Area Educators Ponder Supplemental Funding

With election dates looming in May, area school officials are beginning to decide whether they'll ask voters for funding through supplemental levy issues.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

A handful of Magic Valley school districts are seeking renewal of their supplemental levies – money used to keep their operations up and running in an era of state funding cuts. Districts are deciding if they want to ask voters to approve a levy issue during the March 13 election. Requests to put an item on the ballot must be submitted to county clerks by Jan. 27. “The majority of our districts do have supplemental levies,” said Tim Hill, deputy superintendent of finance for the Idaho State Department of Education. Since March alone, school district budgets have been propped up by more than $77.3 million of voter-approved funding.

Wendell Speaks Out on Proposed Jail

WENDELL • The Gooding County Jail continues to move from concept to reality as the desired property in Wendell is shored up. While officials prepared to show Wendell residents their first look at a mock-up of the lock-up on Wednesday night at Wendell High School, private investors reached an agreement to purchase seven acres along North Frontage Road. Property owner Gabby Cavazos, who lives in Texas, confirmed he has accepted an offer to buy seven of the nine acres next to Interstate 84. So far, neither he nor his real estate agent have offered details on the land price. According to Walt Femling of Rocky Mountain Corrections, Municipal Capital of Denver is raising capital under the name Gooding Facilities LLC. He said the company has financed $1 billion in jail projects across the country. Townsfolk showed up at the school auditorium to hear the pitch and ask questions of county leaders. What will it look like? Who is paying for it? Will our taxes go up? Why Wendell? Many people, like Kayla Winmill, came in skeptical but had their minds changed by the answers they found. “Hopefully, it’s the start of something new, because Wendell is struggling right now,” she said. Investors will buy the land and pay for construction, but Gooding County will maintain, staff and run the jail as part of an annually renewable lease agreement. Because no county tax dollars will be spent in the purchase of land or construction, residents do not have to pass a bond. Femling noted local folks can even invest a small amount of capital toward the project. The facility has an approximate price tag of $7 million to $8 million, but Femling emphasized that nothing has gone to bid. The final cost is contingent on the price of the land and future construction costs.

Judge Orders Idaho to Increase Some Medicaid Rates

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge says the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare needs to increase Medicaid payments for some services for the developmentally disabled, a ruling that will cost the state at least $4 million more a year. U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill ruled Monday in a lawsuit first brought by five businesses against the state in 2009. The businesses contended that the state was wrong to keep providers at pay rates based on a 2006 study when two subsequent studies showed the cost of providing services had increased considerably. According to the lawsuit, the 2006 daily rate for one type of service was about $268. That compares to a daily rate of $496 suggested by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare’s own study done in 2009. Lawmakers failed to give the department funding for the rate increase, however, so providers were kept at the lower 2006 rate.

Winmill said that the law on Medicaid rates is clear: They must incorporate the actual cost of providing a service. Sixty-one residential habilitation agencies in the state provide supportive living services to 6,202 clients, Winmill noted. The agencies provide homes and round-the-clock supervision for developmentally disabled clients who cannot live alone, as well as support for clients who need help to safely live in their own homes.

GROUSE PROJECTS SUFFER FROM ABSENT FUNDING

When Congress froze earmark spending earlier this year, it sent sage grouse working groups on a search for a new funding source. Their options still aren’t any better.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesti@magicvalley.com

Funding sage grouse conservation may be just as frustrating as finding the best way to use the money. For while there is an obvious need to improve the bird’s population, there isn’t much money available to move conservation efforts forward. Federal officials have declared the sage grouse warrants endangered-species protection but have held off from actually listing the bird as endangered. Meanwhile, local working groups are attempting to continue their work to improve grouse habitat and grow populations throughout the state — all in hopes of averting a listing. As a South Magic Valley working group member, Rob Lonsinger estimated his group will need $80,000 to fund its projects next year. The group’s members spent last year clearing juniper brush throughout southern Idaho. Removing the brush was meant to improve grouse habitat, but the group lacks data to show grouse populations have since improved. “We want to know if we’re being effective but we don’t have the data yet,” said Lonsinger, who is also a regional wildlife biologist for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. In order to get the money needed for monitoring equipment, Lonsinger will compete against other working groups and other conservation organizations for government-funded grants. The group is currently reviewing 20 grant options from state and federal programs that help fund sage grouse conservation. The grants range from $10,000 to $75,000, with different requirements on how and where to spend the money. Lonsinger is hopeful the group will receive a grant but is worried the amount may be too small. “We’re really going to have to pull at every chance we can get,” he said.

SUN VALLEY ADMINISTRATOR SUES CITY

BY BEN BOTKIN
bbotkin@magicvalley.com

Sun Valley City Administrator Sharon Hammer is suing her employer and three city officials, alleging that she's been harassed repeatedly by Councilman Nils Ribi and unfairly targeted for termination.

Hammer is seeking a judgment of $1 million or another amount as determined at trial for the alleged actions of Ribi, Councilman Robert Youngman and city attorney Adam King, who are all named as defendants.

Hammer is also seeking an immediate return to active duty with the city. She was placed on paid administrative leave for unspecified reasons on Nov. 18 through a letter Mayor Wayne Willich sent her, court records show.

The lawsuit alleges that Ribi continually attempted to direct Hammer's work, contrary to city policy. When Hammer refused to take his orders, Ribi became more abusive, raising his voice and causing her to avoid him, according to the lawsuit.

Ribi would not comment for this story.

Hammer alleges she tried to work out the problem and had discussions with Willich and King about the situation. But nothing changed after the mayor talked to Ribi about it, the case says.

In recent months, Ribi and Youngman have shown an interest in firing Hammer, according to the lawsuit. After a Nov. 11 closed-door council meeting, Willich told Hammer that Ribi and Youngman wanted him to seek her resignation, according to the lawsuit.

She refused and later was put on administrative leave.

Since then, Hammer alleges, Kirtlan Naylor, the attorney representing Sun Valley in the lawsuit, insinuated to Hammer and her lawyer, James Donoval, that the leave is connected to criminal behavior — misuse of public funds or property. In her suit, Hammer decries that action as improper given her lack of opportunity to respond to it.

Naylor declined to comment on the case, other than to say that responses will be made in court.

Hammer alleges she hasn't been given the due process required of government employees who face disciplinary actions. The case also notes she's received a professional award for her finance work in Sun Valley.

In court filings, Hammer describes the defendants' actions as a "kangaroo court" or "witch hunt."

"We're just kind of waiting to find out what's happening," said Donoval, also Hammer's husband. "She shouldn't even be on administrative leave."

The case also alleges Ribi has a history of harassing behavior. The lawsuit alleges that Ribi's neighbors sold their home and moved out of state to avoid him following occasions in which he disrobed to his underwear and performed a "strange form of yoga" in front of their window.

Open House Reveals the Vital Mission of Bill's Place

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

Melissa Rathbun arrived at Bill's Place for a second chance on Dec. 5.

She had spent seven months at the Twin Falls home for former female inmates earlier this year, but relapsed into drug addiction and was arrested in July for violating her probation on a 2010 conviction for acquiring a controlled substance by fraud.

"I was an addict ... I am an addict," Rathbun said. "I relapsed again and they were willing to take me back."

Bill's Place held an open house Tuesday, treating guests to holiday snacks and resident-led tours. The house is open to women who have recently been released from prison and are under some sort of supervision program such as probation, parole or a specialty court.

Bill Brockman, a founding board member whom the program is named after, said residents have a home at Bill's Place as long as they're moving toward recovery. Women who come to the program must meet several requirements in order to be accepted into and stay in the program.

Bill's Place only accepts offenders convicted of nonviolent crimes. It doesn't accept those charged with sexual offenses or crimes against children.

"We can't handle that, we're not designed to do that," Brockman said.

Once admitted, residents must attend group meetings, commit to some sort of religious study and attend a weekly worship service. Women in the program are also required to find employment within two weeks of arriving.

Residents have been cut some slack on their job search during the economic downturn, said Beverly Wood, the house manager, but they still must look daily. Wood, a former Bill's Place resident, has been its manager for nearly four years and is known to run a tight ship.

"They either love me or hate me," she said.

Frank Neumeyer, senior probation and parole officer with the Idaho Department of Corrections, is the supervisor for both Bill's Place and Serenity House, another women's recovery center.

Neumeyer performs frequent home checks and drug tests, and follows the women's progress in finding jobs and attending court-ordered counseling. Women who come to Bill's Place are similar to many of his parolees, but residents have a pretty good track record of not getting in trouble again, he said.

"Having the house manager helps keep them accountable," he said.

For Rathbun, the structured environment helps. When she began to relapse into addiction it was Wood who noticed first.

"She's like 'A-ha! I know you're messing up,'" Rathbun said. "She called me on it. You don't find people like that."

Bill's Place is mostly funded through an annual golf tournament and a craps shoot fundraiser, along with donations.

Right now, the program costs about $1,500 to fund each month, Brockman said. When each resident can pay the $300 rent the program asks for, the bills can get paid. But the truth is, most residents can't pay all the rent, he said.

"They're always behind," Brockman said. With court costs and fees to pay, many residents don't have enough left for rent.

As Rathbun gets back on her feet at the house, she hopes to return to her job at AmeriPride Linen and Apparel Services, where she worked for two years. In the meantime, Rathbun said she's warming up to what Bill's House has to offer.

"When I came in the second time I had a more open mind," she said. "The first time I was set in my ways and didn't want to change."

Now, Rathbun said, she is going to take all she can soak up and run with it.

"I've just got to take everything and keep moving forward," she said.

Levies

Jerome School District trustees will soon decide if they want to seek renewal of the district's long-running $650,000 annual levy.

"That has become an important part of our daily operations now," Superintendent Dale Layne said.

Money from the supplemental levy goes into the school district's general fund. For more than a decade, it's helped cover operating expenses such as paying employee salaries.

"It's everything other than buildings and facilities," Layne said.

Trustees will make a decision either during their Tuesday meeting or during a special meeting in January. Layne said it's difficult to decide to ask for money now, as it would be awarded for the next fiscal year, which the state budget hasn't been set for. Idaho's lawmakers will do that important work starting Jan. 9, when the Legislature convenes in Boise.

District officials know this: They won't ask for an increase if they do pursue supplemental funding, Layne said, because they received some unexpected state funding at the end of the year.

The Kimberly School District might also pursue renewal of its two-year levy issue for $300,000 each year.

"If we don't, we'll have to look at making $300,000 worth of cuts," Superintendent Kathleen Noh said.

The item is on the agenda for the Kimberly School Board's 7 p.m. meeting today at Kimberly Intermediate School.

Murtaugh School District is one step ahead in the process, as its board on English teacher Brett Darrington listens to a student inside the Media Center at Kimberly High School Wednesday afternoon in Kimberly. With the deadline to put a bond issue item on the March 13 ballot looming, area school district officials, including those in Kimberly, are deciding whether to ask voters for new or continued supplemental funding.

Dec. 12 decided to put a ballot issue in front of voters in March. They're seeking renewal of a two-year supplemental levy issue for $150,000 each year.

Voters in Minidoka County will be asked to vote on something slightly different — renewal of plant facilities funding.

If a levy issue is approved, the district will receive $1.2 million each year for

Other Supplemental Levy Discussions

Twin Falls School District: The district doesn't plan to pursue a supplemental levy this year. A two-year, $7.5 million levy issue was approved by voters last year.

Castleford School District: Superintendent Andy Wiseman said the district might seek a supplemental levy issue during the May 15 election, but a decision hasn't been made yet.

Gooding School District: The district isn't pursuing a supplemental levy issue this year. Voters approved a two-year, $325,000 levy issue last year.

Shoshone School District: A decision hasn't been made yet about whether the district will seek a renewal of its current levy.

Dietrich School District: Superintendent Neal Hollingshead said the district isn't planning to pursue a supplemental levy issue at this point.

two years. Money would be used to repair and maintain school buildings.

