Bleary-eyed Shoppers Swamp Stores Early

Earlier hours and the lure of deals brought Magic Valley consumers out in droves to kick off the Christmas season with the ringing of silver bells and cash registers alike.

They chugged Red Bulls, braved long lines, and stopped at many stores — all before the crack of dawn.

This year, Black Friday could almost be called Black Thursday, as retailers opened earlier — pushing forward the start of the biggest retail shopping day in the nation. Best Buy and Target stores, for example, opened up at midnight this year.

For three days starting on Black Friday, 152 million people in the U.S. are expected shop, an increase of about 10 percent over last year, according to the BUHL • Sifting through a dirty plastic bag, Maricela Fregoso picked out the soot-covered items with the utmost care.

"This is a candle that was at my daughter's baptismal candle," she said. "Oh, and this is my first shoe I ever wore."

The items are few, burned and contorted after experiencing high levels of heat, but Maricela only describes them as "holy."

They are also the only items remaining from her home.

Last Friday, the Fregoso family woke up to the smell of smoke and quickly realized their kitchen was on fire. Maricela rushed to take her three daughters outside while her husband, Humberto, stayed to extinguish the flames. After water failed to control the fire, he left the

Idaho Teachers Union Leader Has Tough Task Ahead

BOISE • The new president of the statewide teachers union has a tough task reorganizing the 13,000-member group after it took a beating during the 2011 Idaho Legislature, with measures passed to weaken their collective bargaining and phase out some job protections.

But Penni Cyr says she's up for the assignment.

Cyr is starting a three-year term as president of the Idaho Education Association after nearly 30 years teaching in Moscow public schools. Her husband, Craig, works at Schweitzer Engineering Laboratories, Inc., in Pullman, Wash., and remains in Moscow, where their four adult children also live.

"I go home when I can, but it's often time to work," Cyr said.

Among her top priorities: A campaign to repeal the sweeping education changes that were signed into law earlier this year with backing from public schools chief Tom Luna and Gov. Butch Otter. The laws will go before Idaho voters in November 2012.

Elementary schools work to strike balance with holiday celebrations

BY JULIE WOOTTON

Children at Summit Elementary School in Jerome won't just be singing traditional holiday songs during their upcoming concerts.

Although sixth-graders are singing "White Christmas" during a school performance, another group's program will include "Fireflies" by Owl City — a song that topped music charts in 2009.

Music teacher Penni Aufderheide says she uses a curriculum that emphasizes different types of music. However, songs all revolve around a common theme.

"We don't just go with holiday songs," she said.

It's a busy time of year at many schools, with holiday music performances approaching. Aufderheide has 20 classes of students and is breaking them up into nine different concerts.

ASK ST. LUKE'S

Can't Sleep? Treatable Apnea Could be the Problem

I have difficulty sleeping. What could be occurring and is it treatable?

— Ellen, Declo

Answered by Kurt Bywater, Team Lead, RPSGT/CRT, St. Luke's Magic Valley Sleep Institute:

Sleep is as important as the air we breathe, water we drink, food we eat and exercise. Sleep apnea is one of the most common and treatable conditions for those who have difficulty sleeping. Some common signs and symptoms of sleep apnea are; chronic snoring, pauses in breathing, gasps for breaths, waking up with heart racing, high blood pressure, and restless sleep. Sleep apnea refers to a breathing pause that lasts for least ten seconds. Sleep apnea occurs when the muscles in the back of the throat fail to keep the airway open, despite efforts to breathe. It is also typically accompanied by a drop in your oxygen saturation of 4 percent or more. When your oxygen level drops, your heart has to work harder to compensate for low oxygen levels. Adrenalin kicks in, making your heart race, which could lead to heart failure.

How can you tell if you may have sleep apnea? Do you have loss of energy during the day? Are you irritable, moody, and have excessive daytime sleepiness? Does your difficulty in sleeping disrupt your daily life? If so, you may have sleep apnea.

Talk to your primary care physician about your difficulty in getting a good night's rest. They may suggest that you take a sleep test. With the sleep test, you could also find out there are potentially other causes of your difficulty in sleeping – it could be restless leg syndrome, narcolepsy or other health ailments that require a different course of treatment.

Sleep apnea is treated by using a CPAP (Continuous Positive Airway Pressure) machine that provides a gentle, quiet stent of air to keep your airway open while you sleep. If you have a mild case of sleep apnea, you could be fitted with a custom-fit mouth guard that will increase the airway size. Surgery is also another possibility in treatment of sleep apnea.

Here are some tips you can try to get a good night's sleep before seeking professional advice. Set a schedule and go to bed at the same time each night, exercise 20-30 minutes per day, avoid caffeine, nicotine and alcohol. Relax before bed and make sure your room temperature is comfortable for sleeping. Don't eat two to three hours before your regular bedtime and try to sleep until the sun comes up. If after trying these techniques you don't get back into a good sleeping pattern, see your primary care physician for guidance.

others flocked inside Shopko and Macy's, which opened at midnight.

Hannah Johnson of Jerome started waiting outside Sears before midnight, lured by the promise of $80 computers.

"There's only two in the store, so we've got to hurry," she said.

This year, Mother Nature was kind to the hardy souls braving the elements. Temperatures in Twin Falls hit their low point at 39 degrees shortly before 10 p.m. Thursday, and rose into the 40s in the following hour, according to the National Weather Service.

Friday's howling wind didn't hit Twin Falls until many shoppers had already paid for their early-morning finds.

Kurtis Moser, a mechanic from Twin Falls, waited outside Sears to take part in the store's sale on Craftsman power tools. He shrugged off the early-hours wait, saying it's worthwhile and doable.

"You just drink a bunch of Monsters and smoke some cigarettes and you're good," he said.

The early birds inside Macy's before 4 a.m. peered through the glass walls awaiting the mall's opening. When the doors swung open, they flocked inside, scattering throughout the mall like a horde of insects.

Retailers weren't the only ones up early. Food vendors at the mall also were on hand with their wares.

Workers started baking rolls at 10 p.m. Thursday at Mrs. Powell's Cinnamon Rolls inside the mall, said Mark Mohlenbrink, owner of the business.

A desire to remain competitive fueled the early openings at stores.

Tim Mealer, home essentials manager at Twin Falls' Best Buy, said the store's first-ever midnight opening is the chain's way of staying ahead of the competition.

"Us being Best Buy, we want to stay on top and we felt as a company that was the way to stay on top," he said.

The earlier openings required some logistical changes, like having employees come in at 9 p.m. Thursday to prep the store.

Walmart started its specials even earlier, with sales unrolling throughout Thursday evening.

While a handful of violent episodes erupted around the country, Black Friday in Twin Falls was a quiet affair by comparison. Dispatchers and police reported no criminal acts associated with the shopping spree.

Holidays

At public schools, specific religious holidays can't be promoted, but some schools teach about customs from a cultural and historical viewpoint.

Aufderheide says she has a few students who are Jehovah's Witnesses and don't observe holidays. They're excused from holiday music lessons.

"Most of the time, I ask the students to read a book and stay in the room," she said. She says it's a difficult situation, though.

"I still want them to learn music, but I want to honor their beliefs," she said.

In Murtaugh, Superintendent Michele Capps, who doubles as the elementary school principal, said students perform non-religious songs.

Also, "we don't do religious themed art projects," she said. Decorations at the school tend to revolve around general holiday themes, such as Santa Claus, reindeer and bells.

Craig Maki, principal at Kimberly Elementary School, said the school doesn't have a specific policy regarding the holidays.

"We need to be representative of many religions and cultural groups," he said.

The school has a holiday music program each year and the emphasis in classrooms is teaching students about holiday traditions in other cultures.

At Harrison Elementary School in Twin Falls, it's a similar story. References aren't made to any particular faith during the holiday season. The school has a holiday party each year, but it revolves largely around "cupcakes and games," Principal Chris Gillette said.

If parents are opposed to their child participating in a holiday-related activity, an alternate activity is available or they can be excused from school.

Also, school cafeterias provide accommodations for students who have dietary restrictions – such as no pork – as part of their religious beliefs.

As far as holiday art projects, it's a non-issue for some schools. Harrison Elementary doesn't have an art teacher and as a result, students don't complete art projects regularly.

"We just don't have time," Gillette said.

Although some teachers do simple art projects with students on Friday afternoons, it's not a school-wide occurrence.

At public schools like Harrison, celebrating a particular holiday may be forbidden, but there can still be a broader focus on holiday spirit.

"I think it's stressed that it's about giving and community service," Gillette said.

When visitors walk through the main school entrance, a Christmas tree in the main hallway is covered with colorful bulb ornaments and miniature soccer balls. Soon, it will be surrounded by canned food students will bring in during the annual food drive.

School employees have also given up their normal gift exchange for the past couple of years and adopt a family instead. This year, they're providing a Christmas tree and presents for a Harrison Elementary family led by a single mom.

"They probably would not get much in the way of gifts" otherwise, Gillette said.

lawmakers limit collective bargaining to salaries and benefits, dump seniority as a factor in layoffs and require union negotiations to be held in public. Idaho is also introducing teacher merit pay and shifting money from salaries to help pay for the changes, which will arm every high school teacher and student with a laptop and make online classes a requirement to graduate.

"(Students) are going to be excited because they get computers," Cyr said. "But I worry, are we experimenting on our kids? Where's the research that shows one-to-one computing devices, requiring online course, is going to help students achieve greater?"

house to meet up with his family.

The fire, caused by a spark from a kitchen electrical outlet, quickly jumped onto the drapes and spread from the kitchen to the living room in mere minutes. Even after Jerome Rural Fire District crew members responded to the scene, the house was clearly unsalvageable by dawn.

Now the Fregoso family is trying to rebound from the loss. But with financial and emotional challenges, the family is recovering slowly.

They have had some help, though. Idaho Red Cross representatives connected the Fregoso family with several aid agencies. So far, South Central Community Action Partnership and the Salvation Army have provided clothes and other resources for the family.

"People have been generous and donated items, but it's not the same," Maricela said. "The stuff that you buy is bought with your own sweat and heart. People giving you stuff isn't the same thing for you to build a home."

The Fregosos plan on moving into a temporary house in downtown Jerome on Tuesday, but, for now, the family has been living apart. Maricela and her daughters are staying at her parents' house. Humberto has stayed with his family in Eden to stay closer to his job at a Jerome-based dairy. She said that her parents have been financially taxed with her staying at the home – Maricela's parents are trying to fend off a pending foreclosure.

"You never plan for something like this," she said. "It puts a strain on everyone."

As Christmas approaches, the Fregoso family will most likely forgo presents and focus on replenishing their home.

"My family was spared, that's all that matters," Maricela said.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT GROUP LOOKS AT STATEWIDE INCENTIVES TO BOOST JOBS

BY BILL ROBERTS
The Idaho Statesman

A Treasure Valley economic development group is floating ideas for a statewide program of incentives to help lure jobs to Idaho.

The Boise Valley Economic Partnership, an arm of the Boise Metro Chamber of Commerce, has been talking with state leaders and other economic development groups, looking for ideas that can help Idaho make the final cut for companies considering expansion within the state or relocating from elsewhere.

Among the ideas under consideration are a tax credit for high-wage jobs and a fund that would pay companies that hire employees in certain types of jobs that could spur additional job growth.

"What we need is a job expansion tool," said Clark Krause, executive director of the partnership.

Plans aren't firm yet, but the partnership points to states that have made improvements in their package of incentives to welcome industries.

• New Mexico offers a 10 percent tax credit for the compensation of employees, including wages and benefits, for up to four years for new high-paying jobs. High-paying means $40,000 a year or more in metro areas and $28,000 in rural area.

• Utah has a tax credit of up to 30 percent of state taxes for qualifying companies either expanding or relocating to the state.

A business expansion fund that could pay companies bringing qualified new jobs to Idaho could require an appropriation from the state.

Krause hopes discussion will result in legislation to take before lawmakers in January. Such incentives would likely have drawn little interest in the past couple of years as Idaho cut deeply into state government to balance its books.

And those kinds of incentives have not typically been done in Idaho.

Tractors Stolen From Idaho Farmer's Field

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AMERICAN FALLS • Call it an "International" incident.

Officials in southeastern Idaho are looking for two men who apparently helped themselves to two red International Harvester brand tractors sitting in a farmer's field near American Falls last week.

The farmer noticed the International 1586 and 674 missing on Nov. 18, Power County Chief Deputy Sheriff Jackie Morris said Friday.

KIFI-TV, which first reported the thefts, said witnesses had seen the tractors being hauled away on trailers pulled by pickup trucks.

Nobody got a license plate number, but Morris said the white Dodge pickup with dual wheels and the blue Chevrolet pickup match the description of the vehicles driven by two men who had stopped at a nearby farm looking for scrap metal last week.

The farmer values the tractors at a combined $5,000 to $7,000. He told investigators both vehicles ran, but they had their quirks. "We've had a lot of scrap metal stolen," Morris said. "This is totally off the wall here."

He urged farmers who are putting away sprinkler pipe and other equipment to check on it at least once a month and to write down serial numbers of tractors and other major equipment.

Morris is contacting businesses that purchase scrap metal as well as tractor salvage businesses in an effort to track down the thieves.

Crapo Backs Bill To Keep Farms, Ranches Intact

IDAHO STATESMAN

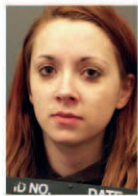

BOISE • Sen. Mike Crapo, R-Idaho, is cosponsoring a bill intended to help rural families avoid pressure to sell, break up or develop their property when handing it down to the next generation.

The American Family Farm and Ranchland Protection Act would change the estate tax code to boost an incentive for permanently conserving the land under easement.

A conservation easement is a voluntary agreement that permanently limits certain development while allowing farming and ranching to continue. Under current law, 40 percent of the value of land in an easement can be exempted from the taxable estate. The amount is capped at $500,000.

Pleas Entered in Drug-related Assault Case

BY KEITH KINNAIRD
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • A Sandpoint man accused of holding an ex-girlfriend against her will and robbing her during a drug deal is entering into a plea agreement with the state.

Jason Courtney Kaelin is pleading guilty to aggravated battery and heroin trafficking. In exchange for the pleas, robbery and kidnapping charges are being dismissed, according to court documents.

The plea agreement requires Kaelin to admit violating the terms of his probation in a construction site theft case dating back to 2008.

Kaelin, 32, is scheduled to be sentenced in 1st District Court on Jan. 17, 2012.

Kaelin is accused of attacking the woman with a stun gun, hammer and knife during a drug deal at his Sandpoint home last June. The woman told police she was robbed of her purse and force-fed prescription anti-anxiety medication during the ordeal and used a cell phone concealed in a cushion to repeatedly call 911, the arrest report said.

Mackenzi Jane Cain was later implicated as an accomplice in the incident and was charged with aiding and abetting in the crimes and pleaded guilty to slightly reduced charges. A robbery charge was amended to grand theft and a trafficking charge was amended to felony drug possession. A third count of delivery of a controlled substance was dismissed, according to court documents.

Cain, 20, was sentenced on Nov. 7. Judge John Patrick Luster imposed concurrent prison terms of two and a half years to six years with retained jurisdiction. When jurisdiction is retained, a defendant is imprisoned for six months to a year before becoming eligible for release onto probation.

Boise Filmmaker Goes Online To Solicit Funding

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Boise filmmaker Gregory Bayne, founder of the LovelyMachine production company, is looking for about $25,000 to produce a documentary about Kirk Bloodsworth, who was the first person in the United States to be exonerated by DNA evidence after being convicted and sentenced to death for a murder he did not commit.

Bayne launched a funding campaign on Kickstarter.com, an online crowd-funding system that allows anyone to pledge support and make a contribution in return for rewards related to the production of the film. But "Bloodsworth" will only be funded if at least $25,000 is pledged by 3 p.m. Monday.

