Twin Falls Curbs Parking Proposal — for Now

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

The Twin Falls City Council on Monday considered a proposal to overhaul downtown parking — and kicked it to the curb with a 4-3 vote.

But revamping the scrutinized system of meters and leased parking spaces may still happen. The council later decided to take another look at the same proposal in two weeks, on Dec. 12.

Councilman Lance Clow, who had opposed parts of the initial proposal, brought up the idea of another look at the issue. The parking proposal came from a task force that has examined the issue for months.

Those parking changes that will get another chance include: removal of parking meters in downtown, ending the practice of leasing individual parking spaces, and providing free public parking on all city-owned lots on a first-come, first-served basis. Public parking would be regulated with posted time limits that vary based on the needs of different parts of downtown.

Clow, Mayor Don Hall, and councilmen David E. Johnson and Trip Craig all voted against making the changes Monday.

Prior to that vote, Clow had sought

URA Moves on Chobani Loan

The Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency Board on Monday unanimously approved an agreement to borrow money from Agro Farma, the parent company of Chobani. It's a short-term loan that the agency needs for the Greek yogurt plant to start construction.

The URA can borrow up to $17.3 million at a 3 percent interest rate from Agro Farma under the agreement.

Here's how it works: Urban renewal dollars are paying for infrastructure tied to the yogurt plant. But those dollars won't come in until the plant is built and generates additional property tax dollars for the URA.

The URA needs a bank loan to cover the upfront costs of infrastructure, but one won't come through for a few months. For now, the URA will borrow from Agro Farma and then repay the company with the bank loan. From there, the URA will repay the bank loan with property taxes from the new Chobani plant, which is expected to be built and producing yogurt in mid-2012.

Robert Stuart Middle School has been recognized by Idaho's governor for its dedication to volunteerism.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

Just before the first lunch period Monday, student office aides at Robert Stuart Middle School unpacked light-up pens and slap bracelets onto folding tables.

Student council members planned to later sell the trinkets to pay for a greater cause — providing food for families in need during the holiday season.

It's the latest of a string of fundraisers by the students that have garnered their school statewide attention.

For merging volunteerism into school life, the Twin Falls middle school earned an honorable mention in the Governor's Brightest Star Awards, given to corporations, nonprofits, individuals and schools for their volunteer work.

School administrators took about 30 student leaders to the awards ceremony Nov. 10 in Boise, featuring Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and first lady Lori Otter. It

"It was a neat experience all the way around," Principal Kasey Teske said.

Robert Stuart was recognized mostly for the school's "Helping Hands Day" in May. School employees and more than 700 students spent four hours volunteering at different locations around the Magic Valley.

Teaching students academic skills may be the focus at the middle school, but it isn't the sole emphasis.

"We focus a lot on character, too," Teske said.

Attempted Walmart Burglars Charged with Battery, Injury to Child, Conspiracy

Two men who allegedly met in a Colorado prison are accused of a theft foiled by shoppers.

BY LAURIE WELCH

RUPERT • Two Colorado men who allegedly attempted to rob the north Burley Walmart Wednesday — but were stopped by nearby shoppers until cops arrived — have been formally charged for the incident.

Robert Joseph Lambert, 46, and Tommy Dean Nash, 37, have both been charged with felony aggravated battery, two counts of criminal conspiracy and injury to a child, after they reportedly attempted to make off with a cash cart containing $54,640.

Both men are scheduled for preliminary hearings in Minidoka County Magistrate Court at 1 p.m. Dec. 7, and are being held in the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center on $250,000 bond.

The men allegedly met while incarcerated in Colorado and traveled to Idaho together.

According to court records, on the night of the incident, they allegedly parked on the south end of the store. Nash went inside the store two or three times to observe the location of the cash cart.

WOLF PROJECT PROMOTES NONLETHAL CONTROL

Advocates say Wood River Valley program has cut down number of sheep lost to wolves in last four years.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
lkruesi@magicvalley.com

For the past four years, Wood River Valley sheep haven't been afraid of the big, bad wolf.

While the sheep will always face predators, falling victim to a wolf hasn't been a looming concern thanks to a developing project in Blaine County.

Four years ago, Defenders of Wildlife began monitoring how many sheep were lost to wolves within the Wood River Valley. The Phantom Hill pack was moving through the county, taking sheep at higher rates than normal.

"The train wreck hit in 2007," said Suzanne Stone, Northern Rockies representative for the wildlife group. "We were getting asked by sheep farmers what we could suggest to help keep the kills down."

As a result, Defenders of Wildlife began encouraging the use of nonlethal ways to prevent wolf depredation incidents. The efforts focused on training ranchers about what they can do to prevent large predator kills.

And while wolf hunting is the state's preferred method of managing wolves — and has helped drive some predators away from civilization — the nonlethal program is showing signs of success.

Stone said that wolves have killed only 20 of the 40,000 sheep that lived in the Wood River Valley over the past four years. However, the group will need more money to be effective as it plans to expand to cover all of Blaine County next year.

and gained council approval for two tweaks. One would have allowed the city to continue leasing individual parking spaces. The other change would have prevented the physical removal of the parking meters, but kept in place the proposal's call to stop using them to charge for parking.

"I feel like we're back at square one again," Hall said after the 4-3 vote.

Johnson said he voted against the proposal because the amendments "basically gutted it."

The council had plenty of discussion. Councilwoman Rebecca Mills-Sojka, for example, said it's worth considering the historical and aesthetic value that the parking meters add to downtown. She also suggested the meters could be used to collect donations for local nonprofit organizations.

In other business, the council:

- Voted 6-1 to loan

$25,000 to the upcoming 2012 Magic Valley Air Show, which features the Blue Angels. The money will be returned from proceeds generated by the air show. The event is scheduled for July 28-29. Mills-Sojka voted against the loan.

- Unanimously approved a request to place two new communications towers needed for fire and police departments. One stands 60 feet high on property located at the Twin Falls Chamber-operated Visitors Center, 3591 Blue Lakes Boulevard N. The other is a 100-foot tower at the city of Twin Falls gun range, east of the 4100 block of Hankins Road East and south of the Snake River Canyon Rim Trail.

- Approved a bid of $128,250 from Allen Nagel to buy a 0.27-acre tract of city property located at 287 Washington St. N. It's the highest bid for the property.

53-year-old Faces Accusations of Sexual Battery of Minor Girl

TIMES-NEWS

A 53-year-old Twin Falls man is accused of having an illicit sexual relationship with a 15-year-old girl, who claims he told her "age is just a number."

Bruce Tompkins faces four felony counts of sexual battery of a child under 16 and one count of destruction or concealment of evidence. He is held at Twin Falls County Jail on $100,000 bond. Tompkins' preliminary hearing is slated for Dec. 9.

Tompkins

According to a report from Sgt. Bill Deetz of the Filer police, officers on Nov. 3 identified several juveniles and a few adults at 511 Golden Spur Drive, where drugs and assorted paraphernalia were allegedly found. In addition, officers spoke with a 15-year-old girl and took her to a relative's home after discovering a love note she wrote to Tompkins. She ran away but was re-acquired by police later that evening.

During an interview with police, the girl told of rampant drug use among a handful of adults and numerous children whose ages range from 4 to 17. Police also asked the girl about talk of a relationship with Tompkins, who is the grandfather of the girl's teenage friend.

The girl said she met Tompkins at a skate park frequently, and they eventually began a romantic relationship, fueled by sex and methamphetamine. She told investigators they had sex dozens of times during the past four or five months at various Filer residences and Twin Falls motels. Four particular encounters form the basis of the felony criminal charges.

The alleged victim also said Tompkins was well aware of her age and often lied to friends that she was 19.

On the morning of the arrests, the girl told police, Tompkins had her dispose of meth before investigators could seize it.

The police affidavit noted that the girl lives with her grandfather in Filer, as she refuses to live with her mother in Boise. The report made no mention of a father.

ITD Warns I-84 On-ramp in Nampa to Close Tonight

IDAHO STATESMAN

NAMPA • The Interstate-84 west-bound on-ramp at Garrity Boulevard in Nampa will close at 10 p.m. today to allow crews to safely install four light pole bases, the Idaho Transportation Department announced Monday.

The ramp will reopen at 5 a.m. Wednesday.

Crews also will apply permanent striping to the on- and off-ramps in the Franklin-Garrity project area in the coming weeks. That work is temperature-dependent and is planned during daytime hours. Traffic will be shifted around the work zone when the striping occurs. Motorists are advised to use extra caution in the work areas.

The ramp work is part of the I-84 Franklin to Garrity widening project. Motorists might experience intermittent nighttime lane reductions on this stretch of interstate through Nampa, but all lanes will remain open during the day.

Once the project is complete, I-84 between Franklin and Garrity will be widened to three lanes in each direction, plus an auxiliary lane for east-bound traffic. The auxiliary lane will allow motorists to enter I-84 at Franklin, remain in the far right lane and exit at Garrity — never having to merge with interstate through traffic.

Former Director of Senior Center Gets Probation

BY LAURIE WELCH

lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A Rupert woman will avoid jail and serve four years on probation after stealing nearly $3,000 from the Minidoka County Senior Center.

Minidoka County 5th District Judge Jonathan Brody on Monday sentenced Holly Anne Najera, former interim director of the senior center, to three to eight years in prison. But he then suspended the sentence.

"I'm sorry this happened," Najera said. "I never meant for any of this to go this way. That's all I have to say."

Najera was charged with felony grand theft and burglary in May, and reached an agreement with prosecutors in September to plead guilty to the grand theft charge. Under the agreement, the state dismissed the burglary charge, and recommended the suspended eight-year sentence and three years of probation.

Brody's sentence increased the probation term to allow Najera plenty of time to repay the senior center before completing her probation.

Najera's attorney, Keith Roark, said they would not dispute the restitution amount —

$2,965.33 — although they believe some of the costs were incurred as legitimate senior center expenses.

Najera used an unauthorized financial card issued in the senior center's name and linked to a center checking account. She was employed at the center from June 2005 to August 2010 and was the center's interim director when she resigned.

"It gives the school a nice feeling and helps students look outside themselves," he said.

The lesson is clearly starting to sink in.

"I got involved because my life at home isn't perfect, so I want to make others' lives perfect," said seventh-grader Victoria Reyes, a member of the student council who is helping with this week's lunchtime sales.

Last year, the student council volunteered regularly at assisted living facilities. School counselor Paula Watkins said student leaders also have different fundraising activities each month to raise money for nonprofit organizations.

"We promote a lot of service," she said.

Next week, student council members are leading the school's annual "Spirit of

Reyes said her favorite fundraiser of the year is the canned food drive, although the student council coordinates "a bunch of fun stuff."

"We want to challenge ourselves to do a little better each year," he said.

Lambert then allegedly put on a mask or hood before he entered the store and forcefully took the cart away from an employee. As he neared the store's south exit, he allegedly hit a shopping cart with an 8-month-old child in it, which then struck the mother. The shopping cart with the baby in it careened erratically across the floor, almost throwing the infant to the ground.

The father of the child allegedly confronted Lambert, who pulled a knife and stabbed the father, according to the records. Another shopper saw what happened and helped the father of the child subdue Lambert on the ground and take the knife away.

The father's wound was superficial. Lambert also allegedly tried to stab the second shopper.

According to court records, meanwhile, Nash allegedly moved the car from a parking stall to the south exit door area, opened its rear door, then walked up to the store window to look inside. He then returned to the car and allegedly left the scene, but was later arrested in Gooding County.

