Hawkins Selected for T.F. Council

Mayor Greg Lanting and councilmen Don Hall and Chris Talkington interview finalists for job in private meeting Friday.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Suzanne Hawkins was selected Friday to fill the Twin Falls City Council seat vacated by longtime Councilman Lance Clow.

Hawkins

Hawkins, 48, was one of four finalists for the position. The council's selection committee of Mayor Greg Lanting and councilmen Don Hall and Chris Talkington interviewed finalists Friday for the job in a private meeting.

The other finalists were Gary Garrand, Allen Starley and Christopher Reid.

In a Thursday interview with the Times-News, Hawkins said that as a mother and small-business owner, she would bring a unique perspective to the council. Hawkins said she would prioritize city amenities like parks and trails to make Twin Falls a family-friendly place to live.

Though the mayor made the selection, the entire council must approve Hawkins' appointment on Monday.

If the council votes its approval, Hawkins will be sworn in immediately and will vote on that evening's issues, which include consideration of the final plat for the Canyon Park development. Hawkins will serve until the next general election, at which point she will have to run for the seat.

In a press release, Lanting said it was a tough choice, but Hawkins stood out.

"We just thought she had a unique blend of involvement in community and small-business background," Lanting said.

Valley Turns Out in Force to Welcome Home Fallen Soldier

Hundreds of people turn out to support family as Chris Workman, who died in Afghanistan, is buried with honors in Rupert.

BY LAURIE WELCH

RUPERT • Hundreds of people waving flags lined the roads Friday from Interstate 84 to Rupert Cemetery, the final resting place of U.S. Army Sgt. Chris Workman.

Workman, 33, formerly of Rupert, and three fellow soldiers were killed in an April 19 helicopter crash in southern Afghanistan. He was buried with military honors. One hundred motorcycles bearing members of the Patriot Guard flanked the funeral procession as it made its way to his grave.

Atop the small hill north of Rupert where Workman was laid to rest, Rev. Nektarios Serfes of Boise's Sts. Constantine & Helen Greek Orthodox Church told the crowd that Workman's family shed many tears. But the family took comfort as they came past the crowds and went through the city.

Workman's family saw all those waving flags or standing with their hands over their hearts, welcoming the "great warrior" home, Serfes said.

Workman's older brother, Harry Workman of Kuna, spoke on behalf of the family.

"We'd like everyone to take a lesson from Chris' life and the many people he's touched in his 33 years on this earth," he said. "Always speak to everyone with kind words and treat your loved ones as if there is no tomorrow."

Gathered among the mourners around Workman's casket, Becky and Jerry Brown — the parents of fallen U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Dan Brown — cried softly for both men.

Brown, of Jerome, was killed March 24 in Afghanistan when his unit was attacked by enemy forces.

Pocatello resident Arian Cannon stood after the service with two bouquets of red roses in his hand.

M-C Drug Task Force Seizes Spice

Police say they seized thousands of dollars' worth of synthetic marijuana from two Burley businesses.

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Mini-Cassia Drug Task Force and local sheriff's offices seized several thousand dollars' worth of spice, or synthetic marijuana, Thursday from two Burley businesses.

Search warrants were served on Kerbs Oil, 544 N. Overland Ave., Burley; and the One Stop Shop, also known as the Lamplighter Motel, 304 E. Main St., Burley.

"Spice is one of the drugs at the forefront of our efforts and it's nice that we were able to target this drug specifically," said Minidoka County Sheriff Kevin Halverson.

The search warrants were the result of a 12-month investigation into the possession and delivery of a variety of the drug that was added to the state's list of controlled substances in 2011.

While versions of the smokable substance remain legal until a new law goes into effect July 1, Mini-Cassia law enforcement officials suspect the substances seized Thursday were banned by the 2011 law.

The substance costs about $20 per gram, according to a press release issued by the Cassia County Sheriff's Office.

Halverson said 22 pounds of spice, at a value of $100,000, was confiscated from Kerbs Oil.

Bladder Problems Are Treatable, Often Curable

I'm 53 years old and notice when I laugh or sneeze, I have trouble controlling my bladder. Is this unusual and what can I do to help this embarrassing problem?

— Tammy, Eden

Answered by Dr. Jason Greenhalgh, St. Luke's Clinic, Urology:

Most people notice it when they cough, laugh or sneeze. Others have a need to "go," even after they've just gone to the bathroom. Some experience both symptoms.

Urinary incontinence (UI) affects more than 13 million Americans — mostly women and commonly after childbirth, but it is also common in men. In fact, 1-in-3 women over the age of 60 is estimated to have bladder control problems. The good news is that UI is treatable, and often curable.

There are several kinds of UI. One of the most common is stress UI, caused by poor support of the urethra and pelvic floor. It can also happen in men who have had prostate surgery.

Coughing, laughing, sneezing, exercising or other movements increase pressure on the bladder, causing small amounts of urine to leak. Leading causes are physical changes from pregnancy, childbirth and menopause.

Try eliminating irritants like coffee and other caffeine products, and do Kegel exercises to strengthen the pelvic floor muscles.

If surgery for stress UI is warranted, one highly successful treatment for women is the sling procedure. In this procedure, a sling as wide as a piece of tape made of synthetic mesh material is placed as a support under the urethra through one vaginal incision and two small groin or abdominal incisions.

This procedure is 80-85 percent effective, and can be done as an outpatient surgery, although patients are asked to refrain from lifting for four to six weeks following surgery. Patients report little discomfort with the sling procedure.

The other leading type of UI is urge incontinence, which is caused by an overactive bladder. With this type of incontinence, patients may experience involuntary loss of urine while feeling a sudden need to urinate for no known reason. Treatments include medications, biofeedback and even a pacemaker for the bladder.

Incontinence can be a very personal and potentially embarrassing problem that can keep people isolated and limit their enjoyment and participation in daily activities. Please talk to your primary care provider about any bladder issues.

Chobani employee John Winnie talks with a job candidate during a Friday job fair at the Herrett Center for Arts and Science in Twin Falls. The Greek yogurt company will continue the job fair today in hopes of eventually filling as many as 400 jobs associated with its Twin Falls processing plant.

Due to the high amount of interest, the applicant line snaked its way throughout the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center for Arts and Science and all of the way out the door.

By July 1, the Greek yogurt manufacturer must fill hundreds of jobs before opening its new production plant in Twin Falls. The majority of the top-level management positions have already been filled, but production and support staff positions still remain open.

Standing with Woolman were plenty of other seasonal and part-time employees who also sought better jobs. Some were older, dressed in suits and carrying several copies of freshly printed resumes. Others wore jeans and swapped tips on how to interview successfully.

After making it to the end of the line, Idaho Department of Labor representatives greeted the applicants at the entrance of the interview room. After standing for more than an hour, applicants were allowed a chance to sit while waiting on an interview with a Chobani representative.

Chobani will hire 400 employees to run the new plant, but won't hire them all at once, said Eric Nielson, the company's human resource manager.

"When we open in the summer, we won't be running at full capacity," he said. "We'll begin operating in phases. It may take a few months before we need the full 400 jobs."

For Woolman, the job fair was a chance to land a permanent job. After working in a series of seasonal positions for the past few months, the Hagerman resident is looking for full-time work.

The promise of most of Chobani's wages starting at $14 per hour was another incentive for his interest.

"I was promised construction work but that keeps getting pushed back," Woolman said. "I'm going for a management job today."

Drug Bust

Cassia County Sheriff Randy Kidd said both product and paraphernalia were confiscated at the One Stop Shop.

Kidd said his office was still determining the amount and value of drugs and items taken from the One Stop Shop.

Because no tobacco was being sold at the store, items seized were deemed "drug paraphernalia," he said.

Both sheriffs said Thursday's bust was the first such bust in each county for spice distribution, although arrests have been made for possession.

"We sent out letters to all the businesses when the spice legislation came out, telling them to remove the products from their shelves," Halverson said.

Halverson said a recent rash of youth hospitalized after smoking the substance prompted the crackdown.

He said the confiscated material needs to be tested. According to the press release, criminal charges are pending the outcome of lab results.

Man Charged with Battery in Beating

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 21-year-old man has been charged with aggravated battery for beating a man in the face, causing broken bones.

Roberto Martin Ruiz, of Twin Falls, was arraigned Friday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on the charge and was held in the Twin Falls County Jail on $75,000 bond.

At about 3:30 a.m. April 29, an officer was dispatched to the 400 block of Hunter Avenue in Twin Falls for a call about a man bleeding from his head.

The officer found the man, who said he did not remember what happened, walking in the area without shoes. According to a police report, the man said he had been out with a friend for drinks and later went back to her house and fell asleep on her bed. The next thing he remembered was waking up on Hunter Avenue not knowing where he was, the report said.

The officer went to the man's friend's home, noticing blood on the walkway leading to the house and in several rooms. A roommate of the woman said she was woken by a loud noise and found Ruiz in a drunken rage with a fist raised at the victim, the report said.

Ruiz allegedly found the victim on the bed and threw him to the floor before striking him several times, then dragging him into the living room.

The victim was transported to the emergency room at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center by ground ambulance. He told officers he had four broken facial bones and was told he may need plastic surgery to repair the damage.

A preliminary hearing for Ruiz is scheduled for May 11.

Wendell May Not Need New Noise Ordinance

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

WENDELL • In the last month, Mayor Brad Christopherson said he has fielded 40 to 50 noise complaints about an unruly citizen driving around the northeast side of town, music blaring.

That prompted a discussion at Thursday's Wendell City Council meeting on whether the city's noise ordinance should be updated. Christopherson, for one, believed an update would help provide a consequence for the current offender.

The noise ordinance has been on the city's books since the early 1900s. A revised rough draft was brought to Thursday's meeting.

The nuisance comes at all hours, Christopherson said. Since complaints have been made to City Hall, he said, the noise seems to be more frequent and retaliatory in nature.

Councilman Michael Winmill said he heard the noise frequently, even at 2 and 3 a.m.

Ordinances in other cities, including Pocatello, were used as a template for the revisions, said Wendell Police Staff Sgt. Jeff Lenker.

City Attorney Calvin Campbell said state statute may be adequate and pointed out that noise ordinances are "very difficult to enforce" because of their subjective nature.

"Proving a disturbance is the easy part," Campbell said. The hard part is proving the person at fault beyond a reasonable doubt, he added.

Campbell also said the ordinance couldn't curb freedom of expression or free speech.

Undeterred, Christopherson said something has to be done.

"We've had several people make complaints," the mayor said.

"I recognize the significant problem and am willing to help put something together, but am not sure a new ordinance will solve that," Campbell said.

In other business, Wendell is moving forward with its sewer project and the council is working out how to approve payment for construction. The council has approved payment for the first phase of construction and Campbell is investigating whether Christopherson can sign checks every month without council oversight in order to speed up payment to individual vendors.

Councilman Kent Bates understood the idea behind such action, but said he didn't like treating vendors tied to the wastewater project "differently" than those the city regularly does business with.

IDAHO BRIEFS

10-year-old Brings Gun, Ammunition to Idaho School

IDAHO FALLS • Police in the eastern Idaho city of Idaho Falls are investigating after a 10-year-old elementary school student brought an unloaded semi-automatic handgun and ammunition to school.

Idaho Falls School District 91 spokeswoman Margaret Wimborne said school officials found the weapon in the child's backpack after other students reported they'd heard about, but not seen, the gun. The school officials called police, who confiscated the gun.

The child who brought the gun has been suspended pending a hearing. Wimborne says there is no indication the child intended any harm.

Police spokeswoman Joelyn Hansen said the child was playing at a local park and found the handgun and ammunition in a tree.

Pocatello-area Infant Dies of Whooping Cough

POCATELLO • Officials with Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello say an infant that had been treated there for whooping cough has died at a Salt Lake City hospital.

