Idaho Judge Sets Leavitt Execution

Idaho Department of Correction officials predict there could be as many as four people executed before the end of 2013.

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A 7th District Judge has signed a death warrant for condemned inmate Richard Albert

Leavitt, ordering that he be executed by lethal injection.

Barring any last-minute court intervention, Leavitt will be put to death on June 12.

Leavitt was convicted in the July 18, 1984, brutal death of Danette Elg in Blackfoot. Prosecutors said he stabbed her repeatedly with exceptional force, and then cut out her sexual organs. Leavitt's defense attorneys have argued that he sustained brain damage and has a mental disorder that contributed to his actions.

The U.S. Supreme Court declined to consider Leavitt's appeal Monday, and Judge Jon Shindurling signed the death warrant Thursday.

If Leavitt's execution moves forward as planned, he will become the second person executed by the state in the last seven months. Paul Ezra Rhoades, who was convicted of killing three people in eastern Idaho in 1987, was put to death on Nov. 18, 2011.

Before Rhoades' death, executions were rare in Idaho, with only one other inmate put to death in the last half-century. But several death row inmates appear to be

T.F. County GOP Aims to Settle Infighting

A contentious election on the county precinct level has some looking to emphasize party unity.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • Time to move forward, hopefully without the fighting.

Now that the contentious Republican county precinct elections are over, Twin Falls County GOP members hope to focus on the future without the bickering that has defined the last four years.

Party precinct races rarely get attention, and in previous years, it was hard to find people to run for the positions, said Gretchen Clelland, chairwoman of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee.

But since 2008, challenges from members of the Republican Liberty Caucus have led to frustration at monthly meetings, multiple candidates running for precinct committeeman

Working the Sentence Away

Community service helps keep jail crowding down while convicted criminals give back.

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

JEROME • Once a month, Sgt. Steve Byers spends his Saturday with about a dozen people sentenced to community service work.

The crew may clean irrigation ditches, work at a food drive, or — most familiar — pick up trash along the highway.

Judges regularly sentence people with misdemeanor convictions to perform community service in lieu of time in jail or in conjunction with probation.

"I think it's effective in a few ways," said Byers, who works with the Jerome County Sheriff's Office. "First it's keeping the jail from being overcrowded."

The projects the crews do help the community, people avoid losing their jobs since they can serve their sentence on the weekends, and spending time on the sheriff's work detail also serves as a deterrent, Byers said.

"It's not that enjoyable to be alongside the highway when your buddy is honking because they know you're out there," he said.

Work like cleaning irrigation ditches every spring accomplishes a necessary task while saving the county money, Byers said. If the sheriff's work detail didn't do it, the county would have to hire someone at taxpayers' expense.

Now that Jerome County's bid to fund a new jail has failed for a fourth time, officials must decide what to do next.

JEROME • Jerome County voters made their voices heard once again on the issue of funding a new jail, and the answer remains no.

Although more than 63 percent of voters backed a $10.7 million bond Tuesday to build a new jail and sheriff's office, the support wasn't enough to meet the 66.7 percent supermajority approval the funding needed to pass.

With Election Done, Filer Board Hears Bus Proposal

BY JOHN E. SWAYZE
For the Times-News

FILER • The mood was one of relief at Wednesday's Filer School Board meeting.

The day before, 57 percent of school district voters cast ballots in favor of a two-year, $500,000 supplemental levy. The funds are expected to bridge a state funding shortfall for the 2012-13 school year.

"If the levy hadn't passed, the atmosphere around here would be completely different tonight," District Superintendent John Graham said. "Right now, we'd be facing a completely different picture."

A finance committee had recommended only pursuing a $300,000 levy, then making $290,000 in cuts to the district's $7.3 million budget. But school board trustees chose to seek the larger amount.

"I have to congratulate the board for its courage in going forward with the full levy amount," said Filer High School Principal Leon Madsen. "We all appreciate the support you and the public give us."

In other business, the school board backed a Western States Bus Co. proposal to upgrade its fleet of school buses.

The company will replace 10 diesel-fueled buses currently serving the district with propane vehicles deemed more environmentally friendly and cheaper to run. Western States Manager Michele Dameron told board members the company's $1 million investment will cost the district nothing.

The buses are American-made, meet or exceed all federal and state safety guidelines and will use American-produced fuel.

"We're just asking for the go-ahead to place an order. If we wait, the cost is only projected to increase per bus and we'd like to recoup on our investment now," Dameron said. "I've already received support from Buhl and plan on bringing it before the Twin Falls School Board next month."

Blaine Schools File Complaint over Green Energy Projects

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

HAILEY • The Blaine County School District and an energy service company filed civil complaints against each other this week in Blaine County 5th District Court.

The dispute is over the amount McKinstry Essention Inc. will be paid for a multi-million-dollar project to update heating, ventilation and air conditioning systems in eight school district buildings.

Both parties filed complaints Tuesday. The cases are pending and were assigned to Judge Robert Elgee.

"Ultimately, our focus is on educating students and this dispute will not detract from our mission and purpose," Blaine County School Board Chairman Steve Guthrie and Superintendent Lonnie Barber wrote in a joint statement. "We have confidence in our legal position."

McKinstry Essention declined to comment on the case Thursday.

School district spokeswoman Heather Crocker said she can't provide details about why the district filed the complaint since litigation is pending.

School trustees awarded a contract to McKinstry Essention in 2010 for the project.

Crocker said the contract for the long-term, extensive project includes a guaranteed maximum price of $16.1 million.

About $5 million of the funding comes from a federal energy grant. The rest is from a 10-year, $58.9 million plant facilities levy voters approved in October 2009.

McKinstry Essention has been working on the project since 2010 and the majority of the work is done.

"One goal of the energy eficiency retrofits was to provide improved learning environments for students, recognizing that better air quality and overall comfort would encourage student engagement and aid student achievement," according to a press release from the school district.

In addition to upgrading HVAC systems, the project also included drilling new wells at a few schools and installing ground-source heat pumps.

Some school boilers that were about 40 years old were also replaced, Crocker said.

Idacorp Shareholders Question Utility's Use Of Coal

BOISE • Shareholders in Idacorp, Idaho Power's parent company, raised concerns about the public utility's heavy reliance on coal-fired plants to generate electricity at the company's annual meeting Thursday.

Company officials, however, said coal provides one of the most reliable forms of generating electrical power for the company's nearly 500,000 customers. "We can't just decide to not take coal," said LaMont Keen, president and CEO of Idacorp.

Even so, the company is undertaking an analysis of two of the coal fired plants in which it has part ownership to see whether it is economically feasible to upgrade the sites to meet new environmental regulations. That analysis is expected to be done later this year. A third coal plant from which Idaho Power draws electricity is slated for decommission in 2020.

Execution

reaching the end of the appeals process, and last year Idaho Department of Correction officials predicted there could be as many as four people executed before the end of 2013.

Leavitt's defense attorneys have tried several times to get his death penalty overturned. In 2007, U.S. District Judge B. Lynn Winnmill agreed after concluding defense attorney David Parmenter was ineffective for failing to investigate if brain damage found years later could explain Leavitt's personality disorders at the time of the crime. But in a divided opinion issued in 2011, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Winnmill and put Leavitt back on death row.

Leavitt, who has long maintained his innocence, was arrested after authorities discovered Elg's body in her blood-spattered bedroom four days after she'd been killed. During his trial, a court-appointed psychologist who examined Leavitt said he had an antisocial personality disorder and intermittent explosive disorder, which could cause him to lose control of aggressive impulses.

Former district Judge H. Reynold George noted that Leavitt came from a law-abiding family, was married and steadily employed before his arrest and that while he had a criminal record, it mostly contained misdemeanors and traffic infractions.

Still, George said at the sentencing, those mitigating factors were only "feathers on the scale when balanced against the grossly inhumane act of murder that went beyond all decency?"

In April, Leavitt was one of four death row inmates to sue the state, contending Idaho's new execution procedures give too much power to prison officials, create a risk of severe pain and would allow unqualified workers to carry out medical procedures. In the lawsuit Leavitt, Thomas Creech, James Hairston and Gene Stuart ask a judge to stop all executions until the problems are fixed.

That lawsuit is still active; the state has asked U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge to throw it out because Idaho's protocol matches the procedures in other states that have been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Skin Cancer Prevention

What You Need to Know NOW

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer in the United States, but you can protect yourself and your family.

