Why Are So Many Idaho Companies Skirting a Hiring Law?

BY JESSIE L. BONNER Associated Press

BOISE • Most Idaho employers don't comply with a law requiring them to report new hires to the state Department of Labor within 20 days, making it harder for officials to track things like overpaid unemployment benefits and deadbeat parents who owe child support.

Only about 30 percent of employers comply with the 1997 state law that was passed to help Idaho better identify employees who owe child support so their wages can be garnished, the Labor Department said in a statement Tuesday.

The law also helps the state track cases where people keep collecting unemployment benefits after returning to work.

The employers that do comply with the law are among Idaho's largest, accounting for about twothirds of the state's total workforce. The Labor Department is working to boost compliance among the rest of the state's employers as part of a long-term plan to crack down on unemployment benefit fraud and overpayments.

A federal audit in September found that Idaho improperly doled out about $82 million in unemployment benefits during a three-year period.

The report from the U.S. Department of Labor detailed improper payments by states across the country and was based on a sample of claims. It found more than 9 percent of Idaho's payments were in error during the three-year period that ended June

Idaho's Economy Slow to Recover

BY BEN BOTKIN

bbotkin@magicvalley.com

Idaho's 2-year-old economic recovery is like a toddler who's old enough to walk, but slow to take confident, firm steps that show signs of growth.

Idaho's economic forecast, released Tuesday by the Idaho Division of Financial Management, shows that the state's recovery from the recession is advancing slower than originally anticipated. The report also notes the increased chance of the economy slipping into another recession, up from 25 percent in July to 40 percent now.

"The economic recovery had its second anniversary this summer," Derek Santos, the state's chief economist, wrote in the report. "Instead of being a milestone to celebrate what has been achieved, it served as a reminder of how much more is to be accomplished. The economy should be further along the road to recovery than it is."

Jan Roeser, a regional economist for the Idaho Department of Labor, said the south-central region of the state is better positioned for a recovery compared to the state as a whole.

For example, the area's manufacturing — much of it agricultural in nature — is not as badly hurt as the Treasure Valley's, she said.

Highlights From the Economic Report

SLOW GROWTH: Idaho nonfarm jobs were projected to grow at 2.2 percent annually, but is currently at just 1.9 percent growth. Statewide, the 648,515 jobs projected for 2010 are down by 8,000 jobs compared to the last forecast.

HOUSING • The hard-hit housing market also took a hit in the latest forecast, which lowered its projection for starts in 2012 by 700 housing units. The forecast also lowered its expectations by 1,600 fewer units in 2013. For 2012, that translates into a 13.3 percent growth in housing starts instead of 40 percent.

BofA SCRAPS UNPOPULAR $5 DEBIT FEE

NEW YORK • Bank of America Corp. is scrapping its plan to charge a $5 monthly fee for debit card purchases after outraged customers threatened an exodus. The about-face comes as customers across the country petitioned the bank and mobilized to close their accounts in favor of credit unions and community banks. The outcry prompted other major banks, including JPMorgan Chase & Co. and Wells Fargo & Co., to cancel trial tests of their own debit card fees. Read more on Nation & World 4.

Buhl Man Sentenced for Starting Auger Falls Wildfire

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Auger Falls Park is looking a little bit better these days.

In July last year, 400 acres of the park burned in the Auger Falls Fire, which also threatened Twin Falls homes when it crawled up the south rim of the Snake River Canyon.

On Tuesday, as a greener Auger Falls Park continued its recovery with reseeded plants, the man who accidentally started the fire by throwing out a lit cigarette butt was punished in a Twin Falls courtroom.

Don Garibaldi, 55, was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail, but had 82 days of that suspended and will serve the remaining eight as community service. Please see SENTENCED, A2

Judge calls Jeremiah Bennett emotionless, defiant during sentencing for a home invasion that terrorized a Dietrich couple.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

SHOSHONE • A Lincoln County courtroom witnessed the full spectrum of emotion Tuesday morning, as the victims of a home invasion robbery confronted one of their tormentors.

They spoke sometimes with anger, sometimes with pity as they talked about the morning four strangers breached the safety of their country home.

Jeremiah Bennett, one of four accused of robbing a Dietrich couple at gunpoint, simply sat and listened. David Conner addressed him directly.

"Do you remember, Jeremiah, the night you came into my house, what you said to me when you had me down on the floor with a shotgun in my face?" Conner asked. "You said, 'Who the hell do you think you are, coming after me with a shotgun?' Well, I'm asking you, who the hell do you think you are? The Toothpaste That Taught Me ESL Empathy henever I interview someone who doesn't speak English, I acknowledge the use of an interpreter in the article. And nearly every time the phrase "said through an interpreter" appears in an article, I get phone calls and e-mails.

The gist of the messages: Why don't they learn English?

The problem with that, of course, is the assumption that all non-English speakers are not trying, or are lazy, or are stupid. I've been on the other end of this when studying in Japan. I had taken years of language classes in high school and college and studied for hours a week, flipping flashcards on the bus and repeating grammar rules until I could recite them in my sleep.

Halfway through my college semester in Nagasaki, I thought I had a solid grasp on Japanese. But every so often, I got cruel reminders of how hard it is to learn another language. A poorly worded request to a stylist got me a haircut way shorter than I wanted, and a miscommunication with a bus driver sent me halfway across the city in the wrong direction.

Another time, I forgot the word for "toothpaste" at the store, and I couldn't find the product in the aisles. I pantomimed brushing my teeth, and the cashier pointed me toward a product display decorated with shiny teeth.

Another American student had warned me that Japanese toothpaste tastes weird, but I wasn't prepared for the nasty medicinal flavor. Still, I soldiered on, using the awful stuff for a month and following up with a good dose of minty mouthwash.

It stopped when a Japanese friend spent the night and asked to borrow my toothpaste. When I handed her the tube, I mentioned how I was still getting used to the flavor. She read the label. "That's because this is gum medicine, Mel," she said.

By the end of my semester, I could hold a comfortable conversation in Japanese (and say a lot of cuss words). But I still needed interpreters at the hospital and government offices you know, the important places where a miscommunication could get me deported or overmedicated.

Four years later, I sometimes get frustrated when I can't have an easy conversation with sources. But then I remember the sheepish shrug-and-grin - the universal "I don't know what you're saying" gesture - and recall that awful toothpaste, and I can empathize again.

"We have the commodities right here," she said. "A lot of the commodities have to be manufactured right here."

Blaine County's housing market is one hard-hit sector with ramifications on nearby areas. For example, Roeser said, less disposable income means people aren't traveling up to part-time homes in Sun Valley as often, affecting landscapers from Gooding County who would travel north to work for clients.

"That was a feeder market for a lot of people in other counties," she said.

my face, terrorizing my wife, tearing my house up, stealing all my property, threatening to kill us."

For these brazen actions, Bennett could spend the rest of his life in prison. During his sentencing in 5th District Court in Shoshone, Judge John Butler gave him a minimum of 20 years in state prison.

Bennett had pleaded guilty to three felonies second-degree kidnapping, burglary and robbery – on Oct. 11. He will serve 20 to 25 years for the kidnapping conviction, 10 years for burglary and 20 years to life for robbery. These terms will run concurrently, meaning Bennett will do 20 years before becoming eligible for parole.

Bennett, 27, along with co-defendants Jamie Taylor, 30, Gabriel Baker 30, and Aaron Donabedian, 22, was accused of breaking into the Dietrich home of David and Colleen Conner during the early morning hours of March 9. The foursome allegedly threatened the Conners with guns while they tore through the house, looking for items to trade or sell for drug money, Lincoln County Prosecutor E. Scott Paul said at the hearing.

Paul called the events of that early March morning "like 'In Cold Blood' but without the murder."

Colleen Carter, David's wife, told Bennett she had talked with people who had known him before he became addicted to drugs and said she would have welcomed that person into her home.

"What bothers me more is that you never had an opportunity to come in and be welcome in our home," she said. "The opportunity you took was the one that destroyed our home. I'm really sorry for you."

Bennett's father, Don, asked to address the court and talked through tears. He didn't make excuses for Jeremiah but said he should pay for his crimes.

An Eye on the Land

Rural Mini-Cassia landowners whose property may be targeted as the site of a potential new airport are concerned about the project's effects.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Jed Wayment sat in his pickup Tuesday, looking across his dairy and the surrounding fields nestled into the foothills southeast of Burley.

Three weeks ago, he was unaware that his property was part of one of four areas under scrutiny as a potential site for Burley's proposed new airport. After two prior attempts failed, Burley officials are seeking out a potential location for an airport that would replace the aging J.R. "Jack" Simplot Airport.

Selection of a site is the first step in a multiyear process to build a new airport. A site is expected to be approved by the Burley City Council in April.

Wayment attended an Oct. 20 landowners meeting and said the airport siting committee plans to have its choices narrowed to two by December.

"My objective is not to take the target off my back and put it on someone else's back, but this literally would wipe me out," Wayment said Tuesday after touring his property under consideration for the site.

While owners of property selected as a new airport site would negotiate land sales with the city, those unwilling to sell could ultimately be subject to having their land seized under state eminent domain laws. They'd still be paid fairmarket value for the property, but the land would be condemned for public use.

While such a move is likely years from becoming possible, it came up during the meeting with Burley officials, Wayment said.

"I go in to the meeting to find out what they are talking about and they use the words 'eminent domain," Wayment said. "I'm in shock. I'm stunned they would even make that threat."

City of Burley Administrator Mark Mitton wasn't available for comment Tuesday.

If Wayment's land is chosen, the airport would run diagonally across his ground, taking three of his irrigation pivots out of use. The land is currently used to keep feed costs at his dairy under control, Wayment said, and is a vital part of the 2,000-animal dairy's waste management plan. Losing the property would also put the dairy in violation of Idaho State Department of Agriculture requirements for confined-animal feeding operations, Wayment said.

TIMES-NEWS

"There is no land out here for sale," said neighbor Treg Searle, whose family owns land under consideration by the airport committee. The Searles own a 400-animal dairy and surrounding support land.

Wayment said an airport could affect 60 percent of his land and cut up his farming operation.

"How would you irrigate that? It would set us back 30 years," Wayment said.

Brent McCall, who owns property north of Interstate 84 near Kasota Road, said he wasn't notified that his land was under consideration for the project until less than a week before the first landowners meeting in Octo-

"I think it is poor stewardship of the land because all the sites are prime farm ground and the one chosen will be gone forever," McCall said.

McCall said the potential impact of an airport on his farming operation would be minimal compared to that of some of his neighbors.

