Clark Cleveland's criminal career escalated from a handful of gun and domestic violence charges to murder in a matter of minutes. • The Spring Creek, Nev., man ran from police, shot a Utah man dead, and fired a hail of bullets upon officers while holding a female hostage in a Twin Falls hotel's stairwell the morning of July 15. Jailed since that day, Cleveland will now spend the rest of his life in prison for the murder of Tracy Ivie. • Cleveland pleaded guilty Wednesday to first-degree murder and two other felonies, crimes for which he will forfeit his freedom. » For the full story, see A2

Police Find Kidnapped 4-year-old, Arrest Mom

Members of the Twin Falls Police Department investigate a kidnapping at 453 Pierce St. Wednesday morning. Police say Stephanie Marie Contreras took her son, Brandon Xavier Bearce, from this home, where the 4-year-old child lives with his father. The armed abduction of Brandon Xavier Bearce led to a two-hour standoff and an expanding search after the boy's mother took him from his Twin Falls home.

Police arrested the mother of a young Twin Falls boy late Wednesday, hours after she allegedly took him by force from his father's Pierce Street home.

Stefanie Marie Contreras, 28, is accused of entering the home of Jason C. Bearce and kidnapping their son, Brandon Xavier Bearce, 4. The parents, who are not married, have joint custody of the child. Contreras now faces burglary and kidnapping charges and was held Wednesday night in the Blaine County Jail. Brandon was recovered unharmed.

Bearce

Also arrested were Daniel Thomas, 35, of Hailey, and Kelvin Milo Jr., 20, of Twin Falls, suspected of assisting in the kidnapping. Milo is charged with burglary and kidnapping, while Thomas faces burglary, kidnapping and aggravated assault charges. Both men were also held Wednesday in the Blaine County Jail.

"Even with an arrangement, any time you forcefully remove a child, it's felony custodial interference," said Twin Falls Police Chief Brian Pike.

Jason Bearce filed for custody of Brandon in November 2010, but the case was declared inactive this May. Because a judge never ruled on the case, by default both parents have custody of the child.

Police issued an Amber Alert for Brandon Bearce in the morning but called it off hours later, believing they had learned the location of the child. Pike had said Wednesday afternoon he was "revisiting the criteria" to decide on re-issuing the alert; Officer Luke Allen said later that evening that police worried sending out the alert again would let Contreras know officers knew her, and the boy's, location. An Amber Alert interrupts television and radio broadcasts and electronic highway signs to spread information about the missing child.

TWIN FALLS MURDERER CLARK CLEVELAND TO SERVE LIFE IN PRISON

The man who caused a July hostage crisis in Twin Falls has waived his right to appeal his conviction on three felony charges.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Clark Cleveland pleaded guilty to murder on Wednesday, according to Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb. The 26-year-old Spring Creek, Nev., man will spend the rest of his life behind bars after entering into a plea agreement calls for him to serve life in prison without the possibility of parole for the July 15 murder of Utah man Tracy Ivie.

Ivie was fatally shot by Cleveland, who entered the Hampton Inn on Fillmore Street in Twin Falls that morning. Cleveland also took a woman, Sharon Knudsen, hostage and shot Idaho State Police Trooper Nick Walker in the leg. Cleveland pleaded guilty to first-degree murder, aggravated battery on an officer and kidnapping. The agreement calls for him to serve another 20 to 30 years for the shooting of Walker and 20 to 25 years for the kidnapping of Knudsen.

Cleveland's sentencing is set for Dec. 8 in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. Cleveland also waived his right to appeal the convictions.

The circumstances of Ivie's death have yet to be revealed, other than investigators' claim that he was shot by Cleveland while taking Knudsen hostage. Loeb said more may be revealed at the sentencing.

The deadline for Loeb to file for the death penalty in this case was extended multiple times, as both prosecution and defense weighed the facts of the case and determined any mitigating circumstances. Loeb would not comment on whether he would have sought capital punishment had Cleveland not agreed to the fixed-life term. Loeb said in a written statement that he consulted with the family of Ivie, Trooper Walker, Knudsen and law enforcement agencies before entering into the plea agreement with Cleveland. Walker made a full recovery by the fall and was recently awarded the agency's Purple Heart.

A Twin Falls grand jury indicted Cleveland earlier this year on 12 felonies, including murder, second-degree kidnapping, eluding police and multiple counts of aggravated assault and battery.

An ISP trooper attempted to stop Cleveland on the morning of July 15 along U.S. Highway 30 near Filer, but he sped away, east into Twin Falls. Cleveland crashed into a truck near the intersection of Pole Line Road and Fillmore Street in the northwest part of the city, then fled by foot to the nearby hotel. He had a .22-caliber pistol, and police said a shotgun was found the vehicle he abandoned. Cleveland was said to enter the hotel, take Knudsen and shoot Ivie before barricading himself on the third-floor stairwell landing. Armed officers made it to the second floor before Cleveland started shooting, at which point Walker was hit in the thigh. Officers never returned fire.

Negotiations lasted for approximately two hours, and Cleveland gave up at about 11 a.m. He was arraigned on aggravated assault charges before the grand jury's indictment a week later.

Kidnapping

According to the police timeline, Contreras was reportedly accompanied to Bearce's home at about 10 a.m. by Thomas, Milo and a third man who has not been positively identified. At some point, a gun was brandished and a shot was fired, allegedly by Thomas, but no one was injured while Brandon was taken.

A few hours later, police received what they called a credible tip that Contreras and the boy were at a two-level residence near Harmon Park. By 12:30 p.m., city police, county deputies and Idaho State Police troopers surrounded 780 Maurice St., removed witnesses at the residence and tried to make contact with Contreras.

Police believed she was barricaded in a second-floor room, said Sgt. Steve Benkula, but requests for communication went unanswered. Negotiators determined the house was empty but that Contreras and Brandon had been there earlier, possibly taking a back exit to avoid capture.

Bradley Guire may be reached at 735-3380.

Kidnapping Leads to School Lockdowns

Morningside Elementary School was placed on lockdown Wednesday afternoon to protect children during a possible police negotiation in a nearby residence.

At about 12:30 p.m., police responded to 780 Maurice Street, as they believed Stephanie Contreras had barricaded herself and her child, Brandon Bearce, inside the home. Morningside is located on Morningside Drive, a block east of Maurice Street. According to the Twin Falls School District, students riding the bus were sent home early at 2:20 p.m., while students living in walking distance remained in class. Parents were required to pick up their students by the normal dismissal time of 3:25 p.m.

Students at Bickel Elementary School who live east of Blue Lakes Boulevard and walk to and from school were kept at school until a parent picked them up.

TWO INJURED IN BLAINE COUNTY AIRPLANE CRASH

TIMES-NEWS

Two Boise residents were injured Tuesday when their airplane crashed east of Hailey.

Paul Tower, 56, and Christina Rathbun, 40, were both hospitalized after their airplane crashed shortly after it took off from Friedman Memorial Airport. The single-propeller plane hit a mountainside at approximately 7:03 p.m.

Both were taken to St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center in Ketchum, and later taken by air ambulance to St. Luke's Boise Medical Center. On Wednesday afternoon, neither was listed as a patient at the Boise hospital.

According to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office, Tower, the pilot, reported problems with his autopilot system just before the crash.

The incident is being investigated by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Nothing has been approved and it's too early to tell which degrees could be offered or how classes would be delivered.

"They want to explore some of those opportunities," Fox said.

Northwest Nazarene already offers master's degree programs in counseling and education leadership, as well as an education specialist certification, to Magic Valley residents through its partnership with CSI. Some classes already take place on CSI's Twin Falls campus.

"We are looking to continue the relationship we have had with CSI over the past several decades while augmenting the current face-to-face and online graduate programs available in Twin Falls," NNU Marketing and Media Director Hollie Lindner wrote in an email.

It's not the first time area universities have inquired about offering degree programs from the CSI campus. As a two-year community college, CSI doesn't offer bachelor's degrees or higher — a state guideline.

"There's no intention for CSI to become a four-year school," Fox said.

However, partnerships with surrounding schools allow Twin Falls students to further their education without leaving home.

Currently, Magic Valley residents can choose from about 40 bachelor's or master's degree programs through Boise State University, Idaho State University, University of Idaho and Lewis-Clark State College.

The Idaho State Board of Education has a policy that restricts the types of degree programs each public university can offer outside their service area. BSU's offerings in Twin Falls include social work degrees, while the University of Idaho's offerings include natural resources degrees.

CSI also has "articulation agreements" with other schools, which allow students to transfer credits they earned at CSI.

"I feel very fortunate to be able to relocate to the Wood River Valley," Langbehn said. "It's a perfect opportunity to move to a highly reputable health system. They have an exceptional leadership team that is evident with their board of directors and medical team."

Langbehn, executive director of regional operations at Billings Clinic in Billings, Mont., will oversee operations of the 25-bed critical access hospital that serves central Idaho patients.

"Cody has extensive experience in the delivery of medical services throughout the Intermountain Region, which will be invaluable in the future development of St. Luke's Wood River," St. Luke's Health System President and CEO David Pate said in a written release.

Langbehn has worked at Billings Clinic since 1997, and previously served as CEO of Pioneer Timber Medical Center in Big Timber, Mont. He holds a bachelor's degree in health care administration from Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn., and a master's degree in the same field from Montana State University.

Langbehn said he expects to face several challenges in the upcoming months as the hospital's CEO. With pending health care reform, shifting into a new system of care will take time to get used to.

"There's going to be a fundamental shift in how we look at health care, whether it's health care reform or how we look at care," he said. "I'm lucky to be replacing someone who is leaving the hospital in good shape. The staff is ready to take on these challenges."

He will move to the Wood River Valley with his wife, Lisa, and their two young children.

THEIR VIEW

Sorting Through the Half-Truths on Tax Reform

BY KAREN HUBE

The Washington Post

It’s hard enough wading through the tax code in preparing your personal tax returns. But parsing the blizzard of proposals for tax increases, tax cuts and tax reforms offered by President Obama, lawmakers and GOP presidential candidates can be overwhelming.

It’s not just that taxes and their implications for the economy are complicated. It’s that politicians often shade facts about the U.S. tax system to their advantage, using contradictions, half-truths or downright distortions to make their case.

We hear constantly that individuals and businesses are saddled with excessive tax rates, that the wealthy are paying their fair share, that corporate tax rates are oppressive and discourage economic growth, and that many low-income Americans pay no taxes at all.

Consider these falsehoods or shades of truth that are often bandied about:

• Our tax rates are high

By historical standards, federal tax rates are about at their lowest levels ever. Even if the George W. Bush tax cuts expire at the end of next year and the top marginal income tax rate rises to 39.6 percent, that will still be low by historical standards.

Since the income tax became permanent in 1913, the top rate has been lower than today’s rate in only 16 years, most recently between 1988 and 1992, when the top rate was 28 percent and then was bumped to 31 percent as a deficit-cutting measure under President George H.W. Bush.

• The poorest pay no taxes

A recent study by the Joint Committee on Taxation found that 51 percent of American households, those at the lower end of the income scale, pay no income tax.

The finding has been repeatedly cited by lawmakers such as Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, as reason to create a system in which these folks have to ante up like the rest of us.

The current system may well need an overhaul, but let’s be clear: The 51 percent reflects just income taxes. It doesn’t account for other taxes paid by this group, particularly the payroll tax, which is automatically deducted from paychecks to fund Medicare and Social Security.

• The rich pay their fair share

Obama wants to raise taxes on the wealthy, but critics say the wealthy pay more than their fair share, citing this fact: The top 1 percent of earners (those with adjusted gross income of $410,095 or more) receive 23 percent of all wages, but they paid 40 percent of income taxes, according to Internal Revenue Service data.

But contrary to what that data imply, the overall tax burden on the wealthy has been shrinking much faster than on middle-class taxpayers.

That’s because the share of total income in the United States earned by wealthy folks has been rising for decades. The top 1 percent of earners now earn 25 percent of all income, up from 10 percent in the 1970s. Meanwhile, tax rates have been declining.

• The corporate tax is too high

The U.S. corporate tax rate, at 35 percent, is the second-highest in the world, next to Japan’s. Numerous corporate chief executives and lawmakers favor lowering the rate, saying the 35 percent puts U.S. businesses at a competitive disadvantage in the world market.

But few, if any, corporations pay the 35 percent rate thanks to numerous subsidies and tax breaks. Some corporations have years in which they owe zero tax, despite having earned profits.

Among corporations that do pay, rates vary dramatically by industry. For example, companies specializing in information, such as Internet companies, pay an average 19 percent rate, while retailers pay 31 percent and manufacturers 30 percent, according to a study by Kevin Markle of Dartmouth College and Douglas Shackelford of the University of North Carolina.

A December to Remember

Seventy years ago this month, the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and brought America into a war that had begun in Europe in 1939.

In his masterful new book “December 1941: 31 Days That Changed America and Saved the World,” Craig Shirley takes readers back to a very different America. Through hundreds of stories and advertisements culled from newspapers, Shirley not only transports us back to that tumultuous time, but reminds this generation that denial about an enemy’s intentions can have grave consequences.

Each chapter in the book deals with a single day of December 1941. We go to the movies with Clark Gable and Betty Grable, view the “café society” of New York, and listen to radio stars like Jack Benny and Walter Winchell, the acerbic columnist and powerful radio gossip.

The major players are all here: President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Winston Churchill and countless generals and admirals, as well as other military and political figures familiar to any student of history. But, depending on your age, the real stars were our parents, grandparents and great-grandparents. After the Dec. 7 attack, Americans rallied around a single patriotic cause — the defeat of fascism and the salvation of Western democracy. Record numbers enlisted in the military. Many isolationists became interventionists. Even some conscientious objectors announced, in light of the Japanese sneak attack, that they could no longer remain apart from what was rightly cast as a fight for America’s very survival. Though they refused to kill, many served vital roles in the war effort as noncombatants.

Amid the deeply human and moving stories of family loss are some funny accounts of government stupidity. Shirley writes that government polltakers in the 1940 census asked American men and women how many individual articles of clothing they owned and how many they purchased each year. The Los Angeles Times reported, “Census Bureau officials declare they have found the explanation for cluttered clothing closets in the American home; people just buy more than they need.”

Intrusive government is not a modern phenomenon.

