Council Approves Rim Project's Zoning

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Call it an eyesore, or exciting economic development. Either way, the planned shopping center at Canyon Park is getting people talking.

On Monday, the Twin Falls City Council approved a zoning map change that will allow for development of a shopping center on the canyon rim.

The shopping center, planned for the empty land behind Golden Corral near Blue Lakes Boulevard and Fillmore Street, would have multiple storefronts, a large parking area and landscape, said Gerald Martens of EHM Engineers, who presented on behalf of Canyon Park Development.

Vice Mayor Don Hall asked why developers designed the complex so the back of the stores would face the walking trail and canyon.

"I think that's a great concern for a lot of folks," Hall said.

Martens said the loading docks and dumpsters would be blocked by screens or landscaping.

That wasn't good enough for some of the Twin Falls residents who testified.

Landscaping or screens may block the view, said Laura Peterson. "But we'll smell the fumes of those trucks that pull in and out when they have to deliver. We will," she said.

Cheri Condie called the proposed plan an "asphalt ocean," and said the city had a responsibility to protect the aesthetics of the

Among the Twin Falls City Council's other actions:

- Approving a city code change to allow more types of residential buildings in old town and downtown Twin Falls. The proposal, brought by the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency, will allow buildings like row houses, duplexes and condominiums.

- Annexing of Chobani property by the city. The 37-acre piece of land is already owned by Chobani and is slotted for future development, said Community Development Director Mitch Humble. The rest of the Chobani property has already been annexed. The move allows the city to collect taxes from the yogurt plant.

The Bodies No One Wants

Twin Falls coroner sees potential problems with new Idaho law on what to do with unclaimed bodies.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Dennis Chambers calls them his security angels.

The eight or so cremated remains sit silently on a shelf in the Twin Falls County Coroner's Office with assigned case numbers labeling the outside. Most have identities, but no family to collect them.

They're unclaimed bodies, each of which found its way to the coroner under different circumstances. A change to Idaho statute, signed into law by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter this past week, gives a timeline and more guidance to counties on how to handle those bodies, but Chambers calls the law potentially problematic.

Currently, Idaho's vague law states that coroners should bury unclaimed bodies, but doesn't expressly prohibit cremation. Counties usually work with funeral homes to make arrangements, and handle each body on a case-by-case basis, depending on if the identity is known and under what circumstances the body was found.

The county keeps files on unclaimed bodies in case someone does come forward to claim them.

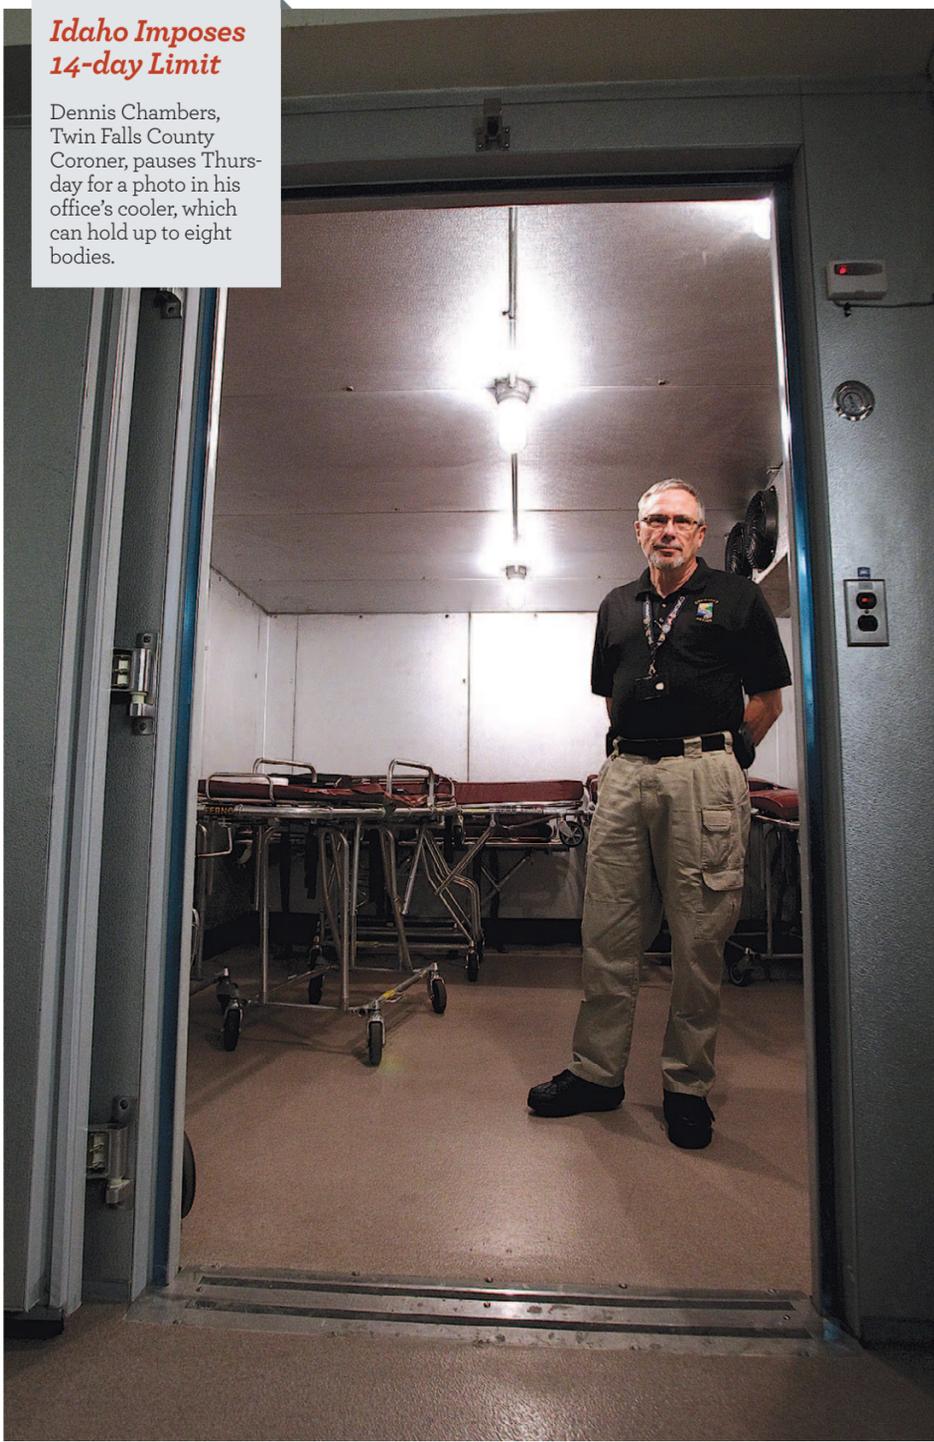

When the new law goes into effect in July, coroners will have the clear option of cremating remains. The change also dictates that the county must take care of the body within 14 days of death.

Twin Falls County sees about one or two unclaimed bodies a year, Chambers said. It's less of a problem in rural counties. Craig Rinehart, Cassia County coroner, said it hasn't come up in his time in office, and Maria Barriga of the Blaine County Coroner's Office said they've only had one in 35 years.

Canyon Park Project Now Moves Before City P&Z

After Monday's zoning vote, the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission now weighs the actual Canyon Park plan tonight.

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Citizens can voice their opinions about a proposed commercial development on the Snake River Canyon rim today during a public hearing before the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission.

The 6 p.m. meeting will be in the Twin Falls City Council chambers across from City Hall.

Canyon Park Development LLC seeks approval of a preliminary plan that would allow it to build a 12-lot shopping complex on 25 acres between Canyon Springs Road and Blue Lakes Boulevard North. The land is currently undeveloped.

The proposal surfaced several years ago with a larger vision, including a hotel and convention center. However, the recession stalled the effort and has scaled back the current effort.

Tina Luper, project administrator for Nielsen & Co., which manages the Canyon Park development, said Monday she does not expect much public testimony during tonight's hearing.

"If recent history repeats itself, we expect it to be fairly quick," she said.

The 12 parcels for commercial outlets will contain about 200,000 square feet of space at full build-out, Luper added.

"We're very excited about it," she said.

A Planning and Zoning staff report notes there is significant variance in the ground elevation of the proposed subdivision.

"There will be some places where the developer will place a site obscuring retaining wall along the walking trail on the canyon rim," the report says. "Other places will have site obscuring landscaping along the walking trail."

EPA Releases New Rules for Feedlots, Dairies

Major changes include only requiring the permit for producers who actually discharge waste into surface waters rather than who propose such a discharge.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Federal regulators hope a new permit governing confined-animal feeding operations will better protect Idaho's surface waters.

According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the new permit will regulate water runoff created by the state's larger livestock producers of beef and dairy cattle, poultry, sheep and pigs.

This new version replaces an earlier permit that expired in 2003, said Jim Wertz, Idaho's EPA state director.

Major changes include only requiring the permit for producers who actually discharge waste into surface waters rather than who propose such a discharge.

"There is a certain level of producer responsibility, which in and of itself makes it difficult to know how many people are going to apply," Wertz said. "We think it's going to be a smaller number."

Wertz estimated that only about 30 producers will apply for the permit.

The agency's new guidelines also make a producer's nutrient management plan — how much manure is handled and how it's treated — a public document.

That differs from state law, which doesn't allow public scrutiny of such documents.

"I don't think we expect producers to say this is a great permit," Wertz said.

The goal is to protect "waters of the U.S.," a definition that has been contested for years, said Nick Peak, the EPA's regional CAFO coordinator based in Boise.

For example, it remains unclear if many of the Magic Valley's canal systems fall under the agency's scrutiny, Peak said.

Rinehart had a close call in early 2011, when an elderly woman died and the county couldn't contact her relatives. After 40 days, they finally reached her daughter in north Idaho. Minidoka County Coroner Lucky Bourne had a similar experience where it took two weeks to reach a family member.

"Normally, if we have someone that we know their identity but we cannot find any family, we usually try our very best to (find) any family, anywhere," Rinehart said.

The new 14-day limit puts a time crunch on that contact time, but Chambers said if he felt confident about a body's identity and the potential to reach families, he would go to the county legal department and ask for an extension.

So why not just cremate a body during the investigation? Some religions, including Roman Catholicism, Islam, and Eastern Orthodoxy, either discourage or forbid cremation, and Chambers doesn't want to do anything against a person's beliefs. The law still allows for the option of burial, but, Rinehart said, cremation is always cheaper.

Chambers feels comfortable cremating bodies only when the county's investigation shows it won't be a problem. One example: The county cremated a person whose spouse had also been cremated. Though they knew the person's identity, they couldn't find any family members to claim the body.

If they're not sure, they stick with burial.