The 9-week-old, whose family is from Arimo, had been born prematurely and was too young to have been vaccinated against the contagious bacterial infection that can cause uncontrollable coughing. The infant was treated at the Pocatello hospital and later flown to Primary Children's Hospital in Salt Lake.

Portneuf spokeswoman Brenda Stanley says the infant died Thursday.

Judge Moves Tamarack Suitor Fraud Trial to Nov. 27

BOISE • An indicted former Tamarack Resort suitor has won a delay to his federal fraud trial.

Matthew Hutcheson won't go before a jury until Nov. 27, nearly six months after his initial trial date on June 12.

U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge agreed to the extension after Hutcheson's attorney wrote that the discovery in the case would be extensive, with significant pretrial investigative work.

Hutcheson stands accused of 31 felony counts, including taking $5 million from pension funds he oversaw as an independent fiduciary and using them to fix up his house in Eagle and try to buy Tamarack Resort.

Hutcheson has pleaded not guilty and contends everything he did was allowed under federal rules governing retirement funds.

He failed in his 2010 bid to buy Tamarack for $40 million.

Fisherman Found Dead in Boise Pond

BOISE • Police in Boise say the body of a 20-year-old man was found floating face down in a pond in the northeastern part of the city.

Witnesses say they had seen the man fishing at 10:30 p.m. Thursday. Family members went looking for him at 11 p.m., saw a body in Lake Harbor Pond and called 911.

Responding firefighters and police used a boat to reach the man, who was about 20 feet from shore, but were unable to revive him.

Witnesses say the man had a history of seizures.

Boise Police continue to investigate. They say there was no evidence of foul play.

The man's name hasn't been released.

Lewiston Couple Claim $1M Powerball

BOISE • Idaho Lottery officials say a Lewiston couple has claimed their $1 million prize from the April 21 Powerball drawing.

Richard and Lorraine Hallisy, who have been married for 56 years, claimed their winnings Thursday at Idaho Lottery headquarters in Boise.

Richard worked as a forester for the Idaho Department of Lands District Office in St. Maries in the 1960's before a long tenure at Potlatch in Lewiston. He retired 18 years ago.

The Hallisys are still contemplating what to do with their winnings, but they plan to help immediate family members and take a couple of nice vacations.

They bought their winning ticket at Zip Trip in Lewiston.

ISU Professor Emeritus Who Criticized Vailas Fired

POCATELLO (AP) • A professor emeritus at Idaho State University claims he was fired Thursday from his part-time job in the campus library after writing an opinion piece that was satirically critical of school president Arthur Vailas.

Leonard Hitchcock worked as an unpaid volunteer for five years before he went on the university library payroll in January, earning $11 an hour as acting head of special collections. He believes his termination was retribution, he said.

"It strikes me this is a political reaction by the administration," Hitchcock told the Idaho State Journal.

Hitchcock said he was told he was being fired by librarian Jenny Lynne Semenza, who was acting under orders of the university's interim provost Barbara Adamcik, he said. The provost declined to comment, university spokesman Mark Levine said.

"We do not comment on personnel issues," Levine said.

A column by Hitchcock was published Sunday in the Idaho State Journal. It referred to Vailas as "King Arthur" and was critical of his handling of a lengthy dispute with faculty over shared governance on the Pocatello campus.

The state Board of Education voted last year to dissolve the university's previous Faculty Senate, which been at loggerheads with Vailas. The university then elected new, temporary faculty leaders to work with Vailas to adopt a new constitution.

The provisional Faculty Senate was due to sunset in April, or upon the completion of constitution. But the two sides appeared far from a consensus in February, when faculty reported they had again reached an impasse.

Vailas recommended work on the constitution continue with a new, permanent Faculty Senate.

The board agreed, effectively dissolving the provisional faculty leadership panel.

In an April 29 newspaper editorial, Hitchcock wrote "When there is seditious talk of political rights and faculty governance, the king must adopt a stern aloofness and wield his authority without hesitation."

Hitchcock retired in 2006. He had been a full-time professor at the university for 21 years as a humanities bibliographer and head of the collections division at the library. He was granted professor emeritus status in 2006, the year Vailas was hired.

Hitchcock said he hopes to continue working in the library as a volunteer. He is not the first university employee to claim he was fired for publicly voicing his discontent with the Vailas administration.

Professor Habib Sadid was suspended from the university in August 2009 and terminated a month later for what administrators called unprofessional and insubordinate conduct. But Sadid said his history of speaking out about campus problems led to his termination.

Sadid sued the university in state court in 2008 while he was still employed at the school, but the case was dismissed. The Idaho Supreme Court upheld the dismissal in December, rejecting claims Sadid was the victim of retaliation.

Old Sign Piques Idaho Store Owner's Interest in History

Workers continue renovation work at the Great Harvest Bread Co. building on April 10 in Idaho Falls.

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • History needs nothing more than a crack in the plaster to slip out like a ghost.

That's how it happened on A Street in downtown Idaho Falls. Winter ice dislodged a chunk of stucco from the east side of the Great Harvest Bread Co. building. Spring wind pulled back the stucco and plaster, revealing brick and several feet of heavy block lettering at least a century old.

Great Harvest owner John VanOrman saw the antique letters and wanted to keep peeling.

"It's like a little hidden treasure," VanOrman said. "You see a little piece of it and you keep digging, finding more."

Painted walls of the vintage are called "ghost signs." They were created in the late 1800s and early 1900s when painters — or "wall dogs" — plastered buildings with business names and ad art.

Circumstance preserved the lingering ghost signs.

VanOrman did some sleuthing since the wind unearthed his ghost sign three weeks ago. The sign reads "IDAHO FALLS DEVELOPMENT CO. LTD." VanOrman's chain of title records show the business owned the building from 1907 to 1912.

The sign presumably was painted in that five-year window. VanOrman looked up city maps showing the Gayety Theatre was built next door — inches away, if not touching — between 1911 and 1921.

The building containing the movie theater and businesses that followed was torn down in the '80s to make room for a bank parking lot. That building, however, acted as a buffer that protected the now 100-year-old sign.

"Really, that sign hasn't seen the light of day for 80 years," VanOrman said.

The sign became the city's history project. The crew from All American Cleaning and Restoration carefully chipped away at the layer of plaster like archeologists on a dig as passers-by stopped to puzzle briefly on the sidewalk.

Crewman Steve Wright said he and the other workers were told to take extra care not to ding the lettering. That meant gentler work and a longer process.

"We'd probably be chiseling it," Wright said through a white ventilation mask. "It's a new experience compared to what we normally do."

Across the street, Robert Fischer stepped out of his barber shop to smoke a cigarette and watch the progress. Fischer owns Robert's Deluxe Cuts.

"When it first came off, I could read 'FARMLAND AND CITY PRO...'" Fischer said. "I was curious what else was under it. I like history, personally. That's why all of my stuff looks old and broke down."

The sign brought out the typography geek in Ron Dye, who works a block and a half away as a graphic artist at Idaho Falls Magazine.

The ampersands, or "&" figures, are an unusual combination of "8s" and "c's," Dye said. The "L" in "Ltd." underlines the rest of the word and the letters in "CO" are fixed inside one another, probably to save space, he said.

"Styles come and go," Dye said. "It's just nice to see something that's basically a time capsule that hasn't been looked at for a long, long time."

"Design and art and fashion and everything like that come back around."

People have stopped by Great Harvest to give VanOrman old photos of the building or tell stories about working downtown 50 years ago. He's compiled their gifts with the records he's dug up into a black binder. He hopes to fill it with more clues and details — more ghosts.

"Here's this thing that's kind of rare and unique and has reference to Idaho Falls history," VanOrman said. "You kind of have an obligation to do something with it and not just throw stucco back over the top."

Lawmaker Sells House, Fights to Live in Business

MERIDIAN (AP) • Republican state Rep. Joe Palmer says he sold his home in 2010 to save money, but now he's fighting with the city of Meridian over whether he and his wife can sleep in the back of their consignment furniture business.

Palmer is appealing a ruling by the planning department that he's violating Meridian's zoning laws by living in Cherry's Consignment, the Idaho Statesman reported. Meridian's zoning laws bar residences in the "community business" zone that includes Palmer's store.

Palmer says he feels like he's being picked on by government. Palmer, the chairman of the House Transportation Committee, blames Meridian Mayor Tammy de Weerd, contending she doesn't like him on grounds that he opposes allowing cities such as Meridian to build debt-financed road projects. He said de Weerd supports his opponent, Richard Dees, in the May 15 primary election.

"She despises the ground I walk on," Palmer said, speculating that the zoning enforcement is aimed at embarrassing him and helping Dees win. "I'm a small-business guy trying to get by, and I feel like the government's just running over me."

De Weerd says Palmer's allegations are baseless.

She said Meridian's code enforcement simply followed through on a violation report that Palmer himself provided: He mentioned to city officials where he was living during a meeting last August over a $15 million road project that he objects to because he believes it could hurt his business.

"Contrary to what's being suggested here, I didn't drive the timeline," de Weerd said.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Hiring Slowdown Sends U.S. Stock Market Reeling

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks plunged Friday after the government reported that hiring slowed sharply last month. The report confirmed investors' fears that the U.S. economic recovery is faltering. The losses in the market were widespread. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 168 points and the Nasdaq composite had its worst day since Nov. 9. Both the Nasdaq and the Standard & Poor's 500 index closed out their worst weeks of the year. The Dow had its second-worst. The dollar and U.S. Treasury prices rose as investors moved money into lower-risk investments.

Treasury Announces 3rd Round of AIG Stock Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) • The Treasury Department announced Friday that it will sell more of its shares of common stock in insurance giant American International Group to recoup more of the support the government provided AIG in what was the biggest bailout of the 2008 financial crisis.

It will be Treasury's third sale of AIG stock. The sale is expected to raise around $6 billion. AIG said it planned to purchase $2 billion of the amount put up for sale. The new offering follows Treasury sales of $5.8 billion in AIG common stock in May 2011 and $6 billion in March of this year.

Treasury and the Federal Reserve stepped in with $182 billion to rescue New York-based AIG from collapse. Treasury still owns about 70 percent of AIG's common stock.

Berkshire Hathaway's 1Q profit • Warren Buffett's company says its first-quarter profit more than doubled because Berkshire Hathaway Inc.'s insurance units avoided major disaster losses and the paper value of its derivative contracts improved.

Berkshire said Friday that it generated $3.245 billion net income, or $1,966 per Class A share. That's up from last year's $1.511 billion net income, or $917 per Class A share. Last year's results were hurt by $1.1 billion in insurance losses from the Japanese earthquake and tsunami, Australian floods and the New Zealand earthquake. The results fell short of what the four analysts surveyed by FactSet expected.

Yahoo CEO Faces Calls for Ouster after Inaccuracy

BY MICHAEL LIEDTKE

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO • Yahoo CEO Scott Thompson faces calls for his ouster after just four months leading the troubled Internet company because of inaccuracies with his academic credentials.

A major Yahoo shareholder who exposed the misrepresentation Thursday is now leading the charge to oust Thompson for unethical conduct. In a Friday letter, activist hedge fund manager Daniel Loeb demanded that Yahoo's board fire Thompson by noon ET Monday or face possible legal action.

"Mr. Thompson and the board should make no mistake: this is a big deal," wrote Loeb, who controls a 5.8 percent stake in Yahoo through his hedge fund, Third Point LLC. "CEO's have been terminated for less at other companies."

Yahoo reiterated Friday that "the board is reviewing this matter and, upon completion of its review, will make an appropriate disclosure to shareholders."

Thompson's troubles revolve around a misrepresentation of his education at Stonehill College, a small school near Boston where he was graduated in 1979. Since announcing Thompson's hiring in early January, Yahoo had included two bachelor's degrees — one for accounting and the other for computer science — on the executive's biography. The dual degrees not only appeared on Yahoo's own website, but also in a legal document filed April 27 with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

After being confronted Thursday by Loeb, Yahoo confirmed that Thompson received only an accounting degree from Stonehill. The company attributed the misrepresentation about the computer science degree to an "inadvertent error."