According to police, Lambert was also injured during the incident and taken to Cassia Regional Medical Center, where he was treated and released to the jail.

The mother of the infant received an injury to her knee when Lambert allegedly knocked the shopping cart into her.

Exchange Students Try American Thanksgiving

BY JOSEPH LAW
Standard Journal

ST. ANTHONY • Two teenagers who are here as foreign exchange students say celebrating Thanksgiving with an American family was a memorable event for them.

Lisa Itzek of Nartum, Germany, and Niamh Cameron of Rotorua, New Zealand, have been looking forward to the holiday as part of their 11-month stay in Idaho.

Lisa said Nartum is a village of about 800 people halfway between Bremen and Hamburg.

Niamh said Rotorua is a tourist destination of about 60,000 people that has a lot of natural thermal features.

But now the two students are staying with the family of Sharon Leevy, in St. Anthony, while they're in their senior year at South Fremont High School.

For Thanksgiving the two girls joined with Leevy's extended family in Parker for a traditional meal.

It included turkey, ham, mashed potatoes and gravy, a variety of vegetables, casseroles, bread rolls, and a variety of pies.

"It was another culture shock," said Niamh. "Everything had probably twice the amount of flavor."

She said she had been looking forward to eating turkey, but found it to be not too different from chicken.

"The yams were a little sugary. It was good, but it was a little too much. Sweet potato, plus sugar, plus marshmallows — whoa!"

Lisa Itzek of Nartum, Germany

Lisa said the turkey and potatoes and gravy were highlights of the meal.

Sweetened mashed yams with toasted marshmallows on top was another unique experience for the pair.

They both found many of the items like that to be a little on the sweet side.

"The yams were a little sugary," said Lisa. "It was good, but it was a little too much. Sweet potato, plus sugar, plus marshmallows — whoa!"

Like many Thanksgiving meals this one was a collaboration.

Niamh's contribution to the meal was a Boston cream pie, which turned out to be a favorite for Lisa.

Although the meal was a central part of the day, the pair said it was also a time for playing games together as friends and family.

How does Thanksgiving compare to any holidays back home?

"I don't think we have food holidays except for Christmas," said Niamh.

Lisa said the closest thing to it in Germany are celebrations at Easter and Christmas.

The two said they were aware of the Thanksgiving tradition and its origins mainly from watching American movies.

"I had an idea of it," said Niamh. "I knew it was the first meal between the Indians and the settlers. ... I just like the fact that you give thanks for what you have because most cultures don't do that."

Lisa said she had very much looked forward to experiencing an American Thanksgiving.

"I think it's good to remember these things," she said.

Leevy said she enjoys sharing an American experience with exchange students like these two.

"These girls will always be my daughters," she said.

According to Leevy, hosting exchange students is a two-way experience that enriches everyone.

For more information about the program, she can be reached at the EF Foundation for Foreign Study: www.effoundation.org or 360-3184.

Police: Letter Supports Suspicion that Boise Man's Disappearance Was Foul Play

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • After receiving an anonymous letter, police are again asking anyone who has information about the disappearance of Ahren "Benji" Barnard to come forward and help solve the mystery. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by Crime Stoppers for information that helps solve the case.

Barnard was last seen Dec. 4, 2004, at the McDonald's restaurant at South Cole Road and West Overland Road in Boise.

According to a website dedicated to finding Barnard, Ahren disappeared on that Saturday evening after he had dropped off his son with his mother and returned home. He had plans and was going to pick up his son the next morning to continue their weekend visitation, according to an ac-

His last phone call was at 7:15 p.m. when he talked with his roommate. He has not been seen since, but his cars were left in the driveway of his home on Sunderland Drive in Boise. His cell phone, drivers license and passport were left behind.

Barnard was a gun dealer and often attended gun shows, according to police. He also has worked as a deejay in strip clubs and is known to carry weapons, police said.

Sgt. Mark Barnett of the Boise Police Violent Crimes Unit said in a press release Monday that mounting information has led investigators to believe that Barnard met with foul play. Detectives are following new leads provided by the anonymous letter they received; the contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Time has not helped Barnard's family heal, Ahren's mother told police.

"In reality, it's just the opposite," said Vicki Barnard of Portland. "It only gets harder to cling to hope, hope that someday we'll know what happened and where Ahren is."

Vicki Barnard had previously told the Idaho Statesman that she believed foul play was involved because Ahren had a young son that he would not have left behind.

"He's a beautiful little boy and he loved his daddy," Vicki Barnard told the Statesman. "I miss him."

Lamar Advertising has again donated space on several digital billboards around the Treasure Valley to raise awareness that police still need help to solve the case.

Barnard, who was born in 1969, has dark hair that is frosted blond on the top. He is 5-foot-10, 180 pounds, has brown eyes and a scar on his left arm. He may have a mustache or goatee. He was last seen wearing jeans and a leather jacket.

Anyone with information is asked to call Crime Stoppers at 343-COPS (2677), log onto www.343cops.com, or text CRIMES or 274637 (subject: Tip236).

Post Falls Police Take Crime Reports Via Texting

POST FALLS (AP) • Crime fighting in Post Falls is going high-tech.

Dispatchers in the northern Idaho city of about 26,000 people are taking crime reports via text and email at crimes@pfpd.us. The messages display on a computer screen at the 911 center.

The system is not intended to replace 911 in case of an emergency, but officials say texting or emailing crime reports could be useful for the hearing impaired or if a person can't speak for any reason during a crime.

"We are just looking for new ways to get information to solve and reduce crime," Police Chief Scot Haug told the Coeur d'Alene Press for a story published Monday.

Charlene Holbrook, emergency communication supervisor, said the hope is the system will get younger people involved in crime prevention.

"Texting allows them a method of communication with which most teens are comfortable," Holbrook said. "Texting was the next logical step for us."

The department already accepts anonymous tips on its website at <http://www.postfalls-police.com>.

After a text message is received, a dispatcher will gather further information from the reporting party and dispatch an officer, if needed. Officers also will be able to view the information from laptops in their patrol cars.

Photos also can be sent, Holbrook said.

Officials in Kootenai County say they will see how the text-a-crime effort works in Post Falls before considering it for their own departments.

Alleged White House Shooter Is Found Fit to Stand Trial

BY BEN NUCKOLS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A man accused of firing shots at the White House in an attempt to kill President Barack Obama is competent to stand trial, according to a preliminary psychiatric screening. But federal prosecutors filed a motion Monday requesting more extensive tests in the event that his mental health becomes an issue.

An initial, 50-minute evaluation by a court-appointed psychiatrist found that Oscar Ramiro Ortega-Hernandez is competent to understand the proceedings against him and to help with his defense, according to the prosecutors' motion.

Ortega, a 21-year-old native of Idaho Falls, is accused of using an assault rifle to fire up to nine shots at the White House on the evening of Nov. 11, when Obama was out of town. He fired the shots at long range from the window of his Honda sedan, authorities said.

One bullet smashed into a window of the living quarters of the executive mansion but was stopped by ballistic glass.

Ortega is one of a handful of people ever accused of trying to assassinate the president, a charge that carries a potential life sentence. He has referred to Obama as the Antichrist and told acquaintances he "needed to kill him," court documents show.

On Monday, a federal judge granted a defense request to delay Ortega's preliminary hearing to give attorneys time to argue whether he should undergo additional screening. Ortega is due back in court Dec. 12.

12. In their motion, prosecutors said they did not dispute the finding of competency. But they argued a full psychiatric screening is warranted "given the serious nature of the criminal charges pending against the defendant and the likelihood that mental health issues may arise in the course of these proceedings."

The long-haired, bearded Ortega, wearing a blue prison jumpsuit, said "Yes, sir," during Monday's brief court appearance when asked if he understood the proceedings. He is being held without bond.

Boise Company to Demolish 100 Flood-damaged Houses in Minot

MINOT, N.D. (AP) • Crews soon will be demolishing flood-damaged homes in Minot that are beyond repair.

The Minot Daily News reports that the City Council has accepted a $1.1 million bid from Boise-based Magnum Contractors to do the work.

The contractor will demolish and remove about 100 houses that suffered the worst damage during record Souris River flooding earlier this year.

The council also approved a $31,000 contract with Minot's Main Electric to repair some flood-damaged street lights.

Powerful joint pill flying off drug store shelves

Clinical trial participants began to feel noticeable results in just days

(UMS) – Imagine a pill that can start helping you get around more easily in just a matter of days.^{1,2}

Then think about how great it would be for your joints to start feeling better too.

Well there's no reason to imagine, a team of scientists has developed an amazing joint health supplement that's been clinically shown to improve mobility and joint comfort.^{1,4}

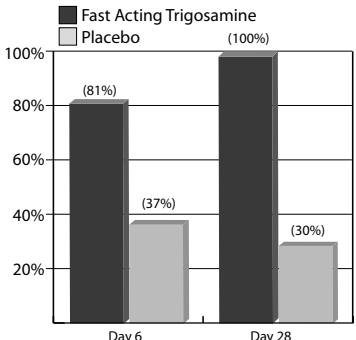

The remarkable joint health pill is called Fast Acting Trigosamine® and consumers can't seem to get enough of it.

Demand has been incredible; consumers have already purchased over 44.7 million doses and that number just keeps growing.

Why has this pill become so popular? The answer is really quite simple...because it works.

Trigosamine has been clinically shown to produce amazing results; 81% of the participants started feeling better just days after taking the recommended dosage (Figure 1) and an incredible 100% reported their joints felt better just halfway through the 8 week clinical study.^{1,2}

% Subjects that report improved joint comfort based on VAS comfort score.

"I've never seen relief from a supplement like this before," said Dr. Philip Howren.¹

"I've been practicing medicine for a long time so believe me when I tell you for people to start getting results this quickly is pretty amazing. In fact, I use this pill myself and it's become my number one recommendation to anyone who suffers with joint discomfort," added Dr. Howren.⁴

Trigosamine is currently available at just about all of the national pharmacy retailers and PatentHEALTH, the company that developed this remarkable pill, has also set up a nation-wide order line for those readers that want it shipped directly to their homes.

"We wanted to make it as easy as possible for people to get Fast Acting Trigosamine so we're going to ship it directly to people's

How Does It Work?

Fast Acting Trigosamine combines 3 powerful ingredients that can quickly start to improve joint comfort.⁴

1. HYALURONATE-13:

This remarkable compound is present in synovial fluid which lubricates the joints allowing them to slide smoothly.⁴

2. GLUCOSAMINE SULFATE-15:

Review studies show glucosamine maintains healthy cartilage in the joints by inhibiting joint destroying enzymes while also helping to build healthy cartilage.⁴

3. RAPIDFLEX FORMULA-61:

homes," said Eric Barker, Director of Marketing Operations for PatentHEALTH.

"As an added bonus, everyone that calls the national order line at 1-866-966-3179 before the 48-hour deadline expires can also qualify for a significant discount," said Barker.

"All callers have to do is give the operator the approval code of TG17416 when they call and we'll be sure they get their Trigosamine shipped right away," he said.

"We hear from our customers all the time how great this product is so I'm sure the phones are going to ring off-the-hook when people find out they can get it shipped to their front doors while also saving a lot of money. I recommend that people call right away so they don't miss out on this amazing opportunity to feel better," said Barker.

Trigosamine's formula has a special combination of ingredients that until now have never been blended into a pill. It's this special mixture that was clinically tested and is responsible for delivering the incredible results.

