More than 45 Twin Falls School District students live in a motel and are classified as homeless.

The school district's population of homeless students has grown in recent years, due in part to the economy and better counting methods.

There were just two identified homeless students during the 2008-09 school year.

Now there are 189.

Idaho's Rural Towns Shrinking

Urban areas accounted for nearly all Gem State population growth between 2010 and 2011.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Idaho's small communities are getting smaller, as a new report shows nearly all the Gem State's population growth came in urban areas this past year.

The Idaho Department of Labor reported that more rural counties lost population between 2010 and 2011 than at any other time since the 1980s, according to U.S. Census Bureau data. While the state added nearly 14,000 residents during a 12month span that ended this past summer, data shows that only 20 of those new residents settled in rural communities.

The Big Picture

Idaho's most populous county spurred the state's growth last year. Ada County gained 7,376 residents, cresting the 400,000 population mark last summer. While Idaho grew at just less than 1 percent between 2010 and 2011, Ada County grew at more than twice that rate.

By summer 2011, more than 65 percent of all Idahoans lived in the state's metropolitan areas, up from about 56 percent in 1980.

Population gains in some of rural Idaho were offset in near-equal declines in 18 of the state's 33 remote counties. Elmore County lost 734 residents last year - nearly 3 percent of its population - while Boundary County saw a loss of 211 residents.

Jerome Officials Approve Sewer Line Contract

JEROME • Sometimes problems arise with just a little digging.

Jerome city officials are working to replace a 500-foot sewer line after construction workers exposed a problematic pipe in a separate project. Construction crews discovered the problem while excavating the new Head Start/Early Head Start center. Once open, the $1.06 million facility will be located near the Jerome School District's administrative office.

Jerome City Council members were asked at an emergency meeting on Wednesday to approve a contract be-

And while other sections of the city might need work done on them eventually, this project will start immediately because of the Head Start project, he said.

Tipped Concrete Truck Blocks U.S. 30 near Filer

TIMES-NEWS

FILER • An overturned concrete truck closed both lanes of U.S. Highway 30 between Filer and Buhl on Thursday.

While the crash involved three vehicles, including a commercial truck and a 1992 Ford F150 pickup, only the concrete truck's driver suffered minor injuries, said Twin Falls County Sheriff's spokeswoman Lori Stewart.

No one else was seriously injured in the accident, she said.

According to Idaho State Police, the accident was caused when the pickup's driver, Neil Paterson, 17, of Twin Falls, attempted to turn left from 2000 East Road onto U.S. 30. He collided with the westbound concrete truck, driven by Brett Olson, 53, of Twin Falls.

While Olson's truck eventually rolled onto its side and slid across the highway, Paterson's pickup clipped a 2006 Kenworth semitrailer headed east on U.S. 30, driven by Clyde McClain, 52, of Buhl. McClain saw the initial collision and had attempted to avoid the crash, according to ISP.

Alcohol is not believed to be a factor in the accident and seat belts were worn by all occupants, ISP Trooper Michael Faller said.

County sheriff's deputies responded to the crash at about 2 p.m., blocking both lanes of the highway near its intersections with 1900 East Road and 2000 East Road for about 3 1/2 hours. The Idaho Transportation Department and area fire department officials also responded to the accident.

Sgt. Daniel Brown to Be Returned to T.F. Today

TWIN FALLS • As flags across Idaho fly at half staff, the body of U.S. Army Sgt. Daniel Brown will arrive today in Twin Falls.

Brown, a 27-year-old Jerome resident, was killed March 24 while serving in Afghanistan.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has ordered that flags at all stateowned facilities fly at half staff through Saturday, to honor Brown and Air Force Capt. Frances Imlay, who was killed in an accident while deployed in southwest Asia.

Twin Falls city is also flying its flags at half staff through Saturday, and has asked businesses and residents to do the same.

Brown's private honorable transfer ceremony will happen today at Joslin Field, Magic Valley Regional Airport. The charter flight will originate from Dover Air Force Base in Delaware. On Saturday, Brown's funeral service — which the public is invited to attend — is scheduled for 4 p.m. Saturday at the College of Southern Idaho's gymnasium. It will be followed by burial with full military rites at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. City officials and the Idaho Transporta-

Other closures are possible. Donations may be made to the Dan Brown Memorial Fund at any Wells Fargo bank branch. Proceeds will benefit Brown's twin daughters. Memories of Brown may be shared at www.rosenaufuneralhome.com.

At Lincoln Elementary School, Principal Beth Olmstead said she's seen the school turn into a community focused on meeting the needs of its students. And that transcends academics.

About 27 homeless students attend the school, according to the latest school district data.

Accommodations can be made for homeless students who are identified. For instance. Olmstead said it's difficult for many to do homework without a quiet place available.

"Homework is really the last thing they think of getting done," she said.

A portion of federal Title I funding school districts receive to help students living in poverty goes toward homeless students. In the Twin Falls School District, that amounts to $3,613 this year.

At Lincoln Elementary, employees can help families make medical appointments, get glasses for children and cover field trip fees. The school also has a closet full of clothes, a food pantry and a weekend backpack food program.

Students also receive vouchers from the Deseret Industries thrift store to get clothing and supplies.

Store Manager Wayne Tonge said vouchers are typically for between $20 and

A few months ago, the family moved to Twin Falls in order to be close to a hospital due to Van Holland's complicated pregnancy. Van Holland's job - which came with housing - was filled while she was away.

Van Holland has five girls, ages 2 months to 11 years. Her older children attend Lincoln Elementary.

One of her children, she said, is having trouble adjusting to life at the shelter. But she said her other children are doing well, making friends in school and getting good grades. At Super 7 Motel, Crystal

Her husband collects $301 per week in unemployment benefits. Federico is also looking for a job and fills out applications daily.

"The kids have been through a lot," she said.

on Thursday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Police received the case in mid-March from a U.S. Secret Service agent in Boise. The agent said he had been given a referral from a Wells Fargo Bank investigator who said Whittemore had stolen about $1,630 between Aug. 26 and Sept. 16.

On Sept. 17, a manager performed a random audit on Whittemore's cash drawer and said it came up $1 short. A few days later, a manager performed another audit and said the drawer was $200 short. From there, an investigation was started.

According to court documents, Whittemore admitted to falsifying her teller balancing records on numerous dates in order to conceal her thefts.

Police say Whittemore stole $850 on Aug. 26. Several more thefts over the next few weeks totalled $1,710. Whittemore said she repaid $80 after her cash drawer was audited.

In an interview with police, Whittemore allegedly said she stole the initial $850 to cover a bill for an online college course and took the other money because of financial hardships and other bills.

City of Filer Denies Residential Rezone

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE For the Times-News

FILER • The city of Filer has turned down a request to change the zoning of four lots on the southeast end of Main Street from commercial to residential. City Council members made the decision Tuesday after hearing opposition to rezoning lots 12-16. Residents argued the move could harm the use of the properties, as well as efforts to eliminate or reduce spot zoning — land completely isolated from anything else in its zoning category — in the city's comprehensive plan.

Main Street residents Larry and Sheri Underwood came before the council last month with a plan to tear down their existing residence and construct a two-story replacement. The site's commerry Underwood said Tuesday. "All I want is a permit so I can start building before winter gets here."

Their neighbor, John Darnall, was concerned that a zoning change would impact both the use and the sale potential of his

"The change would affect me if we ever decided to sell our property," Darnall said. "If someone wanted to live there or start a business, right now, they could do both. If someone wants a rezone for their own property, they should do it themselves."

Filer City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich suggested that, since the Underwoods' southern property line adjoins a residential zone, they should look into just rezoning their own property. Though unusual, it would avoid spot zoning, he said.

Locally, the eight-county area of south-central Idaho saw population grow by only 732 residents between 2010 and 2011. Blaine, Gooding and Lincoln counties all saw population decreases, mainly spurred by people moving out of the counties at a greater rate than new births.

Blaine County, known for its high cost of living, saw its population sputter out of the Great Recession. Its roughly 21,300 residents in 2010 dipped by 135 in the following year.

Twin Falls and Jerome counties, parts of which combine to form the Twin Falls micropolitan area, accounted for nearly all of south-central Idaho's population growth, adding 736 residents.

T.F. Man Found Guilty of 10 Counts Child Sex Abuse

alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A jury has found a Twin Falls man guilty on 10 charges of child sex crimes.

Aaron William Frandsen, 34, was accused of raping a female relative starting in 2006, when the girl was 7 or 8 years old.

Frandsen was charged with 10 counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16 when he was indicted by a Twin Falls grand jury on Dec. 19.

According to the indictment, the abuse occurred at several residences throughout Twin Falls, the latest occurring between Aug. 1, 2009, and May 31, 2010, when the child was 11 years old.

The trial for the case began Wednesday and closing arguments wrapped up Thursday morning. The jury began deliberating at 9:30 a.m.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH Thursday and returned just after 2 p.m. with the guilty verdict.

Both the victim and Frandsen testified at the trial along with a school guidance counselor, a Twin Falls police detective and a doctor who examined the victim.

Prosecutor Suzanne Craig asked the jury not to make their decision based on emotions about the victim or Frandsen, but rather the plain evidence. Defense attorney Sam Beus pointed out differences in the testimony of the victim and a counselor who had spoken with her.

Republican Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter spent an hour visiting Whaley in the hospital recently, calling him a great friend and praising his contributions to the Workforce Development Council.

"Dave was a good man," Otter told The Statesman. "Even in supporting my political opponents, as he had to do, he was always evenhanded and fair."

Idaho Department of Labor Director Roger Madsen partnered with Whaley and business leaders to reform unemployment insurance rates at the request of employ-

"It was a love of labor and a labor of love, Hedge said. "He was always for the worker and a voice for dignity and respect in the workplace?'

fort to get a much stiffer proposal in front of voters in November was credited by some lawmakers as motivation for passing the tougher penalties this year.

