Boy Dies after Playing 'Choking Game'

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

Rasmussen

DIETRICH • Dietrich school officials are educating students on the dangers of the "choking game" after their 10-year-old classmate died this weekend.

Austin Rasmussen died Saturday as a result of self-inflicted strangulation after playing the game alone at home. He's the son of Brandon and Stephanie Rasmussen.

Dietrich School District Superintendent Neal Hollingshead described Austin as a "happy kid" with a bright future.

"It's a real tragedy," he said.

Austin's father, Brandon, said Wednesday that he doesn't have any comments to share at this point. Eventually, he said, he wants to educate others about the dangers of the game that killed his son.

Area school officials are concerned about increasing reports of the game, in which participants experience a brief high after choking themselves or others, cutting oxygen flow to the brain.

Lincoln County Deputy Coroner Keith Davis is out of the office this week and wasn't available Thursday for comment. Assistant Deputy Coroner Mike

How to Help

Fundraiser: A fundraiser for Austin Rasmussen's family is scheduled for 5-8 p.m. today at the Lincoln County Community Center in Shoshone.

The event, sponsored by the Shoshone Fire Department, will include a chili feed, raffle and auction. There will be a suggested donation of $5 per person.

Donations: The Shoshone Fire Department is accepting cash donations for the family at 110 West A St., Shoshone. Donations are also being accepted at Shoshone's Wells Fargo branch.

Funeral service: A funeral service, which will be open to the public, will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Dietrich. A visitation at the church begins at noon. Burial will follow the funeral service at the Shoshone Cemetery in Shoshone.

Former Inmates Sue Twin Falls Jail

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Three former inmates of the Twin Falls County Jail have sued the facility, Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom

Carter, Jail Administrator Douglas Hughes and several jail deputies for what they say was sexual harassment, assault and battery arising out of a group strip search.

According to the lawsuit, filed March 26 in U.S. District Court in Idaho, Frank Lee Gorrell, Timothy Eugene Harvell and Jonathan Guidi were among 11 men housed in the 100 block of the jail in January 2011.

At about 2 p.m. on Jan. 11, according to the suit, the men were instructed to go into the recreation room while their cell was searched. Each man was patted down before being escorted to the recreation room, according to the suit. After an hour, jail deputies announced a group strip search.

"All 11 men were crammed into a corner and forced to strip naked and line up in such a small space that they were touching," the three wrote in their complaint. When they were told to turn around, squat and spread their buttocks, the men wrote they were so close that their buttocks or faces would be directly in front of another man's genitals.

When the men complained about the conditions of the strip search, Deputy Virgil Adams allegedly told them "you don't have any rights because you are in my jail," according to the suit.

After the search, the men claim they were taken back to the 100 block, lined up against a wall and searched again. In the suit, they say they were aggressively grabbed in the area of their genitals. The men were then told the cell block was going into lockdown, according to the suit.

The suit claims the defendants "used excessive force on Plaintiffs, sexually harassed them and displayed deliberate indifference to their condition, in violation of their rights to be free from cruel and unusual punishment under the Eighth and 14th amendments to the United States Constitution."

The men demand a jury trial and request compensatory damages for pain and suffering, mental anguish and humiliation.

Carter and jail staff declined to comment Wednesday on the allegations, saying they had not officially been served with the lawsuit.

REACTIONS MIXED TO CITY GRANT PROCESS

Councilman: More publicity may have led to 'false hope' for some applicants.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • In any other year, Jonie Benson wouldn't have even known she had lost.

As administrator for the Mustard Tree Wellness Clinic in Twin Falls, Benson helps spot possible funding opportunities. So when she found out she could apply for a relatively unknown grant from the city, she immediately sent out an application.

But her clinic wasn't chosen — not a surprise to at least one city official familiar with the grant's history.

On Monday, Twin Falls City Council members selected seven recipients to divide up $100,000 in city grant funding that, until this year, typically received little attention. The Municipal Outsource Powers Grant is designed to fund organizations that provide services the city could, but doesn't.

In years past, the city awarded various

CSI Tuition to Hold Steady for Most Students

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • There's good news for about 97 percent of students at the College of Southern Idaho: No tuition increase next year.

But for an estimated 3 percent — those who take 16 credits or more per semester — tuition will increase by about 8.33 percent.

During a Wednesday meeting, college trustees voted 4-1 to approve next year's tuition rates. The board was in agreement with a proposal unanimously backed by CSI's Student Senate.

There are more than 9,000 students taking CSI classes this semester. The majority are part-time students.

Students from Twin Falls and Jerome counties currently pay $110 per credit, and that won't change next year.

Full-time students taking between 12 and 16 credits currently pay $1,320 per semester.

Next year, the full-time credit window will shrink to between 12-15 credits. Those who stay in that range will pay the same amount as this year.

Vice President of Administration Mike Mason said it's a step in the right direction. He said over the next four or five years, the college will probably move to a purely per-credit fee system.

Angel Hernandez, vice president of CSI's Student Senate, said student leaders wanted to take it in small steps so the change is less drastic.

"Maybe it would be a good way to start," he said.

Trustee Karl Kleinkopf voted against next year's tuition plan.

He said CSI might be viewed as greedy by raising tuition for some

Few Answers in Heyburn Garbage Vote

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

HEYBURN • Heyburn city officials who voted to approve a controversial city garbage contract during a March 29 emergency meeting are saying little about why they did so less than 24 hours after declining to make the same decision at a well-attended City Council meeting.

The Heyburn City Council heard plenty of opposition March 28 to its decision to award the city's garbage service contract to PSI Environmental Systems, and ultimately decided against finalizing the contract that day.

But citing an exemption in Idaho Open Meeting Law that allows cities facing an immediate financial loss to hold emergency meetings, the city held the March 29 meeting to award PSI the contract without first posting a notice and agenda for 24 hours, as otherwise mandated by state law.

Opposition to the contract stems from PSI's bid coming in 21 percent higher than the least costly option, and its designation of PSI as the city's official commercial garbage contractor when some business owners said they preferred their current provider.

On Monday, Councilman Rocky Baker, who voted against the contract's approval, said he initially understood that the meeting to finalize the contract would be held today before it was scheduled as an emergency.

"I firmly believe this contract is not in the best interest of the city," he said.

On March 29, Councilwomen Cleo Gallegos and Joanne Justesen voted in favor of the contract, with Baker opposing it. Councilwoman Leann Smith was not present at either meeting.

The Times-News' attempts to reach Gallegos, Justesen, Smith and City Administrator Greg Richins were not returned Monday.

Heyburn's attorney, Steve Tuft, offered little comment about why the emergency meeting was called after the council declined to make the contract decision March 28. He said his comments were limited due to a threat that the city could be sued over the issue.

Tuft said the city originally asked to hold the meeting on Friday to satisfy the 24-hour notice requirement, but didn't due to his unavailability that day. When asked whether the city appropriately used the emergency meeting clause, Tuft said the city would have suffered immediate financial loss if the contract had not been put in place.

"They would have had a loss if they didn't have a garbage contract in place today," Tuft said. "I think it's legitimate, personally."

The two lowest bidders Western Waste Services and Total Waste Management offered proposals that would have cost residents $4.46 and $4.50 per month, respectively. PSI's bid will cost residents $5.65 per month.

"I've wondered why they (council members who voted in favor of the contract) were so adamantly in favor of it," Baker said. "I just didn't feel there was a compelling enough reason to vote against the lowest bidders."

Baker said he also disagrees with the clause designating the city's first official commercial contractor.

"We didn't have a system that was broke, so why designate a hauler when there is a local garbage hauler that employs local citizens?" he asked.

Burley Company Part of Otter's China Trade Mission

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • A Burley farm equipment manufacturer working to expand its global reach received a Wednesday visit from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Otter and Idaho Department of Commerce officials will lead representatives from Pickett Equipment and 15 other Idaho companies on an April 14-21 trade mission to China.

"These companies will get an audience with government officials in China that it could take years on their own to get," said Commerce Director Jeff Sayer. "It's a global world and we have to embrace it."

The department sponsors two annual trade missions, taking small groups of company officials overseas to help smooth out trade barriers.

"We went to Mexico about six months ago," said Jonathan Price, Pickett Equipment international sales manager. "We found the trip to be very beneficial. For the cost, we couldn't do that well on our own."

Pickett Equipment was established in the mid-1970s and manufactures several lines of equipment, including its flagship machine that cuts, picks up and windrows dry edible beans, all in one step.

The company currently has one dealer in China and is working to expand into other countries.

Sayer said this trip will include visits to Shanghai, Chengdu and Beijing.

Pickett Equipment CEO Neil Harper said the company hopes to learn more about the soil, the road conditions and where Chinese producers ship to during their visit.

Brown Honored in Colorado, Idaho

TIMES-NEWS

Brown

TWIN FALLS • Sgt. Daniel Brown, 27, of Jerome, was honored Wednesday with a memorial at Fort Carson, Colo. According to the Associated Press, the memorial took place at a chapel on the infantry post outside Colorado Springs.

Brown was assigned to the U.S. Army's 2nd Brigade Combat Team, part of Fort Carson's 4th Infantry Division, when he was killed March 24 while serving in Afghanistan.

His body will arrive Friday in Twin Falls for a private ceremony ahead of Saturday's public funeral. The service is scheduled for 4 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho's gymnasium. It will be followed by burial with full military rites at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Donations may be made to the Dan Brown Memorial Fund at any Wells Fargo bank branch. Proceeds will benefit Brown's twin daughters. Memories of Brown may be shared at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

Flags to Fly at Half Staff

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has ordered flags at all Idaho state-owned facilities to fly at half staff Friday and Saturday to honor Army Sgt. Daniel Brown and Air Force Capt. Frances Imlay, who was killed in an accident while deployed in southwest Asia.

The city of Twin Falls will also fly flags at half staff today, and encourages businesses and residents to do the same.

Downed Line Briefly Cut Power in Twin Falls

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A downed power line briefly cut electricity to 1,454 Idaho Power Co. customers Wednesday morning in downtown Twin Falls.

Idaho Power spokesman Brad Bowlin said a mechanical issue with the line caused power to be cut off shortly after 10 a.m. Power was restored to 852 customers in the southeast portion of downtown by 10:35 a.m., while power was fully restored by 11:43 a.m.

Twin Falls police blocked off an area at the intersection of Fourth Avenue East and Jerome Street while an Idaho Power crew worked to shut off and then repair the downed line.

students since the college was treated well in terms of state funding for next year.

The college will receive a 12.7 percent increase in state appropriations for fiscal 2013. Mason said that's one of the largest percentage increases he's seen.

President Jerry Beck said the college still has needs to address, from health insurance costs to infrastructure needs. Mason said it's important to plan for years down the road.

CSI's tuition rates, Beck said, are lower than Idaho's other community colleges. Also, he said the college has "very few class fees" and free parking.

"Those fees are substantial at some institutions," he said.

amounts of funding to the same six nonprofits, and officials didn't alert other organizations to the possibility to apply for the grant.

But in February, Councilman Jim Munn requested that the city make more of an effort to advertise the grant. Shortly after, the council agreed to listen to brief presentations from each organization before making a final decision on the grant allotments.

Fifteen nonprofits presented their case in front of the council Monday, but only one group was selected that hadn't been chosen in the past — the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center.

"I was pretty surprised," Benson said. "I thought we had a fair shot."

Councilman Lance Clow, however, said he wasn't that shocked by the results.

Clow explained that due to their close ties to the city's mission, the six traditional grant recipients have been involved in some way or another in the city's budget for years.

"Personally, I think that the process might have been transparent, but it might have also created a false hope for a lot of organizations," he said. "My concern was that nonprofits can always find things that they want or find reasons how their grants were reduced."

And while the council could have decided to give a smaller portion of the grant to each organization, Clow said that's an impractical approach to take.

"That's the cowardly way out," he said. "At some point you're going to have to realize you can't just make everybody happy."

The senior center, too, has strong past ties to the city — its current building was purchased by Twin Falls taxpayers and is leased from the city for $1 a month.

Its addition Monday meant that both it and some other recipients received less than their requests.

Of all the grant recipients, the council slashed the center's requested amount the most, by 55 percent.

"We're really excited," said Jeanette Roe, the center's site manager. "The city realizes we have a need and we had a strong case. We will definitely apply again in the future."

Despite the council's decision on this year's recipients, many nonprofits who weren't selected to receive funding remain hopeful for next year.

Kathryn Bausman, executive director at Jubilee House, said she still plans to apply again.

"I don't think this year's winner was coincidental," she said. "Hopefully in the years to come, they will be more open to other organizations."

Rasmussen

Bright didn't return a phone call Wednesday, but told the Idaho Mountain Express that Austin was home alone in his bedroom when he died after choking himself.

At the 260-student Dietrich School, Hollingshead said grief counseling has been available to students this week.

There was also a presentation about the game for the school's students in grades 2-12. Information was given to parents of kindergarten and first-graders.

"We have cautioned them about how dangerous the game is and not to play it," Hollingshead said.

Not the First Time

This isn't the first time the topic has come up in the Magic Valley. In May 2011, 12-year-old Twin Falls resident Skyler Smith died after playing the choking game.

His father, Joel Smith, wants to raise awareness about the topic through schools. His goal is to start with the Twin Falls School District and possibly expand to others.

Smith said he feels a sense of guilt about Rasmussen's death since he hasn't been to the schools yet.

"I feel that, personally, I might have been able to save the boy's life through working with schools," he said Wednesday.

Smith has talked with Twin Falls School District administrators over the past year about possibly making presentations to parents and faculty members.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said he discussed some ideas with Smith, but no plans were finalized. Smith said he'd need liability insurance in order to make presentations at schools.

"They've created all these loopholes for me to do this," he said. "I think that's completely unfair."

The choking game is "spreading like wildfire," Smith said, but some schools want to sweep the topic under the rug.

Dobbs said the topic has been taken seriously and was brought up last year among school principals, the district's safety committee and parent teacher organizations.

"Our general consensus was that this would not be a good topic to present to student groups," he said, because it might not be effective. Plus, he said parents need to be involved.

Dobbs said his understanding is that Smith would work with a nationally affiliated group to make a presentation about the choking game.

Whenever a presenter wants to come in, Dobbs said the school district has to "make sure those things are legitimate" and that the presentation would be helpful.

"We're available to have those conversations," he said.

Woman Accused of Drunken Attack

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Police have accused a Kimberly woman of battery on an officer after she allegedly kicked an Idaho State Police corporal in the groin during a traffic stop.

Kelli Jean Crane, 41, was charged Friday with driving under the influence, resisting or obstructing officers, driving with an open container of alcohol, reckless driving and battery on an officer, all stemming from the Friday traffic stop. Idaho State Police responded to a 5 p.m. call of an injury crash involving a white Dodge Avenger on U.S. Highway 93 near Hollister. Emergency responders also received several reports of a suspected drunken driver piloting a vehicle of the same description.

The ISP corporal approached the area and saw a white, 2012 Dodge Avenger passing other vehicles and crossing the double yellow line, eventually driving directly toward the officer's patrol car. When a traffic stop was made, the woman, later identified as Crane, began to move throughout the car as it began to roll forward because it wasn't in park.

In court records, the corporal said he yelled at Crane to put her hands on the steering wheel, but she continued to move around in the car.

"I drew my handgun and demanded multiple times for her to put her hands on her steering wheel before she did," he wrote.

After Crane allegedly continued to be uncooperative, the corporal said he handcuffed her and held her on the hood of the car to wait for back-up when it appeared that she was trying to return to the vehicle.

A Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy arrived and the two carried the woman to the patrol car. The ISP corporal said Crane tried to get out of her handcuffs, so he put her in leg restraints. As the corporal had Crane sit down again, he said she kicked both her feet into his groin area.

After Crane was contained, the corporal said he found a cold Coors Light bottle in the center console that was about a quarter full. Crane was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center for a blood draw and had to be restrained during the procedure, police say.

A preliminary hearing for the battery charge is scheduled for April 13. A pretrial hearing for the DUI, resisting, open container and reckless driving charges is scheduled for May 15.

Murtaugh Man Arrested For Attempted Strangulation

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 53-year-old Murtaugh man has been arrested for domestic battery and attempted strangulation.

At about 10:15 a.m. Saturday, Twin Falls police were dispatched to a downtown Twin Falls parking lot for a call about a domestic battery. The officer found a distraught woman who said Ramon Ruiz Carrasco tried to choke her following a discussion about their child custody agreement at another location.

The woman said the discussion was fine, but Carrasco followed her as she drove away.

The woman told police that when she stopped at the intersection of Fourth Avenue South and Idaho Street South, Carrasco left his car and began walking toward hers. The woman said she was unable to lock the door in time and Carrasco pulled it open, grabbed the woman's throat and began squeezing.

Court records state the woman tried to pull Carrasco's hand away, but couldn't and began to feel light-headed. Carrasco allegedly told her, "I see you got my message Sunday, don't ever do that again, next time I'll kill you."

Police say the alleged victim's injuries are consistent with her story. Paramedics were called and the woman was examined and released.

In an interview with police, Carrasco said he began traveling in the same direction as the woman but did not approach her and couldn't explain her injuries, officers said.

Carrasco was charged with attempted strangulation, domestic battery and violation of a no-contact order. He was arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on the charges.

A pretrial hearing for the battery charge and no-contact order violation is scheduled for May 15. A preliminary hearing for the attempted strangulation is scheduled for April 13.

KIMBERLY MAN ACCUSED OF SPITTING ON, KICKING OFFICERS

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Kimberly man has been charged with battery on police officers for allegedly spitting on and kicking two officers.

Just after midnight Saturday morning, a woman called police for a noise disturbance on the 1900 block of Eldridge Avenue in Twin Falls. She said her neighbors across the street were being loud after she had told them to be quiet.

An officer arrived on the scene to find several people sitting in a sport utility vehicle with the light inside turning on and off. The officer realized the people in the car were restraining a man, later identified as Robert Lee Mack.

Four or five people exited the car including Mack, whom police say challenged them to fight. Officers said Mack had glassy eyes and smelled of alcohol. According to court documents, everyone on the scene was uncooperative and argumentative with police, but officers were able to convince them to take Mack inside the house to try to end the disturbance.

Officers were called back about a half-hour later when the original caller said her neighbors were even louder than before.

This time, Twin Falls police returned with extra officers and arrived to find a man holding Mack down on the ground. The man helped officers restrain Mack while he was handcuffed. As an officer took Mack to the patrol car, he allegedly spit in the officer's face. Mack was then taken to the ground by other officers and placed in leg restraints.

The officer said he disinfected his face and was later treated at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center for exposure to bodily fluids.

Another officer said Mack kicked him in the leg during the incident. Mud on the officer's leg matched what he described.

Police say Mack was injured when he was taken to the ground and received several stitches on the bridge of his nose at St. Luke's. Police say Mack admitted to using synthetic marijuana that night and officers located a green leafy substance that appeared to be the drug.

Mack was arrested for two counts of battery on an officer and a count of disturbing the peace. A preliminary hearing for the battery counts is scheduled for April 13, and a pretrial for the disturbance charge is scheduled for May 15.

THEIR VIEW

Arizona's Immigration Law Should Be Overturned

The following editorial appeared in the Seattle Times on Monday, April 2:

The U.S. Supreme Court should strike down four troubling provisions of Arizona's anti-illegal-immigration law. They conflict with federal laws and ought not become models for states grappling with illegal immigration.

