BOMB SQUAD REMOVES TNT FROM T.F. HOME

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls Police Bomb Squad removed about six sticks of dynamite and 21 electric blasting caps from a residence in the 300 block of Idaho Street Tuesday afternoon.

The homeowner called police at 1:05 p.m. Tuesday, saying a bag of dynamite had been found in the home's basement and had been moved to the backyard.

Twin Falls Police Sgt. Luke Allen said the homeowner thought a grandparent may have put the dynamite there several years ago, estimating the explosives to be about 20 to 25 years old.

TFPD called out its bomb squad and used its bomb disposal robot to help move the bag of dynamite to a secure container. An officer in a bomb suit later exited the house carrying a box containing the blasting caps at around 3 p.m.

IT'S NOT MINOR TO SERVE MINORS

Twin Falls County deputies are tallying a rising number of individuals selling alcohol to or procuring it for minors.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • To Staff Sgt. Perry Brownhill, the excuses are almost humorous by now.

"She was cute."
"I got confused."

Brownhill can sound off the same excuses he's heard over the years from individuals caught selling alcohol to minors without missing a beat. He's in charge of enforcing underage drinking laws for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office and at this point, he says the excuses tend to sound the same.

"One comment that I just heard from a store clerk was that the kid was just close enough,"

he said with a heavy sigh. "That's just sad."

Thanks to a state grant, Brownhill is able to work with a small group of 18- to 20-year-olds to check an establishment's compliance with the law.

In 2011, he personally issued 20 misdemeanor citations to individuals who either sold to a minor or bought alcohol on behalf of a minor. This year, his tally is already up to 25.

As enforcement has gone up, Brownhill said, the number of citations he's given out has as well. He's not sure if it's due to more stores selling to minors or if there's just more enforcement taking place.

"If you look at the numbers, you can see we have a problem," he said.

Bars and restaurants also recognize the seriousness of selling to a minor. If an employee is caught selling alcohol to a minor, the store is slapped with at least a $4,000 fine and can possibly lose its alcohol license.

Today is the deadline for Idaho high school juniors to register for the college entrance exam at not cost under a new state initiative.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

How to Sign Up

The deadline is today for high school juniors to sign up for the April 18 SAT Day. Students can register online at www.sat.org/idaho.

At Canyon Ridge High School, Principal Brady Dickinson said he's excited that all students will have to take a college entrance test.

"It's just going to be more data for us to look at how kids did," he said.

In the past, taking the test was just an option for students, and schools only saw results from the small sampling of high-achieving students.

Now, a college entrance test like the SAT or ACT is a high school graduation requirement.

Approved during the state's 2007 legislative session, it's just now going into effect with this year's junior class.

Today is the deadline for students to register for SAT Day, which will take place during a school day. So far, about 80 percent of juniors statewide have signed up.

Dickinson said all but five of Canyon Ridge High's 260 juniors have registered.

School counselor and SAT site coordinator Sarah Kostelecky said she worked with classes to bring juniors to school computer labs to register.

Idaho Takes Aim at Prison Health Care Report

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • The Idaho Department of Correction is telling a federal judge that a scathing report about health care at a Boise-area prison isn't accurate and doesn't reflect current conditions at the lockup.

Attorneys for the state filed their response to the report late last week, contending that a court-appointed health care expert didn't conduct a thorough review and misrepresented conditions at the Idaho State Correctional Institution.

Dr. Marc Stern was appointed as a special master in the case and ordered by the federal court to examine the medical and mental health care provided at the prison as part of a lawsuit between inmates and the state. U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill said he will use Stern's findings to help him decide whether to end the 30-year-old lawsuit or continue over-seeing operations at the prison.

Stern's report was poor, finding that the medical care was so panning that it amounted to neglect and cruel and unusual punishment. Among other problems, Stern said that terminal and long-term inmates sometimes went unfed or were left in soiled bedclothes, that nursing mistakes likely resulted in deaths, and that one inmate wasn't told for seven months that he likely had cancer.

But in their response filed Friday, attorneys for the state denied that any serious problems existed with the delivery of medical or mental health care at the prison. They also said the Idaho Department of Correction and its medical care contractor, continue to reform and improve the delivery of medical and mental health care.

For instance, the state argued, one inmate in the long-term care unit required help for eating and drinking and has on occasion refused meals and liquids. Still, the state noted, the inmate gained weight during his nearly nine-year stay in the unit, suggesting an occasional missed meal was causing no harm to be done.

Stern's report didn't reflect changes made in the six-month span between his first and second visits to the prison, the state's attorneys said. That violates the court's order that Stern determine whether inmates are experiencing "current and ongoing" violations of their Eighth Amendment rights, the state attorneys contended.

The state said Stern relied on a few cases to reach conclusions for some findings, and suggested he may have cherry-picked files to support his conclusions, instead of taking a random sample or reviewing the files of larger groups of patients.

The state backed up its claims by frequently citing audits that Corizon performed on itself that found no problems with the delivery of health care.

For instance, Idaho's attorneys argued in their filing, Stern relied on situations involving three inmates to support his finding that health care providers at ISCI were deliberately indifferent to patients in their outpatient clinic.

"However, even if accurately reported, the three isolated instances do not establish a class-wide constitutional deprivation at a facility with a daily average inmate count nearing 1700 individuals," the attorneys for the state wrote.

The state also contended that Stern's expectations for prison health care were unrealistic.

The National Commission of Correctional Health Care, an organization that sets accreditation standards for prisons, only requires that prisons meet 85 percent of the performance standards in order to be become accredited, the state noted. The Idaho State Correctional Institution has been accredited by the organization.

"In sum, the Special Master's apparent insistence upon 100 percent compliance with his purported standards is unrealistic and completely divorced from the well-known standards for constitutional health care," the attorneys wrote.

JEROME FIRE CREWS RESPOND TO CARDBOARD BLAZE

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • The Jerome rural and city fire departments responded to an unusual call Monday evening, when a truck driver told them his load of cardboard bales was on fire.

The driver was heading from Salt Lake City to Washington state on Interstate 84 with the bundles of cardboard when he noticed smoke in his side mirrors, Jerome Fire Deputy Chief Jack Krill said. The driver was able to pull over to the side of the road near the Lincoln Street overpass in Jerome and unhooked the trailer from his truck.

The fire departments arrived at about 6:50 p.m. The fire was more complicated than most to put out since it was deep in the bundles of cardboard, Krill said. Firefighters spent about two hours dousing the cardboard and used a front-end loader to push the bales off the trailer to help get the fire out.

The fire was most likely started by a cigarette ember, Krill said. Fire personnel spoke to the driver, who said he smokes but puts his cigarette butts in a can in the cab of the truck. The fire could have also started from a spark in the truck's exhaust pipe, but Krill said it was unlikely.

Westbound I-84 was closed down to one lane for at least two hours Monday evening, Krill said.

Grill was hit with an underage alcohol violation, said Toma Bartlett, the bar's owner.

The incident led Bartlett to make sure it never happened again.

"We bought ID screening equipment and instead of just letting the minor go when they get caught, we looked into our options," he said. "Now we call the police every time a minor tries to come in."

However, Bartlett said it's not unusual for at least one employee to report that a minor tried to sneak in over the weekend.

"We end up telling the minor that while we want their business, they have to come in when they're 21," he said. "Usually they only need to wait a few weeks."

Jessie Barrios, head bartender at Canyon Crest Dining and Event Center, said he doesn't see regular problems with underage drinkers trying to slip in. It's more of an issue on holidays, he said, especially when people are dressed up for Halloween.

Josh Popa, a manager at the Anchor Bistro and Bar, said neither he or his employees have caught a minor yet trying to purchase alcohol.

"We ID everyone who looks under 40 or if we're suspicious," he said.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter said education is one way to help reduce the number of citations.

"We try to talk to store owners and the clerks about how vitally important it is to not sell to minors," he said. "But ultimately, people need to take responsibility for their actions."

And while Brownhill knows he works a thankless job, he said he doesn't have plans of stopping.

"I would love to go out on a shift and not issue out any citations," he said. "We're not there yet"

SAT

"That was quite a process to go through," she said.

Students can opt out of taking the SAT this month, but they'll have to pay to take a college entrance test another time. Schools are responsible for tracking whether students have met the requirement.

Two assemblies Tuesday at Canyon Ridge High encouraged students to sign up for SAT Day.

Four "roadies" with Roadtrip Nation — a public television series and grassroots movement — are traveling to high schools around the state through a partnership with the College Board and ISDE.

The tour bus will also stop at Kimberly High School today and Minico High School in Rupert on Friday.

Carrie Friedman, director of program information for the College Board, said one goal of the tour is to help students understand why they should take the SAT and prepare for the future.

"It's getting kids to think beyond high school," she said.

Students who don't want to take the SAT have another state-funded option — the ACCUPLACER test. Students can take the test online through May 4.

The ACCUPLACER is an online placement test for college-level classes. There's also a version that measures where students are at with their academic skills.

The majority of students, though, are choosing the SAT this year.

Kimberly High School counselor Debbie Klug said about 95 juniors have signed up for SAT Day at her school. Only eight to 10 are taking a different test.

At Canyon Ridge High, students have a few more options. Through a federal grant, they can also take the ACT for free.

Dickinson said many students have chosen to take both tests.

The SAT may be the test of choice this year since it's free to students, but it hasn't always been the most popular option.

Dickinson said only a few students at Canyon Ridge High have opted to take that test in past years, since the ACT is more common in the western U.S.

"It's a new test for most of us," he said.

"We called the bomb squad because dynamite becomes dangerous when it's that old," Allen said. "It could have leached out or crystallized."

Older dynamite becomes more volatile and has a higher potential for explosion, Allen said, adding that just a spark can set off blasting caps.

It's a fairly rare occurrence for Twin Falls to call on its bomb squad or need to use a robot, Lt. Craig Stotts said.

A few years ago, police responded to a similar situation a few blocks away. In one case, a man was severely injured after putting his hand in a bag of blasting caps. In another case, reported dynamite found in a bag ended up being road flares.

A false alarm doesn't bother police, though, Allen said.

"If you get something suspicious, just call us," he said.

If someone sees what could be dynamite or another explosive, Allen asks people to leave it alone, describe it in as much detail as possi-

Investigators say company officials came to them with evidence of embezzlement in March 2011.

According to court documents, company officials discovered $366,122.15 missing. Watkins allegedly told an independent accounting company she had taken the money throughout the past 10 years to pay for bills and her children's college expenses, but did not speak with police.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

JEROME • A Jerome woman will serve three years of supervised probation for raiding a cash box while she was employed at the Jerome County Assessor's Office.

Jana Deann Gosnell, 25, pleaded guilty Feb. 13 to a count of burglary in Jerome County 5th District Court. Two counts of misuse of public funds by a public employee and two counts of petit theft were dropped by prosecutors.

Gosnell was accused of taking money out of the cash box after Jerome County Assessor Rick Haberman balanced the cash box in August 2011 and discovered a shortage of $110.58. After the discovery, the box's balance was checked daily, according to court records. Police say another employee noticed a shortage of $30 on Sept. 13, and a $20 shortage on Oct. 17.

After questioning Gosnell, deputies say she admitted to entering the building twice to take money from the box because she was having a tight time financially. Police say Gosnell said she wanted to turn in her key and repay the money.

A one- to three-year sentence was suspended in favor of probation. Gosnell must also pay a $875.50 fine and could face future restitution along with a 30-day discretionary jail sentence.

Mount Harrison's Lookout Is Worth Preserving

Cassia County is in danger of losing one of its historical treasures. For now, the community's good will is the only thing that will keep it open.

In mid-March, Cassia County commissioners were approached by residents concerned about the future of the Mount Harrison Lookout.

Sitting at 9,265 feet on a peak in Cassia County is one of the best, car-accessible views in southern Idaho.

The one-room Mount Harrison fire lookout tower not far from the Pomerelle Ski Area is a four-sided building with windows on all sides.

Through those windows, one can see the Ruby Mountains, clear into Utah and as far as the Craters of the Moon.

"The view is amazing," said Sawtooth National Forest spokeswoman Julie Thomas.

Snow keeps the lookout inaccessible until late June and closes it again by late August.

The original lookout was built in the 1930s by the CCC, Thomas said, and served as an active, fully staffed fire lookout until 2007. That year, when long-time lookout Jim Sheridan retired, the Forest Service shifted lookout duties to volunteers.

Now, technology and funding are shifting the future of the lookout once again.

As it turns out, hikers with cellphones have been reporting fires as fast if not faster than the lookout. And the technology exists for the Forest Service to monitor the area by satellite.

The Forest Service hopes to transform the fire lookout into an interpretive center.

The catch is, thanks to IRS regulations, the Forest Service can no longer reimburse volunteers for mileage to drive to the remote location.

Last year, volunteers Linda and Glen Anderson reported receiving $300 to $400 in mileage compensation for working at the Mount Harrison location.

Without funding for staff or money to compensate volunteers for mileage, the Forest Service has appealed to Cassia County to help keep the station staffed as a public service and to the Sawtooth Interpretive and Historical Society to gauge its interest in establishing a Mount Harrison interpretive center.

If the tower is unmanned, it would be maintained by the Forest Service, but would remain closed for fear of vandalism.

"We wouldn't be able to leave it open (and unstaffed). It would be destroyed," Thomas said.

This season, the only option is to rely on the community's belief that the lookout is worth keeping open.

We can only hope that it works.

Volunteer

Volunteers are needed to work in the Mount Harrison lookout tower this summer. Inquire 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at the U.S. Forest Service Mindoka Ranger District office, 2306 Highland Ave., Burley.

To Visit the Lookout

From I-84, take the Declo / Albion Exit 216. Go through the town of Albion and continue driving 6 miles. Take a right at the sign for Pomerelle Ski Resort. Near the ski resort entrance is a road to the right to Thompson Flat, the Twin Lake picnic area, and Lake Cleveland. Follow this road to the lookout.

READER COMMENT

Are There Any Bold People Left In The Good Old USA?

I am frustrated that we are talking about all the wrong things these days instead of rallying around what made America great from before its Independence to 1963 when the Supreme Court issued verdicts stating that teacher-led prayer and Bible reading were not to be done in our public schools.

When I was in fifth grade, we presented the flag, we learned about how to honor the flag and fold it. We said the Pledge of Allegiance every day. The word of God tells us that we should care for the widowed, the children, the poor and the elderly. That means the family and the church, not the government.

The major problems in America today can be traced to a departure from godly principles, the breakdown of the family unit, discipline and a deepening dependence on the government. We're so worried today about hurting someone's feelings that we don't correct things that are wrong. It is taboo at school or work to investigate a problem and then issue judgment fairly based on the facts. If we say someone is wrong, we must do it in a general way and make sure that both parties feel equal even if one is clearly in the right and the other is clearly wrong.

At our schools, instead of punishing the bully for picking on someone, we call the police when the victim decides they've had enough and takes a stand. After all, the victim is just as wrong for defending themselves as the bully is who pushed them around, right? We fire teachers that get after problem students because they raised their voice or physically stopped a bad situation. Real discipline has effectively been removed from schools and the majority of households. We all mourn about the tragedy of school shootings but miss the signs leading to it. If we encouraged bold behavior and supported taking a stand instead of punishing it, most of the bullying would stop.

