Chaparelle House Loses License

Health officials say Twin Falls assisted living facility lacked required staffing, failed to disclose pricing information.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare has revoked the license of a local assisted living facility, forcing 18 residents to find new homes immediately.

The Twin Falls Chaparelle House lost its license after state surveyors determined the facility wasn't employing enough staff, said Tom Shanahan, spokesman for Health and Welfare.

Surveyors attempted to inspect the facility on Monday, but facility employees denied them from entering the building, he said. However, when the surveyors returned on Wednesday, the facility let them in.

"It's an unusual situation," Shanahan said.

Chaparelle House was already facing scrutiny from the department after it was hit with a complaint in November. According to the complaint, the facility failed to protect its residents from exploitation.

Among a number of the charges in the complaint, the department found that the facility failed to acknowledge a resident's 30-day discharge notice and didn't disclose all pricing formulas to residents.

Assisted Living Centers — the Wisconsin-based company that owns Chaparelle House — did not return phone calls from the Times-News.

Complaint History

Assisted Living Centers currently operates nine assisted living facilities throughout Idaho. Ten complaints have been filed against the company between 2009 and 2011. The complaints range from failing to hire a license administrator to lacking adequate care and improperly assisting with medication.

CSI Welding Instructors Placed on Leave

College pledges investigation won't affect students' degree progress.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • Two College of Southern Idaho welding instructors have been placed on paid administrative leave while college administrators conduct an investigation.

Juan Martinez and Kent Parish — CSI's only full-time welding technology instructors — were put on leave Thursday until further notice.

CSI spokesman Doug Maughan said the investigation into the men isn't criminal in nature and won't result in charges. He couldn't share further details, calling the issue a personnel matter.

CSI's welding technology program continues to operate, he said, and he expects full instruction to resume Monday or Tuesday. Maughan said there's at least one lab aide who can assist students.

"I don't think there's much of a break in the action," he said.

Maughan said there may have been a false impression among some students about the program's future, with its two instructors currently unable to lead classes. But students will be able to finish their degree on time, he said.

PREPARING FOR THE WORST

A new Twin Falls store caters to those looking to plan ahead for the next disaster.

The Jacksons have since solved that problem, opening their own business to help people get the latest in survival and safety gear.

Surviving in Style opened April 2 at 1688 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

TFSD NEARS 8,000 STUDENTS

Economic factors, new charter schools change growth picture for other area districts.

TWIN FALLS • With an increasing number of students in Twin Falls, classes are more full and hallways more crowded.

Over the past five years, the Twin Falls School District has gained about 500 students. Superintendent Wiley Dobbs said the growth has been manageable, with the student body generally increasing by 1-2 percent each year.

"That's been helpful to us," he said. Since 2002, the number of district teachers has also increased from 412 to 449.

Dobbs said it's a "much better situation" than neighboring districts that have seen a decline in student numbers, as districts receive state funding based on their average daily student attendance.

Next year, Twin Falls school officials expect the growth trend to continue. They're projecting 8,070 students — up from the 7,922 currently enrolled.

Some of the largest enrollment growth has been at the middle schools. They aren't at capacity, but are getting closer.

"We've got a bit of a bottleneck right now in middle school," Dobbs said.

The Facts about Fiber

I hear that fiber is a very important part of my diet. What exactly is it and why is it important to my health?

— Wendy, Jerome

Answered by Alisa Rawson, MS, RD, LD, Clinical Nutrition Services/MSTI, Dietitian:

Fiber is a carbohydrate in plant foods that your body can't digest. There are two types of fiber. Soluble fiber dissolves in water, and can be found in oats, barley, beans, lentils, and various fruits and vegetables. Insoluble fiber does not dissolve in water, and is in dark leafy greens, whole-wheat foods, seeds, nuts, legumes, and other fruits and vegetables.

There are many reasons to add plant foods rich in dietary fiber to your diet. Fiber helps protect against cancer — specifically colorectal cancer — by bulking the stool, diluting harmful substances and speeding their elimination from the body. Fiber also protects the lining of the colon. According to the American Institute for Cancer Research, non-starchy vegetables and fruits may protect against cancers of the mouth, pharynx, larynx, esophagus, colon, rectum and stomach.

Fiber promotes lower cholesterol, and slows digestion to provide a stable blood sugar response which can be protective against type 2 diabetes. The manner in which fiber slows digestion also makes you feel full longer. This can aid in weight management.

So how much fiber should you eat on a daily basis? About 30 grams of fiber each day is a good minimum goal. That equates to at least five servings of vegetables and fruit plus at least three servings of whole grains (1 serving of whole grains is one slice of whole-wheat bread, 1/2 cup of oatmeal, or 1/2 cup of brown rice).

Adding fiber-rich foods to your diet is really just eating a well-balanced meal, every meal of the day, with a focus on plant-based whole foods. Fiber plays an important role in staying healthy, maintaining your weight and fighting chronic diseases.

T.F. Woman Charged after Police Chase

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls woman was arrested late Friday morning after leading police on a short vehicle and foot pursuit along Sixth Avenue West.

A Twin Falls police officer attempted to make a traffic stop for a moving violation on Jessica P. Thomas, 21, when she pulled over on Sixth Avenue West, then drove onto Wall Street and ran from the vehicle, Twin Falls Police Lt. Craig Stotts said.

After a short foot pursuit she was arrested at 10:52 a.m. in the 300 block of Wall

Thomas

Street, he said.

Thomas was charged with possession of a controlled substance, resisting or obstructing officers, providing false information, felony eluding, driving without privileges, possession of a schedule IV narcotic, possession of paraphernalia and driving without proof of insurance.

Stotts said Thomas had a warrant out for a probation violation. The original charge was possession of methamphetamine, he said. The passenger in Thomas' vehicle was not arrested or charged.

more popular over the years. A volatile economy and unstable job market have added to the worry, she said.

Growing up, Nan's father had a catering business.

"There'd be party season and then not-party season," she said. During the off-season when funds were low, the stored food came in handy.

For Nan, the main benefit of having a large stockpile of extra food, water and other emergency and safety items is being calm in a time of chaos.

When she lived in Michigan, she remembers picking up groceries before an impending snowstorm. While she picked up her bread and milk others were panicking, loading water into carts, she said — not the behavior she wants driving her in an emergency.

"The calmer you are, the more likely you are to survive," she said.

The Jacksons are constantly researching new items for the store and themselves, recently adding rechargeable glow sticks to their inventory.

Bill Wilson, a Jerome Search and Rescue member, works as the group's quartermaster and seeks out new supplies. While Search and Rescue currently uses disposable glow sticks during night searches, he's thinking about upgrading.

"Once they're out, they're out," he said.

Any light can recharge the new glow sticks. They could also serve as markers to show where the group has already been, and they function both on land and in water.

Wilson said he encourages other Search and Rescue members to carry emergency equipment and extra food and water with them.

"Sometimes you get stuck out there, too," he said.

Tricia Hardcastle keeps about a year's supply of food in her home on Alpine Street in Twin Falls, along with an estimated 100 gallons of water. Along with being practical, Hardcastle said her church — the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints — encourages keeping a stockpile.

"They encourage self-reliance," she said. "So if something happens, you don't have to rely on the government."

The American Red Cross' website recommends building a three-day supply kit for emergencies in case of evacuation, and creating a plan for such an event.

In a natural disaster like an earthquake, Nan Jackson said, agencies like the Red Cross and the Federal Emergency Management Agency could take up to three days to reach affected areas, depending on the severity of the event.

For those with no stockpile, both Hardcastle and Nan recommend starting simply and slowly.

"We were really poor when we started," Hardcastle said. The family has slowly upgraded their setup, including moving their three-day kits from a cardboard box to a backpack for each family member.

While Hardcastle's stockpile stays mostly out of sight in her home, the thought of having to use it isn't too far away.

"On the news and in social media, we see all these natural disasters and it makes people aware of how vulnerable we are," she said.

Enrollment

Robert Stuart Middle School. School district officials project that each school could see at least 20 more students next year.

Growing middle school enrollment is one topic that will be discussed when the district's new facilities group forms next year to talk about future building needs.

"They will take a look at what they would recommend over the next few years," Dobbs said.

Years ago, one recommendation was to build a new high school.

When Canyon Ridge High School opened in 2009, school officials thought it would take five years before student numbers caught up with Twin Falls High School. But it only took one year.

This fall, Canyon Ridge had 1,120 students, while Twin Falls High had 1,044. District spokeswoman Beth Pendergrass said enrollment numbers have evened out now and are similar between the schools.

Among elementary schools, I.B. Perrine Elementary School is the largest and continues to grow. Two years ago, the district changed the attendance area for the school to relieve crowding issues as Perrine neared the 700-student mark.

Now, student numbers have nearly reached that level again, at about 680.

"We're seeing that number at Perrine sneak up again," Dobbs said. He attributes some of the growth to new home construction within Perrine's attendance area.

Trends in Other Districts

In Kimberly, enrollment is up about 2 percent this year, with 1,488 students.

Superintendent Kathleen Noh said that's meant some larger class sizes, as well as fuller buses and lunchrooms.

The district added a part-time kindergarten teacher and full-time fifth-grade teacher this year. Also, teaching assistants were hired using $140,000 in emergency levy funding this fall.

In Wendell, student numbers have stayed fairly consistent over the years. But this year, there are 1,147 students — 111 more than last year.

Superintendent Greg Lowe said there are 120 kindergartners — a significantly larger number than most years. There was also an unexpected increase in the number of fifth-graders.

Not all school districts grew this year, though.

The student roster in Murtaugh has remained consistent at about 230-240 over the past few years.

"We typically don't see any huge changes one way or another," Superintendent Michele Capps said.

In Jerome, enrollment dropped by about 2.5 percent this year. Superintendent Dale Layne that's mostly due to the opening of Heritage Academy, a public charter school in Jerome.

In Shoshone, enrollment has dropped by about 55 students over the past five years, to 531 students today.

The Minidoka County School District has seen a declining enrollment trend since 2000, Superintendent Scott Rogers said. There are about 400 fewer students than the 2001-02 school year.

However, enrollment numbers have stabilized over the past few years.

"We're glad we're not dropping anymore," Rogers said.

Man Arrested after Another is Dragged by Car

IDAHO FALLS • Police in Idaho Falls have arrested a 25-year-old man on suspicion of aggravated battery after another man reported he was dragged down the street while his arm was stuck in a car window.

Witnesses told police that Adam Keith Rhoades had been arguing with his wife Thursday night when the victim tried to intervene. Witnesses said Rhoades then got into his car to leave when the 42-year-old victim reached into the open window to grab his belongings.

Police were told that Rhoades rolled up the window, trapping the victim's arm in the vehicle and dragged him just over five blocks down the street.

KIFI-TV reports officers were called at 10:30 p.m. The victim was taken to Eastern Idaho Regional Medical Center.

Rhoades was arrested during a traffic stop about two hours later.

E. ID Prosecutor Race Heats Up Over Sign Spat

ST. ANTHONY • A county prosecutor running for reelection in eastern Idaho was accused of tampering with campaign signs posted by her challenger, though authorities say they've found no criminal wrongdoing in the incident.

Fremont County Prosecutor Joette Lookabaugh says she told authorities her husband removed signs supporting her Republican primary opponent, Karl Lewies, and replaced them with Lookabaugh campaign signs.

Lookabaugh says Lewies didn't have permission from the property's owners to post signs, but she did.

Authorities cleared Lookabaugh of wrongdoing and returned the campaign poster to Lewies, who is questioning why the investigation was handled by deputies in Fremont County, where the sheriff has endorsed Lookabaugh.

For her part, Lookabaugh said she wonders if she wasn't intentionally provoked, as the sign was placed on property across the street from her home.

her brother-in-law, a disabled Vietnam War veteran.

The Lewiston Tribune reports Christine Kalt is charged with grand theft and exploitation of a vulnerable adult for crimes allegedly committed between 2009 and 2011. Her arraignment is set for March 20.

Court records say 62-year-old David Kalt suffers from post-traumatic stress syndrome as a result of seeing "extensive combat" while in the Army. Because of his condition, he is vulnerable and unable to make decisions. Christine Kalt was appointed his custodian in 2009 when he was buying a house.

Prosecutors allege she transferred money from David Kalt's account to her own on several occasions. Some of the money was returned, but prosecutors say about $50,000 is unaccounted for.

Wells Fargo Branch in Idaho Falls Robbed

IDAHO FALLS • Police are searching for the man wearing a neck brace who robbed the Wells Fargo Bank in Idaho Falls Friday morning.

