Idaho Officials Prep for Execution

A federal judge could decide as early as today whether or not Idaho's method of lethal injection meets constitutional muster.

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • For 24 years, Paul Ezra Rhoades has lived alone in a 7-foot by 12-foot room, forced to talk through the toilet pipes if he wants to chat with fellow inmates. Each day he is afforded one hour to see the sky and feel the fresh air, albeit from inside a small chain-link cage.

The solitude isn't the punishment he was proscribed for the 1987 murders of Susan Michelbacher and Stacy Baldwin — it's just a byproduct. The punishment may come Friday, when Rhoades is scheduled to die by lethal injection for his crimes. Rhoades was also convicted of the 1987 murder of 20-year-old Nolan Haddon, but in that case Rhoades was sentenced to life in prison as part of a plea agreement.

Nolan Haddon's mom, Julie Haddon, says she plans to attend the execution. That will let her stop thinking about Rhoades, she said, though she'll never stop thinking about her boy.

For years, Idaho residents murmured that no one would ever be executed in the Gem State. The last execution — that of Keith Eugene Wells — only happened in 1994 because he gave up his remaining appeals and Rhoades asked to be put to death. The previous execution was in 1957 — more than a half-century ago.

Idaho Department of Correction officials, however, knew otherwise. Idaho Maximum Security Institution warden Randy Blades began emailing companies that sell anesthetic drugs in March, according to court documents, looking for someone willing to sell either sodium thiopental or pentobarbital to be used in an execution.

Here's Your Diploma — Oh, and Your Debt Is Due

The average Idaho student graduated college last year with more than $24,000 in student loan debt. The White House now seeks to ease that burden.

Like many college students, 24-year-old Kari Rands is turning to federal student loans to help pay for college.

Rands, who's from Kimberly and is a senior at Idaho State University, received some scholarships and grants. But that wasn't enough to cover all the costs of going to college.

"My parents weren't helping me monetarily for school, so I had to do it myself," she said.

Rands has both federal subsidized and unsubsidized loans.

"I don't have to pay either of those right now," she said, but that will change soon. She's graduating in May and borrowers generally have to start making payments six months after graduation.

In 2010, college graduates in Idaho had an average of $24,178 in student loan debt. That's slightly below the national average, according to a report from The Institute for College Access and Success.

As a result of a growing number of students who are leaving college with debt, President Barack Obama recently announced a

T.F. Council to Weigh in on Redistricting Lawsuit

TIMES-NEWS

Issues of political representation and county solidarity will collide tonight when the Twin Falls City Council decides whether to join Twin Falls County's planned challenge of the state's new political boundaries.

It took two committees and nearly four months to draw the Gem State's new state legislative and congressional districts to reflect population swings revealed in the 2010 census. To ensure that each of us has equal political representation, decade-old boundaries were pushed and pulled, setting the stage for a statehouse shakeup during the 2012 election.

One is expected to come as early as this week from Twin Falls County officials who saw their turf carved into three different legislative districts in the approved plan. One district is basically the city of Twin Falls, as its 44,000 residents are just about perfect to make up one district. The other two

In this April 9, 1987 photo, deputies escort Paul Ezra Rhoades from his appearance in Bingham County Magistrate Court in Blackfoot. Rhoades' time in a cell will likely end soon, when he is scheduled to die by lethal injection for his crimes.

Execution

The drugs have been difficult to get since U.S. manufacturers stopped selling them to prisons a few years ago; Blades eventually located a company in India that would sell it to a U.S. business that would then re-sell the drugs to Idaho.

Meanwhile, Idaho Bureau of Prisons deputy chief Jeff Zmuda was looking for people to serve on Idaho's execution team. Shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear Rhoades' final appeals on Oct. 11, Zmuda was able to find enough qualified people to fill the medical team (charged with prepping Rhoades for the injection) and the execution team (charged with actually administering the chemicals) but he doesn't have any substitutes ready in case someone backs out, Zmuda told a federal judge last week.

Rhoades' attorneys with the Federal Defenders of Idaho have also been working around the clock, trying to prove that Idaho's method of lethal injection doesn't meet constitutional muster. A federal judge could decide as early as Monday whether they will prevail.

Idaho Department of Correction spokesman Jeff Ray has been busy trying to coordinate a flood of media inquiries, setting up sites for protesters near the maximum security prison outside of Boise that houses Rhoades, and making sure reporters have had background checks and know the rules before they're allowed on-site.

The day before the execution, Warden Blades will begin a series of checks, examining everything from the climate controls and lighting in the execution chamber to the clock in the room where the execution team will remain. Staff radios will be checked. The defibrillator — needed in case Rhoades has a heart attack before he is executed, or in case the execution is called off after it's begun — will be checked for proper functioning. Workers in the prison kitchen will be prepped to take Rhoades' final meal order.

The day of the execution, if it moves forward, will be highly choreographed. People involved will start arriving at the prison campus at 4 a.m. or earlier. Protesters will be directed to the parking lots reserved for pro- and anti-death penalty advocates, while news media will be sent to a command tent at an adjoining prison. Medical staffers will offer Rhoades a light sedative, just as they have been doing since the death warrant was issued three weeks ago.

By 8 a.m., assuming all goes according to the Idaho Department of Correction's plan, Rhoades will already be strapped to a gurney in the execution chamber, the witnesses in place to watch the lethal injection. The warden will read the death warrant, Rhoades will be given the chance to make a final statement, the warden will double-check that Rhoades hasn't been given a stay or clemency, and the execution team will trigger the injection of the chemicals from an adjacent room. Within 20 minutes, according to the Idaho Department of Correction's plan, Rhoades will be pronounced dead.

Rhoades has already been denied clemency by Idaho's Parole Commission. Now his main chance at reprieve comes from the federal court, where he is suing over Idaho's method of lethal injection. Rhoades contends Idaho's three-drug method of execution can be easily botched, causing extreme pain; the state counters that the system is similar to that used in other states, where it has already been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Ronald Bush could rule as early as Monday on whether to temporarily halt Rhoades' execution while the court case proceeds.

split rural Twin Falls County to the east and west, combining it with other counties.

Here's the county's beef — the population centers of those districts would be in Mountain Home and Burley, respectively. In the future, a Mountain Home-based legislator representing Buhl may not be as familiar with water issues surrounding Thousand Springs-area trout farms as the issues at Mountain Home Air Force Base.

The question Twin Falls officials will have to decide is whether they're happy with the current plan. On the plus side, it guarantees that one senator and two representatives who live within the city's limits will eventually represent the city in the Capitol. On the downside, it also means that the surrounding county could lose locally grown political clout if current area legislators lose future elections to candidates who hail from the east or west.

A downtown gathering place

After nearly a year of discussion and work, a new design for the city's downtown fountain could get the go-ahead tonight.

The current fountain at the intersection of Main Avenue and Hansen Street South serves as a warm-weather gathering place for events such as the Twin Falls Tonight summer concert series.

Aside from a new design, plans pushed by the Twin Falls Community Foundation would add public restrooms to the site. The project's total cost is estimated at $376,000.

The council won't be asked to foot the full bill for the proposed project, but it will be asked to build the restrooms for $58,000 and fund ongoing maintenance of the improved facilities.

Appointment time

The council is also expected to confirm two appointments to the Citizens Finance and Planning Committee.

The five-person committee was formed in September 2010 to scour city finances and provide an added layer of input on city budgeting and spending decisions.

A city review committee has recommended that original committee member Darrell Buffaloe, a retired college educator, be re-appointed to a three-year term.

Joining Buffaloe, if confirmed by the council, will be committee newcomer William Baxter Jr., a certified public accountant and commercial lending officer with Banner Bank.

Idaho Falls Ponders New Rules for Beekeeping

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • The city of Idaho Falls is another step closer to allowing the practice of beekeeping inside city limits.

This week, the city council approved on first reading an ordinance that would let residents keep honeybees.