One of the key ingredients is Hyaluronate, which is a building block of "human joint oil" and known by medical professionals as synovial fluid.

This remarkable molecule can absorb up to 1000 times its own weight in water helping to lubricate the joints which reduces friction while acting as a "shock absorber" allowing for effortless, comfortable motion.

"Synovial fluid is part of what lets us be more active when we were younger without getting sore joints," said Dr. Howren.

"But as we age, our bodies produce less of this super-slippery fluid which can force bones and joints to grind together causing nagging discomfort," said Dr. Howren.

"Trigosamine's remarkable combination of ingredients is what makes it work so well. It's helped me and my patients to move more freely and with greater flexibility," added Howren.⁴

Trigosamine's powerful results are all supported by an Independent Review Board-approved, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled clinical study which is considered to be the "gold standard" for joint health supplements.

While no pill works for everyone, during this clinical trial every one of the participants that took this amazing supplement reported an improvement in their joint comfort. The data also shows that their joint comfort kept improving the entire time they were taking Trigosamine during the clinical study.^{1,4}

On the other hand, the clinical participants taking the placebo pill experienced very different results. These individuals reported increased joint discomfort and soreness during the clinical study. This is the exact opposite result as compared to the participants that were taking Trigosamine. Further proof that this supplement works.^{1,4}

"In all my years of practicing medicine, I've never seen people get this type of relief from a supplement," said Dr. Howren.

"I really recommend that people try this powerful supplement... it really is pretty amazing," said Dr. Howren.

Pharmacy hits home run with diet pill that really works

Dramatic results: Clinical trial participants lose 368% more weight than with placebo

By M.J. MOORE
PatentHEALTH, staff

(Canton, OH) – After conducting years of laboratory research and clinical trials a team of scientists believe they have uncovered the secret to weight loss... it's seaweed.

That's right, seaweed.

Scientists have identified a powerful fat burning extract found in a type of seaweed known as wakame. It's the same seaweed that's been a part of Japanese and Asian diets for centuries. The remarkable "fat-burning" compound that contains this extract has been clinically shown to be a safe and effective weight and fat reducer.³

The great news for everyone wanting to lose body fat is that you don't have to start eating bowls of seaweed every day. This fat burner is now available in a diet pill supplement called SmartLEAN® and consumer demand for this diet pill is exploding.

The demand is so high that CVS has snagged all supplies intended for pharmacies nationwide. That's why those who can't get to a CVS Pharmacy must call the SmartLEAN Supply Center at 1-888-593-2170 within the next 48 hours in order to get it.

"SmartLEAN is a weight loss breakthrough because it increases metabolic rate, it burns more calories, reduces body fat and is safe. In my professional opinion it is one of the best weight loss supplements available," says Dr. Vladimir Badmaev, MD, PhD who is

Director of Scientific and Medical Affairs at Polifenoles Naturales, a leading European research and development company.^{2,3}

It's been clinically shown to produce statistically significant weight loss with most of the loss coming from the elimination of body fat.^{1,3}

Eliminates body fat

"While the science may be complicated, the explanation of what SmartLEAN does in the body is relatively simple," says Dr. Vladimir Badmaev.

"SmartLEAN triggers a process known as Thermogenesis which is an increase in metabolic activity that generates heat. This is what causes cells in a person's body to burn more calories," continued Dr. Badmaev.³

"But what really separates this new supplement from other so-called fat burners is that it accomplishes this increased energy burn without using harmful stimulants while it uses body fat as fuel. That's why people not only lose weight but they lose inches too," said Dr. Badmaev.³

"And that's what makes SmartLEAN so appealing... its ability to reduce body fat," he said.

"Too much body fat is a problem for almost every dieter; our data and the established science clearly show that SmartLEAN works to help eliminate excess body fat," added Dr. Badmaev.³

Clinical results

The human trials included a Weight Loss

Study and a Metabolic Rate Study. The participants were overweight and in both studies all participants followed a reduced calorie diet.¹ The results from these trials were tremendous.

In the Weight Loss Study participants taking SmartLEAN lost an average of 14.5 lbs which was almost 4 times more weight than those participants taking the placebo.³

People taking SmartLEAN lost an average of 368% more weight than those who were just dieting while taking a placebo pill.³

The clinicals were double-blind, placebo controlled and randomized which is considered to be the "gold standard" of clinical trial design for dietary supplements.

The Metabolic Rate Study measured energy use (calorie burn) and it produced equally impressive results. Over the course of the study participants taking SmartLEAN improved their metabolic rate by an average of almost 20%; participants were burning an average of 400 more calories per day.³

Taking this supplement helps speed up a person's metabolism which leads to increased weight loss.³

"The data is very impressive and those results are compelling," said Dr. Badmaev, MD.

CVS gets first stock

Unfortunately there is a limited world-wide supply of SmartLEAN's active ingredient and as a result this diet pill is only available at CVS pharmacies.

"Right now we don't have enough inventory to fill all the retail store shelves so the only way consumers can be sure to get it today is to call the Supply Center Hotline before the 48 hour order deadline," said Darla Miller, Director of Operations for SmartLEAN.

That's why people all across the country will be running to their phones for the next 48 hours. They'll be trying to get their hands on all the SmartLEAN they can to lose weight.

"We're going to do everything humanly possible to make sure we answer all of the calls," said Chris Mayle, Manager of Call Center Operations. "We have a national toll-free number set up and extra operators are on call," added Mayle.

Starting at 8:30am EST today, the phone lines will be open for the next 48 hours. Those getting through will be taken care of on a first-come, first-served basis. ■

THE PILL THAT WORKS: SmartLEAN® is the metabolism boosting supplement that's clinically shown to help eliminate fat. Participants taking SmartLEAN lost almost 4 times more weight than with just diet alone; 72% of the weight lost came from fat.³

Here's how to get the pill that works

Weight Loss and Metabolic Rate Study participants taking SmartLEAN on average get these results:^{1,3}

Lost 368% more weight than placebo
Lost an avg. of 14.5 lbs more than placebo
Burned 400 extra calories per day
Increased metabolic rate by almost 20%

If stock at local CVS Pharmacy has been depleted, then today's readers are authorized to call the National Supply Center to get SmartLEAN.

THEIR VIEW

Updating the Hatch Act Is No-Brainer for Good Government

The following editorial appeared in Monday's Washington Post:

The Hatch Act was passed in 1939 to prevent federal workers from engaging in partisan politics. That remains an important aim, but the law needs updating in two important areas, as recommended by the Office of Special Counsel, the independent agency that enforces the act. The draft legislation proposed by Special Counsel Carolyn N. Lerner fits on a single page. Congress should take up these changes and write them into law in time for the next election.

First, the statute sweeps too broadly. It applies not only to federal workers but to state and local government employees whose work is financed, even in part, by federal loans or grants, and it prohibits them from running in partisan elections. Thus, a Pennsylvania police officer was deemed ineligible to run for the local school board because his canine partner, a black Labrador, was connected to funding from the Department of Homeland Security. This is silly. It turns the Hatch Act from a useful mechanism to keep partisanship out of government employment into a political weapon that can be wielded by one candidate in a race to disqualify a challenger. Meanwhile, it inundates the Office of Special Counsel with trivial inquiries and complaints — the caseload rose from 98 in fiscal year 2000 to 526 in 2010 — and interferes with a more rational allocation of limited resources.

Second, the statute's unduly draconian penalty structure is counterproductive. Under the current law, a federal worker found to have violated the Hatch Act must be terminated, unless the Merit Systems Protection Board unanimously finds that the violation does not warrant firing. In that case, the alternative is being suspended without pay for at least 30 days. As Ms. Lerner explained in a letter to Congress, "This structure is overly restrictive, can lead to unjust results and may even deter agencies from referring potential violations to OSC." A broader range of penalties, including reprimand, suspension, civil fine and reduction in grade, would be appropriate.

Ms. Lerner raises other matters for congressional review, including updating the definitions of "political activity" and "federal workplace" to deal with the rise of the Internet and social media and the advent of telecommuting. In addition, she notes that the explosion of federal grants now means that the Hatch Act covers hundreds of thousands of state and local government employees, even if the federal funds are tangential to their jobs. These topics are well worth addressing. The proposed legislation is a good-government no-brainer.

Gingrich Immigration Plan Has Some Problems

During the presidential campaign of 2000, George W. Bush was criticized by some conservatives for calling himself a "compassionate conservative." Some believed the term to be redundant.

Now we're in the middle of the 2012 presidential campaign and candidate Newt Gingrich has called for a "humane" policy on illegal immigrants. Gingrich wants illegal residents who have been in America for 25 years to stay, so as not to "separate families."

Seeking to clarify comments he made during the Republican debate on national security last week, Gingrich told Fox News, "I am for deporting all recent unattached illegals. I am for a local citizen panel to consider certification of those who have been here 25 years and have family and community (ties) and have been law abiding and taxpaying."

While I salute Gingrich's validation of "family values," there are several problems with his suggestion.

First, why 25 years? Why not 24, or 23? How about 15? What if the children are adults? If a single parent remained because of divorce or death, would that parent be deported?

Second, what is to keep the local citizen panel from being co-opted by liberal interest groups working for the Democratic Party? Gingrich's call to "...be humane in enforcing the law without giving them citizenship..." may sound good to some, but once those here illegally have been "certified," interest groups will surely lobby on their behalf for full citizenship.

Republicans should not have to prove their "compassion" by supporting a statute of limitations on lawbreakers. Instead, Republicans should present examples of immigrants who have come to America legally and built a life while obeying the law.

Gingrich is correct when he says we are not about to round up 11 million illegal immigrants, as America rounded up more than 100,000 Japanese at the start of World War II, many of them U.S. citizens. But doing nothing or granting Gingrich's proposed "path to legality" (through certification) will only draw more illegals.

In my ideal world (and some U.S. laws might have to change to accomplish it), this is what I think should be done: Illegal immigrants who have jobs, pay taxes and are law abiding can stay as temporary residents provided they are doing jobs no American citizen wants to do. An employer can prove that by advertising for a position and if no citizen applies, the illegal immigrant may be hired for a fixed period of time, after which the position must be advertised again.

The illegal immigrant should be forbidden any unemployment or welfare benefits. Medical insurance, or the cost of any care, should be provided by the employer. Immigrant children can be educated in public schools (and taught English) provided their parents pay property taxes. If an illegal immigrant is renting or living with others, he or she should pay a certain amount to defray the cost of education. If a child is born in America to illegal immigrants, that child should not automatically receive U.S. citizenship (a court ruling reinterpreting the Constitution would be required to change the automatic granting of citizenship to children of illegal immigrants born in the U.S.)

After two or three renewals of the illegal's special visa, the person must return to his or her native land for a specified period of time and then apply for re-entry.

Should the illegal immigrant desire citizenship, that person should first learn English and American history. The path ought to be rigorous so that we know the person is coming to America for more than just the goodies the U.S. government provides.

Most importantly, we must protect and secure our country's borders. Gingrich's hero, Ronald Reagan is credited with saying, "A nation that cannot control its borders is not a nation."

Something else troubles me about this debate. Why is it compassionate to suggest ways for people who have broken our laws to escape the consequences but cruel to require that they obey our laws in not entering the country illegally in the first place?

