Kenneth Lynch looks at a storage unit on Friday before it is auctioned off at Bach Storage in Twin Falls.

Winner Takes All

Reality TV has increased the audience for the rare auctions for Magic Valley storage units whose owners fell behind on the rent.

BY BRADLEY GUIRE

bguire@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Bob Patterson and Adrienne Petersen never know how much they'll spend or what they'll buy.

Such is the mystique of buying abandoned storage units. It's a means for resellers, like this husband-and-wife team, to acquire low-cost inventory. But it's also turning into a bit of a sightseeing venture for folks wanting to see if reality TV shows like "Storage Wars" imitate real life. the TV shows," Petersen said. "There's a lot of people, but only a few bid."

Although some of the featured bidders on the TV shows buy merchandise for second-hand stores, Petersen said she and her husband sell from their home, either by word of mouth or using eBay. They've attended live auctions for 20 years, but storage auctions are fairly new to them.

Last Friday, they attended a small auction at Bach Self Storage in north Twin Falls, where about five dozen people braved the drizzly precursor to the evening's wind storm. only two were sold. Four other renters made good on their debt, said facility manager Michelle Ronco.

For those wondering, a local storage auction is quite similar to what's shown on television. A facility will contract with an auctioneer — in this case, it was Marvin Hunt, owner of Hunt Bros. Auto and Estate Auctions — to sell a unit that is overdue.

Ronco said a delinquent renter is notified after 30 days that the facility may place a lien on the property being stored. After 60 days, whatever is inside the unit may be sold.

Twin Falls Recycling Options Dwindle for Some

With the familiar Kiwanis bins going away this week, Twin Falls will be down to two drop-off locations for recyclables.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • Unless you're a homeowner, recycling isn't convenient in the Twin Falls area.

At least that's according to Pat Walker. The senior citizen lives in a mobile home community and like many city residents who don't own their homes, she's unhappy with her recycling options.

Every week, she gathers her recyclables to take them to a friend's house across town. Her homeowner friend then places the items in a bin for the city to pick up.

"I think the whole thing is ridiculous," she said. "Recycling is important to me, but who wants to put their trash — even if it's their recycling — in their car?"

Hospitality Brings Blue Angels Back to T.F.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • The Blue Angels soared into town Wednesday for preparations ahead of their appearance at the Air Magic Valley Air Show, held July 28-29.

Two pilots from the Navy's flight demonstration squadron flew in on their F/A-18 Hornet for a day of getting acquainted with the area and air show coordinators.

The Twin Falls area has good terrain and space that makes it easy to fly the shows, Lt. Mark Tedrow, one of the visiting pilots, said. Hospitality and the number of recruits from the area gained at air shows also played a part in the Angels' return. They last performed at the air show in 2008.

Idaho Man Pleads Guilty in Fatal Crash

TWIN FALLS (AP) • A southern Idaho man pleaded guilty Tuesday to reckless driving for his role in a crash near Twin Falls that killed two teenage College of Southern Idaho students, as part of an agreement with prosecutors in the case.

A magistrate judge sentenced Kade D. Laughlin, 21, of Filer, to serve 180 days in jail but then suspended all but 20 days of the sentence during the hearing, where relatives of the two victims were disappointed after their request to read impact statements were denied.

Twin Falls prosecutor Grant Loebs opted to obtain a guilty plea instead of taking the case to trial, where relatives of the deceased still wouldn't be allowed to read statements. That's because family members of the deceased are only allowed to address the court during homicide cases, under state statues.

"I was disappointed they weren't allowed to say something," Loebs Please see FATAL, A2

T.F. Parks & Rec Considers Trial Run for Dog Park

BY BRADLEY GUIRE bguire@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Our fourlegged friends and their pet parents may benefit from the city's possible trial run of an off-leash dog park later this month.

Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer is floating the idea of using one of the fields at Frontier Park as a temporary dog park from mid-January to mid-March. The site would be available for dogs and dog owners from sunrise to sunset everyday.

The Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Department and Magic Valley Canine Social Club held a neighborhood meeting Wednesday with homeowners in the vicinity of the park, on Park Avenue in south Twin Falls.

The temporary park must first gain approval from city leaders. The city Parks and Recreation Commission will review the matter and make a recommendation to the City Council, which will have the final say on the matter.

The council and commission will also have the results of an online survey to inform their decisions. The survey asks Twin Falls residents two simple questions:

Would you support the City of Twin Falls designating a park area as an offleash dog park?

And, would you utilize an off-leash dog park in Twin Falls?

The survey, which may be found on the city's website or its Facebook page, will run through Jan. 15, according to Bowyer. But partial tabulations will be available for the commission's next meeting on Tuesday.

The commission may then have its recommendation ready in time for the council's Jan. 17 meeting.

Filer Swears in Council Members, Plans Sewer Tour

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE

FILER • With one new member and an incumbent beginning a new term, the Filer City Council on Tuesday organized itself for the year and returned to discussion of its new sewer treatment plant.

Suellen Lammers and Rick Dunn were sworn in to four-year terms on the council, after both ran unopposed in the November election.

Lammers, 60, a former teacher, already has seven years on the council under her belt. Continuing for another term was the best way she saw to remain active in city affairs.

"We've got the sewer plant up and running, but now have to make decisions about arsenic," she said. "We also need to look at attracting new businesses that fit in our community."

Dunn, 57, served on the council as an appointee in 2008 and was defeated by David Gaither for a twoyear council term in 2009. He currently serves as Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning administrator.

"This is a great community and I enjoy living in Filer," Dunn said. "My background can help make sure the city doesn't find itself backed into a corner at some point down the road."

Councilman Bob Parent was selected as council president for 2012.

In other business, tentative plans are being made for a March open house to give the public an opportunity to tour the newly constructed sewer plant.

"We were hoping to have something last month, but the city can't take full possession of the facility until we've had at least 30 days without incident or alarms going off," said city Maintenance Director Bud Compher. "We're still learning and haven't gotten to that quite yet."

Bergdahl's Family Hopes for His Release

BOISE (AP) • The family of the only U.S. soldier held by the Taliban is optimistic about a possible deal that would allow insurgents to open an office in the Gulf nation of Qatar with the aim of holding talks with the United States.

Bowe Bergdahl, a 25-year-old Army sergeant from Hailey, Idaho, was taken prisoner June 30, 2009, in Afghanistan.

His parents, Bob and Jani Bergdahl, released a statement Wednesday through the Idaho National Guard expressing hope their son would be returned home safely as soon as possible.

The family says that "serious discussions among diplomats are the most likely way to make this happen?"

The Taliban announced Tuesday that they had reached a preliminary understanding to open the representative office in Qatar, marking an unprecedented step toward peace negotiations.

told the Coeur d'Alene Press. "I think it would have helped the mothers. I think they would have felt better if they would have been able to do that?"

Laughlin will serve 10 days in jail and complete 10 days of community service, talking to young people about the Sept. 12, 2010, car crash that killed 18-year-old Ryan Reinhardt and 19-yearold Devon Austin of Coeur d'Alene.

Austin was a college baseball player and had been drafted by the Chicago Cubs.

Laughlin was accused of chasing Reinhardt's vehicle that night following a verbal altercation at a party. Austin and another teenager, 19-year-old Jessica Duran, were passengers in Reinhardt's car when he crashed at a U.S. Highway 30 intersection while traveling at speeds in excess of 94 mph.

Reinhardt's blood alcohol level was .19, twice the legal limit of .08, police said.

Duran, the only survivor of the car crash, later reported that Laughlin had pursued the vehicle that night and he was arrested by Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies for driving under the influence. An investigation later found Laughlin ended the chase of Reinhardt's vehicle before the crash.

Laughlin pleaded guilty to drunken driving and was ordered to pay a $582 fine and placed on probation for one year. He has since been sentenced to eight days in jail for violating the terms of his probation by being in the possession of alcohol on two separate occasions, according to court records.

Along with the jail time and community service, Laughlin was also ordered to pay $500 in fines and serve an additional two years of probation after pleading guilty to the reckless driving charge. He will also lose his driving privileges for 30 days. Reinhardt's mother, Laura Wilson, attended Laughlin's sentencing with hopes of reading a statement she had prepared. Laughlin and his attorney objected to the move before the judge ultimately ruled state law didn't allow for Wilson, or Austin's mother Paula, to openly weigh in during the hearing. "There's no closure at all," Wilson said. "If (Laughlin) had an ounce of remorse he would have had us stand up and have us read our statements." Laughlin declined to comment on the outcome of the case when reached by phone late Tuesday.

BURLEY • The Burley City Council changed its look Tuesday, installing three new councilmen and a new council president. But the council's first meeting of 2012 wasn't without some of the negative comments that marked the past year.

Randy Hawkins, Russ Mallory and John Craner were sworn in by Burley Mayor Terry Greenman, taking their seats after resounding applause from attendees who packed city chambers.

"We moved here in 1985 and I felt a responsibility to pay my dues," as council president, although Councilman Steve McGill questioned some of Andersen's past behavior. McGill said that talk of council negativity during the campaign season focused, perhaps incorrectly, on outgoing councilmen Jay Lenkersdorfer, Vaughn Egan and Denny Curtis.

"As a member of this council I've witnessed first-hand the attacks not only to fellow council members but to members of our committees who come here to talk to us," McGill said. "The person who has done a majority of that is Mr. Andersen."

"I don't want to jeopardize anything," he said.

buildings, she said. "It's something that maybe the city can address, but it's difficult because we have to find a way to pay for it," Mills-Sojka said.

The county isn't helping provide a public recycling service in the city, either. Twin Falls County only pays for one public recycling bin that's located in Kimberly. County Commissioners decided not to renew contracts with PSI Environmental Systems that once provided bins in the Twin Falls Fred Meyer and College of Southern Idaho parking lots.

Les Reitz, sales manager at PSI, said it was "doubtful" the county will bring the bins back to the city.

The only available options left, aside finding a friend like Walker, are to drop recyclables off at facilities like Magic Valley Recycling or Pacific Steel & Recycling. The facilities pay their customers for newspapers, cans and other recyclables, but only if the items are pre-sorted.

"I imagine we'll see some sort of an increase now that the bins are gone," said John Eiguren, manager of Magic Valley Recycling.

KETCHUM • A Ketchum woman will serve two months in jail for her part in the theft of $100,000 in valuables from a residence during April and May 2011.

Shanna DeLeon, 35, pleaded to misdemeanor petit theft in a deal with prosecutors. DeLeon was originally charged with felony grand theft, along with Benjamin Dugan, also of Ketchum, and a 16year-old male.

The three were accused of taking personal items such as a fur coat, jewelry and golf clubs while the victim was not home. The victim had given permission for one of the suspects to stay at the Ketchum residence.

Storage Wars

Not every storage business will contract with an auctioneer, and the low frequency of local storage auctions has Patterson and Petersen pursuing others in Boise. Ronco said the last storage auction at Bach was approximately six months ago.

Once the auction begins, there are a few rules, just like on TV: bidders may look inside the unit but may not go inside or handle anything inside; the winning bidder must buy the unit's entire contents; the buyer must empty the unit within 24 hours or rent the space.

After the potential bidders all had a brief look at the first unit, the bidding began.

Auctioneer Marvin Hunt, pointing, takes bids on Friday for the items in a storage unit at Bach Storage in Twin Falls.

Hunt started with a 10- by nice-looking bedroom fur- $500 to start, but bidders 12-foot unit that contained a niture set. He couldn't get caught on at $200. After a few minutes of furious backand-forth among a handful of bidders, the unit sold for nearly $850.

The second unit, which Patterson and Petersen purchased for $125, wasn't as attractive. Inside were a few boxes of hooks, an exercise bike, three bar stools, an HP all-in-one printer, a fax machine, a cabinet and a futon bed frame.

The haul certainly didn't match the most interesting thing they've found: a 1958 transistor radio that sold to a man in Denmark for $100.

But there were enough quality items in the unit to make it worth the price.

"Conservatively, we hope to double our money," Petersen said.

Probation for T.F. Burglary Planner

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man was sentenced Tuesday to three years of probation for conspiring to burglarize the home of a 94-year-old woman.

JonErik Leroy Bellus, 20, reached a deal with prosecutors in November. Bellus was sentenced to three to six years in prison, suspended for the three years' probation. Bellus must also pay $1,115.01 in restitution and $225.50 in court costs.

Investigators accused Bellus and Ramon Leon Garcia, 22, of attempting to break into Mildred Soran's Twin Falls home in the middle of the night, Aug. 26, 2011. Soran saw flashlights outside her window and called 911. Police arrived to find the door to an attached garage kicked in.

Garcia is scheduled to be sentenced Jan. 23.

KETCHUM LIBRARY ANNOUNCES CHANGE OF LEADERSHIP

TIMES-NEWS

KETCHUM • The Community Library Association in Ketchum announced Wednesday that its executive director, Colleen Daly, is leaving for another job, sparking a search for her successor.

Daly will serve as the development director for the American Academy in Rome starting in February. The organization, which operates in New York and Italy, is the oldest American overseas center for independent study and advanced research in the arts and humanities.

