Locals Remember Army Sergeant's School Days

Former teachers and classmates remember Daniel Brown, killed Saturday in Afghanistan.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • As he flipped through the pages of a 2002 Jerome High School yearbook, Principal Eric Anderson recalled memories of former students.

Among the black-and-white pictures of that year's junior class was U.S. Army Sgt. Daniel Brown.

The 27-year-old, who graduated from Jerome High in 2003, was killed Saturday while serving in Afghanistan after enemy forces attacked his unit with an improvised explosive device.

Anderson — who was Brown's U.S. history teacher and football coach — said people hear about the number of soldiers who have died in combat. But in Jerome, Brown's death is more personal.

"For me, Dan's not a number," he said. "He's someone we all knew and we will miss him."

Col. Tim Marsano, public affairs officer for the Idaho Army National Guard, said Brown's family received the soldier's remains Tuesday morning at the Dover Air Force Base in Delaware during an honorable transfer ceremony.

Marsano said he doesn't know when the family will return to Idaho.

On Tuesday at Jerome High School, the campus was deserted for spring break.

Come Monday, though, Anderson plans to make an announcement to employees and students about Brown. It will be followed by a moment of silence.

JEROME • Jerome County Sheriff Doug McFall understands what "no" means. Three times Jerome County voters rejected ballot measures to either give lease-purchase or bond funding approval for a new county jail.

On May 15, voters will again consider the issue, though this time more precise details about the planned facility have been nailed down, McFall said.

In the past, residents complained about a lack of information about the cost and location of a new jail.

"We're trying to do some different things," County Commission Chairman Charlie Howell said.

The county plans to hold public meetings between now and May 15 so people can learn more about the proposed jail, Howell said, though specific dates haven't been decided.

To get permission to sell bonds to fund a new jail, a supermajority (66.7 percent) of county voters will have to approve the May ballot measure. The first time the county put the jail on the ballot — in 2009 — the measure failed by only 25 votes.

Jail funding was on the ballot again in May 2010 and November 2010 and voted down both times.

This time, McFall said, with a price and location confirmed, people should be confident enough in the plans to vote "yes."

If built, a new jail would be located on Victory Lane, northwest of the current Idaho State Police headquarters, and won't exceed $10.705 million to build, McFall said.

"I have talked to a lot of people and a lot are telling me that they know we're in dire straits with the current jail," McFall said.

Some, including those running against McFall in the May primary, say he should look into other options.

In previous interviews with the Times-News, Jerome County sheriff candidate Dan Chatterton said, "There's got to be an alternative."

Rather than build a new one, Chatterton asked why work wasn't done earlier to maintain the current building.

New Teacher Pay Bill Could End Statehouse Stalemate

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • Last year, the Legislature promised that the first budget increases would go to teacher salaries.

Legislators are trying to keep that commitment. On Tuesday, the House Education Committee introduced a bill that would fully fund teacher salaries, which had taken a hit to fund the Students Come First education reforms.

The bill, introduced by House Education Committee Chairman Bob Nonini, R-Coeur d'Alene, is similar to one previously introduced by Sen.

Spring Fever Creeps into Legislature's Last Days

Spring fever is hitting the Legislature. Empty boxes are stacked in the House foyer for legislators to pack up their offices, and secretaries, lobbyists and journalists are taking bets on when they'll adjourn.

We feel like students waiting for summer vacation, but we don't know when the last day of school will be.

For us out-of-towners, we hope it will come this week. And for good reason — most of our leases are up at the end of March.

But there are a few things to clear up before heading home. The issues: balancing tax relief, teacher pay and savings.

With Tuesday's introduction of a bill that would fully fund both Students Come First initiatives and teacher salaries, it looks like the Legislature's two chambers are inching a little closer toward compromise. The House would like more money to go to tax relief, while the Senate hopes to replenish the state's rainy day funds, which were depleted during the economic downturn.

Senate Pro Tem Brent Hill, R-Rexburg, said leadership is getting closer to coming up with a plan on how much money will go to each of the three.

But, Hill emphasized, the decision to move forward comes from the legislators. Senate Republicans will caucus this morning, and if they don't sign on, it's back to negotiating.

Hill said the House teacher pay bill was a good indication that the Legislature is wrapping up their business.

"I think we went a long way today," he said. His guess? They'll adjourn Friday.

I'll start packing my bags.

New Signal to Make Intersection Safer For Pedestrians

Terry Williamson, signing and striping coordinator for the city of Twin Falls, adjusts a new crosswalk warning light along Addison Avenue Tuesday.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • City workers installed a new lighted signal Tuesday to aid pedestrians crossing the intersection of Addison Avenue and Morningside Drive.

The signal, called a "rectangular flashing beacon," uses a relatively new technology and will rapidly flash an LED light when a pedestrian presses a button before they cross to remind drivers to stop.

Pedestrians should still yield to vehicles on the busy road, but the light should help drivers be aware someone is waiting to cross the street, said Mike Sullivan, a traffic technician with the city.

The intersection is busy for vehicle and pedestrian traffic and is in an area where five lanes merge into four. There had been complaints about it being difficult for pedestrians to use the area, Sullivan said.

Brown's death. Over the years, the teacher and coach watched Brown grow from an eighth-grader to a young man.

"It was something pretty special being able to see," he said.

Ostler was Brown's eighth-grade science teacher and high school baseball coach.

"The best thing I remember about him was that you hardly ever saw him without a smile on his face," Ostler said.

He described Brown as a "typical eighth-grade kid in my class" who got into a bit of harmless mischief with his friends, but was a good student.

"He was always keeping me light-hearted and laughing," Ostler said.

Anderson remembers Brown playing good-natured pranks during his U.S. history class as a high school junior.

Christie Garner — one of Brown's classmates who graduated the same year — said she remembers him as being a friend to everyone.

"He was very funny, always had us laughing or would try to put a smile on your face when he (saw) you were down and out," she wrote in an email to the Times-News.

Azure

"It means the trial is suspended for the moment while he goes there and gets evaluated," Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said. "The goal there is to treat whatever his issues are and report back to the judge."

The process should take 90 days, Loebs said. The notice of approval for Azure's admission to the program was made March 22.

Azure, 32, of Rupert, is accused of shooting and killing his brother, Seanachan Azure, 31, on Feb. 12 near Twin Falls Park, along the Snake River Canyon north of Kimberly.

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies were called to 3500 E. 4070 N. at about 11:20 a.m. that day to check on a report of a possible vehicle-pedestrian accident. When they arrived, they said they found Seanachan Azure lying in a pool of blood. His brother was in a nearby car, in which was found a handgun and ammunition.

Damon Azure is also charged with a count of resisting and obstructing officers. Sheriff's deputies said Azure fought them before and after arrest and continued to be uncooperative once in jail.

Teacher Pay

Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, with two key differences: Nonini's bill targets future budget increases first to school reform initiatives, and would increase the minimum teacher salary at twice the rate of other salary increases.

For example, if a 2 percent pay increase was targeted for all teachers, Idaho's minimum teacher salary would be boosted by 4 percent.

Reaching a compromise on teacher salaries is one of the last issues the Legislature is looking to wrap up before ending this year's session. Cameron's bill to fully fund teacher salaries and find money for the reform package elsewhere passed the Senate unanimously. But

What the Bill Does:

- Fully funds teacher salaries, reversing reductions that would have paid for the Students Come First reform.
- Whenever teacher salaries are increased, the minimum salary would be bumped up at twice that rate. That helps recruit new teachers, said bill sponsor Rep. Bob Nonini, R-Coeur d'Alene.
- Puts Students Come First initiatives like technology, dual-credit courses and laptops for students at the top of the priority list for any budget boosts.

Nonini declined to give it a hearing in the House Education Committee, instead introducing legislation that would have replenished only one year of teacher salary cuts.

He pulled that bill this morning, replacing it with a more aggressive version.

"I think it's good policy to set forth in this regard," Nonini said.

Cameron said he has no qualms with Nonini's bill, but said the Senate would have preferred to see its bill come forward.

"We understand that this is a compromise process and you have to meet the needs of other people," Cameron said, adding he does support the future teacher salary increases.

"In our effort to attract and pay new teachers better, that's probably an appropriate approach," Cameron said.

off and on in the hospital last year due to various issues, including injuries suffered in an accident while working on a ski boat at his home. He also had an autoimmune disease affecting his lungs, she said.

The night of the heart attack, the couple's son Dana performed CPR, initially saving his father's life, Marilyn said.

Hempleman's years on the commission featured many issues that shaped the Magic Valley today, including Twin Falls County joining a regional emergency dispatch center and a multi-county solid waste district, and early talks about the future of what is now St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, then a county-owned hospital. He served in roles including chairman of the commission before retiring in 2002. A county office building at 246 Third Ave. E. in Twin Falls now bears his name.

His public service also included a 15-year stint on the South Central Public Health District's governing board, from which he retired in 2010. He also served on the advisory board for the Twin Falls airport.

Cheryl Juntunen, a current member of the health board who was the district's director for 16 years, remembered Hempleman for his calm demeanor and dedication to his various roles. He was an invaluable source of advice during her time leading the health district, she said.

"He was one of those calming influences in a group ... and a really good listener," she said. "He just gave everything."

State Rep. Stephen Hartgen served as Times-News publisher while Hempleman was in office, and maintained close ties to Marvin and Marilyn while becoming more involved in state politics in recent years — seeing Marvin as recently as this month's Twin Falls County Republican caucus. He said Marvin was one of the first county commissioners in Idaho to bring a certain professional approach to the elected job.

"He was one of those first people here to really focus on the professionalism of the work," Hartgen said, citing such examples as reviews of planning and zoning work.

As a former small dairyman, Hempleman understood both agriculture and local government, adding to his effectiveness, Hartgen added.

"He made a real contribution in his time to the quality of work here," Hartgen said. "He'll be a great loss."

Along with his wife, Marilyn, Marvin leaves behind three children: Dana Hempleman of Jerome, Jeff Hempleman of Gilbert, Ariz., and Kassie Dixon of Meridian. Another daughter, Heidi Hempleman, was killed by a drunken driver in 1988, as was his first wife years before that; as such, the family suggests making donations to Mothers Against Drunk Driving Idaho in lieu of flowers.

Funeral arrangements are still being made.

'Very Coachable'

While in high school, Brown played on the Jerome football and baseball teams.

Anderson was Brown's football coach for three or four years. He recalls Brown being unselfish and willing to try any position that was needed.

"He was very coachable," Anderson said, adding that Brown was a good defensive specialist.

Ostler said as a baseball player, Brown worked as hard as he could to compete for a position.

"At the same time, he managed to keep a balance between 'baseball is important and I want to win,' but on the other hand keeping it like 'baseball is not everything,'" Ostler said.

In 2003 — Brown's senior year — Jerome's baseball team won the Class 4A state championship. Ostler said the tight-knit group of seniors was a "formula that led to success that year."

Joining the Army

Toward the end of Brown's time as a Jerome student, Ostler had a conversation with him about joining the Armed Forces.

"It was something that he felt very strongly about," Ostler said.

After Brown graduated, Ostler saw him several times when he came home after tours of duty with the Army.

"We had a relationship where if we'd see each other, we'd likely give each other a quick hug," Ostler said.

Many people, he said, wanted to ask Brown about what it was like to serve.

"I remember him being respectful, but not wanting to delve into a lot of details about it," Ostler said. "It's not something that you came back and go into too many details about."

Ultrasound Mandate a No-go

Right to Life of Idaho has pulled a controversial proposal to require pre-abortion ultrasounds, though it's likely to return next year.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • A controversial bill has met its end — at least for this session.

On Tuesday, Right to Life of Idaho agreed to cancel legislation to require Idaho women seeking an abortion to get an ultrasound. The move came nearly a week after the House State Affairs Committee canceled a hearing on the bill, which previously passed the Senate.

The bill would require the abortion provider to perform an ultrasound and record the fetal heartbeat and gestational age prior to each termination. Supporters said this gave women more information before they made their decision; opponents said it inserted politics into the doctor-patient relationship.

Don't be surprised if this comes up again next year. Sen. Chuck Winder, R-Boise, said he would consider sponsoring similar legislation in 2013, but would want to address some concerns that opponents brought up.

"I think the rape and incest exception would be one" that he would consider adding, he said. He would also take a closer look at the provision requiring physicians to record the fetal heartbeat.

Opponents said that for early-term pregnancies, that would require an invasive transvaginal ultrasound. Though Winder and Right to Life of Idaho said that wasn't true, Winder said he'd like to see next year's language emphasize that.

"I won't agree to sponsor it until I know what the bill is and what the support is from both the House and the governor's office," Winder said.

Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, said last week that the bill didn't have the support of most House Republicans. Many pro-life Republicans were concerned about the mandate and feedback they received from constituents.

Jason Herring, president of Right to Life Idaho, said next year, he hopes to introduce the legislation earlier in the session. That would give them time to address legislators' concerns, he said.

"When I hear the things, the rape and incest argument about traumatizing women, I just think oh my gosh, the last thing we want to do is add further trauma to a victim of violence," Herring said. But, he added, he still believes those women need the information an ultrasound provides.

"We're trying to empower them as much as any other women," Herring said.

Anti-bullying Bill Held in Committee

Despite bill's failure, Wilder teen says he'll keep pushing for legislation to keep students safe.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • For Ismael Fernandez, the bullying started early on.

In second grade, peers targeted his glasses. As he got older, the taunts turned to his living situation, his taste in TV shows, his religion, his political views. He was depressed and, ultimately, suicidal.

Now 15, the Wilder teen said the bullying got better when he switched schools, but sees his younger brother getting bullied as well. He spent Monday at the Capitol, talking to legislators in an attempt to convince them to revive a Senate anti-bullying bill.

But it wasn't meant to be. The House won't consider the legislation this session, despite a move Tuesday to pull it out of committee and hear it on the floor.

The parliamentary maneuver would have allowed the House to vote on the bill without holding a public hearing. Rep. Brian Cronin, D-Boise, made the motion, saying the legislation was crucial if Idaho wanted to keep its students safe.

"This is not a trivial matter, Mr. Speaker," Cronin said during the debate.

The proposed law would

"I will wait as many sessions as I have to."

Ismael Fernandez, a 15-year-old victim of bullying from Wilder pushing for an anti-bullying bill to be passed in the Idaho Legislature have outlined responsibilities for school districts and teachers to prevent bullying. The Senate passed the bill last week.

House Education Committee Chairman Bob Nonini, R-Coeur d'Alene, argued against the move, saying he didn't intend to have a hearing on the matter, and the House should respect the committee process.

"I believe the best place for that Senate bill to sit right now is in the Education Committee," Nonini said.

And Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, pointed out that there are already anti-bullying laws in statute.

"I would suggest that this bill may not be necessary and the appropriate action is to leave the bill in committee at this time," Hartgen said.

The House agreed, voting 48-21 to keep it in the committee.

While Fernandez said legislators were sympathetic to his story, he knew Monday there was a good chance the bill would die.

But he'll be back.

"I will wait as many sessions as I have to," he said.

At Least 5 Years Prison for Man Who Held Ex Hostage

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A man accused of taking an ex-girlfriend hostage for more than five hours while threatening to kill himself could spend up to 25 years in prison.

Hanes

Edward Nathaniel Hanes, 35, of Twin Falls, was sentenced Monday to spend five to 25 years in prison for second-degree kidnapping and aggravated assault with a weapons enhancement.

A charge of burglary and two counts of grand theft were dropped by prosecutors as part of a plea deal in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

The victim in the case, Alicia Coco, spoke at the hearing saying she believed the plea bargain was too lenient.

"I'm terrified that this man is going to get me," she said.

Coco also said she believes Twin Falls police should have placed an officer outside her home after she first called emergency dispatchers about Hanes, stating he was suicidal, wanted to hurt her and possibly had a firearm on the night of Sept. 24.

In the early hours of Sept. 25, police responded again after it was discovered Hanes was holding Coco hostage in the bedroom of her apartment.

Hanes had made a copy of the woman's car key without her knowledge, Senior Deputy Prosecutor Stan Holloway said at the hearing.

A police report said Hanes took Coco's vehicle without her permission from her Second Avenue apartment at 11 p.m. that night and drove to retrieve a gun from the residence of a former employer, William Peters. He knew the gun was left inside a taxi cab that Peters owns and had no trouble getting it from the unlocked cab.

Hanes then broke into the woman's house through a back window, brandishing the pistol. He held Coco at gunpoint for five or six hours, saying he wanted closure about how their six-month relationship ended, Holloway said.

Hanes' attorney, George Essma, said a combination of alcohol and mental illness led Hanes to commit the crime, noting his record is otherwise clean. Essma asked for either a place in the state's retained-jurisdiction program or a shorter sentence of about two to six years, less than the plea agreement Hanes reached with prosecutors.

Fifth District Judge Randy Stoker rebuffed that request, saying anything other than prison time would allow for undue risk that Hanes would go after Coco or harm other people. A shorter prison sentence would diminish the seriousness of the crime, he said.

"This defendant will never be able to compensate this victim for shattering her peace of mind," Stoker said. "We've seen this situation far too many times."

OUR VIEW

Shooting on Public Land a Privilege, Not a Right

It's time to talk about responsible gun ownership.

Drive — or if you're brave, walk — through the Snake River Canyon Park on any given day and it feels more like touring the city dump than a place set aside for outdoor recreation.

And while there's satisfaction to be had in firing that first shot at an unmarked refrigerator door or blowing the dials off a washer and dryer set, it's irresponsible to drive an appliance onto shared public land for the purpose of target practice and leave its bullet-riddled body there to rust.