Everyone wants a better life for themselves and their children. American citizens mostly seek that better life by conforming to the law. Illegal immigrants should do the same.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CSI Band Was Sorely Missed at Basketball Game

Last weekend (Nov. 11-12), the College of Southern Idaho basketball teams kicked off the home game schedule, but as I sat in the stands, I couldn't help but notice something was different, something was missing. It wasn't until tip-off that I realized what the key missing factor was. There was no band in the stands. I was forced to provide the all too familiar song in my head instead. Bum, bum, bum — bum, bum, bum — bum, bum — faster and faster as the cadence grows. Yet the noises in my head were no comparison to the harmonious sounds of the CSI Pep Band. No drummer drumming. No pipers piping.

As Saturday's game drew on with a lackluster of energy or enthusiasm from both the crowd and the team, I couldn't help but wonder if the energy vacuum sucking the life out of the room was from the gaping hole where the band should be. There was no "Fight Song" to rally the troops. No "Tequila" for the long timeouts.

I couldn't wait till this weekend when the band would return and liven up the joint. But to my dismay, as I entered the gym the following weekend, still no Pep Band! The fans seated by me gave an explanation about "negotiations gone awry." Seriously! Do we not have enough bureaucratic garbage in Washington? Must it extend to the halls of our beloved college and rob us of our music?

Dear CSI Pep Band, please, don't let "unresolved negotiations" end a long, beloved tradition at CSI. Your fans are sorry if we have not shown you the respect and love you deserve. I'm sure you log in long hours of practice to sound so lovely each week, and surely we take that for granted. But a CSI basketball game without the Pep Band is like Fro-Yo with no sugary toppings or Thai food without the spicy stars. There's no flavor, no spunk, no pizzazz! CSI, the team, and your fans aren't the same without you. I don't know what it will take to get you back or why you are not here now. But we ask; we beg. Please, oh please, return the CSI Pep Band back to its proper place in this world, to the northeast corner of our hearts. Our team spirit won't survive the season without you. See "Bring Back CSI Pep Band" on Facebook and "Like" it if you agree!

Wandering Wolf Blazes Trail Across Oregon, Inspiring Hope and Dread

BY JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

GRANTS PASS, Ore. • A young wolf from Oregon has become a media celebrity while looking for love, tracing a zigzag path that has carried him hundreds of miles nearly to California, while his alpha male sire and a sibling that stayed home near the Idaho border are under a death warrant for killing cattle.

Backcountry lodge owner Liz Parrish thinks she locked eyes with the wolf called OR-7 on the edge of the meadow in front of her Crystalwood Lodge, on the western shore of Upper Klamath Lake, and hopes someday she will hear his howls coming out of the tall timber.

"I was stunned — it was such a huge animal," said Parrish, who has seen her share of wolves while racing dog sleds in Alaska and Minnesota. "He just stopped and stared. I stopped and stared. We had a stare-down that seemed like a long time, but was probably just a few seconds."

"He just evaporated into the trees. I stayed there awhile, hoping he might come back. He didn't."

Cattle rancher Nathan Jackson has not seen or heard the wolf, and hopes he never does.

"In this country, we worked really hard to exterminate wolves 50 years ago or so, and there was a reason," said Jackson, who ranches on the other side of Upper Klamath Lake from Parrish's lodge.

"A lot of people who don't have a direct tie to the agricultural community tend to view wolves as majestic, beautiful creatures. They don't seem so majestic and beautiful when they are ripping apart calves and colts."

Last February, OR-7 was in a snowy canyon in northeastern Oregon, when a state biologist shot him with a tranquilizer dart from a helicopter, then fitted him with a tracking collar and blue ear tags. State biologists have been able to chart his journey from GPS positions transmitted from the collar. They show he has traveled 730 miles on his meandering route, getting as far as 320 miles from home. And each time he crosses a county line, OR-7 makes it into the newspapers and on TV news.

The conservation group Oregon Wild has begun a contest to give OR-7 a different name, hoping to make him too famous to be shot, either by a poacher, rancher or government hunter. One entry came from as far away as Finland. The first came from a little girl in OR-7's home territory of Wallowa County, who suggested

"Whoseafraida."

OR-7 set out on his trek on Sept. 10, just before state wildlife officials issued a death warrant for members of his Imnaha pack for killing cattle. The kill order specifically mentions OR-7's father, the alpha male, and one younger wolf with no collar. Since OR-7 and two siblings took off, that would leave his mother and one pup.

The department reports a government hunter had a shot but missed, and did not get another before conservation groups won a stay of the kill order while their legal challenge is settled by the Oregon Court of Appeals.

Wolves started moving into Oregon from Idaho in the late 1990s, from packs introduced into the Northern Rockies as part of a federal endangered species restoration program. From trail cameras, radio tracking collar data, and sightings, Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife figures the state has at least 23 wolves. All four packs are in the northeastern corner of the state. Two produced pups this year.

Federal protection for wolves was lifted in Eastern Oregon, but they remain under state protection. West of Interstate 97 they are back under federal protection.

When wolves reach about 2 years old, they typically strike out on their own, looking for a mate and an empty territory they can call their own. And that's what OR-7 has done.

He's trekked across mountains, deserts and major highways from his pack's turf.

Once in the Cascade Range, OR-7 meandered through the Rogue-Umpqua Divide, where Oregon's last known wolf was shot by a bounty hunter in 1946. He skirted Crater Lake National Park, and dropped down to the flatlands near Upper Klamath Lake, climbed back up in the Cascades, and crossed over the crest south of Mount McLaughlin, a snow-capped volcano visible from Interstate 5.

So far there have been no reports of cattle killing along his path.

Russ Morgan, the wolf coordinator for the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, has been surprised by the way the public has embraced the wandering wolf. Much of Morgan's time is spent on a more difficult task, trying to build acceptance among ranchers.

"With all that's going on right now with management of wolves in Oregon, this is kind of a different side that people across the state have taken a shine to," Morgan said.

OR-7's travels are not unusual, said Ed Bangs, the retired U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service wolf coordinator for the Northern Rockies. A female from Montana headed south through Wyoming, crossed southeastern Idaho, dropped down to Utah, crossed northern Colorado, and headed back up to Wyoming, where she ate poison and died.

"If you connect all the dots, she walked something like 3,000 miles," said Bangs. "Wolves are amazing travelers."

And patient. One male hung out four years in Idaho, howling and leaving scent markers, before a female found him, Bangs said. They established a pack, and the male lived to the near-record age of 13 before lying down and dying next to a dead elk.

Bangs said most of the wanderers become biological dead ends, but even if OR-7 dies alone, the trail of scent posts he has left will be followed by others.

And OR-7 already may have company. Tracks and sightings from last winter indicated other wolves made it to the Cascades. Parrish spotted a track last May in a muddy area of her meadow.

Appeals Court Says School's Search of Student's Car OK

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho Court of Appeals says a Boise high school student's rights were not violated when school officials decided to search his car for tobacco products.

An assistant principal said Joseph Voss Jr., 18, was at school smelling of cigarette smoke, according to court documents. The school has rules barring tobacco products on campus.

An on-campus police officer searched Voss' vehicle and found a marijuana pipe and brass knuckles inside. Voss was charged with misdemeanor drug and weapon violations.

In his arguments to the Idaho Court of Appeals, Voss said the search never should have happened because at age 18, Voss was legally able to buy and use tobacco products. His attorneys argued that the school's policy prohibiting an adult student's possession of tobacco on school grounds was flawed.

But in a ruling handed down last week, the appellate court disagreed, saying the policy was rational and properly applied.

In his appeal, Voss attorney John Meienhofer contended that the policy shouldn't be applied in a way that prohibits the possession of cigarettes in an adult student's car.

"An unreasonable search of a child can result, at worst, in a juvenile court involvement. An unreasonable search of an adult student brings about the involvement of the adult criminal justice system, which may follow him the rest of his life," Meienhofer said in court documents.

But prosecutors noted that the tobacco policy was applied to all students at the school, including 18-year-olds.

The appellate court found the school was justified in deciding to search and that the search was reasonably related in scope to the circumstances.

Schools have an interest in swiftly enforcing the policies that maintain the order and safety of the educational atmosphere, the court noted — and so schoolyard searches are held to a different standard than other searches.

"As such, the assistant principal could justify the search of Voss's vehicles on school grounds based solely on reasonable suspicion that Voss was in possession of tobacco in violation of school policy — even if it would not otherwise constitute a crime," Judge Sergio Gutierrez wrote for the unanimous three-judge panel.

The ban on tobacco products wasn't arbitrary, since most high school students are underage and can't legally possess tobacco, the court found, so the rule was rational.

Former Teacher Sentenced for 'Sexting' Student

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • A former Idaho Falls high school teacher who pleaded guilty to sending sexually explicit text messages and photos to a 16-year-old girl faces 75 days in jail.

KIFI-TV reports 43-year-old Gerald Tom Williams was sentenced Monday for sexual battery of a minor.

Seventh District Court Judge Dane Watkins sentenced Williams to 75 days in jail and 10 years of probation. He can do work release after the first 30 days of his sentence. He must register as a sex offender and pay fines and court costs.

On Aug. 11, the girl's mother told police her daughter was receiving pornographic images on her cellphone.

New Coeur d'Alene Councilmen Debate Fate of City's URA

The City Council may have its hands tied as far as “exercising oversight” on the local urban renewal agency.

BY TOM HASSLINGER
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • Steve Adams says he could explore one legal avenue to shut down the city of Coeur d'Alene's urban renewal board.

The city council-elect, set to take his seat in January, said in interviews he could make a motion to disband Lake City Development Corp., the city's urban renewal agency, and have the council fill its shoes — a legally possible route.

While urban renewal law allows cities to take over their urban renewal boards, Adams said he realizes the motion doesn't have much of a chance of getting off the ground, at least not in the immediate future.

“It's definitely an interest,” said Adams, who believes Idaho urban renewal law is unconstitutional. “But being in the minority, it would likely never happen.”

Nevertheless, the urban renewal critic also called the idea of having the City Council take over “very appealing.”

Yet Dan Gookin, the other council-elect who campaigned on urban renewal oversight, called disbanding the board a “doomsday” option.

He prefers the city rewrite the urban renewal board's district spending plans — the city-adopted ordinances that outline LCDC's spending goals in each of its urban renewal districts — another legally possible avenue a city council could explore.

Other than those options, the City Council may have its hands tied as far as “exercising oversight” on the local urban renewal agency. That's because the Idaho Supreme Court views them as separate legal entities, and the urban renewal board, for the most part, governs itself.

“They're definitely designed and viewed by the Supreme Court as a separate legal entity,” said Danielle Quade, LCDC attorney.

That separation was upheld by the Idaho Supreme Court 2009 decision, Rexburg v. Hart.

But Gookin and Adams spoke in interviews the last few weeks about what options they'd be interested in pursuing. Both pledged oversight of the agency while campaigning for council.

Gookin said LCDC's plans don't specify exactly where and what will be spent in the life of the district.

For example, the plans, which were adopted when the districts were formed, don't say a library will be built in 2006 off Mullan Avenue or McEuen Field will get $5 million in 2013. Instead, the plans present “a process and basic framework within which specific plans will be presented,” as the River District Plan states.

Worded that way gives the agency leeway to explore different redevelopment opportunities as they arise, said Tony Berns, LCDC executive director. It also doesn't handcuff the agency to plans that may fall through.

“The benefits of broadly worded plans provide the LCDC the flexibility and latitude to adjust to ever changing economic and community times,” Berns said in an email to The Press. “For example, there is no way to have predicted the economic collapse that occurred in 2008.”

Gookin said the agency is in charge of too much money not to be more precise with the plans.