Concerning Russia, the American left in 1941 was oblivious to the intentions of our supposed “ally.” Shirley writes, “...many on the American left were quite naive about the real nature of the Soviet state. Many liberals and intellectuals, who should have known better, perceived it as a worker’s paradise; it was only after the war that the true horrors of Stalin’s repressive regime truly came to light. The muck-raking journalist, Lincoln Steffens, famously asserted, after visiting communist Russia: ‘I have seen the future, and it works’ ... Even FDR viewed Stalin as an avuncular fellow with whom he could do business, referring to (him) as ‘Uncle Joe.’ The ugly realities of the gulag would eventually emerge for the entire world to see.”

This “greatest generation” was not necessarily braver than other generations; its men and women were simply imbued with a profound sense of duty.

That call to duty is evident in a letter from a young man to his father, which was typical, says Shirley, of the sentiment in December 1941:

“Dear Dad, There is a war on and I am now in it, but that must not be a cause for you to worry. Of course there is danger and there will be more danger to come but if I am to die a soldier’s death, so be it. ... You must think of me as doing my duty to God and country. Be brave and show outward pride, that the mite of humanity you helped bring into the world is now a soldier doing his part of defending our great and wonderful country. ... You must pray, not only for me and others in the Army, but for the innocent women and children who will have to endure untold suffering from this fight for freedom of religion, speech and democracy. I am not afraid to die for this. ... Until then I remain and always, Your Loving Son.”

December 7, 1941 may be a day that “will live in infamy,” but that month, those years, that war revealed an American character still on display in our military today, though it’s somewhat lacking in our civilian population.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Relative Wage Law Would Rein in Inequality

To rein in this country’s growing inequality in wealth, we need not only a minimum wage law but also a relative wage law. Such a law would require companies of a certain size or larger to pay their lowest-paid employees a minimum percentage of the wage paid to the highest-paid employee.

Thirty years ago, the average salary of a chief executive officer was 40 times that of the average-paid worker. That was already a great discrepancy. But now, that figure has risen to 300 times that of the average worker. That’s obscene. CEOs and other high-level executives get paid millions of dollars a year not because their companies need to pay so much to get competent help but because they sit on the boards of directors of other companies and award each other huge salaries. Their salaries aren’t the result of a free market but of an unfair system rigged by a clique of the 1 percent.

Since a relative wage law would apply only to employees, it would not affect entrepreneurs who own their own businesses. Unlike an income tax increase, it would not discourage the creation of wealth. In fact, it would encourage people to start small businesses.

Councilman Thanks Many Well-wishers

As I gathered with my family this Thanksgiving holiday and thought about all the many blessings that are mine, I came up with a great number of things I am thankful for.

Family and those close to us come to mind first during the holidays, of course, but there are some other things on my mind as I count my blessings this year. I have had many phone calls and personal congratulations on my election to the Burley City Council, and I am very grateful for those good wishes. It is also gratifying to know that so many people supported me through the campaign and election and now that it’s over, it is well past time to return those good wishes and thanks.

I would like to thank all the voters in Burley who, by their vote, showed they care about our city. I particularly wish to thank those who voted for me and by doing so exhibited their trust. Obviously, I couldn’t have done it without you and, unfortunately, most of you I don’t even know.

But one of the really good things about this whole experience is the people I’ve met going door to door or at events of one kind or another and just as importantly the opportunity I will have to get to know many more of you as time goes by.

I would like to thank the other candidates as well. I realize more fully after running for the first time that it does takes more than a little determination and courage to throw your hat in and put yourself out there in circumstances that you’re not comfortable with. Every single one of the people who did that should be proud of how they conducted themselves in their efforts. They’re all winners in my book.

Panel Tells UI that Changes Could Bolster Safety

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • An independent panel convened following a University of Idaho murder-suicide in August suggested administrators develop a better way to handle concerns about disturbing or disruptive behavior by faculty members in an effort to keep students and employees safe.

Former Idaho Supreme Court Chief Justice Linda Copple Trout joined two others who reviewed the Moscow-based university's safety protocols after psychology professor Ernesto Bustamante resigned Aug. 19 then gunned down 22-year-old Katy Benoit three days later.

A five-page review released Wednesday concluded the university has explicit policies for responding to students displaying disruptive behaviors but is much less clear on how concerns regarding such behaviors by faculty and staff are handled.

Copple Trout called it imperative that the university figure out a better way for people on campus to report alarming faculty and staff behavior.

"While this area is more challenging to address than concerns about student behavior, it is no less important," Copple Trout wrote in her report to UI President Duane Nellis.

Prior to the tragedy, Bustamante's behavior was an issue.

One student reported on an evaluation the 31-year-old professor talked about shooting students and coming to class high or drunk. Bustamante also told his department chair on April 30 he was experiencing withdrawal symptoms due to a change in medication to manage mental illness.

In addition, Benjamin Barton, an assistant psychology professor, knew of Bustamante's inappropriate relationships with students, but didn't report them because "it might be perceived as trouble-making or backstabbing," according to emails obtained by The Associated Press.

Copple Trout said in an interview that her group didn't delve into the details of the Bustamante case, so she couldn't comment on whether the shortcomings in addressing faculty behavior contributed to the killings.

"That just wasn't the charge," she said. "I don't think it's appropriate for me to go there."

Following reviewers' conclusions, Ron Smith, vice president for finance and administration at the university, was named to lead a task force to implement the reviewers' recommendations.

Smith said it's more difficult to create a reporting mechanism for faculty exhibiting potentially disturbing behavior because of employment laws that may restrict just how the university can intervene — something that's not as significant an issue as school dealings with students' behavior.

Overall, Smith said the report is thorough and will help guide the school in making changes to bolster campus safety.

"They made some recommendations I think are appropriate," he said. "We're going to implement them. We'll probably never be over this tragedy, but we feel it's important to take the extra step to make sure we have policies and procedures be in place and be usable as we try to prevent this from ever happening again. Of course, if there's a crazy person, it's hard."

Copple Trout's panel also suggested that the UI adopt background checks and putting the school's consensual relationship policy more prominent on the school's Web site.

Since the tragedy, the school has moved to adopt a policy of strongly discouraging relationships between faculty members and students. The current policy says consensual romantic or sexual relationships between faculty members and students are "generally deemed unwise."

The new policy is on track to be adopted by faculty at a meeting Dec. 13, Smith said.

Benoit and Bustamante began a relationship starting in fall 2010 when she took his psychology course. Benoit told the university in June that her relationship with Bustamante ended after he pointed a loaded gun at her head on three separate occasions and detailed how he would use it.

Other members of the UI review panel were Larry Roper, vice provost for student affairs at Oregon State, and Bob Durringer, vice president of administration and finance at the University of Montana.

Court Upholds Stabbing Conviction, Sentence

POCATELLO (AP) • The Idaho Supreme Court has upheld the murder conviction and life sentence given to a Pocatello man convicted of stabbing a classmate to death when he was 16.

The Supreme Court published its 3-2 decision on Tuesday, more than a year after hearing arguments in the appeal filed by Torey Adamcik. Adamcik was convicted of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit first-degree murder in the September 2006 stabbing death of Pocatello High classmate Cassie Jo Stoddart.

Stoddart was stabbed 29 times while she was house-sitting for relatives in Chubbuck.

A co-defendant, Brian Draper, had his conviction and sentence upheld in September, five months after the appeal was heard in his case.

"We were disappointed in Brian Draper's opinion, as well as Torey's," said attorney Dennis Benjamin. "They are different cases, but have a number of things in common, among them the life sentences without parole."

The trend nationally and even internationally is moving away from life without parole for juveniles."

Benjamin's appeal argued prosecutors lacked evidence that Adamcik stabbed Stoddart or that any stab wounds he may have inflicted was a deadly wound.

Fight Likely After Idaho Gets $20M in Health Care Funds

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho received a $20.4 million federal grant for an insurance exchange required by the federal health care overhaul, setting up a fight in the upcoming 2012 Legislature over whether the state should keep the money.

Idaho lawmakers leery of the reforms could still reject this money.

The grant was among 13 awarded Tuesday by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services totaling nearly $220 million.

Idaho's grant is about $10 million less than the state originally sought, but Department of Insurance Director Bill Deal said the remaining money will come in a second round of federal funding to set up software infrastructure needed to support an exchange.

Exchanges will serve as online marketplaces for uninsured people to buy private coverage starting in 2014.

Idaho is among 27 states challenging the health care overhaul in court.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's administration favors using federal money to help set up an exchange crafted to meet Idaho's needs, rather than leaving it to the federal government if the U.S. Supreme Court eventually upholds the law.

"It's not that we're not going to comply with the basic requirements," Deal said. "But how we do them can be fashioned, established and planned by Idaho, our insurance companies, our Legislature and the Department of Health and Welfare, and the citizens of Idaho."

Deal has been meeting with those stakeholders to help spread the word about why an exchange tailored to Idaho's needs makes sense.

But a fight could come because the federal government awarded the money, but Idaho lawmakers during the 2012 session will still have to sign off on spending it.

And history shows they've been reluctant to do that.

In a 50-15 protest vote last March, for instance, the Idaho House rejected Deal's agency's budget over objections that it included $2.5 million from the federal government to help develop insurance exchanges foreseen by the 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Representatives refused to pass the spending plan until Deal removed the federal money, and House Speaker Lawrence Denney predicted a similar debate will ensue. "That will be one of the major issues" of the 2012 session, said Denney, R-Midvale.

Overhaul foes who particularly hate provisions requiring people to buy insurance or face a fine contend taking the money undermines Idaho's legal challenge and sets the state up for increasing the size of government. Rep. Vito Barbieri, R-Dalton Gardens, said he'll be pushing for Idaho to reject this latest round of federal money.

"Bill Deal has said he doesn't know how much (an exchange) is going to cost," Barbieri said Tuesday. "Idaho is a relatively small state. Should we be committing ourselves to unknown tens of millions of dollars for a huge, new bureaucracy?"

Other lawmakers who fiercely oppose the overhaul have been undecided on whether Idaho should take the federal money.

In a recent interview, House Majority Leader Mike Moyle said the law signed by President Obama puts states like Idaho in a tough spot: Either develop an exchange itself, or let the federal government do it. Moyle said he's not sure if there would be much difference.

"If you have to do everything the feds want anyway, then why not let the feds run it?" he said.

If the Legislature approves, Idaho would use the federal money to complete necessary exchange planning, research and design, including developing policy goals; hiring staff and consultants; and keeping players in the insurance and medical industries informed about the project's progress.

Gingrich Gets Inauguration Day Wrong, Perry Errs on Voting Age

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) • Newt Gingrich didn't know when he would take office if he wins the presidency. Rick Perry got the voting age and the date of Election Day wrong. Herman Cain didn't realize the president does not sign amendments to the Constitution. In ways large and small, Republican presidential hopefuls are proving on multiple occasions to be "factually challenged," as Gingrich rather haughtily described a rival, despite getting some things wrong himself. Campaigns are long and tough, candidates are often tired and flubs happen. But they are adding up and at some point could give Republican voters pause as they look for the candidate best able to take on the highly polished — though hardly factually infallible — President Barack Obama.

Britain Orders Iran's Diplomats to Leave UK

BY DAVID STRINGER
Associated Press

LONDON • Britain ordered all Iranian diplomats out of the U.K. within 48 hours and shuttered its ransacked embassy in Tehran on Wednesday, in a significant escalation of tensions between Iran and the West.

The ouster of the entire Iranian diplomatic corps deepens Iran's international isolation amid growing suspicions over its nuclear program. At least four other European countries also moved to reduce diplomatic contacts with Iran.

The British measures were announced by Foreign Secretary William Hague, who said Britain had withdrawn its entire diplomatic staff after angry mobs stormed the British Embassy compound and a diplomatic residence in Tehran, hauling down Union Jack flags, torching a vehicle and tossing looted documents through windows.

The hours-long assault Tuesday was reminiscent of the chaotic seizure of the U.S. Embassy in 1979. Protesters replaced the British flag with a banner in the name of a 7th-century Shiite saint, Imam Hussein, and one looter showed off a picture of Queen Elizabeth II apparently taken off a wall.

"The idea that the Iranian authorities could not have protected our embassy or that this assault could have taken place without some degree of regime consent is fanciful," Hague told lawmakers in the House of Commons.

The diplomatic fallout from the attack quickly spread to other Western countries with embassies in Iran. Norway announced it was temporarily closing its embassy as a precaution, and Germany, France and the Netherlands all recalled their ambassadors for consultations. Italy said it was considering such a recall.

Iran currently has 18 diplomats in Britain. About 24 British Embassy staff and dependents were based in Tehran.

The White House condemned the attacks and spokesman Josh Earnest said the U.S. backed Britain's ejection of Iranian diplomats.

European Union foreign ministers were to meet Thursday to consider possible new sanctions against Tehran.

France's budget minister, Valerie Pécresse, said the EU should consider a total embargo on Iranian oil or a freeze on Iranian central bank holdings. British officials said the U.K. would likely support new measures against Iran's energy sector.

Hague claimed those involved in Tuesday's attack were members of a student group allied with the Iranian Revolutionary Guard's paramilitary Basij organization, which recruits heavily on university campuses.

"We should be clear from the outset that this is an organization controlled by elements of the Iranian regime," he said.

Hague told Parliament the private quarters of staff and Britain's ambassador were trashed in the attack and that diplomats' personal possessions were stolen.

Billy Graham Hospitalized

The Rev. Billy Graham was admitted to a hospital Wednesday near his home in western North Carolina to be tested for pneumonia after suffering from congestion, a cough and a slight fever, his spokesman said. The 93-year-old evangelist was taken to Mission Hospital in Asheville. His personal physician, Dr. Lucian Rice, said he was in stable condition. A news release issued by the hospital said Graham was alert, smiling and waving to staff as he entered the hospital. Ross said Graham was admitted for observation and treatment and likely would spend the night there. For six decades, Graham led a worldwide crusade-based ministry that packed stadiums with believers and allowed him to counsel every U.S. president since Harry Truman. His most recent book, "Nearing Home," was published last month.

After Raids, Wall Street Protesters Shift Tactics

BY CHRIS HAWLEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • The overnight police raids in Philadelphia and Los Angeles that dismantled two of the nation's biggest Occupy Wall Street encampments leave just a few major "occupations" still going on around the U.S. But activists are already changing tactics and warning of a winter of discontent, with rallies and marches every week.

