Magic Valley Schools Sweep Levy Issue Elections

BY ERIC LARSEN
elarsen@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Voters in six Magic Valley public school districts pledged their continued support of education during Tuesday's elections.

With schools in Cassia County, Hansen, Jerome, Kimberly, Minidoka County and Murtaugh seeking the continuation of a combined $4.4 million in supplemental funding, voters uniformly and emphatically agreed to continue taxing themselves to help their schools weather state funding reductions.

District superintendents reached Tuesday night roundly voiced their appreciation for the passage of the levy issues. Many ballot measures easily cleared the simple majority needed to pass, including Minidoka County's renewal of a two-year, $1.2 million annual plant facilities levy, which saw 68 percent support.

"I'm pleased that it was a supermajority," Superintendent Scott Rogers said. "I think that's a vote of confidence."

Rogers said the district has used an advisory committee of patrons to help shape discussions of levy issues, adding that the grassroots, patron-led effort has paid off.

"I've been here seven years, so this will be the fourth levy and we did two bonds," he said. "We haven't had an issue that failed."

Substitute Teacher Applications On the Rise

Numerous Magic Valley school districts say they're seeing more — and better qualified — applicants to fill in for their teaching staff.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • More than a decade ago when Victor Smith started as a substitute teacher in Twin Falls, teachers often left him a movie to show students.

That isn't the case anymore. When he arrives in a classroom, there's usually a detailed teaching plan waiting for him.

"Now, teachers expect you to carry on a lesson plan and teach," Smith said, adding that it's the way it should be.

There's no shortage of work for Smith — a substitute of 12 years — who has a job every day. He used to work for an insurance company, but wanted a change. He has a bachelor's degree in business and a teaching credential.

Smith mostly fills in as a long-term substitute at Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge high schools. Some teachers request him far in advance.

"They've gotten to know me through the years," he said. "I've tried to do a good job."

Associate Superintendent Patti O'Dell said it used to be hard to find substitute teachers for the Twin Falls School District. But now, there are more applicants — plus, they have more work experience.

To better outline job expectations, the school board unanimously approved a job description for substitutes

CSI's Pat Swilling pumps his fist after defeating Arizona Western College Tuesday in Twin Falls.

CSI Punches Its Ticket

The College of Southern Idaho men are headed back to Hutchinson, Kan., in their quest to win a second straight NJCAA national title.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The title defense talk is real now.

The College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team has endured a 34-game journey for this opportunity: four more games to potentially lay claim to the most successful stretch in the storied program's history.

The 31-3 Golden Eagles punched their ticket to the NJCAA National Championships with Tuesday's 74-58 victory over Arizona Western College in Twin Falls.

Talk of defending a national title is hyperbole without results, the stuff of early-season bravado that fades as teams fall. But for CSI, the defense starts in earnest on March 20, when it opens national tournament play in Hutchinson, Kan., against Eastern Oklahoma State College.

Ultimately, Tuesday's victory represents opportunity. A team's opportunity to keep playing together. A program's opportunity to claim its fourth national title. A city's opportunity to boast of its team's continued excellence.

Large Turnout Surprises Chobani

With curiosity high about the Greek yogurt company, some left Tuesday's meeting hoping for more information.

TWIN FALLS • It's no secret that when Chobani comes to town, the Greek yogurt company tends to attract a crowd.

Maybe after Tuesday, the company's leaders will catch on.

In planning for Tuesday's informational presentation for the public, the New York-based company's officials chose a room that would seat 50 people. What they got was a crowd of almost 100.

"I didn't think this many people would show up," said Kelly during its Monday meeting. The district has about 105 on its list.

"I'm amazed at the great substitute teachers that are still on the list that have been doing it for many years," Trustee Mary Barron told the Times-News.

Barron — a retired teacher — used to be in charge of training substitutes twice a year.

Each district sets its own application requirements. In Twin Falls, substitutes must have at least an associate degree.

The Kimberly School District has seen an increase in applicants with an even higher level of education — a bachelor's degree.

There are 45 substitutes on the district's list. About 10 are shared with other school districts.

Substitute Coordinator Patty Dame said there has especially been an influx in applications from building contractors and real estate brokers.

In Gooding, Superintendent Heather Williams said there's also been an increase. She said it could be partly due to a slight improvement in substitute teacher pay over the past few years.

For other school districts — like Buhl — there's a need for more substitutes, but there hasn't been any change in the number of applicants.

There are about 15 people on the Buhl School District's list.

In Other Business

During their Monday meeting, school trustees:

- Awarded $40,475.92 in bids for janitorial supplies to six companies.
- Awarded $3,632.68 in bids for teaching/office supplies to four companies.
- Voted to remove a district policy about early retirements. Associate Superintendent Patti O'Dell said the reason is that the state program doesn't exist anymore.
- Recognized employees of the month from Robert Stuart Middle School: Behavioral Paraeducator Shannon Wasako and Associate Principal Amy McBride.

"It's not a bad number if they can all work," Superintendent Byron Stutzman said. But if multiple teachers are gone at a conference, for instance, it can put a strain on the list.

In Buhl, substitutes are paid based on their qualifications. Non-certificated employees receive $55 per day, while a retired teacher without current certification makes $65. A fully certificated substitute can receive $75 per day.

Stutzman said substitutes can't replace a regular classroom teacher who has day-to-day interaction with the same group of students.

But when teachers leave good lesson plans, "a substitute can still help with the educational process," he said.

Where Your Donations Went

Thirty-one nonprofits learned Tuesday how much of the United Way of South Central Idaho's $102,300 allocation they received.

TWIN FALLS • A message to the Magic Valley workers who donate portions of their paychecks to the United Way of South Central Idaho: Your money has reached its destination.

On Tuesday, the nonprofit held its annual allocation celebration at Farmers National Bank on Pole Line Road, doling out $102,300 to 31 local agencies that serve seniors, children and the most needy among us.

"It's really important to us because we're new and every donation, every little bit, counts."

Chris Dickard, treasurer and volunteer for the center

One by one, representatives from nonprofits, including Walker Center, Valley House Homeless Shelter and Girl Scouts of Silver Sage, stepped up to receive their checks from United Way executive director Bill Knopp.

"We're seeing the fruits of their labor today — all the effort of those people in the community who work in a factory or whatever it might be who donate a couple dollars a week," he said. "When it's pooled together, we hand out thousands."

An 11-person allocation committee, comprised of everyday folks from the community, decided who got what. The group heard presentations last week from the agencies, which explained who would be helped, how the money would be spent, and how much was needed.

Because of limited funds, each agency received 8 percent to 20 percent of its total request, United Way president Midge Fisher said.

The United Way of South Central Idaho raised $166,272 last year. That's the amount which this year's $102,300 gift came from. The more money the nonprofit brings in, the smaller Another recipient is Rising Stars Therapeutic Riding Center, which received $2,400.

LaCorte, Chobani's spokeswoman. "I thought there would be 10 to 15 people here."

Attendees filled up every last, lined the walls and stood shoulder-to-shoulder as they listened to LaCorte's 45-minute presentation.

Come this summer, the company estimates it will have finished constructing its new yogurt production plant off of Kimberly Road in southeast Twin Falls. LaCorte said Chobani will hire close to 350 employees to work in the plant.

LaCorte spent most of her time explaining how Chobani makes its Greek-style yogurt and giving examples of the company's public outreach.

She spent the least amount of time talking about the new plant. But during the question and answer period, it was clear that the plant's progress and operations were the issues attendees wanted to spend the most the time talking about.

"Why is the company being so tight-lipped on the plant's progress?" asked Nancy Brinkoetter, a Twin Falls resident who attended the meeting.

After offering a few explanations, LaCorte concluded that the company simply wants to hold on to the mystery.

"We want something to show off this summer," she said. "We need something for the 'a-ha' moment."

With a pledge to spend $128 million on its Twin Falls property in order to receive a slew of financial incentives, the company will spend plenty to fill in the bones of the facility that currently stands on the plant's site.

Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President Shawn Barigar said he was "overwhelmed" by turnout for the event.

"It was a great opportunity to learn more about their philosophy," he said. "This has been the first chances besides the groundbreaking for the public to hear their story."

Twin Falls Mayor Greg Lanting said he expected a large crowd and wasn't surprised that Chobani may have underestimated how many people would want to attend. "I think they've been surprised every time they come to Twin Falls," he said. "Maybe it's because we're a larger area than where some of their other plants are located."

And while no one argues that the company will boost south-central Idaho's economy, Brinkoetter left the presentation feeling disap-

PROBATION ORDERED IN T.F. MAN'S CHILD PORN CASE

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 23-year-old Twin Falls man has been sentenced to three years of probation after pleading guilty to one count of possessing sexually exploitative materials.

If he violates the terms of his probation, Shawn Freeman could spend one to 10 years in prison.

Deputy prosecuting attorney Julie Sturgill said during Tuesday's sentencing that Freeman had been very cooperative with law enforcement and made no excuses for what he had done. Freeman originally faced 19 charges for downloading nearly 1,000 images of suspected child pornography since 2004.

Freeman's attorney, George Essma, said his client understands the serious nature of his offense and that he will be monitored closely by probation officers in the sex offender program. Essma also said Freeman has been attending weekly counseling and is engaged in additional therapy through the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Judge Richard Bevan stressed the seriousness of the crime, saying some of the children found in pictures on Freeman's computer were on the registry for missing and exploited children.

He also noted Freeman had endured among the most heart-wrenching conditions he had read about in his time as a judge due to parental neglect, abandonment and isolation.

"Clearly you've weathered a significant storm," Bevan said.

In addition to three years of supervised probation, Freeman must serve 300 hours of community service and may have to see additional treatment. He must also register as a sex offender.

A police report reveals the investigation into Freeman began nearly 18 months before his arrest, when the state attorney general's office received a tip through its Internet Crime Against Children Task Force.

WOMAN SENTENCED IN WALMART BOMB THREAT

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • One of four people accused of calling in a bomb threat as a diversion for a planned burglary was sentenced Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Angel Estabrook, 19, was sentenced to two years of probation in lieu of a two- to five-year prison sentence. She was also granted withheld judgment and could have the felony charge wiped from her record in six months.

While others in the case were charged with conspiracy to commit burglary, Estabrook was charged with a count of possession of a controlled substance when police say they found a meth pipe in her purse upon her arrest.

Estabrook's attorney, Loren Bingham, said Estabrook admitted to having the pipe and knowing about it, but contended it wasn't hers and she had quit smoking meth two months prior to the incident.

The prosecutor in the case said Estabrook had been cooperative with law enforcement and hadn't tested positive for drug use since her arrest.

Estabrook has gotten married since the incident and is pregnant, her lawyer said. Eventually, she would like to move to Missouri with her mother and husband.

Judge Richard Bevan said it was Estabrook's responsibility to pay for her drug tests and also ordered her to pay court costs. He sentenced her to 110 hours of community service and ordered her to complete her GED.

Police say Terry Plew, 21, Cassius Reynolds, 23, Levi Hays, 19, and Estabrook used a bomb threat against Walmart as a diversion. The real target was a Subway restaurant on Kimberly Road, which they allegedly intended to burglarize.

According to statements made to the investigating officers, the suspects' plan was to take money from the restaurant to gamble at Fort Hall casinos.

Tours Offered of New Filer Sewer Plant

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
For the Times-News

FILER • After six years and $15 million, Filer residents will get a chance to see their newly completed sewer treatment facility in operation today.

Tours marking the project's completion are scheduled for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today and Saturday.

"This is a long time coming and it's exciting to see things up and running," Mayor Bob Templeman said. "The boys out at the plant are doing a great job."

The effort began back in 2006, when residents voted to support building a new wastewater plant. Most of the project's funding came through federal and state agencies.

Construction of the 21,000-square-foot membrane bioreactor plant began immediately after a groundbreaking ceremony in April 2010.

Located north of town, the facility was brought online last October and currently processes 175,000 gallons of effluent each day. City Maintenance Director Bud Compher said the plant has built-in potential for expansion.

Filer Maintenance Director Bud Compher shows how remaining waste is pressed to remove water and prepare it for shipment to the landfill, at the city's new sewer plant.

"This plant actually has double that capacity," Compher said. "We've had to iron out a few glitches with computers and the ultraviolet light, but everything's running pretty smooth now."

Effluent treatment at the plant is a tightly controlled process. A outside lift station pumps waste into the building, through a series of screens and into 50,000-gallon basins. There, treatment includes a biological component relying on thousands of specifically bred sewer bugs that break down solids.

"If there's not enough oxygen or acidity is too high, you'll have a bunch of dead bugs and a gummed-up works," Compher said. "If everything's working right, you have happy bugs eating away like it's Christmas."

Waste also passes through porous membrane filters with microscopic holes that mimic the action of water moving through sand. Everything is then subjected to ultraviolet light radiation to remove any remaining impurities. The cleaned water flows from the plant into a series of holding ponds. Remaining solids are sent through a press to extract their remaining moisture.

Tours of Filer's new wastewater plant are scheduled for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today and Saturday.

"The solids are squeezed and come out of the press like a cake," Compher said. "From there, what's left is sent out to a truck for shipment to the landfill."

Official hope the sewer plant will draw new business opportunities and improve the community's economic base, though they're planning ahead for the added load.

"The council is working on a pretreatment ordinance to make sure industries that come in are built around us and not overload the system," said John Hurley, membrane bioreactor plant operator.

Four Injured in Crash near Hansen

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • Four people suffered non-life-threatening injuries in a Monday night crash north of Hansen.

According to Idaho State Police, 27-year-old Twin Falls resident Karly Diage pulled her 1999 Chevy Malibu into the intersection of Idaho Highway 50 and 3800 East Road, causing a collision with a 2006 Ford Fusion driven by Kallie Carney, 25, of Paul.

Carney and her passengers, Gary Carney, 25, and a 1-year-old girl, were all wearing seat belts. It's unclear if Diage was wearing a seat belt, according to ISP.

All occupants involved in the collision were sent by ground ambulance to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Idaho 50's westbound lane was blocked for about 2 1/2 hours during the investigation and cleaning of the crash, which remains under investigation.

ISP troopers were assisted by Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies and emergency personnel.

IDAHO HOUSE BACKS NEW PARKING GARAGE

BY BETSY Z. RUSSELL
The Spokesman-Review

BOISE • The Idaho House voted 61-3 Tuesday to build a new state parking garage within the Capitol Mall, using savings from refinancing existing state bonds, and expand parking options for members of the public visiting the Statehouse during the legislative session.

“We’ve gone round and round on parking issues this year, on this floor and in the committees,” said House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley. “This is a permanent fix to the problem.”

Earlier, the House passed legislation to shut down parking meters around the Capitol during legislative sessions, despite opposition from the city of Boise, which warned all-day parkers would then monopolize those public spaces. After the vote, news emerged that the son of the bill’s sponsor, House Transportation Chairman Joe Palmer, R-Meridian, had numerous unpaid parking tickets in the area and had his car towed for unpaid tickets on the first day of this year’s legislative session. Palmer is a co-sponsor of the parking garage bill, HCR 47.

Bedke told the House, “When we built the new wings on this building and we did the remodel on the Capitol, it was all to the goal of increasing public access to the Capitol and to come to hearings etc., and we’ve got a parking problem.”

Bedke said favorable interest rates now mean the bond refinance will yield more than enough to build and operate a $7 million multi-level parking garage.

The three “no” votes came from GOP Reps. Mike Moyle, R-Star; Kathy Sims, R-Coeur d’Alene; and Bob Nonini, R-Coeur d’Alene. Moyle said later, “I just don’t like bonding.” The concurrent resolution now moves to the Senate side.

After passing the House, the parking meter bill was assigned to the Senate State Affairs Committee, but hasn’t had a hearing there. Chairman Curt McKenzie, R-Nampa, said earlier that he was awaiting input from the city of Boise, and didn’t want to do anything to worsen visitor parking around the Capitol.

Idaho Rep: Add Two-abreast Ban to Bike Safety Bill

BOISE (AP) • An Idaho representative wants to forbid bicyclists from riding two abreast as part of a bike-safety measure that would also require drivers to maintain a three-foot distance from cyclists when passing.

Rep. Marv Hagedorn of Meridian on Monday suggested adding the two-abreast ban to the bill before it was sent to the House for amendments on an 8-4 vote.

Its sponsor, Rep. Roy Lacey of Pocatello, hopes to make it safer for non-motorized transportation on Idaho’s roadways.

Lacey’s measure also covers pedestrians, joggers, wheelchairs and horses.

Not everybody was supportive.

The Spokesman-Review reports House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke cited an existing law requiring motorists to exercise due care when passing.

But Kurt Holzer, a Boise attorney and cyclist, says this bill helps define just what “due care” means.

House Committee OKs Bump to Judges’ Salaries

BOISE (AP) • Idaho judges would get a 2 percent pay bump under a bill heading to the House floor.

The House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee voted Tuesday to approve the salary hike for Supreme Court justices, Court of Appeals judges, district judges and attorney magistrate judges.

The Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee is recommending the same increase to all permanent state employees, but a separate bill is required to do the same for justices.

The increase would cost about $370,000 in 2013.

Idaho courts administrator Patti Tobias says despite an increase in resource-intensive cases, Idaho’s judges have handled their caseloads efficiently and have earned what would be their first raise in four years.

Mountain Home Rep. Pete Nielsen opposes the measure, as he has with other proposed salary increases this session.

Bill Gives Charter Schools Building Help

BOISE (AP) • A state lawmaker wants to help charter schools with costs of securing a facility for their classrooms.

Under legislation introduced Tuesday by Rep. Reed DeMordaunt, charter schools that raise money for buildings by issuing bonds would get help from the state in repaying their interest through a program now available to traditional school districts.

If Idaho includes charter schools, DeMordaunt expects the cost of the Bond Levy Equalization program to increase by $370,000 next year. But he says that’s a “pittance” compared to the $17.4 million currently spent on the program.

Charter schools, which are funded with public money but given more freedom in how they operate, list facilities among their greatest challenges. They can’t get money from property taxpayers to buy buildings and borrow at higher interest rates.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL ON TEACHER SICK LEAVE

BOISE (AP) • Teachers whose jobs are terminated would have more time to transfer their sick leave benefits when finding new employment, under a bill that cleared the Idaho Legislature.

The bill passed the Idaho House on a 65-0 vote Tuesday.

Idaho currently gives teachers whose jobs are terminated one year to transfer the sick leave they have accumulated. Republican Sen. Melinda Smyser, of Parma, introduced legislation to allow teachers up to three years to transfer those benefits. It passed the Senate last month.

Before a vote on the House floor Tuesday, Republican Rep. Steve Thayne noted the move carried no fiscal impact to Idaho’s general fund.

Canyon Rim Development Heads to City Council

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission voted Tuesday evening to recommend rezoning 25 acres for the proposed expansion of the Canyon Park shopping development near the Snake River Canyon rim.

The commission also voted to vacate the section of Fillmore Street that currently runs where the new development’s parking lots would be, though not without some discussion.

The votes were the first step to get the project moving and means the Twin Falls City Council will soon decide on the matter.

Gerald Martens of EHM Engineers presented the plans to the commission on behalf of Canyon Park Development, LLC and brought new commissioners up to speed on the project.

The group, a part of Neilsen & Co., first proposed the development several years ago. But the plans, including a new visitor center, high-rise hotel and convention center and up to 50 stores, hit a rough patch along with the country’s economy.

“The market came to somewhat of a screeching halt,” Martens said.

