ROGERSON • It wasn't the early morning hour that managed to quiet 30 high school students.

Piled in the bed of a pick-up truck, the students' brief silence was enough to allow a glimpse of a handful of sage grouse trotting across their Jarbidge mating ground.

Some students peered through binoculars as others helped point out a few visible birds that quickly moved away from the group.

"Here's what they're supposed to sound like," said Brad Lowe, a regional wildlife biologist with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. He held out his phone and played a brief audio of the hoots and pops of a sage grouse call.

"The sound you're hearing is skin flapping after they puff out their chest," he said.

Students from Castleford and Filer were the first from Magic Valley high schools to participate in a federal program that promotes youth interaction with the outdoors. After touring the mating ground — called a lek — students heard a short series of lectures from officials involved in local species and wildlife management.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has held school tours in western and central parts of the state for the past three years. Officials are now looking to expand the program to southern Idaho.

"As school budgets decline, the opportunity for students to get out of the classroom becomes limited," said Jason Pyron, a fish and wildlife biologist with the agency who helped lead the Jarbidge field trip.

"We're trying to explain what people are working on in Idaho at a local level and allow the students to create a connection with the landscape," Pyron said.

Officials Fear Utility's Withdrawal Confirms End of Wind Project

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Nevada utility company's recent decision to pull out of a major wind project along the Idaho and Nevada border has local officials worried about the project's future.

"This might be the nail in the coffin for this project," said Twin Falls County Commissioner Leon Mills. "I'm unsure at this point if it can go forward."

NV Energy was working with RES Americas to build the 170-turbine China Mountain Wind Project. RES had proposed that the project would take up to 25,500 acres of public land south of Twin Falls.

However, U.S. Bureau of Land Management officials announced in March that they would delay a permitting decision on the project for two years because of its location in critical sage grouse habitat.

NV Energy's decision to pull out is unfortunate since the China Mountain project was slated to

Clark, Ramsey Square off for Sheriff

Walt Femling, I decided I kind of like it here. It gives me a chance to put my own brand on the department and make the changes I want to make."

However, Ramsey's opponent in the May 15 Republican primary says Ramsey's long tenure is the reason why the county needs a new sheriff.

"I should be elected because I don't work in the department," said Bellevue Marshal Larry M. Clark. "We need a new set of eyes looking at the department."

The GOP primary winner for the post will face an independent candidate, Hailey Police Lt. Steve England, during the Nov. 6 general election. The county sheriff position is a four-year term with annual compensation of $88,159 plus benefits.

Family of former Rupert soldier killed in Afghanistan releases statement, requests privacy.

TWIN FALLS • A short statement from the family of Army Sgt. Chris Workman paints a picture of an active, independent man.

Through it all is the subtext of terrible loss after Workman, along with three other soldiers, was killed Thursday in a helicopter crash in southern Afghanistan.

Through the Idaho National Guard, Workman's family asked for privacy Tuesday and released a statement that says the soldier will be missed by many, from his "large Greek and Italian family" to his friends from Idaho State Uni-

Plenty of GOP Women, Few Candidates

Twice over the past week, area Republican women have hosted forums for candidates in legislative and sheriffs races: The Magic Valley Republican Women at Clear Lake Country Club last Wednesday, and the Twin Falls Republican Women at the Turf Club on Monday.

And while there were plenty of women involved, there is only one female Republican candidate in south-central Idaho: incumbent Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome.

That solidly lines up with the rest of Idaho's lawmakers. In the 2012 legislative session, the Senate had six Republican women, and the House had 12. Women made up just 21 percent of the Republican legislators, while 55 percent of Democratic legislators were women.

But don't think women aren't active in the Republican Party.

"They're always behind the scenes," Bell said. Women are running phone banks, going door-to-door, campaigning, and running meetings.

That shows with the active Republican women's groups in Magic Valley. But why not get their names on the ballot?

Retiring Rep. Sharon Block, R-Twin Falls, said she would like to see more women run for office.

Whether they're Democrat or Republican, women bring a different perspective to the Legislature, especially on mental health, family and education issues, she said.

There are barriers, of course, like family. Bell recalled one now-retired legislator who would nurse her baby during debates. She would throw a blanket over the baby's head and breastfeed, offending one of her male colleagues.

Block expects a better balance of Republican women and men in future generations, especially as more younger women are earning higher educations and become politically active.

"I think that's something we need to work on as women, to encourage women to run for office," Block said.

Deputies Respond to Shooting on Twin Falls-Cassia Line

TIMES-NEWS

MURTAUGH • An apparent shooting on the line between Twin Falls and Cassia counties prompted a late-night investigation on Tuesday.

Calls of the shooting came in at about 9 p.m. Details were scarce at press time, including the number of people involved and which county the shooting occurred in. But deputies from Twin Falls were gathering at 2900 N. 4809 E., southeast of Murtaugh.

Cassia County dispatchers also said they understood the shooting to have happened in Twin Falls County.

A Times-News reporter was en route to the scene at press time Tuesday. Visit Magicvalley.com for the latest on this story.

TWIN FALLS MAN ACCUSED OF BASEBALL BAT BEATING

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • A 30-year-old Twin Falls man allegedly beat a neighbor with a baseball bat Friday, giving him a concussion and broken teeth.

Jacob T. Freeman was charged with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon and arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

Police responded at 10:27 p.m. Friday to the 200 block of Alexander Street in Twin Falls for a report of battery. Upon arriving, the officer found a blood-covered man regaining consciousness.

The victim was transported by ambulance to the emergency room at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, where he received 13 stitches to close his upper lip and was found to have multiple contusions on his arms and rib area. The victim was diagnosed with a concussion and had four teeth which were broken or knocked out, according to the police report.

The victim's wife told police she saw Freeman leave in a white Ford minivan, which officers later found at Freeman's home. Freeman was located in the basement shortly after, police said.

Freeman allegedly told police he was afraid of the victim because of past confrontations over Freeman's dog. Before the incident Freeman said he heard the victim calling his girlfriend names and then struck the victim until he was on the ground, not moving, the report states.

After being questioned by police, Freeman was transported to the Twin Falls County Jail and held on $50,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is set for May 4.

MAN CHARGED FOR GUN THEFT

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 19-year-old man has been accused of stealing five revolvers and attempting to sell them.

Nicholas James Longee, of Twin Falls, was charged with grand theft, unlawful possession of a firearm and solicitation of grand theft, and was arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court.

According to court documents, Longee contacted Omar Padilla, an acquaintance of his, on March 7 and asked him if he wanted to look at some speakers to buy in Filer.

Longee, Padilla and Padilla's girlfriend, Ashtyn Jones, traveled to an area near 2100 East Road and 3900 North Road outside Filer. Jones and Padilla later told police they became suspicious because the area was nowhere near a residence.

The two told deputies they watched Longee pull a pillowcase from underneath some dry weeds and place it in the trunk of Jones' car.

After driving back to Twin Falls, Longee allegedly showed Padilla the five revolvers and asked him to sell the guns for him. Padilla told deputies he wasn't comfortable with the situation because he was not allowed to have firearms due to a prior felony conviction.

Padilla and Jones contacted Twin Falls police that afternoon and the revolvers were recovered from the vehicle.

On April 17, Twin Falls sheriff's deputies spoke with another man who told them Longee had contacted him, asking about anyone he knew who would buy five guns for $100 each.

"Longee told him that there were five guns in a pillowcase that he stole out of a house," court records state.

The next day, investigators spoke with the daughter of the man the guns were allegedly stolen from. Deputies say the burglary and theft occurred on March 5 at a home near 1300 East Road and 3800 North Road in Buhl.

Longee was booked into the Twin Falls County Jail and held on $100,000 bond. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for May 4.

According to a U.S. Department of Defense release, the other soldiers killed are Chief Warrant Officer Nicholas S. Johnson, 27, of San Diego, Calif.; Chief Warrant Officer Don C. Viray, 25, of Waipahu, Hawaii; and Sgt. Dean R. Shaffer, 23, of Pekin, Ill.

Workman, an Army specialist, was posthumously promoted to sergeant. He joined the Army in 2009.

He leaves behind a wife, Camille, and stepson, Cole Hayes, along with family in Rupert and elsewhere.

Workman's family plans a funeral in Boise, followed by burial at the Rupert Cemetery.

Larry Hansen, of Hansen Mortuary in Rupert, said Monday that Workman has been returned to the U.S. and is in Delaware.

Col. Tim Marsano, spokesman for the Idaho National Guard, told the Times-News in an email Tuesday that no dates for Workman's honorable transfer or funeral have been set.

Though Workman was an active-duty soldier, the Idaho National Guard assists families of fallen Idaho soldiers.

Rock Chuck Derby Kicks Off Fifth Year

TIMES-NEWS

BLISS • Starting Thursday night, the Hannah Bates Memorial Rock Chuck Derby will celebrate its fifth year at the Outlaws and Angels Saloon.

Weekend activities include hunting rock chucks, raffles, live entertainment, a carnival, motorcycle poker run and a walk/run event.

Over the past four years, the event has raised $220,000 passed on to local schools and nonprofits in honor of Hannah Bates, who died of cancer in 2008, said Sandy Bates, Hannah's mom and derby committee member.

Due to increasing interest, this year's derby's events stretched over two weekends, she said. Last weekend, the derby raised $10,000 after hosting an ATV poker run and a golf scramble.

"We have so many people that want to be a part of it," Bates said. "We can't just contain it to one weekend anymore."

Weigh-ins will be held Friday through Sunday to determine which hunter will have tracked down the biggest rock chuck. The winner will be announced Sunday.

The event is also offering a free shuttle service from Hagerman to Bliss, from 5 p.m. to 2:30 a.m. Friday

Rock Chuck Derby Schedule

Here's a brief outline of the weekend's events. For detailed information on scheduled events, visit www.rockchuckderby.com.

Thursday 6 p.m.: Registration opens at rock chuck headquarters, at Outlaws and Angels Saloon, 204 U.S. Highway 30, Bliss.

Friday Noon: Rock chuck headquarters open through 2 p.m. Sunday.

9 p.m.: Live bands play both Friday and Saturday night.

Saturday 11 a.m.: Hannah's Hope "Ride for Life" poker run begins at Cal's Log Tavern, 401 Fourth Ave. W., Twin Falls. Cost is $20 for breakfast, cards, cover charge bracelet for derby, raffle ticket and taco bar.

10 a.m.: Hannah's Hope "Walk for Life," a 4.6- or 2.6-mile walk/run down the Old Bliss Grade to the Snake River and back. Cost is $25 and includes a T-shirt, taco bar, cover charge bracelet for derby and drink coupon.

and Saturday. The shuttle will leave every hour from the Angler's parking lot, 171 S. State St., Hagerman.

Hansen Lifts Boil Order

TIMES-NEWS

HANSEN • The city of Hansen lifted a boil order Tuesday that had been in place since Sunday.

During a weekend power outage, water pressure in the city dropped low enough that the Department of Environmental Quality issued the boil order as a safety precaution. The city received word Tuesday morning that the water tests came back safe.

The lift on the boil order is effective immediately, said City Clerk Linda Morrill.

Cadillac, pushing him and hitting him before following him into the men's public restroom while yelling at him.

An officer entered the restroom and could hear a woman arguing, the report states. The woman, identified as Kowanda R. Christensen, allegedly had glassy eyes and smelled of alcohol.

"Ms. Christensen told me that she had consumed two alcoholic beverages and that she drove her vehicle into the back of her boyfriend's car to get his attention," the officer wrote in the report.

Christensen, 49, of Filer, allegedly failed two of three field sobriety tests and an alternate test the officer offered her.

According to the police report, she was taken to the Twin Falls County Jail where tests measured her blood alcohol content as about .13 — about 1 1/2 times the legal limit to drive.

Christensen was charged with domestic battery in the presence of a child and driving under the influence. She was arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court and released on her own recognizance. A pre-trial hearing is scheduled for June 5.

Grouse

Only a handful of students who participated in Tuesday's field trip had ever seen a sage grouse before. Slightly more knew about the political attention the bird has received over the past few years.

"I thought it was pretty neat seeing the bird for the first time," said Brook Bremers, a sophomore at Castleford High School.

"I had to ask my science teacher before we came out here why they were important though," she said.

Her friend, Scout Monson, said she appreciated getting a chance to get out of the classroom.

"Now that we're in high school, we don't go on that many field trips," Monson said. "This was pretty cool."

Pyron said the trips are made possible through a combination of grants and private sponsors. However, as interest in the program grows, resources get tighter.

"We want to see this program grow and there's a lot of interest," he said. "Now we need to get the funding for it."

bring revenue and jobs to Twin Falls County, Mills said.

"They've been working on this for 10 years," he said. "This isn't just something you can walk away from. That area is one of the greatest wind channels in the Northwest, but you don't want to build something that adversely affects the sage grouse."

In 2010, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service determined that sage grouse warranted protection under the Endangered Species Act, but the agency won't make its final decision until 2015. The BLM hopes to improve its management practices between now and 2014 in order to prevent a grouse listing.

A NV Energy spokesman said in an email that the company's decision hasn't halted China Mountain from moving forward, but declined to comment further on the subject.

The move is a win for many conservationists who saw the project as a threat to sage grouse habitat and livelihood.

The Idaho Conservation League released a statement Monday on its website praising NV Energy for protecting the area's "irreplaceable landscape."

COEUR D'ALENE (AP)

• The family of a man who was buried at a northern Idaho cemetery four years ago says his headstone has been moved and his remains may be lost.

Luanne Melior discovered the problem at the Coeur d'Alene Riverview Cemetery last week, when she and her husband Pat Melior went to pay respects to her father, Dara Brown Warren. It was their first visit in four years to the plot underneath the big maple tree that they'd selected for Warren's cremated remains in 2002.

But Luanne Melior told the Coeur d'Alene Press that they found his headstone had been moved about 100 feet away. Officials with Coeur d'Alene's Park Department did some research, and said the headstone had been placed in the wrong spot originally and was moved when the error was discovered. The family was never notified.

"That's not our normal protocol," Parks Director Doug Eastwood said last week. He said it was likely just a mistake by staff who have since retired.

To resolve the matter, the city offered to move the buried urn and the headstone to the spot the Melior family had wanted, underneath the tree. But when crews dug up the headstone late last week, there was no urn to be found. Now city officials think Warren may have been buried by the tree after all, but his urn was likely destroyed or displaced by subsequent burials at the site.

"We feel horrible about this," Deputy City Administrator Jon Ingalls said. The Meliors "have been gracious to work with, and we're doing everything from here forward to best mitigate the situation."

Ingalls said the department will review its record keeping methods, though they have improved since 2002 with the use of more computers. It's the first time such a problem has come up, he said, and Riverview and adjacent Forest cemeteries have had 20,000 burials since the 1880s.

Still, Ingalls said, "This is an area you cannot fail."

The Meliors are moving on, accepting the city's offer to put the headstone, with a flower vase from the city, for Warren beneath the tree. They don't want to involve the family who buried their family member in the spot the Meliors thought they had.

"Why put another family through what we're going through right now?" Pat Melior said. "We finally got the apology we were looking for. That's basically all we wanted anyway."

Instead, the family will pay their respects for Warren, who was from western Washington and died in Arizona in 1997, by the tree.

"He wasn't a vindictive man. He wouldn't have wanted us to do anything more than we did ... That wouldn't bring my dad back," Luanne Melior said.

Police Inquiry into Sen. McGee Goes to Prosecutors

BOISE • A police investigation into the conduct of former state Sen. John McGee has been turned over to Ada County prosecutors.

McGee resigned in February amid sexual harassment allegations.

The Idaho Statesman reports Ada County prosecutors confirmed Monday they are reviewing the results of a state police investigation into the allegations to determine whether charges will be filed against McGee.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor Roger Bourne says his office hopes to make a decision by the end of the week.

McGee, a Caldwell Republican who had been seen as a political riser, resigned rather than face a legislative ethics committee over sexual harassment claims made by a female Senate staffer. McGee had been working to restore his reputation following a Father's Day 2011 arrest for drunken driving.

Man Gets at Least 5 Years for Child Injury

POCATELLO • A Pocatello man who was on probation for a felony drunken driving charge when a 2-year-old girl in his care suffered serious injuries has been sentenced to at least five years in prison for felony injury to a child.

Matthew Gonzales was sentenced Monday to five years fixed and five years indeterminate for injuries suffered by Aerabella Beck in January 2011.

The girl suffered a traumatic brain injury that caused blindness as well as a broken arm. Court records say the girl's sight is returning and she is walking and talking.

Gonzales pleaded guilty in January in exchange for a recommended sentence of three years fixed and three years indeterminate. Gonzales' attorney argued for probation and rehabilitation.

Sixth District Judge David Nye gave Gonzales the maximum sentence.

Payette Students Accused of Bullying, Battery

PAYETTE • Police in the western Idaho town of Payette are investigating after sixth-graders at a local middle school said they were battered and bullied by a group of eight seventh and eighth-graders.

McCain Middle School administrators also are investigating claims that the older students assaulted six sixth-graders, inflicting minor injuries. The Payette school board will determine whether the students accused of bullying will be expelled.

Payette Police Chief Mark Clark told Boise television station KTVB Monday that his department is looking in for possible battery charges.

Bullying has garnered national attention with a string of high profile court cases and feature-length documentaries.

Legislation aimed at bolstering anti-bullying policies in Idaho public schools was killed by Republican lawmakers in March.

Former Stimson Employee Guilty in Lumber Theft

COEUR D'ALENE • A former employee of Stimson Lumber Co. in Plummer has pleaded guilty to keeping $581,000 in payments for lumber sold to a business in Spokane, Wash.

The U.S. attorney's office says 32-year-old Trevor Mokry pleaded guilty Monday to aiding the transportation of stolen goods. Sentencing is set for July 16.

Prosecutors allege that between June 2007 and June 2011, Mokry sold lumber to the Spokane business without the permission or knowledge of Stimson and kept $581,445 the business paid for the lumber.

Spokane River Approaching Flood Stage

SPOKANE, Wash. • The Spokane Fire Department is urging people to stay out of the rising Spokane River.