Proponents say the city's rule banning bees is outdated and fails to consider the various benefits to healthy bee populations.

Resident Janeil Kunz has spearheaded the ordinance change, arguing more liberal policies not only benefits would-be beekeepers hoping to produce their own honey but gardeners all across town that gain from bees pollination skills.

The council must approve the ordinance one more time before the changes go into effect.

Idaho Federal Judges Face Increased Workloads

BOISE (AP) • Idaho's two federal court judges are facing increased workloads to handle cases in a state that has more than doubled in population since Congress approved an additional district judgeship.

Officials tell the Idaho Business Review that the size of the court hasn't kept pace with the increase in case filings. Idaho's population in 1960 was about 700,000 residents, and is now 1.5 million.

Chief District Judge B. Lynn Winmill and District Judge Edward J. Lodge are the state's two federal judges. The court also has two magistrate judges and two retired magistrates to manage caseloads. The district judges handle felony criminal cases, while the magistrate judges handle civil cases, criminal misdemeanor cases and other criminal motions.

"I have my own standards, but it's getting very, very hard to meet my standards," Winmill said. "I want to have my decisions out in 30 days. Historically, I've done OK — until last year."

Rules that require speedy trials mean district judges have to resolve criminal cases first, delaying civil cases. Complex cases can tie up district judges, leading to visiting federal court judges from out of state handling some Idaho cases.

"That means non-Idaho judges are deciding Idaho cases," said U.S. Attorney Wendy Olson.

The court in 2008 listed a 96 percent increase in visiting judge hours. Those judges conducted 22 civil and criminal trials in 2008, and 15 civil and criminal trials in 2009.

District Court records show that in 2008, there were 532 weighted case filings per judgeship. A weighted case requires more time because of its complexity. Winmill said his weighted case filings are closer to 600 now.

Idaho, along with North Dakota and Vermont, are the only states with just two district judges.

Student Loans

"Pay as You Earn" proposal.

His plan aims to cap monthly payments at 10 percent of one's discretionary income beginning in 2014 — down from the current 15 percent. That could affect about 1.6 million borrowers.

The proposal also calls for forgiving borrower's loans after 20 years of payment — less than the current 25 years.

Jennifer Zimmers, director of student financial aid at the College of Southern Idaho, said the announcement about the changes can be misleading because income-based repayment already exists.

Obama's proposal, she said, would just adjust some of those requirements.

"Students just weren't aware of the plan, so they think it's a new thing," she said.

Last year, CSI students took out a total of about 3,000 loans in order to pay for their college education.

"We determine how much they're eligible for based on their need," Zimmers said. "They also have to go through entrance counseling so they know what they're getting into."

As part of the counseling, financial aid staff members also inform students of the consequences if they're unable to repay their loans.

"I was pretty familiar with the financial aid process based on the experience we've already had there," she said.

Incoming students are sometimes offered a large amount in loans, she said, but they shouldn't necessarily accept the whole amount.

Authorities Investigating Death at Women's Prison

POCATELLO (AP) • Authorities in southeast Idaho say they are investigating the death of a 48-year-old inmate at the Pocatello Women's Correctional Center.

The Idaho Department of Correction in a news release says Cheryl Ann Spellmeyer was found unconscious in her cell about 10 a.m. Wednesday with an apparent self-inflicted mark from a binding around her neck.

Department spokesman Jeff Ray says prison officials began life-saving measures and called paramedics. Spellmeyer was transported to Portneuf Medical Center where she was pronounced dead at 3:10 p.m.

LETHAL DRUGS STOLEN FROM E. IDAHO ANIMAL SHELTER

POCATELLO (AP) • Somebody broke into the Pocatello Animal Shelter in eastern Idaho and stole a safe containing medication used to end the lives of old and seriously injured animals, shelter workers say.

Assistant Manager Danielle Garcia told KIFI-TV that human lives will be at risk if whoever stole the safe mistakes the drugs for pain medication.

"So all of the drugs that were in the safe, which is the euthanasia medicine, was taken," Garcia said. "Unfortunately that is a very, very dangerous medicine."

Police are investigating and have dusted for fingerprints around a metal door at the back of the shelter that was forced open.

"It's a lethal drug, and as far as street value or people using it on the street it's not anything I've ever heard of," Garcia said. "It's used for one purpose, and it's definitely something you don't want to play around with."

Garcia says that without the drugs, shelter workers won't be able to humanely end the lives of an old or injured pets brought to the shelter.

"If they bring it here and it needs to be put down we don't have the capability of doing it," Garcia said. "And so animals have to suffer because of that, and that's a horrible sad thing."

Boise State Drops To 10th In BCS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oregon charged back into national championship contention, jumping to fourth place in the BCS standings Sunday after its big victory over Stanford.

LSU and Oklahoma State, both unbeaten, have the top two spots locked down and are on a path to meet in the BCS title game if they can stay perfect.

Alabama is third hoping for a stumble by the top two, Oregon jumped from seventh last week to fourth with its 53-30 victory against Stanford.

The losses by Stanford and Boise State allowed Oklahoma to inch into fifth.

Boise State's loss dropped the Broncos to 10th and gives them little hope to reach the BCS again. Undefeated Houston from Conference USA is 11th, solid position to be this year's BCS buster if it can keep winning.

Boise State was upset 36-35 by Mountain West Conference rival TCU. The Broncos missed a 39-yard field goal as time expired.

One champion from the leagues without automatic BCS bids — such as C-USA and the MWC — can earn an automatic berth by finishing in the top 12 of the final standings.

Houston would become the first Conference USA team to play in one of the four marquee bowl games if record-breaking quarterback Case Keenum and the Cougars can stay unbeaten through the toughest part of their schedule.

Houston closes with SMU and a road game against Tulsa. If the Cougars win the CUSA West, the championship game opponent will likely be Southern Miss, 20th in the latest BCS standings.

Back at the top of the standings, LSU is No. 1 in both polls (Harris and coaches') and tied for first with Oklahoma State in the computer ratings the BCS uses to determine which teams play for the national title.

Oklahoma State is second in each poll.

SMITH'S DEFENSIVE GEM LIFTS 49ERS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO • Statement game, you bet. Just what the San Francisco 49ers wanted to show they're a legitimate contender.

Justin Smith batted down Eli Manning's pass in the closing seconds of the New York quarterback's latest comeback try, and San Francisco stopped the Giants on fourth down for a 27-20 victory in Sunday's NFC showdown.

With his team trailing, Manning completed a pair of long fourth-down passes and got the Giants to the red zone with 1:53 to go. Unlike last week's rally by New York (6-3) at New England, Smith thwarted the final chance with a leaping right-handed smack of the ball on fourth-and-2 from the 10.

The 49ers (8-1) won this one without relying on star running back Frank Gore, whose franchise-record streak of five straight games with 100 yards rushing ended with a knee injury and his first career game with zero yards.

Jim Harbaugh's NFC West-leading Niners rolled off their seventh straight victory to extend their best start since 1997, and matched the defending Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers for the most wins in the NFL.

Vernon Davis leaped from the 4-yard line over safety Kenny Phillips into the end zone to complete a go-ahead 31-yard touchdown catch early in the fourth quarter.

Kendall Hunter ran for a 27-yard touchdown in the fourth, moments after Carlos Rogers made his second interception of the day.

That was one of the best comebacks in NFL playoff history and a monumental collapse for the Giants.

Tebow Needs Just Two Completions To Beat K.C.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • The Kansas City Chiefs knew what was coming, even after the Denver Broncos' top two running backs went down with injuries. Their AFC West rivals were going to keep running behind Tim Tebow until the Chiefs proved they could stop them.

Just when it looked like they finally did, Tebow went to the air.

The former Heisman Trophy winner connected with Eric Decker on a 56-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter, helping the Broncos to a humbling — even humiliating — 17-10 defeat of Kansas City.

