ALTERED SAMPLE BALLOTS APPEARING IN T.F. COUNTY

Precinct candidates have sent out sample ballots with their names on them, but county officials warn those ballots are misleading.

TWIN FALLS • Tom Billington spent Thursday afternoon fielding calls from friends asking why he's not running for Republican precinct committeeman.

The reason: His opponent, Carter Killinger, sent out campaign literature with a copy of a sample Republican primary ballot. Under "Candidates for precinct office," Killinger's name is the only listed.

Tom Billington, a Republican running for precinct committeeman, holds an official county sample ballot, left, and one on the right that has been altered to include the name of his opponent, Carter Killinger, and mailed to some Twin Falls County voters.

But Billington is also running for the position. Killinger and other Republican precinct candidates have sent out flyers with altered

CSI Art Grad Preps for Next Step

TWIN FALLS • It's been a difficult couple of years for Catina Crum, but that didn't stop her from reaching graduation day.

"Personally, I've had a lot of struggles," she said.

Two years ago, Crum's father died the summer before she started at the College of Southern Idaho.

Crum, a 19-year-old Twin Falls native — wasn't sure if she could meet her goal of earning an associate degree in two years.

But she found support from her professors and peers. She describes the art department as a "home away from home."

"CSI has really influenced me," she said.

Crum said tonight's graduation ceremony is a big milestone. She will receive an associate of arts degree in general art.

"I think my dad would have been proud of me," she said.

Crum is among 1,150 students who applied for graduation. Out of that group, 381 plan to participate in the ceremony at 7 p.m. today in the CSI gymnasium.

Her next big step will come this fall when she starts at the Rocky Mountain College of Art and Design in Denver, Colo.

GOP Campaign Finance Debacle May Inspire Reforms

Multiple money shifts between political action committees may face further scrutiny in the Legislature.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Thousands of dollars transferring from political fund to political fund might raise eyebrows, but it's totally legal.

That might change. Idaho legislators, upset at big-dollar donations against their colleagues, may take a look at campaign finance law next Legislative session.

The issue: Idaho House Majority Leader Mike Moyle and House Speaker Lawrence Denney have drawn their GOP peers' ire for transferring money from the House Victory Fund — traditionally used to help incumbent Republicans — to GunPAC, which is targeting their colleagues, including House Majority Caucus Chairman Ken Roberts.

Magic Valley lawmakers like Reps. Fred Wood, Maxine Bell, Jim Patrick and House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke decried the actions, saying they condemned the use of their campaign donations used against incumbent legislators.

But there is no legal recourse for getting their money back, said Tim Hurst, chief deputy at the Idaho Secretary of State's Office.

"When they give to a fund, to a (political action committee) ... the PAC determines how they're going to spend it," he said. Those controlling the PAC or fund can voluntarily give refunds, however.

That's not the only finance issue making some Republicans uncomfortable.

GunPAC is one of four political action committees controlled by Lou Esposito, a Boise-based Republican consultant.

Early Voting Returns Light in Most Counties

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Fewer south-central Idaho voters are getting a jump-start on Tuesday's primary election, as area county clerks report a decline in absentee returns.

Voters have until 5 p.m. today to cast an in-person absentee ballot with their county clerk, while mailed ballots must be returned by 8 p.m. Tuesday, when polls close. Those deadlines are no different than in years past, but a few changes to Idaho's election system are contributing to a decline in early voter turnout.

First, Idaho's Democratic and Republican parties already selected their respective presidential candidates through caucusing.

While the caucus isn't new to Idaho Democrats, the Idaho Republican Party held its first Super Tuesday presidential caucus this year. The party agreed with most of its peers across the U.S., selecting former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney to challenge President Barack Obama in the Nov. 6 general election.

Second, Idaho's GOP primary is closed for the first time. Previously, Democratic and independent voters could choose to fill out Republican ballots. But Idaho Republicans successfully pushed for a change last year, arguing that the open primary skewed the party's preferred picks.

Now, Idaho voters are asked to declare party affiliation, and only registered Republicans can vote in their party's primary. The Democratic primary remains open, though the only contested race between Democratic candidates in south-central Idaho this year is for a U.S. House seat.

"Through the grapevine, I've heard that some people do not like to have to declare," said Minidoka County Clerk Patty Temple.

Absentee voting returns slipped in Temple's county from 218 during the last presidential election cycle in 2008, to 120 by Thursday morning.

In Twin Falls County, 564 of 737 requested mailed absentee ballots had returned by Thursday morning.

Blaine County absentee turnout has also been slow, with 190 ballots requested and 159 returned.

"It seems much, much, much slower," said Elections Clerk Amy Rivkin.

Gooding and Lincoln counties saw 53 and 34 absentee ballots, respectively, return by Thursday morning.

"It's less than in other years," said Gooding County Deputy Clerk Jackie Fuqua. "We normally have quite a bit by this point."

In sparsely populated Camas County, mail-in absentee voting is already complete. Deputy Clerk Bobbie Walton said the county had only one ballot request. It's already been returned.

An officer noticed the passenger-side tires of Cannon's 2007 Nissan Altima cross over the fog line twice by more than two feet each time as it traveled westbound on Interstate 184 near the Chinden Boulevard exit, according to the police report.

Cannon was stopped near the Double Tree Hotel Riverside at 2900 W. Chinden Blvd. after taking the Chinden exit.

"Cannon admitted to consuming 'some' beer and two cokes while in the downtown area tonight," the report states.

Before taking the breath test, Cannon was given and failed three sobriety tests, according to the report.

A misdemeanor excessive DUI case was filed in Ada County 4th District Court on April 24. Cannon has pleaded not guilty and awaits a scheduled June 29 trial.

Online court records show eight instances of a judge disqualifying himself or herself from hearing Cannon's case on May 7. A judge can choose to seek disqualification if he or she knows the defendant.

Cannon, a former Minidoka County prosecutor, became the second female judge in the history of Idaho's 5th Judicial District when she was picked for the job in January 2011.

Cannon will not hear DUI cases while her own case is pending, and some changes have been made to her court calendar. No other steps regarding her judgeship have been taken and she will continue to hear cases, said Linda Wright, the trial court administrator for the 5th Judicial District.

Wright said she does not know what would happen if Cannon is convicted.

The maximum punishment for excessive DUI is one year in jail, a $2,000 fine and a minimum one-year driver's license suspension.

documents, thousands of dollars transferred between Esposito's four PACs in the last month.

Two of the PACs have the same treasurer, and three are located at 202 N. Ninth St. in Boise.

There's nothing illegal about any of that, Hurst said.

While there's contribution limit of $1,000 per individual, nothing stops Esposito's multiple PACs from contributing $1,000 each to the candidates.

The law says that one person can't put money into multiple PACs they control, then make several donations to one candidate through those PACs, Hurst said.

But because there are multiple donors to Esposito's PACs, there's no clear legal issue.

"It may be suspect," Hurst said.

In addition to individual contributions, Esposito's PACs have spent thousands on ad campaigns and flyers. That's also OK, Hurst said.

"There are no limits to independent expenditures," Hurst said.

The one fuzzy area: Some of the candidates who benefited from Esposito PAC donations, like Danielle Ahrens of Sandpoint and Pam Stout of Bonners Ferry, have paid Spartac LLC for consultation, according to campaign finance forms.

Esposito also owns Spartac.

The Secretary of State's website says the independence of a PAC expenditure may be compromised if the candidate and their donors use the same consultant.

But even that doesn't mean the actions are illegal.

"The key to that phrase ... is the word 'may,'" Hurst said. It's possible for Esposito to structure his operations so everything is separate and legal, Hurst said — which is exactly what Esposito told the Associated Press he has done.

Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, is one of the candidates targeted by Esposito's PACs, which have endorsed Cameron's GOP challenger, Douglas Pickett of Oakley, in the primary. Cameron said he wants the Legislature to examine campaign finance law to rein in actions like Esposito's.

"In some cases, it looks like money is being laundered," Cameron said. "It's been shifted from one PAC to the next PAC to the next PAC. I think that should be illegal."

"It certainly is, in my opinion, unethical," he added.

Pickett hasn't received any donations from Esposito's

PACs, nor did he know of any mailers or advertisements they had paid for on his behalf. The bulk of Pickett's donations have come from Mini-Cassia residents, according to his campaign finance forms.

Pickett said the GOP infighting through PAC donations is another example of why incumbents like Cameron need to be voted out.

Rep. Donna Pence, D-Gooding, said the Republican fight is "unfortunate," and said changes to the finance laws might be needed to restore the public's faith.

"It's going to be a whole new game for Idaho politics," Pence said.

Paul Hears Request for Dog-fostering Business

BY COREEN HART
For the Times-News

PAUL • The Paul Planning and Zoning Commission may soon receive a request to allow a dog-fostering program in a resident's home.

Resident Jared Wells asked about establishing a program at Wednesday's Paul City Council meeting.

Wells said he is the area assessment coordinator for a dog rescue group in Boise. He said several members have been reminded of the city regulation limiting people to two dogs per property without a special-use permit — a kennel license.

Wells said he and others are prepared to house, spay or neuter, and vaccinate area strays, then transport them to Boise where they would be adopted.

City Attorney Kent Fletcher suggested that a change in zoning laws should first be requested from the P&Z.

In other Wednesday business:

- Minidoka County Undersheriff Vic Watson provided a local law-enforcement report, including that an individual whose collection of non-working cars has been in contention has been summoned to court. Mayor Randy Jones said the cars were re-organized to appear neater.

Watson said there were 70 recent traffic stops in Paul, with 33 drivers given warnings.

