As the number of Pearl Harbor survivors dwindle, more are committing their memories of the attack to paper.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Gale Mohlenbrink and Jack White are among the Magic Valley's last direct links to an event that changed the world. The two U.S. Navy veterans and U.S. Army veteran Ray Roessler are the last known survivors of the Pearl Harbor attack living in south-central Idaho. Although many survivors surfaced to tell their accounts through the years, more voices are falling silent — the victim of time, as even the youngest servicemen on that day,

Dec. 7, 1941, are approaching their 90s. Both Mohlenbrink, 87, of Buhl, and White, 90, of Twin Falls, are well aware of the significance the public places on round-numbered anniversaries. Today marks the 70th anniversary of the Japanese attack on the military base at Hawaii, which was then not even a state. But as the number of survivors dwindles and age takes its toll physically, fewer commemorations include participation from the people who lived through an attack that claimed 2,403 lives

Survey: T.F. Residents Support Recycling

While the year-old single-stream recycling program in Twin Falls has been well received, city officials say there's still room for improvement.

BY BEN BOTKIN

Twin Falls leaders now have some feedback to gauge how residents have received the city's fledgling recycling program.

The verdict, from about 300 residents who participated in the city's online survey, is a thumbs-up for the most part. But city officials say the information also shows there's still room for improving its no-sort recycling program, which started almost a year ago in January. Areas for improvement include increasing awareness and participation, along with boosting local business involvement in the program that awards discounts to recyclers. Councilwoman Rebecca Mills-Sojka said that since city reserves have been

Census: Older Americans Healthy, but Still Face Problems

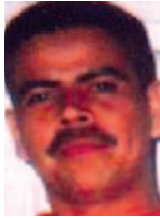

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

Living to an old age is generally considered an achievement, but don't expect to collect a prize. According to U.S. Census data, a larger amount of Americans are living well into their 90s than three years ago. And while these senior citizens are usually healthy enough to live in their homes and not assisted-living facilities, they generally live on a limited budget and face challenging medical issues. Reviewing the census data is a little like summarizing a

Enrique

WENDELL • A little after 4 a.m. came the banging on the door. Baltazar and Alicia Torres, who live southeast of Wendell, opened their door to see one of their neighbors, Lupe Enrique, injured and with her wrists taped.

The Torres family called police, alerting law enforcement to the latest in a disturbing trend of home invasions in the Magic Valley. The Gooding County Sheriff's Office is now searching for Ramon Enrique, 33, who was taken from his home at 3340 S. 2000 E. by four armed, masked men early Tuesday morning. Sheriff Shaun Gough reported shortly before 2 p.m. that a green Honda Accord reported stolen in connection with the home invasion and kidnapping had been found about 2 miles northeast of Jerome. But investigators still had not located Enrique. It wasn't clear why he may have been kidnapped. Recounting their experience later Tuesday, the Torres family recalled that Lupe appeared to have been hit in the head, though she was not bleeding. She and Ramon have two children, both of whom were believed to be uninjured, Alicia said through her daughter's translation. Anyone with information on Enrique should call the Southern Idaho Regional Communications Center, 735-1911 or 324-1911.

Funny, Offensive and Maybe a Little Illegal

Are they vulgar and offensive? hilariously hillbilly? A declaration of rural pride, protected by the First Amendment?

Probably all of the above.

They're ornaments that dangle from car bumpers — two rubber orbs that give the appearance of, ahem, male parts. And they're raising eyebrows in traffic all over Magic Valley.

I've seen them only on massive trucks, which makes sense. I can't picture these displays of masculinity on other vehicles: bicycles, motorized scooters, a Prius.

But these, um, gems aren't limited to cars. For $15, you can male-ify your iPhone with a similar accessory. And according to thehistoryblog.org, Roman generals used decorations shaped like man parts on their chariots.

See? It's not tacky. It's tradition.

It's fun to snicker at them, but it turns out that showing off faux crown jewels might not be legal in Twin Falls. According to city code 6-2-19, it's unlawful to display any costume or device that gives the appearance of people's naughty bits. The punishment: up to $300 and six months in jail.

It's been an issue in other parts of the country. Lawmakers in Florida, Maryland and Virginia have proposed legislation to make the adornments illegal. In South Carolina, a woman who displayed these things on her truck is heading to court this month on a charge of violating that state's law on obscene bumper stickers.

Could someone in Twin Falls get in trouble for this? I called Patrol Capt. Anthony Barnhart of the Twin Falls Police Department to ask.

"This is completely new to me," he said.

After I described the ornaments and he looked up the code, he said he's seen them, but they're not high on his priority list. For offenses like that, officers can use their discretion, he said. Someone might get in trouble if the police station received a complaint, but even then, a friendly talking-to would probably solve the conflict.

"I just think that our officers in general are fairly busy with other matters," Barnhart said.

With that in mind, maybe I'll buy a pair for my little red Corolla.

On second thought ... no, that's not going to happen.

Otter Coming to Sun Valley on Dec. 21

TIMES-NEWS

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter will make Sun Valley Capital for a Day on Dec. 21.

The event is the governor's way of bringing his office and other state agencies to Idaho communities that aren't close to the State Capitol in Boise.

The monthly event will happen alongside the celebration of Sun Valley's 75th anniversary. The event will take place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Sun Valley Inn's

Continental Room.

Otter will join Sun Valley Mayor Wayne Willich and other Wood River Valley leaders for a lunch at noon at the same location. The lunch is open to the public, with a cost of $10 per person.

According to the press release, other state officials who will attend include: Lt. Gov. Brad Little; Secretary of State Ben Ysursa; Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna; and Brig. Gen. Bill Shawver, commanding officer of the Idaho Air National Guard and director of the Idaho Bureau of Homeland Security. Directors of the Idaho Department of Labor, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, the Idaho Department of Insurance, the Idaho Transportation Department, the Idaho Department of Commerce, the Idaho Department of Correction, the Idaho Department of Water Resources, the Idaho Lottery and the Idaho State Liquor Division will also be on hand.

Others scheduled to attend include College of Southern Idaho President Jerry Beck; Michael Faison, director of the Idaho Commission on the Arts; and Jim Unsworth, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

There also will be representatives from the State Board of Education, the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation, Idaho State Historical Society, Idaho State Police, Idaho Department of Lands, and the Idaho Division of Building Safety.

Minidoka Animal Control 'Turns a Corner'

After financial woes led to talks of closing the Paul facility earlier this year, donations and a big volunteer push have helped it rebound.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

PAUL • Animals housed in the Minidoka County Animal Control Facility's outdoor kennels now have a roof over their heads.

Thanks to an uptick in donations and other efforts to handle the Paul facility's $90,000 annual operating costs, the once-unstable future of Minidoka County animal control has been shored up, officials said.

"It seems like we've turned a corner," said Steve Mani, animal control officer at the facility. "We used all of our resources to keep it running and we have to keep up the momentum, because if we stopped we'd be right back where we were."

Earlier this year, officials who jointly operate the facility under an agreement between Minidoka County and its cities other than Heyburn contemplated closing the facility. But Mani, who has been the county's animal control officer for 15 years, said those concerns have subsided. Improvements like the metal roof that offers kenneled animals shelter hint at a facility that's no longer just scraping by.

The facility's donation account currently has a $17,000 balance. Along with the new roof for the outdoor cages, officials put up tarps as wind blocks and purchased a new steam cleaner that helps reduce disease at the facility.

Numerous donors from throughout Idaho and from as far away as Japan have chipped in money, product discounts, donations of supplies and volunteer time in the past few months.

Mani said the facility's adoption network has also expanded. He and his wife, Mary Jane, plan to spend their time off over the Christmas holiday taking about 20 dogs to the 11th Hour Rescue in Washington state, where they'll be adopted out. Mary Jane volunteers at the Paul facility.

they have a new family for Christmas," she said.

Local foster families and volunteers have also grown in rank, part of the reason why officials say that Minidoka County has now been contacted by other animal control facilities seeking tips on how to turn their operations around.

"I'm looking forward to the future," Steve Mani said. "Last year, we didn't even know if we would be able to keep the doors open, and now things are going really well."

MANY TURNED OUT FOR MINI-CASSIA DIABETES EXPO

TIMES-NEWS

About 200 people attended the second annual Diabetes Expo in Burley on Nov. 10, organizers say.

Cassia Regional Medical Center and Minidoka Memorial Hospital partnered to put on the event, with CRMC hosting it this year.

The expo featured flu shots, A1C tests, blood-pressure tests and foot exams. A dietitian designed personalized meal plans for those in attendance, and the hospitals spread word of the free, monthly Mini-Cassia diabetes support group.

Many people also took advantage of booths where they could ask questions of doctors, pharmacists, physical therapists and others, according to a press release.

"Diabetes is a family disease, so educating the entire family is key," Tennille Houston with CRMC said in the release.

history lesson, said Dr. Joshua Kern, partner with Family Physicians Care in Jerome.

The Census Bureau describes the average 90-year-old as female, living alone, with no more than a high school diploma but covered by health insurance. In other words, the 90-year-old grew up in a time when women generally stayed at home and thus had more time to take care of themselves, and could get adequate health insurance without going to college.

The health issues facing a person living 40 or even 60 years ago are no longer the major issues in Idaho or the nation, Kern said.

"If you are making it to 90, it usually means you are taking care of yourself," Kern said. "The people who are 90 today never had to face the obesity or diabetes epidemics we're in now."

But that's not to say those over 90 are not without problems.

The census data noted that the elderly population often lives on a limited budget, funded by Social Security and a retirement pension. The elderly's dependency on government programs to help fund their twilight years is only expected to increase, said David Irwin, a spokesman for the AARP of Idaho.

The lack of disposable income and poor retirement planning are both factors that contribute to high numbers of senior citizens living in poverty, he said.

"The average benefit check in Idaho was roughly $1,117 a month," he said. "Times that by 12 and you don't end up with a lot at the end of the year."

Luckily, help from the community at senior centers or assisted-living facilities can alleviate some financial strain and increase social health, said Rich Cartney, administrator at Bennett Hills Care and Rehabilitation Center in Gooding.

"Just having conversations can be critical to a healthy mind," he said. "We do live in an area that promotes community, which is good. If you're not having a conversation with someone, you will lose those abilities."

used to offset the costs of the program, the feedback is crucial to future decisions about the service.

"We just want to make sure that's what people want," she said.

Among the survey results:

- 82.6 percent of respondents said they were extremely or very likely to recommend the program. Only 6 percent were not at all likely to recommend it.

- 65.6 percent were satisfied with the RecycleBank rewards program, and 34.4 percent weren't. Separately, only 20.8 percent reported redeeming points for coupons to use at businesses through RecycleBank. The other 79.2 percent hadn't.

City officials said the RecycleBank program needs more local vendors to offer discounts for. Participation in the RecycleBank program is not required to receive the recycling service.

Only 19 local vendors are participating in the RecycleBank program, said Mike Williams, assistant to the city manager.

Other ideas have arisen. Councilman Lance Clow said he's interested in adding flexibility to RecycleBank's "green schools" program, which provides grants for environmentally friendly projects. Through that program, people can donate their RecycleBank points to schools that can convert the points to cash for such projects.

Clow said he'd like schools to have the ability to use their money for other education projects, such as class field trips or dance and music programs.

Other efforts the city wants to maintain focus on include continuing education for recycling, and increasing the pounds of trash diverted from the landfill.

The goal is for each participating household to generate 30 pounds of recycled materials per month — the current average is 26 pounds. About 65 percent of residential households use the recycling program.

Miles Daisher, a Twin Falls resident, is among the 65 percent. He's participated in

Deadline Passes for Posting School Finances Online

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

It should be easier now to find financial information about your local school district.

But while state law requires Idaho's public school districts to post their budget information online, the mandate has been easier to meet for some schools than others — and there doesn't appear to be any consequence for districts that don't follow through.

A bill passed by the state Legislature in 2010 requires school districts and public charter schools to post certain public financial information online. The first deadline to do so passed Thursday.

The Hansen School District doesn't have all its documents up yet — just monthly expense reports and vendor lists.

In the small school district with fewer than 400 students, meeting the requirements has meant extra work.

"It's taking quite a bit of time," Hansen District Clerk Myra Miller said, especially getting employee contracts posted.

She's the only person in her department and also handles daily tasks such as managing payroll and making sure district bills are paid.

Under the state law, there aren't consequences for school districts that don't post financial information.

"There's not a level of enforcement written into the legislation," said Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the Idaho State Department of Education. "There often isn't."

School districts must include financial information from July 1 onward and expense information has to be updated at least monthly.

"For the most part, it's data districts have but just haven't posted before," McGrath said.

The Legislature followed up this year with another requirement for districts to post budgets online within 30 days after they're approved, as well as agreements with employee unions.

The Twin Falls School District's budget was already posted online before this year's legislation took effect.

However, Twin Falls' new expenditure Web page has more information — the district's payroll, expenditure report, school financial reports and employee contracts.

"It's always been available, but not readily," Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said of the information. In the past, he said, the documents were available through public records requests.

Jerome began posting financial information in July, said Superintendent Dale Layne. Now, all of the required information is available through its site.

"We had some time to play with it and figure it out before the deadline," Layne said.

Any additional lighting is always helpful for living things this time of year. Plant lights with 10 watt halogen bulbs are our favorite and we have them available at our store. Subway Burglary Suspect Pleads Guilty

TIMES-NEWS

Cassius Reynolds has pleaded guilty to felony conspiracy for his role in an attempted burglary of a Twin Falls sandwich shop.

The 23-year-old Jerome man appeared Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court to enter his guilty plea to conspiracy to commit burglary. Another charge for making a false explosives report was dropped as part of a plea agreement with prosecutors.

Reynolds is one of four suspects accused of calling in a bunk bomb threat on the Twin Falls Walmart to use as a diversion to break into the Kimberly Road Subway restaurant in November. According to a police interview, their plan was to steal money and gamble it at a Fort Hall casino.

The suspects were nabbed near a Kimberly Road pay phone before they could carry out their plan.

According to the agreement, the state will recommend that Reynolds serve a maximum seven-year prison term, suspended for probation. He could serve up to 60 days in county jail. Sentencing is set for Feb. 8.

and forced the U.S. to enter World War II.

"It was interesting," Mohlenbrink said in hindsight of that day seven decades ago, "but it was something you didn't want to have to do."

White hasn't been able to be as involved in ceremonies as in years past, but he strongly believes in educating younger generations on what his own went through during a time of global conflict.

