canyon.

Idaho Power Co.'s federal permit for the Shoshone Falls Power Plant requires it to help enhance recreational activities near the site. Four years ago, Idaho Power spent $50,000 to scope out potential locations for a north rim viewpoint.

"There's a lot of interpretive land to build something out here," said Lewis Wardle, Idaho Power licensing program coordinator. "You get a completely different view from this side."

Power Outage Shuts Down CSI Campus

BY JULIE WOOTTON iwootton@magicvallev.com

A Friday power outage shut down the College of Southern Idaho's Twin Falls campus, as Idaho Power crews worked to fix a faulty underground power cable.

CSI cancelled all classes and activities midday as a result of the outage. Classes were also cancelled at the Hailey, Burley and Gooding off-campus centers, which rely on CSI Internet

Idaho Power spokeswoman Lynette Berriochoa said power was expected to be restored to all buildings by Friday night.

CSI spokesman Doug Maughan said Idaho Power crews were still making repairs to the underground cable as of 4 p.m. Friday.

The power outage occurred at 4:55 a.m. and affected about half the cam-

Around 11:15 a.m., the power came back on but at a lower voltage. Electricity flowing in at 80 volts instead of 120 volts "was messing with the equipment," Maughan said.

As a preventive measure, CSI crews shut down power to the entire campus, building by building.

Rupert Couple Face Prison for Daughter's Death

A Rupert father will testify in December against his child's mother regarding the violent 2008 death of their 3-monthold.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A Rupert woman faces a December jury trial for alleged felony injury to a child related to the 2008 death of her infant girl.

According to court records, 3month-old Nivea Lopez died Dec. 19, 2008, after she was taken off life support at a Pocatello hospital. The final autopsy performed on the child revealed that she sustained abusive head injuries that included skull fractures, multiple rib fractures - some that had healed – and other injuries. The child's death certificate notes her cause of death as "abusive head injury" and the manner of death as

"homicide." The child's mother, 20-year-old

Different Infants Need Different Types of Care

ASK ST. LUKE'S

My grandson is in the hospital in a Level II NICU. What does this mean?

– Lou, Kimberly

Answered by Dr. Amber Fort, St. Luke's Clinic, Neonatologist:

ost newborns can be cared for in a regular nursery, sharing a room with their mothers and going home after a day or two. At the other end of the spectrum are very sick newborns who need highlevel intensive care, or life-sustaining treatments. These babies are usually very premature (23-31 weeks) or have major problems that need more aggressive and immediate attention.

Babies in-between are not perfectly healthy, but not sick or immature enough to need high-level intensive care. These babies usually fall into the "late-preterm" category of 34-36 weeks, or are term babies whose mothers had some complication. These are the babies who get admitted to a Level II NICU, or intermediate care. Intermediate care means that the baby needs a type of intervention (like oxygen or an IV for glucose or antibiotics), continuous monitoring or observation to make sure that they can safely go home, but are not expected to need long-term support to feed and grow nor-

Other common reasons include low blood sugar, or being born too early (between 32-36 weeks). Stevenson said Friday that the cases against Lopez and Martinez were originally investigated as first-degree murder.

"Based on the evidence, the appropriate charge was felony injury to a child," Stevenson said.

Stevenson said both parents were in custody of the child when she was critically injured on Dec. 16, 2008, but the state does not have enough evidence to charge either with murder.

"If we did, we would charge it," Stevenson said.

Court records show that an examination of the child's eyes revealed damage indicadrome. The Kempe Child Protection Team of Colorado said the child's injuries were consistent with child abuse and indicated a pattern of multiple episodes of abuse.

Eric Samples, site manager of the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center, exits the building Thursday evening to a near-empty parking lot after a painting class was cancelled.

Forward said that it's not that uncommon for residents in smaller communities like Buhl or Kimberly to participate in their local senior center. He theorized that the bigger the city, the more likely it is for people to ignore its senior center.

Samples is confident the center will remain open, but noted that will happen only if its business plan changes.

"We're not looking to cut any of our services," he said. "We need to find out how to capitalize off our strengths."

Ketchum Voters May Toss One Government for Another

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

A change of government could be in store for Ketchum.

That's what the mountain resort community's voters will decide in the Nov. 8 election, when they'll decide on a ballot measure to change the city's government structure to a council-manager form.

The city currently uses what's called a strong mayor-council form of government that vests more executive authority with the mayor instead of a city manager. Advocates of the change contend that a managercouncil setup will bring more professionalism and stability to the community's government structure.

Ed Simon, a former mayor of Ketchum and supporter of the change, said having a mayor as the chief administrative officer is too cumbersome because mayors don't have enough time to manage day-to-day business like the budget and personnel. But opponents, including Ketchum Mayor Randy Hall, say that a councilmanager form of government isn't the right fit for smaller communities and makes government more cumbersome.

"What we're saying is: Why would this community want to take power away from the voter just to give the power to a bureaucrat, which means bigger government?" Hall said.

Hall also calls the ballot measure a thinly disguised recall effort by organizers opposed to the council's effort to make Ketchum flourish as a tourist community. That's because the state law for changing government structures requires all five council members to run for reelection.

Without the proposal, only two council members, Larry Helzel and Curtis Kemp, would be up for reelection. If the change-ofgovernment proposal fails, this fall's accompanying council races will be nullified and a special election will take place in May for Helzel's and Kemp's seats.

If the government change passes, then the new council would select its mayor.

Simon discounts the notion that the proposed government change is an effort to get rid of the existing city officials. Voters can support the change in government while also voting for the incumbents, he said.

"If you think that the current mayor and council are doing a good job, you have the right to vote for them," he said.

FOR RENEWAL

For Ketchum voters, it's an event that only comes around once every 15 years. Ketchum's local option tax is up for renewal again. Voting in favor won't raise taxes any more than they are, said City Clerk Sandra Cady - it'll just keep what's currently in place.

"It's not changing anything," she said. "It's just for renewal."

Sixty percent of voters need to approve the measure for the local option sales tax to continue.

Here are the details:

- There's a 1 percent municipal sales tax for retail purchases, with the exception of groceries and motor vehicles. That's on top of the existing 6 percent state sales tax that applies to all purchases in Idaho.
- A 2 percent municipal sales tax is placed on all hotels, lodging, tourist homes and condominium units that are rented for 30 days or
- A 2 percent sales tax is also required for liquor by the drink. That covers all sales for liquor, beer, wine

The latter two categories include the broader, 1 percent retail sales tax.

The money can be used for a variety of purposes, including municipal transportation, emergency services, city promotional expenses, and capital improvements like roads, water, sewer and parking.

The revenue also can help with property tax relief.

If the vote fails, the local option sales tax will stop at the end of 2012. It was last renewed in 1997, and the city has had a local option sales tax since 1978.

Birds of a Feather: N. Idaho Man Makes Friends With Grouse

Coeur d'Alene Press

ROSE LAKE • When friends ask Jim Powell how his morning went, his answer might seem strange.

But then, it is strange. "I say, 'I went up in the woods and played with my bird," Powell said, laugh-

Really, he did. And he does today.

His bird is a male grouse he befriended and named "Missy" three years ago.

It settled on property he owns not far from his Rose Lake area home. First, it kept its distance. Over time, as they came to know each other, the small grouse crept closer to this friendly man. Close enough, finally, to where it sat on his shoulder, tugged on his cap and scrambled around his feet.

For Powell, this feathered little friend is a delight.

"She's my little buddy. We talk all the time," he

Almost every morning. Wednesday, at about 7 a.m., Powell hopped on his ATV and set out on the two-mile drive to reach a piece of his 34 acres not far from Exit 34 off Interstate Wearing a blue stocking cap, tan coat, gloves, blue jeans and boots, he zips down a road around 30 mph, slowing when he turns right onto a dirt path. From there, he steers his way up a steep trail until he arrives at a clearing.

It is quiet, but for chirping birds hidden in the hemlock, cedar, white pine and larch peering down through an early morning

The 84-year-old Powell moves carefully as he picks up his chain saw and walks a short distance to a stand

He looks around.

"Hey little girl. Where are you?" he calls.

Nothing.

So he fires up the chain saw and disappears behind some trees and brush. The saw screeches, high and low for few minutes. Then, suddenly, silence.

"There's my pretty little girl," Powell says, his voice chipper. "How's my little girl today?"

For the next 10 minutes, they have a one-sided conversation.Powell does all the talking as he slowly pulls a log down a hillside, through brush and toward his ATV while the grouse walks, hops, flutters and flies.

"You have to help. Oh my goodness, you're a good helper, little girl."

"Let's go. Let's get this tree out of here. Get off the log. Get off it."

Powell lets go of the log, crouches down to the bird until they're almost nose to beak.

"Oink, oink," he says,

Jim Powell visits Oct. 19 with a grouse that he befriended in the forest near Cataldo three years ago. For the first two years while Powell would harvest lumber on his property, the grouse would watch from a distance.

"Why else would I be up here this morning if she wasn't here? She's my little girlfriend in the woods."

then lets out a loud laugh. "That's how we talk."

The grouse, in turn, seems to react to his softspoken words as it flitters

"Isn't that something? She's my pet," Powell says. He sits on his ATV, and gestures for the grouse to join him.