Jones asked about complaints received for double parking and extra activity on Wayne Street. Watson said there had been two complaints on that street and was following up.

- Councilman Garth Baker reported on a transportation meeting that included extensive discussion about getting into public access roads, especially in the Albion area.

"If you've got to go through private property to get to the forest, people are not letting them, and that is a big, big problem," he said. "Landowners are shutting their gates. They're not letting people in. ... The Legislature is going to have to do something about that this next year."

Watson noted Minidoka County doesn't see the complaints that officers in the Albion area do.

"We don't have it to the extent that they have on Forest Service property," Watson said. "We have it to a lesser extent on BLM property, but there are two sides to that story, obviously."

"If everyone was a good steward and respected private property, there wouldn't be a problem. People dump garbage and tear up fences, you can understand property owners not wanting them. ... Like everything else, one person ruins it for the rest of the people who respect private property."

- A bid for park restrooms from Peterson's Construction for $164,000 was accepted. It was higher than anticipated, so city officials plan change orders to reduce that amount.

CSI Board OKs Apartment Construction Contract

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Construction can officially begin on the College of Southern Idaho's new student apartment complex.

The college's board of trustees voted unanimously Thursday to award a $6.18 million construction contract to Twin Falls-based Starr Corp.

It's in line with a decision made April 26 during the college's Dormitory Housing Commission meeting.

It's a "design build" contract, meaning Starr Corp. is responsible for all aspects of the project. The company completed the design phase and is now the general contractor overseeing construction of the complex.

Some preliminary site work began earlier this month. The 40,000-square-foot complex will be located on 8.5 acres between Falls and Robbins avenues, southwest of CSI's Twin Falls campus.

Construction will last about one year, ending in July 2013. It will include 40 two-bedroom units.

CSI Vice President of Administration Mike Mason said rent will be $750 per unit, which includes Internet, cable and electricity.

The college, he said, will arrange to find roommates for students if needed.

DUI Charged in Monday Pole Line Crash

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man police say crashed his car into a fence Monday at Randy Hansen Automotive on Pole Line Road is charged with driving under the influence.

Officers who arrived to the scene after a 5:37 p.m. call to the car dealership found a blue Geo Prism crashed into a fence. Two witnesses said they saw the driver, identified as Ronald Lee Gabel, 61, driving erratically in the parking lot, according to police.

Police said Gabel had a strong odor of alcohol, admitted to drinking several beers and had slurred speech and glassy eyes. He refused to perform a field sobriety test or take a breath test.

Gabel was taken to nearby St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center, where a blood sample was taken for evidence, after which he was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving.

He was arraigned Tuesday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court on driving under the influence, two counts of leaving the scene of an accident, reckless driving and failure to purchase or invalid driver's license.

Gabel pleaded not guilty to all charges and was placed in a court compliance program in lieu of incarceration. He awaits a May 30 pretrial conference.

Ron Paul Discourages Idaho Backers from Staging Coup

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOISE • Ron Paul's campaign is discouraging the libertarian-leaning Republican's Idaho backers from staging a hostile GOP takeover.

The Idaho Statesman reports Paul issued a press release rejecting grassroots activists' efforts to award the state's GOP convention delegates to the Texas congressman, not Mitt Romney, who won March 6 caucus.

That's after Ron Paul supporter Ryan Davidson suggested loyalists could win enough precinct committee races in Tuesday's primary election to accomplish just that.

Paul's national campaign manager John Tate on Thursday condemned efforts to expand Paul's influence when these activities are couched as vengeful, underhanded, or markedly distasteful.

Davidson declined to comment, saying he was preparing a statement.

News of Davidson's activities that emerged last week has prompted Romney supporters in Idaho to focus more on the primary and precinct races.

T.F. Man Charged for Beer Bottle Brawl

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man faces a felony charge of aggravated batter with a deadly weapon for allegedly hitting another man with a beer bottle during a parking lot brawl.

Several witnesses told Twin Falls police that Jose G. Juarez, 31, used a beer bottle as a weapon during an early Sunday fight in the parking lot of the Pressbox at 1749 Kimberly Road.

The victim of the alleged attack needed 15 stitches to close two cuts on his forehead, according to a police report. The man told police he tried to help one of the bar's bouncers break up a fight.

He told police an unknown man started swinging at him and the two exchanged blows before a group of men began punching and kicking him. At one point, the alleged victim told police, a man had him in a choke hold while another man hit him in the forehead with a beer bottle. He said he was struck one or two other times with a bottle.

Paramedics took the man to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center while Juarez was questioned.

Juarez was arraigned Monday in Twin Falls County 5th District Court. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for May 18.

Buhl Man Sentenced in Ear-biting Incident

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A Buhl man was sentenced Monday to serve a year in the state's retained jurisdiction program for biting a man's ear during an October 2011 attack.

John Barton Miller, 37, is convicted of aggravated battery and was originally also charged with felony mayhem. That charge was dropped by prosecutors.

The incident occurred Oct. 30, 2011, with a criminal complaint filed two weeks later. According to a police report, officers were responded to an 8 p.m. call from a concerned neighbor to an apartment on the 200 block of Filer Avenue West in Twin Falls.

Miller was accused of attacking a man from behind, causing him to hit his head. When another man tried to fight Miller off, he said Miller bit his ear.

Police observed a "large open wound" on one of the men's left ear and blood running down his face.

The first man suffered a concussion and required stitches. The other underwent emergency reconstructive surgery to his ear.

Miller must complete the treatment program or face a prison sentence of four to eight years. He also must pay $725.50 in fines.

Feds Ask Court to Toss Witness Arrest Lawsuit

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge in Boise is questioning the urgency that FBI agents felt when they arrested and detained an American Muslim under a law designed to ensure that witnesses show up to testify in court.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Mikel Williams questioned Department of Justice attorney Marcus Meeks during a hearing Thursday in a lawsuit brought by Abdullah al-Kidd against the federal government.

Al-Kidd, a U.S. citizen, sued former Attorney General John Ashcroft and other federal officials in 2005, after he was arrested and jailed as a material witness in a terrorism-related criminal case against another man. He contends his arrest was just a ruse to give the government time to investigate him for any potential wrongdoing. The federal government maintains its actions were constitutional.

The U.S. Supreme Court has already thrown out al-Kidd's claims against Ashcroft and a few other defendants, and al-Kidd has prevailed in a claim against one prison and settled his claims against two other lockups. Now FBI agents Michael Gneckow and Scott Mace and the Department of Justice are asking the judge to throw out al-Kidd's claims against them.

The case began in 2003, when a University of Idaho student and Saudi national Sami Omar al-Hussayen was arrested on terrorism-related charges. The FBI also interviewed al-Kidd, who was a football star at the university and who had done some computer work for al-Hussayen.

Al-Kidd said he cooperated with investigators and willingly talked to FBI agents whenever they approached him, but was never told he should remain in the country or that he would be expected to testify in al-Hussayen's trial. Instead, eight months after his last contact with investigators, he was arrested at Washington's Dulles International Airport as he was about to fly to Saudi Arabia on a scholarship to study Arabic and Islamic law. The arrest came less than a month before al-Hussayen's trial was scheduled to begin, although the trial ended up being delayed for more than year.

Al-Kidd said he was imprisoned for 16 days, repeatedly strip searched and at times left naked in a jail cell. He was never called to testify in al-Hussayen's trial.

IDAHO BRIEFS

SW Idaho Police Clamp Down on Headshops

BOISE • Federal prosecutors say they have arrested and charged 14 business owners for peddling drug paraphernalia at retail stores across the Treasure Valley.

Authorities say they have arrest warrants for two more shop owners targeted in a multiyear investigation by state, local and federal agencies that also focused on the sale of synthetic marijuana products.

U.S. Attorney Wendy Olson says the 16 retail owners were indicted by a federal grand jury with conspiracy to sell and offering to sell drug paraphernalia.

Idaho banned the sale of synthetic marijuana products — more commonly known as spice or bath salts — in 2011. But varieties of those products can still be found in stores around the state or on the street.

Authorities say the paraphernalia were sold under the guise of tobacco products.

Nonini Spent $12,000 to Oust GOP Incumbents

BOISE • A northern Idaho Republican aiming to switch from the House to the Senate in November spent more on efforts to oust fellow GOP lawmakers in their primary races than he spent on his own campaign.

In Rep. Bob Nonini's own campaign report, he reports spending $3,400.

He doesn't have a Senate primary foe.

But Nonini is spending lavishly to defeat Republican incumbents he disagrees with.

That's something that may require some serious fence-mending, should his targets win and return to the Senate chamber that Nonini aspires to.

Through his Idaho Association of Good Government PAC, Nonini dished out at least $12,000, including for independent expenditures, to defeat Sens. Shawn Keough of Sandpoint; Dean Cameron of Rupert; and John Tippetts of Bennington.

Rep. George Eskridge of Dover also drew Nonini's ire.

Former Boise Co. Deputy Pleads Guilty to DUI

IDAHO CITY • A former Boise County sheriff's deputy who wrecked a patrol SUV during an off-duty crash last fall has pleaded guilty to driving under the influence.

The Idaho Statesman (<http://bit.ly/IMQ1b6>) reports 36-year-old Nathan Deuel entered his plea and was sentenced Wednesday to 180 days in jail with 170 suspended and fined $482. He was given credit for one day served and will serve the rest by completing 180 hours of community service.

A restitution amount is to be determined.

Idaho State Police troopers who investigated the Oct. 27 crash found Deuel had a blood-alcohol level of 0.126.

Defense attorney Tim Fleming argued Deuel had taken two prescription sleeping pills and then consumed alcohol. He attributed the wreck to something similar to drug-induced sleepwalking and said Deuel woke up in his overturned patrol vehicle.

