That Book Could Mean Better Grades

About 63 percent of Idaho third-grade students read at their grade level at a time educators say is critical to their future learning success.

Neatly marked rows of numbers fill a large whiteboard in one of the administrative offices at I.B. Perrine Elementary School. The Twin Falls school, like many, tracks how students in each grade fare on the state’s reading test. Goals for the end of the year are also listed, as well as information from past years. “We really look at how we’re doing,” Principal Bill Brulotte said. From kindergarten through third grade, elementary schools focus on teaching students how to read. From fourth grade on, students “read to learn,” Brulotte said. “It’s very important that students are reading on grade level by the end of third grade,” said Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the Idaho State Department of Education. That’s the same conclusion reached in a recent study by non-profit organization Idaho KIDS COUNT. The study states that nationwide, about 6.6 million students are at risk of not graduating from high school on time if they’re not reading at the same level as their peers by the end of the third grade.

GROUND BROKEN FOR GREEK YOGURT

Chobani has quietly started to build its new plant in Twin Falls.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

It’s pretty easy to miss the small army of construction employees quietly working along Kimberly Road in southeast Twin Falls. Over the past week, construction has begun on the new Chobani Greek yogurt production plant. The New York-based company announced almost a month ago it would build the multimillion-dollar plant, but ever since has been mum on the construction progress. Once finished, Chobani officials estimate they’ll hire 400 people to operate the facility. Contractors working on the site declined to comment Monday on the project’s development. But, city staffers said many infrastructure details are still being finalized. “The city is going to be a big part of getting Chobani operational by next

If You Go Chobani Groundbreaking

Though construction has already begun on the plant site, Chobani will host a public groundbreaking ceremony on Dec. 19. The event starts at 10 a.m. at the southwest corner of the intersection of Kimberly Road and 3300 East Road. “We’re not going to make everyone happy,” he said. The failed proposal was amended before the vote. It sought to allow the city to continue leasing individual parking spaces in city-owned lots and use private security for enforcement. The amendment came from Councilman Lance Clow. The original proposal, which came from a task force, had called for ending the leasing of individual spaces and turning all of them into free public parking. In the place of meters, the task force advised putting posted time limits in place and reacting to complaints instead of seeking out violators actively. Hall and council members David E. ## Stuck in Neutral, Parking Proposal Dies

Those parking meters won’t be leaving downtown Twin Falls after all. With a tied 3-3 vote, the Twin Falls City Council on Monday was unable to pass a proposed overhaul of the city’s downtown parking system. The proposal the council rejected would have ended the parking meter system and put time limits in place on signs instead. After the vote, Mayor Don Hall said he hopes that downtowners can come up with a parking solution and reach a consensus that will show a good direction to move in the future. “We’re not going to make everyone happy,” he said. ## Caution Ahead for Idaho’s Budget Writers

Despite projections of a state surplus to work with, area legislators say they’ll need to tread carefully through the coming session.

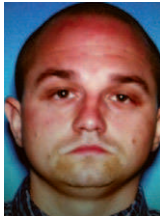

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

Look for a lot of caution in Idaho’s upcoming legislative session. Another tight budget year is expected, and there’s no guarantee that a projected $77 million state surplus will actually be left to use at the end of the fiscal year. Even if it’s realized, constraints will remain. Twelve south-central Idaho legislators visited with the Times-News on Monday about what to expect in the 2012 session, as next year’s budget will be set while Idaho seeks out signs of an economic recovery. However the coming budget ends up, it won’t be anywhere close to the state’s pre-recession spending. “I know there won’t be any additional money,” said Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome and co-chairwoman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee — the Legislature’s budgeting body. Legislators will walk a budgetary tightrope after this year’s session begins Jan. 9, working without the help of reserves that in the past were used to backfill state spending. Now, accounts like the public education stabilization fund have been drained. “There is no safety net now, so being wrong on this side has more dire consequences than it used to,” said House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley. Bedke said it’s disruptive when state agencies have to deal with budget holdbacks in the middle of the fiscal year, particularly for public schools.

Howard

Times-News
An assistant manager of Walmart’s Twin Falls location allegedly stole more than $100,000 in cash from a store safe and fled the state. According to Twin Falls police, 29-year-old Patrick Dee Howard was arrested in Florida by the Orange County Sheriff’s Department on suspicion of felony grand theft. The retailer contacted investigators on Sunday to report the alleged theft. Howard was tracked to the other side of the country, as he reportedly flew from Salt Lake City to Orlando. He is in custody of the Florida authorities and will be extradited to Idaho in the near future. At that time, he will be arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Magistrate Court.

Reading

In order to measure a student's reading ability, the state uses the Idaho Reading Indicator for students in kindergarten through third grade.

"It's meant to be a test that teachers can use in the classroom and schools can really identify those students who are struggling in reading," McGrath said. Students are required to take the test twice a year.

The state also provides money attached to its public school reading initiative and this year, about $2.3 million was distributed to school districts and public charter schools. The majority of that funding is to provide reading help to struggling students.

The Twin Falls School District has a reading program that includes about 90 minutes of instruction each day for students.

Elementary Programs Director Ted Popplewell said the research-based program allows teachers to help students with different ability levels.

"We identify problems that students might have and we're able to target specifically any of those concerns," he said.

About 60 percent of Twin Falls School District third-graders met the reading benchmark during the first IRI test of the year, meaning they're reading at grade level. About 27 percent are at the "strategic" mark — near grade level — and 14 percent are "intensive" — below grade level.

Statewide, about 63 percent of Idaho third-graders are reading at their appropriate grade level.

Laurie Hansen, an instructional coach at Perrine Elementary, works with classroom teachers to identify students who need extra help in subject areas such as reading and math.

For reading, she said students need to master word decoding before they can move on to comprehension — understanding what they're reading.

Students are expected to be able to read 54 words per minute by the end of first grade. That expectation increases to 92 in second grade and 110 in third grade.

In addition to the regular reading program, Twin Falls schools also use federal Title I funding to provide extra help to students who are at least one year behind in their reading development. The money is also used to provide a reading summer school program.

T.F. MAN CHARGED WITH COUNTERFEITING TO FUND GAMBLING TRIP

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alison.smith@magicvalley.com

A Twin Falls gambler recently received an unintended perk from his players' club card — a trip to jail.

Kristian John Herbst, 47, was arrested Nov. 22 on two counts of forgery for allegedly using two counterfeit money orders to fund a gambling trip to Jackpot, Nev.

According to police, Herbst deposited two bogus U.S. Postal Service Postal Money Orders made out to himself for $970 each into his savings account at First Federal Bank in April.

At first, Herbst tried to cash the money orders, but was denied by the bank teller because he did not have enough funds in his account to cover the $1,940 total. The teller allowed Herbst to deposit them instead.

The next day, April 13, Herbst made the first of 18 ATM withdrawals from his account. All but two were made at an ATM at Cactus Petes Resort Casino in Jackpot, Nev.

According to police, Herbst is a known player at Cactus Petes and holds a Plateau Player's Club card with the casino. Club records show that Herbst was at the casino on the dates he made the ATM withdrawals, as the club cards track players' gaming and provide activity-based perks.

First Federal learned that the money orders were counterfeit on April 21, the same day Herbst made his last withdrawal, which left his account with a negative balance of $1,944.

Numerous phone calls by the bank and police to Herbst and his mother went unanswered throughout the summer. The Twin Falls detective investigating the case said she had been unable to locate him until his arrest and believed he was homeless.

RIVERS' CONTRACT EXTENDED ONCE MORE

BY BRADLEY GUIRE
bguire@magicvalley.com

Consultant Mark Rivers has been granted another six months to seek out potential tenants for Old Towne properties in Twin Falls.

At Monday's board meeting of the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, the board voted 6-1 to extend the contract with Rivers' company, Brix & Co. of Boise, to act as a recruiter and dealmaker as the agency attempts to revitalize downtown. Larry Hall was the only dissenting voice.

Rivers updated the board on his progress but could provide few concrete details at the meeting.

"We're working through a number of initiatives," he said. "We look forward to coming back in another 60 or 90 days with some of the specific activities we're working on."

Downtown properties the URA wants to fill includes the former Banner Furniture building, the site of the former Red's Trading Post and the old Kruzer's bar. Rivers later declined to provide specifics on potential buyers or negotiations for any of the dozen or so properties in the URA's portfolio.

The contract states Brix & Co. will bill the URA at $200 per hour with a $5,000-per-month maximum. The URA originally awarded a contract to the company in January 2011.

In other business, the board also voted 6-1 to extend a contract with MSVM/Tracy Communications for one more month, as the board prepares to publicize its intent to seek other proposals. The company has performed various communications and public relations functions for the URA since Sept. 2010.

Mike Tracy reported via telephone on various projects, including writing guest columns regarding bringing the C3 call center and Chobani Greek yogurt plant to Twin Falls. Tracy also completed a promotional video.

Board member Leon Smith dissented in the vote.

The URA will meet again on Jan. 8.

Budget

By one state estimate, Idaho could have $77 million left in its coffers when the fiscal year ends June 30, but that assumes a 3 percent growth rate will hold out.

Already, the office of Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has warned that revenues are coming in lower than projected. In November, for example, state receipts were $5.4 million short of projections, and $16.2 million less than expected for the year to date, according to a memo Otter wrote to his cabinet last week.

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert and co-chairman of JFAC, said it's important to be cautious.

"I can't tell you whether we're going to have $77 million," Cameron said.