We respect people who stand up for themselves and others. Love, honor and respect are not taught for each other, God, authorities, the flag or anything. Why not develop a culture that uses peer pressure to stop bullying instead of encourage it? Yes, we have policies and trainings on not allowing it, but it is spoken not modeled.

How would we encourage a self-policing peer environment? I would suggest that allowing teachers to read from a book of standards that doesn't evolve with the times and teach love, honor and respect along with prayer intending to aid themselves, the children and the school could do just that.

If we don't allow our leaders to be great by restricting them, how can we expect the youth to have anything to respect since there is no justice? One thing we must recognize is that culture is changed with hearts and minds, not force.

In business we judge leadership by the results they get. How are we doing for results since 1963? Teen pregnancy, divorce rates, criminal activity, abortions, suicides, the national debt and education are all worse off than before, and they will continue to deteriorate until we fix the problem.

Police: Tattoo Trips up Suspect Who Gave False Name

alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It's hard to lie to police about your name when it's tattooed on your arm, but a Shoshone man is accused of doing just that.

Dylan Edward Contreras, 19, was arrested for providing false information about his identity after an encounter with Twin Falls police early Saturday morning.

An officer said he was on patrol at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday in the area of Third Avenue West and Gooding Street West when he saw three men and a dog walking in the street. The officer said he told the men to move to the sidewalk.

According to the officer, the man with the dog looked like he might begin to run away. The officer then asked each man to provide identification. One of the men identified himself verbally as Emiliano Veleco, but his provided information did not bring up any matches in a police database. The officer said he noticed a tattoo of the name "CONTRERAS" on the man's left forearm, so he requested dispatch search that name with the birth date the man had provided. In turn, dispatch provided him information about a possible warrant.

Dispatch personnel then printed a photo of the man and sent it to the officer.

"I showed the photo to Mr. Contreras and he became upset, knowing that he had been identified," the officer wrote in a police report.

Contreras was arrested on three warrants out of Jerome County, all for failing to appear on charges of providing false information and underage drinking.

A pretrial hearing is scheduled for May 15.

Federal Court Says Hart Doesn't Get Lawmaker Immunity in Tax Protest

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Lodge also moves Hart's trial up to November so it doesn't interfere with the 2013 Legislature.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COEUR D'ALENE • It's been a tough week for tax-protesting Idaho Rep. Phil Hart, whose legal defense claiming special privilege as a lawmaker in a tax dispute with the IRS has been rejected by a federal judge.

The defense was also greeted with skepticism by the Idaho Supreme Court this week in a separate battle over state income taxes.

On Monday, Hart told Idaho Supreme Court justices during oral arguments that his months-late appeal of the State Tax Commission's October 2009 order to pay $53,000 in income taxes, interest and penalties should be allowed because the deadline overlapped with his service at the state Capitol.

The justices questioned the validity of Hart's defense, but they have yet to rule.

On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Edward J. Lodge rejected the defense and Hart's motion to dismiss a $550,000 tax struggle with the IRS. Lodge also moved Hart's trial up to November so it doesn't interfere with his 2013 legislative duties.

Hart, a Republican representative from Athol, has been fighting federal and state governments for years over income taxes, which he says are unconstitutional.

In the state tax case, Hart was given until Jan. 4, 2010, to appeal the State Tax Commission's ruling. He started the 2010 legislative session Jan. 14 and didn't try to file the appeal until three months later as the session was coming to an end.

Hart and his attorney argued Monday that the Idaho Constitution absolves his actions, citing a provision barring lawmakers from any civil process 10 days before and during the legislative session.

A district court judge sided with the state last year, prompting Hart's appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court.

"It's not about me," Hart said after the hearing. "It's really about the Legislature and whether it's going to be free to do its work or ... be subject to distractions when they are trying to do the work of the people?"

Arguing for the state, Deputy Attorney General Bill von Tegen said the constitution doesn't grant Hart civil immunity because appealing the commission's decision is a voluntary move.

"He's not being subject to the process, he's availing himself of it," von Tegen said. "The only relevant fact is his appeal time ran out on Jan. 4."

Some of the justices questioned Hart's defense, saying the constitutional provision appears to only reference instances where a lawmaker is required to act.

"He doesn't have to appeal. There is no compulsion," Justice Warren Jones said. "He's not being subject to a process, it's if he chooses to use that process."

Starr Kelso, Hart's attorney, contended that all civil processes, including appeals, are included under the constitutional provision's umbrella.

"In order for Representative Hart to protect himself, he would have had to have taken time away from the Legislature and have taken an affirmative act," Kelso said.

Hart has been pushing the same defense in his battle over federal income taxes with the IRS.

On Tuesday, Lodge, the federal judge, said Hart couldn't use legislative immunity as a defense in the federal lawsuit because that only applies to "legitimate legislative activity."

The Department of Justice's lawsuit has to do with actions they claim he took as a private citizen, Lodge noted, not as part of his role as a lawmaker.

The U.S. Justice Department sued Hart in October, contending the lawmaker fraudulently transferred the title to his home in northern Idaho in an effort to keep the federal government from seizing it to help pay his tax bill. Federal tax lawyers say tax liens on the property should be foreclosed, Hart's home sold and the proceeds put toward satisfying his debts.

The property was transferred by Hart to the Sarah Elizabeth Hart Trust, named after his daughter. He wasn't compensated for the transfer and continued to live in the home.

Jon Lafferty, who is the trustee for the Sarah Elizabeth Hart Trust, asked the federal court to dismiss the lawsuit, saying the Justice Department missed the deadline for filing the complaint and so violated Idaho's statute of limitations.

But Lodge rejected that argument, noting that the federal government's enforcement of federal law isn't limited by the same deadlines set for state laws.

Hart asked the federal judge to give him more time to respond to the government's requests for discovery, saying that he didn't want to be interrupted by the case while he is serving in the Idaho Legislature. Lodge turned down those arguments as well, and then took a step to keep Hart from bringing them up again.

"In particular, the Court finds that advancing the schedule in this case is necessary in order to avoid further arguments that the trial date unduly interferes with Defendant Hart's ability to prepare for the 2013 legislative session," Lodge wrote, setting the trial for November.

Man Gets Prison for Impregnating 12-year-old Girl

BOISE (AP) • A 28-year-old southwestern Idaho man has been sentenced to at least 15 years in prison for impregnating a 12-year-old and forcing her to have an abortion.

Third District Judge Molly J. Huskey ordered Kenneth Lamb, of Wilder, to serve a maximum of 30 years in prison for felony lewd conduct with a child and a separate charge of conspiracy to escape from jail. Lamb pleaded guilty to both charges in January.

"A prison sentence is appropriate," said Huskey, who referenced a court-ordered psychosexual abuse evaluation that was performed on Lamb. "The evaluation shows you were the aggressor and (you) have a deviant sexual attraction to prepubescent children."

Along with the prison sentence, Lamb was ordered to register as a sex offender and pay the girl $5,000, said Canyon County Prosecutor Bryan Taylor.

Cpl. Kieran Donahue with the Canyon County Sheriff's Office led the investigation into the allegations against Lamb, who was charged last November. According to authorities, Lamb later confessed that he impregnated the girl and then forced her to terminate the pregnancy, calling himself a "child molester."

Canyon County deputy prosecutor Erica Kallin said in a statement Monday that her office requested a lengthy prison sentence for Lamb. She said "turned this child into a sex object, putting her through so much both during and after the sex abuse. He has pedophilic interests and poses an extreme danger to children."

About three weeks before Lamb pleaded guilty to abusing the girl, court records show he was charged in a failed attempt to escape from jail. While Lamb was jailed on the lewd conduct charge, prosecutors say he conspired with two other inmates to beat a deputy unconscious and then escape.

The escape was thwarted when another inmate informed deputies of about the plan.

Boise Software Meet Draws Twice as Many Participants as 2011's Event

BY SANDRA FORESTER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Programmers, executives and computer science students learned about agile software development, how a Boise company survived a near-death experience, and how to protect their intellectual property Thursday at develop.idaho 2012.

Almost 400 people are attending the event for software developers at the Boise Centre. The gathering is about double the size of the 2011 event.

One speaker was Ken Schwaber, a software developer and the creator of Scrum, a framework that can help groups be agile in developing software, create it faster and cheaper. He said software-development companies may not need as many employees as they think.

"You won't need all the software developers you think you do," he said. "Give them the environment to make them more creative and productive."

Another speaker was Peter Gombert, CEO of Balihoo, a Boise company that provides local marketing automation technology and services to national brands that advertise in local markets.

Gombert spoke about the difficulty of starting a technology company in Boise and getting funding. He said Bali-hoo's local marketing software wasn't the product the company started with. But after the financial markets crashed in 2008 and funding dried up, his company was forced to make hard choices and "pivot," he said. Bali-hoo dropped its initial product and made its local marketing software, which had been secondary, its primary product.

Revenues have been rising ever since, Gombert said, and are up 130 percent over the past five quarters. He credits the company's success to refusing to accept defeat and recognizing its assets and liabilities.

Brad Frazer, an attorney with Hawley Troxell Ennis & Hawley, told participants about the importance of protecting intellectual property such as software code from the beginning. His advice: Form an entity such as a limited liability company, identify the intellectual property, then make sure you own it, protect it and monetize it.

"There was a lot of benefit to all three talks," said Dave Wasden of Zenware, a mobile software developer. "We use the (agile software development principles like daily update meetings). We need to use more. It's really just getting things done."

About 100 tickets to the event were given to students from local universities.

Crapo Calls for Budget Action

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

INGTON

• The U.S. Senate's failure to report a budget by April 1 has Sen. Mike Crapo seeing red.

Crapo

"Our nation is facing one of the worst economic crises in our history and the bipartisan political bickering in Washington is at an all-time high," Crapo said, in a prepared statement issued by his office. "Americans are fed up. I am as well. Elected representatives are not doing what they were sent to Washington to do. A responsible budget will put our nation's finances back on the path to paying off our debt and controlling our spending."

By law, the Senate is required to report a budget resolution out of committee each year on April 1 and adopt it by April 15.

For the third consecutive year, amid debt ceiling hikes and record-setting deficits, the Senate has failed to do so, Crapo, a Republican from Idaho and member of the Senate Budget Committee, says this is unacceptable.

Last week, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a budget resolution that cuts government spending, maintains a safety net for those reliant on federal assistance and lifts the crushing burden of debt. Meanwhile, the Senate has not passed a budget in more than 1,000 days.

Last month, before the April 1 statutory deadline, Crapo and every Republican on the Senate Budget Committee wrote a letter to Budget Committee Chairman Kent Conrad, urging him to schedule a public mark-up of the budget. Crapo noted that Senate leadership continues to refuse to bring a proposed budget to the Senate floor for open debate.

Crapo said one reason for the inaction may be that if a budget is brought to the Senate floor, Senators would be forced to cast votes on the president's health law, which will cost $2.6 trillion for ten years of implementation, rather than the originally promised $900 billion.

"The American people deserve a public mark-up of the budget," Crapo added. "The House has done their job, the Senate should do theirs, and a budget should at least be proposed. It only takes 51 votes to pass a budget on the Senate floor. It is time to take the tough votes, do the hard work and put America back on a reliable path toward fiscal responsibility."

MOSCOW • Former Latah County Sheriff's Lt. Rhonda Bunney has been charged with felony misuse of public monies for allegedly skimming more than $56,000 in revenue over a five-year period.

She held the position of administrative services supervisor.

Bunney was charged Friday by Bonner County Prosecutor Louis Marshall, acting as special prosecutor in the case, following a six-month Idaho State Police investigation into shortages in funds the 26-year sheriff's employee was in charge of managing.

According to a probable cause affidavit submitted by ISP Detective Rich Adamson in Latah County 2nd District Court, the investigation began in mid-October when Latah County Sheriff Wayne Rausch identified Bunney, 48, as a suspect in money missing from the county driver's license department's fingerprint fund.

Auditor Susan Petersen and bookkeeper Susan Egan had identified inconsistencies in the fund.

Boise Police, ATF Teams Arrest 8

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Boise Police and members from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives made eight arrests Tuesday morning after raiding at a tattoo parlor and two homes in the Broadway Avenue corridor early Tuesday morning looking for drugs and weapons.

Boise police officials said the BPD Swat Team and ATF teams served warrants at the Ink Spot tattoo shop and an adjoining residence at 1400 Broadway Avenue and a home in the 1300 block of Longmont Avenue around 5 a.m. Tuesday as part of a continuing investigation. Police closed the portion of Broadway Avenue near where the warrants were served between 5-to-5:20 a.m. while the raids were going on.

Police say officers seized an undisclosed amount of guns and other weapons from the three locations but none of the eight people were arrested on weapons charges. All eight were charged with misdemeanor drug charges, like possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, or frequenting a place where drugs are sold.

Two men were charged with felonies — 31-year-old Devon Montgomery for grand theft by possession and 52-year-old Jerry Brown for aggravated assault.

N. Idaho Woman Shot at Rest Stop Identified

POTLATCH • Authorities have identified a 28-year-old northern Idaho woman who was shot at a rest stop north of Potlatch.

Kayla M. Sedlacek, of Princeton, told deputies with the Latah County Sheriff's Office that she stopped at the rest area around 3:30 a.m. on Monday. She reported that she was using the women's bathroom when she was attacked by a man wearing a ski mask.

The sheriff's office says Sedlacek had been carrying a handgun and reported that she had been struggling with her attacker when she was shot in the abdomen. Sedlacek said the man who attacked her was wearing a white shirt, black jeans and a dark blue or black ski mask.

She remained at a Moscow hospital on Tuesday.

Police Find Link in Credit Fraud Outbreak

OROFINO • Police in the north-central Idaho town of Orofino say a rash of credit card fraud that has affected nearly 300 people originated at a local grocery store.

The police department says the owners of the Glenwood IGA store have been cooperating with investigators to determine just how the fraud occurred.

No charges have been filed in the case.

Police have been investigating reports of fraud since February. In many cases, accounts were hit with small charges to see if they were active before larger purchases were attempted.

The grocery store owners are having their own credit card company check the store's system to see if any malicious software has been installed on the store's terminals.

Judge Rejects Proposed Bujak Settlement

NAMPA • A U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge has rejected a proposed settlement between Canyon County officials and former prosecutor John Bujak's bankruptcy estate.

The Idaho Press-Tribune reports Judge Jim Pappas denied the deal Tuesday, saying litigation would be in the best interest of creditors owed money in the bankruptcy.

Bujak resigned in September 2010 amid allegations that he mishandled money from a contract to prosecute misdemeanor cases in the city of Nampa. Bujak sought bankruptcy protection later that year.

Under the proposed settlement, Canyon County would have paid $20,000 to Bujak's bankruptcy estate. In turn, Bujak's bankruptcy estate would have dropped claims it could recover nearly $1 million from the county.

Last April, Pappas urged the two sides to settle out of court before the case went to trial.

N. Idaho Man to Be Arraigned in Fatal Shooting

ST. MARIES • A northern Idaho man will be arraigned next week in the shooting death of an 18-year-old woman on Christmas Day.