"Through Kirk's story, and this film, I am trying to help shine a light on injustice," Bayne said in a news release from the Idaho Department of Commerce. "Stories like Kirk's happen more often than we'd care to imagine."

Bayne plans to weave together archival footage and Bloodsworth's re-telling of his experience with animated reenactments based on court records, police reports.

"Bloodsworth" began development in April and has been supported by the Idaho Commission on the Arts. It is a sponsored project of the nonprofit Independent Filmmaker Project in New York.

Bayne has produced and directed two feature films since 2009, the narrative thriller "Person of Interest" and the documentary, Jens Pulver "Driven," which received a workforce development grant in 2010 from the Idaho Film Office and is in release via Warner Brothers Video on Demand.

ITD Nears Completion Of Fish Project East of Lowman

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • A steep, dark, narrow culvert under Idaho Highway 21 created aquatic gridlock for fish and other water creatures traveling Five Mile Creek about 11 miles east of Lowman.

The Idaho Transportation Department and U.S. Forest Service's solution was to remove the 300-foot-long, 72-inch-wide culvert and replace it with a 125-foot-wide bridge, opening up Five Mile Creek.

Restoration of the fish passage will allow bull trout and other fish and aquatic organisms better navigation and re-establish Five Mile Creek's physical and biological connectivity the South Fork of the Payette River, according to ITD.

Land-traveling wildlife also will benefit from the project by being able to cross under the highway instead of across it.

The $1.2 million fish-passage project, paid for by the Forest Service, is scheduled to wrap up by early December. Crews will return in the spring to complete seeding, paving and roadway approaches, and other minor work.

Troopers Arrest Men After Finding Meth, Coke

CHUBBUCK (AP) • A routine traffic stop on the Idaho interstate netted a pair of alleged drug dealers from California on Thanksgiving morning.

It was just before 10 a.m. on Thursday when Corporal Brady Barnes of the Idaho State Patrol pulled over a pair of men heading down

U.S. Interstate 84 near Chubbok.

Despite the holiday, they didn't have turkey in the car. Instead, officers found about 2.2 pounds of cocaine, 2.7 pounds of methamphetamine and nearly $1,000 in cash.

The drugs had a street value of $145,000.

Arrested were Raymond A. Camacho, a 56-year-old from Fresno and Juan Aguilar, a 59-year-old from San Jose.

They're now being held in Bannock County Jail awaiting charges.

Police dogs assisted in finding the drugs in the pair's car.

Woman Charged with Trying to Hit Woman with Car

POCATELLO (AP) • A 19-year-old Idaho Falls woman faces several charges after prosecutors say she tried to strike another woman with her vehicle after an argument.

The Idaho State Journal reports Camille Lankford was arrested Wednesday on suspicion of aggravated assault and possession of methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia.

Pocatello police responded to the report of an accident at about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Sgt. Nathan Dekemper says an investigation found Lankford had been arguing with another woman when she jumped into her vehicle and tried to drive it into the other woman. She missed and struck the would-be victim's car, damaging it.

A search of Lankford's car turned up the drugs. She was taken to the Bannock County jail.

St. Luke's Jerome!

From St. Luke's Health System

The name has changed, but St. Luke's Jerome will carry on the 60-year tradition of high quality community health care—now as a critical access hospital in the St. Luke's Health System.

St. Luke's Jerome will continue to serve as a local point of care for your family's health care needs.

'Rock Stars' to Fortify Dover Hillside

BY KEITH KINNAIRD
Bonner County Daily Bee

DOVER • Bonafide rock stars are being brought in to lock down the granite slope overlooking the new U.S. Highway 2 bridge.

The Idaho Transportation Department has hired Janod Rock Remediation to stabilize the slope with a series of anchors, rock bolts and wire mesh, a project that is slated for completion by Christmas.

Janod is currently being profiled on the National Geographic Channel program, "Rock Stars," a documentary series that premiered on Tuesday.

"We still have some scaling to be done," Janod's Pierre Rousseau said of work on the hillside. "The hill was pretty clean when we arrived."

Ken Sorensen, ITD's resident engineer, said the stabilization work will cost about $800,000. The project was designed by Fisher & Strickler Rock Engineering.

"We still have some scaling to be done. The hill was pretty clean when we arrived."

Pierre Rousseau of Janod Rock Remediation

The work will involve prying loose rock from the hillside and drilling, installing and grouting anchors. More than a hundred bars will be driven into the hillside and cinched together with bolts.

"They're going to be actively pressing the rock face together," said Steven Farrand, an engineering geologist for Fisher & Strickler.

A curtain of wire mesh measuring approximately 157 feet long and 52 feet high will be draped atop the hillside to keep rocks from tumbling down onto the highway.

Concerns about slope stability on the north side of the bridge emerged last summer and slowed work on the bridge while various solutions were pored over.

Before work on the new bridge started in 2009, coming up with the $21.5 million in funding was perceived as the project's biggest challenge. But building the span has been fraught with headaches.

There were problems getting some of the piling to bite into bedrock, girders from Oklahoma arrived behind schedule and it was discovered that Stetten Construction installed anchor bolts in bridge piers at too shallow of depth, which required a corrective action plan.

During a tour of the construction site on Nov. 3, Sorensen was frank about his frustration with the project, saying he would rather build three Sand Creek Byways before building another Dover Bridge.

"Everything on this job has been a royal pain in the ass," he said.

Utah Couple Sues Over Beetle-tainted Baby Formula

BY JENNIFER DOBNER
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A Utah couple has filed a personal injury lawsuit against the makers of Similac, claiming their child was sickened by drinking the baby formula because it was tainted with beetles and beetle larvae.

Attorneys for Adam and Amanda Oettli, of Sandy, filed the lawsuit against Abbott Laboratories Inc. this week in Salt Lake City's 3rd District Court.

Court papers say the couple's infant son, Conner, suffered digestive problems, stomach cramping, diarrhea, vomiting, constant crying and other symptoms after being fed the formula. The papers say Conner was fed the formula, which was purchased at Costco, for about eight months.

The lawsuit seeks a jury trial and unspecified financial damages.

Similac products were recalled in September 2010 after Abbott said the formula from a specific production facility might contain beetles. In a letter sent to consumers who purchased the baby formula at Costco, a company official says "there is a remote possibility that consumption of product could cause diarrhea and/or nausea. The letter, which is included as an exhibit in court papers, also says the U.S. Food and Drug Administration had determined the recalled products pose no serious health concerns.

In an email to The Associated Press on Friday, Abbott spokesman Scott Stoffel said he could not comment specifically on the Utah lawsuit because he had not seen it.

Stoffel said the company's own quality system had detected the problem and immediately "stopped production and shipment of product, conducted an investigation, tested recently produced product to determine if it could be affected, conducted a medical assessment, and worked around the clock to recall the product."

A 2010 AP story about the recall said the voluntary action affected up to 5 million Similac-brand powder formulas sold in the U.S., Puerto Rico, Guam and some Caribbean countries.

Stoffel said the Utah lawsuit was not the first filed against the company related to this recall, although he could not say how many or where. Some of the lawsuits have been dismissed, Stoffel said.

A message left for the Oettlis on Friday was not immediately returned.

The formula purchased by the couple bore the same lot number as the products recalled by Abbott, the lawsuit states. The lawsuit also contends that a complaint about Similac contamination problems was registered with the FDA in May 2010, more than 130 days before a recall was issued.

Court papers say Conner Oettli continues to suffer gastrointestinal problems, constipation and other medical problems as a result of ingesting the contaminated formula.

Researchers Propose System to Find New Life

BY NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash. • Thousands of planets will likely be discovered in the next few years, and a new system is needed to better classify the ability of those worlds to support life, according to a Washington State University professor.

In a paper to be published in the December issue of Astrobiology, professor Dirk Schulze-Makuch and colleagues propose a new system that classifies some planets as either similar to Earth, or not similar but capable of harboring life.

That is different from the current system, which is dominated by the notion that Earth serves as the best model of conditions suited to the emergence of life on other worlds, Schulze-Makuch said.

The search for life on other planets should actually begin with two questions, said Schulze-Makuch, who is working with nine fellow researchers, representing NASA, SETI, the German Aerospace Center, and four universities

"The first question is whether Earth-like conditions can be found on other worlds, since we know empirically that those conditions could harbor life," he said. "The second question is whether conditions exist on exoplanets that suggest the possibility of other forms of life, whether known to us or not."

Seth Shostak, of the SETI Institute in Mountain View, Calif.

About 700 exoplanets, those outside our solar system, have been discovered so far, and only a few have the potential for Earth-like life. But there are an estimated 50 billion planets in our galaxy.

The authors suggest that newly discovered planets be classified using two different indices: an Earth Similarity Index, for those with Earth-like features; and a Planetary Habitability Index, for those that contain chemical and physical properties that are theoretically conducive to life in more extreme conditions.

Seth Shostak, of the SETI Institute in Mountain View, Calif., said the new system makes sense.

"For scientists, the scale provides a quick categorization of a planet's relevance to biology, in the same way that stellar types can immediately tell an astronomer something about the size, temperature, and brightness of a star," Shostak said.

The new system also has the potential to better inform the public, he said.

"If the scale becomes widely used, it might also prove useful in conveying to the public exactly how excited they should become when a new planet discovery is made," Shostak said.

The two indices proposed by the group mark the first attempt by scientists to categorize exoplanets and exomoons in accordance with their potential to harbor some form of life, he said.

"Interest in exoplanets is going to focus initially on the search for terrestrial, Earth-like planets," said Schulze-Makuch.

But the authors believe that focusing exclusively on Earth-based assumptions is too limiting.

"Habitability in a wider sense is not necessarily restricted to water as a solvent or to a planet circling a star," the paper said. "For example, the hydrocarbon lakes on Titan could host a different form of life."

"Orphan planets wandering free of any central star could likewise conceivably feature conditions suitable for some form of life," they wrote.

The major barrier to this proposal is that human imagination has difficulty conceiving of radically different life forms, Schulze-Makuch said.

"How will it be different from us, and to what extent, and what environment does it require?" he said. "There is a lot of scientific speculation associated with it."

The paper's authors contend the alternative is to risk overlooking potentially habitable worlds.

The paper was co-written by Alfonso Davila, of SETI; Alberto Fairen of NASA; Abel Mendez of the University of Puerto Rico at Aricebo; Philip von Paris, of the German Aerospace Center; David Catling of the University of Washington; Louis N. Irwin, of the University of Texas-El Paso, and Marina Resendes de Sousa Antonia, Carol Turse, Grayson Boyer and Schulze-Makuch all of Washington State University.

INL to Hold Launch Party Today

IDAHO FALLS
POST REGISTER

Eastern Idahoans will have a rare opportunity today to witness the launch into space of equipment assembled by Idaho National Laboratory scientists and engineers.

A rocket carrying a rover destined for the surface of Mars is scheduled to launch just after 8 a.m. from Kennedy Space Center in Florida. INL is planning a party to celebrate and watch the launch via television.

Once the rover arrives on the red planet, its propulsion system and instrumentation will derive power from what's called a radioisotope thermoelectric generator.

Basically, the generator is a battery, assembled and tested by INL experts, that produces electricity from heat given off by a decaying lump of plutonium-238.

This will be the second such battery assembled by INL personnel to make a trip into space. In 2006, a similar model was loaded aboard the first spacecraft ever bound for Pluto.

INL has become the nation's go-to source for the plutonium-based batteries, which are popular for long missions into space because they can last many years. Carla Dwight, INL's deputy director for space nuclear systems and technology, said the rover set to launch today is designed to last two years on Mars' surface, but the battery will probably last longer.

There's a chance the launch won't take place as scheduled. Dwight said the window for launch is about an hour a day until Dec. 18.

Sandpoint Races to Finalize Zoning Changes

BY CAMERON RASMUSSEN
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • Council members are in a race against time to complete the final tweaks to the city's new zoning regulations.

After months of crafting and retooling by the Planning Commission, the residential zoning regulations have entered the final stage of council review. Before sinking into the 30 pages of design specifications and building regulations, council members first had to decide whether they could complete work before new city officials are sworn into office in January.

"If we are sincerely concerned that we won't be able to finish this in this administration, we should let the new council members and mayor run the workshop," Mayor Gretchen Hellar said.

However, council members decided they were willing to sink in the final few dozen hours into one last major project. They laid the groundwork that very night, launching into a page-by-page analysis of the zoning proposals.

A presentation of the document by Planning Director Jeremy Grimm preceded the workshop.

In its current format, RS zones replace A zones. Intended for more traditional single family homes and neighborhoods, RS zones lower the allowed square footage from 10,000 to 6,000 and establishes a 25-foot setback from the high water mark. It also would raise the allowed building footprint on a lot to increase from 35 percent to 40 percent but reduce the allowed height of a building to 35 feet. The zone also establishes standards for garages, main entrances, street-facing facades and attached housing.

In addition, the zone allows for tourist homes provided the owner can provide proof of their homeowner's exemption. The measure exists to prevent companies from purchasing multiple homes and creating tourist neighborhoods. However, tourist homes have fallen under increased council scrutiny in the past few months, and the final zoning allowances will likely reflect whatever policy members decide upon.

"I imagine you'll be spending quite a bit of time on this section," Grimm said.

MF zones, intended for more diverse kinds of housing options, will replace B, C, and MHT zones. The new regulations lower maximum square footage from 7,000 to 5,000 square feet, relax requirements for bed and breakfasts and unit numbers, raise the allowed building footprint on a lot from 35 percent to 40 percent and reduce the allowed height of a building to 35 feet. The zone also sets its own standards for facades, garages and shoreline proximity.

Finally, the new zoning regulations allow for cottage housing — smaller, more diverse and usually more affordable homes packed into higher density. This style of housing is subject to much more rigorous specifications to prevent cookie-cutter designs. Furthermore, one cottage housing development cannot exist within 750 feet of another. Nevertheless, Grimm said developers should be happy.

"This is something some developers have been very eager for us to move forward with," he said.

Man Gets at Least 10 Years in Infant Son's Death

POCATELLO (AP) • A 19-year-old Pocatello man has been sentenced to at least 10 years in prison for the death of his 7-month-old son.

Lee Ross Barbone was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years to life in prison for the death of his son, Richard, in May. An autopsy found the baby died of abusive head trauma.

Barbone pleaded guilty to first-degree murder last month.

Barbone told the judge said he was intoxicated and did not intend to hurt the baby, but he took responsibility for what he did.

Post-9/11 Security Has Created FBI, NYPD Rivalry

BY JERRY MARKON
The Washington Post

When terrorists toppled the World Trade Center on Sept. 11, 2001, the New York City Police Department vowed to take extraordinary measures to prevent the next attack.

“We couldn’t just say, ‘Well, we’ll let the federal government take care of it,” said deputy commissioner Paul J. Browne. “When you have 3,000 New Yorkers murdered, you can’t say we’re going to defer that whole responsibility elsewhere.”

In the past decade, the NYPD has built up a smothering anti-terror apparatus, with more than 1,000 officers working counterterrorism, radiation detectors installed in the city and detectives assigned to 11 locations overseas.

The powerful police presence, unprecedented in a U.S. city, has led to periodic rivalries with the federal agency charged with protecting Americans from domestic attacks: the FBI. Those tensions have flared twice recently, including when an FBI-led task force questioned the evidence against two men charged in May by state prosecutors with telling an NYPD undercover detective about their desire to attack synagogues.

This week, New York City officials held a dramatic press conference to announce the arrest of Jose Pimentel, an accused al-Qaida sympathizer charged with plotting to bomb police and post offices and U.S. troops returning home. Missing from the tableau were the federal agents and prosecutors who typically lead major terrorism probes. That’s because the FBI-led Joint Terrorism Task Force, in consultation with the Manhattan U.S. attorney’s office, decided the case was not currently prosecutable in federal court.

