Task Force Endorses Creating Health Exchange

An 11-1 vote put an interim legislative committee's approval on a draft bill for Idaho's health insurance exchange.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Idaho is one step closer to setting up a health insurance exchange.

On Friday, the Health Care Task Force, an interim legislative committee, voted to endorse a draft of legislation that would establish a state-run, market-driven health insurance exchange for small businesses and individuals. The exchange is a provision of the federal Affordable Care Act; if the state doesn't set one up, the federal government will establish one on its behalf.

The new draft contains only minor changes to previous versions, including adding a paragraph that definies the board's authority to enter into contracts with the Idaho Department of Insurance and Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for staff and services like technical support and provision enforcement.

It's the same legislation that had been presented to the task force several times, said task force co-chairman Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, after the meeting.

Cameron, an insurance agent, said that while he would prefer not having an exchange, setting up one through the state is better than letting the federal government define Idaho's system. "I think it's a good framework, and it allows Idaho to maintain control of its own destiny," Cameron said.

After clarifying confusion over how much control the state would have over defining qualifying health care plans, the task force voted 11-1 to endorse the bill.

DRUG LIMITS HIT HOME

FDA restrictions mean a common antibiotic won't lose its potency, but bring problems for local farmers and veterinarians.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When federal drug regulators announced their new restrictions on a common antibiotic used on livestock and small animals, Chuck Schabacker cringed.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg," said the seasoned veterinarian while shaking his head. "This has the potential to be a dangerous slippery slope."

As of Wednesday, a medicine known as cephalosporin can only be used for what its label allows — in most cases, a small amount can only be dispensed for pneumonia. Before, vets, ranchers and farmers were allowed to use the drug in larger doses or in medical situations not listed on the label's directions.

The Food and Drug Administration decided to change the medicine's use to minimize the potential of antibiotic resistance. Cephalosporin is used in humans in life-threatening situations, but with its increased use in animals, federal officials said the bugs it targets could build up resistance to its medical treatment.

The restriction will impact the Magic Valley, which has seen an abundant increase of dairy farms over the years.

Those in favor of the new rule argue this is an important step to restrict the overuse of antibiotics in animals that humans eat.

"We applaud FDA's move," said Laura Rogers, project director of the Pew Campaign on Human Health and Industrial Farming, in a statement. "This

Rupert Father, Daughter Found Alive after Desert Search

Rescuers located Matthew Robert Williams and his 4-year-old daughter after he was able to find cell service in a remote stretch of Minidoka County.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

KIMAMA • A Rupert man and his 4-year-old daughter left the Minidoka County desert Friday cold and a little ragged, but alive after spending the night in a cave and walking nearly a dozen miles before being rescued.

Matthew Robert Williams, 29, and his daughter, Taylor, were found at about 4:30 p.m. Friday after their vehicle became stranded in the desert on Thursday.

Minidoka County Sheriff

Kevin Halverson said they were "very cold and scraped up but in good condition" when they were found northeast of the Laidlaw airstrip, about 20 miles north of Rupert. They were taken by air ambulance from the airstrip to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Halverson said rescuers were able to give the pair some water and warm them up a bit before the air ambulance arrived.

Searchers were able to locate Williams after he reached a site where his cellphone received service and he was able to make a call, the sheriff said.

At about 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Williams had placed a call to relatives after the father and daughter became stranded and left their vehicle, Halverson said.

Sheriff's deputies and search teams were called out at about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and searched through the night, assisted by teams from Lincoln County, Jerome County and Blaine County.

One airplane and two helicopters joined the ground search on Friday.

By Friday afternoon several local ranchers and hunters had also joined in the search, Halverson said.

UTAH MAN TO FACE VEHICULAR MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL IN JEROME

JEROME • From his side mirror, Jeffrey Bacon saw a woman get out of her car and open the hatch to her Lexus. A few seconds later, he looked again and saw a bright red tractor-trailer rig coming toward him, and fast.

"It exploded, it felt like in the car," he said, when the truck hit on June 28, 2011.

Bacon was one of several witnesses who spoke at a preliminary hearing in Jerome County 5th District Magistrate Court for the case against Byrus Gatewood, a 47-year-old man from West Valley, Utah.

Gatewood was driving the Volvo semitrailer that crashed into Bacon's vehicle, a Kia driven by an 80-year-old Sun Valley resident, and Dayle Fowler, the Hailey woman who was standing behind her own sport utility vehicle. Fowler, 62, was Could My Baby Have RSV?

My 6-month-old son has had respiratory issues for the past three days. I've heard a lot about RSV, could it be that?

— Sandy, Hagerman

Answered by Dr. Amber Fort, St. Luke's Clinic, Pediatrics/Neonatology:

RSV can certainly be the cause of respiratory issues in your 6-month-old. RSV stands for "respiratory syncytial virus." RSV tends to be seasonal, with outbreaks starting in the fall and running into early spring. RSV is very contagious, and can spread quickly through a crowded household, daycare, or workplace. It travels person-to-person from droplets of people who have it by coughing, sneezing, shaking hands, or other contact with a toy or even a doorknob that someone with RSV has used. Symptoms usually appear within 5 days after coming in contact with the virus. Though it can occur in people of all ages, adults and older children have much milder symptoms compared to babies.

RSV is the most common germ-causing respiratory infections in infants and young children. Adults and older children usually only have cold-like symptoms such as congestion and cough with or without fever. Infants less than 1 year old can have more severe symptoms, including difficulty breathing, severe congestion, shortness of breath, or wheezing. RSV is treated with supportive care; antibiotics are ineffective. Mild infections go away by themselves.

The babies at highest risk for RSV include those who were born prematurely; babies in daycare or who live in crowded conditions, especially with school-aged siblings; or those exposed to tobacco smoke. The highest risk for very severe infections is in premature babies with chronic lung disease, infants with certain forms of heart disease, or babies whose immune systems don't work very well. Some infants may need hospital admission for oxygen and fluids, and, for very high-risk infants, even a ventilator.

If your child is not high-risk, the virus will most likely run its course, but it is important to call your baby's doctor if breathing difficulties appear.

A simple way to prevent RSV is good handwashing and insisting that others wash their hands before playing with or touching your baby. People who are coughing, sneezing, or who have runny noses should not kiss or love on your little one. High-risk babies should not be taken into crowded places and tobacco smoke exposure should be avoided.

restriction is a victory for human health, as it will help ensure we can still rely on cephalosporins to treat life-threatening infections today and in the future."

However, many people don't understand how antibiotics are used or monitored on a farm, said Tony Vander Hulst, who owns 5,500 dairy cows in Wendell.

Vander Hulst's employees use antibiotics at least once a day on his farm. He said that the medicine is only used on sick cows. The sick cows are kept in a separate barn and they are tested before rejoining the other healthy livestock.

"Antibiotics are regulated," he said. "Every step is checked to make sure the product is safe. Farmers want to follow protocol because our product is at stake. We want people to buy it."

Schabacker understands why officials would be afraid of the drug but opposes the new restriction.

He said the drug often helps an animal recover faster than other antibiotics and doesn't remain in the animal's system for a long time.

"Antibiotics keep costs down," he said. "If we can't use antibiotics then we'll see increased death loss in animals and increased cost of supplies. It would be very difficult to be in this business without antibiotics."

committee chairwoman Rep. Janice McGeachin, R-Idaho Falls, voted against it after declaring her support for a health care exchange, but not this particular legislation.

Senator Tim Corder, R-Mountain Home, and Senator John McGee, R-Caldwell, were absent for the vote.

The bill will now be assigned to committees in the House and Senate.

Cameron wasn't sure which committees would see the legislation. On the House side, it may end up in the Business Committee, which handles insurance.

"That's for (House Speaker Lawrence Denney) to decide," Cameron said.

Story Failed to Finish

An Associated Press story about cuts to federal defense spending proposed by President Obama inadvertently ended mid-sentence in Friday's paper. The incomplete sentence read as follows:

"In about every major war or defense speech Obama hits themes intended to resonate with American voters — mainly, that the United States is turning a page from two wars, and that any nation-building will focus on improving the United States, not strategic allies abroad."

2 Members of Wendell Library Board Ousted

BY BLAIR KOCH

For the Times-News

WENDELL • The first official business for the Wendell City Council in 2012 was shaking up the library board, with both Executive Director Jan Gooding and Board Member Rosalie Eberhard removed from their respective posts on Thursday.

The meeting began on a light tone, with a plaque given to Ilene Rounsefell, who had served on the council since 2004 but did not seek re-election last fall. Former Councilman Barry Brown also received a plaque as thanks for his years on the council, though he was not in attendance.

"We'll miss your historic perspective," Kent Bates, who was elected council president by the newly minted council, told Rounsefell.

After taking the oath of office, freshly elected councilmen Don Dunn and Michael Winmill, both winning two-year terms in November, tried sitting back in the audience.

They were encouraged behind the council chamber desk by City Treasurer Deb Gibbs, who said, "You're going to work now boys," while an audience of about 50 residents giggled.

Soon after settling into their high-backed leather office chairs, the tone turned serious and the council turned to the library board business.

Bates, the council/library liaison, explained that they were "revisiting an old vote with the new council."

In July, the council held a vote on ousting Gooding and Eberhard but the move gridlocked, with Rounsefell and Brown voting against and Bates and Councilman Jason Houser voting in favor. Another board member considered for removal later resigned.

The council took the matter under consideration after an outpouring of complaints from residents and library patrons about how the board conducted its business.

Mayor Brad Christopherson supported the board removals as a fresh start for the library.

"This is clearing out a small group of people that ran everything ... I can't go another two years. I won't," he said Thursday.

After breaking into a short closed-door session, the council resumed its regular meeting to vote on what Christopherson called "un-appointments." The removal of both Gooding and Eberhard was unanimously approved by the council.

The library still has a functioning board, although two additional volunteers are being sought.

Its newest member is resident Stephanie Green, whose appointment was unanimously supported by the council. She joins residents Brianna Lowe and Octavio Saldaña on the library board. Both were appointed in November.

Gooding and Eberhard did not attend Thursday's meeting. Gooding didn't return calls for comment Friday, and Eberhard couldn't be reached.

CASSIA CO. DEPUTY FACES BATTERY CHARGE

Jarrold Adam Thompson, 44, is accused of attacking his daughter's boyfriend.

BY LAURIE WELCH

lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • A Cassia County sheriff's deputy is charged with misdemeanor battery after allegedly shoving down his daughter's boyfriend and pushing his thumb into the man's eye socket.

According to court records, Deputy Jarrod Adam Thompson, 44, was charged after the case was turned over by the sheriff's office to Idaho State Police for investigation. Melissa Moody, deputy attorney general for the state, has been named as special prosecuting attorney in the case.

Thompson pleaded not guilty to the charge in September.

A jury trial has been scheduled for 8:30 a.m., Feb. 2, in Cassia County 5th District Magistrate Court.

Cassia County Undersher-iff George Warrell said he could not confirm whether Thompson has been placed on administrative leave, citing that the matter is a personnel issue.

Warrell said the department has policies in place dealing with officers who receive a criminal conviction, but he said he is not certain what action, if any, would be taken against an officer for a misdemeanor conviction.

"Any discipline would be based on a review of the facts after conviction," Warrell said.

pronounced dead at the scene.

Gatewood will now face a jury trial as Judge Thomas H. Borresen found the state had enough evidence to move forward, proving he showed gross negligence while driving.

Jerome County Deputy Prosecutor Sandra Bambang called as witnesses several Idaho State Police troopers who responded to the scene of the accident.

Each trooper testified the accident occurred in a clearly marked construction zone, on a clear day with unlimited visibility. There were multiple signs, they said, alerting drivers the speed was lowered to 45 miles per hour, flaggers were ahead and to be prepared to stop.

ISP Cpl. Andrew Hitt testified Gatewood's personal and work cellphones were checked and he had not been using them before the crash. Gatewood also volunteered a blood sample that showed he was not under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Patrol Sgt. Kent Oliver testified Gatewood told him he had looked down to adjust his radio. But cross-examination by Gatewood's attorney, Charles Peterson, revealed that in Gatewood's written statement he wrote he had looked down for a second prior to the crash, but wrote nothing about adjusting his radio.