Daly joined the CLA in May 2005 and is credited with transforming the institution. Among the changes she oversaw, the library's cultural programming grew from 10 programs a year to 97 in 2011, it recently installed a fiber-optic Internet connection, its management structure was re-organized and its administrative wing was renovated.

"In her almost seven years at the helm, Colleen spearheaded the metamorphosis of our library into a vibrant cultural institution geared to serving the community's needs in a rapidly changing technological environment," William B. Lowe, chairman of the library's board of trustees, said in a press release. "We will miss her inspirational leadership."

Colleen Crain, who has served as development director of the Community Library Association since 2007, has been named as the interim executive director.

San Jose Man to Plead Guilty to Stealing from Employer

TWIN FALLS • A Califor-

ly with all those (G-forces) they take," Carberry said.

All the pilots who come to Twin Falls this summer will spend a full week in town. That's longer than their visit in 2008, largely because they were treated so well the last time around.

Jim O'Donnell, director of this year's air show, said more than a year of planning has helped with fundraising to bring the flight squadron to town.

In 2008, the Blue Angels' last Magic Valley appearance left Twin Falls city and county picking up a $21,513 tab when the event failed to pay for itself. However, officials only had about seven months to prepare then, compared to about 19 months this time.

"A quarter of the money needed to pay for the show has been raised," O'Donnell said. "Last time we didn't get the first dime until March."

Though the overall cost to put on the air show is more than $400,000, O'Donnell said the price tag is well worth it.

He cited highlights of the 2008 performance: 1,000 Boy Scouts got merit badges by attending the show, he said, and several ill children from the Make-A-Wish Foundation and Wishing Star program got to meet the pilots in person.

Organizers counted license plates from just about every county in Idaho and adjacent states. That indicates the economic impact the show brings, O'Donnell said. No matter where they come from, Tedrow said he hopes people will come to see the spectacle of the show and leave with some interest in the Navy and flying.

"We fly 18 inches apart," he said. The tight flying configurations, precision and demonstration of the F/A-18 make the show worthwhile.

"We want to inspire and be ambassadors," he said "Our mission is all-inclusive."

EX- REAL ESTATE AGENT SENTENCED IN N. IDAHO

BOISE (AP) • A man who authorities say used his connections as a real estate agent and church pianist in northern Idaho to dupe investors out of $2.2 million has been sentenced to three years in federal prison.

The U.S. Attorney's Office says 59-year-old Dale Edward Lowell was also ordered to pay more than $1.7 million in restitution during a hearing Wednesday. LowFederal prosecutors allege he established "Dale's Investment Club" in 2005 and used both his personal and professional ties in Bonner County to start raising money from investors while advertising himself as a savvy options trader.

Gregory Doushgounian, 27, of San Jose, Calif., will spend two to five years in prison and serve three years' probation for agreeing to plead guilty, with the possibility of 60 days on the county work release crew. Doushgounian reached the agreement with prosecutors on Dec. 19.

In court records, Doushgounian wrote he was making the agreement to "get this behind me and move on with my life."

Doushgounian was accused of stealing $4,207 from Harris Automotive and Repair by changing or deleting entries from the financial records.

Store owner Samuel Harris Jr. filed the report with Twin Falls police in February 2011. The report claims Doushgounian confessed to Harris and promised to pay the money back when confronted in November 2010.

Jerry Frank Stultz Sept. 14, 1935-Jan. 3, 2012

BOISE • Jerry Frank Stultz, 76, of Boise and formerly of Filer, passed away Tuesday, Jan. 3, 2012, at his home surrounded by family.

He was born Sept. 14, 1935, in Missouri, the oldest son of Frank Copen and Madge Fox Stultz. Jerry came to Idaho at age 12 with his parents and four brothers and worked many jobs in the Twin Falls area. He retired as the owner of Logan Radiator and Auto Repair in 1998 and moved to Boise, Idaho, to be closer to family. He married Joyce Faye Copenhaver on May 16, 1954. They recently celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary. Jerry was a devoted and loving husband to Joyce.

He is survived by a brother, Dale Stultz; his beloved children, Rhonda Faye Craig, Brenda Lee Ford and Jerri Sue Felder; and his grandchildren, Shane, Stefanie, Nick, Jami, Heather and Cortni. He is also survived by his eight great-grandchildren who knew him as Great-Grandpa "Woof Woof."

You will be with us in our hearts forever. We love you!

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 7, at the Filer Cemetery, with a luncheon to follow at the Filer Senior Citizen Center. Services are under the direction of White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Friends and family may leave condolences by visiting www.whitemortuary.com.

Carma Ann Griffith Duncan

June 18, 1919-Jan. 3, 2012

BURLEY • Carma Ann Griffith Duncan, 92, died Tuesday, Jan. 3, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls after a lengthy battle with renal failure.

Carma was born June 18, 1919, in Hazel, Idaho, the fourth daughter of Charlotte Jane (Jenny) and Charles E. (Ed) Griffith. Her childhood years were spent in Oakley. Her teenage years occurred in Jerome. Carma met her lifelong partner, Howard L. Duncan, when he hired her to cut seed potatoes. They were married Feb. 2, 1947, in Jerome.

Together, Carma and Howard raised five children. Carma was a tireless worker. She spent as much time outside on the farm irrigating and driving a truck as she spent inside cooking, canning and mending. She enjoyed making quilts, especially with friends and family. She also enjoyed rock

A. Duncan of Boise, Scott L. Duncan of Burley, Rocky G. (Susan) Duncan of Washington, Utah, and Dixie D. Summers of Burley. She has six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

A funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Star 1st Ward, 200 S. 100 W. of Burley, Idaho. The service will be conducted by Bishop Chris Seybold. A visitation will be held from 5 - 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 8, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls and also from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Monday before the service at the church. A graveside service will follow a 3 p.m. Monday at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Those wishing to share memories or condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Raymond D. Zagata May 7, 1937-Dec. 31, 2011

BUHL • Loving husband, father, grandfather, son, brother, minister, mentor and friend, Raymond D. "Ray" Zagata, 74, of Buhl, Idaho, passed away

Saturday, Dec. 31, 2011, at home with family after a brief but courageous battle with metastatic prostate cancer. It hit him hard and fast, and although he was a very strong man, the cancer was ultimately stronger. He is now pain free and at peace with his Heavenly Father.

Ray was born May 7, 1937, at home in Buhl to Frank and Grace "Dey" Zagata. He resided in Buhl most of his life but lived in Washington briefly during World War II. Ray attended schools in Buhl, graduating in 1956. He was in the National Guard from 1956 to 1963. On Oct. 25, 1959, he married Kathryn "Kathy" D'Arcy of Twin Falls, Idaho. Ray and Kathy have lived in Buhl since 1960, raising their daughters, Ellen and Mitzie there.

Ray started working as a carpenter with his father building homes while still in high school. He later went into the bee business with his father. After his father retired, he partnered with John VanDerWalker. Ray retired in 2000, after 30 years in the bee business. He and his dad worked side-by-side with one another for many years. Ray was a hard worker, fair and honest in what he did. If he said he was going to do something, he did; you never had to doubt his word. His grandchildren learned early on that if you wanted something done or fixed, ask Grandpa. He wasted no time in getting it done. He still did a lot of carpentry work long after he was "retired."

Ray was a very active man. He had many hobbies and passions in his life. He loved to go hunting, fishing, fly fishing, camping and 3-D archery shooting with family and friends. He did Dutch oven cooking, woodworking and geo-caching. He was always busy working on something. Up until his illness, he still went to his shop every day just to hang out and tinker around. He enjoyed going to his grandchildren's activities and games, always the enthusiastic fan. He was a very important figure in his grandchildren, Hunter's and Tori's lives. He taught them and did many things with them.

They figured out that if they wanted to go fishing or hunting, they only had to mention it to Grandpa and a trip was in the works. They were very lucky to have such an involved and active Grandpa. Ray was an active member and minister of the Buhl Community of Christ Church for 50 years.

Ray is survived by his wife, Kathy of 52 years; daughter, Mitzie (Skip) Crown of Buhl; son-in-law, Eric Hall of Twin Falls; grandchildren, Hunter and Tori Crown of Buhl and Ashlinn Hall of Twin Falls; his mother, Grace Zagata of Buhl; brother, Bob (Geri) Zagata of Vacaville, Calif .; brother-in-law, John Hill of Buhl; sister-in-law, Chris (Rob) Denton of Nampa; and many nieces, nephews and cousins. He was preceded in death by his daughter, Ellen; father, Frank; sister, Eileen Hill; and sister-in-law, Irene LaBounty.

His family suggests donations can be made in Ray's name to the Community of Christ YES fund, Buhl West End Senior Center or St. Luke's Hospice.

A special thank you to the wonderful team of St. Luke's Hospice. You were all amazing and helped make a very difficult time a little easier. Also, a thank you to everyone who sent emails or cards and phoned or visited. Ray appreciated each and every one of them and was astounded and humbled by the outpouring of well wishes, prayers and everyone's concern for him and his family.

A service of remembrance and celebration will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 7, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

"You are gone but not forgotten. You will always be loved and remembered. We will miss you dearly."

Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends for it is one of God's best gifts.

Helen Moss Shaner

Aug. 21, 1928-Jan. 3, 2012

OREM, Utah • Our dear mother, grandmother and greatgrandmother, Helen Moss Shaner, died peacefully at her daughter, Penny Broderick's, home surrounded by her children and grandchildren on Tuesday, Jan. 3, 2012. Carl and Helen Shaner were longtime residents of Twin Falls, Idaho, where they lived for 51 years.

Helen was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Carl Jr.; sister, Lael; and her brother, Merlin. She is survived by four siblings, Joel Moss (Audra), Reed Moss (Elizabeth), Rhea (Jerry Wray) and Ruth (Don Johnson); her five children, Helena (Leonard Langford), Russell (Dori), Gaylinn (Mark Thompson), Penny (Kimball Broderick) and Erick (Kimberli); 20 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Helen Moss was born in Ririe, Idaho, on Aug. 21, 1928, to John and Zelma Moss. Helen was a brilliant student and gifted musician and pianist. She began using her talent on the piano in church and at school at the age of 10. She played the organ in church for many years. Helen graduated from Ririe High School with honors at the age of 16. She was co-valedictorian and voted the Most Outstanding Student. She later attended Rick's College and BYU.

While at Rick's College, Helen worked as the assistant to the president of the college. Helen graduated with a bachelor of science degree in secretarial science from Rick's College. Upon graduation, Helen taught English, typing and shorthand at Rigby High School. She won honors and awards for her beautiful penmanship and her music throughout her life. Mom served a mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the U.S. Northwestern States. Mom had a brilliant memory and was a gospel knowledgeable scholar who was very wellread and demonstrated a strong testimony of the gospel of Jesus Christ in the way she treated others. Helen married Carl M. Shaner Jr. in the Idaho Falls Temple in 1953, and they moved to Twin Falls in 1955.

The Shaners moved to their longtime residence on Blue Lakes Boulevard in 1962. Helen lived in that home after the death of her hus-(2002) and sold the band home in 2006. She then began living with her son, Erick (Boise, Idaho) and her daughter, Penny Broderick (Orem, Utah) and their families until the time of her passing.

Mom was a dear and loving mother - always so tender, compassionate and understanding. She filled her home with love. She also taught them the importance of education and earning a degree. As a result of her influence, all of her children earned college degrees. She so enjoyed beautiful music and taught her children to have a great love and appreciation for music as well.

At the young age of 36, Mom was stricken with a disabling physical condition which greatly restricted her physical abilities and freedom. She never complained of her condition and was always the most loving, pleasant and kind woman to everyone that she met. Her loving smile and pleasant conversation blessed and touched many lives.

Even though Mom will not be with us here, her saintly example of Christlike love, patience and longsuffering will live on in the lives of her family and all those that were blessed to know her. We will miss you, Mom.

The funeral will be held at 12.30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 7, at the LDS meetinghouse located at 2085 South Temple Drive in Twin Falls. A viewing will be conducted from 10:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. at the same location. Interment will be at Sunset Memorial Park.

Donna Fay Johnson

Nov. 5, 1940-Jan. 2, 2012

BUHL • Donna Fay Johnson, age 71, of Buhl, went home to be with her Heavenly Father on the evening of Monday, Jan. 2, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls. Donna was born Nov. 5, 1940, in Buhl, Idaho, the daughter of Ben F. and Helen M (Surber) Lemmons. She spent most of her life in the Buhl area. She was married to Wayne Hall and together, they blessed the world with three loving children, Jeffery Bret (Bal) Hall, Brenda Lynne Hall and Benjamin Wayne (Sandy) Hall. Although their marriage was not meant to last, the love of a family never falters.

In November of 1981, Donna married the love of her life and best friend, Ernest Arthur Johnson. She loved to spend time with her family playing cards and games of all kinds. Her life's joy was seeing the smiles on her grandchildren's faces. She held a special place in her heart for her great-granddaughter, Alycia Hall. Donna was truly a generous person who gave all she had to help anyone in need, no matter the cost to herself.

