T.F. Council to Mull Final Approval for Canyon Park Plat

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It's a packed schedule for Twin Falls City Council tonight.

At tonight's meeting, the council will consider three items related to the new Canyon Park development, including approving the final plat.

The issue has drawn controversy from some who oppose the development, to be located on the Snake River Canyon Rim near Golden Corral.

Barbara Beck, who previously testified against Canyon Park-related items that have come before the city council, submitted a petition to the council asking them to require substantial landscaping that will separate the development and the canyon rim walking path.

While the city normally doesn't take testimony on land use issues, the public will have an opportunity to give input because of the interest, according to a city of Twin Falls press release.

In other business, the council will consider:

- Approving appointee Suzanne Hawkins to Twin Falls City Council.
- Adopting a resolution to sell city property located at Gooding Street North and 3rd Avenue North.
- Approving an agreement with the Bureau of Land Management for the construction of a parking lot at Joslin Field, as well as an agreement with Riedesel Engineering for the construction of the parking lot.
- Discussing salaries for city employees.

Voters to Decide on New Levy for Filer Schools

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

FILER • For Filer High School music teacher Leah Pentland, there are unknowns about next year.

Pentland

She's putting out her resume and applying to graduate schools as a back-up plan in case she doesn't have a job.

The future of teaching jobs and extracurricular programs for students hinges on what voters decide at the polls on election day May 15.

For the first time in nearly 15 years, the Filer School District is pursuing a supplemental levy. Voters will decide whether to approve the two-year, $500,000 annual measure.

If the levy passes, it will allow the district to maintain its current level of operations. If not, the school district will make $500,000 worth of budget cuts next year.

The district would look at cutting at least half a dozen job positions – including one of the district's three music teachers.

"This would be rather dire," Pentland said.

Other proposed cuts could include less funding for extracurricular activities and athletics, eliminating mid-day kindergarten busing and less funding

SCHOOL DISTRICTS SEEK LEVY RENEWALS

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Six Magic Valley school districts are going to voters next week with supplemental levy requests.

Here's information about each of the ballot measures and how the money will be used. For information on the Filer School District's levy, see the above story.

Castleford School District

The Castleford School District is seeking renewal of a two-year, $300,000 annual supplemental levy. It's the same amount as the past four years.

Superintendent Andy Wiseman said money will go toward operating expenses and building maintenance.

One of the largest projects, he said, would be replacing the cafeteria roof, which currently leaks.

Other potential projects on the district's list include replacing the concrete in the playground, and upgrading surveillance cameras and bathroom fixtures.

The Castleford School

District has about 300 students.

Richfield School District

In Richfield, voters will decide whether to renew a two-year, $225,000 annual supplemental levy.

There's a long list of how the money will be used, including for textbooks, athletics, field trips, summer school, summer maintenance programs, after-school academy, teacher supplies, technology, transportation and personnel.

"It's no longer supplemental," Superintendent Barbara Thronson said. "It's become essential."

She also noted the levy – which has stayed at the same amount since 2010 – will be used to continue the district's all-day kindergarten program.

Thronson there's some confusion about how residents' property tax rates will be affected by the levy. It's a $100,000 property increase for a $100,000 property valuation, she said.

The Richfield School District has about 200 students.

Two Missing from Motel in Burley

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Cassia County Sheriff's Office is investigating the disappearance of two residents of the Alpine Garden Motel in Burley, but Sheriff Randy Kidd said Sunday afternoon he is not convinced a crime has occurred.

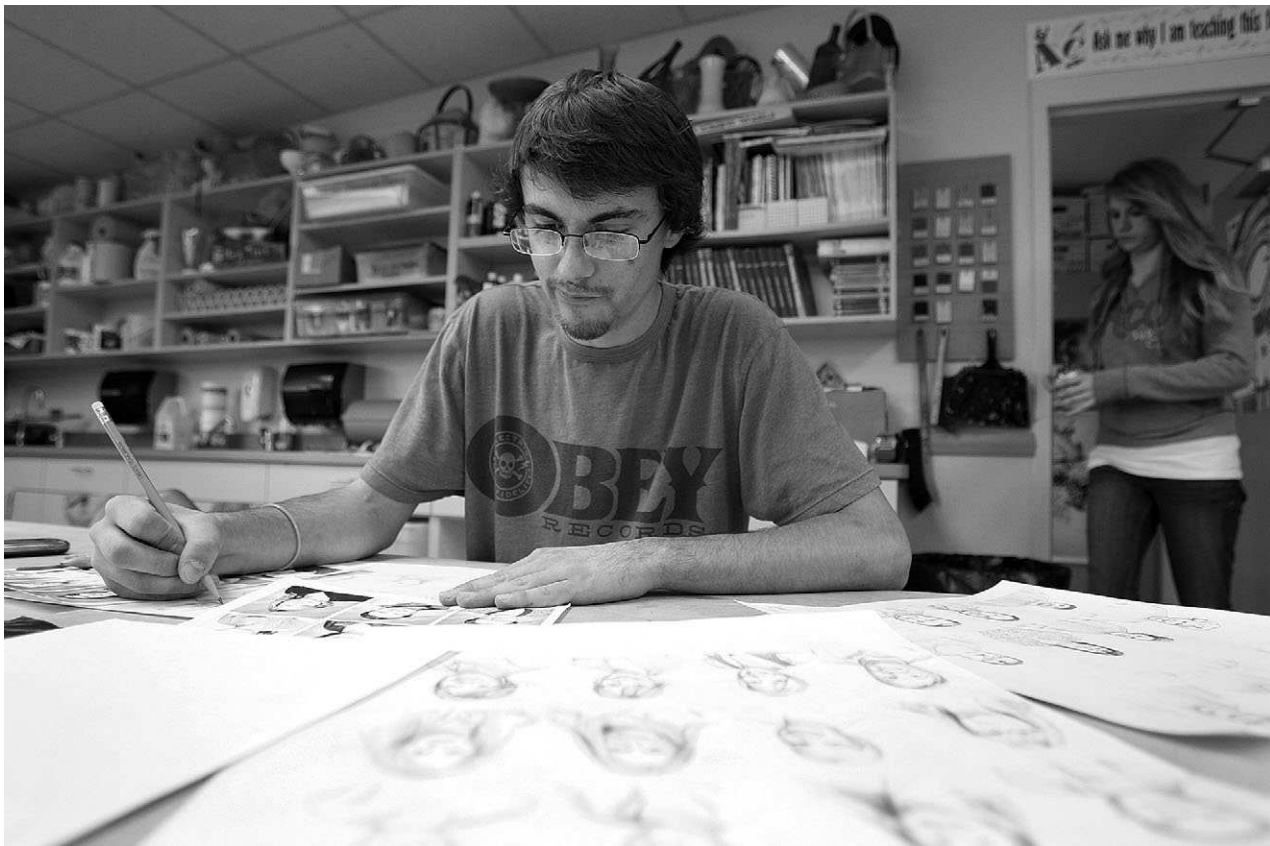

"Right now we just have some suspicious circumstances and we don't know whether we have a crime or not," Kidd told the Times-News.

The investigation began Friday evening at the motel.

Kidd identified the missing tenants as James Duane Ambrose and Russ Taft. He did not release their ages.

Kidd said search warrants were issued and searches were conducted, but the sheriff declined to say if the searches took place at the motel or other sites.

He urged anyone who has seen or talked with Ambrose or Taft in the last five to six days to contact Cassia County Sheriff's Lt. Kevin Hoark at 878-9313, Cassia County Dispatch at 878-2251 or Crime Stoppers at 878-2900.

POLICE: ALCOHOL INVOLVED IN I-84 ROLLOVER

TIMES-NEWS

TUTTLE • Alcohol was a factor in a one-vehicle rollover on Interstate-84, near Tuttle, that closed a westbound lane for two hours Saturday afternoon, Idaho State Police said.

Ted J. Beus, 27, of Gooding, was driving west in a 2003 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck when he went off the right side of the road, police said in a news release. Beus overcorrected to the left and went into the median, where the vehicle rolled, according to the news release.