In a few quick moves, it hops onto the ATV, then to his leg, his arm, and finally his shoulder, where it pecks at his cap or his jacket.

Through it all, Powell grins and chuckles.

"We do this almost every day," he says. "She's just made my summer for me. It's been a wonderful summer because of her."

The retired engineer recalls that first day he saw the grouse. It wasn't love at first sight. He didn't think much of the light-brown bird. But the following weeks and months, as he returned to relax on his land, to collect firewood, to enjoy the outdoors, the grouse was almost always there to greet him.

"I realized he wanted company," Powell said. That first year, it stayed some 20 feet back. The next, maybe five. And this summer, it seemed to trust Powell, even climbing onto logs as he worked. Once, to Powell's great grief, he accidentally ran over its tailfeathers. Wood chips, he says, sometimes hit it in the face.

"She doesn't mind," he

Today, the 6-foot Powell, and the 8-inch Missy named such before Powell knew it was a male grouse remain best buddies.

He believes it's a spruce grouse, described as "very tame" in the Patterson Field Guide on Western Birds that sits on an end table in his living room.

Some mornings, Missy doesn't appear. On those days, Powell doesn't stick around. No need to, he says.

"Why else would I be up here this morning if she wasn't here?" he asks, chuckling. "She's my little girlfriend in the woods."

But most summer days, Missy is there. Waiting. "Any nice day I'll probably be up there," he says. "She's with me the whole time I'm up there, usually." Powell was born in Mishawaka, Ind. He left there when he was 29, owned a sports shop in Elk City, Nev., and traveled often for work. Twice married, he's single today and lives in a cozy home with his poodle, Andy.

Life, he says, has been good to him.

Only one person other nan Powell, before than Wednesday, had seen Missy. But many around Rose Lake had heard the tale of their bond. They urged Powell to snap a few pictures so they could see the bird in his life.

No deal.

"She and I agree we didn't need pictures," he says.

But Wednesday, it was time to go public with their affair of the heart. That morning, as he started to drive away, Missy suddenly took flight after her friend, landing next to the ATV and following by

GOP to Host Presidential Straw Poll in Idaho

BOISE (AP) . Idaho's Republican Party has scheduled its first-ever presidential straw poll in hopes of luring the top GOP contenders to the state.

Idaho Republican Party Executive Director Jonathan Parker says the event scheduled Jan. 6 in Boise is non-binding. But the goal he says is to get the candidates to come to Idaho and court voters before the GOP caucuses March 6.

The straw poll is one of several changes in store for Republican voters during the 2012 election cycle.

The GOP will have party registration in the wake of changes made by lawmakers to close the party's primary election.

The state Republican party also moved up its presidential primary from late May to early March in hopes of making Idaho's 32 delegates more valuable in the nominating process.

Cd'A to Appeal $3.7M Wrongful Termination Verdict

COEUR d'ALENE (AP) . The attorney for Coeur d'Alene says the city plans to appeal a federal jury's verdict awarding $3.7 million in a former police officer's wrongful discharge case.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports a jury on Wednesday awarded Daniel C. Dixon $2.7 million for lost wages and benefits and another $500,000 for emotional pain and suffering. The jury awarded Dixon's wife $500,000 for the family's pain and suffering.

Dixon sued after he was demoted from his lieutenant's position to patrol in 2009 when a subordinate officer complained Dixon tampered with his work schedule.

Attorney Larry Beck says Dixon prevented the other officer from working overtime because it wasn't necessary. Beck says a sham investigation also found Dixon cheated on his timecard.

Feds Sue Idaho Rep. Hart Over Unpaid Taxes

BY JOHN MILLER Associated Press

BOISE • The federal government has sued a tax-protesting northern Idaho legislator, aiming to foreclose on his log home to satisfy unpaid taxes and penalties between 1996 and 2008 totaling nearly $550,000. Republican state

Rep. Phil Hart has Hart been fighting federal and state governments for years over his income taxes, which he argues are unconstitutional.

The U.S. Department of Justice now alleges that Hart fraudulently transferred the title to his home in Athol in northern Idaho to keep the federal government from seizing it to help pay his tax

"Hart arranged for and participated in the transfers of the property ... with the actual intent of hindering, delaying and defrauding the United States in its attempt to collect Hart's federal income taxes," federal lawyers wrote. Separately, the Idaho State Tax Commission has also been fighting Hart over $53,523 in past-due state income taxes, penalties and interest it ordered him to pay in 2009, beating back Hart's appeals repeatedly since then.

His efforts to avoid paying Idaho and the Internal Revenue Service have long made him the subject of scrutiny in Idaho - as well as figure of adoration for some conservatives who share his beliefs. Hart has been campaigning for libertarian-leaning Republican presidential candidate Ron Paul.

In 2010, Hart survived a formal state House of Representatives ethics panel inquiry into his conduct, though he did lose a seat on a House committee that sets tax policy after allegations of conflict of interest arose.

Even the home now being targeted for seizure with the federal lawsuit has been the subject of dispute.

Hart built the place in the woods of Kootenai County with timber he took illegally from Idaho state endowment land in 1996, well before he took office seven years ago.

Police Didn't Know About Gun Threat to UI Student

BY JESSIE L. BONNER Associated Press

BOISE · Police didn't know about alleged gun threats a University of Idaho professor made against a graduate student until after he shot and killed her, Moscow Police Chief David Duke told The Associated Press on Friday.

Katy Benoit complained to the university in June that assistant psychology professor Ernesto Bustamante had pointed a loaded gun at her head on three separate occasions and detailed the manner in which he would use it. The university urged Benoit to take safety precautions and go to police.

Duke said in an interview with the AP that his agency didn't learn about the gun threats until finding a copy of Benoit's complaint in the hotel room where Bustamante killed himself after shooting her 11 times outside her Moscow home Aug. 22.

Bustamante had resigned from his position at the university in northern Idaho days earlier. Along with the documents, police also found six guns and medications for bipolar disorder and severe anxiety in his hotel

The university and Benoit first contacted police June 10, but they did not detail Benoit's allegations.

"We had been told that there had been a complaint filed by a student against a faculty member and in that complaint there was indication that there were allegations of threatening behavior, but there were no details!' Duke said.

There was nothing in the law that required the university to report the alleged threats that Benoit made in her June complaint, authorities said. Idaho laws regarding the mandatory reporting of suspected crimes do not apply in the case, said Latah Prosecutor Bill County Thompson.

"The only thing that would even come close is the accessory statute that says a person can't knowingly withhold information from an investigating law enforcement officer," Thompson said. "At this point, I haven't been provided with anything that shows there was a violation of Idaho's accessory statue!"

University officials have defended their response to Benoit's complaint, saying they contacted police immediately and complied with her wishes. Benoit did not want officials to discuss her allegations with police, the university has said.

In the wake of the murder suicide, Benoit's family is among those questioning whether the university could have done more. There is, however, no court record of Benoit seeking a restraining order against Bustamante, though her family has said they believed she had.

"We are greatly disappointed in the university's repeated failure to fully disclose everything it knows about Bustamante. Privately, over the past several weeks, we've continued to hear more and more Bustamante issues that the University is not sharing," the family said in statement late Thursday.

The university said Friday it has released all relevant documents and is considering policy changes in the wake of the tragedy.

"From the beginning, we have been committed to transparency and full disclosure and we have followed up on that promise;" the university said in a statement.

Police were involved July 14 in a threat assessment team that the university pulled together more than a month after Benoit's complaint. But again, the details of the gun threats didn't come out.

University spokeswoman Tania Thompson said Thursday that under school policy, Bustamante first had a chance to respond to the complaint, which he was served on July 6 after university officials received permission from Benoit. That Bustamante used MapQuest to get directions to the home of Benoit's parents in Boise, according to university computer records obtained by the AP and other media outlets.

Bustamante had been directed to have no contact with Benoit and it's unclear if he made the trip to Idaho's capital city.

Oct. 17, 2011. A private memorial was held by the immediate family Oct. 21 at the Idaho State Veteran's Cemetery. Condolences may be posted at www.bowmanfuneral.com.

The youngest of the three children, Betty was born in Athena, Ore., to Vera Larsen Gosney and Leslie Raymond Gosney on Oct. 1, 1923. Court Upholds Manslaughter Conviction Despite Misconduct

BY KEITH KINNAIRD Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • The Idaho Court of Appeals is affirming a Spirit Lake man's manslaughter conviction despite instances of prosecutorial misconduct.

Paul James Cavanaugh was charged with the felony and leaving the scene of a crash in connection with the 2005 death of Sarah Marie Jones.

Jones, 18, was walking along Blanchard Cutoff Road when she was struck by a pickup truck registered to Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh argued somebody else was behind the wheel because he was too drunk to drive.

A Bonner County jury, however, rejected Cavanaugh's claims and convicted him of the offenses. He was subsequently ordered to serve up to 15 years in prison.

Cavanaugh, 51, appealed the convictions on grounds that the prosecution committed misconduct during his trial's closing arguments. He also argued his sentence was unjustly excessive.