"The main thing that we're after here ... is the county isn't held liable for doing something to a body that the family didn't want done," Chambers said.

Idaho Power announced Monday it planned a two-minute power outage in Jerome at 6 a.m. today for regular maintenance.

Two-minute outages for surrounding areas as far as Richfield were also planned for between 6 a.m. and 6:15 a.m., according to the utility.

County Questions Walcott Access

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Minidoka County officials met with several agency officials Monday to discuss concern over whether boating access could be restricted as a management plan is developed for the Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge.

"The commissioners' biggest concern is that you will shut off access for boating," said County Prosecutor Lance Stevenson. "They want to maintain that historic access."

The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service is developing a 15-year plan to manage the 20,700-acre refuge that encompasses Lake Walcott State Park.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service project leader Tracy Casselman said because of the shared jurisdiction among Fish and Wildlife, the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation and the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, they are "kind of on new ground."

Casselmann said the agency has identified six priority uses of the refuge that include hunting, fishing, wildlife observation, photography, environmental education and interpretation. Those will receive consideration over all other public uses.

"I don't think hunting and fishing will be eliminated," said Casselman.

But, he said, other types of boating not associated with fishing could come under "closer scrutiny."

Half of the wildlife refuge is comprised of Lake Walcott, which is used as water storage at Minidoka Dam. The dam lies 12 miles northeast of Rupert.

The refuge extends 25 miles upstream from the dam and includes 80 miles of shoreline around Lake Walcott. The refuge has a documented 243 species of migratory birds, with 85 of those species nesting within its boundaries.

Minidoka County Commissioner Bob Moore said county officials are concerned about the economic impact to the county if boating is restricted on the reservoir.

Members of the City Council mostly supported the plan, but Councilwoman Rebecca Mills-Sojka and Mayor Greg Lanting voted against the proposal, saying they wanted to see a bigger buffer between the buildings and the canyon trail.

Councilman Shawn Barigar pointed out that the section of property in question has always been slotted for retail development, and that development — not the city or taxpayers — is responsible for the trail system and access along the canyon rim.

"If you want wide open spaces, that left a long time ago in Twin Falls, no matter how many hundred feet you get back from the canyon," Barigar said.

In a separate but related vote, the council approved vacating the section of Fillmore Street that runs through the property. That would allow the Canyon Park developers to move the road within the development and add a roundabout in the intersection.

School Testing Starts as State Awaits Waiver

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Over the next month, students around the Magic Valley will head to computer labs to take state standardized tests.

But this year could be the last time their scores will be used to determine if schools make "adequate yearly progress" under the federal No Child Left Behind Act.

In February, the Idaho State Department of Education sent in a waiver that would create a new five-star accountability system.

Spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said the waiver hasn't been approved yet by the U.S. Department of Education. Peer reviewers called two weeks ago with some clarification questions. "We're hoping to hear back soon," she said.

McGrath said the goal is to transition to the new system next year.

Under the proposal, schools would receive points based on a number of factors, including student improvement. That differs from NCLB's model — a pass-fail system based on whether third- through 10th-grade students meet a set benchmark on the Idaho Standards Achievement Tests.

"Really, the waiver will change what we do in a number of ways," said Wiley Dobbs, superintendent of the Twin Falls School District.

Under NCLB, 100 percent of students are supposed to meet standards

What's the ISAT?

What: The Idaho Standards Achievement Tests are standardized tests given to third- through 10th-graders in Idaho public schools.

When: The state's testing window opened Monday and closes May 10.

The impact: Test scores are used to determine whether schools and school districts make "adequate yearly progress" under the federal No Child Left Behind Act. Schools also use scores to identify students who may need extra help.

The future: The Idaho State Department of Education submitted a waiver in February to use a new system of accountability. The system, a five-star scale, could be in place next year.

by the 2013-14 school year. And Idaho isn't alone in wanting relief from the continually increasing requirements.

The federal government approved 10 state waivers in February, the first to be awarded. Idaho is among another 28 states seeking them.

In the meantime, ISAT testing began around the state on Monday. The testing window continues through May 10.

At I.B. Perrine Elementary School, testing will happen over the next four weeks. Principal Bill Brulotte said students will only take one test per week.

With 680 students at the Twin Falls school and just one computer lab, he said testing has to be spread out over a longer period of time.

Dobbs said it's important to have a positive testing atmosphere. The tests, he said, are a chance for students to practice stepping up and showing what they know.

"Students will be tested in a number of ways throughout their lives," he said. To encourage students to try their best, some schools have incentives on testing days.

Sandra Miller, student achievement and school improvement director for the Minidoka County School District, said there are themed days at schools such as "No sweat, we can pass the test," when students can wear sweat pants to school.

In Wendell, Superintendent Greg Lowe said it's important that parents are informed about the ISAT.

"If the parents know about it and how important it is, it doubles our chances of students doing their best," he said.

Brulotte said parents should hang on to their child's test scores. He said children should be making a four- to six-point gain every year and staying up with the average range for their grade level.

Test results are one way schools shape what's taught in classrooms. Plus, they're used to figure out which students need extra help and whether they're ready to move on to the next grade level.

CRASH SENDS TWO MINORS TO HOSPITAL

TIMES-NEWS

CASTLEFORD • A rollover crash near Castleford sent two Buhl girls to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center Sunday night.

At about 9:30 p.m., a 17-year-old girl was driving a 1997 Ford F150 pickup north on 1000 East Road near 3500 North Road when she struck two cows in the road. The vehicle left the road, overturned and the driver was ejected, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said.

The driver was transported by air to St. Luke's, and a 14-year-old female passenger who was not ejected was taken by private vehicle to the hospital.

The extent of the girls' injuries was unknown, Stewart said, but it appeared neither occupant was wearing a seat-belt.

Drugs and alcohol were not factors in the crash and no citations were issued, Stewart said.

"When it comes down to it, it's a case-by-case basis," he said. "... If a producer lives close to a canal, I would suggest that they talk to us first before choosing not to apply."

Idaho Dairymen's Association Executive Director Bob Naerebout said he isn't worried about the new permit.

Naerebout hadn't seen the finalized version of the permit when contacted by the Times-News, but encouraged producers not to apply. He argued that Idaho's CAFO rules provide more stringent measures against discharge than the EPA's regulations.

"If you are following the state laws, there is no need to sign up for the permit," he said.

However, both Peak and Wertz said that it is better for producers to apply for a permit than end up facing an agency investigation.

Filer Man Sentenced for Vehicle Burglaries, Credit Theft

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Jack Cramer is like many of the defendants Judge Randy Stoker sees daily. “Drugs are controlling the decisions in your life,” he told Cramer.

Cramer

Cramer, 36, was sentenced on charges of theft by receiving stolen property, burglary and forgery of a financial transaction card.

According to the Twin Falls Police report, Cramer stole a 17-year-old girl's purse out of her grandfather's car during the night of Oct. 31 and used a debit card from the girl and her grandfather's joint account to purchase gasoline, soda and lottery tickets at a convenience store on Nov. 1.

In another case against Cramer, he is accused of stealing several cards out of a Twin Falls couple's car, then using one of the cards four times at the same chain of convenience stores on Oct. 31, purchasing gas, lottery tickets, soda and doughnuts.

Cramer was also accused by Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies of stealing and attempting to use credit cards and gift cards out of a Filer woman's car on Nov. 1.

According to court records, in a Nov. 3 interview with sheriff's deputies, Cramer said he and a woman, Rebecca Ilene Vulgamore, 34, would pick a neighborhood to drive around in, get high and walk along streets checking for unlocked vehicles.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney McKenzie Cole said Cramer admitted to stealing at least 15 different credit cards but had only been charged in the instances where he was caught on video using the cards.

Cramer said he was off drugs for five years before a cousin came to town and they did meth together, which set off the string of burglaries.

“Previous times I was in trouble, it was because I was on drugs,” Cramer told the court. “I'd like to be able to get my kids back.”

Stoker sentenced Cramer to a place in the state's retained jurisdiction program with the recommendation that he live in a therapeutic community. The underlying sentence is four to eight years in each of the three cases to run concurrently.

Engineering Firm Hired for URA Consultation

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • One side effect of development: An overwhelmed city engineering department.

At a Monday meeting, the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency Board approved ongoing consulting services with Riedesel Engineering of Twin Falls.

The Urban Renewal Agency (URA) will work with Riedesel for consultation on new projects, said Melinda Anderson, economic development director for the city of Twin Falls.

“It's on-call engineering advice,” Anderson said.

Normally, the URA would work with the city's engineering department. But with so many new projects, like new construction and Chobani, the department is slammed, Anderson said. She cited Glanbia's new Twin Falls corporate headquarters as a project that the URA needs assistance.

The agreement doesn't guarantee other engineering contracts for Riedesel, like for design, and the URA can terminate the ongoing agreement at any time.

When seeking proposals for the on-call consultation, Anderson said she contacted two engineering firms: Riedesel Engineering and Civil Science. In a letter to the URA board, Anderson said she went with Riedesel because they have a full staff in Twin Falls and they have slightly lower rates.

Anderson said because of time restraints, she didn't get proposals from other engineering firms, but she said she knew Civil Science and Riedesel would work well for the URA's needs.

Idaho law mandates political districts like URAs must seek bids for services like construction, but includes exemptions for other professional services, said city attorney Fritz Wonderlich. URA chairman Gary Garnand said engineering falls under that exemption.

The proposal has no set budget, but for each project, Riedesel will submit a time and materials proposal to Anderson for review before going forward with any work. The board doesn't have to approve that spending, Anderson said, but she will update board members on how much the firm charges.

In the URA agenda, she included a breakdown of Riedesel's hourly billing rates. Among them: $180 for a three-person survey crew, $45 for clerical work, $140 for engineer Kent Atkin and $120 for engineer Don Acheson.

Anderson said that even though the agreement doesn't have a budget or cap, “I can't imagine any scenario where the Urban Renewal Agency would be spending hundreds of thousands of dollars.”

Altes Sentenced to Rider in Abduction and Drug Cases

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • If David Altes can stay away from drugs, Judge Randy Stoker believes the two won't meet in his courtroom again.

“You are at a point in life where you need to decide which way you want to go,” Stoker told the 39-year-old, Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Altes was sentenced to a one-year stint in the state's retained-jurisdiction program for his role in the November abduction of a 4-year-old boy from his father's home. Stoker said he would recommend that Altes spend the time in a therapeutic community. Failure to complete the program could result in a two-to-five-year prison sentence.

While awaiting sentence on that charge — conspiracy to commit custodial interference — police saw Altes leaving a known drug dealer's house on Feb. 27. After arresting him for driving without privileges, police found Altes had about 7.6 grams of meth on him.