"It's just a mindset. It's a low-risk offense. It's not an indictment on Tim Tebow or whoever our quarterback is," Broncos coach John Fox said. "It's just whatever is working for us. If it ain't broke, don't fix it. We tried to possess the ball and keep our defense fresh."

Willis McGahee went down with a hamstring injury on the Broncos' first offensive series, and Knowshon Moreno left later in the first quarter with a knee injury. That left journeyman Lance Ball to tote the ball 30 times for 96 yards, churning up the Chiefs' banged-up defense.

Tebow finished 2 of 8 for 69 yards, but added 44 yards and a score on the ground, as the Broncos (4-5) moved into a tie with Kansas City and San Diego behind AFC West-leading Oakland (5-4).

"I'm not trying to send a message," said Tebow, who is 3-1 since taking over as the starter. "I'm just trying to be a football player. We can improve from what we did today and get better."

Pacquiao Escapes With A Win, But Questions Remain

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS • The 28 stitches over his right eye weren't enough to keep Manny Pacquiao from headlining his own post-fight concert, which went on as usual into the early morning hours on the Las Vegas Strip.

They certainly won't keep him from his next fight, though that's the only sure thing when it comes to Pacquiao's immediate future.

He escaped with a win Saturday night against Juan Manuel Marquez, but that

Edwards Maintains Slim Chase Lead

AVONDALE, Ariz. • While Carl Edwards and Tony Stewart have gone round-for-round in their race for the Sprint Cup title, Kasey Kahne has quietly turned his performance up a notch outside of the championship spotlight.

Kahne's performance the last nine weeks has trailed only the two title contenders, and on Sunday, he finally got a win to show for his efforts.

Kahne snapped an 81-race winless streak with his victory at Phoenix International Raceway, where Edwards and Stewart finished second and third to keep the title race tight headed into next weekend's season finale.

"If I'm in a racecar, I want to do the best that I can," Kahne said, crediting crew chief Kenny Francis for giving him strong Toyotas that have allowed him "to perform with and run with Carl and Tony, who have been probably the two best."

They've been the only two drivers better than Kahne, and one of them will officially unseat five-time defending NASCAR champion Jimmie Johnson next Sunday at Homestead.

Edwards will take a three-point lead over Stewart into the 36th and final race of the season, marking the closest championship battle since the Chase for the Sprint Cup only tells part of the story. Seemingly invincible over the past three years, he looked anything but in scoring a majority decision over his Mexican nemesis in a win that enraged both Marquez and thousands of his supporters who packed the MGM Grand arena.

Pacquiao

Somewhere, Floyd Mayweather Jr. had to be watching. Somewhere, Mayweather had to be wondering.

If Marquez could more than hold his own against Pacquiao by counter punching him every minute of the fight, what would stop Mayweather from doing the same? If Marquez did everything against Pacquiao except win, why not finally take dibs on next and finish the job?

It's boxing, of course, so nothing is ever that simple. In almost getting beat, though, Pacquiao may have done more to make a megafight with Mayweather than with any of his big wins in recent years.

Pacquiao has trouble with counter punchers, as his fight with Marquez clearly showed. And Mayweather is one of the best — if not the best — counter puncher in the sport.

"The style of Mayweather would get very complicated for Pacquiao," said Marquez, who has fought both men.

The style of Marquez certainly was very complicated for Pacquiao, who needed to win a few late rounds to pull out a decision almost as close as the one he won from Marquez in their fight three years ago. Pacquiao won the fight by sheer aggression, though Marquez seemed to land the harder punches, especially with his right hand.

One judge scored the fight even, as did The Associated Press. Two others had Pacquiao winning, 115-113 and 116-112. When the decision was announced, an infuriated Marquez stormed from the ring in protest, and fans started throwing beer bottles toward the ring.

"For me the best judges are the audience and you see how they responded," Marquez said. "I don't know what type of performance I need to give. It was a robbery once again."

Marquez may have only himself to blame for that. He came into the ring still fuming over the draw Pacquiao got against him seven years ago and the split decision Pacquiao won in 2008. He had to know most of the rounds were so close they were difficult to score, and that judges more often than not favor the fighter moving forward against the fighter moving backward when all things are equal.

Still, after listening to his corner tell him he was winning the fight, he came out slow in the final round. Neither man did much in a round when they might have been expected to let it all loose, but if Marquez would have fought a little harder and won the 12th round on two scorecards he would have gotten a draw.

"It could have gone either way," said Freddie Roach, Pacquiao's trainer. "I thought Manny edged it out in the last two rounds."

NASCAR

championship format made its debut in 2004.

The two were nearly giddy discussing the title race as they sat side-by-side in the post-race news conference.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's a dead heat going in there," said Stewart. "I want to go to Homestead tomorrow and start. I want tomorrow to be Friday. I'm pumped up, I'm excited about it and ready to go."

So was Edwards.

"This is going to be a battle. I truly believe it's going to be a good race," Edwards said. "That place is magical for us. I really enjoy going there. I hope it comes down to the fastest guy winning the race."

Stewart, winner of four Chase races this season, dominated Sunday at Phoenix and led 160 of the 312 laps. But he had to pit for gas with 18 laps remaining, and was forced to work his way back to the front. He needed a late pass of Jeff Burton to finish third, right behind Edwards.

"I wasn't going to give him the spot. He earned it and he got it," Burton said.

It was a critical pass, as it picked up another point for Stewart and kept his deficit at three points.

"We had an awesome day. We came up two spots shy. I don't know how you could have asked for a better day," he said. "We led the most laps, we were on the same pace we were last week, just to have a perfect day. Just fought as hard as we could all day."

Edwards did, too, despite having to chase Stewart most of the race. He's not faltered once with the two-time champion bearing down on him, and he'll go to Homestead with his first Cup championship in reach.

Edwards is a two-time Homestead winner and drives for Roush Fenway Racing, which has won seven of the last nine races at Homestead. Stewart, trying to become the first owner/driver since Alan Kulwicki in 1992 to win the championship, won the first two Cup races at Homestead in 1999 and 2000.

"It's the best points battle I've been a part of at this level, so it's fun for me," Edwards said. "I still don't understand why we're both running so good. It's pretty neat. Seems like subconsciously we're both able to dig down and our teams are able to give us what we need and everybody has been performing at a high level.

"It's been neat that this battle has brought out the best in us."

Sunday officially marked the end of Johnson's reign: He finished 14th and was mathematically eliminated from title contention.

NFL ROUNDUP

Seahawks Send Baltmore Stumbling Yet Again

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEATTLE • Steven Hauschka matched a franchise record with five field goals, Marshawn Lynch scored on a 1-yard plunge and Seattle forced three turnovers in defeating Baltimore, 22-17.

A week after staking claim to the lead of the AFC North with a thrilling last-second win at Pittsburgh, the Ravens flopped on the West Coast in an all too similar fashion to letdowns twice already this season.

After routing Pittsburgh in its opener, the Ravens (6-3) were dominated in a loss at Tennessee. Just a few weeks ago, after an impressive win over AFC South-leading Houston, the Ravens lost to Jacksonville.

SAINTS 26, FALCONS 23

ATLANTA • John Kasay kicked a 26-yard field goal in overtime to give New Orleans a victory over Atlanta after Falcons coach Mike Smith decided to go for it on fourth down deep in his own territory Sunday.

The Falcons (5-4) rallied from a 10-point deficit in the fourth quarter, tying it on Matt Bryant's 27-yard field goal on the final play of regulation.

CARDINALS 21, EAGLES 17

PHILADELPHIA • John Skelton threw a 5-yard TD pass to Early Doucet with 1:53 left to lift Arizona.

Michael Vick had another so-so performance and the Eagles (3-6) blew a fourth-quarter lead for the fifth time this season.

STEELERS 24, BENGALS 17

CINCINNATI • Rashard Mendenhall ran for a pair of touchdowns, and Pittsburgh intercepted rookie Andy Dalton twice in the fourth quarter.

