While a $10,000 stipend for Gem State teachers who earn national certification has ended, a new incentive for the program could come under Idaho public schools' new merit-pay system.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • When Twin Falls teacher Khrista Buschhorn earned an advanced teaching credential more than 10 years ago, it wasn't an easy process.

One of the most useful — yet painful — requirements was watching videos of herself teaching

"I just kind of cringed," she said. But they helped her figure out how to improve and what topics students weren't grasping.

Buschhorn, who teaches English to refugee students at the Newcomer Center at Robert Stuart Middle School, made weekly trips to Pocatello for classes. After the yearlong program, she earned a 10-year certification from the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards in 2001.

The J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Foundation covered the cost of the program, which Buschhorn described as a "pretty rigorous and arduous process." Last year, she went through the steps of renewing the certification.

She's one of 11 teachers in the Twin Falls School District who have received National Board Certification, which in the past also came with a $10,000 stipend from the state over a five-year period.

But that's not the case anymore. In 2010, state legislators decided to eliminate that incentive for educators.

"They left the program on the books but didn't provide funding," said Melissa McGrath, year or in future years," she said. Teachers who earned the certification by July 1 will still receive the full stipend.

State High Court Hears Arguments on Plan to Split County

A decision is pending on a challenge, led by Twin Falls County, over Idaho's new legislative map.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • The first court challenge of Idaho's new legislative map is primed for a decision, following a Thursday hearing before the Idaho Supreme Court.

Once a decade, a state redistricting commission uses fresh U.S. Census data to redraw the legislative boundaries used to determine representation in the Statehouse. Idaho's latest plan was adopted in October, and quickly challenged by a coalition led by Twin Falls County.

The group alleges that the plan contains too many unnecessary county splits, making the new map unconstitutional. Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs filed the case on behalf of Twin Falls, Kootenai, Owyhee and Teton counties and the cities of Twin Falls, Buhl, Filer and Hansen.

In court Thursday, Loebs argued that the redistricting panel must first consider the U.S. Constitution's one person, one vote mandate, then look to the Idaho Constitution, which says county lines must be be kept intact when possible. When counties must be split, Idaho statutes offer guidelines, like keeping communities of similar interest intact.

Loebs submitted an alternative redistricting plan to the court that, he said, demonstrated it's possible to keep more counties intact while fulfilling the U.S. Constitution's requirements. He denied suggesting that the state should adopt his map.

School Districts Wrap Up Changes to Merit-pay Plans

Local school district plans sent back for revision include those for Twin Falls, Castleford, Hansen, Murtaugh and Shoshone.

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

CASTLEFORD • A few months ago, the Castleford School District thought its plan for awarding merit bonuses was ready to go.

The Idaho State Department of Education, though, had a different opinion.

Castleford is among a handful of Magic Valley school districts and charter schools that were asked to make changes to their pay-for-performance plans. The rubrics on awarding merit pay to teachers and administrators are brand new, created by last year's statewide public education reforms.

Castleford Superintendent Andy Wiseman said the state didn't like one portion of his district's plan — awarding 25 percent of bonuses based on teacher evaluations.

"We were told to come up with another measure," he said.

So, the district instead based the bonus on student grades. In order for school employees to receive the largest bonus, no more than than 10 percent of students can receive "F"s during the second school trimester.

Wiseman said he hasn't heard back from the state about whether the changes were approved.

Besides Castleford, other local plans sent back for revision include the Twin Falls School District, Wings Charter Middle School, Hansen School District, Murtaugh School District, North Valley Academy Charter School in Gooding, and Shoshone School District.

Plans were initially due to the state in September. Those that needed revision are due again in February.

vision are due again in February.
School districts had nearly 20 options to choose from as ways to award bonuses. But the Murtaugh School District sought to try something different — a "teaching with technology" measure.

Murtaugh submitted a waiver to the state, then made requested revisions to make its plan more measurable. The

"I'm not saying anything about our plan except that it demonstrates that it was not necessary to cut 11 counties 14 times," Loebs said.

He didn't accuse the commission of any ulterior motives, saying simply that they should follow the constitutional hierarchy.

Brian Kane, assistant chief deputy attorney at the state Attorney General's Office, maintained that the county splits aren't excessive or unconstitutional, and that the commission took public input into account for a thoughtful solution to a complex task.

Kane pointed out that the contested plan has less than a 10 percent population deviation between districts, which fulfills federal constitutional requirements.

"When you're under 10 percent, the burden is on the petitioners to make that showing (that it's unconstitutional)," Kane said.

The justices pressed Kane on his assertion that no one had accused the commission of motives such as discrimination or preserving districts for political gain. The argument, they said, was about constitutionality.

Justice Warren E. Jones acknowledged the commission's difficulty in balancing all factors. For example, he said, they could adopt a plan

At a Glance

Every 10 years, a bipartisan committee redraws Idaho's legislative district boundaries with updated federal census data. The legislative districts must have roughly equal populations, with less than 10 percent deviation, to fulfill the U.S. Constitution's requirement of one person, one vote.

After considering dozens of proposals, last year's first redistricting commission disbanded without adopting a new map. The second redistricting commission adopted a plan in October that split 11 counties, including Twin Falls County.

Two challenges have been filed to the plan: One by Twin Falls County that says it's unconstitutional, and one by Benewah County that says it splits too many communities of interest. If the court upholds the map, the new districts would apply to this year's elections.

that split 15 counties, but had zero population deviation - a map that would divide communities, "but it gives everybody an absolute equal vote," he said.

Chief Justice Roger S. Burdick closed the hearing by saying he hoped the court would reach a decision soon.

He argued that he was arrested on private property outside of police jurisdiction, and that the officer did not have probable cause to conclude he was under the influence of alcohol.

Martinez-Gonzalez later pleaded guilty with the option to appeal and was sentenced to two to five years in prison, suspended for five years probation. The Idaho Court of Ap-

TWIN FALLS • When the Obama administration first announced plans to speed up the Gateway West electrical transmission project, the only question it forgot to answer was "how?"

A taskforce was eventually appointed, though questions remained as to how an added layer of bureaucracy could assist the already government-laden process of stretching two power companies' proposed high-voltage transmission line across southern Wyoming and Idaho.

Those questions - and easily a few more — will be addressed next week. The taskforce, called the Rapid Response Transmission Team, is meeting with project stakeholders Jan. 13 in HAILEY • A Twin Falls woman was sentenced in Blaine County 5th District Court Wednesday on charges stemming from a March 2011 drug bust that nabbed five suspects on multiple drug charges.

Lisa Christine Justice, 42, was originally charged with two counts of trafficking methamphetamine and one count of delivering a controlled substance. Under an agreement with prosecutors, she pleaded guilty to two counts of delivering methamphetamine. An enhanced penalty for being a persistent violator was also dropped.

Justice was sentenced to serve six to 15 years in prison for each count, to run concurrently. The sentence will also run concurrent with a Twin Falls conviction, and she must also pay $265.50 in court costs for each count.

The Blaine County Narcotics Enforcement Team led an investigation involving undercover drug purchases in the Wood River Valley and surrounding areas. Drugs seized during the investigation included 6.6 ounces of cocaine and 2.6 ounces of methamphetamine, which police valued at $26,000.

Jose Manuel Hurtado-Délatorre 27, of Hailey, is charged with two felony counts of aiding and abetting the delivery methamphetamine.

Ricardo M. Vargas-Hurtado, 22, of Ketchum, is charged with two felony counts of aiding and abetting the delivery of methamphetamine. Both Hurtado-Delatorre and Vargas-Hurtado pleaded not guilty and face a Jan. 31 jury trial.

Jessy T. Tellez, 20, of Hailey, is charged with felony cocaine trafficking and three felony counts of delivery of methamphetamine. Tellez is scheduled for a Feb. 29 jury trial.

Hurtado-Alvaro Gomez, 40, of Hailey, is also charged with felony cocaine trafficking and three felony counts of delivery of methamphetamine. He reached an agreement to plead guilty that dropped one delivery charge and the trafficking charge; sentencing is set for Jan. 30.

"Ronald Reagan got 29 percent of the votes here and ultimately he was able to become our nominee."

— Mitt Romney referring to the 1980 campaign that put Republicans in the White House. The GOP presidential hopeful brushed aside suggestions Wednesday that his share of the vote in Iowa, less than 25 percent, was a sign of weakness.

OUR VIEW

Straw Poll May Not Live Up to Its Hype

If you've got time and a spare $30, you still have time to drive to the Riverside Hotel in Boise and have your voice heard in the state's first—and we hope only—Republican presidential straw poll. Voting starts sometime after 8 p.m., but participants should get there early so they don't miss out on the band and the "no-host" bar; each of which starts an hour earlier. (If you're driving back home later Friday night, skip the bar.)

"For the first time in many, many years Idaho will get some attention on the national political scene which is very exciting," according to Jonathan Parker, executive director of the Idaho Republican Party. We'll just have to see about that.

At 7:30 a.m. Wednesday morning — just hours after nearly defeating Mitt Romney in the Iowa Caucus — Rick Santorum was all set up to address the Queen City Rotary in Manchester, N.H.

Romney himself was also in Manchester early Wednesday morning, taking tough questions from a younger crowd at a town hall meeting and gaining the endorsement of Arizona Sen. John McCain.

Newt Gingrich, who finished a rather distant fourth in Iowa, was in Concord, N.H. on Wednesday morning talking with potential voters about federal drug policy and assuring them that "Jefferson or George Washington would have rather strongly discouraged you from growing marijuana."

Ron Paul took a few extra days to get back to New Hampshire, but he's there today starting with a rally at the Nashua airport moments after his plane arrives.

Rick Perry is back in Texas "reassessing" things and Michelle Bachmann threw in the towel on her attempt to win the Republican Party's nomination.

Notice where these candidates weren't and which state they weren't talking about? That's right; they weren't in Idaho nor were they even thinking of today's straw poll. Nor were their campaign managers or strategists.

So why go through the charade of pretending that the straw poll matters? Why exactly did the state Republican Party add this to the ever-lengthening selection process?

"First and foremost it's a fundraiser," Parker said. Ahh, finally an honest and pragmatic answer.

Tonight's "straw poll" is really just a cheap way to make Idaho's Republican "everyman" donate money while conning participants into believing that they have a say in who will be running against Barack Obama in November. Don't believe it.

Straw poll results will be reported in the Times-News tomorrow, and in every other paper throughout the state. The "winner" may even post the results on their national campaign website — if they're even paying attention. But the national media will remain focused on New Hampshire through Tuesday and on South Carolina immediately thereafter.

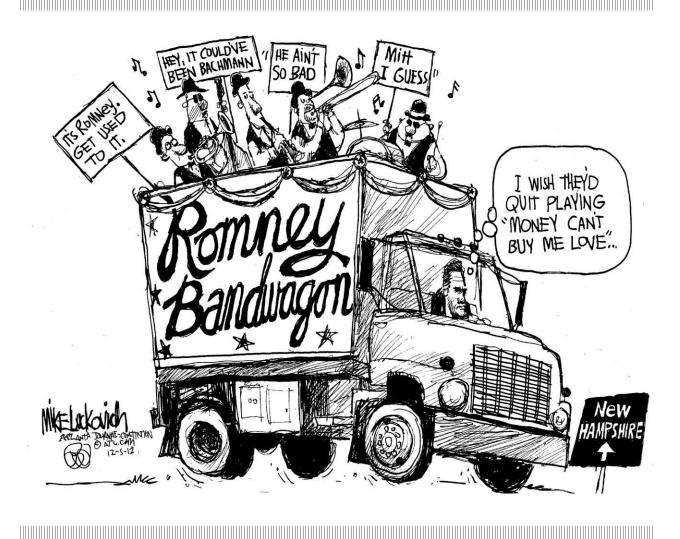

Why? Because sadly, tradition and perception are way more important in choosing a candidate than reality. Candidates and campaigns realize that Iowa and New Hampshire matter because they always have. Candidates and party strategists realize that Idaho doesn't matter because it never has. The state Republican Party failed to realize the perception/reality dichotomy and thought that the logical introduction of a straw poll would lure both candidates and interest. They were wrong.