McMammon Man Shot by Deputies Dies

POCATELLO • Authorities in Bannock County say a 51-year-old Idaho man who was shot and injured by deputies last month has died at a Pocatello hospital.

Dennis Allen Buzzell of McMammon died Thursday. Deputies were called to his house on April 14 following reports of shots fired.

Deputies evacuated the area and called in a SWAT team. Investigators say Buzzell fired at officers surrounding his house.

Officers say after several hours of negotiation, Buzzell came out with a loaded gun, walked toward officers and refused orders to put the gun down. Two officers fired at Buzzell.

The Ada County prosecutor's office is reviewing the circumstances that led to the shooting.

“The Saudis got serious and came up with a list of targets, and took them all down. It got too hot for al-Qaida in Saudi Arabia. They got squeezed out.”

Former senior FBI and CIA official Philip Mudd in a statement saying Saudi Arabia's intelligence services were galvanized into their current more aggressive action against al-Qaida after suicide bombers killed some 35 people at housing compounds for Westerners in Riyadh, in 2003

Twin Falls City Council Takes Easy Way Out

It appears the Twin Falls City Council believes the best decision is one that offends the fewest people — even if that means making no decision at all.

On Monday night, the council was scheduled to approve a Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement with the developers of Canyon Park North — a planned shopping center to be located on the Snake River Canyon rim near Golden Corral.

But on May 3, four days before Monday's council meeting, Barbara Beck hand-delivered a petition to the Twin Falls city offices requesting “mediation for the following (city council) decisions”: the zoning change of the property, the vacation of Fillmore Street and the decision by the council not to revisit the Planning and Zoning Commission's approval of the preliminary plat. The petition in the May 7 council packet contains 10 signatures (including two couples). According to a press release from the city of Twin Falls, the petition was submitted on behalf of Terry Tracy and Lorie Schut.

No doubt the city councilors felt they were in a lose-lose situation on Monday night. In their imaginations, they would appear to be ignoring public concern if they approved the PUD agreement that night.

However, the complaints in the petition — traffic safety, walkability and aesthetics — have been expressed at length in writing and in hearings repeatedly during the public vetting of the development and during the decision-making process.

Instead of facing public wrath and actually making a decision to move forward on Canyon Park, the City Council voted to send the developer and the petitioners to mediation and tabled their vote on the PUD.

The vote was 5-2, with Jim Munn and Shawn Bariger dissenting. Newly sworn, cherry-picked council member Suzanne Hawkins fell right in with the current council's indecisive approach to city leadership.

According to City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich, mediation doesn't bind the city or council to approve any of the solutions the parties suggest, nor does it require the parties to come to an agreement.

What a waste of everyone's time.

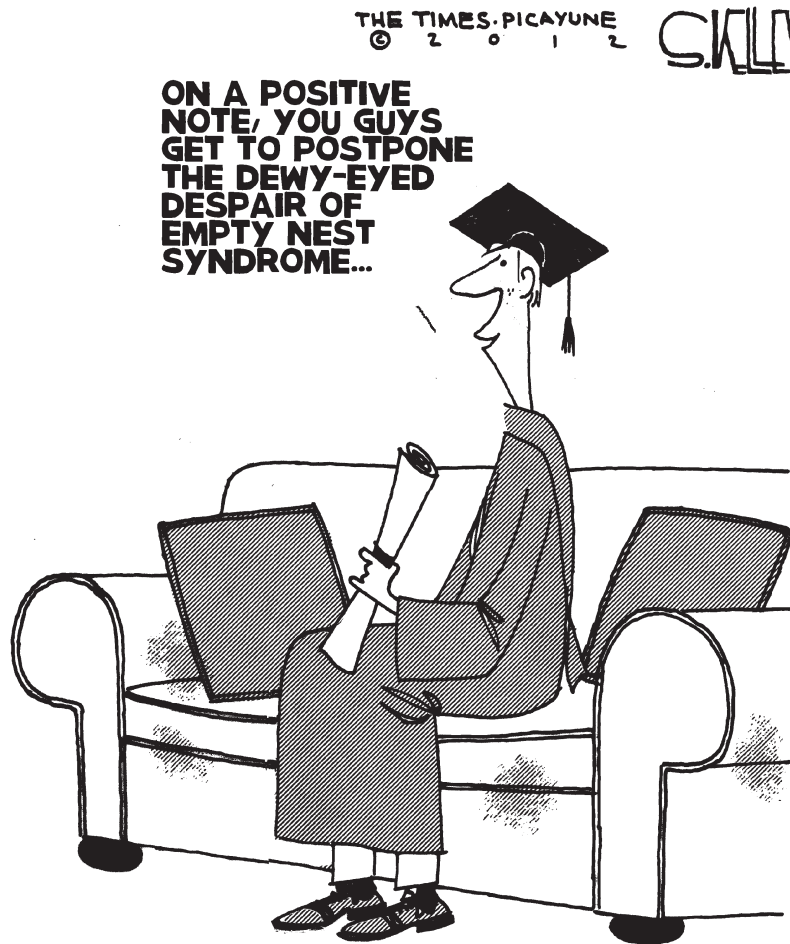

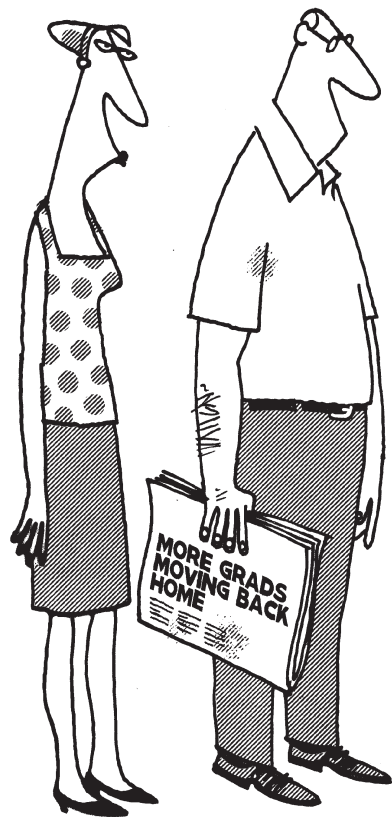

And what a message to send to businesses considering a move to Twin Falls.

The message is: You can invest millions in relocation to this community, but it might be a waste of money because our City Council has the backbone of a windsock. You won't be able to count on their support from one meeting to the next, even if they appear to have approved your plat.

The message is: Our City Council doesn't want to make waves. Our City Council doesn't want to make the hard decisions. Our City Council doesn't want to lead.

To read the complaints or see the proposed PUD for yourself, visit www.tfid.org. Click “Agendas and Meetings” on the left-hand rail and select the agenda from the May 7 meeting under the “City Council Agendas” pull-down menu. The petition is on page 117 of the packet.

Heileson Wants to End Foreign Aid, Balance Budget If Elected

In a recent mailer, U.S. Rep Simpson claims he is working to reduce the deficit and decrease the debt by supporting passage of a constitutional amendment to require Congress to balance the federal budget.

Congress, from time to time, considers a hoax called a “Balanced Budget Amendment” to the United States Constitution. This proposed amendment is so equivocal in its provisions as to eliminate any hope of achieving the stated objective. Over the last 10 years, Mr. Simpson has been engaging in planned, massive deficit financing. He should oppose the adoption of the weasel-worded balanced budget amendment and call upon the president and Congress to immediately balance the current budget and all future budgets.

The best thing Mr. Simpson could do to reduce the deficit is to stop his repeated support for foreign aid. For the last 10 years, Mr. Simpson has engaged in the greatest international giveaway program ever conceived by man and is now spending billions of dollars each year to aid foreign nations. There is no constitutional basis for foreign aid. These expenditures have won us no friends and constitute a major drain on the resources of our taxpayers.

There is hope. Chick Heileson, if elected, wants to end all foreign aid and replace it with voluntary donations by citizens to needy countries via their U.S. embassies.

Please vote Tuesday, May 15. Thank you!

Johnson Could Have Learned Something from Sheriff Carter

Some things to consider when voting for the Twin Falls County sheriff:

What has Sheriff Carter accomplished over these past years?

What has Jack Johnson accomplished? He made the decision to terminate himself from the local sheriff's office and went to work for Jerome County. If he was so true to Twin Falls County, he should have stayed here; he could have learned something from Sheriff Carter.

I have also noticed when Sheriff Carter is asked about future plans for the sheriff's office, he gives good answers. Mr. Johnson says the same thing or something similar, so if Sheriff Carter is as incompetent as Jack Johnson and his supporters claim, then Mr. Johnson is also (is Johnson a me-too person). Then to sign a letter containing false information, is this an example of his investigative abilities or another example of poor decision making?

According to the Times-News, Jack Johnson is approachable; he gets around the room and talks so the editor is supporting him. That is not a reason; that was an excuse. It is not what he says; it is what he is not saying. What do we know about him? Was he in the military, has he caused any legal problems for himself or Jerome County, what about his financial situation how will he spend taxpayer money?

No, for Jack Johnson. My husband and I are voting for Sheriff Carter to keep quality law enforcement in Twin Falls County. Something we know we will have with Sheriff Carter.

LINDA VAN VOOREN Buhl

Jack Johnson Is Accessible, Personable, Professional

I would like all of the Twin Falls County residents to know what a great county sheriff's candidate they have in Jack Johnson.

Jack has done a superb job in Jerome County as chief deputy the past four years. And, yes, as the Times-News stated in its endorsement of him, Jack is accessible, very personable and professional.