But the new law, which goes into effect July 1, has also softened the sense of immediacy among some animal rights groups for getting an initiative before voters this year. So far, a ballot initiative pursued by Idaho 1 of 3 faces an uphill battle, with organizers having collected a little more than half of the nearly 50,000 signatures required by the end of the month to qualify for the November election. Animal rights advocates lauded Otter and lawmakers for adopting a tougher law on animal cruelty, but they are far from satisfied. Strategies are already being developed for next year to strengthen animal protections overall and improve upon the new law, which is seen by some as too weak and narrow to actually produce any felony convictions.

Lisa Kauffman, Idaho state director of the Humane Society of the United States, said she is trying to organize meetings with the agriculture industry and animal welfare groups to create a definition of and penalties for animal torture – which applies to behavior considered more extreme and malicious than cruelty. A bill to do just that was left on the cutting room floor in the Senate.

For now, Kauffman said her group is content to give the Legislature another chance next year to pass an animal torture measure before pursuing reform at the ballot box.

"I really think these bills should be going through the Legislature," Kauffman said. "If we can't get that done, an initiative by HSUS is definitely on the table?

Nampa Hammer Killing May Have Been Premeditated

Lead investigator reads aloud in court from a message sent by suspect two days before her mother died from blunt force trauma to the head.

IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

CANYON COUNTY • Based on witness testimony – and a text message suggesting prior intent to kill – Judge Brian Lee ruled there is sufficient evidence to move forward in the case of a Nampa woman suspected of murdering her Kelly Singh, 40, will be arraigned on the felony charge of first-dregree murder April 13 before Judge Bradley Ford. Singh is represented by Canyon County public defenders.

Nampa Police Detective Brice King, lead investigator in the case, read aloud during a preliminary hearing from a text message sent by Singh to her sister:

"Help, I want to kill Ruth, the b—-don't care about me at all, she wants me gone," King read from a photograph taken from Singh's cell phone. "I want to bash her head in, but I don't want it to go to me ... this may happen within two days."

The message was dated two days before Ruth Collins, Singh's mother, died from blunt force trauma to the head.

Michael McClune, who lives near the home shared by Collins and Singh on the 4400 block of Long Valley Place, testified earlier in the hearing that Singh had pounded on his door around 11 p.m. Feb. 28. He said Singh was at his front door with a red substance he believed to be blood on her face and clothing.

"The first thing she told me, that she repeated four or five times, 'I killed her, I killed her, mom's dead, I know I killed her," McClune testified.

Nampa Police officers Matt Thomas and William Koho – the first two officers to arrive on scene - also testified in Wednesday morning's hearing. Thomas responded to a disturbance call at Collins and Singh's home, where he said Singh answered the door, he said, and asked if he could enter the home. She initially said yes, according to his testimony, but then changed her mind. Nonetheless, he forced his way into the home to investigate the blood he saw on her hands.

According to Koho's testimony, he was in the area and responded to assist Thomas. Koho conducted a quick search of the house. When he got to the master bedroom, he said, he shouted back to Thomas.

"I found an elderly female laying on the bed with significant head injuries," Koho recalled. "She was gasping, doing agonal breathing," which he described as the death throes of the body.

Thomas testified he was waiting elsewhere in the house with Singh as Koho searched the house.

"I could hear him yell, 'Cuff her!'" Thomas told the court.

Prosecutors played an 18-minute video of Singh's interview with Detective King shortly after the incident. Singh appeared to understand what she had done, but did not know Collins was dead.

"You don't know how my mom is, she's never going to get over this," Singh told King in the video.

At other times during the video, Singh expressed concern for her dog, and asked King for a cigarette.

Singh will next appear in court 9 a.m. April 13 before Judge Bradley Ford.

Otter Declares Disaster for Soggy Bonner County

SANDPOINT • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has issued a disaster declaration to help Bonner County in northern Idaho deal with record rain and snowmelt that have damaged roads and triggered landslides.

Otter approved the declaration this week. Idaho Bureau of Homeland Security Director Bill Shawver says record rainfall for the region created conditions ripe for wide scale damage to roads.

The Bonner County Daily Bee reports that crews are out clearing or replacing culverts across the county, removing fallen trees and patching and refilling holes in gravel roads. Officials estimate the damage to public infrastructure is nearing $1 million.

Wyoming and Park County had protested that court incorrectly ruled in February that the state could only argue it was economically affected by snowmobile restrictions at the park's East Entrance.

The National Park Service is drafting new snowmobile limits for Yellowstone that should be in effect by next winter. The court ruling will be important to the state if it wants to challenge those forthcoming limits.

Appeals Court Upholds Conviction in 2009 Slaying

LEWISTON • An Idaho appeals court has upheld the conviction of a Lewiston man who killed his wife on Valentine's Day in 2009

The Idaho Court of appeals unanimously ruled this week that a lower court did not err during the trial of 42-year-old Gary Mallory.

Mallory is serving 30 years to life for strangling his 48-year-old wife, Charlene Mabie Mallory. He was convicted by a jury of firstdegree murder and felony domestic violence.

In their appeal, attorneys for Mallory challenged the trial judge's decision to allow prosecutors to present evidence of rib injuries suffered by the wife before her death.

Fifty-one-year-old Stanley William Mills pleaded guilty to grand theft by embezzlement in 7th District Court on Wednesday.

His plea was part of an agreement reached with prosecutors who contend he took the money over several years while serving as an executive for Environmental Management

The Post Register reports Mills admitted to taking the cash between 2007 and 2009. In some cases, evidence shows he wrote checks and deposited company money into personal accounts and used company money to pay personal credit cards. Records show he also manipulated federal withholding docu-Gunstream has been held at the Canyon County Jail since his arrest in January on two felony theft charges. He had been under investigation since 2009 after acknowledging in letters that he took $598,000 from eight properties he managed.

He told investigators he transferred money out of tenants' accounts when he needed it to cover his own expenses because his income from real estate sales had declined. Gunstream reported $2.1 million in debt when filing for bankruptcy.

He pleaded guilty Wednesday to one of the theft charges.

Sheriff: 17-year-old Driver Cited Following Crash on Idaho 16

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Ada County Sheriff's deputies ticketed a 17year-old boy Thursday morning after officials say he drove a pickup truck into the path of an SUV on Idaho 16.

Emergency crews had to cut the 64-year-old driver out of wreckage of an SUV, but it appears that person did not sustain any lifethreatening injuries, sheriff's officials said.

Witnesses told investigators that the driver of a pickup truck, going south on Idaho 16, tried to turn on to Floating Feather Road and drove into the path of the SUV going north.

The 17-year-old driver and his 16-year-old passenger in the pickup truck were not hurt in the collision but the driver of the SUV and a 5-year-old child inside were taken by paramedics to a local hospital for treatment of what appear to be non lifethreatening injuries, according to reports. A 3-year-old in the SUV was not injured.

The crash was reported to Ada County dispatch at 7:53 a.m. The entire intersection was closed for a short period and traffic was backed up in the area for about an hour while emergency crews removed the debris and deputies gathered evidence.

Sheriff's officials did not identify the boy because he is under the age of 18 but did say he was cited for failure to yield.

Heyburn Council's Actions Show Its Disregard for the Public

ten to the people who elected them. After a few meetings of sitting through public comment, they become annoyed. They begin to see the public as an impediment to "getting things done."

And before you know it, our elected officials have forgotten who they serve.

It's a well-worn road the Heyburn City Council has taken.

Sure, it's more efficient to make decisions without the "interruption" of the public and their pesky opinions. But it is not how things are done in a representative democracy.

Here's What Happened:

cial contractor. The council also voted to require businesses to use the service.

- At the March 28 council meeting, the public came out in droves to ask the council to reconsider. Instead of making a decision that night, the council declined to take action.
- Less than 24 hours later, the Heyburn City Council called an emergency meeting on March 29 to approve the contract with PSI Environmental Systems. (Idaho Open Meeting Law requires public meeting notices to be posted at least 24 hours in advance of the meeting's start, unless an emergency exists. The council cited "immediate financial loss" as the emergency requiring them to hold a meeting with less than 24 hours notice.) According to meeting minutes on the city of Heyburn website, City Attorney Steven Tuft said the PSI contract approved on March 14 was sent to PSI. which had some changes it wanted to make to rates for the charges for commercial containers. Those suggested rates were not received until late on March 28, according to the minutes.

- · Heyburn's contract with PSI began April 1.
- In a Monday interview with the Times-News, Tuft offered no comment about why Thursday's meeting was called after the council declined to make the contract decision Wednesday. He said his comments were limited due to a threat that the city could be sued over the issue. Tuft said the city originally asked to hold the meeting on Friday to satisfy the 24-hour notice requirement, but didn't due to his unavailability that day.

The council had two options that would have shown a commitment to the public. They could have made a final decision on Wednesday or posted 24-hour notice for a meeting on Friday. (A city council can meet without the presence of a city

Liberals Reveal Double Standard

If liberals didn't have double standards, they wouldn't have any standards at all and, with the liberal media, hypocrisy rules the day.

Two years ago, President Obama signed into law the Affordable Health Care Act (HR3962), better known as "Obamacare." Immediately after this legislation was passed and signed into law, Sarah Palin cautioned that the implementation of this health-care law would require "death panels" to decide who was worthy, because of age or other factors, to receive medical treatment or medications which would extend the quantity of life or enhance the quality of life. In less than 24 hours after making this statement, the liberal media labeled Ms. Palin an "uninformed fool" for making this assertion about death panels.

Several days ago, former Vice President Dick Cheney received a heart transplant after experiencing decades of heart trouble and five separate heart attacks. And now, guess who the strongest proponents of the so-called death panels are, the death panels they said wouldn't be a part of the health-care law? Mr. Cheney had barely been wheeled out of the operating room when liberals were loudly protesting that Cheney didn't deserve this heart transplant because, at 71 years of age, he was "too old." Could there be any clearer signal as to what liberals have always intended to do once this legislation fully becomes law? Hypocrisy, double standard? Ya think?