"It affects us, but I really feel for them too," McCall said.

He must also pay approximately $53,000 in restitution for a misdemeanor charge of damage to forage on public lands from throwing away or leaving lighted substances. The Buhl man pleaded guilty to the charge in August, when the state dropped two additional charges of damage to forage.

Now, Twin Falls officials plan to eventually improve different areas of the park as a result of the fire, said Dennis Bowyer, the city's parks and recreation director.

Bowyer said the fire helped bring to light the upgrades the park desperately needed. City engineers are working to widen the park's entrance into a two-lane road and expand the parking lot to hold more cars.

"We've also been able to clean more over there," Bowyer said. "People used to use it as dump, but we're working to keep the park pristine and nice."

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management helped oversee the reseeding project that was conducted by volunteers and city workers. The BLM has since transferred 161 acres of federal land to the city for the park, but will help advise future reseeding projects.

the court and to the Conners, who went through this horrible thing that I can't imagine," Don Bennett said. "If someone had done it to me, I would have wanted them killed or something."

Bennett sat silently through the hearing, showing little emotion as he listened to the Conners and only a little when hearing his father's words. Bennett only said he couldn't take back what had already happened, but never said he was sorry. Butler commented on the lack of emotion, saying Bennett showed only defiance and pride through the numerous hearings since his April arrest.

"There was only one or two times I've seen you show emotion," Butler said. "There was no emotion when Mr. and Mrs. Conner spoke."

Upon entering the judgment, Butler also ordered a $5,000 fine. Restitution will be decided at a later date.

the state Labor Department couldn't validate they met the state's job search requirements.

The federal agency, however, has acknowledged that the sample sizes used to compile the report were too small to accurately reflect the error rate, said Idaho Department of Labor spokesman Bob Fick. Idaho's long-range plan to reduce unemployment fraud and the federal audit are unrelated, Fick said.

To help prevent overpayments, the state's Labor Department cross-matches the list of new hires reported by Idaho employers with the names of those receiving unemployment benefits. The agency has recovered more than $3 million in overpayments since the economic downturn started in December 2007, officials said.

Tom Luna to Visit Schools in Richfield, Hailey This Week

TIMES-NEWS

Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna is visiting schools in eastern Idaho and the Wood River Valley this week.

After making stops in Twin Falls, Wendell, Buhl and Gooding last week, he's on the road again. Local stops include Richfield on Thursday and Hailey on Friday. The visits are part of Luna's efforts each year to travel to classrooms across Idaho. He's planning a visit to the Richfield School District at 12:30 p.m. Thursday. His Hailey stop Friday includes a visit at 10 a.m. to Wood River Middle School and an 11:30 a.m. appearance at Woodside Elementary School.

TWIN FALLS SCHOOL DISTRICT HONORED FOR AP CLASSES

The Twin Falls School District is among fewer than 400 public school districts in the nation being honored by the College Board with a place on the AP Honor Roll.

The district earned a place on the list for increasing access to Advanced Placement classes, while at the same time maintaining the percentage of students earning scores of 3 or higher on AP exams.

"The honor is evidence that our teachers and administrators are focused on encouraging and providing opportunities that challenge and support all students in the Twin Falls School District," Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said in a press release. "This is right in line with our

Wood River Officials, Legislators Talk Options for Friedman Airport

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

HAILEY • The board that oversees Hailey's airport wants to cut in half the number of planes diverted to Twin Falls each winter.

Thirty percent of commercial flights during winter are diverted by snow or fog. Weather last year forced 11 of Horizon Air's first 12 flights into Friedman Memorial Airport down to the Twin Falls airport.

"One of the FAA's most important goals is to make commercial service more reliable," Friedman Memorial Airport Authority Board Chairman Tom Bowman told state legislators Tuesday.

Bowman added that one way to achieve that goal around the weather would be to cut minimum approach requirements to 1,000 feet from the current 1,800-foot standard. "If we can get below 1,000 feet, it's clear," he said.

Bowman, his fellow Blaine County commissioners, Sun "There shouldn't be a perception ing it, adding that relocating homes isn't an option.

Closing the airport is also not an option, said Pete Kramer, chief of Friedman's airfield operations.

"We're obligated to continue general aviation even if we don't have commercial aviation," he said. "But we run the risk of losing our quality of life if we're unable to provide the same level of commercial air service."

The change of plans has prompted a number of discussions throughout the Wood River Valley. About 130 Bellevue residents turned out last week for an emotional town hall meeting. Further meetings with the business community and residents of Hailey, Ketchum and Sun Valley will likely be scheduled after next week's election.

Blaine County commissioners Larry Schoen and Angenie McCleary said a recent Associated Press article gave the wrong impression that the FAA wants the airport moved because it's unsafe.

"There shouldn't be a perception that flying to Sun Valley is unsafe," Schoen said. "Our airport is operated safely. They're not asking us to move the airport. They're just telling us to operate safely no matter where it is."

In Redistricting Battle, Let's Not Be That County

n Oct. 14, Idaho's second panel charged with redrawing Idaho's political lines unanimously agreed on a plan. It took them less than a week to accomplish what the previous panel couldn't agree on in 90 days.

Then the waiting began: the state has braced for legal challenges to the plan, and none have been filed yet.

But Twin Falls County rattled the first saber. Last week, the county confirmed they were planning to file suit against the plan. What's not as clear is the answer to the question, "Why?"

It's true that the plan does split up the county: Folks in Filer and Buhl are lumped into a large district that stretches as far away as Mountain Home. Murtaugh and Hansen will look to Burley and Cassia County for legislative ties.

It's not ideal, but it's the best course of action. Numerically, it's unconstitutional for Twin Falls County to all be in the same district — there are just too many people here to meet the target number.

The county has to be divvied up somehow. The zone created around the city and close-by areas of the county creates a district of common interests to the city of Twin Falls, and keeping our regional communities in the same zones (even if it's not ours) after that is prudent.

In drafting this plan, we're confident the three Republicans and three Democrats who unanimously agreed were able to move as fast as they did because they set politics aside and drew boundaries by the numbers.

We can't say the same for our county leaders.

The move to challenge the plan smacks of partisan politics. Some officials say it lessens the Magic Valley's clout in the Legislature, and we should shoot down the plan on that reason alone.

Therein lies a fundamental misunderstanding of the goals of redistricting: Suburban Boise and the eastern part of the state have boomed faster than Twin Falls. Mathematically speaking, their clout has grown at a greater rate, and their people deserve proportional representation.

As of Monday, Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs confirmed that the county hasn't yet gotten around to filing the suit, but it's still planning on it. Loebs' delay is making the state nervous. Candidates have to file for the 2012 election by March 9, but county clerks need to get voting systems in place well before then. An extended lawsuit could tie the whole plan up in the courts and make a mess of the 2012 race. We have no interest in playing political games when a clock is ticking. Follow the example set by the second redistricting commission, and not the first: put aside partisanship, back the mathematically valid map, and let's all move forward together.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Quality of Life' Ideas Generating Positive Responses

"Quality of Life Within Our Budget" generates different responses in my city council campaign. But after 1,600 homes visited, the issues on people's minds keeps repeating: taxes, streets and jobs.

Twin Falls residents value their quality of life, living near family with opportunities to realize the American Dream. But unprecedented times are squeezing budgets and residents question huge cost jumps in city living for utility hikes and the infamous arsenic project. "We tighten our belts, why can't the city?" is the usual refrain.

Few question the goal of improved streets, but when two of three major northsouth avenues faced major disruptions this year, clumsy city planning has raised blood pressures. Voters ask: why can't the council manage public projects and expenditures? The lack of job opportunities is unsettling to residents of all ages and the unemployment stigma is startling.

Some neighborhoods I visit look like the Rust Belt - multiple vacant homes and untended yards dragging down adjacent property values. The council must be more assertive in recruiting quality businesses. Which raises a "sleeper" issue this campaign. Homeowners face decreasing property values, coupled with slashes in the Homeowner's Exemption to many, prompt ed by an unfriendly State Legislature. Unless the city, county, schools, highway districts and CSI decrease upcoming mill levies, homeowner property taxes may increase. On the positive side, my "quality of life" ideas are generating good response: re-invigorate downtown's infrastructure with Urban Renewal funds (but no more consultants!). And complete the four-mile canyon-rim trail, destined to become a destination for cash-heavy tourists, witnessed by 100,000 Shoshone Falls visitors this year. If I can be of help in resolving your city concerns, I would appreciate your vote for Seat 4. CHRIS TALKINGTON Twin Falls up on school merit pay goals, in particular the system set up by Wendell Schools.

As a teacher, I am embarrassed by the systems set up by most of the school districts, including my own, but the problem does not lie with Wendell Schools or any other district in the state. The problem lies with Mr. Luna who created this ridiculous, ineffective and demeaning system. Mr. Luna and his department created this system of category hoops that school districts have to jump through in order to get paid. School districts are merely doing what Mr. Luna is forcing them to do.

Merit pay is based on the belief that teachers are not working hard or effectively. If they are offered more money, they will get off their lazy butts and do their job. Merit pay has been tried and discontinued in numerous school districts across the country. Denver is the only district that I have ever read about that attributes any improvement in student performance to their merit pay system. Think about it. If teachers were highly motivated by how much money they make they would not Rebecca does her own research and is open to all opinions and concerns about issues that face our city. She listens more than she talks, which is a real attribute.

Rebecca has the energy and new views of old problems that will continue to move our city forward in a positive direction. She is not afraid to ask the difficult questions. There are a large number of elements that make a city a great place to live, raise a family and work. Rebecca brings balance to all these areas that are all equally important to improving and maintaining our living experience in Twin Falls. She looks forward to serving you for the next four years and working with the fine City staff and City Council.

I would urge you to contact Rebecca on her Facebook page or call her if you have any questions for her. She answers all questions Valmy line or the next line as we are that a power line corridor is now being established.

Let's explore the big question. Do we need it? Probably not. With the wind farms and solar projects being proposed in southern Idaho, we may be able to produce our own green energy here at home.

As we all know, there is already a corridor of Bureau of Land Management, Forest Service and state land that is 29 miles wide and runs the length of Cassia and Twin Falls counties. Let's use it. May be it is time the real stakeholders (the private land owners and affected parties) design our own concept of a transmission line corridor and submitted it to Gateway West and Idaho Power.

Why do we always play "defense" when we should be able to play "offense" at some point?