"There were movies made about Pearl Harbor," he said at his Twin Falls home on Tuesday, "but they don't tell you anything."

Roessler, 90, of Gooding, is currently at the VA hospital in Boise and unable to speak for this story.

White spent the length of World War II on the light cruiser USS St. Louis, nicknamed the "Lucky Lou" because it survived the attack on Pearl Harbor while nearby ships Honolulu and Nevada took direct hits.

Following the attack, White said, the St. Louis was involved in several major battles of the Pacific theater, earning eleven Battle Stars on the Asiatic-Pacific Area Service Medal. Battles included the Okinawa Operation and the Solomon Islands Battles.

White has since chronicled his time in the Navy in writing. He isn't looking for more accolades or fame from his service during World War II. Rather, he wants a written record for his family and something to show future generations, who will only know of Pearl Harbor through textbooks, television documentaries and Hollywood films.

Mohlenbrink was one of a handful of local authors invited to present their works Tuesday evening at the Buhl Public Library. He answered questions and showed off a self-published book he co-authored with his wife, On-ah Dee.

His tale captivated the small group of about 20 people, both authors and audience. His short session attracted many more questions and spurred interest in his memoir.

"It's not a long story," he said, "but it's my life story in the Navy."

World War II veteran and author Gale Mohlenbrink sets out photocopies of images from the war Tuesday evening at the Buhl Public Library.

of the war for Mohlenbrink. He was there for the attack, and he was there, ready to ship out, when the Japanese announced their surrender nearly five years later.

Mohlenbrink joined the U.S. Navy at age 17 in 1941 and was assigned to the USS Northampton, a medium cruiser.

On Dec. 7, 1941, the Northampton was out at sea. The then-18-year-old and a few shipmates were left at the harbor to perform maintenance on the captain's gig, a small boat used to travel between the shore and the cruiser. Mohlenbrink was startled out of his slumber, like many other servicemen, by the sound of explosions. Topside, he saw low-flying planes, with a red sun on their wings, strafing the harbor and dropping bombs. The servicemen grabbed weapons, fearing an impending land invasion by Japanese forces, and kept watch through the night and into the next morning.

About 24 hours after the attack began, he saw the Northampton return to the base, unharmed.

His service aboard the Northampton included another event that gained fame for its daring yet successful execution: the Doolittle Raid of Japan in April 1942. The Northampton's mission was to escort Lt. Col. James Doolittle and his pilots, who took off from the aircraft carrier USS Hornet. Mohlenbrink was on watch the morning of the launch of 16 B-25 bombers.

"The planes on the carrier were firing up, and I saw the exhaust shooting out of the back end," he recalled. "I said to a kid on watch with me, 'I wonder what the hell that is going on?'" It got lighter and finally it was dawn. I could see the big twin-engine planes. Then they told us."

The raid on Tokyo was a success, but the Northampton's fortune would not last. Mohlenbrink's ship was sunk during the Battle of Tassafaronga in November 1942. Later on, he joined the crew of the USS Edison, which fought in the European theater of World War II until Germany's May 8, 1945, surrender. On Aug. 15, 1945, upon the initial announcement of Japan's surrender, he was again in Pearl Harbor as the Edison prepared to depart for the South Pacific. The formal surrender came Sept. 2.

For the longest time, all Mohlenbrink had to note his participation in the war were stories and battle ribbons. Because he was listed as a crewman of the Northampton, which was not in the harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, he believed for decades that he could not lay legitimate claim to being an attack survivor.

But through a search of the National Archives, the military's meticulous record-keeping showed that he was in fact listed as a survivor. He finally received a certificate and a medal, given to all servicemen who survived the ordeal, for the attack's 50th anniversary.

Twenty years later, prodding from family members led to his decision to commit his experiences to paper, Mohlenbrink said.

"We've went to Hawaii with her brother and sister-in-law," Mohlenbrink said, gesturing to his wife. "Every year, he'd ask a few more questions about my experiences. I really got into the details with them. He kept saying, 'Why don't you write a book?'" And I'd just laugh at him."

In 2010, he self-published a small collection of wartime stories. The project was initially to benefit his family, who wanted to collect his stories while they could. He's also offered the book to the general public, but he'll only accept enough money to cover the cost of printing. He doesn't feel right about profiting off his stories.

The Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, which had a local chapter until 2005, will disband its national presence at the end of the year. The organization is down to approximately 2,700 members, and it is estimated that only 8,000 survivors are alive as of this month. While the stories of Mohlenbrink and White are a small portion of the overall story of Dec. 7, 1941, it is significant nonetheless.

As our servicemen succumb to age, we lose a little bit of a first-account history from the Greatest Generation.

Former Castleford Teacher Set for Video Voyeurism Hearing

TIMES-NEWS

A former Castleford teacher will appear in a Latah County court again next month.

Roger Wells, who resigned from his teaching position in June, was arraigned Monday in Latah County 2nd District Court on charges of felony video voyeurism and felony destruction of evidence. He is accused of secretly filming a high school girl while she showered in his Moscow hotel room last June. Wells was travelling with students and chaperones on a FFA student convention.

The police report notes that a male student found a miniature video camera hidden in a packet of coffee in the hotel room's bathroom and confronted Wells about it. He is accused of stomping on the device, which was recovered by the student and presented to police as evidence. Investigators also seized a computer owned by Wells.

A magistrate judge set a Jan. 19 preliminary hearing for Wells, who posted $25,000 bond, according to online court records.

CORDER APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF SENATE COMMITTEE

TIMES-NEWS

Sen. Tim Corder, R-Mountain Home, will become chairman of the Senate's Local Government and Taxation Committee, Idaho Senate leadership announced Tuesday.

He's shifting to that position because Joe Stegner has left the Senate to become a lobbyist for the University of Idaho.

"As we enter this session, continuing Idaho's slow, but stable recovery is paramount," Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill said in a written release. "Senator Corder is a proven businessman, who understands the need for a pro-growth approach to tax policy."

Previously, Corder was chairman of the Senate's Agricultural Affairs Committee. Sen. Jeff Siddoway, R-Terreton, will become the chairman of that committee.

Shining Light on Darkness

BY BRIAN WALKER
Coeur d'Alene Press

POST FALLS • Christmas season is always a tender time for Jackie Kirk, but she found peace on Monday night.

The Post Falls woman, whose husband Loren died eight years ago this month, was among about 200 who packed into the Jacklin Arts and Cultural Center for Hospice of North Idaho's 30th annual memory tree lighting ceremony to remember lost loved ones.

"I come every year because it helps release some of the pain I'm always carrying," she said. "It's spiritual and important to me. It's just a needed thing."

Attendees listened to soothing seasonal songs of hope, heard words of encouragement, found unity in lighting candles during their dark time and paid respect to their loved ones with names on doves to decorate the memory tree.

"A little bit of light is all many of us need, but, oh do we need it," said Cindy Reed, Hospice House director. "Together we can make it."

Hauser's Ludmilla Casey attended to remember her younger sister Helen Lessig and mother Maria Lessig. Both died in the past year.

"I came here to seek support," Casey said. "Hospice has the best support spiritually and emotionally. They have so much warmth."

"This made me feel special and it made me feel like (Helen and Maria) were here with us tonight."

Post Falls' Bob Foster and his father, Bob, paid respect to their late mother and wife Gail who died a year and a half ago.

"Dad called me and asked if I'd like to go, and I said, 'Sure,'" Foster said. "It's a nice program and opportunity to bring people together who lost someone close."

Four candles representing grief, courage, memories and love were lit up front. Each attendee then held their own candle, remembering their lost love ones and adding an abundance of light to the center. A moment of silence was held after the singing of "Silent Night."

"No person is ever truly alone," said Pam Parsons, a bereavement counselor.

The Rev. Grant MacLean said those coping with loss are encouraged to share stories of their loved ones with others. They are messages of unity, hope and love, MacLean said. They can also be a "priceless gift" to the listener.

"Sharing your story affirms life in the midst of darkness," MacLean said. "Your story is a witness to the importance of your loved one's journey. It's also a path in healing."

Treasure Valley Schools See Uptick in Homeless

BOISE, (AP) • Some of Idaho's biggest school districts say the number of homeless students — and the challenges that come with them — are increasing.

The Boise School District now has 644 students that are homeless, compared to 789 for all of last year, KTVB reported Tuesday.

The homeless count grows throughout the school year and is adjusted monthly to reflect the addition of students whose status has changed.

The count is a running total and does not reflect students whose status has stabilized because those students qualify for a whole year for aid for food, transportation and other services, officials said.

It may also not reflect all of the students that are homeless in any district because a student's status could change without officials knowing about it.

"At the rate we're going now, we have the potential of getting close to a thousand by the time we come to the end of the school year, which is astronomical," said Sherry Tipping, homeless education consultant for the district. "We're just seeing more and more parents lose their housing because they can't make ends meet."

In Nampa, officials reported 818 homeless students compared to about 1,000 last year. In Caldwell there are 149 homeless students, while all of last year there were 239. Meridian School District reports 270 homeless students compared to 464 in the 2010-11 school year.

Students defined as homeless are not just those living on the streets. The list also includes kids from families that do not own a home or rent an apartment, and instead live with another family, move frequently from place to place or live in motels or other short-term placements.

Michelle Whiteley is one of hundreds of parents in Treasure Valley without a permanent home and is struggling amid the economic recession.

Whiteley, who lost her job and has not yet found work, told the TV station she lives with her 19-year-old son and his girlfriend in their two-bedroom apartment, a phenomenon called "doubling up."

"I've always done whatever I can to make sure that I wouldn't end up in this situation and then it did happen. What do you do? Especially when you don't expect it," said Whiteley, who has two children enrolled in Boise schools.

In the Boise School District, Tipping said teachers are trained to look for signs of homelessness. Social workers then help families with resources for assistance. The goal is to help provide consistency and stability for those students.

"Those families do move around a lot, which is hard on the kids," said Tipping. "Four to six months is what the research shows the kids lose academically every time they change schools." Boise schools are also seeing an increase in the reliance on elementary students on free or-reduced lunches. The district has 47.2 percent of its students that qualify for the program, up from 43 percent last school year.

FOSTER PARENTS ARRAIGNED IN CHILD'S DEATH IN POST FALLS

BY DAVID COLE
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • The Post Falls foster parents indicted for allegedly injuring a 2-year-old girl in their care — who later died of head injuries — were arraigned Monday. They remained silent during the hearing and a judge entered not guilty pleas on their behalf.

Amber M. Clark, 28, and her husband, Jeremy M. Clark, 36, were indicted last month by a Kootenai County grand jury on two counts of felony injury to a child, conspiracy to conceal evidence of the abuse, and perjury. They were arrested and jailed, but then released on $25,000 bond.

Two-year-old Karina J. Moore died in January 2009, days after the Clarks told police Karina fell down stairs in their home. The Spokane County Medical Examiner's Office ruled the case a homicide, citing "blunt force head injuries."

First District Judge Fred Gibler on Monday didn't initially set a trial date.

Indictment documents allege abuse by the Clarks wasn't limited to Karina.

The couple allegedly inflicted ice baths on a boy in their care, who was 4 or 5 years old at the time, documents said. The couple also inflicted injuries to his body and head, documents said. That alleged abuse occurred between December 2007 and January 2008.

Defense lawyers for the Clarks said during the hearing that at least two weeks would be needed for trial.

Defense lawyer Chris Schwartz, representing Amber Clark, said there is a large volume of discovery material that needs to be reviewed and analyzed, along with grand jury transcripts, and expert witnesses would need to be acquired.

"This is going to need to be set out quite some time" for trial, Schwartz said. Defense lawyer Sean Walsh represents Jeremy Clark.

Police began investigating after Karina was injured. She was placed in the Clarks' home by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

She was taken from her mother, now 25-year-old Samantha Richardson of Coeur d'Alene, in mid-November 2008 because Richardson had allegedly harmed her son, Shawn, who is 8 years old now. Richardson said the alleged mistreatment turned out, upon investigation, to be an accident.

Richardson said the three children she had at the time — Karina, Shawn and Aaliyah — were placed with the Clarks for two months between mid-November 2008 and mid-January 2009.

In Richardson's three supervised visits during that span, she said she noticed Karina had been physically injured and had developed behavior problems such as slurred speech. Richardson complained to state child protection authorities after her second and third visits. The Clarks said the injuries — knots on Karina's head, black eyes, scratches on her face — were the result of accidents at their home.

Months after Karina's death, Richardson regained custody of her children. Richardson has had her fourth child, who is now 8 months old. Richardson married in July 2009.

Karina's father lives in South Carolina.

Kootenai County Prosecutor Barry McHugh has declined to comment on the case.

“The post office is a mainstay of America, and the fact that these services will no longer be available is absolutely crazy.”

Carol Braxton of Naperville, Ill., as she waited in line at a mail sorting center after the U.S. Postal Service announced unprecedented cuts to first-class mail and planned layoffs

THEIR VIEW

What’s Wrong with Adultery?

We live in a bipolar culture. We allow ourselves to be drenched in sexual images in movies, on television and on the Internet and then defend First Amend-ment protection to even the most graphic of them. Then, when a politician acts out what culture promotes, we criticize him, especially if he’s conservative, branding him with the equivalent of a “scarlet letter.”

In our not too distant past, a feeling of shame made people go into hiding after an adulterous relationship was exposed. Now they go on television to talk about the sleazy details. They either deny it (Herman Cain), admit it and say they’ve asked God for forgiveness (Newt Gingrich), or pay no political price at all (space limitations prevent me from listing the legion of politicians that fall into this last category.)

Ginger White was on TV last week. She’s the Georgia woman who claims to have had a 13-year affair with Herman Cain. White says the alleged affair wasn’t “sex for cash.” Whew, let’s be grateful for some sense of morality, however thin.

In a nation that channels Ado Annie’s lament from the musical “Oklahoma” (“I’m just a girl who can’t say no”), saying no to anything, including adultery, gets you pegged as a fundamentalist who is attempting to impose his moral-ity on others. How’s our failure to impose anything working out for us?

If we maintain that adultery is wrong, shouldn’t we have an authority for that judgment? Who decides such things? So the wife (or husband) and kids get upset. Isn’t it all about one’s personal choice and happiness?

For politicians, it goes deeper. Here is the question I wanted to ask former Senator Gary Hart after his alleged affair with Donna Rice nearly 25 years ago: “If we can’t trust you to keep a promise freely made to your wife before God and witnesses, what standard should we use to judge your truthfulness when you make promises to the American people?”