Officers say the man entered the bank at about 10:45 a.m. and demanded money. He left with an undisclosed amount of cash and fled on foot.

He is described as being in his early 40s, about 6 feet tall with a medium build and wearing a black jacket, khaki pants, a black cap and a neck brace.

Grand Jury Indicts Man on Wire Fraud

BOISE • A federal grand jury has issued a five-count indictment against a Chubbuck investor accused of duping clients out of more than $960,000 and running a Ponzi scheme.

Federal prosecutors announced the indictment this week against 35-year-old Brad Lee Demuzio. He faces five counts of wire fraud for his role in handling assets of 16 investors.

Investigators say Demuzio established Demuzio Capital Management LLC to solicit investors and use their money to trade on foreign currency markets.

According to the indictment, of the $1.85 million raised from his investors, Demuzio only invested a small portion in foreign markets. He's accused of using the money instead for personal gain, including for mortgage payments, loans and retail goods.

Prosecutors are also seeking for him to forfeit about $963,000 in assets to cover losses.

Mother of Murdered Boy Charged with Endangerment

GRANGEVILLE • The mother of a 3-year-old boy who was beaten to death by the mother's live-in boyfriend in March 2011 is charged with endangering her son.

The Lewiston Tribune (<http://bit.ly/IDuhg7>) reports 22-year-old Angela Ann Johnson is scheduled to appear in Magistrate Court on Tuesday on a charge of felony injury to a child.

Johnson's boyfriend, Todd W. Carver, is serving a life sentence after being convicted in the beating death of 3-year-old Dominick Boyd. He has maintained his innocence and is appealing the conviction.

Prosecutors allege Johnson willfully caused or permitted her child to be placed in a dangerous situation with Carver, who had been released from prison on grand theft charges only weeks before she and her sons moved in with him in Grangeville.

Johnson also is charged with food stamp fraud.

No Charges in Lewiston Pedestrian Fatal

LEWISTON • Police in Lewiston have determined no charges will be filed in a collision between a minivan and a pedestrian that killed a 77-year-old Lewiston man last month.

The Lewiston Tribune (<http://bit.ly/IJOCl6>) reports David E. Anderson was struck on March 4 while returning to his home at the Golden Oak Inn in North Lewiston after buying coffee at a convenience store across the road.

Police Lt. Michael Pedersen says an investigation found the woman driving the minivan had no way of stopping in time to avoid a collision.

Anderson died in the emergency room at a Seattle hospital.

Post Falls Man Arrested in Stabbing

COEUR D'ALENE • Police in Coeur d'Alene have arrested a 30-year-old Post Falls man on suspicion of attempted first-degree murder following a stabbing outside a bar.

The Coeur d'Alene Press reports Jeremy Lyght was arrested early Friday and booked into the Kootenai County jail.

Police received the stabbing report at 1:40 a.m.

A 25-year-old man who was stabbed in the neck was taken to Kootenai Medical Center. Police did not identify him or release any information about his condition.

Witnesses described the suspect and officers arrested Lyght a short distance from the bar.

Occupy Boise Protesters Offer to Move Tents

BOISE • Leaders of the Occupy Boise protest say they are willing to move their tents from the Old Ada County Courthouse lawn to accommodate a state request to maintain the grounds.

In return, protest leaders want the state to suggest another location for the encampment.

The Idaho Statesman reports that Occupy Boise sent a letter offering a compromise this week to the Idaho Attorney General.

It's a response to a motion filed by the state in federal court asking a judge for permission to temporarily remove the tents so crews could mow grass and make other repairs.

Other locations suggested by the protesters include the steps outside the Idaho Capitol, nearby parking lots or other non-grassy areas of the Capitol Mall.

The protest has been a fixture downtown since November.

Service Set for Man Last Seen in Nevada Wilderness

BY MARTIN GRIFFITH
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • Nearly a year after she was found on the verge of starvation in a stranded van in the Nevada wilderness, a Canadian woman and others will pay tribute to a husband who didn't make it out alive.

A public memorial service for Albert Chretien will be held Saturday in his hometown of Penticton, British Columbia, just north of the Washington border.

Rita Chretien, 56, was found weak but alive last May 6 in the rugged mountains of northeastern Nevada near the Idaho line. She stayed in the van for seven weeks, surviving on trail mix, candy and water from a stream.

But there has been no sign of her 59-year-old husband since he set out on foot in search of help on March 22, 2011, three days after the couple's van got stuck on a muddy road.

Intensive searches turned up no sign of Albert Chretien, and Elko County sheriff's investigators have said they believe he is dead.

"Rita and family have carried on with life and are not relying on finding remains of Albert," said family spokesman Hannah Hyland. "We think that more than ordinary efforts were made to find Albert."

The memorial service was scheduled after family and friends "very reluctantly accepted" several months ago that Albert Chretien could not have survived, added Hyland, a neighbor and close friend of Rita Chretien.

"The service represents closure," she said. "In her heart, Rita realized early on that Albert likely succumbed because of the weather. She has made peace with this."

The Chretiens owned a commercial excavating business and were headed to Las Vegas for a trade show. They left a highway after using their new GPS unit to find the shortest route, and ended up on a remote forest road miles from the nearest town.

Repeated requests to interview Rita Chretien were denied.

While she has been described as a private person who shuns attention, she has accepted invitations to give future motivational talks at a mayoral prayer breakfast in British Columbia and at a large church in Calgary.

Her life revolves around her three sons, five grandchildren, friends and church, Hyland said. A devout Christian, she believes her faith helped her survive.

"Rita is peaceful, and thinks, dwells on, focuses on happy things. She remains strong in her faith in the Lord," Hyland said. "She wanted to stay alive for her grandchildren, and whatever purpose God had for her in this life."

The Chretiens had been "sweethearts" since age 15 when they attended the same high school, Hyland said, and she has drawn strength for dealing with her husband's absence from her faith.

"She knows she'll see him again, and survives on hope and the wonderful memories of the life they had together," Hyland said. "Early on she knew he was in God's hands no matter the outcome."

Sheriff's officials remain hopeful a hunter or hiker will stumble on evidence of Albert Chretien. He set out with a cell phone and GPS for Mountain City, a couple of day's journey from the van.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stocks Have Worst Week of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks wrapped up their worst week of the year Friday. Stocks also fell in Europe as borrowing costs rose for Spain and Italy. If those countries have to pay more to borrow, they'll have less money for other things, like jump-starting economic growth. The Dow was down all day but selling accelerated in the last half-hour. All 10 sectors in the Standard & Poor's 500 fell, led by bank stocks. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 136.99 points, or 1.2 percent, to close at 12,849.59. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 17.31 points, or 1.3 percent, to 1,370.26. The Nasdaq composite fell 44.22 points, or 1.5 percent, to 3,011.33.

Judge: Gov't Cannot Require Union Posters at Work

WASHINGTON (AP) • A federal judge ruled Friday that the National Labor Relations Board cannot require millions of private employers to put up posters informing workers of their right to form a union. U.S. District Judge David Norton in South Carolina said the labor board exceeded congressional authority when it approved the poster requirement last year. The decision Friday conflicts with a ruling last month by another federal judge in Washington, D.C., who found the posters were a reasonable means to make workers aware of collective bargaining rights. Both lawsuits were brought by business groups that claim the posters are too one-sided in favor of unions.

Hybrid and Electric Cars See Record Sales in March

BY DEE-ANN DURBIN
 Associated Press

DETROIT (AP) • Americans are buying record numbers of hybrid and electric cars as gas prices climb and new models arrive in showrooms, giving the vehicles their greatest share yet of the U.S. auto market. Consumers bought a record 52,000 gas-electric hybrids and all-electric cars in March, up from 34,000 during the same month last year. The two categories combined made up 3.64 percent of total U.S. sales, their highest monthly market share ever, according to Ward's AutoInfoBank. The previous high was 3.56 percent in July 2009, when the Cash for Clunkers program encouraged people to trade in old gas guzzlers for more fuel-efficient cars. And while their share of the market remains small, it's a big leap from the start of the year, when hybrids and electric cars made up 2.38 percent of new car sales. Buyers were drawn by new models like the Toyota Prius C subcompact, the Prius V wagon and Camry hybrid. Gas prices near or above $4 per gallon

DAVID ZALUBOWSKI • ASSOCIATED PRESS
 In a Feb. 19 file photo, a 2012 Chevrolet Volt is displayed at a Chevrolet dealership in the south Denver suburb of Englewood, Colo. U.S. car buyers bought a record number of hybrid and electric cars in March 2012, as new models went on sale and gas prices neared $4 per gallon.

added to the cars' attraction. David Martin, a Denver software engineer, estimates he'll save at least $150 per month on gas with his new Chevrolet Volt compared with the 2010

Acura TSX he replaced. Martin expects gas prices to stay high, a factor that heavily influenced his purchase. "As the cost of gasoline rises, my future savings can only increase," he said.

Can Stocks Extend Their First-quarter Win Streak?

BY CHRISTINA REXRODE
 Associated Press

NEW YORK • The zigzag in the stock market this past week may leave you wondering queasily: Will this quarter build on the blockbuster gains from the start of the year or wipe them away? History suggests the winning streak will continue. Over the past 30 years, strong quarters like the one that ended in March have tended to be followed by more gains. Smaller gains, usually, but gains nonetheless. From 1982, the start of what some consider the modern era of investing, through the end of last year, there were 17 quarters in which the Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 10 percent or more. Only twice were those gains followed by a losing quarter. In both cases, the loss was small: 1.1 percent and 0.1 percent. The other 15 times, the average gain in the subsequent quarter was 6.6 percent. The two losses both came when the economy was just emerging from recession, periods that are ripe for market bumpiness as investors try to gauge whether the worst really is behind them. This time around, the recession has been over for almost three years. And though the market has had quarterly swings, it has moved mostly higher. Investors are betting that a steady, if unimpressive, expansion is under way. The S&P gained 12 percent from January through March, its best first quarter since 1998. That followed a gain of 11 percent in the quarter before, from October through December. And the record is also promising when the market racks up two consecutive double-digit quarters. It's happened three other times since 1982. Each time was followed by a third quarterly gain averaging about 5 percent. Think of it as Newton's first law of motion applied to stocks: Objects in motion tend to stay in motion unless acted on by an external force. When investors bid the market up, they keep doing so until something stops them.

MAGIC VALLEY BANK OFFERS SHREDDING, RECYCLING

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The public can celebrate Earth Day by shredding and recycling unneeded documents from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday during Magic Valley Bank's Spring Shred Day. The public can bring up to two boxes of materials to be shredded and recycled free of charge at Magic Valley Bank locations. The process will help residents safely destroy sensitive materials such as unwanted tax materials, credit cards, bank statements and computer disks. "Tax documents should be kept for seven years, at the most conservative estimate," Magic Valley Bank Senior Vice President for Trust and Investment Services Dale Schuman said in a written release. Schuman recommends that sensitive papers should be shredded and recycled instead of thrown away. Information: www.magicvalley-bank.com.

CSI Debt Stabilization Workshop Planned

"We have confirmed that a certain flying object has been launched and fell after flying for just over a minute."

Japanese Defense Minister Naoki Tanaka, after North Korea fired a long-range rocket that splintered into pieces over the Yellow Sea, South Korean and U.S. officials said

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the Minidoka County commissioners for getting ahead of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service's management plan for Minidoka National Wildlife Refuge and protecting the community's interests on Lake Walcott. Fish & Wildlife is developing a 15-year plan to manage the 20,700-acre refuge that encompasses Lake Walcott State Park, and it is possible that boating not associated with fishing could be eliminated or limited as a use in that area. The commissioners this past week made sure they were on record protesting the idea, citing concern about the economic impact boating restrictions could have on the area.

JEERS to Idaho for being one of the only 11 states without a state-funded preschool program. Preschool is a place where students get a head start on reading and counting before they enter kindergarten. The learning habits they develop in those early years, follow them the rest of their life. In Idaho, students are not required to go to preschool or kindergarten. By first grade, when some step into the classroom for the first time in their lives, they are far behind peers in other states. A state unwilling to make an early investment in its youth should not be surprised to see abysmal higher education graduation rates.

CHEERS to the city of Twin Falls for having the foresight to purchase the land and create easy public access to Auger Falls on the Snake River — and for acting quickly to nurture it back to health following a wildfire in 2010. Wide trails will attract nature lovers for generations to come. Decades from now as Twin Falls continues to grow, Auger Falls will remain a piece of urban wilderness free of development thanks to the actions of today's city leaders.

