Will Idaho Pull Blinds on Daylight Saving Time?

A legislative proposal isn't going anywhere this year, but like the setting sun, it'll come up again.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Forget springing forward. Earlier this week, the Legislature printed a bill to exempt Idaho from observing daylight saving time. Will it pass? Not a chance. But bill sponsor Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, hopes the legislation will help propel a national discussion on getting rid of the time change.

The idea is gaining popularity, especially in the weeks following the spring time change. Jaquet receives correspondence from constituents and voters across the state asking her to bring the time shift's demise. Jaquet has seven Republican cosponsors for the bill, including House Majority Leader Mike Moyle, R-Star.

While the idea might be attractive to sleep-deprived Idahoans still struggling with losing an hour of sleep last week, what are the realistic implications of opting out?

For an answer, look to Arizona. For 40 years, the Grand Canyon State hasn't participated in the twice-yearly time change.

While it takes a bit of adjustment, it's not bad, said John Hargraves III, marketing and membership director

With Gosar and Peery on opposing benches, today's NJCAA Tournament game is a meeting of CSI coaches past and present.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. • College of Southern Idaho head coach Steve Gosar sat in his hotel room Thursday afternoon, watching film of the men's basketball team from Indian Hills Community College of Ottumwa, Iowa.

Across town in another hotel room, Indian Hills head coach Barret Peery watched film of Gosar's Golden Eagles. Their two teams will meet today in the consolation semifinals of the NJCAA National Tournament, but the men need no introduction.

"He's probably watching our

Gosar served as an assistant coach under Peery for three seasons in Twin Falls before Peery left CSI for an assistant coaching job at the University of Utah. The Golden Eagles went 85-19 in Peery's three seasons at the helm, including a 30-2 season and rise to No. 1 in the country in his final season in 2007-08.

Prior to CSI, Peery and Gosar spent the 2002-03 season together as assistants at Portland State University. Peery joined Gib Arnold's staff at CSI the next season and replaced Arnold as head coach in 2005, when he hired Gosar as an assistant.

"I was really excited to get Steve to come along to CSI with us," Peery said. "He's done a fantastic

Otter Seeks Tax-Cut Support in Twin Falls

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • As Idaho's Senate debates enacting tax cuts, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter is reaching out to Twin Falls business owners for support.

"I need some help convincing people to help me get some things through," Otter said during a Thursday appearance at the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce's Business Day. He then dove into his proposal to enact a $35.7 million tax cut before the Legislature lets out.

The tax cut has already been approved by the House. However, it faces challenges in the Senate, where the focus is more on restoring teacher pay.

"We don't have to spend every dime we bring in," Otter said. "But there are those in the Legislature right now who spend every dime we bring in."

The proposal would cut the top corporate tax rate to 7.4 percent from 7.6 percent, while also lowering the top income rate to 7.4 percent from 7.8 percent.

Legislature Passes 'Spice' Ban, Sends to Governor

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • The Idaho Senate passed the annual uniform controlled substances bill amending existing drug laws Tuesday.

This year, the bill added all compounds derived from synthetic cannabis to the list of controlled substances, making all forms of so-called "spice" illegal. The bill passed the House on Feb. 29.

It now heads to Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter to be signed into law.

Last year, the Idaho Legislature passed a bill to add several chemicals commonly used in spice formulas to the state's con-

The problem was that chemists could alter their formulas to make other forms of the substance legal, keeping spice on store shelves.

The bill passed the Legislature without opposition.

More Magic Valley Students Qualify for Free, Reduced School Meals

BY JULIE WOOTTON

HANSEN • About eight in 10 Hansen students qualify for free or reduced-price school meals. And numbers continue to climb.

With 79 percent of students qualifying this year — out of about 400 students total in the district — it's a 4 percent increase compared with this past year.

Superintendent Dennis Coulter said numbers reflect the continued effects of the economic downturn.

"Hansen is not an affluent community," he said. "Our patrons are hardworking, blue collar laborers that don't have additional finances to help them through tough economic times."

Like the Hansen School District, many other Magic Valley school districts have seen increased numbers of students qualifying for subsidized meals.

Twin Falls and Jerome school districts are the exceptions. Both saw about a 1 percent decline this year.

In Twin Falls, about 61.2 percent of students qualify and in Jerome, it's 71 percent.

Twin Falls associate superintendent Patti O'Dell

In order for children to receive free lunches, families must earn within 130 percent of the federal poverty level. For reduced-price lunches, the bar is set at 185 percent.

Children in a family of four with an annual household income of $29,055 or less are eligible for free meals. Household income can be up to $41,348 yearly for a family of four to receive reduced-price meals.

In Wendell, about 75 percent of students qualify — up from about 60 percent this past year.

Superintendent Greg Lowe said one reason for the increase might be more accurate record keeping this year, but he said there were also a number of new applicants.

In Gooding, about 58 percent of students in the school district receive subsidized meals. It's a 4 percent increase compared with this past year.

Food service director Anji Baumann said the increase could be due to school employees better identifying families in need.

"Our job isn't to regulate people out of business, but into business," Otter said.

The event marked Otter's third visit to the Magic Valley over the past few months, each time celebrating the area's economic development.

"I'm sorry that we don't have an announcement to go along with your visit today, Governor. But trust me, we're working on it," said Shawn Barigar, president of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce.

Otter also took time to explain the recently approved Idaho Global Entrepreneurial Mission. The program is designed to expand Idaho's university research on state economic issues with private-sector guidance.

Ideally, this will accelerate technological development and ultimately keep Idaho researchers from looking outside the state for jobs, Otter said. "The innovation isn't just for one new product but for everything."

job for that program. The team has really rallied around him."

Gosar led the Golden Eagles to their third NJCAA title last season — the program's first since 1987 — and has a 106-29 record in his four seasons as head coach.

"I wouldn't be at CSI without him," Gosar said of Peery. "He's a good friend. In coaching, your paths cross and you spend time together before moving on to other jobs, but we have maintained a good relationship. We talk every week and I'm sure we'll play golf together this summer."

Since Indian Hills hired him in March 2011, Peery has led the program to a 31-4 record and its first national tournament appearance since 2008.

"Indian Hills is very similar to CSI. It's a program that people rally around and get behind and they expect you to get to the national tournament every season," Peery said. "It's been fun for me to get back here and to have the chance to catch up with all these people from CSI. We had great times in Twin Falls that I'll always remember."

CSI and Indian Hills square off at 10 a.m. MDT today at the Sports Arena in Hutchinson, Kan., in the consolation semifinals — not where Gosar and Peery hoped their teams would meet when the tournament began.

"It will be a surreal experience," Gosar said about coaching against Peery. "He's a great friend. It's definitely going to be different seeing him on a different bench."

Rupert Man Pleads Guilty to Battery with Revolver

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • A Rupert man pleaded guilty to one felony count of aggravated battery after allegedly pointing a revolver at a man and woman in Heyburn, then striking the male on the head with the weapon.

Jose Arturo Munoz, 22, is set to be sentenced on the charge at 9 a.m. May 7 in Minidoka County 5th District Court.

Two felony counts of aggravated assault were dismissed in a plea agreement. Minidoka County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson said the state made no sentencing recommendations.

The male victim sustained a laceration above his left eye and a swollen nose from being struck by the weapon, according to a Heyburn police report.

According to the report, one of the suspects told the male victim that "that's what you get for trying to jump my friend."

Raul Sanchez Jr., 17, was charged with two felony counts of aggravated assault and one felony count of aggravated battery for allegedly driving Munoz to 14th Street and H Street in Heyburn, where the crimes occurred last June, and acting as an "enforcer" while Munoz pointed the gun and hit the victim.

Sanchez has pleaded not guilty to all three charges and a jury trial is slated for 9 a.m. Thursday in Minidoka County.

According to court records, Sanchez's case was moved from juvenile court due to the serious nature of the crimes and because they were premeditated.

for the Greater Sierra Vista Area Chamber Of Commerce in Sierra Vista, Ariz.

"In fact, there's hardly any impact," Hargraves said. If anything, it helps businesses when dealing with clients and customers on the East Coast.

"It's actually an advantage for us because they've already started their day."

"I love it," said Leah Barnes, administrative assistant at the Sierra Vista Chamber. Barnes pointed out that in the hot summer months, workers with outdoors jobs can get started much earlier in the morning and finish up before it gets too hot.

Not changing times does cause some confusion with Barnes' family in California, who often forget what time it is in Arizona. For six months of the year, Arizona is on the same time as California. But for the uninitiated, it's hard to keep track, Barnes said.

Jaquet acknowledged one fundamental problem with the idea: Idaho's two time zones. Lawmakers could have one of the time zones stick with daylight saving time and one opt out, so the state would be on the same time for six months of the year, or they could have both time zones opt out. Either way, it

About the Issue

The argument for dumping daylight saving time: The Idaho Legislature has considered ignoring the seasonal time change before. But Rep. Wendy Jaquet, D-Ketchum, said Congress should seriously consider the proposal.

Three reasons:

- Disrupting sleep cycles increases traffic accidents by 8 percent on the Monday after the spring change, according to a University of British Columbia study.
- Heart attack risks go up following the spring time change, according to a 2008 study in the New England Journal of Medicine.
- Most countries don't observe daylight saving time. This would put the U.S. in sync with most of the world.

would be confusing and potentially disrupt cross-border relationships between communities like Coeur d'Alene and Spokane, Wash.

That's why the change can't realistically come on a state level, Jaquet said. But she hopes this will snag attention from members of Congress.

"This is a way to get the conversation started again," she said.

Stealing Money? There's an App For That

Police say 2 employees used phone app to cash paychecks twice at Twin Falls sandwich shop.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Two employees of Jimmy John's Gourmet Sandwiches were accused of stealing money from their employer before possibly eloping in Las Vegas.

Cheyann Mardell Donaldson, 18, and Randy Michael Evans, 19, were arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court Wednesday. Evans was charged with two counts of fraud and a count of grand theft. Donaldson was charged with one count of grand theft.

On Dec. 3, a co-owner of Jimmy Johns, Patrick Fenderson, went to police saying two employees of the restaurant in the 100 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard had stolen money.

Fenderson and co-owner Rachelle Fenderson discovered Evans had been cashing his paychecks twice and confronted him on Nov. 30. At the time, Evans told them he wanted to "make it right" so he could keep his job, the restaurant owners told police.

According to court records, Rachelle Fenderson said Donaldson denied knowing about Evans double-dipping on the paychecks even though the two were in a relationship.

After Dec. 3, when the couple didn't show up to work, the Fendersons said they discovered Donaldson's paychecks had also been cashed twice.

Court records show three checks issued to Donaldson and two issued to Evans were cashed twice. Police say the two used a smart phone application to deposit the checks into a bank account and later cashed the checks.

"Chase Bank explained that you can use your phone to take a photo of the check to be deposited and send it to Chase using the Chase application on your phone," the police report stated.

Police discovered the two also took two smaller checks belonging to other employees who failed to pick them up and deposited them remotely using the phone application.

The total deposited into the pair's bank accounts was $1,528.74, according to court records.

On Dec. 3, Patrick Fenderson arrived at work at 6 a.m. to find $660 missing from the store safe and $200 each from the two cash registers. Since Donaldson was training to be a manager, she had a store key and code to the safe, he said.

The families of the accused thieves reported them missing Dec. 6, stating they were last seen on Dec. 2. When police searched the couple's home in the 400 block of Elm Street in Twin Falls they appeared to have moved out.

"In the bedroom of the residence, a painting on the wall indicated that they may have run off to get married," the police report stated.

Police say they believe the pair fled to Las Vegas before returning to Twin Falls on Jan. 4. The two came into the Twin Falls Police Department and Donaldson agreed to speak with police for a few minutes before requesting an attorney. Evans refused to speak to police and the pair left the department, police said.

Both were later arrested and held on $2,500 bond. Each bonded out March 21. Preliminary hearings have been scheduled for March 30.

Twin Falls Man Arrested on Charges of Selling Prescription Painkillers

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police arrested a man they say sold two kinds of prescription pain killers to a confidential police informant.

Matthew R. Lewis, 23, was arraigned Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on two charges of delivery of a controlled substance.

On Feb. 29, a confidential informant met with Lewis while police monitored, according to court documents. The two men met in an alley of Tyler Street close to Shoup Avenue at about 7:40 p.m., the report says.

Police say that after allegedly selling 10 hydrocodone pills to the informant, Lewis said, "There's no drugs being sold here," followed by "You're welcome for the Ibuprofen."

Police say that on March 7 their informant met with Lewis again, tasked with buying Dilaudid and oxycodone.

The two met near the Cherrywood Apartments on Elizabeth Boulevard at about 9 p.m., but traveled to another residence to get the prescription pain medication.

After the informant's car broke down near the purchase site, according to the report, Lewis walked to retrieve the drugs. Officers, who were nearby, jumped-started the vehicle once he was out of sight.

Police say Lewis gave four Dilaudid pills to the informant and kept four.

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for March 30.

Highway 93 Closed Due to Spilled Corn

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Highway 93 was closed for about two and a half hours Thursday morning following a crash that resulted in ears of corn being spilled over the roadway.

Idaho State Police investigated the two vehicle crash near Hollister, which occurred at about 8:27 a.m.

Ernesto Aguayo Garcia, 36, of Twin Falls was traveling east on 3100 North in a GMC truck when he failed to stop at a stop sign at the intersection with Highway 93. Fred Ostic, 59, of Jerome was driving a Mack truck hauling a semitrailer loaded with corn south on Highway 93 and was unable to avoid colliding with Garcia.

The report from ISP did not indicate whether either man was transported to a hospital and the trooper who investigated the crash was not available for comment. Garcia was not wearing a seatbelt but Ostic was, according to the report.

The southbound lane of Highway 93 was closed while the corn was cleaned up.

Alcohol is not believed to be a factor in the crash.