It’s not a trick question, but one that goes to the core of an individual’s values and character. What is marriage? Is it something for the convenience of the U.S. Post Office for orderly mail delivery, or is there a Higher Authority behind it? For most people, marriage is a sacrament with “rules” firmly established by God and when followed these rules benefit married couples, their children and society. Among the main requirements of marriage is fidelity. “Forsak-ing all others” is the phrase contained in the Christian marriage vow. Divorce has become widely accepted (though not to the Author of marriage) as a sometimes “necessary evil,” but adultery remains for most people what it has always been: a betrayal.

It’s not just a religious concept. Ask a person who is married but does not believe in God how he or she would feel about a cheating spouse and you most likely would get the same response you would receive from one who does believe in a higher power: anger and profound disappointment.

In the Washington Post’s “Reliable Sources” column last week, Roxanne Roberts and Amy Argetsinger asked, “Is an affair still the kiss of death?” That they have to ask the question is another indicator of falling standards. Once, divorce was a political “kiss of death.” Now we are debating whether adultery should carry a similar penalty. One shudders to think what might be next.

Ultimately, what voters must decide is this: Does a presidential candidate’s personal flaws rise (or fall) to a level that inhibits his ability to do the job of president? Put another way, if you are about to have surgery, do you care if the doctor is a cad, or do you care more whether most of his patients are alive and well?

With the multiple challenges Americans face and with the choices presented to us, if the country is to be made well, voters may just have to sacrifice the ideal for the pragmatic.

Protesters Undermine Message

All day and into the night, the police were being taunted. Insults and sometimes water bottles were hurled their way. Cameras were pointed at them from every direction.

Yet, as they have done throughout the downtown drama known as Occupy D.C., the U.S. Park Police and D.C. officers displayed remarkable discipline and restraint. Even as they arrested 31 Occupiers, they didn’t become a laughingstock Internet meme. They didn’t succumb to the brutality in Oakland, or the appallingly brazen pepper-spraying at the University of California.

And that’s saying something, given the reality-show-style stunt they were asked to pull off Sunday in McPherson Square.

Park protesters had erected the bones of a small barn. Any structure in the square has to be temporary to be legal, but there was nothing temporary about the sturdy two-by-fours that went up. The construction was pure provocation of a police force that has already been stunningly accommodating.

Petula Dvorak

The Washington Post

Police asked protesters to take down the barn. The Occupiers refused. Instead, some climbed to the top where they prostrated themselves, crucifixion style, on the rafters, or straddled them and occasionally fist-pumped to the crowd below.

Authorities called in a building inspector, who quickly slapped orange “Danger” stickers on the building. Police, closing in to take it down. As in a game of wills between parent and toddler, the police counted: one, two, three. And they began arresting those who remained inside the barn.

Then there was the challenge of safely arresting those clinging to the rafters. Officers pulled up a tactical vehicle and stood on the roof, hoping to get them off that way. The Occupiers scrambled to the other side.

Police had a giant inflatable mattress that two guys eventually jumped onto. Finally, a cherry picker maneuvered around the structure, cornering each protester. Two officers inside it harnessed, roped and precariously hauled each remaining Occupier into the bucket.

The cost of this little passion play had to be staggering, although no one has put a dollar figure on it yet. I counted dozens of officers, a tiny herd of horses, at least two tactical vehicles and a forklift, plus that cherry picker and moon-bounce thing.

Mark Francis Nickens, 51, stood watching the confrontation get more and more tense. Nickens has one of the square’s most visible structures: the tepee that’s closest to the White House, a block away.

“This was not what was supposed to happen,” said Nickens, a musician and dog walker. “You don’t just go and antagonize the cops for nothing.”

But that’s exactly what was happening. Young protesters hopped up on empowerment and anything else that could be found in those tents randomly spit insults at officers standing nearby, simply doing their jobs.

The protesters are blatantly violating the law daily: cooking, showering, sleeping, occupying. Yet they also have a righteous message about the nation’s widening wealth gap that a good chunk of the 99 percent agree with.

The protesters have a powerful platform and a silent blessing from a police force that has looked the other way on loads of petty stuff. Taunting those officers undermines the very message the Occupiers are trying to deliver. It’s cowardly and ridiculous, especially when there are so many real villains to holler at.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Isn’t There Room on Earth for All Animals

I wonder if Mr. Baker has any statistics about how many fat wolves there are, compared to fat people.

Does he expect wolves to saunter into grocery stores and order some hamburger for their dinner?

Wolves act like wolves. Some of their characteristics seem admirable to us since we love to anthropomorphize. Some of their characteristics seem downright animal-like. They don’t seem to know the difference between a pregnant cow elk and some pedestrian elk who deserves to get eaten.

We, on the other hand, are people. People are supposed to know the difference between humane and inhumane. And, if we have become decent people, we should be willing to share the earth with all our fellow animals.

Not Surprised Bank is Suing Dead People

In follow-up to the letter from Jack Goodman of Buhl in Friday’s Times-News about Wells Fargo Bank suing a couple of dead people about which Mr. Goodman has knowledge, it absolutely doesn’t surprise me. Wells Fargo has a slogan of “with you when needed.”

Banks take from their depositors and borrowers all the time in the name of “making a profit.” I see that the state of Massachusetts is suing the big banks. Well, even death can’t seem to free us once we get in the clutches of a big bank.

I always cheer when I see somebody has robbed a bank. I think it was Willie Sutton, bank robber of renown, who answered the questions of why he was always robbing one bank or other, “Well, that’s where the money is.”

Now they are trying to get some dead folks. Well, Wells Fargo, I think not even you can do that but it seems you are trying.

‘Stray Voltage’ will Impact Farmers

As the Bureau of Land Management considers possible routes for the Gateway West and Mountain States Transmission Intertie electric transmission lines, it is important to understand the evolution and advancement of agricultural practices before deciding to place these lines across private irrigated farmland.

Center pivot irrigation systems have been put into place for increased efficiency of water use and have virtually eliminated waste-water run-off. Today’s center pivot systems operate on sophisticated computerized and electrical systems that will be damaged by “stray voltage” emanating from 500 kV electrical lines. Added to the very obvious physical barriers to these irrigation systems by 160-foot-tall towers, it seems clear that the impacts will not be minimal.

Today’s tractors and farm equipment are becoming increasingly reliant on GPS guidance systems that improve the application of pesticides and herbicides and make no-till practices easier to manage. These GPS and computer systems will be affected by stray voltage, reducing efficiency and increasing costs. And as ratepayers, the affected farmers will be granted the honor of paying for the hundreds of millions of dollars it will cost to build these transmission lines — most of whose electricity will be sent to Las Vegas and Southern California.

Considering that southern Idaho has thousands of acres of sagebrush desert, it is curious that the preferred routes run across hundreds of parcels of private land. Obviously human inconvenience and cost ranks a distant second to the BLM’s sagebrush, lava, bunnies and birds.

IDAHO BRIEFS

Idaho Soldier Dies of Injuries

IDAHO FALLS • A U.S. Army soldier from Idaho Falls has died from injuries sustained in an explosion in Afghanistan, family members say.

Lisa Pardonnet said her nephew, 28-year-old Army Corporal Ryan Sharp, died Saturday at a hospital in Germany.

Pardonnet said Sharp was scheduled to finish his third and final tour for the Army next year. He was taking part in a mission in the Kandahar province when the bomb exploded, wounding his legs, shoulder and head. Doctors in Afghanistan induced a coma and then transferred him to Germany for treatment.

Sharp's sister, Michelle Harrison, said Sharp is survived by his two young daughters, 6-year-old Mia and 8-year-old Sarah.

Former Manager Reaches Plea in Embezzlement

SANDPOINT • The former manager of a grocery store in Oldtown has reached a plea agreement after being charged with embezzling as much as $429,000 from the store from 2002 to 2009.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports 50-year-old Jasen W. Johnson entered an Alford plea Monday to attempted burglary. Under such a plea, Johnson admits no wrongdoing but acknowledges prosecutors have enough evidence to gain a conviction.

Bonner County Deputy Prosecutor Shane Greenback says the plea agreement remains under seal and he cannot comment on it. One of the terms was divulged in court. It requires Johnson to pay $106,000 to the operators of Family Foods.

Man Gets 8 Years for Felony DUI, Injury to Child

IDAHO FALLS • A Black-foot man has been sentenced to up to 8 years in prison for felony drunken driving after prosecutors said he drove down the wrong side of Interstate 15 with his 3-year-old son in the vehicle.

The Post Register reports that 28-year-old Joshua Neaman pleaded guilty to felony drunken driving and misdemeanor injury to a child. District Judge Gregory Moeller retained jurisdiction on the case, which means that Neaman may be eligible for release if he successfully completes a treatment program while in prison.

Police arrested Neaman on June 27 after finding him driving against traffic on Interstate 15. Police said his son wasn't in a car seat, and that Neaman's blood alcohol level was .266 — well above the .08 legal limit.

Jury Selection in Lewiston Murder Trial Begins

LEWISTON • Jury selection has begun in the first-degree murder trial of a former Nez Perce County deputy sheriff.

Prosecutors say Joseph A. Thomas Jr. strangled his ex-wife, 28-year-old Beth Irby-Thomas, on May 1 at her Lewiston home. Attorneys for Thomas have filed a court motion saying he plans to give up his right to remain silent and will testify that he and his former wife engaged in autoerotic asphyxiation, and that he saw her engaging in the practice alone.

The Lewiston Tribune reports that prospective jurors were asked several questions by attorneys on both sides of the case, including if they had any prejudice against law enforcement officers.

Holiday Gun Sales Soar in Kootenai County

BY ALECIA WARREN
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • It's a stocking stuffer that will certainly get a reaction.

Gun sales are soaring in Kootenai County, which outfitting stores say is typical for the holiday season.

"It was ridiculous," Brandon Kron with Wholesale Sports said of gun sales on Black Friday.

The store has continued boxing up more guns than usual as families do their holiday shopping, Kron said.

It's common for folks to buy a piece for just about anyone, he said spouses, children, friends.

"I think it has some big sentimental value. A lot of people pass it down from family to family," Kron said. "It's a good fit, if that family's really into guns. It's almost like a new car."

The reasonably priced .22 rifles are really flying out the door, he said. Men have also been purchasing small pistols for their wives to use for self defense.

And apparently most kids won't hear the words "but you'll shoot your eye out!" as Kron sees families buying guns as gifts for kids around 12 years old, he added.

"If they follow the rules and laws and also be safe, it's totally appropriate," he said. "Learning from dad, or mom, spending that quality time, that's great."

His own parents, Kron added, gifted him with a gun at 12.

"It was pretty awesome. I wanted to go out that day and shoot it," he said with a chuckle.

About twice as many guns were sold on Black Friday as a normal day at Black Sheep Sporting Goods, said salesman J.B. Wilson.

But it has been a better year for gun sales overall, he noted.

"It's starting to pick up definitely because of the holidays," Wilson said, adding that hunting rifles and .22s have been the most popular gift choices.

The gun sales are a boon for the store, he said, because folks who come in for guns will generally wander to other departments and pick up additional items.

Shooting and hunting are just popular hobbies for rugged North Idaho residents, Wilson said.

Adding that he received a gun as a present at 16, he believes it is a fine gift.

"It'll last you a lifetime," Wilson said.

Downtown Guns and Ammo has noticed a gradual uptick in gun purchases over the past two months, said salesman Eric Johnson.

From conversations with customers, he believes it's because of anxiety over the recent rash of burglaries and other crimes.

"It's definitely making an impact," Johnson said, adding that concealed weapons have been the biggest draw. "They're justifying it as, 'This is an early Christmas gift,' but they're putting it in their hands now."

Cabela's Sporting Goods attributes its holiday pick-up in gun sales to gifts for hunters, said spokesman Pete Marion.

Guns are a good fit under the tree, Marion noted, because they can be received at almost any age.

"It can go anywhere from young adult, all the way up to grandpa, and everybody in between," he said.

Twenty-six-year-old Christine Bateman had the best intentions at Black Sheep on Monday as she prepared to buy a hunting rifle for her 15-year-old brother for Christmas.

She's going to teach him to hunt with it, Bateman said.

"It's kind of a family tradition," the Coeur d'Alene woman said. "When I was 12, my dad gave me the same gun his father gave him when he was 12."

Randy Rich of Worley said he was buying a muzzleloader for himself at Black Sheep, but he has received guns from his father in the past.

He has also bought guns for his own son, including a "baby gun" when the boy was 6 years old.

"There are a lot of uses," Rich said of why guns are ideal presents. "You can hunt deer, hunt elk, put holes in wolves."

Nate Pulliam, range safety officer with the Coeur d'Alene Rifle and Pistol Club, said guns are a wonderful gift, so long as proper training and handling techniques are also provided.

"With the right education and training, (the gift recipients) could do very well," Pulliam said. "It would be a great gift, but would really depend on the responsibility of the person."

Woman Gets Prison Time for Using Fake IDs on Banks

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Janelyn Dasig will spend the next four years in a federal prison and have to pay back $18,300 she defrauded from several Wells Fargo banks earlier this year in the Treasure Valley.

U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge, who sentenced Dasig Tuesday, also placed her on five years of felony probation after she completes her prison sentence.

The 27-year-old Dasig pleaded guilty to charges of bank fraud and aggravated identity theft in September, according to U.S. Department of Justice reports.

Dasig admitted to going into Wells Fargo banks in Boise, Eagle and Nampa in December and showing employees false ID information so she could make withdrawals from other people's bank accounts.

New Group Issues Conservative Call to Arms in N. Idaho

BY TOM HASSLINGER
Coeur d'Alene Press

COEUR D'ALENE • If the plan is for conservatives to "take back the country" from moderate or Democratic principles, conservatives need to unite to make that happen and all but toss aside thoughts of compromising with the other parties, a new political group said Monday.

Delivering its message in front of a standing-room-only-crowd at the Golden Spoke Estates Clubhouse in Rathdrum, the United Conservatives of North Idaho told supporters during its inaugural meeting that the only way to alter the country's course is to get involved.

"We have to come up with a plan, we have to be organized," said Melanie Vander Feer, Kootenai County Central Committee member who organized the event with fellow member Ron Mendive. "What are we going to do as a group, a team, to take back our nation?"

The group was formed a few weeks ago as a grassroots drive to unite conservatives before upcoming elections. While "still a work in progress," organizers said the blueprint to change is not to compromise with what they perceive is wrong with current politics, which is a lot.