Trooper Troy Debie reported to the scene to reconstruct the accident. According to his calculations using tire marks and the distance Fowler's Lexus traveled after impact, Gatewood's truck was moving at 63.7 miles per hour, much faster than the 45 mph speed limit, when he hit the SUV.

Peterson said his client did everything right once he realized the cars in front of him were stopped. Gatewood hit the brakes and steered to the right, attempting to avoid hitting other vehicles.

Gatewood was not deliberately indifferent to the health and safety of the people ahead of him, Peterson said.

Deliberately speeding in a construction zone and failing to heed the warning signs prove Gatewood's negligence, Bambang countered.

Borresen agreed, stating the state had met its burden of proof and it will be up to a jury to decide if Gatewood's driving was reckless or merely inattentive.

Gatewood will be arraigned in district court on Feb. 6.

ALLEGED METH TRAFFICKER FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Jerome woman accused of selling meth on two occasions to a confidential Idaho State Police informant failed to appear at a preliminary hearing in Twin Falls County 5th District Court Friday, and a bench warrant is now out for her arrest.

Sara Beth Haffner, 28, was charged with two counts of trafficking methamphetamine after she and another woman, Bryann Lemmons, 33, allegedly sold meth to the ISP informant in October and December 2011.

Lemmons' preliminary hearing was also scheduled for Friday but was continued until Jan. 27.

After the second alleged sale at about 1:30 p.m. Dec. 6, a Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy stopped the vehicle the informant and Haffner were in and took Haffner into custody. Police say the informant received 27.4 grams of meth from Haffner, while Haffner was carrying another 1.1 grams of meth. Police say a $50 bill in Haffner's possession also matched one they had given the informant to make the purchase with.

Police say Haffner was essentially a middleman between the informant and Lemmons.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls woman accused of abducting her 4-year-old son from the boy's father's home will face a jury trial.

A preliminary hearing was held Friday in the case against Stefanie Contreras, 29, in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Contreras was charged with custodial interference, conspiracy to commit child custody interference and burglary after she and three others entered the father's Pierce Street home to take the child.

It was alleged one man fired a single shot in the direction of the father before the group fled.

Contreras' next hearing in the case is set for Jan. 17.

EX-OTTER AIDE LOBBIES FOR IDAHO POWER

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho Power Co. gained more lobbying might from inside government, as another of the governor's former chiefs of staff registered to become a paid lobbyist for the state's biggest utility.

Jason Kreizenbeck, who quit as Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's top aide in October, will lobby the Legislature and his former boss. His predecessor, former chief of staff Jeff Malmen, is also an Idaho Power lobbyist.

Unlike more than half of states, Idaho has no revolving door restrictions that force legislators or government employees to undergo a waiting period before lobbying former colleagues.

Minority Democrats said Kreizenbeck's move underscores their interest in passing such restrictions, though Idaho Republicans have been reluctant to get on board.

"It's to keep people from going from the governor's office to Idaho Power, and immediately calling the governor's office and talking to people who used to work for him," said House Minority Leader John Rusche, D-Lewiston.

Malmen said Friday that Kreizenbeck would abide by Idaho laws requiring him to register with the secretary of state and make relevant financial disclosures.

"Energy issues are important to us and our customers. We want to make sure they are well represented," said Malmen, Idaho Power's vice president for public affairs.

Kreizenbeck quit Otter's office in October to join former legislator Skip Smyser's lobbying firm. Along with Idaho Power, other clients include Correction Corp. of America and drugmaker Merck Sharp and Dohme.

Kreizenbeck referred questions to Malmen.

Kreizenbeck headed Otter's staff since 2007, a period in which the Republican governor was deeply involved in energy policy, including a fierce 2011 debate over whether Idaho should extend a tax break for alternative energy developers. Idaho Power had a seat at the negotiating table.

The tax break failed in the Senate.

In 2012, Idaho Power figures again to be deeply involved with energy policy. Over the summer, state officials updated Idaho's long-term energy plan, which among other things dumped support for tax incentives for wind energy. Idaho Power has complained about too many wind projects and will be monitoring the plan's progress through the Legislature to attempt to block any provisions to which it objects.

Kreizenbeck and Malmen aren't the only state officials moving quickly from government to lobbying.

In late 2011, seven-term state Sen. Joe Stegner, R-Lewiston, quit the Legislature to lobby for the University of Idaho, where he'll try to convince his former colleagues to support the Moscow school's budget request. Shad Priest, deputy director of the Idaho Department of Insurance, became the top lobbyist for insurer Regence BlueShield of Idaho on Aug. 15.

Over the last half-decade, numerous former legislators or staffers of Otter and former Govs. Dirk Kempthorne and Jim Risch became lobbyists or switched to companies with government business.

In Montana, public officers must wait a year before working for an employer that will take direct advantage of their government experience.

California officials face similar restrictions, as do those from Alabama, Hawaii, Kentucky and at least 12 other states.

Peggy Kerns, director of the National Conference of State Legislatures' Center for Ethics in Government since 1999, said states that have adopted such rules did so largely to curb the appearance that officials could inappropriately cash in on their public posts.

But Kerns said other states have opted not to follow suit, concluding the public-policy knowledge of legislators or officials makes them ideal candidates to become lobbyists and bring valuable experience to bear on complex matters without abusing their positions.

"Public officials know the issues, they know the process, so they're well suited to become lobbyists, which is an honorable profession," Kerns said from her Denver office. "If the public in Idaho feels this is an issue, then the public should speak out. Evidently, that has not been a problem in Idaho, or they would have already had a law."

Idaho Republicans who control the state House and Senate have been reluctant to support cooling-off periods for officials, for fear restrictions will limit employment opportunities for people with demonstrated integrity.

Ron Paul the Favorite at Idaho Straw Poll

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • Ron Paul ran away with 43 percent of the vote Friday evening at the Idaho Republican Party's Presidential Straw Poll.

A fundraiser for the party held in Boise, participants paid $30 each for the chance to vote for the Republican presidential candidate of their choice. Results were non-binding on Idaho's actual presidential selection this year.

Paul secured 173 of 399 votes cast. Mitt Romney placed second, while Newt Gingrich came in third.

The evening raised $13,000 for the Idaho Republican Party, Executive Director Jonathan Parker said.

Paul supporters showed up in droves Friday, including a group from Twin Falls and Gooding counties. They had a number of reasons for their support: Paul's plan to protect Social Security, his anti-abortion and anti-war stances, and his unwavering political views.

"He's the only one that makes any sense at all with foreign politics," said Fred Carter of Gooding.

Idaho Republicans will actually select who will represent their party in the race for president during statewide caucuses on March 6.

White House Defends Core of Health Care Overhaul

BY MARK SHERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration defended the health care overhaul in a filing Friday with the Supreme Court that calls the law an appropriate response to a “crisis in the national health care market.”

The administration filed a written submission in the high court’s biggest case this term, with the potential to affect President Barack Obama’s bid for re-election.

The government called on the court to uphold the core requirement that individuals buy insurance or pay a penalty. One federal appeals court struck down the so-called individual mandate as exceeding Congress’ power under the Constitution. But two other federal appeals courts upheld the law and agreed with the administration’s argument that Congress was well within its power to adopt that requirement.

Florida and 25 other states, as well as the National Federation of Independent Business, told the court in separate briefs that if the justices strike down the individual requirement, they should invalidate the rest of the law as well. Thirty-six Republican senators echoed the states’ argument in their own filing.

The law is aimed at extending health insurance coverage to more than 30 million previously uninsured people and would, by 2019, leave just 5 percent of the population uninsured, compared with about 17 percent today, according to the Congressional Budget Office. About half of the increase would come from the individual requirement; the rest would come from an expansion of Medicaid and other provisions.

The health care law has attracted intense opposition from Republicans, including the party’s presidential candidates, all of whom have vowed to repeal it if elected. The individual insurance

NBC Planning Show for Betty White’s 90th Birthday

Betty White says her plans for her upcoming 90th birthday might include “a little vodka on the rocks.” The tireless actress’s big day on Jan. 17 seems to be exciting others more than her. NBC is airing a birthday special for White the day before and has picked up a “Candid Camera”-like prank show featuring senior citizens called “Betty White’s Off Their Rockers.” “I didn’t accomplish anything,” White said Friday. “It just came up on me. I’m blessed with good health.” NBC has not yet put “Off Their Rockers,” which White would host, on the schedule. White said she’s on hand to make sure producers don’t make any of the humor mean-spirited. In most of the cases, young people are the butt of the show’s jokes.

Debate Doubleheader for N.H., While S.C. Looms Large

MANCHESTER, N.H. • Despite this weekend’s debate doubleheader in New Hampshire, Mitt Romney’s rivals all but conceded defeat Friday in the state’s primary next week, looking instead to South Carolina as their best chance to slow his march to the Republican presidential nomination.

Romney campaigned in both states, prominent party leaders by his side, President Barack Obama on his mind.

Giving no ground when the government reported the creation of 200,000 new jobs in December, Romney said America deserves better than the economic results Obama has delivered. “Thirty-five consecutive months of unemployment above 8 percent is no cause for celebration,” he said in a written statement.

Republican rivals Rick Santorum and Newt Gingrich were no more inclined to applaud Obama for the drop in unemployment to its lowest level in nearly three years. But they had other worries, including a new survey that suggested Romney’s narrow victory this week in Iowa’s caucuses has sent his support soaring in South Carolina.

The three men share a debate stage Saturday night and again Sunday morning with the other three surviving contenders, Texas Rep. Ron Paul, Texas Gov. Rick Perry and former Utah Gov. Jon Huntsman.

Ordinarily, the week between lead-off Iowa and New Hampshire is one of the most intense of the entire president campaign. That hasn’t been as true this year in New Hampshire, given Romney’s four years as governor of next-door Massachusetts, his numerous campaign trips here and the reaffirming victory in Iowa. With only three days remaining until the first-in-the-nation primary,

Jobs Rate Gives Obama Positive Plot Line

BY JIM KUHNHENN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The promising drop in unemployment on Friday looks like a job-security bonus for President Barack Obama as well, undercutting Republicans’ assertions that his economic policies have failed. The president himself heralded the news with his most confident assessment yet.

“We’re starting to rebound,” he declared. “We’re moving in the right direction.”

It’s still 10 months until Election Day, and while the narrative is positive for Obama now, the economy could still turn sour again. The Republicans who want his job were giving him no credit on Friday, and Rick Santorum even suggested hiring was improving because business owners figured Obama was on his way out.

But December’s 8.5 percent jobless rate — down from 8.7 in November and 9 percent in October — gives Obama a positive story line through the Republican presidential primaries in January and underscores other bright spots emerging on the economic scene for his yearlong fight for re-election.

More good economic news: The average workweek lengthened, average hourly pay rose and the length of time people spent unemployed also declined. To some economists the data indicated the economy was approaching “escape velocity” — the space age term to describe the ability of a recovery to sustain itself and break away from a recession’s gravitational pull.

BOMBING IN SYRIAN CAPITAL OF DAMASCUS KILLS 25

BEIRUT • A bomb exploded Friday at a busy Damascus intersection, killing 25 people and wounding dozens in the second major attack in the Syrian capital in as many weeks, officials said, vowing to respond to further security threats with an “iron fist.”

The government blamed “terrorists,” saying a suicide bomber had blown himself up in the crowded Midan district. But the country’s opposition demanded an independent investigation, accusing forces loyal to the Syrian regime of being behind the bombing to tarnish a 10-month-old uprising against President

Bashar Assad.

“Is there anything worse than these crimes?” said Majida Jomaa, a 30-year-old housewife who ran to the streets after hearing the explosion around 11 a.m. “Is this freedom?”

It was impossible to determine the exact target of the blast, but a police bus was riddled with shrapnel and blood was splattered on its seats, according to Syrian TV video and a government official. Blood also stained the street, which was littered with shattered glass.