Some things have changed in Twin Falls since the original proposal, he said. Restaurants

In Other Business

The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission also made the following recommendations on Tuesday:

Chobani rezone: Commissioners voted to recommend that the City Council rezone 37 acres that make up the Chobani Greek yogurt plant property. The land will be rezoned for heavy machinery use. As part of the city’s deal with Chobani, the area — once farmland — will be annexed into the city.

Downtown housing: An Urban Renewal Agency plan to get people to move downtown gained momentum Tuesday as commissioners voted to recommend allowing housing in Old Town and Downtown Twin Falls. Developers looking to build apartments or single family housing would need to apply for a special permit for the project, according to the proposal. Tom Frank, a P&Z commissioner and vice-chairman of the URA, said people living downtown will encourage more mom and pop stores. “I’m a true believer of people living downtown,” P&Z Chairman Wayne Bohrn said. “Without people living downtown it’s going to die.”

with large spaces for groups like Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center and Elevation 486 have filled the need for a convention center space, while several new large hotels mean a new one doesn’t need to be built.

While all commissioners agreed the land should be rezoned to allow for the development, some were apprehensive about allowing the private company to take over a section of street the city currently owns and maintains.

“Vacations for me are very serious,” Commissioner Tom Frank said. “You’re giving up rights you won’t get back ever.”

Martens explained the street would be maintained just as well as a city street and would appear no different to the public. He also stressed that having the developer maintain the road would save the city money and the placement and design of the new road has been thoroughly researched.

Commissioners Lane Jacobson, Wayne Bohrn and Frank all voted against recommending the vacation of the street while Chuck Sharp, Kevin Grey, Steve Woods and Lee DeVore voted to hand the street over.

The section of Fillmore that would be turned into a parking lot would not be closed until an entire new road was complete and open to traffic, Martens said.

MAN PLEADS GUILTY TO SEXUAL BATTERY

BOISE (AP) • A former employee of the Canyon County assessor’s office has pleaded guilty to grooming a 16-year-old girl for sex.

The Idaho Statesman reports 37-year-old Jason Cooperdock pleaded guilty to felony sexual battery late last month.

Prosecutors allege Cooperdock arranged to have sex with the daughter of a friend after grooming the girl through explicit text messages. The girl’s parents thwarted the plan and Cooperdock was arrested on Nov. 17.

MAN ACCUSED IN BYU STUDENT SEX AND EXTORTION CASE

BY JOSH LOFTIN
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A Utah man is accused of trying to extort sexual favors and money from an engaged, male Brigham Young University student whom he met on Craigslist.

Brad Ray Adams, 36, faces one felony charge for attempted forcible sodomy and three misdemeanors. Police say the pair had consensual sex, but Adams then repeatedly demanded that the 21-year-old BYU student pay him hundreds of dollars and continue the relationship if he wanted to keep the previous encounter a secret.

Adams was arrested during a sting operation

March 6 and released from jail a day later. He is set for a court appearance Wednesday in Provo, about 35 miles south of Salt Lake City. A telephone number listed for him was disconnected, and no attorney was listed in court records.

Provo police say Adams repeatedly threatened the man that he would report their encounter to officials at BYU, where a strict honor code prohibits students from having pre-marital sex. The school, which is owned by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, says it doesn’t punish students for their sexual orientation but they cannot act on their same-sex attraction.

It's Time for Spice's Run of Luck to End

South-central Idaho is under quiet assault by perhaps the stupidest drug in recent memory.

By most accounts, spice is not even that great of a drug — but it's good enough to have become pervasive in county probation programs, and to be making inroads into our schools.

That's partly because it's cheap and has a wide array of formulas. It adds to the excitement that the user doesn't know exactly what each batch is made of, and whether he'll feel nothing, or a marijuana-like high, or end up in convulsions at a football game and have to be restrained.

But the main problem is the masquerade of legality that's enabled spice to still be sold openly in stores around the Magic Valley. This is the dark side of capitalism — all signs indicate that for the local burgeoning market, spice sales are paying off handsomely.

Thankfully, some warnings about spice appear to be sinking in. Steps the Filer School District has taken after two nasty spice-related incidents have cut the number of reported cases of students under the influence at the school. And local drug court officials are working to improve how participants are tested, fighting the perception that spice can't be detected.

But convincing teens and probationers not to try spice is only one piece of the puzzle. The bigger step has to be finally shutting down distributors' ability to sell spice legally and in broad daylight.

An attempt last year to do so fell short. Spice manufacturers — the smart ones, anyway — had already switched to new formulas well before state bans on a few of the old ingredients kicked in. "It's just incense," say the owners of the shops that have popped up since. "It says it's not for consumption. Whatever people do with it isn't my problem."

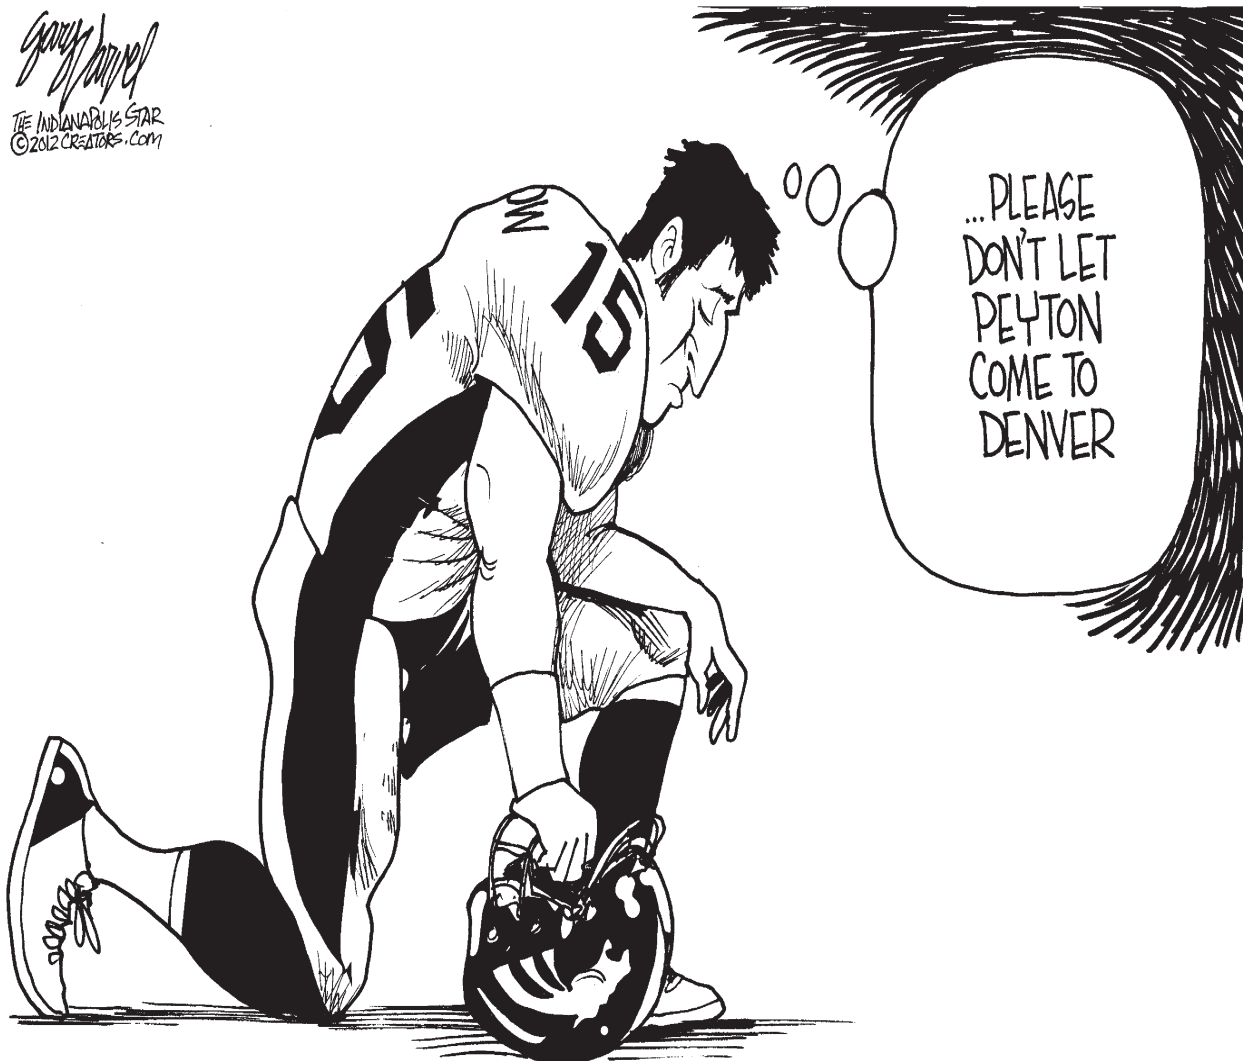

Yeah. Incense. Priced, weighed and packaged like a drug, all with a wink and a nod. Do they really think we're all stupid enough to believe they don't know what they're doing?

Thankfully, the state's taking another go at it. On Feb. 29, the House unanimously passed H. 502 to add additional compounds to the state's list of controlled substances. The bill was presented to the Senate Health and Welfare Committee March 1.

As opposed to last year's narrowly targeted legislation, this bill attempts to ban anything derived from synthetic cannabis formulas. Will it cover everything? Likely not. But it should at least give police the tools they need to start closing down these law-skirting operations.

The Magic Valley already has enough to deal with among meth, the debate over legalizing marijuana, and other "real" drugs. We shouldn't have to put up with a poor man's weed being sold at smoke shops and costume stores, and the sooner the state can effectively quash it, the better.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

There's a Possible Solution to High Gas Prices

We are faced with increasing gas prices and there seems to be no end to it. There is also a lot of misinformation regarding this subject. Let's get some facts in place:

Crude oil has hundreds of by-products which affect every aspect of our lives. Fuel is only a very, very small part of the oil. I can provide you with thousands of pages filled with facts regarding the oil, but it is beyond the scope of this letter.

There are huge amounts of oil reservoirs in the form of shale that are being extracted in Wyoming, North Dakota and eastern Montana. The crude is very light and can easily take care of our fuel problem.

Contrary to what some people are saying, oil exploration is going on across the United States. It is simply the elected officials (regardless of their party) that are not doing their jobs, and all they do is cause problems for others.

The gas prices were going up during Clinton administration, and he threatened the gas companies by opening national reserves. And it worked and the gas prices dropped almost immediately. I do not understand why Obama cannot do that.

I do not care what we think about Obama, and I am not necessarily pro-Obama. Perhaps he needs to have a little more courage and take my advice! Let's not forget that being a citizen of this country is a huge responsibility, and it is our job to do our homework by studying the issues and then vote accordingly.

Have a great day.

Reader Comment Affects Reader

I was very moved and alarmed by Loyd Bakewell's article on the incidence of a growing drug culture within our own community. Apparently, distribution of this new synthetic marijuana is being flaunted in our very faces. Not really surprising, given the casual attitude in our everyday life.

Peer pressure is a large factor and a lack of adult supervision has to take partial blame, but how can we teach our kids that doing drugs is wrong if we abuse alcohol, tobacco or pain-killing medicine? I won't say that the Ozzie and Harriet days are realistic in our present culture, but they expressed an adult-directed family situation.

The contemporary media presents an entirely different view of social acceptance of conditions. The on-camera tongue-in-cheek attitude of adult reaction to drug use, casual sex, underage drinking, teens having abortions without parents' knowledge, public education distributing free condoms. Think about any current sitcom, comedy act where these things are treated as the norm. Celebrities are constantly held in our faces when they're arrested for drug abuse, cheating on a spouse, shoplifting, fighting, drunk driving, spousal abuse, athletes on steroids are all help up as role models.

I guess the frightening thing is that after being fed a constant diet of these things, if we express shock, we're labeled as naive, old fashioned, repressive, out-of-touch squares.

If we don't take action on what we've been shown, we will live with the consequence. That means that even if you and your kids are sober, law-abiding citizens, you are still faced with the very real chance of being killed in a car crash. That car careening down the highway toward you may well be someone high on drugs.

Thank you, Mr. Bakewell, for bringing this to our attention.

Efforts behind 'Add the Words' Campaign Lauded

I applaud the efforts and determination of everyone involved in the "add the words" campaign, specifically Rep. LaFavour and the people holding street signs in the Magic Valley. Although I do not agree with this lifestyle, I do acknowledge this issue in our state, thus I ask myself the question, "How will I respond?"

Since my own struggle in this developmental area of sexuality has been public knowledge, I have experienced false accusations, intimidation and discrimination. Furthermore, I have experienced my life being threatened both directly and indirectly. I have also experienced being harassed with sexuality gestures and innuendos, thus being labeled and stereotyped has been a common and daily experience.

After watching the responses of the legislators toward the people at our capitol and the efforts of the people involved in this campaign, I would conclude I am not alone with these experiences. I have worked for two well-known companies in the Boise and Twin Falls, Idaho, areas; however, when I have voiced my concerns about these experiences, I was ignored and categorized as having "personal issues," thus I was asked to resign from my employment. I have also been told the police do not have a responsibility to protect or respond, thus my protection is my responsibility.

The Constitution states that "all men are created equal" and certain "unalienable" rights are given to everyone. These rights are given by God to live in a safe and secure environment, thus these rights should be extended into the workplace. Therefore, I support this campaign of "add the words."

My faith teaches to be submissive, respectful and, most importantly, forgiving. By God's grace, I will be the man Jesus wants me to be. Therefore, I will respond in a submissive, respectful and, most importantly, forgiving way. I invite others to re-evaluate their own responses toward this issue our state will continue to face.

Court Denies Appeal by Idaho Death Row Inmate

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • New evidence uncovered by an Idaho death row inmate isn't enough to give him another chance at overturning his murder conviction, a federal appeals court has ruled.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals handed down the ruling against Gerald Pizzuto Jr. last week, saying that even if the new evidence is accurate, it was likely that a "reasonable factfinder" would still convict Pizzuto of beating to death 58-year-old Berta Herndon and her adult nephew Delbert Dean Herndon in 1986.

Attorneys for Pizzuto are still appealing his convictions on several other fronts, including in Boise's U.S. District Court, where they contend that his conviction and sentence should be dismissed because his low IQ disqualifies him from the death penalty.

According to court records, Pizzuto was camping near McCall with friends, including William Odom and James Rice, when he walked to a nearby cabin, tied up the Herndons, hit them in the head with a hammer and robbed them.

Odom and Rice came to the cabin at some point during the crime, according to the court records, and Pizzuto sent them away. When they returned, Rice went inside to find both Berta and Delbert Herndon lying on the ground with blood on their heads. Rice said he then shot Delbert Herndon once in the head because his legs were shaking and he "didn't want him to suffer."

Pizzuto, Rice and Odom were all charged with the murders, but Rice and Odom ultimately pleaded guilty to lesser offenses and agreed to testify against Pizzuto.

T.F. Parks Committee Supports Dog Park

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • This weekend marked the end to Twin Falls' temporary dog park, but dogs may have a permanent park of their own by this summer.

In mid-January, the Twin Falls City Council approved temporary dog parks at the Frontier Field softball complex with the promise of feedback on whether the experiment in allowing dogs off-leash was a success.

It was. City Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said the temporary park was "a good showcase for the city," and showed that "maybe it was time for a permanent dog park."

In the two months the park was open, about 150 people signed up to use the facility, said Steven Vawser, a member of the Magic Valley Canine Social Club who has led efforts to get a dog park established in the city.

"Many more didn't sign in," Vawser said.

Moving forward, Bowyer suggested the city Parks and Recreation Committee recommend the development of a permanent, several-acre dog park on the northeast corner of Blake Street and Shoup Avenue. A portion of the vacant lot, next to an unused greenhouse, could be used as a community garden, he said.

Twin Falls County owns the land but has already indicated interest in negotiating a long-term lease or purchase agreement with the city, Bowyer said.

Committee member Ryan Horsley said he would support the dog park in that area.

"I think it would beautify this area and bring more people to it," Horsley said.

The committee voted unanimously in favor of the recommendation, which will be sent to the city's Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council.

In other business, the parks committee also discussed having the Citizen Finance Committee and Rec Center Committee work together to create a plan for a proposed recreation center.

Horsley liked the idea. The rec committee, Horsley said, is "passionate about sports and youth," while the finance committee could lend its expertise in drafting a required five-year plan on funding operation and maintenance costs.

"I think it would be great to partner with that," he said. The Rec Center Committee has been charged with finding ways to fund the center without taxpayer dollars and with minimal conflict to existing private businesses, and is struggling to do so.

Bowyer said volunteers are needed for subcommittees on the issue. The groups will continue to provide regular updates at upcoming meetings.

House Panel Votes to Oppose Contraception Mandate

BOISE (AP) • Idaho lawmakers are urging the federal government to back off a directive making contraception coverage mandatory by insurance companies, saying it violates moral and religious freedoms.

The House State Affairs Committee voted 11-3 Tuesday to pass a nonbinding resolution calling on President Barack Obama and Congress to reject the federal Health and Human Services rule requiring coverage of preventive services, including contraception and sterilization.

In Congress, Republican lawmakers unsuccessfully pushed for an amendment last month to allow for religious exemptions, but Idaho Republicans passed this symbolic measure to keep the issue alive.

Cottonwood Sen. Sheryl Nuxoll sponsored the measure and says leaders of many faiths have opposed the federal rule.

ACLU executive director Monica Hopkins spoke in opposition, saying allowing insurance companies to deny contraception amounts to sex discrimination.

House Approves Private School Athletes Bill

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Legislation aimed at allowing private schools to compete in state and district athletic events cleared the Idaho Legislature.

The House voted 59-7 on Tuesday to direct Idaho's Department of Education to outline new accreditation requirements for these schools to participate in extracurricular activities.

Rep. Tom Trail says some private schools can't compete at state and district competitions regulated by the Idaho High School Activities Association because they're considered "associate members" of this group.

Trail and Sen. Russ Fulcher have previously sought "regular membership" status for priprivate schools in their legislative districts. But those schools were denied because they aren't accredited through the state Board of Education.

Trail says the IHSAA has declined to change its bylaws to accept other accreditation methods.

House Minority Leader John Rusche objected to the legislation, saying it was bad policy.

HANCE SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR BURGLARIES, ATTEMPTED THEFT

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Buhl man was sentenced to spend at least three years in prison Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Jerry Hance Jr., 28, was sentenced to two to seven years in prison for attempted grand theft and three to 10 years in a case involving two burglaries, with the sentences running concurrently.

Twin Falls County Senior Deputy Prosecutor Stan Holloway described how Hance committed the crimes less than 24 hours after bonding out of jail, where he was awaiting trial on aggravated assault and eluding charges that were later dismissed.

Holloway said Hance and his friend Lee Fife broke into several manufactured homes and stole TVs and Blu-ray players.

Later, Hance was accused of trying to take a Ford Ranger from SeaPac of Idaho, a fish hatchery with an office located near Filer, and steal items from a pump house on the property.

"Clearly this shows the type of person he is and his character," Holloway said. "If he wants something and something is in his way, he will do whatever it takes to get the objects of his desires."

Hance's attorney, George Essma, pointed out none of the crimes Hance has been convicted of were violent and Hance had aided in the conviction of Fife by giving information to police.

Essma asked Judge Richard Bevan to consider sentencing Hance to a retained jurisdiction program with a therapeutic community.

Hance addressed the court from a wheelchair, a precaution because of an injured ankle, he said.