The meeting featured representatives speaking about the 2012 Legislative session, including Dick Harwood, who pledged to try and remove the Environmental Protection Agency out of Idaho, and Vito Barbieri, who vowed to nullify the Health Care Act in Idaho.

While not directly tied to the conservative political group, Rally Right, many Rally Right supporters were in attendance, including founder Bob Pederson.

"This country is in a lot of trouble," Pederson said, before he started the meeting with an opening prayer. "Prevailing liberal ideologies are destroying America."

The grassroots call to arms centered on getting politically active.

Tina Jacobson, KCRCC chair, said the first step is to recruit more conservative precinct committee members to central committees. Compromise has hindered the current party, she said. New rule changes, like a caucus election deciding Idaho's presidential candidate and only registered Republicans being allowed to vote in the primaries, will help, too, she said.

She said Democrats voting in the previously open primary election as a reason Sen. John McCain won the Republican nomination.

"We need people in the party willing to work," she said. We need "only solid conservatives ... manning the wall."

Along with discrediting decisions by the Obama Administration, several people took aim at the "reasonable Republican" quote by KCRCC member Brad Corkill, who recently formed a new Political Action Committee, North Idaho Political Action Committee.

Corkill, in a Press article last week, said that PAC would financially support "reasonable Republicans," without elaborating on whom he thought was unreasonable.

UCNI supporters took aim Monday, some cautioning not to let the "liberal media" drive a wedge in the party's goal. Some also had fun with a "Right Wing Wacko" quote that had made the rounds in the media about the conservative movement.

"If I wanted a reasonable Republican," Barbieri quoted a friend's quip. "I'd vote for a Democrat."

Where the group goes is yet to play out. The next meeting is tentatively planned for after the new year. But Vander Feer said, as the meeting was winding down, that she was pleased with the turnout, which drew 200-plus people.

Leaving the meeting, Mike Mann, of Blanchard, said he usually doesn't attend many political meetings, but saw the advertisement for the meeting and decided to go.

He said it's the right first step.

"We're people who respect our Constitution," he said. "It's not like this is a surprise occasion. This had to happen."

Idaho Settles Johnson & Johnson Drug Pricing Case for $2 Million

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Idaho has settled a drug pricing case with prescription drug manufacturer Johnson & Johnson for $2 million.

The state sued Johnson & Johnson and its companies Janssen Pharmaceutical Products LP, Ortho-McNeil Pharmaceutical Inc., Ortho Biotech Products LP, McNeil-PPC Inc. and Centocor Inc., alleging the companies gave different prices for prescription drugs than Idaho Medicaid actually was required to pay.

Idaho Medicaid reimburses pharmacies at a rate based on the "average wholesale price" reported by drug makers. If those prices are inflated or false, taxpayers end up paying more through Medicaid reimbursements.

For example, Idaho alleged that Johnson & Johnson product Duragesic had a published average wholesale price of $52.066 in 2003 but Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden found it was actually $41.406 that year.

Wasden said his office "investigated and litigated this matter and what we uncovered is that in a very large number of instances, drug manufacturers reported false and inflated prices for their drugs."

More than $1.1 million of the settlement will be credited against the next federal payment to Medicaid. About $479,000 will go into the general fund to be appropriated by the Idaho Legislature, and $50,000 will reimburse the Attorney General's costs.

The settlement has been approved by the 4th District Court in Ada County. The company admitted no liability or wrongdoing.

Three similar cases naming 11 drug companies are still pending.

Public lines up for new low-cost appliance that slashes heat bills

Amish craftsmen vow to keep up with rush for brand-new Hybrid-Thermic™ ‘Miracle Heater’ that uses about the same energy as a coffee maker per hour, so just plug it in and never be cold again

BY: SAMUEL A. JAMES
Universal Media Syndicate

(UMS) – Everyone hates high heat bills. But we’re all sick and tired of turning the thermostat down and freezing our buns off. That’s why Sears knew they had a home-run on their hands with the first-ever low-cost appliance with Hybrid-Thermic™ heat technology. And no other heater anywhere has it.

The brand-new portable L.E.D. Heat Surge HT sips so little energy, you can run it all day or all night for just about a buck.

This modern marvel, hailed as the ‘Miracle Heater,’ caused such a frenzy at Sears stores, one shopper refused to leave until she got one. Since there were none in stock, store managers were forced to hand over the store’s only floor model, against store policy.

So today, immediate action is being taken to give more people, more ways to get them.

Beginning at 8:30 a.m., today’s readers are allowed to phone in or snag one online. Heat Surge even posted a 2-Day Double Coupon which has been reprinted on this page for today’s readers to use.

By using this coupon, everyone who calls is being rewarded with $227. That makes this remarkable new home appliance a real steal at just $299. Since this is a Double Coupon Deal, it not only gives you an extraordinary discount, but also entitles you to free shipping and handling, totaling $227 off. So now everyone has a fair shot at getting one.

“Folks are saving money everywhere with the new Heat Surge HT,” said Kris Rumel, the company’s analyst tracking the impact Heat Surge is having on consumer heat bills.

This all started when Sears wanted the world-famous ‘Amish Miracle Heater’ that everyone was asking for.

The shy but now famous Amish craftsman said Sears made the most sense. “I’d reckon they’re the oldest and most trusted in the country,” one of the Amish craftsmen known as Melvin said.

“We’ve been saving folks money, big money. And we know it because we’re hearin’ about it,” he said.

“They know about our quality. No particle board, just real wood. Fully-assembled cabinets by our hands and we’re making them right here in the good ole USA,” Melvin said.

Director of Technology David Martin explained, “The Heat Surge HT is a revolutionary appliance that can easily roll from room to room. But we didn’t want it to look like some metal box that just sits there. So we turned to our Amish craftsmen and now each one is made to look like a sleek, slim fireplace that has no real flames.”

“The peaceful flicker of the ‘Fireless Flame’ is so beautiful, everyone thinks it’s real, but it’s totally safe to the touch. All you do is just plug it in,” Martin said.

People from New Mexico to Washington and even Florida and Arizona are flocking to get them because they are finally able to give their central heat a rest during this long, frigid winter.

According to the avalanche of consumer reviews, people absolutely swear by them, repeatedly saying, “it saves money,” “looks beautiful,” and “keeps you warm head to toe, floor to ceiling.” And the word is getting out. That’s why people are clamoring to get them.

But Martin said right now the real problem is making sure the Amish craftsmen can keep up with the looming Christmas rush.

That’s why the Double Coupon expires in two days.

So for readers hoping to get the new Heat Surge for themselves and take care of Christmas gifts for others, there is good news.

You can use the 2-Day Double Coupon more than once. But there is a catch. You can only get away with it for the next two days from the date of today’s publication by calling the National Appliance Center at 1-800-618-8510.

Then, when it arrives, you’ll be rushing to turn down that thermostat. Just plug it in, watch your heat bills hit rock bottom, and never be cold again. ■

■ GOTTA HAVE ONE: People are flocking to Sears stores everywhere to get the brand-new Heat Surge HT. An eager crowd remained respectful as Jonas Miller stages a promotional delivery event. “I heard so much about the Amish Miracle Heater but couldn’t find where to get one,” an excited Mary Straughn said. That’s why a National Appliance Hotline has been set up for today’s readers who can’t rush out to get one. Readers who call the Hotline at 1-800-618-8510 will get free delivery with an extraordinary 2-Day Double Coupon that has been reprinted below.

■ SAFE: The beautiful L.E.D. Fireless Flame on the new Heat Surge HT is so stunning, everyone thinks it’s real, but it’s actually safe to the touch. It’s so safe, it’s where the kids will play & the pets will sleep.

■ BLANKET FREE COMFORT: “We just couldn’t take another winter of always being cold. And as an early Christmas gift, we got one for the kids to help them with their heat bills,” Julia White said.

How It Works: You get 74° of bone-soothing room heat even when the home thermostat is turned down to 59° with the first-ever Heat Surge HT

■ MODERN MARVEL: The revolutionary Heat Surge HT micro-furnace fits in any room because it’s packed inside a small Amish-built cabinet that measures just 25" high, 18" wide, and 12" deep.

This is the revolutionary Heat Surge HT, the first-ever appliance with Hybrid-Thermic™ heat technology. Hybrid-Thermic heat technology is an engineering genius so advanced, it actually uses a micro-furnace from the Coast of China and a thermal heat exchanger to perform its miracles. The thermal heat exchanger acts like the rays of the sun to heat you, the kids, the pets and everything else. The micro-furnace then heats all the surrounding air. Together, this Hybrid-Thermic heat technology warms both you and the air around you, taking care of all the cold spots. In fact, it actually produces bone-soothing heat to help you feel good.

This modern marvel uses L.E.D. technology and just a trickle of electricity and saves you money based on a U.S. average that says it uses only about 9¢ of electricity an hour on the standard setting, yet it produces up to an amazing 4,606 British Thermal Units (BTU’s) on the high setting. But here’s the big surprise. It’s not just a metal box that belongs in a basement. The Heat Surge HT is a showpiece in any room.

That’s because it has the ambiance of a real fireplace, but it has no real flames. Its Fireless Flame® technology makes it safe to the touch.

The portable Heat Surge HT comes installed in a genuine Amish-built wood cabinet made in the heartland of Ohio. They are hand-rubbed, stained, and varnished. When it arrives, all you do is just plug it in.

Notice how the home thermostat is set at 59°. The left shows the Heat Surge Hybrid-Thermic ‘Miracle Heater’ blanketing the whole-room with 74° of warmth.

A Consumer Best Buy

An avalanche of unsolicited consumer reviews gives the company the reason to boast an overwhelming Consumer ‘Best Buy’ on the HeatReport.com website. Consumers should be aware of the fakes out there. This Hybrid-Thermic ‘Miracle Heater’ can never be found at Wal-Mart®, not at Lowe’s®, not at Home Depot®, and none of the Club Stores. “Accept no imitations. If it does not have the Heat Surge name on it, it is not real Amish and it is not Hybrid-Thermic™. I repeat, if it does not have the Heat Surge name on it, you are getting ripped off,” said Heat Surge Chief Compliance Officer, Bob Knowles. The Heat Surge has earned the coveted Underwriters Laboratories certification and is protected by a limited full year replacement or money back warranty and 30-day Satisfaction Guarantee.

Obama Picks Campaign Issue: Middle Class at Stake

BY KEN THOMAS and BEN FELLER
Associated Press

OSAWATOMIE, Kan. • Declaring the American middle class in jeopardy, President Barack Obama on Tuesday outlined a populist economic vision that will drive his re-election bid, insisting the United States must reclaim its standing as a country in which everyone can prosper if provided “a fair shot and a fair share.”

Obama

While never making an overt plea for a second term, Obama’s offered his most comprehensive lines of attack against the candidates seeking to take his job, only a month before Republican voters begin choosing a presidential nominee. He also sought to inject some of the long-overshadowed hope that energized his 2008 campaign, saying: “I believe America is on its way up.”

In small-town Osawatomie, in a high school gym where patriotic bunting lined the bleachers, Obama presented himself as the one fighting for shared sacrifice and success against those who would gut government and let people fend for themselves. He did so knowing the nation is riven over the question of whether economic opportunity for all is evaporating.

“Throughout the country, it’s sparked protests and political movements, from the tea party to the people who’ve been occupying the streets of New York and other cities,” Obama said. “This is the defining issue of our time,” he said in echoing President Theodore Roosevelt’s famous speech here in 1910.

“This is a make-or-break moment for the middle class and all those who are fighting to get into the middle class,” Obama said. “At stake is whether this will be a country where working people can earn enough to raise a family, build a modest savings, own a home and secure their retirement.”

For Obama, saddled with a weak national economic recovery, the speech was a chance to break away from Washington’s incremental battles and his own small-scale executive actions. He offered a sweeping indictment of economic inequality and unleashed his own brand of prairie populism.

He spoke for nearly an hour to a supportive audience, reselling his ideas under the framework of “building a nation where we’re all better off.”

Obama tied himself to Roosevelt, the president and reformer who came to this town in eastern Kansas and called for a “square deal” for regular Americans.

Clinton to World: Stop Gay Discrimination

GENEVA • The Obama administration bluntly warned the world against gay and lesbian discrimination Tuesday, declaring the U.S. will use foreign assistance as well as diplomacy to back its insistence that gay rights are fully equal to other basic human rights. In unusually strong language, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton compared the struggle for gay equality to difficult passages toward women’s rights and racial equality, and she said a country’s cultural or religious traditions are no excuse for discrimination. “Gay rights are human rights, and human rights are gay rights,” she said. “It should never be a crime to be gay.”

Allies Urge Romney to Get Tough as Gingrich Surges

Some Romney backers say their candidate must mix it up more aggressively, with Gingrich and with reporters, to prove he has the moxie to be the GOP challenger to President Barack Obama.

BY CHARLES BABINGTON

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney’s above-the-fray campaign style kept him atop the Republican presidential field for months, but it’s raising concerns among his supporters now that Newt Gingrich has surged to challenge him.

Some Romney backers say their candidate must mix it up more aggressively, with Gingrich and with reporters, to prove he has the moxie to be the GOP challenger to President Barack Obama. Romney, the former Massachusetts governor, particularly caused concerns with his prickly responses in a recent Fox News interview. He needs to show more toughness and willingness to field questions, party insiders say.

The message seemed to resonate with his campaign Tuesday. Romney said he will appear on Fox News Sunday on Dec. 18, his first national Sunday talk show in nearly two years. He also fielded questions from reporters covering his Arizona visit, marking his third such “press availability” in four days.

The moves make sense to Rich Galen, a GOP strategist and former Gingrich aide who is neutral in the current race. “The lack of engagement strategy has served Romney pretty well,” Galen said. “Now I think they’ve got to alter course and get him out there more.”

Numerous Romney supporters had expressed concern over reports of him dodging reporters and in-depth questioning.

Blagojevich’s Lawyer Reads Emotional Letters From Family

Attorney admits it was illegal for Blagojevich to ask for a job in exchange for his naming of a replacement for President Obama in the U.S. Senate.

BY MICHAEL TARM and DON BABWIN
Associated Press

CHICAGO • Rod Blagojevich’s attorneys admitted Tuesday for the first time that the former Illinois governor is guilty of corruption, saying at his sentencing hearing that he accepts the verdicts against him but the prison term requested by prosecutors is too harsh.

Those comments are in stark contrast to Blagojevich’s public statements, in which he adamantly maintained his innocence through two trials since his arrest three years ago.