Police said Beus, who wore a seat belt when the crash occurred, was taken into custody.

Passenger Lauren C. Jones, 21, of Twin Falls, was asleep at the time of the crash. She was ejected and received non-life-threatening injuries, police said. She was not wearing a seat belt.

The incident occurred at 4:15 p.m. Beus and Jones were treated and released from a hospital.

Filer Levy

for maintenance and supplies.

Jim Hughes, a member of the district's supplemental levy committee, has four children enrolled in Filer schools.

"If we don't pass this levy, the cuts that would come would be horrendous," he said.

Pentland said she doesn't see how current extracurricular programs would be able to continue without the levy.

It's Pentland's third year of teaching in the Magic Valley. She spent her first year in Hansen, but lost her job when a number of elective programs were eliminated.

Pentland teaches a variety of classes at Filer High School, including choir, concert band and jazz band. She also teaches a seventh-grade exploratory music class at Filer Middle School.

Music programs, she said, benefit students both physically and mentally. Pentland said classes also help students do better academically in their core classes.

"The kids deserve to have these things," she said.

If the school district's levy passes, it will increase property tax rates for residents with the Filer School District.

Homeowners with a $100,000 residential property value would pay an estimated $65.45 each year. Those who own a business or farmlands with a $100,000 property value would pay $130.900 each year.

Like other Magic Valley school districts, the Filer School District has seen a decline in state funding over the years.

But the district hasn't pursued a levy since 1998. That year, funding was used to build a high school agriculture facility.

The district has seen $1.4 million reduction in state funding during the past three years. And they've cut $926,350 in expenses during that same time period.

Hughes said he's concerned about the budget cuts that have already happened.

"I think it has hurt what we offer our children," he said, particularly at Filer High School.

Filer High principal Leon Madsen said they've lost three teachers at the school over the past three years. That is having a ripple effect on classes.

A few classes were cut, including family/consumer science, Spanish and some history classes.

Madsen said there weren't enough teachers to continue with an eight class period block schedule. So this year, students are taking six classes.

Pentland said that means less time for students to take elective classes. She has about 60 students in her high school classes this year, down from about 100 last year.

"I'm a little worried about our elective classes," she said.

Junior Breanna Miskin has a full load of required classes this year.

Last year, the 17-year-old sang in the school's audition-only Madrigals choir and said it was a chance to express herself.

"I really like to sing," she said. This year, she can't fit choir into her schedule.

Miskin said the supplemental levy won't bring back the block schedule. But she said it would allow other students to have the chance to take extracurricular classes.

Junior Brooke Wissenbach, 17, also doesn't have enough time this year to pursue music or art classes. She was in Madrigals during her freshman and sophomore years.

Being in the ensemble, she said, was a chance to make friends she wouldn't have known otherwise.

Renewals

Shoshone School District

The Shoshone School District is pursuing a two-year, $300,000 annual levy.

"Basically, what this will allow us to do is progress toward our main goal of increasing student achievement," Superintendent Rob Waite said.

The same levy amount has been in place for the past two years. Waite said tax amounts for residents should "generally stay the same."

Waite said the district wants to continue its all-day kindergarten program, which is currently slated for elimination during the second year of the levy.

One teacher and six paraprofessionals lost their jobs last year. If the levy isn't renewed, Waite said district administrators will have to make "deep cuts."

The Shoshone School District has about 500 students.

Valley School District

In Hazelton, voters will decide on not just one levy, but two.

One ballot measure is whether to renew the district's two-year, $300,000 annual supplemental levy.

Also, the district has a new proposal for a five-year, $300,000 annual plant facilities levy. If passed, the funding will go toward school building maintenance.

Superintendent Arlyn Bodily said if both levies pass, residents' tax rates will be 11.1 percent lower than last year.

That's because the district's bond - a total of about $4.3 million - will be paid off at the end of June. The bond, passed in 1992, has been in place for 20 years and was used to build a new school facility.

Bodily said the new plant facilities levy will allow the district to create a schedule of building maintenance projects.

The Valley School District has about 600 students.

Wendell School District

The Wendell School District is seeking renewal of a two-year, $155,000 annual supplemental levy. The amount has remained the same since 2006.

"It's not a very big levy compared to a lot of districts our size," Superintendent Greg Lowe said.

The levy money is designated for teacher salaries.

Over the past three years, the district hasn't cut any job positions. However, some positions were left vacant through attrition - such as through retirements or resignations.

The Wendell School District has 1,117 students.

ED GLAZAR • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS
 Twenty-two police officer hopefuls begin a 1.5-mile run around the College of Southern Idaho campus Friday during a Police Officer Selection Test.

Tryouts

On Friday, 22 men and women who hope to join Twin Falls' finest took the physical fitness tests that are the first step toward the goal of becoming a police officer.

Every time the pool of potential job candidates gets low the department holds the tests to grow the pool again, Scott said. In the last round of tests about 30 people showed up and three or four ended up being hired, Wilson said.

"That's pretty good odds," he said.

Though the tests, including sit-ups, pushups, a vertical jump and long and short distance running, are not difficult for most people in decent shape, each test knocks one or two people out of the running, he said.

After a physical test the candidates face interviews, psychological evaluations and tough background checks.

"The process is a thinning," Scott said.

In the end, Scott said, the department is left with the best candidates who will be the most likely to succeed as officers.

"We end up with a group suitable for hire," she said. "If we eliminate everyone we test again."

From the time of the physical test to being officially hired can take up to six months, said Capt. Anthony Barnhart. Once hired, there's still extensive training before officers are officially on the job.

After sit-ups, pushups and the vertical jump, the testers ascended the stairs to the elevated track to run a 300-meter dash.

"We think it's realistic to do it on this small track," Scott said.

When chasing a suspect, they're more likely to weave around than run in a straight line, she said, and running around the track's corners mimic running around a building.

The 1.5-mile run was held outside on the busy CSI campus.

"There will be students in the way, just run around those obstacles and keep going," Wilson said.

Out of a possible 100 points testers only need to score a 50 to pass, but a prepared candidate will usually score between 75 to 90 points, Wilson said.

Most people could take about three weeks of workouts to prepare themselves, he said.

"People should prepare to pass, but the most important part is the oral interview," he said. "We're looking for someone who can make good decisions."

People say being a police officer is a higher calling, but

Wilson said it's also just a job. "We'd like to think that a little, but we all have to work," he said.

Ron Paul Backers Aim to Overturn Romney's Win

BOISE (AP) • Ron Paul backers are attempting to change the result of the presidential candidate's third-place finish in the Idaho caucus by winning enough precinct committee races in the May 15 primary so they can overturn the win by Mitt Romney and award all 32 delegates to Paul.
 The Idaho Statesman reports that Paul supporters hope to get a two-thirds supermajority of the delegates to the Idaho State Convention so they can vote to suspend the rules and change the results.

The March 6 caucus attracted nearly 45,000 GOP voters with 62 percent of them voting for Romney.

Rick Santorum was second and Paul third as both finished with about 18 percent.

Precinct committee-woman Eva Gay Yost of Meridian says it's an attempt to hijack the Republican Party.

Who's Who? Obama, Romney Projecting Mirror Image

BY CONNIE CASS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • He's a smug, Harvard-trained elitist who doesn't get how regular Americans are struggling these days. More extreme than he lets on, he's keeping his true agenda hidden until after Election Day. He's clueless about fixing the economy, over his head on foreign policy. Who is he? Your answer will help decide the next president.

Is it Barack Obama, as seen by Mitt Romney? Or Romney, the way Obama depicts him? For all their liberal versus conservative differences, when the two presidential contenders describe each other, they sound like they're ragging on the same flawed guy. Or mirror images of that guy.

Blame it on two cautious candidates with more traits in common than their disparate early biographies would suggest.

No Drama Obama is panned as professorial and aloof. Romney is deemed boring when he's not being awkward.