"I know I've been a nuisance for a long time, mostly because of my drug problems," he said.

After completing a retained jurisdiction program, Hance said he wanted to complete long-term rehab in Pocatello.

Although Hance has mental health issues and is seriously addicted to drugs, Bevan said he had to look at who Hance really is. Bevan pointed to a letter written by a family member and Hance's tattoos which read "Bad boy" and "(expletive) menace."

"Someone who goes through the trouble to ink that on their body, that's how they see themselves," he said.

"When Jerry's on meth he's very violent and lives as if he's invincible," Bevan read from the letter.

Instead of leaving prison after his sentence is up and reoffending, Bevan told Hance he hoped he could come out better for it.

Future NASA Mission to Sun 'a Life's Dream' for Some

BY AMINA KHAN
Los Angeles Times (MCT)

LOS ANGELES • The chest-high rack of electronics Justin Kasper is assembling in a Massachusetts office park will fit in a shoe box before he's done.

It won't be much to look at — a few inches across, shaped rather like a coffee cup attached to a Kindle — but to Kasper, it'll serve as eyes across nearly 100 million miles of space.

In less than seven years, that cup will be journeying to the center of the solar system to scoop up bits of the sun.

"This really has been a life's dream," said Kasper, of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass.

In 2018, NASA is scheduled to launch a spacecraft from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida to fly, Icarus-like, dangerously close to our star.

Fitted with a select set of instruments, Solar Probe Plus will address two questions that solar physicists have tussled with for decades: How does the corona, that ghostly, spiked halo seen during a total solar eclipse, heat to more than a million degrees, far hotter than the sun's surface? And what powers the solar wind, the stream of charged particles that flows from the corona?

An up-close look at the sun may ultimately help scientists predict solar flares, as well as coronal mass ejections — "solar storms" like those launched at Earth last week. These events send a barrage of high-energy particles crashing against the Earth's magnetic field, at times disabling satellites, wiping out power grids, forcing airlines to reroute flights and potentially exposing astronauts to fatal doses of radiation.

Scientists have sent probes to the solar system's edge, but never so near its heart. Coming within 3.7 million miles of the sun's surface — 25 times closer than Earth — the 1,350-pound unmanned spacecraft will heat to 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit and endure 512 times the sunlight of vessels orbiting Earth.

The mission "will undoubtedly have impact on our ideas about how life operates throughout the universe — if life does operate throughout the universe — how our planet evolved and how we're going to contend with the further exploration of space," said Richard Fisher, director of NASA's heliophysics division.

Half a century in the making, with an estimated price tag of $1.2 billion and barely 88 pounds allotted to experimental hardware, the project spawned fierce competition among heliophysicists for a piece of the action.

In September 2010, Kasper learned that his proposal to count the electrons, protons and helium ions in the solar wind had won one of five coveted spots. He happily ripped open boxes filled with commemorative copies of the proposal — he'd let them gather dust for months, afraid to jinx his chances — and passed them out to his team.

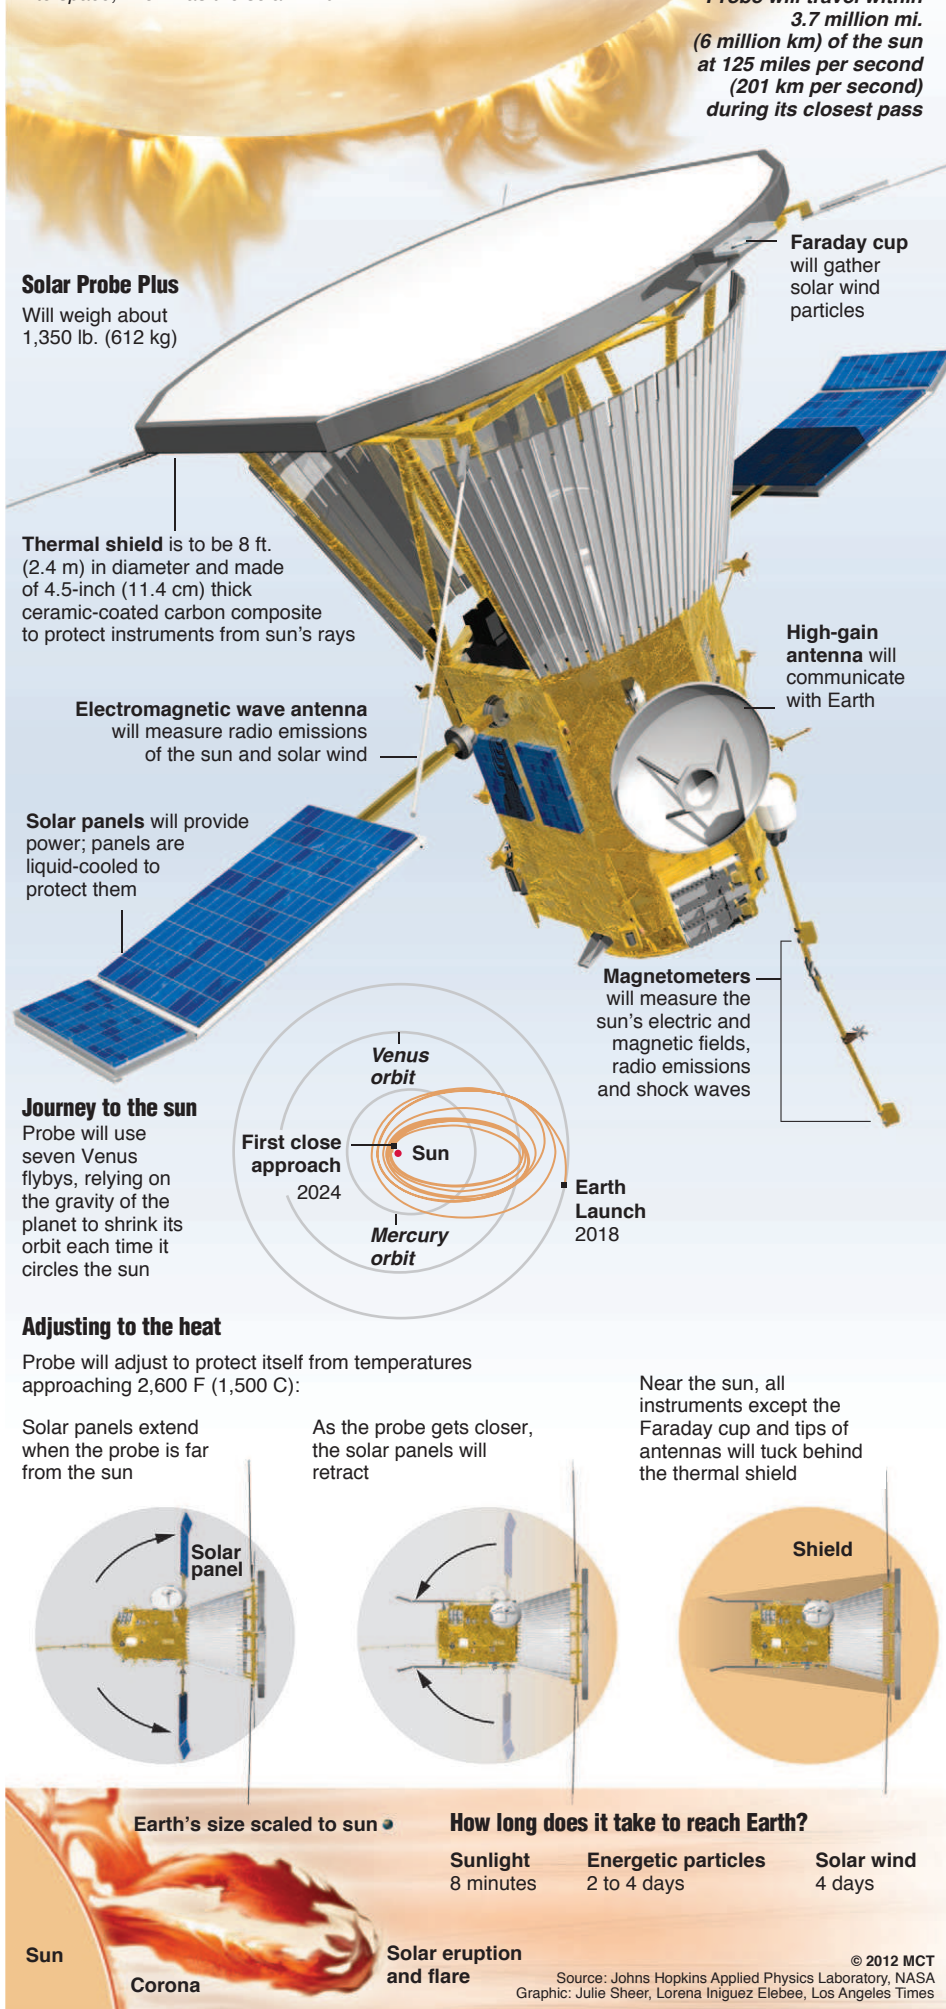

Now, with the instruments selected and the project's next phase under way, some researchers are elated while others tussle with a mix of emotions: sadness at being left out and excitement at what their field stands to learn.

Other spacecraft have ventured toward the sun before: In 1976 the Helios 2 mission came within 27 million miles. The European Space Agency plans to launch a solar orbiter in 2017 that will come as close as 26 million miles.

But Solar Probe Plus, to be built by the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, is more ambitious by far, venturing seven times closer.

Mission to the sun

In 2018, NASA plans to launch a spacecraft called Solar Probe Plus to study the sun's outer atmosphere, or corona, and its expansion into space, known as the solar wind.

Idaho Lawmakers Finally Declare Telegraph Obsolete

BOISE • After a unanimous House vote, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's pen stroke is all that stands between finally declaring the telegraph obsolete in Idaho.

Tuesday's 63-0 vote is part of the Idaho Supreme Court's annual effort to excise archaic language from state code.

Back when trains dominated cross-country passenger travel, Idaho required stations to communicate late arrivals from waiting room to waiting room via telegraph.

Failure merited a $100 misdemeanor fine.

But even in Idaho, hardly anybody uses the telegraph these days.

Rep. James McMillan, substituting for his mother, Shannon McMillan, told lawmakers before the vote that Idaho has just one remaining active passenger station, in Sandpoint.

And that structure is in such disrepair, passengers waiting to board Amtrak trains aren't allowed inside and instead are banished to an outdoor platform.

Lawmakers Drop School Crossing Guard Bill

BOISE • Legislation to authorize school crossing guards to write violation reports for police officers to investigate has died in the Idaho House.

The Spokesman-Review reports the bill was shot down Monday in the House Transportation Committee.

Republican Rep. Jeff Thompson of Idaho Falls says his measure aimed to further protect Idaho's children. It allowing crossing guards age 21 and older to report alleged violations to police, who would then be required to investigate within seven days.

Drivers found in violation of school crosswalk rules would have faced fines of at least $100, but not more than $500, under Thompson's bill. Lawmaker concerns with the legislation measure ranged from training for the crossing guards, to what constituted as an appropriate penalty for drivers.

Feds: Idaho Mine Missed Safety Check before Rock Burst

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) • A federal inspection report shows that officials at the Lucky Friday Mine in northern Idaho failed to conduct the second of two daily monitoring checks on the day a violent rock burst broke the pelvis of one miner and also injured six others.

The report is part of a collection of more than 300 pages of inspection documents The Spokesman-Review obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request.

In November, the Mine Safety and Health Administration ordered managers at the underground silver mine in Mullan to perform twice-daily monitoring of stress in rocks in mine shafts. The federal agency demanded the checks after a Nov. 16 rock burst that registered as a 2.8-magnitude quake on seismographs. That burst didn't cause any injuries.

A second rock burst was reported Dec. 14, this time causing the injuries to seven miners.

A MSHA inspector reported that managers at the mine, operated by Hecla Mining Co., failed to conduct the second daily stress reading, according to documents obtained by the newspaper. The rock burst occurred later that evening.

"The company disregarded the safety of the miners by failing to do the required testing," a federal inspector wrote in his report.

Hecla is appealing the inspector's conclusion, and a company spokeswoman declined to comment.

According to the documents, mine superintendent Jeff Jordan told inspectors that he didn't think rock stress readings could be taken because workers were installing a steel liner over stress gauges in that area. But the gauges contained extended wires so they could be read during the installation of the liner, which was intended to contain unstable rock, the documents said.

The inspection reports also offer more details about the December inspection that led to a yearlong shutdown of the Lucky Friday during a period of record silver prices. Federal inspectors closed the primary shaft on Jan. 6, citing safety concerns.

Labrador: Duty 'Transcends Party Affiliation' in Legislature

BY BETSY Z. RUSSELL
The Spokesman-Review

BOISE • U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador issued a call for bipartisanship on Tuesday, saying the politics in Washington, D.C., are too tainted by partisan rifts.

Labrador told the Idaho House and Senate that since he's been in Washington, D.C., "My appreciation for the Idaho Legislature has only grown more."

"I love working here because there is a true sense of duty that transcends party affiliation in the Idaho Legislature. This is not the case in Congress," Labrador declared. "I have seen a sense of duty and service take a back seat to the goal of only scoring political points."

The freshman Republican, a Tea Party favorite, said he found Idaho a better atmosphere for bipartisanship, even though its state Legislature is 81 percent Republican.

"I actually worked with Democrats very closely when I was here," he told reporters after addressing both the House and Senate. "I served on the Judiciary Committee — there were a lot of issues that were bipartisan, civil liberties ... I have great friendships with people on both sides."

He added, "We were able

Scientists have talked of such a journey since the 1950s, but plans were always logistically fraught and prohibitively expensive.

They had wanted to study the solar poles because the sun's magnetic field would be strongest there. But this meant flying over and under the sun rather than girdling its middle like the planets, requiring huge amounts of energy.

The proposed solution: Send the probe to Jupiter, whose gravity would twice lob it back toward the sun, over its north pole and under its south pole.

But sending a probe to such cold, dark reaches of space would require nuclear power — not just solar — and thus a heavy cooling system. Costs mounted.

Time and again, the mission was revived and then shelved.

"Always off again and on again," said retired solar astrophysicist Eugene Parker. "It came to be a standing joke."

It was time to rip up the plans and start over.

A thought struck the scientists charged with going back to the drawing board.

"I kept staring at the mission's scientific objectives, which have been around for a long, long time," said Andrew Dantzler, who oversaw civilian spaceflight projects at Applied Physics Laboratory until his death in October. "The word 'polar' wasn't in any of the objectives. So I had to go back and ask, 'Why are we visiting the poles again?'"

That question inspired a totally new idea: Give up on the poles. Swing the craft a few times around Venus and then to the sun, to end up circling its middle.

And everything seemed to fall into place.

Venus is far closer, just 67 million miles from the sun to Jupiter's 484 million miles. The craft would not need nuclear power. It could be lighter and cheaper. Instead of two flybys, it could make as many as two dozen.

As it turns out, the new mission might be even better, Fisher said.

The craft won't get as close to the sun as the Jupiter jaunt would have brought it, 1.7 million miles. But it will spend seven times longer (more than 434 hours) within the outer corona, permitting more measurements during different points in the solar cycle and at different places around the sun.

"It's funny how it all has a domino effect," Dantzler said.

The unearthly beauty of the corona has long awed eclipse-chasers; its strange properties have long intrigued astrophysicists.

As matter travels away from the sun, one would think it would cool down. Instead, it heats up — from roughly 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit at the solar surface to well over a million degrees in the corona, which extends millions of miles into space.

And rather than slow down, particles speed up, some of them at velocities close to 500 miles per second, fast enough to journey from Los Angeles to New York in about five seconds.

These particles jet from the corona to far past Pluto and wrap back around the solar system, shielding our spot in space from damaging cosmic rays in a protective magnetic "bubble" called the heliosphere.

The probe will need shielding of its own in the ferocious and unpredictable environment near the sun. Superheated plasma zooming along magnetic fields lines, shock waves from the sun's surface and tiny specks of dust drawn in from the solar system: all will pummel the craft.

The delicate, data-gathering instruments will be sheltered from blinding light and blazing heat by an 8-foot carbon composite shield.

In 2009, NASA issued a call for scientific proposals for the mission. Restrictions were tight. The entire payload would have a weight limit of 40 kilograms (about 88 pounds) and a power budget of 40 watts ("the light bulb inside your refrigerator to run an entire spaceship," Fisher said).

Out of 13 proposals, four instrument packages were selected.

They will capture samples of the most abundant solar wind particles — low-energy electrons, protons and helium ions — and measure high-energy particles in the solar wind and solar storms. They will map the sun's electric and magnetic fields; pick up radio and shock waves passing through the plasma; and take detailed, three-dimensional images of the corona.

Students Seek to Stop Loan Interest Rate Hike

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Northern Arizona University freshman Tyler Dowden, 18, speaks during a news conference on Capitol Hill in Washington on Tuesday to announce the collection of more than 130,000 letters to Congress to prevent student loan interest rates from doubling this July.

BY KIMBERLY HEFLING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Millions of college students could be in for a shock this summer when the interest rate on a popular federally subsidized student loan doubles unless Congress acts.

College students on Tuesday delivered more than 130,000 letters to congressional leaders asking them to stop rates from increasing from 3.4 to 6.8 percent. The rate hike affects new subsidized Stafford loans, which are issued to low and middle income undergraduates. They hope to raise enough awareness to get Congress to stop it.

"I will be put back into buying a house and saving up for my expenses later on in life, and life as we know, is very unexpected. Adding that variable definitely limits my ability to be successful," said Tyler Dowden, 18, a freshman at Northern Arizona University who spoke at a press conference outside the Capitol before the letters were delivered in boxes with "Congress: Don't Double Student-Debt Rates" printed on the outside.

Dowden said he anticipates graduating with $25,000 in debt, but if the rate increases, he expects to add about $3,500 to that tally. He's studying to be a mental health therapist.

Journalist Recounts Fleeing Syrian City under Fire

BY RODRIGO ABD
Associated Press

EDITOR'S NOTE: Award-winning journalists Rodrigo Abd and Ahmed Bahaddou sneaked into Syria and spent nearly three weeks reporting from opposition-held territory.

ANTAKYA, Turkey • Explosions illuminated the night as we ran, hoping to escape Syria after nearly three weeks of covering a conflict that the government seems determined to keep the world from seeing. Tank shells slammed into the city streets behind us, snipers' bullets whizzed by our heads and the rebels escorting us were nearly out of ammunition.

It seemed like a good time to get out of Syria.

With regime forces closing in on the rebel-held northern city of Idlib, Associated Press cameraman Ahmed Bahaddou and I set out Sunday for neighboring Turkey on a journey that would take us through a pitch-black passage and miles of muddy olive groves in the freezing cold.

We ran into delays and dangers with every step — from fighting between rebel and government forces to a missed connection with our guide.

We coordinated our escape with the Free Syrian Army, the rebel force fighting to hold onto Idlib, but the situation was deteriorating quickly. The snipers, shelling and explosions were growing ever closer.

"We are all going to be killed!" a terrified Syrian activist told me, collapsing into tears. An FSA fighter said the government troops were sure to take the city back, because the rebels were running out of ammunition.

A rebel commander said he understood if his fighters wanted to run away and save themselves.

"Whoever wants to leave and not fight, lay your Kalashnikovs here,"

Aida cries on Saturday as she recovers from severe injuries after the Syrian Army shelled her house in Idlib, north Syria. Aida's husband and two children were killed after their home was shelled. Wounded people, including children and women, crowded into the clinic in bloodstained clothes. Many had clearly been struck by snipers, who shot them through the legs and arms.

he said.