The federal government has exclusive authority over immigration enforcement. One can debate the efficacy of federal efforts but Arizona's 2010 immigration law was a wrongheaded attempt to supersede federal law.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals blocked key provisions of the law, including requiring law enforcement to question people about their immigration status, ask for documentation and detain those without it. Arguments that this could lead to racial profiling are persuasive. The immigration status of people arrested would also have to be determined before they could be released.

The appeals court blocked other odious provisions, including making it a state crime for illegal immigrants to try to find work and allowing police to make arrests without warrants if they have probable cause to suspect individuals committed crimes that could make them deportable under federal law.

Placing the burden of immigration enforcement on local police is impractical and expensive. Hard-won relationships between law enforcement and immigrant communities would be damaged if Arizona's law becomes a model for other states.

The United States Conference of Mayors and the National League of Cities filed amicus briefs siding with the federal government. Seattle City Attorney Pete Holmes and attorneys representing 40 other jurisdictions also rightly weighed in on Arizona v. United States.

The Supreme Court should reject Arizona's law.

Placing the burden of immigration enforcement on local police is impractical and expensive.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Harris Needs More Time as a Republican

I am the Jerome County Republican Committee chairman and am writing this letter as a Jerome County taxpayer. This opinion is not from the whole committee.

Sam Harris is a friend of mine, and I am gratified to see he has become a Republican. Sam ran in past Jerome County races as a Democrat and lost. About six months ago, he came to his first Republican meeting ever and announced he was now joining the party. I think Sam should give it more time being a Republican and a conservative before we elect him to the most important post in the county.

We need to change the attitude that seems to be pervasive in the county. Is it OK to spend taxpayer money for any project that comes along? Jerome County needs a new jail, but I think we could do just fine with a jail constructed behind the annex, which would be much cheaper than the proposals I have heard about and also handy for the court.

Jerome County is already taxed at one of the highest rates in the state. In his letter to the editor Thursday, Sam claims he wants to be a compromiser with the other commissioners. What I want is a commissioner who makes his or her own decisions about what is right and wrong. We already have Cathy Roemer, who demonstrates those qualities. She is the incumbent, does her homework, is conservative and votes that way.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who took the time to come out for the Republican caucus in Jerome. It was great to see all of you help Idaho become a factor in choosing our next president.

Don't Miss Chance to Join Art Festival

This is the big week for the Art and Soul of the Magic Valley Festival and Art Contest. The festival doesn't start until April 27, but if you want to enter your art or be listed in the program as a sponsor or supporter, you need to act this week before the program goes to the printer.

You don't want to be one of the businesses without art on display and miss out on the increase in traffic through your doors through May 5 or miss the chance to win the "Best Venue" prize of $500.

You don't want to be a local artist without art on display and miss a chance to win one of 15 prizes ranging from $1,000 to $10,000.

You don't want to be a local community supporter of the arts who hasn't made a donation to the festival and contest and miss out on having your contribution prominently acknowledged throughout the festival, on the program and be eligible for drawings for several highly valuable art pieces, including a custom portrait or a bronze sculpture.

Donations are tax deductible for individuals or as business expenses. Do yourself and your community a big favor. Run, don't walk, to the Art and Soul of Office next to Subway in the Lynwood Mall today to become part of the largest art event of its kind in the Pacific Northwest. You'll be glad you did. And it will be great fun. The Office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.. For more details, call Art Hoag at 421-1311.

Memories of Sgt. Brown

Several articles have appeared in the Times-News about the life of Sgt. Brown. We would like to add a grandparents' perspective about his life.

First of all, public heartfelt sympathies to Daniel's wife, Jordan; twin daughters, Mattie and Marlee; his mother, Becky; and his father, Jerry; for their ultimate sacrifice for our freedom.

From an early age, Daniel made the most of his world. He was 7 when his grandparents took a trip to California and Oregon to see relatives in an eight-foot pickup camper for two weeks. In Santa Rosa, Calif., he taught his 3-year-old cousin how to ride her new bike.

Daniel was truly a "happy camper" as we enjoyed many camping trips with the Brown family over the years. During his growing up years, he began developing team activities and athletic abilities. He played Little League baseball with a group of Jerome boys as teammates. We would attend most games and see Daniel play all positions, pitcher, outfield and first base, and he was a good left-handed hitter. He was a team leader/player, always encouraging his teammates.

When Daniel was 12, Jerry and I took him to Pomerelle to learn to ski. He crashed a few times on the Milk Run, but by the end of the day was hooked. During high school and Army career, he became a "hot snowboarder." So it was only natural that he would develop snowboarding as his favorite sport while stationed in Colorado.

In a recent picture during the holidays, we saw Daniel cooking a meal over an open fire on a barren hilltop in Afghanistan. He was still a "Happy Camper."

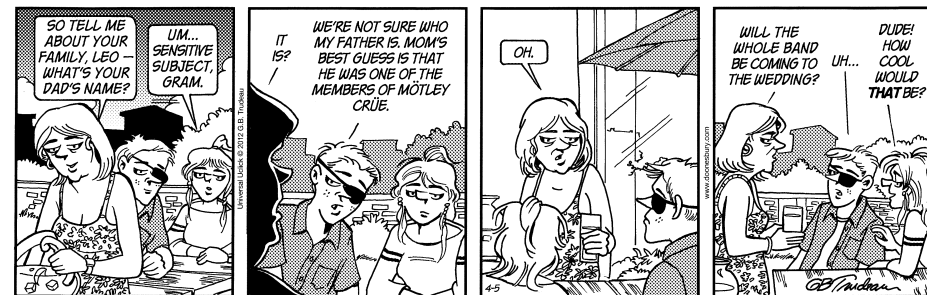

He was a fine, caring companion to his brother, Matt. Daniel lived life to the fullest with a smile and a simple giggle. He would never forget to say thanks and "I love you guys." He gave his life for what he believed, in order for us to have freedom. It's sad, but freedom comes with a price — it is not free.

This being the Easter season reminds us that God paid the price to set us free.

Environmentalists Press for Review of Wolf's Death

Groups say photo of trapped wolf posted on Internet suggests animal was tortured.

LEWISTON (AP) • Two environmental groups are calling on state and federal officials to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of a wolf that was trapped and killed in northern Idaho last month by a U.S. Forest Service employee.

Representatives from the Idaho-based Friends of the Clearwater and the Center for Biological Diversity, based in Portland, Ore., contend a photograph of the trapped wolf circulating on the Internet suggest the animal was tortured before it was killed.

The wolf was trapped by Josh Bransford, an employee of the Nez Perce National Forest. A photograph showing Bransford posing in front of the trapped and wounded but still living wolf have circulated on the Internet in recent weeks, drawing criticism from trapping foes who claim the wolf should have been killed before the picture was taken.

The picture was reportedly posted to a trapping website, trapperman.com, then copied and circulated by Footloose Montana, a Missoula-based group opposed to wolf trapping. A description of the photograph on the trapping website suggests the wolf was shot by someone other than Bransford. The photo shows Bransford in the foreground smiling, with the snared wolf in the background in an area of snow stained with blood.

Brett Haverstick, education director for Friends of the Clearwater, said it's illegal for people to interfere with a trapped animal. The groups have asked the Idaho Attorney General, the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and the Forest Service to investigate whether animal cruelty or hunting laws were violated.

"This entire incident needs to be investigated as the circumstances surrounding it are incredibly disturbing," Haverstick told the Lewiston Tribune in a story published Wednesday. "We expect the agency to do the right thing."

Dave Cadwallader, supervisor of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game's Clearwater Region, said the wolf was legally trapped by Bransford and subsequently checked by department officials as required by law.

"There is no indication of any violations," he said.

The Lewiston office of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game has received a slew of emails and phone calls about the picture, according to Cadwallader.

Elayne Murphy, a spokeswoman for the Nez Perce-Clearwater National Forest, said the forest and the chief's office in the agency's Washington, D.C., headquarters also received calls and messages. Bransford did not respond to a request for an interview made by the Tribune through Murphy. She did say he was not dissuaded by the agency from talking about the incident.

Cadwallader said conservation officers looked into allegations that the animal had been shot by others but found no evidence that would lead to a citation. He said officers were not able to identify who shot the wolf prior to it being dispatched but believe it was likely done by somebody who did not know the wolf was tethered to a trap.

"It seems apparent somebody else shot at it," he said. "In light of the fact that wolf (hunting) season was open and a lot of folks have wolf tags and saw this wolf out in the open, saw this thing and thought it was an opportunity to shoot a wolf."

He did say when the picture was taken versus when the wolf was dispatched could have been handled differently.

"We don't agree with some of the actions he took. Everything he did was legal, he just needs to be sensitive to how some folks react to certain things," he said. "Trapping is a very valid and viable wildlife management tool. I would suggest you don't take that kind of picture and don't share it on the World Wide Web. I probably would have dispatched the wolf first."

Trappers are required to attend a daylong workshop on wolf trapping before they are allowed to purchase wolf tags. Cadwallader said much of the class is devoted to ethics and the perception some members of the public have toward trapping.

"Maybe we need to do a better job," he said "We certainly include it as part of the curriculum. You can never talk too much about that sort of thing."

Home Video Captures Fatal End to North Idaho Police Chase

Sheriff's officials say homeowner's assertions are untrue and his video shows too little of the melee to draw conclusions.

BY MEGHAN M. CUNIFF
Spokesman-Review

SPOKANE, Wash. • A homeowner says his surveillance video brings into question the official account of why law enforcement shot and killed a North Idaho fugitive three weeks ago, though police warn against drawing too many conclusions from the footage because it captures just a portion of the chaotic 20-minute chase and final encounter.

Video from a home in the Hayden cul-de-sac where Justin Earl Nicholas Todd, 33, was cornered by police shows a Post Falls officer apparently firing at Todd as the fleeing felon tried to drive past the officer. The officer nearly slipped on the icy road before steadying himself and firing several more shots.

Homeowner Troy Evans suggested the video proves Kootenai County sheriff's officials lied when they said Todd struck Idaho State Police Cpl. Michael Thomas Keys with his car before Keys and Post Falls police Officers Aaron Ogle and Bradley Johnson shot Todd, killing him.

"They need to justify the shooting in my cul-de-sac," said Evans, who has posted a copy of the video to YouTube and authored a guest column critical of the shooting that was published in the Coeur d'Alene Press. "He doesn't hit anybody," Evans says of Todd.

Sheriff's officials, however, say Evans' assertions are untrue, adding that the home surveillance video shows too little of the melee to draw such sweeping conclusions. Footage from police car dash cameras show the full story and verify the official account, said Lt. Stu Miller, of the Kootenai County Sheriff's Department.

"The video that he has is not very good," Miller said. "It's unfortunate that he's basing everything he has on it."

Miller declined to comment on details of the investigation but said the officers involved have spoken to investigators, and prosecutors will review the case to decide if charges are warranted. Video footage from the police cars, as well as the officers' full interviews with investigators, will be made publicly available at that time, he said.

Evans' footage was captured by one of eight surveillance videos at his home on West St. Estephe Court, where he and his wife have lived since 1991.

The video, which Evans provided to The Spokesman-Review and is available online, shows a car driven by Todd skid into view, then back up suddenly after police cruisers begin pulling up behind him. Officers get out of their cars, and one appears to fire two shots at Todd's car before nearly falling, then fires about six more shots as Todd drives in reverse while trying to turn his car around.

"Justin Todd braked and tried to go around that guy," Evans said.

Keys, the Idaho State Police corporal, is not visible in the home security video until after Todd is shot.

The home video shows Todd's car stop and his body slump to the ground after police open his car door.

Evans said he was sleeping when the incident began but watched the aftermath with binoculars. He estimates the shooting happened about 80 feet from his home. Officers performed chest compressions on Todd for several minutes until medics arrived, but he was already dead.

"They sat there and cooked up this story about how this state trooper was struck by the car," Evans said.

He questioned why police didn't have a better plan in place for apprehending Todd, who has a history of eluding police.

"They just parked and ran around with their guns," Evans said. "This guy's a professional eluder - what do you expect him to do, just stop and say, 'You got me?'"

"They do absolutely nothing but kill him," he said.

Miller, of the Sheriff's Department, criticized Evans for lambasting police over a "tragedy" based only on the video and said were he involved, he would consider a possible defamation claim against Evans.

"If it were me and it were just me, I'd be hard-pressed not to look at that once it's all documented and out there," he said.

A week before he was killed, Todd, of Coeur d'Alene, was named the North Idaho Violent Crimes Task Force's "fugitive of the week" for a felony warrant charging him with eluding police and being a habitual offender.

An Idaho State Police trooper tried to stop Todd's car March 12 about 2:20 a.m. after the car triggered an alert system on Interstate 90 that detects stolen vehicles and fugitives.

Keys, Ogle and Johnson joined in the chase, which lasted about 20 minutes before ending in front of Evans' home.

Investigators said Todd's car had recently been painted from blue to white.

They found six cans of black spray paint in the car that indicated Todd, a longtime felon, may have planned to paint it again. They also found a wig, a brass knuckles/stun gun combination weapon, a knife, three cellphones, drug paraphernalia and a police scanner.

A female passenger in the car was not injured.

STATE BRIEFS

County Drops Charge in Theater Website Attack

BOISE • Prosecutors won't pursue a felony computer tampering charge against a 21-year-old Boise man accused of crashing the Egyptian Theatre's website.

The charge against Cole A. Butler was dropped Tuesday. The Idaho Statesman reports Ada County prosecutors weren't available Wednesday to explain why they didn't continue with the case.

Police say Butler deleted the theater's website last May and replaced it with a page that said a specific manager "sucks" and "You should have given me credit." Investigators say it appears Butler was upset because he felt a supervisor used his ideas for the website after he was fired.

Police were able to trace the IP address of the computer where the changes were made to a residence where Butler had lived.

Man Pleads Guilty in Idaho Falls Shooting Death

IDAHO FALLS • A 23-year-old southwestern Idaho man has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the shooting death of another man in Idaho Falls last year.

Geoffery Elawadly of Shelley entered his plea

Wednesday in the death of 24-year-old Anthony "A.J." Camp in March 2011.

Elawadly was charged after Camp was shot in the back while he was driving away from an argument at a motel parking lot.

Under a plea agreement, prosecutors agreed to drop two counts of aggravated assault and a deadly weapon enhancement. The state will seek no more than 10 years determinate prison time, but Judge Jon Schindurling said both sides may argue over the length of indeterminate time during Elawadly's sentencing hearing on May 17.

Latah County Partly Recoups Missing Funds

MOSCOW • Latah County has been partially reimbursed for revenues that went missing over a five-year period and resulted in the firing of a veteran employee.

Former County Sheriff's Office employee Rhonda Bunney is under investigation for the suspected embezzlement of more than $36,000 from local government coffers. She has not been charged in the case, and prosecutors are currently reviewing the results of a state police investigation.

The Moscow-Pullman Daily News reported Tuesday that county officials had received a reimbursement of $33,600 from their insurer, the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program. That amount covers three years' worth of missing funds.

Bunney was fired March 1. If she is charged and convicted in the case, she'd have to pay the remaining missing funds.

At 5 Months, Occupy Boise Faces Challenge

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • The Occupy Boise protest reaches the five-month mark today, but with participation waning and a fresh offensive from Idaho officials to remove the group, protesters may be lacking cause to celebrate the occasion.

At its peak late last year, a few dozen tents surrounded the depression-era Ada County Courthouse with a membership to match, drawing the ire of lawmakers and state officials who tried throughout the 2012 legislative session to oust the Occupiers.

The tents have dwindled to about 15, and only a handful of participants watch over the vigil at any given time.

Mike Dooley, an avowed Occupy activist since December, lamented the group's diminished involvement. "It's sad. I thought we really had something here," said Dooley, 22, a lifelong Boise resident. "Everyone you see left are the people who actually care about what we're doing here."

Idaho officials are taking another legal jab at the group, asking a federal judge for permission to temporarily remove the Occupy encampment so they can do basic repairs and upkeep to the property. A hearing date has not yet been set on the state's latest motion.

It follows a ruling in February by U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill, who issued a temporarily halt the state's first attempt to boot the protesters — a law banning camping on state-managed land.

A separate bill passed at the end of the session gave the Department of Administration power to make rules regulating the use of grounds, but that law has limited thrust with the restraining order in effect.

In his ruling, Winmill decided Occupy's tents are a symbol of their protest of income inequality and qualify as protected free speech. But he ordered sleeping, cooking and camping-related activities to cease. Winmill will hear arguments on that portion of the case in June.

Now the attorney general's office is asking Winmill to modify his injunction, saying the state needs unfettered access to the land so it can fix damage caused by the protest and also to perform seasonal maintenance, including weekly mowing.

Deputy Attorney General Carl Withroe wrote in the motion that the group's vigil "prevents the state from adequately maintaining the property."

Flight Cuts Hit Boise in Bid for Turnaround

Faced with the double hit of the recession and high fuel prices, airlines have had no choice but to offer fewer flights and fly fuller planes. Midsize airports such as Boise's have been especially hard hit.

BY MOLLY MESSICK
StateImpact Idaho

BOISE • Boise resident C.K. Haun has this routine down. He may live in Idaho, but he's a senior engineer at Apple. Long before the sun is up, he arrives at the Boise Airport to catch his regular flight to San Jose, Calif.

"I can do this by autopilot now," he says. "Most of the TSA people know me, and we smile and say hi. Every Monday morning, week in week out."

Haun has been making this commute for seven years. Not long ago, he saw a surprising change. His return flight — the one that came back after the workday — vanished. The only option left was a flight leaving San Jose in the late morning.

Haun says that's bad for him, and bad for Boise. He points to the software developers and hardware manufacturers that call Boise home. Haun predicts they'll have a harder time without that one-day, back-and-forth trip.

"It's the whole valley that really is going to suffer if we don't have great movement between the technology hub of the Silicon Valley and the burgeoning technology industries we have up here," Haun says. "Modern transportation is critical for the economic success of the Treasure Valley."

It's no secret that airlines are cutting back. Faced with the double hit of the recession and high fuel prices, they've had no choice but to offer fewer flights and fly fuller planes.

Midsize airports such as Boise's have been especially hard hit. Frontier Airlines recently announced it won't resume service between Boise and Denver this spring. Early this year, Southwest discontinued its flights from Boise to Seattle, Salt Lake and Reno. An American Airlines affiliate has canceled its service from Boise to Los Angeles. The net effect is that there will be 20 percent fewer seats leaving Boise this summer than last.

When he learned of the flight shift, Haun summed up his concerns in a letter. A copy of it landed on the desk of Bill Connors, president and CEO of the Boise Metro Chamber of Commerce, who talked it over with airport officials. "All of us agree: That's a strategic route for us," Connors says.

Connors already had been thinking about Boise's air service. He says the city is lucky to be just a short trip from major hubs such as Salt Lake City and Denver.

But that doesn't mean Boise can afford to lose flights. After all, it's one of the most remote cities in the country. Connors says that means Boise must be proactive. "These are market forces at work," he says, "and if those planes aren't full, the airlines are going to make some decisions based on the marketplace. So, now it becomes important to us to see, 'Are there some incentives to keep particular routes alive?'"

This isn't just about the San Jose flight. It's about making sure Boise is as well-connected as it can be. Connors says ensuring that could mean asking hard questions of Boise's business community.