Cavanaugh argued that Deputy Prosecutor Roger Hanlon committed misconduct during his closing argument by telling jurors it was Cavanaugh's fault they were placed in the difficult position of having to decide the case. Hanlon also implied that the defense was trying to trip him up during closing remarks by interrupting him, Cavanaugh asserted.

Appellate Judge John Melanson agreed and ruled that the former comment was calculated to arouse negative emotions of jurors and the latter remark improperly disparaged the defense.

Cavanaugh maintained the misconduct was more than merely harmless error due to the length of deliberations and a lack of physical evidence that put him in the driver's seat at the time of the collision.

But the errors could not overwhelm the strength of the state's case.

Cavanaugh's own statements to a dispatcher and a deputy following the crash put him behind the wheel, Melanson noted.

"As such, we conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the prosecutor's misconduct constituted harmless error because Cavanaugh has not shown that the error affected the outcome of the trial proceedings," Melanson wrote in an unpublished opinion released on Wednesday.

Judges Karen Lansing and Sergio Gutierrez concurred with Melanson.

The appeals judges also upheld the sentence imposed by 1st District Judge Steve Verby.

Idaho Forest Group to Buy Clearwater Paper

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

Clearwater Paper Corp. said Thursday it has entered into an agreement to sell its Lewiston sawmill to Idaho Forest Group of Coeur d'Alene.

The $30 million transaction includes the sale of Clearwater Paper's sawmill, planer mill, dry kilns, and related assets along with log and finished goods inventories and timber under contract.

As part of the transaction, the two companies have entered into a longterm residual fiber supply agreement with the goal of delivering consistent supplies of chips and sawdust to Clearwater Paper's Lewiston pulp mill from

Idaho Forest Group Mills. "This has been a very careful and thoughtful decision for everyone at the company," said Tom Colgrove, president of pulp and paperboard at Clearwater Paper. "We believe that this is the best possible outcome for the mill and its continued operation in the region, our company and our shareholders."

Clearwater Paper is expected to ramp down production in the coming weeks in preparation for Idaho Forest Group to officially take possession in the fourth quarter of 2011.

Clearwater Paper's

about 250 affected employees will receive severance and all provisions subject to the WARN Act, which includes up to 60 days of pay and benefits.

"We believe the tough times in the lumber industry will continue into the foreseeable future, and that the mill will be operated by a company whose core focus is lumber," said Colgrove. "We believe IFG has the people, resources and the business structure to make the Lewiston sawmill very successful."

Upon closing of the transaction, Idaho Forest Group plans to adjust production to meet its customer needs. At the same time, Idaho Forest Group will begin assessing employment needs and should initiate the hiring process soon after the close of the transaction. Longer term, Idaho Forest Group will assess the mill's capabilities and prepare an improvement plan for implementation.

"We are very excited about the prospects of updating and revitalizing the Lewiston sawmill," said Scott Atkison, president of Idaho Forest Group. "The mill and its location in the LC Valley and surrounding wood basket give us the ability to better supply our customers with the products they need, both now and into the future."

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to New York-based Chobani Yogurt for considering a location in Twin Falls. There are numerous details still in the works, but the red-hot Greek yogurt trend seems to be a natural fit for Twin Falls. If it comes together, it would bring hundreds of jobs to the Magic Valley, but it only gets better from there. Our strong dairy industry and supporting feed farmers would be able to get top dollar for their goods, and the retail, housing and hospitality industries would see hefty benefits

If our regional infrastructure can handle a new yogurt business that is riding a tidal wave of popularity, a plant of its size could pull the region out of a recession and offer a return to some of the boom times we enjoyed at the beginning of the millenni-

CHEERS to Aaron Adams for showcasing the entrepreneurial spirit that makes folks in the Magic Valley so unique. Adams is taking a chance on downtown, and has invested in creating High Country Bakehouse, a new bakery and lunch restaurant. Adams' business will showcase local farmers' wares and give folks another reason to revisit downtown.

Adams, a self-taught baker, is taking advantage of the latest trends in social media to help get his business off the ground, and his passion is infectious. Here's to hoping that the niche eatery will provide another engaged business owner for Main Street, and others follow his example.

JEERS to area schools who set merit pay goals too low, and jeers to the state of Idaho for giving them a pass on it. Idaho Superintendent of Schools Tom Luna's plan to offer merit pay was a contentious measure involving complex formulas of state and local achievement. The state set their standards based on ISAT test scores, but they let local districts craft their own measures before signing off

In the case of Wendell High School, teachers can obtain nearly 3/4 of their local bonus share by having 40 percent of parents show up at teacher conferences. They can get half of their bonus share if 36 percent show up.

Pardon? While there are certainly studies that show a correlation between conference attendance and student achievement, the marks set by Wendell seem ridiculously low.

Merit pay should be just that — a bonus or extra credit — and not easily doled out. We don't ascribe to the "everybody gets a trophy" theory. If districts insist on tying merit pay to conferences, we should see more than half of the parents show up to earn that large of a local bonus.

And, to Luna and the state education folks you're not off the hook, either; you approved Wen-

Ketchum Faces Potential Council Shakeup in November Election

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

This is an election for Ketchum that could go down in the history books as a shakeup.

The Nov. 8 election is unusually complex and has a twist: a proposed change in government for voters.

Voters will decide if they want to switch from a strong mayor-council form of government to a council-manager form.

Because that's on the ballot, all five council seats are up for election. If the government change passes, the top five vote-getters will be seated to four-year terms on the council and pick a mayor. If voters stick with the existing form of government, the election for candidates will be null.

Then, a special election would happen in May for just two seats that are otherwise up for election, those held by Councilmen Larry Helzel and Curtis Kemp.

In all, 13 candidates hope to gain election to what would be a new council. Efforts to reach candidates Bill White, Bill Marshall and Neil Morrow were unsuccessful.

Here's a look at who's running:

• Jonas is also in favor of a stronger broadband system, saying it would attract businesses.

In her words: "I'm persistent. I own a restaurant, so I get a chance to speak to hundreds of people. I have a fair understanding of how the community feels about topics."

Curtis Kemp

Age: 68
Occupation: Architect
Government experience:

years, running for a second term

Three reasons to vote for Kemp:

• Kemp says the council has worked heard to reduce government spending to keep the city in a strong financial position.

• He says he supports efforts to boost tourism, like hotel projects.

 Kemp says he's against changing the city's form of government, and wants to keep the size of government small.

In his words: "We've been working very, very hard over the last four years to reduce government spending and we have been successful in that regard and I don't want to have the city fall back into the larger government."

• She says her financial background, which includes being an accountant for film productions, would help the council.

• She says the city needs to focus more on hiring local people instead of outside consultants.

In her words: "I think it's time for a change. These guys have been around and after a while people get stale."

Rupert Woman Sentenced for SIDS Death

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A Rupert woman was sentenced to probation this week after leaving her 5-month-old daughter alone while she went to work. The child died from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome while she was unattended.

Adriana Torres-Jaquez, 23, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor injury to a child and was sentenced to two years probation and 180 day in jail, which was suspended. Torres-Jaquez was also ordered to attend child development classes, pay court costs and attain her high school equivalence diploma.

Jasmine Salinas died July 5 after she was left without a caregiver while Torrez-Jaquez went to work, according to court records. Minidoka County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson said it was determined that the child died of SIDS.

"We are not saying that this could have been prevented, but we still felt that there were criminal actions in that case," Stevenson said. "There was definitely a lack of attention."

Syrian Forces Fire on Rallies, Killing 40

LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEIRUT • Political violence killed at least 40 people across Syria on Friday, anti-government activists said, as protesters took to the streets demanding a no-fly zone to protect civilians opposed to the government of President Bashar Assad.

It was the highest reported Friday death toll in months. Protests after Friday's mid-day Muslim prayers have become a weekly occurrence in Syria since mid-March, when the demonstration movement began.

Activists seeking Assad's ouster blamed the deaths on security forces attacking peaceful marchers. There was no word from Syrian authorities. Syria repeatedly has blamed the violence on armed "terrorists," who they say are part of a conspiracy linked to Washington and its regional allies.

Protest rallies erupted Friday across the country, activists said, including in the suburbs of Damascus, the westcentral cities of Homs and Hama, and the northern city of Deir Ezzor near the Iraqi border.

Syria's opposition movement also includes former army soldiers who have switched their loyalty, activists say. Some fear that the Syrian conflict is becoming more militarized and could escalate into a full-fledged insurgency or civil war.

Political violence in Syria has left more than 3,000 dead, according to the United Nations. The government says more than 1,100 security officers have been killed.

Organizers of Friday's protests called for the imposition of a no-fly zone like that used against former Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi. Gadhafi's capture and death last week has provided inspiration for the Syrian protest movement, activists say.

Foreign countries are unlikely to intervene in Syria as they did in Libya. Russia and China, members of the Security Council, have vetoed a U.N. resolution that they feared could have led to military action against their Syrian ally.

Dump up to 10 Inches of Snow in New England. Steve Hoffman had expected to sell a lot of fall fertilizer this weekend at his hardware store in Hebron, Conn., but instead spent Friday moving bags of ice-melting pellets. A storm moving up the East Coast was expected to combine with a cold air mass and dump anywhere from α dusting to about 10 inches of snow today in parts of the Northeast.