Ex-Canyon Co. Prosecutor Faces Amended Charge

CALDWELL (AP) • Authorities amended a complaint against former Canyon County prosecutor John Bujak, charging him Wednesday with misuse of public funds.

Bujak was initially charged in December with grand theft by embezzlement and grand theft by deception involving the handling of money from a contract to prosecute misdemeanors in the southwestern Idaho city of Nampa.

But prosecutor Bill Thompson now contends misuse of public funds is a more accurate charge. It carries the same penalty as grand theft and if convicted, Bujak could face up to 14 years in prison.

"The charge of misuse of public funds carries a unique stigma because of the public trust involved," Thompson said.

More than $734,000 was put into a trust account to cover 15 months of prosecution work and Bujak took $236,000 for his own personal expenses, county officials say. He resigned over the contract in 2010.

Bujak previously argued that the contract was a private agreement, making the funding private, so authorities opted to charge him with grand theft not misuse of public funds, Thompson said. But that changed with an Idaho Supreme Court ruling in January.

Justices found financial records and other documents related to Canyon County's contract with Bujak were public.

"The facts are the same," Thompson said. "This is a different legal characterization of the facts."

A preliminary hearing in the case started Tuesday but was later waived by Bujak after the charges against him were amended. His arraignment on the new charge has been scheduled for March 28.

Both sides agreed they would attempt to reach a plea agreement in the case. During testimony Tuesday, Bujak's defense attorney tried to show that local government officials knew he stood to personally profit from the contract.

Several county officials disputed that claim, testifying that Bujak assured them he wouldn't gain from his handling of the contract.

Defense attorney Nancy Callahan highlighted an email county commissioner Kathy Alder sent to Bujak on June 16, 2010, telling him there could be $178,000 in remaining revenue for the Nampa contract after prosecution and salary costs were paid.

In her email, Alder said Bujak could keep that revenue to pay other costs and for himself.

Callahan argued that was evidence that county commissioners advised Bujak that the money was his to keep. Alder testified Tuesday that when mentioning use of the remaining money, she was referring to Bujak's office, not him personally.

"There is no way on Earth I would tell someone that they could take $178,000 personally," Alder said. "That's ridiculous."

Bujak's attorney also pointed to remarks he made to county officials during a preliminary budget hearing on June 14, 2010, two days before he received Alder's email. The remarks indicated that he would profit personally from the agreement.

"Any money that's left from the contract is mine to do ... as I please," Bujak said, according to minutes from the budget meeting.

Thompson argued the statements were irrelevant because the charges against Bujak were limited to money he took from the trust account prior to June 2010.

FRAUD BILL SIDELINED IN HOUSE

BOISE (AP) • A measure to save Idaho $5 million annually from unemployment fraud stalled in the House when one of the chamber's leaders changed his mind on his original "yes" vote.

The Department of Labor-backed measure was sidetracked for amendments, a half hour after it passed on a 36-34 vote.

Assistant Minority Leader Scott Bedke originally supported the measure, then got cold feet.

Upon reconsideration, Bedke objected to a fine against companies of $25 per worker for not reporting hiring or rehiring of employees — information the agency says it needs to prevent people from bilking the system by continuing to collect benefits.

Minority Leader John Rusche said the Department of Labor is otherwise hamstrung to halt fraud.

Tribal Officer Cleared in Fatal N. Idaho Shooting

BOISE (AP) • A Nez Perce Tribal Police officer has been cleared in the fatal shooting of a Lewiston man, but one of his colleagues could be in trouble.

U.S. Attorney Wendy Olson announced Thursday that the officer who shot 46-year-old Jeffery Allen Flinn would not be prosecuted. But another officer, Trevor Michael Garrett, had been charged with making false statements to FBI agents investigating Flinn's death.

Flinn died following a 50-mile car chase that ended in gunfire Nov. 12.

House, Anti-abortion Group Talk over Ultrasound Bill

BOISE (AP) • House leaders met with anti-abortion activists intent on resurrecting a measure to require those seeking an abortion to first undergo an ultrasound screening.

Kerry Uhlenkott of Right to Life of Idaho on Thursday said she and other proponents are meeting with House Republican leaders.

Uhlenkott told The Associated Press her group is still hopeful for getting a House hearing on the measure, which has passed the Senate, 23-12.

The bill was derailed Wednesday after Republican members of the House raised concerns it was a government overreach.

Planned Parenthood in Idaho, which opposes the measure, is urging its supporters to keep pressure on lawmakers.

HOUSE REJECTS MANDATE ON TAX HIKES

BOISE (AP) • A constitutional amendment requiring future fee or tax hikes to win two-thirds support of the Idaho House and Senate has been swept into history's dustbin.

The House's 37-33 vote on Thursday failed to meet the two-thirds threshold necessary to put the measure on the November 2012 ballot, so Idaho voters won't have a chance to weigh in.

Rep. Dennis Lake of Blackfoot told colleagues he was all for requiring significant support for tax or fee hikes.

He agreed such decisions shouldn't be taken lightly.

But Lake argued the measure would require a supermajority of both the House and Senate just to repeal existing tax breaks and exemptions.

Boise Man Gets 6 Months to 5 Years for Assault

BOISE (AP) • A Boise man has been sentenced to at least six months in prison for aggravated assault after prosecutors said he choked a woman until she was unconscious and left her in the desert outside of Boise.

Fourth District Judge Deborah Bail sentenced Kevin Burke Roberts to five years in prison on Tuesday, but said if he performed well in a prison treatment program he would be eligible for release after six months, the Idaho Statesman reported.

Prosecutors said Roberts picked up an intoxicated woman at a Boise bar last summer, saying he would drive her home. Instead, prosecutors said, he took her to the desert, had sex with her, choked her unconscious and left.

Conflicts Natural to Idaho Legislature

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • The Senate Ethics Commission on Wednesday cleared Sen. Monty Pearce of disclosure transgressions.

But the process underscored natural tensions built into Idaho's citizen Legislature, which encourages insurance agents, teachers, lawyers and ranchers like Pearce to leave their normal lives behind and bring their personal expertise into the realm of public-policy making.

"That's why the Senate and House require disclosure — but urge members to vote, anyway.

With Pearce exonerated, the rules governing appropriate disclosure will continue to evolve. Senate Majority Leader Bart Davis says the furor has served to underscore the fragility of the public's trust.

"It's an uncomfortable reminder," said Davis, R-Idaho Falls.

Potential conflicts abound. That's clear every time Sen. Jeff Siddoway brings a measure to help elk ranchers or award landowners potentially lucrative hunting tags. He's an elk rancher and a big landowner.

Siddoway, R-Terretton, says he's frustrated at the attention he sometimes gets, while others appear to slide by without so much of a sideways glance.

"Every day, we have medical bills, insurance bills, folks carrying those bills are affected," he said. "Some of them were affected directly. I don't think you're going to see complaints about those bills."

Rep. Joe Palmer's failed push for free Capitol mall parking also highlighted the issue too, since the Meridian lawmaker's son faces hundreds of dollars' worth of parking tickets and towing fees for ignoring citations.

Pearce, R-New Plymouth, got into hot water for votes on oil and gas legislation being pushed by Snake River Oil & Gas, a company that has leased his land. He insists he did nothing wrong, but concedes changes are a good idea.

"We have an obligation to the public not only to maintain the highest ethical standards, but also to show them that we have clear procedures and rules for how we go about conducting the public's business," Pearce said.

The Senate ethics panel is due to meet one final time, though a meeting Friday where recommendations for changes were expected has been canceled.

Alterations, if they come, will probably include a reminder to legislators like Pearce that they should disclose potential conflicts in committee — long before any measures reach the Senate floor and blow up.

It's not necessarily because lawmakers can't be trusted to ignore their private interests in pursuit of good public policy.

It's simply because the public has more confidence in the democratic process if everybody's cards are on the table.

Though all three Democratic ethics committee members voted to dismiss the complaint, some members of the minority party remain incensed at what they view as Pearce getting off scot-free.

They're particularly unhappy some Republican lawmakers appeared to make light of the complaint, by declaring absurd conflicts out of protest.

IDAHO BRIEFS

Idaho Cited for High Rate Hikes

BOISE • The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has listed Idaho among nine states where insurance companies have posted rate increases deemed excessive under new federal guidelines.

The agency singled out those states Thursday as part of its role in monitoring rates — a task called for in the 2010 health insurance overhaul.

The two Idaho companies were not identified by the agency.

But The Idaho Statesman reports that two Idaho companies have proposed increases on the agency's website — one seeking a 13 percent increase, the other 16 percent.

Two companies listed on the website are Blue Cross of Idaho and divisions of Assurant Health, including John Alden Life Insurance Co. and Time Insurance Co.

Senate Panel Kills Tanning Bill

BOISE • A Senate committee has fried an attempt to restrict tanning bed use for Idaho youths.

The Senate Health and Welfare Committee voted 5-3 Thursday to kill the plan, which would bar anyone under 15 from using tanning salons and require parental consent for teens between ages 16 and 18.

The bill, which had wide support from medical professionals and organizations, passed the House after a string of amendments.

Parma Sen. Melinda Smyser opposed the bill, saying parents should regulate their children's behavior — not the government.

Sheriff Tries to Thwart Mug Shot Websites

BOISE • The Ada County sheriff's office is adding watermarks to the mug shots it posts on its website to discourage the "extortion-like activity" of other websites that copy booking photos and include links to a vendor that charges a fee to remove them.

Officials say the sheriff's department logo won't be obtrusive, but will be difficult to crop or remove.

Sheriff Gary Raney says he started posting booking photos on the Internet in 2003 as a deterrent to crime. But he says websites like BoiseMugshots.com engage in "extortion-like activity."

Boise Co. to Sue Tax Commission

BOISE • Boise County is poised to sue the state tax commission for blocking the county's plan to raise taxes to pay off a legal debt.

County commissioners passed a resolution this week authorizing a legal fight with the state agency. The Idaho Statesman reports their timeline for filing the case.

The lawsuit is a last step for the county.

Last year, a federal judge told commissioners to raise taxes above state limits to pay off a $5.4 million judgment. The judge also told the county to sue the Idaho State Tax Commission if it denied the tax increase.

House Passes Brewery Bill

BOISE • Small breweries in Idaho can pop the celebratory bottle of beer as House lawmakers have passed a plan that would lift restrictions on investing in more than one company that brews beer.

The Spokesman-Review reports the House voted 58-5 in favor of the measure, which now heads to Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's desk.

Dumping the antiquated measure could generate 25 new jobs initially by letting brewers who make less than 30,000 barrels of beer per year expand.

Cigarette Bill Passes Senate

BOISE • Idaho lawmakers have passed a bill restricting "roll-your-own" cigarette operations that they fear could jeopardize state settlements with tobacco companies.

The Senate voted 30-3 to pass the legislation, which would enact a strict permitting process for the swelling industry of ATM-sized machines that cost up to $35,000 and can spit out hundreds of cigarettes in minutes.

The bill awaits Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's approval.

The machines haven't emerged in Idaho yet. But Huston Sen. Patti Lodge says the state should be proactive.

Judge: Sea Lion Killings to Save Salmon Can Resume

BY JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

Oregon state authorities can resume killing California sea lions that feast on endangered salmon bottled up at a dam on the Columbia River, but fewer than one-third as many as federal biologists previously had authorized, a judge ruled Thursday.

U.S. District Judge James E. Boasberg in Washington, D.C., denied the Humane Society of the United States request to stop the killing at the Bonneville Dam while a lawsuit challenging the program goes forward. But he limited the killing to 30 animals a year instead of the 92 authorized by federal authorities, and ordered that none of them may be shot.

"The case will go forward, and we feel we have a very strong case in the end," Humane Society marine program leader Sharon Young said of their third attempt to permanently halt the killings since they started in 2008.

The floating traps are out and if any of the 92 California sea lions branded as regular salmon eaters are seen inside them, the gates will be sprung, and the animals killed by lethal injection, said Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife spokeswoman Jessica Sall. She said they have no plans to shoot any animals. California sea lions that hang around the dams eat salmon, and refuse to leave despite hazing by rubber bullets and firecrackers, go on a kill list.

Adult salmon and steelhead returning to spawn get bottled up at the fish ladders over Bonneville, located east of Portland, Ore. California sea lions, which are federally protected as marine mammals, but not as threatened or endangered species, swim about 145 miles upriver to the dam to feed on the fish in the spring.

The limits imposed by the judge should not pose a problem, Sall said. The department did not anticipate killing more than 30 animals in any one year. Over the past four years, only 41 have been trapped and killed or sent to a zoo or aquarium. The current authorization from NOAA Fisheries Service is good for four years.

The Humane Society lawsuit contends that the NOAA Fisheries Service erred when it decided that sea lions eating up to 4.2 percent of the fish passing over the dam amounted to a significant obstacle to the restoration of endangered salmon, when fishermen are allowed to take up to 17 percent. It adds that killing sea lions will have no effect on restoring salmon, which face a greater threat from fishermen and predation by walleye and bass introduced into the river for sport fishermen to catch.

The department, a co-defendant in the case, counters that while sea lions kill some protected salmon, fishermen are only allowed to kill hatchery-bred fish. The department says it is able to estimate how many wild fish die after being released, and to shut down the season if necessary.

House OK Push to Enshrine Hunting in Constitution

BOISE (AP) • Idaho residents love their hunting, but is it a constitutional right?

They may get to decide come next November.

That's after the House on Thursday passed a measure to put the question of whether hunting, fishing and trapping should be enshrined in Idaho's founding document to a popular vote.

The resolution, sponsored by Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, goes to the Senate.

Its proponents say hunting should be enshrined along with freedom of speech and religion.

That's because some fear radical animal-rights groups could descend on Idaho to put limits on what for many is a pastime they've enjoyed since childhood.

