Taylor Gets Life for Shooting Jerome Cop

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Christopher Mark Taylor knows how the events of Feb. 7 went down. At his sentencing on Monday, he heard another perspective.

During the early minutes of a hearing that ended with him being sent to prison for the rest of his life, Taylor heard an audio recording of officers and dispatchers as they pursued him at speeds up to 100 mph. He sat quietly, at times with his head down, and listened to a chase in which he shot a Jerome police officer before an officer rammed his car off a rural Jerome County road.

Six minutes into the recording, Jerome Police Officer Dennis Clark reported shots fired, as Taylor peppered his patrol car with 12-gauge shot. A few minutes later, Taylor crashed his vehicle near the intersection of 200 E. 300 S., putting an end to the pursuit. Barely 120 seconds later, Clark's voice, with labored breath, called for help.

"Would you send Life Flight to the intersection to the north of us," he said. "I'm getting a ride over there now."

"What's wrong?" a dispatcher asked.

"I've been shot in the face."

Ten months later, Clark and Taylor sat only feet apart Monday in Jerome County 5th District Court. It may have been the last time Taylor set foot in Jerome.

The 30-year-old turned to Clark and offered a few words: "To Officer Clark, I think about that day every day. I ruined your life as well as mine."

Clark, who lost vision in his left eye as a result of Taylor's actions, declined to make a statement at the hearing.

According to his testimony at Taylor's preliminary hearing, Clark attempted to make a traffic stop on Taylor and called for backup as "we've had quite a few dealings with Mr. Taylor, and I felt more comfortable with assistance."

Taylor fled, and Clark chased, still waiting on backup. Officer Scott Novak was the first to join in pursuit, unaware that his fellow officer had been shot. Clark, despite losing "a significant amount of blood," continued on, and even rammed Taylor's vehicle to send it into a shallow ditch and end the pursuit.

"I did not feel comfortable allowing Mr. Taylor to circle back and find me unconscious in my patrol car," Clark testified as the reason for ramming the car again. He said he tried to continue to help with Taylor's arrest, but was ordered to take a waiting air ambulance to the hospital.

Judge John Butler pronounced judgment on the career criminal, putting Taylor away for the rest of

Idaho Budget Reserves Won't Stretch Far

Legislators expect there to be high demand for the $77 million that's projected to remain when fiscal 2012 ends in June.

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

While Idaho could wind up with $77 million still in its wallet when the state's fiscal year ends June 30, there's already a long list of requests for any state surplus.

For now, $77 million is just an estimate of what the state can expect if its annual revenues grow by 3 percent over the prior year. Lawmakers will have a better sense of what kind of surplus they'll work with when the Legislature starts meeting in January and revenue updates are issued for more months.

But even if the surplus estimate holds up, it won't come close to filling in gaps left by years of budget cuts. To keep it in perspective, remember that for fiscal year 2012, lawmakers set a $2.5 billion budget earlier this year. A $7.7 million surplus amounts to less than 3.1 percent of this year's overall budget.

Legislators propped up the current budget with nearly $100 million of one-time spending to cover ongoing expenses, said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chair of the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee.

Those one-time dollars came from a variety of sources, including now-depleted reserve accounts where money was stowed away in good times.

"We have cleaned them out," Bell said.

Bell said surplus dollars will be in high demand for projects the state has delayed for several years in the economic downturn, such as deferred maintenance. Just one example of such a request, she said, would be replacing the aging, soon-to-be-outdated radio equipment used by the Idaho State Police.

"You have to look at those pent-up needs, the things we've not done," Bell said.

This list of requests for supplemental dollars that JFAC will sort through and prioritize this session totals $142.5 million. That includes requests for the public schools and higher education budgets, along with health and human services, public safety and natural resources.

Southern Idaho Trappers Seek Challenge of Wolves

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game's trapper education course has boomed in popularity locally, while the state's wolf trapping season continues to provoke controversy.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Wolf trapping may only be legal in northern Idaho, but that doesn't mean southern trappers are sitting still.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game regional office in Jerome reports that its wolf trapping education class was packed to capacity last weekend. The class is mandatory for anyone who wants to buy a state wolf trapping license.

"We can only have 25 people at a time and we were turning people away weeks in advance," said Kelton Hatch, regional conservationist for Fish and Game.

This is Idaho's first wolf hunting season that allows the use of trapping, and only a handful of locations allow it. The decision has prompted objections from wolf activists who argue that trapping is unethical. On top of concerns that the animal may experience extended periods of pain, the threat of bycatch is also a worry. By-catch is the trapping of an animal that a trapper is not hunting.

Rusty Kramer, a director for the Idaho Trappers Association, expects trapping to expand across the state by next year.

"There is a lot of emotion around wolves and trapping, especially from the non-sportsmen public," he said. "But trapping is beneficial in keeping wolf numbers down."

Have a Present to Mail? Better Send it Soon, Postal Service Says

While you're out shopping, deadlines to mail gifts are looming, and shipping is more expensive the longer you procrastinate.

TIMES-NEWS

Your brother will appreciate that iPod Touch you bought him for Christmas.

But you know what he'll really like? Getting it before January.

As holiday shoppers start to fill cardboard shipping boxes with neatly wrapped novelties, the U.S. Postal Service is gearing up for its busiest time of the year. The Postal Service expects to ship 16.5 billion — yes, billion — cards, letters and packages between Thanksgiving and Christmas. And it has a warning for holiday procrastinators: Time is running out.

Already, the recommended date to send gifts to soldiers serving in Afghanistan has passed. It's still possible that packages shipped will get there in time for Christmas, but with every passing day, that possibility becomes less likely. Mail sent to military members serving in other foreign locations should be sent by Saturday.

The mail-by date on international First-Class Mail packages is Friday for most regions — except for Africa and Central and South America, where you've probably already missed the window if you haven't sent items out.

The good news is that there's still time to dawdle with domestic shipping. Parcel Post packages should be sent by Dec. 15, while the First-Class Mail recommendation is Dec. 20.

Wait any longer and you'll pay Priority or Express premiums to beat Santa's delivery date.

The postal service expects Dec. 16 to be its busiest day to receive mail, and Dec. 19 to be the busiest delivery date.

Burley Airport Plan Needs FAA Nod to Move Forward

After Burley’s airport advisory committee ditched its initial site proposals, it will need federal approval to develop a second list of less-opposed sites.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Now that plans to build Burley’s new airport have taken a step back, they’ll have to wait a bit before moving forward.

Burley’s airport advisory committee, which ditched its four initial airport site proposals last week, needs Federal Aviation Administration approval of its plans before it begins to identify new potential sites. The committee distanced itself from the sites during a Nov. 29 meeting that saw its proposals met mostly by opposition, including a string of questions in a letter from the Cassia County Commission.

On Monday, county commissioners discussed their concerns about how the airport proposal clashes with the comprehensive plan for Cassia County. That long-term planning document calls for the protection of the prime agricultural land that each of the airport proposals was located within.

“We have taken steps in our comprehensive plan to prohibit certain things that would detract from the agricultural economy,” County Administrator Kerry McMurray said.

County Clerk Joe Larsen, who represents local pilots on the airport committee, said the group hopes to hear back from the FAA within a month and set a new agenda based on FAA response. Burley’s plan to replace the aging J.R. “Jack” Simplot Airport in Burley remains in its infancy, as City Administrator Mark Mitton has said a cost estimate for the project has not yet been determined.

That’s something the project’s opposition has latched on to, and something county commissioners say needs to be addressed before the plan moves forward.

“I think it needs to be decided by the electorate whether this is even something we should pursue or is even necessary prior to finding a site, and then deciding whether you have money to do it afterwards,” Larsen said.

Larsen said that when the committee has tried to address some concerns outlined in the county letter, “it gets deflected because it isn’t in the scope of what we’re trying to do.”

While the four initial site proposals could be revisited, Larsen said the committee will likely review the aspects that led to their opposition and weigh those in any new site decisions.

“I think it might have a lot to do with what’s available with public grounds and less intrusive inclusions,” he said. “I don’t think any one of those four sites will come back in my opinion.”

At a Glance Burley Airport Plans

Earlier: Attempts by Burley officials to build replacement for the aging J.R. “Jack” Simplot Airport were brought to a halt in 1997 and 2008 by land issues and disagreements. During a Nov. 29 Burley airport advisory committee meeting, members agreed to step back from four sites targeted for the newest relocation attempt and re-evaluate their site selection criteria.

What’s next: The committee’s plans must meet muster with Federal Aviation Administration expectations. If the committee receives a nod from FAA, it will reset its agenda and begin re-evaluating its site selection criteria.

In Other Business

- Commissioners unanimously approved changing Desert West Land Surveys’ fee structure to a rate of $95 per hour and $55 hourly for drafting.
- Commissioners unanimously approved $1.47 million in sub-tax rolls that were left off the original tax rolls because the figures represented new construction or were overlooked.
- Commissioners voted to discuss, in closed-door session, county negotiations with an architect selected for the new judicial building.

Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, said there are plenty of holes to fill in areas that include education and mental health funding.

“Everything was cut so far and, based upon the revenue projections, we have a lot of holes to fill,” Jaquet said.

Nationally, state finances are faring better overall than they did last year. But trepidation still remains about how much confidence to put in the economy’s growth, according to a recent study by the National Conference of State Legislatures.

The study found that just four states — Washington, California, Missouri and New York — have seen expenses outpace revenues since the fiscal year started July 1. Last year, 15 states had budget gaps.

This year, the gap is $4.4 billion among those states combined, while it was $26.7 billion a year ago, according to NCSL.

MAN DIES AFTER ATV FLIPS AND TRAPS HIM UNDERNEATH FOR 31 HOURS

STANDARD JOURNAL

A Rexburg man who was pinned under an ATV in several inches of snow for 31 hours has died, said Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center officials.

The hospital would not give the time of death for Bryan Groom, 52. The Standard Journal called EIRMC shortly before 6 p.m. Monday.

Groom was injured Nov. 28 in Clark County when his ATV flipped onto him while he was hunting in steep terrain. He suffered from massive blunt force trauma, frostbite and hypothermia.

Clark County Search and Rescue and Clark

County Sheriff’s Office searched for Groom after his family reported him as missing the night Nov. 28. They found him the evening of Nov. 29, and he was flown by helicopter to EIRMC.

his life with two life sentences without the possibility of parole.

Taylor pleaded guilty to aggravated battery on an officer with a weapons enhancement and aggravated assault on an officer, which was joined with a persistent violator enhancement. He was on felony probation in Twin Falls County at the time of the chase and shooting, and even that was not his first foray into crime. Taylor has previous felony convictions and served every kind of sentence the state can offer, Butler noted: county jail time, probation, a stint in the retained-jurisdiction program and prison time.

Although Butler could have opted for a life sentence with the possibility of parole, he said he does not believe Taylor can rehabilitate.

“Clearly, this court does not need to wait until the defendant does in fact kill someone to determine if a fixed-life sentence is appropriate,” Butler said.

Taylor pleaded guilty to the felony charges in August. He has 42 days to file for an appeal.

One More Charged with Burglary in Drug Trafficking Case

TIMES-NEWS

A Filer man recently charged with trafficking marijuana is now formally accused of burglary as well.

Adrian Will, 23, of Filer, was arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. He was held on $50,000 bond as of Monday afternoon.

Will, also charged with trafficking marijuana and possession of a controlled substance, is one of several people charged in connection with a complicated case involving drugs allegedly stolen from a Twin Falls man's home.

Will and Michael and Robin Pendleton, both 20, were initially charged with trafficking after police allegedly found them with 591 grams of marijuana, a notebook with weights and prices, and six grams of methamphetamine, earlier in November at a Twin Falls motel.

They led police to Michael's uncle, David Henderson, 35, whom they said they stole the drugs from, according to the police report. Henderson was charged with trafficking as well.

The marijuana allegedly belonged to Pritpal Lal, 24, of Modesto, Calif., whom Henderson said was a friend of his. Lal has not been charged in connection with the drugs, according to online court records. He was arrested in November and held on a fugitive warrant; online records show he waived his extradition on Nov. 18, though he still faces a fugitive hearing at 8:16 a.m. Friday.

Most of the others involved in the case will make Friday court appearances as well. Will has a preliminary hearing on his drug charges at 8:15 a.m. that day. Another hearing on his burglary charge is set for 8:15 a.m. Dec. 16.

Michael Pendleton is also charged with felony burglary. Both he and Robin are slated for hearings at the same time on Friday.

