Ultrasound Bill Delayed in House

The pre-abortion mandate's fate is uncertain after House leaders canceled a hearing, as pro-life proponents pushed for its passage.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • For Idaho's House Republicans, being pro-life doesn't mean supporting an ultrasound mandate. That was the message legislators delivered after canceling a public hearing on a bill to require women to get an ultrasound before having an abortion. The move came hours after protests against the legislation and a live ultrasound demonstration by supporters of the bill, which passed the Senate on a 23-12 vote Monday.

After a closed-door GOP caucus, House State Affairs Chairman Rep. Tom Loertscher, R-Iona, said the move doesn't mean the bill is dead, but that he couldn't guarantee he would schedule a public hearing.

Though the bill had strong Republican support in the Senate, some House members were swayed by constituent feedback and protests.

Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, said he asked Republican women in his district what they thought of the mandate. Of the 12 who responded, only one supported the bill, he said. Some were concerned about a government mandate, while others didn't like what they saw as a privacy violation, Hartgen said.

Stop the Shooting?

Poor practices at a popular canyon-rim park may force Jerome County officials to restrict firing guns within its limits.

JEROME • Dave Guymon and his son, Nate, like to ride their ATVs at the Snake River Canyon Park at least once a week.

They were there Tuesday afternoon, spinning circles in the mud and roaring over rises as Jet, their black Lab, occasionally sprinted in pursuit. Even with the roar of engines, nearby gunshots were audible.

The popular park just east of U.S. Highway 93, on the north rim of the Snake River Canyon, is a prime spot for shooters to practice. But their continued use of the area is jeopardized by litter they leave and safety concerns for other park users. Officials are weighing options including banning shooting.

"They shoot wherever they want and they don't pack out their garbage," Jerome County Commission Chairman Charlie Howell said Wednesday as he toured the site.

One popular diversion is to bring broken televisions to the park and use them for target practice, leaving the debris there, he said. He sometimes rides a horse through the maze of trails and knows firsthand about the potential danger.

"It's always nerve-wracking when you hear those bullets whistle over your head," he said.

The Water's About to Flow

Local canal companies and irrigation districts are preparing their canals for spring.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • Sometimes, fire is the best tool to kick off spring cleaning.

For the past week, Twin Falls Canal Co. ditch riders have used sweat and flame to clear out hundreds of miles of ditches and canals.

By using fire along the ditches, workers can clear out weeds and debris collected over the winter months. The canal system needs to be pristine before the company can make water deliveries to farmers.

The canal network begins above Milner Dam. Water flows down to Murtaugh Lake, where it is later dispersed into the larger network. By next week, the canal company hopes to start trickling water back into its 202,000-acre water system, said Manager Brian Olmstead.

"It's been good weather for ditch burning," Olmstead said. "We should be able to start sometime next week. But it takes awhile. It'll be mid-April before we do any deliveries."

Burley Irrigation District Manager Randy Bingham said he tentatively plans to start water into his system around April 16.

Not far away, the Minidoka Irrigation District hopes to start a bit earlier, on April 2. Big

Autumn Agar Named Times-News Editor

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Autumn Agar has been named editor of the Times-News and Magicvalley.com, south-central Idaho's largest news organization.

Agar, 38, is a veteran journalist who most recently served as managing editor of the New Braunfels (Texas) Herald-Zeitung from 2009 to 2011. Her previous journalism experience includes being the founding editor of Sky-Hi Daily News in Grand County, Colo. and editor of the Payson Roundup in Payson, Ariz.

Agar has won multiple awards for news coverage she has led as an editor or written herself.

"Our previous editor spent a lot of time focusing on the presentation of our news," Times-News Publisher John Pfeifer said. "Autumn will spend her time devoted to the make-up of news, to make sure we remain the best and first place to find out what's happening locally?" Agar and her husband, Charles, are avid outdoor recreationists. Agar spent October 2011 through January of this year traveling independently through Ethiopia, something she called "the adventure of a lifetime."

In Twin Falls, Agar, who has been a Rotarian for six years, looks forward to continuing her community involvement.

"I was looking for a good newspaper in a community close to outdoor recreation," Agar said. "I have family in Wyoming, so they couldn't be happier."

As editor, Agar will oversee all news operations of the Times-News and Magicvalley.com, and serve on the newspaper's editorial board.

"She's anxious to meet readers and non-readers throughout our region, and looks forward to visiting communities in each of the eight counties we serve," Pfeifer said.

JFAC Approves Legislative Legal Counsel Fund

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • The legislative session is wrapping up, but budget-setting isn't quite done.

On Wednesday morning, the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee took care of unfinished budgetary business, including appropriating funding for legislation currently making its way through the Statehouse. The committee also approved $200,000 for a legislative legal counsel fund, but not without dissent.

The Legislative Legal Counsel Fund appropriation came at the request of legislative leadership, said JFAC co-chairs Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome. Currently, legislators can receive legal counsel from the Attorney General's Office. But because the attorney general is also involved in state matters on which the Legislature may wish to receive legal advice, Senate and House leaders felt lawmakers may need a second opinion.

Cameron cited a recent example of Attorney General Lawrence Wasden sitting on the state land board, which found itself in the center of controversy after acquiring a storage business. Proposed legislation, which died in committee, sought to limit the land board's ability to compete with private business. Seeking the attorney general's opinion on that issue may result in a biased opinion, however unintentional, Cameron said.

But some on the committee felt the move was inappropriate. Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, was worried legislators would shop around until they found an attorney who reaffirmed their opinions, while Wasden has been largely nonpartisan, she said.

"As a person of the opposing party, I have really respected the attorney general," Jaquet said.

The committee approved the appropriation 16-4.

Among the other appropriations:

- A $237,000 transfer in dedicated funds and two full-time positions from the Department of Administration to the Idaho State Historical Society. The move will allow the state to consolidate records management services to the Historical Society. State agencies currently pay the Department of Administration to manage their records.

- $1.5 million in dedicated funds from license fees, which are currently funneled into the state's general fund, to a newly created account dedicated to alcohol beverage control.

- A $33,000 combination of program transfers and new general funds for the Council for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing to allow the program to pay its share of indirect costs to the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and avoid a temporary office closure.

- A $648,100 combination of federal and general funds for the Division of Child Welfare to increase monthly reimbursement payments to foster families. The request includes $150,000 in general funds and $489,100 in federal funds.

- A $500,000 transfer from general funds to dedicated funds to the state's Constitutional Defense Council.

Classrooms in Buhl to Get Tech Upgrades

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

BUHL • More Buhl classrooms will soon be equipped with interactive projectors and iPads — the result of a $100,000 grant.

Since finding out about the Target Corp. grant in January, school officials have developed a plan for how to spend the money.

Target Corp. chose two school districts — including Buhl — and 48 schools nationwide to receive grants. Carla Critchfield, who has three children in Buhl schools, nominated the district through "The Ellen DeGeneres Show."

Superintendent Byron Stutzman said about $40,000 will go toward putting interactive projectors and document cameras in more classrooms.

"Improving instruction is what we want to do," he said. "This is a chance for us to do that."

The equipment adds to the Buhl School District's existing efforts to improve classroom technology.

Each Idaho school district and public charter school is deciding how to spend $32 per student in technology money from the Idaho State Department of Education. In Buhl, about $39,000 is expected to come in this year.

Besides more interactive equipment, Buhl school officials plan to spend $45,000 in grant money to get one classroom set of iPads for each of the district's three schools.

"One per building isn't nearly enough," Stutzman said, but it's a start.

The remaining $15,000 will be used to upgrade software programs in school libraries.

Another grant is headed Buhl's way: The district will receive a $100,000 Idaho System for Educational Excellence grant on July 1.

The money will be used to train employees on how to better use software called Schoolnet. One feature of the system allows teachers to track student scores on assignments and tests.

"It will help them better monitor students," Stutzman said.

T.F. MAN SENTENCED FOR FIGHTING DEPUTIES

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A 40-year-old man has been sentenced to probation for a charge of resisting or obstructing officers stemming from an incident where he tried to kick out the window of a deputy's patrol car.

Jeremy Dee Glandon of Twin Falls was sentenced to 180 days in jail suspended for one year of probation plus fines and court fees.

Deputies arrived on the evening of Dec. 17 after they got a call from Glandon's mother who said he was intoxicated and causing problems.

As deputies tried to arrest Glandon, they said he pulled away from them. Once in the patrol car, he reportedly began to kick a backseat window and continued to kick as he was transported.

Once the deputy started driving, he realized the window was knocked out of place, sticking out of the patrol car by about an inch. Additional deputies arrived on the scene to assist in restraining Glandon who was taken to the emergency room because of his high level of intoxication.

Charges of battery and malicious injury to property were dropped by prosecutors.

Hagerman Schools Chief Accepts Job in Colo.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

HAGERMAN • Hagerman School District Superintendent Ron Echols has tentatively accepted a job in Fort Morgan, Colo.

Morgan County School District's board of trustees voted Monday night to offer its superintendent position to Echols. He accepted it that night.

Echols was out of the office Wednesday. Attempts to reach him were unsuccessful.

It's unclear how the Hagerman School District and its 400 Gooding County students will be affected.

Board chairman Karl Emerson said he hadn't heard about Echols accepting the position in Colorado. Echols is still under contract as Hagerman superintendent for next year.

Julie Hart, spokeswoman for the Idaho School Boards Association, said there isn't a requirement for when a departing superintendent has to notify his or her school board.

Filling a superintendent position is similar to any other school position. But there are some differences.

"It seems like it's a more in-depth process," Hart said.

School trustees typically appoint an interim superintendent to handle day-to-day operations during a search process.

Hart said most school districts hire a search firm to advertise a superintendent position. When a school board votes to hire a superintendent, the decision has to be unanimous.

Echols was one of three finalists for the Morgan County superintendent position. He participated in a public interview process Saturday.

Karen Temple, board secretary for the Morgan County School District, said there isn't a timeline in place for when Echols' contract will be finalized.

Echols will replace current Fort Morgan superintendent Greg Wagers, who is retiring in June.

shown since Tuesday's national tournament loss to Eastern Oklahoma State College — smiles.

"Yeah, it feels good to smile and have some fun for a little while and forget about the game," said sophomore guard Pat Swilling.

CSI's tournament off-day came Wednesday and was spent with a morning practice at tiny Trinity Catholic High School, lunch at Roy's Barbeque — a Hutchinson hot spot — and a visit to the local Boys and Girls Club.

Children at the club peppered CSI players with questions — "When's your birthday?" "What's your favorite video game?" "How tall are you?" — and huddled around giants Paul Bunch, Paul Egwuonwu and Luke Cothron for autographs on CSI posters.

Rafriel Guthrie showed the children Jerran Foster's purple-striped socks, bringing an entire room to laughter, while Kevin Attila and Jon Pulsifer engaged next door in a full-on pillow fight with the first- and second-graders.

"I don't remember being hit with pillows last year," Attila said. "Some of those hits were harder than ones we take in the games."

Gerson Santo played soccer on the Nintendo Wii — the Brazilian forward looked natural doing it, too — and Greg Sequele teamed up with a girl to play foosball.

Dodge ball was the ultimate stress reliever. For that time, the Golden Eagles could forget about basketball and the lost opportunity to pursue a second straight national title.

"I know the guys are hurting right now. Winning a championship was their dream," said Gosar, who admitted he had trouble sleeping after Tuesday's loss. "I told them you can't always control what happens to you in life. You can only control how you react to it."

CSI returns to the court this morning at 9 MDT in an elimination game against Three Rivers Community College of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

"It hurts right now. This isn't where we wanted to be," Swilling said. "It's tough having this day off because you're still thinking about last night. I want to get that bad taste out of my mouth and play now."

Ultrasound

Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, said constituent response affected her colleagues' decision.

"Most of the people they're hearing from are disturbed about the mandate and the ... interference between a woman and her physician," Bell said.

Assistant Minority Leader Elfreda Higgins, D-Garden City, said she was surprised at the news, but added that there was a huge mobilization against the bill.

The move came hours after an ultrasound demonstration organized by anti-abortion activists, where six women volunteered to have sonographers give them ultrasounds in a Senate committee room. Outside, dozens of picketers protested the bill and comments about rape victims made by bill sponsor Sen. Chuck Winder, R-Boise.

Six women, in different stages of pregnancy, participated in the demonstration, allowing sonographers from pregnancy crisis center Stanton Healthcare to take ultrasounds. The earliest pregnancy was about 10 weeks. The six women declined to give their last names.

Stanton's Brandi Swindell repeatedly emphasized that the abdominal procedure was non-invasive and not uncomfortable.

"How is this offensive?"

she said at one point as an image of a fetus filled the projector screen.

The difference, demonstrators in the hall said, is that many women choose to have an abortion much earlier than the six women participating in the demonstration. Also, the six women had chosen to keep their pregnancies — of course they wouldn't be upset by seeing an image of the ultrasound.

Women are already offered a chance to see an ultrasound image, said Jennifer Carter of Meridian. "To mandate it is different," she said.

Those protests weren't lost on House representatives.

"They felt like after the hearing in the Senate turned out to be so inflammatory that they weren't sure, with the picketing and everything, if they're ready for that kind of thing again," Bell said after the caucus.

Loertscher agreed. "It really makes a difference to take a deep breath and take a step back," he said.

Shooting

Howell said the county has a management agreement with the BLM, but not with the Department of Lands. Talks between the county and state aimed at establishing enforcement policies for the problems haven't been successful.

Jerome County commissioners hope to hold public hearings during the next two months to see what kind of crackdown, if any, citizens favor. Sheriff Doug McFall's office is currently researching the cost if deputies began enforcing restrictions in the park.

At this point, Howell emphasized, Jerome County has no authority to enforce any regulations on state-owned property. That's critical because it's the closest portion of the park to Twin Falls and Jerome, and is the most heavily used by shooters and ATV and motorcycle riders.

For riders such as the Guymons, ridding the park of litter would be welcome.

"There are couches and all kinds of stuff out here," said Dave Guymon, 41, of Jerome.

A quick survey of the area where he and 22-year-old Nate were riding turned up a long list of discarded items. There were lots of shotgun shell casings, a prescription bottle, an antifreeze bottle, an empty oil can, cardboard boxes, lengths of rope and hose, soft drink bottles, broken glass, and even a foam cushion apparently from a chair.

While the Guymons emphasize that everyone should be able to use the park, they're aware that shooters might be practicing anywhere. Some recently took Nate by surprise — he crested a small hill on his ATV just as shooters were firing at the incline below him. He suggested that designating certain areas of the park for different activities might be a safer way to go.

Dave said most shooters don't litter, pinning that la-

"If they ban it out here, you'll see lots more shooting where people shouldn't be — like in the city limits."

Tim Yenne, 34, of Jerome, who likes to shoot at Snake River Canyon Park bel on just a few careless people.

Tim Yenne, 34, of Jerome, likes to shoot at the park but sides with those who criticize the littering. He was in the park Tuesday, and said he often hauls out garbage left by other people.

"It's a no-brainer," Yenne said. "You can have lots of fun out here without bringing out ridiculous stuff like TVs and chairs."

Still, he opposes any movement to prevent shooting in the park, and said most who do are trying to improve their skills to become safer hunters.

"If they ban it out here, you'll see lots more shooting where people shouldn't be — like in the city limits," he said.

On Wednesday afternoon, Morgan Diaz parked his automobile just beyond the stoplight at Highway 93 and Shoshone Falls Road to shoot his AR-15. The 41-year-old Jerome resident said shooters should be welcome at the park "as long as you are responsible."

That means cleaning up after a shooting session, said Diaz, who makes a point of picking up shell casings and other items.

"Everybody has a right to the land," Diaz said, "but if you pack it in, pack it out."

BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson acknowledged that use of the park "has been an issue for a number of years." She hopes things can be worked out so everyone can still enjoy their own brand of recreation.

That's Howell's goal, too. He believes closing the park to shooting would cause more problems than it solved.

"If you shove them off this land they're going to do somewhere else," he said.

SHERIFF SUPPORTS SHOOTING IN PARK

JEROME • Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall says his office would gladly take on a bigger enforcement role in Snake River Canyon Park if it meant shooters could still practice there.

Jerome County commissioners are discussing ways to curb littering and safety problems in the park. Banning shooting is one option, although no decisions have been made.

McFall says preliminary estimates show it would cost $5,000 to $15,000 a year for deputies to step up patrols in the park and enforce any new regulations. The difference in cost depends on whether the sheriff's office is directed to act proactively or in a more reserved role, the sheriff said.

Costs would cover salaries, equipment and fuel required to do the job. McFall said the sheriff's office already has sufficient vehicles for beefed-up enforcement.

McFall favors any management decision that lets people keep shooting in the park because he supports gun rights and believes regular target practice will make shooters safer in handling their guns.