U.S. Celebrates Statue of Liberty's 125th Birthday

NEW YORK • Scores of people waved tiny flags after taking the oath of U.S. citizenship at the foot of the Statue of Liberty on Friday, 125 years after the iconic American symbol welcoming visitors and immigrants was dedicated. "We are a nation of diverse people," Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar said during the naturalization ceremony on Liberty Island. "And that diversity strengthens our nation." The new Americans, 125 immigrants from 46 countries, pledged to renounce foreign power, then posed for photos with their citizenship certificates. The birthday party was to conclude later Friday with a fireworks display choreographed to patriotic music. - Associated Press

U.S. Scales Back Checks Along Northern Border

The routine bus, train and airport searches had long been criticized by immigrant rights groups as racial profiling and violating travelers' civil liberties.

BY GENE JOHNSON

Associated Press

SEATTLE • The U.S. Border Patrol has quietly stopped its controversial practice of routinely searching buses, trains and airports for illegal immigrants at transportation hubs along the northern border and in the nation's interior, preventing agents from using what had long been an effective tool for tracking down people here illegally, The Associated Press has learned.

Current and former Border Patrol agents said field offices around the country began receiving the order last month - soon after the Obama administration announced that to ease an overburdened immigration system, it would allow many illegal immigrants to remain in the country while it focuses on deporting those who have committed crimes.

The routine bus, train and airport checks typically involved agents milling about and questioning people who appeared suspicious, and had long been criticized by immigrant rights groups. Critics said the tactic amounted to racial profiling and violated travelers' civil lib-

But agents said it was an effective way to catch unlawful immigrants, including smugglers and possible terrorists, who had evaded detection at the border, as well as people who had overstayed their visas. Often, those who evade initial detection head quickly for the nearest public transportation in hopes of reaching other parts of the country.

Halting the practice has baffled the agents, especially in some stations along the northern border - from Bellingham, Wash., to Houlton, Maine where the so-called "transportation checks" have been the bulk of their everyday duties. The Border Patrol is authorized to check vehicles within 100 miles of the border.

The order has not been made public, but two agents described it to the AP on condition of anonymity because the government does not authorize them to speak to the media. The union that represents Border Patrol agents planned to issue a news release about the change Monday.

Terrorist Attack Targets U.S. Embassy in Bosnia

One police officer guarding the building is wounded before police arrest gunman.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina • A man armed with hand grenades and an automatic weapon opened fire outside the U.S. Embassy in Bosnia Friday in what authorities called a terrorist attack. A policeman and the gunman were wounded, but the embassy said none of its employees was hurt.

Sarajevo Mayor Alija Behmen said the gunman "got off a tram with a Kalashnikov and started shooting at the American Embassy." Witnesses told Bosnian television that the man urged pedestrians to move away, saying he was targeting only the embassy.

He wore a beard and was dressed in an outfit with short pants that reveal his ankles - typical for followers of the conservative Wahhabi branch of Islam.

One police officer guarding the building was wounded before police surrounded the gunman. After a 30-minute standoff, the sound of a single shot echoed and AP video showed the shooter slump to the ground.

Police arrested the wounded man and took him away in an ambulance as pedestrians cowered behind buildings and vehicles. Hospital spokeswoman Biljana Jandric told The AP the gunman had a minor wound to his leg, and would spend the night at the hospital before being released into police custody.

State Prosecutor Dubravko Campara identified the shooter as Mevlid Jasarevic, from Novi Pazar, the administrative capital of the southern Serbian region of Sandzak, who was tried in Austria for robbery in 2005.

CHICAGO • Offer apples to trick-ortreaters and risk having your house get egged - maybe even by your own kids.

But dentists and dietitians say you can still make Halloween reasonably healthy for little devils and witches without resorting to draconian tactics, like no candy.

"This is such a big adventure for them - let them have it, obviously with some caveats," said Dr. Rhea Haugseth, a dentist in Marietta, Ga., who's president of the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry

Dog Survives Gas Chamber in Alabama

YouTube Launching New Video Channels

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • YouTube is making a bold step into original programming in an entertainment venture with some 100 content creators, from Madonna to The Wall Street Journal.

The Google Inc.-owned video site said Friday that it's launching more than 100 new video channels. The partners include an array of Hollywood production companies, celebrities and new media groups that will produce mainly nicheoriented videos.

YouTube is shelling out $100 million to producers, according to people familiar with the matter, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The money is an advance on advertising money the videos will bring in, and Google will recoup its portion first before splitting the proceeds. Advances are as high as $5 million per channel, said another person familiar with the arrangement, also speaking on condition of anonymity.

Neither person was authorized to comment publicly on the matter.

Google declined to offer financial details of the deals, but said the majority of revenue will go to partners.

Participants include Madonna, former NBA star Shaquille O'Neal, comedian Amy Poehler, actor Ashton Kutcher, "Office" star Rainn Wilson, spiritual doctor Deepak Chopra and "Modern Family" actress Sofia Vergara. Most are creating channels through their production companies. Madonna is a partner with the dance channel DanceOn, while O'Neal plans the Comedy Shaq Network.

Lionsgate is presenting a fitness channel, and other channels will be launched by news satire the Onion, professional wrestling's WWE, online magazine Slate and news service Thomson Reuters.

The channels will roll out beginning this month, though most will premiere next year. YouTube says the channels will add 25 hours of new original content daily, with dozens of Web series debuting at scheduled

Internal NYPD Probe Results in 16 Arrests

BY TOM HAYS and COLLEEN LONG

Associated Press

NEW YORK • An anonymous tip about a crooked cop grew during the past three years into a sweeping internal corruption probe on the under-the-table practice of fixing tickets, with dozens of wiretaps, 10,000 intercepted calls and an officer undercover as a barber in a sting, authorities said. Thirteen New York Police Department officers, two sergeants and a lieutenant were slapped with criminal charges Friday, just three days after the embarrassing arrests of five officers in a separate gun-running probe.

Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said it was "difficult" to have to announce for the second time in a week that his officers had been arrested for misconduct.

"These misdeeds tarnish the good name and reputation of the vast majority of police officers who perform their duties honestly," he

Kelly said the probe included 300 cases that are being handled internally. Bronx District Attorney Robert Johnson said he hoped the criminal charges send a message that corruption would not be tolerated. The city lost about $2 million in killed-off tickets, he

The majority of the arrested are officials with the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, arguably the most powerful law enforcement union in the nation, with 23,000 members. Union leaders say the practice of making a ticket disappear for a friend or family member was not only sanctioned, it was condoned at the highest levels of the nation's biggest police department.

Union President Patrick Lynch vowed that when the dust settled, they'd prove it.

"Taking care of your family, taking care of your friends is not a crime," he said. "To take a courtesy and turn it into a crime is wrong?

Hundreds of union members went to support the officers, some in suits, others dressed in jeans and sweat shirts, clogging the street near the Bronx courthouse, filling the hallways and applauding in court after the Stevenson said the gas chamber is a stainless-steel box that's roughly the size of a pickup truck bed, and dogs are put into the chamber about seven or eight at a time. A computer-controlled pump slowly feeds carbon monoxide into the chamber once it's sealed, and an operator presses a button.

"It sort of rocks them to sleep slowly. It's like the cases you hear about where people are overcome by carbon monoxide in their home and just never wake up," he said.

A new operator placed the dog into the chamber with other animals and machine, started the Stevenson said.

Variables that could allow a dog to survive such a gassing include the number of animals placed in the chamber, the concentration of carbon monoxide, whether the chamber is airtight or gas is leaking out and the health of the animal, with young, healthy animals having the best chance for survival, said Julie Morris, senior vice president of community outreach for the ASPCA.

Since carbon monoxide is heavier than air, it sinks, so a tall dog, or one that climbed to the top of a pile, would have a better chance of surviving, she said.

Vinny Grosso, the Florence animal shelter's director, said Daniel was named by workers after the biblical figure who survived the lions' den.

"In the last eight years, I've only seen it one other time. It's just very, very rare," Grosso said, adding that the shelter's policy calls for officials to find surviving animals a new home.

He said Daniel showed up in one of the shelter's "drop box" cages where people can drop off animals anonymously. "It was an unwanted dog.

... We didn't have a history on him," he said.

Halloween

"Halloween is the one day of the year where we kids just kind of break out and overload on candy," he said.

To help prevent that kind of gorging, try to give children a healthy, filling meal before trick-or-treating, says Bethany Thayer, a spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association who works at the Henry Ford Health System in De-Procrastinators, take heart. Thayer also recommends waiting until Halloween day before buying candy, so no one is tempted to indulge beforehand.

"I know people who have to go back to the store because they've completely gone through their candy" before Halloween, she said.

bathe teeth in a long sugary

Also, having kids brush their teeth before trick-ortreating helps reduce plaque and bacteria, which interact with sugar to produce tooth-decaying acid, Haugseth said. Kids should also brush right after eating candy, she said.

Ronni Litz Julien, a Miami nutritionist whose patients include overweight and obese kids, says another trick for parents is to ask kids not to dip into their loot bags until they bring it all home. That's for safety, so parents can toss any suspicious-looking candy, but it also can prevent an "eating frenzy."