We hate to see him leave us but are excited that he has an excellent chance of becoming the next sheriff in Twin Falls County.

JOE SKAUG Jerome

Kidd, Pickett Best Choices for Cassia County

I am writing to voice my support for Randy Kidd as sheriff of Cassia County. I believe that Sheriff Kidd has done an exceptional job. Sheriff Kidd has been instrumental in negotiating the law enforcement contract with the city of Burley. Randy has the experience and knowledge and trust to keep the contract with the city.

There have been negative comments regarding open access to the sheriff's office. It is naive to think that our law enforcement building should be left open and accessible to whatever criminal or terrorist is out there. The days of open law enforcement buildings ended on 9-11-01. Besides, Sheriff Kidd is open to meet with the public whenever an individual or group has a concern. Sheriff Kidd proved that point during the city of Burley contract negotiations.

I feel Sheriff Randy Kidd has done a great job. Join with me in voting to reelect Sheriff Randy Kidd as Cassia County sheriff on May 15.

I am also writing in support of Doug Pickett for the office of state senator. I feel that with the retirement of Rep. Bert Stevenson, our district needs the perspective and representation of Doug Pickett who is a farmer and rancher. I know Doug to be a civic-minded man who seeks to help those he represents. He also is level-headed and practical in his approach to problems. Doug has a tremendous work ethic and is very detailed in making sure all the issues are resolved. In these tough economic times, it would be nice to have someone like Doug who has the training of an economics graduate representing us.

I feel that Doug Pickett is the best choice to represent Minidoka and Cassia counties. I hope you will join with me in voting for Doug Pickett on May 15.

TIM PRESTON Burley

Jerome Co. Needs a Change in the Sheriff's Office

I have met with people and listened to the issues of Jerome citizens. I know more than ever that Jerome County needs change. The sheriff needs to be an advocate for the people, businesses and visitors to Jerome. My hope is that, at the end of this election, Jerome County can come together and stop segregating into like-minded groups.

The contrasts in management style between Sheriff McFall and I are significant. I feel a sheriff needs to be dealing with the business and issues, including Eden and Hazelton in that process. I have promised to open the sheriff's sub-office several days a week with myself and key staff personnel rotating into that office. Doug argued demands on him are too great to do so. I promise that whenever I am using the county's vehicle and gas, it will be for the business of the people, not because I am allowed to drive it when I am on personal errands and out of Jerome County.

Respect is an issue to our citizens — respect for them, their opinions, and their families. Giving worth and value to opinions and votes that do not agree with your own is the first step. Respect means not using our jail as a campaign tool and allow prisoners to live in unsanitary conditions while you demand taxpayers foot the bill for new offices before you address the conditions you force the inmates to live in. Respect means remembering that the inmates are loved ones of people in Jerome and not animals. A lot of exaggeration of costs has occurred in this process; it is disrespectful to the people asked to have faith in what they are told.

I ask for your vote on May 15. We can change things for the better together.

BLM Director Bob Abbey to Retire

WASHINGTON (AP) • Bob Abbey, a longtime Interior Department official who has headed the Bureau of Land Management for the past three years, is retiring.

The 60-year-old Abbey has directed the land management agency since 2009, sharply increasing its focus on renewable energy, mostly in the West.

A former Nevada state director for the land management agency, Abbey oversaw approval of 29 large-scale renewable energy projects, including 16 solar farms. He joined Interior Secretary Ken Salazar this week as Salazar launched a Nevada solar project that produced the first solar power ever generated on federal land.

Abbey said late Thursday he will step down at the end of May.

Mont. Gives OK to Wolf-hunt Plan

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • Responding to frustration over the inability to reduce the wolf population through last winter's hunt, Montana wildlife officials gave tentative approval Thursday to loosening some restrictions on hunters and to allowing trapping of the predators for the first time.

The Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks Commission vote puts the proposal out for comment until June 25, giving the public a chance to weigh in on the plan to eliminate most quotas, expand the season to Feb. 28 and allow trapping. The agency will also ask state legislators to rewrite laws to increase the number of wolves a hunter can kill from one to three and to allow the use of electronic calls.

Last winter in Montana, hunters killed 166 wolves out of a 220-animal quota. The population rose in 2011 by 15 percent to at least 653 wolves, angering ranchers and hunters who want the state to impose stricter management practices.

Montana's goal for the coming hunt is to reduce the wolf population to 425 animals, said Quentin Kujala, management bureau chief for FWP's wildlife division. The agency's models conclude that killing 377 wolves this year would cut their numbers to below 500, though FWP does not plan to set a statewide quota this year.

In expanding the hunt, Montana regulators would be taking a page from their neighbors to the west, where Idaho wolf managers estimate the wolf population has dropped from more than 1,000 animals in August to between 500 and 600 in March. Hunters and trappers accounted for nearly 364 of those wolves killed, and wildlife officials here have agreed to increase bag limits.

C of I Nears Gridiron Decision

THE IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

CALDWELL • It's been a topic of debate and discussion since the program was suspended in 1977 — whether or not the College of Idaho should play football.

That 35-year-old debate likely ends this weekend as the school's Board of Trustees gathers today and Friday, and one of the topics they will address is reinstating football.

A decision is expected to be announced on Monday.

"I think we're all kind of excited," C of I athletic director Marty Holly said of this weekend's potential vote. "President (Marvin) Henberg and I both have prepared for this, we probably have spoke to 10 to 12 different (alumni, faculty, student and community) groups trying to keep them informed on the process. ... We've done our due diligence, we've spread the word.

"I really honestly don't (know) — I'm optimistic — but I don't have any idea how people are going to vote."

The Trustees could vote to reinstate football, or against the proposal, or even to table the issue once again, which happened following a feasibility study and report in 2006-07, which reinvigorated the football debate.

Holly believes there will be a decision, yes or no, because the direction the C of I is heading has changed from 2007.

When the Trustees previously considered reinstating football, the Coyotes' focus was partly on increasing the school's already lofty academic standing, along with changing affiliation from the NAIA to NCAA Division III, which does not provide athletic scholarships and is perceived as stronger academically than the NAIA.

Since that time, the C of I has risen from being a top-ranked liberal arts college in the West to a top 200 national

Big East in No Rush for New Commish

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HARTFORD, Conn. • The Big East's interim commissioner said Wednesday the conference is working to dispel any perception that it is unraveling following the ouster of John Marinatto.

Joseph Bailey III, a former chief executive with the Miami Dolphins, held his first conference call with reporters on Wednesday, two days after Marinatto resigned amid pressure from Big East presidents. Bailey said he does not want the job permanently, and believes it will take about three to four months for the conference to find a replacement.

In the meantime, he said he's seen no split between football and basketball schools, and said the conference is focused on making sure the public doesn't think it is falling apart.

"And in fact, it isn't," he said. "I can tell you just from being in the meetings that I've been in, it's not at all. It's a very cohesive, very focused group."

Marinatto left after less than three years on the job and a wave of departures by high-profile schools. Pittsburgh and Syracuse made plans to leave for the ACC in September, and West Virginia bolted for the Big 12 the following month. The Big East regrouped by adding Central Florida, Houston, Memphis, SMU and Temple for all sports and Boise State, San Diego State and Navy for football only.

There has been speculation that plans by the C of I to eliminate automatic qualifier status for conferences could lead Boise State and San Diego State to reconsider joining the league. But Bailey said he believes both schools plan to honor their commitments.

BURLEY • Twin Falls junior Ryan Carlson had a slow start to the track season.

"I got mono during basketball. That killed me," Carlson said. "First (track) meet was a joke, second meet was a joke."

Look who's laughing now.

To go along with his high jump title from Wednesday, Carlson added wins Thursday in the 200 meters, 4x200 relay and 4x400 relay as the Twin Falls boys ran away with the team title at the Class 4A District IV track and field championship meet at Burley High School.

"I just got better and better every meet," Carlson said. "I finally got that out of my system and I can feel myself getting more and more energy every single day."

Several Bruins seemed to have plenty of energy Thursday. Twin Falls repeated as district champs, racking up 153 points, outdistancing runner-up Canyon Ridge at 120.

The girls meet was also a repeat from last year, as reigning 4A state champ Jerome blew away the competition with 226 points. Canyon Ridge was second with 108 points.

Twin Falls' win was aided by Erik Harris' victory in the 800 and 1,600. He also anchored the Bruins' winning 4x400 relay, which included Carlson, Fernando Sanchez and Jacob Johnson.

After walking Jenna Seamons to lead-off the game, the Twin Falls pitcher struck out six straight hitters, all swinging.

Not too shabby after having her right hand smashed in her friend's car door at lunch the day before.

"I started crying and they were like, 'What's wrong?' I said, 'It's my pitching hand,'" Dyreson said. "All I was thinking today was focusing on my spot and hitting it. I was scared and I was just so happy that I was able to get through it. Thank God for Allie (Johnson), she's such a great catcher. Without her, I wouldn't be anywhere."

Dyreson iced her right hand "non-stop" before Thursday's championship game, she said and she battled through the pain to strike out 10 as Twin Falls routed Jerome 11-1 to claim the District IV championship and punch a ticket to the 4A state tournament.

Russia Says It Foiled Terrorist Plot against Sochi

MOSCOW • Russia claimed it has foiled a plot to attack the host city of Sochi both before and during the 2014 Winter Olympics, saying its agents discovered caches of weapons that included grenade launchers and surface-to-air missiles. Government security officials blamed Chechen separatists and neighboring Georgia in the plot, although Georgian officials denied any links with the militants and called Thursday's accusations a sign of Moscow's "severe paranoia." Experts on the Caucasus region added, however, that the tiny breakaway Georgian province of Abkhazia, just a few miles east of Sochi on the Black Sea, could pose a realistic threat to the security of the games — a pet project of Russian President Vladimir Putin.

