The Vollmers hired Festive Glow to hang some of the lights and received help from their grandchildren, neighbors and even soldiers to put up the rest of their Christmas display.

Jerome Officials Ponder 2 Jail Spots

BY BRADLEY GUIRE bguire@magicvalley.com

JEROME • As Gooding County rolls forward with its new jail, Jerome County is making progress on its own and has narrowed property options by half.

Jerome County Commission Chairman Charlie Howell said the county is mulling two locations, one site in city limits near Jerome Cinema and another outside of the city along Victory Lane near Wow Logistics warehouses. The Victory Lane property could be annexed into the city, Howell said, if city leaders wish.

"We're working with the city to make sure water and sewer are available," Howell said regarding why these sites have made the cut.

A selection will be made soon, and officials will make an offer on the property.

County commissioners had worked with an Idaho Falls-based consultant to review properties this fall. Reed Miller of Ormond Builders is under contract with the county through the May 15 election, in which the county plans to seek voter approval for jail Please see JAIL, A2

NEW SIGNS FOR STEEP ROAD SAFETY

Santa Claus Passes New Poll with Flying Colors

Why do kids believe a chubby guy in a flying sleigh can deliver joy across America? Because their parents do.

BY CONNIE CASS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Why do kids believe a chubby guy in a flying sleigh can deliver joy across America? Because their parents do. A whopping 84 percent of grown-ups were once children who trusted in Santa's magic, and lots cling to it still.

Things are changing fast these days, with toddlers wishing for iPads, grade schoolers emailing their Christmas lists and moms wrestling over bargain toys at midnight sales. Despite all the pressures on the rituals of the season, an AP-GfK poll confirms that families are sticking by old St. Nick.

"It's important for kids to have something to believe in," says great-grandmother Wanda Smith of Norman, Okla.

And so they do. Year after year, Santa Claus survives the scoffers and the Scrooges and the 6-year-old playground skeptics. He endures belittling commercials that portray him shopping at Target or taking directions from an iPhone. He shrugs off scolds who say his bagful of toys overshadows the reason for the season.

Two-thirds of parents with kids under 18 say Santa's an important part of their celebrations this year. Moms, especially, have a soft spot for the man in red -71 percent of them say he's important, and that's a big jump from 58 percent just five years ago.

His overall popularity is up slightly from an AP-AOL poll in 2006, before the recession hit. In these bleaker times of homes lost to foreclosure and parents sweating out their next paychecks, the poll shows Santa riding high with families both wealthy and poor.

Maybe that's because the big guy's always known how to stretch a dollar to make a kid smile.

ASK ST. LUKE'S

Embarrassing Bladder Control Issues Often Curable

I'm 53 years old and notice when I laugh or sneeze, I have trouble controlling my bladder. Is this unusual and what can I do to help this embarrassing problem? – Marie, Buhl ost people notice it when they cough, laugh or sneeze. Others have a need to "go," even after they've just gone to the bathroom. Some experience both symptoms.

Answered by Dr. Jason Greenhalgh, Urology, St. Luke's Clinic:

Urinary incontinence (UI) affects more than 13 million Americans mostly women and commonly after childbirth, but it is also common in men. In fact, one in three women older than 60 is estimated to have bladder control problems. The good news is that UI is treatable, and often curable.

There are several kinds of UI. One of the most common is stress UI, caused by poor support of the urethra and pelvic floor. It can also happen in men who have had prostate surgery.

Coughing, laughing, sneezing, exercising or other movements increase pressure on the bladder, causing small amounts of urine to leak. Leading causes are physical changes from pregnancy, childbirth and menopause.

Try eliminating irritants like coffee and other caffeine products, and do Kegel exercises to strengthen the pelvic floor muscles.

If surgery for stress UI is warranted, one highly successful treatment for women is the sling procedure. In this procedure, a sling as wide as a piece of tape made of synthetic mesh material is placed as a support under the urethra through one vaginal incision and two small groin or abdominal incisions.

This procedure is 80-85 percent effective, and can surgery, although patients are asked to refrain from lifting for four to six weeks following surgery. Patients report little discomfort with the sling procedure.

The other leading type of UI is urge incontinence, which is caused by an overactive bladder. With this type of incontinence, patients may experience involuntary loss of urine while feeling a sudden need to urinate for no known reason. Treatments include medications, biofeedback and even a pacemaker for the bladder.

Incontinence can be a very personal and potentially embarrassing problem that can keep people isolated and limit their enjoyment and participation in daily activities. Please talk a urologist or your primary care provider about any bladder issues.

The drivers, cyclists and pedestrians who all share space on Canyon Springs Grade were the topic of a presentation made at Monday's Twin Falls City Council meeting. The council unanimously approved placing signs at the top and bottom of the grade to urge caution from each of its users.

Twin Falls Police Department Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin said that over the past few years, more people are using the road.

Their reasons vary. Motorists haul golf carts and boats in and out of Canyon Springs Golf Course and Centennial Waterfront Park. Bicyclists imitate truncated Tour de France mountain climbs, and walkers and runespecially those ners – training for the annual Rim 2 Rim run - test their stamina against the grade.

A report put together by Pullin for the city's Traffic Safety Commission said congestion on the roadway causes a safety hazard for all who utilize the grade.

"With the narrow width of the roadway from the top of the grade to the bottom of the canyon, we often see pedestrians walking in the lanes of travel and obstruct ing motorized traffic," the report said.

Bordewyk said she has noticed this as well, and says, "People walk up and down both sides."

The Traffic Safety Commission hopes the signs can help guide the road's various users, letting pedestrians know they should walk on the left side of the road, no more than two side-by-side and single file when cars approach.

sion suggested cyclists could ride two side-by-side, but Councilman Lance Clow worried cyclists might not hear motorists coming up the hill and suggested they should ride single file.

BOISE • Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said Friday that Idaho is part of a multistate settlement with GE Funding Capital Market Services Inc. that stemmed from a nationwide investigation into anticompetitive and fraudulent allegations.

Idaho organizations that will be eligible for restitution payments include the Idaho Housing and Finance Association and the Boise City Housing Authority, the attorney general's office said.

The settlement is $34.25 million for all affected entities nationwide, but it's not yet known how much of that will go to Idaho.

The alleged conduct occurred in the municipal bond derivatives industry, where users reinvest proceeds of bond sales until they need to tap the funding.

The investigation found that GE Funding traders worked with brokers to rig bids by giving the company access to confidential bidding information and

Smith, whose childhood gifts were mostly handmade by her mother – things like cookies and knit scarves remembers that every year Santa Claus managed to put one present under the tree for her to share with her two brothers (four more siblings came later).

"One year it was a bicycle, one year we had a sled. One year we got a puppy - his name was Jack and he was a border collie," recalls Smith, now 70.

"We didn't have a lot," she said, "but we didn't know it. Our mother and daddy made it a wonderful time for us."

In multicultural America, Father Christmas isn't just for Christians any more. Three-fourths of non-Christian adults say they believed in Santa when they were children. And half feel he's important to their holiday celebrations now. Developmental psychologist Cyndy Scheibe, who's been interviewing kids about Santa since 1986, said lots of Jewish children told her that Santa Claus was real, even though he didn't stop at their houses on Christmas Eve.

And many non-Christian parents embrace Santa because they see Christmas serving as a secular as well as religious holiday in the U.S., she said.

"Santa Claus is more than someone who just comes and gives you a present, it's this whole spirit of giving and magic that you get to be a part of and celebrate," said Scheibe, an associate professor at Ithaca College in New York.

That's what keeps Santa going over the decades and across cultures, she said. "That, and there's almost nothing as much fun as getting to see your kid's face so completely excited."

Scheibe knows firsthand.

She used to climb a ladder to the roof every Christmas, her daughter watching, to leave a key tied to a big red bow, because they didn't have a fireplace.

It's not all snowflakes and mistletoe in Santaland, however. Even among Christians, there's tension about how big a role, if any, a jolly old elf deserves in the celebration of Christ's birth.

Almost half of Americans polled said Santa detracts from the religious significance of Christmas more than he enhances it.

When she was growing up, Naomi Stenberg's fundamentalist Baptist parents didn't want her mixed up with Santa Claus or the Easter Bunny or Halloween trickor-treating.

"I didn't understand why everybody else got to believe in Santa, and me and my brother didn't," says Stenberg, 32, now a stay-athome mom in Baxter, Minn. "I felt left out."

Her own three children have gotten the full Kris Kringle experience, but sometimes she feels illequipped to handle the tough queries from her youngest, 6-year-old Rylen. "She's been asking questions like how does Santa fit through the chimney," she said. "I don't know how to answer things like that."

Veda Viola Hines Shufeldt

Dec. 11, 1929-Dec. 18, 2011

RUPERT • Veda Viola Hines Shufeldt took a nap on Sunday, Dec. 18, 2011, at Countryside Care at Minidoka Memorial Hospital and passed on to be with our heavenly father and her beloved husband, Ken.

