FOUR FACE JUDGE FOR ALLEGED ABDUCTION OF TWIN FALLS BOY

Only hours after their Wednesday arrest, Stefanie Contreras and her alleged accomplices appeared shackled to be arraigned on multiple felony charges.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Four people allegedly conspired Wednesday to take 4-year old Brandon Bearce from his Twin Falls home. On Thursday, with the boy returned to his father, the shackled suspects answered to a judge about the alleged abduction.

The boy's mother, 28-year-old Stefanie Marie Contreras, appeared with David Altes, 39, Daniel Thomas, 35, and Kelvin Milo Jr., 20, to be arraigned in Twin Falls 5th District Magistrate Court, less than 24 hours after three were captured Wednesday night by police in Hailey. Twin Falls police arrested Altes at about midnight Thursday.

Contreras, who along with Thomas and Milo appeared in a Twin Falls courtroom through a video feed from the Blaine County Jail, is charged with felony child custodial interference and burglary. The three male suspects each face a charge of conspiracy to commit interference, among other charges.

Judge Roger Harris set a $150,000 bond for Contreras and Thomas, and $75,000 for Altes and Milo. Harris initially set Contreras' bond at $500,000 but reduced it after hearing arguments from the state and defense counsel. Harris signed a no-contact order with Jason Bearce, the boy's father, for all defendants. Thomas, who allegedly fired a 9mm pistol at Bearce, claimed at his arraignment that he doesn't know Bearce's name.

Joslin Field Still Welcomes Small Aircraft

While U.S. airlines are thinning their fleets of small aircraft, the two commercial services that fly into the Magic Valley say no cutbacks are on the immediate horizon.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

On a national scale, this trend doesn't bode well for small-town airports.

Airlines are getting rid of small planes that link passengers to larger hub airports as fuel prices rise. Delta, United, Continental, and other big airlines are expected to park, scrap or sell hundreds of jets with 50 seats or fewer in coming years. Already, 27 small airports in the continental U.S. from Minnesota to California have lost service from well-known commercial airlines over the last two years.

For now, Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport in Twin Falls is bucking the trend. Delta carrier SkyWest currently flies 30-seat airplanes out of the airport three times daily.

Those flights used to be more frequent. Before mid-September, SkyWest operated four daily flights connecting Twin Falls to the Delta hub in Salt Lake City.

Three Creek Down to One School Trustee

With the school's decision-making in limbo, Twin Falls County officials will appoint a new trustee Tuesday so the tiny Owyhee County district's business can move forward.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

In Idaho's remote southern reaches, a one-room schoolhouse with just a handful of students has a unique problem.

The Three Creek Joint Elementary District in Owyhee County has only one school board member after one resigned and former Board Chairman Harlan Mink died last month.

Sole Trustee Gus Brackett said daily operations at the school haven't been affected. Planning, however, has ground to a halt, as the school's decision-making board can't legally vote to take action at meetings without a quorum of at least two board members.

"We just can't come up with long-term strategies," he said.

This Could Be the County's New Home

Architects Thursday presented a first look at the cost of moving Twin Falls County into the former St. Luke's Magic Valley building.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

A plan to make use of the old St. Luke's hospital in Twin Falls is taking shape. Maybe.

On Thursday, an architectural firm presented rough schematics and a $5.8 million cost estimate to remodel part of the nearly 75,000-square-foot structure on Addison Avenue West, which St. Luke's vacated this summer. The hospital leased the facility from 2006, when it bought Twin Falls

FILER POLICE INVESTIGATE HOME INVASION

TIMES-NEWS

Filer police were working Thursday night to sort out the details of an alleged home invasion earlier that evening.

According to Police Chief Timothy Reeves, three suspects reportedly entered a home at 108 Main St. shortly before 8:50 p.m. Armed with a firearm, they stole some property from the house and then fled, Reeves said.

Police learned of the incident when the owner of the home called for medical assistance, reporting pain from being forced to the ground during the robbery.

Fundraising Continues as Twin Falls Senior Center Wrangles Funding

With new leadership across the board, the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center is still trying to figure out how bad its financial situation has become.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Facing repeated incidents of financial woe, the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center is now repeating fundraising efforts.

Last month, the center raised $4,200 in a spaghetti dinner fundraiser. Not expecting that sum of money, the center is hosting another dinner fundraiser on Dec. 14 with hopes of raising even more cash.

“It’s the giving season,” said Heidi Heil, the recently appointed marketing director for the center and a new board member. “I believe we can double our efforts, it was such a good success in November.”

But just how much financial struggle the center is in and how much the fundraisers will help is yet to be determined.

Eric Samples, the center’s site manager, told the board of directors in October that the center was $26,000 in debt and had enough funds to remain open for 120 days.

The center faced similar problems in years past. In 2010, Phillip Kottraba, the center’s director at the time, reported that the center was $20,000 in debt to two food companies.

The center has since seen a turnover in staff and board members as it tries to climb its way back into the black.

Samples didn’t know how much debt the center still has, but said officials were “making gains,” thanks to an influx of recent donations.

The center’s bookkeeper, who knew the exact debt amount the center faced, recently resigned, Samples said. Debbi Brennan, who has a background in accounting, was hired a week ago to take over the facility’s finances. Brennan still hadn’t seen all the facility’s finances but said she believed the center would pull through.

As of right now, the center plans to host another spaghetti dinner in January, Heil said.

“We have a kitchen at our disposal, so our future fundraisers are most likely to be food-based,” she said.

sioners, clerk, treasurer, assessor, department of motor vehicles and a few others would go into the old hospital.

The plans are far from final, as the project has not gone out to bid. A winning agency could concoct a different schematic from what Hummel offered on Thursday.

The commissioners will confer with heads of other county services to gauge further interest in a move. A Hummel timeline projects putting the project to bid in May 2012, with construction starting about two months later and the move set for February 2013. The timeline is flexible, as the county doesn’t have to vacate any of its current property.

Drug Dealer Could Serve 1 Year in Prison

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

A Twin Falls businesswoman facing drug charges in Twin Falls and Gooding counties has pleaded guilty to an amended charge in her Gooding County case, and could spend a year behind bars.

Carlene Harding, 48, entered a plea for possession of marijuana with intent to deliver on Nov. 15 in Gooding County 5th District Court. Twin Falls County dismissed three charges of felony possession as part of a plea agreement for the Gooding case.

“They don’t see any further reductions in flights,” said Airport Manager Bill Carberry, adding that he has had discussions with SkyWest.

Marissa Snow, spokeswoman for SkyWest, said: “There remains a certain niche for 30-seat aircraft in the right-sized market.”

As for what the future holds, Snow said, the company is “continually evaluating” the need for each flight.

“Specific to Twin Falls and SkyWest, we have great flexibility to respond to the market,” she said. “We have the flexibility to respond as necessary to meet the demands.”

Larger aircraft have a place at Joslin Field, too. Allegiant offers twice-weekly flights to Las Vegas on 150-seat jets.

The airline did some seasonal cutbacks, temporarily stopping the flights to Twin Falls in mid-August and resuming them in early November.

Kristine Cooper, spokeswoman for Allegiant, said the company has its sights set on leisure travelers from smaller, underserved markets.

Gooding County Prosecutor Calvin Campbell said the state’s recommendation for Harding will be that she serve at least one year in prison.

She is scheduled for sentencing on Jan. 3 in Gooding.

Harding was initially accused of trafficking when investigators found six pounds of marijuana in her car during an August 2010 traffic stop. She was pulled over for speeding on Interstate 84 near Bliss, but she was a person of interest to narcotics detectives prior to the stop.

According to a police report from Twin Falls County, woman for Allegiant, said the company has its sights set on leisure travelers from smaller, underserved markets.

“For us, that’s who we serve,” she said. “That’s our everyday customer.”

For travelers on Thursday, the Allegiant flight provided a quick connection to the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, which kicked off Thursday night.

Travelers said the quick route was better than the alternative of driving through Nevada or traveling to Boise or Salt Lake City to catch a flight.

Not all are frequent fliers, though. Morgan and Daniel Zunino, a couple from Twin Falls, only fly about once a year. Traveling back and forth to Vegas would take two days without the flights, Morgan said.

Kathy Kent of Hazelton, who was also headed to the rodeo, said the convenience is nice.

“We’re flying direct to Vegas and we’re loving it,” she said.

Idaho’s airline service has-

Harding has been the subject of investigation since March 2010, during which sheriff’s deputies interviewed various suspects who have pinned Harding as “Momma” — allegedly a major local marijuana dealer. Deputies have sifted through her trash, used K-9 units to sniff out a suspected stash at a local storage-rental business and served a search warrant on Harding’s residence.

The search turned up glass pipes with burnt residue that tested for marijuana; a ledger and other pages with dollar amounts next to names, initials and weights, which had words such as “Hash” written down; a .22-caliber revolver; and a bag full of pills identified as oxycodone, hydrocodone and Alprazolam — all controlled substances.

In an August 2010 interview with investigators, Harding told police she had turned to selling marijuana “because the economy is so bad.” Harding owns A Classier Clip dog grooming business on Eighth Avenue East in Twin Falls. She told police that business there had fallen off by half, leading her to selling dope on the side.

50-seat CRJ-200 made by Bombardier takes 19 gallons of fuel to fly each passenger 500 miles. Fuel usage drops to just 7.5 gallons per passenger on Delta’s 160-seat MD-90 over the same distance.

So while the bigger jet burns more fuel overall, it’s more efficient.

Delta is moving away from small jets more aggressively than other airlines. It will eliminate 121 50-seat jets from October 2008 through the end of next year. That will leave it with 324.

felony convictions in Idaho, but Milo argued “I’ve been a good kid up until now.”

He is serving a 10-year probationary term, as he was convicted of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 in January 2010. He completed a 10-month retained-jurisdiction program and faces up to 10 years in prison if prosecutors file for a probation violation.

Thomas was convicted of burglary in 1998 in Bingham County and felony grand theft in 1995 in Twin Falls County. He was charged with first-degree kidnapping in Kootenai County in 2007, but those charges were dismissed. Altes received a three-year probationary term for a 2007 conviction on burglary in Twin Falls County.

According to the Twin Falls County Prosecutor’s Office, Contreras, joined by Thomas and Milo, entered the Pierce Street home of Bearce at about 10 a.m. to take Brandon. It is alleged that Thomas fired a single shot in the direction of Jason Bearce, who said Thomas tried to fire again, but the gun jammed.

Thomas later told police he fired at the floor, but investigators reported finding a bullet hole in a bedroom wall.

The trio allegedly fled in a maroon minivan to Altes’ Maurice Street residence, and fled again when police responded to a tip that Contreras and child were in the house. Tactical units from Twin Falls city and county law enforcement attempted to make contact with Contreras at about 12:30 p.m. — they believed she and boy were in an upstairs bedroom — for nearly two hours, but later realized no one was there. Police left the area at approximately 3:30 p.m.

According to the criminal complaint, Thomas was responsible for taking Contreras and the boy to Hailey.

Contreras, Thomas and Milo were arrested in Hailey at about 9 p.m. Wednesday night, and booked into Blaine County Jail. They were transferred to Twin Falls Thursday afternoon. Twin Falls police arrested Altes on a section of U.S. Highway 30 west of Twin Falls about three hours later.

Trustee

Now, it’s up to Twin Falls County commissioners to appoint a school board member during their meeting Wednesday, even though the school district is in a different county. Three Creek is in the southeast corner of Owyhee County, which borders Twin Falls County to the west.

“We’ve done a lot of research because it’s pretty rare,” Commissioner Terry Kramer said of the necessity to appoint a new school trustee in another county.

Under Idaho Code, the school board appointment has to be made by commissioners in the county where school district business is handled. An accountant in Buhl — located within Twin Falls County — handles the Three Creek district’s finances.

“It’s all very strange to have this happen,” Kramer said.

Commissioners will decide on a second board member just in time for the next school board meeting to be held Dec. 14. Then, the school board will select a third member.

Idaho’s three elementary-only school districts — including Three Creek — can accommodate students in kindergarten through eighth grades and only have three board members. That’s fewer than the five board members for other school districts.

Brackett said he’s recruited two people within school district boundaries to apply for the open board position.

“Without a question, we’ll have a board,” he said. However, in a small town like Three Creek, it isn’t always easy finding people to fill those positions.

“With only 70 people, it’s always a challenge,” Brackett said. However, “the community is dedicated to keeping the school open.”

Four students are currently enrolled at the one-room schoolhouse.

The school’s also geographically isolated. Without a school in Three Creek, Brackett says students would have to travel at least 20 miles on a dirt road to get to another school.

Study: Hailey Airport Affects Almost 1 of Every 2 Blaine Co. Jobs

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

HAILEY • How important is Friedman Memorial Airport to Blaine County?

Important enough that nearly one of every two jobs is affected by the airport.

That's the conclusion of a study prepared by Sustain Blaine, Sun Valley's economic development agency. Sustain Blaine presented its findings to more than a hundred Wood River Valley business owners and government officials Wednesday night at the Valley Club in Hailey.

Sustain Blaine's Executive Director Harry Griffith said the study was undertaken due to a lack of accurate information regarding the airport's impact on the county's economy. This kind of information will be needed, he said, as the community decides what to do with the Hailey airport following the Federal Aviation Administration's decision to suspend work on two sites being considered for a new airport.

Friedman boasts the second-biggest economic impact of Idaho's seven commercial airports, Griffith said, after Boise. Twin Falls is fourth. Per capita, the Hailey airport has the largest impact on the local economy.

Friedman supplies more than 1,550 jobs and boasts an economic impact of between $143 million and $374 million. That includes direct impact through landing fees and airport employee salaries, and indirect impact from visitors who buy groceries or lift tickets after flying into Friedman.

"And that's conservative — it could be higher," Griffith said.

The majority of the county's 1,700 businesses, which generate $820 million a year, are impacted by air service. That ranges from tourists visiting Sun Valley Resort to Power Engineer employees heading out of Hailey to work at sites around the world, to businesses using air service to import or export products.

"Commercial air service is the engine that drives the Blaine County economy and binds our communities together. It is critical to jobs and businesses and wages," Griffith said.