Nobody did.

Last week, troops had encircled Idlib, and tank shells starting pounding the city from dawn until evening. Rebels dashed through the streets, taking cover behind the corners of buildings as they clashed with the troops. Wounded fighters were piled into trucks bound for places where they could be treated. I saw a man carrying a young boy, the child's jacket soaked in blood. I later learned the boy was dead.

On Tuesday, just one day after we made it out, government forces recaptured Idlib, although activists reported some pockets of resistance remained. Still, it was a blow to the rebels.

The regime says it is fighting foreign terrorists and armed gangs, denying that the yearlong uprising is a popular revolt. But what we saw in Idlib was nothing like what the government is describing. The townspeople support the uprising; every family seemed to have a fighter in the streets, or knew somebody who was fighting.

The FSA rebels were Syrians, from Idlib. We did not see any foreigners doing battle.

The biggest challenge for the rebels was not their fervor to fight; they all seemed willing to die to oust the regime of President Bashar Assad. They were armed with little more than rocket-propelled grenades, Kalashnikov machine guns and grenades.

The opposition's rallying cry in recent days has been an appeal for weapons. An influx of anti-tank missiles and other heavy arms could be a turning point in the conflict.

But as government forces moved in last week, all we could think of was Baba Amr — the neighborhood in the Syrian city of Homs that endured nearly four weeks of government shelling. Hundreds of people were killed in the siege, and the humanitarian situation was catastrophic. Among the dead were two journalists, Marie Colvin, a veteran American-born war correspondent for Britain's Sunday Times, and Remi Ochlik, 28, a French photojournalist. Both were cut down when a shell struck nearby.

Idlib was believed to be the next target now that the government had recaptured Baba Amr. As the

Santorum Sweeps Ala., Mississippi Primaries

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A resurgent Rick Santorum swept primaries in Alabama and Mississippi Tuesday night, upending the race for the Republican presidential nomination as he sought to push Newt Gingrich toward the sidelines.

Mitt Romney was running third in both states.

"We did it again," Santorum told cheering supporters in Lafayette, La. He said it was time for conservatives to unite in an effort to defeat Romney, the former Massachusetts governor who is the faraway leader in the competition for Republican National Convention delegates.

Romney bristled in the hours before the votes were counted, saying Santorum was "at the desperate end of his campaign."

But it was Gingrich with the most to lose as he struggled for political survival in a part of the country he hoped would fuel one more comeback in the unpredictable race to pick an opponent to President Barack Obama.

He congratulated Santorum on his victories, and poked at Romney. "If you're the front-runner and you keep coming in third, you're not much of a front-runner," he said in Birmingham, Ala.

In Alabama, with 76 percent of the precincts counted, Santorum was pulling 35 percent of the vote, Gingrich had 30 percent and Romney 28 percent.

Returns from 92 percent of Mississippi's precincts showed Santorum with 33 percent, Gingrich 31 percent and Romney 30.

Rep. Ron Paul, the fourth contender, made little effort in the states on the day's ballot.

There were 107 Republican National Convention delegates at stake on Tuesday, 47 in Alabama, 37 in Mississippi, 17 in Hawaii caucuses and six more in caucuses in American Samoa.

Evangelicals played an outsized role in both primary states, underscoring the challenge to Romney. In Mississippi and Alabama, 80 percent or more of voters leaving their polling places said they were born again Christians or evangelical. Those voters have been reluctant to rally to Romney's side in the primaries and caucuses to date. Among them, Santorum bested Romney by 9 points in Alabama and 4 points in Mississippi.

More broadly, the exit polls showed a primary electorate that was conservative, determinedly Republican and profoundly unhappy about the government.

In Mississippi, more than eight in 10 voters said they were dissatisfied or angry with the federal government, while in Alabama, 80 percent said they would definitely vote for the Republican candidate against Obama next fall, no matter who he is.

While Alabama and Mississippi are among the most conservative states in the country and share a long border, the exit polls showed significant differences in the voters' reaction to the candidates.

In Mississippi, Romney had the support of 30 percent of primary voters who earn under $50,000 a year, compared with 26 percent in Alabama. He drew the backing of 33 percent of Mississippi primary voters with no college education, compared with 27 percent in Alabama.

Only about half of all voters in each state said they work fulltime for pay, and they, too, voted differently one state from the other.

Senate Ready to Approve Highway Programs Overhaul

BY JOAN LOWY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • In a rare display of deal-making between Republicans and Democrats in a bitterly partisan election year, the Senate was poised to pass an overhaul of highway and transit programs that would give states more flexibility in how they spend federal money and would step up the pace of road construction by shortening environmental reviews.

Even the measure's sponsors — California Democrat Barbara Boxer and Oklahoma Republican James Inhofe — come from opposite political poles. A vote on the bill is set for Wednesday.

"We are hopeful this will become a template for all of us in the Senate and the House to find the sweet spot where we can work together," Boxer said Tuesday during floor debate on the measure. She said the Senate's bipartisan success should be a lesson for House Republican leaders, whose efforts to pass their own bill without concessions to Democrats have fallen apart.

The Senate marched through more than a dozen amendments, approving proposals to deny federal aid to privatized highways and to loosen safety regulation of agricultural trucks. A series of energy-related proposals were batted aside.

The bill would spend $109 billion over less than two years. That's far below the level of spending that two congressional commissions have said will be needed if the U.S. is to maintain its aging roads and bridges and bus and train systems and expand the national transportation network to meet population growth between now and 2050. Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood has described the nation's roads as "one big pothole."

Official: Invest in Children for Peace in Somalia

BY TOM ODULA
Associated Press

DHOBLEY, Somalia • Adan Abdi worries the students in his class show too little interest in education. That might be a common complaint among teachers, but Abdi's concerns go further: His students are interested in playing war.

Abdi is a teacher in southern Somalia, a region that has been dominated by militia violence for years.

"Students here are not so much interested in learning because they can see a lot of people carrying guns," said the 22-year-old English teacher. "Small guys like them are carrying guns, when they go from (school) to their houses ... they pretend to be fighting using sticks like guns.

"That's what they have in their hearts. Their intention: That they will fight when they grow older," Abdi said.

UNICEF says an entire generation of children has grown up knowing only conflict and fighting in many parts of Somalia, and possibly thousands of children have been trained in combat.

rebels gathered on street corners, families packed a few possessions and rushed to leave the city. Women and children hid in basements to escape the shelling.

"Of course I am afraid!" a Syrian woman cried in one of the shelters, where a dozen women and children hid Saturday. "Even the men are afraid!"

By Saturday, many people fled Idlib to reach surrounding villages. Electricity was switched off most of the day, lasting only about three hours, in what was likely an attempt by the government to clear out the population.

Everybody was preparing for a siege, making our escape all the more complicated. We decided to spend the night among the wounded in Idlib, delaying our departure, because we were too scared to move. As we drove through the dark streets, the driver turned off the headlights so nobody would detect us — even though that meant we could not see anything either.

The thundering "BOOM! BOOM!" from tank shells was relentless.

When we woke up the next morning, the toll of the violence we had somehow escaped was apparent: Wounded people, including children and women, were crowded around in blood-stained clothes. Many had clearly been hit by snipers in the legs and arms. Many had gaping wounds from shrapnel and died in their beds.

There was no space in the morgue for more corpses, so families arranged to bury the dead immediately. Funerals were out of the question because of the danger of being outside.

When evening fell, we decided to leave the city. The idea was to run over an open area overlooked by snipers and tanks, but our guides suggested we go underneath it, through a passage. We had to walk to it, led by an FSA fighter who kept us waiting for a half-hour while battles raged in the streets. We moved carefully through a city devoid of any normal sounds of life — no cars honking, no one on the streets — just silence broken by gunfire and explosions.

The corridor was cramped and so dark that we could not see our hands in front of our faces. Crouching to fit inside it, we moved for about 40 meters (130 feet) until we reached the other end, which was mercifully outside the regime's cordon. It was only after we emerged that we realized our escort was carrying homemade grenades on his vest, unstable explosives that easily could have blown us to bits while we were inside.

The next leg of our journey took us to a massive field of deep mud. There was no way to cross on foot or even in a car. But our contact on the Turkish side of the border had arranged the perfect mode of transport to ferry us into the country: a bright, red tractor.

We clambered aboard and rolled through the mud for a half-hour before crossing an unmarked, largely porous border. Nobody stopped us or even noticed.

Reporting from Syria had been risky, but it was the only way to cover the story properly, without being at the mercy of government minders who try to control what you see and whom you meet.

In the past year, Syria has severely restricted the number of visas it issues to journalists, and those who do get in must take trips accompanied by government escorts.

On Saturday, the Syrian Information Ministry issued a warning that journalists such as Ahmed and me who entered the country illegally "are accompanying terrorists, promoting their crimes and fabricating baseless news."

The statement alluded to the deaths of Colvin and Ochlik, saying media companies are "legally and morally responsible for anything that may result from what could happen to these journalists due to their accompaniment of terrorists."

But for Ahmed and me, the trip was an opportunity to present an honest picture of a conflict that remains largely hidden from the world.

Children

Sikander Khan, the top official for the U.N. children's agency in Somalia, says there is an increased need to invest more in Somalia's youth and children to give long-term peace a chance to prevail.

"We need to make sure that this generation receives quality basic education, access to social services and protection from violence and abuse," he said. "This will stop them being sucked into the continuing violence and they will then be able to make a positive and lasting contribution to the future of Somalia."

Many children in Somalia have little or no education. Only about a third of children of primary-school age are enrolled in school, according to UNICEF.

Children in Somalia are frequently forced to join armed groups such as the al-Qaida-linked al-Shabab. Schools have also come under attack.

"It is estimated that thousands of children have been trained in the use of arms and other skills related to combat. Reports from our partners indicate that in recent months there has been an increase in the recruitment and use of children in armed conflict by warring partners," Khan said.

Mohamed Deq Nur, a 14-year-old student in Mogadishu, Somalia's capital, said he remembers 2006 because he went a month without hearing a gunshot. That year a group called the Islamic Courts Union brought some semblance of order when they took control of Somalia and tried to enforce their strict interpretation of Islamic law.

Mohamed says he has seen dead bodies on the street — most recently, he said, when a man was shot because he refused to give a thief his watch. Mohamed said he doesn't know how to use a gun but thinks it would be good to learn for self protection.

Last year, he said, he and many of his friends begged their parents to get them out of Mogadishu.

But he said he thinks things are now getting better. Regional troops are pushing al-Shabab on three sides, giving the government a chance to try to restore order.

"I don't think Somalia had any future before, but this year is different," he said. "Squatters are being evicted from school buildings which means there will be enough space for learning and there is already free education in some schools and the fighting stopped in Mogadishu."

Justice Backs New Category of Secret Gov't Files

BY RICHARD LARDNER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • In the middle of Sunshine Week, when news organizations and advocacy groups promote government transparency, the Obama administration urged Congress on Tuesday to keep secret a whole new category of information even under the Freedom of Information Act.

A few miles away, the White House organized a conference call with two senior administration officials to preview an announcement by President Barack Obama about an important China trade issue but told reporters that no one could be quoted by name. The officials were U.S. Trade Representative Ron Kirk and the deputy national security adviser for international economic affairs, Michael Froman.

Obama has promised that his administration will be the most transparent in American history. But events on Tuesday, while unrelated, illustrate that old habits die hard.

On Capitol Hill, the director of the Justice Department's office of information policy, Melanie Ann Pustay, told senators they need to protect against public disclosures of material about cybersecurity, critical U.S. computer networks, industrial plants, pipelines and more. Businesses have sought such a new exemption under the law for at least 10 years.

Pustay told the Senate Judiciary Committee that a Supreme Court ruling in March 2011 narrowed an exemption under the records law and left federal agencies unable to protect secrets about cybersecurity and critical infrastructures, even though the Justice Department since then has recommended at least three other ways under current law to justify withholding such information.

U.S. Bancorp boosts annual dividend • U.S. Bancorp says that it will boost its annual dividend by 56 percent to 78 cents per share and buy back up to 100 million shares of its stock, after the Minneapolis-based bank passed the Federal Reserve's stress test. The Fed conducts the tests every year to see if banks could withstand catastrophic losses in a crisis. JPMorgan and BB&T raised their dividends as well after passing the Fed's stress test. JPMorgan boosted its dividend by 20 percent, BB&T's rose by 25 percent. U.S. Bancorp said its quarterly dividend will increase to 19.5 cents per share. It will be paid April 16 to shareholders of record on March 30.

SEC Charges 3 Thornburg Executives with Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) • Federal regulators have charged three executives of what was once the nation's second-largest mortgage company with civil accounting fraud. The Securities and Exchange Commission said the executives conspired to conceal disastrous conditions at the now-defunct Thornburg Mortgage Inc. as the housing market collapsed and the financial crisis loomed. The SEC said the three executives conspired to overstate Thornburg's income by more than $400 million in 2007. Thornburg faced "a severe liquidity crisis" in early 2008 and its lenders were demanding payments the company wasn't able to meet, the SEC said in a lawsuit filed Tuesday in federal court in Albuquerque, N.M.

Small Grain Outlook Mostly Up

BY CINDY SNYDER
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Warm days and dry fields enticed many southern Idaho producers to start planting spring grain. Conditions are good for planting and stronger prices have growers cautiously optimistic about the growing season.

According to the latest monthly grain balance sheet, released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, wheat stocks have reduced by 20 million bushels to 825 million.

Tighter stocks lead to higher prices. USDA is projecting an average U.S. wheat price of $7.15-$7.45 per bushel for the 2011-12 marketing year that ends May 31. That's nearly $2.50 per bushel higher than two years ago, when stocks neared the 1 billion bushel mark.

USDA forecasters cut 5 million bushels off domestic food demand based on the latest flour production data from the North American Millers Association. That's not really surprising, given that food companies have been passing higher commodity costs on to consumers over the last six to nine months. Consumers have responded by switching to cheaper brands or buying smaller packages.

Kraft Foods in North America, for example, reported raising prices 8.5 percent and seeing a 1.5 percent decline in both the volume and mix of products sold. Other food companies have reported similar trends.

While domestic sales are lagging, high quality U.S. wheat is in demand. USDA increased exports by 25 million bushels compared to the previous month's estimate. Spring wheat, white wheat and durum account for nearly all of that increase.

One of the greatest surprises in the March world agriculture supply and demand estimate was the 5 million bushel increase in oat imports from Canada. Demand for oats has been growing, but U.S. producers have yet to increase production. USDA forecasters raised the oats farm price to $3.35-$3.55 per bushel, up nearly $1 from last year's national average.

Forecasters reduced the price range for barley by 10 cents to $5.20 to $5.50 per bushel, which is still nearly $1.50 higher than last year. Feed barley prices tend to follow corn prices, which have been weakening.

Analysts and producers alike are focusing mostly on USDA's upcoming planting intentions, which will be released March 30. Prices over the next few weeks could still influence planting decisions, but most of the shift will likely be from corn to soybeans.

Soybean stocks are tight and the market has been trying to break above $13 per bushel. If corn futures continue to trade in the $5.50 per bushel range but soybeans pushes to $13.35-$13.50 per bushel, growers will likely plant more soybeans, said Randy Martinson, a market analyst with Progressive Ag based in Fargo, N.D.

"The key is higher bean prices but corn stays the same," Martinson said in a conference call after the March report was released. But he doesn't think that scenario is likely. "If beans go higher, corn will stay with wheat and wheat will try to pick up, too!"

Obama Cautions China Against 'Skirting the Rules'

BY JULIE PACE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama warned China Tuesday that it would not be allowed to gain a competitive advantage in world trade by "skirting the rules."

Making an election-year pitch to American workers, and businesses as well, Obama announced Washington has brought a new trade case against Beijing. The goal is to pressure China, a rising Asian economic power, to end its restrictions on exports of key materials used to manufacture hybrid car batteries, flat screen televisions and other high tech-goods.

"If China would simply let the market work on its own, we'd have no objection," Obama said during remarks in the White House Rose Garden. "But their policies currently are preventing that from happening. And they go against the very rules that China agreed to follow."

The U.S., working in conjunction with the European Union and Japan, asked the World Trade Organization Tuesday to facilitate talks with China over its curtailment of exports of what's known as rare earth minerals. Obama cast the fresh action against China as part of a broader push to level the playing field for U.S. companies.

"When it is necessary, I will take action if our workers and our businesses are being subjected to unfair practices," Obama said.

With the U.S. economy slowly recovering from recession, Obama has sought to bring a renewed focus on Chinese policies that could hinder U.S. expansion. He used an executive order last month to create a new trade enforcement agency – the Interagency Trade Enforcement Center – to move aggressively against China and other nations.

Obama's posture on China has already surfaced as an election-year issue, with Republican front-runner Mitt Romney criticizing him for refusing so far to cite China for manipulating its currency. Romney has said he would label China a currency manipulator on his first day in office, a move that could lead to trade sanctions against Beijing.

The White House insisted that Tuesday's announcement was not intended to be a counter to Republican criticism.

"The president's commitment on this has been evident from the very beginning, and this is simply part of that effort," White House spokesman Jay Carney said.

China has a stranglehold on the global supply of 17 rare earth minerals that are essential for making high-tech goods, including hybrid cars, weapons, flat-screen TVs, mobile phones, mercury-vapor lights, smartphones and camera lenses. The materials also are used in the manufacture of tiny motors, such as those used to raise and lower car windows and in consumer electronics.

China has reduced its export quotas of these rare earth minerals over the past several years to cope with a growing demand during rapid business expansion at home, although Chinese officials also cite environmental concerns as the reason for the restrictions. U.S. industry officials suggest it is an unfair trade practice that violates rules established by the WTO, a group that includes China as a member.

Administration officials said Beijing's export restrictions give Chinese companies a competitive advantage by providing them access to more of these rare materials at a cheaper price, while forcing U.S. companies to manage with a smaller, more costly supply.

"America's workers and manufacturers are being hurt in both established and budding industrial sectors by these policies," U.S. Trade Representative Ron Kirk said in a statement. "China continues to make its export restraints more restrictive, resulting in massive distortions and harmful disruptions in supply chains for these materials throughout the global marketplace."

On Tuesday, a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman defended Beijing's curbs on rare earth production as necessary to limit environmental damage and conserve scarce resources.

FED: 15 BANKS PASS STRESS TEST; CITI, 3 MORE FAIL

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER and PALLAVI GOGOI
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • All but four of 19 major U.S. banks got a green light Tuesday to boost dividends and buy back shares after the Federal Reserve declared them strong enough to survive another serious recession.

J.P. Morgan, Wells Fargo and other large bank holding companies that passed the Fed's so-called stress tests announced they would return capital to shareholders, igniting a late-day rally on Wall Street. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 218 points and closed at its highest level since the end of 2007.

"It's clearly good news – the U.S. banking system can now withstand a quite severe recession without falling over," said Douglas Elliott, a fellow at the Brookings Institution, a non-partisan policy think tank.

One notable exception was Citigroup, the nation's third-largest bank. It was among the companies the Fed said lacked enough capital to withstand another severe economic and financial crisis. Its stock price fell 4 percent in after-hours trading. The Fed announced the results after markets had closed.

The other three financial institutions that did not pass the Fed's hypothetical stress test were Ally Financial, SunTrust and MetLife.

The Fed reviewed the balance sheets of 19 bank holding companies to determine whether they could withstand a crisis that sends unemployment to 13 percent, causes stock prices to be cut in half and lowers home prices 21 percent from today's levels.