Protect your skin all year long:

- Limit sun exposure between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.
- When in the sun, wear a hat, long-sleeved shirt, and sunglasses.
- Use sunscreen with at least an SPF of 15 that blocks both UVA and UVB rays.

Get to know your skin:

- Look at moles and dark spots on your body.
- Watch the moles and spots for changes.
- If you see changes, show them to a health care provider.

You may be at higher risk to get skin cancer if:

- You have a family member who had skin cancer.
- You have had a sunburn.
- You have light-colored hair, eyes, or skin.
- You have a large number of moles.

Remember, you know your body best. If you notice any changes, talk to your doctor or other health care provider.

To find a doctor, Call St. Luke's at (208) 381-9000 or visit stlukesonline.org/clinic.

Taking care of yourself is the best way to prevent cancer or find it early.

posts this year, and complaints against the central committee registered with the state party.

This year's races earned attention through potentially misleading campaign materials from the RLC, including altered sample ballots and endorsements from "Republican Central Committee of Twin Falls, Inc.," which isn't affiliated with the real Twin Falls County central committee.

One website listed Twin Falls County Republican Liberty Caucus "reformers" who were running against the GOP "status quo" in the 2012 election.

Of those reformers listed, 13 won their races on Tuesday, and one race resulted in a tie. Twin Falls County Clerk Kristina Glascock wasn't available for comment Thursday on when the tie would be resolved.

That leaves at least 30 seats to more traditional Republicans, including Twin Falls County Commissioner Terry Kramer, who beat local RLC leader Rick Martin in Castleford Precinct 1.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Leon Mills, who won the Twin Falls Precinct 2 committeeman race against Luke Hahn, said he was relieved at the results, and thought the next two years would have less drama.

"I was really ecstatic, honestly," he said.

Carter Killinger, a reformer who lost his race against Tom Billington, said while he believed the Republican establishment was hostile to those with more conservative beliefs, he hoped the two sides could set aside their differences.

"I want to work toward ... common goals without hostility," he said.

On Friday, RLC member Jennifer Blair, who won her race, agreed.

"I tend to assume that everyone's got good intentions and we have different viewpoints, but we're all coming at it (with) integrity and we're just trying to do the best we can," Blair said.

But the desire for reconciliation doesn't change their beliefs. Killinger plans to chat with elected committeemen about their viewpoints.

"If somebody's out in left field, I want to call them on it," he said.

Jerome Jail

Chairman Charlie Howell said commissioners will formally discuss how to tackle the jail issue at their regular 9 a.m. Monday meeting, with the jail discussion scheduled for 10 a.m.

Until then, Howell said he is informally talking with commissioners, residents and County Sheriff Doug McFall about what happens now.

Howell said taking a bond issue to the voters again is unlikely.

"My personal opinion is leave it alone," he said.

Soon, commissioners will consider cutting back services and whether fixing the current jail is cost-effective.

Now is the time to begin throwing around ideas and being blunt about what will and won't work, Howell said.

Ideas like finding private funding for a jail, closing the jail and housing inmates elsewhere, or pursuing a judge's approval of constructing a new jail are all on the table, Howell said.

Fixing the current jail could cost millions and the price of keeping it open may be greater than paying to send inmates to other jails, McFall said.

"It may mean housing inmates outside of Jerome and having a small holding facility," he said.

One possibility is using four cells in the judicial annex as holding cells. That facility has bathrooms, but no showers, McFall said.

He said the county will keep plans drawn up by Ormond Builders, which was contracted to consult on and design the proposed facility. County officials will continue communicating with the company about other possibilities, he said.

The cost of consulting for the proposed jail was not to exceed $24,999, Howell said. The county has not yet received the bill, so he didn't know the final cost.

According to an Idaho State Police report, Kyle Benson, 35, of Buhl, hit Hassani's patrol car and another vehicle at the intersection of Kimberly Road and 3300 East Road while driving a 2010 Volkswagen Jetta around 11:45 a.m. on July 14, 2010. Benson was heading east on U.S. Highway 30 as Hassani was northbound on 3300 East while responding to another motor-vehicle accident, according to ISP.

The past two years, Hassani said he has worked off and on, but has been out of the office for the past eight months.

In a document Hassani showed the Times-News titled "Notice of Termination," a doctor's report said Hassani's symptoms from the injuries were not under control and he shouldn't return to work.

Sheriff Tom Carter said Hassani was not fired, but could not say much more on the issue, saying it is a personnel matter.

"The accommodations were not practical for a patrolman, that's about all I can say," Carter said. "But I did not terminate him."

Hassani said he suffers from residual pain, especially in his neck. Having a desk job where he is allowed to move around throughout the day — including having room to stretch — would allow him to return to work, he said.

"I can't sit or stand for too long," he said.

Hassani said he sent a letter to his employer stating the accommodations he would need to return to work. The notice of termination stated that creating a position that included those accommodations would be too much of a hardship.

Hassani said he was seeing doctors about his neck pain and hoped to have it under control soon, as he continues his run for sheriff against Carter in the November general election.

Idaho law requires employers to accommodate an employee's disability unless there's an undue hardship, said Pamela Parks, administrator with the Idaho Commission on Human Rights.

"Undue hardship means it is too difficult or expensive to provide the accommodations," she said.

The employer is the first to make the evaluation if an accommodation is reasonable, and can consider the cost and resources needed to provide it, she said.

If the employee disagrees, they can file a complaint with the commission.

"We are impartial in the process," she said. "We're going to have an impartial good look at all the facts in the case, applying the law to it all."

Service

All the work people sentenced to community service do must be completed through a nonprofit or a public entity like the city or county, Byers said.

Jennifer Homberg is the senior probation officer in Twin Falls County and is in charge of the county work detail. While her county regularly works with several groups, she's always looking for new opportunities.

Recently, she connected with a group that helps donate headstones for families who have a child who died.

"We're going out and helping put the headstones up," she said.

In the past, crews have worked with the Twin Falls city parks department, Paint Magic and Habitat for Humanity.

"Rehabilitation, it's a whole plethora of things," Homburg said. "We'd like to think it's helping them see they're out in the community giving back to them and restoring themselves to the community."

Incarceration isn't right for every person who commits a crime, she said.

"We're not wanting to take individuals that have not committed the most heinous crimes and incarcerate them if they don't need to be," she said. "We put them out in the community so they can do good for that community."

About 90 percent of juveniles who are sentenced in the court system are sentenced to some community service, said Jackie Smith, the community service coordinator for Twin Falls County Juvenile Probation.

Kids between about 12 and 17 perform duties like cleaning the Snake River Canyon rim walking trail in the summer and shoveling snow for senior citizens and disabled veterans in the winter, Smith said.

Idaho Incumbent Wins Are Evidence of GOP Shift

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho Republican primary voters this week spurned a drive by libertarian-leaning upstarts aiming to oust GOP House and Senate incumbents.

This comes after Republican Mitt Romney's easy March victory in Idaho's "Super Tuesday" caucus over libertarian and GOP candidate Ron Paul.

With the next test of the dominant Idaho political party's mood coming next month at the state GOP convention in Twin Falls, there's growing evidence it's exiting a period marked by tea-party advances and entering another where Republicans stick by candidates they know amid an improving economy and falling unemployment.

Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter said his Tuesday-night take-away is this: Idaho will remain conservative, but won't tilt much further right.

"I don't see a philosophical shift," said Otter, whose next big political task will be installing an ally as state Republican Party chairman at the Twin Falls convention.

Just four years ago, tea party-influenced delegates at the 2008 convention in Sandpoint spurned Otter's choice to lead the GOP and went with Norm Semanko as chairman. Semanko is now stepping down.

Otter has another goal for the June 21-23 confab, too: Convincing delegates to join his push for reopening the GOP primary to more than just Republican voters. It was closed by conservatives, but the two-term governor wants to see that undone after blaming it for Tuesday's record-low turnout of just 23 percent.

In another sign of the Idaho GOP's direction, all 16 Republican candidates who got financial help from the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry won Tuesday night, as voters turned back libertarian-leaning hopefuls.

The list of incumbent survivors includes Sens. Patti Anne Lodge of Huston, Dean Cameron of Rupert and Shawn Keough of Sandpoint; and Reps. George Eskridge of Dover, and House Majority Caucus Chairman Ken Roberts of Donnelly.

Alex LaBeau, the pro-business group's top lobbyist, said their success shows a "throw the bums out" atmosphere that ruled in 2010 is in retreat.