The United States Supreme Court is now taking up the case of The (Affordable?) Health Care Act, specifically whether certain clauses such as the individual mandate are, in fact, constitutional. If this legislation, Obamacare, is not ruled unconstitutional or overturned, one day soon some liberal may be deciding whether you and I, like Dick Cheney, are worth keeping around.

Wind Energy Becoming More Affordable, Attainable

There seems to be some misunderstandings in your recent editorial on wind power ("It's Time for Wind to Fend for Itself," March 23).

First, the federal law requiring utilities to buy power from independent renewable power plants had a size limit for those plants of 80 megawatts or 80,000 kilowatts. Idaho's setting of a limit of 100 kilowatts just 1/800th of the federal limit, far smaller than the average size of a single modern wind turbine - was basically an attempt to nullify the law, so it's no wonder wind developers have had to be creative to install projects.

Second, wind power's cost is coming down. Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory reported recently that the cost of wind-generated electricity is at an all-time low. Wind turbine prices have dropped sharply in recent years, due to the scaling up of turbine size to reduce cost of energy and the growth of a domestic supply chain.

Third, wind today provides just 2 percent of Idaho's electricity and is growing much more slowly than in surrounding states. That makes it very hard to see how, if electric bills increase, wind is to blame. More likely causes: a new natural gas plant (at a cost of more than $300 million) and relicensing of the Hells Canyon hydropower complex.

It's interesting to contrast Idaho Power's approach toward wind with that of MidAmerican Energy. MidAmerican, a major Iowa utility, fought that state's first-in-the-nation renewable energy standard in court for many years, but under its new owner, legendary investor Warren Buffett, has become the national leader in building its own wind farms, installing nearly 600 MW in 2011 alone. Meanwhile, Idaho Power continues to drag its feet instead of making a serious commitment to clean energy.

More to Being a Christian Than Saying You're One

I personally think that the column about non-religious Christians published on the Opinion page (March 29) is a way to avoid doing what has been prescribed for Christians to do by father God.

The Bible has the instructions needed to use to be an "appropriate" Christian. You can call yourself a Christian without actually doing the things outlined in the Bible. Many persons who call themselves Christians do not know what is in the Bible. Therefore, I challenge persons who profess to be Christians to read and study the

I do not say this with any malice, anger or sarcasm. It is said because God tells us that we should have an answer for the faith for which we profess. This is written in First John.

It is easier just to say "I am a Christian" without knowing what God wishes for Christians to do. I am glad that people do profess to be Christians, but there is more to it than that. Please talk to your preacher, minister, priest or whoever you admire as knowledgeable about the Bible.

GOP Setting Itself Up for Four More Years of Obama

Correction, Mr. Billington (aka Grant Loebs and Jennifer):

The problem with a local county Republican Central Committee is that it is controlled and run by county employees. The district attorney (Grant) and assistant district attorney who recently resigned (thank you, Jennifer) should not be involved in the local political process of overseeing the election of committeemen or committee chairman. This is a huge conflict of interest and reminiscent of having the fox guarding the chicken coop and is a county-level dictatorship.

Representative government should come from the people up, not from the government down. The Idaho GOP has committed suicide by disenfranchising all military members, the elderly and more than two-thirds of its own constituents who could not attend the caucus to vote for a presidential candidate of their choice. They certainly do not need any help from Dan or Rick, and my intentions are far from "taking over the Twin Falls

The "Republicrat" system is a Hegelian two-party system of thesis, antithesis, synthesis - create the problem, come up with the solution to the problem and the solution is always predetermined and usually means more control and more government.

The outcome will be the picking of an establishment candidate (i.e., Mc-Cain in the previous campaign) who is a predetermined loser and the elimination of any viable nonestablishment candidate who has real crossover votes and grassroots support by disenfranchising the majority of their own party.

The synthesis will be four more years of Obama and a country in great peril. The only reason I am a Republican is because of Ron Paul. When Ron Paul is no longer in the Republican Party, I believe the Republican Party will die from self-inflicted wounds, and this free republic could suffer the same fate.

Despite our disagreements, Mr. Billington, we are all in the same boat.

Public Invited to See New Burley Library Building

As Friends of the Burley Public Library, we are excited about the proposed new library building. We invite everyone to come to a special program featuring the new library. It will be a one-hour "brown-bag" event at noon April 12 at the Burley Public Library. Friends will furnish a vegetable plate.

The proposed new library building will address many needs while providing greater efficiencies. There will be adequate space and separate areas for children, young adults, students needing to study, people using computers and others wanting to read and relax. The space is configured so that the librarians can see all these areas from the front desk, making it easy for them to monitor everything. The book processing area will be directly behind the front desk, so that librarians can quickly move from book processing to helping patrons. A great bonus for our both our Friends group and the librarians is that they and we will not have to be constantly moving chairs and tables whenever we have a book sale, program, or ex-

The community room at our current library is continually in demand for meeting space even though it can only hold about 30 adults (more children crowd in for Story Time). The new library will have a community room that will hold 100 people with sliding doors to divide it into two rooms for smaller groups. It will have an outside door, making it accessible when the library is closed.

These are only a few of the improvements that will benefit our community. With interest on the proposed library bond at 2.79 percent probably as low as it will ever be, this is a great opportunity for our community to get a larger, more efficient library building. For the average homeowner, the cost of this new library will be $2.11 per month, which is less than $26 per year. One hardback book costs more than that, and a tank of gas costs a lot more.

We urge you to vote in the primary election on May 13. Vote "in favor of" the general obligation bond that will fund our new Burley Public Library.

Residents turned out for the rally to express their discontent with the city leadership's decision to move forward with a park plan that will cost millions of dollars without seeking public input.

Recall Petition Drive Ready to Roll in Cd'A

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

COEUR d'ALENE • Citizens hoping to oust Coeur d'Alene Mayor Sandi Bloem and council members, Mike Kennedy, Woody McEvers and Deanna Goodlander can begin collecting the signatures needed to get a recall election on the Nov. 6 ballot.

The documents paving the way for the petition effort were approved Thursday morning by the city clerk's office.

Susan Weather, city clerk, said she is crafting a letter of approval to Frank Orzell, recall organizer, that says the petitions Orzell dropped off earlier Thursday have been certified and the recall petition drive may begin.

The group, calling itself Recall CdA, will have 75 days from Thursday to collect 4,311 signatures on each of four petitions, one for each of the officials.

Orzell delivered the initial preliminary paperwork needed to launch the effort to the city clerk's office Wednesday.

That paperwork was deemed incomplete by the city clerk, who determined the documents needed to include the specific reasons the group is requesting a ballot measure to recall the four elected officials, other than that the Idaho Constitution allows them to. The reasons in the certified documents are: • He or she denied a public advisory

- vote on McEuen Field and approved the plan for the park. • He or she continues to approve ex-
- cessive salaries for city employees.
- He or she consistently supports excessive spending of taxpayer dollars.

Each incumbent will have 200 words to craft a response to those reasons on the November ballot, should the recall drive prove successful and get that far.

Rep. Phil Hart Found Asleep at Scene of Shooting

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW • In what officials are calling a coincidence, Idaho state Rep. Phil Hart, R-Athol, was asleep in his car at the Latah County rest area where a woman suffered a gunshot wound.

"He is not a suspect," Latah County Sheriff's Office Lt. Brannon Jordan said Wednesday.

Deputies who responded to the 3:30 a.m. Monday shooting, found Hart asleep in his car when they searched the rest area parking lot and awakened him at gunpoint.

"They identified him, cleared him immediately, and sent him on his way," Jordan the rest area's pay phone to report she had been shot once in the abdomen after being attacked in the restroom by a masked assailant. She told investigators she was shot with her own .38 caliber handgun during a struggle with the man.

Jordan said when deputies arrived, Sedlacek had gone to the mobile home of the rest area caretakers. Deputies then cleared the restroom before moving on to the two vehicles in the parking lot.

"They've got their weapons drawn and their rifles out," Jordan said.

One vehicle belonged to Sedlacek, the other to Hart, who deputies awakened by and didn't know anything about the shooting. He did not match the description Sedlacek gave of her alleged assailant, Jordan said.

Hart, who has served in the Idaho House since 2004, has become infamous in Idaho for failing to pay hundreds of thousands of dollars in state and federal taxes. He also was in the middle of controversy for cutting timber on state-owned land without paying for it.

Deputies didn't locate any suspects at the scene, but the sheriff's office and the Pullman Police Department are investigating a report Sedlacek recently filed about a man who had been stalking stalker are the same person.

Jordan said he was unsure if Hart gave a reason for being asleep at a U.S. Highway 95 rest area in the middle of the night 80 miles south of Athol, but said he was on his way home.

BOISE • Neil and Margaret "Fritz" Smull cared deeply about other people in Idaho and around the world, said Jeff Shneider, a friend of 38 years and co-owner of CSHQA architecture and engineering in Boise.

Neil Smull died at home March 18 at age 90, just 8 days after Margaret 'Fritz' Smull passed away at age 89. A memorial for the Smulls is planned at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, April 14 at the Cathedral of the Rockies, 717 N. 11th St., Boise.

"He was just genuine, personable, a person with integrity," Shneider said. "He was just as warm as he could be."

Neil Smull is the "S" in CSHQA and was president

Big Series Ahead for Eagles, Bruins

Scenic West Showdown

No. 3 Salt Lake vs.