For those banks that failed, the Fed can stop them from paying stock dividends or buying back their own stock. The Fed can also force them to raise money by selling additional stock or issuing debt.

After last year's stress tests, the Fed allowed some banks – including JPMorgan Chase and Wells Fargo – to raise their dividends because they were deemed healthier.

The Fed has conducted the stress tests each year since 2009. The Fed did not publicize the results of its tests in 2010 or 2011.

The Fed released the results two days earlier than planned after JPMorgan sent out a press release late Tuesday saying it had passed the test.

After the first round of tests, in 2009, the Fed ordered 10 banks to raise a total of $75 billion. Bank of America alone was told to raise $34 billion.

This year's test was more rigorous, the Fed said, so it could be assured that the industry was prepared to meet more stringent international banking rules that go into effect in 2013.

Restaurant Launches Culinary Lessons

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls restaurant whose lunch menu showcases local meats, breads and produce hopes to turn itself into something of a culinary education center.

Chef-owner Mike Dougherty of Saucy is taking the first step by offering a six-part culinary course this spring, giving students hands-on practice in sauteing, baking, poaching, steaming and blanching.

Dougherty promises simple, nutritious dishes that emphasize herbs and local, organic ingredients — as well as “a non-judgmental atmosphere” for learning basic skills like menu organization, measuring, chopping and pretty presentation. Each class will include both demonstration and practice, and he’ll throw in some taste comparisons

HOMEGROWN YOGURT

Cloverleaf Creamery received a $300,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture to expand its product line. Next up for local-foods lovers: yogurt and cottage cheese.

BY NATALIE DICOU
ndicou@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Cloverleaf Creamery is known for its Idaho potato-flavored ice cream, but the chunky concoction is certainly not owner Bill Stoltzfus' favorite flavor.

“I probably shouldn't say this, but I'm not extremely fond of it,” said Stoltzfus, who'd much rather have a scoop of strawberry. “But it's a tourist attraction, a novelty.”

Of the creamery's 24 flavors, co-owner Donna Stoltzfus, Bill's wife, ranks the potato ice cream dead last. The creamery discontinued the flavor last year, but complaints poured in. Within a month, the Stoltzfuses brought it back.

This week, Cloverleaf is debuting a product that both Stoltzfuses agree is delicious: yogurt. After weeks of trial and error, they have a batch they believe is worthy of being sold.

Cloverleaf, owned by the couple for the past five years, has ambitious plans to expand its product line. After selling milk, cream, butter and related items, the family-owned company will soon begin selling yogurt (later this week) and cottage cheese (likely within 6-8 weeks).

A government grant will help make it happen.

Cloverleaf recently received a $300,000 Value-Added Producer Grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It was one of 298 such grants awarded in January to companies nationwide; six are in Idaho. The grants, totalling $40.2 million, are designed to help ag companies advertise and develop new products and build economies in rural communities.

The $300,000 isn't free money. Companies must match any grant funds they spend 1-to-1, and the cash can't be used to buy land or buildings. It must go toward promoting, marketing and enhancing their products to make them more valuable.

“I liken it in a different way to incentives the city of Twin Falls gave to Chobani,” Bill said. “Obvi-Cloverleaf currently employs about a dozen full- and part-time employees, Bill said. He's not sure how many more he'll hire, but if business goes well, he said he plans to add workers and pay his staff more competitive rates.

Cloverleaf Creamery, at 205 Broadway Ave. S. in Buhl, will begin selling quarts of its blueberry, razzleberry and plain yogurt later this week. Cottage cheese will be available there in 6-8 weeks. Prices are not yet determined.

Cloverleaf's bottled milk is also available at Swensen's Markets and Sta Well Health Food Store in Twin Falls, and at Atkinsons Markets in the Wood River Valley. But it will be a couple of months before Cloverleaf expands distribution of its new yogurts and cottage choose to those locations.

KIMBERLY • Last year Denise Fairchild-Garcia took the College of Southern Idaho's dance team and cheerleading squad under her wing.

Her task wasn't small. The 50-year-old booster prepared and delivered meals for the entire squad during every home game in basketball season.

“It was about 26 kids and two dozen games,” cheer and dance director Julie Wright said. “We loved her.”

Wright appreciated that Fairchild-Garcia was cognizant of the team's dietary needs and time restrictions.

“We eat between games so she made things you could easily eat within a 10- to 15-minute time span but were healthy, too,” Wright said. “She never made the same dish twice, and more than anything it was nice to be spoiled.”

Spend any amount of time with Fairchild-Garcia and you'll quickly learn that making people feel cared for is behind her urge to cook and bake. In addition to spending hours in her own Kimberly kitchen preparing meals for family and friends, Fairchild-Garcia runs a small catering company, De'lish.

The Times-News caught up with Fairchild-Garcia in her kitchen, where she had multiple batches of Whole Wheat Oat Rolls already going and her “famous” cheesy bread topping almost ready to go.

Fairchild-Garcia showed the chopped honey-ham lunchmeat and medium cheddar chunks that she'd mixed into the roll dough, after it had already risen once, to give her rolls extra taste and texture.

Pepitas: What They Are and How to Use Them

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Plenty of people will have a tough time taking pumpkin seeds seriously.

Fair enough. Americans unfamiliar with Hispanic foods generally only encounter them in the glop you scrape out of jack-o-lanterns.

But roasted, hulled pumpkin seeds (properly known as pepitas) are a delicious, nutty backbone of many Mexican dishes and are well worth getting to know.

And thanks to the popularity of Hispanic foods, they are easy to find in several varieties — raw, roasted, salted and not, among others.

Pepitas resemble long, narrow teardrops and are greenish in color (because their hard, white hulls have been removed). Don't buy regular "snacking" pumpkin seeds still in their hulls.

Like many nuts and seeds, pepitas taste best when toasted and salted. The flavor is nutty, pleasantly oily and crunchy, but not hard.

If you can only find raw pepitas, they are easy to toast at home. Simply add a handful or so to a dry skillet over medium heat. Stir constantly until the seeds puff and begin to brown. If you like, stir in a few drops of vegetable oil, then salt.

Traditionally, pepitas are used both ground and whole. They often are included in mole, a rich and thick sauce-like dish that usually includes chicken. They also can be mixed into roasted vegetables (especially butternut and other squash varieties) for a pleasantly nutty crunch.

Pepitas really shine when added to salads. Think of them as this decade's update of the rather tasteless sunflower seeds that have long populated salad bars.

Grilled Flank Steak with Pepita-Cilantro Sauce

This bold sauce is inspired by chimichurri. The steak can be served alone with the sauce, or thinly sliced over toasted bread. Start to finish: 20 minutes, plus marinating. Servings: 4.

For the steaks:

- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 pounds flank steaks

For the sauce:

- 1 cup packed fresh flat-leaf parsley
- 1/4 cup packed fresh cilantro
- 1/2 cup toasted pepitas
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano
- 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper flakes

In a large bowl, whisk together the olive oil, vinegar, garlic, salt and pepper. Add the steaks, turn to coat, then refrigerate for 30 minutes (or up to several hours).

To make the sauce, in a food processor combine the parsley, cilantro, pepitas, olive oil, vinegar, oregano, cumin, salt, garlic and red pepper flakes. Process for 2 to 3 minutes, or until very smooth. Set aside.

When ready to cook, heat a grill to high.

Remove the steaks from the marinade, then grill for 7 minutes per side for medium-rare. Transfer the steaks to a cutting board and let rest for 5 minutes.

Slice the steaks across the grain into thin slices. Serve topped with the sauce.

USDA BEGINS TWEETING FOOD RECALL ALERTS

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) • Anyone with a Twitter account can now be among the first to know about food recalls with a new service the Department of Agriculture is rolling out.

The USDA says state-specific food safety alerts for meat, poultry, and processed egg products are included as well as information on how to protect food during severe weather events.

Up until now recalls have been announced in news releases and on a general USDA Twitter feed.

The agency's Food Safety and Inspection Service says state feeds will better provide information directly to people affected by recalls. Food recalls often involve specific states where food was distributed.

The alerts can be followed by listing your state's two-letter designation followed by underscore then FSISAlert.

Judges Test String Cheeses

BY HEIDI STEVENS
Chicago Tribune

We like to think of string cheese as the banana of dairy products — individually wrapped, cheerful in its blandness and eminently packable in a bagged lunch.

And what cheese lacks in potassium, it makes up for by not bruising. So it's pretty much an even trade. At least that's what we tell ourselves when our children scarf down their sixth stick in a day. (Rarely happens with bananas.)

We asked around and as it turns out, string cheese affection (er, addiction?) is common in the early years of childhood. And the later years. And, fine, into adulthood. Which may explain why there are roughly 734 brands in your grocer's dairy case. Here, we tackle four.

Nutritionally speaking, the big brands are all about the same. Sodium tends to hover in the 200 milligram range per stick. (Kraft is slightly less at 190 mg; Sargento and Lucerne a tad higher at 210 mg.) Each stick packs about 7 grams of protein. (Eight grams for Sargento; 6 grams for Frigo.) And calcium remains a reliable 20 percent of the recommended daily allowance.

But how do they taste? We put the question to a panel of crack cheese connoisseurs, ages 5-8. Not one of them asked about the affinage or the rennetting. The word "rubbery" did come up more than once. Each brand was ranked on a scale of 1 to 5 (5 is best). The results:

First place: Sargento. (4.5 points. 12 pack. $4.99; 42 cents per stick)

"I love it. I tried getting used to the other ones, and it doesn't work." "That one's better than all of them. It has the right amount of taste."

Second place: Frigo. (4 points. 16 pack. $5.49; 34 cents per stick)

"Good." "This one's at least easy to open."

Third place: Kraft. (3 points. 16 pack. $5.99; 37 cents per stick)

"A little rubbery." "Not super good. Not super bad."

Fourth place: Lucerne. (2.5 points. 12 pack. $4.49; 37 cents per stick)

"Blah." "Doesn't really have a taste."

"We were forging ahead as best we could," said Bill, who also owns Wilonna Holsteins, four miles south of Buhl, with his wife. The dairy, which has about 80 cows, supplies the creamery with milk.

After lots of experimenting, Cloverleaf will have yogurt for sale in its Buhl store later this week.

Cloverleaf will offer three flavors to start: razzleberry,

"I'm pretty partial to the razzleberry, but I've been really pleased with all three of them," said Bill, noting the consistency is more like a smoothie than thicker yogurt and will be sold by the quart in glass bottles.

Celebrities Brewing Coffee Sales for a Cause

BY MICHELLE LOCKE
For The Associated Press

You know you like your cup of Joe in the morning. But are you ready for a cup of Hugh?

We are, of course, talking about actor Hugh Jackman, who recently launched a coffee and tea company that raises money for charity.

Philanthropy is the driving force behind Jackman's involvement in the coffee world. In a telephone interview he talked about being inspired by the late Paul Newman and his company, Newman's Own, which has donated millions to charity. But it's not the only reason.

The other factor? Taste. "Hey, I'm a coffee snob," says Jackman, who could drink coffee "all day, because I just love it," but limits himself to one or two cups. "If I'm buying it, I want a great cup of coffee. If you can have a great cup of coffee and the profits of that company are actually going back to different charities, I think it's a win-win for everybody."

Jackman's interest in creating a coffee company was sparked during a tour he took as an ambassador for World Vision, an organization that works with children and families. In Ethiopia, he met Dukale, a local coffee farmer, and was struck by how hard he worked to look after his family, and by how a little help could make a big difference in the lives of coffee farmers.

In a piece of synchronicity, he discovered that a friend, Barry Steingard, who has 25 years experience in the coffee and restaurant industry, was planning on getting back in the coffee business. "I said, 'Well, do you need a partner?'" said Jackman.

So far Laughing Man Coffee & Tea — chocolates were also recently added — is the first subsidiary under Jackman's umbrella company, Laughing Man Worldwide. The way it works is 50 percent of the subsidiary profits go to the parent company, which then donates 100 percent of its profits. Educational initiatives are the focus of the coffee company, which has partnered with Harlem Village Academies, the well-regarded charter schools in New York, and WorldVision.

environmental projects supported by the actor's foundation.

Meanwhile, Newman's daughter, Nell Newman, partnered with Vermont's Green Mountain Coffee Roasters, Inc. to source, roast, package and distribute fair trade organic coffee under the Newman's Own Organics label. Green Mountain allocates at least 5 percent of pre-tax profits to social and environmental projects in the communities where it does business.

Celebrity coffees are just a fraction of the overall market. Still, the trend of celebrities working with high-quality roasters to make coffee for a cause "can only be a good thing," says Miles Small, owner and editor-in-chief of CoffeeTalk magazine, based in Vashon, Wash.

"Coffee is, and has always been an instrumental tool in bringing disparate folks together for a common cause," he said. "Buying celebrity coffee with a donation element helps toward achieving the charitable goals of the celebrity and also helps the over 25 million families worldwide whose survival is dependent on the growing of this 'not so simple' beverage called coffee."

"It's like a meal. You heat them up, put some butter on them and you're ready to go," said son Justin Garcia, 29. "That's how I eat them, and the guys at work love them too."

"I started cooking when I was 5, when I got my Easy-Bake Oven. I tortured my poor father who pretended to eat that stuff."

Denise Fairchild-Garcia

Fairchild-Garcia said her roll recipe is great either plain or with the cheese and ham.

"I put a small handful of ham and cheese chunks into each roll as I'm forming the roll," she said. "The roll dough will then rise one more time before baking in the oven. I like to make a double batch because they freeze really well and you can pull them out for easy use later on."

As she pinched the ham-and-cheese mixture into dough pouches, placing each newly formed roll into a baking pan, Fairchild-Garcia described her cooking background.

"I started cooking when I was 5, when I got my Easy-Bake Oven," she said. "I tortured my poor father who pretended to eat that stuff."

After moving to Twin Falls from California with her children following a divorce, Fairchild-Garcia volunteered her skills with The Salvation Army.

"In the early '90s, when we first moved, you used to be able to go in to The Salvation Army and they would have all of the ingredients and you could just come up with dishes, and that was fun. But then the policy changed and you had to bring in your groceries and I just couldn't afford it," she said. "But I still love to cook for others ... my friend's daughter recently had her wisdom teeth pulled, and so I made up a dish of macaroni and cheese for her. I like doing little things like that."

Her rolls are just one family-and-friend favorite. One dish she can't leave home without is Dee's Cheesy Bread. The sourdough used in the recipe is storebought, but the topping is her own.

"It took a lot of trial and error, mostly error, to get this just right," she said. "But everyone loves it."

Fairchild stresses that the success of the recipe is in sticking to it.

"Use real butter, no margarine, and real mayonnaise," she said. "The rest is parsley flakes, garlic, grated Parmesan and grated cheddar cheese."

Her trick in getting the bread extra crispy is to cut the sourdough in half and lightly toast it first, then spread on a thin layer of the mix before setting the bread under a preheated broiler.

"Watch for it to get melty and golden brown. When that happens, it's ready," she said.

The dish is great for parties.

"I've learned to make extra because you think two pieces of toast is enough and it's not. People can't seem to get enough," Fairchild-Garcia said.

Whole Wheat Oat Rolls

Recipes courtesy Denise Fairchild-Garcia of Kimberly.

- 2 cups water
- 1 cup quick oats
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup warm water
- 3 tablespoons active dry yeast
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/3 cup brown sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 3/4 cups whole-wheat flour
- Extra flour to make a soft dough

In a saucepan bring 2 cups of water to a boil and add the oats and butter. Bring back up to a boil and stir; cook for 1 minute. Remove from heat and cool to luke-warm.

In a small, warm bowl, combine 1/2 cup warm water and the yeast with 1 tablespoon sugar. Set aside and let the yeast work.

In a large bowl combine the brown sugar, salt and 4 3/4 cups flour. Stir to combine the dry ingredients.

Add the yeast to the oatmeal mixture, then add that mixture to the flour. Stir to combine. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, adding only enough flour to get to that point.

Place the dough in a large glass bowl that has been greased, and turn once to oil the dough. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch down the dough and let rest, covered, for 10 minutes. Divide dough into two pieces. Either shape and bake as loaves, or divide into 18 pieces and shape as rolls. Place 9 rolls each in two greased round cake pans.

Cover and let rise for 45-55 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until browned.

Remove from oven and remove from pan onto a cooling rack. Let cool to warm, and serve.

Dee's Cheesy Bread

- 1/2 cup softened butter (not margarine)
- 3/4 cup real mayonnaise
- 1/8 cup parsley flakes
- 2 teaspoons granulated garlic
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan
- 1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Mix well and spread on lightly toasted sourdough bread. Broil until melty and golden brown.

William 'David' Freshour

Aug. 17, 1940-March 10, 2012

JEROME • William "David" Freshour, 71, of Jerome, passed away Saturday, March 10, 2012, in Jerome.

David was born Aug. 17, 1940, in Jerome, to Hobert and Anna Russell (Freshour), both of Greenville, Tenn. David spent his life in the Jerome County area, growing up on farms operated by his parents and siblings — sisters, Glenna and Reba, and brother, Russ. He always had a passion for farming and the desert land of southeast Idaho.

David was a member of the Bible Baptist Church since 1970. He attended Jerome High School and went on to graduate from Link's School of Business in Boise, Idaho. He worked at various jobs, including bookkeeper at Idaho Creamery in Jerome and assisting with the disabled at several shelter homes in the area. Another pastime he thoroughly enjoyed was flower gardening. Each year he sent out a Christmas picture of his beautiful works of art. He was also very proud of his extensive volunteer work with the Jerome County Historical Society, researching the history of longtime residents of the area.

David was an avid antique collector, especially when it came to kerosene lamps. At one time, he had more than 100 in his collection — all sizes, colors and shapes. Many of his treasures he entered in local county fairs, winning numerous ribbons. David also prided himself in keeping in contact with his many friends and relatives, near and far. He made several trips to see family in Tennessee, Oregon, Washington State and Washington, D.C. He was the person to ask when it came to family history.

David is survived by his sister, Reba Sheaffer of Boise; his brother, Russell of Modesto, Calif.; as well as numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, Anna and Hobert Freshour; and his sister, Glenna Brewer.

A funeral service will be held at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, March 17, at Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel, with interment to follow at the Jerome Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at Hove-Robertson Funeral Chapel.

RaNae Griffin Smith

Aug. 20, 1929-March 9, 2012

RUPERT • RaNae Griffin Smith, age 82, of Rupert, was the fifth of five children. RaNae was born in Newton, Cache, Utah, on Aug. 20, 1929, to Amos and Idella Griffin. She passed away peacefully, surrounded by her loving family on Friday, March 9, 2012, in Rupert.

RaNae grew up in Newton, Utah. She loved her family very much. She graduated from North Cache High School in 1947. RaNae married O'dell Smith Jr. on May 9, 1947, and on June 20, 1949, they were sealed in the Logan Utah LDS Temple. They raised five children. They later divorced. She married Garr Hovey in 1995. He passed away in 2001.

RaNae was an active member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, holding many callings in various organizations. RaNae willingly helped others in many capacities. She was an honest, hard-working, kind and very classy lady with a great sense of humor. She had such a sweet disposition and maintained such grace and dignity throughout her life. She loved her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren — often "bragging" of their accomplishments. She loved attending the opera and symphony, reading, gardening, watching the Utah Jazz and traveling all over the world.