For example, he says, "How much travel do you do between those two cities, and can you pledge that you're going to buy x number of tickets?" And maybe even go a step further and say, "Hey, would you kick in a little something for a marketing fund to try to attract these folks?" You know, put a little skin in the game."

Passengers Down 15 Percent

If they do try to retain or attract particular flights, Boise business leaders will be pushing back against big trends. In 2007, the Boise Airport tallied more than 3.3 million passengers. Last year, the number was 2.8 million.

It's those kinds of declines that have airlines scrambling to contain costs. Midsize airports are scrambling, too.

"It's not just Boise Airport that's out there trying to grow again," says Bryant Francis, deputy director of the Boise Airport. "It's all the other airports as well."

It's Francis' job to make Boise's case to the airlines. Lately, the job has become increasingly competitive.

"In years past, there were airports that just really weren't in the game," he says. "They weren't out there marketing themselves to the carriers. They weren't doing a lot of advertising within their local community to ensure that those in the community looking to fly thought of their airport first. And that has changed."

A Captive Customer

In other words, there are more airports grasping for a scarce resource: flights. At the same time, as Francis knows well, there's only so much any airport can do to reverse its short-term fortunes. "The airlines aren't here for us," he says. "The airlines are here for themselves and their shareholders. And it's what we, our market, can do for them that is the most important thing."

Aviation consultant Michael Boyd couldn't agree more. "The reality of it is, you can get all the aggressive you want," he says. "There's no airline store, and there's a limited amount of additional air service you can attract."

Boyd says midsize cities such as Boise shouldn't look at the number of flights going in and out. The key issue, he says, is access to the rest of the world. Not convenient access — just access, period. "This is the No. 1 issue," he says. "Can Mr. Jian get here from Beijing? Can Mr. Smith get here from New York City? Boise ain't never going to have a nonstop to New York City. But you probably have, each day, five or six options in terms of when you can leave to get to New York City with one connection."

THE DIGIT

7.4 Percent

Profits for Atlantic City's casinos fell in 2011 • Atlantic City's casinos saw their gross operating profits decline by 7.4 percent last year, to just under $495 million. New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement figures released Wednesday show the 11 casinos operating at the end of last year posted a gross operating profit of $494.9 million. That's down from $534.6 million in 2010. It was the latest discouraging news for Atlantic City, which recently lost its status as the nation's No. 2 casino market to Pennsylvania. Gross operating profit reflects earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and other charges. It is a widely accepted measure of profitability in the casino industry. The city's hotel occupancy rate held steady at just over 82 percent last year.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Suffer Worst Loss in a Month; Dow Off 125

NEW YORK (AP) • European debt flared again as a worry for Wall Street and drove stocks Wednesday to their worst loss in a month. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 125 points, and the price of gold plunged to its lowest level since January. The Dow was down as much as 179 points earlier in the day. It recovered to close down 124.80 at 13,074.75. Only four of the 30 stocks that make up the average rose for the day. In the U.S., the Standard & Poor's 500 index finished down 14.42 at 1,398.96. The technology-heavy Nasdaq composite index fell 45.48 to 3,068.09.

NEW YORK • The price of gold, which has climbed for years like a blood pressure reading for anxious investors, plunged Wednesday to its lowest level in three months.

Gold fell almost $58 to $1,614 per ounce. It has declined 15 percent since September, when it hit a peak of $1,907. It had more than doubled since the financial crisis three years earlier.

Surprisingly, the fall came on an ugly day in the stock market — the Dow Jones industrial average lost 125 points. Last year, a day like Wednesday would have caused fearful investors to buy gold as a protective investment.

"It's difficult to forecast, but I think the gold bull market is over," said Cetin Ciner, a professor of finance at the University of North Carolina-Wilmington. He likened the surge in gold to dot-com stocks before they collapsed.

Some investors buy gold as a hedge against inflation, and minutes from a Federal Reserve meeting that came out Tuesday afternoon suggested that the central bank believes inflation remains under control.

Gold's attraction as an asset of refuge during crises also seems to have diminished. The economy has picked up, and worst-case scenarios in the United States and Europe have faded.

"Fear has been gold's best friend, and so to the extent that fear is dissipating, gold should fall," said Jim Paulsen, chief investment strategist at Wells Capital Management. "We might look back at these Fed minutes as the line in the sand."

Gold has been hit in recent weeks by striking gold sellers in India, the world's largest buyer of physical gold, who are upset over government tariffs. Another bearish sign was a surge Wednesday in the dollar, which tends to rise when gold falls.

Gold fetched only $300 to $400 an ounce during the 1990s but climbed steadily last decade. By late 2008, it was near $900. It took off that fall when prices for stocks and corporate bonds plunged, wiping out years of savings. Even money market funds looked suspect. Investors bid up prices for the safest of assets, like U.S. Treasury bonds. Others turned to gold.

"During our bout with Armageddon, people ran to it for safety," said Abraham Bailin, a commodity analyst at Morningstar. "It might sound silly now, but that's where it started."

Demand for gold also surged as the Federal Reserve bought bonds, starting in the spring of 2009, to push down borrowing costs and stimulate the economy, a move known as quantitative easing.

The Fed's efforts to pump money into the banking system and avert a deep recession led to fears of runaway inflation, a concern shared by both the tea party and big-shot investors.

Buying gold soon became a political statement. For those who didn't trust financial institutions or were wary of the government, it was the investment of choice. The television personality Glenn Beck advised viewers to stock up on gold bars.

"Gold became a symbol of your political leanings," Bailin said. "It became a way to speculate on the solvency of the economy."

Sales-tax Collection Likely in Amazon's Future

BY JIM BRUNNER
The Seattle Times

COLUMBIA, S.C. • When word emerged that Amazon.com Inc. was hunting for new warehouse sites, leaders in this business-friendly Southern state rolled out a welcome mat of tax breaks to lure the Internet retailer.

Code-naming their effort "Project ASAP," South Carolina officials offered up more than $33 million in incentives, including free land, a property-tax cut and payroll-tax credits. They even agreed to loosen the area's Bible Belt moral code, repealing a decades-old Lexington County "blue law" so Amazon's warehouse could stay open Sunday mornings.

As they discovered, that wasn't enough. Amazon also insisted on an exemption from collecting the state's 6 percent sales tax on purchases by South Carolinians.

New Yahoo CEO Sweeps Out 2,000 Employees in Purge

BY MICHAEL LIEDTKE
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Yahoo's overhaul attempt is going to be messy.

In his first three months on the job, CEO Scott Thompson has imposed the largest layoffs in the company's 17-year history, reshaped the board of directors, picked a potentially disruptive fight with a major shareholder and sued Facebook for patent infringement.

He says there's even more upheaval to come.

Amazon

When the state Legislature balked, voting down the sales-tax break last spring, Amazon stopped construction on its million-square-foot warehouse and prepared to leave, throwing thousands of jobs into jeopardy.

The threat worked. After an intense fight that pitted Amazon and local economic-development boosters against small businesses and big retailers like Wal-Mart, lawmakers reversed themselves and handed Amazon a five-year sales-tax reprieve.

The South Carolina episode is one of many confrontations Amazon has faced in its national fight to hang on, for as long as possible, to one of its major advantages over brick-and-mortar retailers.

The world's largest Internet retailer currently collects sales taxes from customers in just five states, including Washington, giving it a price advantage of up to 10 percent in most of the country.

But the days of tax-free Internet shopping appear to be coming to an end, something that Amazon itself has conceded in recent months.

States have lost more than $52 billion during the past six years because of untaxed Internet purchases, according to a University of Tennessee study. Facing massive budget deficits that threaten further cuts to schools and social services, an ever-growing chorus of lawmakers has called for an end to the sales-tax edge long enjoyed by Internet retailers.

The backlash against the tax break — and Amazon's political tactics — has cut across party lines in many states, uniting tea-party Republicans and liberal Democrats alike.

"The perception of the company has changed 180 degrees. It is viewed as the bully in these situations," said Michael Mazerov, senior fellow with the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a critic of Amazon's sales-tax stance.

In Congress, bipartisan legislation to fix the online tax loophole is gaining momentum — and Amazon itself has strongly endorsed the proposals, so long as they also apply to its competitors.

"We have always supported a federal solution," said Paul Misener, Amazon's vice president for global public policy.

Not content to wait, at least 23 states already have enacted or proposed legislation to force Internet sales-tax collections.

For years, Amazon has responded to those state moves with bluster, lawsuits, threats to close warehouses and abrupt cuts of ties to thousands of websites in states that forced the tax issue.

"We have vehemently opposed the unconstitutional solutions that the states have taken," said Misener.

But recently, Amazon has backed down in the face of resolute governors and state legislatures, agreeing to collect sales taxes in several states despite its longstanding protestations that states had no legal right to force the issue.

Taxes were on Jeff Bezos' mind right from the beginning of Amazon.

He once told an interviewer he'd thought about founding his Internet bookseller startup on a California Indian reservation to escape taxes. When that proved impractical, Bezos settled in Seattle, in part because Washington's relatively small population effectively would leave more Amazon sales untaxed.

According to confidential internal documents, Amazon also has tightly restricted employee travel to avoid taxes, instructing workers to beware of working in states where their presence might trigger tax liability.

The company has handed out a color-coded U.S. map to employees, ranking states from "green" for the safest destinations, to "red" for those that pose a "significant risk" requiring special approval to visit.

The company's map and travel policy were first disclosed by The Wall Street Journal in August. The Seattle Times obtained copies of the maps and related documents from court filings in a lawsuit brought against the company by a former Amazon software engineer.

In one internal memo, Amazon talked up the need for vigilance, noting the economic downturn has caused states "to become more aggressive and more focused" on Amazon's tax treatment, a trend "which could expose our business to significant tax costs."

Amazon's efforts to avoid collecting sales taxes are defensible in states where it truly has no physical presence, said David Brunori, professor of public policy at Georgetown University and contributing editor to State Tax Notes magazine. "There is nothing irrational or evil about that," he said.

Once an Internet trendsetter, Yahoo has been outmaneuvered and outsmarted by Google and Facebook in the race for online advertising. Although Yahoo's website remains a popular destination, people have been spending less time there and dwelling longer on Google services and on Facebook.

That shift has made Yahoo less attractive to advertisers, a problem that has been compounded by the company's inability to target marketing messages at the right audience as precisely as Google and Facebook.

After announcing the layoffs Wednesday, Thompson promised to share more details about his plans April 17, when Yahoo Inc. is scheduled to release its quarterly earnings.

"We are intensifying our efforts on our core businesses and redeploying resources to our most urgent priorities," Thompson said Wednesday in a statement. "Our goal is to get back to our core purpose — putting our users and advertisers first. And we are moving aggressively to achieve that goal."

Yahoo

Thompson delivered a painful jolt Wednesday with a payroll purge of about 2,000 workers, or about 14 percent of Yahoo's 14,100 employees. The cuts will save about $375 million annually as Yahoo tries to boost its earnings and long-slumping stock price.

More shakeups loom as Thompson reshuffles divisions and considers selling an online ad-placement service and other operations that don't fit into his strategy.

Those potential changes will follow a tumultuous time for Thompson, an affable and well-respected executive who held the top job at eBay Inc.'s thriving PayPal service before being lured away to help salvage Yahoo.

Thompson "definitely seems to be taking a very broad and bold view of what needs to be done at Yahoo," said Standard & Poor's Capital IQ analyst Scott Kessler. "He seems to know it isn't going to be easy and it isn't going to be pleasant."

The specifics of Thompson's vision are still unclear. In comments to analysts and reporters, he has talked generally about doing a better job of analyzing the data that Yahoo collects about its 700 million monthly visitors. That would help the company sell ads and develop mobile services to connect with the growing number of people surfing the Web on smartphones and tablet computers.

Ham Prices High Heading into Easter Holiday

Ham prices have been higher than usual for the past two years because the cost of pig feed has gone up.

BY JOSH FUNK
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. • Ham will be the centerpiece of many Easter dinners this weekend, but the cost of that traditional main dish may make it harder for families to live high on the hog.

Ham prices have been higher than usual for the past two years because the cost of hog feed has gone up, and some major pork producers are spending millions to convert barns as they phase out cramped cages used to confine pregnant sows.

Ham has been selling wholesale for 75 to 80 cents per pound this spring, which is in line with last year's prices but well above the 55 cents per pound average for the previous five years.

A recent check at one Omaha-area supermarket found boneless Hormel hams selling for about $2.20 per pound, with bone-in hams slightly cheaper. With sales offered this week to attract Easter shoppers, it was possible to get a bone-in ham for as little as $1.28 per pound.

Paula Vejvoda of Omaha said she's had her Easter ham in the freezer since Christmas, when she bought it on sale so she could economically feed her two daughters, two exchange students and husband.

Paul Farris, left, of Boston, distributes hams on March 29 in the Franciscan Food Center food pantry at St. Anthony Shrine in Boston.

"You really have to watch the ads and see who has the best price," Vejvoda said.

That's good advice for families, but hard to do when you're trying to provide ham for hundreds of people at a food pantry.

Joyce Lonergan, food pantry director at St. Anthony's Shrine in downtown Boston, said she tries to arrange to have a special meal at each holiday to help boost people's spirits, but the prospect seemed daunting when the pantry began shopping for hams back in January. They were selling for $2.30 per pound, not the 99 cents per pound paid last year.

With added donations and some breaks from suppliers, St. Anthony's was able to secure ham steaks and chickens for the holiday meal.

"We've made it work only because people have been so generous," Lonergan said.

Livestock economist Shane Ellis said the price of ham isn't likely to drop soon because pork producers' costs aren't decreasing. Feed, which is mainly corn, is running about $6 a bushel — not far from the record $7.99 per bushel set last June.

Pork producers also are switching from gestation crates to more open pens amid public pressure from consumers and animal welfare advocates who believe the smaller cages are cruel. One major producer, Smithfield Foods, recently said it expects to spend nearly $300 million by 2017 to convert its barns.

The switch also requires more labor to manage the sows because they tend to fight. Some of those costs are likely to be passed on to consumers.

Americans consume about 51 pounds of pork a year on average, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

While ham is a traditional element of many Easter meals, Ellis said prices typically peak in June, near the height of the grilling season when demand is highest. The low point is usually at the end of the calendar year because that's when large numbers of hogs reach the market.

Many organizations, like the Food Bank for the Heartland, don't even attempt to deliver a special holiday meal to the people they help because their goal is to offer the most nutritious food at the lowest possible price.

Gold

Or perhaps to speculate that the price would continue to rise, whatever the reason. Some analysts, like Ciner and Wells Fargo's Paulsen, said that as the price climbed ever higher, everyday investors may have been trying to catch the wave.

Gold was named the "best investment" in CNBC's quarterly survey of investors released last month, topping real estate and stocks by a wide margin. Nearly half of those surveyed considered it a bad time to buy stocks.

One popular vehicle for buying gold, the SPDR Gold Trust, a fund that trades on the open market like a stock, has attracted hundreds of millions of dollars of investor money each month since its launch in 2004.

It now holds $67.3 billion worth of gold. That makes it the largest ETF except for the SPDR S&P 500, which tracks stocks, according to Morningstar's Bailin.

Ciner noted that the price of gold dropped Wednesday despite news that Spain had to offer unexpectedly high interest rates to attract investors to buy new government bonds. That suggested that a solution to the European debt troubles is far from over — normally a trigger for buying gold, not selling it.

"It's pretty obvious that gold's character has completely changed," Ciner said. "If it was a real safe-haven asset, you would have expected investors to flock to gold."

Bulls pointed out that gold's popularity reflects a widespread skepticism of the financial system and of national currencies — and that investors are fools to feel confident about them.

John Manley, chief equity strategist for Wells Fargo Advantage Funds, said that gold's role as a sort of fourth currency to the three big ones — the dollar, euro and yen — is unlikely to diminish because of those currencies' troubles. Those include the U.S. debt, Japan's aging population and dissent among European countries about how to solve the debt problem there.

Nicholas Colas, chief market strategist at ConvergeX Group, said he thinks gold's popularity reflects the anxiety of our age. The price may change, he said, but an ounce of gold is always bound to be worth something. Old stock certificates, he said, may wind up worth no more than toilet paper.

"The gold rush isn't over," he said. "It's just on pause."

Holister Holds Kindergarten Registration

HOLLISTER • Hollister Elementary School will register kindergarten-age children from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m. on April 10 for the 2012-2013 school year. Proof of all updated immunizations and a legal birth certificate are required to register. Children must be 5 by Sept. 1.

Grants Will Support School Wellness

Filer and Kimberly high schools and Jerome Middle School have been chosen to receive grants to support their Fuel Up to Play 60 initiative. The grant amounts are $2,750 for Kimberly High, $2,200 for Filer High and $2,700 for Jerome Middle. They were selected from among hundreds of schools across the country that applied for funding to help them jump-start and sustain healthy nutrition and physical activity improvements. The program offers schools money to help increase awareness of and access to nutrient-rich foods and physical activity opportunities for students. Funding for this competitive program is provided by Idaho Dairy Council and America's dairy farmers. Filer High and Jerome Middle will use the money to purchase smoothie blenders to add yogurt and fruit smoothies to the breakfast menu. Kimberly High will use the funds to incorporate taste-testing days to allow students to try healthy food choices that can be added to the school menu.

Alert 12-year-old Helps Rescue Sleeping Neighbors from Fire

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Fire officials credit a 12-year-old boy and his father for getting three sleeping neighbors out of a burning Boise Bench home early Wednesday morning. The three women who lived in the home are OK, fire officials say, but the house did sustain some fire damage. Fire officials say the boy first noticed the fire by seeing the glare coming from next door, called 911, and then woke up his father. Father and son then went next door and began knocking on the doors and windows, trying to wake up whoever was inside. While the boy was doing that, his father broke through the door and was able to help get the three women who live there outside, according to reports. "Father and son both did an extraordinary job helping their neighbors from what was a very dangerous situation," said Boise Fire Battalion Chief J.D. Ellis. "This father should be very proud of his son today." Fire crews were sent to a report of a house fire in the 200 block of S. Hervey Street, located in the Overland Road/Vista Avenue neighborhood, just after midnight Tuesday after getting a 911 call.

When firefighters arrived, they found the three women who live there outside the home and flames coming from the back. Firefighters were able to extinguish the blaze quickly before it moved into the attic area. Fire investigators say it appears the fire ignited after someone disposed a cigarette in a planter next to the house, causing the planter to catch on fire. A damage estimate for the home was not available Wednesday afternoon, but fire officials did provide some assistance to the residents of the home with the Boise Fire Department Burnout Fund.

in a written exam supplied by the National Geographic Society, which sponsored the 24th annual event.

The bee is open to students in grade four through eight. State winners receive $100, a National Geographic globe and an all-expense-paid trip to the national finals in Washington, D.C.

Firefighters Exceed Fundraising Goal In Seattle Stair-climb

IDAHO STATESMAN

SEATTLE • Twelve Nampa firefighters raised more than $19,000 in donations — nearly double their goal — by racing up 69 flights of stairs at the Columbia Center in Seattle, the fire department announced Wednesday. Team members ran up 788 vertical feet wearing full fire gear for the annual Scott Firefighter Stairclimb on March 11. Last year the Nampa team raised about $4,100.