No next court date has been set for Henderson.

Police: Shoshone Man Found near Gooding Died of Alcohol, Hypothermia

TIMES-NEWS

A Shoshone man found dead near Gooding in late October succumbed to a mix of alcohol and hypothermia, police announced today.

The body of 25-year-old Juan Carlos Perez-Garcia was found at about 9:30 a.m. Oct. 21 by a motorist passing through the intersection of 1500 E. 2200 S., southwest of Gooding. A toxicology report performed by a state forensic pathologist showed that Perez-Garcia's blood-alcohol content was measured at .32 at the time of his death.

Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said Perez-Garcia and friends had been drinking heavily the night prior and went to sleep in the van they had parked at a nearby residence. When his friends awoke to find Perez-Garcia not breathing, they panicked and allegedly drove the van away from the property.

Alfredo Guadarrama-Ayala, 21, of Shoshone, allegedly placed Perez-Garcia's body along the roadside and drove off. Perez-Garcia's body was there, in mid-30-degree temperatures, for about 45 minutes before it was found, according to police.

The case will be forwarded to the Gooding County Prosecutor's Office for further review to determine if criminal charges will be filed related to Perez-Garcia's death.

Consumer Chief Targeted by Identity Theft

BOISE • The head of Idaho's consumer protection division warns that even he is not immune to identity theft.

Deputy Attorney General Brett DeLange says several fraudulent charges were made to his credit card a couple of months ago. The Idaho Statesman reported Monday that DeLange still doesn't know how someone obtained his credit card information.

The newspaper reports identity theft is among the top complaints from Idaho residents recorded by the federal Internet Crime Complaint Center. Last year, about 19 percent of the 1,246 calls from Idaho were complaints about identity theft.

DeLange suggests that credit card users monitor their statements regularly for irregular activity.

Using that information, searchers were able to locate the family. Everyone was brought home unharmed.

Idaho House Fire Blamed on Circuit Overload

POCATELLO • A fire inspector says a blaze that damaged a Pocatello home over the weekend was caused by an overloaded circuit in an updated breaker panel.

Kim Parks told the Idaho State Journal that the Friday night fire caused significant damage to the home, though no one was injured in the blaze. Parks said the home had old knob and tube wiring, and the fuse panel was converted to breakers. Parks said one of the circuits was overloaded.

The owner of the home told firefighters the building was not insured.

Comment Period Extended for Minidoka Refuge Plan

TIMES-NEWS

Every now and then, the public is given a second chance.

This time, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials are extending the deadline for public comment on their Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge management plan. The agency is required to review their plans every 15 years.

"We're extending the period to give people time to submit a comment even after the holidays," said Refuge Manager Jeffrey Krueger.

Krueger also said that he's received criticism for not giving the public enough time to comment. The agency announced they would accept public comment on the plan in mid-October.

The refuge extends 25 miles upstream from Minidoka Dam and contains 80 miles of Lake Walcott shoreline. The possibility of changing the refuge's boat access has been a top concern of the 75 comments thus submitted.

The new deadline is Jan. 31, two months longer than the original due date.

The public can email comments to FW1PlanningComments@fws.gov; include "Minidoka NWR CCP" in the subject line.

Family Rescued After Truck Hit During Tree Hunt

MOUNTAIN HOME • The Elmore County Sheriff's Office reports a local family and a teenage friend are back home after getting stuck while hunting for a Christmas tree near Atlanta, Idaho.

The sheriff's office said Michaelle Pollard called the sheriff's office early Sunday morning to report that her daughter and family friends had failed to return home when expected from a Christmas tree hunt.

Deputies and a search and rescue unit were still looking for the lost family when they learned that Justin Kaserman had walked 16 miles to a U.S. Forest Service station in Idaho City. Kaserman said the group's truck had gotten stuck in snow, and his wife and the four kids were still at the vehicle.

Nampa KTRV Channel 12 Suspends News Operations, Cuts Staff

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • KTRV Channel 12 suspended its news operations Monday. It is cutting staff this week.

KTRV has been a Fox affiliate located in Nampa. It is a subsidiary of Block Communications Inc., which ended its partnership with Fox Television Network this spring.

“A network affiliate requires a different business model than does an independent station,” said Bill Lamb, vice president of Block Communications.

The station’s new business model does not include news, according to Rick Joseph, president and general manager of KTRV. Joseph could not immediately be reached for comment.

KTRV will “compete aggressively for any network affiliations that come available, and we may even restore the news at some point in the future,” Lamb said.

Block Communications said it will try to offer jobs in other markets to employees whose jobs are cut.

Drug Shortages Worsen In the Treasure Valley, Elsewhere

BY AUDREY DUTTON
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • St. Luke’s cancer doctor Dan Zuckerman flew to Washington about a month ago and sat down with Idaho’s congressional delegation. There was one thing on his mind: a drug shortage that’s getting harder to manage.

Zuckerman, who visited Capitol Hill as part of the American Society of Clinical Oncology, said it’s frustrating when “there’s a drug that’s potentially life-saving or life-prolonging that you just can’t get access to.”

“There are substitutions we can make,” he said, “but they’re not ideal, because they’re not as effective. Or they’re more toxic.”

Valley medical providers said about 200 drugs are often subject to spotty or depleted supplies or backed-up orders.

“It certainly looks like ... we’re already surpassing the shortages of 2010,” said Brenda Dunn, pharmacy executive for the Veteran Integrated Service Network in Idaho and other Northwest states.

Zuckerman had to tell a 60-year-old ovarian cancer patient last week that Doxil, a chemotherapy drug, is on hold. He prescribed her a different drug that doesn’t work as well. The patient, who had done her homework on treatments, wasn’t surprised. She was “resigned to it,” he said.

“It’s distressing for patients who are already distraught with their diagnosis,” he said.

Doxil is off the market, for now, because its third-party manufacturer, Ben Venue Laboratories, shut its Ohio factory when it was overdue on equipment maintenance.

“While we are frustrated by our contract manufacturer’s continued manufacturing challenges, it is our obligation to maintain an active role in working with this partner to resume consistent drug supply,” Rob Bazemore, president of the Doxil drug company Janssen Products wrote last month on its Doxil website. “As a cancer survivor, I know what it’s like to rely on a treatment plan.”

A Chronic Problem

Cancer drugs, antibiotics, pain relievers, autoimmune disease drugs, an anti-nausea patch and thyroid medications are among drugs Boise pharmacists say are in supply.

“We have not run out of anything yet, but there are always drugs on our watch list,” said Kim Martin, lead pharmacist for the Saint Alphonsus Cancer Center. “It’s typically the generic drugs we have a hard time keeping fully stocked.”

Martin said a breast cancer patient came to Boise for treatment because a chemotherapy drug ran out in California.

Two relative newcomers to the shortage pool are Adderall, an amphetamine-based drug for attention-deficit hyperactive disorder, and the ADHD drug Ritalin. Drug makers told the Food and Drug Administration that demand was too high and ingredient-supply problems hurt production.

“We are getting a lot of phone calls seeing if we have (Adderall),” said Gary Wilburn, owner of Lemp’s Apothecary near St. Luke’s Boise Medical Center. “The price has gone up 10 times.”

Lemp’s can buy some active ingredients in powder form, so it occasionally fills in gaps, as it did for a thyroid drug that vanished from the market for a year.

“We made a lot of that,” Wilburn said. Lemp’s also helped some doctors who couldn’t get factory-made vitamin B complex shots.

Who’s to Blame?

Boise medical and pharmaceutical providers said it’s impossible to point fingers. They don’t blame the government. The shortage, they say, is partly a side effect of industry consolidation and efficiency and waste reduction, including reliance on “just in time” inventory maintenance.

The White House took a few swings at drug shortages and potential price gouging in October. The White House cited reports that the “gray market” of secondary suppliers jacks up prices as much as 650 percent. One drug used to treat high blood pressure, normally priced around $26, had gone for $1,200, the White House said.

President Obama ordered the FDA to require early warnings from drug makers that discontinue some drugs or take actions that lead to shortages. The FDA also must speed reviews of new factories, drug suppliers and manufacturing changes.

Cost of a Shortage

When a drug runs out, patients often can switch to another, but they might have to pay for extra blood tests or another visit to the doctor first.

Hospital pharmacists said they’ve jury-rigged solutions for rare drugs, splitting a 90-day bottle into three 30-day bottles or saving the second half of a vial instead of tossing it. Sometimes they turn to a secondary supplier who charges more.

St. Luke’s does that and eats the extra cost rather than pass it on to a patient, said David Wilson, manager of the St. Luke’s oncology pharmacy.

The Boise VA Medical Center benefits from its huge medical network. If its pharmacists run low on something, they can ask one of the VA facilities in Washington for extras, Dunn said.

But that doesn’t fix everything.

“We have to monitor availability of these medications many times per day,” Dunn said. “6 a.m., 8 a.m., 10 a.m. ... Something could come into a wholesaler’s supply chain at any time.”

Habitat for Humanity Offers Home Repairs

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • An organization known for building new homes for low-income residents is turning its focus to repairs because organizers say too few people can afford even the low-cost loans needed to buy the no-profit houses.

Demand for new Habitat for Humanity homes is down because fewer people can afford them, Eula Hickam, board chair for Habitat for Humanity of North Idaho, told The Spokesman-Review in a story Sunday.

In response, a new program called "A Brush with Kindness" was created.

The program helps elderly, disabled and low-income residents with home repairs that they cannot afford to have a contractor do.

Members helped rebuild Michiko Stehrenberger's damaged deck on Saturday.

"The main support beam was bowed," Stehrenberger said. "It wasn't the right structural grade, I guess, for what was needed, so it bounced when you walked on it."

Stehrenberger, who moved from Seattle to Post Falls in May and was out of work until two months ago, said she wants to get housemates to help cover the mortgage but can't rent out any of the bedrooms until the saggy deck is up to code.

Habitat for Humanity is providing her with free labor, and she'll be able to pay off the cost of supplies over the next two years.

Earlier this year, Stehrenberger volunteered on another Habitat for Humanity building project to help make connections in the area, give to the community and learn how to make repairs on her own newly purchased house. Now the people she worked with are helping her with her home.

"They're wonderful," she said. "It's snowing on them as they put this deck together. I'm trying not to be corny, but I'm really touched by that. They could be at home with their feet next to the fire."

To qualify for "A Brush with Kindness," homeowners must meet a certain income level, pay back material costs and participate in the work when they can, among other things.

So far, about five projects have been completed through the program.

"Eventually we hope to do a lot more," Hickam said.

Meridian Police: Nampa Woman Arrested for 5th DUI in 10 Years

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Wendy S. Myrick is being held in the Ada County Jail on a felony DUI charge after Meridian police say she was caught driving drunk on Eagle Road by St. Luke's Meridian Medical Center Sunday night.

The DUI was the 41-year-old Myrick's fifth in the past 10 years, with previous arrests occurring in California and Washington, according to Meridian police reports. DUI's are charged as felonies in Idaho if someone has three or more in a decade. Myrick had not been previously arrested in Idaho before Sunday, according to court records.

A Meridian officer pulled over the car Myrick was driving on Eagle Road around 6:45 p.m. Sunday after the officer saw the car swerve out of her lane of traffic. Police also got a call from a citizen before that reporting a possible DUI driving about the same car, according to reports.

The officer detected an odor of alcohol when talking to Myrick, who failed field sobriety tests at the scene and then registered a blood alcohol content level at or above Idaho's legal limit of .08 percent, according to reports.

Meridian police officials say they will no longer release information about specific BAC levels from DUI arrests, but did say Myrick's was at or above the legal limit.

Myrick was then arrested and booked into the jail.

She will be joined in court Monday by 42-year-old Larry Gonzalez, who is also charged with a felony DUI after Boise police say he was driving drunk downtown early Saturday morning.

Gonzalez has two separate DUI convictions in Ada County from 2003, which Myrick had not been previously arrested in Idaho before Sunday, according to court records.

makes his Saturday morning arrest on a DUI charge his third in ten years, according to Idaho court records.

Witnesses told police they saw Gonzalez drive erratically on the eastbound 184 Connector around 2 a.m. Saturday, weaving his car and out of traffic before eventually driving into a curb and flattening both front tires before pulling off on the River Street exit.

When Boise police found the car, it was in a parking lot in the 600 block of Americana Boulevard.

Officers found Gonzalez attempting to change one of the flat tires. When officers walked up to Gonzalez, they detected a strong odor of alcohol and said he had slurred speech and bloodshot eyes, according to reports.