Mills-Sojka Listens More Than She Talks

It has been a real pleasure to serve on Rebecca's election committee. I would encourage the voters to continue the wisdom that selected Rebecca Sojka to the Twin Falls City Council 10 months ago. While Rebecca is facing three gentlemen for Seat 7, she faced 24 qualified citizens during the vetting process to fill Sen. Lee Heider's seat. This was a very detailed process that involved all aspects of this important position. I would give the men on the selection committee much credit for selecting a council person that did not mirror them. The most apparent difference was not the most important but refreshing. Alternative Energy May Be Solution to Gateway West Issue

This letter is in regard to the pending Gateway West Transmission Line and the editorial of the Times-News dated Oct. 18.

I believe the first paragraph should have stated that the 1,100 miles of power line do not go to Wyoming and Idaho but originate at the fossil burning (coal) power plants in Wyoming and passes through southern Idaho with a final possible destination of Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

For those of us that live within a half mile of the existing Valmy Line along the south hills, there are other major questions not yet answered. We know there is already another line permitted to parallel the Valmy line. The Gateway West line is No. 3 with at least four to five more lines to be built over the next 25 years as needed. We are not as concerned with the current

Still Going on

Is anyone from the city monitoring how long this construction project on Washington Street is taking?

I have been involved in much larger projects that have taken less than a day to pave what has taken recent ly more than a month. I have seen 1,000 yards of concrete poured for a dairy in four hours more than once. How can it possibly take a week to cut asphalt for a few manhole covers to pour maybe 10 yards of concrete?

If anyone is overseeing this "construction company," they should have a wake up call from Twin Falls City. This has gone beyond the ridiculous to inconceivably poorly managed!

Occupy Boise Protesters to Camp Out Downtown

BOISE (AP) • Members of the Occupy Boise protest movement said they intend to set up an encampment later this week at the old Ada County Courthouse, joining demonstrators in dozens of other cities around the nation.

The group's general assembly voted last weekend to set up tents and hold an indefinite vigil on the state-owned property, located in downtown Boise and just east of the state Capitol.

Occupy Boise member Dean Gunderson said the group sent a letter on Monday to the Idaho Department of Administration, which manages the old courthouse property.

"We're notifying them of what our intent is," rather than seeking permission, Gunderson told the Idaho Statesman. "We've avoided using the term 'permission,' which implies some government agency has the authority to abridge a constitutional right. The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees the people's right to peaceably assemble and seek redress."

The Boise demonstrators are part of the sixweek-old Occupy movement, which began in New York City to decry corporate influence in government and wealth inequality. The decision to set up an encampment comes in the wake of similar - though bigger demonstrations in other cities across the country.

In Portland, demonstrators pitched tents Monday in a third city park - this one on federal property, as activist filmmaker Michael Moore dropped by to praise the demonstrators' efforts.

In Tennessee, state officials agreed Monday to stop enforcing a new curfew used to dislodge Occupy Nashville protesters from the grounds around the Capitol. The protesters went to federal court seeking a temporary restraining order against Gov. Bill Haslam, arguing the curfew and arrests of dozens of supporters violated their rights to free speech and freedom of assembly. So far in Idaho, Occupy Boise has held a handful of rallies and marches in the city's downtown. Smaller protests have also taken place in Idaho Falls and Moscow. State authorities say it's unclear if any laws might prohibit or regulate camping on the old courthouse grounds.

BLM Says Would-be Idaho Sniper School Broke Rules

BY JOHN MILLER Associated Press

BOISE • A Florida man who has proposed opening a private school teaching military sniper skills in eastern Idaho should have checked with Bureau of Land Management officials before he recently invited local reporters to fire off high-caliber rifles on federal land, BLM officials said Tuesday.

In recent weeks, Michael Buchanan "Buck" Holly and his employees have been ferrying reporters to Clark County's remote Skull Canyon, located south of the Montana border in the Beaverhead Mountains. It's there that Holly hopes to use private, BLM and Forest Service land as a base for his weeklong "Advanced Mountain Sniper Course."

But if Holly had checked regulations before heading to the hills, he would have learned that private, forprofit sniper schools are forbidden on BLM and U.S. Forest Service ground, bureau spokeswoman Sarah Wheeler said.

Even the U.S. military would have to submit a formal application and take public comment before winning permission to use public land, to make sure any activities didn't harm sensitive species, pose undue safety risk or endanger the American Indian rock art that can be found in Skull Canyon's jagged cliffs, she said.

"We have worked with

military and National Guard, but we'd still have to conduct a (environmental analysis);" Wheeler said. "But where this is private or commercial, it really doesn't fit into that category?'

One Idaho TV station reporter filmed firing a weapon from a mountaintop report ed last week that Holly has already trained dozens of people in Skull Canyon. Holly told The AP on Monday he'd only conducted scouting operations and media tours, not sniper and high-mountain survival courses for paying customers.

Holly said he hopes to open the school next year and plans to only train people affiliated with the U.S. military, including active duty and reserve forces. Eastern Idaho's terrain mirrors Afghanistan: 10,000-foot mountains, towering cliffs, high-elevation pine forests and yawning canyons to fire weapons across, he said.

"We're not stone cold killers out here, doing some vigilante stuff," he said. "We're teaching guys how to survive in the mountains?"

But just how much demand there is for private sniper training is unclear. Col. Tim Marsano, an Idaho National Guard spokesman in Boise, said he's never heard of Idaho soldiers taking private sniper courses during his 20 years of service.

"I can't speak for the U.S. military," whole Marsano said. "But for our own men and women, the training we undergo annually in the normal course of a training year, combined with pre-deployment training to go to the places we've been for example, Iraq, Afghanistan, Bosnia, Kosovo - we have found that training meets our needs very well?

Holly, 39, describes himself as a former U.S. Marine with experience in the Balkans. But he refuses to say just where he served. Public records show he recently lived in Estero, Fla., and that he owns Corps Technology Group, a company whose mission is "to serve as the liaison between operational units and agencies and the defense industry," according to its website.

After learning of BLM concerns, Holly said he worries that bureaucratic rules could mean U.S. troops will be denied valuable training.

"If we get a bunch of backlash from the public or the BLM or U.S. Forest Service, what we're setting up is the inability for guys to get the proper training before they deploy," he said.

Holly said if he can't use public land in Idaho, he might limit his school to Skull Canyon's private ground - or look for suitable terrain elsewhere.

Ask The Plant Lady

Question: Dear Plant Lady, I received a basket of plants when my mother passed away. They seem to be all growing well but the blooming one has died and the others look crowded. What can I do to make it pretty again? Signed "Basket case"

Answer: Dear "Basket Case," Gift baskets are fun until they get too big or start leaking. If you want to divide up the plants, carefully separate them and pot them in pots about 6-8" in size. Most of them should have similar water and light requirements. If you want to keep the same basket you can always replace the larger ones with smaller ones or trim them to size. The blooming plant can always be replaced with a "seasonal" bloomer (example, Poinsettia for Christmas). Make sure the liner in the basket is still functional and doesn't leak on your furniture.

4 Arrested in Idaho Sex Sting

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • The Idaho Falls Police Department says four men have been arrested in a sex sting, including one whose name became well known after he was badly beaten in a privately run Idaho prison.

Police spokeswoman Joelyn Hansen the prostitution sting was organized when two women were pulled over for suspicion of driving under the influence, and they reportedly told police they were in town to solicit sex. They reportedly agreed to help police set up an undercover sting.

Twenty-five-year-old Hanni Elabed, 55-year-old Michael Flint, 44-year-old David Peterson and 29vear-old Derek Holmes were charged with misdemeanor solicitation of prostitutes.

Elabed was involved in a lawsuit against the Idaho Correctional Center after he was beaten by another inmate while several guards watched. Elabed sustained brain damage from the beating.

It was determined that the problem arose because the rider was unsure of his ability to navigate the terrain due to the darkness with a nearly moonless night.

A search team with ATV's was sent up the Anderson Mill Canyon Road with instructions to work their way down the Marysville Hill Road.

The area is at the top of Ashton Hill east of U.S. Highway 20.

Other teams were set up starting at the Ashton Bridge on Highway 20 and along North River Road.

The searchers were told to honk their horns one at a time. The lost man was then able to tell them which ATV appeared to be the closest.

The rescuers were able to make voice contact with the missing man shortly before 10 p.m. at the mouth of Jump Off Canyon. The closest ATV moved in and the lost horseman was found in good condition about 10:15 p.m and reunited with the other riders.

When found he stated that he did not fall from his horse, but his horse would not continue in the darkness so he decided to leave it and descend Jump Off Canyon on his own.

A spokesman for the Fremont County SAR said the riders planned to go back for the horse in daylight on Sunday.

Painkiller Overdose Deaths More Than Triple

BY STEPHANIE NANO Associated Press

NEW YORK • The number of overdose deaths from powerful painkillers more than tripled over a decade, the government reported Tuesday – a trend the nation's top health official called an epidemic, but one that can be stopped.

Prescription painkillers such as OxyContin, Vicodin and methadone led to the deaths of almost 15,000 people in 2008, including actor Heath Ledger. That's more than three times the 4,000 deaths from narcotics in 1999.

Such painkillers "are meant to help people who have severe pain," said Dr. Thomas Frieden, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, which issued the report. "They are, however, highly addictive."

The report shows nearly 5 percent of Americans ages 12 and older said they've abused painkillers in the past year - using them without a prescription or just for the high. In 2008-09 surveys, Oklahomans reported the highest rate of abuse; the lowest was in Nebraska and Iowa.

The overdose deaths reflect the spike in the number of narcotic painkillers prescribed every year enough to give every American a one-month supply, Frieden said.

Prescriptions rose as doctors aimed to better treat pain and as new painkillers hit the market.

Frieden and White House drug czar Gil Kerlikowske, who joined him at CDC headquarters in Atlanta, said

Future Holds More Extreme Weather

Draft of a report from a panel of leading climate scientists says there is at least a 2-in-3 probability that climate extremes have already worsened because of man-made greenhouse gases.

BY SETH BORENSTEIN Associated Press

WASHINGTON • For a world already weary of weather catastrophes, the latest warning from top climate scientists paints a grim future: More floods, more heat waves, more droughts and greater costs to deal with them.

extremes are where we are going to see a lot of the impacts of climate change?"

The final version of the report from a panel of leading climate scientists will be issued in a few weeks, after a meeting in Uganda. The draft says there is at least a 2-in-3 probability that climate extremes have already worsened because of man-made decade, the report said.

The opposite type of disaster – a drought such as the stubbornly long dry spell gripping Texas and parts of the Southwest - could also happen more often as the world warms, said Schmidt and Meehl, who reviewed part of the climate panel report.