If perception wasn't important, why would one candidate drop out and another "re-evaluate" their campaign because of what only 122,255 Iowans thought last Tuesday?

My Brother's Valuable Life

ow does one measure whether a life was a success, or a failure?

Some would measure it by recognition, that is, how many knew the person's name. For others, the measure of a successful life would be the amount of wealth accumulated, or possessions held. Still others would say a life was successful if the person made a major contribution to society — in medicine, sports, politics, or the arts.

By that standard my brother, Marshall Stephen Thomas, who died January 5, was a failure. If, however, your standard for a successful life is how that life positively touched others, then my brother's life was a resounding success.

Shortly after he was born in 1950, Marshall was diagnosed with Down syndrome. Some in the medical community referred to the intellectually disabled as "retarded" back then, long before the word became a common schoolyard epithet. His doctors told our parents he would never amount to anything and advised them to place him in an institution. Back then, this was advice too often taken by parents who were so embarrassed about having a disabled child that they often refused to take them out in public.

Our parents wanted none of that. In the '50s, many institutions were snake pits where inhumanities were often tolerated and people were warehoused until they died, often in deplorable conditions. While they weren't wealthy, they were committed to seeing that Marshall had the best possible care, no matter how long he lived. Because of their dedication and thanks to the Kennedy family and their commitment to the rights, causes and issues related to the mentally and physically challenged, Marshall had a longer and better quality of life than might have been expected. He outlived his life expectancy by nearly 40 years. He lived his life dancing and singing and listening to music he loved.

Yes, it cost our parents a lot of money to give him the care they believed he deserved. They might have taken more vacations, owned a fancier house and driven a luxurious car, but before we valued things more than people, they valued Marshall more than any tangible thing. And that care rubbed off on me and other family members.

The stereotype about people who call themselves conservatives is that we don't care for the less fortunate. Even if that were true (which it isn't), Marshall deepened my sensitivity and understanding for the mentally and physically challenged and for those who, like our parents, committed themselves to caring for others who were touched by a malady that could easily have been ours.

I was seven years old when Marshall was born. A year or two later when the diagnosis was made, I bought a popular book written by Dale Evans and gave it to our parents. It was called "Angel Unaware." The title was taken from a verse in the New Testament which says, "Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." (Hebrews 13:2) Evans' book was about the Down syndrome child she had with her husband, Roy Rogers.

Roy and Dale named their daughter Robin Elizabeth and their commitment to her (she died at the age of 2) strongly influenced our parents' decision to take care of Marshall, rather than institutionalize him. While it was sometimes difficult for them and later after their death, for me, we never regretted that decision because of the joy Marshall brought to our lives.

In an age when we discard the inconvenient and unwanted in order to pursue pleasure and a life free of burdens, this may seem strange to some. I recall a line from the long-running Broadway musical, "The Fantasticks": "Deep in December, it's nice to remember, without a hurt the heart is hollow."

Marshall Thomas'
"hurts" filled a number of hollow hearts.

At the end of the Christmas classic "It's a Wonderful Life," George Bailey reads an inscription in a book given to him by Clarence, his guardian angel: "Remember, no man is a failure who has friends."

No life is a failure when it causes so many to care for others. At that my brother succeeded magnificently.

THEIR VIEW

Iowa Didn't Settle Anything

on't be fooled by the swagger in Mitt Romney's walk at the conclusion of Iowa's caucuses to choose a Republican presidential nominee.

His eight-vote victory over Rick Santorum may have winnowed the field, but it hardly clears up who will be the eventual nominee to face President Obama. In fact, the outcome may be murkier.

Three-quarters of caucus participants Tuesday night chose someone other than Romney, and his 24 percent tally was almost identical to what he received four years ago, when he finished second to caucus winner Mike Huckabee.

Romney is very unlikely to mirror Huckabee and lose the next scheduled contest, Tuesday's New Hampshire primary. Recent polling shows Romney has a big lead in the Granite State, which sits next door to Massachusetts, where he was the governor.

But Santorum's unexpected surge in Iowa should help him cut Romney's advantage in New Hampshire, even if he doesn't win there. And he will be helped by the third- and fourth-place Iowa finishers, Ron Paul and Newt Gingrich, respectively, who will also be campaigning hard.

If Romney wins New Hampshire, but by a significantly smaller margin than anticipated, the South Carolina primary on Jan. 28 could pose significant danger for him. Social conservatives in the Southern state may match their peers in Iowa in supporting abortion opponent Santorum.

Michele Bachmann's sixth-place finish in Iowa, where only five months ago she won the GOP straw poll, led her to drop out of the race Wednesday. She joins another former front-runner, Herman Cain. A discouraged Rick Perry, who finished fifth Tuesday night, canceled campaign appearances and headed home to Texas to reassess the situation.

The Iowa caucuses typically force candidates from the field, but rarely decide the eventual party nominees. Largely, the caucuses have become a contrivance that brings unwarranted media attention and huge sums of money into a state whose fairly homogeneous population is hardly a microcosm of the nation's electorate.

Ideology, Pragmatism Clash in Row over Health Exchange

Associated Press

BOISE • Ideological objections to federal health care reform clashed Thursday with the more pragmatic interests of business as Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter joined lawmakers, industry and the state's top insurance regulator in the debate over whether Idaho should establish its own insurance ex-

Otter told more than three dozen reporters at The Associated Press' 2012 Legislative Preview that he would do his best to explain to lawmakers the consequences of spurning a $20.3 million federal grant to set up the exchange.

The component in Congress' 2010 health care overhaul was envisioned to be a transparent, online marketplace for consumers to compare and buy insurance.

Though Idaho has been promised the federal money, state legislators must approve spending it.

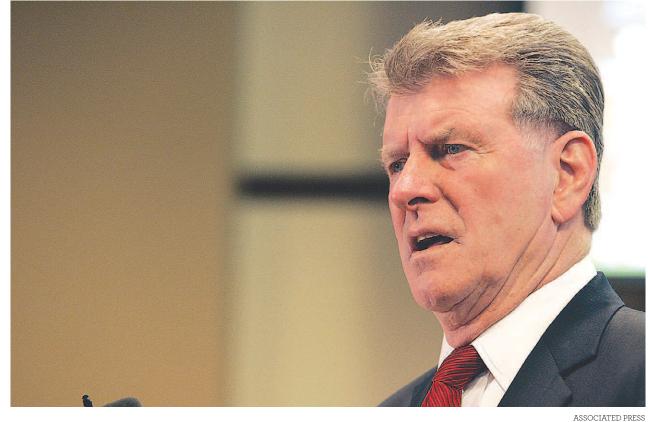

And with many conservatives, particularly in the Idaho House, disdainful of reforms they dub "Obamacare," the discussion figures to be a chief issue of the 2012 Legislature, which begins Monday.

Otter told reporters he fears a federally designed exchange alternative — a consequence of lawmakers blocking efforts to establish an Idaho-specific exchange would put domestic insurers at a disadvantage. He said he also feared it would leave Idaho customers at the mercy of federal bureaucrats rather than more-responsive local regulators.

"This is a big deal;" Otter said. "I'm obligated to explain to everybody exactly what happens if we do nothing."

Idaho isn't alone in this discussion.

Missouri declined to spend federal money on computer systems for a state-run exchange after Republicans objected. New York's Democratic Gov. Andrew Cuomo called Thursday for establishing a health insurance exchange to help 2.7 million uninsured people in his state.

Idaho Gov. C.L. 'Butch' Otter talks with more than three dozen reporters at the Capitol building Thursday in Boise. Gov. Otter shared his thoughts on the 2012 legislative session, which starts Monday.

And Oregon, Idaho's neighbor to the west, set up its own exchange last year and is now developing a business plan.

Rep. Vito Barbieri, R-Dalton Gardens, who last year championed unsuccessful efforts by conservatives to nullify Congress' 2010 health care overhaul, is helping lead Idaho's anti-exchange fight, saying it's destined to become another bloated government bureaucracy.

"This health care mandate is not good for the nation, Barbieri said. "It's socialism. A socialist America is a broken America?

Barbieri said at a minimum, Idaho should hold its fire until the U.S. Supreme Court has weighed in on a lawsuit filed by Idaho and 26 other states seeking to overturn President Obama's Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Justices will dedicate three days of arguments starting March 26 over whether the law - and its individual mandate requiring people to buy insurance or face fines is constitutional. A ruling is expected by July.

If Idaho doesn't create an exchange that meets federal guidelines, both Otter and Department of Insurance Director Bill Deal said, it puts the state at risk of losing as much as $300 million annually in federal money for the Medicaid insurance program for the poor, elderly and disabled.

Deal said states must update their Medicaid eligibility systems to reflect new income rules in a way that meshes with the insurance exchanges. To put the heat on states to comply, the federal government has warned it could cut Medicaid funding for those that fail, Deal said.

"We're kind of held hostage here," Deal said.

"There certainly is great incentive...to become certified, to match the requirements?"

And even if Supreme Court justices dump the overhaul, Deal contends an Idaho-designed exchange would benefit consumers by helping individuals and small businesses without the expertise or buying power of large employers to compare and buy coverage.

Alex LaBeau, president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, is pushing for Idaho to use the $20.3 million federal grant for its exchange.

LaBeau told reporters he understands ideological arguments like Barbieri's, but contends businesses don't have the luxury of taking philosophical stands. Instead, he said, they want the certainty that would accompany Idaho taking control and creating an exchange, regardless of how the broader health care overhaul withstands constitutional scrutiny.

Businesses in Idaho want an exchange regulated locally, La Beau added, comparing experiences of his member companies in navigating regulators like the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

"It's a lot easier to deal with the state's DEQ than it is the EPA," LaBeau said. "The same principle applies here. I'd rather deal with Director Deal than deal with" the federal government.

House Minority Leader John Rusche, a Lewiston Democrat and retired health insurance industry executive, called it a "no brainer" to use federal money for an exchange tailored to Idaho needs, rather than leaving the work to federal officials.

Doing that would rob Idaho of its ability to set up a "minimum essential benefit package," which are services insurers must cover to participate, Rusche said.

That will be to the detriment of our domestic insurance carriers," he said.

Idaho Cold Case Reopened for DNA Testing

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEWISTON (AP) • Authorities in northern Idaho are reopening the cold case of a slain man found nearly 30 years ago in the Snake River and will have the body disinterred for DNA testing, the Nez Perce County sheriff's office said Wednesday.

Investigators believe the man was killed but they were never able to identify him, so they've never had a real starting place to determine what happened, said Nez Perce County Chief Deputy Alan Johnson.

"That long ago, DNA wasn't even on the radar;' Johnson said

The man's body was discovered by a fisherman on June 26, 1982, about 25 miles upstream from Lewiston. The water was high then, and law enforcement officials speculated the body could have gone into the water many miles up the Snake or Salmon rivers two or three weeks earlier.

The man was wearing designer jeans over blue swimming trunks and was described as between 18 and 22 years old with straight brown or black hair. He had bullet wounds in his neck and left shoulder from a Smith & Wesson .38-caliber revolver manufactured before 1967.