In interviews, federal law enforcement officials expressed doubts about Pimentel’s capacity to carry out an attack and the strength of the case, which is being prosecuted by the Manhattan district attorney’s office. They said Pimentel had been under the influence of narcotics and that a police informant — who allegedly accompanied Pimentel as he bought bomb-making supplies — had actively participated in the plot. That, they said, made it possible for Pimentel to argue he was entrapped.

The officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the investigation is ongoing, said the case reflects broader frustration among some in the FBI. Although NYPD personnel assigned to the FBI’s task force concurred with the decision about Pimentel, they said, the NYPD’s Intelligence Division took the case to the district attorney.

“There are always going to be tensions because agencies are made of human beings,” said one federal agent, “but is the solution to carve out a piece of your agency and start autonomously working terrorism investigations? What sense does that make?”

Added a second federal agent: “The ‘NYPD’ intelligence division is an empire unto itself, and one hand doesn’t necessarily know what the other is doing. They’re trying to have it both ways, and that is flat-out wrong.”

But the agent added that in the Pimentel case, “in a sense, the system worked. The case didn’t disappear, and nobody got hurt.”

Browne, the NYPD deputy commissioner, rejected the criticism and said local officials are confident the case is strong. He said police used at least four confidential informants and undercover police officers over 31

NATION, WORLD BRIEFS

It’s a blue Christmas for tree farmers.

Dry, brown grass crunches underfoot as David Barfield walks through his 45-acre Christmas tree farm pointing at evergreens covered with brittle, rust-colored needles. “Dead tree, dead tree, dead tree,” he says, shaking his head at dry timber he hoped would be chopped down by parents with excited children. Instead, Mother Nature delivered the Grinch in the form of a historic drought that has killed thousands of trees across Texas and Oklahoma. Some died of thirst. Others were destroyed by wildfires, whose breadth and intensity were magnified when wind swept the flames across parched landscape. They say they aren’t planning to raise prices because consumers are reluctant to pay more than $40 or $50 for a Christmas tree, especially in the poor economy.

Italy’s borrowing costs soar again.

A week into his new job, Premier Mario Monti is running out of time to reassure nervous investors that his government has a strategy to deal with Italy’s crippling debts. The nation’s borrowing rates skyrocketed Friday after a grim set of bond auctions, with a new auction looming Tuesday. Another borrowing debacle could ratchet up fears that Italy has entered a debt spiral driving it toward bankruptcy and the 17-nation eurozone into its most acute crisis yet.

Tens of thousands of protesters chanting, ‘Leave, leave!’ filled Cairo’s Tahrir Square in a massive demonstration to force Egypt’s ruling military council to yield power.

Egypt’s Military Under Pressure From Protests, U.S.

BY HAMZA HENDAWI AND SARAH EL DEEB

Associated Press

CAIRO • The U.S. increased pressure Friday on Egypt’s military rulers to hand over power to civilian leaders, and the generals turned to a Mubarak-era politician to head a new government in a move that failed to satisfy the more than 100,000 protesters who jammed Tahrir Square in the biggest rally yet this week.

The demonstrators rejected the appointment of Kamal el-Ganzouri as prime minister, breaking into chants of “Illegitimate! Illegitimate!” and setting up a showdown between the two sides only three days before key parliamentary elections.

The size of the rally and the resilience of protesters in the face of the violence used by security forces in this week’s deadly street battles have won back for the movement much of the strength it projected during the 18-day uprising that ousted President Hosni Mubarak in February.

Showing the sort of resolve from the earliest days of the Arab Spring, the protesters say they will not leave the iconic square until the military rulers led by Field Marshal Hussein Tantawi step down and a civilian presidential council is formed to run the country until a new leader is elected.

“They stole our January revolution because we did not agree on who should represent us,” said activist Sedeeqah Abu Seadah. “We shouted ‘erhal’ (leave) but did not shout the name of the person we want.”

The military’s appointment of el-Ganzouri, its apology for the death of protesters and a series of partial concessions in the past two days suggest that the generals are struggling to overcome the most serious challenge to their nine-month rule, with fewer options now available to them.

Significantly adding to their predicament, the Obama administration brought its position on the crisis in Egypt closer to the protesters’ demands, urging the military to fully empower the next interim civilian government.

“We believe that Egypt’s transition to democracy must continue, with elections proceeding expeditiously, and all necessary measures taken to ensure security and prevent intimidation,” the White House said in a statement.

“Most importantly, we believe that the full transfer of power to a civilian government must take place in a just and inclusive manner that responds to the legitimate aspirations of the Egyptian people, as soon as possible,” it said.

The adjustment in the Obama administration’s approach is significant because the Egyptian military, the nation’s most powerful institution, has in the past 30 years forged close relations with successive U.S. administrations, receiving $1.3 billion annually in aid. It followed the public U.S. endorsement of the military’s original timetable for the transfer of power by late 2012 or early 2013.

3 Arrested U.S. Students Headed Home from Cairo

PHILADELPHIA (AP) •

Three American students arrested during a protest in Egypt were released Friday and planned to catch flights out of Cairo to begin their trips home, an attorney and family said.

An Egyptian court had ordered the release of American University in Cairo students Derrik Sweeney, Luke Gates and Gregory Porter a day earlier.

The three were arrested on the roof of a university building near Cairo’s iconic Tahrir Square on Sunday. Officials accused them of throwing firebombs at security forces fighting with protesters.

Attorney Theodore Simon, who represents the 19-year-old Porter, a student at Drexel University in Philadelphia, said police escorted the students to the airport late Friday local time.

Biden’s 2012 Targets: Ohio, Penn., Fla.

BY JULIE PACE

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A year from Election Day, Democrats are crafting a campaign strategy for Vice President Joe Biden that targets the big three political battlegrounds: Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Florida, states where Biden might be more of an asset to President Barack Obama’s re-election campaign than the president himself.

The Biden plan underscores an uncomfortable reality for the Obama team. A shaky economy and sagging enthusiasm among Democrats could shrink the electoral map for Obama in 2012, forcing his campaign to depend on carrying the 67 electoral votes up for grabs in the three swing states.

Obama won all three states in 2008. But this time he faces challenges in each, particularly in Ohio and Florida, where voters elected Republican governors in the 2010 midterm elections.

Joe Biden, sporting a Florida Gators baseball cap, poses with a supporter on Nov. 2, 2008, after he attended a rally at the University of Florida in Gainesville, Fla.

The president sometimes struggles to connect with Ohio and Pennsylvania’s white working-class voters, and Jewish voters who make up a core constituency for Florida Democrats and view him with skepticism.

Biden has built deep ties to both groups during his four decades in national politics, connections that could make a difference.

As a long-serving member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden cemented his reputation as an unyielding supporter of Israel, winning the respect of many in the Jewish community. And Biden’s upbringing in a working class, Catholic family from Scranton, Pa., gives him a valuable political intangible: He empathizes with the struggles of blue-collar Americans because his family lived those struggles.

“Talking to blue-collar voters is perhaps his greatest attribute,” said Dan Schnur, a Republican political

Prosecutor: Reagan, Bush Not Criminally Liable in Iran-Contra Affair

BY PETE YOST

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • One of the prosecutors who investigated the Iran-Contra affair concluded two decades ago that neither Ronald Reagan nor George H.W. Bush was criminally liable in the scandal that tarnished the presidencies of both men, according to reports made public Friday.

Associate independent counsel Christian Mixer reached that conclusion in 1991 even though he found that President Reagan was briefed in advance about every weapons shipment sold to Iran in the arms-for-hostages deals in 1985-86. In a separate report on Bush, Mixer wrote that the then-vice president was chairman of a committee that recommended mining the harbors of Nicaragua in 1983.

Mixer’s reports were obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request from the National Security Archive, a nonprofit research group, which released them on the 25th anniversary of the Iran-Contra scandal. At a Nov. 25, 1986, White House news conference, Reagan and then-Attorney General Edwin Meese disclosed that money from the arms sales to Iran had been diverted to the Contra guerrillas fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua after Congress had cut off military aid to the rebels.

Mixer concluded it would be difficult to prosecute Reagan for violating the Arms Export Control Act mandating congressional notification of arms transfers through a third country — Israel in the case of the Reagan White House’s secret arms sales to Iran in 1985. The reason, said Mixer, was that Meese had told Reagan the National Security Act could be invoked to supersede the export control act.

Mixter's March 1991 reports to his boss, Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh, and his team of prosecutors noted that they were actively investigating Bush, who by then had become president.

"As we have discussed," Mixter wrote to Walsh and the other prosecutors, "there is an outstanding area of investigation that could conceivably lead to wholly new evidence regarding Mr. Bush's role in Iran-Contra." The topic concerned possible knowledge by Bush of secret military support for the Contras, including the recommendation to mine the Nicaraguan harbors.

A year after Mixter wrote his reports, Walsh obtained a grand jury indictment charging former Reagan administration Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger with concealing his detailed notes of the controversy from investigators.

Bush pardoned Weinberger and five other Iran-Contra figures shortly before the former defense secretary was to go on trial in a case in which Bush could well have been summoned as a witness either by prosecutors or defense attorneys.

In a final report by prosecutors released in 1994 more than a year following Bush's pardons, Walsh stated that Reagan acquiesced in a cover-up that had been spearheaded by Meese and carried out at the top levels of the Reagan administration. The report was immediately denounced by Reagan, Meese, Bush and others. Impeachment of Reagan "certainly should have been considered" by the congressional committees investigating the Iran-Contra affair, Walsh told a news conference at the time.

Mixter's reports on Reagan and Bush reflect the absence of evidence demonstrating that Reagan or Bush hid information from investigators. Both men participated in meetings of Reagan and his inner circle in which one or the other covert operations was discussed.

"I conclude that President Reagan lacked sufficient information" about what the National Security Council staff was doing, "and the manner in which Congress was deceived, to support a criminal charge that he conspired" with others indicted in the scandal, Mixter wrote.

"The record on President Reagan's awareness of these congressional inquiries is somewhat muddy," said Mix-ter. "There is no indication that Mr. Reagan was aware of, or played any conscious role in, the administration's efforts to deflect congressional inquiries into the shootdown" of one of the planes secretly supplying arms to the Contras, says Mixter's report.

As for the report on Bush, Mixter wrote: "Although the quantity of information compiled by Mr. Bush's Iran-Contra activities is much smaller than that amassed on former President Reagan, it is quite clear that Mr. Bush attended most — although not quite all — of the key briefings and meetings in which Mr. Reagan participated."

The report went on: "However, if then-President Reagan faces no criminal liability for having 'authorized' any of the core Iran-Contra events of which both he and Mr. Bush were aware, then there is no basis on which to find a secondary officer like Mr. Bush liable for simply 'being there' while those events were discussed with the president."

Peter Kornbluh, the National Security Archive analyst who obtained the Mixter reports under the FOIA, called them "the verdict of history on the Iran-Contra roles of both the president and vice president of the United States."

months of interactions with Pimentel and that separate witnesses "heard and saw 'Pimentel' talk, then act in building bombs to kill Americans."

"These critiques are trying to undermine a success," Browne said. "We had someone making a bomb and saying they were going to blow it up in New York City. The NYPD is intent on stopping that, regardless of how it's prosecuted."

He said police give the FBI-led task force first crack at terrorism leads and that the overall relationship between the two agencies, though it has endured some "rough spots," is "much improved recently."

"We are adding value, big time, in terms of counterterrorism," Browne added.

Joan Vollero, a spokeswoman for the Manhattan district attorney's office, declined to comment, as did Ellen Davis, a spokeswoman for Preet Bharara, the U.S. attorney in Manhattan.

FBI-NYPD relations, vital to protecting the nation's largest city, are by no means dysfunctional. Officials in both agencies say they work together smoothly in most instances, including the investigation of last year's failed Times Square bomber. It is also not unusual for federal and state officials to consult and decide to prosecute a case in one jurisdiction or another.

In the Pimentel case, the FBI-led task force "was consulted, and the decision was made to bring the matter to the Manhattan district attorney's office for prosecution," said Supervisory Special Agent Timothy Flannelly, a spokesman for the FBI's New York Field Office.

Paul Bresson, a Washington-based FBI spokesman, said the overall FBI-NYPD relationship is strong. "In the big picture we both understand that the threat remains very real, the stakes are high and we have to get it right every day. So we work together regularly," he said.

"But you want law enforcement agencies at all levels . . . to not only work together, but to see things through different lenses. That's healthy," Bresson said.

Tensions over the NYPD's counterterrorism role date to when Police Commissioner Raymond W. Kelly initiated it not long after Sept. 11. The FBI froze Kelly's department out of two New York-related terrorism investigations, officials said in 2008, and initially would not let NYPD detectives on the FBI task force read the bureau's case files.

"People have information, and they want to control information," Kelly said in a 2008 interview. In September, Kelly told "60 Minutes": "We couldn't rely on the federal government alone. I believed that we had to create our own counterterrorism capacity."

Pimentel, 27, has pleaded not guilty to several terrorism-related offenses. He was constructing a pipe bomb and told a detective that Islamic law obligates Muslims to wage war against the United States, court documents said.

Lori Cohen, an attorney for Pimentel, said she will mount "a zealous defense" and that "it is interesting that the FBI decided not to go near this case."

Federal officials said that decision was not the FBI's alone, and that if state prosecutors had also taken a pass, they would have monitored Pimentel to make sure he wasn't a threat.

"Would we have picked it up and prevented something bad from happening at all costs?" said one official, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss internal deliberations. "Absolutely."

Motives of University Foreign Student Recruiters Questioned

BY ALAN SCHER ZAGIER
Associated Press

COLUMBIA, Mo. • As American universities welcome ever-greater numbers of international students, some professors and admissions counselors are questioning the motives of the very professionals who have helped attract so many foreign scholars to their campuses.

Higher education recruiters are under fire from detractors who say they put profit ahead of students' best interests. Critics accuse them of sending thousands of unqualified applicants to the U.S. every year, sometimes allowing students to skip basic English tests and falsify applications to make a quick commission.

"The student is best served by having the widest range of information available about what might be the best fit," said Peggy Blumenthal, an executive vice president at the not-for-profit Institute of International Education, which monitors and promotes study abroad programs. Recruiting agents "have a very large incentive to deliver a student who may not be the best fit."

Wang Chengdong, a Chinese student in the Executive MBA program, works in a library study room on June 28 at Missouri State University in Springfield, Mo.

A leading group of admissions counselors even proposed an outright ban on the use of international recruiters who are paid based on the number of students they lure to the United States.

College administrators who rely on recruiters are quick to defend them, saying they are more familiar with overseas customs and school systems.

By using recruiters, Missouri State University leaders "can focus on developing and delivering curriculum instead of going out and recruiting students and developing individual sponsors," said David Meinert, associate dean of the university's business school. Recruiters are "able to deliver as an intermediary something that we would have trouble delivering."

Those efforts have contributed significantly to a sharp spike in the number of foreign students seeking an American education. A recent report by Blumenthal's institute showed a 32 percent increase in the number of international students in the U.S. compared with a decade ago. Nearly a quarter of the students here for the 2010-11 academic year came from China. Many others hailed from India and South Korea.

When Missouri State's Springfield campus decided in 2007 to create an executive MBA program for visiting Chinese students, the school realized it needed a recruiter steeped in that country's language, culture and educational practices.

The university hired the International Management Education Center in Hong Kong under a deal that paid recruiters $10,000 to $12,000 for each graduate student. The school kept the balance of student payments ranging from $15,000 to $22,000.

But some professors question the program's academic rigor, noting participants do not take the English proficiency tests usually required of international students and frequently show up unprepared. When the same doubts that arose in Missouri spread to China, some student sponsors — a term that refers to local governments, schools corporations and other Chinese institutions — said they wanted to withdraw from the program.

Earlier this year, the National Association for College Admission Counseling proposed the ban on the use of some international recruiters out of concern that unscrupulous agents were exaggerating students' English skills and submitting falsified applications in search of a fast financial reward.

analyst. "Obama provides the speeches, and Biden provides the blue-collar subtitles?"

