Idaho Unemployment Rate Dips Below 8%

More local jobs are expected through the summer with Chobani, other employers opening or expanding.

BY ERIC LARSEN

elarsen@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • More Idahoans found work in March than any other month since October 2006, pushing Gem State unemployment below 8 percent for the first time in more than two years.

The state's employment gains outpaced labor force growth for the eighth consecutive month, as the Gem State continued its more than 10-year streak of jobless rates below the national average. Those still seeking work are also facing less competition, as New York think tank The Conference Board estimates that fewer than 3.5 unemployed Idahoans are vying for each open job.

After years of dire employment figures through the Great Recession, the Gem State's continued job growth in 2012 is painting a better picture as spring development marches forward.

"Quite frankly, nobody could have predicted how long this recession lasted," said Jan Roeser, regional economist with the Idaho Department of Labor. "It's been pretty painful for most people. Even if you were unscathed, you knew somebody who was hurting. It's nice to finally see some light at the end of the tunnel."

The Magic Valley Scene

March unemployment in six of the eight south-central Idaho counties came in lower than the state's 7.9 percent mark.

While unemployment as low as 5 percent in Gooding County looks good on its own, it doesn't tell the whole story. Idaho's labor force has grown by more than 10,000 eligible workers in the past year, but south-central Idaho's labor force has actually declined as workers stopped looking for jobs or moved elsewhere to find them.

Roeser said jobs lost when Blaine County construction slowed during the recession had a widereaching effect. Over the past year, the combined work force in Blaine, Camas and Lincoln counties

Congress Begins Uphill Battle to Pass Farm Bill

BY JIM ABRAMS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Senate has begun laying the groundwork for a half-trillion-dollar farm and food bill that would end unconditional subsidies to farmers, but House Republicans' resolve to cut its biggest component - food stamps - by $13 billion a year dims its prospects of passing Congress.

The current five-year farm bill expires at the end of September, and the Senate Agriculture Committee on Friday released a draft of its plan to redesign safety nets that help farmers weather bad times while achieving some $23 billion in deficit reduction. The full committee is to vote next week on the plan, which consolidates conservation programs and takes several steps, such as stopping lottery winners from getting assistance, to make the food stamp program more accountable. Of that $23 billion in savings projected over next 10 years, $4 billion comes from food stamps.

But before getting a bill to the president, lawmakers must satisfy multiple constituents with different agendas - Northern corn growers, Southern cotton farmers, insurance companies, banks, nutrition groups and environmentalists. Most difficult will be narrowing the gap between the Democratic Senate and House Republicans taking aim at the food

About 30 Magic Valley teens are preparing to show off their engineering feats in St. Louis.

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When a group of teenagers arrived at robotics practice Tuesday night, they went right for the remote controls. "Guys, safety glasses," club president Mark Sneddon reminded his peers as they arrived at Twin Falls High School.

Members of Robotics Explorer Post 411 "Team Tesla" practiced making their robots flip over a crate full of racquetballs and go through a series of other steps. It concluded with rolling a bowling ball up a ramp to rest on a platform. About 30 club members from around the Magic Valley are preparing to compete in the FIRST World Championship from Wednesday through April 28 in St. Louis, Mo. In order to prepare, students meet three days a week for hours at a time.

The robotics club is in its second year. But, most members are in their first year competing in robot-

"The point is we're trying to engage kids in science and engineering," mentor Jay Sneddon said.

His son, Mark Sneddon, is a senior at Twin Falls High. Mark aspires to become an electrical engineer, working on robotics research and development.

Club member McKay Beard, a junior at Canyon Ridge High School, also wants to become an engineer. She said she was hesitant to join the club at first and is one of just a few girls involved.

After starting two years ago with six members, the club has grown through community service outreach.

The club qualified for the FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) World Championship during a March regional competition in San Jose, Calif.

There are two local "rookie" FIRST Tech Challenge teams made up of first-year robotics students. Another team with more experienced students will compete in the FIRST Robotics Competition.

"We did not expect to go to St. Louis," Jay Sneddon said. And that meant raising about $20,000

A Rich History: Hollister Elementary Nears 100

HOLLISTER • Teaching at Hollister Elementary School is more than a job for Marla Critchfield.

The kindergarten teacher has deep roots with the school, dating back to her own days as a student. Of the 33 years she's been a teacher in the Magic Valley, she's spent about 15 of them on-andoff in Hollister. "It always draws me back," she said. This year, others may feel called back as well. Hollister Elementary alumni and employees are preparing to celebrate the school's centennial this fall. Lead teacher Teri Peters said a birthday celebration is scheduled for Oct. 13.

Although event details are still in the works, she said it will likely include a chance for people to 'explore the building?

Throughout the years, students signed their name in different locations throughout the building.

"People who went to school here like to look around," Peters said. "It brings back memories."

A Rich History

Hollister Elementary opened Oct. 12, 1912, and originally housed students in grades 1-12.

Hollister Elementary third-graders Makayla VonBerndt, left, and Ely Drake Brooks play capture the flag Thursday at the school, which is preparing to celebrate its centennial in October.

John Graham, superintendent of the Filer School District, said Hollister students now travel to Filer when they reach the sixth grade.

Expectant Mom Seeks Advice on Breastfeeding

My baby is due in a couple of weeks and I would really like to breastfeed, but I'm afraid it's going to hurt. Can you give me any suggestions to help? - Wendy, Gooding he Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that in the United States, around 75 percent of babies start out being breastfed – but that number drops in half six months later.

Answered by Sherie Tanner, RN, IBCLC, St. Luke's Magic Valley:

One of the most highly effective preventive measures a mother can take to protect the health of her infant is to breastfeed. The American Academy of Pediatrics has established that breast milk is perfectly suited to nourish infants and protect them from ill-

Breast milk is already pre-warmed, to a temperature babies like. It's immediately available, so you don't need to mix it up or heat it up. And it's supposed to be a little bit sweet – babies do like it. Breastfeeding boosts your baby's immunity, and reduces the number of infections likely to develop. This in turn means fewer sick days for mom and dad.

St. Luke's Magic Valley provides breastfeeding assistance to new moms to make sure that they get off to the right start with their newborns, providing help just a couple of hours after your baby is born.

If your baby isn't latched on correctly or isn't positioned correctly, you can get very sore. Breastfeeding shouldn't hurt. There are lactation specialists available at St. Luke's Magic Valley to help moms fix their position and fix the latch. Usually, it just takes a little tweak here and there and then the baby is latched on correctly, which allows you to

Paper Carrier Accused of Stealing Mail

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvallev.com

BURLEY • An independent contractor who delivered newspapers for the Times-News is suspected of stealing people's mail while making her morning deliveries.

Kerri Ochoa, 30, of Declo, was arrested Thursday by Cassia County sheriff's deputies after the alleged thefts, targeting outgoing mail at numerous homes early in the mornings.

Charges are also pending against Toby Hensen, 41, of Declo, who is suspected of aiding Ochoa with the thefts, according to a press release from the sheriff's office.

As an independent contractor, Ochoa was not employed by the newspaper. Her contract with the Times-News has been terminated and she is no longer delivering papers for the newspaper, said Circulation Director Robert Ronco.

The sheriff's department received a report of outgoing mail being stolen from 977 S. 150 E. in Burley.

Deputies used a "covert" camera to obtain evidence of the theft on Thursday.

According to the release, the thefts occurred over the past two months in southern Cassia County, including Oakley.

Anyone who has had mail stolen should contact the sheriff's office at 878-2251.

stamp program that comprises some 80 percent of the bill's spending.

The Congressional Budget Office says that at the current spending pace the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or food stamps, would spend about $400 billion over the five-year life of a farm bill enacted this year. Crop insurance subsidies would average about $9 billion a year, commodity subsidies $6.6 billion and farm conservation programs $6.5

Last fall, when the congressional supercommittee was making its futile attempt to come up with a long-term deficit reduction plan, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Debbie Stabenow, D-Mich., and her Republican colleague in the House, Frank Lucas of Oklahoma, came up with a plan to cut $23 billion from farm and food aid over the next decade. That plan is the framework as the Agriculture Committee's draft of the massive bill, which also includes such areas as energy, forestry, rural development and international food aid.

The Barack Obama administration, in its budget proposal this year, outlined a similar plan, calling for cuts of $32 billion and also eliminating direct payments, a subsidy that farmers collect based on a land's production history but not connected to crop prices or

But the GOP-led House sees farm and food aid as a prime source for deficit reduction, and the budget of Budget Committee Chairman Paul Ryan, R-Wis., that cleared the House last month requires almost $180 billion in cuts from farm bill programs over the next decade. That included $134 billion, or an average $13.4 billion a year, from the food stamp or SNAP pro-

Republicans argued that spending for SNAP, which has grown from 17 million recipients in 2001 to more than 46 million today, is bloated by waste and fraud and can be reduced without taking food away from the needy.

But Democrats strongly opposed to anything more than marginal cuts to the food stamp program and saw the Ryan budget as a major deterrent to getting a farm bill this

"Farmers and ranchers are fiscally conservative and definitely want to contribute as much as they can to deficit reduction," said Chandler Goule of the National Farmers Union. But he said the entire farm bill with nutrition is still only about 2 percent of the federal budget and farmers are already bearing more than their fair share with the $23 billion in cuts proposed last year. "The government needs to go somewhere else to find additional money ... that's what our producers think," he said.

The Long-term Outlook With volatile gas prices

and other uncertainties, predicting Idaho's economic outlook can be akin to forecasting the state's weather. But Idahoans are collecting nearly $10 million less in unemployment benefits than the same time last year, and the ranks of those collecting the benefits is down to about 33,000.

South-central Idaho's reliance on agriculture helped the area weather the recession better than most, Roeser said, so commodity pricing will be an important facet of the area's economic wellbeing in the coming year.

A growing global food market, paired with last year's Midwest drought, has led to a fair measure of uncertainty about how crop prices will hold up this year. Growers encouraged by strong demand for certain crops must be careful not to plant too much and inadvertently cut their prices off at the knees should they exceed needs.

"Our bubble could be coming from farm prices in the future," Roeser said. "That could be our menace or monster that's rearing its ugly head."

Hollister

Graham said schools are the center of every community to some degree. But it's especially true in Hollister.

"It has a little more of a flavor of a true local school,"

Hollister is a small, rural town of just several hundred residents about 20 miles south of Twin Falls along U.S. Highway 93. The multi-story, brick school building is surrounded by high desert.

Peters said generations of families have come through the school. Her husband and their children all went to Hollister Elementary.

"People have really close ties to this school," she said.

She said the building hasn't changed much visually, but has been well-maintained over the years. Inside, there's still the original hardwood floors and staircases.

BOISE • A boy at East Junior High School has been suspended for five days after school officials learned that he had created a "hit list" that included 70 students, a school official said late Friday afternoon.

Police went to the boy's home on Thursday, said Dan Hollar, a spokesman for the Boise School Dis-

"They determined the student didn't have the capability to carry out the threat," Hollar said.

School officials first heard about the hit list on Thursday. Hollar did not know how or where it was found.

The boy was located, confronted and then suspended, Hollar said.