"Your right-track, wrong-track view...has been reversed," LaBeau said. "We see that in the tracking polls. The voters are generally satisfied with the direction of the state."

By contrast, 12 of the 40 candidates endorsed by conservative strategist Lou Esposito's political action committees came up short.

"You go into those knowing that's a pretty big mountain, but you give it a shot," Esposito said Wednesday.

Esposito, a former GOP redistricting committee member, became a central figure in the 2012 primary election after PACs he coordinates received thousands from House Speaker Lawrence Denney, House Majority Leader Mike Moyle and Rep. Bob Nonini, a Coeur d'Alene Republican running for the Senate in November.

Moyle dedicated his $5,000 check toward beating Roberts, with whom he has a personal feud; Nonini spent a total of $12,000 in his bid to defeat Cameron, Eskridge, Keough, as well as Sen. John Tippets, R-Montpelier.

These internal GOP machinations could lead to a possible shakeup to House leadership — if enough members grow disgruntled, said David Adler, director of the Andrus Center for Public Policy at Boise State University.

"I think it will at the very least lead to a strong challenge," Adler said, suggesting House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke, R-Oakley, could benefit.

Bedke, who backed Roberts and Eskridge with $1,000 checks of his own, has called Denney's and Moyle's intervention in GOP primary races "unprecedented," but declined comment on whether he'll mount a challenge. Roberts also wasn't talking.

But Eskridge, who survived tea party leader Pam Stout's run against him, said he's heard from numerous lawmakers disappointed about the primary meddling, in particular by Nonini.

"The fact that he worked against fellow House members, and in addition worked against some pretty solid Senate members, is going to be raising questions about what Rep. Nonini's goals are in the Legislature," Eskridge said.

Nonini didn't return a phone call.

Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill, R-Rexburg, said one Republican senator has called for Nonini to be sanctioned for trying to unseat incumbents.

Hill didn't outline his plans, but conceded fence-mending is in order.

"Part of leadership's responsibility is to have a cohesive caucus, so we can get the work done we're trying to do

Cleanup Money Flowing into Silver Valley

KELLOGG (AP) • Money from a $460 million trust fund intended to clean up mining pollution is starting to flow into Idaho's Silver Valley.

About $8.5 million will be spent this year from the Asarco trust, which was created as part of the company's 2009 bankruptcy settlement to pay for heavy metals pollution in the valley.

Meanwhile, efforts to clean up a century of mining pollution may not take as long or be as expensive as initially proposed, officials for the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday during a quarterly update at the agency's Coeur d'Alene office.

The EPA made an effort to "scale this back and focus on the things that people care most about," said Bill Adams, Coeur d'Alene team leader with the EPA.

This year's Superfund cleanup work targets historic mine operations that leach heavy metals into the Coeur d'Alene River system, said Dan Meyer, the Asarco trust's senior project manager.

Beginning in the late 1800s, Burke and Nine Mile canyons were home to dozens of silver and lead mines and ore processing operations. Leftover waste rock was pumped directly into creeks that flow into the Coeur d'Alene River.

Now the creeks and flood plains are choked with mine tailings. As water filters through those rocks, it picks up lead, zinc, cadmium, arsenic and other metals.

Water flowing out of Nine Mile Canyon has about 20 times as much lead and zinc as the state's water quality standard, Adams said. Stretches of the creek are sterile because the high minerals content is toxic to fish and other aquatic creatures, he said.

The year's work will focus on defining the extent of the pollution and designing cleanup plans, Meyer said. The actual cleanup work will come later.

Asarco was a longtime mining operator in Idaho's Silver Valley. Trust managers anticipate funding $8 million to $10 million worth of cleanup work annually during the Asarco trust's early years, to allow the principal to continue to grow.

In other Superfund news, Silver Valley communities will receive an estimated $100 million over the next six to eight years to fix deteriorating roads and culverts that contribute to the spread of heavy metals.

The money will bring an influx of construction work to the small towns while reducing the risk of exposure to metals, said Terry Harwood, executive director of the Basin Environmental Improvement.

Many of the valley's roads were built on mine tailings, so potholes can become pollution sources. Officials have documented rust-colored liquid from oxidized metals oozing out of cracked asphalt, Harwood said. In addition, the gravel used for some unpaved roads was crushed mine tailings.

Adams said an amendment to the Record of Decision that reduced the cost and length of the cleanup could be signed by July.

Commission Eyes Nuclear Fuel Agreement

IDAHO FALLS • Members of a commission created by Idaho Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter are considering taking up the state's 1995 agreement on how to handle spent nuclear fuel.

The Leadership in Nuclear Energy Commission met in April in Idaho Falls. Commission member John Kotek told the Post Register that some on the 13-member commission want to take a serious look at possible ways to modify the agreement that allowed increased spent fuel imports to Idaho.

The United States doesn't recycle commercial spent nuclear fuel, instead storing it at sites around the nation. The Idaho National Laboratory near Idaho Falls is host to hundreds of metric tons of imported spent fuel. The 1995 agreement calls for moving it all out of state by the end of 2035.

New Veterans Court Begins in Eastern Idaho

POCATELLO • A new court program designed to help some struggling veterans who are charged with crimes is up and running in eastern Idaho's Bingham County.

Like Idaho's first Veterans Court, established last summer in Ada County, the program aims to address criminal behavior along with issues like post-traumatic stress disorder.

Sixth District Magistrate Judge Rick Carnaroli told the Idaho State Journal that the program began accepting its first defendants two weeks ago. Still, he says it didn't open quickly enough to help two veterans who had applied, including one veteran who died in December of an accidental overdose and another who was shot during a standoff with police and later died.

IDAHO BRIEFS

Officials Advise Whooping Cough Vaccinations

NAMPA • Health officials in Idaho are encouraging residents to get vaccinated against pertussis – also called whooping cough – as neighboring Washington state struggles with its worst outbreak of the disease in decades.

Southwest District Health spokeswoman Laurie Boston told the Idaho Press-Tribune that the disease doesn't know state boundary lines, and it's extremely important for people to be vaccinated and get booster shots against the disease.

Idaho has had 31 cases of whooping cough between January and April of this year, including one infant in eastern Idaho who died of the disease.

Man Killed in Standoff Was Shot by Police

BOISE • Officials in southwestern Idaho say a Nampa man who died after a confrontation with police was shot once in the upper torso by a bullet consistent with ammunition carried by Nampa police.

Canyon County Sheriff's Lt. Marv Dashiell issued a statement saying 61-year-old Robert R. Luccari died early Wednesday.

Police were called at 3:40 a.m. Wednesday for a noise complaint. Responding officers found Luccari, who was brandishing a handgun.

Officers commanded him several times to drop the weapon. When he did not comply, one of the officers fired multiple shots. Luccari went back into his apartment and closed the door.

Man Gets 10 Years to Life in I.F. Shooting

IDAHO FALLS • A 23-year-old southeastern Idaho man who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in a March 2011 shooting has been sentenced to 10 years to life in prison.

KIFI-TV reports Geoffrey Elawadly was sentenced Thursday for the death of 24-year-old Anthony Camp in Idaho Falls.

Elawadly was charged after Camp was shot in the back while he was driving away from an argument at a motel parking lot.

“This is an important landmark. This generation is growing up much more accustomed to diversity than its elders.”

OUR VIEW

Republicans Should Reconsider Closed Primaries

There was a time when Idaho was a place that respected independence. It was a time when people made decisions as individuals, not as a group. It was a time when people felt they should vote for the best person for the job — whether that person was a Republican, a Democrat or an independent.

That era ended when the Republican Party closed its primary.

These days, being an independent voter is the worst sin you can commit.

The goal of closing the primary was purification — making sure that the only people allowed to vote for Republicans were Republicans. The move alienated independent voters and, we believe, the democratic process in this state suffered for it.

Closing its primary is a strange move from the party that claims to value independence as one of its core values.

In the Magic Valley — and we know Democrats will argue otherwise — most races are decided in the Republican primary. That means if you can't vote in the Republican primary, you are effectively shut out of the electoral process. Depriving people of the privilege of voting for those people who will lead us because they are not registered Republicans is short-sighted and cynical. And it ignores the realities of the Idaho electorate.

According to the Idaho Secretary of State's website, there are approximately 742,000 registered voters who are not affiliated with any political party in Idaho. Prior to July 1, 2011, Idaho never required party registration in order to vote in either party primary.