Distrusted as too moderate within his own party, each is demonized as a radical by the other side. They don't get specific about the tough stuff, like budget cuts or taxes, that would invite more precisely calibrated negative ads.

Add a presidential contest buried beneath a single issue, the economy, and original lines of attack are scarce. The candidates take jabs anyway.

"They're trying to define each other. That's what it's all about," said Ken Duberstein, chief of staff to President Ronald Reagan. "They're throwing out different characterizations to see which one resonates."

With quickie Internet videos and instant comebacks via Twitter, "the attack and counterattack is happening in real time," said political communications expert Kathleen Hall Jamieson. "Campaigns are working to make sure nothing is missed."

Attacks big or small get batted back, even if the response amounts to "I know you are, what am I?"

Democrats accuse Republicans of a "war on women," Romney's campaign notes rising female unemployment during the Obama years.

The Obama camp jokes about Romney's dog riding on the roof of the family car; Republicans respond that Obama ate dog meat as a boy in Indonesia.

Both candidates are slammed as: "Out of touch" with ordinary Americans.

Obama: Cloistered in the White House. Hangs out with celebrities, acting "cool." Doesn't understand the real world because "he spent too much time at Harvard," according to Romney, who earned two Harvard degrees himself.

Romney: Grew up wealthy, with a governor for a father. Worth $200 million or more. He's the kind of guy who had a Swiss bank account and wants a car elevator for his beach house, the Democrats note.

Bad for the Middle Class

Obama: Failed to deliver on his promises to help Americans "struggling to find good jobs and make ends meet," the Romney camp says. Median household income is down, unemployment up since he took office.

Romney: Wants to reduce taxes on the wealthy while devastating Medicare and cutting education, health care and other programs the middle class need, Democrats charge. Obama says that amounts to "social Darwinism."

Suspiciously Secretive

Obama: Believing his microphone off, assured the Russian president he would have "more flexibility" after Election Day. Obama will reveal "his true positions only after the election is over," Romney says. Republicans predict he would tack left on the environment, spending, gay rights and other issues.

Romney: Told campaign donors of plans to cut or eliminate the housing and education agencies as well as others — ideas he hasn't disclosed publicly. "What's Mitt hiding?" Democrats ask, demanding more about his personal tax returns and investments, too.

Too Extreme

Obama: Hopes to create "a European-style social welfare state," Romney says, and "put free enterprise on trial." Endorsing Romney, Newt Gingrich called Obama "the most radical, leftist president in American history."

Romney: Referred to himself as "severely conservative." He's "extreme on women's issues," Democrats contend. Obama places him to the right of Reagan and suggests he's akin to Barry Goldwater.

Unable to Fix the Economy

Obama: Can't get the jobless rate below 8 percent. He "delayed the recovery and made it anemic," according to Romney, who says Obama lacks the private sector experience necessary to understand the economy.

Romney: As a venture capitalist, laid off workers and shipped jobs to Mexico, the Obama campaign says. Also created Massachusetts jobs more slowly than other governors of the time, Democrats note.

Not Up to Foreign Policy

Obama: Too weak to stand up to China or Russia or to stop Iran from getting a nuclear bomb, and too eager to apologize for the United States, Romney charges.

Romney: Likely to stumble into another misguided war, according to Vice President Joe Biden. Wouldn't have had the guts to send Navy SEALs into Pakistan to get Osama bin Laden, the Obama campaign suggests.

Supporters of Socialist Party candidate for the presidential election Francois Hollande react after the first results of the second round of French presidential elections outside Socialist Party campaign headquarters in Paris, France on Sunday.

France Gets New Leader, Europe New Direction

BY ANGELA CHARLTON AND ELAINE GANLEY
Associated Press

PARIS • France handed the presidency Sunday to leftist Francois Hollande, a champion of government stimulus programs who says the state should protect the downtrodden — a victory that could deal a death blow to the drive for austerity that has been the hallmark of Europe in recent years.

Mild and affable, the president-elect inherits a country deep in debt and divided over how to integrate immigrants while preserving its national identity. Markets will closely watch his initial moves as president.

He narrowly defeated the hard-driving, attention-getting Nicolas Sarkozy, an America-friendly leader who led the country through its worst economic troubles since World War II but whose policies and personality proved too bitter for many voters to swallow.

"Austerity can no longer be inevitable!" Hollande declared in his victory speech after a surprising campaign that saw him transform from an unremarkable figure to an increasingly statesmanlike one. He will take office no later than May 16.

Speaking to exuberant crowds, Hollande portrayed himself as a vehicle for change across Europe.

"In all the capitals ... there are people who, thanks to us, are hoping, are looking to us, and want to finish with austerity," he told supporters early

Monday at Paris' Place de la Bastille. "You are a movement lifting up everywhere in Europe, and perhaps the world!"

Celebrations continued into the night on the iconic plaza of the French Revolution, with revelers waving French, European and labor union flags and climbing the base of its central column. Leftists were overjoyed to have one of their own in power for the first time since Socialist Francois Mitterrand was president from 1981 to 1995.

Sarkozy is the latest victim of a wave of voter anger over spending cuts in Europe that has ousted governments and leaders in the past couple of years.

In Greece, a parliamentary vote Sunday was seen as critical to the country's prospects for pulling out of a deep financial crisis felt in world markets. A state election in Germany and local elections in Italy were seen as tests of support for the national governments' policies.

In France, with 95 percent of the vote counted, official results showed Hollande with 51.6 percent of the vote compared with Sarkozy's 48.4 percent, the Interior Ministry said. The turnout was a strong 81 percent.

"Too many divisions, too many wounds, too many breakdowns and divides have separated our fellow citizens. This is over now," Hollande said in his victory speech, alluding to the divisive Sarkozy presidency. "The foremost duty of the president of the Republic is to unite ... in order to face the challenges that await us."

Wife Skyping with Soldier Saw Bullet Hole in Wall

BY TERRY WALLACE
Associated Press

DALLAS • An Army nurse showed no alarm or discomfort before suddenly collapsing during a Skype video chat with his wife, who saw a bullet hole in a closet behind him, his family said Sunday.

Capt. Bruce Kevin Clark's family released a statement describing what his wife saw in the video feed recording her husband's death in Tarin Kowt, Afghanistan.

"Clark was suddenly knocked forward," the statement said. "The closet behind him had a bullet hole in it. The other individuals, including a member of the military, who rushed to the home of CPT Clark's wife also saw the hole and agreed it was a bullet hole."

The statement says the Skype link remained open for two hours on April 30 as family and friends in the U.S. and Afghanistan tried to get Clark help.

"After two hours and many frantic phone calls by Mrs. Clark, two military personnel arrived in the room and appeared to check his pulse, but provided no details about his condition to his wife," the statement said.

In the statement, Susan Orellana-Clark said she was providing details of what she saw "to honor my husband and dispel the inaccurate information and supposition promulgated by other parties."

U.S. officials in Afghanistan referred questions to the Pentagon, which previously referred questions to the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, where Clark was assigned.

The Pentagon said previously that Clark's death remains under investigation.

Clarence Davis, spokesman for William Beaumont Army Medical Center, declined to comment on Clark's family's statement.

George Lindsey, Known as TV's Goober Pyle, Dies

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) • George Lindsey, who made a TV career as a grinning service station attendant named Goober on "The Andy Griffith Show" and "Hee Haw," has died. He was 83.

Lindsey

The Marshall-Donnelly-Combs Funeral Home in Nashville said Lindsey died early Sunday morning after a brief illness.

Lindsey was the beanie-wearing Goober on "The Andy Griffith Show" from 1964 to 1968 and its successor, "Mayberry RFD," from 1968 to 1971. He played the same jovial character on "Hee Haw" from 1971 until it went out of production in 1993.

"America has grown up with me," Lindsey said in an Associated Press interview in 1985. "Goober is every man; everyone finds something to like about ol' Goober."