Regardless of the numbers, lawmakers will face requests from state agencies that for years now have delayed funding large capital expenses — like new com-

Other Issues to Expect in the Legislature

Health insurance exchanges: While required under the 2010 Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, states are allowed to develop their own rather than rely on the feds. This legislation, which Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, is involved in planning, is aimed at making it easier for small businesses to get insurance for their employees.

Redistricting: Legislation could shake up the redistricting process, following a year in which two commissions were needed to redraw the state's political boundaries. The shape it takes will depend on how lawsuits over this year's final plan play out. Possibilities: changing the makeup of the six-member commission so it's not evenly split between the GOP and Democrats, and changing a state law that requires major highways to connect the counties in a district.

All-terrain vehicles: Legislation may clarify whether all-terrain vehicles should be allowed in some areas when hunting seasons start.

Payday/title lenders: Idaho has no limit on the interest that payday and vehicle title lenders can charge. A possible bill could put a 36 percent interest limit in place.

Bath salts/spice: Lawmakers have found out they'll need to broaden a couple of bills passed this year that banned "spice," a synthetic compound that gives users a marijuana-like high, and a compound called "bath salts" that has narcotic effects. Manufacturers reacted to this year's narrow ban by almost immediately changing their ingredients to keep the substances legal.

Anyone looking for further details on the site will have to wait until Dec. 19, said Kelly LaCorte, a spokeswoman for Chobani. That's when the company will hold a formal groundbreaking ceremony and discuss more of the details.

In the meantime, Idaho Department of Labor officials have scheduled several rounds of interviews for Chobani management positions.

"Right now, we're interviewing for key management positions like human resources or training managers," said Brent Tolman, regional business specialist for the Idaho Department of Labor.

Tolman said he is still working with Chobani to finalize the rest of the hiring schedule. He estimated they will interview plant manager candidates in January, while production personnel will most likely interview in March.

BLM Manager’s Career Brought Him through Changing Landscape

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

Bill Baker may not have planned to work for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management for his entire career, but he’s thankful he did. Originally from Seattle, the BLM Twin Falls District manager got his first job working for the agency in 1977. He started off as a range conservationist in Elko, Nev., until family ties eventually caused him to move to Idaho. After jumping around the agency’s south-central Idaho office, he became the district manager in 2007. Now, Baker is retiring from his federal career — his last day is Dec. 31. The district is currently looking for his replacement.

Baker has overseen fire recovery projects, set up trail systems and sifted through jargon-heavy resource plans. He spoke Monday with the Times-News about his time serving the public.

Times-News: During your time working for the BLM, what have you seen change the most?
Baker: The public wasn’t engaged like they are today. We have special groups for wild horses, grazing and just about everything else. I never saw that when I first started. I don’t see it going away but I also don’t see the groups working with each other. We have a public group for everything and very few can work with each other.

Times-News: What have been some of the challenges you’ve faced while working for the BLM?
Baker: The processes always change and it’s hard to keep up on all of them. We’re receiving more scrutiny from the public but I’m worried about who is doing the scrutinizing. I have no idea what the younger generation wants to do with public land. People my age can’t dictate what the younger people want, but the average 25-year-old is just trying to set up a career. They don’t have time to get involved in a long-term environment management plan. I don’t know how to solve this but it’s an issue that’s not going away.

Times-News: What are your plans for retirement?
Baker: I don’t think I can walk away from the BLM completely. I’m planning on starting up an environmental consulting company. I like reading management plans too much to stop now.

Times-News: You like reading management plans? Are you the only one?
Baker: I do. My wife is a librarian and she hates them all, but I would rather read an EIS (environmental impact statement) than anything else. I read them because if the government workers can’t understand what’s in them, how can we expect the public to comprehend the material? We need to bring this information that’s easy for the public to read and one way to do that is read and find out how to make it better.

BLM Bans Motorized Travel through Blair Fire Area

TIMES-NEWS

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management has closed nearly 40,000 acres north of King Hill to motorized travel to allow the area to recover from damage caused by August’s Blair Fire. The closure will protect fire rehabilitation efforts and the winter habitat of mule deer and sage grouse. BLM will allow road access into the burn area until Dec.

31 on existing BLM, Walker Reservoir and Lower Hog Creek roads. Non-motorized travel will still be allowed to accommodate recreational use. The motorized closure will end on Sept. 5, 2013, though the existing roads will be accessible from June 1 to Dec. 31, 2012, and June 1, 2013 to the end of the closure. The closure is intended to slow the spread of invasive weeds and to allow natural vegetation to require from the fire. Temporary closure signs will be posted at key entry points to the burned area. Anyone violating the closure may face up to a year in prison and more than $100,000 in fines. BLM contractors, search and rescue crews, law enforcement and others with written authorization from BLM are exempt from the closure. Information: Joe Russell, 732-7200.

IDAHO WOMAN HOSPITALIZED, SAYS BOYFRIEND SET HER ON FIRE

NAMPA (AP) • Police in Nampa say a woman is being treated at a Salt Lake City hospital for burns suffered after she said her boyfriend doused her with flammable liquid and set her on fire during a domestic dispute.

The Idaho Press-Tribune reports the woman approached a police officer at 5:23 p.m. Saturday at a convenience store.

The boyfriend, 33-year-old Jesus Montes, was arrested later that evening on suspicion of felony aggravated battery and first-degree arson.

Boise Resident Dies in House Fire

BOISE (AP) • The Ada County coroner has identified a man who died in a Boise house fire as 72-year-old Lester Beekman.

Coroner Erwin Sonnenberg said in a news release Monday that Beekman died of carbon monoxide poisoning in the fire.

The Boise Fire Department responded to the fire at Beekman's small home late Sunday night. Although firefighters were able to extinguish the blaze quickly and pull Beekman from the home, they were unable to resuscitate him.

Investigators believe the fire may have started on the kitchen stove. The flames were confined mainly to the kitchen and part of the living room.

200 People Await Fallen Idaho Soldier

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Roughly 200 people gathered at the Idaho Falls Airport to honor the return of a fallen soldier.

Army Sgt. Ryan D. Sharp's body was returned to his family in a ceremonial transfer on Sunday. Family spokeswoman and Sharp's sister-in-law, Karen Sharp, said the family was impressed and overwhelmed by the outpouring of support from the community and the Army.

Sharp was serving in Afghanistan when he was injured by an improvised explosive device on Nov. 21. Doctors put him in a medical coma and transferred him to a hospital in Germany for treatment, but he did not survive his wounds. Funeral services were scheduled to begin Monday morning.

LEWISTON LAWMAKER ANNOUNCES BID FOR IDAHO SENATE IN 2012

LEWISTON (AP) • State Rep. Jeff Nasset says he'll make a run for the Idaho Senate in 2012.

The Lewiston Republican plans to seek the seat that was vacated by Sen. Joe Stegner, who resigned from the state Legislature last month so he could take a new job as the chief lobbyist for the University of Idaho.

The Lewiston Tribune reports Nasset was first elected to the Idaho House in 2010. He was not among the final three candidates that Republican leaders have recommended to serve out the remainder of Stegner's seventh term.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter is expected to name Stegner's replacement for the 2012 session by the end of the month.

Nasset says he's long been interested in filling Stegner's seat once the senator left office.

Police: Three Boise Drivers Arrested on Drug Charges

BOISE (AP) • Police report three drivers pulled over this weekend in separate instances for failing to obey traffic laws were arrested on charges of felony drug possession after methamphetamine was found in their vehicles.

Police say the first arrest Saturday happened around 1:30 p.m., when officers pulled over 47-year-old Patrick Arellano for failing to use his turn signal. Police say Arellano and his passenger, 24-year-old Josephine R. Sanchez, were arrested after drugs were found in the vehicle.

That night, police say 45-year-old Jack E. Rose was driving without a license when he failed to perform a legal stop. He was arrested after officers say they found methamphetamine in his vehicle.

Also that evening, police say 44-year-old James L. Sullivan was arrested for meth possession after falling to maintain his lane.

Give of Yourself, This Holiday and Every Day

They keep kids warm, put meals in the stomachs of the poor and ensure Christmas comes no matter your lot in life.

Over the last two weeks, the Times-News' annual "Holiday Helpers" series has introduced you to a few of the many organizations working around south-central Idaho to put food on people's plates and toys underneath their trees.

We hope their warm hearts have inspired your own. There are many needs and many ways to donate. If you missed the series in print, you'll find the stories and details of how you can help at Magicvalley.com.

But we'd encourage you not to stop there. For better or worse, Christmas has become the major season for sharing with others in need. That need doesn't end when the tree's packed up and the lights are taken down.

A measure of that need: During the 2010-11 school year, 60 percent of public school students in grades 1-12 in the Magic Valley were eligible for subsidized lunches, as detailed this weekend by reporter Julie Wooten. Concerningly, most of them — a full 48 percent of the valley's student population — were close enough to the poverty level to qualify for free lunches.

That measure says something about southern Idaho's low cost of living. But it also says a lot about the challenges many of us face here, amid the lingering recession.

The good news is, many of you don't need this editorial. Idaho is a hotbed of volunteerism when compared to much of the U.S.

For those of you who have given of your time and money throughout these years: we thank you deeply, and hope you continue your good work.

To those who haven't chipped in: there's no time like now to start. Stop in at your local food pantry and ask about their greatest need. Visit Serve.gov, the website of the Corporation for National and Community Service, to search for volunteer projects in your area. And read the weekly "Somebody Needs You" column, printed Thursdays in the Times-News, for a wide range of ways you could better our community.