For that reason, probation was not appropriate in the case, Stoker said. For possessing a controlled substance, Altes received two to seven years in prison, also suspended for the retained jurisdiction stint.

While Altes did not physically enter the home or take the boy in the abduction, Senior Deputy Prosecutor Stan Holloway said he knew of the plan and later helped the boy's mother take the boy to the Hailey area.

Defense attorney Loren Bingham contradicted this, saying Altes did not know of the plan to take the boy and was only trying to help his girlfriend and her son escape an abusive situation.

Bingham asked the court to consider probation in the case, but acknowledged that retained jurisdiction could also be a good choice — a compromise between the prison time asked for by the state and Altes' preference for probation.

Stoker agreed, saying the therapeutic community could help with Altes' drug problem as well.

As for the others in the abduction case:

- Stefania Contreras, 29, the abducted boy's mother, was sentenced to three years of probation.

- Kelvin Milo Jr., 21, pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit custodial interference and will be sentenced April 18.

- Daniel Thomas, 35, is charged with unlawful possession of a weapon by a felon. No hearings are currently scheduled because of separate, pending charges.

NEWS IN BRIEF
STAFF REPORT

Ed Johnson, heavy equipment operator, was surprised when he pulled the giant scoop of earth from the basement he was digging. "What is that?" he thought. "An old whiskey barrel or a wooden box of some kind?" He jumped off his backhoe to investigate. As he approached, his mind was racing. He could see that the wooden box was badly decayed and full of something. As he got closer, he could make out a sword, an old canteen and remnants of an old military uniform. While sifting through the box, he found a bugle, tattered papers and some military badges. It appeared to be the belongings of a soldier of some kind. He spent the rest of the day collecting and examining the items he had found. He needed to find out more.

The next morning he stopped by the local coffee shop to ask questions about the lot he was digging on. He stopped at the right place. Three elderly gentlemen were swapping stories as they did every morning. Ed approached the group and asked if they were from the area. They all laughed and said "Who's asking?" Ed explained that he was building a new house on a lot he recently purchased and told them where it was. One gentleman said, "Oh, you mean the old Norris place? That place was demolished over 50 years ago. Been an empty lot ever since." Ed was intrigued—he hadn't realized there had been a house there. "Place caught fire in the 1940's. I was just a school boy at the time—no one was home, but the place was a total loss. The charred remains sat there for 4 or 5 years before it was cleaned up. I walked past that place twice a day, five days a week, back and forth from school. Went all the way to the 8th grade," the fellow said with a smile. "After that, no one ever rebuilt on the lot. I'm glad to see somebody's doing something with it. Go down and talk to Larry at the court house. He can pull the plat book and tell you all about it." The old guy was right, Larry was a wealth of information. The original farm house was built by Elsie and Thomas Little back in 1845. They moved out and sold to Elijah Miller in 1883. Then in 1916, the place was sold to Henry Norris who tore down the existing two-room farm house and built a new house. That house burned down in 1943.

All of this was great info, now what about the military items? Ed needed to find out exactly what they were. When Ed learned that the Treasure Hunters were coming to town, he thought this would be his chance to learn more about the items he had found. The advertisement had said that the experts would offer advice on any antique and collectible items and they would do it for free. It also said that they would make offers to purchase items. He wasn't interested in selling, but you never know. Hey, if the price is right, who knows?

Ed walked into the hotel where the show was and followed the signs to the meeting room with great anticipation. "My heart was actually beating at twice the normal rate," he said. "As soon as I walked in I was welcomed to the show and given a number. They said it would be about 10 minutes until they would call my number. While I waited, I looked at all the unusual antiques on display. There were old toys, coins, silver tea sets and old metal signs. There was even a sword similar to mine. My number was called and it was the moment I'd been waiting for. I would finally learn about the items I had found."

Ed continued, "almost immediately after I sat down, Greg the antique guru was assigned to assist me said, 'hey nice Civil War sword and bugle. Where did you get them?' I told him my story and he said the family most likely buried the items in honor of the soldier who owned them, and who most likely fought in the Civil War." The soldier's uniform, or what was left of it, the sword and other items would have been distributed by the Union Army. The items were that of an infantry soldier and dated at around 1863. Because a bugle was found, this soldier was most likely the company bugle boy. Most buglers were young boys. Also, the hat in the collection would have fit a very small head—that of a 12 to 14 year old boy.

Greg also explained that since the uniform, sword and other items were together, the soldier most surely survived the war and returned home. Ed reflected that "learning about the items was very interesting and definitely worth the trip. The entire collection was valued at $2,200. Most of the value was the sword and the bugle. I decided to take pictures and sell the collection. I had a great time learning about it and thought it should be in a Civil War enthusiast's collection. I'm actually having a small monument made in honor of the find and putting it at the exact location where it was found."

Treasure Hunters are coming to Twin Falls

BY DAVID MORGAN
STAFF WRITER

Got Booty? If you have a coffee can full of old coins, an old guitar or maybe the costume jewelry your aunt gave you, it's time to bring it out of hiding. This week, Treasure Hunters will make a five day stop here and want to see what you have. These Treasure Hunters aren't armed with a shovel and metal detector, rather their weapon of choice is their expertise and the collectors they buy for. You see, these guys know all about diamonds, coins, antiques and collectibles, musical instruments and anything that's old. For five days they are asking you to bring your booty and make your best deal. These guys pay cash for just about anything that's old. The items they buy go straight to collectors all over the world. How much is a 1960 Gibson Les Paul worth? Well, to some, it might be worth a couple hundred dollars but to a serious collector it could be worth thousands, even ten's of thousands. These guys are buying for these collectors. They pay more for the things their collectors want.

The event is free to attend and there is no obligation to sell anything. If it's information you want, that won't cost you a thing. But be prepared, as an offer to purchase your treasures is highly likely. About eighty percent of the stuff that comes into the show is purchased by these hungry treasure hunters.

According to the Treasure Hunters I talked to, the wait time to get your items looked at is usually a half hour or less. Once there, your items will be examined, identified and an offer will quickly follow. Then it's up to you...do I sell, do I hold out for more or do I walk? The whole thing sounds like a lot of fun and might put some jingle in your pocket. So dig up that booty and head down to the show. You might have the treasure they have been looking for!

5 DAY BUYING EVENT APRIL 10TH - 14TH

TUESDAY-FRIDAY 9AM-6PM SATURDAY 9AM-4PM

HILTON GARDEN INN

1741 HARRISON STREET NORTH, TWIN FALLS, ID 83301

DIRECTIONS 217.787.7767

INFORMATION 217.787.7767

ABOVE A customer brought in his father's coin collection that he had inherited. He was pleasantly surprised with his offer and decided to sell the collection. He said that the money would go towards a down payment on a house for his family.

What kind of things are they looking for?

I'm Tony, and I get asked this question a lot. I usually say, "if it's gold or old, they will probably be interested in it." I know that's a vague answer, so here's a list that might get you thinking:

Gold Jewelry, Costume Jewelry, Diamonds, Silver Coins, Silver Dollars, Gold Coins, Old Paper Currency, Old Wheat Pennies, Old Pocket Watches, Toys made before 1970, Wrist Watches, Foreign Coins, Silver Bullion, Sterling Silver, Barbie Dolls, Tonka Trucks, Coin Collections, Advertising Signs, Old Guitars, Saxophones, All Musical Instruments, Comic Books, Historical Documents, Oil Paintings

WE WANT TO BUY ANY TYPE OF GOLD YOU HAVE

GOLD IS ALMOST AT $1,700 PER OZ.

IT'S TIME TO SELL!

Hi, I'm Archie. I've been a Treasure Hunter since 1996. Back then, gold was around $225 per oz.—now it's six times that. Gold has never been this high and may never be again in my lifetime.

Back in the 1980's, gold and silver soared in price, but soon fell back to rock bottom. Well, it's a seller's market right now. The poor world economy and weak dollar have increased prices to all-time highs. My advice to people is to sell now at the high side.

Many people have gold in their jewelry box and don't realize how valuable it really is. If you've got old rings, necklaces, mismatched earrings or even gold teeth just sitting in a dresser drawer, dig it out and bring it in. You will be surprised just how much we can pay you.

Old Coins and Paper Currency

Did you know that the United States started minting coins in 1793? All coins are worth something: old silver dollars, half dollars, quarters and dimes made before 1965 are mostly silver and worth many times their face value. A $20 gold coin from the early 1900's could be worth $2,000 or more to collectors. If you have any older coins or paper currency, please come see us. We will buy one coin or million dollar collections.

BUYING PRE-1934 PAPER CURRENCY

Hi, my name is David. I've been collecting coins since I was a child. I can't wait to visit with you and examine your old coins and paper currency. I will be honest and fair with you and pay you as much as I can for your old coins. I have purchased millions of dollars worth of coins from people all over the world.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

We pay for any instrument, including guitars, saxophones, clarinets, flutes, drums, cymbals, french horns, tubas and bass guitars.

SILVER

Hi, I'm Dennis and I am a Treasure Hunter. Silver is almost $35 per oz. Five years ago, it was $2.50 per oz. If you have old silver jewelry, tea sets, sterling and old silver coins, I want to see it. I buy hundreds of pounds of silver every week. If it's silver, please come and see me!

SOUTH KOREA SAYS NORTH PREPARING FOR NUCLEAR TEST

BY HYUNG-JIN KIM
Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea • Recent satellite images show North Korea is digging a new underground tunnel in what appears to be preparation for a third nuclear test, according to South Korean intelligence officials.

The excavation at North Korea's northeast Punggye-ri site, where nuclear tests were conducted in 2006 and 2009, is in its final stages, according to a report by intelligence officials that was shared Monday with The Associated Press.

Its release comes as North Korea prepares to launch a long-range rocket that Washington and others say is a cover for testing missile technology that could be used to fire on the United States.

The Obama administration said Monday it would consider both a rocket launch and an underground nuclear test as highly provocative and leave Pyongyang more isolated.

"In each case this would be an indication of North Korea's decision at the leadership level not to take the steps that are necessary to allow North Korea to end its isolation, to rejoin the community of nations and to do something about the extreme poverty and deprivation that its people suffer," White House spokesman Jay Carney told a news briefing in Washington.

Observers fear a repeat of 2009, when international criticism of the North's last long-range rocket launch prompted Pyongyang to walk away from nuclear disarmament negotiations and, weeks later, conduct its second nuclear test. A year later, 50 South Korean were killed in attacks blamed on the North.

"North Korea is covertly preparing for a third nuclear test, which would be another grave provocation," said the intelligence report, which cited U.S. commercial satellite photos taken April 1.