Police say Gonzalez failed some field sobriety test and refused others. He was then taken to the jail, where a blood sample was taken for later testing and he was arrested. Gonzalez did not take a breath test for blood alcohol content percentage level so that information was not available Monday.

Both Myrick and Gonzalez will make their initial court appearances Monday afternoon.

The crime of felony DUI is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Boise Police Arrest North End Resident on Suspicion of Slashing Car Tires

BY KATY MOELLER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • A 29-year-old North End woman was arrested at her home Monday in connection with the slashing dozens of car tires in her neighborhood in November and early December.

Diana Leigh O'Leary was charged with felony malicious injury to property.

Police say they received a tip Saturday about a woman seen crouching next to a vehicle near 5th and Hays streets between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. That morning, they received reports that about 25 tires in the area were slashed.

The first incident occurred Nov. 23. The tires on about 30 vehicles near 5th and Hays were slashed. There were a total of 31 victims in the two incidents; some had their tires slashed twice.

Acting on the tip they received, police investigated through the weekend. They identified O'Leary as a suspect and obtained a warrant for her arrest. Police did not release information on what evidence they have linking O'Leary to the crime.

"We're confident in this arrest, and we hope it reassures neighbors we're working with them to prevent these crimes and to stop them when they do happen," Sgt. Randy Buzzini of the department's Property Crimes Unit said Monday afternoon in a news release.

Police say they do not have a motive for the crimes.

Slaughter Ban Was Wrong Way to Handle Horse Neglect

There are too many neglected, unwanted horses in the United States — far too many for horse rescue groups to keep up with. Keeping slaughterhouses shuttered isn't going to save all of them. If anything, it might prolong their suffering.

The photos are hard to see — skinny horses with dull eyes, and ribs poking against their bedraggled fur. Unfortunately, it's a common sight in south-central Idaho, where officers respond to charges of horse neglect on a monthly basis. With the recent reversal of a ban that cut funding for horse slaughter inspection, those horses' fates might change.

The ban, from 2006, meant horse meat couldn't be sold for consumption. That closed down the horse slaughterhouses in the United States. But it didn't stop some people from selling their horses for slaughter.

Instead, owners turned to Canada and Mexico, shipping their horses across the border, sometimes without food or water for the days-long journey, according to a report released by Animals' Angels, a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving conditions for farm animals. Since the ban, horse exports to Canada increased by 148 percent and by 660 percent to Mexico, according to the Governmental Accountability Office.

Other horses are abandoned on public lands, sold for cheap at auctions, or turned over to overburdened rescue groups. Many are old — too feeble to sell for a profit, too expensive for owners to take care of.

We understand our country's emotional attachment to horses. In an ideal world, of course we would avoid slaughtering them.

But here's the reality. There are too many neglected, unwanted horses in the United States — far too many for horse rescue groups to keep up with. Keeping slaughterhouses shuttered isn't going to save all of them. If anything, it might prolong their suffering, whether they're left to starve or sent on a long ride to Mexico.

We're not going to celebrate horse slaughterhouses reopening in the United States. Sadly, though, we see the necessity.

The Welfare State's Reckoning

We Americans fool ourselves if we ignore the parallels between Europe's problems and our own. It's reassuring to think them separate, and the fixation on the euro — Europe's common currency — buttresses that mindset. But Europe's turmoil is more than a currency crisis and was inevitable, in some form, even if the euro had never been created. It's ultimately a crisis of the welfare state, which has grown too large to be easily supported economically. People can't live with it — and can't live without it. The American predicament is little different.

Government expansion was one of the 20th century's great transformations. Wealthy nations adopted programs for education, health care, unemployment insurance, old-age assistance, public housing and income redistribution. "Public spending for these activities had been almost nonexistent at the beginning of the 20th century," writes economist Vito Tanzi in his book "Government versus Markets."

The numbers — to those who don't know them — are astonishing. In 1870, all government spending was 7.3 percent of national income in the United States, 9.4 percent in Britain, 10 percent in Germany and 12.6 percent in France. By 2007, the figures were 36.6 percent for the United States, 44.6 percent for Britain, 43.9 percent for Germany and 52.6 percent for France. Military costs once dominated budgets; now, social spending does. "Survival of the fittest" no longer sufficed. Europeans have never liked markets as much as Americans do. In the 1880s, German Chancellor Bismarck created health, old-age and accident insurance: landmarks regarded as originating the welfare state. The Great Depression discredited capitalism, and after World War II, communists and socialists enjoyed strong support in part because they "had formed the backbone of wartime resistance movements," writes Barry Eichengreen in "The European Economy Since 1945." To flourish, the welfare state requires favorable economics and demographics: rapid economic growth to pay for social benefits; and young populations to support the old. Both economics and demographics have moved adversely.

The great expansion of Europe's welfare states started in the 1950s and 1960s, when annual economic growth for its rich nations averaged 4.5 percent compared with a historical rate since 1820 of 2.1 percent, notes Eichengreen. This sort of growth, it was assumed, would continue indefinitely. Not so. From 1973 to 2000, growth settled back to 2.1 percent. More recently, it's been lower.

Demographics shifted, too. In 2000, Italy's 65- and over population was already 18 percent of the total; in 2010, it was 21 percent, and the projection for 2050 is 34 percent. Figures for the European Union's 27 countries are 16 percent, 18 percent and 29 percent.

Until the financial crisis, the welfare state existed in a shaky equilibrium with sluggish economic growth. The crisis destroyed that equilibrium. Economic growth slowed. Debt — already high — rose. Government bonds once considered ultra-safe became risky.

Switch to the United States. Broadly speaking, the story is similar. The great expansion of America's welfare state (though we avoid that term) occurred in the 1960s and 1970s with the creation of Medicare, Medicaid and food stamps. In 1960, 26 percent of federal spending represented payments for individuals; in 2010, the figure was 66 percent. Economic growth in the 1950s and 1960s averaged about 4 percent; from 2000 to 2007, the average was 2.4 percent. Our elderly population was 13 percent in 2010; the 2050 estimate is 20 percent.

What separates the United States and Europe is that (so far) we haven't suffered a backlash from bond markets. Despite high and rising U.S. government debt, Treasury securities still fetch low interest rates, about 2 percent on 10-year bonds. Will that last? It's true that cutting spending too quickly might threaten a fragile economic recovery. But President Obama and Congress can't be accused of making this mistake. They do little and excel at blaming each other.

Facing the hard questions of finding a sustainable balance between individual protections and better economic growth, the Europeans have spent years dawdling. The parallel with our situation is all too obvious.

A Missed Opportunity on the Debt

So after all the talk about fiscal balance and responsible choices, the pre-Christmas rush in Washington has come down to this: one more belly-up to the middle-class tax-cut bar.

If, as seems likely, enough Republicans manage to overcome their sometime scruples and join President Obama before last call, Washington will prove once more that bipartisanship is alive and well — as long as it is in the service of digging the deficit hole deeper.

With unemployment at 8.6 percent, extending the payroll tax cut for another year is the right thing to do.

Fred Hiatt

Washington Post

The problem lies in it being the only fiscal accomplishment of the Christmas season.

In principle, Obama has other items on his wish list. He'd like to extend unemployment benefits. Pay for those and the tax cuts, too. Build more roads and keep more teachers and police officers on the job. Even, in theory, reduce the long-term debt. After all, the mantra is short-term stimulus, long-term balance, restore confidence.

But the president has drawn only one line in the sand, issued only one non-negotiable demand, insisted on only one achievement without which he will fight Congress going home for the holidays: extending the payroll tax cut.

His rhetoric risks transforming this giveaway, like so many "temporary" giveaways before it, into something permanent. This one was supposed to be different, because it siphons money from the supposedly sacrosanct Social Security trust fund.

Now, though, Obama says anyone favoring a return to normal is voting for an unconscionable tax hike on the struggling middle class. His logic will fit nicely into Grover Norquist's narrative a year from now when the Bush tax cuts, including on the wealthy, are due to expire.

I asked an administration official what level of unemployment would justify an end to the Social Security tax break — 7.5 percent? 7 percent? I didn't get a direct answer. It seems unlikely that anyone, a year from now, will argue that working Americans no longer need a break.

But the official said the problem can be worked out as part of a larger package of tax reform.

Tax reform is the answer to all problems, for Republicans and Democrats alike. We'll "close the loopholes" and "broaden the base" and "lower the rates."

It sounds terrific, as long as you pretend that the loopholes consist of things such as private jet depreciation, the president's favorite example and one that costs the government, in the great red-ink scheme of things, almost nothing. Eventually, though, someone will have to explain to voters that the only way tax reform works is by limiting their deductions for mortgage interest, charitable giving, state and local taxes, and employer-provided health care. At that point it will become savagely clear that one man's loophole is another man's birthright.

And it's not only by increasing the debt that this tax cut makes an eventual solution more difficult. The proposals Congress is considering to "pay for" this cut, meant to prove its fiscal discipline, ironically also make a grand deal more difficult.

Nampa Studies Soil for Waste System

IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

NAMPA • This month, Nampa's Department of Public Works will test the soil at several locations south of Lake Lowell, part of an ongoing evaluation toward upgrading Nampa's wastewater treatment and disposal system.

The city of Nampa will need to upgrade its wastewater system to meet new regulations. The city is working with a team of engineers to evaluate current processes.

Several new ways to manage wastewater are being analyzed to determine which upgrade option would be the best for Nampa.

One option being considered by Nampa is infiltration, which would take recycled water from the city's plant and transport it through a system of pipes to a designated area of land near Nampa. At this area, the recycled water would be released into a system of basins and ponds where it would then slowly infiltrate into the underground aquifer south of Lake Lowell.

Applying clean recycled water to land can only be done in certain locations where site conditions are conducive for infiltration. A professional management team has identified several areas in Canyon County where infiltration could possibly work.

Site investigations will be conducted over the next several weeks to determine if infiltration is a realistic option.

A public meeting about infiltration will be held Dec. 13 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Sunny Ridge Elementary School, 506 Fletcher Dr.

Idaho Provost is a Finalist for UNM Post

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) • The University of New Mexico Board of Regents Monday named five finalists to succeed President David Schmidly, who is stepping down in June.

The finalists are Douglas Baker, provost and executive vice president of the University of Idaho; Robert Frank, provost and senior vice president for academic affairs of Kent State University; Meredith Hay, special adviser to the chair for strategic initiatives for the Arizona Board of Regents; Elizabeth Hoffman, executive vice president and provost of Iowa State University; and Elsa Murano, professor and president emerita of Texas A&M University.

Jack Fortner, president of the UNM Board of Regents and chair of the search committee, says all five are outstanding candidates with great enthusiasm for UNM. He says all five will be visiting the campus over the next two weeks for open forums and private interview with regents.

Parent of Year Has a Vision All Her Own

A Rathdrum woman is recognized for her contributions to children while dealing with challenges of her own.

BY MAUREEN DOLAN
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • When Melly Casillas learned she was named the 2012 Parent of the Year by the National Head Start Association, she says she couldn't breathe.

"I thought, me of all people. Thank you, Lord," said Casillas, who lives in Rathdrum with her husband, Mario, and the couple's three young daughters.

The 33-year-old has been involved with the Kootenai Head Start program since 2009. She serves on the agency's policy council, and has contributed 632 volunteer hours to the Lakeland Center in Rathdrum.

The national award recognizes a parent who serves as a role model for his or her children and the community by demonstrating a commitment to education, financial stability and positive parenting.

Casillas attends North Idaho College full-time, and plans to graduate in May. She will then transfer to Lewis-Clark State College to complete a bachelor's degree in social work.

She gives credit to the local Head Start program, for helping her get to this point in her life.

The road has been long, and there have been challenges along the way.

There still are. Casillas, the child of a migrant, farm-working family, has an hereditary eye disease, retinitis pigmentosa. She has just 10 percent of her vision left.

"I'm eventually going to go blind one day, but with the new technology available, you don't have to stop working," Casillas said.

Getting her education completed has become a race against time.

She can no longer drive at night. With her husband, she is doing everything she can to teach her little girls, ages 7, 5 and 3, the things they will need to know when her eyesight is gone — how to be safe in the kitchen and help in the grocery store.

"There's no type of surgery or cure for it. It's just a matter of time," she said.

She says it all in matter-of-fact way, with no evidence of self-pity. Her approaching blindness is just another thing to deal with.

The Face of Head Start

Casillas said being named Head Start's Parent of the Year hasn't really sunk in yet.