U.S. Condemns Syria Suicide Attacks. The Obama administration on Thursday condemned a suicide attack in Syria's capital that killed 55 people and expressed concern that al-Qaida may be increasingly taking advantage of the country's prolonged instability. Defense Secretary Leon Panetta told reporters that U.S. intelligence indicates "an al-Qaida presence in Syria," but said the extent of its activity was unclear. "Frankly we need to continue to do everything we can to determine what kind of influence they're trying to exert there," Panetta said. He also lamented that a month of efforts to implement a U.N. cease-fire plan haven't worked.

Doctors treating her at an Augusta hospital say there is no indication of any brain damage and her lungs are slowly healing, but her hands and remaining foot will have to be amputated. Romney Denies Targeting Classmates for Being Gay

BY KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney apologized Thursday for "stupid" high school pranks that may have gone too far and moved quickly to stamp out any notion that he bullied schoolmates because they were gay. His swift response reflected the Republican presidential candidate's recognition that his record on gay rights is under heightened scrutiny following President Barack Obama's embrace of gay marriage.

One day after gay rights moved to the center of the presidential race with Obama's announcement on same-sex marriage, a Washington Post report about Romney's high school escapades nearly 50 years ago added a personal dimension to Democrats' claim that he's out of step on the sensitive topic.

The newspaper reported that in one case, Romney and several schoolmates held down classmate John Lauber and cut off his bleached blond hair after seeking him out in his dorm room at their boarding school in the wealthy Detroit suburb of Bloomfield Hills, Mich. The Post said Lauber was "perpetually teased for his nonconformity and presumed homosexuality" and that he screamed for help as Romney held him down. The paper recounted another incident in which Romney shouted "atta girl" to a different student at the all-boys' school who, years later, came out as gay.

"I participated in a lot of hijinks and pranks during high school and some may have gone too far. And for that I apologize," Romney told Fox News' Brian Kilmeade during a hastily arranged radio interview. Romney said he didn't remember the Lauber incident from long ago, but didn't dispute that it happened. He stressed that he didn't know either student was gay.

The Republican presidential candidate had begun the day by treading softly on Obama's historic embrace of same-sex marriage, which seems likely to fire up liberal and conservative activists alike. He quietly restated his opposition to legalizing such marriages, but his campaign turned its full attention to energy, the economy and other issues.

Military Class Suspended for Its View on Islam

BY PAULINE JELINEK AND ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A course for U.S. military officers has been teaching that America's enemy is Islam in general, not just terrorists, and suggested that the country might ultimately have to obliterate the Islamic holy cities of Mecca and Medina without regard for civilian deaths, following World War II precedents of the nuclear attack on Hiroshima or the allied firebombing of Dresden.

The Pentagon suspended the course in late April when a student objected to the material. The FBI also changed some agent training last year after discovering that it, too, was critical of Islam.

The teaching in the military course was counter to repeated assertions by U.S. officials over the last decade that the U.S. is at war against Islamic extremists — not the religion.

"They hate everything you stand for and will never coexist with you, unless you submit," the instructor, Army Lt. Col. Matthew Dooley, said in a presentation last July for the course at Joint Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va. The college, for professional military members, teaches midlevel officers and government civilians on subjects related to planning and executing war.

Dooley also presumed, for the purposes of his theoretical war plan, that the Geneva Conventions that set standards of armed conflict, are "no longer relevant."

He adds: "This would leave open the option once again of taking war to a civilian population wherever necessary (the historical precedents of Dresden, Tokyo, Hiroshima, Nagasaki being applicable...)"

His war plan suggests possible outcomes such as "Saudi Arabia threatened with starvation ... Islam reduced to cult status," and the Muslim holy cities of Mecca and Medina in Saudi Arabia "destroyed."

A copy of the presentation was obtained and posted online by Wired.com's Danger Room blog. The college didn't respond to The Associated Press' requests for copies of the documents, but a Pentagon spokesman authenticated the documents. Dooley still works for the college, but is no longer teaching, Joint Chiefs Chairman Gen. Martin Dempsey said.

Civil Rights Lawsuit Filed against Ariz. Sheriff

BY JACQUES BILLEAUD
Associated Press

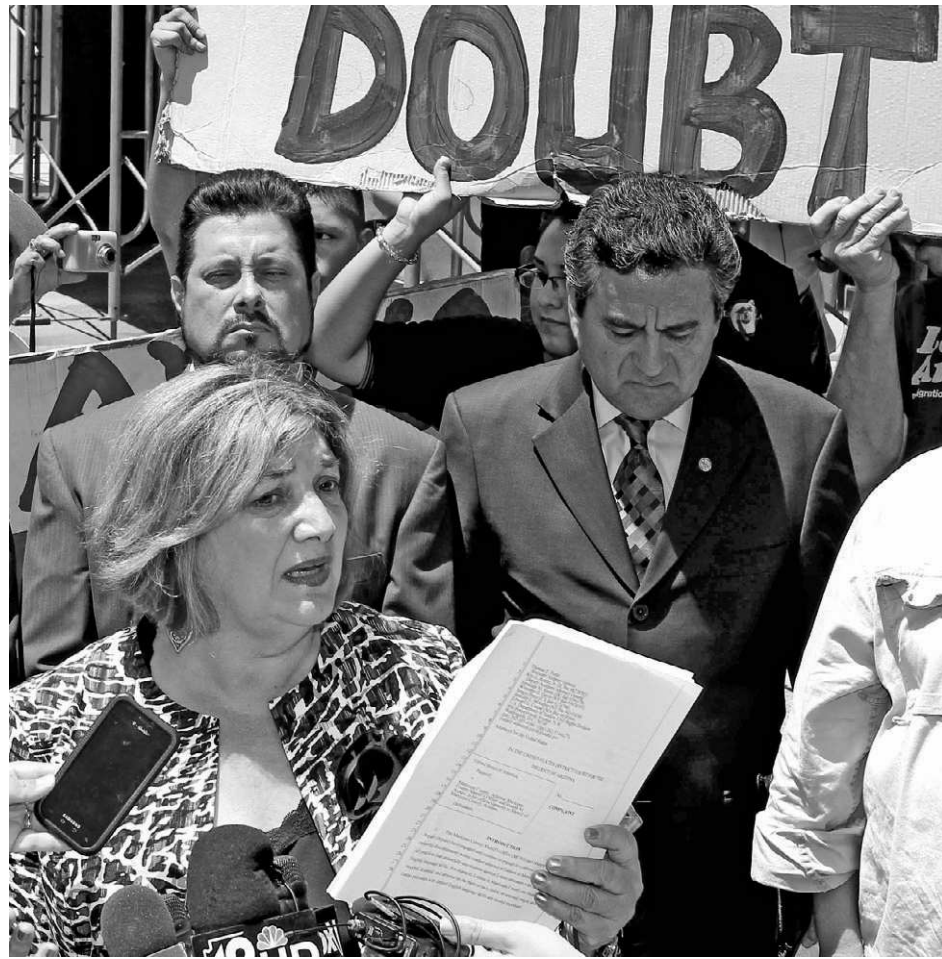

PHOENIX • The U.S. Justice Department sued America's self-proclaimed toughest sheriff Thursday, a rare step for the agency after months of negotiations failed to reach a settlement over allegations that his department racially profiled Latinos in his trademark immigration patrols.

Federal officials said that only once before has the agency filed a lawsuit against a police department that they were unable to reach an agreement with in the 18-year history of the DOJ's police reform efforts. The lawsuit means that a federal judge will decide the escalating standoff with Sheriff Joe Arpaio.

"We have invariably been able to work collaboratively with law enforcement agencies to build better departments and safer communities," said Assistant U.S. Attorney General Thomas Perez, who heads the DOJ's civil rights division, at a news conference.

Arpaio and the Maricopa County sheriff's office "have been a glaring exception," Perez said.

The DOJ first leveled the allegations against Arpaio in December, saying that a culture of disregard for basic constitutional rights prevailed at the office, which covers metro Phoenix. Talks to reach a settlement broke off last month.

Maricopa County Board of Supervisors member Mary Rose Wilcox holds up a copy of a civil rights lawsuit at a midday press conference after the Justice Department announced the federal lawsuit against Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio, his office, and Maricopa County, Thursday in Phoenix.

At the time, Arpaio refused to agree to a court-appointed monitor who would help enforce a settlement. Arpaio said it would mean every policy decision would have to be cleared through an observer and would nullify his authority.

Arpaio, who planned to hold a news conference Thursday afternoon to discuss the lawsuit, issued a brief statement.

"The Department of Justice would like to take over my office by requiring the implementation of a court-appointed monitor prior to ever producing any evidence that there has been a systemic problem with discrimination by my office," Arpaio said. "So far, their claims are based on isolated incidents that have already been identified and addressed."

Bomb Plot Raises Questions over European Security

BY PAISLEY DODDS
Associated Press

LONDON • A shimmy toward the body scanner, a step into the booth and a wave of the arms — routine procedure now at U.S. airports, but not necessarily in Europe.

In the wake of a foiled al-Qaida plot to bomb a jet heading to the U.S., it's unclear whether cash-strapped Europe has the latest security equipment to thwart an airliner attack, or whether machines will be able to keep up with determined terrorists.

With the summer Olympics expected to draw millions of visitors to London, airport security has taken on renewed urgency. A look at the issues:

The Debate

Terror groups bent on blowing up U.S.-bound jetliners are experimenting with explosives that use non-metal detonators. That means bombs might be missed by traditional metal detectors used at most international airports. The question is whether to switch to newer, expensive and more intrusive scanners.

