Jonah Rono, a College of Southern Idaho nursing student from Kenya, is working toward a degree as a registered nurse at the school. U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador is sponsoring a bill in Congress that would make it easier for international students to get permanent visas after graduating with a technical degree from a U.S. college or university.

A Home to Foreign Talent

A proposal by U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador would give green cards to foreign-born high-tech college graduates who land U.S. jobs.

BY BEN BOTKIN

When he graduates next year, he wants to work as a registered nurse in the U.S. To get there, he'll need to make it through a labyrinth of paperwork and apply for a work permit. It includes a deadline to find a job that overlooks Rono's need to take the state's nursing license exam after graduation to become qualified, he said.

"If I can, I will stay," said Rono, 27. International students studying high-tech, medical and engineering fields have caught the attention of U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador, R-Idaho.

The former immigration attorney has introduced a bill aimed at making for- eign-born students immediately eligible for permanent residency if they are seeking careers in high-demand fields tied to science, technology, engineering and math. If they have a job offer and a degree in their field, the students would become eligible for green cards.

"When I practiced immigration law, I regularly worked with high tech companies in Idaho who had openings for workers with advanced degrees but, due to the small number of U.S. graduates in these fields, could not find the employees they needed," Labrador said in a written statement. "I also saw many

About the Bill

The bill, introduced in October, is called the American Innovation and Education Act. What it does: It would give foreign-born students with advanced degrees in fields tied to technology, engineering, science and medicine permanent residency and green cards to work if they have a degree and a job offer in their fields.

Its purpose: To make it easier for qualified international people to get high-demand jobs in the U.S., and generate interest among American students in science and engineering fields. Where it stands: The bill, which has just started working its way through Congress, has been sent to the House Subcommittee on Immigration Policy and Enforcement.

Suspect Held on $1M Bond in Missionary Hit-and-run Case

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

The Mexican national suspected of killing two Mormon missionaries in Texas, including Fairfield native Derek Jason Walker, faces two felonies and is held on $1 million bond.

The Hidalgo County (Texas) Sheriff's Office confirmed that Jose Luis Garza, 32, was arraigned Nov. 9 in district court on two counts of causing an accident with bodily harm or death, after allegedly hitting a pair of LDS missionaries while they were riding their bikes in Donna, Texas, the night prior.

Walker, 20, who is the son of Camas County 5th District Magistrate Judge Jason Walker, and fellow missionary Trevor Reinhold, 21, of Taylorsville, Utah, died after being stuck by a black car at about 7 p.m. A third missionary, 19-year-old Zachary Harris, of Huntsville, Ala., was injured in the collision, but treated and released later that day.

Garza initially fled the scene across the border into Mexico, but later turned himself in at the border. He was booked at the Hidalgo County Jail and arraigned a day later.

A call Thursday to the Hidalgo County Prosecutor's Office seeking a future court date was not returned.

No More Napping through Kindergarten

Kindergarten lessons have moved past how to color and when to nap, so preschools are changing the way they prepare tots for school.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

Years ago, kindergarten used to be a time for naps, coloring and learning manners. That's not the case anymore. Now, first-year students are expected to know more by the time they set foot in a kindergarten classroom. "Kindergarten has really changed," said Debbi Stanger, a kindergarten teacher at I.B. Perrine Elementary School in Twin Falls. "Students have to be ready to learn." It's not just about academics, either. Children are also expected to come to kindergarten knowing how to interact socially with their classmates. "That used to be what they learned

Rhoades Execution Set for Today

Paul Ezra Rhoades' execution date is set for this morning. He will be the first person Idaho has executed in 17 years.

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Twenty-four years after Idaho sentenced him to death, Paul Ezra Rhoades is expected to be executed Friday morning.

Barring any last-minute intervention by the courts or state leaders, Rhoades is scheduled to receive a lethal injection at 8 a.m., making him the first person executed in Idaho since 1994 and the only person to be involuntarily put to death in the state since 1957 — the year Rhoades was born.

Rhoades was sentenced to death for the 1987 kidnappings and murders of 34-year-old Susan Michelbacher and 21-year-old Stacy Dawn Baldwin. He also was sentenced to life in prison without parole for the 1987 murder of 20-year-old Nolan Haddon.

Now 54, Rhoades has admitted committing the murders but has vigorously appealed his convictions and Idaho's execution protocol. He lost the last of his criminal appeals in October, and this week he lost his bids to have the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals or the U.S. Supreme Court

One Last Appeal

The U.S. Supreme Court declined late Thursday to intervene in the case of Paul Ezra Rhoades, clearing the way for Rhoades' execution this morning. Rhoades' lawyers had asked for a stay of execution and a review of the case, seeking time to challenge the state's lethal injection policy. They argued that the process — which relies on three drugs given to Rhoades through an IV — amounts to cruel and unusual punishment that is barred by the Constitution. Visit Magicvalley.com today for further updates on the execution.

Meridian Man’s Wednesday DUI Arrest Comes after Lifetime Driving Ban

Willard Baker was banned from driving after a 1999 vehicular manslaughter conviction in Twin Falls.

BY PATRICK ORR
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Willard Novie Baker is being held in the Ada County Jail on a felony driving under the influence charge and misdemeanor counts of fleeing police and driving without a valid license after Meridian police say he was caught driving drunk on Ten Mile Road Wednesday night.

The 37-year-old Baker is not allowed to drive at all after getting a lifetime driving ban following a conviction for vehicular manslaughter in 1999 in Twin Falls, according to Idaho court records.

Baker has a previous DUI conviction from 1998, and was intoxicated — court records show he had a .08 blood alcohol content percentage and he had smoked marijuana — during the 1999 crash that led to his vehicular manslaughter conviction later that year.

Bobbie Jean Hess, a passenger in Baker’s car, died after he lost control of his Pontiac Trans-Am while drag racing on Blue Lakes Boulevard on July 15, 1999. At first Baker tried to say Hess was driving at the time of the crash, but he later pleaded guilty to vehicular manslaughter, according to court records.

Baker was given a 10-year prison sentence and a lifetime driving ban, which was upheld by the Idaho Supreme Court in 2001.

Baker’s previous convictions make his DUI arrest Wednesday night a felony.

A Meridian police officer clocked Baker driving 58 mph in a 35 mph zone on Ten Mile Road just before 10 p.m. Wednesday and tried to pull him over, but police say Baker kept driving until he pulled into the driveway of his home in the 2600 block of Pudu Street.

Police said Baker told them he didn’t notice that officers were trying to pull him over and then refused to do any field sobriety tests after the officer detected a strong odor of alcohol and heard slurred speech, according to reports.

Baker also refused to take a breath test, so a blood sample was taken for later evidentiary testing, according to reports.

Baker was scheduled to make his initial court appearance Thursday. The crime of felony DUI is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

in kindergarten,” Stanger said. In her class, most students have already learned those lessons in preschool.

About 95 percent of kindergarten teachers who responded to a national Age of Learning Inc. survey last month said preschool is beneficial to students. However, of the more than 500 kindergarten teachers surveyed, two-thirds said their students were either somewhat prepared or not at all prepared for kindergarten.

Stanger said incoming students should know their shapes, colors, and their first and last names.

“It’s a bonus if they can write their name,” she said.

By the end of the first quarter, they’re expected to be able to count to 25. During the year, students also learn about patterns and the alphabet.

“We do everything we can to make sure they’re reading by the time they leave kindergarten,” Stanger said.

At the College of Southern Idaho’s Child Care Center, there’s a class specifically to help 4- and 5-year-olds get ready for kindergarten.

“We want to give them a good start preparing them for school and the world,” Center Coordinator Mary Hopkins said.

The center provides services to children — ages six months to kindergarten — of CSI students and employees. The kindergarten readiness class was created about four years ago.

“At the time, it was reported that our students were not ready for kindergarten,” Hopkins said.

Now, there are about 15 students in the class, which is led by a head teacher, assistant teacher and “foster grandparent” who works one-on-one with students.

On Thursday, students looked at a picture of the human brain online and felt the texture of spaghetti to get a sense of what a brain feels like. They also saw a visual demonstration of how the digestive system works, as lead teacher Joyce Unger mixed different foods together in a plastic bag.

A variety of topics are covered in the class, including academics, and social and emotional development. Also, teachers work with children who are learning how to speak English.

Parents can also help prepare their child for kindergarten. Hopkins said a high priority should be reading one book per day to children.

Redgrave Pleads Guilty to Witness Intimidation

TIMES-NEWS

A Twin Falls man changed his plea in a witness intimidation case this week in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Colby Redgrave, 21, signed a plea agreement answering to one count of felony intimidation, and the state will drop a second identical felony charge. Redgrave was accused of threatening a 19-year-old woman, and a family member in regards to allegations that Jason Ward raped the woman.

Ward, 35, is slated to go on trial for felony rape on Dec. 20.

According to the agreement, the state will recommend a three-year probationary term for Redgrave in lieu of up to five years in state prison. Sentencing is set for Jan. 17.

highly educated foreign-born graduates who wanted to stay in the U.S. and put their education to use in our economy, but could not. This is a well known problem.”

Graduates unable to navigate the immigration process take their skills back to their country of origin, he said.

“Our American universities are training the next generation of innovators and creators — and it is up to us to decide where they will create jobs,” Labrador said.

Foreign-born residents in the U.S. are more likely to have science- and engineering-related bachelor’s degrees than native-born residents, U.S. Census data shows. Forty-six percent of foreign-born residents age 25 or older have degrees in those fields, while just 33 percent of native-born residents have a comparable education.

Rono is one of 53 international students attending CSI on student visas.

Graydon Stanley, CSI’s dean of students, said international students often have the goal of returning to their country after studying in the U.S. At the same time, they are strong students, he said.

“These are some really highly motivated, highly able students,” Stanley said.

It can be challenging for students to get the papers they need to pursue their studies, and requirements vary from country to country, Stanley said.

Rono said he’d like to stay in the U.S. for a long time if he were granted permanent residency. For now, he’ll be studying and doing his clinical nursing work.

He says it’s a complicated process, but he’s still hoping for the best.

“Sometimes, I don’t want to think about it,” he said.

Rhoades

consider whether Idaho’s lethal injection protocol amounts to cruel and unusual punishment. Rhodes contends that if the executioners make a mistake and he isn’t adequately anesthetized, he will feel excruciating pain during the rest of the execution.

Born Jan. 18, 1957, and raised in the conservative community of Idaho Falls, Idaho, Rhoades is the second-oldest of five children. His parents were poor, attorneys said, and his childhood wasn’t easy: Rhoades contracted polio when he was 4, and the virus severely damaged one of his legs, forcing him to undergo several corrective surgeries and leaving him with a permanent limp. At one point, his attorneys said, Rhoades’ parents noticed a foul smell coming from his cast-covered foot — and it wasn’t until doctors removed the cast that they discovered it was gangrene.

According to court documents, Rhoades dropped out of school in ninth grade and at age 16 went to work at a food packing plant. He left the job after the tips of his fingers were cut off in an industrial accident. He went to work for his uncle, father and brother in the drywall construction business after his fingers healed.

Rhoades was still living at home when he turned 30 in 1987. By that time, he’d begun hanging around with other drug users and had developed a serious methamphetamine addiction, regularly shooting up a strong form of the drug called crank, according to witnesses. He was also on the radar of local police, as a suspect in some area burglaries.

Still, Rhoades was often responsible for babysitting his sisters’ children while the women were at work, and his mother described him as easygoing and nonviolent.

Witnesses later told police that Rhoades had a habit of hanging out at convenience stores, watching the female workers. While he had female friends, he told pre-sentence investigators that he didn’t have any serious relationships or romantic ties with women.

The murders occurred during a three-week span in February and March 1987. First to die was Stacy Dawn Baldwin, a newlywed who was working the nightshift at a Blackfoot convenience store when Rhoades abducted her at gunpoint, took her to a remote spot a short distance away, and tried to sexually assault her. Baldwin fought back, and as she was scrambling away on all fours, he shot her first in the elbow and then in the back. He left her to die, alone in the snow.

Next was Nolan Haddon, an easygoing convenience store clerk in Idaho Falls. He was always busy hunting and fishing and hadn’t had time to get regular haircuts, so his blond, curly locks were dipping below his collar. Investigators later speculated that because of his long hair, Rhoades may have mistaken Haddon for a young woman. In any case, Rhoades robbed the convenience store, shooting Haddon five times and leaving him for dead in a walk-in cooler. Haddon died several hours later.

Susan Michelbacher, a special education teacher and mother, was abducted by Rhoades early one morning from a parking lot and forced to withdraw money from two separate banks before he took her to a remote area, raped her and shot her nine times. Her panicked husband reported her missing when he realized she never came home from her job at the school; Michelbacher’s body was found two days later.

During the trial over Baldwin’s murder, Rhoades’ mother, Pauline Rhoades, swore that Paul was at her house at the time of the kidnapping. Pauline Rhoades worked at the Bonneville Restaurant in Idaho Falls, and she remembers working the day Baldwin was kidnapped because it was the restaurant’s 20th anniversary. She had to arrange care for her three grandkids and told Paul that he needed to come home right after work because her daughter, Roberta Rhoades, had to be at work at 6 p.m.

Pauline Rhoades said that when she got home — sometime between 12:15 a.m. and 12:30 a.m. — Paul was there, according to court documents. She testified that they talked for a little over an hour before she went to bed.

Today, however, she acknowledges he committed the murders, as does Rhoades himself.

“We are very sorry for what happened to Susan Michelbacher, Stacy Baldwin and Nolan Haddon,” she said in a prepared statement issued by Rhoades’ attorneys last week. “We know there is nothing we can say or do to console their families, or understand the pain they have endured all of these years.”

She said her son had changed while in prison, takes responsibility for his actions and is trying to make up for what he did.

“I don’t want him to die. I don’t think it makes sense to kill him now,” she said in the statement. “And I still hope and pray that his life will be spared.”

Wendell Fire Departments Eye New Headquarters

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

WENDELL • By the end of the year, the Wendell Fire and Wendell Rural Fire departments hope to jointly own a new building, conveniently located across the street from station headquarters on Idaho Street.

The large warehouse-like building, built in the 1990s, was used as a school bus barn until this year, said property owner Richard Eaton.

“They’ve been eyeballing this place for a long time while we had buses in it, just waiting for it to open up,” Eaton said. “When the school decided to get their own buses this year, the (departments) had the opportunity they were waiting for.”

Eaton and the departments have been in negotiations for a few months.

Fire Chief Bob Bailey said the departments jointly own and operate out of a facility on Idaho Street and split operating costs. Bailey said that would continue after the purchase.

The cost of the building is not being released at this time, although Bailey said both departments have saved a combined $130,000 for capital improvement projects. Taxpayers won’t see an increase on their property tax assessments, he said.

“This is part of a five-year plan,” Bailey said. “The building needs insulation; it’s basically a steel structure with a roof and some office space. It needs some remodeling, too, so we would continue operating out of our current building. Not much would change right away.”

The building is needed, Bailey said, because the departments don’t currently have enough storage space to allow for quick access to all of their vehicles. The city department owns two trucks, the rural force owns 11 vehicles and the departments share another two trucks.

“Several of the trucks we have to drain the water and store outside, so they don’t freeze up,” Bailey said. “The access issues... it just doesn’t work.”

Although the rural and city fire departments are two separate taxing entities, they are made up of mostly the same volunteer team and two shared paid staff. The same six emergency medical technicians and 12 firefighters respond to emergency calls made inside city limits and throughout 126 square miles in the rural Gooding County district, Bailey said.

“We train as one and act as one. We share resources and it’s pretty neat,” Bailey said.

Mayor Brad Christopherson said the purchase would be, “an asset for the community.”

“The fire departments do a lot of good for the city, inside and outside of city limits. I ask Bob almost every day if the deal is done,” Christopherson said.