OUR VIEW

It's Time for Wind to Fend for Itself

How much are you paying for those wind turbines down the road? Idaho Power claims it's a lot. The electric utility has asked the state Public Utilities Commission for a number of changes to how Idaho interprets the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act — federal law that requires electric utilities to buy energy from small-scale renewable energy projects that want to hook up to their systems.

Since 2009, wind projects hooking up to the company's system under the law have spiked from less than 300 megawatts to nearly 1,000 MW. Idaho Power is obligated to accept them, paying a rate set

At Issue:

Wind energy developers are costing Idaho.

Our View:

The state must overhaul an outdated system.

by the state. Concerningly, wind developers — both small startups and large corporations — have shown no compunction about breaking up proposed wind farms into oddly tiny chunks to get them under the 100 kilowatt (formerly 1 megawatt) cap to qualify for PURPA.

Ratepayers will fork over tens of millions of dollars a year for that wind energy, Idaho Power argues.

The company wants a switch to basing PURPA prices for all types of energy on the value and need for that energy source. It also seeks the ability, at times of low energy demand, to turn off the wind in favor of cheaper power like its existing hydropower network.

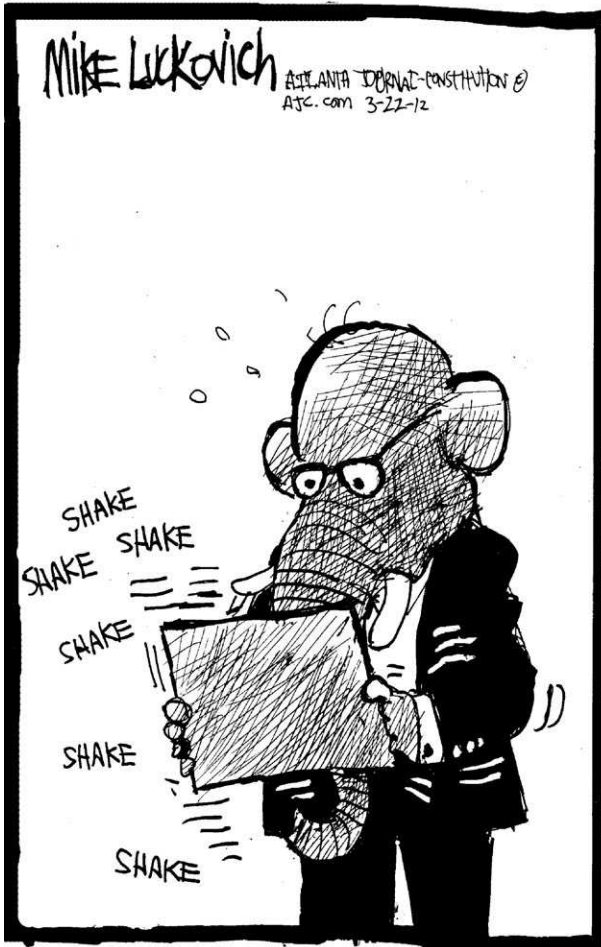

Wind supporters, naturally, don't like the idea. Brian Jackson, president of American Wind Group, told Times-News reporter Kimberlee Kruesi that Idaho Power's request is an attack on wind energy. The federal backing of PURPA allows wind developers to go up against large utilities, he said. “In a national and global energy crisis, I say we need to be doing more.”

There are at least two things wrong with that. Supporting fair competition on the energy market is one thing, but we can't believe PURPA was intended to give one energy source a stranglehold on ratepayers who have few other choices. And the problem is that Idaho Power's network has plenty of energy; with the current market, it often must sell the wind power at a loss.

That's not to say the entire wind industry needs thrown out the window. Complete moratoriums on wind development proposed this legislative session would have been overkill, akin to attacking a pesky gnat with a sledgehammer.

Idaho Power's past antipathy toward wind power hasn't always seemed justified. But this time, the state's largest energy provider has a point. Wind developers are clearly gaming the existing PURPA system, and ratepayers shouldn't be forced to spend millions extra on them — especially fresh out of a recession.

After years of price supports and federal and state incentives, wind power should begin to stand on its own two feet. And state regulators should do their part to help that happen. The results will benefit both the industry and Idahoans.

County May Restrict Shooting at Snake River Canyon Park

John J. Fisher: “That area has been trashed for decades despite a yearly cleanup by a local off-road club. The ONLY cure is a police presence AND hefty fines. Twin Falls Sheriff Responds to Budget Concerns

Having read the letter to the editor published March 16 concerning the budget of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, I felt I should respond with accurate information regarding the budget process.

The budget for the upcoming year is prepared in April and May of the current year and sent to the county clerk's office for comprehensive review by the board of county commissioners. Public hearings are held before the commissioners approve a final budget.

The first budget I dealt with was prepared by the prior administration. At the end of the fiscal year, all remaining funds were returned to the county commissioners.

Current budgets are prepared by me and members of my senior staff, including the chief and three captains of the sheriff's office. Capt. Tim Miller, commander of the Civil Division of the department, also serves as my budget director.

We, as the staff, scrutinize the budget expenditures at weekly staff meetings to ensure our fiscal goals are achieved and, as a responsible steward of my department's tax dollars, all excess funds are returned to the county commissioners.

I believe in absolute transparency, and am always available to answer any questions people may have about the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office. Thank you.

When Will Liberals Start to Act Responsibly?

To wife, mother, sister, aunt and liberal Democrat:

As a man, I have a question for liberals.

When will you start taking responsibility for your own actions? If you happen to get pregnant, how about you quit relying on the government (taxpayers) to bail you out with WIC, Medicaid, child care, adoptions and foster care programs? How about manning or womening up to your own actions?

As a grandparent myself, I freely and willingly help with my grandkids. The government (taxpayers) isn't responsible to pad my wallet.

In the case of rape or eminent death, the mother and father or doctor would have to make that choice. Abortion is the killing of a child. I'm all for government getting out of our private lives and, as far as it being equal, it is. Men can keep the Viagra in their pants and, women, keep your pants on.

WHAT MAKES GASOLINE PRICES RISE?

BY JONATHAN FAHEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) • Watching the numbers on the gas pump tick ever higher can boil the blood and lead the mind to wonder: Why are gasoline prices so high?

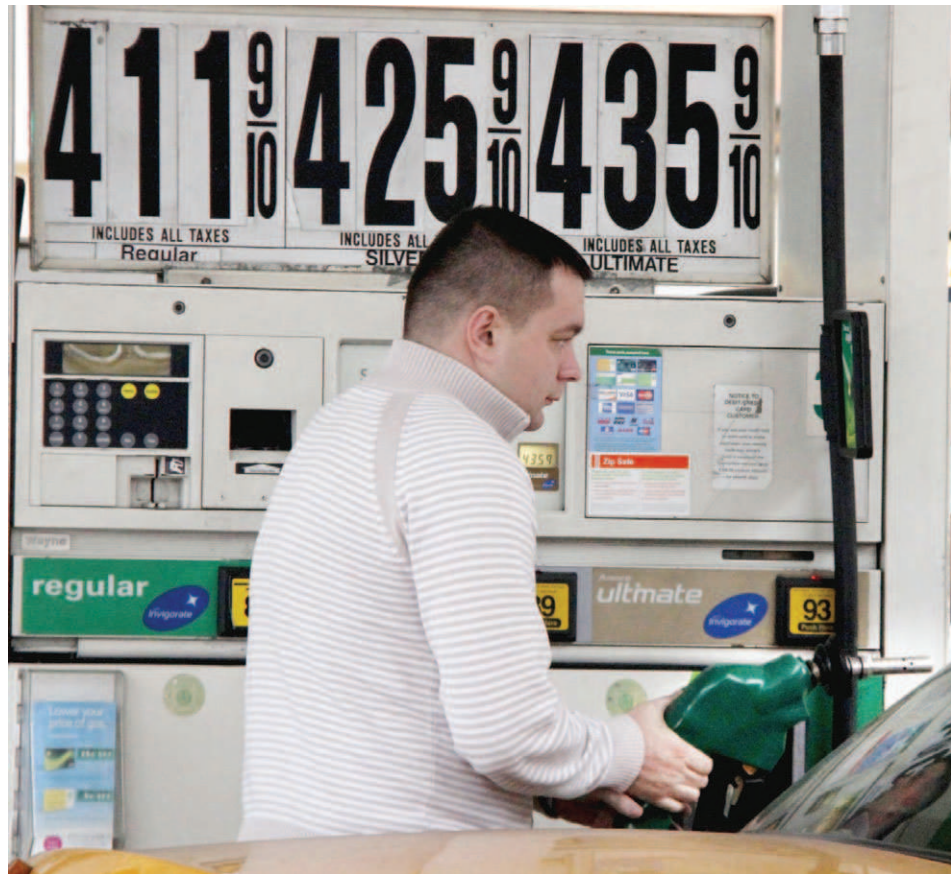

Many stand accused, including oil companies, the president, Congress, and speculators on Wall Street. Others assume that the earth is just running out of oil.

The reality, economists say, is fairly simple, but it isn't very satisfying for a driver looking for someone to blame for his $75 fill-up. Last year, the average price of gasoline was higher than ever, and it hasn't gotten any better this year. The average price nationwide is $3.88 per gallon, the highest ever for March. Ten states and the District of Columbia are paying more than $4.

What determines the price of gasoline?

Mainly, it's the price of crude oil, which is used to make gasoline. Oil is a global commodity, traded on exchanges around the world. The main U.S. oil benchmark has averaged $103 per barrel this year. The oil used to make gasoline at many U.S. coastal refineries has averaged $117 per barrel.

Oil prices have been high in recent months because global oil demand is expected to reach a record this year as the developing nations of Asia,

Latin America and the Middle East increase their need for oil. There have also been minor supply disruptions in South Sudan, Syria and Nigeria. And oil prices have been pushed higher by traders worried that nuclear tensions with Iran could lead to more dramatic supply disruptions. Iran is the world's third largest exporter.

How are prices set?

When an oil producer sells to a refiner, they generally agree to a price set on an exchange such as the New York Mercantile Exchange. After the oil is refined into gasoline, it is sold by the refiner to a distributor, again pegged to the price of wholesale gasoline on an exchange.

Finally, gas station owners set their own prices based on how much they paid for their last shipment, how much they will have to pay for their next shipment, and, perhaps most importantly, how much their competitor is charging. Gas stations make very little profit on the sale of gasoline. They want to lure drivers into their convenience stores to buy coffee and soda.

Insurers Speed Health Care Overhaul Preparations

BY TOM MURPHY
Associated Press

The nation's big insurers are spending millions to carry out President Barack Obama's health care overhaul even though there's a chance the wide-reaching law won't survive Supreme Court scrutiny.

It's not that health insurance companies want to bet big that the court will uphold the Affordable Care Act, but they can't afford not to. It will take at least several months and lots of resources for insurers to prepare to implement key elements of the law, which includes a controversial requirement that most Americans have health insurance by 2014.

WellPoint Inc., the nation's second-largest health insurer with 34 million members, has said it will spend $100 million this year on technology upgrades to meet the law's requirements. Aetna Inc., third-largest U.S. health insurer with more than 18 million members, says it expects to spend $50 million this year in part to upgrade software and computers.

Even smaller insurers like Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, a private company with 4 million members, are spending big. This year, the company, which employs 7,000 people, plans to add about 100 employees and spend nearly $20 million.

The law calls for big changes in the number of people receiving coverage, what must be covered and who pays for it, so insurers that don't prepare until after the court's ruling, expected in late June, will run short on time, said Kirk Roy, vice president of national health reform with Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

"Waiting is too big a business risk for any insurer," said Roy, who was promoted to his current job shortly after the overhaul became law in 2010.

The Supreme Court will hear arguments over the law for three days starting Monday. Among other options, the justices could uphold the law, strike it down completely or get rid of some provisions.

Insurers will be paying particular attention to arguments over two key provisions. One is the so-called individual mandate that requires most people to carry health insurance by 2014 or pay penalties. Of equally high interest is the requirement that insurers cover everyone who applies even if they have a pre-existing condition, like diabetes, which can produce high medical costs.

The two mandates are important cogs in the law's push to expand coverage through health insurance exchanges set up by federal and state regulators. These exchanges will be mostly online marketplaces, where individuals and small business employees can go to comparison shop for insurance policies. Insurers are spending money to figure out how to set prices for their coverage on these exchanges, which will vary by state and require changes like the inclusion of subsidies to help people pay for coverage.

Hispanic Voter Numbers Slip Even as Population Soars

BY MICHAEL E. YOUNG
The Dallas Morning News (MCT)

DALLAS • As the fastest-growing population group in the U.S. over the last decade, Hispanics seemed poised to have a huge impact on the 2012 presidential and congressional campaigns.

Why then, political experts and demographers wondered, had the number of Hispanic voters declined significantly between 2009 and 2010?

According to data from the U.S. Census Bureau's Current Population Survey, the number of Hispanic registered voters fell from 11.6 million in 2008 — a presidential election year — to 10.9 million in 2010, when congressional races led the ballot in many states. In Texas, where the Hispanic population grew by 65 percent over the previous decade, the number of registered Hispanic voters dipped from 2.4 million to 2.3 million between elections.

Experts had expected 11 million to 12 million Hispanic voters to visit the polls in November. But the survey cast serious doubts on that. Some wondered whether the economy had forced Hispanics to move to find work. Others said the drop was strictly cyclical.

While voter registration typically slips in nonpresidential years, some experts say the scope of the 2010 declines were completely unexpected at a time when the overall Hispanic population in the U.S. continued to soar.

From 2000 to 2010, the number of Hispanics in the U.S. jumped from 35.3 million to 50.5 million, a growth rate of 43 percent. Hispanics made up 16 percent of the U.S. population in 2010, and 37.6 percent in Texas, which added 2.8 million Hispanics over the decade.

And the decline was evident in Texas even before the controversial voter ID law that the Justice Department blocked last week amid worries that it could discourage registration among Hispanics.