Donna is survived by her husband, Ernest; mother, Helen Lemmons; sons, Bret and Ben; daughter, Brenda; brother, Bill (Peg) Lemmons; several nieces and nephews; and many loving grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her father, Ben; and her sister, Irene Blank.

A memorial services will be conducted at 2:00 p.m. Friday, January 6, 2012 at the Buhl First Christian Church.

The family respectfully requests that, in lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the Intermountain Christian Camp, Route 1 Box 1283, Fairfield, ID 83327.

OPINION

"Not really, but I think it's a possibility. I don't deceive myself. You know what the odds are. The odds have been slim."

Reviving Marriages in America

ter analysis of Census data. There are three major factors behind these trends. First, the number of never-married Americans has nearly doubled, from 15 percent to 28 percent, from 1960 to 2010. Pew said that many couples are cohabiting instead of marrying because "they fear divorce." Why? Many are adult children of divorce who do not want to live through such pain again. Second, the number of divorced and un-remarried people has grown from 5 percent to 14 percent of the population.

Third, in the last 50 years, the median age at which people first marry has jumped six years — to 26 for women and to 29 for men. Today, only a fifth of adults ages 18 to 29 are married, vs. three times as many in 1960, 59 percent.

What's troubling to me is not the later age at which people marry, which is generally wise, but the fact that so many have never married. Only 72 percent of today's adults have ever married, versus 85 percent in 1960.

This is a big cultural change. What is behind this shift? Another recent Pew survey reported that four in 10 Americans think marriage is "becoming obsolete."

What's particularly interesting is that 47 percent of those who think marriage is becoming obsolete say they would like to marry; virtually the same share (45 percent) of unmarried adults who think marriage is not becoming obsolete say they want to wed.

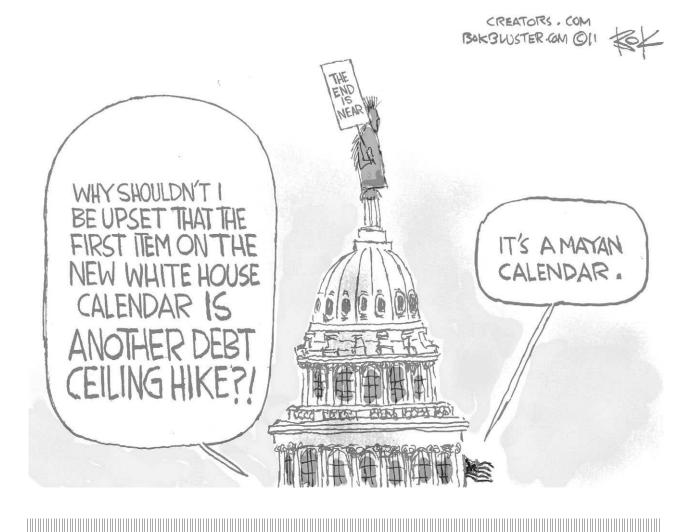

Those numbers suggest a strategy for churches, who perform nine of 10 weddings: Make a case for marriage from the pulpit. True, there aren't many cohabiting couples in church, but there are millions of churchgoing parents of adult children who do not know what to say to them.

What are the best arguments that pastors might make about the value of marriage?

I recommend that clergy read "The State of Our Unions: Marriage in America 2011," by the Institute for American Values. Its co-authors are W. Bradford Wilcox of the National Marriage Project at the University of Virginia and Elizabeth Marquardt of IAV's Center for Marriage and Families.

Their report, "When Baby Makes Three," provides scientific evidence of what every pastor has long believed: "Couples who both agree that 'God is at the center of our marriage' are at least 26 percentage points more likely to report that they are 'very happy!" While 50 percent of both men and women report being very happy, of those who believe God is at the center of their marriage, 77 percent of women and 76 percent of men are very happy.

These more religious couples are also more likely to

China's JFK Moment

Resident Obama's decision in 2010 to cut NASA's budget and abandon the Constellation program, established by the Bush administration, which was charged with returning Americans to the moon by 2020 and creating an "extended human presence on the moon," has created a vacuum, which China will attempt to fill.

China has announced an ambitious five-year plan that includes the launch of space laboratories, a manned spaceship to the moon and the creation of its own global satellite navigation system that will almost certainly be used for military purposes.

The announcement comes six months after the United States ended the Space Shuttle program, pable of sending humans into space. The U.S. must now use Russian rocketry for visits to the International Space Station. How humbling is this? Having "beaten" the Russians to the moon, we must now ask for permission — and pay them — to go where we once boldly went before in American-made rockets.

During the glory days of the U.S. space program, the Soviet Union and the Cold War provided the impetus for America's fledgling efforts in space. NASA's mission was to fulfill President John F. Kennedy's 1961 pledge to put men on the strong stepped on the moon's surface on July 20, 1969, America and the world cheered. An estimated half-billion people watched on TV as Armstrong proclaimed, "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." It was a triumph not only of American science and ingenuity, but a ratification of our way of life and its superiority to communism.

Just as a nation cannot rebuild a gutted military overnight, neither can America reconstitute a space program that has seen many of its scientists and technicians retire or find jobs in other industries.

For people not old enough to have lived through the space program and its named missions – Mercury, Gemini and Apollo – there was a sustained even during the divisive Vietnam War. Astronauts, who had "the right stuff," in the words of Tom Wolfe, were treated like supermen.

Who doubts that China will use trips to the moon to build a permanent colony and will operate that colony, at least in part, to further its military goals? China certainly will have the capability through its own GPS system to jam or make mischief with America's global positioning system network. Does anyone think a nation that hacks into U.S. government computers, stealing secrets, would not use a moon base to advance its interests?

Who thinks China lacks the financial resources to fulfill its five-year plan? The Chinese are flush with money we pay them for goods made there and sold here.

There will be a space leader in the 21st century. If that leader is China and not the U.S., we will pay a report high levels of commitment and a pattern of generous behavior toward one another. "In other words, marital spirituality is linked to beliefs and behaviors that strengthen the marriage bond," said the report.

Similarly, mothers and fathers who see parenting as one of "life's greatest joys" are about twice as likely to reporting being very happy in their marriages. It is one of the "Top Five Predictors of Marital Success."

However, the report cautions that "parenthood is typically associated with lower levels of marital happiness." Having a baby requires sacrifices such as a loss of sleep, less disposable income and often less quality time with one another, resulting in less sex.

And there is a sad paradox among young Americans. While most would like to have two or three children, "a growing share of young women and men believe that a good marriage is personally unattainable, and more are raising children outside of marriage."

Just Say No to Marijuana Convictions

hould juries vote "not guilty" on lowlevel marijuana charges to send a message about our country's insane marijuana arrest policy?

Jury nullification is a constitutional doctrine that allows juries to acquit defendants who are technically guilty but who don't deserve punishment. As Paul Butler wrote recently in The New York Times, juries have the right and power to use jury nullification to protest unjust laws.

Butler points out that nullification was credited with ending our country's disastrous alcohol Prohibition as more and more jurors refused to send their neighbors to jail for a law they didn't believe in. He says we need to do the same with today's marijuana arrests.

There is growing recognition that today's drug laws are ineffective and unfair. For the first time, a recent

Tony Newman

The Baltimore Sun

Gallup Poll found that 50 percent of Americans want to legalize the use of marijuana. Despite half of our country wanting to end marijuana prohibition, the war on marijuana users is as vicious as ever. There were more than 750,000 arrests last year for possession. In New York City, marijuana possession was the No. 1 reason people were arrested last year, making up 15 percent of all arrests.

People hoping for change should not expect it to come from our "leaders" in Washington. While most of our elected officials know in their hearts that our drug war is an utter failure that fills our prisons while doing nothing to help people struggling with addiction, there is deafening silence when it comes to offering alternatives to the war on drugs. Democrats and Republicans are both cowardly and opportunistic and don't want to give up their "tough on crime" credentials.

Here is where jury nullification comes in. If our leaders aren't going to stop the madness, maybe it is up to our peers to say enough is enough.

In Montana last year, a group of five prospective jurors said they had a problem with someone receiving a felony for a small amount of marijuana. The prosecutors, freaked out about the "Mutiny in Montana," feared they would not be able convince 12 jurors in the state to convict. The judge was reported in the Times as saying, "I've never seen this large a number of people express this large a number of reservations," adding, "it does raise a question about the next case."

Perhaps the highest-profile call for jury nullification for drug offenses is from the creators of the HBO hit series "The Wire." Former Baltimore Sun staffer David Simon and the other creators of "The Wire" wrote a passionate piece in Time magazine in which they called on Americans to join them in the use of jury nullification as a strategy to slow the drug war machine. From the article:

"'A long habit of not thinking a thing wrong, gives it a superficial appearance of being right, wrote Thomas Paine when he called for civil disobedience against monarchy - the flawed national policy of his day. In a similar spirit, we offer a small idea that is, perhaps, no small idea. It will not solve the drug problem, nor will it heal all civic wounds. ... It doesn't resolve the myriad complexities that a retreat from war to sanity will require. All it does is open a range of intricate, paradoxical issues."

Federal Judge Rejects Idaho Anti-union Laws

BOISE (AP) • A federal judge threw out Idaho's two newest anti-union laws, saying the measures violate federal rules and would restrict the free play of economic forces.

The laws, intended to weaken the power of labor organizations in the state, were passed during the 2011 legislative session and were set to go into effect last summer.

However, two building and construction unions sued in U.S. District Court, and District Judge B. Lynn Winmill stopped the laws from going into effect while the lawsuit moved forward.

Proponents said the measures were simply expansions of Idaho's right-to-work law.

The Open Access to Work Act banned project labor agreements that require contractors to forge pacts with unionized workers as a condition of winning a government construction job.

The Fairness in Contracting Act prohibited unions from using dues to subsidize member wages to help unionshop contractors submit more competitive bids and win more projects.

Winmill ditched the laws in a written ruling late last month.

He noted in his ruling that Congress set up the parameters under which construction employers and unions could bargain so they would be influenced only by their own economic power and the free play of economic forces.

The Open Access to Work Act upsets that balance, he wrote.

"The act skews those forces by robbing unions of the opportunity to even seek a project labor agreement on a public works project," Winmill wrote.

Winmill acknowledged that the state and its political subdivisions might never decide to actually use a project labor agreement on a project. Still, he said, they should Treasurer Commute Raises Question: Is It Taxable?

BY JOHN MILLER Associated Press

BOISE • Treasurer Ron Crane's use of state money to gas up his SUV has raised questions over whether his commutes to the Idaho Capitol should be taxed like similar trips are for other state employees.

The Internal Revenue Service considers reimbursements for commuter travel as taxable income, according to federal law. Consequently, Attorney General Lawrence Wasden pays income taxes on his statefunded commute, as do State Tax Commission agents with Idaho-owned cars.

Through his attorney, Crane said he's reviewed his own annual tax filings with his accountant for appropriateness.

"Mr. Crane... does not declare his commuting miles to the statehouse as personal income on a tax return, nor does he take advantage of the deduction available to him for state business-related expenses, which he personally pays," said David Leroy, a former Idaho attorney general representing Crane, on Wednesday. "Instead, he offsets the two."

Leroy declined to elaborate. Income tax records including those of Idaho elected officials like Crane are shielded from public records requests, so exactly how the treasurer treats his taxpayerfunded commuter mileage isn't clear.

An IRS spokeswoman contacted late Wednesday couldn't immediately provide comment.

For months, Crane's office's financial record-keeping has been under scrutiny by legislative auditors, as part of a review every three years. Their findings have been sent to Canyon County prosecutor Bryan Taylor for review, to see if any of Crane's activities constituted a criminal offense.

Taylor has said his review could take weeks; Leroy told the AP this week that he expects the matter will end without charges.

Since selling the treasurer's official vehicle in 2005, Crane has used a state-provided Chevron card to fill up the personal car he drives between his home in Nampa and the Capitol, a roundtrip 50-mile commute, as well as for short personal excursions to the post office, church and the grocery store.

Longer trips, he said, come out of his own pocket book.

Over the six-year period, Idaho has made vendor payments to Chevron for Crane's gas totaling nearly $16,000, according to state records obtained by The Associated Press on Wednesday. Records indicate the last payment was made on Sept. 28, amid auditors' scrutiny.

Crane says he's actually saved taxpayers money about $32,000 over six years, according to his estimates by using his personal car, since Idaho no longer has to pay leasing or maintenance expenses.

However, he doesn't keep a detailed record or logbook that shows locations he drove to using gas paid by taxpayers.

Dan John, an analyst at the Idaho State Tax Commission, said other state agencies keep track of their employees' state-funded commutes through Idaho's government expense system and report benefits to tax authorities when required.

State Tax Commission field agents who drive Idaho-owned vehicles to make it easier and quicker to reach clients treat their daily commutes as taxable income, John said.

That's what Wasden does when he drives a state-provided vehicle and uses a state credit card to purchase fuel.

For calendar 2011, for instance, Wasden's taxable fringe benefit for his commuter mileage was $1,510, his office said.

"That appears on his pay stub as taxable income," said Bob Cooper, Wasden's spokesman. "His accountant calculates the number, based on the number of personal miles he drives in the vehicle. Then, he adds about 500 miles, to make sure that it is sufficient?"