Studies have not yet specifically tied global warming to the continuing drought, but it is consistent with computer models that indicate current climate trends will worsen existing droughts, Meehl said. Scientifically connecting a weather disaster with global warming is a complicated and time-consuming task that can take more than a year and involve lots of computer calculations.

Researchers have also predicted more intense monsoons with climate change. Warmer air can hold more water and impart more energy to weather systems, changing the dynamics of storms and where and how they hit. Thailand is now coping with massive flooding from monsoonal rains an event that illustrates how climate is also connected with other manmade issues such as population growth, urban development and river management, Schmidt said. In fact, the report says, "for some climate extremes in many regions, the main driver for future increases in losses will be socioeconomic" rather than a result of greenhouse gases. The panel was formed by the United Nations and World Meteorological Organization. In the past, it has discussed extreme events in snippets in its report. But this time, the scientists are putting them all together.

states need to take sharp actions to reverse the long-running trend.

States oversee prescription practices and can rigorously monitor prescriptions and crack down on "pill mills" and "doctor shopping" by patients, Frieden said.

Doctors should limit prescriptions giving only a three-day supply for acute pain, for example - and look for alternative treatments, he said.

"For chronic pain, narcotics should be the last resort," he added.

A federal drug plan announced this year calls for state programs to track prescriptions. All but two states -Missouri and New Hampshire have approved them, said Kerlikowske.

Oklahoma Highest in Painkiller Abuse

Deaths from drug overdoses, particularly prescription painkillers, increased significantly over a decade, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported. In 2008, 36,450 people died of drug overdoses – a national rate of nearly 12 per 100,000 people.

States with the highest rates for fatal drug overdoses:

1. New Mexico, 27

- 2. West Virginia, 25.8
- 3. Nevada, 19.6
- 4. Utah, 18.4
- 5. Alaska,18.1

- 7. Rhode Island, 17.2
- 8. Florida, 16.5kk
- 9. Oklahoma, 15.8
- 10. Ohio, 15.1

Nationally, almost 5 percent of Americans 12 and older reported abusing painkillers in the past year. States with the highest abuse rates:

- 1. Oklahoma, 8.1 percent
- 2. Oregon, 6.8 percent
- 3. Washington, 6.1 percent
- 3. Rhode Island, 6.1 percent

-Associated Press

A draft summary of an international scientific report obtained by The AP says the extremes caused by global warming could eventually grow so severe that some locations become "increasingly marginal as places to live."

The report from the Nobel Prizewinning Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change marks a change in climate science, from focusing on subtle shifts in average temperatures to concentrating on the harder-to-analyze freak events that grab headlines, hurt economies and kill people.

"The extremes are a really noticeable aspect of climate change," said Jerry Meehl, senior scientist at the National Center for Atmospheric Research. "I think people realize that the greenhouse gases.

The most recent bizarre weather extreme, the pre-Halloween snowstorm that crippled parts of the Northeast last weekend, cannot be blamed on climate change and probably isn't the type of storm that will increase with global warming, according to four meteorologists and climate scientists.

Experts on extreme storms have focused more closely on the increasing number of super-heavy rainstorms, not snow, NASA climate scientist Gavin Schmidt said.

By the end of the century, the intense, single-day rainstorms that typically happen once every 20 years will probably happen about twice a

Greece's Papandreou Toughs Out Referendum Pledge on Debt Deal

Markets are hammered after his surprise call to let voters decide on European debt deal.

BY ELENA BECATOROS and DEREK GATOPOULOS Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece • Greece's prime minister held firm early Wednesday to his shock decision to call for a referendum on a hard-fought European debt deal, despite anger from abroad, global market turmoil and dissent from within his own party.

George Papandreou's government still faced a battle for survival with a vote of confidence scheduled for Friday and a grilling from frustrated European leaders expected later in the day ahead of a Group of 20 summit in the French Riviera.

After a grueling seven-hour

Cabinet meeting, government spokesman Ilias Mossialos said Papandreou's ministers expressed "total support for the initiatives taken by the prime minister" and said the referendum would be held "as soon as possible."

However, government officials said two ministers still had strong reservations to the idea of a referendum, which will be the first in Greece since the country voted to abolish the monarchy in 1974. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to reveal details of the Cabinet meeting.

World markets were hammered across the world after Papandreou's surprise Monday night announcement amid fears the vote could unravel a deal which took European leaders months of complex negotiations among themselves and with banks to reach.

Flames erupt under one of the engines on a Polish LOT airlines Boeing 767 as the plane makes an emergency landing Tuesday at Warsaw airport in Poland.

Plane Lands on Belly in Poland, No One Hurt

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland • A Boeing airliner from the U.S. carrying 231 people was forced to land on its belly in Warsaw after its landing gear failed to open, triggering sparks and small fires. No one was hurt, but some passengers sobbed as they prayed for a safe landing.

Capt. Tadeusz Wrona, who handled the descent on Tuesday so smoothly that many on board thought the Boeing 767 had landed on its wheels, was instantly hailed as a hero in Poland and online, where within hours he was the focus of several Facebook fan pages.

The successful landing of the Polish LOT airlines flight, which was traveling from Newark, New Jersey, also was a huge relief for a country that has suffered multiple aviation disasters in recent years, including the April 2010 crash in Russia that killed President Lech Kaczynski and 95 others.

"I was praying for the pilot not to lose control because we started to make circles over the airport. It was terrible," passenger Teresa Kowalik told reporters at the airport. "We owe everything to the pilot. He really did a great job."

LOT said the plane suffered "a central hydraulic system failure," indicating that the hydraulics used to lower the landing gear failed. The failure of an undercarriage was unprecedented for a Boeing 767 and highly unusual overall, according to aviation data and experts.

The pilots discovered a problem about half an hour after leaving Newark, said LOT president Marcin Pirog. The plane circled above the airport for about an hour before descending, partly to keep trying to release the landing gear, and partly to use up fuel to lessen the risk of a blaze.

The accusations, relating to his time as head of the National Restaurant Association, have surfaced just as he's risen in national polls in the GOP nomination fight two months before the leadoff Iowa caucuses. He said Tuesday night on Fox News that he believes there are some Democrats who want him defeated because he's an unconventional candidate "achieving some unexpected, unconventional results," and there could be some on the right "who do not want to see me because I am not the establishment candidate?" Cain, who is black, said he believes race is also involved "but we don't have any evidence to support it?" He added, "Relative to the left, I believe that race is a bigger driving factor. I don't think it's a driving factor on the right?' A lawyer for one woman who complained about Cain's behavior told The Washington Post on Tuesday she wants to talk publicly about it. According to that report, Joel P. Bennett, a Washington lawyer who specializes in employment cases, said he asked the National Restaurant Association to waive his client's confidentiality so she can respond to Cain's claims that the complaints were "totally baseless and totally false." A spokeswoman for the restaurant association, Sue Hensley, said Tuesday night that the group had not been contacted by Bennett.

we don't get into a situation where you're our nominee and we find out things after the fact," John Brabender, a strategist for Rick Santorum's campaign, said at forum hosted by National Journal. "We're still waiting for clarification from the Cain campaign." But Cain said that rather than the allegations hurting, his fundraising was actually surging - "the highest it has been since I've been in this campaign," he told Fox News Channel's Bill O'Reilly.

European leaders had made no secret of their displeasure.

"This announcement surprised all of Europe," said a clearly annoved French President Nicolas Sarkozy, who has been scrambling to save face for Europe before he hosts leaders of the G20 major world economies later this week.

"Giving the people a say is always legitimate, but the solidarity of all countries of the eurozone cannot work unless each one consents to the necessary efforts," he said.

Sarkozy and German Chancellor Angela Merkel, who have been at the forefront of Europe's efforts to contain the debt crisis, talked by phone and agreed to convene emergency talks Wednesday in Cannes, France, to which Papandreou was also summoned to discuss implementation of the bailout.

French lawmaker Christian Estrosi was even more direct, saying on France-Info radio that the Greek move was "totally irresponsible."

"I want to tell the Greek government that when you are in a situation of crisis, and others want to help you, it is insulting to try to save your skin instead of assuming your responsibilities," Estrosi said.

Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte, meanwhile, said he would try to prevent the referendum plan, saying he would "attempt to see that it doesn't happen." But he conceded it was up to Greece how it approves or rejects the European deal.

Bennett did not immediately return messages seeking comment from The Associated Press.

In Sunday night's original report by Politico, at least two women who had complained about Cain were said to have agreed to settlements that included stipulations that they not repeat their allegations in public.

Cain's evolving answers to questions in a host of media interviews this week led one rival campaign to suggest he's not being upfront about the accusations.

"If you are the front-runner and you plan to be the nominee ... be forthcoming so that you are vetted, and

The campaign took in as much as $400,000 in a single day, said Mark Block, Cain's chief of staff.

Will the controversy undermine Cain in Iowa and beyond? Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad was willing to hear the candidate out.

"Iowans are pretty fairminded people and just because somebody makes an accusation - anybody that is in a high-profile position is potential to have people make these kinds of accusations," Branstad said. "I think Iowans will, you know, carefully look at the real situation and not jump to any conclusions?"

Group Has a Plan B for Picking President

BY NANCY BENAC Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Lots of people complain about the shortcomings of the country's two-party system for picking a president. Now a nonpartisan group is gathering millions of petition signatures – and dollars – to offer people a Plan B.

Americans Elect, which grew out of a failed 2008 effort to provide an alternative in the presidential race, aims to secure a slot on the November ballot in all 50 states for a to-be-determined candidate who would be nominated in the nation's first online convention next summer.

The group, whose backers include both Republicans and Democrats anxious to open up the political process, has raised $22 million so far and secured ballot slots in Florida, Alaska, Nevada, Kansas, Arizona and Michigan. It has submitted signatures for certification in California, Utah and Hawaii.

Americans Elect, whose slogan is "pick a president, not a party," appears to be on track to secure ballot access across the country, with 1.9 million signatures collected so far. But how it will effect the 2012 race depends on what kind of candidate its delegates select in next June's online convention, which will be open to any registered voter.

"It's a fascinating experiment in trying to empower the disenfranchised center in American politics," says Will Marshall, one of the group's leaders and the president of the Progressive Policy Institute, a centrist Democratic think tank. "It uses the power of the Internet and social media to provide a new means for political participation?"

Even Marshall admits, though, that he approaches the effort with some trepidation.

"I'd hate to see a scenario in which a vibrant third choice in some way threw

Inmates Freed as Crack Penalties Are Eased

Some 12,000 prisoners are expected to benefit from reduced sentences over the next several years, with an estimated 1,900 eligible for immediate release as of Tuesday.