“As a result of a federal court decision in Idaho Republican Party v. Yursa, the 2011 Idaho Legislature passed House Bill 351 implementing a closed primary system. Persons who are not members of a party may not participate in the selection of that party's nominees,” according to the Secretary of State's website. “... Persons who are registered as ‘unaffiliated’ (meaning not affiliated with any political party) may not vote for partisan candidates in primary elections unless the party decides to allow them.”

After seeing the voter turnout numbers, Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter told the Associated Press he expects Republican leaders to debate the merits of the party's new closed primary at next month's GOP convention. The Republicans will need to decide whether forcing voters to choose an affiliation, then disclosing it as a public record discouraged some from showing up at the polls.

Record-low turnout would seem to answer that question.

This week was Idaho's first closed primary. And it showed.

Across the state, polls saw record-low voter turnout.

The anomaly was and has always been Cassia County, which saw nearly 50 percent voter turnout.

Tim Hurst, chief deputy secretary of state, estimated a statewide turnout of about 24 percent.

Despite a contested sheriff's race, Blaine County had a turnout of about 13 percent, with some precincts reporting in the single digits. Ada County, which had multiple contested legislative, county commission and sheriff's races, had 16.7 percent turnout. Nez Perce County, which includes Lewiston, posted 13.5 percent turnout.

On June 21, when GOP delegates gather in Twin Falls at their Idaho convention to discuss their past decisions and future direction, the party must reconsider the push to close its primary and also seriously examine its motivation to do so.

ONLINE COMMENTS

In response the article “Idaho Judge Sets Leavitt Execution” on Magicvalley.com, readers wrote:

DesertDoc: “Better late than never, but why did we feed and house this monster for 28 years????”

Moe: “It's cheaper to keep someone imprisoned for life, than it is to execute them. Up to ten times cheaper. And never would be preferable in some cases. This past week it was found out that Texas executed an innocent man.”

Magicevalley.com readers responded to the story, “Voter Turnout Varied Wildly Tuesday”:

Andre Leonard: “The overall results are terrible. To think that so many people have just given up and will not participate. Voter apathy is not a good thing. People need to pull themselves away from the television. Duck Dynasty, Dancing With The Stars, Sighting Of Bigfoot, all seem to be more important than performing our civic duty.

“More than half of the eligible voters just do not seem to care. Sad commentary on the Voting Rights Act which many people fought so hard for.”

In response to the Times-News editorial “Who Will Be the Winner This Election Season?” readers wrote:

elcty: “One thing people should do is get behind the candidate of their choice before the primaries. One thing they should not do though is run on a third party platform or run as a write in with a democrat in the race. That would assuredly or at least make it easier for a democrat to win. Primaries are a good time to get a candidate of your choice in the party of your choice to run.”

Jim Bob: “OMG the democrats are coming! When will you republicans realize your party doesn't care about anything but money? (Not like the dems are any different honestly) They hate women, children and the poor. They hate minorities, the gay community and science. They are selfish and egotistical yet the majority in Idaho vote republican as if its your duty or something. I'll never understand why anyone would vote down party lines. Look at the people, look at their past. Have they been in office before, did they do anything good? ... Don't sit on your laurels and wait for the outcome this election year. DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT. ... These people DO NOT have our best interests in sight.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Times-News Should Offer Readers Some Laughter

I enjoy the Times-News.

My concern is our wonderful state of Idaho has one of the highest rates of suicide in our nation.

Many local people are in despair, life is not turning out as they had planned or dreamed and that is at any age. They are up against a wall, have lost their job, or a partner or child has passed away and their world seems dark and cold.

Apparently quotes, lectures of leaders, computers have not helped. Why can't the Times-News try something different by putting in a story of encouragement? Years ago, your paper had some short stories of laughter by Erma Bombeck which helped me while raising my young children.

If Idaho is near the top, then why are we putting our heads in the sand? Why can't we try something so simple, just put it in the used car ads? I am sure our public would love to volunteer a story to bring a smile, a laugh to help someone.

I had a friend traveling in a foreign country. Roads were bad but the sign by the road read: “Be careful which rut you choose; you will be there for the next 25 miles.”

We can only live one day at a time. Don't be discouraged on your new path you are on or forced to take.

How about a certain date palm tree that matures at 80 years of age and makes the best fruit then and later. Better in old age. Be a date palm tree.

Endorsing Homosexual Lifestyles Rubs against God's Nature

Well, with the latest announcements from the current executive administration, to me it is clearer than ever to let this bunch of amorlists move along in their “forward” campaign without the support or assent of any who truly desire to adhere to God's Word despite man's opinions. Agree or not, feel as if unfair treatment is in his will or not, feel disenfranchised or not, God's love is so complete and perfect in every way that it cannot endorse what he has already said multiple times is evil by its own nature.

Man indeed does change; God does not change. To endorse homosexual lifestyles in any form rubs against God's nature just as much as would murder and stealing or “any” other sin. The Obama endorsement of same sex “marriage” and that of his lieutenants shows again how much his thought train is running “backward” and counter to decent behavior we should expect from our highest leadership.

God certainly does not hate these or any other people. It is not any man's place to hate them either. It is, however, most certainly man's place to defend godly principles even though each of us fail in our own ways to live up to holy living much of the time. My failure or yours, though, is not an excuse to disregard the “devolving” of our societies and take the stance that it is becoming the norm so let it be. You can prove what you are made of by how you express your belief and vote accordingly.

Please Examine Geology before Building Shopping Center

Open letter to the Twin Falls City Council and all concerned:

I understand the development of the new Canyon Park development only affects those dwelling in adjacent or real properties within certain distances (in legal jargon). In my opinion, anything which affects the beauty and uniqueness of the Snake River Canyon concerns all of us who have enjoyed the beauty and uniqueness.

As a fine arts painter, I have traversed this landscape several times for more than 50 years, both the south and north rims and inside the canyon. Sometimes I take photographs of a planned painting, but for the past few years I've needed a “building filter” on the camera in order to depict a true painting of a scene in this area. It is so sad that a few people with a pocketful of dollars can destroy, with the stroke of a pen, what took Mother Nature eons to sculpt into what it is today.

I encourage each of you to watch the movie, “The Bonneville Flood,” if you have not already seen it; perhaps if you have, you should view it once more. Further, I am no geologist but I note the water that seeps through the canyon rock layers when driving into the canyon toward Centennial Park. Surely some of this water seeks its own level, flowing underneath the basalt layers in the area of the current plan.

While I may not live to see this part of the canyon collapse, I feel those making these important decisions should look to the expertise of those with some geological knowledge before approving the original plan; not to mention the planned walls, which I believe are ugly. If you find you must commercialize this last remaining area that is adjacent to the city of Twin Falls, I believe you should adopt the alternate layout, which I understand has been submitted to you by others who are working to protect the south rim of the canyon near the Visitor's Center.

House OKs Continued War in Afghanistan

BY DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The House endorsed the continued war in Afghanistan on Thursday despite acknowledgment from Republicans and Democrats that the American people are war-weary after more than a decade of conflict.

By a vote of 303-113, lawmakers rejected an amendment that would have swiftly ended combat operations in Afghanistan by limiting funds only to the “safe and orderly withdrawal of U.S. troops and military contractors from Afghanistan.”

More than 10 years after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, American public support for the overseas conflict has deteriorated. An Associated Press-GfK poll released last week showed that backing for the war has hit a new low and is on par with support for the Vietnam War in the early 1970s. Only 27 percent of Americans say they support the war effort, and 66 percent oppose it, according to the survey.

“The American people are far ahead of Congress,” said Rep. Barbara Lee, D-Calif., sponsor of the amendment, who called on Congress to stand squarely with the American people. “It’s past time to end the war and bring the troops home.”

Opponents of the amendment conceded that the public has grown tired of war, but they argued against a precipitous withdrawal.

“If we leave too early and the Taliban and al-Qaida return, more Americans will suffer,” Rep. Mac Thornberry, R-Texas, said.

The vote came as the House considered a $642 billion defense budget for next year, debating more than 140 amendments to the far-reaching legislation. Final passage of the measure is expected today.

Rather than a speedy withdrawal from Afghanistan, the spending blueprint calls for keeping a sizable number of U.S. combat troops in the country. The bill cites significant uncertainty in Afghanistan about U.S. military support and says that to reduce the uncertainty and promote stability the president should “maintain a force of at least 68,000 troops through Dec. 31, 2014, unless fewer forces can achieve United States objectives.”