The camps may bloom again in the spring, organizers said, and next summer could bring huge demonstrations at the Republican and Democratic conventions, when the whole world is watching. But for now they are promoting dozens of smaller actions, such as picketing the president in New York and staging sit-ins at homes marked for foreclosure.

"We intend to use this for what it is — basically six months to get our feet underneath us, to get strong," said Phil Striegel, a community activist in San Francisco.

On Wednesday, masked sanitation workers hauled away 25 tons of debris from the lawns around Los Angeles City Hall after police raided the protesters' camp in the middle of the night and arrested more than 300 people. In Philadelphia, dozens of police patrolled a plaza outside City Hall after sweeping it of demonstrators and arresting 50.

In the past few weeks, police broke up encampments in such cities as Portland, Ore., Oakland, Calif., and New York, where the sit-down protests against social inequality and corporate excesses began in mid-September.

Demonstrators are still at it in places like Boston and Washington, which each had encampments of about 100 tents Wednesday. Dozens of protesters are fighting eviction from a community college campus in Seattle.

While some observers wondered whether the movement would wither without ground on which to make its stand, many protesters refused to concede defeat.

Protesters in Philadelphia planned a march from the city's well-to-do Rittenhouse Square to police headquarters Wednesday afternoon and also called for a "victory march" for Friday or Saturday.

GOP: Offsetting Cuts Must Cover Payroll Tax Relief

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Republican congressional leaders stressed a willingness Wednesday to extend a Social Security payroll tax cut due to expire at the end of the year, setting up a year-end clash with Democrats over how to pay for a provision at the heart of President Barack Obama's jobs program.

"We just think we shouldn't be punishing job creators to pay for it," said Senate Republican leader Mitch Mc-Connell, scorning a Democratic proposal to raise taxes on million-dollar income earners.

House Speaker John Boehner said flatly that any tax cut extension will be offset by cuts elsewhere in the budget to avoid raising federal deficits. Numerous Republican officials noted that Obama had said the same thing was true of the plan he unveiled in a nationally televised speech to Congress in September.

The events in Congress, coupled with Obama's fresh appeal for renewal of the payroll tax cut while speaking in Scranton, Pa., indicated that leaders in both parties want to seek a compromise less than a week after Congress' high-profile super-committee failed to find common ground on a related economic issue, a plan to reduce deficits.

Yet nearly a full year before the 2012 elections, it also appeared lawmakers in both parties are eager to compete for the political high ground before any compromise can be struck.

In a visit to blue-collar northeastern Pennsylvania, Obama warned of a "massive blow to the economy" if Republicans oppose his call for a renewal of the payroll tax cut approved a year ago as a way to stimulate economic growth.

"Are you going to cut taxes for the middle class and those who are trying to get into the middle class, or are you going to protect massive tax breaks for millionaires and billionaires?" he said, referring to Republicans.

"Are you going to ask a few hundred thousand people who have done very, very well to do their fair share or are you going to raise taxes for hundreds of millions of

Elite Marine Role in Afghanistan Key to 2014 Exit

BY ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press

PUZEH, Afghanistan • In this dusty village in southern Afghanistan a small team of elite U.S. Marines is nudging Afghans toward rejection of the Taliban insurgency, a mission that is emerging as central to the U.S. and NATO exit strategy but is little known beyond the rugged brown hills of the upper Helmand River Valley.

Sixty-three U.S. troops, led by a team of bearded special operations Marines, operate from a small compound in the center of remote Puzeh, where they mingle with villagers and confer with local power brokers in an effort to create the beginnings of a homegrown militia that could eventually stand up to the Taliban.

Time is running out on the wider counter-insurgency effort in Afghanistan, with U.S. and NATO combat operations scheduled to end in 2014 and the Taliban showing little interest in peace talks. In Puzeh the special operations Marines, working with Afghans, are at the forefront of a strategy designed to undermine the appeal of the Taliban as U.S. troops begin leaving by the thousands next year.

In Puzeh they have only seven men trained for a local force, with 19 others to come. It's been slow going, but the Marines, who could not be quoted by name under ground rules meant to shield their identities as members of the secretive U.S. Special Operations Command, said they are optimistic.

It's a risky business in a volatile area, but on a brief visit here on Thanksgiving Day, the Marine Corps commandant, Gen. James F. Amos, encouraged the special operations Marines, praised their courage and marveled at the dozens of

Cain Plows Forward in Face of Latest Affair Allegation

BY DAN SEWELL and SHANNON MCCAFFREY
Associated Press

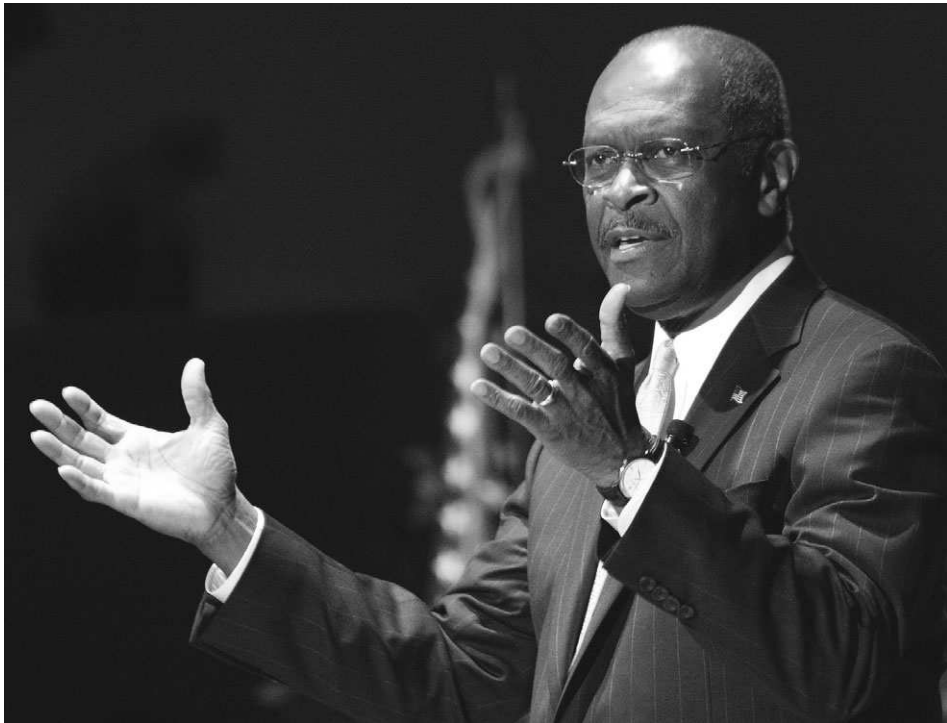

DAYTON, Ohio • His campaign’s survival in question, Herman Cain plowed ahead Wednesday in a determined effort to move past a woman’s allegation that they had a longtime affair.

Publicly, there were no signs that the former pizza company executive was calling it quits in his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. In fact, it was just the opposite: Aides were moving ahead with plans for events in New Hampshire, Tennessee, South Carolina and Georgia and prepared to launch a fresh round of TV ads in Iowa.

And Cain himself, on a one-day bus tour of Ohio, insisted he was seeing “a groundswell of positive support” after the latest allegation threatening his campaign. Still, he acknowledged “we are re-assessing and we are re-evaluating” in light of the woman’s account, which followed accusations of sexual harassment by other women in recent weeks. He renewed what has become a familiar defense: that he is the victim of attacks by liberals and the establishment, who are threatened by his outsider appeal.

“They want you to believe that with another character assassination on me that I will drop out,” a defiant Cain told a crowd of about 200 in Dayton. The boisterous crowd greeted him with shouts of “no!” and “boo!”

“One of the reasons they are trying to shoot me down and tear me down is the strength of my message that resonates with the American people,” he said.

Cain drew enthusiastic crowds in three appearances in the state. Though there were signs that some in early voting Iowa and New Hampshire were reconsidering their support — and political veterans were beginning to suggest his campaign’s days were numbered — some backers here said they were deeply skeptical of the mounting allegations.

“I absolutely trust the character of the man. No man is perfect, but I just don’t believe it,” said Pauline Clark, 80, from Xenia, Ohio. She urged Cain to “tough it out.”

George Phillips, of Beaver-creek, said he was sticking with Cain because of his ideas and management experience, saying: “I just like him, and he certainly seems to understand the economy.” He added: “It seems funny that every time a candidate rises up, something pops up against him.”

And Jim Stansbury, who drove two hours to West Chester from his home in Louisville, Ky., to show his continued support, suggested that Cain’s enemies were behind the allegations surfacing and called them “an orchestrated event.” Though Sainsbury said Cain’s base of support remains solid, he allowed that the accusations could make it more difficult to persuade undecided voters to get behind the candidate.

Cain’s latest turmoil comes just five weeks before the first votes are cast in the state-by-state march to the nomination. He’s spent a month battling several sexual harassment accusations, which took a toll on both his standing in polls and, supporters say, his fundraising. Prominent conservatives who rushed to his defense when the first allegations of inappropriate sexual behavior surfaced were all but silent after the affair accusation. At least one New Hampshire backer — state Rep. William Panek — switched his allegiance to a Cain rival. And Cain’s campaign has lost some precinct-level supporters in the leadoff caucus state of Iowa.

Ex Colo. Sheriff Accused of Offering Meth for Sex

BY STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press

CENTENNIAL, Colo. • An ex-Colorado sheriff known for his no-nonsense style and a concern about teenage drug use is facing charges of offering methamphetamine in exchange for sex and was being held Wednesday at a jail named for him.

Dressed in an orange jail uniform and walking with a cane, a hand-cuffed Patrick Sullivan, 68, watched as a judge raised his bail amount to a half-million dollars and sent him back to the Patrick J. Sullivan Jr. Detention Facility.

Arapahoe County chief judge William Sylvester also told him not to contact anyone involved in the case.

Sullivan’s arrest has many in the wealthy suburban Denver county where he held sway for nearly two decades wondering what happened to the lawman who was once named the nation’s sheriff of the year.

“This isn’t the Pat I know,” said Peg Ackerman, a lobbyist for the County Sheriffs of Colorado who often worked with him on legislation. She said he was concerned about drug use in schools and was a chief of security at a school district.

The current sheriff, Grayson Robinson, who worked as undersheriff for Sullivan from 1997 until he took over the job in 2002, said the department was shocked and saddened.

Robinson said the case is still under investigation, including where and how Sullivan might have gotten the drugs. He declined to say if authorities suspect Sullivan of using drugs, or if others might be charged.

Sullivan’s attorney, Kevin McGreevy, did not return calls seeking comment.

Sullivan came to the attention of law enforcement after an Oct. 4 call to authorities from a home in Centennial, according to an arrest affidavit. The deputy who responded had worked for Sullivan and knew who he was.

After investigating further, the deputy learned from two confidential informants that Sullivan was dealing meth but would sell it only if they had sex with him, the document stated. He was arrested after police set up a sting at a home.

Deputies found that Sullivan had handed someone a bag of meth and had another bag on him when he was searched, according to the affidavit. Both bags weighed less than a gram.

Sullivan served as sheriff from 1984 until his retirement in 2002. In 2002, U.S. Rep. Tom Tancredo praised him on his retirement, citing Sullivan for among other things being named Sheriff of the Year by the National Sheriff’s Association.

Raids

“Occupy Philly is alive and well,” said Katonya Mosley, a member of the group’s legal collective. She said members have been communicating via list serves, text messages and email and planned to continue meeting in cafes and other spaces. Local groups have also offered to donate space for the protesters to continue meeting, Mosley said.

While one faction received a permit for a scaled-down protest across the street, she said, Occupy Philadelphia as a whole hasn’t decided whether to go that route. The city has said any new permit would include a ban on camping

The Occupy movement is beginning to follow a familiar pattern, said Todd Gitlin, a sociologist at Columbia University and an authority on social movements. He noted that the 1960s anti-war movement grew gradually for years until bursting onto the world stage during the election year of 1968.

He predicted big rallies around the 2012 Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla., and the Democratic National Convention in Charlotte, N.C.

Until then, “I think there will be some kinds of occupations, but I don’t think they’ll be as big and as central,” Gitlin said.

Protesters themselves were trying to draw lessons from history. On Thursday a group of protesters from Occupy Washington planned to set out on a march from the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial on the National Mall to King’s gravesite in Atlanta. Thursday is the anniversary of Rosa Parks’ refusal to give up her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus in 1955. That led to the yearlong Montgomery bus boycott.

The long fight for civil rights shows “how long these things take,” said Kevin Zeese, an organizer of the Washington occupation.

In New York, protesters have continued to meet in Zuccotti Park, where the Occupy movement began, even though police cleared out their tents on Nov. 15. They planned to protest outside a fundraising dinner by President Barack Obama on Wednesday and a conference of aerospace executives Thursday that they branded a meeting of “war profiteers.”

On Monday, Occupy protesters disrupted a session of the Washington state Legislature in Olympia. State troopers used stun guns against at least three people and issued 30 trespassing citations. In Bloomington, Ind., police arrested five protesters who tried to block the entrance to a recruiting event by JPMorgan Chase Bank at Indiana University’s business school Tuesday night.

young boys scampering up and down the town’s main dirt road.

Amos also noted that as he walked into the village, women strolled casually past him rather than avoid him or turn away from him and other Marines.

“I’ve never seen that before” in previous visits to rural Afghanistan, he said, adding that it appeared to indicate a degree of trust and confidence in the work of the U.S. special operations team.

Puzeh, in Helmand province, is about 10 miles south of the Kajaki dam where the U.S. wants to expand the hydroelectric capacity to supply power to northern and central Helmand and to parts of neighboring Kandahar province.

As the U.S. withdraws tens of thousands of troops from Afghanistan in coming months, special operations teams like the one in Puzeh are expected to remain — and possibly even grow, U.S. officers said in interviews last week. It increasingly will fall to them to build sufficient footing for stability in key areas of the country.

That is especially relevant to Helmand province, where the Marines are scheduled to reduce their numbers by the thousands in 2012 and shift their main mission from fighting the insurgency and partnering in combat with Afghan troops to putting the Afghans in the lead. By next fall the Marines plan to be in what they call an “overwatch” role. That means they would intervene if the Afghan security forces falter but otherwise stand aside.