The river is running high and fast and water temperatures are very cold, making for dangerous conditions.

Flows in the Spokane River have reached more than 25.5 feet, and flood stage is 27 feet. The National Weather Service predicts the river will reach that point on Friday.

Even at flood stage, flooding within the city is usually minor.

Univ. of Idaho Student Charged with Knife Threat

MOSCOW • A 20-year-old University of Idaho sophomore faces an aggravated assault charge after his roommate reported he was threatened with a kitchen knife.

Latah County prosecutors allege Stephen G. Carras of Renton, Wash., placed the knife against the neck of another student on April 16 and threatened to kill him.

Court records allege Carras also threatened to carve up the other student. The student told investigators that Carras has a fascination with knives and has been known to cut himself on the arms.

The Moscow-Pullman Daily News reports police arrested Carras after he told them he threatened the other student as a joke. Carras is scheduled for a preliminary hearing May 10.

Idaho Ed Board Member Gets KKK Mailing

BOISE • An Idaho Board of Education member joins at least eight state lawmakers who say they have received unwanted solicitations to join the Ku Klux Klan.

Education board member Milford Terrell told The Idaho Statesman Monday the letter he received appears identical to the hand-addressed mailings sent to lawmakers soliciting $35 in membership dues, a photo and commitment statement to join the Knights of the KKK.

Democratic Rep. Cherie Buckner-Webb, the state's lone black lawmaker, was the first to report receiving the membership application.

Lawmakers in Montana and Wyoming have also received the KKK letters.

A Knights of the KKK leader has denied his group's involvement in the mailings.

Neb., Iowa, Mich. Governors Say Feds Get in Way

BY MARGERY A. BECK
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. • The Republican governors of Nebraska, Iowa and Michigan said Tuesday that the federal government is cramping the states' ability to create new jobs and stimulate regional economies.

Nebraska's Dave Heineman, Iowa's Terry Branstad and Michigan's Rick Snyder met in Omaha with representatives of eight other states at the beginning of a two-day summit of the National Governors Association on regional economic development.

The governors and representatives of Alabama, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, South Dakota, Utah and West Virginia are sharing best practices for creating jobs in their states.

Heineman, who leads the association, held a news conference with Branstad and Snyder on Tuesday, and all three said that proposals of higher taxes and more stringent regulations on businesses, as well as the Obama administration's health care overhaul, are hurting business growth in their states.

"I think you have a huge uncertainty coming from the federal government," Heineman said. "I'd like to see the federal government provide stability when it comes to taxes, regulation and health care."

Branstad said the federal health care law "would add 150,000 people to the Medicaid rolls in Iowa. It's not affordable; it's not sustainable."

The Iowa governor said his state has launched a healthy living initiative with the goal for Iowa to become the healthiest state in the nation by 2016. It's currently ranked 16th, he said. Officials hope the initiative will save the state millions of dollars in health care costs.

Snyder pointed his state's Pure Michigan Talent Connect website, intended to give employers and jobseekers a place to find each other and allow workers to assess their skills and connect with mentors and internships, as among his state's best practices on job creation.

Snyder noted that Michigan has gone from having a 14 percent unemployment rate at the height of its employment woes in the last decade to 8.5 percent unemployment now.

Snyder also suggested raising the cap for new temporary work visas for immigrant professionals and eliminating the cap for those holding a master's degree or higher from U.S. universities, opening the door for those immigrants to start businesses in Michigan and other states.

UI Preparing for Public Phase of Fundraising Campaign

BY HOLLY BOWEN
Moscow-Pullman Daily News

MOSCOW • The University of Idaho will unveil the public phase of its seven-year, $225 million capital fundraising campaign later this week with a series of events in Moscow.

The university began the silent phase of the campaign, titled "Inspiring Futures," in 2007. UI President Duane Nellis told the Daily News editorial board Monday that the university has already raised a good portion of the $225 million, but the official number won't be announced until Saturday.

He said the university hopes to raise the total amount by 2014, the UI's 125th anniversary.

"We think this is really the way to move the institution forward at a time when state support has really been limited," he said.

The university intends to use the money to recruit and retain high-quality students and faculty, create partnerships with external organizations and improve campus buildings, both with renovations of existing structures and the proposed eventual construction of a new Integrated Research and Innovation Center.

The $49 million, 53,000-square-foot science center is proposed for the former site of the Navy ROTC building that burned in an accidental fire last summer, Nellis said.

He said the new building will have a heavy focus on interdisciplinary research, like the $20 million, five-year U.S. Department of Agriculture grant the UI received last year to study climate change as it relates to Pacific Northwest agriculture.

"This will create an incubator space for them to work," he said of interdisciplinary researchers in general.

Nellis said if fundraising efforts are successful, the Integrated Research and Innovation Center will be the first new building constructed on the UI's Moscow campus in more than 10 years. The university hopes private fundraising will cover about $15 million of the $49 million project, with about another $5 million hopefully coming from the state's Permanent Building Fund and the rest from a bond.

He said in addition to the $62 million the Inspiring Futures campaign plans to dedicate to building improvements across campus, the university hopes the campaign will be able to put $54 million into existing merit and need-based scholarships, new undergraduate and graduate student endowments and new graduate student research fellowships; $63 million into new faculty endowments and fellowships; and $46 million into creating multidisciplinary programs with external agencies, industries and businesses.

Nellis said the UI is currently engaged in 225 partnerships with external groups who collaborate on research and provide internships and job opportunities for students and alumni.

He said even though the capital fundraising campaign hasn't been officially revealed yet, the university is on track to collect a record number of donations this year. He attributed that in part to the improving economy and the prosperity of some UI alumni.

Man Found Injured Near Niagara Springs

WENDELL • A Twin Falls man was found injured in Niagara Springs State Park Monday in southern Gooding County.

Jason Allen Albertson, 32, was found by a ditch rider who was in the area cleaning ditches. Albertson told his rescuers he was hurt and had fallen off the canyon rim, Gooding County Sheriff Shaun Gough said. However, the man was found in a pond about a half mile from the base of the canyon.

Albertson suffered non-life-threatening injuries and told responders he had been in the area for three days, Gough said.

After being rescued Monday, Albertson was taken to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, Gough said.

zon at CSI — an Applied Technology and Innovation Center.

The 29,600-square-foot building will bring the college's technical programs under one roof, including wind energy, manufacturing technology, drafting, and air conditioning, refrigeration and heating technology.

Mason said the goal is to start construction this fall at a site just north of the Canyon Building on the Twin Falls campus.

Lombard-Conrad Architects just finished up the final building design. It will feature labs and classrooms, as well as study spaces throughout the building.

The project has a $6.6 million price tag. About $4.4 million of that cost will be covered by a federal grant.

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • Idaho has joined in Medicaid fraud settlements with two prescription drug makers who are accused of Medicaid fraud, according to Attorney General Lawrence Wasden.

The companies KV Pharmaceutical will pay Idaho about $64,450 and Dava Pharmaceuticals Inc. will pay Idaho about $20,130. Idaho Medicaid will get most of the settlement money, but a total of about $8,672 from the settlements will go to the state's general fund to be appropriated by the Idaho Legislature.

The agreement with KV Pharmaceutical settles allegations that its now-defunct subsidiary Ethex Corp. failed to tell the federal Medicare and Medicaid agency that two of its products didn't qualify for coverage under federal and state programs. Ethex was accused of submitting false quarterly reports to the government related to nitroglycerin and hyoscyamine sulfate extended-release capsules, which were ineligible for Medicaid reimbursement because of Food and Drug Administration decisions in the late 1990s. Neither drug is currently on the market or ever had full regulatory approval for safety and effectiveness.

Idaho also joined a multistate and federal settlement with Dava Pharmaceuticals. Dava was accused of underpaying the Medicaid Prescription Drug Rebate Program from 2005 to 2009. Drug companies in the program must pay quarterly rebates to state Medicaid programs based partly on whether a drug is a generic or brand-name product. Dava said its version of three drugs were generic, which lowered the rebate because of Medicaid. Dava also incorrectly calculated a price for the drugs that ended up charging Medicaid and federal health care programs more than it should have, Wasden said.

Teams from the National Association of Medicaid Fraud Control Units participated in the investigations and conducted the settlement negotiations with Dava on behalf of the settling states.

Judge Blocks Bid to Suppress Key Evidence in Powell Case

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)

• A state judge on Tuesday cleared the way for the voyeurism trial of missing Utah mother Susan Powell's father-in-law, dismissing his request to suppress key evidence in the case.

Judge Ronald Culpepper determined authorities had a proper search warrant when they scoured Steve Powell's home last year. In that search, they uncovered thousands of images of females being videotaped without their knowledge, including Susan Powell.

Steve Powell faces several voyeurism charges and one count of possession of child pornography. His trial is scheduled to start May 7.

Powell's attorneys had argued the warrant was illegal, saying it was essentially a fishing expedition designed to gather general evidence against his son Josh, who was Susan Powell's husband.

Occupy Boise Rebuffs State Call to Reconsider Injunction

Protesters' lawyer, in a response to the state's motion to have U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill reconsider his preliminary injunction, tells Winmill he got it right the first time.

BY ALEX MORRELL
Associated Press

BOISE • Occupy Boise wants a federal judge to uphold his ruling that allowed the protest group's tents to remain on the grounds of the old Ada County Courthouse.

Bryan Walker, an Occupy lawyer, filed a response Monday to the state's motion to have U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winmill reconsider his preliminary injunction, telling Winmill he got it right the first time.

"There is no change in circumstances. This Court did not err," Walker wrote in his response. "Rather, things are just as they were when this Court entered the injunction: the State's unceasing efforts to squelch disfavored political protest still continue."

Winmill decided in February that Occupy's tents constitute a protected symbol of their protest against income inequality and prohibited the state from enforcing a newly passed law banning camping on state-managed land. He decided an around-the-clock protest with tents could continue for the time being but ordered camping-related activities to cease.

An evidentiary hearing is scheduled for June.

But the state attorney general's office asked Win-mill in March to modify that decision, saying the state needs protesters to temporarily vacate so crews can perform maintenance and repair damage to the grounds caused since Occupy took over the land in November.

Deputy Attorney General Carl Withroe wrote in the motion that the group's vigil "prevents the state from adequately maintaining the property."

"It has caused significant damage to the grounds and Plaintiffs' refusal to temporarily relocate has effectively obstructed the state's efforts to repair and maintain the grounds," Withroe continued.

The state says part of the property also needs to be closed off in May for construction to the old courthouse, which will be renovated into a law library for the University of Idaho.

But Walker rejected that the maintenance or construction represent compelling new evidence to overturn Winmill's initial ruling.

Occupy participants have acknowledged some damage to the courthouse lawn and Walker says they've offered alternative relocations, but he said attempts by protesters to negotiate a temporary move have fallen on deaf ears.

"We've sent them correspondences on three different occasions offering to move the demonstration to non-grassy areas of the Capitol Mall complex, and they've ignored it. They've just flat ignored it," Walker told The AP.

Winmill is reviewing the motion.

Boise Police Make Six DUI Arrests on Connector

IDAHO STATESMAN

BOISE • The Boise Police night STEP team plans to do more targeted DUI enforcement patrols around town like a similar exercise last week on the I-184 Connector, which netted six DUI arrests over a four hour period.

Police arrested six for drunken driving out of 55 people pulled over for traffic violations between 10 p.m. and midnight on the Connector both April 18 and 19. That means more than 10 percent of those pulled over were intoxicated while driving — a fact that concerns Boise police.

"It's very concerning that we found that many drivers — more than 10 percent on a weekday night — who chose to drive under the influence," Boise Police Lt. Bryan Hagler said. "We're very glad officers made arrests instead of having to respond to crashes."

Police officials say the enforcement effort wasn't exactly a secret, as they announced the extra DUI patrols ahead of time on both Facebook and Twitter. The directed patrol — and all arrests — were made on the westbound lanes of the Connector, leading out of Boise.

"It's fairly common to find officers patrolling the Connector, and we put the word out that DUI patrols would be out in force these nights and still we had this high number of DUI arrests," said Hagler. "That shows we need to continue our solid enforcement as well as education efforts to try and keep people safe."

Here is a breakdown of the 55 traffic stops.

- 6 DUIs
- 19 warnings for drivers who didn't move over to other lanes when passing by police cars or other emergency vehicles on the side of the road.
- Three tickets for drivers who didn't move over to other lanes when passing by police cars.
- Six warnings for speeding

- One speeding ticket
- One ticket for going through a red light
- Four tickets for drivers not having insurance
- One ticket for expired driver's license
- One ticket for driving without a valid license
- One arrest on an outstanding warrant from a different case

The other 12 stops did not result in formal warnings but officers still talked to drivers about various issues, like making sure to stay in the correct lane of travel, officials said.

Candidate Restarts Campaign after Assault Arrest

BOISE (AP) • A congressional candidate restarted her campaign after being charged last month with three felony counts of aggravated assault and a weapons charge after police said workers were threatened with a gun at an office supply store.

In an email Friday to the Idaho Statesman, Cynthia Clinkingbeard said, "My legal case is a bit of a fly in the ointment, but I am hoping that will be closer to resolution soon."

A judge has ordered a mental health evaluation for Clinkingbeard, who has a history of bipolar disorder, records show, and until recently had taught at Boise State University and College of Western Idaho.

She was arraigned March 19 on the charges but did not enter a plea. A court hearing on the mental evaluation is scheduled for May 4.

Clinkingbeard, 58, of Boise filed as a Democratic candidate for Idaho's 1st Congressional District. Neither she nor her primary opponent, Jimmy Farris, responded to letters from the League of Women Voters regarding a proposed debate on Idaho Public Television.

As a Democrat running in one of the most Republican districts in the nation, Farris lamented not having the opportunity to debate Clinkingbeard on television and give voters an opportunity to hear where he stands on issues.

"I was looking forward to the opportunity to have a legitimate challenge," he told the Statesman's editorial board.

Farris decided against the debate because of Clinkingbeard's legal and mental issues, said his campaign coordinator, Toni Sutton.

"We didn't feel like a debate would be really reasonable at this point," Sutton said. "Mental illness is a big issue; that's just not something that you capitalize on."

Clinkingbeard was a doctor specializing in endocrinology, diabetes and metabolism before her license was revoked in 2005 after authorities concluded her manic episodes were getting worse, according to Idaho Board of Medicine records.

She was placed on leave from her adjunct teaching position at the College of Western Idaho in Nampa for erratic behavior two days before police say she went to Staples in Boise and threatened employees with a handgun.

Clinkingbeard had also been teaching a biology course at Boise State University, where she had been an adjunct faculty member since 2006. She was relieved of her duties there in March, following her arrest, school officials said.

She went to the Staples to inquire about campaign posters, store employees said. The employees told police they became concerned when Clinkingbeard started making strange statements about politics and religion, such as telling employees they were going to meet God.

Clinkingbeard was at the front of the store waiting for someone to pick her up when she pulled a 9-mm pistol out of a shoulder holster and pointed it at the back of a store manager, employees told police. The gun was pointed at two other employees before Clinkingbeard left the store in a vehicle, police said.

She was later arrested during a traffic stop. Police said they found a gun in the vehicle and questioned Clinkingbeard before placing her under arrest.

Registered Sex Offender Rearrested in Idaho Falls

POST REGISTER

IDAHO FALLS • Idaho Falls police arrested a registered violent sexual predator Saturday after he allegedly exposed himself to a woman in a public restroom.

Police responded to the Civic Auditorium after receiving a report that George Robert Jones, 57, was caught peering into occupied bathroom stalls, an Idaho Falls Police Department news release said.

Jones, of Idaho Falls, is charged with misdemeanor indecent exposure, disturbing the peace and unlawful entry. Jones has two prior misdemeanor indecent exposure convictions from 2002.

Police spokeswoman Joelyn Hansen said Jones is "notorious" for these kinds of incidents.

Hansen said that when police arrived at the Civic at 501 S. Holmes Ave. at 5:49 p.m., two Idaho Falls men were detaining Jones. She did not disclose the men's names but said one was an off-duty Idaho State Police officer.

A 33-year-old Blackfoot woman said she was using the toilet when Jones exposed himself, Hansen said.

The woman told police she thought a child was in the restroom at the same time.

Jones' criminal record includes a second-degree stalking conviction from 2009 and an unlawful-access-to-schoolchildren conviction from 2008.

He also has a prior conviction of obscene public display of offensive sexual material and an obscene conduct conviction, according to the Idaho State Repository.

He has three prior unlawful entry convictions, 12 disturbing the peace convictions, one public nuisance conviction, two simple battery convictions and one trespassing conviction, according to the Idaho State Repository.

Jones remained in custody at the Bonneville County Jail on Monday without bond.

Misdemeanor indecent exposure is punishable by up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Ted Nugent Pleads Guilty in Illegal Alaska Bear Kill

BY RACHEL D'ORO*Associated Press*

ANCHORAGE, Alaska • Rocker and gun rights advocate Ted Nugent pleaded guilty Tuesday to transporting a black bear he illegally killed in Alaska, saying he was sorry for unwittingly violating the law.

"I would never knowingly break any game laws," Nugent told the court. "I'm afraid I was blindsided by this, and I sincerely apologize to everyone for this."

With his plea, the singer and avid hunter followed through with a signed agreement he made with federal prosecutors earlier this month.

Magistrate Judge Michael Thompson accepted the deal at a U.S. District Court hearing in Ketchikan. Nugent and his attorney participated by telephone.

Asked by Thompson if the agreement was clear, Nugent responded: "It is with me, your honor."

According to the document, Nugent illegally shot and killed the bear in May 2009 on Sukkwan Island in southeast Alaska after wounding another bear in a bow hunt. The bow incident counted toward a seasonal limit of one bear in that location. Nugent and his lawyer, Wayne Anthony Ross, said neither of them knew about that law.

The judge said he wasn't aware of the "sort of one-strike policy" either.

"It probably is not widely known, and if there is a side benefit to the agreement reached here today — since apparently newspapers are interested in Mr. Nugent and his doings — this probably will serve to alert a great many hunters to that very issue and may, in fact, prevent violations in the future and court activity for a whole slew of folks."