Biden OK with Equal Rights for Married Gay Couples

Vice President Joe Biden speaks on March 21 at Mellon Auditorium in Washington. Biden on Sunday said he's 'absolutely comfortable' with gay couples who marry getting the same civil rights and liberties as heterosexual couples, a stand that gay rights advocates interpreted as an endorsement of same-sex marriage.

WASHINGTON (AP) • Vice President Joe Biden says he's "absolutely comfortable" with gay couples who marry getting the same civil rights and liberties as heterosexual couples, a stand that gay rights advocates interpreted as an endorsement of same-sex marriage.

But the White House and President Barack Obama's re-election campaign, eager to avoid a debate on a hot-button social issue in an election year, insisted that Biden was not breaking ranks with Obama, who does not publicly support gay marriage.

Biden told NBC's "Meet the Press" that marriage should be about being loyal to someone you love, whether that marriage is between a man and a woman, two men or two women. "I am absolutely comfortable with the fact that men marrying men, women marrying women and heterosexual men and women marrying one another are entitled to the same exact rights, all the civil rights, all the civil liberties," Biden said in the interview broadcast Sunday.

Gay rights advocates said Biden's comments signaled unmistakable support for gay marriage, which they said made him the highest-ranking member in the Obama administration to take that position.

"I'm grateful that the vice president of the United States is now publically supporting marriage equality and I hope very soon the president and the rest of our leaders, Republicans and Democrats in Congress, will fall in line with the vice president," said Chad Griffin, a gay rights supporter and a member of the Obama campaign's national finance committee.

IACI Picks Brackett in Idaho GOP Incumbent Primary

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry is spending thousands to help its chosen candidate win in a primary between two southern Idaho Republican incumbents.

The pro-business group's political action committee reported $5,500 in independent expenditures to support

Sen. Bert Brackett of Rogerson over Sen. Tim Corder of Mountain Home.

IACI president Alex LaBeau said Friday his group distributed thousands of pro-Brackett flyers featuring praise from Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

The reason Otter agreed to pitch in to oust Corder appears clear.

Corder opposed the governor's coveted $35 million income tax cut during the 2012 session, Brackett supported it.

LaBeau says he plans additional expenditures to help Brackett before May 15's primary.

In choosing sides, IACI is resurrecting its 2008 fight with Corder.

That backfired, however, when Corder won easily.

"They could track me anywhere in the world that I go, but they haven't done so. If the Secret Service agents were idiots, imagine the investigators."

Dania Londono Suarez, who told the station W Radio that she was the prostitute who triggered the U.S. Secret Service scandal in Colombia

America's Remote-controlled War on Terror

Scrolling through the headlines in The Long War Journal — a website dedicated to terrorism-related news — is an education in the global drone war. Mohammed Saeed al-Umda, one of Obama bin Laden's bodyguards, confirmed killed by a drone strike in Yemen. German jihadist Samir H killed in South Waziristan. Egyptian militant Abu Musab al-Masri killed in the Shabwa province of Yemen. The list goes on.

As President Obama has attempted to wind down messy counterinsurgency operations, drone strikes have become his tactic of choice. "No president," reports The Washington Post, "has ever relied so extensively on the secret killing of individuals to advance the nation's security goals."

The scale of this drone campaign has overwhelmed any possibility of secrecy. During the Obama administration, there has been an average of one drone attack in Pakistan every four days. Operations have expanded to several countries.

Criticism comes from left and right. The killings are "extra-judicial." They are too clinical and video game-like. Or, alternately, drone strikes eliminate terrorists that America could be capturing and interrogating.

These objections vary in seriousness. (Are military actions really more ethical when they expose American troops to a higher risk of injury and death?) None of the criticisms from the left, however, take the strategic provocation confronted by Obama with sufficient seriousness.

American military forces and the American public face direct threats of violence from organizations organizing and operating in ungoverned areas of the world, particularly the tribal regions of Pakistan but also parts of Yemen and Somalia. Regional governments are either unable or unwilling to confront these dangers.

In these circumstances, there is one option denied to a president: doing nothing. He is forced to make a decision among flawed options — a fair description of a president's main job. Drone strikes are the alternative to riskier, less discriminate choices, from strategic bombing to boots on the ground.

The ethics of drone attacks are not simple. Any military operation targeting terrorists who hide behind civilians risks civilian casualties. The justification for assuming this terrible risk depends entirely on the justice of the war itself. If these military operations are illegitimate, any civilian casualty is a crime. If the attacks are justified, then it is worth noting that drone strikes are some of the most precise applications of force in the history of warfare.

Obama has been criticized for saying that drone attacks have "not caused a huge number of civilian casualties" — which is true in comparison to previous global conflicts. Remember that America's good war — World War II — included 300 B-29 Superfortresses dropping half a million M-69 incendiary cylinders on Tokyo during a single night and morning, destroying 16 square miles of the city. The operators of Predators and Raptors target individuals, following decisions subjected to extensive legal review. It is a rigorous, even unprecedented, application of the just war principle of proportionality.

But applying the laws of war requires the existence of a war — which is the key to ethical judgments on drone strikes. If the war on terror is merely a metaphor, then drones are conducting executions without judicial review outside American sovereignty. If the war is real, then terrorists have made themselves morally and legally liable to attack, wherever they plan and conduct operations.

By banishing the phrase "war on terror" in 2009, the Obama administration complicated its public case. But it substitutes language that serves the same legal and moral purpose. "As a matter of international law," White House counterterrorism adviser John Brennan recently affirmed, "the United States is in an armed conflict with al-Qaeda, the Taliban and associated forces, in response to the 9/11 attacks, and we may also use force consistent with our inherent right of national self-defense." The administration's anti-terrorism strategy — from drone strikes to indefinite detention — depends on the existence of an "armed conflict" in which the laws of war, instead of the methods of criminal justice, prevail.