RaNae began her working career in Logan, Utah, where she worked as secretary to the radiologist at Budge Memorial. She also managed an office for three physicians in Smithfield, Utah. She took time off to raise her family and move to Idaho. She assisted her husband in developing farmland from sagebrush. RaNae worked many hours in general farm management. It was not uncommon for her to be driving truck during harvest, changing siphon tubes, doing household and farm taxes, and managing farm business, rising day after day to do it all again. RaNae served on school and county PTA boards. She also served as a room mother and helped with school carnivals.

RaNae re-entered the workforce in 1959 as a secretary for the Minidoka County School District at Acequia School. In 1966, RaNae began working for Minidoka Memorial Hospital, where she worked for 29 years. She held many positions and, by the time she retired in 1995, had become the director of human resources. She later served on the Guardian Board of the hospital.

RaNae was very active politically. She served as secretary for the Democratic Party for 15 years and as a state and precinct committee woman. She also was the campaign manager for a political candidate. She was the secretary for the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union for many years and was a representative for the Utah-Idaho Women's Conference. She was also a delegate in 1986 at the National Convention in Spokane, Wash. RaNae was honored by the Rupert Business and Professional Women organization as their Woman of Progress in January 1989. RaNae was extremely hard working and very astute at financial matters. With thoughtfulness and generosity, she diligently served her family, as well as others within her circle of influence.

RaNae is survived by her children, Pamela (Val) Nish of Smithfield, Utah, Cynthia (Paul) Mickelsen and Andrea (Tim) Jolley, all of Rupert, Corey (Melody) Smith of Emerson and Jeremy (Lisa) Smith of Rupert; 22 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; her siblings, Richard Griffin of Vacaville, Calif., and Morris Griffin of Downey, Calif.; sisters-in-law, Sue Knolle of Austin, Texas, and Lagene Hanson of St. George, Utah; and many nieces, nephews and friends. RaNae was preceded in death by her parents, Amos Reuben and Idella Elizabeth Peterson Griffin; and siblings, Amos Clarke and Duane William Griffin; and sisters-in-law, Helen Griffin and Mid Griffin.

The family expresses their sincere appreciation to RaNae's faithful home and visiting teachers and to the staff at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation and Minidoka Memorial Hospital for the outstanding and compassionate care given to our mother.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 17, at the Acequia LDS Church, with Bishop Richard Poteet officiating. Burial will be in the Rupert Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, March 16, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

The family suggests that memorials be directed to the Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in memory of RaNae.

Cookbooks Answer: What Would Tony Soprano Eat?

BY MICHELE KAYAL
For The Associated Press

Andy Griffith always saved room for Aunt Bee's rhubarb pie. The Brady bunch couldn't wait for Alice's meatloaf. And it's not Sunday in Tony Soprano's house without gravy.

What you probably didn't know is just how robust an industry has been cooked up around helping fans eat like their favorite TV characters.

Because for about as long as viewers have been sucked into the lives of the Bradys, the Sopranos and the will-they-won't-they ups and downs of Rachel and Ross, a surprising number of them also have hankered for the characters' on-screen eats. And cookbook publishers have been happy to oblige.

Fans have responded. Ken Beck's 1991 "Aunt Bee's Mayberry Cookbook" has sold 900,000 copies. Michele Scicolone says her 2002 book, "The Sopranos Family Cookbook," has sold 10 times as many copies as her other cookbooks. Publisher John Wiley and Sons' 2007 Sesame Street branded "C is for Cooking" flew off the shelves.

For context, publishers today often consider a cookbook modestly successful if it sells 20,000 to 30,000 copies.

"Those books do really well for us, especially during holiday season," says Jessica Goodman, associate publisher at Wiley, which offers several TV tie-ins, including "SpongeBob's Kitchen Mission" and "Dora and Diego Let's Cook."

The genre of television-inspired cookbooks likely traces itself back to movies. Tie-in books have been around at least since the Pebecco Toothpaste company published the "Gone with the Wind Cook Book" in 1940.

Some TV-inspired cookbooks feature well thought out recipes created by experienced culinary professionals, such as Scicolone (who is better known for cookbooks dedicated to Italian home cooking). Others are essentially community cookbooks that are untested or barely tested. But none of that seems to matter to fans.

"A lot of good people are brought on to produce them from time to time, but people buy them because it's a lark," says Matt Sartwell, manager of the New York cookbook store Kitchen Arts and Letters. "Most of the time people don't even think about the recipes. Most people understand we're talking about fictional characters."

Some of the books, such as the recently released "The Unofficial Mad Men Cookbook," border on culinary anthropology. Just in time for the long-awaited start of the show's fifth season (March 25), the cookbook offers an exhaustive history of New York dining in the 1960s, right down to the actual recipes used in Draper haunts like Sardi's and The Grand Central Oyster Bar.

For her first Sopranos cookbook — there's also a follow up, the 2006 "Entertaining with the Sopranos" — Scicolone drew on her family recipes and those of series creator David Chase to imagine what the New Jersey mafia don and his family might really have eaten.

"Whenever I write a recipe I always try to put myself in the place where I had this recipe or what inspired me," Scicolone says. "So in the case of the Sopranos, instead of thinking of that time on the Amalfi coast, I was thinking 'What would (Tony's wife) Carmella make if it was late and she was coming home after selling real estate all day?'"

Other books are intended primarily as fan documents.

"We were just fans of the Andy Griffith Show," says Beck, who wrote "Aunt Bee's Mayberry Cookbook" with co-author Jim Clark. "We knew how we loved the show and we knew how fans felt. We filled it with photos and dialogue from scenes around food. We gave all the recipes names based on Mayberry characters."

The recipes came from the show's cast and crew, Beck says, as well as from members of The Andy Griffith Show Rerun Watchers Club, founded by Clark. Beck says the club has 25,000 members nationwide.

The duo went on to write two more Mayberry cookbooks, as well as a book containing the recipes of fictional cops (for instance, "Colombo") and one with the vittles of fictional cowboys (think "Gunsmoke"). Their 1993 book "Mary Ann's Gilligan's Island Cookbook" contains recipes from Dawn Wells, the actress who played the show's beguiling Mary Ann.

And "Granny's Beverly Hillbillies Cookbook" (1994) offers recipes from the Clampett's stamping ground in the Ozarks. Yes, we're talking ground hog. "I got that from a friend of mine whose mother prepared ground hog in the Depression years," Beck says.

HEALTH ALERT!

Don't Wait Until It's Too Late

Scientific studies have proven that if hearing loss goes untreated, a condition called "auditory deprivation" occurs. Hearing loss starves the auditory centers of your brain of acoustic information, affecting your ability to understand speech.

Use it or lose it! The longer your hearing loss goes untreated, the more likely it is your brain will actually "forget" how to hear.

But there's good news! High-quality hearing instruments — like Beltone's new Touch™ and Reach™ — can ensure the auditory centers of your brain "stay busy", minimizing the effects of auditory deprivation.

Untreated hearing loss causes your ear's auditory nerve to deteriorate.

H. Scott Brown

March 16, 1933-March 10, 2012

BOISE • H. Scott Brown of Boise, Idaho, passed away Saturday, March 10, 2012.

He was born on March 16, 1933, to Lynnville and Theotosca Brown on a ranch north of Filer, Idaho, and then moved to his grandfather's ranch in 1938. He attended Curry Crossing School. Scott and his brother, Bud, rode a horse named Billy to school every day. In the winter, one would steer Billy while the other would ski behind on a tow rope. Scott attended Filer High School and received a football scholarship to Idaho State University. He attended Idaho State University until June of 1953 and then joined the Air Force. He attended Aviation Cadet School and graduated in 1955 and was assigned to Hill Air Force Base in Ogden, Utah. On June 2, 1956, he married Edna Van Cantfort at Queen of Peace Church in Houston, Texas. Scott's first assignment as a second lieutenant was to Hill Air Force Base, Utah, where he and Edna made their first home.

In 1958 after 4,000 hours in a B-29, he went to pilot training. In 1959, Scott was assigned to Mather Air Force Base in Sacramento, Calif. In 1962, Scott was assigned to Elmendorf Air Force Base in Anchorage, Alaska. In 1964 after the Alaskan earthquake, he was assigned to rebuild Elmendorf Air Force Base runways, control tower and the Anchorage hospital. In 1965, Scott was assigned to the Pentagon as First Ops Officer for Red Horse. He formed six groups and deployed them to Vietnam and, in 1967, Gen. Meredith was deployed to Vietnam and asked Harris to accompany him to Vietnam. In October of 1967, Harris Scott Brown was re-assigned as commander at Pleiku Air Field. In 1968 after the Tet Offensive, he received the Bronze Star. At 3 a.m. on a survey of the runway to make sure there weren't any hazards, Tech Sgt. Garcia and Harris Scott Brown discovered an unexploded missile in the runway. With no operational personnel available, Sgt. Garcia and Harris Brown took BDR action to remove the missile from the runway. Sgt. Garcia procured a truck and driver. A lasso was made with a cable on the runway and carefully placed around the missile and hitched to the truck. The truck bed was raised to protect the driver and then the truck was slowly moved forward removing the missile from the runway.

After Vietnam, Scott was assigned to Sunnyvale, Calif., to build a 10-story space center and a 12-jet engine power station at the Satellite Tracking Facility. They became operational in 1969. In 1976, Scott retired from the Air Force and went to work for Morrison-Knudsen. His first assignment for Morrison Knudsen was MKSAC (Morrison-Knudsen Saudi Arabia Consortium), where he helped raise a city from the desert which included runways, mosque and a 1,000-foot deep water system.

Assigned back to MK headquarters to run the Employment Branch where he found the best people for each job and assigned them to the right job and complied with the EEO employment procedures. In 1981, Scott went back to engineering at MK in Boise. In 1983, he was re-assigned as project director at the Army Space Center in Huntsville, Ala.

In 1984, Scott was assigned by MK to Cairo, Egypt. On this assignment, Edna accompanied him. There, he was part of a multi-national consortium which built cement manufacturing facilities. In 1988, Scott retired from Morrison-Knudsen and took a job with Oppenheimer Development in Boise. He retired five years later in 1993.

Scott received many honor, including the Bronze Star, Meritorious Service Medal, one Army Commendation Award, two Air Force Commendation Awards and Five Campaign Medals, a Presidential Citation for helping Idaho's unemployed find a job, National Governor's Award, Governor's Award, and National Businessman Award for the Idaho Private Industry Council. He also founded the Idaho Vietnam Veterans Leadership Program.

Scott is survived by his wife, Edna; daughters, Cathie (Dave) Wilder, Julie (Sam) Mellmer, Aurora (George) McDonough, Connie (Pat) McDonough and Angie (Dan) Taylor; sons, Stephen (Laurie) Brown and Evan (Buffy) Brown, 15 grandchildren; brothers, Phil (Jan) Brown and Bud (Sandy) Brown; uncles, Paul Brown and Lyle Williamson; and numerous cousins. He was preceded in death by his parents, Lynnville and Theo Brown; and brother, David Brown.

The family wishes to express their appreciation to the special thanks to Saint Alphonsus Cancer Care Center and Horizon Home Health and Hospice.

A funeral Mass to honor and celebrate Scott's life will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, March 16, at St. Mark's Catholic Church, 7960 W. Northview St. in Boise. A vigil service will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 15, at Coverdale Funeral Home in Boise.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund; "Honor Our Heroes" website: www.vvmf.org.

OBITUARIES

Jose Alcalá

Aug. 6, 1976-March 10, 2012

MURTAUGH • Jose was born Aug. 6, 1976, to Jose and Carmen Alcalá, in Burley Idaho. As a young boy Jose was shy, quiet and playful. He loved to play with toy John Deere tractors and make little farms in the dirt with perfectly groomed fields. He took great care of all of his belongings. He placed his toys back in their original box every time he was done playing with them. Jose was surrounded by little girls growing up, so he was nicknamed "Boy," which everyone still called him. His family liked to go camping. He talked about helping his dad milk the cow as a boy and how he cried every day because he wanted to go to work with his dad. Jose was very close to his sisters. Family was always very important to him. Jose's mother loved to cook him his favorite meals and Jose enjoyed eating at her house often. He would always have a Pepsi with his meal.

Jose attended school in Murtaugh from kindergarten until he graduated in 1994. While he was in school, Jose was in the FFA, played on the football team and basketball team. He was very social and loved being around his friends and playing with the neighborhood kids. He even got to ride some of their dirt bikes before he had his own. Jose had a great love for dirt bikes and motocross and started racing in high school. He took Kari every weekend with him to the races and they shared countless memories there. He always shared memories of great teachers he had and the influence they had on his life. Thank you, Mrs. Kelly, Mr. Winn and Mrs. Crystal, for all you did; he loved sharing how wonderful you were to him.

After Jose graduated, he worked at Kimberly Nurseries, where he met some wonderful people and made lifelong friends. Not long after, Jose started up a business of his own called "Your Reliable Gardner." With his natural entrepreneur skills, his business grew fast. In 1999, he renamed his business as "Excel Landscaping." Jose was smart and witty, a master at everything he did. Go big or go home, he would often say. If he was told or shown how to do something once, that was all that was needed. Jose was always striving to excel in everything he did. If he was going to do something, then it would be nothing less than the best.

Jose was married to Kari Denney in 1999 at St. Edwards Catholic Church. Jose was Kari's high school sweetheart and the love of her life. His unique personality and zest for life will always be remembered. He could make her laugh until she cried and always shared funny jokes and stories with her every day. He gave her so much love and comfort, and not to mention the entertainment.

Jose and Kari have four beautiful and loving children, Ezekiel (13), Josh (11), Alex (8) and Jose Tucker (16 months). When Ezekiel was 4 years old, Jose purchased a Yamaha PW 50 for him and off to the dirt bike track they went. Jose ran by his side as he raced around the track. Jose shared his love for motocross with Josh at the age of 3½ and soon after, he was racing around the track on the same PW 50 Zeke rode. When Alex turned 5, Jose got out the PW 50 and showed him he could ride just like his brothers. Jose's energy and joy for life was born into each one of his boys. Jose loved his family and friends unconditionally. Jose loved his nieces and nephews and was especially close to his nephew, Brice. He also loved Preston and thought of him as a son.

Jose lived every day to the fullest. He loved staying active. He worked hard, he played hard, he loved hard. Everyone knew Jose as a kind and generous person. He would help out anyone in need and was never worried about a friendly loan to be repaid. Jose had many friends and was loved by family, friends and had many business relationships.

Jose enjoyed many duck and goose hunting trips with his boys on the river and in the field. He loved to take them riding on their dirt bikes in the summer and riding on their snowmobiles in the winter. Jose coached the fifth and sixth grade boys basketball team over the last few years for Zeke and then Josh. He really enjoyed that special time he got to share with his kids and their friends. He enjoyed wake boarding, snowboarding, skateboarding and many others sports.

Jose had a great love for his business and took pride in everything he did. He would always load up the kids and Kari and drive around to look at the finished project. Zeke, Josh and Alex will treasure the times they worked for their dad and all that he taught them about responsibility and hard work and pass that on to little Jose Tucker. Jose's dad worked with him every day and always put the perfect finishing touch. Omar has also been a wonderful employee but most of all friend to Jose. Jose had wonderful employees and, without them, business would have never been possible. Thank you for all your hard work and dedication to him.

Not a day went by where Jose wasn't on the phone for hours teasing his friends and sharing stories about his eventful days. He had a nickname for everyone and a laugh that was contagious. We will sure miss that smile and laugh.

Thank you, Jose, for all your love and kindness but most of all, the wonderful memories.

A rosary will be recited at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 15, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 11 a.m. Friday, March 16, at St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Father Mike St. Marie celebrating. A celebration of Jose's life will take place at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 17, at the Murtaugh School Gym, 3426 N. 4500 E. in Murtaugh. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

JEROME • Daniel Acuña-Cosio, 20, of Jerome, passed away Sunday, March 11, 2012, in Boise due to injuries sustained in a car accident.

He was born June 3, 1991, in Huejuquilla el Alto Jalisco, Mexico. He was the third child of six born to Filiberto and Maria De La Luz Acuña, Daniel was a beloved son, brother, uncle and boyfriend. He was full of life. He never settled for less. Whether it was challenging himself to improve his technology devices or tearing up the basketball courts with his strategic moves, he was always trying to find different ways to better himself. He was always trying to push his limits. After accomplishing each goal he set for himself, he would always say, "Ha! I knew I could do this." He always had a positive outlook on life. He planned to return to his studies at College of Southern Idaho as a computer engineer in the summer session of 2012. He also had plans to marry the love of his life, Yesenia Martinez, in the summer of 2013. He had a very unique sense of humor. He always cared about others and put himself last. His family was always at the top of his priorities. He never turned down a plea for help. Whether it was a simple or major task, he always would lend his helping hand. He enjoyed reading fantasy books under a tree on warm summer days, especially the trilogy, "The Book of Shannara." He was an extremely hard worker. His unforgettable laughter will long be missed and will always be remembered. May you rest in peace, Daniel. We will always love you, and you will live in our hearts forever.

OBITUARIES

Blaine J. Rasmussen

April 12, 1925-March 12, 2012

RUPERT • Blaine J. Rasmussen, of Rupert, passed away Monday, March 12, 2012, one month shy of his 87th birthday.

Blaine was born April 12, 1925, in Malta, Idaho, the son of Knud Julius "Cude" and Eleanor Lloyd Rasmussen. Dad graduated from the eighth grade in Malta. The family then moved to the Jackson District of Rupert, where his father worked as the ditch rider for the Minidoka Irrigation District. Dad attended and graduated from Acequia High School in 1943. In 1944, he met the love of his life, Lois Nell Hunsaker, at the Y-Dell — a popular dance hall in Burley. After nearly two years of dancing together, Mom and Dad married on Jan. 1, 1946, in Rupert. Their marriage was later solemnized in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple on Sept. 20, 1946. They enjoyed 66 years together, complementing each other in all their endeavors. You never saw Dad without Mom. They were truly best friends!

He was an active member of the LDS Church and had served as Sunday school president, Elder's quorum president and MIA president and was a faithful home teacher. One of the choicest callings Dad and Mom had was serving at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert as the Sunday service coordinators. Dad worked for Jones and Bell Farms for more than 31 years as their field manager. He loved and took great pride in planting and harvesting potatoes, grain and sugar beets. After retiring from Jones and Bell, Dad "chased" parts for Mainline Ranch — working for his brother-in-law, Ross Hunsaker.

Dad was a people person and could strike up a conversation with anyone and everyone he met. He served as president of the Snake River Flats Barbershop Chorus and was a recipient of "Barbershopper of the Year" award. He enjoyed fishing at Fish Creek and Warm Springs, and he and Mom also loved camping and hunting. However, Dad's greatest joy was his family. He was proud of and loved his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren and made each feel special. He is survived by his wife, Lois H. Rasmussen of Rupert; his children, Michael (Cozette) Rasmussen of Nampa, Bonnie (James) Jensen of Preston, Janie (Vearle) Payne of Safford, Ariz., and Jeffrey (Amy) Rasmussen of Burley; daughter-in-law, Shirley Rasmussen of Orem, Utah; former daughter-in-law, Marla Jo Rasmussen of Twin Falls; 27 grandchildren; 61 great-grandchildren; and a sister, Roberta (Ernest) Van-Every of Rupert. He was preceded in death by his parents; a son, Kelly J. Rasmussen; a grandson, Michael Teague Rasmussen; three brothers, Melvin Lamar "Moon" Rasmussen, Lloyd "Schooney" Rasmussen and Robert Rasmussen; and his sister, Carole Elvira Rogers.