The plea agreement says Nugent knowingly possessed and transported the bear in misdemeanor violation of the federal Lacey Act.

Ross said after the hearing that he was unaware of any state charges pending. A database search found no state charges against Nugent.

"It seems to me that would be double dipping," Ross said.

The hunt was filmed for Nugent's Outdoor Channel television show "Spirit of the Wild," according to the plea deal.

Under the agreement, Nugent must pay a $10,000 fine and serve two years of probation, including a special condition that he not hunt or fish in Alaska or on U.S. Forest Service properties for a year. Nugent used a number of bear-baiting sites on Forest Service land during the Alaska hunt, the document said.

He also must create a public service announcement that will be broadcast on his show every second week for a year after approval by a representative of the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Nugent told the court he wanted to make numerous PSAs to keep the interest level up, "so it's not just the same statement!" Thompson said that would be fine, as long as the PSAs were approved before airing.

The musician famed for his 1977 hit "Cat Scratch Fever" also must pay the state $600 for the bear that was taken illegally.

Nugent briefly drew the attention of the Secret Service last week after he rallied support for Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney and said of the Obama administration: "We need to ride into that battlefield and chop their heads off in November."

His comments were made during a National Rifle Association meeting in St. Louis.

Airport Discussion Requires Cool Heads

We have to give credit to Burley Mayor Terry Greenman — he knows when he's made a mistake.

At least twice now, while courting other local government officials to join his city's effort to build a new airport, the mayor has said Burley officials will petition the Federal Aviation Administration to close the J.R. "Jack" Simplot Airport as a safety risk if the city can't construct a replacement.

Sure, it might have been a sign of Greenman's dedication to the idea. But it also appeared as if he was holding the city's airport hostage to drum up support.

Is this really how this discussion should go?

Following last year's debacle over proposed airport sites on prime agricultural land, Burley officials have been on the right path, by and large, in their third attempt to replace the aging Simplot airport. Greenman and City Administrator Mark Mitton have turned up at city council and county commission meetings throughout Mini-Cassia, attempting to answer questions and offer information on the city's concerns.

Does that mean they're right about the need to replace the airport? Would a new airport have helped prevent recent fatal crashes? That's still to be determined, but at least Burley is being open with its neighbors — doubly important since the new airport is all but certain to sit outside of its city limits.

That makes Greenman's comments to the Rupert City Council April 10 and Cassia County officials on April 16 all the more perplexing. Why, as Greenman insists he won't play politics over this deal, would he then do so?

The threatened closure was an emotional mistake, he told this editorial board Tuesday morning, brought on by reactions to other people's statements. And he doesn't believe the FAA would actually agree to shut the airport down.

Greenman says he firmly believes the Simplot airport is a dangerous facility, and that the FAA and state aeronautics division feel the same way. He's become practiced at making his case, smoothly laying out costs, procedural details and siting information (though he has yet to reveal the locations on U.S. Bureau of Land Management lands that he says could host the new airport).

But the mayor could put his whole case at risk if he allows people's objections to provoke such odd statements. Leading a city and building an airport require a certain level of maturity, and the ability to handle critics.

After developing a reputation for trying to push its weight around on the airport issue, Burley is going about this attempt the right way. It'd be a shame if something this simple undid all that work.

The expansion of K-9 units may not immediately show more arrests but serve as a deterrent in drug related activities. Coming from a financial background, I understand the importance of balancing a budget. Over and under budgeting can prove detrimental in the long run, but personally I would rather have money returned to be reassigned then to end up with $20,000 in credit card bills requiring legal intervention as our previous sheriff

Support Carter for Another Term as Sheriff

Our county sheriff's department is in good hands. It has been my pleasure to know Tom Carter and watch how he has managed the sheriff's department. As a resident of Twin Falls County, I know that Tom has created a good working and safe environment for all of us.

I support Tom as our continuing Twin Falls County sheriff and know that his integrity will not be compromised. He holds the county's interests at a high standard, with respect to all citizens, and he will continue to do so.

Now it is our turn to support Tom by voting on May 15. My vote is for Tom Carter.

Johnson Has Great Reputation

I heard that Jack Johnson was running for Twin Falls County sheriff, and I am writing this letter to express my full support.

Jack's experience and training will be an asset for the county. I believe he has the ability to mold the sheriff's department into the progressive agency that this county deserves.

I admire his experience and reputation in the law enforcement community. His fellow officers respect him and often seek his counsel in issues regarding law enforcement policy and for guidance in issues involving integrity.

I personally recommend Jack Johnson for the office of Twin Falls County sheriff.

Johnson Deserves your Vote

As a volunteer chaplain for the Jerome County Sheriff's Office, I have had the pleasure of knowing and working with Capt. Jack Johnson who is running for Twin Falls County sheriff.

Capt. Johnson brings with him a diverse background which includes helping set the department budgets and managing personnel issues to being out in the field assisting the deputies. He leads with high standards of ethics, honesty and integrity. Capt. Johnson treats everyone he meets with dignity and respect, which in turn relates to the respect he receives from the officers he leads and from the community he protects. These are core values I feel a person needs in order to lead a sheriff's department.

I urge the voters of Twin Falls County to vote May 15 for Jack Johnson as Twin Falls County sheriff.

Marine Booked on Suspicion of Killing Another Marine's Wife

BY ELLIOT SPAGAT
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO • A Marine already in custody in the theft of an assault weapon was booked Tuesday on suspicion of murder in the death of another Marine's wife, authorities said.

The latest allegation against Louis Ray Perez came a week after the body of 22-year-old Brittany Killgore was found in brush near a Southern California lake.

Sheriff's investigators identified the 45-year-old Perez as a person of interest shortly after the body was discovered.

The San Diego County district attorney's office said the case was under review.

Another suspect, Jessica Lynn Lopez, 25, pleaded not guilty to murder last week in Killgore's death. She is being held on $3 million bail.

Authorities have not said whether Lopez and Perez knew each other or whether they knew the victim.

Jeff Reichert, Perez's attorney, did not immediately respond to a message seeking comment.

Perez has been in the military for 16 years, has no criminal history, is married and has lived in the San Diego area for about 10 years, Reichert said in court last week. He is being held on $500,000 bail in Vista, north of San Diego.

Perez was arrested on the weapons charge the day after Killgore disappeared. Prosecutors said he stole the weapon from a man in early February.

Colorado Dairy Cow Slips Out for Fast Food

BRUSH, Colo. (AP) • What did the dairy cow order when she got to the drive-thru window at McDonalds? Nothing — she just wanted a little attention.

That's what Sandy Winn says was the reason her cow, Darcy, wandered from her pen Friday and ended up at takeout window of the fast-food restaurant a half-mile away in Brush, Colo.

Winn tells KUSA-TV (<http://on9news.tv/Jdk30A>) that Darcy is a good cow until she's bored — and then she goes looking for attention.

Winn says she didn't know Darcy had escaped her pen until police called asking if the family owned a dairy cow. She says they told her it was "up at McDonalds," so she fetched the cow and took her home.

N. Dakota Man Convicted in Decapitation Slaying

Though the victim was white, prosecutors say the suspect was motivated by his attraction to the Aryan Nation. They said he wanted to make a statement by blowing something up or killing someone.

BY DAVE KOLPACK
Associated Press

COOPERSTOWN, N.D. • A North Dakota man was convicted Tuesday of shooting and beheading a university researcher in what prosecutors claimed was an attempt to start a white supremacist group.

Jurors had the case for less than three hours Tuesday before finding Daniel Wacht, 31, of the eastern North Dakota town of Cooperstown, guilty in the death of 54-year-old Kurt Johnson. Wacht shook his head from side to side as the verdict was read. He faces up to life in prison without parole.

Johnson was last seen alive getting into Wacht's van outside a Cooperstown bar on New Year's Eve 2010. His severed head was found in a crawl space in Wacht's basement about a week later. His body has never been found.

Though Johnson was white, prosecutors contended Wacht was motivated by his attraction to the Aryan Nation. They said he wanted to start a local white supremacist group and make a statement by blowing something up or killing someone.

The defense contended prosecutors didn't have enough evidence to prove Wacht killed Johnson and questioned the alleged motive.

Johnson was a North Dakota State University researcher based in Cooperstown, which has fewer than 1,000 residents and is about 75 miles northwest of Fargo.

The verdict came on what would have been his 56th birthday — something his brother, Kory Johnson, said was both fitting and painful. Asked if he would implore Wacht to disclose the location of his brother's body, Johnson paused for several seconds.

"To Mr. Wacht, the jury spoke volumes. Justice has been done here," he said. "As far as my brother's body, I know his soul is in heaven."

Defense attorney Steven Mottinger said he would consider some pretrial issues for appeal but would not be specific.

"It was a tough case," Mottinger said. "We did what we could with the evidence we had to work with."

Marina Spahr, the Griggs County attorney and lead prosecutor, left the courtroom without commenting. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan Byers, who helped with the case, said he was pleased with the verdict.

"You would like to hope that it provides a little bit of closure for the family. But it doesn't bring him back," Byers said.

Jurors were given the case around noon, and returned the verdict before 3 p.m.

Mottinger contended in his closing argument Tuesday morning that there were no eyewitnesses and no way to prove his client pulled the trigger. Mottinger also asked the jury why Wacht would "kill a white man" for recognition from a white supremacist outfit.

"Hint, guess and suspicion are not and can never be enough," Mottinger told jurors during closing arguments.

However, Spahr told jurors there were "layers of evidence" to prove Wacht was guilty. During his closing, Spahr highlighted evidence that included a love seat cushion found in Wacht's garbage that was soaked with Johnson's blood and boots and gloves with Johnson's blood on the outside and Wacht's DNA inside.

"You don't have to see Daniel Wacht pull the trigger to know that he did," Spahr said.

James Bolstad, who is now in prison on a probation violation, was a key witness in the case. He testified for prosecutors that Wacht had told him he wanted to do something dramatic to start a local Aryan Nation group.

Mottinger questioned Bolstad's credibility.

"They base their whole theory on a man who admits to multiple felonies, admits his testimony would help him out of his own legal problems," the defense attorney told jurors.

Bolstad is in prison on a probation violation stemming from his conviction in a theft and drug paraphernalia case in 2004.

Environmentalists Warn that Utah Road Dispute Will Be Costly

BY JOSH LOFTIN
Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • A potential lawsuit by state officials seeking to control thousands of miles of dirt roads that cross Utah's rugged backcountry, national parks and wilderness areas could cost the state millions of dollars in legal fees and lost tourism revenue, environmental groups warned Tuesday.

Representatives of the Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance and the Sierra Club also said the increased vehicle access would degrade important habitat for mule deer and sage grouse, and lead to more vandalism and theft at sensitive archaeological sites.

While the lawsuit hasn't been filed, Gov. Gary Herbert in December issued a notice of the state's intent to sue the Interior Department over access to more than 18,000 roads.

There also are lawsuits pending on behalf of specific counties that lay claim to hundreds of other routes. County and state officials argue the roads be accessible because they were used for at least a decade before the federal government closed them.

"We have been attempting to negotiate the solutions for 40 years" but have been continually stymied by Interior officials, said John Harja, the director of the state's Public Lands Policy Office.

Even if the state does get control of these rights-of-way, it doesn't necessarily mean that vehicles will be allowed or that the roads will be paved. But it would mean that state and county officials would have oversight of the roads, and not the federal government.

Although about 100 roads

do cross through national parks, many of them only skirt corners of a park's boundaries, Harja said.

The environmental groups have compiled state data to identify which routes most likely would be included in the suit. They unveiled their findings on detailed maps during a news conference at the Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance headquarters in Salt Lake City.

The maps show the state is trying claim management over more than 45,000 miles, said Heidi McIntosh, associate director of the alliance.

The state argues access should be maintained on these roads because they are important routes for traveling in the rural areas of the state and they provide access to the outdoors.

But McIntosh said many of the routes are nothing more than horse trails, dry stream beds or hiking paths. "The state and its county partners are now claiming that because there is a mark on the ground, these are highways," she said.

The impact on tourism and outdoor recreation also is a concern, especially because it is one of the state's largest industries.

"Without our awe-inspiring, pristine, wide-open spaces, Utah is simply another 'flyover' state with little to set us apart from other states vying for new businesses in this challenging economic climate," said Peter Metcalf, CEO and president of outdoor equipment maker Black Diamond. "Utah's remarkable natural beauty gives us an edge."

Police Wind Down Search for Missing Arizona Girl

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) • Police are scaling back search efforts for a 6-year-old girl who was last seen Friday night when she was getting ready for bed in her Tucson home.

Tucson Police Chief Roberto Villasenor said Tuesday that law enforcement officials expect to wrap up their intensive search for any sign of Isabel Mercedes Celis by this morning.

More than 20 officers will work through Tuesday night in the neighborhood surrounding Isabel's home, Villasenor said. That's a sharp reduction from the 150 officers from various agencies who first took part in the search.

Villasenor said the drop in personnel doesn't mean authorities have given up hope of finding Isabel alive.

"Obviously, I'm disappointed that we haven't found her at this point. But that doesn't mean we're giving up hope or that we're not going to continue to use all the resources that we need to try and find her and follow up on these leads," Villasenor said.

He said police will be shifting from searching to an investigative phase, since investigators have re-visited sites they believe could be relevant.

About 50 officers finished searching a city landfill, but Villasenor would not disclose if any leads were found. Authorities had said the landfill search was conducted because trash had been taken out Saturday before police could secure the home.

Authorities said they were following more than 260 tips in the case.

Frozen Cows in Cabin Spur Warnings at Hot Springs

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) • Federal forest officials want visitors to a Colorado hot springs to be very careful about what's inside a remote cabin nearby: Frozen cows.

Rangers believe the cows wandered into the cabin near the popular Conundrum Hot Springs during a snowstorm but couldn't find their way out. Air Force Academy cadets found their frozen carcasses while snowshoeing in late March.

U.S. Forest Service spokesman Bill Kight said Tuesday that water samples have been taken to determine if the hot springs was contaminated by the dead animals.

Rangers want the carcasses gone before they thaw. Removal options include explosives or burning down the cabin.

In the meantime, officials have posted warning signs about the cows near Aspen in the Colorado Rocky Mountains.

7.5 Percent of Deportations May Get Held

Immigration and Customs Enforcement has offered to temporarily suspend the deportation cases of roughly 16,500 people.

BY AMY TAXIN
Associated Press

SANTA ANA, Calif. • Immigration officials have offered to shelve 7.5 percent of deportation cases under a massive review of the backlogged U.S. system aimed at focusing on deporting more criminals, authorities said Tuesday.

Immigration and Customs Enforcement has offered to temporarily suspend the deportation cases of roughly 16,500 people after reviewing more than 70 percent of the immigration cases pending as of mid-April, according to statistics released by the agency.

ICE officials said 2,700 cases have been shelved. The rest still require paperwork and background checks.

It was not immediately clear how many immigrants had been told of the offer or how many had accepted it.

The Obama administration announced in August that roughly 300,000 deportation cases would be reviewed and non-criminals and those illegal immigrants who posed no public safety or national security threat would likely have their cases put on hold indefinitely.

The move was welcomed by immigrant advocates but reviled by critics who called the program an attempt by the administration to work around Congress.

Since then, however, immigrant advocates have complained the government is offering to apply so-called prosecutorial discretion in too few instances, and that those whose deportation cases are put on the back burner still don't get a work permit.

So far, the approval rate "is a very low number," said Gregory Chen, director of advocacy for the American Immigration Lawyers Association.

"You can't expect people to not be able to feed their families and have some source of income and still survive," he added.

Some say immigrants might do better by trying their luck in immigration court, where, for example, they could seek asylum.

More than half of immigrants whose asylum cases were decided by an immigration judge in the 2011 fiscal year actually won their cases, according to statistics from the Executive Office for Immigration Review, which runs the country's immigration court system.

ICE deputy press secretary Gillian Christensen said the review is ongoing. The main focus is to enable authorities to focus on deporting illegal immigrants with criminal records or those who previously ignored court orders to leave the country.

"This review is designed to allow the agency to make the best use of its limited resources," she said in a statement.

Of the cases put on hold to date, the vast majority — more than 2,000 — involve immigrants who have lived in the country for a long time and have an immediate relative who is an American citizen. About 175 are children and 180 are college students or graduates who came to the U.S. when they were under 16 and have lived in the country for more than five years, the agency said.

In addition, immigration officials said they are also putting a halt on some deportation orders.

Mark Krikorian, executive director of the Center for Immigration Studies in Washington, said some initially thought the program would bring sweeping change to the deportation process but the latest data shows it hasn't turned out that way.

"I'm glad they pulled their punch," said Krikorian, whose organization favors stricter immigration limits, "though obviously I would have preferred they not do this thing altogether."

Drought May Force Emergency BLM Mustang Roundups

BY SCOTT SONNER
Associated Press

RENO, Nev. • Extended drought in some parts of Nevada and the West may force a delay in the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's plans to ease up on wild horse roundups as more emphasis is placed on fertility control to keep herd populations in check.

The BLM plans fewer mustang gathers in each of the next three years in the 10 western states that had an estimated 37,000 horses and burros as of February. The total population is 1,500 fewer than last year but 10,000 more than the agency maintains the range can sustain ecologically.

Raul Morales, the BLM's deputy director for natural resources and planning in Nevada, said the agency may have to resort to emergency roundups it has used in the past to rescue parts of herds already hurting for water in the Jackson Mountains and at least two other places in Nevada, which is home to about half the wild horses nationally.

A roundup already is planned in the Jackson Mountains about 150 miles northeast of Reno. But Morales said nearly a third of the 600 animals in that herd may have to be rescued sooner if Mother Nature doesn't cooperate in the weeks and months ahead.

"We are praying for moisture, but we are on top of it," he told the BLM's National Wild Horse and Burro Advisory Board during a meeting in Reno on Monday.

BLM spokeswoman Heather Emmons said Tuesday that agency officials already were making plans to haul in water for horses in the Jackson Mountains. She said they are closely monitoring as many as a dozen herd management areas across the state, mostly in northwest and north-central Nevada as well as near Las Vegas.