Pittsburgh (7-3) got a needed win by putting together long, balanced drives while thousands of Steelers fans waved Terrible Towels in the first sellout crowd of the season at Paul Brown Stadium.

BEARS 37, LIONS 13

CHICAGO • Charles Tillman and Major Wright returned interceptions for touchdowns early in the third quarter, and Chicago picked off Matthew Stafford four times.

The four interceptions by Stafford matched his season total entering the game and helped knock the Lions (6-3) into a second-place tie with Chicago in the NFC North. He was also involved in a skirmish that led to an ejection of Chicago's D.J. Moore early in the fourth quarter.

By then, the Bears (6-3) had locked up their fourth straight win thanks to a dominant defensive effort and another punt return for a touchdown by Devin Hester, who ran one back 82 yards. That extended his NFL record to 12.

JAGUARS 17, COLTS 3

INDIANAPOLIS • Blaine Gabbert threw for a touchdown and Maurice Jones-Drew ran for another score to keep Indianapolis winless.

Jones-Drew carried 25 times for 114 yards and became the second player in franchise history to top 6,000 yards rushing. It was the first road win of the season for Jacksonville (3-6).

Indianapolis remained the NFL's last winless team, dropping to 0-10 for the first time since 1997.

Gabbert hooked up with Jarrett Dillard on an 11-yard TD pass late in the third quarter to break a 3-3 tie, and Jones-Drew capped an 8-yard drive with a 3-yard touchdown run late in the fourth to seal it.

TEXANS 37, BUCCANEERS 9

TAMPA, Fla. • Matt Schaub threw for two long touchdowns, while Arian Foster, Ben Tate and Derrick Ward each ran for scores to help AFC South-leading Houston.

The Texans (7-3) extended their winning streak while playing without star receiver Andre Johnson to four consecutive games and head into their bye week with their best record through 10 games. The Bucs (4-5) have lost three straight and four of five following a 3-1 start.

TITANS 30, PANTHERS 3

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Chris Johnson ran for a season-high 130 yards and a touchdown, and Tennessee used a stifling defense to frustrate rookie Cam Newton.

The Titans (5-4) sacked Newton five times and took away Carolina's long passing game. Carolina (2-7) came in ranked fifth in the league on offense and first in plays of 20-plus yards, but the Titans limited Newton to 209 yards passing and held Steve Smith, the NFC's leading receiver, to 33 yards.

COWBOYS 44, BILLS 7

ARLINGTON, Texas • Tony Romo guided touchdown drives on his first four possessions, throwing for the score on three of them, and Terence Newman returned one of his two interceptions for a touchdown.

DOLPHINS 20, REDSKINS 9

MIAMI • Reggie Bush scored two touchdowns and Miami twice intercepted Rex Grossman to earn their first home victory in nearly a year.

The Dolphins ended a franchise-record streak of seven consecutive losses in Miami since last Nov. 14.

Grossman was a surprise starter, replacing John Beck four weeks after being benched.

RAMS 13, BROWNS 12

CLEVELAND • Phil Dawson missed a 22-yard field goal attempt after a bounced snap with just over two minutes left as Cleveland bungled another chance to win a game.

PATRIOTS 37, JETS 16

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. • Tom Brady threw three touchdown passes, including two to Rob Gronkowski, and the New England Patriots took control of the AFC East with a convincing 37-16 victory over the New York Jets on Sunday night.

After the Jets got within a score at 23-16 early in the fourth quarter, Brady coolly led the Patriots (6-3) down the field on an 84-yard drive that was capped by an 8-yard touchdown catch by Deion Branch.

OPINION

"They (the abductors) simply told me to cooperate, that they were going to ask for a ton of cash for me."

Washington Nationals catcher Wilson Ramos after he was rescued Friday, following his kidnapping in Venezuela Wednesday night

THEIR VIEW

Cuba's Capitalist Road

Since succeeding his brother Fidel as president in 2008, Raul Castro has repeatedly promised to adopt market reforms intended to help save Cuba's ailing economy.

And he has delivered, for the most part, slowly but steadily. The year he took over, Castro made it easier for Cubans to buy cellphones. Last year, the government agreed to increase the number of permits issued for privately run barbershops, beauty salons, restaurants and other businesses in the hopes of spurring grass-roots economic activity. At the same time, it approved a plan to let foreign investors rent state-owned land, a move intended to help boost international tourism. And last month, a new law took effect legalizing the private sale of autos.

Still, unlike in Vietnam or China, where ideologues have made dramatic concessions to economic reform, Cuba's leaders have been much less aggressive about moving away from a state-dominated economy. At least until this week.

Starting Thursday, Cubans will be able to buy and sell their homes, and even set their own prices, without government intervention. That's a sea change in a country where, until recently, private ownership was strictly forbidden and the accumulation of wealth considered a sin against the revolution. Fidel Castro confiscated most land titles after the 1959 revolution. Since then, Cuba's version of property rights has amounted to little more than allowing citizens to occupy or swap homes. Even bequeathing homes to relatives who did not live in them was prohibited.

The new law allowing the sale of property will not satisfy all critics, especially those in Miami's exile community. That would require the removal of the communist government. Certainly, much more than a smattering of small businesses and a real estate market is needed to improve life for most Cubans. Residents still rely on some government help and employment to survive — something Raul Castro has admitted the government can no longer afford. The Soviet subsidies that kept the country afloat are long gone. Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez has stepped in to fill the role of Cuba's sugar daddy, providing oil. And remittances from Cubans abroad have helped sustain families still on the island.

Surely the new law offers some hope. Owning private property offers a path to prosperity for individual Cubans. China and Vietnam have given Cuba a model to follow as it moves toward a mixed economy. Let's hope Castro continues to follow it.

THEIR VIEW

Rick Perry's Latest Debate Gaffe Could be the Fatal One

In retrospect, the Rick Perry campaign might have been wiser to follow its instinct to pull its candidate from all these nettlesome debates.

If what happened to Texas' longest-serving governor Wednesday night in Rochester, Mich., wasn't a campaign-killer, it was the next closest thing. And that mortal wounding came on top of previous odd behavior and verbal stumbles, when he could least afford it.

Perry began ticking off the three federal departments he would abolish as president: Commerce, Education and ... oops. The painful 53-second pause left Perry twisting on his tongue for a word he's spoken hundreds of times during this campaign: Energy.

Perhaps he should have written it on his palm with a Sharpie.

His campaign immediately knew it had a problem, sending the candidate himself into the post-debate media spin room. Before their longest night was over, Perry strategists would blitz an email to supporters — "We've all had human moments'' — that cited past verbal fumbles by two actual presidents, Barack Obama and Ronald Reagan.

Indeed, we've all had such moments of seizing up in front of an audience. We're all not running for president, and we're all not trying to resuscitate a campaign that opened at No. 1 with a bullet but has mostly shot itself in the foot since.

Do polls matter? They do in this GOP primary, in which three-fourths of Republicans still search for a conservative alternative to nominal front-runner Mitt Romney. How else to explain the resurgence of Newt Gingrich and the staying power of Herman Cain, dogged by multiple accusations of sexual harassment?

Perry, buoyed by a splashy entry and a $15 million fundraising haul in his first quarter, was seen as the likely not-Romney. On the surface, his stewardship of the Texas economy, his telegenic swagger and, important, his ability to raise money pushed him to the pole position.

What he never had, through decades of winning elections, is a grasp of policy intricacies solid enough to allow him to explain and persuade, a balance under pressure. That deficit, no secret here in Texas, has been exposed to his lasting detriment nationwide. It has been enough to counter almost every advantage he took with him from Austin.

In conservative Texas, he could steer clear of debates and inquisitive newspaper editorial boards and still win.

In the white-hot nationwide spotlight, with Perry's positives neutered by his own missteps, all he had left was his ability to attract campaign cash. His problem now, perhaps fatal, is that such a debate debacle creates the kind of YouTube moment that shakes the confidence of any unpledged money.