Come this May, large amounts of community resources will be expended to clean up litter-filled shooting sites in the park, a 7,000-acre piece of land just east of U.S. Highway 93, on the north rim of the Snake River Canyon.

Business owners will donate the use of roll-off Dumpsters and front loaders. Volunteers will give up their weekend. Tax money will be spent overseeing the removal of tons of appliances, car parts and shattered sheet rock.

This month, the Jerome County commissioners announced they would host public meetings to discuss a crackdown on littering in the Snake River Canyon Park.

Though no decision has been made and no timeline has been set, commissioners suggested they might weigh a limit or ban on shooting.

While gun ownership is a constitutional right, shooting on public land is a privilege. Gun owners who enjoy that privilege and would like to see it continue should make every effort to show that littering does not go hand-in-hand with recreational shooting.

And, they should demonstrate that target practice can happen safely amid the many other uses people have for the park.

Ranchers with grazing permits have spoken of cows being shot and an overall change in the number of shooters and the kind of weaponry being used. The trend has moved from a small number of people using .22 caliber and small rifles in the park, to a larger number of people firing higher caliber and semi-automatic weapons.

"It's no longer your standard dad teaching his kid to use a .22," said John Kurtz, an outdoor recreation planner with the U.S. Bureau of Land Management. "And along with that shift are the inherent dangers. How far can a bullet travel and how much damage can it do?"

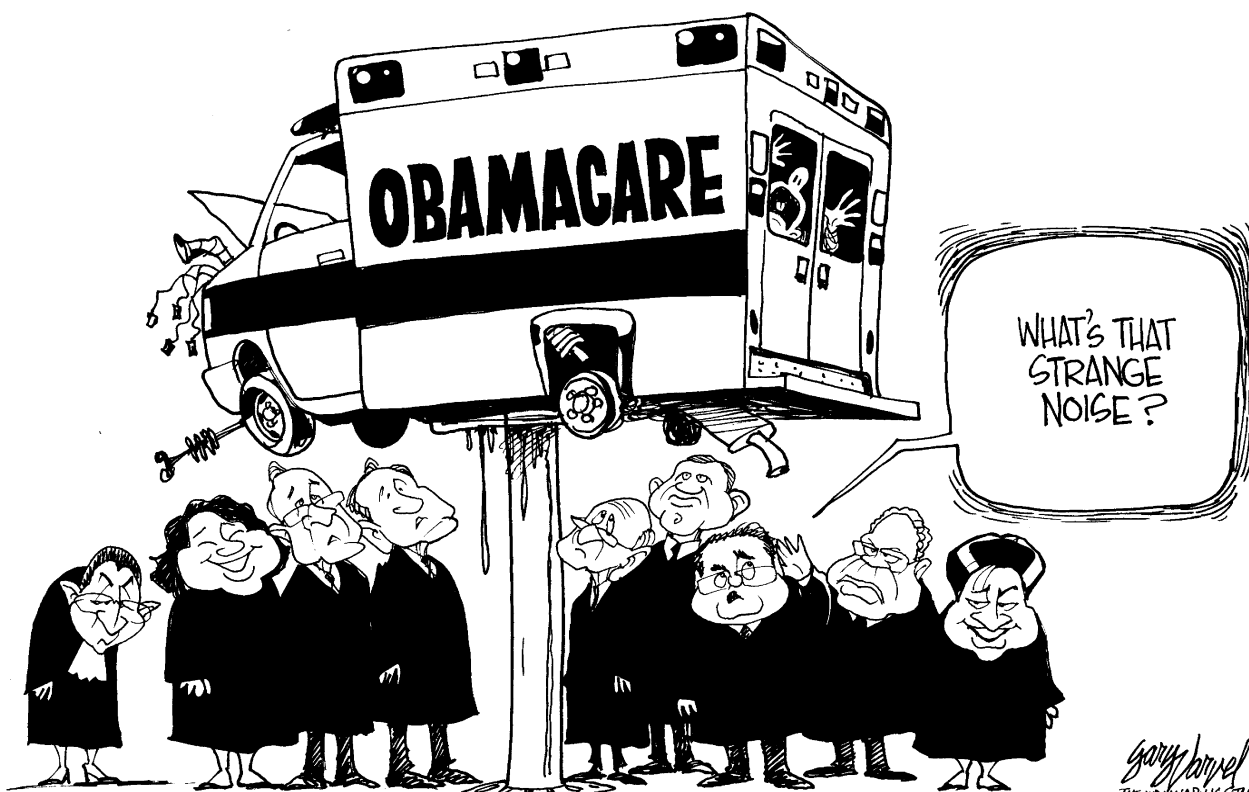

With the increasing use of the park, many of the safe places to shoot — places with a backstop to keep bullets from flying over a rise toward an unsuspecting ATV rider or rancher — are taken by mid-morning, Kurtz said. That doesn't stop latecomers from setting up target practice on a flat stretch of land.

When a Times-News reporter and photographer visited the Snake River Canyon Park this past week, the reporter described "bullets flying over our heads, but we couldn't see the shooter."

While it's time to discuss limiting where we can shoot in Snake River Canyon Park, the county commissioners should act carefully if they do choose to restrict that freedom.

Calling public hearings is the first step. These decisions cannot be made in a vacuum. By year's end, commissioners should have a plan in place for the direction they want to take, then spend the winter educating the public about any changes on the horizon in time for the spring shooting season.

"Whatever is going to be done, will be a cultural shift," Kurtz said. "The message needs to get out in time for every user to digest."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Third-Party Advocates Hide in GOP

In his disjointed diatribe, Daniel Gill tells Twin Falls residents, "America is overdue for a third party!" (March 19)

Well, that makes sense coming from Dan, because he is a member of a "third party." Together with his mentor, Rick Martin, Dan Gill is one of the leaders of the Constitution Party in Twin Falls. Dan is actually the chairman. Check it out on these websites:

<http://www.meetup.com/TwinFallsLiberty/messages/boards/thread/9180629>;

<http://www.meetup.com/TwinFallsLiberty/messages/boards/thread/9140465>;

<http://www.meetup.com/TwinFallsLiberty/messages/boards/thread/9112728>; and <http://www.cpida.org/contact/>.

You'd better hurry, though, because once this appears in print, these sites will be deleted. Some critics scatter when the lights go on.

The problem Rick and Dan have is that they have given up on their "third party." The Constitution Party wasn't getting them anywhere, so they decided to try to take over the Twin Falls Republican Party. Their tactics are well displayed in Dan's letter: lying, distorting, name-calling and slander. And, why not throw in a little religious bigotry for good measure?

Nothing in Dan's letter is accurate, from his obscene reference to "cyclan-B (sic)" to his personal attacks on prominent local citizens in his dishonest account of Republican Central Committee meetings.

I have nothing against third parties or those whose political viewpoints I disagree with. Different viewpoints make the debate lively and informative. But dishonest and abusive rhetoric poisons the whole process.

Rick and Dan, by all means go back to your "third party"! The Republicans have turned the lights on — it's time to scatter.

Arts Event a Great Showcase for Downtown

Encouraging artists to sign up for the Second Annual Art and Soul competition, April 27 through May 5; $10,000 for first place and substantial cash prizes for runners-up — what have you got to lose?

Last year's event was held in historic downtown. I moved here five years ago and had never been in the majority of stores. What an eye opener! Great fun to spend a Saturday afternoon touring all the venues and seeing the varied talents displayed.

2012's event will expand to the Lynwood Shopping Center and Fillmore around Gold's Gym, extending to the beautiful Twin Falls Arts Council building. Having never been in 90 percent of those businesses, I am looking forward to wandering around and seeing what they have — at the same time being exposed to a multitude of art and astounding skills.

It's patterned after Art Prize in Grand Rapids, Mich. In its third year this fall, it brought $15.5 million to the economy during its three weeks.

Everyone is looking to encourage tourism and have family friendly events. This is a fantastic opportunity for just that! Sign up to be a venue, a unique chance to bring people to your door who will return upon discovering what you have to offer.

We need people to be sponsors. Art and Soul has potential to be a real game-changer for Twin Falls. Be part of the excitement and bring it to its full potential.

You can stop by the Art and Soul office in the Lynwood Shopping Center next to Subway or call Art Hoag at 421-1311. Check out the artwork that has been submitted thus far at www.magicvalleyhasart.com.

Supreme Court Should Uphold Reform

Thanks to the Affordable Care Act, seniors are getting help paying for prescription drugs, young adults are able to stay on their parents' health plan until age 26, women can get affordable preventive care, and children can no longer be denied coverage due to a pre-existing condition.

Over the next few years, even more protections will be rolled out, giving every single American access to high-quality, affordable health coverage.

The lawsuits challenging the Affordable Care Act are political stunts by right-wing politicians who are hoping to score big points with their base.

Judges on both sides of the political spectrum have reviewed and upheld the law and the Supreme Court should do the same.

It's time to for anti-health care Republicans to stop fighting against the Affordable Care Act and start working to implement protections that will help millions of American families.

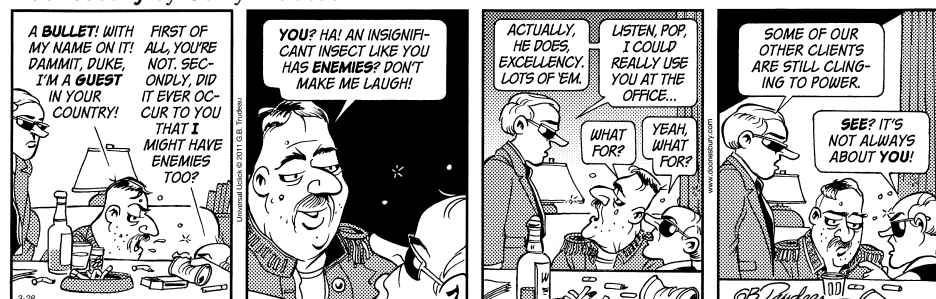

It is time for affordable health care.

Twin Falls Canal Opens Its Gates

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

MURTAUGH • Staring intently at the gates holding back thousands of gallons of water, Brian Olmstead gave the signal.

“OK, let it rip,” he called out, moving to the walkway that separates the canal line from Murtaugh Lake.

Louis Zamora gave a quick nod and walked into a dark control room. With the push of a few buttons, he forced the gates under the walkway to wake from their winter nap and snap into duty.

Water began to slowly pour out of the gates’ opening, another signal that spring is officially on its way.

It’s an event that the Twin Falls Canal Co. has been coming out to celebrate for more than 100 years, said Olmstead, the company’s manager.

“We’re never quite ready for it,” he said. “It’ll be busy for awhile but we’ll fall into routine soon.”

Phil Blick, the company’s board chairman, said he’s attended the annual water release for the past 15 years.

The release has a historical significance for the Magic Valley, he said.

“It’s another year we get water from a desert,” he said. “And everybody needs to remember that our forefathers started out with shovels and horses doing this.”

When the water first hits the empty canal, it immediately begins to pick up dried brush and pieces of wood. It’ll take a full day before it hits the south Hansen cutoff, said Zamora, an engineer technician. From there, the canal workers will wait for the right time to open the alternative lines along the canal.

“We’re charging the canal but we call it flushing,” he said with a smile.

Eventually, the water will travel up the 70 miles of the canal’s main line. However, the company won’t make deliveries for another month.

Olmstead said he’s not too worried about this year’s water supply but said it might be too early to tell.

“You never know for sure, we could get a really hot summer,” he said.

Senate Votes to Ban Trustees’ Ties to Newspapers

BOISE (AP) • Foreclosure trustees would be banned from having financial interests in papers that run their legal notices, according to a bill that cleared the Senate.

Tuesday’s 28-6 vote sends the Newspaper Association of Idaho-backed bill to Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter.

The newspaper group brought the measure after the Kuna-Melba News in southwestern Idaho was purchased by a company linked to the Northwest’s largest foreclosure trustee.

Idaho requires legal notices be published at statutorily fixed rates in the local paper before auctioning a foreclosed home.

Occupy Legislation Passes House

BOISE • House lawmakers have passed a plan to close a legal loophole enabling Occupy Boise’s more than five-month long protest on state grounds.

The House voted 55-14 Tuesday to advance the measure, which would enable the Idaho Department of Administration to regulate and issue permits for public use of the Capitol Mall and other state-managed land.

House Assistant Majority Leader Spored Bedke, R-Oakley, sponsored the plan, arguing the state has every right to issue rules guiding activity on the grounds of the old Ada County Courthouse, where Occupy Boise has had tents up since November.

Wyoming: Reconsider Yellowstone Snowmobile Limit

BY BEN NEARY
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) • Gov. Matt Mead said Tuesday he disagrees with an appeals court ruling that bars Wyoming from suing the federal government over a rule limiting the number of snowmobiles and other snow machines allowed in Yellowstone National Park.

Wyoming last week filed papers asking a three-judge panel at the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver to grant the state a new hearing.

The judges ruled in late February that the state, as well as Park County, Wyo., had failed to show concrete economic losses from the limit on snowmobiles. The judges said a challenge on procedural grounds would be moot because park officials conducted a new analysis before extending the 2009 limits through this winter.

In its court filing, Wyoming argued it should be allowed to argue its case again, with state lawyers claiming judges incorrectly determined the East Entrance to the park was the only one at issue in the appeal.

“Wyoming is injured by the economic losses which occur within Yellowstone regardless of which gate the public is turned away from,

and by the economic losses which occur outside the Park from lost snowmobiling opportunities in both Cody and Jackson,” the state lawyers wrote.

The Park Service’s 2009 rule had limited daily snowmobile traffic in Yellowstone to 318 machines while setting the limit on snow coaches, larger machines, at 78.

Mead, in an interview with The Associated Press, said Wyoming still has an interest in challenging the court’s ruling on the 2009 rule even though the Park Service is developing a new winter use plan which will spell out limits on snowmobiles for the 2012-13 season.

Kimberly Council Punts on Admin Decision

Two weeks after its city administrator resigned under pressure, ideas abound regarding city leadership.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Kimberly City Council members held off Tuesday night on deciding the fate of the city's top administrative position.

After hearing a proposal by Mayor Tracy Armstrong, the council voted unanimously to table the agenda item in front of a crowd of about 20. Council members suggested a work session to come up with a different job description.

The discussion comes after City Administrator Polly Hulsey submitted a letter of resignation on March 14. She will step down from her $80,000 annual position Monday.

Armstrong recommended hiring a part-time administrator, who would work 10 hours per week. Council President Brandon Hoobler said he doesn't think that's enough hours.

"I'm skeptical that can all be accomplished with those few hours," he said after Armstrong presented proposed job duties.

Armstrong's recommendation calls for a flat pay rate $48,000 per year without benefits. Several council members disagreed with the proposal, saying they want a full-time position instead.

"Why are we trying to change what we have in place?" Hoobler asked.

He said the proposed pay rate also doesn't make sense. It's more than half what Hulsey made in the full-time position.

Councilwoman Connie Sowka said the city needs a full-time administrator.

During a meeting earlier this month, the council debated the need for Hulsey's position and the salary paid for it. Although Hulsey wasn't at Tuesday's meeting, Councilman Burke Richman apologized to her, saying she wasn't treated fairly at the last meeting.

He said Hulsey is a hard-working employee who will be missed.

During the Tuesday meeting, Armstrong said he doesn't want to do away with the city administrator position. Instead, he wants the position to be redesigned, with some duties shifted to city department heads.

Armstrong's list of job

In Other Business

Also during Tuesday's meeting, the Kimberly City Council unanimously:

- Approved a Fair Housing Month proclamation.
- Approved Block Grant and Region IV contracts for a Family Health Services building in Kimberly. The facility will be located at the site of the old city hall. Construction could begin in August or September, with a March 2013 estimated completion date.

qualifications included an engineering degree or equivalent experience, as well as a background in grant writing and managing a governmental budget.

"If you look at that, there's a lot here," Armstrong said of the list of qualifications. But he said it would be a flexible position, with the workload handled on a month-to-month basis.

He said he wants the administrator position to encompass more qualifications, particularly engineering due to upcoming city projects.

Richman said the city already has an engineer. Plus, he said engineers don't usually have budgeting experience.

Right to Hunt to Make November Ballot

Twin Falls Sen. Heider worked most of the session to add hunting to Idaho's constitutional rights.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

BOISE • It took six tries, multiple opinions from the Attorney General's Office, and input from a handful of organizations.

On Tuesday, the Senate passed a resolution to allow Idahoans to vote on adding the right to hunt, fish and trap to the state constitution. The measure had already passed the House.

Voters will now get to weigh in on the constitutional amendment during the November election.

Bill sponsor Sen. Lee Heider, R-Twin Falls, worked with the Idaho Water Users Association, the Department of Fish and Game, Attorney General Lawrence Wasden and the National Rifle Association to come up with language that is agreeable for everyone.

Sen. Jim Rice, R-Caldwell, said he appreciated Heider's thorough work.

"Anytime that we amend a constitution it's a serious matter," Rice said.

Sen. Elliot Werk, D-Boise, voted for one version of the proposal that already passed the Senate, but he didn't like new language that the National Rifle Association had talked Heider into inserting.

"I believe that every one of us ... supports the idea that constitutionally. We should protect the rights to fish, trap, and hunt," Werk said. "That's not the issue today."

Werk joined with Sens. Diane Bilyeu, D-Pocatello, and Michelle Stennett, D-Ketchum, in voting no. The bill passed 31-3.

Heider had hoped for another unanimous vote, but was glad it had passed.

"I'm thrilled today," he said.

T.F. Man Accidentally Shot Brother

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A man who was accidentally shot by his brother Saturday is in fair condition at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

Daniel Kitchin, 27, was shot while standing outside a Rosewood Drive home with his brother, Christopher Kitchin, 22, and two other men when the gun accidentally discharged, Twin Falls Police Lt. Craig Stotts said Tuesday.