The bomber “detonated himself with the aim of killing the largest number of people,” Interior Minister Mohammed Shaar told reporters. State media said most of the dead were civilians but security forces were also among them.

U.S. Redefines Rape; Adds Men, Others as Victims

BY PETE YOST
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration on Friday expanded the FBI’s more than eight-decade-old definition of rape to count men as victims for the first time and to drop the requirement that victims must have physically resisted their attackers.

The new definition will increase the number of people counted as rape victims in FBI statistics, but it will not change federal or state laws or alter charges or prosecutions.

The White House said the change was not motivated by the recent Penn State child sex-abuse scandal. The expansion has been long awaited because policymakers and lawmakers use crime statistics to allocate resources for prevention and victim assistance.

Senior White House adviser Valerie Jarrett called the change a “very, very important step.” The issue got top-level White House attention starting last July, when Vice President Joe Biden raised it at a Cabinet meeting.

Biden, author of the Violence Against Women Act when he was in the Senate, said the new definition is a victory for women and men “whose suffering has gone unaccounted for over 80 years.” Calling rape a “devastating crime,” the vice president said, “We can’t solve it unless we know the full extent of it.”

Since 1929, the FBI has defined rape as the carnal knowledge of a female, forcibly and against her will. The revised definition covers any gender of victim or attacker and includes instances in which the victim is incapable of giving consent because of the influence of drugs or alcohol or because of age. Physical resistance is not required. The Justice Department said the new definition mirrors the majority of state rape statutes now on the books.

JORAN VAN DER SLOOT HINTS HE’LL PLEAD GUILTY

LIMA, Peru • Joran van der Sloot appears ready to accept responsibility for the killing of a Peruvian woman five years to the day after the disappearance in Aruba of U.S. teen Natalee Holloway, for which he remains the prime suspect.

The Dutch citizen sought and received more time to decide how to plead as his trial opened Friday in the May 30, 2010, murder of 21-year-old Stephany Flores, whom he met at a Lima casino.

He said he was inclined to confess but doesn’t accept the aggravated murder charges the prosecution seeks.

The presiding magistrate of the three-judge panel, Victoria Montoya, said the trial would resume Jan. 11.

When asked moments earlier by Montoya to enter a plea, Van der Sloot answered in Spanish:

“I want to give a sincere confession but I don’t agree with all the aggravating factors the prosecutor is putting on me. Can I have more time to think about this?”

The 24-year-old Dutch citizen had television advertising was relatively modest, with Paul, Romney and a committee supporting Huntsman the only entities spending significant sums.

Paul did lash out at Santorum after flying into the state. "He brags about being for a balanced budget amendment but never did anything about it," Paul said of Santorum's time in the U.S. Senate. "He voted four or five times to raise the debt ceiling. He voted to double the size of the Department of Education."

Campaigning in Concord, Huntsman was asked whether the other candidates had "clawed their way to the right," leaving him as the centrist in the race. He called himself a realist. "We have to draw from ideas that are doable and not so outlandishly stupid that they create a lot of political fighting and finger-pointing and never, ever in 1,000 years are going to get done," he said.

Perry unveiled a new commercial for stations in South Carolina, as did a group that backs Santorum.

Perry stresses his upbringing as the son of tenant farmers and mentions his time as a pilot in the Air force, years working on the family farm with his father and his marriage to his high school sweetheart. "The values I learned served me well as governor of Texas and will continue to guide me as president," the ad says.

The pro-Santorum spot calls the former Pennsylvania senator "the principled conservative ... the conservative we can trust."

That was a relatively polite attempt to distinguish Santorum from Gingrich, Perry and the others vying to emerge as Romney's chief rival, and from the former Massachusetts governor as well.

Santorum himself was more blunt. "The only way Republicans lose is if we screw this up and nominate another moderate who has taken multiple positions on every major issue of our time," he wrote supporters in a fundraising appeal.

The former senator finished a surprisingly strong second in the Iowa caucuses, coming within eight votes of victory. But he has little time to try and convert that into a campaign organization in New Hampshire, and some of his campaign events have turned testy.

In a school auditorium in Dublin on Friday, he faced tough questions about his positions on contraception, gays and lesbians in the military and earmarks in the federal budget.

"I know some people have been hammering away at me as an irresponsible spender," he said. "The idea that because someone earmarked, that means they're an irresponsible spender is just absurd."

He blamed Sen. John McCain, a Romney supporter, for stirring up controversy over earmarks, the designation of federal spending for specific uses or projects. And he said the Arizona senator "ran to the hills" when it came to the issue of making changes in Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid.

McCain paid him no mind. "Earmarks are the gateway to corruption," he said in Conway, S.C., as he and South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley campaigned with Romney. "Rick Santorum sponsored earmark after earmark."

McCain told the crowd that South Carolina Republicans have the ability to settle the nomination race. "If Mitt Romney wins here, he will be the next president of the United States," he said.

Obama and the Democrats will test that proposition, strenuously. But there was little dispute that a victory by Romney in the first-in-the-South primary, in a state with a strong evangelical vote, would make it difficult for his Republican rivals to stop him from winning the party's nomination.

requirement has been a particular lightning rod because it forces people to buy a product from a private insurer whether they want to or not, or pay a penalty for failing to do so.

This provision was struck down by a divided panel of the Atlanta-based 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the only appeals court that has ruled against the law among the four appeals courts that have considered it. One appeals court held that it was too soon to rule on the law.

But the administration said the requirement falls within Congress' power under the Constitution's Commerce Clause because health care is an issue of supreme national importance that consumes nearly 18 percent of the U.S. economy.

People may lack insurance, but they still get health care, and the costs get passed on the insured, the administration said.

"Congress found that the cost of tens of billions of dollars in uncompensated care provided to the uninsured is passed on to insured consumers, raising average annual family premiums by more than $1,000," the administration said.

The individual mandate also goes hand-in-hand with another part of the law that prohibits insurers from denying coverage to people with existing medical conditions or hiking their premiums, the administration said.

Separately, the insurance industry reinforced this point to the court, arguing that it needs the larger pool of people so that it can afford to cover people regardless of their medical history.

America's Health Insurance Plans and the BlueCross BlueShield Association — major trade groups — said in their court papers that if the individual requirement is struck down, the ban on denial of coverage based on pre-existing medical conditions must also go. Otherwise, premiums will rise and healthy people will drop coverage. The groups did not take a position on the constitutionality of the law.

Additional briefs due later in January and next month will address other aspects of the law. A decision should come by late June.

repeatedly shaken his head as the prosecutor described for the judges how Van der Sloot allegedly "brutally" beat and strangled the victim in his Lima hotel room, intending to rob her.

Van der Sloot long ago admitted to police that he killed Flores, a business administration student.

But he claimed in that confession that it was in a fit of rage after she discovered on his laptop Van der Sloot's connection to Holloway's disappearance on Aruba, the Caribbean island where he was raised. Police forensic experts have disputed that version of events.

Defense attorney Jose Luis Jimenez told The Associated Press before the hearing that there was a 70 percent chance Van der Sloot would plead guilty, which could help him get a reduced sentence.

Prosecutors are seeking a 30-year prison sentence on murder and theft charges, arguing the killing was premeditated and that Van der Sloot attempted to cover it up, fleeing to Chile, where he was captured days later.

Jimenez contends his client was in a state of emotional distress when he killed Flores and would "seek to reduce the charge from first-degree murder to manslaughter," which carries a prison sentence of from eight to 20 years.

"He has accepted the murder," Jimenez said after the hearing, but not with the "aggravating factors of cruelty and ferocity."

If he pleads guilty at next Wednesday's hearing, the three judges will have 48 hours to sentence him, court officials say.

As Obama's potential rivals fight their way toward the Republican nomination by trying to distinguish themselves from each other and from Obama, the news on jobs dilutes a central theme of their candidacies — that Obama has failed to turn the economy around.

More Americans now expect the economy to improve this year than to get worse, according to a recent Associated Press-GfK poll. At the same time, Obama is being held more accountable for what happens.

Obama has been loath to crow about any positive economic indicators, and White House economists have repeatedly stressed they do not read much into a single month's report.

So it was notable on Friday that the president, while offering the customary cautions, could barely contain his optimism. Three times during brief remarks to staff at the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau he said the economy or the country was "moving in the right direction." December marked the fourth straight month of decline in the jobless rate.

"A lot of families are still having a tough time. A lot of small businesses are still having a tough time," he said. "But we're starting to rebound. We're moving in the right direction. We have made real progress."

Still, Obama is likely to face the highest unemployment rate on Election Day of any president since Franklin Delano Roosevelt. A key to his re-election will be whether the economy can sustain the encouraging hiring trend. Time and again, David Axelrod, his top political adviser, has said the actual unemployment number is not as important as the trajectory.

Consider Jimmy Carter, who lost his re-election bid to Ronald Reagan as unemployment climbed from 6 percent in October 1979 to 7.5 percent in October of the 1980 election year. Likewise, George H.W. Bush lost to Bill Clinton in 1992 in the midst of rising unemployment, which went from 6.9 percent September 1991 to 7.6 percent in September 1992.

Reagan managed to get re-elected in 1984 even though unemployment stood at 7.4 percent in October of that year. The difference was that his unemployment trend line had been dropping since the spring of 1983.

NASA Questions Apollo 13 Commander's Sale of List

BY CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press

MIAMI • NASA is questioning whether Apollo 13 commander James Lovell has the right to sell a 70-page checklist from the flight that includes his handwritten calculations that were crucial in guiding the damaged spacecraft back to Earth.

200,000 miles from Earth when an oxygen tank exploded on April 13, 1970, causing another tank to fail and seriously jeopardizing the three-man crew's ability to return home. Astronaut Jack Swigert famously said "Houston, we've had a problem here" after the explosion.

The document was sold by Heritage Auctions in November for more than $388,000, some 15 times its initial list price. The checklist gained great fame as part of a key dramatic scene in the 1995 film "Apollo 13" in which actor Tom Hanks plays Lovell making the calculations.

The crew was forced to move from the command ship into the attached lunar landing module for the return flight. Lovell's calculations on the checklist were key in transferring navigation data from the command craft to the lunar module.

After the sale, NASA contacted Heritage to ask whether Lovell had title to the checklist. Greg Rohan, president of Dallas-based Heritage, said Thursday the sale has been suspended pending the outcome of the inquiry. The checklist, he said, is being stored for now in the company's vault.

NASA has raised questions about title rights for three other space items Heritage had sold in the same November auction. Two were from Apollo 9 astronaut Rusty Schweikart: a lunar module identification plate that brought more than $13,000 and a hand controller that received a $22,705 bid. The space agency also targeted a fourth item, a hand glove worn by Alan Shepard during training for Apollo 14, that brought more than $19,000.

Rohan said Lovell provided a signed affidavit that he had clear title to the ring-bound checklist, which is standard procedure. Heritage does robust business in space memorabilia and this is the first time NASA has ever raised questions about ownership of its items, he added.

In an email to Heritage, NASA Deputy Chief Counsel Donna M. Shafer said there was no indication the agency had ever transferred ownership of any of the items to the astronauts.

"It's one that is near and dear to our hearts," Rohan said of the space collectibles business. "We, like a lot of people, consider these astronauts to be national heroes."

"Only NASA has the authority to clear NASA property for sale," Shafer said in the email, which was provided by NASA to The Associated Press.

The latest inquiry follows a federal lawsuit NASA filed last year in Miami against Apollo 14 astronaut Edgar Mitchell seeking return of a camera he brought back from his 1971 moon mission. That lawsuit was settled in October when Mitchell agreed to give the camera to NASA, which in turn is donating it to the National Air and Space Museum in Washington.

She said the matter has been turned over to NASA's Office of Inspector General, adding that "there is potential risk of the items being seized by the government until title issues have been resolved."

NASA spokesman Bob Jacobs said the lawsuit and Lovell inquiry do not represent an aggressive, broad new agency effort to recover space items.

In the Mitchell lawsuit, his attorney argued prior to the settlement that NASA officials told astronauts long ago they could keep certain equipment from the missions, and many such items wind up on auction house lists. A 1972 NASA memo seems to back up that claim, requiring only that the astronauts provide the agency with lists of items in their possession.