"We run this at the same amount every two years," Superintendent Scott Rogers said.

He said although the school district's need is greater than it used to be, administrators are sensitive to the needs of residents and don't want to raise taxes.

In order for a school district levy to pass, a simple majority vote is required. Idaho Code limits levy issues to two years in length, but there isn't a restriction on the dollar amount that can be sought.

Osterhoudt Receives up to 12 Years After Probation Violations

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

Franklin Scott Osterhoudt will serve up to 12 years in prison for multiple felonies he committed from 2009 to 2011.

For the latest felony, the 22-year-old Twin Falls man was sentenced Monday to two to four years in prison after he was convicted of aggravated battery for crushing another man's leg during a fight.

Osterhoudt was arrested in June for breaking the leg of Richard Wilson while they fought after he reportedly threw an object at Wilson's car, smashing the windshield.

Police found Wilson lying with a broken leg on the sidewalk near Quincy Street and

Osterhoudt

Addison Avenue. Wilson said he was driving with his 9-year-old daughter when he saw Osterhoudt stand in the road, then throw the object.

According to a police report, Wilson's tibia and fibula were broken and he required four hours of surgery to implant metal rods into his leg.

Osterhoudt will also be required to pay restitution of $8,982.89 and court costs of between $95 and $150.

The battery conviction violated Osterhoudt's probation for two convictions from 2009, and he now must serve those sentences consecutively with his newest.

In 2009, Osterhoudt was accused of statutory rape, which he pleaded down to injury to a child in exchange for a sentence of 3 1/2 to 10 years. He was also convicted in 2009 of possession of a controlled substance, which carried a two- to four-year sentence.

In each case, Osterhoudt was ordered to complete the state's retained jurisdiction treatment program and then received four years probation in lieu of prison time.

With the two 2009 sentences being combined and credit for time served in the retained jurisdiction program, the earliest Osterhoudt will be released is in five years.

Jail

Gooding County would pay a per-bed, per-day lease, coming out to roughly $1.15 million per year. Sheriff Shaun Gough said the approximate cost is $20 per inmate, per day. The county will charge other jurisdictions a minimum of $40, which is how the county will generate revenue.

Gough estimates the sheriff's office could save $500,000 annually, as other counties would pay Gooding County to house their overflow inmates.

"No one wants to pass a bond in three counties for a shared facility," Fleming told the audience. "It's impossible."

Gough has championed

the location as ideal for the county because of its proximity to the interstate, which makes the site attractive to other jurisdictions. An average of 25 to 30 inmates at the county's current jail are from Gooding County, which potentially leaves more than 120 beds available to rent.

Gough said the location could score a federal contract to hold U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement detainees, who are flown from Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport south of Twin Falls.

The annexation of the property into Wendell city limits has begun, said Mayor Brad Christopherson, as Cavazos has signed a letter of consent. From here, a survey of the land may be conducted, and the matter would then go to the city's planning and zoning commission.

Residents expressed concerns that the city's water and sewer services cannot support a structure this size without an overhaul — the city's recent attempt to expand its wastewater facility was snarled by a lawsuit. Christopherson said an agreement was recently reached on the sewer matter, and work could be completed by late 2012.

Wendell could reap a windfall in property taxes, as the investors will own the land and building. Thus, the city can collect tax revenue. Gough said he was working with the county assessor to determine an estimate of potential revenue.

Christopherson attended the meeting and has given a thumbs-up to the project.

"I've tried to find a reason to not support this, but I can't," he told the audience.

Resident Ken Ruby also left the meeting feeling better about the proposed jail.

"Moving and putting the jail here is positive, and I can't see a downside," he said. "Shaun is knowledgeable and wouldn't mislead us."

Bradley Guire may be reached at 735-3880. Alison Gene Smith may be reached at 735-3220.

Medicaid

There aren't any waiting lists of people to receive the services, he said in the ruling, nor are there any documented instances of agencies turning clients away because they couldn't afford to provide care.

The state's attorneys had argued that those facts showed the Medicaid rates as set in 2006 must have been adequate, otherwise there would be a dearth of providers. Still, said Winnmill, actual provider costs — not just outcomes — must be taken into account.

Department of Health and Welfare spokesman Tom Shanahan said the department was reviewing the ruling.

James Piotrowski, the attorney who represented the residential habilitation agencies, said the ruling means that providers for the most severely disabled clients will be able to provide better staffing numbers, hire better-qualified staffers and make an overall improvement to the quality of care.

Piotrowski said his clients were frustrated that they had to resort to a lawsuit to fix the issue. He said the department and the business used to have a good cooperative relationship, but it has deteriorated over the years.

Still, he said, they were pleased by the outcome.

"Winnmill is telling the department to actually use the cost studies that they do, and implement the rates that their own analysis says is required," Piotrowski said.

The companies included Inclusion Inc.; Exceptional Child Center Inc.; Living Independently for Everyone Inc.; Tomorrow's Hope Satellite Services Inc.; and WDB Inc.

"We can provide time and support but a grant is imperative."

Local working groups were once funded by government earmarks apportioned to them by Congress. Earlier this year, earmarks were frozen in an attempt to reduce government spending.

"We don't where our next source of funding will come from," said Jon Beals, project manager for the Idaho Governor's Office of Species Conservation.

Beals said this year's $1 million earmark has already been promised out for projects and working group facilitators. By spring, when groups typically apply for project funding, there may not be any of that funding left.

"We're not certain if we'll have funding for projects at this time," he said. "There hasn't been any new money to fill in the gaps."

THEIR VIEW

Occupy Still Has Problems Hitting the Right Targets

Shipping companies make terrible scapegoats for our country's economic ills. Although Goldman Sachs is assuredly guilty of past malfeasance, to target the companies it has financed is unfair.

The following editorial appeared in the Los Angeles Times on Tuesday:

From Portland, Ore., to Long Beach, Calif., on Monday, Occupy Wall Street demonstrators who had been kicked out of encampments at parks and city centers picketed shipping companies instead, and tried unsuccessfully to shut down port traffic. That makes a certain kind of sense for a group that's as incensed about corporate misdeeds as it is by failures in government policy, but we're still not sure it's aiming at the right targets.

In some ways, going after shipping companies is a brilliant next step. At the Port of Long Beach, protesters picketed SSA Marine, a giant port operator partly owned by Goldman Sachs; at the Port of Hueneme, about 150 protesters targeted Del Monte Foods, which is owned by the leveraged buyout firm KKR. These shippers hit about half a dozen hot buttons common to Occupy protesters: They're owned by big financial companies that contributed to the global economic meltdown, they're a stand-in for all the woes brought by globalization, and they tend to have questionable environmental records (SSA is involved in plans to build a highly controversial coal-shipping terminal in Washington state) as well as labor practices. By hiring nonunion, independent contractors as truckers, SSA Marine has raised the ire of the Teamsters and other local activists.

Yet at the same time, these companies make terrible scapegoats for our country's economic ills. Although Goldman Sachs is assuredly guilty of past malfeasance, to target the companies it has financed is both unfair and strategically clueless. SSA Marine isn't responsible for Goldman's shenanigans involving mortgage-backed securities. Further, financing provided by the likes of Goldman keep businesses alive and the economy flowing; without it, joblessness would be worse than it is.

Moreover, blocking projects meant to transport fossil fuels will do little or nothing to end their use; the only sensible way to solve our climate and pollution problems is to change government emissions policies. And by injecting itself into the port trucking issue, Occupy is stepping into a legal and political morass.

The shipping industry didn't get America into this economic mess, and there is little it could do to get us out. In times of rising joblessness, it's common to blame foreign competition for the losses at home. But blaming ports or shippers for the changes wrought by an increasingly global economy is sort of like fingering automakers for urban traffic congestion. In its search for a new direction, Occupy Wall Street would probably do better to occupy the National Mall than San Pedro.

"We're not here to win a popularity contest. No email, no text, no update, no call is worth a human life."

In 3 Years, Only Obama's Timetable has Changed

President Obama doesn't suffer from amnesia, but apparently he hopes the public does.

In his latest in a series of interviews on "60 Minutes" Sunday night, the president took positions that are the polar opposite of what he was saying as recently as last spring.

One wishes all of those "fact-checkers" who point out supposed mistakes by the Republican candidates were as committed to noting even worse flaws in the president's promises.

In his interview with Steve Kroft, the president said he always believed that reversing the culture in Washington "was gonna take more than one term." It's a "long-term project," he said, "not a short-term project." And then he claimed that during the 2008 campaign, he "didn't overpromise."

Really? Speaking in Richmond, Va., on Oct. 22, 2008, Obama promised to put millions of Americans back to work; he pledged "real change." Instead, the unemployment rate is 8.6 percent. Or is it? Ed Luce of the Financial Times writes, "According to government statistics, if the same number of people were seeking work today as in 2007, the jobless rate would be 11 percent." Washington remains unchanged, as dysfunctional and gridlocked as ever.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, since President Obama took office, the nation has lost 1.9 million jobs, prompting Washington Post fact-checker Glenn Kessler to write that if the economy does not turn around, "Obama is on track to have the worst jobs record of any president in the modern era."

In 2009, the president said on the "Today" show, "If I don't have this done in three years, then there's going to be a one-term proposition." A few days later in Florida, there was this, "I'm not going to make any excuses," said Obama. "If stuff hasn't worked and people don't feel like I've led the country in the right direction, then you'll have a new president."

The latest right-track, wrong-track poll conducted by Rasmussen Reports found that only 17 percent of Americans believe the country is headed in the right direction, while a whopping 75 percent think it's headed the wrong way.

On CBS, the president said the 2012 election is about his vision, but as CBS News' Stephanie Condon reported last week, "Sixty-six percent of Americans say they do not have a clear idea of what he wants to accomplish in a second term. ... Fewer than half of Democrats say they have a clear idea of what the president wants to accomplish if re-elected." Don't we know? It's taxing "millionaires and billionaires" so the government has more of our money to waste.

Is none of this Obama's fault? Can it all be blamed on Bush? Apparently, the president has decided that playing the blame game is good campaign strategy.

The president blames Republicans for not allowing him to accomplish anything, but says nothing about his own failure to get things done (other than the health care bill, whose constitutionality the Supreme Court ultimately will decide) when Democrats controlled Congress for the first two years of his administration. And what about Senate Democrats who have rejected every House bill seeking cuts in wasteful spending to bring the budget closer into balance? Not a word.

Shall I continue? The president's housing programs received $50 billion from Congress to help stem foreclosures on 9 million homeowners. As The Washington Post reported in October, only $2.4 billion of that money has been allocated, helping just 1.7 million people avoid foreclosure.

Imagine what Democrats and their acolytes in the media would say if a Republican president had a similar track record. One doesn't have to imagine. With a lower unemployment rate and less debt in the Bush administration, Democrats were relentless in their attacks, promising improvements. Barack Obama assured us he would make things better.

Democrats didn't improve anything and nothing has been made better. According to President Obama's own standard, and contrary to what he said on "60 Minutes," he does not deserve a second term.

That he thinks he has earned re-election brings to mind the World English Dictionary definition of "hubris": "Pride or arrogance; (in Greek tragedy) an excess of ambition ... ultimately causing the transgressor's ruin."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sunset Memorial Service Was a Special Gathering

I wanted to say thank you to the local funeral homes and hospice agencies that planned the holiday memorial service at Sunset Memorial Park recently.

I had no idea this was an annual event to provide comfort and hope to those who are missing loved ones who had passed away. I was privileged to be invited to bring a message of hope at this event that was well attended and a beautiful experience. From the choirs that sang to military rites for the 116th and all military, from the candle lighting to singing "Silent Night" as the tree was lit which will remain so throughout the Christmas season, this was a special community gathering.

I cannot imagine how many people and how many hours it must have taken to light the hundreds of luminaries that lined the roads throughout the park with the name of a loved one on each one. It was truly inspiring to talk with people as they remembered their loved ones who are gone but not forgotten.