That doesn't mean that ramifications don't add a little spice, though. The Golden Eagles host the third-ranked Bruins today and Saturday for a pivotal four-game set that could decide the Scenic West Athletic Conference race. Salt Lake leads in the standings, but CSI can overtake its rival with a series win this weekend, potentially putting the Golden Eagles in the driver's seat with 12 games left to play. Although Salt Lake holds a 2.5-game lead and CSI would still be a half-game back with a 3-1 series win, the Eagles would have a superior winning percentage — the standard by which seeding in the Region 18 is determined.

"We know it, but we haven't really talked about it," said third baseman Patti Ferguson. "We know we have a great opportunity but we can only worry about one at a time, because we can't afford any more losses."

Seniors Shine at Minico Track Meet

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Both are too humble to admit it, but Minico's Marlee Chandler and Twin Falls' Erik Harris are so over high school track meets.

Both seniors are biding their time until they can begin their collegiate careers, and if it weren't for their inner personal drive, they would probably be bored with meets like Thursday's at Minico High School.

Chandler breezed to wins in 100, 200 and 400 meters, leading the Spartan girls to a team victory.

As her prep career draws to a close, Chandler's goal is to break her own school record and win a state title in the 400. After that, she has narrowed her college list down to two schools: College of Idaho (for basketball and track) or Utah State (track only).

"I'm ready for a new challenge," Chandler said. "I'm ready to get my life going in a different direction. It's a bittersweet feeling because I'm going to miss my friends and athletics here at Minico, but I'm ready to see what else I can do."

Harris had no reason to push himself Thursday, having reached his 1,600-meter personal record (4 minutes, 9 seconds) two weeks ago at a meet in Arizona. Still, the BYUbound senior easily won the 800 and 3,200 as he ran Thursday's meet at training pace.

"Well in my first run I was really nervous, so I tried to calm myself down before my final run," Josey said. "I knew coming in that I had a chance (to medal), but that I had to land it. I felt pretty good about the run. I wanted to podium, but finishing fourth is pretty cool."

So is being the top American, he said, as the next best Yank finished

"That's really cool. There are so many great riders here and to be the top American is a good feeling," said Josey, who competed against riders as old as 21.

CSI took two games from Salt Lake earlier in the season, but the Golden Eagles felt like it should have been three or even four.

But that series made the team tougher, they contend, and they're itching to put things right.

"We needed to do some things better defensively, and we expect they'll test us with that again," said pitcher Nellie Makings. "I don't know about previous teams, but I've seen this team from even the first part of the season, and we're learning to settle it down and be tough because that's what it takes."

The Golden Eagles, ranked No. 13 in the most recent NJCAA Division I poll, have done a better job addressing the key shortcoming that separated them from Salt Lake in years past: dropping games they weren't supposed to lose.

Both teams this season so far have lost a game to Snow College and one Nevada school - Southern Nevada for CSI, Western Nevada for Salt Lake. CSI also let one slip to North Idaho, putting further pressure on the Golden Eagles this week if they want to win the Scenic West for the first time.

With successive trips to Snow and North Idaho on the docket after this weekend, CSI knows this weekend is it if it's going to make its move.

"There's still a lot of work to be done, but I think the girls are ready for the opportunity," CSI coach Nick Baumert said.

Burley duo Delta Jones and Kaci Carpenter 6-4, 6-3.

The duo, which has been to state the last two seasons, used a strong net game to overwhelm the Bobcats.

"We had Kayla and Natalie play our No. 2 doubles team (Carly Athey and Rachel Webster) last night in practice and you can't tell the difference between the four players," said Twin Falls coach Ann Vogt. "We had to stop at 7 because they were tied. Our team is really strong this year."

Athey and Webster beat Lexi Crane and Lauren Geary 6-1, 6-1.

In No. 1 girls singles, Twin Falls' Britni Pearce beat Hailey Masoner 6-2,

"She's just a little thing, but she's a grinder," Vogt said.

Burley earned its only point behind the boys doubles team of Kord Carpenter and Brandon Bean, which defeated Andy and Coby Carter, 6-1, 7-5.

Twin Falls (9-1, 4-0 GBC) broke open the game by scoring three runs in both the second and third innings and the Bruins ended the game in the sixth on account of the 10-run rule.

Eric Harr went 3-for-3 and Casey Merritt added a 2-for-4 performance, both driving in two runs, as the Bruins racked up 12 hits off Jackson Kunz, J.J. Timmons and Jesse Bywater.

The No. 6 through No. 9 hitters were especially productive for Twin Falls, scoring seven runs.

"Coach believes in all of us, so it's good to have people up and down the lineup that can put the ball in play," said third baseman Thomas Corr. "That was the biggest thing, with Jackson (Kunz) on the mound, we knew that their best infielder was pitching?

Burley (2-6, 1-4) hosts Twin Falls for a doubleheader on Saturday.

"Joe (Ferrin) is a little banged up and he's our ace, so we're having to go with some other guys," said Burley coach Devin Kunz. "We're just kind of having a tough time getting things rolling right now. We've just got to keep grinding. It'll come."

NJCAA Revamps Hoops Tourneys

BY STEPHEN MEYERS

smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Say hello to revamped NJCAA national basketball tournaments.

The NJCAA executive committee passed a proposal this week to expand the men's and women's national tournaments to 24-team, single-elimination events taking effect in the 2012-13 season.

"I love it. It's a great change for the game and I think every college coach I've talked to feels that way too," said CSI men's head coach Steve Gosar.

The men's tournament has traditionally been a 16-team tournament where every team was guaranteed two games, but teams that lost could not win the championship. Now there won't be consolation games under the new format, except for the third-place game.

The 16 district champions will continue to receive automatic bids, with the top eight as voted by the NJCAA seeding committee receiving firstround byes. Under the old format, the bracket for the NJCAA field of 16 was created via blind draw.

Seeds nine through 24 will be comprised of the final eight district champions, four at-large selections and four zone qualifiers that rotate from year to year.

This means that on the men's side, the Scenic West could get two teams in the tournament (the Region 18 Tournament champion and an at-large bid) and possibly three in 2015 when Zone A (Region 1, 18, 8, 9, 24) is up in the rotation.

"I think it really parallels the NCAA tournament now and it's really good for the SWAC. We play in the toughest conference (Scenic West) in the country and now there is a good possibility that the regular-season champion can be rewarded with a national tournament berth," Gosar said. "It's a welcome change."

PIERRE JACKSON BACK IN TOWN

Former CSI guard Pierre Jackson will be in town tonight for a public appearance from 7-9 at La Fiesta Mexican Restaurant in Twin Falls.

The Baylor junior led the Bears to an Elite 8 appearance this season while averaging 13.5 points a game. Last year at CSI, Jackson was the NJCAA Division I player of the year after leading CSI to its third national

On Monday, the CSI Booster Club will host a meeting at noon in room 227 in the Taylor Building. The coaching staff has been invited to speak.

JUDO COMPETITION MOVED TO CRHS

Due to the funeral service for Army Sgt. Daniel Brown on Saturday, the CSI judo tournament has been moved from the CSI gymnasium to the Canyon Ridge High School gym.

About 200 judo competitors of all ages are expected to take part in the 49th annual Twin Falls/CSI Judo Championship.

The special guests at the event will be Robert Fukuda, the USA referee representative for the 2012 Olympics and former CSI student Michael Eldred, who will be competing at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Miami, Fla., on May 12.

The competition begins at 9:30 a.m. and continues through the afternoon. No admission will be charged but donations to the CSI judo clubs are welcome.

Coast Guard Fires on Japanese Ghost Ship

The U.S. Coast Guard unleashed cannon fire Thursday at a Japanese vessel set adrift by last year's tsunami, stopping the ship's long, lonely voyage across the Pacific Ocean. A Coast Guard cutter fired on the abandoned 164-foot Ryou-Un Maru in the waters of the Gulf of Alaska and more than 150 miles from land, spokesman Paul Webb said. He said it could take at least an hour to sink it. Soon after they started firing, the ship burst into flames, began to take on water and list, Chief Petty Officer Kip Wadlow said. He said the vessel poses a significant hazard and that the Coast Guard has been warning mariners to stay away. – Associated Press

Doctors Want to Redefine Autism; Parents Worried

BY LINDSEY TANNER Associated Press

CHICAGO • One child doesn't talk, rocks rhythmically back and forth and stares at clothes spinning in the dryer. Another has no trouble talking but is obsessed with trains, methodically naming every station in his state.

Autistic kids like these hate change, but a big one is looming: For the first time in nearly two decades, experts want to rewrite the definition of autism. Some parents fear that if the definition is narrowed, their children may lose out on special therapies.

For years, different autism-related labels have been used, the best known being Asperger's disorder. The doctors working on the new definition want to eliminate separate terms like that one and lump them all into an "autism spectrum disorder" category.

Some specialists contend the proposal will exclude as many as 40 percent of kids now considered autistic. Parents of mildly affected children worry their kids will be left out and lose access to academic and behavioral services - and any chance of a normal life.

But doctors on the American Psychiatric Association panel that has proposed the changes say none of that would happen.

They maintain the revision is needed to dump confusing labels and clarify that autism can involve a range of symptoms from mild to severe. They say it will be easier to diagnose kids and ensure that those with true autism receive the same diagnosis.

With new government data last week suggesting more kids than ever in the U.S. -1 in 88 - have autism, the new definition may help clarify whether the rising numbers reflect a true increase in autism or overdiagnosis by doctors.

There is no definitive test for autism. The diagnosis that has been used for at least 18 years covers children who once were called mentally retarded, as well as some who might have merely been considered quirky or odd. Today, some children diagnosed with autism may no longer fit the definition when they ma-

"We're wanting to use this opportunity to get this diagnosis right," said Dr. Bryan King, a member of the revision panel and director of the autism center at Seattle Children's Hospital.

The revision is among dozens of changes proposed for an update of the psychiatric association's reference manual, widely used for diagnosing mental

Olbermann Sues, Accuses Current TV of Blackmail

LOS ANGELES (MCT) • Keith Olbermann isn't mincing words in his $70 million lawsuit against Current TV.