Attorney Sheldon Sorosky told Judge James Zagel that it was illegal for Blagojevich to ask for a job for himself in exchange for his naming of a replacement for President Obama in the U.S. Senate.

“There’s no doubt this is a crime to do this in relation to the Senate seat, we accept that,” Sorosky said. “I am just saying that does not call for a 15- to 20-year jail” term.

Sorosky made the same argument when he talked about the other crimes for which the former governor was convicted — shaking down a racetrack executive and a hospital executive, as well as lying to the FBI.

But he said none of Blagojevich’s actions merit the sentence recommended by prosecutors.

Blagojevich, who sat at a defense table in a dark pinstripe suit, was expected to address Zagel on Wednesday, the second day of the hearing. Legal experts have said he needs to display some remorse.

Blagojevich’s well-known jocular persona was not on display Tuesday.

Instead, Blagojevich was somber and ill-at-ease during the proceedings, staring down at the floor, ringing his hands and pulling nervously at his fingers — pausing occasionally to sip on a plastic bottle of Cherry Coke.

All the while, federal authorities say, the couple was collecting more than $100,000 in welfare.

“It remains a mystery why Mitt Romney has done relatively few interviews,” Jennifer Rubin, a conservative blogger for The Washington Post who often praises Romney, wrote on Monday. The much-discussed Nov. 29 Fox interview, she said, might have gone better “had it been one of dozens of TV interviews he’d given during the campaign. ... He’s been the least interviewed candidate in the race.”

In his 15-minute exchange with Fox News’ Brett Baier, Romney bristled at questions about his changed views on abortion, climate change, immigration and gay rights, all of which are widely discussed in political circles.

Romney acknowledged rejecting his pro-abortion-rights stand of the 1990s, although he did not explain why. Otherwise, he told Baier, “Your list is just not accurate.” Romney suggested the questions were inspired by “Democratic ads” that la-

State: Mom Who Shot Kids, Self Denied Food Stamps

BY PAUL J. WEBER
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO • A Texas woman who for months was unable to qualify for food stamps pulled a gun in a state welfare office and staged a seven-hour standoff with police that ended with her shooting her two children before killing herself, officials said Tuesday.

The children, a 10-year-old boy and a 12-year-old girl, remained in critical condition Tuesday. The shooting took place at a Texas Department of Health and Human Services building in Laredo, where police said about 25 people were inside at the time.

Authorities identified the mother as Rachelle Grimmer, 38, and children Ramie and Timothy. Laredo police investigator Joe Baeza said Grimmer had recently moved to the border city from Zanesville, Ohio, about 30 miles east of Columbus.

Grimmer first applied for food stamps in July but was denied because she didn’t turn in enough information, Texas Department of Health and Human Services spokeswoman Stephanie Goodman said.

Goodman didn’t know what Grimmer specifically failed to provide. In addition to completing an 18-page application, families seeking state benefits also must provide documents proving their information, such as proof of employment and residency.

“We were still waiting, and if we had that, I don’t know if she would still qualify or not,” Goodman said.

Goodman said Grimmer’s last contact with the agency appeared to be a phone call in mid-November. When the family entered the Laredo office on Monday shortly before 5 p.m., Goodman said Grimmer asked to speak to a new caseworker, and not the one whom she worked with previously.

Shortly thereafter, Goodman said, Grimmer was taken to a private room to discuss her case. She said it was there the mother revealed a gun and the standoff began.

Police negotiators stayed on the phone with Grimmer throughout the evening, but she kept hanging up, Baeza said. She allegedly told negotiators about a litany of complaints against state and federal government agencies.

Despite those complaints, Baeza said it wasn’t clear what specifically triggered the standoff.

“This wasn’t like a knee-jerk reaction,” said Baeza, adding that Grimmer felt she was owed restitution of some sort.

Grimmer let a supervisor go unharmed around 7:45, but stayed inside the office with her children. After hanging up the phone around 11:45, police heard three shots, and a SWAT team entered the building. Inside, they found Grimmer’s body and her two wounded children.

The children were “very critical” and unconscious when taken from the scene, Baeza said.

Asked about his Massachusetts health initiative, which required residents to obtain medical insurance, Romney said he had answered the question “many hundred times.” He added: “This is an unusual interview.”

The questions were typical of those that many mainstream news organizations would ask, with no surprises or oddball queries. Except for Fox, which has several conservative hosts and is a favorite stop for GOP candidates, Romney rarely gives extended interviews to TV networks or national newspapers and news magazines. That seems unlikely to change soon.

But as defense attorney Aaron Goldstein began reading a letter to the judge from his older daughter, 15-year-old Amy, the former governor suddenly seemed to fight to maintain his composure, fidgeting with a pen, biting on his lip. An attorney turned to gently pat his shoulder.

Zagel also seemed more engaged in what Goldstein was saying as he described Blagojevich — the father. Blagojevich’s wife Patti also began sobbing — tears streaming down her cheeks, then dabbing her reddened face with a tissue.

Patti Blagojevich closed her eyes tight, tears still rolling down her face, when Goldstein played a tape recording of a giddy Blagojevich calling his youngest daughter and putting on a high baby-like voice, saying — “Hey Annie!”

Zagel, who has said he’ll pronounce a sentence Wednesday, said earlier that Blagojevich was clearly the ringleader of the schemes for which he was convicted, and lied about his actions on the witness stand.

less than $5,000. Silverstein received the monthly benefits of $1,272 as Shimonova’s purported landlord, the government said.

Shimonova also received benefits under the federal Temporary Assistance for Needy Families program, as well as Social Security cash reserved for people who can’t work due to age or disability and whose assets fall below a certain threshold — $3,000 for a married couple or $2,000 for a single person, the complaint said.

“Defendants have separately and, it appears, in conjunction with one another made false representations to various state and federal agencies in order to obtain federally funded benefits,” assistant U.S. attorneys Harold Malkin and Kayla Stahman wrote.

Meanwhile, they were traveling the world, according to Department of Homeland Security records.

Michael Radyshewsky, a federal welfare fraud investigator, wrote in an application to search the couple’s home that they took weeklong trips to Moscow in 2003, Dominican Republic in 2005, and Mexico and France in 2009. In 2007, they went for 12 days to Israel, and this past June they took a two-week trip to Turkey.

Silverstein said Tuesday his lawyer asked him not to comment, and his lawyer, David Allen, did not immediately return a message. The home did not appear to have a listed phone number, and Shimonova’s lawyer, Michele Shaw, did not return an email seeking comment.

Verizon Wireless Nixes Google Wallet in New Phone

NEW YORK (AP) • Verizon Wireless is blocking Google's new flagship phone from supporting Google's attempt to make the smartphone the credit card of the future.

In blocking the Google Wallet software from running on the new Samsung Galaxy Nexus, Verizon Wireless said Tuesday that it was holding off on providing a wallet application until it can offer “the best security and user experience.” Verizon and rivals AT&T Inc. and T-Mobile USA are part of a consortium called ISIS that is planning its own payment system.

Google confirmed that Verizon had asked it not to include the wallet function in the Galaxy Nexus phone, due out soon.

Republicans are moving to block a farm dust regulation that Environmental Protection Agency officials say they won't propose.

Republicans Debate Nonexistent Dust Rule

BY MARY CLARE JALONICK

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The issue may be dust in the wind, but Republicans are still moving to block it.

Environmental Protection Agency officials have said — over and over again — that they won't propose new regulations to limit dust kicked up by farm equipment. But anti-regulation sentiment is strong this year on the campaign trail, and real or not, House Republicans are planning to vote this week to prevent such regulations.

Republicans and even some Democrats have told farm-state audiences that the EPA is considering a crackdown on farms, despite the agency's public statement in October calling that a “myth.”

Supporters say they are pushing the bill this week because they want more certainty for the agriculture industry. The House GOP has pushed a host of measures aimed at weakening, delaying or scrapping environmental regulations in recent months, saying they view them as job killers.

South Dakota Rep. Kristi Noem, the bill's sponsor, says the EPA's assertions don't “hold a lot of water” for wary farmers.

“The EPA has been so aggressive on a lot of its policies, so we just want to make sure they can't take any action that can hurt the farm industry right now,” she said.

Democrats have scoffed at the bill and are calling it a waste of time.

Maryland Rep. Steny Hoyer, the No. 2 Democrat in the House, joked sarcastically on Tuesday that the bill is “critically important” since the EPA has said they have no intention of regulating farm dust.

“We are once again doing a bill that is not necessary and has no effect,” Hoyer said at a news conference at the Capitol.

In letters to two senators in October, EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson said the agency won't expand its current air quality standards to include dust created by agriculture. “We hope this action finally puts to rest the misinformation regarding dust regulation and eases the minds of farmers and ranchers across the country,” Johnson said then.

That didn't stop the opponents' message machine. Just a few weeks later, Republican presidential candidate Herman Cain, who has since suspended his campaign, ran a television ad in Iowa that quoted a farmer saying “The EPA wants to regulate dust.”

Though Republicans often blame the Democratic Obama administration for an overly aggressive EPA, the Republican Bush administration also had a hand in the matter. The Bush EPA proposed regulating rural and urban areas when it comes to “coarse particulate matter” — or soot — in the air, meaning farms could fall under tighter restrictions. Farm groups challenged that in court, and a federal appeals court ruled in February 2009 that the EPA had already provided the evidence necessary to determine farm dust “likely is not safe.”

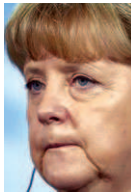

Germany, France Downplay Possible Rating Cut

BY DAVID RISING

Associated Press

BERLIN • Chancellor Angela Merkel on Tuesday downplayed Standard & Poor's warning that it might cut the credit rating of 15 eurozone countries, including Germany's, because the region's financial crisis is worsening without any imminent fix.

The timing of the warning was noteworthy. It came just hours after Merkel and French President Nicolas Sarkozy urged changes to the European Union treaty that would centralize decision-making on spending and borrowing for the 17 countries that use the euro. Tighter political and economic coordination among euro countries is seen as a precursor to further financial aid from the European Central Bank, the International Monetary Fund, or some combination.

The threat to cut Germany's prized AAA rating was particularly surprising. Its bonds are considered among the safest in the world. A downgrade threatens to complicate the eurozone's bailout mechanism, since the region's rescue fund relies on AAA-rated bonds of Germany and France to cheaply raise money.

Investors nevertheless seemed to take the S&P warning in stride on Tuesday. European stocks and bonds mostly held onto the gains they made Monday.

“What a rating agency does is the responsibility of the rating agency,” Merkel told reporters in Berlin, refusing to elaborate further.

She said, however, that she expected a meeting of European leaders later this week in Brussels would help restore markets' confidence.

“We will meet on Thursday and Friday as Europeans and take those decisions that we consider to be correct, and through them stabilize the eurozone and also regain confidence,” she said.

She and Sarkozy on Monday outlined sweeping plans to change the EU treaty in an effort to keep tighter checks on overspending nations. The proposal is set to form the basis of discussions at an EU summit in Brussels on Friday.

The financial markets of Italy and Spain rallied after Merkel and Sarkozy unveiled their proposals, suggesting investor are more confident Europe can survive the crisis.

“I have always said this is a long process and an arduous one and it will continue, but we charted the course yesterday with the French president and we will continue to stay the course,” Merkel said.

S&P said there was a 50 percent chance that the countries' ratings it put on review would be downgraded.

Civilize Christmas Drinking with Merry Cocktails

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS
A Rudolph's Nose, left, and a Chilly Pear Tree.

BY MICHELLE LOCKE
For The Associated Press

Christmas brunch can be a civilized way to celebrate the season, not as frantic as Christmas Eve or as fraught with familial tensions as Christmas Dinner.

It's also an excellent time to break out the light but festive cocktails that can elevate brunch from a cooked breakfast to a real occasion.

Jackson Cannon, owner of The Hawthorne bar in Boston, considers Christmas brunch "the perfect time for cocktails because you've survived the present-opening chaos and the kids will be entertained for hours with all their new toys, so now the attention can be turned back to important matters, like carefully crafted beverages."

He advises keeping the drinks light since there's heavy food and sweets in abundance. Champagne cocktails with a touch of cognac, calvados or American brandy can give you the flavor of those wintry spirits at an alcohol content that won't end your day too early.

One drink he likes is yule tide bulles (French for bubbles), which is one part cognac, one part Benedictine, one part fresh lemon juice, one part grenadine and one part cool filtered water.

You start this drink the night before, mixing everything together and then pouring it into a pitcher or bottle that is then refrigerated. When ready, stir the ingredients

Assembled at the newspaper office on Nov. 28, three adult judges — Karen Thompson, Melissa Sage and Maggie Watte — and three kid judges — Hunter Muir, Wyatt Whitehead and Logan Quinton — rated cookies on taste and appearance using a scale of 1 to 5.

PANTRY DINNER IN 20 MINUTES

DEB LINDSEY • THE WASHINGTON POST

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

You'll appreciate the simplicity of this pantry-driven main course.

Serve with warm garlic bread. Leftovers taste great cold.

Adapted from "Ying's Best One-Dish Meals," by Ying Chang Compestine (Sellers, 2011).

Linguine and Tuna With Spicy Orange Sauce

4 servings.

Kosher salt
8 ounces whole-wheat or regular dried linguine
Leaves from 1 bunch watercress (may substitute baby spinach)
Two 5-ounce cans oil-packed tuna, preferably hook-and-line-caught albacore
2 or 3 navel oranges
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
3/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes, plus more for optional garnish

Bring a large pot of water to a boil over high heat. Add a generous pinch of salt and the pasta; cook according to the package directions. Drain, reserving 1 cup of the cooking water. Rinse and dry the watercress; you should have at least 1 1/4 cups. Drain (and discard) the oil from the tuna.

Finely grate the zest of 1/2 to 1 orange to yield 1 1/2 to 2 teaspoons, letting it fall into a large serving bowl. Cut that orange and the other(s) in half; squeeze them to yield 3/4 cup of juice; add 1/2 cup to the bowl, along with the olive oil, vinegar, mustard and crushed red pepper flakes, whisking to combine. Add the watercress and the drained pasta, tossing to combine and coat evenly. Taste, and add some or all of the remaining orange juice, as needed; if the orange flavor is too prominent, use some of the reserved pasta cooking water to dilute the sauce.

Scatter the drained tuna over the pasta. Sprinkle with a small pinch of crushed red pepper flakes, if desired. Serve right away, family-style, at the table. vigorously for a moment and pour into Champagne flutes, filling the glass halfway. Top with Champagne, prosecco or cava and garnish with a small twist of lemon on top. This basic approach will work for a number of cocktails but with these particular ingredients you get the holiday bonus of a rich poinsettia color.