Veda was born Dec. 11, 1929, to Hattie Ann Bennett from Japan.

Veda is now reunited with her parents; husband, Ken; four brothers, two that died at birth, and Dean and Bill; and one sister, Donna Minton. She will be greatly missed by her son, Randy (Cindi) Shufeldt of Portland, Ore.; her daughter, Peggy (Jesse) Hess of Rupert, Idaho; four grandchildren, Nikki Shufeldt of Northglenn, Colo., Valliann Hess of Rupert, Idaho, 2nd Lt. Peter (Tara) Shufeldt of Enid, Okla., and Joy Shufeldt of Portland, Ore.; and two great-grandchildren, Sean and Ethan. The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 27, at the Rupert United Methodist Church, 605 H St. in Rupert. Viewing for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 26, at the Hansen Mortuary and one hour prior to the service Tuesday at the church. Services will conclude with burial in the Fairview Cemetery in Soda Springs under the direction of Hansen Mortuary Rupert Chapel. In lieu of flowers, the family is asking that donations be made to the Shriner's Children's Hospital or Rupert United Methodist Church.

Hines and Everette Hicks Hines at LDS hospital in Idaho Falls. She was the eighth child of eight. She grew up in Soda Springs, Idaho, and graduated from Soda Springs High School in 1948. That same year, she married Kenneth Rudd Shufeldt on Aug. 12, 1948. Ken and Veda were active members of the Presbyterian Church in Soda. They lived and worked in Soda City and on the China Hat Ranch. On July 6, 1952, they were blessed with their first child, Kenneth Randall (Randy) Shufeldt. They then bought a small piece of land and house right across from the airport in Soda in 1953. On Dec. 3, 1955, they were blessed with their daughter, Peggy Ann Shufeldt (Hess). In the year of 1958, they drew a homestead on the Minidoka north side. Ken went to Rupert to start preparing for the family and, after school was out for Randy in 1959, the entire family moved to the sagebrush of Rupert. They lived in a camp trailer with a 6-foot by 6-foot piece of concrete and a well house. Ken returned to Soda to help with the harvest and then returned to finish the cinder block, two-bedroom home before winter hit.

Veda was a hard-working farm wife who, for many years, did all of the first waterings on the Rupert farm until the Shufeldt family sold the China Hat Ranch. She did this with siphon tubes and children in tow. Veda was a seamstress for many of the ladies on the north side. She was very active in the community with 4-H, Cub Scouts, Campfire Girls, Little League, PTA, Eastern Star, Daughters of the Nile, Toastmistresses, Soroptimist, many different card groups, and a neighborhood dance group. Veda had several home businesses, including TriChem and distributing for Minnesota Woolen Mills. She also took night classes in accounting to better keep the farm and home records. Veda was very active in the Rupert United Methodist Church, working with the different women's groups, teaching Sunday school, and helping wherever she was needed. The Shufeldt family hosted three exchange students, one from Sweden, one from England and a 4-H exchange

OBITUARIES

Marcelina Gabiola

Jan. 8, 1924-Dec. 20, 2011

TWIN FALLS • Marcelina Gabiola, 87, of Twin Falls, died Tuesday night, Dec. 20, 2011, at the River Ridge Care and Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls.

Marcelina was born Jan. 8, 1924, in Amoroto, a small town in the beautiful Basque province of Bizkaia in northern Spain. She was the daughter of Bonifacio and Maria Luisa Gabiola Laka. Marcelina was the third of eight children born to Bonifacio and Maria Luisa. Marcelina lived with her family until the age of 8, when she had to go live with her godfather and his family because her parents struggled to care for all of their children. She worked by tending to cattle and by helping to take care of her godfather's children. Marcelina was able to see her parents on Sundays and on holidays at that time.

Marcelina moved to the town of Berritxu when she was 9 years old, and she worked for a family in their home as a baby sitter. Marcelina was able to go to school occasionally during that time. Marcelina lived in the towns of Ea and Elorrio through her pre-teen and teen years, and she worked as a nanny in those towns. The Spanish Civil War started when Marcelina was 12 years old. She was living in Ea at the time of the bombing of Gernika. She remembered seeing the planes and hearing the bombs explode. Marcelina went to Gernika a few days after the bombings, and she never forgot the terrible destruction that she saw there. Marcelina moved to Bilbao, the capital of the province of Bizkaia, when she was 20 years old, and she worked as a maid/cook/nanny until the age of 35. Marcelina's childhood and her teen years look like they were very difficult on paper. However, she always had many fond memories of her family, festivals and dances. Marcelina always focused on the love that she felt for her family, and she counted her blessings.

Marcelina met her future husband, John, at a dance celebrating her sister's wedding. They were married six months later on Aug. 1, 1959. They left the Basque country and moved to Idaho a few months after their wedding. They farmed in Dietrich until 1971, when they moved to Wendell. Marcelina and John worked a small dairy farm in Wendell until 1990. Marcelina worked very hard on the farm alongside her husband, and she was an invaluable helper to him. Marcelina also had a huge garden and fruit trees. She canned many fruits and vegetables over the years. Marcelina and John moved to Twin Falls at the time of their retirement. Marcelina and John had a house built in Twin Falls, and Marcelina enjoyed the process of picking out all of the paint colors, tiles, etc. It was a simple three-bedroom home, but it was like a dream house to Marcelina. She also had a garden and fruit trees in her backyard at this new home. The worker who designed the landscaping wondered aloud if Marcelina planned to feed all of Twin Falls with her large garden. Marcelina was a wonderful wife, mother and grandmother who put her family ahead of herself. She had the ability to find contentment in whatever place or circumstance she was in. Marcelina lovingly cared for her husband in his final years as he suffered from lung cancer and dementia. Marcelina battled heart problems and Alzheimer's Disease, and she showed her sweet nature and love for her daughters, grandchildren and friends throughout those illnesses. Her daughters believe that Marcelina's great desire to see her grandchildren grow gave her the motivation to live and added years to her life. Marcelina was a faithful member of the St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church. She was also a member of the Gooding Basque Association, Agur Amatxu. How blessed we are to have known someone who is so hard to say goodbye to.

Marcelina is survived by her daughters, Maria Gabiola and Lisa (Joshua) Spooner; and her three grandchildren, Elias, Evan and Emma Spooner, all of Twin Falls. She is also survived by her sisters and brother, Agustina, Leona and Andoni; and several nieces and nephews, all of Bizkaia, Spain. Marcelina was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, John; two brothers; two sisters; and a nephew.

A prayer service will take place at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 26, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. The funeral Mass will take place at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 27, at St. Edward Confessor Catholic the Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Burial will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery. Friends may call from 5 p.m. until the time of the prayer service Monday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Messages of condolence and support may be left at www.reynoldschapel.com.

North Idaho Hotel Hosts Homeless Families for Holidays

Through a partnership with a local nonprofit, the Holiday Inn Express Hotel & Suites in Coeur d'Alene has offered shelter and respite for families struggling as Christmas nears.

BY ALISON BOGGS The Spokesman-Review

COEUR D'ALENE · A 2year-old girl's grin, as she frolicked in the lobby of a Coeur d'Alene hotel Thursday morning, gave no hint that her family has no place to call home.

And that was precisely the goal of the staff at Holiday Inn Express Hotel & Suites as they worked to deliver Christmas joy to two homeless families they're hosting for the week.

Working with Family Promise, a nonprofit organization that houses homeless families in a network of churches, the hotel offered the families a weeklong stay and prepared a full slate of activities and meals. That includes a water park visit, meals in restaurants, a Christmas dinner with all the fixings, presents and stockings by the tree on Christmas morning and even a visit from Santa Claus.

"We wanted it to be like a Christmas vacation for these families. We wanted every single day to be exciting," said Jennifer Peat, the hotel's general manager. "We just have some really great people in this community and they all want to help?'

Christina Vanwert is staying at the hotel with her boyfriend, Ivan Bowen, and their daughter, Sythia Bowen, 2. Sythia has most enjoyed the hotel room's large jetted bathtub, Vanwert said.

"It's wonderful;" Vanwert said. "We're just really glad we have somewhere to be?'

This is the second year the hotel has hosted homeless families for the holidays, Peat said. The hotel was contacted last year by Family Promise volunteers who came up with the idea then went looking for a hotel willing to help. The search stopped when they found Holiday Inn.

Cindy Wood, Family Promise's director, said her "jaw just dropped" when she visited the hotel and realized all that was planned. "This isn't just respite and privacy. It's a full blessing."

The hotel staff raises money for charity yearround by selling extras such as laundry soap and bottled water. In addition, when guests ask for the "Dodger"

The hotel staff has been working for weeks to solicit donations from North Idaho businesses to make the families' stay special. On Wednesday, the families went to the water park at Triple Play Family Fun Park then ate at Fedora Pub & Grille.