Later Thursday, Yahoo issued another statement to announce that its board would look into what happened and disclose its findings to shareholders. The company didn't set a timetable for completing the investigation.

It's unclear whether the inaccuracy originated with Thompson or someone else at Yahoo. But Thompson's bio with dual degrees periodically cropped up before he joined Yahoo. He was listed with a computer degree on a website touting his appearance at the Web 2.0 technology conference in 2010 while he was running eBay Inc.'s PayPal payment service. The computer science degree also has appeared in Thompson's bio in connection with his 2008 appointment to a Silicon Valley startup, Zuora.

Ebay only listed Thompson's accounting degree in its SEC filings while he was working at PayPal.

In his Friday letter, Loeb argued that Thompson has to be dumped to avoid "irreparable damage to Yahoo's culture." He argues Yahoo's own code of ethics justifies firing Thompson "for cause," a move that probably would prevent him from qualifying for a severance package. Yahoo's code states that information filed with the SEC "must be full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable."

If Yahoo fires Thompson, the company would have to look for its fifth CEO in five years. The company, which is based in Sunnyvale, Calif., recruited Thompson in hopes that he could do something that his predecessors couldn't — snap Yahoo out of a financial funk that has depressed its stock for years while the fortunes of rivals such as Google Inc. and Facebook Inc. have been soaring.

Jobs Report Sends Oil Price to Six-month Low

BY JONATHAN FAHEY AND CHRIS KAHN

Associated Press

NEW YORK • The price of oil plunged to its lowest level in nearly six months Friday, falling below $100 per barrel for the first time since February. A drop in gasoline prices can't be far behind.

It's a welcome trend for motorists, with the summer driving season just around the corner. And it eases some pressure on the U.S. economy, which has shown only agonizingly slow growth in the nearly three years since the Great Recession ended.

Oil fell $4.05, or 4 percent, to $98.49, after a weak U.S. jobs report offered the latest evidence that the global economy is weakening, possibly reducing demand for oil. At the same time, there is mounting evidence that world oil supplies are growing.

"The jobs report was the coup de grace," said Judith Dworkin, chief energy economist at ITG Investment Research. "But it's hard to see how prices could have stayed on the boil given ample supplies and continued economic uncertainty."

For the week, oil fell more than $6 and is now about $12 below its February high. U.S. gasoline prices have fallen to $3.80 per gallon from a peak of $3.94 in early April.

Now they could go as low as $3.50 per gallon by July 4, according to Tom Kloza, Chief Oil Analyst at the Oil Price Information Service.

Tony Wei, a mechanical engineer from Piscataway, N.J., will welcome lower prices. He travels 100 miles every day to and from his job in Morris County, N.J. He's also planning a 500-mile trip to Canada and a 400-mile trip to southwest Virginia this summer in his Honda Accord.

"Definitely, I'm going to notice it," he said. "I buy so much gas."

Job Growth Slows Again in April; Rate Ticks Down

BY PAUL WISEMAN AND CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • One month of slower job growth might have been a blip. Two suggest a worrisome trend: The economy may be faltering again.

The United States generated just 115,000 jobs last month, well below expectations and the fewest since October. The unemployment rate fell to 8.1 percent, but for the wrong reason — workers abandoned the labor force.

From the month of December through February, employers added 252,000 jobs a month on average. But the figure dipped in March and dropped further in April, raising doubts about an economic recovery that can't seem to reach escape velocity.

The report Friday by the Labor Department indicated "an economy that is losing momentum — especially on the jobs front," said Tom Porcelli, chief U.S. economist at RBC Capital Markets.

It also dealt a blow to President Barack Obama's re-election prospects. His presumed Republican opponent, Mitt Romney, called the report "very disappointing."

Romney said the country should be adding 500,000 jobs a month and said any unemployment rate above 4 percent is "not cause for celebration." The rate has not been that low since the last days of the Clinton administration.

"We seem to be slowing down, not speeding up," Romney said on Fox News Channel. "This is not progress!"

OPINION

"This may well be the state that decides who the next president is."

Mitt Romney told supporters in coastal Portsmouth, Va. as the state is quickly becoming the hottest new battleground in the race for the White House

CHEERS AND JEERS

CHEERS to the 13 people who stepped forward as potential Twin Falls City Council appointees. As we shared in an editorial on April 27, the Times-News editorial board was concerned that the mere one week candidates were given to apply would be prohibitive. The outpouring of applications says a lot how engaged the residents of Twin Falls are in their community. It was encouraging to see so many people eager and willing to volunteer their time to steer the future of this city.

JEERS to Twin Falls Mayor Greg Lanting for closing to the public and the media the interviews with potential council appointees. The decision is well within his legal right. However, it is guided by self-interest and not the interest of the voters of Twin Falls.

When pressed on the decision, Lanting said, he would keep the interviews private, even if the candidates are OK with opening up the process.

"I really feel that we can choose the best candidate when they're alone, just asking the question, and there's no reporter there," he said.

It might be true that candidates will be less guarded behind closed doors helping Lanting and others on the selection committee to decide who they might have a good working relationship with or who might share their values and opinions.

But, in the end, the appointment of a city councilor is a decision that affects every resident of Twin Falls. The residents of Twin Falls deserve to understand how the decision was made.

CHEERS to Chobani. Hundreds of people showed up on Friday to the job fair offered by the Greek yogurt manufacturer. The plant promises to bring 400 jobs to the Magic Valley and, if the crowd on Friday was any indication, their timing couldn't be better.

The job fair continues today from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Rick Allen Room of the Herrett Center for Arts and Science.

Nicki Briggs, Chobani's vice president of corporate communication, said almost 90 percent of the Twin Falls plant's 400 jobs remain open. Those are primarily for production and support staff, with many top-level managers already hired and trained at the firm's New York state plant. Wages are about $14 per hour for production workers.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Thank You, Sen. Cameron, for Work to Protect Groundwater

Idaho Groundwater Appropriators, which represents more than 1 million acres of irrigated groundwater, would like to thank Sen. Cameron for his leadership and hard work in the Senate which has helped avoid curtailment on the Eastern Snake Plain Aquifer.

Without his help and guidance over the last seven years, it would have created economic havoc in the region by having more than 140,000 acres of irrigated ground taken out of production (85,000 acres in the Magic Valley). The loss of jobs and local tax base would have been devastating not only to the local communities but to the state of Idaho.

His work as co-chairman of the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee, along with co-chairman Rep. Maxine Bell, has allowed solutions to be formulated and achieved.

We hope the patrons of newly formed District 27 recognize his involvement and leadership and will bring him back to the state Senate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor's note: The Times-News will accept election-related letters until May 9.

Jack Johnson is the Right Man for the Job

To the citizens of Twin Falls County:

Very soon, the voters will have the opportunity to decide the course of law enforcement in Twin Falls County. Do you choose a man who has had some very serious issues while employed as a deputy and even more serious as a sheriff? Do you choose a man who is without issue, who has dedicated his life, his spare time his whole being to the service of others and has never appeared in front of POST to defend his actions and his certification?

Carter tried, but we all know many times our best is not enough. I have spoken to former and some current employees of the Carter administrations. Being fair, I wanted to make sure that what I was seeing was not just my imagination. They have relayed to me the lack of unity between the ranks. The command staff does not trust each other, the road deputies are tired, stressed and don't trust anyone. No one knows who is going to be promoted for what reason or why. Is this an environment you want for your sheriff's department? What I don't know firsthand is why the strife and lack of trust exists, but I can make logical conclusions based on observations and information given.

What I do know is that Jack Johnson is an honest, hard-working man who's integrity has never been questioned.

Please remember, Tom Carter tried and gave it his best effort and it was just not enough. Please thank him for his efforts, but on Election Day, ask him to step aside. I have no doubt Jack Johnson is now and will remain "The Right Man for the Job" for many years to come.

(Editor's note: David Cline worked with the Twin Falls County sheriff's office from 1985 to 1991.)

Tom Carter is Committed to Twin Falls County

I am writing on behalf of Twin Falls County Sheriff Tom Carter. He's my dad.

Since becoming sheriff in 2009, Tom has achieved the goals he set with the help of a great staff and community. The constant — his unbri-dled commitment to Twin Falls County. Another in-variant — his sincerity when he said he will not be a part of nor will he condone negative comments being made about anyone. He doesn't believe it helps his efforts for re-election, and he won't allow incivility or dishonesty to be a reflection of his character. He does not, in any capacity, think he is above the law and he will never put his political views or actions above his duty to uphold the oath he took.

Tom, his team, family and supporters are putting a lot of heart into this campaign and couldn't be more proud of the results. We had the unfortunate challenge of our endorsement labels mysteriously disappearing with "anonymous" calls to the Times-News following. We are working diligently to remain in compliance with ordinances related to campaign rules. We appreciate those that let us know if there is an issue, and we do our very best to remedy it.

I am proud of Tom. He has made so many positive changes for this county. I would love to see his accomplishments speak for themselves and his goals for the next term to be reached as successfully as they have in his first term.

We welcome anyone who has an issue to come to Tom personally and discuss it. Please remember that these men are real people; they have families, kids, grand-kids and, more importantly, they have feelings. We can still treat people with respect despite our differences. If nothing else, please be civil.

Thank you to each and every supporter and please remember to vote Tom Carter on May 15!

Government Can Do a Better Job of Raising Our Children, Right?

Congress failed to allow the Labor Department, which knows best about how we work and where is the best place for companies to put their factories, from protecting our young children. After all, it is better for them to watch TV, play video games and hang out at the mall than learn something about work (a four-letter word) or raising animals or crops. After all, we can buy those items from some other country. In doing so, we can get rid of groups like the Future Farmers of America and 4-H. I am sure that this is where I got my radical ideas and how to terrorize the rock chucks from a Farm-All B tractor.

Now while we are bent on protecting the children, competitive sports, driving vehicles should be banned. Since a large number of child injuries happen in the home, I am sure that a government agency could do a better job raising and educating the children. Those who desire to protect our children only have to fall back on history for examples of where this was done before. Remember, the government knows best; it has the Czars, experts and lots of leaning forward thinkers who know more than you do. Just ask them.

In the mean while, get back to work; someone has to pay for all the extra government employees.

Still Unclear Why Johnson Would be a Better Sheriff Than Carter

Election Day is approaching, and I have a few questions for Jack Johnson, Twin Falls County sheriff candidate. I have been waiting to see if these questions would be addressed but apparently not, so I will ask.

I have read in the newspaper you are the right person for the job of Twin Falls sheriff because you have integrity, 27 years of experience in law enforcement, have more education and you are better. Integrity, more education, you are better, than what, who? None of this tells me anything especially why you would be a better sheriff than Sheriff Carter. Why do you want to be sheriff of Twin Falls County? You were employed at the Twin Falls sheriff's office four years ago and decided to leave. Why did you leave? Why do you want to return? If you were elected sheriff, what would be the status of the present administration? Would you keep them or hire replacements? If you will replace the present administrators, who would you hire?

Now I have some comments about all this negative campaign nonsense and just a couple more questions. I do not understand how so many people could write so many letters against Sheriff Carter unless they have gotten some help and encouragement from someone.

Times-News, Tuesday, July 28, 2009, front-page story, six administrators from the Twin Falls County Sheriff's office all submitted a letter to the Times-News in October 2008 falsely stating negative information about Tom Carter. (This was during the Carter/Tousley sheriff race.) According to the story, besides giving false information to the paper, they may have violated county policy. You were one of the six persons who signed this letter.

Questions: Can you give us a reason why this nonsense has continued into the sheriff race between you and Sheriff Carter? Can you explain how and why you got involved in the October 2008 letter nonsense? If you were elected sheriff how would you handle such a mess and what would you do to prevent this from happening again or would you do nothing?

