'Hire' Learning Program Focuses on Teaching Students Life Skills

A Twin Falls school's vocational skills program is helping students with disabilities prepare for life after graduation.

TWIN FALLS • As lunchtime approached Friday, 17-year-old Patrick Cole checked to make sure there were enough bagels on hand at Canyon Ridge High School's coffee shop.

As music blared in The Nest Coffee Shop, his classmate Brenden Orr, 17, was waiting behind the cash register. A binder next to him was full of barcodes, which he uses to ring up food items.

Students run all aspects of the coffee shop – from buying food to managing the finances – and figure out how to use the profits.

Does Private Prison Save Idaho Money? No One Knows

State has never actually done the math, so there may be no cost savings at all.

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • For more than a decade, Idaho leaders have promoted private prisons by telling taxpayers it's cheaper for the state to outsource prison management. But an examination of comparative costs by The Associated Press shows that the state has never actually done the math, and there may be no cost savings at all.

In fact, privatization could be costing the state more money than if the Idaho Department of Correction ran the lockups.

Idaho officials will tell you that the state's largest private prison, the Idaho Correctional Center, saves $12 per inmate, per day compared to a similar state prison.

But adjusting for known system-wide expenses and the cost of overseeing the contract for the private lockup bring the per diems to just $5 apart.

The comparable state prison also houses all of the sick and geriatric inmates, is the oldest facility in the state and spans multiple buildings on a 65-acre campus, requiring a high guard-to-inmate ratio to patrol. The private prison, meanwhile, is relatively new and compact and only accepts inmates without chronic medical or mental health needs, factors that allow it to operate with a lower staff-to-inmate ratio. Those factors make it likely that the state could operate the facility for no more than it pays the private company.

Donors Step Forward for New Burley Library

Library board will ask Burley City Council on Wednesday to OK a $3.2 million bond issue election in May.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Two donors have pledged a combined $450,000 toward building a new Burley Public Library.

Both donations are contingent on voters passing an estimated $3.2 million bond issue. If the election proposal is approved Wednesday by the Burley City Council, voters will decide whether they want to fund the new building on May 15.

The total cost of the desired new library is expected to be $3.9 million, which means the library will have to raise the additional $700,000 beyond what a passed bond issue would provide.

The Burley Lions Club has reaffirmed its previous offer pledging $100,000

What's next?

• Burley Public Library's Board of Trustees plans to propose an estimated $3.2-million bond issue election to the Burley City Council during its 7 p.m. Wednesday meeting. If approved, the election will be held May 15. Based on a home valued at $120,000 the 20-year bond issue would cost city residents $25.37 annually. The total cost of the project is expected to be about $3.9 million.

New library timeline

• If the Burley City Council approves the bond issue election, the issue will be placed on the May 15 ballot.
• If the issue is approved by taxpayers, work will be put out to bid in August.
• The bid will be awarded in March 2013, allowing the one-year construction project to begin.
• The new library will open in March or April 2014.

THIS WEEK

Your advance look at what events are worth knowing about in the week ahead.

Entertainment

If I were a rich man: I'd certainly hit at least one of Minico High School's performances of "Fiddler on the Roof." The play starts at 7 p.m. both Thursday and Friday, with 1 and 7 p.m. shows Saturday. Head to the school's auditorium at 100 S. 292 W., in Rupert. The best part: With admission $5 for adults and $4 for students, you don't need to be wealthy enough to have a staircase leading nowhere – just for show – to attend.

Night at the casino: Feel like hitting the casino, but don't want to drive to Nevada? Head to the Optimist Club of Twin Falls' popular Lost Wages Night at Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center. The Friday event starts at 7 p.m., and for $15, you can play games and help raise funds for projects benefitting Magic Valley children.

Politics

A place in history: If you've been paying any attention recently, you've certainly heard of Idaho's new GOP caucus. Magic Valley Republicans can participate in their party's new system of selecting a presidential candidate at locations across the area on Tuesday.

If you don't know where to go, we've got you covered. Pick up the Sunday or Tuesday editions of the Times-News, or visit Magicvalley.com, to see where to go.

Sports

The early-March lull: With the high school winter sports season completed, there's a brief lull in the Magic Valley sports scene. If you're still craving hoops, head to Salt Lake City Thursday through Saturday to cheer on the College of Southern Idaho's teams during the NJCAA Region 18 Tournament. Need something more local? Head to Skip Walker Field and hope for good weather when the Golden Eagles baseball team hosts the College of Southern Nevada in a matchup of early-season conference frontrunners. Doubleheader play starts at 1 p.m. Friday and noon Saturday.

Have an event everybody should know about? Send it our way at magicvalley.com/calendar or frontdoor@magicvalley.com.

toward the project, while an anonymous donor has offered to match up to $350,000 to be raised by the Burley Public Library Foundation.

The proposed new library has also received $50,000 from other various donations.

"We are thrilled," said librarian Julie Woodford. "It gives us great incentives to carry forward with the project. With these pledges it becomes very possible."

Woodford said the community room in the new building, which will be built on city-owned property north of the municipal swimming pool on Parke Avenue, will be named after the Lions Club in honor of the donation.

Lions Club members have extended a challenge to other service groups to donate to the project. Other rooms and areas in the library could be named in honor of donors.

Woodford said a local businessman paid for the first set of blueprints for the new library in 2008. A second set of blueprints, which were downsized from the original 28,000 square-feet to 15,450 square-feet, were paid for by a grant from the Laura Moore Cunningham Foundation.

"I've learned, basically, how to be an adult," he said.

Aside from running the coffee shop, students in the program took on a large project Friday - making enough food for Canyon Ridge employees to eat during their lunch break. Once every quarter, students take the lead in preparing a meal for school employees.

A group of students stood around a stove, stirring chili as it cooked. Others worked to barbecue hot dogs, and make salad and dessert.

It was an exercise in gaining real-life skills - the purpose of the HIRE program.

Transition Specialist Lynn Widaman - a special education teacher - said the program helps students gain living and work skills.

"It's so difficult for the kids to get those jobs," she said.

But through the program, students prepare by spending time in the community and as part of work crews.

"They learn as many job skills as they can," Widaman said.

About 30 special education students are enrolled in the HIRE program. They stay for anywhere between one class period to all day, depending on their needs.

Students range in age from high school freshmen to 21 years old. Widaman said 18- to 21-year-old "super seniors" - who have graduated from high school - usually participate in the program for a full day.

"I've learned, basically, how to be an adult."

Patrick Cole, 17, about the Twin Falls School District's HIRE learning vocational program

They're among 819 special education students in the Twin Falls School District. The population makes up about 11 percent of the district's total enrollment, Director of Support Services Clara Allred said during a recent school board meeting.

Widaman has been a special education teacher for 33 years and plans to retire at the end of the school year.

Over the years, she's seen changes in the HIRE program. After about 12 years at Twin Falls High School, the program moved to Canyon Ridge when the school opened in 2009.

There aren't too many services for young adults with disabilities, Widaman said, so more are choosing to stay in the program longer.

Orr - who's a high school junior - said he wants to continue with the program once he graduates from high school.

The program, he said, has taught him to respect others and act responsibly.

Once students turn 21, though, they can't stay in HIRE. Widaman said she wishes there was a program to help young adults after that point.

Once they're done with the program, some students plan to further their education by enrolling at the College of Southern Idaho.

Prisons Bursting at Seams in 1997, Idaho Saw Privatization as Answer

BY REBECCA BOONE

Associated Press

BOISE • Sixteen years ago, all of Idaho's prisons were owned by the state, and they were nearly chock-full. The prison population was also growing at a rapid rate, thanks to years of tough-on-crime legislation.

It was clear the state needed a new prison. What wasn't clear was how it would be paid for, and who would run it.

In a 1997 paper that then-Gov. Phil Batt dubbed the "Committee of One Sentencing Study," he noted that in 1995 there were 3,200 state inmates. Just two years later, that number had grown by 28 percent to 4,100.

By April 1997, the Idaho Board of Correction was told by correction department officials that the prison population was increasing at a rate of about 38 inmates per month, and the state's entire prison system only had 112 available beds, most at a northern Idaho prison designed for short-term "bootcamp" inmates. More prisoners would need to be shipped out of state soon.

Batt had spent the past several months talking to lawmakers, judges and Idaho Department of Correction officials and pushing for sentencing alternatives that would get inmates for non-violent offenses out of prison quicker, making more room for the worst criminals. He also looked at ways to build the new prison, and quickly hit on privatization as his preferred solution.

The Idaho Board of Correction had been preparing for the same eventuality, calling in outside consultants and workers with the state's Division of Financial Management to research privatization possibilities.

Consultant Richard Crane told the board they should have another expert come in and research how much it would cost the Idaho Department of Correction to run the facility. A review of Batt's papers at the Idaho State Historical Archives, the board minutes from 1996 and 1997 and a search of the state's legislative library uncovered no hint that any such expert was ever brought in. IDOC financial manager Dave Sorensen, who was part of the department's financial division at the time, said he doesn't remember any cost comparison study being done.

Instead, former IDOC director Jim Spaulding and officials with the state's Division of Financial Management agreed to use the cost per day figure for the Idaho State Correctional Institution.

At the time, ISCI had roughly the same number inmates that the new prison was to have. The inmates were also classified as either minimum- or medium-security, the same classification levels expected for the new prison.

But the similarities stopped there. ISCI is the state's oldest lockup, and it sprawls across a 65-acre campus. Inmates must frequently be moved from one building to another for meals, recreation time, therapy and education sessions. Multiple corners and nooks inside and in between buildings mean there are "line-of-sight" issues: More guards are required to make sure inmates aren't hiding and getting into trouble. It's also where all of the inmates who are elderly or who have chronic medical needs are housed.

The new prison was to be built on a much smaller campus, and it would be designed with security and technology in mind. That would make it more efficient to run.

The 1997 Legislature granted the Board of Correction the authority to enter into contracts with private prison providers. The state ultimately awarded the contract to build and operate a 1,250-bed prison to Corrections Corporation of America. In a letter to lawmakers in December 1997, Batt said CCA's proposal was set to save 14 percent over Idaho's operating costs and 33 percent over the state's construction costs. Idaho's estimated construction cost was $65 million, and the cost per day figure was $46. CCA's bid came in $7 lower on the cost-per-day, and $15 million less for construction.

The state named the new lockup the Idaho Correctional Center, or ICC. It opened in July 2000.

ICC appeared to be operating uneventfully for several years, until inmates began filing so many lawsuits alleging similar civil rights abuses that a federal judge began consolidating them. Some of the cases were ultimately dismissed, some were settled and some are still winding through the courts. Amid the lawsuits, the U.S. Attorney's Office for Idaho acknowledged that the FBI was also investigating the lockup for alleged abuses against prisoners. That investigation is ongoing.

CCA has repeatedly denied any wrongdoing, although in response to one lawsuit brought by about two dozen prisoners it agreed to make widespread changes in how it operated the prison.

Meanwhile, the state fined CCA for failing to meet several terms of the contract, including having enough substance abuse treatment providers on staff.

Nevertheless, the state decided to move forward with building a second private prison. The Correctional Alternative Placement Program, built and operated by private company Management Training Corporation, opened in the summer of 2010.