Some see breakfast as an all-day occasion.

Ronnie Cox, brand heritage director for The Glenrothes whisky company, has come up with the speyside breakfast — 1.5 ounces Glenrothes Select Reserve, half an ounce of apple brandy, 1 ounce of cream, half an ounce of maple syrup and a dash of simple syrup, to be shaken over ice, strained into a chilled glass and garnished with freshly grated cinnamon.

It works as an after-dinner dram that "brings to mind contemplation, excellent company and relaxation — perfect for the holidays," he says.

Want to try your own Christmas cocktails? Here are two seasonal recipes.

The panelists approached their task quietly at first, nibbling samples, scribbling notes on their judging sheets and not talking much among themselves. But as the evening went on, some cookies prompted conversation, like the one that featured black pepper.

"That one tastes hot," Wyatt said.

"It's gotta be pepper," Watte said.

And the judges weren't always nice.

"I'm not trying to be mean ... but I'm not sure they tried to make their cookie taste good," Hunter said about another entry.

Often, the cookies' appearance and taste didn't match up. One cookie's presentation solicited a "whoa" in unison from Hunter and Wyatt. After tasting: "Not that whoa-like," Logan said.

Other times, judges disagreed with each other. One nutty cookie impressed Thompson, but Hunter gave it just a one on taste.

"One, what?" Thompson said.

"Fine, I'll give it a two," Hunter said. But before he could change the score, Wyatt interjected.

"Don't let them convince you, Hunter!" he said.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

After testing a cookie, judge Wyatt Whitehead makes notes.

Hunter left the low score unchanged.

And some cookies were flat-out dangerous, like one incredibly hard bar.

"I've got crowns, and I was afraid I'd break my tooth," Sage said.

Two-thirds of the way through the cookie lineup, Hunter and Wyatt felt sugared-out, so their backups, Elle Whitehead and Olivia Quinton, stepped in. They took the task as seriously as the boys, carefully examining and nibbling each cookie before making their marks.

In the end, a simple, well-done cookie scored the highest.

"Some were just way too much going on," Sage said. She likes simple, clear flavors and could tell when cooks used margarine instead of butter. (Those got lower scores, she said.)

Watte was a fan of the variety of flavors, and Thompson agreed.

"It was interesting how differently people do things," Thompson said.

MIXED RESULTS ON FREEZING COCONUT MILK

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: Can you freeze canned coconut milk? We rarely use a whole can. I put the leftovers in a jar, but they've been in the refrigerator for a week.

Answer: Coconut milk adds so much flavor that many recipes don't use a whole can. Moved from the can to a glass or plastic container, the leftovers will keep in the refrigerator for about 5 days.

Freezing is worth a try rather than throwing the milk out. While the taste probably won't be affected, the texture may be. Coconut milk separates easily, even in the can. After thawing, it may resist coming back together even if you whisk it. Warming it will help, although it may curdle more easily if it is boiled.

Want a Great Brisket? You Need to Take Your Time

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL
For The Associated Press

Brisket has become an unfortunate joke — too often tough, tasteless and gray. But turning this culinary catastrophe into a winner is quite simple. When guests at my restaurant try my version of brisket, they are amazed that it is the same cut of meat that they grew up “not eating!” To make this recipe, it helps to have a smoker, but it isn’t necessary. All you need is patience (it takes a long time to cook) and to buy the right cut of meat.

And not all brisket is the same. A good brisket will have two parts — the top “moist” point (also referred to as deckle) and the bottom “lean” flat. In the meat industry, this is called the packer’s cut. The fat in the top moist point will keep the lean flat basted and juicy during the long cooking time.

When you buy a trimmed brisket (the moist point has been removed) braising is the only way to make it palatable. That and adding lots of flavorful ingredients, such as onion soup mix and stewed tomatoes.

It’s much better to go with a whole, untrimmed brisket. You may need to order it from a butcher, but it is so worth it.

When preparing brisket, I don’t trim off any of the fat cap. I roast it or smoke it whole with a simple seasoning of salt, coarsely ground black pepper and a pinch of cayenne — just enough to turn the rub a light pink. The beef itself is so full of flavor that less is more when it comes to the seasonings.

It is taking the time to cook it slowly that is the secret to making a great brisket. If a whole brisket seems too large for your family, buy the whole brisket and slice it in half vertically and freeze the other half for cooking later. This way, you will still have both parts of the brisket and the fat cap on both pieces of meat.

Better yet, cook the whole thing and freeze half of the cooked meat for sandwiches or an easy meal.

If you cook the whole brisket at a traditional roasting temperature of 325 degrees or even 300 degrees, the fat will slowly melt and render out during the long cooking time, leaving rich beefy flavor behind. What fat is left should be translucent at the center and almost black and crispy on the top.

That is the most coveted part of the brisket on the barbecue circuit, otherwise known as burnt ends. When made right, it is one of the best things I have ever tasted!

Beer and Black Pepper Holiday Brisket

The key to roasting brisket in the oven is to place the seasoned brisket on a rack set over a rimmed baking sheet. This elevates the brisket and allows the air to circulate around the meat, much like it does in a grill or a smoker. This also allows it to roast and crisp up everywhere, melting the muscle and the fat and leaving flavor and tenderness in the meat. Start to finish: 4 to 6 hours (depending on thickness), 10 minutes active. Servings: 16.

1/2 cup kosher salt
3 tablespoons coarsely ground black pepper
2 teaspoons cayenne pepper
9- to 11-pound whole beef brisket, untrimmed
Four to six 12-ounce bottles beer

Heat the oven to 325 degrees. Set a metal rack over a rimmed baking sheet.

To prepare the rub, in a small bowl mix the salt, pepper and cayenne. Sprinkle the mixture over all sides of the brisket. You may not need all of the rub mixture.

Pour 1 beer into a loaf pan and set on the oven’s bottom rack.

Place the brisket, fat side up, on the prepared rack. Roast on the oven’s center rack for 4 to 6 hours, adding an additional beer to the loaf pan every hour. Cook until the meat reaches 185 degrees at the center. Remove the brisket from the oven and let rest at least 20 minutes. Thinly slice to serve.

The brisket also can also be made the day before, then reheated on the same rack and sheet pan system, covered loosely with foil for a couple of hours at 250 degrees. Remember to let the meat rest again before slicing.

And when slicing, be aware that the grain of the brisket changes. Look at the grain of the meat and make sure to slice against it. If the slices look like a small honeycomb pattern, you are slicing it correctly. If it looks like long strings, it is incorrect.

WINNING RECIPES

Tie for Best Taste: Salted Toffee Chocolate Squares

Contestant: Melanie Halsell, 52, Twin Falls. This recipe, from Martha Stewart

Every-day Food magazine, is a favorite of Halsell's husband. "His eyes just glaze over and he goes to a different place when he eats those," she said. It was popular with the judges, too. "Great texture with great taste," Karen Thompson wrote on her scoring sheet.

- 13 graham crackers
- 1 8-ounce bag toffee bits
- 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped toasted natural almonds
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup unsalted butter
- 3/4 cup bittersweet chocolate, chopped (or semisweet chocolate chips)
- 3/4 teaspoon coarse salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet with foil. Place graham crackers in a single layer on a sheet, edges touching. Sprinkle toffee bits and almonds over graham crackers.

In a small saucepan, bring sugar and butter to a boil over medium high. Reduce heat and cook at a rapid simmer, swirling pan occasionally, until mixture is syrupy, about 2 minutes. Immediately pour over graham crackers.

Bake until sugar topping is bubbling, about 12 minutes. Remove from oven and immediately sprinkle chocolate and salt over graham crackers. With a sharp knife or pizza cutter, cut into 2-inch squares. Let cool completely on sheet on a wire rack. Store in an airtight container, up to 1 week.

Best Appearance: Corn Flake Cookies

Contestant: Vickie Stone, 52, Twin Falls. This recipe isn't what's remarkable about Stone's elaborate treats.

Stone turned these cookies into sweet Thanksgiving scenes, shaping homemade caramels and white chocolate-dipped pretzels into turkeys; Twinkies into bread stuffing; chopped sprinkles into seasoning; green frosting into lettuce; and candies into side dishes — with everything meticulously displayed on top of a corn flake cookie base. Stone got the idea from a magazine, but this was her first time executing it. The most impressive part: She did it all one-handed after injuring one hand on Thanksgiving. Whether you go all-out on decorating or make the cookies by themselves, they're sure to be a hit.

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder

- 1 1/4 cup shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups flaked or shredded coconut
- 2 cups corn flakes

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and grease cookie sheet. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and baking powder. In a separate bowl, cream together shortening, sugar and brown sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Add dry ingredients to creamed vanilla mixture and mix well. Add coconut and corn flakes and combine.

Drop by spoonfuls onto greased baking sheet, 1 1/2 inches apart. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately browned. Remove from baking sheets and cool on racks.

Runner-up for Best Appearance: Chocolate Cut-Out Sugar Cookies

Contestant: Rita Dean Seeley, 44, Filer. Seeley has been making these cookies since college, when she found the recipe in an old cookbook.

The first time she brought them home, she had decorated the chocolate cookies as Santas. "My dad cracked up because we had ethnic Santa Clauses," she said. "He thought that was pretty funny."

However you choose to decorate them, these yummy treats are sure to please.

For the cookies:

- 2/3 cup shortening
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup baking cocoa, mixed with a small amount of water to make a paste
- 3 cups flour
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

For the decorator frosting:

- 3/4 cup butter
- 4 1/2 cups powdered sugar, divided
- 3 tablespoons water
- 1 teaspoon flavored extract of choice (suggestions: vanilla, lemon, peppermint, coconut or almond)
- Food coloring

For the cookies: Cream together shortening, sugar, eggs and cocoa until light and fluffy. Sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to creamed mixture. Mix in vanilla extract until smooth. Chill dough for several hours or overnight. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. On a floured surface, roll out a softball-sized piece of dough to a 1/4-inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutters and place on a greased or parchment-lined baking sheet. Bake for 8-10 minutes and cool on a rack.

For the frosting: With an electric mixer, beat butter in a medium bowl until smooth. Add 2 cups powdered sugar. Beat at medium speed until light and fluffy. Add water and extract, then beat on low speed until well blended, scraping down side of bowl once. Beat in an additional 2 1/2 cups powdered sugar until mixture is creamy. Color with food coloring. (If desired, separate frosting and use different colors.)

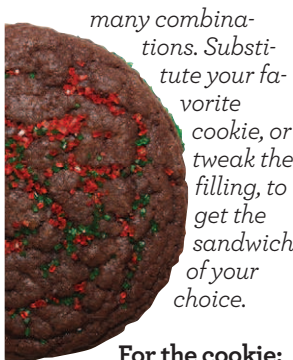

To decorate, place colored frosting in a piping bag fitted with a small writing tip or in resealable plastic freezer bags with one small corner cut off. Decorate as desired. Let cookies stand at room temperature until piping is set.

Honorable Mention: Chocolate Sandwich Cookies

Contestant: Christopher Reid, 30, Twin Falls. Reid has been making this cookie recipe for about 10 years, and it's a hit with his children. It scored high with our kid judges, too. Bonus: "It's an easy recipe to make," Reid said. Reid got the chocolate cookie recipe online, but the formula works with many combinations. Substitute your favorite cookie, or tweak the filling, to get the sandwich of your choice.

For the cookie:

- 1 cup butter, softened
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2/3 cups baking cocoa
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

For the filling:

- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup butter, softened

- 2 1/2 cups confectioners sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- Sprinkles

For the cookies: In a mixing bowl, cream together butter and sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Beat in the vanilla. In a separate bowl, combine the flour, cocoa, baking soda and salt, then gradually add to creamed mixture. Cover and refrigerate for one hour or until easy to handle.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Roll cookie dough into 1-inch balls. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheet. Bake for 8-10 minutes or until the edges are firm. Let cool completely on wire racks.

For the filling: Combine all filling ingredients. When cookies are cool, spread cream cheese frosting on half of the cookies, then top each frosted cookie with an unfrosted cookie to make a sandwich. Roll the filling's exposed edge in sprinkles.

Honorable Mention: Peanut Butter Cookie Pizza

Contestants: Mari Woody, Presley Woody, Roman Woody and Paula Woody, Twin Falls.

This is a simple, straightforward recipe that you can put together by yourself or with your family. Want to involve your kids? Have them decorate the pizza, like Roman and Presley did.

- 1 package refrigerated chocolate chip cookie dough
- 1/2 cup chocolate chips
- 1/2 cup chopped peanut butter cups, such as Reese's
- 1/2 cup candy-coated peanut butter pieces, such as Reese's Pieces

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Break up cookie dough and press evenly over the bottom of an ungreased 12-inch pizza pan. Bake cookie 12-18 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from oven and immediately sprinkle on chocolate chips. Let stand to soften chips, then spread chocolate evenly over crust. Let cool slightly, then sprinkle candies evenly over crust. Cut into wedges. Serve warm or at room temperature.

A BANANA SPLIT REIMAGINED AS A HOLIDAY COOKIE

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Taking inspiration from the traditional banana split, we created a cookie combining all the flavor elements into a rich cheesecake bar.

We started with a base of brownie and topped it with a creamy banana cheesecake layer. To finish it off, we layered fresh cut strawberries and a thin layer of pineapple jam. If you'd like, you can add a sprinkle of toasted chopped nuts to garnish. Be sure to use very ripe bananas in the cheesecake layer for the best flavor.

Banana Split Cheesecake Bars
Start to finish: 3 1/2 hours (1/2 hour active). Makes 24 bars.

For the brownie crust:
12 ounces semisweet chocolate bits
3/4 cup (1 1/2 sticks) unsalted butter
2/3 cup sugar
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
For the cheesecake layer:
Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, room temperature
3 ripe bananas

1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
Pinch of salt
3 eggs
For the topping:
1 quart strawberries, hulled and sliced
1/4 cup pineapple jam
1 tablespoon water

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Coat a 9-by-13-inch baking pan with cooking spray.

In a microwave-safe bowl, heat the chocolate bits and butter on high for 1 to 2 minutes, stirring every 20 seconds, or until melted. Set aside.

In a medium bowl, whisk together the sugar, flour and salt. Add the eggs and vanilla and whisk until smooth. Stir in the chocolate-butter mixture. Pour into the prepared pan and bake for 20 minutes. Remove the pan from the oven. If there are any bubbles in the crust, gently push them flat. Leave the oven on.