The men were standing in a circle, looking at the 9 mm semi-automatic handgun held by Christopher Kitchin when the accident occurred, Stotts said.

Police are still gathering explanations from those involved to piece together exactly how the gun went off, he said.

"We've conducted functions tests on the weapon and it's functioning properly," he said.

Police have not arrested anyone in the case.

Jail

At this point, remodeling the aging jail's basement and other proposed solutions wouldn't be cost effective, and even gutting the jail couldn't bring it up to current standards, McFall said.

The jail holds about 30 inmates, but Jerome County consistently has 50 to 80 inmates it needs to deal with. The overflow inmates are housed at other jails, sleeping on rented beds.

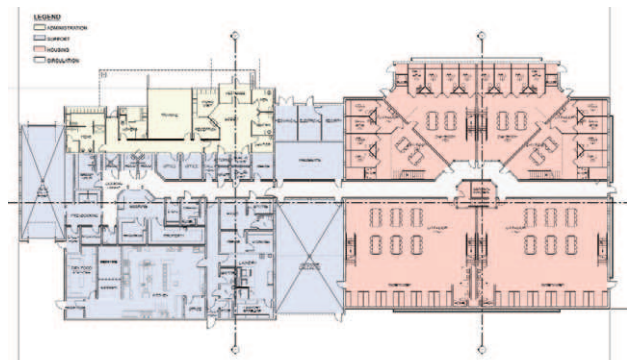

"The cost of it is a quarter million (per year) and that doesn't include transportation and salaries," McFall said.

Plans for the new jail include 120 beds with room to expand. Though he would need more staff, McFall said that's already budgeted in the money currently being used to rent beds for the excess inmates.

"Essentially I would have to increase my staff size by less than double," he said. "But our capacity is going to quadruple."

A more modern jail design would also make a safer environment for jail deputies and inmates, he said.

Another bond failure would mean going back to the drawing board for the sheriff and the Jerome County commissioners, but McFall hopes specific information and knowledge of the dire need for a new jail will convince voters this time around.

Gooding County Plans Proceed

In Gooding County, plans for a new privately funded jail in Wendell are moving along, said Sheriff Shawn Gough.

Attorneys are working out the legal language of the lease, which slows the process down some, Gough said.

On March 22, Walt Femling of Rocky Mountain Corrections, the company in charge of facilitating the deal, said he had a conference call with attorneys and county officials discussing legal language about maintenance and insurance on the new jail.

Investors put earnest money down on the privately owned property back in the fall, Femling said, but the price was not available.

According to Femling, Municipal Capital of Denver is raising capital under the name Gooding Facilities LLC. He said the company has financed $1 billion in jail projects across the country.

"We hope to be in the ground in early summer," Femling said. But that won't come until the lease is finalized and architects have completed new drafts of the building.

As far as local investment in the building, Gough said he's heard positive comments.

"It's a 10.4 percent return on their money," he said. "We've heard nothing negative."

Current Jerome Jail Lacks Space for Female Inmates

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

JEROME • When a female inmate is booked into the Jerome County Jail, she won't be without a bed but she might find herself sleeping in the library. Since the jail isn't equipped with a separate area for female inmates, they must be housed in some creative ways.

Out of the usual 50 to 80 inmates Jerome County has at any given time, women generally make up less than 10 percent, McFall said.

Since there are bunks and showers in the jail's library, several women can be housed there.

"The library is actually old cells and the same security," McFall said. "We just have books in here."

Male and female inmates are not allowed to see each other, so a woman will be housed in an isolated area of the jail and is often the only female inmate there.

"It may be a two-person cell, but only one person will be in there," McFall said. "If we have to house one female like over the weekend until she saw the judge and we wanted to hold her here, there's a good chance she's going to be by herself."

If a woman must be housed for a longer period of time, the jail finds another county that has a women's holding area.

Tuesday, Jerome County had two female inmates at the Twin Falls County Jail, one in the Gooding County Jail and one at the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center, McFall said. Occasionally, Jerome inmates are held in Blaine County.

The new jail proposed for Jerome County would include at least one holding area for women, he said.

"We could classify violent and nonviolent, or could change one pod into male housing," he said.

Heyburn Man Accused of Child Sex Abuse

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A 26-year-old man from Heyburn has been indicted by a Twin Falls grand jury on two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 and one count of sexual abuse of a minor under 16.

Stephen Anthony Clark was accused of committing the crimes between Jan. 15, 2008, and Oct. 1, 2011, when the child was between 9 and 12 years old.

The indictment was handed down on March 21 and Clark was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th Magistrate Court on Tuesday.

Clark is being held at the Twin Falls County Jail on $250,000 bond. The case is scheduled to advance to district court on April 2.

Tighter Security for SAT, ACT in Wake of Cheating

BY FRANK ELTMAN
Associated Press

MINEOLA, N.Y. • The millions of students who take the SAT or ACT each year will have to submit photos of themselves when they sign up for the college entrance exams, under a host of new security measures announced Tuesday in the aftermath of a major cheating scandal on Long Island.

The two companies that administer the tests, the College Board and ACT Inc., agreed to the precautions under public pressure brought to bear by Nassau County District Attorney Kathleen Rice, who is overseeing the investigation. The measures take effect in the fall.

"I believe these reforms, and many others which are happening behind the scenes, will prevent the kind of cheating that our investigation uncovered and give high schools and colleges the tools they need to identify those who try to cheat," Rice said.

Rice has charged 20 current or former students from a cluster of well-to-do, high-achieving suburbs on Long Island with participating in a scheme in which teenagers hired other people for as much as $3,500 each to take the exam for them. The five alleged ringers arrested in the case were accused of flashing phony IDs when they showed up for the tests. All 20 have pleaded not guilty.

In one instance, a young man allegedly produced ID and took the test for a teenage girl who had a name that could have been either male or female.

Students have long been required to show identification when they arrive for one of the tests. Under the new rules, they will have to submit head shots of themselves in advance with their test application. A copy of the photo will be printed on the admission ticket mailed to each student, and will also appear on the test site roster.

School administrators are "going to be able to compare the photo and the person who showed up and say that's either John Doe or that's not John Doe. They didn't have the ability to do that before," the district attorney said.

The photo will also be attached to the student's scores, which, for the first time, will be sent to his or her high school, so that administrators and guidance counselors can see the pictures. Previously, test results were sent only to the student.

"Millions of college-bound students who take the SAT and ACT each year can have a new confidence that their hard work and preparation will be rewarded and not diminished by cheaters," Rice said.

Officials from the College Board and ACT Inc. said that any additional costs would be absorbed and not passed on to students. The College Board charges $49 for the SAT; ACT Inc. charges $34 for the basic test, $49.50 if it includes a writing exam.

EPA TO REDUCE NEW POWER PLANTS' CARBON POLLUTION

BY DINA CAPPIELLO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration forged ahead on Tuesday with the first-ever limits on heat-trapping pollution from new power plants, ignoring protests from industry and Republicans who have said the regulation will raise electricity prices and kill off coal, the dominant U.S. energy source.

But the proposal also fell short of environmentalists' hopes because it goes easier than it could have on coal-fired power, one of the largest sources of the gases blamed for global warming.

"The standard will check the previously uncontrolled amount (of carbon pollution) that power plants ... release into our atmosphere," Lisa Jackson, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, said in a conference call with reporters Tuesday. But "it also creates a path forward for future facilities to use technology that burns coal, while releasing less carbon pollution."

Justices Signal Deep Trouble for Health Care Law

BY MARK SHERMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The fate of President Barack Obama's health care overhaul was cast into deeper jeopardy Tuesday as the Supreme Court's conservative justices sharply and repeatedly questioned its core requirement that virtually every American carry insurance. The court will now take up whether any remnant of the historic law can survive if that linchpin fails.

The justices' questions in Tuesday's hearing carried deeply serious implications but were sometimes flavored with fanciful suggestions. If the government can force people to buy health insurance, justices wanted to know, can it require people to buy burial insurance? Cell-phones? Broccoli?

The law, pushed to passage by Obama and congressional Democrats two years ago, would affect nearly all Americans and extend insurance coverage to 30 million people who now lack it. Republicans are strongly opposed, including the presidential contenders now campaigning for the chance to challenge Obama in November.

The court focused on whether the mandate for Americans to have insurance "is a step beyond what our cases allow," in the words of Justice Anthony Kennedy.

Supporters of health care reform rally Tuesday in front of the Supreme Court in Washington, D.C., as the court continues arguments on the health care law signed by President Barack Obama.

But Kennedy, who is often the swing vote on cases that divide the justices along ideological lines, also said he recognized the magnitude of the nation's health care problems and seemed to suggest they would require a comprehensive solution.

He and Chief Justice John Roberts emerged as the apparent pivotal votes in the court's decision. The ruling is due in June in the midst of a presidential election campaign that has focused in part on the new law.

Though many of the justices asked tough questions and made strong statements, past cases have shown that those don't necessarily translate into votes when it comes time for a decision.

Wednesday's final arguments — the third day in the unusually long series of hearings — will focus on whether the rest of the law can remain even if the insurance mandate is struck down and, separately, on the constitutionality of another provision expanding the federal-state Medicaid program.

The insurance requirement is intended to complement two unchallenged provisions of the law that require insurers to cover people regardless of existing medical conditions and limit how much they can charge in premiums based on a person's age or health.

Syria Accepts Peace Plan but Clashes Continue

BY BASSEM MROUE
Associated Press

QAA, Lebanon • Syria accepted a cease-fire drawn up by U.N. envoy Kofi Annan on Tuesday, but the diplomatic breakthrough was swiftly overshadowed by intense clashes between government soldiers and rebels that sent bullets flying into Lebanon.

Opposition members accuse President Bashar Assad of agreeing to the plan to stall for time as his troops make a renewed push to kill off bastions of dissent. And the conflict just keeps getting deadlier: The U.N. said the death toll has grown to more than 9,000, a sobering assessment of a devastating year-old crackdown on the uprising that shows no sign of ending.

Annan's announcement that Syria had accepted his peace plan was met with deep skepticism.

"We are not sure if it's political maneuvering or a sincere act," said Louay Safi, a member of the opposition Syrian National Council. "We have no trust in the current regime. ... We have to see that they have stopped killing civilians."

Annan's plan calls for an immediate, two-hour halt in fighting every day to allow humanitarian access and medical evacuations. The plan also outlines a complete cease-fire, but that will take more time because Syria must first move troops and equipment out of cities and towns, government forces and the divided opposition must stop fighting, and a U.N.-supervised monitoring mission must be established.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said Assad must now act.

"Given Assad's history of overpromising and underdelivering, that commitment must now be matched by immediate action," Clinton told reporters in Washington. "We will judge Assad's sincerity and seriousness by what he does, not by what he says. If he is ready to bring this dark chapter in Syria's history to a close, he could prove it by immediately ordering regime forces to stop firing and begin withdrawing from populated areas."

British Foreign Secretary William Hague said Assad's decision was only a first step.

"We will continue to judge the Syrian regime by its practical actions, not by its often empty words," he said.

Annan, who is an envoy for the U.N. and the Arab League, has traveled to Russia and China to shore up support for his peace plan. Russia and China have twice shielded Assad from U.N. sanctions over his crackdown, saying the statements were unbalanced and blamed only the government. Syria is Moscow's last remaining ally in the Middle East and is a major customer for Russia's arms industry, but the Kremlin has recently shown impatience with Assad.

In Beijing on Tuesday, Annan said China has offered its "full support" for his mission.

In contrast, Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad offered Assad unequivocal support.

"I'm very happy that Syrian authorities are managing the situation with confidence," the official Iranian news agency quoted Ahmadinejad as saying. He echoed Assad's charge that rebels are acting out a Western conspiracy. "Americans want to dominate Syria, Lebanon, Iran and all other countries through the false slogan of defending the freedom of the (Syrian) people, and we must be alert toward their conspiracy," he said. Iran is one of Syria's last true allies.

Despite the high-level diplomacy, the situation on the ground remained as bloody as ever.

There were conflicting reports about whether Syrian troops physically crossed the border into Lebanon during heavy fighting near a rural area around the Lebanese village of Qaa.

Two Lebanese security officials told The Associated Press that only bullets whizzed across the frontier.

JUDGE BLOCKS IMPORTATION OF EXECUTION DRUG

BY FREDERIC J. FROMMER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A federal judge on Tuesday blocked the importation of a drug used in executions on grounds the Food and Drug Administration ignored the law in allowing it into this country.

U.S. District Judge Richard Leon sided with lawyers for death row inmates in Tennessee, Arizona and California who want to keep out sodium thiopental, because it is an unapproved drug manufactured overseas. The Obama administration argued it had discretion to allow unapproved drugs into the U.S.

But Leon said the FDA's actions were "contrary to law, arbitrary, capricious, and an abuse of discretion." He said that plain language of the law says that an article that appears to be misbranded or unapproved "shall be refused admission."

Leon scolded the agency: "Put simply, this appears to be nothing more than the FDA, once again, stubbornly clinging to every last ounce of its discretionary authority!"

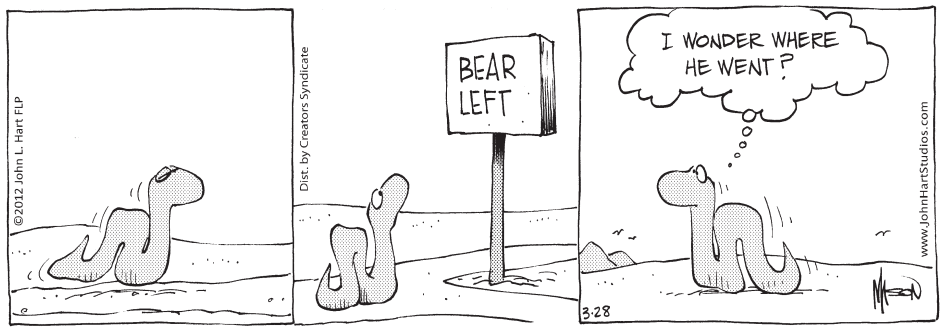

Sodium thiopental is an anesthetic used to put inmates to sleep before other lethal drugs are administered. The drug's U.S. manufacturer announced last year that it would no longer produce it, which forced corrections officials to delay many executions. Many of the nation's 34 death penalty states switched to an alternative drug, pentobarbital — a point Leon stressed.

In addition to blocking the FDA from allowing the drug into the country, Leon also ordered the FDA to immediately notify any state correctional departments with foreign-manufactured thiopental that its use is prohibited by law, and that the drug must be returned to the FDA.

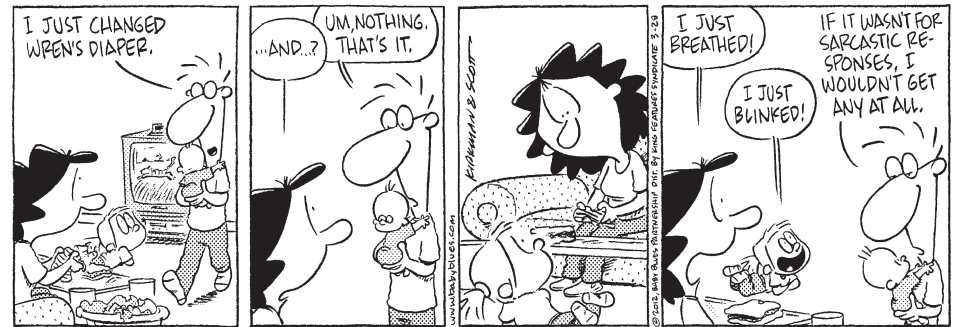

A lawyer for the death row challengers, Brad Berenson, said in an email that "it was especially gratifying that the court recognized that even the most despised members of our society are entitled to the protections Congress gave to all Americans in the Food and Drug and Cosmetic Act."

The FDA declined to comment on the ruling or say whether it planned to appeal.

Stocks Edge Lower after Consumer Confidence Report

NEW YORK (AP) • Major stock indexes dipped Tuesday as weak readings on consumer confidence gave investors little reason to extend the recent rally. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 43.90 points to close at 13,197.73, a loss of 0.3 percent. Bank of America fell 3.3 percent, the biggest drop in the Dow, after an analyst downgraded the stock. Other indexes edged lower. The Standard & Poor's 500 index dropped 3.99 points to 1,412.52. The Nasdaq composite fell 2.22 points to 3,120.35.

Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen listens during a news conference in December 2011 in Seattle. An AWOL soldier's simple scheme to defraud one of the richest men in the world has landed him in federal custody, according to a criminal complaint.

If Microsoft Co-founder's ID Isn't Safe, Is Yours?

BY RANDY PENNELL AND JOANN LOVIGLIO

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA • Even the billionaire co-founder of Microsoft isn't immune to identity theft, it seems.

A simple scheme to defraud Paul Allen, one of the richest men in the world, has landed an AWOL soldier in federal custody, authorities said this week. The case raises basic questions about how safe anyone's information can really be.

Federal investigators allege in a complaint unsealed Monday that Brandon Lee Price, 28, changed the address on a bank account held by Allen, then had a debit card sent to his Pittsburgh home to use for payments on a delinquent Armed Forces Bank account and personal expenses.

"Clearly, it's a reminder that anyone can be a victim of this," said David Postman, a spokesman for Allen. "It certainly is a surprise and reason for everyone to make sure that all that stuff is properly cared for and monitored."

So, how would someone go about stealing the identity of the man who helped start a company that itself was a pioneer in digital security?