Federal Judge Rules Eaton Deserves Hearing on Claims

BY BEN NEARY
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. • Wyoming's lone death row inmate deserves new court hearings on claims he didn't receive an adequate defense at trial in state court, a federal judge ordered Thursday.

Dale Wayne Eaton is challenging the constitutionality of the state death sentence he received in the 1988 rape and murder of 18-year-old Lisa Marie Kimmell of Billings, Mont.

Eaton's lawyers don't dispute he killed Kimmell, who was abducted while driving alone across the state. Investigators matched DNA found in her body to Eaton years after the crime and later dug up his car on his rural property in central Wyoming.

"The issue is life or death..." Eaton attorney Sean O'Brien said at a court hearing last summer. "We're not saying that an innocent man here has been convicted of a crime."

State lawyers have maintained Eaton received a fair trial. His conviction already has been upheld by the Wyoming Supreme Court.

However, Thursday's order by U.S. District Judge Alan Johnson of Cheyenne granted Eaton's request for new evidentiary hearings on his claims that his trial lawyers were ineffective and that they failed to investigate and develop "mitigation evidence." Such evidence could include anything about Eaton's past or mental condition that would underscore his humanity and possibly convince even a single juror not to impose the death penalty.

Johnson granted the Wyoming Attorney General's Office's request to dismiss an array of Eaton's other claims. Among the rejected claims were allegations of prosecutorial misconduct and the assertion that the jury received improper instructions on the law.

Eaton's current lawyers, Terry Harris of Cheyenne and O'Brien, a law professor and death penalty specialist from Missouri, have claimed that Eaton's trial lawyer, Wyatt Skaggs of Laramie, failed to develop a good relationship with Eaton, violating his right to effective legal assistance. Harris declined comment Friday.

Harris and O'Brien also have criticized Skaggs for not allocating more resources to the defense investigation for financial reasons.

In a 300-page brief that Harris and O'Brien filed last year, they charged that Skaggs failed to investigate Eaton's background and therefore wasn't able to present effective witnesses in the trial's death penalty phase. The lawyers also claimed some witnesses could have testified on mitigation that Eaton suffered a tortured childhood and likely was mentally ill when he killed Kimmell.

Skaggs has declined comment on the case in the past, saying he won't comment on a pending legal matter.

Johnson states in his 91-page order on Thursday that Harris and O'Brien spelled out a compelling argument that Eaton didn't get an adequate opportunity to argue in his state appeal his claim that his defense was ineffective. Johnson noted that Eaton was only given 60 days to prepare and present his case on the issue on appeal.

Medical Trials That Offer Free Health Care Are Attracting Idaho Patients

BY AUDREY DUTTON
Idaho Statesman

NAMPA • Brianna Conklin was in her mid-20s when she began a yearlong test of a diabetes treatment that had not been on the market before.

Conklin, who lives in Nampa, has had diabetes her entire life. She was introduced to clinical trials by Saltzer Medical Group's Dr. Stanley Stringam, one of several Treasure Valley physicians taking part in the clinical testing of new drugs and techniques to treat problems such as obesity, diabetes and cancer.

Now tests are attracting Treasure Valley patients in the down economy, offering new treatments with free medication, supplies, doctor's visits and frequent monitoring. At least three local businesses conduct clinical trials, as do the St. Luke's and Saint Alphonsus health systems.

Idaho is a slightly more popular site for these tests than its population alone merits, with 311 tests under way today among 16,000 nationwide, according to national data. Most clinical testing is done simultaneously at many sites around the U.S. Local researchers say Idaho helps meet drug testers' needs for rural participants.

Sometimes the trial sponsor — usually a drug company — pays a small stipend. Sponsors also generally reimburse the health care provider for the cost of doing the trials.

Conklin said she was sold on being a test subject in a clinical trial for two reasons.

There was "the perk of not having to pay for insulin and test strips" during the trial, which ended in March 2011. Those two things usually cost her $85 a month. And she "thought it would be good to have some accountability," Conklin said. The trial required her to closely track her eating habits, insulin and blood sugar.

Her blood-sugar levels were the best they'd ever been, partly because of closer monitoring, not just the insulin being tested.

She usually sees her doctor every three months. During the drug trial, it was every two weeks.

Stringam is a fairly active clinical researcher. He has done diabetes, antibiotic and cardiovascular trials, and about 50 of his patients are currently in clinical trials. Some of the testing lasts for years.

The Experience

Nampa resident Eloyd Harris is 57 and has been diabetic for several years. He said he saved a minimum of $50 a month while in a diabetes trial under Stringam's care.

"It was a great experience," he said. "A little time-consuming, but... the benefits outweighed the time."

In studies such as the one Harris was in, a placebo — sugar pill — usually isn't used for a "control" test group because the patients need the medication, researchers say.

Stringam said that before trials start, patients always get a lengthy form telling them what they're signing up for. They'll know whether there's a possibility of getting a placebo and what phase of research they'll be part of. Most trials in the Treasure Valley are in the final phases of research.

The studies are voluntary, so patients can pull out if, for example, they have bad side effects.

Most people "get better" during the trials, Stringam said. Some are disappointed when the study ends to learn that their medication won't be on the market for a long time.

Harris said his diabetes went back to being "out of control" when his study ended. He has just started a new diet, Medifast, under his doctor's recommendation.

Trials could be an especially big boon to patients who are struggling financially.

Diabetics in Idaho who lack health insurance can spend $250 to $300 a month just on insulin, Stringam said. The trials give them access to medication and supplies they can't afford, he said.

"I have people who are clamoring to get on a study" because their drugs are so expensive, he said.

Interest Ebbs and Flows

The poor economy hasn't really boosted enrollment in clinical trials at ACR Idaho, said Allie Lopez, site director for the Boise clinical research center at 2950 E. Magic View Drive. But it does seem that more people have time to participate in the trials, partly because more people are out of work, she said.

Lopez said interest hinges more on the kind of trial and even the time of year.

Weight-loss research? "The phones are ringing off the hook," she said. Smoking and tobacco cessation around the New Year? Same thing.

But the center still advertises to reach potential subjects. Some clinical researchers have put up billboards or run other advertisements to recruit people for studies.

"Every once in a while, (a referring doctor) will say, 'This patient just lost his job and can't afford medication,'" Lopez said.

But trials have stringent criteria — studies are targeted at specific ages, genders, locations, symptoms and medical details — so a person might not qualify for one, but could qualify for another.

"We could have 1,000 people in our database (for a health condition), and only 10 qualify," Lopez said. "If they do qualify, then everything that happens during the course of the study is at no cost to them. ... Doesn't come out of their insurance, doesn't come out of pocket, and in some cases provides a little stipend."

Lopez did a flu study in which patients just walked in sick and got swabbed. The results went off to researchers tracking flu strains. She remembers that study because "you got paid for being sick."

Unknown Birthdate May Spare Utah Man the Death Penalty

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • Attorneys for a Burmese refugee accused of a South Salt Lake killing say there's no proof he was an adult when the crime happened, and the death penalty should be taken off the table.

Easar Met's birthday is listed as January 1987, which means he would have been 21 when 7-year-old refugee girl Hser Ner Moo was found dead in his apartment in spring 2008.

But attorneys filed a motion in Salt Lake City's 3rd District Court this week saying Met and his family aren't sure of the man's date or year of birth.

"There is no existing paperwork, and there likely never was any paperwork, documenting the date of Mr. Met's birth in Burma," the documents say.

It would be illegal to execute Met if he were younger than 18 at the time of the crime, according to the motion. Lawyers cite a 2005 Supreme Court ruling that banned capital punishment for minors.

Not knowing a birthday isn't uncommon among refugees.

"Here, it's a big deal, and so we think it must be a big deal for everybody, but it's not the case," Gerald Brown, director of refugee services for Utah's Department of Workforce Services, told KSL. "People sometimes know which year, but sometimes they don't know that. They might know they were born in a dry or rainy season. It's just different priorities."

Salt Lake County prosecutor Rob Parrish told the Associated Press on Friday that the lack of documents "creates complications, but it's not insurmountable."

U.N. Fact Finder on Indigenous Rights Wraps Up Visit

BY SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A United Nations fact finder surveying the lives of Native Americans and Alaska Natives said Friday he'll recommend in an upcoming report that some of the tribes' lands be restored, including the Black Hills of South Dakota.

James Anaya, a U.N. special rapporteur, has been meeting with tribal leaders, the administration and Senate members over 12 days to assess U.S. implementation of the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. He plans several suggestions in his report, which he said he likely will deliver to the U.N.'s Human Rights Council in September.

Anaya said land restoration would help bring about reconciliation. He named the Black Hills as an example. He said restoring to indigenous people what they have a legitimate claim to can be done in a way that is not divisive "so that the Black Hills, for example, isn't just a reminder of the subordination and domination of indigenous peoples in that country."

The Black Hills, home to Mount Rushmore, are public land but are considered sacred by the Sioux tribes. The Sioux have refused to accept money awarded in a 1980 U.S. Supreme Court decision and have sought return of the land. The Black Hills and other lands were set aside for the Sioux in an 1868 treaty. But Congress passed a law in 1877 taking the land.

President Barack Obama endorsed the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in 2010, reversing a previous U.S. vote against it. It is intended to protect the rights of 370 million native peoples worldwide. Anaya is the first U.N. special rapporteur on rights of the indigenous to visit the U.S.

He met with several members of the executive branch and had the chance to brief members of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs. He lamented he was unable to get individual meetings with members of Congress, noting that he usually meets with members of legislative bodies of countries he is visiting.

Anaya said he heard universal cries from the Native Americans and Alaska Natives for the federal government to protect their tribal sovereignty and for more ability to control their own affairs.

He added provisions in the Violence Against Women Act, recently approved in the Senate, give tribes the ability to prosecute people who commit violent crimes against Native American or Alaska Native women, even if they are not native peoples. That provision has been opposed by some Republicans in Congress. The House is expected to move on the act as soon as next week, with Republicans possibly drafting and pushing their own version.

Anaya said he met with tribes in Arizona, Alaska, Oregon, Washington State, South Dakota and Oklahoma both on reservations and in urban areas.

"In all my consultations with indigenous peoples in the places I visited it was impressed upon me that the sense of loss, alienation and indignity is pervasive throughout Indian Country," Anaya said.

"It is evident that there have still not been adequate measures of reconciliation to overcome the persistent legacies of the history of oppression and that there is still much healing that needs to be done," he said.

Teen to Plead Guilty in Nevada Killing

BY MICHELLE RINDELS
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • The lawyer for one of two teens accused in the March 2011 killing of a Nevada classmate said Friday that the 19-year-old will plead guilty to first-degree murder.

Attorney John Ohlson told The Associated Press that Kody Cree Patton will enter the plea Wednesday in Elko.

"It was the sensible thing to do," Ohlson said Friday, adding that if some of the details about the killing came out at trial, "it would be difficult to avoid the death penalty."

Patton and Toni Fratto, his girlfriend at the time, were accused in the death of 16-year-old Micaela "Mickey" Costanzo, who was taken to a remote area near the Utah-Nevada border after track practice at West Wendover High School on March 3, 2011.

Authorities said she was struck in the head with a shovel and her throat was slit before she was buried in a shallow grave.

Patton and Fratto were also accused of burning some of the girl's personal items in another location.

Fratto hadn't been a suspect until she offered a confession to Patton's defense attorney. In the recording, she told lawyers Micaela wanted to date Patton but he didn't want anything to do with her.

Fratto, now 19, pleaded guilty to second-degree murder with a deadly weapon and was sentenced in April to up to life in prison. She will be eligible for parole after serving 18 years.

Patten had previously pleaded not guilty and was set to go to trial in July. As part of her plea agreement, Fratto had agreed to testify against him.

Fratto's mother, Cassie Fratto, declined to specifically address Patton's pending plea in a Friday interview with the AP. But she described her daughter as a girl with a bright future, an active volunteer in her small community who became a victim in an emotionally and physically abusive relationship with Patton.