Mont. Judge Blocks more Yellowstone Bison Moves

BY MATTHEW BROWN
Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • A Montana judge granted a restraining order Thursday blocking further relocations of Yellowstone National Park bison following objections from ranchers and property rights groups. State District Judge John McKeon's order came after Gov. Brian Schweitzer's administration transferred 62 Yellowstone bison to the Fort Peck Reservation on Monday.

Four more bison were en route to the reservation Thursday. Opponents tried to get the shipment turned around, but state officials claimed the transfer started before the restraining order was issued. Officials suggested turning the bison around could be harmful to the animals, according to court documents.

Despite the new shipment, McKeon's ruling presents a significant stumbling block in the longstanding effort by tribes and agencies to reintroduce bison to parts of their former range.

Half of the Fort Peck animals were to be transported from a holding pen in coming months to the Fort Belknap Reservation. Another group of bison was being held temporarily on the Bozeman-area ranch of billionaire Ted Turner, awaiting future relocation to an undetermined location.

The judge blocked those transfers, at least for now, and turned down a request to return the animals to the Yellowstone area while setting a hearing for April 11 at the Blaine County Courthouse in Chinook.

Ranchers and others who filed a lawsuit seeking to halt the relocation program argue that wild bison damage fences, eat hay meant for cattle, and potentially could spread animal diseases.

Members of the Fort Peck and Fort Belknap tribes have pledged to keep the bison in fenced pastures for several years and monitor them for disease.

The 62 bison shipped to Fort Peck were moved without prior public notice and during a snowstorm — a maneuver by the Schweitzer administration and tribes that was meant to get the bison to Fort Peck ahead of a possible court ruling such as the one handed down Thursday.

lasquez Institute and the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, blamed the recession for the decline in registered voters, especially the housing bubble and foreclosure crisis, which forced many Hispanics to move to find work.

That certainly could be a factor, agreed Mark Lopez, associate director of the Pew Hispanic Center in Washington, D.C., but probably isn't the only one.

"The general trend in mid-term elections is you have fewer people participating and fewer registering to vote," Lopez said. "We've seen that trend before with Latinos. You can see it for whites, blacks and Asians, too."

Clarissa Martinez, director of immigration and civic engagement for the National Council of La Raza, said the bottom line is simple: Government, the major political parties and other groups haven't done nearly enough to register qualified Hispanics to vote.

While the number of registered voters fell after a presidential election, a comparison of midterm elections shows consistent growth in the number of Hispanic voters. Presidential elections show the same, she said.

"If the present patterns remain constant with what we saw in the 2004 and 2008 elections, you could project about 2.75 million Hispanics in Texas registered to vote in 2012," she said, a significant increase over the 2.4 million who were registered for the last presidential campaign.

But that requires "hard work and resources," Martinez said, to draw more voters and to overcome potential pitfalls in Hispanic demographics.

Significantly younger than the nation at large, Hispanics add 50,000 to 60,000 or more potential voters a year as people turn 18, Lopez said. Trouble is, young people are less likely to vote or even register to vote than any other group.

"They're 18," Lopez said. "They might not even know where to go to vote, or to register."

Home Beer Brewers Seek Changes to Alcohol Laws

BY BARBARA RODRIGUEZ
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. • About the only thing Kevin Flynn enjoys more than drinking his home-brewed beer is sharing it with fellow beer club members at festivals and tasting competitions. So Flynn and his buddies were shocked to discover that Wisconsin law prohibits sharing homemade suds anywhere outside the brewer's home.

The law could "pretty much be the end of competitions in Wisconsin," he lamented. "At least legal ones."

An explosion of interest in home brewing is forcing lawmakers across the country to review long-forgotten alcohol laws, some of which date back to Prohibition. Although the old rules have rarely been enforced, beer enthusiasts fear they could criminalize the rapidly growing hobby and kill scores of annual tasting events that bring tourists to small towns and cities.

In Wisconsin, Flynn and other home brewers may soon be off the hook. The state Legislature last week passed a bill to allow them to transport homemade beer and wine and to share it with other adults. Brewers will still not be permitted to sell anything they make, and they will remain exempt from permit requirements and taxes.

The proposal now heads to Gov. Scott Walker, who plans to sign it into law.

At least 17 states have ambiguous laws on whether home brewers can transport beer or wine outside the home, according to the American Homebrewers Association in Boulder, Colo.

The patchwork of rules can be frustrating for hobbyists who would prefer to spend their time exchanging recipes for pale ale or rhapsodizing about different varieties of hops, barley and yeast.

Some states — including Georgia and South Carolina — have restrictions similar to Wisconsin's. In Kansas and Minnesota, home brewers can only make beverages for themselves or family members. Other states permit homemade beer and wine to be consumed by guests, too, as in Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho and Illinois.

Piracy Fighters Use Floating Armories

BY KATHARINE HOURELD

Associated Press

NAIROBI, Kenya • Private security firms are storing their guns aboard floating armories in international waters so ships that want armed anti-piracy guards for East Africa's pirate-infested waters can cut costs and circumvent laws limiting the import and export of weapons, industry officials say.

Companies and legal experts say the operation of the armories is a "legal gray area" because few, if any, governments have laws governing the practice. Some security companies have simply not informed the governments of the flag their ship is flying, industry officials said.

Some members of the private security sector are urging governments and industry leaders to impose standards on the unchecked practice of storing weapons offshore to equip anti-pirate forces off Somalia's coast.

Storing guns on boats offshore really took off as a business last year. Britain — where many of the operators are from — is investigating the legality of the practice, which has received little publicity outside of shipping industry circles.

Floating armories have become a viable business in the wake of increased security practices by the maritime industry, which has struggled for years to combat attacks by Somali pirates. But those in the industry say the standards vary widely.

Governments and industry leaders "need to urgently address standards for floating armories and get flag state approval," said Nick Davis of the Maritime Guard Group "Everything has got to be secured correctly, recorded, bonded, the correct locks, and so on. It's not just a case of find a room, put some weapons in it and everybody chill out." Some floating armories did not have proper storage for weapons, enough watchmen, or enough space for guards to sleep indoors, forcing them to sleep on deck, he said.

In the absence of applicable laws, he said, "companies are just being economical with the truth."

Davis said his company operates two tugs as floating armories and carefully maintains log books for his company's hundreds of weapons and records for each shot fired. He did not allow other companies to rent out space on his tugs because of regulatory problems, he said, but hopes to do so soon and has sent out advertisements.

"Ships have to use armed guards, yet none of the governments want to provide an ethical and accountable way of using firearms," he said.

There are between 10 and 12 ships operating as floating armories at any one time. About half a dozen are located in the Red Sea, three off the United Arab Emirates and a couple off the island nation of Madagascar, said Thomas Jakobsson of Sea Marshals Ltd.

"Many companies are too small to be able to comply with regulations. It costs a lot of money," he said. His company only used floating armories licensed by the Djibouti government and flew the flag of landlocked Mongolia, he said. He believed most of the rest were not operating legally, he said.

The increase in the use of floating armories comes amid a rise in the number of shoot-outs between suspected pirates and private security companies. In February, two Italian marines shot and killed two Indian fishermen the Italians had mistaken for pirates. The investigation may set legal precedents for future shootings by armed ship guards.

French Standoff Ends with Suspect Shot in the Head

BY SARAH DILORENZO AND JOHANNA DECORSE

Associated Press

TOULOUSE, France • In a dramatic end to a 32-hour standoff, a masked French SWAT team slipped into the apartment of an Islamist extremist Thursday, sparking a firefight that ended with the suspect jumping out the window and being fatally shot in the head.

Mohamed Merah, 23, was wanted in the deaths of three French paratroopers, three Jewish schoolchildren and a rabbi — all killed since March 11 in what Merah reportedly told police was an attempt to "bring France to its knees."

Police had been trying to capture him alive since a predawn raid Wednesday to arrest him at his apartment in the southwestern city of Toulouse. The killings he was accused of — and boasted about to police — have shocked France, ignited fear in moderate Muslims about stoking discrimination and may even affect the country's upcoming presidential election.

The seven slayings, carried out in three motorcycle shooting attacks, are believed to be the first killings inspired by Islamic radical motives in France since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

French President Nicolas Sarkozy, speaking in Paris, said an investigation was under way to see if Merah, a French citizen of Algerian descent who claimed links to al-Qaida, had any accomplices.

His mother and a brother were detained Wednesday by police after the mother's computer became a critical link in tracking Merah down. The brother Abdelkader had already been linked to Iraqi Islamist networks.

The SITE Intelligence Group, which monitors Internet messages, reported Thursday that a lesser-known jihadist group was claiming responsibility for the attacks in France. SITE said Jum al-Khilafah issued a statement saying "Yusuf of France" led an attack Monday, the day of Jewish school shootings. There was no independent confirmation of the claim.

One top French counterterrorism official said on condition of anonymity because he wasn't authorized to speak to the media that the claim of responsibility could be "opportunistic," but said authorities were looking into it. Three other Interior Ministry officials declined immediate comment.

Authorities said Merah espoused a radical form of Islam and had been to Afghanistan and the Pakistani militant stronghold of Waziristan, where he claimed to have received training from al-Qaida. He also had a long record of petty crimes in France for which he served time in prison.

A U.S. counterterrorism official says Merah was on the list of known or suspected terrorists who are prohibited from flying to the U.S. The counterterrorism official, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss the ongoing investigation, says Merah had been on the no-fly list since 2010. The list includes thousands of known or suspected terrorists.

Merah told negotiators he killed to avenge the deaths of Palestinian children and to protest the French army's involvement in Afghanistan.

After initially agreeing to surrender, Merah declared he would resist and that it would be either them or him.

"If it's me, who cares? I'll go to paradise," Prosecutor Francois Molins quoted Merah as saying.

Molins said Merah burst out of his bathroom when police gingerly entered his apartment Thursday morning, wildly firing his gun about 30 times before jumping out an apartment window.

The Return of Rationing?

An election-year House vote targets an Obamacare provision using an old specter.

BY RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVAR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • House Republicans resurrected the specter of Medicare rationing Thursday in an election-year vote to repeal cost controls in President Barack Obama's health care overhaul.

In the GOP crosshairs is a board that has yet to be named but would be empowered to force cuts to drug companies, insurers and other service providers if Medicare spending balloons. A Republican plan announced this week, laying down a dividing line between the parties, also would limit Medicare cost increases, but it would rely on competition among private insurance plans.

GOP lawmakers are hoping their symbolic 223-181 vote on Thursday to repeal the Independent Payment Advisory Board will help persuade senators that Republicans, not Democrats, are the best stewards of Medicare.

The bill is likely to hit a dead end in the Senate. House Republicans all but guaranteed that when they paired the board repeal with caps on medical malpractice awards, which most Democrats oppose. The White House has issued a veto threat.

If it all sounds like a debate among Washington insiders, Rep. Jack Kingston, R-Ga., says he will have no trouble explaining to constituents why he voted to repeal the cost-cutting board.

"Do you remember death panels?" said Kingston, referring to the debunked accusation by former GOP vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin that Obama's health care law would allow the government to withhold life-saving care from the elderly.

"It's not necessarily a death panel, but it is a rationing panel and rationing does lead to scarcity for some," he added. "Who's going to get the needed treatment, an 85-year-old or the 40-year-old with children?"

The health care law explicitly bars the board from rationing care, shifting costs to Medicare recipients or cutting their benefits. But critics say squeezing service providers will stifle medical innovation, achieving a similar result.

Many House Democrats also oppose the board — dubbed IPAB for its initials — but for different reasons. They feel it diminishes the role of Congress. But Republicans made it difficult to attract Democratic votes for repeal by adding other politically charged provisions to their bill.

BY JOHN SEEWER

Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio • Pushed to the bottom of the toy box by video games and other high-tech gadgets, Etch A Sketch is suddenly drawing lots of attention, thanks to a gaffe that has shaken up the race for the White House.

Ohio Art Co., maker of the classic baby boomer toy, is sending a big box of Etch A Sketches to the presidential campaigns to say thanks for the publicity and a boost in sales.

It all started when Mitt Romney strategist Eric Fehrnstrom was asked Wednesday about the candidate's politics now versus next fall, and he likened the campaign to an Etch A Sketch: "You can kind of shake it up and we start all over again."

Democrats and Republicans alike seized on the remark as evidence that Romney is a flip-flopper willing to alter his positions for political gain.

GOP rival Newt Gingrich told voters in Louisiana that "having an Etch A Sketch as your campaign model raises every doubt about where we're going." Rick Santorum brandished an Etch A Sketch and told voters he is a candidate who stands "firmly on the rocks of freedom, not on the sands of an Etch A Sketch toy." Santorum's staff also handed out miniature Etch A Sketches to reporters.

Santorum's Best Shot: Winning Iowa Caucus — Again

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Rick Santorum is falling so far behind Mitt Romney in the race for Republican delegates that his best chance might be in states that voted weeks ago.

The chief rival to the front-running Romney, Santorum is trying to improve his lot in places like Iowa and Washington, where local caucuses were just the first step in determining delegates to the Republican National Convention. In those states and a few others, supporters are now preparing for county, congressional district and state conventions, where the campaigns hope to keep their delegates — and possibly poach some from other candidates.

Santorum's delegate count could use a boost. He trails Romney by 300 and would need to win 74 percent of the delegates in the remaining primaries to clinch the nomination before the national convention in August. So far, Santorum is winning just 27 percent, according to the tally by The Associated Press.

Nov. 2, 1921-March 20, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Barbara Ann LaJeunesse was born to Dale Udy and Maude Erickson on Nov. 2, 1921, in Elba, Idaho. She passed away Tuesday, March 20, 2012, at Bridgeview Estates in Twin Falls, ID at the age of 90 with her daughters by her side.