Trayvon Martin Death Won't Go to Fla. Grand Jury.
A grand jury will not look into the Trayvon Martin case, a special prosecutor said Monday, leaving the decision of whether to charge the teen's shooter in her hands alone and eliminating the possibility of a first-degree murder charge. That prosecutor, Angela Corey, said her decision had no bearing on whether she would file charges against George Zimmerman, the neighborhood watch volunteer who has said he shot the unarmed black teen in self-defense. Corey could still decide to charge him with a serious felony such as manslaughter, which can carry a lengthy prison sentence.

Syria Fires over Borders with Lebanon, Turkey

BY ELIZABETH A. KENNEDY
Associated Press

BEIRUT • Syrian forces opened fire across two tense borders Monday, killing a TV journalist in Lebanon and wounding at least six people in a refugee camp in Turkey on the eve of a deadline for a cease-fire plan that seems all but certain to fail.

A witness at the Turkish camp said he saw two refugees killed, although that account could not be independently confirmed.

Across Syria, activists reported particularly heavy violence with more than 125 people killed in the past two days.

The Obama administration expressed outrage at the violence spilling over the frontiers, saying the Syrian government appeared to have little commitment to the peace plan that was negotiated by former U.N. chief Kofi Annan.

The latest bloodshed was a sign of how easily Syria's neighbors could be drawn into a regional conflagration as President Bashar Assad's crackdown on a year-old uprising becomes increasingly militarized.

Annan brokered a deal that was supposed to begin with Syria pulling its troops out of population centers by Tuesday morning, with a full cease-fire by both sides within 48 hours. But hopes for the plan collapsed after a fresh wave of violence and new demands by the regime for written guarantees that the opposition will lay down arms first.

Iran Proposal Joins Jockeying before Nuclear Discussions

BY NASSER KARIMI AND BRIAN MURPHY
Associated Press

TEHRAN, Iran • Iran is signaling a possible compromise offer heading into critical talks with world powers deeply suspicious of its nuclear program: offering to scale back uranium enrichment but not abandon the ability to make nuclear fuel.

The proposal — floated by the country's nuclear chief as part of the early parrying in various capitals before negotiations get under way Friday — suggested that sanctions-battered Iran is ready to bargain.

But this gambit, at least, appeared to fall short of Western demands that Iran hand over its most potent nuclear material and ease a standoff that has rattled nerves and spooked markets with seesaw oil prices and threats of Israeli military strikes.

"It is important for Iran to understand that the window is closing and that these talks are an opportunity," White House press secretary Jay Carney said Monday. "The decision rests with Iran."

The talks involving Iran and the five permanent U.N. Security Council nations plus Germany, to be held in Istanbul, are the first direct negotiations on Tehran's nuclear program since a swift collapse more than 14 months ago.

Despite far-reaching complexities, the dispute effectively boils down to one issue: Iran's stated refusal to close down its uranium enrichment labs.

For Iran, uranium enrichment is a proud symbol of its scientific advances and technological self-sufficiency. Iran's president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, called the nuclear program on Sunday "a locomotive" for other showcase projects such as Iran's space effort.

The U.S. and its allies contend that the same sites that make fuel for reactors could also eventually churn out weapons-grade material. Iran has repeatedly insisted that its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes only.

The ideas put forth late Sunday by the nuclear chief, Fereidoun Abbasi, are an attempt to at least acknowledge this huge divide.

Abbasi said Tehran could eventually stop its production of the 20 percent enriched uranium needed for a research reactor, used for medical research and treatments. But, he added, Iran would continue enriching uranium to lower levels of about 3.5 percent for power generation.

The framework addresses one key Western concern. The U.S. and others worry the higher-enriched uranium could be turned into warhead strength — more than 90 percent enriched — in a matter of months.

Yet Abbasi also directly snubbed a demand backed by the U.S. and some other countries. They want Iran's stockpile of 20 percent-enriched uranium to be transferred out of the country. Abbasi indicated that it would remain in Iran.

"Such a stockpile could enable Iran to make a bomb in the future, should it decide to do so," said Meir Javedanfar, an Iranian-born political analyst now based in Israel.

"Unless an agreement is reached whereby this stockpile is transferred abroad for conversion into nuclear fuel or, at the very minimum, placed under international supervision in another country, it will be very difficult for the (world powers) to accept Iran's current offer," he said.

Autism Research May Be About to Bear Fruit

BY MIKE STOBBE
Associated Press

ATLANTA • More than $1 billion has been spent over the past decade researching autism. In some ways, the search for its causes looks like a long-running fishing expedition, with a focus on everything from genetics to the age of the father, the weight of the mother, and how close a child lives to a freeway.

That perception may soon change. Some in the field say they are seeing the beginning of a wave of scientific reports that should strengthen some theories, jettison others and perhaps even herald new drugs.

"I do think over the next three to five years we'll be able to paint a much clearer picture of how genes and environmental factors combine" to cause autism, said Geraldine Dawson, a psychologist who is chief science officer for the advocacy group Autism Speaks.

The effort has been infused with new urgency by a recent federal report that found autism disorders are far more common than was previously understood, affecting 1 in 88 U.S. children. Better diagnosis is largely responsible for the new estimate, but health officials said there may actually be more cases of autism, too.

If autism's causes remain a mystery, "you're not going to be able to stop this increase," said Irva Hertz-Picciotto, a researcher at the University of California, Davis who is leading a closely watched study into what sparks autism disorders.

In the past week, a spate of studies released during National Autism Awareness Month has offered tantalizing new information about potential causes. Research published in the journal Nature widened the understanding of the genetic roots of some cases and confirmed the elevated risks for children with older fathers. Another study, released online Monday in Pediatrics, suggested maternal obesity may play a role.

To be sure, finding the causes of autism — an umbrella term for a variety of disorders that delay children socially or intellectually — remains daunting. The causes are believed to be complicated, and not necessarily the same for each child. Some liken autism to cancer — a small word for a wide range of illnesses. In many cases, autism can be blamed on both genetic problems that load the gun and other factors that pull the trigger.

It has been a growing public concern for two decades, as studies have found it to be more and more prevalent. The U.S. government dramatically increased funding for autism research in the last decade, and now budgets about $170 million a year through the National Institutes of Health. That's only about a quarter of what NIH will spend on breast cancer research and $50 million less than what it will spend on asthma.

But more than a half-dozen foundations and autism advocacy groups have been adding to the pot, putting annual research spending in recent years at more than $300 million.

About a third of that has been devoted to finding autism's causes.

The lion's share of money for finding a cause has been spent on genetics, which so far experts believe can account for roughly 20 percent of cases. The earliest success was in the early 1990s and involved the discovery of the genetic underpinnings of Fragile X syndrome, a rare condition that accounts for just 2 to 4 percent of autism cases but is the most common form of inherited intellectual disability in boys.

Campaign Says Santorum's Daughter is Recovering

BY KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • GOP presidential candidate Rick Santorum's hospitalized daughter could be released Monday, his campaign said.

Santorum spokesman Hogan Gidley said 3-year-old Bella was doing much better and could be discharged from a northern Virginia hospital by the end of the day.

"The family hopes to take her home from the hospital very soon," he said.

Bella was hospitalized Friday as her father began a brief holiday break from campaigning. He did not campaign Monday so he could be with his daughter, who suffers from a rare genetic condition called Trisomy 18.

Santorum faces an uphill battle against front-runner Mitt Romney in the race for the Republican presidential nomination. The contest next turns to Santorum's home state of Pennsylvania, where both men plan to campaign heavily and where Romney is airing $2.9 million in TV ads against Santorum.

Gidley said Santorum's campaign schedule Tuesday would depend on his daughter's health, but that "we have a full day of events planned tomorrow, so he should be back on the campaign trail."

In deference to Bella's illness, Romney's campaign pulled down a harsh ad that was running against the former senator in Pennsylvania. Romney spokeswoman Andrea Saul said Monday the campaign asked TV stations over the weekend to pull the ad and replace it with a positive, pro-Romney spot instead.

Romney is far ahead of Santorum in the race for delegates to the Republican National Convention and is the likely GOP nominee. Santorum has said he won't drop out of the race, though he's acknowledged he will have to win Pennsylvania if his campaign is to survive.

Bella was hospitalized in January with pneumonia and Santorum left the campaign trail, ahead of the Florida primary, to care for her. The campaign has not provided details of her latest hospitalization.

Avon Hoping to Get a Makeover with New CEO

NEW YORK (AP) • Avon is hoping a new CEO can give it a much-needed makeover. The struggling cosmetics seller on Monday tapped long-time Johnson & Johnson executive Sherilyn S. McCoy as its new chief executive.

The announcement ended a four-month search to replace embattled CEO Andrea Jung, who had come under fire for failing to stem the company's declines and wrap up a bribery investigation.

Avon Products Inc. said Jung — the first female CEO of the 126-year-old company — will remain executive chairman after McCoy takes over later this month.

Rep. Hartgen Returning to Business Plus

TWIN FALLS • The regional economic development group Business Plus has hired Stephen Hartgen to return as its executive director and fundraiser.

He will help the Magic Valley organization develop resources to recruit new businesses to the area and expand existing companies.

Hartgen previously served as Business Plus executive director and fundraiser from 2006 to 2008, when he joined the Idaho Legislature. He plans to continue his legislative position, seeking re-election this fall.

Hartgen

Business Plus has raised several million dollars to help recruit new businesses to the Magic Valley during its 25-year history, according to a news release from the development group. Business Plus works closely with the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization and local groups on a variety of development projects.

Its most recent project came in 2011, when it put $150,000 toward an incentive package to attract yogurt manufacturer Chobani to Twin Falls.

Seattle Orders Businesses to Protect Public Breastfeeding

SEATTLE • It's already against Washington state law to discriminate against public breastfeeding, but the Seattle City Council on Monday specifically made it illegal for businesses and other entities to ask nursing moms to stop, cover up or move to a different location in public areas.

The council unanimously approved a measure that adds a mother's right to breastfeed her child to a list of protected civil rights, such as race, color, disability and religion — allowing the city's office of civil rights to enforce the law and educate the public about the issue.