She suggests parents help sort through the loot, have kids select their 10 favorite pieces, and give the rest away. Offer the choice of eating all 10 pieces at once, or over 10 days. That gives them a sense of control, without feeling short-

"You can't deprive them. It's Halloween, for God's sake," she said. President Barack Obama joked this week on "The Tonight Show" that he'd warned his health-promoting wife that the White House would get egged if she gave trick-or-treaters fresh fruit and raisins instead of candy. During festivities on Saturday, the Obamas will hand out White House M&Ms, cookies and dried fruit as they did the past two years. Dr. Janet Silverstein, a Gainesville, Fla. pediatrician and member of the American Academy of Pediatrics' nutrition committee, says she doesn't give out candy, offering fruit or pencils instead; so far her house is unscathed.

When her own children were young, Silverstein would buy their candy for a nickel a piece. She recommends that to her patients' parents, too - though not tion – she used to eat her kids' candy.

In some places, kids willing to give up their candy can make more than a nickel. About 1,500 dentists across the country have agreed this year to participate in a Halloween candy buyback organized by Operation Gratitude. The California-based group periodically sends care packages to U.S. troops overseas. Some dentists pay kids $1 per pound of Halloween candy; last year, the program brought in 250,000 pounds of candy, said Carolyn Blashek, founder of the Van Nuys, Calif.-based group.

Going Off-the-cuff, Romney Does Himself Few Favors

BY PHILIP ELLIOTT

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney may need a censor. For himself.

In the last few weeks in Nevada, the man who owns several homes told the state hit tough by the housing crisis: "Don't try and stop the foreclosure process. Let it run its course and hit the bot-

At one point in Iowa, earlier this year, the former venture capitalist uttered, "Corporations are people," with the country in the midst of a debate over Wall Street vs. Main Street. At an event in economically suffering Florida, the retiree – who is a multimillionaire many times over — told out-of-work voters, "I'm also unemployed."

Over the past year, the Republican presidential candidate has amassed a collection of off-the-cuff comments that expose his vulnerabilities and, taken together, cast him as out-of-touch with Americans who face staggering unemployment, widespread foreclosures and a dire outlook on the economy.

So far, the foot-in-mouth remarks haven't seemed to affect his standing in the nomination race.

Romney has run a far more cautious and disciplined campaign than his losing bid of four years ago. He's kept the focus on his core message: He's the strongest candidate able to beat President Barack Obama on the biggest issue of the campaign, the economy. He still enjoys leading positions in public opinion polls in early primary states and across the nation. Few, if any, of the other Republicans in the race have turned his remarks against Texas Gov. Rick Perry, Romney's chief rival with the money to prove it, is all but certain to try. Perry has already started suggesting that Romney lives a life of privilege while he comes from humble roots. In an interview Friday with CNN, another GOP candidate, former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman, painted Romney as "a perfectly lubricated weather vane on the important issues of the day?"

And Romney's eyebrow-raising comments are tailormade for critical TV ads. Look no further than the Democratic Party and Obama's advisers for proof of Each time Romney says something that makes even his closest aides grimace, Democrats quickly put together a Web video highlighting the remark - a preview of certain lines of attack come the general election should the former Massachusetts governor win the nomination.

"Mitt Romney's message to Arizona? You're on your own," says a new ad by the Democratic National Committee that jumps on Romney's foreclosure remarks.

Romney's team publicly dismisses their boss's occasional loose lips, dismissing them as inconsequential to voters focused on an unemployment rate hovering around 9 percent.

"It's a long campaign and at the end of the day people are going to judge Gov. Romney and his ability to take on President Obama over jobs and the economy. And certainly there will be a lot of back and forth as the campaign progresses," said Russ Schriefer, a Romney strate-

"This election will be decided on big issues because the issues are so big and so important," Schriefer said. "And not on a gaffe or a mistake or a moment, any particularly moment. It's more about the big moments and who voters see and being able to turn the economy around."

It usually takes more than one gaffe or one mistake to undo a campaign. And other candidates have made their own potentially problematic comments.

Take, for instance, Herman Cain's assertion that the Wall Street protesters are in the streets to distract from Obama's record: "If you don't have a job and you're not rich, blame yourself." Or Perry's suggestion that Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke is "almost treasonous": "If this guy prints more money between now and the election, I don't know what y'all would do to him in Iowa, but we would treat him pretty ugly down in Texas." Or former House Speaker Newt Gingrich explaining his infidelity: "There's no question at times of my life, partially driven by how passionately I felt about this country, that I worked far too hard and things happened in my life that were not appropriate?'

But a string of unforced errors, when combined, can reinforce unfavorable perceptions of the candidate, as Romney aides privately acknowledge. And that's the trouble Romney faces just as John Kerry damaged himself when he racked up a series of equivocating comments on a series of issues while the Democratic nominee in 2004.

President George W. Bush's re-election campaign used Kerry's waffling - conflicts between his votes and his quotes — to cast him as an opportunist who would shift his positions to win votes.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Mixed After Thursday Rally

NEW YORK (AP) • A quiet day on Wall Street ended Friday with major stock indexes little changed after a big rally the day before. The Dow Jones industrial average closed out its fifth week of gains, its longest winning streak since January.

The Dow edged up 23 points, or 0.2 percent, to finish at 12,231.11. Stock indexes jumped more than 3 percent Thursday after European leaders unveiled a plan to expand their regional bailout fund and take other steps to contain the debt crisis in Greece.

The S&P 500 rose less than a point to 1,285.09. The Nasdaq composite fell 1.48, or 0.1 percent, to 2,737.15.

White House to Review Energy Department Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) • The White House is ordering a review of loan guarantees made by the Energy Department after a California solar company that got a half-billiondollar federal loan went bankrupt.

Congressional Republicans have been investigating the bankruptcy of Solyndra Inc. amid revelations that federal officials were warned it had problems but nonetheless continued to support it. The House Energy and Commerce Committee could vote as early next week to subpoena White House records related to the loan.

White House chief of staff Bill Daley says the new independent review will assess the condition of other loan guarantees made by the Energy Department. There are more than two dozen of these to a variety of clean energy Goodyear posts 3Q profit, revenue up 22 percent • The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. posted a profit for the third quarter on a 22 percent rise in revenue Friday as its strategy of promoting high-end tires paid off even as the number of tires it sold was unchanged. Goodyear reported net income of $161 million, or 60 cents per share, in the three months ended Sept. 30.

Incomes Stall as Interest on Savings Dwindles

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Americans' incomes have stagnated for three straight months. Yet they boosted their spending in September 0.6 percent – three times the increase in August.

Under normal circumstances, that would be a troubling sign for the econo-

But a closer look at Friday's report from the Commerce Department on September income and spending suggests another possibility: Many people are cutting their savings because the interest they are earning has become nearly worth-

Consumers earned only 0.1 percent last month. And after adjusting for inflation, their after-tax incomes fell 0.1 percent last month - the third straight monthly de-

But the decline was largely because of a 1.4 percent drop in interest income last month, the third sharp monthly drop. Wages and salaries increased 0.3 percent in September.

Paul Ashworth, chief U.S. economist at Capital Economics, said the report could signal that there is a transfer of income from those who saved to those with high debts, which could result in more spending by consumers.

"The sharp decline in the saving rate doesn't concern us quite as much as it did, since it is possible that it partly reflects a sharp decline in debt servicing costs," Ashworth said.

Consumer spending is closely watched because it accounts for 70 percent of economic activity. A sharp rise in spending over the summer helped fuel annual growth of 2.5 percent in the July-September quarter, the best quarterly expansion in a

Still, the economy would have to grow at nearly double the third-quarter pace to make a dent in the unemployment rate, which has stayed near 9 percent since the recession officially ended more than two years ago.

In recent months, job growth has stagnated. Employers have added an average of only 72,000 jobs per month in the past five months. That's far below the 100,000 per month needed to keep up with population growth. And it's down from an average of 180,000 in the first four months of this year.

Employers added only 103,000 jobs in September, and the unemployment rate remained 9.1 percent for a third straight month.

The government releases the October employment report on Nov. 4.

And spending could tumble next year if Congress fails to extend a Social Security tax cut, which gave most Americans an extra $1,000 to $2,000 this year, or longterm unemployment benefits. Both expire at the end of the year.

The spending increases in September included a 2.2 percent jump in purchases of durable goods, reflecting strong car sales during the month. Sales of nondurable goods such as clothing were also up a solid 1.1 percent while purchases of services such as rent and utility payments edged up 0.2 percent.

Inflation, as measured by a price gauge tied to consumer spending, edged up 0.2 percent in September. But core inflation, which excludes food and energy, showed no gain at all. That left core inflation rising at a moderate 1.6 percent over the last 12 months.

And a special 1 trillioneuro bailout fund was boosted sharply — but through the use of creative finance that in part depends on support from larger emerging markets such as China and And the bailout fund's exact size can't be calculated until the Greek bond swap terms are finalized. "This is an approximate value," said Angela Merkel, the German chancellor, according to newswire reports. "We don't know vet how this works." Still, not unlike the U.S. budget impasse over the summer, the 27-member EU did enough to avert immediate disaster and put off the day of reckoning. But it also left enough undone that there's likely to be drama when President Barack Obama and other leaders of the 20 most-industrialized nations gather next week for a G-20 meeting in Cannes, France.