"Everyone is on heightened alert," she said. "We're keeping pretty close tabs."

Ron Cerri of the Nevada Cattlemen's Association told the panel on Tuesday that he wanted to "commend BLM for getting out ahead of the problem" in the Jackson Mountains.

But Laura Leigh, director of Nevada-based Wild Horse Education, an Internet clearinghouse for information on roundups, said she opposes emergency roundups, especially in the Jackson Mountains. She said if mustangs must be removed, so too should a proportional number of grazing livestock.

"If 50 percent of the horses need to be removed due to the drought or an emergency situation, it should be expected the same restrictions would be on any and all permittees," Leigh told the panel Tuesday.

Rick Myers, a member of the Wyoming State Grazing Board, told the panel his state is "in the midst of severe drought." Parts of Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado also report drought conditions.

"I'm positive we are going to have more extreme conditions that are going to make for more gathers this year," Myers said Tuesday.

In general, the agency has been forced to rein in its annual roundups because of the soaring cost of housing the animals — $44 million last year or 58 percent of its $77 million budget for the entire wild horse and burro program.

With 47,000 animals now in holding facilities and demand for adoptions waning, BLM plans to gather about 7,500 horses and burros in each of the next three years, compared with about 10,000 in each of the past two years.

Ex-BP Engineer Arrested in Gulf Oil Spill Case

BY CAIN BURDEAU AND MICHAEL KUNZELMAN
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS • Federal prosecutors brought the first criminal charges Tuesday in the Gulf oil spill, accusing a former BP engineer of deleting more than 300 text messages that indicated the blown-out well was spewing far more crude than the company was telling the public at the time.

Two years and four days after the drilling-rig explosion that set off the worst offshore oil spill in U.S. history, Kurt Mix, 50, of Katy, Texas, was arrested and charged with two counts of obstruction of justice for allegedly destroying evidence.

The U.S. Justice Department made it clear that the investigation is still going on and suggested that more people could be arrested. In a statement, Attorney General Eric Holder said prosecutors “will hold accountable those who violated the law in connection with the largest environmental disaster in U.S. history.”

Federal investigators have been looking into the causes of the blowout and the actions of managers, engineers and rig workers at BP and its subcontractors Halliburton and Transocean in the days and hours before the April 20, 2010, explosion.

But the case against Mix focuses only on the aftermath of the blast, when BP scrambled for weeks to plug the leak. Even then, the charges are not really about the disaster itself, but about an alleged attempt to thwart the investigation into it.

In court papers, the FBI said one of the areas under investigation is whether the oil company intentionally lowballed the amount of crude spewing from the well.

In outlining the charges, the government suggested Mix knew the rate of flow from the busted well was much greater than the company publicly acknowledged.

Prosecutors also said BP gave the public an optimistic account of its May 2010 efforts to plug the well via a technique called a “top kill,” even though the company's internal data and some of the text messages showed the operation was likely to fail.

Angry EU Voters, Citizens Rebel against Austerity

BY DON MELVIN
Associated Press

BRUSSELS • For more than a year, European Union officials have called for austerity, austerity and more austerity as a means to solve Europe's debt crisis. Now people who don't want to pay the price are taking their fight from the streets to the ballot box.

Governments have fallen, more are at risk and in some places, a stark streak of nationalism is on the rise that could swing Europe ever deeper into a fortress mentality.

At stake is the future of the continent, where countries rich and poor are struggling with mountains of debt and moribund economies — a toxic combination that often seems to require contradictory remedies of belt-tightening and economic stimulus.

Increasingly, the long focus on austerity is convincing Europeans that the German-led mantra of fiscal responsibility is creating a vicious circle of more misery leading to lower growth — leading to even greater debt distress.

“What is happening in Europe is the austerity drive is actually slowing down the necessary rebalancing of European economies,” said Simon Tilford, chief economist at the Center for European Reform.

Austerity measures aimed at balancing national budgets have led to drastic spending cuts by governments across the continent, including layoffs and pay cuts for government workers, slashing of key services including welfare and development programs, as well as tax hikes to boost government revenues.

Many in Europe have had enough of this harsh medicine.

In France, President Nicolas Sarkozy, one of the architects of the EU's response to the financial crisis, is in danger of being turned out of office in next month's runoff with Francois Hollande — a Socialist who is promising not to cut, but to increase public spending by $26.3 billion by 2017.

Hollande is also promising to re-negotiate a much-vaunted budgetary pact among 25 EU countries meant to enforce national fiscal discipline.

Greece votes in elections next month in which fringe parties hostile to international bailouts requiring steep austerity are expected to make big gains — possibly endangering efforts by the current technocratic government to rein in the nation's debt.

And the Netherlands' 18-month-old conservative coalition resigned this week after it failed to agree on cutting its own budget deficit to meet the EU limits it had demanded so fiercely of other countries.

SENATE SEEKS TO SLOW CLOSING OF RURAL POSTAL OFFICES

BY HOPE YEN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Senate moved Tuesday to impose new restrictions on the closing of rural post offices, adopting a provision that would prevent them from being shuttered for at least a year. Under the measure, the ailing Postal Service would be barred from closing post offices for one year if they are located in rural areas — those with fewer than 50,000 people. The exception would be if there was no community opposition.

After one year, the mail agency would have to take rural issues into special consideration, including economic impact, the quality of Internet broadband service and location. Post offices would generally be shielded from closing if the next closest mail facility was more than 10 miles away.

The provision was among revisions to a Senate bill aimed at stabilizing the ailing U.S. Postal Service by providing a short-term cash infusion while delaying controversial decisions on thousands of post office closings and ending Saturday mail delivery.

Obama Pushes Low-rate Student Loans, Wooing Young

BY BEN FELLER
Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. • President Barack Obama went after the college vote Tuesday, pitching cheaper student loans as he courted the one age group where he has a decided advantage over Republican rival Mitt Romney. The twist? Romney, too, has endorsed the idea, though it's unclear whether deficit-leery Republicans in Congress will go along.

In the race for the White House, both the Obama and Romney campaigns see huge opportunities to court younger voters. This week, their efforts are focused on the millions of students — and their parents — who are grappling with college costs at a time when such debt has grown so staggering it exceeds the totals for credit cards or auto loans.

Trying to make it personal, Obama told students at the University of North Carolina that he and first lady Michelle Obama had “been in your shoes” and didn't pay off their student loans until eight years ago.

“I didn't just read about this. I didn't just get some talking points about this. I didn't just get a policy briefing on this,” Obama said. “We didn't come from wealthy families. When we graduated from college and law school, we had a mountain of debt. When we married, we got poor together.”

Obama's emphasis on his personal experience set up a contrast with Romney, whose father was a wealthy auto executive. It's a point the president is sure to return to during this summer's campaigning.

Though both Obama and Romney have expressed support for freezing the current interest rates on the loans for poorer and middle-class students, lawmakers are still exploring ways to pay for the plan. The timing is important because the rate will double from 3.4 percent to 6.8 percent on July 1 without intervention by Congress, an expiration date chosen in 2007 when a Democratic Congress voted to chop the rate in half.

ROMNEY SWEEPS FIVE PRIMARIES, PROMISES 'BETTER AMERICA'

BY DAVID ESPO AND KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney laid claim to the fiercely contested Republican presidential nomination Tuesday night with a fistful of primary triumphs, then urged all who struggle in a shaky U.S. economy to “hold on a little longer, a better America begins tonight.”

Eager to turn the political page to the general election, Romney accused President Barack Obama of “false promises and weak leadership.” He declared, “Everywhere I go, Americans are tired of being tired, and many of those who are fortunate enough to have a job are working harder for less.”

The former Massachusetts governor spoke as he swept primaries in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New York, the first since Rick Santorum conceded the nomination.

“Mitt Romney is going to be the nominee, and I'm going to support the nominee,” the former Pennsylvania senator said on CNN. He added he intended to meet on Wednesday with the winner's aides. Romney, speaking to cheering supporters, in New Hampshire, said, “The last few years have been the best Barack Obama can do, but it's not the best America can do.”

He delivered his remarks to a national television audience as well from the state where he won his first primary of the campaign and one of about a dozen states expected to be battlegrounds in the summer and fall campaign for the White House. Obama campaigned during the day in two others — North Carolina and Colorado — making the case that, however slowly, the economy is growing stronger.

“Our businesses have added more than 2 million jobs over the past two years, but we all know there's still too many Americans out there looking for work or trying to find a job that pays enough to cover the bills and make the mortgage,” the president said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Strong Earnings from AT&T, 3M Lift Dow Average

NEW YORK (AP) • Muscular U.S. corporate earnings and higher spirits in Europe propelled U.S. stocks higher Tuesday. Five of the 30 big companies that make up the Dow Jones industrial average rose more than 1.5 percent. AT&T led the gains after reporting better-than-expected profit. Verizon, AT&T's main rival, was close behind. 3M rose sharply after delivering an impressive quarterly report. Traders punished Apple after AT&T said it activated far fewer of Apple's iPhones. Apple fell 2 percent, dragging the Nasdaq composite average to a lower close.

Calif. Animal with Mad Cow Disease Confirmed

FRESNO, Calif. (MCT) • The carcass of a dairy cow with mad cow disease is being held at a processing facility near Hanford, Calif., company officials confirmed Tuesday afternoon. The cow was taken from an undisclosed dairy in Central California to the Baker Commodities transfer station east of Hanford.

Earlier Tuesday, federal agriculture officials confirmed the mad cow disease case. They said the cow was not scheduled for slaughter for human consumption and did not pose a risk to the food supply or human health. Milk does not transmit the disease.

It is the fourth confirmed case nationwide of the disease, also known as bovine spongiform encephalopathy, or BSE. The carcass will be destroyed, officials said.

Apple's iPhone sales in 2Q • Apple Inc., the world's most valuable company, trumped skeptics once again by reporting blowout iPhone sales. Apple says it sold 35 million iPhones in the January-to-March quarter, almost twice as many as it sold a year ago and above analyst expectations. Apple's stock was down 2 percent at the close of regular trading, as investors believed phone companies had reined in iPhone sales. In extended trading, the stock rallied $38.34, or 6.8 percent, to $598.62.

Valley Legislators Get Mixed Report Card

Twin Falls business community celebrates some successes but looks forward to next year's session in Boise.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • There's always next year.

During a Tuesday meeting at 9 Beans and a Burrito, members of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce met with Magic Valley lawmakers to discuss the legislative session. While the business community celebrated some successes, its members are already looking to next year's session to address other issues.

Two of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry's biggest goals – setting up a state health insurance exchange and addressing the state's personal property tax – never received a hearing and died behind closed doors without public testimony this year. Another issue, Streamlined Sales Tax, died on a tie vote in late February after two hours of testimony.

That was frustrating, said Alex LaBeau, president of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. But the business community is happy about the $35 million tax cut for corporations and the highest tier of individual taxpayers. That bill was signed into law earlier this month.

Twin Falls financial advisor Dave Snelson expressed his frustration with what he saw as the Legislature's failure to respond to constituent needs.

"I'm not bashing anybody individually," Snelson said. "I do admire all of you and I respect what you do. I just think the constituents are not represented like they used to be and that's a real concern."

Hartgen

Legislators pointed out that they do work on bills with constituents, such as legislation written by Twin Falls developer Brad Wills to expand exemptions for property being developed. Rep. Stephen Hartgen, R-Twin Falls, explained that many committee chairmen decline to hold hearings on bills if they know it won't pass their committee, and Magic Valley legislators don't always agree with other lawmakers.

"The fact is that people come to the Legislature with different perspectives from their own constituency," Hartgen said.

However, the business community would like to see more of those discussions happen in public, said Shawn Barigar, president and CEO of the Twin Falls Chamber.

"It never even gets to the point to have the discussion," he said.

Merger Forms New Western Waste Services

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Two established Twin Falls firms in the trash hauling and portable toilet business have merged to provide customers with more efficient service.

Western Waste Services and AAA Rental & Service Co. recently announced the merger, which has been under discussion since January. The firm will operate under the Western Waste Services name and will employ 35 people.

Co-owner Todd Molitor said trucks from the two firms will no longer drive routes on the same streets, thus saving costs.

"We have so many synergies," he said. "This has been a work in progress."

Molitor added that the new company will continue to focus on customer service and prompt arrival.

"The goal is to continue delivering the quality service that the Magic Valley expects and deserves while furthering our community outreach programs and sponsorships," said co-owner Kelly Withers.

He and Molitor emphasized the change will allow the consolidation of resources that will help with long-term growth. They also expressed a commitment to innovation, using the latest in technology.

Boredom, Discontent Set in among Kony Hunters

BY RODNEY MUHUMUZA
Associated Press

DJEMA, Central African Republic • An Internet campaign that's gone viral aims to capture notorious rebel leader Joseph Kony, but Ugandan foot soldiers who have spent years searching for the man are starting to ask a question their top commanders prefer to ignore: Is it possible he is dead?

Ugandan army officials say the Lord's Resistance Army leader is alive and hiding somewhere within the Central African Republic. Rank-and-file soldiers, however, say intelligence on Kony is so limited that if he dies, or is already dead, his foes might never know and could wind up chasing a ghost through this vast Central Africa jungle.

In interviews last week with an Associated Press reporter who trekked with them in the jungle, soldiers in one of many Kony-hunting squads said their task in the Central African Republic could no longer be described as a man-hunt. The soldiers, who requested anonymity for fear of punishment, said for years there has been no LRA presence in the areas they patrol.

The soldiers are growing increasingly disillusioned, complaining of boredom and having to carry around heavy guns they never expect to use.

"Our commanders don't want you to know the truth," one of them said on the banks of the Vovodo river, his colleagues nodding in approval. "They want to keep us here, but up to now our squad has never come across any rebels?"

Top Military Officers Targeted in Syria

BY BASSEM MROUE
Associated Press

BEIRUT • The gunmen walked into an apartment building before dawn earlier this month in the quiet Damascus suburb of Jaramana, went to the fifth floor and knocked on the door. When the police commander opened up, the men shot him dead and left.

Syrian President Bashar Assad's opponents appear to be resorting increasingly to assassinations of loyalist military officers in an escalation of their campaign to bring down the regime. At least 10 senior officers, including several generals, have been gunned down in the past three months, many of them as they left their homes in the morning to head to their posts.

The latest occurred Tuesday, when attackers shot and killed a retired lieutenant colonel and his brother, a chief warrant officer, at a home supplies store in another suburb of the capital, according to the state news agency. Elsewhere in Damascus, an intelligence officer was killed, opposition activists said.

Such targeted slayings are rising as an intensified crackdown by regime forces in recent months has dealt heavy setbacks to Syria's rebels. For the moment, Assad's troops have shattered the rebels' strategy of trying to seize ground in several cities and provinces.

Their pace appears to have accelerated even more sharply since a cease-fire plan brokered by U.N. and Arab League envoy Kofi Annan went into effect April 12 — and just as quickly began to unravel.

The peace plan was meant to halt 13 months of violence by government forces to put down an anti-Assad uprising in which the U.N. says more than 9,000 people have died. A spokesman for Annan said in Geneva that satellite imagery and other credible reports show Syria has failed to withdraw all its heavy weapons from populated areas as required by the cease-fire deal.

Judge Seeks WikiLeaks Damage Assessments

BY DAVID DISHNEAU
Associated Press

FORT MEADE, Md. • A military judge on Tuesday ordered Army prosecutors to provide government assessments of the potential damage caused by the on-line publication of reams of government secrets allegedly leaked by a low-level Army intelligence analyst.

Col. Denise Lind said during a pretrial hearing that she will review the documents to determine whether they contain information that must be given to Pfc. Bradley Manning's defense lawyers. She told prosecutors to get her the damage assessments by May 18.

Lind's ruling followed a sometimes heated courtroom debate over defense claims that prosecutors have not fulfilled their obligation to provide Manning's lawyers with evidence they uncover that could aid the defense, a process called discovery.

Postal

Senators were scheduled to vote on a final measure as early as today.

"Protecting our rural post offices is about more than just maintaining brick and mortar — our post offices are the lifeblood for towns across our state and a source of good-paying jobs in areas hard-hit by the economic downturn," said Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., who cosponsored the amendment, which was agreed to by voice vote. "This amendment protects rural post offices, with a realistic eye toward the future."

The mail agency, teetering on the brink of bankruptcy, says it needs to begin closing thousands of low-revenue post offices and mail processing centers this year as part of a billion-dollar cost-cutting effort to become profitable again by 2015. Postmaster General Patrick Donahoe previously agreed to delay post office closings until May 15 to allow Congress to pass legislation.

At stake are more than 100,000 jobs, part of a postal cost-cutting plan to save some $6.5 billion a year by closing up to 252 mail-processing centers and 3,700 post offices. But many local communities worry about layoffs, raising the ire of lawmakers in an election year.

Much of the Senate debate on Tuesday centered on finding ways to provide additional layers of protections to communities affected by potential closings. Bigger proposals that would have forced an immediate move to five-day-a-week mail delivery or establish an independent commission to make wide-ranging decisions on cuts and closings, were voted down.

The amendments approved Tuesday would:

- Delay closing of mail facilities until after the November elections to prevent disruption in states that heavily rely on voting by mail. The Postal Service had previously indicated that it would avoid most closings until after the election.

- Allow the Postal Regulatory Commission to veto any proposed postal closing that did not meet set criteria.

- Cap spending on government conferences and require all of the information to be posted on the Internet. The amendment, offered by Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., was approved on voice vote following the scandal over a federal agency spending hundreds of thousands of dollars at a training conference in Las Vegas.

The main postal bill seeks to cut about half the number of mail processing centers the Postal Service currently wants to close — from 252 to 125 — allowing more U.S. areas to maintain overnight first-class mail delivery for at least three more years. Beyond the one-year moratorium on closing rural post offices, the Postal Service would be required to undergo additional layers of approval before closing any mail facility.

In the meantime, the Postal Service would get a cash infusion of roughly $11 billion, basically a refund of overpayments it made in previous years to a federal retirement fund; the agency could use the money to pay down debt and offer buyouts to 100,000 postal employees.