Dumped last week by the upstart cable network, Olbermann let loose with a verbal barrage against co-founders Al Gore and Joel Hyatt in a 43-page legal complaint for breach of contract filed

Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court, accusing them of "blackmail."

The suit peels back the curtain on Current's backstage workings, charging that Gore and Hyatt wooed Olbermann, a liberal talk host formerly on MSNBC, with promises that he would be the captain of his own ship, free from corporate interference. But no sooner had he started work, Olbermann alleges, than Hyatt began meddling, running the network as his "personal hobbyhorse" and creating "an environment in which major business errors and technical failures became commonplace and acceptable."

Buford, Wyo., Population 1, Sells at Auction for $900K

BY BOB MOEN Associated Press

BUFORD, Wyo. • Buford is a small place for sure, but so is the world.

A remote, unincorporated area along busy Interstate 80 that advertised itself as the smallest town in the United States, Buford was sold at auction for $900,000 on Thursday to an unidentified man from Vietnam.

Its owner for the past 20 years, Don Sammons, served with the U.S. Army as a radio operator in 1968-69.

After meeting the buyer, an emotional Sammons said it was hard for him to grasp the irony of the situation.

"I think it's funny how things come full circle," he

The buyer attended the auction in person but declined to meet with the media or to be identified. Sammons and others involved in the auction would not discuss the buyer's plans for Buford.

It will take about 30 days for all the paperwork to be completed before ownership of the place located almost halfway between Cheyenne Laramie in southeast Wyoming changes hands, Sammons said.

The new owner will get a gas station and convenience store, a schoolhouse from 1905, a cabin, a garage, 10 acres, and a three-bedroom home at 8,000 feet altitude - overlooking the trucks and cars on the nearby interstate on one side and the distant snowcapped mountains in Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado on the

The town traces its origins to the 1860s and the construction of the Transcontinental Railroad. Buford had as many as 2,000 residents before the railroad was rerouted. Sammons, who moved to the Buford area in the late 1970s from Los Angeles to get away from the busy city life, bought the trading post on Jan. 31, 1992. He plans to retire from his unofficial title as "mayor" and write a book about his experiences in Buford, he said. "I felt my time here has been very happy for me, and hopefully the new owner will be able to enjoy what I've enjoyed over the years — conversations with people, the uniqueness of the area and so on - and keep the history alive," Sammons

As workers boarded up the windows of the convenience store behind her, Rozetta Weston, a broker with a Cheyenne real estate auction company that represented the buyer, said the buyer was excited to own a "piece of the United States." But she declined to discuss the buyer's future plans for Buford.

Panetta Has Paid $17,000 for Commuting to Calif.

Based on fuel and other operating expenses for his Air Force plane, those same trips cost the government as much as $860,000.

BY LOLITA C. BALDOR Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Defense Secretary Leon Panetta has commuted on military aircraft to his home in northern California more than two dozen times since he took over the Pentagon in July, paying about $630 per trip for a roundtrip flight that costs the Pentagon about $32,000. The totals detailed by defense officials lay out his reimbursements for the first time, showing he paid the Treasury about $17,000 for the 27 personal trips. Based on fuel and other operating expenses for his Air Force plane, those same trips cost the government as much as $860,000.

As Pentagon chief, Panetta is required to travel on military planes because they have the secure communications equipment he needs to stay in contact with the president and other top civilian and military leaders.

His bill for the travel is calculated according to reimbursement formulas dictated by longstanding federal policies using what a full-fare coach trip would cost. And the Pentagon says it costs about $3,200 per flight hour to operate the small plane he usually uses for the 10-hour round trip.

When he took the job, Panetta made it clear that he would continue to return home to his family on the weekends as he had done as CIA director for the previous two years, and as a member of Congress from 1977-

If Congress can't reach an agreement on savings or additional revenues elsewhere in the federal budget by next January, officials could be forced to cut nearly $1 trillion in defense spending over the next 10 years.

When Panetta took the post it was noted that he came with budget skills honed during his time as chairman of the House Budget Committee, head of the White House Office of Management and Budget and White House chief of staff for President Bill Clinton.

"No one understands the budget pressures on the Pentagon better than Secretary Panetta, who is responsible for identifying nearly $1 billion per week in defense cuts - or roughly $140 million per day — over the next 10 years," Pentagon press secretary George Little said. "As a required-use traveler, he must use government aircraft for all travel."

Little said Panetta values his time with his wife and family, and "spending time away from Washington, in fact, helps him focus on the job and Friday, April 6, 2012 • Sports 5

It is a mug shot for the ages. Charles Manson, the most notorious mass murderer imprisoned in California and perhaps the nation, stares glumly at a camera, holding his booking number in front of him. In the latest photo released by the California Department of Corrections, the 77-year-old Manson is a shadow of the shaggy haired, wildeyed killer whose visage glared from the covers of magazines in 1969. -Associated Press

Charles Manson is seen in June 2011 in Corcoran, Calif. Manson is scheduled to have his 12th parole hearing Wednesday at Corcoran State Prison.

Convicted Arms Dealer Viktor Bout Gets 25 Years in Prison

LOS ANGELES TIMES

NEW YORK • A federal judge sentenced convicted arms dealer Viktor Bout to 25 years in prison Thursday, but in a swipe at prosecutors said there was no convincing evidence that he would have committed the crimes alleged if he had not been the target of a sting operation.

Judge Shira Scheindlin gave the 45-year-old Russian the minimum mandatory sentence for conspiring to acquire and use anti-aircraft missiles.

She also sentenced him to 15 years on three other counts of conspiracy to kill Americans and conspiracy to provide material support to a terrorist organization – the Colombian rebel group known as FARC – with those sentences to run concurrently with the 25-year term.

Prosecutors had asked for life in prison for Bout, who was convicted in November. In a statement before the sentence was passed, prosecutor Brendan McGuire called Bout's alleged plot to sell a massive weapons trove to FARC rebels to use against Americans in Colombia "simply chilling."

Bout appeared in court unshackled, in khaki pants and a khaki shirt. He made a brief and angry statement, pointing at federal agents in the crowded courtroom and accusing them of lying about him. "They will live with this. ... They'll have to raise their children with this truth," he said bitterly in Russian as a translator repeated the words in English.

At one point early in McGuire's statement, Bout shouted, "It's a lie!"

Conn. Moves to Abolish Death Penalty

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARTFORD, Conn. • After executing just one prisoner in more than 50 years, Connecticut moved Thursday to become the fifth state in five years to do away with the death penalty for good.

But the repeal wouldn't be a lifeline for the state's 11 death row inmates, including two men who killed a woman and two children in a horrifying home invasion supporters touted as a key reason to keep the law on the books. The state Senate debated for hours Thursday about whether the law would reverse those sentences before voting 20-16 to repeal the law.

After the state Senate's 20-16 Thursday vote to repeal the law, the heavily Democratic state House of Representatives is expected to follow with approval within weeks. Gov. Dannel P. Malloy, the first Democratic governor elected in two decades, has vowed to sign the same bill vetoed by his Republican predecessor.

The wealthy, liberal state is one of the last in the Northeast to have a death penalty law and would join New Mexico, Illinois, New Jersey and New York as the most recent to outlaw capital punishment. Repeal proposals are also pending in several other states including Kansas and Kentucky, while an initiative to end the death penalty goes before California voters in Novem-

Like Connecticut, states that have recently decided to abolish capital punishment were among those that in practice rarely executed inmates. New Jersey, for example, hasn't executed anyone in more than 40 years; Connecticut's death row population is more than seven times below the national average.

Death sentences and executions are also plummeting around the country as tencing option.

'Three Cups of Tea' Author to Stay on at Charity Despite Sanctions

BY MATT VOLZ

Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • "Three Cups of Tea" author Greg Mortenson will remain the face of the charity he co-founded, despite his having to repay $1 million after an investigative report released Thursday concluded he mismanaged the organization and misspent its money.

Mortenson

Central Asia Institute Interim Executive Director Anne Beyersdorfer said Mortenson will continue to draw a salary from the charity. But it won't be as executive director and he is barred from being a voting member of the board of directors as long as he is still employed by the organization.

The mountaineer and humanitarian will continue to represent the organization at speaking engagements and work to build relationships in Pakistan and Afghanitan, where the charity builds schools and promotes education, she said.

"He's the heart and soul of the organization," Beyers-dorfer said. "He's the co-founder and I think we all think of him as our chief inspiration officer."

> A yearlong investigation by the Montana attorney general, which oversees charity organizations operating in the state, found that Mortenson exerted tremendous control over the charity as tens of millions in donations poured in after the 2006 release of "Three Cups

The best-seller and a later book by Mortenson, "Stones Into Schools," came under scrutiny last year when reports by "60 Minutes" and author Jon Krakauer alleged the CAI co-founder fabricated parts of both and that he benefited financially from the charity. The attorney general's probe focused only on the charity's finances and operations, and did not examine the books' contents.

The investigation found Mortenson had little aptitude for record keeping or personnel management, resulting in still-unknown amounts of cash earmarked management costs or wired overseas for projects without receipts or documentation on how that money was actually spent, the report said. The two other board members were Mortenson lovalists who generally did not challenge Mortenson, and he resisted or ignored CAI employees who questioned his practices, it said.

"Mr. Mortenson may not have intentionally deceived the board or his employees, but his disregard for and attitude about basic record keeping and accounting for his activities essentially had the same effect," Attorney General Steve Bullock said.

The charity's mission is good and its financial situation is strong, Bullock said. CAI took in $72 million in donations from 2003-2011 and still has more than $23 million in reserves.

But though no criminal wrongdoing was found, CAI needs better oversight so that too much control is not in one person's hands, the report concluded.