The family expresses their sincere appreciation to Dr. Kevin Owens, Dr. Jeff Swenson and the staff at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert for the outstanding and compassionate care given to our father. We could not have been more pleased.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, March 17, at the Rupert LDS West Stake Center, 26 S. 100 W. of Rupert, with Bishop Brad Wilson officiating. Burial will follow at the Rupert Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, March 16, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 1 until 1:45 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Bessie Wageman Grace

Aug. 7, 1926-March 12, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Bessie Wageman Grace, 85, of Twin Falls, died at BridgeView Estates on Monday, March 12, 2012.

Our sweet mother went to be with her Lord Jesus, where there is no more pain and no more sickness for her. Bessie was born in the Township of Canfield in North Dakota on Aug. 7, 1926, one of 11 children born to Christian and Martha Docket Wageman. Her parents were German and had been sent to Russia and then immigrated to North Dakota. Her family moved to Rupert, Idaho, where Mom was always taking care of her younger siblings where she developed a keen work ethic that followed throughout her life. We can't remember a time mom not working, helping Dad in the fields, the A&P processing plant and in later years as a waitress, and all the while taking care of her kids and household with wonderful meals and a clean home to live in.

She graduated from Rupert High School in 1944 and, in May of that year, she married our father, George Grace, and so began a life of fishing, camping, great holiday dinners and more camping and fishing. They lived in Hailey, Idaho, for a time. Mom seemed to always be the "other" mother, and we always had extra people at our house for dinner. Even with all the work that she did, she was always there for us kids, helping with Scouts with Jerry and Kenny or Campfire Girls with Peggy.

She always advocated for the underdog at her jobs and for people she met. She and dad finally got to retire to do a little traveling and more camping and fishing. Dad died in 1988. Mom's life was full of friends, family and grandchildren. She loved getting together with family and especially loved the Wageman reunions. She was a member of the Burley Elks Club "Does," where she kept busy with volunteering for various activities. She met and was married to Max Burton for a time. After that, she lived in Twin Falls at Woodstone, where she liked to sleep in so she could eat breakfast with the staff. She loved to play Bingo and was always up for a Jackpot trip. Mom then lived at Oak Creek Rehab in Kimberly and recently at BridgeView. The family wants to thank both of these facilities for the love and care they gave to mom. They truly treated mom as family. You could say mom had life here, but now she has a glorious life with Jesus, with whom she found that wonderful peace (John 3:16).

Mom is survived by her daughter, Peggy (Mike) of Twin Falls; her son, Jerry (Pam) of Paul; grandchildren, Nate (Heather) Grace, Wesley Grace and Philip Grace, Chad (Tammy) Connally; and the joy of her life, her five great-grandchildren, Shelby, Jarred, Ashley, and Challis and Chase. Bessie is also survived by her sister, Violet Amen of Heyburn; also by her brothers, Dewayne Wageman of Burley, Chris Wageman of Jerome; and her sister-in-law Grace Hunt of Burley. She was preceded in death by her husband, George; son, Kenneth; her parents; brothers, Alvin Wageman, Roger Wageman and Vernon Wageman; sisters, Tilley Vollmer and Hilda Eades; also her baby brother and sister, Walter and Margie.

The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 17, at Rosenau Funeral Home and Crematory, 2826 Addison Ave E. in Twin Falls.

Friends and Family are encouraged to share memories at www.rosenaufuneral-home.com.

Rose L. Parry

Jan. 23, 1921-March 7, 2012

GLENNS FERRY • Rose L. Parry passed away Wednesday, March 7, 2012, at the age of 91 at Poplar Grove Assisted Living in Glens Ferry after a short illness.

A service will be held Thursday, March 15, at the VFW Hall in Glens Ferry, with a viewing from noon until the 1 p.m. service with a graveside service at Glenn Rest Cemetery immediately following. Arrangements are under the direction of Rose Funeral Home, McMurtrey Chapel in Mountain Home.

Rose was born Jan. 23, 1921, in a tent along the Salt River in Phoenix, Ariz., the oldest of 11 children born of Samuel and Ethel Owings. She married Stephen E. Parry on May 13, 1934. Steve passed away in 1977. After his death, she worked for several years at Three Island State Park. Rose traveled to Tacopa Hot Springs, Calif., for the next 15 years in her motor home. She loved the hot baths and line dancing. She never met a stranger and her favorite introduction was, "I'm Rose Parry from Glens Ferry." She was a member of the Glens Ferry Women of the Moose for more than 60 years. She also served on the General Committee of the Union Pacific Railroad Ladies Auxiliary. She was an excellent carpenter, seamstress, cook, hunter and fisherman.

She is survived by her two daughters, Bernice Tisdale (Jim) and Carolyn Gregory; granddaughters, Marie Mikesell (David), Sandra Tisdale and and Sharon Wean (Bill); eight great-grandchildren; and five great-great-grandchildren. She is also survived by sisters, Eunice Bellegante (Eugene), Wilma Davis (Nolan), Doris Nielson (Jene), Myrtle Hall, Frances Diller (Everett Dale), Bernice Magnum and Annie Burns (Jim); as well as numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; husband; granddaughter, Rose Marie Gregory; and her brothers, Tom, William and Charles.

Golden Eagle Pitching Bounces Back in Win

TWIN FALLS • The scoreboard might not suggest it, but the College of Southern Idaho pitching staff got better Tuesday.

Despite allowing eight runs on 12 hits and rolling through seven hurlers tossing an inning or two on their side day, the Golden Eagle staff threw strikes and the offense capitalized on a half-dozen errors to beat Treasure Valley Community College 12-8 at Skip Walker Field.

CSI (16-8) also got run production from a few unlikely sources. Leadoff hitter Carter Yagi drove in four runs, while No. 6 hitter Tanner Morache and little-used Keenan Takatch both drove in two, as did catcher Luke Miller.

"Tanner had a great game defensively and had some great at-bats. He was low on confidence and had started to get away from who he is at the plate. Keenan got a start and he got us a big hit in the second inning," said CSI coach Boomer Walker. "Today was about what I expected from both teams, a lot of guys just getting their work

"We had an excited group in that locker room tonight," said CSI coach Steve Gosar, who in four years as head coach has now led the Golden Eagles to two trips to the national tournament. "It's a group that I think still has unfinished business."

NCAA TOURNAMENT

Colossal Comeback Lets BYU Advance

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAYTON, Ohio • On an opening night of colossal comebacks in the NCAA tournament, BYU climbed out of the biggest hole.

Noah Hartsock scored 16 of his 23 points in the second half and the Cougars rallied from 25 points down to beat Iona 78-72 in the first round Tuesday night.

Brandon Davies added 18 points and Damarcus Harrison 12 for the 14th-seeded Cougars (26-8), who advanced to play third-seeded Marquette on Thursday in Louisville, Ky.

It was the second incredible turnaround of the night in Dayton. With President Barack Obama and British Prime Minister David Cameron watching, Western Kentucky came back from a 16-point deficit in the final 5 minutes to beat Mississippi Valley State 59-58.

Iona (25-8) seemed assured of its first official NCAA tournament victory after dominating the first half. But despite 15 points and 10 assists by

Baylor Minding Ps and Qs into the NCAA Tournament

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WACO, Texas • Baylor is minding its Ps and Qs.

There's Perry, Pierre and two big Quincys — Acy, who has played more games for the Bears than anyone, and standout freshman Miller.

They are the top four scorers and all average in double figures for the Bears (27-7), who can match the school record for victories by winning their NCAA tournament opener Thursday against South Dakota State.

"You look at our balance," Bears coach Scott Drew said. "This team has been unselfish all year, have really enjoyed one another, and it's evident in how they share the ball."

Perry Jones III, a projected NBA lottery pick before deciding to return for his sophomore season, leads the team with 14 points and 7.7 rebounds a game and is having one of his best stretches. The 6-foot-11 forward has

Moore Questions Abound for Broncos

Boise State starts spring practice with giant task of finding adequate replacement for school's greatest player ever.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • So begins the process of replacing a star at Boise State.

Head coach Chris Petersen and a handful of new offensive assistants began the job this week of finding a successor to Kellen Moore, the record-setting quarterback who guided the Broncos to 50 wins and was the face of a program that has advanced through two smaller conferences en route to next year's membership in the Big East.

Just two practices into the post-Kellen era, Petersen said his message to the four competing for the job is to focus on the things Moore did so well to prepare for games and less on trying to follow his footsteps.

"They can't worry about that, that's for sure," said Petersen, entering his seventh season with the Broncos. "There's going to be a Kellen cloud around here for a long time, and I'd like to phrase it a little more positively."

"He set the standard. So we've got to learn from that, try to build on that and celebrate on that," Petersen said. "Those quarterbacks

Syracuse's Fab Melo Ruled Ineligible

PITTSBURGH • Syracuse will have to chase a national championship without starting center Fab Melo, who has been declared ineligible for the NCAA tournament.

The university announced Tuesday that the 7-foot Brazilian, who did not travel with the team to Pittsburgh for the second and third-round games, won't take part in the tournament due to an eligibility issue. The school did not elaborate.

Melo missed three games earlier this season — including one of the top-seeded Orange's two losses — because of an academic issue,

ESPN, citing an anonymous source, reported that Melo's absence is related to the first suspension and that the NCAA revisited the case and again ruled him ineligible.

Coach Jim Boeheim said the Orange will be "ready to play."

As he left the bus in front of the team hotel Tuesday, Boeheim at first said he had nothing to say. He then told The Associated Press that "all we can do is be ready to play with the guys we have."

"That's all we can do," he said. "There are injuries, things happen during a season. We'll be ready to play and we'll go play."

Melo's sudden ineligibility made waves in Las Vegas, where Cantor Gaming dropped Syracuse's chances of winning the title to 12-1 from 10-1 Tuesday morning, said Mike Colbert, Cantor's risk management director. Colbert said the region's No. 2, Ohio State, was lifted to 5-1 from 6-1 and other lines were affected.

Syracuse went from a 16.5-point favorite against 16-seeded UNC-Asheville to a 15.5 point favorite.

Boeheim has not decided who will start in place of Melo, the Big East Defensive Player of Year, on Thursday when Syracuse (31-2) opens the tournament against No. 16 seed North Carolina-Asheville.

Melo's presence on the back line of the Orange's 2-3 zone might not be a factor in that game but it could be if Syracuse advances to play to face the winner of the Kansas State-Southern Mississippi game or possible future opponents in the East Regional such as Ohio State, with sophomore center Jared Sullinger, Florida State or Wisconsin.

Melo averaged 7.8 points and 5.8 rebounds and had 88 blocks this season for Syracuse, which was ranked No. 1 for six weeks this season and finished No. 2 behind Kentucky in the final poll.

Bona Breakout: Bonnies Revel in Two Bids

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OLEAN, N.Y. • Nine years ago almost to the day, self-described St. Bonaventure basketball super fan John Firkel still recalls having tears in his eyes, sitting in the stands of the Reilly Center overlooking an empty basketball court.

The home finale he was supposed to be watching against Dayton — and Firkel still has the ticket stub hanging next to his computer at home — was canceled after Bonnies players boycotted their final two games of the 2002-03 season as a result of a player-eligibility scandal that eventually led to NCAA sanctions.

This past week has provided Firkel an altogether different reason to tear up. He grew emotional in watching his beloved Bonnies win their first Atlantic 10 Conference tournament, to clinch their sixth NCAA tournament berth and first since 2000. It also put closure on what had been one of the program's darkest eras.

"Yeah, I had a tear in my eye," Firkel said. "We're back on top of the world again. Who would've thought they'd ever turn it around like they did? It took nine long years, but we did it."

The Bonnies are, indeed, back. The school famed for producing NBA star Bob Lanier in the late 1960s, has re-emerged on the national basketball map in resounding fashion.

From out of nowhere, the Mark Schmidt-coached and A-10 Player of the Year Andrew Nicholson-led Bonnies closed a better-than-expected season with a flourish. St. Bonaventure (20-11) won eight of final 10, including three straight in the A-10 tournament, capped by a 67-56 win over Xavier in the championship game on Sunday.

And that's only Part I of the story, because don't forget the Bonnies women, who have made this season's success doubly special.

The Jim Crowley-coached 21st-ranked Bonnies (29-3) earned their first NCAA tournament berth. Despite losing the conference tournament championship game to Dayton last week, the Bona women earned a fifth seed in the Raleigh Region and will open against Atlantic Sun Conference-champion Florida Gulf Coast University on Sunday at Tallahassee, Fla.

In February 2003, the Bonnies couldn't have sunk much lower.

That's when it was revealed that the school broke junior college transfer guidelines by allowing forward Jamil Terrell to play despite earning only a welding certificate at a Georgia community college. The players quit. Coach Jan van Breda Kolff was fired. And school president Robert Wickenhiser resigned.

Things then took a tragic turn that summer, when William Swan, chairman of the school's trustees, committed suicide, in part because of a belief he had let down his alma mater.

This week, the signs of basketball's re-emergence around town are apparent.

Early Monday, the men's team rolled into town by bus to be greeted by a police escort and about 250 fans on campus. And there are placards paying tribute to the Bonnies in many storefront windows lining East Main Street not far from campus.

Firkel has witnessed the turnaround, firsthand, this week while doing his job, delivering mail around town.

"There were some businesses I had difficulty leaving because that's all anybody in Olean is talking about," he said.

Scott Machado, the Gaels dropped to 0-8 in NCAA play. Their lone win in 1980 was vacated due to NCAA violations.

Iona came in as the nation's top-scoring team at 83.2 points per game and didn't disappoint — at least in the opening 16 minutes. The Gaels scored 55 points in an eye-popping display of passing wizardry and outside shooting. Then they didn't score over the final 4:30 of the first half.

Machado, averaging just under 10 assists a game, had nine at the break.

BYU then took control. The Cougars held the Gaels without a point for 9:20 in an 17-0 run to narrow the deficit to 62-61 midway through the second half. BYU made up ground with a trapping halfcourt defense that forced the Gaels out of their hurry-up-and-shoot-3s attack. At the other end, the Cougars were getting buckets from Hartsock on fallaway jumpers.

Iona scored 55 points in the first 16 minutes, then managed just three field goals and seven points over the next 16½ minutes.

From there on, the teams traded baskets as the pace slowed. Machado's three-point play pushed the lead to 70-64 with 5 minutes remaining before Hartsock hit an outside shot. After two missed foul shots by the Gaels, he hit another short turnaround jumper to cut the lead to two.

With 2:26 left, Hartsock popped out on the right wing to hit a go-ahead 3. It was the Cougars' first lead of the game.

Davies added two free throws in the final minute before Brock Zylstra nailed a three-pointer, and the comeback was complete.

It was a shocking turn of events because of how well the Gaels — who also got 12 points from Mike Glover, 13 from Jenkins and 10 by Sean Armand — had played at the outset.

four double-doubles the last five games. He scored a career-best 31 points in the opener of the Big 12 tournament, which he missed last year because of an NCAA suspension.

Pierre Jackson (13.3 ppg, 5.8 assists per game) was the nation's top junior college player last season at the College of Southern Idaho. The point guard from Las Vegas took over as Baylor's starter midway through the season with his fast pace, impressive passes that initially caught his new teammates off guard and the ability to score when necessary.

"Pierre Jackson to me is the biggest key. ... the other three are terrific, but you know Pierre is going to have the ball in his hands and he has to get the ball to the other three," Kansas coach Bill Self said. "When Perry and Quincy Miller are making shots and stretching the defense a little bit and being able to isolate the post, that makes it extremely hard, and Quincy Acy is one of my favorite players in the league.

"He's just been a great force for them," Self said. "I'll be glad when he finally gets out of here because it seems like he's been down there forever."

Acy has played in a school-record 135 games and made 60 percent of his field goals, half of those made baskets being dunks. The 6-foot-7 senior and vocal leader, who like Jones is from the Dallas area, is averaging 11.8 points and 7.2 rebounds this season.

"Words can explain how great a leader he is. On the court, off the court," Miller said. "I just thought he was dunks, but he's got more than that. Way more than that."

Miller is a Chicago kid whose senior prep season at Westchester Country Day in North Carolina was cut short by a torn ACL. The 6-foot-9 forward with a crushing handshake averages 11.1 points a game and has four 20-point games as a Bears freshman.

"We all come from different backgrounds. Quincy Miller was a phenomenal scorer in high school. He saw the ball on almost every possession. Pierre led my team to the JUCO championship," Acy said. "It just says a lot about the guys to come together and sacrifice some of their habits for the betterment of the team. Pierre's become more of a pass-first point guard and he scores when he needs to. Quincy Miller's even shown that he has great passing ability."

The Bears will play South Dakota State (27-7) in Albuquerque, N.M. If they win two games there, the second weekend of games in the South Region will be in Atlanta.

The Bears also have Brady Heslip, the Canadian sophomore transfer from Boston College who averages 9.6 points a game. The long-shooting threat has made 108 field goals, 84 of them 3-pointers.

Acy, Anthony Jones and Fred Ellis make up the winningest senior class in Baylor history with 97 wins.

That includes two years ago when the Bears also made it to the NCAA tournament as a No. 3 seed and won a school-record 28 games. That season ended with a regional final loss to eventual national champion Duke in San Antonio, about three hours from the Waco campus.

eighth-ranked Eastern Oklahoma State.

"We're going to celebrate this right now and take some rest tomorrow before the tournament," said CSI guard Fabyon Harris, who led the Golden Eagles with 21 points and 10 rebounds. "It feels so good to get this win and get back to Hutch. Me and Gerson (Santo) and Paul (Bunch) and Kevin (Attila) were all on the team last year, and we told the new guys what it's like at Hutch and now they'll really feel and experience it themselves."

CSI never trailed, but Arizona Western (26-7) hung around all game. The Matadors went on a 5-0 mini-run to pull within nine with 5:30 left.

The defending champs, as they have all season in the rugged Scenic West Athletic Conference, answered.

Swilling hit a 3 from the right corner, two possessions later, Harris hit a 3 from the right wing and hit another with 3:02 left to push the lead to 18.

Cothron slammed home a nice pass from Sebastian Michineau with two minutes to go that capped an 11-0 run and sealed the game.

"They went in a zone and I looked at Pat's eyes and they were this big," said Harris, holding his fingers in the form of circles in front of his eyes. "We were like, 'Let's go. Let's finish this!'"

Swilling finished with 17 points, Rafriel Guthrie had 16 points and eight boards and Cothron scored 10 points in 25 minutes off the bench.

Medford led Arizona Western with 17 points, 13 coming in the first half on an assortment of crafty drives to the hoop as the Matadors trailed 36-29 at the half.

"He is a nice player. We knew he was a good player, but we may have underestimated him. He was making plays all over the place to keep them in the game," Gosar said. "I had a couple sleepless nights trying to game plan this team. This is a tough turnaround, to put together a scouting report and have our guys ready to play in two days."

The Golden Eagles now have six days to prepare for their opening game in Hutchinson.

"This is where we've wanted to be all season. It's been a crazy season. Nothing has been easy, but we've made it, and the guys from last year said it's a really fun five days," said Michineau.

COLSTON STAYS WITH SAINTS, MARSHALL HEADED TO BEARS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wide receivers grabbed the big money as NFL free agency began Tuesday.

Vincent Jackson is headed to Tampa Bay, Pierre Garcon to Washington and Marques Colston will stay in New Orleans, all getting huge deals.