May everyone who is missing a loved one this Christmas find comfort and hope from the Christ whose birth we celebrate.

Dancers Thank Festival Host

To the folks at the Southern Idaho Landscape Center, I want to give a big thank you for all the special effort put forth to make this year's Festival of Trees very enjoyable.

We as performers felt the atmosphere was so akin to being in the forest with all the wonderful trees and plants around; it made the whole experience that much more enjoyable.

We hope you will consider holding it at your place of business in the years to come.

Prosecutors say Pickup Tried to Hit Bicycle Rider

COEUR D'ALENE • A Post Falls man has pleaded not guilty to aggravated assault after prosecutors say he tried to run a bicyclist off the road.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports 64-year-old Larry G. Jones entered the plea on Monday.

Prosecutors say Jones was driving his pickup Sept. 15 when he encountered Luke O'Dowd and O'Dowd's father-in-law riding their bikes. Investigators with the Kootenai County sheriff's office said Jones tried to turn his pickup truck into O'Dowd and then slammed on the brakes, and that he then exited the vehicle and pushed O'Dowd down an embankment.

Jones, however, told the newspaper the two men refused to get out of the way of his pickup. Jones said O'Dowd came after him with his bicycle, so he pushed him out of the way.

Store Manager Could Avoid Jail Time in Theft Case

SANDPOINT • A grocery store manager charged with embezzling $429,000 from his former employer could avoid jail time under a plea agreement.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports a proposed sentence of one to three years in prison for Jasen W. Johnson would be suspended while he is on probation for five years, under the deal. He would also pay $106,000 in restitution.

The newspaper reported the details of the plea agreement in a story Tuesday.

Johnson entered an Alford plea Dec. 5 in his attempted burglary case and will be sentenced Feb. 6. Under such a plea, Johnson admits no wrongdoing but acknowledges that prosecutors have enough evidence to gain a conviction against him.

Driver Cited For Inattentive Driving in Megaload Accident

MOSCOW (AP) • The driver of a large load of oil refinery equipment that struck and damaged a van in northern Idaho has been cited for inattentive driving.

The collision on Dec. 6 near Moscow led the Idaho Transportation Department to suspend shipments of Imperial Oil equipment to an oil sands project in Canada.

The agency is awaiting an internal report from the hauling company before the shipping license will be considered for reinstatement, transportation department spokesman Adam Rush said.

Idaho State Police cited driver Vladimir Purgar of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, after an investigation, the Lewiston Tribune reported Tuesday.

ISP Capt. Lonnie Richardson said the collision involved one of three shipments that left the Port of Lewiston that night. Drivers were supposed to stop at a staging area on U.S. Highway 95 before traveling through Moscow in a convoy, but one driver tried to leave before southbound traffic was released, he said.

Purgar told investigators the pilot car and the ISP trooper assigned to his lead left the staging area, and he mistakenly followed.

"It was a lapse in driver judgment," Richardson said.

A spokesman at Mammoet, the shipping company, did not immediately return a phone call seeking comment and contact information for Purgar.

Van owner James Urquidez said he ducked when he saw the megaload coming right for his head.

"It exploded the side window from the pressure," he said. "It crushed the windshield. I don't know if it would have hit me or not, but I was able to duck out of the way."

Urquidez said he was upset that his ordeal has been "minimized."

"They said it was 'non-injury,' but what they failed to mention is that the guy almost killed me," he said. "And my van is destroyed."

Urquidez wasn't taken to a hospital, so the collision was technically classified as non-injury.

At the time, Imperial Oil spokesman Pius Rolheiser said he understood "the damage to the vehicle was relatively minor, but we take incidents like this very seriously."

Hundreds of loads of oil equipment are being hauled from ports in Idaho and Washington through northwestern Montana to the Kearl Oil Sands project in Alberta.

IDAHO BRIEFS

Little Says Latin American Trade Visit a Success

BOISE • Lt. Gov. Brad Little says Idaho businesses have the potential to reap more than $30 million in sales from a recent state-led trade mission to Latin America.

Little led a group of 17 Idaho companies and businesses on an eight-day trip with meetings in Brazil and Mexico.

Deals reached during the visit involve the shipment of 210,000 pounds of mustard seeds from a Mountain Home company to Mexico and $1 million worth of goods produced by Post Falls-based Ground Force Manufacturing. Ground Force officials expect contacts made during the visit to yield another $8 million in sales in the next two years.

Men Sentenced After Clerk Shot in Boise Robbery

BOISE • Two 19-year-old Boise men face up to life in prison for their roles in an armed robbery in which a Garden City convenience store clerk was shot and badly injured.

Taylor Wray was sentenced to life in prison with the possibility of parole after serving 20 years while the getaway driver, Brandon Peaslee, can ask for parole after 10 years. They were sentenced Tuesday by 4th District Judge Deborah Bail.

Both men pleaded guilty to conspiring to commit the May 14 robbery. Wray received a sentencing enhancement for infliction of great bodily harm.

Police say they didn't get any cash because the clerk told them he couldn't get in to the safe.

Boise Fertility Broker Pleads Guilty to Fraud

ST. LOUIS • An Idaho woman who operated a fertility brokerage business has admitted to defrauding six Missouri women who provided eggs for the business.

Janae Helgeson of Boise pleaded guilty Wednesday to wire fraud in U.S. District Court in St. Louis. Sentencing is March 16.

Helgeson was arrested in February. Her business, Mid-West Egg Donation, matched couples seeking to conceive a baby with women willing to provide eggs. Federal prosecutors say Helgeson collected payments from couples, but egg donors in Missouri failed to receive nearly $30,000 owed to them.

Former County Worker Charged with Theft, Fraud

CALDWELL • A former Canyon County building and grounds keeper has been charged with felony counts of grand theft and fraud.

The Idaho Press-Tribune reports a grand jury indictment against Andrew Eveland was filed Monday by the Idaho Attorney General's Office.

Court documents show Eveland defrauded the county in southwestern Idaho of more than $64,000 and stole items including several computers, a pair of 40-inch television monitors, grounds keeping tools and more than 300 landscaping blocks.

Eveland was employed as Canyon County's superintendent for building and grounds from 1995 until March 2011. County officials declined to release details on his departure earlier this year, citing personnel issues.

Homeless Man Dies from Burns in Pocatello

POCATELLO • Relatives of a homeless man who suffered severe burns after falling into a warming barrel say he has died from his injuries.

The Idaho State Journal reports 51-year-old Kenneth Marvin Lords, of Pocatello, passed away Monday at a hospital in Salt Lake City. His sister, Lanette Shipley, says he had been prone to seizures and that may have caused the Nov. 15 accident in which he was burned.

She says her brother had planned to move into an assisted living home a week later. Lords was a military veteran who, according to his family, had resided in southeastern Pocatello for most of his life. A funeral mass will be held at St. Anthony's Church in Pocatello on Saturday.

Alleged White House Shooter in Court Friday

WASHINGTON • A federal judge has set a new court date to hear more evidence about the mental health of a man accused of firing shots at the White House in November.

Oscar Ramiro Ortega-Hernandez of Idaho appeared Wednesday in a federal court in Washington, where a judge set another hearing for Friday. Ortega is accused of using an assault rifle to fire at the White House on the evening of Nov. 11, when President Barack Obama was out of town. He is charged with attempting to assassinate the president.

Acquaintances have said Ortega acted strangely in recent months, suggesting he believed he was Jesus and calling Obama "the devil." A preliminary psychiatric screening found him competent to stand trial, but federal prosecutors are asking for more extensive tests.

SUV Hits Man in Wheelchair

LEWISTON • A man has been hospitalized after his wheelchair collided with a sport-utility vehicle in Lewiston.

Lewiston Police Capt. Roger Lanier told the Lewiston Tribune that it appears the man's wheelchair was dragged for a short distance by the vehicle in the Tuesday night collision. Lanier said the man was wearing a dark blue jacket and did not have any reflectors or lights on his wheelchair.

Police have not released the names of the man or the driver of the SUV. The driver wasn't injured in the collision, but the man in the wheelchair was taken to St. Joseph Regional Medical Center by ambulance.

Dems Drop Millionaires Tax in Year-end Dispute

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Democrats backed away from their demand for higher taxes on millionaires as part of legislation to extend Social Security tax cuts for most Americans on Wednesday as Congress struggled to clear critical year-end bills without triggering a partial government shutdown.

But Republicans, frustrated that a bipartisan $1 trillion funding bill was being blocked by Senate Democrats, floated the possibility of repackaging the measure and passing it Friday in defiance of President Barack Obama and his allies in control of the Senate. Stopgap funding runs out Friday at midnight.

In a written statement late Wednesday, White House Communications Director Dan Pfeiffer said the administration objected to several environmental, financial and other provisions in the mammoth spending bill and said Congress should approve a short-term spending measure to avoid a federal shutdown and give lawmakers time to iron out their final disputes.

With time beginning to run short, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., met with Obama at the White House, then returned to the Capitol and sat down with the two top Republicans in Congress, Speaker John Boehner and Sen. Mitch McConnell of Kentucky.

Taken together, the developments signaled the end game for a year of divided government — with a tea party-flavored majority in the House and Obama’s allies in the Senate — that has veered from near-catastrophe to last-minute compromise repeatedly since last January.

House Passes $662 Billion Defense Bill

It was a rare instance of bipartisanship in a bitterly divided Congress. The Senate is expected to pass the measure today and send it to Obama.

BY DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The House passed a massive $662 billion defense bill Wednesday night after last-minute changes placated the White House and ensured President Barack Obama’s ability to prosecute terrorist suspects in the civilian justice system.

The vote was 283-136 and reflected the strong support for annual legislation that authorizes money for the men and women of the military as well as weapons systems and the millions of jobs they generate in lawmakers’ districts.

It was a rare instance of bipartisanship in a bitterly divided Congress. The Senate is expected to pass the measure on Thursday and send it to Obama.

The House vote came just hours after the administration abandoned a veto threat over provisions dealing with the handling of terrorism suspects.

Applying pressure on House and Senate negotiators working on the bill last week, Obama and senior members of his national security team, including Defense Secretary Leon Panetta and Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, had sought modifications in the detainee provisions.

Negotiators announced the changes late Monday, clearing the way for White House acceptance.

In a statement, press secretary Jay

Carney said the new bill “does not challenge the president’s ability to collect intelligence, incapacitate dangerous terrorists and protect the American people.”

Specifically, the bill would require that the military take custody of a suspect deemed to be a member of al-Qaida or its affiliates and who is involved in plotting or committing attacks on the United States. There is an exemption for U.S. citizens.

House and Senate negotiators added language that says nothing in the bill will affect “existing criminal enforcement and national security authorities of the FBI or any other domestic law enforcement agency” with regard to a captured suspect “regardless of whether such ... person is held in military custody.”

The bill also says the president can waive the provision based on national security.

Home From the War in Iraq

At Fort Bragg, Obama Welcomes Troops Home

FORT BRAGG, N.C. • President Barack Obama celebrated the soldiers who fought the Iraq war on Wednesday, marking the fulfillment of a campaign promise to bring home all U.S. forces following a nearly nine-year conflict that killed more than 4,400 American soldiers.

“So as your commander in chief, on behalf of a grateful nation, I’m proud to finally say these two words — and I know your families

Obama, standing before a sea of paratroopers wearing maroon berets, thanked the troops returning from Iraq and hailed the country’s steps toward creating an independent, democratic state.

“Now Iraq is not a perfect place,” said Obama, standing at a lectern set up in an airplane hangar. “It has many challenges ahead. But we are leaving behind a sovereign, stable and self-reliant Iraq, with a representative government that was elected by its people.”

He was introduced by the first lady, a rare joint appearance borne of Michelle Obama’s work finding jobs for military veterans.

In his remarks, Obama largely ignored the furor over the war’s origins under the Bush administration.