The hit list threatened violence against 70 East Junior High students and 10 others, including some "celebrities," Hollar said. He did not provide specifics on the threat.

"We take those threats seriously - in this day and age, you have to take this seriously," Hollar said.

School officials called the parents and guardians of all of the students on the list, Hollar said. He noted that an email was also to be sent to parents and guardians on Friday; he was unsure what time that would go out.

At least one parent expressed shock and concern about the incident.

"I cannot believe THAT just happened," she wrote on her Facebook page after receiving a call from school officials that her son's name was on the hit list. She added: "Right here in Boise, Idaho, boys and girls."

Hollar encouraged parents to talk to their kids.

"Parents should take the opportunity to make sure their students understand the seriousness of making any threat, and the repercussions that can be faced," Hollar said.

"It was a once in a lifetime thing," she said. "It's so unbelievable it could really happen."

Part of the Family

It all started in the mid-1950s. A paper listed with names and descriptions of teens overseas was passed around Ruby's eighth-grade classroom in Dalkena, Wash., and the 14-year-old picked out a girl similar to herself.

She and Ann shared commonalities. Both had both lost their mothers at a young age, and were raised by their grandparents.

"It was just interesting, someone in a different culture, a different country, that we had so much in common," Ruby said.

They started writing. And they didn't stop.

Ann, writing in an email this week, remembered they initially swapped tidbits about "the usual teenage things," like boys, clothes, pop music. Ann wrote about seeing the Beatles, Ruby about dress making.

"I remember a photo of Ruby in a beautiful prom dress," Ann recalled. "We didn't have school proms over here at that time, and I remember how grand it all sounded."

As their lives unfolded, they shared the developments, big and small. Boyfriends, marriage, children, grandchildren.

Ruby wrote about her kids' 4-H events. She mailed a pair of hot pants she made to Ann's daughter.

"She was so very proud wearing them," Ann wrote.

They also touched on all that happened to their countries in between; Ruby sent Ann a newspaper clipping of the Mt. St. Helens eruption, and Ann wrote about watching Princess Diana getting married on TV. They wrote at length about their reactions to 9/11.

As society around them turned to communicating through screens, Facebook, Twitter, email, they held true to pen and paper.

"I guess it's because I've never done the others," said Ruby, who doesn't own a computer.

But the flow of communication never ceased, said Ruby's daughter Cindy, 48, who heard about the letter contents throughout her childhood.

"I always remember hearing about 'the pen pal;" Cindy said. "We just felt like we knew her."

Ruby agreed.

"It seemed like she was family," she said.

Face to Face

Ruby always longed to travel, her daughter observed. Her mother collected stamps from all over the world.

"That's how she traveled, through stamps," Cindy said. After Ruby wed her husband, Gary, it seemed that was the only traveling there would be. "Dad was never interested,"

Cindy said of leaving North Idaho, where the Menkes have lived since 1960. "If we could drive to a car show, he'd go." Then a year ago Ruby was diagnosed with Parkinson's. Suddenly there was a timeline for her physical fortitude, for the possibility of adventure.

And for meeting Ann. "We decided, if we were going to do it, now was when to do it," Ruby said. She bought her first passport. She and Cindy scheduled a trip from March 20 to 28, in time to meet with Cindy's daughter Erin, 21, who had been attending school in Germany.

With a gift of North Idaho huckleberry products in hand, they took a train to Chelmsford, where Ann's husband Ron met them and delivered them home.

Cindy said her mother had been aflutter, worried the meeting might be awkward, that after so much revealed in their letters, they would have nothing to share face to face.

"What should I wear? Do I look OK?" she remembered her mother saying.

But Ann rolled out an impressive welcome. She prepared tea and sandwiches, served on her grandmother's china. After taking each other in, the women could fully appreciate everything they had in common. Both were 70, married with two children. Both enjoy gardening and camping.

"It was unusual when we met with her, the paralleling of their lives," Cindy said...

The meeting was warm and easy as they caught up on the latest news.

Ann revealed that she had saved all of Ruby's letters, Cindy said.

"She would sit with her eyes twinkling, 'I remember your mom's first boyfriend, his name was Robert," Cindy said with a laugh. "She knew about the whole family history."

Ann confessed in her email that it was "a dream come true" to meet Ruby and her family.

"Ruby was as warm and friendly as in her letters, and the time we spent together went all too fast," Ann wrote. "We both can't think how quick the years have passed."

To Be Continued

Ruby said she is grateful for hours spent at Ann's abode, which has attached something tangible to the words Ruby has read.

She knows how cozy Ann's home is, she remarked. What her camping trailer looks like.

"It personalizes everything more," she said.

They want to maintain the closeness. The women have agreed to try Skyping, a free download application to conduct video calls on the computer.

Ruby will try to use her daughter's computer. Ann said she still intends to write. "I know we will keep writing as long as we both can," she said. The fact that they've made it this far is incredible, Ruby admitted.

And she looks forward to the next read.

"This is how you build any relationship, by connecting and sharing ideas and things," she said. "To do it with someone you don't even know is quite amazing."

U of I to Pay Slain Grad Student's Family $375,000

BY JESSIE L. BONNER Associated Press

BOISE • The family of a slain graduate student will receive $375,000 as part of a settlement with the University of Idaho, according to a copy of the agreement The Associated Press obtained Friday through a public records request.

Katy Benoit's family plans to donate the money to charitable causes, primarily through a memorial fund established after the 22-year-old's death in August. Benoit gunned down by a professor she had previously dated.

Under the settlement, the university will also be required to improve communication with police, work with Benoit's family on a memorial to be placed on the Moscow campus, and make other changes.

"Money was never our sole focus in this process. It was important to us that Katy's tragedy would instigate significant, positive changes at the University of Idaho," the Benoit family said in a statement early Friday.

Benoit had complained to the university in June 2011 about assistant psychology professor Ernesto Bustamante, saying she ended their relationship after he pointed a loaded gun at her head on three separate occasions, threatening her life.

Bustamante resigned three days before police say he went to Benoit's off-campus home in Moscow and shot her 11 times while she stood on her back porch. It was Aug. 22, the first day of the fall 2011 semester. After killing Benoit, police say Bustamante checked into a hotel room and fatally shot

Benoit's family filed a $3 million tort claim against the university in Decem-

The AP reported Tuesday that a settlement had been reached, according to two people with knowledge of the settlement who spoke on the condition of anonymity. The university and the Benoit family would not confirm or comment on the agreement at that time.

The state Board of Education approved a settlement Thursday, and details were released several hours later in a statement from university President Duane Nellis, Benoit's parents Gary and Janet, and Benoit's brother, Andy.

Newly elected board president Ken Edmunds issued a statement Friday morning saying, "The board members, individually and collectively, want the family to know we are profoundly sorry for their

Edmunds continued: "The board is thoroughly committed to providing a safe and supportive environment at all of Idaho's public education institutions. We appreciate the efforts of the Benoits and the university to focus on the best interests of Idaho students. They deserve all we can do to safeguard their future."

After the deaths, faculty leaders revised university policy to more strongly discourage relationships between faculty members. The university also worked to implement recommendations released by an independent panel in late November. A copy of the settlement shows that in exchange for the $375,000, Benoit's family agreed to drop all legal claims against the university. The family noted that under Idaho's tort claim law, any recovery in a wrongful death judgment would be limited to $500,000. "We felt that a $375,000 settlement was fair because not only did it allow everyone to avoid a painful and expensive litigation process, it also ensured that all nonmonetary items we sought got implemented in an immediate, harmonious fashion," the Benoits said.

"We are now only looking forward," the family said.

As part of the settlement, the university will be required to implement a new student safety forum and make other changes. They include:

• Ensuring all reasonable allegations of violence and sexual misconduct within the university community are investigated and appropriate action taken, whether allegations are made formally in writing, informally or anonymously.

 Improving relations, communication and procedural operations between the university and the Moscow Police Department.

• Improving sexual harassment training for students, staff and faculty, with specific information on the revised policy about faculty-student relation-

 Creating a yearly student safety forum named in Benoit's honor.

• Working with Benoit's family on the design and location of a memorial on the university's main campus in Moscow.

FIGHT OVER PASTRY ENDS IN E. IDAHO WOMAN'S ARREST

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • Police say an argument between an eastern Idaho woman and her boyfriend over who ate the last of their pastries ended in violence.

Officers arrested 45year-old Shellie Coughlan of Idaho Falls on Wednesday, saying she threw a boyfriend, 46-year-old John Rice. Coughlan was booked into the Bonneville County Jail on suspicion of aggravated battery.

Police say the argument between the two started because Rice was upset after Coughlan's teenage son ate steak knife at her live-in the last of their Danish. When officers responded to the reported disturbance, Coughlan said Rice had threatened her with a gun. But police say they deter> mined it was Coughlan who had a weapon. A court appearance has

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

First Winning Week of April for U.S. Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) • Stronger profits from Microsoft, McDonald's and other major U.S. corporations pushed stocks higher Friday. Optimism from Europe helped brighten the mood. The Dow Jones industrial average and the Standard & Poor's 500 index had a winning week for the first time this month. "There's been a wrestling match all week long between strong earnings and weak economic data," said Lawrence Creatura, a portfolio manager at Federated Investors, the money-management firm. "At the moment, earnings are winning."

IMF Announces $430B Boost to Debt Crisis Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) • The International Monetary Fund says it has raised more than $430 billion in an effort to assure finance markets that it has sufficient firepower to handle any new problems from Europe's prolonged debt crisis.

IMF Managing Director Christine Lagarde announced the new figure at the Lagarde

conclusion of the discussions among finance officials of the Group of 20 major economic powers on Friday. She said that some countries including Russia, India, China and Brazil had made private pledges but did not want to issue public commitments until they had conferred with officials in their home capitals.

The general public may take some coaxing to accept the idea, but federal officials are jumping on board the effort to turn manure into energy.

JEROME • Don't try to describe manure as waste in front of Gary Van Loo.

As president of Andgar Corp., Van Loo has designed and built enough anaerobic digesters to view manure as a precious resource.

"We got to change the view that all of this manure is somehow a waste," he said Friday. "It's not."

He understands that the general public may take some coaxing to warm up to the idea. But in the meantime, federal officials are jumping on board.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently recognized one of Van Loo's digesters in Jerome as a success, awarding it with a $500,000 grant. The money helps recoup the digester's costs of construction.

The digester, at Double A Dairy, has a 20-year sales agreement with Idaho Power for the energy it produces. In the process of converting manure into fertilizer, the digester generates 4.5 megawatts of energy. That's enough to power 3,500 homes, and uses enough methane to keep the equivalent of the annual emissions of 10,000 vehicles out of the air.

Van Loo worked with AgPower Group, the company that manages and develops the digester on behalf of Double A Dairy, to win the grant.

"We're helping cut down methane gases, and depending on the study you read, there's quite a bit that can get into our water if we don't do something," said Bob Joblin, a partner with AgPower. "It also gets it out of our atmosphere, that's important."

The grant is part of US-DA's rural energy program that provides guaranteed loans and grants to small business and agricultural producers who install renewable energy systems.

"We're fortunate in Idaho that we have interest from so many different types of renewable projects," said Brian Buch, an energy program specialist for the USDA. "We definitely have more interest than we have funding at the moment."