The property was long inaccessible to the public until early 2010 and is slowly being discovered by Twin Falls residents.

Twin Falls purchased about 520 acres inside the canyon from a private landowner in late 2002, and in fall 2011, lengthy congressional action finally resulted in a transfer of another 160 acres — including a little rim land — from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management to the city.

Gender Pay Gap Persists

Tuesday, April 17, is Equal Pay Day.

This date represents how far into 2012 women must work to earn what men earned in 2011. Because, on average, women get paid 77 cents for every dollar men earn, they have to work more for the same pay.

This disparity goes beyond the issue of gender equality. This is an economic injustice that affects nearly half the workers in this country.

The Department of Labor estimates that women made up 47 percent of the total U.S. labor force in 2010, accounting for up to 66 million workers. Overall, 73 percent of employed women worked full time, while 27 percent worked part time.

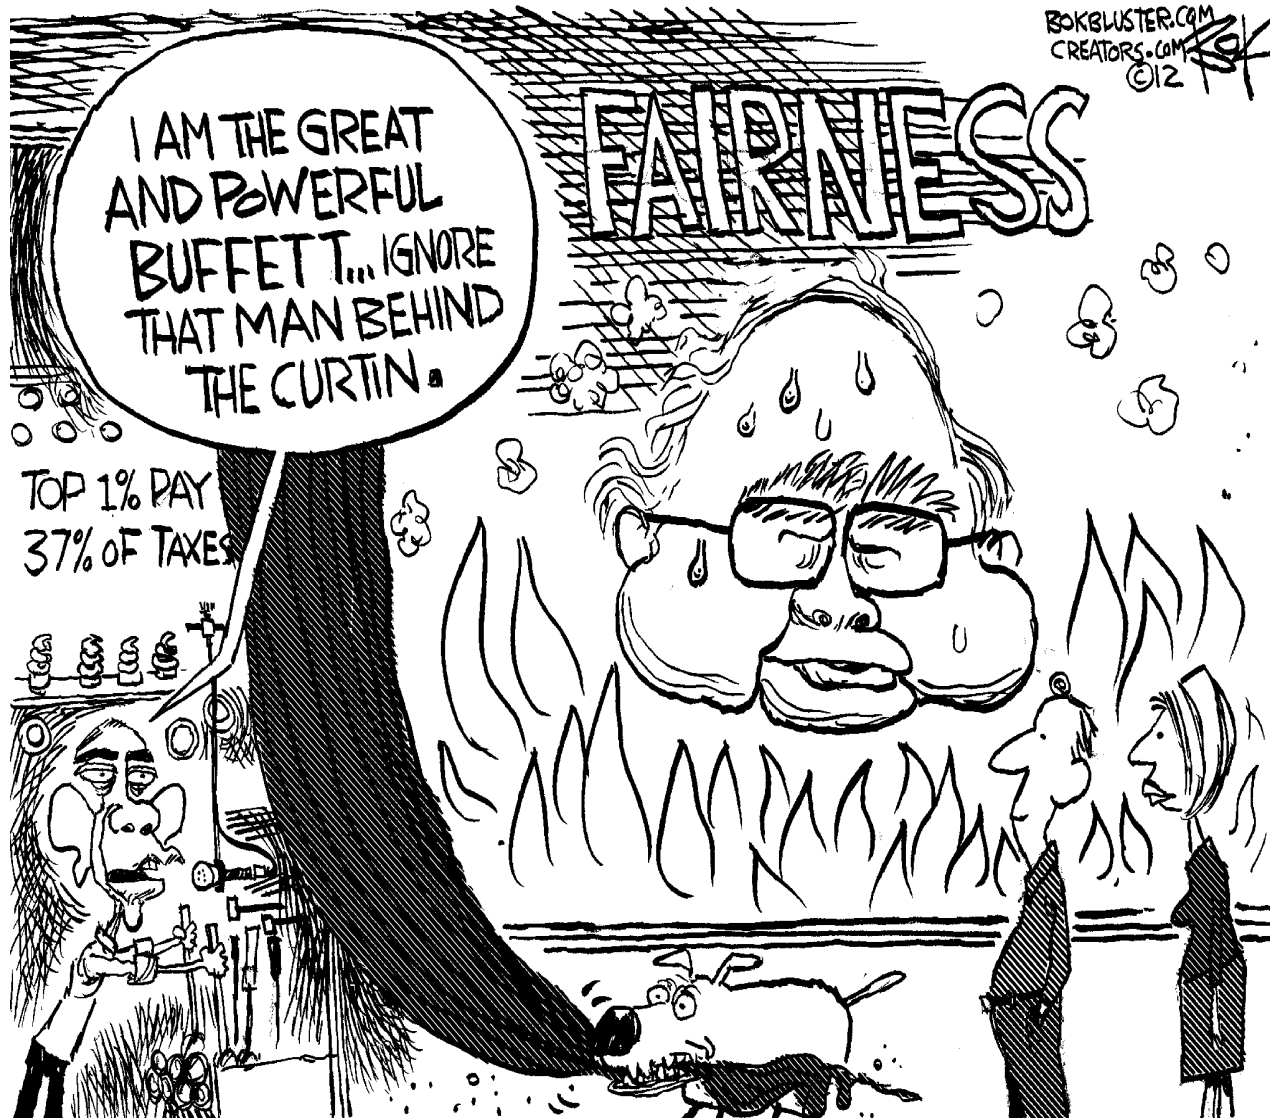

We cannot afford to be underpaying almost half the workers when our country is experiencing such challenging economic times. And women are not the only ones affected. Families are affected. Almost 14 million married couples with children relied on two incomes in 2009, representing 60 percent of all married couples with children, according to the National Women's Law Center.

Single mothers and their children are affected. Lower earnings cripple the economic security of the 6,340,000 families headed by working single mothers, 41 percent of whom already live below the federal poverty line.

THEIR VIEW

The 'Millionaires Tax' is a Good Idea, but No Solution

The following editorial appeared in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on Thursday, April 12:

On Monday the U.S. Senate will take up S. 2230, "The Paying a Fair Share Act of 2012," which would enact the so-called "Buffett Rule."

As explained by President Barack Obama on Tuesday, the rule says, "If you make more money — more than $1 million a year, not if you have $1 million, but if you make more than $1 million a year you should pay at least the same percentage of your income in taxes as middle-class families do."

Senate Majority Whip Dick Durbin, D-Ill., admitted to us on Wednesday that S. 2230 has no chance of getting the 60 votes it needs to close off debate and pass in the Senate. None of the Senate's 47 Republicans is expected to break rank.

Nevertheless, Mr. Durbin told a meeting of St. Louis Post-Dispatch editors and reporters, "if you believe in progressive taxation, this is fundamentally fair."

The Republican presidential primaries demonstrated that many GOP voters, even those who aren't millionaires, aren't sold on the concept of progressive taxation, which holds that as one's share of society's benefits increases, so should one's share of society's costs.

While S. 2230 may fail on Monday, the "Buffett Rule" will be back again, attached to other legislation that will be considered before the November election. Democrats see the issues of tax fairness and income inequality as political winners — particularly as Mitt Romney, the putative GOP presidential nominee, paid a tax rate of only 13.9 percent on $21.7 million in income in 2010.

The bulk of Mr. Romney's income came from dividends and capital gains, taxed at 15 percent. That was the issue that billionaire investor Warren Buffett addressed in a controversial op-ed article in The New York Times last August. He argued that it was unfair that wealthy investors, including him, can pay lower rates than middle- and upper-middle class taxpayers pay in combined payroll and income taxes.

Mr. Buffett said, for "those making more than $1 million — there were 236,883 such households in 2009 — I would raise rates immediately on taxable income in excess of $1 million, including, of course, dividends and capital gains."

In our meeting with Mr. Durbin, he told us that enacting the Buffett Rule in S. 2230 would raise $48 billion over 10 years. While that's a drop in the deficit budget, he said, it would enable the government to avoid a rise in the 3.4 percent rate it pays on its considerable debt.

In fact, Sen. Sheldon Whitehouse, D-R.I., sponsor of S. 2230, told the Washington Post's Ezra Klein that his bill could raise considerably more than that. The "millionaire's tax" would phase in at incomes higher than $1 million and not fully apply at 30 percent until the 2-millionth dollar in income.

If you assume that all the Bush tax cuts expire as scheduled at the end of this year, the "Buffett Rule" would raise $47 billion. But if you assume, as the Republican House budget does, that all the tax cuts are extended, Mr. Whitehouse's bill would raise $160 billion.

Right now these are political talking points, and they are likely to remain so until after November. The important issue is the principle: What is a fair share, and who should pay it? More important are the larger, existential questions of when and how will the United States combine tax and spending reforms to get its deficit under control.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank You for Making Hospice Patient's Dream Come True

At Hospice Visions Inc., we are committed to offering quality, compassionate care. Because of this commitment we had the privilege of helping one of our hospice patient's dream come true. Having originally dreamed of traveling to Disneyland, our patient was too sick to travel, and so Hospice Visions Inc. brought Disneyland to her. Because we couldn't achieve such a monumental task alone, we relied on numerous organizations and individuals to ensure this dream would indeed come true.

On behalf of our patient, family and Hospice Visions Inc., we would like to give special thanks to The Dream Foundation and No Regrets Foundation.

This dream would not have been possible without the contributions and donations from Lisa Doula, Twin Falls Senior Center, Poindexter's Costume Store, Premier Insurance, Norco Med-

Tsunami Survivor Trades Life in Japan for E. Idaho

BY SVEN BERG
Post Register

ST. ANTHONY (AP) • Norimasa Abe sent his daughter to Japan with two return plane tickets and one simple instruction: Bring your grandfather back to Idaho.

Norimasa Abe knew his father would resist. Worried about Norio Abe's health and faltering mobility, he'd been trying to convince his father to come live with him in St. Anthony since long before the March 2011 tsunami struck Ishinomaki.

But while the home that Norio Abe built on a hillside in Ishinomaki, Japan, after World War II survived the disaster, it suffered significant damage. With winter coming, the family was convinced their patriarch should relocate to eastern Idaho's cold but tsunami-free high desert.

So in December, Norimasa Abe played the most persuasive card in his hand: his daughter, Miyai Abe Griggs.

"If I went there, probably he wouldn't come," Norimasa Abe said. "Miyai went there, so that's why he listened."

Today, more than a year after the tsunami killed almost 4,000 Ishinomaki residents, Norio Abe lives in St. Anthony with his son and daughter-in-law, Tsukiko Abe. He likes being around his family, and he's impressed when he sees Abe Griggs driving her husband's truck, which is bigger than anything he's used to seeing.

But even at 86, he's a little restless.

"It's so quiet here, he's kind of bored sometimes," Abe Griggs said.

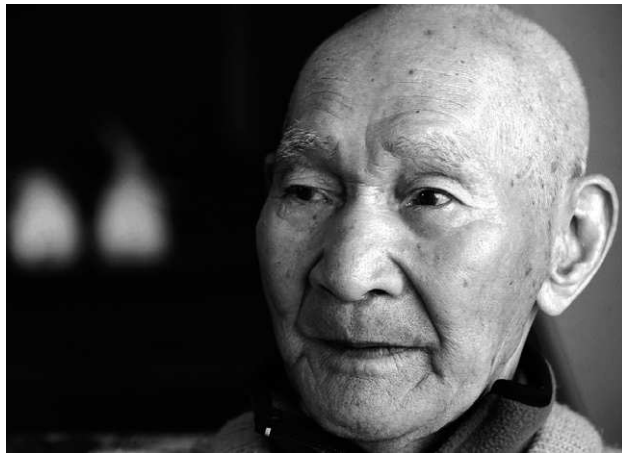

Norio Abe didn't know about the tsunami until he saw fish in the streets.

At 85, he slept through the disaster, only waking to make sure a dresser in his home didn't fall over during the earthquake that preceded the deluge. Earthquakes are common in Ishinomaki, a coastal city with a population of about 160,000, so Abe didn't think much of the tremors.

He lived a secluded life, alone on a wooded hill above most of the city, in the same traditional Japanese home that he built a few years after World War II. It was a quiet home — quiet enough that the wreckage happening below it didn't disturb an old man's sleep.

When he awoke, he took a walk down the hill to buy some groceries. It was then that he saw fish on the roadways, stranded when the tsunami receded.