"It's a challenge to continually monitor the growing auctions community, which is usually how these items come to light," he said in an email. "This latest issue demonstrates a need to reach out to former astronauts and other former agency personnel who may have these kind of items."

Apollo 15 astronauts were reprimanded after they took unauthorized, special envelopes to the moon with stamps that were given a special postal marking shortly after their return in 1971. They had a deal with a German stamp dealer who later sold them for $1,500 each.

Lovell, 83, lives near Chicago and owns a restaurant bearing his name in Lake Forest, Ill. In an email Friday to The Associated Press, the former astronaut said he is "seeking a meeting with NASA administration to clear up this misunderstanding." He did not elaborate.

Last month, the NASA inspector general reported that since 1970, more than 500 pieces of moon rocks, meteorites, comet chunks and other space material have been stolen or gone missing. The report said NASA needs to keep better track of some 26,000 samples sent to researchers and museums or the agency runs greater risk they will be lost.

SUSPECT IN UTAH COP SHOOTING UNDER HOSPITAL GUARD

BY PAUL FOY
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • The suspect in the shooting of six Utah police officers remains under guard at an Ogden hospital awaiting likely charges, a jail official said Friday.

phone calls or an email from The Associated Press inquiring about the suspect's status on Friday. No charges were listed on the state's court system database. A day before, Smith said Stewart could face aggravated murder, an offense punishable by the death penalty if Stewart were to be convicted.

Weber County sheriff's Sgt. Nate Hutchinson remained in fair condition. Another officer, Roy Police Officer Jason VanderWarf, was released Thursday.

One of the police officers died in the shootout that left five others from a narcotics strike force wounded Wednesday. They were serving a search warrant at a house in Ogden, about 35 miles north of Salt Lake City.

"He has not been booked here, but we anticipate that," Burton said. "We would receive him from the hospital if the county attorney intends to charge him."

Also Friday, the Pentagon confirmed that while Stewart served in the U.S. Army, he never saw combat and was not in the Gulf War.

Funeral arrangements are pending for Ogden officer Jared Francom, according to a Facebook page set up for the fallen officer.

An Ogden defense lawyer who spoke to Stewart by phone Friday said he expects to be appointed the suspect's public defender.

Stewart's father has been telling reporters that his son suffered post-traumatic stress disorder from the 1990-1991 Gulf War.

Weber County jail chief Kevin Burton said two sheriff's deputies have Army veteran Matthew David Stewart under 24-hour guard at a hospital. Police have said he was shot in the raid.

"I have not seen a charging document," said the lawyer, Randy Richards, who has experience in capital cases. "I know zero about the case except what I read in the papers."

Michael Stewart, who acknowledged he has been estranged from his son, said he still believes his son suffered from anxiety and depression and may have been treating it by growing pot in his house.

Stewart's case appears to defy the norm in Utah. He has been detained but not yet arrested or charged, according to Burton. Prosecutors have 72 hours or until Saturday night to file charges or release him.

One of the officers who had been listed in critical condition was improving Friday. Ogden officer Shawn Grogan was in fair condition, McKay-Dee Hospital Center spokesman Chris Dallin said.

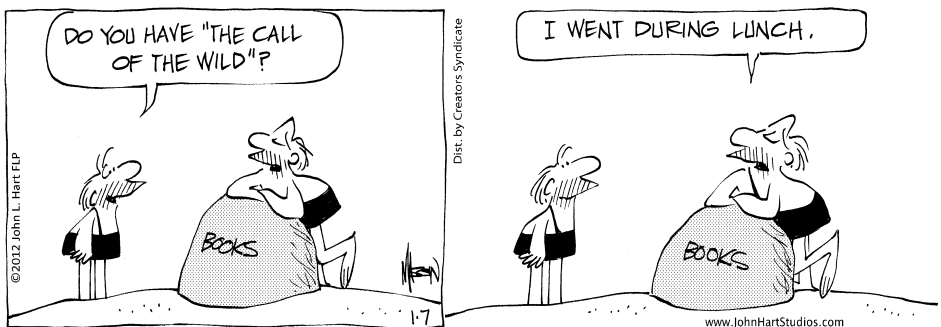

Stewart served in the Army from July 1994 to December 1998, spending a year based in Fort Bragg, N.C., and nearly three years stationed in Germany, Army records show.

Weber County Attorney Dee W. Smith did not return

Ogden officers Kasey Burrell and Michael Rounkles remained in critical condition, he said.

He held a post as a communications equipment specialist, earning an Army Achievement Medal and a National Defense Service Medal. Both are given for completing active service, although they don't indicate exceptional acts of valor.

Youth in sixth through 12th grades meet at 9 a.m.; pre-kindergarten through fifth grades meet at 10 a.m. Ascension Cafe will be at 9 a.m., with Phyllis Berg discussing the Safe Harbor ministry program. Wiggle Worship begins at 9:10 a.m. Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at both the 8 and 10 a.m. services.

Information: www.ascension.episcopalidaho.org or 733-1248. Ascension is handicap accessible.

Filer Sermon Commemorates Epiphany

FILER • Epiphany, a feast on Jan. 6 in commemoration of the coming of the Magi, will be recognized in the Rev. Carol Thompson's sermon,

"Three Kings, a king, and the King of Kings," at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at the Filer United Methodist Church on the corner of Fifth and Union streets.

Thompson will give meaning to these characters of the Christmas story and the impact they might have for our lives in 2012, the church said. Holy Communion will be observed. Fellowship time and Sunday school will be held immediately following worship.

The United Methodist Women's organization is gearing up for the new year. Those interested in becoming involved may call the church office at 326-5424. Information: 733-2629.

Methodist Church Begins New Sermon Series

TWIN FALLS • "The Genesis Project: Making a Fresh Start" is the title of a new sermon series to begin Sunday at First United Methodist Church, 360 Shoshone St. E. in Twin Falls. This series, based on the book of Genesis, will be given by the Rev. Philip Airhart at 10 a.m. each Sunday for six weeks. The first sermon is "Finding Our Place in Creation."

The Day of the Baptism of the Lord will be celebrated at worship Sunday. Sunday school for children will resume at 9 a.m.

Donated food bags will be given to Safe Harbor.

Information: www.tf-fumc.com.

Agape Ministry Announces January Meeting

GOODING • The Agape Ministry luncheon will be held at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 18 at the Lincoln Inn, 413 Main St. in Gooding.

The program is "Faith, Hope and Love." Angie Schneider of Twin Falls will share her ministry with Haitian children. She and her husband, Paul, have adopted nine children over the past few years. Angie is the daughter of the Demarays of Gooding. Special music will be presented.

Make reservations for lunch by calling Carolyn Herzinger at 934-5700 or before Jan. 15. Cost of the lunch is $8.50. The program, which begins at noon, is free to the public.

Speaker Discusses Humanism at UUF Service

TWIN FALLS • John Olsen will host the Magic Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Senior Center, 530 Shoshone St. W. His topic is "Humanism: What is It?" He will provide insight on the origins of humanism, whether humanists are atheists, what is their guiding moral code, and how humanism squares with the Ten Commandments.

Information: Ken Whiting, 734-9161.

Hansen Church Hosts Craft Times

HANSEN • The Hansen Baptist Church, 340 Main St., hosts a Craft Time from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month.

In January, participants can learn to knit, along with other kinds of crafts, beading, necklaces, earrings, etc. Anyone interested is invited to come for fun and fellowship. A potluck lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m.

Information: Eileen, 420-1320 or email to billandeileen@q.com.

Presbyterians Start Men's Breakfast Program

Kidd

E. Ave. A in Jerome.

The men's breakfast is the start of a new venture for the church. With intentions to meet monthly, the ideas for the program are food, fellowship and outreach to men in the community. The breakfast will begin at 8 a.m., with a program to follow.

This first program will feature drag racer and racing engine builder Mark Kidd, who will speak on his successful racing career as well as his experience of following Jesus Christ as his Savior. Racers For Christ National Hot Rod Association chaplain Larry Fredrickson also will speak on his racing exploits and his work at race tracks. Fredrickson, an Oregon native, is now a Magic Valley resident and is track chaplain at Boise's Firebird Raceway.

All men are welcome. Information: 324-8959 or 308-6541.

Choosing between Cherished Virtues

My young cyber friend, David, has a problem. His parents divorced when he was little. He and his brother lived with his mother in Kenya, where she worked hard to provide food, a home and family life for her boys, with precious little help or support from their father.

"Our life was hard, but there was much love in our home," David told me.

But recently, David's father has re-entered their lives. "Now he wants to be our father," David said. "He says he is sorry he left us, and he wants to be with us."

David is now 25 and is still searching for something to do with his life. His father wants to take him into his thriving business. After a lifetime of struggle and want, David's father holds out to him a glimmer of hope for a secure future. "He seems to be sincere in his desire to make things right with us," David says. "To have a job, to have a father — it is appealing."

Joseph Walker

Value Speak

But perhaps not to David's mother. She hasn't said how she feels about the sudden re-emergence of her ex-husband. But it's clear that she's at least threatened, if not outright outraged. David feels that he has to make a choice between loyalty to his mother, who has been there for him all his life, and forgiveness for his father, who may represent his hope for the future.

"I ask you for advice," he wrote. "I do not wish to offend my mother, especially not after all she has done for me. But my religion teaches me to forgive all men — including my father."

Loyalty or forgiveness — which is the greater value?

It seems to me that life's most difficult choices are not between right and wrong. For the most part, those calls are pretty easy to make. But choosing between cherished virtues puts our souls on trial.

For most of the first 22 years of our married life, my wife, Anita, was a full-time homemaker. It's the only career she ever really wanted, and she's very good at it. If I were as good at my work as she is at hers, we'd be fabulously wealthy. But I'm not and we're not, which bring us to something else Anita values: financial integrity. Very early in our married life, she took over our finances because she realized that she had married a well-intentioned man who is a complete idiot when it comes to money management. She has done a remarkable job since then of keeping us solvent and up-to-date.

It has always been important to her that we pay our obligations, and that we pay them on time. Amazingly, she was able to do just that — until about 12 years ago. She had somehow managed to get us through two years of unemployment and the loss of a major monthly freelance fee. But when our two eldest children announced that not only were they both going to be married but both weddings were going to take place within three weeks of each other — well, our financial structure, already tenuous, crumbled like a house of credit cards.

Anita had to make a choice between two things she valued. If she continued to stay home full time, we wouldn't be able to pay our obligations (including our share of two weddings). But if she went to work outside the home, she would miss important time with our three younger children. It was a tough choice between positive virtues, requiring much thought, discussion and prayer.

I'm not going to tell you what she chose. That's not the point. But I will tell you that it has worked out pretty well. We've had to make some sacrifices, and there have been some tough times. But things have a way of working out when you make values-based decisions. It's like I told David: "Trust your instincts. Listen to God speak to your heart. You'll know which choice is right."

Even when both choices are right.

VOICES OF FAITH

IN A CHAOTIC WORLD, WHAT CAN FAITH GROUPS DO?

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

Pray, Trust, Restore

The Rev. R.L. Baynham, pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church, Kansas City, Kan.: Since the beginning of time, we have been exposed to the behavior of man and his relationship with the world. Many times that behavior has been evil and mean. Today, we watch and/or listen to the events that make us cringe and feel the loss and hopelessness. There are at least three things we can do: pray, trust and restore.

The prayer suggested is intercessory. It is praying for the world in chaos, for families suffering the atrocities of evil and for the will of God in the lives of all people. I am sure most of us believe that this is already being done. It would be powerful if we could be consistent in our praying.

One of the most difficult things in this world is finding a level of trust. We have seen what greed does to people; it sets up an environment of distrust. Trust then is the ability to live in the right relationship with one's neighbor and appreciate their contribution to maintaining wholeness.

When someone fails to live or identify with the moral values of society, it becomes extremely difficult to allow them back in a place where they can repeat the same behavior. But with the grace of God, they won't repeat that behavior.