Every one of you has a chance to personally improve your neighbor's life. All you've got to do is take that step. Go on! It's worth it.

Congress Needs a Debt Vote

Start voting. That's my wish for the Congress when it comes to solutions regarding our nearly $15 trillion debt.

Three major bipartisan efforts in Washington of fered long-term solutions to our astronomical indebtedness, but none resulted in up-or-down votes in Congress that would have provided a measure of accountability for the folks at home.

Simpson-Bowles was the first. After about a year of painstaking work, that bipartisan commission, made up of 18 members, could not get the requisite 14 votes to force congressional action on its plan.

The members' recommendations were a laundry list of third-rail issues: cutting the number of federal workers and the Defense Department; increasing the cost of participating in veterans' and military health care; raising the Social Security eligibility age; and reforming the tax code, including eliminating many tax credits and deductions.

They left no stone unturned. No special interest was left unscarred. Yet there was no vote, so voters lack a measuring stick to judge their members of Congress on the Simpson-Bowles proposal.

Instead, in the spring, House Republicans passed a partisan measure that would have cut federal spending by nearly $6 trillion while embracing a plan by Rep. Paul Ryan, R-Wis., to reform Medicare. The plan failed to secure a single Democratic vote.

The next major bipartisan effort was the attempt by President Obama and House Speaker John A. Boehner to work out a grand bargain on raising the debt ceiling. It was reported at the time that the two sides were on the verge of agreeing to a two-stage strategy for raising the debt limit and cutting more than $4 trillion out of the federal budget through 2021. Reportedly, that plan would have included unprecedented cuts in spending, including at the Pentagon, and significant changes to Medicare and Social Security, the biggest drivers of future borrowing — a major concession for Obama and other Democrats. But those negotiations collapsed and deteriorated into finger-pointing. Plenty of members of Congress made their feelings known about various reported deals, but there was never an actual vote on a long-term solution.

It was the subsequent increase in the debt ceiling that gave rise to the 12-member supercommittee charged with coming up with a plan to cut the deficit by $1.2 trillion over 10 years by Thanksgiving week. Its failure is supposed to trigger automatic cuts in 2013. But, as with Simpson-Bowles and the Obama-Boehner efforts, the supercommittee generated nothing for constituents to use in holding their members accountable.

After more than 19 months of legislators' work on arguably the most important issue of the day, voters in November will have a spartan record by which to assess elected officials.

Sure, we can generalize based on the parties, including the House vote in April. We can look at news releases and public comments by individual members. But we lack a means of judging who is ready to compromise in the country's best interest.

Former Sen. Alan Simpson, one of the co-chairs of Simpson-Bowles, said as much when I spoke to him last week. A bipartisan group of 11 commission members — three shy of the number needed to force a vote in Congress — supported the recommendations, he reminded me. Dozens of others, Simpson insisted, had offered public support for a debt-relief plan that included tax and entitlement reform.

But still there is no definitive action in Washington, and the potential result of this inaction, Simpson told me, continues to be frightening.

Romney Out in Front

For weeks the media has complained that Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney has been shielded from probing interviews. The criticism is valid. With the exception of a recent Bret Baier interview on Fox News Channel, Romney's staffers have tried to preserve what they believe to be his inevitable nomination by allowing other GOP candidates to stand in the spotlight, garnering the most scrutiny.

The criticism and Romney's failure to break away from the crowded Republican field has prompted him to do more interviews.

In a telephone conversation following a speech to the Republican Jewish Coalition (RJC) in Washington, I asked Romney why his candidacy has not resonated with Republican voters, spawning according to Jeremy Peters of the New York Times, "...a recurrent "anybody but Mitt" drumbeat from right-leaning pundits and media outlets..."

Romney, acknowledging he was "the conservative alternative in 2008," said, "I think people want to have a chance to have a look at the other people who are running this time and get to know them better." And while his poll numbers have not risen above 25 percent, he says he is pleased that he has "...always remained among the leading contenders."

Romney predicts he will get the delegates he needs to win the nomination.

To assuage doubts, he promised to select people (and judges) with the same philosophical qualities as conservative Justices Samuel Alito, John Roberts, Clarence Thomas and Antonin Scalia. "I want men and women who are extraordinarily bright, who have a track record that can be thoroughly examined and who share my values."

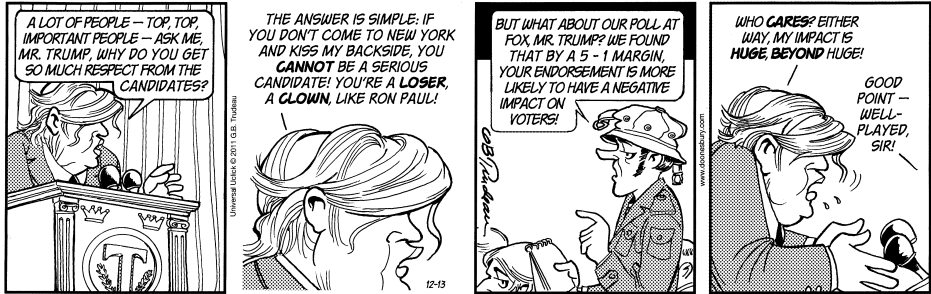

Of those values, self-reliance is one. In his speech to the RJC, Romney criticized the entitlement men-talities of the Democrats and of those who look to government, rather than themselves for sustenance. So how would he break the addiction to government assistance, especially when, according to a recent Department of Agriculture report, 15 percent of Americans receive food stamps? How would he tackle high unemployment? Tax cuts and tax increases?

"With difficulty," he acknowledges, but he'll appeal to patriotism: "When people understand what is at stake — the very nature of our country and our capacity to protect our freedom and provide prosperity for the next generation, then they will rally to the cause."

Occupy Boise Hangs on as Winter Descends on Camp

BY KATHLEEN KRELLER
The Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Jeff Shaw nestled in a pile of sleeping bags and blankets inside a tent at Occupy Boise’s encampment late Tuesday night. He drifted off to sleep, but woke to a startling thought.

“What if I freeze to death?” the 23-year-old wondered.

The lean, blond musician from Utah, who counts his guitar among his few possessions, recalled the sensation of his heart slowing down.

“It felt weird,” he said Wednesday morning, shivering as he gnawed on a bagel.

Occupy Boise formed about two months ago, setting up a tent city — which members call an “indefinite vigil” — Nov. 5.

Passersby wonder why they see so few people outside the rainbow of tents at 5th and Jefferson streets, across from the Idaho Statehouse. One reason: It’s cold. The high temperature is in the 30s, dipping into the teens at night. It was 13 degrees early Thursday.

Paul Johnson, a 30-year-old DJ, said if he doesn’t turn in by 7 or 8 p.m., he waits until sunrise. It feels much warmer in his tent after the sun comes up.

“I’m usually too cold to sleep before that,” he said. “At 2 or 3 in the morning, I’m cold to the point that getting into the sleeping bag is going to take hours to get warm.”

Some go to warmer places or off to look for jobs in the morning. Those who have jobs split their time between home and the encampment, which has two portable toilets but no showers.

Campers say the number ranges between 10 to 30, depending on the night.

Dean Gunderson, a former Ada County planner who now works as a planning consultant, said he spends about 15 hours a week at the camp. But he doesn’t sleep there.

“I slept there the first two nights and got a cold,” he said. Gunderson said he also suffers from rheumatoid arthritis.

The camp has more than 30 tents, and some “condos” made from wood pallets, cardboard, leaves and tarps.

The regular campers this week included a core group of young and middle-aged men, some of whom are homeless and looking for work. Others have jobs.

Art Stark is a 42-year-old chairlift operator just waiting for snow to get back to work. Another camper is a sex-offender released from prison in November; he said the encampment is one of the few places he’s found support.

Who’s in charge? That’s the question an 87-year-old Elmore County man who visited the camp asked the first occupier he saw on Wednesday.

The answer: No single person oversees the site.

The camp is open to the public, and people come and go as they please. But there are rules. One Boise man, who became homeless a couple of months ago after losing his job, said he was told that drinking alcohol and using drugs are strictly forbidden.

Tents are set up in the grass on three sides of the old Ada County Courthouse. Critics call the camp an eyesore, but proponents believe it’s well-maintained.

Teresa Luna, director of the state Department of Administration responsible for the old courthouse, said complaints about the camp have dropped from about three to four a day to three to five a week. State security officers visit the site every day, and there have been no problems of note.

Daniel Grad works on a computer while waiting for his socks to dry in a dedicated medical tent at the Occupy Boise encampment on the grounds of the old Ada County Courthouse in downtown Boise on Dec. 6. Passersby wonder why they see so few people outside the rainbow of tents at 5th and Jefferson streets, across from the Idaho Statehouse. One reason: It’s cold. The high temperatures are in the 30s, dipping into the teens at night.

Last Sunday night, about a dozen members stood around a kerosene heater for a General Assembly meeting in a large dark-green tent on the 6th Street side. A few candles and headlamps provided minimal light. The meeting, open to members and the public, are held several times a week. Minutes are posted at OccupyBoise.org.

Outside that tent is a large cardboard sign that reads, “Pardon our dust, we’re building a better world.”

Several people washed dishes one morning last week, pouring boiled water into large tubs. One woman knocked ice off a spatula before throwing it in to be cleaned.

Boisean Judy Taylor dropped off two coats. She has been gathering items from friends to pass along to her friends in Occupy Boise.

Health problems keep the 69-year-old retired property manager from living at the encampment.

“I have issues with our government,” Taylor said emphatically. “I don’t care who the president is. ... I just want them to come together and solve some problems.”