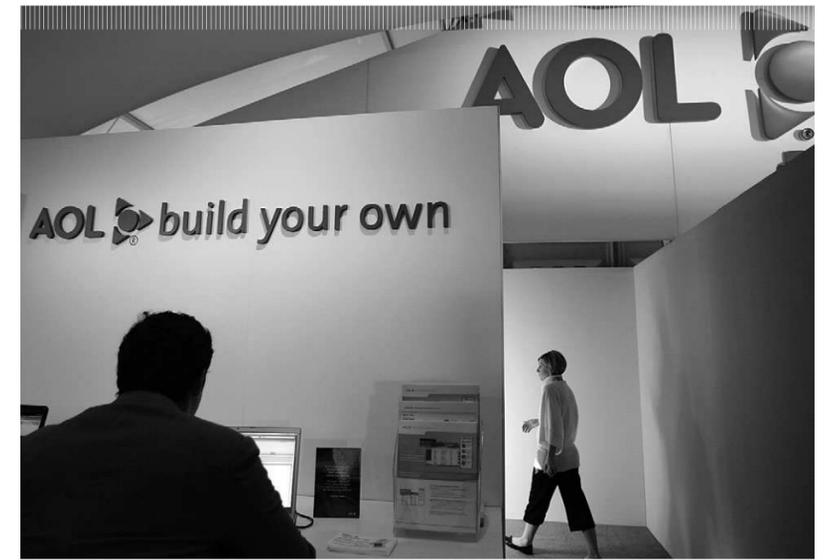

"The bottom line is, it's a health issue for our community," said Councilman Bruce Harrell, who sponsored the bill. "It's very clear the benefits of breastfeeding. What we want to do is move the needle in terms of community acceptance of breastfeeding by having our local civil office of rights enforcing the law."

Mayor Mike McGinn will sign the bill into law, his spokesman Aaron Pickus said Monday.

$1 billion

How much Facebook is paying for photo-share app Instagram • Facebook is spending $1 billion to buy the photo-sharing company Instagram in the social network's largest acquisition ever. On the surface, that's a huge sum for a tiny startup that has a handful of employees and no way to make money. But the lack of a business model rarely dampens excitement about hot tech upshots these days. As Facebook has shown, itself without ads or revenue in its early days, money goes where the users are. Instagram lets people share photos they snap with their mobile devices.

Microsoft Deal with AOL Part of Patent Scramble

A valuable patent is less like a forgotten Rembrandt and more like a rusty-but-serviceable gun.

BY PETER SVENSSON
Associated Press

NEW YORK • AOL's $1 billion deal to sell and license patents to Microsoft is another in a series of "Antiques Roadshow" moments in the technology world. Faded companies have been rummaging through their assets recently, and some of them have found musty old patents that turn out to be worth a great deal.

Patents have become a hot commodity in recent years. They give the holder the exclusive right to use certain technologies or business processes in the U.S. Companies such as Microsoft, Apple, Facebook, Google and others are collecting large patent libraries and increasingly using them in lawsuits — to defend their businesses or to attack rivals.

A valuable patent is less like a forgotten Rembrandt and more like a rusty-but-serviceable gun.

"Patents have become legal weapons. They're not representing ideas anymore," says James Bessen, a lecturer at Boston University and the director of a nonprofit that studies patent issues.

Two big deals in the past year have pushed patents into the spotlight.

In July, a consortium that included Apple Inc. and Microsoft Corp. pledged to pay $4.5 billion for patents from Nortel Networks, a bankrupt Canadian maker of telecommunications equipment. By contrast, Nortel's once-prominent wireless networks business fetched just $1.13 billion in 2009.

The consortium outbid Google Inc. for the Nortel patents. But Google struck back in August, when it sealed a deal to buy cellphone company Motorola Mobility Holdings Inc. for $12.5 billion. Motorola is well past its prime as a cellphone maker, but as a technology front-runner for decades, its engineers had accumulated 17,500 patents for the company. The deal with Google has yet to close.

Google wants Motorola's patents as a defense against lawsuits related to its Android operating software for phones and tablets. Motorola, Samsung Electronics Co. and other phone makers have been riding Apple's coattails

At a Glance AOL Patent Deal

CHANGING HANDS: Microsoft is paying AOL more than $1 billion for a trove of some 800 patents and licenses to others.

IMPORTANCE: The auction bid is the latest sign of just how valuable such portfolios can be for the world's biggest technology companies. They're useful both for suing competitors and for warding off lawsuits with threats of countersuits.

DETAILS: Microsoft refused to say what the patents cover. Benchmark analyst Clayton Moran says they revolve around Internet technology, including advertising, search and mapping. This would help Microsoft compete with Google Inc.

ity, high-tech products are particularly susceptible to patent litigation. Hundreds of thousands of patents could apply to a smartphone, for instance. A competitor sitting on any one of those patents could ask a court to stop sales of the product. Things rarely get that far, however. Instead, the defendant usually ends up paying the patent owner ongoing royalties.

These royalties can add up: Analyst Pierre Ferragu at Sanford Bernstein estimates that Taiwanese smartphone maker HTC Corp. pays about 10 percent of its revenue to license patents from other companies.

Christopher Marlett, the CEO of MDB Capital, an investment bank that focuses on intellectual properties including patents, says he believes the AOL deal was driven by the rivalry between Google and Microsoft. AOL has Internet-related patents, including some that cover mapping, given that it owns MapQuest, one of the pioneers in that area. Google and Microsoft have their own mapping services.

Much as Google, Microsoft and Apple are doing, Facebook is also buying patents from technology veterans to use in tomorrow's battles.

As a young, successful company with few patents of its own, it needs protection. In March, IBM Corp. sold Facebook 750 patents.

Titanic: The Reality

BELFAST, Northern Ireland • Here, where Titanic, the massive White Star Line luxury liner, was built — the joke for years has been, "It was fine when it left here."

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the sinking of the ship "Not even God himself could sink..." and the centenary is being observed in diverse ways.

There are solemn remembrances. A "Requiem for the Lost Souls of the Titanic" is scheduled for St. Anne's Cathedral and there's a Titanic Commemoration Service and Unveiling of the Titanic Memorial Gardens at City Hall.

Elsewhere, the government and entrepreneurs are seeking to make a profit. The Titanic Belfast visitor attraction opened March 31 and is sold out through April 16. MTV UK is staging a "Titanic Sounds" event, which it is billing as "the biggest party in the world." A party about a tragedy; how modern.

In America, where Titanic was headed when it sank April 15, 1912, about 960 miles northeast of New York City, James Cameron's 1997 blockbuster film "Titanic" is being re-released in 3-D. The film gives us the fictional romance between "Rose" and "Jack" and, as generally agreed, even by Cameron himself, a host of historical inaccuracies that may be all a generation of young people will learn about the ill-fated ship and its tragic maiden voyage.

The 1953 film, "Titanic," starring Clifton Webb and Barbara Stanwyck, also contained historical inaccuracies and fabricated scenarios, as did the 1958 film "A Night to Remember," another Hollywood interpretation of the tragic sinking.

The true story of the Titanic, however, is quite different and as far as I know has never been told in a feature film. In Cameron's version, he depicts the wealthy as asserting their privilege over third-class passengers and crew so they could escape in lifeboats not made available to all, a depiction that plays on issues of class warfare and social inequality.

In many cases, the opposite was true, according to documented historical accounts that include real-life examples of rich passengers coming to the aid of the less fortunate. Writing in the March issue of the Christian publication, "Tabletalk," Dr. Harry L. Reeder, a Presbyterian minister in Birmingham, Ala., cites one such example of the selflessness of the rich and their sacrifices for the "lower classes." Dr. Reeder laments the missed opportunity by filmmakers to tell a far more dramatic and compelling story, the real story of the Titanic.

Reeder muses on the "amazing event" chronicled in historic accounts, in which, "Men of power and prestige (including Benjamin Guggenheim, John Jacob Astor and Macy's department store owners Ida and Isidor Straus) sacrificed their lives for women and children of the lower class, many of whom were indentured servants, day laborers, and domestic workers. On this flotilla of self-absorption, self-sacrifice became a prevailing virtue during a crisis moment, and the powerful chose death that the powerless might receive life."

Reeder asks "Why?" and answers his own question: "... the undeniable influence of Christianity. The Christian virtue of self-sacrifice for the well-being of others and the biblical imperative for men to lay down their lives for women and children were chosen instead of self-preservation."

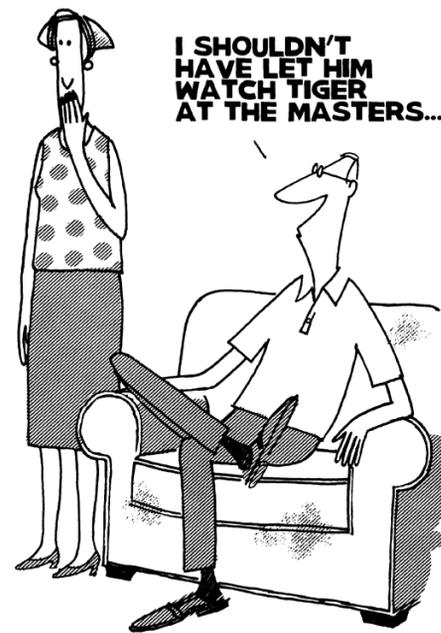

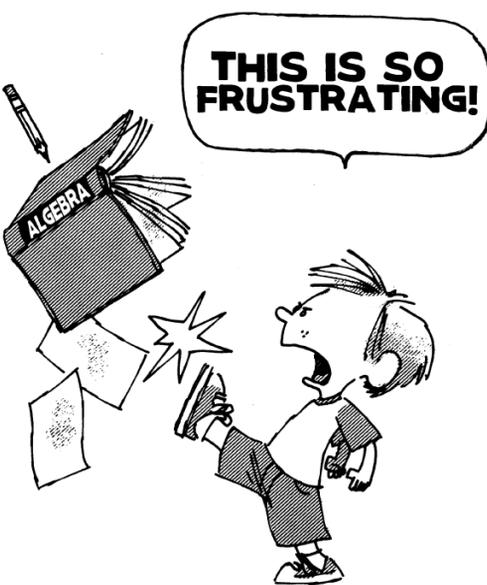

Other ships have sunk with great loss of life. The Lusitania was torpedoed by a German U-boat on May 7, 1915, killing more than 1,100 with nearly 800 surviving, but that ship went down in just 18 minutes, while the Titanic took almost three hours to slip beneath the waters of the North Atlantic, thus giving the Titanic more time for real, as well as manufactured, drama.

Since its demise, Titanic's name has become a brand. Souvenir T-shirts and other tacky memorabilia are for sale. USA Today reports a $5 bill salvaged from the wreckage is up for auction. The reality, though, is that more than 1,500 people died when the ship sank. Branches of family trees were severed. Parents were lost to children and children who were lost never lived to be parents themselves.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tirade Against Big Oil Seems Hypocritical

To respond to Betty Brooks' letter about the Keystone XL Pipeline:

I have to wonder how Ms. Brooks has been able to live in and if she plans on living in Hailey in the future. The tirade on the oil industry and the development in Canada's pristine forests is not, as Ms. Brooks mentions, the huge threat to wildlife and public health associated with the Tar Sands Pipeline. And she mentions two catastrophic spills and the struggle cleanup crews are having to restore the ecosystems. The spills were not catastrophic and the clean up has been long taken care of.