"We're very hopeful that we can resolve this 29-year-old mystery," Sheriff Dale Buttrey told the Lewiston Tribune.

"Every victim has a family and we owe it to that family to do everything we can to identify him. If that was my relative, even 29 years later, I would want to know that law enforcement never gave up," Buttrey said.

The man was buried in an unmarked grave in Normal Hill Cemetery and information about the finding of his body was posted on law enforcement databases nationwide, though authorities were never able to obtain an identity. Authorities now plan to send bone samples to the University of North Texas at Denton for DNA analysis. The university will submit the DNA profile to all available law enforcement databases and notify the sheriff's office of any possible matches.

The DNA results are not expected for another month or two, the sheriff's office said.

The agency announced Wednesday authorities were reopening the case with $2,000 in grant money from the Rocky Mountain Information Network, which is part of the Regional Information Sharing Systems program created by Congress in 1983.

Police: Woman Scammed Idaho Couple at Pa. Shelter

BY JOE MANDAK

PITTS-BURGH • A woman charged with staying at a shelter battered women under false pretenses used a cellphone and computer to try to scam an Idaho couple into traveling to a western Pennsylvania hospital to adopt her baby - even though she wasn't pregnant, police said.

The Leader-Times of Kittanning first reported Thursday that 32-year-old Amy Slanina has been charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and with theft of services and theft by decepfor nearly a month after falsely claiming to have been abused.

But police tell The Associated Press that Slanina will also be charged next week with contacting the Idaho couple from the HAVIN, or Helping All Victims in Need Shelter, in Kittanning so they'd meet her at Butler Memorial Hospital. Authorities say they were led to believe they'd pay to adopt Slanina's baby once she delivered it there.

The hospital is about 30 miles north of Pittsburgh and some 20 miles west of the women's shelter, where Kittanning police Chief Ed Cassesse told the AP, "In 24 years, I've never had a case like this come through the borough. When you get down to it, it's a computer scam but this one's playing on a lot of emotions?"

Cassesse wouldn't identify the Idaho couple or say what city they're from, but he said police have taken statements from them. The couple arrived to meet Slanina at the hospital on Dec. 30, but she had been arrested that same day, Cassesse said.

"She had contacted the people from Idaho with the purpose of telling them she is pregnant, she wants to give up the baby for adoption. They were to meet at the Butler Memorial Hospital and, obviously, she didn't show up," Cassesse said.

Asked what would have happened at the meeting, Cassesse said, "They probably would have exchanged money and she would have been gone?"

And that's why Jo Ellen

Bowman, the shelter's executive director, said she contacted police last week when she learned about Slanina's history.

Bowman told the AP that Slanina arrived at the shelter Dec. 4 and said she was married to a Pittsburgh police officer who was abusing her. Because Slanina, who used the alias Amy Ost, was accusing a police officer of wrongdoing, Bowman checked out Slanina's story in some detail and eventually discovered it was bogus.

Among other things, Bowman learned that Slanina's police officer husband didn't exist and that Slanina was in prison for an unrelated Ohio scam during some of the time she claimed to have been abused in Pittsburgh - and was wanted for a parole violation in that case.

But Bowman also found blog posts from adoptive parents warning of Slanina and Internet video from a July 2006 episode of NBC's "Dateline" in which reporters caught her scamming several couples into believing she was pregnant so they could adopt her child. The news magazine segment Bowman found included information on couples in Pennsylvania, Alabama and South Carolina that couple paid Slanina more than $2,000.

Slanina, who was confronted on camera, told a reporter, "I'm a terrible person" and, in a second sound bite, "I can't be a mother. I don't know how to be one, I guess?

Bowman gave what she found to Kittanning police, who have since confirmed Slanina used the shelter's computer and a cellphone to set up the hospital adoption rendezvous with the Idaho couple.

Cassesse said police will file two felony counts of criminal use of a communication device - the computer and cellphone – once the investigation wraps up next

Schools Plan for Technology Funding

BOISE (AP) • School districts are facing a deadline to submit plans for spending $13 million Idaho set aside for technology upgrades in classrooms under a plan that was crafted by public schools chief Tom Luna and signed into law last year.

A portion of the money, about $4 million, has already been distributed to public schools, according to the state Department of Education. Districts have until Friday to submit plans on how they'll spend the remaining $9 million.

The money was set aside during the 2011 Idaho Legislature to help schools pay for things such as Internet access, technology hardware and training.

Luna's changes will eventually phase in laptops for every high school teacher and student while making online courses a graduation requirement.

Some school superintendents in southeastern Idaho say they're concerned they don't have enough staffing or funding to carry out the changes under the new laws, including training teachers on how to integrate the technology into the classroom. Administrators have already cut back on staffing and class offerings to help balance budgets amid the economic downturn, said District 25 Superintendent Mary Vagner, who oversees schools in Pocatello and Chubbuck.

The training requirement places an additional burden on districts, Vagner told the Blackfoot Journal.

A statewide task force last month approved dozens of recommendations for how Idaho should implement edthe plan to provide teachers professional development along with the technology upgrades.

"The recommendations clearly have a price tag that goes with them," Vagner said. "Success is tied to funding?'

Luna's office counters that districts are being provided with funding for teacher training. A portion of the $13 million in funding set aside for the current school year about $3 million - was dedicated to professional development, said state Department of Education spokeswoman Melissa McGrath.

"The state has provided funding for staff training and the districts will not have to pay for that," McGrath said.

The agency is working on the plan to offer teachers professional development as part of Luna's Students Come First changes.

"So until that plan is in place, they'll still get money for professional development in the current year,' McGrath said.

The new education mandates backed by Luna and the governor were the source of fierce debate in the 2011 session. In addition to the classroom technology, they include provisions to limit teacher collective bargaining to salaries and benefits; dump seniority as a factor in layoffs; and require union negotiations to be held in public while introducing teacher merit pay and shifting money from salaries to help pay for the changes.

The changes are being carried out even as critics behind a referendum campaign seeking to overturn the laws gear up for a November 2012 vote on the measures.

HOMEOWNERS URGED TO TEST FOR RADON

BOISE (AP) • The state's public health agency says more than half the homes in northern Idaho's Kootenai County have tested high for levels of radon, an odorless and invisible gas linked to lung cancer.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare also released results Thursday for Ada County in southwestern Idaho and Bonneville County to the east, urging residents across the state to test their homes for radon.

The agency is issuing the warning as January marks National Radon Action Month.

Obama Launches Reshaping, Shrinking of U.S. military

BY ROBERT BURNS AP National Security Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) . Looking beyond the wars he inherited, President Barack Obama on Thursday launched a reshaping and shrinking of the military. He vowed to preserve U.S. pre-eminence even as the Army and Marine Corps shed troops and the administration considers reducing its arsenal of nuclear weapons.

The changes won't come without risk, Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said. But he called it acceptable and, because of budget restraints, inevitable.

In a presentation at the Pentagon, Obama said the U.S. is "turning a page" after having killed Osama bin Laden, withdrawn troops from Iraq and begun to wind down the war in Afghanistan. He outlined a vision for the future that some Republican lawmakers quickly dubbed wrong-headed.

"Our military will be leaner, but the world must know the United States is going to maintain our military superiority," Obama said with Panetta and the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman, Gen. Martin Dempsey, at his side.

In a presidential election year the strategy gives Obama a rhetorical tool to defend his Pentagon budget-cutting choices. Republican contenders for the White House already have attacked him on national security issues including missile defense, Iran and planned reductions in ground forces.

Those details will be included in the 2013 defense budget to be submitted to Congress next month.

"Don't settle for less than America needs," said Rick Santorum, eager to capitalize on his second-place finish behind the former Massachusetts governor in this week's Iowa caucuses, a scant eight votes off the pace.

A heavy favorite to win New Hampshire's primary next Tuesday, Romney all but ignored his Republican rivals as he campaigned in two states. Instead, he criticized President Barack Obama as a "crony capitalist. He's a job killer."

Without saying so, the rest of the field appeared to share a common campaign objective — hold down Romney's vote totals in New Hampshire, then knock him off stride 11 days later in South Carolina, the first Southern primary of the year.

Romney benefited handsomely from having several rivals split the vote in Iowa, where his winner's share was roughly 25 percent.

'Gradually you are going to see we have a difference of opinion about which will be the last conservative standing," former House Speaker Newt Gingrich told reporters as he campaigned in New Hampshire. "But I think you'll eventually come down to one conservative and Gov. Romney and he'll continue to get 25 percent?

Bombings Targeting Shiites BAGHDAD (AP) • An apparently coordinated wave of bombings targeting Shiite Muslims killed at least 78 people in Iraq on Thursday, the second

large-scale assault by militants since U.S. forces pulled out last month.

The attacks, which bore the hallmarks of Sunni insurgents, come ahead of a Shiite holy day that draws hundreds of thousands of pilgrims from across Iraq, raising fears of a deepening of sectarian bloodshed. Rifts along the country's Sunni-Shiite faultline just a few years ago pushed Iraq to the brink of civil war.

The bombings in Baghdad and outside the southern city of Nasiriyah appeared to be the deadliest in Iraq in more than a year.

Thursday's blasts occurred at a particularly unstable time for Iraq's fledgling democracy. A broad-based unity government designed to include the country's main factions is mired in a political crisis pitting politicians from the Shiite majority now in power against the Sunni minority, which reigned supreme under the dictatorship of Saddam Hussein.

Some Iraqis blame that political discord for the lethal strikes.

"We hold the government responsible for these attacks. They (the politicians) are bickering over their seats and these poor people are killed in these blasts," said Baghdad resident Ali Qassim not long after the first bomb went off.

The attacks began during Baghdad's morning rush hour when explosions struck the capital's largest Shiite neighborhood of Sadr City and another district that contains a Shiite shrine, killing at least 30 people, according to police.

Several hours later, a suicide attack hit pilgrims heading to the Shiite holy city of Karbala, killing 48, police said. The explosions took place near Nasiriyah, about 200 miles (320 kilometers) southeast of Baghdad.

Hospital officials confirmed the causalities. Authorities spoke on condition of anonymity because they weren't authorized to release figures of the dead and wounded, who numbered more than 100.

The blasts occurred in the run-up to Arbaeen, a holy day that marks the end of 40 days of mourning following the anniversary of the death of Imam Hussein, a revered Shiite figure. During this time, Shiite pilgrims — many on foot — make their way across Iraq to Karbala, south of Baghdad.

Baghdad military spokesman Maj. Gen. Qassim al-Moussawi said the aim of the attacks is "to create turmoil among the Iraqi people." He said it was too early to say who was behind the bomb-

Time to Rally Around a Not-Romney

BY LAURIE KELLMAN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Prominent conservative leaders want their rank and file to quickly get behind a single presidential candidate Rick Santorum now seems the likeliest — fearful that persistent splits will help Mitt Romney win the Republican nomination.

"While no political candidate, or human being for that matter, is perfect, Rick Santorum's baggage conclothes," his CatholicVote.org president Brian Burch said Thursday, after Santorum's virtual tie with Romney in Iowa won the support of the 600,000member online organiza-

"Republicans hoping to win back the White House in November must unite behind the candidate most dedicated to the foundational issues of faith, family and freedom?'

Romney narrowly won the Iowa caucuses when conservative voters split their support among several challengers, and the worry is that the same thing will happen in South Carolina, Florida and beyond if Rick Santorum, Newt Gingrich and Rick Perry all stay in the race.

"Conservatives are still divided among a number of different candidates, but the field is winnowing," said former Republican presidential candidate Gary Bauer. And, he said: "I certainly think that Senator Santorum is in a good position to inherit a lot of that support."