While Biden's campaign travel won't kick into high gear until next year, he's already been making stops in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Florida this fall, speaking at events focused on education, public safety and small businesses and raising campaign cash. Behind the scenes, he's working the phones with prominent Jewish groups and Catholic organizations in those states, a Democratic official said.

Biden is also targeting organized labor, speaking frequently with union leaders in Ohio ahead of a vote earlier this month on a state law that would have curbed collective bargaining rights for public workers. After voters struck down the measure, Biden traveled to Cleveland to celebrate the victory with union members.

The Democratic official said the vice president will also be a frequent visitor to Iowa and New Hampshire in the coming weeks, seeking to steal some of the spotlight from the Republican presidential candidates blanketing those states ahead of the January caucus and primary.

And while Obama may have declared that he won't be commenting on the Republican presidential field until there's a nominee, Biden is following no such rules. He's calling out GOP candidates by name, and in true Biden style, he appears to be relishing in doing so.

During a speech last month to the Florida Democratic Convention, Biden singled out "Romney and Rick," criticizing former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney for saying the government should let the foreclosure crisis hit rock bottom, and hammering Texas Gov. Rick Perry's assertion that he would send U.S. troops into Mexico.

And he took on the full GOP field during an October fundraiser in New Hampshire, saying "There is no fundamental difference among all the Republican candidates?"

Democratic officials said Biden will follow in the long-standing tradition of vice presidents playing the role of attack dog, allowing Obama to stay out of the fray and appear more focused on governing than campaigning.

The officials spoke on the condition of anonymity in order to discuss internal strategy. The Obama campaign has been reluctant to publically define Biden's role in the re-election bid this early in the run, though campaign manager Jim Messina did say the vice president would deliver an economic message to appeal for support.

"You'll see him in communities across the country next year laying out the choice we face: restoring economic security for the middle class or returning to the same policies that led to our economic challenges," Messina said.

Democrats say Biden will campaign for House candidates in swing states as the party tries to recapture some of the seats in Congress lost during the 2010 midterms.

unrest by pushing plans for a political "guardianship" role for itself and immunity from civilian oversight even after a new parliament is seated and a new president is elected.

The last straw came when the military ordered the use of force against a small protest in Tahrir Square last weekend and then launched a failed, joint army-police raid to evacuate a larger crowd. Nearly 40 protesters have died in the past week.

The latest crisis has overshadowed Monday's start of Egypt's first parliamentary elections since Mubarak was replaced by Tantawi. The vote, which the generals say will be held on schedule despite the unrest, is now seen by many activists and protesters to be serving the military's efforts to project an image of itself as the nation's saviors and true democrats.

Violence Reported as Syria Misses Deadline to Agree to Monitors

BY ALEXANDRA ZAVIS
Los Angeles Times

BEIRUT • Fierce clashes were reported in Syria on Friday as a deadline passed with no word from the government of President Bashar Assad on an Arab League demand to accept monitors or face sanctions.

The league had given Syria 24 hours to sign a protocol for an observer mission that would monitor efforts to implement a peace plan endorsed by Assad's regime earlier this month.

The league's social and economic council was expected to meet Saturday to consider sweeping sanctions, which could include suspending flights, halting trade and financial dealings with the government and freezing its assets.

In a humiliating blow, Arab foreign ministers have already suspended Syria from the 22-member bloc for failing to implement the peace plan, which calls for a withdrawal of security forces from urban areas and dialogue with the opposition. But the 22-member bloc has repeatedly extended deadlines in the past.

Syria has accused the League of acting as a tool of the United States and Western governments. The official Syrian Arab News Agency on Friday called the threat of Arab sanctions "an unprecedented procedure" that "harms the interests of the Syrian people." It reported large demonstrators against the Arab League in the capital, Damascus, and several other cities.

Syria has said that it is taking steps to implement the league's plan, including releasing hundreds of prisoners. But there is no sign that violence is abating in what has become one of the Arab world's bloodiest uprisings.

Opposition activists said as many as 27 people were killed as security forces fired on demonstrators and clashed with armed insurgents in a number of cities and towns. The heaviest toll was reported in the central Homs region, the epicenter of the uprising, where the opposition Local Coordination Committees said 15 people were killed.

More than 3,500 people have been killed since protests erupted in March, according to U.N. figures. The government disputes the number. It blames the bloodshed on Islamic militants and what it describes as armed gangs, saying more than 1,100 security force members have also been killed.

SANA reported Friday that 10 military personnel, including six pilots, had died in an ambush the previous day on the road between Homs and Palmyra.

Syria restricts access by journalists and human rights monitors, making it virtually impossible to independently confirm either side's account.

Feature Reporter

South-central Idaho's largest news provider is looking for a storyteller a keen observer who spots trends and finds what makes people tick.

The Times-News' full-time features reporter will follow rigorous reporting standards and be unfailingly devoted to accuracy. Yet this reporter also must be comfortable stepping out of standard news writing styles to write with authority and a personal tone. You will write in a variety of story lengths and nontraditional forms.

The right candidate will use social media as a tool to spot story ideas and connect with sources, but you will also comb the community to find the compelling human stories that nobody could find online. We're looking for someone who'll be just as comfortable in a corral on branding day as in a college's coffee shop.

The features reporter will find and develop story ideas in a richly varied beat. The topical range includes dining, nightlife, outdoor recreation, the southern Idaho landscape, the arts, family issues, fashion, health and fitness, home and garden, faith and anything else that touches the real lives of real people. Simply put, this beat is not for a reporter who relies on press releases and government meeting agendas for story ideas. The features reporter will write at least five stories each week and complete one major reporting project each year.

South-central Idaho is home to more than 180,000 residents, and Twin Falls is its cultural and economic hub. Year-round outdoor recreation abounds. You'll work with a vibrant, growing group of journalists committed to producing Idaho's best news product.

CHURCH NEWS

Filer Methodists Prepare for Advent Season

Preparation of the church for the Advent/Christmas season will begin at 10 a.m. today at the Filer United Methodist Church, 318 Union Ave.

All are welcome to come and share in the labor and fellowship as the church is readied for the first Sunday in Advent.

The Rev. Carol Thompson's first Sunday of Advent service at 9:30 a.m. will feature the "Hanging of the Greens" during worship.

The United Methodist Women will hold their annual Christmas Potluck Luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the fellowship hall at the church.

Information: 733-2629.

Jerome Church Plans Annual Bazaar

St. Jerome's Catholic Church will hold its annual Christmas bazaar from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Dec. 3 in the church parish hall, 216 Second Ave. E. in Jerome.

All items are made by local artists and crafters. Lunch will be available for $5 per person. Remember to stop by Santa's Sweet Shop. Information: Trish, 420-5119.

Vietnam Veteran Speaks at Lighthouse Fellowship

Dave Roever will be the guest speaker for services at 9 and 11 a.m. Sunday at the Lighthouse Christian Fellowship, 960 Eastland Drive in Twin Falls. Roever travels the country to share his story of survival after a phosphorus grenade exploded in his hand during the Vietnam War. He says he survived because of his faith in God and the love of his wife, Brenda. He returned to Vietnam years later on a personal quest and, as a result, began several projects to help the Vietnamese people. He also devotes time to working with other veterans who suffer physical or emotional scars.

Everyone is invited. Information: 737-4667.

Magic Valley UUF Speaker Discusses Gratitude

Ryan Terry will present the service, "What Am I Grateful For?" when the Magic Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship meets at 10 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Senior Center, 530 Shoshone St. W. in Twin Falls.

The topic asks: "What are you grateful for? Why is it so important to express our gratitude, and to whom or where should we focus our gratitude when it seems like there is no individual person or group to thank?"

Terry will read "The Deep Thanksgiving of our Souls" by Daniel S. Schatz, a Unitarian Universalist minister from Warrington, Pa. After the reading, everyone is invited to participate in discussion on the importance of gratitude.

All are welcome. Information: Ken Whiting, 734-9161 or 293-4335.

Pastor begins Advent Sermon Series

The Rev. Phil Airhart will begin a series of sermons for Advent during worship Sunday at the First United Methodist Church, 360 Shoshone St. E. in Twin Falls.

The series is titled "My Response to the Christ Event: Responding to God's great outpouring of love in Jesus Christ." Each sermon will focus on an individual or group of individuals central to the Christmas story to discover how their response to the birth of Christ can help us form and shape our own response to the Christ event. Worship on Dec. 18, the last Sunday in Advent, will offer each worshiper an opportunity to symbolically offer their gift of response to God in gratitude and thanksgiving for God's greatest gift to humankind.

Everyone is welcome to attend this informative and innovative Advent series. Information: 733-5872 or www.tffumc.com.

Heyburn Church Offers Free Supper

The Heyburn Seventh-day Adventist Church will serve its monthly free supper at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at the church, 1250 21st S. in Heyburn.

The exhibit features nativities collected by the Air Force base community from countries all over the world. There have been as many as 900 nativities in the past. Several denominations participate with performances, etc., during the exhibit.

Admission is free. Information: John Goodrich, 284-6732.

Agape Ministry Luncheon meets Wednesday

The Agape Ministry luncheon will be held Dec. 7 at the Lincoln Inn, 413 Main St. in Gooding.

Lunch begins at 11:30 a.m. Cost is $8.50 per person. Please make reservations by calling Carolyn Herzinger at 934-5700 by Dec. 4.

Admission to the program, which begins at noon, is free.

"When Love was Born, "a special Christmas program featuring music and thoughts for the holidays, will be presented by Andy Morris, pastor of the First Christian Church in Gooding. It is rumored that he is bringing a surprise guest. Morris is a graduate of Boise Bible College and has been a pastor in Gooding for the past 20 years.

Ascension Episcopal Church lights Advent Wreath

Ascension Episcopal Church, 371 Eastland Drive N. in Twin Falls, will celebrate the beginning of Advent with the lighting of the Advent wreath during services at 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday.

Beginning Wednesday, the first of four evening Advent Taize worship services will be held at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary. Taizé style worship centers on singing, prayer, readings from the Bible and periods of silence. Simple songs are sung in a repetitive manner to aid worshipers in obtaining a meditative mood.

Also on Wednesday evenings, a labyrinth walk will be open to the public from 5:30 to 9 p.m., with the last walkers to be entering no later than 8:30 p.m. Ascension's labyrinth is modeled after the one in the floor of the cathedral at Chartres, France.

Other church services and activities will take place at the regular times.

Filer Church Groups Get in the Holiday Spirit with Food Baskets

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
Times-News correspondent

FILER • They've got the holiday spirit.

Members of the community plan to gather at Filer Baptist Church to assist the Filer Ministerial Association with the Christmas food basket drive, Dec. 8 and 10.

The number of families needing assistance is still being determined, but Rev. Becca Notbohm, pastor of Filer Church of the Nazarene and president of the Ministerial Association, is confident the outpouring of contributions from churches, merchants and civic organizations will make this year's effort a success.

"Last year we were able to help 79 families and this year we're expecting more," Notbohm said. "We want people to feel that they are loved and not alone. This is a beautiful expression of that love."

Activity will begin at 6 p.m. Dec. 8 by sorting food into categories such as soups, beans, cereal, potatoes and pasta. These items will then be boxed and labeled with the name and size of a family, provided through cooperation from the Filer School District and South Central Community Action, and delivered at 8 a.m. on Dec. 10.

Children receive gifts from the Toys for Tots program and teenagers are given gift cards. Members of the Filer Kiwanis Club have been involved with the project for years.

This is what we're all about," said Kiwanis President Vikie Cowger. "We want to make sure people, but especially youth and teenagers, aren't forgotten. We try to demonstrate that by helping with food and providing some of the gift cards."

If you'd like information on how you can help out, call the Filer Church of the Nazarene at 326-4490 or 410-0500.

OBITUARIES

Clendon Merrill

June 17, 1936-Nov. 24, 2011

Clendon Webster Merrill, 75, passed away Thursday, Nov. 24, 2011, at his home. He was born June 17, 1936, in Rockford, Idaho, the son of Kenneth and Uarda Merrill.

He attended Snake River Schools where he enjoyed attending agricultural classes and was active in FFA; he was awarded the District Star Farmer his senior year. He graduated from Snake River High School before attending Ricks College.

Clendon served an LDS mission to the Samoan Islands. After his mission he attended Utah State University, where he studied agriculture and business.

While working in the Jackson Lake area, he met Roseann Smith. They were married in the Salt Lake LDS Temple on Dec. 27, 1963. Together they farmed in the Rockford area from 1965 until 2001.

He took pride in the innovative changes to upgrade his dairy operation and was awarded many production awards for his work. He served on the board of directors for the Upper Snake River Dairy-men's Association.

Clendon was active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and with their son, Kenneth, Clen-don and Roseann served two missions; the first to Dulce, N.M., and the second to Nauvoo, Ill.

He is survived by his wife, Roseanne, of Twin Falls, Idaho; children, Scott Merrill of Pingree, Idaho; Russell Merrill of Boise, Idaho; Peggyanne (Darren) Nickerson of Filer, Idaho; Kaylani Merrill of Pullman, Wash.; and Kenneth Merrill of Twin Falls, Idaho; seven grandchildren; one brother, Leon Merrill; three sisters, Maurine (Rex) Hamilton, DeVota Gardner and Elaine (Bill) Morehead.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one grandchild.

A funeral service will be held 11 a.m. Monday, Nov. 28, 2011, at the Thomas LDS Chapel with Mark Lane, counselor conducting and President DarVel Andersen presiding.

The family will meet with friends from 7-9 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 27, 2011, at Hawker Funeral Home, 132 S. Shilling Ave., Blackfoot, Idaho.

Interment will be in the Riverside-Thomas Cemetery.

Condolences may be sent to the family at condolences@hawkerfuneral-home.com. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the LDS Missionary Fund.

Franklin Clayton ‘Bud’ Rogers

Dec. 16, 1926-Nov. 21, 2011

HEYBURN

Franklin Clayton “Bud” Rogers, 84-year-old Heyburn resident, passed away Monday, Nov. 21, 2011, at his home in Heyburn after a courageous battle with cancer.

Bud was born on Dec. 16, 1926, in Monument, Pa., one of eight children born to Linford W. and Harriet V. Rogers of Lockhaven, Pa.

Bud married Eliadora M. Calotis of Ewa, Hawaii, in 1946.

Preceding in death were his father, mother, two sisters and three brothers. Surviving are a sister Betty Serff (Florida), a sister Elsie Jane Hahn (Pennsylvania), a son, Richard (California), and five daughters, Marsha Russell (California), Cynthia Quinn (Hawaii), Dean-na Brauel (Texas), Barbara Lagaras and Laura Grant (Idaho), 13 grandchildren, 11 great grandchildren, and wife, Dora Rogers, whom he was married to for 65 years in April.

Bud made his living as an airplane and auto mechanic, and was a service manager for many years in this area. He and his wife also owned Dora's Donuts of Burley, and have lived in Heyburn for 40 years. Bud served in various ministries including the Gideons. He enjoyed hunting, fishing and restoring old engines and tractors. He loved animals and was considered a champion cribbage player.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Monday, Nov. 28, 2011, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 South Idaho Highway 24 in Rupert. Burial will follow in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call Sunday evening, Nov. 27, 2011, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Idaho 24 in Rupert, from 6-8 p.m.

Evelyn June Miller

June 3, 1921-Nov. 19, 2011

Evelyn June Miller, 90 of Kimberly, passed away on Saturday, Nov. 19, 2011, at BridgeView Estates.

June was born on June 3, 1921, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to Dave and Dolly Satterwhite. She grew up in the Magic Valley area. On June 6, 1940, she married E.G. “Glenn” Miller in Twin Falls.

June has lived in Kimberly since 1948 until she moved into BridgeView Estates. June enjoyed sewing and spending time with her family. She was a charter member of the Assembly of God Church in Twin Falls.