A Cake that Takes Mom on a Tropical Taste Trip

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

You may not be able to jet Mom off to a tropical island to show your love, but you can at least give her a tropical treat.

The flavors in this cake will remind her of sitting on a beach, sipping a pina colada and being fanned with palm fronds. We start with a banana flavored cake, then layer it with coconut cream and fresh pineapple. You end up with a fantastic presentation and tropical getaway flavor almost as rich as those plane tickets she deserves.

Most grocers carry fresh pineapple that's been peeled and cored and is easy to slice into rings. If you can only find whole pineapples, here's how to do it. First, slice off the top and bottom of the pineapple. Using a paring knife, peel the outer scaly layer from the pineapple. For the prettiest rings, first cut the pineapple into slices, then use a small round cookie cutter or a paring knife to cut the round core out of the center.

Our recipe calls for caramelizing the pineapple rings, but the cake is just as delicious if you use the fresh pineapple as is.

Banana Colada Cake

Start to finish: 2 hours (45 minutes active). Servings: 12.

For the cake:

2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
Pinch of nutmeg
Pinch of allspice
1 1/4 cups packed light brown sugar
1 cup sour cream
6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) unsalted butter, very soft
2 eggs

4 very ripe bananas, mashed
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
For the filling:
14-ounce can light coconut milk
2 egg yolks
1 whole egg
1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch

1 fresh pineapple, peeled, cored and sliced into 1/4-inch rings
1 cup heavy cream
Toasted coconut, to garnish

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Spray two 9-inch cake pans with baking spray.

In a small bowl, sift together the flour, salt, baking soda, nutmeg and allspice. Set aside.

In a large bowl, combine the brown sugar, sour cream and butter. Use an electric mixer to beat until smooth. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, scraping the bowl after each addition. Beat in the bananas and vanilla extract. Sift the flour mixture into the wet ingredients, then stir to combine.

Divide the mixture evenly between the prepared cake pans. Bake for 25 to 30 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted at the center comes out clean. Let cool for 5 minutes and then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

While the cake is cooking, start the filling. In a medium saucepan over medium heat, bring the coconut milk to a simmer.

In a medium bowl, whisk together the egg yolks, whole egg, sugar and cornstarch. Using a ladle, slowly pour a stream of the hot coconut milk into the bowl of eggs while whisking continuously. Repeat with 2 more ladles of hot coconut milk.

Switch to whisking the coconut milk in the pan and slowly pour the warmed egg mixture back into the pan. Continuing whisking and cooking over medium heat until the mixture comes to a boil and thickens, about 2 minutes. Remove from the heat.

Pour the coconut mixture back into the bowl and cover with plastic wrap, pressing the plastic wrap directly onto the surface of the filling. Refrigerate until completely chilled.

To caramelize the pineapple, heat a saute pan over medium-high. Working in batches, place a couple pineapple rings in the pan and cook until starting to brown, about 2 to 3 minutes per side. Remove the rings to a plate and let cool. Repeat with the remaining pineapple rings until they are all caramelized.

Once all parts of the cake are ready and cooled, assemble the cake.

In a large bowl, use an electric mixer to beat the heavy cream until soft peaks form.

Whisk the chilled coconut filling until smooth. Fold half of the whipped cream into the filling. Once fully incorporated, fold in the remaining half, folding just until incorporated.

Place one of the cakes on a serving platter and spread half of the coconut cream over the top of it. Top with half of the pineapple rings, then set the second cake over that. Top the second cake with the remaining filling, then the remaining pineapple rings. Sprinkle with toasted coconut.

A SOPHISTICATED COOKIE

THE WASHINGTON POST

Don't worry about underbaking: That's exactly what you want to do for this sophisticated-tasting cookie. It should be soft in the center, slightly browned and a little crunchy around the edges. The original recipe called for candied yuzu, an Asian citrus fruit, but grated lime zest is a fine substitute.

The dough needs to be refrigerated for at least 1 hour and up to a day in advance; allow to warm a little before slicing or it will crumble. The cookies are best served on the day they're baked but can be stored in an airtight container for up to 3 days. Adapted from "Pierre Herme Pastries," by Pierre Herme (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, 2012).

Sable Azur

Makes about 60 cookies.

4 teaspoons finely grated lime zest or chopped candied yuzu (may substitute any citrus zest or candied citrus)
5 ounces bittersweet chocolate, 60 to 64 percent cacao (preferably Valrhona)
1 1/2 cups flour
1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
10 tablespoons (1 stick plus 2 tablespoons) unsalted butter, at room temperature
1/4 cup superfine sugar
1/2 cup packed light brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon fleur de sel de Guerande, or other fine sea salt

Chop the chocolate fine, so that the largest pieces are no bigger than 1/4 inch; smaller is better.

Sift the flour, cocoa and baking soda together into a medium bowl. In the bowl of a stand mixer or hand-held mixer at medium-high speed, beat the butter, sugars and salt until light and fluffy, 3 or 4 minutes. Reduce the speed to low and gradually add the flour mixture, beating until incorporated and stopping to scrape down the sides of the bowl if needed. Add the zest or yuzu and the chopped chocolate, and mix briefly to combine. The dough might seem crumbly; that's okay.

Divide the dough into 3 equal pieces and shape each into a cylinder about 1 inch in diameter and 10 inches long. If the dough is dry, press it together firmly. Wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate for 1 hour or up to 1 day.

Preheat the oven to 365 degrees, or preheat a convection oven to 340 degrees.

Line two baking sheets with parchment paper. Slice the chilled cylinders into 1/2-inch-thick rounds. As you cut them, arrange them in staggered rows about 2 inches apart on the baking sheets. Bake for 6 to 8 minutes, until the edges have begun to brown lightly but the centers are still slightly soft. Transfer the baking sheets to wire racks for 3 minutes, then transfer the cookies to wire racks to cool completely before storing in an airtight container.

year to just 17 million pounds in 2010. It recovered slightly last year, and strong prices and new varieties that hold the promise of bigger harvests have farmers hopeful again.

"We probably hit our bottom, and now, we're finally starting to bounce back," said Bill Middleton, 62, who operates an asparagus nursery and grows asparagus near Pasco in Washington's Columbia River basin.

"Prices are good. Demand is good. It's too early to tell," he said, "but the indications are that we'll have a strong year."

For an industry on the verge of disappearing, 2010 marked a rock-bottom year, said Alan Schreiber of the Washington Asparagus Commission. But in the past two years, he said, asparagus growers have halted promotions early because demand for fresh asparagus has been so high that it's all been sold.

To meet that demand, Washington farmers planted more new asparagus fields this year than the state has seen in a decade. In all, they are expected to plant slightly more than 6,000 acres, an improvement from two years ago, when they planted about 5,500 but nowhere near the 30,000 acres planted in 1990.

"After a decade of malaise, retrenchment, maybe even collapse — I don't know what you want to call it — we're seeing planting," Schreiber said. "It's not a turnaround, but it's a good sign."

Growers in California, where the asparagus season typically runs from Mid-March through June, are replacing old plants with new ones but don't expect to add a lot of acres, said Cherie Watte Angulo, executive director of the California Asparagus Commission.

Some in the industry credit Americans' efforts to eat healthier with the increased demand for asparagus. Others say a price drop caused by a bumper crop in Mexico this winter enticed more people to buy fresh asparagus.

"I'm sure a lot of consumers may have even tried asparagus for the first time," said Phil Clouse of Gourmet Trading Co. of Los Angeles, which packages and distributes fresh fruit and vegetables.

Beer Is the Secret to these Pork Chops

THE WASHINGTON POST

This recipe is Adapted from "Light & Healthy 2012: The Year's Best Recipes Lightened Up," by America's Test Kitchen (America's Test Kitchen, 2011).

Mustard-Glazed Pork Chops With Beer and Caraway

4 servings.

For the glaze:

- 1/2 cup cider vinegar
- 1/3 cup packed light brown sugar
- 1/3 cup beer, preferably lager
- 3 tablespoons whole-grain mustard
- 2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh thyme
- 2 teaspoons low-sodium soy sauce
- 3/4 teaspoon caraway

seed, toasted in a small skillet, then coarsely chopped

For the pork:

- Four 6-ounce boneless pork chops, 3/4-inch to 1-inch thick, trimmed of visible fat
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil

For the glaze: Combine the vinegar, sugar, beer, mustards, thyme, soy sauce and caraway seed in a medium bowl, stirring to incorporate.

For the pork: Pat the chops dry with paper towels. Season with the salt and pepper. Heat the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat until the oil shimmers. Add the chops; brown on one side for 4 to 6 minutes, then turn them over and cook for 1 minute.

Reduce the heat to medium; add the glaze and cook, with the glaze barely bubbling at the edges, for 5 to 8 minutes, until the meat registers 145 degrees on an instant-read thermometer. Transfer the chops to a platter, tent loosely with aluminum foil and let rest for 5 minutes.

Pour any accumulated juices from the rested chops into the skillet; cook for about 5 minutes over medium heat, whisking constantly, to thicken the glaze. Remove from the heat; return the chops to the skillet just to coat both sides. Return the chops to the platter, browned side up, pour the remaining glaze over them; serve hot.

ED GLAZAR • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Joe Aitken reads a recipe Friday from a microwave instruction booklet.

She went back to her conventional oven and hasn't looked back. What microwaves are good for, she said: warming up leftovers.

"Oh, I might throw a vegetable plate in or bake a potato that way," she said. "But that's about it. The potatoes are OK."

Visitors to the Times-News' Facebook page, who commented on a recent post about microwave cooking, belittled using the quick-cooking ovens for anything but heating foods.

"If you can cook a meal in the microwave you seriously need help!" wrote Natalie Carlson-West. "From scratch I mean!"

"Microwaves are not cooking machines they are heating machines," wrote Kellie Bloom. "Anyone who is worth a tiny hills of beans as a cook or a foodie does NOT use a microwave to create a meal."

But Bloom and other dissidents might not have visited the Food Network website that includes recipes of whole or partial meals using your microwave, including chicken florentine, fajitas and stuffed potatoes. All-recipes.com does as well, including Zucchini Dutch Cheese Casserole.

An anonymous person commented on that website: "This is soooooo easy. It took me less than the 50 minutes to complete. It turns out creamy ..."

You also can buy cookbooks specifically for microwave cooking, Joe said, pointing to one on his dining room shelf.

Another good thing about microwaves: They help to instill confidence into beginning cooks, Joe said. Though the Aitkens' foray into cooking might be only heating a store-bought meal, he said, it gives them a sense of independence.

Within less than an hour, their chicken, rice and veggies sat on plates waiting to be eaten. The chicken was moist, tender.

"The wax paper really helps," Judy said, noting that she once tried microwaving chicken uncovered, but it turned out dry.

Another benefit of microwave cooking, Joe said, gesturing toward the picture window: It doesn't heat up the house in summer. "That's huge, especially when it's 90 degrees outside."

Judy Aitken's Chicken in a Hurry

- 4 chicken breasts
- 2 cups mixed raw vegetables

Slice chicken breasts in half into thin fillets. Season as you'd like. Spray a 9-inch glass pan with cooking oil. Place fillets in pan and cover with wax paper. Place in microwave and cook for up to 20 minutes, checking occasionally for doneness.

Place vegetables into a microwave-safe container and cook on high for 5 to 10 minutes, depending how soft you like your veggies. The Aitkens used leftover rice with their meal, reheating it in the microwave for about five minutes. You can replace rice with a baked potato.

Microwave Baked Potato

- 1 large russet potato
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons shredded cheddar cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 3 teaspoons sour cream

Scrub the potato, and prick it several times with the tines of a fork. Place on a plate.

Microwave on full power for 5 minutes. Turn over, and cook for 5 more minutes. When the potato is soft, remove from the microwave, and cut in half lengthwise. Season with salt and pepper, and mash up the inside a little using a fork. Top the open sides with butter and 2 tablespoons of cheese. Return to the microwave, and cook for about 1 minute to melt the cheese.

Top with remaining cheese and sour cream, and serve.

"Cast iron is good to use because the heat spreads out through it. Don't use a nonstick pan because the focused heat will simply burn right through and ruin it," he said.

A few minutes later and the small crowd gathered for a solar cooking demonstration at the CSI campus on Friday was ready to try out the tacos. Tortillas came from a makeshift warmer, built with aluminum duct work and a glass top.

"Sitting on the asphalt the warmer can reach about 200 degrees," said CSI environmental technology student Justin Waddell, who built the small box.

Waddell said he enjoyed learning how to build solar cookers during class and liked the thought of cooking without another fuel source.

"It's simple and you don't need wood for a fire or propane for the stove or electricity," Waddell said. "You just need the sun and a way to trap heat and you can cook anything you would on the stove or oven with a solar cooker."

Although solar ovens can be built cheaply, they do take some practice. Nan Jackson, owner of Surviving in Style in Twin Falls, attempted creating a pizza-box oven to bake chocolate chip cookies on Friday.

"My sister told me about this style of oven, but you can also find a lot of designs online," Jackson said.

She wrapped the inside of a cardboard take-out box with aluminum foil and placed a sheet of black paper on the top of the box.

"They didn't turn out," Jackson said of her first cookie attempt. "It didn't get hot enough ... but I'll keep practicing."

Jackson also cooks in a store-bought solar oven. On Friday, she heated soup in the stove set up outside her store, which carries the oven for sale. Selling for about $350, it's essentially a black box with fold-out reflectors that reflect the sun's rays into the oven. A glass lid helps capture heat.

"The stove, sitting on the black asphalt, reaches 375 degrees," she said.

Like many of her customers, Jackson is comforted by knowing she can cook for her family in the event that disaster strikes and power is lost.

"You shouldn't buy one and then simply put it away until disaster happens. You should know how to use it so you are prepared," Jackson said. "There is a learning curve."

Roger Hinton, 48, of Twin Falls, bought a solar oven some 20 years ago after seeing one in a magazine advertisement.

"I thought it would be a hoot," Hinton said. "Anything you cook in a stove you can make in the solar oven."

Hinton takes his oven on annual elk hunting trips; the first time he pulled it out the other guys in camp poked fun.

"Once we were eating a hot meal they didn't think it was so bad," he said. He simply places meat with potatoes and carrots into a glass baking dish and lets the oven sit in the sun all day.

Steven and Renee Feil of Buhl have enjoyed their solar oven as well.

They bought a unit a few years ago, and although they simply enjoy cooking in it the Feils said they're also comforted in knowing they are prepared for disaster.

"Even in the summer, I enjoy a baked potato and hot meal," said Renee, 50. "We can place a meal in the cooker and at the end of the day it's done ... The best part is that I'm not roasting my kitchen and heating the entire house at the same time."

"If it's not cloudy or windy out we have the solar oven going," said Steven, 53.

Chard: What It Is and How to Use It

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

It's a beet, minus the root. Which doesn't make sense. Except it does. Because it's chard, one of a growing number of common, yet often overlooked greens lurking at your grocer.

Chard — sometimes called Swiss chard or rainbow chard (when it sports brightly colored stalks) — really is a relative of the beet. But unlike traditional beets — which put their energy into producing finger-staining roots — chard instead produces big, tender leaves and crunchy stalks.

Chard has been around for thousands of years and likely originated in the Mediterranean, where it was in heavy culinary rotation until spinach came along.

The taste depends on which part you eat, though not so much on which color. The large, firm leaves are mild, sweet, earthy and just slightly bitter; on the whole, it's a bit milder than spinach. The stalks — which can be white, yellow, red, purple, pink, striped, and so on — resemble flat celery with a sweet taste slightly reminiscent of beets.

Why is it sometimes called Swiss chard? No one knows. But we do know it has nothing to do with Switzerland.

When shopping for chard, look for bright, firm leaves and stalks. Wrapped in plastic and refrigerated, it will keep for two to four days.

How do you use it? The simple explanation is to use the leaves as you would spinach, and use the stalks as you would asparagus. But I tend to think that oversimplifies. It also requires that you treat chard as two separate vegetables — the greens and the stalks.

And there's just no way I'm separating my greens into two parts for different cooking. Who has that sort of time?

I prefer to roughly chop the leaves and finely chop the thicker stalks; this helps the two parts cook in about the same time. And I enjoy the contrast between the more tender leaves and crunchier stalks.

Generally, any flavor that works well with spinach will partner with chard, including butter, lemon, cream, garlic, shallots and vinaigrette. In fact, if you do nothing more than briefly steam or saute chopped chard, then toss it with any (or any combination) of those, you'll have a great side dish.

In Spain and Portugal, for example, chard is sauteed with olive oil, garlic, pine nuts and sometimes raisins, then dressed with lemon juice.

Try chard in this easy quiche with bacon and brie. And for more ideas for using chard, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/Hg1PP6>

Rainbow Chard, Bacon and Brie Quiche

Start to finish: 40 minutes (20 minutes active). Servings: 6.

- 1 prepared uncooked pie crust
- 8 ounces bacon, cut into small chunks
- 1 small yellow onion, diced
- 6 cups chopped rainbow chard (about 1/2 bunch)
- 5 ounces brie, cut into small chunks

- 8 eggs
- 1/3 cup milk or fat-free half-and-half
- 2 teaspoons chopped fresh thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Heat the oven to 450 degrees.

Unroll the pie crust and set into a pie pan, crimping and trimming as needed to form an even edge. Set aside.

In a large skillet over medium-high heat, combine the bacon, onion and chard. Cook until the chard has wilted and released water, about 6 minutes.

Let the bacon mixture cool slightly, then use a slotted spoon to transfer it to the crust, arranging it in an even layer. Scatter the brie evenly over it.

In a large bowl, whisk together the eggs, milk, thyme salt and pepper.

Pour the egg mixture into the tart shell, then bake for 25 minutes, or until puffed and set at the center and lightly browned at the edges. If the crust browns too quickly, use strips of foil to cover the edges.

No matter how much she would appreciate it, and no matter how much you love your mom — or the mother of your children — you aren't likely to make her croissants from scratch.

Add eager young children who want to help make breakfast in bed for their mom, and the odds get even worse.