In the afterglow of Santorum's unexpectedly narrow loss to Romney in Iowa, leaders on the right who have been scarcely engaged in the rollicking Republican contest began buzzing about the prospect of endorsing the former Pennsylvania senator with the solid conservative credentials — or someone else such as Gingrich who has deep conservative roots.

To discuss how to proceed, some of those leaders have set up meetings from Washington to Texas before the Jan. 21 South Carolina primary. That vote could prove pivotal, given that the Republicans who have won the state for decades have eventually become the party's nominees.

"There is movement, even members of Congress who are weighing this now who are looking to make a move," said Family Research Council President Tony Perkins, who said he's spoken with more than eight leaders with conservative constituencies, including lawmakers. He declined to name them but added: "I do think you'll see growing momentum toward Rick Santorum?'

Indeed, interviews with a number of leaders, many of whom spoke on the condition of anonymity to be candid, indicated that Santorum was emerging as the preferred alternative to Romney, though a few still are watching Gingrich. Not one mentioned Perry, who announced he would reassess his campaign in light of a fifth-place showing in Iowa only to say a day later he would press on in South Carolina.

Michele Bachmann, the Minnesota congresswoman who is a favorite of evangelicals and the tea party, took the opposite route, abandoning her bid after coming in last in Iowa. That's left her backers up for grabs and looking for someone to rally

It's unlikely to be Romney. Many conservatives have long viewed him skeptically.

These voters complain that he's reversed himself on a series of social issues. They also don't like his record of support for government health care and exceptions to abortion restrictions. And, with conservatives making up the base of the party, the skepticism has kept his support under 25 percent in most national surveys and in some early primary states despite his front-runner status, strong organization and big bank account.

"You'll eventually come down to one conservative and Governor Romney," Gingrich, the former speaker of the House, predicted Thursday in New Hampshire. "And he'll continue to get 25 percent. By definition at some point in that game somebody is going to start getting a lot more votes than Governor Romney."

The hand-wringing on the right over Romney as the nominee has produced a deeply unsettled nomination fight.

Conservative voters have spent much of the year flitting from Bachmann to Perry to Gingrich in search of someone to back.

In Iowa, they finally ended up rallying behind Santorum, making him the latest candidate to emerge as the more conservative alternative to Romney. "We're the folks that people are getting excited about," Santorum said after an appearance Thursday in Manchester.

His near victory in Iowa -Romney by eight votes - is prompting new calls to reach a consensus.

"It's time for the conservatives to get off the sidelines and get into the arena, our choice make known," said Richard Viguerie, a longtime GOP fundraiser, who after much searching said he has picked a candidate. "There was Rick Santorum, in plain sight, all along?

And Burch, the president of Catholic Vote.org, also is suggesting that supporters take a second look at Santorum.

"Until the last two weeks, it wasn't clear whether Santorum would get the traction he needed to compete," Burch wrote to backers after Santorum's Iowa finish, saying: "He put these doubts firmly to rest."

Both Santorum and Gingrich are Catholic. Romney is a Mormon.

He walked behind the grieving parents as the coffins were brought out of the church.

Badger's parents, Lomer and Pauline Johnson, also died in the fire.

Badger told mourners, "In all the incomprehensible loss and chaos, all I can hang onto is that love is everything."

The pallbearers were 18 firefighters from Stamford, Conn., who responded to the fire. Among the more than 500 people attending the service in New York City were fashion designers Calvin Klein and Vera Wang, rocker Lou Reed and actor Philip Seymour Hoffman.

Madonna Badger is a fashion advertising executive who worked on Calvin Klein campaigns.

Stamford Mayor Michael Pavia also attended the service at a century-old Episcopal church.

Three blonde girls wearing pretty dresses laughed delightedly in a photo that adorned the program for the service.

Badger said Lily was "my angel and my life and she was my firstborn." Sarah was "my little whippersnapper, loved and lovable and full of love." Grace was "fearless" but often asked her mother "if she was going to die before me."

"I said no, t hat's never going to happen," said. "But it did, and I wonder why. Why my children? Why my parents?" Singer-songwriter

Rufus Wainwright performed a haunting a cappella version of "Over the Rainbow" during the service, which also featured hymns sung by St. Thomas' all-male choir.

A private service was held later at Woodlawn Cemetery for the girls and their grandparents.

Authorities have told The Associated Press that embers in a bag of discarded ashes started the blaze. They had been taken out of a fireplace so the children wouldn't worry about Santa coming down the chimney.

Madonna Badger and Borcina were treated at a hospital.

Fire officials have said Borcina is believed to have placed the ashes in or outside an entryway, near the trash.

The victims died of smoke inhalation. Grandfather Lomer Johnson also suffered a blunt head and neck trauma, which resulted from a fall or being hit by an object.

One of the girls, found dead just inside a window, had been placed on a pile of books, apparently so Johnson could reach in and grab her after he jumped out. Instead, authorities say, he fell through the roof.

Stamford police are helping fire officials investigate the blaze. Police said Monday officials want to know whether there smoke alarms, the status of renovation work on the house and whether the contractor had permits.

Utah court records show Stewart's criminal history includes only a 2005 conviction for a class B misdemeanor traffic violation — operating a vehicle without insurance. A judge found him guilty after a bench trial and ordered him to pay a $350 fine.

State officials also placed a pair of tax liens on Stewart last August.

Stewart served in the Army from July 1994 to December 1998, spending a year based in Fort Bragg, N.C., and nearly three years stationed in Germany, Army records show.

He held a post as a communications equipment specialist, earning an Army Achievement Medal and a National Defense Service Medal. Both are given for completing active service, although they don't indicate exceptional acts of valor.

Stewart's father, Michael Stewart, said his son works a night shift at a local Walmart and may have been sleeping when police arrived.

"When they kicked in the door, he probably felt threatened," said Michael Stewart, who has been estranged from his son for more than a year, but keeps track of him through his two other sons.

The elder Stewart said his son suffers from post-traumatic stress disorder, anxiety and depression and may have been treating it with small amounts of pot. He said he believes his son may have been growing the weed himself.

He said he didn't believe his son owned any automatic weapons and that the family is upset by what happened. "This is my son's problem and we're grieving for him and all of the officers," Michael Stewart said. "I'm dead sick about it." Weber County Attorney Dee Smith said it wasn't yet clear what charges Stewart might face once the shooting investigation concludes.

"But it appears right now, with the information we have, that we have an aggravated murder as well as a number of other attempted aggravated murders," Smith said, choking back tears.

Aggravated murder is a capital crime and, if convicted, Stewart could face the death penalty.

The officer killed, Jared Francom, was with the Ogden police. He leaves behind two daughters, aged 3 and 5, and his wife of seven years, Erin.

"She's upset, but she's hanging in there," Frisby said of his daughter. "I can only describe her as a rock."

Joining the narcotics strike force had long been Francom's dream job, according to his father-in-law, John Frisby. Francom, 30, had worked as a part-time patrol officer and took security jobs on the side until he was finally chosen for the select group.

It was a "big honor," Frisby said when reached by telephone at his home in Henderson, Nev. "He was good at it."

By mid-day Thursday, more than 1,000 friends and strangers had expressed their support and gratitude for Francom and his family on a memorial Facebook page with prayers, poems and other message. Some posters swapped out their profile pictures for a black logo with a blue stripe representing fallen officers.

Authorities said the conditions of the officers ranged from serious to critical. They are Ogden officers Shawn Grogan, Kasey Burrell and Michael Rounkles, Weber County sheriff's Sgt. Nate Hutchinson and Roy officer

Jason VanderWarf. Kevin Burrell, Kasey Burrell's father, said his son was shot in the head. A sevenyear veteran of the police force, the younger Burrell was sedated, but appears to be improving, his father said. On Wednesday, witnesses said they heard three quick pops followed by a two- to three-minute pause, then lots of gunfire and officers yelling at someone to "put your hands up," in the backyard. Outside Stewart's house on Thursday armed SWAT officers clothed in camouflage remained on guard as police continued their search of the property. The yard was taped off and dotted with numbered evidence markers.

Residents said they were shocked to hear there was any drug activity in the area or a shootout on their street.

"This has always been a quiet neighborhood. We've been here for 11 years," said Andrew Mair, who said his wife hid in the couple's basement in fear when the gunfire rang out. "I've never heard anything crazy going on."

Beth Smith Hedrick

Sept. 28, 1917-Jan. 4, 2012

BOISE • Beth Smith Hedrick passed away peacefully at home surrounded by her family and friends Wednesday, Jan. 4, 2012, at the age of 94. True to her lifelong perspective, she remained forwardlooking and positive during her illness, continuing to be concerned about and interested in those around her and their lives.

Beth entered Albion State Normal School in 1934, working for her room and board by helping in the music department. The two years she spent at Albion were among the happiest times of her life. She attended many reunions, including her 75th college reunion this past June with her college friend, Adelaide Gerard. While at Albion, she made lifelong friends, served as student body president, acquired teaching skills that benefited countless students during her career and met the love of her life, Clarence Hedrick of Rupert, Idaho. Beth and Clarence married in August 1936 and celebrated almost 60 years of marriage before his death in Beth taught in numerous rural settings in Idaho during her early career, including Pleasant View, Carey and Elmwood. She and Clarence also taught together in a tworoom school house in Stone, Idaho. Though the conditions were rough and isolated, Beth fondly reminisced about this experience and the students who attended this school, often by horseback. Beth continued her teaching while her husband was in the Army during World War II and, shortly thereafter, started their family. In the summers of 1946 to 1947, Beth and Clarence lived at Redfish Lake while he worked for the U.S. Forest Service. They had no more than 10 visitors each summer but loved their time at Redfish, which fostered their love of the Sawtooths and the family cabin they would later build together during the '50s and '60s.

Beth and Clarence eventually settled in Twin Falls after living in Vale, Ore., and St. Anthony and Rexburg, Idaho. Beth's time was filled with caring for her family and working at her husband's side building their cabin. She was a Camp Fire Girls and 4-H leader and served as the DeMolay and Job's Daughters "mother." She took education classes through Idaho State University for her bachelor's degree, which she received in 1963. She taught seventh grade reading in Twin Falls at O'Leary and Robert Stuart Junior High, where she positively impacted many students. Her subject specialty was reading but encouraging and motivating a student to learn was her gift.

vocate of education, Beth joined the Alpha Delta Kappa (ADK) International Honorary Teachers Sorority and the American Association of University Women (AAUW) in which she remained active and served as an officer until her death. Besides her work, hobbies and professional activities, Beth adored her seven grandchildren and enjoyed attending their activities and sporting events over the years. Some of her travels included the Pacific Northwest, Alaska and Canada, Europe and Mexico to visit family. Beth and Clarence enjoyed many close friendships over the years, especially with their friends in the Magic Valley area. She treasured these individuals and maintained a weekly contact with them.

After moving to Boise in 1993 and her husband's death in 1995, Beth returned to the familiar setting of the classroom, obtaining her master's in education with a specialty in reading at the young age of 80. She continued with coursework at BSU as well as volunteering at the Learning Lab weekly, tutoring adults in English. At the time of her death, she had completed coursework toward her Ph.D. with the assistance of her loyal caregiver and friend. Genene Gregor. Genene became her eyes and ears in the classroom and introduced Beth to using the computer. Beth established an agriculture scholarship at CSI in memory of her husband and later, an education scholarship at CSI in her name, both to which she donated generously. Beth's passion for education and dedication to making her community a better place to live was a cornerstone of everyday life for her. She and Clarence were strong supporters and friends with Gov. Cecil Andrus, who fought tirelessly and continually for Idaho's school children. Beth was thrilled when

Beth, while active in her church in later years, had a strong lifelong faith and always looked for the good in every person and situation. Her home, which was filled with books, photographs and mementos, was a welcoming place to family and friends alike. Besides quilting and reading, she routinely watched the news, kept current on the local and national events and never missed voting. One of Beth's favorite activities was keeping in touch with friends and family by sending greeting cards. It is quite possible she kept Hallmark afloat for many years because of her thoughtful communications through cards.