Among her concerns: the mountain of student debt faced by college students, and foreclosures leaving families homeless. Taylor wants the president to recognize occupiers.

“Obama has taken no position,” she said. “I think he needs to address them.”

She’s saving up so she can travel to Washington, D.C., in the spring to be part of a national Occupy demonstration.

Occupy groups make decisions by consensus. But members are empowered to take on leadership roles. That was evident one morning last week when two twenty-somethings led campers on a mission to help clean up a nearby neighborhood.

Daniel Grad walked through the encampment, calling out to zipped-up tents: “All interested hands on deck.”

The 24-year-old from Cascade said he is a “traditionally conservative person” who favors smaller government. He was previously involved with the tea party.

“It’s been an interesting time of discovery down here,” he said. “I’ve never been around people who haven’t had homes.”

While Grad grabbed markers and cardboard to make protest signs, 21-year-old Brian Gabbittas rallied the campers with a short speech about the damage of foreclosures on families and neighborhoods.

Full of nervous energy, Gabbittas puffed on a cigarette while he spoke. When not at the camp, he works two jobs, including as a restaurant server. He’s been fighting a sinus infection, a cold and bronchitis for weeks; he doesn’t have health insurance.

The group of about 10 occupiers looked cold, groggy and a bit disheveled as they marched off to foreclosed homes in the North End with rakes and bags for leaves.

Gabbittas said Occupy Boise would eventually move into the homes. They plan to turn them over to homeless families or make them community centers.

The group spent a couple of hours raking leaves at three homes Tuesday. Glenda Robertson, who lives on 7th Street, was delighted.

“I think it’s really nice because they obviously care more about the North End than owners of some of these properties,” she said.

She hadn’t gone down to see the encampment, nor had she given the movement much thought.

“I don’t know how their sitting-in down there is going to affect the banks,” she said.

Occupy Boise trains some members to be “legal observers” who keep a watchful eye over the camp. They videotape any problems. They work in shifts. Despite that, some electronics were stolen early on, including a cellphone and a portable stereo.

In the past couple of weeks, police have been driving by the camp late at night, using a spotlight to observe goings-on. Some of the campers consider it harassment. Early Tuesday, occupiers saw something even stranger.

Johnson, the DJ, was serving as legal observer on the midnight-to-4 a.m. shift. He was warming himself at the wood-burning stove near the kitchen at 3:27 a.m. when a camper ran up to say he saw a man holding what appeared to be an infrared camera.

“We witnessed him sweeping tents and looking into the monitor,” Johnson said. When Johnson approached, the man stopped and got into Boise police car No. 121.

“I definitely had an unsettled feeling about it,” he said.

Occupiers suspected that police are trying to get a “body count” at the camp or catch illegal activity.

Boise police spokeswoman Lynn Hightower didn’t address the complaint about harassment. She did say officers are patrolling for the safety of people at the camp and surrounding area.

“It may compromise public and officer safety to elaborate on specific officer actions,” she said.

IDAHO LAWMAKER WINS DELAY IN SUIT OVER UNPAID TAXES

BOISE (AP) • A tax-protesting state lawmaker in northern Idaho now has until Jan. 5 to respond to a federal lawsuit that aims to foreclose on his log home in Athol to satisfy unpaid taxes and penalties totaling nearly $550,000.

The Spokesman-Review reports Republican state Rep. Phil Hart sought and received a 30-day delay in filing a legal response to the lawsuit so that he could retain a new attorney.

Hart has been fighting federal and state governments for years over his income taxes, which he argues are unconstitutional.

The U.S. Department of Justice alleges in a lawsuit filed earlier this year that Hart fraudulently transferred the title to his home in northern Idaho to keep the federal government from seizing it to help pay his tax bill.

N. IDAHO MAN TO BE RESENTENCED IN 2008 MURDER

SANDPOINT (AP) • The re-sentencing of a northern Idaho man convicted of second-degree murder has been postponed after his public defender withdrew from the case.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports James Matthew Anderson will be sentenced Dec. 19 in the shooting death of 30-year-old Elvin "Eli" Holt at a Sagle campground in 2008. A judge initially ordered Anderson to serve between 10 to 20 years, but he appealed the sentence.

The Idaho Court of Appeals ruled in August that District Judge Steve Verby had misunderstood the sentencing guidelines.

Anderson had been expected to be re-sentenced last Monday, but the hearing was delayed after his public defender stepped down because of Anderson's claims during previous court proceedings that he had received ineffective legal representation.

Anderson was appointed a new attorney.

Anonymous Benefactor Antes Up $100,000 for N. Idaho Rink

MOSCOW (AP) • The manager of the Palouse Ice Rink says an anonymous benefactor has pledged to donate $100,000 to expand the rink, if county officials agree to give the rink a 50-year lease to use Latah County Fairgrounds land.

The Lewiston Tribune reports that manager Bryan Hawn said legal counsel for the Latah County Commission is reviewing the proposal and it will be discussed by the Latah County Fair Board as well.

The three-quarter-size sheet rink opened in 2001. Hawn said expanding the rink to full size is expected to cost about $3 million. He hopes to bank about $1.5 million to cover starting costs before breaking ground, possibly as early as spring 2013.

CURIOUS ‘VOCAL FRY’ CREEPING INTO U.S. SPEECH

BY MARISSA FESSENDEN
ScienceNOW

A curious vocal pattern has crept into the speech of young adult women who speak American English: low, creaky vibrations, also called vocal fry. Pop singers, such as Britney Spears, slip vocal fry into their music as a way to reach low notes and add style. Now, a new study of young women in New York state shows that the same guttural vibration — once considered a speech disorder — has become a language fad.

Vocal fry, or glottalization, is a low, staccato vibration during speech, produced by a slow fluttering of the vocal cords. Since the 1960s, vocal fry has been recognized as the lowest of the three vocal registers, which also include falsetto and modal — the usual speaking register. Speakers creak differently according to their gender, although whether it is more common in males or females varies among languages. In American English, anecdotal reports suggest that the behavior is much more common in women. (In British English, the pattern is the opposite.) Historically, continual use of vocal fry was classified as part of a voice disorder that was believed to lead to vocal cord damage. However, in recent years, researchers have noted occasional use of the creak in speakers with normal voice quality.

In the new study, scientists at Long Island University investigated the prevalence of vocal fry in college-age women. The team recorded sentences read by 34 female speakers. Two speech-language pathologists trained to identify voice disorders evaluated the speech samples. They marked the presence or absence of vocal fry by listening to each speaker's pitch and two qualities called jitter and shimmer; variation in pitch and volume, respectively.

More than two-thirds of the research subjects used vocal fry during their readings, the researchers will report in a future issue of the Journal of Voice. The distinct vibrations weren't continuous. Rather, they arose most often at the ends of sentences. The patterns were "normal" variations, says co-author and speech scientist Nassima Abdelli-Beruh of LIU, because the women rarely slipped into vocal fry during sustained vowel tests (prolonged holding of vowels such as 'aaa' and 'ooo'); a classic way to assess voice quality and probe for possible disorders. Abdelli-Beruh says the creak is unlikely to damage vocal cords because speakers didn't creak continuously or even at the end of every sentence.

Obama Calls on Iran to Give Back Downed U.S. Drone

The Obama administration said Monday it has delivered a formal request to Iran for the return of a U.S. surveillance drone captured by Iranian armed forces, but is not hopeful that Iran will comply. President Barack Obama said that the U.S. wants the top-secret aircraft back. "We have asked for it back. We'll see how the Iranians respond," Obama said during a White House news conference with Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki on Monday. He wouldn't comment on what the Iranians might learn from studying the downed aircraft. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said she was not optimistic about getting the drone back because of recent Iranian behavior that she said indicated "that the path that Iran seems to be going down is a dangerous one for themselves and the region." — The Associated Press

U.S. Supreme Court to Review Arizona Immigration Law

BY MARK SHERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Supreme Court stepped into the fight Monday over a tough Arizona law that requires local police to help enforce federal immigration laws — pushing the court deeper into hot, partisan issues of the 2012 election campaign.

The court's election-year docket now contains three politically charged disputes, including President Barack Obama's health care overhaul and Texas redistricting.

The debate over immigration already is shaping presidential politics, and now the court is undertaking a review of an Arizona law that has spawned a host of copycat state laws targeting illegal immigrants.

The court will review a federal appeals court ruling that blocked several provisions in the Arizona law. One of those requires that police, while enforcing other laws, question a person's immigration status if officers suspect he is in the country illegally.

The case is the court's biggest foray into immigration law in decades, said Temple University law professor Peter Spiro, an expert in that area.

The Obama administration challenged the Arizona law by arguing that regulating immigration is the job of the federal government, not states. Similar laws in Alabama, South Carolina and Utah also are facing administration lawsuits. Private groups are suing over immigration measures adopted in Georgia and Indiana.

"This case is not just about Arizona. It's about every state grappling with the costs of illegal immigration," Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer, a Republican, said following the court's announcement Monday.

Fifty-nine Republicans in Congress, including presidential candidate Michele Bachmann, filed a brief with the court backing the Arizona law.

Arguments probably will take place in late April, which would give the court roughly two months to decide the case.

Justice Elena Kagan will not take part in the case, presumably because of her work on the issue when she served in the Justice Department in the Obama administration.

The case is Arizona v. U.S., 11-182.

SAFETY VIOLATIONS FOUND AT HEAD START CENTERS

A machete found near a playground and failing to do criminal background checks of employees are among some of the breaches of safety.