"Where did these fish come from?" he asked himself, as interpreted last week by Abe Griggs. "Did they come from the river, or did the ocean come really this far?"

Norio Abe, seen in this April 4 photo, was 85 when last year's earthquake and tsunami hit Japan's coast, where he lived. His family convinced him to move in with them in their St. Anthony home.

Abe Griggs' December trip to Japan was her second of the year. In October, she went with her father and brother to find Norio Abe and make sure he was safe.

Until they saw him with their own eyes, they'd heard precious little of how he was faring in the tsunami's aftermath. In fact, for 10 days after the tsunami hit Ishinomaki, they didn't know whether he was alive or dead.

Norimasa Abe moved to the United States 30 years ago, his career path ultimately carrying him to St. Anthony, where he works as a clinician for the Idaho Department of Juvenile Corrections.

The family still counts about 30 close relatives in the city, one of the hardest hit by last year's disaster. Suddenly thrown into crisis, the family converted the living room in Norimasa and Tsukiko Abe's St. Anthony home into what Abe Griggs called a "command center."

They made phone calls. They sent out messages on Facebook. They watched television. They worried.

One by one, they tracked down each family member — amazingly, all alive. Norio Abe, who wasn't a big fan of the telephone, much less Facebook, was the last one accounted for. The Abe family finally talked to someone in a city office who confirmed seeing him alive.

Still worried, the family later decided they needed to see Norio Abe for themselves. They just showed up.

Norio Abe had no idea his son and grandchildren were coming to find him. He'd been living on a diet of government-commissioned rice balls and groceries he could find at the nearest convenience store.

A government agency was charged with providing basic services to the elderly, but Norio Abe wasn't really happy about that, either.

"He's a pretty independent individual, and so he didn't really appreciate that assistance," Abe Griggs said. "There were people to help him, but he didn't want the help."

Isolated as ever, Norio Abe had given up hope of ever seeing his son again. Then the man from Idaho was there, unannounced, on his doorstep.

"Oh, am I dreaming?" he asked Norimasa Abe. "I didn't think I'd ever see you again."

Abe Griggs said her grandfather's home was still in disarray seven months after the tsunami. The roof was damaged and leaking badly. Worse, the weather was turning cold, and Norio Abe didn't want to use a heater for fear it would cause a fire.

When they returned to the United States, the Abes grew more worried about Norio Abe's well-being. But he still wanted to stay in Japan. It was his home.

All he knew about his son's home in St. Anthony was that it was cold and far away. Eastern Idaho didn't sound like the kind of place he wanted to live.

Nez Perce Tribe Releases Lamprey in Wallowa River

LA GRANADE, Ore. (AP) • The Nez Perce Tribe is working to bring the lamprey back to their homeland.

The La Grande Observer (<http://bit.ly/IP2vtC>) reports the tribe released 40 of the jawless, boneless fish in the Wallowa River that had been gathered from dams on the Columbia River.

Jim Harbeck, field office supervisor for Nez Perce Fisheries, said restoring lamprey brings back a fish that was a staple of tribal diets, as well as an important part of the ecosystem.

"They were a missing part for a long time," he said.

Like salmon, lampreys lay their eggs in freshwater rivers, and grow to be adults in the ocean.

During the three to seven years lamprey live in rivers, they bury themselves in silty river bottoms, feeding on tiny bits of food they filter from the water. In the ocean they attach themselves to adult fish as parasites. The young lampreys are eaten by salmon and steelhead. The adults are food for sea lions.

Although not protected by the Endangered Species Act, lampreys have declined in number dramatically as more dams were built on the Columbia. In 2010, only 15 were counted swimming over Lower Granite Dam on the Snake River in Washington, Harbeck said.

Resembling an eel, but really a jawless fish, lamprey have trouble swimming upstream in strong currents, and move upstream by sucking onto rocks with their mouths. They coil themselves up and jump, working their way up a rapid or waterfall rock to rock.

Fish ladders designed for salmon and steelhead have stopped many lampreys from returning to their home waters. But the tribe has been working with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to install special lamprey ramps to help them over the dams.

Gov. to Promote Mont. Flights on Letterman

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • Montana Gov. Brian Schweitzer has big plans for promoting a new direct flight from New York City to Bozeman.

Schweitzer says he is scheduled to be on the Late Show with David Letterman on April 25. Letterman owns a ranch north of Helena and is one of Montana's most famous part-time residents.

The governor says the state is placing murals of Montana attractions and wildlife on a dozen city delivery trucks.

Schweitzer says he is going to take one downtown and give away Montana products like beef jerky and huckleberry jam, hoping to "cause a commotion."

The governor says Montana has never gotten cheaper advertising than it will get with his television appearance.

The new flights are scheduled to start in June and will be offered by United Airlines.

Report: Idaho School Funding Veering from Constitution

BY BETSY Z. RUSSELL
The Spokesman Review

BOISE • Idaho's former longtime chief state economist, Mike Ferguson, released a 20-page report today on public school funding that reaches a series of startling conclusions, including that Idaho's current school funding system may be violating two key provisions of the state constitution.

"Actions that drive local school districts into making dramatic increases in the use of local property tax resources ... raise serious doubt that the Legislature is fulfilling its constitutional obligations," Ferguson wrote. "It is probably not realistic to expect a quick fix. It is reasonable to expect an open and honest discussion of the direction of Idaho's public school funding, and whether it is living up to the duties and responsibilities handed down by Idaho's founding fathers. Hopefully this report will contribute to that discussion."

Senate Education Chairman John Goedde, R-Coeur d'Alene, said he hasn't yet read the report, but that "I'm always leery of statistics until I've had a chance to review them and to substantiate them or compare them with something else. I think if we have a problem with equity in funding, that that needs to be discussed. If there's a constitutional problem, that needs to be discussed. But I also will affirm a statement I've heard many, many times, that throwing money at the public schools does not result in better education."

Ferguson, who served under five Idaho governors, is now director of the Idaho Center for Fiscal Policy, a nonprofit, nonpartisan grant-funded organization whose mission is "to provide Idaho citizens and elected officials with fact-based information and analysis they can use to make informed public policy decisions."

His new report found that public school funding, as a share of state spending, has dropped dramatically since 2000.

And even as state lawmakers, in a 2006 special session, eliminated the key property tax levy for school operations while raising the state's sales tax by a penny, schools that saw decreasing state funding have turned increasingly to voter-approved property tax levies, which, unlike the levy eliminated in 2006, are no longer "equalized" with state funding and accentuate disparities in wealth among the state's school districts.

The result: Ferguson raises questions about whether Idaho's current school funding system may be violating constitutional provisions requiring the Legislature to "establish and maintain a general, uniform and thorough system of public, free common schools" and requiring taxes to be imposed uniformly.

More than two-thirds of Idaho's school districts now have supplemental property tax levies, which are voter-approved local taxes that raise sharply varying amounts from one district to the next, depending on the local tax base. Even after the elimination of the major operations levy in 2006, "Considerable amounts of public school funding are still derived from property taxes, and the relative share is once again increasing," Ferguson wrote.

Goedde, who was the lead legislative sponsor of Idaho's controversial "Students Come First" school reform laws last year, acknowledged that those reforms were based on the idea that Idaho had less money for schools, so it would spend what it had differently, including shifting funds from salaries to laptop computers and online learning. "But remember, our economy was much different a year ago," he said. "This last legislative session we were able to restore some of the funding that had been pulled out."

Goedde said, "I think the state has an obligation to fund some equitable level of public school education, and I think it's the option of the local taxpayers to fund anything over that level if it's their desire."

ITD to Start Work on New Boise River Bridge

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • The Idaho Transportation Department will start construction next month on the first phase of connecting State Street/Idaho 44 and Chinden Boulevard/U.S. 20/26 via a high-speed four-lane expressway with a new bridge over the Boise River.

Construction of the first phase, a $19.4 million bridge across the Boise River, will take about two years to complete.

The second phase includes the completion of the highway from the Boise River to Chinden and a bridge over the Phyllis Canal, which is also anticipated to be under contract this summer. A third phase will construct the new intersections at State and Chinden and all of the new public roads needed to provide access as a result of the expansion work.

The 2.2-mile State-to-Chinden section is estimated to cost $140 million. It is funded by GARVEE bonds, short for Grant Anticipation Revenue Vehicles, which allow the state to borrow money for road projects then repay it through future federal highway allocations. The state pays the interest payments with its own money. The Legislature has authorized ITD to issue up to $855 million in GARVEE bonds, which would require annual debt payments of about $60 million.

This project is the final GARVEE project in the Treasure Valley and the first step to connecting Idaho 16 to Interstate 84. ITD has not yet identified funding to complete the 4.5-mile connection from Chinden to the freeway.

During the next month, ITD will verify that the apparent low bidder, Concrete Placing Co. of Boise, is a properly licensed contractor and possesses a surety bond to protect taxpayers and the department. Once that has been verified, the contractor can schedule the beginning of work.

“As western Ada, eastern Canyon, and southern Gem counties develop, the ability to move north-south traffic is a primary concern,” explained Amy Schroeder, GARVEE program manager in a press release. “The project will provide another vital north-south link in the Treasure Valley as the population continues to grow.”

CDC: Utah Has Fewest Students Taught about Condoms

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Fewer Utah high school students receive sex education lessons about condom use than their counterparts in almost every other state, according to a report from the Centers for Disease Control.

About 11 percent of students in public secondary schools were taught about the effectiveness of condoms, where to obtain them and the importance of using them consistently and correctly, according to a story in The Salt Lake Tribune earlier this week. That percentage was the lowest among the 45 states surveyed by the CDC.

The numbers are not surprising because Utah's laws are quite restrictive, said Cougar Hall, a Brigham Young University professor who trains health teachers. Parental approval is required for sex education classes, and teachers cannot advocate or encourage the use of condoms.

Still, about 12 percent of teachers are telling students where to obtain condoms, which Hall said is something he would discourage. Instead, the teacher should tell the student to ask their parents.

“I just think that would get you in hot water, and I think a parent could actually say, ‘I think you’ve crossed a line, and you are encouraging use or advocacy of contraception,’” Hall said.

On the other hand, Hall said he has watched many teachers who are afraid to even use the word “condom” during a classroom discussion because of the potential for trouble. While he understands that the law is reflecting societal values, he said the CDC report makes Utah's curriculum appear “unresponsive to the numbers of adolescents that are sexually active.”

Earlier this year, Utah lawmakers tried to tighten the state laws even further by passing a bill that would only permit schools to teach abstinence in sex education. It also allowed school districts to forego sex education altogether.

Gov. Gary Herbert vetoed the bill last month after hundreds of people voiced opposition. It is unlikely that legislators will be able to secure enough votes for an override.

The low numbers for condom education were great news to abstinence-only advocates such as Dalane England of the Utah Eagle Forum.

“The more you talk about sex — as something so sacred and so intimate and personal — when you talk about that in a public setting you’re going to get more of it,” England said.

Cd'A Schools to Receive $250,000 in Tech Funds

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

COEUR D'ALENE • Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Luna will be in Coeur d'Alene on Monday to announce that the Coeur d'Alene School District is one of 15 districts and public charter schools statewide to receive a classroom technology grant to help build 21st Century classrooms as part of Students Come First.

Coeur d'Alene School District is set to receive $250,000 to serve as a pilot district for the state's instructional management system, which gives classroom teachers instant access to current, accurate data and tools to develop lesson plans, share best practices, and assess and analyze student progress throughout the school year.

It's a new year and a new season at Magic Valley Speedway, which begins its five-month long schedule today at 7 p.m. with racing in five different divisions.

And awaiting some drivers are new challenges.

Hannah Newhouse speaks with Thompson's Motorsports tech advisor Will Harris before heading out on the track for practice laps behind the wheel of the No. 61 Super Stocks car. This will be Newhouse's first season competing in Magic Valley Speedway's feature division, which begins with a full card of racing tonight at 7 p.m.

Pro-Trucks Series last season but this year she will take on MVS's new feature division: the Commercial

Tire Super Stocks Series. Newhouse will pilot the No. 61 Thompson Motorsports Camaro and says she is eager to begin her first year of full-time NASCAR competition.

"This year there's definitely going to be a lot more races for me but it will be nice to have them all at my home track," the 15-year-old driver said. "What I'm hoping for is to have a NASCAR home track championship to put on my resume."

Newhouse faces strong competition from three-time Super Stocks champion Kris McKean and Daniel Shirley, who is hungry for a title in the division after finishing second to McKean in the final standings the past two seasons.