Bailey said the deal should be wrapped up year’s end.

Twin Falls Woman Dies in BASE Jumping Accident

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PROVO, Utah • Authorities have identified a 24-year-old woman who died during a failed BASE jump in Provo’s Rock Canyon.

Authorities say Holly Brittsan died Tuesday after her parachute failed to open properly.

Provo fire officials say Brittsan, who grew up in Twin Falls, jumped off a cliff in the northern part of the canyon and fell about 150 feet.

Authorities say it’s not clear if the University of Utah student’s parachute failed completely or opened too late. They say she was an experienced BASE jumper.

Brittsan attended Twin Falls High School, where she was a member of the Bruinettes dance team. She also raced cars at Magic Valley Speedway.

A memorial service for Brittsan will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Gordon Ray Hirschi

Oct. 9, 1930-Nov. 14, 2011

Gordon Ray Hirschi; 81, passed away Monday, Nov. 14, 2011, at his home.

He was born Oct. 9, 1930, to Raynold and Frieda (Messerli) Hirschi in Geneva, Idaho. He was the youngest of 14 children. He is survived by two brothers, Leroy and Jesse Hirschi. He attended school in Geneva and Montpelier, Idaho, where he graduated in 1948. After graduation, he enlisted in the U.S. Air Force, where he served four years in Shemya, Aleutian Islands. Upon completion of his service, he returned to Bear Lake, where he met and pursued his lifelong sweetheart, Glenna Lee Sparks. They were married July 5, 1956, in Dingle, Idaho, and had their marriage solemnized in the Salt Lake Temple on June 15, 1996. They had 55 wonderful years of love together here on this earth. They were blessed with four children, Guy (Deb) Hirschi, Stephanie (Gene) Larsen, Kendra (Lynn) Hemmert and Wendy (Brett) Turner; seven grandchildren; and eight great-grandchildren. His greatest love on this earth was his wife and family and his free time was devoted to spending as much time with them as he could. His grandchildren and great-grandchildren were a joy in his life. He had a love of outdoors and especially loved fly fishing and hunting. Family vacations were often spent camping at Greys River or Snake River, Wyo. His early years were spent working the family dry farm in Geneva, Idaho. After returning from the service and starting his family, he spent time working in New Mexico, Texas and Wyoming. He and Glenna then decided to return home to their beloved Bear Lake Valley, where he worked until his retirement in Soda Springs, Idaho. After retirement, he and Glenna moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, to be closer to family, where he worked for Avis Car Rental for 17 years. Gordon was blessed with great friends throughout his lifetime. He was admired and loved by co-workers and anyone that ever met him.

His great work ethic, integrity and honest spirit set an example that his children and grandchildren will always remember. We will miss his humor, his jokes and teasing, but most of all, we will miss his hugs!

Gordon is preceded in death by his parents; his siblings; his son-in-law, Brett Turner; and a grandson, Larry Larsen.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19, with viewing at 1 p.m., at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints 13th Ward in Twin Falls, Idaho. ## Wyatt Theodore Fenton Thornock

Dec. 7, 2009-Nov. 12, 2011

JEROME • Wyatt Theodore Fenton Thornock, 23 months, of Jerome, Idaho, passed away Saturday, Nov. 12, 2011, in Soda Springs, Idaho.

He was born Dec. 7, 2009, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Nicole Fenton and Alan Thornock. He loved to run and play and couldn't wait for his sister to get home from school. He was always finding ways to get into everything and loved to play video games with his father. When it came to mom, he always made sure he kept her on her toes and always told her thank you, Mama. No matter where he would go or what he was doing, he had a smile on his face and could light up a room. For everyone who had him in their lives, he made sure he kept them smiling, and we all just fell in love with his smile. He was loved very much and will be missed just as much.

You never said I'm leaving
You never said goodbye.

You were gone before I knew it,

And only God knew why.

A million times I needed you,
A million times I cried.

If love alone could have saved you,

You never would have died.

In life I loved you dearly,
In death I love you still.

In my heart you hold a place,

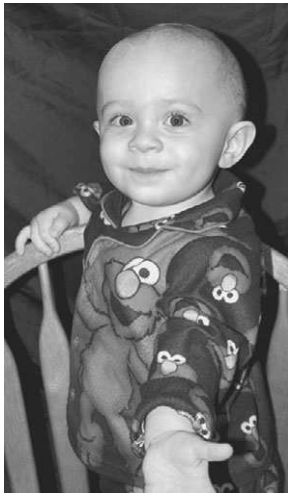

That no one could ever fill.

It broke my heart to lose you,

But you didn't go alone
For part of me went with you,

The day God took you home.
(Author unknown)

Wyatt is survived by his parents, Nicole Fenton; Alan Thornock; sister, Pru Martinez of Jerome; grandparents, Debra Fenton of Rupert, David Fenton of Rupert, Julie Watkins of Soda Springs and Gene Thornock of Grace; great-grandparents, Theo (Clara) Wickel of Heyburn and Luella Watkins of Soda Springs; aunts and uncles, Pauline Gonzalez (Hugo Gonzalez) of Jerome, Kimberly Thornock of Soda Springs, Paul Smith (Ami Ray) of Idaho Falls, Ivan Fenton of Rupert, Brock Thornock of Rigby and Shara Lopez of Idaho Falls. He also has numerous cousins. He was preceded in death by a half brother, Hayden Thornock.

Kathryn Mildred Lewis

Jan. 28, 1921-Nov. 14, 2011

BURLEY • Kathryn Mildred Lewis went home to her Lord on Monday, Nov. 14, 2011, surrounded by her family and the wonderful people caring for her at Parkview Care Center in Burley, Idaho.

Kathryn was born in Missouri on Jan. 28, 1921, the fourth of an eventual 13 children of John and Velma Kessler. Life wasn't always easy for this family, and Kathy left school at the end of her junior year to help with the family income. This was the beginning of a life of hard work and love given freely to all those who called her Daughter, Sister, Wife, Mom, Grandma and friend.

While working as a maid in a hotel in Mountain Home, Ark., Kathryn met the one and only love of her life, a local car salesman, J. Fred Lewis. They were married Sept. 13, 1941, and had two children, Mary Lou in 1942 and Fred William in 1945. They moved to Eden, Idaho, in the early '50s and remained in southern Idaho for the rest of their lives. Fred passed away in August of 1991, just shortly before they would have celebrated 50 years of marriage. Kathryn had worked at Ore-Ida in Burley since its opening and then at Wal-Mart from its opening, where she made many good friends. Kathy retired from Wal-Mart at the age of 86, when her vision no longer allowed her to drive.

She always welcomed family and friends to her home and held them in her heart.

Kathryn is survived by her children, Mary Lou (Gary) Roberts of Boise and Fred (Janet) Lewis of Declo; her grandchildren, Ron, Rob, Matthew, Adam, Jessica, Shane and Dustin; and 11 great-grandchildren, the youngest of whom spent her first Halloween with Kathryn just weeks ago. Kathryn is also survived by her dearly loved sister, Nadine; and her brothers, Jack, Marvin and Charles. There are also special family of the heart, Dana, Merlyne, Kay, Peggy and Janis and the many nieces and nephews who brought her great joy. She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Fred; grandson, Clayton; sister, Marie; and brothers, Earl, Bill, George, Jim, Bob and Clifford.

Idaho Falls Man Charged with Trying to Assassinate Obama

Oscar Ramiro Ortega-Hernandez is accused of firing nine rounds at the White House on Nov. 11 — one of them cracking a window of the first family's living quarters. If convicted, he faces up to life in prison.

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
and JESSICA GRESKO
Associated Press

BOISE • An Idaho man accused of firing an assault rifle at the White House believed he was Jesus and thought President Barack Obama was the Antichrist, according to court documents and those who knew him. At one point, he even suggested to an acquaintance the president was planning to implant computer tracking chips into children.

Oscar Ramiro Ortega-Hernandez, 21, was charged Thursday with attempting to assassinate the president or his staff. He is accused of firing nine rounds at the White House last Friday night — one of them cracking a window of the first family's living quarters — when Obama and the first lady were away. If convicted, Ortega faces up to life in prison.

Ortega was arrested Wednesday at a western Pennsylvania hotel when a desk clerk there recognized him and called police.

Ortega's public defender, Christopher Brown, declined comment after his first court hearing in Pennsylvania. Ortega's mother has said he has no history of mental illness, though when authorities were looking for him, they reported he had "mental health issues."

In Idaho Falls, where Ortega is from, a computer consultant told The Associated Press that the two met July 8 after Ortega asked for help editing a 30-minute infomercial. Monte McCall said that during the meeting at Ortega's family's Mexican restaurant, Ortega pulled out worn sheets of yellow paper with handwritten notes and started to talk about his predictions that the world would end in 2012.

"He said, 'Well, you know the president is getting ready to make an announcement that they're going to put GPS chips in all the children, so they're safe,'" McCall said. "... And then he said, 'That's just what the Antichrist is going to do to mark everybody'."

Kimberly Allen, the mother of Ortega's former fiancée, said he had been well-mannered and kind in the four years she had known him. But he recently began making statements to her daughter that were out of character, including that he believed he was Jesus. Allen said the family was worried when he went to Utah recently, where he said he had business, and didn't come back. Ortega's family reported him missing Oct. 31.

Allen said they were flabbergasted to hear he was wanted in Washington.

"I believe that the boy needs help," said Allen, of Shelley, Idaho.

Her daughter, Jessica Galbraith, was engaged to Ortega and is the mother of their 2-year-old son. She declined to comment Thursday except to say: "I love him, and I'm here for him."

It was unclear why or when they split.

Reached by the AP on Thursday, Ortega's mother said she didn't have anything to say. She earlier told the Post Register in Idaho Falls her son has no history of mental illness.

"He has different ideas than other people, just like everyone, but he was perfectly fine the last time I saw him," Maria Hernandez told the newspaper. "He might be saying weird stuff that sounds crazy, but that doesn't mean (he) is crazy. He might be confused and scared."

At his first appearance in court in Pennsylvania, Ortega sat quietly, his hands free but his feet shackled. He said only, "Yes, ma'am" when he was asked if he understood that he would be going back to Washington to face the charge.

According to a court document released after the hearing, authorities recovered nine spent shell casings from Ortega's car, which was found abandoned near the White House shortly after the shooting. An assault rifle with a scope was found inside.

A person who knows him subsequently told investigators that he had become increasingly agitated with the federal government and was convinced it was conspiring against him, the document said. Others told investigators that Ortega had reportedly said Obama was the Antichrist and the "devil." Ortega also apparently said he "needed to kill" the president.

Authorities said Ortega was clad in black when he pulled his car within view of the White House on Friday night, fired shots and then sped away. The White House has not said whether the Obamas' daughters, Sasha and Malia, were there at the time or commented on the shooting.

Ortega was questioned by police on Friday morning, before the shootings, just across the Potomac River from Washington in Arlington, Va. Police said they stopped him after a report of suspicious behavior, but let him go after photographing him because they had no reason to make an arrest.

Ortega has an arrest record in three states but has not been linked to any radical organizations, U.S. Park Police have said.

This is not the first time the White House has come under attack. In the past 40 years, the landmark has faced threats ranging from a stolen helicopter that landed on the grounds in 1974 to a man who wielded a sawed-off shotgun on a sidewalk outside in 1984. In 1994 alone, there were five threats including a plane crash on the lawn and a suspected drive-by shooting. Another man fired at least 29 rounds from a semiautomatic weapon, with 11 striking the White House.

Dan Bongino, a former Secret Service agent who served on the presidential details for Obama and President George W. Bush, said Friday's shooting would likely mean tighter security and coordination.

"They do an exhaustive review of their security procedures every time something like this happens," said Bongino, who recently left the Secret Service to run for U.S. Senate in Maryland. "Nothing ever works perfectly. They will address this completely and then they will find out when they rebuild the incident exactly what they could have done better."

Idaho Small Business Group Strikes at Health Insurance Exchange

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • The Idaho Main Street Alliance, a small-business advocacy group, says the health insurance industry has too strong a hand in the development of a health insurance exchange.

The exchange, a marketplace for Idahoans to buy health insurance, was mandated by the 2010 health care reform law. While the law is being fought by Idaho, Gov. Butch Otter said he wants the insurance exchange to happen.

Draft legislation is being developed; a task force of legislators is meeting today to get a progress report from the Idaho Department of Insurance.

But the Idaho Main Street Alliance said this week that it wants six rules written into the law to protect against insurance industry conflicts of interest:

- No governance board seats should be held by employees, affiliates or payees of an insurance company.

- Members should disclose financial interests and recuse themselves if potential conflicts arise.

- Board members should be barred from taking a job with an insurance company, and vice versa, for a set period of time.

- Conflict of interest rules should apply to senior exchange staff, not just board members.

- Conflict of interest rules should apply to the insurance navigators, who would help consumers in choosing a health insurance plan.

- Anti-steering rules should block insurance agents and brokers from steering business away from the exchange.

The group also cited political campaign spending from 2004 to 2010 of $62,000 by Regence BlueShield of Idaho's parent company and $137,000 by Blue Cross of Idaho.

OUR VIEW

A Moment of Silence for Justice Upheld

At 7:20 a.m. today, the Idaho Department of Correction is expected to move Paul Ezra Rhoades from his isolation cell to the final chamber he will ever enter alive.

At 8 a.m., the warden of the Idaho Maximum Security Institution will read Rhoades' death warrant aloud.

At 8:03, Rhoades will have a chance to speak. At 8:07, IDOC Director Brent Reinke will confirm for the final time that Rhoades' death is certain.

Just minutes later, the chemicals that will revoke Rhoades' hold on this mortal life will travel through his veins. And at 8:30 a.m., Friday, Nov. 18, Paul Ezra Rhoades will be pronounced dead.

Idaho law will be met. Barring last-minute salvation, Rhoades will serve the ultimate sentence for his heinous acts.

But will we take from this day what we should? An execution draws many reactions. For the families of the three people Rhoades killed, perhaps a sense of closure — though healing from such atrocity is never as simple as that.

The Internet will continue to ring out with cheers for a life taken; cries for justice more violent, more brutal, more public. In private, where people's words are more measured, there may be discussion of what this day means for the law, for Idahoans who only wish to go about their day without rape and murder forced upon them.

In the past, this editorial board has questioned this state's and this country's approach to capital punishment, and whether it is truly worthwhile.

The debate over institutionalized death is well and good. Tomorrow, and the next day, it should continue.

Today, Idahoans should find common bond over a deeper truth.

This morning's execution in Boise is a solemn and rare act. It is not fit to meet it with jubilation, nor with calls for vengeance more disturbing. Neither should we shrug off its full significance.