WASHINGTON • Antwain Black was facing a few more years in Leavenworth for dealing crack. But on Tuesday, he was on his way home to Illinois, a free man.

Black, 36, was among the first of potentially thousands of inmates who are being released early from federal prison because of an easing of the harsh penalties for crack that were enacted in the 1980s, when the drug was a terrifying new phenomenon in America's cities.

"I can't wait for my son to get home," said Black's mother, Donetta Adams of Springfield, Ill. "I'll just be glad to hug him and kiss him and see him right now?'

The 1980s-era federal laws punished crack-related crimes much more severely than those involving powdered cocaine - a practice criticized as racially discriminatory because most of those convicted of crack offenses were black.

More recently, the penalties for crack were reduced to bring them more in line with those for powder, and Tuesday was the first day inmates locked up under the old rules could get out early.

Black pleaded guilty in 2003 and was sentenced to 15 years. With changes in the law, good behavior and credit for time served in jail, he was freed from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., after 81/2 years locked up for the crime.

Adams said her son earned a high school equivalency diploma behind bars, likes to cook and has talked about opening a restaurant.

"He told me, 'They don't have to worry about Antwain coming back," Adams said. "I tell him get decade after he pleaded guilty to conspiracy to distribute crack. But on Monday a judge approved his release two years ahead of schedule.

Susan Cardwell, his sister in Haymarket, Va., said she was expecting him to arrive on a bus on Wednesday. She said she cried after getting a call from his lawyer with the news.

"He wants to get out, get a job and get his life back together," she said in a telephone interview. "He says he'll work two jobs if he has to."

Under the old system, a person convicted of crack possession got the same mandatory prison term as someone with 100 times the amount of powdered cocaine. Five grams of crack, about the weight of five packets of Sweet N'Low, brought a mandatory five years; it took 500 grams of powder to get the same sentence.

The law was seen as racially unfair since blacks made up the majority of people convicted of crack crimes, while whites were more likely to be found guilty of offenses involving powdered cocaine.

In 2010, Congress reduced the disparity in sentences for future cases. Last summer, the U.S. Sentencing Commission decided to apply the measure to inmates doing time under the old rules.

Chris Burke, a spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Prisons, said that he could not say exactly how many people would be let out Tuesday but that officials were working around the clock to process hundreds of orders from judges granting early release. In certain cases, prison officials have been given a grace period of several days to free inmates, Burke said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) • The Dow Jones industrial average finished down nearly 300 points. It swung in 100 point bursts throughout the day as investors reacted to sometimes conflicting headlines about the next steps in Greece's long-running debt crisis. The stocks of major banks, including Citigroup and JP-Morgan Chase, were hit hard.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 297.05 points, or 2.5 percent, to close at 11,657.96.

The S&P 500 lost 35.02, or 2.8 percent, to 1,218.28. The Nasdaq composite fell 77.45, or 2.9 percent, to 2,606.96.

House Votes for 5-year Freeze in New Cell Phone Taxes

WASHINGTON • The House on Tuesday approved a fiveyear freeze on any new state and local taxes imposed on cellphones and other wireless services, including wireless broadband access.

The voice vote reflected a consensus that new taxes on wireless mobile services have far outpaced average sales taxes on other items and have become a deterrent to the spread of wireless broadband technology.

"We need to encourage the development and adoption of wireless broadband, not tax it out of existence," said Rep. Zoe Lofgren, D-Calif., the sponsor of the legislation.

Macy's plans to expand at Manhattan location •

The department store chain announced Tuesday that it plans to spend about $400 million over the next four years to expand and overhaul its storied flagship location at Herald Square in Manhattan.

The renovations will begin in early spring 2012 and continue in phases through the fall of 2015. Macy's will add about 100,000 square feet of selling space for a total of 1.2 million square feet by opening up space currently used for stock and offices. The store's current total space is 2.2 million square feet.

Bank of America Backs Down on $5 Debit Card Fee

CANDICE CHOI Associated Press

NEW YORK • Bank of America Corp. is scrapping its plan to charge a $5 monthly fee for debit card purchases after outraged customers threatened an exodus.

The about-face comes as customers across the country petitioned the bank and mobilized to close their accounts in favor of credit unions and community banks. The outcry prompted other major banks, including JPMorgan Chase & Co. and Wells Fargo & Co., to cancel trial tests of their own debit card fees.

Bank of America, the nation's second largest bank, said it reversed course after listening to an outcry from customers. Anne Pace, a spokeswoman for Bank of America, declined to say whether there was a spike in account closures following the September announcement that it would start charging the fee early next year.

cause it hit so close to home; many Americans have come to rely on debit cards to manage essential expenses such as groceries and gas.

At the same time, there's still lingering resentment over the role that banks played in the 2008 financial meltdown and the ongoing home foreclosure crisis. That anger has come to surface in recent weeks with the Occupy Wall Street movement.

The banks have countered by saying that efforts in the past two years to regulate the industry have forced them to raise or introduce new fees to stay profitable. That made the march to higher fees seem almost inevitable – and makes the rare victory by consumers in this case even more remarkable.

NAMPA • The Amalgamated Sugar Co. sugar beet processing plant in Nampa has reached an agreement to cut its nitrogen oxide output to help reduce air pollution in the region around the plant.

The sugar maker has a preliminary agreement with the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality to spend $8 million to install nitrogenoxide burners on three coal and natural gas boilers. The burners would reduce the amount of nitrogen oxide emitted by the boilers. Under the proposed air quality permit, the work would be done by 2016.

The federal regional haze program requires DEQ to study emissions and find the best available technology for specific polluters. A study estimated the nitrogenoxide burners would reduce or eliminate regional haze about 12 days a year.

Idaho DEQ is taking public comment until Nov. 30.

Julie Ratto stirs spaghetti sauce, made with her father-in-law's recipe, on Thursday in Hansen. To make Grandpa Ratto's Spaghetti Sauce yourself, plan to keep a stove burner busy for two days.

made spaghetti sauce.

The sauce, which she makes five gallons at a time, is a recipe passed down from her late father-in-law, Robert Ratto. Julie calls it Grandpa Ratto's Spaghetti Sauce.

Relatives call it indispensible.

Because Julie has a large family -10children and eight grandkids – she makes the spaghetti sauce in a 10-gallon pot. She sets the pot on a camping stove on her back porch, where she fills it seven gallons full with her special blends: tomato sauces, onion, garlic, green peppers, seasonings, bacon and more. She lets the sauce simmer on the stove for two days before serving it for dinner. The longer it cooks, she said, Please see SAUCE, F3 south side, The Coffee Shop & Lunchbox Deli makes the most of its grittier past, displaying funky art, live plants, tie-dye and the eclectic wares of local artists under a high ceiling and exposed ducts. Mismatched retro chairs and tables, dominated by yellows and oranges, invite lingering. Colorful paint plays up the cracked concrete floor and disguises the odd pane of cloudy glass.

But the best thing about this space is the glass-filled overhead door, mimicked in a second big bank of south-facing windows. Ah, sunlight.

Build-your-own cold sandwiches dominate the lunch menu here, but I chose one of the two daily specials: the $6.50 meatloaf sandwich with a small side of salad. Co-owner Mo Black said the meatloaf - made in-house like the shop's other specials and pastries is from business partner Sam Wilson's family recipe. The secret ingredients: Stove Top dressing and Wilson's homemade barbecue sauce.

They serve a warm, thick slab of the meatloaf with freshly cut Tillamook cheddar, olives, pickles and mayo, between slices of commercial but high-quality white bread. The meatloaf sandwich might show up as a special about once a week, though the only regular day for a special is pulled-pork Tuesday.

You can check the eatery's Facebook page for specials, and order online at shopthecoffee.com.

The Coffee Shop & Lunchbox Deli operates a drivethrough window, but it's worth finding a parking spot to enjoy the offbeat ambiance inside. (Hint: The best table is under the canopy of a potted tree.) The deli was steadily busy the day I visited, but diners still got particularly attentive service.

There's a reason for that: The three people behind the counter are the three partners who transformed the repair shop, then opened this eatery in March.

"We want to create a very good brand before we hire eight employees and turn it over," Black said, adding that day is far down the road. "Never stop dreaming."

But Packham did.

Make Wholegrain Bread at Home

Perhaps making yeast bread isn't as difficult and time-consuming as you thought. In a hands-on class in Twin Falls, Barbara Abo will teach an easy method for artisan, whole-grain breads based on the book "Healthy Bread in Five Minutes a Day," by Jeff Hertzberg and Zoe Francois.

The class, "Easy Bread Making," is set for 9-11 a.m. Nov. 12 at Rudy's – A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. Cost is $40. Besides tasting baked bread, students will prepare and shape their dough to take home and bake. Bring a 3to 5-quart bowl to mix and proof your dough.

Abo worked with the Idaho Wheat Commission to develop recipes for the "Bread in a Bag" project taught in fourthgrade classrooms across the state, and she has taught youth to make yeast bread in classrooms, lunch rooms, camps and meeting rooms. Working for the University of Idaho, she teaches healthy food preparation and kitchen skills to Idaho families. Sign up: 733-5477.

You can place orders for cider to be picked up anytime between Nov. 10 and Dec. 23, including orders for Thanksgiving and Christmas, club spokeswoman Lea Shanahan said. The club will give discounts on orders of five gallons or more.

And for those who prefer a hands-on experience, the club will make arrangements for families to press their own cider at the greenhouse.

Club members will be at CSI's Harvest Time Festival (Nov. 11-13) with cider and caramel apple samples and will take orders at the event, but the club will not have containers of cider for sale in the Expo Center.

To place orders: Shanahan at 404-3994 or wild_rose57@yahoo.com.

Report: Industry Decides Food Ingredient Safety

BY GARANCE BURKE Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Thousands of ingredients that go into food have been classified as safe by private industry alone, without any government oversight, according to a new report published last week.

Since the early 1960s, private companies and industry trade associations have determined at least 3,000 ingredients are safe, with no federal scrutiny, the study found. The ingredients include everything from artificially synthesized chemicals used in chewing gum to grape seed extract used in cheese and instant coffee.

The peer-reviewed report published in the Comprehensive Reviews in Food Sciof rigorous biological tests, but agrees that more transparency in the vetting process would help build consumer confidence.

"The system is less transparent than it should be so we're looking to open that dialogue," said Leon Bruner, the association's chief science officer, who agreed the study's estimates were reasonable. "We are completely comfortable with increasing the transparency or the visibility of ingredients that go through the process?"

The Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act makes manufacturers responsible for ensuring food ingredients are safe. Companies can classify an ingredient as "generally recognized as safe" for use in a specific product but aren't required to tell the Food and Drug Administration about what they find.

Some do, through a voluntary notification program that gives the FDA a chance to review the findings.

Greek

"I don't buy regular yogurt anymore," she said.

Greek yogurt, much like regular yogurt, is made from milk that's fermented with live bacterial cultures. But Greek yogurt then is strained to remove the whey, boosting its thickness.

Its texture is why some people, like Packham's mom, don't like it. Packham, on the other hand, says thick Greek vogurt is more filling than other yogurts. She eats it two or three times a week - for breakfast, as a snack and in her homemade smoothies.

Packham, who stocks shelves at Fred Meyer in Twin Falls, said Greek yogurt often sells better at the store than regular yogurt, perhaps because of added health benefits.

"In many ways, Greek vogurt looks like the ideal health food," the Los Angeles Times wrote in 2010. "Greek yogurt's protein content makes it a boon to vegetarians as well as dieters in search of satiating foods."

"Yogurt promotes intestinal and vaginal health, improves lactose intolerance, builds stronger bones, enhances immunity, lowers blood pressure. and may even have anticancer and weight-loss effects," reads an article on Health.com, noting that Greek yogurt increases these health benefits.

GreekYogurtWorld.com contends that Greek yogurt is the best yogurt for those aspiring to lose weight, and it's rich in calcium, thiamine, potassium and other minerals for development and the strengthening of bones and muscle.

A number of yogurt manufacturers today make Greek yogurt, including Chobani, Dannon and Yoplait. Even Fred Meyer has a store-brand variety. Aaron Adams, owner of High Country Bakehouse in Twin Falls, first learned about Greek yogurt a year ago from television cooking shows. He doesn't use sour cream anymore, instead replacing it with plain Greek yogurt.

Greek yogurt comes in a variety of flavors, including honey. Adams buys his plain and, for a snack, adds brown sugar and blueberries.

"Man, that stuff is good," he said. "It's like ice cream."

tell a good sauce if it

sticks to the noodle, if it doesn't run off," she said.

The sauce usually cooks down to about five gallons, Julie said, and despite the hungry mouths she feeds, there usually is plenty left for her to freeze for later.

Julie also makes her own spaghetti noodles and meatballs - a mixture of beef and pork, breadcrumbs, garlic, Italian seasoning and other ingredients – to make a flavorful meal.

Tasty Snacks

As a bonus, Julie might prepare panzerotti – a smaller version of the calzone or closed pizza but made with softer dough.

Julie prepares dough, separates it into pieces and rolls them into balls before flattening them. Next, she said. "Grandma could make just about anything ... cream puffs and all kinds of things on a wood stove. She was an amazing cook. "With a large family I've done a lot of cooking myself."

But the sauce is one of Julie's favorite things to prepare, because she knows so many people like it. And with three more grandkids on the way, the recipe will surely be handed down for generations to come.

Grandpa Ratto would like that.

Grandpa Ratto's Spaghetti Sauce

2 pounds raw bacon, chopped 15 cups onion, chopped 3 cups green peppers, chopped 1 head garlic, chopped

Combine all ingredients in a 10-gallon stockpot. Cook until thick, about an hour, then add:

1 gallon tomato paste 3 gallons tomato sauce 1-2 gallons fresh or canned

diced tomatoes

Simmer 2-4 hours, then add:

2 tablespoons Italian

- seasoning 1 teaspoon oregano
- powder
- 1 tablespoon nutmeg 1/3 cup paprika
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/4 cups olive oil
- 1 cup dried parsley

Simmer for 2-4 hours. Turn off the stove and let the pot sit overnight. Early the next morning, turn the heat back on and add:

1 1/2 pound sliced pepperoni 10 ounces Romano cheese, grated

Simmer 4-6 hours more until thick and no longer watery; mix with noodles and serve.

Donald Kay Green

Aug. 20, 1937-Oct. 29, 2011

Donald Kay Green, 74, of Twin Falls, passed away Saturday, Oct. 29, 2011, at his home. Donald was born

Aug. 20, 1937, in

Green. Donald spent the first part of his childhood in Baker, Ore., then they moved to Burley, Idaho. At the age of 16, Donald joined the U.S. Air Force, serving in the Korean and Vietnamese wars. During his military career, he served in the U.S. Air Force, U.S. Army, U.S. Army National Guard and the Army Reserves, earning multiple medals and awards. After his service, he worked as a sheriff in Bakersfield, Calif., then went to work for the California Prison System and, in 1973, moved to Twin Falls, where he worked for the Twin Falls City Police Department. Later, he went on to drive truck for Mountain Express until his retirement. Donald enjoyed building model train sets and military models. He enjoyed hunting, the outdoors and especially spending time with his family and friends. Donald was a member of the VFW and the American Legion.

Donald is survived by his children, Cheryl Jean Spencer of Douglas, Kan., Rainbow K. Napier of Seattle, Wash., Pamela Lynn Burleigh of Surprise, Ariz., Shaun Glenn (Steven Anderson) Green of Mill Valley, Calif., and Shannon Mist (David) Haller of Urbandale, Iowa; 11 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; one brother, Paul (Jerry) Green of Twin Falls; and one sister, Carol (Douglas) Hawkins of Twin Falls. He is preceded in death by his parents; one brother, Gary Dale Green; and one grandson, Cheyne Patrick Miller.

A memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 3, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Inurnment will be at a later date at the Idaho Veterans Cemetery in Boise.

RUPERT • Martha GeNeve Roseborough, age 73, of Rupert, passed away Saturday, Oct. 29, 2011, at her home surrounded by her family.

GeNeve was born June 17, 1938, in Sugar City, Idaho, to Enos Owen and Edna Minerva Virgin. She was raised in Sugar City, where she attended elementary and high school. She graduated from Sugar Salem High in 1956. Shortly after her graduation on June 1, 1956, in Rexburg, she married Leslie Arthur Roseborough. They were later sealed in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple on April 16, 1964. They moved to Dubois, Idaho, for a short time and then to St. Anthony. In 1960, they moved to Rupert, Idaho, where they raised their family. She was active in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, where she served in many capacities. She served in the Relief Society, Young Women, Primary, Sunday school and in the Scouts. She also served a mission with her husband at the LDS Cannery for 18 months in Burley.

She was an elite lady and wonderful homemaker and loved sharing her talents with anyone. She loved sewing, cooking, reading, quilting, collecting dolls and spending time with her family. She

Mary Lynn Meeks. They were blessed with two daughters, Jolynn and Shannon. Joe attended Tulane University on a Navy ROTC scholarship and then graduated from the University of Arkansas School of Medicine as a doctor. While in Memphis, Tenn., Joe married Paula Klinger, and they had a son, Sebern J. Smith IV (Josh). They moved to Buhl, Idaho, and joined the medical practice of Dr. Charles Cullings and practiced medicine there until moving to Twin Falls, Idaho, where he worked at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital. He joined the Masonic Lodge in Buhl and achieved advancement as a 32nd Degree Mason.

Dr. Smith met and married Jody Powell while in Twin Falls. Jody brought to their marriage three boys, Doug, Chris and Kelly. Four years later, Doc, Jody and the four boys moved to Wells, Nev., where they opened a medical practice under the name of Wells Medical Clinic. There, they served the local area, and Doc Smith was also the jail physician in Elko for 18 years. Joe served as a director on the Wells Rural Electric Board for 23 years, which he took much pride in. He was an aviation medical examiner and also a pilot. "Doc" retired from his

Hendrick Returns to N. Carolina after Plane Crash

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. NASCAR team owner Rick Hendrick returned home Tuesday, a day after he broke a rib and shoulder when his plane ran off the runway in Key West, Fla.

Hendrick Motorsports said the brakes failed when the Gulfstream G150 landed at Key West International Airport on Monday night. The plane is co-owned by Jimmie Johnson and normally shuttles the five-time defending NASCAR champion and his family to and from races.

"As everybody is aware, there was a brake issue with the airplane landing," Johnson said. "All four on board are OK and are home back in Charlotte. We are just bevond thankful that everything turned out well with the crash and there weren't any major injuries down there. It certainly was a scary event - I can only imagine."

Hendrick, his wife, Linda, and the two pilots were all released from Lower Keys Medical Center on Tuesday morning and returned to Charlotte. Linda Hendrick sustained minor cuts and bruises. The two pilots were not injured.

The plane apparently skidded off the 4,800-foot runway and came to a stop along a 600-foot unpaved safety area that had been added in May.

Federal investigators inspect the private Gulfstream 150 aircraft on Tuesday that skidded off the runway at Key West (Fla.) International Airport on Monday night. The jets carrying Rick Hendrick, the owner of NASCAR's top team, and his wife, lost its brakes and crash landed and the couple suffered minor injuries, officials said.

BigEastto Invite Boise St, 5 Others

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA • The Big East is ready to start adding members after spending the last month and a half losing them.

A person familiar with the decision told The Associated Press the Big East will invite Boise State, Navy and Air Force for football only and SMU, Houston and Central Florida for all sports in upcoming days. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the conference was not ready to announce its plan.

Commissioner John Marinatto declined to elaborate on the Big East's next moves after meeting with the league's presidents at a Philadelphia hotel Tuesday. He said he expected the targeted schools to accept, but details still must be worked out with each.

"As we've learned over the last two months, don't believe anything anybody tells you. Nothing's done until it is over. So I'm obviously being very cautious and that's why I'm reluctant to say names of schools," he said.

Marinatto did acknowledge the league intends to expand west.

East's western division, along with Louisville and Cincinnati. Navy, an independent, and UCF, also from CUSA, would be part of the league's eastern division with Connecticut, South Florida, Rutgers and another school. The league would then likely play a conference championship game.

The Big East has been working on a plan to add those six schools and reconfigure as a 12-team football conference since not long after Syracuse and Pittsburgh announced Sept. 18 they would be leaving for the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We got reaffirmation from our members that that was the way we wanted to go," he said. "It was probably a very small part of our meeting today, where they just reaffirmed everything we had been talking about and authorized me to move forward with formal discussions to get this all wrapped up as soon as possible."

Exactly when was unclear.

A couple weeks after the Big East found out about Pitt and Syracuse, TCU announced it was backing out of a commitment to join the league next year and instead accepted an invite to the Big 12.