He made only the briefest mention of the “great controversy here at home ...”

Instead, he kept a tight rhetorical focus on the sacrifices and victories of those who fought. He made no mention of the Iraqi dead, estimated to be more than 100,000.

Obama’s political identity was shaped by the Iraq war. One way he distinguished himself from Hillary Rodham Clinton during the 2008 Democratic nomination contest was by underscoring his early opposition to the U.S. invasion. Clinton had voted to authorize the war while serving in the U.S. Senate.

Obama, as an Illinois state senator, delivered a speech in 2002 calling the imminent invasion “dumb.”

Now commander in chief, he reminisced about key milestones in the war and said there is “something profound about the end of a war that has lasted so long.”

“We remember the early days,” he continued, “the American units that streaked across the sands and skies of Iraq,” he said. “In battles from Karbala to Baghdad, American troops breaking the back of a brutal dictator in less than a month.”

Senate Rejects 2 Balanced Budget Amendments

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • The Senate on Wednesday voted against changing the Constitution to require a balanced budget as Congress hit yet another dead end in its search for a way out of its fiscal morass.

Two proposals for balanced budget amendments were doomed by the partisanship that dominates Congress. All but one Republican voted against a Democratic measure, and every Democrat opposed the GOP-backed version. Amendments to the Constitution must be approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate and three-fourths of state legislatures.

With the votes, Congress fulfilled a commitment to take up balanced budget amendments that were part of the agreement last summer to raise the government’s debt limit in exchange for $2 trillion in future spending cuts.

The House held its vote last month, falling 23 votes short of reaching the two-thirds majority.

How They Voted

Idaho’s two senators voted for the GOP version of the balanced budget amendment. Here’s what they said about the measure:

Sen. Mike Crapo: “The national debt is at $15 trillion and rising. In 1997, a balanced budget amendment failed to pass the Senate by just one vote. Since then, Congress has added nearly $10 trillion to our national debt. It’s time for the excess spending to stop. It’s time to put our fiscal house in order. A balanced budget amendment, like the one we have in Idaho, would cap spending and bind each successive Congress in perpetuity.”

Sen. Jim Risch: “Since I came to Washington, Congress has borrowed between $4 and $5 billion every day. This reckless spending must stop. A balanced budget amendment would require Congress to do what it has repeatedly tried and failed — to rein in rampant overspending. It is the only collar that will control Congress since it has no self control. I will continue to advocate for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution like almost every state already has.”

Survey Finds 1 in 4 Women Hurt in Domestic Violence

ATLANTA (AP) • It’s a startling number: 1 in 4 women surveyed by the government say they were violently attacked by their husbands or boyfriends.

Experts in domestic violence don’t find it too surprising, although some aspects of the survey may have led to higher numbers than are sometimes reported.

Even so, a government official who oversaw the research called the results “astounding.”

“It’s the first time we’ve had this kind of estimate”

on the prevalence of intimate partner violence, said Linda Degutis of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The survey, released by the CDC Wednesday, marks the beginning of a new annual project to look at how many women say they’ve been abused.

One expert called the new report’s estimate on rape and attempted rape “extremely high” — with 1 in 5 women saying they were victims. About half of those cases involved intimate partners.

Treasury Sells 30-year Bonds at a Record Low Yield

NEW YORK (AP) • High demand for U.S. government debt pushed the yield on the 30-year Treasury bond down to a record low Wednesday.

Worsening concerns about Europe's latest efforts to contain its debt crisis are keeping demand brisk for Treasury securities. The Treasury Department sold $13 billion worth of 30-year bonds at a record low yield of 2.925 percent.

Investors bid $3.05 for every dollar of bonds up for sale, much higher than the average of $2.81 over the past four auctions. Nomura securities analysts said in a note to clients that investors had an “insatiable appetite” for Treasurys.

NEW YORK • Ah, the warm feelings of the holidays: Comfort and joy. Good cheer.

And buyer's remorse.

People who rushed to snag discounts on TVs, toys and other gifts are quickly returning them for much-needed cash. The shopping season started out strong for stores, but it looks like the spending binge has given way to a holiday hang-over.

Return rates spiked when the Great Recession struck and have stayed high. For every dollar stores take in this holiday season, they'll have to give back 9.9 cents in returns, up from 9.8 last year, according to the National Retail Federation's survey of 110 retailers. In better economic times, it's about 7 cents.

This time of year, fractions of a penny add up. Stores are expected to ring up $453 billion during the holiday season. Merchants make up to 40 percent of their annual sales in the last two months of the year.

Returns are typically associated more with January than December. After all, that hot pink sweater with yellow stars on the sleeves may not be exactly what your sister had in mind. But these days, more is going back before it ever gets to Santa's sack.

“When the bills come in and the money isn't there, you have to return,” says Jennifer Kersten, 33, of Miami. She spent $300 the day after Thanksgiving on books, movies and clothes for her nephews. Last week she returned half of it.

Some reasons for the many unhappy returns:

- Shoppers are binging on big discounts. Stores are desperate to get people in the door. But the same shoppers who find a “60 percent off” tag too good to resist may realize at home that they busted the budget.
- Stores have made it easier to take things back. Nordstrom is letting online shoppers return items at no extra charge this year. It used to charge $6. Other stores are offering more time to return or rolling out “no questions asked” policies — no tag or receipt required. But that can backfire.

“Spurring more returns wasn't part of the plan,” says Al Sambar, a retail strategist for consulting firm Kurt Salmon.

- Stores are undercutting each other in a tough economy. Wanda Vazquez spent $39.99 at a New York Target on iPad speakers for her 12-year-old daughter, then returned them when she found something similar for $16.99 at Marshalls.

Consumer electronics in particular are being returned at a rapid clip. Stores and manufacturers are expected to spend $17 billion re-boxing, repairing, restocking and reselling electronics this year, up 21 percent from four years ago.

At about half of the 100 electronics manufacturers and stores surveyed by Accenture, a consulting firm, return rates have increased over the past three to five years. Most of the items are returned without flaws.

Twin Falls entrepreneur Jeff Sanstrom has developed Web-based software to help farmers and dairymen quickly track their shipments.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

bguire@magicvalley.com

Silage and silicon continue to blend in modern agriculture, and local entrepreneur Jeff Sanstrom has based his business around this shift in philosophy.

Sanstrom has developed MyScaleNet.com, a website that allows farmers, dairymen and others to compile reports on how their goods are moved and weighed in real time.

For example, drivers hauling cut hay can upload information from a weigh station to the website for instant tracking. Gone is the need to keep paper records and follow up with the arduous task of calculating a season's worth of data into a final report.

Companies can also track commodity shipments to make sure their loads are reaching the correct destinations.

“We take out the headache of manually managing each transaction as it happens,” Sanstrom said.

The company he co-owns with his sister was founded nearly 13 years ago, he said, when a customer approached him about programming a weigh scale to report a weight on a ticket that could be printed out, thus eliminating some hand-finished paperwork. From there, he recruited other software developers to help him build a program to help clients track multiple commodities going to multiple locations.

The key to making it work was putting the software online. That way, the customer doesn't have to invest in expensive hardware or install periodical updates to computer software. Everything is done through a web browser.

Sanstrom Sale Co. of Twin Falls. MyScaleNet.com manages between 2,000 and 3,000 transactions per day, Sanstrom said, and his client base reaches from California to South Carolina. Future products include a system to track employee movements to make sure work is being completed on time. If a worker oversleeps a 2 a.m. milking and doesn't clock in, a text will be sent to the employee first and then to a supervisor.

“It's like a time clock on steroids,” he said.

There are also plans to create smart-phone apps for Apple and Android systems, to further help users access their information on the go.

MENTORS TAKE YOUTH ON FIRST DOE HUNTS

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

Going on a mentored hunt in late November — and harvesting her first mule deer — is something Ciera Carney will never forget.

“Doing all the scouting stuff was my favorite part,” the 14-year-old Twin Falls girl said.

Ciera was one of 13 Magic Valley youth who participated in a mentor-youth hunt hosted Nov. 15-30 by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game’s Magic Valley office. This was the first time the region’s office held a mentor hunt, said volunteer coordinator Clayton Nielson, one of the mentors. It was patterned after a similar hunt in the Salmon region.

It wasn’t just the youth who had a good experience.

“I had a lot of mentors come back and say it was the most fun they’ve had

Take a Ski Lesson So You Don’t Do This ...

One of the best times I had skiing was as a teenager. I went with my brother-in-law, Dave, to California’s Big Bear Mountain, and since I didn’t have my own skis, he loaned me a set. They fit just right.

But that didn’t stop me from breaking one of them.

I was a beginner skier, see, but when we were together Dave and I would do daredevil things — like tackling a slope geared for more experienced skiers. That’s when I got tangled up after hitting a small jump.

Surprisingly, I landed the jump. But I had a tough time controlling my speed afterward. I crashed into Dave, somersaulted into the air, and landed in a snowbank.

“Are you OK?” Dave asked, picking himself up.

“I’m not sure,” I said, my legs twisted, my eyes peeled at the gray sky above.

After he helped me up, I saw a ski sticking out of the snow. He pulled it out. It had broken, cut nearly in half.

But all Dave did was laugh. “Better the ski than your leg,” he said.

My advice: Be more wise on skis than I was. You’ll have the chance to prove your wisdom at Magic Mountain and Pomerelle Mountain resorts, which are offering special lesson packages this season.

• Magic Mountain is offering a one-hour ski/snowboard class and lift tickets for four Saturdays in January and February. Cost: $75.

• Pomerelle is offering four- or six-week lift tickets and instruction, Sundays in January and February. Cost: $90 or $130.

You’ll have to contact the resorts for more information — or the Twin Falls Parks and Recreation office at 736-2265 — but it sounds like something worthy if you want to lessen your chances of getting hurt on the slopes ... or breaking a ski.

MELISSA’S PICKS

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

Looking for gifts for your winter outdoor sports-loving family?

I checked out local businesses to find the best presents for people who want to stay active, even when the temperatures are chilly. Whether they’re fans of jogging or hitting the slopes, they’ll be thrilled with these presents.

1. Vibram FiveFingers Men’s KomodoSport running shoes, $109.99 Claude’s Sports, 1585 Fillmore St., Twin Falls

Winter is no excuse not to go running, even if the popular barefoot running is your style.

These shoes are among Claude’s Sports top sellers, said co-owner Kathy Hinkle. Vibram FiveFingers come in different styles, ranging in price from $84.94 to $109.99.

This particular pair has a reinforced heavy sole, which makes it ideal for trail running. The soles also offer a bit of extra protection from cold pavement in frigid temperatures, letting your loved one take advantage of this gift year-round.

Still worried about the chill? Hinkle recommends wearing toe socks with them. Sounds like a great stocking stuffer to me.

2. Manzella bubble down gloves, $45 Elevation Sports, 1170 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., Twin Falls

I really, really hate being cold.

So when Jackie Kober of Elevation Sports told me about Manzella bubble down gloves, it immediately caught my attention.

This is among the warmest of Manzella’s glove selection, but they’re not bulky or stiff, leaving the wearer with plenty of flexibility.

The inside is lined with fleece, and the outside has a water repellent shell, making it ideal for extreme winter sports. I tried on a pair, and was impressed with how well I could move my fingers. The gloves come in small, medium and large.

Down jackets are also big sellers this year, Kober said. The higher the quality of down, the lighter and warmer the jacket will be.

3. Men’s Equinox Two In One Jacket, $139.99 Precision Mountainwear, 1139 Addison Ave., Twin Falls

This two-in-one jacket caught my eye for its versatility.

Deenie Dane of Precision Mountainwear showed me how it works. On the inside is a soft shell, which you can detach from the outer coat and wear as a lightweight jacket in spring and fall. When the weather gets colder, zip on the water resistant, breathable outer coat, which comes in different patterns.