Over the past year, Crane's office has drawn scrutiny for its use of stretch limousines during annual trips to New York City to meet with financial industry officials.

An AP public records request found documents showing there were sometimes nearly as many relatives on Crane's New York trips as official members, necessitating extra cars for luggage. In 2010, for instance, two vehicles loaded with suitcases cost Idaho taxpayers more than $500.

Crane, who earns $90,000 annually, and others have defended the limousines as an efficient use of taxpayer resources, largely because they can accommodate more passengers and ensure that numerous Idaho officials arrive at meetings together. Crane has since said he will require relatives, who in the past have included his wife and daughter, to pay for ground-transportation expenses incurred because of their presence.

be allowed to freely make that choice without the "handcuffs of the flat prohibition mandated by the Open Access to Work Act."

Winmill said the Fairness in Contracting Act is invalid because it would bar programs that are protected under the National Labor Relations Act.

"We fought pretty hard on this," John Littel, regional political director the Carpenters for Union, told The Spokesman-Review. "We were pretty surprised about how much momentum there was to really, I think, try to take a bite out of the unions, and specifically the carpenters?"

The Idaho Attorney General's Office warned lawmakers early last year that those suing over the laws would likely win.

Sen. John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene, who sponsored the bills, acknowledged there were legal issues but said he still thought the measures were OK.

"We had instances where the carpenters union from Portland was disrupting work, and I think that was the real emphasis behind the effort," Goedde said.

Workers Still Searching for Petroleum Leak Source

LEWISTON (AP) • Officials with the Environmental Protection Agency say they're still working to determine the cause of a petroleum leak in the Clearwater River near Orofino.

EPA coordinator Earl Liverman told the Lewiston Tribune that the source could be a broken gas line, underground storage tank or something from an old landfill.

The leak was reported

Friday and booms were placed to contain the material. Liverman said the leak is an oil bloom that rises from the bottom of the river and leaves a sheen on the surface.

The leak is near an unmanned gas station. Liverman said the lines at the station were tested in early 2011 and no leaks were found, but that was before a small earthquake shook the region on Nov. 11. They are being retested.

Garden City Couple Held in Home-invasion Roberry

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Steven Levon Lantz and Toni Marie Lantz are being held in the Ada County Jail on felony robbery charges after sheriff's deputies say the pair were involved in a violent armed break-in at a home south of Boise late Monday night.

Ada County Sheriff's deputies are looking for at least one other person who they say was involved in the robbery, spokeswoman Andrea Dearden said Tuesday. The sheriff's office said at least three people forced their way into a home in the 7700 block of S. Carpenter Avenue, located in the Five Mile/Columbia roads neighborhood south of Boise, just before 10 p.m. Monday.

Deputies say one of those people was armed with a gun, which they used to threaten an adult man and woman who live there.

The robbers reportedly stole an undisclosed amount of cash, electronics and guns from inside before leaving. The residents of the home were not hurt, deputies say, and it appears the robbers targeted the home because someone else used to live there, according to reports.

Detectives were able to identify Steven and Toni Lantz, ages 34 and 33, as suspects after interviewing victims and developing undisclosed evidence at the home. Deputies arrested the pair during a traffic stop near their Garden City home early Tuesday morning and were able to recover some of the items taken from the home, according to reports.

The Lantzes will make their initial court appearance Wednesday afternoon.

The crime of robbery is punishable by up to life in prison, with a five year minimum sentence.

Yellowstone Says Hunt Changes Protect Park Wolves

BY MATTHEW BROWN Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Wolf hunting restrictions in portions of Montana bordering Yellowstone National Park are protecting the park's animals from a repeat of a previous hunt when almost half the members of a wellknown pack were killed, federal and state officials said Wednesday.

Yellowstone wolf biologist Doug Smith said Montana's 2011-2012 wolf season so far has turned out better for the park than an inaugural hunt in 2009. That year hunters killed four of the ten wolves in Yellowstone's Cottonwood pack, the subject of years of scientific research and a popular draw for wolf watchers visiting the park from across the country.

The killings sparked an outcry from wildlife advocates and prompted Montana to adjust its hunting regulations to prevent a recurrence.

Smith said four wolves shot outside the park's northern boundary this season were not from the same pack as in 2009. Also, at least two of those animals did not live exclusively inside the park. By contrast, the Cottonwood pack was composed of "park wolves" that spent 98 percent of their time inside Yellowstone, only to be shot when they briefly wandered across the Montana border as the hunting season began.

"Distinguishing why we consider this is a success is very important," Smith said. "We only had knowledge of two that got shot (this season) and they were on their way out of the park. We can't claim that was a park pack."

Yellowstone administrators last year asked Montana officials to impose hunting restrictions in a second area, to the northwest of the park, but those were not enacted by the state. Smith said he did not know of any park wolves among the 11 reported killed in that area so far this season.

Hunting along much of the park's northern border has been closed since October after the four wolves were killed, exceeding the area's three-animal quota. Twelve wolves were killed in roughly the same area of the Gallatin National Forest during an early-season hunt in 2009.

Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks spokesman Ron Aasheim said this season's lower quota along the border was designed in part to refocus hunting efforts elsewhere, in hopes of curbing livestock and big game attacks by wolves in other parts of the state. "The idea was to be more surgical, so we could focus on areas where we had specific needs for harvest," Aasheim said.

He described the state's wolf hunting regulations as a work in progress that could be adjusted again in coming years.

The park has 97 wolves in 10 packs, according to the latest unofficial count. Those animals are descended from several dozen of the predators reintroduced to Yellowstone and central Idaho beginning in 1995 – the core of a Northern Rockies wolf population that had grown to at least 1,650 animals at the end of 2010.

Congress last spring stripped federal protections from the animals in portions of five states under pressure from Western lawmakers. That allowed wolf hunting in Montana and Idaho to resume after the state's seasons were canceled in 2010 because of lawsuits from animal rights groups.

Rand

Since August, hunters and trappers in Idaho and Montana have taken 319 of the animals. At least 177 more were killed in Idaho, Montana and neighboring Wyoming in 2011 by government wildlife agents, ranchers protecting livestock and other causes.

Wolves in Wyoming remain protected but have been proposed for removal from the federal endangered species list sometime this year by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. That could allow hunting in the state as soon as this fall, barring a successful courtroom challenge from wildlife advocates.

Idaho and Wyoming each have only a single pack living along the park's border, reducing the chance that hunting in the states could cause problems, biologist Smith said.

But Chris Colligan, a wildlife advocate with the Greater Yellowstone Coalition, said Montana's attempt to steer hunters away from some areas should be repeated elsewhere in the Northern Rockies to ensure the species' long-term survival.

Colligan said hunting restrictions similar to those on Yellowstone's border should be enacted along backcountry corridors frequently used by wolves to journey from one part of the region to another.

"This season they were able to establish a quota that would prevent some of those things that happened in 2009 from happening again," Colligan said. "For long-term genetic health of wolves, it's probably wise to protect those dispersal corridors as much as possible."

Fun on the Ice

When Jack Frost comes to visit, a destination for many is Ketchum's outdoor ice rink.

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

KETCHUM • It sits in the shadow of Bald Mountain — Sun Valley's premiere ski mountain.

But the outdoor ice rink that spans a field the size of a soccer field is plenty busy.

Young boys play a game of pick-up hockey with their dads while a woman practices twirling on figure skates.

A couple youth sail across the ice pushing chairs as they learn how to balance on quarter-inch blades. And a group of elementary schoolchildren cavort in a game of tag, chasing one another right off the ice onto a pile of snow 25 yards beyond the ice rink.

Christina Potters Ice Rink, which sits next to Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum, resembles a scene out of a Norman Rockwell painting as the sun streams down on a hundred skaters enjoying the free skating.

Area sporting goods retailers say 2011 was a steady sales year — or better — and they expect the same for 2012.

Sales at Sportsman's Warehouse remained steady, said manager Reese Widmier. He said the store trends with hunting seasons; when one department slows another picks up. Smaller gifts such as knives, binoculars and GPS units were most popular during the holidays.

TWIN FALLS • A few customers browsed the selection of winter apparel, while outside the sun beat down from a blue sky.

It might have melted snow if any were on the ground. But it's that very lack that has some sporting goods store owners and managers anxious.

"We would have been doing better if there was snow outside," said Ryan Kober, owner of Elevation Sports. He said the store received a good response early in the season when people were excited about winter. "But that faded out a little at a time. It was like people were saying, 'OK we don't have snow yet. OK, we still don't have snow.' As the season progressed it became a little discouraging."

But, he said, despite the lack of snowfall, overall store sales for 2011 were steady — not phenomenal, but not dropping, either. Other area store owners and managers said roughly the same thing. They predicted 2012 will be similar, but they're hoping for snowfall before long.

"Sales were pretty good in general throughout the store," Kober said, "but hard sales, like ski equipment, have been a little rough." "If we'd gotten snow before Christmas it would have been that much better," Widmier said. "I've got an abundance of snow packs and winter boots and hardly have seen a skiff of snow on the ground. We try to predict what's going to happen, but when we don't have snow you sit on it."

Snow helps fishing sales, too, he said. "If we don't have ice we can't ice fish."

I could be wrong, of course. Maybe it's really good. But, no offense, chocolate, chili powder and beans just doesn't sound like an appealing combination. Hunting for Holiday Hassenpfeffer he faint winter solstice sun was hidden by the advancing cold front when my eldest daughter, Emily, and I left the vehicle, loaded our guns and moved off through the crunching cold snow to the nearest basalt formation.

Experience had taught us that on afternoons like this, the cottontails would be crouched close to their dens, catching what dwindling sunlight they could before retreating into their burrows to wait out the approaching storm.

Because experience also taught us that wounded rabbits can sometimes drop or manage to flip themselves into their burrows after solid .22 LR hits, we've come to depend on the immediate lethality of her 20-gauge single shot NEF Partner shotgun and my 17 HMR CZ rifle for our annual yuletide rabbit hunt.

Stopping momentarily to scan a snow-fringed rock ledge ahead of us with her binoculars, Emily spotted a cottontail about 60 yards away stretching out to nibble the bark off an overhanging choke cherry branch. Within 20 yards of the animal, her 7/8 ounce load of No. 71/2 shot put our first rabbit of the day in the bag.

I was up next and managed to make a clean head shot with my wonderfully accurate .17 caliber on another unsuspecting lagomorph out at about 50 yards.

Alternately switching guns, we collected our selfimposed limit of six rabbits for the pot within several hours.

Before heading back to the truck, we sat to rest, have a snack and enjoy some casual daddy/daughter catch-up time. Motoring back to the main road with the snow beginning to build up under the thumping wiper blades, we gave each other a high-five:

Once again we had enjoyed a perfect afternoon together gathering the main ingredient for our traditional Christmas break Hassenpfeffer stew.

Hassenpfeffer, which roughly translates to rabbit pepper stew, is a perennial favorite and a winter staple for my wife's German immigrant family. Although variations to the basic recipe abound, our favorite – a Dutch oven preparation - can be found at mangerati.com.

Some suggestions about equipment to help you enjoy the wonderful pursuit of cottontails might be appropriate here. Though cottontail rabbits are rather tender and sensitive animals, traditional .22 LR ammo may not be immediately fatal and, sadly, in the past we have lost a number of solidly hit bunnies. But even the Energizer Bunny can't stand against a wellplaced string of small bird shot or a blistering 17-grain bullet from the potent 17 HMR.

TIMES-NEWS

Combing these firearms with unhurried stalking skills and careful marksmanship, we have yet to lose an animal – and that's what our sport and this fine game animal demand.

We also highly recom-mend a quality pair of compact binoculars secured in Crooked Horn Outfitter's Slide-and-Flex Bino straps. They keep the binoculars tight against your chest for easy access and totally eliminate the customary chest thumping of conventional straps.

A final suggestion would be to purchase the best scope that you can afford for your rimfire. Quality optics make all the difference when you're trying to send your bullet into the rabbit's eye socket under field conditions.

So get yourself off the couch and outdoors chasing bushy tails this winter. You might just jump start a new family tradition for yourselves. Good hunting!

F&G Seeks Input on Season Proposals

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game seeks public input on proposals for 2012-13 and 2013-14 upland game and furbearer seasons.

Proposals include: 1) increasing the possession limit for upland birds from two times the daily bag limit to three times the daily bag limit; 2) reverting to a daily bag of eight birds for chukar and gray partridge; 3) opening all upland bird seasons on the third Saturday in September; and 4) opening additional drainages in Camas and Gooding counties to beaver trapping.

Anyone interested in providing input on these seasons is invited to attend an open house from 4 to 6 p.m. Friday at the regional office 324 S. 417 E., Jerome.

The public also may review the proposals and provide comments any time on the Fish and Game website, fishandgame.idaho.gov, or at the office. The Fish and Game Commission will take action on final season proposals at its Jan. 25-27 meeting in Boise.