Then last week West Virginia accepted an invitation to the Big 12, stripping the Big East of its most successful football member in recent years. So even with the six potential new members, the Big East still needs another school to get to 12 for the long term.

Mountain West bylaws won't stand in the way of Boise State or Air Force leaving immediately, but they would have to relinquish this year's revenue, plus pay either $5 million or double the revenue, whichever is greater.

If Boise State makes it to the Bowl Championship Series this season, it could cost as much as $21 million for the Broncos to jump to the Big East in 2012. But getting access to an automatic BCS bid, something neither the MWC nor CUSA has, is what Boise State and most schools are chasing these days.

The MWC and CUSA have announced a football merger they hope will land it BCS automatic bid.

congratulating him on the Golden Eagles' third NJCAA national title.

"He wrote something like, 'There's more joy to the rebuilding years than there is the defending years," Gosar said. "I liked that."

Gosar might want to hang onto that card if he wants to win a consecutive title.

Trenkle, the winningest coach in CSI's history, won the program's previous title in 1987, capping off a 38-1 season. The Golden Eagles beat Midland (Texas) 69-68 in the title game behind star guard Joey Johnson (19.5 ppg.) and started the next season ranked No. 1 in the country with hopes of a retough. You always want five or six returners and I didn't have that that year," Trenkle said. "We were counting on freshmen to be leaders and that doesn't always work. We didn't have the kids who knew what it took every night."

In an early season tournament in California, all the hype surrounded CSI and Ventura College, led by eventual NBA player Cedric Ceballos. CSI, though, was knocked off by Fresno City after leading by 15 in the fourth quarter. Ventura College lost too and the teams met in the consolation round.

'Great 8' Is No More

But in removal of the playoff, area Class 4A teams gain an extra regular season game.

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

The Great Eight Playoffs are no more.

A pre-quarterfinal cross-district football playoff at the Class 4A level will be scrapped starting with next season, Minico head football coach Tim Perrigot said Tuesday. The decision is part of what will be a reconfigured southern and eastern Idaho athletic landscape, where just a dozen teams will compete in 4A sports next school year.

"It was a deal where we had three different leagues, and we had to get representation from all the leagues and still get the second-place teams in," said Perrigot. "It was the right thing for our league at the time, but we're to the point that, with Districts V and V combining, we can clean these things up and everyone gets their fair share of representation."

The Great Eight, which Perrigot had a hand in maintaining, pitted teams from Districts IV, V and VI against each other in what was the last week of the regular season for 4A schools in Districts I, II and III. The four winning teams advanced to the state quarterfinals.

Jan.14

In the most recent classification cycle the Great Eight featured two teams out of three from District V and three teams out of six from both Districts IV and VI.

With District VI's 4A membership dropping to three for the next classification cycle, it elected to combine with District V for all sports for the next two years, creating a six-team league with Blackfoot, Bonneville, Century, Pocatello, Preston and Rigby.

"We think it would be better to be a six-team league, and that it would provide better competition and a more meaningful playoff system," said Dale Gardner, athletic director at Bonneville High School in Idaho Falls. "In a Please see GREAT 8, S3

Cowboys may come to The Gooding Pro Rodeo seeking awards but the event itself is no stranger to accolade.

On Tuesday, the Gooding Pro Rodeo announced it has been named "Best Large Rodeo," of the PRCA's Wilderness Circuit, along with the Caldwell Night Rodeo.

Top Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association Cowboys of the circuit cast the same number votes for the award during their finals rodeo in Ogden, Utah over the weekend.

The Wilderness Circuit, consisting geographically of Idaho (south of the Salmon River) Nevada and Utah, is considered one the most competitive of the PRCA's 12 regional circuits.

Rodeo manager Don Gill said the event had been named the circuit's best small rodeo twice before and it was quite an honor to be considered among top-tier venues. Gooding's rodeo took place during the county fair, in August.

"Now that we're adding more money we're considered a large rodeo and that means we're able to attract some of the biggest names in the circuit," Gill said of the $35,000 sponsorship money the community helps raise for the rodeo "What other town of just 3,000 people can you go to Please see RODEO, S3

With a giant target on their back, the Golden Eagles got their opponent's best effort every night. They even lost to perennial conference doormat, Colorado Northwestern on the road in Rangely.

"I got a call from coach Paul (Conrad) later that night and he said the president of the college was taking him and his wife out to dinner," Trenkle said. "It was a big deal. Beating CSI, that's everyone's biggest win of the season."

And for good reason.

CSI is the most successful program in junior college basketball, owning three national titles and a winning percentage of .838. Its 137-game home winning streak from 1974-'92 is the longest such streak at any level of collegiate basketball.

"The bottom line is, you're always going to be targeted at CSI," said Trenkle, who earned eight trips to the national tournament. "Every year, people are after CSI?

Trenkle's 1987-88 team would lose only four games that season, the final loss coming in Phoenix in the bi-regional game to qualify for the national tournament in Hutchinson, Kan. The team wouldn't defend its title and Trenkle called that season one of toughest and most disappointing in his four decades of coaching.

"If I were Steve, I'd tell my team you've got to step up every night. It's going to be the game of the year for your opponent every time you step on the court," Trenkle said.

Trenkle's 1987-88 team looks eerily similar to this vear's version of the No.1 Golden Eagles, who play No. 2 Monroe in a highly anticipated matchup in New York this weekend.

All five starters from last year's 33-4 team Pierre Jackson, Darius Smith, Jerrold Brooks, Mitch Bruneel and Kenny Buckner have moved on, leaving sixth man Fabyon Harris and Brazilian forward Gerson Santo as the only returners with extensive playing experience.

"Last year's team knew how hard this league is. They knew how hard that trip (to nationals) was," Gosar said. "With so many new faces now, getting these new guys to understand how hard it's going to be night in and night out, how close you have to come together and finding out what we're special at, it is going to be a challenge."

The 5-10 Harris is up to the challenge.

The speedy guard averaged 8.7 points last season, swinging between the point and off-guard position in the Eagles' small-ball lineup. This season, he'll be asked to fill the shoes of Jackson, who led the team at 18.6 points per game, was named NJCAA player of the year and now plays for Baylor.

"Fabyon is just great. He's a captain this year and think he's really finding his voice on this team," Gosar said. "I think a lot like Pierre, he has the ability to score the ball at a pretty good clip. I do think he's also got some really good instincts and could play the point at times too."

Freshman Sebastien Michineau holds down the point guard position and while last year's team was formed around the guards -Jackson, Smith and Brooks this year's force could be forwards Santo, Luke Cothron and Paul Egwuonwu.

"Luke and Paul, they're big time," Harris said.

Cothron arrived this spring after quick stops at University of Massachusettes and University of

"We have some really athletic and long forwards who I think can really help us this season," Gosar said. "I can see them scoring some easy points and grabbing a ton of rebounds."

The lanky Cothron has been impressive in fall practice, showing a well-rounded post game and Gosar named the 6-9, 235-pound freshman a team captain.

"It's a big deal. Every loss I'm held accountable for," Cothron said. "I'm going to take this bus and hopefully drive it to another championship."

Harris said the key to a repeat is successfully mixing all these new players and personalities.

"Last year's team had so much chemistry on and off the court. One go out, we all going out. One get in trouble, we all get in trouble. That's how it was," Harris said. "This year, we good off the court, all of us hang together. There ain't no pressure (on us). To me, it don't feel like I won anything yet. I need to win another one, to win a second one, then I'll feel it. It's just some kids trying to win another title, that's it."

SIX LOCALS NAMED IDAHO HS HEISMAN FINALISTS

TIMES-NEWS

Six District IV student-athletes were named as state finalists for the Wendy's High School Heisman Award, according to the program's website.

Each state has 10 male and 10 female finalists, which were recently announced. Those finalists compete for the honor of being state winners and going on to compete for national finalist status and the overall national winner, which will be featured during the Heisman Trophy presentation telecast in December.

Demsie Butler (Bliss), Jacqueline Brennan (Glenns Ferry), Kaitlyn Goetz (Kimberly), Wesley Kelly (Kimberly), Alex Wirtz (Twin Falls) and Kiersten Hilt (Wendell) were named state finalists.

Winners for each state, plus the District of Columbia, will be named Friday.

BREAKING DOWN THE SWAC

Men

CSI: The Scenic West and NJCAA national champions will hardly resemble last year's team, with all five starters gone, but head coach Steve Gosar reloaded with athletic forwards Luke Cothron and Paul Egwuonwu and if explosive guard Fabyon Harris can fill the scoring void left by Pierre Jackson's departure, the Golden Eagles can contend in the SWAC and make a run in the national tournament. Odds to win SWAC: 3 to 1.

Salt Lake CC: Todd Phillips takes over as head coach for Norm Parrish, who led the Bruins to the NJCAA national title in 2009. He'll have a good guard in freshman Skylar Halford and size in two 6-10 posts, but the No. 17 Bears lost their three leading scorers. Odds to win: 6 to 1.

USU-College of Eastern Utah: Brian Edelstein

steps in as interim head coach and he'll have to lead a somber team after coach Brad Barton's unexpected death in October. Gone is top scorer Jonathan Mills and steady guard Brandon Williams, but Max Zakharov (12.3 ppg.) returns and Toran Brown (20 ppg.) comes in as a transfer. Odds to win: 10 to 1.

Snow College: The Badgers tied North Idaho for fourth in the conference last season and return allconference guards Brandon Vega and Travis Wilkins. Vega is a solid distributor and Wilkins one of the best 3-point shooters in the SWAC. Snow could surprise in league play. Odds to win: 10 to 1.

North Idaho: The Cardinals field a young team this season, but forward Edrico McGregor returns after averaging 11 points and 9 rebounds last season as one of the best post players in the SWAC. The see the top bull riders in the sport?" Gill said.

Gill said the payout isn't the only thing cowboys want to come to Gooding for. Every night, the stands are filled to capacity (2,700 seats) and hundreds of fans bring handmade posters and lots of enthusiasm to the rodeo.

they like our rodeo because the energy and the fans make it better than (National Finals Rodeo)," Gill said. "We set out years ago to produce the best rodeo we could and it's turned into a lot more than we could have dreamed it would. It's an honor to be a part of such a dedicated team. It takes a lot of committed people who love rodeo and know the sport to see something like this come to be."

"Cowboys have said that 20-game basketball season, 16 games basically don't mean anything if you're in a three-team league. At least in a sixteam league, you have 10 games that determine your seeding at districts. ... You have to be better to get to state this way."