The economic impact could be boosted, he added, with more reliability and more competitive pricing. Currently, Friedman loses 38,000 potential passengers to Boise each year, along with 10,000 to Salt Lake City and 14,000 to other Idaho airports. Friedman could also capture new markets with larger aircraft.

Business owners polled in the audience indicated they would benefit most from new markets opened to San Diego and Chicago. More than a quarter of the business owners also said they could hire more employees if air service was improved. A majority said they could increase their bottom lines by at least 11 percent.

Dr. Rich Paris noted that air service can be a matter of life and death when St. Luke's Wood River Medical Center needs to fly patients to Salt Lake City.

"And every time a baby is born or grandpa breaks a hip, four or five people fly into town," he added.

Steve Kearns said he wondered if the group was asking the right questions, noting that the debate within the community hasn't been about the airport's importance but where to put a new one.

But real estate developer George Kirk said the option of alternative sites had been shut down.

"Closing is not an option. To me, the option is: What do we do at the existing site?" he added.

One concern: Sun Valley has lost 35 percent to 40 percent of its seats during the past five years, noted Wally Huffman, director of resort development for Sun Valley Co. "If that trend continues, what impact will that have?"

Gooding County Schedules Wendell Town Hall Meeting for Jail Discussion

TIMES-NEWS

A town hall meeting to present Gooding County's proposed jail is scheduled for 7 p.m. Dec. 14 at the Wendell High School auditorium, Sheriff Shaun Gough said Thursday.

Gooding County officials hope to operate a jail on a nine-acre parcel of land along the south shoulder of North Frontage Road. It is near the railroad tracks and Wendell's main onramp to Interstate 84.

As the county continues the push toward leasing a new facility — Rocky Mountain Corrections would find investors, buy the land and build the jail — officials want to meet with Wendell leaders and citizens to discuss the impact of the plan.

The property is outside the city by mere feet, but the site is connected to city water and sewer services. An existing building, which formerly housed various restaurants and a day care center, is abandoned and would be torn down to make way for a correctional facility.

Rocky Mountain Corrections estimates the cost of construction for a 150-bed facility is $7 million to $8 million. Gooding County would pay a per-bed, per-day lease, coming out to roughly $1.15 million per year.

The site would be leased one year at a time, avoiding the legal necessity of putting a jail bond on a future ballot. Gough estimates the sheriff's office could save $500,000 annually, as other counties would pay Gooding County to house their overflow inmates. It's also possible that Gooding County could gain a contract to hold U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement deportees.

A deadline isn't set, but officials have said the project could be complete as early as summer 2013.

Greenleaf Team Rocked by Loss of Basketball Coach

BY BRUCE MASON
The Idaho Press Tribune

GREENLEAF • The tubes connected him to a respirator and life support. His domineering figure, a few inches shy of a 7-foot stature, was motionless upon the hospital bed.

Mantia Callender, whose glowing smile and lovable laugh created an infectious personality, was now succumbed to a tragic state, mere minutes from dying.

One by one, the boys of Greenleaf Friends Academy approached the hospital bed of Callender, their 38-year-old basketball coach. They were heartbroken, eyes flooding with tears, sobbing on the 22nd day of November as they were delivering the most difficult goodbye of their teenage lives — a goodbye lasting forever.

Callender was the gentleman who helped nurture them into mature players, into a group whose 2011-12 season was ripe with 1A state-qualifying expectations.

But complications from a brain aneurysm, followed by two massive strokes, placed him here, into a brain-dead state. He was merely minutes from dying when the Greenleaf players received a call from his wife, Rebecca.

“The boys need to come say goodbye,” she said.

He would want this. He would want to hear the voices of the kids he viewed as his sons, one last time. Senior starter Nate Pool approached the bed. He softly grabbed Callender’s hand. “I love you, coach,” Pool said through teary eyes. “I’ll see you someday.”

Another hospital visitor was senior starter Leighton Tiegs, a calm kid who often lacked aggression. Callender often wanted Tiegs to play with more intensity “down low,” the areas underneath the basket, or in the paint, where physical battles occurred.

“I will be a beast down low,” Tiegs said to Callender, as they shared a warming grasp.

Another visitor was senior starter Brandon Fisk, an accurate shooter who often passed the ball away, someone who Callender kept telling to “keep shooting, keep shooting,” just launch those jumpers.

“I’m gonna keep shooting,” Fisk said to his coach. “I love you.” Junior starter JB Bermudez-Koch was there, too. He didn’t voice a word aloud, but he said them in his head, in spirit. “I just thanked him, and I knew he was in a good place,” Bermudez-Koch said.

This would’ve been a delightful year for Callender, whose team progressed each season, from 12 wins during the 2009-2010 season, to 15 wins in 2010-11, to this promising 2011-12 campaign, starting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at home against Adrian (Ore.).

Through the years, Callender watched Tiegs, Fisk and Pool grow from short, smaller sophomores, to 6-foot seniors. Callender, who played professionally overseas for 10 years, instilled team concepts he learned through his successful career. He preached defense first, offense second. Hustle always. Finish strong. Practice your best, because you will play how you practice.

“He just pushed us and pushed us until we got better,” Tiegs said. “He made a big impact in everybody’s life. He wrote a big chapter in my life.”

Those chapters displayed pages of comic relief, too.

“He had this one saying: ‘Come out like a pack of wolves, like you’re going to eat somebody,’” recalls Bermudez-Koch with a smile and laugh. “Just come out and be so aggressive for the first part of the game, and for the second half of the game.”

“That was one of the funny sayings,” Bermudez-Koch said.

Callender’s comedy also involved uplifting analogies.

Consider Brandon Fisk, who was mired in a slump during his junior season. He went home one day after practice, sad and down in the dumps until his phone rang.

It was Callender.

“He called me one night,” Fisk recalls with a chuckle. “He said, ‘Last year, you were like an ugly caterpillar in a cocoon. This year, you broke out of your cocoon, and turned into a beautiful butterfly.’”

For those reasons, Fisk referred to Callender as “a second father.” For those reasons, the replacement coaches will try and sustain Callender’s approach on the bench.

“What we’re just trying to do, is keep Mantia’s touch this season,” said Greenleaf athletic director Karri Fisk, who will coach alongside John Ehrlich and her husband, Randy Fisk.

Family and friends will pay their respects to Callender Thursday. Some of the Greenleaf players will visit before the game. Others feel their tearful goodbye was delivered inside the hospital room on Nov. 22.

Regardless, they’ll wear the white, red and black Grizzlies jerseys tonight with a purpose: Win for coach.

“I think we all have a fire in our bellies, to go out and win for him,” Brandon Fisk said. “Just play hard for him, and do what he would’ve wanted us to do.”

What would he want them to do?

He would want them to play with integrity — if you knock down your opponent, extend your hand, lift him up. Never whine to referees. Play with character. Play the way Callender carried himself during stints at the College of Southern Idaho, Middle Tennessee State and 10 professional seasons in five different countries.

He would want them to play with heart. To play through adversity. To play for each other.

Above all, he would want them to live life to the fullest, to not hold grudges, to live without bitterness and hatred.

Callender’s final Facebook post, written when he was healthy and before the aneurysm even occurred, contained these words: “Life is too short. Be thankful that you wake up one more time every morning, tell your loved ones you love them,” the post said.

That was Mantia Callender, always looking on the bright side of life, says his wife, Rebecca. “He just wanted everyone to succeed in life the way he had,” she said.

He loved to see his players smile. And he loved to see them succeed. And although he’s no longer on the Grizzlies bench, he’ll still be able to watch from above, says Brandon Fisk.

“He’ll be watching us on his big screen — yelling at us, cheering us on,” Fisk said with a smile.

BSU PROF RECEIVES VIETNAM'S MEDAL OF HONOR

BY CYNTHIA SEWELL
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Nancy Napier, a Boise State College of Business and Economics professor, has been awarded Vietnam's highest award for contributions to education in the Southeast Asian country.

The Vietnamese Ministry of Education and Training conferred the Medal of Honor on Napier during a special ceremony Nov. 18 in Hanoi, Vietnam, honoring her long-time work there, particularly at the National Economics University, according to a news release.

From 1994 to 2003, Napier led Boise State's $8.5 million capacity building project at NEU, which involved delivering Boise State's MBA to 84 participants, supporting more than 20 Vietnamese faculty members in other master's and doctoral programs around the world, and helping to establish Vietnam's first international standard business school in 1997.

"Many years ago, Nancy Napier had the inspiration to form a partnership between the College of Business and Economics and the country of Vietnam that would help that country begin to reshape its economy," said Patrick Shannon, dean of Boise State's College of Business and Economics. "What started out as an MBA opportunity for Vietnamese students has turned into a 20-year relationship with the country's leaders. We are very proud of Nancy for her leadership and are thrilled that Vietnam has chosen to recognize her with this wonderful honor."

The nine-year project involved more than 25 Boise State faculty members and administrators, more than 50 other faculty members from various countries around the world, and brought more than 100 Vietnamese to Boise to learn about education and doing business in a market economy.

Report: Idaho Meets Student Data Goals

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

BOISE • A new report shows Idaho has met all 10 goals in a national project to collect and monitor data on student achievement, but the state still needs to improve when it comes to effectively using the information being collected.

The report from the Data Quality Campaign was released Thursday.

Idaho, until last year, was among a few states without a longitudinal data system to provide more accurate graduation rates and dropout statistics. The state started operating the new student tracking method during the 2010-2011 school year.

School administrators and business managers slammed the state's installation of the system on surveys earlier this year and their complaints, which ranged from a lack of training to problems reporting the data, were reported to lawmakers this summer.

While school officials urged the state to slow down with the installation of the new system, public schools chief Tom Luna has countered that wasn't an option.

Idaho was the last state to install a longitudinal data system to better track students and state officials agreed to have the program in operation by September 2011 when taking some $300 million in federal stimulus money two years ago, according to the state Department of Education.

Luna has said that some of the complaints are valid while others are not. He told lawmakers on the Idaho Legislature's budget-writing committee in June that his agency had been working on most of the concerns for months and a good portion had already been addressed.

Luna is scheduled update lawmakers on the implementation of Idaho's longitudinal data system later this month.

"The biggest challenge we had was with the districts uploading their data and it being correct," said Luna spokeswoman Melissa McGrath. "There was a lot of back-and-forth last year about making corrections and how do you get the correct data because it was the first year they ever used this new system."

More than a dozen Idaho school districts volunteered for an audit of the new system, which is designed to collect and monitor student test scores, attendance and other data from the time they enroll in kindergarten. The results of that audit, which was among the requirements Idaho agreed to when taking the stimulus money, will likely not be ready for release by Luna's Dec. 15 meeting with the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

That state has seen a dramatic improvement in the information being collected, McGrath said.

For example, only nine districts and charter schools uploaded data that was free of errors last year, she said. This year, 133 of Idaho's 160 school districts and charter schools uploaded data that was free of mistakes.

"There still might be challenges because the system is new, but it is getting easier at the district level to upload data," McGrath said.

Idaho is among 36 states that have implemented all 10 goals set by the Data Quality Campaign for a robust longitudinal data system, according to the report released on Thursday. That's up from zero states in 2005, the group said.

The Washington, D.C.-based campaign was founded in 2005 and pushes states to keep better data to help improve public education.

States were also scored on how well they use the data in 10 different areas. Idaho met four of those goals, including the creation of progress reports with student-level data for educators, students and parents. The six areas where Idaho did not make the grade included linking the information collected in kindergarten through 12th grades with workforce data so the state can better prepare students for jobs, according to the study.

"States have worked so diligently to build their capacity to collect and use quality education data, but we will see improved student achievement only when all stakeholders—from parents to policymakers—actually use these data to make informed decisions," said campaign director Aimee Guidera in a statement.

OPINION

Let's Clean Up These Homes and Move On

Idaho's rules to clean up residential methamphetamine labs make a lot of sense for 2005, the year they were first passed. Today, only 43 properties remain statewide on an Idaho Department of Health and Welfare list of contaminated former meth labs. Idaho now gets its meth from Mexican superlabs, and the fight against the drug now plays out on our highways rather than in our homes.

In Twin Falls, the people responsible for the contamination are in prison — leaving banks, homeowners and landlords to figure out what to do about what's left behind. Under current law, the cleanup is their responsibility.

On average, it costs $5,000 to $10,000 to pay a cleaning company to scrub a meth-contaminated house. That's a range of $215,000 to $430,000 to polish off all 43 properties.

Idaho's general fund spending this fiscal year totals $2.5 billion. $430,000 is about as much as the state set aside in total for the Redistricting Commission to burn through bickering about legislative lines this year. The State Department of Administration received more money just to format and distribute Idaho's administrative rules.

But hey, we're a conservative state emerging from a recession and limiting how much we step up government spending. Let's do this without new state funds. No problem.

Seek help from the Idaho Millennium Fund, formed using tobacco-settlement payments and which exists for drug-related projects. Pin down other grant funding. Strike partnerships between city governments and local foundations. Incentivize cleaning companies to donate work at a reduced rate, and property owners to pay for the job.

And that assumes all 43 properties on the list need treatment. At two of Twin Falls' three remaining properties, the labs were located in trailers or sheds not directly connected to the main house. At one location, the trailer was disposed of years ago — should this whole house still be on the list?

While the cleanup details are hashed out, property owners should make an extra effort to be open about their sites — not just when selling homes, as is legally required, but also when renting them. If landowners can't find it in themselves to rise to the occasion, the state should make it clear that they need to.

We're Idahoans. We're self-sufficient, principled, and we shouldn't have to put up with any of this mess.

We've already got a fight on our hands stemming the flood of meth from Mexico. Let's not wait to sweep up the remains from the last battle.

Facebook's Example Should Make Other Social Media Behave Better

The following editorial appeared Wednesday in the Los Angeles Times:

The day after news leaked about Facebook's plans for a blockbuster initial stock offering, the Federal Trade Commission announced a proposed consent order that would rein in the social network's free-wheeling approach to its users' personal information. The order reiterates an important principle that has been guiding the commission's approach to online privacy: Consumers, not Facebook, get to decide how their personal information will be shared online.