After 4-month Surge, Gasoline Prices Start Falling Across U.S.

Pump prices have dropped 6 cents over two weeks to a national average on Friday of $3.88 and could fall another nickel or more next week.

BY CHRIS KAHN AND SANDY SHORE

Associated Press

NEW YORK • The worst appears to be over. Gasoline prices are going down.

After a four-month surge pushed gasoline to nearly $4 per gallon in early April, drivers, politicians and economists worried that prices might soar past alltime highs, denting wallets, angering voters and dragging down an economy that is struggling to grow.

Instead, pump prices have dropped 6 cents over two weeks to a national average on Friday of $3.88. Experts say gasoline could fall another nickel or more next

Drivers might also get to say something they haven't since October 2009 they're paying less at the pump than they did a year

"It's nice, much more manageable," said Mark Timko, who paid less than $4 per gallon Wednesday in the Chicago suburb of Burr Ridge, Ill., for the first time since March. "I wasn't sure how high they were going to go this year."

Gasoline prices are lower than they were a year ago in 11 states, according to the Oil Price Information Service. At $3.88, the national average is still high, but it's down from a peak of $3.94. Predictions of $5 gasoline earlier this year have - mercifully evaporated.

Tom Kloza, publisher and chief oil analyst at Oil Price Information Service, expects gasoline prices to drop to just above $3.80 by late next week. Stuart Hoffman, chief economist at PNC Financial Services Group, said the falling prices will put more money into the economy for Americans to spend elsewhere.

A 10-cent drop in gasoline prices would mean drivers would have an extra $37 million per day to spend on other things.

Gasoline prices have been pushed high by crude prices that have averaged $104 per barrel this year. World oil demand is expected to set a record this year and a series of production outages around the world have kept supplies low.

per barrel, experts say.

Oil rose to $110 as the West tightened sanctions on Iran in an effort to make it harder for that country to sell oil and pressure it to abandon its nuclear ambipump. tions. Fears that retaliation by Iran could disrupt Middle Eastern supplies pushed oil prices up by as much as $15

Closer to home, there were concerns about restricted supplies of gasoline on the East Coast after three refineries closed and two more were set to be shuttered. Gasoline futures prices, which are quickly reflected in pump prices, rose to their highest levels in nearly a year.

But several factors have contributed to the lower prices at the pump:

• Oil prices have fallen in recent weeks. Iran and the West are negotiating, the growth in demand for oil has moderated, and world oil supplies are rising again thanks to more production from Saudi Arabia, Libya and the United States. Oil has fallen to $103.05 per barrel, down from a peak of $110.55 on March 1.

 Potential buyers for the two East Coast refineries have emerged, so they are now expected to stay open.

• U.S. drivers have gotten frugal at the gas pump. Gasoline demand has dropped by about 6 percent, compared with the same period last year, according to the latest government data.

In response, gasoline futures have since dropped by 8 percent. That's expected to cut the price of wholesale gasoline, and those savings will be passed on at the

UK Brothers Charged in Stock-picking Robot Scam

WASHINGTON (AP) •

U.S. investors thought they were buying access to a stock-picking robot named "Marl?" Instead, they paid millions to teenage twin brothers in England who now face civil fraud charges for an alleged penny-stock swindle.

The robot didn't exist. The stocks picked were companies that paid hefty fees to Alexander and Thomas Hunter, just 16 when the alleged scheme began in 2007, the Securities and Exchange Commission said Friday. As stock prices jumped, the Hunters' clients dumped their shares for a profit.

"While touting their supposed breakthrough investment technology on two websites, the Hunters were racking up fees as stock promoters through a third," said Thomas Sporkin, chief of the SEC's office of market intelligence, in a statement.

The SEC filed a civil suit against the Hunters, who are now 20, in U.S. District Court in Manhattan Friday.

Officials are asking the court to block the twins from the securities industry and order them to return the money they collected from investors. They are also seeking additional financial penalA6 • Saturday, April 21, 2012

CHEERS AND JEERS

JEERS to Assisted Living Concepts — the Wisconsin-based company that owned the assisted living facility Chaparelle House.

Chaparelle House closed for good on Wednesday. The facility lost its license after state surveyors determined it was inadequately staffed.

Assisted Living Concepts didn't make the transition easy for anyone. The company shut off the phone lines and the fire system despite pleas from interim managers to keep them on, said Rick Holloway, president of Western Health Care. (The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare hired Western Health Care to close down the facility.)

"I'm shocked that this company is behaving this way," Holloway said. "It's nothing we can't handle but it puts unnecessary stress on the residents and family members."

Assisted Living Concepts didn't provide a comment on its behavior or the closure when contacted by the Times-News.

CHEERS to the employees of Chaparelle House. With no emergency backup system, Western hired an additional employee to check on the residents and monitor the building every 15 minutes.

Despite being days away from losing their jobs and working in challenging conditions, the employees of Chaparelle House and the interim management team made sure that their residents were safe and cared for. They "worked their hearts out," Holloway said.

CHEERS to Lexi Meyerhoeffer. Hers in an inspiring story of triumph over adversity. The Filer sophomore golfer suffered a head injury when she was hit by a golf ball on March 11 and is back on the golf course a little more than a month later.

Meyerhoeffer's GCS — Glasgow Coma Scale, which measures the severity of brain trauma — score was a 3, the worst on the scale and one usually reserved for people who are either in a deep coma or dead.

Miraculously, Meyerhoeffer awoke after a few hours. Her prognosis continued to improve, starting at perhaps never waking up and moving to maybe not being the same person after waking up, to being in the hospital for a week or so but not suffering any lasting effects.

Remarkably, just more than a month since the injury, she's been cleared to compete again, and has already won two tournaments.

Businessman: City Should Be Honest about Desire to Move Burley Airport

am a resident of Cassia County and am not someone who regularly writes letters to the editor, but I feel the need to weigh in on the current Burley Airport discussion.

I am a private pilot and have a single-engine airplane that is based at the Burley Airport. I am also an owner of a business that, in partnership with another local business, bases a twinengine aircraft at the Burley Airport.

Burley City, and particularly Mayor Greenman, seem determined to perpetuate the fallacy that the Burley Airport is unsafe because there have been two fatal accidents at the airport in the past 30 years. Both tragic accidents had nothing to do with the length of the runways or the location of the airport. According to National Transportation Safety Board findings, the probable cause of the fatal accident in 1995 was "failure to maintain airspeed while maneuvering." The most recent accident occurred just last year and the preliminary NTSB report indicates that, at the time of takeoff, "there was a 6 knot tailwind and a temperature of 91 degrees" — a dangerous combination in a small aircraft at this field elevation, regardless of runway length.

Two fatal accidents in more than 30 years and neither can be blamed on the length of runways or the location of the airport but rather completely independent factors. General aviation has inherent risks, and those involved in it understand those risks, but if the Burley Airport was considered unsafe by the Federal Aviation Administration, it would already have been closed by the FAA.

I wish the city would be honest with the community and verbalize its real motivation to move the airport: namely, its desire to develop the property into an industrial/commercial type development. I appreciate that the property is close to the waste treatment facility that has excess capacity and has rail access on two sides. But the airport has real value to the community and moving it to some location on government land north of Hazelton or some other remote location diminishes that value to the community and the local pilots.

The fact that a new airport will only have one runway actually will increase the possibility of a crosswind type accident for small general aviation aircraft, no matter how long that one runway might be. Small general aviation aircraft and agricultural aircraft constitute the vast majority of operations at the current airport, and the occasional light jets that come into Burley operate safely. Larger jets can still be accommodated at the Twin Falls airport, and isn't that what Twin Falls airport should be, a regional airport?

If we were not located as close to Twin Falls as we are, I could appreciate the need to accommodate larger aircraft. But the costs of relocating the airport are substantial and, as a taxpayer, I do not understand the efforts by the city to minimize the costs of relocation by explaining that 90 percent to 95 percent of the cost would be borne by the federal government. Where do they think that the federal government gets its money? That type of attitude is partially responsible for the current fiscal crisis and huge federal deficit. Also, the federal government participation only constructs a runway and taxiway; it does not include any other necessities such as fixed base operation facilities for fuel and repairs or hangars to replace the existing structures.

The city continues to ignore addressing those facilities and has no plan to fund them. The city obviously has its own agenda and seems willing to press that agenda no matter what the facts might be.

A grizzly bear roams near Beaver Lake in July 2011 in Yellowstone National Park, Wyo. Wildilfe officials say it will be another three years before they try to take grizzly bears in the Yellowstone area off the endangered species list after federal courts turned down their last attempt earlier this year.

Bears to Keep Threatened Tag Until at Least 2014

BY MATTHEW BROWN

Associated Press

BILLINGS, Mont. • Grizzly bears in and around Yellow stone National Park will keep their threatened status for at least the next two to three years, as wildlife officials said Friday they plan to bolster their case that the species has recovered.

Federal and state officials insist there are enough bears in the three-state Yellowstone region to guard against a reversal of the decadeslong effort to bring them back from near-extermina-

That was put in doubt last fall, when the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals shot down an attempt by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to remove protections for the animals. That would have returned grizzlies to state control in portions of Montana, Wyoming and Idaho.

The court ruled that Yellowstone grizzlies face a continued threat from the loss of whitebark pine trees, a key food source historically for some bears. The trees have suffered from insect infestations and disease blamed at least in part on a warming climate.

But government biologists say bears that once depended on the trees are switching to other foods, including truffles.

To prove that point, Fish and Wildlife Service grizzly recovery coordinator Chris Servheen said researchers plan to spend the next 20 months re-analyzing prior studies on whitebark pine and the role it plays in the grizzly population.

At the same time, officials will be crafting a new proposal to lift protections that could be issued in two to three years.

"We have to build a case we can get through the legal system," Servheen said Friday. "We feel that we will erode public support and agency support for grizzly bears the longer this legal interference goes on."

The Yellowstone region had an estimated 593 bears last year - a figure that Servheen and other biologists say is likely an underestimate. Officials plan to use a new counting technique beginning this year expected to reveal the population is significantly larger.

To get a more accurate number, biologists who conduct annual surveys will no longer discount female adult grizzlies with cubs that are found within 30 kilometers of another female with cubs, officials said.

That was done in the past to make sure the same bears were not counted twice. But it is no longer considered necessary as bear densities have increased and more of the animals' territories over-

Last year's population estimate was down slightly from a record 602 bears tallied in 2010.

A representative of the environmental group said wildlife managers should proceed with caution as they consider the bears' future.

"Whether the slight decline is the beginning of a bigger decline or whether it will stabilize, only time will tell," said Louisa Wilcox with the Natural Resources Defense Council. "They have to deal with the court's issue of whitebark pine. They can't just paper over the problem?"

As the bear population has grown, so have conflicts with humans. That's led to increasing numbers of bears killed every year by hunters and wildlife managers

Four people were killed by grizzlies over the past two years in Yellowstone National Park and nearby areas of Wyoming and Montana.

Grizzly bears were put on the list of federally-protected threatened and endangered species in 1975. The government has spent more than $20 million on efforts to restore the species.