There are two types of full-body scanners in wide use in U.S. airports. Backscatter X-ray scanners employ advanced imaging technology and small doses of ionizing radiation to detect objects concealed underneath a person's clothing. Millimeter wave scanners use radio frequencies for the same purpose.

Peter Kant, executive vice president of Rapiscan Systems, which makes the Backscatter, says the machines have fewer blind spots, are fast and can detect both metal and other potential explosives concealed on someone's body, though it's unclear whether they can spot explosives inside someone's body cavity. The downside is they are expensive and some critics have questioned their safety.

Experts say trials of the millimeter wave technology in Rome and Helsinki have resulted in frequent false alarms and delays.

In airports outside the U.S., most passengers simply go through metal detectors and have their carry-on luggage scanned.

"There is a concern that overseas security doesn't match ours. That's an ongoing challenge," says House Intelligence Committee Chairman Mike Rogers, a Republican from Michigan.

European Resistance

Europe has never required full-body scans, and efforts to install U.S.-style backscatter machines were stalled last year when the European Commission ordered a study into their safety.

An independent body has since found that little risk is involved.

But it's too soon to say when — if ever — advanced machines might be installed in European airports. Some cost more than $160,000, and in cash-strapped Europe, that's a hefty price.

Even in Britain, which can opt out of some EU dictates, there are only 20 or so backscatter machines. And those are only in trial usage.

In the United States, the Transportation Security Administration "is both the customer and the operator, whereas in Europe and other regions the regulator sets requirements and the airport picks up the bill," says Ben Vogel of IHS Jane's Airport Review. "The mix of stakeholders in Europe often leads to divergent positions on embracing technological change."

Charges against Ex-FAA Chief Dismissed

FAIRFAX, Va. • A judge on Thursday tossed out drunken driving charges against the former head of the Federal Aviation Administration after seeing video of the traffic stop and ruling that the officer had no legitimate reason to stop the driver.

Randy Babbitt, 65, resigned his post in December after news of his arrest became public. At a trial Thursday, General District Judge Ian O'Flaherty dismissed the case after seeing video that showed Babbitt making what appeared to be a normal left turn into a parking lot, even though the officer had said that Babbitt had been driving on the wrong side of the road.

Israeli PM Confronts Draft Loophole

JERUSALEM • A controversial practice that has allowed tens of thousands of young ultra-Orthodox men to avoid compulsory military service has emerged as a looming test for Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's new coalition government — and one that could create major mayhem in the Jewish state. Facing a court-ordered deadline, Netanyahu says he is committed to obeying the ruling and overhauling the system. And backed by his new coalition partner, Kadima Party leader Shaul Mofaz, he is in a strong position to overcome the objections of an increasingly agitated ultra-religious minority that considers the draft an assault on its way of life.

Chancellor: Keep Marching Band Suspended

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. • The longtime director of Florida A&M University's famed marching band announced his retirement Thursday, while a top state official urged the university to keep the band suspended while investigations of a drum major's death continue.

Frank Brogan, the chancellor of Florida's state university system, wrote a blunt letter to FAMU President James Ammons urging him to keep the band suspended.

Ammons was expected to discuss the band at a special meeting of the university board of trustees on Monday.

Former state Sen. Al Lawson, a FAMU alumnus from Tallahassee, said he believed Ammons was leaning toward keeping the band suspended.

FDA Advisers Recommend Approving Weight Loss Drug

BY LINDA A. JOHNSON Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. • Advisers to government health regulators late Thursday recommended that they approve sales of what would be the first new prescription weight-loss drug in the U.S. in more than a decade, despite concerns over cardiac risks.

"negligible risk" of tumors in people taking the drug. However, questions remain about it possibly increasing risk of high blood pressure in diabetics or damaging heart valves, a life-threatening side effect that has been an issue with some earlier weight-loss pills.

Earlier this year, rival Vivus Inc. won a surprising endorsement from an FDA panel for its diet drug, Qnexa. That move raised expectations for both Arena and Orexigen Therapeutics Inc., the third company racing to get the first new diet drug into drugstores.

Shares of the drug's creator, Arena Pharmaceuticals Inc., nearly doubled, jumping from $3.66 to $7.15 in after-hours trading after trading was temporarily halted.

A panel of expert advisers to the Food and Drug Administration voted 18-4 to recommend approval of Arena's lorcaserin, concluded that its benefits "outweigh the potential risks when used long term" in overweight and obese people. One panel member abstained from voting.

"We will continue to work with the FDA as the agency completes its review," Arena CEO Jack Lief said in a statement.

The company noted the FDA has set a target date of June 27 for deciding whether to approve sales of the drug. It's intended for people who are obese or for people who are overweight and have at least one weight-related health problem, such as high blood pressure.

The FDA is not bound to follow the advice of its advisory panels, but generally does so.

Lorcaserin is one of three experimental weight-loss drugs whose developers have been trying for a second time to win approval, after the FDA shot them all down in 2010 or early 2011 because of serious potential side effects.

The panel's vote Thursday comes two days after federal health regulators gave a surprisingly favorable assessment of lorcaserin. When the agency turned the drug down in 2010, its scientists raised concerns about health issues including tumors that developed in laboratory animals tested with the drug.

In the interim, the San Diego company again applied for approval, submitting additional data in hopes of swaying the agency to a favorable decision.

A review of all the research studies by FDA staff, posted online Tuesday, stated that new analysis Arena submitted suggests there's only a

WHY CRY FOR THE CLASSICS?

Magic Valley Chorale's longtime members don't mind a new musical mix.

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • On April 15, 1973, the Magic Valley Chorale performed its first concert, Handel's "Messiah." Singers had formed the chorale to study and enjoy the works of composers such as Johann Sebastian Bach and Domenico Scarlatti. Yes, the chorale still performs classical pieces four decades later. But to attract new members it expanded its offering, and audiences are just as likely to hear "The Phantom of the Opera" hits as Mozart's "Exultate Jubilate." "It was fun and wonderful and gave you an opportunity to grow musically," said Jack VanBuren, 77, of Twin Falls. Oratorios in the chorale's early years required intense hours of rehearsal, said VanBuren, one of just a few charter

FIND YOUR FUN

From disc golf to dance, Twin Falls' recreation department has ways to liven up your summer.

BY JAMI WHITED
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • There's no excuse for summer boredom: Twin Falls' Parks and Recreation Department partnered with local businesses to develop a jam-packed schedule of fun activities. Aside from the traditional football, soccer and baseball leagues, there are fitness activities for all ages — disc golf, martial arts, jump-roping, swimming, bowling — as well as concerts, art projects and the ever-popular movies in City Park.

City recreation supervisor Stacy McClintock is especially excited for some of the newer offerings.

"We have a new guy teaching the skateboard clinic. He's a skateboard pro," she said. "We brought back junior disc golf — last year's clinic was huge hit. We have a new karate instructor and the bowling camps and movies in the park."

Here is a sample of what you'll find in Parks and Recreation's 2012 activity guide:

Junior Disc Golf Program

When: 5-6 p.m. July 3-29 (sign up by June 18)
Where: CSI disc golf course, hole No. 1; O'Leary Middle School; Rock Creek Park
Age: 5-18

When Mike Stradley was a kid he played all kinds of traditional sports. But nothing really clicked for him until he discovered disc golf.

"The first time out I was instantly hooked," he said. "It's a great activity for any skill level, age or budget."

Stradley will teach junior disc golf

Three Best Bets

Make Fire

Maybe you won't spear fish like Tom Hanks' "Cast Away" character, but you'll build fires that nobody would be ashamed to dance around. (The beard and loincloth are optional.) At the Herrett Center's free Primitive Skills Day on Saturday, you can learn from guys with a truly goofy devotion to hurling darts and making cordage. Who knows when you'll have a desperate need for fishing line, with nothing at hand but sagebrush and stinging nettle?

Treat Mom

Each year for her birthday, Rock Creek pioneer Lucy Walgamott Stricker issued a wide invitation to a dance and dinner. And when the national Mother's Day started in 1914, Lucy moved her annual party to that date. These days, the historical Stricker homesite near Hansen again observes Mother's Day with a picnic cooked up from Lucy's recipe for community spirit. Take Mom for a barbecue lunch and old-time fiddling on the pretty grounds.

Sip and Bid

In downtown Twin Falls tonight, you can bid on the winning artwork from the 2012 Perrine Bridge Festival art contest. Tonight's silent auction — paired with a wine tasting — raises money for the September BASE jumping festival, which in turn benefits a hospital fund for children with special needs. You'll see some pieces that celebrate the iconic bridge, but there's a definite mix of topic and style among the photos, drawings, sketching and paintings.

It's not just a spectator sport. "I can bring my whole family out there and we can all enjoy it together rather than just watch — everyone can participate," Stradley said.

A Crazy, Boozy Afternoon of Miniature Golf: It Has to Be Ketchum

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Ketchum turns into a nine-hole town on May 19.

That's when competitors in the annual Ketchum Wide Open play the imaginative miniature golf holes concocted by nine Ketchum restaurants and bars.

"It's a lot of fun," Ketchum resident Mike Chase said. "In reality, though, it's more about partying than it is about golfing."

Still, "it's a must for golfers," added course pro Thatcher Marstad, who books Whiskey Jacques entertainment. "The course is incredibly creative and challenging — just what's needed to elevate your game to the next level as you prepare to hit the links this summer."

Restaurants vie for best hole. Lefty's Bar and Grill, for example, builds elaborate mazes of pipes and sets up little obstacles such as play Army men to confound duffers.