There are words to explain blowing a race that could have been his to win. We hope he can remember them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Election Bid Won't Be Her Last

I feel so fortunate to have had the opportunity to seek the office of Twin Falls City Council. Even though the journey did not lead to the outcome I had hoped, I am thankful for all I have gained and learned in the process. I definitely look forward to trying again in the near future.

I have so many people to thank. First, I want to thank my wonderful husband, Dave. Without his love and support, I would never have had enough courage to take a chance and get involved. He is truly the voice of reason that keeps me focused. Next I need to thank my wonderful treasurer and organizer, Sandy Hacking and her husband, Bill. I can never repay you for all you have done. I want to thank my children, parents and family members who gave so much to keep me going. I also want to thank my friends for all of their support.

Thank you Janice at Copy-It, Mike at Mikey's Graphics and Gary at Galaxy Awards for all of your fast, hard work. You guys are awesome. Genja at GG's Cakes and Confections and Brenda at Delightfully Made are two of the most talented "goody" makers ever. Thank you so much for donating your treats to help with my fundraising. I cannot thank Haley and Clint Evans at Hevan's Studio enough for the fantastic job they did on my photos. The compliments I have received on my pictures are numerous!

Thank you also to everyone who supported this campaign with financial contributions. I would never have been able to get my message out without your help. Lastly, thank you so very much to everyone who voted for me. I really thought we were going to pull it off. I am humbled at the amount of support I have received over the past few weeks. I promise we will try again.

SUZANNE HAWKINS

Candidate Thanks Election Supporters

First, let me say how blessed I feel to live in a country where anyone, including someone with only a high school education and continuing education in the school of hard knocks, can run for public office without persecution. I want to thank all of the men and women who have and are currently serving in the armed forces that protect our right and freedom to vote.

To the winners of the Kimberly City elections: Mayor-elect Tracy Armstrong, Councilwoman-elect Connie Sowka and Councilman-elect Jim Eisenhower — congratulations on a hard-won race. You have your work cut out for you; I know you will do great works for the good neighbors of Kimberly.

Lastly, but not in any way least, to all of the many supporters of my run for mayor, I offer a heartfelt thank you. Without your support and encouragement, I would never have made that growing step.

Trying to Atone for Mistake

Recently, I have lost my job at Parke's Funeral Home because I stole from the company. I am so sorry for what I have done, and I am trying to do all I can to make it right. I have hurt Mike Parke and all the other employees that work there by doing this and for that I apologize. My actions have probably made their lives a lot harder in the work place and this hurts me.

I am writing this piece to atone for my wrongdoing and to hopefully have someone read this and not make the same mistake.

I am also writing this for the youth of the area to know how fast life can change and to know to never do anything as stupid as what I have done. Life can change in an instant and without warning, so be careful and think before you act. Something like this could put you in prison and put a felony charge on your record forever. This could make it impossible to find a job in the future and make work at McDonald's not sound so bad.

I lost my job over something like this and it was something I was good at and something I loved doing. I hope one day to go back to it, but I must atone for my mistake and work on making things right again. Trust me on this, it's better to build trust rather than tear it down and fight to rebuild it.

This didn't only break the trust in me from my employer but from my family. No one needs that because without love and trust from your own parents, you have nothing. After dealing with what I am going through and seeing what I have put others though, I never wish to see anyone make the same mistake that I made. I hope everyone reads this and learns from it and never makes such a wrong decision.

Burley Candidate Appreciates Support

I would like to thank all those people that helped on my campaign and those individuals that supported me as I sought a seat on the Burley City Council.

As you know, fourth place in this election does not allow for me to represent you. However, I am excited for the three new city council members. I am certain that they will serve the citizens of Burley in a much more positive and professional way.

Flag Absent at City Park

Shame on the city of Twin Falls!

In June and July of this year, I participated in a project that is supposed to better the community. You would think the importance of July 4, Sept. 11, Nov. 11 and any other date, that one would see Old Glory flying everywhere.

While driving by City Park, I noticed the flags on the corner of Sixth and Shoshone. I then looked into the park and to my amazement, the Twin Falls City Flag Pole is bare. Will this service project ever be appreciated by those it benefits or should the project have been to tear the flag pole down?

Film Festival a Hit with N. Idaho Community

BY CAMERON RASMUSSON
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • The Panida Little Theater was bursting at the seams by the final block of last Saturday's Sandpoint Films Festival.

While the first two blocks of the short film showcase were well-attended, the final batch of movies surpassed expectations, completely selling out the venue. With filming locations ranging from Idaho to Minnesota to Italy and representatives from the documentary, comedy, horror and drama genres, the more than 30 films demonstrated more variety in the festival's sophomore year.

The filmmakers themselves proved just as diverse. Sandpoint Charter School student Talienna Darrow made her filmmaking debut in the family drama "Cost of Sorrow" and starred in a second SCS submission, "Cheats."

"(The screening) was definitely scary because you're always looking for ways to improve," Darrow said. "But it's also really gratifying to see it on the screen after putting countless hours into it."

Plenty of other debut filmmakers got a chance to show their artistic chops at the festival. Sixteen-year-old Stephen Byrum, who debuted his non-dialogue drama "The Victor" last month, entered his film into the festival for a second screening and a new audience.

"It was really interesting, because this is a much different audience than the one that turned out for the premiere," he said.

Others were film students with several years of formal training under their belts. "Limbo's" director William Knecht channeled David Lynch and classic "Twilight Zone" episodes to create the creepy "Limbo's," a stylish horror-thriller about a restaurant that carries a dark secret.

After "Limbo's," audience members were treated to a much different style of filming with "Idaho," animator Juliette Johnson's sardonic send-up of Gem State stereotypes. Originally created for University of Idaho classmates who treated her home state as a novelty, Johnson drew hundreds of animation frames herself to create the two-and-a-half minute short. Initially, she was worried her fellow Idaho residents wouldn't get in on the joke.

"I wanted to extrapolate and blow up expectations of Idaho," she said, later adding, "I was kind of worried people would take offense, but everyone ended up laughing throughout the short. That was a relief."

Attendees proved their good will by giving "Idaho" the audience choice award for the second block of movies.

In the third block, "Caffeinated," a comedy about an unlucky java-hound who can't acquire his morning fix, earned a similarly consistent rate of laughs, the audience choice award for the third block and the third-place festival prize of $100.

Writer and director Dan Walden used local coffee shops as filming locations for the eight minute short. "Caffeinated" provided some much needed comedy relief from second-place winner "Ana's Playground." Directed by Eric Howell, the short film is set in a fictional war-torn country and focuses on the affect of violence on children. Heavy and affecting in tone, "Ana's Playground" has been used as a tool for organizations assisting children in war-ravaged countries and was considered for an Academy Award nomination.

Finally, first-place prize and $300 went to the Italian film "The Noise of Snow." As the story of a man who can't bear the everyday noises of modern society, the 10-minute film featured a whimsical, fantastic edge and tight cinematography that impressed the festival's body of judges.

BSU Club Greenspeed Bests Its Own Speed Record in Vegetable-oil Fueled Truck

IDAHO STATESMAN

Boise State University's Greenspeed club broke it's own record Sunday, recording a speed of 155 miles per hour in a truck that runs on vegetable oil.

A day earlier, the truck built by the club became the "world's fastest vegetable oil-powered vehicle." Saturday's first run was clocked 139 miles per hour.

The team was competing at the Southern California Timing Association Event with its revamped 1998 Chevy S-10 pickup truck.

More than $125,000 in donations were used to build the truck, but the club is still looking for help with a permanent home, a trailer and other needs.

The team will compete next at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah next summer.

PLEA ENTERED IN CHILD ABUSE CASE

BY KEITH KINNAIRD
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • A Laclede man accused of hog-tying a 12-year-old Asperger syndrome sufferer pleaded not guilty Monday to felony injury to a child.