Prisons

State leaders have refused to examine the issue. About four years ago, Idaho Department of Correction Director Brent Reinke asked the Board of Correction and Gov. C.L.

"Butch" Otter's office if his department could bid for the contract to run the Idaho Correctional Center - a move that would have given Idaho a firm idea of how much it would cost to make the facility public. The board responded with a firm "no," and the governor's office simply deflected the matter back to the board.

"We just decided we'd stay with what we're doing," said board member Jay L. Nielsen, who was the board secretary when Reinke made the request in October 2007. "As you know, Idaho likes to have private industry do whatever they can, and I think that's the reasoning behind it all."

Otter's spokesman Jon Hanian said the governor's office was carrying out a policy created by former Gov. Phil Batt in the mid-1990s. But Otter has continued to be a cheerleader for private prisons, looking into the possibility of privatizing another state facility in northern Idaho and opening a smaller private prison south of Boise in 2009.

The nation's largest private prison provider, Corrections Corporation of America, contracted with Idaho in 1997 to build and run the Idaho Correctional Center south of Boise. At the time, Batt said the move would save the state $16 million in operating costs alone.

The state generally compares the money it pays to CCA to the cost the state in-curs running a similar facility: The Idaho State Correctional Institution. At first glance, those numbers show the private prison to be a striking savings - $42.12 per inmate, per day, compared to $54.14.

But the numbers are stacked against the state.

The private prison's per diem doesn't include the $4.51 per inmate, per day the state spends to monitor operations and contract compliance at the prison. They also don't reflect the fact that Idaho's contract with Corrections Corporation of America bars the state from transferring any inmate with a chronic medical or mental health condition to the private prison.

The state's per diem doesn't reflect that every inmate in Idaho is funneled through ISCI before they're transferred anywhere, including the private prison. That's because the state-run lockup handles all receiving, diagnostic and placement services for the correctional system. It also houses Idaho's only mental health unit - a service not offered at the private prison - as well as all geriatric and chronically ill inmates, including those who can't be sent to ICC.

Adjusting for contract oversight brings the private ICC's per diem cost up to $46.63. Eliminating the system-wide costs attributed to the state-run lockup - but leaving in the $12.09 per inmate, per day that goes to medical costs - brings the state's ISCI's per diem down to $51.64.

Adjusting for the medical expenses is trickier. Because CCA is a private company, it doesn't have to disclose how much it spends on medical and mental health care for inmates. And because the state has a contract with health care company Corizon to handle the medical needs of all the state-managed inmates, the department can't get a breakdown of just how much its own healthy inmates cost compared to the sick and elderly.

"It's an algebraic problem, and as it sits today, you have too many unknown variables," said Tony Meatte, the Idaho Department of Correction's business services division chief.

Even with all those unknown variables, this much is clear: If the average medical cost of a healthy inmate runs less than $5 a day, it would likely be cheaper for the state to run the Idaho Correctional Center.

The per diem analysis "was our best bet at looking at how we can allocate all the costs in the department," said Meatte. "If someone wanted to come in and shoot holes in it, they could just like anything they look at. In the end we have to use it as a tool, to let us see if something goes up significantly in an area."

It's surprising that the state has never done a comparison, said Board of Correction member J.R. Van Tassel.

Van Tassel wasn't on the board when Reinke made his request to study the costs back in 2007. He said if asked today, he would likely support a different decision.

"If the question came up at a board meeting, I would be willing to support allocating the resources to do that," Van Tassel said. "Because at some point in time, the contract's going to be up for renewal again and that information would be crucial to making that kind of decision."

Having the department bid on the service is "the only way you get an apples-to-apples comparison," Van Tassel said.

"I'm on the verge of calling it a failed experiment," said Van Tassel of prison privatization, noting that the state has had to fine CCA thousands of dollars after the company repeatedly failed to meet contract requirements.

Idaho Board of Correction chairman Robin Sandy, however, said that there's value outside of cost savings in privatizing prisons. She was part of the board that made the decision not to let Reinke bid on the contract.

"I personally agree with the governor in that the more we limit government and the more we let private people do the work, that is a good thing," Sandy said. "I believe that most Idahoans share that philosophy."

Steve Owen, the spokesman for Correctional Corporation of America, says the company is highly motivated to comply with its contracts, meet its own standards of excellence and always "do better than the competition."

"As a business, we are able to provide taxpayers an essential government service at equally high standards of quality and efficiency," Owen said in an email to the AP. "Competitive private-sector entities are motivated to move swiftly, evaluate and refine success each day, and maintain the highest operating standards at least cost."

Without a state analysis, taxpayers and the Idaho Department of Correction have to take CCA's word for it.

"Any company that's saying, 'I can save you this,' has never done anything to prove that they can - that's the hard part," said Meatte. "They don't have to prove it!"

Parking Lot Crash Kills 1, Injures One

TIMES-NEWS

BURLEY • One person is dead and another is hospitalized after a two-vehicle crash Friday night near Burley.

Cassia County Sheriff Randy Kidd confirmed Sunday that a fatal crash occurred at about 7 p.m. Friday in the parking lot of the McCain Food USA plant west of Burley on U.S. Highway 30.

Kidd said he didn't have names of those involved in the collision, but said one person was killed and another was hospitalized. He said the crash is under investigation.

According to Morrison Payne Funeral Home in Burley, 59-year-old Albion resident Santiago "Ed" Maestas died of injuries suffered in a Friday automobile accident.

Magic Valley's Students of the Week

Artist • Xavier Kiri Albrecht

Kiri, a senior at Xavier Charter School in Twin Falls, has participated in the school's art program since its inception five years ago. According to Kiri, art makes her complete. "I have a great appreciation for my mentor-teacher, Mr. Hicks," she said. "He's taught me all that I know about art." Kiri recently won the regional Silver Key Award sponsored by the Idaho Art and Writing Scholastic Competition. She was one of the top 20 finalists for two-dimensional work in the Savannah College of Art and Design Challenge. "I am going to do art for as long as I can hold a pencil. Without art, I would not know what to do with myself," she said. She is a member of the National Honor Society, as well as vice president of Xavier Student Government. She plans to attend art college.

Athlete • Richfield Sasha Kent

Sasha has participated in cross country and basketball for all four years in high school. In cross country she finished in 19th place her freshman year, second her junior year and fifth her senior year. Sasha has been a varsity starter on two state championship basketball teams (freshman and sophomore years) and a state runner-up her junior year. Sasha won state last year in the 800 meters, 1,600 meters and 3,200 meters. Her sophomore year, she finished second in all three distance races, and she placed in the top six in all three races her freshman year. Sasha has now started her senior year in track and she looks forward to defending her three state titles. She has also recently signed with Idaho State University and will run cross country and track in college.

Academic • Hagerman Zachery Chapman

Zachery has many accomplishments to be proud of in his senior year at Hagerman High School. He currently holds a 4.0 grade-point average, is a member of the National Honor Society, and maintains a challenging class schedule including college algebra/trigonometry through the University of Idaho. Zach is a member of Hagerman High School's Youth Action Council, former Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership nominee, Boys State delegate, and Eagle Scout. He has also been involved with 4-H and Business Professionals of America. Earlier this school year, Zach's accomplishments were recognized when he was named a KMVT Academic All-Star.

TWIN FALLS • The city of Twin Falls hopes Idaho commerce officials will provide them another half-million-dollar piece to the Chobani puzzle.

In luring the planned 400-job Greek yogurt production plant to Twin Falls, the city, its Urban Renewal Agency, the state and other investors put up a $25.1 million package of incentives, with the understanding that Chobani's parent company, Agro-Farma would put at least $128 million into its new plant in southeast Twin Falls.

That will allow the city and URA to recover its investment through increased property tax revenues afforded by the plant's construction.

Part of the package is a planned $4.4 million expansion of the city's water system, which will both handle Chobani's needs and — the city hopes — spur further area growth. The money is expected to come from URA and city resources.

In an effort to reduce costs, the city plans to apply for a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant through the Idaho Department of Commerce. Today, the City Council will be asked to give its OK to the city's application.

If the funding is awarded, the city will be expected to match the grant amount. But with the project moving forward regardless, that's not expected to be an issue.

In January, the city received a similar $500,000 grant to help pay for electrical infrastructure for the Chobani plant, which is expected to open this summer.

Also on the agenda for today's Twin Falls City Council meeting, held at 5 p.m. at Council Chambers, 305 Third Ave. E.:

- The council will consider approving an alcohol license application by Mezzamie, Inc., which operates The Historic Ballroom in downtown Twin Falls. If approved, the event center will be able to serve alcohol beyond the current beer and wine it's permitted to serve.

- With Planning and Zoning Commissioners Kevin Cope, Erik Mikesell and Jim Schouten all at the end of their second term and not eligible for reappointment, council members will consider three new appointments to the commission. City staff recommends that three-year terms be awarded to contractor Kevin Grey, KMVT-TV Creative Services Director Tom Frank and retired mechanical engineer Steve Woods.

- A 6 p.m. hearing will be held on a request for a vacation of public rights-of-way and easements for part of the Fieldstone Subdivision, which is located west of Grandview Drive between Cheney Avenue and North College Road. The change will allow the property owner, Brad Wills, to re-subdivide the property.

Semi Crashes Southwest of Twin Falls

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A trucker's planned trip through Twin Falls took a literal turn for the worse Sunday when the driver failed to negotiate a curve southwest of the city.

The unidentified driver out of California, who was hauling water, failed to notice signs warning of the curve before he came upon the turn just east of the U.S. Highway 93/Idaho Highway 74 junction. At about 9:17 a.m., he overcorrected in an attempt to make the turn, which caused the truck to tip onto its side and off the road.

Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said the road was closed for about a mile stretch east while crews worked to unload the water and move the truck out.

The driver was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center with minor injuries, and was not cited for the crash.

ISP Seeks Help on Rollover Near Buhl

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • Idaho State Police troopers are looking for information from the Good Samaritans who gave a Wendell man a ride to his hometown after he rolled his vehicle into a ravine Saturday morning.

Troopers say 21-year-old Jake Burrell was uninjured after he missed a curve on the Clear Lakes Grade on Idaho Highway 46, north of Buhl.

According to police, his vehicle crossed the center line, left the roadway, struck a guardrail and rolled into a ravine near milepost 89.

It came to rest on its roof, leaning against a group of trees, according to ISP.

Alcohol and speed are believed to have factored into the crash, which remains under investigation.

Troopers began investigating the crash at about 7:22 a.m. Saturday, but believe the actual incident occurred near midnight. ISP hopes to learn more from whoever gave Burrell a ride from near the crash site to Wendell. Those individuals are asked to call the ISP Region 4 office at 324-6000, ext. 6013.

Two Injured in I-84 Rollover

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Two people were hospitalized early Sunday morning after their pickup rolled on Interstate 84 near Jerome.

Shannon Mitchell and Dawn Mitchell, both 36, were transported by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center with unknown injuries after the 2:20 a.m. crash.

Shannon Mitchell, an Idaho Falls resident, was driving eastbound in a Ford F150 when he drifted into the median and overcorrected, causing his truck to roll once and land upright in the median. Dawn Mitchell, of Salt Lake City, was ejected from the truck and landed in the roadway.