Ms. Brooks, please! You are living in Hailey, Idaho! Do you realize the fossil fuels that are required for your lifestyle, privacy and the thrill of living in such a trendy place as Hailey? You maintain a lifestyle at the end of the road, so to speak. The supply system goes up, delivers and comes back empty. Almost everything you wear, eat, read, gas, tires, oil, furniture and your daily needs to include toilet paper is sent to Hailey by truck or you drive to the Twin Falls area to buy it. Either way, it is a 140-mile round trip for that roll of toilet paper. Over the years you have lived there, and if you live there in the future, adds up to a lot of gas and diesel.

Questions! Does the Big Oil Industry help facilitate the trip? Or do you take a horse and buggy? Does the Hailey area have an emergency response system to fight fires and to save lives that use fossil fuels? Why not move to Jerome or Twin where you can find affordable housing within walking distance to Wal-Mart? Then you can justify your contempt for Big Oil and the country's need for future fuel to maintain your old neighbor's lifestyle. Need some help moving? Come on down to Jerome with your horse and buggy and pick me up. I am not hard to find. (I live less than one mile from Wal-Mart.)

Time to Put Federal Budget in Perspective

I'd like to add something to what Mike Simpson, Republican in the Idaho Congress, stated in his Opinion page commentary, "The Ides of March Budgets, Debt, Health Care."

The biggest part of the budget problem is that the numbers are so large that even the cuts Congress said they are making are not put into perspective. I found a story that had this explanation of our federal budget that I'd like to share.

U.S. Tax revenue: $2,170,000,000,000;
Federal budget: $3,820,000,000,000;
New debt: $1,650,000,000,000;
National debt: $14,271,000,000,000;

Recent budget cut: $38,500,000,000.

Let's remove eight zeros and pretend it's a household budget: Annual family income: $21,700. Money the family spent: $38,200. New debt on the credit card: $16,500. Outstanding balance on the credit card: $142,710. Total budget cuts: $385. I think most people will be shocked when it is put into simple numbers so they can see that cuts are not something Congress is really serious about.

And while I'm on the subject, I urge you to log onto the Internet and visit <http://usdebt.kleptocracy.us/>. Make sure you scroll down so you can get a visual of what our debt in one hundred dollar bills stacked would look like. It's time to stop the bleeding, we need a balanced budget.

Details Were Unnecessary in Jail Lawsuit Story

I just picked up the morning paper and, upon reading the first page, had to literally tear it out of the paper because it was so sexually explicit I didn't want my kids reading it!

The article titled "Former Inmates Sue Twin Falls Jail" printed Thursday, April 5, was over the top. Do we need to know the specifics you gave? I say no. I feel compassion for the treatment of these men but enough of our world is filled with these kinds of situations. Can't we be a bit more moral or at least have some class and leave out the specifics? You should be more responsible with your intentions to write; a lot of the detail was unnecessary to the story.

Imagine a 10-year-old reading this! We send these papers to our schools!

Jack Johnson is a True Leader

With more than 50 years of public service as a first responder, 31 years as a fire chief and eight years as chief of staff for a state senator, I know what to look for in a true leader. I would encourage the citizens of Twin Falls County to vote Jack Johnson for sheriff.

Jack has the ethics and integrity that the highest law enforcement officer needs to represent and lead the citizens and deputies of our county. Jack, being a true leader, stands for what he believes in, not saying just what you would want to hear.

Professionally, for the past 27 years, Jack has proven his integrity and commitment to the citizens of our county. His exemplary record of service shows what we need in our next sheriff as opposed to what we have now.

Please join me in voting for Jack Johnson, Republican, on May 15.

Afton Don Nye

Oct. 3, 1914-April 7, 2012

MALTA • Our beloved father, grandfather, great-grandfather and friend, Afton Don Nye, age 97, passed away peacefully Saturday, April 7, 2012, in Albion, at the home of his son, Andre.

He was born Oct. 3, 1914, in Albion, Idaho, the eighth of nine children born to Fredrick James and Hannah Roseanna Loveland Nye. At a young age, his family left Albion and moved to Alm, and eventually settled in Malta, where Afton received his education and graduated from Malta High School. He continued and completed his education at the University of Idaho in Moscow. When Afton was 12 years old, his father passed away from an accidental death and he, along with his brothers, helped their mother run the farm. He eventually took over the family farm, where he had a very successful dairy and farm operation until he retired.

As a young man, he and two friends, Jack Pierce and Glen Parke, won several awards showing and judging steers. He loved the 4-H program and encouraged his children to participate in it. He also loved to go to the fairs and watch the livestock judging. His greatest love was his family, whom he loved dearly and was so proud of. He loved to spend time with them going fishing and camping — even though when the family went camping, he had to go home every night to milk the cows, come back to camp and sleep, then go back to milk the cows in the morning. He also liked to garden, sing (his nickname was “singer”) and read good books. He especially loved spending time studying the scriptures.

Afton was a lifelong member of the LDS Church and served faithfully throughout his life. He served a mission in the France/Belgium area, where he made lasting friendships. He and his companion, Jack Patterson, have remained close friends ever since. It was only in the last week or so that Jack and his wife, Joan, came to visit him, and they had so much fun reminiscing about their missionary days.

Afton married Ann Hanchir on Oct. 3, 1950, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. They were married for 59 years and were blessed with five children. They worked side-by-side in the Logan Temple for many years and in 1994 to 1995, they served as missionaries in the Frankfurt Germany LDS Temple, which they both loved. It was a wonderful time for them both as they were able to visit Ann's family in Belgium on their days off. Ann passed away on Aug. 11, 2010. He missed her so much.

He is survived by his children, Shirley (Bill) Morris of Washougal, Wash., Elizabeth (David) Kimber of Grouse Creek, Utah, Stephen Nye of Malta, Andre (Carol) Nye of Albion and Robbin (Jeff) Thomas of Ferndale, Wash.; many grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. In addition to his wife, Ann, he was preceded in death by his parents; two brothers, Merlin and John; and his sisters, Hilda Harris, Cordelia Shaw, Marian Taylor, Ona Gunnell, Nona Camp and Ruth Magnelli-Zollinger.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, April 13, at the Malta LDS Church with Bishop Jeff Johnson officiating. Burial will be in the Valley Vu Cemetery.

Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, April 12, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Friday at the church.

Vera Fern Tattersall

April 22, 1917-April 7, 2012

EDEN • Vera Fern Tattersall, 95, of Eden, went to be with the Lord on Saturday, April 7, 2012.

She was born April 22, 1917, in Burley, Idaho, the daughter of David and Viva Fern Burgess. Vera spent her childhood in Springdale, Idaho. At the age of 10, her beloved mother passed away. Her father later remarried, giving Vera four brothers and three sisters total.

Vera met William John Tattersall at age 18; it was love at first sight. They were married Nov. 6, 1935. William passed away three short weeks later from pneumonia. She then married Fred Tattersall on March 14, 1936, and they were married 64 years. The couple had twin girls, Vern and Fern. Seventeen years later, a baby boy was born, William. Vera worked alongside her husband on the Tattersall Ranch farming and raising sheep. She enjoyed spending time with family and friends. It gave her great joy to be a part of their lives. Vera attended Kimberly Christian Church, where she had been a member for more than 60 years.

She loved the Lord and is now resting peacefully with him.

Surviving are her children, Vern (Larry) Harkins of Kimberly, Fern Allen of Filer and Bill Tattersall of Eden; brother, Ben Burgess of California; sisters, Grenda Biggs of Burley and Mary Ellen of Salt Lake City, Utah; nine grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; and two great-great-grandchildren. She will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved her.

A celebration of life will be held following the service at 4 p.m. at the MAR Cemetery in Rupert. The family requests memorials be made in Vera's name to the Kimberly Christian Church, P.O. Box 98, Kimberly, ID 83341-0098, or the charity of one's choice.

Those who wish may share memorials and condolences at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com. Arrangements are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls.

Frank Moore

Dec. 25, 1920-April 6, 2012

HAILEY • Frank Moore, a lifelong resident of the Wood River Valley, passed away Friday, April 6, 2012.

Frank was born Dec. 25, 1920, in a small cabin at Triumph mine where his father worked. After living for a short time in Mackay, Frank's family moved to a home on Broadford Road south of Hailey across from the Minnie Moore Mine. Frank spent the remainder of his childhood there and graduated from Bellevue High School in 1938.

From these humble beginnings, Frank's life took many exciting turns. After high school, Frank worked at the newly opened Sun Valley Resort as well as in several mines until he was drafted into the 9th Infantry Division during World War II, where he trained as a sharpshooter. Frank's adventures during the war kindled his excitement for more travel and, after spending a year at the University of Idaho, he moved to Switzerland to attend the University of Basel and then to Washington, D.C., where he graduated in 1951 from George Washington University with a degree in foreign service. His goal at that time was to become a diplomat, but after working in D.C. for a time, he realized his true home was in Idaho.

He moved back in 1948 and began working again at Sun Valley, first as a bell hop, which he always said was his favorite job. It was there that he met his future wife, Shirley, who was working as a cashier at the inn. They were married in July of 1953. Frank continued to work at Sun Valley in various capacities until his retirement in 1986. Frank and Shirley enjoyed many travels and adventures together, including countless trips throughout Mexico, Hawaii, Alaska and the Caribbean. He will be remembered as a loving husband, father, grandfather and friend to many; for his lively sense of humor, his humility, and his strong and generous spirit.

Frank is survived by his wife, Shirley of nearly 59 years; sons, Gary Moore of Boise and Randy (Ramona) Moore of Seattle; daughter, Terri Moore of Hailey; and his three beloved grandchildren, Sean Schupack, Courtney and Riley Moore. # Settlement Reached in Nuclear Project Lawsuit

BY ALEX MORRELL
Associated Press

BOISE • The head of a company seeking to build a nuclear power plant in Idaho has agreed to pay $450,000 to resolve a lawsuit with a group of angry investors.

Shareholders of Alternate Energy Holdings Inc. in late 2010 sued the company, Chief Executive Officer Don Gillispie and Vice President Jennifer Ransom, claiming they schemed to mislead investors about their compensation and manipulated the company's trading value.

Philip Gordon, a Boise lawyer representing the investors, said an agreement was reached in mediation last week, calling on the company to pay $450,000 by the end of June or face a $2 million penalty judgment.

A federal judge must still approve the settlement.

Investors say that between 2006 and 2010, Gillispie duped them into buying Alternate Energy stock at an artificially inflated price by hiring stock promoters to manipulate demand for the company and then issuing deceptive press releases touting the company's fiscal health.

"Alternate Energy and certain of its officers and directors made materially false and misleading statements and engaged in a scheme to manipulate and artificially inflate the market price," the shareholders' lawyers wrote in the complaint.

They also allege that while Gillispie was working to swell the stock price, he and Ransom were secretly unloading their own shares for a profit.

Gillispie denies any wrongdoing.