Gov. Andrus presented her with her master's diploma

Surviving and who will miss this remarkable and admired woman are her four children and their spouses. Nanette (Jim) Songer, Wally (Jerrie) Hedrick, Howard (Antonia) Hedrick and Suzanne (Tom) Gillespie, all of Boise. She will also be missed immensely by her seven grandchildren, Ann, Ryan, Hallie, Tim and Clare Hedrick, and Anne-Marie and Cara Gillespie; l numerous nephews and nieces; and seven great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Clarence; her parents; sister, Verrell Stone of Rigby, Idaho; brothers, Franklin Smith of Idaho Falls, Nathan Smith of Logan, Utah, and David Smith of Rupert, Idaho.

Beth and her family wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to Drs. Stan Eisele and Delray Maughan for their years of expert care; Dr. Stan Steiner for his continued support and guidance at BSU; St. Luke's Hospice; Brent Archibald and Gary Buckley; countless friends who have provided support and encouragement; and especially Genene Gregor and Jeanne Simons for their tireless devotion to and loving care of Beth.

The funeral will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 7, at the Alden-Waggoner Funeral Chapel, with private interment at Morris Hill Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Beth S. Hedrick Education Scholarship, College of Southern Idaho Foundation, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, ID 83303-1238.

Bon voyage, Mom, and godspeed.

computer tech. Always on-

JEROME • Dorthy Arlene Humphrey Porter was born Jan. 27, 1929, at Lusk, Wyo., to Charles Humphrey and Verna Baars Humphrey. She attended school for 10 years at Node, Wyo., and graduated from high school at Lusk, Wyo., in 1942.

Dorthy was very active in 4-H for seven years and, in 1947, won a free trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Ill. On April 3, 1949, she was united in marriage to Carl Hardman Porter at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Lusk. There were four children born to this union. Dorthy and Carl divorced after 23 years of marriage.

Music was a very important part of Dorthy and her children's lives and they sang in the various churches they attended. Dorthy worked mostly in an office having worked for an attorney, for Mountain States Telephone Co. and in Kimberly as the site manager of the Ageless Senior Citizens Center for 18 years.

Dorthy was a "born again" Christian and attended the Airport Road Free Will Baptist Church in Twin Falls, where she was the organist for many years. She later moved to Jerome in 2003 and attended the Jerome Free Will Baptist Church until shortly before her death.

She is survived by her children, Duane (Nancy) Porter, Mike Porter, Anne (Gerald) Chojnacky and Carol Porter; seven grandchildren: and 10 greatgrandchildren.

There will be a celebration of her life at 11 a.m. Monday, Jan. 9, at the Heritage Alliance Church, 401 Sixth Ave. N. (corner of Eden Street North and Sixth Avenue North) in Twin Falls.

Gordon Hirabayashi, Dies at 93

LOS ANGELES (MCT) • Gordon Hirabayashi, who was convicted for defying the evacuation and internment of Japanese Americans on the West Coast during World War II and, four decades later, not only cleared his name but helped prove that the government had falsified the reasons for the mass incarceration, has died. He was 93.

Hirabayashi, who had Alzheimer's disease and other ailments, died Monday in Edmonton, Alberta, where he had lived for many years, said his son, Jay.

The elder Hirabayashi was one of only three Japanese Americans who refused to comply with Executive Order 9066, signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in February 1942. The order gave military authorities the power to restrict the freedom of thousands of people of Japanese ancestry on the West Coast in the wake of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor two months earlier.

SENIOR

Q. My wife and I just returned home from a Christmas visit to my parents. Although they live over 1000 miles away, I can see that I need to become more actively involved in their lives. Do you have any ideas about getting started?

A. Many adult children are coming home after a holiday visit to Mom and Dad facing this same important family challenge. Throughout the month of January we will focus on tips for caring for parents from a distance. For example, experts suggest that a first step is to determine both the strengths and the weaknesses in your parents' current situation. This might include the suitability of their house or apartment, their physical, mental and emotional health, their financial resources, their local family and other social relationships, and so on. You will probably want to identify and help address immediate needs they have, as well as issues you see on the horizon. You will also want to become familiar with resources that are available in your parents' community. A great way to get started with this exploration is to collect specific information that you can use to help your parents. We will talk about this next week.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared on Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks were nearly flat on Thursday. The Dow Jones industrial average had a tiny decline, while other indexes rose. Investors started the day worried about Europe, but positive jobs data in the U.S. and a strong run by financial stocks helped indexes climb back to break-even by the end of the day.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 2.72 points, or 0.02 percent, at 12,415.70.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index was up 3.76 points, or 0.3 percent, at 1,281.06.

The Nasdaq rose 21.5 points, or 2.5 percent, to 2,669.86.

Swank Sushi: Tuna Fetches Record $736K in Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) • This tuna is worth savoring: It cost nearly three-quarters of a million dollars.

A bluefin tuna caught off northeastern Japan fetched a record 56.49 million yen, or about $736,000, Thursday in the first auction of the year at Tokyo's Tsukiji fish market. The price for the 593-pound (269-kilogram) tuna beat last year's record of 32.49 million yen.

The price translates to 210,000 yen per kilogram, or $1,238 per pound - also a record, said Yutaka Hasegawa, a Tsukiji market official.

Though the fish is undoubtedly high quality, the price has more to do with the celebratory atmosphere that surrounds the first auction of the year.

The ADP National Employment Report showed an increase of jobs in December • Almost half of these jobs came from small businesses. Forecasters had expected something in the range of 200,000 new private-sector jobs.

"The increase in December was the largest monthly gain since ... December 2010 and nearly twice the average monthly gain since May, when employment decelerated sharply," the report said. "Employment in the private, service-providing sector rose 273,000 in December, which is up from an increase of 176,000 in November. Employment in the private, goods-producing sector increased 52,000 in December."

Holiday Discounts Crimp Retailers' Profits

BY ANNE D'INNOCENZIO

Associated Press

NEW YORK • The 2011 holiday shopping season will go down in the record books as the year the Grinch stole stores' profits. Many retailers sacrificed their bottom lines by pushing heavy discounts to shoppers bent on getting a good deal in a challenging economy. That created a sharp divide between stores that won the battle for wallets, and those that didn't.

The big winners? Shoppers who held out for deals late in the season.

Retailers collectively reported a 3.5 percent increase in revenue at stores open at least a year for December, according to a tally of 25 merchants compiled by the International Council of Shopping Centers. For November and December combined, the figure rose 3.3 percent, a solid increase but still behind last year's 3.8 percent

The figures are based on revenue at stores open at least a year. That is considered a key indicator of a retailer's health because it excludes results from stores recently opened or closed.

Retailers depend on the holidays, when they bring in as much as 40 percent of their annual revenue. The season also gives give valuable insights into what it takes to get Americans to spend in the weak economy. Clearly, the rich kept spending, but for everyone else, it took a hot item like Apple's iPad or right-on exclusive fashions - or a lot of "50 percent"

Winners included Limited Brands Inc., Macy's Inc., TJX Cos. and Nordstrom Inc., which posted strong revenue gains that beat analysts' estimates. Macy's, Ross and Limited even boosted their earnings outlooks.

On the losing side, Target Corp., Kohl's Corp., and J.C. Penney Co. cut their fourth-quarter earnings projections after reporting weaker-than-expected sales. Gap had a big sales decline.

There's no question that the divide is getting wider, and will get even wider this year as the winners continue to take share away from rivals;" said Joel Bines, managing director in the retail practice of Alix-Partners. "Consumers have limited time, money and attention, and they're investing in a smaller subset of retailers."

T.F. Building Permits Rise in December, Fall Short of 100 for 2011

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Single-family building permits in Twins Falls rallied in December, with 13 issued to mark the second-best month of the calendar year. The city issued 15 in March.

However, the upswing wasn't enough to elevate permits above 100 for the year, and the city finished seven shy at 93. The amount is a 15year low for the city, which at one time issued 664 in 2005 during the height of the new-construction boom.

The slow year for new-home construction came after another light year. The 136 permits issued in 2010 marked the previous 15-year low. A report on the estimated value of work reported slight more than $2 million was spent on single-family unit construction, up 117 percent from December 2010.

Get out of the house with Cabin Fever Day, as venues all over Twin Falls offer free fun on Saturday.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Going stir crazy? You're not alone.

There's a cure for cabin fever in Twin Falls. Throughout Saturday, businesses participating in Cabin Fever Day will open their doors and offer free activities for people of all

It's good for families and good for businesses, said Dennis Bowyer, director of Twin Falls' Parks and Recreation Department. People get out of the house and try something new at facilities they might not visit other-

"There's a lot of things that are open free to the public," Bowyer said.

And the activities are varied. Kids can play at Hop 2 It! or at the Boys and Girls Club of Magic Valley, while anyone can visit YMCA for an open swim or Bowladrome for a game of bowling.

Eric Snow, fitness director at YM-CA in Twin Falls, said the facility has seen a great turnout every year it has participated. "It's always been really, really good."

Test Drive a New Hobby

With such mild winter weather, it's been hard to work up a respectable case of cabin fever. But that shouldn't deter you from the free stuff that the city of Twin Falls has arranged for Saturday's Cabin Fever Day. Take your pick from a long and varied list, such as archery practice, art projects, a putting green, rock climbing, mini golf, flower planting or solar viewing. Sure, most of the activities are at businesses that hope you'll become a paying customer later. But Saturday's fun is all free.

Your Big Chance

Magic Valley boasts a particularly lively community theater scene, so opportunities are plentiful for anyone who longs for a taste of the stage. That's you? With several troupes gearing up for the new season, it pays to keep an eye on the audition schedule: Saturday morning for Oakley Valley Arts' musical, "Dear Edwina"; Thursday evening for OutCast The ater's drama, "Tuesdays with Morrie"; and Jan. 15-16 for Dilettante Group's production of "Crazy for You, The New Gershwin Musical."

Local Boy Made Good

The Burdick name is a familiar one to southern Idaho, so Jerome High grad Benjamin Burdick will likely see some old friends in the "Red" audiences this weekend. Now a Hollywood actor with a list of TV and film credits, Burdick is returning to southern Idaho for two staged readings of John Logan's Tony-winning play about a founder of American abstract expressionism. # Brothers Grimm, Upside Down

BY BLAIR KOCH For the Times-News

BUHL • If Narrator 2 had his way, "The Brothers Grimm Spectaculathon" would introduce audiences to "monsterslaying action as the threeheaded pig battles the wolf-obot in a bone-crushing cage match of death."

There would also be a mudwrestling death match between Snow White and Sleeping Beauty, complete with dwarf-tossing.

Those storylines may have been too extreme for Don Zolidis' "Spectaculathon" which Buhl High School drama students will present for their 14th annual dinner theater Jan. 13-14 — but expect to see plenty of head turners as the cast attempts to combine all 209 Grimm stories. You'll spot classics like "Cinderella" and "Hansel and Gretel," as well as the more obscure, like "The Devil's Grandmother" and "The Girl Without Hands."

"It's fun and fast-paced and has plenty of audience participation," said director David Blaszkiewicz, Buhl High's drama teacher. "It's filled with characters and definitely entertaining."

In light of budget cuts, this dinner-theater year's fundraiser is more important than before.