The options might call for a two-person patrol on Friday evenings and weekends, if commissioners want that kind of surveillance, McFall said. It could call for the hiring of a part-time deputy or use of reserves or off-duty officers.

Deputies already perform limited duties in the park, such as responding when there is a call for help.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management pays the Jerome County Sheriff's Office $5,000 per year for such services, McFall said, but the Idaho Department of Lands does not pay.

The BLM has about 7,000 acres of land in the park while the Department of Lands has 700 acres.

Cooperate and Compromise: Please!

As the current legislative session grinds inexorably to completion, the disparate priorities of the House, the Senate and the governor have become all too apparent.

Nowhere has this variance of opinion become more obvious than in discussing how to spend Idaho's expected revenue surplus.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter — beginning with his State of the State address in January — has repeatedly emphasized the need to replenish the state coffers; to re-establish a rainy day fund to protect state agencies and state residents in the event of another economic downturn, making a $60 million deposit into that fund this year.

Last month, the Senate — in an unparalleled act of bipartisanship — voted 32-0 to undo the teacher salary cuts that were a result of this past year's passage of Tom Luna's self-proclaimed "Students Come First" reforms. If that 32-0 seems like a typo, you're not alone in the shock associated with seeing 32 senators — women and men; Republicans and Democrats, representing Idahoans from all corners of the state — agreeing on anything. That unanimous vote to restore $35 million in teacher salaries over five years ought to be something that gets the attention of the governor and members of the Idaho House.

But apparently not. The House has refused to take up the teacher pay bill and proposed a $35 million tax cut for the state's highest wage earners instead, also backed by Otter. Far be it from the Times-News to suggest that a tiny cut in individual income tax is a politically motivated move associated with it being an election year, so we won't go there.

The trouble with the current situation is that the Senate won't take up the House's tax cut bill and the House has done the same with teacher pay. Not precisely the example of "working and playing well with others" that you'd like to see from our elected officials.

Complicating matters further is the wide range in the estimated surplus. Otter's suddenly optimistic estimate of a $128 million surplus after the year 2013 is roughly double the estimate of most legislators.

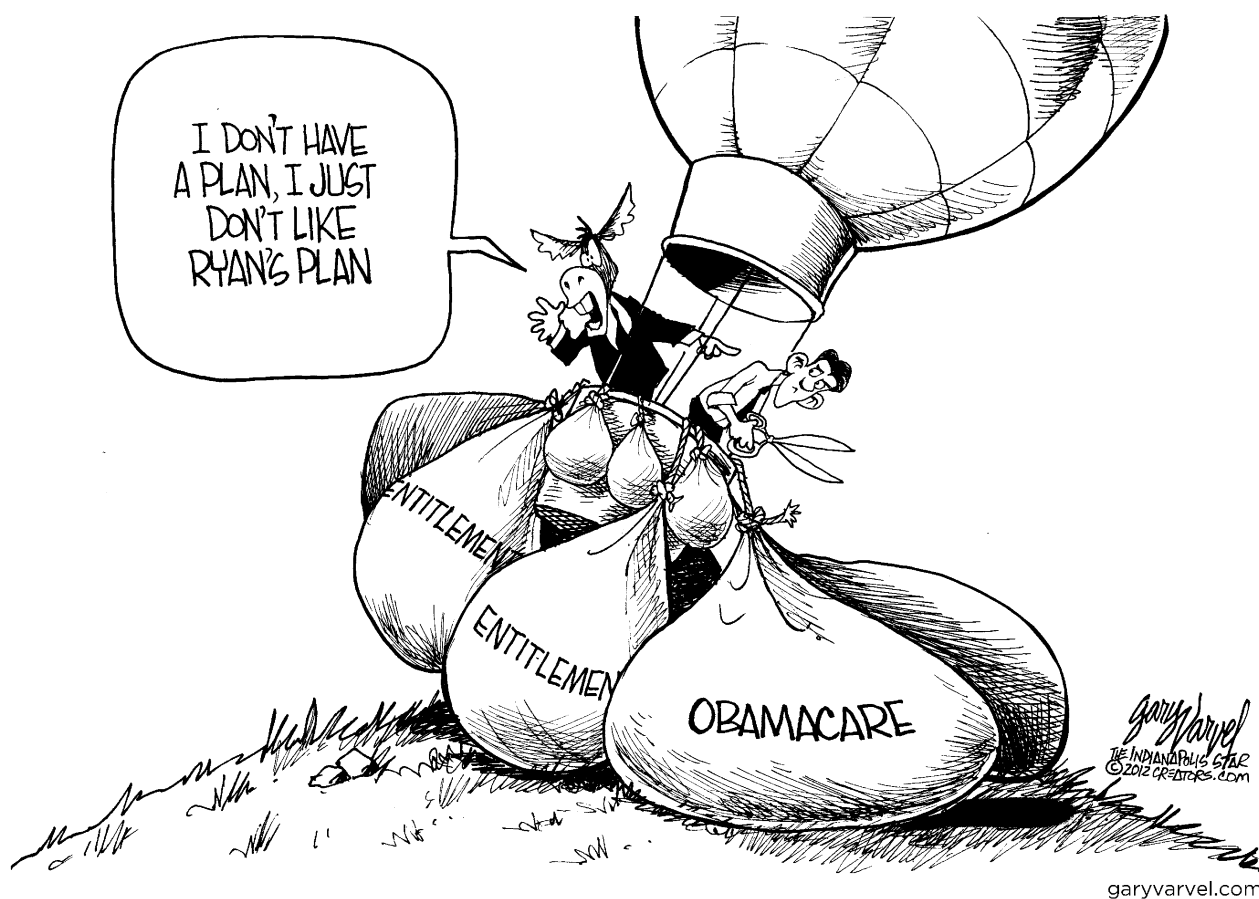

Meanwhile, the Legislature fiddles with peripheral issues such as renewing attempts to remove Occupy Boise tents. Far better for them to move on to the main event.

The House-backed tax cuts seem to us to be the odd man out. Sen. Tim Corder, R-Mountain Home, chairman of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, emphasized the state finance department's estimate that the tax bill would only provide $71 in "relief" to a family of four making $100,000 per year. That's something he feels would not get Idahoans much "bang for the buck." We agree.

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, co-chairman of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, provided a concise summary of the Senate position.

"Our members," Cameron said, "would like to see (the educational funding) bill come forward, as well as substantial revenue being put into guarding against another downturn."

We agree with Sen. Cameron: pay the teachers and replenish the rainy day fund. It's the right thing to do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Warden Defends Correctional Center

As warden for the Idaho Correctional Center, I take great pride in my job, my staff and the facility that the Corrections Corporation of America manages for the state of Idaho. Since I had the privilege of becoming warden at ICC, our facility has sustained its gold-plated accreditation by the American Correctional Association and the National Commission on Correctional Health Care. My team is proud that it has passed more than 25 audits by the state. Daily, on-site monitoring by the state ensures that we are being held accountable to the highest industry standards and our own superior standards of service. I can guarantee we are getting that job done for the taxpayers and citizens of Idaho in a cost-effective, efficient, safe and humane manner.

Consider that, as the largest facility in the state to house inmates, on a given day at ICC these essential activities take place in service of more than 2,000 inmates: More than 6,000 meals are prepared, more than 35 programs and vocational training are offered, and more than eight hours of recreation time a day is offered. Add to this more than 32 visitation hours a weekend by friends and relatives, an average of eight religious and faith-based activities a day, and about 128 medical visits carried out daily by medical staff. In short, a prison is like a small community with people needing food, jobs, doctor's visits and time to practice their faith in a safe and secure environment.

The fact is cost savings of public-private partnership corrections have been affirmed by more than 20 studies performed either by universities, think tanks and government entities, including Harvard Law School, Vanderbilt University and The Reason Foundation, to name a few. This research supports a conservative estimate that partnership facilities offer cost savings of between 10 to 15 percent. Two additional factors make the actual cost savings to states even greater; construction costs and pension costs are shifted away from taxpayers.

My hat is off to all staff at CCA as they work to provide corrections services at efficient costs to taxpayers while operating a modern, humane and safe facility for staff, inmates and the community. At ICC, we're proud to be advancing that mission every day.

Caucus Denied Voters a Voice

To all Idahoans:

Those of us that were unable to vote just got stabbed with a sharp stick!

Now we really know what a caucus is. Thought you'd get to vote in the primary anyway? No, we can't vote for presidential candidates in the primary! It's control all over again by those in the government/political realm. A few hundred made the choice for thousands.

Where did our right to vote go? Did we have the normal 12 hours to make it to the polling place? No again; they made it mandatory to be present, sit and listen to others sell you on their candidates as if we aren't already bombarded with TV and radio commercials as well as newspaper ads — and then, you had to stay after the vote and vote again if there wasn't a majority.

Like this set-up deal? Feel threatened yet?

Soldiers fight for our liberties, senior citizens unable to sit for two to three hours (my mother and mother-in-law are both in their 90s and never missed a primary or general election), other people working, out of town or having prior commitments never had the chance to vote and no absentee ballots!

I think it's a bunch of CRAP (Controlling Republicans Assassinating Patriots).

As an independent voter, I want the chance to vote! Why, in the USA, should I have to declare my allegiance to a party when I have voted for candidates in both parties?

Write your Idaho state representatives/senators, Republican and Democratic committees and complain.

CAROLYN SMITH
Mackay

Many Excluded from Caucus

I have a question. Who decided that the people of Idaho would not have a primary to elect the candidate of their choice for president? Why do we feel disenfranchised?

Who decided that the men and women of the military should not have a chance to vote for their choice of candidate to run for president who might one day be their commander-in-chief?

Who decided that the caucus would be in only one place in Gooding County and at night, automatically eliminating all those who work the swing shift such as our deputy sheriffs, policemen, firemen, doctors and nurses, people who work in restaurants, gas stations and all others whose hours would prevent them from an opportunity to vote? What about the elderly and infirm?

Who decided that only a few should make the decision for the majority? Does the Republican Party feel it cannot trust the people to name the right candidate to beat Mr. Obama in November? Another freedom lost!

It took years for Hitler to chip away at the freedoms in Germany until he became the supreme ruler. The Roman Empire was once the greatest nation on earth. It was never conquered; it was destroyed from within by its own rulers and politicians.

While the Republican Party is so busy pointing its finger at Mr. Obama and Washington, perhaps it should look a little closer to home. Does anyone else see the hypocrisy here?

Immigration's Loose Rules of Detention

The following editorial appeared in the Los Angeles Times on Sunday:

This month, the Department of Homeland Security opened the Karnes County Civil Detention Center in Texas — a state-of-the-art facility intended to symbolize the Obama administration's effort to reform a deeply troubled immigration jails system. The center, which houses only detainees with no serious criminal backgrounds, has no barbed-wire fencing. Immigrants are free to roam the facility. Those who choose to can do their own laundry.

The administration deserves praise for acting on its promise to treat immigrants as civil defendants awaiting their day in immigration court rather than as criminals serving time. Unfortunately, it hasn't moved as effectively to change the rules governing how detention centers are run. Instead, Homeland Security officials have enacted weak guidelines that look good on paper yet are rarely or inconsistently enforced.

Consider that last month the administration rolled out new standards intended to curb abuses committed by detention center staff and detainees. Yet the Karnes facility, which opened after the new standards were announced, is not required to comply with them because federal officials didn't bother to write it into the operating contract. Instead, the facility will operate under 2008 guidelines, with an option to shift to the new rules later.

BUHL MAN ACCUSED OF BURGLARIZING SAME HOME TWICE

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

BUHL • A 21-year-old man has been accused of burglarizing two homes in Buhl, one of them twice, stealing electronics and collectables.

Edgar Ivan Flores Aguilar, of Buhl, was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court Monday on three counts of burglary and one count of possession of stolen property.

On March 12, Buhl police responded to a call about a burglary at a home in the 700 block of 12th Avenue North. The victim reported a laptop, several DVD and Blu-ray movies, a video camera, iPod docking station, an MP3 player, a Sony Playstation, a toolbox full of tools and a pair of binoculars were missing.

On March 15, police responded to the same address for another burglary, which occurred between 7:37 a.m. and 5 p.m. that day.

This time the victim said missing items included cords to the laptop that was previously stolen, an Xbox and games, a digital camera and picture printing dock, an iPod, sports trading cards, an autographed baseball, Mossberg 12 gauge shotgun, a Winchester semi-automatic 12 gauge shotgun, $500 in cash and a bottle of prescription antibiotic pills.

Two hours later, police responded to another burglary report in the 800 block of 12th Avenue North. The victims in that case reported the crime happened between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. that day.

Missing items included an Xbox and games, DVD movies, a man's wedding band, a shovel and vehicle jack.

While speaking with the victim, officers noticed a man running up an alley behind the house. The victims said they had seen the man walking through the neighborhood earlier carrying a rifle or shotgun in a case.

As the officer ran to his vehicle to follow the man, the victim from the first case showed up and said he had retrieved the gun and tried to stop the man who then fled down the alley.

A search warrant was signed after information about Aguilar was put together through witness statements and earlier interactions with police.

On March 16, Aguilar was arrested after police found him in the crawl space of a house in the 800 block of 12th Avenue North.

According to court documents, Aguilar admitted to the three burglaries and described how he entered the houses.

Aguilar told police that at the first home he broke a window and reached inside to unlock the door. When he returned the second time, according to the police report, he "entered the home through the garage and kitchen doors by defeating the doorknob locks."

He entered the second home by breaking a window and climbing into the dining room, according to the report.

A preliminary hearing has been set for March 30.

Court Sides with Property Owners over EPA

BY MARK SHERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Wednesday that property owners have a right to prompt review by a judge of an important tool used by the Environmental Protection Agency to address water pollution.

The court sided with an Idaho couple who object to an EPA order that blocked construction of their new home near a scenic lake and threatened fines of more than $30,000 a day.

Wednesday's decision is a victory for Mike and Chantell Sackett, whose property near Priest Lake has sat undisturbed since the EPA ordered a halt in work in 2007. The agency said part of the property was a wetlands that could not be disturbed without a permit.

In an opinion by Justice Antonin Scalia, the court rejected EPA's argument that allowing property owners quick access to courts to contest orders like the one issued to the Sacketts would compromise the agency's ability to deal with water pollution.

"Compliance orders will remain an effective means of securing prompt voluntary compliance in those many cases where there is no substantial basis to question their validity," Scalia said.

In this case, the couple contested the determination that their small lot contained wetlands that are regulated by the Clean Water Act, and they complained there was no reasonable way to challenge the order without risking fines that can mount quickly.

Scalia, reading a summary of his opinion in court, noted that the Sacketts have never "seen a ship or other vessel cross their yard."

The Sacketts now will be able to argue in federal court that their land should not be subject to EPA regulation, said their lawyer, Damien Schiff.

The EPA issues nearly 3,000 administrative compliance orders a year that call on alleged violators of environmental laws to stop what they're doing and repair the harm they've caused. Major business groups, homebuilders, road builders and agricultural interests all joined the Sacketts in urging the court to make it easier to contest EPA compliance orders issued under several environmental laws.

Senate Ethics Panel Vetoes Complaint About Pearce

BOISE (AP) • A Senate Ethics Commission voted unanimously to dismiss a complaint against Republican Sen. Monty Pearce, concluding Democrats couldn't prove he'd violated the chamber's rules governing when conflicts of interest must be disclosed.

Wednesday's 6-0 vote of three Democrats and three Republicans doesn't mean everybody left in full agreement, however.

Democratic panelist Diane Bilyeu, of Pocatello, felt the process was rushed and didn't fully vet whether Pearce's leases with gas drilling companies posed a conflict.

However, Republican member Jim Hammond, of Coeur d'Alene, saw nothing in Pearce's alleged conflict that would benefit him more than other people who have signed leases for energy exploration.

Burley Man Faces Fed Prison Time for Meth Charges

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • A Burley man could spend nearly six years in federal prison for a charge of conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine.

Abel Ortega, 36, was sentenced in U.S. District Court in Boise to 71 months in prison followed by three years of supervised probation after admitting in December to conspiring with others to distribute more than 500 grams of meth in Boise. According to a plea agreement, Ortega said the planning occurred between Sept. 1 and Dec. 15, 2010.

Three co-conspirators from Rupert were sentenced on drug and firearm charges.

Rigaberto Moreno Sanchez was sentenced in September to 14 years in federal prison; Leah Rivera was sentenced in October to nine years and Jose Luis Arteaga was sentenced Feb. 21 to spend five years in prison.

In a statement announcing the sentence, U.S. Attorney Wendy J. Olson said her office — along with federal, state and local law enforcement — are using all available means to catch and punish meth traffickers.

The case was investigated by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and the Boise Police Department.