Adding the money LCDC has already spent to all of its future revenues inside both of its districts based on current rates, the agency could be in charge of allocating $92 million before it expires in 2027, according to figures shared by Berns.

“The last word I want to hear with that kind of dollar figure is ‘flexible,’” Gookin said.

It may be difficult, however, to change the spending plan.

The City Council does have authority over its ordinances, but in the case of urban renewal, changes to the plans could affect the agency's financial obligations with third parties, since those districts are the sources of the agency's property tax increment financing.

That means with so many third parties and contracts already in place, changing the plans, no matter how slight, could be a legal quagmire, Quade said.

Any tweak to the plan has to go through the public hearing process too, so if different opportunities arise and need to be written in, the process could bog it down.

But as far as exercising oversight — which was a promise made on the campaign trail — city council members can do only so much.

Councils vote on new agency members after the mayor appoints them, but can't mandate urban renewal boards do anything. Councils can also fire a board member, but only for “inefficiency or neglect of duty or misconduct in office,” and after due process hearings, according to statutes.

Gookin said a better example of oversight may be more interaction in the public format between the city and LCDC.

“Oversight is not control, oversight is just that feedback,” Gookin said. “I'm going to ask a question (of the agency) in public, and I'm going to receive an answer in public.”

Berns said the working relationship between the city and LCDC has been a positive one, offering projects like the library and Kroc Community Center as proof. The idea of having the City Council take over the agency's duties is “ill-conceived,” he said.

Boise to Move Some Meetings to Capitol

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Boise City Hall will undergo building upgrades beginning in December. Regular meetings, including council meetings, will move to the State Capitol beginning with the meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday. It will take place in the public auditorium in the Capitol's West Wing.

Other groups meeting in the Capitol are the Planning and Zoning Commission, 6 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5; Historic Preservation Commission, 6 p.m. every fourth Monday, starting this week; Design Review Committee, 6 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning Dec. 14.

Noon council meetings, held the fourth Tuesday of the month, along with council work sessions, will still be at City Hall.

Since construction work will take place at night, all services and departments will remain at City Hall during the renovation.

This is the first phase of the six-year project that will bring City Hall up to current seismic and fire codes. The upgrades are expected to take about a year.

Ginger White poses Monday near Dunwoody, Ga.

Woman Alleges Long Affair With Cain

Candidate's lawyer issues public statement that suggests that the media has no business snooping into the details of consensual conduct between adults.

BY RAY HENRY and HENRY C. JACKSON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • In an explosive allegation, a Georgia woman said Monday she and Republican presidential hopeful Herman Cain had a 13-year extramarital affair that lasted nearly until the former businessman announced his candidacy for the White House several months ago.

"Here we go again. I didn't do anything wrong," Cain said in a pre-emptive denial that lumped a detailed claim of a consensual affair in with earlier allegations of sexual harassment.

But the woman, Ginger White, said in an interview with Fox 5 Atlanta that over the years, Cain bought her airplane tickets so she could join him in cities as far-flung as Palm Springs, Calif., and Atlanta.

"It was fun," the 46-year-old White said. "It was something that took me away from my humdrum life at the time. And it was exciting."

Although Cain flatly denied the affair, his lawyer issued a public statement that included no such denial and suggested that the media — and the public — had no business snooping into the details of consensual conduct between adults.

After the initial report and Cain's denial, White told The Associated Press that Cain was not being truthful when he said there had been no affair.

"That would be false," White said. "What I said in the interview was true."

Cain's candidacy was soaring in the polls until he was hit less than a month ago with accusations that he sexually harassed several women and groped one while he was a high-ranking official at the National Restaurant Association. He has since fallen back in the public opinion surveys, and been eclipsed by former House Speaker Newt Gingrich in the race to emerge as the principal conservative alternative to Mitt Romney.

NY Judge Rejects $285M SEC-Citigroup Agreement.
A judge on Monday used unusually harsh language to strike down a $285 million settlement between Citigroup and the Securities and Exchange Commission over toxic mortgage securities, saying he couldn't tell whether the deal was fair and criticizing regulators for shielding the public from details of the firm's wrongdoing. U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff said the public has a right to know what happens in cases that touch on "the transparency of financial markets whose gyrations have so depressed our economy and debilitated our lives."

Rep. Barney Frank Announces Retirement

NEWTON, Mass. • Democratic Rep. Barney Frank, a gay pioneer in Congress and a Massachusetts liberal whose name and fingerprints are on last year's sweeping bill regulating Wall Street, announced plans Monday to retire at the end of his current term, his 16th in Congress. "There are other things I would like to do with my life," the 71-year-old lawmaker said at a news conference. He added that his retirement plans were hastened by two years by reapportionment, which moved 325,000 new constituents into his district.

Egyptians Vote for First Time Since Spring Uprising

Voting begins in Egypt's first parliamentary elections since longtime authoritarian leader Hosni Mubarak was ousted in a popular uprising — a milestone vote that many Egyptians hope will usher in a democratic age after decades of dictatorship.

BY HAMZA HENDAWI and MAGGIE MICHAEL
Associated Press

CAIRO • Egyptians cast aside worries over a new wave of unrest and waited patiently and peacefully in long lines Monday to vote in the first parliamentary elections since Hosni Mubarak's ouster, determined to reap the fruits of their uprising and have their choices count after decades of rigged polls.

The vote is expected to be the fairest and cleanest in living memory and more than anything else, it will serve as a litmus test of whether Egypt will go down a more Islamic path as other countries swept up in Arab Spring uprisings have done.

"I have hope this time," said Amal Fathy, a 50-year-old government employee who wears the Islamic veil, as she patiently waited in Cairo to vote. "I may not live long enough to see change, but my grandchildren will."

Since the uprising that forced Mubarak out nearly 10 months ago, Egyptians had looked forward to this day in expectation of a celebration of freedom after years of stifling dictatorship.

But deep disappointment with the military rulers who replaced the old regime and a new wave of protests and clashes that began 10 days ago left the country deeply polarized and uncertain about the future by the eve of the election.

UN: Syrian Forces Killed, Tortured 256 Children

BY ZEINA KARAM and JOHN HEILPRIN
Associated Press

BEIRUT • A U.N. investigation concluded Monday that Syrian forces committed crimes against humanity by killing and torturing hundreds of children, including a 2-year-old girl reportedly shot to death so she wouldn't grow up to be a demonstrator.

The inquiry added to mounting international pressure on President Bashar Assad, a day after the Arab League approved sweeping sanctions to push his embattled regime to end the violence. Syria's foreign minister called the Arab move "a declaration of economic war" and warned of retaliation.

The report by a U.N. Human Rights Council panel found that at least 256 children were killed by government forces between mid-March and early November, some of them tortured to death.

"Torture was applied equally to adults and children," said the assessment, released in Geneva. "Numerous testimonies indicated that boys were subjected to sexual torture in places of detention in front of adult men."

The U.N. defines a child as anyone under the age of 18. The report was compiled by a panel of independent experts who were not allowed into Syria. However, the commission interviewed 223 victims and witnesses, including defectors from Syria's military and security forces.

The panel said government forces were given "shoot to kill" orders to crush demonstrations. Some troops "shot indiscriminately at unarmed protesters," while snipers targeted others in the upper body or head, it said.

It quoted one former soldier who said he decided to defect after witnessing an officer shoot a 2-year-old girl in Latakia, then claim he killed her so she wouldn't grow up to be a demonstrator.

More Kids Skip School Vaccinations in 8 States

BY MIKE STOBBE
Associated Press

ATLANTA • A rising number of parents in more than half of states are opting out of school shots for their kids. And in eight states, more than 1 in 20 public school kindergartners do not get all the vaccines required for attendance, an Associated Press analysis found.

That has health officials worried about possible new outbreaks of diseases that were all but stamped out.

The AP analysis found more than half of states have seen at least a slight rise in the rate of exemptions over the past five years. States with the highest exemption rates are in the West and Upper Midwest.

It's "really gotten much worse," said Mary Selecky, secretary of health for Washington state, where 6 percent of public school parents have opted out.

Rules for exemptions vary by state and can include medical, religious or — in some states — philosophical reasons.

Parents' reasons for skipping the shots vary. Some doubt that vaccines are essential. Others fear that vaccines carry their own risks. And some find it easier to check a box opting out than to get the shots and required paperwork.

Drum Major Who Died in Hazing Was 'Mr. Band'

BY GREG BLUESTEIN and CHRISTINE ARMARIO
Associated Press

LITHONIA, Ga. • Robert Champion fell in love with music at about age 6 when he saw a marching band at a parade in downtown Atlanta. So mesmerized by the festivities, he came home, took out pots and pans and started banging away like a little drummer.

His passion led him to marching bands from middle school through college. He was a drum major for the famed Marching 100 band of Florida A&M University, a group that has performed at Super Bowls, the Grammys and presidential inaugurations. The prestige brought along a "culture of hazing" and a secret world that played a role in Champion's death, his family said Monday.

"It needs to stop. The whole purpose is to put this out there and let people know there has to be a change," Champion's mother, Pam, said at a news conference.

Kansas Governor Apologizes for Staff’s Reaction to Critical Tweet

BY DAVE HELLING
McClatchy Newspapers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • The Kansas teenager who fired the tweet heard ‘round the nation says she’s ready for her life to return to normal — eventually.

But Shawnee Mission East senior Emma Sullivan said Monday she isn’t sorry she told a few dozen Twitter friends last week that Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback “sucked,” and she isn’t backing away from the media and political tsunami the message has provoked.

“I stand by the tweet,” the 18-year-old student said before a planned flight to New York for a TV appearance. “If anything, it’s opened a lot of doors for a lot of people.”

The grown-ups on the other side of Sullivan’s tangled Twitter tempest were more conciliatory. School district officials decided Monday she would not have to apologize for the message — she says she was not going to, anyway.

But Brownback said he was sorry.

“My staff overreacted to this tweet, and for that I apologize,” the Republican governor’s statement said. “Freedom of speech is among our most treasured freedoms.”

Monday’s varied reactions may mark the beginning of the end for a drama that started Thanksgiving Day, when the story went public.

While students involved in a

Youth in Government program listened to Brownback’s welcome Nov. 21, Sullivan tweeted: “Just made mean comments at gov.brownback and told him he sucked, in person #heblowsalot.” She didn’t actually make those comments and didn’t meet Brownback in Topeka; later, she said the message was part of an ongoing discussion with friends.

Hazing

On Nov. 19, after the school’s football team lost its annual game with rival Bethune-Cookman, Champion collapsed on a bus parked outside an Orlando, Fla., hotel. The 26-year-old junior had been vomiting and complained he couldn’t breathe shortly before he became unconscious.

When authorities arrived about 9:45 p.m., Champion was unresponsive. He died at a nearby hospital.

Authorities have not released any more details, except to say hazing played a role. An attorney representing Champion’s family also refused to talk specifics.

“We are confident from what we’ve learned that hazing was a part of his death. We’ve got to expose this culture and eradicate it,” Christopher Chestnut said. “There’s a pattern and practice of covering up this culture.”

Since Champion’s death, the school has shuttered the marching band and the rest of the music department’s performances. The longtime band director, Julian White, was fired.

The college also announced an independent review led by a former state attorney general and an ex-local police chief in Tallahassee, where the historically black college is based.

White, who believes he was unfairly dismissed, said Monday he had suspended 26 band members for hazing two weeks before Champion died.