"Coeur d'Alene is just amazing with supporting local charities," said Melody Breidenbach, the hotel's sales director.

Destinee Walcker said that when her family entered the Family Promise program, she had no idea "any of this was going to happen?' Family Promise offers a 90-day program that houses families and connects them with resources in the community to help find jobs and other services.

Her family became homeless for the first time when she lost her job a couple of months ago and paying rent became a struggle, she said. "When you first have to make the choice to go to Family Promise, it's hard to swallow," Walcker said. "I've never been in this position before?"

But, she said, the family was never judged, only helped.

"The most important thing at Christmas is to be together with your family," she said. "We're thankful to be together."

In Sickness and In Health: Nurses Married at I.F. Nursing Home

POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • Christa and Kenny Sarkela's first date wasn't ideal.

What started off as a group date turned into a twosome after friends canceled at the last minute. Even dinner and dancing couldn't overshadow an evening riddled with awkward moments and first-date jitters.

Despite that less-thanperfect start, one thing caught Christa Sarkela's attention.

"He was a perfect gentleman," she said.

The pair met about two years ago when both were hired by the Idaho Falls Care and Rehabilitation Center on the same day. Both worked long days at the facility and quickly forged a friendship.

As new nursing school graduates, they relied on each other to navigate the ins and outs of their first jobs.

When they were in the friendship stage, as Christa struggled with the end of her 26-year marriage, Kenny provided support. He knew how she felt. He'd been divorced, too.

Kenny continued to impress her, volunteering to work the graveyard shift so she could be home with her young son each night.

"I felt bad for her," Kenny said. "I already liked her then. We were both divorced; we were both new (employees). We just bonded with each other. Everything just seemed to fall into place."

It was a year ago today that Sarkela popped the question and asked his coworker to marry him.

They exchanged vows Nov. 11 under an arch made of IV poles in the rehabilitation center's dinning room. Many center residents and former patients attended the ceremony.

"You don't understand. These people go to bed right after dinner, so they made an effort to stay up for us," Kenny Sarkela said. "This place made sense. People say it was cheesy, but we thought it was wonderful."

Patients joined in the fun. They used craft time to fashion a collection of decorations, including handmade paper flowers.

Betty McNichol, 88, said she looked forward to the event. The couple had worked closely with her.

In April, Christa Sarkela was diagnosed with thyroid cancer. The Sarkelas said the experience strengthened their relationship and made for a more meaningful wedding.

Man to Stand Trial in N. Idaho Shooting

SANDPOINT (AP) • A 19year-old northern Idaho man will stand trial on charges he fired a shotgun at a vehicle and injured two teen brothers.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports a judge found enough evidence to support aggravated battery and assault charges against Larry Dean Flanigan Jr. during a hearing Wednesday in 1st District Court.

Flanigan remains jailed on $100,000 bail.

Police say the charges stem from a Dec. 6 confrontation that started at a high school basketball game near Clark Fork and then escalated. Flanigan was at home when a vehicle carrying five people, including brothers Zachary and Nathan Nesbitt, arrived.

Flanigan is accused of firing a gunshot that shattered a window of the vehicle and hit Zachary Nesbitt in the neck and caused injury to Nathan Nesbitt's back.

Wheelchair Group Goes on Hunt in Elko

BY ADELLA HARDING Associated Press

ELKO, Nev. • The experiences of two wheelchairbound hunters snagging antelope bucks on Newmont Mining Corp.'s TS Ranch in Boulder Valley aired the Tuesday before Christmas on the television show "Blue Collar Adventures.''

"It will be great press for Elko," said the segment's host, former Lamoille resident Jay Presti, who was on the hunt.

"I speak of Elko quite a bit and talk about Dunphy and the TS Ranch," said the 1991 graduate of Elko High School.

Presti said the 28-minute segment showed Dec. 20 on the Versus network.

"The main emphasis is on the two hunters and what mining gives back to the environment," Presti said.

The hunters, Josh Loftis and Bill Cotter of Reno, shot their antelope in the portion of the TS Ranch where water pumped from Newmont's underground mine and Barrick Gold Corp's Goldstrike Mine irrigates crops and creates wildlife habitat.

"Newmont generally doesn't let anyone hunt in that area," Presti said.

The TS Ranch worked with the Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs organization to organize the hunt held in August. "Newmont and the TS Ranch were very excited to be able to partner with the Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs. The partnerships that were developed during the hunt on the TS Ranch are immense," said Newmont spokesman Matt Murray.

"We were proud to be able to donate the antelope tags for these individuals that otherwise may never get the opportunity to be part of the great American outdoors," Murray said, adding that the hunters filled their tags.

The TS Ranch's irrigated alfalfa fields attract hundreds of antelope around the irrigation pivots, so the ranch receives landownerdamage compensation tags for hunting antelope, Murray said.

Loftis was born with spina bifida and has been in a wheelchair his whole life. Murray said Loftis had hunted before, but the hunt on the TS Ranch was his first in many years.

Cotter was paralyzed from the chest down after a car accident.

"This was Bill's first time ever in the field," Murray said.

Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs founder Rob McMillan was on hand for the event, along with people from the Nevada Department of Wildlife, Nevada Bighorns Unlimited, New-

Gralian took the hunting group on a tour the following day to explain the relationship between the mining operations and the TS Ranch, and they also visited Newmont's TS coalfired power plant on the ranch. The Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs presented Gralian with an award for his help with the project. Presti said this is his third season producing "Blue Collar Adventures," which is shot at locations worldwide. He lives in Stephenville, Texas.

Presti is classified as an expert outdoorsman.

He grew up riding horses and hunting and fishing at the base of the Ruby Mountains. He became a collegiate rodeo athlete, and still hunts and fishes.

F&G OFFICIALS GIVE MOOSE FAMILY TICKET OUT OF TROY

BY ERIC BARKER

Lewiston Tribune

MOSCOW • A cow moose and her twin calves that have become a fixture in and around Troy were evicted Wednesday over concerns for the safety of school children.

Idaho Fish and Game biologists darted the moose with tranquilizers and then trucked them to a forested area outside of Elk River, where they were released.

Jay Crenshaw, the regional wildlife manager for the department at Lewiston, said the trio were feeding on apple trees, many which were near the school or along routes children use to walk to school. Some parents became concerned.

Cow moose can sometimes be aggressive if they perceive a threat to their calves, and Crenshaw said that played into the decision to remove the animals. But he noted many residents enjoy seeing the moose and didn't want to see them go.

"We recognize there are many folks in Troy who appreciate being able to see wildlife up close like this, and I have received some calls in that regard as well as those concerned about kids. As is often the case, it's a balanc-ing act for us."

It is not unusual for moose to pass through Troy as they move from higher elevations like Moscow Mountain to places with less snow. Residents have even given them the local nickname Troywinkle.

Outreach Groups Seek Last-minute Help

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE For the Times-News

If you haven't had a chance to help someone in need this season, there's still today.

The Salvation Army, Christmas for Kids, Toys for Tots and other area outreach groups are calling for lastminute community support to help brighten the season for families needing assistance. And there's still plenty of opportunity to help some groups after Sunday.

The Salvation Army's red kettles and volunteer bell ringers have become iconic symbols of holiday giving. Last year's campaign took in donations of $86,000. This

"Each one of you should give just as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, because God loves a cheerful giver."

2 Corinthians 9:7-8 season, the 17 locations around Twin Falls County are seeing a 25 percent dip, said Salvation Army Business Manager Nicki Kroese.

"That's due to the economy and job loss," Kroese said. "We have a huge need right now, with helping 720 people in the county and distributing 600 food boxes a month."

Funds collected over the holidays are used locally to help provide Christmas dinners as well as clothing and other basic aid. Through Angel Tree, the Salvation Army also helps provide Christmas toys for children, up to age 12, who may not receive anything else.

"We are actually a church, and I believe God has called me here," Kroese said. "We partner with other churches, organizations, and rely on community support to serve as his hands and feet."

For more information, contact the Twin Falls Salvation Army at 733-8720 or salvationarmyusa.org.

Got Church News?

The local Toys for Tots and Christmas for Kids programs are in full swing and excited to be giving children the joy of Christmas with a new, wrapped toy.

Regional Director Paul Johnson said the 5,000 to 6,000 requests for toys have held steady with numbers from last year. The South Idaho Region covers Lincoln, Gooding, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Twin Falls counties.

"We're going gang busters and some of our providers are already making deliveries," he said. "Our big push now is we still need toys for girls between the ages of 3 and 11. I'd also like to get a Kiwanis group or someone interested in helping coordinate efforts up in Sun Valley and Camas County. We don't have anyone up there."