"Toni's not a monster," Cassie Fratto said, pointing out that her daughter came forward to accept responsibility for her role in the death. "She got wrapped up with the wrong person."

In an interview with Anderson Cooper that aired Friday on the syndicated talk show "Anderson," Fratto was asked why she hit Costanzo with a shovel. She said Patton told her to "just do it, it's OK, just do it," adding that she was terrified and didn't know what to do. Fratto spoke from the jailhouse in Elko, where she is being held.

The victim's mother, Celia Costanzo, said she still doesn't understand the motive for the crime and she thinks Toni Fratto is holding back information.

"She's got to know why ... she participated," Celia Costanzo said on the show. "You cannot do something so horrendous and not know why. You can't!"

President Obama Heads to Reno May 11

RENO, Nev. (AP) • President Obama plans to visit Reno next week and discuss the economy.

The White House press office says the president will travel to Reno on Friday for an unspecified official event regarding the nation's economy. It will be his third trip to Nevada this year, his first to Reno since April 2011.

Obama will travel to Reno from Los Angeles on Friday, after campaign events Thursday in Seattle and L.A. He'll return Friday afternoon to Washington D.C. The White House released no other details.

Nevada is one of several battleground states considered up for grabs in the November presidential election.

Obama carried Nevada four years ago with 55 percent of the vote. He's visited southern Nevada twice this year. The first lady spoke this week at a Las Vegas fundraiser.

U of I's Athletic Director Talks Options Amid Conference Issues

BY JOSH WRIGHT
For the Times-News

Spear

MOSCOW • Two summers ago, after Boise State announced its departure from the WAC, Idaho athletic director Rob Spear emphasized the resiliency of the conference. Through all the turmoil, it always found ways to stay intact. On Friday, Spear shifted gears. With the WAC possibly in its final year as an FBS football conference, he still presented a reassuring message to the media. But this time it was the about the school he represents – not the league that the Vandals have been apart of since 2005. “People are concerned about the University of Idaho and its future,” Spear said. “But what I have told them is that the University of Idaho is resilient, we will continue to be resilient and we’re going to land on our feet regardless of what happens. “Whatever the final outcome is, the University of Idaho is going to be fine.” Utah State and San Jose State officially accepted invitations to the Mountain West Conference on Friday, leaving the WAC with two football-playing members in 2013-14 – UI and New Mexico State.

Louisiana Tech and future member Texas-San Antonio have bolted for Conference USA, while Texas State and Texas-Arlington – other schools set to join the WAC – are jumping to the Sun Belt. The mass defections in the last week have left Idaho scrambling for a home for its athletic programs. Spear said it’s possible the WAC could reorganize as a non-football conference, but UI’s first preference is to have all its programs in one FBS league. The Vandals will also evaluate going independent in football with their other programs in one conference or moving down to the FCS level and rejoining the Big Sky.

CSI Softball Preps for Regionals with Split

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho softball team had little to play for Friday, but that didn’t mean the Golden Eagles were satisfied with going through the motions. CSI battered Western Nevada pitching in Game 1 of their double-header at Eagle Field, winning 7-0 before the Wildcats came back to earn a split with a 6-3 victory, a game in which CSI rested a handful of regulars. “You want to keep things rolling, get some kids some rest and enjoy the weekend. We needed to get some kids ready for next week (and the region tournament),” said CSI coach Nick Baumert. “You always hate to lose, but sometimes a loss isn’t bad. I thought we could swing it a little better, and that’s what we’ll try to do (today).” The split locked the Scenic West standings with two games left to play. Western Nevada will finish sixth and start the Region 18 Tournament against third-place Snow College on Thursday in Salt Lake City. The winner of the game plays conference runner-up CSI (41-16, 31-11).

Patti Ferguson went 3-for-3 in the opener, while Nellie Makings scattered seven hits and struck out three for the complete-game shutout. In Game 2, the Wildcats (20-35, 16-28) bounced back and closed the game out late by scoring five times in the final two innings as weather conditions deteriorated. “I thought Jessi (Duncan) threw well until that sixth inning, when she started walking people and the wind started kicking up,” Baumert said. “Then their pitcher started setting us up away, away, and we didn’t make an adjustment.” The teams will conclude the regular season today with a noon doubleheader. Notes: Center fielder Tyler Wilkinson left Game 1 with a bruised knee after a diving attempted catch, and she sat out the rest of the day. Baumert said she’s expected to be available today. ... Short-stop Lea Hopson appeared to hurt her shoulder making a throw early in Game 2. She stayed in the game and also is expected to play today.

PARMA • The eight male 1-year-olds, separated from the females for everyone’s benefit, are feisty. They bite everything – fences, chain locks, the camera snapping shots of them, each other. They nudge, tussle and tease. At times, often at night, they run. “They’re like teenage boys,” said Dan Kiser, the man charged with raising horses at Parma’s Tree Top Ranches, which is owned by Treasure Valley businessman Larry Williams and his wife, Marianne. And like teenage boys, it is often easy to pick out the leader of the pack. It was two years ago, in this pasture on this beautiful ranch of more than 700 acres, that another group of 1-year-olds did the same things. Kiser quickly identified one as that

Buhl Raises Game for Injured Coach

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

BUHL • The Buhl track and field team dedicated its performance at the Meet of Champions to head coach Andrew Moretto. Every member of the team wrote the letter ‘A’ on one shoulder and ‘M’ on the other with black marker to represent their beloved coach, who underwent surgery on his neck and spine Friday after getting struck by a stray discus in practice the day before. “Today we’re competing for coach. We know he wants us to do well and everyone is inspired and doing awesome today,” said Buhl hurdler Gage Silva. “He’s an amazing coach. We came together as a team to support him.” Moretto went to shag a discus during practice on Thursday when an errant throw found him in the back of the neck, below the base of his head. He was rushed to Boise and on Friday underwent surgery to repair two broken vertebrae. “It’s one of those things where you’re always worried it can happen, you hear about it happening in other places, but you don’t actually think it can happen to you,” said Moretto’s daughter, Kaylee. “We were all in shock. I was really scared.”

Kaylee Moretto, a thrower, competed Friday after being urged to do so by her father and finished second in the shot put with a toss of 35 feet, 2 inches. “I wanted to be there with him and support him, but he said I should compete and go out and do my best,” she said. “It was hard at first, especially in the discus, since that’s where it happened, but the shot put was really good. I was thinking about him a lot. ... All he wanted was for everyone to win or get a (personal record) today.”

Spear has talked with Big Sky commissioner Doug Fullerton in the last week, but he described the conversation as "strictly philosophical."

quired to have at least five home football games per year – a hurdle that could be tricky given that the Kibbie Dome holds just 16,000.

Spear said there's "always a chance" the Mountain West asks UI to join, and that's clearly the top option. For now, Idaho's best hope to stay in the FBS and keep all its programs together appears to be in the Sun Belt, which is led by former WAC commissioner Karl Benson.

Idaho's AD said he's talked with almost every league commissioner outside the Pac-12 – often not about membership – and he expects to have conversations with Benson soon.

Regarding the Mountain West, Spear told The Spokesman-Review he was never given official word that UI had been passed over. Instead he came to that conclusion last week when reports came out that the MWC was going with Utah State and San Jose State.

The reason was clear enough.

"It was emphasized that we don't have enough televisions in our market area," Spear said. "As you know as well as I do, everything is based on television and television revenues."

Rachel Youren won the 3,200 meters with a time of 13 minutes 2 seconds and her freshman teammate Eliseo Garcia took first in 10:47. He stuck with the pack for a mile and a half, letting the leaders take on the wind, before making a surge with 800 meters left to coast to victory.

Eagles Get Help, Help Themselves

BY DAVID BASHORE dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Everything College of Southern Idaho baseball coach Boomer Walker wanted Friday, he got.

Even a little help in a game the Golden Eagles weren't contesting.

Two dynamic starting pitching performances were accompanied by the CSI bats waking up in two wins against Colorado Northwestern, 9-1 and 10-0.

Kyle Olason tossed five hitless innings before giving way in the opener, and Andrew Freter went seven strong in the nightcap, scattering five hits and striking out nine.

"We were going to take Kyle out no matter what because he was on a pitch count," Walker said. "The most interesting thing for us was how Andrew was going to respond to having his worst outing of the year when we were down at (Colorado Northwestern), and he had his best outing for us by far."

Tyler Dunnington homered in Game 1, and he and Carter Yagi each drove in two runs.

Game 2 was interrupted for a weather delay and it caused CSI's bats to quiet a little bit. But they woke up in a big way in the eighth inning, when Parker Webster led off with a solo blast that sailed well over the left-field wall, and Chase Harris bookended that with a three-run line-drive shot to left that ended the game on account of the run rule.

"I think Parker's hit was the biggest one of the day for us because he's struggled so much," Walker said. "We're not going to be able to do it next week without that guy."

CSI (30-22, 19-17 Scenic West) and Colorado Northwestern (7-38, 7-31) close the regular season today with a noon doubleheader. After that both teams will head to the Region 18 Tournament, which begins Wednesday in West Jordan, Utah.

They thought they'd be playing each other in the first-round 4-5 game, but CSI leaptfrogged Southern Nevada for third place in the conference standings after the Coyotes were stunned in Game 2 of a Friday double-header by USU-Eastern, which had one win in its last 24 games coming into the series.

If CSI wins both today it will finish third in the conference and will likely face USU-Eastern in the first round.

Salt Lake Community College swept a doubleheader from Western Nevada College on Friday to clinch the conference championship.

Sixers Take 2-1 Lead against the Bulls

PHILADELPHIA • Spencer Hawes scored 21 points, grabbed nine rebounds and hit the go-ahead jumper late in the fourth quarter to help Philadelphia rally to beat Chicago 79-74 on Friday night and take a 2-1 lead in their Eastern Conference playoff series.

Hawes scored 10 points in the fourth quarter for the eighth-seeded Sixers.

Game 4 is Sunday in Philadelphia. Already playing the rest of the series without reigning MVP Derrick Rose, the Bulls got another scare in the third quarter when Joakim Noah left with a sprained left ankle. Noah, who scored 12 points, returned in the fourth quarter and mostly hobbled around the court.

year's top horse.

"He was the guy in charge and just prettier than anybody else," the veteran horseman said.

On Saturday, Kiser's pick will run in the Kentucky Derby, fulfilling a longtime goal for his owners and hoping to beat the odds.

Born and raised on cattle ranches in Midvale, Larry and Marianne Williams moved their young family to Boise in 1966. Larry Williams founded Idaho Timber Corporation in 1979, and it grew to be one of the 10 largest private companies in the state, with more than $100 million in annual revenues.

He sold his share in 2005.

By then, the Williamses had invested in another passion: horses.

"I grew up on a ranch and my wife did as well, so I've always had horses. We determined we wanted to start a horse farm around '99-2000. We looked at thoroughbreds, and we looked at quarter horses. We came back here (to Kentucky) and just fell in love with the place. We couldn't do it here so we decided we would try to do it in Idaho on a much smaller scale," Williams said Wednesday from Louisville.

They found a spot in Parma, a tiny town of 1,983 people, located 43 miles northwest of Boise in Canyon County. It was the perfect location for a couple who – despite several high-profile financial gifts to Boise State athletics, such as $5 million for the Caven-Williams Sports Complex, and a large land donation to the city of Boise for Marianne Williams Park – shy away from the spotlight and prefer to "not be out front too much," Williams said.

"It wasn't a grandiose plan. That wasn't the way it started. We kept building a building and then another building. It got out of control," said Williams, who makes his money now from cattle ranching in southeastern Oregon. "It's a baby. The ones in Kentucky are much bigger."

When Williams brought on Kiser in 2002, the pair discussed their goals. They were lofty for a nascent horse operation in Idaho, of all places.