And yet it can be done with a minimum of fuss, trouble and time. With a few carefully chosen ingredients, you can prepare delicious impossible-to-mess-up freshly baked pastries, even with the "assistance" of an army of little helpers.

The trick is to outsource the pastry. While technically not the same as true croissant dough, sheets of frozen puff pastry can stand in just fine.

They are widely available in the dessert freezer section of most grocers. And, if you care, the dough also happens to be vegan (try that with your typical buttery croissant).

Each 17.3-ounce package of pastry contains two sheets. To use them, simply thaw (don't unwrap them) at room temperature for an hour or so, or overnight in the refrigerator. After that, it's just a matter of cutting each sheet into triangles, then rolling them into crescents.

For this recipe, I kept it simple and sprinkled them with a blend of cinnamon sugar. You also could place a dollop of jam at the wide end of each triangle of dough before rolling.

Want to take it all the way? Make croissant's delicious cousin, pain au chocolat. For this, you will want to buy chocolate bars made for this purpose (baking supply shops should have these, as does King Arthur Flour Co. online). Then just wrap the thawed pastry around them (think sandwich wrap), then bake.

Or for the best of both worlds, bake the croissants as directed below, then warm a bit of Nutella chocolate hazelnut spread (microwave it in 10-second bursts) and drizzle it over them just before serving (or offer it in a small bowl on the side for dunking).

The croissants also can be cut and shaped the night before, then placed on a baking sheet, covered with plastic wrap and refrigerated.

Cinnamon Sugar Croissants

To keep the finished croissants vegan, you can substitute a few spritzes of cooking spray for the melted butter. If you like, you also can glaze the croissants after they have baked and cooled. Stir together powdered sugar, a few drops of vanilla or almond extract, and a splash of milk (just enough to make a smooth drizzle). Start to finish: 40 minutes. Makes 24 croissants.

- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 17.3-ounce package frozen puff pastry, thawed (each package contains 2 pastry sheets)
- 4 tablespoons butter, melted

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper.

In a small bowl, mix together the cinnamon and sugar. Set aside.

One at a time, unwrap and unfold the sheets of puff pastry. Use a paring knife to cut the sheet in half lengthwise. Starting in one corner, cut each half into 6 triangles. Use a rolling pin to lightly roll out each triangle to just barely flatten. Lightly brush the triangles with melted butter.

Sprinkle a bit of the cinnamon sugar over each triangle. One at a time, start with the wide end of each triangle and roll it into a log. Gently bend the ends so they curve inward to form a crescent. Transfer to the prepared baking sheets. Repeat the rolling with the remaining triangles.

Brush the tops of each croissant with a bit more butter, then sprinkle a bit more cinnamon sugar over each. Bake for 20 minutes, or until puffed and lightly browned. Let cool for several minutes, then serve warm.

Blancmange Boasts Delicate Almond Flavor

THE WASHINGTON POST

Blancmange is an ancient food that some say is the precursor to Italy's panna cotta. (The two are nearly identical.) It began as a savory dish but over centuries morphed into the sweet, custardy dessert we know today. This version has a delicate almond flavor with undertones of citrus. Serve it with a colorful combination of fresh berries, kiwi, mango or other fruit.

You might stretch your culinary abilities a bit with this recipe, in a good way. Making almond milk and working with gelatin involve useful skills that any adventurous cook will want to have. Store-bought almond milk is not a substitute.

Adapted from "Pierre Herme Pastries," by Pierre Herme (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, 2012).

Blancmange

6 servings.

1 scant cup still mineral water
1/2 cup superfine sugar
2 vanilla beans
1 3/4 cups ground almonds
1 drop almond extract
3 tablespoons cool water
1 envelope (about 2 1/4 teaspoons) powdered gelatin
1/4 teaspoon finely grated lemon zest (from about 1/4 small unwaxed lemon)
1 1/4 cups heavy whipping cream
3 cups mixed fresh berries, peeled and sliced kiwi, cubed mango or other fruit, for garnish

Combine the water and sugar in a small saucepan over medium-high heat and bring to a boil, stirring until the sugar has dissolved. Remove from the heat. Use a knife to split the vanilla beans in half lengthwise and scrape out the seeds, adding them to the saucepan. Add the almond meal and the almond extract. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Have ready an 8-inch ring mold, 6- to 8-inch round cake pan or other small metal mold with a capacity of about 4 cups. Have on hand a clean dish towel made of a loosely woven fabric (not terry cloth). Place a medium metal mixing bowl in the freezer along with the beater(s) of a stand mixer or hand-held electric mixer.

Drape the dish towel over a large bowl so that the towel touches the bottom of the bowl and overlaps the bowl's edge. Pour the almond mixture into the towel, then gather the towel up into a pouch, twisting at the top so none of the mixture escapes. Squeeze and twist the towel over the bowl to extract as much liquid as possible from the almond meal. The yield is 1/2 to 2/3 cup of almond milk.

Place the water in a very small bowl or liquid measuring cup and sprinkle the gelatin evenly over the top. Allow the gelatin to soften and set up for 7 to 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, transfer the almond milk to a small saucepan and warm it over low-medium heat; do not allow it to boil.

Add the gelatin to the almond milk and stir until the gelatin has completely dissolved. Remove the saucepan from the heat and stir in the lemon zest. Allow to cool slightly, stirring occasionally.

With the chilled beaters, beat the cream in the chilled metal bowl until it forms stiff peaks. Pour a little of the warm almond milk mixture down the side of the bowl and use a flexible spatula to carefully incorporate it into the cream; continue adding the almond milk mixture and folding to incorporate. Work as quickly and delicately as possible to avoid deflating the cream. Scrape the mixture into the prepared mold and use the spatula to level the top. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate to set the gelatin, for at least 4 hours.

Just before serving, prepare the fruit you'll be using. Slice any large strawberries, if using, into halves or quarters.

When ready to serve, unmold the blancmange: Quickly dip the bottom part of the mold into hot water and dry it with a towel. Invert a serving platter, place it over the mold and then invert both the platter and mold together. The blancmange should unmold onto the platter. (If it doesn't, re-dip quickly and try again.) Surround it with the mixed fruits and serve.

Indulging Mom with a Healthy Breakfast Muffin

BY ALISON LADMAN

For The Associated Press

Mom deserves a freshly baked breakfast in bed on her special day.

But indulging her desire for a lazy morning doesn't mean you can't also respect her efforts to eat healthy. So we crafted a Mother's Day breakfast muffin that is virtuous, richly satisfying, moist and delicious. Because no mom should have to suffer through tasteless "healthy" muffins.

Muffins often rely on large amounts of butter or oil to stay moist. Our golden muffins rely instead on a combination of applesauce, low-fat sour cream and a touch of honey and oil. To further lower the fat, we used egg whites instead of whole eggs.

Because these muffins are not low in sugar (there has to be at least a little indulgence), be sure to select unsweetened applesauce. Plus, the sugar is balanced by all the fiber from the whole-wheat flour, bran and raisins.

If you have any left after breakfast, these muffins make a great afternoon snack served with hot tea. Store any leftovers in an airtight container at room temperature.

If your raisins are a bit on the dry, chewy side, plump them back up by microwaving them in a bowl of water for 2 minutes. Let them sit for 10 minutes, then drain. If Mom doesn't care for raisins, substitute another dried fruit, such as chopped apricots or cranberries.

Applesauce Bran Muffins

Start to finish: 30 minutes. Servings: 16.

1/4 cup vegetable or canola oil
1/4 cup low-fat sour cream
1 cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 3/4 cups white whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup wheat bran
1 1/4 cups applesauce
1/2 cup raisins

Heat the oven to 400 degrees. Line a muffin pan with muffin papers, then lightly spray the papers with cooking spray.

In a large bowl, whisk together the honey, oil, sour cream, brown sugar, vanilla and egg whites.

In another bowl, whisk together the cinnamon, baking powder, baking soda, salt, flour and wheat bran. Stir half of the flour mixture into the wet ingredients. Add the applesauce and stir together. Add the rest of the flour mixture, then the raisins.

Divide the batter between the prepared muffin cups and bake for 15 to 20 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted at the center of the muffins comes out clean. Allow to cool in the pan for 5 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

Per serving: 190 calories; 35 calories from fat (18 percent of total calories); 4 g fat (0.5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 0 mg cholesterol; 37 g carbohydrate; 3 g protein; 3 g fiber; 190 mg sodium.

What's the Story behind Boursin Cheese?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS

McClatchy Newspapers

Question: I recently saw a recipe that called for boursin cheese. What is that? And since the recipe didn't specify a flavor, which one should I get?

Answer: Boursin is a brand name for a creamy spread that's a little like crumbly cream cheese. It was created in 1963 by a Frenchman named Francois Boursin and it used to only be made in France. These days, it's made in America by Unilever.

It comes in a number of flavors, including garlic and herb (the most common), pepper, shallot and chive and roasted red pepper. Since your recipe is for a pasta dish, any of the flavors would be fine, particularly the garlic and herb.

You can make a homemade version of Boursin by beating 16 ounces of cream cheese and 8 ounces of butter with 1 to 2 teaspoons of mixed, dried herbs and 1 teaspoon of minced garlic. It will keep in the refrigerator for a couple of weeks.

OBITUARIES

Reta Rae Strickland

May 8, 1931-April 20, 2012

ELKO, Nev. • On a beautiful Friday afternoon in April, our family lost their sweet, quietly elegant mother. We will miss her beautiful smile and loving acceptance of us all. We were all in awe of her timeless intelligence and charming wit. Mom was a wonderful homemaker and an accomplished knitter and seamstress. Some of Mom's favorite pastimes were reading mystery novels, watching NASCAR racing and going on fishing trips with our Dad. In 1991, she caught a record small mouth bass at South Fork Reservoir. There was nothing Mom loved better than to be surrounded by her children and grandchildren.

March 18, 1950 in Elko, Nev. They had seven children. She spent many years raising her family and working in the gaming industry throughout establishments in Elko, Nev.

Preceding her in death were her parents, Bryan and Blanche Coppinger; and a brother, Eugene Alan Coppinger. She is survived by her husband, Troy Strickland; and seven children, Connie (Jerry) Thorne of Syracuse, Utah, Michael (Brenda) Strickland, Debra (Tim) Dory and Danny (Stephanie) Strickland, all of Reno, Nev., Barbara (Virgil) Boner and Diane (Rick) Stedtmitz of Spring Creek, Nev., and Patricia Reece of Elko, Nev.; along with 10 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Arrangements for cremation have been made with Burns Funeral Home. A private memorial with family members is planned for Saturday, April 28, in Spring Creek.

In her memory, donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Hospital or a charity of donor's choice in lieu of flowers.

William Harold (Bill) Jury Sr.

July 15, 1931-April 11, 2012

EVERETT, Wash. • William Harold (Bill) Jury Sr., age 80, passed away Wednesday, April 11, 2012, in Everett, Wash., with his children and grandchildren by his side.

Bill was born in Oshkosh, Wis., to George and Clara Jury Sr. on July 15, 1931. He joined the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in 1948. While stationed in Moses Lake, Wash., he met and married Dorothy Marie Luker of Wenatchee, Wash. They were married just short of 50 years and had four children, William H. "Bill" Jury, Jr. (Robin) of Marysville, Wash., John D. Jury of Everett, Wash., Shelly Jury-Howard (Scott) of Stanwood, Wash., and Russell Jury.

During their marriage, Bill and Dot made homes in Wenatchee, Mountlake Terrace, Everett and Marysville, Wash. Bill had many jobs, including project engineer for Baugh Construction, superintendent for Meher Drywall and facility maintenance carpenter for the Boeing Company at the Everett plant. He retired from Boeing in July 1993.

After being snowbirds for several years and losing Dot to cancer, Bill met his second wife, Della Louise Klebe, in Yuma, Ariz. They married in April 2001 and made their home together in Della's hometown of Filer, combining their lives for 10 happy years. Della also had four children, Jim Fields (Barbara) of Filer, Steve Fields (Diane) of Boise, Pat Lucich (Ed) of Twin Falls and Jeanne Giltner (Rod) of Boise.

Bill was a long-time member and deacon of the Mountlake Terrace Church of Christ and the Genesis Masonic Lodge. He was also a member of the Filer First Baptist Church and was instrumental in its building expansion.

Bill is survived by his seven children; 17 grandchildren; 30 great-grandchildren; and his siblings, George Jr. (Laura) of Paris, Texas, Jack of Oshkosh, Wis., and Tom (Sandy) of Glasgow, Ky.; as well as numerous nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents; several siblings; first wife, Dot; second wife, Della; son, Bill Jr.; and infant son, Russell.

Bill was a loving and giving man. He coached his sons in Little League baseball and was team manager for his grandsons' ball teams. His blended family meant the world to him. He was at his happiest when surrounded by his kids, grands and greats.

A celebration of Bill's life will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 28, at the Marysville Church of Christ, 4226 92nd St. in Marysville, Wash. Arrangements are being handled by A Sacred Moment, 1910 120th SE in Everett, Wash. A memorial will be conducted in Filer at a later date.

Larry Edward Rose

Aug. 20, 1947-April 22, 2012

GLENN'S FERRY • Larry Edward Rose, 64, of Glens Ferry, passed away Sunday, April 22, 2012, at his home following an illness.

A viewing will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at Rost Funeral Home, McMurtrey Chapel in Mountain Home. A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, April 27, in the Glens Ferry Middle School gymnasium; inurnment will follow at the Glenn Rest Cemetery in Glens Ferry. Larry loved serving the community. He served on the Glens Ferry City Council and later served as Elmore County commissioner for 14 years. In 14 years, Larry had only missed one meeting until his health failed.

Larry is survived by his wife, Cheryl; his son, Jason and his wife Teddy of Boise; his daughters, Amy Dawn of Wendell, and Amanda and her husband Geoff Huettten of Puyallup, Wash.; his father, K.O. Rose of Shoshone; his brothers, Tony Rose and his wife Audrey of Pueblo West, Colo., and K.M. Rose and his wife Ellen of Bozeman, Mont.; brother-in-law, Bob Janousek and his wife Mary; and sisters-in-law, Laree Reuter, and Judy Miller and husband Lynn; and his precious grandchildren, Adam, Max, Sam and Olivia Rose, and Kaelee, Brielle and Kiera Huettten; plus several special nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his mother, Mary Rose; mother-in-law, Tressie Spencer; and fathers-in-law, Eugene Spencer and Virgil Janousek.

The family asks that their charity go to St. Jude Children's Cancer Research Hospital, the Glens Ferry Senior Center or the Glens Ferry Methodist Church.

Dean Knight

Sept 5, 1936-April 21, 2012

GREAT FALLS, Mont. • Heaven has been graced with the return of Dean. After a long illness, Dean died peacefully with his family by his side in Great Falls, Mont.

Dean was born in Hailey, Idaho, to Andrew and Doris Knight. He grew up on a ranch just outside of Hailey, where he discovered his lifelong passion of horses. Along with that passion was a deep-seated case of wanderlust. He spent his life moving from one place to the other. He said he moved for work but probably more for the adventure of something new. He lived all over Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, New Mexico and, most recently, Montana. He mined, drove truck/heavy equipment, washed dishes, mixed paint and broke horses. Horses were one of the most important things in his life. By his estimate, he broke more than 300 head of horses, the last one being after his 70th birthday. It broke his heart to not be able to ride anymore. Be assured that he is catching up for lost time now.

Dean is survived by his longtime companion, Kathy Johnson; children, Sandy Fox (Gary) of Hailey, Idaho, Larry Knight (Lilly) of Salt Lake City, Utah, Jack Knight of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, JeriAnn Knight and Julie Knight (Gary), both of Great Falls, Mont.; grandchildren, Jeremy Ivie, Amber Knight, Aaron Lemker, Danielle Ivie, Sara Knight, Tasia Knight, Micheal Knight, River Dwyer, Dakota Dwyer, Meghan Hopwood and Kendra Knight; as well as seven great-grandchildren. He is also survived by brothers, Bob Knight (Loudine) and Harold Knight (Linda); and sister, Margie Bryant. There are way too many nieces and nephews to mention, but he loved them all.

A service will be held Aug. 9 in Hailey, Idaho. Please email Julie Knight at knightshine1@yahoo.com for more information.

Fern Gertrude Jones (Gram)

April 10, 1916-April 23, 2012

HAILEY • Fern passed away Monday, April 23, 2012, in Hailey.

Fern was born in Fairfield, Ind., on April 10, 1916. She moved with her family to Hailey, Idaho, in 1926. She graduated from Hailey High School, went to Link's Business College in Boise and raised a huge family of seven boys.

Fern enjoyed the wild outdoors, camping, flowers, birds and wildlife, and fishing. She worked as a housekeeper, then as a secretary for Neyman Chevrolet and Blaine County Hospital, then for the Sun Valley Lodge and as a housekeeper for the Sun Valley Hospital for five years; she was head housekeeper for 15 years. Fern retired in 1990. After retirement, she spent time with all of her family.

Fern is survived by William (Bill) Jones, Robert (Lee) Jones and Jay Jones. She was preceded in death by her other sons, Hiram, Charles, Donald and Fred.

A service will be at 1 p.m. Friday, April 27, at the Community Baptist Church in Hailey. Interment will follow in the Hailey Cemetery under the care of Wood River Chapel. You may share your own thoughts and memories with the family by visiting

Juanita Qualls

Nov. 26, 1930-April 23, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Juanita Qualls, age 81, passed away Monday, April 23, 2012, after a brief, courageous battle with cancer.

She was born Nov. 26, 1930, in Twin Falls, Idaho, to E.W. and Nellie Connerley. She attended schools in Twin Falls, where she met the love of her life. Juanita and Tim Qualls were married Jan. 17, 1948, in Ely, Nev. They were blessed with two children, a son and a daughter. Her family was her life and, after Tim's death May 23, 1997, she was totally devoted to her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Juanita is survived by her brothers, Alvin Connerley and Arlie (Star) Connerley of Lewiston; her children, Dean (Marilyn) Qualls of Emmett, Idaho, and Sherie (Rex) Champneys of Kimberly, Idaho; grandchildren, Dennis (Megan) Qualls, Eta Kay (Kent) Schumaker, Tim Qualls, Anna Qualls, Kent (Anna) Champneys and Angela Champneys; great-grandchildren, Kelly and Zarina Qualls, Rhone Schumaker, Cooper, Aaron and Hadley Bee Champneys, and Ashton Anderson. She is also survived by sisters and brothers-in-law and many nieces and nephews. She is preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Tim Qualls; and two sisters, Lucille Maddox and Mary Olsen.