The Toys for Tots program operates on an annual budget of between $4,000 and $5,000, generated through donations and fundraisers. Toys and check donations made out to Toys for Tots and marked attention Paul Johnson, can be sent to the KMVT offices at 1100 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., Twin Falls.

The Saint Edwards Soup

Kitchen, 2127th Ave. E, Twin Falls, serves meals on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 6 p.m. and is always willing to accept volunteer help or donations in ministering to the needs of 150 to 180 individuals and families.

"Our meals are up about a third in number, but it doesn't matter if you're the richest or poorest person around. We'll feed you," said kitchen coordinator Ray Kelley. "We have people who bring in produce from their garden and ranchers who sometimes bring in beef.

Donations can be made by calling Saint Edward's Catholic Church at 733-3907.

dom in 1963 to become a nun in rural Bethlehem, Conn., now finds herself back in the spotlight. But this time it's all about serving the King of Kings, not smooching the King of Rock and Roll.

The former brass factory that houses Mother Dolores and about 40 other nuns cloistered at the Abbey of Regina Laudis needs millions of dollars in renovations to meet fire and safety codes, add an elevator and make handicap accessibility upgrades.

Like 73-year-old Mother Dolores, the order's nuns have taken a vow of stability with the intent to live, work and die at the complex. The order was established in 1947 in Bethlehem, a small burg in Connecticut's rolling western hills.

Now, the historically selfsupporting nuns have launched a fundraiser for the $4 million renovation project dubbed "New Horizons." They don't have much money, but they have Mother Dolores: a starlet-turned-supplicant whose unique story might lure the attention and donations of generations of movie fans, particularly those who adore all things Elvis.

For Mother Dolores, the monastery has been home since she was a 23-year-old actress in 1963 and walked away from Hollywood for a life of contemplation and prayer as a postulant.

"This work may not be in my lifetime that it's finished, but we're sure trying," Mother Dolores said of the upgrades, which are budgeted to run about $2 million for the fire code and accessibility compliance work and another $2 million for improvements to the housing and other facilities.

They hope to break ground in January.

Tax Cut Lives: Congress Votes Holiday Approval

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

WASHINGTON • Congress on Friday quickly and quietly approved a twomonth extension of the Social Security payroll tax cut, ending a week of rancor and assuring that more than 160 million people will avoid a 2 percentage point payroll tax increase next year.

But the calm, collegial legislative day was deceptive. When lawmakers return in January, they'll remain far apart on agreeing to a longer-term deal.

The package approved Friday — a major victory for President Barack Obama and a setback for Republicans in the House of Representatives — will assure that the average employee will avoid paying $80 a month more in Social Security taxes after Jan. 1. The rate for employees will remain at the 2011 level of 4.2 percent. But if no action is taken before Feb. 29, it will rise to 6.2 percent.

Congress' agreement, reached Thursday after rebellious House Republicans abandoned their bid for a one-year deal before Jan. 1, also continues current payment rates for Medicare physicians, which otherwise would have dropped by 27.4 percent starting Jan. 1, and retains up to 99 weeks of unemployment benefits for long-term jobless workers.

The measure also provides for an expedited review of the Keystone XL pipeline. The 1,700-mile project would bring oil from oil sands in western Canada to the U.S. Gulf Coast. Obama wanted to delay the decision until late 2013 – after November's elections – as environmentalists hold strong reservations. Republicans insisted on including the pipeline decision.

Defense: Military Overreached in Wikileaks Case

A Jan. 16 deadline looms for the military to decide whether the soldier blamed for the biggest national security leak in U.S. history should be court-martialed.

BY PAULINE JELINEK AND DAVID DISHNEAU Associated Press

FORT MEADE, Md. • A seven-day hearing into the biggest national security leak in U.S. history ended Thursday with defense lawyers insisting that the accused soldier was a victim of overreaching by a military that didn't even follow its own rules for safeguarding sensitive information.

The government argued that it had made its case for a court-martial of Pfc. Bradley Manning, a troubled young intelligence analyst who prosecutors said aided the enemy by leaking troves of documents.

Lawyers for the prosecution and defense gave closing arguments in the preliminary hearing at a military base outside Washington to determine whether Manning should be tried for allegedly sending hundreds of thousands of diplomatic documents and Iraq and Afghanistan war zone field reports to the anti-secrecy website WikiLeaks. dence supporting each of the 22 charges, illustrating his arguments with several dozen slides projected on courtroom screens.

"He did this during a time of war," Fein said. Laid bare on the Internet last year were military procedures for providing air support for ground troops and procedures used to fly the injured out for medical treatment, he said. Leaked documents also included names of units, intelligence sources and methods, as well as tactics used by troops in general, including secretive special operations commando forces, he said.

"He wrongfully and wantonly caused the information to be published on the Internet" knowing that "enemies of the United States use the Internet," Fein said.

Defense attorney David Coombs spoke for about 20 minutes and never denied his client had leaked the documents.

But he said the Army had

Biden, Romney Spar Like It's Fall 2012

BY JIM KUHNHENN AND KASIE HUNT Associated Press

TILTON, N.H. • It's an opening salvo of the presidential campaign, minus actual presidential nominees.

Vice President Joe Biden unleashed a biting critique of Mitt Romney's policies Friday and the Republican came swiftly back at him — a full-contact preview of what the general election might look like should Romney win the GOP nomination to challenge President Barack Obama. an economy in which fewer people succeed, while the majority of Americans are left to tread water or fall behind," Biden wrote.

The Obama team may be betting on Romney, but his Republican rivals were conceding no such ground.

Campaigning in South Carolina, former House Speaker Newt Gingrich derided Romney as a "Massachusetts moderate trying to come down and pretend to be a conservative. But I'm not going to say anything stronger than that. I'm going to focus on positive things."

America have the same French-made implants, but authorities there have so far refused to follow suit. The silicone-gel implants in question are not sold in the U.S.

Over the past week, the safety fears have created a public furor over something usually kept private, even in France. Women whose own families didn't know they had their breasts enlarged marched on Paris to demand more attention to worries about what might be happening inside them. Images of leaky, blubbery implants and women having mammograms have been splashed on French TV.

More than 1,000 ruptures pushed Health Minister Xavier Bertrand to recommend that the estimated 30,000 women in France with the implants get them removed at the state's expense.

Bertrand insisted the removals would be "preventive" and not urgent, and French health authorities said they had found nothing to link the implants to nine cases of cancer in women. The death last month of a woman who had the implants and developed a rare cancer had catalyzed worries.

The implants, made by the French company Poly Implant Prothese, were pulled from the market last year in countries around Europe and South America where they had been sold.

France's health safety agency says the PIP implants appear to be more rupture-prone than other types. Also, investigators say PIP used industrial silicone instead of the medical variety to save money. However, the medical risks posed by industrial silicone are unclear.

PIP is being liquidated and its executives and lawyer could not be reached for comment Friday.

The financial burden of the French government's decision falls on the state health care system, which estimated the removals could cost 60 million euro ($78 million) at a time when the country is teetering on the brink of another recession and struggling with debt.

In recommending removal, the government noted the risks associated with major surgery and general anesthesia. The presiding officer, Lt. Col. Paul Almanza, has until Jan. 16 to recommend whether the 24-year-old Crescent, Okla., native should be court-martialed.

Speaking for more than an hour, the chief prosecutor, Capt. Ashden Fein, methodically recounted evifailed Manning as he repeatedly struggled with emotional problems, and that the government is now piling on charges in an attempt to strong-arm Manning into pleading guilty.

The defense says Manning was nearly paralyzed by internal struggles over his belief that he was a woman trapped in a man's body. They suggest he should not have been sent to the war zone to begin with and say his chain of command failed to suspend his access to classified data despite clear signs of emotional distress, including his statement to a supervisor that he had multiple personalities. All this, before a vote is cast in the Republican race, The Iowa caucuses, looming Jan. 3, are the first step in the voting to pick a Republican nominee.

In an opinion piece published in The Des Moines Register, Biden portrayed the Republican frontrunner as the purveyor of failed, retreaded economic ideas. Romney shot back that Biden and Obama live an economic "fantasyland" out of touch with the real world.

Biden's jabs mark a major escalation in Obama's re-election campaign and refocus his political team on Romney, the former Massachusetts governor whom Obama advisers have long considered his most likely opponent. And it switches Obama away from his just-concluded tax cut victory over House Republicans to the GOP presidential field just 12 days before the Iowa caucuses.

"Romney appears satisfied to settle for said Friday she would start radio and TV commercials in Iowa, her first since her straw poll victory in the state in August. In them, she stresses her Christian values and that she's "an Iowa girl from Waterloo."

Biden's words, meanwhile, summed up a running story line about Romney that Obama's campaign and the Democratic Party have been refining for months. The piece also was a direct rebuttal to Romney's recent claim he wants "an opportunity society" versus what he called Obama's "entitlement society."