The United States currently has 88,000 troops there. President Barack Obama envisions a final withdrawal of U.S. combat troops in 2014. Earlier this month, he signed an agreement with Afghan President Hamid Karzai on the role of America forces in counterterrorism and training of the Afghan military. The president insisted that the U.S. combat role was winding down.

Fate of ‘Uninsurables’ Hinges on Supreme Court

BY RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVAR
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Cancer patient Kathy Watson voted Republican in 2008 and believes the government has no right telling Americans to get health insurance. Nonetheless, she says she’d be dead if it weren’t for President Barack Obama’s health care law.

Now the Florida small businesswoman is worried the Supreme Court will strike down her lifeline. Under the law, Watson and nearly 62,000 other “uninsurable” patients are getting coverage through a little-known program for people who have been turned away by insurance companies because of pre-existing medical conditions.

“Without it, I would have been dead on March 2,” Watson said of the Pre-Existing Condition Insurance Plan, known as PCIP. That’s when she was hospitalized for a life-threatening respiratory infection.

It’s not clear how the Supreme Court will rule on Obama’s law, but Watson’s case illustrates the potential impact of tying everything in the far-reaching legislation to the fate of one provision, the unprecedented requirement that most Americans carry health insurance.

The law’s opponents say if that insurance mandate is found to be unconstitutional, the rest of the law should also go, since courts should not be picking and choosing policy. The administration defends the insurance requirement but says if the court decides to overturn it, most of the rest of the law should stay.

State officials who administer the federal pre-existing condition plan in 27 states are trying to make fallback arrangements in case the law is invalidated and coverage suddenly terminates.

“Some of these individuals are critically ill and are being treated for very serious illnesses, whether it be cancer or HIV-AIDS, and we feel a responsibility to them to do what we can to see they don’t lose access,” said Amie Goldman, who oversees PCIP in Wisconsin.

Federal officials who administer the plan in the remaining 23 states and Washington, D.C., remain mum on what might happen there if the law is overturned.

The White House line is that Obama is confident the Supreme Court will uphold the Affordable Care Act, and his administration therefore is making no contingency plans for a reversal. None of that sounds reassuring to Watson, who owns a medical transport service in rural north-central Florida.

Officials Weighed Politics, Medicine in Inmate’s Surgery

BY BRETT BARROUQUERE
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. • A condemned killer’s fight to receive surgery for agonizing hip pain pushed Kentucky officials into an uncomfortable debate over security, politics and even the possibility of inviting scorn from Fox News pundits.

Emails and memos obtained by The Associated Press show corrections officials struggling for a year to reconcile their duty to provide medical care with the political ramifications of spending tens of thousands of dollars for surgery on a man they plan to execute. A key problem would turn out to be security issues that led several hospitals to balk at treating inmate Robert Foley, who still hasn’t had the surgery.

“Hip replacement for an inmate who has exhausted all appeals and will soon be executed?” Kentucky State Penitentiary warden Phil Parker wrote in an email on Nov. 22, 2010. “I can see this making Fox News on a slow news day, maybe even on a busy news day. In fact, I bet (Fox News host Bill O’Reilly) would love to put this in his ‘Pinheads’ commentary. Just a thought to consider before it goes too much further.”

Prison officials also made contingency plans to call off the surgery if Gov. Steve Beshear set an execution date, and they considered whether to consult with him about the procedure.

“I think it is that important and all this may have political consequences,” Parker wrote a year before Beshear’s re-election. Ultimately, Beshear’s spokeswoman said he wasn’t contacted about it.

Foley, 55, was convicted of killing six people in eastern Kentucky in 1989 and 1991, making him the most prolific killer on the state’s death row. His status as an extremely dangerous prisoner was a key factor in the state’s difficulty finding a surgeon and hospital, according to the documents obtained through a public records request and a lawsuit filed by Foley.

Foley still hasn’t had the surgery, with Parker lamenting in an email they had no options after an exhaustive search.

State officials deny that politics played a role, and there’s no evidence in the documents that political considerations prevented the surgery.

A spokeswoman for the Kentucky Justice Cabinet — which oversees corrections and law enforcement — declined to comment because of the pending lawsuit.

Foley’s attorney, James Drake, said the state needs a way to care for condemned inmates, even those with complex needs. Foley, who has been on death row since 1993, is unable to get around without help because he’s at risk of a dangerous fall, Drake said.

“If you’re on death row, it’s just like anybody else,” Drake said. “If you need a new hip, you need a new hip. It hurts.”

Judge Delays Mladic Trial Due to Evidence Errors

BY MIKE CORDER
Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands • An apparent clerical error prompted judges to postpone the long-awaited

Mladic

Dicker, the director of Human Rights Watch’s international justice program, said in a telephone interview Thursday. “Add to that the need to translate and it really takes it to a whole new level of complexity that you don’t see in domestic trials.”

Presiding judge Alphons Orié said he was delaying the Yugoslav war crimes tribunal case due to “significant disclosure errors” by prosecutors, who are obliged to share all evidence with Mladic’s lawyers.

Orié said judges will analyze the “scope and full impact” of the problem and aim to set a new starting date as soon as possible. The presentation of evidence was supposed to begin later this month.

Prosecutors had already acknowledged the errors and did not object to the delay. Mladic’s attorney has asked for six months to study the materials.

CARETAKER GREEK CABINET, LEGISLATORS SWORN IN

BY ELENA BECATOROS
Associated Press

ATHENS • Greece on Thursday swore in 300 legislators for just one day before it dissolves Parliament and calls new elections, among them 21 lawmakers from Golden Dawn — arguably the most far-right party to be involved in a European national legislature since Nazi-era Germany.

Formerly a shadowy fringe group, Golden Dawn vehemently rejects the neo-Nazi label, insisting it is a nationalist patriotic party, but its meteoric rise from a largely marginalized outfit a few years ago to one that won nearly 7 percent in recent elections has alarmed many in Greece and in Europe.

In the traditional Parliamentary swearing-in ceremony, Golden Dawn legislators refused to stand as two Muslim deputies took their oaths on the Quran instead of the Bible.

“Beginning today Golden Dawn is officially in Parliament to speak the language of truth and to express all Greeks,” said Ilias Kassidiaris, who was elected into Parliament and is also the party spokesman.

But the party, like all others, will be tested once more at the ballot box next month. The May 6 election left no party with enough votes to form a government after Greeks furious over the handling of the country’s financial crisis deserted the two formerly dominant parties, the socialists and conservatives. They turned instead to smaller groups to the right and left of the political spectrum, including those on the extremes.

Coalition talks collapsed after nine days, leaving no other option but a repeat election. A caretaker government has been appointed, to be led by a senior judge, and the newly sworn-in Parliament is to be dissolved Friday so an election can officially be called, expected for June 17.

Golden Dawn gained from both a protest vote from people angered by increasing hardship ensuing from austerity measures imposed in return for billions of euros in international rescue loans, and from a backlash against an illegal immigration problem that has spiraled out of control.

“People say they are trouble, they might hit people and do other things, but there are some people that were helped by Golden Dawn,” said Athens resident Mattheos, who would not give his surname. “They are not right about everything, about land mines on the border, but they are right about one thing — immigration.”

Golden Dawn campaigned on an anti-immigration platform, promising to expel all illegal immigrants and clean up crime-ridden neighborhoods, while also delivering care packages of food and clothing to needy Greeks. It also advocated planting land mines along Greece’s border with Turkey to stop any more illegal immigrants entering the country.

Army Reviews Whether Women Can Go to Ranger School

BY LOLITA C. BALDOR
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Army leaders have begun to study the prospect of sending female soldiers to the service's prestigious Ranger school — another step in the effort to broaden opportunities for women in the military.

Gen. Raymond Odierno, Army chief of staff, said Wednesday that he's asked senior commanders to provide him with recommendations and a plan this summer. And while he stressed that no decisions have been made, he suggested that Ranger school may be a logical next step for women as they move in to more jobs closer to the combat lines.

"If we determine that we're going to allow women to go in the infantry and be successful, they are probably at some time going to have to go through Ranger school," Odierno told reporters. "If we decide to do this, we want the women to be successful."

According to Odierno, about 90 percent of senior

Army infantry officers have gone to the school and are qualified as Rangers. Allowing women to go to Ranger school, he said, would allow them to be competitive with their male counterparts as they move through the ranks.