The event always attracts dozens of people from the Magic Valley, said Stefany Mahoney, who helped start it several years ago.

Players vie for best score, worst score and best costume — or what Ketchum events and parks reservation coordinator Sharon Arms calls "best sartorial expression of ridiculousness."

Those who make a bad putt have the option of buying a shot in the interests of shaving a point off their score.

Duffers should make their way to the Ketchum Town Plaza across from Atkinsons' Market, putter in hand and clothed in loud plaids or costume.

Registration opens at noon May 19 and costs $20 for a team of four players. Teams have from 1 to 6 p.m. to complete the nine-hole course and return to the Ketchum Town Plaza with their scorecards.

Cakefacejane will provide live music at the awards party.

"We used to be known as Cow Says Moo," said drummer David Olbum, who plays in the band along with Danae Commons, Henno Heitur and Brewster Moseley. "We play a lot of originals — one giant in-your-face smorgasbord of sound with rockin' funky bluesy influences!"

ART & SOUL WINNERS

TWIN FALLS • Dave LaMure Jr. of Kimberly took the top $10,000 prize in Art & Soul of the Magic Valley, a multivenue art contest judged by public vote, the Times-News reported Sunday.

Kay Taylor Affleck of Paul won second and $5,000, and the late Burley artist Lona Hymas-Smith received third and $2,500.

Twelve awards of $1,000 each went to O'Leary Middle School, Caleb Meyer, Greg Bartlett, Trevor Petersen, Cheryl Bruce, Jacob Novinger, Malen Plyson, Mikeal S. Dixon, Floyd Drown, Jason Scott, Ron Lewis and John E. McClusky. Twin Falls Center for the Arts, judged the favorite venue, won $500.

"We have lesson plans that will teach functional warm-up, teach them how to move correctly, incorporate technical lifting, running and strength conditioning," Nauman said.

By teaching youth about nutrition, endurance, stamina, strength, flexibility, power, speed and agility, Stutzman said, they hope to provide a well-rounded summer fitness program that children will use throughout life.

Shotokan Karate

When: Wednesdays and Thursdays; children at 5-5:45 p.m., adults at 6-7 p.m.

Where: Harmon Park Recreation Building
Cost: $15 per month

Shotokan leader Jesse Clark got his start in the unique martial arts form at Boise State University. After exploring self-defense options in Magic Valley, he decided to open his own dojo. But first, he had to get permission. Ohshima, the founder of Shotokan who brought the practice to America in 1954, gave Clark his blessing and told him to "teach with his back."

"I interpreted that to mean don't just stand there and harp at people. Get out there and show them and practice with them," Clark said.

This isn't a flashy form of martial arts with complicated movements, Clark said. Its focus is to build self-esteem and confidence and maintain eye contact.

"There are a lot of parents that tell me that their kids are bullied and they walk around looking down. We teach them to look up," Clark said. "We teach students to live everyday life and just to be a good person. We hope people never have to fight, but the fact is, there are bad people out there, and if they do, they'll be ready."

Bowladrome Bowling Camps

When: Session one at noon June 13-14. Session two at noon Aug. 22-23.

Where: 220 Eastland Drive, Twin Falls
Age: 7-18
Cost: $25 per session

Two sessions of bowling camps are available for 7- to 18-year-olds, teaching ball weight and finger size, bowling etiquette and scoring, reading oil patterns, land breakdowns, standing positions and muscle memory training.

The second session is to get bowlers ready for a junior bowling league. Those who participate in the "Have a Ball" league will get a bowling ball and bag.

"We're really hoping to build a future league with the juniors," said Dennis Seckel, Bowladrome owner. "There are scholarships available for bowlers where they get money put into an account they can receive for college."

Kids Art in the Park

When: July 14 (workshop schedules and registration not available until June)

Where: Twin Falls City Park
This annual event hosted by Magic Valley Arts Council offers a variety of workshops to entertain and educate children; in the past they've included leather craft tooling, copper tooling, band instrument introduction and performance art.

Children get age-appropriate crafts they can take home.

"We come up with things that would interest the specific age group," program director Carolyn White said.

One new aspect this year,

SIGN UP FOR SUMMER DANCE CAMP

TWIN FALLS • The CSI Fine Arts Center is taking registrations for its annual CSI/IDAA Summer Dance Workshop, held in July on the Twin Falls campus.

Tuition, with or without board, ranges from $80 to $765.

The camp provides intensive training to students 12 and older who have a minimum of two consecutive years of dance. Students take five to seven hours of class per day in ballet, jazz, tap, lyrical and modern techniques, plus musical theater, world dance, choreography and related areas. The guest faculty includes professional dancers and dance instructors from around the country.

Students may choose between a one-week workshop, July 15-20, and a two-week version, July 15-27.

Chaperoned dormitory housing and meals are available. In the evenings, down-time activities include game night, movies, a canyon excursion, swimming parties, a fashion show, an ice cream social, a pizza and autograph party, barbecues, a carnival, a pampering night and an end-of-camp recital.

A one-day junior camp on July 21 introduces ages 9-11, regardless of dance experience, to an intensive workshop taught by the regular camp faculty.

Registration form and information: csi.edu/dance-camp or 732-6288.

White said: The kids' event will coincide with an Art Guild event.

"On one side of the park kids will be entertained, and on the other side, adults can enjoy local artists' work," she said. "It's going to be a full day of artistic activity in the park."

Beginning-Intermediate Skateboard Clinic

When: June 23 and 30 and July 7 and 14

Where: Twin Falls Skate Park, Harmon Park

Cost: $40 if pads, wrist guards and helmets are needed; $20 if participants bring helmets and pads. Price includes a T-shirt.

One of the first things that Jason Bobango, owner of Concrete Desert Skateboards, will teach beginning skaters is how to fall.

"Teaching them how to fall on their pads and using the pads to slide out of a fall will really help keep them safe," Bobango said.

Participants will be split into groups based on skill level. Whether a student has never been on a board or wants to bring a trick to life, Bobango and his staff will help.

"If someone comes to us with an idea for a trick, we say, 'Let's work on it and see if we can get it landed.' That's what progresses the sport and skill level," Bobango said. "That's what's so nice about skateboarding is that it really is about individual expression and creativity."

Bobango's company sells board decks, all designed by local artists, at Elevation Sports in Twin Falls.

"Another really great thing is that 25 per cent of the proceeds from sales goes to building skate parks in Idaho," he said.

Storytime Pottery and Mommy and Me Art Adventure

When: Storytime Pottery at 10 a.m. Fridays and 1 p.m. Saturdays; Art Adventures at 9 a.m. Wednesdays and 1 p.m. Tuesdays; view the schedule at www.tfid.org

Where: Hands On, 147 Shoshone St. N., Twin Falls

Age: Pottery is for 2- to 7-year-olds; Art Adventure is for 3 and older.

Cost: Pottery is $12 with a $2 sibling discount. Art Adventure is $15.

Robin Dober, owner of Hands On, said the art studio offers a variety of personalized products that allow people to explore their creativity.

Participants in Storytime Pottery will read a story together, have a snack and complete a painting project that relates to the story. Mommy and Me Art Adventures will include pizza plate painting and story, Father's Day project, popcorn bowl, handprint plaque and piggy bank. Snacks and drinks will be provided as well as supplies and instruction.

Jump-rope

When: Thursdays; 3:50-4:30 p.m. for younger jumpers, and 4:30-5:10 p.m. for older jumpers

Where: First Presbyterian Church, 209 Fifth Ave. N., Twin Falls

Age: 5 and older
Cost: $30 per month

Few think of jump-roping as a sport, but, says Hilary Western, it's a great exercise that uses muscles throughout the body.

"Just 10 minutes of jumping is the equivalent of 3 miles of jogging as far as calories burned," she said.

A former member of the Rexburg National Championship team Proform Air Borne, Western brought the class to the area. As students progress from single rope and double dutch skills, Western will teach tricks, footwork and crossing techniques to help them learn choreographed routines and other jumping methods.

"It really is an exercise for people of all ages," she said.

Twin Falls Public Library

Where: 201 Fourth Ave. E., Twin Falls

Cost: Free

This local staple offers a range of activities throughout the year, but summer brings a special intellectual experience. This year's theme is centered around night life: "Dream Big" for children and "Own the Night" for teens. For schedules, call the reference desk at 733-2964 or visit twinfallspubliclibrary.org.

Laura O'Neil, youth services librarian, said the library will bring in an artist, and children will learn about nighttime creatures.

"We'll have kids' programs on Fridays, and the teens will be on Thursdays," O'Neil said. "We really wanted to focus on and incorporate the idea of night."

Crafts and glow-in-the-dark puppets will be highlights this year.

"We hope they get a better perspective of animals and learn more about the world around them," O'Neil said.

Twin Falls Creative Arts Center

When: Summer Art Camps will be held June 7 through Aug. 23. Visit www.tfcreativeartscenter.com or call 737-9111 for schedules.

Where: 249 Main Ave. W., Twin Falls.

Cost: Varies

Cheryl Bruce, center owner and instructor, hopes to share the experience of art with as many people as possible this summer.

"We'll have a Master of Art class that will be an illustration class where we bring in artwork from Peanuts, Arthur and Dr. Seuss," she said. "There will be a Beach Party class where we use sand and seashells and things like that."

With paint, chalks, charcoals and foils and many other art forms, Bruce said, students will take a "journey around the world" discovering different cultures. "We want people to experience art and the pure joy of working with a variety of materials."

Retirement gave Alice Anderson time for activities like Magic Valley Chorale, of which she is one of a few original members. Here, she rehearses Thursday for the chorale's spring concert.