She does know it's good for Idaho's program to be represented like this, at the national level.

The federally funded Head Start program provides child development and school readiness services to nearly one million children each year, most from low-income families. Children who are in foster care, are homeless or with disabilities are also served by Head Start.

"It helps the whole family. They have encouraged me to move forward, to find the resources to set myself up to reach my goals," Casillas said.

Local Head Start director Beth Ann Fuller said the agency is excited to see Casillas recognized in this way.

"She's an excellent example of a hard-working, Head Start parent," Fuller said. "She's not only dedicated to her entire family, but to her community as well."

Fuller said Casillas' attitude about her approaching blindness is "amazing."

"To me, it's hard enough to be in school and be a parent, but to also know you're going blind? That's such a huge challenge," Fuller said. "Her ultimate goal is to make sure she gets this done so she's able to work in a field where she's able to help people. It's just so remarkable."

Building a Better Life

Casillas and Mario moved to North Idaho in 2004 so Mario could accept a job doing drywall.

The couple fell in love with the area and the people, and within months, learned they were expecting their first child. They knew this was the place where they wanted to raise their children.

Casillas said it is important to her to provide a stable, consistent home for her children, in one place.

As the child of migrant workers, Casillas' own family moved around a lot as she was growing up. They went wherever there were tractors to run, seeds to plant. They picked strawberries, bundled onions, greens, radishes, potatoes.

Early each year, at a set time, they would move from Texas to Michigan. Then, from May through October, the family traveled wherever there was work.

"We went to Ohio, Florida. We've been all over," she said.

That lifestyle made it difficult to build relationships, to have friends in school, she said, because they always had to move along.

"It made it harder for us to concentrate in school and get the routine medical care we needed, although there were little mobile health clinics that came into the camps. We called them 'campos,'" she said.

With her husband, Casillas said she is doing everything she can to ensure her family achieves financial stability. She said they want their girls to have opportunities that will help them become productive members of society. She hopes her husband will be able to find steady employment.

The construction slowdown that came with the collapse of the economy has made it difficult for Mario to find steady work.

"That's like his art. When he's working, he's very, very happy. He loves to talk about his work, the details, about how fast he can do things," she said.

In addition to the support the family has received from Head Start, Casillas and Mario are taking parenting, personal finance, marriage and bible study classes through their church, Real Life Ministries. Through these classes, they have been able to pay off a vehicle, learned to budget, and firmed up their faith.

"Sometimes people struggle a lot without any hope, but knowing God just gives you the hope and the strength to persevere in whatever you're doing, especially during the hard times," Casillas said.

Desire to Help Others

Casillas became a certified nursing assistant in 2006, and is licensed in Idaho and Washington. Her desire to attend college was first sparked by the work experiences that followed. She went to the homes of people with disabilities and helped them learn to cook for themselves, choose their clothes, dress themselves. She also visited people living in assisted living facilities.

"The reason I wanted to go into the social work field was because working as a CNA, you'd see all the things that go on, people that are not being taken care of. You feel helpless," Casillas said. "I wanted to be able to have the authority to do something about those things, to help people not being treated well, people who are not able to get the services they need."

Casillas is already doing this kind of work through her church, and in her school work.

Through a work-study grant, she has spent time at St. Vincent de Paul's Help Center in Coeur d'Alene, taking information from people applying for housing, utility, clothing and food assistance. She works with families affected by domestic violence, and helps with her church's program that provides assistance to people in need.

She said she is compelled to get her degree so she can help the elderly, the disabled and at-risk teens. She said she feels most drawn to helping troubled adolescents.

"Coming from a Hispanic background and seeing the communities, I know there is a lot of drug abuse. Parents leave the kids. They're not attended to," Casillas said. "I want to be the person who helps the family get out of that."

She said she wants to help give other kids the same things she wants for her own daughters.

"It breaks my heart to see children who have parents, but the parents can't really do anything for them," she said.

Caldwell Man Given 10 Years for Drugs, Re-entering U.S. Illegally

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • A 38-year-old Caldwell man, who was living in the United States illegally, was sentenced to 121 months in federal prison Monday, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office in Boise. He also will serve three years of supervised release.

Francisco Nunez-Rubio was convicted of possession with intent to distribute methamphetamine and illegal re-entry into the United States.

Nunez-Rubio forfeited $11,700 and a firearm found in his possession at the time of his arrest.

At his plea hearing in September, Nunez-Rubio admitted to possessing 192 grams of methamphetamine at his residence in Caldwell.

He admitted he intended to sell the drugs.

Also, Nunez-Rubio admitted to entering the U.S. illegally after having previously been deported to Mexico in 2006.

Nunez-Rubio is the 107th person sentenced to federal prison in Idaho in 2011 for methamphetamine distribution. The case was investigated by the Idaho State Police.

New state $1 notes go in a hurry

Idahoans have just 48 hours to get them for face value

UMS – With only 48 hours to get your hands on these new Idaho state $1 notes for face value, you'd better do it today.

And don't even bother calling your local bank or credit union because they don't have them.

That's because the never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued notes are being released and overlaid with the Idaho state design exclusively by the World Reserve.

One thing is certain, residents who don't call right away to order the protective estate wallets can't get the new notes at face value.

That's why a Toll Free Hotline has been set up and residents are being urged to call 1-866-964-2854 starting at precisely 8:30am this morning.

"Those lucky enough to get the new notes are saying it feels like hitting the lottery," said Chris Mayle, Director of Operations.

"My advice is don't wait to call. Pick up the phone right now and ■ GOING, GOING, GONE: Everyone is trying to get the collection of twelve new Idaho state notes before they're all gone. Each note comes with a certificate of authenticity and is individually loaded into an impressive estate wallet to protect the note's valuable collector condition.

get as many of the new Idaho state overlaid $1 notes as possible while you still can," Mayle said. ■

New state notes handed over to Idahoans by zip code

Never before seen Idaho state $1 notes are actually being handed over for just face value to the first 6,049 callers who find their zip code on the distribution list below and beat the 48 hour deadline to get the protective estate wallets loaded with real money

Universal Media Syndicate

UMS – The Toll Free Hotlines are ringing off the hook.

That's because the only Idaho state $1 notes in existence are actually being handed over with numbered certificates of authenticity for just face value to Idaho residents who find their zip code printed in today's publication.

The only thing residents need to do is beat the 48-hour deadline by calling 1-866-964-2854 to instantly be awarded the collection of twelve new Idaho state overlaid $1 notes for face value just by covering standard shipping and the protective estate wallets for only $15 per wallet to protect each note's valuable collector condition.

"I'm advising everyone in Idaho who finds their zip code on today's distribution list to get to their phones right now because the new Idaho state $1 notes are only being released to the first 6,049 callers," said Jefferson Marshall, Executive Director of the private World Reserve.

Remember, these are the only Idaho state overlaid $1 notes in existence featuring potatoes and the Boise cityscape and President George Washington on the front and once they're gone, they're gone. Even if you don't consider yourself a collector, as an Idahoan this is the one collection you really need to get.

Just imagine how thrilled your children and grandchildren would be if you gave them one of these impressive collections for their birthday, Christmas or any occasion. Just be absolutely sure to keep the new notes and numbered certificates of authenticity together inside the protective estate wallets.

Here's why the protective estate wallets are so important. The new Idaho state $1 notes being released today are the only ones in existence. They are in absolute pristine collector's condition without a blemish, crease or fold. That's why the World Reserve is only releasing these Idaho state notes in the protective estate wallets.

These stunning estate wallets are custom made to hold, secure and protect both the note and the numbered certificate of authenticity in a heavy-duty transparent viewing sleeve that allows the notes to be viewed without ever being touched by human hands, thus preserving their pristine collector's condition.

The outer skin of the estate wallet is made of a thick, padded dark grain and graced by an official gold seal. To further enhance the security features of the estate wallets, they've been sized perfectly to fit into a personal safe or bank safety deposit box.

I can say two things for sure. At just $15 each the custom estate wallets are a real steal and if you're lucky enough to be one of the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48-hour deadline, you'll instantly be awarded the collection of twelve new Idaho state $1 notes in valuable collector condition for just face value. ■

■ ZIP CODES TURN UP CASH: "I'm advising everyone in Idaho who finds their zip code printed in today's publication to immediately call 1-866-964-2854 to beat the 48-hour deadline because I've only authorized a limited number of these never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued $1 notes to be overlaid with the Idaho state design and released from our private vault reserve to the first 6,049 callers," said Jefferson Marshall, Executive Director of the private World Reserve. Everyone who does is instantly being awarded the collection of twelve new Idaho state $1 notes for face value just by covering the protective estate wallets for only $15 each to protect the note's valuable collector condition.

Obama Prods GOP on Payroll Tax Cut

President also calls on lawmakers to renew a program of extended unemployment benefits due to expire Dec. 31.

BY DAVID ESPO

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama accepted a move by Senate Democrats to scale back his Social Security payroll tax cut extension on Monday, then prodded Republicans to support it despite a requirement for the very wealthy to pay more taxes.

Obama also called on lawmakers to renew a program of extended unemployment benefits due to expire on Dec. 31. He said the checks, which kick in after six months of joblessness, are “the last line of defense between hardship and catastrophe” for some victims of the recession and a painfully slow recovery.

The president made his remarks at the White House as Republicans and Democrats in Congress said a holiday-season package was beginning to come into focus that could cost $180 billion or more over a decade. Elements include not only the payroll tax cut and unemployment benefit renewals, but also a provision to avert a threatened 27 percent cut in fees to doctors who treat Medicare patients.

While there are differences over the details of the three principal components — many Republicans are reluctant to extend the tax cut — there is at least as much disagreement among senior lawmakers in the two political parties over ways to cover the cost so deficits don’t rise.

House Republicans are drafting legislation to extend an existing pay freeze for federal workers as partial payment for the tax cut and unemployment benefits. Other cost-savers are expected to include a proposal Obama advanced earlier this year to raise pension costs for federal employees, officials said. The bill may also include another presidential recommendation, this one for a surcharge on Medigap policies purchased by future Medicare recipients.

Officials said that to offset the two-year, $38 billion price tag of the Medicare provision, House Republicans want to cut funds from the year-old health care legislation that stands as Obama’s signature domestic policy accomplishment. Some Democrats want instead to count defense funds approved but unspent for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan — a proposal that many GOP lawmakers deem an accounting gimmick.

The Medicare proposal enjoys strong support by lawmakers in both parties. House Republican leaders signaled last week they intend to include it in the overall package as a sweetener for members of the party’s rank and file who are unhappy at the prospect of extending the payroll tax cut.

GOP critics say there is no evidence that the current tax cut has helped create jobs, and also say they fear the impact of a renewal on the deficit and on the fund that pays Social Security Thousands Protest Results in Russia Voting. Thousands of protesters took to the streets of Moscow on Monday to voice their anger at polling irregularities they fear will allow the ruling party to maintain control of the parliament’s lower house, despite a relatively weak showing in elections held Sunday. Accusations of ballot stuffing and voter fraud were voiced by the demonstrators as well as international observers, as election officials said preliminary results could give the United Russia party of Prime Minister Vladimir Putin and President Dmitry Medvedev 238 seats in the 450-seat State Duma, with more than 49 percent of the vote.

As GOP Attacks, Obama Seeks Jewish Support

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama and his Republican opponents are clashing over U.S. policy toward Israel as each side jockey for support from Jewish voters, who could be critical in the 2012 election. Aiming to cast Obama as unfairly harsh toward Israel and soft on the Palestinians, Republican presidential hopefuls Mitt Romney and Newt Gingrich have called on the president to fire his ambassador to Belgium. The envoy, Howard Gutman, had said that some anti-Semitism stemmed from tensions between Israel and the Palestinians; Romney and Gingrich say his remarks unfairly blamed Israel. The White House says Obama has a strong record on support for Israel, and quickly fired back with a statement condemning “anti-Semitism in all its forms.” The State Department said Gutman would remain in his job.

Search for Missing Georgia Girl Turns up Body in Trash

Seven-year-old girl, who was at the playground with a teenage baby sitter, had gone back to her apartment to get sodas for friends when she disappeared, authorities said.

BY DORIE TURNER

Associated Press

CANTON, Ga. • A body found in a trash container is believed to be that of a 7-year-old girl who went missing last week from an apartment complex playground north of Atlanta, authorities said Monday.