Brig. Gen. Lewis Craparotta, commander of the 2nd Marine Division in Helmand, said during Amos’s visit to Puzeh that he foresees turning over lead responsibility for security in the upper Helmand River Valley to Afghans by next summer. That outlook has instilled a sense of urgency among the Marines in Puzeh.

“What you’re doing up here is critically important to the big scheme of things in northern Helmand,” Craparotta told the Marines at Puzeh.

Army Lt. Col. Brian Petit wrote in the U.S. Army journal, Military Review, last spring that the effort is indispensable.

people across the country?”

Senate Democrats have set a vote for later in the week to pay for the tax cut renewal by imposing a permanent 3.25 percent surtax on individuals or couples earning more than $1 million a year, a political maneuver designed to cast Republicans as the protectors of the wealthy at a time when unemployment is at 9 percent nationally.

The proposal has no chance of gaining the 60-vote majority needed for approval.

Instead, officials said Republicans were drafting legislation to reduce the federal bureaucracy through attrition as a way of financing the extended payroll tax cut. The idea was taken from a deficit commission that Obama appointed earlier in his term, headed by former Clinton administration official Erskine Bowles and retired Republican Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming.

“The Democrats can say they just want some people to pay a little but more to cover this or that dubious proposal,” said McConnell, who also noted that there were misgivings inside his party over Obama’s proposed tax cut extension.

“Think about that. The Democrats’ response to the jobs crisis we’re in right now is to raise taxes on those who create jobs. This isn’t just counterproductive. It’s absurd!”

McConnell also left the door open to a renewal of a program of extended unemployment benefits that is due to expire at year’s end, saying that, too, would be a matter for negotiation between the Republican-controlled House and Democratic-controlled Senate.

That, too, is included in the jobs program Obama announced last fall, at a cost of $48.5 billion over a decade.

The overall cost of Obama’s plan was $447 billion over 10 years, and his recommendations concerning the payroll tax account for well half the amount.

Under bipartisan legislation Obama signed late last year, the 6.2 percent payroll tax paid by workers on incomes up to $106,800 was cut to 4.2 percent through the end of 2011. The president has proposed reducing that further, to 3.1 percent, for 2012.

Britain

“This is a breach of international responsibilities of which any nation should be ashamed,” he said.

Some were alarmed by Hague’s tough tone. David Miliband, Britain’s former foreign secretary, said he hoped the robust words would not become “part of the very unwelcome drum-beat of war.”

Iran’s government has publicly expressed regret about the “unacceptable behavior” of the protesters, whose attacks began after anti-British demonstrations apparently authorized by authorities.

However, regime hard-liners have spoken out in support of the protesters, reflecting the deepening power struggle over which direction Iran might take in the future.

Mohammad Mohammadian, a representative of Iran’s Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, praised the attackers, saying they had targeted the “epicenter of sedition.”

Iran’s Parliament Speaker Ali Larijani said the “wrath of (the protesters) resulted from several decades of domination-seeking behavior of Britain.”

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Move By Central Banks Exhilarates Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) • A move by the world's central banks to lower the cost of borrowing exhilarated investors Wednesday, sending the Dow Jones industrial average soaring 490 points and easing fears of a global credit crisis similar to the one that followed the 2008 collapse of Lehman Brothers. It was the Dow's biggest gain since March 2009 and the seventh-largest of all time. Large U.S. banks were among the top performers, jumping as much as 11 percent. Markets in Europe surged, too, with Germany's DAX index climbing 5 percent.

Central Banks Move to Stabilize Financial System

Stock markets around the world roar their approval, the Dow Jones rising almost 500 points.

BY DAVID MCHUGH and PAUL WISEMAN
Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany • The central banks of the wealthiest countries, trying to prevent a debt crisis in Europe from exploding into a global panic, swept in Wednesday to shore up the world financial system by making it easier for banks to borrow American dollars. Stock markets around the world roared their approval. The Dow Jones industrial average rose almost 500 points, its best day in two and a half years. Stocks climbed 5 percent in Germany and more than 4 percent in France.

Central banks will make it cheaper for commercial banks in their countries to borrow dollars, the dominant currency of trade. It was the most extraordinary coordinated effort by the central banks since they cut interest rates together in October 2008, at the depths of the financial crisis. But while it should ease borrowing for banks, it does little to solve the underlying problem of mountains of government debt in Europe, leaving markets still waiting for a permanent fix. European leaders gather next week for a summit on the debt crisis. The European Central Bank, which has been reluctant to intervene to stop the growing crisis on its own continent, was joined in the decision by the Federal Reserve, the Bank of England and the central banks of Canada, Japan and Switzerland. “The purpose of these actions is to ease strains in financial markets and thereby mitigate the effects of such strains on the supply of credit to households and businesses and so help foster economic activity,” the central banks said in a joint statement. China, which has the largest economy in the world after the European Union and the United States, reduced the amount of money its banks are required to hold in reserve, another attempt to free up cash for lending. The display of worldwide coordination was meant to restore confidence in the global financial system and to demonstrate that central banks will do what they can to prevent a repeat of 2008. That fall, fear gripped the financial system after the collapse of Lehman Brothers, a storied American investment house. Banks around the world severely restricted lending to each other. The global credit freeze panicked investors and triggered a crash in stock markets. In October 2008, the ECB, the Fed and other central banks cut interest rates together. That action, like Wednesday’s, was a signal from the central banks to the financial markets that they would be players, not speculators. This year, investors have been nervously watching Europe to see whether they should take the same approach and dump stocks. World stock markets have been unusually volatile since summer. The European crisis, which six months ago seemed focused on the relatively small economy of Greece, now threatens the existence of the euro, the common currency used by 17 countries in Europe. There have also been signs, particularly in Europe, that it is becoming more difficult to borrow money, especially as U.S. money market funds lend less money to banks in the euro nations because of perceived risk from the debt crisis.

Giving a Gift Card? What You Should Know

BY CANDICE CHOI
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Gift cards are an easy way to ward off disappointment during the holidays. In the best case scenarios, they give our loved ones the freedom to buy what they really want and alleviate the stress of trying to find the perfect gifts. But that doesn’t mean they’re always a slam-dunk. The surprising number of fees and earlier-than-expected expiration dates on some gift cards were enough of an issue to prompt new regulations last year. For example, monthly inactivity fees in the past may have drained funds before consumers had a fair chance to use them. The changes are expected to help dramatically reduce the amount consumers lose on gift cards. Yet an estimated $1.9 billion is expected to go unused this year, according to TowerGroup, a consulting firm. There’s also confusion about the different types of gift cards on the market, some of which are exempt from the new regulations. What the New Rules Cover Under the rules that took effect last summer, gift cards can’t expire for at least five years. Monthly service and inactivity fees are also banned in the first year and only one such fee a month is allowed after that. The rules were included as part of sweeping credit card reforms and should go a long way toward reducing many of the “junk fees” in the industry, notes Brian Riley, a senior researcher at TowerGroup. But there are several important exceptions to note.

For example, the gift cards many retailers offer either as incentives or rebates with big purchases are exempt from the rules. You may also be considering redeeming your credit card rewards for gift cards to pass out during the holidays. But those gift cards aren’t subject to the new regulations either. When to Check the Terms Twice The gift cards issued by major retailers are fairly straightforward; you load a set amount onto the card and the recipient generally isn’t subject to any fees. The terms become more complicated with bank-issued gift cards, which bear an American Express, MasterCard or Visa logo. The upside of these cards is that they provide more flexibility, but they’re also more likely to come with fees that you’ll need to review carefully. Other Ways You Can Lose Value Unlike debit and credit cards, consumers aren’t given any guaranteed legal protections if a gift card is lost or stolen. So if it’s an option, go online and immediately register any gift cards you receive whether they’re from a store or bank. If you’re planning on buying a gift card as a present e-gift cards can greatly reduce the chances for loss or theft, notes Riley of TowerGroup. This is because the code for the gift card is sent in an email to the recipient. Another possibility is that a retailer will simply go out of business. So if you receive a gift card for the holidays this year, make it a point to use it as soon as possible. This reduces the chances that you won’t get its full value.

Farm Income to Reach Record

• Farm income will jump 28 percent this year to a record $100.9 billion because of higher crop and livestock prices, the government said Tuesday. The U.S. Department of Agriculture lowered its estimate from $103.6 billion forecast in August because of declines in grain and oilseed prices since Sept. 1, according to a report on its website.

Berkshire Paying $150M for Omaha Newspaper

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) • Warren Buffett’s Berkshire Hathaway said Wednesday that it is buying the Omaha World-Herald Co. and expanding the firm’s newspaper holdings despite Buffett’s misgivings about the industry.

Buffett told the World-Herald that Berkshire agreed to pay $150 million cash and assume $50 million in debt to acquire the newspaper he’s been reading since he was a child. The deal must be approved by the Omaha World-Herald’s employee owners and other shareholders and also includes daily newspapers the company owns in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Grand Island, York, Kearney, North Platte and Scottsbluff in Nebraska. Buffett did not immediately respond to an interview request Wednesday. Berkshire’s chairman and chief executive previously has said he would be unlikely to add to Berkshire’s newspaper investments because of the industry’s dwindling returns.

Perhaps You Have to Be a Little off Your Rocker to Do Cold-weather Hikes

I was going through some old photographs recently and came across a few from previous hikes.

A couple photos were of Online Editor Josh Palmer. In one, Josh is looking through his camera's viewfinder, intently recording something outside my photo's frame.

The image is tightly cropped, and I tried to recall where it had been taken. It was his ears — red from the cold — that brought it home to me: We were hiking in Box Canyon and Malad Gorge near Hagerman on a sunny but cold day. Even though we thought we had dressed appropriately, Mother Nature surprised us with the wind. "Were we nuts?" we asked, shivering, and readily answered that we were.

But after all our complaining, it wasn't our last trip into the winter wilds.

Are you, like Palmer and me, a little off your rocker? Do you like to hike when the temperatures drop? Where's your favorite destination?

Andrew Weeks

Trails and Tales

It's been a while since I've hiked in the cold, and I'm getting the itch again. Help me out: Give me some ideas.

One of the things I enjoy about the Outdoors section is hearing from readers, especially when they share photos about their own outdoor adventures.

I like the hunting and fishing photos, of course, as do other readers. But I also like to see what other outdoor fun you participate in — camping, hiking, four-wheeling, snowmobiling, rock climbing, you name it.

Send photos, with short captions about your adventure, to me at aweeks@magicvalley.com.

Thinking of Ice Fishing?

Cold weather at the higher lakes and reservoirs in Idaho is starting to get anglers thinking about ice fishing.

Ice fishing can add months of enjoyable fishing. Most lakes and reservoirs are open year round, and if the weather is cold enough, ice on these waters can be safe and provide good fishing for yellow perch and trout. Anglers should wear warm clothing and be prepared for winter weather and driving conditions.

Check the ice thickness and condition before venturing over deep water. It takes at least 3 to 4 inches of clear, solid ice to support a person's weight; but it takes 8 to 10 inches to support a snow machine or an ATV.

In addition to fishing gear, ice anglers will need some special gear. Hand-held ice augers are inexpensive and easy to use if the blade is sharp. Also, a slotted ladle will help keep the fishing hole free of ice.

Ice fishing rules are slightly different than general fishing for public safety and general crowding. Fishing is allowed only through a hole up to 10 inches in diameter. This reduces the risk of someone falling through holes. There is one exception on Bear Lake in southeast Idaho where anglers can dip net cisco through any size hole.

There are no restrictions on the number of holes, but an angler can fish with up to five poles or lines at a time, and up to five hooks per line.

WINTER CAMPING? HOW TO DO IT HAPPILY

BY BLAIR KOCH

For the Times-News

As snowpack deepens, winter doesn't typically strike an urge in most people to check their camping gear and plan a hiking trip.

There are, however, some adventurous folk who do enjoy winter camping, said Ann Frost, recreation staff officer with the Sawtooth National Forest.

"The opportunities to simply drive to a campground and pitch a tent don't really exist because the roads aren't maintained," Frost said.

The kind of winter camping done in Idaho is enjoyed by guys like Bob Ellis of Pocatello.

A decade ago, Ellis never imagined surviving the night with just a tent and sleeping bag between himself and the winter elements, let alone enjoying the experience.

Today, Ellis is the outdoor recreation coordinator at Idaho State University and teaches numerous students winter camping every year.

"Hiking in deep, heavy snow would be pretty burdensome but throw on some snowshoes or skis and you can trek back for miles," Ellis said. "All of your equipment you can pack in."

Ellis suggests campers outfit themselves with a sturdy, four-season tent capable of handling snowfall overnight, a sleeping pad that will both insulate the body and lift it off the snow-covered ground beneath the tent and a sleeping bag rated at minus-30 degrees.

He said the Sawtooth Mountain Range north of Fairfield and extending to Stanley provide both adequate snowpack and a picturesque backdrop for winter camping.

"Essentially you can set up camp anywhere. You aren't going to head to an established campground because you'll typically find the toilets, tables and fire pits are snowed under," Ellis

Pursuing Upland Royalty — the Ruffed Grouse

Generally regarded as little more than targets of opportunity by most western hunters, ruffed grouse are objects of considerable devotion, even revered by many as riparian royalty, in the eastern coverts the partridge calls home.

Like my brother before me, my first serious hunting endeavors centered on pursuing woodcock and ruffs through the tangled swamps, abandoned apple orchards and decaying farmsteads that they se- creted near our home in southwestern Maine.

Four decades later, we continue to pursue our transplanted passion for the gray ghost from the balmy days of September through the snow squalls of Decem- ber in the creek bottoms and aspen thickets of southeastern Idaho. Today I'd like to share with you a number of shooting acces- sories that have helped us to consistently bring birds home.

With regard to hunting apparel, nothing can take the place of a good pair of lightweight waterproof hunting boots. We particu- larly like boots featuring high traction soles and breathable Gore-Tex con- struction.

Since grouse favor moist creek bottoms and hillside springs, these boots keep your feet dry while slog- ging through the standing water and sucking mud of the wet areas and provide good support and traction while climbing up and down to hunt the drier

RICH SIMPSON • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

In truth, the ultimate accessory for hunting any game bird has to be a well-trained hunting dog.

hillside thickets.