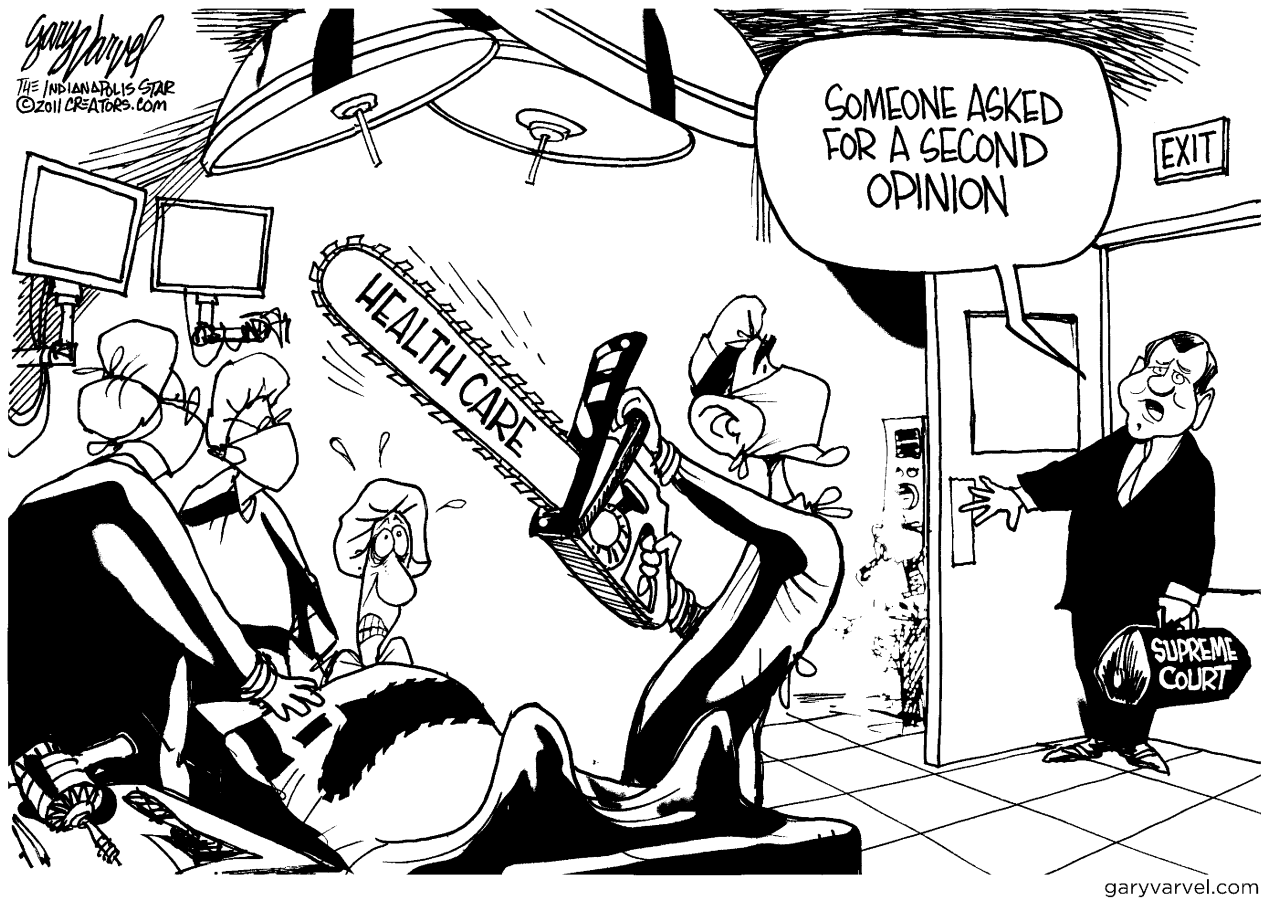

Paul Ezra Rhoades violated a basic tenet of humanity. He is paying in full.

Today, all appeals are past. All arguments have been held.

A man has died. He killed others. And all of us — hiding in the shadow of the state of Idaho — killed him.

"I am appalled by the fact that Mr. Sandusky has elected to re-victimize these young men at a time when they should be healing."

Harrisburg attorney Ben Andreozzi in a statement after Jerry Sandusky's televised defense, saying he represents a client who will testify against the former Penn State assistant football coach, who is accused of abusing eight boys, some on campus, over 15 years.

At the Brink

The following editorial appeared in Thursday's Washington Post:

Maybe the House-Senate super-committee just looks bad up close. In Europe, the new Italian prime minister, Mario Monti, finds it "fascinating, because they are trying to create, in that hugely bipolar context, some premises for a bipartisan agreement." That's what Mr. Monti would say, though, since he is a nonpartisan "technocrat" all but imposed on Italy by European "partners" desperate for the quarreling Italian political class to cut costs and reform the country's economy — before Rome's debt woes blow up the entire euro zone.

Mr. Monti's remark is also a reminder that, difficult as the U.S. predicament may be, it could be worse: It could be like Europe's. This week, investors continued to flee European government bonds, except for rock-solid Germany's; even previously AAA-rated countries such as France, Austria and Finland saw their funding costs rise.

No supercommittee rules "united" Europe — only a loose group of conflicted national leaders that has tried to restore confidence through one plan after another. Tuesday's action in the bond markets was perhaps the scariest sign yet that the efforts have failed and that the time to come up with an effective fix could be running out.

Hope flickered briefly last week upon the installation of Mr. Monti's new government to replace Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi, along with the substitution, in Greece, of technocrats for ousted Prime Minister George Papandreou. At last, it seemed, these countries could enact the tough measures that Germany, Europe's paymaster, demands as the price of continued bailouts. But that aspiration seems to have been defeated by the worry that the Italians and Greeks' debts are just too big, and their prospects for economic growth too remote, for even a well-designed austerity-cum-bailout strategy to work.

The short-term remedy would be for the European Central Bank (ECB) to start buying up government debt, essentially without limit, much as the Federal Reserve stemmed the U.S. financial panic with trillions of dollars' worth of quantitative easing in the United States. French Budget Minister Valerie Pécresse all but pleaded with the ECB to step in, remarking, "We trust that the ECB will take the necessary measures to ensure financial stability in Europe." But having a central bank print money is anathema in Germany, without whose permission the ECB could not proceed. Chancellor Angela Merkel insisted again this week that the only way forward was to stick with austerity while revising the European Union treaty to allow for greater economic policy coordination.

"Europe is in one of its toughest, perhaps the toughest, hour since World War II," Ms. Merkel said Monday. The global economy, the United States very much included, is also at risk. The chancellor understands what is at stake. What is still not clear, and hasn't been since the crisis began almost two years ago, is whether she and her country can, or will, rise to the occasion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where Does the Money Go?

The following are just a few examples of where taxpayers' hard-earned money is going:

Solyndra Solar Panels, received $535 million, filed for bankruptcy Aug. 31, 2011, fired 1,100 employees.

Evergreen Solar, received $58 million, filed for bankruptcy Aug. 15, 2011, fired 800 employees.

Green Vehicles, received $540,000 to produce "earth friendly" cars, closed its doors without producing a single car.

EPC Solar Inc., received $500,000 plus $2 million in state grants, filed for bankruptcy in 2010.

Clean Burn Fuels LLC, received $35 million in loans from the Department of Agriculture, filed for bankruptcy, Aug. 4, 2011.

Fisher Coachworks LLC, received $6 million from the Department of Energy to build electric cars and buses, awarded $6 million by the city of Flint, Mich., in January 2009 to build two buses for the city, not one car or bus was ever built.

Spectra Watts, received $500,000 from the National Renewable Energy Laboratory, New York State gave it another $6 million, filed for bankruptcy Aug. 29, 2011

Sun Power, received $1.2 billion, which created 12 to 15 jobs, filed for bankruptcy.

Now Solyndra employees have applied for help from the Federal Trade Adjustment Assistance program designed for American workers that have lost their jobs due to trade practices of foreign countries at a cost of $13,000 per employee, another $14 million down the sewer.

Just days after receiving millions from the Obama administration, several of the above filed for bankruptcy. So where did the taxpayers' money go? Into the Obama re-election fund?

To date, the Obama administration is refusing to release documents regarding the above list. That's the transparency we were promised from the George Soros puppet. It's called cover up Chicago style.

Thank You for Your Support

After running for Twin Falls City Council this past election, I would like to express my gratitude to the residents of Twin Falls.

My family and I have met so many wonderful people through this process. The time, donations and advice offered to benefit my campaign were greatly appreciated. While I didn't win this election, I am grateful for the experience.

I will continue to serve wherever I am needed and look forward to another campaign in the future.

NEIL CHRISTENSEN Twin Falls

Fly Your Flags

I am writing in response to the letter written to the editor on Monday, Nov. 14, about the flags.

The American flag and MIA/POW flags were up and flying on Veterans Day for the services that were held on Nov. 11. I raised the flags before the services, then took them down after the services were over. If there were lights on the pole, I would have left the flags there.

JIMMY BERKLEY Twin Falls

(Editor's note: Jimmy Berkley is the adjutant of the William L. McCauley Detachment of the Marine Corps League.)

Do the Cons Outweigh the Pros?

Well, I was excited about the 400 new jobs coming to Twin Falls. Then after reading the Sunday, Nov.

13, article where the city has given up $25 million to get Chobani to come here, I wonder if it is another great bargain like the Dell building and the old hospital (that is still sitting empty and costing lots of money a day.) I don't see how this is improving our city finances as when it is paid back, it isn't really making any money for the city.

Am I figuring wrong or is something fishy here?? Why does the city have to "buy" a business to come to Twin Falls?? I would guess this means our taxes are going up to help pay for this business to come here. Hard to accept in these hard times.

ROSE WIMAN Twin Falls

An Election Adventure

The City Council election offered a wonderful fall adventure. After 2,024 doors knocked and 110 miles walked, the spirit within Twin Falls reinvigorated me. Donations from supporters allowed our $500 campaign to finish with no debt, while friends tolerated yard signs.

Residents are rightfully concerned about the "big three": city utility tax hikes, discordant street construction and a lack of meaningful local jobs. But I've not engaged in any grassroots campaign where voters were more gracious. It's as though people were saying, "We'll get through this uncertain time — life is still good."

The 13 candidates running for four seats proved City Hall's positive transparency, unlike "pay to play" special interests running many state and federal elected politicians. Each city candidate had a vision for improving our quality of life, a goal I endorse, with the added provision of "living within our budget."

A tribute to Suzanne Hawkins, Wayne Bohrn and Jim Schouten for conducting clean, positive campaigns. Suzanne has a future in local politics with her unique perspective.

A final note: my wife still won't say if she voted for me.

Filer School District
Benefits from Energy-Efficiency Investment

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE

For the Times-News

FILER • Investing in energy conservation measures has already reaped big benefits for the Filer School District.

School Board members were presented with a $52,600 check Tuesday for installing energy-saving lighting, heating, cooling and other components during the $11 million construction of Filer Intermediate School. The funds are part of an Idaho Power-sponsored energy efficiency incentive program designed to help offset installation costs.

"In our industry, the least expensive kilowatt-hour is the one not produced," said Idaho Power customer representative Chris Bell. "Your school is beautiful and we thank the district for participating, because this is savings that will continue month after month."

In other action, school board member Lea Smith gave an overview of the 2011 State School Board Association Conference held last week in Coeur d'Alene. She reported that the state won't decide until April the exact type of computer technology districts will have to purchase for their students for the Students Come First education reforms.

"It's between an iPhone, an iPad or a laptop," Smith said. "In the session I was in they were talking about the value of each."

Other sessions advised Smith about the reforms' merit-pay aspect and how it relates to evaluations of district superintendents. Under the new plan, half of any increase in a superintendent's salary would hinge on student performance.

"We typically evaluate Superintendent John Graham in February, but they recommend we evaluate four times a year — in August, November, February and June," Smith said.

FILER PUBLIC DECLINES
RECYCLING PROGRAM

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE

For the Times-News

FILER • Earlier this month, city officials began asking Filer residents to comment on making a recycling program part of regular sanitation. Negative response heard Tuesday caused the City Council to turn down a request from Western Waste Services.

Jay Markle, with Western Waste, provided statistics from a three-month pilot program involving carts placed to gather recycling at 151 homes. The program saw just less than 82 percent participation, and recycled a total 10,840 pounds of trash that would have ended up in the landfill.

"That would mean that 9,830 pounds would be taken out of the landfill per week if 81 percent, or 640 homes in Filer were recycling," Markle said. That would save the city nearly $4,200 a year, he added.

But residents attending the meeting were opposed to the initial cost of the program: a citywide increase of $3.50 to the current sanitation fee of $4.80. They voiced concern over the impact on those living on fixed incomes and the possibility of a future increase.

Markle responded by talking about the benefits of an incentive plan allowing the city to receive up to half of the recycling income. These funds could be used for community improvement projects or to help residents offset the additional recycling costs.

"I can't guarantee there won't be an increase, but it could remain here for the next several years," he said. "We could possibly even work at a discount with those who needed it."

After hearing both sides, council members voted to table further discussions and revisit the issue at a later date.

"This doesn't mean we couldn't look it again in the spring," Mayor Bob Templeman said. "This just doesn't appear to be feasible right now, but maybe we need to look at what the city can do on its own."

In other business, the council approved a special-use permit allowing Brian Dey and Mid-Valley Development to construct town houses on 13 residential lots on the Pebble Ponds Golf Course.

Boise Attorney Disbarred for Fraud, Theft

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Supreme Court has disbarred a Boise attorney who acknowledged taking more than $355,000 in fees from seven clients and refusing to provide an accounting or refund when they hired another attorney.

Rick Bergesen was disbarred on Oct. 31 and cannot seek re-admission to the Idaho State Bar for five years, the Idaho Statesman reported.

In order to gain readmission he would have to prove he is fit to practice law and reimburse the state Client Assistance Fund for payments made as a result of his dishonest conduct. He would also have to refund all unearned fees to clients and others named in the disbarment complaint who did not receive full reimbursement.

Ada County prosecutors alleged Bergesen bilked client Joy L. Cassidy, 75, out of $152,000.

Cassidy hired Bergesen to represent her after she was charged with putting syrup, ketchup and mayonnaise in library drop boxes after being banned from the library.

The disbarment complaint said Bergesen had the woman sign an agreement to pay him $200,000 for lifetime representation. The woman's bank stepped in after she had paid him just over $152,000, and she had sought to liquidate her retirement and annuity accounts to pay him another $100,000. The woman hired another attorney and Bergesen refused to refund the $152,000.

As part of a deal with prosecutors, Bergesen pleaded guilty to grand theft for taking a $1,100 retainer from a client after his license was suspended. A second theft charge was dismissed. He was sentenced to three to 10 years in prison and agreed to pay more than $150,000 in restitution to Cassidy and another client.

Bergesen acknowledged violating the Idaho Rules of Professional Conduct by charging unreasonable fees, convincing clients to pay additional fees, and failing to refund unearned fees, the complaint states.

In one case, he said he accepted a $40,000 "fixed" fee to represent a woman in a criminal case. He then requested another $50,000 because his client's "life and freedom (were) at stake."

His live-in girlfriend, whom Bergesen identified as his "investigator," received $10,000 to conduct research while Bergesen received $5,000 of the $15,000 he requested for final trial preparations. The woman Bergesen was representing reached a plea agreement and her father refused Bergesen's request for another $10,000 to represent her at sentencing. Bergesen refused the father's request for an accounting and refund of any unearned fees from more than $100,000 in payments.

Bergesen's attorney, Layne Davis, has said his client is a pathological gambler who suffers from bipolar disorder.

A GOP Debt Plan Would Hit Some Popular Tax Exemptions

WASHINGTON • Millions of taxpayers who take advantage of deductions for mortgage interest, charitable donations and state and local taxes would be targeted for potential tax hikes under a GOP plan to raise taxes by $290 billion over the next decade to help reduce the nation's deficit.

Some workers could also see their employer-provided health benefits taxed for the first time, though aides cautioned that the proposal is still fluid.

The plan by Sen. Pat Toomey, R-Pa., who serves on the 12-member debt supercommittee, would raise revenue by limiting the tax breaks enjoyed by people who itemize their deductions, in exchange for lower overall tax rates for families at every income level. Taxpayers who already take the standard deduction instead of itemizing — about two-thirds of filers — could see tax cuts. The one-third of taxpayers who itemize deductions might find themselves paying more.

The top income tax rate would fall from 35 percent to 28 percent, and the bottom rate would drop from 10 percent to 8 percent. The rates between would be reduced as well.

About 50 million households itemized their deductions in 2009, according to the nonpartisan Joint Committee on Taxation. About 35 million households claimed the mortgage interest deduction, and 36 million deducted charitable donations. Nearly 41 million claimed deductions for paying state and local taxes.

A GOP congressional aide said the plan is designed to raise taxes on households in the top two tax brackets. That would affect individuals making more than $174,400 and married couples making more than $212,300.