Chorale

members who continue singing with the 60-member chorale today.

"The music is different today. We don't sing the classics as much. We used to do two spring concerts, one for Mother's Day and the other that was just a major classical piece. We'd do something like Mozart's 'Requiem' or Hadyn's 'The Creation.' Now we'll do one heavy classical in the first half of the concert and keep the second half light," VanBuren said.

The chorale continues to sing its annual Christmas concert, too.

VanBuren, who moved to the Magic Valley from California, said the people he met and the skills he learned through the chorale led to other performances, including lead roles in Dilettante Group of Magic Valley.

Twin Falls' Milton Barrus, 74, credits the chorale for enriching his life.

"It's neat to see the chorale still hanging on," said Barrus, who taught biology at Twin Falls High School. "I won't give it up now. I've got too much invested."

He doesn't mind the chorale's new musical mix.

"It's a different crowd now but if we don't evolve and change we won't attract new members," Barrus said. "We have a good cross section: some college kids, a couple of high schoolers and adults, semi-retired folks and senior citizens. We have a lot of camaraderie and a good time singing a broad range of music."

Alice Anderson of Twin Falls returned to the chorale four years ago after retiring as an early childhood educator at the College of Southern Idaho. She remembers singing in the chorale's first concert and for a few years after that but said a young family and busy career kept her singing shelved for most of her adult life.

"After I retired it gave me a chance to come back. Singing with the chorale was always something I wanted to return to," Anderson said.

Like Joseph Hutchinson, 87, of Buhl, Anderson intends to sing with Magic Valley Chorale until physically unable to.

"There aren't many of us charter members left," Hutchinson said. "Whenever something happens

Overview
 Hanging baskets of flowers brighten any spot. They come in all sizes and shapes to fit any space. There are several things to consider when you create hanging baskets. Light, water and good soil are all important. There are many varieties of flowers that are perfect for hanging baskets in either sun or shade. You may be replanting your old baskets or designing new ones. Good watering habits will grow good flower baskets.

Buy New or Clean Old Baskets
 You will find wire hanging baskets with mesh coconut shell liners in most garden centers. They come in sizes small to large. Coconut shell liners are thick enough to hold potting soil but not let water stream through. Clean your old hanging baskets with soapy water and buy new liners for them. The liners will last only one growing season before they look shoddy. Now you are ready to fill the baskets with soil and plants.

Use Good Potting Soil
 Good quality potting soil is a must for good drainage and good blooms. Hanging plants use up a lot of nutrients in the soil so a fertilizing schedule will benefit growth. If you use homemade compost, water it down to a mild tea before you use it. Fill the lined baskets halfway with soil and press it down with your hands. Now you are ready to add the plants you chose.

Baskets in the Sun
 Consider whether you want your hanging baskets in a shady area or a sunny area. Choose a variety of plants for each basket or all one type for a dramatic and colorful look. Petunias, ivy, geranium and miniature carnations all do well in sunny spots and give a rainbow of colorful flowers. Ivy trailing down the side of the basket gives a romantic look. The dainty miniature carnation flowers are good contrast to the petunia's larger blooms.

Baskets in the Shade
 Impatiens bloom in colors from white to red and to all shades of pink. Their flowers are dainty and very profuse. A hanging basket created with impatiens will be strikingly beautiful all spring and summer. Impatiens are highly recommended. The coleus plant has brightly colored leaves and is also a popular shade plant for hanging baskets. Fuchsia and the rose-like begonia make a graceful display of flowers as their stems trail over the side of the basket.

Watering Tips
 Flower baskets require careful, frequent, gentle watering. Baskets can dry out quickly if exposed to a lot of sun or wind. Stay on a frequent watering schedule and give each basket a good soak each time you water. Flowering baskets in shade area require less frequent water but check them regularly for dryness. Fuchsias and coleus wilt very easily when underwatered. There are several kinds of hose nozzles that create a gentle cascade of water for hanging baskets.

The proposed increase of (9.4%) is (4.4%) percent above five percent (5%) of the fees charged the previous year for elementary and the proposed increase of (9.5%) is (4.5%) above five percent (5%) of the fees charged the previous year for secondary. The following is an estimate of what these changes may mean to students.

Notification of an Amended Notice of Intent

The Department of Energy (DOE) Naval Nuclear Propulsion Program (NNPP) has issued an amended Notice of Intent (NOI) to revise the scope of an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the Recaptialization of Naval Spent Nuclear Fuel Handling and Examination Facilities at the Idaho National Laboratory (INL). The NNPP issued its Notice of Intent (NOI) to prepare the EIS for the Recaptialization of Naval Spent Nuclear Fuel Handling and Examination on July 20, 2010 (75 FR 42082). The NNPP was initially pursuing two recaptialization projects in the same time frame; however, since the initiation of the NEPA process, the project schedules have changed such that the Spent Fuel Handling Recaptialization Project has progressed further than the Examination Recaptialization Project. Preparing one EIS that includes both projects would require decisions about the Examination Recaptialization Project too early in the design process, prior to having sufficient information to fully analyze the environmental impacts of the project. Additionally, funding uncertainties have made the timing of the Examination Recaptialization Project speculative in nature. To ensure an EIS is completed in support of the Navy's need for the Spent Fuel Handling Recaptialization Project, it is necessary to reduce the scope of the EIS to cover only the Spent Fuel Handling Recaptialization Project.

The NNPP proposes to recaptialize the infrastructure for transferring, preparing, examining, and packaging naval spent nuclear fuel and other irradiated materials, to ensure these capabilities are maintained for the vital NNPP mission of supporting the naval nuclear-powered fleet. The recaptialization will be carried out as two projects. The first project will be the Spent Fuel Handling Recaptialization Project; the second project will be the Examination Recaptialization Project. The first project is currently being evaluated in this EIS, consistent with the reduced scope described above. The second project will be evaluated with separate NEPA documentation once more information is available.

The EIS will consider the environmental effects related to the Spent Fuel Handling Recaptialization Project. The alternatives being evaluated have been revised to remove aspects related to an Examination Recaptialization Project and to address public comments received during initial EIS scoping. The NNPP will evaluate building a new facility at two potential sites on the NRF, an ECF Overhaul Alternative, and a No Action Alternative:

- Alternative 1 - Construct and operate a new facility for spent fuel handling capabilities at one of two potential locations at the Naval Reactors Facility (NRF) on the INL.
- Alternative 2 - Overhaul the spent fuel handling capabilities of the ECF at NRF by implementing major infrastructure and water pool refurbishment projects while performing corrective maintenance and repair actions as necessary.
- Alternative 3 (No Action) - Maintain the spent fuel handling capabilities of the ECF by continuing to use the current ECF infrastructure while performing corrective maintenance and repairs necessary to keep the infrastructure in good working order (i.e., actions sufficient to sustain the proper functioning of structures, systems, and components).

To access the original NOI and the amended NOI, visit www.ecfrecaptialization.us. Written comments on the revised scope of the EIS may be submitted by mailing to:

Ms. Samantha O'Hara (800) Naval Reactors)
Naval Sea Systems Command
1240 Isaac Hull Avenue, SE
Stop 8036
Washington Navy Yard, DC 20376-8036

Comments provided by E-mail should be submitted to ecfrecaptialization@unpp.gov. Public comments on the amended NOI should include the name, organization, and mailing address of the commenter.

Public comments will be accepted through June 11, 2012.

IF MAY 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Be confident during the next four to six weeks and look forward to the answer to your prayers. This is a time when you should pay close attention to the sound of opportunity knocking at your door. People who are good for you may enter your life. You may develop and implement plans that will brighten your future. You can sail through the summer — and in November, a new romance might give you an interval of fun. At the same time, your business senses are augmented, so this is a great time for financial decisions, too.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Games of cat and mouse may commence. Romance may sneak up on little cat's feet and pounce on your heart. Be playful as a kitten and wait patiently for your heart's desire to make his or her first move.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Reestablish trust with a co-worker or friend. You may have been taken for granted or taken advantage of in the past, but that doesn't mean this is a permanent condition. Give someone a second chance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Love means being able to count on each other through thick and thin. You know you must give and take just as much as your partner does. If you are on equal footing, love takes a turn for the better.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Go wherever your heart takes you. You sometimes fear you will sacrifice something solid in your life for something fleeting and illusory. Worries fade from view bit by bit like the Cheshire cat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There is no need to be bashful about your desires. Anyone worth meeting will be easy to reach. There is no need to go out of your way to find a special someone. Your phone may ring off the hook.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Focus your energy into climbing the ladder of success and ponder the injustices of the world on your own time. Your partner's charms might concern you. You might not feel up to satisfying someone's needs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Affection isn't affection if you can deliver the goods as advertised. Capture a special someone's heart with a show of passion. It might be the kind of a night to break out massage oil and silk sheets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stoke the fires of trust and commitment and you will find your faith in others rewarded. Accept an offer of sound advice from a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Mutual reliance makes you stronger. If you sang with a special someone, the song might be, "I Got You, Babe." No matter what happens, you can depend on loved ones to stick by your side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dig in. You may feel like a dog with a new bone. Once engrossed in an activity or caught up in a fresh enthusiasm, you may find it difficult to let go. Romantic ties are ready to be strengthened.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): When you've got it, flaunt it. Don't follow the same old routine week after week. Accept an invitation for an outing or try a new restaurant on a whim. Distant relatives could give you sage advice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Let the laws of attraction work to your advantage. You are apt to be caught up in the quite pleasant feeling of being the most attractive person on earth. Your love life may be invigorated by a fresh conquest.