Shane Lee Crawford is scheduled to be tried in 1st District Court on Feb. 13. He was being held on a reduced bond.

Crawford is accused of forcing the preteen to the ground with an arm bar and binding his hands and feet together on Sept. 22. The alleged victim is a relative of the defendant.

Part of the incident was captured on video by the defendant's son.

The video footage was meant to help Crawford gain assistance in disciplining and containing the boy during Asperger-related outbursts. However, the footage was turned over to a school counselor, who forwarded it to authorities, according to court documents.

The incident occurred while Crawford was awaiting sentencing in another child endangerment case involving his son.

RENO TV SPORTS DIRECTOR DIES AFTER HIT-AND-RUN

BY MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • The sports director for Reno's CBS television affiliate died Sunday afternoon from injuries suffered in what authorities are calling a hit-and-run accident.

JK Metzger, 41, was struck by a vehicle while crossing a busy street late Saturday night near the football stadium where he had just covered Nevada's 42-28 victory over Hawaii, officers said.

Ryan Rhea, 23, of Sparks, was arrested Sunday and booked into the Washoe County Jail on one felony count of hit-and-run causing death and was not available for comment. Also, it was immediately clear whether he had a lawyer.

Investigators said alcohol appears to be a factor in the accident and additional charges may be filed pending results of blood tests.

Witnesses were able to provide a description of the vehicle, and a Washoe County sheriff's deputy located it a short time later.

Metzger had worked for KTVN-TV in Reno for nearly 14 years, and his death prompted the station to cancel all three of its regularly scheduled newscasts Sunday night.

"I can't begin to describe the shock and sadness we are feeling today in the Channel 2 newsroom," said Jason Pasco, KTVN's news director. "This is such a tremendous loss for us both professional and personally, but pales in comparison to the loss it is to his family."

Metzger is survived by his wife, Jaimie, and three young sons.

Nevada football coach Chris Ault and Athletic Director Cary Groth, as well as news personnel from other Reno television stations, issued statements praising Metzger.

Police: One Dead after Chase Ends in Gunfire

CRAIGMONT (AP) • Law enforcement officials in northern Idaho say a man fleeing in a stolen vehicle died following a 50-mile chase that ended in gunfire.

Idaho State Police have not said who fired the shots that killed the man Saturday evening. Police say the man had been released from jail earlier Saturday after being arrested on suspicion of drunken driving on Friday.

Police responded at about 5:15 p.m. Saturday to a one-vehicle crash outside Lewiston. Police tell the Lewiston Tribune that before they got there the man involved in the crash stole a pickup from another motorist.

Nez Perce Tribal Police say they spotted the pickup, but the man refused to pull over, continuing southbound on U.S. Highway 95. Spike strips flattened three tires, forcing the driver to stop near Ferdinand.

Queen Leads Annual Ceremony Honoring War Dead

Dressed in a black outfit brightened only by red poppy pins, Queen Elizabeth II led thousands of veterans and civilians in a solemn tribute to the country's war dead at the annual Remembrance Sunday ceremony. The service at central London's Cenotaph war memorial, held on a sunny autumn morning, is a focal point of nationwide observances to honor those who lost their lives in fighting. Similar ceremonies were held in dozens of towns and cities throughout Britain and military outposts in Afghanistan and around the world. The queen placed the first wreath at the foot of the memorial then bowed in front of the Cenotaph, with its inscription honoring "The Glorious Dead.'' She was followed by her husband, Prince Philip, her son, Prince Charles, and grandson Prince William.

Utah Man Receives War Medals 66 Years Late

BY JOSH LOFTIN
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • More than six decades after being freed from a Japanese prisoner of war camp, a Utah veteran was compelled to relive the horrors and triumphs of his World War II experience this month when he received a mysterious package containing seven military medals, including the Distinguished Service Cross and Silver Star.

The medals have become a source of pride for retired Army Capt. Tom Harrison, 93, since they arrived in a box with nothing more than a packing slip from a logistics center in Philadelphia on Nov. 4, which happened to be his 65th wedding anniversary. But they have also refreshed painful memories of the Bataan Death March, POW camps and the comrades he lost during the war or in the years since.

Harrison can talk at length about his time as a soldier in the Philippines. But he talks about it much like he talks about golf, focusing on small details — be it the flight of a well-hit tee shot or the day he met Gen. Douglass MacArthur — and the people that surrounded him. He doesn't dwell on his own valor.

After the bombing of Pearl Harbor forced the United States into the war, Harrison spent months fighting the Japanese before American and Filipino troops surrendered at the Battle of Bataan. He eventually survived, without lasting physical injury, the Bataan

Pro-Syrian regime protesters, shout slogans and hold portraits of Syrian President Bashar Assad, during a demonstration against the Arab League decision to suspend Syria, in Damascus, Syria, on Sunday. Tens of thousands of pro-regime demonstrators gathered in a Damascus square Sunday to protest the Arab League's vote to suspend Syria over its bloody crackdown on the country's eight-month-old uprising.

With Arab Vote, Isolation, Pressure Piles on Syria

Saturday's Arab League decision was a sharp rebuke to a regime that prides itself as a bastion of Arab nationalism, but it was unlikely to immediately end a wave of violence that the U.N. estimates has killed more than 3,500 people since mid-March.

BY ZEINA KARAM
Associated Press

BEIRUT • Syria's embattled regime called for an urgent Arab summit Sunday as it faced growing isolation — not only by the West but by its neighbors — amid mounting pressure to end its bloody crackdown against an eight-month uprising.

The crisis threatened to raise regional tensions, with Turkey summoning a Syrian diplomat in protest and sending a plane to evacuate nonessential personnel after a night of attacks on several foreign embassies by government supporters angry over the Arab League decision to suspend their country's membership.

The 22-member bloc's rare, near unanimous vote — only Lebanon, Yemen and Syria were opposed — put Damascus in direct confrontation with other Arab powerhouses, including Qatar and Saudi Arabia, who were pushing for the suspension and constitutes a major boost to the country's opposition.

Tens of thousands of government supporters poured into the streets of Damascus and other cities — a turnout helped by the closure of businesses and schools.

Economist Monti to Quickly Form New Italian Government

BY FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press

Monti

ROME (AP) • Economist Mario Monti accepted the monumental task Sunday of trying to form a new government that can rescue Italy from financial ruin, expressing confidence that the nation can beat the crisis if its people pull together.

His selection came a day after Silvio Berlusconi reluctantly resigned as premier, bowing out after world markets pummeled Italy's borrowing ability, reflecting a loss of faith in the 75-year-old media mogul's leadership. Berlusconi quit after the Italian parliament approved new reform measures demanded by the European Union and central bank officials — but even those are not considered enough to right Italy's ailing economy.

"There is an emergency, but we can overcome it with a common effort,'' Monti told the nation, shortly after Italy's president formally asked him to see if he can muster enough political support to lead the country out of one of its most trying hours since World War II.

"In a moment of particular difficulty, Italy must win the challenge to bounce back, we must be an element of strength and not weakness in the European Union, of which we are founders,'' he added.

Monti must now draw up a Cabinet, lay out his priorities, and see if he has enough support in Parliament to govern. Rival political parties offered various degrees of support, including one demand from Berlusconi's party — the largest in Parliament — that his government last only as long enough as it takes to heal Italy's finances and revive the economy.

The 68-year-old economics professor is no pushover, earning a reputation for staring down challenges as a tough EU competition commissioner. But he'll have to win a confidence vote in Parliament before he can lead the nation.

Monti told reporters he will carry out his task "with a great sense of responsibility and service toward this nation.'' Italy must heal its finances and resume growth because "we owe it to our children, to give them a concrete future of dignity and hope.''