Neither subject was wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash.

According to an ISP release, roads were dry and clear, and alcohol is not believed to be a factor in the crash, which remains under investigation.

Tearful Putin Declares Victory in Russian Presidential Election

BY SERGEI L. LOIKO
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW • As tens of thousands of supporters chanted his name at a wintry outdoor rally, Prime Minister Vladimir Putin declared victory in the Russian presidential election.

But opponents of Putin promised to respond with their own mass rallies beginning Monday to highlight vote fraud allegations and ongoing government corruption.

Election officials said Sunday that the prime minister held nearly 65 percent of the vote with almost two-thirds counted.

premier in 2008, led four rivals including Communist leader Gennady Zyuganov, who had 17 percent, according to the preliminary tabulations of Russia's Central Election Commission. "I asked you once if we would win and we did win!" shouted Putin as the large crowd in Manezhnaya Square chanted: "Putin, Putin, Putin!"

The 59-year-old president-elect asserted that the campaign proved "an open and fair struggle" and that by placing him back in the presidency, Russian voters were rejecting anti-government forces seeking to "dismantle the Russian statehood and usurp power."

But many vehemently disagreed. "It is clear that the slim hopes that the election could be fair have not come true and as we expected the vote was conducted with massive serious

Obama Rejects 'Bluster' Over Iran But Assures Israel's Supporters

BY CHRISTI PARSONS AND PAUL RICHTER
Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama cautioned against "bluster" and "loose talk of war" with Iran even as he assured U.S. supporters of Israel that he will use American military force if necessary to prevent Tehran from obtaining a nuclear weapon.

Obama

In an address heavy with election year defenses of his record, Obama argued Sunday that open talk of war in recent weeks has benefited the Iranian government by causing a run-up in the price of oil, Iran's main export. He told an audience of thousands at the American Israel Public Affairs Committee annual conference that opponents of Iran's nuclear program should wait to see the impact of new economic sanctions on Iran's oil and banking sectors, which take effect this summer.

"Now is the time to let our increased pressure sink in, and to sustain the broad international coalition we have built," Obama said. "Now is the time to heed that timeless advice from Teddy Roosevelt: Speak softly. Carry a big stick."

The admonishment against war talk seemed aimed primarily at Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu — with whom Obama is scheduled to meet Monday in Washington — Netanyahu's backers in Congress and the Republican presidential candidates. Officials close to Netanyahu have hinted broadly at Israeli airstrikes against Iranian nuclear sites this year, and some prominent Republicans have chastised Obama for opposing that idea.

At the same time, Obama warned Iran that his preference for diplomacy is not as important as results. "When it comes to preventing Iran from obtaining a nuclear weapon, I will take no options off the table, and I mean what I say," he said.

As he did in an interview released Friday, Obama emphasized that he would not accept "containment" — living with Iran having a nuclear weapon and hoping to deter its use — as a strategy.

"Iran's leaders should understand that I do not have a policy of containment; I have a policy to prevent Iran from obtaining a nuclear weapon," he said.

Indiana Baby Found in Field after Tornado Dies

Girl's death brings overall toll from Friday's storms to 39 across five states. Rescuers were still going door-to-door in rural areas to rule out more victims.

BY REBECCA YONKER AND TOM LOBIANCO
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. • An Indiana toddler found in a field after violent tornadoes died Sunday after being taken off life support, ending a hopeful tale for survivors in the Midwest and South picking through the storms' devastation.

Fifteen-month-old Angel Babcock of New Pekin, Ind., was found after her family's mobile home was destroyed in Friday's storms. Her father, mother and two siblings were killed.

When Angel arrived at Kosair Children's Hospital in Louisville Friday night, she was opening her eyes — a hopeful sign, chief nursing officer Cis Gruebbel said.

Things turned on Saturday, when the swelling in her brain didn't decrease, he said. As the day went on, her eyes ceased to move and she continued to deteriorate. There was no sign of brain activity.

Medical staff told the family there wasn't anything more they could do. With extended family gathered to say goodbye, the family made the decision to end life support on Sunday.

"Angel has been reunited with her parents," her grandfather, Jack Brough, said in a statement. "We want to thank God for all of you and for your thoughts and prayers. God will bring you and all of us out of this. This is what it will take. All should look to God."

The girl's death brings the overall toll from Friday's storms to 39 across five states. Rescuers were still going door-to-door in rural areas to rule out more victims. Another round of storms earlier last week killed 13 people in the Midwest and South, the latest in a string of severe-weather episodes ravaging the American heartland in the past year.

On Sunday, people gathered to worship, comb through piles of debris and learn what happened to loved ones and friends, often without modern technology to help.

Cellphone signals were hard to find, Internet was out and electricity indefinitely interrupted. In many cases, word-of-mouth conversations replaced text messages, Facebook status updates and phone calls.

"It's horrible. It's things you take for granted that aren't there anymore," said Jack Cleveland, 50, a Census Bureau worker from Henryville, Ind.

Randy Mattingly, a 24-year-old mechanic, said he and his Henryville neighbors passed on information by word-of-mouth to make sure people were OK: "It was like, 'Hey, did you talk to this guy?'" He said state police quickly set up two gathering points for adults and children, at the church and at a nearby community center.

At Sunday's mass at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Henryville, Father Steve Schaflein turned the church into an information exchange, asking the 100 or so in attendance to stand up and share what they knew.

Lisa Smith, who has been Henryville's postmaster for six weeks, told people that they could pick up their mail in Scottsburg, about 10 miles north. She said she was most worried about people needing medication and she had been shaking boxes to see if they had pills inside with hopes of connecting them to their recipients.

A local insurance agent, Lyn Murphy-Carter, shared another story. The founder of her agency, 84-year-old Tom Murphy, had told her always to keep paper records. That proved valuable without access to computers. She collected about 1,000 claims Saturday alone, and was gathering handwritten claims from policyholders at church.

In West Liberty, Ky., about 85 miles east of Lexington, loss of technology led to a confusing and stressful aftermath for Doris Shuck, who was cleaning her house when the storm approached. She grabbed her laptop, cellphone and iPod and put them in a tote bag to bring down to the basement. The storms took her home, leaving only the basement and front porch. Huge piles of debris and mattresses were strewn in the backyard.

Limbaugh Comments Overshadow GOP Contest

BY STEVE PEOPLES AND KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

Limbaugh

MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Intensifying debate over conservative social values — and Republican icon Rush Limbaugh — overshadowed the nation's economic concerns Sunday as the Republican presidential campaign hurtled toward Super Tuesday contests that could re-shape the nomination battle and shift the direction of the Grand Old Party.

Mitt Romney and Rick Santorum distanced themselves from Limbaugh, who boasts a huge conservative following and recently apologized for calling a Georgetown University law student a "slut" and a "prostitute" on his nationally syndicated radio program. The woman testified at a congressional hearing in favor of an Obama administration mandate that employee health plans include free contraceptive coverage. While religious institutions are exempt, their affiliates, such as hospitals and universities, were at first included in the requirement. Under harsh criticism from conservatives, President Barack Obama later said the affiliates could opt out, but insurers must pay for the coverage.

The GOP framed the issue as one of religious liberty. But Obama's chief political strategist suggested the Limbaugh's reaction — and Republicans slow repudiation of his comments — would benefit Democrats in the general election this fall.

"I think what Rush Limbaugh said about that young woman was not only vile and degrading to her, but to women across the country," David Axelrod said on ABC's "This Week" Sunday morning.

While the contraception debate raged on national television, Newt Gingrich predicted a strong performance Tuesday would resurrect his fading candidacy. Romney and Santorum spent Sunday racing across Georgia, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Ohio, four of the ten states to host elections on Super Tuesday, the biggest single voting day of the 2012 cycle.

Romney picked up endorsements from two influential Republican lawmakers: House Majority Leader Eric Cantor of Virginia and Oklahoma Sen. Tom Coburn, widely regarded as one of the most conservative members of the U.S. Senate.

Campaigning in Alaska, Ron Paul conceded he's a long shot.

"Do I believe I can win? Yes. Do I believe the chances are slim? Yes, I do," he said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Super Tuesday's defining contest may be Ohio, where Santorum and Romney have devoted tremendous time and resources in recent weeks. Santorum's performance there could well define his fate — and Romney's — in the rollercoaster race going forward.

"This is a game of survival," Santorum said while campaigning Sunday in Memphis, Tenn.

Preparing for the worst, Romney's campaign began preparing for a possible loss in Ohio, where polls show the former Massachusetts governor locked in a dead heat with Santorum, a former senator from neighboring Pennsylvania.

"I don't think any state is a must-win," Romney adviser Eric Fehrnstrom said. "I think the only must-do on a candidate's check list is getting 1,144 delegates."

206 Killed in Republic of Congo Arms Depot Blasts

BY LOUIS OKAMBA
Associated Press

BRAZZAVILLE, Republic of Congo • Homes and buildings collapsed in the Congolese capital after an arms depot exploded Sunday, killing at least 206 people and entombing countless others in crushed structures including inside two churches that buckled while parishioners were celebrating Mass, officials and witnesses said.

The shock waves shattered windows in a three-mile radius surrounding the barracks storing the munitions, including across the river that separates Brazzaville, the capital of the Republic of Congo, from Kinshasa, the capital of the larger Central African nation of Congo.

Government spokesman Bienvenu Okyemi blamed a short-circuit for the fire that set off the successive blasts.

"It's like a tsunami passed through here," said Christine Ibata, a student. "The roofs of houses were blown off."

Some 1,500 people were injured, Okyemi said on national radio.

The register of a morgue in Brazzaville already had 136 bodies Sunday afternoon, as more continued to arrive.

A doctor at the capital's military hospital who asked not to be named because he was not authorized to speak to the press reported 70 more deaths.

Okyemi put the official toll at 146 dead, at a late-night news conference, but said rescue workers still were looking for corpses.

He said the main fire was under control, though some homes still were burning.

"But we must warn them that the authorities who unleash a war against their own people always end up very badly," he added. "Putin has not been elected by the people because Putin has elected himself."

Putin, who says his goal is to defend Russia from foreign influences, served two terms as president from 2000 to 2008 and will now serve a six-year term ending in 2018. Fraud allegations in Dec. 4 parliamentary elections that saw Putin's United Russia party win nearly 50 percent of the vote resulted in a series of "Arab Spring"-like anti-government protests in Moscow.

On Sunday night, large crowds of Putin supporters filled the square near the Kremlin, waving banners that read "Putin is our president" and "We are for Putin." "Those who don't vote for Putin are either enemies of the state or those who live so well that they go crazy," Alexei Gromsky, a 40-year-old Moscow unemployed resident. "I live much better now than before Putin and my job problem is purely temporary."

Many of the pro-Putin demonstrators were bused to the rally and some said friends were ordered by their bosses to show up in exchange for a day off of work.

Poland Defends Rail Safety after Crash

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SZCZEKOCINY, Poland • Poland's government insisted Sunday that rail travel is safe in the country despite a train collision that killed 16 people, assurances that come months before masses of sports fans will enter the country for a major soccer tournament — many of whom will crisscross the nation by train.