BY KIMBERLY HEFLING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A machete knife left near an outdoor play area. Household chemicals accessible to preschoolers. Widespread failures to conduct criminal background checks of employees.

These violations and others were found at Head Start centers across the country, according to a report released Tuesday by the Inspector General of the Department of Health and Human Services. Head Start is the federal program with roots in President Lyndon Johnson's War on Poverty that today provides early education services to nearly 1 million poor kids nationwide. The federal government gives grant dollars to public, non-profit and for-profit programs to provide the services.

Other safety violations found at centers: A screw protruding from a bookcase at child-height level in Longmont, Colo.; a children's bathroom in Edna, Texas, without lighting for months; and expired infant formula found in the refrigerator in the District of Columbia.

The IG's review was compiled using 24 audits of Head Start grantees running 175 facilities in eight states from May 2009 to October 2010. While the review was of just a fraction of the approximately 1,600 Head Start grantees, it still raises red flags about the safety of children in such programs.

All told, according to the review:

- Twenty-one of 24 grantees did not comply fully with federal Head Start or state requirements to conduct criminal and other background checks;
- Nearly 90 percent of the facilities had toxic chemicals such as markers labeled "keep out of reach of children" and cleaning supplies accessible to children;
- More than 70 percent had open or broken gates leading to parking lots, streets or unsupervised areas and inadequate or broken fences;
- More than half had playground equipment that was not in good repair with problems such as protruding bolts, broken climbing apparatuses and elevated platforms without protective guards.

The IG recommended that the Administration for Families and Children, which falls under HHS and oversees Head Start, conduct onsite monitoring to ensure that centers comply with health and safety regulations. It also called for the agency to determine whether it should seek legislation to require periodic background checks for Head Start employees and amend current policies to require that prospective or current employees be disqualified or terminated if they've been convicted of sexual abuse of a child or other forms of child abuse.

In response, the Administration for Families and Children said it "takes health and safety regulations very seriously and regularly monitors" under safety regulations.

Of the 24 grantees audited, three have since had Head Start dollars revoked and the others corrected the deficiencies, the Administration for Families and Children said. It also said it is reviewing the suggested policy changes.

WAR NEARLY OVER, OBAMA SAYS IRAQ WON'T STAND ALONE

BY BEN FELLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Eager to put the long and divisive Iraq war to rest, President Barack Obama declared Monday "those days are over" with the last American troops heading home, but he pledged the U.S. would remain committed to the fledgling government they leave behind. He and Iraq's leader somberly saluted America's war dead at Arlington National Cemetery.

"A war is ending," the president said, standing with Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki at the White House. U.S. troops are leaving "with honor and with their heads held high," said Obama, who strongly opposed the war as a candidate for the White House.

The last American troops are to be out of Iraq by Dec. 31. Thousands of others are still in Afghanistan.

Carole Rogers

Dec. 3, 1929-Dec. 11, 2011

BURLEY • Carole Elvira Rasmussen Rogers, 82, was born Dec. 3, 1929, in Malta, Idaho, to Knud Julius “Cude” and Eleanor Lloyd Rasmussen. She passed away peacefully Sunday, Dec. 11, 2011, at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert.

Carole started her mortal life in Malta, then, as a child, her family moved to the Jackson Area near Rupert. There, she learned many lessons that formed her love of family, friends and compassionate service to others. She and her family made the best of whatever they had during the post-Depression years and established a home filled with love and self-reliance in spite of the many hardships of that era.

Carole attended schools in Malta and Rupert, graduating from Rupert High School in 1948. During her high school years, she and Clyde Rogers became sweethearts. After they graduated, they married in the Methodist Church on July 30, 1948. Clyde began farming in the Rupert area and Carole became a farmer’s wife. In 1959, Clyde and Carole moved to a farm north of Paul. A nearly new home, with new neighbors, and the last of their six children on the way, Carole noted in her journal that if she had one year to repeat in her life, that would be the one! Carole was a fantastic mother. She was a wonderful cook and maintained an immaculately clean, yet comfortable home. Anyone that visited was always offered food at the kitchen table. Her home was a welcoming place — always.

She enjoyed serving others. She was creative and wrote poems — many of them for family members. She produced magnificent scrapbooks for her children with a typewriter and various photographs, materials and hand-created artwork. Carole loved caring for her children but especially enjoyed having her grandchildren around. When they visited, she often had some sort of handicraft stashed away to teach and entertain them and loved helping them create something special to take home. Christmas was a special time of year for her. She would work all year, creating special hand-crafted items for her children and grandchildren and loved the anticipation of giving unique and meaningful gifts to her family. Her family was her pride and joy.

Clyde and Carole were sealed to each other and their children in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple on Feb. 16, 1960. Carole loved the gospel of Jesus Christ and followed Him and His teachings. She knew our Heavenly Father well. Clyde and Carole were stalwart members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and the Paul 2nd Ward. She faithfully served in various callings in Relief Society, Young Women, Sunday school and Primary. She had a strong testimony of the Savior’s teachings and expressed it through her day-to-day actions. She was a positive example to others and emulated Christ’s teachings by the way she lived. Carole had a contagious smile and a pleasant personality that could bring joy and happiness to anyone that was near her.

In 1990, Clyde and Carole built a family cabin in Pine, Idaho. This was a special time for her to have her children and grandchildren together as the logs and beams were stacked and joined. Its symbolic nature is evidence of how she felt about family. We all hold each other together. A legacy that still remains.

Carole is survived by her children, Steven M. (Linda) Rogers of Rio Rancho, N.M., Barry C. Rogers of McCall, Jana K. (Tim) Darrington of Declo, Joel S. (Geri) Rogers of Rupert, Bradley J. (Debbie) Rogers of Paul and Kevin M. (Shirlene) Rogers of Jerome; 20 grandchildren; 31 great-grandchildren; her brothers, Blaine J. (Lois) Rasmussen of Rupert and Lloyd “Schooney” (Norma) Rasmussen of Kimberly; her sister, Roberta (Ernest) Van Every of Rupert; and her sister-in-law, Maxine Rasmussen of Rupert. She was preceded in death by her parents; a grandson, James Marcus Rogers; and two brothers, Melvin Lamar “Moon” Rasmussen and Robert Rasmussen.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Dec. 16, at the Paul LDS Stake Center, 424 W. Ellis St. in Paul, with Bishop Shannon Brown officiating. Burial will be in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 15, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Friday at the church.

The family suggests memorials in Carole’s memory be directed to the Minidoka Memorial Health Care Foundation in care of Rasmussen Funeral Home in Burley, and would like to express sincere gratitude to the staff of Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert for the wonderful care and compassion they so graciously provided to Carole.

Clifton E. Haak

Oct. 31, 1920-Dec. 11, 2011

FILER • Clifton E. Haak, 91, of Filer, died Sunday, Dec. 11, 2011, at Alpine Manor in Twin Falls.

Clifton Haak was born Oct. 31, 1920, to Edward and Grace Haak in Shoshone, Idaho. As a boy living next to the Little Wood River, he made his own fun. He swam, fished, trapped, skated and played “skinny on the ice” throughout those early years.

After graduating from high school, Clifton obtained a teaching certificate at Albion Normal College in 1939. He then went to Boise to take a welding class, which landed him in Tacoma, Wash., to work in defense.

Clifton enlisted in the Navy and served 4½ years; part of that time, he was stationed in Pearl Harbor at Sub Base 128. Upon returning home, he attended the Body and Fender school in Pocatello, Idaho under the GI Bill. This landed him a job at Bob Resse in Twin Falls, Idaho, where he worked for 25 years. During this time, he met Betty and later they married and had three children, Price, Shelly and Cindy. Clifton later opened his own auto body shop and worked 35 more years at his Filer location.

Clifton, being an accomplished musician, has been entertaining the people of the Magic Valley area for many years. He played various honky-tonks, organizations, dance gatherings and nursing homes. His band will always be remembered as the “Last Resorts.” He had many wonderful years enjoying his work, music, gardening, fishing, camping and spending time with family and friends.

He is survived by his children, Price Tyree of Filer and Cindy (Terry) Behrens of Twin Falls. He had five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. He is preceded in death by his parents; his wives, Nelly and Betty; and his sister, Gloria Kempton.

There will be a graveside service held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 14, at the Shoshone Cemetery in Shoshone. A musical celebration of Cliff’s life will be held at 11:30 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 15, at the West End Senior Center in Buhl.

Arrangements are under the direction of Parke’s Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those wishing to share condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Betty Lou Wartluft

Aug. 5, 1944-Dec. 8, 2011

GOODING • Betty Lou Wartluft, 67, a resident of Gooding, passed away Thursday, Dec. 8, 2011, at her home in Gooding.

Betty was born in Reading, Pa., on Aug. 5, 1944. She was preceded in death by her parents, Paul and Beulah Wartluft. Betty has six siblings, Irvin Wartluft of Gooding, Idaho, Richard (Beverly) Wartluft of Eldred, Pa., Harold (Lois) Wartluft of Gooding, Idaho, Shirley (Al) Coleman of Livingston, Texas, Mary Wiemann, of Mohrsville, Pa., and Sandra (Eugene) Hartman of Ovid, N.J.

Betty was raised in the farm country of Pennsylvania. When she was 15 years old, she married and had two daughters, Wendy Oats of Port Orchard, Wash., and Cindy (Randy) Kerr of Twin Falls, Idaho. Betty was later divorced and remarried at age 19 and had her son, Dale (JoAnn) Tulley of New Jersey. In 1987, Betty adopted her granddaughter, Amber (Ashley Jay) Vergel-Clure of Williston, N.D.