Accusations of fraud against the company were first made public when the Securities and Exchange Commission filed a lawsuit in December 2010.

Among the allegations, SEC attorneys claim company executives conspired to falsely state in marketing promotions that the project was "fully funded"; Ransom hid $675,000 in stock sales; Ransom and Gillispie misled shareholders about their pay; and double-dipped to recoup $145,000 in personal expenses, including stays at Las Vegas' Bellagio Hotel & Casino.

The SEC's allegations sent the company's stock price plummeting from 58 cents per share to as low as 6 cents per share, causing significant losses for shareholders, who sued the company days later.

For the past decade, Alternate Energy Holdings has sought to build a nuclear power plant in three Idaho counties, switching locations several times.

Richard Roth, Gillispie's lawyer, said the agreement removes a time-consuming and expensive obstacle, allowing the company to move forward.

"In light of the fact that this lawsuit alleged millions of dollars in damage, we're very pleased with the result," Roth said.

The company received clearance last summer from Payette County to build a nuclear power plant.

Tax Break Becomes Law without Otter

BOISE • A bill providing large-scale developers some tax relief has become state law without the signature of Idaho's governor.

Last month, lawmakers approved a legislation that exempts the value of improvements on property until the developer begins putting up homes and buildings or sells the acreage to another developer.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter allowed the measure to become law without his signature. The Spokesman Review reports Otter avoided putting his name on it after declaring he could have a potential conflict of interest as a developer.

Otter wrote a letter to Secretary of State Ben Yursa outlining his concerns and efforts to avoid an impropriety.

Otter Signs Massage Measure

BOISE • A new law signed by Idaho's governor will guarantee that clients looking for a backrub or any other massage therapy will get treatment from a licensed professional.

With the governor's endorsement, Idaho joins 43 other states that are now licensing massage therapists.

Under the new rules, therapists will have 18 months to become licensed and pay a $200 annual fee. This changes the professional landscape significantly since anyone can claim to be a massage therapist and charge for the service.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter signed the bill last week after lawmakers this year finally got behind a licensing proposal sought by the industry.

Enthusiam Greets Jerome's Gambles

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Sid Gambles has football problems. Almost all of them are good, though. As Gambles adjusts to life as Jerome's new head coach, he's trying to balance planning for football season with his in-season sport, where he coaches the Tigers' boys track and field team. He's got no shortage of volunteers in the football department, and there's no lack of enthusiasm either. "It's progressing slowly, but the good thing is we have a lot of guys that want to help. It's just a matter of sorting them out into the proper coaching position," said Gambles, who was hired as Gary Krumm's replacement in late March. "A few of those guys who went away over the last few years want back in ... it's a good problem to have. Part of it is we had some success a few years ago and maybe a slight change is all we need to get back to that level. Newness always helps, and we've got to take advantage of that." Jerome reached its recent pinnacle when it hit the 4A championship game in 2008. The next season held large amounts of promise, but they were never realized. Still, the prospect of recapturing that magic has coaches and players angling for a quick turnaround. They're banking on positivity and familiarity, and the message seems to be resonating. "Most of us saw that game or were there, and we definitely look up to those guys. We tried to take as much as we could learning from that group of juniors," said junior quarterback Simon Espinoza. "We love the newness, and we really do

Jazz Halt Spurs' Win Streak

With both teams playing short-handed, Utah rallies for important win to stay in playoff conversation.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY • Devin Harris scored 25 points, including 11 straight in the fourth quarter, and the Utah Jazz halted the San Antonio Spurs' 11-game winning streak and boosted their own playoff hopes with a 91-84 victory Monday night. Paul Millsap added 18 points for the Jazz, who avenged a 114-104 road loss Sunday to the Spurs. Utah (30-28) is injury riddled but the Spurs (40-15) were short-handed in a different way, choosing not to bring stars Tim Duncan, Tony Parker and Manu Ginobili for the rematch. Coach Gregg Popovich wanted that trio, averaging 46.8 points, to rest. Gary Neal and Tiago Splitter scored 14 points apiece, and DeJuan Blair added 13 in San Antonio's first loss since March 17. The Jazz were down eight, and pulled within two before Harris scored 11 straight, including a pair of 3-pointers. Millsap's follow dunk sealed it for the Jazz, who won despite 20 turnovers. Utah had lost its three previous meetings this season to San Antonio by nearly a 10-point margin and went 0-3 against the Spurs last season. But Popovich called it a "no brainer" to rest Duncan, Parker and Ginobili when he looked at San Antonio's upcoming schedule. The Spurs play three games in four days starting with the Los Angeles Lakers on Wednesday. They have 11 games remaining in the condensed season and already have locked up a playoff spot. Popovich wasn't worried about securing the No. 1 overall seed but "trying to survive." The Jazz are trying to do the same, as they entered Monday's game in 10th place, 1 1/2 games out of the eighth and final Western Conference playoff spot.

A Matchup We're Not Going to See

If you are a fan of college football, it has been impossible to ignore conference realignment and how it is changing the game on the gridiron, for better and worse. But unless your allegiance to college sports is first and foremost with the hardwood, or you live in ACC or true Big East country, there hasn't been a lot of debate on this topic when it comes to basketball. In these parts, that could have changed on Saturday, when Fabyon Harris committed to Big 12 member Texas A&M. Excuse me — soon-to-be former Big 12 member Texas A&M. With the Aggies' decision some months ago to go to the SEC, that took away the twice-annual duel between Texas A&M and Baylor, which features another CSI alum in point guard Pierre Jackson. Baylor vs. A&M. Jackson vs. Harris. Anchor Bar or the Pressbox? That's must-see TV in these parts. Under the right circumstances, it would be a great story. But it's not going to happen. It's also a story two people with no insignificant role at CSI are glad to see won't happen. "Fabyon needs to be able to distance himself from the comparisons to Pierre," CSI athletic director Joel Bate said. "There was a lot well, but I think people were expecting him to be the next Pierre. He's Fabes, not Pierre." When CSI head coach Steve Gosar was asked if he could put himself in the shoes of Everyday Joe CSI Fan and salivate over such a matchup against looking at the two players like they were his own kids, he emphatically replied, "The latter." If it isn't clear to you already, athletic directors and coaches have quite a different perspective. While fans and media would love to hype up such a matchup, Bate and Gosar would probably cringe and hide their eyes at the prospect. And who could blame them? Especially Gosar. How much time has he invested in getting both players to the next level? And only to have them face off against each other at least twice next year, and maybe even three times? You would probably get Gosar to sign off on an eternity of back-to-back conference road games before you could get him to enjoy that scenario. "People all year long have asked me to compare Fabyon and Pierre," Gosar said. "They're two completely different players.

Saints, Payton Spared No Relief From NFL

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Roger Goodell sent a message to every coach and player in the NFL: safety first. The league commissioner stuck with his punishments for New Orleans' pay-for-pain bounties on Monday, rejecting Saints coach Sean Payton's appeal of a season-long suspension. An NFL investigation found that, under Payton's watch, an assistant ran a program offering cash payouts for hits that knocked targeted opponents out of games or hurt them so badly they needed help getting to the sideline. Next on Goodell's agenda: discipline for players involved in the bounty program that began in 2009, the season the Saints won the Super Bowl. Given recent history, at least some of those penalties are likely to be tough, too. The Saints case represents perhaps the starkest example yet of the sea change that the NFL has undergone since medical research and media reports on the long-term damage suffered by football players through concussions began to gain attention. As recently as October 2009, while testifying before Congress, Goodell did not acknowledge a link between head injuries on the field and brain diseases later in life. And hundreds of NFL retirees are now suing the league for health problems they say began with their playing careers.

Payton: Out for 2012

Parcells: Saints interim boss?

Siavii Back Better Than Ever

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

MOSCOW • Nearing the one-year anniversary of his season-ending knee injury, Robert Siavii swears he doesn't think about what happened that sunny Saturday last spring. Not as he's going full speed on the field for Idaho, at least. But the details still haunt him. His mind often drifts to last year's Silver and Gold game, when he sprinted to the edge to tackle Ryan Bass — only to get tangled up with Bass and defensive end Benson Mayowa. Sometime during the collision and awkward fall, Siavii tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee. His 2011 season was over. "Every night," said Siavii, a redshirt senior linebacker, when asked how often he thinks of the play. "Every night right before I fall asleep. Every morning when I wake up. That's the last thing on my end at the end of the day and the first thing on my mind (at the) beginning of the day." Coping with a major injury and sitting out last fall, as Idaho stumbled through a 2-10 season, was challenging. But Siavii — the Vandals' leading tackler in 2010 — now considers his injury a blessing. The Hawaiian had a redshirt year available, and he's come back 20 pounds heavier and considerably stronger. Not to mention faster. In lifting tests post-surgery, Siavii has added 15 to 20 pounds to personal bests in almost every category. He now weighs 225 pounds (he started spring at 229) after playing two years ago at around 205. Even with the added weight, his top 40-yard dash has improved — from 4.9

Canyon Ridge's Baird Taking Long Road From Home

TWIN FALLS •

High school athletes often travel a long road to get the chance to play at the collegiate level.

That's speaking in figurative terms, but in the case of Canyon Ridge's Staci Baird, that term can be applied literally as well.

The Riverhawk volleyball player announced Monday that she will continue her playing career at Endicott College, a Division III school in Beverly, Mass., about halfway between Boston and the New Hampshire border.

Or 2,600 miles from Twin Falls.

"I always have wanted to go back east for college," said Baird, who researched the school online. "When I saw it I knew I wanted to go there and as soon as I got on campus, I absolutely loved it and knew that's where I wanted to go."

While visiting the school, Baird got to practice with the team and coach Tim Byram, who watched Baird's highlight tape before she arrived.

With plenty of experience at middle blocker, Baird is optimistic she can get playing time at right-side or outside hitter.

Last year, the Gulls were 16-16 overall, 7-1 in the Commonwealth Coast Conference, good for a second-place finish and runner-up in the conference tournament. From 2004-2008, Endicott made the NCAA Division III tournament four times in five years.

"I wanted to go far away and get a completely new experience and environment for college," Baird said.

She'll get it all right. As is typical for eastern colleges, all freshmen must live in on-campus dorms. But at Endicott, they are not allowed to have cars.

"That will be interesting," said Baird, who will fly to Boston at the beginning of August to begin her collegiate career.

"As soon as I got on campus, I absolutely loved it and knew that's where I wanted to go."

Big Middlekauff's Quote of the Day

"I realized early on that success was tied to not giving up. Most people in this business gave up and went on to other things. If you simply didn't give up, you would outlast the people who came in on the bus with you."