Saturday night's crash, Poland's mostly deadly rail tragedy in more than two decades, raised new questions about the safety of a state-run rail network, which has undergone modernization in recent years. Poland still has a rail system marked by the legacy of the communist decades, but has been working to upgrade trains and tracks.

The trains collided head-on in a shower of sparks and mangled metal, killing 16 people and injuring dozens more near the southern town of Szczekociny, just north of Krakow. Both trains inexplicably ended up running on the same track. Polish leaders said it was the worst rail tragedy since 16 people were killed in a 1990 collision near Warsaw.

Survivor and Liberator Meet 60 Years after Witnessing Horror of Dachau

BY JOANN LOVIGLIO

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA • The way Ernie Gross and Don Greenbaum laugh and tell jokes with the ease of old friends, it's easy to assume the dapper octogenarians have known each other forever.

In reality, they only met a few months ago. Their familiarity doesn't come from shared memories of a childhood playground or a high school dance but a far darker place: Both men spent a single day at the Dachau concentration camp on the day its 30,000 prisoners were liberated by American GIs in 1945.

Greenbaum, 87, and Gross, 83, don't think they met that day in Dachau but nevertheless share a bond. They met after Gross, who lives in Philadelphia, saw a mention in a local newspaper last November about Greenbaum, a Philadelphia native now living in suburban Bala Cynwyd.

"Ernie wanted to thank me for saving his life, quote unquote, even though there were 50,000 other men there with me," Greenbaum said, with a hint of unease, during an interview at Gross' home. "And we sat and had lunch together and discussed what happened 66 years ago."

Gross, then all of 85 pounds after nearly a year of sickness, abuse and constant hunger, had no doubt April 29, 1945, was his last day on earth. Greenbaum, a soldier with Gen. George Patton's Third Army 283rd Field Artillery Battalion, arrived that day at Dachau expecting to seize ammunition, clothing and food that was kept for the Nazis notorious SS forces.

They were both wrong, it turned out.

The men, who talk about their experiences at local synagogues and schools, now are working together to find other Dachau survivors and liberators in the area to share their stories. They acknowledge that recounting the horrors of the Holocaust isn't easy but believe it's their duty.

"As we got near Dachau, about a mile outside the camp, there was an odor we couldn't identify," Greenbaum said. "When we arrived, I saw the boxcars. They were full of bodies."

History would come to call it the Dachau death train: some 40 cattle cars holding more than 2,000 men and women evacuated from another camp — and left to die on the train — in the final weeks of World War II.

"We had at that time never heard the expression 'concentration camp,' we never heard of a death camp," Greenbaum said. "None of us had any idea."

Gross, a Romanian Jew, was 15 when he and his family were taken from their home, deported to a ghetto in Hungary and eventually packed on a standing-room-only boxcar to Auschwitz in 1942. At the urging of a man next to him as they waited in line to be processed, he lied and told the SS officer he was 17.

Any younger and he'd be deemed incapable of hard labor and, he was told, immediately killed.

"The same guy who told me to lie said to me, 'Do you see that smoke in the sky where the sun cannot get through? This is going to be your parents in about two hours,' he recalled. "My parents and younger brother and younger sister ... that's the last time I saw them." Of his two older brothers also sent to labor camps, one — his favorite — also died.

In a state of starvation, and after months of daily beatings and backbreaking work, then-16-year-old Gross was shoved onto another boxcar, this time headed to Dachau, near Munich. It was supposed to arrive a day before the liberation, on April 28, but American bombings derailed the train.

When he arrived the next day, barely able to walk, Gross knew he would soon be murdered: hanged, shot, gassed, he didn't know. He was so close to death that he didn't care.

"We were standing in this long line and we already knew where we were going," he said. "I was close enough that I could see the crematorium and, all of a sudden, I see the German soldiers throwing down their guns and running away."

The first contingent of Americans had arrived.

"If they would have come an hour later, I would not be here to tell this story," Gross said in accented English underscoring his eastern European roots. "They took me right away, they knew I am falling apart, and they put me in a sanitarium to recuperate."

Greenbaum said his company arrived shortly after the first wave of American troops and spent only a couple of hours at Dachau before moving on to their next mission. The SS at Dachau were captured, killed or in hiding by the time he arrived.

"We met a priest there who took us through the camp. He showed us what was there; the prisoners were walking skeletons," he said. "We called the troop behind us to notify them about what we had come across and to bring food and clothing and blankets and the whole bit. Then we left. We had to keep going."

After the war, both men went on with their lives and tried to leave their wartime nightmares behind.

Gross came to the U.S. and settled in Philadelphia, where he started out slicing lox in a delicatessen and ended up owning three delis of his own, married and had three boys. His first wife, who died 19 years after they wed, was from Czechoslovakia and also spent time in a concentration camp. The couple never discussed those times — not even where they were imprisoned during the Holocaust — and his children only know his story by hearing him speak at public events.

"I never told my wife about myself, I never told my sons. I wasn't up to it," he said. "After so many years, I decided I better start speaking to people to know who I am and where I come from."

After his second wife died about 15 years ago, Gross said "something in me was healing and I was able to overcome it."

"When you are bitter, it takes energy," he said. Constantly smiling and a consummate joke-teller, he says he tries to make one person laugh every day. Usually, he succeeds.

Greenbaum, whose military career also includes the Battle of the Bulge and a Purple Heart, returned home, married and also never discussed the war until he saw a Holocaust denial on television 20 years ago.

"That motivated me to speak because I saw what happened," he said. "This fellow's on TV saying it never happened. I was there and I saw it. Ernie and I, we both were there ... we know."

Democrats, Republicans — Socialists One and All

It's never been hard to get a liberal's goat, except in the case of the commune-type leftists who own actual goats. They watch the livestock closely.

Newsday

But if hippie ire was what you were after, stating that people are born with different intellectual abilities and the dumbest ones can't really be educated, or claiming poor people lack money because they're lazy and spend unwisely, generally did the trick.

Now, though, it's become even easier. Simply call President Barack Obama a socialist and watch the craft-beer and artisanal-wine spittle fly.

Obama is a socialist, but so is every presidential candidate except Uncle Ron. So are you.

"Socialist" is not a bad name, it's a well-meaning philosophy that most Americans and almost all western Europeans embrace, though they might deny it. Social Democrat-type socialists believe in using varying levels of taxation and collectivizing risk to ensure everyone gets a decent amount of government service. They think the richest should pay the most and the poorest shouldn't eat Hamster Chow (pundits traditionally use cat food as an example, but it's crazy expensive, and not at all tasty).

Our federal income tax system is socialist. It would be even if we went to a flat tax. If the rate were 20 percent, those making $30,000 would pay $6,000 and those earning $300,000 would pay $60,000. It doesn't feel flat to the one kicking in the $60,000.

School taxes are socialist. They're levied on home value, not how many kids you need educated or how much your Billy, with his endless crying and manic phobia of vowels, costs to teach. Childless couples in mansions on Long Island pay $30,000 per year in school taxes while working-class folks with six kids pay $7,000. We should contribute according to our ability and benefit according to our need, Karl Marx said, and that's how we fund schools.

Medicare, promising everyone health care once they turn 65 in return for 2.9 percent of their salary, is blatantly socialist. People's health care costs don't multiply in direct relation to their paychecks.

Even Social Security benefits low earners, paying them far more per dollar they kick in than high earners. And the program actually sends checks to disabled folks, and the families of deceased workers, some of whom hardly paid in anything. It's a scandal, I tell you, a Red conspiracy.

And no, retirees, you did not pay for your benefits. You didn't put in enough to cover what you'll get out. And you didn't have enough kids to pay in for you. That's one of the reasons we're going broke.

In a truly capitalist nation, I would not have to see more than 15 percent of my compensation — half from me and half from my employer — confiscated for Social Security and Medicare. I could fund my retirement by putting that money aside to start a VCR repair shop, since you can never find a good VCR repair shop anymore and there's a fortune to be made. And if it turns out that I'm wrong, and can't buy food or health care, well, I'll starve. Or bleed to death. Whichever.

Unless you're willing to abolish public schools, Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, the Postal Service, public roads, et cetera, you're a socialist. Socialism isn't just about the government taking from us what we don't feel we can spare. It is also about what the government provides us that we don't think we can spare.

The shocker isn't that Obama's a socialist, it's that Romney, Santorum and Gingrich are, too. Ron Paul isn't, but that's the real joke in this "capitalist" country. It's because Paul's not a socialist that he has as much chance of being elected president as I do of getting rich off of VCR repair.

Educators Have Choices for Unions

It should be no surprise that membership in local affiliates of the Idaho Education Association has declined below a majority in many districts. Teachers across the state are clearly frustrated with the high cost of dues, adversarial relationships and partisan politics associated with the teacher's unions.

What educators should know is that they have options. Teachers can retain their bargaining privileges if they exercise their right to form "local only" associations through a majority vote. "Local only" associations have distinct advantages. Sans the expense, politics and tactics of the IEA-NEA middleman, more teachers may join, thereby strengthening the local association's voice.

Northwest Professional Educators, a nonpartisan, nonunion association, empowers teachers to form effective "local only" associations. For a fraction of the cost of IEA-NEA dues, NWPE provides teachers with caring support and non-bargaining benefits such as $2 million liability insurance, legal counsel and local attorney fees for employment rights issues, giving them the security and peace of mind that they are represented when a concern or crisis occurs. NWPE can also connect local associations with negotiation resources.

Teachers have a choice. Local only associations partnered with NWPE can lead to a new environment where teachers receive the respect, recognition and reward they deserve.

CINDY OMLIN
Spokane, Wash.

(Editor's note: Cindy Omlin is the executive director of Northwest Professional Educators. A Feb. 20 Times-News report noted that union ranks have declined, though it wasn't clear if they were below a majority in many districts as the IEA did not provide figures.)

Caucus Drives This Voter Away

This is a letter of praise and vilification. The vilification is for whoever decided that a caucus instead of a regular vote was a good way to decide Idaho's choice for the Republican candidate to challenge Obama this November.

As a voter with mobility issues and who has been paying attention to the primary processes, I feel disenfranchised by this primary caucus in Twin Falls. If I were able to go to a crowded venue and sit around for several hours and listen to lots of political hogwash, I still would consider it a colossal waste of my time and an insult to my intelligence. Therefore, I will not be voting in this year's primary.

And I won't forget the Republican Party for its role in this little waste of time and intelligence.

The praise is for the regular citizens of Twin Falls who never fail to offer their assistance to me if I appear to need help. Young, old, busy or not, people are observant and kind and I thank you all.

Illegals Exert Too Much Influence

Our borders are inadequately controlled with resultant inundation of our republic by illegals.

- There is significant terrorist traffic from hostile countries entering South America. They are not on a good will tour!

- More than 20 years ago there were warnings about Iran's quest for missiles. That time has arrived.

- The current administration has "thrown Israel under the bus." Obama asserted that Israel should revert to pre-1967 borders (indefensible).

- When Egyptian President Mubarak was overthrown, Obama reached out to the Muslim Brotherhood. (sponsors of terrorism).

- Obama is compounding our problems by authorizing too many legal immigrants (some with ideologies incompatible with our culture).