Some Republicans say the plan offers a potential breakthrough in deficit-reduction talks that have stalled over GOP opposition to tax hikes and Democrats' objection to cuts in benefit programs without significant revenue increases.

Democratic and Republican members of the supercommittee met separately Thursday, with no sign of progress on a deal.

Cain Receives Secret Service Protection

Herman Cain on Thursday became the first Republican presidential candidate to receive Secret Service protection. Cain asked for the security and Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano and congressional leaders approved his request Thursday, Secret Service spokesman Ed Donovan confirmed. Elite agents were expected to begin protecting the former pizza company executive sometime Thursday. There have been threats against Cain, who had been experiencing a bounce in the polls, according to an official with knowledge of the situation who asked not to be identified because of the sensitive nature of the situation. The nature of the threats was unclear. Donovan would not say whether there had been any threats or discuss why protection was being provided.

Chu: Solyndra Loan Based on Merits, Not Politics

Testifying under oath on a widening controversy, Energy Secretary takes blame for disastrous 2009 loan, but said he was unaware of many of its details and of Solyndra's problems.

BY MATTHEW DALY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • An unapologetic Energy Secretary Steven Chu defended a half-billion-dollar federal loan to a solar-panel manufacturer that went belly up, even as he told a House committee Thursday he was unaware of dozens of key details that led to the debacle over Solyndra Inc.

Under hours of hostile questioning from Republicans on the House Energy and Commerce Committee, Chu declined several opportunities to say he was sorry, but acknowledged that in hindsight the deal was "extremely unfortunate" and "regrettable."

"Certainly knowing what I know now, we'd say 'no,'" Chu said during a daylong hearing before the energy panel's subcommittee on investigations. "But you don't make decisions fast-forwarding two years in the future and then go back. I wish I could do that."

Rep. Cliff Stearns, R-Fla., chairman of the subcommittee, said after the hearing that Chu should be fired.

"I just think he has failed the test. The fact that he's unaware of so many things makes me think that he's not the best person for the position," Stearns said.

Chu insisted that politics played no role in his department's decision to loan Solyndra Inc., $528 million before it went bankrupt and laid off 1,100 workers.

Testifying under oath on a widening controversy, Chu took responsibility for the disastrous 2009 loan, but said he was unaware of many details about the loan or financial problems that Solyndra faced — including predictions by Energy Department staff two years ago that the company was likely to face severe cash-flow problems.

Chu repeatedly said he didn't know until recently of problems with Solyndra or suggestions of political interference on the company's behalf by the White House or Energy Department officials.

"I am aware of it now," he said at least five times.

Occupy Protesters March Nationwide; 300 Arrested

BY KAREN MATTHEWS

NEW YORK • Occupy Wall Street protesters clogged streets and tied up traffic around the U.S. on Thursday to mark two months since the movement's birth and signal they aren't ready to quit, despite the breakup of many of their encampments by police. Hundreds of people were arrested, most of them in New York.

The demonstrations — which took place in cities including Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Boston, Washington and Portland, Ore. — were for the most part peaceful. Most of the arrests were for blocking streets, and the traffic disruptions were brief.

Chanting "All day, all week, shut down Wall Street," more than 1,000 protesters gathered near the New York Stock Exchange and sat down in several intersections. Helmeted police officers broke up some of the gatherings, and operations at the stock market were not disrupted.

States Ramp Up Use of Teacher Evaluations

BY KIMBERLY HEFLING

WASHINGTON • Teachers and principals are worrying more about their own report cards these days.

They're being graded on more than student test scores. The way educators are evaluated is changing across the country, with a switch from routine "satisfactory" ratings to actual proof that students are learning.

President Barack Obama's recent use of executive authority to revise the No Child Left Behind education law is one of several factors driving a trend toward using student test scores, classroom observation and potentially even input from students, among other measures, to determine just how effective educators are.

House and Senate Approve Government Funding Bill

TRIBUNE WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON • Members of Congress have done something some thought was no longer possible: Come together to keep the government operating without waiting until the brink of a shutdown.

The House and Senate passed legislation Thursday designed to keep the government operating past midnight Friday and to fund several agencies for the 2012 fiscal year.

But the 298-121 vote in the House also exposed a schism between its most conservative members and GOP leaders. More than 100 Republicans voted no, a sign that GOP leaders might have trouble rounding up support for any deficit-reduction deal to emerge from the so-called supercommittee.

The Senate later approved the measure 70-30, with 30 Republicans against it and 17 voting yes.

The bill includes funding for agriculture, justice, commerce, housing and science programs through Sept. 30. It essentially holds spending to 2011 levels, as directed by the August deal to raise the nation's debt ceiling.

For the rest of the government, the legislation provides funding through Dec. 16. That suggests the rare bipartisan accomplishment could be fleeting.

IS ECONOMY BEST BIRTH CONTROL? U.S. BIRTHS DIP

ATLANTA • The economy may well be the best birth control. U.S. births dropped for the third straight year — especially for young mothers — and experts think money worries are the reason. ## Debt Plan

Republicans are becoming increasingly divided over the issue of raising taxes. A growing number of Republicans in Congress say they would support a tax reform package that increases revenues, if it is coupled with significant spending cuts, enough to reduce the deficit by about $4 trillion over the next decade.

The so-called "go big" strategy has been endorsed by a bipartisan group of about 150 lawmakers from the House and Senate. A rival group of 72 House Republicans sent a letter to the supercommittee Thursday, urging members to oppose any tax increases.

"We must recognize that increasing the tax burden on American businesses and citizens, especially during a fragile recovery, is irresponsible and dangerous to the health of the United States," said the letter, circulated by Rep.

Patrick McHenry, R-N.C.

Democrats, meanwhile, have panned Toomey's plan, saying the rate reductions would cut taxes for the wealthy so much that taxes on the middle class would have to be raised. They also argue that Toomey's plan would generate less revenue than advertised.

They note that Toomey's plan assumes that tax cuts enacted under former President George W. Bush, and extended through 2012 under President Barack Obama, would continue. Toomey's plan would then cut the tax rates even more.

Republicans say Toomey's tax overhaul plan would increase tax revenue by $250 billion over the next decade. An additional $40 billion would be raised by using a new measure of inflation to adjust the tax brackets each year.

Annual adjustments to the tax brackets would be smaller, resulting in more people jumping into higher tax brackets as their incomes rise.

Solar Loan

Chu refused to apologize for the loan debacle, calling it "extremely unfortunate" but based on factors beyond his control. He blamed the company's demise on "totally unexpected" market changes — including an influx of cheap imports from China and the collapse of the European market for solar panels — that led to a steep decline in the price of Solyndra's product.

Solyndra, of Fremont, Calif., was the first renewable-energy company to receive a loan guarantee under the 2009 stimulus law, and the Obama administration frequently touted it as a model for its clean energy program. Chu attended a 2009 groundbreaking when the loan was announced, and President Barack Obama visited the company's headquarters last year.

Since then, the company's implosion and revelations that the administration hurried a review of the loan in time for the groundbreaking has become an embarrassment for Chu and Obama and a rallying cry for GOP critics of the administration's green energy program.

Contradicting assertions by several committee Republicans, Chu said no one from the White House ever contacted him to make a political decision on the loan.

"I want to be clear: Over the course of Solyndra's loan guarantee, I did not make any decision based on political considerations," he said.

Still, Chu acknowledged mistakes and said that if he had the chance to do it again, he would not have approved the $528 million loan.

Chu also said he doesn't expect taxpayers will recover much of the money lost in the transaction.

Again and again, Chu expressed ignorance of issues related to the loan or the Obama administration's handling of it. For instance, Chu said he did not know until this week that some unidentified DOE officials had urged Solyndra to delay an early round of layoffs until after 2010 midterm elections.

"I was not part of that decision, and I certainly would not have been in favor of that decision," he said.

Rep. John Sullivan, R-Okla., asked Chu how closely he was involved in the loan process.

He has to approve the loans and be briefed on them, Chu replied, "and I ask questions about the loans as they come up."

Protesters

As darkness fell, a coalition of unions and progressive groups joined Occupy demonstrators in staging rallies at landmark bridges in several U.S. cities to protest joblessness.

In New York, a crowd of several thousand people, led by banner-carrying members of the Service Employees International Union, jammed Manhattan's Foley Square and then marched peacefully across the Brooklyn Bridge on a pedestrian promenade.

As they walked, a powerful light projected the slogan "We are the 99 percent" — a reference to the Americans who aren't super-rich — on the side of a nearby skyscraper. Police officers dressed in wind breakers, rather than riot gear, arrested at least two dozen people who walked out onto the bridges' roadway but otherwise let the marchers pass without incident.

The protests came two days after police raided and demolished the encampment at lower Manhattan's Zuccotti Park that had served as headquarters of the Occupy movement and as demonstrators and union allies tried to regain their momentum.

"This is a critical moment for the movement given what happened the other night," said demonstrator Paul Knick, a software engineer from Montclair, N.J. "It seems like there's a concerted effort to stop the movement, and I'm here to make sure that doesn't happen."

At least 300 people were arrested in New York. Some were bloodied during the arrests. One man was taken into custody for throwing liquid, possibly vinegar, into the faces of several police officers, authorities said. Many demonstrators were carrying vinegar as an antidote for pepper spray.

A police officer, Matthew Walters, needed 20 stitches on his hand after he was hit with a piece of thrown glass, police said.

In Los Angeles, about 500 sympathizers marched downtown between the Bank of America tower and Wells

Fargo Plaza, chanting, "Banks got bailed out, we got sold out!" More than two dozen people were arrested.

Police arrested 21 demonstrators in Las Vegas, and 20 were led away in plastic handcuffs in Portland, Ore., for sitting down on a bridge. At least a dozen were arrested in St. Louis in the evening after they sat down cross-legged and locked arms in an attempt to block a bridge over the Mississippi River. More were handcuffed for blocking bridges in Philadelphia and Minneapolis.

In Chicago, hundreds of protesters organized by labor and community groups marched toward the Chicago River. They stopped at the river bridge and shut it down to rush-hour traffic. Police officers scrambled to divert cars and pedestrians. People watched the protests from office windows and bus stops.

In Seattle, hundreds of Occupy Seattle and labor demonstrators shut down the University Bridge as part of a national day of action demanding jobs. Traffic was snarled around Seattle's University District as two rallies marched toward the bridge.

Teachers

A growing number of states are using these evaluations to decide critical issues such as pay, tenure, firings and the awarding of teaching licenses.

Two years ago, only four states used student achievement as a predominant influence in how teacher performance is assessed. Today, the number is 13, according to a recent report from the National Council on Teacher Quality. Ten other states count student achievement in a lesser but still significant way in teacher evaluations. In 19 states and the District of Columbia, teachers can be fired based on the results, the report said.

Even more changes are anticipated in coming months.

Obama said in September that states wanting relief from the Bush-era No Child Left Behind law could apply for a waiver from the law's tough-to-meet requirements for student achievement in reading and math. To get a waiver, one thing states must do is come up with ways to use teacher and principal evaluations to make personnel decisions.

This week, 11 states applied for waivers, and an additional 28 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico say they will be seeking waivers, too.

In addition to Obama's waivers, a major driver has been the administration's high-profile "Race to the Top" competition, which had states competing for billions in prize dollars if they adopted stronger evaluation systems. Sandi Jacobs, vice president of the National Council on Teacher Quality, said another factor is a growing body of research showing that teachers matter in how much students learn, and an influential 2009 report by the New Teacher Project revealing that fewer than 1 percent of teachers surveyed receive unsatisfactory ratings — even in failing schools.

The Oldest Old: Reaching 90 More Likely Than Ever

BY HOPE YEN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The rolls of America's oldest old are surging: Nearly 2 million now are 90 or over, nearly triple their numbers of just three decades ago.

It's not all good news. They're more likely than the merely elderly to live in poverty and to have disabilities, creating a new challenge to already strained retiree income and health care programs.

First-ever census data on the 90-plus population highlight America's ever-increasing life spans, which are redefining what it means to be old.

Joined by graying baby boomers, the oldest old are projected to increase from 1.9 million to 8.7 million by mid-century — making up 2 percent of the total U.S. population and one in 10 older Americans. That's a big change from over a century ago, when fewer than 100,000 people reached 90.

Demographers attribute the increases mostly to better nutrition and advances in medical care. Still, the longer life spans present additional risks for disabilities and chronic conditions such as arthritis, diabetes and Alzheimer's disease.

"If I get stuck with something I can't handle, I yell for the kids," says Betty Mae Gutoski, 85, of Muskegon, Mich., who says she expects to live past 90. After all, her father lived to 98. The colon cancer survivor lives alone and says she is "comfortable," getting occasional help with yard work from her son and grandson, who live next door.

Gutoski said in a telephone interview that she maintains her health by leading a busy life — driving, grocery shopping once a week, sewing, visiting the senior center, volunteering and meeting her friends for lunch — but she acknowledges having some fears. "My big worry is becoming a burden on my family," she said.

Richard Suzman, director of behavioral and social research at the National Institute on Aging, which commissioned the report, said cases like Gutoski's are increasingly common. Personal savings for retirement can sometimes be a problem, he said, if people don't anticipate a longer life or one with some form of disability.

An Associated Press-Life-GoesStrong.com poll in June found that more than one in four adults expect to live to at least 90, including nearly half of those currently 65 or older. A majority of adults also said they expected people in their generation to live longer than those in their parents' generation, with about 46 percent saying they expected a better quality of life in later years as well.

Strangers Reunite After Helping Each Other on Wisconsin Interstate

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP) • A motorist who had a heart attack but was kept alive by a stranger whom just minutes earlier he had stopped to help along a Wisconsin interstate has had a tearful reunion with that woman and the first responders who saved his life.

Victor Giesbrecht, 61, expressed his gratitude Wednesday to Sara Berg, the Eau Claire woman who performed CPR on him just a few miles further along the Interstate 94 from where he had helped her to change a tire.

"He said 'thank you' and we hugged, then we both started crying," Berg told the Eau Claire Leader-Telegram. First responders also attended the reunion at Giesbrecht's room at Mayo Clinic Health System in Eau Claire. Giesbrecht hoped to be released Thursday.

Giesbrecht, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, and his wife, Ann, were driving to Indiana Nov. 5 when they saw Berg, 40, and her cousin, Lisa Meier, stopped on the side of the interstate with a flat tire. Giesbrecht pulled over, retrieved a jack from his pickup and helped change the flat.

Minutes after driving away, Giesbrecht suffered a heart attack and lost consciousness. His wife brought their pickup to a stop and called 911. Then along came the women whom Giesbrecht had just helped. When Berg, a certified nursing assistant, discovered that Giesbrecht wasn't breathing, she started CPR. First responders arrived a short time later and used an automated external defibrillator to restore a normal heart rhythm.

"If she wouldn't have come along, I don't think we'd be here right now," Giesbrecht said.

Pilot Locked in Bathroom Touches Off Terror Alert on Flight

BY CHRIS HAWLEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • A pilot accidentally locked himself in the bathroom aboard a flight to New York City and touched off a brief hijacking terror scare that underscored the fears about air travel that still linger more than a decade after 9/11.

The captain of Delta Flight 6132 got stuck in the lavatory Wednesday during the flight from Asheville, N.C., to La Guardia Airport.

When a passenger with an accent tried to alert the co-pilot in the cockpit, the co-pilot became alarmed and notified air traffic controllers, according to a recording of the radio exchange from the website LiveATC.net.

“The captain has disappeared in the back, and I have someone with a thick foreign accent trying to access the cockpit right now, and I’ve got to deal with this situation,” the co-pilot said.

Indianapolis-based Chautauqua Airlines, which operates the flight for Delta, said the pilot had decided to take a bathroom break about 30 minutes from LaGuardia after controllers told the crew to expect to be in a holding pattern.