Price called Citibank in January pretending to be Allen and changed the address on one of Allen's accounts from Seattle to Pittsburgh, then called back three days later to say he had lost his debit card and asked for a new one to be sent to him, an FBI investigator wrote in a criminal complaint filed in February.

The card sent to Allen's address was used to attempt a $15,000 Western Union transaction and make a $658.81 payment on the Armed Forces Bank loan account the day it was activated, according to the complaint. Surveillance footage also captured him attempting purchases at a video game store and a dollar store, authorities alleged.

The fraud was detected by the bank, which alerted law enforcement officials, Postman said. None of Allen's other accounts was compromised, and the only transaction that apparently made it through was the loan payment, he said.

Investigators found Price had been listed since June 2010 as absent without leave from the Army and was wanted as a deserter, authorities said. He was arrested March 2, as first reported by WPXI-TV, and an Army spokesman said he was returned to Fort Polk in Louisiana.

Citibank is not talking, citing customer confidentiality rules, and Price's lawyer did not return a call Tuesday.

But there's no reason to assume that a public figure like Allen is any less susceptible to identity theft, experts said.

Nearly everyone has personal information readily available online — more so for public figures like Allen — that can provide answers to many basic security questions like birthdate, address, mother's maiden name, pet's name and high school name, said Nikki Junker of the Identity Theft Resource Center, a nonprofit providing victim services and consumer education about identity theft.

Too few customers take advantage of added layers of security offered by many credit card companies, such as using unique verbal passwords or signing up for automatic alerts when account information is changed, Junker said.

"As we strive for more convenience, the safety goes down," she said. "You would think being one of the richest men in the world would make you more careful about your account."

Allen made the bulk of his fortune founding Microsoft Corp. with Bill Gates in 1975. He left the company in 1983 and now owns the Seattle Seahawks and the Portland Trail Blazers. He is the founder and chairman of Vulcan Inc., the company that manages his business and charitable undertakings.

Forbes estimates Allen's net worth at $14.2 billion.

"On one hand, you can say that there's lots we can find out about the Paul Allens of the world," said Dennis Adsit, vice president of consulting services for KomBea Corp., a company that develops security technology for call centers. "On the other hand, a guy like Paul Allen can hire and pay someone to scrub his information on the Internet, to make him more bulletproof."

About 280,000 cases of identity theft were reported in 2011, according to the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection. That includes complaints through the Better Business Bureau and state attorney general offices and other law enforcement agencies.

Jeff Blyskal, senior editor at Consumer Reports, noted that banks "do have systems in place" to counter fraud.

"This is surprising that they would do this," he said of the allegations that Price simply called the bank on Jan. 9 and changed Allen's address, called again Jan. 12 identifying himself as Allen and asking for a replacement debit card, and got a debit card delivered to his own home the next day.

"They have ways to ID you when you call up," Blyskal said. "Passcodes, security questions?"

Citibank would not comment on how the address on the account was changed or any other details. The bank will continue to work with investigators, spokeswoman Catherine Pulley said in an emailed statement.

One likely bonus for Allen? "If your bank gives your money away to someone else, you shouldn't have to pay for it. You're not going to be liable for it," Blyskal said.

Bell and Bradley Named to Weed HOF

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • Magic Valley residents Jack Bell and Glenn Bradley were named to the Idaho Weed Hall of Fame during February's Idaho Weed Conference in Boise.

Both men work with the Northside Tri-County Cooperative Weed Management Area, according to a release.

Bradley has served on the area's advisory board since 1998, and has played an integral part in removing Scotch thistle from an area of Shoshone County.

Bell has been the advisory board's vice-chairman since its 1994 formation, and has played a key role in the counties' joint venture to battle noxious weeds.

U.S. Consumers Hold onto Rosy Outlook in March

BY ANNE D'INNOCENZIO

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Americans are holding onto a rosier view of the U.S. economy as they focus on the good in a flood of mixed economic news.

Gas prices are up, but the stock market is, too. Home prices are down, but so is unemployment.

"The resilience suggests that jobs remain a more important concern for consumers than gasoline prices," said Mark Vitner, an economist at Wells Fargo Securities.

Gas prices have risen almost every day this month, yet the Consumer Confidence Index for March held nearly steady at 70.2, according to the New York-based private research group The Conference Board. February's reading, revised upward to 71.6, was the highest it's been in a year.

Consumer confidence is widely watched because consumer spending accounts for 70 percent of economic activity. Confidence has been fragile since the U.S. recession began in late 2007, despite several short-lived spikes.

Now, it appears to be rebounding as Americans seem to be looking at the proverbial glass as half-full despite continued weaknesses in the economy, including rising gas prices.

The measure is still significantly below the 90 reading that indicates a healthy economy — a level the index has not been near since the recession began in December 2007. But the current reading is a long climb from the 40 figure it hit last October, not to mention its all-time low of 25.3 in February 2009.

Confidence levels are closer to a stable economy than not, with Americans feeling more confident than they have in a long time.

Nicklas Johnson, a software engineer who has been with the same company for 14 years, said recruiters are starting to solicit him for jobs. That's making him more confident about spending a little more despite the fact that gas prices are rising and the value of his home has plummeted.

"I would be lying if I said gas prices aren't in the back of my mind," said the 36-year-old who lives in San Mateo, Calif. "But I'm very optimistic that employment is rising ... I'm more encouraged about improvements in the job market than discouraged about inflation."

Learn Job-seeking Skills at Twin Falls Workshops

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Area job-seekers can learn tips and tricks to for their job searches during an Idaho Department of Labor "Becoming Employable" workshop held April 6 on the second floor of the College of Southern Idaho's Taylor building.

Two free workshops will be held from 8 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Participants are asked to come half an hour early to sign in and pick up materials.

The workshops will include tips for the job search, professional help with your resume, and a mock interview with feedback on your performance.

Participants are asked to come with their employment history and employer contact information, a copy of their current resume, and a list of skills and strengths.

To register, visit the Idaho Department of Labor Twin Falls office at 420 Falls Ave.

Obama Seeks Thaw with Pakistan at Seoul Summit

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) • President Barack Obama, closing a nuclear security summit Tuesday, sought a thaw in the diplomatic chill with Pakistan, a critical but difficult U.S. partner whose nuclear weapons and historical links to terrorism make its arsenal among the world's most vulnerable.

"There have been times — I think we should be frank — in the last several months where those relations have experienced strains," Obama told Pakistani Prime Minister Yousuf Raza Gilani.

Their meeting broke a four-month moratorium on direct top level contacts between the United States and Pakistan. Obama and Gilani were among more than 50 leaders who met here to reaffirm controls on nuclear material that might be bought or stolen by terrorists for a bomb. Obama headed back to Washington after the summit ended.

Pakistan is a key U.S. counterterrorism partner and its cooperation is essential for drawing down the American-led war in neighboring Afghanistan. Pakistan's nuclear weapons, developed outside the international standards endorsed by the United States, are a principal reason the U.S. struggles to promote a stable and friendly government there.

Ties with Pakistan deteriorated last year after the military raid that killed al-Qaida leader Osama bin Laden, when the United States kept Pakistani officials in the dark about the operation. Relations ruptured further when U.S. forces killed 24 Pakistani forces in November in what the United States says was a case of mistaken identity.

DC Nuke Blast Wouldn't Destroy City

BY ALICIA A. CALDWELL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • This is what the U.S. government imagines would happen if terrorists set off a nuclear bomb just blocks away from the White House: The explosion would destroy everything in every direction within one-half mile. An intense flash would blind drivers on the Beltway miles away. A radioactive cloud would drift toward Baltimore.

But the surprising conclusion? Just a bit farther from the epicenter of the blast, such a nuclear explosion would be pretty survivable.

A little-noticed U.S. government study explores what would happen if terrorists got their hands on enough nuclear material to explode a 10-kiloton nuclear bomb, roughly 5,000 times more powerful than the truck bomb that destroyed the federal building in Oklahoma City in 1995. But the city wouldn't disappear from the map.

"It's not the end of the world," said Randy Larsen, a retired Air Force colonel and founding director of the Institute for Homeland Security. "It's not a Cold War scenario."

The biggest difference between the disaster that the government studied and the nightmares of incoming ICBMs from the former Soviet Union is the size of the explosion. Cold War-era fears imagined massive hydrogen bombs detonated in the sky, not a smaller device — one that might fit inside a parked van — exploding on the street.

"Our images of nuclear war are either of Hiroshima or Nagasaki or what we saw in the movies during the Cold War," said Brian Michael Jenkins, a senior adviser to the president of the RAND Corporation. "If you are thinking about (a city) being wiped off the face of the earth, that's not what happens."

Dems, GOP Pursue Unmarried Women Voters

BY LAURIE KELLMAN
Associated Press

STERLING, Va. (AP) • As a married woman, Marisa Hannum had her family's conservatism in mind when she backed Republicans in the 2008 and 2004 presidential elections. Now divorced, she is putting her own interests first as she weighs whether to vote for Democratic President Barack Obama or his Republican challenger this fall.

She's an abortion opponent, worried about her finances and concerned for friends who can't find jobs. She's dumb-founded that anyone is questioning birth control access in 2012. And she has only a glimmer of an idea of how she'll vote in November.

"Now I am a little bit better informed. But I am really on the fence," says Hannum, 30, an assistant restaurant manager, as she stops by the post office in this Washington suburb — a region filled with single women that Democrats and Republicans alike are targeting.

In an election year heavily focused on social issues and the economy, Democrats are trying to energize unmarried females who overwhelmingly vote for their candidates while Republicans work to peel them away.

Political math tells the story of the so-called marriage gap: exit polls show that women are a majority of voters in presidential election years and about four in 10 female voters don't have a spouse. They lean more heavily Democratic than their married counterparts. But the U.S. census says about 22 percent of them are unregistered, a rich pool of potential new voters for both parties competing for the presidency and the majorities in Congress.

Though single women are among the most Democratic groups in the electorate, recent political history gives Republicans hope: In the 2010 elections, Republican House candidates grabbed their highest share of women's votes in decades, at 49 percent. Single women also were hit harder than others by the recession Obama inherited.

So in both parties, the race is on to woo single women, register them to vote and inspire them to show up at the polls.

"There is a group of women who are up for grabs," said Democratic pollster Celinda Lake, who describes a majority of these voters as older, white and blue collar. In research she's done for the Voter Participation Center, a nonpartisan research group. Lake estimates that the share of unregistered single women could be as high as 40 percent, or 55 million people, when the group that did not answer that question on the Census is counted. Whatever the share, "their support cannot be assumed," she says.

As much as 75 percent of single women vote for Democrats, so registering them to vote en masse is more beneficial for Democrats than Republicans. And, said GOP pollster Ed Goetz, single working women tend to show up to vote at some of the lowest rates of any demographic. "They are a longshot," Goetz said of single women generally. But no-longer married women like Hannum, he said, may be worth courting for the GOP in part because they tend to be more conservative than never-marrieds.

Loss of Mandate Wouldn't Kill Health Law

WASHINGTON (AP) • President Barack Obama's health care law would not automatically collapse if the Supreme Court strikes down the unpopular requirement that most Americans carry medical insurance or face a penalty.

The overhaul could still lurch ahead without that core requirement, experts say. But it would be more like a clunky collection of parts than a coherent whole.

That would make an already complicated law a lot harder to carry out, risking repercussions for a U.S. health care system widely seen as wasteful, unaffordable and unable to deliver consistently high quality.

Premiums could jump for people buying coverage individually, and for small businesses. That's because other provisions of the law require insurance companies to accept people with health problems, and limit the premiums that can be charged to older adults.

Sooner or later, the dilemma of the nation's 50 million uninsured would land back on the doorstep of Congress.

It's unclear what the court will do in the end, whether it will let the law stand or strike the whole thing down, or invalidate only the mandate.

If the mandate only is struck down, the law's Medicaid expansion would still be carried out under a separate provision. The Medicaid expansion also is being challenged, but no lower court has found it objectionable.

Starting in 2014, Medicaid would provide health insurance to over half the estimated 30 million people receiving coverage as a result of the law, mainly childless adults living near poverty.

Another provision in the law provides government subsidies for many middle-class people to purchase individual policies, also available starting in 2014. Those subsidies, which have not been challenged, would probably entice many to buy a plan.

And yet another part of the law imposes fines on medium-sized and large employers who do not provide coverage to their workers.

Still, various economic studies have projected that without the mandate ten million to 15 million people who would have been covered instead will remain uninsured.

Health Care

The law envisions that insurers will be able to accommodate older and sicker people without facing financial ruin because the insurance requirement will provide insurance companies with more premiums from healthy people to cover the increased costs of care.

The biggest issue, to which the justices returned repeatedly during two hours of arguments in a packed courtroom, was whether the government can force people to buy insurance.

"Purchase insurance in this case, something else in the next case," Roberts said.

"If the government can do this, what else can it not do?" Justice Antonin Scalia asked. He and Justice Samuel Alito appeared likely to join with Justice Clarence Thomas, the only justice to ask no questions, to vote to strike down the key provision of the overhaul. The four Democratic appointees seemed ready to vote to uphold it.

Barnyard Beef

Burnt Lemon Grill introduced its new breakfast-inspired Barnyard Burger last week.

"It's kind of unique because you get some different flavors," said owner Brenden Taylor.

Yeah, you could say that.

On top of a beef patty sits American cheese, a medium-cooked egg, jalapenos and bacon. It's drizzled with the restaurant's sweet-potato fry sauce.

Taylor said he was inspired to get creative after watching a cheeseburger be built on a glazed doughnut on The Food Channel.

He wanted to "up the ante." The Barnyard Burger is available for a limited time, with fries or tater tots and a medium drink for $7.29. If it does well, it could stick around. Taylor said Burnt Lemon Grill (1879 Addison Ave. E., Twin Falls) will introduce new menu items each month.

New Tacos: Potato, Fish

Abstaining from meat for Lent or simply craving something other than beef? 9 Beans and a Burrito debuted two new options recently.

First, there's the 99-cent potato taco. Instead of meat, it's got mashed potatoes, along with cheese, lettuce and tomatoes.

"They're very typical in Mexico," said Lorena De Leon, restaurant manager. "I had them when I was a child. They remind me of home. My mom would make those."

9 Beans and a Burrito (799 Cheney Drive, Twin Falls) also began selling fish tacos recently. The restaurant experimented with a handful of fish types and chose cod in hopes of pleasing the widest audience.

"It's not as fishy as the other fishes," De Leon said. "There are (employees) that don't like fish, and they tried the fish tacos with codfish. They liked them, so we thought it would appeal to the general public."

Fish tacos cost $2.75 apiece, or get the special: $7.99 for two fish tacos with beans and rice on the side, or the same price for three fish tacos.

Lent Deals

Shake Out is another restaurant hoping to please those observing Lent.

Until Easter, the restaurant (1186 Kimberly Road, Twin Falls) will offer deals on its seafood meals, said owner Merilee Waters.

For $5.99, get one of three combos. Entree choices include a 12-piece breaded shrimp meal, fish burger or fish strips. (They usually cost $1 more). The latter two use pollock, which Waters said is similar to cod but is found in the Pacific Ocean. Each meal comes with fries and a medium soft drink.

Waters said her restaurant prides itself on having "sit-down quality with drive-through prices." Shake Out also has new shake flavors, such as cheesecake and black licorice.

"We're still experimenting with the black licorice," Waters said. "We haven't found a way to color it black. It's white but it tastes like licorice. We're working on that one."

Goodbye to Lunch

Canyon Crest Dining & Event Center will stop serving lunch this week.

"We're just trying to focus on our dinners and lounge so we can make sure we're really good at that," said manager Chris Blom. "We're focusing on making this the best place to hang out (at night)."

Starting April 2, revised hours will be: From Monday to Thursday, the lounge is open from 3 p.m. to close (time varies depending on how busy it is), and the restaurant is open 4-9 p.m. On Fridays and Saturdays, the lounge is open 3 p.m. to close, and restaurant hours are 4-10 p.m. The restaurant is closed Sundays, but the lounge is open 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.; the lounge menu will be served until 6 p.m.

Canyon Crest (330 Canyon Crest Drive, Twin Falls) has several special days and offers. On Sundays, mimosas are $2 and Bloody Marys are $3. Monday, 4-9 p.m., is Family Night; kids eat free (one child per adult). Ladies' Night, featuring live music, is 6 p.m. to close on Thursday; for ladies, drinks and appetizers are half off.

As always, live bands will perform each Friday and Saturday, 9 p.m. to close. Blom said Canyon Crest hopes to bring in the best bands in southern Idaho.

Put Easter into your Dutch Oven

GOODING • Feeling the urge to do some of your spring cooking outdoors? Colleen Sloan will teach a "Dutch Oven Cooking" workshop next week in Gooding for the College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center.

She'll demonstrate Dutch oven Easter recipes and Basque-celebration recipes, while teaching how to season, cook with, clean and store Dutch ovens. Bring a non-alcoholic beverage to enjoy with the food.

Class will be 6:30-8:30 p.m. April 5 at CSI's North Side campus in Gooding. Cost is $25.

Though there are fewer of them nowadays, custom meat cutters serve a niche market: people who want to know exactly where their meat is coming from.

BUHL • Every year rancher Eric Williams selects around 25 head of cattle to be butchered between February and March.

Cliff Rediker

He doesn't do it himself, but instead hires a custom meat cutter. Not only does the cutter do the dirty work — kill the animal — but it prepares and packages the meat. All Williams has to do afterward is pick up his order, frozen and packaged in white freezer paper.

One of the cutters he regularly contracts with is B&L Meats in Buhl, owned by Cliff and Barbara Rediker. The shop has been in business since 1923 — though it's had different owners — and today is among Magic Valley's few remaining custom meat cutters.