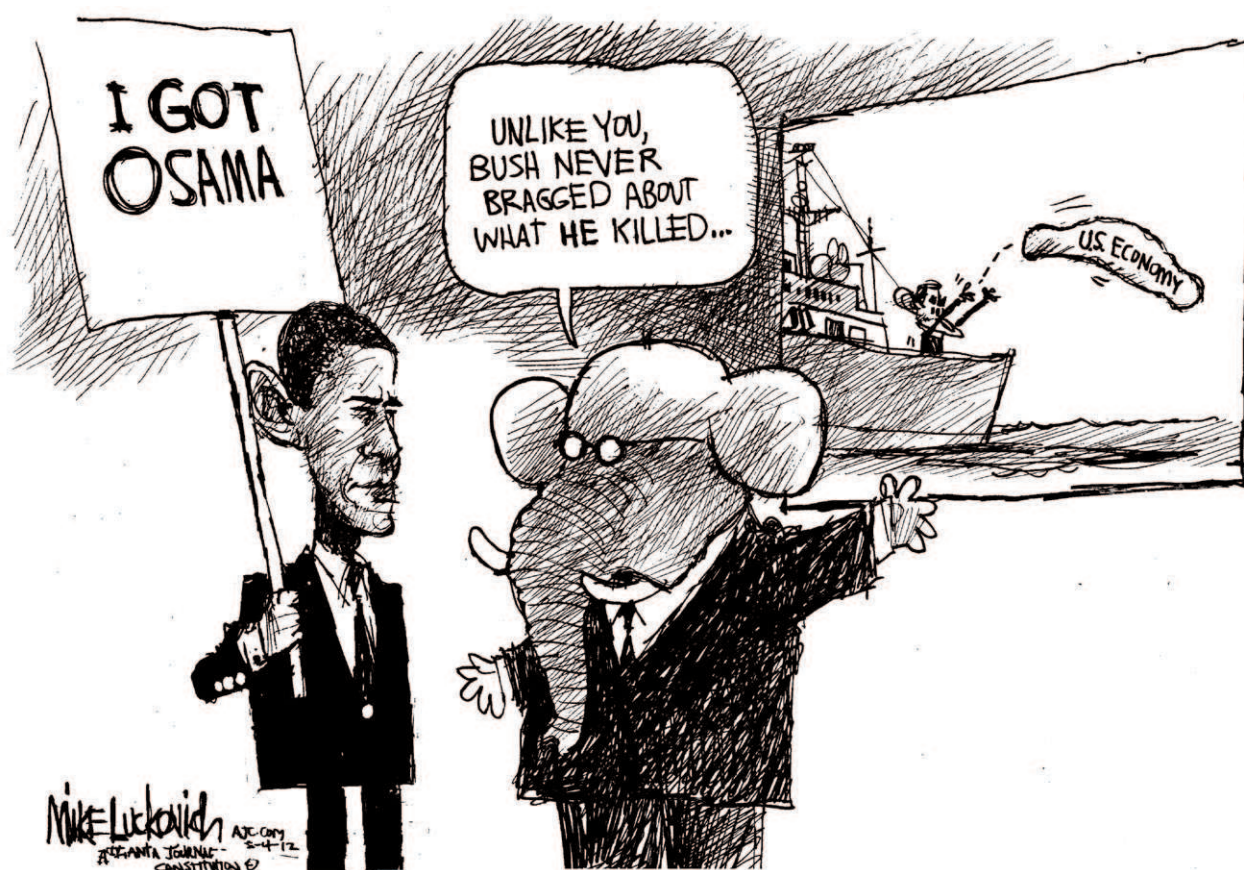

It is easy for conservatives to cry hypocrisy. But it is a good thing that the Obama administration is publicly recognizing a strategic reality impervious to ideology.

In the drone debate, all play their part. It is the role of human rights groups to raise ethical questions. It is the role of political opposition to second-guess Obama's choices. It is the role of the president to protect the American people from violence within the rules of war, which is exactly what he is doing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tom Carter Has Proven Himself During His Time as T.F. County Sheriff

Good morning: My name is Dan Carter. I am the brother of Sheriff Tom Carter and could not be more proud of him and the job he does. It is not my intention to attack Jack Johnson. I am sure he makes Jerome County and Sheriff McFall a good deputy.

A week or so back, the Times-News transferred a no-name blog to the opinion page ("Online Comments," April 21). I suppose the author was someone from his campaign staff. They ended their attack with the words "red flag." With that in mind, I would like to respond.

Sheriff Carter has been in office now for just over three years. During his tenure, he has surrounded himself with a staff of very competent, well-educated people (the civil division captain that keeps an eye on the budget, I believe is a college qualified professor and holds a master's degree). His clerical staff is absolutely fabulous at their jobs. His command staff and detectives are first rate. He has doubled the K-9 division. That division is well respected throughout the state and is routinely called upon to help other agencies. The transportation (patrol vehicles) are equipped with the very finest equipment and overseen by an individual who is beyond reproach. Training is at its highest level in probably 15 years. The patrol deputies and jail deputies are extremely competent, dedicated law enforcement officers who are second to none in the state of Idaho. The interagency honor guard was the brainchild of a deputy and has the sheriff's full support. Tom's rapport with the other agencies and departments, including the district attorney's office and commissioners is of the highest order. Even the offices and other infrastructure are well maintained and something to be proud of.

So no, I don't see a "red flag" of any kind. Thanks for your time.

Hiring Chaperones for Secret Service a Waste of Money

This letter is in reference to an Associated Press article that appeared in the Sunday, April 29, edition of the Times-News titled, "Chaperones Among New Conduct Rules for Secret Service."

The article states, "... the Secret Service will assign chaperones on some trips to enforce new rules of conduct that make clear that excessive drinking ... are no longer tolerated." The article also quotes Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, who said, "It's too bad common sense policy has to be dictated in this manner. New conduct rules are necessary to prevent more shenanigans from happening in the future, and whether these are the best and most cost-effective rules to stop future misconduct remains to be seen."

Our government can't seem to fix Social Security and Medicare and a multitude of other things but it can quickly find a way for federal taxpayers to now pay for chaperones, aka "baby sitters," to watch the Secret Service agents we pay to watch and protect our government officials. Unbelievable! What happens when the Secret Service agent slips his chaperone a $100 bill to look the other way? Do we then hire baby sitters for the chaperones?

We keep thinking of Sen. Grassley's words, "common sense" and "cost effective." What "really remains to be seen" is what common sense, cost-effective measure Sen. Grassley and our other Washington politicians will think of next!

Cathy Roemer is Dedicated to Interests of Jerome County

I am writing this letter to encourage your support of Cathy Roemer for Jerome County commissioner.

I have worked with Cathy for several years and feel that she is best suited for this position. Cathy worked diligently to secure proper zoning for Jerome County, along with proper zoning for the Jerome and Hazelton airports. Due to her dedicated work on this project, Jerome County airports are used as an example by Idaho Aeronautics for other counties in the state as a county that has adequate zoning for airports.

When you have a question regarding something she is not familiar with, she will research it thoroughly before she gives an answer. She is very dedicated and looks into all aspects of situations that arise.

Cathy has served Jerome County very effectively; therefore, I urge you to vote May 15 for Cathy Roemer, Jerome County commissioner.

Burley Will Benefit from Approval of New Library

When elected to the Burley City Council, I was asked to serve as the liaison to the library board. My children had used the library when in school, but I had not had much interaction with the library staff and none with the board.

During the past two years, I have gained great respect for the job that it does for the community. I had no idea how much the library is utilized and the services which it provides. I am impressed with the effort used to ensure a solid future for the library and community which it serves. The technology that is provided to the patrons of the library allows Internet access to people who would otherwise be left out.

The new location will make interaction with CSI much more viable. The community rooms will provide meeting places for citizens and organizations.

As a 36-year citizen of Burley and local businessman for 33 years, I wholeheartedly support the library bond on May 15.

Sheriff Candidate Jay Heward Cares about Cassia County

I am writing this letter in support of Jay Heward, who is running for Cassia County sheriff.

I have known Jay for almost 30 years. During this time, I have become aware of what a good man he is. He is extremely positive, approachable, easy to talk to and a very good listener and problem solver. I know also that he works very hard. Jay is very personable and extremely honest. Knowing him as I do, I feel that he would be more than fair with his employees.

Jay earned his law enforcement degree from Idaho State University. He has been in law enforcement 32 years and is continually attending seminars to upgrade his training.

He worked for the Ada County sheriff's office 13 years before he moved back to Cassia County. There, he learned and practiced various new ideas and theories. Some of these he feels would be very good to use in Cassia County.

I am impressed with the names that are listed on his political advertisements that endorse and support Jay. Every week, he has new ones. Most of them are people that have been in law enforcement. I think that having been in law enforcement themselves, they recognize and appreciate someone like Jay and feel he has the know-how and experience to be able to fulfill the responsibilities of sheriff of Cassia County.

Jay was born and raised in Cassia County. He cares about Cassia County. I urge you to vote for him May 15.

Is It OK to Kill God's Creatures for a Good Cause?

So we got another dead rock chuck on the front page. Your article says "animal advocates" loathe this fun-filled activity.

Well, what about Christians? We must have some in the area. Do they believe it's OK to kill God's creatures for fun if it's for a "good cause"? And what about non-Christians who supposedly support "family values"? Will they teach their children some kind of selective respect for life? Do not kill people, dogs or cats but anything else is OK. Or, perhaps, do not kill people or dogs, but anything else is OK.

Cruelty is cruelty. I suppose we should pity people who kill wantonly because it's obvious that they are blind to the beauty of life and nature — but I sure wouldn't want my daughter to marry one of them.

“I now have a new outlook on life.”

Last year, I went to a HealthFair screening. The ultrasound revealed that my right carotid artery was 75 percent blocked. The HealthFair technicians advised me to contact my family doctor immediately. A few days later, a vascular surgeon confirmed HealthFair's findings, and I was told that I needed to have surgery on my carotid artery. The surgery solved the problem. I sing HealthFair's praises regularly. I now have a new outlook on life and cherish every moment. Thanks for being there, HealthFair.