The Nampa team set a goal of $10,000, well above the $4,096.62 that members raised last year. The team's cumulative time this year was 45 minutes, 9 seconds, which placed it 14th out of 291 teams overall. Nampa Firefighter G.T. Hausner, 41, was 17th overall, with a time of 13 minutes, 34 seconds. Hausner also finished as the fastest firefighter from Idaho. Other team members included: Nick Adams, 37; Jeff Bowden, 31; Kirk Carpenter, 36; Robert Johnson, 38; Wayne Kingslien, 50; David O'Connor, 41; Thomas Roroda, 39; Joey Sanchez, 32; Brad Warr, 44; and Ben Tassos, 28. Firefighter Ted Hardy helped change the firefighters' air bottles at the 40th floor.

All told, 1,550 firefighters representing 291 departments from 24 states as well as Canada and Germany competed in the timed race. The event supports the mission of the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society by raising money through sponsorships, individual and department fundraising and entry fees. The team raised money for the event numerous ways. Many team members obtained pledges from friends and family. The Nampa Fire Department Local 804 and several local companies also donated. The team raised money at Costco Nampa by climbing the equivalent of more than 1,000 floors on a StairMill inside the warehouse stores while customers dropped donations into the firefighters' helmets. Donations are still being accepted at Firefighterstair-climb.org on behalf of the Nampa Fire Department.

4 Best Places to Rock Climb

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Harnesses, ropes and carabiners have been forgotten in the backs of closets all winter. Time to dig them out. Now that it's warm, why not go rock climbing?

Below, local enthusiasts recommend their favorite spots to climb in southern Idaho.

City of Rocks

If you're looking for a variety of climbs, you can't go wrong at City of Rocks National Reserve, which climbing ranger Brad Shilling said has about "600 fantastic climbs," of all skill levels.

Among the most beloved spots in the park, located two miles north of the Idaho border in Cassia County, are Elephant Rock and Stripe Rock, Shilling said. Both are very popular and might have lines of eager climbers waiting to hop aboard the granite.

Shilling recommends heading farther inside the park. The quality of climbing remains at the same high level, and yet you might find a more private area to explore.

"With every footstep you take, the crowds diminish," Shilling said.

Dierkes Lake

Don't have rock climbing equipment? Why not go bouldering at Dierkes Lake? No ropes or carabiners are required to climb boulders from which you can safely jump off. Instead you just need a spotter or soft pads to fall on.

"Dierkes has good bouldering," Shilling said. "The rock texture is good. It's not too sharp, and it's not too smooth. It's like Goldilocks and the Three Bears. It's just right!"

Follow a trail on the west side of the Twin Falls lake heading north. You'll find a field strewn with climbable basalt boulders.

The Fins

Looking for a distinctive visual experience? Dave Bingham recommends The Fins near Arco.

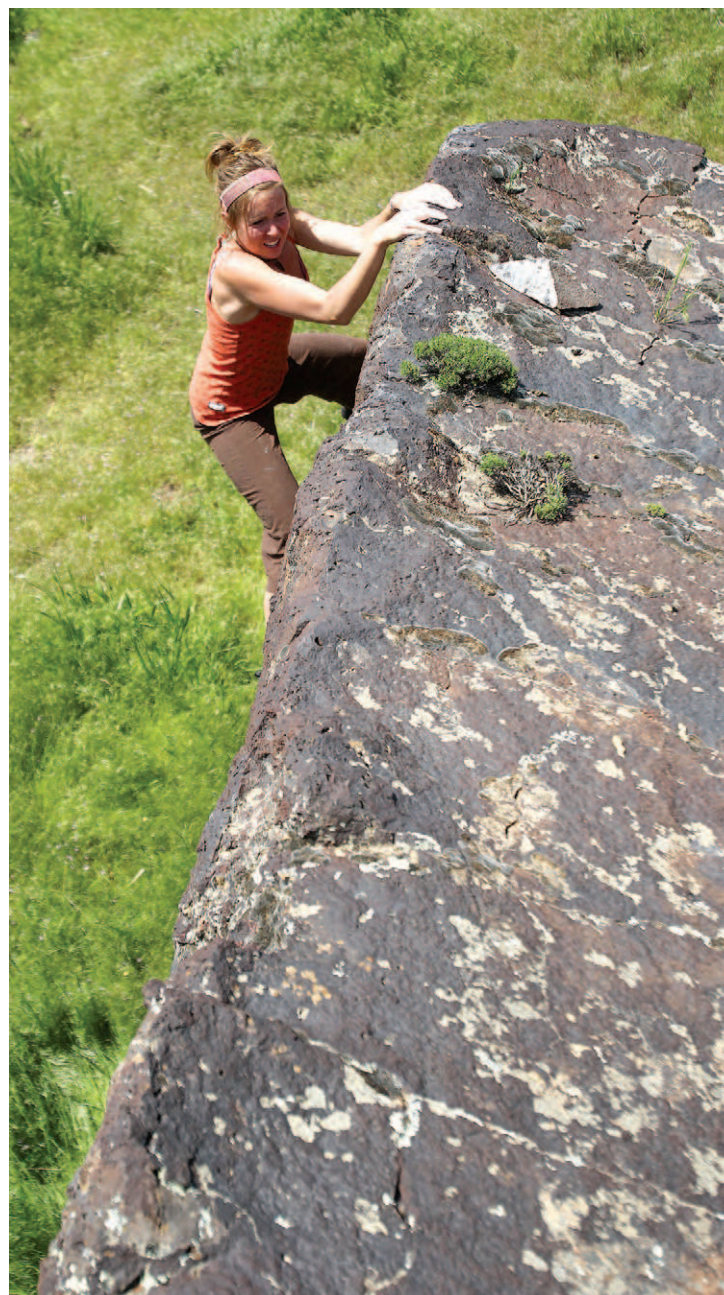

"It's really a unique area," said the author of the forthcoming book "Idaho Underground: A Climber's Guide to Secret Climbing Craggs of Southern Idaho," due out in May. "It's for sure the best limestone climbing in Idaho."

Bingham describes The Fins as "these beautiful, perfect sheets of white limestone."

"It's a very spectacular area because you're way up high on the mountain looking over the Snake River," he said. "It's a dramatic spot."

The Fins offer moderate and difficult sport climbs. Go east toward Idaho Falls, turn onto Highway 33 toward Howe. After about nine miles, turn left at a gravel pit onto a dirt road entering Eight-mile Canyon. After about a half-mile, turn right through a gate and after another half-mile, head right down a hill. After three and a half miles, there's a parking area on the left side of the road. Two-wheel-drive cars should park here, while

S.V. Bids Farewell to 76th Ski Season

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

SUN VALLEY • Dollar Mountain and Seattle Ridge will bid adieu to Sun Valley's 76th ski season at the close of the day on Sunday – but not without a big splash.

Literally. The Sun Valley Ski Patrol will present Dollar Dayz third annual Pond Skim at 10 a.m. Sunday at the bottom of Dollar Mountain.

Entry is free. Costumes are encouraged.

There'll be live music to add to the vibe and a barbecue, too.

The Pond Skim is among several events that make up a weekend of fun events for participants and spectators alike.

A Family Cross Race will be held at 10 a.m. on Dollar Mountain and a Junk Yard Rail Jam at 2 p.m. Saturday.

There is no entry fee for either. Participants need to sign up for the events at the Dollar Ticket Office on a first-come, first-served basis.

Baldy will stay open through April 15, with the exception of Seattle Ridge.

And Sun Valley's bigger mountain doesn't plan to go out with a whimper.

There'll be buy-one get-one free lift tickets that last weekend, a Balderdash fun race-Firehose giant slalom on Lower River Run, kid's adventures in the Adventure Parks, "Last Run" sales at Pete Lane's and Brass Ranch, live music by old Death Whisperer and DJ McClain at River Run and live music on the Warm Springs patio, as well.

And, of course, another barbecue.

Late season discount prices are in effect through the end of the season.

New Online Map Helps Offroad Users

Always enjoy hearing from Steve Stuebner, an Idaho outdoorsman and author who knows the state's countryside like the back of his hand. He's a good trails conservationist to boot.

Now he's helping to promote a new interactive trails map by the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation. Good for you, Steve, and thanks for the heads up.

As an offroad fan, I'm excited about this new resource. The Idaho OHV online map helps offroad users find new places to ride in the Gem State and can be accessed at trails.idaho.gov. What's more, it's easy to use.

"Click on a trail, or search for a trail, and the map will provide driving directions to the trailhead, what uses are allowed on the trail, trail length, season of use, etc.," Stuebner said. "People can download trail information to GPS units, Google Earth, send trail maps to friends."

The map also has zoom capabilities and provides information on non-motorized trails.

The map was created by Parks and Rec with assistance from the Idaho Department of Administration, U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management, and funded with OHV registration sticker money.

It helps users stay on proper trails, conserve what's already out there and not eat up the backcountry by riding in places they shouldn't. This video shows how to use the map: youtube.com/watch?v=D-eCKYcA9mA

I know before I take my dirt bike out of the garage next time that I'm going online first.

As Stuebner said: "Try it out, it's pretty cool!"

Shoot Your Gun Clean

Can you imagine living in a world where the more you ate, the cleaner and shinier your teeth would become? How about dwelling in a realm where the more you shot your favorite firearm, the cleaner and smoother its bore would get?

Rich Simpson
Shooting the Bull

While you'll probably have to wait until you pass through the Pearly Gates to enjoy the former, believe it or not, the latter can be experienced here and now.

Gunpowder icon Hodgdon Powder Co. recently affected this paradigm shift with the commercial release of its latest offering, CFE223. Developed initially for our primary service cartridge, the 5.56mm NATO, the letters CFE refer to the Copper Fouling Eraser properties of the new propellant. The numerical portion of the acronym, 223 represents the civilian moniker for the 5.56.

Hodgdon's brain child is already proving itself to be a godsend for our warriors in harm's way. Not only does the powder prevent accuracy-robbing and malfunction-breeding copper fouling from building up in the bores and firing mechanisms of their semi- and fully-automatic weapons, it also increases the service life of their weapons by removing stubborn pre-existing metallic fouling.

Copper's unique metallic properties make it both the ally and arch enemy of the rifled tube. To its credit, the metal's malleable nature makes it perhaps the perfect material for forming homogenous bullets and gilded bullet jackets.

On the minus side, each time we send a copper-jacketed projectile spinning down the barrel, it plates a microscopically thin layer of metal onto the sharp lands and grooves. Unless regularly and scrupulously cleaned, the weapon's accuracy and functional reliability will become erratic and eventually deteriorate.

Prior to the advent of CFR, our anti-copper fouling arsenal consisted primarily of a number of noxious ammonia-based solvents and a smattering of abrasive fortified pastes and liquids.

Regardless of which product you chose, you still had to run a patched cleaning rod through the bore for a fortnight.

Those tortuous days are now behind us. To clean and maintain a copper-free bore, all you have to do is fire a goodly number of CFE handloads through your firearm. Upon firing, a special propellant component oxidizes to the molten copper of the fired bullet and blasts it from the bore as microscopic metal fragments.

Additionally, powder residue adheres to the bore preventing the accumulation of copper from subsequent rounds.

Last month, my brother and I decided to put CFE to the test and loaded a representative sampling of .223, .243 and .308 rounds with the new powder. Prior to firing, we cleaned the powder fouling from our test guns and carefully noted levels of copper fouling buildup with his Hawkeye Borescope (gradientlens.com).

One-hundred rounds later, we scoped their bores again and found them to be completely free of fouling. Just as important, the easy-metering spherical powder loads equaled or beat our favorite conventional loadings for accuracy; this is a win-win situation.

Good shooting!

four-wheel-drive vehicles can continue up the steep road for another few miles.

"Drive as far as you dare take your car," Bingham said. "It's kind of a creepy road where it gets steeper and steeper."

After parking, hike west toward The Fins, which Bingham said look like "plates stacked on end in a dishwasher rack."

Lava Tubes Near Shoshone

From a mountaintop to another extreme: underground climbing.

Another fun spot to climb, Bingham recommends, are the lava tubes near Shoshone.

"I think the unique thing about the lava tubes is you can't imagine that there would be any climbing in this place," Bingham said. "You walk across (a featureless field of sagebrush), and you come to a hole in the ground. It's really peculiar. You scramble down underneath."

The lava tubes offer short sport climbs, from 30 to 70 feet long, Bingham said.

Bingham's directions to the lava tubes: Just south of the Shoshone Indian Ice Cave, about a mile, there's a road called Burmah Road. Go down this road for about a mile, then head north on a little gravel road for a quarter mile. There's a small parking area. Walk directly west for about five minutes back toward the highway.

"You will essentially run into these lava tubes," he said.

Protecting an Exotic Species

New rule restricts hunting of rare exotic antelopes.

KAREN WARREN • HOUSTON CHRONICLE/ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scimitar-horned oryxes roam in a pen at Tommy Oates' livestock auction business on March 28 in Huntsville, Texas, where he deals in exotics. A new U.S. regulation that will prevent hunting of endangered African antelope has upset ranchers whose efforts have led to a rise in the numbers of the exotic animals.

BY ANGELA K. BROWN
Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas • For years, hundreds of Texas ranchers have made big money on exotic antelopes, with hunters paying up to $10,000 to bag just one dama gazelle, a rare animal with short horns curving outward.

Starting Wednesday, however, the U.S. government will stop allowing anyone to hunt the dama gazelle or two other exotic antelopes native to Africa, the addax and the scimitar-horned oryx — unless ranchers obtain a permit.

The move to give the animals full protection under the federal Endangered Species Act is being praised by animal-rights groups that abhor such hunts and has upset the ranchers whose efforts have led to a rise in the numbers of those exotic animals. The ranchers say they won't be able to afford the upkeep for their antelopes — but they also can't legally kill the entire herds or release them.

Texas has the largest population of the animals in the world — far more than even their native Africa. In 1979, Texas had less than three dozen scimitar-horned oryx, just two addax and nine dama gazelles, according to the Exotic Wildlife Association. But by 2010, the state had more than 11,000 scimitar-horned oryx, about 5,100 addax and nearly 900 dama gazelles, according to the association.

Knowing that the new regulations were set to take effect, some ranchers have sold their exotic antelopes. But prices have dropped by up to 40 percent and will drop an additional 50 percent after Wednesday, said Charly Seale, executive director of the Texas-based Exotic Wildlife Association.

The ranchers can apply for federal permits to continue the hunts, but most are refusing because they say it's government intrusion. Seale said just 10 percent of ranchers have sought the permits and he does not expect more to apply. Others are so irate they've threatened to kill the herds or just set them free, but that may not happen because both options are illegal under the federal act, Seale said.

"They are very prolific and had been valuable because a lot of people wanted to hunt them," Seale said. "We've built our herds with our own money, and we increased an extinct population, one of the biggest conservation efforts in the world. And now they're telling us we can't do it? It's ridiculous."

Only a few animal sanctuaries for such animals exist, and "they don't want 100; they want two or four," Bulkeley said. The Exotic Wildlife Association plans to send about two dozen of the animals to a nature preserve in Senegal.

The rule will not only hurt the $1.3 billion exotic animal industry in Texas but will cause the scimitar-horned oryx population to be reduced to 1,000 in a decade, Seale said.

However, the animals becoming extinct in Texas is better than what's been going on, Feral said.

ACTOR BRUCE WILLIS OFFERS TO DONATE IDAHO SKI AREA

KETCHUM (AP) • In the past two years, actor Bruce Willis has put his lavish central Idaho home and his nearby bar and nightclub on the market for a combined $19.5 million.

Now he says he's willing to give his Idaho ski area away for free — to the right recipient.

The actor best known for his roles the "Die Hard" series and "Sixth Sense" has owned Soldier Mountain ski area near Fairfield, Idaho since the late 1990s. The Idaho Mountain Express reports that Willis recently told Camas County officials that he's willing to give the ski area to a local nonprofit organization.

John Palan with the Soldier Mountain Recreation Association says his group hopes to get enough help from donors, sponsors and new members to take over the ski area's operation.

Cabins

cabin is perfect for winding down with the whole family after a day in the sun.

Never been to one? Here are seven nearby places to consider:

Sun Valley

What is it? You can enjoy the rugged beauty of one of Idaho's most popular destinations, the Wood River Valley, when you stay at Sun Valley Cabins.

What can you do? Go mountain biking, hiking, backpacking, river rafting or wildflower walking. There's also arts and entertainment at Sun Valley and Ketchum venues.

Rates: Choose from one- to 12-occupancy cabins that range in price from $229 to $1,000 per night, according to sunvalleyreservations.com.

Information: Sun Valley Cabins, 888-866-1254.

Garden Valley

What is it? Hundreds of miles of outdoor recreation are at your fingertips in Garden Valley, north of Emmett near the Boise National Forest. At Idaho Cabin Keepers, each cabin has spacious rooms and views of snow-capped mountains, wooded forests and plenty of wildlife. There's a bed-and-breakfast rental, too.

What can you do? Enjoy panoramic views, watch wildlife, go hiking or backpacking, fish in rivers and breathe fresh mountain air.

Rates: Vacation rentals start at $100 a night.

Information: Idaho Cabin Keepers, 877-322-2467 or idahovacationcabins.com.

Bear Lake, Utah

What is it? Rustic cabins near Bear Lake in southern Idaho and northern Utah offer a great view of this pristine mountain lake. You have 12 cabins to choose from. One can sleep up to 40 people, and there are smaller ones for the more intimate company of two.

What can you do? The cabins have year-round access and offer tennis courts, swimming pools, walking paths and restaurants, all within easy walking distance. And then, of course, there is the lake.

"The lake is a spectacular place, and it's tradition for a lot of families to vacation here," said owner Mark Hislop. "People come from all over the U.S. to meet and gather for family reunions. But they're not fighting a lot of people. ... There's biking and hiking and hunting and fishing, just about every outdoor activity you can think of."

Rates: Starting at $400 a night or $2,400 a week, depending on the cabin.

Information: Hislop at 435-881-9774 or bearlakerealtproperties.com.

Island Park

What is it? The Pines at Island Park have luxury cabins. At this timeshare resort, you have your choice of one- to three-bedroom cabins with satellite TV, gas fireplaces, private hot tubs and barbecue grills. They're just minutes from Yellowstone National Park.

What can you do? When it comes to the outdoors, just name it. Boating at Island Park, fishing at Henry's Fork on the Snake River, or visiting nearby Mesa Falls are just some of the popular activities. And Yellowstone, of course.

Rates: Starting at around $1,000 a week.

Information: vacation-timesharerentals.com.

Spring Creek, Nev.

What is it? Ruby Crest Ranch is in the Ruby Mountains of northwestern Nevada. Three cabins are available, said owner Bill Gibson. He and wife Betty also operate Elko Guide Service.

What can you do? "At one cabin, at Ruby Marshes, which is part of the Ruby Lake National Wildlife Refuge, you can fish, hike, ride horses, go birding and look for wild mustangs," Gibson said. "There's all kinds of things going on out there."

Be sure to bring your camera, because wildlife often can be seen from the cabins' front porches. There are remnants of the Pony Express trail in the area, which you can traverse with a high-clearance vehicle, Gibson said.

Rates: The cabins, which can accommodate four to six people comfortably, are $500 for three days. The minimum rental jumps to $1,000 for five days during fall hunting season, Gibson said.

Information: Bill or Betty Gibson at Ruby Crest Ranch and Elko Guide Service, 775-744-2277.