Josh Morgan also caught a hefty contract from the Redskins, while Miami dealt its top receiver, Brandon Marshall, to Chicago for two draft choices.

Jackson got a five-year, $55.55 million contract with the Buccaneers. He will be paid $13 million in each of his first two years, then $10 million for the third year. Jackson will provide a deep threat for Josh Freeman, whose other receivers, Mike Williams and Arrelious Benn, are more short-range targets.

Garcon gets $42.5 million over five years from the Redskins, with $20.5 million in guaranteed money, including an $11 million signing bonus. Garcon had 188 catches for 16 touchdowns and a 13.4-yard average in four seasons with the Indianapolis Colts. Last year he had 70 receptions for 947 yards and six TDs as Indianapolis finished 2-14.

Washington, which is losing $36 million in salary cap space over the next two seasons for excessive spending in the uncapped 2010 season, also grabbed Morgan for $12 million over the first two years of a five-year deal, with $7.5 million guaranteed. And the Redskins re-signed defensive end Adam Carriker for four years and $20 million, with $7 million guaranteed.

Star linebacker-defensive end Mario Williams arrived in Buffalo, where he is the Bills' first priority in free agency. Williams was limited to just five games last season before he tore a chest muscle. Saints wide receiver Robert Meachem also visited the Bills.

Hours before free agency began, Colston agreed to a five-year contract worth about $40 million to remain in the Big Easy.

"This was important to me, to be back with this team in this situation," Colston said in a statement released by the Saints. "I was not looking to chase free agency. It was more important for me to be back in our program, a program we have been building and a program I believe in."

The top free agent, of course, is Peyton Manning, who was released a week ago by the Colts. He still is conducting his limited tour of teams, but the Dolphins' trade of their No. 1 receiver could indicate Miami is out of the running for the four-time league MVP.

"Brandon Marshall out of Miami?" Dolphins center Mike Pouncey tweeted. "Tell me this ain't true..."

At night, Chicago added Jason Campbell to be Jay Cutler's backup quarterback. Also re-upping with their teams were Giants cornerback Terrell Thomas, Eagles tackle Todd Herremans, Chargers center Nick Hard-

Some Injuries Less Noted Than Others

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALM HARBOR, Fla. • This might come as a shock, but Tiger Woods isn't the only player coping with an injury.

Paul Goydos was driving to the doctor's office Tuesday morning to have surgery on his left wrist. It has been bothering him most of his 25 years on the PGA Tour, but the pain usually goes away. This time, it didn't. He has a bone spur that needs to be removed, and figures he'll be out of action for some three months.

Would it hurt his feelings if this news was buried behind an update on Woods' left Achilles tendon?

"No," Goydos said, stifling a laugh. "It's called the Achilles' heel for a reason."

Lucas Glover had to wait three months to make his PGA Tour debut. The former U.S. Open champion slipped off a paddle board along the shores of Hawaii the weekend before the season opener at Kapalua and injured knee ligaments. Glover didn't think it was so bad at first. He thought about playing Honolulu, then the California desert, then San Diego, then Pebble Beach.

All he got was a weekly dose of disappointment each Friday afternoon when he withdrew from the next tournament, until he finally gave up on the West Coast Swing. Glover finally gets to play the Transitions Championship at Innisbrook, having recovered from the sprained medial collateral ligament and a plica tendon, along with some atrophy in his quadriceps.

But it's all about the Achilles heels days.

"I don't feel slighted at all," Glover said. "What is it, 14 to 1?"

Glover grinned, waiting for the numbers to make sense. That would be 14 majors for Woods, one for him.

David Toms also withdrew from the Cadillac Championship on Sunday with a back injury. No one seemed to notice. There's a chance some people didn't even know he was at Doral in the first place.

Instead, there was television footage of Woods in his red shirt climbing into a golf cart and being driven to the parking lot. NBC Sports was able to use the camera from the blimp for an overhead shot of Woods' driving away from Doral in his black Mercedes, which didn't thrill the folks at Cadillac who paid upward of $10 million to sponsor the tournament.

The good news for Woods is that he's still news. As Jack Nicklaus once told him in South Africa, "Just make sure you're part of the conversation." Never mind that Nicklaus was talking about rivalries, not injuries.

It will stay that way, especially while the golf world holds its breath to hear whether the Achilles tendon injury that forced Woods to withdraw after 11 holes on Sunday really was a mild sprain, as he said Monday night on Twitter.

Woods hopes to be hitting balls by the end of the week, and maybe even compete next week — though he didn't make clear in 140 characters if he was talking about the silly made-for-television event called the Tavistock Cup or the Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill, which would be his last event before the Masters.

No one moves the needle like Woods.

That much is true, even as Rory McIlroy settles in as the new world No. 1 and doesn't shy away from it.

The day after the 22-year-old from Northern Ireland held off Woods to win the Honda Classic and go to the top of the ranking, McIlroy was at Madison Square Garden before thousands of fans with a tennis racket in hand and Maria Sharapova on the other side of the net. It was a fun moment, something rarely — make that, never — seen from Woods.

On Tuesday, McIlroy tweeted a picture of New York fashion designer Alexander Nash fitting him for a suit. Turns out McIlroy has been invited to the White House for dinner on Wednesday. The only thing Woods shared Tuesday on Twitter was a link to a video commercial of himself with Shaquille O'Neal engaging in something called "Golf-Fu" for EA Sports.

Some observers suggested McIlroy shared more about himself in 15 minutes of a press conference last week than Woods had in 15 years.

know what the standards and expectations are. But they need to go and play their game and not get hung up on what Kellen did."

That could be easier said than done considering Moore's spectacular career.

His 50 career wins broke an NCAA record once held by Colt McCoy at Texas. Moore finished his career ranked in the top 10 nationally for total yards passing, passing touchdowns and accuracy. He was also a key figure in helping elevate Boise State from an annual bully in the small Western Athletic Conference to a second-place finish last year in the Mountain West.

The Broncos have agreed to join the Big East in 2013 in a move designed to give the team better access to the Bowl Championship Series.

The candidates competing for the starting job include Joe Southwick, a 6-1 junior who carried the clipboard for Moore the last two seasons. In mop-up duty last fall, Southwick was 23 of 30 for 198 yards with a touchdown and interception. While he lacks Moore's experience, he's more nimble than his predecessor.

"He's been here a while and Boise State football coach Chris Petersen talks about spring practice and his team's efforts to find a replacement for Kellen Moore on Tuesday at the team's practice facility in Boise.

he's done a great job grinding and learning," Petersen said. "He's done a great job of preparing. But I also feel that with all these guys. These guys are ready to compete, which is awesome, because for us to do what we want to do on offense we've got to have a big-time player there."

Southwick will trade reps during the next few weeks with sophomore Grant Hedrick, who saw limited action last season in a wildcat role. There are also two newcomers making a pitch to play.

Freshman Nick Patti is fast and an accurate passer who was highly recruited out of Florida, and Jimmy Laughrea, a 6-2 freshman from Northern California, may have the strongest arm of the group.

"We just don't know who it's going to be right now," said Petersen, who expects to wait until the fall camp to officially declare a starting quarterback. "When you've got four guys, you know it's just going to take some time."

There are plenty of questions on the other side of the ball, too.

The Broncos need to replace a defensive line hit hard by graduation. The starting front four and the top backup on the line are gone.

Senior J.C. Percy is the only veteran returning from last year's linebacking corps. And defensive coordinator Pete Kwiatkowski needs to find two new starters to replace safeties George Iloka and Cedric Febis.

For now, coaches consider sophomore Lee Hightower, who played at cornerback late last season, the likely candidate to take over at free safety. Senior Hazen Moss, sophomore Jeremy Ioane and a couple of redshirt freshmen will compete for the strong safety spot.

"We like some of our young talent and we're excited to watch them develop throughout the spring," Petersen said. "I'm anxious to see at the end of this process how much further along we are. It's going to be an interesting competition at a critical position for us for sure."

The coaching staff will have fewer practices in helmets and pads this spring to teach and watch players develop.

Of the 17 practice sessions allowed, the Broncos can engage in full contact in just nine compared to 12 in previous spring workouts. The cutback is the result of sanctions imposed last year for violating NCAA rules governing summer football programs.

NOTICE OF HEARING REGARDING PROPOSED INCREASE IN ELECTRICAL RATES OF THE CITY OF HEYBURN
 Pursuant to the requirements of Idaho Code Section 63-1311A, the City of Heyburn gives notice of a hearing to consider an increase of the rates charged the City's electrical customers. The hearing will be conducted on March 28, 2012 at 7:00 P.M. at the Heyburn Council Chambers, at City Hall, located at 941 - 18th Street, Heyburn, Idaho. At that hearing the Mayor and City Council will take public comment on the proposed increases.
 The proposed electrical rate increases are:
Residential Rate:

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
Customer Charge:	5.220 cents/kWh	5.597 cents/kWh
	$9.59 per month	$9.59 per month

Commercial Rate (Single Phase):

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
Customer Charge:	5.216 cents/kWh	5.872 cents/kWh
	$11.83 per month	$11.83 per month

Commercial Rate (Three Phase):

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
Customer Charge:	2.789 cents/kWh	3.086 cents/kWh
	$16.97 per month	$18.78 per month
Demand Charge	$4.82 per KW per Month	$5.33 per KW per Month

Industrial Rate:***

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
Customer Charge:	3.000 cents/kWh	3.634 cents/kWh
	$18.86 per month	None
Demand Charge	$5.00 per KW per Month	$4.00 per KW per Month

 * The previous Industrial rate was established by special contract with individual customers who met certain load requirements and was based upon time-of-day metering. The actual cost of the energy as billed by the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) to the City was passed on to the customer, plus an additional 0.7220 cents/kWh to cover the City's overhead. Such a rate, under the new BPA rate structure, is no longer feasible.
Irrigation Rate:

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
Customer Charge:	3.7 cents/kWh	4.325 cents/kWh
	$20 per month	$25 per month

Yard Light Rate:

Energy:	Current Rate	Proposed Rate:
	$7 per month	$7 per month (no change)

 The reasons or needs for such increases are contained in recommendations of a cost of service study performed by Brooks & Associates, of Bellevue, Washington, dated January 28, 2012. The need for the increase is a substantial increase in the rates charged the City by the Bonneville Power Administration, the City's wholesale electrical energy supplier. A copy of the study is available for public inspection at the City Clerk's office at located at 941 - 18th Street, Heyburn, Idaho.
 Dated this 27th day of February, 2012.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"The policeman buys shoes slow and careful; the teamster buys gloves slow and careful; they take care of their feet and hands; they live on their feet and hands."
— Carl Sandburg

After North's routine pre-emptive raise to game, West cashes the heart king, then shifts to the club jack. Once East follows, how do you propose to make 10 tricks?

After taking the club jack with your ace, you draw trump in two rounds and ruff the heart queen in dummy. Then you cash the club queen and king, ending in the dummy. Now that both hearts and clubs have been eliminated, you lead a low diamond from dummy, intending to cover whichever card lower in rank than the king that East might play.

On the given layout, suppose that East follows with the diamond seven. When you cover this with the nine, West has to win the trick with the ace, and your king is set up immediately. Also, it would not help East to play a diamond higher than the seven. If he plays the 10, this will be covered by the king and ace, leaving the jack and nine equals against the defender's queen. And, of course, the diamond queen from East would be even less effective.

With a different layout, West might win the first diamond with the 10. Then he can do nothing but play another diamond (allowing you to make the diamond king) or give you a ruff-and-discard. Thus you will make 10 tricks no matter how the diamond suit lies.

By contrast, if you had played a diamond to the king in today's layout, West would take it and return a diamond, giving the defense four tricks.

ANSWER: It may look obvious to jump to four spades, but you have a vast number of losers — imagine your partner with queen-fourth of spades and a stray jack. Best is to jump to three spades, which (since even a simple raise to two spades shows a good hand) suggests huge trump support and at least an ace more than a decent opening bid.

Today is Wednesday, March 14, the 74th day of 2012. There are 292 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 14, 1962, Democrat Edward M. Kennedy officially launched in Boston his successful candidacy for the U.S. Senate seat from Massachusetts once held by his brother, President John F. Kennedy. (Edward Kennedy served in the Senate for nearly 47 years.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1743, a memorial service was held at Faneuil Hall in Boston honoring Peter Faneuil, who had donated the building bearing his name.
In 1794, Eli Whitney received a patent for his cotton gin, an invention that revolutionized America's cotton industry.

In 1885, the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "The Mikado" premiered at the Savoy Theatre in London.

In 1900, Congress ratified the Gold Standard Act.

In 1923, President Warren G. Harding became the first chief executive to file an income tax report.

In 1932, photography pioneer George Eastman, founder of Eastman Kodak Co., died by his own hand at age 77 in Rochester, N.Y.

In 1939, the republic of Czechoslovakia was dissolved, opening the way for Nazi occupation of Czech areas and the separation of Slovakia.

In 1951, during the Korean War, United Nations forces recaptured Seoul (sohl).

In 1964, a jury in Dallas found Jack Ruby guilty of murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy, and sentenced him to death. (Both the conviction and death sentence were later overturned, but Ruby died before he could be retried.)

In 1967, the body of President John F. Kennedy was moved from a temporary grave to a permanent memorial site at Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1980, a LOT Polish Airlines jet crashed while attempting to land in Warsaw, killing all 87 people aboard, including 22 members of a U.S. amateur boxing team.

In 1991, a British court overturned the wrongful convictions of the "Birmingham Six," who had spent 16 years in prison for a 1974 Irish Republican Army bombing, and ordered them released.

Ten years ago: The government charged the Arthur Andersen accounting firm with obstruction of justice, securing its first indictment in the collapse of Enron. (Although Arthur Andersen was later found guilty, its conviction was overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court; however, the damage to the firm's reputation was enough to put it out of business.) Serbia and Montenegro signed a historic accord to radically restructure their federation, dropping the name "Yugoslavia" and granting greater autonomy to prevent the country's final breakup.

Five years ago: The Pentagon released the transcript of a military hearing in which Khalid Sheikh Mohammed said he "was responsible for the 9/11 operation from A to Z." President George W. Bush, speaking from Mexico, said he was troubled by the Justice Department's misleading explanations to Congress of why it had fired eight U.S. attorneys, but said the firings were "entirely appropriate."

One year ago: In the wake of Japan's earthquake and tsunami and mounting nuclear crisis, President Barack Obama said he had offered the Japanese government any assistance the United States could provide. Neil Diamond, Alice Cooper, Tom Waits, Darlene Love, Dr. John and Leon Russell were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Olympic champion Evan Lysacek won the 2010 Sullivan Award, becoming the fourth figure skater to be honored as the top amateur athlete in the United States.

DEAR ABBY: I am 19 and having an affair with a married man twice my age, but I am an unwilling participant. You see, I grew up with "jasmine," and over the years her family has become mine. I was going through a rough time, and when her family offered me a place to stay, I accepted.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

They treat me like one of their own, buy me presents – even introduce me as a daughter. However, after my birthday party, Jasmine's father came into my bedroom and took advantage of me. I was scared and didn't say anything. Over the past few months, he has sneaked into my room several times to "talk" or rub my back. He always crosses the line, and I'm too afraid to tell him to stop.

I feel sick and guilty when I see Jasmine or her mother, and I'm hurt and ashamed when I see him. I feel betrayed and confused. I tell myself I do it "for a place to stay." Is there forgiveness for me? Please help.

— DISTRAUGHT IN THE NORTHWEST

DEAR DISTRAUGHT: It appears you ARE "doing it for a place to stay," and for your own well-being you need to make other living arrangements and get out of there. You have been betrayed, and your feelings are valid. You are not being treated like a daughter; you are being coerced by a man with no conscience or compassion. Of course there is forgiveness for you – but first you have to forgive yourself. Leaving is the first step.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Ross," and I have been together for five years and have a 2-year-old child. We talk a lot about marriage and we're engaged – kind of. Ross asked me and I said yes four years ago, but no one knows we're engaged. He bought me a ring and I have been wearing it. Nobody has questioned it.

I want to say something about our plans, but Ross says he's too nervous and is afraid my parents will be angry. I am 23 and unemployed. Ross is 24 and has had bad luck with a bunch of jobs. Our 2-year-old and I live with my parents. Ross is currently staying with his grandparents.

I don't want a big wedding and I'm afraid my parents will be mad if Ross and I start planning ours. How can we break the news to them?

— TIMID IN STOCKTON, CALIF.

DEAR TIMID: If Your boyfriend is too nervous to tell anyone about the engagement, face it – you're kind of NOT engaged. If I were you, I'd hold off making any announcements to your folks until you have the answers ready to some questions first, like where you and Ross plan to live after the wedding. With your parents? His grandparents? Who do you expect will be paying for the wedding you're planning?

"Everyone" may have ignored the significance of the ring you're wearing because neither of you is ready for marriage.

DEAR ABBY: When buying a gift for someone and it arrives with a mail-in rebate, what do you do? If you give the person the rebate, he or she will know how much you paid for the gift. If you remove the UPC code, it looks like you regifted. How should this be handled?

— HAVEN'T A CLUE IN EAST HARTFORD, CONN.

DEAR HAVEN'T A CLUE: Many people regift, and as long as the item is well-chosen for the recipient and is in mint condition, there's nothing wrong with the practice. How much was paid for the item is beside the point. When a gift is given, the price tag is removed. Because the mail-in rebate would be a tip-off, it should be removed, too.

IF MARCH 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Play your cards close to your vest for the next few weeks. The end of May will offer fortunate opportunities that can help you climb the ladder of success where career or business is concerned. You are illuminated by an inner fire in the year ahead that others will perceive as warm friendliness, boosting your reputation and extending your circle of friends. The more independent you are in May, the easier it will be to make important transitions. Be sure to fulfill responsibilities in the fall when past problems could test your mettle, but expect smooth sailing otherwise.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It might be raining pennies from heaven. Rather than watching them drain away, you should keep your eyes open and grab them while you can. You can profit from even the most complicated mix-up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wheeling and dealing gives you a great feeling. Make key decisions while helpful information is at your fingertips and intuitions are on target. Significant others may have romantic notions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): No one will fault you if you insist on your fair share. It is best to complete transactions that involve negotiations while people are in a generous mood and willing to enter into a compromise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Circulate if you want to have fans. People must learn to know you before they can judge you, so do your best to enlist the support of those in high places. Get out from behind your desk and make friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be open and forthright about what you want to achieve. Since people find you appealing it is a good time to make important phone calls and discuss the terms and conditions of key agreements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Strike while the iron is hot. There is no time like the present. Concentrate on solving problems and setting crucial plans into motion while you have cosmic binoculars trained on future trends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Having a guru can be a great thing. Listen to others who have proved their value and absorb their wisdom. Remain focused on completing existing tasks and projects before taking on any new ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Having a reliable partner is a high priority. Be willing to compromise on shared goals and objectives. Your business associates will be willing to give an extra inch once your true purpose is made clear.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Gaining ground with others is easier than usual, but an agreement made today could entail some confusion. Key people hold you in high esteem and think you can do more than you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lucky occurrences are still in the stars. Chance meetings could put dollars in your wallet and a smile on your face. It's not too late to act on a stroke of genius that can lead to financial success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Speak before you are spoken to. You cannot expect anyone to read your mind. In some circumstances, it is best to make the first move and let someone know that you have their best interests at heart.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): It is much better to ask than tell. No one wants to be bossed around, but will be happy to help if asked. For the best results seek out the information you need and don't rely upon your intuitions.