Interfaith Emphasis

Lama Chuck Stanford, Rime

Buddhist Center & Monastery, Kansas City, Mo.: There are many causes and conditions for chaos in the world. Sadly, some faith groups, themselves, cause some of the chaos in the world. We have seen fighting not only between religions, but also within religions.

Also, the rapid rise of fundamentalism threatens the religious freedom for all of us. That is why interfaith dialogue is more important now than ever. All of us face similar individual, societal and environmental challenges. Divergent faith groups working together (rather than separately) can best solve these challenges.

Many leaders of various faiths have recognized the importance of interfaith dialogue. Pope Paul II called for interfaith dialogue as a key component of Christian preparation for the Great Jubilee of the year 2000.

His Holiness the Dalai Lama has always emphasized the importance of interfaith discussion. His Holiness said, "I have for many years now engaged in interfaith dialogue and understanding with the basic belief that all the major religions of the world have the same potential to transform people into better human beings."

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

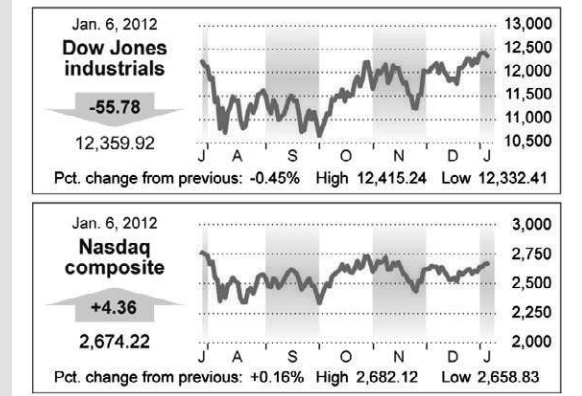

How the Major Stock Indexes Fared on Friday

NEW YORK (AP) • The stock market offered a reminder Friday that even if the U.S. job market is improving, there's plenty to worry about elsewhere in the world. The unemployment rate fell in December to 8.5 percent, the lowest level in nearly three years. Yet stocks indexes teetered between small gains and losses as traders fretted about Europe's ongoing financial drama.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 55.78 points, or 0.5 percent, to 12,359.92.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 3.25 points, or 0.3 percent, to 1,277.81.

The Nasdaq composite index rose 4.36, or 0.2 percent, to 2,674.22.

The 'CES Curse?' Gadget Show Has Poor Record

NEW YORK (AP) • The largest trade show in the Americas must be a great place to show off new products, right? Wrong. The International Consumer Electronics Show is quickly becoming a launch pad for products that fall flat.

When the annual conclave kicks off next week, organizers expect more than 140,000 people — roughly the population of Syracuse, N.Y. — to descend on Las Vegas. They will mill around 1.8 million square feet of booths and exhibits, equivalent to 31 football fields.

The 2,800 or so exhibitors are hoping to set the tone for the year by showing off tons of tablet computers, throngs of 3-D TVs and untold numbers of slim, light laptops called ultrabooks.

Job Growth Spreading to Higher-Paying Industries

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • Most of the job growth in 2011 was concentrated in industries that tend to pay low wages and skimpy benefits. But toward the end of the year, and especially in December, hiring became broader-based and included more higher-paying jobs.

That trend bodes well for the economy if it holds up.

"It's clear that the skilled end of the labor market has heated up," said Paul Ballew, chief economist at Nationwide.

Two-thirds of the 1.6 million jobs created last year were in five industries: health care; hotels and restaurants; retail; manufacturing; and temporary help. Except for manufacturing, most of the jobs in those sectors don't pay a lot.

Average hourly wages in the leisure and hospitality industry, made up mostly of hotel and restaurant workers, was $13.31 in December, for example. That compares with $23.93 in manufacturing. Average hourly retail pay was $15.97.

NATION ADDS 200,000 JOBS IN DECEMBER HIRING SURGE

BY PAUL WISEMAN AND CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Four painful years after the Great Recession struck and wiped out 8.7 million jobs, the United States may finally be in an elusive pattern known as a virtuous cycle — an escalating loop of hiring and spending.

The nation added 200,000 jobs in December in a burst of hiring that drove the unemployment rate down two notches to 8.5 percent, its lowest in almost three years, and led economists to conclude that the improvement in the job market might just last.

"There is more horsepower to this economy than most believe," said Sung Won Sohn, an economics professor at California State University, Channel Islands. "The stars are aligned right for a meaningful economic recovery?"

Unemployment dropped sharply for the least-educated Americans in 2011.

Whites, Asians and Hispanics also enjoyed better job prospects. But African-Americans lagged far behind, with their unemployment near its highest level in decades.

For workers without a high school diploma, seasonally adjusted unemployment slid from 15.1 percent to 13.8 percent. Among high school graduates with no college experience, it fell from 9.8 percent to 8.7 percent.

Unemployment among those with a college degree — an associate's, a bachelor's or more — did tick down but not as much. The rate for those with a bachelor's degree or beyond declined from 4.8 percent to 4.1 percent. Five years ago, it was just 1.8 percent.

Among whites, unemployment declined from 8.5 percent to 7.5 percent. Asians reported the lowest unemployment rate among the four identified racial groups: It slid from 7.2 percent to 6.8 percent. (Unlike for other racial categories, unemployment for Asians, a smaller group, isn't adjusted for seasonal factors.)

The rate for Hispanics fell most steeply among the racial groups, from 12.9 percent to 11 percent. But that's because a disproportionate number of Hispanics have stopped looking for work and so aren't counted as unemployed. Immigration has also declined sharply. That means there are fewer foreign-born job-seekers.

Unemployment among African-Americans was unchanged at 15.8 percent over the past year.

“Ronald Reagan got 29 percent of the votes here and ultimately he was able to become our nominee.”

Mitt Romney referring to the 1980 campaign that put Republicans in the White House. The GOP presidential hopeful brushed aside suggestions Wednesday that his share of the vote in Iowa, less than 25 percent, was a sign of weakness.

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the Murtaugh School District for receiving approval to base its teacher merit pay on a “teaching with technology” program. Fourth-through 12th-grade employees will receive bonuses for incorporating new technologies into their classroom instruction.

Introducing interactive lessons and other cutting-edge activities into the curriculum is a great way to expose both students and teachers to new ways of learning and teaching. And tying teacher bonuses to the use of technology will encourage participation in a program that will benefit all parties.

With the merits of the tech-heavy “Students Come First” education reforms still being debated, it appears Murtaugh has found an effective way to put technology to use, not just use it.

JEERS to the factors that make easy recycling such a seemingly impossible proposition for many Magic Valley citizens.

In Twin Falls, residents of mobile home parks and apartments are unable to access curbside recycling like homeowners can. The success of the city’s curbside program for homeowners has also forced the Twin Falls Kiwanis Club to discontinue its own recycling program, which ran successfully for 33 years.

Surrounding communities, meanwhile, have found it difficult to pay to implement even curbside recycling for homeowners. Towns such as Kimberly have declined the option at the ballot box, while others have no plans to implement it at all.

After so much recent progress, it’d be a shame to see the region regress on the issue. Perhaps if cities, counties and concerned citizens pool their resources, they can find a way to make keeping recyclables out of our landfill cost-effective.

CHEERS to Habitat for Humanity, all of its volunteers, contractors and financial backers involved in planning the 2012 Habitat Blitz Build.

The Blitz won’t happen until this summer. But it takes effort to organize. Because of donations of time, money and skill, two Magic Valley families will soon be the proud owners of new homes. So far, 13 local companies have volunteered to help build the homes.

Organizations like Habitat for Humanity and the people who help make them effective make our community a better place to live.

It’s not too late: To help out or donate materials, head to an informational meeting at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Magic Valley Habitat for Humanity Office, 669 Eastland Drive in Twin Falls.

THEIR VIEW

America’s New Lean Fighting Machine

The following editorial appeared in the Los Angeles Times on Friday:

Budgetary necessity may have been the mother of President Obama’s reinvention of military strategy, but that doesn’t mean the change is reckless or even imprudent. After the U.S. withdrawal from Iraq and with the winding down of the American presence in Afghanistan, it’s time for new thinking.

In an appearance Thursday at the Pentagon, Obama unveiled the recommendations of a Defense Department study group that he said would produce a military that is “agile, flexible and ready for the full range of contingencies and threats.” That would be accomplished by smaller increases in defense spending, a policy telegraphed by Obama’s 10-year budget projections for fiscal 2012, which were $105 billion less than his 2011 blueprint.

Although the need for greater austerity forms the background for the new directions proposed in the report, they are convincingly justified by its analysis of geopolitical trends. It proposes a reorientation of defense planning to China and the Middle East, noting that most European countries “are now producers of security rather than consumers of it.” It also foresees greater attention to security threats in Africa and Latin America, though there as elsewhere the United States will develop “innovative, low-cost and small-footprint approaches to achieve our security objectives, relying on exercises, rotational presence and advisory capabilities.” Finally, the report contemplates, in cautious terms, a reduction in spending on nuclear weapons, saying it’s possible that “our deterrence goals can be achieved with a smaller nuclear force, which would reduce the number of nuclear weapons in our inventory as well as their role in U.S. national security strategy.”

Students Spread Holiday Joy

Yes, we all know the good work that the Salvation Army, Toys for Tots and etc., do, but I would like to tell you about and thank a group of young people that quietly went about helping 45 homeless children and their families this Christmas season.

The Canyon Ridge High School Key Club took on the task of raising the money, shopping for, wrapping and delivering gifts to four motels in Twin Falls that house homeless families. The Twin Falls High School Key Club raised the money and provided food boxes for these families, more than 2000 items! The compassion these young folks have shown to people they don’t even know melts my heart and shows what the meaning of! Christmas is all about.

There were several adult mentors behind the scenes, guiding the groups in their choices, and I would like to thank them for caring so much for some of Twin Falls forgotten citizens. Ken Whiting, CSI Amachi Mentoring program; James Rabe, morning show host of Hot 100 FM; Sara Dorman, Canyon Ridge High School; Nicole Manwaring, Twin Falls High School; and Darla Brownfield and her grandson, Tank, for providing the filled stockings for all the children.

I apologize if I have missed anyone, it took a total team effort to get the job done, and I give each and every one of you a heartfelt thanks!

Fighting Hunger

To the Times-News:

On behalf of our board of directors, Foodbank team, volunteers and the hundreds of community partner organizations in our hunger relief network, thank you for the overwhelming support you have provided The Idaho Foodbank in 2011.

The need for free emergency food has impacted all of us in some way this past year. Your gift of time, treasure and talent is deeply appreciated by the individuals, children and families who receive emergency food assistance more than 110,000 times every month in Idaho.

You are making very real difference in your community. Thank you for entrusting The Idaho Foodbank to make the most from every contributed dollar and pound of food. Your support makes it possible for The Idaho Foodbank to fulfill our mission to end hunger in Idaho, and we are very grateful for your ongoing partnership in this effort. We wish you the best this holiday season and in the coming year!

New NBC Chief Says 'Community' Coming Back

BY DAVID BAUDER
Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. • After acknowledging that NBC had a "really bad fall," the network's entertainment chief moved swiftly Friday to assure viewers that "Community" and "Law & Order: SVU" aren't leaving.

Although the Thursday night comedy "Community" was taken off the midseason schedule, entertainment president Bob Greenblatt said that he wanted to "dispel any notion that it is quietly disappearing." He didn't say, however, when it would be back.

At a news conference, Greenblatt also aired a video clip of star Mariska Hargitay saying that she's committed to "Law & Order: SVU" through next year. She'll even get a love interest: Harry Connick Jr. has signed on for several episodes later this season.

For NBC, keeping any audience it still has is important. The fourth-place network has continued its slow decline this fall, with Sunday night football keeping its heart beating. Viewership was off 5 percent from last season, the Nielsen ratings company said.

"We had a really bad fall, worse than I had hoped for but about what I expected," Greenblatt said.

Still, he said that he hoped new shows like "The Voice," "Up All Night" and "Whitney" can provide building blocks for the future, even if they are only modest successes now.