Facebook's approach to privacy has improved over the years, but it's still capable of egregious missteps. One example is its decision in 2009 to make all the profile photos users had uploaded public, even if they had previously instructed Facebook to limit access to them. Although the company admits no wrongdoing, the tentative settlement would impose a series of requirements on Facebook that should give users more control over the personal information they've shared with friends and acquaintances online. Technology changes so rapidly that regulators risk deterring companies and competitors from innovating their way to better privacy controls. The requirements imposed by the proposed order avoid that problem by setting standards for Facebook to meet, not prescribing methods for how to do so. One of the order's mandates would require Facebook to stop misleading users about the information it disclosed to third parties. Another would bar Facebook from disclosing any "nonpublic" information — anything that a user had told Facebook not to reveal to the entire Internet — until it obtained the user's permission. A third would force Facebook to submit independent audit reports on its privacy controls for 20 years — a burden that should help persuade other online companies to voluntarily follow the order's privacy blueprint. These are important steps, and consistent with the approach the commission took with the Google Buzz social network. The message, again, is that users don't automatically give online companies carte blanche to use personal information just because they posted it online. The commission expressed that most clearly when it required Facebook to stop giving third parties access to information that users thought they had deleted or profiles they had terminated. That Facebook wasn't doing so already suggests that, no matter how many times Chief Executive Mark Zuckerberg says "everyone needs complete control over who they share with at all times," he doesn't really understand what that means.

The Cream of the I States

It's been five years since the move from one "I" state to another (Illinois to Idaho). Someone asked, where are you moving? To Idaho, I said, and they said, where is that? I said in the Northwest above Nevada and Utah.

Ahh, the "I" states — what do they have? Indiana has the Indy 500. Iowa has corn and, oh yes, that's where the politicians go to test the waters. Illinois has Chicago politics and there is lots to see and do in Chicago.

And then there's Idaho! Coming into Twin Falls and crossing the Perrine Bridge for the first time and looking down over the lava stone walls to the canyon floor where the slithering Snake River gently flows along, I said, wow, unbelievable!

Yes, Idaho, that's what you have — the magnificent canyon with it's many water falls. It's absolutely awesome and nature made "to the ninth"!

How a Nampa Family Is Getting Help to Buy a Rehabilitated Home

BY SANDRA FORESTER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Travis and Julie Munson of Nampa will become first-time home-buyers Friday thanks to efforts by several organizations and the city to fill foreclosed homes.

The Munsons completed the Finally Home homebuyers program through the Idaho Housing and Finance Association, which gave them assistance with a down payment and closing costs, and access to mortgages with higher debt ratios. Munson said Finally Home gave him confidence in the home-buying process and the belief that he could handle owning one.

“My boys will have their own rooms. I’ve got a nice, big back yard. I want to get a dog.”

Travis Munson

Next, the couple qualified for a four-bedroom home with a bonus room in a middle-class West Nampa neighborhood near Midland Boulevard and Roosevelt Avenue.

The home was an empty foreclosure purchased by Mercy Housing Northwest-Idaho and the city using Neighborhood Stabilization Program funds. The program seeks to stabilize home values and restore distressed houses in areas hit hard by foreclosures, such as Nampa.

Mercy Housing used part of a $100,000 Priority Markets grant from Wells Fargo to rehabilitate the Munsons’ home, fixing problems and making it more energy-efficient and cost-efficient to maintain.

Thanks to the programs and funding, Munson, who makes slightly more than $30,000 a year as a chemical supervisor for an irrigation district, will have a nice home for a mortgage of $640 a month through First Mortgage of Idaho.

“The only way we’re able to get this house is with the grants,” he said.

The move means plenty of room for his young, growing family, Munson said. The Munsons had been raising their two boys and a girl, ages 9, 7 and 3, in a 900-square-foot, three-bedroom home.

“My boys will have their own rooms,” he said. “I’ve got a nice, big back yard. I want to get a dog.”

On Friday, Mercy Housing will welcome the Munsons into their home and give them the keys.

During a ceremony, Wells Fargo also will give Mercy Housing a check for $150,000 to rehabilitate 12 foreclosed homes.

In the past two years, the nonprofit Mercy Housing has rehabilitated and sold 12 such homes that once were distressed in the Treasure Valley.

The average income of home buyers has been about $34,000 for a family of four, although families with incomes upward of $60,000 annually can qualify, said Bob Reed, director of development for Mercy Housing.

“We have 15 other homes in the pipeline, (and) six have contracts from buyers,” Reed said.

Audit Seeks Policy on Funding for Idaho Colleges

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • The decades-old scuffle among Idaho’s four-year universities over whether they’re being fairly funded compared to each other will hardly be resolved by a review by the state’s performance audit bureau.

Office of Performance Evaluations auditors wrote the Idaho State Board of Education must first establish equity standards before anybody can determine if one school is enjoying relatively royal treatment, while another gets the short end of the stick.

It’s an old debate — one that’s emerged numerous times in recent decades, and it’s being driven, in part, because the funding gap between the University of Idaho, which now gets the most money per student, and Boise State University, which gets the least, widened nearly three-fold since 2006 as BSU’s enrollment has jumped.

“Those students should be properly accounted for,

and those students should be properly funded,” said Boise State President Bob Kustra, whose funding based on the state’s existing formula has fallen nearly a third over the last decade. He spoke before a panel of lawmakers who met Wednesday, when the report was released.

The UI gets about $3,500 in state appropriations per full time student, according to the current funding scheme that’s weighted based on program type and course level. Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston gets about $3,000, while Idaho State and BSU each receive less than $2,500.

Complicating this debate is that each school comes armed with arguments based on its own mission, laying out why it’s entitled to a fair, and usually growing, share of a limited pool of cash.

For instance, Kustra insists more attention be paid to rising enrollments — as his school in Idaho’s capital approaches 20,000 students. Idaho State University President Art Vilas underscores how the costs of health and engineering programs are rising faster than inflation for humanities programs. Not surprisingly, Vilas’ Pocatello school has a health and engineering focus.

The UI argues funding is appropriately weighted toward expensive research and graduate programs, the Moscow school’s bread and butter. Meanwhile, Anthony Fernandez, president of Lewis-Clark State College, suggests such an emphasis puts teaching-oriented schools like his at a disadvantage.

“The equity issue has been an issue forever, and will be an issue forever,” predicted Marty Peterson, the UI’s longtime lobbyist who is stepping down this year. “I suspect at any given moment in time if you come up with a solution, at the next moment in time there are going to be problems with someone.”

Part of the problem has been the declining state support for higher education since the 2008 recession began, a total decrease of about $75 million that’s been accompanied by a $49 million hike in student tuition and fees. That only partly makes up the difference — and puts more of the burden on students and their parents.

In a 2006 agreement, university presidents agreed to a deal with the Idaho Legislature to give $2.2 million to BSU and $1.7 million to ISU. That was just half the money that state education officials said was needed to make things fair, but the schools agreed to a political compromise and declared funding equity.

Since then, however, the funding gap between Idaho’s schools has widened, at least in part because the Idaho Legislature hasn’t kept up with separate payments meant to fairly fund enrollment growth. BSU has been hardest hit, because its enrollment has grown the most, so it’s pushing for changes.

“The Legislature chose not to fund it, putting certain universities in peril who were growing significantly during these last few years,” Kustra said. “You can’t simply write some of those students off.”

The Office of Performance Evaluations’ 51-page study concluded the State Board of Education must develop a policy that sets “an explicit standard of equitable funding levels” that clearly explains why some programs warrant more money than others. In other words, once state education leaders aiming to increase the number of Idaho’s college graduates by 2020 decide one university should get more funding for offering nuclear engineering but another will get less for its literature students, they should set it out in a policy.

Auditors offered this caveat: The state board should recognize any plan to re-establish funding equity must also reflect the reality that universities are vying with other state agencies also seeking more taxpayer support. They won’t get everything they want.

“By considering the often competing priorities that the Legislature must balance, the board will better position itself to develop a plan that can make progress toward achieving equity — even years when there is no additional funding from the Legislature,” according to the OPE report.

IDAHO AG TO SPEAK ABOUT RECORDS, MEETING LAWS

BY MAUREEN DOLAN
Coeur d’Alene Press

COEUR D’ALENE • Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden will be in Coeur d’Alene Monday to lead an informational session on public records and open meetings laws.

The free seminar, hosted by Idahoans for Openness in Government (IDOG), is open to interested citizens and recommended for government agency employees and reporters from all media.

The seminar will take place from 6 to 8:30 p.m. in the Spokesman-Review Building, 1st floor public meeting room, 608 Northwest Blvd.

Deputy Attorney General Brian Kane and IDOG President Betsy Russell will join Wasden in presenting the information.

Russell, a Spokesman-Review reporter who covers capitol news in Boise, worked in 2004, with Dean Miller, former editor of the Post Register in Idaho Falls, to form IDOG.

“As president of the Idaho Press Club, I was contacted by the National Freedom of Information Coalition to see if Idaho couldn’t join the 40-some states that had broad-based, nonprofit freedom of information coalitions,” Russell told The Press.

Around the same time, Russell said Miller was looking for grant funds to help reprint the Idaho Attorney General’s open meetings and public records manuals because state funds were running short.

Idaho Continues to Forecast Surplus for 2012

BOISE • Idaho will end the fiscal year with $77 million in the bank, if current projections hold.

These comparatively bright prospects — after three years of revenue shortfalls — were delivered Thursday at a taxpayer lobbying group’s conference in Boise by the Idaho Legislature’s budget manager, Cathy Holland-Smith.

Already, agencies are clamoring for the money.

They’ve submitted $143 million in requests above their existing budgets, so not everybody will get everything they want.

One thing is for sure: If budget predictions hold, Idaho will begin restocking reserves drained from about $400 million back at the start of the recession in fiscal year 2009.

The fact that Idaho doesn’t have much in its rainy-day fund leaves Holland-Smith a little concerned about what could happen if the economy were to tank again.

New Commerce Leader Shakes Up Agency Staff

BOISE • Idaho’s new Department of Commerce boss is shaking up his staff, jettisoning the agency’s chief economic development officer and spokeswoman.

Jeff Sayer was only recently named by Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter to head the state’s business promotion agency, but he’s already making over the department.

Out is chief economic development officer Lane Packwood, in is Cynii Gilliam, who has headed the Bannock Development Corporation in the Pocatello region.

And Megan Ronk replaces Bibiana Nertney as spokeswoman.

Ronk is a familiar face in Idaho state government, bouncing from her role as one of Gov. Dirk Kempthorne’s policy advisers to her five-year stint as Idaho Meth Project executive director.

Sayer is the former chief financial officer at Mountain View Hospital in Idaho Falls who replaced outgoing Commerce director Don Dietrich in September.

Idaho Man’s Sentences in Road Trip Slayings Upheld

BOISE • The Idaho Supreme Court has upheld the conviction and sentencing of a Boise man who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the slayings of two college students during an erratic, 6,500-mile road trip across the West in 2007.

John Delling was sentenced to two life terms in prison without parole in 2009 for the deaths of David Boss and Bradley Morse, both of Idaho. Delling appealed and said the state’s prohibition of insanity as a defense was unconstitutional, but the justices rejected that argument in a ruling Thursday.

Delling was 21 when authorities arrested him for killing Boss and Morse while wounding a third man, Jacob Thompson, in Arizona. Delling had attended a Boise high school with Boss and Thompson, while police say he met Morse on a gaming website.

SW Idaho Officials Investigate Officer, Gun Claim

POCATELLO • Prosecutors in southeastern Idaho are investigating claims that an off-duty police officer from Chubbuck pulled out a gun during an altercation in nearby Pocatello.

The Idaho State Journal reports Pocatello Police Lt. Paul Manning confirmed that the case has been forwarded to the Bannock County Prosecuting Attorney’s Office.

Authorities have not identified the police officer or offered details about the alleged altercation.

Bannock County Chief Deputy Attorney Vic Pearson says the prosecutor’s office will likely have an outside agency review the reported incident and determine whether charges will be filed in the case.

Chubbuck police declined to comment, saying it was a personnel issue.

Report Supports Phase Out of Renal Disease Program

BOISE • A new state report lends support to a plan by Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter to phase out the state’s renal disease program.

The program was created in 1970 to provide dialysis treatment and kidney transplants at a time those procedures were novel and not covered by insurance.

Otter is recommending the program be phased out by June 2013 to give current participants enough time to make other arrangements. End-stage renal disease is now covered by Medicare.

The Spokesman-Review reports the program now serves 169 participants, has 39 people on its waiting list and an annual budget of $527,000.

A report issued Wednesday by the state Office of Performance Evaluations backs Otter’s proposal. The report concludes that the program essentially duplicates other options available.

Boise Council Bans Smoking in Bars, Parks and Cabs

BOISE • The Boise City Council has banned smoking in bars, public parks, the city’s river greenbelt and even taxi cabs.

The council approved the no-smoking ordinances Tuesday night and the bans are slated to go into effect Jan. 2.

Council member Elaine Clegg says the latest push to curb smoking in public places is really an issue about public health and protecting people from the risks of second hand smoke.

The decision was met with irritation from some Boise bar and club owners. Bar owner Gary Sullivan says the bans infringe on constitutional rights and too much government control.

The ordinance also bans smoking near bus stops and other transit centers, on outdoor commercial patios accessible to children, within 20 feet of a city-owned building and other public locations.

Man Critical After Being Pinned Under ATV

IDAHO FALLS • A southeastern Idaho man was hospitalized in critical condition after being pinned under an all-terrain vehicle for more than a day after a crash during a hunting trip.

Clark County officials say 52-year-old Brian Groom suffered from blunt force trauma, frost bite and hypothermia and was being treated at an Idaho Falls hospital. He had been pinned under the ATV in about 3 to 4 inches of snow for more than 30 hours before crews were able to free him on Tuesday evening.