There were 200 to 250 grizzlies when recovery efforts began in earnest in the late 1970s and early 1980s. The population grew at a rate of between 4 and 7 percent annually for most of the intervening years, leveling off to just 1 to 2 percent annually in recent years.

"We're undercounting dramatically the number of bears," said Gregg Losinski with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. "We need to manage this as a recovered species, as well as we need to be doing all we can to get the management over to the states?

There are no pending proposals to remove grizzlies from federal protections elsewhere in the western U.S, which is home to an estimated 1,500 bears, excluding animals in Alaska.

Several populations straddle the US-Canada border. That includes about 1,000 bears in parts of northern Montana and southern Alberta that surround Glacier National Park.

Mormon Parents of Gays Do'It Gets Better' Video

BY CRISTINA SILVA

Associated Press

Mormon parents defend their gay children in a new video that confronts The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' disapproval of same-sex relationships.

The video to be released today during a national conference for gay Mormons in Washington, D.C., is part of the ongoing "It Gets Better" project, which seeks to give hope to bullied lesbian and gay teenagers.

In the video, parents recall how they struggled with their faith when their children first came out as gay. One teary mother says she learned her 19-yearold son was gay after he tried to kill himself. A father describes his initial discomfort with gay men. The message is that God wants them to love their children despite their sexual orientation.

"When he came out, I wasn't quite ready to accept that situation," said Charles Carver, a father from Utah, said in the video about his son.

"My job is to love. My job is to accept," he said later.

Another father, Stephen Cohen, said, "There was once upon a time that I told a co-worker of mine that if a gay ever came on to me I would punch him. Now, you know what I would probably do? I would hug him?'

The parents say their children can't help being gay and don't deserve to feel ashamed.

"Nobody in their right mind would choose this, nobody that is (Latter-day Saints) would choose to be ostracized by their whole entire family," says Andrea Carver, another mother who appears in the video with her husband. "I just pray that whoever is watching this that you will learn to love yourself and appreciate who you are as a person."

The video follows a similar project released by gay students at Brigham Young University last month. In that video, Mormon students say they believe God loves them as they are.

Kendall Wilcox, a gay former BYU employee, produced both videos. Wilcox said he wanted to highlight the growing disbetween parity church's official ban on homosexual activity and its members' support for friends and relatives who are gay.

"It's sort of an invitation to Mormons everywhere to come out and say, we can't be quiet about this anymore. We have to show support," Wilcox said.

Gay rights activist Dan Savage, who writes a syndicated sex advice column, created the "It Gets Better' project in 2010 after a string of youth suicides.

Gay Mormon youths can face a particularly difficult road after coming out. Mormons who have samesex physical relationships can be banned from the church, and some Mormon leaders have urged gay members to consider sexual orientation conversion. At BYU, a Mormon institution, straight couples can hug and kiss, while gay couples cannot.

Wilcox hopes the video will teach Mormon parents how to respond to their children's same-sex orientation. It will be released during the "Circling the Wagon" conference, the first of its kind outside Utah. A similar conference was held in Salt Lake City last year.

"All of these parents are saying nothing anti-Mormon," Wilcox said. "It's just, you know: In the end, when I was working through all of this, the message I got from God is that you love your child

Man Convicted in Failed Murder

CALDWELL • A southwestern Idaho man has been found guilty of conspiring to kidnap and kill his exgirlfriend's new beau.

Prosecutors say 46-yearold Lorenzo Corral of Nampa will be sentenced Aug. 20 for conspiracy to commit kidnapping and firstdegree murder. He was convicted by a Canyon County jury Friday for his role in the failed plot.

Corral was arrested last June on charges that he offered another man $5,000 to kill Edgar Maldonado. Authorities say 26-yearold Jose de Jesus Rodriquez was supposed to shoot Maldonado, who would first be lured out of his home by a woman claiming car troubles.

The woman exposed the plot to police.

Rodriquez pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit aggravated battery as part of an agreement with prosecutors. He will serve at least four years in prison.

Idaho Ed Board Elects New President

BOISE • The state Board of Education has elected new officers, naming Twin Falls businessman Ken Edmunds as president.

Edmunds was appointed to the board in 2008 by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter. The move was part of Otter's efforts to improve and restore fiscal responsibility and accountability to the state board, which at the time, was steering itself back from the financial brink.

Edmunds is a certified public accountant with more than two decades of experience in property development and investments. He will now serve the final year of his term in the board's top post, succeeding trustee Richard Westerberg as president.

Board members also voted Thursday to elect Don Soltman of Twin Lakes as vice president, while Emma Atchley of Ashton was named board secretary.

Thunder Mountain Gold President Eric Jones said Thursday the cash infusion will enable his company to explore a potentially rich silver reserve in the South Mountain Mine near Idaho's border with Oregon.

Jones tells the Idaho-Press Tribune the mine contains between 5 million to 50 million ounces of silver, as well as gold and other metals. It could create 25

Geological testing will commence this summer, and the mine could begin operating after government permits are secured, likely in 3 to 5 years.

It purchased South Mountain in 2007.

ISP to Target Speeders and Aggressive Drivers

BOISE • Idaho State Police troopers are looking to crack down on speeders and aggressive motorists.

The ISP launched its education and enforcement campaign this week on roadways statewide.

KTVB-TV reports that the agency plans to continue the campaign - accompanied by speed patrols through the end of the month.

The agency and the Idaho Transportation Department say speed is the number one contributing factor in deadly and serious injury crashes in the state. Records also show that aggressive driving contributed to 52 percent of all crashes in Idaho in 2010.

County Payments Stay Alive in Congress

BY JEFF BARNARD Associated Press

GRANTS PASS, Ore. • A glimmer of hope has arisen in Congress for extending federal payments to rural timber counties, but even if it comes, the money remains far short of what counties need to stave off painful cuts.

The House this week passed a transportation bill, raising the possibility it could be melded with a Senate version that has an amendment extending $106.4 million in payments to Oregon timber counties for one more year.

Sen. Ron Wyden's office says as long as no one in the House actively opposes it, county payments should be in the final bill.

In Josephine County, #### which has long depended on the payments, County Commissioner Simon Hare says the payments would cover just a third of the $12 million budget hole the county is facing.

OLD FROM CANAL IN EAGLE BOISE (AP) • Authorities say a neighbor rescued a 3year-old boy from a canal in time of year usually runs fast and cold. There was no fence around this canal.

The Idaho Statesmanreports that a neighbor who was outside heard the cries of the boy's caregiver and pulled the boy out.

Paramedics and deputies were called to the home to examine the boy, who was not injured.

Vandals Close Spring on a High Note

Growing pains still evident in UI offense, but skill players make enough big plays to show legitimate improvement.

BY JOSH WRIGHT For the Times-News

 $\textbf{MOSCOW} \bullet \textbf{All spring, Idaho's top two}$ quarterbacks have bounced between solid and just so-so. Offensive coordinator Jason Gesser would watch one of them make a nice throw ... then follow

In that respect, Friday night's Silver and Gold scrimmage was an hour-long microcosm of the last five weeks. But this time there was a twist: The offense showed signs of explosiveness, in the running game and through the air.

it up with an interception or poor read.

With some 750 fans on hand at the Kibbie Dome, Dominique Blackman rifled a 69-yard touchdown strike to Daniel Micheletti early in the last of 15 spring sessions for the Van-

On the next series, receiver Ken McRoyal took a short pass from Blackman and juked several defenders for a 26-yard gain. That came right after a 19-yard carry from No. 1 tailback Ryan

"The offense made some things happen, and that's good," coach Robb Akey said. "You know, our defense has been having a real strong spring, and so to see (the offense) step up and make some things happen was great."

At the same time, Akey and Gesser pointed to the lack of consistency from the offense - and from Blackman and Taylor Davis, who are competing for the starting QB job.

Blackman completed 13 of 22 passes for 176 yards. But the 6-foot-5 transfer also tossed a puzzling interception to defensive end Quenton Bradley and gambled deep on one play while missing an open tight end in the flat.

Davis was just 4 of 10 for 33 yards. He showcased his scrambling ability and athleticism, but also threw an interception late in the scrimmage.

"It hasn't separated itself enough that we're coming out of spring ball (with a starter)," said Akey of the competition. "I'm not going to lie to ya - I would have hoped that it would. If we could get to the end of spring and there's a strong separation, I think that would have been awesome.

"But the fact that they're both doing good things I think is good. It's not because they're not doing things well."

Akey said he hopes to have a starter in place early enough in fall camp to get

In her first NASCAR career start Hannah Newhouse of Twin Falls delivered a record-setting performance by becoming the youngest female driver to win a feature division Whelen All-American Series main

The 15-year-old will be back tonight at Magic Valley Speedway to defend her win and her position at the top of the Commercial Tire Super Stocks point standings as the battle in the division continues.

Newhouse's father John Newhouse, her racing "inspiration" will be competing in tomorrow's debut of the Rocky Mountain Challenge Series. John Newhouse was the series champion for 2007.

Other drivers familiar to MVS fans set to enter this evening's RM-CS competition are former MVS champions Steve Jones, Rick Fowble and Bruce Quale; however, Quale is scrambling to get ready for the event after losing the motor in his primary ride during a recent practice ses-

"Luckily I have a great crew and I think we'll make it, but we having to put a back-up car together," he said. "I guess I got lucky it happened when it did — it's better than happening right before or during the race."

The 75-lap main event race is dedicated to driver Lonnie Lowder, who passed away during the offseason.

Also included in the action tonight are the Brennan's Carpet Street Stocks and the Quale's Electronics Jr. Stingers.

Gates open at 4:00 p.m., qualifying begins at 6.

Inexperience doesn't show at all for Twin Falls softball in shutout victory against Canyon Ridge.

TWIN FALLS • This young group of Bruins sure is growing up fast.

With five sophomores and a freshman in the starting lineup Friday, most of the Twin Falls softball team was playing their firstever varsity game against cross-town rival Canyon Ridge.

The youngsters didn't flinch.

Sophomore Rainey Dyreson pitched a complete game shutout, freshman Regan Harr turned a pretty double play and Mackenzie Swafford slugged a two-run triple as the Bruins beat the visiting Riverhawks 7-0 in the opening game of a three-game series which concludes today with a noon doubleheader at Canyon Ridge.

"Me and a couple girls were kind of nervous before the game. They're our town rivals and everything and we wanted to beat them," Swafford said. "It feels pretty great to play a good game and win."

Swafford's triple in the fifth inning pushed the Bruins' lead to 6-0 and sophomore Courtney Ellis followed two batters later to drive in Swafford with a groundout to second for her second RBI of the game.

Ellis hit an RBI double in a brutal fourth inning for the Riverhawks (9-5, 6-4 Great Basin), who gave up all three runs in the inning with

BURLEY • For five innings Friday, Jerome pitcher Colby Argyle was lights out.

Last year's Great Basin Conference Pitcher of the Year struck out 11 batters in the Tigers' 17-5 victory over Burley.

Burley scored all five of its runs in the fifth inning when Jerome already had one foot on the bus ready to go home with a 12-run lead.

"That was me just calling (her to) throw strikes," said Jerome coach Adam Reynolds. "Throw it, they

SALT LAKE CITY • He was booed on draft day, still gets teased about his Justin Bieber hair and recently endured the strangest, most expensive "Wet Willy" ever.