At age 16, Betty started her lifelong career in sewing in the factories of Lebanon, Pa., which gave her ample opportunities to qualify for sewing positions when she moved to New Jersey in 1965. During her stay in New Jersey, Betty returned to school and earned her GED. Betty moved to Gooding, Idaho, in 1979. She worked at the Green Acres Care Center with handicapped children for two years. In 1982, Betty returned to her sewing business, opening a shop in her home under the name of “Bette’s Creations.” Once again, Betty decided to return to school. She earned her associate’s degree in liberal arts from the College of Southern Idaho in 2004. Betty was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Among Betty’s other accomplishments: She earned her 16-year pin from the Gooding Lions Club, where she served in various offices.

She served on the Boy Scout Board of Review for Troop 33 for a number of years. In 2006, she received the “Lion of the Year” Award and, in 2010, she was awarded the Melvin Jones Award, which is the highest award in Lionism. Betty served as a lay Eucharistic minister in the Gooding Episcopal Church for a period of time. She was also involved with the prison ministry at the Gooding County Jail and provided ministerial services at Green Acres Care Center in Gooding.

Betty spent the last eight years traveling to Las Vegas, Nev.; Canada, South Dakota, Mexico and Hawaii. Also, she took a train ride from Elko, Nev., to Reading, Pa., and numerous other driving trips with her companion and friend, Valdo Gray.

Betty’s wishes were to thank the many customers she has had in Hailey, Gooding, Hagerman, etc., who were not only customers but friends. Her customers from Blaine County had a special name for her. They called her “The Fabric Whisperer.” Betty was truly gifted as a seamstress. There was never a job she couldn’t handle in upholstery, making slip covers, tailoring, etc.

Betty and her family would like to give a special “thank you” to the staff at Alliance Hospice (Jeannie, Nicke and Chaplain Mike) for all their care and support during her illness.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Gooding Lions Club, Helping Hearts and Hands of Gooding or to Alliance Hospice of Twin Falls.

A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Dec. 16, at Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Gooding Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

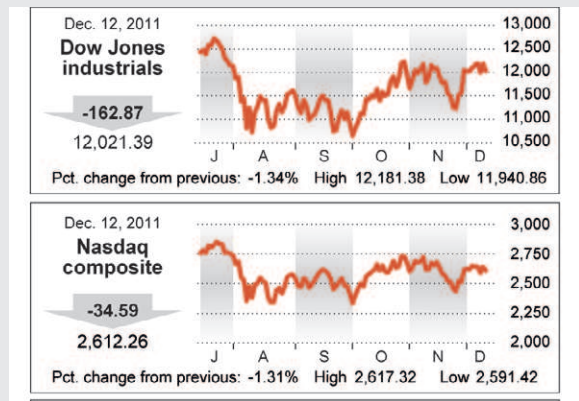

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared on Monday

NEW YORK (AP) • The Dow Jones industrial average fell 1.3 percent Monday after two big rating agencies criticized a deal last week between European leaders that is aimed at easing the region's debt crisis.

Fitch Ratings and Moody's Investors Service said the deal to bind Europe's budgets more closely will make little difference. Moody's said it will reconsider the ratings of all European nations in the first quarter of 2012.

The Dow closed down 162.87 points, or 1.3 percent, at 12,021.39.

The S&P 500 index lost 18.72, or 1.5 percent, to close at 1,236.47.

Ways to Trim Your Taxes

BY KAREN HUBE Special to The Washington Post

A number of smart moves can save a bundle in taxes, but you'll have to act quickly. Just about all of these maneuvers come with a year-end deadline.

1. Time your income and deductions.
2. Calculate your AMT.
3. Give wisely: Before you cut a year-end check to your favorite charity, consider giving shares of appreciated stock.
4. Lock in losses.
5. Pay yourself: Savings in 401(k)s must be socked

- away before Dec. 31 to be counted as 2011 contributions.
6. Manage your FSA.
7. Time your 2011 RMD.
8. Direct your IRA withdrawal to charity.
9. Consider a sales tax deduction.
10. Install energy-saving appliances.

Euro Pact Faces UK Hurdle, Ebbing Market Faith

LONDON • Doubts rebounded Monday over Europe's ability to solve its debt crisis and rescue the imperiled euro, as investors worried that plans for closer fiscal unity will bring little immediate relief and exposed the continent's deep political divisions.

British Prime Minister David Cameron was the only leader among the European Union's 27 members to refuse last week to join a plan under which nations submit their budgets for central EU review and limit the deficits they can run.

As the rift between Britain, which has its own currency, and the 17 nations that use the euro created uncertainty about the deal's implementation, ratings agencies Moody's and Fitch warned the plan did not even properly address the problem of lowering existing European debt.

Stocks and the euro fell sharply Monday — to $1.3183 from $1.3370 — as market confidence in the plan and Europe's ability to end the crisis ebbed. In Italy, one of the continent's most troubled economies, workers angry about government austerity reforms went on strike and held nationwide rallies.

Germany's DAX ended the day 3.4 percent lower, Milan's stock index was down 2 percent and Italy's borrowing rates rose, indicating growing fears about its financial future. Italy's 10-year bond yield rose 0.52 of a percentage point to 6.76 percent, closing in on the 7 percent level that forced fellow eurozone nations Greece, Ireland and Portugal to take bailouts.

Cameron defended his actions in the House of Commons on Monday, telling U.K. lawmakers the fiscal pact that envisions using the EU's executive arm as a budget watchdog could face even more political hurdles. The British leader was greeted with cheers from his own euroskeptical Conservatives but jeers from opposition lawmakers.

“The choice was a treaty without proper safeguards or no treaty and the right answer was no treaty. It was not an easy thing to do, but it was the right thing to do.”

British Prime Minister David Cameron

“The choice was a treaty without proper safeguards or no treaty and the right answer was no treaty. It was not an easy thing to do, but it was the right thing to do,” Cameron said.

Strikes idled some Fiat auto plants in Italy and forced Milan's famed La Scala opera house to cancel a performance. It was the first of days of union walkouts and demonstrations against spending cuts and tax hikes that Italy's new technocratic government is seeking to restore investor confidence.

Tattoo Removal Industry Grows

BY EMILY WAX

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • She arrives quietly, coming in from the rain after work. She lies down on her stomach atop a sleek, white reclining chair. She lifts her shirt and tugs down her jeans slightly.

“I was only 18. It was a homemade tattoo done at a party,” says Lizeth Pleitez, 30, who quickly dries her eyes.

According to the Pew Research Center, more than 40 percent of Americans between the ages of 26 and 40 have at least one tattoo. Getting a tattoo, once the province of sailors rather than suburbanites, is so mainstream that tats are inked at the mall and seen on everyone from Middle American mothers to Hollywood starlets.

Perhaps not surprisingly, a parallel trend is emerging: tattoo removal, with dozens of businesses and training schools opening across the country. Some are headed by entrepreneurs such as Ryan Lambert, who has a Harvard degree and launched a tattoo-removal training school at New Looks Laser College in Houston. He also manufactures tattoo-removal lasers.

In 2003, Saddam Hussein was captured by U.S. forces while hiding in a hole under a farmhouse in Adwar, Iraq, near his hometown of Tikrit.

Ten years ago: The Pentagon publicly released a captured videotape of Osama bin Laden in which the al-Qaida leader said the deaths and destruction achieved by the September 11 attacks exceeded his "most optimistic" expectations. Five suspected Islamic militants killed nine people in an attack on India's parliament before being killed themselves. President George W. Bush served formal notice that the United States was withdrawing from the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty with Russia.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush held high-level talks at the Pentagon, after which he said he would "not be rushed" into a decision on a strategy change for Iraq. Sen. Tim Johnson, D-S.D., underwent emergency surgery after suffering bleeding in his brain. (Johnson later resumed his Senate duties.) Lamar Hunt, 74, the owner of football's Kansas City Chiefs who coined the term "Super Bowl," died in Dallas.

One year ago: President Barack Obama's historic health care overhaul hit its first major legal roadblock as a federal judge in Richmond, Va., declared that the law's central requirement that nearly all Americans carry insurance was unconstitutional. Veteran U.S. diplomat Richard Holbrooke, 69, died in Washington after surgery to repair a tear in his aorta. A South Korean fishing boat sank near Antarctica, leaving 22 of the 42 crew members dead or missing.

DEAR ABBY: I am 35 and my husband is 45. When we met, he weighed 375 pounds. He has now hit the 600-pound mark. I have five kids, a full-time job and go to school two nights a week. He talks about losing weight, but it's easier to talk about than actually do. He was in a car accident that left him with back problems, and on top of that he has bad knees from sports.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

The future doesn't look promising. I know that one day he'll be confined to bed — I predict in the very near future — and I will have to drop everything to take care of him. He is already dependent on me and the older kids to take care of him because he's in pain all the time and can't physically do anything. He doesn't have insurance.

If I didn't have a family to take care of, it might not be as big of an issue. This is very depressing. I am thinking of seeing a counselor. He has already told me that he won't go. Your input would be greatly appreciated.

— WIFE OF A BIG MAN

DEAR WIFE: Talk to a counselor right away. Unless you do something now, you will be unemployed and homebound with a sick husband and five dependent children. Who enabled your helpless husband to gain all the weight?