Bulldogs Lack Bite

Kimberly baseball gets a much-needed test, even if end result is a pair of losses — and a shave.

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Kimberly baseball head coach Tom Myers can finally bust out the razor and shaving cream from the back of the bathroom cupboard.

It's time to trim the undefeated beard.

"It's been a long time," said Myers, who was growing out his facial hair as long as the Bulldogs kept winning. "I'm ready to get rid of this thing"

The Bulldogs came into the Buhl Tournament a perfect 12-0, but dropped a pair of games Friday, losing to South Fremont 6-5 after falling 10-4 to Spring Creek, Nev., in the morning.

Kimberly (12-2) cruised through the first month of the season, sweeping Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference foes Filer and Buhl, beating up on struggling American Falls and taking down Class 4A teams Jerome and Wood River.

Still, Myers felt his team hadn't been tested and looked at this weekend's tournament — which features Buhl, South Fremont, Teton and Spring Creek — as a bench mark of sorts for the reigning SCIC champions.

"It's good for us to lose these two and get us back on track," Myers said. "We wanted this tournament and we really didn't want it to rain because we wanted to get these games in and see where we were at. I've been telling these coaches that I don't know where we're at. It was good to have this tournament and kind of focus on what we need to work on."

BOBCATS EARN VITAL VICTORY

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Wins have been hard to come by this season for both Wood River and Burley, so when the Bobcats saw an opportunity Friday, they pounced.

With aggressive base running and timely hitting, Burley put up six runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to run-rule Wood River 11-1.

"We had to win, absolutely," said Burley catcher Jack Darrington, who went 3-for-3 with two RBIs.

Burley (3-10 overall, 2-5 Great Basin Conference) got serviceable pitching from Jackson Kunz, who gave up no earned runs on three hits with five strikeouts.

"When he hits the zone, his ball has a lot of movement on it," Darrington said of Kunz. "(Wood River's) not a team that's going to power the ball over people's heads, they're going to put it in play and makes us play defense. We did play defense and he threw strikes, which is all we need."

Last year's first team all-conference shortstop, Kunz has needed to pitch more lately due to a shoulder injury to ace Joe Ferrin, who is expected to return to the mound when these teams meet again today for a doubleheader at Wood River.

"It's something different. I don't feel comfortable yet, but I'll get there," Kunz said. "We had the hardest part of the schedule the first two (league series) with Minico and Twin. We knew we had to stay together as a team. None of us are great, but if we all play together we can be a dang good team!"

CSI Spikers Pass Offseason Exam

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • Kaylee Holmstead's first home volleyball match for the College of Southern Idaho won't count in any standings. But it'll go a long way in the red-shirt freshman's development as a Golden Eagle and could help her find a home after her time in Twin Falls is done.

The Declo native was thrown in at the deep end, making her home debut as part of CSI's spring season in a scrimmage against Boise State University. She acquitted herself well, registering a couple of key blocks and a handful of kills as the Eagles pushed the Broncos to five sets.

"I just tried not to be intimidated, knowing I was going up against a (NCAA Division I) block," Holmstead said. "I just tried to pick up on what they were doing, and I noticed that they were hitting panels (of the volleyball), which made it less about blocking the middle (of the court). I prefer this setup because you don't have time to get ready for this kind of competition, you're just in it."

CSI finished the day by playing the College of Idaho, which had three members of CSI's 2009 national championship team: Jessica Peacock, Torrey Hulsey and Elisa Brochado.

All three transferred to College of Idaho but were deemed Division I caliber — Peacock originally signed at San Diego State, Hulsey at West Virginia and Brochado at UNLV — after their time at CSI was done.

Getting to the national tournament helps immensely, but weekends like this one can get players on a four-year school's radar well beforehand.

Hornets Spoil Jazz Playoff Push

NEW ORLEANS • Eric Gordon crouched near the 3-point line, dribbling between his legs, again and again, all but lulling Utah's Gordon Hayward into a trance.

The moment Hayward appeared sufficiently mesmerized, Gordon stepped back and made a 23-foot jumper, punctuating a game-changing performance against a Jazz squad that needed to win a lot worse than the Hornets did.

Gordon scored 10 of his 25 points in the fourth quarter, and New Orleans won its first game under prospective new owner Tom Benson, 96-85 over Utah on Friday night.

Chris Kaman added 19 points as the Hornets won for the third time in four games while delivering a critical loss to the Jazz, who entered the night 11/2 games out of the eighth and final Western Conference playoff spot.

Hours earlier, Benson, the longtime owner of the NFL's Saints, agreed to buy the Hornets from the NBA, virtually assuring the club's long-term presence in New Orleans. Then Gordon returned from a two-game absence caused by back soreness and delivered a crowd-pleasing performance

Baseball Splits with Southern Nevada

TIMES-NEWS

Chase Harris and Ben Douglas hit back-to-back home runs in the College of Southern Idaho's 6-3 win at the College of Southern Nevada on Friday, but the Golden Eagles blew three separate leads in the nightcap to fall 12-11 and settle for a split of the Scenic West doubleheader.

Harris hit a three-run go-ahead homer in the third to put CSI up 4-2, then Douglas followed it with a solo blast to give Andrew Freter all the run support he'd need.

In Game 2 CSI led 6-1, 10-8 and 11-10 but couldn't get across the finish line.

"That second game was just whoever hit last was going to win. It wasn't a great game but it was a competitive game, back and forth. A lot of fun to be in," said CSI Coach Boomer Walker. "We swung it well that whole (first game) game, only got seven hits, but we had a lot of hard outs and did a really good job. Game 2, we just kept battling and battling, and it didn't go our way. It's probably the first time all year I didn't feel like we beat ourselves. We got beat that game, and we'll have to bounce back tomorrow."

The teams will conclude their four-game series today.

The teams will play one game today, weather permitting.

"I will play good four-year programs as often as I can, because it gets our girls in front of those schools in person. It also shows our girls the level of play we want to be at all the time, and it was good volleyball today. That's what it's going to take when we get to our league."

spring schedule isn't out of the ordinary at CSI, either. The Golden Eagles have been doing it as often as possible for years, both in volleyball and softball.

It doesn't only help get attention for the current players — it sets the bar for a style of play that will get the best out of those players and continue to bring

Volleyball

The CSI volleyball team has added three new commitments, CSI coach Heidi Cartisser confirmed Thursday.

CSI added transfer outside hitter Tineke Bierma, as well as receiving commitments from two walk-ons, middle blocker Alyssa Povey and defensive specialist Braiden Johnston.

Bierma transfers from Portland State, and she'll have one season of eligibility. Povey comes from West Side High School, while Johnston comes from four-time reigning Oregon state champion Crook County.

With walk-ons, CSI's 2012 roster now sits at 14. The Golden Eagles have two international scholarship spots remaining.

Basketball

The CSI women's basketball team signed two players Thursday, both from Nevada, in Julia Duffurrena and Zuleika Grinsell.

Duffurrena, a 6-0 forward from Lowry High School in Winnemucca, Nev., averaged 16.9 points and 10.5 rebounds per game this season, earning Nevada Class 3A player of the year honors. She won a state championship as a sophomore.

"Julia will be a great addition to our program, with her athletic ability and length on defense and scoring mentality," said CSI women's basketball coach Randy Rogers. "She gives us a solid player at both ends of the floor."

Grinsell is a 5-6 guard from Spring Creek High School in Spring Creek, Nev., where she has won three state championships in four years. She was named the state tournament MVP where she averaged 12 points and five assists.

"Zuleika brings a well-rounded, fundamentally sound player with some of the best passing skills I seen in a long time," Rogers said.

CSI now has four players signed for 2012-13, as Duffurrena and Grinsell join Sarah Viehweg and Cassidy Skidmore.

Rogers expects Dietrich's Moriah Dill and Rigby's Allie Furniss set to sign next week.

Burley second baseman J.J. Timmons tags out Wood River base runner Nick Bruncker Friday at Burley High School.

Burley got rolling with a two-out, three-run rally in the first inning. By the end of the day, Burley had RBI knocks by Ferrin, Jason Boehmer, Spencer Rice and R.J. Nevarez.

"We have to come out tomorrow and play even harder and keep it going," Darrington said. "We have three big weekends to go into districts hot, and that's the goal."

Wolverines pitcher Tim Boyle battled, but six unearned runs and a handful of throwing errors were too much to overcome. Wood River (1-13, 0-7), which has only one senior on its roster, scored its only run on an RBI single by David Grey in the fifth.

"The bats weren't hot today," said Wood River assistant coach Jesse Neet. "Tim threw well, we just didn't back him up."

Brennan's Carpet steps up to sponsor the Street Stocks division this year. Russell Dalton and Jay McDonald, former Stinger competitors, are among the new drivers to the series this season.

The uninhibited Thunderdogs division is now backed by the Car Store while Quale's Electronics continues its support of the Jr.

Stingers, featuring drivers under the age of 14.

Drivers and fans are not the only ones who are getting fired up — figuratively speaking — about the start of the 2012 season, as at least one participant will literally be fired up for the night's events. Stunt professional Mike "Mr. Dizzy" Buse will dazzle the crowd with his attempt to escape from a burning vehicle, igniting another season of action at Idaho's only NASCAR home track.

"He does some pretty cool stuff," said Eddy McKeon, MVS owner/promoter. "And he'll be back here in May to do more."

Looking forward to a strong field this season the American Speed Association Pro Trucks, formally known as the Intermountain Pro Trucks, is scheduled for four appearances at MVS with a double main set for July 21.

Rocky Mountain Challenge Series fans will be able to catch all the high-speed action the traveling series has to offer in their four visits to MVS, including a 200-lap main event race August 11. A rare appearance by the super-fast U.S. and Canadian Winged Sprint Car Tour takes place Memorial Day Weekend.

Other highlights of the 2012 season include the Budweiser Boat and Pepsi Trailer Races of Destruction. The July 3 action will also feature a special appearance by NASCAR Sprint Cup driver Kenny Wallace.

"He is coming to race in our Race of Champions that night," McKean explained. "There will also be two 30-minute autograph sessions with him for the fans."

plate. Kimberly managed just five hits off South Fremont starter Ryker Maupin, striking out six times, while hitting about a dozen lazy fly balls.

"We've been in that fly ball slump for a while. A lot of our good hitters should be hitting the ball better, but I think we were trying to do too much up there," said Kimberly starting pitcher Bo

Peterson. "I know when I'm trying too hard, that's when I get a fly ball or an easy ground ball."

Kimberly fell behind 3-0 in the first inning, but the Bulldogs answered with a run in the bottom of the frame and Seth Champlin and Ridge Lee each drove in runs in the second inning to tie the game.

South Fremont scored three in the fourth inning — one coming from a wild pitch and another on a Peterson throwing error to first base to take the 6-3 lead.

In the fifth inning, James Higginbotham scored after a South Fremont error and Peterson scored on a sacrifice fly by Matt Courtney to bring the Bulldogs within one, but Kimberly failed to score in the bottom of the seventh as Baxter Morse struck out looking on a 3-2 pitch with runners on second and third.

"We started out slow and couldn't quite pull it out at the end," Peterson said. "We should have gotten ourselves out of it before that (last at-bat). We had plenty of opportunities out there, but we couldn't get it done."

Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt Engaged after 7 Years, 6 Kids

Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt are engaged — and it's on the record! “Yes, it's confirmed,” Pitt's manager, Cynthia Pett-Dante, said Friday in a statement. “It is a promise for the future, and their kids are very happy. There's no date set at this time.” Engagement talk spread like wildfire Friday morning after jeweler Robert Procop revealed that the sparkler Jolie was photographed wearing Wednesday at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art was an engagement ring he had designed over the course of a year in collaboration with Pitt.

Budget Woes Force NASA to Redraw Plans to Mars

NASA is racing to come up with a new, cheaper road map to Mars. The space agency said Friday it's seeking ideas from scientists and engineers around the globe for robotic missions it can do in 2018 and beyond. Earlier this year, NASA pulled out of a partnership with the Europeans due to budget cuts. The duo had been working on missions targeted for 2016 and 2018. Those would have been the first step toward returning Martian soil and rocks back to Earth. NASA officials say returning samples is still a priority, but a reboot is necessary to get closer to fulfilling the country's goal of sending humans to Mars in the 2030s. A newly formed team will cull through the ideas and come up with mission options by summer.