Georgia Bureau of Investigation spokesman John Bankhead said that “everything points to it being” Jorelys Rivera of Canton. Bankhead said officials were awaiting results of an autopsy to confirm the identity and a cause of death.

Bankhead told The Associated Press the body appeared to have been severely beaten and sexually assaulted. He said the girl’s mother had been notified.

No suspects were in custody as of Monday night, authorities said.

The girl’s mother returned to the apartment complex early Monday evening. Crying, the woman entered the family’s apartment without speaking to reporters and a family friend asked for privacy.

The child was last seen around 5 p.m. Friday at the River Ridge apartments in Canton, about 40 miles north of Atlanta, Canton police Detective Candy Worthy said. The girl was at the playground with a teenage baby sitter. The girl had gone back to her apartment to get sodas for friends when she disappeared, authorities said.

For Gingrich: Big Declarations — and Hurdles

GOP candidate picks heavily Democratic New York City to announce plans to campaign all across the country against Obama next fall.

BY BETH FOUHY and SHANNON MCCAFFREY

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Surging in opinion polls, a confident Newt Gingrich declared Monday he plans to challenge Barack Obama in every state next year, and he began running a gauzy TV ad — his first — to push toward the Republican nomination to take on the president. But, illustrating how far he has to go, Gingrich also found himself defending the state of his campaign and his own comments about poor children.

“I do not suggest children until about 14 or 15 years of age do heavy, dangerous janitorial work,” Gingrich told reporters. “On the other hand, there are a number of things done to clean buildings that are not heavy or dangerous.”

He’s drawn fire over the past week for suggesting that poor children as young as 9 should work at least part time

As Gingrich volunteers scrambled in some states to meet deadlines to get his name on ballots, the candidate dismissed the notion that his team wasn’t up to the task of waging a credible challenge against the better-funded, better-organized Mitt Romney. “We run a very decentralized campaign,” Gingrich insisted. “The system works.”

Elderly Complain About Embarrassing Searches at Airport Security

BY CHRIS HAWLEY and KELLI KENNEDY

Associated Press

NEW YORK • With age come such things as catheters, colostomy bags and adult diapers. Now add another indignity to getting old — having to drop your pants and show these things to a complete stranger.

Two women in their 80s put the Transportation Security Administration on the defensive this week by going public about their embarrassment during screenings in a private room at Kennedy Airport. One claimed she was forced to lower her pants and underwear in front of an agent so that her back brace could be inspected. Another said agents made her pull down her waistband to show her colostomy bag.

While not confirming some of the details, the TSA said a preliminary review shows officers followed the agency’s procedures in both cases. But experts said the potential for such searches will increase as the U.S. population ages and receives prosthetics and other medical devices, some of which cannot go through screening machines.

Prosthetic devices can set off metal detectors, and certain devices such as catheters and bags are visible on body scanners, making those passengers candidates for more thorough inspections. Metal detectors and wands can disrupt some devices such as implanted defibrillators, so those passengers must ask for pat-downs instead.

Ruth Sherman, 88, of Sunrise, Fla., said she was mortified when

Please see AIRPORT, N2

Airport

inspectors pulled her aside and asked about the bulge in her pants as she arrived for a flight to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on Nov. 28.

“I said, ‘I have a bag here,’” she said on Monday, pointing to the bulge, which is bigger or smaller depending on what she eats. “They didn’t understand.”

She said they escorted her to another room where two female agents “made me lower my sweatpants, and I was really very humiliated.” She said she stood with her arms and legs outstretched, warning the agents not to touch her colostomy bag. Touching the bag can cause pain, she said.

“It’s degrading. It’s like someone raped you,” Sherman said. “They didn’t know how to handle a human being.”

The next day, agents took 85-year-old Lenore Zimmerman, of Long Beach, N.Y., into a private room to remove her back brace for screening after she decided against going through a scanning machine because of her heart defibrillator. Zimmerman said she had to raise her blouse and lower her pants and underwear for a female TSA agent.

Bruce Zimmerman, her son, said the agents “should’ve patted her down.”

“To have her pants and underpants pulled down is just beyond humiliating,” he said Monday. “This is my mother we are talking about.”

The TSA said Monday that it is still investigating the cases.

“Our officers are committed to treating every passenger with dignity and respect,” the agency said in a statement.

The agency insists that security concerns come first, even if it means getting into passengers’ drawers. In 2009, a Nigerian man tried to blow up a flight to Detroit on Christmas Day with explosives in his underpants.

“Terrorists and their targets may also range in age,” the agency argued in a blog post after Zimmerman went public. It cited the November arrest of four Georgia men, ages 65 to 73, on charges of plotting an attack with the poison ricin. Prosecutors said the men were part of a fringe militia group.

Last June, the daughter of a 95-year-old woman said TSA agents wouldn’t let her mother board a flight from Fort Walton Beach, Fla., to Detroit because her wet adult diaper set off alarms.

A TSA screener said Lena Reppert had a suspicious spot on her adult diaper, according to her daughter, Jean Weber. Weber ultimately took off the wet diaper so Reppert could be cleared in time for their flight.

Home Away From Home?

This artist’s rendering shows Kepler-22b, a planet known to comfortably circle in the habitable zone of a sun-like star.

Planet in ‘Goldilocks Zone’ May be Just Right for Life

BY SETH BORENSTEIN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A newly discovered planet is eerily similar to Earth and is sitting outside our solar system in what seems to be the ideal place for life, except for one hitch. It’s a bit too big.

The planet is in the middle of what astronomers call the Goldilocks zone, that hard to find place that’s not too hot, not too cold, where water, which is essential for life, doesn’t freeze or boil. And it has a shopping mall-like surface temperature of near 72 degrees, scientists say.

The planet’s confirmation was announced Monday by NASA along with other discoveries by its Kepler telescope, which was launched on a planet-hunting mission in 2009.

That’s the first planet confirmed in the habitable zone for Kepler, which had already found Earth-like rocky planets elsewhere. Twice before astronomers have announced a planet found in that zone, but neither is as promising.

“This is a phenomenal discovery in the course of human history,” Geoff Marcy of University of California, Berkeley, one of the pioneers of planet-hunting outside our solar system, said in an email. “This discovery shows that we Homo sapiens are straining our reach into the universe to find planets that remind us of home. We are almost there.”

The new planet — named Kepler-22b — has key aspects it shares with Earth. It circles a star that could be the twin of our sun and at just about the same distance. The planet’s year of 290 days is even close to ours. It likely has water and rock.

The only trouble is the planet’s a bit big for life to exist on the surface. The planet is about 2.4 times the size of Earth. It could be more like the gas-and-liquid Neptune with only a rocky core and mostly ocean.

“It’s so exciting to imagine the possibilities,” said Natalie Batalha, the Kepler deputy science chief.

Floating on that “world completely covered in water” could be like being on an Earth ocean and “it’s not beyond the realm of possibility that life could exist in such an ocean,” Batalha said in a phone interview.

Kepler can’t find life itself, just where the conditions might be right for it to thrive. And when astronomers look for life elsewhere they’re talking about everything ranging from microbes to advanced intelligence that can be looking back at us.

So far the Kepler telescope has spotted 2,326 candidate planets outside our solar system with 139 of them potentially habitable ones. Even though the confirmed Kepler-22b is a bit big, it is still smaller than most of the other candidates. It is closest to Earth in size, temperature and star than either of the two previously announced planets in the zone.

The confirmation of one of two, though, has been disputed. The latest discovery has been confirmed several ways, including by two other telescopes.

For Marcy, who is on the Kepler team, the newest planet is a smidgen too large. But, “that smidgen makes all the difference,” he said.

Because its size implies that it’s closer to Neptune in composition than Earth, “I would bet my telescope that there is no hard, rocky surface to walk on,” Marcy said.

Missing Girl

Authorities brought in a specialized team of law officers trained to handle child abductions. The body was located about 1 p.m. Monday.

Canton emergency management director Jeff Hall said authorities had not searched the trash container until Monday because it was a large garbage compacting bin that needed to be moved offsite so they could go through it.

Bankhead, the GBI spokesman, said investigators believe the girl was killed at the apartment complex and her body left in the trash bin. Yellow crime scene tape blocked off the wooded area behind the girl’s apartment building.

Authorities planned to provide an update on the investigation this morning.

Maria Rodriguez works with Rivera’s mother at a nearby poultry plant and used to live in the same complex.

“She was a very sweet girl,” Rodriguez said, crying as she held her 4-year-old daughter. “She was the type of little girl who likes her presence to be known. It’s just so sad.”

Rodriguez said Rivera’s mother worked the graveyard shift. Police have since removed two other young children from the Rivera home over “concern about the supervision of Jorelys,” said Lt. Jay Baker with the Cherokee County Sheriff’s Department.

Maria Faustino, who also used to live in the apartment complex, said she always felt safe there.

“This place is small and everybody knows everybody,” said Faustino, who has a young son. “You wouldn’t have thought something like this would have happened there.”

Tax Cut

benefits. A majority of Republican senators voted last week against a plan backed by their own leadership to extend the cut.

But Obama noted House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, has said that the renewal would help the economy, and said the party’s Senate leaders had made similar comments.

“I couldn’t agree more. And I hope that the rest of their Republican colleagues come around and join Democrats to pass these tax cuts and put money back into the pockets of working Americans,” the president said.

Obama also added, “I know many Republicans have sworn an oath never to raise taxes as long as they live. How could it be that the only time there’s a catch is when it comes to raising taxes on middle-class families? How can you fight tooth-and-nail to protect high-end tax breaks for the wealthiest Americans, and yet barely lift a finger to prevent taxes going up for 160 million Americans who really need the help?”

He spoke as Senate Democrats unveiled revisions that cut the cost of the administration’s proposal by one-third, to an estimated $179 billion. As rewritten, it deepens the current Social Security payroll tax cut and extends it until the end of 2012, but jettisons Obama’s request to give businesses relief at the same time.

Republicans were critical despite the changes.

“Frankly, the only thing bipartisan about this latest political gambit is opposition to the permanent tax hike on small businesses to pay for temporary one-year tax policy,” said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee. Republicans often refer to the proposal as a tax increase on small business owners in hopes of recasting Democratic claims that it would fall on “millionaires.”

Gingrich

With only one month until the first presidential votes are cast, the GOP race has seemed to narrow to a contest between Gingrich and Romney.

Each spent the day wooing donors, Gingrich on the East Coast and Romney on the West Coast, as the hunt for cash intensified ahead of the string of costly contests that begin Jan. 3 in Iowa. The two will cross paths Wednesday as the candidates all convene in Washington to court Jewish voters and again Saturday at a debate in Iowa, the first of three planned for December.

This one is shaping up as a pivotal debate, given that Gingrich’s recent comeback has been fueled largely by a string of strong performances in which he demonstrated policy expertise and was able to appear statesmanlike while steering clear of criticizing his GOP rivals. He is the latest GOP candidate to enjoy a burst of momentum and he’s working to prove that, unlike the others who have risen and fallen, he’s a serious contender with staying power.

To that end, Monday was supposed to be a day for the former U.S. House speaker to capitalize on Herman Cain’s departure from the race and his own soaring poll numbers, making a good showing for up-for-grabs tea party supporters.

He chose heavily Democratic New York City to announce plans to campaign all across the country — not just in traditionally Republican or swing states — next fall against Obama. He packed the rest of the day with fundraisers and meetings, including one with Donald Trump, who flirted with a presidential bid himself and has sought to play a role in the GOP selection process.

But Gingrich’s expected show of force didn’t go exactly as planned, and the day ended up underscoring the challenges he now faces since going from the back of the pack to the front.

Twice on Monday he tried to explain what he had meant about poor kids working.

He said his original point had been “distorted” to make him look insensitive. The idea, Gingrich said, would be “to get them into the world of work, get them into the opportunity to earn money, to get them into the habit of showing up and realizing that effort is rewarded and America is all about the work ethic.”

Dunn, ex-HP Chairwoman, Dies After Battle with Ovarian Cancer

BY JORDAN ROBERTSON
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Patricia Dunn, the former Hewlett-Packard Co. chairwoman who authorized a boardroom surveillance probe that ultimately sullied her remarkable rise from investment bank typist to the corporate upper class, has died. She was 58.

Dunn, who had battled cancer, died Sunday morning at her home in Orinda surrounded by her family, according to her sister, Debbie Lammers. She said Dunn's ovarian cancer had come back.

Once one of the most powerful women in corporate America, Dunn saw her career tarnished in 2006 when she was ousted from HP and brought up on criminal charges — which were ultimately dropped — for approving the company's plan to snoop into the private phone records of board members, journalists and HP employees to catch people leaking to the media.