Jackson Hole, Wyo.

What is it? Feeling a little country? Head to the Rockin' M Ranch in western Wyoming, where you can rent a cabin near the banks of the Salt River, about 40 miles from Jackson Hole. The deluxe cabins can sleep up to eight and include full kitchens, gas fireplaces, satellite TV, covered decks with gas barbecues and wireless Internet service.

What can you do? Soak in a hot tub, or play a hard game of volleyball. This facility has hot tubs, volleyball nets, horseshoe pits, fire pits, two stocked fishing ponds and, for anglers, direct access to the Salt River.

Rates: Starting at $179 per night.

Information: 307-654-2288 or rockinmbranch-wyoming.com.

Sheridan, Mont.

What is it? Ruby Valley Lodge in Sheridan, Mont. A family who rents the two-story lodge can enjoy 1,500 square feet of just-like-home conveniences such as a large main room with TV, VCR and DVD player, a spacious kitchen, wood-burning stove and master bedroom with a half-bath. The second floor has two large rooms, full-size beds and full bath.

What can you do? Fish Montana's finest waters — the Beaverhead, Big Hole, Jefferson, Madison and Ruby rivers. The lodge even has a fly-tying bench for fly fishermen.

Rates: Starting at $595 per night.

Information: 406-842-7473, rubyvalleylodge.com or email to info@rubyvalleylodge.com.

RED LAKE INDIAN RESERVATION, Minn.

The waters of the Red Lake Indian Reservation in northern Minnesota typically aren't thought of as a destination for anglers, but a new offering through the band's Seven Clans Casino aims to change that.

Beginning this spring, the casino near Red Lake, Minn., will be offering guided fishing trips on more than 25 small lakes within the reservation boundaries. The guide service doesn't include the tribal waters of Red Lake, but the smaller lakes offer the opportunity for anglers to catch everything from lake trout and rainbow trout to largemouth bass, pike, bluegills, slab crappies and walleyes.

"There's a whole bunch of different lakes, and they're all over the place," said Al Pemberton, director of the Red Lake Department of Natural Resources. "They're all pretty unique, and not a lot of people fish them."

According to Darwin Sumner, outfitters manager at Seven Clans Casino, non-tribal anglers have been able to buy licenses to fish the small lakes within the reservation in the past, providing they fished with a Red Lake band member, but this is the first time package trips have been available.

The casino plans to hire two guides to start with, Sumner said, and "hopefully that will expand really quick."

It's easy to fish two or three lakes in a day, Sumner said.

"Our lakes are so unpressured," he said. "If people want to catch fish of any species, this is the place to come. That's what I've been promoting it as — you can jump from 17 to 27 lakes within a matter of 20 minutes depending on the species you want to target."

Sumner, who has guided on the small lakes in the past, said he typically begins by fishing trout in the morning and then moving to lakes with bass, pike or crappies as daytime temperatures rise.

"With the panfish, they're pretty much temperature related, so when the water gets warmer, they're more active," Sumner said. "With walleyes, it's just about any time with them. There's a good population of walleyes, and they're fairly easy to catch. I've caught them on everything from Mepps spinners to bass stuff"

Social Media Bringing Transparency to Snow Reports

BY STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press

DENVER • The era of social media is bringing more transparency to ski resorts' daily snow reports, with skiers and riders using smartphone apps, websites, tweets and video to spread the word in real time, particularly if traditional reports are off.

And the industry itself has been quick to embrace social media to get the word out — especially skier raves that attract more customers when fresh powder blankets a mountain.

One day in late February, Vail reported it had received a foot of snow on its renowned slopes. It didn't take long for early skiers to question it via Twitter and Facebook, and Vail retracted its report via Facebook — a first for ski industry observers.

Vail explained that a ski patrol did find a foot of fresh snow against a measuring stake, but that winds had left anywhere from that foot to 2 inches elsewhere across the expansive resort. It also posted a YouTube video showing good powder runs that day on the mountain.

"We're not trying to inflate the figures. We want to be as transparent as we can be," said Vail Mountain spokeswoman Liz Biebl.

The real-time revision prompted Denver architect Scott Parker to cancel his Vail plans that day. "These reports are too close together to vary as much as two feet like they have this year," said Parker, who relies on social media reports rather than traditional reports from Colorado resorts themselves.

Still, with the season in North America now winding down, it highlighted the complexity of snow reporting under the best of circumstances.

Traditionally, ski resorts measure snowfall by using yardsticks or posting National Weather Service reports that sometimes are based miles away. Even local reports can vary widely, depending on where snow is measured. That poses a challenge for larger resorts like Vail, whose terrain covers more than 5,200 acres (8 square miles).

Resorts say most snow readings are taken at 5 a.m. to give skiers time to get up to the slopes, and a lot can change by the time they get there.

GET READY TO HUNT

JEROME • April is not only about taxes, but about applying for bighorn sheep, moose and mountain goat hunts.

Applications for these controlled hunts will be accepted now through April 30.

Each applicant must possess an Idaho hunting or combination license to apply for a controlled hunt. License fees will not be refunded.

Hunters who apply for moose, goat and sheep may not apply for any other controlled hunt in the same year except for unlimited controlled hunts, extra deer, elk or pronghorn hunts, controlled bear hunts or depredation hunts. Those who draw a moose, goat or sheep permit and do not kill an animal may not apply to hunt the same species for two years.

Any person who has harvested an antlered moose in Idaho may not apply for any moose permit except an antlerless moose permit. Those who've harvested an antlerless moose in Idaho may not apply for any moose permit except an antlered moose permit.

Any person who has killed a mountain goat in Idaho since 1977 may not apply for a mountain goat permit. Anyone who has killed a California bighorn or a Rocky Mountain bighorn may not apply again for the same type of sheep but may apply for the other subspecies.

Hunters may apply at Fish and Game offices, license vendors, and with a credit card by telephone (800-554-8685) or over the Internet (fishandgame.idaho.gov/).

Wolf Season Closes in Most Zones

BOISE • If you didn't go wolf hunting this season, you're almost too late.

Wolf trapping seasons closed March 31 in all wolf management zones, and hunting seasons have closed in all but the Lolo and Selway zones. It remains open these two areas through June 30, according to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

As of Monday, hunters had killed 252 wolves and trapped 123, for a total of 375 wolves. Fish and Game sold about 43,300 wolf tags for the 2011-12 season.

For the remainder of the 2011-12 season, hunters may use two 2012 tags, and take only one wolf per tag.

Wolf seasons are any-weapon seasons, electronic calls may be used, and wolves may be taken incidentally during fall bear baiting.

Hunters must report killing a wolf within 72 hours, and they must present the skull and hide to an Idaho Fish and Game office within 10 days.

The 2012-2013 wolf hunting season will open throughout the state on Aug. 30; the trapping season on Nov. 15 in some zones.

Students Pepper-sprayed in Protest over Prices

California college says price increase is an attempt to fund some popular state-required classes amid decline in education aid.

BY GREG RISLING
Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. • The dozens of student protesters who were pepper-sprayed by police at a California community college weren't just angry about not getting into a meeting of school trustees.

They were fuming about a new Santa Monica College plan that would let students who did not get into a needed, high-demand course take the class anyway, but only if they paid hundreds of dollars more.

On Tuesday night, the emotions boiled over at the meeting.

And a day later, the state agency that oversees the state's community colleges called on the attorney general to judge whether the plan was legal. Agency officials also called for the college to temporarily halt the program.

The college has said the summer pilot program is an attempt to create new ways to fund some popular state-required classes in an era of declining state education aid.

Critics say the plan will create a caste system favoring wealthy students and runs contrary to the idea of community colleges as a gateway into the middle class.

"Students feel they are being backed into a corner. They feel like they have been left out of the discussion," said Joshua Scuteri, a student trustee. "The feeling on campus is it's like the Alamo!"

Nnaemeka Alozie reacts after being doused with milk to counteract the effects of pepper spray during a protest Tuesday in Santa Monica, Calif.

The school is one of the state's largest two-year colleges, with an enrollment of roughly 30,000 students. About 1,100 classes out of 7,430 have been slashed since 2008.

As a result, students can't get the courses they need to graduate. They have held protests before but wanted to be heard and seen by trustees Tuesday night, students said. They were upset because only a handful of them were allowed into the meeting.

Nursing Director Thinks She Was Target of Shooter

One Goh, 43, is charged with seven counts of murder and three counts of attempted murder in the shootings at Oikos University in Oakland, Calif.

BY GARANCE BURKE AND TERRY COLLINS
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. • An administrator at a small Christian university where seven people were killed this week said Wednesday she was the alleged gunman's primary intended target after she rejected his repeated requests for a refund of his tuition.

Ellen Cervellon, director of the nursing program at Oikos University, said she wasn't on campus Monday when her former student, One Goh, came looking for her then went on his rampage.

Two days later, in an interview with AP, a shaken Cervellon said the slayings are haunting her.

"I have that weight on my shoulders and I don't know what to do with it," she said, her voice quavering. "Every single one of those students were going to be an excellent, excellent nurse. They're in my heart, and they always will be."

Oakland Police Chief Howard Jordan confirmed Cervellon was the apparent target. Officer Johnna Watson, a police spokeswoman, said later that police are looking into the possibility that other administrators had been targeted.

Goh, 43, was charged Wednesday with seven counts of murder and three counts of attempted murder, plus a special circumstance allegation of committing multiple murders that could make him eligible for the death penalty.

Shackled and showing little emotion, Goh said nothing during a brief court appearance other than a soft "yes" when the judge asked if he understood the charges. He did not enter a plea.

In a police affidavit, Officer Robert Trevino said Goh acknowledged going to the campus on Monday with a .45-caliber handgun and four magazines of ammunition.

"He admitted to kidnapping a woman and forcing her from her office into a classroom at gunpoint," Trevino said in the statement. "He admitted to shooting and killing several people inside the classroom, before taking one of the victim's car keys and fleeing the scene in the victim's car."

Police arrested Goh about an hour after the shooting spree at a supermarket a few miles from campus.

A student wounded in the rampage said Goh burst into the classroom shouting and quickly began firing his weapon. Ahmad Sayeed was shot through the shoulder as he scrambled to get out with other panicked students.

The 36-year-old immigrant nursing student from Afghanistan said he did not understand what Goh was yelling, though he did hear him order students to line up in front of the classroom.

Sayeed said he has been this frightened once before — when the Taliban attacked his high school in the Nangarhar province of Afghanistan.

Romney Accuses Obama of 'Hide-and-Seek' Campaign

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney unleashed a strong attack on President Barack Obama's truthfulness Wednesday, accusing him of running a "hide-and-seek" re-election campaign designed to distract voters from his first-term record while denying them information about his plans for a second.

Addressing an audience of newspaper editors and publishers, Romney said Obama's recent remarks to Russian President Dmitry Medvedev on a second-term arms reduction treaty had called "his candor into question." Romney, the likely GOP opponent for Obama in November, also accused the president of undergoing "a series of election-year conversions" on taxes, government regulation and energy production.

"He does not want to share his real plans before the election, either with the public or with the press," Romney said. "By flexibility, he means that what the American public doesn't know won't hurt him. He is intent on hiding. You and I will have to do the seeking!"

Romney

Romney himself has been sharply criticized by Rick Santorum and other Republican rivals for changing his own positions on issues ranging from abortion to climate control as part of an attempt to win the backing of conservative primary voters. Earlier this year, he reversed course on the minimum wage to bring his stance in line with party orthodoxy, saying he no longer believes it should rise along with inflation.

Romney spoke to the Newspaper Association of America and the American Society of Newspaper Editors as the Republican nominee-in-waiting, his standing confirmed by three primary victories Tuesday night in Wisconsin, Maryland and Washington, D.C.

He campaigned Wednesday in Pennsylvania, where there's a GOP primary April 24 — though Romney treated it more like the general election battleground it will be in the fall. "Please help me defeat Barack Obama in November!" Romney told a cheering crowd in Broomall, a Philadelphia suburb. Romney will also campaign in Pennsylvania on Thursday.

Holder: Justice Department Will Respond to Texas Judge

BY CARLA K. JOHNSON
Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) • U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder said Wednesday that the Justice Department will respond "appropriately" to a federal appellate judge in Texas who demanded a letter recognizing federal courts' authority to strike down laws passed by Congress.

Holder spoke a day after 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Jerry Smith questioned President Barack Obama's remarks this week about an "unelected" court possibly striking down the president's health care overhaul. Smith, during oral arguments in a separate challenge to the health law, asked the Justice Department for a three-page, single-spaced letter affirming the federal court's authority.

When asked during a Wednesday news conference in Chicago what an appropriate response to Smith would be, Holder said, "I think what the president said a couple of days ago was appropriate. He indicated that we obviously respect the decisions that courts make."

"Under our system of government ... courts have the final say on the constitutionality of statutes," Holder said. "The courts are also fairly deferential when it comes to overturning statutes that the duly elected representatives of the people, Congress, pass."

New Evidence Suggests T. rex Had Down Coat

LOS ANGELES (AP) • The discovery of a giant meat-eating dinosaur sporting a downy coat has some scientists reimagining the look of Tyrannosaurus rex.

With a killer jaw and sharp claws, T. rex has long been depicted in movies and popular culture as having scaly skin. But the discovery of an earlier relative suggests the king of dinosaurs may have had a softer side.

The evidence comes from the unearthing of a new tyrannosaur species in northeastern China that lived 60 million years before T. rex. The fossil record preserved remains of fluffy down, making it the largest feathered dinosaur ever found.

If a T. rex relative had feathers, why not T. rex? Scientists said the evidence is trending in that direction.

Ex-cops Sentenced in Katrina Killings

BY CAIN BURDEAU
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS • A federal judge sentenced five former police officers to years in prison for the deadly shootings on a New Orleans bridge in the chaotic days following Hurricane Katrina but not before lashing out at prosecutors for allowing others involved to serve lighter penalties for their crimes. The case that wrapped up Wednesday was the centerpiece of a Justice Department push to clean up New Orleans' police department that has long been tainted with corruption.

U.S. District Judge Kurt Engelhardt expressed frustration that he was bound by mandatory minimum sentencing laws to imprison former Sgts. Kenneth Bowen and Robert Gisevius and former officers Anthony Villavaso and Robert Faulcon for decades when other officers who engaged in similar conduct on the Danziger Bridge — but cut deals with prosecutors — are serving no more than eight years behind bars.

"These through-the-looking-glass plea deals that tied the hands of this court ... are an affront to the court and a disservice to the community," he said.

Police gunned down 17-year-old James Brissette and 40-year-old Ronald Madison, who were both unarmed, and wounded four others on Sept. 4, 2005, less than a week after the storm devastated New Orleans.

To cover it up, the officers planted a gun, fabricated witnesses and falsified reports. Defense attorneys have indicated they will appeal.

Engelhardt also criticized prosecutors for the different ways they charged those who didn't cooperate with a Justice Department civil rights investigation and those who did. The charges were filed in such a way that they left judges with little discretion in handing out sentences in each set of cases, Engelhardt said.

Faulcon received the stiffest sentence of 65 years. Bowen and Gisevius each got 40 years while Villavaso was sentenced to 38. All four were convicted of federal firearms charges that carried mandatory minimum sentences ranging from 35 to 60 years in prison. Faulcon was convicted in both deadly shootings.

Retired Sgt. Arthur "Archie" Kaufman, who was assigned to investigate the shootings, received six years in prison — a sentence below the federal guidelines. Kaufman wasn't charged in the shootings but was convicted of helping orchestrate the cover-up.

Dozens Reported Killed in Syria as Deadline Looms

BEIRUT (MCT) • Just days before the deadline for Syria to abide by a United Nations-backed peace plan, 54 people were reported killed across the country Wednesday, including 25 in the city of Homs during continued shelling and sniper fire there.

Since Sunday, when President Bashar Assad agreed to an April 10 deadline for a cease-fire, activists and observers have said the government's violent crackdown against dissidents has intensified.

In Beit Sahn, a Damascus suburb, 15 civilians were reported killed in an explosion that destroyed two buildings. Activists and state media traded blame for the incident.

Syrian state media reported that a building collapsed after explosive devices detonated in the basement as "terrorists" were putting them together.

OBITUARIES

Mary Ellen (Howard) Pettigrew

July 18, 1924-March 29, 2012

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. • Mary Ellen (Howard) Pettigrew, 87, passed quietly and peacefully Thursday, March 29, 2012, at the Life Care Center of Colorado Springs after a brief illness.

A service will be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, April 10, at the First United Methodist Church, 420 N. Nevada. A reception will follow in the church's hospitality room. At 3 p.m., a burial service will be held at Memorial Gardens, 3825 Airport Road.

She was born in Glasgow, Kan., on July 18, 1924. She moved to Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1929 with her parents, Jim and Florence Howard; her brother, Dick; and sister, Lucille. They initially lived on a farm and then moved to town when her father purchased a tractor dealership. She graduated from Kimberley High School in 1941, where she was valedictorian. She then went to work as a dental assistant.

She met her future husband, Wesley N. Pettigrew, when he was stationed at Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho as a bomber pilot instructor. She followed him to Colorado Springs when he was discharged, and they were married Dec. 2, 1945. They went into business with his father and three brothers and ran the Pettigrew Auction Company until he retired in 1985. She could be found in the office on auction days, every Tuesday. They raised their four children in Colorado Springs, Colo. They were married 56 years until his death in 2002.

Mary Ellen was very involved in the activities of her children, including being a Brownie and Girl Scout leader, PTA volunteer and officer at all school levels, chaperoning dances and other events, and attending hockey, baseball and football games. She was also very involved with the First United Methodist Church, the Odds and Ends Sunday school class and the United Methodist's Women's Organization.

She worked on projects championed by several philanthropic organizations, serving as an officer, including president, and attending national conventions. She was a member of Beta Sigma Phi. She was among the founding members of the Assistance League of Colorado Springs, where she worked in the Bargain Box Thrift Store, Operation School Bell (providing new clothes to school children) and serving as a puppet master for school presentations. She always saved time for dancing, including square dancing, and being a member of the Broadmoor Waltz Club. She loved traveling both inside and outside the country with friends and family.

She was preceded in death by her brother, Dick; and sister, Lucille. She is survived by her four children, W. Neil Pettigrew Jr. (Jocelyn) of Colorado Springs, Colo., Christine M. Gray (Edward) of Snohomish, Wash., Steven L. Pettigrew (Posy) of Chandler, Ariz., and Philip A. Pettigrew (Robin) of Denver, Colo.; two grandchildren, Christian and Joshua Pettigrew of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Dolly the cat; and numerous nieces and nephews.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Assistance League of Colorado Springs for Operation School Bell, 318 E. Cimarron St., Colorado Springs, CO 80903.

Dolores Varela Allred

June 17, 1931-March 31, 2012

PRESTON • Dolores Varela Allred (81) of Preston, Idaho, unexpectedly entered into the Lord's rest after a short illness Saturday, March 31, 2012.

Mother, devoted wife, caring grandmother, teacher, friend, Dolores will be sorely and profoundly missed by all who knew and loved her. She lived a beautiful and meaningful life. Born to Jose (Joe) and Amy Larson Varela on June 17, 1931, in Oakley, Idaho, Dolores was a beacon of love and peace on earth. She lived in Burley, Idaho, for most of her early life, where she met and fell in love with Byron Harvey Allred, and together they attended Brigham Young University where she earned her bachelor's degree in English. She also attended the University of Mexico City. She married Byron on Aug. 29, 1952, in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple and was a devoted and loving wife for nearly 60 years.