When the Going Gets Tough, the Tough Go Hunting

LEWISTON TRIBUNE

In the back room of a Lewiston steak house, a group of middle-aged men told the hunting story like highschoolers in a cafeteria talking over each other, correcting the smallest details and punctuating every segment with raucous laughter. caught their flight home.

The part of Jake's story that filled the restaurant with laughter started with Hammrich forgetting how to say the word "elk" and falling off the seat of a fourwheeler.

Hammrich had stopped his ATV to take some video of Jake riding in a side-byside ATV with MacDowell and Vogel on the way to get a look at a bear bait. "Jeff starts velling, 'Ears, ears, ears," Jake said. Hammrich admitted he may have gotten a little excited when he spotted the herd of elk. His mind latched on to an 'E' word and his mouth went to work. He followed the bull in the herd as Jake got out of the ATV and all the guys started telling him different things to do before he got off his shot. "I'm following this elk and all of the sudden he makes that first shot and it was just beautiful - hits him, just buckles him," Hammrich said. He followed it for a second more and then, in his excitement, fell off the four-wheeler. Through the adrenalineaddled alert and barrage of advice from his new hunting buddies, Jake just did his thing. He got out and brought the bull down in two shots. "It was over just like that," Jake said. Todd sat back and watched. The two have hunted and fished together since Jake learned to walk. He had to quit his job and become Jake's nurse when the boy got sick. He spent more nights in his son's hospital bed than he did next to Jake's mother, Wendy. He watched helpless as his son dwindled from a 145pound promising young wrestler to a spindly 104 pounds. There were times when the few waking hours Jake had were spent with intolerable pain and vomiting. There also were times when he wondered if Jake's life would ever be worth living. Now back to about 130 pounds and regaining his strength, Jake's elk hunt reassured Todd his son will have a life to live.

PLOWING FOR A CAUSE

JEROME • If snow ever arrives this season, don't worry, you'll have someone to call to remove it for you.

LBZ Racing, a youth motocross team based in Jerome, is offering free snow removal all season long to Magic Valley residents and businesses. While there is no cost for the service, donations in any amount will be accepted for the Nate Blaylock Memorial Fund.

Blaylock, 33, of Idaho Falls died Aug. 10 during an LBZ event he was support ing in Rigby. He is survived by his wife, Holly, and their four children. All proceeds go directly to the Blaylock family.

Not interested in snow removal? That's OK. You can stop by any Wells Fargo bank or Adventure Motorsports in Twin Falls to still make a donation to the memorial fund.

BY LES WINKELER

The Southern Illinoisan

HARRISBURG • As daylight faded, Ron Brachear checked the time every few minutes.

Finally, after taking one last look at the darkening skies, Brachear decided it was time to go. He stepped out of the cover provided by the towering oak trees, his year-old chocolate lab, Jaxx, bounding at his side, and shucked the shells from his gun.

A pair of mallards took the empty chamber as a cue, giving Brachear's decoys one last look. Brachear quickly reloaded, but the ducks veered off, marking a typical end to a duck hunt.

Few ducks circled the decoys during the late afternoon hunt, but it was hardly a bad day.

Brachear was hunting on private property, just a few miles from his home. Given the conditions, the nearby 35acre lake had flooded as had the adjacent Saline Creek.

"You look at these river bottoms," Brachear said. "I don't know how many acres are flooded and part of that is corn fields. The ducks can be all over. Just getting out and seeing the ducks is just as good as killing them."

He has been hunting the area for just two years. There are no nearby refuges and the only available food is what naturally occurs in flooded timber and nearby corn fields. As a result, the area is not loaded with ducks. He plans to rectify that situation by next hunting season.

"With our situation, it's the food," Brachear said. "We don't have the food to attract the ducks. We just don't have it yet."

Although the hunting hasn't been great, he expects improvement as the water recedes.

"The water will be down in the next few days and will be back in the lake," he said. "I really think we'll do better. They'll come to your decoys better. I'm not saying they'll come to my calling better, but they will come to the decoys better."

And, Brachear also noted the ability to hunt so close to home is a luxury.

"That's the good thing about this situation," he said. "To me the hunt isn't about killing the bird. The beauty of duck hunting is sitting there and watching the ducks set their wings and the maneuvers coming in, floating in with the wind. That's the beauty of duck hunting, not killing the bird.

"Now, don't get me wrong, I like killing so my dog can work and stuff like that. To me the most exciting part of the whole duck hunt is when the birds set their wings and commit to you and they are going to come into their decoys."

Brachear shrugged off the last duck snub of the evening and headed back toward his truck.

"I'm going to be back out here at about 6:15 a.m.," he said.

So, the same scene was repeated about 14 hours later. However, this time there were

A pair of woodies lighted in Brachear's decoys at the first hint of light. They swam off long before shooting hours. Several flights of mallards flirted with the decoys, but none would commit.

However, there was plenty of activity in the area. Several barred owls hooted in the background. A flock of about 30 trumpeter swans cackled as they awoke, then flew across Brachear's decoys on their morning feeding run.

"I like the timber waking up in the morning, hearing all the different kinds of birds," Brachear said. "There's just more activity in the morning."

On some days Brachear is able to sneak away for both morning and afternoon hunts.

"You see more ducks in the morning," he said. "In my situation, with a good office staff, I can get away from the office at 2:30 and get an hour of hunting in. I don't have to be moving my decoys around, so if I can get here for an hour, it beats sitting behind a desk."

Nearly everything does.

At the center of the table and the story was Jake Stoneking – a dark-haired 17-year-old with the wispy beginnings of sideburns and a quiet grin on his face.

For the second time that week, the teenager was more composed than the group of local men who helped give him and his dad, Todd Stoneking, a hunt that once seemed impossible. Two years ago, Jake was diagnosed with a rare type of cancer in his brain and spine.

After a 10-hour surgery, months of treatments that almost killed him and learning how to walk, talk and eat again, Jake sat across from Todd and shared in a chorus of the tale.

The Outdoor Dream Foundation, a group that helps give excursions to young people with lifethreatening illnesses, was the catalyst for bringing the father and son from West Linn, Ore., to Idaho. They also gave Jake some of the gear he needed for the elk, deer and bear hunt.

The biggest part of getting Jake and Todd to the ranch near Lucile, where he shot his 4-by-5 bull and a 4point whitetail, were the guys around the table: Paul Bogar, Don Vogel, Ted Zmack, Mike MacDowell, Tom Donahue and Willie Deibel, all of Lewiston, and Jeff Hammrich of Asotin. All are members of the local Lewis and Clark Chapter of the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation.

When Outdoor Dream contacted the chapter, Bogar and the others immediately started putting together a hunt for the boy they'd never met.

But logistics and the selflessness of their work got little lip service at the table the Friday after the hunt, a few hours before Todd and Jake the past decade, partly because of regulated hunting. Licensed deer hunters are allowed on parts of the Marine Corps base but not at the academy where the FBI does not hunt its animals.

At the FBI Academy, the deer have even become part of the training in some of the driving courses, said Tim Moles, the supervisory special agent who oversees the Tactical and Emergency Vehicle Operations Center, where recruits learn to avoid crashing their cars and conduct surveillance without being spotted. The deer are convenient when recruits learn to avoid collisions, Moles said. "There's times when it seems like they're playing chicken with us," Moles said. "We respect them because they can do damage. We'd rather avoid all deer stories in this end of the academy."

For the most part, the deer have stayed out of trouble. Twice, however, deer have eaten freshlyplanted pansies at the academy's 9/11 memorial courtyard, Crawford said. Eventually a fence was built to keep the flowers off limits.

Deer have been known to interrupt physical training, too.

"We've had the deer walk across the middle of the track during the 300-meter sprint," said Susann Dreiling, unit chief of the academy's physical training unit.

To become an agent, recruits must pass a physical fitness test. They are scored on how fast they can run and how many push-ups and sit-ups they perform. Sometimes, training will involve running a quartermile path along the lake area of the academy, stopping for push-ups, running some more and breaking to box, Dreiling said.

During these exercises, a mother and her fawns are often close by.

"They just stand there and watch as if they're evaluating them," Dreiling said, "just like the instructors are?"

MORE U.S. WOMEN HAVING TWINS; RATE AT 1 IN 30 BABIES

ATLANTA (AP) • More U.S. women are having twins these days.

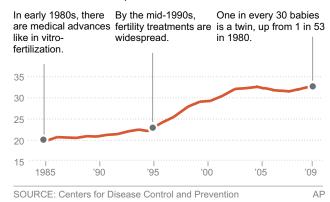

Health officials say one in every 30 babies is a twin. That's a huge increase over the last 30 years. In 1980, only one in 53 newborns was a twin.

Experts attribute the jump mainly to medical treatments and procedures that help infertile couples. But they note that there are more older moms today. For some reason, women in their late 30s have twins at a higher rate.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released the twins report on Wednesday.

Older moms, fertility, produce more twins

Now You See It, Now You Don't: Time Cloak Created

BY SETH BORENSTEIN Associated Press

WASHINGTON • It's one thing to make an object invisible, like Harry Potter's mythical cloak. But scientists have made an entire event impossible to see. They have invented a time masker.

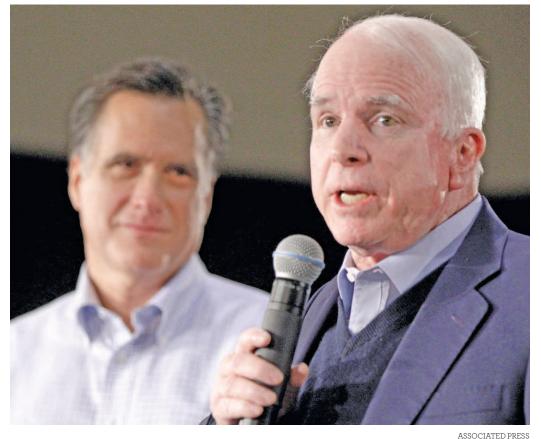

Think of it as an art heist that takes place before your eyes and surveillance cameras. You don't see the thief strolling into the museum, taking the painting down or walking away, but he did. It's not just that the thief is invisible — his whole activity is.

What scientists at Cornell University did was on a much smaller scale, both in terms of events and time. It happened so quickly that it's not even a blink of an eye. Their time cloak lasts an incredibly tiny fraction of a fraction of a second. They hid an event for 40 trillionths of a second, according to a study appearing in Thursday's edition of the journal Nature.

We see events happening as light from them reaches our eyes. Usually it's a continuous flow of light. In the new research, however, scientists were able to interrupt that flow for just an instant.

Other newly created invisibility cloaks fashioned by scientists move the light beams away in the traditional three dimensions. The Cornell team alters not where the light flows but how fast it moves, changing in the dimension of time, not space.

They tinkered with the speed of beams of light in a way that would Republican presidential candidate, former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney listens at left as Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., speaks during a town hall style meeting in Manchester, N.H. Wednesday.

After Iowa, Romney Now Hopes to Pull Away in N.H.

BY DAVID ESPO and KASIE HUNT Associated Press

MANCHESTER, N.H. • Mitt Romney eagerly pocketed an endorsement from two-time New Hampshire primary winner John McCain on Wednesday and bid to convert a single-digit victory in Iowa into a Republican presidential campaign juggernaut. Unimpressed, Newt Gingrich ridiculed the former Massachusetts governor as a liberal turned moderate now masquerading as a conservative. Former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum sought to rally conservatives to his side after coming achingly close to victory in the Iowa caucuses. "This is a wide-open race still," added former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman, who skipped the Iowa caucuses in hopes of making his mark in next Tuesday's first-in-the-nation primary. Romney is the odds-on favorite to win the New Hampshire primary, and the endorsement of McCain, an Arizona senator, made his welcome in the state a warm one. "The time has arrived for Republicans to choose a presidential nominee, a new standard bearer who has the ability and determination to defeat President Obama," said the 2008 Republican presidential nominee, a man with a demonstrated appeal to the state's independent voters.

Already, the Republican field of challengers was dwindling.

Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann ended her campaign after a dreary 5 percent showing in Iowa, the state where she was born.

After suggesting he, too, might withdraw, Texas Gov. Rick Perry decided otherwise. "Here we come South Carolina!!!" he tweeted. That primary is Jan. 21, and will mark the first balloting in the South as well as in a state that is part of the Republican Party's conservative, political base nationally. Romney, who campaigned as the man best positioned to defeat Obama, was the favorite by far among caucus-goers who said that goal was their priority. Paul was preferred by those who said what mattered most was backing a true conservative. Santorum ran particularly well among those who said they were looking for a candidate with strong moral character.

Obama Campaign Casting President as Promise Keeper

BY KEN THOMAS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama's campaign wants to portray the president as a man of conviction as Republicans scrutinize his record on the economy and federal debt.

The campaign emailed supporters a video of Obama's Iowa victory speech in 2008, noting that he kept the big promises he made that night on issues like reforming health care, cutting taxes for the middle class and ending the war in Iraq.

But the approach brings scrutiny to Obama's handling of the economy and also raises questions about unfulfilled promises such as closing the military prison for terrorist suspects at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and changing the culture of Washington.

Republicans say they plan to use the president's own words against him, pointing to promises they say that have not been fulfilled.

make it appear to surveillance cameras or laser security beams that an event, such as an art heist, isn't happening.