Officials say Groom went hunting Monday morning, but didn’t return home as planned. His family reported him missing at 11:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Egypt's Islamists Poised to Dominate Parliament

BY BEN HUBBARD
Associated Press

CAIRO • Islamists appear to have taken a strong majority of seats in the first round of Egypt's first parliamentary vote since Hosni Mubarak's ouster, a trend that if confirmed would give religious parties a popular mandate in the struggle to win control from the ruling military and ultimately reshape a key U.S. ally.

Final results, expected Friday, will be the clearest indication in decades of Egyptians' true political views and give the long-banned Muslim Brotherhood a major role in the country's first freely elected parliament. An Islamist majority could also herald a greater role for conservative Islam in Egyptian social life and shifts in foreign policy, especially toward Israel and the Palestinians.

The showing in Egypt — long considered a linchpin of regional stability — would be the clearest signal yet that parties and candidates connected to political Islam will emerge as the main beneficiaries of this year's Arab Spring uprisings.

Tunisia and Morocco have both elected Islamist majorities to parliament, and while Libya has yet to announce dates for its first elections, Islamist groups have emerged as a strong force there since rebels overthrew Moammar Gadhafi in August. They also play a strong opposition role in Yemen.

Judges overseeing the Egyptian vote count said Thursday that near-complete results show the Muslim Brotherhood, the country's largest and best organized political group, could take as many as 45 percent of the contested seats.

In addition to the Muslim Brotherhood wins, parties backed by ultra-conservative Salafist Muslims looked poised to take 20 percent, giving Islamist parties a striking majority in the first round of voting in key districts, including Cairo and Alexandria.

Similar results in the remaining rounds would give Islamist parties a majority in parliament, which many believe they will use to steer the long-secular U.S. ally in a more religiously conservative direction.

Cain: Wife Didn't Know of Payments to Ginger White

Herman Cain said in an interview with New Hampshire's largest newspaper Thursday that his wife did not know about the financial assistance he says he offered to Ginger White, the Atlanta woman who has said she and the Republican presidential hopeful had a 13-year affair. Cain again denied anything more than a friendly relationship with White during a meeting with the New Hampshire Union Leader, saying he helped her with "month-to-month bills and expenses."

High Winds Down Trees and Power Lines in West

LOS ANGELES • The most powerful winds to tear across California in nearly 15 years kept 9-year-old Dalen Guyton up late into the night. Then, around midnight, came the boom. The great yawning tree that stood next to his grandmother's house, the one with the rope swing he and his sisters played on, had toppled, coming within inches of their one-story home. On Thursday, the siblings stood out front surveying the damage, like thousands across the West where high winds toppled countless trees, knocked out power to hundreds of thousands and brought gusts of 123 mph. The National Weather Service called Southern California's winds Wednesday night a once-in-a-decade event.

Senate Approves $662B Defense Bill

Upper house also backs, 100-0, crippling sanctions on Iran as fears about Tehran developing a nuclear weapon outweigh concerns about driving up oil prices.

BY DONNA CASSATA

WASHINGTON • Ignoring a presidential veto threat, the Democratic-controlled Senate on Thursday overwhelmingly approved a massive, $662 billion defense bill that would require the military to hold suspected terrorists linked to al-Qaida or its affiliates, even those captured on U.S. soil, and detain some indefinitely.

The vote was 93-7 for the bill authorizing money for military personnel, weapons systems, national security programs in the Energy Department, and the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1. Reflecting a period of austerity and a winding down of decade-old conflicts, the bill is $27 billion less than what

France's Sarkozy Calls For Treaty to Save Euro Currency

BY RAF CASERT and PAN PYLAS
Associated Press

BRUSSELS • Germany and France will push for a broad treaty "refounding and rethinking the organization of Europe," French President Nicolas Sarkozy declared Thursday. He said that without some new "convergence" among European countries, the continent's crushing debt could destroy the euro.

Sarkozy made the statements in the southern French port city of Toulon as he and German Chancellor Angela Merkel prepare to meet in Paris on Monday to try to lift Europe out of the debt crisis ahead of a major EU summit next week. Earlier Thursday, the head of the European Central Bank hinted that the ECB now may be willing to take bolder actions to address the crisis that has rocked the continent.

"There can be no common currency without economic convergence, without which the euro will be too strong for some, too weak for others, and the eurozone will break up," the French president said before several thousand sympathizers of his conservative party.

Apple Juice Can Pose a Health Risk — from Calories

With few natural nutrients, lots of calories and, in some cases, more sugar than soda, apple juice adds to obesity in children, nutritionists say.

BY MARILYNN MARCHIONE
Associated Press

It's true — apple juice can pose a risk to your health. But not necessarily from the trace amounts of arsenic that people are arguing about.

Despite the government's consideration of new limits on arsenic, nutrition experts say apple juice's real danger is to waistlines and children's teeth. Apple juice has few natural nutrients, lots of calories and, in some cases, more sugar than soda has. It trains a child to like very sweet things, displaces better beverages and foods, and adds to the obesity problem, its critics say.

"It's like sugar water," said Judith Stern, a nutrition professor at the University of California, Davis, who has consulted for candy makers as well as for Weight Watchers. "I won't let my 3-year-old grandson drink apple juice!"

Many juices are fortified with vitamins, so they're not just empty calories. But that doesn't appease some nutritionists.

"If it wasn't healthy in the first place, adding vitamins doesn't make it into a health food," and if it causes weight gain, it's not a healthy choice, said Karen Ansel, a registered dietitian in New York and spokeswoman for the American Dietetic Association.

The American Academy of Pediatrics says juice can be part of a healthy diet, but its policy is blunt: "Fruit juice offers no nutritional benefit for infants younger than 6 months" and no benefits over whole fruit for older kids.

Kids under 12 consume 28 percent of all juice and juice drinks, according to the academy. Nationwide, apple juice is second only to orange juice in popularity. Americans slurp 267 ounces of apple juice on average each year, according to the Food Institute's Almanac of Juice Products and the Juice Products Association, a trade group.

Only 17 percent of the apple juice sold in the U.S. is made here. The rest comes from other countries, mostly China, Argentina, Chile and Brazil, the association says.

Drinking juice delivers a lot of calories quickly so you don't realize how much you've consumed, whereas you would have to eat a lot of apples to get the same amount, and "you would feel much, much more full from the apples," Ansel said.

"Whole fruits are much better for you," said Dr. Frank Greer, a University of Wisconsin, Madison, professor and former head of the pediatrics academy's nutrition committee.

He noted that the WIC program — the U.S. Department of Agriculture's nutrition program for Women, Infants and Children — revised its rules in 2005 to replace juice with baby food fruits and vegetables for children over 6 months.

Congress

President Barack Obama requested and $43 billion less than what Congress gave the Pentagon this year.

Shortly before final passage, the Senate unanimously backed crippling sanctions on Iran as fears about Tehran developing a nuclear weapon outweighed concerns about driving up oil prices that would hit economically strapped Americans at the gas pump. The vote was 100-0.

"Iran's actions are unacceptable and pose a danger to the United States and the entire world," Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., said. "Iran supports terrorist groups, arms the killers of American soldiers, lies about its nuclear program, violates its citizens' basic rights and threatens Israel's security."

The Senate's version of the defense bill still must be reconciled with the House-passed measure in the final weeks of the congressional session.

In an escalating fight with the White House, the bill would ramp up the role of the military in handling terror suspects. Defense Secretary Leon Panetta and FBI Director Robert Mueller both oppose the provisions as does the White House, which said it cannot accept any legislation that "challenges or constrains the president's authorities to collect intelligence, incapacitate dangerous terrorists and protect the nation."

Late Thursday, a White House official said the veto threat still stands.

The bill would require military custody of a suspect deemed to be a member of al-Qaida or its affiliates and involved in plotting or committing attacks on the United States. American citizens would be exempt. The bill does allow the executive branch to waive the authority based on national security and hold a suspect in civilian custody.

The legislation also would deny suspected terrorists, even U.S. citizens seized within the nation's borders, the right to trial and subject them to indefinite detention. Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., had sought an exception to the provision for U.S. citizens, but her effort failed, 55-45.

Lengthy negotiations produced a face-saving move that the Senate backed 99-1, a measure that said nothing in the bill changes current law relating to the detention of U.S. citizens and legal aliens. Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Carl Levin, D-Mich., repeatedly pointed out that the June 2004 Supreme Court decision in Hamdi v. Rumsfeld said U.S. citizens can be detained indefinitely.

The detention provisions challenge citizens' rights under the Constitution, test the boundaries of executive and legislative branch authority and set up a showdown with the Democratic commander in chief. Civil rights groups fiercely oppose the bill.

"Since the bill puts military detention authority on steroids and makes it permanent, American citizens and others are at greater risk of being locked away by the military without charge or trial if this bill becomes law," said Christopher Anders, senior legislative counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The bill reflects the politically charged dispute over whether to treat suspected terrorists as prisoners of war or criminals. The administration insists that the military, law enforcement and intelligence agents need flexibility in prosecuting the war on terror after they've succeeded in killing Osama bin Laden and Anwar al-Awlaki. Republicans counter that their efforts are necessary to respond to an evolving, post-Sept. 11 threat, and that Obama has failed to produce a consistent policy on handling terror suspects.

The Senate rejected an effort by Feinstein to limit a military custody requirement for suspects to those captured outside the United States. The vote was 55-45. Feinstein said her goal was to ensure "the military won't be roaming our streets looking for suspected terrorists."

Egypt

The Islamist victories came at the expense of a coalition of liberal parties called the Egyptian block, the group most closely linked to the youth activists who launched the anti-Mubarak uprising — and which is expected to win only about 20 percent of seats.

Officially banned and suppressed for decades, the Brotherhood built a nationwide network of activists that provided services to the poor. After Mubarak's fall, the group campaigned as the Freedom and Justice Party, their organization and the Brotherhood's name-recognition giving them a big advantage over newly formed liberal parties.

The election also provided an opening for the Salafist Muslims whose strict Islamic practice is similar to that in Saudi Arabia. While the Muslim Brotherhood has said it will preserve individual rights, Salafi groups are not shy about their ambition to turn Egypt into a state where women must dress modestly and TV content deemed offensive will be banned.

The Brotherhood's leadership has so far avoided defining the ruling coalition it will seek to build. And during the campaign, it often avoided strict Islamist rhetoric in favor of more inclusive messages about social equality and clean government.

Critics, however, worry that once in power, the group will band together with its Islamist allies to impose stricter social codes. Many in Egypt's Coptic Christian minority fear they'll face new restrictions on building churches.

The Obama administration has lauded the elections, saying it will cooperate with the victors, no matter what their persuasion.

Euro

On Friday, Merkel will address Germany's parliament about Europe's financial crisis and the EU summit on Dec. 9, which is expected to focus on how to make the eurozone more unified.

Merkel has acknowledged the need for treaty changes that impose stricter financial controls on eurozone countries to prevent them from taking on too much debt.

German Finance Minister Wolfgang Schauble told reporters in Berlin on Thursday there is now "a crisis of confidence" in the eurozone and that tough and credible new rules are needed to regain market confidence. Germany has said EU treaty amendments are required to do that.

Sarkozy spoke a day after the European Central Bank, the Federal Reserve and the central banks of Canada, Japan and Switzerland moved together to make it easier for commercial banks to borrow American dollars. It was a move intended to calm financial markets, which had grown increasingly worried about European debt.

Seventeen countries share the euro, and those countries plus 10 more make up the European Union. All 27 would have to approve a change in the Maastricht Treaty, which created the euro in 1999. Sarkozy said the treaty "has revealed itself to be imperfect."

Kenna Rose Kunzler Tanner

July 7, 1928-Nov. 26, 2011

GROUSE CREEK, Utah • Our loving mother, grandmother, sister and friend, Kenna Rose Kunzler Tanner, passed away peacefully Saturday, Nov.

26, 2011, in Ogden, Utah, at the age of 83.

Kenna was born July 7, 1928, in Rosette, Utah, to Harold L. and Vinnie Rose Kunzler. She enjoyed her childhood helping her father with farm work, learning homemaking skills from her mother and playing with her brother, Dee, sister, Rhea, and many cousins who were like sisters to her. She attended school at the Park Valley School until ninth grade, 10th grade at Bear River High School in Tremonton, Utah, and finished high school at Box Elder High School in Brigham City, Utah. She attended Utah State Agricultural College in Logan, where she received her degrees in home economics and education.

After college, she married her eternal companion, Merlin B. Tanner, on Oct. 25, 1950, in the Logan LDS Temple and moved to Grouse Creek to settle on the family cattle ranch, where she lived and worked the rest of her life. She taught and worked at the Grouse Creek School for 20 years. She was the clerk and bookkeeper at the Grouse Creek Co-Op store for 15 years. She served the community as an emergency medical technician and as weather recorder for the National Weather Service.

As a faithful member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, she held numerous callings. She served in the Primary, MIA, Relief Society, Sunday school, family history and other callings. She served for 25 years as the homemaking counselor in the Relief Society. She most recently enjoyed serving as the ward librarian and Relief Society instructor. She had a strong testimony of her Savior and often taught her family to love one another and stay close to the Lord.

Her favorite things were being a mother and homemaker. She enjoyed sewing, quilting, cooking, canning fruit, genealogy and reading. She loved to cook and became famous for the thousands of "grandma rolls" which she lovingly prepared for every family dinner and many ward events. She was widely known for her kind personality and caring way.

Kenna was preceded in death by her loving husband; parents; and one granddaughter, Jaime Hunt. She is survived by her children and their spouses, Blaine and Julie Tanner of Grouse Creek, Utah, Laraine and Ron Hunt of Layton, Utah, Jay and Diane Tanner of Grouse Creek, Utah, Brent and Conny Tanner of South Weber, Utah, and Terri and Mike Schutz of Twin Falls, Idaho. She has 16 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. Also surviving are her brother, Dee Kunzler; and sister, Rhea Smith.

The funeral will be held at noon Monday, Dec. 5, at the Grouse Creek LDS Chapel. Friends and family may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, at the Rudd Funeral Home, 1234 S. Main in Garland, Utah, or 10:30 to 11:40 a.m. before the service Monday at the church. Interment will be at the Grouse Creek Cemetery.

Condolences may be sent to the family at www.ruddfuneralhome.com.