MLB ROUNDUP

Cardinals Continue Hot Start

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI • Matt Holliday, David Freese and Yadier Molina homered during the St. Louis Cardinals' big first inning, and Jake Westbrook found his control after a rough start, beating the Cincinnati Reds 7-1 on Monday night.

The defending World Series champions improved to 4-1 with an offense that hasn't missed Albert Pujols so far.

Only 20 pitches into the game, Reds starter Homer Bailey (0-1) trailed 4-0. It was the second time this season that St. Louis hit three homers in an inning. Molina also doubled home a pair of runs in the eighth.

MARLINS 6, PHILLIES 2 PHILADELPHIA • Anibal Sanchez took a three-hitter into the seventh, Omar Infante hit a pair of solo homers and Miami spoiled Philadelphia's home opener.

GIANTS 7, ROCKIES 0 DENVER • Barry Zito threw a four-hitter for his first shutout in nine years and Pablo Sandoval hit a two-run homer to lead San Francisco over Colorado.

Zito (1-0) allowed three harmless singles and a double. He didn't walk a batter and struck out four in tossing his fifth career shutout and first since April 18, 2003, against Texas.

METS 4, NATIONALS 3 NEW YORK • Daniel Murphy singled home the winning run in the ninth and New York took advantage of a throwing error by reliever Henry Rodriguez to beat Washington.

Kirk Nieuwenhuis hit his first major league homer for the Mets, who are 4-0 for the first time since 2007. Jon Rauch (1-0) worked two hitless innings for his first win with New York.

ASTROS 8, BRAVES 3 HOUSTON • Travis Buck drove in two runs, Justin Maxwell homered in his Houston debut and the Astros rebounded from an early deficit thanks to sloppy defensive play by Atlanta.

Houston trailed 3-0 in the third before a trio of errors by the Braves, with two from third baseman Juan Francisco, led to three unearned runs and tied the game.

BREWERS 7, CUBS 5 CHICAGO • Aramis Ramirez drove in two runs in his return to Wrigley Field, Ryan Braun got booed relentlessly and Milwaukee hung on to beat Chicago.

The Brewers held a four-run lead going into the ninth before the Cubs scored two runs and had the bases loaded when John Axford struck out Starlin Castro on three pitches to end it.

American League

YANKEES 6, ORIOLES 2 BALTIMORE • The New York Yankees finally won their first game of the season, using four hits by Derek Jeter and an effective pitching performance by Ivan Nova.

Andruw Jones homered for the Yankees, who averted the fourth 0-4 start in franchise history — the first since 1973. New York began the season by losing three straight to Tampa Bay.

RED SOX 4, BLUE JAYS 2 TORONTO • Ryan Sweeney singled home the go-ahead run in the ninth inning and the Boston Red Sox rallied to beat the Blue Jays, spoiling Toronto's home opener and avoiding the first back-to-back 0-4 starts in team history.

RANGERS 11, MARINERS 5 ARLINGTON, Texas • Yu Darvish overcome a rocky start and got a big boost from the powerful Texas lineup, winning his much-anticipated major league debut in the Rangers' victory over the Mariners.

After giving up four runs while throwing 42 pitches in the first inning, then allowing another run in the second, Darvish (1-0) settled down and later retired 10 in a row while pitching into the sixth.

ANGELS 5, TWINS 1 MINNEAPOLIS • C.J. Wilson won his awaited Angels debut with seven smooth innings, giving Los Angeles all the boost it needed to beat the Twins and spoil Minnesota's home opener.

WHITE SOX 4, INDIANS 2 CLEVELAND • Chris Sale won his first career start, limiting Cleveland to one run in 6 2-3 innings and leading the White Sox to a win over the Indians.

NBA ROUNDUP

Minus Kobe, Lakers Beat Hornets

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW ORLEANS • Pau Gasol had 25 points and nine rebounds, and the Los Angeles Lakers overcame Kobe Bryant's absence to beat the New Orleans Hornets 93-91 on Monday night.

Ramon Sessions helped pick up the slack with 17 points, including a 3-point-er that put the Lakers ahead by six with 26 seconds left.

GRIZZLIES 94, CLIPPERS 85 MEMPHIS, Tenn. • Marc Gasol scored 18 points, Rudy Gay had 16 and the Grizzlies held on to beat the Los Angeles Clippers.

PACERS 103, RAPTORS 98

INDIANAPOLIS • Danny Granger and George Hill scored 18 points each as Indiana took an early lead and held off Toronto.

THUNDER 109, BUCKS 89 MILWAUKEE • Russell Westbrook scored 26 points and Oklahoma City beat Milwaukee in a game that featured seven technical fouls and an ejection of Bucks backup forward Larry Sanders.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 19 years, but I cannot stay faithful to my wife. I've had a few affairs, visit "massage parlors" on a regular basis and feel my wife deserves better. I want to walk away from our marriage.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

We have kids who will be affected, and it will hurt us financially, but I don't feel right staying in a marriage I can't be faithful to. I haven't told my wife about this, but I believe she knows because we haven't been intimate in months. We had discussed divorce several times in the past, but that was before the kids. Please give me some advice.

- LIVING A LIE IN THE MID-ATLANTIC DEAR LIVING A LIE:

Feeling and behaving as you do, it would have been better for you to have divorced before you had children. However, now that you do have kids, it's time that you level with your wife.

As you stated, she probably has a good idea that something isn't right. She may prefer to remain married to you until your children are out of the house. Or she may feel that her chances of finding someone else are better if you separate now. You'll never know until you talk to her — and she deserves to know the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I am trying to decide who to have as best man at my wedding. I asked my best friend before I got engaged. After the engagement, I received a lot of pressure — and unwanted stress — from my mom to have my brother as best man. After arguing with her for a month straight, I finally gave in and asked my brother. We have never been close. There's no communication and no desire for it. We see each other only during the holidays and have had a forced relationship by Mom since we were teens.

My gut instinct tells me my best friend should be my best man. On the other hand, if I tell my brother he isn't the one anymore, I'm afraid it will be the final dagger in any type of relationship with him and his family. I need your advice on this matter.

- GROOM-TO-BE IN MINNESOTA

DEAR GROOM-TO-BE: You're right that having asked your brother to be your best man, you should not rescind the invitation. However, I have good news. Your best friend can still be your best man. According to Emily Post, there can be two best men. She says:

"Though not so common, two chief attendants may be the right solution when you don't want to choose between siblings or close friends. The attendants can share the duties and the fun!"

So there you are. Problem solved.

DEAR ABBY: I'm dating a man, "Jason," who is a DJ. Lately work has been slow for him, but because he was so popular when he was younger, he finds it hard to accept that he will have to get a 9-to-5 job.

Jason has expressed in the past that he doesn't want to call a 30-year-old his boss and would like to go to school. We hope to get married one day, but I am torn because I don't want to support the household on a wing and a prayer. I do everything I can to encourage him, but his lack of effort is becoming discouraging. How can I explain this without it turning into an argument?

- ON THE RECORD IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR ON THE RECORD: Consider this. The longer Jason waits to look for a 9-to-5 job, the younger his bosses will be. Marriage is a partnership. You shouldn't have to support the household on a "wing and a prayer" because Jason is dragging his feet about returning to school or becoming self-supporting.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Even a sheet of paper has two sides."
— Japanese saying

You never know when squirreling papers away will come in handy. In cleaning out my files, I came across a hand I'd cut out from a U.S. Daily Bulletin from the 1970s. Declarer was Robert Lebi of Canada, who has been a regular player on Canadian squads over the last 30 years.

The lead against four hearts was the club jack to East's king. Next the club ace was cashed, and East now erred by playing a third club, allowing declarer to shorten his hand's trumps. After ruffing, Lebi earned a game swing for his team in this Spingold match by playing a heart to the ace, and, believing his opponent's king to be a true card, played for a trump reduction. He took the spade ace, then ruffed a spade. Now came the diamond ace and king, a diamond ruff, and a spade ruff. Declarer was down to the Q-10 of hearts and a master diamond, while West held J-9-3 of hearts. The diamond jack completed the coup. West had to ruff and lead into the trump tenace to concede the contract.

The Lebi team won their knockout match by less than the swing on this deal, when the other declarer did not ruff a spade when he was in dummy.

Note that if East shifts to the heart king or a diamond, declarer cannot get home. While the heart play could be expensive, a diamond will almost never cost, and as we have seen, it can gain by preventing declarer from shortening his hearts for the trump coup.

ANSWER: A simple call of two clubs is reasonable, as is a double. This would not be for penalties, but would show the fourth suit, clubs, and tolerance for partner's suit, together with decent values. Your trump support may be on the feeble side, but your opening values probably compensate for that.

IF APRIL 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make hay while the sun shines. In the next few weeks, the new connections you make through clubs or organizations could enrich your life and broaden your experience. A brief period of rough going in August and early September will only be problematic if you try to jump start career matters or business projects. You have grand dreams and romantic yearnings, but won't be in a position to make them a reality until later in the year. Wait until November to put your business or financial ideas into motion. Enjoy an opportunity to make valuable friends and latch onto more helpful contacts by the first week of December.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you see no light at the end of the tunnel, it might be because you are looking in the wrong direction. You might be in the dark about the reason for tensions because you don't consider the proper things.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You hunger for love so much that you might not be selective. You shouldn't let yourself act like the starving person at the checkout counter who grabs whatever is handy. New loves don't satisfy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Tell the truth and bear the consequences. Those you deal with might have a very different view of the facts. It could be that someone is merely living a lie built on wishful thinking. You must speak up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Political correctness can become a cage. Everyone is so careful not to offend the sensibilities of others that conversation is locked up with little left to say. You must find someone on the same channel.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Tighten your seat belt when racing emotions cause an upset. People seem awkward in social situations and trouble brews beneath the surface. Sign no contracts; someone might deliberately block your way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Remain light on your feet. A logjam of conflicting feelings can block progress but if you remain agile you can safely navigate tight situations. Don't expect assistance from friends if you start anything new.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be challenged by your own ambitious nature. You resent a lack of cooperation from others. If you concentrate on being more generous, tolerant, and sincere, others will respond in kind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You quickly forget about the thorn in your side when there's a stone in your shoe. A constant stream of small irritations can keep you hopping. Don't initiate anything of powerful significance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could appear to others like cotton that wants to be silk. A few people can see right through your efforts to appear more glamorous or important than you really are. Don't sign crucial agreements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You prefer to experience life at a Zen level. When others pose as social butterflies, tossed on the winds of social issues, you meditate on the purposeful hummingbird and grab the nectar.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): When you get angry, you turn into an activist. Fire up your keyboard and charge your cellphone so you can spread the word about the latest cause. It isn't enough to merely complain to friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pursuing love under these stars might be as much fun as hugging a cactus. Not only are you apt to have your feelings hurt, but you might be barking up the wrong tree. Put romance on the back burner.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