Another way to think of it is as if scientists edited or erased a split second of history. It's as if you are watching a movie with a scene inserted that you don't see or notice. It's there in the movie, but it's not something you saw, said study co-author Moti Fridman, a physics researcher at Cornell.

The scientists created a lens of not just light, but time. Their method splits light, speeding up one part of light and slowing down another. It creates a gap and that gap is where an event is masked.

"You kind of create a hole in time where an event takes place," said study co-author Alexander Gaeta, director of Cornell's School of Applied and Engineering Physics. "You just don't know that anything ever happened." Iowa, for months ground zero in the Republican race, yielded an almost impossibly close finish.

Romney emerged with an eight-vote victory over Santorum, whose grass-roots campaigning produced a late surge that fell just shy of victory. Texas Rep. Ron Paul finished third, followed by Gingrich, Perry and Bachmann.

A survey of Iowa caucus-goers highlighted the internal divisions in the GOP as it sets out to find a challenger for Barack Obama in the general election campaign. gained an estimated 48 percent share of self-identified independents, a group that traditionally plays a major role in determining the outcome of New Hampshire's primary.

"If you look to bringing new people in, the frustrated young people that Obama had, you have to look at my campaign. I mean that's where the enthusiasm is," he said.

McCain, who did well among those voters in 2000 and 2008, urged his New Hampshire audience to deliver "an overwhelming vote that will catapult this candidate to the White House." As Romney looked on, he said, "The time has arrived for Republicans to choose a presidential nominee, a new standard bearer who has the ability and determination to defeat President Obama."

Police: Student Killed by Officers Had Pellet Gun

BRAD DOHERTY · THE BROWNSVILLE HERALD · ASSOCIATED PRESS Nancy Blanco and her husband Arturo Carreon comforted their two children, Ashley Carreon, 12, and Josey Lynn Carreon, 13, after being reunited with them at Dean Porter Park in Brownsville, Texas Wednesday.

BY CHRISTOPHER SHERMAN Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Texas • An armed eighth-grader gunned down by police officers in the hallway of his Texas middle school Wednes-day was brandishing a pellet gun that looked like a firearm, and he refused repeated orders to lower the weapon before the officers opened fire, police said.

The carbon-dioxide powered pellet gun 15-year-old Jaime Gonzalez was holding looked like a handgun, and the initial report to police that sent officers rushing to Cummings Middle School Wednesday morning was for a student seen holding a gun, Orlando Rodriguez, Brownsville's interim police chief, said at a news conference.

Robert Valle, a 13-year-old who was among the school's 750 students locked down in their classrooms during the confrontation, said he heard police run down the hallway and yell "put the gun down," before several shots were fired.

"He had plenty of opportunities to lower the weapon ... and he didn't want to," Rodriguez said. Two officers fired three shots, striking Gonzalez at least twice, he said. The autopsy results are pending.

Rodriguez said that before the confrontation with police, Gonzalez walked into a Cummings Middle School classroom and punched another boy in the nose. He said he doesn't know why Gonzalez was brandishing the weapon.

Earlier Wednesday, before police said the weapon was actually a pellet gun, Jaime's godmother Norma Leticia Navarro told The Associated Press she couldn't imagine what led to the fatal confrontation.

"Jaime was not a bad kid, and I wish I could ask him why he did that, why did you put yourself in that position?"

Still, she said she understood that police were doing their job, but she expressed frustration that a child was killed and wondered if something else could have been done.

"I'm not saying he was perfect or an angel, but he was a very giving person."

She said both of his parents work, and that his stepmother raised him from infancy and was very strict with him.

As word of the shooting spread quickly through the city on Texas' southern tip, where violence frequently spills over from Mexico's drug war, frantic parents rushed to reach their children.

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared on Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks were nearly flat on Wednesday, letting investors hold on to their gains from a strong opening to the year a day earlier. Strong December sales boosted carmakers and specialty retailers. Banks, health care companies, and utilities fell slightly. But nothing moved much.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 21.04 points, or 0.17 percent, at 12,418.42.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index was up 0.24 points, or 0.02 percent, at 1,277.30.

The Nasdaq fell 0.36 points, or 0.01 percent, to 2,648.36.

WASHINGTON • The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday ordered farmers to limit the use of a type of antibiotics they give livestock because it could make people more resistant to a key antibiotic that can save lives, encouraging news for public health advocates who say such animal antibiotics are overused.

FDA officials have been clear in stating their belief that antibiotics given to animals before slaughter are linked to growing antibiotic resistance in humans, but it has struggled with how to tackle the problem because the powerful livestock industry says the drugs are needed to keep animals healthy.

Calls for limiting antibiotics have been stronger than ever as consumers have become more aware of the issue and are clamoring for antibiotic-free meat.

The agency's order Wednesday will limit cephalosporins, which are given to some cattle, swine, chickens and turkeys before slaughter. The drugs are used to treat pneumonia, skin infections and meningitis, among other diseases, in humans.

Cephalosporins, which are injected directly into eggs or animals, are not as widely used as many other antibiotics that are mixed with animal feed in massive quantities. But they are significant because the drugs often are used in life-threatening situations for humans, and lives could be lost if resistance is built up over time.

"This is an incredibly critical class of antibiotics for humans," said David Wallinga, a physician at the Institute for Agriculture and Trade Policy in Minnesota and a member of the Keep Antibiotics Working coalition. "In the medical world you'd call it a 'big gun' or a 'drug of last resort'. It's effective against a pretty broad spectrum of bacteria."

In the order, the FDA said the drugs can be particularly critical for treating children and some adults for salmonella poisoning.

DETROIT • Strong sales in December capped off a great year for U.S. carmakers - especially Chrysler - and 2012 should be even better.

For their biggest Japanese rivals, a year of natural disasters and other struggles ended on a sour note, with U.S. sales falling and the outlook for next year just as challenging.

Chrysler Group, in the midst of a comeback after its 2009 trip through bankruptcy court, said Wednesday that sales surged 37 percent in December and 26 percent for all of 2011. Demand was particularly strong for the Jeep Grand Cherokee and the Chrysler 200. Chrysler catapulted itself ahead of Honda Motor Co. as the fourthlargest automaker by sales in the U.S.

General Motors Co. and Ford Motor Co. ended the year with more modest double-digit percentage gains. Analysts say U.S. car sales rose for the second year in a row as buyers' confidence in the economy picked up, their aging vehicles wore down and their ability to take out cheap loans improved.

U.S. auto sales rose 10 percent to 12.8 million in 2011. That's up 22 percent from 2009, when the U.S. auto industry and the financial system were in peril.

November and December were the strongest months of the year for U.S. auto sales, and analysts expect the momentum to continue into 2012. Improving employment numbers, low interest rates and building demand to replace older cars should all boost 2012 sales.

GM's December sales rose 5 percent, resulting in a 13 percent bump for the year, while Ford's December sales climbed 10 percent, closing out an 11 percent gain for 2011.

Nissan Motor Co., which recovered more quickly than its rivals from the March earthquake and tsunami in Japan, was the only major Japanese automaker to sell more cars in the U.S. in 2011. Its sales surged nearly 8 percent in December and 15 percent for the year. Nissan's Leaf electric car also outsold GM's Chevrolet Volt in the cars' first full year on the market. Nissan sold 9,674 Leafs, beating the Volt by just over 2,000.

Public Notice for Destruction of Infant Toddler Program Records

According to Dept. of Health and Welfare policy, the Region 5 Infant Toddler Program (ITP) hereby gives notice that intervention records that are no longer needed to provide services to children and families who were enrolled in the Region 5 ITP during 2005 and have since exited the program will be destroyed on or about 30 days from the publication of this notice. Destruction of these records is the best protection against improper and unauthorized disclosure. Please be aware that if you have ITP records on file, these records may be needed for social security benefits or for other purposes in the future. If you wish to review or keep the file for you own records, please contact the Region 5 Infant Toddler Program within 10 calendar days to obtain a records request form at 208-736-2182. House Representatives, died in Boston at age 81.

In 1998, Sonny Bono, the 1960s pop star-turnedpolitician, was killed when he struck a tree while skiing at the Heavenly Ski Resort on the Nevada-California state line; he was 62.

Ten years ago: Charles Bishop, a 15-year-old student pilot, deliberately crashed a small plane into a skyscraper in Tampa, Fla., killing himself. Italy's foreign minister, Renato Ruggiero, resigned after a spat with Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi over the government's lukewarm reception of the euro.

Five years ago: The White House announced a shuffling of U.S. military leaders in the Iraq war. Adm. William Fallon ended up replacing Gen. John Abizaid as top U.S. commander in the Middle East; Army Lt. Gen. David Petraeus succeeded Gen. George Casey as top American general in Iraq; Casey replaced retiring Gen. Peter Schoomaker as Army chief of staff.

One year ago: John Boehner was elected speaker as Republicans regained control of the House of Representatives on the first day of the new Congress. White House Press Secretary Robert Gibbs announced he was stepping down. Roberto Alomar and Bert Blyleven were elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

DEAR ABBY: I was sure "Emotionally Abused in California's" letter (Nov. 2) was inspirational, but fictional. The 15-year-old writer felt her mother was unreasonable because of the rules Mom enforced and the chores the teen was required to do. Then I started re-reading my high school diary. There were many parallels between this girl's complaints and my own as a teen.

My mom also didn't let me go to parties if she didn't know the parents and confirm they'd be home; my curfew was 11:30 p.m. on weekends because Mom couldn't sleep until I was in for the night. She always offered to host Friday pizza-andmovie night at our home to ensure my friends and I had a safe place to hang out.

"Emotionally Like Abused," I also resented my lack of freedom, but because of her efforts, I never had run-ins with the law, never got an STD or became pregnant, and I didn't try drugs or alcohol. When I expressed my frustration, Mom would say, "When you're a parent, you'll understand."

Now that I have two small children, I DO understand. I hit the Mom jackpot! I'm grateful for her guidance, love and the boundaries she set for me. I'll be sending her that column and a copy of this letter to you as a thank-you for making decisions that kept me grounded and safe.

- WON THE JACKPOT IN MICHIGAN

DEAR WON THE JACK-POT: When that letter hit print, I was overwhelmed with mail from readers supporting my response and sharing experiences that val-"Emotionally idated Abused's" mom's parenting techniques. I took special note of the responses from teens, which I'll share tomorrow. Today, some comments from adults:

DEAR ABBY: It's refreshing to know there are still parents who actually care about how they raise their children. Bringing a child into this world is a tremendous responsibility. It requires years of 24/7 vigilance, teaching and love to produce a moral, loving and productive pillar of our society. Some parents today do not take their responsibility seriously. How we raise our children will directly affect how we function as a society in the future.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Alas, regardless of their doom, The little victims play! No sense have they of ills to come, Nor care beyond today." — Thomas Gray

How would you play today's contract of six clubs after receiving a heart lead? It looks natural to play for a diamond ruff in dummy, and indeed that is the right approach. But there are some formalities to be observed if you are to give yourself the absolutely best chance.

When the deal came up, David Smith of Australia was at the helm, after an auction in which South's delayed jump to five clubs suggested solid clubs together with some extra values on the side. After winning the heart ace, he made the careful move of ruffing a heart in hand to protect himself against the somewhat unlikely but by no means impossible bad break in clubs. Now came a diamond to the king and a heart ruff, the diamond ace and a diamond ruff, then the spade ace and a spade ruff as East pitched a heart.

At this point in the deal, declarer had cashed four winners and taken three ruffs in hand and one in dummy to reduce to a fivecard ending. Smith now cashed two top trumps, ready to claim if they split. When they did not, he simply exited with his losing diamond and could claim the last two tricks no matter which defender won the trick, since he had the Q-10 of clubs poised over East's guarded jack of trumps.

(Declarer has some flexibility in the timing, but must use his entries to dummy to ruff three times, reducing his trump holding to East's length for the trump coup.)

ANSWER: You have only five hearts. Additionally, with a minimum hand and a slow trick on defense in the trump suit, it would be totally wrong to bid on. Just for reference, if your minor suits were switched, you would still not really have enough to bid three hearts, but the decision would be much closer.

- CONCERNED DAD IN LAS VEGAS

DEAR ABBY: I am a teacher of many spoiled, lazy, irresponsible and incompetent students. If all parents were as dedicated in rearing their children as this teen's mother, my job would be wonderful. She has the necessary parenting skills to mold her child into a responsible, productive and mature adult. She's an awesome woman!

- TEACHER IN NASHVILLE, GA.

DEAR ABBY: It's about time parents raise their children appropriately. I grew up with much less than "Emotionally Abused," but with more rules and restrictions.

My mom divorced my physically abusive father when I was 3. There was no alimony or child support. Mom did it all on her own. She even went back to school to get a college degree.

Parents are not meant to be their children's BFF. They are responsible for raising their children with morals and social values. Welcome to the REAL world.

- JACKSON, WIS., READER

DEAR ABBY: My 15-yearold daughter often gives me a hard time for being a diligent mom. I laughed out loud at your response and let her read it. She said, "Wow, that's totally US with the exception of Catholic school." She has started being nicer to me. Thanks, Abby, for validating my efforts to be a good mom.