M.V. Firms Nominated for Freedom Award

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Two Magic Valley businesses are among 27 in Idaho nominated for the 2012 Secretary of Defense Employer Support Freedom Award. Franklin Building Supply in Jerome and Transystems in Twin Falls made the list, announced this week.

Nominations are made by Idaho National Guard and Reserve members. The Freedom Award is the Department of Defense's highest recognition for employers supporting members of the Guard and Reserve.

Up to 15 recipients will be announced this summer, then honored Sept. 20 in Washington, D.C., at the 17th annual Freedom Award Ceremony.

The Energy Information Administration said supplies fell by 1.2 million barrels. Analysts expected supplies to grow by 2.1 million barrels, according to Platts, the energy information arm of McGraw-Hill. Benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude rose $1.20 to finish at $107.27 per barrel in New York. Brent crude, which is used by many U.S. refineries to make gasoline, rose by 8 cents to end at $124.20 per barrel in London.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

U.S. Stocks Close Mixed, Continuing Bumpy Week

NEW YORK (AP) • U.S. stocks closed mixed Wednesday after a quiet trading day that left the indexes little changed. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 45.57 points, or 0.3 percent, to 13,124.62. It had been up 20 shortly after the opening bell. The Dow had its biggest loss in two weeks on Tuesday, falling 68.94 points. The Standard & Poor's 500 index closed down 2.63 points, or 0.2 percent, at 1,402.89. The Nasdaq composite average closed up 1.17 at 3,075.32. Hewlett-Packard fell 2.2 percent after saying it would combine its printer and PC divisions to save money.

Dart Buys Solo Cup Co. in Estimated $1-billion Deal

Dart CEO Robert Dart says purchase will allow customers to buy a wider range of products from a single vendor.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Michigan-based Dart Container Corp. announced Tuesday its acquisition of Solo Cup Co., which operates a Twin Falls plant that employs about 100 people.

Dart's purchase of Solo is estimated at about $1 billion, and is expected to close by third-quarter 2012, pending regulatory approval. Both companies make disposable food service packaging.

"Dart's leadership team has shown a high level of respect for what Solo has accomplished, and I believe we are putting the company in the right hands to succeed and grow ..." Solo CEO Robert Korzenski said in a statement.

Dart CEO Robert Dart said the purchase will allow customers the ability to buy a wider range of products from a single vendor. Dart is privately owned, and its CEO said the company will "take the time to integrate Solo in a thoughtful, analytical manner to ensure lasting success."

Dart expects to continue offering products under the Solo brand — including the company's iconic red cups, according to the release.

Solo's Twin Falls plant produces about 2 million plastic utensils and straws daily, manager Mark Leonard told the Times-News in 2011. Its largest client is Costco, which purchases about 85 percent of items made in Twin Falls.

The plant opened in 1998.

Dart employs 7,600 workers and operates 20 production facilities worldwide, according to the release.

U.S. Home Re-sales Have Best Winter in Five Years

BY DEREK KRAVITZ

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • U.S. home sales are gradually coming back. A mild winter and a stronger job market have helped boost sales ahead of the crucial spring buying season.

The past two months made up the best winter for sales of previously occupied homes in five years, when the housing crisis began. And the sales pace in January was the highest since May 2010, the last month that buyers could qualify for a federal home-buying tax credit.

February sales dipped only slightly to a seasonally adjusted 4.59 million, the National Association of Realtors said Wednesday. That's 13 percent higher than the sales pace last July and just below the revised 4.63 million in January.

Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist at High Frequency Economics, said the lower February's numbers "should not detract from the key point, which is that sales are trending upward."

The sales pace remains far below the 6 million that economists equate with healthy markets. And the number of first-time buyers, who are critical to a housing recovery, continues to lag normal levels, while foreclosures remain high.

Still, Summer Greene, a Realtor in Fort Lauderdale, said she's getting multiple offers for listings. That's been rare since the housing market went bust in South Florida.

"People don't want to wait on the sidelines anymore and the change is very noticeable," Greene said. "There's definitely been a mood shift."

The median sales prices of homes rose for the first time in four months in February, to $156,600. And the supply of homes on the market increased more than 4 percent in February to 2.43 million, which could signal that more homeowners became confident in the housing market.

There have been other signs of improvement in the depressed housing market.

Homebuilders have grown more confident in the past six months after see-

Senate Passes Tax Break for Developers

Bill is designed to help hard-hit developers carry inventory until their fortunes change.

BOISE (AP) • Land developers whose grand designs for their properties were thwarted by the recession could soon win tax relief.

The Senate voted 28-7 Tuesday for the measure, which would exempt the value of improvements to properties until the construction of homes or buildings begins — or the developer unloads the parcel on somebody else.

Twin Falls developer Brad Wills spent about a year working on the proposal, which he introduced to the Legislature earlier this month.

The measure has cleared the House and is now destined for Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's desk.

Advocates, including Sen. Lee Heider of Twin Falls, described the bill as an economic relief effort, to help hard-hit developers carry their inventory until their fortune changes.

Foes, however, feared the bill could undermine revenue to local governments that rely on property taxes.

Sen. Joyce Broadsword of Sagle told colleagues she'd heard from multiple assessors who had concerns about the bill.

"People don't want to wait on the sidelines anymore and the change is very noticeable. There's definitely been a mood shift."

Summer Greene, a Realtor in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

ing more people express interest in buying a home. In February, they requested the most permits to build homes since October 2008.

Mortgage rates are near record lows. And the supply of homes fell in January to its lowest level in seven years.

A lower supply helps push up prices, which lures more sellers onto the market and generally improves the quality of homes for sale. Rising prices also boost sales because buyers want to invest in homes that are appreciating in value.

A key reason for the brighter housing outlook is the job market has strengthened. From December through February, employers added an average of 245,000 jobs a month. The unemployment rate has fallen to 8.3 percent, the lowest in three years.

Still, economists caution that the damage from the housing bust is deep and the industry is years away from fully recovering.

HP Combines Printer, PC Units in Turnaround Bid

BY BARBARA ORTUTAY

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Hewlett-Packard Co. is combining its printer and PC divisions as it tries to overcome dragging profits, growing competition and the absence of a focused identity.

The move announced Wednesday will help the company streamline its business and save money to invest in growing areas.

HP is also hoping its restructuring will boost innovation.

The change comes as sales of printers and ink, once HP's lifeblood, are falling because people are sharing more documents and photos online instead of printing them.

HP, the world's No. 1 maker of personal computers, is also coping with declining PC sales as consumers in the U.S. and Western Europe delay replacing their machines and spend money instead on smartphones and tablet computers such as Apple's iPad.

The restructuring is one of the first major steps taken by former eBay chief Meg Whitman since she became HP's CEO in September. Her predecessor, Leo Apotheker, had wanted to sell or spin off the PC business, a plan that contributed to his ouster after 11 months on the job. Under Whitman, HP decided to keep the unit after all.

Whitman inherited a faltering company that's facing growing competition from mobile devices and internal operational challenges such as a complex supply chain, which HP hopes to simplify by combining the divisions.

Last month, Whitman said HP plans to spend several years turning its business around.

She promised a more streamlined and efficient company, and Wednesday's announcement is a step in that direction.

Besides combining the PC and printing units, HP is unifying its marketing functions under one executive and consolidating other areas of its business.

Whitman had said that HP has been running its business in "silos" for years, making the company "too complex and too slow." On Wednesday, the company stressed that the changes will mean a more streamlined, faster and consumer-focused Hewlett-Packard, one that fits its mantra, "One HP."

Gary Pruitt of McClatchy Is New AP President

BY ADAM GELLER
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Gary Pruitt, a former First Amendment lawyer who heads the third-largest newspaper company in the U.S., will become the next president and CEO of The Associated Press, the cooperative announced Wednesday.

Pruitt, the chairman, president and CEO of The McClatchy Co., will join AP in July, taking over for Tom Curley, who is retiring after leading the news organization for nine years.

Pruitt

"In Gary, we have chosen a seasoned and worthy successor to Tom Curley to continue AP's transition to a digital news company," said William Dean Singleton, outgoing chairman of the AP Board of Directors and chairman of MediaNews Group Inc. "Gary has deep experience in the changing world of the news industry, an acute business sense and an overriding understanding of and commitment to AP's news mission."

Pruitt, 54, will take over an organization pressed by rapid changes in the news industry. AP has spent most of the past decade working to transform itself, launching new platforms for multimedia content, seeking fresh sources of revenue and protecting the results of its newsgathering in the online marketplace.

"I think AP is successfully navigating, but the transition isn't over and it never will be," Pruitt said in an interview.

Intense pressure on many media companies has made them increasingly reliant on AP newsgathering. But to continue delivering its journalism, Pruitt said the organization must look for more revenue by expanding in Asia and other fast-growing regions worldwide and by increasing its product offerings.

"We've got to get it right," he said. "Too many people are counting on us every day for their complete news report. We've got to be able to not just sustain it, but to grow it and improve it."

More than half the world's population sees news reported by the AP on any given day. The not-for-profit cooperative, based in New York and owned by its member newspapers, has about 3,700 employees — about two-thirds of them journalists — in more than 300 locations worldwide, including all 50 states.

Obama, GOP Vie for Upper Hand on Energy

BY KEN THOMAS
Associated Press

MALJAMAR, N.M. • Wooing a nation of increasingly angry motorists, President Barack Obama and his Republican rivals are all plunging into gas-pump politics, seeking the upper hand as energy becomes a driving issue in the election campaign.

The president is defending his energy agenda this week, traveling Wednesday to a solar panel plant in Nevada and oil and gas fields in New Mexico and the site of a future oil pipeline in Oklahoma that the White House is promising to accelerate. At the same time, GOP opponents from front-runner Mitt Romney on down are vigorously accusing him of stifling domestic production and betting on foolhardy alternative energy methods over traditional oil drilling.

With gasoline reaching $3.86 a gallon in the U.S. and apparently heading higher, the public is impatient for Obama — or someone in his place — to do something about it.

In truth, a president has little direct control over gas prices, which have risen more than 50 cents a gallon since January in response to a standoff over Iran's nuclear program that has threatened to disrupt Middle East oil supplies.

Well aware of Republicans' criticism, Obama's advisers argue that voters take a sophisticated view toward energy and think about it as a problem demanding long-term answers. They know that talk about future solutions may not satisfy people as they endure high prices, but they're betting that voters will side with the candidate they trust the most to deal with the issue — and they're determined that that will be Obama.

"We're drilling all over the place," Obama said in Maljamar, N.M., in a field dotted with oil rigs.

Polls show less certainty about it all. One survey this month by CBS News and The New York Times found that 54 percent of Americans felt the price of gasoline was something a president could do a lot about while 36 percent said it was beyond his control. A recent Washington Post/ABC poll found 50 percent thought the Obama administration could reasonably do something to bring down gas prices, while 45 percent felt the recent rapid rise has been beyond White House control.

Obama has repeatedly argued that drilling for new oil alone will not solve the nation's energy woes or reduce gas prices. He accuses Republicans of claiming they can "wave a magic wand" to return to the days of cheap gas, and on Wednesday, he mocked them for having a "lack of imagination" about alternative energy.

"You'd think that everybody would be supportive of solar power," Obama said from the Copper Mountain Solar 1 facility in Nevada, the largest plant of its kind in the country, with nearly 1 million solar panels. "And yet if some politicians had their way, there won't be any more public investment in solar energy. There won't be as many new jobs."

Obama carried three of the four states on this week's itinerary — Oklahoma is one of the safest Republican states in the nation — but all four elected Republican governors in 2010. Two of the governors, Brian Sandoval of Nevada and Susana Martinez of New Mexico, have been floated as potential vice presidential choices this year. Obama was making his first visit to Oklahoma as president.

He has been hurt by his administration's decision to pump millions into California solar company Solyndra before it collapsed. And he's been repeatedly criticized by Republican presidential candidates for blocking the 1,700-mile Keystone XL pipeline, which would carry tar sands oil from western Canada to refineries along the Texas Gulf Coast.

The mere mention of Solyndra and Keystone generate instant reactions at Republican rallies.

Romney has blamed Obama for rising gasoline prices and urged the president to fire Energy Secretary Steven Chu, Interior Secretary Ken Salazar and Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lisa Jackson, calling them the "gas hike trio."

Former House Speaker Newt Gingrich has adopted $2.50 gasoline as a central tenet of his struggling campaign, criticizing Obama for holding up the pipeline project and mocking him as "President Algae" for highlighting research into developing oil and gas from algae.

Former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum, meanwhile, regularly notes his grandfather's work as a coal miner. And he detoured his campaign to tour oil fields in North Dakota recently, labeling himself the only ardent supporter of oil drilling.

"Instead of paying two-digit dollars you're now paying three digits," Santorum said in Illinois. "When you see that zero come up, when it gets into the $100 range, when you see that zero, think of 'O' for Obama because that's why you're paying that extra amount of money."

On Wednesday, Santorum campaigned at a company in Harvey, La., that services oil rigs in the Gulf of Mexico. He pressed the administration to open more federal lands for leases that he says would both generate revenue for the government and boost U.S. oil production.

"Here's an opportunity for us in this country to do something about it: increasing jobs, lowering energy prices, decreasing the deficit, all of the things you would think he president of the United States would be for," Santorum said.

In many ways, the issue has come full circle for the president. In 2008, candidate Obama criticized an inside-the-Beltway culture for the rise in gasoline prices. "So what have we got for all that experience? Gas that's approaching $4 a gallon. Because you can fight all you want inside of Washington, but unless you change the way it works you won't be able to make the changes America needs," Obama said at an Indianapolis gas station in April 2008.

Now he's the president.

Bernanke Confident U.S. Banks Could Withstand Euro Shocks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke told a congressional panel Wednesday that U.S. banks could withstand shocks from Europe, even if the debt crisis there significantly worsened.

The U.S. banking system remains exposed to Europe, but stress tests conducted by the Fed found most banks could weather a severe recession triggered by the debt crisis, Bernanke told the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee.

"Although a blow up in Europe would be very costly to the American economy, I think we are in much better shape to meet those challenges than we were a few years ago," Bernanke told the committee.

The Fed looked at how the 19 largest U.S. bank holding companies would handle a recession that drove the unemployment rate to 13 percent and cut stock prices 50 percent. The stress tests found all but four were strong enough to survive.

"Kids Egg Science," taught by Bill Ebener, 1 to 3 p.m. Tuesday class shows crazy science experiments uses eggs. Cost is $15.

"Balloon Blast," taught by Suzie Heller, from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesday for ages 6 to 14. Kids will learn tricks to making crazy balloon hats and animals; each student will get an instruction booklet to take home. Cost is $20.

Registration for any of these courses may be done by calling the North Side Center at 934-8678 or the Twin Falls campus at 732-6442. Class size is limited.

CSI Offers Community Education Classes

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho Community Education Department is offering classes that begin soon.

"Beginning Couponing" will be held Saturday at the Twin Falls Campus and April 5 at the North Side Campus in Gooding. Suzie Heller and Amy Spellman will teach both workshops. Students will learn different systems for couponing. Cost is $15.

"Excel 2: Beyond the Basics," taught by Randy Bow, will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays, March 27 through April 17, at the CSI North Side Campus in Gooding. The class is created for those who have used Microsoft Excel but want to do more with complex formulas and charts. Participants must have basic Excel and keyboarding skills. Cost is $45.

"DIY: Cement Water Garden," taught by Rob O'Donnell, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. March 30 and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 31 at the Mini-Cassia Campus in Burley. The same class will be taught from 7 to 9 p.m. April 13, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 14 at the North Side Campus in Gooding. The class covers skills and materials necessary to create a professional water feature for the garden. Discussion will include ponds, pondless features, tabletop fountains and bird-baths. Students will learn design and building project, creating artificial stones, types of pumps, plumbing, biological filtration, lighting, water proofing and plants.

Cost for either course is $60 plus a $10 supply fee payable to the instructor.

"Microsoft Office 2010," taught Shirley Stauffer, will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays, March 29 through April 12, at the Mini-Cassia Campus in Burley. Cost is $40.

Class size is limited in all classes. Information or to register: 732-6442, 934-8678 or <http://community.ed.csi.edu>.

Modern Woodmen Offers New Community Improvement Program

TWIN FALLS • Modern Woodmen of America, a fraternal financial services organization, is offering a new program with monthly winners to receive $500 to kick-start a community improvement project.

The new contest rewards people for giving back (such as improving a neighborhood park, building a new walking trail at an area school or improving the community in some other way).

"Modern Woodmen members gather with purpose through local chapters and youth service clubs nationwide," said Terry Downs, a Modern Woodmen representative in Magic Valley, in a news release. "This monthly contest is an opportunity to give others the opportunity to improve communities through volunteerism."