Obama Signs Small Business Legislation

BY KEN THOMAS

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama signed bipartisan jobs legislation Thursday that will help small businesses and make it easier for startups to raise capital, saying it could be a "gamechanger" for entrepreneurs dreaming of founding the next Microsoft or Face-"When their ideas take root, we get inventions that can change the way we live," Obama said in the Rose Garden, flanked by lawmakers of both parties who backed the bill. "And when their businesses take off, more people become employed."

He said the initiatives in the bill paralleled many of the provisions that he sought last fall in his jobs agenda to encourage small-business growth.

Republicans, who promoted the prosmall business ideas in the House, joined Obama at the signing ceremony, including House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-Va. Sen. Scott Brown, R-Mass., whose seat has been targeted by Democrats, also looked on as Obama signed the bill into law.

"This bill represents exactly the kind of bipartisan action we should be taking in Washington to help our economy," Obama said.

Cantor, speaking to reporters after the ceremony, said the bill was aimed at "the problem that we face in America today which is that our economy is lagging and our small businesses are having too hard of a time getting up off the ground."

Some Democrats, however, raised concerns that the bill softened investment protections enacted after the dot.com excesses and Wall Street meltdowns and the changes could lead to fraud and abuse.

Speaking to an audience that included small business owners, Obama indicated he's aware of those concerns and has directed top officials to "keep a close eye" on how it goes into effect.

The main part of the bill would phase in Securities and Exchange Commission regulations over a five-year period to let smaller companies go public sooner. Firms that have annual gross revenues of less than $1 billion would enjoy this "emerging growth company" status

The legislation may be one of the few accomplishments for a Congress stymied by partisan divisions heading into the fall elections.

The bill combines a number of bipartisan bills that exempt newer companies from SEC reporting rules in order to reduce costs and red tape.

Another provision facilitates the practice of "crowd-funding" in which the Internet is used to solicit a large number of smaller investors.

Senate Democrats were unsuccessful in their efforts to add more investor protections but succeeded in attaching one provision that requires websites involved in crowd-funding to register with the SEC. It also demands that companies seeking to raise money this way provide information on its financial status, business plans and shareholder risks.

Sara Hanks, a securities attorney and co-founder of CrowdCheck, a company aimed at helping startups, said the crowd-funding element will help make it easier for small companies to access capital but warned it will be up to investors and entrepreneurs "to protect themselves from deals that are too good to be true."

Google Creates a Spectacle with Eyewear Project

NEW YORK (AP) • If you think texting and walking is dangerous, just wait until everyone's wearing Google's futuristic, Internet-connected glasses.

While wearing a pair, you can see directions to your destination appear literally before your eyes. You can talk to friends over video chat or even buy a few things online as you walk around.

These glasses can do everything you now need a smartphone or tablet computer to accomplish.

Mind you, the technology doesn't actually exist. Google offered a glimpse of "Project Glass" in a video and blog post this week as a way to start a discussion and solicit ideas.

The glasses hint at endless possibilities. But the project also opens up a minefield of challenges around public safety, privacy, practicality, even fashion sensibility.

Britannica's Halt of Print Edition Triggers Sales

Three weeks after announcing it will discontinue its print editions after 244 years, people have been scrambling to buy the last edition.

Since Britannica announced last month that it was discontinuing its print editions, the Chicago-based company said sales have skyrocketed. It has sold all but 800 of the 4,000 sets of the 32-volume 2010 edition it had left at a Kentucky warehouse, the company said.

"We were averaging about 60 sets a week and the next thing we knew, we were selling 1,050 a week," Britannica spokesman Peter Duckler said Thursday. "When people thought they were going to be around forever there was no rush to buy one and then suddenly, boom, and now there is a scarcity and Britannica announced March 13 that it would stop publishing print editions of its flagship encyclopedia for the first time in 244 years and instead focus on its online encyclopedia.

Duckler said business got so busy after that — Britannica at one point was selling the print editions at a clip of about two sets per minute — that a senior vice president and chief marketing officer jumped in and started taking orders over the phone. The company will likely sell out by the end of the month, Duckler said. He added that Britannica — which first published its book form encyclopedia in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1768 — will hold onto a few sets so they can be displayed somehow or donated to museums.

As they did before the announcement, the sets are selling for $1,395. If that sounds like a lot of money, secondary sellers online are asking more than $3,200 a set for the 2010 edition — and that's before the company has run out of the ones TIMES-NEWS Friday, April 6, 2012 • Sports 7

Lucille was a 70-year member of St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church in Twin Falls, and her sons, grandchildren, and many great-grandchildren are alumni of St. Edwards Catholic School.

Lucille's kitchen motto was "Life is uncertain - eat dessert first," which her grandchildren just loved as it was fun to be given such permission. She was extremely fond of vanilla ice cream and always had it available to share with her guests.

A rosary will be recited at 7 p.m. Monday evening, April 9, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Deacon Jim Herrett officiating. A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday morning, April 10, at St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, with Father Mariusz Majewski celebrating. Burial will take place at 2:30 p.m. at Sunset Memorial Park. A viewing for family and friends will take place from 5 p.m. until the time of the rosary Monday evening at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Services are under the direction of Trent Stimpson and staff at Reynolds Funeral Chapel in Twin Falls.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that memorial donations be made in Lucille's name to the Angel Fund Program at St. Edwards Catholic School. which is dear to Lucille's heart, or to the Soup Kitchen of St. Edwards Catholic Church. Contributions may be given to funeral chapel staff or mailed Reynolds Funeral Chapel, P.O. Box 1142, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Pattie Lane Marsh

Aug. 6, 1950-March 28, 2012

KAMIAH • Pattie Lane Marsh was called home to receive her eternal reward Wednesday, March 28, 2012, while surrounded by her husband, her loving children and grandchildren at her home in Kamiah, Idaho.

Pattie had a long fight with COPD and chronic asthma, which led to other physical complications for the last seven years, but it became greatly intensified over the last six months of her life.

Pattie (Patricia) Lane Marsh was born Aug. 6, 1950, to Mason Henry Wood and Sylvia Jenevie (Clark) Wood at the Rosebud Indian Hospital on the Rosebud Sioux Indian Reservation in Rosebud, S.D.

She is survived by her husband, Jerry S. Marsh; three beautiful children, Penny Lane Schleining of Billings, Mont., and Matthew S. Marsh and Jerry Earl (Sam) Marsh, both of Twin Falls, Idaho; 10 grandchildren; 17 nieces and nephews, as well as great-nieces and nephews; three brothers, Gordon Wood of Anchorage, Alasks, Hank Wood of Sandpoint, Idaho, and Paul Wood of Bellflower, Calif.; and sister, Katie Remington of Judith Gap, Mont. Pattie was preceded in death by her mother, Sylvia Wood; father, Mason Wood; two half brothers, Mason Jr. and Malcolm Wood; and older sister, Eva Van de Mark. Also preceding her in death were a nephew and a niece in the Twin Falls area.

Their family moved frequently and Pattie started grade school at Kamiah, Idaho, and lived in several locations on the Clearwater River. She went to junior high and high school at Brush, Colo. She married Jerry S. Marsh of Hauser Lake, Idaho, on May 25, JEROME • Dora Lee Burnham, 70, of Jerome, passed away Wednesday, April 4, 2012, at her home in Jerome.

She was born Aug. 27, 1941, in Overton, Nev., to Vernon Herbert Mills and Elda LaVon Boyle. She was the eighth and last child born, all of whom were girls. Dora and her sweetheart, Maurice Karl Burnham, were married in the Los Angele Temple on Jan. 30, 1965. She worked and retired from the Tupperware factory and was relocated to South Carolina after working at the Jerome plant. Dora loved puzzles, knitting, plastic canvas, making earrings, traveling, reading and especially loved spending time with her sisters, her sons and her grandchildren. Dora also enjoyed going to the temple, playing Five Crowns, Idiot Bridge and Skip Bo. She was an active, faithful and lifelong member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Fifteen students made it to the Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarship Finals; 12 will compete for $9,000 in scholarships.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

TWIN FALLS • A dozen talented students will compete for the $5,000 top scholarship during the Danny Marona Performing Arts Scholarship Finals.

The second-place contestant will win $2,500 in the April 19 competition at the College of Southern Idaho, while third place gets $1,500. The battle won't be

"I have seen each and every one of the acts," Marona said, "and this will be one of the fiercest competitions we've had."

Marona, who started the competition five years ago - "I used to be known as an entertainer," he said, "but now I'm known as the old whited-headed guy who gives away money" — said he's pleased with the variety of performers.

"In the past, almost everyone's been a singer or played an instrument," Marona said. "But this year we have a good blend of talent."

Five judges will critique the actors, comics, dancers, musicians and singers. Finalists are judged on a 10-point system including overall presentation, execution and stage appearance.

"They'll know on the spot how they did," he said.

In all, 15 students — high school juniors through age 21 - did well enough in the scholarship fund's regional competitions to make it to the finals, but three are unable to attend. Here's what the 12 said they'll perform:

Andrew Bortz, Twin Falls: The singer and piano player will perform "Feeling Good," a standard recently made popular by Michael Buble. "I am excited to make it back to the finals," Bortz said. "I am thrilled to have the opportunity to perform in my hometown again, in front of all the people who have supported my musical career." He majors in music composition and vocal performance at Whitworth University.

Brae Beck, Burley: Beck will play fiddle classic "Orange Blossom Special," the same piece he performed on tour with the Rocky Mountain Express Folk Group. "I have studied violin for 15 years, and I'm very excited to perform in the finale," he said. "I also play the piano and would play both at the finale if I could." At Utah State University, he plans to major in agri-

The song I will be performing on the piano is called 'Wonderland's Surprises' by Natsumi Kameoka. I'm very excited to be in the finals." Shaw is a piano major at the College of Southern Idaho.