Dolores brought five sons into the world while traveling extensively as an Air Force wife in Spain, Turkey, California, Nebraska, Maine and Texas. She was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and held many positions, including Relief Society president. In her later years, after moving to Preston, Idaho, she was instrumental in extracting and indexing thousands of genealogical records. Dolores loved the Lord and was His faithful servant, spending many hours in the LDS temples doing work for her loved ones who had passed before her. After teaching for 22 years in the Cassia County School system, she and Byron served an LDS educational mission to Guatemala using their fluent Spanish language skills to improve the lives of many young people there.

Dolores blessed the lives of her family in countless permanent and meaningful ways. She was a talented cook, seamstress, artist, writer, pen pal, trusted confidant and world traveler. She loved deeply, listened patiently, worshiped humbly and lived gracefully. When age and poor health slowed her down, she stayed in touch with her extensive family and friends via email. Her computer became an indispensable ally in her successful quest to touch the lives of her family and friends.

Dolores is survived by her husband, Byron; her sons, Mark (Kathleen) in Korea, Jon in Salt Lake City, Utah, Eric (Sandy) in Preston, Idaho, Paul (Ann) in Kaysville, Utah, and Philip (Jennifer) in Rigby, Idaho; and dozens of grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was preceded in passing by her father, Joe; mother, Amy; and older brother, Joe Raymond. We are all comforted in the sure knowledge that she is in the arms of loved ones and her Savior and that we will be with her again in the eternities.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 7, at the Preston LDS 1st Ward Chapel, 213 S. 200 E. in Preston, with Bishop Brent Dodge presiding. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 6, at the Webb Funeral Home, 1005 S. 800 E. in Preston, and from 9 to 9:45 a.m. Saturday at the church. Interment will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery, 1645 E. 16th St. in Burley, immediately followed by a light luncheon for family and friends with reminiscing about Dolores at the Burley LDS 11th Ward Church, 2400 Parke Ave.

Memories and condolences may be shared with the family at www.webb-mortuary.com. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the LDS Church General Temple Patron Assistance Fund.

Rebecca Nebeker Morrill

Oct. 3, 1921-April 1, 2012

KIMBERLY • Rebecca Nebeker Morrill, 90, of Kimberly, passed away Sunday, April 1, 2012, at the Alpine Care Center in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Rebecca "Becky" was born Oct. 3, 1921, in Kimberly, Idaho, to Wilford Franklin and Cynthia Benson Nebeker. She attended school in Shoshone, then moved to Kimberly to live with her sister to complete her high school education. She graduated in 1939 as salutatorian of her class. She married Garth Morrill on Oct. 3, 1940, in the Logan Utah LDS Temple, and they spent 68 wonderful years together. Becky worked side by side with Garth on the farm and created a loving home for their seven children. Her gardens were always plentiful, and she spent endless hours canning and providing food for her family and others.

She was an active member of the LDS Church, having served in many positions including working in the Boise Idaho Temple for 14 years. She excelled as a wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother — always putting her family first. She lived a very full life devoting much of her time taking care of others. She lovingly cared for her parents and Garth's parents in their aging years. She left a legacy of integrity, love and compassion. She taught her children and grandchildren the value of hard work. All who knew Becky enjoyed her quick sense of humor and how she could brighten anyone's day. As stated by a dear friend, "The world would be perfect if there were more like Becky."

Rebecca is survived by her children, Doyle (Barbara) Morrill, Brent (Linda) Morrill, Donna Morrill, Becky Weeks, Cynthia (Dee) Jensen, Terry (Sherry) Morrill, Lonna (Ken) Marler and Robyn (Layne) Flint. She was blessed with 34 grandchildren and 100 great-grandchildren. Preceding her in death are her husband, parents, three sisters, six brothers, one daughter in-law, one son in-law and a granddaughter.

The funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 7, at the Kimberly LDS Church, 222 Birch St. in Kimberly, with Bishop McKay Barlow officiating. A visitation for family and friends will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, April 6, at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park," and one hour prior to the 10 a.m. service Saturday at the church in Kimberly. Interment will follow the service at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

The family would like to extend a special thank you to the staff of Alpine Care Center.

Services are under the direction of Lance Cox and the staff at White Mortuary. Friends and family may leave condolences by visiting www.whitemortuary.com.

William 'Bill' Lloyd Galkin

July 20, 1938-April 2, 2012

Austin Harold Rasmussen

Feb. 20, 2002-March 31, 2012

DIETRICH • Austin Harold Rasmussen, 10, a resident of Dietrich, passed away Saturday, March 31, 2012, at his home in Dietrich.

grandfather, Warren Rasmussen; numerous aunts, uncles and cousins; and his many friends. He is preceded in death by his grandmother, Alana Rasmussen.

His warm, loving smile will be greatly missed. Farewell, our son, we will always love you — Mom and Dad.

A funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, April 6, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Dietrich, with visitation at the church beginning at noon. Burial will follow at the Shoshone Cemetery.

Arrangements are under the direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Shoshone Chapel. Condolences may be sent to the family by visiting the obituary link at www.demarayfuneralservice.com.

Sonya Davey Chaney

Nov. 10, 1935-March 30, 2012

SUN VALLEY • Sonya Davey Chaney passed away Friday, March 30, 2012, at St Luke's Medical Center in Boise, Idaho, after battling leukemia (AML) for 2½ months. Sonya was a beautiful, kind, elegant lady, a wonderful dedicated, loving wife, mother and grandmother, and a dear friend to many.

Sonya was born Nov. 10, 1935, in Kellogg, Idaho, to Vince and Clara Davey. She graduated from Kellogg High School in 1953 and, in 1955, married Arlen Chaney, her childhood sweetheart. After graduating from the University of Idaho in 1957, they entered military service for six years stationed at Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Campbell, Ky.; Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland and Watertown Arsenal in Massachusetts. Their son, Dale Chaney, was born in Moscow, Idaho, daughters, Kathy in Tennessee and Sue (Hamilton) in Boston. In 1963, they moved to Spokane, Wash., briefly then settled in Lewiston, Idaho, where Arlen worked for CCI/SPEER/OMARK/BLOUNT ammunition factory, and they raised their three children. In 1993 after 28 years, Arlen retired; in 2002, they relocated to Sun Valley, Idaho, to be near their three children and seven grandchildren.

Sonya's mother was born in Norway and Sonya was very proud of her heritage and took great joy in passing on Norwegian culture and tradition. She was an accomplished cook and loved baking Norwegian Christmas cookies with her granddaughters. She taught her kids to ski and to love nature and the outdoors, especially the mountains. Besides skiing, she was an excellent golfer and enjoyed hiking in the mountains with her grandkids, teaching them the Vandal fight song as they marched along.

When asked her occupation, Sonya would proudly state, "I am a home-maker." She excelled at her job and was an accomplished hostess who made guests feel comfortable and very special. Her crystal and silver table settings along with marvelous food were worthy of a "Pottery Barn" advertisement. Her main passion was gardening. She always had beautiful flowers inside and outside. In spring, she toiled from dawn to dark planting flowers. Throughout summer, she cared for her flowers with their daughter's yellow lab (Buddy) by her side. Neighbors refer to her as "The Flower Lady" and the family is certain that Sonya is now in warm sunshine, planting her beautiful flowers with Buddy by her side.

During their 57 years together, Sonya and Arlen traveled the world. One of Sonya's favorite places was Hawaii. She and Arlen spent early springs there where she loved the sunshine, ocean, beach, golf and the many friends she made. She is loved by so many; words cannot describe how she will be missed.

There will be a memorial to celebrate Sonya's life at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 14, at the Lodge Dining Room in Sun Valley. Another memorial will be held in Lewiston, Idaho, in mid-May, time and place to be announced later.

Ralph Holbrook Banguess

April 12, 1923-March 31, 2012

BOISE • Ralph Holbrook Banguess died Saturday, March 31, 2012, at the VA Hospital in Boise.

Ralph was born in North Carolina on April 12, 1923, the only child of Lewis William Banguess and Nora Kate Holbrook. Ralph grew up in Montour, Idaho, and enlisted in the Army Air Force the day after Pearl Harbor. He was just 19 years old. He was an airplane mechanic and spent most of his time in Australia and the various island bases of the Pacific during World War II.

Ralph married his childhood friend, Vivian Bennett, on April 12, 1945. Together, they had four children which they raised in New Plymouth. Vivian passed away in 1984.

Ralph worked on many well-known construction projects such as Hells Canyon. He retired and lived in Hagerman and Gooding for more than 20 years. At the time of his passing, Ralph was living at the State Veteran's Home in Boise near his two daughters, granddaughter and two great-grandchildren.

A graveside service will be held at 1 p.m. Friday, April 6, at the Parkview Cemetery in New Plymouth, Idaho. Services are under the direction of Summers Funeral Homes.

Anti-abortion Grandpa Faces DC Clinic Lawsuit

ASSOCIATED PRESS

With anti-abortion fliers and rosary in hand, Richard Retta, 80, waits for people to approach Planned Parenthood in downtown Washington on Wednesday.

He says he has 15 or 20 seconds to get his message out before the women get inside the clinic. But if they take a flier, sometimes they'll read it inside and come out.

BY JESSICA GRESKO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) • Dick Retta stands outside a Planned Parenthood clinic in downtown Washington three days a week, trying to persuade pregnant women not to get abortions. The 80-year-old grandfather has been coming to the clinic for eight years and said he's personally persuaded over 400 women to leave this clinic and others. Retta says his approach is friendly, gentle and loving. Government lawyers portray him differently, calling him "among the most vocal and aggressive anti-abortion protestors" outside the clinic.

In court documents, they say he routinely follows patients entering the building and yells at them as the clinic door closes. Last year he physically blocked a woman from entering the clinic, shouting at her not to kill her baby, they say.

As a result they sued Retta over last year's incident, using a 1994 law that makes it a crime to intimidate or interfere with someone obtaining reproductive health services. He is one of a handful of people nationwide charged every year under the law. Lawyers for the government and Retta have a meeting before a judge Thursday to see if they can come to an agreement in the case, but it's unclear how likely that is.

"They'd like to get rid of me," said Retta, who acknowledges he's persistent and assertive with his message but denies ever blocking access to the clinic.

The Rockville, Md., resident attends Mass daily at a Roman Catholic church. He first began going to abortion clinics, which he calls "abortion mills," in 1998. He was recently retired and saw a note in a church paper inviting people to pray there. At first, he just prayed, but a few years later he took a class on what he calls "sidewalk counseling," approaching women entering clinics. He found he was good at it, he said, and soon he was a regular outside area clinics.

These days he spends Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings outside Planned Parenthood's clinic three blocks north of the White House. He still prays, with a rosary of blue and pink beads and tiny white hearts, but he's also watching for women who look as though they may be coming for an abortion. The telltale signs, he says, are arriving with a man or wearing loose-fitting clothing.

His standard practice, he says, is to approach with the greeting, "Morning, ma'am, can I give you some information?"

Then, walking with them, he might say "if you're pregnant, we have help for you" or "abortions are dangerous, women can die." He may offer one of several anti-abortion fliers. He says he has 15 or 20 seconds to get his message out before the women get inside the clinic. But if they take a flier, sometimes they'll read it inside and come out, he said. Other times they stop to talk.

"It's very rewarding," Retta said of the times when a pregnant woman decides to leave. In those cases he gives her a gift: a pair of baby booties.

Fairly often, though, people get angry. Sometimes women tell him to back off or go away. He's been spit on and had fliers knocked out of his hands, he said. Once, a woman blasted him with pepper spray.

He says he's also often jostled by volunteers who stand on the sidewalk wearing tops that say "pro-choice clinic escort." Their job is to ensure access for anyone who wants to visit the clinic, whether it's to get an abortion or other services including gynecological exams, screenings for sexually transmitted diseases or contraception. But lawyers for the government argue Retta was the aggressor in January of last year when he blocked a patient from entering the clinic, weaving in front of her as she tried to walk around him. Court documents say it took several people to help the woman inside and that Retta made her entrance unreasonably difficult and hazardous.

Geraldine (Geri) R. Joslin

July 5, 1924-Feb. 24, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Geraldine (Geri) R. Joslin, of Twin Falls, passed away peacefully in her sleep early Friday, Feb. 24, 2012, at Highland Hills Assisted Living in Pocatello, Idaho, after an extended illness.

Tami (Joe) Rueter; grandchildren, Christopher (Emily) Joslin, Rebecca Joslin, Stephen (Lorena) Hammond, Kathleen Smith, Ashley Smith and Derek Rueter; and great-grandchildren, Hank Joslin, Isabel and Dominik Hammond.

She was born July 5, 1924, in Nampa, Idaho, to Roy W. and Anna M. Lam-mers. When she was young, the family moved to the Salmon Tract south of Twin Falls. She attended school in Filer, graduating in 1941. She then attended the Albion Normal School in Albion, where she earned her teaching certificate. On June 9, 1947, she married her childhood sweetheart, Ray E. Joslin. They established their home in Twin Falls, where they raised their three children. Ray was a transport driver for United Oil and Geri was a homemaker. Ray preceded Geri in death in 2005.

Geri had a love for the outdoors, especially the Sawtooth Mountains and the South Hills, and would go there as often as possible. She shared with her children this love of the outdoors, teaching them the different species of plants and animals and an appreciation for nature. She had a talent for art and would spend hours painting mostly landscapes, but especially her beloved South Hills. For many years, she taught oil painting for Twin Falls Parks and Recreation. While being a mother and homemaker was her first love, she also held many part-time positions throughout her lifetime, including substitute teaching.

Geri is survived by her children, Phil (Edythe) Joslin, Peggy (Richard) Smith and Her family is grateful to and thankful for the staff and their friendships at Highland Hills Assisted Living and the recent assistance of Guardian Hospice. They loved her and cared for her and made her final days comfortable.

Though in later years her memory failed, she maintained her sense of humor, always had a joke to tell, and gently teased those around her. Geri is remembered by those who knew or loved her as a strong, sweet, gentle lady who will be truly missed.

A celebration of Geri's life will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 7, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in Geri's name to the Twin Falls Animal Shelter. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed to Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303. Condolences may be left for the family by visiting www.reynoldschapel.com.

Petersen Likes Broncos' Direction

BSU coach notes differences between this year and last; gives praise to QB Nick Patti and untested defensive linemen.

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@magicvalley.com

Petersen

BOISE • Talking about the progress of his team for the first time since a closed scrimmage prior to spring break, Boise State coach Chris Petersen fielded a slew of questions Wednesday at the Allen Noble Hall of Fame adjacent to Bronco Stadium.

For about 30 minutes, Petersen responded with both the predictable and insightful.

On the difference between this spring with a team that has several holes to fill against last year's team, which had proven talent across the field, the seventh-year head coach was quick to note one significant difference.

"That's hard for me to tell," Petersen said. "We would be out there (last year) at times and I'd think, 'You know, that wasn't very good...' by whatever side (of the ball). But, you knew that had played so much in game, you knew what they were capable of. There's so many guys out there (this year) that we don't know what they're capable of."

On players that have stood out this spring:

"I hate to play that game a little bit because I do think there's a lot of guys getting better," Petersen said. "I name a couple guys and I'm going to leave out more than I should."

That didn't stop Petersen from dropping names like a gossip columnist in most of his answers, and with optimism running amok — as is typical during spring ball — no one could blame him. "I think all the QBs are progressing, I really do," Petersen said, "starting with our new guy Nick Patti. I think he's doing a very nice job. There's a lot of stuff being thrown at him and he's hanging in there nice."

Those wishing to read between the lines of coach-speak, take note: The true freshman from Orlando, Fla., was the first to have his name dropped by Petersen, who quickly turned this answer toward last year's backup to Kellen Moore, redshirt junior Joe Southwick.

"And then you go all the way to Joe Southwick who's been here for quite a while," Petersen said. "It's a lot easier to see Nick's improvement, because there's so much than there is to see Joe's, but I think he's doing some nice things too. And everyone (redshirt sophomore Grant Hedrick and redshirt freshman Jimmy Laughrea) in between."

Jared Price instructs Minico High players during a recent practice at Warburton Field in Rupert.

Price's Timing Right for Minico

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Jared Price could be in North Carolina this morning, preparing to play in front of 10,000 fans on Opening Day for the Charlotte Knights, the Triple-A affiliate of the Chicago White Sox.

Instead, he's in Rupert working at his father's appliance repair business before he heads to Minico this afternoon to help teach high schoolers how to squeeze bunt.

After a 12-year professional baseball career, Price has retired from the game, walking away from his contract with the White Sox organization.

It was time.

"One of the hardest decisions I've had to make, just because it's something that I've done for so long. To think about not being out there at spring training is hard," Price said.

Up until two months ago, the veteran catcher planned to return for his 13th season. But the thought of leaving his wife and a new baby at home for seven months didn't feel right.

What's next for the former Idaho Gatorade Player of the Year? Not even Price can answer that question. He's still in transition mode, just living day-to-day and enjoying time with his family.

In the meantime, Price has returned to his alma mater, serving as an assistant coach at Minico.

"It's huge for our program," said Minico head coach Ben Frank. "These kids growing up, when they thought Minico baseball they thought of Jared Price. That's the name they always heard. J.P. was the guy who got drafted; J.P. holds the record in home runs... So now all of the sudden to have him here, I think some were initially a little shocked."

Double Elimination Volleyball Returns

Jackpot High School has also completely withdrawn from its Idaho High School Activities Association membership and will rejoin the Nevada Interscholastic Activities Association as a full member.

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • Double elimination volleyball is back.

The Idaho High School Activities Association's executive board voted Wednesday to restore the state volleyball tournaments to a complete double-elimination format, after a two-year trial run at a modified double-elimination similar to the basketball and soccer tournaments.

"It's the way it should be," said Twin Falls High School volleyball coach B.J. Price, who helped lobby support for a return to double elimination. "Volleyball is unique in that you can play three five-set matches in a day and not have the level of play suffer. In basketball you need rest, I get that. But for volleyball, it's not asking something of our athletes that they can't do, and it makes the tournament better. It's nice to have it back."

Jerome High athletic director Ty Jones, an IHSAA executive board member, said that the double elimination play will take place with play across two nets in the same gym until the final four teams are decided. All trophy matches will take place on a single net.

Jones added that there have been no discussions on returning softball to a double elimination format. Softball and volleyball were given the same two-year trial run, but as it stands right now, "softball will stay as it is," Jones said.

Discussions of another tournament change were shot down, as the soccer

Nash Lifts Suns Past Jazz

BY LYNN DEBRUIN
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • Steve Nash scored only 13 points but hit two shots in the final 14 seconds and the Phoenix Suns won their seventh straight meeting against Utah, 107-105 on Wednesday night to jump over the Jazz in the Western Conference playoff race.

The Suns (28-26) are in ninth place, a half-game ahead of the Jazz (28-27) and a game behind Denver, which lost Wednesday at New Orleans, and idle Houston. Phoenix also owns the tiebreaker with the Jazz.

Paul Millsap led Utah with 25 points and had a chance to force overtime, but his put-back came just after the buzzer.