Dane recommended it for skiing and snowboarding, but said it works well as a general winter coat, too.

Sadly, this particular jacket doesn’t come in women’s sizes, but Precision Mountainwear does offer two-in-one women’s coats with fleece on the inside.

SUN SHINES ON THE MOUNTAIN, AND KEVIN PEARCE RIDES AGAIN

BY EDDIE PELLIS
Associated Press

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo. • Basking in the sun and snow, surrounded by his fans and friends, Kevin Pearce carved sweet turns down a gentle run called “Springmeier” — kicking up just enough powder behind him to remind people that, yes, this kid can still ride.

The three trips he took down that hill, some might say, were a storybook ending to a life-altering journey that began when Pearce nearly died during a training accident while preparing for the Olympics.

Or was it a new beginning?

“That’s kind of my goal,” Pearce said, “is to continue to have special days like this.”

Yes, Tuesday was a special day — the 24-year-old champion snowboarder’s first trip down the mountain since Dec. 31, 2009, which is when he banged his head on the halfpipe in Utah while trying a difficult trick that, had he pulled it off a few months after that, might have won him a gold medal at the Vancouver Olympics.

Bob Simpson, columnist Rich Simpson's brother, stands with the ducks he retrieved after using decoys while waterfowl hunting Dec. 3 along the Snake River near Blackfoot.

RICH SIMPSON • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Duck Jerky: A No-foul Waterfowl Treat

On a scale from one to 10, the wild game cuts that have traditionally competed for the coveted No. 10 position at my family's dinner table have been sagebrush-fattened pronghorn antelope steaks; the breast meat of their rangeland neighbor, the sage grouse; and, of course, my duck and goose offerings.

After years of trial and error, I'm happy to report that I've finally found a recipe that never fails to please my family's discriminating palates: jerky.

Though it lacks the panache of a Hickory Farms package, my kids and in-laws always remind me to include a vacuum sealed bundle of my jerky in their Christmas stockings. For someone who loves to hunt these animals as much as I do — particularly the more assessable ducks and geese — it's a win-win situation.

Because well-cured jerky does not require refrigeration, it provides a ready-to-eat snack when you're on the road or in the field. Additionally, if it's properly packaged and stored, jerky can be used as a high-calorie supplement to your home/emergency food storage supply.

Though excellent commercial jerky preparations are available, my family favors a simple soy sauce-based recipe for ducks and geese that I found at jerky-faq.com. Check out this and other websites for the basic ingredient list and proportions. Once you've selected your marinade, follow these simple steps for creating excellent jerky.

Preparation. I prefer the European method of keeping uncleaned birds in cold storage in my garage for several days following their harvest. (If this troubles you, simply clean your birds immediately upon returning home.) To collect the meat, I use sheet metal shears to separate the breast from the bird. At this point, I like to trim the meat from the bone, remove the skin and fat, carefully clean and then soak for an hour in a tub of cold, salty water to draw out clotted blood and debris.

Next, I clean, rinse and inspect the meat before patting it dry with a paper towel. Then I place the dry strips into a sealable plastic baggie and slide into the freezer for several hours. This allows the meat to stiffen, which makes cutting it into 1/4- to 1/2-inch strips much easier. For a bolder flavor, I place the meat strips into a food storage bag, pour in my soy-based marinade, seal and refrigerate overnight.

Jerkying the Meat. To jerk the meat, I simply remove it from the bag, shake it over the sink to remove excess fluid, and then place it on the dehydrator racks or cookie sheet oven racks. Dry at a low oven setting (175-200 degrees), or dehydrator temperature around 155 degrees, until the meat is well dried but still pliable.

When done, let cool and then package in an air-tight seal top plastic baggie for immediate use. Vacuum seal and store in a cool, dry place which will allow the jerky to keep for many months.

If your duck and goose recipes have traditionally received a thumbs down reception, give some jerky recipes a try. You may find, as I mentioned in my last column, that you can have your drake and eat it too!

Happy hunting ... and cooking!

Idaho Hunter Ed Teacher Dismissed after Gun Fired

BOISE (AP) • A hunter education instructor in eastern Idaho was dismissed after a loaded handgun brought to class for a demonstration was discharged by a student.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game says no one was injured when the weapon was accidentally fired during the class late Monday in Soda Springs.

The agency prohibits instructors of hunter education courses from bringing live ammunition into the classroom and local police were asked to investigate. Police reported that the volunteer instructor brought the gun and ammunition to class for use as a teaching tool.

After the demonstration, police reported a student who was unaware the gun was loaded discharged the weapon and hit the head of a mounted mule deer.

The instructor was dismissed and counseling made available to the students.

Satellite Gets Pic of Chinese Carrier

BY DAN ELLIOTT
Associated Press

DENVER • A commercial U.S. satellite company said it has captured a photo of China's first aircraft carrier in the Yellow Sea off the Chinese coast.

DigitalGlobe Inc. said Wednesday one of its satellites photographed the carrier Dec. 8. A DigitalGlobe analyst found the image Tuesday while searching through photos.

Stephen Wood, director of DigitalGlobe's analysis center, said he's confident the ship is the Chinese carrier because of the location and date of the photo. The carrier was on a sea trial at the time.

DigitalGlobe, based in Longmont, Colo., sells satellite imagery and analysis to clients that include the U.S. military, emergency response agencies and private companies. DigitalGlobe has three orbiting satellites and a fourth is under construction.

The aircraft carrier has generated intense international interest because of what it might portend about China's intentions as a military power.

The former Soviet Union started building the carrier, which it called the Varyag, but never finished it. When the Soviet Union collapsed, it ended up in the hands of Ukraine, a former Soviet republic.

China bought the ship from Ukraine in 1998 and spent years refurbishing it. It had no engines, weaponry or navigation systems when China acquired it.

China has said the carrier is intended for research and training, which has led to speculation that it plans to build future copies.

China initially said little about its plans for the carrier but has been more open in recent years, said Bonnie S. Glaser, a China expert at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

"It wasn't until the Chinese actually announced they were sending it out on a trial run they admitted, 'Yes, we are actually launching a carrier,'" she said.

China publicly announced two sea trials for the carrier that occurred this year, she said.

Blagojevich Seeks to Enroll in Prison Substance-abuse Course

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO • Convicted former Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich wants to enroll in a substance-abuse program at a federal prison outside of Denver, a move that could shave up to a year off of his prison sentence.

Blagojevich's legal team, however, has downplayed the request, briefly mentioning the drug program by only its acronym in court Tuesday, resulting in hardly anyone noticing among a throng of reporters. A day later, the attorneys declined to comment at all.

But the move raises questions about whether Blagojevich suffers from a real substance abuse problem or is simply angling to reduce his stiff 14-year sentence.

Two former associates of another convicted former Illinois governor, George Ryan, said Wednesday that they remember it didn't take much to get into the Residential Drug Abuse Treatment Program — as little as regularly consuming five alcoholic drinks a week before they had been incarcerated.

"Any defense lawyer in town that's worth their salt all know about this and they all try to get their clients in," said Scott Fawell, Ryan's former chief of staff who cut his sentence by about eight months by completing the drug program at a federal prison in Yankton, S.D.

Study Shows Songbirds Believe What They Hear

BY SARAH C.P. WILLIAMS
ScienceNow

When Franklin D. Roosevelt said we have nothing to fear but fear itself, he could have easily been talking about songbirds.

A new study shows that the mere sound of predators reduces both the number and survival rate of songbird offspring, regardless of the true threat. The finding could have important implications for protecting songbirds and a host of other wildlife.

Ecologist Liana Zanette of the University of Western Ontario and her colleagues studied song sparrows on several of the small Gulf Islands in British Columbia. They surrounded nesting areas with netting and electric fencing to keep out predators and set up speakers broadcasting the sounds of other animals. In some areas, they played the sounds of predators, such as raccoons, hawks and owls. In others, they played nonpredator sounds, including seals, geese and hummingbirds.

Female birds exposed to the sounds of predators showed drastic changes in behavior. They built nests in denser and thornier plants, spent more time watching for predators and less time collecting food, and produced fewer eggs — something that has been linked to lower food consumption.

Once their eggs hatched, the mothers provided less food to their nestlings and did not venture as far in search of food. The birds exposed to predator sounds produced 40 percent fewer fledglings than birds exposed to nonpredator sounds, the team reported Monday in Science.

The findings have wide implications for species conservation, said ecologist and study co-author Michael Clinchy of the University of Victoria. For instance, neutering programs to control feral cat populations operate under the assumption that well-fed feral cats won't harm birds and other wildlife.

"But our results show that the mere presence of this introduced predator is enough to negatively impact native wildlife," Clinchy said. That's especially concerning because many feral cat programs are located in conservation parks.

The new findings, Clinchy said, could also help clear up a long-standing debate about the effectiveness of reintroducing wolves to Yellowstone National Park — an initiative that began in 1995 in an effort to restore native flora and fauna. Proponents of the wolf reintroduction said that wolves, which once thrived in Yellowstone but went extinct in the 1920s, control the elk population, in turn allowing native plants and smaller animals to flourish. But critics said the 50 percent decrease in the elk population since 1995 can't be due to wolves because they don't kill and consume enough elk per year.

"Our results corroborate evidence that wolves are decreasing elk numbers," Clinchy said, "not by killing but by scaring them." Frightened elk, he said, are known to behave similarly to the sparrows exposed to predator sounds — they spend time in safer places and consume less food, leading to decreased offspring.

More research is needed before the results can be applied to other animals, said Thomas Martin, a University of Montana ecologist who was not involved in the study.

"They looked at a single species, and clearly this will differ across species and across habitat types," he said. "This now opens the door to other studies."

F&G Seeks Comments on Upland Game Seasons

Now's a good time for Idaho bird hunters to speak up.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is working on recommendations for furbearer and upland game hunting season rules for 2012-13 and 2013-14.

Final recommendations will be presented to the Fish and Game Commission in January. All rules, except for sage grouse, will be published in one brochure.

Some things to be considered include expanding youth hunting opportunities; moving upland game bird seasons to the third Saturday in September; increasing the chukar/gray partridge bag limit back to eight each; increasing possession limits to three times the daily bag limit; reductions in fall turkey hunting in the southeast and southwest regions; increasing other quotas in the Panhandle, Clearwater and Southeast regions; a few changes to areas open or closed to beaver trapping in the Clearwater and Magic Valley regions.

Sagegrouse seasons will be set separately during the August 2012 commission meeting.

Public comments will be accepted until Jan. 6 at regional meetings or by mail to Upland Game Comments, P.O. Box 25, Boise ID 83707.

We are a participating agency with the United Way and we have a program grant from St. Luke's Magic Valley to fight childhood obesity. Our fitness program is called "It's All About Kids ~ Keeping In Desirable Shape."

During the "KIDS" program, which started in spring of 2010, we weighed and measured the 40 children in our 12 week summer day camp. The results were improvement in weight, body mass index, strength, endurance, coordination and self esteem. We noticed that with training through nutrition classes, healthy mentoring and positive peer pressure that we are meeting our goal to grow healthier kids. This program has allowed us to reinforce the healthy choices and good habits that will affect the quality of life for these children forever. The program continues to be successful.

In addition to our children's programs we also offer a Monday – Friday hot lunch program, emergency food boxes, showers to the homeless, a teen counseling program and Friday night Youth Options to keep teens off the streets and in a safe environment. BONDS' SENTENCING BRINGS BALCO SAGA NEAR A CLOSE

SAN FRANCISCO • The largest federal criminal investigation into sports doping began more than nine years ago with a tax agent digging through the trash of the now notorious Bay Area Laboratory Co-Operative. Barring an appeal, the government's work comes to an anti-climactic end Friday when Barry Bonds — the probe's highest-profile catch — is sentenced for obstruction of justice.