In taking on Romney, Biden defined "opportunity" in his own terms.

"We believe deeply in opportunity that if you work hard and play by the rules, no opportunity should be out of reach," he wrote. "This is a fundamentally different vision than what the other side has proposed."

Two Suicide Bombs Shake Syrian Capital, Kill 44

BY ALBERT AJI AND BASSEM MROUE Associated Press

DAMASCUS, Syria • Two car bombers blew themselves up Friday outside the heavily guarded compounds of Syria's intelligence agencies, killing at least 44 people and wounding dozens more in a brazen attack on the powerful security directorates, authorities said.

State-run TV said the al-Qaida terrorist network was possibly to blame for the first suicide car bombings in the nine-month uprising against authoritarian President Bashar Assad.

The opposition, however, immediately questioned the government's account and hinted the regime itself could have been behind the attack, noting it came during a visit by Arab League observers investigating Assad's bloody crackdown of the popular revolt.

People line the site of a Friday suicide bombing in Damascus, Syria.

The government has long contended that the turmoil in Syria this year is not an uprising but the work of terrorists and foreignbacked armed gangs.

Syrian officials said a suicide attacker detonated his explosivesladen car as he waited behind a vehicle driven by a retired general who was trying to enter a military intelligence building in Damascus' upscale Kfar Sousa district. About a minute later, a second attacker blew up his SUV at the gate of the General Intelligence Agency, the officials said. Government officials took the Arab League observers to the scene of the explosions and said it supported their accounts of who was behind the violence.

"We said it from the beginning, this is terrorism. They are killing the army and civilians," Deputy Foreign Minister Faysal Mekdad told reporters outside the headquarters of the General Intelligence Agency, where bodies still littered the ground.

Alongside him, the head of the Arab League's advance team, Sameer Seif el-Yazal, said, "We are here to see the facts on the ground ... What we are seeing today is regrettable, the important thing is for things to calm down."

Such attacks are rare in Syria, although security agencies have been targeted in the past.

The impact is also powerful because Damascus is home to the presidential palace and headquarters of security and military bodies.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Rise; S&P Turns Positive for 2011

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks rose in quiet, pre-holiday trading Friday. The S&P 500 index turned positive for the year. Traders were relieved by news that Congress extended a payroll tax holiday for workers and emergency unemployment benefits. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 78, or 0.6 percent, to 12,257. All but 3 of the 30 Dow stocks rose. The Nasdaq composite index gained 11, or 0.4 percent, to 2,610. Trading volume was light in the final session before the Christmas holiday. The market will be closed on Monday because Christmas falls on a Sunday this year. Earlier Friday, the government said that consumer spending and incomes rose just 0.1 percent in November. The weak gains suggest that consumers may have trouble sustaining their spending into 2012. In another worrying sign, a measure of business investment decreased for the second straight month. Business investment has been a pocket of strong demand and spending amid a sluggish recovery.

Tis' the Season to Steal

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than spirits are being lifted this holiday season. Shoppers may be grabbing lots of things off shelves, but many are leaving stores without paying for them.

During the four weeks leading up to Christmas, an estimated $1.84 billion in merchandise will be shoplifted this year, according to The Global Retail Theft Barometer, a survey of retailers worldwide. That's up about 6 percent from $1.7 billion during the same period last year.

Some people always get sticky fingers during the holidays. After all, crowded stores and harried clerks make it easier to slip a sweater under a coat undetected. But higher joblessness and falling wages have contributed to an even bigger rise this year.

No injuries were reported, although some people suffered cuts or scrapes from fights. One man was arrested for assault after authorities say he pushed caused an uproar. Some people were mugged or even killed for early versions of the Air Jordan shoe, which Nike Inc. created in 1985.

The shoe has been a consistent hit since then with sneaker fans. A new edition was launched each year, and release dates had to be moved to the Police used pepper spray on about 20 people at a mall near Seattle, while officers arrested at least four unruly shoppers in suburban Atlanta.

People started gathering around midnight at four stores in the Westfield Southcenter mall in suburban Seattle for a chance to buy the shoes, which retail for $180 a pair, Tukwila Officer Mike Murphy said. The crowd grew to more than 1,000 people by 4 a.m., when the stores opened, he said.

"Around 3 (a.m.) there started to be some fighting and pushing among the customers," he said. "Around 4, it started to get pretty unruly and offian officer.

"He did not get his shoes; he went to jail," Murphy said.

In Lithonia, Ga., at least four people were arrested early Friday at a mall af ter a crowd of customers broke down a door at a store selling the Air Jordans before it opened.

DeKalb County police told Fox 5 Atlanta that up to 20 squad cars responded. Officers said they escorted most of the people outside but took four into custody.

Police also said they had to break a car window to get two toddlers out after a woman went in after the shoes. They said she was taken into custody when she returned to the car.

It's not the first time the Nikes have weekends at some points to keep kids from skipping school to get a pair.

No one anticipated the hysteria around the original Air Jordan, which spawned a subculture of collectors willing to wait hours to buy the latest pair. But the shopping frenzy over the shoe had died down in recent years.

These latest incidents instead seem to be part of trend of increasing acts of violence at retailers this holiday shopping season, such as the shopper who pepper-sprayed others at a Walmart in Los Angeles on Black Friday and crowds looting a clothing store in New York.

A representative for Nike, based in Beaverton, Ore., was not immediately available to comment.

More Americans Taking Long Holiday Trips This Year

NEW YORK (AP) • More Americans are expected to take long trips this holiday season – and in many parts of the country it looks to be smooth sailing.

About 92 million people will travel 50 miles or more from Friday through Jan. 2, an increase of 1.4 percent more than last year, according to AAA.

The federation of motor clubs said 90 percent will travel by car. Drivers will find gasoline prices higher than last year, but well below this year's peaks. Air travel will be down about 10 percent.

There was nothing Friday to indicate any widespread weather disruptions at the beginning of the Christmas travel period, though a winter storm did close large portions of Interstate 25 in New Mexico. Parts of central Texas were could see freezing rain.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Travelers check their luggage at a United Airlines express check-in area at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago, Friday. While travel experts expect large crowds this holiday season, overall holiday air travel, both locally and nationally, is expected to drop compared to previous years because of higher ticket prices, fewer flights and reduced seating capacities.

In Colorado, operations at the Denver airport, one of the nation's busiest, were getting back to normal Friday after a storm dumped about 10 inches of snow.

The air disruptions were minimal, though when there are problems with air travel today - be it weather, mechanical issues or computer glitches – they are much worse than just a few years ago.

Airlines have trimmed the number of flights and are packing planes fuller than ever before. That means if something goes wrong, there are fewer options to rebook stranded passengers. There are just no spare seats.

When large snowstorms hit the busy Northeast last Christmas, it took airlines as long as a week to get some people home. A similar passenger nightmare occurred after Hurricane Irene struck in August.

Bad weather also can mean more cancellations than in the past. A Department of Transportation rule that went into effect in April 2010 limits planes to three hours on the tarmac. Airlines that violate it face penalties of up to $27,500 per person – that's more than $3.7 million for just one Boeing 737.

That has made them skittish about operating in bad weather, leading to 20 percent more cancellations in the typical month.

Yes, Virginia, There Is a Santa Claus

Editor's note: In September 1897, 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon of New York City was beginning to have doubts about Santa Claus. So her father suggested that she write to the New York Sun to ask whether Santa Claus existed. On Sept. 21, the paper published an editorial written by Francis Church answering Virginia's question. By long tradition, the Times-News editorial board is proud to republish it on Christmas Eve.

Merry Christmas.

irginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except (what) they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowl-

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished. Not believe in Santa Claus!

You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Multi-faith America is Worth Celebrating he annual controversy surrounding greetings for this season, "Merry Christmas" vs. "Happy holidays," is enough to make me say, "Bah, humbug!"

I'm in no way an Ebenezer Scrooge, that mean-spirited tightwad in Charles Dickens' 1843 classic "A Christmas Carol." But, seriously, I'm tired of hearing it.

Those who suggest that it is somehow disrespectful, anti-Christian or atheistic to say "Happy holidays" or "Season's greetings" this time of year are being pretty petty and, in some cases, very biased.

Individuals, retailers, corporations and organizations that choose a nonspecific greeting are not trying to distance themselves from Jesus Christ, as some have claimed.

don't say "Merry Christmas" in their advertising, or the berating of broadcasters and various celebrities because they use the term "Happy holidays," are pathetic protests.

But, in America everyone has that right.

The hullabaloo over this issue is almost nonsensical, considering that Christmas has been so commercialized and distorted that the "true" meaning for many was lost a long time ago.

It is astounding that some of the same people who were upset that Jesus was being ignored by some department stores also were irate that a few schools had banned Santa from coming into class-that there is more than one holiday during this "season," and some companies find it less complicated and less expensive to prepare advertising, marketing and signage that will endure a long shopping season that runs from before Thanksgiving to New Year's.