"Anything extra, field trips and bus money for the drama festival at (Boise State University), has been cut so we wouldn't be able to go without raising money ourselves," Blaszkiewicz said.

Typically, earnings from the yearly dinner theater help produce the spring musical, but this year's show will likely be

"I think the experience makes the flush times ... you're more grateful when the resources are there," Arreguin said. "I understand more the effort it takes to put on a show, and when the show is good the drama department benefits."

Harmon said audiences will relate to the Brewster family's disconnect from reality and to the worry Mortimer feels about his fiancee finding out they "all have a major screw loose." Mortimer worries about going insane himself and losing the love of his life.

"We all have bizarre behavior. Although we may not be poisoning old bachelors like Mortimer's aunts and burying them in the cellar, who are we to judge?" Harmon said.

After Mortimer discovers the aunts' secret, the two woman (played by Kate Woods and Amy Chambers) explain that they have developed a very bad habit but feel they are doing the men a favor: ending their lonely suffering by serving elderberry wine spiked with arsenic, strychnine and a pinch of cyanide.

Mortimer's brother Teddy, who believes himself to be President Roosevelt, provides the perfect burying ground. When Teddy (played by Andrew Chojnacky) isn't imitating Roosevelt's stampede up San Juan Hill, he's helping his aunts bury their victims in the basement, believing instead to be burying yellow fever victims in Panama.

"My character does seem to be naive and but believes herself to be merciful," said Woods of Buhl, a first-time cast member with RAT. "I think the show still resonates because people worry about their family, if it is too weird for their friends?

While Mortimer does his best to stay on top of the situation, he finds it difficult to keep Elaine in the dark, Crozier said.

"I'm not married, but I have one brother that is and another that is engaged, and each time the engagements were announced they were worried about certain things getting out or us talking about a taboo subject," said Crozier, who draws on those experiences for his character.

Choate, a recent CSI theater grad, gives an impressive performance as Elaine. One minute, she's turning on her steamy side when Mortimer's aunts aren't looking, and another making it clear she's going to keep her man.

Does Choate see Mortimer and Elaine's story ending

"I think it's a happy ending. We all have these strange family stories," she said.

SUN VALLEY • "Ja," the Swiss skier sitting next to me in the chairlift nodded. "The skiing is great. The mountain is great. But," he leaned in as if to divulge a secret, "you know what else brings me back every year? It's the chance to listen to music and drink beer on the patio after skiing."

Indeed, this skier and his buddies travel some 5,300 miles around the world every year to partake in a ritual they say they can't get in the Alps: kicking back under the sun for what the locals call "apres ski" entertainment.

Apres ski is a longtime ritual at Sun Valley, with the resort offering free music to skiers and non-skiers alike in a variety of locations from the River Run Lodge to the patio outside the Warm Springs Lodge to the historical Duchin Room in the Sun Valley Lodge.

New York jazz pianist Paul Tillotson is back for his 15th season in the Duchin Room – lured, he says, by the opportunity to ski by day and tickle the ivories in the early evening.

And this year, former Twin Falls musician Ethan Tucker and his Grassroots All-Stars will provide the apres ski music on several

"Apres ski entertainment has been something to look forward to as long as I can remember," said former Twin Falls resident Annie Coiner, who now works for Sun Valley Co. "It used to get pretty crazy in the old

The place to see and be seen is definitely the Warm Springs patio, where the afternoon sun warms those who've just dropped in to listen to the music, and the skiers and boarders waiting to board the chair for another trip up the mountain.

But some skiers wouldn't miss the opportunity to nurse a hot buttered rum in the Duchin Room, where they can watch Tillotson or Joe Fos at the piano.

"I love watching Joe Fos - he's the consummate lounge jazz performer, always looking up and smiling. He's a class act in my opinion," said Mauldin, a Jerome native who now is director of entertainment for Sun Valley.

"I'm just grateful for the opportunity to play," said Ned Wheeler of All Night Diner. "We're really looking forward to it."

Here's the lineup so far. Other performers will be added as the season goes on: All Night Diner plays Riv-

Will NFL Playoffs Be Filled with Yards, Points?

A NEW START ON PGA TOUR WITH PLENTY OF NEW FACES

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KAPALUA, Hawaii • Steve Stricker is back on Maui, a familiar place for a guy who has won on the PGA Tour in each of the last three years to qualify for the season-opening Tournament of Champions.

Not so familiar are some of the guys he'll be trying to Twelve players in the 28-man field are at Kapalua for the first time, more evidence of change on the PGA Tour. A year ago, Stricker didn't know who most of them were.

Keegan Bradley? He was known more as the nephew of LPGA great Pat Bradley until he won two times, including that unlikely comeback in Atlanta to capture the PGA Championship in his first try at a major.

Jhonattan Vegas was the first PGA Tour member from Venezuela. Scott Stallings? Brendan Steele?

"I know them now a little bit," Stricker said Thursday on the eve of the opening round.

The PGA Tour season gets under way Friday. It wants to get away from the NFL playoffs on Sunday, so the final round will end Monday just before the BCS Championship game starts.

The Tournament of Champions will be missing 11 players who didn't or couldn't make it to Hawaii. It's the biggest list of no-shows since this tournament moved to Kapalua in 1999, though it's a product of the changing world of golf.

Three of the players are recovering from injuries, five of them are based overseas and Luke Donald, the No. 1 player in the world, just finished a whirlwind trip around the world that took him deep into December. Like many other players, this is his offseason.

That's not the only change.

Phil Mickelson and Tiger Woods are no longer part of the top 10 in the world ranking. There are no Americans among the top five in the world ranking for the first time in nearly

Mathieu, Claiborne Combine to Lead LSU-or'DBU'

BY DAVE SKRETTA

AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS • Morris Claiborne came to LSU to play wide receiver. Tyrann Mathieu just wanted a chance to play. Together they form one of the best defensive backfields in college football. Claiborne has flourished into a Thorpe Award winner and likely top-10 draft pick after finally moving to the other side of the ball, while the pint-sized Mathieu has emerged as one of the game's most dynamic playmakers, winning the Bednarik Award and earning an invitation to the Heisman Trophy ceremony.

They're also a big reason LSU is playing for another national title.

"Those guys can play football all the way around," said Alabama quarterback A.J. McCarron, whose job it will be to figure out a way of beating them in the BCS title game Monday night.

He didn't fare so well against "MoMo" and the "Honey Badger" the last time they met.

The pair combined for eight tackles and an interception last November, holding McCarron to 199 yards passing in No. 1 LSU's 9-6 overtime victory over second-ranked Al-

Claiborne and Mathieu provide the energy - the pulse, if you will — for an aggressive, pin-the-ears-back defense that created 30 turnovers and ranked in the top five nationally in scoring defense, rush defense, pass efficiency defense and total defense during the season.

Along the way, they became the first set of teammates to lock down both spots on the AP's All-America first team.

Nobody could have expected that when they arrived on LSU's picturesque campus.

BRUINS STAND TALL, BEAT CANYON RIDGÉ

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • For once, a team's defense fed on its offense.

Struggling for a half, Twin Falls used a couple 3-pointers to pop Canyon Ridge's stingy zone defense, and the Bruins clamped down in their defensive half to grind out a 41-27 win in Thursday's girls basketball rivalry game.

Josie Jordan, who scored just one point in the first half, hit two of the Bruins' three third-quarter 3s as Twin Falls went on a 10-0 run to turn a one-point deficit into a 29-20 lead early in the fourth period.

"I knew if I could get a shot to fall then I could drive to the basket, and if we could hit a couple (outside shots) we'd break the zone and we could run some man offense," said Jordan, who led all scorers with 13

Kaitlyn Merritt scored 11 for the Bruins, while Taryn Skahill had a solid all-around effort, adding 10 points, eight rebounds and four blocked shots.

The Bruins blocked eight shots in total and altered countless others, forcing the smaller Riverhawks to adjust their shot angles seemingly at every turn.

"We've just got to use our height advantage the best we can," said

Golden Eagles Get Early Jump in Scenic West Race By Beating Arch-rival Bruins.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • On a night where it couldn't buy a free throw or a 3-point shot, the College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team was instead able to turn to a gritty defense effort to grind its way to a Scenic West Conference

Fabyon Harris scored 26 points, Rafriel Guthrie had a double-double of 13 points and 14 rebounds and the No. 12 Golden Eagles beat No.5 Salt Lake CC 76-68 for their 12th straight win.

CSI (14-1, 1-0 SWAC) plays Snow College Saturday at 5 p.m.

After making two straight turnovers while trying to break the Salt Lake CC press, Sebastien Michineau hit a 3pointer to make the score 71-65 with 1:15 left. The Bruins had pulled to within 68-65 with 1:30 left after Michineau threw two errant passes, leading to an easy Skyler Halford layup and two Louis Garrett free throws.

"I think we had some miscommunication there, trying to break the press," Michineau said. "We went down on offense and I saw the opening on the 3point line and got the pass. That was a

Eagle Women Show Urgency

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • On this night, the College of Southern Idaho women's basketball team didn't look like a .500 club.

The Golden Eagles played inspired defense, shot the ball well from 3-point range and showed a sense of urgency in knocking off Salt Lake Community College 69-63 in the Scenic West Conference opener.

"We came out prepared and energized and ready to make a statement, with two minutes left.

especially after the way we've played to start the season," said sophomore guard Mechela Barnes. "We went through those two-a-days this week to prepare and knew what to expect out of Salt Lake."

A close game throughout, the momentum swung in CSI's favor after a Kylee Schierman 3-pointer tied the game at 57 with just over four minutes remaining. Chakala Carthen and Schierman each hit a pair of free throws to break a 58-all tie, pushing their lead to four

At that point, the Bruins (9-5, 0-1 SWAC), with their towering frontcourt of 6-0 Nicole Newbold, 5-11 Marissa Robbins and 6-4 Asha McDonnell switched to a small-ball lineup, which was an advantage for the Golden Eagles who had the 6-2 Jessy Saint-Felix on the bench.

Chelsea Morgan hit a 3-pointer to pull Salt Lake within 66-63 with 43 seconds left, but the Golden Eagles hit their free throws in the closing seconds to seal the win.

28 Teams Participate in Buhl Invitational

TIMES-NEWS

For Magic Valley wrestling, tournaments don't come much bigger than the Buhl Invitational.

That figurative statement, over the years, has taken on all too literal meaning as well. Twenty-eight teams will descend upon Buhl today for the 38th edition of one of the area's most prestigious wrestling tournaments, which starts this afternoon and will continue well into the evening before breaking for the night. Day 1 of last year's event, with fewer teams, ended just shy of 11 p.m. One wrinkle for the Buhl tournament will be the lack of a 98-pound weight bracket. That's because while Idaho added weight for its

Win Was Worth The Wait For Minico

BY RYAN HOWE rhowe@maaicvallev.com

BURLEY • The Minico girls basketball team used the three-week buildup to Thursday's rivalry showdown with Burley to fine tune its defense and install an offensive wrinkle tailor-made for the Bob-

Both paid off in the Spartans' 46-40 Great Basin Conference road victory.

The Spartans (9-5, 3-2 GBC), which won its fourth straight, got balanced scoring. Micaela Merrill led with 12, followed by Marlee Chandler with 11 and Hannah Bailey with 10.

"We've been waiting for this game," said Bailey. "We all wanted to win and we knew what we had to do. Tonight it showed that we have been working hard on our defense."

What they had to do was find its go-to offensive set in the third quarter to exploit Burley's man defense. The result was turning a one-point halftime deficit into a 10point lead heading into the fourth quarter.