Prosecutors have charged 28-year-old Joseph Duane Herrera, of St. Maries, with second-degree murder in the death of Stefanie Comack. Herrera has claimed he accidentally shot Comack in the head while checking to see if his gun was unloaded.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports Herrera is likely to plead not guilty at his arraignment on April 13.

The victim's father, 45-year-old James E. Comack, said he fears prosecutors will reach a plea agreement with Herrera instead of taking the case to trial. Benewah County Prosecutor Douglas Payne countered that plea negotiations are not in the works.

Herrera is being on a $100,000 bond.

Murder Suspect Extradited to Idaho

BOISE • Canyon County officials have charged a suspect in a 1995 shooting death near Caldwell.

The Idaho Statesman reports 45-year-old Jose Rafael Flores was extradited from a South Carolina prison and charged Monday with murder in the Thanksgiving Day 1995 death of 43-year-old Ignacio Rivera.

Rivera's murder is the case wrapped up by the county's cold case task force, formed about two years ago to look into eight unprosecuted deaths.

Flores has been in prison in South Carolina for the past 16 years, serving a 30-year term for raping a 13-year-old girl.

Sheriff Chris Smith says Flores has acknowledged his role in Rivera's death.

Investigators identified Flores as the suspect after learning the two men had been involved in a lengthy feud. Flores was seen speeding away from the crime scene.

Obama Says Reagan Could Not Survive in Today's GOP

President says new House Republican budget plan represents a bleak, backward 'radical vision.'

BY BEN FELLER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • In combative campaign form, President Barack Obama accused Republican leaders on Tuesday of becoming so radical and dangerously rigid that even the late Ronald Reagan, one of their most cherished heroes, could not win a GOP primary if he were running today.

Obama, in a stinging speech to an audience of news executives, had unsparing words for Republicans on Capitol Hill as well as the man he is most likely to face off against in November, former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney. The president depicted the election as a choice between a Democratic candidate who wants to use government to help people succeed and Republicans who would abandon a basic compact with society and let most people struggle at the expense of the rich.

He framed his address around a new House Republican budget plan, saying it represents a bleak, backward "radical vision."

"It is thinly veiled social Darwinism," Obama said to the annual meeting of The Associated Press. "It is antithetical to our entire history as a land of opportunity and upward mobility for everybody who's willing to work for it ... It is a prescription for decline."

Republicans shot back that the president had offered a deeply partisan speech devoid of accountability.

Campaigning outside Milwaukee just before Obama spoke, Romney said that the president "of course will look for someone else to blame." The Republican Party chairman, Reince Priebus, said Obama had abandoned his hope-and-change campaign slogan of four years ago. Said Priebus: "All along, he's been a cold, calculating, big-spending politician."

Obama's speech removed any doubt that the general election was under way for the president, despite his professed reluctance to weigh in before Republicans settle on a nominee.

He took a couple of digs at Romney, playing up the Republican presidential front-runner's support for a budget-slashing plan the House has approved.

That plan is doomed to die in the Senate, but Obama held it up as a sign of the disaster that would come if Republicans got their way: poor children not getting food, grandparents unable to afford nursing homes, more airline flights getting canceled and weather forecasts becoming less reliable.

For Obama, it was the latest in a string of efforts to get his message out just as voters were going to the polls to help pick his opponent, this time in primaries Tuesday in Wisconsin, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Romney is on a pace to clinch the nomination by the end of the primary season in June.

By invoking Reagan, a beloved Republican, Obama sought to take GOP charges of Obama extremism and "Four more years?" Romney asked sarcastically of the president as supporters cheered in Milwaukee.

He said Obama was "a little out of touch" after spending four years surrounded by the trappings of power and had presided over near-record job losses as well as increases in poverty, home foreclosures, government debt and gasoline prices.

Tornadoes Rake Dallas Area, More Than One Dozen Hurt

BY NOMAAN MERCHANT AND JAMIE STENGLE
Associated Press

DALLAS • Tornadoes raked the Dallas area Tuesday, crumbling a wing of a nursing home, peeling roofs from dozens of homes and spiraling big-rig trailers into the air like footballs. More than a dozen injuries were reported.

Overturned cars left streets un navigable and flattened trucks clogged highway shoulders. Preliminary estimates were that six to 12 twisters had touched down in North Texas, senior National Weather Service meteorologist Eric Martello said. But firm numbers would only come after survey teams checked damage Wednesday, he said.

In suburban Dallas, Lancaster police officer Paul Beck said 10 people were injured, two of them severely. Three people were injured in Arlington, including two residents of a nursing home who were taken to a hospital with minor injuries after swirling winds clipped the building, city assistant fire chief Jim Self said.

"Of course the windows were flying out, and my sister is paralyzed, so I had to get someone to help me get her in a wheelchair to get her out of the room," said Joy Johnston, who was visiting her 79-year-old sister at the Green Oaks Nursing and Rehabilitation Center. "It was terribly loud."

Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport canceled hundreds of flights and diverted others heading its way. Among the most stunning video was an industrial section of Dallas, where rows of empty tractor-trailers crumpled like soda cans littered a parking lot.

"The officers were watching the tornadoes form and drop," Kennedale police Chief Tommy Williams said. "It was pretty active for a while."

The confirmed tornadoes touched down near Royce City and Silver Springs, said National Weather Service meteorologist Matt Bishop.

April is the peak of the tornado season that runs from March until June. Bishop said Tuesday's storms suggest that "we're on pace to be above normal."

Johnston said her sister was taken to the hospital because of her delicate health. Another resident at the nursing home, Louella Curtis, 92, said workers roused her out of bed and put her in the hall.

911 Calls Show Residents Panicked over Colo. Wildfire

BY REMA RAHMAN
Associated Press

DENVER • Emergency officials told confused residents not to worry after they reported a fire on the outskirts of Denver, including at least two residents who later were found dead in their burning home, 911 calls released by officials Tuesday showed.

Residents began calling to express concern about the fire and high winds around 2 p.m., and at first dispatchers assured them the heavy smoke and flames were part of a controlled burn that wasn't a threat. Later they acknowledged that there was some trouble with a prescribed burn but told callers that firefighters were at the scene.

Jefferson County sheriff's office spokeswoman Jacki Kelley said sheriff's officials were aware the controlled burn had broken its perimeter that afternoon but she said the agency didn't know the fire was out of control until a local fire department sent a notification at 5 p.m. She said that's when a firefighter first suggested evacuations.

"We have to listen to what groups in the field are telling us," Kelley said of why evacuations weren't called earlier. "If they're saying there's a controlled

Woman, 80, Lands Plane after Husband Dies at Controls

BY CARRIE ANTLFINGER
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE • An 80-year-old woman with little flying experience knew her husband had died after he fell unconscious at the controls of a small plane, yet she remained calm as she landed the aircraft at a north-eastern Wisconsin airport, her son said Tuesday.

In a phone interview with AP, James Collins said he's also a pilot and had helped his mother Helen Collins via radio as the Cessna twin-engine plane began running out of gas Monday evening. Another pilot also took to the skies to guide her to the ground at Cherryland Airport, near Sturgeon Bay — about 150 miles north of Milwaukee.

He said his mother took lessons to take off and land about 30 years ago at her husband's urging, in case something happened to him, but never got her license. She has flown hundreds of hours by his side.

"At one point she didn't even want the wingman to go up," he said. "She said, 'Don't you guys think I could do this on my own? Don't you have confidence in me?' She was calmer than everybody on the ground. She had it totally under control!"

They were coming back from their second home in Marco Island, Fla.

could be worse — and he predicted they would be if Romney and the Republicans got their way.

The victories enabled Romney to pad his already-wide delegate lead over Republican rival Rick Santorum, who flashed defiance in the face of pressure to abandon his own candidacy in the name of party unity.

Wisconsin was the marquee contest of the night, the only place of the three on the ballot where Santorum mounted a significant effort. Romney's victory there marked his fourth in little more than a month in a belt of industrial states that also included Michigan, Ohio, and Illinois.

Returns from 15 percent of the state's precincts showed Romney with 43 percent of the vote to 38 percent for Santorum, 11 percent for Ron Paul and 6 percent for Newt Gingrich.

Returns from 25 percent of Maryland's precincts showed Romney with 48 percent of the vote to 30 percent for Santorum, 11 percent for Gingrich and 9 percent for Ron Paul.

With 43 percent precincts counted in Washington, Romney had 68 percent of the vote to 13 percent for Paul and 11 percent for Gingrich. Santorum was not on the ballot.

"We won 'em all," Romney declared, a former Massachusetts governor now the nominee-in-waiting for a party eager to reclaim the White House.

For Romney, the end of the contested primary campaign could hardly come soon enough. Obama has gained in the polls in recent months, particularly among women, as Republicans vie among themselves for support from a conservative party electorate. Santorum has devoted more time to social concerns — including birth control — than Romney, who has generally stayed focused on economic issues.

Additionally, surveys indicate Americans are growing more optimistic about the overall state of the economy. Unemployment has fallen in recent months, but it is still at a relatively high 8.3 percent of the work force.

Romney won at least 74 delegates in the three races, with 21 yet to be allocated.

TRUMP SAYS TRANSGENDER HOPEFUL CAN BE IN PAGEANT

Donald Trump wished a transgender woman who wants to be Miss Universe good luck on Tuesday as his organization said she can vie for Canada's spot in the pageant. "The hallways were all jammed," Johnston said. "Everyone was trying to help each other to make a path for others. I'd say everybody was out of their rooms within 20 minutes."

Most of Dallas was spared the full wrath of the storm. Yet in Lancaster, television helicopters panned over exposed homes without roofs and flattened buildings. Broken sheets of plywood blanketed lawns and covered rooftops.

A pastor at one Lancaster church saw debris swirling in the wind, then herded more than 30 children, some as young as newborns, into a windowless room to ride out the storm. Nearby at the church's school, about 60 more children hid in another windowless room near the women's bathroom.

An entire wall of Cedar Valley Christian Academy wound up being taken out in the storm. Pastor Glenn Young said he didn't know when the school might re-open.

"I'm a little concerned," Young said. "This is our livelihood."

Residents could be seen walking down the street with firefighters and peering into homes, looking at the damage after the storm passed.

Devlin Norwood said he was at his Lancaster home when he heard the storm sirens. He said he made a quick trip to a nearby store when he saw the funnel-shaped tornado lower, kick up debris and head toward his neighborhood.

"I didn't see any damage until I got back home. We had trees destroyed, fences down, boards down, boards penetrating the roof and the house, shingles damaged," said Norwood, 50, an accountant and graduate student.

The storm pushed cars into fences and toppled trees. Branches and limbs scattered across lawns and residential streets, and in one driveway, a tow-behind RV was left torn apart and crumpled.

"Obviously we're going to have a lot of assessments to make when this is done," Dallas County spokeswoman Maria Arita said.

American Airlines canceled more than 450 arriving and departing flights at its hub airport by late Tuesday afternoon, and 37 other incoming flights had been diverted to different airports.

DFW Airport spokesman David Magana said more than 110 planes were damaged by hail. It wasn't clear how many belonged to American Airlines, but American and American Eagle had pulled 101 planes out of service for hail-damage inspections.

Flights also were canceled at Dallas Love Field, which is a big base for Southwest Airlines. That airline canceled more than 45 flights in and out of the airport by Tuesday evening.

burn and the state forest service is on the scene, we don't just create evacuations for a fire that has gone outside the perimeter."

Residents in the mountains are particularly sensitive to smoke in the air, and it wasn't unusual for dispatchers to receive calls about seeing smoke from the controlled burn, Kelley said. The dispatchers' messages to callers changed as the situation changed, she said.

The 911 calls raised further questions about emergency officials' response to last week's fast-growing fire, which authorities believe killed three people, damaged or destroyed more than two dozen homes and burned 6 square miles in the mountains southwest of Denver.

Resident Sam Lucas, who died along with his wife, was among the first to call around 2 p.m. on March 26 after returning home. The dispatcher, having already answered a handful of calls about the fire, cut Lucas off to tell him it was a controlled burn and that the forest service was on the scene.

"We got 79-mile-an-hour winds out there and they got a controlled burn?" Lucas said on the 911 call, one of 130 calls over a total of 10 hours released Tuesday.

When the dispatcher says yes, he replies "Oh wonder. Thank you."

A neighbor has said Lucas, 77, and his wife, Linda, 76, were packed and ready to go if they got orders to evacuate. Authorities say they did eventually get one but it's not clear when.

A friend concerned about the third person who apparently died in the fire also called to ask authorities to check on Ann Appel because she was getting chemotherapy and her husband was out of state. However, that call seems to have come after it was too late to help her.

"She's a little sickly. We have no idea if anybody even knows she's there," the caller said. "We know the fire went through her property because we were able to get hold of the neighbor."

The caller said Appel — who didn't get an evacuation notice — wasn't answering her phone. Meanwhile, authorities say evacuation orders were sent in error to homes that weren't in the fire's path.

turn them back on the party. He cited a presidential debate in the current campaign in which the entire field of Republican candidates rejected the idea of $10 in spending cuts for every $1 in tax hikes if that were offered in a debt-reduction deal.

"Ronald Reagan, who, as I recall, is not accused of being a tax- and-spend socialist, understood repeatedly that when the deficit started to get out of control — that for him to make a deal — he would have to propose both spending cuts and tax increases,"

Obama said. "He could not get through a Republican primary today?"

Obama, in fact, managed to mention and associate his thinking with six Republican presidents, from Abraham Lincoln to George W. Bush.

By contrast, he portrayed today's opposition leadership as abandoning centrist positions and compromise.

"We have to think about our fellow citizens, with whom we share a community," Obama said. "This sense of responsibility to each other and our country, this isn't a partisan feeling. This isn't a Democratic or a Republican idea; it's patriotism."

for Easter, Collins said. His 81-year-old father, John Collins, had a heart attack about seven minutes from landing at Cherryland Airport and had called for her before he became unconscious, Collins said. She had called 911 and that's when everyone came together to help her down.

The pilot who helped was Robert Vuksanovic, who lived just a mile from the airport, said Keith Kasbohm, director of Cherryland Airport. After getting the call from Kasbohm, Vuksanovic jumped in another plane owned by the Collins and flew up to meet the Cessna while instructing the novice on the radio.

"He felt it would be easier," Kasbohm said. "With him alongside of her he could control her speed and altitude" before she attempted a landing.

Collins said his mother knew her husband had died after she unsuccessfully tried to get him back into his seat-belt, which he unbuckled before he collapsed.

He said one engine had completely run out of gas and the other had to be close to running out because it was sputtering. The nose-wheel collapsed upon landing and she skidded down the runway about 1,000 feet, but she worked the rudders to keep the plane straight.

"The amazing thing is she landed that plane on one engine," Collins said. "I don't know if there are a lot of trained pilots that could do that."

Judge Upset by Obama's Remarks on Health Law

HOUSTON (AP) • A federal appeals court judge on Tuesday seemed to take offense to comments President Barack Obama made earlier this week in which he warned that if the Supreme Court overturned his signature health care overhaul it would amount to overreach by an "unelected" court.