She was raised and attended schools in Albion and, after graduation, attended Albion State Normal school in the fall of 1939 and graduated in the spring of 1941. During her senior year, she met Jay G. LaJeunesse of Eden, Idaho, and they were married on Friday, June 13, 1941. Jay planned to return to school, but the war changed their plans and they moved to California for the winter and returned to Albion in the spring of 1942, where he re-entered school.

Barbara began teaching at the Eden school until 1948, when both she and Jay began teaching for the Snake River School District (west of Blackfoot) where she served as a teacher. She later became the librarian at Hansen High School, a position she held for 29 years. In addition to her title as librarian, she also served as a P.E. instructor, track coach, tumbling team coach and lifetime sports instructor. Her many positions earned her the nickname of "Teach."

In 1961, Barbara received her B.A. in secondary education from Idaho State University. After 36 years of teaching, she retired in 1982 to spend time with family. She lost her only son, Kenneth, in 1987 due to head injuries sustained in a truck accident. Loah Lee Fancher Allred

May 14, 1934-March 20, 2012

KIMBERLY • Loah Lee Fancher Allred, 77, passed away Tuesday, March 20, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, with her family at her side after a valiant fight with multiple myeloma cancer.

Loah was born May 14, 1934, in Kimberly, to Albert and Juanita Fancher. The Fancher family moved throughout Magic Valley during the Depression and worked as farmers. Loah and her sister, Shirley (Gorrell), attended schools at Kimberly, Bickel in Twin Falls, Russell Lane in Eden, Moroa, Tuttle and Gooding. After her father's death in 1947, Loah and her mother moved to Boise, where she boarded and finished high school at St. Teresa's Academy. She attended college for a year and half at Idaho State College in Pocatello. During one of her Christmas breaks, she went to Sun Valley and loved it so much and enjoyed watching the celebrities that she went to work there and never returned to school. She returned to Boise with her mother, where in the spring of 1955 she met Joe Allred at Murray's Drive Inn, which led to their marriage on Sept. 3 of that same year. They raised a son and four daughters before moving to Teton Valley in 1973.

In 1978, the family built a cedar log house in Alta, Wyo., where they lived for 22 years. She worked at Grand Targhee Ski Resort for a few years and, in the meantime, they became restaurateurs in Driggs. The Cedar Tree Restaurant and Tavern later became Joe's Place and provided many wonderful meals and memories for friends and family over the next 25 years. They sold the restaurant in 1999 and retired but stayed one more winter to ski and shovel snow.

They moved to the Pleasant Valley Golf Course community south of Kimberly to be near her mother, Juanita Gilmore, for the last few years of her life. Loah worked in the club house until she got cancer in mid-2008. Her treatment at the Huntsman Cancer Institute and Mountain States Tumor Institute (MSTI) involved multiple stem cell transplants and many treatments over the past four years.

She loved both downhill and cross-country skiing. She was a gourmet chef of epic proportions and loved to entertain all who came to their home or restaurant. She was able to travel throughout much of Europe, which was a dream come true. Her yard and gardens were works of art when they were tended to by her loving hands. Her creative talents included painting, producing fabulous pieces of stained glass and sewing many treasures over the years for friends and family.

Loah is survived by her husband, Joe Allred; one son, Jeb Allred (Pam) of Payette; daughters, Melissa Nieters (Dave) of Pocatello, Stacey Hastings and Leslie Smith (Julian) of Springfield, Ill., and Dani Allred, (John Lawless) of Teton Valley; and sister, Shirley Gorrell of Twin Falls. Her parents preceded her in death.

A celebration of life service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 24, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made in Loah's name to MSTI in Twin Falls.

The family would like to express their gratitude to all of her friends and the doctors, nurses and staff at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, MSTI and the Huntsman Cancer Institute for their compassionate care giving of our mother, wife, grandmother and sister.

All services and arrangements are under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those wishing to share memories and condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Obama Pledges Quick Approval of Keystone's Southern Leg

BY CHRISTI PARSONS
Tribune Washington Bureau (MCT)

CUSHING, Okla. • President Obama said Thursday morning that his administration has assured the builder of the Keystone pipeline that the federal government will promptly review the southern leg of the project, which the company hopes to start building this summer.

"The southern leg of it, we're making a priority," Obama told a crowd of company officials, pipe workers and community members gathered here at the starting point of this stretch of the project.

The northern part of the project, Obama said, "we're going to have to review to make sure that the health and safety of the American people are protected."

The Obama administration has denied a permit for that northern pipeline, opposed by environmentalists because the original plans would have run it through environmentally sensitive lands.

Republicans questioned whether the president's expedited review would actually advance the southern part of the project from Cushing to Port Arthur, Texas.

forward with a southern portion of (the pipeline) that doesn't require Mr. Obama's signature," said Brendan Buck, spokesman for House Speaker John A. Boehner. "So cue the political opportunism."

Officials of TransCanada, the builder of the pipeline, were present at the event but declined to comment. After the White House announced presidential directives Wednesday to expedite the project, a company official said they didn't expect the development to speed up the project.

While Obama may not have the power to move up the start date, he could delay it. The project still needs final approval from at least one federal agency, which could slow things up if the administration had a concern.

On Thursday, Obama signaled that he likes the project — and, in fact, sees the advancement of the pipeline as politically advantageous.

This is "an oil town," Obama told the cheering crowd.

"Producing more oil and gas here at home has been and will continue to be a critical part of an all-of-the-above strategy" to meeting America's energy needs, he said.

Anonymous Hackers Block Sites for Pope's Mexico Visit

MEXICO CITY (AP) • The hacker group Anonymous in Mexico has crashed at least two of the websites for Pope Benedict XVI's upcoming visit to Mexico.

The Mexican Episcopal Conference says its web page on the papal visit has been blocked by "a cyber attack."

Conference spokesman Samuel Najera says the Internet attacks show intolerance and have hurt logistics efforts for the visit.

The Anonymous Ibero-America website claimed responsibility for attacking that page Thursday as well as the website of the government of Guanajuato state, where the pope will visit starting Friday.

Anonymous Mexico says in a video posted on social media sites that the pope's visit is meant to support the conservative National Action Party in the July 1 presidential election.

Stocks Lower on China Worries

NEW YORK (AP) • Signs that China's economy is weakening and Europe is slowing sent U.S. stocks lower. The price of crude oil dropped 2 percent Thursday to its lowest level in a week. That hurt oil stocks. The disconcerting economic news from overseas overshadowed other reports that suggested the U.S. economy is gaining momentum. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 78.48 points, or 0.6 percent, at 13,046.14. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 10.11, or 0.7 percent, at 1,392.78, while the Nasdaq composite index fell 12 points, or 0.4 percent to 3,063.32.

Bernanke: Economy Lacks Strength to Sustain Gains

WASHINGTON (AP) • There is still not enough spending and investment to sustain the economic recovery, Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke said Thursday. Bernanke said consumer demand remains weak relative to its level before the Great Recession. He noted that other contributors to economic growth — including borrowing and trade — have declined. “Consumer spending has not ... recovered. It's still quite weak relative to where it was before the crisis,” Bernanke said in the second of four lectures he is giving to George Washington University students this month. His comments provided further insight into the reasoning behind the Fed's plan to hold short-term interest rates near zero through 2014.

Business Leaders Honored for Giving Back to Community

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • In Twin Falls, working behind the scenes doesn't go unnoticed. On Thursday at its Business Day Luncheon, the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce recognized three business leaders for giving back to the community.

Toma Bartlett was awarded Person of the Year for initiating the planning of an Idaho Army National Guard 116th Brigade Combat Team homecoming ceremony. The Person of the Year award is given out annually by the chamber.

“Before the troops got deployed, we had a celebration for them,” said Bartlett, manager of the Pressbox Sports Bar and Grill. “But as time went by, I hadn't heard anything about doing something when they came back.”

Working in a narrow window of time, Bartlett — who is a Coast Guard veteran — set off to plan a simple but meaningful event that honored the troops' return.

As word spread about what Bartlett was doing, the event jumped from a small park celebration to a formal ceremony with more than 200 people attending.

At Thursday's luncheon, the chamber also awarded three of its members with lifetime achievement awards.

All recipients were chosen for their involvement throughout the city and chamber, said Chamber President and CEO Shawn Barigar. Lifetime achievement awards recognize members involved in the community for 10 years or longer.

“These awards recognize members of our community making the Twin Falls area the great place it is in which to live and do business,” Barigar said while handing out the awards.

Lifetime awardees included Cindy Collins, co-owner of Prudential; Kent Just, former head of the Chamber of Commerce; and John Rosholt, a retired Twin Falls attorney.

Barigar did not alert the recipients in advanced that they were being awarded — a decision that almost led one person to miss the event.

“I actually forgot to book my lunch early and when I called to see if there was a spot left, I was surprised to hear that I already had a ticket,” Collins said. “I didn't even put it together.”

Auditors Find Filer Mutual's Finances in Good Shape

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
For the Times-News

FILER • An audit of Filer Mutual Telephone's 2012 financial records showed a company in solid financial position, despite dips in assets and operating revenue.

Daniel Owens, from Minnesota-based accountants Olsen Thielen, outlined the company's finances during Filer Mutual's annual meeting, held Tuesday.

“We gave a clean audit report and that's the best opinion you can have,” Owens said. “Things look in pretty good shape.”

He drew attention to a slight reduction in the company's current assets from nearly $1.7 million in 2010 to almost $1.6 million last year. The drop reflects inventory purchases and timing in billing to Syringa Networks and other service carriers. Syringa Networks and Syringa Wireless, jointly owned by Filer Mutual and 11 other rural telephone companies, provides telecommunication and broadband service to a range of Idahoans.

Owens said that income from ownership in Syringa is partly responsible for Filer Mutual's investments increasing $428,000 from 2010.

A co-op owned by about 1,659 customers, Filer Mutual's services are landline and cellphone access, DSL Internet and television packages. Internet services revenue grew from $733,000 in 2010 to $817,000 last year, though operating revenue dipped from $5.5 million to nearly $5.3 million.

“We're trying to be proactive and provide customers with services you need.”

Filer Mutual General Manager Steve Cowger

Filer Mutual General Manager Steve Cowger reported that $2.4 million in plant expansions and industry changes required employees and board members to complete 1,700 hours of additional training last year.

“We're trying to be proactive and provide customers with services you need,” Cowger said, “We try to make sure our people receive enough training each year so they are able to answer your questions.”

Expansions included extending the company's fiber optic reach and focusing on the growing wireless broadband market, which is serving western Magic Valley communities, with planned expansion into Castleford.

Filer Mutual has also started a computer repair and technical support business called the Tech Team. The company will hold an April 20-21 technology expo at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds in Filer. Also Tuesday, Bill Baker and Clark Kauffman were both re-elected to three-year terms on the company's board.

John E. Swayze can be reached at 326-7212 or idahocolumninch@aol.com.

Nike's 3rd-quarter profit • Nike says its third-quarter net income rose 7 percent as price increases and high demand for its sneakers and athletic gear compensated for rising costs. The results beat analysts' expectations, but higher costs for materials, labor and freight ate into the company's gross margin, or the amount of each dollar in revenue a company actually keeps. The world's largest athletic shoe and clothing company said Thursday that its net income for the quarter that ended Feb. 29 rose to $560 million, or $1.20 per share.

Report: Blaine Co. Economy Improving

Sustain Blaine presents new data that show county's downturn is bottoming out after a five-year spiral.

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Blaine County's economy is improving in terms of taxable sales, employment and tourism.

Harry Griffith, who heads up the Sustain Blaine economic development agency, presented new data to business owners during a recent economic forum focused on the county's 2011 economy.

Blaine County's economic downturn is bottoming out after a five-year spiral and seems to be recovering, according to taxable sales data, Griffith said.

“2010 seems to have been the worst year,” he said.

All sectors are showing signs of recovery, including retail, construction and housing, lodging, the restaurant sector and the grocery sector. But with construction and real estate recovering, Blaine County's dependence on tourism has increased from 46 percent of the pie to 60 percent.

There has been a modest improvement in employment, with 11,653 people employed, up from 11,471 in 2010.

But the number of businesses is down about 61 from 2010.

And Blaine County wages continue to slide — from a high of $567 million in total annual wages in 2006 to $382 million last year.

On the upside, skier counts have stabilized at about 400,000 a year, although the number of flights into the valley has decreased. Sun Valley has been courting Boise and Magic Valley skiers since the downturn, and hotel occupancy rates are improving.

Blaine County real estate markets are showing signs of life with more than 400 unit transactions made in 2011 — up from a low of about 275 in 2008 and 2009.

However, county real estate sales values are still falling, with an average of $450,000 per unit.

Blaine County's affordable housing market has withstood the housing collapse better than the free market, noted Davie Patrie, executive administrator of the Blaine County Housing Authority. Most affordable home sales are attracting the maximum resale value allowed by their deed restrictions.

For the next step, Griffith said he'd like to hold a community forum this summer to evaluate regional economic development options.

“The world is different than it was. We need to ask: What does that mean and what should we do as a result?” he said.

Doug Brown, who heads up the Wood River Economic Partnership, said he was surprised that most sectors are doing better, rather than just one or two.

“While we all know someone who is struggling anecdotally, this means that we have turned the corner economically. We've got a long way to go but it all starts with a first step,” he said.

Cowboy Humor

The Hagerman Cowboy Poetry Gathering, now in its sixth year, has quietly outgrown its venue and moved to a bigger one. The attractions? No-frills accessibility, a multistate lineup of performers and a crowd who loves the West. "The ballads, stories and poetry are all stuff everyone can relate to, whether you are a working cowboy or not," one performer said. Anyone may step up to the mic today and Saturday; just keep your rhymes clean — and short.

Visit the Past

For a thoughtful trip into the past, check out the traveling Smithsonian Institution photo exhibit that opens Saturday in Twin Falls: "The Way We Worked." You'll see immigrants working in pineapple canneries, riveters toiling in a World War I shipyard and women cutting fuses in a munitions plant — as well as images that social reformers used to fight child labor. It's a chance to ponder a few of the forces affecting Americans' everyday lives, such as ethnicity, wage laws and gender roles.