Utah Jazz swingman Gordon Hayward, however, has managed to rise above it all, finally living up to the expectations Jazz brass had when they made him a lottery pick in 2010.

His emergence this year, after being benched then reinserted into the starting lineup because of injury, has helped the Jazz remain in the mix for the final Western Conference playoff

"Hayward is starting to really feel his oats as far as playing with confidence and feeling comfortable," San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich said April 9 when the Spurs visited Salt Lake City. "He's really a great player, moving without the basketball, constant motion, aggressive all the time, thinking the game."

That night, the 6-foot-8 Hayward scored 16 points and added six rebounds and two blocks in the Jazz win. Two days later, he scored 29 in Houston.

In the last five games he has averaged 20.2 points, 4.4. assists, 3.4 rebounds, 1.2 steals and is shooting 64 percent (14 of 22) from 3-point range. Suns coach Alvin Gentry has called Hayward "one of the bright young stars in the league."

"He's the whole package," Gentry added. "He can put it down. He can shoot it from the perimeter. He is a slasher-and-cutter, and on top of all of that, he is a really good defender."

He also has a physical style that can irritate opponents, perhaps because they don't see past the boyish looks.

Gordon Hayward has overcome slights against his appearance and talent to average over 20 points per game in his last five, helping the Jazz make a push for a playoff spot.

SALT LAKE CITY • The College of Southern Idaho baseball team is essentially the same team it's been all season.

Approaching the business end of the calendar, that's not a good thing.

CSI got quality offense but not enough pitching as it dropped a Scenic West Athletic Conference doubleheader at conference leader Salt Lake Community College, falling 6-4 and 13-10 on Friday.

"You're (usually) celebrating scoring 14 runs on Friday and thinking that's a great day for us, and it was on the offensive side," said CSI coach Boomer Walker. "If you're going to roll into the leagueleader on their field and walk 13 guys you're going to lose two games. It's been like all our games against the better teams. We keep fighting and we can't stop someone from scoring when we need to."

Chase Harris continued his torrid spell at the plate, homering to help put the Golden Eagles up 6-1 in Game 2. But Salt Lake answered right back to take the lead, which was then traded twice before the highflying Bruins (33-5, 24-3 Scenic West) pulled away for good.

CSI (27-17, 16-12) fell to just one game up on fourth-place Southern Nevada, which split with second-place Western Nevada on Friday.

"I feel bad for a lot of guys because they're literally giving it everything they have and we need a few more other guys who can step up and help us out a little bit," Walker said. "We know that we're going to have to pitch better or we're not going to have a chance to move on to that district playoff. We've just got to come back out tomorrow and hopefully have a couple of great pitching performances."

The two teams play a doubleheader today beginning at recorded two quick outs after a Lounsbury single, but her errant throw to first base on a weak grounder by Harr allowed Lounsbury to score and Twin Falls (14-2, 9-1) took advantage with Ellis' double and a Brylee Bartlett RBI single.

"Take away a couple errors and we're right in that game," said Canyon Ridge coach Lyle Hudelson. "But hats off to Twin. Dyreson had 14 strikeouts, allowing just two hits with no walks as she kept the Canyon Ridge pitchers guessing all day with senior catcher Allie Johnson calling the game.

"She was on fire today. Her rise ball was fantastic," said Johnson, who joins Bartlett as the only two senior starters on the team. "It's fun catching a game like this. She had everything working today and was really focused. We knew we had to pitch around their best hitters and not throw the same pitch twice."

Harr turned a sweet double play in the top of the fifth, storming in from third base to catch Kylee Barker's bunt attempt and fired to first from her knees to double up Payton Kostelecky.

"We're really young and they're all playing really well for us," Johnson said. "It's a lot of fun playing with these girls. I love playing with them and they're getting great experience this year."

"We lost our focus, we kind of thought they'd roll over," Reynolds said. "They put some subs in... I maybe relaxed a little bit, which made (the players) relax a little bit too much." Still, it's hard to find fault in a run-rule conference victory, as Jerome improved to 8-4 overall and 7-3 in league play. The Tigers supplied plenty

"We've been streaky (at the plate), it's up and down, so it's good to see," Reynolds said.

SAN ANTONIO • Tim Duncan, Tony Parker and Manu Ginobili all scored at least 20 points to help the San Antonio Spurs beat the Los Angeles Lakers 121-97 on Friday night and spoil Kobe Bryant's return.

Bryant had missed the previous seven games with a bruised left shin, and the Lakers went 5-2 without the NBA's scoring leader. But with only two games left in the regular season for Los Angeles (40-24), Bryant returned as he aims to get into a rhythm before the playoffs begin. Bryant wore a black sock over his lower left leg, with what appeared to be a shin guard protecting the injured area. He scored 18 points on 7-of-12 shooting.

Stoudemire finished with 15 points and Carmelo Anthony had 12 before sitting out the fourth quarter.

ATLANTA • Joe Johnson scored 30 points, and Atlanta edged short-handed Boston to take a step toward landing homecourt advantage in the first round of the playoffs.

Boston left Rajon Rondo, Ray Allen and Mickael Pietrus at home with injuries, and perennial All-Stars Kevin Garnett and Paul Pierce made the trip to Atlanta but Celtics coach Doc Rivers rested both stars after playing 11 games in 15 days.

"As a defense, we just kept it rolling," Mayowa said. "Guys getting better, young guys learning. We're just getting better as a whole. From last year we need to come back and we need to rebound. We need to go harder."

Hayward

Consider his own little block party in Boston on March 28, when he rejected two shots in the span of five seconds by Keyon Dooling and Avery Bradley.

By then, Golden State Warriors coach Mark Jackson already was a believer.

"You can make the case that he's the most valuable player for them against us," Jackson said.

On Jan. 7, Hayward took over with 14 seconds left and the game tied, sprinting up the court, splitting two defenders and drawing the foul on a layup attempt. His free throw helped seal Utah's and four assists. In a March 17 rematch, he showed flash at both ends, with the Jazz down two.

Hayward tracked down 6-9 forward Dorell Wright on the fast break and blocked him from behind. He then sprinted the other way, took the pass at midcourt, drove lefthanded through traffic and delivered a crowdpleasing two-handed jam.

"Those kind of energy plays for him ... show tremendous growth and determination, and it shows a lot of toughness about who you are," Jazz coach Tyrone Corbin said.

Who Hayward is may be evidenced by how he

In a league of millionaires, Hayward included, he still puts himself on a monthly budget, lives in a nice but modest twobedroom suburban apartment, and drives a car -aHonda Accord - known more for its reliability than muscle.

Yet to know why he didn't defend himself when Delonte West jabbed a finger in his ear during the second quarter of Utah's triple-overtime win against Dallas last Monday – an act that earned West a $25,000 fine — one must go back to his days playing tennis in the Indianapolis suburb of Brownsburg.

"He's always in control of his emotions," said his father, Gordon Scott Hayward. "Tennis really taught him that. He's had guys throw rackets at him, lose their temper, and that's when he knew he had the other guy. He's also smart enough to know the person who retaliates is the one who gets caught." As a rookie, Hayward averaged just 5.4 points and 1.9 rebounds - and was even deemed "a typical rookie" by perennial All-Star Deron Williams.

But Hayward, despite having to be told by Butler coaches that he was good even as he was leading the Bulldogs to the 2010 NCAA title game, said he's known he belonged in the NBA since he was a rookie taking on the Los Angeles Lakers in preseason.

He scored 26 points that night and realized "I could play in this league with any of these guys."

It helped that Kobe Bryant told him, "You're gonna be a helluva player," while the two stood away from the ball awaiting a free throw.

Zimmerman Apologizes for Shooting; Gets $150,000 Bail

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) • A routine bail hearing for George Zimmerman took a surprising turn into remorse and explanation Friday when the neighborhood watch volunteer got on the witness stand and told Trayvon Martin's parents: "I am sorry for the loss of your

"I did not know how old he was. I thought he was a little bit younger than I am. I did not know if he was armed or not," Zimmerman said, marking the first time he has spoken publicly about the Feb. 26 shooting of the unarmed black 17-year-old.

The hearing wrapped up with a judge ruling Zimmerman can be released from jail on $150,000 bail while he awaits trial on second-degree murder charges. Zimmerman, who has been in jail for more than a week, could be out within days and may be allowed to live outside Florida for his own safety once arrangements are made to monitor him electronically.

Defendants often testify about their financial assets at bail hearings, but it is highly unusual for them to address the charges, and rarer still to apologize.

An attorney for Martin's parents, who were in the courtroom when Zimmerman spoke, spurned the apology. The parents, Tracy Martin and Sybrina Fulton, had no comment as they left.

Jackhammers Used in Search for Missing NYC Child

NEW YORK (AP) • Investigators ripped up the basement floor of a Manhattan building Friday in a hunt for the remains of Etan Patz, a 6-year-old boy who disappeared on his way to school

Utility workers with jackhammers and saws helped chip away an area around aging pipes, then law enforcers wearing workmen's gloves carried out the basketball-size chunks of rubble and carefully placed them in bins. The material will be sifted and then taken elsewhere for testing.

The space being excavated was about a block from the bus stop where Etan was headed when he vanished. It is one of the few secluded places, easily accessible from the street, that sat along his two-block walk to the bus from his home.

At the time, part of the basement was being used as a workshop by Othniel Miller, a neighborhood handyman who had been friendly with the family.

Police and FBI officials haven't named a suspect in the case.

BEIRUT • Syrian troops fired tear gas and bullets on thousands of protesters who spilled out of mosques after noon prayers Friday, activists said. State media reported that bombs and shootings killed 17 soldiers as the latest diplomatic efforts failed to halt more than 13 months of bloodshed in the country.

Opposition activists reported that at least 11 Syrian civilians were killed in regime shelling and other attacks Friday, the main day of the week for protests calling for the ouster of President Bashar Assad.

The United Nations hopes to have 30 observers in Syria next week to monitor the tenuous cease-fire between regime troops and opposition, and plans are being made for the deployment of up to a total of 300. An advance team of seven monitors, whose presence set off anti-Assad marches that prompted gunfire from security forces in at least two areas earlier this

Bill Goodwin, a Missouri collectibles dealer, holds up a rare 1909 Honus Wagner baseball card on March 26

Rare Baseball Card Sells for $1.2 Million at Auction

BY JIM SALTER

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS • A New Jersey man paid $1.2 million for a rare 1909 Honus Wagner baseball card in an online auction that brought interest from many potential buyers who had never owned a card before, the sale organizer said.

The buyer hasn't decided whether to come forward publicly, and the seller, a Houston businessman, wants to remain anonymous, said Bill Goodwin, the suburban St. Louis collectibles dealer who ran the auction that ended Friday. The buyer's bid was the highest of 14 made since the auction began last month.

"We're thrilled with the outcome;" Goodwin said. "There's been so much media attention surrounding this card, and the final price proved this card was worth watching?"

Wagner was a member of the first class of Hall of Fame inductees. The nicknamed shortstop, "The Flying Dutchman," spent most of his 21-year career (1897 to 1917) with the Pittsburgh Pirates, winning eight batting titles and hitting a career .327.