When I was in the radio/television business years ago, our promotional spots tended to use "Happy holidays" because it prevented the necessity of having someone come in the day after Christmas to re-record spots that said "Happy New Year."

Of course, there are other religions whose holidays sometimes overlap with Christmas.

There are years when both Hanukkah (Jewish) and Ramadan (Muslim) coincide with the Christian observance of Jesus' birth.

What does Santa Claus have to do with Jesus? Or did I miss the part of the Bible that says, "Behold, a child is born ... and his name shall be called Santa, St. Nick, Kris Kringle and a Jolly Old Fellow?"

I don't mean to be cynical about this because I understand the irritation some feel that too many Christians don't give proper reverence to the day honoring the birth of the one they call Savior.

To them it is sacrilege that there are those who, to be "politically correct," would avoid uttering the word "Christmas" when greeting people even if they are of other faiths.

It's not a matter of political correctness.

It is a demonstration of tolerance, a way to be considerate of others and their religions. In fact, it is being Christian.

NFL Playoffs? For the Lions a Ŵin Will Do It

BY BARRY WILNER Associated Press

The last time the Detroit Lions were this close to the playoffs, Barry Sanders was in their backfield.

Sanders now is in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, a place few if any of the recent Lions will end up. His former team has been rebuilt by GM Martin Mayhew and coach Jim Schwartz, and a win over San Diego on Saturday will secure Detroit an NFC wild-card slot.

Since making the postseason in 1999 at 8-8 - one year after Sanders retired the Lions have had one winning year (9-7 in 2000) and six last-place finishes.

"You think of the last 10 years, what we've gone through - what this organization and what the city and the fans have gone through - to be able to get to the playoffs, to have a successful season, it's huge," tackle Jeff Backus said. "People have been waiting a long time. I've been waiting my whole career to do it."

NBA PREVIEW

Quirks Galore in Compressed NBA Schedule

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carmelo Anthony's return to Denver is delayed for another year. LeBron James and Dwyane Wade won't be visiting Sacramento anytime soon. Fans in Chicago will only be seeing Kobe Bryant on television this season.

The NBA sought competitive balance. What it got was schedule imbalance.

One of the many consequences of the lockout, besides hundreds of lost games and hundreds of millions of lost dollars, was the tradition that every team plays in every NBA city at least once per season. That's not the case this year.

While teams will visit every other team in their own conference, they will only make trips to play nine clubs from the other side of the league instead of the usual 15.

It's one of many quirks of a 66game schedule that, in a variety of ways, is not like any other in NBA history.

"In some cases, the team business-type might complain that they didn't get (to host) the Heat or the Lakers," NBA Commissioner David Stern said. "While in the background, the coach is doing cartwheels. So it's kind of an interesting dynamic."

There's no shortage of those.

Reigning scoring king Kevin Durant dropped 66 points in New York earlier this year – alas, at Rucker Park, the fabled outdoor court and not Madison Square Garden. He and Oklahoma City won't be going to play the Knicks this season.

The NBA champion Dallas Mavericks won't be going to Charlotte, nor will Durant's Thunder, Bryant's Lakers or the Spurs, and that will keep ticket dollars from finding Bobcats owner Michael Jordan's pockets.

Teams won't be playing the same number of divisional games, so get ready for complaining should tiebreakers come into play when determining playoff seeding. And many small market teams will be miss out on some guaranteed sellouts against some elite clubs that might hurt in the standings but help with the bottom line.

NBA is Back, Believes it Can Regain What it Had

BY BRIAN MAHONEY

Associated Press

NEW YORK • In between the Mavericks' party in Miami and the Chris Paul celebration in Los Angeles, business got in the way of basketball.

The lockout came $2^{1/2}$ weeks after the NBA finals and lasted five months, leaving nobody certain when players and owners would settle so Dallas could begin defending its title - or LeBron James could resume chasing his first.

"We were way, far, far apart from one another," Knicks forward Carmelo Anthony said.

Others never wavered, insisting the NBA wouldn't waste the momentum it was riding from James' arrival in Miami right through the champagne-soaked Mavericks' departure with the Larry O'Brien trophy.

"I knew we would play," Mavericks owner Mark Cuban wrote in an email. "The commissioner wasn't going to let us miss a season."

He was right. And now back comes the NBA, with Paul on the Clippers, Dwight Howard still on the Magic - at least for now and the belief that the league can regain what it had before the games stopped.

A 66-game schedule was saved, starting with five games on Christmas featuring the kind of story lines that made last season so memorable: a finals rematch; the Knicks' chance to see if Tyson Chandler closes their gap with Boston; Kobe Bryant and the Lakers suddenly a potential second-class team in their own arena - beginning against the Bulls; the Thunder looking to show why they're a finals favorite; and Paul hoping to set up Blake Griffin for a few dunks to open the Clippers' new era.

And it's those things, David Stern believes, that will win back whatever fans were lost during one of the most turbulent times of his tenure.

"I believe that we can. I believe that the enthusiasm for the Christmas Day start, which we agreed to with our players, is exuberant," he said, noting fans' interest in the compressed free agency period. "The sponsors are literally flocking into our games and activating, our players are raring to go. So we recognize that Please see NBA, S2

Nowitzki noticed that before practically every game, George found someone warming up on the other side of the court and greeted them with a smile and a hug that seemed warmer than most pregame how-doyou-do's. Nowitzki eventually asked George why. The answer: they were his teammates, guys he had one an NBA title with during one of those three magical seasons with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Wade, James Say Time Has Made Them Even Closer

BY TIM REYNOLDS

MIAMI • Dwyane Wade and LeBron James are known to bicker like brothers. They screamed at one another more than once during Miami Heat playoff games last season. And when they're on opposite teams in practice, they attack the other like they would any opponent.

Now they're closer than ever.

And on the cusp of entering Year 2 together with the Heat, Wade and James opened up about their friendship Friday in an interview with The Associated Press.

"I don't think many players that have the similar games as we have or have done the things that we did in the league can come together this fast and make it work," Wade said. "That communication is there. I don't mind him saying something to me. I Please see HEAT, S2 there will be fans that have to be won back and we're going about that with the open scrimmages, which have been wonderfully received, the special offers and a keen awareness that we have to say I'm sorry and welcome our fans back."

They were there as never before in 2010-11, when arenas were filled to more than 90 percent capacity and the league's three national TV partners all had their most viewers ever.

But owners said they nevertheless lost $300 million and locked out the players on July 1.

told Nowitzki, "it's like a bond. It's like family forever."

Nowitzki told that story the first day he met with reporters after the lockout. Although the last time he'd been at team headquarters was for the championship parade, a day when everyone vowed to stick together and try winning it all again, Nowitzki returned knowing the Mavericks would lose several valuable contributors.

When Magic coach Stan Van Gundy heard the league was putting together a 66game slate instead of the usual 82, he figured the breakdown was simple: Play every team in your division four times, then face the others twice. Instead, it's complicated.

"I'm not being critical of it," Van Gundy said. "They've got a short period of time to play 66 games and there were a lot of factors they had to consider and I'm sure that they did it the best way that they could."

don't mind when I have to say something to him. We know how to make it work."

They have so much in common that both find it almost funny sometimes.

Forget the obvious stuff: They're both among the NBA's highest-paid players, then make another truckload of money annually in endorsements. They're both among the league's best scorers, perennial All-Stars, among the most recognizable athletes in the world.

NFL

was on the only 0-16 team in NFL history. These Lions, led by star receiver Calvin Johnson and headline-making defensive tackle Ndamukong Suh, started the season 5-0, slumped, but by beating San Diego they will be 10-5.

And in the playoffs.

ATLANTA (9-5) AT NEW ORLEANS (11-3), MONDAY NIGHT

It's simple for the Saints: a win and they own the NFC South title. New Orleans has won six straight since an inexplicable defeat at St. Louis, scoring 197 points in that streak. The Saints also have won five of six against Atlanta, including 26-23 in overtime last month when Falcons coach Mike Smith's overtime gamble on fourthand-1 failed. While Atlanta needs lots help to surpass the Saints even with a victory in prime time, it gets an NFC wild card with a win.

many key offensive sports, keeping up with Green Bay's prolific offense is an even slimmer hope.

PHILADELPHIA (6-8) AT DALLAS (8-6)

Hard to believe the Eagles remain alive in the NFC East, yet there they are. Win out, have the Giants fall to the Jets and then beat Dallas, and guess who walks off with the division? Yep, Philly.

The last time they met, the Eagles romped 34-7, their best performance of the year – until routing the Jets last Sunday. The pass rush, led by Jason Babin with 18 sacks, 4 1/2 short of Michael Strahan's mark, could give Tony Romo problems; no wonder owner Jerry week at San Diego.