June is survived by her son, John (Jule) Miller of Eden. She is preceded in death by her husband, her parents and two sisters.

A funeral service will be held on Monday, Nov. 28, 2011, at the Kimberly Nazarene Church at 10 a.m. with a visitation for family and friends one hour prior to the service at the church. Interment will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

The family would like to thank BridgeView Estates and its staff for the love and kindness shown to June during her stay there. Arrangements are under the direction of White Mortuary “Chapel by the Park.”

CDC Tests Two Programs to Curb Antibiotic Misuse

BY LENA H. SUN

The Washington Post

The federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is testing two programs aimed at curbing misuse of antibiotics in U.S. hospitals, part of a continuing effort to fight the growth of drug-resistant bacteria.

One initiative electronically tracks antibiotic use at 70 hospitals. The other pilot is working on practical strategies to ensure antibiotics are given in a timely and appropriate manner at eight hospitals.

Antibiotic resistance is a global problem and at least 50 percent of antibiotic use in American hospitals is inappropriate, experts say.

“What we know from study after study is that antibiotics are given when they are not needed, or given for too long, or in the wrong dose,” said Arjun Srinivasan, an epidemiologist heading the efforts at the CDC.

Unlike drugs prescribed in doctors’ offices, antibiotics given in hospitals are generally stronger, “cover more bugs” and, as a result, raise more concerns about resistance, said Sara Cosgrove, an infectious disease physician who heads the antibiotic use program at Johns Hopkins Medical Center.

“If we make bad decisions in the hospital, we can make bugs that no drug can treat,” she said.

Infection control has been a higher priority for hospitals in recent years, but only “minuscule effort” has been devoted to “wise antibiotic use,” she said.

Every time a person takes antibiotics, sensitive bacteria are killed, but resistant germs may be left to grow and multiply. Repeated and improper uses of antibiotics are the primary causes of the increase in drug-resistant bacteria, experts say.

If a microbe is resistant to many drugs, treating the infections it causes can become difficult or even impossible. Someone with an infection that is resistant to a certain medicine can pass that resistant infection to another person, spreading a hard-to-treat illness from person to person.

In outpatient settings, such as doctors’ offices, misuse typically occurs when patients mistakenly push for antibiotics when they have a cold or the flu, which are caused by viruses and cannot be treated with these drugs. Physicians too often end up prescribing them because “the prescriber is thinking, ‘I can take 20 minutes to explain this or I could just write this,’” Cosgrove said.

Research released last week shows a pattern of outpatient antibiotic overuse in parts of the United States, particularly in the Southeast, according to the Center for Disease Dynamics, Economics & Policy, a nonprofit in the District of Columbia. The five states with the highest antibiotic use are West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana and Alabama. The findings are based on antibiotic sales data obtained from a consulting firm that tracks pharmaceutical sales.

Such information does not exist for hospitals.

The CDC is testing an antibiotic-use tracking system in the 70 hospitals, which are in the networks of health departments for the city of Houston and for Illinois, Michigan and Utah. The system electronically extracts information from the hospital’s pharmacy database, allowing hospital officials to know what drugs are used, in what quantity and in what parts of the hospital, such as an emergency room or intensive care unit.

The goal is for thousands of hospitals to eventually use the same tracking system to monitor antibiotic use, and for that information to be tracked by the CDC. Hospitals must already have in place a bar-coding system or other system that electronically documents the drugs they use.

In the past, hospitals had to extract information about antibiotics manually, a labor-intensive process.

“As a result, a lot of places didn’t do it,” Srinivasan said. “It’s difficult to make something better if you can’t measure it.”

The other CDC program is testing practical ways that hospitals can make sure the right antibiotics are being used. In collaboration with the Institute for Healthcare Improvement, experts have designed a playbook of practical steps that hospitals can follow.

They include strategies to ensure that proper antibiotics are identified at the outset, that patients receive them for the appropriate amount of time and that critical antibiotic information is handed off between departments and shifts, said Diane Jacobsen, an epidemiologist who heads the antibiotic-use project at IHI.

Although some hospitals perform better than others, the pilot is trying to determine what interventions work the best across the board. The eight hospitals in the program range from a 69-bed facility in Alabama to large, urban academic medical centers, such as Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Companies Give GOP, Regulators, Different Messages

BY LARRY MARGASAK

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Large and small companies have told Republican-led congressional committees what the party wants to hear: dire predictions of plant closings and layoffs if the Obama administration succeeds with plans to further curb air and water pollution.

But their message to financial regulators and investors conveys less gloom and certainty.

The administration itself has clouded the picture by withdrawing or postponing some of the environmental initiatives that industry labeled as being among the most onerous.

Still, Republicans plan to make what they say is regulatory overreach a 2012 campaign issue, taking aim at President Barack Obama, congressional Democrats and an aggressive Environmental Protection Agency.

“Republicans will be talking to voters this campaign season about how to keep Washington out of the way, so that job creators can feel confident again to create jobs for Americans,” said Joanna Burgos, a spokeswoman for the House Republican campaign organization.

The Associated Press compared the companies’ congressional testimony to company reports submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission. The reports to the SEC consistently said the impact of environmental proposals is unknown or would not cause serious financial harm to a firm’s finances.

Companies can legitimately argue that their less gloomy SEC filings are correct, since most of the tougher anti-pollution proposals have not been finalized. And their officials’ testimony before congressional committees was sometimes on behalf of — and written by — trade associations, a perspective that can differ from an individual company’s view.

But the disparity in the messages shows that in a political environment, business has no misgivings about describing potential economic horror stories to lawmakers.

“As an industry, we have said this before, we face a potential regulatory train wreck,” Anthony Earley Jr., then the executive chairman of DTE Energy in Michigan, told a House committee on April 15. “Without the right policy, we could be headed for disaster.”

The severe economic consequences, he said, would be devastating to the electric utility’s customers, especially Detroit residents who “simply cannot afford” higher rates.

Earley, who is now chairman and CEO of Pacific Gas & Electric Corp., said if the EPA had its way, coal-fired plants would be replaced with natural gas — leading to a spike in gas prices. He said he was testifying for the electric industry, not just his company.

But in its quarterly report to the SEC, Detroit-based DTE, which serves 3 million utility customers in Michigan, said that it was “reviewing potential impacts of the proposed and recently finalized rules, but is not able to quantify the financial impact ... at this time.”

Skiles Boyd, a DTE vice president for environmental issues, said in an interview that the testimony was meant to convey the potential economic hardship on ratepayers — while the SEC report focused on the company’s financial condition.

“It’s two different subjects,” he said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared on Friday

NEW YORK (AP) • Major indexes dipped in thin trading Friday, putting an end to the worst week for the Dow Jones industrial average in two months. Worries about Europe's debt crisis flared up again after Italy had to pay 7.8 percent to borrow for two years at a debt auction. That was another sign that investors are increasingly hesitant to lend to European countries.

Markets were battered this week as governments in Europe and the U.S. struggle to tackle their debts. The Dow lost 248 points on Monday as a Congressional committee failed to reach a deal to cut federal budget deficits. It plunged 236 points Wednesday after investors balked at buying German government debt.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 25.77 points, or 0.2 percent, to close at 11,231.78.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 3.12 points, or 0.3 percent, to 1,158.67.

The Nasdaq composite index dropped 18.57, or 0.8 percent, to 2,441.51.

For the week:

The Dow is down 564.38, or 4.8 percent.

The S&P 500 is down 56.98, or 4.7 percent.

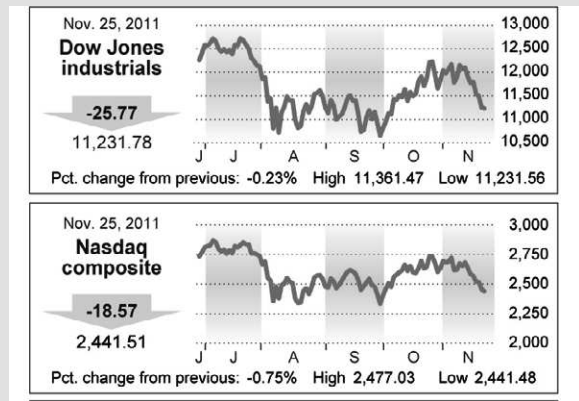

The Nasdaq is down 130.99, or 5.1 percent.

For the year to date:

The Dow is down 345.73, or 3 percent.

The S&P 500 is down 98.97, or 7.9 percent.

The Nasdaq is down 211.36, or 8 percent.

A GLANCE AT ITALY

Italy's Borrowing Rates Skyrocket, Monti Scrambles

BY FRANCES D'EMILIO AND COLLEEN BARRY
Associated Press

ROME • A week into his new job, Premier Mario Monti is running out of time to reassure nervous investors that his government has a strategy to deal with Italy's crippling debts.

The nation's borrowing rates skyrocketed Friday after a grim set of bond auctions, with a new auction looming Tuesday. Another borrowing debacle could ratchet up fears that Italy has entered a debt spiral driving it toward bankruptcy.

Monti's government of so-called "technocrats" is battling to convince investors that it has a successful strategy to reduce the country's euro1.9 trillion ($2.6 trillion) debt. But Friday's dismal bond auction results for the eurozone's third largest economy temporarily battered Europe's stock markets.

The auction outcome also is likely to fuel calls for European Union officials to do more to jumpstart economic growth.

Lawsuit Over 'Jew or Not Jew' iPhone App Dropped

BY PIERRE-ANTOINE SOUCHARD
Associated Press

PARIS • French anti-racism groups dropped a lawsuit Thursday against Apple Inc. over an iPhone app called "Jew or not Jew?" after it was removed from circulation worldwide.

Lawyer Stephane Lilti, representing four anti-racism associations, said the decision was "motivated by the removal of the application in all countries of the world."

The app let users consult a database of celebrities and public figures to see if they are Jewish or not.

Airlines Cut Small Jets as Fuel Prices Soar

BY JOSHUA FREED
AP Airlines Writer

MINNEAPOLIS • The little planes that connect America's small cities to the rest of the world are slowly being phased out.

Airlines are getting rid of these planes — their least-efficient — in response to the high cost of fuel. Delta, United Continental, and other big airlines are expected to park, scrap or sell hundreds of jets with 50 seats or fewer in coming years. Small propeller planes are meeting the same fate.

The loss of those planes is leaving some little cities with fewer flights or no flights at all.

The Airports Council International says 27 small airports in the continental U.S., including St. Cloud, Minn., and Oxnard, Calif., have lost service from well-known commercial airlines over the last two years. More shut-downs are planned.

Travelers in cities that have lost service now must drive or take buses to larger airports. That adds time and stress to travel. St. Cloud lost air service at the end of 2009 after Delta eliminated flights on 34-seat turboprops. Now, passengers from the city of 66,000 have a 90-minute drive to the Minneapolis airport 65 miles to the southeast.

Roger Geraets, who works for an online education company based near St. Cloud., flies at least twice a month from Minneapolis. He used to connect from St. Cloud. Now he drives, leaving an extra half hour for bad traffic. There are other headaches. Parking at St. Cloud was free, but in Minneapolis it costs $14 per day. And getting through airport security in Minneapolis takes longer.

Another city without service is Oxnard, 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles, which lost three daily turboprop flights operated on behalf of United. The airport's website advises travelers to catch a bus to Los Angeles International Airport.

Atilla Taluy, a tax preparer who lives in Oxnard, ends up driving or taking the shuttle to Los Angeles. "In morning traffic, it becomes quite a burdensome trip," he says.

Pierre, S.D., will lose Delta flights to Minneapolis in mid-January. Pierre officials are waiting to find out whether those flights will be replaced or whether the city will be left with only Great Lakes Airlines flights to Denver. The Denver flights add almost 600 miles in the wrong direction for people who want to fly from South Dakota's capital to Washington, D.C.

"I don't know if they really care about (passengers) in the small markets," says Rick Steece, a consultant for the Centers for Disease Control who travels overseas from Pierre two to three times a year.

WORKERS' SLIDING SHARE OF PAY POSES SPENDING RISK

BY ALEX KOWALSKI
Bloomberg News

NEW YORK • Income gains in the U.S. are slowing and workers' slice of the earnings pie is shrinking, raising the risk that consumer spending slackens next year.

Gross domestic income, or the money earned by the people, businesses and government agencies whose purchases go into calculating growth, rose at an average 2.8 percent annual rate from April through September after climbing 4.3 percent in the previous six months, Commerce Department data on Nov. 22 showed. Employee compensation last quarter accounted for its smallest share since 1955.

In contrast, the portion accruing to corporate profits was the biggest since 1950, showing companies are hoarding cash as concern grows that a European country will default on its debt and that deficit-reduction gridlock in Washington will continue. Without more pay and a pickup in hiring, households may ring in 2012 by making their own budget cuts.

"Businesses are very cautious so they're not hiring and they're not distributing their profits to consumers as they had in past expansions," said Michelle Meyer, a senior U.S. economist at Bank of America Corp. in New York. "With slow wage and salary growth, consumer spending will be on a sluggish trajectory."

The slowdown in U.S. consumer spending may already be on track after another Commerce Department report two days ago showed consumer spending, which accounts for about 70 percent of the world's largest economy, rose 0.1 percent in October following a 0.7 percent increase in the previous month.

A pickup in spending in the third quarter, a 2.3 percent gain at an annual rate after a 0.7 increase in the previous three months, was the "the worst possible outcome," Tom Porcelli, chief U.S. economist at RBC Capital Markets Corp. in New York, said in a Nov. 22 interview on Bloomberg Television, since it was "entirely because of a drawdown in savings."

The savings rate dropped to 3.8 percent in the third quarter, the lowest level since the last three months of 2007, which marked the end of the previous economic expansion.

Housing Data Provide Bright Spots, but Economists' Outlook Is Still Gloomy

BY BRADY DENNIS
The Washington Post

The past week has brought encouraging reports on the housing industry, glimmers of hope that the market might finally be turning in the right direction.

But economists and other housing experts have a message that could dampen any optimism: Real recovery remains far from reality five years after boom began turning to bust.

"There has been some improvement, but the numbers are still abysmal," said Patrick Newport, U.S. economist at IHS Global Insight. "The market is doing really badly; it's just doing better than it was early in the year."

Among the recent bright spots, data released this week showed that the number of building permits issued in October rose 10.9 percent over the previous month, with construction of new multi-family units improving notably. Existing-home sales also rose slightly, by 1.4 percent. In addition, the number of homeowners falling behind on their mortgage payments has slowed, though delinquencies remain at troubling levels.

"There are signs of life in parts of the market," said Michelle Meyer, senior U.S. economist at Bank of America Merrill Lynch. But, she added, "I think the housing market is still quite distressed."

She noted that home prices, which have fallen nearly a third since early 2006, are facing an additional estimated decline of 8 percent through the first quarter of 2013. Also, she said, the millions of foreclosures — those still working their way through the legal system or foreclosed homes that are vacant and awaiting sale — have slowed any potential recovery.

"The biggest hurdle for the housing market is clearing the backlog of distressed properties," Meyer said.

That seems unlikely to happen soon in many parts of the country, given high unemployment, stricter lending standards and the stream of new foreclosures heading into the pipeline.

A report issued this month by the Center for Responsible Lending, a consumer advocacy group, found that the foreclosure crisis is not even halfway over and that "there are no signs that the flood of home losses in America will recede any time soon."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

““The question is,’ said Humpty Dumpty, ‘which is to be master — that’s all.’”

— Lewis Carroll

In this deal from last fall’s Blue Ribbon Pairs, Marty Fleisher and Mike Kamil found a sensational defense against Gail Greenberg’s three no-trump.

Fleisher led the heart queen, asking for an unblock of the jack, ducked all around as Kamil (East) gave count with the six. Now the deceptive spade 10 went to dummy’s king, followed by a spade to the ace. The spade nine put Fleisher back on lead (Kamil pitching the heart nine), and he exited with his fourth spade, taken in dummy by the eight as Kamil discarded the heart eight.