Going to Ranger school, however, does not automatically mean women would be allowed to serve in one of the Army's three elite Ranger battalions, which are Army special operations forces. In fact, many male soldiers who wear the coveted Ranger tab on their uniforms never actually serve in one of the three battalions.

Currently, women are not allowed to serve as special operations, infantry or armor forces, which are considered the most dangerous combat jobs. They are, however, allowed to serve in a number of support jobs such as medics, military police and intelligence officers that are sometimes attached to combat brigade units.

Odierno said his commanders are looking at whether the Army should open up infantry and armor jobs to women, and how that should be done.

As of this week, 200 women reported to nine different battalions around the country, as the Army implements plans to formally allow women to serve in smaller units that are closer to the front lines. New Pentagon rules allowing women to serve at the battalion level — rather than just the larger brigade — were unveiled earlier this year, opening up about 14,000 more jobs for women across all the military services. There are currently more than 250,000 positions that are closed to women.

A brigade is roughly 3,500 troops split into several battalions of about 800 soldiers each. Historically, brigades were based farther from the front lines and they often include top command and support staff, while battalions are usually in closer contact with the enemy.

Women make up about 16 percent of the Army.

Edwards Trial Sees Closing Arguments

GREENSBORO, N.C. • A prosecutor used John Edwards' own stump speech against him in closing arguments at his corruption trial Thursday, saying the presidential candidate violated campaign finance laws meant to protect "the two Americas" in order to cover up a lurid sex scandal.

Edwards is accused of orchestrating a scheme to take about $1 million from two wealthy campaign donors to hide his pregnant mistress Rielle Hunter while he ran for the White House in 2008. In the 2004 campaign, when he ran for vice president with Sen. John Kerry, Edwards spoke often of the two Americas, saying the rich and poor needed an equal say.

"Campaign finance laws are designed to bring the two Americas together at election time," prosecutor Bobby Higdson said. "John Edwards forgot his own rhetoric."

But Edwards attorney Abbe Lowell accused prosecutors of trying to use sordid details of the cover-up of an affair to send a famous politician to prison, and said prosecutors presented no evidence in more than two weeks of testimony that Edwards knowingly violated the law.

Each side was given two hours Thursday to make their case to jurors, who will begin deliberating the case today.

N. Koreans Reportedly Seize Fishermen

TOKYO • Unidentified North Koreans are demanding a payment to release 29 Chinese fishermen whose boats were seized last week, Chinese media outlets reported Thursday, in a rare public dispute between the neighbors and allies.

According to the Beijing News, armed North Koreans hijacked three Chinese vessels sailing in the Yellow Sea, between North Korea and China, on May 8. They initially asked for a ransom of $190,000 but later reduced the amount to $142,000, the newspaper reported.

The fishing boats were seized in Chinese waters, China Central Television said.

North Korea made no official comment on the incident, and there was no immediate indication that the alleged gunmen were operating on orders from the Pyongyang government.

Prisons to Step up Anti-rape Efforts

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration ordered federal, state and local officials Thursday to adopt zero tolerance for prison rape as it issued mandatory screening, enforcement and prevention regulations designed to reduce the number of inmates who suffer sexual victimization at the hands of other prisoners and prison staff.

Anti-rape advocates and victims of prison rape, while saying the standards are not perfect, cheered the new regulations. The rules have been under development since Congress passed the Prison Rape Elimination Act in 2003 to fight rape and sexual victimization in the nation's prisons, jails and halfway houses.

The regulations are immediately binding on federal prisons. States that don't fall in line face a loss of 5 percent of their Justice Department prison money unless their governor certifies that the same amount of money is being used to bring the state into compliance.

Funds Suggest GOP Rallying behind Romney

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney and his Republican Party raised $40 million in April, an unexpectedly strong haul in the first month of the general campaign that illustrates enthusiasm within the GOP and threatens President Barack Obama's overwhelming cash advantage.

Since becoming the presumptive Republican presidential nominee, Romney has devoted most of his time to privately courting donors so he can prepare for what may be the most expensive campaign in history. His focus appears to be paying off. In just one month, Obama's 10-to-1 cash advantage has shrunk to 2-to-1, partly because the Republican National Committee now is helping Romney. His fundraising numbers may offer the best evidence to date that weary Republican donors who spent months on the sidelines are finally opening their wallets for Romney after a long and bitter primary.

Syrian Rebel Council Slowly Crumbling

BEIRUT • Syria's main opposition council is crumbling under the weight of infighting and divisions over issues that cut to the heart of the revolution, including accusations that the movement is becoming as autocratic as the regime it wants to drive out.

The slow disintegration of the Syrian National Council, which has become the international face of the uprising, could complicate Western efforts to bolster the opposition, just as President Bashar Assad's regime gathers momentum in its crackdown on dissent.

On Thursday, SNC leader Burhan Ghalioun said he was ready to step down once a replacement is found, amid mounting criticism of his leadership.

HP Said to Consider Cutting Up to 25,000 Jobs

BY AARON RICADELA

Bloomberg News

Hewlett-Packard is considering cutting as many as 25,000 jobs, or 8 percent of its workforce, to reduce costs and help the company contend with ebbing demand for computers and services, people briefed on the plans said Thursday.

The number to be cut includes 10,000 to 15,000 from Hewlett-Packard's enterprise services group, which sells a range of information-technology services and has been beset by declining profitability, said these people, who asked not to be identified because the plans aren't final and may change.

Wal-Mart's 1Q Earnings Rise • Wal-Mart may have gotten its groove back, but an alleged bribery scheme threatens to curtail its progress. As Wal-Mart reported first-quarter profit on Thursday that beat Wall Street estimates, the world's largest retailer also disclosed that it is expanding an internal probe into alleged bribes at its Mexico unit to include other countries. Wal-Mart's disclosures come as Wal-Mart posted better-than-expected first-quarter results. Wal-Mart, based in Bentonville, Ark., earned $3.74 billion, or $1.09 per share, in the quarter ended April 30.

Saturday's launch will mark for the first time, a private company will send its own rocket to the orbiting International Space Station, delivering food and ushering in a new era in America's space program.

BY MARCIA DUNN

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. • For the first time, a private company will launch a rocket to the International Space Station, sending it on a grocery run this weekend that could be the shape of things to come for America's space program.

If this unmanned flight and others like it succeed, commercial spacecraft could be ferrying astronauts to the orbiting outpost within five years.

It's a transition that has been in the works since the middle of the last decade, when President George W. Bush decided to retire the space shuttle and devote more of NASA's energies to venturing deeper into space.

Saturday's flight by Space Exploration Technologies Corp. is "a thoroughly exciting moment in the history of spaceflight, but is just the beginning of a new way of doing business for NASA," said President Barack Obama's chief science adviser, John Holdren.

By handing off space station launches to private business, "NASA is freeing itself up to focus on exploring beyond low Earth orbit for the first time in 40 years."

many of the astronauts to the orbiting outpost. Since then, American astronauts have had to rely on Russian capsules for rides. European, Japanese and Russian supply ships have been delivering cargo.

It will be at least four to five years before SpaceX or any other private operator is capable of flying astronauts. That gap infuriates many. Some members of Congress want to cut government funding to the private space venture and reduce the number of rival companies to save money and speed things up.

The shift to private enterprise, while revolutionary in space, has a long history in the U.S. The Internet, for example, evolved from government work. Space station astronaut Donald Pettit points to the settling of the American West: The government ran the forts, and private enterprise built the railroads.

In this instance, NASA employees are still working closely with the commercial contenders, giving advice and attending company meetings.

"I see this whole story repeating itself again and again as we move from low-Earth orbit," Pettit said. "And it will probably repeat itself when we go to the moon and elsewhere."

"I hope this becomes so routine that people won't even pay attention to it anymore."

California-based SPER Exploration, or SpaceX, is the first of several companies hoping to take over the space station delivery business for the U.S. The company's billionaire mastermind, Elon Musk, puts the odds of success in his favor while acknowledging the chance for mishaps.

NASA likewise cautions: This is only a test.

"We need to be careful not to assume that the success or failure of commercial spaceflight is going to hang in the balance of this single flight," said Mike Suffredini, NASA's space station program manager. "Demo flights don't always go as planned."