Still, Baltimore hasn't lost to Cleveland in the last seven meetings, the Browns are decimated by injuries and distracted by the mishandling of QB Colt McCoy's concussion.

DENVER (8-6) AT BUFFALO (5-9)

The Tebow Express was derailed by New England last week, but now faces one of the NFL's biggest flops since the midway point. While Tim Tebow, Willis McGahee, a staunch defense and some clever coaching by John Fox have taken the Broncos from 2-5 to the verge of the division title – a win and an Oakland loss does the job – Buffalo has been stampeded the last seven weeks.

outside the New York area. Both teams have disappointed, with the Giants losing five of their last six, including an inept performance against Washington last week after taking control of the NFC East. Eli Manning is having his best season, far superior to what Mark Sanchez has done for the Jets, and that quarterbacking edge could be decisive.

New York — uh, the guys in green — can move very close to an AFC wild card with a win, plus Cincinnati and Oakland losses.

ARIZONA (7-7) AT CINCINNATI (8-6)

Among the most stunning numbers in the NFL standings are the 7-7 records acchase. The Niners can't afford to stumble if they want to earn a first-round playoff bye, so don't look for them to rest many regulars.

Marshawn Lynch has been a terror in the ground game with touchdowns in 10 straight games and has gone over 1,000 yards rushing for Seattle, which needs lots of help along with two wins to make the postseason.

JACKSONVILLE (4-10) AT TENNESSEE (7-7)

If the Titans wind up 9-7 and a loss to the previously winless Colts costs them a playoff berth, they can write a country ballad wailing about their miseries and sing it at the Grand Ole Opry. Tennessee shouldn't strugGronkowski catching it, then running past or over people, the offense hasn't slowed.

After replacing Tony Sparano with Todd Bowles as coach last week, the Dolphins won at Buffalo. They are 5-2 in their last seven, so maybe Sparano knew what he was doing in getting them turned around before he was canned.

MINNESOTA (2-12) AT WASHINGTON (5-9)

Coming off a lopsided victory over the Giants, the Redskins are trying to build something for next year, with rookie Roy Helu a major contributor at running back. The Vikings soon can start building, too, with a very high draft pick after

CHICAGO (7-7) AT GREEN BAY (13-1), SUNDAY NIGHT

With the pursuit of perfection gone pfft, the Packers need to get healthy for the playoffs. They have lost leading receiver Greg Jennings until January, and injuries have hit both lines.

But they also need one more win to secure not having to leave Lambeau Field in the NFC playoffs.

Chicago still has slim wild-card hopes despite losing its last four. With the second string playing at Jones said he is "scared" of the Eagles.

ST. LOUIS (2-12) AT PITTSBURGH (10-4)

Some people think the Steelers will rest Ben Roethlisberger and his injured left ankle, although the quarterback won't be too fond of that with playoff implications involved. Those same folks believe the Steelers can handle the awful Rams with Charlie Batch behind center. Or maybe without any QB at all.

The Rams' Steven Jackson needs 34 yards rushing to become the seventh player in NFL history to gain 1,000 yards in seven or more consecutive seasons.

CLEVELAND (4-10) AT BALTIMORE (10-4)

The Ravens must falter for Pittsburgh to have a shot at the AFC North; Baltimore swept the season series. And the Ravens sure did falter last

OAKLAND (7-7) AT KANSAS CITY (6-8)

Strangely, the Chiefs remain alive in the AFC West and by beating their archrivals, getting an upset by Buffalo and then taking down the Broncos next week in Denver, they could walk off with the prize. Barring, of course, San Diego sweeping its two games in that scenario.

The way the Chiefs' defense came alive last week in Romeo Crennel's first game as interim coach, it certainly could shut down Oakland, which continues to hurt itself with mistakes, especially penalties.

NEW YORK GIANTS (7-7) AT NEW YORK JETS (8-6)

For all the local blather surrounding the first Big Apple matchup that counts in four years, this game doesn't move the meter a whole lot companying the Cardinals and Seahawks. Arizona started 1-6, but coach Ken Whisenhunt and staff have done nearly as strong a job keeping the faith as they did back in 2008. All the Cardinals did then was come within a few minutes of the NFL title.

Their surge has been sparked by a rapidly improving defense and a tremendous knack for winning in overtime: 3-0.

SAN FRANCISCO (11-3) AT SEATTLE (7-7)

Coming off an impressive victory over Pittsburgh in prime time, the 49ers have another tough chore. On short rest, they travel to Seattle, which has won five of six and is in the wild-card gle with another inept opponent, the Jaguars, but who knows after last week's flop?

"From the first play through the whole game, we had way too many mental mistakes to be going to the playoffs or having a shot at even going to the playoffs," receiver Nate Washington said.

MIAMI (5-9) AT NEW ENGLAND (11-3)

For those who criticize this version of the Patriots for being relatively defenseless and not up to the level of their past AFC East championship teams, remember if they win out, they have home-field advantage for the conference playoffs. With Tom Brady chucking the ball to Wes Welker, and with powerful TE Rob what has been an extremely disappointing first full season for coach Leslie Frazier. DE Jared Allen is five sacks from Strahan's record.

TAMPA BAY (4-10) AT CAROLINA (5-9)

Tampa has gone from 4-2 and a contender to the bottom of the NFC South, jeopardizing coach Raheem Morris' job. Only Philadelphia has committed more turnovers than the Bucs' 32 and the defense has come unglued.

That bodes well for the improving Panthers, who have the playmakers on offense with Cam Newton, Steve Smith, DeAngelo Williams and Greg Olsen to send Tampa to a ninth straight defeat.

Times News

Today is Saturday, Dec. 24, the 358th day of 2011. There are seven days left in the year. This is Christmas Eve.

Today's Highlight:

On Dec. 24, 1814, the War of 1812 officially ended as the United States and Britain signed the Treaty of Ghent.

On this date:

In 1524, Portuguese navigator Vasco da Gama – who had discovered a sea route around Africa to India - died in Cochin, India.

In 1809, legendary frontiersman American Christopher "Kit" Carson ALASKAN HUSKY Puppies, $50. was born in Madison County, Ky.

In 1851, fire devastated the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., destroying about 35,000 volumes.

In 1865, several veterans of the Confederate Army formed a private social club in Pulaski, Tenn., called the Ku Klux Klan.

In 1871, Giuseppe Verdi's opera "Aida" had its world premiere in Cairo, Egypt.

1943, In President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower supreme commander of Allied forces in BOXER/ST. BERNARD Pups. Mom Europe as part of Operation Overlord.

In 1951, Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," the first opera written specifically for television, was first broadcast by NBC-TV.

In 1961, the Houston Oilers won the second American Football League Championship Game, defeating the San Diego Chargers, 10-3.

In 1968, the Apollo 8 astronauts, orbiting the moon, read passages from the Old Testament Book of Genesis during a Christmas Eve telecast.

In 1980, Americans remembered the U.S. hostages in Iran by burning candles or shining lights for 417 seconds - one second for each day of captivity. Karl Doenitz, the last leader of the Third Reich following the suicides of Adolf Hitler and Joseph Goebbels, died in West Germany at age 89.

Ten years ago: Officials said President George W. Bush had created a formal line of succession at several key federal agencies in the event a Cabinet secretary were to be killed or incapacitated. A West Virginia woman kidnapped month-old Iasmine Anderson from a Chicago bus station in order to pass the child off as her own; Sheila Matthews and Jasmine were found by FBI agents three days later in West Virginia. (Matthews was later sentenced to more than 12 years in prison.) Five years ago: Ethiopia sent fighter jets into Somalia and bombed several towns in a dramatic attack on Somalia's powerful Islamic movement; Ethiopia's prime minister said his country had been "forced to enter a war." Broadcasting pioneer Frank Stanton, CBS president for 26 years, died in Boston at age 98. One year ago: Pope Benedict XVI ushered in Christmas Eve with an evening Mass amid heightened security concerns following package bombings at two Rome embassies and Christmas Eve security breaches at the Vatican the previous two years. John Warhola (cq), the older brother who helped raise pop art icon Andy Warhol and later helped establish the Andy Warhol Museum, died in Pittsburgh at age 85.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Tell the truth or trump — but get the trick." — Mark Twain

The Solomon Cup is a Philadelphia tournament that my wife (Judy Kay-Wolff, an ex-Philadelphia resident and big-time Eagles fan) avidly follows. Today's deal, from this year's tournament, gave both declarer and the defenders the chance to shine.

The contract of three spades was a Goldilocks contract — two spades would have been too easy; four spades, too hard. West led the heart king, and South, Corey Krantz, playing with Howie Cohen, took the trick, desperately needing to generate extra trump tricks. When he ducked a diamond, West won the queen and played the diamond ace and another diamond. Krantz ruffed with dummy's queen and could draw trump in three rounds, thanks to the location of the spade jack onside. On the third trump he pitched a club from the board.