"I was really proud of the effort of every single girl. The most exciting thing is everybody is contributing both on the offense and defensive end," said Minico coach Terry Merrill.

Burley's Aubrie Vale scored 10 of her game-high 17 in the first quarter, and Brooke Bowers finished with 10

"Some of us didn't show up," said Bowers. "We didn't play as a team. Some of us were just lollygagging and we weren't pushing the ball like we usually do... For a Minico game, all your nerves are in the first and second quarter, and then by the third quarter they should be gone and you just play. But some people I guess couldn't let the nerves go." Burley was just 11 of 24 from the foul line. One of Burley's best scorers, Chelsee Baker, spent most the game in foul trouble.

"I cannot have Chelsee Baker sitting by me all night long," said Burley coach Roger Caresia. "Her foul trouble was huge."

After falling behind by 11 in the fourth, Burley (5-8, 1-4 GBC) got back to within four with nine seconds remaining, but it was too little, too late.

"Just too many mental mistakes, it's that simple," said Caresia. "We played hard, we played aggressive and their effort is there. Part of the game of basketball is mental."

Minico hosts Jerome on Tuesday. Burley hosts Canyon Ridge on Wednesday.

Skahill. "We were really nervous tonight. I think it's always going to be that way when we play them." It was the final game of the first half of the Great Basin Conference schedule for both teams. Twin Falls kept pace with Jerome to stay a game back in second place, while the Riverhawks have yet to win in league play.

But Canyon Ridge's inexperienced squad has treated the first half of the season as a barometer, and now they're convinced they're getting closer to the win column in conference

"There's just a few minutes where we can't buy a bucket," said senior guard Karly Hudelson, who scored 11 to lead Canyon

Ridge. "We need to do a better job rebounding, and we'd win games. We're getting closer though, and we've always said that the first half was for seeing where we were at, and when the second half came we'd know the teams and know what to do against them." Carthen was huge for CSI (8-7, 1-0 SWAC) in the second half, scoring 16 of her 19 points. Barnes scored a game-high 20, sinking four 3-pointers, Schierman added 17 and Tayllor Gipson pitched in with 10.

The four sophomores scored all but three of the Golden Eagles' points.

Carthen and Schierman both grabbed 13 rebounds as CSI outrebounded Salt Lake 45-38.

Head coach Randy Rogers, known for his dislike of the zone defense, ran a 2-3 zone for much of the game. At times it frustrated the Bruins, particularly sharpshooter Sofia Hepworth, who was held to just eight points on 4-for-11 shooting.

"I thought defensively we did a really nice job," Rogers said. "I was really pleased that we forced them to make the adjustments. That's a testament to our effort tonight."

CSI led 20-11 midway through the first half after a Barnes 3-pointer, but Salt Lake ripped off an 18-6 run to pull ahead.

Marissa Robbins led Salt Lake with 12 points. The Bruins play Saturday at North Idaho, which beat Snow College 87-72 Thursday night.

Report: O'Brien to Be New Penn St. Coach

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • New England Patriots offensive coordinator Bill O'Brien has agreed to replace Joe Paterno as Penn State's head coach, according to multiple reports.

ESPN, citing unnammed sources, first reported Thursday night that an official announcement would be made Saturday, and that O'Brien would continue on as an assistant with the Patriots the rest of the postseason.

Penn State coaches contacted by The Associated Press said they had not received any word late Thursday night about O'Brien or anything else related to the two-month long search to replace Paterno. He was fired Nov. 9 in the aftermath of child sex abuse charges against retired defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky.

Spurs forward Richard Jefferson grabs a rebound in front of Mavericks forward Dirk Nowitzki during the first half of their game in San Antonio.

No LeBron, No Wade, No Matter

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA • Chris Bosh scored 33 points and the Miami Heat, playing without injured stars LeBron James and Dwyane Wade, beat the Atlanta Hawks  $116\hbox{-}109\,in\,triple\hbox{-}overtime$ on Thursday night.

Mario Chalmers had 22 of his 29 points after the third quarter, including five in the third overtime.

Wade missed his second straight game with a sore left foot and James was held out after he turned his left ankle late in the third quarter of Wednesday night's 118-83 win over Indiana. Neither star was in uniform.

Bosh hit a last-second, tying 3-pointer at the end of regulation to force the first overtime. Joe Johnson had 20 points for the Hawks, who did not score in the third extra period.

SPURS 93, MAVERICKS 71. SAN ANTONIO • Matt

Bonner scored 17 points to lead San Antonio over Dal-Richard Jefferson scored 16 points and Gary Neal added 12 for the Spurs, who limited Dirk Nowitzki to six points on 3-of-11 shooting — the German star's lowest output since he had five in a Dec. 18, 2009, game that he left early because of injury.

Jason Terry scored 12 points and Delonte West had 10 to lead Dallas, which lost point guard Jason Kidd to a lower back injury with 24.7 seconds remaining in the first quarter. Kidd, who appeared to pull up, was replaced by Vince Carter and didn't return.

San Antonio hit 16 of 33 shots from long range.

COTTON BOWL PREVIEW

NO. 11 KANSAS STATE (10-2), 6 P.M. EST (FOX) Line: Arkansas by 71/2.

Series record: Kansas State leads 3-1. WHAT'S AT STAKE Arkansas, which only lost to No. 1 LSU and No. 2 Alabama, is going for its first 11-win season since 1977. Kansas State had six 11-win seasons in a seven-year span during the first tenure of coach Bill Snyder, who again has revived the Wildcats. This is the only bowl matchup between the Big 12 and the SEC, which will add current Big 12 teams Missouri and Texas A&M next season. KEY MATCHUP

The junior quarterbacks with drastically different styles. Arkansas' Tyler Wilson has thrown for 3,422 yards and 22 touchdowns with negative rushing yards. Wilson, the All-SEC quarterback who had a school-record 510 yards passing in a game at Cowboys Stadium, has more completions (257) this season than Kansas State's Collin Klein has attempts (251). But Klein has run for 1,099 yards and 26 touchdowns, one short of the FBS record for quarter-backs, while also throwing for 1,745 yards and 12 TDs. Klein has accounted for 38 of K-State's 45 offensive touchdowns and was the All-Big 12 all-purpose player, an honor usually reserved for a return specialist, in a league featuring Heisman Trophy-winning quar-terback Robert Griffin III. PLAYERS TO WATCH

Arkansas: All-SEC WRs Jarius Wright and Joe Adams. Wright, Arkansas' career receptions leader, leads the SEC with 63 catches for 1,029 yards and 11 touchdowns this season. Adams, No. 2 on the Razorbacks' career receptions list, is the only NCAA player with rushing, receiving and multiple punt return TDs this season.

Kansas State: All-Big 12 LB Arthur Brown. With 95 tackles, he's looking to become the first K-State player with 100 tackles since 2006. He also has 7½ tackles for losses and two sacks. FACTS & FIGURES Arkansas is No. 6 in the BCS standings, and Kansas State is No. 8. This is the only non-BCS bowl featuring two teams from the top 15 of those rankings. ... Kansas State and Arkansas last played in 1967, their only meeting since 1926. ... The Razorbacks are in their 12th Cotton Bowl, where they have a 3-7-1 record. They lost there the last two times against Big 12 opponents, to Missouri in 2008 and Oklahoma in 2002. ... K-State beat Tennessee of the SEC in its last Cotton Bowl 11 years ago. ...The Wildcats have eight wins by seven points or less. That is the most victories by one score in one season ever for a team from a conference with an automatic BCS bid. ... Arkansas has 13 touchdowns of more than 50 yards this season, with at least one such long play in nine games.

Growing up in Shreveport, Claiborne always knew he'd play for the Tigers one day, but he always envisioned scoring touchdowns rather than preventing them. He was a quarterback in high school and assumed he'd be a wide receiver at LSU, where his prototypical size and blazing speed cast him in the mold of former Tigers like Michael Clayton and Josh Reed.

"When I first got here, my mind was all offense. No defense," he said with a Cheshire Cat-like smile. "I was like, 'I'm not playing defense. I'm a receiver. That's what I'm going to do!"

It was during a 7-on-7 session one day in practice that cornerback Patrick Peterson – who was selected fifth overall in last season's NFL draft goaded him into playing defense. Claiborne wound up knocking the ball down with some textbook coverage, and remembers watching everyone's jaws

"The next day at practice," he said, "I was playing corner."

Les Miles and the LSU coaching staff knew they'd get Claiborne on the field somewhere. That wasn't necessarily the case when they scouted Mathieu.

Despite being a standout at New Orleans' St. Augustine High School he was still just 5-foot-9 - conventional wisdom says that's too small to play every down in the roughand-tumble SEC.

But the coaching staff decided to take a flier on Mathieu when they realized he had speed and instincts that are impossible to teach. Every time a big play was made, it seemed, Mathieu was in the vicinity, and that hasn't changed a bit since he arrived at LSU.

He led the team with 70 tackles as a sophomore this season, despite missing a game after testing positive for synthetic marijuana. Mathieu also forced six fumbles, recovered five of them and picked off a pair of passes, while scoring four touchdowns on defense and special teams.

He also earned a nickname, "Honey Badger," after a YouTube clip showing the tenacious, undersized beast taking whatever it wants.

WILL NFL PLAYOFFS BE FILLED WITH YARDS, POINTS?

ASSOCIATED PRESS

From opening night until New Year's Day, Aaron Rodgers, Drew Brees and Tom Brady dared defenses to stop them.

Nobody could.

Yards and points were accumulated at record rates in the NFL this season, and because those three star quarterbacks - along with other slingers such as Eli Manning and Ben Roethlisberger - are still chasing a championship as the playoffs begin this weekend, the question be-

Will the postseason be as pass-heavy and filled with points as the regular season

"It's kind of the way it was this year, all year, and it's really the way teams are built - to throw the football," said quarterback Matt Ryan, whose Atlanta Falcons play at Manning's New York Giants on Sunday. "I guess I can see that moving forward."

It all began in Game 1, when Rodgers and Brees combined for 731 yards and six touchdowns through the air, helping the past two Super Bowl champions, the Green Bay Packers and New Orleans Saints, put up 76 points. A few days later, Brady threw for 517 yards for the New England Patriots.

The New York Giants' Eli Manning is just one of a host of quarterbacks who are helping their teams pile up points at a record rate this season.

On and on it went, all the way through Week 17, when even the resting Rodgers' backup, Matt Flynn, got in on the act, breaking franchise marks by passing for 480 yards and six TDs in a 45-41 victory over the Detroit Lions, whose own quarterback, Matthew Stafford, also produced "Did I read that right?" numbers: 520 yards, five touchdowns.

Add it up, and NFL teams gained more yards combined per game than ever (693.7, 21.7 higher than the old mark). They also scored more points combined per game (44.4) than any time since 1965, a season before the first Super Bowl. The entire history of the league had produced two 5,000-yard passing seasons; there were three in 2011 Brady, Brees and 500 points in the same season (Packers, Saints, Patriots). Quarterbacks threw for 300 or more yards in a game 121 times, 17 more than in any prior season.

"I don't necessarily expect things to change much in the playoffs. We're definitely trending toward higher numbers," said Joe Theismann, who quarterbacked the Washington Redskins to the two decades. And even without the likes of U.S. Open champion Rory McIlroy, Masters champion Charl Schwartzel or Martin Kaymer in Hawaii, the young guys are making a strong push.

There were 13 winners in their 20s last year, and nine of them are at Kapalua

"There's been a transformation of players out here, and it was going to happen eventually," said Stricker, who turns 45 next month. "We saw Tiger and Phil slip out of the top 10, and we have some European players coming in there young European players and young Americans playing well and stepping right up early on in their careers. So it's fun to see.