- Bleeding heart liberals fail to comprehend that Jihad is the ideology that is committed to our destruction.

- Our relationship with the United Nations needs serious review. We should not subject ourselves to more abuse!

- Our U.S. State Department is incompetent with an atmosphere of appeasement and throwing our tax dollars to ungratefults.

- The concept of fear of mutual mass destruction is no longer valid. The Iranian Jihadists don't care if they die as martyrs.

- Now Iran threatens to block the strategic Strait of Hormuz. And recent reports indicate Syria has chemical and biological weapons (courtesy of Iraq?).

- Christians are being murdered, Holy Bibles and churches burned throughout many parts of Africa, the Mideast and elsewhere. We receive no apologies!

- More delaying tactics by North Korea and Iran about their nuclear ambitions! When will we face reality?

- Am I the only one who understands that it is not an "Arab spring" going on in the Middle East and many parts of Africa. Clearly, it is a crusade toward establishing a worldwide Islamic caliphate!

- There is a quest to implement Sharia Law in our republic. The Oklahoma Legislature tried to prevent it and provide a safeguard, but a liberal federal judge put a stay on their effort.

Youngster's Advice

Hello. I am writing as a local student from Idaho. I am aware of the great debt which America is in and, as a brief statement, I'd like to say two things:

America needs to cut the "eternal" paychecks of the government officials and try to refrain from letting the environmental leaders control our government and way of life.

State Should Finally Choose on Tax

In reference to streamlined sales tax:

Many of the articles I read about our current legislative session continue to say how tight the budgets are. No money for teacher raises. No money for employee raises. I say bunk!

Idaho has the ability to collect an estimated $30 million a year from online and catalog sales and will not do it. The law is already on the books. If we are not going to collect the tax, then the law should be removed.

Winners Are a Rare Breed

Hi, Dave, what is on your mind today?

I am thinking about winners I know. In my mind, a winner not only shows excellence in their endeavors, whether it be in business, service, education or athletics but exudes a certain amount of humility and kindness. This is a rare quality in our hustle and bustle world.

In the past eight years since retiring from California and moving to the Magic Valley, here are some of those people.

We have Denise at the Bank of America; Anissa, who works in the library at the College of Southern Idaho; Kathy, who is the manager at the Oasis Stop in Jerome; Tim, the manager at Ron's Car Care Center in Jerome; Jody and Rick at the Golden Corral Restaurant; Juanita, the manager at the Magic Valley Fellowship Hall; Raquel, who heads up the Spanish language department at CSI; and most of the deputies at the Jerome Sheriff's office; plus Rick, who is the new manager of Stepping Stones Halfway House for men.

Dave, who do you think is the biggest winner you have met in your lifetime?

I think it was a fellow competitor whom I competed with in the realm of track and field for almost 20 years. His name was Jay Silvester, who from 1957 until 1976 was an Olympic medal competitor, many time national champion and world record holder in the men's discus. He was always kind to all his competitors and had a good word for all. A man of great faith from Tremonton, Utah, he has always been an example to me what a winner exemplifies. I last saw Jay at the Cal Relays in Modesto in 1996, but will probably see him again as he plans to attend as a spectator at the Olympic trials in Eugene this summer.

I am sure there are other winners in the Magic Valley I will come in contact with.

Monty Mericle measures noise from a jet airliner Wednesday as it takes off from Gowen Field near his Boise home.

Boise Residents Hope to Wave Off F-35 Jets

BOISE (AP) • A group of residents in southwest Idaho is hoping to ground a possible plan to bring F-35 fighter jets to Boise's Gowen Field.

Residents say they fear deafening jet engines flying over homes, causing health problems and lowering property values.

"People have no concept of what it will be like to live here," Monty Mericle, an engineer and the group's leader, told the Idaho Statesman.

The Air Force is also looking at training sites at Tucson International Airport and Luke Air Force Base in Arizona, and another in New Mexico. The F-35 is intended to eventually replace the aging F-16.

A study by the Air Force found as many as 10,000 people near the Boise Airport would hear loud and frequent jet noise if the maximum 74 F-35s were placed at Gowen Field.

The Air Force has said its preferred location is Arizona, but it's required by federal regulations to complete an environmental impact process. The Air Force said it would take at least $167 million in airfield construction to use the airport in Boise.

Air Force officials said all public comments will be considered. Comments are due by March 14.

"It remains highly unlikely that the F-35 will come to Gowen Field at any time in the foreseeable future," Boise city officials said. "The city of Boise will study the draft EIS and use it to inform our position on the F-35."

Supporters of bringing the F-35s to Boise say it would create about 2,500 jobs, which Lt. Gov. Brad Little said at a public hearing last week are critical. A final decision where the F-35 is housed is anticipated in the fall.

The Boise base now houses A-10 Warthogs.

After Crash, Dog Survives Weeks in Nev. Desert

The animal's owner says she never gave up hope that her dog, Dooley, would be found alive.

BY MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • Barbara Bagley says she never gave up hope that her dog would be found alive in the Nevada desert after the animal bolted from the scene of a crash that critically injured her and killed her husband.

But the Salt Lake City woman endured plenty of frustration until her beloved 4-year-old Shetland sheepdog, Dooley, was tracked down Feb. 18 after surviving 53 days in the wild on roadkill and scattered ranch water sources.

"I would think about Dooley constantly," she said. "There were TV commercials with dogs that made me think about him and cry. He's just the sweetest dog."

The Dec. 27 single-vehicle accident on Interstate 80 near Battle Mountain, about 225 miles east of Reno, sent Bagley and her 55-year-old husband, Brad Vom Baur, to the hospital in critical condition. Their other sheltie, Delaney, was killed in the wreck. Dooley ran away and vanished.

Bagley, 48, suffered a concussion, broken ribs, a shattered wrist and two punctured lungs. As soon as she mustered up enough strength, she turned her attention to a search for her dog in the sprawling sage-covered plains and hills of northeastern Nevada.

Realizing what Dooley could mean for her recovery, dozens of Nevada volunteers responded to a Facebook plea for help in looking for him. But the search was canceled before it began after the Jan. 6 discovery of what appeared to be the dog's remains along the interstate. The same day, her husband died.

Barbara Bagley and her Shetland sheepdog, Dooley, are seen after the two were reunited on Feb. 18 east of Battle Mountain, Nev.

"It was a horrible day for me," Bagley recalled. "But something inside me told me Dooley was still alive out there. I wasn't 100 percent sure, but I didn't grieve for Dooley like I did for my husband and our other dog."

More than three weeks later, Bagley's spirits were buoyed after a woman reported spotting "a Lassie-type" dog near the accident scene. A subsequent search joined by Bagley turned up nothing, but a railroad crew spotted a dog matching the same description in mid-February in the same area about 15 miles east of Battle Mountain.

Further searches netted a positive identification of Dooley but frustration as well because the skittish dog kept fleeing from Bagley and other searchers. Finally, Shannon Sustacha of Lamaille, who was on horseback, and a Bagley friend driving a Jeep cornered Dooley only five miles from the crash scene. The friend managed to nab the sheltie and put him in the Jeep.

An ecstatic, tearful Bagley arrived at the scene a short time later.

"Barbara got next to us and said three times, 'You think he'll remember me?'" Sustacha said. "When Barbara opened the door and looked at him, she said, 'My beautiful boy, my beautiful boy, you're home.' Oh, boy, all of us cried. I knew his adventure in Nevada was over. I also knew he and Barbara could start healing together."

A short time later, an exhausted Dooley sat on his owner's lap in the Jeep and fell asleep. He later began following Bagley around.

"I was overjoyed that I was going to have him back in my life. I think he felt the same about me," she said.

During his ordeal, Dooley's weight dropped from 44 pounds to 20 pounds. He was once spotted devouring a dead coyote along the roadway. A long bird bone was pulled from his throat by a veterinarian.

Since then, the dog has gradually put on weight and resumed regular walks with his owner. While Bagley is still going through the grieving process over her husband's death and recovering from her injuries, Dooley's presence has picked up her spirits immensely.

"He's the physical and mental affection that I need to recover," she said. "I owe him so much for the hope I have now and the renewed faith I have in prayer. Dogs are so great because of their unconditional love."

Bagley, a phlebotomy supervisor at LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City, also thinks her husband had something to do with Dooley's safe return home.

California Wildlife Official Under Fire for Idaho Cougar Hunt

The Fish and Game Commission president has drawn the ire of animal rights activists and California Democrats because killing a cougar is banned in his home state.

BY JASON DEAREN
Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. • The photo shows a hunter with a proud smile holding a slain, man-sized mountain lion in a snowy wilderness — a memento from a successful Idaho hunting trip that has become a political nightmare for the hunter. He is the state Fish and Game Commission president in California, where cougar killing is banned.

Since the photograph surfaced in a California hunting journal last month, Dan Richards has faced growing criticism, and animal rights activists and 40 California Democratic Assembly members have demanded that he resign from his appointed position. And on Thursday, he was hit with a complaint to the state's ethics commission that the lion hunt was an illegal freebie.

Defiantly defending himself, Richards has rebuffed calls to step down and has pointed out that he not only killed the cougar in Idaho, where that's legal, he ate what he shot, as good hunters do.

Richards is a Republican commercial real estate developer from San Bernardino County who unsuccessfully ran for governor during the 2003 recall election, garnering 383 votes. Richards was appointed in 2008 by former Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger.

He defended his hunt in a letter to a lawmaker who had demanded his resignation.

"While I respect our Fish and Game rules and regulations, my 100-percent legal activity out of California, or anyone else's for that matter, is none of your business," Richards wrote.

In a radio interview on a conservative talk show in Los Angeles, Richards called his critics "enviro-terrorists" and has said there was "zero" chance he would step down from the five-member commission, which sets hunting and fishing regulations in the state.

Animal rights activists held their noses but not their tongues when Richards, a member of the National Rifle Association, said that he found that puma "doesn't taste like chicken," and likened it to pork loin.

On Thursday, the charges got more serious for Richards when a former California Democratic Party official, Kathy Bowler, filed a formal ethics complaint with the California Fair Political Practices Commission.

Citing a San Jose Mercury News story, the complaint alleges Richards accepted a $6,800 gift from the Flying B Ranch because he didn't pay the full fee normally charged to guests who go on guided mountain lion hunts. Under California law, officials can't accept gifts of more than $420 a year.

Richards did not return calls and an email from The Associated Press on Friday seeking comment.

Joseph Peterson, manager of the Flying B Ranch near Kamiah where the hunting occurred, told the AP that he asked Richards to shoot the mountain lion as part of an effort to control the population there. He said Richards paid for a two-day bird hunting trip at $3,200 — not for the ranch's mountain lion package, which costs $6,800.

Peterson denied giving Richards a gift by not charging him for the ranch's mountain lion package too.

"It was going to die anyway. I was going to kill it. The purpose of shooting it was to reduce the population," Peterson said. "I don't do much for gifts. I'm here to turn a profit and keep people employed."

Hunting cougars, which are also called pumas or mountain lions, was banned in California in the early 1990s, though it's legal in Idaho and many other states.

The mountain lion population in the state is stable with an estimated 4,000-to-6,000 of the creatures. The big cats can only be killed by special depredation permit or to preserve public safety or to protect endangered bighorn sheep.