He next led a low club from hand, and when West followed small (a play that I suspect many of us might have made without overdue reflection), declarer carefully inserted dummy's eight and let East win the trick. That player had a choice of leading a club back into the tenace or leading out top hearts, when declarer would ruff and cross to dummy to pitch the club loser on the heart 10. So Krantz made his contract.

Note that had West put in the club 10, declarer is faced with a choice of losing options. If he finesses, then East wins and returns a club to set up the defenders' fifth winner before declarer can establish a heart trick.

ANSWER: Whatever methods you play over reverses without intervention from the opponents, a call of three clubs by you here must be nonforcing in competition. So you are far too strong for that. Start by cuebidding two spades to look for notrump, or planning to raise clubs at your next turn. A reasonable choice would be a jump to four clubs, but that bypasses three notrump.

IF DECEMBER 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Enjoy these happy weeks ahead. The world is your oyster, so you should dig in. In INES.

January you can forge beneficial relationships, enlist help from friends with helping hands and enjoy the fruits of your labors. At the same time, your business expertise might be in short supply, so do not launch a new enterprise without plenty of advice and support. You should not saddle yourself with additional responsibilities in February as the conditions could change suddenly leaving you high and dry. If you are wise, you will stick to the status quo until April or June when your abilities and talents are more easily recognized by others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer got to have the last word. Even if others find vou a bit eccentric. your talents can come to the forefront to save the day. You will get an opportunity to shine this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You better watch out. Santa Claus is definitely coming to town. You might even love playing the part of that jolly fellow so you can spread gifts and good cheer early. Just don't trip on your beard.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Even the lions can lie down with the sheep. Tender feelings are at the forefront of any romantic relationship. Enjoy a deepened sense of commitment as you share holiday blessings with loved ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Charity begins at home. Spend your pennies and time on things that make family members feel cherished. Anything seems possible under this new moon, so set plans in motion that guarantee improvements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cross that bridge when you come to it. Banish worries and settle down to holiday celebrations. You can put many concerns to rest by simply concentrating on getting family advice and solid support.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Kind and generous stars are twinkling that guarantee a joyous holiday weekend for both young and old. A casual acquaintance may have the knowledge or one owner, work ready knowhow to help you make a wise decision. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Santa's elves may work overtime to get treats ready. You might have more than your fair share of holiday preparations to handle, but it will be worth all the effort. Contact family members far from home. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pretense doesn't play well off-Broadway. Play the generous benefactor, instead. If you have been pretending to be something vou aren't, vou are in no position to help others celebrate the holidays. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Old acquaintances won't be forgotten under these stars. A touch of sentimentality may make this a holiday to remember through photos or videos as family members get together in harmony. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look ahead to the future and don't dwell on the past. The new moon falls in your sign, so the month ahead might echo or resound with the ideas and sentiments that are set into motion today. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Spread good will like butter. That will ensure the desired response or outcome. You might think you are smarter than the average bear, but it isn't just brain power that will make the difference today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make sure there's a chicken in every pot. No one should be left out when it comes to sharing the bounty on this holiday weekend. You should check on friends or acquaintances that might enjoy a holiday invitation.

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married for more than 20 years. I joined an online social network to keep in touch with family, friends and my kids who are in college. I love the convenience, but I'm in a quandary.

A number of men from my past (some I dated and some not) have contacted me online with their phone numbers and asked me to call them. I was flattered at first, but now I think phone communication would be inviting trouble.

I politely inform friends who push the issue that I'm happy to catch up online, but out of respect for my husband and my marriage I don't call men who send me their numbers. Most of them then drop further attempts at communication; others do not.

My problem is it continues to happen. I don't remember being that popular when I was young, so it has caught me off guard. I suspended my account several times, but reactivated it because I miss the connection with extended family and friends.

I'm getting turned off to responding to any "friend" requests anymore because it seems that most men just want to recapture some youthful fantasy. How do I handle this?

> BLASTFROM THE PAST

DEAR BLAST: You are handling it very well just the way you are.

DEAR ABBY: Mv boyfriend, "Ian," and I are in our 30s. Although we have been together for seven months, his family is not yet over his ex-wife. They invite her for dinner, share weekend visitation with Ian's daughter with her, and remind him constantly that they are disappointed with his decision.

Ian has moved on. He would like to cut all ties with his ex, but his family won't allow it. He's afraid if he puts his foot down it will destroy the already strained relationship he has with them.

My family accepts Ian, but his refuses to admit I exist. How do we deal with this? It's Ian's life, and he has the right to choose who he spends it with.

WOMAN: Toughen up, grit vour teeth and continue the relationship. Remember, because a child is involved, Ian cannot completely move on. As for his parents, accept that their grandchild's mother will always be a part of their lives so get used to it. If this romance leads to the altar, you will meet Ian's family at some point.

DEAR ABBY: My friend "Cailin" is very sensitive and not very accepting. She's also unforgiving and tends to get into stupid arguments about nothing. Since the sixth grade it has gotten even worse. There is a new girl in school who seems to be a really nice, friendly person. Cailin was the first one to meet her and she wouldn't let anyone else sit with them.

I told my mom about it and she said to just sit down with them both. Today I did what my mom said to do. When Cailin saw us together, she was steaming. She ignored me for the rest of the day. I don't want to keep the new girl, just share her. Why can't Cailin and I both be friends with her? Is there any way I could talk to her? I'm considering talking to the dean of students. Would this be OK?

- SHARING FRIENDS IN COLORADO

DEAR SHARING FRIENDS: Cailin is immature, insecure and possessive. She's afraid that if the new girl talks to other people, the girl will no longer like and depend on her. That's why she was angry when you sat down with them. By all means discuss this with the dean of students. The dean may have a solution that will allow the new girl a chance to make friends with more of her classmates - including you.

Wheelchair Group Goes on Hunt in Elko

BY ADELLA HARDING Associated Press

ELKO, Nev. • The experiences of two wheelchairbound hunters snagging antelope bucks on Newmont Mining Corp's TS Ranch in Boulder Valley aired the Tuesday before Christmas on the television show "Blue Collar Adventures?

"It will be great press for Elko," said the segment's host, former Lamoille resident Jay Presti, who was on the hunt.

"I speak of Elko quite a bit and talk about Dunphy and the TS Ranch," said the 1991 graduate of Elko High School.

Presti said the 28-minute segment showed Dec. 20 on the Versus network.

"The main emphasis is on the two hunters and what mining gives back to the environment," Presti said.

The hunters, Josh Loftis and Bill Cotter of Reno, shot their antelope in the portion of the TS Ranch where water pumped from Newmont's underground mine and Barrick Gold Corp's Goldstrike Mine irrigates crops and creates wildlife habitat.

"Newmont generally doesn't let anyone hunt in that area," Presti said.

The TS Ranch worked with the Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs organization to organize the hunt held in August.

"Newmont and the TS Ranch were very excited to be able to partner with the Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs. The partnerships that were developed during the hunt on the TS Ranch are immense," said Newmont spokesman Matt Murray.

"We were proud to be able to donate the antelope tags for these individuals that otherwise may never get the opportunity to be part of the great American outdoors," Murray said, adding that the hunters filled their tags.

The TS Ranch's irrigated alfalfa fields attract hundreds of antelope around the irrigation pivots, so the ranch receives landownerdamage compensation tags for hunting antelope, Murray said.

Loftis was born with spina bifida and has been in a wheelchair his whole life. Murray said Loftis had hunted before, but the hunt on the TS Ranch was his first in many years.

Cotter was paralyzed from the chest down after a car accident.

"This was Bill's first time ever in the field," Murray said.

Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs founder Rob McMillan was on hand for the event, along with people from the Nevada Department of Wildlife, Nevada Bighorns Unlimited, Newmont and friends and family of the hunters, as well as Presti.

Chad Bliss, a member of the Nevada Outdoorsmen in Wheelchairs board and the Eureka County Wildlife Advisory Board, contacted Dan Gralian, manager of Newmont's Nevada Land and Livestock, including the TS Ranch, about the hunting tags in early spring. The ball rolled from there, Murray said.

Gralian took the hunting group on a tour the following day to explain the relation-

Presti said this is his third season producing "Blue Col-lar Adventures," which is shot at locations worldwide.

COEUR d'ALENE(AP) . Officials in northern Idaho are searching for a 16-yearold boy who ran away from a residential treatment facility in Coeur d'Alene wearing only pajama bottoms and a flannel shirt.

Kootenai County deputies and 15 members of the sheriff's volunteer search and rescue group are looking for Jacob Lee, who ran away from Innercept House Thursday night. He is considered in danger because he was not dressed for the cold weather.

A Spokane County sheriff's helicopter joined the search Friday.

Lee's parents live in Santa Clara, Calif.