Greenberg played a diamond from dummy now, putting in the 10 when Kamil followed with the four. Fleisher won the king and exited with the diamond five. Greenberg took dummy’s ace, played the club king, then the club 10 to her ace — and Fleisher unblocked his queen to avoid being thrown in to lead hearts. Now Greenberg could not simply exit with a club — East could overtake West’s nine with the jack to cash the club eight.

So Greenberg cashed the heart ace, and East had to pitch a club to keep two diamonds. Seeing what was coming, he pitched the club jack!

Declarer could have settled for eight tricks, but she would make her game if East’s remaining club was the nine. So she exited with her low club, hoping that Kamil would have to win and lead into dummy’s diamond tenace. When it was West who produced the club nine, he could cash his hearts for down two.

ANSWER: The lower range for a balancing call of one spade is considerably less than an opening bid, and your partner has shown that he has no extras. If you were going to make one more try for game, the best call is probably a bid of two no-trump, but my view is that you should protect your plus score by passing.

Today is Saturday, Nov. 26, the 330th day of 2011. There are 35 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight :

On Nov. 26, 1941, U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull delivered a note to Japan's ambassador to the United States, Kichisaburo Nomura, proposing an agreement for "lasting and extensive peace throughout the Pacific area." The same day, a Japanese naval task force consisting of six aircraft carriers left the Kuril Islands, headed toward Hawaii.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1789, this was a day of thanksgiving set aside by President George Washington to observe the adoption of the Constitution of the United States.

In 1825, the first college social fraternity, the Kappa Alpha Society, was formed at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1842, the founders of the University of Notre Dame arrived at the school's present-day site near South Bend, Ind.

In 1910, two dozen young women were killed when fire broke out at a muslin factory in Newark, N.J.

In 1933, a judge in New York decided the James Joyce book "Ulysses" was not obscene and could be published in the United States.

In 1943, during World War II, the HMT Rohna, a British transport ship carrying American soldiers, was hit by a German missile off Algeria; 1,138 men were killed.

In 1950, China entered the Korean War, launching a counteroffensive against soldiers from the United Nations, the U.S. and South Korea.

In 1965, France launched its first satellite, sending a 92-pound capsule into orbit.

In 1973, President Richard Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, told a federal court that she'd accidentally caused part of the 18-1/2-minute gap in a key Watergate tape.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan appointed a commission headed by former Senator John Tower to investigate his National Security Council staff in the wake of the Iran-Contra affair.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush appealed to Congress to outlaw human cloning after scientists in Worcester, Mass., reported they had created the first cloned human embryo. The National Bureau of Economic Research, the recognized arbiter of when recessions begin and end in the United States, declared that the country had entered a downturn in March 2001.

Five years ago: In New York City, an angry crowd demanded to know why police officers killed Sean Bell, an unarmed man, on the day of his wedding by firing dozens of shots that also wounded two of Bell's friends. In Turkey, tens of thousands of protesters denounced Pope Benedict XVI as an enemy of Islam two days before the pontiff's scheduled visit. Rafael Correa won Ecuador's presidential runoff.

One year ago: Nineteen-year-old Somali-born Mohamed Osman Mohamed was arrested by federal agents during a sting in Portland, Ore., accused of planning to detonate van of explosives during Christmas tree lighting ceremony. President Barack Obama received 12 stitches in his upper lip after taking an errant elbow during a pickup basketball game with family and friends visiting for the Thanksgiving holiday. Connecticut beat Howard 86-25 to win its 82nd straight game, setting an NCAA women's basketball record for consecutive victories.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 14 and I'm terrified that I won't know what to do once I'm in college and have to decide on a long-term job. I have a lot of interests, but none that would lead me toward a career. My teachers and the books I read say I should find my passion and follow it for the rest of my life. My problem is, I don't have a stand-out passion I love intensely.

I have an amazing family who would support me in any direction I choose, but I don't know what that would be. I get good grades and work hard, and I believe I could achieve anything I choose. The problem is, I don't know what I want to do.

I know I'm young, but I worry all the time about my future and being stuck in a job I hate. I'm involved in lots of activities — student government, piano lessons, sports, service clubs and more — and I enjoy all of them. But none of them inspire a burning passion. Do you have any suggestions on how to find my passion?

— NEEDS A DIRECTION, ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR NEEDS A DIRECTION: Yes. And the first one is to relax and quit worrying about not having found your “passion” at 14. This isn't the Middle Ages, when young people would apprentice themselves to a guild in which they would spend the rest of their lives. You are intelligent and only beginning to explore your various talents.

You may excel in several different areas, which is good, because workers no longer necessarily stay in one kind of job for a lifetime. People are usually good at the things they enjoy, so slow down. Give yourself time to see where you excel. I am positive that if you do, you'll find your passion(s) in a field you enjoy.

DEAR ABBY: I have been with my husband for more than 10 years. It has been rocky over the past few years, and I recently had an affair with a married man. I have fallen madly in love with him, and every night I dream about being with him instead of with my husband. We're both in unhappy marriages and both have children.

He's worried that if he gets divorced he won't be able to see his kids as often as he wants. Should I forget him and try to fall back in love with my husband?

Everyone I talk to about this says my lover has been what I needed to recognize that I wasn't happy in my marriage and that I deserve better. I know I deserve better because I worshipped the ground my husband walked on for many years and got treated like crud. What do I do?

— DOWNTRODDEN WIFE IN OKLAHOMA.

DEAR DOWNTRODDEN: Since you're collecting advice, I don't mind throwing in my two-cents' worth.

Your lover doesn't appear eager to leave his family, so do the best thing for both of you and end the affair. As to whether you should try to fall back in love with a man who “treated you like crud,” sometimes divorce can be therapeutic. And from the description you gave me of your marriage, you could benefit from seeking one and swearing off men for a while.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago my best friend's mother lost her husband after a battle with cancer. She joined a grief support group and met a man who had lost his wife to cancer, too. Love blossomed and they will be married soon. Everyone is thrilled they have found each other.

Along with a wedding gift, would it be appropriate to make a donation to a cancer charity in memory of their deceased spouses? I would like to honor the struggle that led the couple to each other, but don't want to offend. What do you think?

— DEVOTED FRIEND IN KENTUCKY

DEAR DEVOTED FRIEND: I think you have come up with a beautiful idea that will be deeply appreciated, and you should do it.

MISCELLANEOUS

IF NOVEMBER 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and the end of January, your social life might rock — but people who are really nothing more than mere acquaintances could interfere with your ability to do what is really important. By mid-February, your judgment will be much better and you will be wise enough to rid yourself of connections and conditions that are not good for you. March is an excellent time to advertise, make new connections, or network, plus an excellent time to put into motion a successful and significant change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may learn to be more adventurous and unconventional by rubbing shoulders with those of a more liberal philosophy. An opportunity to take a calculated risk with money may appear this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): With jolly Jupiter in your sign, it is easy to be happy-go-lucky. Like Santa Claus, you could ho-ho-ho your way past any problem. You could offer assurances just so you don't hurt anyone's feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): This could be a good time to start personal enhancement projects. Maybe you can get some new photos to post on your social networking page or start a diet and throw out all of the junk food.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Political correctness is the policy. You will find that people in general are more tolerant than usual of wide-ranging opinions and beliefs. Being secure in your own views helps you accept those of others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't be so anxious to please. Well-meaning friends could tempt you to spend too much hard-earned cash, or you may just feel insecure and want to spoil yourself. Concentrate on worthy goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): While Mars is in your sign, you could be meticulous. Getting your home into shape for the upcoming holidays could be one of your top priorities this weekend. Don't go to extremes when shopping.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Paint a picture. While Saturn is still in your sign, you could accentuate organization and orderliness. You might put everything into apple-pie order so it reflects the loveliness and harmony in your heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Enjoy an opportunity to make financial improvements. Treat holiday spending like a business project with a budget and projections. Meditate on advice received from others to make fantasies come true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Both the sun and moon are in your sign this weekend. What makes you happy, what you feel, and what you think seem to be of paramount importance and you gladly share this with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Forgive trespassers and they will forgive you. This is a good weekend to attend community functions and fundraisers and mingle with peers. You might make overly generous donations to a charity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be it ever so humble. You could be tempted to exaggerate your own importance. You are important to your family and they will be delighted to reinforce your high opinion of yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It is tempting to overdo the entertainment and fun. You might find it difficult to remain true blue and trustworthy. You have a great deal of good fortune to be grateful for and should not burn bridges.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

No Djokovic, No Novak

Top-ranked Novak Djokovic was eliminated from the ATP World Tour Finals after Tomas Berdych (below) rallied from a set and a break down to beat David Ferrer 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 Friday and grab the last semifinal spot.

Djokovic lost to fellow Serb Janko Tipsarevic earlier Friday to finish round-robin play with a 1-2 record, but would have gone through to the last four if Ferrer had beaten Berdych in the late match.

But the seventh-seeded Czech twice came back from a break down in the second set and faced little resistance in the third from Ferrer, who had already advanced by winning his first two matches.

Ferrer will face Roger Federer in today's first semifinal, before Berdych takes on Jo-Wilfried Tsonga.

Whew.

On a night where it played without its starting point guard, two key players were saddled with foul trouble and the 3-pointers weren't falling, the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team found a way, beating Northwest (Wyo.) College 78-67 Friday night to snap a four-game losing streak.

"We needed this. We needed a win," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers. "There was a little bit of everything. Some of the stats looked good, we played well at times, but sloppy at times too. We'll take it though."

A week after blowing a 17-point halftime lead against Angelina (Texas) College, CSI (2-4) threatened to give away a nine-point halftime cushion on Friday. The Golden Eagles built a 41-32 advantage after hot shooting from Mechela Barnes, who scored 17 first-half points and had three 3-pointers.

Barnes and the rest of the Golden Eagles went cold in the second half, however, going 0-for-7 from behind

The Broncos defeated the Cowboys last season in Laramie 51-6, but Wyoming is a different team now.

Wyoming (7-3, 4-1 MWC) emerged as the Mountain

West's surprise team and is currently tied with Boise State (9-1, 4-1) for second place in the conference. After being demolished by Utah State at home 63-19 on Oct. 29, the Cowboys bounced back to win four of their last five. Their one loss was at TCU, 31-20.

"They've just improved everywhere," Boise State coach Chris Petersen said. "I think their kids are playing hard and believe — that's the biggest thing, believing they'll win and they do win."

The Cowboy defense is one of the main reasons for their turnaround, forcing 26 turnovers in 10 games.

"If you can be one of those teams that gets turnovers and doesn't give them up, your chances of having a really good record go extremely high," Petersen said.

BOYS RUNNER OF THE YEAR

Numbers Don't Lie For Harris

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

The numbers speak for themselves.

Eleventh, second, first, second. That's where Erik Harris of Twin Falls placed at the state cross country meet in his four seasons for the Bruins.

Six — the number of first place finishes the Times-News boys cross country runner of the year had this season.

Three — district titles Harris owns.

Fifty nine — seconds Harris was ahead of second place at the Class 4A District IV meet where he ran a personal best 15 minutes, 29 seconds.

"I don't think we'll have anyone like him come around for a long time," said Twin Falls coach Marty Grindstaff.

Harris capped his illustrious Twin Falls career with a second-place finish at the state meet in Eagle Island State Park in Boise. He didn't defend his title from his junior season, but lost to arguably one of the best freshman in the western United States in Pocatel-lo's Elijah Armstrong.

GIRLS RUNNER OF THE YEAR

Youren's Finishing Kick Strong

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

GOODING • It was the week of the state meet and the Gooding girls cross country team had tapered their workouts in hopes of running personal bests at Eagle Island Park in Boise.

The day called for a slow and easy 3-mile run. So easy in fact, Gooding's head coach Kent Seifert left practice to referee a recreation soccer game.

On his way home from the game, he saw his star runner and Times-News girls cross country runner of the year Rachel Youren, running full steam ahead by herself and not with the pack of the team.

"She must have been running six-minute miles. It was odd because she always runs with the team," Seifert said. "She was just so psyched to run at state and didn't want to make any mistakes, so she went on another run. I knew then she was ready."

She certainly was.

The sophomore shocked the field at the Class 2-1A state meet, beating the heavily-favored Soda Springs and West Jefferson runners to win the state title in a personal-best time of 19 minutes, 28 seconds.

No. 1 LSU Leaves No Doubt As to SEC's Best

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BATON ROUGE, La. • Tyrann Mathieu answered the call for a game-turning play when LSU needed one most, and the top-ranked Tigers piled on from there.

Mathieu returned a punt 92 yards for a game-tying score and the Tigers punished third-ranked Arkansas with 286 yards rushing, wiping out a 14-point deficit with a 41-17 win Friday that secured a spot in the SEC championship.

"I could hear my teammates in my ear saying, 'Man, we need you to go wanted to go out there and make a big play for our team. I was fortunate enough to be able to do that."

Kenny Hilliard, Spencer Ware and Jordan Jefferson all scored on the ground for LSU (12-0, 8-0 SEC), which is 12-0 for the first time and will play No. 13 Georgia next weekend in Atlanta.

A win over the Bulldogs would assure the Tigers their third trip to the BCS title game in nine seasons. Though at this point, LSU might be able to get there even if it loses.

counted for three total touchdowns in Wyoming's 31-10 win. His offensive line allowed only 10 sacks this season (16th best in the nation), helping Smith blossom into a premier player. He's impressed Boise State coaches and players alike, including one of the best in the nation at that position, Kellen Moore.

"He's been growing, been doing great things," Moore said of Smith. "You don't really remember he's a freshman sometimes on tape because he's making great decisions."

"Extremely impressive," Petersen added about Smith. "He's a gamer. When I look at him, he just figures out a way to get it done."

Petersen said Wyoming improved every week, and when asked to assess the Broncos' progression, he was generally pleased.

"There are certain areas that I think we've played really well, and certain areas we have to tighten up a little bit," Petersen said. "I think our pass defense needs to be better."

Despite allowing 350 passing yards against SDSU, Boise State righted itself with a 52-35 win, and forced three huge Aztec turnovers in building an insurmountable lead. Running back Doug Martin carried the ball 36 times for 129 yards and two touchdowns despite lingering effects of a leg injury. He said it affected his ability to plant on his right foot, but should play Saturday.

"The plan is to keep getting treatment and see how I feel. I'm about 90-95 (percent) right now," Martin said.

Moore also threw for 366 yards and four touchdowns in San Diego, but emphasized that the Broncos desire a potent rushing attack to complement his ability to pass against Wyoming.

"You don't want to be too one-dimensional (with) the way our offense works," Moore said. "We like to create balance, create deception based on all the different things we do. You have to run the ball to do all those things."

The rivalry game with Arkansas (10-2, 6-2) was billed as the biggest in Tiger Stadium since 1959, the last time two teams ranked in the top three clashed in Death Valley. Billy Cannon lifted No. 1 LSU to a 7-3 win over No. 3 Mississippi in that game with an 89-yard punt return for a score, so it seemed fitting that the Tigers would get a similar score against the Razorbacks.

"That was a huge turning point in the game," Arkansas coach Bobby Petrino said. "We were trying to get the ball punted to the sideline, but he miss-hit it a bit and punted it to the middle. ... (Mathieu) made a great cut and made us miss at the point of attack. He made a great play!"

LSU trailed 14-7 when Mathieu fielded Dylan Breeding's end-over-end kick at his own 8, started left, made a hard cut straight up field, then angled left again to break into the clear.

"It made the statement that that lead was not going to stand up," LSU coach Les Miles said. "Our defense was going to continue to play well and our offense was coming."

Cannon also made a game-sealing tackle on defense late in that classic game against Ole Miss. Mathieu, who was playing safety instead of cornerback much of the game because of Eric Reid's injury the previous week, had defensive highlights of his own, forcing two fumbles with strips, one of which he recovered.