"Right now it seems that young is good."

His hope is that experience still counts for something, especially on the Plantation Course at Kapalua that is unlike any other course the players will see all year. The course was built on a mountain, offering severe changes in elevation, massive greens with slope and grain, and uninterrupted views of the Pacific Ocean.

The surf has been particularly strong on Maui this week, and it creates quite the contrast. Players working their way along the way back nine can look down the cliffs and see the ocean littered with surfers off the point at Honolua Bay.

It's relaxing, but it's still work. The winners get a small head start on the rest of the PGA Tour in a short field with no cut, essentially free money from the $5.6 million purse and a jump in the FedEx Cup standings.

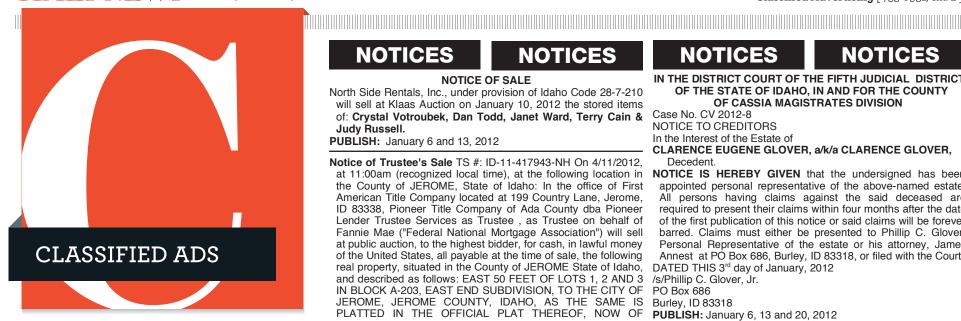

It worked beautifully last year for Jonathan Byrd, who won his final event of 2010 to qualify for Kapalua, then opened his season with a playoff win over Robert Garrigus.

Byrd was walking through the Maui airport when he saw promotional posters of him on the wall. His son, Jackson, looked at the poster and said, "Dad, I think you're famous?

In today's deal North's initial two-club response persuaded South to try the club grand slam, expecting a 4-4 fit and the chance of a discard if necessary. However, the three-card club suit in dummy would have been a big disappointment. How would you set about playing in seven

I have the greatest confidence in my readership, but I suspect that few players would find the winning line. While 12 tricks are easy enough, near misses do not count for much except in the case of horseshoes and hand grenades.

The simplest line is to play for clubs to be 3-3. Draw trumps and run the winners with some very small extra chances if the clubs do not break. But you can do much better.

Win the the heart king with the ace, play the spade ace, and lead a spade to the nine. Then ruff a heart, play a club to the ace, and ruff another heart. Next play a diamond to the ace, ruff another heart, play a diamond to the king, and ruff a diamond. Then go back to dummy with the club king to draw the last trump and take trick 13 with the club queen.

In total you scored four ruffs in hand, three trump tricks in dummy, and six winners in the plain suits. This is a perfect and extended dummy reversal whereby you used dummy's three-card suit to draw trump, and your long trumps in hand for ruffing purposes.

ANSWER: Although your hand is sterile in distribution, if your partner has the extra shape he has promised, you might make a slam. Start by cue-bidding two spades to find out if your partner has a spade control.

On Jan. 6, 1912, New Mexico became the 47th

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1412, tradition holds that Joan of Arc was born this day in Domremy.

In 1540, England's King Henry VIII married his fourth wife, Anne of Cleves. (The marriage lasted about six months.)

1759, George Washington and Martha Dandridge Custis were married in New Kent County, Va.

In 1838, Samuel Morse and Alfred Vail gave the first successful public demonstration of their telegraph, in Morristown, N.J.

In 1912, entertainer and philanthropist Danny Thomas was born in Deerfield, Mich.

In 1919, the 26th president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, died in Oyster Bay, N.Y., at age 60.

1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his State of the Union address, outlined a goal of "Four Freedoms'': Freedom of speech and expression; the freedom of people to worship God in their own way; freedom from want; freedom from fear.

the Pan 1942, In American Airways Pacific Clipper, a flying boat built by Boeing, arrived in New York more than a month after leaving California and following a westward route.

In 1950, Britain recognized the Communist government of China.

In 1967, U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops launched Operation Deckhouse Five, an offensive in the Mekong River delta.

In 1982, truck driver William G. Bonin was convicted in Los Angeles of 10 of the "Freeway Killer" slayings of young men and boys. (Bonin was later convicted of four other killings; he was executed in 1996.)

In 1994, figure skater Nancy Kerrigan clubbed on the leg by an assailant at Detroit's Cobo Arena; four men, including ex-husband Kerrigan's rival, Tonya Harding, went to prison for their roles in the attack. (Harding, who denied knowing about plans for the attack, received probation after pleading guilty to conspiracy to hinder prosecu-

Ten years ago: Argentina announced the devaluation of its peso, ending a decadelong policy pegging the currency one-to-one with the U.S. dollar. (In the year that followed, the peso lost 70 percent of its value against the dollar.)

Five years ago: At a Baptist church in Fort Worth, Texas, the Denver Broncos filed past the open casket of Darrent Williams, the promising cornerback who had been gunned down in a drive-by shooting on New Year's Day. A large avalanche pushed two cars off the heavily traveled road at Berthoud Pass in Colorado, but no deaths resulted. One year ago: U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates announced he would cut $78 billion from the Defense Department budget over the next five years, an effort to trim fat in light of the nation's ballooning deficit. Vang Pao, a revered former general in the Royal Army of Laos who'd led thousands of Hmong guerrillas in a CIAbacked secret army in the Vietnam War, died in Clovis, Calif., at age 81.

puppies. Please call if you know the owner.

Available for Adoption:

Some of our doggies have been here for a long time. Please, if you've been thinking about one, don't wait. It would be great for them to have a home for the holidays!

Cody is a beautiful yellow Labrador. He is under a year old. Cody is very nice and would love to find a home for Christ-

Anna Bell is a pointer mix female. She is liver and white and is very pretty. She is housebroken and loves to play and receive attention.

Cowboy is a Red Heeler. He is a very nice fellow. Yhe loves to play with other dogs and his human friends.

Wiley is a female Shepherd Husky mix. She is silver and white and is probably about 6-months-old. Wiley is very affectionate and playful.

Tater is a Boxer/Shepherd mix. He has a short haired tan coat. Tater has a very unique face with a little. black. Tater knows basic commands such as sit. He is a young dog probably under a year. Tater loves other dogs and would be a great family pet.

Joev is a Border Collie mix. He is black and white and has really cute ears that stick up. He is very friendly and is around 8 months old.

Fuzz is a beautiful Bearded Collie mix. He is about 5 months old and is super sweet! He loves kids and will be a great family companion. Come meet him today.

The adoption fee is $75 and includes spaying/neutering and the first set of vaccinations.

READERS: DEAR Yesterday I printed letters from adults in response to a letter from "Emotionally Abused in California" (Nov. 2), the 15-year-old who felt her mother was treating her unfairly. Today we'll hear

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 14year-old girl. My mom showed me the letter from "Emotionally Abused" and I almost died! Her mom sounds just like mine. I am not allowed to wear clothing that shows too much skin or get into a car with a teenage boy. I don't have cable TV. I have to do my own laundry, clean my room, cook dinner and hem my own jeans.

Every night our entire family sits down for dinner. My parents always know my plans when I'm out with my friends, and I go to church every Sunday - with the occasional groan. I'm not the perfect daughter, but I'm glad I'm being raised with integrity, responsibility and a whole lot of chores. - COOPERATING

TEEN IN NEW JERSEY DEAR ABBY: From one teen to another: I have heard your same story from friends a thousand times. You're not being treated like a criminal. Your mom is doing you a huge favor. She's preparing you for the real world by making you pay for your own things. She's got high expectations through college. And about your friends, she just wants to know who they are. She's not telling you no, right? She's a single mom, and she's trying to protect you.

if she thinks you can get

You need to be easier on her and try to see things through her eyes. Not everything she does is an attack on you - in fact, it's the opposite.

CALIFORNIA TEEN

DEAR ABBY: I'm an 18year-old girl and I have never been in trouble. I attend a private school where modesty is the dress code policy. To pay for tuition to this school, I work every afternoon during the school year and full-time during the summer. I'm expected to pay for my own clothes, cellphone bill and haircute out of allowance. If I can't afford something, I don't buy it.

As long as I live with my parents, I will abide by their rules. My parents love me very much and have my best interests at heart. "Emotionally Abused" should have respect for her mother and be thankful for the many things she has.

- MONTANA TEEN DEAR ABBY: After we

read the letter from "Emotionally Abused," my brother and I were laughing to the point of tears! I would like to say the following to her: Our mom makes my brother (who's also 15) and me go to church every Sunday AND Wednesday. Mom home-schools us, thus making her teacher, principal and mother all in one. I'll be 17 in January and I still can't date.

Mom checks my computer regularly, and I'm not allowed to go to chat rooms. My brother and I have to set the table and eat with her every night. As for visiting Dad, I wish we could see ours every week. Unfortunately, he's deployed overseas.

In conclusion: DEAL WITH IT! Your mom isn't being unreasonable; she's looking out for you. Mothers like yours are few and far between. What hurts you, hurts her. If she didn't love you, she wouldn't act the way she does. Abby's right when she says one day you'll look back and thank her. My brother and I already thank ours.

IF JANUARY 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and the beginning of March you should not make any crucial changes or decisions that could affect your position, finances, or business expectations. Relax and enjoy a vacation or romantic getaway in the first half of February, when your capacity for enjoyment and amorous amusement is at a high level. Take notes because you may be stirred to new heights by your fantasies. April is your month to shine and when your judgment and ability to plan well for the future is in tiptop shape. Count on the universe to bring an easing of restrictions. You may receive a golden job opportunity or bask in the limelight for a job well done.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Act on sound principles. You may be surrounded by people who know how to adroitly handle business matters or possess plenty of street smarts. This might be a good time to play follow the leader.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Intelligent ideas can act as a lifeboat. Cherish inspirations that give you a sneak preview of fascinating alternatives. Share your hopes and dreams with someone who will likely share your future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Never cry over the cryptic. It is possible that whatever is kept secret or blocked from your view is for your own good. It is time for you to understand that sometimes it is better if you don't understand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are not at a loss for words, but you know that in some situations, the less said, the better. It is a good time to voice your inner musings because you might become a muse for someone in need.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your word is as good as a contract. Optimism can pave the way for a better financial health. A promise that affects your income will be fulfilled or the repayment of a debt will occur in a timely manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ideas are like crackers; they can get stale over time. Situations that have come to your notice should be investigated while they are fresh in your mind. Discus plans to achieve your longterm goals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Only the shadow knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men. You don't need to play cloak and dagger with the people you deal with today. Your suspicions are very likely to be proved baseless.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A lot of twisting and turning solves a Rubik's Cube. A knack for handling intrigues and secrets can put you in the driver's seat. Break the code; unravel a mystery that has haunted you in the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get out the sour cream and chives. Your socalled half-baked ideas might actually be ready to serve. This could be good day to ask for feedback from experts and accomplished companions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Resourcefulness widens your reach. You can examine your financial situation and make key decisions that benefit your family. This is a good time to ask for advice or to make plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adapt to philosophical principles. A sage adviser might give you an inspiring idea that you can put to good use. In the midst of striving for material things, an act of compassion will alter the results.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Concentrate on promoting positive thoughts. If you have faith in the future, the future will reward you by having faith in you. Someone may give you sterling advice today, but it is up to you to follow it.