He took heat for the decision, particularly from the parents of band members, and said the punishments were like suspending star football players.

“And so the band members were apprehensive. ‘Doc, you think we can go without 19 trombone players?’” White said at a Tallahassee news conference. “And other folks. ‘Doc, do you think you can do it without them?’ My comment was, it doesn’t matter, I am not going to sacrifice the performance for the principle.”

Hazing has a long history in marching bands, particularly at historically black colleges, where a spot in the band is coveted for its tradition and prominence. Band performances are sometimes revered as much as the school’s sports teams.

Cain

At her apartment in Dunwoody, Ga., White declined to elaborate on her statements during a brief interview with the AP. “I can’t make any comment on this,” she said. “We’re trying to be slightly sensitive.”

In its report, the television station said White had Cain’s name in her cell phone contacts, and when its reporter sent a text message to the number, he called right back.

“He told us he knew ‘Ginger White’ but said he was trying to help her financially,” the station said.

In a written statement released immediately after the story aired, Cain’s campaign said detractors were trying to “derail the Cain Train with more accusations of past events that never happened.”

Later, at a fundraiser in the Virginia suburbs of Washington, D.C., Cain avoided reporters’ questions.

In his initial denial, televised on CNN, Cain vowed to remain in the presidential race, as long as he has the support of his wife, with whom he said he had discussed the most recent allegation.

In her interview, White said she decided to come forward after seeing Cain attack his other accusers in an appearance on television.

“It bothered me that they were being demonized, sort of, and being treated as if they were automatically lying, and the burden of proof was on them,” she said. “I felt bad for them.”

White told the Atlanta TV station she expects to be scrutinized by Cain and the media. Georgia court records show a series of judgments against White for not paying rent in Atlanta area apartments, including one filed about two weeks ago.

Egypt

Many harbor deep doubts about whether elections held under military rule will really set the country on a path of democracy. Protesters who kept up their vigil in Cairo’s Tahrir Square throughout election day are demanding the ruling generals immediately hand power to a civilian authority, and accuse them of bungling the transition and attempting to cling to power.

The parliament that emerges may have little relevance because the military is sharply limiting its powers, and it may only serve for several months. However, the election will give the clearest picture in decades of the real strength of the various political forces in this nation of 85 million.

Adding to the disarray, the multi-phase election process, which will stretch over months, is extremely complicated. And some of the key political players claimed they just did not have enough time, or the right conditions, to organize for the vote.

There was no dancing in the streets, and no jubilation. But the mood in Egypt was hopeful, and even defiant — with many determined to either push the military from power or keep Islamist groups expected to dominate the vote in check.

School Shots

Still others are ambivalent, believing in older vaccines but questioning newer shots against, say, chickenpox.

The number of shots is also giving some parents pause. By the time most children are 6, they will have been stuck with a needle about two dozen times — with many of those shots given in infancy. The cumulative effect of all those shots has not been studied enough, some parents say.

“Many of the vaccines are unnecessary, and public health officials don’t honestly know” the effects of giving so many vaccines to such small children, said Jennifer Margulis, a mother of four and parenting book author in Ashland, Ore., a small liberal community that has unusually high vaccination exemption rates.

But few serious problems have turned up over years of vaccinations, and several studies have shown no link between vaccines and autism, a theory from the 1990s that has been widely discredited.

To be sure, childhood vaccination rates remain high overall, at 90 percent or better for several vaccines, including those for polio, measles, hepatitis B and chickenpox. In many states, exemptions are filed for fewer than 1 percent of children entering school for the first time.

Health officials have not identified an exemption threshold that would likely lead to outbreaks. But they worry when some states have exemption rates climbing beyond 5 percent. The average state exemption rate has been estimated at less than half that.

Even more troubling are pockets in some states where exemption rates are much higher. In some rural counties in northeast Washington, for example, vaccination exemption rates in recent years have been above 20 percent and even as high as 50 percent.

“Vaccine refusers tend to cluster,” said Saad Omer, an Emory University epidemiologist who has done extensive research on the issue.

Parents who let their kids skip some vaccines put others at risk, health officials say. Because no vaccine is completely effective, if an outbreak begins in an unvaccinated group of children, a vaccinated child may still be at some risk of getting sick.

Studies have found that measles has suddenly re-emerged in some communities with higher exemption rates. Vaccinated kids are sometimes among the cases, or children too young to be vaccinated.

And measles isn’t the only risk. Last year, California had more than 2,100 whooping cough cases, and 10 infants died. Only one had received a first dose of vaccine.

“Your child’s risk of getting disease depends on what your neighbors do,” Omer said.

While it seems unlikely that diseases like polio and diphtheria could make a comeback in the U.S., immunization expert Dr. Lance Rodewald says it’s not impossible.

“Polio can come back. China was polio-free for two decades, and just this year, they were infected from Pakistan. And there is a big outbreak of polio in China now. The same could happen here,” Rodewald, of the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said in an email.

He cited outbreaks of Hib, a disease that can lead to meningitis, among the Amish who don’t consistently vaccinate their children. Russia had a huge diphtheria outbreak in the early to mid-1990s, he said, because vaccine coverage declined.

For its review, the AP asked state health departments for kindergarten exemption rates for 2006-07 and 2010-11. The AP also looked at data states had previously reported to the federal government. (Most states do not have data for the current 2011-12 school year.)

Alaska had the highest exemption rate in 2010-11, at nearly 9 percent. Colorado’s rate was 7 percent, Minnesota 6.5 percent, Vermont and Washington 6 percent, and Oregon, Michigan and Illinois were close behind.

EXPECT PERFORMANCE AND DURABILITY LIKE NO OTHER.

Having the highest strength-to-weight ratio in the industry isn’t an accident. It starts with high-tensile steel that provides an unmatched combination of high strength with lighter weight. Then our engineers create innovations like our single leg tower, a wider tower base than the leading competitive machines and up to 6,000 pounds of overall system weight savings for performance that is second to none.

Stalin's Daughter Lana Peters Dies at 85

BY SCOTT BAUER

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. • Soviet dictator Josef Stalin's daughter, whose defection to the West during the Cold War embarrassed the ruling communists and made her a best-selling author, has died. She was 85.

Lana Peters — who was known internationally by her previous name, Svetlana Alliluyeva — died of colon cancer Nov. 22 in Wisconsin, where she lived off and on after becoming a U.S. citizen, Richland County Coroner Mary Turner said Monday.

Her defection in 1967 — which she said was partly motivated by the poor treatment of her late husband, Brijesh Singh, by Soviet authorities — caused an international furor and was a public relations coup for the U.S. But Peters, who left behind two children, said her identity involved more than just switching from one side to the other in the Cold War. She even moved back to the Soviet Union in the 1980s, only to return to the U.S. more than a year later.

When she left the Soviet Union in 1966 for India, she planned to leave the ashes of her late third husband, an Indian citizen, and return. Instead, she walked unannounced into the U.S. embassy in New Delhi and asked for political asylum. After a brief stay in Switzerland, she flew to the U.S.

Peters carried with her a memoir she had written in 1963 about her life in Russia. "Twenty Letters to a Friend" was published within months of her arrival in the U.S. and became a best-seller.

Upon her arrival in New York City in 1967, the 41-year-old said: "I have come here to seek the self-expression that has been denied me for so long in Russia." She said she had come to doubt the communism she was taught growing up and believed there weren't capitalists or communists, just good and bad human beings. She had also found religion and believed "it was impossible to exist without God in one's heart."

In the book, she recalled her father, who died in 1953 after ruling the nation for 29 years, as a distant and paranoid man.

"He was a very simple man. Very rude. Very cruel," Peters told the Wisconsin State Journal in a rare interview in 2010. "There was nothing in him that was complicated. He was very simple with us. He loved me and he wanted me to be with him and become an educated Marxist."

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin denounced Peters as a "morally unstable" and "sick person."

"I switched camps from the Marxists to the capitalists," she recalled in a 2007 interview for the documentary "Svetlana About Svetlana." But she said her identity was far more complex than that and never completely understood.

"People say, 'Stalin's daughter, Stalin's daughter,' meaning I'm supposed to walk around with a rifle and shoot the Americans. Or they say, 'No, she came here. She is an American citizen.' That means I'm with a bomb against the others. No, I'm neither one. I'm somewhere in between. That 'somewhere in between' they can't understand."

Stocks Soar on Big Shopping Weekend, Europe

NEW YORK (AP) • A strong start to the U.S. shopping season and new hope for a far-reaching solution to Europe's debt crisis sent stocks sharply higher. Retail stocks jumped Monday after a record number of shoppers bought gifts over Thanksgiving weekend, a make-or-break time for many retailers. For the past six years, Black Friday has been the biggest retail sales day of the year. The Dow Jones industrial average jumped 291 points, or 2.6 percent, to 11,523. The S&P 500 rose 34, or 2.9 percent, to 1,193. The Nasdaq composite rose 86, or 3.5 percent, to 2,527.

NY Judge Rejects $285M SEC-Citigroup Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) • A federal judge on Monday used unusually harsh language to strike down a $285 million settlement between Citigroup and the Securities and Exchange Commission, saying he couldn't tell whether the deal was fair and criticizing regulators for shielding the public from the details of what the firm did wrong. U.S. District Judge Jed Rakoff said the public has a right to know what happens in cases that touch on "the transparency of financial markets whose gyrations have so depressed our economy and debilitated our lives." Rakoff said he spent hours trying to assess the settlement but concluded he had not been given "any proven or admitted facts upon which to exercise even a modest degree of independent judgment."

Snapping Up Cyber Monday Deals

BY MAE ANDERSON

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Shoppers seem to be just as enthusiastic about shopping on their computers and smartphones on Cyber Monday as they were about finding deals over the weekend.

Online sales on Cyber Monday, which was started in 2005 by a retail trade group to encourage Americans to shop online on the Monday after Thanksgiving, were up mid-afternoon by 15 percent from a year ago, according to data from IBM Benchmark. Meanwhile, sales from mobile devices were up 7.4 percent. The group did not give dollar amounts.

The Cyber Monday numbers point to Americans' growing comfort with using their personal computers, tablets and smartphones to shop. Over the past few years, big chains like Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the world's largest retailer, have been offering more and better incentives like hourly deals and free shipping, to capitalize on that trend. It's important for retailers to make a good showing during the holiday shopping season, a time when they can make up to

Not the Only Name Game in Town

PORTLAND, Ore. • Cyber Monday. Green Tuesday. Black Friday. Magenta Saturday.

Chances are you won't find any of these holidays on your calendar. Yet retailers are coming up with names for just about every day of the week during the holiday shopping season.

During T-Mobile's "Magenta Saturday," the event named for the company's pinkish-purple logo earlier this month offered shoppers the chance to buy cellphones and some tablets on a layaway plan. Mattel lured customers in with discounts of 60 percent off toys for girls and boys on "Pink Friday" and "Blue Friday." And outdoor retailer Gander Mountain is giving shoppers deals on camouflage and other gear every Thursday through December during "Camo Thursdays."

"There are hundreds of promotions going on this time of year," says Steve Uline, head of marketing for Gander. "We needed to do something a little bit different."

40 percent of their annual revenue.

On Monday, Amazon.com offered its bigger, more expensive Kindle DX for $259, or $120 off the regular price. The Express clothing chain was giving 30 percent off and free shipping on all online orders. And Wal-Mart, which has been calling the holiday "Cyber Week" in ads, was offering an LG 47-inch LED TV for $879, or $320 off the regular price.