Long Fight Predicted in Guantanamo Sept. 11 Case

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba • The U.S. has finally started the prosecution of five Guantanamo Bay prisoners charged in the Sept. 11 attacks that killed nearly 3,000 people, but the trial won't be starting anytime soon, and both sides said Sunday that the case could continue for years.

Defense lawyer James Connell said a tentative trial date of May 2013 is a "placeholder" until a true date can be set for the trial of Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, the self-described mastermind of the attacks, and his co-defendants.

"It's going to take time," said the chief prosecutor, Army Brig. Gen. Mark Martins, who said he expects to battle a barrage of defense motions before the case goes to trial.

"I am getting ready for hundreds of motions because we want them to shoot everything they can shoot at us," he said.

Saturday's arraignment lasted 13 hours, including meal and prayer breaks, as the accused appeared to make a concerted effort to stall the initial hearing, which didn't end until almost 11 p.m.

U.S. Airstrike Kills Senior al-Qaida Leader in Yemen

SANAA, Yemen • An airstrike Sunday killed a top al-Qaida leader on the FBI's most wanted list for his role in the 2000 bombing of the USS Cole warship, Yemeni officials said. The drone attack was carried out by the CIA, U.S. officials said.

Fahd al-Quso was hit by a missile as he stepped out of his vehicle, along with another al-Qaida operative in the southern Shabwa province, Yemeni military officials said. They were speaking on condition of anonymity in accordance with military regulations.

The drone strike that killed Quso was carried out by the CIA, after an extended surveillance operation by the CIA and U.S. military, two U.S. officials said. They spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media.

The strike was authorized by the Yemeni government, which then made the announcement after the operation was complete, the officials said, part of the U.S.

strategy to give the host government more public ownership of the operation being carried out on Yemeni soil.

The airstrike came as the U.S. and Yemen cooperate in a battle against al-Qaida in southern Yemen.

Georgia's Patriarch Baptizes 400 Babies

TBILISI, Georgia • The patriarch of the Georgian Orthodox Church presided over the baptism of hundreds of babies in a Tbilisi cathedral on Sunday as part of an effort credited with helping raise the birth rate in this former Soviet nation.

Patriarch Ilia II has promised to become the godfather of all babies born into Orthodox Christian families who already have two or more children.

Since he began the mass baptisms in 2008, he has gained nearly 11,000 godchildren.

Georgian President Mikhail Saakashvili has said the patriarch deserves much of the credit for the rising birth rate, which in 2010 was 25 percent higher than in 2005. The number of abortions also declined by nearly 50 percent over the same five-year period.

Parents of the 400 babies baptized by an array of priests Sunday said the patriarch was instrumental in their decision to have a third or fourth child.

"This is a wonderful day for my family," said Tamar Kapanadze, a 33-year-old father of four. "Our fourth son, Lashko, was baptized by the patriarch himself, and before this he baptized our daughter Liziko. This is why we decided to have a fourth child."

Lickley Takes Her Shot at Top

BY DIANE PHILBIN
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE • The mud that played havoc with last week's schedule was gone, but in its place was a lot of wind as District V high school rodeo moved into the Lincoln County Fairgrounds. So windy that the hat rule, which requires participants to don their cowboy hat upon entering the arena, was waived.

Despite the conditions, Valene Lickley was a persistent performer as the Jerome senior gained 75 points, enough to move Lickley into the lead in the girls all-around standings. For her work, she recorded a first and second in breakaway, two thirds in poles, second and fourth in goats, a fifth and sixth in barrels, and a second and seventh in team roping with partner, Jared Parke from Gooding.

Hailie Taylor from Hailie entered the weekend in first place in the all-around but slid one spot to second after picking up 51 points and Glens Ferry senior Darby Fox fell to third gaining 56 points.

Valley sophomore Marlee Mussman remained steady in the fourth position in the all-around and currently sits fourth in barrels and second in goats after gathering 25 points with a first and third in goats and a fourth in barrels. She knows that although she has no control over what Lickley, Taylor or Fox do, she has in mind what she needs to do in stepping it up in each of her events.

"I need to do much better in breakaway and stay solid in barrels," said Mussman. "And I need to clear all the poles."

The boys all-around leader, Jared Parke (Gooding) gained 49 points with a two firsts in calf roping, second and fourth in steer wrestling, and a second and seventh in team roping with

McKean 'Super' at Magic Valley Speedway

BY LINDA BRITTSAN
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Whether or not Saturday's "Super Moon" had anything to do with it is still in question, but nevertheless Kris McKean had a big night at Magic Valley Speedway.

McKean started out the evening's Super Stocks events by breaking his own track record and setting a new qualifying time of 15.864 seconds around the one-third mile track. Next he went on to win his heat race.

For the main event a total of 11 cars occupied the starting grid. Driving the No. 7 car McKean began from the seventh position and by lap seven had worked his way up behind race leader Allen Williams. Daniel Shirley, looking for his first main event win of the season followed closely.

Three laps later McKean got into the bumper of Williams hard enough to get around him but in the process it allowed Shirley to take over the lead. At lap 19 a caution necessitated a

THE NEWS: Rousing Sermon finishes eighth in the Kentucky Derby.

THE MUSE: Well, it was fun while it lasted. Fun in this instance being able to dream of an Idaho-bred colt winning the world's most prestigious horse race, much less actually being entered in it.

It's easy for Idaho to get lost in the shuffle when it comes to big-time athletics. Once one gets past Boise State football, there is little going on within our border which captures the nation's attention. And admit it, if you saw Charles Barkley picking Rousing Sermon in NBC's pre-race coverage, you couldn't help but say, "Atta boy Chuck!"

Winning the Derby — and thereby being the only colt in the running for the Triple Crown — would have changed that, if only for one season. But for long-time admirers of The Sport of Kings such as me, it was fun to have a unique rooting interest in play.

And for a 36-1 post-time longshot, Rousing Sermon fared well, closing strong to finish eighth. Whether or not Rousing Sermon races in the Preakness Stakes, the Triple Crown's second leg, remains to be seen.

If he does, our rooting interests will simply change, from winning the Derby to hoping he can deny I'll Have Another a shot at the Triple Crown.

This is the safest bet on the board, because Idaho has to examine an exit strategy from the FBS level in the event it cannot find a permanent home for football. Co-op arrangements between schools give athletes from smaller schools the opportunity to play a sport their school doesn't have, but at a different school.

DECLO • Hunter Breshears and Jack Darrington bleed orange.

Except between March and July, when they bleed green.

Since their school doesn't have a baseball program, Declo High students Breshears and Darrington play for Burley's team in a cooperative.

Several co-ops exist across the state in most sports. Subject to approval in two-year cycles by the Idaho High School Activities Association, co-ops give kids from smaller schools an opportunity to participate in sports not offered at their school.

"It's different, but it's not as weird as people think it would be," said Breshears, a sophomore who plays football and basketball for Declo.

"We both have played baseball with a lot of these guys since we were 9," said Darrington, a junior. "We've spent so much time with them, so it's more natural than if we had just joined them in high school."

That doesn't stop some good-natured ribbing from their Burley teammates.

"There are a lot of Declo jokes," Darrington said. "They try to talk about football. We hear a lot of '2A' this, '2A' that. But we all know Declo is better in football, so they don't have too much to say about us. We'd be happy to play them if they wanted to."

TALLADEGA, Ala. • The leader on the last lap isn't supposed to win at Talladega Superspeedway. Everybody knows that.

Brad Keselowski disagrees, and he showed how to do it Sunday with a calculated plan that sent him to Victory Lane.

Keselowski used a big push from Kyle Busch to pass leader Matt Kenseth, and after leaving the Daytona 500 winner in their wake, Keselowski staved off Busch's attempt to snatch the win. Using a move Keselowski said he had dreamed about, he held on

"I had this whole plan if I ever got in that situation where I was leading; I thought about it and thought about it, dreamed about what to do, and sure enough, going into (turn) three, it was just me and Kyle," Keselowski said. "I feel really good about the coaching staff. I appreciate their desire to win and work hard because that's my mentality too," Merrill said. "I mesh really well with the girls that will be my teammates. We're already good friends and I've only met them once."