His life depends upon him being on a strict, sensible nutrition regimen. Because he has no insurance, a self-help group could be a lifesaver. Overeaters Anonymous may be able to give you some guidance and offer him emotional support. There are chapters nationwide, as near as your phone book, or contact them online at www.oa.org.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Frank," and I have been together for four months. I'm 21 and he's 31. He was married before. This is my first serious relationship.

Sometimes we get into heated arguments because he's ready to "plan for the future" while I just want to go with the flow. He thinks I don't take our relationship seriously because I'm not ready to move in with him, get married or start a family yet. When I explain that I would love for all of that to happen — eventually — Frank says it seems more like a friendship than a relationship. That really hurts me, because I'm trying.

These arguments over my lack of "seriousness" are killing me. They started two months into the relationship. I feel pressured. If the pressure continues, I'm feeling like we may not be able to be together. I need your advice, please.

— DOING THE BEST I CAN IN BOSTON

DEAR DOING THE BEST YOU CAN: You are a smart young woman with excellent instincts. Trust them. You feel pressured because you ARE being pressured. In fact, you're being given the full-court press.

Pushing for a quick involvement/commitment is one of the warning signs of an abuser. Ask yourself, What's the rush? Find out the reasons why his marriage failed. Stand your ground and don't allow yourself to be pushed into anything you are not completely comfortable with. And if it persists, end the relationship.

DEAR ABBY: I'm seeing a counselor for my anxiety, and it bothers me that he yawns throughout each consultation. He sometimes apologizes for it, though. Is this inappropriate behavior for a therapist?

— MIFFED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR MIFFED: Unless your counselor is starved for oxygen or burning the candle at both ends, yes, it is. And because it is distracting to you during your sessions, tell him if it doesn't stop, you will have to find another counselor.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Gentlemen, we must all hang together, or we shall most assuredly all hang separately."

— Benjamin Franklin

Just as there is reputed to be honor among thieves, so bridge journalists tend to be on good terms with one another. My friend and fellow journalist Frank Stewart has written a new book on intermediate play and defense. Here is a deal from his book "Who Has the Queen?" — the Bridge Player's Handbook of Card Reading."

You lead the club jack against four spades, dummy's king wins, and East plays the deuce. When declarer next leads the spade jack from dummy, East wins with the king and shifts to the heart nine, South following with the three.

South's second bid suggested about 11 points with a balanced pattern. If East's heart is a singleton, you must take your ace and return a heart, but if East had a doubleton heart, you need to duck. What about it?

South probably has only four spades. If East had the doubleton trump ace-king, his defense would make no sense, and if South had four hearts, his response to one club would have been one heart.

Accordingly, signal with the heart 10. When East gets back in with the spade ace, he will lead his second heart, and you will win and give him a heart ruff.

Equally valid: If East had a singleton heart, he would have cashed his second high trump before leading his singleton, giving you no option but to win immediately and return a heart.

The book will be available at $21.95 postpaid, from P.O. Box 962, Fayette, AL 35555.

ANSWER: Your partner has shown long clubs, four hearts and real extras. It looks natural to start by developing your hand with a cue-bid of three diamonds, since you really do not know what suit should be trump here or if three no-trump should be your final destination. If your partner does not bid three no-trump, you will support clubs at your next turn.

IF DECEMBER 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be performing a juggling act to please both those who love you just as you are and those who are critical of your every move. Home and career are pulling you two ways at once, but you can't fix your financial or job troubles until after the first of the year. In March, you can develop healthy work patterns and organize your time to fit romance and family time into a busy schedule. Enjoy being responsible and precise because in early May opportunities or recognition can appear to reward you for your dependability and loyalty

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Control your animal instincts. Once gripped by passion, there is no holding you back — so aim as high as you can. You can organize and obey a set of rules without losing focus on your own ends.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): True north is always true blue. Be like a compass where relationships are concerned. Offer reliable support when circumstances are confusing. If you are loyal, others will appreciate your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Once launched, your glider should fly. Avoid making changes to documents or scheduling important discussions. Small misunderstandings could spoil negotiations or cause tensions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Guard against an overly harsh and aggressive attitude. You can be energetic when pursuing the object of your desires, but might find that the guy in charge frowns on your executive abilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There are miles to go before you sleep. You are truly a powerhouse of unrelenting ambition and energy. You are blessed with the grit and determination to scale the ladders of success of your choice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sticklers for exactitude stick to the plan. You might be tripped up by some pointed exchanges if you offer generalizations. You shouldn't promise more than you can deliver just to maintain the peace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Thomas Edison said, "Opportunity is missed by most people because it is dressed in overalls and looks like work." Get down to brass tacks; put your shoulder to the wheel where it will do the most good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid sending the wrong signals. In elementary school, children launch spit wads or play practical jokes to get attention. Now that you are more mature, deliberately aggravating someone isn't charming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Speak softly and leave the big stick in the umbrella stand. Don't try to convince anyone of anything and avoid sensitive negotiations. You might easily change your mind at a later date.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Focus and you will surely make headway. Powerful friends and loving mates will help you earn your heart's desire, but it is the intensity of your energies that will see a project through to the end.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You might be challenged to adhere to a rigid set of rules. Keep in mind, however, that the rules might not be written down. You could be forced to imagine what must be done to follow unclear instructions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Sensitive people might let negative emotions get in the way. Don't lose perspective just because the boss is a Scrooge. Seek praise for creativity and trustworthiness, but don't be disappointed if none arrives.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Irresistible Force: Tebow Pushes NFL Around

Tim Tebow is doing what decades of conventional NFL wisdom said couldn't be done. He's winning game after game playing the most important position on the field less like a quarterback than an irresistible force of nature.

Seven times in their last eight games with Tebow in charge, the Broncos have somehow won when they shouldn't have — six times coming back in the second half, five times in the fourth quarter and three of those in overtime.

Along the way, he's befuddled critics, delighted his growing flock of fans and flummoxed opposing coaches, not to mention his own on occasion. He's dazzled analysts and left it to teammates to explain the chain-reaction of events — freak turnovers by opponents, sparkling catches by young receivers, Tebow's own pinball runs through defenders — that have made the closing minutes of Denver games must-see TV. The latest one might have been the most improbable.

Trailing the Chicago Bears 10-0 with 4:34 left Sunday, the Broncos faced the possibility of their first home shutout in team history. In short order, Tebow cobbled together a 63-yard touchdown drive, Denver failed to recover the ensuing onside

The Mountain West Conference will ask for an automatic bid to the Bowl Championship Series for the 2012 and '13 seasons. The conference announced Monday that its board of directors approved making the request. The BCS rules allow a league without automatic qualifying status to request an exemption for the next two seasons if its teams met certain performance standards from 2008-2011. The MWC met those standards, with the help of TCU earning bids in 2009 and '10. It was also aided by Boise State and TCU's performances this season.

CSI NOTEBOOK

CSI Men, Fans Feast on Defense

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Fans of the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team have been treated to some free grub the last month.

As part of a promotion with Wendy's, every time the Golden Eagles hold their opponent to under 70 points at home, fans in attendance receive a coupon for one free hamburger. This weekend, CSI (12-1) held both its opponents under that mark.

Two weeks ago at the Boise Office Equipment Invite, CSI's 'D' hit that mark once. The week before, the Golden Eagles did it once more.

It was on the road in New Rochelle, N.Y., but CSI started the season with a sub-70 point defensive effort against Westchester. The other time the Golden Eagles went on the road, two weekends ago at the Western Nebraska Tournament, they held both opponents under 70 points.

These offensive minded Golden Eagles are getting defensive.

"I thought we really played well defensively tonight," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar after his team's 84-57 win over Cape Fear (N.C.) on Saturday. "Really, I think our defense has been solid for the last two weeks. We went to Nebraska and buckled down defensively and came back here this weekend and really gave a great effort. The team has bought in."

Against Raleigh's Finest (Okla.), on Friday, CSI allowed a season-low 40 points on just 25 percent shooting. For the season, the Golden Eagles are holding opponents to just 67 points per game, while allowing only 40 percent shooting.

They've done it mostly with a four-guard lineup which has forced 10.2 steals per game, led by Fabyon Harris' 2.2, but the big men have been vital to the team's solid defense during the current 10-game winning streak too.

Luke Cothron averages 2.8 blocks and Paul Bunch, who has played just four games, averages a block per game even though he plays just 10 minutes each night. As he gets into better shape, he'll be even more vital to the team's defensive presence because of his 6-11, 270-pound frame.

BOISE STATE

CATCHING UP ON BSU'S RECRUITING

THE IDAHO STATESMAN

December is a key recruiting month for college football, so this seems like a good time to catch up on the Broncos' 2012 class. They have oral, non-binding commitments from 15 prospects, plus one grayshirt carrying over from the 2011 class. With 21 seniors departing and the usual off-season attrition, the class could grow to 20-25 players.

Brandon Huffman, a

Seattle-based national recruiting analyst for Scout.com, provided his perspective on the class in a Q&A with the Idaho Statesman.

Question: What do you think of Boise State's class?

Answer: "It's as strong a class as they've ever had. Obviously, losing (decommitted cornerback) Marcus Rios hurts them from the standpoint that he would be a key, elite corner. Those guys are kind of at a premium. But if you look at the class from top to bottom ... to be consistently and routinely beating Pac-12 schools for a lot of their West Coast targets shows how far they've come as a program. Now they're not just getting in the door of these top kids, they're getting signatures and commitments from those top kids."

Q: Who is the best player in the class?