"Cyber Monday is far more exciting to me than Black Friday," says Jamie Minoso, a 40-year-old English teacher from Alabama. "I do not enjoy the traffic and chaos involved in shopping at a mall."

To be sure, the strong start to Cyber Monday, created by a unit of The National Retail Federation, follows an even stronger kickoff to the holiday shopping season over the weekend. Americans shopped in record numbers, driven by earlier store openings and a push by retailers for online sales.

Anderson, Stevens Elected to ICA Board

Also, Jared Brackett of Rogerson was elected as ICA vice president.

Board members and officers were elected during the Nov. 14-16 annual ICA Convention and Trade Show, held at Sun Valley Resort. ICA works on behalf of more than 10,000 cattle producers in Idaho and has a membership of nearly 1,000.

In 1864, a Colorado militia killed at least 150 peaceful Cheyenne Indians in the Sand Creek Massacre.

In 1910, British explorer Robert F. Scott's ship Terra Nova set sail from New Zealand, carrying Scott's expedition on its ultimately futile — as well as fatal — race to reach the South Pole first.

In 1924, Italian composer Giacomo Puccini died in Brussels before he could complete his opera "Turandot." (It was finished by Franco Alfano.)

In 1929, Navy Lt. Cmdr. Richard E. Byrd, pilot Bernt Balchen, radio operator Harold June and photographer Ashley McKinney made the first airplane flight over the South Pole.

In 1947, the U.N. General Assembly passed a resolution calling for the partitioning of Palestine between Arabs and Jews.

In 1967, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced he was leaving the Johnson administration to become president of the World Bank.

In 1981, actress Natalie Wood drowned in a boating accident off Santa Catalina Island, Calif., at age 43.

In 1986, actor Cary Grant died in Davenport, Iowa, at age 82.

In 1991, 17 people were killed in a 164-vehicle pile-up during a dust storm on Interstate 5 near Coalinga, Calif. Actor Ralph Bellamy died in Santa Monica, Calif., at age 87.

Ten years ago: George Harrison, the "quiet Beatle," died in Los Angeles following a battle with cancer; he was 58. "A Separate Peace" author John Knowles died in Florida at age 75. The U.N. Security Council unanimously approved a resolution extending the world body's humanitarian program in Iraq and setting the stage for an overhaul of U.N. sanctions against Baghdad the following year.

Five years ago: The first of two high-profile meetings in Jordan between President Bush and Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki was abruptly postponed amid conflicting explanations. (Bush met al-Maliki the next day.) Still losing money after job and factory cuts, Ford Motor Co. said 38,000 workers, almost half of its hourly production force, had accepted buyouts or early retirement offers.

One year ago: An Afghan border policeman killed six American servicemen during a training mission in a remote area near the Pakistani border. Iran's president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, admitted for the first time that a computer worm had affected centrifuges in Iran's uranium enrichment program. Climate negotiators began a two-week conference in Cancun. Former New York congressman Stephen J. Solarz, 70, died in Washington, D.C.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Much noise and little wool," said the devil when he sheared a pig."

— English proverb

The three little pigs have taken to duplicate bridge — I'd say like ducks to water, if that didn't paint a disturbing zoological image. All three piglets sat East at their various tables, defending four hearts, and the three Wests all led their singleton diamond. The first little pig — accustomed to straw houses — won the diamond lead, cashed the diamond ace and gave his partner a ruff. He was hoping his partner would have an ace to cash. Not bad, but declarer's slow spade loser went away on the established diamond.

The second little pig, who had constructed a house from twigs, saw the danger if dummy's diamonds were established. He did not cash the diamond ace, but gave his partner the ruff by leading back a low diamond at trick two — a very nice play, you might think. So it was, but West did not know what to do next. He guessed to play a club through dummy's ace. Declarer won, drew trumps, then knocked out the diamond ace in comfort.

The little pig who preferred solid housing also shifted to a diamond at trick two, but he thoughtfully gave suit preference by returning the diamond nine. He knew his partner would cash an ace if he had one, and if West had the club king, declarer would be able to pitch a club loser on his spades.

West took his ruff and played a spade, and declarer could not avoid a further spade and diamond loser.

ANSWER: Your partner's double of one spade is sometimes referred to as competitive or snapdragon, or just a plain fourth-suit double. It is NOT penalties; you cannot make a low-level penalty double of the opponents in a forcing auction. The sequence suggests four or five hearts and decent values, so you should jump to three hearts to invite game.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 25 years has an annoying habit that drives me crazy.
When she starts a conversation with me, she'll speak in a very low voice and mumble without looking at me. I truly cannot hear or understand what she's saying and have to respond with,
"Excuse me?" "Pardon
me?" or "What?"

When I speak to her, I make sure I talk clearly and in a loud enough voice, but she always throws the same remarks back at me –
"Excuse me?" etc. She doesn't do this with anyone else. I have pointed out to her that what she is doing is annoying, disrespectful and rude, and asked her to please not do it, but she continues.

Why does she do this to me, and what can we do to change it? There's nothing wrong with her hearing.
She's always telling me to turn down the TV.

– MARRIED TO A MUMBLER IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR MARRIED TO A MUMBLER: Allow me to offer a suggestion that may improve the situation: Have YOUR hearing checked. If you can't hear your wife
when she speaks softly and isn't looking directly at you, and she "always" tells you to turn down the TV, it could indicate that you are suffering from a hearing loss.

DEAR
ABBY
Jeanne
Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My mother, whom I love very much, is a terrible gift-giver. At Christmas and on birthdays
she gives me ridiculous gifts
– clothing that doesn't fit,
jewelry I would never wear, electronics I haven't asked for and don't need. Last year, she removed the tags from everything and didn't include receipts so the items could be returned. (Some were very costly.)

I have created online wish lists, offered Mom "suggestions" and even told her not to worry about gifts. She'll take none of my suggestions. I try to be polite. But Mom's feelings are always hurt when I'm not
"thrilled" with the unwanted gifts, and it puts a damper on events that should be happy ones. I hate her wasting money on things that will not be appreciated or used. How do I handle this?

IF NOVEMBER 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You need to keep your nose to the proverbial grindstone until February if you wish to reap rewards in the upcoming year. You are somewhat romantic this month and might be prepared to take a quick vacation, but underneath you are brimming with ambition. Issues of trust could be briefly upsetting in late March, but keep your promises and all will run smoothly. Expect some exciting changes in May when you have a chance to be released from annoying constraints that have held you back or cramped your style. If you work hard you will have plenty of opportunities to stop and smell the roses by this time next year.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Change your tune and tune-up your outlook. If you can prove you are working for the common good, you will be seen as a hero. Innovation and ingenious solutions will win you a comforting pat on the back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Perhaps you've become the Pac-Man of the dinner table and gobbled everything up. Maybe it is time to pass up a few extra scoops of ice cream so you aren't asked to play Santa Claus.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Haste makes waste. The faster you go, the more behind you get. You might feel like the White Rabbit who was late for a very important date. You might not make headway but you can keep from slipping backwards.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tact and diplomacy are important tools to have on hand today. You might be faced by a somewhat competitive environment. At the same time, a highly charged atmosphere could trigger ingenuity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There is no defense as good as a strong offense, but no need to be offensive. It is easy to cast the blame on someone else. In the long run, it is best to make the repairs or fix whatever goes wrong yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spurn spur-of-the-moment decisions. Avoid making crucial and irrevocable judgments or accepting whatever is tossed on your plate. Remain patient and wait for better timing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You won't be content if there is contentiousness. Aim to explore something daring and original with a special someone, but make it a point to sidestep tiresome power struggles. Hang your hat at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It's a dog-eat-dog world. With everyone in a rush to be the top dog, someone is likely to end up in the doghouse. Minor setbacks and a tendency to be overly competitive may put people on the defensive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some days, you aren't sure if you should act like a man or a mouse. Irritating individuals nibble away at your positive attitude. They may discuss issues that are Swiss-cheesed with moral holes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It may not be as bad as it seems. If your loyalty is tested today, disregard suspicions and give others the benefit of the doubt. Be patient, as this period of disenchantment will end soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Ambition could tempt people to use callous methods. Tame the urge to take unfair advantage in bargaining situations. Your judgment will be far better next week so sleep on major decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put off discussions about key issues until next week when there is less chance of misunderstandings. Do your best not to offend other people working in close quarters. Do not make irrevocable decisions.

Lindsey Vonn, husband begin divorce proceedings

Lindsey Vonn will keep her married name even after splitting with her husband, Thomas Vonn.

The Olympic gold medalist skier confirmed the couple has started divorce proceedings after more than four years of marriage.

Thomas Vonn, who told The Associated Press he filed for divorce last week, will no longer have a role as her chief adviser on and off the slopes.

“This is an extremely difficult time in my personal life and I hope the media and my fans can respect my need for privacy on this matter,” she said in a statement to the AP on Sunday night.

Urban Meyer listens as Ohio State athletic director Gene Smith introduces him as the university’s new football coach, during a news conference Monday.

Meyer Returns Home to Coach Ohio State

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio • If Ohio State did not come calling, Urban Meyer says he was planning to stay away from coaching for at least another year.

Meyer, the former Florida coach and native Buckeye, was officially hired Monday by Ohio State, a program with a glittering past that has suffered through a difficult year of NCAA violations.

“If not for the coaching position at Ohio State, I would not have coached this year,” he said.

Meyer resigned as Gators

coach after last season, citing health concerns and a desire to spend more time with his family.

“A year ago in my mind I was convinced I was done coaching,” he said.

He added that he is feeling great.

“I’ve been checked out and I’m ready to go,” he said.

Meyer will become one of the highest paid coaches in college football, along with Alabama’s Nick Saban and Oklahoma’s Bob Stoops, and Texas’ Mack Brown. The school says he will receive a six-year contract

TIMES-NEWS ALL-AREA VOLLEYBALL TEAM

PETERSON’S YEAR ALMOST ROUTINE

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

There isn’t a lot about Katelyn Peterson’s volleyball exploits that haven’t already been recounted in various editions of the Times-News.

The Camas County standout is a three-time state champion and a three-time all-state tournament player. She’s dominated District IV teams at every level, and she’s been named the Times-News player of the twice.

Well, make that three times.

The two-time team captain was not only the Mushers’ best player, she was the heartbeat of the three-time reigning Class 1A Division II champions. In last month’s state tournament in Lewiston, Peterson had 99 kills in three matches, putting the finishing touches on an undefeated season, most of those wins coming in straight sets.

That on-court performance has created a platform for her in the Fairfield community. She’s active in community groups, but the lasting impact Peterson leaves may be more sporting than some would suspect.

“Whenever schools have a team that has one and then two, and starts to build on those championships, you start to see the young kids wanting to be a part of that,” said Camas County coach Shelli Schroeder. “There’s excitement about those teams in the homes of those young kids, and that’s what has happened here and she’s had such a huge part of that.”

Jim Cartisser — director at Club Canyon in Jerome, where Peterson plays club volleyball — called her “the most complete player, coming out of high school, this region has ever produced.”

She’ll take those talents to the University of Idaho next fall. Peterson committed to the Vandals earlier this year, and she’s projected to play all six rotations.

Not bad for a gigantic fish in a really small pond, albeit one that isn’t nearly as small as she found it.

“She’s a remarkable person and a remarkable athlete,” Schroeder said of Peterson. “I do firmly believe she’s given Fairfield a foundation for having a strong volleyball program because the girls know now what it is to win, and they know they can win, which is huge. So much of that is from her ability to make the wins happen and show that it’s possible.”