Be Mystified

Rather give your brain a rest on Saturday? Just sit back and enjoy the illusions. Magician Mike Super — winner of NBC's "Phenomenon" competition in 2007 — will perform for a Twin Falls fundraiser that benefits two seriously ill local children. If you're shy, don't draw attention to yourself. Super will probably choose spectators to levitate or disappear.

The Rock that Split

Pushed out by his old band mates, Great White's Jack Russell will bring his new rock band to a Jerome bar next week.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

JEROME • Sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll. Great White has seen it all.

The band was formed the American way, in a southern California garage, in 1978, and music television helped propel hits like "Once Bitten, Twice Shy" through its peak in 1989.

"I don't remember much from the late '80s, but I do remember rocking to that song," said fan Kari Rodriguez, 47, of Twin Falls.

Rodriguez can't wait for Great White lead singer Jack Russell's March 30 concert at Diamondz in Jerome. But Rodriguez was disappointed to find out that his original band won't be playing together. Instead, he's

SPORTS BAR SPORTSMANSHIP

In March, a culture of camaraderie and rivalry develops at Magic Valley's sports bars.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As 52 wall-mounted flat-screen televisions showed basketball games, Mike Reed and Barry Womack laughed over glasses of beer.

Their laughing stopped whenever the games got heated. Their conversation turned serious.

"I can't believe Missouri," Reed said, referring to the No. 2 seed team beaten by No. 15 seed Norfolk State Spartans during the March 16 second round of the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament.

The friends — Womack of Twin Falls, Reed of Idaho Falls — were at Buffalo Wild Wings that evening. They planned to stay at the Twin Falls sports bar until closing, watching the basketball teams compete.

Though they could have watched the March Madness games at Womack's home, they said, they're more fun in a crowd.

"It's better than sitting at home," Reed said.

One reason: With so many TVs, they can catch glimpses of different games at once. It brings friends together to share camaraderie — and sometimes rivalry — as they watch their favorite teams.

"This type of thing is good for the local economy. It really is," Reed said. "It gets people out of the house."

Some of the bar's patrons, of course, were there for reasons other than March Madness. Andres Ferriera, a former Twin Falls resident now in the Navy, was home on leave Friday and sat at a table with Noel Garibay and two other friends, catching up on old times.

None of the friends cared much for basketball, but they often come to the bar to watch Ultimate Fighting Championships. It's a good place to share beers, eat chicken wings and see the sport in a friendly atmosphere.

Sports bars also are good places to hang out with friends when weather is wet.

"Have you seen it out there?" asked Twin Falls resident Shane Black, pointing out a window at Anchor Bistro on

Tree-loving Singer Branches Out

Certified arborist Lucas Henry hopes to parlay his Magic Valley's Got Talent win into a singing and voice-acting career.

BY NATALIE DICOU
ndicou@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Lucas Henry hopes to introduce music fans to his voice. But to thousands of geraniums, daisies and juniper trees, Henry's powerful tenor is old news.

Shrubs, flowers and Lucas' favorite — woody plants — have listened to the certified arborist belt out show tunes and boy-band hits for years.

Henry, who took first place in this month's Magic Valley's Got Talent showdown, has a degree in horticulture and works at Moss Greenhouses in Jerome. He's in charge of spraying plants for fungi and bugs, and he works late into the evening when everyone's gone except the 30-year-old married dad and his leafy audience.

"I'll do entire musicals," said Henry, father of Joshua, 5, Caleb, 3, and Liza Jane, 1. Some of his favorites to perform as the chemicals fly: "The Secret Garden," "The Sound of Music" and "Pirates of Penzance."

"I obviously don't sing all the ladies' parts," he said, then added: "Well, sometimes I do."

Henry — who dropped his last name Proctor for his entertainment career — has always had passions for both plants and performance.

"When he was in middle school, he had a bonsai tree," said Andy Proctor, Henry's brother. "He took care of that thing like it was his baby."

Henry will sing the national anthem at Saturday's fundraiser for Army Pvt. Terence "Bo" Jones, who lost both legs and suffered a severe injury to his left arm in Afghanistan on Feb. 7. The fundraiser is set for 3 p.m. at Montana Steak House.

To see videos of Henry's performances, check out his website: lucashenrymusic.com.

His "Detective Dendro" podcasts will be available at isa-arbor.com by early April.

These days Henry shows the same affection to the plants in his house and yard.

"I tell him that the plants are our pets," said Henry's wife, Janette Proctor, "and he cares for them about as religiously. He likes to watch things thrive."

Henry hopes for similar results with his singing and voice-acting career.

He has found perhaps the perfect gig for someone with his expertise and talents. He's been cast as the voice of Detective Dendro (it means "tree" in Latin) in the podcast of the same name produced by the International Society of Arboriculture (ISA).

As the title sleuth, Henry solves tree-related mysteries. What are those strange spots that appeared on a client's bark? Leave it to Detective Dendro to get to the bottom of it.

Henry has recorded two shows and has a contract for 10 more. He said his shows will be available at isa-arbor.com by early April.

"I think it's really great because it marries two loves he has," Janette said. "The ISA was looking for someone who could actually pronounce long plant words."

In the podcasts, scientific terms like parenchyma, Carya cordiformis and Phellinus spiculosis effortlessly roll off Henry's tongue.

"I think trees just hold so much splendor," he said, attempting to explain his devotion. "To be able to have a lasting effect on something that grand, it's like being part of something bigger."

Winning the $3,000 top prize in Magic Valley's Got Talent this month provided a huge boost for Henry. He wants to use the money to record an album and continue building his voice-acting career.

"It kind of shows me I've still got it," said Henry, who plans to try out for shows like "The Voice" and "America's Got Talent."

"I'd honestly love to just get discovered," Henry said. His website, www.lucashenrymusic.com, has links to his YouTube videos.

In the meantime, he's happy to entertain plants. He swears singing to them helps them grow.

"You can get down to the science behind it: It's the sound waves that helps move the plant," he said. "There's enough vascular effect on the plant that it allows it to grow better."

But he believes there's more to it.

"I think on some level, plants are alive," he said. "And they have some way to connect with it."

No matter what happens, Henry will sing to whatever audiences he can find — whether he's gripping a pesticide hose or a microphone.

Saturday evening in Twin Falls. "It's rainy, it's snowy" Black was there with friend Ryan Vanderham of Wendell, watching the Vanderbilt Commodores and Wisconsin Badgers compete in March Madness.

But Anchor Bistro drew another crowd that day as well: fans of St. Patrick's Day. Servers donned Irish hats, while some customers wore green shirts or baseball caps while drinking their favorite ales.

Black and Vanderham said they enjoy Anchor Bistro because of the lively crowds and the smoke-free policy.

"That's a big one, being smoke-free," Black said.

Camaraderie at the table was evident, as both men laughed at each other's jokes. Vanderham's attention soon was drawn to the big-screen TV on a wall near their table. It showed a replay of the VCU vs. Indiana game. Indiana won, 63-61.

Vanderham cringed, and then took a sip of beer.

"I have money down on a lot of the games," he said with a laugh, noting he won some bets but lost others.

Friday night at Wild Wings, Reed and Womack watched the Michigan and Ohio game.

Reed had ties to Michigan, he said, while Womack originally is from Ohio. But the rivalry between the two friends was jovial.

Reed said he wasn't too concerned with who won, he just enjoyed watching the games.

"I love basketball. I really do," he said. "I love the sport." But, he said, he has a tendency to root for the underdog.

"Every time," he said. "There's always a David and Goliath."

"That's what March Madness is about," Womack said. And watching with a good friend: "That's what I love about it."

Cowboy Poet Baxter Black to Perform in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS • Cowboy poet Baxter Black will return to a College of Southern Idaho stage for a CSI Equine Club benefit.

The cowboy-turned-veterinarian-turned-poet will perform at 7 p.m. April 11 at CSI's Fine Arts Auditorium.

Black has written a cowboy novel and its sequel, recorded more than a dozen CDs and DVDs, gained wide recognition — particularly in the West — as a newspaper columnist and radio and television commentator, and appeared on "The Tonight Show" and on PBS and NPR.

Black narrated an astronomy program that showed at CSI's Faulkner Planetarium several years ago; customers would sometimes ask to see "the Baxter Black program," not caring what it was about, a CSI release said.

When Black worked on ranches in the West, he tormented cows, he says. Now, he torments cowboys.

"I shine a spotlight on the flaws and foibles of everyday cowboy life, the day-to-day ups and downs of people who live with livestock and work the land," Black writes.

Advance tickets are $15, available at Vickers in Twin Falls, the Valley Country Store in Buhl, the Shoe and Tack Shop in Jerome and the agriculture office in CSI's Evergreen building. Tickets at the door will be $20. FFA students who wear their jackets will be admitted for $10.

The show is sponsored by the CSI Equine Club, and proceeds will benefit club activities.

'A Quarter Mile From Home'

(Ladder Press, $13.99)

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

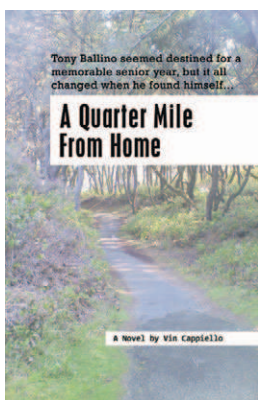

TWIN FALLS • A 1997 chain saw accident that Vin Capiello suffered while cutting firewood in the South Hills became the stuff of his teen novel.

In a fictionalized version, it's the debilitating leg injury that threatens 17-year-old protagonist Tony's future as a track and field athlete in Capiello's "A Quarter Mile From Home."

Capiello, now a high school journalism teacher and freelance writer in Cody, Wyo., was an associate news editor, sports copy editor and sportswriter for the Times-News in 1991-2000 and wrote a track and field column called "On the Run." He also coached the Kimberly High School track team in 1991-97, then was adviser to Twin Falls High's Bruin News.

"The journey Tony goes through mirrors the journeys many of my students and former track and field competitors have endured at various points in our lives," Capiello wrote in an email.

His novel, published by Ladder Press via New Way Publishing, is $13.99 at amazon.com; it's also available on Kindle.

Stars' Secrets: T.F. Planetarium Unveils New Show

TWIN FALLS • What does it take to be a star? Why do some burn so brightly while others barely flicker? And what's with the explosive temperament of some stars?

No, these aren't Hollywood tabloid headlines. The stars in this show are on the 50-foot dome of the Faulkner Planetarium at the Herrett Center for Arts and Science.

The Faulkner's new planetarium show, "Lifestyles of the Stars" takes the audience on a three-dimensional trip through the cosmos. They'll learn what factors make the star patterns in the nighttime sky — and which points of light aren't really stars at all.

"Lifestyles of the Stars" opens March 27 with 2 p.m. showings each day through March 31, and 7 p.m. showings on March 27, 30 and 31. Other shows next week will include "The Search For Life in the Universe," "The Dinosaur Chronicles," "U2" and "Pink Floyd: Dark Side of the Moon."

After spring break, the new show is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Tuesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays.

The Herrett Center is at the North College Road entrance to the College of Southern Idaho. Admission to the Herrett's museum, art and anthropology-based galleries is always free. Admission to planetarium shows is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for students and $2.50 for children 2 and older.

'Hunger Games' Film Creates Buzz among Magic Valley Readers

BY MCKAYLA HAACK
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Magic Valley's young readers felt the excitement of this morning's big-screen premiere of "The Hunger Games," the first film adaptation of author Suzanne Collins' popular trilogy.

"There is definitely a buzz," said Erica Littlefield, head of the Twin Falls Public Library's youth services department. The library's 10 copies of the first book are constantly checked out — with a waiting list.

The storyline? A dystopian world whose annual Hunger Games require 24 participants, a boy and a girl from each district, to fight to the death until only one is left.

The book has been used at the library for both teen and adult book clubs, and Littlefield predicted that today's movie release will bring even more people to the library for the book. There's a precedent: After each Harry Potter movie was released in theaters, she saw a rush of people to check out the books.

"The Hunger Games" trilogy has lent itself to class discussions, too.

"The references to the novels themselves often crop up in class discussions relating to the effects of war, the use of fear tactics and government control," said Amanda Loosli, a teacher at Xavier Charter School in Twin Falls. Loosli said her students were excited to see the characters they've come to love brought to the big screen, and they got goose bumps every time they saw the trailers.

What costumes would be worn in the post-apocalyptic world? And would the movie's plot stay true to the book?

"I am kind of nervous that the movie will mix up the facts a little bit," said seventh-grader Hannah Cluff, a fan of the trilogy.

Cluff planned to see the movie with a big group of friends and wearing her "Mockingjay" pin, an emblem from the story. She says the books are so popular because they're a new type of novel with imaginative detail but warns that they're too graphic for anyone younger than 11.

Seventh-grader Anna Zepeda — who said the book "kept me on my toes" — also feared being disappointed. Zepeda read the book with her mom and her sister, and the three plan to see the movie together.

NEW ON THE BOOKSHELF

'Caller ID'

(Cedar Fort, $15.99; soon to be on Kindle)

BY COREEN HART
For the Times-News

RUPERT • Rachele Jolley Christensen's second suspense novel, "Caller ID," is a sequel to her "Wrong Number."

Christensen

Her first novel was awarded 2011 Outstanding Book of the Year from the League of Utah Writers, as well as a pair of other awards from the league.

The former Rupert resident belonged to an LDSStorymakers online critique group back in 2007. It inspired her to start a novel which eventually took second place in their competition. Encouraged, she finished the novel and sold it to publisher Cedar Fort.

"Wrong Number" has been back to press for more runs, and "Caller ID" had a larger print run the first time around, an indication of the publisher's confidence.