Merrill

The first team all-Great Basin Conference point guard averaged 10 points, 4.1 assists and 3.6 rebounds as a senior. Last season she led Minico to a 14-9 record and a second-place regular season conference finish.

Wenatchee Valley competes in the Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges (NWAACC).

"It's quite a ways from home, but it's worth chasing a dream. Since I was a fifth grader I've wanted to play college basketball," Merrill said.

restart and the beginning of several laps of a side-by-side battle between Shirley and McKean. McKean finally muscled his way around Shirley at lap 23 to take the lead for good and the eventual win at lap 40.

"I got crossed up going into three and got down into him (Shirley) pretty good," McKean said of the outcome of the battle for the lead. "He got the advantage coming up out of four and I knew I wasn't going to get back on the outside of him so I had to give him a little nudge and get underneath him. This is just a real competitive class right now."

For Shirley, it was the end of a disappointing night.

"He got into me and I just couldn't hold on," he said.

Hannah Newhouse finished third. Casey Pehrson would not complete the main event, with mechanical issues forcing him out on lap 21.

With the victory McKean takes over the lead in the NASCAR Whelen All-American Racing feature division standings with a seven-point lead over Newhouse and a 16 point lead over Shirley.

Jason Todd won his first main event race of the season in Street Stocks. Todd lost the lead of the race to Ernie Hall at lap four but regained the position after contact at lap 26 between Hall and Paul Browne sent Hall to the pits for the remainder of the event. Todd cruised to the victory 3.595 seconds ahead of Browne.

Other main event winners included Chad Everett in Hornets and Jason Skyberg in Super Sixes. Both drivers held off hard-charging rivals for the victory.

5-to-1: Football in a FBS conference with Idaho's remaining sports in another Division I conference. Best near-term scenario would have the Sun Belt expanding to 12 teams by adding the Vandals and New Mexico State. The SBC has more options than just New Mexico State, although the Aggies are fairly competitive in basketball and baseball.

Would it be worth it to get to 12 teams and have a championship game? Possibly. Is it worth every Sun Belt team making a 2,000-mile trip to Idaho in nearly every sport? This corner can't imagine Idaho being able to convince the league's presidents and athletic directors, who would ultimately carry the final word that it is.

8-to-1: Football as an independent with all other sports in another Division I conference: The odds for this should be much higher, but never underestimate the ability of otherwise smart people to make dumb decisions while under duress inflicted by others.

There is a segment of influential boosters who are adamant over Idaho competing at the FCS level. They contribute a lot of money and they expect their voices to be heard. Another segment, not nearly as influential or rich, but certainly just as vocal, has no small amount of saving face attached to this decision. Would the angst be anything close to what it is if Boise State was still a junior college instead of the national football power it is today?

Exhibit A as to why independence is a bad idea is seen right in the Vandals' 2012 schedule, when it couldn't get BYU to make a return date to Moscow, while other WAC schools — San Jose State and New Mexico State — are hosting BYU this year. Outside of the MWC and Mid-American Conference, Idaho hasn't lured a team to the Kibbie Dome from another FBS conference in years. Yet it will consistently get five or six per year as an independent? Good luck with that.

20-to-1: Full membership in a FBS conference. Maybe, just maybe, if Idaho can subsidize travel for the dozen-plus other sports that will have to come to Moscow for conference games and matches, this scenario can work out. But wouldn't that money be better spent in house? Is the price of full FBS conference membership worth it?

That's up to the University of Idaho to decide.

Lickley. Teammate Brogan Bennett is second and Brock Mason (Valley) is third.

"I worked all summer and spring to get better," said Parke. "I might have even gotten stronger since last year."

Bennett became the first rider to make an 8-second ride of the season in rough stock, scoring 46 points on Friday night in saddle bronc and qualifying him for a trip to state. He also added a first in team roping with his partner, Mason, two thirds in calf roping and a third in steer wrestling.

"I've been getting on some in practice so I thought I'd see if I could get one rode and pick up some points," said Bennett, who was last season's all-around winner. "I'm not sure whether I will enter at state or not."

Bennett led the district after the first night of rodeo in Glens Ferry but since Parke took over the top spot after both Glens Ferry rodeos, Bennett has occupied second place in the all-around standings.

"Yea, I've been staying right there," said the Gooding cowboy leading the calf roping, sitting third in team roping and fifth in steer wrestling. "I've been doing a lot of work with my calf horse that's just a colt and working on my bull dogging."

Co-op

couple part-time Bobcats among them. Darrington said Declo people have been mostly supportive — besides his freshman year when he wore a Burley Baseball shirt to school for the first time and was slammed into a locker by an upperclassman football player.

"We bleed green in the baseball uniform, but we're Declo kids," said Darrington, the Bobcats' starting catcher. "We're Burley baseball and Declo everything else."

When creating a co-op, the IHSAA adds together the schools' enrollment numbers for classification purposes. For example, Declo and Burley's combined enrollment still falls in the 4A classification.

That's how Tanner Anderson ended up playing baseball for Minico.

Anderson, a Raft River

junior, looked into playing baseball at Burley, which is the closest school offering the sport. But adding Raft River's enrollment to Burley's and Declo's would bump the program up to Class 5A.

So Anderson landed with Minico, a 40-minute drive from his home in Elba.

"At first it was kind of hard. I was basically going to a new school and didn't know anybody and didn't know the coaches, either," said Anderson, who also plays football for Raft River. "But I kept going over there every year and throughout Legion season. It became like I go to school there, I know them really well and we hang out a lot. It works out fine now."

The Spartans are equally happy with the arrangement. In Anderson they have found their leadoff hitter and centerfielder.

Teams often benefit co-op participation, according to Kelli McHone, Glens Ferry's athletic director. The Pilots co-op with Bliss in softball, volleyball, and boys and girls soccer.

"About three years ago we had five girls that came from Bliss and it was a good thing because otherwise we probably wouldn't have had a softball team," said McHone, who currently has Bliss students Demsie Butler and Thania Beltran on her softball roster. "With a small school like us, where our enrollment is declining, it allows us to make more opportunities for our kids to be able to participate."

Regardless of what school they attend, student-athletes are given that opportunity thanks to cooperatives.

"Coming into high school I was scared that it wasn't going to work and I would have to choose (between attending Declo or Burley)," Darrington said. "Having to choose between that and playing a sport you love, it's really not a fair decision to have to make. But we got lucky and didn't have to."

IF MAY 7 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Remain optimistic, as you will be rewarded for past kindnesses and be able to turn favors to your advantage with career or on the job. If opportunity knocks in the next six weeks, be sure to answer the door. An offer or plan, or even a meeting with a new person, could create long-term abundance and happiness or change your life for the better. New friends or an association with a group could figure prominently in your future. Avoid signing contracts or making significant changes in September when aggressiveness could cause problems.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Give a special someone a generous vote of confidence. Sometimes it is the encouraging word at the right time that makes the difference between success and failure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Inspire others with your enthusiasm for a job well done. Being picky about the details will provide you with the most satisfaction. Just because you tear things apart, doesn't mean you must tear them down.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You've looked at life from both sides now. It might be the illusions instead of the reality that has caught your attention. Don't get caught up in a wild goose chase. Get advice before making decisions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can't hide like a turtle in its shell. Someone is bound to find faults in your plan if you allow a passing disagreement to disintegrate into an argument. Remain mature enough to accept guidance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your faith and support help loved ones make wise choices. Someone may harbor secret fears or worries about a bill or debt. This might be a good day to offer to pick up the tab for a friend at lunch.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get an idea off the ground. Remain optimistic in the face of opposition. Certain people may not cooperate if you take the lead. Channel energies into games or projects that have definite rules of fair play.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The sun rises without your assistance. It isn't necessary for you to control everything — although you can examine your work closely for mistakes and find ways to make perfection even more perfect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you ask for advice, don't be surprised by the answer. It could be that an objective opinion is exactly what you need to stay on track. Criticism can be helpful — and should not be taken personally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Go along with the crowd. Gather information by hanging out with the folks in the office or the person who sits at the desk next to you. Don't commit to any side without examining all the facts first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Learn where you can make improvements. Social situations may give you an opportunity to reassess what you have done wrong in the past that has prevented success. Get recognition for what you are worth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get the low down. Dreams and ideas that inspire you may escape into thin air unless you capture them on paper. Learn all you can about a fascinating subject while you collect facts and figures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Seeing is believing. A project or plan presented now could seem attractive on the surface, but have hidden flaws. Don't get caught up in wishful thinking; be sure to get expert advice.