Above all goals was the Kentucky Derby. "That was always the goal. I think that's everybody's goal," Williams said. "... We wished and hoped for it, but that's an awfully big way to go."

Today, the Williamses' goal will become reality at historic Churchill Downs. "The foal produced by Lucky Pulpit and Rousing Again was a good one. Kiser knew it when he was just 1 and leading the other horses in the pasture. The Williamses' California-based trainer, Jerry Hollendorfer, knew it, too, when the horse was sent to him for racing."

"Jerry's pretty neutral. He doesn't get excited. ... He's not emotional about it," Williams said. "When Jerry said this is going to be a good horse, you know you've got a pretty good horse."

He proved it by hitting the board in eight of nine races, including two victories, and earning enough money in graded stakes to qualify for the Kentucky Derby. On Saturday, that pretty good horse will try to beat 50-to-1 odds and win horse racing's biggest event. Rousing Sermon is a long shot in the Run for the Roses. So, too, are his owners.

"There's always that chance you step up," Williams said, "and knock the big boys off."

Falling Bear in Colorado Campus Photo Killed by Car

A bear that became famous after it was tranquilized and fell from a tree at the University of Colorado died when it was hit by two cars after returning to town, likely looking for food. A photographer captured an image of the 280-pound black bear in midair, its arms and legs spread, after it was tranquilized April 26. It was relocated 50 miles away to the mountains and was struck on U.S. Highway 36 — which connects Denver to Boulder — around dawn Thursday. The spot where the bear was killed was a little more than 2 miles from the university's campus. Both cars were towed from the scene and one driver was taken to the hospital with minor injuries, the Colorado State Patrol said. Wildlife officials believe the unusually warm and dry climate in Colorado has left limited sources of natural food for bears, prompting them to wander into town.

A Man and His Monkey Pulled over in Florida.

A Florida man is charged with felony drunken driving and wildlife violations after police discovered a small monkey in his truck. Largo Police say Eugene Carl Kotelman was speeding when they stopped him Thursday. He was driving on a suspended license and had been previously charged numerous times with driving on a suspended license and DUI. Officers noticed a "small monkey" in Kotelman's truck and released the primate to his friend. After Kotelman was released on bond from the DUI charge, Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission officers charged him with possession of wildlife and two counts of violating fish and wildlife rules. They took custody of the monkey.

Sept. 11 Trial of Five Returns to Guantanamo

Five men accused of orchestrating the Sept. 11 attacks, including the self-proclaimed mastermind, are headed back to a military tribunal at Guantanamo Bay more than three years after President Barack Obama put the case on hold in a failed effort to move the proceedings to a civilian court and close the prison at the U.S. base in Cuba.

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba

The man who once bragged about planning Sept. 11 "from A to Z" may mount a defense after all to charges that he orchestrated the worst terror attack in U.S. history, with families of the dead watching intently from the U.S. on closed-circuit TV.

Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, charged with four others with planning and helping to carry out the 2001 terror attack that sent hijacked jetliners into the World Trade Center and Pentagon, will be arraigned today at the U.S. military base in Cuba.

Mohammed had previously mocked the military tribunal and said he would welcome the death penalty. His co-defendant, Ramzi Binalshibh, also told the court he was proud of the attacks that killed nearly 3,000 people in New York, Washington and Shanksville, Pa.

But "I don't think anyone is going to plead guilty," said Jim Harrington, Binalshibh's civilian lawyer, who added the defendants are expected to fight the charges against them, which include murder and terrorism and carry a potential death penalty.

Harrington declined to say what would be the basis of his defense and lawyers for Mohammed did not respond to messages seeking comment.

The men, held in a secret prison in Guantanamo that is under such tight security even its exact location on the base is classified, have not been seen in public since a pretrial hearing the day after Obama's Jan. 21, 2009, inauguration.

Their arraignment comes more than three years after the Obama administration's failed effort to try the suspects in a federal civilian court and close the prison at the U.S. base in Cuba. Attorney General Eric Holder announced in 2009 that Mohammed and his codefendants would be tried blocks from the site of the destroyed trade center in downtown Manhattan, but the plan was shelved after New York officials cited huge costs to secure the neighborhood and family opposition to trying the suspects in the U.S.

Six family members who won a lottery to attend the proceedings will face Mohammed and the other men in court; others were watching on closed-circuit video at military bases in New York City and the eastern U.S.

Cliff and Christina Russell traveled from their Rockaway Beach neighborhood in New York to honor the memory of Cliff's younger brother, Stephen, a firefighter killed responding to the attacks. Cliff Russell said he hopes the tribunal will end with the death penalty for Mohammed and his co-defendants.

"I'm not looking forward to ending someone else's life and taking satisfaction in it, but it's the most disgusting, hateful, awful thing I ever could think of if you think about what was perpetrated," he said.

The men never entered formal pleas in previous hearings, but Mohammed had told the court that he would confess to planning the attacks and hoped to be a "martyr." He dismissed the military justice system, saying, "After torturing, they transferred us to inquisition land in Guantanamo."

The arraignment is expected to be followed by a hearing on defense motions that challenge the charges and extreme secrecy rules imposed to prevent the release of information about U.S. counterterrorism methods and strategy.

New rules adopted by Congress and Obama forbid the use of testimony obtained through cruel treatment or torture. The defendants were held at secret CIA prisons overseas where they were subjected to what the government called "enhanced interrogation techniques." Mohammed was waterboarded 183 times, officials have said.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed a motion Friday asking the judge to prohibit the government's use of a 40-second delay and a white noise machine to prevent any spectators from hearing classified information, including details about the harsh treatment in the secret CIA detention sites overseas.

"If the defendants are unable to express themselves directly to the American public then how are we to know whether justice is being served," said ACLU director Anthony Romero.

Kenneth Roth, executive director of Human Rights Watch and a former federal prosecutor, say coerced testimony from witnesses is still admissible, even if it isn't from defendants, and the case would be better off in civilian court instead of being heard by a judge and jury panel picked by the Pentagon.

"There still are major problems in terms of whether the trial will be fair and, more important, will they be perceived as fair," Roth said.

Breast Cancer In Men Is Rare, But They Fare Far Worse

CHICAGO (AP) • Men rarely get breast cancer, but those who do often don't survive as long as women, largely because they don't even realize they can get it and are slow to recognize the warning signs, researchers say.

On average, women with breast cancer lived two years longer than men in the biggest study yet of the disease in males.

The study found that men's breast tumors were larger at diagnosis, more advanced and more likely to have spread to other parts of the body. Men were also diagnosed later in life; in the study, they were 63 on average, versus 59 for women.

Many men have no idea that they can get breast cancer, and some doctors are in the dark, too, dismissing symptoms that would be an automatic red flag in women, said study leader Dr. Jon Greif, a breast cancer surgeon in Oakland, Calif.

The American Cancer Society estimates 1 in 1,000 men will get breast cancer, versus 1 in 8 women. By comparison, 1 in 6 men will get prostate cancer, the most common cancer in men.

A police officer stands guard in the middle of two images featuring blind Chinese activist Chen Guangcheng during a protest in front of the Chinese central government's liaison in Hong Kong Friday.

U.S., China Forge Tentative Deal on Chinese Activist

BEIJING (AP) • With a series of quickly choreographed steps, the U.S. and China outlined a tentative deal Friday to send a blind legal activist to America for study and potentially bring a face-saving end to a delicate diplomatic crisis.

The arrangements, if kept, promise to give Chen Guangcheng much of what he wanted: a chance to live with his family in safety and to get a formal legal education. It would also allow Washington and Beijing to put aside a rancorous human rights dispute to focus on managing their rivalry for global influence.

As part of the deal, China's Foreign Ministry said Chen can apply for travel permits to study abroad. The State Department said an American university — later identified as New York University — has offered a fellowship for Chen with provisions for his family. Spokeswoman Victoria Nuland said the U.S. expects Beijing to process the travel permits quickly, and once done, visas would be issued.

"I don't think this is empty talk here. I think they mean this is a way out, and it's a dignified way out. It's a good way out for the Chinese government and our government and for Chen and his family," said Jerome Cohen, an NYU law professor who met Chen nearly a decade ago, advised him during the negotiations and arranged the fellowship.

In a sign that not all was settled, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton offered a guarded assessment.

Syrian Forces Kill Teen in Aleppo Protests

BEIRUT (AP) • Syrian forces fired on thousands of protesters Friday in Aleppo, killing a teenager, after a raid on dormitories at the city's main university killed four students and enflamed tensions in a key bastion of support for the regime.

An Aleppo-based activist said the protests were the largest the city has seen since the start of the uprising against President Bashar Assad in March 2011. Aleppo is a major economic hub that has remained largely loyal to Assad over the course of the 14-month uprising.

"The people are incensed by what happened at the university," said the activist, Mohammed Saeed. "Everyone wants to express solidarity with those students."

Saeed said security forces were out in full force, firing live ammunition to disperse protesters and arresting people randomly.

"With our blood, we sacrifice for you students!" people shouted.

Nurse in Afghanistan Dies in Skype Chat with Wife

BY MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press

HOUSTON • The wife of an Army officer serving in Afghanistan witnessed her husband's death as the two video chatted via Skype, his family said Friday.

The circumstances of Capt. Bruce Kevin Clark's death were not immediately available. The Pentagon said it was under investigation, and his brother-in-law said he didn't have details.

"We are entrusting the military with investigating and with finding out what happened to Capt. Clark," Bradley Taber-Thomas told The Associated Press.

Clark, a 43-year-old Army chief nurse, grew up in Michigan and lived previously in Spencerport, N.Y., a suburb of Rochester and his wife's hometown. He joined the Army in 2006 and was stationed in Hawaii before he was assigned to the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso. He deployed to Afghanistan in March.

A statement from the family released by Taber-Thomas said Clark died Monday while talking to his wife during one of their regular Skype sessions.

"At the time of the incident, the family was hoping for a rescue and miracle, but later learned that it was not to be," the statement said. "Although the circumstances were unimaginable, Bruce's wife and extended family will be forever thankful that he and his wife were together in his last moments."

Clark's body was returned Thursday to Dover Air Force Base.

Colo. Boy, 6, Suspended for Reciting 'Sexy' Lyric

AURORA, Colo. (AP) • A 6-year-old boy was suspended from his suburban Denver school for three days after school officials said he told a girl "I'm sexy and I know it," a line from a popular song.

D'Avonte Meadows, a first-grader at Sable Elementary School in Aurora, is accused of sexual harassment and disrupting other students, according to a letter the school district sent to his mother after he was sent home Wednesday.

School officials issued a statement saying they couldn't discuss the case, but they pointed out a school board policy that defines sexual harassment as any unwelcome sexual advance. There is no age limit.

The Aurora Police Department said it was not involved in the case because laws only cover children ages 10 and older.

D'Avonte's mother, Stephanie Meadows, said her son doesn't know the meaning of sexual harassment and it's the second time he has gotten in trouble for quoting "Sexy and I Know It." The song by the duo LMFAO was at the top of Billboard's Hot 100 chart for two weeks in January.

Look! Up in the Sky! It's Supermoon! Due Tonight

The biggest and brightest full moon of the year arrives tonight as our celestial neighbor passes closer to Earth than usual. But don't expect any "must-have-been-a-full-moon" spike in crime or crazy behavior. That's just folklore. Tonight's event is a "supermoon," the closest and therefore the biggest and brightest full moon of the year. At 11:34 p.m., the moon will be about 221,802 miles from Earth. That's about 15,300 miles closer than average.

U.S. Revamps Student Work-Visa Program after Widespread Abuses

BY HOLBROOK MOHR
Associated Press

JACKSON, Miss. • The State Department announced major changes Friday to one of its premier cultural-exchange programs following an investigation by The Associated Press that found widespread abuses.

The agency issued new rules for the J-1 Summer Work and Travel Program, which brings more than 100,000 foreign college students to the United States each year.