Consider purchasing a pair of tight -fitting leather shooting gloves. Quality gloves will not only protect your hands as you push your way through thorny thickets, they will also pro- vide a more sure grip on your shotgun, even when you're perspiring heavily.

A rugged game vest with highly visible hunter orange panels, shell loops, roomy zippered pockets and game pouch is a godsend. After years of picking thorns, weed seeds, and cockleburrs out of my wool hunting trousers, I finally bought a pair of brush pants.

I vow that I will never again enter a grouse thicket or pheasant field without them; they're that good. To protect your invaluable eyes from the inevitable thrash- ing brush, blowing dust — and God forbid — stray shotgun pellets, consider investing in a pair of shoot- ing glasses with hardened lenses. I adamantly refuse to shoot any firearm or pursue any upland game or water- fowl unless I have mine on.

While the choice of firearms is highly subjec- tive, we have found that short, light and nimble shotguns are tailor made for the close quarter, snap shooting opportunities most common in grouse hunting. My brother dotes on his CZ-20 gauge side- by-side; I usually carry a budget NEF 20-gauge sin- gle-shot youth model or a slick Winchester 1300 in 20 bore. Brother Bob is cur- rently checking the pawn shops for a used Mossberg 410 pump, which he be- lieves might just be the ulti- mate grouse getter for the type of hunting we do.

In truth, the ultimate ac- cessory for hunting any game bird has to be a well- trained hunting dog. Bob's springer spaniel, Ruff locat- ed, flushed and retrieved dozens of birds we would have never even seen this season.

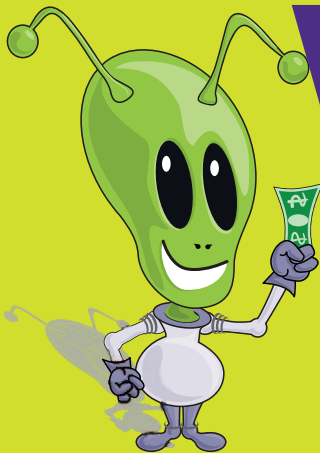

With the 2011 season closing on Dec. 31, there's still time for you to head for the hawthorn thickets and piney hillsides to pursue the Prince of the Poplars, true riparian royalty.

Good hunting!

Results for Extra Hunts in Bennett Hills

Drawing results are available on the Idaho Fish and Game website for two extra antlerless mule deer controlled hunts in the Bennett Hills.

Results can be found at: fishandgame.idaho.gov/public/licenses/controlled-Hunts/?getPage=81, then click on Antlerless Mule Deer — Bennett Hills/Blair Fire Hunts.

Results also will be mailed to successful applicants — along with a map of the area.

Idaho Fish and Game has drawn 250 tags for each of two extra controlled hunts in hunt area 45-1. The first, hunt-1127, runs from Dec. 1-14, and the second, hunt 1128, runs Dec. 20-31.

Hunt Area 45-1 is the part of Game Management Unit 45 north of Interstate 84, east of the Bennett Mountain Road, and west of the Bliss-Hill City Road, excluding the Camas Creek drainage.

The Bureau of Land Management's travel restrictions in the burn area will affect hunter access during these hunts.

OUTDOOR BRIEFS

Shoot at Jerome Gun Club

The Jerome Gun Club will hold sporting clays shoots on Saturday and Dec. 18.

These are 100-target events. If you have never shot sporting clays at the Jerome Gun Club, your first 50 targets are free. Cost is $20 for adults, $14 for juniors under 18. There is a $5 charge for non-members. Sign up at 9 a.m., shooting begins at 10 a.m.

The club is located 11 miles north of the junction of highway 93 and Interstate 84 at mile marker 64.

Club info at www.jeromegunclub.com.

Nonresident Tag Sales Start Today

The 2012 licenses, tags and permits go on sale today.

Nonresident hunters can buy their licenses and tags at Fish and Game offices, any license vendor, or by credit card by calling 1-800-554-8685. They can also buy them online at the Fish and Game Website at fishandgame.idaho.gov.

Big game hunters can find more information on the sale and purchase of tags for residents and nonresidents on pages 92-96 of the Idaho 2011 Big Game Seasons rules booklet.

Residents also can buy 2012 hunting licenses starting today, and they can buy a receipt for deer and elk tags, which don't go on sale until after deer, elk and pronghorn controlled hunt drawings.

Resident hunters can redeem the receipt for a deer or elk tag after the controlled hunt drawings in July, so those whose names were drawn don't have to exchange their general season tags for controlled hunt tags at a Fish and Game office. Instead the controlled winners are simply issued a controlled hunt tag at any license vendor. The rest are issued general season tags.

Ice Fishing

A two-pole validation is not needed and does not allow more than five lines while ice fishing. All lines must be attended by the angler.

Gaff hooks may be used only to land fish through a hole cut or broken in the ice in waters that have no length restrictions or harvest closures for that species.

Anglers who use any enclosure or shelter for ice fishing and plan to leave it unattended overnight on the ice, must have the owner's name, telephone number, and current address legibly marked on two opposing sides. Shelters must be removed from the ice before the spring thaw.

Camping

said. "The only thing you need for a decent campsite is packed snow."

Winter camping isn't for everyone, however. "It definitely isn't for children, older teens, maybe," Ellis said.

For a winter camping experience suitable for children, Ellis suggests staying in a yurt, which provides heartier shelter.

Those available for rent through ISU come equipped with wood burning stoves and are located on beginner to expert snowshoe and skiing trails.

Information: 282-3912.

For people wanting a camping experience without having to snowshoe or ski, yurts for rent at Castle Rocks State Park, southeast of Burley, could fit the bill.

Visitor Services Park Ranger Juanita Jones said the yurts don't come equipped, but they do have bunk beds, electricity and a wood burning stove.

"You have to bring your own sleeping bags or blankets," Jones said. "It's beautiful out here and the yurts provide a bit of a camping-like experience, but you're not roughing it like you would be in a tent."

Kathy Corle, left, and her husband, Ron, both members of Southern Idaho Muzzleloaders, demonstrate how their rifles work. They both enjoy bringing history to life and make visits to area schools to show students how 19th-century pioneers lived.

Muzzleloaders

mainly because of its open sights and one-shot powder loads. When hunting, he shoots only at game animals within 100 yards.

It's not impossible to hit an animal that's farther away, but distance lessens the chance of hitting vital organs.

Twin Falls resident Steve Clayton, who's used muzzleloaders for at least 25 years, set the same benchmark: He won't shoot at an animal more than 100 yards away.

"That's about as far as you can shoot with open sights," he said.

Taking aim with a muzzleloader is about as challenging as archery hunting, he said, but if you've hunted with a rifle it's an easy transition.

Another challenge to hunting with muzzleloaders: They often don't do well in damp or cold weather.

But they're the perfect rifle for those wishing to develop more patience. It's happened before, Schroeder said: A hunter sights in a deer, pulls the trigger and hears nothing but a click.

Muzzleloaders also have a slow ignition system, said

Ray Massey shoots his muzzleloader, an 18th-century replica, Tuesday at Devil's Corral near Jerome.

Twin Falls resident Dan Hadley. And you pack ammo and powder into the barrel one shot at a time. After years of practice, Hadley said, he can shoot three times a minute.

That's pretty quick for a muzzleloader.

But if hunters who use muzzleloaders boast about accuracy, Southern Idaho Muzzleloaders member Ray Massey is skeptical. "You're either overconfident or the success rate isn't as high as you brag it is."

Building Rifles

Hadley participates in a variety of hunts throughout the year. But he's taken it a step further: He also builds muzzleloaders. How many? "I don't know," he chuckled. "Too many to count."

Though there are kits on the market, Hadley prefers to buy parts one at a time from various vendors — a trigger here, a woodstock there. He works on a rifle a little at a time over six to eight months. When he's finished, he usually gives the rifle to a family member or friend.

He's kept one for himself, however, which he uses every September when Idaho's muzzleloader season rolls around.

No Permits

You don't need a permit to purchase muzzleloaders, because the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives does not consider them firearms.

Why? Because of their "primitive ignition system," identified as an exempting characteristic, and because they're "not capable of firing fixed ammunition," according to the ATF website.

Muzzleloaders — and kits to make them — are readily available online and at sporting goods stores.

That's how Massey got into muzzleloaders. About 30 years ago he bought a kit, and it bloomed from there. Today he owns about seven muzzleloaders, including "Brown Bess," a replica of an 18th-century British muzzleloader.

Massey prefers the old style, as do most of the other members of the club, including frequent live-history demonstrators Ron and Kathy Corle.

The group often dresses in 1800s garb and competes against each other in fun shoots. It's one way, Massey said, to keep the past alive.

Group: BLM Ecological Study Flawed Due to Politics

BY MEAD GRUVER
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • An environmental group on Wednesday accused the U.S. Bureau of Land Management of neglecting science in favor of politics while the agency conducts six ecological studies covering millions of acres and a variety of landscapes across the West.

The BLM ignored concerns raised by scientists by not evaluating livestock grazing as one of the most significant causes of environmental change on Western public lands, the group Public Employees for Environmental Responsibility wrote in a complaint filed with the BLM.

The group says the BLM did so out of fear of backlash, including the threat of litigation, from the livestock industry. The complaint quoted as evidence the minutes of a workshop the BLM held in Colorado last year to plan one of the regional studies.

“The idea that you could do an ecological map of the West and ignore grazing is preposterous,” PEER executive director Jeff Ruch said.

Interior Department spokesman Adam Fetcher said the department would review the complaint under its scientific integrity policy.

The complaint centers on six “rapid ecological assessments” covering 12 states. Since last year the BLM has been working on seven assessments, including one in Alaska not included in the complaint, with help from federal economic stimulus funding.

The BLM plans to use the assessments to guide public land management after they’re completed next year. They draw from existing data to evaluate how four “change agents” — climate change, wildfires, invasive species and human development — are affecting ecosystems.

Livestock grazing wasn’t included as a change agent despite the fact that it is allowed on two-thirds of all BLM lands, or a total of 157 million acres, according to PEER.

“This is, from what we can tell, the biggest scientific effort ever undertaken by the BLM. And they’ve got it all wrong,” Ruch said.

The BLM held a workshop in Lakewood, Colo., last year to discuss plans for an assessment covering the Colorado Plateau in Colorado, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico. The manager of the rapid ecological assessment program, Karl Ford, said at the meeting that livestock grazing was contentious, BLM officials were concerned about litigation, and that including grazing could put a stop to future regional assessments, according to the PEER complaint.

Workshop participants then discussed how much emphasis would be put on grazing. One participant said the BLM would be “laughed out of the room” if it didn’t include grazing.

“If you have the other range of disturbances, you have to include grazing,” Tom Edwards, a U.S. Geological Survey ecologist and peer reviewer for the assessment, was quoted as saying in the meeting minutes obtained by PEER.

Later, the BLM decided that any analysis of data on livestock grazing would be incorporated into data on grazing by other animals, such as antelope and wild horses.

“BLM not only decided they weren’t going to look at grazing as a change agent even though there’s a massive amount of grazing going on those public lands, but even went further and said grazing information could only be reported in an undis-tinguished lump where you had to put all ungulates together,” Ruch said.

The BLM ultimately has given relatively low-impact activities, such as rock hounding, more weight in its assessments than grazing, he said.

The six assessments cover portions of a dozen states: Montana, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, California, Arizona and New Mexico.

This is the second complaint PEER has filed this year under the Interior Department’s new scientific integrity rules. A previous complaint focused on the suspension of a wildlife biologist who studies polar bears.

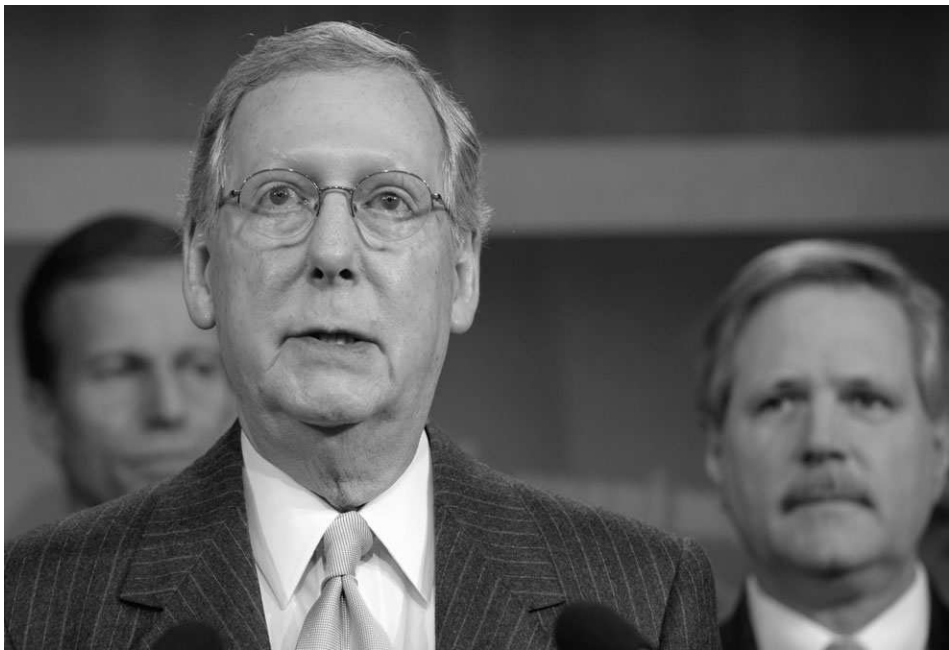

GOP Bill Would Force Administration Action on Oil Pipeline From Canada

BY MATTHEW DALY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Angered by President Barack Obama’s delay of a proposed oil pipeline from Canada, Senate Republicans are moving to force him to act.

A bill introduced Wednesday by 37 GOP senators, including Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, would require the administration to approve the Keystone XL pipeline within 60 days, unless the president declares the project is not in the national interest.

The State Department decided on Nov. 10 to delay the project until 2013, after the presidential election, to allow the project’s developer to figure out a way around Nebraska’s Sandhills, an ecologically sensitive region that supplies water to eight nearby states.

Supporters say it could significantly reduce U.S. dependence on Middle Eastern oil while providing thousands of jobs. Opponents say the pipeline would bring “dirty oil” that requires huge amounts of energy to extract. They also worry about possible spills, noting that a current pipeline operated by TransCanada has had several spills in the past year.