After the photo surfaced, Lt. Gov. Gavin Newsom — whose father is a former judge and past president of the Mountain Lion Preservation Foundation — questioned the wisdom of having a hunter as the head of an agency responsible for natural resources.

"Is it appropriate for the chair of the commission that oversees the management and governance of our wildlife and our fisheries and natural resources to go to another state to do something he can't do in this state?" Newsom said in a television interview.

The AP was not able to obtain permission to publish the photograph.

California has twice voted down statewide efforts to reinstate mountain lion hunting — a fact that critics say shows Richards is not suited for his post and out of step with the people.

Protect Yourself Against Colon Cancer

Men and women of all ages are diagnosed with colorectal cancer in Idaho every year. It's the second leading cause of cancer death in our state.

But colorectal cancer is very treatable when caught early. Screening through colonoscopy can prevent cancer by removing pre-cancerous polyps. And home colon health test kits can detect blood hidden in the stool—a potential sign of cancer.

If you have any concerns about your colon health, don't ignore your risks or warning signs. Talk to your doctor immediately.

Order a free colon health test kit today at stlukesonline.org/freetkit, or find a doctor at stlukesonline.org/clinic. You can also Call St. Luke's at (208) 381-9000 for assistance.

Warning Signs

- Change in bowel habits; constipation or diarrhea that lasts more than two weeks
- Feeling that the bowel does not empty
- Bright red or very dark blood in the stool; black stools
- Stools that look narrower or thinner than normal
- Unexplained weight loss
- Abdominal discomfort: frequent gas pains, bloating, fullness, or cramps
- Constant fatigue
- Unexplained anemia

Risk Factors

Talk with your doctor about early colonoscopy if you are at risk; otherwise, begin screening at age 50.

- Family history of colorectal or endometrial cancer
- Personal history of polyps or colorectal cancer, ulcerative colitis, or Crohn's disease
- Aging (most common over age 50)
- Physical inactivity
- Obesity
- A diet high in red meat can increase your risk; a diet low in animal fat and high in fiber, fruits, and vegetables can reduce your risk.

This Twist of Fate Kind to Pilots

For as long as anyone can remember who has followed Glens Ferry basketball, fate has not been kind to the Pilots.

The numerous near-misses. The seasons starting with high hopes, only to end with crushing defeats. The heartbreak and sadness endured by so many players taking off their uniforms for the last time.

It's tempting to call the Pilots' weekend run to the Class 1A Division I state title a miracle or Cinderella story.

This corner will call it for what it really is: A long time coming.

Patrick Sheltra

Sports Editor

"It really hasn't set in for me yet," said coach Nate Jones, Glens Ferry Class of 1973. "And the players, they won't know how big it really was until two, three, five or 20 years from now. They might realize how big it was then."

Fate smiled once on Glens Ferry in 1981 when it won its first and, until last Saturday, only state title in boys basketball. Dick Pusey, a 6-foot-7 center who Jones said was "as slow as molasses," but who got minutes earlier in the year when the team's starting center was injured, tipped in a loose ball for a basket that either won a state semifinal game or sent it to overtime, Jones explained.

"It wasn't some great athletic shot," Jones said. The Pilots followed that up with a blowout victory in the title game.

That's the exception. Jones recalled one of coach Gordon Brown's last teams before he retired in 1985, an absolutely loaded team with every right to set the bar high. The Pilots are playing Gooding in the district final, and a player whom Jones refuses to name because "he lives with it every day of his life," misses a wide-open shot under the basket. The Senators win by a deuce and go on to win the state tournament.

"Gordon liked to say you had to be lucky when you get to the tournament," Jones said.

Yet it wasn't luck that scored 95 points against Horseshoe Bend, although Jones admitted "that's the last thing I thought would happen." It was pressure defense and converting on the fast break.

It wasn't luck that allowed the Pilots to defeat top-ranked Genesee in Denny Hamlin (11) does a burnout after winning the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series auto race in Avondale, Ariz., on Sunday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HAMLIN DOMINANT IN THE DESERT

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AVONDALE, Ariz. • Denny Hamlin spent nearly two months of the offseason in the Scottsdale area, hoping to get away from racing for a while, reinvigorate himself for the 2012 season.

It seemed to do wonders, leading to a win at a place where he had one of the biggest disappointments of his career.

Hamlin pulled away when NASCAR's best closer ran out of gas and then had to sweat out his own fuel mileage before completing a confidence-boosting win at Phoenix International Raceway on Sunday.

"It's a little bit of satisfaction there, for sure," Hamlin said. "It's a bittersweet track."

It was, in fact, the site of one of his worst memories as a driver.

Hamlin seemed to have a comfortable lead over Jimmie Johnson in the penultimate race of the 2010 Chase when his title hopes were derailed by a fuel strategy that backfired. Forced to pit for fuel late in the race, he scrambled just to finish 19th while Johnson was fifth.

Hamlin left the desert dejected after his lead was trimmed to 15 points and ended up losing the title the next week to Johnson, who earned his record fifth straight Sprint Cup championship.

Hamlin then had bit of a hangover to start the 2011 season and never really clicked, ending up ninth in the Sprint Cup standings.

That's where his return to the desert comes in.

Trying to get away from the constant race chatter around the Charlotte, N.C., area, Hamlin rented a house in Paradise Valley for seven weeks during the offseason. He came back strong to start this season, finishing fourth at the Daytona 500 with new crew chief Darian Grubb after qualifying 31st.

Hamlin started 13th at PIR and briefly led a couple of times before beating Kevin Harvick off the line after a caution with 59 laps left. Harvick, NASCAR's best finisher, put a scare into him toward the end, but ran out of gas on the final lap.

Hamlin was concerned about gas as well, but had just enough for a celebratory burnout after his 18th career win and his first lead in the points since dejectedly leaving Phoenix in 2010.

"When I come back here (and win), it puts 2011 to rest," Hamlin said. "It's a year I'd soon like to forget and now we can focus on winning a championship."

Hamlin had to hold off NASCAR's version of a closer to get it.

Harvick, who won three races at the finish last season, had Hamlin lined up for another last-second victory.

But as he closed in on the No. 11's bumper, Harvick's car turned off. His team had been concerned about having enough fuel to get to the end and just missed it, the No. 29 coasting over the line just

MCILROY EARNS HIS STRIPES

McIlroy survives Tiger's final-round 62 to become second-youngest to attain top player ranking.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. • Rory McIlroy won the Honda Classic with a performance worthy of the new No. 1 player in golf.

Right when it looked as though McIlroy had no serious challenge Sunday, Tiger Woods put some color into that red shirt with a birdie-eagle finish for a 62 — his lowest final round ever — to get within one shot of the lead.

McIlroy could hear the roar from the farthest corner of PGA National, and the 22-year-old from Northern Ireland responded with some clutch golf of his own. He made an 8-foot birdie putt, and then made three clutch par saves during a daunting stretch at PGA National.

He played it safe with a two-shot lead on the par-5 18th and made par to close with a 1-under 69 and the victory he needed to replace Luke Donald atop the world ranking that will be published Monday.

Kentucky Caps Perfect SEC Season

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GAINESVILLE, Fla. • Freshman Anthony Davis had 22 points, 12 rebounds and six blocks, Terrence Jones added 19 points and No. 1 Kentucky capped a perfect Southeastern Conference season with a 74-59 victory over No. 16 Florida on Sunday.

Kentucky (30-1, 16-0) extended its winning streak to 22 games and secured its hold on a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament.

Patric Young led Florida (22-9, 10-6) with 21 points while Erik Murphy added 14 points and eight rebounds.

NO. 13 MICHIGAN 71, PENN ST. 65

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • Trey Burke scored 19 points and Michigan shot 59 percent from the field to keep its hopes for a share of the Big Ten title alive.

Evan Smotrycz added 17 points for the Wolverines (23-8, 13-5), who needed Ohio State to beat Michigan State later Sunday to claim a portion of its first conference championship since 1986.

NO. 14 WISCONSIN 70, ILLINOIS 56

MADISON, Wis. • Senior Jordan Taylor scored 16 points in his final home game for Wisconsin.

Josh Gasser added 16 points and eight rebounds for the Badgers (23-8, 12-6), who have won three straight.

Brandon Paul had 22 points for Illinois (17-14, 6-12), which had only three assists, a season-low, and lost its seventh straight road game.

No. 18 INDIANA 85, PURDUE 74

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. • Christian Watford scored 19 points and Will Sheehy

Creighton's Doug McDermott (3) shoots over Illinois State's John Wilkins (13) en route to scoring 33 points and earning MVP honors of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament title.

added 16 on Sunday, leading Indiana over rival Purdue on Senior Day.

The Hoosiers (24-7, 11-7 Big Ten) finished the regular season with an 18-1 home record, five wins over ranked teams and three against the top 5. Indiana also swept Purdue for the first time since 2005-06.

Purdue (20-11, 10-8) was trying to win its third straight in Bloomington for the first time since 1968-71, but fell behind early and never caught up. Lewis Jackson had 17 points and Robbie Hummel added 16 for the Boilermakers.

NO. 22 FLORIDA ST. 80, CLEMSON 72

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. • Michael Snaer scored a career-high 23 points to lead Florida State.

Bernard James added 13 points and 11 rebounds for his seventh double-double of the season while Xavier Gibson had 13 points for Florida State, which had five players finish in double figures.

The Seminoles (21-9, 12-4) finished third in the Atlantic Coast Conference behind No. 6 North Carolina and No. 4 Duke and have a first-round bye in the league tournament.

NO. 24 VIRGINIA 75, MARYLAND 72, OT

COLLEGE PARK, Md. • Mike Scott had a career-high 35 points and grabbed 11 rebounds and Sammy Zeglinski scored 20 points as Virginia overcame a late collapse in regulation.

The Cavaliers blew a 12-point lead over the final 8 minutes of regulation but survived the extra session to break a two-game skid. The victory gave Virginia (22-8, 9-7) its most regular-season wins since the Ralph Sampson-led team produced 25 in 1982-83.

Terrell Stoglin scored 25 points and Sean Mosley added 17 for Maryland (16-14, 6-10).

NO. 25 CREIGHTON 83, ILLINOIS ST. 79, OT

ST. LOUIS • Doug McDermott had 33 points and Antoine Young scored eight of his 14 in overtime as Creighton survived an upset bid in the Missouri Valley Conference tournament final.

Grant Gibbs added a career-high 20 points for second-seeded Creighton (28-5), which won the conference tournament for the seventh time in 14 seasons and earned its first NCAA bid since 2007.

McDermott, the conference player of the year, was 12 of 18 from the field with three 3-pointers. He broke the school's 43-year-old season scoring record in the first half and scored 17 of the Bluejays' 19 points in one stretch in the second half.

McIlroy: The New Face of Golf

For more months than we care to think about, the only real question in golf has been this: What's wrong with Tiger?

Maybe now we should be asking what's going so well with golf.

Plenty, if you judge from a Sunday afternoon in Florida, where a new star helped cement his claim to greatness even as he heard roars coming down the stretch that could only mean Tiger Woods was on the move.