The changes are the latest in a series of steps the State Department has taken to fix the program since the 2010 AP investigation. The investigation found that some participants were working in strip clubs, not always willingly, while others were put in living and working conditions they compared to indentured servitude.

The J-1 Summer Work and Travel Program, created under the Fulbright-Hays Act of 1961, allows foreign college students to spend up to four months living and working in the United States. It was meant to foster cultural understanding, but has become a booming, multimillion-dollar international business.

"In recent years, the work component has too often overshadowed the core cultural component necessary for the Summer Work Travel Program to be consistent with the intent of the Fulbright-Hays Act," the State Department said in announcing the new rules.

"Also, the Department learned that criminal organizations were involving participants in incidents relating to the illegal transfer of cash, the creation of fraudulent businesses, and violations of immigration law."

The new rules are meant to ensure that students are treated properly and that they get jobs where there will be interaction with Americans and exposure to U.S. culture.

Some of the rules are effective immediately, while others will take effect in November, including a significant one that would prohibit participants from working in "goods-producing" industries such as manufacturing, construction and agriculture. The rules also ban participants from working in jobs in which the primary hours are between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

"The new reforms for the Summer Work Travel program focus on strengthening protections for the health, safety and welfare of the participants, and on bringing the program back to its primary purpose, which is to provide a cultural experience for international students," Robin Lerner, a deputy assistant secretary for the State Department, said in a statement Friday.

"This is a valuable people-to-people diplomacy program and the changes allow us to improve the unique qualities of the program by providing clarity for participants, their sponsors and employers on what is and is not appropriate."

George Collins, an inspector with the Okaloosa County Sheriff's Department in the Florida Panhandle who has investigated abuses in the program for nearly a decade, said he is pleased with the changes.

"While I might have preferred stronger requirements here or there, I think the new regulations go a long way to help protect workers from the kinds of abuse we have seen routinely," Collins said. "We intend to check implementation in the field, and will notify the State Department of any activities we believe violate these rules."

The visa program is aimed at allowing students of modest means to work in seasonal or temporary jobs as a way of offsetting the costs of their travel to the U.S. More than 1 million students have participated in a variety of jobs in all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Most participants enjoy their time in the U.S., establishing lifelong memories and friendships. For some, the program is a frightening experience that leaves them with a bad impression of the country.

In one of the worst cases of abuse, a woman told the AP she was beaten, raped and forced to work as a stripper in Detroit after being promised a job as a waitress in Virginia. A federal indictment last year in New York charged that members of the Gambino and Bonnano mafia families and the Russian mob were using fraudulent job offers to help Eastern European women come to the U.S. to work in strip clubs.

More common than sex-trade abuses have been reports of shabby housing, scarce work hours and paltry pay, alleged conditions that led workers to protest last year at a candy factory that packs Hershey chocolates in Hershey, Pa. Those workers complained of hard physical labor and pay deductions for rent that often left them with little money. The company that sponsored those students lost its State Department certification.

Saket Soni, executive director of the National Guest-worker Alliance, a workers advocacy group, said the changes vindicate the 400 students who protested against conditions at the candy factory and the changes are a step in the right direction.

5 Wild Animals Back on Ohio Farm; Safety Debated

BY ANN SANNER
Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio • Five exotic animals are back on the eastern Ohio farm where they lived months ago before their owner released dozens of wild animals into the rural community, then killed himself.

The widow of Terry Thompson picked up two leopards, two primates and a bear from the Columbus zoo on Friday and returned them to their former home in Zanesville where 50 animals — including black bears, mountain lions and Bengal tigers — were released Oct. 18.

Authorities killed 48 of the animals, fearing for the public's safety. Two others were presumed eaten by other animals. The surviving animals were found in cages and placed under quarantine at the zoo. Ohio's agriculture director lifted the quarantine order Monday, after test results showed all five animals were free of dangerously contagious or infectious diseases.

Thompson's suicide, the animals' release, and their killings led lawmakers to re-examine Ohio's restrictions on exotic pets, which are considered some of the nation's weakest.

Now that Marian Thompson has retrieved the animals, nothing in Ohio law allows state officials to check on their welfare or require improvements to conditions in which they are kept. The state's agriculture department says it will be up to local authorities to be alert to their caretaking.

"Ohio has done everything in its power to keep local officials informed throughout this process to ensure they had as much information as possible in advance of this threat returning to their backyard," said David Daniels, the state's agriculture director.

Ohio lawmakers are considering legislation that would ban new ownership of dangerous animals — but grandfather in owners such as Thompson. The bill is on track to pass the Legislature this month.

Should it become law, Thompson would have to register the animals with the state, obtain liability insurance and pay permit fees of at least $1,000 by 2014. She also would have to pass a background check, microchip the animals and meet strict new caretaking standards, including fencing requirements.

For now, Muskingum County Sheriff Matt Lutz said there is not much local authorities can do as long as the animals are being cared for properly. "At the first complaint we have, we'll follow up," he said.

Ron Welch, the county's assistant prosecuting attorney, said his office made several attempts to persuade Thompson's attorney to allow an inspector, the sheriff and a humane officer to see the cages at the property before the animals returned. They were denied.

"We were very disappointed with that because we felt that we just wanted at that point to provide some sense of security to our citizens and our community that this was in fact a safe place for these animals to be kept," Welch said.

Five Philadelphia Priests Removed after Abuse Inquiry

BY MARYCLAIRE DALE
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA • Five priests will be permanently barred from ministry after the Philadelphia archdiocese substantiated allegations of sexual abuse or inappropriate conduct, a Roman Catholic archbishop said Friday.

Three other suspended priests will return to ministry, and another died during the investigation, Archbishop Charles Chaput said. Another 17 cases remain under review, he said.

"When a child is harmed, the church has failed. When trust is lost, the church has failed. When the whole community suffers as a result, the church has failed," Chaput said. "We can't change the past. But I pray — and I do believe — that the lessons of the last year have made our Church humbler, wiser, and a more vigilant guardian of our people's safety."

Four of the five cases substantiated were said to involve "boundary" or "behavioral" problems, not sexual assaults.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Archbishop of Philadelphia Charles Chaput listens to a speakers remarks during a news conference Friday in Philadelphia. Chaput announced that five priests were deemed unsuitable for ministry because of substantiated allegations of sexual abuse or other inappropriate conduct.

Yet a lawyer for one accuser said one of those four priests had raped his client at St. Timothy's Parish rectory in Philadelphia in the early 1970s.

"How do they define boundary issues, if somebody reports, credibly, that he was sexually raped — both orally and anally — as a 9-to-11-year-old?" said the man's lawyer, Daniel Monahan of Exton.

The accuser, now in his 50s, contacted the archdiocese in 2006. He met last year with church investigators, a team led by a former child sex-crimes prosecutor and retired detective, and detailed his allegations, Monahan said.

The announcements came as a former archdiocesan official, Monsignor William Lynn, stands trial on child-endangerment and conspiracy charges. He faces up to 28 years in prison if convicted of helping the church cover up abuse complaints as the secretary for clergy from 1992 to 2004. Defense lawyers say he took orders from the late Cardinal Anthony Bevilacqua.

None of the accused priests whose fates were announced Friday could be reached for comment. Phone listings rang unanswered or had been disconnected, and their former parishes did not know their whereabouts.

About two dozen other priests were suspended more than a year ago, after a grand jury report again blasted the archdiocese for keeping accused priests in ministry. A 2005 grand jury report had raised the same concern.

U.S. bishops have had a "zero tolerance" policy for abusers since 2002.

Priests removed from ministry can agree to serve a life of prayer and penance in a church-run facility, where they can be monitored. Some might agree to leave the priesthood, while others may be laicized after a church trial. The priests can also appeal the decision.

Chaput inherited the sex-abuse problem when he arrived from Denver last year. He declined to provide details Friday of how old or how serious the cases might be. Most had earlier been deemed not credible by his predecessors.

"I need to balance the need for transparency with the pain already felt by victims — pain which we acknowledge and do not wish to compound," Chaput said.

Rain Can't Drown Out Day of Prayer

COEUR D'ALENE PRESS

COEUR d'ALENE • North Idaho, like the rest of the country, bowed its head in prayer Thursday as part of National Day of Prayer.

Some prayed for wisdom to bless city, county, state and national leaders. Others for healing the troops. Others for grace. But everyone, for something.

"That's the most important thing we can do," said Terri Capozzo, one of the approximately 100 people who gathered under umbrellas in front of Coeur d'Alene City Hall at noon Thursday for the gathering, about praying,

"That's just a privilege we have in this country without fear of persecution. It's such an important thing."

Around 15 pastors spoke to the passionate crowd about the importance of staying faithful to God and the Bible.

The word of God, they said, should always be the path people should follow, even if laws can run counter to that. They prayed for wisdom to bless all leaders, from tiny towns to the nation's capital, during a difficult political time.

"We kill our unborn and call it choice," Pastor David Roberts said. "So we humbly bow and ask from your dear heart to forgive us."

The country was founded on the Bible, Pastor Gary Brown said. The country should return to those principles to keep America great.

"America looks ridiculous without Christians," he said, adding later he was pleased with the turnout despite the downpour. "Unless we become engaged, America is lost."

The 61st annual observance was originally declared by Congress so the people of the United States may turn to God in prayer and meditation at churches, according to The Associated Press.

Skatalites' Bassist Brevett Dies in Jamaica at Age 80

BY DAVID MCFADDEN
Associated Press

KINGSTON, Jamaica • Lloyd Brevett, a renowned double bassist who helped carry ska music from Jamaica to the world as a founding member of the hugely influential band The Skatalites, died Thursday at age 80.

Family spokeswoman and close friend Maxine Stowe said Brevett died shortly before dawn at a Kingston hospital where he was being treated for seizures and complications from a recent stroke.

The pioneering musician suffered a debilitating stroke in March, two weeks after his 32-year-old son, Okine, was murdered by gunmen outside the family's home in the rough Seaview Gardens area of Kingston. He was gunned down a couple of hours after accepting a reggae industry award for his father's musical contributions.

"He took his son's death as stoically as he could, but you knew it was devastating for him," said Stowe, a music industry veteran who helped set up a fund to help Brevett's family pay for his medical bills. "He deteriorated rapidly after that."

Brevett was an original member of The Skatalites, which began in 1964 during the evolution of Jamaican music from American influenced rhythm-and-blues and jazz to the homegrown syncopated style of ska, the precursor of reggae, rock steady and dub.

During the first 14 months the band was together, it transformed jazz, movie themes like "Guns of Navarone" and other types of music with the uptempo shuffle style they invented. They played as studio musicians on numerous records and backed up groups including the early Wailers.

The band broke up in the mid-1960s, but regrouped in New York two decades later. Two of their albums, "Hip Bop Ska" and "Greetings from Skamania," were nominated for Grammy awards in the 1990s.

Legendary Jamaican musicians say it's difficult to overestimate the role the trained jazz bassist and the rest of the original Skatalites played in developing the Caribbean island's unique music.

"He was there from the beginning," Bunny Wailer told The Associated Press. "All my bass lines from all my recordings have been attributed to bass lines from Lloyd Brevett."

Wailer, the reggae legend who was one of the original Wailers along with Bob Marley and Peter Tosh, praised Brevett as a devout member of the Rastafarian faith and an elder statesman of the island's culture.

"Brother Brevett's music is eternal," Wailer said.

Former Prime Minister P.J. Patterson, who was once a tour manager for The Skatalites, said that while the band's great horn section often drew most of the accolades, it was "Brevett who quietly provided the mesmerizing backbone to the Skatalites' sound."

"To say that Brevett was a creator of both ska and dub is not to use hyperbole," Patterson said in a statement.

Musician Adam Yauch from the Beastie Boys attends a special evening to honor artist Ross Bleckner's appointment as Goodwill Ambassador in May 2009 at the United Nations. Yauch, who's also known as MCA, was diagnosed with a cancerous parotid gland in 2009.