Joyce; and their mother, Eileen; five sisters; four brothers, 28 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren and two on the way. He was preceded in death by his parents; three brothers; his daughter, Tammy Sue; son-in-law, Fred; and grandson, Gregory.

We will miss you, Dad. A memorial service will be held at 1 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, at the Hagerman LDS Church. Inurnment, with military honors, will take place at the Hagerman Cemetery.

Cremation arrangements are under the care of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be shared with the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Naomi B. Grantier

April 7, 1932-Nov. 29, 2011

RUPERT • Naomi B. Grantier, 79, of Rupert, passed away Tuesday, Nov. 29, 2011, at her home.

Naomi was born April 7, 1932, in Idaho Falls to Noel E and Alta Bernice Ritchie Curtis.

She is survived by her husband, Richard Grantier; children, DelRay Robinson of Wells, Nev., Joann Kimbber of Grouse Creek, Utah, Ron Robison of Rupert, Gary Robinson of Grantsville, Utah, Debbie Robinson of Paul and Kristen Rogers of Kimberly; 19 grandchildren; 28 great-grandchildren; brothers, Ramon Curtis, Theon Curtis and Bill Curtis; and sisters, Roma Messervey and Lorraine Williams.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, 2011, at the Riverside Cemetery in Heyburn, with a viewing one hour prior to the service Friday at Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel, 710 6th St.

Leslie 'Les' Wayne Fulton

June 24, 1968-Nov. 28, 2011

GOODING • Les Fulton, 43, a resident of Gooding, passed away to be with his Lord Jesus on Monday, Nov. 28, 2011, at the North Canyon Medical Center in Gooding with his wife and friend by his side.

He was born in Las Animas, Colo., on June 24, 1968. He attended University High in Roswell, N.M., and graduated from ITT Tech in Portland, Ore., with an associate's degree in computer-aided drafting. He loved his kids, hunting, camping and fishing. He currently worked as a truck driver in the agricultural industry and helped run the family farm. He will always be remembered for his big heart, loving spirit and papa bear protective attitude. He loved his family and friends more than anything.

Les leaves behind his wife of 13 years, Stefanie; his six beautiful God-sent children, Morgan "Mallee" (20), Aryq (18), Kyana (14), Brady (12), Malaki (5) and Khloe (4); and precious granddaughter, Daschali (1), all of Gooding; parents, Francis and Sharon Fulton of Roswell, N.M.; grandmother, Rebecca Koehn of Texas; and numerous aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and in-laws. Les is also survived by friends in Washington, New Mexico, Oregon and Idaho, who were all blessings to him.

A celebration of life will be held from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4, at the family home, 1895 E. 1300 S. in Gooding. All who know the family and this wonderful man are invited to visit. At the request of the family, please do not send flowers.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Margaret Rose Quesnell Tilley

Jan. 9, 1927-Nov. 29, 2011

Margaret Rose Quesnell Tilley was born Jan. 9, 1927, at home in Kimberly, Idaho, to Archie and Anna Quesnell. She passed away Tuesday, Nov. 29, 2011, in Payette, Idaho.

Margaret was raised on a farm outside of Kimberly along with seven brothers and one sister. She graduated from Kimberly High School. Margaret married Melvin H. Tilley on April 25, 1948, in Twin Falls, Idaho. They farmed south of Hansen, raising a variety of crops including alfalfa, beans, potatoes and grain. They also had the sideline businesses of custom farming and raising sheep. In 1960, they moved the farming operation to Murtaugh and expanded into the cattle business. They retired to an acre of lawn in Kimberly in 1989. Margaret was a member of the Rock Creek Worthwhile Club for many years. She participated in her children's activities in 4-H, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and PTA. She served as president of the PTA and the Rock Creek Worthwhile Club and took a leadership position in various organizations.

She is survived by her four children. Her children include one son and daughter-in-law, Dennis and Linda Tilley of Twin Falls and three daughters and sons-in-law, Janet and Monte Nail of Richland, Wash., Dianna and Luther Gardner of Payette, Idaho, and Denise and Kenneth Chambless of Rescue, Calif.

Margaret has seven grandchildren, Michael Nail, Mark Nail, Russell Gardner, Stacy Gardner, VanPelt, Taylor Gardner, Lisa Chambless and Nicole Chambless; and two step-grandchildren, Brian Chojnacky and Brady Chojnacky. She has eight great-grandchildren, Austin VanPelt, Isaac Gardner, Logan Gardner, Hadley Chojnacky, Emerson Nail, Eli Nail, Natalee Gardner and Owen Chojnacky. She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; and all of her siblings, one sister, Cecilia; and seven brothers; Harvey Quesnell, Paul Quesnell, Edmund Quesnell, Gilbert Quesnell, Lloyd Quesnell, George Quesnell and Richard Quesnell.

A viewing for family and friends will be between 5 and 7 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, with a funeral at 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, both at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Memorials can be made in Margaret's name to the Friends of Stricker Ranch Inc., P.O. Box 2218, Twin Falls, ID 83303. Services are under the direction of Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

SENIOR

Q. Ed. Note: Holiday visits with older family members are an opportunity to identify behavioral changes that may mean a serious issue exists. Last week we discussed 5 warning signs. This week we talk about 5 more.

A. When you visit older relatives who live at a distance, watch for these signs that something could be amiss. 1) Burns or injury marks that appear to have resulted from general weakness, forgetfulness, or possible misuse of alcohol or prescribed medications. 2) Withdrawal from activities once important to them such as bridge or a book club, spending time with friends, or attending religious services. 3) Forgetfulness that shows in unopened mail, piled newspapers, unfilled prescriptions, or missed appointments. 4) Mishandled finances such as unpaid bills, bills paid twice, lost money, or money hidden around the house or yard. 5) Odd purchases such as more than one subscription for the same magazines and unusually frequent purchases from television commercials. Remember: these behaviors may indicate a problem but they also may not. However, if you are concerned, talk to your family member's physician about physical or behavioral changes you have noticed. Your concern shows that you care, which may be the best holiday gift ever.

American Eagle Pulls Boise to Los Angeles Flight

BOISE (AP) • Officials with an American Airlines affiliate say they are canceling nonstop flights from Boise to Los Angeles starting in February.

American Eagle made the announcement this week after the airline failed to draw enough interest to support continued service.

The airline began nonstop routes from Boise to Los Angeles seven days a week in April. The flight has attracted about 2,600 passengers per month, but totals dropped sharply in October.

Airline spokesman Ed Martelle says the company had great hopes at the outset, but he says the marketplace dictated the decision to pull out of Boise. The last flight is scheduled for Feb. 8.

It marks the second time American Eagle has pulled a Boise flight. In 2002, the airline flew jets from Boise to Dallas for eight months.

NEW YORK • General Motors will buy Chevrolet Volts back from any owner who is afraid the electric cars will catch fire, the company's CEO said Thursday.

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, CEO Dan Akerson insisted that the cars are safe, but said the company will purchase the Volts because it wants to keep customers happy. Three fires have broken out in Volts after side-impact crash tests done by the federal government.

Akerson said that if necessary, GM will recall the more than 6,000 Volts now on the road in the U.S. and repair them once the company and federal safety regulators figure out what caused the fires.

"If we find that is the solution, we will retrofit every one of them," Akerson said. "We'll make it right."

The fires happened seven days to three weeks after tests performed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. And GM has said there's no threat of fires immediately after crashes. GM also has said that no Volts involved in real-world crashes have caught fire.

Still, NHTSA has opened an investigation into the fires and has asked other companies that make electric cars for battery testing data. NHTSA

THE DIGIT

$6.6 Million

Barnes & Noble 3Q Net Loss Narrows • Barnes & Noble Inc. said Thursday it plans to invest more heavily in its Nook e-book reader and digital media, even as it reported a third-quarter loss as sales of physical books continued to decline. Net loss for the quarter ended Oct. 29 was $6.6 million, or 17 cents per share. That compares with a loss of $12.6 million, or 22 cents per share, a year ago.

6,000 — 60,000 or 600,000 cars on the road," he said.

The NHTSA testing, Akerson said, intruded into the Volt's battery pack by four to five inches, beyond the normal testing standard of about two inches. Then the cars were rotated 360 degrees to simulate a rollover crash. He said anytime there's a new technology introduced like the Volt, problems will arise. GM is dedicated to fixing them.

He conceded that the fires may cause some potential buyers to shy away from the Volt. But he added that GM is trying to get the message out that they happened only after extreme tests. Akerson also stressed that standard gas engine cars also have problems with fires after crashes.

said the safety testing hasn't raised concerns about electric vehicles other than the Volt.

"The fire broke out seven days later. Not seven minutes. Not seven seconds," Akerson said, adding that the company wants to fix the problem so people continue to have faith in Volts and other advanced technology cars. The company is notified of any Volt crash through its OnStar safety system and dispatches a team within 48 hours to drain the battery, preventing fires, he said.

"I think in the interest of General Motors, the industry, the electrification of the car, it's best to get it right now than when you have — instead of

Economy Improving, but Job Growth Is Still Weak

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Factories are producing more. Construction is growing. People are buying more cars. The holiday shopping season is off to a strong start.

Normally, all that would suggest a bright outlook for the economy. Problem is, employers still aren't hiring much, the number of people seeking unemployment benefits remains high and Europe's debt crisis poses a grave threat to the future.

Thursday's mixed economic picture came a day before the government will report on unemployment and job growth for November. That report is expected to show a modest net gain of 125,000 jobs, scarcely enough to keep up with population growth. The unemployment rate is projected to remain 9 percent.

Analysts say the economy remains locked in a good-but-hardly-good-enough position: It's growing consistently, yet too weakly to induce employers to hire aggressively.

"The economy is picking up momentum as we close out 2011," said Neil Dutta, an economist at Bank of America Merrill Lynch. At the same time, it faces "an ongoing flu in Europe" and other challenges, such as uncertainty about future taxes and spending in the United States, Dutta said.

For now, factories are expanding. The Institute for Supply Management, a trade group of purchasing managers, says its manufacturing index rose to 52.7 in November, up from 50.8 in October. Any reading above 50 indicates expansion. Factories have grown for 28 straight months.

Manufacturers are slightly more hopeful about the next few months because of cheaper raw materials and healthy demand, said Bradley Holcomb, head of the ISM's survey committee.

Still, he said, companies have tempered their outlook because of concerns about whether the economy will grow consistently, uncertainty about federal taxes and regulation and fear that Europe's debt crisis may trigger a global economic panic.

SUGAR BEET CONFERENCE NEARS IN BURLEY

TIMES-NEWS

The Snake River Sugar Beet Conference will be held Dec. 15 at the Best Western Burley Inn and Convention Center, 800 N. Overland Ave., Burley.

This year's conference will be held about a month earlier than normal and will be condensed to a single day. Chemical company representatives, a trade show and presentations by U.S. Department of Agriculture and University of Idaho officials and scientists will also be offered. Topics covered will include ways to identify, prevent and control root rot diseases, a review of strip tillage studies, herbicide management and many others.

Conference participants can earn five Idaho State Department of Agriculture pesticide applicator recertification credits, and certified crop advisers can receive seven CCA credits.

Pre-registration runs through Thursday and costs $25. After that, registration is $35. Lunch is included.

Feels like Christmas

When the lighted floats start rolling along Twin Falls' Main Avenue tonight, I expect to be there — dispensing candy canes alongside the newspaper's Festival of Lights Parade entry. It's a treat to see families gathered on downtown's sidewalks, bundled up and grinning, their faces illuminated by the passing floats. If you're among the crowd, please give me a wave!

Season's Sound

If you get chilly at the parade tonight, move the Christmas outing inside next, for a holiday concert by the Magic Valley Symphony and Magic Valley Chorale. Most of the folks on stage tonight at the College of Southern Idaho aren't professional musicians, but they're your friends and neighbors. And this concert is an indispensable part of Magic Valley's Christmas.

Hands busied themselves, stenciling words onto a banner that lay on the chapel's carpet. "Oh, that's a good idea," said Kathryn Bausman, responding to a congregant's suggestion to write the name Jesus in silver or gold glitter. "I like sparkly," she said, a Santa Claus cap on her head. "Sparkly is my favorite color." Bausman, pastor of Community Church of the Brethren in Twin Falls, and a handful of congregants were at the church on a recent Tuesday night working on a float for tonight's annual Festival of Lights Parade in downtown Twin Falls. The Times-News-sponsored parade — now in its 20th year downtown and its second year under newspaper leadership — will start rolling at 6 p.m. today. Hundreds of people every year line the sidewalks from Krengel's True Value Hardware on Main Avenue South to Magic Valley High School on Main Avenue North to watch the after-dark parade, which this year includes 33 entrants — up from last year's 23. Some groups put a lot of time and effort into their floats; others are content to throw a few strands of Christmas lights over their pickup trucks and call it good. But there's one thing they all have in common: They come to have fun with the community. "I like the parade," said Dee Humphrey, who was at the Community Church of the Brethren helping to decorate its float's banner. "Home for the parade's theme, "Home for

BURLEY • Rehearsal at Burley High School was a bit off on Tuesday night. Some students didn't have costume pieces, and one had to run home. But the biggest difference: longtime theater teacher Richard Call was absent. In October, substitute teacher Dusty Fisher took over for Call, who is undergoing treatment for cancer. For the students in Call's class — including Call's son

But with hard work under Fisher's direction, the class is nearly ready to debut the play on Dec. 8. At the beginning of the school year, Call planned to open the production in November. A new multidisciplinary project at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, opening Dec. 9, explores the Earth's South and North Poles through visual art exhibitions in Ketchum and Hailey, films, a family activity and lectures by noted writer Gretel Ehrlich and photographer-author James Balog.

At the center's Ketchum facility, the "Thin Ice: Journeys in Polar Regions" exhibit will feature photos by early explorers of the Arctic and Antarctic alongside work by modern and contemporary artists who have visited these remote regions. You'll see:

- Photos of the wildlife, land and inhabitants of the Arctic by Subhankar Banerjee.
- An installation by Kim Baranowski based on a summer spent in Antarctica.
- Drawings by Anna McKee that reflect her interest in how the Antarctic landscape changes over time.
- Shipboard sketchbooks from a trip to the Arctic by Iris Haussler.
- Delicate handmade "Antarctic Bookworks" by Rachel Hazell.
- Stark paintings by Mark Thompson inspired by his travels in the north.