Nita was a loving mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, sister, aunt and friend. We love her dearly and will miss her greatly 'till we see her again.

A graveside service will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday, April 26, at Sunset Memorial Park, where she will be laid to rest at her husband's side. Arrangements are under the direction of Rose-nau Funeral Home.

The family suggests memorial donations be made to the American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 22718, Oklahoma City, OK 73123-1718.

OBITUARIES

Shery Lynn Widmier Brown

Feb. 7, 1943-April 23, 2012

BURLEY • Shery Lynn Widmier Brown of Burley, passed away Monday, April 23, 2012, at the Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert at the age of 69.

Shery was born in Rio Tinto, Nev., on Feb. 7, 1943, to Robert Oliver and Thelma Sanford Widmier. She was the third of nine children. Shery was raised on the family farm in Paul, graduating from Mimico High School in 1961. In the fall of 1975, Shery married James (Jim) Brown in Paul. Shery held various jobs doing clerical work, including front desk manager at the Ponderosa Inn in Burley and the Red Lion Inn in Twin Falls, and front-end manager of IGA Grocery in Salmon. She also worked in the hospitality industry as a short-order cook at her brother, Mike's, cafe, as a bartender in Oregon City, Ore., and as a waitress/bartender at George K's Restaurant in Burley. For the past 11 years, she has been the loving caregiver to her sister, Kathleen. She also played an integral role in the lives of her nieces and nephews, especially Kevin Mallory and Karalee Anderson, along with Kaleb, Aliah and Kiyall Widmier. Shery loved to do crewel work, read, can and cook.

She is survived by her six brothers and sisters, Robert (Diane) Widmier of Murtaugh, Sheryll (Larry) Mallory and Kathleen Widmier, all of Burley, David (Debra) Widmier of Winchester, Idaho, Dennis Widmier of Burley and Craig (Liza) Widmier of Mountain Green, Utah. She was preceded in death by her parents, Robert and Thelma Widmier; two brothers, Kirk Widmier and Michael Widmier; her husband, Jim Brown; and a nephew, Cyrus Widmier.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, April 27, at the Rasmussen Funeral Home, 1350 E. 16th St. in Burley, with Bishop Kenneth Turner officiating. Burial will be in the Paul Cemetery. Friends may call from 6 until 8 p.m. Thursday, April 26, and from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Friday at the Rasmussen Funeral Home.

BUHL • Our loving mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, Lois Marie Cooper, 81, passed away Sunday, April 22, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Lois was born April 17, 1931, in Olathe, Colo., to Joseph and Millie Boyer. She married David Robert Cooper on Nov. 24, 1948, in Grand Junction, Colo., and they moved to Buhl shortly after. Lois was a wonderful mother and homemaker. She worked hard and kept her kids in line. She loved to make quilts and enjoyed family gatherings.

She was preceded in death by her husband, David Cooper; brothers, Dean Boyer and Richard Boyer; sisters, Francis Cooper, Opal Land and Ruth Anselmo. Lois is survived by sons, David Lee (Toni) Cooper, Russell (Sharie) Cooper, Leslie (Rosalinda) Cooper and Jody Cooper, all of Buhl; daughter, Elaine (Larry) Sisson of Buhl; brothers, Bill (Veronica) Boyer and Bob (Loretta) Boyer, both of California; eight grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

A funeral will be at 2 p.m. Friday, April 27, at the Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl. A viewing will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

Otis Owen Edwards

Jan. 22, 1920-April 20, 2012

MALTA • Otis Owen Edwards died in his home in Malta on Friday, April 20, 2012, at the age of 92.

Otis was born to Gordon and Nina Sorenson Edwards in Almo, Idaho, on Jan. 22, 1920, the second oldest of eight children, Rex (Faye) Edwards, Norma (Stan) Zunino, Wanda May (Blaine) Tubbs, Dale (Jeanne) Edwards, Dona (Duane) Skinner, Arlene (Lee) Kimber and Nelda (Olene) Spurgeon.

Otis was preceded in death by his wives, Georgia Judd and Barbara Jane Tolman Edwards; two sons, Calvin and Clifford; two brothers, Rex and Dale; and two sisters, Norma and Dona. His surviving children include Verda Kay (Sam) Brady, Karen (Dale) Larson, Gordon (Marcile) Edwards, Paul (Karen) Edwards and Carolyn (Chris) Allen.

Otis would have remained a cowboy all his life if things would have gone the way he wanted, but life, responsibility and family drew him to a long and enjoyable career with Raft River Electric. He enjoyed all the many friends he and Barbara made there and retired after 25 years. Otis enjoyed watching Gordon show his mule, Holly, at the area mule shows after retirement until Barbara's illness forced them to move to Pocatello. Otis could be seen walking around the mall and was easily recognized by that brisk walk and swinging arms. Otis didn't much like city living but stayed busy helping Calvin and Carolyn in their businesses as he could. Otis was grateful to spend his last 2½ years being cared for by Paul and Karen in his home in Malta.

Otis leaves a passel of grandchildren and great-grandchildren who he loved so very, very much.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 28, at the Malta LDS Church, with Bishop Brad Hutchison officiating. Burial will be in the Sunny Cedar Rest Cemetery in Almo. Friends may call from 10 until 10:45 a.m. Saturday at the church. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home in Burley.

Dinner in 20 Minutes: Mint Makes this Beef

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK

The Washington Post

With the suggested number of peppers, Spicy Mint Beef lives up to its name. But it could easily be toned down for those who live on the mild side.

This recipe is from Food Network megastar Giada De Laurentiis' new book, "Weeknights With Giada" (Clarkson Potter).

Tossing in Thai basil and mint at the end makes the dish. Black soy sauce and/or sweet soy sauce are available at Asian markets. If they aren't easy for you to track down, De Laurentiis suggests using instead 1/4 cup soy sauce with 1/4 cup honey or sugar whisked in.

Serve with instant brown rice.

Spicy Mint Beef

4 servings.

One-pound piece sirloin steak
4 cloves garlic
3 small shallots
3 Thai (bird's-eye) red chili peppers or small serrano peppers
1 medium (4 ounces) red bell pepper
3 tablespoons vegetable or canola oil
3 tablespoons fish sauce
2 tablespoons sweet soy sauce
2 tablespoons black soy sauce
1 tablespoon Sriracha (hot chili sauce)
1 1/2 cups packed (about 2.4 ounces) Thai (purple) basil
1 cup packed (.66 ounces; 1 clamshell pack) mint leaves

Place the steak in the freezer while you prep the other ingredients. (This will make the meat easier to cut.)

Mince the garlic cloves. Cut the shallots crosswise into very thin slices. Stem and seed the Thai or serrano peppers, then cut crosswise into very thin slices. Stem and seed the red bell pepper, then cut into very thin strips. Cut the steak crosswise into very thin slices. Heat the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat, until the oil shimmers. Add the garlic and the small peppers; stir-fry for about 30 seconds, until they are fragrant, then add the shallots and bell pepper. Stir-fry for 1 minute, then add the fish sauce, sweet soy sauce, black soy sauce and Sriracha. Reduce the heat to medium; cook for 2 minutes, stirring often, until the vegetables are tender.

Increase the heat to medium-high; add the meat and cook for 5 to 7 minutes, stirring a few times, or until just cooked through.

While the meat is cooking, coarsely chop the Thai basil and mint leaves (together is fine).

Remove the skillet from the heat; stir in the basil and mint until they are just wilted. Divide among individual bowls or plates; serve warm.

Show Mom Your Love with Cheesy Baked Eggs in Bed

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Mother's Day is, of course, the day you serve the hard-working mother in your life a delicious breakfast in bed. And these baked eggs are a fantastic — and easy — way to do that.

If you aren't inclined to serve them in bed, they are just as at home on the brunch table. Accompany them with buttered toast for dipping and fruit salad.

Mother's Day Eggs en Cocotte

Start to finish: 25 minutes. Servings: 4.

- 4 tablespoons heavy cream, divided
- 4 tablespoons shredded prosciutto
- 4 eggs
- 4 tablespoons herbed chevre (soft goat cheese)
- Ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh tomato
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme

Heat the oven to 375 degrees. Arrange four 4-ounce ramekins in a baking dish. Bring a small saucepan of water to a boil.

Pour 1/2 tablespoon of cream into the bottom of each ramekin. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the shredded prosciutto into each, then top with an egg. Top each egg with 1 tablespoon of the goat cheese and another 1/2 tablespoon of the cream. Sprinkle each lightly with pepper.

Pour enough boiling water into the baking dish to come halfway up the sides of the dishes, being careful not to get any in the ramekins.

Carefully move the baking dish to the oven and bake for 15 minutes, or until the whites are just set. Remove the ramekins from the baking dish and top each with 1 tablespoon of tomato and a sprinkle of thyme. Serve immediately.

A Sponge Cake That Impresses

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

THE WASHINGTON POST

This recipe calls for potato flour, which isn't the same as potato starch.

Never open the oven door when a sponge cake is baking; because it has no leavening, the cake will collapse.

Adapted from "Pierre Herme Pastries," by Pierre Herme (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, 2012).

Savoy Sponge Cake

Makes one tube or Bundt cake (12 to 16 servings).

- Unsalted butter, for greasing the pan
- 3/4 cup potato flour (not potato starch; see headnote), plus more for flouring the pan
- 2 1/4 cups superfine sugar
- 3 vanilla beans
- 7 large eggs, separated into yolks and whites, at room temperature
- 3/4 cup all-purpose flour
- Dash fleur de sel de Guerande, or other fine sea salt

Preheat the oven to 340 degrees. Use butter to grease an 8-inch tube or Bundt cake pan with a capacity of 12 cups. Sprinkle with potato flour, then invert the pan and tap sharply to remove any excess.

Place the sugar in the bowl of a stand mixer or hand-held electric mixer. Split the vanilla beans in half lengthwise, scrape out the seeds and add them to the sugar. Add the egg yolks. Beat at medium-high speed until pale and fluffy, about 4 minutes, stopping to scrape the sides of the bowl as needed. Your goal is to beat as much air into the mixture as possible.

Sift the flours together into a medium bowl.

Beat the egg whites and salt in the bowl of a stand mixer or hand-held electric mixer first at medium speed, then at high speed until the whites form stiff peaks. Use a flexible spatula to delicately fold the egg whites into the sugar-and-yolk mixture, then carefully fold in the sifted flours, deflating the whites as little as possible.

Pour the batter into the prepared pan to come two-thirds of the way up the side. Bake for 45 to 50 minutes. Check for doneness by inserting the tip of a small knife in the center; it should come out clean.

Let the cake cool in the pan for 15 minutes, then unmold it onto a wire rack. Cool completely before cutting and serving.

DINNER IN 30 MINUTES: SALMON AND SUSHI RICE

BY BONNIE S. BENWICK
The Washington Post

This dish is basic and savory; comfort food, in fact. We've used a rice cooker here, but the rice can be prepared in a pot on the stove. And this is a low-effort recipe, good for novice or occasional cooks.

Don't have sake? In a pinch, you can substitute 2 (more) tablespoons of the rice vinegar or mirin you're already using for this dish.

Serve with a first course of miso soup, or with a side of seaweed salad or grilled scallions. Adapted from "Nigella Kitchen," by Nigella Lawson (Hyperion, 2010).

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

Salmon and Sushi Rice With Hot, Sweet and Sour Asian Sauce

4 servings.

- 1 1/2 cups white short-grain or sushi rice
- 3 1/4 cups water
- 2 medium cloves garlic
- 2 small red Thai or bird's-eye chili peppers
- 3-inch piece ginger root
- 1-pound piece skinless salmon fillet, preferably wild-caught and center-cut
- 2 limes
- 2 tablespoons fish sauce
- 2 tablespoons unseasoned rice wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons sake (see headnote)
- 2 tablespoons mirin (sweet Japanese rice wine)

Place the rice in a fine-mesh strainer or colander with small holes.

Soak/rinse the rice for a total of 6 minutes, then drain; the water should run relatively clear by that time.

Transfer to a rice cooker and add 3 cups and 2 tablespoons of the water. Cook for about 20 minutes, at which time the water should be absorbed.

Meanwhile, heat a smooth griddle or well-seasoned cast-iron skillet over medium heat. Lay a large piece of aluminum foil on the counter.

Prep the following ingredients, placing them in a medium bowl as you work: Mince the garlic. Stem and seed the chili peppers, then mince. Peel, then finely grate the ginger to yield at least 1 1/2 tablespoons.

Run your fingers briefly over the salmon, removing any pin bones that might be remaining. Use paper towels to pat the salmon dry. Place on the heated griddle or in the skillet and cook for about 4 minutes, then gently turn it over (trying to preserve its one-piece status) and cook for no more than 2 minutes on the second side. The salmon should be just opaque and cooked in the center. Transfer to the foil and seal to form a baggy package so the salmon stays warm.

Cut the limes in half, then squeeze the juice from both halves into the bowl (with the minced ingredients) to yield 2 tablespoons. Add the fish sauce, rice wine vinegar, sake, mirin and the remaining 2 tablespoons of water; stir to form a sauce. Discard the foil; divide the salmon among individual plates, flaking it gently as you go. By this time the rice should be done; fluff with a fork, then divide among the plates. Drizzle some of the sauce over the rice and fish portions. Serve right away, pass the remaining sauce at the table.

Variation: To cook the rice on the stove top, soak/rinse and drain as directed above. Combine the rice and water in a medium saucepan. Bring to a boil over medium-high heat, then reduce the heat to medium-low; cover and cook for about 12 minutes or until the water is absorbed and the rice is tender, checking several times to make sure the rice isn't sticking to the bottom of the pan. Remove from the heat and let it sit, covered, for 5 to 8 minutes. Uncover and fluff with a fork.

CSI Softball Sweeps Treasure Valley CC

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho softball team made a successful step outside of Scenic West Athletic Conference play on Tuesday, sweeping Treasure Valley Community College 7-0 and 10-6.

With the wins CSI hit the 40-win mark for the fifth straight season (40-15).

In Game 1 the Golden Eagles got a solid pitching performance from Jessi Duncan, who struck out 10 batters in five innings while yielding just one hit. Grace Combs came on to complete the shutout, and Nikki Brailsford and Patti Ferguson both drove in two runs to pace the offense.

The nightcap was more adventurous as CSI led 3-1 in the bottom of the fourth, before Lea Hopson smacked a grand slam to break the game open. Nellie Makings allowed three runs in six innings, striking out nine as CSI built the lead to 10-3.

The Chukars, however, scored three in the top of the seventh and ultimately put the tying run at the plate before Combs induced a groundout to end the game.

Burley Hires New Wrestling Coach

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Burley High has chosen Sean Anderson to be its next head wrestling coach.

Anderson, a science teacher at Burley Junior High, stepped in as interim coach and finished out the final month of the 2011-12 wrestling season after Ted Tateoka, a community coach, resigned.

Since taking the permanent role, Anderson has already hit the ground running.

“The thing he’s doing right out of the gates is he’s here two nights a week working with the younger kids,” said Burley athletic director Gordon Kerbs. “We’re fortunate to have him. He stepped up when we were in need and proved he can do a good job for us. I’m excited that he is interested in the program and wants to see it be successful. I think he’s a good fit for what we want to do.”

Anderson expects a challenge, as Burley wrestling has deteriorated in recent years and finished last season with only nine varsity wrestlers in the program.

“With that atrophy that has occurred here in Burley, I don’t foresee turning it around in one season,” Anderson said. “It’s going to be a work in progress. ... It’s not all about the number of kids, but we’re looking for those boys who are willing to step up and work to become better athletes. As individuals they need to get better every time they step on the mat and as a team we need to get better.”

Anderson attended high school in Rawlins, Wyo., before earning his associate’s degree at Ricks College (now BYU-Idaho) and a bachelor’s from the University of Wyoming. He began wrestling in the fourth grade, wrestled through high school and briefly at Ricks.

NFL DRAFT

Free Agency Helps, But Draft Is Key

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • The haul in free agency and through trades has strengthened the Broncos, Bills and Bears. Now comes the lifeblood of any NFL team: the draft.

Denver merely landed the best quarterback ever to hit free agency, Peyton Manning. Buffalo homed in on one player to be a difference maker, 2006 top overall draft pick Mario Williams, and signed him before his only visit to a team ended. Chicago dealt for the No. 1 receiver it lacked, getting Brandon Marshall, and bolstered its roster by signing running back Michael Bush and even a quality backup quarterback behind the injury-prone Jay Cutler in Jason Campbell.

Those moves make all three franchises, none of which had a winning record in 2011 — yes, we know, the Broncos won the pitiful AFC West at 8-8 — more viable contenders.

With Manning aboard, the Broncos are in a win-now mode.

“I think the bottom line is we want to do the best thing to surround him with a team that’s going to give him an opportunity to win,”

Broncos boss John Elway said. “We want to come out of every draft ... with players that are impact players. As I said last year, you have a lot more misses in my mind when you draft to need, so we’re going to find the best players in positions of need, but also try to find those impact players that are going to come in and help us right away.”

“We’re talking about now. Impact doesn’t necessarily mean a starter, but one that can come in and help us win.”

Unquestionably, Manning is the major addition, as influential a newcomer as you can get. Denver could use an upgrade at receiver, and the Broncos just might target one at No. 25 overall.

“If you look at where we were and where we are, the offensive mindset is a little bit different than it was. That is going to change the type of people that we are looking at offensively,” Elway said. “Defensively, nothing has changed other than the fact that we’ve gotten to know (defensive coordinator) Jack Del Rio and the type of people he likes and the style that he is going to play defensively.”