The sole flight attendant on board had entered the cockpit when the captain left because security rules require two crew members in the cockpit at all times. The Embraer 145 commuter jet was carrying 14 passengers.

The captain gave the passenger a password to get into the cockpit, but the co-pilot and flight attendant were still doubtful, the recording shows.

“Someone with a thick foreign accent is giving me a password to access the cockpit, and I’m not about to let him in,” the co-pilot said.

As the minutes ticked by, a controller told the co-pilot to consider declaring an emergency, which would give the plane priority over all others.

“OK, Chautauqua, you guys ought to declare an emergency and just get on the ground,” the controller said.

The captain eventually freed himself from the lavatory and came on the radio to tell controllers there was no danger.

“The captain — myself — went back to the lavatory and the door latched,” he said, explaining that he “had to fight my way out of it with my body to get the door open.”

“There is no issue, no threat,” the captain said.

Chautauqua said the crew followed security rules correctly and that the flight was never in jeopardy. Both pilots on airlines are qualified to land the plane solo.

Perry Picks Fight with Pelosi, Who Turns Down Challenge

BY JEFF AMY
and LAURIE KELLMAN
Associated Press

PEARL, Miss. • Texas Gov. Rick Perry, who’s running for president, is picking a fight with House Democratic leader Nancy Pelosi, who is not.

Struggling to steady his bid for the GOP nomination, Perry this week launched an outsider’s campaign against Washington culture and challenged Pelosi, ousted last year from the House speakership, to debate his plan to overhaul Congress.

She declined Thursday, becoming the latest congressional Democrat to mock Perry for the 54-second debate pause that launched a thousand jokes — some from Perry himself — during which the Texas governor couldn’t recall the third of three government agencies he wants to eliminate.

“Monday I’m going to be in Portland in the morning. I’m going to be visiting some of our labs in California in the afternoon. That’s two,” Pelosi told reporters. “I can’t remember what the third thing is I’m going to be doing.”

Very funny, Perry suggested during a stop at Jackson-Evers International Airport. Then he launched into Pelosi with a stream of accusations that echoed Republican attacks on her during the 2010 elections as the face of government overreach on health care, the economy and more.

“She may have forgotten all the reasons she can’t debate me on overhauling Washington, D.C., but the American people sure haven’t forgotten the reasons when you have liberal opposition for freeing the economy of this country, when you have just total disrespect for family values, I would suggest to you that’s the reason Nancy Pelosi is running away from having a debate with me.”

He never said so explicitly, but Perry apparently was referring to a report on CBS’ “60 Minutes” that looked at the investments of members of Congress, including Pelosi, House Speaker John Boehner and others, who reportedly bought stocks around the same time related legislation was being discussed. Pelosi and her husband participated in an initial public offering of Visa in 2008, buying 5,000 shares at the initial price of $44, the network reported; two days later, shares were trading at $64, CBS said.

A spokesman for Pelosi said her husband, Paul, sold a fraction of those stocks months later at the height of the financial crisis, when the price had again dropped. Those sales generated a profit of less than $5,000, said Pelosi aide Drew Hammill.

As for the debate dare, “It’s unfortunate that a candidate for president is focused on debating anyone other than his primary opponents and repeating false claims,” Hammill said late Thursday.

House OKs Federal Regulation on Concealed Weapons Permits

TRIBUNE WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON • The House of Representatives on Wednesday gave gun rights advocates their first legislative win of the year in a move that some saw as a Republican backflip on states’ rights: approval of a federal regulation that requires states that issue concealed weapons permits to honor such permits from other states.

The GOP-led chamber approved the National Right-to-Carry Reciprocity Act of 2011, intended to allow gun owners to travel more easily from state to state without worrying about whether their concealed carry permit was valid.

The legislation had bipartisan support in the House, where it passed 272-154, with 229 Republicans and 43 Democrats voting yes. The legislation is not expected to be taken up by the Democratic-led Senate, where a similar measure failed in 2009.

Opponents saw a conflict with another GOP priority — states’ rights. They argued the law would override state laws that determine who should be allowed to carry a concealed weapon.

The debate put the spotlight on the familiar tug of war between state and federal power, but it was somewhat unusual to see Republicans supporting the federal side. Proponents said the action was an attempt to clarify a complicated system of permit reciprocity — similar to requiring that state driver’s licenses be recognized in all states.

Forty states already allow some form of concealed weapons permits reciprocity, advocates said.

“The simple right to defend yourself and loved ones from criminals is fundamental, and it doesn’t extinguish when you cross a state border,” said Rep. Cliff Stearns, the Florida Republican who sponsored the bill.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Sink; Spain Becomes Latest Worry in Europe

NEW YORK (AP) • A spike in borrowing costs for the Spanish government renewed worries about Europe's debt crisis and pushed stocks lower for the second day in a row. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 134.86 points, or 1.1 percent, to close at 11,770.73. It fell as many as 229 points at 2:30 p.m. The Standard & Poor's 500 index lost 20.75, or 1.7 percent, to 1,216.16. The index fell below its average over the past 100 days. That's a bearish signal because many traders wait until indexes fall below such technical levels before deciding to unload their positions.

Ill. Man Sues Southwest over Free Drink Coupons

CHICAGO (AP) • A Chicago area man claims Southwest Airlines owes him 45 free drinks.

Adam Levitt has filed a federal lawsuit against the discount carrier over what he calls a breach of contract.

Levitt says for years he booked flights for the Business Select class, which gave travelers drink coupons worth $5 with no expiration date. But the lawsuit claims Southwest changed its policy last year saying Business Select travelers could only use coupons on the day of travel printed on them.

Levitt says his coupons are now worthless and his lawsuit includes copies of each of the 45 free drink coupons he claims he's owed.

The lawsuit seeks class-action status for Southwest customers nationwide who have unredeemed drink coupons.

As Fewer Americans Buy Homes, Apartment Construction Surges

BY DEREK KRAVITZ

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Builders have found a way to make money in a decrepit home market: Apartments.

Permit requests to build apartments jumped to a three-year high last month. In 12 months, they've surged 63 percent.

Blame the housing bust, which left many people without the means, the credit or the stomach to buy. More people need apartments. The demand has driven up monthly rents. And apartment-home builders are rushing to cash in.

That said, the overall home market remains depressed. Builders are still struggling. They broke ground on a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 628,000 homes last month, the government said Thursday. That's barely half the pace that economists equate with a healthy market.

High unemployment, stagnant pay and waves of foreclosures have slowed sales of single-family homes, which make up about 70 percent of the home building market. Apartment construction may be surging, but it's a small portion of the industry.

More apartment building won't add enough jobs to reduce unemployment or hasten an end to the housing crisis. Still, it's contributed to the overall economy's growth for two straight quarters. And many economists expect apartment construction to grow for at least the next 12 months, as long as the economy avoids another recession.

Two new home developments are seen on Oct. 18 in Canonsburg, Pa. U.S. builders started slightly fewer homes in October but a wave of apartment construction is being planned, which is a good sign for the struggling housing market.

"You're not going to see apartments as an economic driver," said James Marple, senior economist at TD Economics. "But it's renters who are clearly going to drive the demand for housing."

It's also worth keeping the increase in perspective: The growth in apartment construction is coming off extremely low levels. Last year, for example, only 146,000 apartments were built. That was the fewest since 1993. This year's pace isn't much more.

By comparison, in 2005, just before the housing market went bust, 258,000 apartments were built. Some signs suggest that builders could match that level over the next few years.

One such sign: Permits for apartment buildings, a gauge of future construction, have jumped more than 60 percent over the past year. That compares with just 6.6 percent growth in permits for single-family construction over the same period.

"The demand is there," said Mark Obrinsky, chief economist at National Multi Housing Council. "Rents have recovered, much of them to where they were before the recession."

Bob Champion, who runs a real estate company in Los Angeles, says he has four apartment projects in development. That matches the number he had in 2005.

It's quite a shift from 2006, when Champion's company stopped building apartments because the cost of land had skyrocketed.

Champion has raised rents about 4 percent this year. His occupancy rate is 95 percent. As recently as last year, his rents were flat, and he was dangling incentives, like a free month's rent, to woo tenants.

"People who can't afford to buy a home, rent," Champion said. "That's why the apartment market has stayed healthy."

Champion won't likely be building as many apartments next year, though. Land prices have doubled in the past two years, he said. Competition for apartment land has intensified.

For many builders, financing for a project remains a big obstacle. So is time. Apartment projects take an average of 18 months to build.

Still, fewer home buyers mean more people must rent. Nearly 4 million new renting households were created between 2005 and 2010, according to Harvard's Joint Center for Housing Studies.

Madison Quinton, 17, plays Snow White during Tuesday’s rehearsal for the Missoula Children’s Theatre production of ‘Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.’ The show will be on stage Saturday in Twin Falls.

‘The Girliest Girl’

A cast of almost 60 Magic Valley kids has just six days to put ‘Snow White’ on stage. If anyone can do that, it’s Missoula Children’s Theatre.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

As she orchestrated the seven dwarfs and a fussy princess at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts, Hannah Barudin watched Madison Quinton carefully.

“Snow White, remember, you are the girliest girl in the world,” Barudin told the teen. Be more prissy. Quinton said her lines again, and Barudin nodded her approval.

Only 24 hours after getting her script, Quinton already had many of her lines memorized. And those seven dwarfs had their hi-ho song down pat a day after learning it.

Barudin and Laura Barron are directors for Missoula Children’s Theatre, a Montana-based traveling production that uses local children for its cast in each town it visits. In Twin Falls this week, the pair is helping a cast of almost 60 prepare to perform “Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs” on Saturday. The catch? The kids have only six days from auditions to get ready for the show. To pull it off, Barudin and Barron stick to a precise schedule.

sends teams of directors across North America to put on productions using children from kindergarten to 12th grade. In each town, the pair of directors holds hour-long group auditions on a Monday. Rehearsals begin that evening, and by Saturday, the cast is ready to do two shows.

That requires children to adhere to a strict after-school rehearsal schedule. Most children come every night for at least two hours, and some who have bigger parts stay longer. On Tuesday during dinner break, some of the older kids did homework in the lobby — their only change to get it done in between reciting lines and learning blocking.

The directors provide all the costumes, scripts and props — everything needed to put on the play except the piano, the cast and the stage. After the show, they pack up everything and drive to the next location on Sunday.

Barudin and Barron have been on tour since June. They know every line in the play, and what page each scene is on. Every moment of every rehearsal is planned, and the pair knows how to split up the groups most effectively for maximum rehearsal time. They have to be strict about time management to pull it off, even refusing to answer questions from the children.

The cast members sometimes get freaked out at the short time they have to learn the script, but the younger actors adapt better, they said.

“The little ones don’t know it’s hard,” Barron said. “They just do it.”

On Tuesday night, Barudin and Barron separated the groups of actors. Barudin took the dwarfs upstairs, while Barron worked with the queen, henchmen and mirror downstairs. Quinton’s Snow White was required in multiple scenes, so she split her time between the groups. Both directors emphasized acting big and exaggerating movements.

Extraordinary Art

A Burley artist’s delicate carvings of Snake River wildlife command between $1,500 and $20,000 apiece. Enjoy them for free during next week’s Gallery Walk.

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

There’s one way to tell the difference between one of Burley artist Lona Hymas-Smith’s Western tanagers carved out of tupelo gumwood and the real thing: The real bird moves.

Hymas-Smith’s birds and fish are so realistic you can see every feather and every scale.

“People ask me how long it took to carve a specific piece and I tell them: 19 years. A lifetime,” she said. “That’s because every piece I do started with research collecting photographs and reading piles of ornithology books in order to learn everything I could. That’s how I capture the life of what I’m portraying.”

Hymas-Smith’s work will be featured at Kneeland Gallery, 271 First Ave. N. in Ketchum, during the town’s free Thanksgiving Gallery Walk on Nov. 25. Kneeland Gallery has featured the Burley artist’s work for years, her three-dimensional birds and

3 Best Bets

Accordion Champ

Sure, you might be skeptical. Tonight’s Arts on Tour performer is an accordionist.

But if his skills can send Belarus-born musician Alexander Sevastian on international concert tours and earn him solo spotlights with metropolitan symphonies, I’m certainly game to spend my Friday night in the audience. Sevastian’s online sound clips suggest an incredible dexterity and emotional range I never knew the accordion could produce.

Homegrown Magic

Among the ranks of the fledgling Magic Valley Magicians club, longtime pros have shared their secrets with novices. Now the club’s repertoire includes hypnotism, parlor magic, illusions and rope tricks — with comedy and clowning mixed in. They’ll perform together for the first time on Saturday in Twin Falls. The evening could be goofy, or could be impressive. Either way, it should be fun.

Intricate Illustration

Have children to entertain this weekend? Meeting bestselling author-illustrator Jan Brett could turn your simple gift of a Christmas picture book into an adventure. Brett’s booksigning tour will bring her through Twin Falls on Sunday, promoting a pair of children’s books full of her lush, wintry illustrations. One is paired with a Boston Pops DVD, which could help you turn a storybook into together time.

Barron’s crew was made up of teens, all of whom were experienced actors. They were less concerned about learning the lines on time and more concerned about keeping a straight face as the evil Queen Bella, played by Hailey Sandison, recited her hilarious, over-the-top lines.

“You crack me up so bad,” Quinton said as the cast laughed. Upstairs, Barudin went over scenes with the dwarfs and reminded them to enunciate, slow down and act big.

It’s little details that count, she told them. Point your toes forward. Say your line before you jump. “You know you’re doing well when I’m being nit-picky,” Barudin said.

fish fitting in nicely among the Western landscape paintings the gallery features.

“Her work is so detailed and realistic looking. Absolutely beautiful,” said Carey Molter, the gallery’s director.

Though she majored in art at Brigham Young University-Idaho, Hymas-Smith’s odyssey into carving was what she calls a fluke. Her sister wanted a cutout of a fish that she could paint, so Hymas-Smith took a hammer, chisel and rasp to a two-by-four piece of pine.

“Looking back, that first piece was hideous looking. But my brother-in-law said, ‘I think you can sell these,’ and so it began,” Hymas-Smith said. “I didn’t know anything about animals; I had done human portraits. But it evolved.”

That was then. Now, her work commands between $1,500 and $20,000 per piece. And her work is featured in such far-flung collections as The Mountain Art Gathering in Keystone, Colo., the National Hummingbird Society in Sedona, Ariz., even the Bronx Zoo in New York.

Hymas-Smith has worked with ornithologists and falconers to learn about the animals she carves. Eventually she found other artists who were doing the same thing — including Floyd Scholz, perhaps the most famous raptor carver in the world.

She hikes the trails in the high desert mountains and takes to the rivers studying the wildlife she carves. Then she returns to the studio outside her home on the banks of the Snake River five miles outside Burley. There she sketches an idea on paper, then molds that image into clay. When she’s achieved the size she wants, she takes a chain saw, band saw and belt sander to the wood, finishing it off with surgical dental power instruments. The tanager featured in her “Western Sunset Bird” piece took a month, working seven to 10 hours a day. Its spindly legs are made from musical instrument wire covered with putty, as they’re too delicate to carve.

The eyes are made from glass. Everything else is carved, including the branch it sits on. “People ask why I don’t use a real branch — that would be plagiarism,” Hymas-Smith said. “What I do is extremely labor-intensive and time-consuming,” she said. “But I can’t believe I get to do what I love. Every day I get to work 20 feet from my house, and when I’m not in my studio I’m outside in my kayak, in the river. I carve because it makes me happy. And it brings it brings joy to others.”

This month’s Gallery Walk on Nov. 25 will offer the last opportunity to view the Sun Valley Center for the Arts’ “Awkward Stage: Adolescence and Identity,” at Fifth and Washington streets in Ketchum.