The  $2^{1/2}$  - by  $1^{1/2}$  -inch card was released in cigarette packs sold by the American Tobacco Co. from 1909 to 1911. What makes the card special, in addition to Wagner's fame, is the fact that it was pulled from circulation after about 200 were

The consensus among many was that Wagner didn't want to encourage smoking, especially to children. Goodwin said it may have simply been a matter of Wagner wanting to be compensated for his likeness, since he was photographed with chewing tobacco in his mouth and did advertisements for tobacco companies.

Historians believe only about 60 of the Wagner cards still exist, though

Stinky Fish Helps Limit Potfest at Colo. University

Associated Press

BOULDER, Colo. • Stinky fish fertilizer and two dozen law-enforcement officers kept pot smokers away from a grassy quad at the University of Colorado on Friday, but a few hundred protesters defied the crackdown and rallied on another field, where some lit up at 4:20 p.m.

It was a far cry from last year's April 20 pot celebration, when more than 10,000 people gathered on the university's Norlin Quadrangle for the annual ritual of enjoying a smoke and demonstrating for legalizing marijuana.

That made the university the scene of one of the largest campus celebrations of cannabis in the nation -areputation that prompted university administrators to take extraordinary steps to stamp out this year's rally.

They banned unauthorized visitors from campus, and spread smelly fertilizer on the Norlin Quad and declared it off-limits. They even booked Haitian-born hip-hop star Wyclef Jean for a free concert timed to coincide with the traditional 4:20 p.m. pot gathering.

Still, they were only partially successful. A few dozen protesters veered off a sidewalk bordering the university on Friday afternoon and marched through campus, holding signs and chanting, "Roll it. Smoke it. Legalize

4/20 Marijuana Holiday Explained

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Students and others across the country have long observed April 20 as a day to celebrate marijuana. Here are some questions and answers about the counterculture holiday and the state of marijuana in the United States:

WHAT'S IT MEAN? The

number 420 has been associated with marijuana use for decades, though its origins are murky. Its use as code for marijuana spread among California pot users in the 1960s and spread nationwide among followers of the Grateful Dead. Like most counterculture slang, theories abound on its origin. Some say it was once police code in Southern California to denote marijuana use (probably an urban legend). It was a title number for a 2003 California bill about medical marijuana, an irony fully intended. Others trace it to a group of California ly, administrators argued they have the right to protect faculty, staff and students from disruption.

On Thursday, a judge said the university could close its grounds to unauthorized visitors. It wasn't clear if that decision applied to the closure of the Norlin Quadrangle.

Marijuana smokefests at 4:20 p.m. on April 20, or 4/20, have become a counterculture ritual, with celebrants gathering from San Francisco's Golden Gate Park to New York's Greenwich Village.

In Austin, Texas, country music legend Willie Nelson helped unveil a downtown statue honoring him by singing his new song "Roll Me teenagers who would meet at 4:20 p.m. to search for weed (a theory as elusive as the outdoor cannabis crop they were seeking). Yet the code stuck for obvious reasons: Authorities and nosy parents didn't know what it meant.

HOW MANY STATES HAVE LEGALIZED MED-

ICAL MARIJUANA? In 1996, a ballot measure made California the first state to legalize medical marijuana. Sixteen states now allow the use of medicinal marijuana.

HOW MANY STATES ARE CONSIDERING LE-GALIZING RECRE-ATIONAL POT? Two

states — Colorado and Washington — are considering legalizing pot for recreational purposes.

WHERE DOES THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT STAND? Marijuana use,

sale and possession are illegal under federal law.

Up and Smoke Me When I Die."

Organizers said they didn't set the unveiling for April 20 because it was the date of the marijuana ritual, but once they realized it, they scheduled the unveiling at 4:20 p.m. in light of Nelson's openness about his marijuana use and advocacy for legalization.

Thousands of people gathered in Denver near the state Capitol for the start of a twoday marijuana rally.

Officers ticketed people they saw smoking marijuana if they did not have a state-issued card allowing them to consume marijuana for medical purposes, which is legal under state law.

Restaurant Known for 'Rudest Waiter' Closing

David Ho, a descendent of one of the restaurant's original owners, decided to shut down after officials demanded extensive health and safety upgrades.

Heartbroken customers lined up down the block Friday to get a seat at one of the eight lunch tables and to mourn the loss of another San Francisco institution over bowls of won ton

"I know change is good, but sometimes you want to hold onto the happy memories;" said customer Darlene Lee, 71, who had been coming to the restaurant for 60 years and said its inexpensive fare was comfort food that reminded her of going home.

For those who did not grow up dining at Sam Wo, it became a cultural mainstay in the 1970s through reports by the late San Francisco Chronicle columnist Herb Caen and the "Tales of the City" novels of Armistead Maupin.

Both men immortalized the restaurant by writing about the antics of Edsel Ford Fung, the waiter who was known for verbally abusing patrons and slamming dishes on tables.

Twin Falls Woman Wins Award for Service

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE

For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • The practice of faith can be as simple as lending a helping hand to those in need.

Twin Falls resident Cindy Jardine has witnessed the results firsthand. On April 28, Jardine will receive the 2012 Excellence in Mission award at a banquet in Boise. The Rev. Bishop Brian Thom will preside.

Created in 2010, the award is presented annually by the Idaho Episcopalian Foundation in recognition of the recipient's selfless dedication in giving of their time and talents.

"We get several nominations each year," said the foundation's Executive Director Susan Wishney. "I'm not part of the selection committee and can't really say anything much about the process they go through in selection, but it's always a tough call and there's only one winner."

The foundation provides thousands of dollars in grant funding to assist with projects undertaken by churches in the Episcopal church's Idaho Diocese.

Thirty years ago, the congregation of Ascension Episcopal Church in Twin Falls set itself a goal to establish a food pantry as part of a community outreach effort. Jardine has been an active part of the Neighbors in Need program from its inception and currently serves as program coordinator.

"I look at things and try to discover ways to make them run smoother," she said. "I've been really uncomfortable about this award because I work with really great people who volunteer their time to be part of this."

Relying on social service agencies for applicant screening, Neighbors in Need provides food boxes through South Central Community Action and temporary funds to help people pay their rent, utility bills or awkward requests that might otherwise fall through the cracks. Between 150 and 200 families are assisted by Neighbors in Need each year.

When asked what has kept her actively involved with the program for so many years, Jardine said it's wonderful to help people and make a difference in their lives just as Jesus did in feeding the 5,000. "People are the heart and hands of Jesus in the word," she said, "When the disciples saw the people were hungry, they didn't know who would feed them. But Jesus said, You feed them."

Southern Idaho Area Aglow to Hold Retreat

TWIN FALLS • The Southern Idaho Area Aglow Team will hold its 2012 Spring Retreat from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. April 28 at the Twin Falls Encore Performance Center, 681 Filer Ave. in Twin Falls.

The keynote speaker will be Deborah Cofer, a minister who says she desires to see believers and cities set on fire by the "dunamis" power of the Holy Spirit. Her teaching is said to give revelation and understanding of the father's heart. She says she has witnessed manifestations of the spirit of the Lord and has walked through trials in her life. Her testimony is said to give living and vibrant verification of the Holy Spirit and his power to offer hope, restoration and victory.

Women, men and youth are welcome.

Manhattan Project Scientist Cowan Dies at 92

BY SUSAN MONTOYA BRYAN

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. • Devoted to finding a way for science to help society, not much escaped the influence of chemist George Cowan. From the Manhattan Project and the hunt for evidence of the Soviet Union's first nuclear tests to the Santa Fe Institute and the iconic Santa Fe Opera, friends recalled the fruits of his visionary ways.

Cowan died Friday at his home in Los Alamos. He was Friends confirmed his death to The Associated Press, saying it was the result of a fall at his home. Cowan was in good health and was planning to travel and continue working with the nonprofit science institute that he helped found in 1984.

"It's very sudden, very unexpected. An enormous loss," said close friend and institute co-founder David Pines. "The world is diminished for all of us who knew Cowan worked at Los Alamos National Laboratory for nearly 40 years. He started in 1949 as a scientist and went on to serve as a director of chemistry and as associate lab director of research.

After doing graduate studies at Princeton, Cowan continued his nuclear research as part of the top-secret Manhattan Project that developed the atomic bomb. According to the Santa Fe Institute, Cowan was a troubleshooter for the effort at various research sites around the country and was among the few people who had knowledge of the bomb's separate components.

Cowan arrived at Los Alamos National Laboratory in 1949 and within weeks began directing efforts to turn up radioactive fallout in samples that were collected near the Soviet border. What Cowan and his team detected indicated the Soviets were in possession of a nuclear Cowan was considered one of the world's experts on nuclear weapons diagnostics by 1956, according to a biography from the lab.

He was also appointed to the White House Science Council during the Reagan administration. It was during one of his meetings with the council that he looked around the room and thought about the need to educate the next generation of scientists to ensure the government would continue to have a valuable cadre of advisers.

Conversations about the formation of the Santa Fe Institute followed, some of them being held in the director's conference room on the fourth floor at Los Alamos

"He was a superb judge of people," said Pines. "He had a real instinct for who was a promising scientist and who was not and this was invaluable to him as he became a manager at Los Alamos?"

Bill Enloe, chief executive of Los Alamos National Bank, which was founded by Cowan, said the chemist had a unique ability to lead peo-

"It was not by intimidation or by position. It was because what he said made so much sense;" Enloe said. "He accomplished a great deal because people were anxious to help and work with him."

Enloe ticked off a list of Cowan's accomplishments that ranged from his scientific accolades and the start of the scientific think tank to the early childhood development programs in New Mexico that he helped influence.

Then there was Cowan's love of travel, food, wine and music. He sat on the board of the Santa Fe Opera and was the first treasurer of the opera's foundation.

Pines recalled the story Cowan had told him about his role in helping preserve the opera, a venue that today draws thousands of visitors from around the world to its unique outdoor stage.

"He managed to get a loan for them from the bank that tied them over," Pines said. "Otherwise the Santa Fe Opera would have gone under many, many years ago?"

Officials at the Santa Fe Opera downplayed the suggestion that the organization was ever on the financial ropes, but they said Cowan was a terrific asset to the opera while he served on the board.

Friends used words such as intelligent and practical to describe Cowan, who lived in the same modest home on Los Alamos' 42nd Street since first moving there with his wife decades ago. His wife, Helen "Satch" Dunham, was also a chemist.

Willie Nelson Unveils Statue of Himself on 4/20

BY CHRIS TOMLINSON Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas • Country music legend Willie Nelson helped unveil a statue honoring him in downtown Austin by singing his new song "Roll Me Up and Smoke Me When I Die" on Friday, a date long reserved to celebrate marijuana use.

The faint smell of marijuana smoke wafted through a crowd of about 2,000 people as Austin Mayor Lee Leffingwell accepted the privately funded statue as a gift from a private arts group. Organizers said they didn't intentionally choose April 20 for the event, but once they found out, they scheduled the unveiling at 4:20 p.m. as a tongue-incheek reference to Nelson's openness about his marijuana use and advocacy for its legalization.