IF JANUARY 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your amorous allure and power to impress others are heightened this month, so you may form bonds with those who will brighten your life. Keep a pencil handy to jot down your inspired ideas, but don't plan anything of great significance that could affect your job or finances between now and the beginning of March. Hold off on major initiatives until late March or early April when your judgment is likely to be better and when someone may give you a golden opportunity to prove yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put your time to good use. Loved ones may be too busy handling details to give you the attention you crave. Occupy your spare time with word games, creative ideas or by tackling mental challenges.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accept graciously. Don't look all of those gift horses in the mouth. With jolly and generous Jupiter passing though your sign, it is possible to make major improvements by merely accepting your fate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Power exists in preparation. Having a bucket list is fine – but at some point, you must start crossing items off it. Make your inner child smile by taking a few steps towards achieving your dreams.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Balancing acts require dependable footing. You might be juggling plenty of tasks. Keep in touch with people who are reliable and can be counted on in a pinch. Business leaves little time for pleasure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Frank discussions can smooth out rough spots like a pumice stone on a callous. You might begin to see that it will be advantageous to change your tune about a business relationship or career objective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't afford to daydream when material assets are concerned. Dream big, but don't let a gullible nature take control of the purse strings. In the long run, thriftiness will help you

CSI BASKETBALL

Golden Eagles Playing For Keeps

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Now the season really starts.

Enough already with the upstart prep schools, NWAAC squads and

NJCAA Division II teams, it's time for the College of Southern Idaho men's and women's basketball teams to open Scenic West Athletic Conference play.

"It's for real now," said CSI women's head coach Randy Rogers, whose team hosts Salt Lake Community College tonight at 5:30.

"Our players have no idea (what to expect)," said CSI men's head coach Steve Gosar. "We've tried to talk to them and prepare them for what's coming up. The only way you can completely understand it is to go through and play every team and play at every place."

The No. 12 men face off against the No. 5 Bruins at 7:30 which at this point in the season figures to be a

Senators Slip Past Pilots

GOODING • Only two players in Wednesday's 53-49 Gooding win over Glenns Ferry acted like they hadn't had a long layoff.

Both teams were marking their first game action following the Christmas break, and it showed, with turnovers and fouls (and missed foul shots) creeping into both sides' games a little too glaringly for Gooding (5-3) had just enough to see off Glenns Ferry (6-3), largely because the Senators' good fortune had their top player in the post, whereas the Pilots were leaning on guard Chris Popoca, who scored a game-high 22.

"It was really a rough break for us. We didn't practice very well and it was just rough overall," said Gooding junior Carter Flora, who scored a team-high 19 points, including a 9-for-12 effort from the foul line - the rest of the team was 8 of 24. "We're happy to have a win, but we know we need to play better."

Flora was active on the boards and on defense, grabbing key rebounds and deflecting shots and interior passes. The Senators didn't hit a 3pointer but plugged away on both ends, eager to work the poor game out of their system.

At one point Flora was 9 of 10 from the foul line and the rest of the team was 5-for-21. But it was the volume of opportunities that gave Gooding the ability to control the game and complete a season sweep.

It helped that the Senators went 10-for-19 from the line in the fourth quarter. Glenns Ferry was 10 of 18 for the entire game.

"It's frustrating, but we shouldn't Please see GOODING, S2

LSU: LOSE GAME BUT WIN TITL

NEW ORLEANS • Picture this: A nail-biter of a Bowl Championship Series title game next Monday night comes down to a long field goal attempt by Alabama's Cade Foster. The snap is down, the kick is away and it's ... good!

Confetti guns spray the Superdome as the Crimson Tide beats LSU by a point to win college football's national championship.

Right? Well, sort of.

But then again, maybe not.

Despite its 120 schools, its corporate sponsors, its rabid fans and monster TV contracts worth billions of dollars, one thing that major college football does not have is a clean way of crowning a champion. Because the bowl system is so lucrative and popular - in a made-for-TV sense – the schools at the highest level of the sport have eschewed a season-ending tournament in favor of a single game between the two teams generally believed to be the best in the country.

defeating Jerome

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • It was just the first match of the night, but Minico coach Justin Gardner was on the edge of his seat.

With time winding down, Minico 138-pound wrestler Austin Gilchrist was in total control, leading 17-4 versus Jerome's Tanner Couch. Realizing points would be at a premium against their biggest Great Basin Conference rival, Gardner jumped to his feet, screaming at his wrestler to get one more shot in.

Gilchrist did, scoring five points for a technical fall rather than the fourpoint major decision.

Minico won every match it expected to, and also pulled off a couple surprises in its 50-30 win Wednesday.

Gardner said he was most proud of sophomore T.J. Strunk, who weighs 170 pounds, but fills Minico's empty slot at 182. On only his second day of varsity wrestling, Strunk came from behind to defeat Damon Zamora 8-7.

After trailing the first two rounds, Strunk scored a takedown with 30 seconds remaining to go up 8-6. Zamora escaped with 11 seconds left, but didn't have anything left in the gas tank to shoot.

"His last shot, I guess it was a bad shot and I just spun around and got the points. That's really what sealed it,"

Ahead 38-30 with two matches remaining, the Spartan corner finally relaxed. That's because two of its most accomplished wrestlers, 126-pounder Isaiah Alvarado and 132-pounder Alberto Ramirez, were due up. Both earned pins.

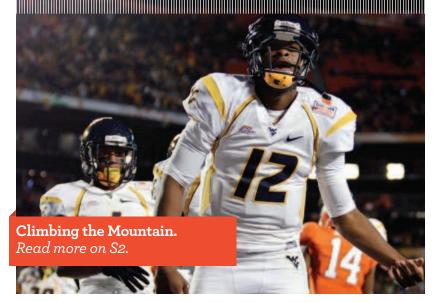

"I'm pretty confident if we have a lead going into those two kids, we're going to win the dual," Gardner said.

Of the six matches Jerome won, senior heavyweight Layne Lasike was one of the most impressive. He used his quickness to maneuver a pin on Dakota Madrigal.

"I feel faster and more confident than last year. I have more moves, so I feel a lot better out on the mat," said Lasike, who placed third at state last Please see MINICO, S2

PROVIDENCE, R.I. • Brandon Triche scored 16 points, including three straight 3pointers early in the second half, and No. 1 Syracuse pulled away from Providence for an 87-73 victory Wednesday night.

It is the second straight season the Orange (16-0, 3-0 Big East) have opened with 16 straight wins. Last season's team went 18-0 before its first loss.

Gerard Coleman and Vincent Council each scored 17 points for Providence, and LaDontae Henton had 11 points and 13 rebounds. The Friars (11-5, 0-3) were playing the No. 1 team in the nation for the first time since beatfrom Jamar Samuels and Rodney McGruder in a 10-0 run and closed to 39-36. But Conner Teahan's two 3pointers triggered a rally by Kansas (11-3, 1-0) that included dunks by Robinson on consecutive possessions.

NO. 19 MURRAY ST. 76, E. KENTUCKY 67

MURRAY, Ky. • Donte Poole scored 22 points and Isaiah Canaan added 16 - including the 1,000th of his career and Murray State remained unbeaten.

The Racers (15-0, 3-0 Ohio Valley Conference) are one win from matching the school's all-time best start set in 1935-36.

W. VA. RUNS AWAY FROM CLEMSON

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI • The West Virginia Mountaineers were tough to slow down, and only the Orange Bowl mascot could stop Darwin Cook.

Geno Smith tied the record for any bowl game with six touchdown passes, and the No. 23-ranked Mountaineers set a bowl scoring record Wednesday night with their high-powered offense. But safety Cook made the pivotal play by returning a fumble 99 yards for a touchdown to break the game open and help beat No. 14 Clemson 70-33.

Cook collided comically with mascot Obie after scoring one of the Mountaineers' five TDs in the second quarter, including three in the final 2:29 for a 49-20 lead. It was the highest-scoring half by a team in a bowl game.

Tavon Austin tied a record for any bowl game with four touchdown catches. Smith went 31 for 42, and his 401 yards passing broke Tom Brady's Orange Bowl record. He also ran for a score, helping West Virginia break the bowl record for points established six nights earlier when Baylor beat Washington 67-56 in the Alamo Bowl.

The Mountaineers (10-3) won in their first Orange Bowl appearance and improved to 3-0 in three Bowl Championship Series games. Clemson (10-4) lost playing in its first major bowl in 30 years.

"These kids responded with the best three weeks of practice I've seen and now they are on fire," Gardner said.

some depth," Gosar said. "It's going to be a great challenge for us."

The Golden Eagles (13-1) received good news on Tuesday regarding Luke Cothron and his ailing toe, which is not completely broken as expected. The 6-8 forward is expected to play tonight, which is a big boost offensively.

They will, however, be without Dennis Mikelonis, who is resting a sore knee.

CSI plays Snow College (13-2) on Saturday at 5 p.m. The Badgers are led by arguably the best player in the conference, Travis Wilkins.

The 6-3 sophomore guard is averaging a team-leading 18.8 points on 55 percent shooting, including a 50 percent mark from 3-point range. He'll suit up for Southern Illinois next season after signing with the Salukis in December.

"He's a talented 2-guard that can handle the ball, play a little point, can shoot the ball from range

2-guard that can play a little point, can shoot range and just understands the game and just understands the game," Gosar said. "He's a really good player and they've got some other players back too. They really make you play defense."

While the men hope to make a statement in the SWAC with a home sweep, the CSI women hope to find some answers after an uninspiring 7-7 start through nonconference play. The Golden Eagles have struggled at times with consistency, with wins over Oregon schools Treasure Valley and Chemeketa, but lost by 18 to Midland (Texas) and dropped two games

He's a talented against all-star teams.

"It will be a good test for us to see where we're at. I handle the ball, think that's why it's good we're playing Salt Lake first. We have to match their intensity, which is the ball from huge and I think we'll play well with them," said forward Kylee Schierman.

Tonight's test with Salt Lake (9-4) will be tough. The Bruins boast seven CSI coach Steve Gosar, on players 5-11 or taller and Snow's Travis Wilkins added 6-4 forward Asha McDonald last week, who was ineligible to start the season.

"They always have that tough inside game and getting that new girl is going to make them even tougher," Rogers said. "They have 10-11 kids who can play and are shooting more threes this season too, which is a new wrinkle to their game."

Snow College (6-6) has been similar to CSI with an up-and-down start, but when the Badgers are on, they can be dangerous Rogers said, evidenced by their 79-74 win over then No. 4 Midland in November.

The Golden Eagles play Snow College at 3 p.m. Saturday.

LONDON • Tim Howard became the fourth goalkeeper to score in the Premier League when the American put in a wind-blown clearance from about 100 yards during Everton's 2-1 loss to Bolton on Wednesday night.

The American, playing his 250th Premier League match, gave Everton a 63rdminute lead at Goodison Park. His right-footed kick from about 5 yards inside his own penalty area bounced about 30 yards from the Bolton goal and was blown by the wind over leaping Bolton keeper Adam Bogdan, who was standing by his 6-yard box. Howard hardly reacted.

"I was delighted that we were in the lead and would hopefully go on to get three points, but it's not a nice feeling for a keeper. It's reactually," ally awful Howard told Sky Sports. "For the back four and the goalkeepers at both ends, there was an awful wind swirling. You could see everybody was mistiming balls. Defenders were missing clearances that normally they would put up the field. I think the wind is the hardest condition to play in. Snow, rain, sun doesn't matter, but the wind really does play tricks on you."

Howard spoke with Bogdan after the match.

"I let him know that I was feeling for him," Howard said. "It's not a nice place to be. I've been there before, a long, long time ago, and that was why I didn't celebrate."

Bolton rallied on goals by David Ngog in the 67th and Gary Cahill in the 78th.

The only other goalkeepers to score in the Premier League are Peter Schmeichel, American Brad Friedel and Paul Robinson.

Bengals-Texans Marching Into Unfamiliar Ground

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Houston Texans never have won a playoff game. Of course, they've never even played in one.

On Saturday, they host the Bengals, and anyone who can remember when Cincinnati won in the postseason remembers Boomer Esiason as a quarterback in his prime, not as a broadcaster.

"We've got some guys who were pretty close to just being born when that happened," Bengals tackle Andrew Whitworth said. "We've got some young guys on the team. So I imagine most of them have no clue about it."

The opener of the wildcard round looks like a toss-up. Yes, the Texans won the AFC South and are seeded third, while the Bengals stumbled into the playoffs as the No. 6 seed. And we know that Houston rallied in Cincinnati for a 20-19 victory, which happens to be the last time the Texans (10-6) won.

Meanwhile, the Bengals have lost to every good team they played in going 9-7.

Those facts don't inspire much confidence in the Texans, who are 3-point favorites, or in the Bengals.

"The guys in here, we can't worry about the past," Cincinnati cornerback Adam "Pacman" Jones said. "We've got a great outlook to the future with the young guys we've got here."