The Senate bill’s chief sponsor, Richard Lugar of Indiana, said Keystone XL presented a dramatic opportunity to boost U.S. national security and North American energy production by providing oil from the nation’s closest ally and largest trading partner, Canada.

“President Obama has the opportunity to help create 20,000 jobs now. Incredibly he has delayed a decision... apparently in fear of offending a part of his political base,” Lugar said.

White House spokesman Josh Earnest called that criticism off-base.

“I recognize that there are people in Washington, D.C., who want to apply a political label to every single thing that the president or other members of this administration do, but at the end of the day this is a decision that falls cleanly in line with the priorities that the president laid out” in a recent interview, Earnest said.

Obama told a Nebraska TV station that he needed to balance job creation and energy security with public health and the safety of communities along the pipeline route.

The bill’s supporters include Sen. Mike Johanns, R-Neb., who had opposed an earlier plan that would have routed the pipeline through the Nebraska Sandhills, a region of porous hills that includes a high concentration of wetlands and a key aquifer.

The State Department cited the Sandhills as a key reason to delay the project. The State Department has authority over the project because it crosses a U.S. border. After the delay was announced, TransCanada agreed to divert the pipeline around the Sandhills, although an exact route has not been determined.

Last week, Nebraska Gov. Dave Heineman signed two laws aimed at oil pipelines, including one that requires state officials to conduct an environmental review of Keystone XL.

Johanns said the Senate bill would allow construction of the pipeline to begin in all states except Nebraska, where construction would be put off until an acceptable route is found and all required reviews are completed.

“The issues in Nebraska have been resolved,” Johanns said, adding that the White House should not hide behind concern over the Sandhills as a reason to delay the project further.

Nebraska’s other senator, Democrat Ben Nelson, called the GOP bill “well intentioned” but unnecessary. He said state officials have worked out a “good compromise” with TransCanada and the State Department that should be allowed to continue.

“If something goes awry, I can look at legislation at that time,” he told reporters Wednesday.

Lugar, the senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he hopes to have a public hearing on the bill by the end of the year.

A spokeswoman for Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., the panel’s chairman, said Kerry was in contact with Lugar and “evaluating how best to move forward.”

Dog Steps on Gun, Shoots Utah Hunter

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • A Utah bird hunter was shot in the buttocks after his dog stepped on a shotgun laid across the bow of a boat.

Box Elder County Sheriff’s Deputy Kevin Potter says the 46-year-old Brigham City man was duck hunting with a friend when he climbed out of the boat to move decoys.

his 12-gauge shotgun in the boat and the dog stepped on it, causing it to fire. It wasn’t clear whether the safety on the gun was on at the time.

Potter says the man was hit from about 10 feet away with 27 pellets of birdshot. He says the man wasn’t seriously injured, in part because he was wearing waders. The man was treated at a nearby hospital.

FWP RECOMMENDS MOVING BISON

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • Montana wildlife officials say they are recommending the relocation of 68 quarantined Yellowstone National Park bison to two Indian reservations.

Fish, Wildlife and Parks had considered four relocation sites across the state, but ran into strong opposition by ranchers, landowners and hunters concerned with the spread of disease and damage to private property.

Aug. 18, 1921-Nov. 27, 2011

Mary Jane Hite Kelly died Sunday, Nov. 27, 2011, at the age of 90, of multiple myeloma at the Evergreen Place Assisted Living Facility in Buhl, Idaho.

Mary Jane Hite was born Aug. 18, 1921, in Mountain Home, Ark., to Lee and Dorabelle Chandler Hite. The family moved to Rich Hill, Mo., when Mary Jane was 6 months old, where her father went to work in the coal mines. She was the third child and oldest daughter of seven children. They settled in Eden, and Mary Jane graduated the next year from Eden High School. From the age of 14, she cooked and cleaned for other people to help make money for her family. After high school, she continued working until she married Carl Milton Kelly on Feb. 8, 1941. During World War II, she took their son, Carl Lee, and moved to Texas to be near her husband before he shipped out to Italy. After the war, they settled back in Eden, Idaho, and a second son, Rick, was born.

Mary Jane and Carl were very active in the community and schools over the next many years. She was a homemaker and raised her boys with great enthusiasm, never missing a game, school activity or sports event. After her children were raised, she started working at the Eden Post Office and continued as the postmaster until she retired at 83 years of age. She took great pride in her job, and she had a keen interest in the lives of everyone in Eden who came into the post office. She was an avid Boise State fan right up until her death. She lived in the same house in Eden for nearly 60 years. Over the years, she and Carl had taken several memorable trips with their dear friends, Chuck and Nina Eisenhauer, to Hawaii; the World's Fair in Seattle; Victoria, British Columbia; back to her childhood home in Missouri, etc.

Mary Jane was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Carl; four brothers, Virgil, General, Leo and a baby brother who died in infancy. She is survived by two sisters, Yulah Black of Eden and Erna (Dean) Russell of Twin Falls; two sons, Carl (Donna) Kelly of Buhl, Idaho, and Rick (Connie) Kelly of Lewiston, Idaho; and six grandchildren, Erik (Chani) Kelly, Stacey Lanier, Angela Kelly, Matthew Kelly, Craig (Kayla) Kelly and Kim (Rocco) Cuda. She is also survived by 12 great-grandchildren and many beloved nieces and nephews.

She had a feisty, independent and competitive nature, a quick wit and a generous, loving soul. She was a strong family matriarch who leaves us with an amazing legacy of love, laughter, hard work and strong family values.

A funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park" in Twin Falls. A viewing for Mary Jane will be held from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. prior to the funeral. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Former Mississippi Gov. William Waller dies at 85

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) • Former Mississippi Gov. William Waller Sr., who as a district attorney twice unsuccessfully prosecuted the man eventually convicted of killing civil rights leader Medgar Evers, has died. He was 85.

Waller's law office said he died Wednesday, but declined to release other details. Waller died at St. Dominic Hospital in Jackson, where he had been admitted Tuesday night.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete. A list of survivors was not immediately available.

Gov. Haley Barbour's office said Waller's body will lie in state from 9 a.m. -2 p.m. Saturday at the state Capitol in Jackson. Barbour also ordered flags on state buildings to be flown at half-staff starting Wednesday.

Waller, a Democrat, served from 1972-76 — a time when Mississippi governors were limited to one term.

Waller also served as district attorney in Hinds County in the 1960s and twice tried to get a conviction against Byron De La Beckwith for Evers' assassination. In 1994, prosecutor Bobby DeLaughter was able to secure a guilty verdict when blacks were able to serve on the jury.

"Under the circumstances, I think we did the very best job that we could," Waller said in a 2001 interview with The Associated Press "I think the jury was taking the position that they wanted to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt, to a moral certainty, and a lot of jurors interpret that as eyewitness, direct proof."

Charles Evers, the brother of Medgar Evers, said it's unlikely Beckwith would have been convicted some 30 years later if it weren't for Waller laying the foundation with the two trials in the 1960s.

"He was a true devoted Mississippian who believed in law and order. He believed that if you committed a crime you paid the price. He tried Byron Del Beckwith twice, which was unheard of in those days to prosecute a white man for doing anything to a black man.

"He did everything he could. He just couldn't get a conviction," Evers said.

Waller ran an unsuccessful campaign for governor in 1967 but turned things around in 1971, when he rallied against the "Capitol Street" gang that was supporting his opponent. Waller, a Democrat, went on to win the general election over Charles Evers, an independent candidate.

Former Gov. William Winter, who was the lieutenant governor during Waller's administration, said he was saddened to hear a longtime contemporary had died. Winter said Waller was a friend and a successful governor who tried to do what he thought was best for Mississippi.

"Many of us have lost a close and loved friend; all of us have lost a true comic genius," Brandstein said in a statement.

O'Neal appeared on Conan O'Brien's and David Letterman's TV shows and was a frequent guest on the "Opie & Anthony" radio show on Sirius XM. His performance was a highlight of the Comedy Central roast of Sheen, who had been fired from the hit CBS comedy "Two and a Half Men," in September.

Christopher Royalty, right, receives the Geovanni Padilla Technician Award.

Twin Falls Grad Honored for Service Abroad

Petty Officer Christopher Royalty, a graduate of Twin Falls High School and now a Navy Corpsman, has been honored for his actions during a recent deployment to Afghanistan.

The Geovanni Padilla Technician Award was established to recognize Navy pharmacy technicians who deploy in support of a hazardous and/or arduous duty and perform in an outstanding manner that brings credit to the Navy.

During his deployment, Royalty was the sole medical provider for 37 Marines and seven Afghan National Army soldiers, all operating in south Helmand province in Afghanistan — considered the deadliest province in Afghanistan for the U.S. and its allies. His accomplishments during that time are many, as listed in documentation submitted by his family:

- Royalty is credited with saving the life of an Afghan national who was shot in the chest during a firefight. Royalty applied a chest dressing and coordinated an evacuation that saved the man's life.

- Royalty volunteered to be in charge of a process improvement initiative to update and standardize request forms for over-the-counter medication for the entire Naval Hospital Camp Pendleton and outlying branch health clinics. He also served as executive assistant to the command master chief on several occasions.

- Royalty was commended for securing pre-hospital trauma life support certification before his deployment, and for putting in place strict vermin and insect control measures that prevented any outbreaks of vector-borne illness despite the isolated area he was deployed to.

- Non-medically, Royalty also volunteered for 153 security patrols throughout the region of the Garmsir District that discovered 12 improvised explosive devices, two weapons caches, 1,600 pounds of marijuana and $6 million worth of black tar heroin. When his right foot was burned in a non-combat incident, he chose to recover in Afghanistan and rejoined his platoon three weeks later.

Padilla's parents are Dane and Jeanne Bourquin of Boise.

Burley Goes Outside-Inside to Beat Filer

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

FILER • Fans attending Filer’s regular-season boys basketball opener Wednesday were treated to a familiar sight: an undersized team bombing 3-pointers almost at will and setting up the inside game to finish.

Only problem was, it wasn’t the boys in white this time.

Burley didn’t just take a page out of Filer’s playbook, it practically copied the whole thing by draining nine treys and sealing the deal in the paint for a 57-48 road win.

The game was largely kept within a five-point window until the Bobcats (1-0) got back-to-back scores plus a foul in the fourth quarter from Brandon Hosteen to finally break the proverbial rubber band.

“Our coaches say to box out hard and shoot it before you can turn it over, so that’s what we stick to,” said Hosteen, who had a game-high 23 points and nine rebounds. “This is a really big confidence builder for us going into our next games. Once you get that going it’s tough to stop.”

Hosteen had 10 points in both the first and fourth quarters as Burley opened out hot and finished with a flourish. Kody Coltrin had 12 to help boost the Bobcats (1-0), who had four different players connect from beyond the arc.

Filer owned the middle quarters but faded down the stretch as the Wildcats saw themselves out-Filered by an opponent, a rarity last season. They

Jerome Holds Off Minico in Tight GBC Tussle

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

JEROME • If Wednesday night was any indication of what’s to come in Great Basin Conference play this season, fans better hold onto their seats.

Minico’s Marlee Chandler hit a shot in the paint at the buzzer, but it was all for naught with the Spartans trailing three and Jerome held on for the 52-51 win to remain undefeated.

Tied at halftime and tied after three quarters, the game turned in Jerome’s favor early in the fourth. A strong defensive effort from the Tigers (4-0) held Minico (3-1) scoreless for nearly five minutes as they built a seven-point lead with less than two minutes remaining.

Chandler, however, hit her only 3-pointer of the night to make the score 47-43 with 1:27 remaining. The Spartans pulled the score to 49-47 on another Chandler bucket, but that’s as close as the Spartans got until her final shot at the buzzer, as Jerome knocked down its free throws down the stretch.

“It was fun to come back and give them a game at the end. We have some things to work on, but they played really well inside,” said Minico coach Terry Merrill. “They’re a well-coached team and this is a tough conference. It’s going to be quite the year.”

WITH LOCKOUT NEARING END, BASKETBALL BACK IN FOCUS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • These are the kinds of negotiations NBA fans have been waiting for.

Teams began talking to agents Wednesday as the lockout inched closer to its end, and basketball moved back into focus. Dwight Howard and Chris Paul were linked to trade speculation, while free agents such as Tyson Chandler and Nene were in the news after months of attorneys getting all the ink.

Now, the players are taking over and the league was set to reopen its facilities for workouts Thursday.

Some may arrive out of shape, just as was the case in January 1999 after the NBA’s only other shortened season. But they’re anxious to get back, with a little more than three weeks until they start playing games.

“The guys are going to come in and I’m sure they’re going to be in good shape. They want to play,” new Houston coach Kevin McHale told reporters.

“These guys have played basketball their entire lives. They love to play basketball and they’re excited to get after it.”

The league still hopes to open training camps and free agency next Friday, leaving both sides scrambling to get business finished in time.

The lawsuits have been settled, contingent upon the ratification of a new collective bargaining agreement by Dec. 9. Players are in the process of collecting the signatures needed to approve the reformation of the union, which must be done before the sides can resume bargaining on the remaining issues that must be settled before each side can vote.

NBA officials are working to complete a two-game exhibition schedule for each team that will lead to a 66-game regular season, starting with a five-game slate on Christmas.

Philadelphia 76ers president Rod

Thorn was working in the league office during the last lockout and knows how much work it will take to stay on the schedule Commissioner David Stern revealed after reaching a tentative agreement with the players early last Saturday.

“I definitely remember that time and how hectic it was on the NBA side,” Thorn said. “If you think it was hectic over here, it was really hectic on that side.”

Trying to make the process smoother, the NBA agreed to allow players to re-enter the buildings Thursday. Coaches aren’t allowed, but players can meet with the teams’ training personnel and conduct unsupervised workouts.

‘Maybe God Wanted It That Way’

That’s what a former CSI player and longtime friend of Mantia Callender said of his friend’s untimely death last month.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

About three weeks ago, Alyton Tesch had the nagging desire to call his old College of Southern Idaho teammate Mantia Callender.

Little did he know it would be the last time he’d talk to his longtime friend.

Callender died Nov. 22 of a brain aneurysm in Boise at the age of 38.

“I’m sad for what happened. I’m glad that I had the chance to talk to him. You don’t expect something like this to happen to someone like him and so soon,” said Tesch, who was also teammates with Callender at Middle Tennessee State. “Maybe God wanted it that way.”