Despite all the reservations voiced by experts, U.S. investors were elated. The Dow Jones Industrial Average soared from the opening bell, finishing up 339.51 points to 12,208.55. The S&P 500 finished up 42.59 points to 1,284.59, and the NAS-DAQ added 87.96 points to close at 2738.63.

Thursday's stock rally also was fueled in part by new data showing the U.S. economy grew at a 2.5 percent annual rate from June through September. If the rally lasts through Monday, the Dow could mark its best October ever.

However, wild mood swings on Wall Street have become the norm, so whether the relief rally has legs is an open question.

What's clear to experts who follow Europe's economy is this: There's less to the EU compromise than meets the eye.

"I'm totally downbeat;" said Nicolas Veron, a senior economist for the European think tank Bruegel in Brussels. Veron and other experts are particularly unhappy with the European move to require banks to build a big buffer against future losses, but then giving them until June to do so.

"They're sort of admitting you don't have enough capital in the system," Sebastian Mallaby, a senior fellow for economics at the Council on Foreign Relations, said during a conference call with reporters. "You are admitting that for the next eight months, when the markets are in high panic, you don't have enough funds?'

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

"In nature there are neither rewards nor punishments — there are consequences.

— Robert Ingersoll Bob Hamman once won a

U.S. trials by refusing to overruff dummy's small trump with the 10 when the four top trump honors were all still out. Hamman's victim then was Larry Cohen, and it was Cohen's partner, David Berkowitz, who pulled off this similar coup several years later. After South ended in four hearts, West led and continued diamonds, declarer ruffing the second. South next cashed dummy's spade ace, returned to the club ace, and cashed the spade king. Declarer continued with the spade jack, with the nine appearing from West, and had South let the jack run, he would have been heading for home. But with no indication that spades were not breaking evenly, declarer ruffed in dummy with the heart jack.

Berkowitz was wise to discard rather than overruff — the same decision he would have made had dummy ruffed low. South re-entered hand with the heart ace to ruff another spade, and again East discarded. Declarer trumped a club in hand and had reduced to a position with two master spades and two low hearts. East had the two master trumps; West, a small heart. The lead was in declarer's hand, but if he now played a trump, East would draw trump and take the rest. Declarer tried a spade, trumped by Cohen with the seven. With the heart king and queen still to come for East, that spelled one down. Had Berkowitz overruffed dummy at either opportunity, declarer would have regained trump control and made his game.

BID WITH THE ACES

South holds:

North East South 1 🌺 Pass

ANSWER: Your hand is a bare minimum for a takeout double, but you should definitely make that call. There is no reason why this should not be your hand, or that by bidding, you might force the opponents above their safety level. Bidding now is far safer than backing in when the opponents have limited their hands and found a fit.

In 1618, Sir Walter the English courtier, military adventurer and poet, was executed in London.

In 1901, President William McKinley's assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was electrocuted. In 1911, Hungarian-born

In 1923, the Republic of Turkey was proclaimed.

In 1940, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson drew the first number - 158 - in America's first peacetime military draft.

In 1956, during the Suez Canal crisis, Israel invaded Egypt's Sinai Peninsula. "The Huntley-Brinkley Report" premiered as NBC's nightly television newscast.

In 1960, a chartered plane carrying the California Polytechnic State University football team crashed on takeoff from Toledo, Ohio, killing 22 of the 48 people on board.

In 1966, the National Organization for Women was formally organized during a conference in Washington, D.C.

In 1979, on the 50th anniversary of the great stock market crash, antinuclear protesters tried but failed to shut down the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1998, Sen. John Glenn, at age 77, roared back into space aboard the shuttle Discovery, retracing the trail he'd blazed for America's astronauts 36 years earlier.

Ten years ago: The FBI issued a terrorism warning asking Americans and law enforcement to be on the highest alert for possible attacks in the United States and abroad. A gunman killed four people in the French city of Tours. (Suspect Jean-Pierre Roux-Durraffourt was later sentenced to life in prison.)

Five years ago: The board of trustees of Gallaudet University, the nation's premier school for the deaf, voted to revoke the appointment of incoming president Jane Fernandes, who'd been the subject of protests. THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

by David L. Hoyt and Jeff Knurek

Finally, she wants my 15year-old to baby-sit the young cousins. Because we don't think it's right, we have decided that we will attend the wedding ceremony but not the reception. It is not my intention not to share her moment, but I'm afraid my teenagers won't understand why they can't celebrate their aunt's special day. Am I making too much of this?

RSVP UNDECIDED IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR $\mathbf{A}\mathtt{BBY}$ Jeanne Phillips

UNDECIDED: DEAR

Your sister's reason for excluding "children" could be budgetary — or fear that young children could be disruptive. By saying "no children" she is trying to be fair to all the parents. However, if she wants your daughter to baby-sit, she should make the arrangements with your daughter - including offering to pay her for her time — especially if there will be more children than the flower girl and ring bearer in her care.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Adam," and I have been together for three years, and hopefully will be for many more to come. One of the core values he feels strongly about is not drinking, and not associating with others when they drink. I have never gotten drunk, but I do have one or two drinks a month with friends. When I mentioned it to Adam, he became extremely frustrated. Now things have become rocky between us.

I feel like I have done something devastatingly wrong, even though I know I haven't. I can't promise Adam I'll never drink again, but I respect his values enough to keep to the couple of drinks per month and no more. I feel he doesn't trust me now. What should I do? I love Adam and want to make things right, but I won't make a promise I know I can't keep.

- HARDLY A DRUNK IN SEATTLE DEAR HARDLY A

DRUNK: I wish you had told me why your boyfriend is so against being involved with someone who has an occasional drink. Were his parents alcoholics? Is he in recovery? Was he upset because it took three years for you to tell him you have a drink or two a month with your friends, and that's why he "doesn't trust you"?

While you and I may think your boyfriend's attitude is unreasonable, it's clear to me that if you want him, you will have to take "the pledge." And if you can't do that, Adam is not The One for you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a business in a rural community and have two additional employees. We all work together five days a week. It's a small, intimate office and nothing is private. Would it be considered unprofessional if my husband or I greeted each other with a kiss (a peck) when arriving or leaving the office in front of our staff but when no clients are present? I think it's OK, but he doesn't.

- SHOWING AFFECTION IN MISSOURI DEAR SHOWING: I think it's OK, too. But if your husband isn't comfortable with demonstrations of affection in front of the staff, respect HIS feelings on the matter and do not force it.

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

by David L. Hoyt and Jeff Knurek

Finally, she wants my 15year-old to baby-sit the young cousins. Because we don't think it's right, we have decided that we will attend the wedding ceremony but not the reception. It is not my intention not to share her moment, but I'm afraid my teenagers won't understand why they can't celebrate their aunt's special day. Am I making too much of this?

RSVP UNDECIDED IN NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR $\mathbf{A}\mathtt{BBY}$ Jeanne Phillips

UNDECIDED: DEAR

Your sister's reason for excluding "children" could be budgetary — or fear that young children could be disruptive. By saying "no children" she is trying to be fair to all the parents. However, if she wants your daughter to baby-sit, she should make the arrangements with your daughter - including offering to pay her for her time — especially if there will be more children than the flower girl and ring bearer in her care.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Adam," and I have been together for three years, and hopefully will be for many more to come. One of the core values he feels strongly about is not drinking, and not associating with others when they drink. I have never gotten drunk, but I do have one or two drinks a month with friends. When I mentioned it to Adam, he became extremely frustrated. Now things have become rocky between us.

I feel like I have done something devastatingly wrong, even though I know I haven't. I can't promise Adam I'll never drink again, but I respect his values enough to keep to the couple of drinks per month and no more. I feel he doesn't trust me now. What should I do? I love Adam and want to make things right, but I won't make a promise I know I can't keep.

- HARDLY A DRUNK IN SEATTLE DEAR HARDLY A

DRUNK: I wish you had told me why your boyfriend is so against being involved with someone who has an occasional drink. Were his parents alcoholics? Is he in recovery? Was he upset because it took three years for you to tell him you have a drink or two a month with your friends, and that's why he "doesn't trust you"?

While you and I may think your boyfriend's attitude is unreasonable, it's clear to me that if you want him, you will have to take "the pledge." And if you can't do that, Adam is not The One for you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own a business in a rural community and have two additional employees. We all work together five days a week. It's a small, intimate office and nothing is private. Would it be considered unprofessional if my husband or I greeted each other with a kiss (a peck) when arriving or leaving the office in front of our staff but when no clients are present? I think it's OK, but he doesn't.

- SHOWING AFFECTION IN MISSOURI DEAR SHOWING: I think it's OK, too. But if your husband isn't comfortable with demonstrations of affection in front of the staff, respect HIS feelings on the matter and do not force it.

FLYING THE COOP: CARDS WIN

ST. LOUIS • Pushed to the brink, the St. Louis Cardinals saved themselves. A frantic rush to reach the postseason on the final day. A nifty pair of comebacks in the playoffs. Two desperate rallies in Game 6.

Turns out these Cardinals were merely gearing up for a gigantic celebration.