POLICE MOVE IN ON PORTLAND PARK AS PROTESTERS REMAIN

BY TERRENCE PETTY and JONATHAN J. COOPER
Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. • In a tense escalation of the Occupy Portland protest, police in riot gear Sunday surrounded demonstrators in a downtown park area after hundreds of people defied the mayor's order to leave the park by midnight.

By early afternoon, officers had mostly surrounded the camp where the protesters were holding a "general assembly'' meeting to discuss their next moves following the eviction order.

Some officers used nightsticks to push people away from the encampment and used loudspeakers to warn that anyone who resisted risked arrest and "may also be subject to chemical agents and impact weapons.'' Demonstrators chanted "we are a peaceful protest.''

Police could be seen carrying at least one protester away from the park. Another man was taken away on a stretcher; he was alert and talking to paramedics, and raised a peace sign to fellow

Death March and three-plus years as a Japanese prisoner of war.

"It brings back memories, but also makes you feel like somebody appreciated your service," Harrison said while sitting in his living room with the medals. "It also reminds me of the people I served with in the Philippines. I'm the only survivor from my unit now. I've lost most of my friends."

About 20 years ago, Harrison "shook the cobwebs loose" on his war experiences by writing a book called "Survivor." That has made it easier — but not easy — to talk about the suffering, the disease and the starvation that defined the years of imprisonment.

The medals prompted new interest from his family about the war, Harrison said, although he is reluctant to talk at length about his personal experiences. Instead, Harrison holds up a Presidential Unit Citation as one medal he was particularly pleased to receive because it recognized the soldiers he served with and trained.

His leadership and bravery earned him two of the Army's highest honors, the Distinguished Service Cross and Silver Star. While those medals are only given for extraordinary acts of selfless valor, Harrison said he doesn't remember — or is reluctant to explain — what he did to earn them.

"I don't like to talk about what makes a hero. It's not something I like to broadcast," Harrison said. "But my kids are impressed, and my grandkids say they (the medals) are 'awesome.'"

Giant Christmas Tree Snaps During Hoisting

It's the Drought That Stole Christmas. Macy's at Atlanta's Lenox Mall must cut down a new Christmas tree after the 60-foot white pine selected for the holidays snapped while being hoisted atop the department store Sunday morning. Melissa Goff with Macy's said the store usually selects its tree from a Georgia forest, but drought conditions have made it difficult to find a healthy tree this year. She said the 11,000-pound tree was from Douglas County. She said a backup tree has been selected and will be brought in this week. The tree will be decorated between now and Thanksgiving Day, when the store will hold a lighting ceremony, a 63-year tradition. It's not the first time the store has had to get a backup tree: the 2004 tree also broke. — The Associated Press

Syria

"You Arab leaders are the tails of Obama," read a banner held at a massive pro-regime rally in Damascus accusing the Arab League of bowing to pressure from the U.S. president.

Violence also continued elsewhere, with activists reporting at least 14 people killed in shootings by security forces in several parts of the country. The British-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said seven of the deaths occurred in Hama when security forces fired on a group of opposition protesters who infiltrated a pro-government rally in the central city.

Syria's call for an Arab summit to discuss the country's spiraling political unrest was seen as another possible bid by President Bashar Assad to buy time as he faces snowballing punitive action over his crackdown that the U.N. estimates has killed more than 3,500 people since mid-March.

In a thinly veiled warning, the government said it was calling for the meeting "because the fallout from the Syrian crisis could harm regional security" — an apparent effort to play on concerns that Assad's ouster would spread chaos around the Middle East. In an interview with Britain's Sunday Telegraph last month, Assad warned of a regional "earthquake" if the West intervenes in his country's uprising.

But in a significant concession, Syria also invited Arab League officials to visit before its membership suspension was to take effect on Wednesday, and said they could bring any civilian or military observers they deem appropriate to oversee implementation of an Arab League plan for ending the bloodshed.

protesters, who responded with cheers. There was no immediate word on arrests.

"We were talking about what we were going to do and then they just started hitting people. Seems like a waste of resources to me," protester Mike Swain, 27, told The Associated Press.

Choya Adkison, 30, said police moved in after giving demonstrators a false sense of calm. They thought they had time to rest, relax and regroup, she said

"Camp was completely vulnerable, completely defenseless" when police moved in, she said. "I'm disappointed that they created a sense of trust by walking away and then completely trampled it."

Mayor Sam Adams had ordered the camp shut down Saturday at midnight, citing unhealthy conditions and the encampment's attraction of drug users and thieves.

The anti-Wall Street protesters and their supporters had flooded the park area even as authorities in other cities stepped up pressure against demonstrators, arresting dozens of people.

At one point overnight, the Portland crowd swelled to thousands. As dawn arrived, riot police had retreated and most of the crowds had gone home, but protesters who have been at the two parks since Oct. 6 were still there.

One of the organizers, Jim Oliver, said the night had been a victory for Occupy Portland.

"We stood up to state power," Oliver told the AP, standing on a corner opposite the camp.

Still, the camp was a shadow of what it was before Saturday. A large segment of the campers consisted of homeless people who had been drawn to the free food and shelter offered by Occupy Portland. They are gone, after outreach workers went through the camp to help them find shelter elsewhere.

And as the Saturday midnight eviction deadline neared, protesters themselves began dismantling tents.

Around 4 a.m., dozens of police formed a line across from demonstrators who had poured into the street. Protesters facing them appeared to be in festive spirits with some banging on drums and plastic pails, another clanging a cowbell while others danced in the streets as a man juggled nearby.

Italy

Berlusconi's party also demanded that only technocrats — not politicians — make up Monti's Cabinet in exchange for its crucial support.

Monti faces a daunting challenge — preventing an Italian default that could tear apart the 17-nation eurozone and send Europe and the U.S. into new recessions.

Italy's economy is hampered by high wage costs, low productivity, fat government payrolls, excessive taxes, choking bureaucracy, and an educational system that produces one of the lowest levels of college graduates among rich countries.

In addition, as the third-largest economy in the eurozone, Italy is considered too big for Europe to bail out like Greece, Portugal and Ireland have been.

The next Italian government needs to push through even more painful reforms and austerity measures to deal with euro1.9 trillion ($2.6 trillion) in debt — about 120 percent of the country's economic output. And many of those debts are coming due soon — Italy has to roll over more than euro300 billion ($410 billion) of its debts next year alone.

Some political forces, including some from Berlusconi's ranks and that of his allies, have been clamoring for early elections. But President Giorgio Napolitano cited approaching treasury bond auctions — one as early as Monday and other bonds maturing in the next few months — as a main reason he decided to "avoid early elections and the consequent government vacuum" until a new one could be formed.

Asked by journalists if he thought Monti could form his government by week's end, Napolitano responded positively.

The yield on Italian 10-year bonds fell to 6.48 percent Friday, below the crisis level of 7 percent reached earlier last week, a level that forced the three other EU nations into international bailouts.

Centrist and center-left parties in the opposition during Berlusconi's rule offered their support for Monti.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named children come within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on January 12, 2012 at 9:30 AM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of these children, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the children.

"Knowledge is proud that he has learned so much;
Wisdom is humble that he knows no more."
— William Cowper

Weak jump overcalls, especially when nonvulnerable, are all the rage these days. They gobble up vast tracts of bidding space, making detailed hand description difficult for opponents. But players, having developed weaponry with which to cope, are biting back.

Today's deal arose in Canada, where internationals Eric Murray and John Carruthers show what can be done in defense, in spite of the adverse vulnerability.

East, Murray, opened one club, Darren Wolpert made a weak jump overcall of two spades, and since a double would have been negative, Carruthers passed. Murray reopened with a takeout double, which Carruthers turned into penalties by passing yet again.

In response to his partner's opening bid, West led the club queen, on which Murray played the three, a request for a diamond switch, which he duly received.