Also on display are a vintage print by Herbert Ponting from Robert Scott's ill-fated 1910-13 expedition to the Ross Sea and the South Pole and reproductions of photos by Donald MacMillan, a member of Robert Peary's 1908 expedition to the North Pole.

Regular gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and the project runs through Feb. 4. The Ketchum gallery will be open 5-8 p.m. as part of the town's free Gallery Walk on Dec. 30; enjoy a glass of wine as you view the exhibition. Free exhibition tours are scheduled at 5:30 p.m. Dec. 15 and Jan. 26, and at 2 p.m. Jan. 3. To arrange for a tour at another time or in Spanish, call 726-9491, ext. 10.

Hailey exhibit: A related exhibition of photographs taken by Wood River Valley resident Ann Puchner while living on Baffin Island from Mark Thompson's 'Black Love,' from 2008, is among the artwork in a new Ketchum exhibit dubbed 'Thin Ice,' opening Dec. 9.

1960 to 1961, alongside Inuit art from the collection of Ketchum resident Page Klune, opens at Sun Valley Center's Hailey facility with a celebration 5:30-7:30 p.m. Dec. 16.

Lecture by Gretel Ehrlich: 6:30 p.m. Jan. 5; $15 for Sun Valley Center members and $25 for others. Poet, novelist and nonfiction writer Ehrlich has been fascinated by the Arctic for nearly two decades. In her newest book, "In the Empire of Ice: Encounters in a Changing Landscape," she paints a portrait of indigenous cultures who inhabit the boreal lands above the Arctic Circle.

Slide lecture by James Balog: 6:30 p.m. Jan. 19; $15 for Sun Valley Center members and $25 for others. Photojournalist and adventurer Balog is founder of the Extreme Ice Survey, a wide-ranging glacier study. Driven by his concern about climate change, Balog has crisscrossed continents to shoot video and still photography of glaciers and ice sheets.

"The Greely Expedition" film: Dec. 15, Ketchum exhibition tour at 5:30 p.m., film screening at 6:15 p.m.; free. For three years, Adolphus Greely and his ship's crew were stranded in the far North, where they planned to collect scientific data about the Arctic. The expedition reveals how poor planning, personality clashes, questionable decisions and bad luck led to the deaths of three-quarters of the crew, a Sun Valley Center release said.

"Werner Herzog's Encounters at the End of the World" film: 6:30 p.m. Jan. 11 at the Liberty Theater in Hailey; free. Filmmaker Herzog takes viewers on a journey to the South Pole, from the National Science Foundation's station on Ross Island to some of Antarctica's most remote and dangerous terrain. Expect from Herzog a keen eye for the wonders and sometimes hilarious peculiarities of this inhospitable landscape's animal and human inhabitants.

Family Day activity on polar animals: 3-5 p.m. Jan. 21 at Sun Valley Center in Ketchum; free. Tour the exhibition, then create a sculpture of an animal inspired by the Inuit tradition of carving animal figures from soapstone.

Herrett Center Turns Lunar Eclipse into Overnight Fun

Hope for clear skies on Dec. 10, so southern Idahoans can see that morning's total lunar eclipse.

The Herrett Center for Arts and Science will host a Snore and Explore night leading up to the eclipse in the hope that the event will end with a good view of the sky.

Organizer Darcy Thornborrow, the Herrett Center's education coordinator, says the evening will start at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 9 with make-and-take astronomy sessions and a one-hour show in the Faulkner Planetarium. Afterward, participants will find a place among the displays, reptiles or mammoth skeleton to sleep until they are awakened at 4:30 a.m. the next morning.

At that time, campers can begin to fill the seats in the theater to watch the planetarium dome. If southern Idaho skies are cloudy that morning, the planetarium will supply a video feed from a different site for the overnight camping audience. Visitors who don't mind braving the cold are welcome to view from the Herrett's Centennial Observatory.

The event is designed for families and Scouts; some of the activities will meet badge or pin requirements for Scouting.

Pre-registration is required and the cost is $25 for each child. Children must be accompanied by an adult chaperone, and adults who stay the night will be charged $12 each. Organizers discourage pre-school age children from attending.

Information or registration: Thornborrow at 732-6664, or herrett.csi.edu/.

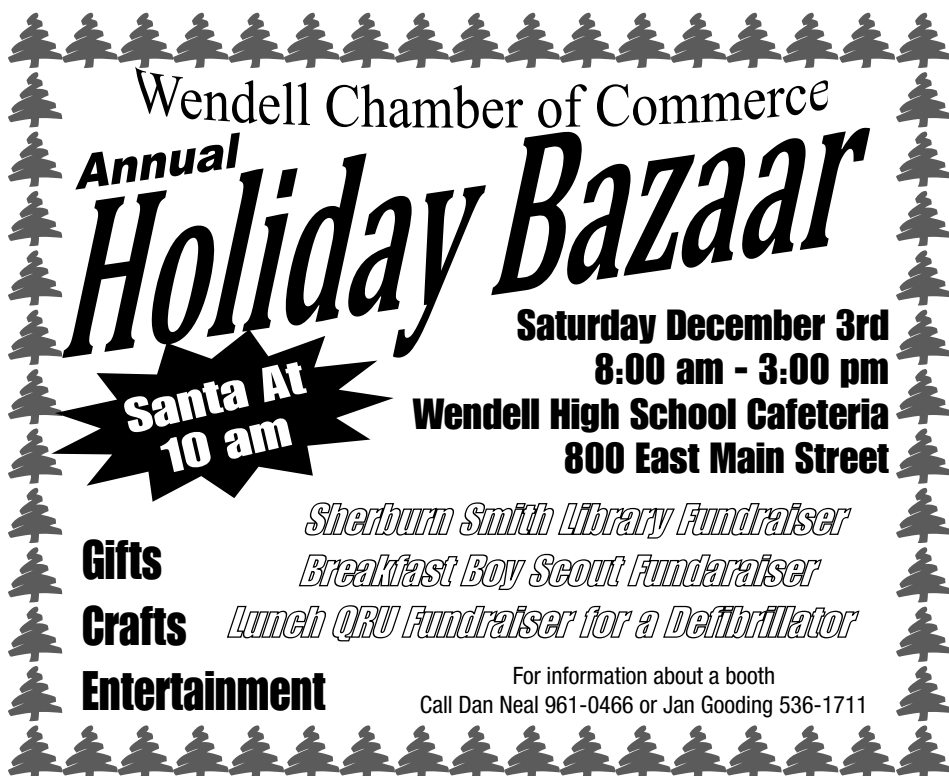

Eclipse viewing: Anyone who wants to come to the Herrett Center early Dec. 10 to view the eclipse is welcome to the Centennial Observatory at no charge.

Astronomically speaking, the eclipse begins at 4:34 a.m. Dec. 10, but no one will notice it yet. The moon will start to be visibly covered by the Earth's shadow at 5:46 a.m. The Herrett's large telescope will track it until 6:23 a.m., at which time the moon will be too low on the western horizon for it. At that time, smaller telescopes on the observatory deck will track the progress. The total eclipse will begin at 7:06 a.m. and be at its fullest point at 7:32 a.m. The sun will rise at 7:56 a.m., and the moon will set four minutes later.

The next total lunar eclipse that will be visible in southern Idaho will be in 2014.

Larissa Fisher and Anson Call rehearse their parts for 'Cash On Delivery' at Burley High School. Call's father, Burley theater teacher Richard Call, is on leave for cancer treatment, and Fisher's father, Dusty Fisher, has stepped in as substitute teacher and director for the class.

British government out of social security payments using the names of his tenants.

But in October, Call had to step back after his cancer diagnosis. Fisher, a choir director who has known Call for years, stepped in as the long-term substitute.

Between Fisher's adjustment to the class and the students' sadness at Call leaving, the play lost momentum.

"Energy was a big one," student Spencer Atkins said. It's especially important to keep up energy in British farces, which are fast-paced. Without the right timing and delivery, jokes and dialogue fall flat.

To help the students prepare, Fisher pushed back the play's run from November to December, giving everyone time to get used to Fisher's directorial style. Everyone was used to working with Call, but "I'm comfortable enough as an artist to be able to step in and take it," Fisher said. Call is a genius at theater, Fisher said, but "I can't deny who I am as an artist. A show can't have two directors and survive."

Noel Nelson, who plays Linda Swan, said having two directors at different times has helped her. She wants to study theater in college, and being able to work with various styles will help.

Spencer Atkins, who plays Eric Swan, said he enjoys working with Fisher.

"He does a good job, and I love the way he directs," Atkins said. But Call is a legend, he added, so the departure was sad.

Two students faced the biggest adjustments: Larissa Fisher, Dusty Fisher's daughter, and Anson Call, Richard Call's son. "It's actually pretty fun," Larissa said of working with her father.

The play has provided a welcome escape for Anson, who said his father is responding well to treatment.

"If anyone was to take over my dad's spot, I'd choose Fisher," Anson said. Then, with a half smile: "I hate him the least."

On Tuesday night, the dialogue was sharp and funny, and the students nailed most of their cues and lines. Aside from rare prompts from Fisher to keep up the energy, the students excelled.

"Every day, it gets better," Fisher said. "Every night, there's something amazing that happens."

The poster features a dark blue background with a subtle grid pattern. On the left, the words 'INFO NIGHT' are written vertically in large, bold, white capital letters. To the right, the event details are listed in white text: 'Tuesday, December 6, 4-7pm' in a large font, followed by 'Hampton Inn, 1658 Fillmore Street North, Twin Falls' in a slightly smaller font. Teens Direct Christmas Play for Home-schoolers, Twin Falls Church

TIMES-NEWS

Under a pair of teen directors, the Magic Valley Home Educators and the Twin Falls Community Christian Church will present two performances of "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever" as a benefit for the Pregnancy Crisis Center in Twin Falls.

The play's performers, ages 3-16, are from the church and the home-schooling group. They'll depict the story of the naughty Herdman children's transformation, based on the book by Barbara Robinson.

Performances are 7 p.m. Dec. 9 and 6 p.m. Dec. 11 at the church, 303 Grandview Drive in Twin Falls, followed by refreshments. Admission is either a cash donation of any amount or disposable diapers — all to be donated to the Pregnancy Crisis Center.

the Holidays," the banner reads: "With Jesus, You Are Home for the Holidays."

This is the first time the church will participate in the parade, but Bausman said it won't be the last.

For others, the parade has been a tradition since day one.

Magic Valley Paramedics have been in the parade every year, said department manager Gilbert Schmidt. In the past, the department has decorated an ambulance, he said, but this year it plans to do a float. Staff members also will walk the parade route, giving out candy canes.

"It's an opportunity for us to get into the Christmas spirit," he said. "It's an opportunity for us to get out and mix with the community in a different format than we normally do."

St. Edwards Catholic Church has been in the parade many times over the years, said Kathryn Reese, the church's float coordinator. She likes it because it's a great way to kick off the Christmas season, she said, noting that the church's float this year is "The Night Before Christmas." A trailer will be decorated to look like a living room complete with fireplace, a plate of cookies and children wrapped in blankets waiting for Santa.

"I think it's a great parade, especially for children," Reese said. "I like that it's not too long. I think the distance is excellent. The children get so excited at seeing the lights."

Want to see if she's right? Tonight when you're at the parade, look around at the eager faces of children as they watch for Santa bringing up the rear. Bundled in their scarves and mittens, they just might have Christmas in their eyes.

'In Search of the King'

(self published, $18)

Annell Williamson, who grew up on a Gooding cattle ranch and trained barrel horses, fell in love with creative writing at Ricks College.

The eventual result: A Christmas story about animals that band together and embark on a dangerous journey to save a newborn child from the wicked king Herod.

Populated by a dog, a mouse, a dove and a donkey, "In Search of the King" was written while Williamson's children were young.

"I gave it to them to read at Christmas time," she said. "Years later my family encouraged me to pull the book off the shelf and share this story with others."

Williamson, now of Georgetown, will sign books

CSI BAND'S CONCERT IS ALL ABOUT LATE 2011

TIMES-NEWS

Want to hold onto 2011 a little longer? The College of Southern Idaho Symphonic Band concert titled "Retrospectives" looks at Halloween, Christmas, the 10th anniversary of 9/11 and the 70th anniversary of America's entry into World War II.

It's set for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 6 in CSI's Fine Arts Auditorium and will begin in a patriotic vein as the band performs "America the Beautiful" in an arrangement by Carmen Dragon, former director of the Hollywood Bowl Symphony. The second work, "A Hymn for the Lost and for the Living," is a tribute by New York composer Eric Ewazen to all who lost their lives on Sept. 11, 2001. "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" follows.

The Halloween portion of the program begins with Warren Barker's light-hearted "Phantasmagoria March." In a more somber vein, the band will perform Mozart's "Trauermusik," also known as his Masonic Funeral Music.

To acknowledge America's entry into WWII in a slightly off-beat fashion, the band will perform the march from John Williams' classic score to the movie "1941." Starring John Belushi and Dan Aykroid, the film took a zany look at the confusion along America's West Coast in the days following the attack on Pearl Harbor.

In the concert's second half, expect a rousing composition by the Belgian composer Jan Van der Roost, his "Pushta," four dances in the style of Gypsy music, then three works associated with Christmas. They are an instrumental transcription of German composer Franz Biebl's hauntingly beautiful choral work "Ave Maria"; a setting of the poignant "Coventry Carol"; and "Christmas in Europe," a medley by Timothy Johnson that includes both familiar and lesser-known carols from England, France, Ireland and Poland.

Admission is free, but organizers suggest a donation of $5 to the CSI Music Scholarship Fund.

BSU Picks Coyle as New AD

ASSOCIATED PRESS
New Boise State athletic director Mark Coyle is introduced during a news conference, Thursday.