The Supreme Court is set to issue a ruling later this year on whether to strike down some or all of the historic health care law.

During oral arguments in Houston in a separate challenge to another aspect of the federal health care law, U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Jerry Smith said Obama's comments troubled a number of people who have read them as a challenge to the authority of federal courts.

"I'm referring to statements by the president in the past few days to the effect, I'm sure you've heard about them, that it is somehow inappropriate for what he termed unelected judges to strike acts of Congress that have enjoyed, he was referring of course to Obamacare, to what he termed a broad consensus and majorities in both houses of Congress," Smith told Dana Kaersvang, an attorney with the Justice Department in Washington, D.C.

Runaway Student Loan Debt Threatens Recovery

Average student loan debt recently topped $25,000, up 25 percent in 10 years, which has implications for taxpayers.

BY TOM RAUM
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The federal student loan program seemed like a great idea back in 1965: Borrow to go to college now, pay it back later when you have a job.

But many borrowers these days are close to flunking out, tripped up by painful real-life lessons in math and economics.

Surging above $1 trillion, U.S. student loan debt has surpassed credit card and auto-loan debt. This debt explosion jeopardizes the fragile recovery, increases the burden on taxpayers and possibly sets the stage for a new economic crisis.

With a still-wobbly jobs market, these loans are increasingly hard to pay off. Unable to find work, many students have returned to school, further driving up their indebtedness.

Average student loan debt recently topped $25,000, up 25 percent in 10 years. And the mushrooming debt has direct implications for taxpayers, since 8 in 10 of these loans are government-issued or guaranteed.

President Barack Obama has offered a raft of proposals aimed at fine-tuning the system and making repayments easier. Yet the predicament of debt-burdened former students has failed to generate much notice in the GOP presidential campaign. Instead, the candidates are dismissive of government student loan programs in general and Obama's proposals in particular.

Rick Santorum went so far as to label Obama "a snob" for urging all Americans to try to obtain some form of post-high-school education — even though some polls show over 90 percent of parents expect their children to go to college.

Front-runner Mitt Romney denounces what he calls a "government takeover" of the program. Newt Gingrich calls student loans a "Ponzi scheme" under which students spend the borrowed money now but will "have to pay off the national debt" later in life as taxpayers. And Ron Paul wants to abolish the program entirely.

Lifting student debt higher and higher is the escalating cost of attending schools, with tuition increasing far faster than the rate of inflation. And enrollment has been rising for years, a trend that accelerated through the recent recession, fueling even more borrowing.

Mark Zandi, chief economist at Moody's Analytics, argues that government loans and subsidies are not particularly cost-effective for taxpayers because "universities and colleges just raise their tuition. It doesn't improve affordability and it doesn't make it easier to go to college."

"Of course, it's very hard on the kids who have gone through this, because they're on the hook," Zandi added. "And they're not going to be able to get off the hook."

It's not just young adults who are saddled. "Parents and the federal government shoulder a substantial part of the postsecondary education bill," said a new report by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. And some of the borrowers are baby boomers, near or at retirement age. The Fed research found that Americans 60 and older still owe about $36 billion in student loans.

Overall, nearly 3 in 10 of all student loans have past-due balances of 30 days or more, the report said.

Complicating the picture further: Like child support and income taxes, student loans usually can't be discharged or reduced in bankruptcy proceedings, as can most other delinquent debt. This restriction was extended in 2005 to also include student loans made by banks and other private financial institutions.

THE DIGIT

1.3 percent

How much U.S. factory orders rose in February • Businesses ordered more machinery and equipment from U.S. factories in February, a signal that many are investing in their companies despite the expiration of a tax credit. Orders to U.S. factories increased 1.3 percent in February, the Commerce Department said. That offset a similar decline in January. Demand for so-called core capital goods, a gauge of business investment plans, rose 1.7 percent. That was better than the government's preliminary estimate last week and followed a steep drop in January.

Automakers Have Best Month Since 2007

BY DEE-ANN DURBIN
 Associated Press

DETROIT • The recovery in the American auto industry has moved into the fast lane.

With gas prices at nearly $4, smaller cars like the Ford Focus, Nissan Versa and Fiat 500 flew off dealer lots in March and gave U.S. car makers their best monthly sales in almost five years.

Larger vehicles sold well, too, offering more evidence of growing confidence in the economic recovery. Small businesses, farmers and others took advantage of big promotions to buy pickups.

In all, Americans bought 1.4 million cars and trucks in March, up 13 percent from the same month a year ago. Edmunds.com said it was the most vehicles sold since August 2007.

General Motors, Chrysler and Toyota all reported double-digit gains over last March. Nissan and Hyundai set company records. Only Honda Motor Co. reported a decline.

If car sales stay at the same rate as March, they would end the year at 14.4 million, up from 12.8 million in 2011. While that's still below the 17 million of the booming mid-2000s, it's far higher than the industry's downturn in 2009, when 10.6 million vehicles were sold.

Jesse Toprak, vice president of industry analyst at car buying site TrueCar.com, expects continued strong sales this year, thanks to compelling new products, improvements in consumer confidence and the stock market and low interest rates.

"The good news is that the recovery has legs," he said. He expects total sales of 14.5 million in 2012.

Burger King to List Shares on NYSE

NEW YORK (AP) • Burger King is returning to the stock market.

The hamburger chain, which is revamping its menu in an attempt to revive its struggling business, says it will list its stock on the New York Stock Exchange. The company says its international growth plans will benefit from better visibility as a public company.

Burger King was taken private in 2010 by investment firm 3G Capital.

In a deal announced late Tuesday, 3G Capital is selling a 29 percent stake in Miami-based Burger King Worldwide Holdings Inc. for $1.4 billion in cash to Justice Holdings LTD, a U.K.-based investment vehicle.

Murdoch

James Murdoch Steps Down as Head of UK Broadcaster

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON • Once his father's heir apparent, James Murdoch stepped down Tuesday as chairman of British Sky Broadcasting, surrendering one of the biggest jobs in the Murdoch media empire in a bid to distance the broadcaster from a deepening phone hacking scandal.

James Murdoch's credibility and competence have come under severe questioning because of the phone hacking crisis and alleged bribery while he was in charge, and he faces further questioning in the scandal.

"I am aware that my role as chairman could become a lightning rod for BSkyB and I believe that my resignation will help to ensure that there is no false conflation with events at a separate organization," the 39-year-old Murdoch said.

Tuesday's announcement was just the latest in a string of setbacks for James Murdoch, who has been shedding titles since the scandal heated up.

At the end of February, he quit as chairman of News International, the company's troubled British newspaper subsidiary, a move cast as allowing Rupert Murdoch's younger son to focus on News Corp.'s extensive TV holdings. He has also stepped down from the boards of auctioneer Sotheby's and pharmaceutical firm Glaxo-SmithKline PLC.

Nicholas Ferguson, formerly deputy chairman, moved up to replace the younger Murdoch as chairman at BSkyB. Tom Mockridge, who recently replaced James Murdoch at the helm of News International, gained a new title of deputy chairman of BSkyB.

James Murdoch retains his roles as deputy chief operating officer of News Corp. and chairman and CEO of the company's international division. He also remains on the BSkyB board as a non-executive member.

"James Murdoch is a very good TV man. I think people there will regret his passing," said Paul Connew, a media consultant and former tabloid editor. "The bigger question it raises is, where does this leave News Corp. in relation to BSkyB?"

Newspapers Erect Pay Walls in Hunt for New Revenue

BY RYAN NAKASHIMA
AP Business Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Newspapers are returning to a business strategy that served them well in the heyday of street-corner newsboys shouting the front-page news. They're enticing people with a little free online content before asking them to pay up.

After years of offering news for free, a growing number of newspapers around the country have launched so-called metered pay walls, which give readers a few free stories online before requiring them to sign up for a digital subscription. About 300 newspapers have adopted such plans, which usually give subscribers some mix of Web, smartphone and tablet computer access.

"A lot of our customers are telling us, 'that's fair,'" says Rob Gursha, vice president of consumer marketing at the Star Tribune, a 300,000-circulation daily in Minneapolis. In November, the newspaper began charging people as much as $1.99 a week for online access after they have looked at 20 stories for free. If a reader pays for the Sunday newspaper in print, however, online access can be as little as 30 cents a week. Nearly 20,000 readers have signed up.

For newspapers like the Star Tribune, it's a second chance at digital success. As the Internet gained in popularity in the 1990s, newspapers decided to give away news on their websites while continuing to charge readers for print editions. By keeping online editions free, publishers hoped to gain enough readers to attract Web advertising. But as readers flocked to free news on websites, many of them canceled their print subscriptions. And online advertising hasn't generated enough revenue to make up for the combined declines in print subscriptions and print advertising.

Fewer than a quarter of the nation's 1,350 daily newspapers charge for online access so far, but industry executives are increasingly optimistic pay walls can boost digital revenue.

Newspapers take different approaches and have different price structures. Some set a limit on the number of stories and some on the number of page views. But there's little doubt executives are hoping pay walls will spur a turnaround in the industry.

As publishers and media executives gather in Washington this week at the Newspaper Association of America's annual meeting, the question of how to increase digital revenue is front and center. Attendees will take part in panel discussions and lectures such as "New Revenue Models and Strategies" and "Reaching Young Readers: Digital Tips From the Digitally Savvy." They'll trade notes on how to develop applications for tablet computers and smartphones. And they'll talk about ways to derive new forms of revenue from tablets and e-readers such as the iPad and Kindle.

"We're really looking at innovation and execution," says NAA president Caroline Little.

On their own, online pay walls won't make up for the print advertising revenue the industry has lost the past decade. Rick Edmonds, a media business analyst with The Poynter Institute, which offers training for journalists, in St. Petersburg, Fla., says calling 2012 a turning point for newspapers and digital revenue is a "little strong." But, he says, pay walls are one of many salves for easing the industry's pain. Already, they have helped shore up circulation of weekend newspapers because many weekend subscriptions come with online access included. That's important because the Sunday edition is the most profitable for most newspapers.

In their quest for digital revenue, many publishers have turned to Press+, a company started by entrepreneur Steven Brill and former Wall Street Journal publisher Gordon Crovitz that helps newspapers build and operate pay walls. The company says it has launched pay walls for 292 U.S. newspapers.

Pennsylvania Cements Status as No. 2 Gambling Market in U.S.

BY PATRICK WALTERS
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA • Pennsylvania's 11 casinos pulled in more than $233.1 million in gross slot machine revenue last month, setting an all-time monthly high since the state's first casino opened in November 2006 and cementing the state's status as the nation's second-largest gambling market.

The slots totals released Tuesday by the Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board include revenue from two test nights and one day of operations at the state's 11th casino, Valley Forge Casino Resort, which opened Saturday. Overall, the figures broke the previous monthly record of $218.3 million set in July, and they represent an 8.5 percent increase over March 2011.

"Virtually every jurisdiction in the country would kill for that kind of growth, especially in a sluggish economy," said Joe Weinert, senior vice president of Spectrum

Gaming Group, a New Jersey casino consulting firm, who called the state the "envy of the casino industry."

When slots and table game revenues are combined, Pennsylvania has surpassed New Jersey and grown into the second-largest casino market in the country behind Las Vegas. The two traded places in July, Weinert said, and, by January, Pennsylvania had grown into a $3.66 billion market, compared to a $3.3 billion market for New Jersey.

Europe's Central Bank Looks in Vain for Growth

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY DAVID MCHUGH
Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany • Europe is searching for something to get growth going again and pull the eurozone's heavily indebted countries out of their troubles — but with little luck.

Unemployment and manufacturing indicators suggest the 17 countries that use the euro are headed for an official recession. Adding to these worrying signs is the realization that many of the traditional tools to give growth a shove — government spending, tax cuts and lower central bank interest rates — are off the table.

The absence of growth will be a big concern for European Central Bank President Mario Draghi and the bank's governing council when they meet Wednesday to decide the eurozone's benchmark refinancing rate.

No change in the rate — which is at a record low of 1 percent — is expected this time around.

A recent round of economic indicators will be prominent in the governing council's minds when it meets. On Monday, the Markit index of industrial activity for the eurozone strongly suggested that the region's economy is still contracting after shrinking 0.3 percent in the last three months of 2011. Two straight quarters of falling output are a common definition of recession. Meanwhile, unemployment across the 17-country group crept up to a record 10.8 percent, official figures also released on Monday showed. And national jobless rates paint an even more disturbing picture — especially among the countries hit worst by the debt crisis: Spain at 23.6 percent unemployed, Greece 21.0 percent, Ireland 14.7 percent.

Explore the Mysteries of Bread Dough

TWIN FALLS • Sun Valley pastry chef Vincent Carpenter will teach a “Bakery Bread at Home” cooking class, 6:30-8:30 p.m. April 12 at Rudy’s – A Cook’s Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $40. The menu: multigrain bread with stout-soaked grains, French bread and challah. “Mixing is more than the simple combination of ingredients,” a Rudy’s class announcement said. “It is a process that includes both physical and chemical changes responsible for dough formation. There are many factors in this process that can affect appearance, aroma, texture and tenacity of dough.” Sign up: 733-5477.

A new farmers market near Jerome has ambitious plans for its first season.

JEROME • Fans and purveyors of fresh berries, tomatoes and snap peas will have a new option for buying and selling their favorite homegrown goodies in Magic Valley this summer: Farmers Market at the Crossroads Point. The Saturdays-only market, which opens June 2 and runs through Oct. 13, will set up shop southeast of Jerome at 386 Crossroads Point Blvd., where U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84 intersect. Organizer Kathy Bartholomew says the location is as good as it gets. “It’s the second-busiest intersection in Idaho. Over 80,000 cars a day pass by there,” said Bartholomew, of Jerome. “Our goal is to make this the biggest farmers market in southern Idaho.”

Situated on 2 1/2 acres of grass, the farmers market, which will be open 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, has room for as many as 700 vendors, Bartholomew said. About 20 have already signed up.

Interested in becoming a vendor? It’ll cost $25 for one day, $80 for a month and $300 for the season, and there’s no commission charged, Bartholomew said.

“We’re providing an opportunity and a venue for people to earn some extra income and showcase what the Magic Valley’s capable of,” said Bartholomew, herself a grower who will sell six or seven varieties of pumpkins this summer.

Bartholomew has traveled to Utah, Seattle, Washington, D.C., and across Idaho in search of ideas for the new farmers market.

“For example, there was a vendor in Boise that you could bring your rakes, shovels, hoes and knives to,” Bartholomew said. “He’d sharpen their tools while people shopped. He had a line 50 people deep!”

Bartholomew is on the lookout for people with unique skills such as sharpening. She hopes, in addition to produce, the market will offer fresh-cut flowers, honey and baked goods.

She said the new farmers market plans to be a fun, family-friendly environment with activities for kids, such as painting birdhouses. Hand-pulled wagons will be available for hauling produce and children, and nonprofit organizations are invited, at no charge, to advertise in a centralized tent.

WHATEVER'S IN YOUR FRIDGE

This yacht chef’s successes show how to make the most of the ingredients you have on hand.

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Tim Filgate has learned to make do with what’s in the fridge.