"There used to be more of us," Cliff said. "Now there's just a handful."

The scent of raw meat hung in the air March 22, as four workers busied themselves about B&L Meats' small warehouse.

Barbara Rediker, co-owner of B&L Meats in Buhl, cuts thin slices of sirloin beef for jerky on Thursday. The shop prepares jerky from sirloin because it has less gristle than other meats.

EPICUREAN IDAHO

Chefs will pull out their best tricks for the tasting menu at a big-ticket fundraiser. But you can find those flavors at local restaurants, too.

For the Times-News

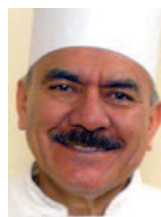

TWIN FALLS • Nine Magic Valley and Jackpot, Nev., chefs will produce their best sweet and savory eats to battle for People's Choice and judges' awards at the annual Epicurean Evening on April 13.

Can't pay the hospital foundation fundraiser's $100 ticket price? You can still enjoy many of the dishes at local restaurants and wineries.

Jaker's chef John Chappell is preparing pork tenderloin medallions topped in garlic apple butter for Epicurean Evening. Although the medallions aren't on the Twin Falls restaurant's menu, Chappell said, its pork chops are served with the apple butter — chopped, roasted Fuji apples mixed with fresh garlic and butter. The mixture "becomes almost like an applesauce but with chunks" and is poured over the chops in a pan.

"As it finishes cooking the butter heats up and then the dish is served," Chappell said. "Every now and again we'll have the pork chops on special, a few times a year."

A Simple Take on the Classic Coconut Cream Pie

BY ELIZABETH KARMEI
For The Associated Press

My favorite childhood photograph is of my mother, my sister and me on Easter morning. We are dressed alike in matching spring coats, hats and gloves, holding our Easter baskets. But I remember that as tempting as the candy in the basket was, all I could think of was the luscious coconut cream pie my grandmother had made for dessert.

For me, that pie was magical, with its homemade flaky crust and rich silky custard. It spoke of home, of leisurely enjoying a slice. Pies still inspire me today. Some restaurants have wine programs. Mine has a pie program.

My grandmother's coconut cream pie is made from a cooked custard similar to a creme anglais, which is thickened with egg yolks and corn starch. The thick custard then is poured into a prebaked pie shell, topped with meringue and baked. But as much as I love that pie, I felt the need to tinker. I wanted the same flavors, but with less work.

I kept the prebaked — or properly called blind-baked — pie shell. It's the key to ensuring the crust is flaky, not soggy. The easiest way to do this is to form the pie dough in the pan, then set a sheet of parchment paper on it with dry beans or weights holding it in place. It then is baked until golden, then cooled.

My version of coconut cream pie is perfect for anyone, especially those new to baking pies because the custard is simply stirred together in a bowl, then baked in the shell. I also add a little fresh orange to the custard to complement the coconut.

Orange-Scented Coconut 'Cream' Custard Pie

Start to finish: 1 hour 15 minutes, plus cooling (15 minutes active). Servings: 8.

8- or 9-inch prepared raw pie crust
3 large egg yolks
1 tablespoon all-purpose flour

1/2 cup sugar
Pinch of salt
Zest of 1/2 orange
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup sweetened flaked coconut
Whipped cream (optional)
Toasted flaked sweetened coconut, to garnish

Heat the oven to 400 degrees.

Arrange the crust in an 8- or 9-inch pie pan, folding and crimping the edges as needed. Place a sheet of parchment paper over the crust, then set enough beans or pie weights in the center to weigh down the bottom of the crust. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes, or until the crust is set and lightly browned.

Remove the crust from the oven and set aside to cool to room temperature. Reduce the oven temperature to 350 degrees.

In a medium bowl, mix together the egg yolks, flour, sugar, salt, orange zest, vanilla, orange juice, heavy cream and coconut. Mix until slightly frothy on the top, then pour into the cooled pie shell.

Place the pie in the center of the oven and bake until set, about 40 to 50 minutes. Set the pie aside to cool completely, then top with whipped cream and toasted coconut.

Creamy Lobster Pasta You Can Make at Home

MCT PHOTO

BY SUSAN M. SELASKY
Detroit Free Press

Looking for a terrific home-cooked meal? With just a little planning, this Lobster and Shrimp Pasta with Sherry Tomato Cream can be whipped up in no time. Most of the ingredients, such as canned crushed tomatoes and pasta, are pantry staples. The stars are lobster and shrimp.

You will find lobster tails, fresh or frozen, for about $6-$7 apiece at many stores. They don't yield a huge amount of meat, so I included shrimp as well.

This dish came to mind because I had some lobster tails and shrimp tucked away in the freezer. They are good items to have on hand for a quick meal that nevertheless looks very special.

Other than cooking the pasta, this is a one-skillet meal. The lobster and shrimp are lightly sauteed in butter, then covered and steamed in their own juices. Cooking them in their shells helps prevent them from drying out.

The rest of the ingredients are tossed in the same skillet to finish the dish.

I often opt for cream sauces with pasta dishes — I just can't resist. The trouble is, those sauces are loaded with fat and calories. And what's the next big temptation? Taking a piece of bread and sopping up all that sauce!

In this recipe, I only use 1/2 cup of heavy cream. It's just enough to give the sauce a silky texture and rich taste. (Whether it's labeled "heavy cream" or "heaving whipping cream," it's all the same.)

Milk fat allows cream to whip properly and adds richness to sauces, soups and other dishes. Most heavy cream products have 36 percent or more milk fat. For cream to whip properly for desserts, it needs a milk fat content of 30 percent.

In addition to the mushrooms and peppers, you can add asparagus or zucchini to this dish to boost up the veggie content.

Round out this meal with a nice big salad of peppery arugula and some crusty whole-grain bread.

Lobster and Shrimp Pasta with Sherry Tomato Cream

Serves: 2 (generously).
Preparation time: 15 minutes. Total time: 45 minutes.

4 ounces favorite dried short pasta, such as penne
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
2 lobster tails (about 5 ounces each) in shells
6 large shrimp in shells
1 shallot, peeled, chopped
2 cloves garlic, peeled, chopped
1/4 pound sliced mushrooms

1/2 cup thinly sliced red bell pepper
Good pinch of crushed red pepper flakes
1/4 cup dry sherry
1/3 cup fat-free, less-sodium chicken broth
1/2 cup crushed canned tomatoes
1/2 cup heavy whipping cream
2 tablespoons shredded Asiago or Parmesan cheese
Chopped chives or parsley or both for garnish

Cook the pasta according to package directions. Reserve 1 cup of the pasta cooking water, drain pasta and set aside.

In a large skillet, heat the butter over medium heat. Add the lobster tails and cook just until spots on their shells start to turn red, about 3 to 4 minutes. Add shrimp and cover, reduce the heat to low and cook about 5 minutes. Remove the lobster and shrimp from the skillet. When cool, remove lobster meat from shell and cut into large chunks. Remove shrimp from shells and leave whole.

Meanwhile, in the same skillet, add the shallot and garlic; saute 2 minutes. Add the mushrooms, pepper and pepper flakes. Saute about 5 minutes or until mushrooms release their juices.

Deglaze the skillet with the sherry. Add the chicken broth and tomatoes and heat gently. Stir in the cream and cheese and heat through. If the sauce is too thick, thin with some of the reserved pasta water. Add the lobster, shrimp and cooked pasta and heat through. Transfer to individual serving bowls and garnish with chives or parsley. Serve immediately.

Tarragon and Mushrooms Dress Up Chicken Breasts

BY LINDA GASSENHEIMER
McClatchy Newspapers

Fresh herbs give a fragrant flavor to chicken. With the help of a food processor and microwave oven, this dinner takes only minutes to make.

Fresh herbs and mushrooms are chopped in the food processor while the side dish of green beans and potatoes are cooked in the microwave. It's fast, easy and no pot to wash for the side dish.

Fresh tarragon has an anise or licorice flavor. If you prefer, use basil, cilantro or dill instead. Trimmed green beans can be found in the produce section of the market. If you're in a hurry, the extra cost is worth the time saved.

This herbal dish would go nicely with an herbal sauvignon blanc.

Fresh Herbed Chicken

3 teaspoons olive oil (divided use)
2 (6-ounce) boneless, skinless chicken breasts
2 tablespoons fresh tarragon (or 2 teaspoons dried)
1/2 cup fresh parsley
3 medium button mushrooms (about 1/2 cup chopped)
1 teaspoon minced garlic
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Heat 1 teaspoon olive oil in a nonstick skillet over medium-high heat. Add the chicken and brown 2 minutes. Turn over and brown 2 minutes. Lower heat to medium, cover with a lid and cook 5 minutes. A meat thermometer should read 165 degrees.

In a food processor or by hand, coarsely chop tarragon, parsley and mushrooms together. Remove chicken from skillet to 2 dinner plates. Add the remaining 2 teaspoons olive oil to the skillet along with the chopped herbs and garlic. Toss to warm through, about 1 minute. Spoon over chicken. Makes 2 servings.

Red Potatoes and Green Beans

Any type of waxy potatoes, such as gold or yellow, can be used.

3/4 pound red potatoes
1/2 pound green beans, trimmed
2 teaspoons olive oil
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Wash (do not peel) and thinly slice potatoes. Cut the slices in half if they are large. Place in a microwave-safe bowl. Cut the green beans in half and add to the bowl. Cover with a plate or plastic wrap and microwave on high 5 minutes. Remove from microwave and place on dinner plates. Drizzle with olive oil and add salt and pepper to taste. Makes 2 servings.

June Sherrell was cutting front quarters of a beef cow; Susan Matney was putting ground beef through a grinder; and Barbara Rediker was preparing beef jerky while her husband, Cliff, tied string around a New England roast.

"It helps keep it together," he said. "And then when you cook it, and take the string off, it falls apart."

The four-person crew — the Redikers hire an extra employee in fall — was working on beef owned by Williams, of Willow Pines Farm.

Williams has his own clients — local families who want to know exactly where their meat is coming from — who buy cattle from him. He then contracts with B&L or another meat cutter to butcher and process the beef.

"It was something my parents did and we just continued to do it," Williams said.

In a back freezer at B&L, another 14 beef sides hung by thick hooks, waiting their turn to be cut and packaged.

About 80 percent of B&L's business is custom cutting, said Cliff, noting that he and Barbara have owned the shop for six of its 89 years. Cliff travels the valley, mostly staying in Twin Falls County's west end, butchering animals for his clients then bringing the meat back into his shop where it's cut, processed and packaged.

Because the meat he deals with — beef and pork, mostly — is custom cut, it is not inspected by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, he said. His shop, however, is inspected by the agency at least twice a year.

The Redikers occasionally purchase their own beef, which they cut and sell to the shop's walk-in customers. Among other things, customers can buy steak, jerky and pepperoni.

"And there's no pink slime in it," Matney said with a laugh, referring to the ammonia-treated ground-beef filler that ignited social media attention and grabbed national headlines in recent weeks.

As in other industries, a dour economy has had its toll on the valley's custom meat cutters. Some are no longer in business.

"It's always better in a good economy," said Brent Johnson, owner of Oop's City Market in Jerome. Then, clients have an easier time selling their meat to friends and neighbors. "It helps keep their costs down. ... But now there's probably about half (the cutters) of what there used to be."

menu items. Owner Claudia Snyder said the winery will prepare New York cheesecake topped with its homemade buttery bourbon sauce and a decadent bread pudding.

At the winery, the bread pudding can be served with roasted fruit, when available, or the bourbon sauce.

"The bourbon sauce is one of our signature sauces ... it's a real basic recipe," Snyder said. Bourbon, butter, heavy cream and other ingredients are heated on the stovetop, cooled and drizzled to top a variety of desserts.

Cactus Petes Resort Casino executive pastry chef Washington Caceres is preparing a gluten-free, chocolate cake with huckleberry sauce, and a banana terrine covered in almond flour and chocolate and served with a praline sauce. Both treats are available by special order at Cactus Petes, Caceres said.

The evening's other competitors: St. Luke's Magic Valley chef Mark Owsley; LuAnn Stites-Kraft chef at Monastery of the Ascension in Jerome; Saucy chef-owner Mike Dougherty; Bill and Donna Stoltzfus, owners of Cloverleaf Creamery in Buhl; and Plateau Steaks and Seafood Restaurant's room chef Richard Berger.

All Kale Breaks Loose

BY RUSS PARSONS
Los Angeles Times

Kale is about as unlikely a food star as you can imagine. It's tough and fibrous. Bite a piece of raw kale and you'll practically end up with splinters between your teeth. Nevertheless, kale has become a green of the moment because, given a little special care, it actually can be made not only edible but delicious.

You can cook it, of course, the lower and slower the better. But surprisingly, one of the most popular ways to use kale these days is in salads. Though kale leaves have always been found on almost every salad bar, it wasn't for reasons of edibility — it was for decoration, because this was one green so tough it would last forever without wilting.

But the solution is remarkably simple: Give it a massage. Yes, seriously. And I mean a real massage — a deep-tissue bone-breaker. Grab bunches of it in both hands and squeeze. Then rub them together. And repeat. It's almost like kneading bread dough.

It won't take very long — just a couple of minutes — but you'll be amazed at the difference. That tough cellulose structure breaks down — wilts, actually — and those leaves that once seemed so coarse and fibrous turn silky.

You can feel it happening. You can see it too — the leaves will darken and shrink to almost half their pre-massage volume.

The flavor changes as well. That pronounced bitterness mellows, revealing some of the same depths of sweet green flavor you normally get only through long, slow cooking. In fact, the best way to know when you've massaged kale long enough is to take a bite. The color and texture changes can happen before the leaves are completely softened. But taste doesn't lie.

Even better, because the massaged greens have such a wonderful texture and just the right mix of sweet and bitter flavor, you don't need much of a salad dressing. Use a little good olive oil and a pinch of salt when you're giving it a rubdown and all you need afterward is a hint of acidity — vinegar or lemon juice — to make a perfectly balanced salad.

One mark of kale's rock star status is the sheer number of varieties available. It wasn't so long ago that you found just dark green curly kale. Then came the type variously called "Tuscan," "lacinato" or "dinosaur." Now you can even find kales beautifully colored in shades of lavender and purple.

The good news is they all work equally well for salads. Provided, of course, you give them a good rubdown first.

Kale Salad with Farro, Dried Fruit and Blue Cheese

Kale 'Cesar'

Kale Salad with Roasted Winter Squash.

- (such as sour cherries, cranberries, raisins)
- 1 tablespoon orange-flavored liqueur, such as Grand Marnier
- 1 pound kale (about 2 bunches)
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
- 2 tablespoons minced red onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped toasted pecans
- 2 teaspoons red wine vinegar
- Freshly ground pepper to taste

Toast the farro in a dry medium saucepan over medium heat until it smells nutty and turns golden, about 5 minutes. Add 2 cups water and bring to a simmer. Season with 1/2 teaspoon salt and cook until the farro is tender but still a little chewy, about 45 minutes. Drain (there will probably still be some liquid left), rinse under cold running water and gently pat dry in a kitchen towel.

Place the dried fruit in a small bowl with the Grand Marnier. Add just enough warm water to cover and set aside until softened, about 15 minutes. Alternatively, you can microwave them for 30 seconds and let stand for 5 minutes.

Remove and discard the stems from the kale. Chop the leaves into bite-sized pieces. Place in a large mixing bowl with 1 teaspoon salt and the olive oil. Grab the leaves by the handfuls and massage them roughly. Don't be timid. After a minute or two, the coarse, stiff leaves will turn soft and silky. You'll have about half the volume of kale you started with.

Drain the dried fruit and add it to the kale, along with the cooked farro, blue cheese, red onion, pecans and vinegar. Toss to mix well, then season to taste with black pepper and more salt and vinegar, if necessary.

Kale 'Caesar'

Total time: 25 minutes. Servings: 4 to 6.

- 1 cup fresh bread crumbs
- 2 cloves garlic, split in half lengthwise
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest
- Olive oil
- Salt
- 1 pound kale
- 4 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 ounce Parmigiano-Reggiano, grated or shaved with a vegetable peeler

Toast the bread crumbs: Combine them in a small saucepan with the garlic, lemon zest and 3 tablespoons olive oil. Stir to coat well. There should be only a light trace of oil in the bottom of the pan. Season with a pinch of salt and place over medium-high heat. Cook, stirring constantly, until the crumbs have darkened and toasted, about 5 minutes. Transfer them to a small bowl and set them aside to cool slightly.

Kale Salad with Farro, Dried Fruit and Blue Cheese.

Remove and discard the stems from the kale. Chop the leaves into bite-sized pieces. Place in a large mixing bowl with 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon olive oil. Grab the leaves by the handfuls and massage them roughly. Don't be timid. After a minute or two, the coarse, stiff leaves will turn soft and silky. You'll have about half the volume of kale you started with.

Add the toasted bread crumbs and lemon juice and toss well. Season to taste with more salt and lemon juice if necessary. Arrange on separate salad plates or on a platter and sprinkle grated or shaved Parmigiano-Reggiano over top.

Kale Salad with Roasted Winter Squash

Total time: 50 minutes, plus cooling time for the squash.

- 1/2 teaspoon minced fresh thyme
- Salt
- 1 ounce grated Parmigiano-Reggiano (about 1/4 cup loosely packed)
- 1 pound kale
- 1 teaspoon sherry vinegar
- 1/4 cup chopped toasted walnuts

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Cut the butternut squash lengthwise into quarters, then seed and remove any of the stringy center. Cut the pieces crosswise into slices a little thicker than 1/4 inch. Place the squash in a large mixing bowl and add 2 tablespoons olive oil, the garlic, the thyme and 1 teaspoon salt. Toss to coat well. Add the Parmigiano-Reggiano and toss again. Line a jellyroll pan with metal foil and scatter the squash wedges in a single layer. Roast until the squash is tender, fragrant and lightly browned, about 20 minutes. Remove from the oven and set aside to cool.