The Cardinals won a remarkable World Series they weren't even supposed to reach, beating the Texas Rangers 6-2 in Game 7 on Friday night with another key hit by hometown star David Freese and six gutty innings from Chris Carpenter.

"This whole ride, this team deserves this," said

Freese, who added the Series MVP award to his trophy as the NL championship MVP. "This organization is top notch.... This is definitely a dream come true," Freese said. "This is why you keep battling.... I'm so glad to be a part of this."

A day after an epic Game 6 that saw them twice within one strike of elimination before winning 10-9 in the 11th inning, the Cardinals captured their 11th World Series crown.

And following a whole fall on the edge, including a surge from 10½ games down in the wild-card race, Tony La Russa's team didn't dare mess with Texas, or any more drama in baseball's first World Series Game 7 since the Angels beat Giants in 2002.

Freese's two-run double tied it in the first and good-luck charm Allen Craig hit a go-ahead homer in the third. Picked by La Russa earlier in the day to start on

Preston Knocks Bruins Out of Playoffs

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

After almost 40 minutes of trading body blows with Twin Falls on Friday night, Preston finally landed the haymaker.

Tate Johnson surged through the Bruin defense, bobbing and weaving his way past the secondary before accelerating away for a 72-yard touchdown run that proved to be the difference, as Preston scored a 28-21 road win in the Class 4A Great Eight playoffs.

The two teams traded scores and stops before Johnson's jaunt, after which the Indians shut Twin Falls down and forced a punt. That proved pivotal as both teams resumed swapping stops after that.

"All it took was one big play for the defense to get fired up and make a big stop," said Johnson, who ended with 117 yards on 12 carries. "We really wanted to prove that we could do it, that we could win a big game on the road."

The two teams met at the same point in the season last year, with Preston beating visiting Twin Falls 52-6.

This one wasn't as one-sided. In fact, it was an utter slugfest for the first 38 minutes of the game. That was when Johnson hit his long run and the Bruins went three-and-out immediately after.

Minico's First Loss is Season-ending

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • The Minico Spartans had four minutes to go 80 yards and keep its season alive.

They only made it 79.

Hillcrest's Blake Phippen intercepted a Minico pass in the end zone to save the Knights' 27-20 victory Friday in the Great 8 round of the Class 4A state playoffs.

"I feel terrible," said Minico senior defensive lineman John Walker. "I can't even comprehend this right now. I came in thinking we were going to win this for sure, but they played with more heart tonight."

The boys from Minidoka County played with plenty of heart, too, but Hillcrest dug deeper in the second half to overcome a 13-point deficit and hand Minico its first loss of the season.

"It's not very easy to go undefeated, ever, no matter who you play," Hillcrest running back J.B. Bateman said of Minico. "They are a very, very good team. They're very tough. They're a strong, powerful team."

Hillcrest got a taste of Minico's strength and power as the Spartans jumped out to a 13-0 lead in the first quarter on a pair of Brady May touchdown runs. Despite an ankle injury to May, Minico's leading rusher on the season, the Spartans racked up 374 yards on the ground.

The Spartans spread the ball around, with four running backs finishing with more than 70 yards.

Atypical Play Results in Bruins' Loss to Skyview

the first round of the 4A state volleyball tournament on Friday at Post Falls High School, the visibly ruffled head man pointed to his club's glaring malady.

"We never got into what we do," Price said. "We tried to play like Skyview."

The rest he put on his own shoul-

"You can blame it on the moment of the game since it's a state tournament, but you have to trust your system and be comfortable with it – that can be my fault. I want to take it off my players' shoulders."

Twin Falls rebounded to beat Sandpoint in the consolation bracket, 26-24, 25-21, 25-17. The Bruins play Rigby in the consolation final today at 3 p.m. MDT.

The District IV champion Bruins went tit-for-tat with the Hawks – the District II runner-up – in the first game and even the latter stages of the next two matches.

Falling in a taut, blow-for-blow game was one thing. Watching a pair of six-point cushions fizzle while failing to protect a late lead was another story.

After a late Skyview surge tripped up the Bruins during the match's onset, Twin Falls saw its first lead squander in the second contest. Twin's 7-2 edge was chipped away, but the two clubs still managed to be in a 23-23 deadlock.

Skyview's 6-foot outside hitter Rochelle Sever came up with a pair of kills to put the Bruins in two-game hole, though.

"We pass low, we set low and try to do things quickly," Price said. "We weren't playing like that, though. We weren't serving aggressively.

In the third game, however, it looked like the Bruins had found their stride and would evade an ensuing sweep.

Twin Falls' 20-14 lead was a product of the Bruins controlling the net, but, in the end, it was Skyview's host of trees that dictated the outcome.

The Hawks didn't take their first lead until Sever broke a 24-24 knot with another thunderous kill. After

Intrigue About Former MSU Coach May Overshadow ISU Battle

POCATELLO • There is a football game scheduled for Saturday afternoon in Bozeman when Idaho State takes on one of the top teams in the nation in Montana State. But the game itself is secondary to the intrigue caused by Mike Kramer's return to the program he brought back from the dead when he took over as Bobcats coach in 2000.

Asked this week about his returning to an area where he is still supported by a large segment of the fan base, he was tight-lipped.

"I think everybody knows

Many believe that Kramer was made the fall guy for the activities that took place and that it's simply impossible for any head coach to know what every one of his players are doing 24/7. The fact that he went 35-26 in his last five years along with those three championships in the conference still resonate with many in the area.

The University of Idaho recruit shook off whatever problems might have been ailing her, leading her team to the opening-round victory at the 1A Division II state volleyball tournament.

"They definitely need to think about how many errors they made," Camas County coach Shelli Schroeder said of her team. "They can't have those many errors against a team like Clark Fork."

The Mushers will take on the Wampus Cats today at 11

The Mushers also received strong efforts from Stephanie Moore, who tallied 12 kills and four service aces, and Carlie Stron, with 19 digs.

As far as the undefeated Mushers go, they are taking it one game at a time. Schroeder stressed that they've adapted to the Goliath role they have in the tournament, pointing out the jeers from the crowd when one bad thing happens to the Mushers.

"They've never had that cocky attitude," Schroeder said. "There is a lot of pressure on these girls; they're 35-0 now. "Think about it: when one bad thing happens, everybody celebrates like it's a game point; when we get something, they expect it to happen."

The Lions seemed to be missing the extra oomph to get them over the hump.

Bulldogs' Big Bang Theory Is to Win Easily

smeyers@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • On a night when District IV teams around the Magic Valley bowed out quietly in the first round of the state playoffs, Kimberly advanced loudly to the Class 3A quarterfinals.

Quarterback Seth Champlin scored four touchdowns, Jade Wadsworth ran for two more and the Bulldogs' defense forced seven Payette turnovers in the 39-22 win.

"It feels good to get a big win especially in the first round and move on," said Wadsworth, who ran for 127 yards on eight carries. "We've just got to take it one week at a time and not look too far ahead."

The Bulldogs (6-3) will travel to Marsh Valley in the next round after Salmon's 29-23 win over American Falls.

Kimberly jumped out to a 12-0 lead at the half and Champlin's 12-yard run in the third quarter pushed the lead to 19. The drive was set up by Payette's fourth fumble of the game.

The Pirates (4-5) moved the ball effectively in the first half behind the running of dynamic tailback Woody Thomas, but twice fumbled the ball in the Kimberly redzone.

"We put some good hits on them and the ball said. "We kind of stress having everybody flow to the ball. Defense is all attitude."

Champlin, Clay Mathews and Zack Funk all picked off Payette quarterback Clint Blackwell in the second half as the Kimberly offense piled up more than 250 yards rushing.

Wadsworth rumbled for scores of 31 and 52 yards and Champlin scored his fourth touchdown of the night on a 26-yard scamper with 8:01 remaining.

"Most of the time it was clicking tonight," Champlin said. "We got the linebackers rolling in different directions with us moving. This is just what we do every week."

Thomas finally put the Pirates on the board with 2:12 remaining in the third quarter and added his second rushing touchdown in the fourth, but he was tossed from the game on their final drive for an unsportsmanlike penalty.

"We prepared as hard as we could, starting last winter and spring with drills," said Jordan Browning, who led Minico with 119 rushing yards and a touchdown. "Coaches did a good job of getting us prepared every day. I don't know, sometimes you just come up short."

Hillcrest's double wing offense rushed for 337 yards, 216 of which came after halftime. While Minico physically dominated in the first half, Hillcrest came out with more fight in the second half.

Kris Sprenger pounded out 97 yards inside, while Caden Neuerburg (196 yards) and Bateman (38 yards) attacked the edges.

"We came out thinking we were beating them hands down and they came out more fired up, they wanted it more," Walker said. "I don't feel like we let up, I feel like they increased their game. They had more fire than we did."

What could have been a big turning point came when Bateman stripped of the ball on the second half's opening kickoff and Minico recovered on the Knights' 28yard line. But a holding penalty, followed by Minico quarterback Shay Chandler tripping over his lineman's foot on a drop back, kept the Spartans from capitalizing. Instead of taking advantage of the opportunity and going up three scores, Minco punted back to Hillcrest, which then marched 93 yards in 10 plays and scored on Kris Sprenger's 37-yard touchdown run.