Once it nears the space station after a two-day flight, the SpaceX capsule, called Dragon, will spend a day of practice maneuvers before NASA signals it to move in for a linkup. Then its cargo — a half-ton of food and other pantry items, all nonessential, in case the flight goes awry — will be unloaded.

Up to now, flights to the space station have always been a government-only affair.

Until their retirement last summer, shuttles carried most of the gear and

No one is rooting more for SpaceX than NASA. The space agency has poured $381 million into the SpaceX effort, while the company has spent $1 billion over its 10-year lifetime, said Musk, the high-tech pioneer who co-founded PayPal and Tesla Motors, the electric car company.

NASA also gave $266 million to a second company it hired to make supply runs. Virginia-based Orbital Sciences Corp. hopes to launch its Antares rocket and Cygnus capsule from Wallops Island, Va., by year's end.

"This is the start of a real new era," said Dutch spaceman Andre Kuipers, who will help Pettit snare the Dragon and pull it to the space station with a robotic arm.

Pettit urged the upcoming Dragon flight is a "big deal," but added: "I hope this becomes so routine that people won't even pay attention to it anymore."

SpaceX will have only a split second, at 4:55 a.m. Saturday, to shoot its Falcon rocket and Dragon capsule skyward. (All spacecraft bound for the space station these days have instantaneous launch windows in order to sync up efficiently with the orbiting outpost.)

KXTF to Drop FOX Programming

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls television station KXTF plans to drop its FOX network programming on July 1 due to a contract dispute between the station and network.

KXTF currently offers FOX programming as FOX 35.

KXTF General Manager Shelley Goings said in a Thursday release that the network is demanding compensation that exceeds the station's current revenue. Months of negotiation have failed to bring the parties to consensus.

"The rates being demanded by FOX in small markets are not seen anywhere else within the industry, including major broadcast networks," Goings said in a written release.

Goings said she's disappointed to see her station lose FOX programming, which includes popular shows such as "American Idol" and sports coverage of the NFL and Major League Baseball, including the world series.

According to the release, KXTF will continue to operate, and contract negotiations are underway bring THIS TV programming to the station. THIS TV offers films and TV programming owned by MGM and subsidiary United Artists.

The KXTF release directs those with concerns about the programming change to call FOX at 310-369-1000. KXTF may be reached at www.kxtf.com or 733-0035.

Geithner Says U.S. Economy Faces Challenges from Europe

CHEYENNE HOPKINS

Bloomberg News.

BALTIMORE • Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner said the U.S. economy still faces challenges from the aftermath of the financial crisis and the "damaging" situation in Europe.

"We still have a lot of work to do to repair the damage from the crisis and get more Americans back to work. And we still face some risks ahead," Geithner said in a Thursday speech here. "We still live in a dangerous and uncertain world, with Europe confronting a severe and protracted crisis."

Geithner's comments came as the European debt crisis mounted on concerns that Greece may leave the euro area. Greece's impasse over forming a government led to the scheduling of another election next month, threatening the implementation of austerity pledges under the international financial rescue plan.

Geithner also warned that the U.S. economy continues to face the threat of higher oil prices.

"The world is engaged in a critical struggle with Iran, which has added to upward pressure on oil prices," Geithner said.

In response to a question after his speech, Geithner said JPMorgan Chase & Co.'s $2 billion trading loss makes the case for financial reform rules to be tough and effective.

"This is obviously a material, significant failure of risk management," Geithner said. "It makes a very powerful case for financial reform."

Foreclosures Plunge to 5-year Low in U.S. Recovery

BY DAN LEVY
Bloomberg News

The nation's foreclosure filings fell to a five-year low last month as lenders sought to avoid seizing property and a housing recovery showed signs of taking hold.

The number of default, auction and seizure notices sent to homeowners in April totaled 188,780, down 14 percent from a year earlier and 5 percent from the previous month, according to RealtyTrac Inc. It was the lowest tally since July 2007, before the onset of the biggest housing crash in seven decades, the Irvine, Calif.-based data seller reported Thursday.

The "gradually rising foreclosure tide" forecast by RealtyTrac after a February settlement by the nation's biggest mortgage servicers over faulty practices has yet to materialize, limiting the number of properties on the market and propping up prices. Banks are finding alternatives to home seizures, selling distressed property for less than the amount owed on the mortgage, known as a short sale, or modifying loans for borrowers struggling to keep up payments while an improving economy is helping to ease defaults.

"Things are getting better and the number of vulnerable households is going down," Paul Willen, senior economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, said in a telephone interview. "The pool of borrowers is much more stable than it was two or three years ago."

The U.S. mortgage delinquency rate fell in the first quarter to 7.4 percent, the lowest level in more than three years, the Mortgage Bankers Association said Wednesday. The rate peaked at 10.1 percent in the first quarter of 2010 and was last lower in the third quarter of 2008, when it was 6.99 percent.

Home prices in the U.S. rose 0.6 percent in March from the previous month, the first sequential advance since July and the third straight month-over-month gain excluding short sales and foreclosure sales, said mortgage data company CoreLogic Inc. Prices fell 0.6 percent from a year earlier, according to the Santa Ana, Calif.-based firm's index of home values.

Short sales have been the preferred means for lenders to dispose of distressed real estate in California, where they totaled 11,397 in January, compared with 8,821 foreclosure deals in that state, according to RealtyTrac. The tally in Arizona was 3,217 short sales to 2,776 foreclosures, while in Florida it was 5,014 to 3,959.

Facebook's $16B IPO One of World's Largest

Facebook priced its IPO at $38 per share on Thursday, at the high end of its expected range.

BY BARBARA ORTUTAY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Facebook's initial public offering of stock is shaping up to be one of the largest ever. The world's definitive online social network is raising at least $16 billion, a big windfall for a company that began eight years ago with no way to make money. Facebook priced its IPO at $38 per share on Thursday, at the high end of its expected range. If extra shares reserved to cover additional demand are sold as part of the transaction, Facebook Inc. and its early investors stand to reap as much as $18.4 billion from the IPO.

The IPO values the company at around $104 billion, slightly more than Amazon.com, and well above well-known corporations such as Disney and Kraft.

The $38 is the price at which the investment banks orchestrating the offering will sell the stock to their clients. Facebook's stock is expected to begin trading on the Nasdaq Stock Market sometime Friday morning under the ticker symbol "FB." That's when so-called retail investors can try to buy the stock.

Facebook is the third-highest valued company to ever go public, according to data from Dealogic, a financial data provider. Only the two Chinese banks have been worth more. At $16 billion, the size of the IPO is the third-largest for a U.S. company, squeezed between No. 2 power company Enel and No. 4 General Motors, according to Renaissance Capital. The largest U.S. IPO was Visa, which raised $17.86 billion in 2008.

For the Harvard dorm-born social network that reimagined how people communicate online, the stock sale means more money to operate the data centers that hold the trove of status updates, photos and videos shared by Facebook's 900 million users. It means more money to hire the best engineers to work at its sprawling Menlo Park, Calif., headquarters, or in New York City, where it opened an engineering office last year.

And it means early investors, who took a chance seeding the young social network with start-up funds six, seven and eight years ago, can reap big rewards. Peter Thiel, the venture capitalist who sits on Facebook's board of directors, invested $500,000 in the company back in 2004. He's selling nearly 17 million of his shares in the IPO, which means he'll get some $640 million.

The offering values Facebook, whose 2011 revenue was $3.7 billion, at as much as $104 billion. The sky-high valuation has its skeptics. Google Inc., whose revenue stood at $38 billion last year, has a market capitalization of $207 billion.

"There seems to be somewhat of a hype around the stock offering," says Gartner analyst Brian Blau in somewhat of an understatement.

There are a few reasons for the exuberance. One is the IPO's sheer size. Investor appetite for the stock will likely propel Facebook's valuation above other well-known companies such as Kraft, Disney and even Amazon.com.

Secondly, it's personal. "It's probably one of the first times there has been an IPO where everyone sort of has a stake in the outcome," Blau says. While most Facebook users won't see a penny from the offering, they are all intimately familiar with the company, so it resonates as something they understand.

And then there's CEO Mark Zuckerberg, who just turned 28 on Monday. He has emerged as the latest in a lineage of Silicon Valley prodigies who are alternately hailed for pushing the world in new directions and reviled for overstepping their bounds. He's counted the late Apple CEO Steve Jobs among his mentors and he became one of the world's youngest billionaires — at least on paper — well before Facebook went public. A dramatized version of Facebook's founding was the subject of a Hollywood movie that won three Academy Awards last year, propelling Zuckerberg even further into the public spotlight.