To make the cheesecake layer, in a food processor, combine the cream cheese, bananas, sugar, flour and salt. Process until completely smooth, scraping down the sides of the bowl. Add the eggs, one at a time, processing and scraping the bowl between additions. Pour the batter over the brownie crust and bake for 20 to 25 minutes, or until the center no longer jiggles. Cool, then refrigerate until completely chilled.

When the cheesecake is completely chilled, arrange the sliced strawberries over the top. In a small microwave-safe bowl, mix the pineapple jam and the 1 tablespoon of water. Microwave until bubbling. Spoon the jam over the strawberries. Allow to chill for 15 minutes for the jam to set up. Cut into squares. Store, well wrapped, in the refrigerator.

OBITUARIES

Cleona Butler Simon

Jan. 14, 1920-Dec. 3, 2011

NAMPA • Cleona Butler Simon, 91, passed away late Saturday night, Dec. 3, 2011.

Cleo was born Jan. 14, 1920, on a little farm in Gooding, Idaho, to K.T. and Thelma Butler. Due to a lack of water available for farming, her family moved to Chinook, Mont., in the winter of 1924 to raise cattle and sheep. They lived there until 1937. It was there in Chinook that Cleo and her four siblings went to a one-room school house. In 1936, one more brother was added to the family, making Cleo the oldest of the six children and a great help on the ranch. Because of the hardships of the Great Depression, the family moved back to Gooding after Cleo graduated from high school (which was a year early as she had skipped the fourth grade).

She eloped to Elko, Nev., and married Bill Knight when she was 20. Bill and Cleo had two children, Calvin and Carol, born only 17 months apart. Cleo took great pride in raising well-behaved, immaculately dressed and capable children. She did her best to pass on her love for reading and knowledge and her pursuit for talents. The little family moved to Shoshone where they lived until 1957. They then moved to Twin Falls. Cleo developed many talents throughout the years. In Twin Falls, she became involved in the Art Guild, which she loved dearly and began developing a variety of art skills. Her needlework and embroidery could not be surpassed by anyone. She had a great talent for cooking and her meals were not only well balanced and nutritious but always presented beautifully.

Cleo's marriage with Bill ended in 1967. She later married a longtime family friend, W.D. Simon. The Simons had been neighbors of the Butlers in Montana and had followed the Butlers to Gooding during the Depression. The marriage put Cleo on a wonderful ranch in Camas Prairie, just outside of Fairfield, Idaho, where Cleo lived for 27 years. After the death of W.D., Cleo moved to Boise to be close to her daughter, where she selflessly volunteered at the LDS Humanitarian Center three days a week for 10 years. Cleo had six grandchildren of which she was very proud.

Cleo was preceded in death by her husband; son, Calvin; her brothers, Larry, Milton and Dwain; and her son-in-law, Dick Hansen. She is survived by her daughter, Carol Hansen of Boise; her brother, Dale (Betty) Butler of Gooding; sister, Nayoma Bird of Rupert; her grandchildren, Marc, Jill, Kyle, Rani, Megan and Dane; and her 13 great-grandchildren.

Cleo had some very special caregivers in recent years that treated her with such love, tenderness and respect. We thank Debbie, Charmaine, Cindy and the sweet nurses and the bath aid, Candy, at Four Rivers Hospice for their help and care, and all the others who so graciously served her.

A viewing will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, at the Boise LDS 16th Ward Chapel, 6711 Northview in Boise. The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 10, at the Gooding LDS 3rd Ward Chapel, 1228 Main St. in Gooding, with a viewing at the church from 10:15 to 10:45 a.m. Saturday prior to the service. Interment will follow the service at the Elmwood Cemetery in Gooding. Arrangements are being provided by the Zeyer Funeral Chapel in Nampa (467-7300).

Betty R. Menck

Oct. 29, 1938-Nov. 28, 2011

Betty R. Menck 73, of Twin Falls, Idaho, died peacefully at her daughter's home in Kimberly on Sunday, Nov. 28, 2011. She had been fighting cancer.

Betty was born in Pocatello, Idaho, on Oct. 29, 1938, to Lawrence Nafus and Hazel Simms from Missouri. The Nafuses moved to the Twin Falls area in the late 1940s. Betty went to school at Hansen and then in Kimberly. She later graduated from cosmetology school in 1954. Betty's first husband was Rex Ledbetter of Kimberly. They had two children together, a daughter born in 1956, Terri (Schultz), and a son born in 1959, Larry, who has preceded her in death. Four years later came a divorce. Her second marriage was to Jim Elkins and a third marriage was to Rod Menck. They lived in Twin Falls for many years. Terri and Larry graduated from high school in the 1970s.

Betty loved and appreciated the outdoors and the time spent in her flower garden. Her favorite hobby was to crochet; she had many items with awesome workmanship. Betty would also make quilts from scrap materials.

When the mention of a road trip came up, she was ready in a second. She loved to travel, to see, enjoy and to explore new places. It was especially fun when the family joined in for the last 20 years; those were the best times. Betty loved her little toy poodle, "Pepper"; he went everywhere with her. Pepper was Betty's buddy.

Survived by Betty are her sister, Judi Schroeder of Boise; three nieces, Tina, Lisa and Angie; and more relatives that live in Montana. Betty has two granddaughters, Devin Johnson and Staci DeLeon; a grandson, Kycee Schultz; and four great-granddaughters, Brytnie, Kyla, Kenzie and Carmindy.

After passing, Betty's wishes were for cremation. A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, with Brett Buckley officiating. In lieu of flowers, donations will be accepted to help with funeral costs.

All services and arrangements are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those wishing to share condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Spatchcock — A Funny Word for a Fast Dinner

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

I've been spending a lot of time spatchcocking lately. Because while it sounds like something that should be X-rated, it's really just a ridiculously simple and speedy way of roasting a whole chicken. I've done it on the grill and in the oven, and every time the results have been moist and delicious.

Here's how it works. To spatchcock a chicken — or any bird — you simply cut along the center backbone, starting at the neck and right through to the rump. This cut allows you to then overturn the bird, spread it open and lay it nearly flat in the roasting pan. As a result, it cooks much faster, making it perfect for a weeknight dinner.

While this cut can be done with a good knife, the easiest and safest way to do it is with kitchen shears.

Once cut, the bird can be seasoned as you like. For this recipe, I used a simple but wonderfully aromatic combination of fresh rosemary and a quartered orange.

The recipe is written for the oven, but I've also cooked it on the grill. To do this, simply cut and season the chicken as directed. Lay it cut-side down on several layers of foil. Wedge orange quarters around it, then top with fresh rosemary. Wrap the foil tightly around it.

Set one side of your grill to high, the other to low. Set the chicken over the low side, cover the grill and cook for 30 minutes. Open the foil a bit at the top, then continue cooking, covered, for another 15 to 25 minutes, or until the meat reaches 165 degrees at the thickest part.

1 to 2 medium oranges, quartered
2 to 4 large sprigs fresh rosemary

Heat the oven to 400 degrees.

Place the chicken on the cutting board with the breast down. Use kitchen shears to carefully cut from the neck hole down the length of the backbone and out the rump. This will require a little effort, but the shears should cut through the bones without difficulty.

Spread open the chicken, exposing the cavity. Sprinkle the inside with salt and pepper. Overturn the chicken and place it cavity side down in a roasting pan just a bit larger than the chicken. Gently press the chicken to flatten. Season over and under the skin with salt and pepper.

Tuck orange quarters into the neck and rump of the chicken, as well as around the legs. Cover tightly with foil and roast for 30 minutes. Uncover and roast for another 30 minutes, or until the thickest part of the meat reads 165 degrees.

Serve the meat accompanied by the roasted orange wedges, which can be eaten as is or squeezed over the meat.

Read Between the Vines

BY DAVE MCINTYRE
The Washington Post

With the holidays approaching, it's time to recommend books to give the wine lovers on your list. Here are my top picks from among wine books released this this year. "The Drops of God 1" (Vertical, $15), by Tadashi Agi and Shu Okimoto, is the manga cartoon serial that ignited a wine revolution in Japan, freshly translated into English. The series is credited with educating a new generation of wine lovers in Japan, and wines that are mentioned in its story have sold like wildfire. The plot is appropriately melodramatic: The son of Japan's most eminent wine writer is forced by his dead father's will to compete against the country's most talented young wine critic to identify the 12 most wonderful wines ever made, plus one called "The Drops of God." The contest is nowhere near finished by the end of Volume 1, but along the way we learn how to (flamboyantly) decant old Burgundy, and we find out how fabulous vintages of first-growth Bordeaux strangely remind everyone of the same art masterpiece. It's a fun, easy read. Anyone who has traveled the Finger Lakes or just enjoyed one of its Rieslings should read Evan Dawson's "Summer in a Glass: The Coming of Age of Wine-making in the Finger Lakes" (Sterling Epicure, $20). Dawson, a TV news anchor in Rochester, N.Y., is also managing editor of New York Cork Report, an online magazine that covers the Empire State's wine industry like a blanket. Reading his book, you will see, smell and feel the drive along each of the Finger Lakes and emerge on a first-name basis with the vintners who are forging a regional identity with their wines and setting a high bar for quality all along the East Coast. Dawson captures the personalities behind labels such as Ravines, Red Newt, Anthony Road and many more, and brings the flavors of their wines alive on the page with an ease that invites the reader to participate rather than simply witness. It's a hard book to put down. I laughed out loud twice in the first five pages of Roy Cloud's memoir, "To Burgundy and Back Again: A Tale of Wine, France, and Brotherhood" (Lyons Press, $17) and regularly thereafter. Cloud is a D.C.-based importer with a strong portfolio of artisanal French wines (look for Vintage 59 on the back label). His title suggests a Tolkien-ish quest, and there is some poignancy in his tale. Yet the book is primarily Cloud's version of Kermit Lynch's "Adventures on the Wine Route" (1990), the seminal wine importer memoir, with echoes of Hemingway's hilarious road trip with Fitzgerald in "A Moveable Feast" and M.F.K. Fisher's writings on Dijon.

Done Deal: BSU to Big East

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • The Big East’s long-awaited additions are set, with more rebuilding to come.

The conference is preparing to announce the additions of Boise State and San Diego State as football-only members and Houston, Central Florida and SMU for all sports as soon as Wednesday, a person with knowledge of the situation told The Associated Press. The five schools will join in 2013.

The person spoke Tuesday on condition of anonymity because details were still being worked out with the schools and plans for an announcement were being completed.

The Big East has been trying to rebuild as a 12-school football conference since Syracuse and Pittsburgh announced they would be moving to the ACC and West Virginia announced it was leaving for the Big 12. TCU also reneged on a commitment to join the Big East and instead accepted an invite to the Big 12.

The Star-Ledger in New Jersey first reported the Big East was on the verge of making the additions.

The Big East has also been pursuing Navy and Air Force as football-only members, but the military academies are not yet ready to commit to the conference, the person said.

While the Big East is finally about to expand, it’s still very much a league in flux.

Commissioner John Marinatto has pledged to hold Syracuse, Pittsburgh and West Virginia to the league bylaws and keep the schools in the Big East for two more football seasons. Syracuse,

Crossland Leads Buhl Attack

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

BUHL • After two pedestrian efforts, Buhl finally got things settled. And it had its least experienced player to thank.

Kade Crossland scored 10 first-quarter points to get Buhl off to a running start, and the Indian defense did the rest in a 44-32 win over Canyon Ridge on Tuesday, for the home team’s first win of the season.

“We played really good defense and got on a run to start the game,” said Crossland, who netted a game-high 16 and outscored the Riverhawks (1-3) by himself until the fourth quarter. “We didn’t run very good offense against Jerome or Burley, and that was one of the things we really wanted to do tonight.”

The 6-foot-3 sophomore showed his versatility, draining a pair of 3-pointers and attacking the basket for a couple more buckets in the opening quarter, after which Buhl (1-2) led 16-2. He and Taylor Oppedyk took turns blocking Canyon Ridge shots down low as part of a miserly defensive effort that yielded just a dozen points through three quarters.

Oppedyk and Kellen Gillins each scored eight points to complement Crossland’s breakout night.

Canyon Ridge struggled in almost every facet, settling for slow-tempo looks in the first half until it broke out of its slump. That resulted in both teams combining for just seven points in the second quarter, as Buhl didn’t score until the last minute of the period, but the Riverhawks couldn’t capitalize.

By the time they did get things going offensively, it was far too late to pull off an improbable rally.

“They just came ready to play and we didn’t,” said Canyon Ridge guard

HAZELTON • They’re feeling pretty good in Gooding these days.

Last Saturday the Senator girls basketball team handed Declo – the two-time reigning Canyon Conference champ – its first conference loss in three years.

Then Tuesday, the Senators remained hot with a conference road win at Valley, 54-46.

“I was a little leery coming here thinking we might have a letdown after such a big win, but luckily we came out strong,” said Gooding coach Brittanie Toone.

Gooding (4-2 overall, 2-0 Canyon) jumped out to a double-digit lead early and shot 9-for-9 from 3-point range.

“Right when we start getting ahead, it just starts motivating and gets us going,” said Ashley Bullers, who sank 17 points, including five treys for Gooding.

“We weren’t aggressive defensively in the first half,” said Valley coach Liz Thomas. “We let them sink a couple threes, so then we had to play them up tight and they drive around us. We weren’t in sync at all. The second half we made adjustments, but there was nothing we could do, they were four feet behind the 3-point line and still draining them.”

At one point during the first half, Valley had outrebounded Gooding 20-10, but the Vikings’ effort on the glass was nullified by 10 turnovers and the Senators led 29-12 at halftime.

LILLARD IS CARBON COPY OF THE JIMMER

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY • Jimmer may have jumped to the NBA yet there’s a new NCAA scoring leader in Utah, one who can pop the 3, slash to the hoop and drop 40 on a given night.

About the only thing junior point guard Damian Lillard lacks is a catchy first name, though Weber State teammates and friends are starting to call him FlyGuy after his performances of late, including a 41-point outburst in Saturday’s double-overtime thriller. Today, Lillard will face Jimmer Fredette’s old team, BYU, for state bragging rights. It comes a year after Lillard could only watch, his right foot broken, as the Cougars won and Jimmermania exploded.

“I was really bummed at (missing) that one,” Lillard said. “That was definitely a game I had marked on my calendar, especially how Jimmer blew up. I like a challenge and I think it would have been a great game.”