Gardner said that principals of the six remaining 4A schools voted unanimously Tuesday to combine for the next two seasons, though the measure is subject to the board of control in both districts. He didn't anticipate much opposition to the schools' proposal.

terfinals - District VI champ Blackfoot travels to District III champion Skyview on Friday.

For football purposes, that puts two perennial state powers, Blackfoot and Pocatello, in the same league.

While the Great Eight's demise clears things up for the football, playoffs, it may muddle the regular-season scheduling process. Perrigot, who has a hand in arranging the 4A and 5A schedules for Districts IV, V and VI, expressed some concern

Gardner also said that District IV was the initiator in scrapping the playoff. In the last three seasons, District IV sent 10 football teams to the Great Eight, but only one advanced. That was by default when Twin Falls beat fellow District IV rival Burley in 2009 on its way to the semifinals.

Jerome athletic director Ty Jones said the decision was "mostly about the number" of schools dropping from District VI.

Under the new scenario, two teams from District IV and two teams from the combined District V-VI league would advance directly to the quarterfinals. That would allow all teams in the district to play a ninth regular-season game, and not just those that advance to the Great Eight.

It also means that all four conference champions from around the state would host quarterfinal games, rather than having two top seeds face each other in the quarabout finding games for District IV teams.

"I know District V will probably try to help out the 5A schools in District VI first rather than (turn to) us," Perrigot said. "They've always had a great relationship with us, and we've counted on each other for games becuase we're on an island. That could cause us some problems because those games have been pretty important to us.

"We might be in the situation where we might have to go to District III a little more often than what we'd like. Time will tell, but the (playoff) is a great deal for everyone."

The merger in eastern Idaho also impacts other sports in District IV, as it will likely eliminate the necessity for state tournament play-in contests for any sport in the 4A ranks for the next two years.

Using the traditional "one-third" rule, one team out of three from a combined District I-II league, three out of nine from District III, and two each from District IV and the combined District V-VI league could potentially comprise an eightteam tournament with no half-seed allotments.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

— Mark Twain

"There was things which he stretched, but mainly he told the truth."

> Conventional wisdom says not to reopen with a takeout double over a passed-out one-bid when you hold a void in the opener's suit. Partner is too apt to pass, and since you won't be able to lead a trump or two through declarer, partner will surely be endplayed once or twice by the end of the hand.

However, as Eddie Kantar recounts, when South opened a little light, Kantar's partner, Billy Eisenberg, passed in the West seat, as did North. Sitting East, Kantar decided to reopen with a takeout double, spade void notwithstanding. This is what hap pened:

Billy made the great lead and continuation of the spade ace, then queen, hoping to get in again and draw declarer's trump. South gulped when East discarded a low heart and a low diamond (implying club strength) at the first two tricks, and was in with the spade king. At trick three declarer cashed the heart ace (little did he know that this was his last trick!) and led a heart toward dummy Eisenberg, alive to what was going on, ruffed the heart, drew declarer's trump, and (now playing no-trump) shifted to a club. Four club tricks later saw the hand reduced to two cards with Kantar on lead. He had the A-9 of diamonds declarer the K-J and Billy the Q-5 He switched to a low diamond. declarer played the jack, and the defenders took the last two tricks.

East-West had defeated the hand five tricks for a score of plus 1400. As Kantar commented, "so much for conventional wisdom!"

ANSWER: Jump raises of overcalls and of opening bids in competition are best played as pre- vou will always have emptive – a cue-bid available to show better hands. Here, a jump to three hearts suggests these values with four or five trumps. With a little more shape in the side-suits, you might bid four hearts.

Nov. 2, the 306th day of 2011. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Nov. 2, 1861, during the Civil War, President Abraham Lincoln relieved Maj. Gen. John C. Fremont of his command of the Army's Department of the West based in St. Louis, following Fremont's unauthorized efforts to emancipate slaves in Missouri.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1783, Gen. George Washington issued his Farewell Orders to the Armies of the United States near Princeton, N.J.

In 1795, the 11th president of the United States, James Knox Polk, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1865, the 29th president of the United States, Warren Gamaliel Harding, was born near Marion, Ohio.

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states.

In 1936, the British Broadcasting Corp. inaugurated "high-definition" telservice from evision Alexandra Palace in London.

In 1947, Howard Hughes piloted his huge wooden flying boat, the Hughes H-4 Hercules (derisively dubbed the "Spruce Goose" by detractors), on its only flight, which lasted about a minute over Long Beach Harbor in California.

In 1948, President Harry Truman surprised the experts by winning a narrow upset over Republican challenger Thomas E. Dewey. In 1961, author, humorist cartoonist James and Thurber died in New York at age 66. In 1979, black militant JoAnne Chesimard escaped from a New Jersey prison, where she'd been serving a life sentence for the 1973 slaying of a New Jersey state trooper, Werner Foerster. (Chesimard, who took the name Assata Shakur, is believed to be living in Cuba.) In 1986, kidnappers in Lebanon released American administrator hospital David Jacobsen after holding him for 17 months. Ten years ago: President George W. Bush, saying the war in Afghanistan was unraveling Osama bin Laden's terrorist network, chided critics for clamoring for more action, and said the U.S. military campaign would not pause for the holiday Muslim of Ramadan. The government reported that the nation's unemployment rate had shot up to 5.4 percent in Oct. 2001. Five years ago: The Rev. Ted Haggard resigned as president of the National Association of Evangelicals after a man said they'd had sexual trysts together (Haggard later confessed he guilty of sexual was immorality). Gunmen in Iraq killed the Shiite dean of Baghdad University's school of administration and economics.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15vear-old girl who has never been in trouble, but my mom treats me like I'm a criminal. She makes me go to church every Sunday. She makes me go to Catholic school, and I have to wear an ugly uniform. She won't help with my homework. She says, "I already did 10th grade." I can't wear halter tops, short shorts, a bikini or much makeup. If I tell her it's the style, she says, "Modesty is always in style."

When I go out with my friends, she wants to know where I'm going, who I'll be with, what we'll be doing, when we'll be back and their phone numbers. If I have a date with a new boy, she makes him come into the house and tell her what school he goes to. Then she makes him show her his driver's license and car registration. I can't keep my computer in my room. When I'm using it in the den, she looks over my shoulder and won't let me go to chat rooms. I have to set the table even if we don't have company and sit down and have dinner with her EVERY night.

If I can't afford something, she tells me to save up or budget better. She won't let me drive until I can pay for my own insurance. It's not like my mom's poor. We go to Hawaii and Lake Tahoe, and we've been to Europe and on cruises. But she won't even pay for cable TV. She says it's an idiot box and I should read a book instead.

She also makes me do my own laundry and keep my room and bathroom clean. She makes me do unfair chores like clean the guest bathroom even though I never ever use it. She wants to teach me to sew and cook, but I have no interest in those things. She makes me visit Dad every week, and if I complain about anything, she says (very calmly and quietly, which I hate more than if she'd yell), "You can always choose to live with your dad."

She told me as long as I live under her roof, I have to abide by her rules even if I'm over 18. And I have to go to college, and if I don't, I'll have to get a job and support myself.

I could go on and on. Have you ever heard of a mother so unreasonable? I'm afraid to run away, but I don't know how much more of this I can take. - EMOTIONALLY

ABUSED IN CALIF. DEAR EMOTIONALLY ABUSED: Wow! Your letter should be posted on every refrigerator in the country. Rarely do I hear about a parent who tries as hard as your mother does to do a diligent job. One day you will look back and thank her.

PS. And if by chance this letter was written by your mother – congratulations for a job well-done. I would like to nominate you for Mother of the Year.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know who gives singers the right to change the melody of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "America the Beautiful"? Some of them who are featured on national TV don't even get the lyrics right. Many of us would love to hear our national anthem without the additional flourishes. Isn't anything sacred anymore? These so-called singers can add their individual squealing to their own songs, but I wish they would leave Francis Scott Key's version in its original format. Am I alone on this issue?

- NOT TONE-DEAF IN WASHINGTON DEARNOTTONE-DEAF:

You're far from alone in feeling as you do. Our national anthem is notoriously difficult to sing, and the lyrics difficult to remember. However, performers are, to a greater or lesser extent, artists. And some artists can't resist the temptation to add their personal interpretation to the classic, which has proved embarrassing for the singer and the listeners. It proves the truth of the old saying, "Sometimes less is more."

Times News

IF NOVEMBER 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are a bit of a romantic at heart, and may be somewhat gullible when flatterers knock on your door. Nevertheless, you can look forward to a peaceful coming year. Emerging opportunities that pop up between now and the end of December will point you in a fruitful direction. You might have a chance to enhance both your selfesteem and popularity, as well as fatten your piggy bank. Any situation you have not dealt with fully or honestly, may need your attention next May so be careful to not start anything you can't finish. In July shifting circumstances will put a new light on important matters in your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): No matter how special you are, it is still necessary to follow the rules. Taking the middle path can keep you out of harm's way. Remain stoic even if others seem determined to throw down the gauntlet.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take it easy; trust that things will fall in place without added input from you. Pushing to close a deal now could create unwanted tensions. Give others the benefit of the doubt as you wait for better timing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Needless worry about losing a few cents merely aggravates a situation. Don't take any important steps right now - especially regarding finances, as the competitive edge in the air could cause misunderstandings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The faster you pedal, the less you progress. It isn't wise to get into debates or disagreements now. Suggestions to improve efficiency can be seen as criticisms - and can turn toxic if taken to heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Clear the desk. You may be called upon to cope with a backlog of duties and obligations or must organize a pile of paperwork. Take care of past obligations, but changes that accept improve your life

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cash acts like those jumping beans. It can leap out of your pocket unpredictably. Avoid impetuous purchases and wait for better timing to enter into agreements or make major investments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bending over backward to please others creates an awkward position. If a key relationship is at a crossroads, don't choose a new direction. Sit tight; conditions will improve if you leave well enough alone.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Socialize with peers, but maintain some distance. The new contacts you make now could prove fickle or exasperating. Pay attention to insights about handling money, but do not act on them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't sweat the small stuff. Striving for perfection is admirable, but sometimes you simply must be gracious enough to overlook small, inconsequential flaws. Lock up your piggy bank.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't be prodded into impulsive action by unfounded fears. A favorite partner who might seem preoccupied or distant is working behind the scenes to enrich your joint bank account.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't make any waves that could drown your chances to get ahead. Tackle baffling problems or work by yourself. You can pinpoint the source of trouble, but should bide your time before acting.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Not every door leads to opportunity. If you suffer from an uncontrollable urge to seek greener pastures, remember that the gate might lock behind you. Outside influences require your undivided attention.