3 Killed, 13 Injured in German Train Crash

Three railway workers were killed in a crash between a passenger train and a track maintenance vehicle in the eastern suburbs of Frankfurt early Friday, police said. Thirteen people were injured, some seriously. Six of them were hospitalized. Police identified the dead as the train driver and two track maintenance workers.

Forecasters Say Today's Storms 'Life Threatening'

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) • An outbreak of fierce storms, some of which could spawn large and violent tornadoes, are expected to develop across the nation's midsection today in a band running from Texas north to Minnesota.

The worst weather is expected to develop in the late afternoon between Oklahoma City and Salina, Kan., but other areas also could see severe storms with baseball-sized hail and winds of up to 70 mph, forecasters at the Storm Prediction Center in Norman, Okla., said Friday.

The outbreak could be a “high-end, life threatening event,” the center said.

It is only the second time in U.S. history that the center has issued a high-risk warning more than 24 hours in advance, said Russ Schneider, director of the center, which is part of the National Weather Service. The first such warning was issued in April 2006 before nearly 100 tornadoes tore across a large swathe of the southeastern U.S.

The latest warning was issued as a strong storm system moves in from the western U.S. with cold air combining with low-level moisture coming up from the Gulf region. The difference in wind direction and speed created by the storm system creates instability in the atmosphere that helps create rotation that can spawn tornadoes, said Scott Curl, a meteorologist at the NWS.

“It's amazing how many things you have to get to get a tornado to develop, and many of those ingredients will be in place tomorrow,” Curl said.

While the most severe storms are expected to hit in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, there could be severe weather in Iowa, Missouri, Texas and portions of Illinois. On Sunday, the storm system is expected to move slowly east, centering over Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

“This is a very powerful weather situation,” Schneider said. “The environment is extremely favorable for violent, long-track tornadoes.”

“The only question is when and where these storms will initially develop.”

Civil War Vet Finally Laid to Rest

Peter Knapp is the first Civil War veteran buried at Willamette National Cemetery, Oregon's largest veterans' cemetery.

BY STEVEN DUBOIS

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. • A Civil War veteran whose ashes sat for decades forgotten in storage could someday be recalled as the final soldier to be buried from that war.

Peter Jones Knapp, who fought for the Union in many famous battles and survived the dreaded Andersonville prison camp in Georgia, is to be laid to rest Friday in Willamette National Cemetery, the first Civil War veteran to be buried in Oregon's largest military graveyard.

Knapp will receive full military honors from the Oregon National Guard on the anniversary of his 1924 death. The service, which comes after relatives began tracing the Knapp family tree, also falls on the 151st anniversary of the Confederate victory at Fort Sumter, S.C., which ignited the Civil War.

“It has definitely become a bigger thing than we could have ever imagined,” said Ruth Knapp-Vallejos, 52, of Alameda, Calif., whose grandfather was Peter Knapp's nephew. “Usually our family funerals are very small affairs.”

It was Ruth's sister-and-law, Alice Knapp of Nehalem, Ore., who discovered the ashes, with the unwitting help of an Oregon newspaper.

Alice Knapp was tracing her husband's family tree when she learned of a 2009 article featuring Peter Knapp in the Medford Mail-Tribune newspaper.

President Barack Obama waves upon arrival to Cartagena, Colombia on Friday. Obama is in Cartagena to attend the sixth Summit of the Americas.

Obama Seeks to Keep Regional Summit Focused on Economy

CARTAGENA, Colombia (AP) • Putting an election year spin on his international agenda, President Barack Obama on Friday cast Latin America's rapid rise as a business opportunity for the U.S. economy. On his way to a regional summit in Colombia, he told voters in Florida, “While I'm in Colombia talking with other leaders, I'm going to be thinking about you.”

Obama's stop in Florida, a crucial state in the election, underscored White House efforts to keep the president's three-day trip to the Summit of the Americas focused squarely on the economy, the top issue for voters in a general election now fully under way.

But if some Latin American leaders get their way, Obama will be forced to engage on issues that are less politically palatable in the U.S.; namely, Washington's strained relationship with Cuba and the prospect of legalizing drugs.

The president steered clear of those matters as he kicked off his trip at the Port of Tampa, where about 40 percent of exports go to Latin America. Obama said economic growth in Central and South America has created a booming middle class with money to spend.

“We want them spending money on American-made goods so that American businesses can put more Americans back to work,” said Obama, his shirt sleeves rolled up, surrounded by cranes and shipping containers.

SYRIA TRUCE LARGELY HOLDS BUT 6 KILLED IN PROTESTS

BEIRUT (AP) • Syrian forces used live fire, tear gas and clubs to beat back tens of thousands of protesters who took to the streets across the country Friday in powerful and often jubilant displays of defiance. But a U.N.-brokered truce largely held up without the widespread, bloody offensives that have pushed the nation toward civil war.

Activists said security forces killed at least six people, a lower-than-usual toll. The rallies, described as some of the largest in months, stretched from the suburbs of Damascus to the central province of Hama, Idlib in the north and the southern province of Daraa, where the uprising began in March 2011.

“Come on, Bashar, leave!” the crowd shouted in Daraa, linking arms and stomping their feet to the beat of a drum in a traditional Arab folk dance, according to a video posted online by activists.

The protests might have been far larger had President Bashar Assad's regime not violated a key aspect of the truce by keeping troops, tanks and snipers in population centers instead of pulling them back to barracks. The presence of plainclothes agents of the feared Mukhabarat security service also had a chilling effect on some of the gatherings in Damascus, the capital, and elsewhere.

The story by Bill Miller looked back at a news item from 1921 in which a Confederate veteran named Willis Meadows literally coughed up a bullet during a violent spasm.

Meadows was shot in the eye during the war and the bullet remained near his brain until it flew from his mouth almost 60 years later. Peter Knapp, by this time an old man in Kelso, Wash., read details from an article that made national news in 1921 and concluded he was the soldier who shot Meadows at Vicksburg, Miss.

He sent a letter to the one-eyed Meadows and the two connected.

“As young mortal enemies they had tried to kill each other, but now, as aging veterans, they would spend their last few years as friends, exchanging photographs and wishing each other good health,” Miller wrote.

Brother: Painter Thomas Kinkade Relapsed into Alcoholism

MONTE SERENO, Calif. (AP) • Painter Thomas Kinkade battled alcoholism over the past several years and had a relapse just before his death this month at his home in Santa Clara County, his brother, Patrick, said.

The self-described “Painter of Light” died in Monte Sereno on April 6 at age 54 of what a spokesman has said was natural causes. An autopsy is pending.

Kinkade's scenes of country gardens and pastoral landscapes led to a commercial empire of franchised galleries, reproduced artwork and spin-off products that was said to fetch some $100 million a year in sales. But it did not endear Kinkade with the art establishment, who criticized him for appearing to appeal to the widest possible audience.

Those attacks on his work and a split with his wife two years ago took a toll, and he turned to alcohol over the past four or five years, Patrick Kinkade told the San Jose Mercury News on Thursday. The artist was arrested outside Carmel, Calif., in 2010 on suspicion of driving under the influence. That same year, one of his companies filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

“As much as he said it didn't bother him, in his heart deep down inside it would sadden him that people would criticize, so hatefully, his work and his vision, when people didn't understand him,” Patrick Kinkade, an associate professor of criminal justice at Texas Christian University, said.

Prosecutors: Zimmerman Did Not Use Racial Slur

BY MIKE SCHNEIDER
Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. • Despite what some people think they heard, prosecutors say George Zimmerman did not utter a racial slur in his call to 911 on the night he shot Trayvon Martin.

The disputed words on the recording turned out to be “these f--- punks,” prosecutors said in an affidavit filed Thursday in support of the murder charges brought against the neighborhood watch volunteer in the Feb. 26 slaying of the unarmed black teenager.

In yet another passage in the affidavit that caught the attention of those watching the racially charged case, prosecutors said Zimmerman “profiled” Martin just before the shooting. The document did not elaborate, and a spokeswoman for special prosecutor Angela Corey on Friday refused to explain it.

But legal experts warned that “profiling” does not necessarily mean “racial profiling.” “Profiling” is a common law enforcement practice of using a set of facts and circumstances to determine whether someone may be committing a crime. Police typically look at a person’s behavior and appearance, as well as other factors.

In the Martin case, Zimmerman told a police dispatcher: “This guy looks like he is up to no good. He is on drugs or something.” Zimmerman reported that the teenager had his hand in his waistband and was walking around, looking at homes in the gated community in Sanford, which had had several break-ins in the past year.

“When we see the word ‘punks’ and we connect that to the word ‘profile,’ I don’t think that is compelling proof that it’s racial profiling,” said Kendall Coffey, a former U.S. attorney in Miami who is now in private practice. “This guy appeared to Zimmerman to meet the profile of a criminal.”

He added: “Whether you’re white, black or Hispanic. You have a hoodie. You’re walking around.”

Zimmerman’s attorney, Mark O’Mara, said the affidavit supported his contention that race wasn’t a factor.

“Presumably, they’ve looked at all the evidence and haven’t determined anything that would support a racial component,” O’Mara said Friday.

Zimmerman, 28, has claimed self-defense, telling police that Martin attacked him as he was walking back to his truck. Zimmerman’s father is white and his mother is Hispanic.

After the release of the 911 recording in mid-March, the belief that Zimmerman muttered a racial slur fed suspicions that the killing was racially motivated and stoked demands that the U.S. Justice Department bring civil rights charges. News organizations used audio technology to enhance the 911 call and try to figure out what he said.

Prosecutors did not explain how they reached their conclusion. But Harry Shorstein, who was Corey’s predecessor as state attorney in Jacksonville, said her team probably relied on audio enhancing from the FBI or the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Shorstein called such enhancing “an indefinite science.” But Coffey said the fact that Corey inserted the exchange in the affidavit reflects her team’s confidence that Zimmerman used the word “punks” and not the slur.

Legal experts cautioned that the affidavit, the full text of which is available at <http://apne.ws/1tn7Nu>, is just a rough sketch of the prosecution’s case and does not contain all the evidence. But Coffey said he did not see enough in the affidavit for the Justice Department to make a hate-crime case stick.

Nevertheless, Florida defense attorney Randy McClean said Zimmerman’s use of the word “punks” and his profanity in describing Martin may help Florida prosecutors make the case that Zimmerman was the aggressor.

“It begs the question of who was the most likely aggressor,” McClean said. “A teenager walking home ... or the person who believes the teenager he is observing is a ‘f--- punk,’ an ‘ass---,’ and getting away with something.”

U.S. Justice Department spokeswoman Xochitl Hinojosa said the department is conducting its own, separate investigation, and she refused to comment on the special prosecutor’s findings.

At a brief hearing Friday, the judge overseeing the case, Jessica Recksiedler, said she might have a potential conflict of interest since her husband works with a lawyer who was first approached by Zimmerman’s family to represent Zimmerman. That lawyer, Mark NeJame, also is working as a CNN legal analyst on the case.

Recksiedler asked the defense and the prosecution to submit their views on the potential conflict before a bail hearing next Friday.

Newark Mayor Cory Booker, second right, has a bandaged right hand in front of a home in Newark, N.J., Friday as he describes the scene Thursday when he rescued a woman from her burning home.

N.J. MAYOR CARRIES WOMAN OUT OF HER BURNING HOME

The mayor said Friday he feared for his life as he helped rescue a neighbor from a fire before firefighters arrived.

BY SAMANTHA HENRY
Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. • In a smoky stairwell, with embers falling from the ceiling and his neighbor slung over his shoulder, Cory Booker called it his “proverbial come-to-Jesus moment.”

The mayor of New Jersey’s largest city was carrying out a constituent he had rushed into a burning home to save, first pushing aside his security detail who tried to hold him back by his belt. He didn’t feel like a hero: “I felt terror,” he told reporters on Friday, holding a children’s fire safety video with his burned, bandaged right hand.

The 42-year-old mayor, who has dug out snowbound residents in a blizzard, lived in a rundown housing project to make a point and tagged along on police patrols to lecture drug dealers, took on a new status Friday: the politician who can do almost anything.

Thousands took to Twitter, calling Booker Superman and inviting him to solve the North Korean missile crisis or run for president. The governor called it a “brave move” and the fire director said the mayor was one of the most heroic men he’d ever met.

Booker, standing in front of the boarded-up home Friday, said, “I did what any neighbor would do — help a neighbor.”

He ended up with second-degree burns and smoke inhalation after he brought out Zina Hodge, 47, from her smoky bedroom in the home next to his in a rough neighborhood of brick homes, storefront churches and small bodegas. He was coughing heavily after the rescue late Thursday.