A: "Chaz Anderson (cornerback, Los Angeles) is a guy whose stock is on the rise incredibly. Travis Averill (offensive lineman, Anaheim, Calif.) is another one. This is the year of the lineman out West, and he's among the best. Nick Patti (quarterback, Orlando, Fla.) is a guy — honestly, if he was a couple inches taller, he'd probably be ranked in the top 10 or top 15 nationally ... at a very premium position. Ben Weaver (linebacker, Spring, Texas), he's another Seattle wide receiver Doug Baldwin (15) jumps over teammate Ben Obomanu and St. Louis cornerback Roderick Hood, right, in the second half on Monday.

Seahawks Soar Past Rams

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEATTLE • Doug Baldwin picked a national stage to remind the rest of the NFL what they passed up in last April's draft.

Baldwin, an undrafted rookie out of Stanford, blocked a first-quarter punt that was returned by Michael Robinson 17 yards for a touchdown, then caught a 29-yard TD pass from Tarvaris Jackson in the third quarter as the Seattle Seahawks pulled away for a 30-13 win over the staggering St. Louis Rams on Monday night.

Seattle (6-7) won for the fourth time in five games and kept alive its slim hopes for reaching the postseason. The Seahawks likely would need to win out to potentially make the playoffs a reality, but they're at least back in the conversation after a 2-6 start.

Marshawn Lynch topped 100 yards rushing for the fifth time in the last six games, finishing with 115 on 23 carries. He scored a touchdown in his ninth straight game on a 16-yard run with 2:57 left to put away Seattle's 13th win in its last 14 games against the Rams.

Seahawks fans threw bags of Skittles into the end zone as Lynch celebrated his ninth rushing touchdown this season, and he tied a franchise record with nine consecutive games with a TD.

Baldwin finished with seven catches for 93 yards and Steven Hauschka was 3 of 4 on field goal attempts for the Seahawks.

Sam Bradford started for St. Louis (2-11) despite a high left ankle sprain that's bothered him for nearly two months and forced him to miss last week's game at San Francisco. Bradford barely practiced this week and it showed as he was rusty and made poor decisions. Bradford was 12 of 29 for 193 yards, was intercepted by Brandon Browner on the first play of the second half and nearly picked off on a handful of other throws.

VANDAL OC AXMAN RETIRES

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Last week Robb Akey was adamant his existing coaching staff at the University of Idaho was still intact. But he qualified his statement by noting no changes had been made "at this point in time."

That point came Monday, when UI announced Steve Axman had retired after five seasons as the team's offensive coordinator.

Axman faced increased scrutiny during the Vandals' recently completed 2-10 season. Idaho finished 111th in total offense and 107th in scoring in the FBS — a precipitous drop from the heady days of 2009.

The Vandals claimed the Humanitarian Bowl three seasons ago while racking up nearly 32 points per game, 25th-best in the nation. Axman, 64, insisted last month that he was the same coordinator as he was in '09, but the offense was beset by injuries and inconsistency.

"There's no one person you can blame for this season," said departed H-back Derek Wieting, who was apart of the program for six years. "But I think change was needed. And if this is what turns things back around, great. But I don't think this should be looked at as a thing of blame or this was one person's fault."

Wieting said he and other players expected something to happen after athletic director Rob Spear's frustration was evident in a radio interview following the Vandals' 56-3 loss at Nevada to end the year. And Wieting wouldn't be surprised by further coaching or player turnover.

"From a players' standpoint, I think a lot of us wanted to see some change," he said. "I think just a lot of things went wrong this year."

BIG MIDDLEKAUFF'S QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I am not judged by the number of times I fail, but by the number of times I succeed, and the number of times I succeed is in direct proportion to the number of times I can fail and keep on trying."

Dolphins Ax Sparano

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Sparano has been fired as coach of the Miami Dolphins, the third dismissal of an NFL coach in the past two weeks.

The move came one day after the Dolphins lost to the Philadelphia Eagles to fall to 4-9. The defeat ended a recent surge by the Dolphins after they lost their first seven games.

With two other teams already in the market for a new coach, owner Stephen Ross apparently didn't want to wait any longer to start shopping.

The Dolphins are assured of their third consecutive losing season, the team's longest such streak since the 1960s.

Chiefs Send Haley Packing

The Kansas City Chiefs have fired coach Todd Haley less than a year after he led the team to the AFC West division title.

The injury-ravaged Chiefs dropped to 5-8 after Sunday's 37-10 loss the New York Jets.

Chiefs Chairman and CEO Clark Hunt said Monday the move is "best for the future of the Chiefs," who lost several of their stars to season-ending injuries, including quarterback Matt Cassel and running back Jamaal Charles.

Haley leaves with a 19-27 record in nearly three years at his first NFL head coaching job. The Chiefs won the AFC West last season with a 10-6 record.

Quiet Pa. Town Center Stage For Sandusky Faceoff

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BELLEFONTE, Pa. • A sleepy country town better known for fly fishing than courtroom drama takes center stage Tuesday for a face-to-face encounter between a disgraced Penn State coach and the young men who say he sexually assaulted them as children in showers and campus locker rooms.

Jerry Sandusky, a former assistant football coach at Penn State, will confront at least six accusers who claim that he violated their innocence and preyed on their weakness, using a charity that was inspired by a biblical parable.

Sandusky, 67, is charged with more than 50 counts of child sex-abuse involving 10 boys he met through the children's charity he founded. A judge will decide if prosecutors have enough evidence to send the case to a trial.

The defense often waives preliminary hearings, although it can also use the opportunity to cross-examine witnesses and explore their credibility.

But Sandusky's lawyer, Joe Amendola, said Monday his client welcomes the hearing.

"We plan to proceed with Jerry's hearing, and Jerry is looking forward to the opportunity to face his accusers," Amendola said. He said there had been no plea negotiations before the hearing.

He would only say, "Maybe," when asked if he would call Sandusky to testify.

Tebow

kick attempt, but got the ball back after a punt with more time left than anyone expected. That's because Chicago's Marion Barber inexplicably ran out of bounds on a carry — stopping the clock — instead of simply falling to the ground.

"That's usually something that never happens with a veteran running back," Denver linebacker Wesley Woodyard said. "It's just like things go our way."

But as Woodyard and the rest of the Broncos have come to believe, things weren't done going their way.

From his 20-yard line, Tebow again marched the Broncos back to the Bears 41, where Matt Prater coolly connected on a 59-yard field goal to tie the game at 10. In the extra period, Chicago was methodically grinding up a wearying Broncos defense when Barber bashed through a hole for another first down — only to have the ball stripped at the last second by Woodyard and recovered by teammate Elvis Dumervil at the Broncos 34.

From there, Tebow put together one more helter-skelter drive to reach the Bears 33, where Prater converted a slightly less eye-popping 51-yard field goal for the win.

Mixing his football and his faith drew attention to Tebow long before he arrived in the NFL.

The son of missionaries, he was born in the Philippines and has returned there numerous times on missions of his own. Like his four siblings, Tebow was home-schooled in Jacksonville, Fla. But because of a state law requiring home-schooled students to play high school football in the district where they lived, he found himself at the center of a controversy when he moved into an apartment in nearby St. Johns County with his mother so he could play prep football at powerhouse Nease High.

Recruited by Florida, he won two national titles and the Heisman Trophy, but was also scorned for frequently praising or thanking God in postgame interviews. He often chanted biblical verses, such as John 3:16, on the eye-black strips players apply to their cheekbones to cut glare, prompting the NCAA to ban such messages the season after he finished his college career.

Almost as controversial was Tebow's unorthodox approach to playing quarterback. Despite a limited ability to read defenses, questionable footwork and an erratic throwing arm, he thrived in then-Gators coach Urban Meyer's version of a spread offense at Florida, but failed to impress many NFL scouts. Most projected Tebow as a third-round fourth-round pick at best, and many suspected his only shot at the NFL would be to change positions. His penchant to tuck the ball under his arm and take off down the field, they said, would expose him to faster, harder-hitting defenders who would punish him.

Instead of being a dual threat, Tebow was no threat at all last season and for the first few games of this one.

But with the Broncos skidding at 1-4 with front-line quarterback Kyle Orton, first-year Denver coach John Fox grudgingly called on Tebow in the second half of an October game against the Chargers. Since then, it's been an almost-unhindered ride up the elevator to the top of the AFC West and an even more unlikely playoff spot.

How Tebow does what he does is still something of a mystery, still so tough to quantify that his fiercest supporters call it divine intervention and everyone else, his coach included, still struggles to explain.

Right after the win over Chicago, Fox called it simply, "competitive greatness. He wants the ball in clutch time."

A day later, Fox talked about how defenses often go into "prevent" mode late in games — "you know, they're daring us to pass." That's what conventional wisdom suggests teams do against a quarterback who consistently ranks near the bottom of the league by most passing measures. And that's what makes "Tebow Time" even more confounding.

In the 8 1/2 games he's played as a starter, Tebow has taken the Broncos on scoring drives on just 12 of 76 offensive possessions through the first three quarters. On the opening drives of fourth quarters, the number is just 1 of 9. But for the remainder of the fourth quarter and into overtime, he's choreographed the Broncos to touchdowns or field goals an incredible 16 of 28 times. Over that span, the defense has managed 10 takeaways, but half, notably, came in the final period or in overtime.

Around the league, opposing coaches scan scoreboards for late Broncos scores and their players rush back through the tunnel to catch the final few moments. A week ago, in case anyone missed the final score, 49ers lineman Mike Iupati walked through the San Francisco locker room hollering, "Tim Tebow, 6-1, baby!" And now he's 7-1 in the pass-happy NFL, the best story the league has going.