Standing a sturdy 6-foot-8 and 254 pounds with a nice smile and a British accent, Callender was always a fan favorite in his two years at CSI. Callender came to CSI in 1994 from London without much basketball experience under his belt.

Known more for his rebounding and blocking than scoring, Callender averaged better than two blocks per game in his Golden Eagles’ career, before moving on to play for Middle Tennessee State for two seasons averaging 5.7 points, 6.1 rebounds and 1.5 blocks.

“He had a great, great work ethic and he was like a sponge. I’d tell him once that I’d want him to pivot a certain way and man, I wouldn’t have to tell him again. He was a really quick learner,” said former CSI coach Steve Irons. “He certainly wasn’t the most talented player I’ve ever coached, but he was a good person off the floor.”

Callender continued his basketball career playing professionally overseas, hopping country to country in Europe before returning to the U.S. in 2005. He and his wife, Rebecca, settled in Wilder, near the Oregon border, where Callender coached at Wilder High School and Greenleaf Friends Academy.

Callender’s legacy reaches further than basketball, however.

In addition to his coaching duties,

Mantia Callender CSI Foundation Fund

The CSI Foundation has set up an account for those wishing to donate in Mantia Callender’s memory. All money goes toward a fund set up for Callender’s two daughter’s college education. Make checks out to the CSI Foundation and note on the check that the money goes toward the Mantia Callender Fund. Checks can be brought to the main CSI athletic office or mailed to The CSI Foundation, 315 Falls Ave., Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Callender also worked at a bank in Wilder and taught business at the Caldwell Freshman Academy. Upon hearing of his death, a customer of Callender’s bank opened a memorial account with $2,000.

“This wasn’t somebody who worked with Mantila, but a customer. I think that speaks to the type of impact he had on people,” Irons said.

Boeheim Will Survive, But at a Price

The standing ovations Jim Boeheim got on the court that bears his name were evidence enough that Syracuse fans believe their coach has done no wrong. So was the statement of support from his top boss, though Boeheim insists he never worried about his job in 36 years and isn’t about to start now.

Joe Paterno couldn’t hang on when the child sex abuse scandal exploded at Penn State, but this seems different. If you believe Boeheim — and right now there’s no reason not to — he had no inkling that longtime assistant coach Bernie Fine might someday be the subject of sexual abuse allegations by two former Syracuse ball boys.

That doesn’t mean Boeheim isn’t responsible for things that happened on his watch over the last 36 years. He is, and he said so himself Tuesday night in a postgame news conference that had nothing to do with basketball and everything to do with saving his suddenly tattered image.

The news conference was a disaster, and for that Boeheim is responsible. Ignoring his own advice, he spent 20 minutes responding to questions for which he really had no answers.

Given a chance to be publicly contrite, he came across as smug and condescending. Given a chance to explain why he was so quick to come to Fine’s defense, he was almost patronizing.

“That’s what my reaction was,” Boeheim said. “So be it.”

Anyone tuning in for a word of sympathy for those who leveled accusations was out of luck. Anyone who thought Boeheim might use his time before the cameras to call attention to the tragedy of sexual abuse was thinking wrong.

Perhaps Boeheim thought that was already taken care of when he issued a statement a few days earlier expressing his regret for basically calling Fine’s accusers liars and extortionists. Boeheim said he didn’t mean to appear “insensitive to victims of abuse.”

Unfortunately for Boeheim, he did seem insensitive. He has seemed insensitive since he first reacted to the allegations against Fine by inferring that his friend and right-hand man was the real victim.

He took a stand out of loyalty and friendship, qualities most coaches find admirable. But he took it before knowing all the facts, and before

Eagles Hope to End Early-season Slump

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Madie Kimball vividly re- members the College of Southern Idaho's 92-41 victory against Treasure Valley Community College last season.

She was on the receiving end of the thumping loss.

The transfer from Trea- sure Valley will be on the Golden Eagles' bench this time around as they kick off their play in the Coca Cola Classic tonight against the Chukars.

"I think it will be weird because all my friends are there and one of my old teammates from high school is there too," Kimball said. "We didn't really have a game plan and it was a tough loss."

A win over Treasure Val- ley could be just what CSI (2-5) needs to break out of its early-season funk with losses in four of its last five games.

"This week it will be good to come together as a team and keep growing as a team to try and get through this," Kimball said.

One area the team can improve upon immediately is shooting – from the field and the free throw line. The Golden Eagles' free throw shooting woes have contin- ued as the team sits at a 57 percent clip on the season, so head coach Randy Rogers had each member of the team shoot 1,000 free throws this week.

On Monday, the team didn't even practice – it shot free throws for two hours. The day also served as a fundraiser for the Golden Eagles. An anony- mous patron was going to donate 10 cents for every free throw made by every player this week to the Acey Shaw Fund for the beloved Dietrich girls bas-

"We needed to work on our free throw shooting and wanted to help Acey out," Rogers said. "So, this was a way to kill two birds with one stone."

The offense is also shooting just under 37 per- cent from the field and 18 percent from the 3-point line, but Rogers hopes a more aggressive defense could result in a few more easy buckets for the Golden Eagles.

"Offensively we need to make shots, but we're get- ting good shots through our offense. We're just not knocking them down," Rogers said. "I think we need to score a few more easy buckets through tran- sition, through our de- fense."

After Treasure Valley, CSI plays Chemeketa (Ore.) and Lake Region (N.D.) community colleges on Fri- day and Saturday, respec- tively.

"Right now, every team is going to be a challenge for us. Until we correct some of the things we're doing neg- atively, it's going to be a tough deal," Rogers said. "I think we're reacting to what other teams are doing and we're not anticipating what other teams are doing. I don't think we're being proactive."

hit five 3-pointers of their own but couldn't get one to fall when it mattered down the stretch.

"We just need to learn to finish. When we switched to a zone defense we lost track of their shooters and that killed us," said Filer forward Mark Ramseyer, who scored a team-best 12 points. "But this is actual- ly a really great thing for us. We play them later in the season and it'll be a good way to measure how we've improved if we're able to beat them down the road."

Austin Tews scored 11 for the Wildcats (0-1).

Both teams are back in action Friday when Filer visits Wood River and Bur- ley trips to Buhl.

Callender

Tesch and Callender were roommates at CSI and played together at Middle Tennessee State. The two friends kept in contact with each other throughout the years, try- ing to talk every few months. It had been about six months since Tesch had last talked to Cellender when he called him in No- vember.

"He was just one of those friends, who when we talk to each other after not talking for a long time, we pick up the same con- versation we left on last time," said Tesch, who lives in Los Angeles. "I'd always get a good laugh out of Mantia and we'd talk about the fun times we had and make fun of each other. I could talk about anything with him."

Callender wasn't known as a talker at CSI and even though he was a fan-fa- vorite, he didn't enjoy the spotlight, Irons said.

"He didn't like the spotlight, but he was this big, good-looking guy with the British accent and the nice smile. He was so enjoyable to be around," Irons said.

"People just gravitated to- ward him."

His teammates viewed him as a big brother, always coming to him if they needed sound life advice.

"You can always rely on Mantia. He was the mature guy on the team," Tesch said. "Since I was his roommate, I could see right away that he did whatever he could to help people. You don't see many of those guys around."

Callender saved his most noble act of giving in his dying moment as an organ donor.

"I've been in the coach- ing business for a long time and I'm not blowing smoke. He was a great hu- man being who made the world a better place to live," Irons said. "As a coach you don't have favorites, but I can sincerely say that he's up there in terms of players I have coached that I have connected with. He had the whole package."

Had Boeheim known, surely he wouldn't have declared his undying support for Fine. And surely he never would have left Fine's customary courtside seat vacant in a show of support during a home game against Colgate just after the allegations surfaced.

Heels Bounce Back Vs. Wisconsin

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. • Harrison Barnes scored 10 of his 20 points during the decisive second-half surge to help No. 5 North Carolina rally past No. 9 Wisconsin 60-57 on Wednesday night. Tyler Zeller added 12 points for the Tar Heels (6-1), who had to show plenty of fight and toughness to outlast the Badgers in the ACC/Big Ten Challenge. Coming off its first loss of the season, North Carolina trailed by five points midway through the second half before going on an 18-5 run that finally put the Tar Heels ahead for good. Barnes was critical in that run, knocking down two 3-pointers and a jumper. But on a night when their fast-paced attack rarely got out in transition, the Tar Heels only fought off Wisconsin (6-1) after stringing together enough defensive stops and getting enough defensive rebounds to aid their struggling offense.

NO. 15 KANSAS 77, FLORIDA ATLANTIC 54 LAWRENCE, Kan. • Thomas Robinson had 19 points and 17 rebounds for his sixth straight double-double, and Kansas overcame some sloppiness on offense to rout Florida Atlantic. Tyshawn Taylor added 18 points, Travis Releford had 11 and Jeff Withey 10 for Kansas (4-2), which hadn't played at Allen Fieldhouse since defeating Towson on Nov. 11.

No. 17 PITTSBURGH 80, DUQUESNE 69 PITTSBURGH • Ashton Gibbs scored 18 points and Pittsburgh beat Duquesne for the 11th straight time. Dante Taylor added 15 points and Lamar Patterson scored 10 for the Panthers (6-1).

No. 25 TEXAS A&M 56, ALCORN ST. 44 COLLEGE STATION, Texas • Ray Turner scored 16 points and Texas A&M overcame a sleepy start and awful shooting for its 64th consecutive nonconference home win.

PRO PICKS

Lions Could Be Saints' Big Easy (Win)

ASSOCIATED PRESS

If the NFL and NBC envisioned the Saints marching and the Lions roaring when they flexed Detroit's visit to New Orleans to prime time on Sunday, at least they got it half right.

Drew Brees and his bay-ou buddies made it look so easy in the Big Easy against the Giants last Monday night.

As the Saints showed against the Giants' anemic pass rush, putting pressure on Brees is essential. Otherwise, he's going to find more open targets than you can count, and New Orleans will light up the Superdome scoreboard.

The Saints (8-3) have won three straight and four of five with an offense that is clicking so precisely it might be confused with the Green Bay Packers. And the Lions come off a humiliating loss to those Packers in Detroit's annual Thanksgiving gag fest, a defeat punctuated by defensive tackle Ndamukong Suh's stomping of an opponent that drew him a two-game suspension. For Detroit, that 5-0 start is plummeting into another distressing season. The Lions are 7-4, and with trips to Oakland and Green Bay remaining, the reality is the playoffs rapidly are slipping out of their grasp. They desperately need to upset the 9-point favored Saints.

But the Lions couldn't cover the Packers all that well and it will be more of the same in New Orleans. The Saints are too hot for fading Detroit to handle.

SAINTS, 37-27

Indianapolis (plus 2½) at New England Patriots may have big spread covered by halftime.
BEST BET: PATRIOTS, 44-10 Oakland (plus 3) at Miami This one is simple: Raiders are better team, should be favored.

(Idaho State Bond Guaranty and Credit Enhancement Programs)

Bids will be received electronically by School District No. 232 (Wendell), Gooding County, State of Idaho (the "District") via the PARITY® electronic bid submission system ("PARITY®") until 9:30:00 a.m., Mountain Time ("MST"), on Thursday, December 8, 2011, for the purchase (all or none) ("AON") of $2,270,000* aggregate principal amount of General Obligation Refunding Bonds, Series 2011 (Idaho State Bond Guaranty and Credit Enhancement Programs) (the "Bonds") of the District. The bids received electronically will be sealed and delivered to the District's Board of Trustees (the "Board") and the Board will award the Bonds to the successful bidder in public session at a special meeting to be held on Thursday, December 8, 2011, at 2:00 p.m., MST, at Wendell High School, 750 Main Street East, Wendell, Idaho.

If the Bonds cannot be sold at interest rates resulting in an amount of savings acceptable to the Board of the District, the District reserves the right to (i) sell the Bonds at a private sale in which case this notice shall be considered the notice provided for in Section 33-1111, Idaho Code, or (ii) postpone the public sale of the Bonds, in which case, at the time the market is favorable, the District's financial advisor shall give notice of the sale through the PARITY® electronic system. The District will post a notice at its administrative offices at 150 E. Main Street, Wendell, Idaho, at least 24 hours before the date and time of the proposed electronic bid opening. The District will similarly post a notice of a special meeting of the District's Board to meet in public session to approve the sale of the Bonds to the successful bidder following the electronic bid opening.

The Bonds will be dated as of the date of issuance and delivery, which is anticipated to be Thursday, December 22, 2011, will be issuable only as fully-registered bonds in book-entry form, will be issued in denominations of $5,000 or any whole multiple thereof, not exceeding the amount of each maturity, and will mature on August 15 of each of the years and in the principal amounts as follows:

Year August 15	Principal Amount*
2012	$20,000
2013	-
2014	250,000
2015	255,000
2016	265,000
2017	275,000
2018	290,000
2019	295,000
2020	305,000
2021	315,000

*Preliminary, subject to change.

Bonds scheduled to mature on two or more of the above-designated maturity dates, may be rescheduled, at bidder's option, to mature as term bonds on one or more dates within that period, in which event the Bonds will mature and be subject to a mandatory sinking fund deposit in such amounts and on such dates as will correspond to the above-designated maturity dates and principal amounts maturing on those dates.

The District reserves the right, following determination of the best bid(s), to reduce or increase the principal amount of each maturity of the Bonds by the amount necessary to properly size the issue so that proceeds available to the District will be approximately $2,497,000.

The purchase price bid shall not be less than 110% of the principal amount of the Bonds ($2,497,000).

Bidders must specify the rate of interest with respect to each maturity of Bonds. Bidders will be permitted to bid different rates of interest for each separate maturity of Bonds, but:

- the highest interest rate bid for any of the Bonds shall not exceed 5.00% per annum;
- each interest rate specified in any bid must be in a multiple of one-eighth or one-twentieth of one percent (1/8th or 1/20th of 1%) per annum;
- no Bond shall have more than one rate of interest;
- interest shall be computed from the dated date of a Bond to its stated maturity date at the single interest rate specified in the bid for the Bonds of such maturity;
- the same interest rate shall apply to all Bonds maturing at one time;
- the purchase price must be paid in immediately available funds and no bid will be accepted that contemplates the cancellation of any interest or the waiver of interest or other concession by the bidder as a substitute for immediately available funds;
- any premium must be paid in the funds specified for the payment of the Bonds as part of the purchase price;
- there shall be no supplemental interest coupons;
- a zero percent (0%) interest rate may not be used; and
- interest shall be computed on the basis of a 360-day year of 12, 30-day months.