In between, the federal government spent millions of dollars and untold staff hours obtaining the convictions of 11 people. Six of them, including track star Marion Jones, were ensnared for lying to grand jurors, federal investigators or the court. Five men, including Bonds' personal trainer Greg Anderson, pleaded guilty to steroid distribution charges stemming from their BALCO connections.

The investigation in general — and the pursuit of Bonds in particular — ignited a debate over whether the government's long involvement was the best use of public resources.

NEW YORK • LSU's Tyrann Mathieu and Morris Claiborne became the first cornerback teammates to lock down spots on the AP All-America team.

Mathieu, a Heisman Trophy finalist, and Claiborne were joined on the All-America team by Heisman Trophy winner Robert Griffin III of Baylor and finalists Montee Ball of Wisconsin and Trent Richardson of Alabama.

Heisman runner-up Andrew Luck from Stanford was the second-team quarterback.

The team released Wednesday was selected by a panel of 16 AP poll voters.

The second-ranked Crimson Tide had the most first-teamers with four. Richardson was joined by tackle Barrett Jones, linebacker Dont'a Hightower and safety Mark Barron. CANYON RIDGE HOSTING BOXING SMOKER SATURDAY

TIMES-NEWS

Canyon Ridge is capitalizing on the popularity of boxing smokers in Magic Valley.

The Riverhawk football team will host its first fundraising smoker Saturday night at the high school gymnasium, starting at 7 p.m.

Canyon Ridge football coach Dave Slotten, who's organizing the event, estimated that about 24 bouts will take place featuring a "variety of people from different places" in the area.

"We've had two weeks to really watch the kids and the pairings, for the most part, should be really good," Slotten said. "They've all been trained by boxing people — a lot of people in the community giving up their time for two weeks — and their efforts have definitely shown. Hopefully we don't get a whole lot of freestyle (fighting) in there. The hope is that the kids will want to box a little bit."

Each bout will consist of three 60-second rounds. Slotten said there will be a handful of Twin Falls-Canyon Ridge matchups, adding that he hoped it would add some spice to the night in a good way.

General admission tickets are available for $8 in advance, $10 at the gate. Ringside seats are $12 in advance, or $15 at the door.

Tickets may be purchased at Canyon Ridge, from any Canyon Ridge football player, or from Slotten at 308-7552.

Hot Start Carries Declo Past Gooding

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

DECLO • Declo was on fire in the first half.

Good thing, because they needed that lingering heat to overcome a frigid second half.

Seth Baker had 17 points, eight rebounds and three steals as Declo prevailed in its Canyon Conference opener, 60-51 over Gooding on Wednesday.

"We knew we had to get out to a quick start and shut them down; our main goal was defense."

Kai Garner, Declo player

Baker netted 12 of his points in the first half as Declo (3-3 overall, 1-0 Canyon) took control in small spurts — a 9-0 run in the first quarter, a 7-0 run early in the second, and an 8-0 run capped by a Hayden Hanson's buzzer beater heading into halftime.

"We knew we had to get out to a quick start and shut them down; our main goal was defense," said Declo's Kai Garner, who had 12 points, eight rebounds and five steals.

Declo's biggest lead was 18, but the Hornets went cold in an eight-minute slump without a field goal in the second half.

"I think we got kind of lazy and we started rushing things and forcing passes into areas that weren't open," Garner said. "And we didn't play very good defense, either. We didn't move very well in our zones."

Led by 14 points from Jared Parke and 13 from Carter Flora, Gooding (3-3, 1-1) rallied to make it a six-point game with 5:12 remaining. That's as close as the Senators got. Declo won it from the foul line, converting 8-of-12 down the stretch while Gooding hit just one shot from the field in the final five minutes.

"They're good," Gooding coach Joey Zubizarreta said of Declo. "They're athletic in every position. They're fast and they can all shoot. If you give them easy looks, it doesn't matter if its two-foot jumpers or threes, they're going to hit it."

For a Gooding squad that won only four games last season, confidence and gusto from the get-go seems to be missing, despite evident talent and athleticism.

"I don't think we realize what we have this year. It's something real

SPOTTY BRUINS STILL GOOD ENOUGH TO WIN

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

Twin Falls moved to 4-1 on the season with its 49-42 win over Filer on Friday, but the Bruins weren't exactly overjoyed about the victory.

"It's the same story as Saturday," said senior guard Eric Harr, referring to an earlier game between the two schools, which the Bruins won by six. "We're not clicking like we should be. There's something missing and we're not really sure what it is right now."

It looked like Twin Falls found it in stretches, dominating a second quarter in which it stretched its lead from three to 11 in what seemed like an eye-blink. Steals, defensive rebounds and a quick transition game led to a pair of 3-pointers and another easy bucket.

"That's when we're at our best," said Harr, who led all scorers and rebounders with 18 and nine, respectively. "We like to push the tempo after made baskets, and we got a couple rebounds and were able to get it going for a little bit. ... Our motto is '32 minutes, 94 feet,' and that's obviously not going to happen, but we need to get as many minutes going like that as we can. We're not there yet."

Filer (4-3) had chances to get back into the game, and managed to pull within six late on. But the Wildcats missed nine of their 18 free throws and shot just 28 percent from the field.

They were left to wonder what might have been if they had shot better, even if they were grateful for playing a team of such high standing.

"Twin has a great program, and coach (Matt) Harr has done such a great job," said Filer senior Ryan Karel, who scored 12 before fouling out late. “We’re glad to go up against some of the better teams (around) because that shows us what we need to work on to get ready for our conference and districts.”

By playing Class 4A out-fits Burley, Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge, Filer hopes to be in good stead when it comes to entering Class 3A Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference action against Buhl and Kimberly.

If the kind of game the Wildcats played in their last two outings against the Bruins, they could just run teams into the ground.

“They’re a scrappy team, and they’re really quick, which can be tough for us to get back on because we’ve got a bunch of lankier guys,” said Twin Falls senior Robert Sanchez. “We couldn’t put them away, which was frustrating.”

The Bruins open Great Basin Conference play on Friday at Wood River, while Filer is off until Dec. 29 when it plays in Payette’s holiday tournament.

good and we need to just figure it out,” said Gooding senior guard Jacob Becker, who added 10 points.

On the other side, Declo’s confidence seems to improve each game under new coach Val Christensen. The Hornets, which bounced back from a disappointing loss to Aberdeen the night before, now seek consistency.

“We did summer ball, but it’s still taken a long time to get used to all the offenses, and team chemistry has gotten a lot better,” Garner said.

Barring an appeal, Barry Bonds is scheduled to be sentenced Friday in San Francisco, bringing the federal government’s nearly decade-long investigation of a Northern California-based steroids ring to an anti-climactic end.

Bonds

More than seven years after he testified before a grand jury investigating BALCO, Major League Baseball’s all-time home runs leader was convicted on just one of four remaining counts against him. And the jury deadlocked on whether Bonds lied about taking performance enhancing drugs.

Now, federal sentencing guidelines suggest a prison term of between 15 months and 21 months. But federal probation officers are recommending that Bonds receive no time, citing his charitable work, the nature of the crime and his otherwise spotless criminal record. U.S. District Judge Susan Illston has sentenced two other BALCO figures convicted of similar crimes to probation and house arrest.

Was it all worth it? “It absolutely was,” said MacGregor Scott, the former U.S. attorney for Sacramento, now in private practice at Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe. “It brought a focus and awareness to the steroids issue that wasn’t there before.”

Scott said prosecutors had to go after Bonds once they concluded he lied to the grand jury when he denied knowingly using performance-enhancing drugs and said he allowed only doctors to inject him. Dozens of other athletes testified truthfully, Scott said.

“There aren’t two sets of laws, one for Bonds and one for everybody else,” Scott said. “The grand jury is the bedrock of the criminal justice system in the United States.”

The probe did lead directly to former U.S. Sen. George Mitchell’s in-depth investigation of drug use in Major League Baseball and his seminal Mitchell Report, which in turn prompted MLB and its players’ union to strengthen their steroids policy.

Yet the relatively short list of convictions leaves some, perhaps most notably the BALCO founder himself, unimpressed.

“Obviously, the BALCO case brought about a greater public awareness regarding the rampant use of drugs at the elite level of sport, which is a good thing,” said Victor Conte, the BALCO founder and president — who spent four months in prison after pleading guilty to steroids distribution. “As the BALCO case comes to a close, I don’t think it was the highest and best use of the tens of millions of taxpayer dollars that were spent on the case.”

Bonds will have 14 days after his sentencing to file a notice of appeal.

The trial itself ended ambiguously in April about three weeks after it began.

The jury concluded Bonds purposely evaded responding during testimony to a grand jury investigating steroids distribution in sports with a rambling non sequitur to a question about drug injections, and the jurors convicted him of obstruction of justice.

FORMER BSU ASST. COACH RETURNS TO THE BLUE

IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

Many members of the Ohio Bobcats football team insists they are thrilled to be in Boise this week.

Despite a Tweet last week from the team’s punter that questioned playing in a cold-weather bowl, members of the Mid-American Conference runner-up Bobcats said they like the idea of playing on the blue turf at Bronco Stadium in Saturday’s Famous Idaho Potato Bowl.

“I was really excited — I’m not being told to say this by anyone — it’s my personal feeling,” two-time MAC first-team offensive lineman Joe Flading said. “I knew the MAC had tie-ins with three bowls and Boise was the bowl that I wanted to go to.”

Ohio (9-4) will play Utah State (7-5) at 3:30 p.m. at Bronco Stadium. The game will be televised nationally on ESPN.

One person familiar with the Boise-based bowl game spoke to Ohio before the team departed from Athens, Ohio.

Bobcats linebackers coach Ron Collins spent 2001 through 2005 on the sidelines at Bronco Stadium as linebackers coach and defensive coordinator at Boise State. His final game on the blue turf was against Boston College in the 2005 Humanitarian Bowl.

“It’s exciting to be in a bowl game and to come back to Boise,” Collins said.

“I’ve coached in it twice. I got a chance to express my feelings about what a great bowl it is and what a great experience it is. I think our guys are excited to have another opportunity to have a game and it doesn’t matter where we play. I don’t think anybody has any reservations about whether it’s cold or warm or whatever, it’s an opportunity to play Utah State, who’s an excellent team.”

ordinator at Colorado. When Hawkins was fired last winter, Collins took the linebackers job at Ohio. Ohio defensive coordinator Jimmy Burrow was Collins’ position coach when Collins was a defensive back at Washington State (1983-87).

Collins said he intends to use his time back in Boise to first get ready for the game, and secondly to get in touch with friends in town. He expects to wander in to the football offices at Bronco Stadium to say hello to some old friends.

“(They are) all good friends of mine, so I plan on hooking up with those guys at some point,” Collins said.

State for the most players selected overall.

The LSU duo was joined on the first team by Tigers punter Brad Wing. LSU guard Will Blackwell was a second-team selection and defensive end Sam Montgomery made the third team.

The top-ranked Tigers will play SEC West rival Alabama on Jan. 9 in New Orleans for the BCS title.

Since the AP began selecting both an offensive and defensive team in 1964, no team had put a pair of cornerbacks on the first team. Of course, few teams have had two cornerbacks as talented as Mathieu and Claiborne.

Mathieu, also known as Honey Badger, has been a mayhem-maker for LSU on defense and special teams. He forced five fumbles, intercepted two passes and scored four touchdowns — two on punt returns, two on fumble returns. The 5-foot-9, 180-pound sophomore also had 71 tackles and was versatile enough to be moved around the defense at times.

Claiborne is a prototypical shutdown corner. The 6-1 junior made six interceptions and averaged 29 yards per return, with a touchdown.

“We have one of the best defenses in the country,” Mathieu said. “We’ve got a lot of NFL talent in our secondary, and our defense as a whole.”

The talented tandem was a major reason why LSU (13-0) heads to the BCS national championship game against Alabama with a pass defense ranked third in opponents’ efficiency, ninth in yards allowed per game and second in fewest touchdown passes allowed.