Remove and discard the stems from the kale. Chop the leaves into bite-sized pieces. Place in a large mixing bowl with 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon olive oil. Grab the leaves by the handfuls and massage them roughly. Don't be timid. After a minute or two, the coarse, stiff leaves will turn soft and silky. You'll have about half the volume of kale you started with. Add the sherry vinegar and toss well. Season to taste with more salt and vinegar if necessary.

Arrange the greens in a low mound on individual serving plates or on a platter. Scatter the cooled squash pieces over the top. Sprinkle with chopped walnuts and serve.

Servings: 4 to 6.

- 1 pound section of butternut squash, unpeeled (preferably the thinner neck)
- Olive oil
- 2 1/2 teaspoons minced garlic (about 2 cloves)

For Easter, a Creamy 'Quiche' to Feel Good About

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Quiche often graces the table of Easter brunches, but everything that's good about quiche happens to be what's not good for us.

It's rich. It's creamy. It's filled with cheese. And then there is the crust. The buttery crust that holds it all together is not so great for the body. So we decided to do a little remake.

The easy thing to reach for is the frittata. Like an oven-baked omelet, frittatas are easy and puffy and can be filled with lots of delicious ingredients. The only problem is that traditional frittatas are made without a crust. We wanted a crust. We also wanted at least some of the creaminess that makes a quiche, well, a quiche.

For the crust, we opted for a layer of shredded potatoes. They crisp nicely, adding that starchiness that the crust provides, but little of the fat.

For the creamy texture, we went with fat-free half-and-half and eggs studded with lean ham, asparagus, shallots and a touch of gruyere cheese. You can swap out whatever you like for your fillings, but be sure the ingredients are cooked before they go in.

Easter Frittata

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 8.

- 1 cup chopped asparagus (1-inch lengths)
- 4 egg whites
- 2 whole eggs
- 1/2 cup fat-free half-and-half
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup shredded gruyere cheese

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 2 shallots, sliced
- 3/4 cup diced smoked ham
- 2 cups shredded frozen hash brown potatoes, thawed

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Fill a medium bowl with ice water.

Bring a medium saucepan of water to a boil. Add the asparagus and blanch for 3 minutes, or until just tender. Use a slotted spoon to remove the asparagus from the boiling water and immediately transfer to the ice water. Once the asparagus is cool, drain and set aside.

In a blender, combine the egg whites, whole eggs, fat-free half-and-half, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Blend until smooth. Stir in the shredded gruyere.

In a nonstick, oven-safe skillet (cast iron works great) over medium, heat the oil. Add the shallots and cook for 3 to 4 minutes, or until soft. Add the ham, asparagus and the blended egg mixture. Stir for 1 minute, or until the egg just starts to set up. Sprinkle the shredded potatoes over the top and sprinkle with salt and black pepper. Bake for 5 minutes on the oven's center rack, or until the eggs are set. Increase the oven to broil and cook for another 5 to 7 minutes, or until the potatoes are crisp and lightly browned.

Sambal: What It Is and How to Use It

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Rule No. 1 about spicy ingredients: You don't need to love spicy foods to love what spicy ingredients can do for the foods you do love.

That's because foods such as chili peppers and hot sauces can do way more than simply add mouth-searing heat. Adding just a touch will heighten the other flavors of a dish without adding noticeable spiciness.

For example, whip up your favorite mac and cheese. Now stir in just a few drops of hot sauce. Taste. It won't be spicy, but it will be better.

Why am I telling you this? Because I want you to try a seriously spicy ingredient and there is no need to be scared off by the heat.

Throughout Asia there are numerous condiments referred to as sambals. Most are made by grinding together chili peppers and vinegar. Depending on where you are, other ingredients — such as dried shrimp, fermented soy beans, brown sugar, spices, coconut milk, etc. — may be added.

The result is a family of sauces with bright, punchy flavor and a fair amount of heat. They usually accompany meat and rice dishes and are added to taste.

The international aisle of most mainstream grocers in the U.S. will offer at least one or two varieties, and they are worth checking out.

One of the most common is sambal oelek (also called chili paste or fresh chili paste), which is a simple blend of crushed chilies, salt and vinegar. Alongside sambal oelek, you may also find something labeled chili garlic sauce, which is sambal oelek with garlic added.

Either is a fine choice for this recipe. The flavors are intense, slightly acidic and almost pungently sweet.

Like most vinegar-based condiments, sambals can be refrigerated for months after opening (most are marked with "best by" dates).

One caution — the word sambal also sometimes refers to a spicy dish. You're looking for the condiments, which are sold in plastic and glass jars.

For more ideas for using sambal, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/yuRWU2>

Chili Garlic Roasted Shrimp with Fettuccine

Start to finish: 25 minutes.
Servings: 4.

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt

- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon sambal oelek or chili garlic sauce
- 1 pound large raw shrimp, shells and veins removed
- 12-ounce package fresh fettuccine
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 scallions, chopped

Heat the oven to 450 degrees. Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a boil.

In a large bowl, mix together the oil, salt, pepper and the sambal or chili garlic sauce. Add the shrimp and toss well.

Transfer the shrimp, as well as any sauce in the bowl, to a rimmed baking sheet. Roast for 5 to 7 minutes, or until pink and firm. While the shrimp roast, add the pasta to the water and cook according to package directions. Reserve 1/4 cup of the cooking water, then drain.

In a large bowl, combine the pasta and shrimp. Use a silicone spatula to scrape any liquid from the baking sheet into the bowl. Toss well.

Sprinkle the cheese and scallions over the pasta and shrimp, as well as a bit of the reserved pasta cooking water. Toss until the cheese is melted.

Per serving: 500 calories; 140 calories from fat (28 percent of total calories); 15 g fat (4 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 245 mg cholesterol; 51 g carbohydrate; 39 g protein; 4 g fiber; 1,050 mg sodium.

Mae T. Hanks

Oct. 30, 1915-March 24, 2012

BURLEY • Rhoda Mae Thomas Hanks, age 96, passed away peacefully Saturday, March 24, 2012, of natural causes in Sandy, Utah.

Mae was born Oct. 30, 1915, in Spanish Fork, Utah, to Genevieve Rowe and Vern Thomas. When she was 6 weeks old, she moved with her family to southern Idaho, where she lived for 90 years. The Thomas family lived in Carey, Idaho, until 1925, when they moved to Paul, Idaho. After graduating from Paul High School, Mae attended the University of Idaho Southern Branch at Pocatello and subsequently graduated from Utah State Agricultural College, where she graduated with high honors in home economics. Mae taught school in Provo, Utah, and Montpelier, Idaho, before marrying Thead James (Ted) Hanks of Burley in the Logan Utah LDS Temple on July 19, 1939. They made their home in Eden, Idaho, for four years and then moved to Burley, where they farmed, taught school and raised their family.

Mae served faithfully in many positions in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Especially dear to her were the 18 years she served as Guide Patrol leader of the Star Ward. She and her husband served together in the South Dakota Rapid City Mission from 1981 to 1983. She worked in the extraction program and was diligent in gathering her own family records and creating opportunities for family gatherings. Mae generously shared her homemaking, musical and organizational skills with her family and community. She was active in PTA, county extension and 4-H work. She enjoyed her association with the Burley Study Club for many years. Mae and Ted enjoyed traveling and had many happy memories of vacations with family and friends.

Mae is survived by her children, Carol Wilson (Wesley) currently serving a mission in Kennewick, Wash., Marie Kartchner (Jerry) of Cottonwood Heights, Utah, Louise Bain (Bill) of Fremont, Calif., Gordon Hanks of Draper, Utah, and Gary Hanks (Cindy) of Concord, Calif. She is also survived by loving in-laws, Philip and Buehlah Hanks and Claudia Hanks of Burley, Idaho, Lorraine and Carl Hogg of Pocatello, Idaho, Lois Thomas of Cedar City, Utah, and Jackie Thomas of St. George, Utah. She has 20 grandchildren and 44 great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband; parents; brothers, Vern Thomas and Glen Thomas; her sister, Rowene Thomas Basinger; daughter-in-law, Colleen Millet Hanks; three grandchildren; and one great-granddaughter.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 31, at the Pella LDS Church, 160 W. 400 S. of Burley, with Bishop Rod Lake officiating. Burial will be in Gem Memorial Gardens. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Friday, March 30, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests contributions to the LDS Church Perpetual Education Fund or to a charity of your choice.

Ralph Smith

Aug. 25, 1921-March 24, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Ralph Smith, 90, of Twin Falls, passed away Saturday, March 24, 2012, in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Ralph was born in Twin Falls to Ralph B. and Cora Mussell Smith. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1939 and attended Whitman College, Class of 1943. Ralph studied pre-law at Whitman and was a member of Sigma Chi Fraternity. He entered military service in 1942 with the U.S. Army Signal Corps. He served in the Photographic Center in New York City.

As a boy, Dad started working in the Twin Falls Title and Abstract Co. His father founded this company upon arriving in Twin Falls in 1907. Dad continued in the title insurance business until his retirement in 1986. He was a life member of BPOE No. 1183 and a past commander of the American Legion.

In May 1946, he married Catherine Madigan in New York City. They raised three children, Veronica (Jim) Hoggatt of Twin Falls, Idaho, Virginia (Mike) MacBride of Bellingham, Wash., and Ralph Madigan Smith (deceased 1994). He married Lena J. Cheney in June 1985.

grandchildren, Ginger (Jarad) Skaley, Elsbeth Hoggatt and Jesse Gomes Smith. He is also survived by stepchildren, Sandra (Ron) Laine of Livermore, Calif., Gail (Tom) Lowman of Gooding, Idaho, and Elwood (Nancy) Cheney of Meridian, Idaho. He was preceded in death by his wife, Catherine; son, Ralph; and sisters, Geraldine and Patricia.

Dad was a man of many interests and hobbies. From a young age, he was an accomplished amateur photographer with his own darkroom. He also enjoyed snow skiing, fly fishing, woodworking and gardening. His sharp sense of humor and extensive knowledge of Twin Falls history will be sorely missed.

Many thanks to Terry, Robert, Paul and Sara, who were so dedicated in keeping Ralph comfortable during his last days.

The funeral for Ralph will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, March 29, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home Twin Falls Chapel, 2551 Kimberly Road. Burial will follow at the Twin Falls Cemetery. Those who wish may share memories and condolences to the family at www.magicvalley-funeralhome.com. Arrangements are under the caring direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Miyoko 'Mary' Aoi

March 15, 1917-March 25, 2012

SHOSHONE • Miyoko "Mary" Aoi, 95, a resident of Shoshone, passed away Sunday, March 25, 2012, at the Lincoln County Care Center in Shoshone.

Mary was born March 15, 1917, in Okayama, Japan. She married Kumao "Slim" Aoi on May 23, 1955, in Kobe, Japan, and moved to Gooding, Idaho. One year later, their son, Michael, was born. The family moved to Shoshone in 1958 to own and operate the Boston Cafe. Mary and Slim retired in 1979.

Mary was an excellent seamstress and loved animals, especially her own and other's cats. She enjoyed her grandchildren and visits from the neighbor children. In later years, she enjoyed walking into town to check on Michael's cats and get the mail.

She is preceded in death by her husband, parents, one sister and one brother. Mary is survived by her son, Michael (Carolyn) of Shoshone; and two grandchildren, Michelle Miyoko and Caleb Kumao.

A memorial graveside service will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday, March 29, at the Shoshone Cemetery in Shoshone.

The family requests that memorial donations in Mary's name be made to the donor's favorite charity.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Shoshone Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarafuneralservice.com.

Dorothy J. Elmore

Nov. 27, 1928-March 17, 2012

BOISE • Dorothy Elmore, 83, of Boise, passed away peacefully at home with her family Saturday, March 17, 2012.

Dorothy was born Nov. 27, 1928, in Stafford, Mo., to W.W. and Ermal Deffenbaugh, the youngest of nine siblings. Dorothy's parents moved to Nyssa, Ore., where she met her husband, Marvin Elmore; they were together for 53 years. She graduated from Adrian High in 1946 and married in October that same year. Dorothy has three children, Leslie Elmore (deceased), Beverly Morlan and Trudy Jones; and a niece she considered a daughter, Mary Bowen.

Dorothy's favorite thing to do was to bake cookies, pies, cakes and breads and make Sunday dinner for her family and friends. Dorothy attended the Nazarene Church in Rupert, Idaho, for more than 30 years, helping wherever she could by teaching Sunday school, caring for the small children in the nursery and feeding numerous families that attended church there. Dorothy retired from the J.R. Simplot plant in Heyburn after working there for 25 years.

Dorothy is survived by her daughters, Beverly Morlan of Beaverton, Ore., and Trudy (Tony) Jones of Boise; niece, Mary (Rusty) Bowen of Twin Falls; five grandchildren, Kevin (Crystal) Elmore of Kansas City, Mo., Trisha (Andrew) Thomas of Boise, Sarah Morlan of Renton, Wash., Tyson Jones of Boise and Austin Morlan of Beaverton, Ore.; two great-nieces, Michele (Darrin) Walton and Cindy Truchott, both of Boise; and two great-nephews, Jacob Bowen and Issac Bowen, both of Twin Falls. Dorothy was preceded in death by her son, husband, parents and siblings.

A memorial service will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 31, at the Euclid Community Church of Nazarene, 1308 Hale St. in Boise.

To share memories with the family, please visit Dorothy's memorial webpage at www.cloverdalefuneralhome.com.

How Do I Flavor Vegan Beans?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: My doctor wants me to try a vegan diet. What are good ways to flavor beans?

Answer: Vegan or not, beans are a great thing to add to your diet. They're high in protein and they're usually cheap, especially if you get in the habit of cooking dried beans. Even canned beans are affordable if you buy them on sale (rinse them to lower the sodium, though).

The great thing about beans, though, is how versatile they are. Depending on the herb or flavoring, you can take beans in almost any direction. For kidney, pinto or black beans, add cumin and chili powder. For a Greek or Italian style with cannellini or other white beans, try oregano, basil or thyme.

Crescent Dragonwagon, well known for her vegetarian cookbooks, has a new bean book, "Bean by Bean," (Workman, $15.95). All the recipes aren't vegetarian, but many are. For advice on moving toward a vegan diet, try Mark Bittman's "The Food Matters Cookbook" (Simon & Schuster, 2010), about his own journey away from meat.

What Can You Do with Greek Yogurt?

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

Question: Many of us have made yogurt cheese by straining yogurt through a coffee filter or cheesecloth. Would this work with the thicker Greek yogurt? Also, can Greek yogurt be used in recipes calling for sour cream?

Answer: Traditionally, two things define Greek yogurt: It's made from sheep's milk, which gives it a tangy flavor, and it's strained so it has a thicker flavor. So it's already very similar to yogurt cheese, also called labnah. To make labnah, you strain yogurt, ending with a firm mixture that's similar to soft cheese.

So making labnah with Greek yogurt might be a little faster, although the final flavor will be tangier.

Greek yogurt will work as a swap for sour cream, although the flavor is slightly different. If you use full-fat or 2 percent Greek yogurt, the higher fat may make it less likely to separate or curdle when you heat it.

A Sweet Potato Rendition of Shepherd's Pie

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Some folks are as adamant about their shepherd's pie as others are their chili.

Which is to say, just as some people are quite certain that nothing with even a trace of a bean should ever dare call itself chili, there are others who maintain that shepherd's pie must be nothing but ground lamb and mashed potatoes.

I'm afraid my life, as well as my need to get a good dinner on the table fast, just doesn't allow for such absolutes.

In my family, we've always taken a loose interpretation of shepherd's pie (and chili, for that matter). We'll gladly make it with whatever ground meat we have handy, including a blend. It always has a layer of corn (because that's what my great grandmother did), and finally a thick bed of mashed potatoes.

And so it was with that sense of creative culinary liberty that I created this sausage-based shepherd's pie topped with mashed sweet potatoes (made all the more sweet thanks to a bit of brown sugar). The result is savory and sweet in just the right balance.

Sweet Potato and Sausage Shepherd's Pie

Start to finish: 1 hour (25 minutes active). Servings: 6.

2 medium sweet potatoes, peeled and cut into chunks
1 tablespoon olive oil
4 cloves garlic, minced
1 medium yellow onion, diced
1/2 pound loose Italian sausage meat
1/2 pound lean ground beef
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
6 ounces (half a bottle) stout or other dark beer
1 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cool water
15-ounce can corn kernels, drained
8 1/4-ounce can creamed corn
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
Salt, to taste

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Lightly oil a standard loaf pan.

Place the sweet potatoes in a large pot and add enough water to cover by 1 inch. Bring to a boil and cook until tender, about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, in a large skillet over high, combine the olive oil, garlic and onion. Saute for 5 minutes, or until just tender.

Add the sausage, beef and pepper. Saute until the meat is browned and cooked through, about 8 minutes. Add the beer and simmer until reduced by half, about 4 minutes. In a small glass, mix the cornstarch with the cool water. Add the cornstarch mixture to the meat and stir until thickened. Remove from the heat.

Spread the meat and onion mixture evenly in the loaf pan. In a small bowl, mix the corn kernels and creamed corn, then spread in an even layer over the meat. Set aside.

Once the sweet potatoes have cooked, drain and return them to the pot. Add the milk, butter and brown sugar, then mash the potatoes until smooth. Season with salt.