Coltyn Giltner, Jerome: Giltner, who's planning a double major at CSI, will perform contrasting monologues: a humorous selection from "The Imaginary Invalid" by Moliere, followed by a serious selection from "The Comet of St. Loomis" by Ed Simpson. "Many extremely talented people, most of them my close friends, did not get

Musicians Can Compete for Spots in Buhl's July 4 Jam

BY BLAIR KOCH

For the Times-News

BUHL • Will a new musical competition bring fresh crowds into Buhl's Sagebrush Days celebration over the Fourth of July holiday? The Buhl Chamber of Commerce

Rick Stoltenburg, chamber president, is spearheading Buhl Jam, a competition he says is less "American Idol," and more battle of the bands.

"We don't want this to be a 'Buhl Idol,' where bands and musicians are cast out weekly and drag it on," Stoltenburg said. "It'll be a two-day event. On the third (of July) the top 10 groups will be judged, and then the top three groups will perform for the public on the fourth (of July) before the fireworks at McClusky Park."

Stoltenburg said the competition will recruit judges from the community to award points for musical clarity and performance, stage presence and crowd interaction, appearance and personality and crowd re-

"Hopefully, they'll have their fans out and everyone will get engaged and have a great time," Stoltenburg said.

To try out, musicians from across the valley may send their best works on MP3, CD or DVD to the chamber by June 8. The chamber board will go through entries and pick 10 for a public performance and judging. The $15 registration fee will be refunded to entrants not advancing to the top 10.

"We're getting posters out around town and are in contact with surrounding chambers to get some help with the advertising and a little more exposure," said chamber administrator Michelle Olsen, who said Tuesday that no musicians had signed up yet.

The chamber is optimistic the Buhl Jam will represent musical genres across the spectrum, but it's reminding musicians that Sagebrush Days is family-friendly.

"The one rule we have is that since Sagebrush Days is a family event that no profanity in the lyrics will be allowed. The music and performance has to be appropriate for all ages," Olsen said.

If the jam goes well, it could become an annual competition, chamber board member Janice Rice said.

"Our hope is that is draws some people into Buhl that may not think to come to Sagebrush Days and that it is big enough that next year we can break it into different categories. Maybe we'll have a youth category or have enough participants for different music styles," Rice said. "We're really trying the waters this year and seeing how it goes."

The chamber is seeking event sponsors so it can give the top three winners cash prizes.

"We'd like to sweeten the pot a little," Stoltenburg said.

the opportunity to move on (to the finals), which makes me feel even more blessed to be in this position," he said. "They, above anybody else, inspire me to ... try to bring home something special."

Daniel Gardner, Twin Falls: "I'm going to perform the same monologue I performed in regionals. Last year I took first place in regionals but then didn't place in finals. It's pretty hard for an actor to place in finals, from what I've seen. Last year I switched things up and performed something different in the finals than I did the regionals. So this time I'm just going to stick with what I did in regionals this year." Gardner is a theater major at CSI.

John Punt, Ammon: Punt, a freshman in the voice performance program at Idaho State University, plans to sing Don McLean's "Vincent (Starry, Starry Night)" as well as play the piano. "I will be performing my own take on the piece," he said, "which I think adds a new depth to the incredible piece of music. I feel very lucky to have earned a place in the finals for this competition and look forward to meeting many more incredible performers."

Meg Wormsbaker, Twin Falls: "I'll be singing 'His Eve is On the Sparrow' a cappella," she said. "I'm happy to have made it to the finals. It's been a blessing to come across this wonderful ing with youth. Possibly in ministry." Rogelio Alba, Blackfoot: Regelio, a graphic design student at ISU, will do something a little different: a light show. He'll wear gloves that have beams of light at their fingertips, and his performance will be set to techno music. It's something he

I've been waiting so long to be in the finals. It's such a great group of people I'm performing against. It's very rewarding." Howard majors in photography and musical theater at Shelby Peters, Jerome: "It's really a fun thing to be part of the finals," said Peters, a student at Jerome High School. "It's professional and the crowd is responsive; it's really an intense sort of environment. I'll be performing a Shakespeare piece, a dramatic piece. ... I'm nervous but hopefully I can use those nerves to my advantage."

Whitney Smith, Twin Falls: "I'll be performing a piece called 'The Girl in 14G.' It's a musical theater number, with a little singing and dancing. ... I wanted to do something fun this year; not just something that impressed the judges, but something the audience would enjoy. I'm really excited to perform and to see the other performers. I was in it last year and won second place." Smith is a freshman at Brigham Young Universitv-Idaho.

Wyatt Brown of Twin Falls: This Twin Falls High student with film industry ambitions will perform an audition-style acting piece with two contrasting monologues: "Door Test" from the movie "A Bronx Tale," then a "Bridesmaid Debt" excerpt from the radio show "A Prairie Home Companion." "I had mono during the first competition and I personally felt like it was a sub-par performance compared to what it could have been; thanks to the judges, however, I have been given a shot at redemption," he said.

Pick Up Some Primitive Fishing Skills

TWIN FALLS • Before this place was called Idaho, how did primitive people catch the fish in Idaho's rivers and streams? Learn how in the second part of the Herrett Center's Primitive Skills workshops.

The afternoon workshop, dubbed "Hook, Line, and Sinker," will be 1:30-5:30 p.m. April 14 at the Herrett Center. Cost is $15, which includes all materials. Herrett exhibits manager Joey Heck will show what primitive fishing equipment looked like and how to make your own kit using local plants, stones and animal parts.

Then, at 1:30-4 p.m. May 12, a free Primitive Skills Day at the Herrett Center will coincide with Idaho Archaeological Week and a Herrett Forum presentation from archaeologist Suzann Henrikson about Idaho's famous Wasden Site that produced a mammoth skeleton. Heck will also oversee some primitive skills exhibits at that event.

For Wright, researching Jessie, a prolific journal writer, has been a fascinating journey. She learned not just about the Bisbees, but about the infant Twin Falls.

"These people, when they came here in the early 1900s, they were so busy trying to get water to their land and educate their children, they didn't have time to write," Wright said.

But Jessie found time. Often a daily writer, she at least wrote weekly, detailing her activities and interests. She talked about camping trips and her husband's photography business. "Many times she'd just write her thoughts and what they were doing on scraps of paper," said Wright, noting the scraps were collected and combined in a journal. Wright discovered that

"In many of the photos, Clarence was the main subject, so we know she took some of the photos," said Wright of promotional images sent throughout the country to entice people to move here.

On the personal side, Wright gained insights into Jessie's marriage.

"She and her husband were very, very close," Wright said. "They did everything together. I think they would've been wonderful parents, but unfortunately that wasn't to be."

Jessie never wrote about wanting to have children, Wright said, but she did talk about the couple's financial troubles.

"It did weigh heavily on her mind," Wright said, "but it didn't consume her."

Wright's overall impression of Jessie? "I think she was a very delightful person, educated, someone I would've loved to have

'Phantom Tollbooth' Play Takes Audience to Land of Puns and Wisdom

BY KAREN BOSSICK For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Before there was the smartphone there was the smart book - Norman Juster's "The Phantom Tollbooth:" It's a magical book where words have been transformed into characters and nearly every sentence resembles a pun.

Laughing Stock Theatre will bring Susan Nanus' adaptation to the stage April 12-15 at Ketchum's nexStage Theatre. The play follows a spoiled little boy named Milo who has all the toys a boy could want but treats them with disdain, professing to be totally bored.

"It seems to me that almost everything is a waste of time. There's nothing for me to do, nowhere I'd care to go and hardly anything worth seeing," he says.

One day, however, Milo discovers a tollbooth in his room, along with a map of "The Lands Beyond." He pays the toll and he and his toy car drive into a magical Kingdom of Wisdom, a place where what you know matters more than having a magical wand at your disposal.

There he picks up a watchdog named Tock with a giant alarm clock. And he encounters a variety of intriguing characters such as the Everpresent Wordsnatcher, who

The cast of 'The Phantom Tollbooth' — which stars Blake Nelson (at right in a black shirt) and Nick Smith (in the red shirt) as young Milo — awaits its journey into the Kingdom of Wisdom.

your mouth; the Senses Taker, who insists on asking trivial questions; the 12faced Dodecahedron; and Whether Man. "In my case, it's more important to know whether takes the words right out of there will be weather than what the weather will be," said Community School freshman Lauren Sunday, who plays the Whether Man.

Milo also encounters King Azaz the Unabridged, the ruler of Dictionopolis, where all the world's words and letters are bought and sold. And he meets the mathemagician of Digitopolis, who serves up subtraction stew and discusses infinity.

Thanks to those two, he must try to rescue princesses Rhyme and Reason, who have been banished for suggesting that letters and numbers are equally important.

"The Phantom Tollbooth," published in 1961 and illustrated by Jules Feiffer, has been compared to such stories as "Alice in Wonderland," said actor Jamey Reynolds, whose King Azaz throws banquets where guests eat their words. "It's something that will appeal to adults, as well as children."

Director Patsy Wygle said she received "The Phantom Tollbooth" as a birthday present when it first came out and has reread it every 10 years.

with $10 tickets for those 65 and older.

"I marvel at how creative it is," she said. "It's still taught at the middle school. And though abbreviated, this play captures the flavor of the book."

Company of Fools designer Joe Lavigne designed the set, which features a map that pops up as Milo drives to the Mountains of Ignorance, a Sea of Knowledge, a castle and a marketplace. Allison Higdon did the artwork. And K.O. Ogilvie made a puppet for the play.

Blake Nelson, a Hailey Elementary School student who shares the role of Milo with Sage School student Nick Smith, said he can identify with Milo.

"Sometimes I get really bored, and when I do I go on a bike ride looking for adventure," Blake said. "I like adventures and as Milo goes around the world it gets so exciting, especially where he ends up saving two princesses?

when they decided to find more pipers in the area and start a band. Formed in November, the group has just five bagpipe players and one drummer but hopes to expand – despite the fact that there are few bagpipes in the Magic Valley.