Oklahoma State also had six selections on the three teams, including wide receiver Justin Blackmon, one of two players to be selected to the first team for the second straight season. Blackmon caught 113 passes for 1,336 yards and 15 touchdowns.

The Cowboys also placed safety Markelle Martin on the second team, and center Grant Garner, tackle Levy Adcock, cornerback Brodrick Brown and kicker Quinn Sharp on the third team

Graham Bolts Pitt For ASU

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TEMPE, Ariz. • Arizona State has hired Todd Graham as its next football coach.

Arizona State athletic director Lisa Love announced Wednesday that Graham will replace Dennis Erickson, who was dismissed following a 6-6 season in which the Sun Devils dropped their final four games.

Graham spent just one season in Pittsburgh, where he led the Panthers to a 6-6 mark and a tie for second place in the Big East.

The move caps a tumultuous season for the Panthers, who announced in September that they're leaving the Big East for the ACC by 2014 and will now be looking for their fourth head coach in the last 13 months.

Graham is 49-29 in a six-year head coaching career that includes stops at Tulsa and Rice.

"Criteria for our head coach was established, and the word that was at the forefront of discussions was 'energy'... energy toward promoting our program in the community and with former players," Love said in a statement. "Energy towards instilling discipline, leadership and in recruiting. Energy toward representing our brand

There's an old saying that if you come back to the place where you became a man, you will remember all those things you need to be happy... That saying never made sense to me, but I thought it was worth a try.

PRO PICKS

Bradys Vs. Tebows In Spotlight

ASSOCIATED PRESS

In honor of Pro Picks' skill at picking Best Bets — 2-12 against the spread, no winners since Week 6 — we offer a Worst Bet to go along with it this week.

First, though, a look at the juiciest game on the schedule, the Bradys vs. the Tebows, uh, the Patriots against the Broncos in Denver.

For those still in wonderment over the Broncos' six-game winning streak built on a solid defense and the magic of quarterback Tim Tebow late in games, Patriots coach Bill Belichick offers this:

"We brought Tim in and spent a whole day with him here, in addition to our other interactions with him. He's an impressive young man. He had great success in college. I think all his attributes are pretty well documented. He's a strong guy, smart, works hard, a great leader, great football character."

Sounds like Belichick is a believer, too. But his Patriots can clinch the AFC East with a win. New England's defense has been torn up by two weak offenses, Indianapolis and Washington, the last two weeks, yet the Patriots still have won five in a row. Win this and Belichick can tool with the D as the playoffs approach.

Las Vegas doesn't adhere to Tebowmania, apparently, making New England a 6-point favorite. We sort of believe — by a point.

PATRIOTS, 23-18

Cleveland (plus 7) at Arizona
Browns come off long layoff, which won't help against streaking Cardinals.
BEST BET: CARDINALS, 27-14
New York Jets (plus 2 1-2) at Philadelphia
Jets are 0-8 against Eagles. Make it 0-9. But it's so dangerous to trust Philly.
WORST BET: EAGLES, 21-17
Detroit (minus 1) at Oakland
Raiders must send Lions into Black Hole or forget about postseason.
UPSET SPECIAL: RAIDERS, 24-23
Jacksonville (plus 11) at Atlanta, Thursday night
Falcons can put vice grip on wild-card berth.
FALCONS, 28-15
Dallas (minus 7) at Tampa Bay, Saturday
So close to being comfortable, Dallas now is desperate.
COWBOYS, 27-17
Washington (plus 7) at New York Giants
If Giants win out, they are in playoffs. Nice place to start.
GIANTS, 30-20

Green Bay (minus 13 1-2) at Kansas City
At least Todd Haley won't have to watch this from the sideline.
PACKERS, 33-13
New Orleans (minus 7) at Minnesota
Saints won't need missed call by officials on last play to win.
SAINTS, 33-13
Baltimore (minus 2 1-2) at San Diego
Ravens are league's most-balanced team, but struggle on road.
RAVENS, 21-20
Seattle (plus 4) at Chicago
Both teams trying to stay in wild-card chase. Bears barely will.

BEARS, 16-13
Carolina (plus 6 1-2) at Houston
With first playoff berth secured, Texans seek AFC's top seed.
TEXANS, 31-20
Tennessee (minus 6 1-2) at Indianapolis
Two years ago, Colts were unbeaten at this point. They remain winless ...
TITANS, 17-14
Cincinnati (minus 6 1-2) at St. Louis
If things break right, Bengals can take control of final wild-card again.
BENGALS, 20-7
Pittsburgh (OFF) at San Francisco, Monday night

Wonder what the spread would have been if Ben Roethlisberger was healthy.
49ERS, 20-17
Miami (OFF) at Buffalo
Lovely way to spend a December after-noon for Floridians.
DOLPHINS, 16-13

RECORD:
Against spread: 6-7 (overall 101-89-4); straight up 12-4 (overall 135-73).
Best Bet: 2-12 against spread, 9-5 straight up.
Upset Special: 9-5 against spread, 7-7 straight up.

Notice of Public Hearing

Lincoln County Board of Commissioners will hold a public Hearing

On December 27th 2011 at 1:00pm

Lincoln County Court house In the Commissioners room
111 West B Street Shoshone, Idaho

The purpose of the hearing is for public input on amendments to the Water Quality section and the addition of an implementation section of the Coordinated Water Resource Management Plan. A summary of the proposed changes to the plan follows and a completer text of the proposed changes can be obtained at the County Clerk's Office in Cassia, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln and Twin Falls Counties Monday through Friday during the hours of 9: to 5:00pm. Gooding County Offices are closed on Fridays.

The proposed revisions will correct grammar, errors and update wording in the Water Quality section of the plan. The Preface has been changed to delete Minidoka county as a member county and the description of the Planning Area reflects this change. The Situation Statement has been revised to include aquatic nuisance species, recharge, cloud seeding, climate change and federal mandates and court decisions. Aquaculture facilities are now included under the Situation Statement for CAFO's. Item 19 under Policy Statements pertaining to water usage and diversions has been deleted. A section on aquatic nuisances species has been added which includes goals, objectives and strategies for preventing the introduction of these species. This section calls for education of the public, law enforcement, sportsmen and recreational groups. It also promotes the development of boat and equipment cleaning stations at recreation areas in the region. The Hydro Power situation statement has been updated and a new strategy A01.a has been added to ensure there are no negative impacts to water quality from modifications to existing facilities. The Private, Municipal and Industrial waste treatment section has been revised to include commercial enterprises and the term "Middle Snake River" used throughout this section has been revised to "waters of the region". Goal B, Strategy B01.b has been added requiring commercial and light industrial land uses to use municipal waste treatment systems unless there is insufficient capacity and what a developer must base their plans on when constructing private systems. B01.c has been added calling for increased monitoring and enforcement of regulations for certain commercial and light industrial uses. B01.f has also been added encouraging continued monitoring for pharmaceuticals in ground waters of the region. Goal C with objectives and strategies has been added to this section dealing with the development of heavy industry in the region. The purpose of this Goal is to protect surface and ground water quality within the region as it relates to heavy industry development. A waste treatment plan must include a contingency plan and assure there will be no negative impact from the escape or discharge of pollutants. This goal also calls for the construction of monitoring wells, Proper handling of commodity storage and solid waste landfills, dust and smoke stack remediation plans. The Field Agricultural Situation Statement has been updated to reflect the current number of farms, number of acres farmed and economic data. The goals, objectives and strategies of the Field Agricultural section has minor changes to correct spelling and phrases. Strategy B02.g was added to promote research and the use of approved genetically engineered crops to reduce the use of pesticides and fertilizer. The Animal Agriculture Situation Statement has been changed to reflect current economic information for livestock operations. The definition of a Concentrated animal feeding operation (CAFO) has been changed to the definition used by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). A definition of an animal unit has been removed from the plan as each member county has their own definition of an animal unit. Strategies B01.a, b, d, e, f and g have been eliminated and incorporated under new Strategies B01a, b and c. B01e is new and encourages monitoring for pharmaceuticals in ground and surface water. B01f is also new and encourages increased monitoring and enforcement of regulations for chemical storage, mixing, application, waste disposal and spills including fuel storage. The Ground Water Recharge Situation Statement has been changed to reflect current information and recognize the Comprehensive Aquifer Management Plan (CAMP) in the recharge portion of the plan concerning the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer. Strategy A01.d was eliminated under ground water recharge since the concern was already covered by strategy A01c. In the Definition Section the definitions for Chemical, Nutrient, Organic and Sediment Contaminates are removed and replaced by a definition for Contaminates as defined by the EPA. The definitions for Commercial and industrial properties is eliminated since both are defined by the member counties. A definition for Evapotranspiration (ET) has been added which is Water that is transpired from the leaves of plants and evaporated from the soil. Definitions have been added for NPDES, NRCS, TMDL as the abbreviations are used within the plan. A definition of wetlands has been included as defined by the EPA.

A new section, The Drinking Water Protection Plan, has been added to the Water Quality portion of the Coordinated Water Resource Management Plan. The purpose of this section is to address the concerns of cities and drinking water associations in protecting source water from contamination. The plan allows cities and member counties to work together in forming community advisory boards, delineating water protection areas, identifying potential sources of contamination, managing drinking water protection areas and planning for the future. This section outlines regulatory and non-regulatory approaches to protecting source water from contaminant sources within drinking water protection areas. Protection areas will be defined by the cities, drinking water associations and counties and set forth by overlays to county zoning maps. The Drinking Water Protection Plan will be implemented by the adoption of a Drinking Water Protection Ordinance by each county. A sample ordinance is attached to this section of the plan. The implementation will include an overlay to the county zoning map, an inventory of potential sources of contamination and the recognition of a contingency plan for contamination. The sample ordinance defines various water protection overlay districts depending on the time of travel for source water. Each district includes a description of land uses that will or won't be allowed with the county being the ultimate authority for land situated outside the city limits or the boundaries of a water association.

A new section to the Coordinated Water Resource Management Plan titled Implementation is added. The implementation portion of the plan reflects the way the plan has been adopted by the member counties. It calls for the application of policies included in the plan to apply to policies, resolutions and ordinances adopted by the member counties. It call for coordination with planning and zoning commissions of the member counties as well as state and federal government agencies. It also calls for education, adoption and practice of water quality protection and conservation measure both in county facilities and new development. It further mandates that the plan must be continually reviewed and update as needed.

Any person may attend the hearing and written and/or oral testimony shall be taken. Written testimony may be sent to the Lincoln County Commissioners at the address set forth above on or before the hearing date.

Today is Thursday, Dec. 15, the 349th day of 2011. There are 16 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Dec. 15, 1961, former Nazi official Adolf Eichmann was sentenced to death by an Israeli court for crimes against humanity. (Eichmann was hanged 5½ months later.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1791, the Bill of Rights went into effect following ratification by Virginia.

In 1890, Sioux Indian Chief Sitting Bull and 11 other tribe members were killed in Grand River, S.D., during a confrontation with Indian police.

In 1911, jazz musician, composer and bandleader Stan Kenton was born in Wichita, Kan.

In 1938, groundbreaking for the Jefferson Memorial took place in Washington with President Franklin D. Roosevelt taking part in the ceremony.

In 1939, the motion picture "Gone With the Wind" had its world premiere in Atlanta.

In 1944, a single-engine plane carrying bandleader Glenn Miller, a major in the U.S. Army Air Forces, disappeared over the English Channel while en route to Paris. American forces invaded Mindoro Island in the Philippines.

In 1965, two U.S. manned spacecraft, Gemini 6A and Gemini 7, maneuvered to within 10 feet of each other while in orbit.

In 1971, the Secret Service appointed its first five female special agents.

In 1989, a popular uprising began in Romania that resulted in the downfall of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

In 1991, an Egyptian-registered ferry, the Salem Express, hit a reef and sank in the Red Sea; at least 470 people died, although some estimates are much higher.