He now has six forced fumbles this season. His fifth was a strip of running back Dennis Johnson in LSU territory late in the first half. That set up a touchdown drive that put the Tigers ahead to stay.

SALT LAKE CITY • Inheriting a lengthy losing streak in road games never sat well with Colorado Buffaloes coach Jon Embree.

A program that had produced Heisman Trophy winners and won a national championship had no business dealing with such futility from Embree's perspective.

When Coleman Petersen missed a 48-yard field goal try with two seconds remaining to seal Colorado's 17-14 victory over Utah on Friday, Embree and his players could finally feel some relief. The Buffaloes ended a 23-game road losing streak and dashed the Utes' hopes for playing in the Pac-12 championship game.

"That was our No. 1 goal going into this season, to end that streak," Embree said. "This is awesome. I'm happy for those kids. It was four years of not winning on the road. And for them to finally get that (win), they see what it feels like."

Petersen missed all three attempts after entering the contest leading the Pac-12 in field goals made with 17. With the loss by Utah (7-5, 4-5), UCLA will represent the South in the inaugural Pac-12 title game.

Tyler Hansen passed for 264 yards and rushed for a touchdown and threw for another to lead Colorado (3-10, 2-7), which won outside its home state for the first time since Oct. 27, 2007, when the Buffaloes beat Texas Tech 31-26.

"We kept fighting," Hansen said. "We kept going at it. Slowly but surely, things started to turn our way."

quarter, Hansen went 10 of 15 for 154 yards passing to help the Buffaloes seize an early lead. Embree praised his quarterback's resilience after struggling away from home previously this season.

"Tyler was great," Embree said. "He has struggled on the road. I told him before the game just to relax and go have fun."

Colorado dominated from the start. At halftime, the Buffs led 10-0 and held a 254-39 total-yardage advantage and 11½-minute edge in time of possession.

Utah running back John White left the game in the third quarter with a left ankle injury. He carried 10 times for 28 yards.

Utah had everything to play for and Colorado nothing, other than pride for 26 seniors who had never won a road game.

The Utes had won four straight. A win Friday, coupled with an Arizona State loss against California on Friday night and UCLA loss against Southern California on Saturday night, and Utah would be win the Pac-12 South.

Colorado had other plans.

The Utes didn't get their initial first down until the 2:56 mark of the second quarter, eliciting mock cheers from the crowd of 45,026.

The team was booed as it went into the locker room trailing 10-0.

"Everyone did their job," Hansen said of Colorado's defense. "Got pressure on the quarterback and stopped the run. That's what we wanted to do."

Houston quarterback Case Keenum is hit by Tulsa defensive end Tyrunn Walker during the first quarter of their game in Tulsa, Okla.

Houston Makes Its Case Known By Routing Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. • Facing a fourth down in a tight game, Patrick Edwards saw an opportunity to put No. 8 Houston in control.

During a timeout, Edwards asked to be sent on a deep route to convert not only the fourth-and-1 but to go for more.

"I told them, 'If you run it, I'll win,'" Edwards said. "So, we called it and I scored."

Edwards' 38-yard touchdown catch sparked a string of 28 straight points, and Houston pulled away to beat Tulsa 48-16 on Friday and earn a spot in next week's Conference USA championship game.

Case Keenum threw for 457 yards and five touchdowns and Edwards finished with 181 yards receiving and four scores as the Cougars (12-0, 8-0) set a school season record by winning their 12th game. The 12 straight wins also match the school's longest winning streak, set over the 1990 and '91 seasons.

"12-0 is pretty good. That's a pretty good position to be in," Keenum said. "I couldn't ask for anything else."

Houston will go for more next Saturday, when they host either Southern Mississippi or Marshall in the C-USA title game. With a win, the Cougars will earn their first BCS bid and become from first team from the conference to play in the Bowl Championship Series.

"Fifteen weeks ago, we set out for one goal and that goal has not changed all year," coach Kevin Sumlin said. "I think a lot of people have tried to talk our team into all these other scenarios and stuff that's happening out there."

"Our guys understand that and they've put themselves in a position to achieve that goal. Along the way, there's been a bunch of records broken and a bunch of milestones crossed, but the ultimate goal for us from day one was to win the conference championship."

Keenum helped Houston pull away by hooking up with Edwards twice for touchdowns on fourth down in no man's land. He found Edwards cutting across the field for a 33-yard score on fourth-and-10 in the second quarter, then threw a deep ball to him for a 38-yard TD on fourth-and-1 in the third quarter.

"They have to go win a conference championship, but they are well deserving of a BCS bowl," Tulsa coach Bill Blankenship said. "We were playing pretty good coming in here and they shut us down pretty well."

All four of Tulsa's losses this season have come against teams ranked in the top 10 at the time — Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Boise State and Houston.

NO. 22 NEBRASKA 20, IOWA 7 LINCOLN, Neb. • Rex Burkhead, who started the week with his right foot in a walking boot, ran for 160 yards and a touchdown on a school-record 38 carries and Nebraska defeated Iowa.

Burkhead pounded away at Iowa's defense 4 or 5 yards at a time and looked like his old self after being held to a season-low 36 yards in last week's loss at Michigan.

He had eight carries for 39 yards on a 10-play drive that ended with his 2-yard run and a 20-0 lead early in the fourth quarter.

Burkhead ran on nine of 15 plays of an 80-yard drive that produced the Huskers' first touchdown. His 2-yard run around right end converted a fourth-and-1 inside the Iowa 30, and six plays later Kyler Reed scored his first touchdown of the season on a 6-yard pass from Taylor Martinez.

Nebraska's coaching staff got Burkhead a record 38th carry on the second-to-last play of the game when the Huskers (9-3, 5-3) were in victory formation. Burkhead took a knee for a 3-yard loss.

TAMPA, Fla. • Louisville got three touchdown passes from freshman quarterback Teddy Bridgewater to defeat South Florida 34-24 Friday and clinch a share of the Big East championship.

Louisville (7-5, 5-2), which rallied from a two-touchdown deficit in the first half, took the lead for good on Bridgewater's 10-yard pass to DeVante Parker with 9:38 remaining.

The Cardinals can capture the Big East's berth in a Bowl Championship Series game if Cincinnati loses once more and Friday night's Pittsburgh-West Virginia winner loses next week.

South Florida (5-6, 1-5), which needs a victory in Thursday's regular-season finale against West Virginia to qualify for its seventh consecutive bowl appearance, played the entire game with sophomore quarterback Bobby Eveld, a former walk-on, because of a shoulder injury to starter B.J. Daniels.

The Bulls took a 24-20 lead on a 37-yard halfback option pass from Demetris Murray to Deonte Welch, following Lindsey Lamar's 62-yard kickoff return.

Meyer Requests To Be Taken Off ESPN

An ESPN spokesman says Urban Meyer will not be appear on the network this weekend after the former Florida coach requested he be taken off his assignment.

Several media outlets have reported that Meyer is set to become the new coach at Ohio State.

ESPN spokesman Mike Humes posted on his Twitter account: "Urban Meyer won't be appearing on ESPN this weekend. He requested off his studio assignment and we obliged."

Meyer has been working as a game analyst this season for ESPN, and the rest of his usual broadcast team will be covering the Buckeyes' game against Michigan in Ann Arbor on Saturday. Earlier in the week, ESPN announced Meyer would work in the studio Saturday.

Golden agrees to contract through 2019

CORAL GABLES, Fla. • Miami coach Al Golden has agreed to a four-year extension, keeping him under contract through Feb. 1, 2020.

The Hurricanes announced the move in the fourth quarter of Friday's season-finale against Boston College. Miami is not going to a bowl game because of an NCAA investigation into the athletic department and its compliance practices.

Golden was hired last December and had repeatedly said that he wants to remain with the Hurricanes. His future at the school was the source of much speculation because of the NCAA inquiry and the possibility of the Hurricanes facing stiff sanctions when that investigation ends. Athletic director Shawn Eichorst says he looks "forward to working side-by-side with Coach Golden for many years."

Arkansas teammates honor Uekman

BATON ROUGE, La. • Arkansas tight end Austin Tate honored late teammate Garrett Uekman by switching his jersey number from 87 to 88, while members of the coaching staff wore black ribbons with the No. 88 on their shirts for the No. 3 Razorbacks' game against No. 1 LSU.

The 19-year-old Uekman, a redshirt freshman, died last Sunday and a coroner has determined that his death was caused by a previously undetected heart condition.

Shortly before the LSU band played the national anthem, fans in Tiger Stadium observed a moment of silence in Uekman's honor. LSU band announcer Patrick Wright said that while Arkansas and LSU compete on the scoreboard, the communities surrounding both schools were in mourning together for the death of a young man that came much too soon.

PARADISE ISLAND, Bahamas • Marcus Jordan was headed to the foul line for two big shots Friday when a teammate passed along an encouraging message.
“He told me this shot is in my blood,” Jordan said.
Yup, like father, like son.
Jordan, the son of Hall of Famer Michael Jordan, made two big free throws to give Central Florida the lead with 3:11 left and the Knights upset No. 4 Connecticut 68-63 in the semifinals of the Battle 4 Atlantis, snapping the Huskies’ 16-game winning streak.
Jordan and Keith Clanton each scored 20 points for the Knights (4-1), who trailed by 17 early in the second half. Jordan also had seven rebounds and seven assists.

NO. 3 OHIO ST. 80, VALPARAISO 47
COLUMBUS, Ohio • William Buford scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half and the Buckeyes cruised past the Crusaders.
Aaron Craft added 15 points and eight assists for Ohio State (6-0), which tuned up for a big home showdown against No. 6 Duke on Tuesday. Jared Sullinger had 14 points and 13 rebounds and Deshaun Thomas chipped in 12 points.

NO. 5 SYRACUSE 69, STANFORD 63
NEW YORK • Kris Joseph had 18 points and eight rebounds and the Orange closed the game on a 15-3 run to win the NIT Season Tip-Off at Madison Square Garden.

NO. 7 LOUISVILLE 59, OHIO 54
LOUISVILLE, Ky. • Kyle Kuric scored 16 points and Gorgui Dieng grabbed a career-high 16 rebounds to give Rick Pitino his 250th victory as the Cardinals’ coach.

NO. 10 FLORIDA 107, JACKSONVILLE 62
GAINESVILLE, Fla. • Ken-ny Boynton scored 22 points, Erving Walker added 21 and the Gators used one of their best shooting performances to handle the Dolphins.

NO. 11 WISCONSIN 66, BRADLEY 43
HOFFMAN ESTATES, Ill. •

Ryan Evans, Jordan Taylor and Josh Gasser scored 15 points apiece and the Badgers scored 18 points off turnovers at the Chicago Invitational Challenge.

Center Jared Berggren grabbed 10 rebounds for Wisconsin (5-0), which faces BYU in Saturday's championship at the suburban Chicago Sears Centre.

NO. 12 XAVIER 70, GEORGIA 56
CINCINNATI • Tu Holloway, who hurt his right hand during practice, missed his only shot in the first half, but he made all eight of his free throws and had four assists, helping Xavier (4-0) extend its success against the Southeastern Conference.

American Samoa soccer players celebrate after defeating Tonga, 2-1, in Apia, Samoa, on Wednesday, the squad's first victory after losing all 30 international men's soccer matches it had played. American Samoa extended its modest unbeaten streak to two games with a tie against the Cook Islands.

Meet Soccer's Newest 'Power'

ASSOCIATED PRESS

APIA, Samoa • Two days after winning for the first time in its soccer history, American Samoa stretched its unbeaten run to two games.

After Tuesday's 2-1 victory over Tonga, American Samoa drew 1-1 with the Cook Islands on Thursday. Another win against rival Samoa on Saturday will put the U.S. protectorate into the second round of World Cup qualifying in the Oceania region.

"We made it very hard for ourselves again but we got the result we needed to make the game against Samoa, who I consider the best team here, a meaningful contest," said American Samoa coach Thomas Rongen, a former veteran MLS coach who used to coach the U.S. Under-20 team. "It's going to be great — Samoa and American Samoa is like a dream matchup."

The team has also gained international attention because one of its players, defender Johnny Saelua, is a fa'afafine — a biological male raised as a female. Fa'afafines are common in Samoan culture and are often considered a third gender.

"He's been a member of the team for a number of years," Taumua said. "Yes, he's fa'afafine but he's a man and he plays as a man."

Saelua also represented American Samoa in previous qualifying tournaments.

"I've really got a female starting at center back," Rongen said. "Can you imagine that in England or Spain?"

American Samoa entered this year's qualifying campaign with 30 straight losses in international soccer, including a record 31-0 loss to Australia in a 2001 World Cup qualifier. Overall, the team had been outscored 229-12.

In World Cup qualifying, the team lost all 12 of its matches before this year with a minus-127 goal difference, 129-2.

All that changed with Tuesday's win, and Thursday's draw has added to the hopes that the team can move on for the first time.

"Our game plan was to win but the draw has gotten us to four points and puts us into a position on Saturday to play for a championship," Rongen said. "I think we should have put the game away in the first half and scored two or three with the chances we had."

Shalom Luani scored for American Samoa in the 24th minute. But in the 62nd, defender Tala Luvu headed a free kick from Paavo Mustonen into his own net.

American Samoa is tied for the worst team in the FIFA rankings — in 204th place with Andorra, Montserrat, Samoa and San Marino.

A small island in the south Pacific that is known more for the American football players it produces, American Samoa has a population of about 55,000. But Tuesday's win elevated the country to almost star status in soccer circles.

"It's been quite amazing really," Football Federation of American Samoa general secretary Tavita Taumua said. "We've had people telephoning us, emailing us, congratulating us on our first win. Getting that first win was a big thing for us. Now we're looking forward to Saturday's game against Samoa."

Rongen, a 55-year-old Dutchman, once played for Ajax. He has been coaching American Samoa for only about three weeks.

"He's made a big contribution," Taumua said. "He has a lot of experience at a professional level and he's made a big difference both in the skill level of the players and in their mental approach. Thomas has really change the level of American Samoan football."

NBA Owners, Players Meet In NYC

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • NBA owners and players resumed talks Friday aimed at ending the 148-day lockout in time to save the league's Christmas Day schedule.

That deadline has created a sense of urgency because the Dec. 25 schedule is traditionally a showcase for the league. This season's three-game slate was to include Miami at Dallas in an NBA finals rematch, plus MVP Derrick Rose leading Chicago into Los Angeles to face Kobe Bryant and the Lakers.

After a secret meeting earlier this week, the sides returned to the table for more than 10 hours of discussions. Commissioner David Stern has said the league needs about 30 days from an agreement to when games could be played.

Participating in the talks for the league were Stern, deputy commissioner Adam Silver, Spurs owner Peter Holt, the chairman of the labor relations committee, and attorneys Rick Buchanan and Dan Rube. The players were represented by executive director Billy Hunter, president Derek Fisher, vice president Maurice Evans, attorney Ron Klempner and economist Kevin Murphy.

The discussions between representatives of the owners and players are now centered on settling their lawsuits: The players filed an antitrust lawsuit against the league in Minnesota, and the league filed a pre-emptive suit in New York, seeking to prove the lockout was legal.

Because the union disbanded, it cannot negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement, but the settlement talks could lead to that. The CBA can only be completed once the union has reformed.

There are still a handful of issues relating to spending rules for teams that must be worked out — issues that have been an obstacle to a new deal since the lockout began July 1. Players fear that owners' desires to curb spending by the big-market teams would limit their options as free agents.

ATP Finals Minus Djokovic

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON • All that success finally caught up to Novak Djokovic.

A weary Djokovic finished his spectacular season by losing more matches in three days than he did in the first seven months of the year, earning the top-ranked Serb an early exit in the ATP World Tour Finals.

After winning three Grand Slam titles and seizing the No. 1 ranking from Rafael Nadal before having the last few months derailed by injuries, Djokovic had simply run out of energy coming into the season-ending tournament.