It comes with the territory when you’re a private chef aboard a yacht that may not dock for days at a time.

“My clients love the fact that I can see what’s there and use what’s on hand. I make use of leftovers so nothing goes to waste. And I don’t have to run up a big grocery bill going out and buying new things,” said Filgate, who won the Cayman Island National Culinary Competition before pulling up anchor to become a yacht chef.

So you’re a home cook who’s nowhere near a yacht? No matter. Filgate’s example can teach you a lot about making the most of what’s on hand.

Filgate scaled back as a yacht chef a couple of years ago when he fell in love with Sun Valley’s skiing and mountain biking — and a woman whom he married last fall. But he still finds himself creating dishes out of little more than thin air as a landlubber cooking for his clients in their Sun Valley home.

“The lamb sliders he makes for the Trailing of the Sheep Festival are the best. But then he comes up with clever ways to top the sliders,” Ketchum resident Lindsay Crawford said.

“You can see his wheels turning as he thinks about what more he might add,” added Filgate’s wife, Heather Hammond. “It’s like watching a painter at work — it’s poetic and exciting. Even the simple things he makes taste special because he’s able to find a way to bring out the natural flavor.”

The downside to this spur-of-the-moment creativity?

Learn Proper Pruning

TWIN FALLS • Want to maximize your backyard fruit harvest? You’d better look after the health of your trees.

Here’s help: College of Southern Idaho arboriculture students will offer the public a free workshop on pruning fruit trees, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Twin Falls’ Centennial Waterfront Park.

The students will be revitalizing old trees that once were part of settlers’ orchards while learning techniques to prune several kinds of fruit trees. Bring your own tools, such as pruning saw, loppers, bypass hand pruners and pole saw. CSI’s Horticulture Club will provide refreshments.

Farro: What It Is and How to Use It

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

The trouble with so-called “ancient grains” is that though they have tickled the fancy of restaurant chefs, most of them remain way under the home cook radar.

It’s an experience thing. Or lack of. Most of us aren’t even sure how to cook amaranth, quinoa and spelt, never mind know how to serve them.

Which is too bad. They can be delicious, creative and usually inexpensive ways of working whole grains into your cooking.

So let me help you over that first hurdle by introducing you to farro, what I consider the easiest to cook and most versatile of the ancient grains.

Also called emmer wheat, farro was one of the earliest cultivated grains and was grown widely in northern Africa and Europe.

But farro — the Italian name for this relative of modern wheat — can be fussy to grow and lost favor. Fast forward a few thousand years and it’s trying for a comeback.

Why should you care? Farro has a robustly nutty flavor, a satisfyingly chewy texture, and it works well with numerous ingredients and cuisines.

Best yet, if you know how to boil pasta, you know how to cook farro. Boil 1 cup of farro in 3 to 4 cups of water (salted or not) for 15 minutes, then drain. Done.

In Italy, where most farro is grown, the grain often is added to soups. It also can be substituted for rice in risotto. Like arborio and other risotto rice varieties, farro is high in starch (needed to produce creamy risotto). Unlike rice, farro is forgiving. Overcooked rice results in mushy risotto. Farro holds its texture even when overcooked.

Most farro — which is high in protein and low in gluten — sold in the U.S. is pearled, which means it has been hulled. This helps it cook faster. Avoid farro that is not pearled, as this must be first soaked, then cooked for longer.

Like other varieties of wheat, farro can be ground into flour and used in baking and to make pasta. Raise your hand if you are never going to do that!

Instead, try it in this recipe for warm farro salad with grilled Italian sausage. And for more ideas for using farro, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/wajafa>

Warm Farro Salad with Grilled Italian Sausage

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 4.

1 cup pearled farro
4 sweet Italian sausages
Juice of 1 lemon
1/4 cup olive oil
Ground black pepper

1 cup crumbled feta cheese
6 plum tomatoes, diced
1 medium cucumber, peeled, seeded and chopped
2 scallions, diced (whites and greens)
1 tablespoon chopped fresh oregano
1 to 2 tablespoons toasted sliced almonds

Bring 1 quart (4 cups) of salted water to a boil. Add the farro and cook for 15 minutes, or until the grains are plumped and chewy. Drain and set aside.

Meanwhile, heat a grill or grill pan to medium-high. Add the sausages and cook until browned on all sides, about 8 minutes. Set aside.

In a large bowl whisk together the lemon juice, olive oil and pepper to taste. Mix in the feta cheese.

When the farro has cooked and been drained, add it to the bowl and mix well. Set aside for 5 minutes to cool slightly.

Mix in the tomatoes, cucumber, scallions and oregano. Cut the sausages into 1-inch rounds, then add those to the salad. Sprinkle the salad with the almonds.

This Easter, Ditch the Ham but Keep the Pig

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Instead of cooking ham or lamb this Easter, why not go for something a little bit different?

Pork loin roast has an amazing flavor — and is outrageously tender — when brined. That’s because the brining process adds a bit of salt, the flavor of the brine and a whole lot of moisture to the meat. The procedure is relatively simple, though it does require a bit of planning. You’ll want to brine the pork for about 24 hours.

Pork not your thing? This same procedure can be used on whole chickens. The main difference is that you’ll want to brine a chicken for just 4 hours, not 24. Of course, the cooking time will depend on how large your chicken is; just cook until the internal temperature of the meat is 160 degrees.

We’ve also included some side dish suggestions to help you plan your Easter dinner.

Rosemary-cider Brined Easter Pork

Start to finish: 26 hours (1 hour active). Servings: 8.

1/4 cup kosher salt
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
2 cups apple cider
1 bunch fresh rosemary
1 bunch fresh thyme
1 teaspoon chili powder
4 pound pork loin roast
1 tablespoon canola or vegetable oil

In a small saucepan over medium heat, combine the salt, brown sugar, cider, rosemary, thyme and chili powder. Stir just until the sugar and salt dissolve. Cool completely.

In a large zip-close plastic bag, combine the pork loin and the brine solution.

Squeeze out any air and seal the bag shut. Place in a bowl in case of any leaks, then refrigerate for 24 hours.

Thirty minutes before you are ready to cook, heat the oven to 350 degrees. Fit a roasting pan with a rack.

Drain the pork and discard the brine solution. Rinse the pork with cool water, then pat it dry with paper towels. Rub the surface of the pork with the oil and place on the rack.

Roast for 45 minutes, or until a thermometer reads 145 degrees at the center of the pork. Allow to rest for 15 minutes before slicing.

Per serving: 380 calories; 180 calories from fat (50 percent of total calories); 21 g fat (6 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 145 mg cholesterol; 2 g carbohydrate; 44 g protein; 0 g fiber; 570 mg sodium.

SIDE SUGGESTIONS

• Lemony peas: Sauté 2 cups of English peas and 1 diced red bell pepper with a little butter until just tender. Season with salt and pepper, then stir in the zest of 1 lemon.

• Quinoa pilaf: Cook 2 cups of quinoa according to package directions. Sauté 2 chopped cloves of garlic, 2 sliced shallots and 1 diced red onion in 3 tablespoons of olive oil until soft. Stir in the quinoa along with 1/3 cup diced dried apricot and 1 tablespoon chopped fresh thyme.

• Warm radicchio slaw: Cook 4 strips of bacon until crisp. Thinly slice 2 heads of radicchio and sauté in the bacon fat with 1 thinly sliced red onion. Season with salt and black pepper, 1 tablespoon brown sugar and 1 tablespoon cider vinegar. Serve topped with crumbled blue cheese and the crumbled bacon.

Baking Half a Recipe

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: If recipe calls for a 13-by-9-inch pan and I want to halve it, what size pan do I use? How would I change the baking temperature and time?

Answer: The pan size is easy: A 13-by-9-by-2-inch pan will hold 15 cups, while an 8-inch-square pan that’s 2 inches deep holds 8 cups. So an 8-inch pan could hold a little more than half the batter of the larger pan.

How to adjust the time and temperature is trickier, so I asked Megan Lambert, a pastry instructor at Johnson & Wales University in Charlotte, N.C., who specializes in baking science.

As long as the depth of the batter is about the same, the baking temperature would stay the same, she says. The baking time probably would change, but there is no hard rule on how to predict that.

“When my students ask me, ‘Chef, how long does it take to bake,’ I reply, ‘Until it’s done.’ There are so many variables that affect baking time, you just have to know the desired characteristics of your product and check it as it bakes.”

The safest way to do that is to start checking about 10 minutes before the original baking time.

At sea Tim Filgate finds himself dealing with halibut and mahi-mahi. As a landlubber chef in Idaho, he tries to work more with trout and salmon. Here, his stuffed trout.

KAREN BOSSICK • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Filgate

“People are always asking me for my recipes,” Filgate said. “And, often, it’s difficult to spell out exactly what you did because you were just dumping a little of this and a little of that into the dish.”

His caveat: “You’ve got to know what flavors are going to work. Cabbage, for instance, is not going to work with trout. It’s the wrong flavor, the wrong texture.”

Here are a few recent ways Filgate has concocted dishes using his imagination and what’s at hand:

Spinach artichoke dip: When his clients threw a party for 10 at a moment’s notice, Filgate found some fresh spinach and canned artichokes and emptied the refrigerator of 30 other items in the process of making a dip.

He sauteed the vegetables he found, including a couple of hot chili peppers, onion, garlic, green bell pepper, sundried tomatoes, olives and mushrooms. To this he added a few handfuls of spinach, cooking it enough to wilt the spinach. He then added leftover grated cheese — including Parmesan and goat cheese — and the remainder of the sour cream and cream cheese he found in the fridge. He even threw in a piece of smoked salmon left from a previous meal.

He mixed it all in a casserole dish and heated it in the oven.

“At the end of the night, guests said it was the best dip they’d ever had and that they must have the recipe,” Filgate said. “The women especially loved it because it had so much substance — it contained 75 percent veggies with just enough sour cream and cream cheese to keep it together, so they didn’t have to feel guilty about scooping away.”

Italian-flavored stuffed chicken breast: At home one night, he turned chicken into something special by slitting breasts and stuffing them with mozzarella coated with leftover pesto. He seared the stuffed breasts on both sides in a pan with a little olive oil. Then he set the pan in a 350-degree oven for about 15 minutes.

He made the pancetta sauce by sauteing leftover Italian ham with zucchini, onion and tomato in a little olive oil. He finished it off with a touch of cream.

Pork chop marmalade: Filgate jazzed up pork chops recently by pan-frying the chops, removing them from the pan, then creating a marmalade sauce to top them with. He mixed a couple of spoonfuls of orange marmalade with chicken stock, to which he added salt and pepper, then reduced the sauce until it was fairly thick.

Stuffed trout: Filgate turned trout into a colorful, eye-catching dish by sauteing onions, garlic and roasted red peppers for four to five minutes in oil. To this he added spinach, salt and pepper, cooking it until the spinach wilted.

He then filleted a trout and laid it skin down. He seasoned it with salt and pepper and spread the cooled spinach mixture over the trout. Then, starting from the head, he rolled the trout into a log, which he tied with butcher’s string.

He seared the trout on each side in oil in a frying pan for a couple of minutes to crisp the skin. Then he transferred the pan and trout to an oven where he baked it for 12 to 15 minutes. He removed the trout from the pan and returned the pan to the stove where he deglazed it with wine, added a little lemon juice and cooked the mixture down by half. He then removed the pan from the heat, stirred in a couple of tablespoons of butter, seasoned it with salt and pepper and spooned it over the trout.

“This fish is a good example of a light meal but a nice meal,” he said.

Quinoa eggplant: Even side dishes can be a little more special if you add what’s lurking in the back corners of the kitchen, Filgate said. Recently, for instance, he bolstered quinoa by slicing an eggplant lengthwise, seasoning it with salt and olive oil and grilling it for a few minutes on each side before dicing it and adding it to the quinoa.

Mushrooms, leeks and zucchini would have worked easily, he said, adding not only taste and texture but a healthy mix of nutrients.

HEALTH ALERT!

Don't Wait Until It's Too Late

Scientific studies have proven that if hearing loss goes untreated, a condition called “auditory deprivation” occurs.

Hearing loss starves the auditory centers of your brain of acoustic information, affecting your ability to understand speech.

Use it or lose it! The longer your hearing loss goes untreated, the more likely it is your brain will actually “forget” how to hear.

But there's good news! High-quality hearing instruments — like Beltone's new Touch™ and Reach™ — can ensure the auditory centers of your brain “stay busy”, minimizing the effects of auditory deprivation.

Untreated hearing loss causes your ear's auditory nerve to deteriorate.

Which Side of Aluminum Foil?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: Which is the “right” side of aluminum foil — the dull side or the shiny side?

Answer: According to Reynolds, there’s really no difference between the dull side and the shiny side. The difference happens in the final stage of making foil, when two layers go through the rollers. The side that comes in contact with a roller comes out shiny, and the side to the inside stays matte. But the difference doesn’t make any difference (so to speak) in how the foil is used.

However, if you’re using nonstick foil, the nonstick coating is applied to the dull side.

Chocolate Eggs Need Crunchy Chocolate Nests

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

You'll have no trouble enticing the kids to get involved in this easy and tasty part of Easter dinner prep.

We've combined a blend of crunchy cereals and noodles with a deliciously sticky blend of chocolate, marshmallow and peanut butter to create edible "nests" in which the little ones can store their chocolate eggs and jelly beans (assuming those treats stick around long enough to be stored).

The process is simple — just melt together the butter, marshmallows, peanut butter and chocolate, then stir in the dry ingredients. After that, let the children set to work shaping their nests.

Just note — this is a messy project. So you might want to do it before the kids get into their Easter best. Also, to make it a little less messy, lightly coat the kids' (or your) hands with cooking spray.

The finished nests can be stored in plastic bags at room temperature for up to a week.

Chocolate Bunny Nests

Start to finish: 20 minutes (plus cooling time). Makes 20 small nests.

3 tablespoons unsalted butter

- 10-ounce package mini marshmallows
- 1/2 cup crunchy peanut butter
- 6 ounces semisweet chocolate bits
- 2 cups thin chow mein noodles
- 1 1/2 cups square corn cereal, such as Corn Chex
- 2 cups crispy rice cereal, such as Rice Krispies

Line a baking sheet with waxed paper. In a large saucepan over medium-low heat, melt the butter. Add the marshmallows, peanut butter and chocolate bits. Stir continuously until completely melted and blended. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the chow mein noodles, corn cereal and rice cereal. Allow the mixture to cool until safe to handle.

For small nests, scoop by the tablespoonful onto the prepared baking sheet. For larger nests, use about 1/2 cup. Use your thumb or the back of a spoon (coated with cooking spray) to create an indentation at the center of each mound to form a "nest." Allow to finish cooling until firm.

A good diet is crucial during adolescence because "it's a time of such rapid growth and development," says Casey Beeghly, a registered dietitian with Sentara Healthcare in Norfolk, Va. Some tips:

Explain nutrition on their terms. Teens might not care that unhealthy eating could contribute to problems such as high blood pressure or brittle bones years later. They do care about having clear skin, thick hair, a good body weight and more energy and brainpower.