Booker rushed into the burning home shortly after returning from taping a television appearance, after Hodge’s mother screamed that her daughter was trapped. Following her faint calls of, “I’m here, I’m here. Help! I’m here,” Booker lifted her from her bed and carried her on his shoulders through the burning kitchen, where flames had rolled over the roof and back down the wall.

He nearly panicked in the stairwell, where Newark Detective Alex Rodriguez was helping him bring Hodge out. He couldn’t see through the smoke.

“That was the moment I had a conversation with God,” Booker said. “I really didn’t think we were going to get out of there.”

Hodge was listed in serious condition Friday in the intensive-care unit of the burn center at Saint Barnabas Medical Center in Livingston. Fire officials said she had suffered second-degree burns to her back and neck and smoke inhalation.

Hodge’s mother, Jacqueline Williams, called the second-term mayor “a super mayor” who should become president.

Booker — a former college football player — downplayed his actions and said he’s no hero.

“I didn’t feel bravery, I felt terror,” he said. “I couldn’t breathe. It was a moment I felt very religious, let me put it that way.”

Even critics of the mayor, some who refer to him as “Story Booker” for what they call a history of courting publicity to boost his national image while ignoring problems in the impoverished city, offered grudging praise.

Failed Launch Is Setback for N. Korea’s New Leader

PYONGYANG, North Korea (AP) • North Korea’s much-touted satellite launch ended in a nearly $1 billion failure, bringing humiliation to the country’s new young leader and condemnation from a host of nations. The United Nations Security Council deplored the launch but stopped short of imposing new penalties in response.

The satellite’s disintegration Friday over the Yellow Sea brought a rare public acknowledgment of failure from Pyongyang, which had hailed the launch as a show of strength amid North Korea’s persistent economic hardship.

For the 20-something Kim Jong Un it was to have been a highlight of the celebratory events surrounding his ascension to top political power. It was timed to coincide with the country’s biggest holiday in decades, the 100th birthday of North Korea’s founder Kim Il Sung, the young leader’s grandfather.

The United States and South Korea declared the early morning launch a failure minutes after the rocket shot out from the North’s west coast. North Korea acknowledged its demise four hours later in an announcement broadcast on state TV, saying the satellite the rocket was carrying did not enter orbit.

The launch brought swift international condemnation, including the suspension of U.S. food aid, and raised concerns that the North’s next move could be even more provocative — a nuclear test, the country’s third.

Vatican and Oxford Libraries Go Digital

BY TISH WELLS

McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON • More world literature just got its door kicked open digitally. For the first time scholars will be able to compare material kept in the separate collections for centuries.

The Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana and the Bodleian Libraries of the University of Oxford have announced a 4-year project to convert some of their important holdings into digital form for all to see.

Among the items to be digitized will be ancient Greek manuscripts, 15th century printed books, Hebrew manuscripts and astronomical writings.

OBITUARIES

Anthony (Andy) Giraud

Aug. 19, 1983–March 8, 2012

BOUNTIFUL, Utah

• Andy passed away Thursday, March 8, 2012, while sleeping in his favorite bed; he looked so peaceful.

Andy was born Aug. 19, 1983, to Tim and Marva Giraud. Andy went to school at Heyburn Elementary and Minico High School. Andy had a favorite teacher and special friend, Claudette Bray.

Andy worked at Loves Truck Stop in Heyburn. He really loved his job. He loved meeting new people. When Andy was a child, he had a great fascination with vacuums and keys. His hobbies were electronics and cell phones. His memory with numbers always amazed us. Andy loved animals, especially his very special cat, Buddy, and other special animals, Binx, Dafenie and Babe. Andy had created a Facebook page for Buddy.

He is survived by his parents, Tim and Marva; sister, Heidi (Stan); brother, Tim (Christina); grandpa, Maurice Giraud; grandpa, Harley Sanders; uncle, Richard Wells; aunt, Marsha Wells; many other uncles and aunts; several cousins, nieces and nephews; and special friend, Lindsey Potts. He was preceded in death by grandma, Flora Sullivan; Granny Garrell Sanders; sister, Sarah Ann; cousins, Lisa Hoff and Shannon Gordon.

“Andy, I have had some awful days but some good ones as well. It’s easier having people at the house and working a lot. It’s been four weeks since you left. I don’t know if Thursdays will ever be normal for me again. I find myself crying at the most weirdest times. I miss you so very much, son, and if I could have you back, I would in a minute; but I know there’s a bigger plan for you now, so go forth, son, and be happy. I’ll meet you on the other side someday, and we can just hang out. Love you bigger than the universe,” Mom.

A memorial will be held on Andy’s birthday. Details will be announced later.

Vt. Governor Chased by 4 Bears in Backyard

BY WILSON RING

Associated Press

MONTPELIER, Vt. • A late-night encounter with four bears trying to snack from backyard birdfeeders gave Vermont’s governor a lesson in what not to do in bear country.

One of the bears chased Peter Shumlin and nearly caught the governor while he was trying to shoo the animals away, he said Friday.

“I had a close encounter with a bear, four bears to be exact,” Shumlin said.

Shumlin said he had just gone to bed inside his rented home on the edge of Montpelier late Wednesday when the bears woke him up. He looked out the window and saw the bears in a tree about five feet from the house trying to get food from his four birdfeeders.

“I open up the window and yell at them to get away from the birdfeeders. They kind of trot off,” Shumlin said Friday. “I go around to the kitchen to turn the lights on and look from the other side and they’re back in the birdfeeders. So I figure I’ve got to get the birdfeeders out of there or they’re going to make this a habit.”

He said he then ran out and first grabbed two of the feeders. As he grabbed the other two and made his escape, “one of the bigger bears was interested in me.”

“It was probably six feet from me before I slammed the door and it ran the other way,” Shumlin said.

Shumlin said he didn’t stop to get dressed, though he didn’t reveal exactly how little he was wearing.

“I sleep like many Vermont boys, without too much clothing at night. I’m not a big pajama person,” he said. “The bottom line is: The bears were dressed better than I and they could have done some real damage.”

Shumlin, 56, a first term Democratic governor from Putney, said he had part of the encounter on video, which he refused to release. He first described the wild encounter in an interview with the editorial board of the Valley News newspaper of Lebanon, N.H. He told the newspaper he was within “three feet of getting ‘arrrh.’”

“The lesson is as a Vermonter who grew up in this state and should know better, if you’re going to feed birds at this time of year, bring your birdfeeders in at night,” he said.

But Col. David LeCours, Vermont’s chief game warden, said bringing feeders in at night won’t make a difference because the bears will return to eat the birdfeed on the ground. The Department of Fish and Wildlife urges homeowners to remove birdfeeders in the spring.

While homeowners like to watch the birds, they don’t need to be fed once the snow melts, LeCours said.

In certain circumstances, such as if someone is deliberately trying to attract bears, people can be fined for keeping feeders out, but that wouldn’t apply in the governor’s case.

“If someone does it inadvertently, there’s no violation of law,” LeCours said.

LeCours said it was likely Shumlin was dealing with a sow with three cubs. He said he’d never heard of a bear chasing after a person with food, but mother bears will protect their young.

“She most likely felt her cubs were being threatened,” LeCours said.

Fleeing Bus Driver Takes Vietnam Cop on Wild Ride

BY TRAN VAN MINH

Associated Press

HANOI, Vietnam • A Vietnamese traffic cop went on a wild ride in Hanoi, clinging to the windshield wipers of a moving bus for nearly a kilometer (0.6 mile) after the rogue driver tried to avoid a ticket, police said Friday.

Traffic police 2nd Lt. Nguyen Manh Phan ordered the bus driver to pull over the 39-seat passenger coach Monday, said a police officer in Ba Vi District outside Hanoi. The officer spoke on condition of anonymity, citing policy.

The driver allegedly refused to show his paperwork and drove off — but not before Phan leaped onto the front, he added. The officer said the bus reached a top speed of about 50 kilometers per hour (31 mph).

A video shot by one of Phan’s fellow police officers shows the officer trying to get his footing and dangling precariously from the moving bus as oncoming traffic whizzes past. Phan can be heard yelling, “Call the police!”

The driver, Phung Hong Phuong, eventually pulled over after being chased by police and residents.

Even with the bus stopped, Phan stood calmly in front of it, still hanging on to the wipers.

Exhibit of 18 Violins Tells Story of the Holocaust

MARTHA WAGGONER

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. • When a musician plays a violin long enough, the instrument is imprinted with its owner’s way of making sound. If someone else picks it up, they learn to play it in a way that honors its history.

So when David Russell places a violin played in the World War II concentration camp of Auschwitz under his chin, he lets the violin tell him how to do it. The Auschwitz violin and 17 others with connections to the vanished world of Europe’s prewar Jewish communities are part of a new exhibit and performance series called “Violins of Hope.”

“When the violinists in ‘Violins of Hope’ play these instruments and they find how to make these instruments sound their best, they’re actually bringing back patterns from the former performers who used to play them,” said Russell, a music professor at the University of North Carolina Charlotte. “So we get an imprint, as it were, of that person. They’re with us, they’re in the concert.”

“Violins of Hope” opens Monday at UNC Charlotte Center City and will remain on view through April 20 and again April 22-24. The program includes related exhibits at other museums and several performances using the violins. The project’s final concert will take place April 21 at the Charlotte Symphony, with noted violinist Shlomo Mintz taking part.

The violins were first played publicly in 2008 in Jerusalem and then exhibited and played in 2010 in Sion, Switzerland. They’ve never before been exhibited or played together in North America.

Some violins were played at concentration camps; others

ASSOCIATED PRESS

David Russell, distinguished professor of violin at UNC Charlotte, examines one of the violins on display at the Violins of Hope exhibit on April 9 at UNC Charlotte in Charlotte, N.C. Eighteen violins recovered from the Holocaust and restored by Israeli violin maker Amnon Weinstein make their U.S. debut on Sunday. Some were played by Jewish prisoners in Nazi concentration camps, while others belonged to the Jewish Klezmer musical culture.

ers were used to play klezmer music, a lively, soulful Jewish folk music popular in prewar Eastern Europe. The Holocaust all but extinguished the klezmer tradition but it’s had a revival in the U.S. in recent decades.

All the violins were restored by master violin maker Amnon Weinstein, 73, who says the violins provide a way to teach young people about the Holocaust, in which about 6 million Jews and 5 million others were murdered by Nazis.

“It’s very important. I hope people will understand,” said Weinstein, who believes 400 of his family members died in the Holocaust, though his parents survived by moving to Palestine in 1938. “You cannot bring in dead people. But the violins speak for the people.”

Weinstein began the “Violins of Hope” project in the 1990s, but the genesis dates back to the end of World War II. His father, Moshe, also made violins. At the end of World War II, members of the Palestine Philharmonic Orchestra began bringing their violins to Moshe Weinstein with this directive: Buy my violin or I will destroy it.

The reason: Many of the violins were German-made and the musicians wanted nothing else to do with them after the atrocities of war. Moshe Weinstein bought the violins, which stayed in his shop until his son had an idea.

Amnon Weinstein understood that those violins had saved the lives of those musicians and their families. The orchestra’s director, Bronsila Huberman, had brought over hundreds of Jewish musicians from Europe to play before the war. Those who stayed in Israel survived. Those who returned to Europe were never heard from again.

He restored first one violin, then another. People learned of his project and contacted him, offering their instruments.

The project also is a way to take back ownership of the violins from the Nazis, who perverted music to their own ends. They used music “as a weapon against these people, psychologically, emotionally and spiritually,” Russell said. “They made the prisoners in the concentration camps play happy music for public executions and as people were being marched to the gas chambers.”

“While it’s unthinkable to use music in that way, it also provided these people even momentary escape from the hell they were living in, where they could still glimpse a few minutes of beauty and remember a time before all that darkness set in.”

as the Hornets won their second straight. "We want to give our fans something to be excited about going into the summer," Hornets coach Monty Williams said. Paul Millsap scored 27 points for Utah, while Al Jefferson had 19. Derrick Favors added 12 points and 13 rebounds for the Jazz. Greivis Vasquez and Al-

Farouq Aminu each scored 11 points for the Hornets, who shot 55 percent (38 of 69).

Utah shot 45.2 percent (33 of 73) and went only 2 of 11 from 3-point range, but still led 82-81 after Jamaal Tinsley's floater in the lane in the middle of the fourth quarter.