Interest will be payable commencing February 15, 2012, and semiannually thereafter on February 15 and August 15 of each year.

The Bonds are not subject to redemption prior to maturity.

The Bonds will be full general obligations of the District, payable from the proceeds of ad valorem taxes to be levied without limitation as to rate or amount on all of the taxable property in the District, fully sufficient to pay the same as to both principal and interest. Additionally, the Bonds are secured through the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program, Title 33, chapter 53, Idaho Code, and the Credit Enhancement Program, Section 57-728, Idaho Code. Moody's Investors Service has assigned its "Aaa" rating to bonds that are guaranteed by both the Idaho State Sales Tax Guaranty Program and the Credit Enhancement Program.

Award or rejection of bids will be made at the Thursday, December 8, 2011, meeting of the District, subject to change as referred to above. The Bonds will be awarded to the responsible bidder offering to pay the lowest effective interest rate to the District computed from the date of the Bonds to maturity and taking into consideration the premium, if any, in the purchase price of the Bonds. The effective interest rate to the District shall be the interest rate per annum determined on a per annum true interest cost ("TIC") basis by discounting the scheduled semiannual debt service payments of the District on the Bonds (based on such rate or rates of interest so bid) to the dated date of the Bonds (based on a 360-day year consisting of 12, 30-day months), compounded semiannually and to the bid price.

The successful binder shall provide a good faith deposit in the amount of $25,000.

A prospective bidder must communicate its bid for the Bonds electronically via PARITY® on or before 9:30:00 a.m., MST, on Thursday, December 8, 2011. No bid will be received after the time for receiving bids specified above. For further information about PARITY®, potential bidders may contact i-Deal LLC at 1359 Broadway, 2nd Floor, New York, New York 10018, 212.849.5021 or the Financial Advisor at One South Main Street, 18th Floor, Salt Lake City, Utah 84133-1109, (801) 844-7373.

In the opinion of Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley LLP, Boise, Idaho, Bond Counsel, subject to the condition that the District comply with certain covenants made to satisfy pertinent requirements of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), under present law, interest on the Bonds is not included in gross income under the present federal income tax laws pursuant to Section 103 of the Code. The Bonds are not private activity bonds. Interest on the Bonds will not be treated as an item of tax preference for purposes of determining the alternative minimum taxable income for individuals or corporations, but will be taken into account in the computation of the adjusted current earnings adjustment applicable to corporations for purposes of computing the alternative minimum taxable income of corporations under Section 55 of the Code.

The District intends to designate the Bonds as "qualified tax-exempt obligations" for the purpose and within the meaning of Section 265(b)(3) of the Code.

For copies of the full text of this OFFICIAL NOTICE OF BOND SALE and the Preliminary Official Statement and information regarding the electronic bidding procedures and other related information with respect to the Bonds, contact the Financial Advisor to the District, Zions Bank Public Finance, One South Main Street, 18th Floor, Salt Lake City, Utah 84133-1109, (801) 844-7373, fax (801) 844 4484, alan.westenskow@zionsbank.com, eric.pehrson@zionsbank.com, cara.bertot@zionsbank.com. THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Ask me no more: what answer should I give?"

— Alfred, Lord Tennyson

One of my heroes, Edgar Kaplan, often remarked that take-out doubles were meant to be taken out. Today's deal demonstrates that his advice is still as true today as it was when he uttered it 40 years ago.

North-South here, Nick Nickell and Dick Freeman, were part of the most successful U.S. team ever in world championships. After a sequence in which almost every action except North's pass might be questioned, Freeman played one diamond doubled. He won the top-heart lead in dummy, played a club to the ace, and led another club. West mistakenly shifted to a trump now, and East won his diamond ace to force declarer with a heart. South pitched his spade, ruffed the next top heart, and led a winning club. East ruffed to lead a spade, again trumped by declarer.

Freeman now led another winning club (pitching a spade from dummy) and East ruffed to lead a spade. When Freeman trumped and led yet another winning club to pitch the last spade from dummy, East had to ruff again. In the two-card ending, East was on lead with one trump and one spade left, dummy had a lower trump and a heart, and declarer held the master trump and a winning club. East could lead a trump and let declarer claim in hand, or he could lead a spade to let declarer crossruff. Making one diamond doubled in one room and four hearts in the other room represented a huge pick-up for the Nickell team.

ANSWER: Respond one spade rather than one heart, planning to compete to two hearts if the opponents bid again. You may not have much, but you do have enough to get both majors into play at the two-level, assuming you can trust your partner always to deliver a reasonably shape-suitable hand for his double.

Today is Thursday, Dec. 1, the 335th day of 2011. There are 30 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Dec. 1, 1941, Japan's Emperor Hirohito approved waging war against the United States, Britain and the Netherlands after his government rejected U.S. demands contained in the Hull Note, including a call for Japan to withdraw all of its forces from China and French Indochina.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1824, the presidential election was turned over to the U.S. House of Representatives when a deadlock developed between John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, William H. Crawford and Henry Clay. (Adams ended up the winner.)

In 1860, the Charles Dickens novel "Great Expectations" was first published in weekly serial form.

In 1909, the first kibbutz was founded in the Jordan Valley by a group of Jewish pioneers; the collective settlement became known as Degania Alef.

In 1921, the Navy flew the first nonrigid dirigible to use helium; the C-7 traveled from Hampton Roads, Va., to Washington, D.C.

In 1934, Soviet communist official Sergei M. Kirov, an associate of Josef Stalin, was assassinated in Leningrad, resulting in a massive purge.

In 1955, Rosa Parks, a black seamstress, was arrested after refusing to give up her seat to a white man on a Montgomery, Ala., city bus; the incident sparked a year-long boycott of the buses by blacks.

In 1969, the U.S. government held its first draft lottery since World War II.

In 1973, David Ben-Gurion, Israel's first prime minister, died in Tel Aviv at age 87.

In 1990, British and French workers digging the Channel Tunnel between their countries finally met after knocking out a passage in a service tunnel.

In 1991, Ukrainians voted overwhelmingly for independence from the Soviet Union.

Ten years ago: Two suicide bombers blew themselves up in back-to-back explosions at a downtown Jerusalem pedestrian mall, killing 11 bystanders. A baby girl was born to Japan's Crown Princess Masako and Crown Prince Naruhito, the royal couple's first child in eight years of marriage; she was later named Aiko.

Five years ago: Felipe Calderon took the oath of office as Mexico's president amid catcalls and brawling lawmakers, a chaotic start to a term in which he pledged to heal a country divided by his narrow victory. Officials reported that Typhoon Dorian had killed as many as 200 people when it tore through the eastern Philippines (the storm was eventually blamed for 1,399 deaths).

One year ago: President Barack Obama's bipartisan deficit commission unveiled its recommendations including lower income taxes, fewer tax breaks and higher age for retirement benefits (however, the panel failed to advance the package to Congress two days later by a vote of 11 in favor, 7 against, falling short of the 14 votes needed). PGA players meeting in Orlando, Fla., voted to allow transgender players to compete on tour.

DEAR ABBY: I want you to know how much I agree with your answer to "Paying for My Popcorn in Oregon" (Sept. 15), who complained about her niece sneaking food into the theater.

I used to teach a parenting class to parents who had kids in trouble with the law. I started out by asking, "How many of you teach your children to lie, cheat or steal?" Of course nobody admitted they did. I then had about 20 items I'd list, the movie food issue being one, driving over the speed limit, and so on. At least one of the 20 applied to everybody. Then I'd say: "You taught your kids that it was OK to lie, cheat and steal — it's only getting caught that's bad. That's why you are in my class today." This is what that niece is teaching her children.

— PAUL IN DENVER

DEAR PAUL: Thank you for agreeing. However, I'm sorry to say that many readers thought the issue was more about the cost and selection of snacks than that of cheating the theater owners. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: For a family of four to see a movie and get a drink and popcorn or candy costs about $80. This is highway robbery. The cost of a drink is about 5 or 10 cents to the theater, and they charge a whopping $5. The same goes for popcorn. Let's be serious. How much does popcorn cost? A tub of popcorn at a theater is $7.50. My children want the whole theater experience, which includes a snack. How can a family afford to go to the movies at these prices? Theater owners should be able to make a reasonable profit on the snacks, but this is ridiculous. Sorry, I will continue to bring my snacks in.

— KIM IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: While I agree that it is the theater operators' prerogative to set policy and make money, I have done what the niece is doing, but for different reasons. My children and I are allergic to corn products as well as artificial colors and flavorings — ingredients in every product commonly sold at movie concession stands.

Recently my family has made a different choice. We either eat before we go, or we wait for the DVD and stay home. I would like companies to know that when they exclude outside food, they also exclude my family.

— ALLERGIC IN NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY: By teaching children that it's OK to cheat on this particular issue, they will generalize that it's OK to cheat ANYTIME, if they don't agree with whoever sets the rules. Thus it may become OK to cheat in school because "he makes the tests too hard," or to engage in underage drinking because "the law is stupid, and besides, everyone does it."

Just wait until they decide it's OK to sneak out of the house when Mom says "no" because "her reasons are lame!" That mother had better be careful when she justifies, because what parents teach their kids will affect them sooner or later.

— SUSIE IN OLYMPIA, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: "Paying" could search for activities to help them see another way of looking at the world. Instead of going to a movie, I suggest that the aunt arrange to take the children (with or without her niece) to an outing such as craft time at a library, a visit to a museum, or gather in the kitchen to share a family recipe and donate the food to a local shelter. They could spend an afternoon helping at the local food pantry, which would provide an opportunity for her to discuss values and priorities. In this way she could interact with her niece and the children and build lasting memories. They could even go to the grocery store and make a game out of seeing how much food they could buy for the amount they would have spent at the movie.

IF DECEMBER 1 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and Christmas, your undiscriminating charm can attract new friends from varied walks of life. You can ride high on tide of romantic ideals for the next few weeks but must buckle down to concentrate on getting ahead in late January and February. What is most important in your life may undergo a shift in mid-March as you make wise decisions and sound evaluations. Avoid making major decisions or beginning key relationships in May or July when your impulsive side could overcome your common sense. You will be blessed by a vast improvement in some vital area of your life by the time your next birthday arrives.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Adopting a self-reliant attitude is the best road to success. If you are preoccupied with comparing your performance to others or weighing what you against what you don't have, you lose traction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remember the motto that "the truth shall set you free." Be forthright with others and you may find that they graciously provide you with exactly what you have been trying to obtain on your own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Bend with the wind. A few surprises may be in store, so hang loose and don't let a change in plans put you off your feed. Keep an open mind and listen to intriguing concepts that heighten your understanding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): In the land of the blind, the one-eyed man is king. If you struggle with confusion, find someone with clarity. Earnest one-on-one conversations can straighten out misconceptions and restore the peace.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Easy does it. If you can't change the world around you, then change your expectations. You may yearn to climb out of a certain rut, but you could find it difficult to get a leg up or any cooperation from others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Curb your desires to pursue intimacy under these stars. It is possible to meet with someone who tweaks your amorous interest, but also possible that it is only the chase that is enticing, not the conquest itself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concentrate on improving yourself instead of others. A little agitation may shake things up and blend people around you into a united front. "All for one and one for all" is an excellent motto to adopt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work toward unity. When everyone is pushing forward, their own individual agendas it is difficult to see the final product. Your task today might be to act as the go-between and peacemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adjust to new situations. Emotional confrontations could put you at cross-purposes with others and confuse the real issues. Put disputes on the back burner and discuss them later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your flesh may be willing, but your spirit is a bit contentious. Play it foot-loose and fancy free where matters of the heart are concerned. Talking seriously about a relationship could bring up delicate issues.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Unleash enthusiasms and let them run freely. You don't need to hide your light under the bushel of restraint. Your charitable instincts make it easy to forgive those who have been overly competitive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Remember that like attracts like. Your strength lies in your ability to be a faithful and trustworthy partner. Ambiguity could cause mix-ups, but a whimsical attitude puts a cheerful veneer on rough edges.

St. Luke's Wood River Selects New CEO

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

St. Luke's Health System announced Wednesday the hiring of a new chief executive officer for its Ketchum hospital.

Cody Langbehn will take over as CEO of St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center on Jan. 23. He replaces interim CEO John Kee, who will now continue his role as vice president of physician services for St. Luke's Health System.

"I feel very fortunate to be able to relocate to the Wood River Valley," Langbehn said. "It's a perfect opportunity to move to a highly reputable health system. They have an exceptional leadership team that is evident with their board of directors and medical team."

Langbehn, executive director of regional operations at Billings Clinic in Billings, Mont., will oversee operations of the 25-bed critical access hospital that serves central Idaho patients.

Festival

Rachelle Lind, foundation member and director of the festival decorating committee, said there will be about 60 holiday items on display, including trees, wreaths, centerpieces and garlands.

Joel Robbins, treasurer for the health care foundation, said the festival brought in $34,000 last year.

Lind said the money was used to purchase a new electrocardiogram machine, which records the electrical activity of the heart muscles. The foundation also uses the money to pay for renewable scholarships awarded to students entering the health care field.

The festival will feature local entertainment, a holiday kitchen and visits for children with Santa Claus. There will also be a wide array of candy and baked goods to purchase from the Cassia Regional Hospital Volunteers.

The proceeds from the baked goods go into the hospital volunteers' coffers. Last year, the money funded lighting for the surgical center.

Two Injured in Blaine County Airplane Crash

TIMES-NEWS

Two Boise residents were injured Tuesday when their airplane crashed east of Hailey.

Paul Tower, 56, and Christina Rathbun, 40, were both hospitalized after their airplane crashed shortly after it took off from Friedman Memorial Airport. The single-propeller plane hit a mountainside at approximately 7:03 p.m.

Both were taken to St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center in Ketchum, and later taken by air ambulance to St. Luke's Boise Medical Center. On Wednesday afternoon, neither was listed as a patient at the Boise hospital.

According to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office, Tower, the pilot, reported problems with his autopilot system just before the crash.

The incident is being investigated by the Federal Aviation Administration.