No. 1 in the world was on the line for Rory McIlroy, but that wasn't even the biggest subplot of the day. That was owned by a player in bright red whose game finally matched the brilliance of his shirt.

Woods' 62 may not have put a scare into McIlroy, but it did put everyone on notice that he can still play golf. Doing it on Sunday after it's been so long since he's won a real tournament screamed out Woods was, indeed, back.

The only question is how much it still matters. To the crowd count, yes, and maybe even to the count always in Woods' head — the 18 majors won by Jack Nicklaus.

But there's a new attraction in golf, a curly haired 22-year-old from Northern Ireland who is just as much fun to watch as Woods in his prime and a lot more fun to be around. McIlroy's boyish charm and obvious joy for the game are in stark contrast to Woods, and he seems so approachable that one fan on the 17th tee on Saturday asked him what kind of shampoo he uses.

But the way he stared down Woods in the final round may be what separates him from all the pretenders that came before.

McIlroy never backed off, even when Woods made eagle on the final hole to pull within one in the Honda Classic. He heard the roars from the 18th green, then stepped up and calmly knocked in a birdie putt on No. 13 on his way to a win that made him the youngest No. 1 player in the world since — you guessed it — Woods early in his career.

McIlroy may not be the next Woods, but that's an unfair comparison. Woods in his prime was so dominant the odds are there will never be anyone like him again. And he showed Sunday that he's not done yet, something that should sell tickets and spark TV ratings the rest of the year.

Still, there's something about McIlroy that's appealing to watch, something about him that oozes star power. We've known it since his runaway win at the U.S. Open last year, and he confirmed it on a breezy day made even better by the pressure from the still big footsteps of Woods. While Woods was magnificent, McIlroy was steady and that was all he needed to become the first No. 1 since Woods that casual golf fans actually care about.

"It was always a dream of mine to become the world No. 1 and the best player in the world or whatever you want to call it," McIlroy said. "But I didn't know that I would be able to get here this quickly."

But he did, barely five years after turning pro as a teenager and with Woods in front of him in all his red shirt, fist-pumping glory. Woods' swing is different but he looked much like the Tiger of past — except, that is, when he waded in the crowd of autograph seekers he used to ignore and signed away as McIlroy played his way in.

"It was tough today, especially seeing Tiger make a charge," McIlroy said. "I knew par golf would probably be good enough. To shoot 1 under in these conditions, when you go into the round with the lead, is very nice. And I was just able to get the job done."

McIlroy is the 16th player to be No. 1 in the world, and the second-youngest behind Woods, who was 21 when he first went to No. 1 after the 1997 U.S. Open.

Donald responded quickly to the victory, tweeting "Congrats @McIlroyRory enjoy the view!"

Woods made two eagles in the final round and wound up two shots behind, along with Tom Gillis, who birdied the last hole for a 69.

McIlroy, who finished on 12-under 268, won for the fifth time in his career. Three of those are on the PGA Tour, including his record-setting victory in the U.S. Open last summer at Congressional.

He has finished out of the top five only once since the PGA Championship last August.

"There's very few players as good at him at his age out there winning tournaments," three-time major champion Pdraig Harrington said. "There are guys with potential, but he's already delivered. And he has a good balance in his life. He doesn't look like a guy who is going to burn out. He looks like he's going to be here for a while."

McIlroy shared a big hug with his father, Gerry, as he walked off the 18th green. His parents have come over from Hollywood to stay with him in south Florida through the Masters, where McIlroy figures to be a top favorite.

Kobe scores 33, Lakers Beat Wade's Heat

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES • Kobe Bryant scored 33 points in his third straight stellar performance since Dwyane Wade broke his nose in the All-Star game, and Wade managed just 16 points before fouling out midway through the fourth quarter of the Lakers' victory over the Miami Heat.

Metta World Peace scored 17 points while leading a solid defensive effort for the Lakers, who have won 17 of their last 18 home games. Andrew Bynum had 16 points and 13 rebounds as Los Angeles never trailed in the final 44 minutes against Miami, snapping a four-game skid in Bryant's head-to-head matchups with Wade's Heat.

CELTICS 115, KNICKS 111, OT

BOSTON • Celtics guard Rajon Rondo had his second triple-double in three games, spoiling Harvard grad Jeremy Lin's return to Boston.

Rondo had 18 points, 20 assists and a career-high 17 rebounds, and Paul Pierce scored 34 — including a 3-pointer with 4.9 seconds left in regulation. Kevin Garnett finished with 18 points with 10 rebounds.

Lin picked up two fouls in the first three minutes and struggled to 14 points in 32 minutes. He had five assists and four rebounds while shooting 6 for 16 from the floor.

NETS 104, BOBCATS 101
CHARLOTTE, N.C. • Deron Williams scored a franchise-record 57 points to lift New Jersey over Charlotte.

Williams, who came into the game averaging 21.7 points, shot 16 of 29 from the field and was a perfect 21 for 21 from the free-throw line.

Williams broke the franchise's previous mark of 52 points, shared by Mike Newlin and Ray Williams. It was the second-most points scored against the Bobcats, one shy of Kobe Bryant's 58 in 2006.

Corey Maggette had 24 points and Gerald Henderson added 15 for the Bobcats, who've lost five straight and 21 of their last 22.

The Nets trailed by eight at halftime but took the lead thanks to Williams, who scored 22 points in the third quarter.

BULLS 96, 76ERS 91

PHILADELPHIA • Derrick Rose tied a season high with 35 points, and Joakim Noah had 11 points and 18 rebounds to lead the Chicago Bulls to their sixth straight win.

In a battle of division leaders, the Bulls made all the big shots over the final minutes to end a three-game losing streak against the Sixers.

Leading 91-89, the Bulls turned the ball over, but Andre Iguodala tossed up an airball on a 3-point attempt. Again the Bulls turned the ball over, and this time it was Thaddeus Young who missed a jumper for the Sixers. At least his shot hit the rim.

RAPTORS 83, WARRIORS 75

TORONTO • DeMar DeRozan scored 25 points, James Johnson had 12 points and 12 rebounds and the Toronto Raptors beat Golden State, snapping a five-game losing streak against the Warriors.

Amir Johnson had 11 points and 13 rebounds, Leandro Barbosa scored 18 points and Ed Davis grabbed 12 rebounds for the Raptors, who had lost 11 of their last 14.

accepting the trophy for winning state, Jones reflected for a moment on his mentor.

"He's my inspiration," Jones told the Times-News.

"I've always wanted to say this was for the father of our program, for old men and young men who have put on the uniform," Jones said Sunday. "This day is for you."

Sadly, Brown wasn't in person to enjoy Glenns Ferry's addition to the trophy case. He died in 2009, just a few weeks before he would have turned 85. But his family was well-represented at the tournament, with son Rich and Brown's widow, Betty, making the trip for the championship game.

Brown may not have been at the Idaho Center in body and mind, but he had to have been there in spirit.

You see, Brown was born on March 3, 1924. Meaning on the day he would have celebrated his 88th birthday, his old school would have delivered him one heckuva birthday present.

Fate finally smiled on the Pilots.

overtime on a buzzer-beat-er by Wilder Jones, the coach's son, after scoring just nine points in the first half.

"You only gave up 12 points in the first half to the top-ranked team in the state," Jones recalled telling his team, which was unusually spirited at halftime. "That's great defense."

Coming back from 16 points down to Lapwai in the title game? That wasn't luck either. Just the players remembering what Jones had told them all season long.

ahead of Greg Biffle for second.

"Those are the types of things you've got to do to take the chances and when you're close enough to at least coast around, they did a good job," Harvick said.

Johnson did the best he could after his right rear wheel started shaking midway through the race.

The five-time Sprint Cup champion led early in the race, but had to pit twice during a caution because of a vibration and returned to the track in 25th.

Johnson clawed his way back toward the front to finish fourth, a nice result after he was docked 25 points for his car failing inspection the first day of Speedweeks and wrecked two laps into the Daytona 500.

"We'll take it," said Johnson, still 71 points behind Hamlin. "I'm not really satisfied. I really felt like we had a car to win the race with. Unfortunately, things didn't work out there. We had a little hiccup early in the race, but we still rebounded back and got a strong finish."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that a hearing concerning proposed Ordinance No. 2012-01 of the City of Eden will be held on the 12th day of March, 2012 at the hour of 7:00 PM at the First Segregation Fire Department meeting room at 235 East Wilson, Eden, Idaho. The purpose of the hearing is to receive public comment regarding the proposal of the Mayor and Council of the City of Eden, Idaho to establish by ordinance, the following fees:

1. A late fee of Five Dollars ($5.00) for any payment of a bill for water, wastewater treatment, or garbage service that is not paid within thirty (30) days of its date.
2. A reconnection fee of Ten Dollars ($10.00) for every water service disconnected by the City for lack of timely payment.
3. A charge of Twenty-Five ($25.00) for every check issued to the City for payment of water, wastewater treatment, or garbage service, which is returned due to the account the check was written on being closed or containing insufficient funds.

The fee increases are proposed to offset costs incurred by the city of Eden which arise from the late payment of water, wastewater and garbage service, and for checks for such services returned to the City due to account being closed or containing insufficient funds.

All interested persons are invited to attend the hearing and shall have an opportunity to be heard. A copy of the full text of the proposed Ordinance is available for inspection at the office of the City Clerk for the City of Eden at 485 Orchard Ave. during regular business hours.

LEGAL NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

Date: February 29, 2012

To: All Interested Government Agencies, Public Groups, and Individuals

Subject: Environmental Determination for the City of Dietrich Drinking Water Improvements

In accordance with the Rules for Administration of Planning Grants for Drinking Water Facilities (IDAPA 58.01.22) and Rules for Administration of Drinking Water Loan Program (IDAPA 58.01.20), an environmental review has been performed and a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) issued by the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) for the following project:

City of Dietrich Drinking Water Improvements
Lincoln County
Dietrich, Idaho

This environmental determination was made as a result of the review process indicating no significant environmental impacts would result from the proposed project. There may be several environmental effects from the referenced project as described below.