Blistering Boise Tops Canyon Ridge Invite

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Sweltering as Tuesday’s conditions at Twin Falls Golf Club were, Boise High’s boys were even hotter.

Kyle Mitsunaga carded a 3-under 65 and No. 4 golfer Eryk Broxson fired an under-par round as well, as Boise put two in the top four and sealed a team win at the Canyon Ridge Invitational.

“Conditions were great and the course is great shape. We’ve got a really good team and really anyone can be the No. 1 on a day,” said Mitsunaga, perhaps better known for his hockey exploits — the junior is regarded as an elite-level player for his age and has committed to NCAA Division I St. Cloud

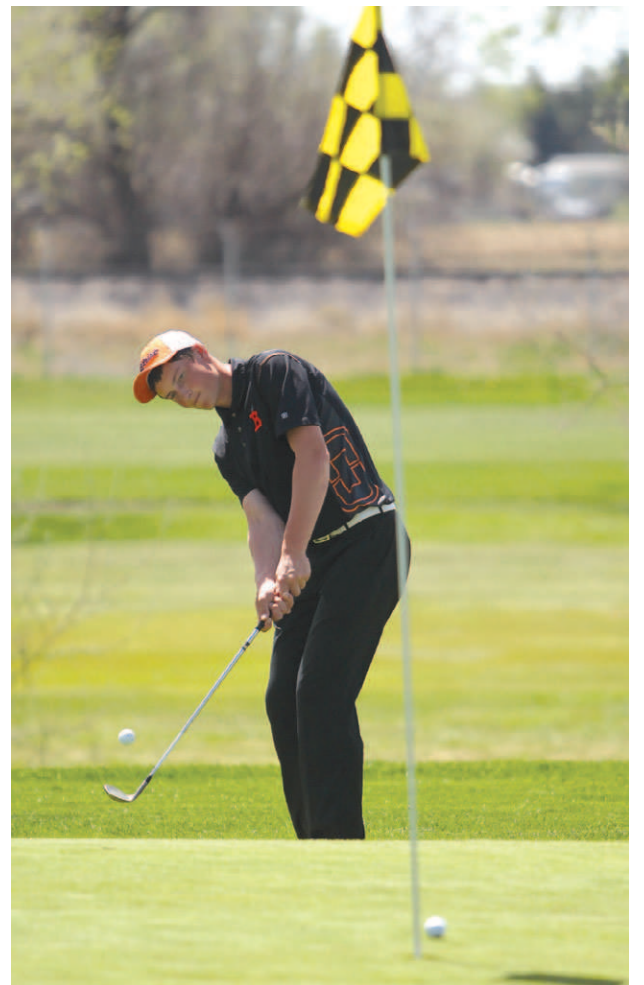

State (Minn.). “I just got back from (playing hockey in) California and I’m getting used to everything again, so this is a good start.”

Mitsunaga finished a shot ahead of Eagle’s Aden Cowley and two ahead of Broxson Century’s Drew Carlson.

Boise ended Twin Falls’ run of victories in tournaments it’s entered this season, but the school was no less dominant even in defeat.

Splitting their 10 golfers between two teams, the Bruins’ “Blue” team finished three shots back of Boise in second place, two ahead of Eagle. The “White” team shot an even 300. Both were ahead of any other District IV rival — the next closest was Canyon Ridge’s Crimson team, which shot a 311.

BRUINS’ LEE SUPPLIES NUTS AND JOLTS

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Bruins’ golfer Sydney Lee joked afterward that she was just trying to knock out her competition from Wood River.

Lee innocently ate her bag of trail mix on the front nine of Canyon Springs Golf Course Tuesday morning when playing partner Jennie Williams caught a whiff of peanut.

The slight breeze carried the smell and Williams — who has a severe allergy to peanuts — began to suffer symptoms of an allergic reaction. Her tongue started to itch, her throat turned scratchy and started to swell. She began to have an anxiety attack.

“I had almost finished the whole bag of trail mix and she’s like, ‘Are those peanuts?’ She told me what was going to happen and I was like, ‘Please don’t die. I would feel terrible if you die. I wouldn’t even know what to say,’” said Lee, who shot a 79 at the Canyon Ridge Invitational. “I felt so bad. I had no idea. The Wood River coach is going to give me crap for that one for a long time.”

“She tried to kill me,” Williams deadpanned after carding an 85. “No, I usually remind people (about the allergy), but I forgot to tell them. That was not very good and I felt it (coming) and knew it would be a bad one, so I took some Benadryl and it was OK. It got to my head a little bit, and I wanted to play better golf after that happened.”

Williams shook off the reaction a few holes later after making the turn, recording an eagle on the 13th and a birdie on 14.

“I needed to get it out of my head. I had a bad time on the front nine. My throat started closing. I needed to get that out of my head and focus on my game,” said the Wood River golfer. “I stuck to it, nailed my drives. I kind of freaked out about that (the eagle). It was a huge turnaround in my score.”

she nor Lee could catch Rocky Mountain sophomore Ryleigh Moore.

She won the invitational with a 75, scorching the first 12 holes to drop to 3-under. She struggled on the final three holes, going triple-bogey on No. 16, but finished three strokes ahead of teammates Carson Pickett and Gabrielle Gilsbrecht.

“I’ve know her forever. I remember when we were like 8 years old, she beat me in a tournament in McCall and I was so mad at her. Ever since then, I’ve just know the name and I haven’t really played with her,” said Lee, who birdied 16 and 17 and finished fourth. “So when I saw I was playing with her that got into my head a little bit.”

Jerome Baseball Beats Buhl, Lightning

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Buhl and Jerome's doubleheader was delayed an hour and half due to lightning, but the Tigers came out of the long break and beat the Indians 10-0 and 7-1 – the second game just a four inning affair due to darkness.

Zach Thibault went 3-for-6 on the day with three doubles and four RBI, while Cameron Ahrens and Ethan Bragg combined to allow just two hits in the Game 1 shutout.

Jerome (14-5, 8-4 Great Basin Conference) wraps up the regular season beginning with a pivotal series against Minico, beginning with a single game Friday in Rupert. The winner of the series earns the No. 2 seed in the District IV tournament.

Rocky Mountain won the invite with a 320, Twin Falls finished second, carding a 337 as Lee's teammates, Katherine Reed and Emma Bride shot 84 and 85, respectively.

Class 2A DeClo was the only other school to place in the top five, finishing fifth with 424 points, led by Jacqueline Gibby, who shot an 84.

Kyle Miley and Connor Meyerhoeffer, Twin Falls teammates but in different Bruin fivesomes on Tuesday, led the local contingent with an even-par 68. Miley finished fifth and Meyerhoeffer sixth, as ties were broken on a scorecard count-back to determine the top six finishers, each of whom was awarded a medal.

Miley was on the runner-up Blue squad, and he felt he left a few strokes on the course that could have made a difference in the team race. He conceded, however, that a team 10-over is close to where they want to be in three weeks' time.

"I had six birdies, but I had four bogeys and a double (bogey). I've definitely shot better," Miley said. "It was a tough day, but we've been shooting about 5 over par as a team. Two rounds of 10 over should have us in contention (at state)."

Twin Falls Blue finished 15 shots ahead of the next closest Class 4A team, Century, which finished

Buhl led the Class 3A and ranks with a team score of 313, one ahead of Filer. Kimberly sophomore Matt HoChee led the 3A-2A golfers with a 71.

The Golden Eagles, who have won eight of their last nine, are off this weekend. They can clinch a first-round bye in the Region 18 Tournament if Salt Lake Community College wins its series this weekend with Snow College. Salt Lake has already wrapped up a bye and will clinch the Scenic West title with a series split this weekend.

CSI closes the regular season May 4-5 at home against Western Nevada.

CSI BASEBALL, SOFTBALL ADD PLAYERS

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho baseball and softball programs added a combined three athletes to their recruiting classes, as the baseball team brought on two more players and the softball squad upped its signing class by one to seven.

CSI's baseball team again raided Las Vegas to sign Jordan Godman and A.J. Van Meentren to an NJCAA National Letter of Intent.

Van Meentren is a corner infielder for six-time reigning Class 4A champion Bishop Gorman. Godman has stolen 15 bases as the leadoff hitter for Arbor View High School.

The signings bring CSI's haul from Las Vegas to six, and the Golden Eagles have eight Nevada players in total.

The style of defense in Buffalo will be aggressive, with Williams as the focal point. Coming off a torn chest muscle that cost him the final 11 games of last season, the defensive end/linebacker still got the biggest contract in NFL history for someone on that side of the ball: $100 million for six years, with $50 million guaranteed.

Bills general manager Buddy Nix, however, always has emphasized that building a competitive team is done through the draft, and there's no shortcut to that approach. Nix's goal from the beginning has been to compile experienced depth — through the draft.

"My point is we've said from Day 1 that if there's a guy there that we think can make the difference we'll be aggressive and go after the guy," Nix said. "So this just plugs up a piece of the puzzle and he'll get us over the hump. He's a position of need that we were able to fill, but the same philosophy will hold through in the draft. "I think it had a lot of impact on us really," Nix added of putting Williams, end Mark Anderson (another free agency signing), and incumbent tackles Kyle Williams and Marcell Dareus together. "Therefore, we're a little freer as far as who we pick (10th overall)." Offensive line could be where the Bills go with that selection. It's also what the Bears might address at 19th overall. They've already upgraded their receiving corps and depth in the backfield, and the defense is solid.

Today is Wednesday, April 25, the 116th day of 2012. There are 250 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On April 25, 1862, during the Civil War, a Union fleet commanded by Flag Officer David G. Farragut captured the city of New Orleans.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1507, a world map produced by German cartographer Martin Waldseemueller contained the first recorded use of the term "America," in honor of Italian navigator Amerigo Vespucci.

In 1792, highwayman Nicolas Jacques Pelletier became the first person under French law to be executed by the guillotine.

In 1859, ground was broken for the Suez Canal.

In 1898, the United States formally declared war on Spain.

In 1901, New York Gov. Benjamin Barker Odell Jr. signed an automobile registration bill which imposed a 15 mph speed limit on highways.

In 1915, during World War I, Allied soldiers invaded the Gallipoli Peninsula in an unsuccessful attempt to take the Ottoman Empire out of the war.

In 1944, the United Negro College Fund was founded.

In 1945, during World War II, U.S. and Soviet forces linked up on the Elbe River, a meeting that dramatized the collapse of Nazi Germany's defenses. Delegates from some 50 countries met in San Francisco to organize the United Nations.

In 1959, the St. Lawrence Seaway opened to shipping.

In 1972, Polaroid Corp. introduced its SX-70 folding camera, which ejected self-developing photographs. Actor George Sanders was found dead in his hotel room near Barcelona, Spain; he was 65.

In 1983, Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov invited Samantha Smith to visit his country after receiving a letter from the Manchester, Maine, schoolgirl.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush hosted Crown Prince Abdullah of Saudi Arabia at his Texas ranch for a day of talks. The House voted 405-9 to abolish the embattled Immigration and Naturalization Service. A Russian rocket blasted into orbit, carrying South African Internet millionaire Mark Shuttleworth, the world's second space tourist. Lisa "Left Eye" Lopes, the effervescent, sometimes volatile member of the Grammy-winning trio TLC, died in an SUV crash in Honduras; she was 30.

Five years ago: Brushing off a presidential veto threat, the House passed, 218-208, a $124.2 billion supplemental spending bill ordering U.S. troops to begin coming home from Iraq in the fall of 2007. The Dow Jones industrial average topped 13,000 for the first time, ending the day at 13,089.89. Rosie O'Donnell announced she was leaving the ABC talk show "The View" in June (she actually left in late May).

One year ago: President Bashar Assad of Syria sent the military into the southern city of Daraa, where an anti-government uprising had begun the previous month.

DEAR ABBY: My father is turning 60 this year, and I want to make him a photo album with pictures from throughout his life. However, Dad is widowed and remarried, so I'm having a hard time deciding what to do with respect to my mother. They were married 25 years before she died, and they loved each other very much. They raised two children together, and she was an important part of his life.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

At the same time, I have a feeling that including pictures of Mom may upset my stepmother. While I am not close with her, I don't want to intentionally hurt her feelings. What should I do?

- LAURA IN ST. LOUIS
DEAR LAURA: You're asking an intelligent question and I commend you for your sensitivity. If the photo album is intended to be a surprise for your father, consider talking to your stepmother about the idea. It will give you an indication of how such a gift would be perceived by her.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 24 and love my parents. Mom confided to me that she has been seeing a high school flame behind my father's back. She claims she loves this man and said she has slept with him, but she doesn't want to leave the security my father provides for her. She swore me to secrecy about her affair.

Meanwhile, my father has started talking to me about their marital problems. He doesn't understand why Mother isn't happy. I feel like I should tell him, but that would betray my mother. At the same time, not telling him what I know is betraying him. What should I do?

- CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE
DEAR CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE: Your parents should not be confiding their marital difficulties to you. They should attempt to resolve them by communicating with each other — preferably with the help of a licensed marriage counselor. That your mother would turn you into a co-conspirator in her affair is despicable. Give her a deadline to level with your father or tell her that you will. He deserves to know the truth.

DEAR ABBY: I have fallen in love with a very special woman. She happens to be my daughter-in-law's mother. We are very happy together, but our children are extremely upset about this. My son and her daughter no longer speak to us at this point.

I feel it's my life and I shouldn't live it for the kids, nor would I want them to live their lives for me. Is it wrong for me to be with her, or are the kids overreacting?

- IN LOVE IN KENTUCKY

DEAR IN LOVE: The "kids" are overreacting, and they shouldn't be trying to blackmail the two of you into doing what they prefer. It is your life, and just as you wish your son and daughter-in-law every happiness, they should be doing the same for you. This situation is not as unusual as they think, and they should not be judging or punishing you, because you are doing nothing wrong.

**** ** ****
DEAR ABBY: I married "Darrel" six months ago. It bothers me that he wears a silver bracelet from a relationship that ended five years ago. He claims that if I were to wear a piece of jewelry from my first marriage, it wouldn't bother him as it is "just jewelry." How do you feel about this?

- BOTHERED IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR BOTHERED: What I feel about this is not important; it's how you feel. If your husband's wearing the bracelet is a constant, irritating reminder that he was involved with someone else, he should remove it because it isn't "just jewelry" to you. And your feelings should be more important to him than the bracelet, don't cha think?

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

*"Nature, with equal mind,
Sees all her sons at play;
The wind sweep man away."*
— Matthew Arnold

When China ZH and Indonesia met in the first phase of the Yeh Brothers Cup, both were on the cusp of qualifying for the top group; but one bad match by either could drop that team into the Swiss. This deal cost the Chinese dearly.

In one room, the Chinese East came in over a no-trump opening to show the minors and bought an exceptionally poor dummy in three clubs doubled. Though he was allowed to escape for down two, minus 300 was not a great score.

In the room shown, declarer, Zhuang Zejun, received a diamond lead and ducked it to the queen. Back came a club won in dummy. Declarer led a low trump to the queen and ace, then played a heart to the nine and East's king. When a second club came back, declarer won in hand and played a third club, planning to pitch a diamond and crossruff. However, West ruffed in, leaving declarer with an inevitable trump and diamond loser.

Had declarer run the heart eight, covered by West, before playing the club, he would have been much better placed. He leads out the spade jack, then the 10, which West must duck, or declarer can draw trump, cash the club winner, then take the heart finesse.

When both trumps are ducked, declarer changes tack and plays the diamond ace, ruffs a heart to hand, and leads the club queen to pitch dummy's diamond, leaving West with just his master trump.

ANSWER: As usual, acting comes with a government safety warning — bidding can damage your bank balance. But if you pass three diamonds out, then the opponents win. When you have both majors and opening values, it is a reasonable gamble that your side has a fit. It does not take much to give game play (imagine partner with five spades to the ace-king and a singleton diamond).

IF APRIL 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: For the next several months, you will be delighted to drift along and cheerfully accept whatever comes your way. Give in to the desire to be a social animal during the next six to eight weeks. Group dynamics will help to energize you and competition lights up your enthusiasms. September is a good month for you to launch plans, make improvements, or ask for favors. Plan ahead so you can avoid making crucial changes that could upset your career or family's security in November and December. Be prepared to handle existing obligations, but add no new ones late in the year.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Good results are possible. If you surround yourself with "yes" men and women, then won't need to take "no" for an answer. Don't take on a lost cause; you have plenty of winning causes to keep you busy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Have faith that lovebirds will come home to roost. Rivalry can be good for relationships. A special someone might seem to have a roving eye, but you are just as likely to invite seductive glances.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can't rush a bud into flowering. Develop plans for improvements, but don't be in a rush to implement them. Conflicts that have held you back in the past will evaporate without a need to confront them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep your head on business and money will flow even if your heart is beating to a different rhythm. You might be romantically inclined, but the best use of time spent with others is with making a profit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Trust can be earned, but never taken for granted. If a frequent companion is timid or shy, your encouragement can bring him or her out of the shell. Lend a hand to the unfortunate or offer kindness to a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept what you can't change. There is focus on sharing with others and abiding with their decisions. If you are under a deadline at work, don't blow it off or be casual about fulfilling commitments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Mirror, mirror, on the wall. The mirror doesn't always give you the answer you want to hear if you ask who is the fairest of them all. You must smile first if you want a smile reflected back by others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be passionate about making progress. Don't quit climbing just when you have been given a leg up on the ladder of success by a supporter. Turn fleeting trouble and turmoil into triumph.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Everything that glitters isn't gold — or even glitter. Don't be fooled by false promises or fall for a well-honed sales pitch. Do exactly what you already promised to do and don't chase any rainbows.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will find an acceptable way out of a tight spot that has hemmed you in. Check the answering machine or email so you don't miss out on a profitable opportunity or invitation from a special someone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You know it is a necessity to be true blue if you want to look forward to fairy-tale endings. If someone is willing to fight off fierce dragons to defend you, you should be willing to wait faithfully.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your shoulders are only strong enough for one burden at a time. Dance in harmony with loved ones. Be willing to express sympathy for the underdog but don't get depressed by the problems of the world.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