Spoon the potatoes evenly over the corn. Bake for 35 minutes, or until the potatoes are lightly browned at the edges.

In the Mood for Wine? A Wine for Every Mood

BY MICHELLE LOCKE
For The Associated Press

You know wine and food pairings. But how do you feel about wine and mood pairings?

That's the approach being taken by a new line of wines — "Be." — from Treasury Wine Estates that are aimed at an emerging segment of the market: millennial women.

With marketing pitches like "Be Radiant!" and "Be Bright," and descriptors like "Fresh Chardonnay" and "Flirty Pink Moscato," there's no mistaking these wines for more staid, chateau-studded labels.

"We wanted to create a brand that would inspire and not necessarily intimidate because the wine category can be intimidating," says Leslie Walters, Be. wines brand manager.

This isn't wine's first attempt to lighten up. The last decade or so has seen the rise of "critter label" wines, wines with odd or provoking names and, most recently, a bevy of "mommy" wines.

The new wines follow research that included spending three to four hours at home with female wine consumers and finding out more about their buying habits and general lifestyles, as well as their attitudes toward wine.

What they found was that women in their mid-to-late 20s — parameters for the millennial generation differ, but 1982 is often considered a benchmark beginning point — wanted to buy wine but didn't want it to be a chore.

"When we shopped with her for wine, the biggest 'Aha!' that we found was that she really wanted to buy wine, but she had a really difficult time making a choice," says Jennifer Kimpe, senior manager of consumer and shopper insights at Treasury Wine Estates. Part of the problem was a lack of really engaging brands, Kimpe says. "If she had to decipher the label and try to figure out what the wine tasted like and it took too long, she didn't seem to have the patience for that."

Be. labels have a clean, eye-catching design. (The period after the Be. is meant to emphasize the idea of being in the moment.) On the front is the brand name, the varietal, the vintage and the adjective used to describe the wine. On the back, the descriptions are light-hearted. "Be unforgettable. Be playful. Be flirty!" advises the back of the pink moscato bottle, describing the wine as a "mischievous Moscato" that is "made to be enjoyed with a wink and a smile."

That's the kind of talk that might make a traditional wine critic's head explode.

Truth is, say Kimpe and Walters, that's not their target audience.

Alyssa Rapp, founder and CEO of Bottlenotes, a popular online wine site where members can learn about, rate and buy wines, hasn't yet tried Be. wines, but she sees the approach as "helping to demystify wine, combating the stereotype of wine being an incredibly stodgy, intimidating, pretentious industry." And with the varietal clearly presented on the bottle, it doesn't appear that the marketing is straying into dumb-down territory, which would be a mistake based on Bottlenotes' interaction with millennials.

"We've learned that millennials are absolutely curious about wines. They're smart and interested," she says.

Be. wines, which are being released this spring, also include a chardonnay — unoaked and very fresh and fruity — and pinot grigio, and sell for between $9.99 and $12.99 a bottle.

U.S. Soccer Takes Another Step Back

NEW YORK • For all the talk about the strides soccer has made in the United States, results of late have been stark and disappointing.

The Americans were eliminated by Ghana in the last two World Cups. The under-20 team's streak of seven trips to the world championship ended last year. And now the under-23s have failed to make two of the last three Olympics after their elimination Monday night.

Yes, the U.S. plays the world's game better than it did 25 years ago. The national team even notched its first win ever over powerhouse Italy last month.

TWIN FALLS • A hot prospect all season long, College of Southern Idaho guard Fabyon Harris now begins the stretch run of his recruitment process.

Harris announced on his Twitter account Monday that he'll visit Texas A&M April 6 for his second official visit.

"It's an exciting time right now and I'm excited for this visit. I like the situation Texas A&M is in right now," Harris told the Times-News Tuesday. "I worked so hard throughout the year and although we didn't end the season the way we wanted to, I can't look back on that right now. It's time to look ahead to the future."

Harris, who is in his hometown of Chicago this week for spring break, said he likes the style the Aggies play and has had a good connection with A&M head coach Billy Kennedy.

The 5-9 guard took his first official visit to the University of Alabama-Birmingham in December, and said he plans on taking a third.

CSI head coach Steve Gosar said he encourages his players to take at least two official visits and to not rush their decision.

"We've done a good job at developing those good relationships with other coaches and our players and we really try and talk these guys through this process," Gosar said. "Fabyon's time is just around the corner."

Harris' list of suitors is long, including interest from Kansas, Oklahoma State, Tennessee and Ole Miss. Other Golden Eagles who have garnered Division I attention include freshman Luke Cothron and sophomores Pat Swilling, Rafriel Guthrie, Gerson Santo, Paul Bunch and Paul Egwuonwu.

It's going to be big boys only in the Big Easy.

After a couple years of mid-majors breaking into the party and little guys leading their teams to titles, the Final Four will feature power players from power conferences.

The players are as good as it gets when it comes to big men: Kansas' Thomas Robinson, Ohio State's Jared

The teams, traditionally strong: Kentucky, Kansas, Louisville, Ohio State. Every one of them has won a national title, been to at least 10 or more Final Fours — all at least once in the past seven years — and have coaches who have won titles or coached in the title game.

Tough Call Awaits U of I Athletics' Future

The toughest, gutsiest call made by Idaho football in recent memory came when head coach Robb Akey decided to go for two points with four seconds left against Bowling Green in the 2009 Humanitarian Bowl.

Compared with the decisions the Vandal athletic department could be forced to make in the coming weeks, Akey's decision — which, in case you've forgotten, worked and left the Vandals with a 43-42 victory — seems as routine as the game's opening kickoff.

Patrick Sheltra
Sports Editor

The decision this corner is calling for the University of Idaho to make?

Go back to the Big Sky Conference.

In all sports. Say goodbye once and for all the idea that Idaho football can ever be anything more than a bit player in major collegiate football. And by major I'm talking about the Football Bowl Subdivision, or Division 1-A as it was known as when the Vandals left the Big Sky for the Big Time in 2000.

Boise State has long established itself as the major player in the Gem State. But the decision being called for here is not based on Idaho's lack of success on the football field.

Besides, anyone who has followed the conference realignment over the past three years knows that on-field success is just a tiny piece of the puzzle employed by conferences to determine what institutions make a good fit.

This is about going where Idaho is wanted and valued.

The Western Athletic Conference — Idaho's current home — recently saw commissioner Karl Benson leave for the same position with the Sun Belt Conference. The idea of the Sun Belt being in the same galaxy as the WAC just five years ago would've gotten you laughed out of the room.

Like Benson, Idaho has to see there is no future in the WAC. And anyone associated with the athletic department, starting with

Stanford, Minnesota Advance to Final

NEW YORK • Anthony Brown scored a season-high 18 points and Josh Owens had 15 points and 12 rebounds to help Stanford advance to the NIT championship game with a 74-64 win over Massachusetts on Tuesday night.

The Minutemen took their first lead since early in the game with about 8 minutes left, but Brown hit a 3-pointer to push the Cardinal back on top, then later scored seven points during an 11-3 run that put Stanford in control.

Third-seeded Stanford (25-11) will meet Minnesota in the NIT final Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

Brooklyn native Chaz Williams led fifth-seeded UMass (25-12) with 19 points.

Stanford leading scorer Chasson Randle picked up his fourth foul with 13½ minutes left, and the Cardinal really missed his defense on Williams.

MINNESOTA 68, WASHINGTON 67

NEW YORK • Freshman guard Andre Hollins scored 20 points, including five in overtime, and short-handed Minnesota beat Washington.

With the shot clock winding down and the Golden Gophers clinging to a one-point lead in the final minute, Hollins banked in an off-balance shot to put Minnesota up 68-65.

The top-seeded Huskies (24-11), who trailed by 15 late in the first half, sent the game to overtime when C.J. Wilcox stole the ball and drove for the tying layup with 16.3 seconds left.

SOUTH CAROLINA HIRES KANSAS STATE'S MARTIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA, S.C. • South Carolina has hired Frank Martin to revitalize its basketball program.

School trustees approved a six-year contract worth more than $2 million a year on average Tuesday morning.

"You have to do your due diligence, and quite frankly, I think we got the right person in Frank Martin," South Carolina athletic director Eric Hyman said.

South Carolina football coach Steve Spurrier and two-time defending national championship baseball coach Ray Tanner came to Martin's introduction. Hyman hopes Martin can have the same winning impact on the basketball team.

Martin replaces Darrin Horn, who was fired two weeks ago after going 60-63 over four seasons.

The former Kansas State coach has reached four NCAA tournaments in his five seasons with the Wildcats and will take over a team that finished dead last in the Southeastern Conference last season. The Gamecocks have been to the NCAA tournament just once since 1998. They finished this season 10-21 and 2-14 in the SEC.

Martin will make $1.9 million next season, $2 million the year after that and $2.1 million the remaining years of the contract.

The son of Cuban immigrants, Martin coached high school basketball in Miami for 15 years and was an assistant at Northeastern for four seasons before Bob Huggins added him to his staff at Cincinnati. Martin credits Huggins with jumpstarting his career, saying the current coach at West Virginia helped him get into college coaching.

South Carolina will be a rebuilding job.

The team's record got progressively worse during Horn's four years. Their top player, point guard and two-sport high school star Bruce Ellington, originally promised to only play basketball next season, but after Horn was fired, he started hanging around the football field during spring practice.

Several other players could consider transfers as Martin's intense coaching style is a stark contrast from the laidback approach favored by Horn, who is owed a $2.4 million buyout.

NCAA WOMEN'S ROUNDUP

Hayes Leads UConn Back to Final Four

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KINGSTON, R.I. • Tiffany Hayes scored 22 points and top-seed Connecticut beat Kentucky 80-65 on Tuesday night to advance to the Final Four for the fifth straight season.

Kaleena Mosqueda-Lewis added 18 for UConn (33-4), which will play the winner of Notre Dame and Maryland on Sunday in Denver. The Huskies matched their own school mark of five straight trips to the national semifinals. LSU and Stanford have also accomplished the feat.

Unlike their previous four trips to the regional finals, which were quick blowouts, the Huskies had to work hard to pull away from the Wildcats.

UConn led 48-47 early in the second half before turning up its defense. The Huskies used a 21-4 run to take command. Hayes, the lone senior on the team, was the catalyst, scoring seven points during the surge. She was selected most outstanding player of the regional. Kentucky (28-7) could get no closer than 15 the rest of the way.

NOTRE DAME 80, MARYLAND 49

RALEIGH, N.C. • Skylar Diggins had a triple-double and Notre Dame claimed its second straight berth in the national semifinals by beating Maryland on Tuesday night in the Raleigh Regional final.

Diggins did it all for the top-seeded Fighting Irish (34-3). The Big East player of the year and AP All-America selection finished with 22 points, 11 assists, 10 rebounds — and five steals.

Natalie Achonwa added 18 points while Kayla McBride had 16 and Natalie Novosel finished with 14. Next up for the Irish: Big East rival Connecticut on Sunday in Denver. Alyssa Thomas scored 17 points and Tianna Hawkins and Alicia DeV Vaughn each had 10. Second-seeded Maryland (31-5) was denied its first Final Four since the Terrapins won the 2006 national title.

Davis Savoring, Surprised at Attention at Kentucky

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. • Anthony Davis walked back into Kentucky's hotel in Atlanta at the South Regional when a young girl approached.

"She got on her knees and bowed down to me like I was a king and said, 'Bow to the Brow.' She was like 5 or 6," Davis said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I just started laughing. Man, fans of all ages, Kentucky is crazy and I just love it."

Davis and his unibrow are a perfect fit.

He's a fun-loving teenager who has swatted away and dunked enough basketballs to become the most dominating player in the college ranks. And that's just in one season at Kentucky.

His steady play and calm demeanor amid the crazy fan base makes it easy to forget he just turned 19 on March 11. He's the anchor of the Wildcats' defense and a ferocious shot-blocker, leading the NCAA with 175 rejections.

But off the court, Davis said he's a laid back guy who likes to pull pranks on his teammates, enjoys math and dabbles with magic.

"Off the court I'm a very cool guy, very laid back. I like to play video games," Davis said. "I like playing pranks on people. It's fun, livens up their spirits a little bit."

"Man, if I could play a prank every second, I would!"

The Wildcats (36-2) play

Kentucky's Anthony Davis cuts the net down after an NCAA tournament South Regional finals college basketball game against Baylor on Sunday.

in-state rival Louisville (30-9) Saturday in the Final Four for a berth in the national title game. Davis will play his usual pivotal role, saying he's fine after banging his left knee in the South Regional final against Baylor.

Along the way to New Orleans, Davis has won nearly every major award and was named to AP's All-America team this week. It's pretty heady stuff for a kid who was just 6-foot-2 in high school as a sophomore and trying to figure out a complicated path to the NBA.

Then, an 8-inch growth spurt turned him into the nation's most in-demand high school prospect after he just wanted to be able to consistently dunk a basketball.

"I'm not even sure how it happened. But I'm glad it happened," Davis said. "If I was short, I wouldn't be able to do all the things I do now. I'm glad I got this growth spurt. Actually, one reason I'm glad is because I can dunk. I always wanted to dunk. I think that's any basketball player's dream."

Now, he slams almost everything thrown his direction. He doesn't think much about the path he laid out early in the recruiting process when his only offer came from Cleveland State. He planned to play for the Vikings, then in Europe or the NBA's Developmental League in an effort to get noticed out of his tiny high school, Perspectives Charter, in Chicago.

Suddenly, as a 6-10 forward with guard skills, he attracted everyone's attention and finished his senior year averaging 32 points, 22 rebounds and seven blocked shots per game.

"When I got here his sophomore year, I knew he was Division I-type player," said Cortez Hale, Davis' high school coach. "I didn't know he would be a Kentucky-type player back then. But he was determined."

"I'm very happy for his success, proving a lot of people wrong, doing what he's supposed to do and doing it the right way."

Davis realizes his growth spurt was the reason he caught the attention of Kentucky coach John Calipari — "they didn't need guards," he says — and he's become the anchor for a group of freshmen and sophomores favored to win the Wildcats' eighth national championship.

"I didn't know (success) was going to come this fast," Davis said.

With several potential first-round NBA draft picks on the roster, Davis realizes that New Orleans will likely be the last time this group takes the floor together.

Davis said he will sit down after the season and talk with Kentucky coaches and his family about his future. Other talented Wildcats might do the same, including freshmen Michael Kidd-Gilchrist and Marquis Teague, along with sophomores Terrence Jones and Doron Lamb.

Final Four

All-American wasn't much more than a bit player last season.

Davis, Kentucky. The 6-foot-10 forward has had as much an impact as any of coach John Calipari's recent run of freshmen phenoms. Athletic and with a pterodactyl-like wingspan, he scores, he swats, he disrupts.

Sullinger, Ohio State. The AP's first repeat All-American in three years, Sullinger is the prototype of today's big man: Big and physical, yet with good touch away from the basket and agile enough to get to the rim. Didn't play when Kansas beat the Buckeyes on Dec. 10 because of a sore back.

THE SIDEKICKS

Not the stars, but not far behind.

Tyshawn Taylor, Kansas. Ty is the guy when it comes to running Kansas' offense.

Deshaun Thomas, Ohio State. Sullinger gets all the attention, but Thomas has been the Buckeyes' leading scorer in the postseason, averaging 21.8 points per game.

Kyle Kuric, Louisville. The Cardinals' leading scorer barely needs to touch the ball to get a shot off.

Terrence Jones, Kentucky. The Wildcats have an NBA team in the making, so it was hard to pick just one player. We went with Jones, the super sophomore with the multidimensional skills who creates so many matchup problems.

THE COACHES

Rick Pitino, Louisville. The first coach to take three different schools to the Final Four, he's put together one of the best coach-'em-up jobs of his career this season, leading a team that had some big stumbles during the season into his sixth trip to the Final Four.

Calipari, Kentucky. Became the second coach to take three teams to the Final Four when he got the Wildcats to Houston last season. Only thing missing for this master recruiter is a title.

Thad Matta, Ohio State. Has the Buckeyes in the Final Four for the second time in six years after reaching the title game with Greg Oden in 2007. Kicking the team out of practice after a rough stretch in February, which prompted a team meeting, helped kick-start OSU's run to New Orleans.

Bill Self, Kansas. Solidified his reputation by winning 2008 national title with Jayhawks, led a team that was supposed to be rebuilding to the Final Four this season.

NUMBERS

2.5 — Ohio State's line over Kansas.

8.5 — Kentucky's line over Louisville.

13 — Combined national championships by this year's Final Four teams: Kentucky (7), Kansas (3) Louisville (2) Ohio State (1).

52 — Years since Ohio State's lone national title.

77.9 — Points per game by Kentucky, most of the Final Four teams.

SUBTLITIES

The natural inclination is to follow the ball. After all, whoever scores the most wins. But there are countless subtle things that lead to the ball going in the basket or, in the case of the defense, not going in.

Here's a few to watch this weekend:

Dieng's anticipation. It's one thing to see Louisville's Senegalese shot blocker swoop in at the last minute and swat a shot away, but watch before the shot goes up, the way he sets himself up and figures out when to jump. And that coil — he's like a cobra waiting to strike.

Sullinger's footwork. Satch Sullinger, Jared's father and high school coach, had the Ohio State forward working on his footwork from an early age and now he's like Chris Brown dancing around the basket. Pay particular attention to the way he uses his pivot foot to face up to the basket.

ODDS

Here's your odds to win the title, from Glantz-Culver, even though no one really bets on these things. (Yeah, right.):

Kentucky, 6-5.
Ohio State, 2-1.
Kansas, 5-2.
Louisville, 6-1.