Sam McGonigal, a Wood River Middle School student, was among the young models who posed for Hailey artist Pamela DeTuncq’s body-cast sculptures in an exhibition called “Flock.” DeTuncq’s cast teens are dressed in wool sweat shirts and felted pants. Besides dressing each in sheep’s clothing, she outfitted each with a Blackberry, cell phone or some other electronic device to call attention to teens’ tendency to act like followers.

“It was fun. But I had to stay still for 30 minutes. And that was really hard,” McGonigal said. “It’s neat to see how I turned out, though. And I think the exhibit looks really cool.”

So Strange! Show Off Your Primitive Skills on Your Christmas Tree

On the long Thanksgiving weekend, here's a way to blend archaeology and art.

On both Nov. 25 and Nov. 26, exhibits manager Joey Heck will offer drop-in classes on primitive skills, at the Herrett Center for Arts and Science in Twin Falls. Meant for children and families, the classes will focus on fun, hands-on art projects with an archaeological twist.

Participants can make replicas of ancient objects: split-twigs, figures, cattail figurines, fossils. A bonus: Most of the projects lend themselves to double duty as holiday ornaments, Heck said.

Each class will run about 45 minutes; cost is $5 per person.

Heck will repeat these three classes on both days:

- "Ducks and Deer," 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Nov. 25, and 1 p.m. Nov. 26. Students will learn to build two figurines using cattail leaves and tule stalks. Deer ornaments will be modeled after similar Great Basin-style figures typically made from split willow, while the duck figures will draw inspiration from similar Native American toy designs.

- "Festive Fossils," 2 p.m. Nov. 25, and 3 p.m. Nov. 26. Participants will use polymer clay to create a replica fossil trilobite, an ancient marine arthropod. After a short baking period, the fossils will be ready for use as ornaments, necklaces or stand-alone art pieces.

- "Winter Weaving," 11 a.m. Nov. 25, and 2 p.m. Nov. 26. Using a simple cardboard loom, students will create a woven bag using natural fibers. Then, they can use their skills at home to create Christmas stockings or other holiday projects.

Each drop-in session is limited to 20 students.

Concert Series: Classical Piano, Strings, Guitar

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • International concert pianist Misha Dichter will make an encore appearance with the Sun Valley Artist Series this winter.

This time he'll perform with his wife, Cipa Dichter, whom he met at The Juilliard School.

The couple will perform as part of the Sun Valley winter series' third season. Tickets for the four-concert classical music series are $200 and went on sale this week at svartistseries.org.

Individual concert tickets cost $35 ($40 at the door) and will be available at Ketchum bookstores prior to each concert. Tickets for the March 10 Suicide Prevention Concert cost $100, $250 and $500 and are tax-deductible.

All concerts start at 7 p.m. at the Church of the Big Wood, 100 Saddle Road in Ketchum. Selected preconcert talks start at 6:15 p.m.

This year's lineup:

Dec. 20: The Amadea Piano Trio's holiday concert includes works of Bach, Beethoven, Rachmaninoff and Mendelssohn. Violin player Alla Aranovskaya and viola player Boris Vayner played here last spring with the St. Petersburg String Quartet. This time they'll be joined by pianist Susan Spelius Dunning, the series' artistic director.

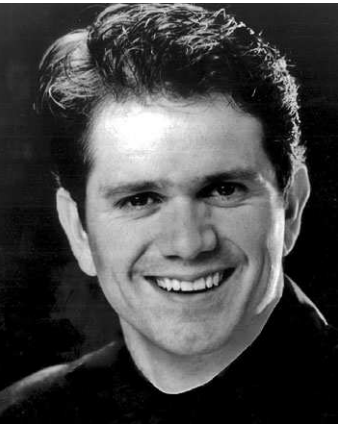

Last spring, the quartet asked Dunning to play with them at a private home following their concert.

"We had such a magical connection. And I was so honored. Russian musicians comprise classical musical nobility — so many great artists have come out of Russia," Dunning said.

Jan. 12: Swedish guitar virtuoso Mattias Jacobsson, who performed during the series' inaugural season, will make an encore appearance. The young guitarist attracted more young listeners than any series concert has since.

"He has a video on YouTube ... with 49,000 hits," Dunning said.

Feb. 4: Dunning and pianist Peter Henderson will play an evening of piano classics, including Beethoven's "Pathetique" and Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A minor."

The two combined for a similar evening of Russian music in the series' inaugural season, and it drew one of the largest audiences of the series' first two years.

March 10: Pianists Misha and Cipa Dichter will perform a benefit concert for the Wood River chapter of the National Alliance on Mental Illness, the Crisis Hotline of the Wood River Valley and The Speedy Foundation, created in memory of Boise's Olympic aerial skier Jared "Speedy" Peterson, who died earlier this year.

Dunning and series co-founder Steve Gannon decided to turn the concert into a benefit after Gannon's son Dex took his own life last winter.

"After it's happened to you, you want to do anything you can so others don't have to go through it," Dunning said.

Information: 725-5807.

Free Recital Lectures

• The Sun Valley Artist Series will feature local tenor John Mauldin at 6 p.m. April 8 as part of its free "Great Composers" recital lectures. Mauldin will perform the works of composer Benjamin Britten.

• A May 13 presentation will feature the Treasure Valley-based Langroise Trio performing the works of Boise composer David Allen Earnest, who composed the Caritas Chorale's work commemorating the Lewis and Clark expedition. That May recital lecture will offer listeners a preview of the chorale's new commissioned "Nez Perce" work which it will perform in July.

WESTERN MUSIC CENTRAL TO ELKO'S 2012 COWBOY POETRY GATHERING

The 28th National Cowboy Poetry Gathering — a celebration of the American West, its people, culture and traditions — is set for Jan. 30 to Feb. 4 in Elko, Nev. The gathering is a big draw for Magic Valley residents, but tickets to many of its events sell out early.

The gathering is as much about the West's music as about its poetry, and this year's event boasts a lineup of musical icons: among them, Ramblin' Jack Elliott, Ian Tyson, Michael Martin Murphey, Mike Beck and the Bohemian Saints, Martha Scanlan, Stephanie Davis, Wylie & The Wild West, Canada's Tim Hus and the Rocky Mountain Two, and Austin's Hot Club of Cowtown.

"Music has always been essential to the cowboy way of life," said Hal Cannon, the gathering's founding director. "But the fact is, today's cowboys not only sing to their cattle as they herd them along but they also need to express in song what it has meant to their livelihood to share the range with dirt bikes, condo developers and coalbed methane exploration."

Every winter for the last 27 years, rural and urban people have joined with cowboys and ranchers in the small high desert community of Elko to listen to poetry and music, learn about cowboy culture in the U.S. and around the world, experience great art, watch western films, learn a craft, play music and gather to eat, drink, swap stories and dance the night away. Open-mic sessions, music jams, dances and dance lessons offer opportunities for everyone to participate.

The 2012 National Cowboy Poetry Gathering will feature nearly 50 poets, musicians and musical groups from the U.S., Canada and Australia, performing on seven stages at four venues. Programs will focus on the southwestern U.S., specifically Arizona and New Mexico.

The nonprofit Western Folklife Center is the gathering's producer. For a look at some of the musicians performing, visit westernfolklife.org online.

As Christmas Comes, Astronomy Events Have You Looking Up

A third Christmas show has been added to the Faulkner Planetarium's holiday lineup this year — "Santa Snork Saves the Seasons."

Sam Snork is the crazy Norkian alien who was introduced in the Faulkner's "Planet Patrol" show several years ago. In the new holiday adventure, Sam relocates to study those odd creatures called humans and their strange world called Earth. On Christmas Eve, Sam wonders about the frozen stuff falling from the sky and about the seasons that produce different weather. And why do humans see patterns in the stars?

Younger children will enjoy the show's perspective on ourselves, our seasons and our holiday traditions, a Herrett Center release said.

"Santa Snork" opens Nov. 25 and will play, along with the Faulkner's other two holiday programs — "Steamrolling Through the Holidays" and "Season of Light" — through Dec. 31. Adult admission to the Faulkner Planetarium is $4.50. Senior admission is $3.50. Students and children older than 2 pay $2.50.

The planetarium is inside the Herrett Center for Arts and Science on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

For show times, call 732-6655 or visit herrett.csi.edu/astronomy/planetarium/holiday_show.asp

Astronomy Talk

Also at the Herrett Center next weekend, Chris Anderson's bimonthly astronomy talk, this time dubbed "The Astronomy of Christmastime," will be from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m. Nov. 25 in the Herrett's Rick Allen Room. An observing session follows from 8:15 p.m. to midnight.

The talk covers a potpourri of important events in the history of astronomy that happened during the Christmas season. Adult admission to the talk is $2.50, students play $1.50 and children 6 and younger get in free.

Lunar Eclipse

The Herrett Center is also cooking up a Lunar Eclipse Camp-In for families on Dec. 9. Details are still in the works, but basically people will come to the museum that Friday night for a planetarium show and astronomy activities, they'll camp out inside the museum, and then the Herrett staff will wake them at 4 a.m. to view the lunar eclipse.

CSI'S NEW LINEUP TO DEBUT IN TOURNEY

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

The names on the back of their jerseys may not be the same, but the starters on the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team for this week-end's K&T Steel Tournament will share a similar resemblance to last year's NJCAA championship squad.

Four guards and one big man.

"It does, doesn't it?" said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. "It was a pretty good lineup that worked well for us last year."

Gosar has shuffled around his versatile team, plugging guard Fabyon Harris into the starting lineup at the 2-guard, opposite point man Sebastien Michineau. Pat Swilling moves to small forward and Rafriel Guthrie shifts from shooting guard to power forward, replacing Paul Egwuonwu. That leaves the 6-foot-9 Luke Cothron as CSI's only true post in the starting lineup.

"You know, the hard part of this team and a blessing with this team is the options we have. We're going to use this nonconference season to look through these different options," Gosar said. "Last weekend kind of clued us into this one and you know what, we'll see how this works this week."

Harris started the second half of last week's 91-75 win over La Jolla Prep and immediately responded, scoring 27 of his 34 points in the final 20 minutes to lift a lifeless CSI team.

San Jacinto Puts Halt to CSI Spikers' Title Hopes

TIMES-NEWS

The other thumb will have to wait for its ring.

San Jacinto College-Central (Texas) killed the College of Southern Idaho's dream of a record 10th NJCAA volleyball championship, defeating the Golden Eagles 25-21, 25-21, 25-20 in the quarterfinals of the 2011 tournament Thursday evening in West Plains, Mo.

CSI, seeded fifth, had ample opportunities to win either of the first two sets against its fourth-seeded opposition. But the Ravens were able to reel off scoring runs when they needed them to thwart the Golden Eagles, who saw errors creep back into their game a couple weeks after they thought they'd banished them in a run to the Region 18 championship.

"We thought we were over that hump and it came back, we got a little bit into that rut. We didn't serve-receive too well and had too many errors," said CSI coach Heidi Cartisser. "I really do feel like we're a better team (than San Jacinto-Central), we just didn't rise to the occasion and perform like we can and how we've seen them play."

Beth Carey had nine kills in the loss, as did Emily Ottinger,

Minico Rolls Up Buhl in Win

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Minico started fast and finished faster in its 61-41 nonconference win over Buhl Thursday.

The Spartans (2-0) intense defensive pressure forced four turnovers in the game's first three minutes as Minico took a 10-0 lead and never looked back.

"Everybody has it in their heads and it's a team goal that we're going to state this year and show everybody that we are here to compete," said Minico's Chloe Bradford, who scored 11 points.

Minico, which got 18 points from leading scorer Marlee Chandler, built a 20-point lead in the second quarter. From there, coach Terry Merrill began substituting liberally to work on different player combinations.

"We're not big enough to play with big players, so this is a good game to practice the pressure defense," said Merrill, whose team forced 22 turnovers. "We're really proud of the kids' effort. I feel confident that we're coming along."

Buhl was without two starters in its frontcourt, and Minico capitalized by outrebounding the Indians 46 to 35.

Penn State Trustees Hire Law Firm in Abuse Scandal

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • Penn State's trustees have hired a large Pittsburgh-based law firm to represent them in relation to the child sex-abuse scandal for which three current and former university employees face criminal charges.

Reed Smith spokeswoman Jamie Moss said Thursday that the firm will be working on issues related to the arrest of Jerry Sandusky, the former assistant football coach accused of sexual abuse involving eight boys over 15 years, as well as administrators Tim Curley and Gary Schultz, who are charged with not properly alerting authorities to suspected abuse and perjury.

Moss declined to say whether Reed Smith, which lists more than 1,700 lawyers on its website, would be focusing on criminal or civil matters.

Penn State university police said a continuing search on Thursday turned up no record to support a former graduate assistant's claim he reported a sexual assault by Sandusky on a 10-year-old boy in a campus shower.

Mike McQueary, who is now an assistant coach but has been placed on administrative leave, wrote in an email to friends and given to The Associated Press that he had "discussions with police and with the official at the university in charge of police" about what he saw. In the email, McQueary did not specify whether he spoke to campus or State College police.

State College borough police Chief Tom King said McQueary didn't make a report to his department. Penn State has said campus police did not have any record of a report filed in 2002 by McQueary.

University police spokeswoman Annemarie Mountz said additional searching has been fruitless. She noted that the 23-page grand jury report was the state attorney general's summary of testimony, so it's unclear what McQueary's full testimony was. McQueary and a law firm representing him have not returned phone calls.

On Thursday, the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review reported that Pittsburgh Mayor Luke Ravenstahl wants former Steelers and Penn State player Franco Harris to step down as chairman of the Pittsburgh Promise

Kershaw takes NL Cy Young Award

DODGERS' KERSHAW EASILY WINS NL CY YOUNG

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Clayton Kershaw might be the only one not comparing him with Sandy Koufax.

Both left-handed aces for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

And now both Cy Young Award winners.

"I'm still uncomfortable with it," Kershaw said Thursday after winning his first NL Cy Young in a runaway. "I don't want to have any disrespect for Mr. Koufax. He did it for a long time. He won a lot of awards and he won World Series. He threw no-hitters. Just a lot of things I'm not anywhere close to accomplishing yet. I have tremendous respect for him and would never want to ever put myself in the same category as him."

Kershaw received 27 of 32 first-place votes and 207 points in voting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Philadelphia's Roy Halladay, last year's winner, was second with four first-place votes and 133 points. Phillies teammate Cliff Lee was third with 90 points, followed by Arizona's Ian Kennedy with 76 points.

"I always dreamed about playing in the big leagues. I never dreamed about doing anything special in the big leagues. I don't think any kid ever does," Kershaw said. "The people I'm now associated with, just by having this award, is something that I never thought would ever happen."

Koufax, among the greatest left-handers in baseball history, won three Cy Youngs for the Dodgers in 1963, 1965 and 1966. Kershaw has a long way to go before he matches those accomplishments.

"Whenever you have a Cy Young next to your name, there's going to be expectations that go along with it," Kershaw said. "Whenever I look at a pitcher and I see that he's won a Cy

PREP RALLY

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME PREVIEWS

KENDRICK (10-1) vs. HAGERMAN (11-0)
11 a.m., at Holt Arena

HOW THEY GOT HERE: Kendrick shared the White Pine League regular-season title with Troy and Potlatch. The Tigers drew straws with the other two teams and took the top seed, beating Troy (52-28) and District I champ Wallace (36-24) along the way to Holt. Hagerman cruised through the Snake River Conference with relative ease, beating Horseshoe Bend (55-8) and Oakley (39-22) to reach its first title tilt since 2000, when it competed in 11-man football.

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS MOMENT: Kendrick's run to the state championship is impressive, as it avenged its only loss in the quarterfinals over Troy, then defeated an imposing Wallace team in the semifinals. Hagerman's statement came with two wins over Oakley. The regular-season win, played in Hagerman, was a mercy-rule job, while the Pirates went to Oakley last week and cruised over the Hornets.