"What is missing ... is that freshness," Djokovic said after losing 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 to fellow Serb Janko Tipsarevic in their final group match. "The will to win, just being on the court, giving 100 percent. I'm not able to do that now because I just have very little left."

Despite finishing the group stage with a 1-2 record, Djokovic would have reached the knockout rounds if Tomas Berdych had lost to David Ferrer in the final round-robin match, but the seventh-seeded Czech rallied from a set and a break down to beat Ferrer 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 to grab the last semifinal spot.

Ferrer will face Roger Federer in Saturday's first semifinal, before Berdych takes on Jo-Wilfried Tsonga, as the three highest ranked players in the world failed to make it out of the group stage. Second-ranked Nadal was eliminated after losing to Tsonga on Thursday, while No. 3 Andy Murray pulled out injured following his opening loss to Ferrer.

Djokovic, meanwhile, can start packing his bag for the Maldives, where he plans to join Tipsarevic for a vacation next week as he tries to recharge for next year.

"I look forward to go for a much needed rest," he said. "I had an unbelievable year. Nothing can really ruin that. I will always remember this year as the best of my life."

Still, it was a disappointing end to one of the greatest seasons tennis has ever seen.

Djokovic went undefeated in 2011 until losing to Federer in the French Open semifinals. His next loss didn't come until he had to retire with an injury against Andy Murray in the final of the Cincinnati Masters in August. In between, he had beaten Nadal for his first Wimbledon title and then again defeated the Spaniard in the U.S. Open final.

CSI Post Callender Dead at 38

TIMES-NEWS

Former College of Southern Idaho men's basketball player Mantia Callender died Wednesday from a brain aneurysm. Callender was 38.

Callender, who played for the Golden Eagles from 1994-96, was currently living in Wilder, near the Oregon border. A coach at Greenleaf Friends Academy, Callender played for Steve Irons during his time at CSI.

He came to Twin Falls from London, England. A 6-foot-9 bruiser in the post, Callender made an impact in Twin Falls with his shot blocking and rebounding.

After CSI, he transferred to Middle Tennessee State, playing there from 1996-98. Callender leaves behind his wife, Rebecca, and their two daughters ages 11 and 5.

Services will be held at the Greenleaf Friends Academy Gym at 11 a.m. Friday.

BOYS RUNNER CAPSULES

Ben Stout, sr., Wood River

The Wolverines had a down year as a team, just missing out on the state meet, but Stout had a successful season, running his personal-best time of 16:28 to finish second at the Class 4A District IV meet. He followed that with a 16:47 and eighth-place finish at state.

Coach Monte Brothwell: "He's just a dedicated runner. He brings experience, basically running since middle school. He has a lot of talent."

Gage Moore, soph., Filer

Moore burst onto the scene this season, cutting nearly two minutes off his previous best time to run a 16:47 to finish second at the Class 3A state meet. He challenged Kimberly's Wesley Kelly all season, placing second behind him at the District IV meet.

Coach Ken Young: "He's extremely talented. He's probably the most competitive runners I've coached. There isn't a kid that he doesn't think he can beat. He loves to race. I haven't seen a kid that loves to race as much as he does."

Wesley Kelly, sr., Kimberly

Kelly ran a 17:03 to win his first District IV championship and the following week ran a personal-best 16:58 to place fourth at the Class 3A state meet and help the Bulldogs bring home a fourth-place trophy. He also won the Magic Mountain Invitational.

Coach Kelly Gibbons: "It's always fun watching Wesley run. He knows what he's doing and what pace he wants to run and when he wants to make his move. He's just an excellent kid and a great role model. He could push himself harder than most other runners."

GIRLS RUNNER CAPSULES

Mikesell Clegg, sr., Jerome

Clegg saved one of her best performances for the final race of her Jerome career, running a season-low 19:11 at the Class 4A state meet, good for third place, one spot better than her junior year. Clegg won six races this season, including the District IV title and finished an impressive 31st in the elite division of the deep field at Bob Firman.

Coach Randy Tolman: "I really think that if she went up there (state) again and ran to get second place, she would get second place. But she went up there to win and that says a lot about her. She tried to run with Emily Nist (state champion) and was in position to win in that first half, but ran out of steam in that back half."

Jasmine Nesbitt, jr., Jerome

Nesbitt battled knee injuries throughout the season, but came on strong down the stretch to run a personal-best 19:27 to finish second at the Class 4A District IV meet. She followed that with a 19:28 and fourth-place finish at state.

Coach Randy Tolman: "That was huge for her to go up like that and run the way she did at state. No one would have guessed that she would have only one Bishop Kelly girl in front of her. For her to do that was really exciting to see."

Ellie Dalton, sr., Dietrich

Dalton finished her Blue Devils' career with a ninth-place finish at the Class 1A-2A state meet, running a 20:31. She ran her personal-best time of 19:35 as a junior where she bested Kent in their small-school rivalry.

Alyssa Brann, soph., Twin Falls

Brann burst onto the scene as the Bruins' top runner and capped a successful season by running a personal-best 19:35 for third place at the Class 4A District IV meet. The time was more than a minute faster than her previous best. She finished eighth at state, running a 19:48.

Coach Marty Grindstaff: "She's only a sophomore and was our leader this season. She did some running on her own in addition to practice and ran her best times of the season when it counted most."

Sasha Kent, sr., Richfield

She didn't come close to her personal-best 19:11 which she ran her junior season, but Kent capped a successful career at Richfield with a fifth-place finish at the Class 1A-2A state meet, running a 20:06.

Kayla Green, soph., Jerome

Jerome's No. 3 runner made huge strides this season, cutting more than two minutes off her previous best to run a 20:15 at state for a 12th place finish. She had two second-place finishes and placed sixth at the Class 4A District IV meet.

Coach Randy Tolman: "It was huge having her up there with Jasmine (Nesbitt). If she wouldn't have been in the top 20, we wouldn't have come home with a trophy."

Coach: Randy Tolman, Jerome

Tolman helped out the middle school program for 22 years before taking over as Jerome's head coach this season, where he led the Tigers to a third-place trophy. He plans on coaching the tradition-rich program for a long time and hopes to bring home a state championship.

the arc as Northwest (7-3) chipped away. Behind hot shooting from Mariah Duran and Layana de Souza, the Trappers pulled to within one at 61-60 with just over eight minutes remaining.

Barnes, however, scored her first bucket of the second half at the 7:50 mark and Tayllor Gipson recorded a steal and three-point play for a six-point cushion.

Barnes finished with 20 points, Gipson had 19 points, eight rebounds and six assists and Megan Tanner came off the bench to score 15 points.

It was Tanner's play early in the second half that lifted CSI, which was playing with starting center Chakala Carthen and starting forward Kylee Schierman sitting on the bench with four fouls apiece.

Tanner scored six consec-

Harris

Harris ran a 16:20, while Armstrong cruised to victory, running a 15:55. Harris, however, returned to Boise two weeks later, running the course 22 seconds quicker the second time around.

"I was disappointed. I really wanted to repeat, but Elijah is a great runner, one of the best freshmen in the country," Harris said. "I think I started faster than I usually do. I wanted to stay with him and it caught up to me."

The senior can't hang his head too low as he has plans to continue his running career in college. He visited and ran with the BYU cross country team in October and is also garnering interest from Syracuse and Weber State.

"It was a great season. I felt really blessed to get healthy and have successful physical therapy and find some answers to some of my injury questions," said Harris, who battled knee soreness at the beginning of the season. "It was a huge learning experience trying out my own workouts and racing strategies."

Over the years, Harris has formed a solid relationship with his coach, Grindstaff, who let him create his own workouts toward the final

She executed Siefert's plan perfectly, which was to let West Jefferson's Tylee Newman and Soda Springs' Ciera Simmons lead the race. If they were running together, Youren was told to run with them. They instead ran solo, so Youren hung behind 30-40 yards until the 2-mile mark.

The she went for it.

Youren stormed past the two runners who had both broken the 19-minute mark and she beat the field by 24 seconds as Newman and Simmons dropped to sixth and 16th respectively.

"I feel she ran the perfect race. No matter what, she was supposed to at the two-mile mark and she just dropped them," Siefert said. "It was just a beautiful race."

Said Youren: "It really didn't sink in for a while that I had won. It was crazy. I was so tired and just found a way to win."

It was a race that she may not have won her freshman year.

Last fall, Youren's first priority was volleyball. She barely practiced with the cross country team, but still finished third at the district meet and seventh at state.

She followed that performance in the spring with a second-place finish at the state track meet in the 3,200 meters and third-place finishes in the 800 and 1,600 meters.

She dropped volleyball this season, focusing solely on cross country.

"She's learned so much from last spring to now," Siefert said. "She has a lot of talent and a really good foot speed, but before she would take off a little bit too early. She's learned when to push."

Just a sophomore, Youren has the potential to be one of the best runners to race for Gooding, which has seen 17 athletes compete in college in the last 15 years.

After winning a race in Filer earlier this season, Youren was asked where she thought she staked up against the other runners in the state.

"I don't know, I don't really pay attention to rankings and stuff," Youren said at the time.

Now, she knows she'll be a marked target next season as she tries to defend her title in hopes of becoming a three-time state champion.

"I'm kind of scared. I know the other girls will be trying to beat me," Youren said. "I have become a lot more dedicated to cross country and I know I'll be ready. I love to run."

utive points at one point for the Golden Eagles and grabbed four rebounds.

CSI also got solid play from forwards Chelsie Pitt and Line Liepina. Pitt made her season debut coming off knee surgery and had nine points and three rebounds in 13 minutes. Liepina played 20 minutes, scoring six points and grabbing eight rebounds.

The Golden Eagles played without starting point guard Adriana Dent, who has a broken foot.

CSI MEN 100, MILES (MONT.) CC 90
Sophomore guard Fabyon Harris drove the lane with just over a minute left in the game for a layup to put the Golden Eagles (7-1) up 96-90 and seal CSI's fifth consecutive victory.

Miles (6-2) briefly held the lead in the second half at 79-77.

Harris finished with 30 points, Rafriel Guthrie had 26 and 13 rebounds and Luke Cothron had 25 and nine.

stretch of the season.

While the team focused on distance-based workouts, Harris turned his attention to speed work and intervals. One workout added to his regimen was a session of four one-mile intervals at 4:55 pace.

"He's pretty unique. This is the first kid that I've had do that," Grindstaff said.

"He did a good job checking in and communicating with me. We really had to change what we usually do as coaches and give him a little more free reign. It's not like we had the kids who could keep up with him and push him in practice. He's just kind of different in that aspect. Running by yourself isn't appealing."

Pleas Entered in Drug-related Assault Case

BY KEITH KINNAIRD
Bonner County Daily Bee

SANDPOINT • A Sandpoint man accused of holding an ex-girlfriend against her will and robbing her during a plea agreement with the state.

Jason Courtney Kaelin is pleading guilty to aggravated battery and heroin trafficking. In exchange for the pleas, robbery and kidnapping charges are being dismissed, according to court documents.

The plea agreement requires Kaelin to admit violating the terms of his probation in a construction site theft case dating back to

Kaelin, 32, is scheduled to be sentenced in 1st District Court on Jan. 17, 2012.

Kaelin is accused of attacking the woman with a stun gun, hammer and knife during a drug deal at his Sandpoint home last June. The woman told police she was robbed of her purse and force-fed prescription anti-anxiety medication during the ordeal and used a cell phone concealed in a cushion to repeatedly call 911, the arrest report said.

Mackenzi Jane Cain was later implicated as an accomplice in the incident and was charged with aiding and abetting in the crimes and pleaded guilty to slightly reduced charges. A robbery charge was amended to grand theft and a trafficking charge was amended to felony drug possession. A third count of delivery of a controlled substance was dismissed, according to court documents.

Cain, 20, was sentenced on Nov. 7. Judge John Patrick Luster imposed concurrent prison terms of two and a half years to six years with retained jurisdiction. When jurisdiction is retained, a defendant is imprisoned for six months to a year before becoming eligible for release onto probation.

Utah Couple Sues Over Beetle-tainted Baby Formula

BY JENNIFER DOBNER
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A Utah couple has filed a personal injury lawsuit against the makers of Similac, claiming their child was sickened by drinking the baby formula because it was tainted with beetles and beetle larvae.

Attorneys for Adam and Amanda Oettli, of Sandy, filed the lawsuit against Abbott Laboratories Inc. this week in Salt Lake City's 3rd District Court.

Court papers say the couple's infant son, Conner, suffered digestive problems, stomach cramping, diarrhea, vomiting, constant crying and other symptoms after being fed the formula. The papers say Conner was fed the formula, which was purchased at Costco, for about eight months.

The lawsuit seeks a jury trial and unspecified financial damages.

Similac products were recalled in September 2010 after Abbott said the formula from a specific production facility might contain beetles. In a letter sent to consumers who purchased the baby formula at Costco, a company official says "there is a remote possibility that consumption of product could cause diarrhea and/or nausea. The letter, which is included as an exhibit in court papers, also says the U.S. Food and Drug Administration had determined the recalled products pose no serious health concerns.

In an email to The Associated Press on Friday, Abbott spokesman Scott Stoffel said he could not comment specifically on the Utah lawsuit because he had not seen it.

Stoffel said the company's own quality system had detected the problem and immediately "stopped production and shipment of product, conducted an investigation, tested recently produced product to determine if it could be affected, conducted a medical assessment, and worked around the clock to recall the product."

A 2010 AP story about the recall said the voluntary action affected up to 5 million Similac-brand powder formulas sold in the U.S., Puerto Rico, Guam and some Caribbean countries.

Stoffel said the Utah lawsuit was not the first filed against the company related to this recall, although he could not say how many or where. Some of the lawsuits have been dismissed, Stoffel said.

A message left for the Oettlis on Friday was not immediately returned.

The formula purchased by the couple bore the same lot number as the products recalled by Abbott, the lawsuit states. The lawsuit also contends that a complaint about Similac contamination problems was registered with the FDA in May 2010, more than 130 days before a recall was issued.

Court papers say Conner Oettli continues to suffer gastrointestinal problems, constipation and other medical problems as a result of ingesting the contaminated formula.

Researchers Propose System to Find New Life

BY NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

SPOKANE, Wash. • Thousands of planets will likely be discovered in the next few years, and a new system is needed to better classify the ability of those worlds to support life, according to a Washington State University professor.

In a paper to be published in the December issue of Astrobiology, professor Dirk Schulze-Makuch and colleagues propose a new system that classifies some planets as either similar to Earth, or not similar but capable of harboring life.

That is different from the current system, which is dominated by the notion that Earth serves as the best model of conditions suited to the emergence of life on other worlds, Schulze-Makuch said.

"If the scale becomes widely used, it might also prove useful in conveying to the public exactly how excited they should become when a new planet discovery is made," by the group mark the first attempt by scientists to categorize exoplanets and exomoons in accordance with their potential to harbor some form of life, he said.

"Interest in exoplanets is going to focus initially on the search for terrestrial, Earth-like planets," said Schulze-Makuch.

But the authors believe that focusing exclusively on Earth-based assumptions is too limiting.

"Habitability in a wider sense is not necessarily restricted to water as a solvent or to a planet circling a star," the paper said. "For example, the hydrocarbon lakes on Titan could host a different form of life."

The paper's authors contend the alternative is to risk overlooking potentially habitable worlds.

The paper was co-written

Irwin, of the University of Texas-El Paso, and Marina Resendes de Sousa Antonia, Carol Turse, Grayson Boyer and Schulze-Makuch all of Washington State University.

"For scientists, the scale provides a quick categorization of a planet's relevance to biology, in the same way that stellar types can immediately tell an astronomer something about the size, temperature, and brightness of a star," Shostak said.

The new system also has the potential to better inform the public, he said.

"If the scale becomes widely used, it might also prove useful in conveying to the public exactly how excited they should become when a new planet discovery is made," Shostak said.