Short-term impacts may occur during project construction that includes temporary disruption of the water distribution system, increased noise, increased dust pollution, increased potential for stormwater runoff, and disturbance of jurisdictional wetlands. No long-term adverse effects were identified. The project contractor or other identified responsible party is responsible for managing the temporary disruptions of the system as follows:

- Air Quality: Temporary dust pollution impacts will be controlled as a condition of the construction specifications in accordance with the DEQ Rules for the Control of Air Pollution in Idaho, IDAPA 58.01.01.651 (rule). The rule states that reasonable precautions for dust control and suppression include using water or chemicals, applying dust suppressants, covering trucks, paving, and removing materials. In addition to the rule requirements, it is recommended that a dust prevention and control plan be implemented during construction of the project that includes DEQ Best Management Practices (BMPs) to minimize dust pollution for fugitive dust control.
- Cultural Resources: The Shoshone-Bannock Tribe has expressed an interest in having a Cultural Resources Monitor observe excavation in previously undisturbed ground. At least 30 days prior to preparation of a bid package, the city or its engineer shall contact Carolyn Boyer Smith at csmith@sbrtribes.com or (208) 478-3707 to work out the details in writing. In addition, if archeological artifacts or human remains are discovered during construction, ground disturbing activities shall cease and the State Historical Preservation Officer, the Shoshone-Bannock Tribe and the Shoshone-Paiute Tribe shall be notified. They may be reached by telephone at (208) 334-3847, (208) 759-3100 and (208) 478-3707, respectively.
- Stormwater: Stormwater runoff shall be handled through an Environmental Protection Agency Stormwater Construction General permit and the development of a Stormwater Pollution Prevention Plan (SWPPP). The SWPPP and stormwater BMPs will be implemented prior, during and after project construction to reduce the potential for erosion from runoff.
- Solid Waste: Construction waste shall be disposed of in accordance with IDAPA 58.01.06, Solid Waste Management Rules.
- Noise: Noise impacts from the project construction will be reduced by restricting work hours to reasonable times identified in the construction specifications.
- Utilities: Design and construction of 3-phase power to the new well site must conform to the requirements of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (MBTA).
- New water pipes on public lands shall be located in previously disturbed areas when possible, and the ground shall be restored as closely to pre-existing conditions as possible. Either a new right of way agreement between the City and the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) or an amendment to the existing agreement BLM right of way will be required before construction of the new water storage tank or its associated pipelines.
- Any other appropriate BMPs, wherever possible, to avoid or minimize impacts from other construction activities.
- Any other local, state or federal permit required for activities taking place during project construction.

The following permits will be required for this project:

- A Clean Water Act Section 404 Permit and permission from the Corps to operate under Nationwide Permit #12, Utility Line Activities.
- A Stream Alteration Permit from the Idaho Department of Water Resources.

Beneficial Impacts: Overall, the completion of the proposed project will improve the quantity and reliability of drinking water available to the residents of Dietrich.

Description of the Project: The proposed project involves improvements to the drinking water distribution system, storage tanks and existing well. Specific components include:

- installing a new pump, standby power and eyewash station at the existing well;
- drilling a new well with standby power;
- installing or upgrading approximately 4,800 linear feet of water mains; and
- as additional funding becomes available, constructing a new 350,000-gallon water tank to supplement existing storage and installing or upgrading approximately 6,700 additional linear feet of water main.

Copies Available: Copies of the full FONSI, the February 2012 City of Dietrich, Idaho Water System Priority Improvements Environmental Information Document, and supporting documentation upon which it is based are available for public review on the DEQ web site at <www.deq.idaho.gov/public-comment-opportunities> or at the following locations:

Today is Monday, March 5, the 65th day of 2012. There are 301 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 5, 1512, cartographer Gerardus Mercator, creator of the Mercator Projection map of the world, was born in Flanders in the Holy Roman Empire.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1770, the Boston Massacre took place as British soldiers who'd been taunted by a crowd of colonists opened fire, killing five people.

In 1868, the Senate was organized into a Court of Impeachment to decide charges against President Andrew Johnson, who was later acquitted.

In 1933, in German parliamentary elections, the Nazi Party won 44 percent of the vote; the Nazis joined with a conservative nationalist party to gain a slender majority in the Reichstag.

In 1934, the first Mothers-in-Law Day celebration and parade took place in Amarillo, Texas.

In 1946, Winston Churchill delivered his "Iron Curtain" speech at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo.

In 1953, Soviet dictator Josef Stalin died after three decades in power.

In 1959, a fire at the Negro Boys Industrial School in Wrightsville, Ark., claimed the lives of 21 teenagers trapped inside a locked dormitory room.

In 1960, Cuban newspaper photographer Alberto Korda took the now-famous picture of guerrilla leader Ernesto "Che" Guevara during a memorial service in Havana for victims of a ship explosion. Elvis Presley was discharged from the U.S. Army.

In 1963, country music performers Patsy Cline, "Cowboy" Copas and "Hawkshaw" Hawkins died in a plane crash near Camden, Tenn., that also claimed the life of pilot Randy Hughes (Cline's manager).

In 1970, the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons went into effect after 43 nations ratified it.

In 1979, NASA's Voyager 1 space probe flew past Jupiter, sending back photographs of the planet and its moons.

In 1982, comedian John Belushi was found dead of a drug overdose in a rented bungalow in Hollywood; he was 33.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush slapped punishing tariffs of eight to 30 percent on several types of imported steel in an effort to aid the ailing U.S. industry. California Rep. Gary Condit, dogged by the Chandra Levy scandal, lost a Democratic primary election to Dennis Cardoza. (In November 2010, Ingmar Guandique was convicted of killing Levy and was later sentenced to 60 years in prison.)

Five years ago: A suicide car bomber turned a venerable Baghdad book market into a deadly inferno, killing some three dozen people. Nine U.S. soldiers died in two separate incidents north of Baghdad. President George W. Bush, facing criticism he'd been ignoring Latin America, said the U.S. would spend tens of millions of dollars to improve education, housing and health care across the region.

One year ago: Egyptians turned their anger toward ousted President Hosni Mubarak's internal security apparatus, storming the agency's main headquarters and other offices. Alberto Granado, 88, who'd accompanied Ernesto "Che" Guevara on a journey of discovery across Latin America described in "The Motorcycle Diaries," died in Havana.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"Words are but empty thanks."
— Colley Cibber

I'm always pleased when my correspondents send me deals, and even happier when they contain educational points. Today's came from Rich Mannheimer, who was generous enough to let me have a deal where he described his role as that of the goat, not the hero.

Six diamonds looks like a splendid contract here; ideally South would like to get North to be declarer, but after a Gerber auction, South settled for declaring what he thought would be the best slam, albeit the wrong way up.

If the defenders find a passive lead, then declarer can simply establish an extra spade winner for his 12th trick. How should you play the hand on a club lead, though?

At the table, declarer won the club lead, drew trumps, then led a spade to dummy's queen. East won his king and cashed a club winner, and declarer claimed the rest.

It was only in the long watches of the night that South woke up slapping his forehead and realized that while the play in spades might look like a blind guess, he had traded a 100 percent line for a 50-50 shot.

If you win the club lead and draw trump, then play a spade to the ace and pitch your club loser on the spade queen, you have guaranteed the contract. Even if West can win the spade king, the defenders no longer have a club to cash. Moreover, South can subsequently pitch his slow heart loser on dummy's spade winner.

ANSWER: Your partner has not promised any more than four clubs on this auction, since your hand typically delivers four or five clubs for the simple raise of a potentially short minor. Accordingly, the lead of the club ace looks unnecessarily dangerous. I'd lead a fourth-highest diamond as the most passive option.

GREAT LOCATIONS FOR RESTAURANT - RETAIL - HAIR SALON/SPA & OFFICE SPACE-

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Jackson," and I have been in a long-distance relationship for two years. We recently learned that we both have been accepted to our "dream" college, which means we'll live close to each other for the first time. I'm excited, but nervous about what the adjustment will be like.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Jackson is my first boyfriend, so I don't know what it's like to be with someone who can physically be around all the time. Normally, we communicate by phone or video chat and lead our separate lives. But when we visit each other, our days just revolve around the two of us. I miss Jackson when we're apart, but I enjoy having the freedom to study, hang out with friends and have "me time" while still being in a happy relationship.

From what I have heard, college life is fun, but busy. I love Jackson and want to be with him, but I also want to make new friends and focus on schoolwork. (He wants that, too.) I'm afraid that once we get to college we'll either be so wrapped up in each other that we miss out on other stuff, or get so busy with school and friends that we never see each other. Jackson shares my concerns, but neither of us knows how to make sure we strike a good balance. Can you help us?

- ANXIOUS IN FLORIDA

DEAR ANXIOUS: You and your boyfriend need to be sure your priorities are in order when you get to school. First and foremost you're both there to get an education. And aside from academics, a part of that education is developing relationships and availing yourself of experiences beyond the field you will be studying. While spending time together is important, so is balance, so keep in mind that too much togetherness can distract from your studies or even become so claustrophobic that it kills the relationship.

DEAR ABBY: I was born in a small Midwestern town in the mid-1960s. An out-of-wedlock pregnancy then was a huge scandal, so my mother married someone who wasn't my father and my biological father vanished. I found out about it at 17 (not from her) and was told the name she claimed belonged to him. It's a very unique name.

I believe I have located him. Part of me wants to contact him — not to get anything, just to let him know I exist. Allegedly, Mom told him she was pregnant and he refused to marry her, but her truthfulness leaves much to be desired. I haven't been able to find his email address, but I have found a street address.

I'm not sure if I should contact him or not. Would it be too much of a disruption to hear from a daughter he wanted nothing to do with 45 years ago? I don't want to upset him or cause problems in his life, but I need some closure.

- SOMEBODY'S CHILD IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SOMEBODY'S CHILD: It may not be a disruption, but it is certain to be a surprise. This would be easier if your mother's word was reliable, but you must work with what you have.

Write the man a letter explaining what you have told me, assuring him you want nothing from him, and giving him the details of your life, including your contact information. Send it by certified mail and request verification of delivery. Then cross your fingers that you have the right man, and that if he is, he has enough character to respond.

IF MARCH 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have the ability to find inspiration in the world around you and when inspired you tend to reach higher. You may not be able to change the circumstances or hardships in your life, but you can make a conscious effort to change the way you face them. May and early June is the best time to make financial decisions or to make a career move. Cultivate a positive attitude, but avoid making major changes in September or October when your business expertise is thwarted by too many fantasies or a romance that isn't lasting.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get inspired and fired up. Wily and communicative Mercury has arrived in your sign. During the next few weeks, you can use its intelligence to learn about new things that help you to enrich your personal life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Social animals stick together like glue. Venus has arrived in your part of the zodiac. You can use her gentle and harmony loving influence in the upcoming month to find ways to please and charm others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dazzle devotees with your dexterity. Long-term health and prosperity can be yours if you juggle financial projects now. In matters of love and affection, insist on commitment; put plans for the future into action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The cosmic lights are green for agreements and deals, so charge forward in the business world. Affectionate interludes will prevail this evening, so push for commitment and set long range plans in motion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Grab the brass ring and find out it is actually made of gold. Expect honesty and faithfulness from those who enter your life now. Promises and plans put into motion under these stars will be fulfilled.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Impatience makes you count to 10. You could be in a great rush, all abuzz with things to do. While you count to 10, you may find that between two and nine someone shows up to lend you a helping hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Offer apologies where needed and they will be accepted. Take the first steps to repair relationships or revitalize business projects and the path ahead will be free of obstructions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Occupy your own street. It is perhaps time to make a stand about what you believe in and care about. When you see injustice, you can take charge and improve things without offending others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your vicarious visions will be vindicated. Feel free to make promises and deals, as they will turn out as envisioned. Whatever planted now, whether romantically or in business, will thrive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Start new endeavors now to ensure perpetual fairness and honesty. Be rewarded with financial success in anything begun under these stars. Your power to strike mutually beneficial bargains is peaking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Being on the cutting edge is admirable, but best when your edge is sharpened like Occam's razor. You might like to tinker with new technology but you don't need a bulldozer to plant a rosebush.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Charisma is in the eye of the beholder. You can use your charms to sway opinions, but you should be attentive to your audience. Not everyone will be caught up under your spell, so aim for known admirers.