Adam Yauch of the Beastie Boys Dies at 47

BY JAKE COYLE

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Adam Yauch, the gravelly voiced rapper who helped make the Beastie Boys one of the seminal groups in hip-hop, died Friday. He was 47.

Yauch, also known as MCA, died in New York after a nearly three-year battle with cancer, his representatives said. He had been diagnosed with a cancerous salivary gland in 2009.

At the time, Yauch expressed hope that it was "very treatable," but his illness forced the group to cancel shows and delayed the release of their 2011 album, "Hot Sauce Committee, Pt. 2."

He hadn't performed in public since 2009 and was absent when the Beastie Boys were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame last month.

Yauch was an integral, founding member to the ever-weaving trio: three Jewish kids from New York who found widespread respect in a hip-hop world with few credible white performers.

In a 25-year span that covered four No. 1 albums and more than 40 million records sold, the Beastie Boys played both prankster and pioneer, a groundbreaking act that helped bring hip-hop to the mainstream.

"The group's music crossed genres and color lines and helped bring rap to a wider audience," said Neil Portnow, president of the Recording Academy. "Yauch was an immense talent and creative visionary."

The demure, gray-haired Yauch wasn't the most boastful B-Boy; he was the thoughtful one and a steady source of the trio's innovative spirit. A devoted Buddhist, he led the group in performing concerts to benefit Tibet, and, as a filmmaker, he helped grow their imagery.

The rapper Q-Tip, a member of another major '90s New York hip-hop group, recalled that the Beastie Boys "showed us the ropes." Sean "Diddy" Combs called Yauch "a true pioneer and a creative force who paved the way for so many of us." The rapper Nas lamented the loss of a "brother."

"I think it's obvious to anyone how big an influence the Beastie Boys were on me and so many others," Eminem said. "They are trailblazers and pioneers and Adam will be sorely missed."

The Brooklyn-born Yauch formed the Beastie Boys with high school friend Michael "Mike D" Diamond. Originally conceived as a hardcore punk group, they played their first show on Yauch's 17th birthday.

In a letter from Yauch read by fellow Beastie Adam "Ad-Rock" Horowitz at the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction, Yauch recalled their early days at his parents' home in Brooklyn, "where we used to practice on hot Brooklyn summer days after school, windows open to disturb the neighborhood."

The group became a hip-hop trio soon after Horowitz joined and coalesced after Yauch dropped out of Bard College two years into his studies. They released their chart-topping debut "Licensed to Ill" in 1986, a raucous album led by the anthem "(You Gotta) Fight for Your Right (To Party)!" It was the first hip-hop album to top the Billboard chart.

"Adam was incredibly sweet and the most sensitive artist, who I loved dearly," Russell Simmons, whose Def Jam label released "Licensed to Ill," said on his website.

In the seven studio albums that followed, the Beastie Boys expanded sonically and grew more musically ambitious.

Their follow-up, 1989's "Paul's Boutique," ended any suggestion that the group was a one-hit wonder. Extreme in its sampling and thoroughly layered, the album (produced by the Dust Brothers) was ranked the 156th greatest album ever by Rolling Stone magazine in 2003.

The Beastie Boys would later take up their own instruments — a rarity in hip-hop — on the album "Check Your Head" and subsequent releases. Yauch played bass.

On "Pass the Mic," he rapped: "If you can feel what I'm feeling then it's a musical masterpiece / If you can hear what I'm dealing with then that's cool at least / What's running through my mind comes through in my walk / True feelings are shown from the way that I talk."

For many, the Beastie Boys' lyrics — overflowing torrents of wit, humor and rhyme — were always the main draw. While other forms of hip-hop celebrated individualism, the Beastie Boys were a verbal tag team. Yauch once rapped, "on the tough guy style I'm not too keen."

Their popularity perhaps peaked with 1994's "Ill Communication," which spawned several of their most famous music videos, including "Sure Shot" and the Spike Jonze-directed "Sabotage" — a hit highlighted by Yauch's bass solo.

Yauch used the group's growing fame to attract awareness for Tibetan Buddhists. He founded the Milarepa Fund to promote activism for Tibet in defense of what the nonprofit considered China's occupational government.

In 1996, Yauch and Milarepa produced a hugely popular benefit concert for Tibet in San Francisco, which was followed by more concerts over the next decade.

"He was a goofball and behind a lot of their prankiness, but if you wanted to talk to him about what was going on in the world and social issues and everything, you got a totally different guy," said Rick Krim, executive vice president of music and talent relations at Vh1.

Introducing the group at the Rock Hall, Public Enemy rapper Chuck D said the Beastie Boys "broke the mold."

"The Beastie Boys are indeed three bad brothers who made history," Chuck D said. "They brought a whole new look to rap and hip-hop. They proved that rap could come from any street — not just a few."

Yauch also went under the pseudonym Nathaniel Hornblower when working as a filmmaker. He directed numerous videos for the group, as well as the 2006 concert film "Awesome: I F--- Shot That!" and the basketball documentary, "Gunnin' for that (No.) 1 Spot!"

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"If you don't know where you are going, you will probably end up somewhere else."
— Laurence Peter

When West leads the heart king against six spades, you must not ruff it with the spade two, or you will run into trouble when the trumps break 4-1. This is so because you will have no entry to the South hand to draw East's last trump. If anyone holds four trumps, it will surely be East. So you should ruff at trick one with the spade king and continue with the spade queen and jack, West showing out on the second round. What now?

You can reasonably place West with 1-7 shape in the major suits, so nothing can be lost by cashing the diamond ace and king. If West follows to two diamonds, you will eventually play clubs from the top. You would then expect clubs to break 3-2 and — more importantly — there would be nothing you could do about a holding of jack-fourth with East. As it happens, it is West who shows out on the second diamond, suggesting that he has 1-7-1-4 shape. You play the club ace to take a look at East's singleton, and then lead the spade two for a finesse of the nine. After drawing the last trump, you can confidently finesse the club 10.

Incidentally, if your trumps were A-8-6-5 in hand instead of your actual holding, you would again need to ruff high at trick one. This would boost your chances of success when West began with a singleton spade 10 or 9. You would still have the trump finesse available.

ANSWER: Despite the absence of controls and high cards, you are best off raising to two hearts now, rather than passing and hoping to get a second chance. You do have some playing strength, and raising here does not promise the Earth. When both sides have a fit, that is the time to bid more, not less.

Today is Saturday, May 5, the 126th day of 2012. There are 240 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On May 5, 1862, the Battle of Puebla took place in Mexico as forces loyal to Benito Juarez defeated troops that had been sent by Napoleon III during the so-called French Intervention. (The Cinco de Mayo holiday commemorates Mexico's victory.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1821, Napoleon Bonaparte, 51, died in exile on the island of St. Helena.
In 1891, New York's Carnegie Hall (then named "Music Hall") had its official opening night.
In 1922, construction began on the original Yankee Stadium in New York.
In 1925, schoolteacher John T. Scopes was charged in Tennessee with violating a state law that prohibited teaching the theory of evolution. (Scopes was found guilty, but his conviction was later set aside.)

In 1936, the Ethiopian capital, Addis Ababa, fell to Italian invaders.

In 1941, Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie returned to Addis Ababa after the Italians were driven out with the help of Allied forces.

In 1942, wartime sugar rationing began in the United States.

In 1955, West Germany became a fully sovereign state. The baseball musical "Damn Yankees" opened on Broadway.

In 1961, astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. became America's first space traveler as he made a 15-minute suborbital flight aboard Freedom 7, a Mercury capsule launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

In 1972, an Alitalia DC-8 crashed into Mount Longa near Palermo, Sicily, with the loss of all 115 people on board.

In 1981, Irish Republican Army hunger-striker Bobby Sands died at the Maze Prison in Northern Ireland in his 66th day without food.

In 1987, the congressional Iran-Contra hearings opened with former Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard V. Secord the lead-off witness. The federal government began a yearlong amnesty program, offering citizenship to illegal aliens who met certain conditions.

Ten years ago: French President Jacques Chirac was re-elected in a landslide victory over extreme-right leader Jean-Marie Le Pen. Movie director George Sidney, who had directed dozens of musicals when the genre was at its peak, died in Las Vegas at age 85. Movie producer Michael Todd Jr. died in Ireland at age 72. Former Bolivian President Hugo Banzer died in Santa Cruz, Bolivia, at age 75.

Five years ago: A Kenya Airways jet crashed in southern Cameroon, killing all 114 people on board. Street Sense roared from next-to-last in a 20-horse field to win the Kentucky Derby. Floyd Mayweather Jr. beat Oscar De La Hoya to win the WBC 154-pound title at the MGM Grand Garden in Las Vegas.

One year ago: Solemnly honoring victims of the Sept. 11 terror attacks, President Barack Obama hugged survivors at ground zero in New York and declared that the killing of Osama bin Laden was an American message to the world: "When we say we will never forget, we mean what we say." Pakistan broke its silence over the U.S. commando raid that killed bin Laden, acknowledging its "shortcomings" in finding him but threatening to review cooperation with Washington if there were another similar violation of Pakistani sovereignty. Director, playwright and screenwriter Arthur Laurents died in New York at age 93. Actress Dana Wynter ("Invasion of the Body Snatchers") died in Ojai, Calif., at age 79.

LISTENING BUT NOT HEARD
DEAR LISTENING: Yes. It appears that you are seeking validation from your mother that you may have never received from her. It's regrettable, but at her stage of life, you are not going to change her. She may be rambling because few people are willing to tolerate her self-centeredness. On the days you are feeling more patient, let her ramble on; on those that you don't feel that way, keep the conversation upbeat but brief.

IF MAY 5 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Reaching up and claiming your ambitions may be the most important matter at the center of your existence in the next four to six weeks. Make decisions about a job, career or investments while you are in top form. With all of your energy, you might be wise to join a health club or gym so that you balance out your life with some social activities while letting your competitive nature have some breathing room in the proper venue. The new contacts you meet through clubs or organizations can brighten your life, but don't spend too much time being the life of the party in July when you should be hard at work.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take it easy. Use the weekend to recharge your batteries after a long week. Time spent with friends and loved ones will act as a tonic to cure what ails you. Treat yourself to a lavish gift if it tickles your fancy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again. No one starts off being great at what they do. It's through practice and application that one learns and grows. A shadow from your past may hope to reconcile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do your homework. Expand your mind by researching an interest or taking on a challenging puzzle. Look for pearls of wisdom from an experienced mentor then put this knowledge to use in daily activities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It takes two to tango. Show the object of your affection how much she or he means to you by finding a thoughtful gift or offering kind words. Social outings will be right up your alley; take a little trip.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can't burn your candle at both ends. You may have more tasks than time, so it would be in your best interests to prioritize activities in order of importance. Leave the lines of communication open.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's the little things that make the difference. Your patience and attention to detail will pay off in the end. The care you show toward painstaking detail will result in a rousing success. Take a bow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Love doesn't cost a thing. While you may have prospects of a romantic nature, it doesn't mean that any of them is Mr. or Ms. Right. Proceed with caution; remember that good things come to those who wait.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put someone on a pedestal. Woo the object of your affection with sweet nothings and presents that show how much you care. A quiet, intimate affair will be more to your liking than a group outing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't indulge caviar tastes on a beer budget. To keep up with the Joneses by having the latest status symbol, you must go into debt. Be happy with what you have and let others play with extravagant toys.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Old skeletons may come out of the closet. Look to touch base with friends that you haven't seen in years. Relish the good old days and realize just how far you've come. Make the best of it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be on your best behavior when dealing with new acquaintances, as there's no telling what may be considered offensive. Bite your tongue when asked to give your honest opinion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Have a ball. Use up the weekend by grabbing the latest gadget or fiddling with the hottest fad. Adding a friend or two into the mix will only multiply your pleasure. Don't quibble over minuscule details.