On winning the diamond ace, Murray continued with the club ace, ruffed by South. Declarer's heart king was allowed to hold, but East captured the heart continuation with the ace to return the club king, ruffed and overruffed. East ruffed West's diamond switch, and South discarded a diamond on the club that came back. Carruthers ruffed, gave Murray another diamond ruff, trumped the fifth club, and that let East ruff West's fourth diamond with the spade ace.

With the spade king still to come, East and West had made all seven of their trumps separately, as well as a trick in each other suit. Yes, 600 was available for East-West in three no-trump, but the 1300 gained on defense was surely far more satisfying.

ANSWER: Declarer's jump to slam without using Blackwood suggests he may have a lot of shape, perhaps with a diamond void. If that is so, maybe a club lead will let you get in with the heart king to give your partner a club ruff. There may be other leads that work, but the club lead is surely consistent with the evidence.

Today is Monday, Nov. 14, the 318th day of 2011. There are 47 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Nov. 14, 1851, Herman Melville's novel "Moby-Dick; Or, The Whale" was first published in the United States.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1881, Charles J. Guiteau went on trial for assassinating President James A. Garfield. (Guiteau was convicted and hanged the following year.)

In 1889, inspired by Jules Verne, New York World reporter Nellie Bly (Elizabeth Cochrane) set out to travel around the world in less than 80 days. (She made the trip in 72 days.) Jawarharlal Nehru, the first prime minister of independent India, was born.

In 1910, Eugene B. Ely became the first aviator to take off from a ship as his Curtiss pusher rolled off a sloping platform on the deck of the scout cruiser USS Birmingham off Hampton Roads, Va.

In 1922, the British Broadcasting Corporation began its domestic radio service.

In 1940, during World War II, German planes destroyed most of the English town of Coventry.

In 1944, Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra recorded "Opus No. 1" for RCA Victor.

In 1969, Apollo 12 blasted off for the moon.

In 1970, a chartered Southern Airways DC-9 crashed while trying to land in Huntington, W.Va., killing all 75 people on board, including the Marshall University football team and its coaching staff.

In 1972, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above the 1,000 level for the first time, ending the day at 1,003.16.

In 1986, the Securities and Exchange Commission imposed a $100 million penalty against inside-trader Ivan F. Boesky and barred him from working again in the securities industry.

Ten years ago: The temporary rout of the Taliban in Afghanistan accelerated with the Islamic militia losing control of Jalalabad in the east, once-loyal Pashtun tribesmen joining in the revolt in the south and many of their fighters fleeing into the mountains to evade U.S. airstrikes. President George W. Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin continued their talks at Bush's Texas ranch, a day after the two leaders agreed at the White House to reduce their countries' nuclear stockpiles.

Five years ago: Gunmen kidnapped up to 200 staff and visitors in a raid on a Higher Education Ministry office in Baghdad, Iraq. President George W. Bush left the White House on a state visit to Vietnam. Brandon Webb of the Arizona Diamondbacks won a wide-open race for the NL Cy Young Award.

One year ago: A 21-member Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum meeting in Yokohama, Japan, concluded with a unanimous pledge by members to avoid raising more trade barriers and to roll back those they may have erected in the midst of crisis. Somali pirates released British couple Paul and Rachel Chandler, who were held for 388 days after they were abducted from their 38-foot-yacht.

DEAR ABBY: Sept. 11 was the 10th birthday of our neighbors' little girl, "Megan." At church that day there was a lovely memorial prayer for the victims of 9/11, but no mention of Megan's birthday among the other special occasions of the week.

Megan's family went to the cemetery, put flowers on the memorial there and then went home. There was no party or cake for Megan. When I took over a card and a small gift, her mom thanked me but said the day was too sad for Megan to celebrate her birthday. She said they had never done so, not even on an alternate date.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I don't know this family very well. They're new to the neighborhood. But I was flabbergasted that they would act this way. When I asked about the birthdays of the other family members, I was told that since none of them fall on a "bad day" they are celebrated with parties, gifts and everything. Megan was allowed to accept my gift and thanked me, but her mom made it clear this was to be an exception to the rule. Abby, what gives?

— COMPLETELY BAFFLED IN WYOMING

DEAR COMPLETELY BAFFLED: I have no idea. That family's behavior is bizarre. What could possibly be gained by punishing a child for being born on a particular day? What you have described isn't respect for a day that was tragic for our country; it is cruelty to an innocent child.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I disagree about what we should do on our date nights away from our daughters. She's nine years younger than I am.

I don't feel comfortable going to dance clubs. I don't like crowds, fighting to get the bartender's attention for a drink or dancing with 25-year-olds.

I'd prefer listening to live music, staying home and enjoying an empty house or going somewhere quiet for dinner. My wife thinks what I like is "boring" and this is creating issues in our marriage.

I want her to be happy and for both of us to enjoy each other's company. We're having a difficult time finding a compromise. I feel like I'll never live up to her standards of what's fun and entertaining. Any suggestions?

— DATE NIGHT DILEMMA IN CHICAGO

DEAR DILEMMA: Yes, two of them. The first is to take turns choosing what you'll do on your date nights, so that you both have some of what you want. The second is to find some new activities you can enjoy as a couple. Shared interests will help you grow together.

DEAR ABBY: A woman at work is having a baby. I didn't get around to contributing to her group gift. I also didn't sign the card or mention my omission at the time of the baby shower.

A few days later I received a thank-you note. The mother-to-be obviously assumed I contributed. Money is extremely tight right now. Saving the $20 I was going to spend will help my budget. I don't think anyone picked up on my faux pas. Should I keep quiet?

— CONFLICTED IN MINNESOTA

DEAR CONFLICTED: You didn't commit a faux pas; you chose to abstain. I see no reason to announce that you didn't participate in the baby gift. Not contributing because it would have caused financial strain wasn't a breach of etiquette; it was prudent. If your name wasn't on the gift card, you misled no one.

IF NOVEMBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Wait until the middle of December to put your business or career ambitions into action. Right now, you are in a testing phase and your achievements might be placed under scrutiny. In mid-December you can put your visions of success into motion without interference from uncontrollable circumstances. A new romance might not be forever, but it will be fun. Too much fun, however, could leave you gullible in March so wait until the last two weeks of April to make crucial decisions, especially about a key relationship.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do it with style. You can't go wrong by showing off your good taste and a flare for fashion. Don't be afraid to try something a little out of the ordinary or non-routine. Creative and artistic pursuits prosper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What comes around goes around. Don't be stingy when paying off debts and favors. If someone has helped, make sure you show genuine appreciation. You can gain trust by being generous and kind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Little things mean a lot. Nothing is finished until you have made absolutely sure that you've covered all the bases. Don't let time constraints cause you to overlook an error. Stay with it until the job is done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nothing positive ever came from being negative. You have the opportunity of creating your own inner environment. Whether you are a grouch or a bright ray of sunshine, others will follow your lead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't lose your head. No matter how dire the situation seems, there is no obstacle that you can't overcome by remaining calm, cool and collected. Devise plans that will benefit yourself as well as others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Whether you think you can or you think you can't, you are correct. A problem may seem impossible but if you step back and look at it from a new perspective, the solution should be clear and obvious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): When your mind is filled with troubles, a little physical exertion could be all it takes to clear your head. Try dancing, yoga, or go for a jog to get the blood flowing and improve your disposition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sugar is sweeter than salt. No matter how irritating someone may be, they will not get the job done unless you help them along with some encouragement. Unexpected news could result in a rapid change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Put it all out there. Discuss your innermost thoughts with a friend or trusted confidant. Establish boundaries as to what you can, and cannot, accomplish and go from there. Find a sense of direction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some rules were meant to be broken. Conventional wisdom can only get you so far. To truly make something great you've got to think further outside the box and put your creativity to the test.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Clear your slate of responsibilities before you enjoy personal time. You'd rather be doing something else but chores won't take care of themselves.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pace yourself. You feel invigorated and energetic but you would be wise to channel it properly. Don't spread yourself too thin or scatter your energies. You may find true inspiration from unlikely sources.