"We're all about having fun and not competing yet we want beginners," said the pipe major, Martin Meyers. The band will cater to the newest members and play easier pieces as needed.

Interested in learning? You'll start on a practice chanter to master the fingering. The chanter is a double reed woodwind instrument that is a much smaller financial commitment than the great Highland bagpipes. The chanter usually costs around $60, and a person can spend about six months to a year depending on dedication on the chanter before moving to bagpipes.

"If you put in the time on the practice chanter to get to the full set of pipes, then you are ready to make that financial commitment," Cooper said, adding that bagpipes start at about ing bagpipe teachers in the Magic Valley when they were learning. Member McKenzie Manning is now offering private lessons, and a few of his bandmates are willing to teach informally for free if the learners join the band.

"We will instruct people that are interested in playing in our group," Cooper said. "Some would benefit from having a private instructor, but we have three or four guys willing to give up time to teach."

What makes the bagpipes so attractive?

"I just love the sound of them, I really enjoy the music," Turley said. "It's just easy to listen to."

Meyers called it a powerful and unique instrument, adding: "It only has nine notes to learn, but it is the grace notes that make it tricky."

The band is looking for new members - pipers and drummers - but also for gigs and sponsors. It can send one member, a duet or the whole band to an event.

Want to hear the bagpipers in action? Their next public performance will be for First United Methodist Church's 7 a.m. sunrise service on Easter morning at Shoshone Falls Park.

Spring is a time to help rejuvenate your lawn by raking to improve the air circulation, weeding to remove unwanted material and mowing for a well-manicured appearance. You can also adjust the pH levels of your lawn in the spring by adding lime, if necessary.

Raking

Remove winter debris from your spring lawn with a hard-tine rake. A good raking will also open up the air spaces between the grass and allow air to circulate down into the crown of the grass plants, which will discourage fungus development. Make sure your lawn is dry before you rake.

Liming

Analyze your soil every two or three years to determine its pH level. Most types of lawn grasses prefer a pH level between 6.0 and 7.0 in order to thrive. Apply lime to your lawn in early spring to increase the pH levels of your soil and give your grass the optimum chance at a long life. The results of the soil test should offer recommendations as to how much lime you should apply.

Mowing

Your first lawn cutting in the spring should not be too short; cut the grass to a height of about 2 inches throughout the spring, then increase the height to 2 1/2 inches during the summer. Mow frequently to remove no more than one third of the grass blades at one time, rather than mowing more grass at fewer intervals.

Weeding

Remove perennial weeds during the early spring, either by pulling them or with herbicides. A thick, healthy lawn discourages weed growth, so remove the weeds before they gain a foothold. Make sure that you use a separate sprayer for herbicides than you use for fungicides or insecticides, and spray the lawn when the weeds are actively growing, not when they are dormant.

the gym daily. ABBY Jeanne

Dan has become friendly with a group of men at the gym. Like him, they are all good-looking and in tip-top shape. They are also gay. One guy in particular, "Harry," has become quite close to my husband. He often jokes about "recruiting" Dan and comments on Dan's popularity with "the boys."

My work requires that I travel frequently, and Dan has been going out with Harry to gay bars where he gets "hit on" often. I can tell he likes the attention. I should also mention that Dan seems to be considerably less interested in sex lately.

I hate to think of my husband alone and lonely while I'm away, but his going to gay bars every night is beginning to worry me. If I say anything to him about it, he guilt-trips me about my travel.

Is it normal for a straight man to seek out the company of gav men? Any advice would be greatly appreciated. - GAY-FRIENDLY

It is unusual for a straight man to frequent gay bars. But would you feel better if Dan was going to straight bars every night and being hit on by women while you're

Your greater concern, in my opinion, should be his change in pattern of behavior. If Dan is less interested in sex with you than he has been, then you need to find out why. I have always favored the direct approach. The person you should be discussing this with is your husband. When you do, be frank but not accusatory, and do not allow him to divert the conversation by making you feel guilty about your busiproblem. I'm renting a truck and will be driving up to New York. Some say the stress will be too much for Pedro. He's a little fighter, but at his age, I don't know how he will handle cold weather. He has lived in Florida his whole life. What do you think? I'm ask-

DEAR ABBY: I'm moving soon from Florida to New York. I have a 16-year-old Chihuahua named Pedro who is not in good health. I'm torn about what to do. Should I take him with me, or have him put to sleep? I am an animal lover and have always had pets, but this is the first time I have ever had this

DEAR LEAVING: You say Pedro is a fighter — well, give him a fighting chance. He could surprise you and make it through next winter and several after that. However, although you are asking "everyone's" opinion, the one that should carry the most weight is Pedro's veterinarian.

DEAR ABBY: My family has been having a debate over the issue of how the name "Jeanne" is pronounced. They think it is pronounced "Jean-nee," while I am certain it's pronounced the same as "Jean." Could you please help us with the correct pronunciation?

IF APRIL 6 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Today's full moon might illuminate what is really important to you. Your hopes and dreams could become apparent. Write down your inspiring ideas, but don't act on them quite yet. Friendships and romance might figure prominently in your ideas for the future, but the necessities must be dealt with first. Over the next several months, you must concentrate on material ambitions before you can move forward with anything else. Late October and early November is the very best time for you to make financial and career decisions.

HOROSCOPE Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): United we stand, divided we fall. You may experience a conflict between the desire for a relationship and the need to prove you are an independent person. Today's full moon may bring issues to a head.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Flattery will get you nowhere, but you may not be content to end up there. A restless inability to do anything on your own can cause some upsets. Concentrate on holiday entertaining.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can't play games with someone's heart. Someone may be playing emotional dodge ball or refusing to take sides. Taking a circuitous route to make a point can cause someone to doubt your motives.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You could howl at the full moon. With a holiday weekend ahead, you might find time to do things that are out of the ordinary, but in your own backyard. You may have some new insights into group dynamics.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid frivolous spending. Just because you have it doesn't mean you have to spend it. In the heat of the moment, you might spend money to impress a date, but everything costs more than anticipated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Employ cherry-picking techniques to guarantee that you get the best of the best. Direct your energy into doing those things that give the greatest joy and avoid doing the things that will cause

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"I have loved your kiddies playing run-sheep-run

And cutting their initials on the ball-ground fence. They knew every time I fooled them who was fooled and how." — Carl Sandburg

These days a lot of the swings in high-level bridge come about when a player makes things difficult for his opponents. In today's deal, for example, from the European Championships, at many tables East contented himself with a three-club opening, but that did not cause any problems. Either West raised to four clubs and North made a value-showing double, which South removed to four spades, or West passed and North bid three spades, which also led to the normal spade game. Where West bid five clubs, some North-Souths settled for collecting 300 and a small loss.

But here West led his singleton spade against five diamonds. Declarer could see that if West had started with three diamonds, then when he got in with the diamond king, he would be able to put his partner in with a club to get a spade ruff, thus defeating the game.

Can you spot his extra chance? Declarer won the spade ace, played a diamond to his ace, and now played the heart ace and king. He continued with the heart nine, discarding his club from hand. West had won an unexpected trick, but he could no longer put his partner on lead to deliver the ruff.

When the teams compared scores at the end of the match, the Finnish pair was pleased to discover that their declarer at the other table had found exactly the same line of play in the same contract. No swing!

Today is Good Friday, April 6, the 97th day of 2012. There are 269 days left in the year. The Jewish holiday Passover begins at sunset.

Today's Highlight: On April 6, 1862, the Civil War Battle of Shiloh began in Tennessee as Confederate forces launched a surprise attack against Union troops, who beat back the Confederates the next day.

${f T}{f O}{f D}{f A}{f Y}$ IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith in Fayette, N.Y.

In 1886, the Canadian city of Vancouver, British Columbia, was incorporated.

In 1896, the first modern Olympic games formally opened in Athens, Greece.

In 1909, American explorers Robert E. Peary and Matthew A. Henson and four Inuits became the first men to reach the North Pole.

In 1917, Congress approved a declaration of war against Germany. In 1945, during World War II, the Japanese warship Yamato and nine other vessels sailed on a suicide mission to attack the U.S. fleet off Okinawa: the fleet was intercepted the next day.

In 1954, a month after being criticized by newsman Edward R. Murrow on CBS' "See It Now," Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., given the chance to respond on the program, charged that Murrow had, in the past, "engaged in propaganda for Communist causes."

In 1965, the United States launched the Intelsat I, also known as the "Early Bird" communications satellite, into orbit.

In 1971, Russian-born composer Igor Stravinsky, 88, died in New York City.

In 1985, William J. Schroeder became the first artificial heart recipient to be discharged from the hospital as he moved into an apartment in Louisville, Ky.

In 1992, the Supreme Court ruled a Nebraska farmer had been entrapped by postal agents into buying mail-order child pornography. The European Community recognized the former Yugoslav republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina as an independent state. Science-fiction author Isaac Asimov died in New York at age 72. In 1994, the presidents of Rwanda and Burundi were killed in a mysterious plane crash near Rwanda's capital; widespread violence and killings erupted in Rwanda over claims the plane had been shot down.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush repeated his call for Israel to "withdraw without delay" from West Bank towns it had occupied since launching an offensive after a string of suicide attacks; Bush also demanded the Palestinians call "an immediate and effective cease-fire." Five years ago: British sailors and marines newly freed by Iran said they were blindfolded, isolated in cold stone cells and tricked into fearing execution while being coerced into falsely saying they had entered Iranian waters. A suicide bomber smashed a truck loaded with TNT and toxic chlorine gas into a police checkpoint in Ramadi, Iraq, killing 27 peo-

One year ago: Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi appealed directly to President Barack Obama in a letter to end what Gadhafi called "an unjust war"; he also wished Obama good luck in his bid for re-election. Portugal became the third debt-stressed European country to need a bailout as the prime minister announced his country would request international assistance.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