"We just couldn't stop Eric tonight," Hayward said. "We made him take some difficult shots and he was able to knock them down. He's a tough player to guard."

NBA ROUNDUP

NETS HIT ROAD, EARN ANOTHER WIN

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA • Gerald Green scored 23 points, and Kris Humphries had 18 points and 13 rebounds to lead the New Jersey Nets to a 95-89 win over the Philadelphia 76ers on Friday night.

Deron Williams had 11 points and 10 assists, MarShon Brooks scored 22 points and Jordan Williams had 13. New Jersey's 13 road wins are four more than they have at home.

Jrue Holiday led the Sixers with 19 points, Evan Turner had 18 and Thaddeus Young 13.

HEAT 105, BOBCATS 82

MIAMI • LeBron James had 19 points and nine rebounds and Chris Bosh had 18 points and seven rebounds to help Miami complete a three-game season-series sweep of Charlotte.

Miami led by 22 after three quarters and rested James, who also had five assists, the entire final period.

PACERS 102, CAVALIERS 83

INDIANAPOLIS • Danny Granger scored 18 points to help Indiana clinch a playoff berth.

Tyler Hansbrough scored 16 points, George Hill had 15 and seven assists, Leandro Barbosa scored 13 points and Roy Hibbert added 12 points and 10 rebounds for the Pacers, who have won seven of eight. The Pacers have won all three games Hill has started at point guard while Darren Collison has recovered from a sore groin.

RAPTORS 84, CELTICS 79.

TORONTO • DeMar DeRozan scored 13 of his 22 points in the third quarter and made four pivotal free throws down the stretch.

DeRozan was a perfect 13-for-13 from the line as the Indiana's Tyler Hansbrough is fouled by Cleveland's Antawn Jamison during the second half of their game Friday.

Raptors ended a four-game losing skid despite being without two of their top players.

HAWKS 109, MAGIC 81

ORLANDO, Fla. • Jannero Pargo hit five 3-pointers and scored 17 points, and Joe Johnson, Josh Smith and Marvin Williams each had 16.

The Hawks earned their third straight win over the Magic this season and have now won six consecutive regular-season meetings over their division mates.

KNICKS 103, WIZARDS 65

NEW YORK • Baron Davis scored a season-high 18 points on his 33rd birthday, JR Smith had 23, and the New York Knicks surged into a tie for seventh place in the Eastern Conference.

Carmelo Anthony and Steve Novak also had 18 for the Knicks, who could now be looking at a playoff preview when they host second-place Miami on Sunday. The Knicks tied Philadelphia after the 76ers lost earlier Friday to New Jersey, and New York holds the tiebreaker for the No. 7 seed.

THUNDER 115, KINGS 89

OKLAHOMA CITY • Kevin Durant had 29 points and nine rebounds and Russell

BUCKS 113, PISTONS 97

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. • Drew Gooden scored 26 points, and the Milwaukee Bucks pulled away from the Detroit Pistons in the third quarter.

Milwaukee is in ninth place in the Eastern Conference, trailing the New York Knicks and Philadelphia 76ers by two games in the race for the playoffs.

SUNS 112, ROCKETS 105

HOUSTON • Marcin Gortat had 20 points and 15 rebounds, Steve Nash had 18 points and 10 assists and Phoenix boosted its playoff hopes.

Jared Dudley scored 19 points, Michael Redd added 13 and Sebastian Telfair had 12 for the Suns, who moved into the ninth spot in the Western Conference. Phoenix also moved within one game of the Rockets, who came in holding the No. 7 seed in the West.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"While clearness is a virtue of style, perfect explicitness is not a necessary virtue."

— Arthur Symons

In action here against France in the McConnell Cup at the 2002 World Championships is the Netherlands Women's Team, which only two months previously had won the European Championships.

Against three no-trump West, Marijke van der Pas, led the club nine, which promised the 10, but no higher honor. Declarer won in hand and played the spade 10, which was allowed to hold. Van der Pas won the spade continuation with the king and switched to the diamond seven, won by dummy's ace. A third spade was taken by Bep Vriend's ace, and van der Pas had to find a discard. In their methods, a lead of a low card promised a good suit, and that diamond seven was not particularly low, albeit the lowest she had available. So it was certainly possible that East would do the wrong thing unless helped out by an informative discard.

How to persuade partner to continue diamonds? She solved the problem by discarding her heart queen. This could not be a request for a heart return, but instead a warning to switch, with suit-preference overtones. Vriend read the situation perfectly and returned the only card to defeat the contract — the diamond 10. A low diamond would not have been good enough. Declarer would have ducked, and West, forced to win the trick, could not profitably continue the suit.

In the other room, the unbeatable four-spade contract was reached, so the Netherlands registered a game swing.

ANSWER: Facing a one-level overcall with a 12-count, you can't be sure your side even has the majority of high points. A jump to two no-trump would suggest a somewhat better hand. (With the spade jack in addition, you might risk the call.) If you bid one no-trump, you'd be showing about 8-12, and with any luck you would hear your partner bid on if he had extra shape or high cards.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

Notice of Realty Action: Proposed minor boundary revision at Minidoka National Historic Site, Jerome County, Idaho. The National Park Service is considering adding approximately 88.51+/- acres of land that lies adjacent to the existing westerly boundary for the Minidoka National Historic Site. The proposed land addition is identified as parcel nos. 2, 3 and 4 in property survey recorded on 07/30/2009 under instrument no. 2093795 and identified as tax parcel nos: RP08S19E2300A and RP08S19E329001A.

The inclusion of this land within the park boundary will enable the current conservation easement holder to donate and convey its interest in the subject land to the National Park Service for the benefit of preserving and telling the Minidoka Internment Camp story that took place during WWII. The Camp's hospital and Army barracks designated as Blocks 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10 were situated on this 88.51-acre parcel.

Further information on this proposal is available from the National Park Service, Columbia Cascades Land Resources Program Center, 168 South Jackson Street, Seattle, Washington 98104; Attention: Mr. Rick Wagner (206) 220-4100. Public comments will be accepted, in writing, at his address until May 25, 2012.

The action to proceed with the boundary revision will become the final determination of the Department of the Interior, in the absence of any subsequent action to modify or vacate the proposal.

Today is Saturday, April 14, the 105th day of 2012. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On April 14, 1912, the British liner RMS Titanic collided with an iceberg in the North Atlantic at 11:40 p.m. ship's time and began sinking. (The ship went under two hours and 40 minutes later with the loss of 1,514 lives.)

On this date:
In 1775, the first American society for the abolition of slavery was formed in Philadelphia.

In 1828, the first edition of Noah Webster's "American Dictionary of the English Language" was published.

In 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth during a performance of "Our American Cousin" at Ford's Theater in Washington.

In 1902, James Cash Penney opened his first store, The Golden Rule, in Kemmerer, Wyo.

In 1910, President William Howard Taft became the first U.S. chief executive to throw the ceremonial first pitch at a baseball game as the Washington Senators beat the Philadelphia Athletics 3-0.

In 1931, King Alfonso XIII of Spain went into exile, and the Second Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1939, the John Steinbeck novel "The Grapes of Wrath" was first published by Viking Press.

In 1949, the "Wilhelmstrasse Trial" in Nuremberg ended with 19 former Nazi Foreign Office officials sentenced by an American tribunal to prison terms ranging from four to 25 years.

In 1956, Ampex Corp. demonstrated its videotape recorder at the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters Convention in Chicago.

In 1960, the musical "Bye Bye Birdie" opened on Broadway.

In 1981, the first

TODAY'S DEAL Get it only at www.magicvalley.com/todaysdeal GOOD DEALS! GREAT STUFF! Sign up now and never miss a deal again! powered by TIMES-NEWS magicvalley.com

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and I want to become famous. My mom says that's not a real job. I was in magazines when I was little, but now that I'm older, I want to be a singer or actress. What should I do?

— HEADING FOR FAME IN OHIO

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

DEAR HEADING: Listen to your mother. Fame, if one can achieve it, is usually accomplished after years of planning and hard work. If there is community theater in your area, volunteer and become involved. Plan to study music, drama and speech — as well as another subject so you can support yourself if it takes awhile for you to become famous. (This is called "Plan B.")

There's an old saying: "Luck" happens at the intersection of opportunity and preparation. The trick is to be there at the right time.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away four years ago. Right after his funeral I found a bottle of Viagra hidden in the trunk of his car. My sister and I agreed that we should keep it to ourselves and not tell my mother, but Mom and I are extremely close and I feel guilty keeping this secret.

My father had multiple affairs while he was married to Mom, so it wouldn't surprise me if he was cheating on her. Because of conversations that I have had with her, I am 100 percent sure she didn't know he was using Viagra. My mother remarried two years ago. Does she have the right to know, or should my sister and I take it to our graves?

— TWO SISTERS IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SISTERS: Your father's time on earth is over. Your mother is happily (I hope) remarried and has gone on with her life. I see no reason to revisit your father's probable indiscretions at this late date. It's time to let him and this subject rest in peace.

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband dearly, but I have a problem. He talks too much. I'll give you an example: Instead of saying I'd had surgery, he told people I'd had surgery because when I laughed I would wet my pants, so they had to go in and re-suspend my bladder. I could hardly believe my ears.

The latest is, he posted something on Facebook about a family member that was also very personal. I have asked him many times to keep details between us, but it does no good. What can I say to him to get this point across? I'm at a loss.

— FRUSTRATED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR FRUSTRATED: It's not what you should say to him, it's what you should NOT say. Because your husband lacks judgment, be careful about sharing sensitive information with him and warn your relatives to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for seniors and others who live alone: You need a friend or neighbor to keep in touch with you. Recently at the condo complex where I live, someone complained to the management office about a dog that wouldn't stop barking. When there was no answer on the phone or at the door, they went in. The woman had died and no one knew but her dog.

Our single neighbors now make a point of keeping in touch, if only to say hello and let us know they're OK.

— CONNECTED IN PALM COURT, FLA.

DEAR CONNECTED: That's good advice — because the sad circumstance you described happens more often than most people would think. A similar thing also occurred in a condominium development where I lived. A word to the wise ...

IF APRIL 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: When you're hot you're hot, when you're not, you're not. For the next several weeks, you're not hot; on the contrary others may look upon your efforts with a cold and calculating eye. Don't shirk your duties, miss deadlines or begin anything of importance. By early June, you have more help and opportunities at your disposal. That is a good time to plan ahead so that you won't be forced to make key changes or decisions during August. August is another period of time when you can't push your luck. A pleasant escape from dull routines might be in the stars for you during December. In December begin a new job, put romantic plans and commitments into action, or take on extra responsibilities.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You won't solve all of your problems quickly. To accomplish your goals will take careful planning and delicate work. Remain patient and don't waste your time pushing strenuously for instant gratification.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Know your place. You may feel the urge to make waves or stir up some trouble, but it would be wiser to maintain a low profile and stay out of the limelight. Keep controversy and conflict to a minimum.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Where there's a wall, there's a wallflower. You may be tempted to head off on a search for the soul mate of your dreams but this is not the time. Curl up with a good book rather than initiating new hookups.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The only thing to fear is fear itself. You might feel a painful pinch in your pocket-book. A lack of financial security is like a wolf at the door. Avoid rushing blindly into the fray to beat that wolf away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The world doesn't revolve around you. Remember that the rooster that crows too loudly is often the same one that gets picked out as the entree for Sunday dinner. You don't always have to get your way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It is all a matter of perspective. Mars changes direction in your sign today. Planets don't really move that way, but that is how it appears from our viewpoint on the surface of the Earth. Remain calm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Rather than delegating authority, handle things that need tweaking yourself. A strained relationship needs tender loving care. Save your money; postpone major purchases until there is a better time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work gets more accomplished than worry. Busy hands keep the mind from going around in endless circles. Don't make changes in your routines or try to hedge your bets with unnecessary purchases.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Well-meant teasing can backfire under these stars. Be careful when joking with friends. People in general aren't in the mood for nonsense and hurt feelings could result. Quick decisions may be regretted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Postpone the meeting of the minds. Holding a heart-to-heart under these stars might cause misunderstandings. Steer clear of shopping sprees and don't gamble with money you can't afford to lose.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A new romance doesn't have a chance. Take a rain check if you have booked a first date for this weekend. Watching paint dry will be more fun than a party under these stars. Stay home with your TV.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Wait and watch. You may wonder how much energy people expend in simply trying to impress you. You may see someone's hidden side or watch someone make a complete u-turn in opinions.