The scandal unfolded as Dunn continued to battle a disease that had haunted her through a sparkling investment banking career and a stormy nine-year stretch on the board of HP, one of the world's largest technology companies.

Her time at HP coincided with some of the most contentious and challenging periods since the Palo Alto-based company was founded in 1939.

Dunn joined HP's board in 1998 and was instrumental in the hiring and firing of CEO Carly Fiorina, whose flamboyant personality and ferocity in securing the $19

Dunn was the one who announced Fiorina's ouster in February 2005 and named her low-key successor, Mark Hurd, previously CEO of NCR Corp. Hurd himself was ousted last year after an investigation into a sexual harassment claim found inconsistencies in expense reports filed.

Dunn also assumed Fiorina's role as chairwoman at the time. Dunn was forced out in that role in September 2006 in an embarrassing scandal involving spying on the telephone records of board members and journalists to ferret out the source of leaks to the media.

Just a month later, California's attorney general charged Dunn and four others with four felony counts each — conspiracy, fraud, identity theft and illegally using computer data — for their roles in the probe. That came just two days before she started chemotherapy treatments for advanced ovarian cancer.

The criminal charges against Dunn were eventually dropped, as prosecutors said she had little involvement in the actual "pretexting" — the ruse used by investigators to view private telephone records by pretending to be someone else — and because of her ailing health. Charges against the other defendants were also dropped, with a Santa Clara County Superior Court judge calling their conduct "a betrayal of trust and honor" at worst that was not criminal behavior at the time it occurred.

Once an aspiring investigative reporter, Dunn, a graduate of the University of California, Berkeley, found more immediate and lucrative work in the financial world and made her mark in investment banking.

After working briefly as a part-time reporter for a community newspaper in San Francisco, Dunn began her corporate climb by capitalizing on a temporary typist gig that she landed at an investment firm in the 1970s.

She was able to turn the two-week typing assignment into full-time work and managed to quickly rise through the ranks by earning a reputation as a hard-edged businesswoman. That reputation eventually helped her earn the promotion to CEO of fund management behemoth Barclays Global Investors in 1995.

Dunn's life had been far from charmed.

Financial difficulties dogged her family throughout her childhood, and her father, a vaudeville actor, died of a heart attack before she was a teen. After the death, the family moved to Marin County, north of San Francisco, and her mother's emotional health deteriorated.

Dunn's mother later died of breast cancer.

It was at the height of Dunn's corporate success when she was diagnosed with cancer herself, forcing her to step down in 2002 from her role as Barclays CEO to fight breast cancer and melanoma.

Two years later, she was diagnosed with ovarian cancer, and in fall 2006, she underwent surgery for a metastasized tumor — three weeks before the public learned of the HP investigation that spawned congressional investigations, criminal probes and forced Dunn's resignation.

As Dunn and others involved in the probe grappled with the fallout, the public was given a rare view of the workings of a board consumed with bitter rivalries and dysfunction.

'Laugh-In' Comic Actor Alan Sues Dies at 85

BY ANDREW DALTON
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • Alan Sues, who brought his flamboyant and over-the-top comic persona to the hit television show "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" in the 1960s and 1970s, has died, a close friend said Sunday night.

Sues died of cardiac arrest on Thursday at his home in West Hollywood, Michael Gregg Michaud, a friend since 1975, told The Associated Press.

"He was sitting in a recliner watching TV with his dachshund Doris who he loved in his lap," Michaud said.

Sues had various health problems in the last several years, but the death came as a shock to friends, Michaud said. He was 85.

A native Californian who moved to New York in 1952, Sues began his career as a serious actor and in 1953 appeared in director Elia Kazan's "Tea and Sympathy" on Broadway.

But he would be remembered for his wild comic characters.

They included "Big Al," an effeminate sportscaster, and "Uncle Al the Kiddies Pal," a hung-over children's show host, on "Laugh-In," the TV phenomenon that both reflected and mocked the era's counterculture and made stars of Goldie Hawn, Lily Tomlin and many others.

Sues also donned tighties as the commercial spokesman for Peter Pan peanut butter, and appeared in the popular

1964 "Twilight Zone" episode "The Masks."

Fellow cast members and crew from "Laugh-In" remembered him as even more entertaining behind the scenes.

"Alan Sues was one of those guys even funnier in person than on camera," Ruth Buzzi, a co-star who appeared in many skits with Sues, said on her Twitter account. "Across a dinner table, over the phone ... hysterical. We'll miss him."

Executive producer George

Schlatter, who would eventually bring Sues to "Laugh-In" after seeing him alongside future co-star Jo Anne Worley in the Off-Broadway comedy "The Mad Show," said Sues was "a free spirit," an "outrageous human being" and "a love child."

"He was a delight; he was an upper," Schlatter told the Los Angeles Times, which first reported the death. "He walked on the stage and everybody just felt happy."

Sues would always be best known for "Laugh-In," which he left in 1972 before its final season.

But Michaud said the Peter Pan spots brought Sues nearly as much recognition in later years.

And he said the "Twilight Zone" episode brought him appearances at sci-fi and autograph conventions for decades.

"Fans of 'The Twilight Zone' are cuckoo," Michaud said.

Michaud said that while Sues was always cast as the stereotypically gay character, he believed he needed to hide his own gay identity during his years on television.

"He felt like he couldn't publicly come out," Michaud said. "He felt like people wouldn't accept him."

Sues was grateful for "Laugh-In," but wasn't happy he was typecast in his comic persona as he sought to return to more serious acting.

He got one chance that he cherished in 1975, the serious role of Moriarty with the Royal Shakespeare Company in "Sherlock Holmes" on Broadway.

He stayed with the show until it closed the following year, then went out to perform it with the touring company.

In later years he would make many more theater appearances, do voiceover work for television, and appear in guest spots on TV series like "Punky Brewster" and "Sabrina the Teenage Witch."

Sues is survived by a sister-in-law, two nieces and a nephew.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Threat to European Ratings Deflates a Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP) • Reports that all countries using the euro could get their credit ratings downgraded deflated a morning rally in the stock market Monday. The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 78 points, giving back much of a 167-point gain from earlier. After the market closed, S&P confirmed that it had placed 15 nations on notice for possible downgrades. Two countries that use the euro weren't affected: Cyprus already had that designation and Greece already has ratings low enough to suggest that it's likely to default soon anyway. The S&P 500 rose 12.8, or 1 percent, to 1,257.1.

Mail carrier Zack Wyscarver delivers mail in freezing temperatures in Omaha, Neb., Monday. Unprecedented cuts by the cash-strapped U.S. Postal Service will slow first-class delivery next spring and, for the first time in 40 years, eliminate the chance for stamped letters to arrive the next day.

First-class Mail: Just a Bit Slower

BY HOPE YEN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Already mocked by some as “snail mail,” first-class U.S. mail will slow even more by next spring under plans by the cash-strapped U.S. Postal Service to eliminate more than 250 processing centers. Nearly 30,000 workers would be laid off, too, as the post office struggles to respond to a shift to online communication and bill payments.

The cuts are part of $3 billion in reductions aimed at helping the agency avert bankruptcy next year. They would virtually eliminate the chance for stamped letters to arrive the next day, a change in first-class delivery standards that have been in place since 1971.

The plan technically must await an advisory opinion from the independent Postal Regulatory Commission, slated for next March. But that opinion is non-binding, and only substantial pressure from Congress, the business community or the public might deter far-reaching cuts.

Many postal customers could be upset.

“The post office is a mainstay of America, and the fact that these services will no longer be available is absolutely crazy,” said Carol Braxton of Naperville, Ill., as she waited in line at a mail sorting center Monday with the holiday shipping season picking up steam.

At a news briefing in Washington, postal vice president David Williams said the post office needs to move quickly to cut costs as it seeks to stem five years of red ink amid steadily declining mail volume. After reaching a peak of 98 million in 2006, first-class mail volume is now at 78 million. It is projected to drop by roughly half by 2020.

The agency already has announced a 1-cent increase in first-class mail to 45 cents beginning Jan. 22.

Williams said in certain narrow situations first-class mail might still be delivered the next day — if, for example, newspapers, magazines or other bulk mailers are able to meet new, tighter deadlines and drop off shipments directly at the processing centers that remain open.

But in the vast majority of cases, everyday users of first-class mail will see delays. The changes could slow everything from check payments to Netflix's DVDs-by-mail, add costs to mail-order prescription drugs and even threaten the existence of newspapers and time-sensitive magazines delivered by postal carrier to far-flung suburban and rural communities.

The Postal Service faces imminent default — this month — on a $5.5 billion annual payment to the Treasury for retiree health benefits and expects to have a record loss of $14.1 billion next year.

“Are we writing off first class mail? No,” Williams said. “Customers are making their choices, and what we are doing is responding to the current market conditions and placing the Postal Service on a path to allow us to respond to future changes. We have to do what's in our control to put the Postal Service on solid financial ground.”

IPADS BECOME CHILD'S PLAY

BY JOSEPH PISANI

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Make room in the toy box for the iPad.

Crayola allows tots to doodle on the iPad using its iMarker just as they would a crayon on a coloring book. Tweens are able to belt out their favorite Miley Cyrus and Selena Gomez tunes on a Disney microphone that turns the tablet into a karaoke machine. And technology accessories company Griffin enables teens to fly its toy helicopter by using the iPhone as a remote control.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

This undated product photo provided by Disney, shows the Disney AppMates. AppMates, is a toy car based on the characters from the company's “Car’s 2” animated movie. One car sells for $12.99 while a two-pack goes for $19.99. The free app lets kids drive around on different courses by moving the car across the iPad screen.

That the iPad and iPhone have infiltrated the $22 billion toy market this season is no surprise. Smartphones and tablets — particularly Apple products — are more popular than ever with people of all ages. This year, Apple is expected to double the number of iPhones sold to 90.6 million worldwide, according to research firm Gartner, while the number of iPads sold is expected to triple to 46.7 million.

And Apple products have a certain “cool factor” with kids that toy companies, which can make up to half of their revenue during the holidays, are hoping to tap into. In fact, the iPad and iPhone are among the most coveted electronics this holiday season among kids. About 44 percent of 6- to 12-year-olds want the iPad this year, according to a survey by research firm Nielsen. The iPod touch came in the No. 2 spot with 30 percent, followed by the iPhone at 27 percent.

High Crop Prices a Threat to Nature?

BY JOSEPHINE MARCOTTY

Star Tribune (Minneapolis)

ZUMBROTA, Minn. • The Indian grass that Larry Thomforde planted 15 years ago is up to his chin now — tall gold spikes that sway in the sun as his dog, Gwynie, crashes through the field.

A year from now it might all be gold of another kind.

Thomforde, like thousands of other Minnesota farmers, is looking a painful decision square in the eye: cleaner water or the irresistible temptation of corn at stratospheric prices of $6 to $8 a bushel.

Next fall, Thomforde's 50 acres of native grassland, idled under the federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), could go under the plow. Renting it out or planting corn would pay him much more than the government pays him to keep it in grasses.

Experts say 2012 is likely to be a tipping point for conservation across the Upper Midwest. Some 300,000 acres in Minnesota — one-fifth of the land now set aside through the CRP — will be up for grabs as federal contracts come up for renewal.

In the following years, millions more acres in Minnesota, North and South Dakota — critical prairie and wetland habitat for a fourth of the nation's migratory birds — may also fall to the plow as farmers choose between leaving it to nature or converting it to cash crops. Many predict that nature will be the loser.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Thursday, March 8, 2012 at the hour of 10:30AM, of said day, in the office of Alliance Title & Escrow Corp. located at 1411 Falls Avenue East #1315, Twin Falls, ID 83301, Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, cashiers check, certified check or tellers check, (from a bank which has a branch in the community at the site of the sale), money order, State of Idaho check or local government check, or cash equivalent in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the same time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

Lot 19, and the East 17.7 feet of Lot 18, Reynolds Subdivision, Twin Falls County, Idaho, according to the official plat thereof, filed in Book 6 of Plats, Page 58, records of Twin Falls County, Idaho.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 1790 Maplewood Drive, Twin Falls, ID 83301, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Troy Charles Gravatt a single man, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of Central Mortgage Company as Successor Beneficiary, recorded July 3, 2008 as Instrument No. 2008-015261, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to: Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $141,733.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 4.8750% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated July 3, 2008. Payments are in default for the months of May 2011 through and including September 2011 in the amount of $1,031.75 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of September 7, 2011 is $150,417.28 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 4.8750% per annum. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $150,417.28, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 6, the 340th day of 2011. There are 25 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Dec. 6, 1921, the Anglo-Irish Treaty, which established the Irish Free State, was signed in London. (The treaty came into force one year later on this date.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1790, Congress moved to Philadelphia from New York.