NBC has been outspending its rivals in series development recently, following many years when the network kept such spending down. Greenblatt said NBC's new corporate owners, Comcast Corp., have shown a willingness to invest money and patience in rebuilding the network.

NBC has high hopes for the midseason series "Smash," about the competitive world of Broadway musicals. It debuts Feb. 6. Greenblatt seemingly tried to dampen expectations, given how hard it is to develop hits in network television these days.

"In this day and age, you need four or five shows to help things turn around," he said. "Smash" could be one of those. I hope it is one of those. If it isn't, we're not going to go into receivership."

Greenblatt did not address reports that NBC is interested in Ryan Seacrest as a potential replacement for Matt Lauer on the "Today" show, whose contract ends this year.

3 FREIGHT TRAINS DERAIL IN INDIANA, CARS BURN

BY TOM COYNE
Associated Press

VALPARAISO, Ind. • Three freight trains derailed in northwest Indiana on Friday, leaving several mangled train cars on their sides along the tracks and forcing nearby residents to temporarily leave home as smoke billowed from the wreckage.

Two of six crew members were taken to the hospital after the accident that happened about 2:15 p.m. in an area of rural farmland northeast of Valparaiso, Porter County Sheriff's Sgt. Larry LaFlower said. He said their injuries were not considered life-threatening.

A CSX train that had been pulling mostly empty tankers of ethanol stopped on the tracks and was rear-ended by a second train, LaFlower said. A third train on parallel tracks then came up and struck the derailed cars.

CSX said in a statement that there appeared to be no significant leaks or spills of hazardous materials, but that all loaded and empty hazardous materials cars were inspected.

JEFFREY D. NICHOLLS • THE POST-TRIBUNE • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Train wreckage still burns after three trains collided, Friday near Valparaiso, Ind. Three freight trains derailed after a collision in northwest Indiana, officials said Friday, leaving several mangled train cars on their sides along the tracks and black smoke billowing from burning tankers.

FIREBOMB FAILS TO GO OFF AT SEATTLE BANK'S ATM

BY DOUG ESSER
Associated Press

SEATTLE • Seattle police were checking surveillance video and banking records Friday in an attempt to find the person who left a firebomb under an ATM inside a foyer at a Chase bank branch.

The firebomb, which never ignited, was discovered by a couple at the cash machine. The device had two clear bottles, a lighter in the middle and was wrapped in tape and wires, Ericson Gonzales told TV and radio reporters at the scene.

"I thought it was a movement-activated device, that might blow up, so I told my wife, 'get away, right away,'" Gonzales said. "I'm scared for my wife's safety."

Gonzales flagged down an officer and police responded at about 6:30 a.m. to what was initially described as a suspicious package. A bomb squad used a robot to render the device safe, police said.

The incident blocked Martin Luther King Jr. Way in South Seattle and shut down the nearby Othello station on the Sound Transit light rail line, which operates between downtown Seattle and Sea-Tac Airport. Traffic was rolling again by 9 a.m.

The police's Arson and Bomb Squad closed the bank for the investigation. No one has claimed responsibility and there were no immediate leads, police spokeswoman Rene Witt said.

In addition to video surveillance, investigators were looking at who used the ATM previously or entered the foyer, which is outside the main part of the bank and requires a card swipe to enter the area.

11 Dead after Hot Air Balloon Crash in New Zealand

BY RAY LILLEY
Associated Press

WELLINGTON, New Zealand • A hot air balloon crashed and killed all 11 people aboard near a rural New Zealand town some 94 miles (150 kilometers) north of the capital, Wellington, officials said Saturday.

Wairarapa District Health Board spokeswoman Jill Stringer said the 11 people died when the balloon came down near show grounds north of the township of Carterton.

Police confirmed there were "multiple deaths" when the balloon crashed.

Witnesses told local media of seeing 32-foot (10-meter) high flames rising from the balloon's basket before it plummeted to the ground.

"I was watering the garden and heard a noise, the noise of the gas to raise the balloon. I looked over and I couldn't believe it — one side of the basket was on fire," said local resident David McKinlay.

"It was just above the trees when I first saw it ... it looked like he (the pilot) tried to raise it a bit higher ... all of a sudden there was just 10 meters of flames," he said.

Former Teacher Accused of Sex Abuse Was Popular

BY BOB JOHNSON and PHILLIP RAWLS
Associated Press

ALABASTER, Ala. (AP) • Children used to clamor to get into Danny Acker's classes, and he was so popular he was once named his elementary school's Teacher of the Year.

Acker

But authorities in this well-to-do Birmingham suburb are offering a starkly different picture: a serial child molester who police say admitted sexually abusing more than 20 girls — some as young as 9 — over the course of a long classroom career.

Troublesome clues emerged when Acker was investigated by a grand jury in the early 1990s, but he continued teaching. When he retired after 25 years, he was so well regarded that the district kept him on as a substitute bus driver.

Now the community is questioning the trust it placed in Acker after a former female student alleged that Acker molested her in 2009. Police arrested him Thursday and on Friday added another count involving a second former female student.

District Attorney Robby Owens said the case remains under investigation, and more charges are likely as police encourage any other victims come forward.

Deputy Police Chief Curtis Rigney said Acker admitted molesting the first girl who complained and many others, but he wouldn't give names.

"We're barely scratching the surface here," Rigney said. "There is so much information we don't know."

Acker is jailed on $545,000 bond. His attorney did not return phone calls or an email seeking comment.

School officials and former students in the tight-knit community were shocked because many people knew Acker as the likable teacher known for driving around in his green Volkswagen convertible.

"He was my favorite teacher I ever had," 21-year-old Jared Robertson said Friday.

He said Acker always had a smile and made class fun. He said students divided teachers into "nice" and "strict" groups, and everyone considered Acker "nice."

"He was never creepy or anything like that," Robertson said.

School officials said students sought to get in Acker's classes.

"He was well-respected and often requested by parents. We did not have any reason to expect anything like this was going on," district spokeswoman Cindy Warner said.

Acker, 49, is the son of a longtime county commissioner, Dan Acker. His is married, has children and helped with a church youth group in addition to teaching.

His brick home stands across the street from a Southern Baptist church and day-care center. Officials at the center declined to comment Friday, as did a man who answered Acker's front door.

He taught at three of Alabaster's four primary schools: Thompson Elementary, Creek View Elementary and Thompson Intermediate, which are all operated by the Shelby County school system.

Trouble Followed German Mother, Son in 3 Countries

BY GREG RISLING
 Associated Press

In this courtroom sketch, Dorothee Burkhart appears in federal court on fraud charges Tuesday in Los Angeles. Burkhart is the mother of suspected Los Angeles arsonist Harry Burkhart. Burkhart was scheduled to again

LOS ANGELES • Wherever Dorothee and Harry Burkhart went, trouble followed the mother-and-son duo. Arsons in Los Angeles, Germany and possibly Canada. A daring escape through a German hospital window. A claim that fascists were trying to kill them. Skipping out on a bill for a breast augmentation surgery.

The 24-year-old Harry Burkhart became an internationally known figure after he was arrested this week in dozens of Hollywood arsons that left a string of torched buildings and cars and caused millions of dollars in damage. Authorities said they believe the motive behind the fires was anger at the U.S. government for arresting his mother on a German warrant.

But it's not his first encounter with an arson investigation. He is suspected of starting an arson fire late last year at a German house that belonged to his family, shortly before the Los Angeles fires. And Vancouver police said this week they are looking to see whether the Burkharts were living in the area when there was a series of suspicious fires. A phone message left for Vancouver police was not immediately returned Friday, and the Burkharts have not been officially linked to any fires there.

The Burkharts' strange personas and odd behavior were noted at each stop as they hopscoched from their native Germany to British Columbia and finally California, and Los Angeles police believe, ultimately led to Harry Burkhart's arrest.

His anti-American outburst during a detention hearing last week for his mother cemented his likeness in the mind of a deputy U.S. Marshal, who rec-they were sent back to Germany, The Vancouver Sun reported.

She told immigration officials that a right-wing fascist group had infiltrated the German government and police were after them because of their Russian origin, the paper said. The refugee claim was denied two years later.

In medical records from March 2010, a doctor said she suffered from severe post traumatic stress disorder and panic attacks and her son suffered from autistic spectrum disorder since his childhood.

The younger Burkhart's name surfaced as a suspect in the German arson case after he filed an insurance claim shortly after the fire, Marburg prosecutors' spokeswoman Annemarie Wied said.

A search of his Hollywood apartment following his arrest turned up news articles about the Los Angeles fires along with some car fires in Frankfurt last September. German authorities said there was no active investigation of Burkhart in Frankfurt.

Twelve days after the German house fire, Burkhart was in Los Angeles, according to court documents, visiting the German consulate with his mother trying to renew his passport. His nonimmigrant visa is set to expire Jan. 18, authorities said. His mother last entered the country lawfully in January 2007 and she left four months later.

It's unclear if either Burkhart worked. A website offering appointment-only sensual massage is registered to Dorothee Burkhart, though her name is not mentioned on the site.

Their lives unraveled last week when the younger Burkhart caught the attention of court officials at his mother's hearing yelling "F--- the United States!" or "F--- all Americans," authorities said.

At each of their subsequent court appearances, both Burkharts made a spectacle. Dorothee Burkhart constantly asked for her son on Tuesday, apparently unaware he had been arrested. She also wondered if the Nazis knew where she and her son lived.

The next day in court, her son was surrounded by sheriff's deputies as he alternated between sitting and standing. He often arched his head and body backward, looking up to the ceiling with his mouth agape.

Burkhart has been charged with 37 counts of arson and is expected to return to court Jan. 24. He's being held on $2.85 million and could face additional charges, prosecutors said.

Bruins-'Hawks: No Contest

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • For about 10 seconds, Canyon Ridge had the lead against Twin Falls in Friday's edition of the crosstown boys basketball rivalry series.

Then Eric Harr and the Bruins got down to business. Harr scored a game-high 20 points and Twin Falls held its visitor to single digits for nearly three quarters as the Bruins rolled to a 67-22 win at Baun Gymnasium.

After the Riverhawks took the lead, Harr scored on a back-cut, hit a 3-pointer and stole the ensuing in-bound pass, laid it in and was fouled. He missed the foul shot but the lead shot to 7-2 and that was that.

"We didn't know what to expect, if they were going to stall or something. We came out looking for blood," Harr said. "We just played out style of defense and get in their face, make them beat us on the dribble."

The initial exchanges were tentative on both ends, with both teams scoring on the backdoor play. But that was as good as it got for the Riverhawks, who didn't get to 10 points until 2:41 left in the third quarter, when Michael Chapple hit a free throw.

Harr had 13 at halftime, and at the break three Bruins had equaled or outscored

SALT LAKE CITY • Al Jefferson had 20 points and nine rebounds and the Utah Jazz reserves outscored their Memphis Grizzlies counterparts by 30 points on the way to a 94-85 victory Friday night.

Paul Millsap scored 14 and Josh Howard had 13 points and a key steal in the fourth quarter to help Utah stay unbeaten at home in four games. Earl Watson had 11 points and five assists as the Jazz reserves outscored the depleted Memphis bench 41-11.

The Jazz harassed the Grizzlies into 6-for-33 shooting in the fourth quarter and the interior defenders repeatedly challenged at the rim to block 10 shots, boosting their NBA-leading average of 7.5 per game.

Tony Allen made two free throws to give Memphis a 63-56 lead — its largest of the second half — with 4:56 left in the third quarter. But the Jazz went on an 11-1 run to end the period, capped by an offensive rebound and fallaway shot by rookie Enes Kanter that brought the crowd to its feet and put Utah up 67-64.

Paul Millsap sparked a 9-0 spurt in the fourth quarter to widen the gap to 78-68 with 6:16 to play.

Marc Gasol and Allen both scored 21 points and Rudy Gay added 17 but the Grizzlies had 20 turnovers and appeared bothered by Utah's rugged style of defense.