That includes rookie quarterback Andy Dalton and receiver A.J. Green, who have been dynamic and will be keys to whether Cincinnati can advance for the first time since beating the Houston Oilers on Jan. 6,1991.

Houston has a rookie QB of its own in T.J. Yates, a third-stringer to begin the season. When Matt Schaub and Matt Leinart went down with injuries, Yates came on and the Texans won enough to capture the division. Yates will need to do a whole lot more in the playoffs, as will a defense that allowed the fourthfewest points in an offense-oriented league. "Most rookies would come in nervous and that's something you don't see in him," star receiver Andre Johnson said. "If he is nervous, he does a great job hiding it. I have a lot of confidence in his ability and what he can do."

The stage could be too big for many of these players, which might lead to a low-scoring affair with several turnovers. History is not on the side of either team

UPSET SPECIAL: BEN-GALS, 20-19

DETROIT (PLUS 10) AT NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY

Another non-playoff factor for so many years – the Lions last got here in the 1999 season, last won a postseason game in early 1992 and last won an NFL title in 1957 – goes against one of the league's hottest teams. Detroit (10-6) has little fear of a shootout because the Lions can score with most opponents; only Green Bay, New Orleans and New England scored more than their 474 points. And they can get after the quarterback with a fearsome defensive line. But the quarterback they are chasing is record-setting Drew Brees, and the Saints (13-3) have been virtually unchallenged in the Superdome, outscoring opponents 329-143. If turnovers are a key, Detroit might have an edge with a plus-11 margin to New Orleans' minus-3. Then again, the Saints had only 19 giveaways all sea-

Light up the scoreboard, fellas. SAINTS, 37-24

ATLANTA (PLUS 3 1/2) AT NEW YORK GIANTS, SUNDAY

Weather could be a factor at the Meadowlands, although Falcons QB Matt Ryan says not to worry about his dome team in a northern outdoor envi-ronment in January. Ryan did, after all, grow up in Philadelphia and play college ball in Boston. He might get chased all the way down to Philly and up to Beantown by New York's reinvigorated pass rush, which has 11 sacks in its last two games, wins that propelled the Giants (9-7) to the NFC East crown. If the Giants can't get pressure on Ryan, and Atlanta (10-6) can run the ball a bit, that would leave wide-open spaces for Ryan to connect with his solid group of receivers against a porous secondary. The same is true for Eli Manning, and New York's running game has come on recently. Look for just enough big plays from Manning, Victor Cruz and the Giants' sackmasters. GIANTS, 27-23

PITTSBURGH (MINUS 8) AT DENVER, SUNDAY

Ben Roethlisberger is limping, which is better than Rashard Mendenhall, who is out with torn knee ligaments. Pittsburgh (12-4) is inconsistent on the offensive line. It will be missing safety Ryan Clark, who will be kept home as a precaution due to a sickle-cell trait that becomes aggravated when playing at higher elevations. Even with those issues, the Steelers should romp against the Broncos (8-8), who lost their last three but, thanks to the charity of the rest of the division, won the AFC West. Tim Tebow no longer is leading stunning comebacks, and lesser defenses than Pittsburgh's have figured out how Look for Steelers to make mm coordinator Dick LeBeau to use a super-aggressive game plan that forces Tebow to make quick decisions while thwarting Willis McGahee and the running game. The Steelers won't score a lot of points. Denver harely will score any. BEST BET: STEELERS, 20-6

BRONCOS FIGHTING LONG TITLE ODDS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS • Casinos in Las Vegas think Aaron Rodgers and the Green Bay Packers have a better shot at winning the Super Bowl than Tim Tebow and the Denver Broncos have of getting past the Pittsburgh Steelers this weekend.

Oddsmakers at Cantor Gaming have the Packers as 9-5 favorites to win the Super Bowl on Feb. 5, and the Broncos as 120-1 underdogs to win the NFL title.

But the Packers (15-1) are weak enough on defense to make it more likely that another team will prevent them from repeating as champions, Cantor Race & Sports Director Mike Colbert said.

"Offense seems to rule the day right now in the NFL, but I'm not sure that defense will be able to hold up long enough to win it all," Colbert said.

Sports gambling expert RJ Bell of Pregame.com says that after adjusting for fees, sports books think the Packers, the top seed in the NFC, have a 32 percent chance of winning the Super Bowl.

"That, to me is the story: Not how prohibitive of a favorite they are, but the fact that they're being given less than a one in three chance," Bell said. "The Patriots and Saints combined have a better chance than the Packers."

The Patriots, the top seed in the AFC, are being given an 18 percent shot, while the Saints are being given a 15 percent chance, Bell said.

Cantor lines give the 49ers 12-1 title odds and the Giants a 20-1 shot, both contenders in the NFC.

Longtime oddsmaker Kenny White said the Packers are still generally considered a dominant team that bettors will like.

"I think they're the same as the Patriot team that went 16-0" during the 2007 regular season, said White, an analyst on cable sports betting show "The Linemakers."

NBA ROUNDUP Minus Wade, Heat Still Roll

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI • LeBron James had 33 points and 13 assists, Chris Bosh added 22 points and the Miami Heat hardly missed Dwyane Wade in a 118-83 rout of the Indiana Pacers on Wednesday night.

James also grabbed eight rebounds and the Heat turned up the defensive intensity without their star guard. Wade sat out with a sore left foot, and his status for Thursday's game at Atlanta is uncertain.

Stars Missing From PGA Opener

KAPALUA, Hawaii • The list of who's not at the season-opening Tournament of Champions reads more like a "Who's Who."

Missing are three of the four major champions – Charl Schwartzel, Darren Clarke and Rory McIlroy, who at 22 already is on the very short list of golfers capable of moving the needle no matter where they play.

If that's not enough, three of the four World Golf Championship winners from last year are not at Kapalua, either.

end journey that took him from South Africa to Dubai to Australia. Adam Scott was home in Australia watching his girlfriend, Ana Ivanovic, win her opening match in the Brisbane International as she gets ready for first Grand Slam of the year. Martin Kaymer of Germany is gearing up for his title defense in Abu Dhabi.

The PGA Tour no longer starts with trumpets blaring. It's more like a solo on the ukulele.

Then again, this is nothing new.

Phil Mickelson caused a ripple when he stopped coming to Kapalua in 2002. Tiger Woods caused more of a tidal wave when he decided not to play in 2006, and he hasn't been back since (although he hasn't been eligible the last two years).

The tour has toyed with the idea of expanding the field, either by inviting all past winners at Kapalua or by offering a two-year exemption to the Tournament of Champions for PGA Tour winners.

That wouldn't solve the problem. Some would argue that golf has too many exclusive, limited-field tournaments already. This one is worth keeping because there's only one way to stand on the first tee with such and 12 rebounds to lead Indiana. Tyler Hansbrough scored 14.

BULLS 99, PISTONS 83 AUBURN HILLS, Mich. • Richard Hamilton scored 14 points in his return to The Palace, and Chicago shut down Detroit.

Hamilton started after missing the previous two games with a sore left groin. He received a warm welcome from Detroit fans, many of whom stood and applauded the veteran guard who spent nine years with the Pistons before being waived prior to this season.

Orlando center Dwight Howard (12) takes a shot under the basket in front of Washington's JaVale McGee, left, and Nick Young in the first half of their game Wednesday.

BOBCATS 118, KNICKS 110 NEW YORK • Boris Diaw rebounded from a dreadful game a night earlier with a season-high 27 points, and Charlotte snapped a fourgame losing streak with a victory over New York.

Gerald Henderson added 24 for the Bobcats, who capped a three-game road trip by winning for the first time since their opener. Reserve Byron Mullens scored 16 and D.J. Augustin finished with 14 points and 10 assists. Charlotte shot 55 percent from the field.

MAVERICKS 98, SUNS 89 DALLAS • Dirk Nowitzki scored 20 points in his 1,000th NBA game to lead Dallas over Phoenix.

Jason Terry had 18 points, including nine in the fourth quarter, to help the defending NBA champions (3-4) string together consecutive wins for the first time this season.

SPURS 101, WARRIORS 95 SAN ANTONIO • Tony Parker scored San Antonio's final six points to lead the Spurs past Golden State.

The Spurs were playing their first game without leading scorer Manu Ginobili, who will have surgery on his broken left hand and is expected to be out at least two months. The Warriors, meanwhile, lost Stephen Curry to a sprained left ankle in the third quarter.

CELTICS 89, NETS 70

BOSTON • Paul Pierce scored nine of his 24 points during a game-breaking, third-quarter run and Avery Bradley hit his first career 3-pointer to help Boston beat injury-depleted New Jersey.

Reserve Brandon Bass scored 15 and grabbed 13 rebounds, and Rajon Rondo had eight points and 12 assists for the Celtics. Boston has won four straight since dropping all three on a season-opening road trip.

RAPTORS 92, CAVALIERS 77

TORONTO • Andrea Bargnani scored 31 points and Toronto beat Cleveland for its second straight win.

DeMar DeRozan added 25 points for the Raptors and Jose Calderon had 13 points and 11 assists.

MAGIC 103, WIZARDS 85 ORLANDO, Fla. • Dwight Howard had 28 points and 20 rebounds, Ryan Anderson added 23 points and 15 rebounds and Orlando ran past winless Washington.

The Magic won for the fifth time in six games and had four players in double figures. Orlando has won seven straight against Washington and 15 of the last 18 meetings.

76ERS 101, HORNETS 93 NEW ORLEANS • Jrue Holiday scored 14 of his 23 points in the fourth quarter, leading Philadelphia over New Orleans.

GRIZZLIES 90, TIMBERWOLVES 86

MINNEAPOLIS • Rudy Gay had 19 points and eight rebounds, lifting Memphis over Minnesota in its first game since learning Zach Randolph would be out for six to eight weeks.

NUGGETS 110, KINGS 83 DENVER • Al Harrington scored 15 points, Rudy Fernandez had 12 points to go with eight assists and Denver won its third straight by beating Sacramento. Luke Donald, the No. 1 player in the world, recently returned home from a yearsplendid, sweeping views of the Pacific Ocean. Winning should still mean something.

championship featuring a rematch of a regular-season meeting. That Nov. 5 game ended with a 9-6 overtime victory for the Tigers on the Crimson Tide's home field.

The winner in New Orleans gets the BCS' crystal ball trophy and will be No. 1 in the final USA Today coaches' poll, which is contractually bound to have the winner of the BCS in the top spot of its rankings.

But the media members who vote in The Associated Press' college football rankings are under no such obligations. And for many of them, the choice is not so clear.

What if this time around, Alabama wins 10-9? If this were soccer – and considering how tough it was to score in the first touchdown-less game that seems to be an appropriate comparison – LSU would win the title on aggregate score.

Could there be two No. Is at the end of the college football season? The last time it happened was 2003. That year LSU beat Oklahoma in the BCS title game, but Southern California, which was left out of the championship game, was voted No. 1 by the AP after it thumped Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

"Awarding a championship to a team that loses its final game is beyond counterintuitive and may be un-American," said David Teel of the Daily Press in Hampton Roads, Va. "But if LSU loses narrowly, I will absolutely consider (voting the Tigers No. 1). That's how good the Tigers' regular season – five wins over the top 25, four away from Death Valley, including at Alabama – was."

The AP asked voters who cast ballots for its Top 25 a few questions before the BCS game.

• Do you expect to vote the winner of the Alabama-LSU game No. 1?

• Would you consider voting LSU No. 1 even if it lost?

• Would you consider voting another team – i.e. Oklahoma State or Stanford – No. 1?

Forty-four of the 60 voters responded, and the bottom line is that there still is some wiggle room.

The most common answer was some version of what Ray Ratto of CSN Bay Area wrote in an email: "Anything is a possibility among the top 3. And should be. Otherwise, why would we bother?"

Some were more adamant about where they stood.

Eleven voters said the winner of the BCS championship game will no doubt be their No. 1.

"If Alabama wins, I'm voting the Tide (hash)1," wrote Garland Gillen of WWL-TV in New Orleans. "Championships are won in January not November."

Three voters, however, said that in a system that stresses the importance of the regular season and without a playoff to decide who's No. 1 at the end, LSU already has earned their votes.

"I will vote for LSU no matter what happens in the National Championship game," wrote Erik Gee of KNML-AM in Albuquerque, N.M. "How in the world can they be the SEC west champ, the outright SEC champ, and lose to Alabama in a "neutral" site game (I guess you can debate the Superdome being a neutral site) after they have already beaten them in Tuscaloosa, have the series split 1-1 and not at least have a share of the National Title?"

In the final regular season AP rankings, LSU was a unanimous No. 1. The Tide received 38 second-place votes, 1,418 points and no votes lower than third. The Cowboys got 22 secondplace votes and 1,400 points and two voters had Oklahoma State fourth.

Still, if the Tide beats LSU in less-than-convincing fashion, some voters will be torn between Oklahoma State (12-1) and Alabama (11-1).

"If Alabama and Oklahoma State both win, I'll have a hard time deciding between the two," said Kyle Ringo of the Daily Camera in Boulder, Colo. "Guess margin of victory might be the deciding factor. I'd probably lean toward OSU in that case because of its superior overall body of work."