Submissions can be entered online for a chance to win. Entries should be 400 words or less and describe what project would be completed with $500 from Modern Woodmen.

Eligible submissions will be posted online and the public can help choose a favorite. The winner will be chosen based on the potential project impact and the number of "likes."

To submit an entry and for

SOMEBODY NEEDS YOU

Drivers — The American Cancer Society's Road to Recovery program seeks volunteers to provide transportation for area cancer patients to and from their treatments in Twin Falls. Volunteers are needed to drive patients from Buhl, Hailey, and around Twin Falls. Drivers are asked to sign up for at least one trip per month, but can volunteer for as many as desired. Information: Peggy Schultz, 422-0846 or peggy.schultz@cancer.org.

Volunteers — The American Cancer Society needs volunteers to serve in the Cancer Resource Center at St. Luke's Cancer Center in Twin Falls. The resource center is a focal point of information for cancer patients and their families in the Twin Falls area. Volunteers should have some basic computer skills or the ability to learn, and be compassionate to the needs of patients. Volunteers are asked to register for at least one four-hour shift per week, but can sign up for as many hours as desired. Information: Peggy Schultz, 422-0846 or peggy.schultz@cancer.org.

Volunteers/donations — CSI Refugee Center has families in need of weekly volunteer support and needs clothes hampers, plastic storage containers, DVD players and microwaves. The center is preparing for its community garden plot and needs tomato cages and seed packets of green beans, peas, carrots, mustard greens, cucumbers and squash. Information: Michelle, 736-2166, or 1526 Highland Ave. E., Twin Falls.

Let's Go Birding

With warmer weather approaching, now might be your last chance to see wintering fowl. But don't worry, other birds are on their way.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

BUHL • Along U.S. Highway 30, just a few miles west of Hagerman, is the Hagerman Wildlife Management Area where more than 100,000 ducks winter in its protected expanse of marsh, wetland, open water and treed habitat.

The WMA also has a small rest stop, which I swung into on my way back from Boise recently. In the parking lot, I met an Oregon couple traveling to Salt Lake City. They had swung into the rest area looking for a place to park.

"We were astonished at the number of ducks and geese in the water, right there by the road," said Dick Moore, 67.

"We want to try and get a better look," said his wife, Lola, 56.

The Hagerman WMA has a variety of wintering ducks, including the wood duck, Northern pintail and greater scaup. Of course, you'll spot mallard ducks as well.

"These next few weeks are really the last chance of the season to catch wintering birds," said Fish and Game Regional Wildlife Biologist Rob Lonsinger.

That said, there is time to grab binoculars and a spotting scope and go birding.

Lonsinger suggests checking out the trumpeter swans, which you can sometimes see from your car while traveling through the Hagerman WMA. Watch for ponds on the south side near the bridge crossing the Snake River.

"We have trumpeters throughout the Magic Valley," he said, adding that the Silver Creek Area in Carey is another great place to watch the birds in action before they travel to their summer grounds in Alaska.

In the months to come, southern Idaho will welcome home Ferruginous hawks. Lonsinger said the valley boasts a large breeding population of the hawks, which like to nest in juniper and other shrub habitat.

Ferruginous hawks can be spotted in the China Mountain area, the Shoshone Basin and Raft River.

With large nests, used year after year, and just 12-14 feet off the ground, they are pretty easy to spot.

"They are pretty sensitive to disturbance so you'll definitely want to watch them with a spotting scope," Lonsinger said.

Of course, you don't have to travel far from home to enjoy winged wonders. A birding guide compiled by the Prairie Falcon Audubon Society (Idaho's local chapter) and members Karl Ruprecht and Jeff Ruprecht says several Twin Falls parks are great places for birding.

The variety of habitat, from basalt cliffs, riparian areas and shrub and marshland at Centennial Park, Dierkes Lake and Shoshone Falls Park is perfect for spotting everything from American white pelicans and great-blue herons to northern orioles, canyon wrens and song sparrows.

You may spot birds in your backyard, said chapter president Sarah Harris.

"We get some great migrating birds that pass through here," she said.

Some to watch out for: Lazuli bunting and western tanager.

5 Best Places to Mountain Bike This Spring

TWIN FALLS • Every year Nathan Fuller looks forward to dry spring weather because it's the perfect time to ride his mountain bike in the hills.

If it's rainy — like it was last weekend — that means trails are too muddy. And being a conscientious rider, Fuller won't tread the hillside in wet weather. It beats up the trails and makes ruts, he said. That's not good for mountain bikers or other trail users.

But hold onto your helmets, said Fuller, president of the Southern Idaho Mountain Biking Association: Ideal spring riding is almost here.

"I try to get out as often as I can," he said, "usually two or three times a week."

His favorite ride: Indian Spring Road south of Kimberly. But south-central Idaho has plenty of other rides — some geared for families, others for more advanced riders.

Fuller and other mountain bikers suggest these:

1. Get Out with the Family: Auger Falls, Twin Falls

For an easy ride, consider the gravel trail at Auger Falls in the Snake River Canyon.

Learn How to Trap Game at F&G Course

TIMES-NEWS

NAMPA • There's more than one way to hunt game.

Ever thought about trapping?

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game will offer a two-day trapper education course 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 31 and April 1 at the department's regional office in Nampa.

A variety of topics will be covered that promote safe, responsible trapping and outline the role trapping plays in wildlife population management. One full day of the course will be devoted to field work, during which students will learn selective trapping techniques for many different species, as well as fur handling and pelt preparation methods.

The course is open to persons of all trapping skill levels, including those who would like to become trapping instructors. Recognized by the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, the course is accepted nationwide by states that require a trapper education course to receive a trapping license.

SMART FISH TACTICS

Understanding biology of the largemouth is key to catching them.

—BY BRENT FRAZEE
McClatchy Newspapers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. • For a creature with a brain about the size of a nickle, the largemouth bass certainly gets lavish praise for being a genius.

After a frustrating day on the water, many fishermen return to the dock and make the bass out to be the Ph.D of the fish world.

But here's some news for you: The largemouth isn't nearly as smart as it might seem.

"Some fishermen give the bass far too much credit," said Keith Jones, who is in charge of research at the Berkley Fish Research Station in Iowa. "The bass doesn't have the ability to reason. As soon as it hatches, it is genetically pre-programmed to follow certain behavior.

"It relies on its senses to guide its actions. Its vision, hearing, sense of smell and taste ... that all plays a part. It's a sensory machine, and the sooner we as fishermen learn how those senses guide the bass's behavior, the more fish we will catch."

"When it's time to feed, that sensory machine is fully operational.

The bass relies on its vision as its No. 1 asset. It has eyes that are specially adapted for underwater use, allowing for a wide range of vision. Jones said the bass has a maximum viewing distance of about 50 feet. But it has small binocular fields for close-up viewing to scrutinize its prey.

"We have seen many times in our research where a bass will rush across a tank at something, then stop to study it, then it will veer off," said Jones, who wrote the book "Knowing Bass: The Scientific Approach to Catching More Fish."

The bass's eyesight also determines how it sees colors. Light refraction plays an important part in how those colors are perceived. In clear water, for example, red is one of the first colors to disappear. It turns to shades of gray as it gets deeper. But in murky water, it remains one of the most visible colors.

Whatever the case, the bass' s eyesight isn't nearly as sharp as a human's.

"The sharpness of their vision is only 10 percent of ours," Jones said. "When they look at an object, they don't see nearly the detail we do."

That's why bass often rely on their unique hearing system to help. They have a lateral line that runs across the body to pick up vibrations.

"The bass uses its eyesight and lateral line in combination when it is feeding," Jones said. "The lateral line is very effective in feeling local disturbances one to two body lengths away."

The bass also uses its sense of smell and taste to determine whether something should be ingested. But its eyesight and hearing are the two primary senses that determine its menu.

OK, here's where it gets tricky.

No, the bass isn't a natural brainiac. But it does have the ability to learn " from both positive and negative experiences.

"If a bass follows a spinnerbait, gets a good look at it and decides to hit it and then gets stung, he's going to learn to leave it alone because of that negative experience," Jones said. "That can even carry over to group dynamics. The less aggressive bass will hang back and see what happens to the more aggressive ones when they feed.

"If bad things happen to the aggressive ones, even the bass that weren't hooked will learn."

But not all bass behave the same way. Much the same as humans, bass are individuals, each displaying distinct behavior.

"Some individuals are programmed to be more aggressive," Jones said. "Other bass are just as dumb as a box of rocks. Those are the ones that are caught most frequently.

"But others are pre-programmed to be more wary and certainly less aggressive."

A 20-year study, led by University of Illinois research David Philipp, provided the first direct experimental proof that vulnerability to angling is an inherited trait.

Beginning in the 1970s,

Philipp and his colleagues tagged and released largemouth bass in a pond in central Illinois. Some fish were caught up to 16 times a year. But when the pond was drained in the 1980s, they found that 200 of the 1,700 bass that were tagged had never been caught.

From that stock, the researchers bred groups of "high-vulnerability" and "low-vulnerability" bass. Then they stocked those fish in the same pond and repeated the experiment. Through three generations, the offspring stayed true to the parents' tendencies.

Another study in Illinois also documented a bass' s learning ability.

A total of 1,027 bass were tagged and released, then fishermen were free to have at them. It took an average of only 24 minutes to catch the first 50 bass. But by the end of the day, it took over two hours to catch one of the marked fish. By the second day, it took five to six hours, and by the third day, 10 to 15 hours. Researchers deduced that the bass were able to learn by the negative experiences of being hooked but being able to escape and seeing a fellow fish caught.

Sky Calendar through April 11: Planets:

One hour after sunset:
Jupiter: W, low
Venus: W, mid-sky
Mars: ESE, high
One hour before sunrise:
Saturn: WSW, low
Moon: New moon 8:38 a.m. today; close to Jupiter, 3/25; close to Venus 3/26; first quarter 1:42 p.m. 3/30; near Mars 4/2 and 4/3; full moon 1:18 p.m. 4/6; near Saturn 4/6.

Venus, while brilliant to the unaided eye, can be disappointing in a telescope, showing no surface features or even a break in its global cloud cover.

What it does show is a range of phases, from a thin crescent to nearly full.

Venus and Mercury, the inferior planets (i.e. closer to the sun than Earth), are the only ones capable of appearing as crescents in a telescope. Geometry demands that a planet can appear half illuminated only when its phase angle (between the planet-sun line and the planet-Earth line) is 90 degrees. Seen from Earth, an inferior planet appears half-illuminated when at its maximum angle from the sun, called greatest elongation.

On Tuesday, Venus, at greatest elongation, will appear as a "half Venus" in a telescope. After that, it will become an ever-thinning crescent until it's lost in the sun's glare in late May.

Since the phase angle of planets farther from the sun than Earth never approaches 90 degrees, they always appear full or nearly full. Mars, closest of the superior planets, never appears less than 84 percent full. More distant planets are never seen below 99 percent illuminated, and thus always appear full.

The phases of Venus figure prominently in the history of astronomy.

Galileo observed Venus to traverse from full to crescent in his small telescopes over several months, which can only happen if Venus is closer to Earth than the sun at some times, and further at others. Thus, Galileo proved Copernicus's heliocentric (sun-centered) model of the solar system, and ended the reign of the Ptolemy's geocentric model that had held sway for 15 centuries.

To Galileo's great frustration, Church authorities, clinging to the geocentric view, refused to even look through his telescope to see the evidence for themselves.

Bears Seen on Rocky Mountain Front, Yellowstone

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) • Wildlife officials say grizzly bears are coming out of hibernation and have been spotted along the Rocky Mountain Front and in Yellowstone National Park.

Just before the recent snow storm, a Fish, Wildlife and Parks game warden spotted a female grizzly with three cubs on the Blackleaf Wildlife Management Area near Choteau.

Another grizzly female with a couple of cubs was reported west of Dupuyer. FWP bear management specialist Mike Madel says it's unusual for family groups to be out in mid-March. Adult males usually emerge from winter dens first, and may already be out.

Yellowstone National Park officials say bear activity has been reported in several areas of the park.

Bears that come out of their winter sleep this early focus on finding and eating winter-killed elk and deer.

To get there from Centennial Waterfront Park, drive past the golf course and treatment plant until you come to a gravel parking area. The trail is good for a family outing, Fuller said, because of its wide gravel.

Riders here also get a little something in return if they bike the whole length: a view of waterfalls.

"It's only about five miles, not long at all," Fuller said. "It's nothing too technical, and it's nice to see the falls."

"It's a short ride, but fun," said SIMBA member Mike Goudy, who owns Spoke and Wheel Bike Shop in Twin Falls.

Information: SIMBA, 421-1982.

2. Rocky Road: Near Devil's Corral, Jerome

Devil's Corral north of the Perrine Bridge in Jerome is popular for motorized dirt bikes and ATVs, but Goudy said it's too dusty and sandy for mountain biking. But another ride nearby is a good trail for intermediate bikers.

From U.S. Highway 93 north of the Perrine Bridge, take Shoshone Falls Road west. Park at the top of the grade that heads into the canyon, Goudy said, and look for a wooden fence which marks the trailhead.

"You basically meander your way across a piece of single track that we had worn in," said SIMBA member Mike McAuley, who works at the bike shop with Goudy.

The first part of the trail is overgrown, Goudy said. "But that's the funnest part."

The trail eventually widens and takes riders to Devil's Corral. In all, it's about 12 miles to the end and back, Goudy said. "It's pretty flat all the way around, but it does seem to get kind of rocky."

3. Up for a Challenge? Indian Spring Road, Kimberly

Head to Indian Spring in the South Hills and you're likely to find mountain bikers, no matter what time of year. Drive south of Hansen on Rock Creek Road; turn west on 2900 North to reach Indian Spring Road.

Rock Temple of Burley said he rides Indian Spring even in winter — as long as it's not too muddy. Like Fuller, he doesn't want to cause ruts on the trail.

"Get up high around Snake Skin and Hot Shot and it's still muddy," Fuller said. "And Dry Gulch above Max, so you have to stay low this time of year."

Several technical trails wind through the hills, so riders have many options. It's not the best place to ride if you're a novice, though, because of switchbacks and inclines.

Indian Spring is a favorite for SIMBA members, especially on the club's weekly Thursday rides, Fuller said.

Information: SIMBA, 421-1982.

4. Choose Your Loop: Adam's Gulch, Ketchum

It's still too wet for mountain biking in the Wood River Valley, said Colin Stelma of Sturtevant's Mountain Outfitters in Ketchum. But come May, enthusiasts will be hitting the trails.

One of the more popular trail systems is Adam's Gulch north of Ketchum, he said. And one of that system's more popular trails is Adam's Loop, a seven-mile, single-track trail for intermediate bikers that can be accessed from the gulch's trailhead. From Ketchum, drive about 1.5 miles north on Idaho Highway 75; look for the National Forest access sign at the Adam's Gulch Road junction, and head west.

The mountain loop offers some of the area's most beautiful scenery, including woodland and wildflowers in late spring and early summer.

Adam's Loop is not your only choice, however. "There are a multitude of loops at the trailhead," Stelma said. "From there you can go off in six different directions. You can change things up. If you feel a trail wasn't hard enough for you, there's another one."

Information: Sturtevant's, 726-4512.

5. Only for Serious Riders: Cave Canyon, Oakley

Mini-Cassia has at least three good places to mountain bike, said Rock Temple, owner of Rock's Cycling in Burley. His favorite is Cave Canyon Trail near Idaho Department of Fish and Game's Cottonwood Wildlife Management Area in Oakley.

Temple has been mountain biking for about 25 years and enjoys Cave Canyon for its challenges.

"It has some incredibly awesome single-track trails through quaking aspen," he said, noting it's a tough trail with rugged terrain and steep inclines.

The area has several 10-mile loops, Temple said, plus this option: Ride the Cottonwood Trail to the South Hills.

He didn't know how many miles that is, but "it's a big, adventurous ride" that includes single track with some more expansive road sections and a rugged terrain of dirt, ruts, rocks, branches and steep hills.

If you're looking for something a bit easier for the family, he said, consider trails near Pomerelle Mountain Resort in Albion. "It's gorgeous there."

Friends Find Joy in Trout Fishing

BY PAUL A. SMITH

Milwaukee Journal Sentinel

SOUTHWESTERN WISCONSIN • Richie Santiago is no stranger to commitment.

There was the hitch in the U.S. Army, which included duty in the darkness and subzero cold at the North Pole.

There's his devotion to wife Tara. And his new role as father to Kinley, the couple's 20-month-old daughter.

And when it comes to fly fishing, he's accustomed to spending the winter months tying flies in anticipation of the March early trout season.

He also fully embraces sharing the angling experience with others. For opening day 2012, that included plans to fish with Taylor Helmuth, a teenager from Wisconsin Rapids.