After a Minico punt,

Hillcrest capped a 12-play drive with Bateman's 3yard scamper untouched around the left end for the go-ahead touchdown.

The Knights' defense forced another Minco punt, setting up Caden Neuerburg's 47-yard touchdown run to go up 27-20, however the point-after attempt sailed wide right.

Minico's final drive began on its own 20. May, Browning and Skye Dansie took turns ripping off chunks of yardage, including a key fourth-and-2 conversion with 49 seconds left at the Hillcrest 14-yard line.

Due to a miscommunication, Minico called its final timeout with nine seconds remaining after achieving first-and-goal at the 1-vard line.

"We told them to call a timeout if we don't get the first down," said Minico coach Tim Perrigot, but the timeout was called anyway.

With no way to stop the clock again, Minico (9-1) dialed up a passing play. Chandler's pass intended for May was picked off by Phippen.

"We felt like we had to throw the ball to get two shots at the end zone," Perrigot said. "We probably could have run the ball there, but if we don't get it in, the game's over. Tough call, and (Phippen) made a great break on the ball. That's a play we've had success with all season, throwing into the flat."

Mistakes Bury BYU, 38-28

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas • TCU quarterback Casey Pachall threw for two touchdowns and the Horned Frogs capitalized on two special teams plays to build a big first-half lead over BYU and then held on for a 38-28 win on Friday night.

The Horned Frogs (6-2) beat BYU (6-3) for the fourth-straight year, although the teams were playing each other in a nonconference game for the first time after facing off as rivals for the last six seasons in the Mountain West Conference. BYU is in its first season as an independent in football, while TCU will join the Big 12 Conference next season after seven seasons in the Pachall completed 13 of 23 passes for 147 yards with the two touchdowns and no interceptions, and the TCU defense forced three turnovers, two inside BYU territory.

BYU had won five in a row and outgained TCU 218-191 vards in the first half, but TCU's defense and special teams helped the Horned Frogs tame the Cougars and shorten the field for four quick drives in the first half.

After Pachall hit a wide-open Skye Dawson for a 48-yard touchdown pass on the second play of the game at Cowboys Stadium, a low, rolling snap to BYU punter Riley Stephenson resulted in an illegal kick and TCU started its second possession with a first-and-goal at BYU's 4-yard line.

Backup quarterback and goal-line run specialist Matt Brown came in on the second play of that drive and scrambled up the middle for a 6-yard touchdown and a 14-0 lead just five minutes into the game.

TCU was leading 14-10 in the second quarter when Greg Burks partially blocked a BYU punt, setting up the Horned Frogs at BYU's 30-yard line. Brown ran for a 2-yard touchdown on the third play of that drive, giving TCU a 21-10 lead. TCU extended its lead to 28-10 after Pachall and Josh Boyce connected on a 33-yard touchdown pass 36 seconds before halftime.

BYU misfired on two scoring opportunities in last six minutes of the first half.

After a 52-yard kickoff return by Cody Hoffman for BYU, the Cougars drove to the TCU 9-yard line, where BYU quarterback Riley Nelson was heavily pressured as he tried to throw into the end zone. Tight end Austin Holt tipped Nelson's pass and TCU linebacker Kenny Cain tiptoed the end line for an interception.

'Ice Cold' UI Seeking Warmth

BY JOSH WRIGHT

For the Times-News

MOSCOW • The Idaho football team hasn't won since Sept. 10, and even that victory – against lower-tier North Dakota - is of little consequence at this

But while the 1-6 Vandals have been "as cold as the damn ice cubes in a freezer," as coach Robb Akey put it, the rest of the Western Athletic Conference hasn't been turning heads either.

Only Nevada, at 4-3 and 2-0, has yet to lose a conference game. And Hawaii the Vandals' opponent today at 3 p.m. in the Kibbie Dome – is the only other WAC team above .500 through eight weeks of the season.

The conference's parity or ineptness, depending on one's point of view - is just another reason why Akey remains optimistic that Idaho's season can still been consistent: "Maybe you're getting tired of hearing me say this, but we are so close to being right there."

Akey closed practice to the media and public this week and didn't make his players available to reporters for the first time this year. The sole reason, he said, was so the Vandals could focus on prepping for high-powered Hawaii (4-3, 2-1) rather than relive what happened at NMSU two weeks ago.

The Warriors, led by dual-threat quarterback Bryant Moniz, have the eighth-best passing attack in the nation (328 yards per game). UH coach Greg Mc-Mackin said Moniz is "toward the top" of the list of all-time Hawaii quarterbacks.

"He showed he could throw last year and this year," McMackin said. "I think he's the most mobile ... quarterback we've had. He can make a lot of yards with his feet. He saves us a lot of sacks just with his mobility."

ing."

This marked the ninth straight time the home team had won Game 7 in the World Series. The wild-card Cardinals held that advantage over the AL West champions because the NL won the All-Star game — Texas could blame that on their own pitcher, C.J. Wilson, who took the loss in July.

The Rangers, meanwhile, will spend the whole winter wondering how it all got away. Texas might dwell on it forever, in fact, at least until Nolan Ryan & Co. can reverse a World Series slide that started with last year's five-game wipeout against San Francis-

Texas had not lost consecutive games since last August. These two defeats at Busch Stadium cost manager Ron Washington and the Rangers a chance to win their first title in the franchise's 51-year history.

"I just told them they're champions, which I believe," Washington said. "Someone has to lose and the Cardinals didit.... They were the better team. They are the world champions. All we can do is come back next year and commit ourselves to it, like they did this year."

A year full of inspiring rallies and epic collapses was encapsulated in Game 6. Freese was the star, with a tying triple in the ninth and a winning home run in the 11th. His two RBIs in the clincher gave him a post-season record 21.

The Cardinals won their first championship since 2006, and gave La Russa his third World Series title. They got there by beating Philadelphia in the first round of the NL playoffs, capped by Carpenter outdueling Roy Halladay 1-0 in the deciding Game 5, and then topping Milwaukee in the NL championship

By the time Yadier Molina drew a bases-loaded walk from starter Matt Harrison and Rafael Furcal was hit by a pitch from Wilson in relief, the crowd began to sense a championship was near.

The Cardinals improved to 8-3 in Game 7s of the Series, more wins than any other club. Yet fans here know their history well, and were aware this game could go either way — Dizzy Dean and the Gas House Gang won 11-0 in 1934, but Whitey Herzog and his Cardinals lost 11-0 in 1985.

If the Cards were nervous before taking the field, it didn't show.

"We were all in the clubhouse and we were a loose bunch of guys," Motte said. "We were in there hanging out, dancing around, had music playing. We were all like that's the way we win and that's how we play the best and we came out we were able to do it today. It's just amazing."

On this evening, all the stars aligned for St. Louis.

Starting in place of injured Matt Holliday, Craig hit his third homer of the Series and made a leaping catch at the top of the left field wall. Molina made another strong throw to nail a stray runner. And Carpenter steeled himself to pitch into the seventh, every bit an

Ketchum Faces Potential Council Shakeup

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

This is an election for Ketchum that could go down in the history books as a shakeup.

The Nov. 8 election is unusually complex and has a twist: a proposed change in government for voters.

Voters will decide if they want to switch from a strong mayor-council form of government to a councilmanager form.

Because that's on the ballot, all five council seats are up for election. If the government change passes, the top five vote-getters will be seated to four-year terms on the council and pick a mayor. If voters stick with the existing form of government, the election for candidates will be null.

Then, a special election would happen in May for just two seats that are otherwise up for election, those held by Councilmen Larry Helzel and Curtis Kemp.

In all, 13 candidates hope to gain election to what would be a new council. Efforts to reach candidates Bill White, Bill Marshall and Neil Morrow were unsuc-

- Garcia says he wants to get another power line into the valley to avoid major blackouts.
- He also says the regional airport effort in Blaine County needs some resolution.
- Garcia says the city needs more affordable housing that matches what people earn.

In his words: "The most important thing about this election, as far as I'm concerned, is people should vote for the council-manager system. It's more important than the personalities involved."

In his words: "We're a community that is unable to sustain itself. We've lost 11 percent of our population in the last census. Our sales tax collections have dropped over 30 percent, so we have to be innovative and we have to find new ways to sustain our communities."

Larry Helzel

Government experience: Ketchum councilman since 2008, running for second term.

Three reasons to vote for Helzel:

- Helzel says he brings managerial skills from the private sector, and that the existing council has a good mix of different
- He says he appreciates the value of collaboration, which he's learned from the council and his nonprofit work on the Sun Valley Center for the Arts board.

• He says he's not a local business owner, which lets him speak his mind without fear of retribution. In his words: "I am not afraid to speak my mind as to what is best. I'm not beholden to a potential customer where I'm worried that if I took a stand it would hurt my busi-

Bob Kesting

None Three reasons to vote for

- Kesting: • Kesting says Ketchum can be a prosperous destination resort that embraces visitors and tourists.
- He says Ketchum should be a place that's eager to work with developers and form relationships that benefit the economy.
- Kesting says Ketchum's city government and community should work together to support local businesses and emphasize buying locally.

In his words: "I have a vision that Ketchum can, once again, be a thriving destination resort. It is to this end that I would use all of my abilities."