DID YOU KNOW?

Kansas forward Justin Wesley's two older brothers, Keith and Kevin Langford, both played in the NBA. Freshman guard Christian Garrett is the cousin of former NFL player Mike Garrett and New York Yankees great Chris Chambliss.

Payton Tidying Up Before Sitting Out

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PALM BEACH, Fla. • Sean Payton has planned the New Orleans Saints' offseason, done some work on the upcoming draft and jotted down ideas for the start of training camp.

And now, with his season-long suspension set to begin Sunday, he is checking to see if mentor Bill Parcells would run the team while he serves his penalty for allowing a Saints assistant coach and players to operate a crunch-for-cash bounty system.

Speaking publicly for the first time since the Saints were sanctioned for targeting specific opponents, Payton said Tuesday he will soon decide whether to appeal his suspension, something Commissioner Roger Goodell said he would allow.

Payton also said he was meeting with Parcells, who lives near Palm Beach, site of the NFL meetings, to discuss the plan for the season.

"For me to be down here, if I didn't call him or try to set up a time to see him, I'd probably get his wrath," Payton said.

Payton said he was confident he will coach the Saints again in 2013, and that his biggest challenge was realizing that for the first time in 39 years, he may not have an active role in football as a player or coach.

"You go through a range of emotions that kind of hit you," Payton said. "You're disappointed. You're disappointed in yourself that it got to this point. I think we're trained as coaches to begin preparation right away. I find myself reflecting on it, and you go through a lot of emotions."

Asked if he might work in broadcasting this season, Payton said anyone in his position would keep their options open. He said he hasn't been in touch with Gregg Williams, the former Saints defensive coordinator who ran the bounty system and was suspended indefinitely. Asked if bounties were what he envisioned when he asked Williams to build a defense, he replied, "No, obviously not."

Payton said he, general manager Mickey Loomis — who is facing an eight-game suspension — and team owner Tom Benson are weighing a number of scenarios. Among them: Does Parcells, a two-time Super Bowl winner who hired Payton as an offensive assistant in Dallas in 2003, want to coach?

"He's a great teacher," Payton said. "Certainly I'm biased, having worked with him. But he's a Hall of Fame head coach. And I would also say there's some things probably set up in the framework of our program that would be exactly how he would have set those things up had he been the head coach here in '06. So there's some carry-over that way."

If Parcells returned to the sideline, he may have to wait another five years before becoming eligible for the Hall of Fame again. Asked by Sports Illustrated on Monday if he had a desire to coach another team, Parcells said, "I don't think so."

DALLAS • Jason Terry scored seven consecutive points in a minute to start a game-turning run for Dallas and the Mavericks beat the Houston Rockets 90-81 on Tuesday night.

Dirk Nowitzki had 21 points despite shooting (5 of 17) for the Mavericks, who have won consecutive games against Houston. Rodrigue Beaubois had 14 points and Brandon Wright added 13.

76ERS 103, CAVALIERS 85
PHILADELPHIA • Jodie Meeks scored a career-high 31 points and Jrue Holiday had 19 to lead Philadelphia over Cleveland.

Evan Turner scored 12 points for the Sixers, who moved a half-game ahead of Boston and back into sole possession of first place in the Atlantic Division. The Sixers have held the top spot in the Atlantic for all but a

BUCKS 108, HAWKS 101
MILWAUKEE • Monta Ellis scored 33 points, including 17 in the fourth quarter, and had eight assists to lead Milwaukee to a win over Atlanta.

Brandon Jennings added 18 points for the Bucks, who moved within two games of the idle New York Knicks for the eighth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

GRIZZLIES 93, TIMBERWOLVES 86
MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Rudy Gay scored 21 points, and Dante Cunningham added season highs of 13 points and 14 rebounds to lead Memphis over Minnesota.

Cunningham, inserted into the starting lineup after All-Star center Marc Gasol sat out with a sprained right ankle, was 6 of 9 from the field as all five Memphis starters finished in double figures.

MLB, Dodgers Reach Deal With Magic's Group

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The acquiring group, called Guggenheim Baseball Management, includes Mandalay Entertainment chief executive Peter Guber.

NEW YORK • Los Angeles Dodgers owner Frank McCourt has announced an agreement Monday night to sell the bankrupt team for $2 billion to a group that includes former Lakers star Magic Johnson and former Atlanta Braves and Washington Nationals President Stan Kasten.

The agreement, revealed about five hours after Major League Baseball owners approved three finalists for the auction, is to lead to a transfer of the team by the end of April. It is subject to approval in federal bankruptcy court.

Mark Walter, chief executive officer of the financial services firm Guggenheim Partners would become the controlling owner. The price would be easily a record for a North American sports franchise.

As part of the agreement, the Dodgers said McCourt and "certain affiliates of the purchasers" would acquire the land surrounding Dodger Stadium for $150 million.

"This agreement with Guggenheim reflects both the strength and future potential of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and assures that the Dodgers will have new ownership with deep local roots, which bodes well for the Dodgers, its fans and the Los Angeles community," McCourt said.

McCourt paid $430 million in 2004 to buy the team, Dodger Stadium and 250 acres of land that include the parking lots, from the Fox division of Rupert Murdoch's News Corp., a sale that left the team with about $50 million in cash at the time. The team's debt stood at $579 million as of January, according to a court filing, so even after the divorce payment, taxes and legal and banking fees, he stands to make several hundred million dollars.

Kasten is expected to wind up as the team's top day-to-day executive.

president Duane Nellis and athletic director Rob Spear knows this, otherwise it wouldn't have been reported by several independent sources that Idaho has expressed interest in leaving the WAC for the Mountain West, or whatever the partnership is called that the MW is forming with Conference USA.

"Expressed interested" is the sporting media's way of nicely saying, "Get us off this sinking ship!"

The problem as it pertains to Idaho is no one is willing to throw the Vandals a lifeline. MW commissioner Craig Thompson toured the San Jose State campus last week. That Thompson has not publicly made a visit to Moscow, should count for something.

It's difficult to imagine the WAC, which is already down to seven football schools, surviving with one more defection. Consensus is it will close up shop if it suffers two defections.

And if that happens, Idaho has two options: Go independent or drop down a division in football and re-join the Big Sky Conference.

No space needs to be given to explain why the former is not an option for success at any duration.

One more thing to consider: The Big Sky is currently at 11 members for all sports and 13 for football.

For scheduling purposes, there is room for one more member. But there isn't room for two unless you plan on adding three.

Idaho should not risk planning on the Big Sky being so ambitious in the future. It also needs to get at the front of the line in the event that San Jose State should pursue dropping down as well. It certainly beats dropping football altogether, something several California schools have done over the past two decades or so. And if South Dakota would've taken the Big Sky's offer of membership, it would be a closed door.

Time, as they say, is of the essence with the Big Sky. It will go to 12 football schools the day the WAC dissolves.

Staying at the FBS level merely to save face is a horrible idea, and for the sake of Vandals fans and alumni, their leadership is doing them a huge disservice if that is the prevailing mindset. Idaho football is a money loser, as evidenced by the three body-bag games it scheduled last year at Virginia, Texas A&M and BYU. It couldn't even get a return date for BYU and will travel to Provo in back-to-back years, and will also play this year at LSU and North Carolina.

That is not a building block to success. It's a ploy to keep the books balanced. In the 2009-10 school year, 51 percent of the revenue "generated" by the athletic department came from student fees, state coffers and the U of I itself.

Ticket sales, body-bag game guarantees, television money and conference revenue sharing from bowl games and NCAA tournament appearances? Just 21 percent.

An in-depth look at how much money U of I would save by dropping down from FBS to the Football Championship Subdivision, or FCS, is another topic for another time. Even Vandal brass knows it's the fiscally responsible move. Claiming otherwise is borderline indefensible.

But going back to the Big Sky puts Idaho with its proper company — Idaho State, Montana, Montana State and Eastern Washington for starters. Playing regional schools will build interest in your program — not games against lower-tier Texas schools or body-bag games thousands of miles away. With Boise State off the schedule for the foreseeable future, this becomes even more important.

Make the move Idaho. As Paul McCartney once sang, "Get back to where you once belonged."

You still belong there. The Big Sky will see to it.

"I think CSI is a real hotbed for junior college recruiting. We try to run things here like a Division I program and really get these players prepared for the next level," Gosar said. "A lot of people come to CSI to recruit the program."

The first day to sign a National Letter of Intent in college basketball's late signing period is April 11.

Four Idaho H.S. Players Commit To CSI

The CSI women's basketball team will have a significant Idaho feel in 2012-13.

CSI women's head coach Randy Rogers now has four players from Idaho high schools committed for next season after receiving a verbal commit from West Jefferson guard Cassidy Skidmore this week.

Rogers quickly locked up verbals from Dietrich High School's Moriah Dill and Marsh Valley's Sarah Viehweg during the CSI season, and picked up Alli Furnis from Rigby late last week.

Viehweg is a true banger in the post, while Dill is a swing player expected to play in the paint and on the perimeter, and Furnis will slide to shooting guard for the Golden Eagles.

All four players participated in the Idaho North-South All-Star game in Coeur d'Alene two weeks ago.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 1115 Filer Avenue West FKA 1095 Filer Ave. West, Twin Falls, ID 83301, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Patrick D. Brown and Lisa Barini-Garcia, husband and wife, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp. successor by merger to Security Title Company of Idaho, as Trustee, for the benefit and security of Orus L Bowles and Phyllis M Bowles, husband and wife as Beneficiary, recorded June 2, 1995 as Instrument No. 1995008661, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to: Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note, modified. The original loan amount was $108,500.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 6.200% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated June 2, 1995. Payments are in default for the months of January 2012 through and including March 2012 in the amount of $850.00 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of March 13, 2012 is $30,087.32 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 6.200% per annum. The per diem is $5.11. In addition to the above, there is also due delinquent real property taxes for part of 2011, together with penalty and interest, and any other real property taxes that may become delinquent during this foreclosure, any late charges, advances, escrow collection fees, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $30,087.32, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

NOTICE OF FEE INCREASES

The Filer School District No. 413, Twin Falls County, has proposed to increase the following fees by an amount that exceeds five percent (5%) of the fees charged last year. The following tables are estimates of what these changes may mean to parents or guardians, patrons and staff.

School Lunches	Current Year	Proposed Price	Percent Increase
Elementary School Students	1.70	1.80	5.88%
Intermediate School Students	1.75	1.85	5.71%
Middle School Students	1.80	1.90	5.56%
High School Students	1.90	2.00	5.26%

The student price increases are dictated by recent federal regulations. The adult meal prices are dictated by rising costs for operating the program. Fees would be effective at the beginning of the 2012-2013 school year.

Drivers Ed Fees	Current Year	Proposed Fee	Percent Increase
Filer District Students	115.00	130.00	13.04%
Out of District Students	115.00	150.00	30.43%

The fee increases are dictated by the necessity to meet increased costs of operating the student driver education program. Fees would be effective immediately upon approval.

In accordance with Idaho Code 63-1311A, a public hearing on the District's intent to make a decision on the proposed fee increases will be held during the regular Board of Trustees meeting on April 11, 2012 at 7:00 P.M. at the Filer Intermediate School Conference Room; 833 6th Street West; Filer, Idaho. All citizens are invited to attend the public hearing on the increased fee requests.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened."

— Thomas Jefferson

Today's deal comes from a recent U.S. Nationals, where IMP scoring was in place. What that means is that just like in a team game, the swings on the big deals would determine whether you did well or badly, unlike the standard pair game, where every deal is equally important.

The deal came up in the first final session of the IMP Pairs. The author indicated that he was lucky enough to be the beneficiary of a gift here, but that names would not be used, to protect the guilty. Where would you like to play? The slam of six spades is not great, but it is playable. South's decision not to open two clubs is questionable, but once he found a moderate hand and spade support opposite, nothing could keep him below the six-level.

How should South play on a club lead? The right answer is to win the club ace, cash the top spades, then play off the heart ace. Now you take your two high diamonds and ruff a diamond. If the suit splits, you are home. If East overruffs, you were never going to make it. However, if you ruff the third diamond and no queen appears but East cannot overruff, you take your second chance. You run the heart queen to pitch a diamond. So long as the heart king is onside, you rate to be able to pitch your diamonds on the winning club and a heart in dummy.

ANSWER: You have enough to bid two hearts — but what if the next hand raises to three diamonds? You will not then have enough to commit the hand to four clubs, so you may be better off raising to three clubs directly, planning to bid three hearts when the opponents compete to three diamonds. That sequence surely suggests this sort of hand.

Today is Wednesday, March 28, the 88th day of 2012. There are 278 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On March 28, 1942, during World War II, British naval forces staged a successful raid on the Nazi-occupied French port of St. Nazaire in Operation Chariot, destroying the only dry dock on the Atlantic coast capable of repairing the German battleship Tirpitz.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1834, the U.S. Senate voted to censure President Andrew Jackson for the removal of federal deposits from the Bank of the United States.

In 1854, during the Crimean War, Britain and France declared war on Russia.

In 1898, the Supreme Court, in United States v. Wong Kim Ark, ruled that a child born in the United States to Chinese immigrants was a U.S. citizen.

In 1930, the names of the Turkish cities of Constantinople and Angora were changed to Istanbul and Ankara.

In 1935, the notorious Nazi propaganda film "Triumph of the Will," directed by Leni Riefenstahl, premiered in Berlin with Adolf Hitler present.

In 1939, the Spanish Civil War effectively ended as Madrid fell to the forces of Francisco Franco.

In 1941, novelist and critic Virginia Woolf, 59, drowned herself near her home in Lewes, East Sussex, England.

In 1969, the 34th president of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, died in Washington, D.C., at age 78.

In 1978, in Stump v. Sparkman, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld, 5-3, the judicial immunity of an Indiana judge against a lawsuit brought by a young woman who'd been ordered sterilized by the judge when she was a teenager.

In 1979, America's worst commercial nuclear accident occurred inside the Unit 2 reactor at the Three Mile Island plant near Middletown, Pa.

In 1987, Maria von Trapp, whose life story inspired the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The Sound of Music," died in Morrisville, Vt., at age 82.

In 1990, President George H.W. Bush presented the Congressional Gold Medal to the widow of U.S. Olympic legend Jesse Owens, who was honored for his "humanitarian contributions in the race of life."

Ten years ago: The Arab League, meeting in Beirut, Lebanon, agreed on a peace plan that offered Israel normal relations in exchange for a full withdrawal from war-won lands and a Palestinian state. Archbishop Juliusz Paetz of Poznan, Poland, announced his resignation, but also protested his innocence, following accusations he'd made sexual advances toward young clerics. U.S. Air Force Staff Sgt. Timothy Woodland was convicted in a Japanese court and sentenced to nearly three years in prison for raping a woman on the southern island of Okinawa.

Five years ago: Iran aired a video of 15 captured British sailors and marines; the lone female captive, shown in a white tunic and a black head scarf, said the British boats had "trespassed." (The crew members were released April 4, 2007.) In the Philippines, dozens of children were taken hostage on a bus by a day-care center owner armed with grenades and guns; the crisis ended peacefully 10 hours later with the hostage-taker's surrender.

One year ago: Vigorously defending American attacks in Libya, President Barack Obama declared in a nationally broadcast address that the United States intervened to prevent a slaughter of civilians. Yet he ruled out targeting Moammar Gadhafi, warning that trying to oust him militarily would be a mistake as costly as the war in Iraq.

YOUR IRONING DONE!
Would you like to look crisp and presentable for Meetings * Church Interviews * Parties
Call: Patt at 595-1596

IF MARCH 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: If you have been hoping to change careers or need a new job then April is your best time for interviews or to put the wheels in motion. That is when you seem a bit more charming, trustworthy and desirable so your love life should improve as well. In June and July, an insistence on making a fresh start or the pursuit of ambitions can complicate things. Wait until the dust has settled in October to make major commitments or irrevocable decisions.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take your time or risk having to go back and correct errors. It is important to be as nice as possible to everyone with whom you interact because the people you attract may have very dissimilar ambitions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Wisdom wins without willfulness. Enjoy a much more pleasant experience by keeping things positive rather than negative. Your partner could be engrossed in something that leaves you out in the cold.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There are no beginnings without ends, no ends without beginnings. This is not a good time to burn bridges because you will cut yourself off from others. You must be prepared to build up relationships.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Meet belligerence with a few kind words. Some people might be very intense and unable to see your point of view. This is a not a good time to draw a line in the sand. Remain polite and all will be well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You realize you are nothing but a bunch of molecules. You must honor a commitment but may feel there is coercion involved. Although you resent being bullied, you must do what you promised.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If the shoe fits, wear it. Extra pressure may be focused on you and you could be expected to work harder than usual. Avoid signing contracts and delay major decisions that involve your bank account.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A past transgression may come back to haunt you. This is not a good time to negotiate or try to wheedle your way out of trouble. Keep your pennies in the piggy bank and don't sign contracts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Evade endless complications. Don't begin anything important today, as the passion you experience now will very likely fade in a few days. It won't help to win at the cost of losing a friendship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have heard how the shoemaker's kids went barefoot. There may be plenty to go around, but your passion to make money could drain your resources. Make family needs a high priority.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can never be sure which came first, the chicken or the egg. You may be embroiled in a power struggle because you want to win at all costs or because someone else wants to make sure you lose.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Unless you raise your eyes, you will think you have already reached the highest point. There is still something to reach for – even if you feel you are stuck with drudgery. Don't make key decisions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Never jump blindly when standing on the brink of a chasm. Hide the credit card and checkbook and refrain from making irrevocable decisions. You can make some necessary changes, but not today.