So March 2 when Santiago had his truck packed and pointed west to the trout fishing nirvana of Wisconsin's Driftless Area, a snowstorm wasn't likely to turn him back.

"Lots of cars in ditches," said Santiago, 28. "I considered it might not have been the brightest idea to keep going. But I was ready for tight lines, to say the least."

The Wisconsin early trout season opened March 3 and runs through April 29. The season is catch-and-release only.

Santiago took it slow and with Banks, his 2-year-old Labrador retriever, riding shotgun, safely arrived in southwestern Wisconsin for his rendezvous with Helmuth.

A senior at Lincoln High School in Wisconsin Rapids, Helmuth, 18, loves the outdoors, including fishing, but had never fished trout in coulee country.

"I'd caught some brook trout near my home, but fishing in the Driftless was like being in a different country," said Helmuth.

Santiago developed a friendship with Taylor's brother Kelsey Helmuth, 24, while the two served in the military.

When Santiago transitioned out of the Army in 2011 and moved his family to Kenosha, he looked up Taylor Helmuth.

The two share a fishing obsession.

"Anything you can do to help people keep that connection to the outdoors, I'm for it," Santiago said.

Santiago grew up in a military family and moved often in his youth. Later, as a student at North Georgia College, he became an avid fly angler in the streams of the southern Appalachian Mountains.

When the Army took him to Alaska, he used his "R & R" to fish for trout and grayling.

Though he's fished across North America, Santiago said the Driftless Area of Wisconsin takes a "back seat to nowhere."

"Oh, man, it's an unbelievable gem," Santiago said. "It's such a treasure."

When he learned Helmuth had never fished the area, Santiago made plans for the two to hit the streams of Crawford, Richland and Vernon counties for the opener.

The storm moved through Wisconsin. The season dawned still, with fog hovering in the coulees, and a crisp layer of snow along the steams.

Helmuth began fishing with a spinner. Santiago used flies.

As the two anglers and Banks walked upstream, Santiago pointed out features in the water, including the best spots to cast.

In the first hole they fished, Helmuth tied into a brown trout. The fish was brought to hand and released.

It was the first of many.

"I was hoping to catch two or three trout the whole weekend," Helmuth said. "I caught more than that the first hour."

The pair bounced around, trying different streams in the area. The fog burned off and the sun shined on the ridges and valleys.

By afternoon the pair had caught and released more than 50 trout, Santiago said, mostly brown trout with a few brookies mixed in. The fish ranged from 7 to 15 inches.

Then, fishing a new hole, Helmuth had a hit from something entirely different.

The fish struck his spinner shortly after it hit the water, then proceeded to roll and jump on its way to the net.

Santiago knew it was special and couldn't contain his excitement.

The fish was about 10 inches long. Helmuth wondered what merited the extra attention.

"I told him he was one lucky angler," Santiago said. "He just caught a tiger trout."

Santiago snapped a couple photos of Taylor holding the fish before it was released.

A tiger trout is a rare breed, indeed. It occurs when a male brook trout fertilizes the eggs of a female brown trout.

The coloration of the crossbreeds — which are sterile — varies, but often feature a zigzag striping on the side.

Many Wisconsin trout anglers fish their entire lives without catching a tiger.

Santiago said he and Helmuth had a great weekend and made memories that will last for years. He was glad the storm didn't interrupt their plans.

"At some point, I stopped offering suggestions for where he should cast and told him he should buy a lottery ticket," Santiago said. "We're both looking forward to the next outing."

Big Fish

Ellie Saxton, 7, of Kimberly caught this 3-pound, 9-ounce rainbow trout at Clark Canyon Reservoir in July 2011, while fishing with her grandparents, Bob and Connie Lancaster. After a long day of fishing and not much luck, Ellie said a prayer to her great-grandpa, Howard Wilcox, who had recently passed away and asked him to please give her a bite, as this was his favorite fishing lake. Seconds later, the big fish hit, and Ellie credits him for the success.

Utah Woman, 101, Paraglides into Record Books

BY JOSH LOFTIN

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A 101-year-old Utah woman who ushered in her birthday with a tandem paraglide ride last year soared into the record books Tuesday.

Great-great grandmother Mary Hardison, of Ogden, has been officially recognized as the "Oldest Female to Paraglide Tandem" by Guinness World Records. She has supplanted a 100-year-old woman from Cyprus who took her flight in 2007.

Hardison flew with an instructor on Sept. 1, 2011, while four generations of her family watched and cheered. The flight went smoothly and even included a few tricks that Hardison encouraged.

Hardison said she wanted to paraglide because her 75-year-old son began doing it as a hobby.

"I didn't want him to get too far ahead of me, so I decided that I'd go too," she said Tuesday.

Fear never entered the equation for Hardison, who previously rode all of the adult rides at Disneyland to celebrate her 90th birthday.

Hardison said she was shocked to learn her flight had become a world record.

"To me, I was just going on a little ride," she said. "I had no idea I'd break a record."

Hardison said her active lifestyle has already inspired others her age to pursue similar adventures.

"Some people have said, 'Well, if you can do that at your age then there's no need for me to just sit around,'" she said. "My desire is for the elderly to keep on going. Do things as long as you are physically able. Be positive. Friends don't like a grumpy person."

When Hardison decided to take the birthday leap, family members were concerned for her safety. After all, it was her first flight and she was the oldest customer the paragliding company had ever taken into the air.

"My first reaction was she was nuts," said daughter-in-law Bonnie Hardison. "But everyone is just so excited and thinks this record is great."

As for any future flights, Mary Hardison, who spends her days quilting for charities, is just playing it by ear.

"If the notion strikes, I'll go again," she said.

Establishment Starts to Fall in Line Behind Mitt Romney

BY KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Republican establishment started to coalesce around Mitt Romney in earnest on Wednesday, with Jeb Bush and other leading Republicans pressuring Rick Santorum to leave the race after a thumping in the Illinois primary. But, on what should have been a triumphant day, Romney found himself having to defend his conservative credentials anew after one of his own top advisers, Eric Fehrnstrom, remarked that “everything changes” for the fall campaign. “It’s almost like an Etch A Sketch,” he said. “You can kind of shake it up and we start all over again.”

The remark fueled criticism that Romney molds his principles to fit with political goals. Democrats pounced, and by day’s end his GOP opponents were waving the draw, shake and erase toys at campaign events in Louisiana.

“The issues I’m running on will be exactly the same,” the former Massachusetts governor said in Arbutus, Md., as Republicans and Democrats alike mocked him. “I’m running as a conservative Republican. I was a conservative Republican nominee — hopefully, nominee at that point. The policies and the positions are the same.”

It all nearly overshadowed the endorsement from Bush, the son of one president and the brother of another. He had stayed out of the race for months, and some party elders publicly had urged him to become a candidate as Romney struggled to close the deal with the conservative base of the party.

Bush refused, and on Wednesday he made his preference in the race known after Romney’s double-digit Illinois victory.

“Now is the time for Republicans to unite behind Gov. Romney and take our message of fiscal conservatism and job creation to all voters this fall,” Bush said in a written statement. He congratulated the other Republican candidates “for a hard-fought, thoughtful debate and primary season.”

His backing comes amid fresh signs that big GOP donors and other party figures will follow Bush’s lead after sitting on the sidelines for much of the primary season. Romney is on pace to win the nomination in June. He has 563 delegates in the overall count maintained by AP, out of 1,144 needed to win the party nod.

Researchers Closer to a Test to Predict Heart Attacks.

Doctors are one step closer to a simple test that could predict whether a patient is about to have a heart attack — by using a blood sample to detect cells that have sloughed off of damaged blood vessel walls. The finding, published Wednesday in the journal Science Translational Medicine, could potentially address “the greatest unmet need” facing cardiologists, said lead author Dr. Eric Topol, a cardiologist at the Scripps Translational Science Institute in San Diego.

Barber: Dye-deprived Blago Soon to be Gray. It may be hard to imagine Rod Blagojevich looking anything but boyish in his trademark dark, helmet hair. Marine Who Criticized Obama Faces Charge

BY JULIE WATSON
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO • The Marine Corps on Wednesday notified a sergeant who has been openly critical of President Barack Obama that he is violating Pentagon policy barring troops from political activities and that he faces dismissal.

Sgt. Stein

Camp Pendleton Marine Sgt. Gary Stein started a Facebook page called Armed Forces Tea Party to encourage fellow service members to exercise their free-speech rights. He declared a few weeks ago that he would not follow the unlawful orders of the commander in chief. Stein also criticized Defense Secretary Leon Panetta for his comments on Syria. Stein, a nine-year member of the Corps, said he did nothing wrong and planned to fight the charges. He had applied to extend his service, which was set to expire in a few months. “I’m completely shocked that this is happening,” he said. “I’ve done nothing wrong. I’ve only stated what our oath states that I will defend the constitution and that I will not follow unlawful orders.”

The Marine Corps said in a statement Wednesday that Stein’s commanding officer ordered a preliminary inquiry on March 8 after receiving allegations that Stein posted political statements about Obama on Facebook in violation of the Pentagon’s directives.

Tension Mounts at French Standoff after Three Blasts

A 23-year-old Frenchman of Algerian descent is accused of gunning down three French soldiers and four people at a Jewish school.

BY CLARE BYRNE
McClatchy-Tribune News Service

TOULOUSE, France • Three explosions rocked a building where Mohamed Merah, the al-Qaida-linked suspect in a string of killings in France, has been holed up for nearly 24 hours in a standoff with French police.

But an uneasy quiet returned early Thursday as balaclava-wearing police troops, members of the elite special raid team, moved among the heavy police presence in the darkened Toulouse neighborhood where Merah had sought cover. The explosions at 11:30 pm Wednesday were a police intimidation maneuver, France’s Interior Ministry said, according to the BFM news channel.

The explosions had sparked speculation that police were about to storm the building.

The 23-year-old Frenchman of Algerian descent is accused of gunning down three French soldiers and four people at a Jewish school, including three children, in attacks that have rocked the country since March 11.

Merah had told negotiators that he would turn himself in by Wednesday afternoon but kept postponing that promise.

“He has no desire to be a martyr,” federal prosecutor Francois Molins told reporters earlier Wednesday. “He prefers to remain alive.”

That sentiment was underlined by Interior Minister Claude Gueant, who told French television TF1 that Merah told police negotiators that he had refused orders by al-Qaida to carry out a suicide attack in France but agreed to carry out targeted killings.

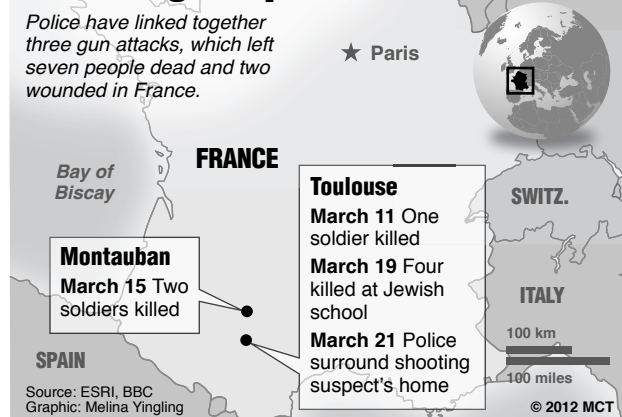

Gueant said Merah received the al-Qaida orders during travels to Pakistan or Afghanistan.

Gueant also revealed more details about French intelligence’s earlier suspicions about Merah. He had been interrogated in November about his travels to Pakistan and Afghanistan but had explained that the trips were for pleasure, not criminal activity.

“He explained, with the Shooting suspect

Police have linked together three gun attacks, which left seven people dead and two wounded in France.

use of photographs as evidence, that it was a tourist trip,” Gueant said.

Two hours before the explosions, which flared bright orange, police doused the streetlights around the building in the leafy Toulouse suburb of Cote Pavée. Reporters were kept at a two-block distance from the scene.

Police cut off electricity and gas to the apartment, and a bomb disposal truck, ambulances and fire trucks were waiting at the ready near the scene of the standoff.

Molins said Merah had confessed to the killings during negotiations and said he was motivated by a wish to “avenge Palestinian children” and protest France’s overseas military operations.

“He has boasted about bringing France to its knees,” Molins said. “He expresses no regret, other than that he did not have time for more victims.”

Funerals for the victims were held Wednesday in Jerusalem and at a French military base in Montauban, where President Nicolas Sarkozy spoke of a “terrorist execution.”

Police focused on Merah when they identified his mother’s computer IP address as one that was used to answer an online ad for a motorcycle that was posted by the first soldier victim. Special police forces then moved on the five-story apartment building where he was staying.

Was Fla. Shooter a Vigilante or Good Neighbor?

BY MIKE SCHNEIDER
Associated Press

SANFORD, Fla. • George Zimmerman once took criminal justice classes at the community college and was practically a one-man neighborhood watch in his gated part of town, calling police close to 50 times over the past eight years to report such things as slow-driving vehicles, strangers loitering in the neighborhood and open garages.

Now, suddenly, people are wondering if the 28-year-old Zimmerman is an earnest if somewhat zealous young man who was just looking out for his neighborhood, or a wannabe cop who tried to take justice into his own hands.

He has been at the center of a growing furor over vigilantism, self-defense and racial profiling since he shot and killed an unarmed black teenager who was walking through his neighborhood Feb. 26 carrying only a bag of Skittles and an iced tea.

Zimmerman, a light-skinned Hispanic, has claimed self-defense in the slaying of 17-year-old Trayvon Martin and has not been charged, but many black leaders are demanding his arrest, and state and federal authorities are investigating. Florida’s Stand Your Ground law on self-defense gives people wide latitude to use deadly force.

Attorneys for Martin’s parents say Zimmerman is a “loose cannon.”

“He’s a wannabe police officer,” lawyer Benjamin Crump said. “Why did he have a gun?”

But some neighbors welcomed his vigilance, at least before the shooting.

Samantha Leigh Hamilton, an auto-dealership employee who has lived on Zimmerman’s street for about a year, said that she once left her garage door up and Zimmerman noticed it while out walking his dog. He notified another neighbor, who let Hamilton know.

“The only impression I have of George Zimmerman is a good one,” Hamilton said Wednesday.

Hamilton said another neighbor, a black woman, would regularly inform Zimmerman when she was out of town so that he could keep an eye on her place. Hamilton said that when she moved into the middle-class, racially mixed community of about 250 identical townhouses, the black neighbor told her, “Hey, if you need anything, you picked a really good area, since George is part of our neighborhood watch.”

Zimmerman, who was captain of the neighborhood watch and licensed to carry a gun, made 46 calls to police since 2004, according to department records.

In one police call report, the dispatcher noted that Zimmerman was calling about a vehicle “driving real slow, looking at all the other vehicles in the complex and blasting music.” In another call from last August, Zimmerman reported on two black male teens in the neighborhood. He considered them suspicious.

ARMY EYES MENTAL HEALTH PROGRAMS

WASHINGTON • The Army inspector general is conducting a system-wide review of mental health facilities to determine whether psychiatrists overturned diagnoses of post-traumatic stress disorder to save money, a move that comes as the case of a U.S. soldier suspected of killing 16 Afghan civilians has brought fresh attention to the strains of war. Army Secretary John McHugh told Congress on Wednesday that the service is trying to determine whether the change in diagnosis was isolated or a common practice. Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., who pressed McHugh at a committee hearing, said the forensic psychiatry unit at Madigan Army Medical Center on Joint Base Lewis-McChord is being investigated for reversing diagnoses based on the expense of providing care to military members. —Associated Press

OBITUARIES

Gladys Marie Hartruff

May 16, 1921-March 15, 2012

BRUNEAU • Gladys was born the daughter of Clyde and Grace Wilson on May 16, 1921, in Clay Center, Neb., and passed away peacefully at her daughter's home Thursday, March 15, 2012.

Gladys graduated from Clay Center High School in 1938 (one year early and the valedictorian!). She moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1941, where she was employed at CC Anderson's. She met Maurice Dean Hartruff in 1944, and they were married in San Diego, Calif., on Oct. 23 of that year.

Throughout her life, Gladys was an accomplished seamstress, making beautiful clothes and home decor for herself and family and decorating her always warm and welcoming home. Her seamstress skills allowed her to work at home making custom draperies for many businesses in Twin Falls. She also enjoyed riding horses with the Thursday Sage Riders for many years. Gladys retired from the drapery business in 1983 and began her love of playing golf and becoming an active member of the Twin Falls Ladies Municipal Golf Association. She was particularly proud of a hole-in-one she shot on No. 6 at the Jerome Golf Course. She was still golfing regularly at the time of her 90th birthday last May.