The statute stands in front of the Moody Theater, where the Austin City Limits Studio is now located. Nelson, a 10-time Grammy Award winner who has sold more than 40 million copies of his 150 albums, appeared on the first episode of the public television show in 1974.

"He is the man who more than other made Austin the live music capital of the world," Leffingwell said.

Nelson was born in Abbott, a tiny town about 120 miles north of Austin, but he has lived in Texas' capital city since 1971.

Longtime friend and fellow singer-songwriter Kris Kristofferson congratulated Nelson, saying he couldn't have imagined the city honoring Nelson during the early days of what became known as the Cosmic Cowboy movement in music.

Nelson, who wore black jeans, a black T-shirt and a black cowboy hat, is notoriously shy about such honors. Before he began performing, with his sister Bobbie Nelson on piano, he thanked the organizers and joked with the crowd that had gathered to watch the ceremony.

"What time is it?" he joked as the clock approach 4:20 p.m. "I feel it's getting close to something?

Nelson's career was built on not conforming to country music norms. He fused country music with jazz and rock in the early 1970s to create the "outlaw country" movement in Austin and helped give the city a reputation as a music city. His first major hit came when Patsy Cline recorded his song "Crazy" in 1961.

The monument shows Nelson in a relaxed, standing pose and holding his guitar to the side as if in conversation. Philadelphia sculptor Clete Shields said the leaning pose and heroic scale are intended to show Nelson's openness and whimsical side while honoring his tremendous influence on music and the

"We wanted to get a timeless Willie, an ageless Willie," Shields said.

Nelson was also a founder of the Farm Aid movement to help family farmers and has appeared in 37 films and television shows, ranging from a starring role in the 1982 western "Barbarosa" to making a cameo in the 1998 Dave Chappelle stoner comedy "Half Baked."

The unveiling was fitting on April 20 - or 4/20, which is slang for smoking marijuana – a day pro-marijuana legalization forces have used for annual gatherings to demonstrate in support of the cause. Nelson is a wellknown advocate of legalizing marijuana and has been arrested several times for possessing it.

Hundreds of Thousands May Lose Internet in July

LOLITA C. BALDOR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • For computer users, a few mouse clicks could mean the difference between staying online and losing Internet connections this summer.

Unknown to most of them, their problem began when international hackers ran an online advertising scam to take control of infected computers around the world. In a highly unusual response, the FBI set up a safety net months ago using government computers to prevent Internet disruptions for those infected users. But that system is to be shut

The FBI is encouraging users to visit a website run by security partner, http://www.dcwg.org, that will inform them whether they're infected and explain how to fix the problem. After July 9, infected users won't be able to connect to the Internet.

Most victims don't even know their computers have been infected, although the malicious software probably has slowed their web surfing and disabled their antivirus software, making their machines more vulnerable to other problems.

Last November, the FBI and other authorities were preparing to take down a hacker ring that had been running an Internet ad scam on a massive network of infected computers.

"We started to realize that we might have a little bit of a problem on our hands because ... if we just pulled the plug on their criminal infrastructure and threw everybody in jail, the victims of this were going to be without Internet service;" said Tom Grasso, an FBI supervisory special agent. "The average user would open up Internet Explorer and get 'page not found' and think the Internet is broken."

On the night of the arrests, the agency brought in Paul Vixie, chairman and founder of Internet Systems Consortium, to install two Internet servers to take the place of the truckload of impounded rogue servers that infected computers were using. Federal officials planned to keep their servers online until March, giving everyone opportunity to clean their computers. But it wasn't enough time. A federal judge in New York extended the deadline until July.

Now, said Grasso, "the full court press is on to get people to address this problem." And it's up to computer users to check their PCs.

This is what happened:

Hackers infected a network of probably more than 570,000 computers worldwide. They took advantage of vulnerabilities in the Microsoft Windows operating system to install malicious software on the victim computers. This turned off antivirus updates and changed the way the computers reconcile website addresses behind the scenes on the Internet's domain name system.

The DNS system is a network of servers that translates a web address - such as www.ap.org - into the numerical addresses that computers use. Victim computers were reprogrammed to use rogue DNS servers owned by the attackers. This allowed the attackers to redirect computers to fraudulent versions of any website.

The hackers earned profits from advertisements that appeared on websites that victims were tricked into visiting. The scam netted the hackers at least $14 million, according to the FBI. It also made thousands of computers reliant on the rogue servers for their Internet browsing.

When the FBI and others arrested six Estonians last November, the agency replaced the rogue servers with Vixie's clean ones. Installing and running the two substitute servers for eight months is costing the federal government about $87,000.

The number of victims is hard to pinpoint, but the FBI believes that on the day of the arrests, at least 568,000 unique Internet addresses were using the rogue servers. Five months later, FBI estimates that the number is down to at least 360,000. The U.S. has the most, about 85,000, federal authorities said. Other countries with more than 20,000 each include Italy, India, England and Germany. Smaller numbers are online in Spain, France, Canada, China and Mexico.

Vixie said most of the victims are probably individual home users, rather than corporations that have technology staffs who routinely check the computers.

FBI officials said they organized an unusual system to avoid any appearance of government intrusion into the Internet or private computers. And while this is the first time the FBI used it, it won't be the

"This is the future of what we will be doing," said Eric Strom, a unit chief in the FBI's Cyber Division. "Until there is a change in legal system, both inside and outside the United States, to get up to speed with the cyber problem, we will have to go down these paths, trail-blazing if you will, on these types of investigations."

Now, he said, every time the agency gets near the end of a cyber case, "we get to the point where we say, how are we going to do this, how are we going to clean the system" without creating a bigger mess than before.

Emmert: Coaches Being Held More Accountable

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • NCAA President Mark Emmert found one bit of good news in all the bad that has rocked college sports and cost several big-name coaches their

"I encourage you to be attentive to something that was positive in all those scandals in a sense that it really demonstrated a sea change in responsibility," Emmert said Friday.

"If 14 months ago ... we had said this next cycle we will watch the firing of the head coaches of Ohio State, Penn State, North Carolina, basketball, Tennessee Arkansas – all fabuously successful coaches on the floor and on the field — to see those five men fired for misdeeds, not for failures on the court or on the field, none of us would have believed it.

"I sure wouldn't have thought that was possible," Emmert during a meeting with Associated Press Sports Editors.

Coaches such as Joe Paterno (Penn State), Jim Tressel (Ohio State), Bobby Petrino (Arkansas), Butch Davis (North Carolina) and Bruce Pearl (Tennessee) in the past had been considered "untouchable," Emmert said.

"You're seeing boards of directors, of trustees, and presidents and athletic directors saying 'You know you've done a great job here. We love you. We pay you really well. You get all this adoration. You've got to live by the rules?

"And that's a good thing." Emmert also said transfer rules are too complex and need to be changed, and he added NBA rules that have led to one-and-done men's basketball players make it "hard with a straight face to say these are student-athletes."

The rules that allow coaches to restrict if and where Division I basketball players and major college football players can transfer have been drawn into the spotlight by several recent cases in which the studentathletes seemed to be unfairly restrained.

The latest came this week at Wisconsin. Freshman forward Jarrod Uthoff from Iowa has been given permission to transfer to any school outside the Big Ten.

The school said Uthoff asked for permission to contact 16 schools and the Badgers rejected four of them. Uthoff appealed over three of those schools and met Thursday with Athletic Director Barry Alvarez and associate AD Justin Doherty.

Emmert said transfer rules that allow coaches to dictate a player's future can make college sports look like pro sports to fans.

Milestone or Millstone for Hendrick?

On the verge of 200th victory, owner has hit worst victory lane dry spell in nearly a decade.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. • It's turned into the joke that nobody can really laugh about, the cloud hanging over one of the most successful teams in the history of NASCAR.

Thirteen races have passed since Hendrick Motorsports reached Victory Lane, the longest drought the team has experienced since the 2002-03 seasons. And the result is that Hendrick is still stuck on 199 victories, the milestone maddeningly just out of reach.

"You know, now it's turned. We've been so close to getting it the last month or so, it's kind of a deal now where we're joking, like, let's not even think about it," said five-time Sprint Cup champion Jimmie Johnson, who claimed the team's last victory in October at Kansas

Speedway. The series is back this weekend for the first of two races this year. It should give the powerhouse team some positive

Johnson also won from the pole at Kansas in 2008, and Jeff Gordon won the first two races at the track in 2001 and '02. Dale Earnhardt Jr. has five top-10 finishes on the 11/2mile oval and is currently third in points, while Kasey Kahne is coming off a Trucks series win at Rockingham.

No owner has more wins at Kansas Speedway than Hendrick.

"We know our teams are all capable of winning races. We've all been there," Johnson said Friday. "Whenever it happens, you'll see a very big sigh of relief from Rick and the team."

It's not as though Hendrick Motorsports hasn't been competitive.

To the contrary: It has been frustratingly close.

Hendrick's stable has finished second four times since Johnson's victory during last season's Chase, including his second-place run last Saturday night at Texas.

Johnson led a race-high 156 laps, but a couple of subtle tweaks on his final two pit stops turned out for the worst. Greg Biffle passed him for the lead with 30 laps left, and the two-time winner at Kansas held on for his first Sprint Cup victory since October 2010.

"When you lead the most laps and finish second, those stink," Johnson said. "Last weekend I thought long and hard about the last two pit stops and the adjustments we made. We still had a fast race car, but those last two segments weren't the strongest."

Johnson had another fast car a few weeks ago at Martinsville, and was leading late in the race. David Reutimann's car stalled and brought out a caution, and then a wreck collected Johnson and Gordon, preventing them from making a run at the green-white-checkered finish. "We're real happy with the way our cars perform come race time," Johnson said. "Qualifying has been a bit of a struggle, though last weekend we had a top 10, which wasn't too bad."

Johnson is confident that Hendrick Motorsports will finally get a win.

This is a team, after all, that won five straight championships with Johnson, and had claimed five more before that between Gordon and Terry Labonte, who won the title in 1996.

Johnson and Gordon combined for five wins last season, and Johnson won six alone in 2010.

In pursuit of his 200th checkered flag as team owner, Rick Hendrick isn't waving the white flag, even as he's stuck on his longest win drought as owner in nearly a decade.

The last time the team went through such doldrums, Johnson was running his first full Cup schedule. The team went 15 straight races without a victory that time, a stretch that began - in a cruel coincidence – after Gordon won the 2002 race at Kansas Speedwav.

Then again, the very notion that folks are talking about 13 races being a drought says a lot about Hendrick Motorsports, where success is measured at a different level than most places.

Interim Penn State AD Fired

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • The Penn State official who briefly took over as athletic director following the sex abuse scandal is no longer working at the school.

The Centre Daily Times first reported Mark Sherburne's departure Thursday night and said he was fired Wednesday.

A university spokesman said Friday in an email to The Associated Press that Sherburne no longer works there. Penn State has not said that Sherburne was fired, and declined further comment citing a personnel issue.

School President Rodney Erickson and Interim Athletic Director David Joyner each declined comment when asked about Sherburne at the ceremonial groundbreaking Friday for the university's new ice hockey arena, also citing a human resources issue.

A message left Friday at a number listed for Sherburne was not immediately returned.