Michael Redd led the Suns with 19 points. Redd and Sebastian Telfair, who had nine points, combined for 14 points during a 14-2 run fourth-quarter run that put Phoenix up 97-87 with 6:43 remaining. Nash also had nine assists.

Millsap brought Utah back, even stealing the ball from Nash. Nash made amends, hitting the winner with 1.7 seconds left.

Nash looked as if he might be the goat after he had the ball stolen by Millsap, then committed a clear-path foul with 34 seconds left and Phoenix up by three.

Millsap made just one of two free throws, but Al Jefferson hit a jumper that tied it at 103 with 28 seconds left.

Nash responded with a 15-foot jumper with 14 seconds left.

Jefferson tied it again after Millsap fed him for an easy layup with 9.4 seconds left, only see Nash get the ball in the lane and hit the jumper with 1.7 seconds remaining.

C.J. Miles' last-ditch shot was well short, but Millsap grabbed it and put it in. Officials reviewed the play and determined it was after the buzzer.

Bruins Rule Minico Invitational

BY RYAN HOWE

RUPERT • All the brownies, cookies and random goodies awaiting Sydney Lee on the bus ride home were well-deserved for the birthday girl.

The junior Twin Falls golfer celebrated her 17th birthday Wednesday with a win at the Minico Invitational at Rupert Country Club.

Lee had a terrific front nine with three birdies — including back-to-back birdies on Nos. 8 and 9 — and finished with an 81.

It was a similar story for Lee, who won the Minico Invitational last year by playing a solid front nine, but only so-so on the back.

"The front nine is always better for me. I felt like I connected a lot more with my shots," Lee said "The back nine always tricks me somehow."

tational and three shots better than her District IV tournament score last year on this same course, despite Wednesday's wind.

"The course was really great. It wasn't playing too tough today, but it made it almost fair with the weather conditions," Lee said.

Twin Falls' girls dominated the team scoring with 387, 69 strokes ahead of runner-up Minico. Lee said the Bruins are following the lead of senior teammate and College of Idaho signee Katherine Reed.

"With Katherine on the team... I feel like she's really there and she's playing well," Lee said. "She makes me feel like I have to play better each time. All my teammates have been playing really well this year so it's an extra push."

Twin Falls also won the boys competition, led by Alec Meyerhoeffer's 3-over-par 74, two strokes ahead of teammate and runner-up Kyle Miley.

Petersen

There has been no plan of any kind to name a starter at the end of spring ball. At the same time, the field won't be whittled down from four, either.

"We don't have a plan on that," Petersen said. "One of the things is we want competition. And the newer you are, the further you are from being ready. But the more days you have in our program, the faster you're going to catch up."

"In our ideal world, we'd know who our starter is right here," Petersen said. "But we're a ways away from that."

Petersen did say based on the results of the scrimmage that Southwick performed best.

"Joe knows the most," Petersen said. "In terms of the show and managing the game, he was probably the best there. Was he exactly where we needed him to be? No, and he'd tell you the same thing."

On defense, especially at defensive line, where the Broncos lose two near-certain high NFL draft picks in Shea McClellin and Billy Winn, Petersen noted tackle Mike Atkinson "running around and in as good of shape as I've seen him," as well as Demarcus Lawrence and Sam Ukwachu for "showing up."

Petersen talked at length about the experience gained last year by true freshmen Dallas Burroughs, Blake Renaud, Corey Bell and Lee Hightower, the pros and cons of playing true freshmen and the regret coaches feel at the end of their careers when they think they could have used their players' eligibility clocks better.

"You have to live in the here and now," summed up Petersen, who followed it up with a funny story about former Bronco linebacker Derrell Acrey relating to his true freshman season.

"We were very close to playing him as a freshman," Petersen said, who detailed a meeting between Acrey and the coaches about the possibility of playing in his first game in uniform.

"Yeah, whatever you guys think. I can do this," Petersen recalled Acrey as saying.

The 2006 opener against Sacramento State was a blowout, but Acrey didn't play, although the coaches had told him to mentally prepare himself by watching the game as if he were going in on the next play.

After that game, Acrey repeated what he had told the coaches the previous week.

"One more week and we'll make this decision," Petersen said, referring to the next opponent, Oregon State.

"The intensity level, the hitting level, fans, everything. It was different," Petersen said of the Broncos' 42-14 victory against the Beavers. "But we played great ... we called him back in and said, 'Darrel, what do you think?'"

"Ahhhh ... I think it would probably be good if I redshirt," said Acrey, a linebacker who finished his career with the Broncos after the 2010 season.

BUHL SOFTBALL POUNDS MINICO

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

BUHL • The Buhl softball team put runners on base in bunches in the opening game of its doubleheader with Minico on Wednesday.

The Indians didn't have quite as much success in Game 2 but grinded out the same result.

Buhl took both games from the Spartans, winning 18-3 and 8-7 to improve to 7-1 on the season.

Thirteen runs crossed the plate in the bottom of the first inning in the opener, leaving Minico squarely behind the 8-ball on the way to a three-inning shortened game.

Buhl had trouble adjusting to Spartan pitcher Hanna Munns in the nightcap, but when the Indians did they were able to scrape across enough runs despite being outhit.

"We just needed to adjust, because they were throwing a faster pitcher," said Buhl's Morgan Pearson, who won Game 1 in the circle and helped kick-start a four-run fourth that put the Indians over the top in Game 2. "Once we were able to do that the offense started Minico got off to a fast start against Cassidee Kippes in Game 2, putting four runs on the board in the first two innings and then adding two more in the fourth for a 6-4 lead.

But the Spartans could only get back to 8-7 after Buhl took the advantage, and Minico left the tying run on first base when a hard-hit ball to left field came up just short of the wall and rested in a defender's glove to end the game.

"It's hard to come back from a loss like that, but the team never gave up," said Munns, who was 2-for-3 in addition to her steady pitching performance in the circle. "We kept hoping until the final out, and we got a funny hit (that kicked off of first base) to make it 8-7, but it wasn't quite enough."

state tournaments will continue their rotation around the state, at least for now.

There was talk of permanently staging the tournaments in the Boise area, as is done for basketball and all baseball tournaments except the 2A tournament. Baseball state tournaments, however, are not IHSAA-sanctioned.

• The state competition sportsmanship rule regarding face painting was modified to allow only paintings covering a small area of the face. Previously fans could paint up to half their face at state competitions.

• A proposal to waive the transfer rule in regards to tryouts moved forward. Currently, a hypothetical player that was cut from basketball tryouts at School

A this season and transfers to School B for the 2012-13 school year would not be eligible to play basketball immediately even though he or she never played a game for School A.

• The board elected not to institute a mandatory 10-day dead period prior to the beginning of the school year. Instead, according to Jones, a no-contact period between athletes and coaches will be "strongly recommended" but not required.

Ex-Eagle Wesner Keys Big Upset

TIMES-NEWS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. •

Former College of Southern Idaho first baseman Michael Wesner had three hits as the University of North Florida surprised No. 1-ranked Florida 10-5 on Tuesday, handing the Gators their first loss to unranked opposition this season.

Wesner went 3-for-4 and scored twice for the Ospreys, who improved to 18-13 on the season and evened the all-time series with Florida at 5-5. North Florida is 3-0 at home against the national powers from Gainesville.

The 10 runs are the most Florida (24-5) has allowed this season.

"... You see a kid after working with him a while and then he takes a good round of (batting practice) and it clicks, almost like the light bulb turns on. That's fun for me to see."

Jared Price, retired pro baseball player

Once the players became comfortable having a local legend around, they began taking advantage of his vast knowledge.

"He's helped with every part of my game," said Minico catcher Marty Pawson, who credits Price for improving his receiving, framing and footwork. "He's not just a good player, he's a good coach. He's been there."

And now he's back where it all started.

In the spring of 2000, Major League Baseball scouts flocked to Warburton Field to watch the all-American catcher bat .636, collect 68 RBIs and belt 17 home runs — all school records.

Price was a seventh-round draft pick by the Los Angeles Dodgers and spent his career among four organizations: Dodgers, Royals, A's and White Sox. Although he never achieved his goal of playing in the majors — perhaps partially due to an untimely shoulder injury in 2003 — Price has no complaints about a long, distinguished career in the minors.

"I enjoyed 12 years of it," Price said. "That's not something a lot of people get the opportunity to experience... I thought I worked hard and I thought I did everything I could. I didn't catch some breaks sometimes when I thought I needed to, but I enjoyed it and I did a pretty good job of it."

In his last few pro seasons, the White Sox were grooming Price, who turned 30 last month, to become a coach. While he's currently unsure what the next chapter in his life will entail, baseball, at some level, will certainly be part of Price's future.

"I still want to stay in the game because I still love the game. It's a great game," Price said. "I enjoy working with the kids. I enjoy being able to talk with the kids and interact with them. You see a kid after working with him a while and then he takes a good round of (batting practice) and it clicks, almost like the light bulb turns on. That's fun for me to see."

Greek Track Halts Operations

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATHENS, Greece •

Greece's track and field authority suspended all athletic operations Wednesday due to severe spending cuts — the latest twist in the debt-strapped nation's three-year financial freefall. A text of Wednesday's decision, taken after an emergency meeting of the federation's board, said the suspension was indefinite. The move immediately halts all domestic track and field competitions, including a meet on May 12. Although the suspension does not affect international competitions like the 2012 London Olympics at the moment, the federation will meet again in two weeks and could toughen its stance if the government fails to respond.

“(We) call on the sporting leadership ... to intervene and avert the economic dead-end and the disintegration of track and field,” the federation said in a statement.

Federation president Vassilis Sevastis told The Associated Press on Tuesday his agency was considering the suspension due to deep cuts in state funding that have left coaching staff and suppliers unpaid for months. He said the federation was unable to cover its basic needs.

MIAMI •

The sellout crowd in the Miami Marlins' new ballpark cheered the introduction of their starters, who were accompanied by women dressed as Latin showgirls. There was another roar for Muhammad Ali, who delivered the first pitch.

The crowd of 36,601 included newly retired Cardinals manager Tony La Russa, who quietly rooted for his former team from the press box.

He watched Lohse retire the first 10 batters before hitting Emilio Bonifacio with a pitch. The runner was erased when Hanley Ramirez grounded into a double play. Newcomer Jose Reyes singled for Miami's first hit to start the seventh, and Omar Infante scored the Marlins' run in the eighth on John Buck's double. Lohse went 7 1-3 innings, allowing only two hits and one run.

Then Kyle Lohse and the World Series champion St. Louis Cardinals went to work, and the place grew quiet.

David Freese, the World Series MVP, had a two-run single in the first inning to give Lohse the cushion he needed. Freese and Rafael Furcal each had three of the Cardinals' 13 hits.

Lohse held Miami hitless until the seventh inning and pitched into the eighth to help the Cardinals win the first game in Marlins Park, 4-1 Wednesday night.

Crowd Welcomes Home Baylor Champs

WACO, Texas •

These are heady times at Baylor. A few months ago, quarterback Robert Griffin III became Baylor's first Heisman Trophy winner. In March, the men's basketball team advanced to the NCAA round of 16 for the second time in three years. Together, those two teams won 40 games and lost 11 over this year.

Lady Bears won 19 games this season and have gone 184-19 during Mulkey's 12 years at the school — to welcome the team back to Waco after its championship game win in Denver.

“You do not win championships with one player, two players,” Mulkey told the crowd. “You need five, six, seven, eight people heading the same direction. I told them in the locker room after the game, many hours after the game when we were still there: ‘Any one of you can go to another university and play 40 minutes a game and average double figures, but you would not have gotten this trophy right here.’”

Fundraising efforts are going gangbusters and applications to enroll are up. And then there are the Lady Bears, Kim Mulkey's women's basketball team that just went 40-0 to win the program's second NCAA championship. Player of the year Brittany Griner led the way to an 80-61 rout Tuesday night against Notre Dame.

Mukley received a congratulatory phone call from President Barack Obama earlier Wednesday. The President directed the Lady Bears to win the national championship before the tournament started.

Some 2,000 people turned out Wednesday at the Ferrell Center — Baylor's home arena, where the

Payne: No Comment on Membership Issues at Augusta

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUGUSTA, Ga. • Jabbed, prodded and poked repeatedly about a topic that never really goes away, Billy Payne wouldn't budge.

Faced with questions at his annual news conference about when a woman would become a member at the home of the Masters, the Augusta National chairman gave different variations of the same answer: That's our business, not yours.

The topic was on the front burner again Wednesday, the eve of the year's first major, because one of the club's longtime sponsors, IBM, has a new CEO — Virginia Rometty. The last four CEOs at IBM, all male, have been invited to be members.

Payne's polite-but-firm responses were in direct contrast to those of his predecessor, Hootie Johnson. Faced with the issue 10 years ago, Johnson famously declared female membership would come on the club's timetable and "not at the point of a bayonet."

"As has been the case whenever that question is asked, all issues of membership have been and are subject to private deliberations of the members," Payne said when the inevitable question was asked for the first time Wednesday. "That statement remains accurate and that remains my statement."

Asked to expand on his refusal to comment, he gave two reasons: "Number One, we don't talk about our private deliberations. Number Two, we especially don't talk about them when a named candidate is part of the question."

He did not say whether Rometty was that specific "named candidate."

The issue first came up in 2002, when Martha Burk, then the chair of the National Council of Women's Organizations, campaigned for Augusta National to end its all-male membership and threatened to boycott companies whose executives belonged to the club. Johnson responded by cutting loose corporate backers and the Masters was televised without commercials for the next two years. A planned protest before the 2003 Masters was a dud and the issue slowly receded.

When Payne replaced Johnson as chairman of the club and of the Masters tournament in 2006, he said there was "no specific timetable" for admitting women. The question was raised at the 2007 and 2010 Masters. Both times, Payne said membership issues were private.

Today, in addition to IBM, Exxon Mobile and AT&T are also sponsors of the Masters.

Contacted after Payne's news conference, Burk said she didn't pay attention to it and had no plans to protest this year because "we saw that didn't work."

It's not her job to pressure the club, she said, but rather, IBM's.

"If they're willing to diminish the company's image, and to discredit in a certain way their new CEO, that's a loud and clear statement," Burk said. "I would regret to see that very much. I think it's astounding that one of the largest corporations in the world is having their strings pulled by a bunch of old guys in Augusta."

Rometty, who took over as CEO on Jan. 1, is said to play golf sparingly. She is more passionate about scuba diving.

IBM spokesman Ed Barbini said the company had no comment.

Because the secrecy level at Augusta National is so high, there could already be a female member that nobody knows about. Though members are visible during the Masters because of their iconic green jackets, not every member is in attendance this week.

Several reporters, trying to get a clearer picture of what goes on inside these gates, came at the question from different angles. Each time Payne graciously swatted them away, preferring to talk about the weather, developments of the club's digital platforms and other issues surrounding the tournament that starts today.

Not So Easy to Cheer for Tiger Anymore

AUGUSTA, Ga. • He could have used the 23 minutes to practice his putting, or check out the new slope on the 16th green. It might have been enough time for a quick lunch in the player's lounge, or a friendly chat with first round playing partner Sang-Moon Bae.

But there were questions to be answered, stories to be told. Tiger Woods understands this as well as anyone, so he dutifully headed to the interview room in the Masters media center to face the inevitable onslaught of queries about his game and his life.

A few hours earlier, Rory McIlroy sat in the same room and talked about the final round meltdown last year that would have destroyed a lesser golfer. He was alternately serious and charming, especially so when he talked about a conversation he had with Greg Norman about losing a heartbreaker at Augusta National.

"Sorry. I wasn't born," McIlroy said at one point, drawing laughter when asked if he and Norman discussed a near miss in the 1980s.

A tough act to follow, not that Woods even tried. He had his script, and he was sticking to it.

The questions were mostly friendly, the responses entirely sterile. An attempt at telling a story about his first Masters with Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus had already been told many times, and seemed mostly an exercise in filling the time he was forced to stay in his chair.

That, too, was surely in the script. Better to fill time than to let one question slip in about how he had managed to overcome the emotional turmoil of his past to regain his position as the favorite to win his fifth green jacket this week.

His game is back, yes. That was perfectly clear two weeks ago when he wore down the field the way Woods always used to in his prime to win for the first time on the PGA Tour since a shocking sex scandal derailed his career and his life.

Took a while, and it came with a new swing. But it sure looked a lot like the same old Tiger we used to know and love.

He's not so loved anymore, though you wouldn't know it by the crowds who cheer his every shot. Maybe they just

The fans still come out in droves to watch Tiger Woods, here hitting his tee shot from the 15th hole, play. But some fans are finding it harder to cheer for him.

Associated Press

love his game. A survey by Nielsen and E-Poll's N-Score, which measures endorsement potential, showed only 17 percent of respondents said they like Woods, compared to 52 percent who thought Phil Mickelson was appealing.

Hardly surprising, because Mickelson feels genuine when he speaks. He's engaging when it comes to fans, and he signs everything put in front of him.

Woods doesn't, and he's got a sordid past to boot. Winning another green jacket isn't going to change that, even if it drives up ratings for CBS.

His bag used to be sponsored by major brands like Buick and AT&T. Now it carries the name of an obscure company that makes energy and vitamin supplements that dissolve under your tongue.

Nike still stands behind him, but other corporations who once stood in line hoping to get his signature on an endorsement contract want nothing to do with him. An occasional foray into a group of fans to sign autographs notwithstanding, he still comes across as aloof and arrogant.

Two years ago, Woods sat in the same interview room, talking about his life and his comeback after months away from golf because of the scandal. He claimed he had learned his lesson, and vowed to be a more humble player.

There was no such attempt at introspection on Tuesday. He deflected the only question about his comeback by saying he was happy to be playing again in his 18th Masters at a place he finds so special. His other answers were so banal that even his favorite journalists couldn't bring themselves to write them down.

Want some insight into Woods? You're better off reading the new book from his former instructor Hank Haney than listening to Woods himself. Haney didn't exactly deliver any bombshells, but he offered up enough to anger Woods to the point where he got into a confrontation recently with a writer who had the temerity to ask about it.

That's the Woods of old, and that may be the only Woods who can win. He's got an insatiable desire to be in control, whether on the golf course or in delivering the message of the day to the media and what remains of his fan base.

It's not so easy anymore, but nothing is. Woods is an old 36 and if he wants to win at least five more majors to break the record of 18 set by Jack Nicklaus he needs to begin winning them again now. But there's a new generation of players who are not afraid of challenging him, and he hasn't won a major in nearly four years.

Still, when the Masters begins Thursday it will be surprising if Woods' name isn't on the leaderboard. He's been playing the tournament half his life now, and knows the course so well he finished fourth the last two years despite not having confidence in his rebuilt swing.

More importantly, the old swagger has returned. Being in contention won't be good enough.

"I'm here for the green jacket," he said.

Indeed, it could be a win for the ages. A fifth Masters title, and the start of a march toward the record book.

Just don't expect everyone to be cheering.