Ten years ago: With a crash and a large dust cloud, a 50-foot tall section of steel — the last standing piece of the World Trade Center's facade — was brought down in New York. The Leaning Tower of Pisa, Italy, was reopened to the public after a $27 million realignment that had dragged on for over a decade. Evander Holyfield was denied a fifth heavyweight championship when his third fight against John Ruiz was called a draw after 12 rounds in Mashantucket, Conn.

Five years ago: Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld bid farewell to the Pentagon in a splashy send-off featuring lavish praise from President George W. Bush. Gov. Jeb Bush suspended Florida executions two days after the prolonged death of a condemned inmate because the needles had been wrongly inserted. (Florida's moratorium was lifted in July 2007.) In San Francisco, a federal judge declared California's lethal-injection procedure unconstitutional.

One year ago: The U.N. Security Council gave a unanimous vote of confidence to the government of Iraq by lifting 19-year-old sanctions on weapons and civilian nuclear power. Time magazine named Mark Zuckerberg, the 26-year-old co-founder and CEO of Facebook, its Person of the Year. Movie producer, director and writer Blake Edwards, 88, died in Santa Monica, Calif. Baseball Hall of Famer Bob Feller died in Cleveland at age 92. The New York Jets suspended assistant coach Sal Alosi indefinitely after they discovered he'd ordered five inactive players to form a wall along the sideline for a punt return, during which he tripped Miami Dolphins player Nolan Carroll.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"A nice man is a man of nasty ideas."

— Jonathan Swift

Bridge is as full of cliches and aphorisms as any sporting activity. A phrase that gets used a lot is the "power of the closed hand." It means that declarer, by leading toward his own hand, the unknown quantity, can put the defenders under a lot of pressure. Consider today's deal, which arose at Board-a-Match, which is a strange hybrid form of scoring. Each team takes on another at pairs scoring, and whoever does better on the board gets a point, regardless of the margin of victory. This leads to attempting to justify nonbridge decisions — which was my excuse for opening one no-trump with the South cards.

After a transfer and a mildly aggressive invitational raise by my partner, I declared four spades. Of course this auction has protected all the side suits, but the 4-1 trump split and the heart-honor location made the game contract extremely tough, given the third-and-fifth lead of the heart three. A full point was at stake, since in the other room two spades had produced nine tricks.

Having won my heart queen at trick one, I decided to put East under pressure by playing the diamond ace, ruffing a diamond in dummy, then leading back a small heart. Falling for the bait, East rose with the ace, then shifted to a club. I put in the 10, and when it won, only the bad trump break held me to 10 tricks.

ANSWER: This is a takeout double. Your partner rates to have a singleton heart and at least three cards in both spades and diamonds. While the 6-2 club fit might be a possible contract, playing two spades looks equally attractive, given your good spade spots. So I would bid two spades now.

A GREAT WAY TO SEARCH FOR YOUR NEW HOME!

IF DECEMBER 15 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: A surge of social activity may go to your head or give you illusions of grandeur. Unfortunately, your ability to make sound financial decisions is lessened until after the middle of January. Be extremely conscientious about paying bills and meeting deadlines. Don't accumulate debt and wait patiently until March to make changes to finances, job or career. In May, the planetary alignments will smile on your dreams and provide you with opportunities to improve your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pull your own weight. It might be a good time to demonstrate your willingness to cooperate with others by splitting the tab or doing your fair share. You can help out when others are in obvious need.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Flirt till it hurts. A sprig of mistletoe might give you an excuse to get closer to someone you've had your eye on. You can take a break for a social lunch with co-workers while you are in the mood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get seen on the scene. Make appearances wherever and whenever invited to upgrade your reputation. Demonstrate community spirit by being generous and you will be rewarded with new friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make some headway with holiday gift-giving. You can apply business logic to your choices and quickly get many people crossed off your list. Make key phone calls; discuss facts and analyze numbers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Whisk away the risks. Your enthusiasms and unconquerable energy may bubble up to blind you to unsound gambles. You should only take dynamic action if it makes sense with your dollars and cents.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It is often a case of easy come, easy go. It is possible that you must sacrifice something to make a partner happy. Do not let guilt spoil the day, as harmony is easily restored and money is meant to be spent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The razzle-dazzle can dazzle you. If you have been overly self-disciplined about spending recently, then something that glimmers, glows and heightens your fantasies may be very difficult to resist.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get inspired, not mired, in detail. Caring old cronies might share valuable advice and uplifting tales that stimulate your thinking processes. If you can't afford to donate money donate time to a worthy cause.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have the vision and scope to act on far-reaching leaps of faith. Anything you can imagine can become a reality. You could have wild ideas; stay carefully within the bounds of decorum.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tread softly, speak gently. An overly businesslike manner may make others think you are unsympathetic. Under all of your bravado, however, you are like a chocolate candy that is melted by human warmth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Purchase a few stocking stuffers or attend a lunch to touch base with friends. Get social obligations and small holiday niceties out of the way, so you can attend to more pressing concerns this week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your popularity can pop. Shrewdly keep your face in front of the public. Holiday functions and community activities may mean lots of meetings to attend, so make room in your appointment book.

WEDDING SHOP

DEAR ABBY: “Saddened in New Jersey” (Oct. 2) complained that her sister’s 4-year-old daughter put stickers on the hands and face of her deceased grandmother during her wake. Perhaps the child’s mother didn’t anticipate her daughter’s actions. Children need to grieve, too. That said, they also should behave appropriately. I saw an article about one funeral home with an excellent solution. Before the dearly departed is placed in the casket, the inside fabric, pillow, etc. are removed. The children are then allowed to decorate the uncovered casket walls with farewell messages and drawings. The interior is then “reupholstered” and nothing is visible. The children are told that it is to keep their messages private.

One story was particularly touching — a little boy wanted his mommy to know how much he loved her and for it to be as close to her as possible. He wrote “I love you, Mommy” on the casket pillow that was placed beneath her head. At the service, only he knew about the secret message he had left for his mom for all eternity.

— AMOMINTEXAS

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR MOM: Thank you for sharing a clever solution. I felt that the child’s placing of stickers on her grandmother’s body was disrespectful and the mother was wrong to permit it in spite of the grandfather’s expression of disapproval. While I viewed it as a desecration of a corpse, readers felt differently. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY: “Saddened” should never have removed the 4-year-old from the casket. It was not her place. The child was giving her grandmother a goodbye gift. If the woman wanted to remove the stickers before the casket was closed, she should have done it after the child left the room.

I have seen many friends and relatives place things in caskets as gifts and remembrances. It is not disrespectful to the deceased, but gives closure and a warm memory to those who are still living.

Putting stickers on Grandma was the child’s way of saying goodbye. A funeral is a celebration of life and no matter what their age, people are entitled to say goodbye in their own way.

— MELODY IN NEVADA

DEAR ABBY: If the sticker incident is the worst that can be said about the 4-year-old’s behavior that day, what’s the harm? Had she thrown a tantrum during the service or before placing the stickers, I’d agree that the child should not have been there. But since the behavior took place after “Saddened” made an issue of the stickers, the situation could have been handled more effectively.

All “Saddened” had to do was wait until the service was over, take the funeral director aside privately and ask him to remove the stickers before the deceased was interred. No drama, no scene, no tantrum, and everybody goes home in peace. Funerals, like any other event, are only as stressful as you want them to be.

— NO DRAMA, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: I own the West’s oldest funeral firm and I disagree with your answer. Funerals are about learning that we are mortal. To stand on ceremony when a young child is participating in one of life’s most important lessons misses the point. Memorials are not about formality but humanity. Let the child place those stickers and let everyone learn something from that.

— DAN IN

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: Our grandchildren love stickers, put them all over themselves and their clothing, and are thrilled if they can share them with me to “wear” for a while. If any of our grandkids are still young enough to want to “decorate” ME in my casket when I go, I would hope everyone around me would appreciate the gesture and smile at the loving relationship I had with that child.

— GRANDMA OF (ALMOST) 13

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Osterhoudt Receives at Least 5 Years After Probation Violations

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

Franklin Scott Osterhoudt will serve up to 12 years in prison for multiple felonies he committed from 2009 to 2011.

For the latest felony, the 22-year-old Twin Falls man was sentenced Monday to two to four years in prison after he was convicted of aggravated battery for crushing another man's leg during a fight.

Osterhoudt was arrested in June for breaking the leg of Richard Wilson while they fought after he reportedly threw an object at Wilson's car, smashing the windshield.

Police found Wilson lying with a broken leg on the sidewalk near Quincy Street and Addison Avenue. Wilson said he was driving with his 9-year-old daughter when he saw Osterhoudt stand in the road, then throw the object.

According to a police report, Wilson's tibia and fibula were broken and he required four hours of surgery to implant metal rods into his leg.

Osterhoudt will also be required to pay restitution of $8,982.89 and court costs of between $95 and $150.

were kept at the lower 2006 rate.

Winmill said that the law on Medicaid rates is clear: They must incorporate the actual cost of providing a service.

Sixty-one residential habilitation agencies in the state provide supportive living services to 6,202 clients, Winnill noted. The agencies provide homes and round-the-clock supervision for developmentally disabled clients who cannot live alone, as well as support for clients who need help to safely live in their own homes.

There aren't any waiting lists of people to receive the services, he said in the ruling, nor are there any documented instances of agencies turning clients away because they couldn't afford to provide care.

The state's attorneys had argued that those facts showed the Medicaid rates as set in 2006 must have been adequate, otherwise there would be a dearth of providers. Still, said Winmill, actual provider costs — not just outcomes — must be taken into account.

Department of Health and Welfare spokesman Tom Shanahan said the department was reviewing the ruling.

James Piotrowski, the attorney who represented the residential habilitation agencies, said the ruling means that providers for the most severely disabled clients will be able to provide better staffing numbers, hire better-qualified staffers and make an overall improvement to the quality of care.

Piotrowski said his clients were frustrated that they had to resort to a lawsuit to fix the issue. He said the department and the business used to have a good cooperative relationship, but it has deteriorated over the years.

Still, he said, they were pleased by the outcome.

"Winmill is telling the department to actually use the cost studies that they do, and implement the rates that their own analysis says is required," Piotrowski said.

The companies included Inclusion Inc.; Exceptional Child Center Inc.; Living Independently for Everyone Inc.; Tomorrow's Hope Satellite Services Inc.; and WDB Inc.

The battery conviction violated Osterhoudt's probation for two convictions from 2009, and he now must serve those sentences consecutively with his newest.

In 2009, Osterhoudt was accused of statutory rape, which he pleaded down to injury to a child in exchange for a sentence of 3 1/2 to 10 years. He was also convicted in 2009 of possession of a controlled substance, which carried a two- to four-year sentence.

In each case, Osterhoudt was ordered to complete the state's retained jurisdiction treatment program and then received four years probation in lieu of prison time.

With the two 2009 sentences being combined and credit for time served in the retained jurisdiction program, the earliest Osterhoudt will be released is in five years.

six-month period for possible employee appeals. He said he did not feel there was an issue with allowing locally trained officials to treat a small laceration or very minor injury. But he wanted to see a line drawn where employees would need hospital care.

The manual was accepted with provision to change two sections. One section was tabled until the next meeting. Davis said he would make the changes as directed.

In other business, the council agreed to review out-of-date wording in its contract for its city planning and zoning administrator.

Anthony said he discovered the contract was dated, and was in use when current Administrator Paul Aston was hired. Since then, Aston's responsibilities have changed quite a bit.

With changes, Aston would continue to be paid monthly. He would not be a full-time employee, and either he or the city could terminate the agreement with 30 days' notice.

Aston oversees and administers the Planning and Zoning board and attends its meetings, which he often schedules. He provides his guidance and expertise as a zoning administrator to the board. He also assists with enforcement, with evaluating applications for variance, and helps considerably in drawing in the findings when the board makes a decision.

The council plans to make a decision on the contract at its next meeting.