Lillard clearly isn’t the same player he was before the injury. He’s much better.

Entering Wednesday’s game, he leads the nation in scoring at 28.2 points a game. Fredette finished last season with a 28.9-point scoring average in guiding the Cougars to a 32-5 mark and a trip to the NCAA round of 16.

“It is a little ironic I guess,” Weber State coach Randy Rahe said of national scoring leaders in successive years hailing from colleges in Utah. “It just happens to be happening.”

Even Lillard is quick to note it’s only been six games.

“He doesn’t picture himself as a big deal,” Rahe said. “He’s very grounded, very humble. He works harder than any kid I’ve ever been around in 22 years, but he works hard because he’s trying to win, not because he’s trying to put up numbers. It’s all about winning.”

Weber State’s Damian Lillard shoots over Morehead State’s Kenneth Faried, left, and Brandon Shingles during an NCAA basketball game in Logan, Utah, on Dec. 22, 2009. About the only thing Lillard lacks is a catchy first name though Weber State teammates and friends are starting to call him FlyGuy after his performances of late.

used its quick guards to clamp down defensively and go into attack mode in the third quarter. The result was eight Gooding turnovers in the first four minutes and a Valley 13-0 run that cut Gooding's lead to six.

"They put more pressure on us and instead of us staying calm we panicked and turned the ball over," said Toone.

But Gooding continued to shoot lights-out, with Kylie Becker and Tia Conrad each contributing 10, and the Senators adjusted defensively to stave off the rally.

"We went back into zone defense and we didn't cover every spot that we needed to," said Bullers. "We toughed it out and our zone got better as we went when we realized what we needed to do and who we needed to cover"

Pitt and the ACC have said they would like to move on as soon as possible, but are not challenging the Big East's rules.

West Virginia is. The school has sued the Big East and wants to join the Big 12 in 2012. The Big 12 needs a replacement for Missouri, which next year is headed to the Southeastern Conference, to have the 10 members it needs to meet the conditions of its television contracts.

"I think what John Marinatto just did, he should get a substantial raise for what he just accomplished," Louisville coach Rick Pitino said. "Getting Boise State. Getting Houston, SMU. I think that is as good of a job for a commissioner with his back against the wall as I've seen since I've been in athletics. The teams you lost aren't as good in football as the teams you're bringing in."

The Big East is in an even trickier situation. It has contract requirements to meet next season, as well, plus it will begin negotiating a new TV deal in 2012.

Houston, SMU and UCF play in Conference USA and the notification date for those schools to switch leagues next year has passed.

BASEBALL American League BOSTON RED SOX—Agreed to terms with LHP Andrew Miller on a one-year contract.

level Pac-10 schools and those from the Mountain West were interested

“He wanted to go where he could play, where he could win,” Rahe said. “We had recruited him the longest and he was very loyal with that. We were very fortunate he said ‘Yes’ and came here.”

Lillard will be the first to admit he's grown into the player he is now.

He weighed 165 pounds as a freshman and played at 185 last year before the injury. Now he's added another 10 pounds of muscle, as well as endurance and quickness.

The expectations continue to grow.

He scored 36 in an 87-70 loss at Saint Mary's, including a baseline drive where he hung in the air and made an up-and-under from the other side.

Then he dropped a career-high 41 Saturday against San Jose State — the second most in school history behind Stan Mayhew's 45 in 1977. Lillard buried a 3-pointer with 5.6 seconds left in regulation to tie the game, and scored eight of Weber State's nine points in the first overtime, including five in a 6-second span as he hit a floater in the lane, stole the inbounds pass, scored and was fouled.

In the second overtime, he scored nine of the Wildcats' 13 points, including his sixth 3-pointer and the game-winning 3-point play on a drive to the basket.

“Every once in a while he'll dunk the ball in traffic because he's got some explosiveness,” Rahe said.

Lillard will need to come up even bigger if the Wildcats are to knock off the Cougars in Provo, where Weber State is 0-18.

“It's huge,” Lillard said. “My sophomore year we went down there and had a chance, but they made shots and pulled out the win. They don't have Jimmer, but they still have a great team. It will be big if we can get it.”

Vandal Assistants Safe For Now

BY JOSH WRIGHT

For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Following an end-of-the-season meet-ing with his boss, Idaho football coach Robb Akey said he's clear on the best direction for the Vandals' program. And as of now, the plan does not include re-structuring his coaching staff.

“I have not have made any changes to the staff at this point in time,” Akey told The Spokesman-Review on Tuesday.

“Obviously if there was going to be a change, I wouldn't be talking about it now,” he said later. “If there are any changes, those are things we'll take care of in house. That's how I've always done things.”

Idaho wrapped up a 2-10 season and last-place finish in the WAC with a 56-3 loss at Nevada last week. After the worst defeat of the year, athletic director Rob Spear voiced his frustration during a Vandal Radio Network interview.

“I don't even know what to say about this,” Spear said. “It was an unacceptable performance from our football team.”

Asked about Spear's comments, Akey said, “The tone of it didn't come out real good, I guess. I read the paper too. But we've had (our) meeting and we talked. And I'm going to do the best things that I think will help us get better with myself and my staff. And we'll get those things taken care of.”

UI offensive coordinator Steve Axman has been most criticized among the assistants after the Vandals' offense generated a touch-down or less in seven games and finished 111th in the nation in total offense.

Yet Akey said the situation with Axman is no different than with his other coaches — he will meet one-on-one with each of them during and after recruiting visits over the next two weeks.

Regardless of potential coaching moves, the Vandals will be without receiver Preston Davis in 2012. The senior, who caught the game-winning two-point reception in the 2009 Humanitarian Bowl and missed this year with a foot injury, has decided not to return.

Although Akey said that it was Davis' decision to leave the program, the fifth-year coach didn't try to persuade him to change his mind.

“I guess I didn't argue with him,” Akey said. “Call it mutual, whatever you want. But I want guys that (want) to be here and get it done. He's a little uncertain about where his passion lies, so I think he's going to go look at other endeavors.”

Davis was lost for the year just before the Sept. 1 opener with Bowling Green. He could have used his redshirt year and returned.

Akey noted the Vandals have to find playmakers at receiver next year, and settle on a clear-cut starting quarterback. Transfer Do-minique Blackman and returner Taylor Davis — and potentially a February signee — will enter spring as top of the depth chart at QB.

“I think a lot of guys don't want to live through another year like this again,” Akey said. “Everybody needs to get a breath of fresh air. Two weeks ago I think I told you I wish I had two more games with these guys. Right now, I'm glad this season is over with the way it has gone.

“But at the same time, if spring ball would start tomorrow, I'd be a pretty happy guy.”

Today is Wednesday, Dec. 7, the 341st day of 2011. There are 24 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Dec. 7, 1941, the Imperial Japanese navy launched a surprise attack on the U.S. Navy base at Pearl Harbor in Hawaii as part of a plan to preempt any American military response to Japan's planned conquest of Southeast Asian territories; the raid, which claimed some 2,400 American lives, prompted the United States to declare war against Japan the next day.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1796, electors chose John Adams to be the second president of the United States.

In 1808, electors chose James Madison to be the fourth president of the United States.

In 1836, Martin Van Buren was elected the eighth president of the United States.

In 1909, chemist Leo H. Baekeland received a U.S. patent for Bakelite, the first synthetic plastic.

In 1911, China abolished the requirement that men wear their hair in a queue, or ponytail.

In 1946, fire broke out at the Winecoff Hotel in Atlanta; the blaze killed 119 people, including hotel founder W. Frank Winecoff.

In 1972, America's last moon mission to date was launched as Apollo 17 blasted off from Cape Canaveral.

In 1987, 43 people were killed after a gunman aboard a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner in California apparently opened fire on a fellow passenger, the pilots and himself, causing the plane to crash.

In 1993, gunman Colin Ferguson opened fire on a Long Island Rail Road commuter train, killing six people and wounding 19. (Ferguson was later sentenced to a minimum of 200 years in prison.)

Ten years ago: Taliban forces abandoned their last bastion in Afghanistan, fleeing the southern city of Kandahar. Americans held services on the 60th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack. The U.S. unemployment rate jumped to 5.7 percent in November, the highest in six years.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush gave a chilly response to the Iraq Study Group's proposals for reshaping his policy, objecting to talks with Iran and Syria, refusing to endorse a major troop withdrawal and vowing no retreat from embattled U.S. goals in the Mideast. The U.S. military transferred the first group of Guantanamo Bay detainees to a new maximum-security prison on the naval base. Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, the first woman U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, died in Bethesda, Md., at age 80.

One year ago: Elizabeth Edwards, the estranged wife of former U.S. Sen. John Edwards, died at her home in Chapel Hill, N.C., at 61 after fighting breast cancer. WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange surrendered to authorities in London, where he was jailed for nine days before being freed on bail as he fought extradition to Sweden for questioning in a rape investigation. Mike Tyson, three-division champion Julio Cesar Chavez of Mexico and Russian-born Kostya Tszyu, a junior welterweight champion, were selected for induction into the International Boxing Hall of Fame and Museum; also selected were Mexican trainer Ignacio "Nacho" Beristain, referee Joe Cortez, and "Rocky" actor and screenwriter Sylvester Stallone.

ANSWER: Having failed to double one club at your previous turn, you now have a remarkably good hand in context. The best way to get your values across is to cue-bid two clubs, then convert a two-heart response to two no-trump. That suggests invitational values with just less than a strong no-trump, with heart support and with clubs stopped. A direct jump to two no-trump would suggest less heart support.

A BRAND NEW WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband, “Mason,” 30 years ago, I was the only girl he could get. He was a great catch by my standards — and still is. But back then nobody else wanted him but me, which was fine with me. I don’t like competition.

We have had a great life together up until the last 10 years or so. Mason is aging gracefully, and there’s something about him now that every woman is suddenly interested in. They all treat him like he’s a new toy. They fawn over him and I become invisible.

We don’t get out much, and I used to think I wanted to go out more — but now I just want to stay home and hide my husband inside. The real problem is, Mason loves the attention. It could be what he always wanted. I don’t know how to handle this without getting my feelings hurt, pouting and being incredibly jealous. He gives me no reason to think he’ll be unfaithful, but I can’t help but worry. Help!

— WIFE OF A LATE BLOOMER

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR WIFE: Congratulations. You are now a member of a “club” comprised of spouses living in the shadows of actors, politicians, moguls, etc. However, your self-esteem issues could create real problems for you and your husband if you don’t learn to deal with them.

You weren’t the “only woman Mason could get” — you’re the woman Mason CHOSE to spend his life with. The sooner you accept that, the better off both of you will be. If you can’t do it on your own, counseling could help because hiding is not the answer.

DEAR ABBY: My son and daughter-in-law live like pigs. Neither one of them was raised that way. They live in a beautiful home that literally smells like a litter box. I would look the other way or not visit, but now they have four children.

Not only are my grandchildren unkempt and dirty — dirty clothes, smelly shoes, unwashed hair — but my son and his wife foist their parenting duties off on their daughter, who’s only 10. It’s HER job to get her brothers up and bathed, changed, dressed and fed so Mom and Dad can sleep late. The poor girl is exhausted all the time. She doesn’t always have the time to brush her own hair/teeth before school. She’s often made fun of. My son sees nothing wrong with these “chores,” and I’m afraid to say anything because I know my daughter-in-law will cut me off from the kids. What’s sad is my son allows it. Am I crazy? Please help.

— DESPERATE GRANDMA ON THE EAST COAST
DEAR DESPERATE GRANDMA: You’re not crazy; you’re a caring grandmother who can’t stand seeing her grandchildren neglected. Now pick up the phone and call Childhelp. The toll-free number is 800-422-4453. The advocate who answers the call can give you information about agencies that can help, and your confidentiality will be protected.

DEAR ABBY: My father-in-law drops by our house nearly every weekend. He arrives so early that we’re usually still in bed. He also rides a motorcycle that sounds like a jet engine and disturbs our neighbors.

I have asked my husband several times to talk to his dad about these early morning visits. He refuses to say anything. We have two kids who are 4 and 9 months. Sleep is something we cherish. What do I do?

— ANNOYED DAUGHTER-IN-LAW IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: Because your husband refuses to stand up and explain to his father that he needs to come at a specific time — like 11 o’clock — that task now falls to YOU. Speak up!

IF DECEMBER 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Sit back and relax. You are inspired, but could be too tired to get anything worthwhile accomplished. Until early March, your ability to make material success a priority can be undermined by your social obligations, group dynamics — or even your love life. In late February through the first week of March, your street smarts and business acumen come to a peak making that an excellent time for investment decisions or career moves. You will find that people who have your best interest at heart grow closer between late March and early April. That is a good time to make key decisions about the direction of your life or to launch significant projects.

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Getting ahead without losing your head may be your challenge today. You are willing to work hard to make your dreams come true, but may take on too much. Wishful thinking won't make it so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Hey, you, get off of my cloud. You bubble with optimism but someone might dampen your enthusiasms for a few hours today. Your honest and sincere proposals could be meet with vague opposition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can give Paul Revere a run for his money. Your revolutionary ideas can be translated into acceptable proposals using your sharp oratorical skills. Apply lightning fast brainpower to key endeavors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): When in doubt, don't. Veiled details may confuse you with a financial matter, so you may feel you are involved in a shell game. Exercising patience today could pay off tomorrow when better information arrives.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You're dreaming of a white Christmas. You may be dreaming of a lot of other things, too, but only have the time and money to accomplish a handful of ambitions. Prioritize first — and then apply energies wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are at your attractive best in casual conversations. Flirtatious banter could brighten up the day. You are a live wire who electrifies any audience. New romances could be fun but short-lived.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Frugal habits can be beneficial. If you make it a practice to never spend your money on anything without performing thorough advance research, you won't fall prey to hype and misleading advertising.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Sometimes, you don't know when to say no. When others brag about a new car or show off a new cellphone your competitive nature is triggered. You must fight the urge to outdo someone else.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obtaining only the very best will give the best satisfaction in the long run. Apply due diligence when considering a major purchase; read reviews or search for trustworthy consumer feedback.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ponder the vicissitudes of a vicious circle. The need to be industrious to please others can leave you with little time to spend with them. Strike a happy balance between two key necessities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discover the details and find out if they dovetail with your expectations. Trust that others care about you. You will find that someone is willing to go an extra mile to be sure that you benefit financially.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Exude charm and impress others with your integrity and dedication. This is a good time to discuss matters of trust or to convince others of your sincerity. The good opinions of others will pay off later.