DEAR ABBY: I'm getting married soon. My mom says we should have one side of the church reserved for my fiancée's friends and family, and one side for ours. I disagree. Not only does it make me feel like we would be separating people when the occasion should be about unity, but he doesn't have a whole lot of people coming. It could embarrass him if I have 100 guests on my side and he has 30 on his.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My fiancée says he doesn't care, but I do! I want our guests blended in celebration of our union. Because Mom and Dad are paying half, I think Mom should have some input, but I don't feel right about her suggestion. What do you think?

— UNITING, NOT DIVIDING

DEAR UNITING: I agree with your thinking. Although in the past brides' and grooms' guests were seated on opposite sides of the sanctuary, today the wedding "rules" have loosened considerably. While the bride's and groom's FAMILIES usually sit on opposite sides in areas marked for them by ribbons, if there is an imbalance in the number of guests such as you have described, an usher can correct it by seating the guests on both sides of the room without regard to who invited them.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people act like it's a disgrace for a son to be living with his mother? They don't have that attitude when it's a daughter. A lot of folks are without jobs right now, and I'm insulted that people feel the need to comment when sons move back home.

My house is paid for and my son is good company. He is not a complainer, we have a lot of the same interests, and he is constantly on the computer trying to find a job. I feel a lot safer now that he lives with me than I did living by myself, and I will miss him once he has found a job and moves out.

— MOTHER OF A GOOD SON

DEAR MOTHER: Because many people are without jobs right now, many individuals — and entire families — are living under one roof. It has been this way since the Great Recession hit our economy, and a person would have to be living in a cave not to understand that it has been driven by necessity. I'm sad that people so often make comments without thinking about the effect they will have on the listener, but please don't take them personally. They are made out of ignorance.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I own five parrots, one of which is a Miligold Macaw. "Petie" is a young bird and starting to pick up words and sounds like crazy. Something he has started mimicking has my husband and me embarrassed and worried.

When we go into our bedroom, Petie starts making "amorous" sounds. Honestly, it sounds like someone is at the height of romantic passion in the living room where his cage is located.

Petie practices other words and sounds at various times during the day. We enjoy having people over to the house, and it's good for him to interact with them and be socialized. How should we handle the situation if he starts repeating the sounds of our bedroom activities when guests are over? Any suggestions?

— DISCREET IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR DISCREET: You could tell your guests that Petie likes to watch R-rated movies on premium cable. But don't be embarrassed that your bird has the sounds of pleasure to imitate. It would be worse if he were saying, "Not tonight; I have a headache."

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"There is no security on this earth; there is only opportunity."
— Douglas MacArthur

This is the normal time of year for the Cavendish tournament in Las Vegas, but this year the event will be held in Monaco in the fall. I shall be running deals all week that focus on the players in last year's event. Here is a deal that saw the winners from 2011 chalk up what seemed to be a normal, if mildly fortunate, result. But there is more to it than that.

North-South actually play a strong club, so I've simplified the auction to a standard sequence. The play in three no-trump saw declarer, Kit Woolsey, win the first heart and pass the diamond jack to East. Back came a heart, ducked, and a club shift. Woolsey won and drove out the diamond ace, and when both aces were onside, he had nine somewhat fortunate tricks — or was there more to it than that?

Contrast what happened when Justin Lall and Kevin Bathurst were West and East, respectively. East passed, South opened a 14-16 no-trump, and West and North passed, Bathurst balanced with two hearts, and North reopened with two no-trump, a nonforcing call suggesting the minors, which South judged to pass.

The heart lead was won by South, who played the diamond jack. Lall hopped up with the diamond ace and cleared the hearts. Now declarer had to guess if East had the bare diamond queen or the spade ace, and he got it wrong by repeating the diamond finesse — down two!

Lall's defense protected his partner's entry and deserved the result it achieved.

ANSWER: There is no reason to look beyond your black suits for an opening lead. Spades are an unbid suit — but either opponent might turn up with four. The advantage of a club is that your extra length and intermediates make it both more attacking and somewhat safer if partner produces any high card in the suit — but East has bid the suit. I think a club feels right; five-card suits have so much more to offer.

Today is Monday, May 7, the 128th day of 2012. There are 238 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight:
On May 7, 1812, English poet Robert Browning was born in London.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1789, the first inaugural ball was held in New York in honor of President George Washington and his wife, Martha.
In 1824, Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125, had its premiere in Vienna.
In 1915, nearly 1,200 people died when a German torpedo sank the British liner RMS Lusitania off the Irish coast.
In 1941, Glenn Miller and His Orchestra recorded "Chattanooga Choo Choo" for RCA Victor.
In 1942, U.S. Army Gen. Jonathan Wainwright went on a Manila radio station to announce the Allied surrender of the Philippines to Japanese forces during World War II.
In 1945, Germany signed an unconditional surrender at Allied headquarters in Rheims (rams), France, ending its role in World War II.
In 1954, the 55-day Battle of Dien Bien Phu in Vietnam ended with Vietnamese insurgents overrunning French forces.
In 1963, the United States launched the Telstar 2 communications satellite.
In 1975, President Gerald R. Ford formally declared an end to the "Vietnam era." In Ho Chi Minh City – formerly Saigon – the Viet Cong celebrated its takeover.
In 1977, Seattle Slew won the Kentucky Derby, the first of his Triple Crown victories.
In 1984, a $180 million out-of-court settlement was announced in the Agent Orange class-action suit brought by Vietnam veterans who charged they'd suffered injury from exposure to the defoliant.
In 1992, the latest addition to America's space shuttle fleet, Endeavour, went on its first flight. A 203-year-old proposed constitutional amendment barring Congress from giving itself a midterm pay raise received enough votes for ratification as Michigan became the 38th state to approve it.
Ten years ago: Authorities arrested 21-year-old college student Luke J. Helder in a series of rural mailbox bombings that left six people wounded in Illinois and Iowa. (Helder was later found incompetent to stand trial, but remains incarcerated.) A China Northern Airlines jetliner crashed into the Yellow Sea, killing 112 people; Chinese authorities later blamed a saboteur who'd set a fire on board. Fifteen Israelis were killed by a suicide bomber at a pool hall in suburban Tel Aviv. Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew died at age 28, 25 years to the day after his victory in the Kentucky Derby.
Five years ago: President George W. Bush welcomed Britain's Queen Elizabeth II to the White House, drawing laughter when he mistakenly started to say that the queen had helped the U.S. celebrate its bicentennial in "1776," then quickly corrected himself to say "1976." Six Muslim immigrants from the former Yugoslavia and the Middle East were arrested and accused of plotting to massacre U.S. soldiers at Fort Dix, N.J. (Five were later convicted in federal court of conspiring to kill military personnel; the sixth was charged only with gun offenses, and pleaded guilty.) Yahweh Ben Yahweh, a former cult leader in Miami linked to nearly two dozen gruesome killings in the 1980s, died at age 71.
One year ago: The U.S. released a handful of videos seized from Osama bin Laden's hideout showing the terrorist leader watching newscasts of himself amid shabby surroundings. The Taliban unleashed a major assault on government buildings throughout Kandahar, Afghanistan. Animal Kingdom sped past the leaders in the turn at Churchill Downs and roared down the middle of the stretch to win the Kentucky Derby. J