She and Maury enjoyed many years of retirement playing golf, bridge, tennis and traveling between their homes in Twin Falls and Apache Junction, Ariz. She thoroughly enjoyed and was very proud of her children and grandchildren.

She is survived by her husband of 67 years; two sons, Mike (Jo) Hartruff of Paul, Idaho, and Gary Hartruff of Twin Falls, Idaho; daughter, Vickie (Mike) Chandler of Bruneau, Idaho; son-in-law, Dave Severn of Spokane, Wash., and a sister, Kay (Herb) Webb of Mississippi. She is also survived by 11 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by a grandson, Brian in 1988; and her daughter, Jan Severn who passed away in September 2011.

An open house to celebrate Gladys' life will be held at a later date in Twin Falls.

Judy Bott Mackley

May 11, 1945-March 20, 2012

RUPERT • Judy Bott Mackley, 66, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, and formerly of Rupert, passed away Tuesday, March 20, 2012, at the Gardens of Rigby in Rigby, Idaho.

Judy was born May 11, 1945, in Rupert, Idaho, to Herman and Ila Bott. She grew up in Rupert and later moved to Idaho Falls. She graduated with honors from Minidoka High School. For 12 years, she worked as the executive director of the American Red Cross and worked in public relations at the Good Samaritan Nursing Home. She was a member of the Baptist Church. Judy enjoyed writing poetry, drama, public speaking, singing and going to garage sales. She loved to ride horses and, if a real one was not around, a stick horse would have to do. She especially loved working alongside her dad, no matter what he was doing.

Judy is survived by her children, Brent (Lot) Hamilton, Misty (Bruce) Hallbert, Ericka (Brett) Sievers and Rob (Jennica) Mackley; grandchildren, Andrew (Jessica) Hallbert, Tyson Hallbert, Dacia Hallbert, Brody Sievers, Makinzie Hamilton, Hannah Hallbert, Mo Hallbert, Marley Sievers, Spencer Mackley, Carter Mackley and Jackson

Mackley; great grandchild, Ally Hallbert; brothers, Herman (Geri) Bott Jr.; and sisters, Barbara (Joe) Searle and Laurel (Wayne) Olmstead. She was preceded in death by her parents, Herman and Ila Bott; and sisters, Ilene Rich and Lois Glaesemann.

The funeral will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, March 24, at Hansen Mortuary, 710 Sixth St. in Rupert, with Pastor Amy Gantt-Lamb officiating. Burial will follow at the Rupert Cemetery. Viewing for family and friends will be one hour prior to the service at the mortuary.

The family would like to thank Idaho Home Health and Hospice and the Gardens of Rigby for the amazing love and care provided to Judy and her family in their time of need.

Dorothy E. McKinnon

Feb. 5, 1932-March 16, 2012

HAGERMAN • Dorothy E. McKinnon, age 80, of Hagerman, passed away Friday, March 16, 2012, at her residence.

Dorothy was born Feb. 5, 1932, in St. Leon, Idaho, to David Wesley and Ethel Mary Bates. She attended school in Susanville, Calif. On April 1, 1948, she married Ernest Leo McKinnon of Susanville. They celebrated 60 years of marriage before his passing in 2008. She went to work for Pacific Bell in Sacramento, Calif., on April 8, 1951, and retired after 33½ years on July 31, 1984.

Survivors include three children, Helen (Nick) Bavaro of Las Vegas, Nev., Mike (Carma) McKinnon of Hagerman, Idaho, and Kathy (Anton) Bonieja of Merced, Calif.; one brother; three sisters; 18 grandchildren; and 29 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be conducted Friday, March 23, at the Mountain Valley Ward LDS Church in Standish, Calif. Interment will be in the Diamond Crest Cemetery in Johnstonville, Calif.

Arrangements are under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Donald Keith Engman

TWIN FALLS • Donald Keith Engman, 76, of Twin Falls and formerly of Shoshone, Idaho, left this life to be reunited with his "Weesie" on Monday, March 19, 2012.

Don was born May 16, 1935, to Albert Theon and Dolly Fern Betty Engman. Don joined the United States Air Force on April 6, 1955, for a four-year term. He was honorably discharged on May 30, 1961. Don married his lifelong love, Alice Louise Heath Engman, in Shoshone at the family farm on Sept. 5, 1959. Don and Louise made their home in Shoshone, Idaho, for 38 years. During this time, Don worked for the Lincoln County Highway District. He retired from the highway district in 1993; they then sold their home and moved to Twin Falls, Idaho.

Don loved gardening, hunting, fishing, camping, reading, listening to old western music and watching old western movies. Don and Louise had no children of their own but opened their hearts and home to nieces and nephews that needed a home and a mom and dad. They loved them as much as any parents would.

Don was preceded in death by his wife, Louise; his parents; one brother; and a nephew. Don is survived by his sisters-in-law and numerous nieces and nephews.

A full military honor graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, March 23, at the Shoshone Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of Dustin Godfrey and the staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park"

SISTERS, Ore. (AP) • Doc Hatfield, a founder of a family ranchers beef cooperative headquartered in Oregon that became a champion of sustainable range management, has died of pancreatic cancer at 74.

Hatfield and his wife, Connie, founded Oregon Country Beef in 1986 with 14 ranch families who were out to get higher prices for beef that wasn't raised on growth hormones or antibiotics. The co-op, now called Country Natural Beef, has grown to more than 100 ranch families in 13 states, The Capital Press reported.

Hatfield died Tuesday in Sisters, said the co-op's marketing director, Stacy Davies.

He was an advocate of such practices as high-intensity, short-duration grazing that allows pastures to recover, and restoring springs by thinning out juniper trees that were overgrown and sucking up groundwater.

Hatfield began as a veterinarian in Montana, Davies said. He brought several cattle breeds to the United States in the 1960s and was a pioneer in breeding livestock, work that played into the cooperative's beginnings.

Consumers wanted a leaner, healthier product, Davies said, but the industry needed animals that would gain weight in feedlots and work well on ranges.

"He really fostered a natural business where the rancher stayed in control of the meat all the way through the system," said Country Natural Beef executive director Dan Probert. "Doc and Connie's vision was that the ranchers would own the company. Because they were such selfless people, they were able to make that model work."

Hatfield was a founding member of what became the Governor's Watershed Enhancement Board. Davies said it was a revolutionary idea to bring together agency representatives, ranchers, industry members and environmental groups, focusing them on a healthy, working landscape.

"One of Doc's favorite sayings is, 'If it's already been done, it's not worth doing again,'" Davies said. "He was always looking for a way that would recognize the diversity of a group of people and make diversity a strength, using the collective wisdom of a group."

Hatfield is survived by his wife and two children.

Montana Mining Town's Last Madam Dies at 94

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) • Ruby Garrett

ran the last brothel standing in this mining town's once-lively red-light district with a reputation for kindness toward her girls. But the grandmotherly figure was also a husband-shooting, tax-evading madam who once said that prostitution should be considered a commodity.

The first time Garrett went to prison, it was for shooting her husband five times in the middle of a card game in 1959. She killed him, she said, because he had abused her repeatedly.

She went to prison again in 1982 for failing to report her earnings. While she was investigated, the sheriff padlocked the doors of the Dumas Hotel in late 1981, marking the end of the brothel that had catered to the miners in the Montana boomtown since 1890.

Butte's last madam died Saturday at Crest Nursing Home at the age of 94, the Duggan-Dolan Mortuary confirmed Tuesday. The cause of her death was not immediately known.

Garrett, also known as Lee Arrigoni, told the Montana Standard in 1991 that prostitution should be considered a commodity instead of being morally wrong.

"If you don't think it's morally wrong, then it's kind of fun," she told the Butte newspaper.

Pioneering L.A. Times Writer Dorothy Townsend Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Dorothy Townsend, the first female staff writer for the Los Angeles Times' city section and the lone woman on a team of dozens of reporters, photographers and editors that won a Pulitzer Prize for coverage of the Watts riot, has died, the newspaper said Tuesday.

Townsend died of cancer March 5 at her home in the Sherman Oaks neighborhood of Los Angeles, her cousin Louise Hagan told the Times. She was 88.

Townsend worked for the newspaper from 1954 to 1986. After spending 10 years writing features for the so-called women's pages, she insisted on being reassigned to local news, moving to a city room where women were previously thought too fragile for the tough stories and working conditions.

"I don't think any of us at that time realized what she had accomplished merely by making it to the newsroom," said Noel Greenwood, a former Times senior editor. "I always remembered Dorothy as a heroine."

Wisconsin Town Seeks Relief from Explosions

CLINTONVILLE, Wis. (AP) • Sleepless families in a small Wisconsin town longed for quiet Wednesday after mysterious booming noises over the past few nights roused them from bed and sent residents into the street — sometimes still in pajamas.

The strange disturbance sounds like distant thunder, fireworks or someone slamming a heavy door. At first, many people were amused or merely curious. But after three restless nights, aggravation is mounting. And some folks are considering leaving town until investigators determine the source of the racket.

“My husband thought it was cool, but I don’t think so. This is not a joke,” said Jolene Van Beek, who awoke early Sunday to a loud boom that shook her house. “I don’t know what it is, but I just want it to stop.”

The booming in Clintonville continued Monday and Tuesday nights and into Wednesday morning, eventually prompting Van Beek to take her three sons to her father’s home, 10 minutes away, so they could get some uninterrupted sleep.

Move-in Before Marriage No Longer Predicts Divorce

BY MIKE STOBBE
Associated Press

ATLANTA • Nearly half of first marriages break up within 20 years, a new government study finds. With those odds, you might wonder: Would we be better off living together first?

The new research, part of a marriage survey of 22,000 men and women, suggests times have changed from the days when living together signaled poor chances for a successful marriage later.

“It’s not playing as big a role in predicting divorce as it used to,” said Casey Copen, lead author of the study.

Living together before marriage has been a long-growing trend. In the late 1960s, only about 10 percent of U.S. couples moved in together first, and they ended up with higher divorce rates.

Today, about 60 percent of couples live together before they first marry.

“It’s becoming so common, it’s not surprising it no longer negatively affects marital stability,” said Wendy Manning, co-director of the National Center for Family & Marriage Research at Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Researchers with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention looked for trends in first marriages. They interviewed men and women ages 15 to 44 during the years 2006 to 2010. About 40 percent were married.

The study found those who were engaged and living together before the wedding were about as likely to have marriages that lasted 15 years as couples who hadn’t lived together.

But what about the couples who were living together but weren’t engaged? The new study found marriage was less likely to survive to the 10- and 15-year mark among couples who weren’t engaged when they lived together — findings similar to earlier research.

For example, for women, there was about a 60 percent likelihood a marriage would survive 15 years if the couple either hadn’t lived together before the wedding or were engaged while they were sharing the same living space.

But if no firm marriage commitment was made while she and her boyfriend were living together, the likelihood the marriage would last 15 years fell to 53 percent. The numbers were similar for men.

Potential explanations include more lax attitudes about commitment, lower education levels or family histories that made these couples more pessimistic about marriage, Copen said.

The experience of living together before marriage is different for different people, said Richard Settersten Jr., an Oregon State University professor of human development and family science.

Some young people put off marriage because they’re pursuing a college education and starting a career. For them, “cohabitation is a trial marriage, usually without kids, that often ends in marriage,” Settersten said.

Others — in many cases, people not on a college track — move from one living-together relationship to another, some of them producing children, he said.

Shooting

A police spokesman in Sanford, a city of 53,000 people outside Orlando that is 57 percent white and 30 percent black, did not return calls for comment about Zimmerman’s repeated reports.

Sanford city commissioners on Wednesday voted 3-2 to express “no confidence” in Police Chief Bill Lee Jr. over the handling of the fatal shooting. The commission can’t fire Lee, however, because the police chief reports to the city manager.

Hamilton said there had been several break-ins in the past year, including one three doors away in which burglars took a TV and laptops.

“When I hear about him calling the police constantly, it kind of makes sense to me because we had so many break-ins recently,” she said.

The homeowners association’s February newsletter said that Sanford police had beefed up patrols in the neighborhood and that officers on bicycles were making random checks of front yards and backyards. It was not clear how big the neighborhood watch was, but Zimmerman was the dominant force.

“If you’ve been the victim of a crime within the community, after calling the police, please contact our captain, George Zimmerman ... so we can be aware and help address the issue with other residents,” the newsletter said. It added that the neighborhood watch group was looking for more participants at its monthly meetings.

USAonWatch, the national neighborhood watch organization, said Zimmerman’s watch had never registered with the group. A vice president of the homeowners association didn’t return a call Wednesday.

According to police, Zimmerman spotted Martin walking through the community on the teen’s way back from a convenience store. The teenager was visiting his father’s fiancée, who lived in the gated community. Zimmerman told a police dispatcher that Martin had his hand at his waistband and had something in his hand.

“This guy looks like he is up to no good — he is on drugs or something,” Zimmerman said.

The dispatcher advised Zimmerman not to follow Martin. Moments later, neighbors bombarded 911 with reports of a struggle between the men and the sound of a gunshot. When police officers arrived, Martin was lifeless, face down on the ground, while Zimmerman was bleeding from his head and his back was covered in grass, as if he had been on the ground, the police report said.

Sanford police issued a statement Wednesday defending their decision not to arrest Zimmerman. They said that when officers arrived, he claimed self-defense, “which at the time was supported by physical evidence and testimony.”

The police chief said Zimmerman claimed he was attacked by Martin after he had given up his chase and was returning to his truck.

In a letter to the Orlando Sentinel, Zimmerman’s father said his son wasn’t a racist. Zimmerman’s mother is Hispanic. “He would be the last to discriminate for any reason whatsoever,” Robert Zimmerman wrote.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. • At this point of the tournament, it's do or die for the downtrodden College of Southern Idaho men's basketball team.

Their hearts stomped on following a stunning loss to Eastern Oklahoma in the first round of the NJCAA National Tournament, the Golden Eagles aim to rebound in the consolation side of the bracket today at 9 a.m., MDT against Three Rivers (Mo.).

"As long as there's time on the clock, as long as there's a game in front of us, we're going to try and win it," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar.

Three Rivers lost 61-58 to Spartanburg Methodist (N.C.) Tuesday night, missing a 3-point try at the buzzer. The Raiders trailed 35-23 at halftime, but opened the second half on a 14-2 run to tie the game at 37.

Three Rivers grabbed the lead, pushing it to 49-41 with seven minutes left, before stumbling down the stretch.

The Golden Eagles (30-4) will have one primary focus defensively — stopping forward Tarius Johnson. The 6-5 sophomore scored 34 points Tuesday night and

New Orleans Saints head coach Sean Payton looks up in the fourth quarter of an NFL game in December 2011 against the Atlanta Falcons in New Orleans. The NFL has suspended Payton for the 2012 season, and former Saints defensive coordinator Gregg Williams is banned from the league indefinitely because of the team's bounty program that targeted opposing players. Also Wednesday, Goodell suspended Saints general manager Mickey Loomis for the first eight regular-season games of 2012, and assistant coach Joe Vitt has to sit out the first six games.

NFL Throws Book at Saints over 'Bountygate'

BY HOWARD FENDRICH

Meting out unprecedented punishment for a crush-for-cash bounty system that targeted key opposing players, the NFL suspended New Orleans Saints head coach Sean Payton without pay for next season and indefinitely banned the team's former defensive coordinator, Gregg Williams.

Payton is the first head coach suspended by the league for any reason, accused of trying to cover up a system of extra cash payouts that NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell on Wednesday called "particularly unusual and egregious" and "totally unacceptable."

Sending a message by taking a harsh stand, Goodell also banned Saints general manager Mickey Loomis for the first eight regular-season games next season — believed to be the first time a GM was suspended by the NFL — and assistant coach Joe Vitt for the first six games.

In addition, Goodell fined the Saints $500,000 and took away their second-round draft picks this year and next.

"We are all accountable and responsible for player health and safety and the integrity of the game. We will not tolerate conduct or a culture that undermines those priorities," said Goodell, whose league faces more than 20 concussion-related lawsuits brought by hundreds of former players. "No one is above the game or the rules that govern it."

Payton, whose salary this season was to be at least $6 million, ignored instructions from the NFL and Saints ownership to make sure bounties weren't being paid. The league also chastised him for choosing to "falsely deny that the program existed," and for trying to "encourage the false denials by instructing assistants to 'make sure our ducks are in a row.'"

All in all, Goodell's ruling is a real blow to the Saints, a franchise that Payton and quarterback Drew Brees revived and led to the 2010 Super Bowl title after decades of such futility that fans wore paper bags over their heads at home games.

Brees reacted quickly to the news on Twitter, writing: "I am speechless. Sean Payton is a great man, coach, and mentor. ... I need to hear an explanation"

CSI Volleyball Assistant Takes Texas Job

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Blinn College has named College of Southern Idaho assistant volleyball coach Erin Mellinger as the next head coach of the Buccaneers' program, the Texas college announced Wednesday in a release.