In 1884, Army engineers completed construction of the Washington Monument by setting an aluminum capstone atop the obelisk.
In 1889, Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate States of America, died in New Orleans.

In 1907, the worst mining disaster in U.S. history occurred as 362 men and boys died in a coal mine explosion in Monongah, W.Va.

In 1917, some 2,000 people died when an explosives-laden French cargo ship collided with a Norwegian vessel at the harbor in Halifax, Nova Scotia, setting off a blast that devastated the city.

In 1947, Everglades National Park in Florida was dedicated by President Harry S. Truman.

In 1957, America's first attempt at putting a satellite into orbit failed as Vanguard TV3 rose about four feet off a Cape Canaveral launch pad before crashing down and exploding.

In 1960, nearly 9 million acres of Alaska was set aside as an Arctic National Wildlife Range by order of Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton.

In 1971, the original Auto-Train, which carried rail passengers and their motor vehicles from Lorton, Va., to Sanford, Fla., went into operation. (Although the privately owned line went out of business in 1981, Amtrak revived the service in 1983.)

In 1989, 14 women were shot to death at the University of Montreal's school of engineering by a man who then took his own life.

Ten years ago: The House of Representatives, by a one-vote margin, gave President George W. Bush more power to negotiate global trade deals. President Bush dedicated the national Christmas tree to those who had died on Sept. 11 and to service members who had died in the line of duty. Yasser Arafat's intensified crackdown on Islamic militants met angry resistance as 1,500 Hamas supporters battled Palestinian riot police outside the home of the group's leader.

Five years ago: The bipartisan Iraq Study Group concluded that President George W. Bush's war policies had failed in almost every regard, and said the situation in Iraq was "grave and deteriorating." The Senate voted, 95-2, to confirm Robert Gates as defense secretary. Searchers found the body of San Francisco resident James Kim in the Oregon mountains, two days after his wife and two daughters were rescued from their car (Kim had set out on foot to find help for his family).

One year ago: President Barack Obama announced a compromise with the GOP to extend Bush-era income tax cuts despite Democratic objections; the agreement included renewing unemployment benefits and reducing Social Security taxes for one year. Talks between Iran and six world powers recessed with no sign Tehran was ready to discuss U.N. Security Council calls to curb its nuclear activity. Pat Gillick, whose teams won three World Series titles in 27 years as a major league general manager, was elected to baseball's Hall of Fame by the Veterans Committee.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Think nothing done while anything remained to be done."
— Lucan

The three little pigs have been branching out successfully into duplicate bridge at their local club. Typically, after the game they go through the deals together, comparing their results. Here is one such analysis.

All three sat South, and they had all played in the no-trump slam. Against the little pig who made his house out of straw, West led a diamond and South decided to play for split major-suit kings. He won the diamond lead in hand, entered dummy in clubs, and led a spade to his queen and West's king. Declarer took the diamond return in dummy and finessed the heart queen unsuccessfully.

The little pig who made his house out of wood started out well. He too won the diamond lead in hand, played three rounds of clubs, then eliminated diamonds, discarding the spade 10 on the fourth. Next came the finesse of the spade queen. On winning with the king, West, appreciating that South's spade ace was now bare, returned a spade. After entering dummy in clubs, declarer took his last chance with the heart finesse.

The little pig who made his house out of bricks won the diamond lead in hand. Three rounds of clubs were followed by just three rounds of diamonds — as declarer did not yet know which major-suit card to throw from hand. South now knew he had removed all of West's exit cards.

Then came a spade to the queen. West won, but whichever major suit he returned, declarer had his contract.

ANSWER: Your partner's sequence shows a very strong hand, since a simple overcall of three spades would have suggested something better than a minimum opening bid. Your trump length coupled with the singleton club looks like just enough to raise your partner to game, though passing could not be criticized.

DEAR ABBY:

This letter is to offer sympathy to “Trish in Louisiana” (Sept. 25), who was seated next to two large passengers on a three-hour flight. It has happened to me.

The airlines control the size and weight of baggage, whether it's checked or carry-on, and charge when it's overweight. So why do they turn a blind eye when it comes to passengers who must endure being crowded out of the seats we have paid for? If airlines aren't willing to screen passengers for size, perhaps they should provide a few rows of larger seats to accommodate them.

Airlines have sacrificed comfort for economy to the point that the seats are simply too small. I'm an average-size woman, but I find the seats are barely large enough. They're crowded so close together you can't move your legs, and they don't actually recline. I agree with your advice to speak up if you find yourself being squeezed.

– ELLEN IN LAS CRUCES

DEAR ABBY

Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ELLEN:

While your letter reflects the views of many readers, they ALL emphatically agree that airlines need to do a better job of customer service regarding the seating on passenger planes. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY: As America grows larger, airline seats grow smaller. Trish was right to be compassionate. If airlines treat large people (who are also paying customers) like dirt so they can turn a profit by squeezing passengers into every inch of space, they are WRONG.

There are ways to be creative and not humiliate anyone. The flight attendant could have moved a child to her seat with Mom across the aisle.

I recommend that flight attendants think along those lines, because having a gate attendant drag people off flights is not the best way to handle this and should only be a last resort. We're all customers, and we all deserve to be treated with dignity.

– MARY IN VIRGINIA BEACH, VA.

DEAR ABBY:

The fault lies with airline management. They should specify up front in their ad campaigns that if the passengers' dimensions exceed certain parameters, they must buy two tickets.

– COMFORTABLE ON THE GROUND

DEAR ABBY:

My heart goes out to all three. I am a plus-size woman and my husband is “normal” size. His field is marketing, and I showed him your letter. He said recent surveys have shown that one-third of people who refuse to fly do so because of the tight seating, and not fear of an accident. Airlines pack people in like sardines to make more money, and it is resented.

I quit flying years ago because of claustrophobia. If I had to fly now, I'd buy a first-class ticket. I wonder why the planes don't have six or eight seats in the back of coach that are larger and cost more money, but less than first class.

Something has to be done to make flying safer and more comfortable for everyone. Surely we have the intellectual capacity to solve these problems.

– NO LONGER A FREQUENT FLIER IN NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY:

It's unfortunate that Trish didn't stick to her guns and continue with her complaint. I believe airlines should head these problems off at the gate. They have a box to check the size of carry-on luggage; they should also have a passenger seat to check the size of people. If someone doesn't fit, then that person must buy an additional ticket for a second seat. – REFUSES TO BE SQUISHED

IF DECEMBER 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and Christmas, you may be working hard in order to fulfill responsibilities and keep up with a fast pace, but too many social obligations can interfere or trip you up. Late February and early March is the very best time to make career, financial and business decisions. You will be blessed with true-blue friends in April – and may even form a new lasting friendship or get involved with a worthy organization that brightens your life. In early April, look for a cosmic gift-giver who will answer your most profound prayers or provide valuable advice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Surrender to addictions and passions, but remain realistic. A sense of adventure that prods you to explore your fantasies can have both pros and cons. You may be led astray by wishful thinking or waste your energies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Roller coasters have ups and downs. The moon in your sign might bring changeable feelings to the forefront. Ambitions stir emotions that may leave you wondering if you should leave others behind.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can be a master when it matters. You are a genius in areas that inspire you or whenever you get a chance to perfect your skills in creative endeavors. Tough love means using a firm hand with children.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Repeat the prayer, "Deliver us from temptation." Sidestep sticky situations that could bog you down. What looks good on the surface may prove troublesome unless you take the time to do a little research.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Refrain from rocking the boat. Mars is in your part of the zodiac, so desires can prod you into action when you see something you want. A simple solution to complex problems may arrive through a partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It might be time to circle your financial wagons. You will preserve resources by placing some limits on spending, organizing your investments, or just finding ways to protect yourself from attacks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Put your powers of analysis to work for you before you dig any deeper into your pockets. Heart-to-heart talks can lay bare troubles that will have no chance to fester once brought out into the open air.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could feel more competitive than usual. The race, however, might not be on a circular track, but an obstacle course. Talk things over with a disinterested party and get objective feedback.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Pass the sugar, please. Others could be sensitive to inadvertent slights, so keep a book of etiquette at your fingertips, crook your little finger on the teacup, and strive to be on your best behavior.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work and career imperatives eat your hours away, preventing you from enjoying the spare time you crave. You are more contented when you grab a congenial companion to keep you company.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Treasure things of lasting value. A truism is that we all put our foot in our mouth at one time or another. Do not dwell on inconsequential problems or stew over misunderstandings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be surprised when flirtations are taken seriously. Meanwhile, stable relationships can suffer minor turbulence. Hold off on offering declarations of love or making serious commitments.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Minico Graduate Broadhead Finishing College Career His Way

BY JESSE ZENTZ
Independent Record

HELENA, Mont. • You can have Frontier Conference first- and second-team quarterbacks Derek Lear and Chris Ware, I'll take Dane Broadhead.

The disregarded and often overlooked Carroll College quarterback is a winner, and the Saints, their fans and coaches should feel fortunate to have him under center.

Head coach Mike Van Diest certainly does, and he's had some special players line up at quarterback in his 13 seasons at the helm.

"He's the best QB in the Frontier Conference," Van Diest said. "Those other guys can have all the stats they want, but Dane Broadhead does what he's supposed to do. He's won a lot of games in his career here and I don't know what else you can say about the guy. A quarterback who wins the way he does is the best there is."

The Minico High School graduate may not finish his career with statistics like

Luck, RG3, Richardson Lead Heisman Finalists

NEW YORK • Stanford quarterback Andrew Luck entered the season as the overwhelming favorite to win the Heisman Trophy.

He will head to New York for the presentation of college football's most famous player of the year award having relinquished front-runner status to another quarterback — one known as RG3.

Luck, along with Robert Griffin III, Trent Richardson, Tyrann Mathieu and Montee Ball are the Heisman finalists. The group, announced Monday on ESPN, will be at the presentation Saturday night in Manhattan.

It's a return trip for Luck, the only repeat finalist this season, while Griffin is the first Baylor player to get an invite to the ceremony. The school has never had a player finish better than fourth in the Heisman voting, but now it seems to have the favorite.

"I'm sure it will be a really close vote," Griffin told reporters in Waco, Texas, after watching the announcement with teammates and coaches.

Richardson is the second Alabama running back to be a finalist in the past three years. Former teammate Mark Ingram won the Heisman in 2009.

Ball has scored 38 touchdowns for Wisconsin and needs one more to match Barry Sanders' NCAA record.

Mathieu, the LSU defensive back nicknamed "Honey Badger," has made numerous game-changing plays for the top-ranked Tigers.

The field was deep this season and several deserving players didn't make the cut. Most notable, Boise State quarterback Kellen Moore, a finalist last season, Southern California quarterback Matt Barkley and Houston's record-breaking passer, Case Keenum, did not receive enough votes to be among the final five.

Ballots from the 926 voters, mostly media members and former winners, were due Monday evening.

DECLO DYNASTY?

Defending 2A champs aren't finished.

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

DECLO • The heat is turned up in the Declo High wrestling room — and not just because nobody knows where the thermostat is located.

The pressure cooker is already cranked for the defending Class 2A state champions.

"We feel like we have a target on our back. Everyone is recognizing Declo as one of the better teams that they want to beat," said junior middleweight Jason Gillette. "I think we can repeat what we did last year."

What the Hornets did last year is earn eight individual state medals and send four wrestlers to the championship round of the 2A state tournament, which was more than enough to earn Declo its second state wrestling title in school history.

The first week of December is way too early, by wrestling season standards, to prognosticate. The Feb. 24-25 state tournament seems an eternity away. At a recent practice, with his arms folded and a steely look in his eye, head coach Lawrence Gillette surveyed his athletes working through 30 minutes of technique and 90 minutes of conditioning in the sauna-like wrestling room. He likes what he sees.

"We talked about repeating, that's our goal," Lawrence Gillette said, "but a lot of things have to come together to make it happen. You've got to have some luck and kids have to stay healthy. To secure if you need three or four state champions. We've got to get that out of these kids."