DETENTION: For Kendrick, it was the regular-season stumble against Troy, but that ended up being motivation for payback in the quarters. Hagerman has taken on all comers and passed all tests with flying colors. There's still one game to go, though, and the Pirates will hope this one doesn't become the "detention" moment.

VALEDICTORIUM: Kendrick quarterback Austin Hall makes the Tiger offense go. He's got the mobility to keep plays alive long enough to get receivers open, while also possessing speed enough to hurt teams with his legs if need be. Hagerman has no shortage of go-to guys, but it all starts with quarterback/linebacker Kade Kress, who's accounted for more than 2,700 yards and 42 touchdowns offensively and also leads the team with 116 tackles.

PREDICTION TIME
David Bashore: I hung around after Gooding's loss to Grangeville two weeks ago to watch Kendrick play Troy. Hall is a guy that makes things happen, but Kendrick looked smaller and slower than Hagerman, and Kress is the better QB. I can't see anything but a big Hagerman win. Hagerman 52, Kendrick 14.

Ryan Howe: This promises to be an exciting showdown between talented teams who are led by electrifying play-makers at quarterback in Kress and Hall. It's like Michael Vick vs. Vince Young, but without the canines and emotional issues. As a team, Hagerman is more athletic and physical, which will eventually wear down the Tigers. Hagerman 42, Kendrick 20.
Stephen Meyers: Hagerman hasn't played a close game since a 34-30 win over Castleford in early September. Will the Pirates be challenged today? Nope. This team has been on a mission since a statement victory against Oakley in the regular season and Kress, Martin, Owsley and Strick won't be denied. Hagerman 48, Kendrick 6.
Patrick Sheltra: There is no mercy rule in the championship game, but this one should get the ISHAA to think about having at least a running clock. What doesn't Hagerman have going for it? This Pirate ship will bring home some serious loot. Hagerman 63, Kendrick 8.

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN (8-3) vs. CAREY (11-0)
1 p.m., at Holt Arena

HOW THEY GOT HERE: Lighthouse Christian is on a four-game win streak, including playoff wins over Salmon River (46-0) and Kootenai (66-20). Carey has won its last 18 games, including nine straight mercy-rule wins. This one's guaranteed to go the distance, however, as there's no 45-point rule in the championship round.

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS MOMENT: Lighthouse Christian can hang its hat on shutting out high-powered Salmon River 46-0 in Riggins two weeks ago. Carey's semifinal win over Castleford, 62-16, kept the Panthers' mercy-rule streak alive for another week.

DETENTION: A game that might give Lighthouse Christian pause is its last loss, 45-24 to Castleford more than a month ago. Carey's dismantling of Castleford, albeit a significantly disarmed team compared to the one that beat the Lions. Carey hasn't had a single misstep all season — but there's still one game to navigate.

VALEDICTORIUM: Lighthouse Christian will get a big boost if senior Gabe Heath is able to go, after missing the last two playoff rounds with a leg injury. The Lions' offense has been just fine without him but he adds another weapon in that potent attack. For Carey, Charlie Rivera is the best two-way threat, but the entire defense seems to revolve around defensive ends Dillon Cenarrusa and Glen Andrews, who challenge offensive lines like few bookends can.

PREDICTION TIME
David Bashore: Lighthouse Christian's main chance hinges on whether it can handle Cenarrusa and Andrews. If the Lions can do that, they should be able to score with Carey. Trouble is, nobody's been able to do it yet, and nobody's figured out how to stop the Panthers' offensive attack. Carey 42, Lighthouse Christian 24.

Ryan Howe: This game will be much closer than most people think. Sure, Carey has been untouchable this season and deserves high praise. But Lighthouse Christian has evolved and matured throughout the season and is playing excellent football right now. Most opponents facing Carey are down 20 points, mentally, before they even take the field. But making their first-ever state playoffs, the Lions are perhaps just naive enough to not care about the Carey tradition. I'm picking the upset of the century: Lighthouse Christian 46, Carey 42.
Stephen Meyers: It's been a fun season for the Lions, making it to their first-ever state championship game, but they haven't faced a defense as tough as this Cenarrusa and Andrews-led unit. Lighthouse Christian will fall today, but maybe this season will be a launching pad for an historic Carey-like run. Carey 48, Lighthouse Christian 30.
Patrick Sheltra: Whatever happens today should not diminish what Lighthouse Christian has accomplished this year or its promise for even better seasons in the future. Carey is just more experienced and talented, so the best hope for Lighthouse is to make it a game in the fourth quarter and hope it's Carey — and the Panthers haven't been challenged all year — that panics. Carey 65, Lighthouse Christian 22.

Tebow, Broncos Top Jets on Last-minute Drive

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER • Tim Tebow's 20-yard touchdown run with 58 seconds left capped a 95-yard drive and sent the Denver Broncos to a 17-13 victory over the stunned New York Jets on Thursday night.

Tebow saw the blitz and outflanked safety Eric Smith around the left edge, then cut back and bulled his way past other Jets into the end zone.

The Broncos (5-5) are 4-1

since Tebow replaced Kyle Orton.

The Jets (5-5) lost their second heart-breaker in four days. Mark Sanchez's desperation pass toward the end zone was batted down as time expired.

Nick Folk's 45-yard field goal broke a 10-10 tie with 9:14 remaining, and the Broncos found themselves facing a daunting task when they got the ball back with 5:54 left at their own 5.

New York safety Jim

Leonhard could have throttled Denver's winning drive on the first play when he wrapped up Eddie Royal in the end zone on a throw to the right flat, but Royal wig-gled free for 8 yards.

Tebow ran just twice for 11 yards until the final drive, when he carried seven times for 58 yards in a performance reminiscent of his miracle in Miami, when he was ineffective for 55 minutes, then led the Broncos to two TDs in the final 5 minutes of a game Denver won in overtime.

After completing just two passes in a win at Kansas City four days earlier, Tebow completed 9 of 20 passes for 104 yards Thursday night.

"I said before, I trust him. I trust him with everything," teammate Von Miller said about Tebow. "No matter how many interceptions he throws, no matter how many touchdowns he throws. I'm going to ride him to the end. I hope he shut up a bunch of his critics today."

Before Denver's unorthodox option offense prevailed again, it appeared the Jets were going to win this one thanks to an oddball touchdown — left guard Matt Slauson's fumble recovery for a touchdown.

ROUGH FIRST HALF DOOMS CSI WOMEN

TIMES-NEWS

If only there was a restart button.

Throw out a dreadful first half and the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team would have given No. 3 Midland (Texas) a run for its money.

But alas, a strong second-half effort wasn't enough to lift CSI (1-2), which lost 80-62 to the Chaparrals in the its opening game of the Midland College National Invitational Tournament.

CSI will play Angelina (Texas) today at 3 p.m. in the loser's bracket.

The Golden Eagles played a forgettable first half which left them staring at a 41-16 deficit at the break. They shot just 21 percent from the field, made only two 3-pointers and turned the ball over 14 times.

Kylee Schierman was held scoreless in the half, Chakala Carthen was just 1-for-6 and Tayllor Gipson scored half of the team's 16 points.

Midland (6-1) went on a

5-0 run to push the lead to 21-9 with 10:27 remaining and by the 5:44 mark it was 31-16. Ornella Bacchini scored all eight of her points in the half with Morgan Schwartz getting seven of her 10.

CSI, however, showed life in the second half, outscoring Midland 46-39.

The Golden Eagles went on a 7-0 run to pull within 12 at 67-55 and got to as close as nine with 2:06 remaining, but there would be no comeback on this night.

Gipson finished with a game-high 22 points and Adriana Dent pitched in 12 for the Golden Eagles.

while Heather Meeuwssen had 17 digs.

The Golden Eagles were sluggish to begin the tournament before advancing past Mineral Area (Mo.) 23-25, 25-17, 25-20, 25-17.

Carey had 15 error-free kills against Mineral Area, while Ottinger added 12 kills and Keani Passi had 10 kills and 13 digs. Taylor Wilkinson led the Golden Eagles with eight blocks, and Meeuwssen had 20 digs.

There's not much time for CSI to reflect on what might have been, as the Golden Eagles today will face Eastern Arizona, which had a two-set lead against undefeated No. 1 seed Blinn College only to lose in five sets.

"It sucks, but at the same time we need to go out and have some pride,"

Cartisser said. "We're not going to be in the top four but we can go after five. That's what we entered in and we can hold our own that way."

Regardless of the outcome against Eastern Arizona, CSI will have one more match on Saturday. The winner of today's match will play for fifth or sixth place, while the loser will play for seventh or eighth.

Notes: Third seed Western Wyoming and defending champion Western Nebraska, seeded second, join San Jacinto-Central and Blinn in the semifinals. ... This is the first time in four tournaments that Region 18 isn't represented in the final four. ... North Idaho College, seeded seventh, was the only top seed to lose in the first round, going down in straight sets to the College of Central Florida.

good team," said Buhl's Cassidee Kippes, who scored a team-high 17 points. "I feel like we played pretty good for what we had. There's still stuff we need to work on, like turnovers."

Buhl fought back to within nine points early in the final period, but Spartans Micaela Merrill and Chandler helped stifle Buhl's rally, combining for 13 of Minico's 21 fourth-quarter points.

"I don't think tonight was our best performance," said Bradford. "The first and fourth quarters were definitely our strongest because we had energy and were gunning it. But as soon as we backed off we got sloppy."

Minico travels to Preston today. Buhl goes to Declo on Tuesday.

scholarship program because Harris has questioned football coach Joe Paterno's firing last week.

Harris has said he felt Penn State trustees erred in firing Paterno, who fulfilled a legal requirement by alerting his superiors but has been criticized for not doing more when he learned of a sex abuse allegation against former defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky in 2002.

Ravenstahl's press secretary and Harris did not immediately return calls from The Associated Press on Thursday.

Pennsylvania lawmakers are planning a special commission to examine the legal issues raised by the scandal, which has prompted questions both ethical and criminal about why allegations of abuse went unreported for so long.

The scandal has resulted in the ousting of school President Graham Spanier and Paterno, and has brought shame to one of college football's legendary programs. Curley has been placed on administrative leave, Schultz, who was in charge of the university's police department, has stepped down.

Schultz, Curley and Sandusky have all maintained they are innocent.

A commission being set up by Pennsylvania lawmakers will consider changes to state law in the wake of the scandal. The plan was described as being in the planning stage, including meetings of leaders and their aides.

There have been other proposals for legislative action in Harrisburg, as well as in Washington, where U.S. Sen. Bob Casey, D-Pa., has introduced a bill that would strengthen child-abuse reporting requirements.

On Thursday, U.S. Rep. George Miller of California said scandals at Penn State and the Citadel in South Carolina demonstrated a need for the House Education and the Workforce Committee to study potential changes to federal laws that protect children and students.

Sandusky's lawyer, Joe

Amendola, appeared with him on NBC's "Rock Center" on Monday night and cast doubt on the evidence in the case. Sandusky, 67, appeared on the show by phone and said he had showered with boys but never molested them.

It remains unclear how many accusers have surfaced more than a week after state police and the attorney general's office said at a news conference they were seeking additional potential victims and witnesses.

State police spokeswoman Maria Finn said investigators have told her that published accounts reporting how many people have come forward are inaccurate and they are not disclosing their internal figures.

Cy Young

Young Award, I think, you know, this guy, he better be good. And that's what I hope to be. I hope people have that expectation for me."

With a big curveball that might be the best in baseball, Kershaw won the NL's pitching triple crown. Pitching on a team that went 82-79, he led the league with a 2.28 ERA and 248 strikeouts and with a 21-5 record tied Kennedy for most wins.

The 23-year-old left-hander, whose previous high for victories was 13 in 2010, dominated the league during the final two months of the season, going 8-0 with a 0.96 ERA in his final nine starts.

Kershaw was 5-0 against the defending World Series champion San Francisco Giants, going 4-0 with a 0.30 ERA in head-to-head matchups with Tim Lincecum, the 2008 and 2009 winner.

Orel Hershiser, who won the 1988 Cy Young for the Dodgers, said Kershaw moved from "good to great." "He's just scratching the surface of what he can become and I know he can reach much higher limits," Hershiser said.

Kershaw's .207 opponents' batting average was the second-lowest in the major leagues among qualified pitchers, trailing only Detroit's Justin Verlander (.192), the unanimous AL Cy Young winner.

Hokies Hang On, Beat North Carolina

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Logan Thomas threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third, leading No. 9 Virginia Tech to a 24-21 victory over North Carolina on Thursday night and another 10-win season.

The Hokies (10-1, 6-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) won their sixth in a row since a home loss to No. 7 Clemson and remained on track for a rematch with the Tigers in the ACC championship game. Virginia Tech would clinch its fourth Coastal Division title in five years Saturday night if Virginia loses at No. 23 Florida State.

If the Cavaliers win, the Virginia rivals play for a berth in the conference championship game Nov. 26.

North Carolina (6-5, 2-5) lost its second straight. The Tar Heels failed to get anything going on offense until after the Hokies had taken a commanding lead, then made it tense for fans that remained in the stands on a frigid night.

Today is Friday, Nov. 18, the 322nd day of 2011. There are 43 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Nov. 18, 1883, the United States and Canada adopted a system of Standard Time zones.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1886, the 21st president of the United States, Chester A. Arthur, died in New York.

In 1910, British suffragists clashed with police outside Parliament on what became known as "Black Friday."

In 1928, Walt Disney's first sound-synchronized animated cartoon, "Steamboat Willie" starring Mickey Mouse, premiered in New York.

In 1936, Germany and Italy recognized the Spanish government of Francisco Franco.

In 1958, the cargo freighter SS Carl D. Bradley sank during a storm in Lake Michigan, claiming 33 of the 35 lives on board.

In 1966, U.S. Roman Catholic bishops did away with the rule against eating meat on Fridays outside of Lent.

In 1978, U.S. Rep. Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., and four others were killed in Jonestown, Guyana, by members of the Peoples Temple; the killings were followed by a night of mass murder and suicide by more than 900 cult members.

In 1987, the congressional Iran-Contra committees issued their final report, saying President Ronald Reagan bore "ultimate responsibility" for wrongdoing by his aides.

In 1991, Shiite Muslim kidnappers in Lebanon freed Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite and Thomas Sutherland, the American dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut.

In 2000, actors Michael Douglas and Catherine Zeta-Jones were married in an extravagant wedding at The Plaza hotel in New York City.

Ten years ago: Phillips Petroleum Co. and Conoco Inc. announced they were merging in a deal to create the third-largest U.S. oil and gas company.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush, in Hanoi for a summit of Pacific Rim countries, lined up support for pressuring long-defiant North Korea to prove it was serious about dismantling its nuclear weapons program. In a fairy-tale setting, Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes exchanged wedding vows in a glowing 15th-century castle in the medieval lakeside town of Bracciano, Italy.

One year ago: President Barack Obama rallied former diplomatic and military chiefs from both parties to pressure reluctant Republican senators into ratifying a nuclear weapons deal with Russia. (The Senate ratified the treaty the following month.) General Motors stock resumed trading on Wall Street, signaling the rebirth of an American corporate icon that had collapsed into bankruptcy and was rescued with a $50 billion infusion from taxpayers. Felix Hernandez of the Seattle Mariners was chosen the AL Cy Young Award winner.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"In thy breast are the stars of thy fate."

— Johann von Schiller

As the story goes, the famous French player Roger Trezel was sitting South, playing in a tournament against an exceedingly pretty lady in the West seat who was wearing a very low-cut dress. This was the first of two boards.