Memphis lost leading scorer Zach Randolph to a right knee injury in the first quarter of a 104-64 loss at Chicago on Sunday. He has a torn MCL and is expected to miss six to eight weeks.

The Grizzlies beat two last-place teams this week in Sacramento and Minnesota without Randolph but couldn't get scores or stops down the stretch against the Jazz. Utah topped 50 percent shooting and scored 52 points in the paint.

Hosteen's Coming Out Party A Smash

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • For every Minico rally, Burley had an answer Friday night.

Finally in the third quarter, Burley provided its biggest answer of all.

His name: Brandon Hosteen.

Playing in the biggest game of his career thus far, in front of a packed standing-room-only crowd, the sophomore scored 21 points to lead Burley in its 51-38 win.

"It was exciting. We have a great student body and great supporters from the community," Hosteen said. "With the cross-town rivalry, we were expecting anything to happen. We just worked hard and hustled."

Burley's lead ballooned to 10 points in the first quarter, but Minico battled back to 29-25 at the half.

Minco's Sager Nevarez, who returned from a foot injury to play his first full game of the season, drilled a 3-pointer to start the third quarter, making it a one-point game.

"It's crazy. My first game of the season and I have to come out and play in one of the biggest games of the year," said Nevarez, who finished with 10 points. Minico-Burley, the big rivalry. You can only imagine what I was feeling like."

However, Minico quickly went from feeling elated to deflated in a matter of moments.

Hosteen answered by scoring Burley's next eight points, including back-to-back 3-pointers, within the next two minutes.

"I don't want to say it sucked the wind out of us, because we kept pushing forward. But it put a speed bump into what we were trying to do. That was probably the biggest point of the game, (Hosteen) hitting those two 3s," Nevarez said.

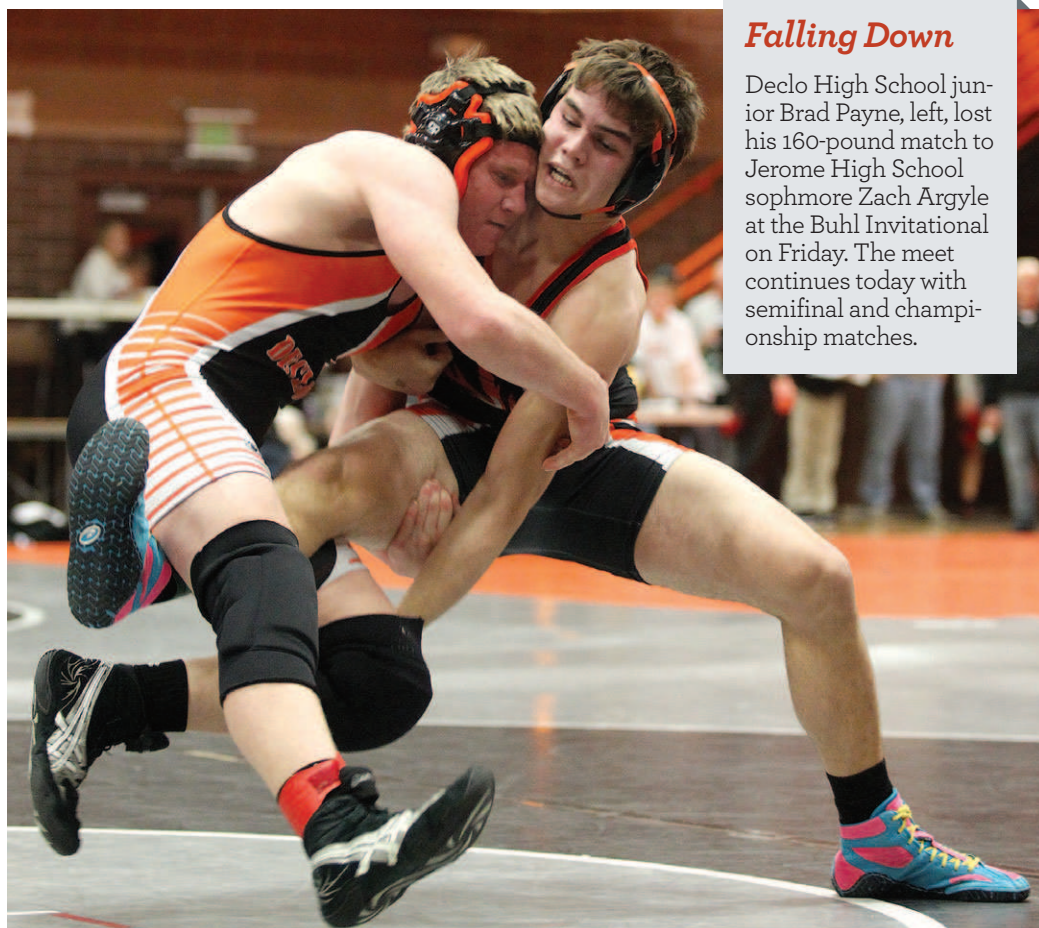

The Bobcats were in control the rest of the way, shooting 45.5 percent from the field, to Minico's 35.7 percent. Jason Boehmer had six points and seven assists for the Bobcats.

Ethan Belnap scored 11

JOHNSON, ISU'S ALLEN LEAD ALL-PRO VOTING

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Calvin Johnson took one look at the voting and smiled broadly.

"That's sweet," he said, as he studied The Associated Press 2011 NFL All-Pro Team. "That's one of the best honors you can have other than being a Super Bowl champion. To be an All-Pro is a tremendous honor."

Johnson and Idaho State graduate and Vikings defensive end Jared Allen were the leading vote getters, each just one vote shy of being a unanimous pick.

Quarterback Aaron Rodgers made the team for the first time, easily beating Drew Brees of the New Orleans Saints, 47 1/2 to 2 1/2. Rodgers led Green Bay to a league-best 15-1 record this season, after taking the Packers to the Super Bowl title last February.

"From where we were at the beginning of the season, we played a heckuva game tonight," Nevarez said. "Our record right now, it's not great, but we're not worried about it. We're just trying to progress."

Burley (7-2, 2-0) will find out next week where it stands among its fellow GBC frontrunners. The Bobcats have two big road tests, Tuesday at Jerome and Thursday at Twin Falls.

"We're going to have to play our best," said Burley coach Jack Bagley. "Both have a player that will play at the next level... We have our work cut out for us, but I like my guys. They like to step up to challenges like this."

Canyon Ridge by themselves: Harr, Robert Sanchez (eight points) and Connor Meyerhoeffer (seven).

"We were tight to begin with, especially because it's a rivalry game and you want to prove yourselves," said Sanchez, who finished with 10 points. "There's always someone who gets us going, and Eric really got it started for us."

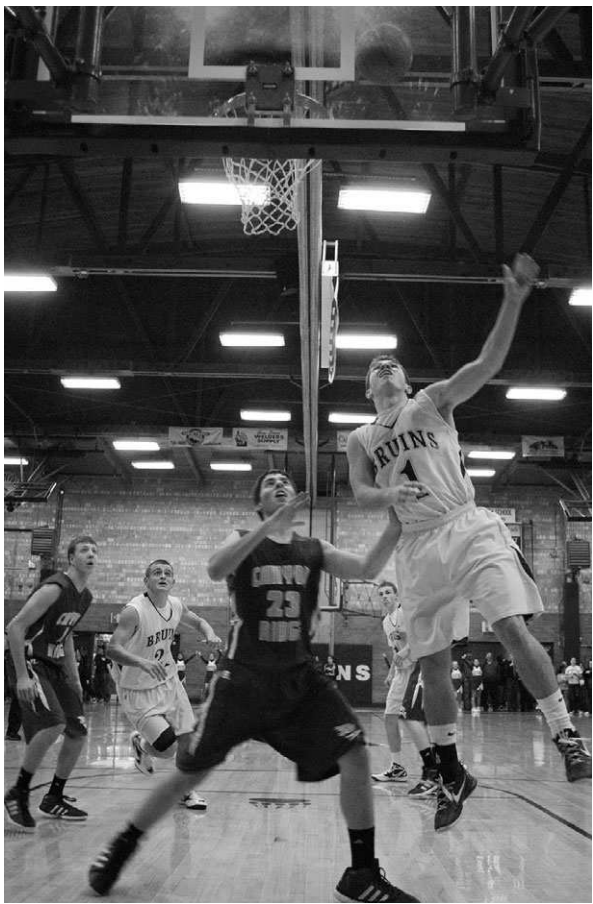

The lead ballooned to 51 in the fourth quarter, the entirety of which was played with a rolling clock after Twin Falls took a 55-10 lead into the final period.

"The one thing about this group of kids is they're a good group, and so far they've really tended to stay positive and continue to look forward. That's one thing I can compliment them on, they're still going to come out and compete," said Canyon Ridge coach Jacoby Fox. "Sometimes it's just one of those nights. All-Pro

"I am a competitor," Rodgers said. "I care desperately about winning and doing everything I can to contribute. But personally, speaking for my own self, you learn exactly what you need to do to be able to balance the pressure from the outside with the pressure from within, that you put on yourself to be successful. Last year's run is really going to help all of us and our preparation through the week."

Johnson and Allen received 49 votes Friday from a nationwide panel of 50 media members who regularly cover the NFL. It was the fourth All-Pro Team for Allen, who led the league with 22 sacks, one-half short of the record. Johnson made it for the first time after hauling in 96 catches for a 17.5-yard average and scoring 16 touchdowns.

"The All-Pro Team to me is one of the all-time accomplishments," said Allen, who also was selected in 2007 through 2009. "Pro Bowls are nice, but guys get voted in longer than they should and guys who deserve to go don't always get to. It's the whole league. It's not just an AFC and NFC thing. So to me this is the honor I hold the highest. It's something to put on the resume and tell the grandkids about."

One rookie made the squad: Arizona's Patrick Peterson was selected as the kick returner. Peterson tied an NFL mark when he ran back four punts for touchdowns, including a 99-yarder in overtime to beat the Rams.

"It's special to be the only rookie on the list and a nice way to end my first NFL season," said Peterson, a cornerback.

Another cornerback, Darrelle Revis of the Jets, was behind Johnson and Allen with 48 selections. Ravens outside linebacker Terrell Suggs got 47.

One oddity: Both first-team guards, Carl Nicks and Jahri Evans, were from the Saints. That hasn't happened since 1953, with Detroit's Lou Creekmur and Dick Stanfel.

"That's a great honor and that's a long time since it happened," Nicks said. "I think this shows it's recognized that we are strong and physical and not just big guys. We are athletic enough to pass protect 45 to 50 times a game and keep Drew clean."

In the All-Pro backfield joining Rodgers, whose quarterback rating of 122.5 broke Peyton Manning's single-season mark, were Maurice Jones-Drew of Jacksonville, LeSean McCoy of Philadelphia, and full-back Vonta Leach of Baltimore.

It's the first All-Pro selections for Jones-Drew, the league's rushing leader with 1,606 yards, and McCoy. Leach made it last year with Houston.

"It is a 'we' thing, not a 'me' thing," Jones-Drew said, praising his teammates on offense and his coaches. "The guys who don't get the glory and keep blocking all day, and the coaches who don't get enough credit, it's for them."

McCoy scored 20 touchdowns, 17 rushing, and was the brightest spot in a down year for the hyped Eagles. Yet ...

"There are so many things I can do better," he said. "I look at the numbers and see so many plays I left on the field, so many yards. I can perfect my game a lot more."

Record-setter Rob Gronkowski was the tight end. The Patriot set the single-season mark at his position with 1,327 yards receiving. Teammate Wes Welker (league-high 122 catches) was the other receiver.

Pittsburgh's Maurkice Pouncey was the center, with Philadelphia's Jason Peters and Cleveland's Joe Thomas at tackle.

Joining Allen on the defensive line were ends Jason Pierre-Paul of the Giants, and tackles Haloti Ngata of the Ravens and Justin Smith of the 49ers — who also placed third at DE; the 49ers used him at both spots.

"Actually, I knew that I was going to have a great year this year," said Pierre-Paul, in his second season with the Giants. "I came in and last year I had an all right season and I wanted to do better than what I did last year. Next season in 2012, I should be better than this year."