Calcium is key ... Teens need at least two daily servings of low-fat dairy such as milk, yogurt and cottage cheese to support bone growth. Other good sources are dark green vegetables, nuts and fortified cereals.

... and so is iron. The mineral helps build lean body mass, increase red blood cell production and, for girls, replace iron lost during menstruation. Iron-rich foods include lean red meats, chicken, fish, beans, broccoli, spinach and fortified whole grains.

Add in folic acid. This vitamin also helps build lean muscle, and girls need it to guard against birth defects in future pregnancies. Dark green vegetables, citrus fruits and fortified breads and cereals are good choices.

Boost fiber intake. Many teens aren't great about eating fruits and vegetables. Keep encouraging those foods, along with whole-grain breads and cereals with at least three to five grams of fiber per serving.

Help them not skip meals. Up to a quarter of teens don't eat breakfast every day. For easy-to-grab options, fill a basket with fruit, whole-grain granola bars or small bags of hand-made trail mix (try Cheerios, cranberries, raisins and nuts).

Be realistic about fast food. Instead of forbidding it, educate teens on healthy swaps such as grilled chicken sandwiches for fried, mustard for mayonnaise, apple slices for fries or baked chips for regular.

ARE YOUR KIDS VEGGIE AVERSE? TRY MASHED CARROTS

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Not sure why this recipe never occurred to me before. After all, I live on the front lines of the battle to get kids (in particular, my own) to eat vegetables.

And it's usually a losing battle. Until I bumbled my way into this one.

I was making carrots with dinner a few weeks ago. Instead of seasoning and roasting them as I usually do, I decided to steam them. Then I got distracted, as I usually do. By the time I rescued the carrots from the pan, they were fall-apart tender.

That's when it hit me. We mash potatoes. We mash squash. Some people even mash cauliflower. Why not mash carrots?

And so I did. With a bit of butter, milk, salt and pepper, I had a delicious vegetable dish with the consistency of mashed potatoes. The next night, I made it again (only this time on purpose). But instead of mashing by hand, I used the food processor to ensure an even smoother, mashed potato-like consistency. Adding a bit of cumin made it even better.

It was a winner. And not just with me. The resident 7-year-old boy also approved.

Mashed Carrots

Start to finish: 20 minutes. Servings: 6.

- 3 pounds carrots, peeled and cut into chunks
- 4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) butter
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- Salt and ground black pepper

In a medium saucepan over high heat, bring 1 inch of water to a boil. Add the carrots, then cover the pot, reduce heat to simmer and cook for 10 to 15 minutes, or until the carrots are very tender. Use a slotted spoon to transfer the carrots to a food processor.

Add the butter, milk and cumin, then process until very smooth, about 2 to 3 minutes. You will need to stop the processor and scrape down the sides of the bowl 2 or 3 times during processing. When the carrots resemble mashed potatoes, season with salt and pepper.

If you prefer a smoother or looser consistency, more milk can be added during processing.

Packed with Omega-3 — and Flavor to Match

BY STEPHANIE WILLIAMS
Chicago Tribune

In an attempt to ramp up my intake of healthful omega-3 fatty acids, without slurping down gel caps, and craft an appetizing fish dish, I decided to utilize the flaxseed meal I had purchased to use in fruit smoothies. That's right. But hang on, the result was a flavorful, savory and luscious piece of rainbow trout that had me going back for seconds.

If you're the type that generally finds fish bland and boring, then you must try this dish. And not just for Lent; this recipe will serve your taste buds well any time of year.

Add a blend of mache greens and baby spinach or steamed bok choy for a side dish.

Tips: Don't be shy with the rosemary. I added a generous amount of dried Spanish rosemary for flavor and texture. The same for the peppercorns. Be bold.

Look for whole ground flaxseed meal, such as Bob's Red Mill brand, among the specialty flours in the supermarket or in specialty and health food stores.

If fresh trout is not available, try salmon or whitefish.

Rainbow Trout with Flaxseed Crust

Prep: 10 minutes. Cook: 25 minutes. Servings: 4.

- 4 fresh rainbow trout fillets, about 6 ounces each
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 3/4 teaspoon sea salt
- 1/4 cup whole ground flaxseed meal
- 1/2 to 1 teaspoon mixed rainbow peppercorns, coarsely ground
- 1 teaspoon dried rosemary or 3/4 teaspoon fresh rosemary, chopped

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Place the fillets skin side down on a parchment-lined, rimmed baking sheet. Season with 1/4 teaspoon salt. Brush with the olive oil.

Mix remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt with the flaxseed meal, ground peppercorns and rosemary in a small bowl. Taste for seasoning; you may like more salt, rosemary or peppercorns to flavor the flaxseed meal. Sprinkle the mixture over the top of the fish, covering the surface completely as if breading, but don't dip the fillets. (You may need more flaxseed mixture, depending on the size of your fillets.) Gently pat mixture into the fish with your palms or a fork.

Bake, 25-30 minutes. Remove from oven; allow fish to cool so that flavors set-

A Lighter Take on a Classic — and Fatty — Dip

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Spinach and artichoke dip sounds like it should be a virtuous treat. After all, it's loaded with vegetables.

Trouble is, it's usually more mayonnaise and cheese than spinach and artichoke. So we decided to see if we could come up with a version that isn't so out of sync with healthy eating.

First order of business was to nix the mayonnaise. But, of course, we wanted something that had a great creamy texture and that could be heated. Greek style yogurt blended with low-fat cream cheese (Neufchatel) worked beautifully. It even added a subtle tang which we enhanced with some lemon zest for a nice spring flavor profile. Some fresh herbs took it ever further.

Next up, dealing with the cheese. We handled the inner gooey-ness with the aforementioned cream cheese. But often there also is a pile of cheese or breadcrumbs (or both) on the top. After it's broiled, we wanted that textural contrast and the toastiness that comes with it.

We found that crushed and seasoned whole-grain crackers worked well. Just note that different varieties of crackers can have widely varying nutrition. So be sure to read the labels carefully to select a whole-grain cracker with modest amounts of fat and calories. Aim for around 100 to 120 calories and 4 grams of fat per serving. You'll also want about 3 to 4 grams each of protein and fiber.

Lastly — and most importantly — was upping the amount of spinach and artichoke. We went with canned artichokes for ease. They also are available frozen. Either way, be sure to get the variety in water, not oil. Fresh baby spinach got a quick saute with onion and garlic before being added. Serve the warm dip with whole-wheat pita chips, baked tortilla chips or veggie sticks.

Spinach and Artichoke Dip

Start to finish: 20 minutes. Servings: 8.

- 1 ounce (1 serving) whole-grain crackers, crushed

- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon onion powder
- 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
- 6 ounces plain nonfat Greek yogurt
- 4 ounces low-fat cream cheese (Neufchatel)
- 1 teaspoon lemon zest
- 2 teaspoons minced fresh oregano
- 2 teaspoons minced fresh mint
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 small yellow onion, diced
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 5-ounce package fresh

baby spinach
14-ounce can artichoke hearts, lightly chopped

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Coat a small casserole or gratin dish with cooking spray.

In a small bowl, combine the cracker crumbs, garlic powder, onion powder and Parmesan. Set aside.

In a food processor, combine the yogurt, cream cheese, lemon zest, oregano, mint, salt and pepper. Pulse until smooth.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the onion and garlic and saute until soft, about 5 minutes. Add the spinach and cook until soft and any liquid has evaporated, about another 5 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in the artichokes and the yogurt mixture. Spoon into the prepared dish.

Sprinkle the cracker crumb mixture over the dip and bake for 10 to 15 minutes, or until hot. Serve warm.

Mary Jean Bradley Amende

Nov. 11, 1924-April 1, 2012

ALBION • Mary Jean Bradley Amende, 87, passed away Sunday, April 1, 2012, at her home with her family.

Mary was born Nov. 11, 1924, in Malad, Idaho, the fourth of six children born to Iver and Bobbie Routh (Pickett) Bradley. Raised in Malad and Pocatello Valley, she attended Malad schools, graduating valedictorian of her high school class. Following high school graduation, she came to Albion to attend summer school at Albion State Normal School. Her college education was interrupted for a year when she crossed the country by troop train at age 17 to work in the Pentagon. She graduated from Albion State Normal School with a teaching certificate, but married Keith Amende of Albion the day after on June 1, 1944. They were married in the historic Albion Methodist Church, currently the Albion Church of Christ, where they later celebrated their 50th and 60th wedding anniversaries.

Their first home was in Albion, but they moved to the family dry farm, homesteaded in 1909, just north of Albion in 1946. While Keith served a brief stint in the Army Air Corps at the end of World War II, Mary stayed with her widowed mother and a sister in Salt Lake City, Utah. The first of their six daughters was born just two days before he shipped out for Okinawa. Mary's family meant the world to her. She was very involved in her husband's activities and her daughters' education and activities, and was supportive of her grandchildren. She was a foster mother to 26 children over 11 years.

Mary was always a service-oriented person and believed in self-improvement. She was an active member of the PTA at all levels, serving as state president from 1976 to 1978; the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC Albion Four Leaf Clover Club), serving as state president from 1990 to 1992; the Grange; the Cassia County and Albion Historical societies; the ASN/SICE Alumni Association for which she published the annual newsletter; the American Legion Auxiliary at local and district levels; and the Iris Club in Burley. She was a 4-H leader for more than 45 years.

As a team, Keith and Mary worked together in the Adopt-A-Highway cleanup program; the Red Cross blood drive; the Ground Observer Corps and the senior citizens. They chaired two county-wide July 4 celebrations and served on the Albion Community Relations Committee that directed the Hometown July 4 Celebration for several years. They were members of the Albion Chamber of Commerce until it dissolved and the Albion Quick Response Unit when it first organized.

As a member of the Albion Church of Christ, Mary taught Bible classes for all ages. She taught classes and was a speaker for Christian college lectures, Ladies Days and ladies church camps. She taught a weekly local ladies Bible class in her home for several years. One of her favorite activities was correspondence courses with foreign students through World Bible School.

Mary found time for her hobbies, which included crocheting, embroidering, reading, baking pies, listening to her large music collection, taking pictures and creating photo albums, writing and painting. And she was nearly always available when someone needed a listening ear or helping hand. She also enjoyed entertaining and opening her home to others.

Mary received many honors through the years. Most recently, she and Keith received the Community Citizen Award for their community service. They were selected as Idaho Grange Young Couple of the Year in 1958 and 1959, honored as Farmer Couple of the Year by the Chamber of Commerce and recognized by the Red Cross. Mary was inducted into the Idaho 4-H Leaders Hall of Fame and honored by GFWC Idaho as a Distinguished Clubwoman of the Year. She was named as a Lady of the Year by the local sororities and Woman of the Year by the Soroptomists for her community service.

Mary is survived by her husband, Keith of Albion; four daughters, Mary Lynne (Bruce) Bristol of Albion, Sharon (Bill) Tyson of Salt Lake City, Gloria West of Rupert and Carol Amende of Albion; two sisters, Beryl Jenkins of Elko, Nev., and Ruby Hammel of Salt Lake City, Utah; two sons-in-law, Joe Phillips of Rupert and Jim Stopper of Oregon City, Ore.; a special daughter, Dovie Carlson of Boise; nine grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren. Mary was preceded in death by her parents; two brothers; one sister; and two daughters, Anne Marie Phillips and Susan Stopper.

The funeral for Mary will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 7, at the Morrison Funeral Home, 188 S. Highway 24 in Rupert, with Herman Pope officiating. A visitation will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 6, and one hour prior to the service Saturday at the funeral home. The graveside will follow at the Albion Pleasant Hill Cemetery.

The family wishes to express a very big "thank you" to the employees and volunteers of the Intermountain Cassia Regional Medical Center Hospice, especially Tawny Pirtle, for their loving care and valuable assistance with Mary these past two years. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the charity or organization of your choice in Mary's memory.

SENIOR

Q. My siblings and I are getting together next month to talk about how we can work together to keep Mother in her house, which is her wish. Thankfully, my brothers and I all get along well, but we want to keep it that way!

A. Congratulations! You are about to create a family caregiving "team!" Just like a team in a work environment, your team will work best if you agree ahead of time how to use each other's skills, interests and abilities. It might be helpful if each of you would spend a little time before you meet to think about your respective strengths: What are you good at? How can those skills help with your common goal of keeping your mother safe at home? Some valuable skills include: finding information by talking with people or using a computer; speaking with doctors and other medical professionals; supervising or leading others, including dealing with home care workers; doing the numbers such as paying bills, checking bank statements, and reviewing insurance policies; doing home repairs and maintenance; and, offering companionship and cheer. Your initial team meeting will be more positive if you prepare! Good luck!

No Tortillas Needed in These Easy Wraps with Kick

BY J.M. HIRSCH

Associated Press

Gluten-free and lower-carb wasn't the goal, but that's what I got.

I was making dinner and all I really wanted was a fast, filling and easy chicken something-or-other. I was thinking chicken and refried bean burritos, but realized too late that I didn't have any tortillas. Rather than abandon the idea, I went ahead without. Instead of using the chicken as the filling, I pounded it flat and used it as the wrap itself.

The result was delicious, versatile and simple. Though I used refried beans and cheese as my filling, there's no reason you couldn't substitute the vegetables or whole beans of your choice. And while I used regular sour cream and mozzarella, you could make this dinner low-fat simply by switching to those varieties of dairy.

Best yet, this dish also is easily prepped ahead of time. The night before or the morning of, follow the recipe right up to the point of cooking, then cover in plastic wrap and refrigerate until ready to cook. Just be sure to use kitchen twine or toothpicks to hold the wraps together so they don't unroll during the day.

Spicy Smoky Refried Chicken Wraps

Start to finish: 45 minutes. Servings: 4.

2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
Juice of 1 lime
Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
15-ounce can refried beans
1 teaspoon hot sauce (more or less to taste)
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon smoked paprika
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
Tomato salsa, to garnish
Chopped fresh cilantro, to garnish
Sour cream

Heat the oven to 350 degrees. Coat a rimmed baking sheet with cooking spray.

Carefully slice each chicken breast in half horizontally to create 2 thin fillets. One at a time, place each fillet between sheets of plastic wrap and pound with a meat mallet or rolling pin until evenly thin and about twice as large. Sprinkle both sides of each piece of chicken with lime juice, then season with salt and pepper. Arrange on the prepared baking sheet, then set aside.

In a medium bowl, mix together the refried beans, hot sauce, cumin, paprika and cheese. Spread a quarter of the mixture evenly over each fillet.

Roll each fillet into a tight bundle. If needed, the bundles can be tied with kitchen twine or pinned with toothpicks to keep from unrolling.

Spritz each bundle with cooking spray, then bake for 25 minutes, or until a thermometer inserted at the center of the bundles reads 165 degrees. Serve topped with salsa, cilantro and sour cream.

Gluten-free for All: Even if They're Not Allergic to it, More People are Going Without it

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS

McClatchy Newspapers

Gluten-free used to be something that food makers didn't brag about.

The few products that were free of wheat or gluten would say so in small type on the back.

"In the consumer's mind, gluten-free meant 'It doesn't taste good,'" says Alice Bast, president of the National Celiac Awareness Foundation.