The 34-year-old writer cannot imagine a time when she was not concocting tales and poetry.

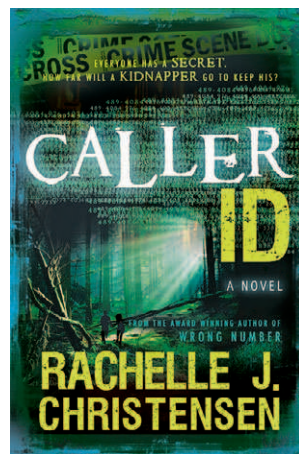

"I can't really pinpoint when it began," she said. "I have always written."

Written without bad language or sex, her suspense tales were inspired by newspaper stories of crimes.

"I started to think, what if I could twist it just a little," Christensen said.

Her advice to budding writers: "I just really encourage people who like to write to attend writers' conferences or writing classes."

Becky Gomez, manager of The Book Store in Rupert, estimates 32 copies of "Caller ID" were sold at a recent book signing, and a few signed copies are still in stock.

The storyline: When 23-year-old Courtney, the daughter of a successful land developer, is abducted in the mountains near her home, an FBI agent is assigned to the investigation. A $10 million ransom demand is only the beginning; he discovers this is more than a kidnapping. And when Courtney catches a glimpse of the caller ID in her kidnapper's home, she knows something far more dangerous lies ahead.

Venture into a Power Plant's Past

TWIN FALLS • Idaho Power Co.'s Dan Olmstead will speak on "Shoshone Falls Power Plant Past, Present and Future" for the third lecture in the Magic Valley Arts Council's 2012 Brown Bag Lecture Series.

The free public lecture is at noon March 30 at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts, and it's a chance to learn about local history while you munch your lunch. Bring it with you to listen to an account of the power plant at Shoshone Falls.

Olmstead will talk about the plant's construction, its original ownership, the area it serves and how Idaho Power developed along with the Magic Valley.

Olmstead, raised in Twin Falls as the fourth generation of a farming family, joined

Olmstead

Idaho Power in 1975 and has held management positions in Boise, Pocatello, Gooding, Burley, Hailey and now Twin Falls, where he is the community public relations representative for Magic and Wood River valleys.

Great White

with a new lineup of musicians.

Russell is fighting a legal battle with Great White co-founder Mark Kendall and longtime band members Michael Lardie and Audie Desbrow over who has the legal rights to the band's name.

To keep confusion at bay, Russell's new band is going as Jack Russell's Great White until the matter is resolved, Russell said during a telephone interview Monday.

"It's sad that over a few bucks — we're not talking a lot of money — that these guys would throw away years of friendship — we were brothers — over this," Russell said. "This is my band. I started it, and these guys were only in it because I invited them in."

Russell, 51, admits to letting things get out of hand. He has battled addictions, including prescription pain pills.

In 2009, Russell broke his femur onstage.

"I finished the show, sitting on a stool. I had lost a lot of blood and could have died. My management was saying they were on my side but also said if I took any time off my career would be over. My options seemed to be to take the time off and let my body heal at the expense of killing my career or taking a bunch of pills and getting back on stage," Russell said. "Looking back, it was stupid. I took the pills."

Today, Russell said, he hasn't been healthier. "My mind is clear, I'm in the best shape I've been in in years and my voice is in good shape. I feel great."

His former band mates continue touring under the Great White name, and they released a statement after Russell announced he would begin touring with a new band lineup early this year. Their statement, at Greatwhiterocks.com, said they were fed up with Russell's drug use and had required weekly urinalysis as a condition of his playing with them.

"It was getting pretty totalitarian," Russell said but wouldn't comment further, saying he wanted to take the higher road when speaking of his estranged band mates.

"I'll always have love for them, but that was becoming a toxic environment," Russell said. "I had to do something different and move on."

As he has in the past, his current tour will likely be a world tour.

Saying he's sober again, Russell doesn't want to mess up. His band — Matthew Johnson on lead guitar and keyboards; Dario Seixas, bass guitar; Derick Pontier, drums; and Robby Lochner, lead guitar — is full of talent.

"They are virtuosos," Russell said. "The music has never sounded better."

Diamondz owner Greg Dodson agrees.

"Great White is one of the most underrated bands in rock today," Dodson said. "They've got all of the hits, and more of the talent, than many bands out there filling stadiums today. These guys have had some very intense highs, and some very tragic lows, throughout their 30-plus-year career. This new lineup has sold out virtually every show on the tour, and Diamondz will not be an exception."

Tip #8: Tuning Up Existing Lawn Mowers

Mowing the lawn all summer can be tiring enough, right? Why make it more difficult on yourself by putting up with a lawn mower that doesn't start up immediately? When a lawn mower is stubborn about starting up, that can be a sign that it needs a tuneup. Although it's often possible to get by without one, it is recommended that you have a lawn mower tuneup each year. Don't put it off till summer or pay someone else to do it. Learn how to tune up a lawn mower yourself using the following resource and have your machine ready to go for summer:

Tip #9: Buying a New Lawn Mower

Or perhaps you're fed up with your old lawn mower? Time for a change? This Q&A resource for consumers will help you decide on which type of lawn mower is best for you: The Best Lawn Mowers <http://landscaping.about.com/cs/giftideas1/a/lawnmower_faq.htm>

Tip #10: Reviewing Lawn Mower Strategies

"What's there to know about lawn mowing?" perhaps you ask. "You just push the lawn mower and it cuts the grass, right?" At the most basic level, Yes. And if lawn mowing is merely a mindless chore that you perform to satisfy other people (and you really don't care much about the health of your lawn), then you needn't know any more about it.

However, if you do care about the health of your lawn, there's a bit more to lawn mowing than just keeping your grass short enough to prevent the neighborhood from thinking your house has been abandoned! Spring is a good time to learn (or review) lawn mowing strategies -- before it becomes so hot outside that it's hard to think! This Q&A resource will help you graduate from mindless lawn mowing to mowing with a purpose:

Minico Softball Rolls Burley

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • After seeing his team give up three runs to Burley in the top of the first inning, Minico softball coach David Joyce told his team, “Don’t worry about it. It’s a long game.”

Turns out, he was only halfway right.

Indeed, the Spartans had nothing to worry about. But it didn’t take long for Minico to throttle its rival 18-3 and end it in the fourth inning via mercy rule.

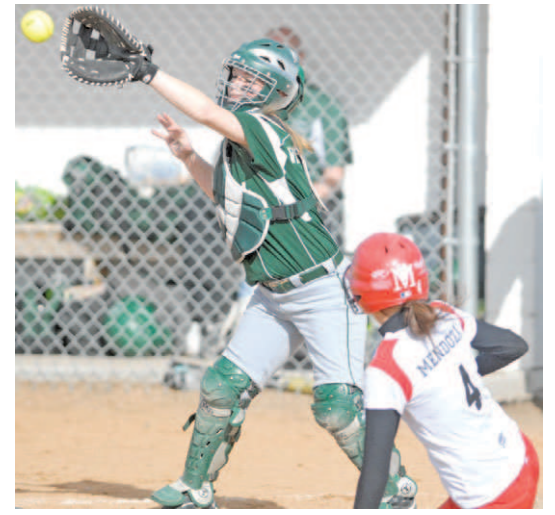

“It’s Burley and they’re nervous. They wanted to come out fast and they were all nerves,” Joyce said of the shaky first inning that included a leadoff triple by Burley’s Aubrie Vale and a double by Brooke Bowers.

However, Burley’s highlights ended there as Minico dominated every aspect of the game, from pitching to fielding, hitting to base running.

“We struggled at the beginning but in the bottom half of the first inning we pulled it out and played as a team,” said Minico first baseman Samantha McGhie, who went 3-for-4 at the plate. “I knew that our team had the strength to pull it out.”

Minico (2-1, 1-0 Great Basin Conference) got a solid pitching performance from Kaylee Kostka, who gave up just two earned runs on three hits, walked two and struck out two. Kostka and Hanna Munns figure to be the Spartans’ one-two punch in the circle this season.

Mellinger’s Departure Bittersweet for CSI

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Erin Mellinger’s departure from the College of Southern Idaho volleyball staff is akin to the high school graduate moving out to attend college far away.

Mellinger played for CSI coach Heidi Cartisser both at Treasure Valley Community College and Chicago State University. After a couple of head coaching stints, she assisted Cartisser for five seasons before re-signing Thursday to take the head job at Blinn College in Brenham, Texas.

“It’s bittersweet. We’ve kind of known that it would be the next step, Erin taking her own program,” Cartisser said. “I’m excited for her, but sad at the same time, not only because we’re losing a colleague but a good friend and (essentially) a family member.”

Cartisser said Mellinger had applied for open positions in the past, but the Blinn position was a perfect fit.

It’s also a nice career-advancement marketing tool for the Golden Eagles in searching for her replacement: Blinn is the reigning NJCAA Division I champion.

Back in Twin Falls, meanwhile, the new assistant coach will have big shoes to fill.

“Erin had great strengths in terms of her ability to teach on the floor, to the extent that she was on the floor still showing she could play the

Extra Effort Keeps Golden Eagles Alive

HUTCHINSON, Kan. • The College of Southern Idaho wasn’t ready to go home.

So Rafriel Guthrie turned in a yeoman’s effort, grabbing a monster double-double of 19 points and 17 rebounds.

Pat Swilling scored 28 points, Sebastien Michineau sank two clutch free throws in the final seconds of regulation and the Golden Eagles lived to play another day at the NJCAA National Tournament, beating Three Rivers (Mo.) 80-70 in overtime in a consolation game Thursday morning.

“We didn’t want to go home yet. We didn’t come up here on a bus ride for 22 hours to play two games,” Guthrie said. “We came to win it all and that didn’t happen, so we’re going to keep fighting every day?”

The Golden Eagles (31-4) move on to play today at 10 a.m. MDT against Indian Hills (Iowa), which is coached by former CSI head coach Barret Peery. A win today and CSI advances to the seventh-place game Saturday morning.

The Golden Eagles were dangerously close to being forced to pack up from Hutch and head back to Twin Falls with their first two and out showing at the national tournament since 2004.

They fell behind by 13 early in the first half, by five at halftime and by 10 with 10:46 left after a Bobby Peebles steal and layup made the score 53-43.

Swilling, who scored 38 points earlier this season, decided to put the team on his back down the stretch as Fabyon Harris, CSI’s leading scorer this season, sat on the bench in foul trouble.

The sophomore guard relentlessly attacked the basket, scoring 15 straight points, including back-to-back 3s to tie the game at 61.

“I wasn’t even thinking about scoring points. I was just trying to do whatever my team needed to win,” Swilling said. “My team needed some buckets, so I had to get them.”

Three Rivers fought back as Peebles hit a circus shot to give the Raiders a 67-65 lead with 32.7 seconds left. Michineau, however, hit a pair of free throws with

CSI Men Comfortable in Crunch Time

BY STEPHEN MEYERS

HUTCHINSON, Kan. • Of all the tight games the College of Southern Idaho men’s basketball team has won this season, Thursday morning’s might have been the most impressive.

The Golden Eagles fell behind by 13 early. They didn’t grab their first lead until late in the second half. Leading scorer Fabyon Harris was glued to the bench with foul trouble.

Every time CSI chipped away at the double-digit deficit, Three Rivers (Mo.) answered right back.

Like with 6:45 left in the game when Gerson Santo missed a layup where he should have dunked. A bucket there and the Golden Eagles pull within one at 56-55.

Instead, Santo missed and Three Rivers made the Eagles pay, as Terrance Glass hit his first 3-pointer of the game to put the Raiders up six.

Syracuse Escapes Against Wisconsin

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON • Syracuse will be playing for a spot in the Final Four because of numbers.

C.J. Fair put up some like he hadn't in a while, and the Orange finished with offensive statistics that Wisconsin just doesn't allow in a 64-63 victory in the East Regional semifinals Thursday night that wasn't secure until the final buzzer.

"Offensively we played very, very well and we had to play very, very well," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. Fair finished with 15 points — five fewer than he had in the last six games combined — on 7-of-9 shooting. The Orange scored 11 more than the Badgers allowed on average in leading Division I.

Syracuse shot 55 percent from the field, well above the 38.5 percent Wisconsin gave up this season, and the Orange were 5 of 9 from 3-point range, much better than the 28.8 percent the Badgers allowed.

All those numbers mean the Orange (34-2) will play Ohio State in the regional final Saturday with a trip to New Orleans at stake.

"I can't tell you how good it feels to win a game like this," Boeheim said. "This was a

And it wasn't decided until Wisconsin's Jordan Taylor missed a 3-pointer with 3 seconds left. Josh Gasser corralled the rebound but his toss toward the basket was off at the buzzer.

"It was on line, and I felt like I got my legs into it," Taylor said. "I knew it was a deep 3, but it felt good, and then to see it kind of come up short was kind of heart-breaking."

OHIO STATE 81, CINCINNATI 66

BOSTON • Deshaun Thomas scored 26 points and Jared Sullinger had 23 points and 11 rebounds to lead second-seeded Ohio State, putting the Buckeyes in the East Regional finals.

Aaron Craft added 11 points — all in the second half — with five assists and six steals, taking charge during a 17-1 second-half run that turned a four-point deficit into a double-digit lead.

Cashmere Wright scored 18 and Sean Kilpatrick had 15 for the Bearcats, who were attempting to match Big East rival Syracuse by beating a Big Ten opponent to advance to the round of eight. The top-seeded Orange advanced earlier Thursday by beating fourth-seeded Wisconsin at the TD

Garden. It's the first trip to the regional finals for Ohio State (30-7) since 2007, when it lost in the national championship game to Florida.

West Regional
LOUISVILLE 57, MICHIGAN STATE 44

PHOENIX • Chane Behanan scored 15 points and Gorgui Dieng anchored Louisville's stifling defense with seven blocked shots, helping the Cardinals knock off top-seeded Michigan State in the West Regional semifinals.