Sherburne was a senior athletics official who stepped in for 10 days to head the department after Tim Curley was placed on administrative leave in November in the aftermath of child sexual abuse charges against retired assistant coach Jerry Sandusky. Joyner assumed the acting post Nov. 16, with Sherburne returning to his position as associate athletic director. A State College native, Sherburne worked in athletics since 2000.

Today's Highlight:

On April 21, 1962, the Century 21 Exposition, also known as the Seattle World's Fair, opened. President John F. Kennedy spoke briefly to the event by telephone from Palm Springs, Fla., where he tapped a gold telegraph key to signal the official start of the six-month fair.

${f T}{f O}{f D}{f A}{f Y}$ IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1509, England's King Henry VII died; he was succeeded by his 17-year-old son, Henry VIII.

In 1649, the Maryland Toleration Act, which provided for freedom of worship for all Christians, was passed by the Maryland assembly.

In 1789, John Adams was sworn in as the first vice president of the United States.

In 1836, an army of Texans led by Sam Houston defeated the Mexicans at San Jacinto, assuring Texas independ-

In 1910, author Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, died in Redding, Conn., at age 74.

In 1918, Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the German ace known as the "Red Baron," was killed in action during World War I.

In 1930, a fire broke out inside the overcrowded Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus, killing 332 inmates. In 1955, the Jerome

Lawrence-Robert Lee play "Inherit the Wind," inspired by the Scopes trial of 1925, opened at the National Theatre in New York. In 1960, Brazil inaugurated its new capital, Brasilia, transferring the seat of national government from Rio de Taneiro. In 1972, Apollo 16 astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. explored the surface of the moon.

In 1986, a rediscovered vault in Chicago's Lexington Hotel that was linked to Al Capone was opened during a live TV special hosted by Geraldo Rivera; aside from a few bottles and a sign, the vault turned out to be empty.

In 1992, Robert Alton Harris became the first person executed by the state of California in 25 years as he was put to death in the gas chamber for the 1978 murder of two teen-age boys, John Mayeski and Michael Baker.

Ten years ago: In a huge upset in French politics, extreme-right leader Jean-Marie Le Pen qualified to face incumbent Jacques Chirac in the runoff for French president. (Chirac ended up winning.)

Five years ago: The Fallujah, Iraq, city council chairman (Sami Abdul-Amir al-Jumaili), a critic of al-Qaida who had taken the job after his three predecessors were assassinated, was himself killed by attackers in a passing car. American billionaire Charles Simonvi returned to Earth from a dream voyage to the international space station, riding a Russian capsule to a soft landing in Kazakhstan. Professional sailor Reid Stowe and his girlfriend, Soanya Ahmad, set off from North Hoboken, N.J., on a 1,000-day, nonstop globe-girdling cruise. (Ahmad abandoned the cruise in Australia in February 2008, saying she was plagued by seasickness and suspecting she was pregnant; Stowe completed the journey as he arrived in New York on June 17, 2010 and met his toddler son, Darshen, for the first time.)

One year ago: President Barack Obama announced the Justice Department was assembling a team to "root out any cases of fraud or manipulation" in oil markets that might be contributing to $4 a gallon-plus gasoline prices. Sen. John Ensign, R-Nev., announced he would step down amid a developing ethics probe while insisting he'd done nothing wrong. Japan sealed off a wide area around the radiation-spewing Fukushima power plant to prevent residents from sneaking back to homes they'd quickly evacuated. Jess Jackson, 81, founder of the Kendall-Jackson winery, died in Geyerville, Calif.

— John Stuart Mill

"All good things which exist are the fruits of originality."

Today's declarer in six spades was entitled to say he was unlucky. He ruffed the opening club lead and led a high trump from hand. The 5-0 trump break made him open his eyes wide. He switched his attention to diamonds, hoping three rounds might stand up if East had the length. No luck there: East ruffed the third diamond and exited with a heart. Declarer still thought he might come close to making his contract if the heart finesse succeeded, but when it lost, he was struggling to escape for down

The swing on this deal was especially expensive since his opponents had stayed out of slam in the other room. Can you see what declarer might have done, even against the foul trump break?

It is a lot easier to see when you are looking at all four hands, but if your objective is to take 12 tricks rather than 13, surely the only thing you have to worry about is a bad trump break. It then makes a lot of sense to duck the first trick, discarding a heart from hand rather than ruffing in.

West does best to shift to a diamond, which you win in hand to lead a spade to the board. Now when West discards, you lead a spade back to the 10, cross to a top diamond, and play a spade to the nine. After drawing trump, you have 12 tricks: a club, a heart and five winners in each of the other suits.

ANSWER: When playing negative doubles, you typically reopen when short in the opponents' suit, hoping that partner can make a penalty double — here, against clubs. Given your club length, you know partner is weak, typically without diamond support. Accordingly, you must pass and hope the opponents are in the wrong spot.

Call for Transportation Services

Hagerman Joint School District #233 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed bids will be received by the Board of Trustees of Hagerman Joint School District No. 233, Idaho, for transportation services. Bid documents and detailed specifications are available from the Sealed bids must be submitted on or before 4:00 p.m. on May 7, 2012, to the District Clerk addressed "Attn: Transportation Bids"

District Clerk at 324 North 2nd Street, Hagerman, ID 83332 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m., Monday through at the stated address. Bids received after the stated time and date will not be considered. At the stated time and place, bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. All bids will be forwarded to the Board of Trustees at their next regularly scheduled meeting and will be taken under advisement, pending an investigation of all acceptable bids by School District Officials. The Board of Trustees reserves the right to schedule a meeting at a future date and time to award the contract to the successful vendor.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check, cashier's check, or bid bond in the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500.00) made payable to the Hagerman Joint School District No. 233.

This contract shall be effective from August 2012 to July 2017, and shall continue for a total period of up to five (5) years and shall end on July 2017, and may be extended for an additional five (5) year after the initial five (5) year contract unless sooner terminated in accordance with the provisions of this contract.

The Board of Trustees reserves the right to accept, reject, or to select any portion thereof, any or all bids and to waive any technicality. No bidder may withdraw his bid after the opening of such bids unless the awarding of the bid is delayed for a period exceeding thirty (30) days. Any bidder may withdraw his bid by written request at any time prior to the time set for bid opening. Bids are to be held firm for ninety (90) days after due date of submission

IF APRIL 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You can't keep a good man or woman down. In the next four to six weeks, you could enjoy a delightful vacation or let your heightened business sense make you a few extra cents. You may wish to begin a slow but steady exercise program during the next six to eight weeks while your physical vitality hits a peak. This is a good summer to get back in shape and take care of any health issues before they turn into problems. From the end of September through October, hold off on new ventures or key changes. Any matter that you have not dealt with honestly may cause problems in October, so be careful to pay back favors - and don't take anyone for granted. Look for a change for the better after October.

$\mathbf{H}\mathsf{OROSCOPE}$ Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You aren't afraid to shake things up. Your dynamic, fearless ways banish worries and concerns. Other people are happy to be in your presence because you love company - just don't dwell on misery.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Blast off and leave the boogie-woogie blues behind. The new moon in your sign gives you a chance to shake off worries and fears that have been lurking in the background. Do that which brings joy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Yesterday's financial challenge might become an asset. This new moon centers your interest in becoming more secure. Gather facts by reading or talking over plans with a friend.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): To get what you want, you must know what you want. Today's new moon marks the beginning of several weeks during which you reformulate goals and re-examine objectives. Use friends as a sounding board.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may have great ideas or find an inventive approach to solve a problem. The commencement of a new lunar cycle shifts your attention to your public image and career for the next several weeks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can't take it with you. Nice things make you smile. Wait until you can afford the best brand or most desirable model. Find an efficient way to make small sacrifices and economies seem worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy and Jill a dull girl. You may mix business with pleasure. You don't need to be a rock star to be popular with the younger set or to make a difference in someone's life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The new moon in your opposite sign starts a new phase in your daily habits. You could find that relationships take a position of prominence in your consciousness over the next several weeks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cream rises to the top. You might think that you are separated from the community, but you have a more detached, and wise world view. Others may need to hear exactly what you have to say.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ongoing obligations can be viewed as a weight on your shoulders or a building block. You can take pride in your ability to handle necessities in order to achieve your prized ambitions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Old habits die hard. You can never grow old if you continue to learn. However, the only way to learn is to keep an open mind. Speak out, but remember it may be time to change for the better. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This new moon starts a cycle in which you may learn that knowledge is power. Familiarity with a subject is a key to educated decisions. Achieving one goal might not be as important as you thought.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

DEAR ABBY: A friend's husband gave me a ride to the airport, and when I went to hug him goodbye as I have always done when we parted, he grabbed me by the arms and kissed me on the lips several times. I wasn't expecting it, and I certainly hadn't invited it. I made light of it, but it made me very uncomfortable and I don't want to see him again.

DEAR  $\mathbf{A}$ BBY Jeanne Phillips

My problem is I don't know how to end my friendship with his wife. I would never tell her, and I do not wish to have this standing between us, so I'd rather just end the friendship. How should I handle this? She occasionally contacts me for lunch dates.

- DISMAYED IN MANHATTAN

DEAR DISMAYED: You're lucky the wife contacts you for lunch dates only occasionally. It means she's a casual friend, which will make disengaging easier. When she calls, all you need to do is tell her you have other plans. You do not have to mention that foremost among them is avoiding any future contact with either of them because of her husband.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing "Larry" for six months, and from day one we both agreed that we do not want to be in a relationship. I'm 29 and he's 34. But over time we have developed feelings for each other. Larry is recently divorced after 10 years of marriage. He tells me he doesn't want to lose me, but it's hard for him to commit for fear of being hurt.

Larry talks to other women and goes out, while I have basically committed myself to him. He gets upset if I talk to another man. He says I'm his best friend and he's afraid a relationship would change that.

I don't know what to do anymore. Neither one of us would be OK if the other started dating, but I'm sick of waiting for him to make up his mind. Should I move on?

- IN LIMBO IN COLUMBUS, IND.

DEAR IN LIMBO: Yes, you should. But not before telling Larry exactly why, because the arrangement you have right now is unfair to you. If you don't, you and Larry could wind up being "best friends" forever and nothing

DEAR ABBY: When my wife and I renewed our wedding vows after 25 years of marriage, I gave her a beautiful diamond band to thank her for our years together. I lost her 20 years later and put the ring aside, not knowing what to do with it.

My son had been living with a lovely girl for a couple of years. They appeared to be a perfect match, so I gave him the ring and suggested he give it to her and propose. I looked forward to their happiness and perhaps some grandchildren.

My son presented it to her, she accepted and they were married. Sadly, after three years she divorced him and they have gone their separate ways. Should I contact her and ask for the return of the ring? Abby, it's not the money ($3,500). I wanted the ring to stay in the family, and she has opted out of our family. Please advise.

- NOT SURE IN NEW JERSEY DEAR NOT SURE: By all

means contact your former daughter-in-law and ask if she's willing to part with the ring. She may agree to give it to you or sell it to you if she still has it. However, if there has been animosity since the divorce, she may not feel inclined to be gracious - so be prepared. Once your son gave the ring to her, it became her property to do with as she wished.