And now? Walk the aisles of any supermarket and "gluten-free" is shouting from the shelves. There are gluten-free products from Bisquick to Betty Crocker. There's gluten-free soy sauce and gluten-free ketchup, even gluten-free cosmetics.

"Now 'free' means 'it's better for you,'" says Bast. And a lot of people who don't have celiac disease and haven't been diagnosed with gluten-sensitivity are reaching for gluten-free products.

While 1 to 2 percent of the population has celiac disease and 6 to 8 percent have been diagnosed with gluten sensitivities, up to 25 percent of Americans are eating gluten-free without being diagnosed and 69 percent are trying gluten-free products.

Even in the middle of an economic slowdown, the gluten-free industry has grown 30 percent. It's expected to hit $2.6 billion this year and $5 billion by 2015.

"We have our sports figures saying their athletic prowess is better on a gluten-free diet," says Bast. "And then you have the Gwyneth (Paltrows) and the Victoria Beckhams saying, 'I buy gluten-free - it keeps me slender!'"

But while the trend is making it easier for people with celiac disease, it's also bringing unwelcome changes - more processed food, diet claims that aren't proven and the risk of "gluten-free" menus that don't live up to the name.

"It reminds me of the no-fat thing with Snackwells (nonfat cookies)," says Barbara D'Ambrosio of The Thoughtful Baker, an allergen- and gluten-free custom baker in Charlotte, N.C.

"It's like everybody is getting on the gluten-free bandwagon."

Gluten-free supporters and marketers make many claims about weight-loss and health. But health experts say people may lose weight or feel more energetic when they cut out gluten simply because they are paying attention to what they eat. Or they're cooking more from scratch and using more fruits and vegetables because that's the easiest way to control what you eat.

Enjoying the Savory Side of Pies — for Dinner

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Why should pie be limited to dessert?

No reason at all, actually. Everything we love about pie — a moist and delicious interior, a flaky bronzed crust — can work as easily for savory dinners and lunches as it can for cherries, apples and blueberries. And since many savory pies are made small — so-called hand pies — they also make easy eats on the go.

To keep our stroganoff pies simple, we use purchased pie crust. And to make forming them even easier, we cook them in a muffin tin. They are delicious warm and cool.

Stroganoff Muffin Pies

Start to finish: 1 hour (40 minutes active). Servings: 6.

1 tablespoon olive oil
1 small yellow onion, diced
4 ounces chopped cremini mushrooms
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon smoked paprika
2 ounces cream cheese, cut into chunks
12 ounces extra-lean ground beef
14.1-ounce package refrigerated pie crust (contains 2 crusts)
1 egg, well beaten

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Lightly coat a large 6-cup muffin tin with cooking spray.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat the olive oil.

Add the onion and saute for 3 minutes. Add the mushrooms, salt and pepper, then saute until well browned and soft, about 6 to 8 minutes. Turn the heat off. Add the smoked paprika and cream cheese, then stir to combine.

Allow the mixture to cool for 5 minutes. In a medium bowl, mix together the mushroom mixture and beef, then set aside.

On a lightly floured surface, unroll one of the prepared pie crusts. Cut 6 circles from the crust. Each circle needs to be large enough to fit into the muffin cups, come up the sides and overhang the upper edge by about 1/2 inch. Fit one circle into each muffin cup.

Divide the meat filling between the cups, spooning it into each. From the second crust, cut out 6 smaller circles to fit on top of the muffin-pies. With your fingers or a fork, crimp around the edges to seal each pie. Brush the tops of the pies with the beaten egg and cut a slit in the top crust to vent.

Bake for 15-20 minutes, or until golden brown and a thermometer inserted into the center reaches 165 F. Pie can be served warm or cooled to room temperature. If the pies will be stored for more than 2 hours, they should be refrigerated.

Mystery Meat No More: Meat Pies Are Gaining Ground

BY JOCELYN NOVECK
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Consider the poor meat pie. Historically speaking, it hasn't always had the best associations attached to it.

"Is that just revolting?" sings Mrs. Lovett, the pie-shop owner in Stephen Sondheim's "Sweeney Todd," the musical tale of meat pies gone seriously awry. "All greasy and gritty? It looks like it's molting, And tastes like, Well, pity!" (And that's BEFORE she turns to shepherd's pie, "peppered with actual shepherd.")

But pity the meat pie no more: Much loved in Australia, Britain and elsewhere, but traditionally ignored in the United States, it's showing signs of hitting trend status here, too, with high-end fillings Mrs. Lovett apparently never thought of.

Chunky steak, for example, or Thai chicken curry. Those are two of the flavors offered at a new takeout spot in midtown Manhattan, the first U.S. outpost of an Australian chain called Pie Face, which opened in January and has a line out the door at lunchtime. Ten more stores are planned in the city by year's end, and more later in other cities, including at airports and train stations.

"We're doing much better business in this store than in any of our 70 stores in Australia," says Wayne Homschek, an Australia-based American who founded the chain with his Aussie wife, Betty Fong. "The question isn't whether Americans are liking it, it's why haven't they picked up on it before?"

In supermarkets, too, meat pies are getting more shelf space, analysts say, thanks at least in part to the rising cost of beef. The Department of Agriculture projected late last year that beef prices would remain high for the next few years.

"The meat pie is a less expensive and filling alternative to a steak, a big burger, a meat loaf — even chicken," says Phil Lempert, the food marketing analyst known as the Supermarket Guru.

Last year, Lempert explains, supermarkets were reluctant to raise prices when the cost of beef went up, a result of a tighter cattle supply due to the rising price of their feed. "So now, they are making room for alternatives," he says.

Add to that the rising popularity of food trucks, Lempert notes, with ethnic food that often includes a type of meat pie. "It's exotic, inexpensive, and easy and fun to eat," Lempert says. Plus, he adds, Americans have gotten much more used to handheld foods — burritos and the like — in recent years.

Tanya Wenman Steel already is a convert. The editor-in-chief of Epicurious.com says she sees huge interest whenever her site posts a meat-pie recipe or mentions them in stories.

"I'm obsessive about them," says Steel, who grew up in England, which explains a lot. "I grew up with Cornish pasties" — portable meat pies that originated in Cornwall. "I also love Scotch pies, which are made with mutton. But even more than that, I love steak-and-kidney pie! It's a classic pub food!"

A reason for the meat pie's rising popularity, Steel says, is that once you get the hang of making it, it's endlessly versatile. "You can really put anything in there," she says. "A protein, and then onions, carrots, peas, whatever you want. And there's something so calming, so comforting about meat pies."

SHRIMP STIR-FRY GOES TOGETHER IN A FLASH

BY LINDA GASSENHEIMER
McClatchy Newspapers

Peppery, stir-fried shrimp served over a bed of lemony rice and peas makes a quick Chinese dinner.

I adapted this meal from television chef Ming Tsai, who told me it's based on a traditional Chinese favorite.

"Most of the flavor for the shrimp is in the shell," he said, so if you prefer, you can use shelled shrimp, stir-frying it for 2 to 3 minutes.

I've added peas to the rice side dish. They're quick and easy to use, but any cooked green vegetable can be substituted.

This meal contains 517 calories per serving with 23 percent of calories from fat.

Wine suggestion: A lean pinot grigio would go well with these flavors.

Helpful hints:

- Look for easy-peel shrimp in the frozen section of the market.
- Any type of quick cooking rice can be used.
- To defrost the peas quickly, place them in a strainer and run hot water over them.
- Four crushed garlic cloves can be used instead of minced garlic.

Wok-Flashed Salt and Pepper Shrimp

1 pound large, easy-peel shrimp
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon salt

1/2 tablespoon freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon canola oil
1 tablespoon chopped fresh ginger or 1 teaspoon ground ginger
2 teaspoons minced garlic
6 scallions, thinly sliced

Place shrimp in a bowl of water to soak while you prepare the other ingredients.

Mix the cornstarch, salt and pepper in a medium bowl. Remove shrimp from water and add to the cornstarch mixture. Toss well to make sure all of the shrimp are covered with the mixture.

Heat the oil in a wok or skillet on high heat. When the oil is smoking, add the shrimp, ginger, garlic and scallions. Stir-fry 4 to 5 minutes until the shrimp have turned pink. Serve over rice. Makes 2 servings.

Lemony Rice and Peas

1 package microwavable white rice
1 teaspoon canola oil
Zest of 1 lemon (grated skin) plus 1 tablespoon juice
1 cup frozen peas, defrosted
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Cook rice according to package instructions. Measure 1 1/2 cups rice into a bowl (save any extra for another meal). Add the oil, lemon zest, lemon juice and peas. Toss well. Add salt and pepper to taste. Makes 2 servings.

Bruins' Harr Signs With Walla Walla

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

Harr

TWIN FALLS • Walla Walla Community College likes to play 40 minutes of frantic basketball, pushing the pace whenever it can and hoisting up 3-point shots all around the arc.

Sounds like the perfect fit for Twin Falls High School sharpshooter Eric Harr.

Surrounded by his friends and family, Harr signed a letter of intent at his home Tuesday night to play men's basketball for the Washington school.

"They're a lot like us. They shoot a lot of 3s and really like to run. I love shooting 3s, so it was always my top choice," Harr said. "It feels really good (to sign). I'm relieved to have it all over and know where I'm going to go. I'm happy with my decision."

A 6-0 shooting guard, Harr led Twin Falls with 14.0 points and 4.7 rebounds per game this season, while shooting 36 percent from 3-point range en route to a third-place finish at the Class 4A state tournament in March.

Since then, Harr has hit the recruiting trail, taking a visit to College of Idaho two weekends ago and a trip up to Walla Walla, Wash., on his way to the Idaho High School All-Star game in Coeur d'Alene March 14.

Harr also had a workout last weekend with Big Bend and during the season with Northern Montana.

"Coach (Jeff) Reiland has been talking to me since the beginning of the season and I felt even more comfortable once I visited," said Harr, who expects to see ample playing time as a freshman this fall. "The players accepted me and got me involved when we played and I'm expected to come in and be a shooter."

Last season, Walla Walla finished 19-10 overall with a third place finish in the East division of the Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges. The Warriors shot the second most 3-pointers in the league, an average of 28 per game.

"I think it's a good fit for him and he'll do well at the next level," said Twin Falls head coach Matt Harr, Eric's father. "He had some other offers, but he kind of had his heart set on this place for a while."

Griner had 26 points, 13 rebounds and five blocks to lead Baylor to a dominating 80-61 victory over Notre Dame in the NCAA women's basketball championship on Tuesday night, capping a 40-0 season for the Lady Bears.

"Looking back when we get older, I'm always going to remember this moment, always going to remember confetti falling and being here with my team," Griner said as she and her teammates hugged and celebrated.

They became the seventh women's team to run through a season unbeaten and the first in NCAA history to win 40 games. It was the second national championship for Baylor, which also won a title in 2005.

Baylor did it in a nearly wire-to-wire victory, finishing with a flourish in a season when anything less than bringing a title back to Waco would have been a huge disappointment.

MIAMI • Perched atop the Miami Marlins' multicolored, provocative home-run sculpture is a blue marlin, poised for splashdown whenever the home team hits one out.

Call the artwork what you will — gaudy, goofy, grotesque, great — but there's no denying it's new. For the Marlins, that's what this season is all about.

Long overlooked and underfunded, they've become a big-spending, attention-grabbing team as they open the season at home Wednesday night against the World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals.

The park, art sculpture, futuristic ballpark, brisk ticket sales, team name, uniforms, celebrity manager, All-Star shortstop, All-Star left-hander, All-Star closer and starry-eyed optimism: all new.

Arkansas' Petrino Returns to Practice

ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. • Bobby Petrino walked slower than normal, his face swollen and red. You couldn't miss the white brace around the Arkansas coach's neck.

But the fact that Petrino was even at Razorback Stadium on Tuesday, hours after being released from the hospital following a weekend motorcycle crash, was remarkable.

The 51-year-old spoke for the first time since Sunday night's accident, minutes before the Razorbacks opened practice. Petrino observed the session in the press box, cleared to do so by doctors after being released from the hospital late Tuesday morning.

The accident occurred on Arkansas Highway 16 in Madison County, about 20 miles southeast of Fayetteville, and Petrino said he wasn't wearing a helmet at the time of the crash.

The avid motorcycle enthusiast said he plans to wear one in the future, particularly after suffering four broken ribs in his upper chest and cracking the outside of the C-2 vertebra in his back.

"I'm very fortunate," Petrino said. "I feel very lucky to be here and be in good health."

Petrino said he was returning home after an evening ride on the scenic road, a favorite of local motorcyclists. He had ridden in the area before but remembers noticing the sun in his eyes moments before the accident.

"I remember coming around the curve, I was noticing the sun was going to be in my eyes the rest of the way home," Petrino said. "And then there got to a point where I was not going to be able to maneuver the turn."

"It seemed like 15 seconds where I said, 'Ohno, here I go!'"

State police spokesman Bill Sadler said Tuesday that Petrino's accident report wasn't ready for release yet, but Petrino said he ended up in the ditch following the crash. Petrino said a passing car was waiting when he climbed from the ditch and took him to meet his state police escort before the two went the rest of the way to the hospital.

Arkansas football coach Bobby Petrino speaks during a news conference on Tuesday. Petrino was released from a hospital after he was injured in a motorcycle accident on Sunday.

James' 41 Points Powers Heat Past 76ers

MIAMI • LeBron James scored a season-high 41 points, Mario Chalmers added 19 and the Miami Heat clinched a playoff spot with a 99-93 win over the Philadelphia 76ers on Tuesday night.

James scored 14 straight Miami points in the fourth quarter, helping the Heat finish off a four-game season sweep of Philadelphia and extend their home-court winning streak to 16 games. Chris Bosh scored 17 points and Udonis Haslem grabbed 11 rebounds for Miami, which won despite Dwyane Wade sitting out with a bruised left knee.

PACERS 112, KNICKS 104
INDIANAPOLIS • Danny Granger scored 14 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, and Indiana rallied from 17 points down in the second half to beat New York.

Green played his rookie season for Cleveland, which cut him at the end of training camp in 2011. He's found a new home with the Spurs, who built a 22-point lead in the first half and rested Parker, Tim Duncan and Manu Ginobili for most of the fourth quarter while pushing their lead to 37.

RAPTORS 92, BOBCATS 87
TORONTO • Andrea Bargnani scored 30 points, DeMar DeRozan had 20 and Toronto beat Charlotte.

Toronto, which beat Washington 99-92 on Sunday night, posted consecutive home wins for the first time since Dec. 1 and 3, 2010.

Golf

The boys competition was far more competitive, even though the scores were a tad high by many golfers' standards.

Buhl sophomore Kade Crossland overcame a front-nine 40, rallying for an even-par 35 on the back nine to claim a one-stroke win over Kimberly sophomore Matt HoChee.

Crossland rallied with back-to-back birdies during his second nine, which helped right the ship after running into early trouble.

"I'm excited for 75, considering how I struggled at the start," the reigning 3A boys medalist said. "

The scores were inflated due to some wind and a monster hole — No. 9, a 381-yard par 4 hole that's regarded as one of the most challenging in the area.