In what is essentially an individual sport, this group of Hornet wrestlers has bonded together through ultimate triumph and ultimate tragedy, which makes their team accomplishments that much sweeter.

"It's nice to have a team to share it with," said junior Stirland Zollinger, who followed up a state championship as a freshman with a runner-up finish last year at 112 pounds.

Zollinger, Jason Gillette, Josh Phillips and Alex Alonzo are all juniors and returning state medalists. Declo graduated just three seniors and has 11 state qualifiers back.

"Yeah, we're a little confident, but we can't be too confident or else we'll mess up," said Phillips. "It's not good to be way confident, but I think we're going to do good again because we have quite a few kids (returning)."

Alonzo, who finished state runner-up at 103 pounds last year, would have won the title if his older brother Jaime hadn't met him in the finals from the other side of the bracket.

"This year I feel like it's mine. I'm not going to let anyone take it away from me," Alonzo said.

Other Declo wrestlers to keep an eye on include Troy Adams and Matt Newman in the lower weights, Brad Payne in the middle weights, plus Kage Osterhout and Drexton Thrall in the upper weights.

It's not unusual for Declo to produce top-notch wrestlers.

CSI BASKETBALL

Wins First, Consistency Second For CSI Women

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Winners of three in a row, the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team is now searching for consistency.

The Golden Eagles (5-5) played arguably their best game of the season in an 83-71 win over Chemeketa (Ore.) Community College Friday night, but the effort was sandwiched between so-so games against Treasure Valley (Ore.) and Lake Region (N.D.).

CSI struggled at times defensively in both of those games, particularly in the second half against Lake Region, where it was outscored 45-33 as the Royals shot nearly 52 percent from the floor.

"Again I think we're getting better in some areas, but we have to be more consistent going into conference play, especially on defense," said CSI head coach Randy Rogers. "Especially this year more than any. As a whole, the conference is so much better. North Idaho is leading it at the top, but Colorado Northwestern is playing a lot better. The bottom teams aren't going to be easy wins this year."

Rogers praised his sophomores, particularly the consistent play of Tayllor Gipson and Kylee Schierman, but said he'd like to see more every game from fellow starters Chakala Carthen and Mechela Barnes.

Carthen's performance was a rollercoaster this weekend, highlighted by 16 points and seven rebounds against Chemeketa. This, a night after being held scoreless with three rebounds in 19 foul-plagued minutes against Treasure Valley.

A welcome sign for the Golden Eagles was the play of freshman Jessie Saint-Felix. The talented, but raw center played the best game of her CSI career against Lake Region, scoring 13 points, with eight rebounds and two blocks in 21 minutes.

"We expect so much out of Jessie and I thought she did a good job this weekend," Rogers said. "We've really got to do a good job teaching her a back to the basket move. Right now, she's kind of got this three quarter move that makes her really

Getting Back a Big

CSI men's head coach Steve Gosar was thrilled to get big man Paul Bunch back in his rotation this weekend.

The 6-foot-11, 270-pound center was finally cleared this past week after sustaining a concussion in summer workouts and played about 10 minutes in the Golden Eagles' games against Laramie County (Wyo.) and Western Nebraska.

"Paul was a nice lift for us. He gave us a really good defensive and rebounding presence inside. He's so big. He's right around the rim for a rebound and has really good hands and keeps that ball high," Gosar said. "He had a couple blocks and a couple goaltends, but all that stuff really does send a message. When other teams see that Paul's in the game, the players know he's there. He can change their shot just with his presence."

Gosar praised his team's defensive effort this weekend, especially against Western Nebraska, where it shut down sharpshooter Raul Delgado, who scored 45 in a game earlier this season.

The sophomore guard was held to just 11 points with Pat Swilling and Fabyon Harris draping him all game.

"They made him work hard. Our guys did a really nice job executing the game plan," Gosar said. "I though we gave better defensive efforts this weekend. As a whole, we're starting to figure it out."

TEAM WRESTLING PREVIEWS

Class 4A

Defending state champion David Borden is the marquee wrestler returning for MINICO, which won the District IV team championship and finished sixth at state last season. Borden, a senior, went 40-2 and won the 160-pound title. The Spartans also bring back a pair of district champs and fourth-place state finishers, senior Alberto Ramirez and junior Isaiah Alvarado.

State qualifiers Salvador Gutierrez, Brett Thompson, Austin Gilchrist and Skye Dansie also return, giving Minico hopes for a team trophy at state. ... JEROME will get back on the mat with senior Layne Lasike, who went 34-6 with a third-place state medal last season at 285.

Seniors Jade Parsons and Tate Patterson, junior Riley Thacker and sophomore Michael Roberts will lead a Tiger team that coach Des Case says is young and deep. ... As the only state qualifier returning for BURLEY, junior Juan Labra is expected to be a leader in the Bobcats' wrestling room, which is up slightly in numbers, but lacking in experience. ... Four state qualifiers return for WOOD RIVER, which has some depth issues and may not fill all 15 weight classes. However, coach Shawn Huntington says the Wolverines have more wrestlers with multi-year varsity experience than in past years, including mat leaders Cooper Bailey, Jared Anderson, Tommy Bailey and Auden Ruhter. ... TWIN FALLS has produced five individual state champions the past two years, but they all graduated. The Bruins will stress fundamentals with a young squad that could surprise some people. They're loaded in the middleweights, led by returning state qualifiers senior Jake Schvaneveldt and junior Marus Ko. After moving out of state for a year, Isaac Laris is back and expected to have a solid junior season, and keep an eye on junior Tyler Lookingbill. ... CANYON RIDGE continues to build a quality program, and is described by some rival coaches as this year's "darkhorse." Expect big things from senior Braydon Metcalf, a fifth-place state placer at 152, plus returning qualifiers Gaige Kepner and Connor Stubblefield. Class 3A Nine wrestlers with state experience return for KIMBERLY, the defending District IV champion. With only a few seniors, leadership is a concern. Filling 15 weight classes might be difficult with half the team bundled in the same four classes, according to Bulldogs coach Troy Palmer. Look for a solid season from Holt Bright, Jacob Herman, Zach Stumpf, Tanner Mulberry, Leon Roper, Adan Diaz, Chris Chandler, Cody Nye and Caleb McClimans. ... State runner-up at 215, senior Oren Carlton returns for BUHL, as well as senior Coty Thompson, a fourth-place finisher at 130. Three other state qualifiers are back for the Indians: Adam McLean, Stephen Mejia and Kenny Gutierrez. ... FLER returns two state qualifiers to the mat in Taylor Deaton and JaCade Jones, but all of the Wildcats' medalists graduated.

Sad Sack Bunch

An unidentified Jacksonville Jaguars fan wears a bag on his head late in the team's 38-14 loss to the San Diego Chargers in an NFL football game on Monday. That Jacksonville sacked coach Jack Del Rio last week only made the fan's "apparel" all the more appropriate.

Vets Elect 3B Santo To Hall of Fame

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS • Ron Santo always kept rooting for the causes dearest to him — for his Chicago Cubs to win the World Series, for doctors to find a cure for diabetes and for him to reach the Hall of Fame.

On Monday, Cooperstown finally came calling.

The barrel-chested third baseman who clicked his heels in victory was elected to the Hall, overwhelmingly chosen by the Veterans Committee nearly a year to the day after he died hoping for this very honor.

“It’s really exciting because so many years that we had parties over to his house in spring training saying this is the year, I’d tell him this is the year you’re going in,” said Hall of Fame teammate Billy Williams, a member of the voting panel.

“The one thing, of course, is he’s not here to enjoy it, but his family will. He long awaited this, and we’re all happy. I know I’m happy, his family is happy, the fans of Chicago are happy,” he said.

Hall to honor newest inductee

Former Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo has been elected to baseball's Hall of Fame.

Santo was a nine-time All-Star, hit 342 home runs and won five Gold Gloves. He was a Cubs broadcaster for two decades, beloved by the home crowd for the way he eagerly cheered for his favorite team on the air, hollering “Yes! Yes!” or “All right!” after good plays and groaning “Oh, no!” or “It’s bad” when things went wrong.

Shortly after the announcement, Santo’s flag — white with blue pinstripes, plus his name and No. 10 — was flying from the center pole atop the scoreboard at Wrigley Field.

“There was always kind of a missing piece of the puzzle of Cubs’ history,” team owner Tom Ricketts said.

Santo breezed in with 15 votes from the 16-member panel that met at baseball’s winter meetings. It took 75 percent — 12 votes — to get chosen.

“I’ve got tears in my eyes writing this: congrats to the Santo family on Ron’s election to MLB Hall of Fame. A good day to be a Cub fan,” tweeted Chicago-area rocker Billy Corgan, frontman for the Smashing Pumpkins.

Santo died Dec. 3, 2010, from complications of bladder cancer at age 70. He had diabetes, which eventually cost him both legs below the knees, and worked tirelessly to raise millions for research into the disease.

Williams was on the line when Santo’s widow, Vicki, got the congratulatory phone call.

“Ron has passed, but it was always his dream, to even have this come to him after his passing. It just shows you can’t give up,” she said during a conference call from Arizona.

“All he said (was) I hope I get in in my lifetime, that’s certainly a reasonable request for anybody who gets an honor as special as this one. Unfortunately, it wasn’t meant to be,” she said. “With his lifetime every disappointment that came along, he was very disappointed.”

Said daughter Linda Brown: “I know, even if my dad were here today, he would never reflect on any of the wrongdoings, so to speak. ... There would be no bitterness, it would just be him being happy, and I believe he is.”

Marlins’ Spending Spree Looks Fishy

DALLAS • Jeffrey Loria watched the news conference from the second row, beaming like a proud parent as Heath Bell talked about his new love for the Miami Marlins and reuniting with Jose Reyes.

Trying to make a quick get-away, the owner was surrounded by reporters in the corridor who wanted to know who else would be migrating to South Florida: Albert Pujols, C.J. Wilson, Mark Buehrle? Instead of trading away their stars, the Marlins have become the biggest player in the offseason market; the riches from their new ballpark, a free-agent attraction. “I want our team to be important,” Loria said Monday as the winter meetings opened. “It’s an energy city, and I think that’s one of the things that brings the players there. They see the energy.”

Bell’s $27 million, three-year contract was finalized, giving the renamed Marlins an All-Star closer. Reyes’ $106 million, six-year deal is a satisfactory physical from conclusion.

Pujols, who already has toured the new ballpark, would join Hanley Ramirez, Mike Stanton and Logan Morrison in the batting order — if the three-time NL MVP is willing to leave the St. Louis Cardinals, the only major league team he’s played for.

“One big hitter?” Loria said out loud, his 2003 World Series ring flashing from his hand. “Well, I don’t know about that, but there’s a possibility of another player or two we’re looking at.”

Morrison, among others, was wondering.

“Just out of surgery. Everything went well,” he wrote on Twitter after a minor knee operation, adding: “Have we signed Pujols yet?”

Pujols and Prince Fielder are the big bats on the market, and it remains unclear whether Pujols is willing to leave the World Series champions, where he’s joined Stan Musial as a franchise icon.

“I always use the word hopeful,” Cardinals chairman Bill DeWitt Jr. said.

MLB’S AVERAGE SALARY RISES TO $3.1M

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS • The average major league salary increased 2.7 percent this year to nearly $3.1 million, the largest rise since 2008.

The 913 players on Aug. 31 rosters and disabled lists averaged $3,095,183, the Major League Baseball Players Association said Monday in its annual report, up from $3,014,572 last year when the average topped $3 million for the first time.

The average figures to go up next year, with the minimum salary rising from $414,000 to $480,000 under the new labor contract.

The New York Yankees had the highest average salary for the 13th consecutive season, but at $6.54 million it declined for the second straight year, down from a peak of $7.66 million when they won the World Series in 2009.

Philadelphia was second at $6.44 million, followed by Boston ($5.21 million), the Los Angeles Angels ($4.58 million) and the World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals ($4.47 million). AL champion Texas was 15th at $3.01 million.

Among other playoff teams, Detroit was ninth at $3.96 million, Milwaukee 11th at $3.41 million, Arizona 22nd at $2.12 million and Tampa Bay 28th at $1.54 million. Commissioner Bud Selig has pointed out several times that changes to baseball’s labor contract in recent years have increased competitive balance.

Kansas City was last at $1.34 million, just behind San Diego at $1.35 million. Pittsburgh, which was last in 2010, rose to 27th at $1.73 million.

Among regulars at positions, designated hitters took over as the highest average at $9.3 million, followed by first basemen at $8.9 million.