BOISE (AP) • Boise State University President Bob Kustra on Thursday named Mark Coyle as the school's new athletic director, describing the 43-year-old as a "rising star" and the right choice to lead Bronco athletics in an era where fundraising and brand development is just as essential as winning games.

Coyle previously served in assistant roles at athletic departments at the University of Kentucky, where he was in charge of fundraising, and the University of Minnesota. He'll earn $325,000 annually, plus incentives, as part of a five-year contract.

At a press conference at Bronco Stadium, Coyle highlighted his goals of broadening Boise State's fundraising base, strengthening other sports programs at a school known almost solely for football and its blue turf, and keeping football coach Chris Petersen in town.

"My No. 1 goal is to keep Chris Petersen at Boise State University," Coyle said. "He's raised the bar. How do we help him move the needle and take it to the next level?"

Kustra said he knew Coyle was the right fit just moments after meeting him for the first time. Coyle was the only candidate Kustra brought to campus for an interview.

Coyle actually e-mailed Kustra about the opening in August, just days after Gene Bleymaier was fired amid an NCAA rules violations investigation after serving 29 years as the head of Broncos sports programs.

"He will bring best practices from his school and conference experience, both Big 10 and Southeastern Conference, to the business of running an athletic department in these very complicated times," Kustra said.

Bobcat Girls Make Statement

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

This isn't the three-win Burley team of a year ago. Not by a long shot.

The big three of Burley's girls basketball team combined to score 60 points as the Bobcats rolled past Canyon Ridge 65-46 Thursday, in the Great Basin Conference opener for both teams.

Aubrie Vale scored a game-high 21, Brooke Bowers added 20 and Chelsea Baker had 19 as Burley (2-3, 1-0) shot nearly 70 percent from the floor and controlled the game from start to finish.

"This is a huge confidence boost for us, because we haven't won very many games and this proves to us that we can play," said Bowers, who also had a team-best eight rebounds. "We knew that we had a shooter and a post to deal with and as long as they couldn't set their feet we were going to be OK."

Burley couldn't miss from the floor and the Bobcats were only slightly less efficient at the foul line, going 11 for 18. Whether it was offensively or defensively, there wasn't much that went wrong for the girls in green.

After piling up the points in the first half, Vale found herself producing in other ways, adding eight assists and five rebounds to being the leading scorer. In the second half, when Canyon Ridge's defense stretched beyond the perimeter, Vale snapped bullet passes to Baker and Bowers in the post for easy lay-ins.

"I try to share the ball as much as I can," Vale said. "If I've got a shot, I'll take it, but I like when we're balanced and we can get everyone involved."

Canyon Ridge, meanwhile, let a bevy of chances go begging, particularly on the offensive glass. The Riverhawks (2-2, 0-1) also turned the ball over less often than did Burley, but the Bobcats extended their defense beyond the 3-point arc and forced Canyon Ridge into more difficult shots than the Riverhawks wanted.

"We just didn't play well, but it's going to take some time," said senior guard Karly Hudelson, who led Canyon Ridge with 18 points.

Burley's Brooke Bowers, right, and Canyon Ridge's Breyana Burk battle for the rebound Thursday night at Canyon Ridge High School in Twin Falls. Go to Magicvalley.com/gallery to see more photos of Thursday night's game.

"The first half of the season is a learning point (with a new coaching staff), and the second half is where we're going to measure ourselves."

Breyana Burk had 13 points and 14 rebounds for the Riverhawks.

Canyon Ridge continues its three-game, three-day stretch today when it hosts Elko, Nev. Burley visits Pocatello tonight.

CSI WOMEN WORK TO BEAT TREASURE VALLEY

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Head coach Randy Rogers said this week every team will pose a challenge to his College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team right now and it got one out of Treasure Valley (Ore.) Community College Thursday night.

The scoreboard read 69-57 after the game in the Golden Eagles' favor, but considering that they beat the Chukars by 51 last year, this didn't feel like a convincing win.

"We're a different team and Treasure Valley is a different team than last year," Roger said. "That's a good team. They have some quickness and played hard."

Tayllor Gipson provided the highlight of the night in a game devoid of big plays and marred by 54 total fouls.

After a steal by Gabriella Borges,

Gipson received the ball in stride near midcourt. She shook her defender with a behind-the-back dribble and drove the lane for a lefty layup while being fouled. She nailed the free throw for the old-school 3-point play to give the Golden Eagles a 62-47 lead – their largest of the night – with 4:50 remaining in the game.

Gipson finished with 18 points, 10 in the first half and made 8-of-9 free throws. The Golden Eagles (3-5) shot 29-of-43 from the free throw line (67 percent), while Treasure Valley (0-3) was just 14-of-29 (48 percent).

At times, getting fouled was CSI's best offense as it struggled in the half court against the quick Treasure Valley defense. After a quick bucket in the first minute of the second half, the Golden Eagles scored nearly four minutes without a score, but Treasure Valley was only able to score four points

Lynch Carries Seahawks Over Eagles

Seattle Seahawks running back Marshawn Lynch celebrates a touchdown against the Philadelphia Eagles in the first half of Thursday's game in Seattle.

BY TIM BOOTH
Associated Press

SEATTLE • Marshawn Lynch loves the prime-time stage, even if he's rarely given such a spotlight.

Seattle's hard-charging running back bulld through Philadelphia for 148 yards and a pair of first-half touchdowns, David Hawthorne returned the third of Vince Young's four interceptions 77 yards for a score, and the Seahawks rolled to a 31-14 victory Thursday night that only added to the Eagles' miserable season.

Lynch ran into and escaped from a massive pileup for a 15-yard TD run in the first quarter, then made a quick cut and went back against the flow for a 40-yard scoring dash on the first play of the second quarter to give the Seahawks (5-7) a 14-0 lead.

Golden Tate's 11-yard, toe-tapping touchdown grab along the back edge of the end zone in the third quarter pushed Seattle's cushion to 17 over the Eagles (4-8).

But the Seahawks' third victory in their last four games wasn't secured until Hawthorne stepped in front of a swing pass intended for LeSean McCoy and raced untouched in the other direction with 4:24 left.

Making his third straight start in place of Michael Vick and his two broken ribs, Young couldn't find the same magic he did in the 2006 Rose Bowl when he led Texas to an upset of Pete Carroll and USC.

Young's first pass of the night was an awful interception thrown right to Seattle safety Kam Chancellor and nowhere near an Eagles receiver. Young was intercepted in the third quarter as well when a perfect pass deflected off the hands of Riley Cooper and into the hands of cornerback Brandon Browner. Both turnovers led to Seattle touchdowns.

MILEAGE PILING
UP FOR CSI MEN

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

So, Steve Gosar which road trip is tougher: a cross country flight to New Rochelle, N.Y. or a 12-hour plus bus ride to Scottsbluff, Neb?

"Man, it's tough getting anywhere from Twin Falls," said the College of Southern Idaho head basketball coach. "Nowhere else in the country do teams have the travel we do in our conference. It's a grind going to Rangely (Colo.) or North Idaho and to schedule our non-conference games requires some travel too. It's going to be a tough weekend."

The Golden Eagles (8-1) have enjoyed a six-game home stand after their season-opening trip to the Monroe College Invite in New York, but return to the road tonight against Laramie County (Wyo.) Community College to open the Western Nebraska Tournament in Scottsbluff, Neb.

CSI played Laramie County (2-5) in a preseason jamboree in Salt Lake City and the (other) Golden Eagles are led by a trio of Brazilian players, headlined by 6-foot-10 center Rodrigo Silva, who signed a National Letter of Intent with Texas Tech last month. A solid defensive post presence, Silva ranked second in the country last season at 4.8 blocks per game. This year, he's averaging 10.1 points, 9.4 rebounds and 2.8 blocks.

"They've got some really good big guys who will be a good test for our post players," Gosar said.

Bruno Machado, a 6-6 transfer from Salt Lake Community College and Julian Chiera, a 6-5 small forward are the other two Brazilian players who pace Laramie County, which Gosar said has a good starting five, but not much depth.

On Saturday, CSI plays tournament host Western Nebraska (8-1) — another team it saw at the Salt Lake City preseason jamboree. The Cougars' lone loss came to Utah State University-College of Eastern Utah two weeks ago in Scottsbluff.

Western Nebraska has five players scoring in double figures, led by guard Raul Delgado at 22.6. The sharpshooter from Chihuahua, Mexico made 12 3-pointers in one game earlier this season against Little Big Horn College.

"He can really stroke it. It's one thing to take 12 shots in a game. It's another to take 12 3-pointers in a game and make them," Gosar said. "They are a physical team and we're really going to have to sit down and guard him."

Du'Vaughn Maxwell (20.8 ppg) is another weapon for Western Nebraska and the athletic 6-7 forward gave CSI trouble in the jamboree.

"These two teams are going to be good tests for us. They play two different styles and we're still continuing to improve," Gosar said. "This weekend will be very similar to a conference road trip for us, traveling there and playing back-to-back nights."

NOTES: The Golden Eagles received a mixed bag of injury-related news this week. The good: Paul Bunch, a 6-foot-11 center, was finally cleared to practice after sustaining a concussion in summer workouts. The bad: Gerson Santo, the first big man off the bench and a key contributor to last year's championship team, is sidelined this weekend with a mild concussion of his own which he sustained against Miles Community College Nov. 25.

KNIGHT TIME: PIRATES DOWN HORNETS

TIMES-NEWS

OAKLEY • Larissa Knight scored 20 points and Hagerman used an inside-out approach to beat Oakley 47-36 in Snake River Conference girls basketball action Thursday.

"I was being more aggressive going to the glass and unlike other games I didn't just camp out on the 3-point line," Knight said. "My shot felt good and it was really nice having our big inside so that I could dish to them and it really opened up my shot, too."

Early on, Oakley struggled to handle Hagerman's Aly Sauer as the sophomore post scored 11 of her 12 points in the first quarter and the Pirates built a double-digit lead.

"We made some adjustments and shut her down the last three-fourths of the game," Oakley coach Josh Aston said. "We just have to eliminate the little mistakes early on."

Oakley fell to 2-4. Hagerman, a team with no seniors on its roster, improved to 4-1.

Locker At Syracuse Target of Fine Inquiry

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYRACUSE, N.Y. • Federal authorities have searched a locker in the Syracuse University basketball center in their investigation of former assistant coach Bernie Fine, according to a law enforcement official familiar with the case.

Three men, including two former Syracuse ballboys, have accused Fine of molesting them as minors.

The official confirmed the search at the Carmelo K. Anthony Basketball Center happened Wednesday. The official, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity Thursday because it's an ongoing investigation, would not say what agents sought or what they recovered from the locker.

The coaches' lockers are on the second floor of the facility; players' lockers are on the first floor.

Court documents show the third search warrant was issued Tuesday and signed by U.S. Magistrate Andrew Baxter.

Fine's office on campus was searched Tuesday morning, and his suburban home was searched last Friday. The U.S. Attorney's office in northern New York, which is leading the investigation, has not said what it sought or found.

Syracuse men's basketball coach Jim Boeheim did not address the Fine investigation at the start of his weekly radio show Thursday night.

When the show began, host Matt Park said Boeheim had already "extensive comments" Tuesday.

"If you want to talk about basketball, please call," Park said. "There will be nothing more to say about the investigation."

Earlier Thursday, Syracuse Chancellor Nancy Cantor said the school decided to fire Fine upon hearing an audiotape recorded by Bobby Davis, one of Fine's three accusers. ESPN broadcast the 2002 audiotape, recorded by Davis, of a conversation between Davis and a woman ESPN identified as Fine's wife, Laurie, in which she says she knew "everything that went on."

Cantor's comments were in a published response to a USA Today editorial Thursday that calls on Syracuse to release a "full accounting" of what it did and why Fine was kept on the job.

Fine, who was denied the allegations, was fired Sunday.

Davis Shines As No. 1 Kentucky Rolls

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. • Freshman Anthony Davis scored 15 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and had eight of a school-record 18 blocks in No. 1 Kentucky's 81-59 victory over St. John's on Thursday night.

Terrence Jones added 26 points and nine rebounds for the Wildcats (7-0), who head into a highly anticipated showdown with No. 5 North Carolina on Saturday on a high note after a stalwart defensive performance.

Davis blocked four shots before the first timeout, and Kentucky set the team record with Eloy Vargas' swat with 2:42 to go. Davis finished one block short of tying the individual mark of nine set by Sam Bowie in 1981 and matched by Andre Riddick in 1993.

God'sgift Achiuwa scored 18 points and Moe Harkless added 16 for the Red Storm (4-4).

GEORGETOWN 57, NO. 12 ALABAMA 55.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. • Hollis Thompson hit a long 3-pointer with 1.8 seconds left to lift Georgetown over Alabama, ending the Crimson Tide's 24-game home winning streak.

Jason Clark, who had 22 points, dribbled up the court and practically handed off to Thompson in front of the Hoyas' bench. Thompson drilled it to give Georgetown (6-1) its second win in three games over a team ranked in the Top 12.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“Oft expectation fails, and most oft there Where most it promises.” — William Shakespeare

Absolute par on today's tournament deal would see North-South double six hearts, since they have 11 tricks in spades, while East and West have only 10 in hearts. As happens so often, par was not achieved at any of the eight tables in play. On the contrary, a few North-South pairs managed to beat par handily. Today's deal is the most extreme example. Zia Mahmood was North; Tony Forrester, South.

When the six-no-trump bid came around to Paul Chemla, it looked so much like the final contract that he ventured a double, knowing he would also be on lead if they ran to diamonds. Nonetheless, against Tony Forrester, you had better think twice before giving him an opening, however small.

Realizing that West would be on lead against a spade contract, Tony retreated to seven spades, and then it was up to Alain Levy to work out what exactly was going on. Levy's heart-holding marked Zia with the ace in that suit. Thus the double really had to be based on the top clubs. However, on Levy's actual heart lead, Forrester racked up the grand slam.

At another table, after the same first three bids, one East thoughtfully joined in with four clubs to get his club lead against a spade contract. As a passed hand he could not have just clubs or he would already have acted. In fact, this led to West's buying the hand in five hearts doubled, which cost only 100.