The linebackers were Suggs and DeMarcus Ware of Dallas on the outside, Patrick Willis and NaVorro Bowman of the 49ers and Derrick Johnson of the Chiefs on the inside. Bowman and Johnson tied with 16 votes, half of Willis' total.

Revis and Charles Woodson of the Packers were the cornerbacks, with Troy Polamalu of the Steelers and Eric Weddle of the Chargers at safety.

Strong Fourth Lifts Bulls to Win

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. • Derrick Rose and Luol Deng each scored 21 points and the Chicago Bulls held off a fourth-quarter surge by Orlando to beat the Magic 97-83 on Friday night for their sixth straight victory.

Carlos Boozer added 20 points for Chicago, which led by as many as 17 before the lead was trimmed to three. The Bulls closed the game on a 17-6 run.

Dwight Howard led the Magic with 28 points and 15 rebounds.

The Bulls (7-1) are off to their best start since winning 12 of 13 to open the 1996-97 season. The latest victory began a brutal stretch for Chicago that includes seven games in nine nights.

NOTICE

The State of Idaho will accept public comment on its Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) State Plan for FFY 2011-2012. The deadline for public comment is February 24, 2012.

The draft plan is available for review at the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, 450 W State Street, 2nd floor Boise, ID. You may also review the Plan on our website: <http://www.healthandwelfare.idaho.gov> using the link TAFI and then State Plan.

Temporary Assistance for Needy Families is a block grant that is used to provide cash assistance, services and work programs for needy families, utilizing federal TANF funds along with state funds to develop and deliver services to needy families. The overriding goal of Idaho's TANF program is to help Idaho's needy families achieve self sufficiency by providing them access to job preparation, work and support services.

Anyone wishing to submit written comments must have them post marked on or before February 24, 2012.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"A clever person turns great problems into little ones and little ones into none at all."

— Chinese proverb

I freely admit that when given today's deal as a problem, I started out well but missed one of the subtleties of the play. So see if you can "Beat the Swami" and do better than me!

Having been given the warning in four spades that trumps will not be splitting (what else could West's double signify?), you win the diamond ace at trick one and ruff a diamond to hand. What next? Best is to exploit the possibility of finding the club king onside — but you do not want to lead the club ace and a second club, or East might win (as here) and play a third club. So you lead a low club to the queen and king. Back comes a heart, and you win in hand and lead a trump to the board, intending to insert the seven. West must contribute the eight, and you win the ace, finding the bad news, then take the remaining top hearts in case you need to ruff the fourth heart in dummy, finding the suit to be 3-3.

Now you cash the club ace and can be sure West started with a 5-3-3-2 pattern. You lead out the fourth heart to force West to ruff high and return a diamond, which lets you ruff in hand and lead a spade toward the seven. Again, West must win the trick with a high trump, but now he will have to lead away from his Q-5 of spades in the two-card ending.

ANSWER: You have a choice of simple actions: a rebid of two clubs or of one no-trump. Although your six-card suit is weak, it looks better to rebid clubs because your heart spots are not quite good enough for you to be comfortable in no-trump.

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago, my mom told me that if it wasn't for me, she and my dad would be divorced. She also said that the last few years with my dad have been terrible. I feel so guilty about this, knowing that I'm the reason my parents are unhappy.

I barely slept the night my mom told me this, but actually, it all makes sense. Now I know why my parents yell at me for no reason and why I get in trouble for no reason. Abby, please help me. How do I tell my mom how it made me feel?

— FEELS GUILTY
 IN GEORGIA

DEAR FEELS GUILTY: Your mother was wrong to say that you are the only reason she and your father have stayed married. They are together for reasons of their own that have little or nothing to do with you. You are not responsible for their unhappiness.

Your parents appear to be under a lot of pressure right now, which may be why their tempers are frayed. Before discussing this with your mother, it might help to talk about what happened with another adult relative you trust. However, if there is no one else, clip this letter, show it to your mother and tell her you wrote it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old woman with a problem I'm not sure how to solve. I am 30 pounds overweight (I have been heavy-set my whole life). My mom and I have been walking together for years, talking and enjoying each other's company as we go.

For a while, we were both losing weight consistently as a result of our walks. But since my parents' divorce three years ago, Mom has had to work full-time and isn't able to walk with me as often.

I want to continue walking to lose weight so I can be healthier and feel better about myself. But I feel I will be betraying my mom by not including her. Walking together has been our tradition, so I don't know how she'll feel if I continue to walk without her. What should I do?

— STEPPING LIGHTLY
DEAR STEPPING LIGHTLY: Get out there and continue walking — with headphones or with friends. Exercise with your mother on weekends if she's available, and encourage her to do some walking on her own during her lunch hour. The only thing you should NOT do is quit walking because you feel guilty that you and your mother are now on different "paths."

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to "Daryl" for 10 years. He has never really hit the mark in what I want — someone who is mature, stable, predictable and has an appropriate perspective on life. Daryl depends on the outside world to make him feel good about himself, and when that doesn't happen, he drinks and smokes pot.

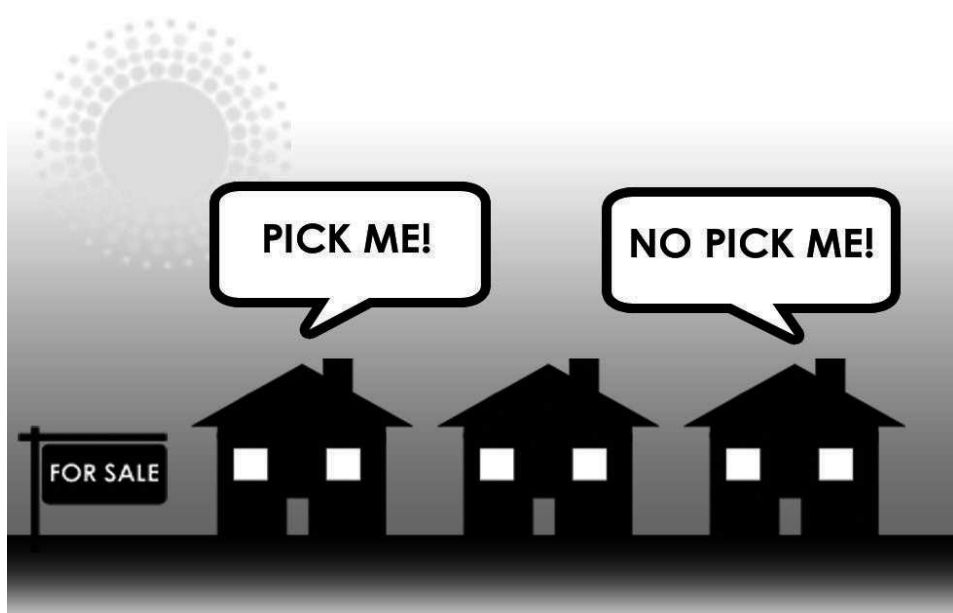

I love exercise and the outdoors. He doesn't like hiking. In fact, he's afraid to challenge himself physically in even the smallest way.

I have to decide whether to stay and "make do" or move on. How do I make that choice? (I'm over 40.)

— LOOKING FOR BETTER

LAGUNA HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR LOOKING: Tell your husband what you have told me. That will give him a chance to shape up and at least try to be more of the man you thought you married. (I'm giving you the benefit of the doubt and not assuming you felt you were compromising when you accepted his proposal.) Daryl deserves to spend his life with someone who values him for who he is, not someone who feels she's "making do." If it doesn't work, then you should BOTH move on.

Today is Saturday, Jan. 7, the seventh day of 2012. There are 359 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Jan. 7, 1942, the Japanese siege of Bataan began during World War II. (The fall of Bataan three months later was followed by the notorious Death March.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1608, an accidental fire devastated the Jamestown settlement in the Virginia Colony.

In 1610, astronomer Galileo Galilei began observing three of Jupiter's moons (he spotted a fourth moon almost a week later).

In 1789, the first U.S. presidential election was held. Americans voted for electors who, a month later, chose George Washington to be the nation's first president.

In 1800, the 13th president of the United States, Millard Fillmore, was born in Summerhill, N.Y.

In 1894, one of the earliest motion picture experiments took place at the Thomas Edison studio in West Orange, N.J., as Fred Ott was filmed taking a pinch of snuff and sneezing.

In 1912, dark-humored cartoonist Charles Addams was born in Westfield, N.J.

In 1927, commercial transatlantic telephone service was inaugurated between New York and London.

In 1949, George C. Marshall resigned as U.S. Secretary of State; President Harry S. Truman chose Dean Acheson to succeed him.

In 1972, Lewis F. Powell, Jr. and William H. Rehnquist were sworn in as the 99th and 100th members of the U.S. Supreme Court. An Iberia Caravelle jetliner crashed into a mountain while on approach to Ibiza Airport in Spain, killing all 104 people on board.

In 1979, Vietnamese forces captured the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, overthrowing the Khmer Rouge government.

In 1989, Emperor Hirohito of Japan died in Tokyo at age 87; he was succeeded by his son, Crown Prince Akihito.

In 2006, Jill Carroll, a freelance journalist for The Christian Science Monitor, was kidnapped and her translator shot dead in Baghdad. (Carroll was freed almost three months later.)

Ten years ago: British Prime Minister Tony Blair and nine U.S. senators swept into Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan for an unannounced visit and promised Afghan leaders their full support in rebuilding the shattered country. Yves Saint Laurent announced his retirement and closure of the fashion house he'd started 40 years earlier. Comedian Avery Schreiber died in Los Angeles at age 66.

Five years ago: Newly elected House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," said Democrats running Congress would not give President George W. Bush a blank check to wage war in Iraq. NASCAR driver Bobby Hamilton, winner of the 2001 Talladega 500, died at age 49.

One year ago: A package addressed to Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano ignited at a Washington postal facility, a day after fiery packages sent to Maryland's governor and state transportation secretary burned the fingers of workers who opened them.

IF JANUARY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Between now and March, ambitions increase. Hard work and attention to duty are needed to attain key objectives, but this is not a good time to put business plans or investment strategies into motion. You might not receive a pat on the back until April when prayers will be answered. Don't ignore offers or helpful advice during that month. You might not get what you want, but you will surely get what you need, so don't ignore any unexpected opportunities that arrive.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Drive a hard bargain. It is best to avoid signing contracts or agreements today, but you can grasp the essential details needed to negotiate successfully. Confidential information can become a good tool.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): To achieve the greatest ambitions, you need to apply great planning. You are in demand for social events, but only because people think you are more desirable or more available than you really are.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Leave a proposal on the table. You will gain perspective if you allow extra time before deciding. Even if a special someone is initially unenthusiastic, eventually your sincerity will be persuasive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Quality is better than quantity. There is no reason to buy something that catches your eye if it won't give adequate service. Get advice from a friend or a reliable source before making a major purchase.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Even lovebirds molt. A new love interest may seem alluring because there is something about him or her that fulfills your fondest fantasies. You may be less enthused when the novelty wears off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Never accept a wooden nickel, although nickels don't mean much these days. Small economies are helpful over the long term. Good business sense might clash with the razzle-dazzle of advertising hype.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Enjoy a burst of confidence in your business skills. You may sense subtle disapproval from a new romantic partner, but a co-worker can bolster your ego and act as a cheering section. Listen to your intuitions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Talk may be cheap, but a heart-to-heart conversation with the right person could be priceless. Wishful thinking can't replace facts and figures. Plan to have a fabulous joint future using joint resources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It isn't what you say that counts, but how you say it. Even a dog will react to the tone of your voice over than the content of your commands. Get your point across by being sincere, charming, and trusting.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Slackers need not apply. You expect to work diligently to attain your deepest desires and expect others to do the same. Don't make things harder than they already are by limiting your options.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your best achievements are in the world of balancing the books. Finding a satisfactory romantic partner can be much like catching a greased pig. What you think is love might slip out of your hands.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Focus on reality to get the job done. The laundry won't march its way into the washing machine on its own. It is much better to do one job thoroughly than many tasks haphazardly.