Mellinger was approved as head coach by the school's board of trustees during a meeting Tuesday night.

"Erin's history of success at the College of Southern Idaho and her head coaching accolades at Independence Community College make her the perfect fit for Blinn's volleyball program and its tradition of excellence," Blinn Athletic Director Richard Speas said in the release.

Assisting Heidi Cartisser for the last five seasons, Mellinger helped CSI to a 148-48 record, including the 2009 NJCAA Division I championship and two Region 18 titles. Blinn will be her third head coaching job, following prior stints at Lewis-Clark State College and Independence (Kan.) Community College.

Mellinger will replace David Rehr, who led Blinn to the NJCAA Division I title in 2008 and 2011 before leaving to take the helm at NCAA Division I Arkansas State University.

"I'm tremendously excited to continue Blinn College's tradition of excellence, both on the court and in the classroom," Mellinger said the Blinn statement. "I'm looking forward to hitting the ground running and preparing for an exciting 2012 season."

CSI officials declined comment Wednesday evening, as Mellinger's resignation from the Twin Falls college was not yet official.

VANDALS ENTER SPRING PRACTICE WITH SEVERAL QUESTIONS

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Entering spring football practice with a work-in-progress approach is nothing new at Idaho. For coach Robb Akey, it's part of developing a long-suffering program.

But unlike the past few years, when Idaho had relative stability at quarterback and among its coaches, this spring feels different.

The first of 15 practice sessions for the Vandals is today at 4 p.m. MDT in the Kibbie Dome. After a two-win season last year and major changes in the off-season, Idaho has unanswered questions at almost every position on offense — and yet-to-be-filled spots on its offensive staff.

Here are the key storylines to follow for Idaho throughout spring, which culminates with the Silver and Gold game on April 20. Who will be quarterback? For the first time in Akey's six years, Idaho doesn't have a clear-cut starting quarterback going into spring. Dominique Blackman and redshirt junior Taylor Davis will compete for the job, while Logan Bushnell will be the third quarterback.

Davis started three games last year, but completed only 45.2 percent of his passes. Blackman, a 6-foot-5, 253-pound lefthander, sat out 2011 after transferring from Old Dominion. He has two seasons of eligibility remaining.

Neither has an advantage at this point, and Akey said the competition might extend into fall camp if there's not a discernable favorite by the end of spring.

"I think we've got two very talented young men there, both who want this job in a bad, bad way," he said.

How will Akey's staff shape up? Akey announced the hiring of Gordy Shaw as run

Senate approves concussion bill for athletes

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • The Idaho Senate has signed off on legislation intended to protect Idaho youth athletes from devastating concussions.

Senate lawmakers voted unanimously Wednesday to approve the bill, which requires Idaho schools to develop rules for when students must be pulled from sporting events following a possible concussion.

The plan, which already passed the House, now heads to Gov. C.L. "Butch"

Otter for final consideration.

Declo Sen. Denton Darlington sponsored the measure, saying the growth of athletes and the damage concussions cause make the risk too large to ignore. Schools would have leeway to design their own plans dictating when athletes should be pulled from games after a head injury, and when they can return.

Proponents also say coaches and schools that follow federal base guidelines could be shielded from liability.

averaged 20.1 on the season, good for fourth in the country.

“He’s a really good, undersized four-man, who plays a lot like Ralph (Guthrie),” Gosar said at the team’s practice Wednesday morning. “He’ll shoot it 20-25 times a game, and really is their only go-to scorer. If we can slow him down, we have a good shot.”

Three Rivers (21-13) started the season 19-2, but suffered a 5-9 swoon before winning the Region 16 Tournament and District 4 play-off.

The Raiders boast a load of height, with only three players shorter than 6-5, which could be a matchup problem for CSI’s small guards Fabyon Harris and Sebastien Michineau.

“Offensively, they do a lot of motion and movement. We have to get back to fundamental defense and jump to the ball and watch people cutting behind us,” Gosar said. “I think they’re a team that we’re more accustomed to seeing.”

Harris nursed a sore toe Wednesday at practice, but is expected to play. He and the rest of his teammates expressed the need for the team to move on bounce back from Tuesday’s loss.

“Everybody was sad last night and we worked so hard, so to get knocked out the first round was tough,” Harris said. “Coach put it in our heads that it’s on the starters to make sure we don’t lose this game. We can’t lose two games in a row. We’ll be ready to go.”

The last time the Golden Eagles were two and out at Hutch was in 2004, when they lost to Chipola (Fla.) College and Eastern Wyoming.

“We’ve got to respond. That’s what we do. These kids will step up. Nobody feels worse than these guys. They’ll respond,” Gosar said. “It will test our character. You definitely want to get this bad taste out of your mouth. I don’t think we came all this way to go two and out.”

game coordinator/offensive line coach on Monday, but he still has yet to hire a running backs or receivers coach. One of the vacant spots on his staff will be filled soon, Akey said, while the other is “probably not going to be for quite awhile.”

Jason Gesser was promoted to offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach and Al Pupunu remains as tight ends coach. But those are the only holdovers among offensive assistants.

Down two coaches in spring, Akey will rely on Gesser, Shaw and Pupunu to oversee a mishmash of position groups.

Who will replace three starters on the O-line? The Vandals lost starting guard Sam Tupua and tackles Matt Cleveland and Tyrone Novikoff to graduation. And three possible fill-ins — Spencer Beale, Kyle Salm and Ben Westrum — will either be limited or miss spring with injuries.

Idaho will lean on center Mike Marboe and guard A.J. Jones, as well as veterans Guy Reynolds and Jordan Johnson. Brady Lisoski and newcomer Nick Von Rotz are candidates for starting tackle jobs, while Dallas Sandberg and Cody Elenz have impressed Akey with the gains they’ve made in the weight room.

“We’re going to have a lot of opportunity and a lot of work for this crew this spring,” Akey said. “And obviously that’s going to be very, very important. Just as important as who the starting quarterback is going to be.”

What about the skill positions? The Vandals lacked explosiveness on offense last year, and they lost two of their key playmakers — Kama Bailey and Princeton McCarty. Akey hopes Ryan Bass, finally healthy after transferring from Arizona State, will emerge at running back to lead a group that includes newcomer James Baker and redshirt freshmen Todd Handley and Justin Parkins.

At receiver, Idaho will be without top wideout Justin Veltung (turf toe) in spring and slot receiver Marcel Posey (broken wrist) will be limited. Senior-to-be Mike Scott is the top healthy returner.

Can the defense continue its improvement? By far the most stable unit is Idaho’s defense, which returns all but a few key starters and welcomes back linebacker Robert Siaviv and safety Thaad Thompson after yearlong knee injuries.

The strength of the defense should at linebacker and along the line, where the Vandals have depth and experience. Akey also likes Idaho’s group of safeties.

McGee Dunks Denver to Victory

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER • JaVale McGee rebounded a missed free throw following a basket with five seconds remaining and dunked to give the Nuggets a 116-115 win over the Detroit Pistons on Wednesday night.

Not a bad Denver debut for McGee, who completed a four-point possession salvaged Denver’s dignity after the Nuggets blew a 25-point lead.

Detroit’s Ben Gordon scored 45 points and made all nine of his 3-pointers.

McGee, in his first game with Denver following his acquisition a week ago as part of the trade that sent Nene to Washington, finished with 15 points. Ty Lawson led the Nuggets with 25 points and Arron Afflalo had 23.

Brandon Knight had 16 points for Detroit. Greg Monroe added 13 points and Jonas Jerebko had 12.

THUNDER 114, CLIPPERS 91

OKLAHOMA CITY • Kevin Durant had 32 points and nine rebounds, Russell Westbrook added 19 points and the Oklahoma City Thunder shut down Blake Griffin.

Playing in his hometown, Griffin was held to a career-low seven points in the rematch of a Clippers victory perhaps best remembered for his emphatic dunk over Kendrick Perkins.

Griffin didn’t have any dunks in this one, settling mostly for long jumpers and hook shots, and went just 3 for 11 from the field.

Randy Foye started in place of Caron Butler and scored 23 points to lead Los Angeles, which hit 37 percent on a miserable shooting night from inside the 3-point line and failed to score 100 points for the eighth straight game.

Kendrick Perkins set the tone for Griffin’s rough night with a hard foul that also drew him his league-leading 11th technical foul midway through the first quarter.

C.J. Watson scored 15 points and Ronnie Brewer had 12 for the Bulls, who won their third straight. The Bulls also won for the fourth time in five games without leading scorer Derrick Rose, who is still sidelined with a sore right groin.

Stephen Jackson and Gary Neal each added 16 points for the Spurs, who won their fourth straight and fifth in their last six.

Parker left with tightness in his left hamstring with 8:03 remaining in the first half. He spoke briefly with Spurs coach Gregg Popovich before heading to the locker room with two points and six assists.

our saying, whenever you’re down just Spartan-up and play the game the right way.”

Minico (1-1, 1-0 Great Basin Conference) took a 9-7 lead in the sixth after Chandler’s two-run triple, followed by an RBI double by Sager Nevarez.

However, Burley (0-2, 0-1) reclaimed the lead in the bottom half, with an RBI single by Jackson Kunz and a two-run double ripped down the leftfield line by Spencer Rice.

With two outs in the top of the seventh, Burley pitcher Joe Ferrin misfired on a pickoff attempt to first base, allowing the tying run to score.

Later in the eighth, Minico scored the winning run on an error at second base by Burley’s Rice.

Burley coach Devin Kunz was happy how his team swung the bat — something the Bobcats struggled with in their season opener — but lamented their three botched routine plays that led to five Spartan runs.

“Don’t go home and beat your dog over it, just learn from our mistakes and don’t repeat them,” Kunz said. “It’s OK because it’s so early (in the season), but don’t repeat it.”

Overall, both teams played hard, but sloppy. Minico’s errors allowed seven unearned runs in the second inning.

“Even when we were kicking the balls, I thought we did a good job with our mental approach,” said Minico coach Ben Frank. “We didn’t have guys putting, they threw it away and they got ready for the next one. That gave us a chance to come back. Offensively we never lost our intensity and our guys still thought we had a chance to win and were planning to win all game.”

The Bobcats and Spartans will meet again Friday for a doubleheader starting at 2 p.m. at Minico.

'TEBOW TIME' MOVES TO BROADWAY

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Tim Tebow is coming to New York. Really. After a big false start, the New York Jets on Wednesday got the quarterback who turned the Denver Broncos from an also-ran into a play-off team last season and became the NFL's most talked-about player — for a fourth- and six-round draft pick. Now Tebowmania is opening on Broadway. Eight hours after initially agreeing to a deal, the teams completed the trade that was hung up earlier Wednesday when the Jets apparently balked at repaying Denver more than $5 million for a salary advance due Tebow. ESPN reported that the two sides had agreed to split that cost. Despite ultimately pulling off the deal, it was just another bizarre moment for the Jets, a team that has had its share of them over the years, conjuring memories of Bill Belichick's hiring as coach and his resignation one day later. The Jets certainly will have lots of explaining to do as "Timsanity" now will take over New York, just a few weeks after "Linsanity" swept the New York area and the rest of the NBA with the Knicks' sensational Jeremy Lin. But not everyone's a fan. Hall of Fame quarterback Joe Namath, who led the Jets to their only Super Bowl title in 1969, was among those unhappy. "I'm just sorry that I can't agree with this situation. I think it's just a publicity stunt. I can't go with it. I think it's wrong," Namath told 1050 ESPN Radio on Wednesday. "I don't think they know

Alex Smith Signs Three-year Deal with 49ers

BY JANIE MCCAULEY Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. • No hard feelings on Alex Smith's part that the San Francisco 49ers pursued Peyton Manning. In the end, Smith is right back where he expected to be all along — with the only franchise he has ever known. The free agent quarterback signed his three-year deal with the 49ers at last on Wednesday. It will pay him $8 million per season with $16.5 million guaranteed, according to a person with knowledge of the contract. The person, who spoke on condition of anonymity Wednesday because the contract details weren't made public, said Smith's deal can pay him up to $33 million. Smith signed at team headquarters a day after Manning was formally introduced in Denver after the 49ers pursued the four-time NFL MVP. San Francisco coach Jim Harbaugh worked out Manning at Duke last week. "Not offended at all. I would have relished the opportunity to compete for the starting quarterback job with Peyton Manning," Smith said. "I feel I've been through way worse than this. Free agency is always going to be a little crazy, maybe this year more than most. You get to a point you stop worrying about that stuff."

SAN FRANCISCO 49ERS QUARTERBACK ALEX SMITH (11) WARMS UP AS HEAD COACH JIM HARBAUGH WATCHES BEFORE THE NFC CHAMPIONSHIP NFL FOOTBALL GAME AGAINST THE NEW YORK GIANTS IN SAN FRANCISCO. SMITH, A FREE AGENT QUARTERBACK, WILL VISIT WITH THE MIAMI DOLPHINS, SAID A PERSON FAMILIAR WITH THE MOVE, ACCORDING TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MARCH 18. THE PERSON SPOKE TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS ON CONDITION OF ANONYMITY BECAUSE THE TEAM HAS NOT ANNOUNCED SUNDAY'S MEETING.

The 27-year-old Smith met with Miami on Sunday but ultimately decided to stay put with the storied franchise that drafted him first overall in 2005. Smith said his talks with the Dolphins during a 5 1/2-hour meeting "seemed serious at the time." Smith said Harbaugh and general manager Trent Baalke came to see him to inform the quarterback they were going to pursue Manning. "Obviously it was a little unexpected, but that's part of the deal. This is free agency and this is the NFL, and those things happen," Smith said. Everybody involved seemed relieved Wednesday to move ahead with preparations for 2012. The 49ers last week added wide receivers Randy Moss and Mario Manningham — and Smith is eager to get to work with them soon. "Thanks for choosing the 49ers Alex. Sorry it was a tough week," 49ers CEO Jed York said Wednesday on Twitter. Smith had a breakthrough season last year, throwing for 3,150 yards and 17 touchdowns to help San Francisco reach the NFC title game.

for this punishment." The Saints now must decide who will coach the team in Payton's place — his suspension takes effect April 1 — and who will make roster moves while Loomis is out. There was no immediate word from the Saints, but two candidates to take over coaching duties are defensive coordinator Steve Spagnuolo and offensive coordinator Pete Carmichael Jr. Spagnuolo has NFL head coaching experience; Carmichael does not, but has been with the club since 2006. When the NFL first made its investigation public on March 2, Williams admitted to — and apologized for — running the program while in charge of the Saints' defense. He was hired in January by the St. Louis Rams; head coach Jeff Fisher said Wednesday he'll probably use a committee of coaches to replace Williams in 2012. Goodell will review Williams' status after the upcoming season and decide whether he can return. "I accept full responsibility for my actions," Williams said in a statement issued by the Rams. "I will continue to cooperate fully with the league and its investigation and ... I will do everything possible to re-earn the respect of my colleagues, the NFL and its players in hopes of returning to coaching in the future." While some players who played for Williams elsewhere said he oversaw bounty systems there, too, the league said its interviews didn't find evidence that "programs at other clubs involved targeting opposing players or rewarding players for injuring an opponent." But Goodell could re-open the case if new information emerges. After the NFL made clear that punishments for the Saints were looming, Payton and Loomis took the blame for violations that they acknowledged "happened under our watch" and said club owner Tom Benson "had nothing to do" with the

 NOTICE OF HEARING ON NAME CHANGE (Adult)
 IN RE: Shannon Jean Todd
 A Petition to change the name of Shannon Jean Todd, now residing in the City of Gooding, State of Idaho, has been filed in the District Court in GOODING County, Idaho. The name will change to Shannon Jean Tindall-Boyer. The reason for the change in name is: because my father is 92 years old and he wants me to use my husbands last name of Boyer. My maiden name was Tindall. A hearing on the Petition is scheduled for 9:00 o'clock a.m. on April 25, 2012 at the Gooding County Courthouse. Objections may be filed by any person who can show the court a good reason against the name change.