The Trustee's sale shall be made pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust to satisfy the obligation secured thereby. The sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrance. The Deed of Trust referred to herein was executed by MICHAEL J. SCHILZ and JAMIE M. O'DONNELL, unmarried persons, as Grantor, to Scot M. Ludwig, as original Trustee, for the benefit and security of Green Tree Servicing LLC fka Conseco Finance Servicing Corp. (Beneficiary), dated April 27, 2000, and recorded May 1, 2000, as Instrument No. 2002047, official records of Jerome County, Idaho, (the "Deed of Trust"). The beneficial interest under said Deed of Trust was assigned of record to U.S. Bank, National Association as Trustee on behalf of Manufactured Housing Contract Senior/Subordinate Pass-Through Certificate 2000-4, by Assignment of Deed of Trust executed by Green Tree Servicing LLC fka Conseco Finance Servicing Corp., dated November 1, 2011, recorded January 18, 2012, as Instrument No. 2120203, official records of Jerome County, Idaho, whereas Green Tree Servicing LLC is acting as the Servicer for Beneficiary, with delegated authority under the transaction documents. Alliance Title & Escrow Corp. has been appointed as Successor Trustee, pursuant to an Appointment of Successor Trustee dated October 7, 2011, and recorded January 18, 2012, as Instrument No. 2120202 records of Jerome County, Idaho. Pursuant to Idaho Code Section 28-9-604(2), the Lender has elected to proceed as to both the Real Property and the personal property attached thereon in accordance with its rights and remedies in respect to the Real Property described herein.

THE ABOVE GRANTOR IS NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45 1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THE GRANTOR IS, OR IS NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

- The defaults for which this sale is to be made are failure to pay:
- (i) the regular monthly payments of principal and interest, as set forth and required by the Deed of Trust and Note, due on June 5, 2011, in the amount of $551.98 and thereafter on the 5th day of each month until the date of sale or reinstatement;
  - (ii) late fees in the amount of $82.77 accrued through January 18, 2012, plus the greater of $5.00 or 5% of the unpaid amount of each payment of principal and interest not paid within 15 days of the due date, until the date of sale or reinstatement;
  - (iii) escrow fees; and
  - (iv) delinquent real property taxes for the years 2008, 2009, 2010 and the first half of 2011, together with penalties and interest; and
  - (v) real property taxes for the second half of the year 2011 and the year 2012.

The original loan amount was $64,246.38 with interest due thereon at the rate of 9.75% per annum, as evidenced by the Real Estate Note (the "Note") dated April 27, 2000, executed by Grantor payable to Lender. The principal balance due on the Note as of January 18, 2012 is $60,817.11.

The balance owing as of January 18, 2012, on the Note secured by the Deed of Trust and Note is $73,648.19 including principal, accrued interest and late charges, but excluding delinquent property taxes, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations under the above mentioned Deed of Trust and Note or in connection with this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees, as authorized in the Deed of Trust and Note.

THIS IS AN ATTEMPT TO COLLECT A DEBT, AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

PUBLISH: 03/22/2012, 03/29/2012, 04/05/2012, 04/12/2012SOLICITATION FOR PUBLIC COMMENT

Special use Permit -Virginia Tech Small Seismometer Line

Boise, Payette, Salmon-Challis, and Sawtooth National Forests

The Forest Supervisor of the Boise National Forest is soliciting public comments on the proposed Virginia Tech Small Seismometer Line Project. The project area is described as a generally east-west transect line along existing roads and trails. The transect line enters the Payette National Forest in sec. 23, T:14N, R:6W, of the Monroe Butte area and exits the Sawtooth National Forest in sec. 25, T:11N, R:16E, of the Holman Creek area.

The Proposed Action would allow Virginia Tech to place small seismometers in small, hand-dug holes of approximately 6 inches deep, 6 inches wide, and 18 inches long. The small seismometers would be temporarily deployed every 100-500 meters along the sides of existing roads and trails. The small seismometers would be placed in areas previously disturbed by road construction. Where previously disturbed areas are not obvious due to re-vegetation along the edges of a travel corridor, seismometers may be placed within 18 inches from the obvious edge of the travel surface of existing roads and trails.

The placement of the temporary small seismometers would occur between July and September of 2012. These small seismometers would be set out for a period of 2 to 8 days and then immediately retrieved and the holes filled. Vehicle travel associated with this project would be confined to authorized roads and motorized trails, consistent with the Forest Motor Vehicle Use Maps.

The purpose of the seismometer line is to support the geologic imaging activities associated with seismic reactions resulting from controlled source seismic shots permitted on lands managed by other Federal agencies and jurisdictions, other human-caused seismic activity, and natural earthquake activity that occurs during the deployment period. No controlled source seismic shots are proposed on the Boise, Payette, Sawtooth or Salmon-Challis National Forests, only the seismometer line.

This solicitation for public comment serves two purposes. First, it helps serve the purpose of "scoping" under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) regulations (40 CFR 1500-1508). Scoping is a public involvement process used to determine the scope of issues to be addressed and identify issues related to a proposed action.

Second, it provides those interested in or affected by this proposal an opportunity to make their concerns known before a decision is made by the Responsible Official, Boise National Forest Supervisor, Cecilia R. Seesholtz. Those who provide timely comments will be eligible to appeal the decision pursuant to the 36 CFR part 215 regulations. Each individual or representative from each organization that provides comment or otherwise expresses an interest in the project must either sign the comments or otherwise verify identity in order to attain appeal eligibility.

Comments concerning the project must be postmarked or received within 30 days following publication of this announcement and addressed to the Boise National Forest, ATTN: Cecilia R. Seesholtz, Forest Supervisor, Boise National Forest, 1249 S. Vinnell Way, Suite 200, Boise, ID, 83709 or sent electronically to comments-intermtn-boise@fs.fed.us. Electronic comments must be submitted in plain text or another format compatible with Microsoft Word. Comments may also be delivered to the above address during regular business hours of 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Comments can also be submitted by phone at 208-373-4157 or FAX to 208-373-4111.

Comments received in response to this request will be available for public inspection and will be released in their entirety if requested pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act.

Additional information concerning the project may be obtained from Randall Hayman at the address mentioned above or by calling 208-373-4157.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On August 2, 2012, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, at Insured Titles, 905 Shoshone St. N., Twin Falls, ID, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 10 in Block 6 of Bickel Addition, Twin Falls County, Idaho, recorded in Book 3 of Plats, Page 19.

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 169 Elm St., Twin Falls, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Steven Ford, a single man, as Grantor(s) with Nationpoint, a Division of Nat. City Bank of IN as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded November 21, 2005, as Instrument No. 2005026596, in the records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to First Franklin Financial Corporation, recorded January 25, 2006, as Instrument No. 2006001865. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to PNC Bank, National Association recorded March 26, 2012, as Instrument No. 2012005484, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:

Monthly payments in the amount of $800.79 for the months of October 2011 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $91,554.92 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 8.125% from September 1, 2011, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:

A Petition, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child comes within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.

You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho, on May 3, 2012 at 1:30 PM.

You are notified that service of the attached Petition upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of this child, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.

You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.

You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.

You are further notified that the child and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the child or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the child and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.

You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 2nd day of April, 2012.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On July 31, 2012, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock AM of said day, in the lobby of the Camas County Courthouse, 501 Soldier Rd., Fairfield, ID, JUST LAW, INC., as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Camas, State of Idaho, and described as follows to wit:

Lot 14 in Block 2 of BALDWIN ADDITION to the City of Fairfield, Camas County, Idaho according to the plat thereof recorded in the office of the County Recorder of said County

The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113 Idaho Code, the Trustee has been informed the address of 339 Winona Dr., Fairfield, ID, is sometimes associated with the said real property.

This Trustee's Sale is subject to a bankruptcy filing, a payoff, a reinstatement or any other conditions of which the Trustee is not aware that would cause the cancellation of this sale. Further, if any of these conditions exist, this sale may be null and void, the successful bidder's funds shall be returned, and the Trustee and the Beneficiary shall not be liable to the successful bidder for any damages.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possessions or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by Robbie J. Tupper and Chelsea L. Tupper, who acquired title as Chelsea Lynae Tupper, husband and wife as Joint Tenants, as Grantor(s) with Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems, Inc. as the Beneficiary, under the Deed of Trust recorded October 30, 2002, as Instrument No. 75674, in the records of Camas County, Idaho, Balloon Loan Modification Agreement recorded January 2, 2007, Instrument No. 2007-081213. The Beneficial interest of said Deed of Trust was subsequently assigned to Flagstar Bank, FSB, recorded March 22, 2012, as Instrument No. 2012-084323, in the records of said County.

THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay the amount due under the certain Promissory Note and Deed of Trust, in the amounts called for thereunder as follows:
Monthly payments in the amount of $752.39 for the months of November 2011 through and including to the date of sale, together with late charges and monthly payments accruing. The sum owing on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $74,708.50 as principal, plus service charges, attorney's fees, costs of this foreclosure, any and all funds expended by Beneficiary to protect their security interest, and interest accruing at the rate of 6.625% from October 1, 2011, together with delinquent taxes plus penalties and interest to the date of sale.

The Beneficiary elects to sell or cause the trust property to be sold to satisfy said obligation.
Dated this 26th day of March, 2012.

There are 270 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On April 5, 1862, during the Civil War, the monthlong Siege of Yorktown began in Virginia. (Because the Union commander, Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan, overestimated the enemy's strength and insisted on preparations for a full-scale assault, the Confederate defenders were finally able to slip away and head toward Williamsburg.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1614, Pocahontas, daughter of the leader of the Powhatan tribe, married English colonist John Rolfe in Virginia. (A convert to Christianity, she went by the name Lady Rebecca.)

In 1621, the Mayflower sailed from Plymouth Colony in present-day Massachusetts on a month-long return trip to England.

In 1792, President George Washington cast his first veto, rejecting a congressional measure for apportioning representatives among the states.

In 1887, in Tuscumbia, Ala., Anne Sullivan achieved a breakthrough as her blind and deaf pupil, Helen Keller, learned the meaning of the word "water" as spelled out in the Manual Alphabet.

In 1895, Oscar Wilde lost his criminal libel case against the Marquess of Queensberry, who'd accused the writer of homosexual practices.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed an executive order creating the Civilian Conservation Corps and naming its director, Robert Fechner.

In 1951, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were sentenced to death following their conviction in New York on charges of conspiring to commit espionage for the Soviet Union.

In 1964, Army General Douglas MacArthur died in Washington at age 84.

In 1976, reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes died in Houston at age 70.

In 1986, two American servicemen and a Turkish woman were killed in the bombing of a West Berlin discotheque, an incident which prompted a U.S. air raid on Libya more than a week later.

In 1987, Fox Broadcasting Co. made its prime-time TV debut by airing the premiere episodes of "Married... with Children" and "The Tracey Ullman Show" three times each.

In 1988, a 15-day hijacking ordeal began as gunmen forced a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet to land in Iran.

Ten years ago: U.S. mediator Anthony Zinni met with Yasser Arafat at the Palestinian leader's besieged West Bank headquarters on the bloodiest day of fighting since the beginning of Israel's week-old military offensive. The coffin of The Queen Mother Elizabeth was carried on a gun carriage through the streets of London to lie in state at Westminster Hall.

Five years ago: Fifteen Royal Navy crew members freed by Iran enjoyed their first night on English soil. A Greek cruise ship, the Sea Diamond, sank off an Aegean Sea island, forcing the evacuation of nearly 1,600 people; two French tourists went missing and were presumed to have drowned. FBI Special Agent Barry Lee Bush was accidentally shot and killed by a fellow agent as a stake-out team closed in on three suspected bank robbers in Readington, N.J. Darryl Stingley, a former New England Patriots player paralyzed during an on-field collision in 1978, died in Chicago at age 55.

Children under the age of eighteen.
THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS TO:
CHRISTOPHER HYIATT
42503 N Regal Road
Elk, Washington 99009

YOU ARE NOTIFIED THAT:
An Order Expanding Juvenile Corrections Act Proceeding To Child Protective Act Proceeding, a copy of which is attached, has been filed in the above-entitled matter in the Magistrate's Division of the District Court of Twin Falls County, Idaho, by the Prosecuting Attorney, alleging the above-named child, Keagan, comes within the Court's jurisdiction under the Child Protective Act.
You are hereby directed to appear personally for a Review Hearing on June 14, 2012 at 9:30 AM at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, 425 Shoshone Street, Twin Falls, Idaho.
You are notified that service of the attached Order Expanding Juvenile Correction Act Proceeding To Child Protective Act Proceeding upon you, as the parent(s), guardian, or custodian of this child, confers personal jurisdiction of the Court upon you and subjects you to the provisions of the Child Protective Act.
You are notified that if you fail to appear without reasonable cause, the Court may proceed in your absence or you may be proceeded against for contempt of Court.
You are notified that the parent(s), guardian, or a custodian may be financially liable for the support and/or treatment of the child.
You are further notified that the child and parent(s), guardian, or custodian have the right to be represented by an attorney of your choosing, or if financially unable to pay, have the right to have an attorney appointed by the Court to represent the child or the parent(s), guardian, or custodian at county expense. If you request to have an attorney appointed at county expense, you must appear before the date of the hearing given above, at which time the Court shall consider appointment of an attorney for the child and inquire whether the parent(s), guardian, or custodian require the separate appointment of an attorney.
You are further notified that there shall be a rebuttable presumption that if a child is placed in the custody of the IDHW and was also placed in care out of the home for a period not less than fifteen (15) out of the last twenty-two (22) months from the date of Adjudication, the IDHW shall initiate a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights. This presumption may be rebutted by a finding by the Court that the filing of a Petition for Termination of Parental Rights would not be in the best interest of the child and their family, or that the child is placed permanently with a relative.

WITNESS MY HAND AND SEAL of said Magistrate Court this 2nd day of April, 2012.
CLERK OF THE DISTRICT COURT

DEARABBY: "Robert" and I met four years ago and fell head-over-heels in love. At the time, he was two years clean and sober and attending meetings. Due to his hectic work schedule, he stopped attending the meetings.

Robert is intelligent, a hard worker, handsome and my best friend. He prided himself on his sobriety, so imagine my shock when I found an empty liquor bottle buried in the trash and three more under the bed. I never thought I'd see the day when he would relapse, but he has.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I am devastated. I didn't know what to say to him or how to react, because I have never been down this road.

I told Robert I knew he was drinking again. I could barely hold back my tears because I knew what a huge personal setback this is for him. He said he didn't want to discuss it, so I didn't push.

What am I supposed to do when the man I love has relapsed? My heart aches for him. I'm trying to be supportive, but I am clueless. Please help.

—HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS: The first thing to do is recognize that this is Robert's problem, and only he can fix it. If you plan to stay involved with him, understand that it is not unusual for someone with a substance abuse problem to fall off the wagon from time to time.

The next thing you should do, and this is important, is find your nearest chapter of Al-Anon. It's an organization that was started by the wife of an alcoholic, and its sole purpose is to help the family and friends of alcoholics. The toll-free phone number is 888-425-2666, and it has been mentioned in this column many times.

There will be meetings for you to attend so you can learn to avoid falling into the trap of trying to "save" or enable Robert, because in order for him to get better he must experience the consequences of going back to drinking. This is not easy to do with someone you care about, and you will need all of the support you can get.

By the way, your letter arrived in the same batch as the one below. It may give you some insight:

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I talked to my mother about her drinking. She's a binge drinker and her excuse is always, "It's my day off." I am focusing on myself and trying to figure out my life, as well, with the help of Al-Anon — the only thing that has kept me positive.

I knew that once I uttered the word "alcoholic" aloud, my relationship with my mother would forever be affected. I asked her to contact me when she was ready to quit because I can no longer enable her drinking.

I miss the mom who doesn't drink, but I can't be around her when she does. As I grow in my recovery, I may figure out how to do that. But for now, I need to put space between us.

My family is worried something drastic will happen (as her health isn't good) and I will have regrets. But I have expressed my thoughts and accepted that Mom and I may never speak again. Is that wrong?

—STILL A LOVING DAUGHTER IN WISCONSIN

DEAR STILL A LOVING DAUGHTER: No, it's not wrong. Your mother's binge drinking was affecting her health as well as her relationship with you, and while it may have been difficult and wrenching, it was the right thing to do — for both of you. Let's hope that your strength in doing that will give her the strength to stop her alcohol binges.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Rules and models destroy genius and art."

— William Hazlitt

Today's deal comes from a correspondent who remarked that the adverse result was fortunately just too small to have cost her side a victory in a knockout match. But the lesson of the deal is interesting, even if the play was not found at the table.

In one room, South opened with a weak two spades. West overcalled with two no-trump and North doubled. East removed to three clubs, but that was no real improvement, and eventually went down 500.

South for my correspondent's team decided to pass, and the auction developed as shown. When four spades was passed around to West, he thought for a considerable time before making his final pass.

West led the heart king and ace, then switched to a club. Declarer lost two spade tricks to go with the top hearts, but he could have (and probably should have) succeeded. After winning the club ace, he ruffs a club, ruffs a heart, ruffs another club, then plays off his top diamonds and ruffs a diamond. All he has left in hand are the spade A-Q-10. He exits with the spade queen and sits back and waits to make his ace and 10.

Incidentally, can you see where West went wrong? He should have continued with a third heart at trick three. By doing so, he removes a dummy entry, thus preventing the trump reduction.

ANSWER: This sequence (while not entirely unambiguous) is traditionally played as takeout, not penalty. So you should simply bid three clubs and await further developments, hoping that your partner does not hang you too high at his next turn.

During the next several weeks, you shine best in group settings, so by hooking up with business groups or financial organizations you can enjoy the best of all worlds. Between early May and late July, your ambitions may climb while your ability to get credit for a job well done plummets. Do not begin anything of great importance and give no one any reason to criticize you. Get to work on time, be precise. Cross your t's, dot those i's. Your hard work will pay off in November when you can apply for a promotion or your aptitude for business gets attention.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hijack someone else's good habits or winning ways. Find a role model and stick to him or her like glue. Imitation is the most sincere form of flattery, so to improve your chances, take the time to flatter away.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Tokens of your esteem may enhance the dream. Chocolate is quickly consumed, flowers quickly wilt, but a case of true love outlasts the gifts that are presented to a loved one. Do something nice for someone.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money doesn't grow on trees. Venus has moved into your sign and may have brought a love of the finer things in life along. Become more accustomed to leisure hours before you spend your cash.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Turn over a new leaf, but don't be a pushover. Be tough-minded when it comes to money and responsibility. The lure of the once-in-a-lifetime deal might look less appealing under shrewd scrutiny.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make educated guesses. You owe it to yourself to gather all the facts and learn as much as you can. Stop trying to please all the other people in your life. The health of your piggy bank is at stake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't play football when you are sitting on the bench. If you are going to complain about something, be prepared to do something about it. Don't crush someone's hopes and dreams like a beer can.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can go from proposition to proposal. A few letters mean all the difference to the person you have aimed your sights upon. Your good intentions decide whether someone takes you seriously or not.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The power to attract others is intoxicating. Yet you can't control who or what is attracted to you. You present an intriguing challenge for people outside your usual circle, but they might not appeal to you equally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): There is nothing wrong with being suspicious of an offer that seems too good to be true. Your trusted advisers can give you the benefit of their experience and objective reasoning powers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Sort out secrets and longstanding mysteries. The questions that have baffled you can be investigated and answered. An existing love relationship can move to new heights of ecstasy or understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sometimes playing hard to get isn't the only way to win someone's heart. Change tactics if the tried-and-true ones have quit working. Being a friend instead of a lover just might do the trick.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Father Time knows a thing or two. A clock that takes a licking and keeps on ticking might be hooked up to your heart. Before you obey the biological imperative, find out what makes him, or her, tick.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