"It's tough, because you have out of bounds on the left and water on the right, and people just overthink it and either pull or slice it,"

Crossland said.

Filer's boys avoided trouble more successfully than did their competitors, as the Wildcats put four golfers in the top 12 finishers on their way to a team score of 332, more than 20 shots better than Castleford.

None of the Filer golfers shot worse than 93.

"You've just got to be careful on a course like this," said Filer junior Jed Oyler, who led the way with a 79. "Our coach always tells us to club down if we're not hitting the driver well, but I was hitting the ball really well today. Our guys are pretty balanced, and we've got three kids who haven't played on varsity before. They'll be big for us at districts and if we get to state."

Boise State

where staying healthy stands on his list of individual goals. "I definitely want to stay healthy."

His goals while his teammates are in pads, scrimmaging and running drills at Bronco Stadium?

"I want to get stronger in the weight room, upper-body wise, and to keep improving every day, try to be more vocal and be a leader."

Of the Broncos' 14 returning linemen, nine have started at least one game in their career.

"One of the most impressive things about our offensive line is the depth we have," said Kellogg, who quickly noted Spencer Gerke, who started two games in Kellogg's absence, and backup center Matt Paradis as two players who have caught his eye this spring.

"We're going through spring ball with just a handful of guys and they're doing an awesome job," Kellogg said. "In the fall, we'll get about four or five guys back, but we have awesome depth and that's always great to have as an offensive line. You know someone is going to get dinged up here and there during the season."

Last year, Boise State averaged 4.5 yards per carry — a good, but not great, number — while giving up just eight sacks in 13 games, which led the nation. The latter number figures to go up, not only because Moore was so good at getting rid of the ball on time, but because Boise State's quartet of quarterback candidates are all more mobile than Moore and will use their feet to keep plays alive, but which could result in a greater number of sacks allowed.

No one in the BSU program is shy about Moore's shortcomings in the speed department — "He wasn't very mobile, to be honest," Kellogg said — but having more mobile signal callers doesn't change Kellogg's mindset toward blocking.

"I think you have to have the same mentality, do your job and protect as long as you can," Kellogg said. "If he sees a gap he can shoot through, get some yards, he's going to take it. You can't really think about him scrambling back there."

The concern this time last year was over the candidates to replace NFL draft picks Austin Pettis and Titus Young at wide receiver. If the quarterback situation plays out like the wide receiver unit did last year, Boise State is primed for another double-digit win season.

Gone is leading receiver Tyler Shoemaker (62 catches, 994 yards, 16 touchdowns), but coming back are seven of the team's top 10 pass catchers, including wideouts Matt Miller (62-679-9), Mitch Burroughs (49-500-1), Kirby Moore (22-247-1), Gerald Boldewjin (19-266-2) and Dallas Burroughs (9-175-1).

"We're going to miss Shoe greatly, but we have a lot of great guys in that room," said Miller, a red-shirt sophomore who fared well in lessening the blow of Pettis' and Young's departures. "I think it helps, no new guys in our group that we're playing with so we hit the ground running the first day of spring ball."

About the only thing this unit lacks is a proven deep threat. Pettis (17.1 yards per catch as a senior) and Young (13.4) qualified in that regard, as did Shoemaker (16.0), and Miller wants to be in that category.

"I'm trying to become more of a deep-route guy, try to be two-dimensional," Miller said. "I can definitely get a little more speed in the weight room and work on my releases off the ball, to get to the second level."

NCAA MEN'S BASKETBALL

Wildcats Live Up to Expectations with Title

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • The running joke all season was that Kentucky was good enough to beat some NBA teams. Say, maybe the Toronto Raptors.

Farfetched? Probably. But with that stable of pros-in-waiting, one thing seemed certain: The Wildcats were the team to beat in college basketball.

Capping a season that had a feeling of inevitability, Kentucky finished with a flourish, beating Kansas 67-59 in the NCAA championship game Monday night.

OK, so maybe it was the last time we'll see many of those future millionaires in blue and white. At least they'll go out as heroes after bringing home an eighth national championship to Big Blue and giving John Calipari the one missing piece to his resume.

"We were the best team," Calipari said. "I wanted this to be one for the ages."

Calipari has had a knack for luring the nation's best recruits to Lexington, never worrying about whether they'd stick around.

This year's bouncy-legged bunch was impressive even by his standards.

Led by everybody's player of the year Anthony Davis, these fast-tracked Wildcats raced past nearly everyone who got in their way.

Davis, Michael Kidd-Gilchrist, Doron Lamb, Darius Miller, Terrence Jones, Marquis Teague — Coach Cal had a team of ringers and he, along with everyone else, knew it. Who's No. 2 seemed to be the only question left.

Kentucky lost just twice during the season: on a buzzer-beater by Indiana and to Vanderbilt in the SEC tournament in New Orleans, where Commodores big man Festus Ezeli pushed the Wildcats around.

The Vandy loss seemed to serve the Wildcats well, giving them a not-so-subtle reminder they still have to play, that this was no divine-right coronation.

The message clearly came through.

Kentucky attacked its first four NCAA tournament opponents like a swarm of bees; swat one and the rest are coming after you.

The Wildcats earned a return trip to the Big Easy by turning a highly hyped regional final against Baylor into a rout.

Waiting for them was in-state rival, Louisville in the national semifinals.

The scrappy Cardinals made a game of it, thanks to some master manipulation by coach Rick Pitino, the former leader in Lexington who'd gone to the enemy, but Kentucky was just too deep, too talented.

VICTORIOUS KENTUCKY RETURNS HOME

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. • Another championship banner has been unfurled at Rupp Arena.

Kentucky's basketball team returned home to its adoring fans Tuesday, after defeating Kansas 67-59 Monday night to win the school's eighth NCAA championship.

Blue-clad fans erupted into deafening cheers as the team pulled into the packed arena aboard a sleek blue bus emblazoned with "national champions."

It was a joyous curtain call for a team led by a talented group of freshmen and sophomores. The NBA likely beckons next for several of them.

Each team member was introduced to loud ovations as players and coaches took the stage in the middle of the arena. Senior Darius Miller, a basketball net draped around his neck, toted the NCAA championship trophy to a table. Coach John Calipari pumped his fist and raised his arms in triumph as he basked in the cheers.

"You know why we won the national title? Folks, we have the best players and we have the best team," he said as the crowd erupted.

Calipari reminded the crowd that his goal three seasons ago when he took the Kentucky coaching job was to restore the Wildcats to the "gold standard" in college basketball and to raise more championship banners.

Then on cue, the 2012 title banner slowly unfurled from the rafters at Rupp as the Kentucky pep band played and fans cheered.

Baylor

The 6-foot-8 Griner was right at the center when the Lady Bears took control. Every time Notre Dame made a run in the second half to cut into the deficit, Griner had an answer. She showed a wide array of post moves hitting turnaround jumpers and hooks that the Irish had no way to stop — even when they collapsed around her.

"Brittney Griner comes to work every day," Baylor coach Kim Mulkey said. "A lot of great players think they're all that and they half go through drills and they come to practice and they dog it. That child comes to work and brings her work pail every day."

Notre Dame fell short in the title game for the second straight season. The Irish lost to Texas A&M by six points last year.

Coach Muffet McGraw's senior-heavy crew did finish the season with a decided edge over rival Connecticut — the Irish won the Big East regular season title and defeated the Huskies in three-of-four meetings, including the national semifinal.

year, Notre Dame couldn't solve Baylor and the most dominant player in women's basketball.

"She made great shots, she's a great player," McGraw said. "She was unstoppable."

Griner, selected The Associated Press player of the year, also was named most outstanding player of the tournament.

"We wouldn't be here without my team," the junior said. "All the awards — none of that means anything. If I don't have my team here, we can't get this."

All-American point guard Skylar Diggins did all she could to keep the Irish (36-4) in the game, scoring 20 points. But senior Natalie Novosel had just five points, going 0-for-11 from the field. Devereaux Peters, also playing in her final game, was saddled with foul trouble because of Griner. She scored seven points.

Diggins "played a great game," McGraw said. "She's just a big-time player and she didn't get a lot of help today."

Like Griner, Diggins has pledged to return for her senior year — both could join the WNBA — and will try to make a third run at the title.

Notre Dame had an early 9-8 lead before Baylor took over with a 12-2 run. The Irish were down by 14 in the first half before cutting their deficit to 34-28 at the break. They got as close as 42-39 and had the ball, but Griner asserted herself, scoring nine of the next 19 points for Baylor to seal the victory.

"They went on a run there," Diggins said. "I just remember we cut it down to three and went on a run. I saw 10, 12, 14, 16, 19. We couldn't get rebounds when they missed shots."

Odyssey Sims added 19 points and Destiny Williams had 12 for the Lady Bears, who outrebounded Notre Dame 46-27 and now have the third unbeaten season in women's basketball in the last four years.

Out of District Students	115.00	150.00	30.43%

The fee increases are dictated by the necessity to meet increased costs of operating the student driver education program. Fees would be effective immediately upon approval.

In accordance with Idaho Code 63-1311A, a public hearing on the District's intent to make a decision on the proposed fee increases will be held during the regular Board of Trustees meeting on April 11, 2012 at 7:00 P.M. at the Filer Intermediate School Conference Room; 833 6th Street West; Filer, Idaho. All citizens are invited to attend the public hearing on the increased fee requests.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, when I was in 10th grade, I had a best friend, "Ben." We talked all the time, shared secrets and always hung out together. I never regarded him as someone I'd like to date, so I never took his attention very seriously.

DEAR ABBY
Abby Jeanne Phillips

That summer, he texted me and asked me to send him a picture of my breasts. When I said no, he became pushy. I told him I didn't know what he was going to do with the picture, and I didn't want to get in trouble. He was upset that I didn't "trust" him. I tried to explain that I couldn't assume he wouldn't do anything to hurt me. We didn't talk the rest of the summer.

The following year we had a chemistry class together, and Ben acted like he didn't know me. He deleted my phone number and dropped me as a friend on Facebook. Now, in our final year of high school, he's in another class with me. He still won't acknowledge me and is always flirting with my best friend.

I have cried so much over Ben. I miss him a lot. I don't understand why he's treating me this way. What did I do that was so awful? Is something wrong with me?

— BEWILDERED IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR BEWILDERED: You did nothing wrong. You considered Ben to be a friend, and I assume that you aren't in the habit of showing your male friends your breasts. It seems only logical that you wouldn't send a picture that could wind up heaven knows where.

Ben is acting this way because he is trying to punish you for not giving him what he wanted. He's flirting with your friend to hurt you and/or make you jealous. These are not the actions of a friend, and the sooner you accept it, the better off you will be. Ben strikes me as immature and a user, so be glad you didn't do what he wanted. It was good common sense.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding money and adult children, should a parent help all children equally if they are financially able to? Or should a parent offer help only to the children in need (medical expenses, kid in college, new washing machine, etc.)? If one child has a high-paying job, does he/she deserve any less from a parent in the end?

— WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Before deciding how to divide your assets, first discuss this with an attorney who specializes in wills, trusts and estate planning. From my perspective, if you leave an equal amount to each of your heirs, it will prevent hurt feelings and resentment among them after you are gone. Monies given before your death to one of your children should be tallied and deducted from the amount he or she is allotted in your will — with an explanation of the reason why it is less.

DEAR ABBY: I am torn between two important people in my life. My best friend and my husband graduate this year on the same day, one at 9 a.m., the other at 10 a.m., at two different colleges an hour and a half apart.

My friend says that because I was able to attend my husband's associate and bachelor degree graduations, I should attend her ceremony because I have never seen her graduate. However, I feel my husband's having earned his master's degree is a huge accomplishment, and that I should attend his graduation. What do you think, Abby?

— UNDECIDED IN ARKANSAS

DEAR UNDECIDED: I think you should follow your instincts, because they are exactly right. During your lifetime you will have many friends, but let's hope only one husband.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"It is a curious thought, but it is only when you see people looking ridiculous that you realize just how much you love them."

— Agatha Christie

In today's deal from the Dyspeptics Club, South, finding himself in his accustomed position as declarer, received a club lead against three no-trump.

He won the first club and tested diamonds, uttering a snort of disgust when the suit failed to break. At this point, he gave himself the best chance he could when he cashed his last diamond winner — East carefully discarding spades on both top diamonds — then played hearts from the top. The blockage in the suit meant that he could cash only three tricks there, and the defenders had enough communications to take five winners whatever declarer did next.

As usual, North was dismissive of his partner's efforts. Can you see why?

It is tempting to be overconfident and expect to take lots of tricks when diamonds come in. But even if diamonds break badly, you may be able to make four heart tricks and your contract; however, you need to test that suit first in case someone has a doubleton jack. As you can see from the lie of the cards today, you have four heart tricks, but you need to retain an entry to the South hand to score the last of them.

Cash the heart ace and queen at once, and when the jack drops doubleton, you unblock the heart 10 and have the entry in the form of the diamond ace to untangle your winners and take your nine tricks.

ANSWER: In an auction of this sort, where your partner has used fourth-suit-forcing as an exploratory move to determine more about your hand, supporting partner economically with honor-doubleton and a decent hand is normally a good idea. This leaves space for your partner to decide where he wants to go next. So a call of three diamonds looks right.

Look for golden opportunities or expect to receive well deserved rewards and make permanent improvements in January. That is the very best time to launch crucial plans or to make key decisions.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spend not, cry not. Don't make major purchases under these celestial conditions. A relationship will easily weather upsets if you are bighearted in the face of loss and remain impervious to doubts and fears.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may feel you are floating in a sea of confusion, but remember that you are in control of the rudder. By remaining calm in the face of danger and poised in the face of anger, you can control the outcome.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hope ends when you stop believing; love ends when you stop caring. Don't be discouraged if things temporarily don't go your way. Right now you may yearn for love but find it escapes your understanding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Remain an individual. Do not immerse yourself in group dynamics to the point you lose sight of your own needs. If you are too busy watching what others do, you won't be focused on what you can do.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Life is more worthwhile when you keep dreaming. Find sources of inspiration in the world around you. The fairytale figure who shakes your hand when you visit a theme park isn't real but you still find it fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stand on your own two feet. If you rely too heavily on feedback from others to prop you up, you will eventually lose the strength to stand on your own. Don't make major purchases under these stars.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Never give up hope. The reason people give up so quickly is because they tend to look at how far they still have to go, instead of how far they have come. Today is not a good day for negotiations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Resistance to change can limit your options. Be as cooperative as possible without making binding promises. You must wait out a brief period of confusion in order to reach the greatest potential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The race is won by the wise. Only will time will tell if a new romantic interest will make it to the finish line; don't abandon one partner for another one. Those who are sincere can afford to be generous.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Maintain a healthy respect for money in the bank. If your finances are in good shape, be sure to keep it that way. This isn't an optimal time to make a change or an investment. Stick to the sure thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Question whether you are living up to your own expectations. You can lose your way if you are too busy trying to please others. Steer clear of contracts, make no promises and don't sign agreements.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Sift through the chaff to find the kernels of truth. The truth may be obscured, but if you are patient and diligent enough you will eventually find your way. Don't make any crucial decisions under these stars.