Trezel, who had reached a delicate slam, was treated to a low club lead. Fearing it was a singleton, he went up with dummy's club ace, intending to rely on the heart finesse to make the slam. Lo and behold, when he played the ace, the singleton club king fell from East! So Trezel had gotten it right, up to a point. Somebody did indeed have a singleton club.

But now Trezel realized there was no need to risk the heart finesse, since there was a great danger that if the finesse lost, the lady would give her partner a club ruff. But there was no need to take any risk here. Trezel simply played the heart ace, expecting to knock out the heart king and surrender just one trick in due course. Much to his surprise, and certainly his pleasure, the singleton heart king fell from West!

So Trezel wrapped up 13 tricks, losing to neither singleton king! Later, however, he overheard his right-hand opponent, shaken from losing both kings, discussing the hand. "From the moment we sat down at the table, that young man was craning his neck, looking unashamedly into my partner's cards. No wonder we didn't make either king."

ANSWER: Your two-club call created a game force, but your partner's hand is undefined as to range. He rates to have a minimum balanced hand, but you don't have to decide for him. Raise to three hearts, suggesting that you are interested in slam and letting him cue-bid if he has anything in reserve.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance, “Todd,” and I have been together for four years. He proposed this summer and our wedding is planned for next year. I thought planning our wedding would be fun, but it has turned out to be a nightmare.

I want orange as our primary color, but now Todd is saying he “hates” the color orange, although he never mentioned it before. I tried to get him to agree to pair it with a color of his choice, but he refused.

Todd is being unreasonable and will not agree with me on the color. Since it mainly affects the bridal party, I feel it should be my decision. He says it isn’t, and that he won’t even wear an orange tie or anything like it. What is your opinion?

— STUCK ON THE COLOR IN GEORGIA

DEAR STUCK: This isn’t just “your” wedding; it’s Todd’s wedding, too. If he would find standing at the altar opposite a line of bridesmaids clad in orange to be a turnoff and dislikes the color so much that he refuses to wear a tie or boutonniere that’s orange — then agree on some other color. This is only one of the many compromises that lie ahead for you, so start practicing with this one.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Two months ago, my brother and his wife asked me to move in with them. It’s beautiful here, they have a lovely home and have been extremely hospitable for the most part. The problem is they fight like cats and dogs. It gets so bad sometimes that the neighbors have to call the police.

Once a week without fail, they have a huge spat about one thing or another and argue at all hours of the day and night. They break things, curse and call each other names I wouldn’t call my worst enemy. If I had known they were this unhappy, I would never have moved in.

They’ve been together for so long, this may just be their way of communicating, but I can’t put up with the long days and sleepless nights. It’s beginning to wear on my sanity.

How do I tell them I appreciate them for letting me stay, but I can no longer take the constant fighting?

— THANKS, BUT NO THANKS

DEAR T., B.N.T.: Thank them for their hospitality and for offering to share their lovely home with you, but that you will be moving to a place of your own. If they ask you why, tell them that you love them both, but the long days and sleepless nights when they argue are preventing you from getting the rest you need. It’s the truth, and it probably won’t be the first time they’ve heard it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman who is Baptist by faith. I believe that when I die I will go to heaven. My problem is, if going to heaven means being reunited with my parents and other family members, then I don’t want to go! The idea of spending eternity with them is more than I can stand, but I don’t want to go to hell, either. Any thoughts? — ETERNALLY CONFUSED IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR ETERNALLY CONFUSED: Yes. When you reach the pearly gates, talk this over with St. Peter. Perhaps he would be willing to place you in a different wing than the one your parents and other family members are staying in. And in the meantime, discuss this with your minister.

IF NOVEMBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Get prepared for the end of the tax year by making sound business choices. Between now and the new year, your friends or acquaintances could distract you from doing the very things that make you happiest. If you want to be happy, concentrate on your achieving ambitions. Buckle down to work in March and early April, as only industry and efficiency will get you through some tough times. Wait until May and June to put plans to achieve your most cherished dreams into motion. Not only will you have opportunities to succeed, you will also have the grit and determination, too.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a deep breath and focus. You are filled with plenty of energy, but it will do you no good unless you concentrate on moving forward. Don't leap to one side in an argument before facts are made clear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Read the fine print. Read all documents and information presented to you carefully. Moving too fast could cause you to overlook a key insight that could make your task much easier and more profitable.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Flattery will get you everywhere. A few well-chosen words could make the difference between selling your ideas and going back to the drawing board. You are capable of disarming your harshest critic.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Even Superman needed his Fortress of Solitude. Being part of the crowd isn't your thing today, as you will perform much better on your own. Put social events off until later and concentrate on personal matters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Forgive and forget. What may have seemed like the end of the world yesterday can easily be swept under the rug today with a simple apology. Keep the lines of communication clear to avoid misunderstandings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't pick up the pieces until the storm has passed. Trying to act as mediator while a conflict rages could make you a victim of collateral damage. Stay out of others' arguments until cooler heads prevail.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The answer is maybe. You may be faced with those who demand a quick decision, but unless you have all the facts at your disposal, your best bet is to wait for more info. Hold off on making key purchases.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones. You may easily find fault with someone else's performance, but unless you wish to be reminded of your own shortcomings, just bite your tongue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are in the driver's seat and can control the outcome. Be honest and forthright to gain the trust and confidence of others. The words of a close friend or significant other provide inspiration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You won't see the true color of the sky until the clouds have cleared. Avoid sweeping changes in business or finances until a controversy is cleared up. Do not waste sympathy on those who don't deserve it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Campaign for support. Take time to gather allies and supporters for your upcoming project. Make plans now, but don't take action until tomorrow. Leave nothing to chance; say only what you mean.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stifle your impulses. Your gut instincts may take you off the beaten path and into areas that will waste your time and divert you from objectives. When faced with a problem, approach a trusted mentor for advice.

Idahoan Charged with Trying to Assassinate Obama

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
and JESSICA GRESKO
Associated Press

BOISE • An Idaho man accused of firing an assault rifle at the White House believed he was Jesus and thought President Barack Obama was the Antichrist, according to court documents and those who knew him. At one point, he even suggested to an acquaintance the president was planning to implant computer tracking chips into children.

Oscar Ramiro Ortega-Hernandez, 21, was charged Thursday with attempting to assassinate the president or his staff. He is accused of firing nine rounds at the White House last Friday night — one of them cracking a window of the first family's living quarters — when Obama and the first lady were away. If convicted, Ortega faces up to life in prison.

Ortega was arrested Wednesday at a western Pennsylvania hotel when a desk clerk there recognized him and called police.

Ortega's public defender, Christopher Brown, declined comment after his first court hearing in Pennsylvania. Ortega's mother has said he has no history of mental illness, though when authorities were looking for him, they reported he had "mental health issues."

In Idaho Falls, where Ortega is from, a computer consultant told The Associated Press that the two met July 8 after Ortega asked for help editing a 30-minute infomercial. Monte McCall said that during the meeting at Ortega's family's Mexican restaurant, Ortega pulled out worn sheets of yellow paper with handwritten notes and started to talk about his predictions that the world would end in 2012.

"He said, 'Well, you know the president is getting ready to make an announcement that they're going to put GPS chips in all the children, so they're safe,'" McCall said. "... And then he said, 'That's just what the Antichrist is going to do to mark everybody.'"

Kimberly Allen, the mother of Ortega's former fiancée, said he had been well-mannered and kind in the four years she had known him. But he recently began making statements to her daughter that were out of character, including that he believed he was Jesus. Allen said the family was worried when he went to Utah recently, where he said he had business, and didn't come back. Ortega's family reported him missing Oct. 31.

Allen said they were flabbergasted to hear he was wanted in Washington.

"I believe that the boy needs help," said Allen, of Shelley, Idaho.

Her daughter, Jessica Galbraith, was engaged to Ortega and is the mother of their 2-year-old son. She declined to comment Thursday except to say: "I love him, and I'm here for him."

It was unclear why or when they split.

Reached by the AP on Thursday, Ortega's mother said she didn't have anything to say. She earlier told the Post Register in Idaho Falls her son has no history of mental illness.

"He has different ideas than other people, just like everyone, but he was perfectly fine the last time I saw him," Maria Hernandez told the newspaper. "He might be saying weird stuff that sounds crazy, but that doesn't mean (he) is crazy. He might be confused and scared."

At his first appearance in court in Pennsylvania, Ortega sat quietly, his hands free but his feet shackled. He said only, "Yes, ma'am" when he was asked if he understood that he would be going back to Washington to face the charge.

According to a court document released after the hearing, authorities recovered nine spent shell casings from Ortega's car, which was found abandoned near the White House shortly after the shooting. An assault rifle with a scope was found inside.

A person who knows him subsequently told investigators that he had become increasingly agitated with the federal government and was convinced it was conspiring against him, the document said. Others told investigators that Ortega had reportedly said Obama was the Antichrist and the "devil." Ortega also apparently said he "needed to kill" the president.

Authorities said Ortega was clad in black when he pulled his car within view of the White House on Friday night, fired shots and then sped away. The White House has not said whether the Obamas' daughters, Sasha and Malia, were there at the time or commented on the shooting.

Ortega was questioned by police on Friday morning, before the shootings, just across the Potomac River from Washington in Arlington, Va. Police said they stopped him after a report of suspicious behavior, but let him go after photographing him because they had no reason to make an arrest.

Ortega has an arrest record in three states but has not been linked to any radical organizations, U.S. Park Police have said.

This is not the first time the White House has come under attack.

In the last 40 years, the landmark has faced threats ranging from a stolen helicopter that landed on the grounds in 1974 to a man who wielded a sawed-off shotgun on a sidewalk outside in 1984. In 1994 alone, there were five threats including a plane crash on the lawn and a suspected drive-by shooting. Another man fired at least 29 rounds from a semiautomatic weapon, with 11 striking the White House.

Dan Bongino, a former Secret Service agent who served on the presidential details for Obama and President George W. Bush, said Friday's shooting would likely mean tighter security and coordination.

"They do an exhaustive review of their security procedures every time something like this happens," said Bongino, who recently left the Secret Service to run for U.S. Senate in Maryland. "Nothing ever works perfectly. They will undress this completely and then they will find out when they rebuild the incident exactly what they could have done better."

Trio of Aussies Banned From Hunting in Idaho After Surveillance Leads to Arrests

The men were arrested on numerous violations, including taking a bull elk out of season and an improperly tagged wolf.

BY KATY MOELLER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Three men who traveled to Idaho from Down Under last month to hunt deer, elk and wolf ended up in the crosshairs of Fish & Game officials.

The men were arrested on numerous violations, including taking a bull elk out of season and an improperly tagged wolf.

Anton Kapeller, 58, Darren Tubb, 43, and Samuel Henley, 18, all from Tasmania, Australia, spent almost a week in the Elmore County Jail.

Kapeller and Tubb were banned from ever again hunting in Idaho at a sentencing this week. Henley was banned for four years, according to Elmore County Deputy Prosecutor Lee Fisher.

The men also were sent home without their hunting rifles, which were seized by the court.

They trio was fined thousands of dollars each: Kapeller, $5,792; Tubb, $5,268; and Henley, $2,333.

Evin Oneale, a spokesman for Idaho Department of Fish & Game, said other hunters had flagged Fish & Game officials to suspicious activity by Kapeller in previous years. Officials had been trying to catch them for several years, but “it just never worked out,” Oneale said.

Hunters were being watched

Fish & Game officials observed the Aussie hunters shoot and kill a bull elk at about 5:56 p.m. on Oct. 28, according to court documents.

The hunting party shot the elk in the Black Warrior Creek drainage of Elmore County. That is in what's designated as Unit 39, a vast area that includes portions of Elmore, Boise and Ada counties.

Elk hunting season in that unit didn't start until Nov. 1 — so the elk was killed a few days before the official start of the season. Hunting seasons are designated to maintain sustainable wildlife populations, Oneale said.

For example, there's no hunting in the spring, when babies are born.

“Same for summer,” Oneale said. “Animals on low elevation winter ranges are extremely vulnerable, so we don't hunt then.”

What were Fish & Game officials doing in the Black Warrior Creek drainage before the elk hunting season started?

“We knew these guys were going to be here, so were able to send in a surveillance team to watch them,” Oneale said.

Rather than immediately arrest the hunters, Fish & Game officials decided to observe them for a while and meet them at the trailhead. The next morning, investigators saw two men, later identified as Tubb and Henley, walk to the dead elk's location.

“Officer Flatter and I saw the same two men walking away from the dead elk's location carrying backpacks that appeared to contain elk meat (sic),” Conservation Officer Marshall Haynes wrote in an affidavit filed in court.

The officers then went to observe the elk carcass. They reported a rotten odor of wasted meat. The head and only one hind leg had been removed. They obtained a tissue sample for DNA comparison.

On Nov. 3, they contacted the hunters at the Little Queens trailhead. The men had the antlers and about 20 pounds of elk meat; the vast majority of the meat went to waste.

Tubb admitted to knowingly killing the bull elk during closed season. Investigators viewed the hunters' photos and videos of their kill.

Investigators learned that Henly shot two wolves when the men were retrieving the elk antlers Nov. 2. Tubb tagged the second wolf with his tag — another violation.

In some states, transferring tags is legal and called “party hunting,” Oneale said.

He said Idahoans consider that unethical and not part of “fair chase.”

“Hunters in this state are only permitted to kill animals for which they have tags and during open season,” Oneale said.

Arrests big news Down Under

The plight of the Aussie hunters has been big news Down Under.

Two newspapers, including The Mercury (“The Voice of Tasmania”) and The Examiner (“First in Tasmania”) both covered the story from afar. One of them sent a New York City-based reporter to cover the sentencing in Mountain Home this week.

Fisher, the Elmore County deputy prosecutor, said he was surprised to see an Aussie reporter in the courtroom.

“What he told me is that they don't have deer and elk in Australia,” Fisher said. “To them, deer and elk are exotic. He said, ‘We just have things that hop around.’”

The Mercury newspaper reported that Kapeller had a prior elk-poaching charge in Tasmania in 1990. The Tuesday article said Kapeller was charged with taking a deer using diazepam (valium). At that time, Kapeller operated a deer farm, according to The Mercury.

“He pleaded guilty to taking two wild fallow deer from Midlands properties and setting free two of his own farm stock in exchange,” the paper reported, saying Kapeller's intent was to improve the bloodline of his stock.

The Mercury also published an article speculating that it may have been “jealousy” by local Idaho hunters that had led to the arrests of the Aussies.

A friend of Kapeller's told the paper that Kapeller is able to “hunt up high,” in the 7,000 to 8,000 feet range.

“Americans generally sleep at 3,000 to 4,000 feet so it means the Tasmanians have the advantage of height when the elk start to head up the mountain in the morning,” the man told The Mercury.

“He is generally more successful than locals and they may have got resentful,” the unidentified man said.

Oneale said that's not likely.

“Looks like a friend trying to cover for his buddy,” he said.

Kapeller pleaded guilty to possession of an unlawfully taken elk (closed season), possession of an improperly tagged wolf, and aiding in the take of a closed-season elk. He was also cited for litter and leaving an unattended camp fire.

Tubb pleaded guilty to taking a bull elk during closed season, wasting a bull elk and transferring a wolf tag to another. Henley was charged with attempting to take a closed-season elk and use of another's wolf tag.

The total bond for the three men was $165,000. They forfeited $16,500.

Driver Hurt After Collision with Train at Rail Crossing

MOYIE SPRINGS (AP) • State Police say a truck driver is injured after his semi was hit by a freight train at a rail crossing.

The train did not derail and the truck remained upright in the accident that occurred shortly before noon Wednesday.

Police say 45-year-old driver Ronald D. Miller of Superior, Mont., stopped at a stop sign and proceeded across the tracks at Moyie Springs without seeing the train.

The train hit the cab of the truck and pushed the vehicle off the tracks.