Louisville (29-9) smothered the NCAA tournament's best-shooting team with its matchup zone, getting good pressure from its guards up top and some big swats by Dieng, one of the nation's top shot-blockers.

The Cardinals relied on 3-point shooting in the first half and went inside the second to befuddle the Spartans, earning a trip to the West final Saturday against Florida, which beat Marquette 68-58 late Thursday.

Michigan State (29-8) started slow and never got going against Louisville's amoebic defense, shooting 28 percent while being outscored 20-14 inside by the leaner Cardinals.

Hornets Spoil Paul's Return to New Orleans

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • Chris Kaman scored 20 points and the Hornets rallied for a 97-90 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers on Thursday night, spoiling Chris Paul's return to New Orleans.

The Clippers were held to 11 points in the fourth quarter as they shot 4 for 23 from the field. Los Angeles also missed its last 19 3-point attempts.

After trailing throughout the first three quarters, the Hornets went ahead with an 11-2 run at the start of the fourth and led the rest of the way.

Jarrett Jack and Jason Smith each scored 17 as New Orleans snapped a five-game home losing streak and won for only the 12th time in 47 games this season.

Blake Griffin had 21 points for Los Angeles, which has lost three in a row for the first time this season. Paul, who forced a trade from New Orleans before the season after six years as the face of the franchise, added 16 points on 5-for-14 shooting.

CELTICS 100, BUCKS 91 MILWAUKEE • Paul Pierce scored 25 points to help the Boston Celtics snap the Milwaukee Bucks' six-game winning streak.

Kevin Garnett had 16 points and 10 rebounds and Mickael Pietrus scored 13 points for the Celtics, who were playing their seventh game on an eight-game road trip. With Thursday's win, the Celtics improved to 4-3 on the trip.

ROCKETS 109, WARRIORS 83

HOUSTON • Goran Dragic had 17 points and nine assists, rookie Chandler Parsons had 20 points and a career-high 11 rebounds and the Houston Rockets beat Golden State.

Luis Scola scored 18 and Samuel Dalembert added 15 points and 10 rebounds for the Rockets, who dominated the Warriors inside, outrebounding Golden State 48-31 and scoring 58 points in the paint.

PACERS 85, WIZARDS 83

WASHINGTON • David West grabbed three offensive rebounds in the final 70 seconds, Darren Collison made a key steal of an inbound pass, and Paul George's 3-pointer with 1:01 to play gave the Indiana Pacers their first lead of the game, completing a 22-point comeback.

Chipper Jones Says This Will Be His Final Season

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA • Flanked by his family, his former manager and a group of teammates he hates to leave behind, Chipper Jones choked up a bit and delivered the news that's been looming for years:

It's time to call it a career. This time, he means it.

With his 40th birthday approaching and a long string of injuries slowing him down, Jones announced Thursday he will retire after one more season as the Atlanta Braves' third baseman.

"I have fulfilled everything," Jones said during a news conference at the team's spring training stadium in Kissimmee, Fla. "There's nothing left for me to do."

GOLF ROUNDUP

Wi, Dufner Lead Arnold Palmer Invite

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. • Charlie Wi felt a lot better walking off the golf course compared with his last round.

So did Tiger Woods. Coming off a final round at Innisbrook in which he made a 13 on one hole, Wi hit an 8-iron over the water to 6 feet for birdie on the 18th for a 6-under 66, giving him a share of the lead with Jason Dufner on Thursday in the Arnold Palmer Invitational.

It's the fourth time Dufner has been atop the leaderboard after a round during the Florida swing — except that none of those rounds have been Sunday.

The last time Woods was seen on the PGA Tour, he was being driven away in a golf cart after withdrawing in the middle of the final round at Doral with soreness and swelling in his left Achilles tendon.

Woods, a six-time champion at Bay Hill, shot a 69 without breaking a sweat, much less breaking any body parts. There was nothing particularly special about this round, except for a 30-foot birdie putt that swirled around the cup at the 15th, and a couple of three-putt bogeys that kept his score from being lower.

Phil Mickelson was all over the place, going from a bunker to a magnolia tree on his way to an unlikely par; hitting a tee shot out of bounds for double bogey; hitting into the water for another double bogey; and somehow escaping with a 73.

LPGA KIA CLASSIC

CARLSBAD, Calif. • Top-ranked Yani Tseng shot a 5-under 67 on Thursday for a share of the first-round lead with Ji Young Oh and Caroline Hedwall in the Kia Classic.

Tseng finished with a birdie on the par-4 ninth after dropping a stroke on the par-3 eighth.

The 23-year-old Taiwanese star won the LPGA Founders Cup on Sunday in Phoenix for her 14th LPGA Tour title and second in four events this year. Crunch Time

Earlier in the second half on consecutive possessions, Sebastien Michineau passed to Santo cutting down the lane on a pick and roll and found Kevin Attila wide open from 3-point range. Both shots missed and CSI still trailed by nine.

Somehow though, CSI was able to overcome a 2-point deficit in the final minute to beat Three Rivers 80-70 in overtime.

"That's who we are. That's the identity of this team. All season long, we have found a way to break the game open in a close game and hang together," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. "Just gutty efforts and it's happened all season long. That's the thing we've seen for 35 games now.

There was the 18-point halftime deficit CSI overcame in a 102-92 win against Harcum (Pa.) in the second game of the season.

There was the tight, 72-67 win at Western Nebraska in November.

There was a game in January in the Scenic West Athletic Conference opener — a 76-68 win over Salt Lake on a night where the Golden Eagles couldn't buy a free throw (52 percent) or 3-pointer (18 percent).

"Nobody plays a perfect game. Everybody has turnovers, we have miscommunication and everything like that, but we know that if we stay together you can always have a chance at the end," said CSI guard Pat Swilling.

There were the four straight wins on the road to close out January, including two tight games against Snow College and Salt Lake.

In four matchups with North Idaho this season, the scoring margin between the two teams was a razor thin 17 points.

One of those games, the Golden Eagles blew a 20-point halftime lead at home, but hung on to win by one.

"It takes a lot of heart," Gosar said. "It shows the real character of the team to play together and keep hanging together until you get your break."

Playing together — it's been a theme for the team this season — the Golden Eagles have lived to play another day, even though they could have packed it up and gone home after their championship dreams were smashed in the first round of the NJCAA National Tournament.

"We just hung tight," Swilling said. "We're playing together and playing for each other."

six seconds remaining in regulation to tie the game at 68.

Three Rivers pushed the ball up the court on the ensuing possession, dishing to Peebles, who scored eight second half points for the Raiders (21-14). He got free in the lane for a clean look at a layup, but Guthrie slid in front of him to take a charge with 0.2 seconds left, negating the scoring chance for the Raiders.

"I just knew that they were going to attack the rim. He was either going to kick it out or go up with the layup, so I had time to set my feet and take the charge," Guthrie said. "There was no doubt. I saw him coming and they called the foul."

With momentum on its side, CSI rolled from there, outscoring Three Rivers 12-2 in the extra period, fueled by four Guthrie points and more clutch free throws from Michineau, who finished with 14 points and was 9-of-10 from the free throw line.

"We got down 13, but we found the right combination. I think these two sophomores and Sebastien (Michineau) were not going to let us go easy," Gosar said. "They wanted to play another day and that's what it's all about."

DEAR ABBY: Years ago I lost my beautiful wife. We had been married for more than 30 years. I bought a plot at the cemetery for both of us, and she's buried there now.

I have since remarried and have been blessed with another wonderful wife. There are no spaces left next to the existing plot, although I would like to be placed between both my wives when the time comes. Any recommendations?

— MR. IN-BETWEEN

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR MR. IN-BETWEEN: You have a couple of options. One would be to ask if your cemetery permits "double-depth" burials, in which one vault is placed on top of another. Or, if you wish, upon your demise you could choose cremation for yourself and have your ashes divided and placed with both wives.

I discussed your question with a wonderful lady, Lisa Carlson, executive director of the Funeral Ethics Organization. She's a mine of commonsense information on the subject of death and funerals — a subject many people find difficult to discuss.

Lisa reminded me that years ago, funerals were handled at home and by the community, and children grew up understanding what would happen when a death occurred. However, as we turned death over to funeral directors, much of that common knowledge has been lost. The average adult plans only one funeral in a lifetime, and few schools teach us what our choices and rights are — or how to save money on funerals.

Readers, the Funeral Ethics Organization publishes free, state-specific pamphlets on the subject of funeral consumer rights. To download one for your state, visit its website, funeralethics.org, or send a business-size SASE to Funeral Ethics Organization, 87 Upper Access Road, Hinesburg, VT 05461, for a print version.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married my boyfriend of five years. Our marriage is only a few months old, and we're not happy. My husband is sweet, but he is absolutely the world's worst communicator. He's an introvert and has a "whatever" attitude about everything. He tells me he can't put his feelings into words. So how can we fix any of our problems?

We also constantly fight about our sex life. I'd appreciate it at least weekly. He doesn't care if we do "it" or not. I have voiced my concern about our sex life, but it doesn't seem to help. I feel rejected and hurt, and I crave this attention from my husband. I'm an affectionate and attractive young woman — so what gives?

— NEEDS ATTENTION
INDALLAS

DEAR NEEDS ATTENTION: Was your husband this way during the five years you were together before the wedding? If he was, you shouldn't have gone through with it because people don't magically change after a trip to the altar.

If he was passionate, attentive and verbal but now has withdrawn, ask him a simple question: "Do you still want to be married to me?" If he can't answer that one, it's time to ask yourself an important question: "Am I better off with him or not?" If the answer is no, accept the fact that it's time to end the marriage.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Pleasure is labor too, and tires as much."

— William Cowper

This excellent card-play problem arose during the second round of the Vanderbilt Knock-out Teams from Louisville last spring. It's a two-parter: Consider it first in six clubs by North and then the actual problem of six clubs by South.

In six clubs by North on a trump lead, you draw trump, pitching a spade from hand. Now, perhaps the best thing to do is strip off four rounds of hearts, then run the diamond jack to end-play East, unless he began with five hearts. Almost as good at trick four is to run the diamond jack to East's queen. Even if East could exit with a heart and avoid setting up the suit for you, you can cash the ace and ruff a diamond in dummy. If the remaining high diamond does not appear, you fall back on the spade finesse.

At the table, in six clubs by South, you get the lead of the diamond four. You duck, and East wins the king. Back comes a trump, and you draw three rounds, then cash the three top hearts. If the heart J-9 falls, it's all over. When East shows out on the third heart, you pitch the diamond 10 and play the diamond ace, West following with the two, East with the three. When you lead the diamond nine from dummy, East follows with the six. Who has the queen? Surely East. If West has led the diamond four from Q-4-2, he deserves to beat you!

ANSWER: Your partner has four hearts in a balanced minimum. (If he has extra shape, he will be at the bottom end of this range.) So, though your side appears to have a decent double fit and the spade finesse rates to be working if necessary, slam is a long way off. Just bid four hearts; even if partner has the club ace and the missing red high honors, you'll probably need a decent break in at least one red suit.

IF MARCH 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: There may be the urge to walk on the wild side and shake things up in the year ahead. During the next several weeks, you could be motivated by a desire to shake off the shackles of the past and try something new. You could be caught up in achieving a dream and make changes that reflect your inspired need for what you currently perceive to be happiness. August and early September are the best times to make irrevocable changes or decisions, because you will be wiser and wiliar than usual. Opportunities that appear then will be worth accepting.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Clock watchers finish last. The weekend draws near, but there is a whole day of work to be done in the meantime. Buckle down; do what is expected of you — and then let your hair down with the gang tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good things come to those who wait. You may feel as if you are simply going through the motions. Your perseverance and hard work will soon pay off. Bending the rules won't help you in the long run.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Talk it out. Discussing ideas with a close friend or colleague will provide helpful tips to aid you in achieving long-term goals. If business comes first, you can pursue the object of your affection later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Maintain an open-door policy. Let acquaintances or coworkers come to you to air their grievances. Feel free to offer advice to make things better. The good deeds you do now will be repaid in spades.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dot all your i's and cross all your t's. Put the finishing touches on your latest project and save new undertakings for next week. You may reach an agreement on a deal but beware of the fine print.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Maintain a high standard. The work you do reflects the kind of person you are. Don't sully your image with slipshod efforts. Meet challenges head on. It may be tempting to avoid routine responsibilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Read between the lines. A new romantic partner may seem too good to be true. You should probe for ulterior motives before progressing any further. Let logic be your guide and you won't get burned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Spice it up. You can go through the motions to just get the job done or you can add your personal zest to the mix to create a rousing success. Stand apart from the crowd and put your mark on the project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Beware the unknown. A new acquaintance may seem exotic and exciting — but make sure that they are the real deal before you accept a proposal. Don't open the piggy bank unless it is absolutely necessary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Find common ground. You can't successfully negotiate a deal unless both parties benefit. Discuss your needs openly and be receptive to new ideas. You may need to be flexible due to changing conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't sell yourself short. Make sure that you are getting the most out of an agreement rather than just getting it done with. Stand up for yourself; insist the other party has your best interests at heart.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look out for a wolf in sheep's clothing. Pretty words and promises mean nothing if not backed up by action. You will be happier spending time with close and trusted friends than with a new conquest.

Today is Friday, March 23, the 83rd day of 2012. There are 283 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 23, 2011, Academy Award-winning actress Elizabeth Taylor, the violet-eyed film goddess whose sultry screen persona, stormy personal life and enduring fame and glamour made her one of the last of the classic movie stars, died in Los Angeles of congestive heart failure at age 79.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1775, Patrick Henry delivered an address to the Virginia Provincial Convention in which he is said to have declared, "Give me liberty, or give me death!"

In 1792, Joseph Haydn's Symphony No. 94 in G Major (the "Surprise" symphony) had its first public performance in London.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