ANSWER: The auction might suggest that North has four spades. However, after a negative double, North will frequently introduce spades on a three-card suit if he has no proper heart stop. Since your red-suit holding strongly argues for caution, you should pass, letting North repeat his spades if he really has four of them.

Found Dogs:

A male Border Collie mix was found in Buhl 12-1-11. He is black and white and had no collar.

Available for Adoption:

Some of our doggies have been here for a long time. Please, if you've been thinking about one, don't wait. It would be great for them to have a home for the holidays!

Tater is a boxer/ shepherd mix. He has a short haired tan coat. Tater has a very unique face with a little. black. Tater knows basic commands such as sit. He is a young dog probably under a year. Tater loves other dogs and would be a great family pet.

Josie is a lovely Border Collie girl. She is very affectionate and loves to be petted. Josie is a young adult probably a year or two old. She is black and white and has a short smooth coat. Josie is very mellow and will be a nice pet.

Wiley is a female Shepherd/Husky mix. She is silver and white and is probably about 6 months-old. Wiley is very affectionate and playful.

Daisy is a cute little border collie mix pup. She is about 6-months-old and is black and white. Come meet her today.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

Jerome, Idaho 83338

Today is Friday, Dec. 2, the 336th day of 2011. There are 29 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Dec. 2, 1961, Cuban leader Fidel Castro declared himself a Marxist-Leninist who would eventually lead Cuba to Communism in a nationally broadcast speech that began around midnight and ended five hours later.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1804, Napoleon crowned himself Emperor of the French.

In 1823, President James Monroe outlined his doctrine opposing European expansion in the Western Hemisphere.

In 1859, militant abolitionist John Brown was hanged for his raid on Harpers Ferry the previous October. Artist Georges-Pierre Seurat was born in Paris.

In 1927, Ford Motor Co. unveiled its Model A automobile that replaced its Model T.

In 1939, New York Municipal Airport-LaGuardia Field (later LaGuardia Airport) went into operation as an airliner from Chicago landed at one minute past midnight.

In 1942, an artificially created, self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction was demonstrated for the first time, at the University of Chicago.

In 1954, the Senate voted to condemn Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., for conduct that "tends to bring the Senate into disrepute."

In 1970, the newly created Environmental Protection Agency opened its doors. (Its first director was William D. Ruckelshaus.)

In 1980, four American churchwomen were raped and murdered outside San Salvador. (Five El Salvador national guardsmen were later convicted of murdering nuns Ita Ford, Maura Clarke and Dorothy Kazel, and lay worker Jean Donovan.)

In 1991, American hostage Joseph Cicippio, held captive in Lebanon for more than five years, was released.

Ten years ago: In one of the largest corporate bankruptcies in U.S. history, Enron filed for Chapter 11 protection. A bomb went off aboard a bus in Haifa, killing 15 Israelis, a day after two suicide bombers killed 11 bystanders in Jerusalem. Nicolas Escude gave France its ninth Davis Cup, defeating Australian Wayne Arthurs 7-6 (3), 6-7 (5), 6-3, 6-3 in the deciding fifth match.

Five years ago: Fidel Castro failed to attend a military parade marking the 50th anniversary of the formation of Cuba's Revolutionary Armed Forces, raising questions about his ability to return to power. A triple car bombing in a predominantly Shiite district of Baghdad killed dozens of people. A sport utility vehicle driven by actor Lane Garrison hit a tree in Beverly Hills, killing a 17-year-old passenger; Garrison was later sentenced to three years and four months in prison for drunken driving (he was paroled in April 2009).

One year ago: The House voted, 333-79, to censure Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., for financial and fundraising misconduct; it was only the 23rd time that the House had invoked its most serious punishment short of expulsion. LeBron James scored 38 points to lead the Miami Heat to a 118-90 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers; it was James' first game back in the city where he had played for seven years before leaving via free agency. The tiny desert nation of Qatar beat out the United States as the 2022 World Cup host, bringing soccer's showcase event for the first time to the Middle East.

DEAR ABBY: A while back I told my family I was considering downsizing my life and made the big mistake of telling them I want them to eventually leave my house. I also revealed the contents of my will. Now I feel exposed, uncomfortable and vulnerable — possibly even a bit paranoid that they might want to have me “six feet under” sooner than I should be.

I don't think I am ready to move yet, but I have gotten my family's hopes up. I did talk to one of them and felt reassured at the time, but I still sense that there's a change in how they perceive me and all of our futures now.

How can I undo the damage, knowing I have to make sure I have enough money to live on as well as provide for them when I'm gone?

— FOOT-IN-MOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR F-IN-M: Two of the most sensitive subjects to discuss are death and money, and you deserve praise for having started the conversation. I disagree that making your intentions known instead of having them transmitted during a reading of your will was a mistake. Because you feel there may have been a misunderstanding, call a family meeting and clarify your message. Tell them your health is great, you have no plans to move in the near future and plan to live a long and happy life.

DEAR ABBY: My mother lives in an assisted living community in the memory care unit. During a recent visit, I became upset because the care staff addressed my mom as “Granny,” “Grandma,” “Mamma,” etc. Mother struggles with the time of day, the day of the week and sometimes forgets who we are — so I don't see the benefit of using names other than her own. I think it is disrespectful, unacceptable and unprofessional.

When I asked the attendant to please address Mom as “Mrs. Smith” or “Ms. Ann,” she laughed and said, “Granny wouldn't know who I was talking to if I called her by those names.” My siblings and I took this issue to the director, who told us we shouldn't be hurt and that the staff was showing our mom she is loved.

I am interested in knowing your opinion on this matter.

— SHE HAS A

NAME IN GEORGIA

DEAR SHE HAS A NAME:

Not knowing the national origin of the attendants in your mother's care unit I can't be certain, but what you encountered may be a cultural difference. In other cultures, calling someone “Mama,” “Auntie” or “Grandma” is considered respectful. While it made YOU uncomfortable, if it didn't have that effect on your mother, you should take your cue from the director of the facility. However, because you have formally requested that your mother be addressed by name, then that is what should be done in the future.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I are out together, he strides out ahead of me and calls back, “Catch up!” or “Keep up!” I am not creeping along but walking at my own (reasonable) pace. I think he should either slow down or let me walk behind him and not expect me to run after him at his command. What do you think?

— LIKES TO SMELL THE ROSES IN TENNESSEE

DEAR LIKES TO SMELL THE ROSES: Unless your husband is a Marine drill sergeant, I think you're right.

IF DECEMBER 2 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Nothing can hold you back this coming year unless you let it. In January, too many social obligations or group activities can eat into your time, but in February you can make headway with career, business or financial plans. That is when your business acumen comes to the forefront. Jupiter, planet of abundance and blessings, will assist your sector of the zodiac in March so that is an excellent time to make crucial decisions or accept unexpected opportunities. In late July and early August, your judgment about other people might be temporarily out of kilter so steer clear of new partnerships.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Shake a tail feather. You can show off when birds of a feather flock together. Get out and about; attend a community occasion or sports event. You could meet a flirtatious new partner while roller skating.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Act the part of the gracious host. Or be the perfect guest. You are willing to let bygones be bygones and can charmingly extend your warmth to everyone in reach. Share your heart with someone close.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Climb on the carousel of fun and excitement. With holidays just around the corner, an endless round of entertaining and socializing might be in store. It's not what you but how you say it that counts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Banish bashfulness. You can get your foot in the door with a new customer or flirt with someone who has had his or her eye on you for a long while. Assertiveness is considered warm and wonderful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone new in your circle may provide thought-provoking perspectives. Learn to use progressive techniques to make your workload easier. Enthusiastic friends can brighten the domestic scene this weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could say that your world revolves around a special someone. Don't be surprised if you are asked to put your money where your mouth is. Frivolous spending may be a necessary challenge.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Make an effort to reach an accord. Some earnest one-on-one conversations can straighten out misconceptions and restore the peace. Feel safe, cherished and loved within the bosom of the family fold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Reach into your bag of tricks to make ideas a reality. You are just the person to perform the research when how to have fun is the question. Those in your immediate circle will be filled with enthusiasm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Relationships begun now may be exciting and will be fun while they last. People are willing to do favors for you – but, in return, you may be coerced into digging deep into your own pockets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Breathe life into the party. You can meet like-minded individuals who are thrilled by your viewpoints and opinions under these cheerful stars. You are brimming with hopeful plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Add a touch of class. Handle important business concerns with finesse and refinement. A hint of sincerity and diplomacy can deflect and offset hostilities that developed over the past several days.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Exert extra effort into pleasing your partner. A little TLC will work wonders and bring the two of you closer. This isn't a good time for a heart-to-heart talk or to implement spur-of-the-moment changes.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

How a Nampa Family Is Getting Help to Buy a Rehabilitated Home

BY SANDRA FORESTER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Travis and Julie Munson of Nampa will become first-time homebuyers Friday thanks to efforts by several organizations and the city to fill foreclosed homes.

"It's an unbelievable thing," Travis Munson said.

The Munsons completed the Finally Home homebuyers program through the Idaho Housing and Finance Association, which gave them assistance with a down payment and closing costs, and access to mortgages with higher debt ratios. Munson said Finally Home gave him confidence in the home-buying process and the belief that he could handle owning one.

Next, the couple qualified for a four-bedroom home with a bonus room in a middle-class West Nampa neighborhood near Midland Boulevard and Roosevelt Avenue.

The home was an empty foreclosure purchased by Mercy Housing Northwest-Idaho and the city using Neighborhood Stabilization Program funds. The program seeks to stabilize home values and restore distressed houses in areas hit hard by foreclosures, such as Nampa.

Mercy Housing used part of a $100,000 Priority Markets grant from Wells Fargo to rehabilitate the Munsons' home, fixing problems and making it more energy-efficient and cost-efficient to maintain.

Thanks to the programs and funding, Munson, who makes slightly more than $30,000 a year as a chemical supervisor for an irrigation district, will have a nice home for a mortgage of $640 a month through First Mortgage of Idaho.

"The only way we're able to get this house is with the grants," he said.

The move means plenty of room for his young, growing family, Munson said. The Munsons had been raising their two boys and a girl, ages 9, 7 and 3, in a 900-square-foot, three-bedroom home.

"My boys will have their own rooms," he said. "I've got a nice, big back yard. I want to get a dog."

On Friday, Mercy Housing will welcome the Munsons into their home and give them the keys.

During a ceremony, Wells Fargo also will give Mercy Housing a check for $150,000 to rehabilitate 12 foreclosed homes.

In the past two years, the nonprofit Mercy Housing has rehabilitated and sold 12 such homes that once were distressed in the Treasure Valley.

Audit Seeks Policy on Funding for Idaho Colleges

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • The decades-old scuffle among Idaho's four-year universities over whether they're being fairly funded compared to each other will hardly be resolved by a review by the state's performance audit bureau.

Office of Performance Evaluations auditors wrote the Idaho State Board of Education must first establish equity standards before anybody can determine if one school is enjoying relatively royal treatment, while another gets the short end of the stick.

It's an old debate — one that's emerged numerous times in recent decades, and it's being driven, in part, because the funding gap between the University of Idaho, which now gets the most money per student, and Boise State University, which gets the least, widened nearly three-fold since 2006 as BSU's enrollment has jumped.

"Those students should be properly accounted for,

and those students should be properly funded," said Boise State President Bob Kustra, whose funding based on the state's existing formula has fallen nearly a third over the last decade. He spoke before a panel of lawmakers who met Wednesday, when the report was released.

The UI gets about $3,500 in state appropriations per full time student, according to the current funding scheme that's weighted based on program type and course level. Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston gets about $3,000, while Idaho State and BSU each receive less than $2,500.

Complicating this debate is that each school comes armed with arguments based on its own mission, laying out why it's entitled to a fair, and usually growing, share of a limited pool of cash.

For instance, Kustra insists more attention be paid to rising enrollments — as his school in Idaho's capital approaches 20,000 students. Idaho State University President Art Vilas underscores how the costs of health and engineering programs are rising faster than inflation for humanities programs. Not surprisingly, Vilas' Pocatello school has a health and engineering focus.

The UI argues funding is appropriately weighted toward expensive research and graduate programs, the Moscow school's bread and butter. Meanwhile, Anthony Fernandez, president of Lewis-Clark State College, suggests such an emphasis puts teaching-oriented schools like his at a disadvantage.

"The equity issue has been an issue forever, and will be an issue forever," predicted Marty Peterson, the UI's longtime lobbyist who is stepping down this year. "I suspect at any given moment in time if you come up with a solution, at the next moment in time there are going to be problems with someone."

Part of the problem has been the declining state support for higher education since the 2008 recession began, a total decrease of about $75 million that's been accompanied by a $49 million hike in student tuition and fees. That only partly makes up the difference — and puts more of the burden on students and their parents.

In a 2006 agreement, university presidents agreed to a deal with the Idaho Legislature to give $2.2 million to BSU and $1.7 million to ISU. That was just half the money that state education officials said was needed to make things fair, but the schools agreed to a political compromise and declared funding equity.

Since then, however, the funding gap between Idaho's schools has widened, at least in part because the Idaho Legislature hasn't kept up with separate payments meant to fairly fund enrollment growth. BSU has been hardest hit, because its enrollment has grown the most, so it's pushing for changes.

"The Legislature chose not to fund it, putting certain universities in peril who were growing significantly during these last few years," Kustra said. "You can't simply write some of those students off."

The Office of Performance Evaluations' 51-page study concluded the State Board of Education must develop a policy that sets "an explicit standard of equitable funding levels" that clearly explains why some programs warrant more money than others. In other words, once state education leaders aiming to increase the number of Idaho's college graduates by 2020 decide one university should get more funding for offering nuclear engineering but another will get less for its literature students, they should set it out in a policy.

Auditors offered this caveat: The state board should recognize any plan to re-establish funding equity must also reflect the reality that universities are vying with other state agencies also seeking more taxpayer support. They won't get everything they want.

"By considering the often competing priorities that the Legislature must balance, the board will better position itself to develop a plan that can make progress toward achieving equity — even years when there is no additional funding from the Legislature," according to the OPE report.