CITY OF RICHFIELD PROPOSED CITY ORDINANCE
 AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF RICHFIELD, IDAHO, PROVIDING FOR THE CONTROL OF BACKFLOW AND CROSS CONNECTIONS TO THE CITY POTABLE WATER SUPPLY. REPEALING ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT WITH THIS ORDINANCE; AND PROVIDING SEVERABILITY AND AN EFFECTIVE DATE.
 NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF RICHFIELD, IDAHO:
SECTION 1: The purpose of this ordinance is to protect the public potable water supply of Richfield, Idaho from the possibility of contamination or pollution, by isolating within the customer's internal distribution system(s) or the customer's private water system(s) such contaminates or pollution that could backflow into the public water system.
 Furthermore, to promote the elimination or control of existing cross connections, actual or potential between the customer's in-plant potable water system(s) and non-potable water systems, plumbing fixtures and industrial piping systems; and, To provide for the maintenance of a continuing program of cross connection control that will systematically and effectively prevent the contamination or pollution of all potable water systems.
 The City Superintendent shall be responsible for the protection of the public potable water distribution system from contamination or pollution due to the backflow of contaminates or pollutants through water service connections. If, in the judgment of said official, or any other agent of the City of Richfield, an approved backflow-prevention assembly is required, at the customer's water service connection or within the customer's private water system, for the safety of the water system, such official, or his or her designated agent shall give notice in writing to said customer to install such an approved backflow prevention assembly at specific locations on his or her premises.
SECTION 2: The City Superintendent, or his or her agent, in charge of the water department of the City of Richfield is invested with the authority and responsibility for the implementation of an effective cross-connection control program and for the enforcement of the provisions of this ordinance and any other laws, rules, or regulations approved by the Department of Environmental Quality regarding cross-connections.
SECTION 3: No water service connection to any premises shall be installed or maintained by the water user unless the water supply is protected as required by state, federal, or local laws and regulations. Service of water to any premises shall be discontinued by the City of Richfield if a backflow prevention assembly required by any state, federal, or local, law, rule, or regulation is not installed, tested and maintained, or if it is found the backflow prevention assembly has been removed, bypassed, or if an unprotected cross connection exists on the premises. Service will not be restored until such conditions or defects are corrected.
 The customer's system should be open for inspection at all reasonable times to authorized representatives of the City of Richfield to determine whether cross connections or other structural or sanitary hazards, including violations of DEQ regulations exist. When such a condition becomes known, the City of Richfield shall deny or immediately discontinue service to the premises by providing for a physical break in the service line until the customer has corrected the condition in conformance with federal, state, and city rules and regulations relating to plumbing and water supplies and regulations adopted pursuant thereto.
SECTION 4: All presently installed backflow prevention assemblies that do not meet the requirements of current regulations, but were approved assemblies for the purpose described herein, at the time of installation and that have been properly maintained, shall, except for the inspection and maintenance requirements under this ordinance, be excluded from the requirements of such rules and ordinances, so long as the City of Richfield is assured they will satisfactorily protect the utility system. Whenever the existing assembly is moved from its present location, requires more than minimal maintenance, or when the City Superintendent, or his or her agent, finds that the maintenance constitutes a hazard to health, the unit shall be replaced by an approved backflow prevention assembly meeting the requirements of this section.
SECTION 5: This ordinance is hereby declared to be severable. Should any portion of this ordinance but declared invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction the remaining provisions shall continue in full force and effect and shall be read to carry out the purposes of this ordinance before the declaration of partial invalidity.
SECTION 6: All provisions of the current Municipal Code or ordinances of the City of Richfield which conflict with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed to the extent of such conflict. All ordinances or parts of ordinances of the City of Richfield, Idaho, in conflict with this ordinance or any part hereof are especially repealed hereby.
SECTION 7: This ordinance shall be in full force and effect upon its passage and publication as provided by law.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE SALE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on Thursday, the 21st day of June, 2012, at the hour of 1 o'clock P.M. of said day, at the offices of Land Title & Escrow, Inc., located at 237 North Lincoln, Jerome, Jerome County, Idaho, 83338, David E. Wishney, a member of the Idaho State Bar Association, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

Lot 6 Keyhole Acres, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the Office of The Recorder of said County.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above-described real property, but for purposes of compliance with Idaho Code Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the address of 119 Keyhole Drive, Jerome, Idaho, 83338, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Bryan E. Craig and Tracia S. Craig, husband and wife, as Grantor, to David E. Wishney, a member of the Idaho State Bar Association, as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of Washington Federal Savings, Beneficiary; said Deed of Trust having been recorded on March 9, 2001 as Instrument No. 2011140, as modified by Notice Of Modification Of Deed Of Trust recorded as Instrument No. 2012880, and by Notice Of Modification Of Deed Of Trust recorded as Instrument No. 2013664, records of Jerome County, Idaho. The above Grantor(s) are named to comply with Idaho Code Section 45-1506(4)(a). No representation is made that they are or are not presently responsible for this obligation.

The nature of the default for which this sale is to be made is the failure of the Grantor(s) to pay monthly installments in the sum of $2,324.00 each, due for the months of August, 2011 through February, 2012, in accordance with the provisions of the Promissory Note of even date, secured by said deed of trust.

The original loan amount was $319,500.00, with interest thereon at the initial rate of 7.625% per annum commencing on March 6, 2001. The unpaid balance of said Promissory Note, including accrued interest through February 7, 2012, is $282,797.29, with interest accruing thereafter at the rate of $45.50 per day, until paid, late charges of $584.16, a reserve account deficit of $883.39, and attorneys fees of $750.00.

All delinquent amounts are now due and payable, along with all accruing late charges, and all costs and fees associated with this foreclosure. The sale is made without representation, warranty, or covenant of any kind or nature.

BANK OF AMERICA, N.A., successor by merger to BAC Home Loans Servicing, LP, Plaintiff,

vs.
INEZ HOLLON (Deceased); Unknown Heirs, Assigns and Devisees of Inez Hollon; and Does 1-10 as individuals with an interest in the property legally described as:
Lot 15 in Block 127 of the Twin Falls Townsite, Twin Falls County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the Office of County Recorder of the said County. Which may commonly be known as: 512 4th Avenue West, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301.

Defendants.
NOTICE: YOU HAVE BEEN SUED BY THE ABOVE-NAMED PLAINTIFF. THE COURT MAY ENTER JUDGMENT AGAINST YOU WITHOUT FURTHER NOTICE UNLESS YOU RESPOND WITHIN 20 DAYS. READ THE FOLLOWING BELOW.

TO: All Defendants
You are hereby notified that in order to defend this lawsuit, an appropriate written response must be filed with the above-designated court within 20 days after service of this Summons on you. If you fail to so respond, the court may enter judgment against you as demanded by the Plaintiff in the Complaint.

The nature of the claim against you is for, among other things, judicial foreclosure of the real property located at 512 4th Avenue West, Twin Falls, Idaho, 83301.

A copy of the Summons and Complaint can be obtained by contacting either the Clerk of the Court or the attorney for Plaintiff. If you wish to seek the advice of or representation by an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your written response, if any, may be filed in time and other legal rights protected.

An appropriate written response requires compliance with Rule 10(a)(1) and other Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure and shall also include:

- The title and number of this case.
- If your response is an Answer to the Complaint, it must contain admissions or denials of the separate allegations of the Complaint and other defenses you may claim.
- Your signature, mailing address and telephone number, or the signature, mailing address and telephone number of your attorney.
- Proof of mailing or delivery of a copy of your response to Plaintiff's attorney, as designated above.

To determine whether you must pay a filing fee with your response, contact the Clerk of the above-named Court.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to tell "Possibly Paddled Pledge" (Jan. 13) that joining a sorority was one of the best parts of college for me. It taught me about interpersonal communication, the importance of philanthropy and academics, and networking. I learned skills I would not have gained had I not joined.

DEAR ABBY Jeanne Phillips

My sorority had paddles. We decorated them with our symbols and Greek letters, and they were displayed on the wall. We never used them to hit anyone. Our national organization, as well as our university would have been furious. Hazing is illegal and should not be tolerated.

I say, give the Greek life a try, but if someone ever lifts a finger toward you, report her to your panhellenic organization and the dean of students immediately. Sororities are supposed to lift you up, not beat you down.

— JENNIFER IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR JENNIFER: Readers unanimously agreed that paddling should not be tolerated, and stressed that being a legacy does not guarantee acceptance or that a pledge will have a good experience in a particular sorority.

My readers comment:
DEAR ABBY: My daughter is currently in a sorority, but her experience has been very mixed. She was not automatically welcomed by my sorority. She found the process to be difficult and judgmental. However, she did find a wonderful group of women in a different sorority.

As a sophomore this year, she is on the other side of recruitment (rush) and again felt hurt by how rude some of the new girls were. "PPP's" letter spotlighted the snobbish, elitist attitude that turns many eligible young women away from sororities. To say a group is the best-of-the-best and exclusive is offensive. I hope more girls will look beyond the glitz and glamour and give a second hard look to all of the groups.

— JANE IN AKRON, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: My first month in college was wonderful. Then came sorority rush. What followed was hell. I got a paddle with the Greek letters, though it was only a "memento." Far worse was the social fragmentation of the women there. We immediately began to segregate into our little pledge classes, wore pins that identified our group and were typecast from the very beginning.

After wrestling with this psychological social dilemma — even becoming an active member, which would preclude me from ever joining another sorority — I finally deactivated, switched to a much larger school with less emphasis on the Greek system and happily sailed through the rest of my college life with honors.

— A HAPPY INDEPENDENT

DEAR ABBY: As a member of a sorority, I have never heard of a sorority that used paddles to hit members. What bothers me is the apparent acceptance by "PPP's" family members of this practice.

As a prosecutor for nearly 30 years, I do not condone in any way the use of a paddle, either in fraternities or sororities. A sorority is more than academics and whispers about hazing. "PPP" should visit each chapter on the campus, attend rush and make her own decision. Only she can decide which sorority is right for her. If she pledges as a legacy, she'll be in a unique position to actively stop this practice if, in fact, it is occurring. If she's kicked out for not letting them paddle her, then she can shout it from the rooftops and maybe something will finally happen.

"PPP," stand up for what you believe. Choose a sorority you like, with women you would be proud to call your sisters, and you will have the time of your life and lifelong friends who will see you through your old age. I know. I didn't pledge my mom's chapter, but a different one.

Today is Thursday, March 22, the 82nd day of 2012. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 22, 1765, the British Parliament passed the Stamp Act of 1765 to raise money from the American colonies, which fiercely resisted the tax. (The Stamp Act was repealed a year later.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1312, Pope Clement V issued a papal bull ordering the dissolution of the Order of the Knights Templar.
In 1638, religious dissident Anne Hutchinson was expelled from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for defying Puritan orthodoxy.

In 1820, U.S. naval hero Stephen Decatur was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington, D.C.

In 1894, hockey's first Stanley Cup championship game was played; home team Montreal defeated Ottawa, 3-1.

In 1912, Academy Award-winning actor Karl Malden was born. Mladen George Sekulovich in Chicago.

In 1933, during Prohibition, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a measure to make wine and beer containing up to 3.2 percent alcohol legal.

In 1941, the Grand Coulee hydroelectric dam in Washington state went into operation.

In 1958, movie producer Mike Todd, the husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor, and three other people were killed in the crash of Todd's private plane near Grants, N.M.

In 1962, the musical "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," featuring the Broadway debut of 19-year-old Barbra Streisand, opened at the Shubert Theater.

In 1978, Karl Wallenda, the 73-year-old patriarch of "The Flying Wallendas" high-wire act, fell to his death while attempting to walk a cable strung between two hotel towers in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

In 1992, 27 people were killed when a USAir jetliner crashed on takeoff from New York's LaGuardia Airport; 24 people survived.

In 1997, Tara Lipinski, at age 14 years and 10 months, became the youngest ladies' world figure skating champion in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush joined a U.N. poverty summit in Monterrey, Mexico, where he urged world leaders to demand political reform from poor countries in exchange for increased aid and warned that unchecked poverty can foster terrorism. The Postal Rate Commission announced approval of higher postal rates, including a three-cent boost for first-class letters, to 37 cents.

Five years ago: John and Elizabeth Edwards announced that her cancer had returned, but that the North Carolina Democrat planned to continue his presidential campaign. A rocket exploded 50 yards from U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon during a news conference in Baghdad's Green Zone just minutes after Iraq's prime minister said the visit showed the city was "on the road to stability." Brian Joubert became the first Frenchman in 42 years to win the world title by taking the men's event at the World Figure Skating Championships in Tokyo.

One year ago: Yemen's U.S.-backed president, Ali Abdullah Saleh, his support crumbling among political allies and the army, warned that the country could slide into civil war as the opposition rejected his offer to step down by the end of the year. NFL owners meeting in New Orleans voted to make all scoring plays reviewable by the replay official and referee; also, kickoffs would be moved up 5 yards to the 35-yard line.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"We prove what we want to prove, and the real difficulty is to know what we want to prove."
 — Emile Chartier

Today's deal from the Spring Nationals at Louisville last year comes from the semifinals of the Vanderbilt Trophy. One of the four pairs played six hearts here and could not bring it home. The other three pairs all reached six spades, and one declarer was fortunate enough after a totally artificial auction to receive a heart lead, which he ducked to East's king. No matter what came back, declarer could arrange to draw trump and run the hearts.

But at the other two tables, on auctions very similar to the one shown, West led a low club. Since the lead could equally have been from length or shortage, both declarers went up with the ace and ruffed a red suit to hand to play trump from the top, hoping for a 4-3 spade split. They both went down a trick when spades did not break.

From a psychological and mathematical perspective, I believe both players misplayed the hand. The chance that West held a singleton club is no better than 15 percent, and, especially on this auction, you would surely expect a club lead, no matter what West had in the suit. The best play is to duck the ace and try to win the club in hand. If you do so, draw trump in five rounds, discarding the club ace from dummy, and knock out the club king for a painless 12 tricks. If the club king is to your right, you will still survive, so long as there is no immediate club ruff.

ANSWER: In this auction, where you would start with a double of one no-trump with a decent balanced hand, you can afford to cue-bid two diamonds to show a limited hand with both majors. This way, not only do you get to the best fit, but you also allow partner to compete if necessary, knowing he is facing a shapely hand.

Yesterday's Jumbles: DUNCE CHAMP SWITCH SQUASH
Answer: He was running behind with his mustard deliveries and needed to do this — CATCH UP

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME
by David L. Hoyt and Jeff Knurek

Hey! This isn't the top that we saw in the store. Were they trying to fool us?

WHEN HE INSTALLED HIS NEW KITCHEN HE REALIZED THAT HIS GRANITE WAS THIS.

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

CUSTOM

IF MARCH 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next several weeks, your fantasy life can become more important than usual. You are more willing to stretch yourself to obtain the dream that motivates you now and might be more interested in passing attractions. Common sense prevails through the end of May and you have assistance in the form of solid experience to steer you past the pitfalls of any enticing wild goose chase. The end of August is the very best time to make crucial business or personal decisions. Not only will your judgment be better, but others will be willing to lend you a hand.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The new moon in your sign may make you shine. A little extra energy and enthusiasm will allow you to multitask successfully. You will be able to work and play today without missing a beat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep your eyes on the prize. You are close to reaching your goal, so this is no time to let petty distractions impede your progress. Social and romantic pursuits may have to wait until the week-end.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Maintain a low profile. You are better suited for activities that you can do on your own rather than in a group. Keep conversations light, as getting too deep or philosophical is likely to seem abrasive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Tread carefully. A poor choice of words could cause a confrontation. Be clear and concise when dealing with others because you have just begun a new lunar cycle. Lend a hand to a friend in need.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dream a little dream. Let your thoughts wander toward the future and contemplate what you want out of life. You'll find that your heart's desire is not too far out of reach. Begin making dreams a reality.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Mind your manners. An inadvertent breach of etiquette could cause ill feelings with a friend, co-worker or colleague. Play it by the book, no matter how casual your work environment may seem today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Two heads are better than one. There's no reason to struggle with a problem when the assistance of another makes things infinitely easier. You have just begun a new relationship cycle with today's new moon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love doesn't pay the bills. Your heart may be all aflutter over your latest romance — but unless you take care of business responsibilities first, your next rendezvous could be held in the poorhouse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep your head out of the clouds. Spring fever may have you planning a romp out in the sun, but mind your indoor responsibilities first. Focus on solving problems now and save day-dreams for the weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Make a commitment to excellence. Be your own worst critic with your work and make sure you've done your job well. Remember that the better the job you do now, the bigger the reward will be later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be a breath of fresh air. Lighten the gloomy mood at the workplace by simply being yourself. A few kind or witty words will be all it takes to make your colleagues smile and the daily grind easier.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Those who rush are likely to make mistakes. Don't hurry through your tasks simply to get them over with. Take time to do your job well and go for quality over quantity. Put romantic pursuits on the back burner.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

When purchasing a vehicle, make sure that the title is in the name of the seller. Under Idaho motor vehicle code a vehicle cannot be sold unless the title is in the name of the seller (exception: Idaho licensed dealer). The seller shall provide the new purchaser a signed bill of sale showing the following: Full description of the vehicle, vehicle identification number, amount paid and name(s) and address of the new purchaser. The bill of sale must be signed, dated and show actual mileage at the time of sale. If you have any questions, please contact your local assessor's office.