CSI’s Pitt Makes First Court Appearance

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

With a large, black brace on her left knee, Chelsie Pitt stepped onto the court midway through the Golden Eagles’ game against Northwest (Wyo.) College last Friday.

It marked the College of Southern Idaho debut for the 5-foot-10 freshman out of Las Vegas and the first time back on the court since tearing her ACL midway through her senior year at Bishop Gorman High School.

“I’d been out for over a year, so it was good to get back,” said Pitt, who helped lead Bishop Gorman to two state titles. “It took most of the game to get up to speed. It felt like a first game.”

Pitt played 13 minutes,

scoring nine points, grabbing three rebounds and three steals. She showed a smooth shooting stroke from outside and went 5-for-5 from the free throw line, while providing a physical toughness in the paint as starting center Chakala Carthen sat on the bench in foul trouble.

Pitt also played 13 minutes Saturday in CSI’s 72-63 loss to Miles City (Mont.) Community College, scoring six points. She failed to grab a rebound, however, and struggled defensively against the quick and athletic forwards.

“The toughest part is going to be the game situations. I’ve practiced and gone through all the drills, put shots up and done the ball handling, but I haven’t been in the game situations and it’s different in the game than doing it in practice,”

Ellis Returns to Gooding

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@magicvalley.com

Rob Ellis is returning to one of his old stomping grounds. Ellis was recently hired as the head pro at Gooding Country Club, where he worked in a similar capacity from 1988-'91. "For me, being 50 years old, it's a perfect place for me to finish out my career. I appreciate the opportunity Gooding gave me (many years ago) and it means a lot to come somewhere where there's longevity with the employees." Ellis replaces Troy Vitek, who recently became the head pro at Jerome Country Club. Ellis is also being reunited with course superintendent Kelly McIntyre, a hire Ellis had a say in some two decades ago. "It's perfect for an older guy who's been in the business a long time," Ellis said of his new job. "It's a good fit." Twin Falls duffers should remember Ellis' name, as he was the head pro at Blue Lakes Country Club from 1991-2006, before taking the same job at Desert Canyon Golf Course in Mountain Home, a job he has held for the last six years. Eliss' resume is extensive. In 1991, he was chosen as the PGA Golf Professional of the Year, Rocky Mountain section, and was twice at Blue Lakes was the PGA Merchandiser of the Year, Rocky Mountain section. He has also been an officer in the Rocky Mountain section and Snake River Chapter of the PGA. "I have had so many phone calls from a lot of friends that were at Gooding 20 years ago," Ellis said as the news of his hire spread in the local golfing community. "Gooding was probably the most fun I've ever had in any of my jobs. I'm just as excited to go back to Gooding as I was (in 1988)."

UTAH STATE ACCEPTS BID TO PLAY IN POTATO BOWL

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Utah State is heading to Idaho next month to play in the Famous Idaho Potato Bowl. University officials announced Monday the Aggies will play in the postseason game scheduled Dec. 17 at Bronco Stadium in Boise. The Aggies (6-5) became bowl eligible by beating Nevada 21-17 Saturday. They've now won four straight games and close out the regular season against New Mexico State. Their bowl opponent will be determined by the outcome of the Mid-American Conference title game. Likely candidates include Toledo and Ohio. Utah State last appeared in the postseason in 1997 when the Aggies played Cincinnati in the Humanitarian Bowl, which for 15 years was the name of the annual bowl game. Bowl executives changed the name in August in a deal with the Idaho Potato Commission.

Boise State safety named top defensive player

BOISE — Boise State safety Travis Stanaway has been honored by the Mountain West Conference for his role in the Broncos' victory Saturday over Wyoming. Stanaway was named co-defensive player of the week Monday after logging a career-best nine tackles in the 36-14 win. Stanaway also forced a fumble and intercepted a pass in his second career start. The senior was part of a defense that held the Cowboys to a season-low 191 total yards and didn't yield a touchdown until late in the fourth quarter. The Broncos (10-1, 5-1) close out their regular season Saturday at home against New Mexico.

said Pitt who has had two ACL surgeries on her left knee and meniscus surgery on her right. "Most of the rehab was making sure I come along slowly and not coming back too fast because you don't want to overplay it. It's more important to get it to full strength and it feels pretty good right now." Once she is back to full strength, Pitt and her shooting stroke should be a valuable asset to the Golden Eagles, who are averaging 66 points per game – nine less than last year – and shooting just 36 percent from the floor. "It was good to see her out there. She can knock down some shots for us and those will start to fall for her once she gets her legs back," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers. "It's not like she's coming back from a couple months away, it's been a year and half. It's going to take a while."

THIS WEEK IN THE SWAC Remember that La Jolla

(Calif.) Prep team the CSI men beat 91-75 Nov. 13? Well, Snow College beat the Waves by 50 this weekend in Salt Lake, 95-45. Connor Van Brocklin had 16 points and Brade Mears added 14. Salt Lake beat La Jolla as well and also squeaked out an 84-76 over Pro Look. The No. 10 Bruins improved to 7-0 and will play at the Snow College Tournament today and Wednesday. USU-College of Eastern Utah travelled to Rock Springs, Wyo. where it beat Central Wyoming, but lost 79-73 to Western Wyoming. Colorado Northwestern dropped a pair of games to Lamar (Colo.) and Cloud County (Kan.) in Casper, Wyo. The Colorado Northwestern women fared better than the men, beating Eastern Wyoming and Oglala Lakota (N.D.) College at a tournament in Scottsbluff, Neb. USU-College of Eastern Utah and Salt Lake both lost to Otero (Colo.) Junior College at the Bruins' home tourney and North Idaho swept Treasure Valley (Ore.) and Spokane

(Wash.) Community College. No. 18 Snow College beat Northwest (Wyo.), but lost 79-74 to Miles City (Mont.) here in Twin Falls. THE NBA IS BACK! The announcement Saturday of the end of the 149-day NBA lockout and the subsequent 66-game season slated to start Christmas Day was great news to some members of the CSI basketball program. Here are their reactions on Twitter (sic): Kylee Schierman (@Ky_Schi) "Sooo uhhs whens the first game?? #lockoutasended" Patrick Swilling (@patrickswilling) "LockOUT is OVER!!!! #NBABack" "NBA back like Bron hair line." Pierre Jackson, former CSI guard currently playing for Baylor (@Pierre-Jackson55) "Lockouts over! Ok" Josh Dees, CSI assistant coach (@joshdees_csi) "The Shortened NBA season is gonna be good for my aging Celtics. I like it."

ORLANDO, Fla. • Florida's Billy Donovan earned his 400th career coaching victory as the Gators rode a 16-point halftime lead to a 96-70 win over Stetson on Monday night.

Bradley Beal had 22 points and 10 rebounds and Erving Walker added 21 to lead the Gators (5-1) in the neutral court matchup at Amway Center. The Hatters (3-3) were led by Chris Perez with 20 points.

Stetson stayed close early on before a 23-4 Gators' run midway through the first half blew the game open. Florida relied on its outside shooting during the spurt, knocking down eight 3-pointers in the half and 14 for the game.

Louisville (6-0) scored the first eight points of the game and took a double-digit lead early in the first half, but couldn't pull away from Long Beach State (3-3) until the closing minute even though the 49ers never got closer than five points in the second half.

well," Hoatson said Monday. "These boys were members of the basketball program. Jim Boeheim's responsibility is to oversee that program, and the children were not safe on his watch."

Two former Syracuse ball boys were the first to accuse Fine, who has called the allegations "patently false." And a third man came forward last week, accusing Fine of molesting him nine years ago.

Bobby Davis, now 39, told ESPN that Fine molested him beginning in 1984 and that the sexual contact continued until Memphis was coming off a less-than-impressive performance at the Maui Invitational where they lost to Michigan and in overtime to Georgetown. It dropped the Tigers from No. 8 to No. 22 in this week's poll.

Memphis, which struggled in the first half against Jackson State, opened the second half with 15 straight points to break open the game. The Tigers would lead by as many as 31 in the second half.

His stepbrother, Mike Lang, 45, who also was a ball boy, told ESPN that Fine began molesting him while he was in fifth or sixth grade.

KENTUCKY NEW NO. 1; ST. LOUIS MAKES RARE ENTRY

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky is back at No. 1 in The Associated Press' college basketball poll for the first time since the 2009-10 season. Saint Louis is back in the Top 25 for the first time since 1993-94.

The Wildcats (6-0) replaced North Carolina, which had been No. 1 since the preseason poll, on Monday, receiving 46 first-place votes from the 65-member national media panel. The Tar Heels (5-1) dropped to fifth following their 90-80 loss to UNLV in the championship game of the Las Vegas Invitational.

Ohio State (6-0) moved up from third to second and had 17 first-place votes, while Duke (7-0), which won the EA Sports Maui Invitational, jumped from sixth to third and had the other two No. 1 votes.

Syracuse, North Carolina, Louisville, Baylor, Connecticut, Wisconsin and Florida rounded out the top 10.

UNLV (7-0) used the win over North Carolina to move in at 18th. The Runnin' Rebels were ranked for four weeks last season.

Saint Louis (6-0), which beat Boston College, Villanova and Oklahoma to win the 76 Classic, moves in at No. 23, the Billikens' first time in the poll in almost two decades.

North Carolina is at Kentucky on Saturday, a matchup that would have had No. 1 facing No. 2.

This is Kentucky's 90th week at No. 1, fourth on the all-time list behind UCLA (134), Duke (122) and North Carolina (108).

Before the one-week appearance at No. 1 in 2009-10, the Wildcats' last time on top of the rankings was the final poll of 2002-03.

Xavier moved up one place to 11th and was followed by Alabama, Missouri, Michigan, Kansas, Marquette, Pittsburgh, UNLV, Gonzaga and Vanderbilt. The last five ranked teams were Mississippi State, Memphis, Saint Louis, California and Texas A&M.

Florida State (5-2) dropped out from 22nd following losses to Harvard and Connecticut in the Battle 4 Atlantis.

Arizona (4-2) fell from No. 23 after a home loss to San Diego State.

SYRACUSE COACH BOEHEIM SILENT DAY AFTER FINE FIRED

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYRACUSE, N.Y. • Syracuse men's basketball coach Jim Boeheim ran a closed practice Monday as sex abuse victims' advocates questioned whether he should still coach following the firing of longtime assistant Bernie Fine, who has been accused of molestation by three men.

As criticism swirled about Boeheim's initial support of Fine and his verbal attacks on the accusers, the coach kept a low profile, seeking refuge in his office on the second floor of the Carmelo K. Anthony Basketball Center.

Boeheim, who had been sharply critical of the accusers, has softened his stance 10 days after an impassioned defense of Fine, who spent 35 seasons on the bench next to Boeheim and was fired Sunday.

The Rev. Robert Hoatson, president of Road to Recovery, a group that supports victims of sexual abuse, said the dismissal of Bernie Fine was appropriate but didn't go far enough.

"I think Jim Boeheim should be fired or resign as trustee Marvin Lender, class of 1963, referred all calls to Chancellor Nancy Cantor. "It's a policy, and I want to adhere to it," he said.

Calls to several other trustees seeking comment were not returned.

The allegations against Fine surfaced a week after Penn State school trustees fired Joe Paterno in the aftermath of child sex abuse charges against former defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky, who is accused in a grand jury indictment of sexually abusing eight boys over a 15-year period.