Developer: Politicians Can't Keep Approving New Casinos

BY WAYNE PARRY
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. • Casinos are not like Starbucks stores: You really can't have one on every corner.

That's the word from David Cordish, whose company is opening a huge new casino next month in Maryland.

Yet Cordish warns that the expansion of casino gambling can't go on unchecked forever. A big problem is the attitude of politicians nationwide who view casinos as free money.

"I don't know how we can control the politicians; they certainly don't understand the word 'oversaturation,'" Cordish said Thursday. "They think you can have casinos like Starbucks."

If that attitude continues, Cordish said, "it's going to implode on them."

That sentiment was voiced repeatedly at The East Coast Gaming Congress, a major annual casino industry conference, held this year in the newly opened Revel casino resort in Atlantic City. The $2.4 billion Revel is being counted on to help turn around Atlantic City's five-year slump. But several experts at the forum said the solution to Atlantic City's woes is the closure of one or more of its 12 casinos.

"Here in Atlantic City, we have assets for sale that literally nobody wants to buy," said Gary Loveman, president of Caesars Entertainment, which counts four Atlantic City gambling halls among its 56 casinos. "There is simply too much supply in Atlantic City. The supply doesn't go away."

That's a very bad thing. The problem here? Nobody ever closes.'

During a panel of Wall Street experts, Andrew Zarnett, managing director of Deutsche Bank Securities, said Revel might hurt, rather than help, Atlantic City's overall casino market.

"Everybody's a loser; when you add supply to a market that's not growing very much, everybody gets cannibalized," he said. "We need some of this capacity to close and go away. I would have thought that would have happened two years ago, but the properties are still here."

Zarnett said he doubts any Atlantic City casino will close until they see whether New Jersey will approve Internet gambling and throw the struggling properties a lifeline. He also predicted that New York will approve a casino in Manhattan within five years.

Not all the news from Atlantic City was bad, though: Figures released Thursday by state regulators showed the casinos saw a 17 percent increase in gross operating profit for the first quarter of this year, following a 26 percent increase in the fourth quarter of last year.

The expansion of casino gambling has continued rapidly over the last several years, nowhere more fiercely than in the Northeast. There is serious disagreement within the industry as to whether the market is oversaturated or whether there is room for further growth. But most agree it is tougher to do business in the Northeast casino market than it ever has been before.

OBITUARIES

Eileen May Steele

May 4, 1936-May 15, 2012

JEROME • Eileen's soul was called home Tuesday, May 15, 2012, after a long battle with COPD. She passed away courageously and peacefully at her son's home in Jerome, Idaho.

She was born May 4, 1936, in Richfield, Idaho, the 10th of 11 children born to parents, James and Emma Kodesh. Eileen spent her young adult life as a loving mother and homemaker. Later in life, she and her husband, Wayne Steele, became Greyhound Bus agents, where she spent the next 32 years of her life serving in that business. While it would seem by her unassuming nature, that she led an uneventful life, the opposite was quite true.

She had a deep seeded passion for opera and the fine arts. Later in life, traveling became a burden for her; however, she made sure that by her generous gifts and donations made, everyone could enjoy the same opportunity to experience these joys. While Eileen came from hard and challenging beginnings, she rose above them, always remaining the same meek, kind and generous soul that she always was. Eileen gave back all and made everything she acquired available to help others in need. She would do without before those she knew and loved would.

We will never know anyone as kind, caring and generous as her. This world will surely miss this little woman with such a big heart. Eileen passed away as eloquently and dignified as she lived.

Preceding Eileen in death was her husband, Wayne Steele; her parents, five sisters, two brothers, one grandson and one great-granddaughter.

Surviving Eileen are her three sons, Barry Heck, Charles Heck and David Steele; her daughter, Teri Rodriguez; two brothers, James Kodesh and Bobby Kodesh; one sister, Janie Brown; six grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

A graveside service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 19, at Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery in Twin Falls. Visitation will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, May 18, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Slow Push to List Breach Sites among Federal Icons

BY KEVIN MCGILL
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS • Sites where levee failures led to the catastrophic flooding after Hurricane Katrina would join Civil War battlefields and Mount Rushmore on a federal list of the nation's historic icons if an activist has her way, but legal foot-dragging by the agency that many blame for the flooding is slowing the effort.

"It was an event so catastrophic the whole world watched it on TV," Sandy Rosenthal said this week as she walked beside a repaired floodwall along the Lower 9th Ward, which was devastated in the storm's aftermath in 2005. "It's the worst civil engineering disaster in U.S. history."

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has been asked to sign off on the application for the National Register of Historic Places because it owns one of the sites. But the agency is still embroiled in a legal battle over responsibility and liability for the flooding, and there are concerns that approving the application would influence those cases.

Several federal agencies are meeting next week to discuss the application, and a decision from the National Parks Service expected early next month could speed up the process.

Rosenthal's effort is nearly two years in the making. The activist who lived in New Orleans at the time of Katrina is the founder and director of Levees.Org, a grassroots organization that formed after the storm and became a chief critic of the corps. The group began working in 2010 to have two breach sites — one at the Lower 9th Ward and another along a drainage canal at the Lakeview neighborhood — placed on the register.

Levee breaches at numerous sites flooded 80 percent of New Orleans and swamped suburban areas. Flood water lifted some houses off foundations and reached the roof lines of others. Close to 2,000 deaths were blamed on the storm, many due to drowning. Stories and pictures of the tens of thousands of stranded people dominated media for days.

Under normal circumstances, placement on the register is an arduous bureaucratic task requiring painstaking compilation of technical and historical information and approval from state authorities before it reaches the National Parks

Service for consideration. Further complicating this effort is the involvement of the corps, which constructed the levees and floodwalls, and which owns the Lower 9th Ward site.

Corps approval isn't essential to getting the designation, but owners must be given a voice in the decision. The corps' OK would speed the process.

Corps officials have been hesitant to offer a view amid the litigation. The corps missed a late March deadline to approve, deny or seek changes in the application and issued a letter in April saying more time was needed for review by the Department of Justice and others.

"It presents complex legal and policy considerations that must be fully evaluated by the Army attorneys, the DOJ, corps headquarters and my office," Jo-Ellen Darcy, Assistant Secretary of the Army, said in the letter.

Romney Denounces Idea of Obama-Wright Campaign Ads

BY BETH FOUHY
AND PHILIP ELLIOTT
Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. • Mitt Romney swiftly and firmly distanced himself Thursday from a group exploring plans to target President Barack Obama's relationship with a controversial former pastor. But the revival of the Rev. Jeremiah Wright as a campaign issue momentarily placed race at the center of the presidential contest and showcased the independent groups playing a new role this year with big-money TV ads.

Republican Romney pushed back against a proposal being weighed by a conservative super PAC, Ending Spending Action Fund, to run a $10 million ad campaign drawing attention to racially provocative sermons Wright delivered at a church Obama attended in Chicago. But with super PACS operating under significantly looser campaign finance restrictions than in past presidential contests, there was no guarantee Romney's words would be heeded by other groups eager to make Wright — and, by extension, race — a factor in the campaign.

"I want to make it very clear: I repudiate that effort," Romney told reporters after a campaign stop in Florida. "I think it's the wrong course for a PAC or a campaign. I hope that our campaigns can be respectively about the future and about issues and about vision for America."

Romney indicated he was eager to shift the discussion back to jobs and the economy — bedrock issues on which he contends Obama is vulnerable. Joe Ricketts, the billionaire benefactor of the super PAC, also distanced himself from the plan and announced he, too, would reject a racially focus approach. "Not only was this plan merely a proposal — one of several submitted to the Ending Spending Action Fund by third-party vendors — but it reflects an approach to politics that Mr. Ricketts rejects and it was never a plan to be accepted but only a suggestion for a direction to take," the group's president, Brian Baker, said in a statement.

The New York Times first reported the group had commissioned a blueprint devised by Republican strategist Fred Davis and others titled "The Defeat of Barack Hussein Obama: the Ricketts Plan to End His Spending For Good." The Associated Press also obtained a copy of the 54-page blueprint, which outlined a TV, print and social media campaign casting new light on Obama and his "misguided mentor," Wright.

IED Blasts, Football Concussions Cause Similar Brain Damage

BY DAVID BROWN
The Washington Post

Soldiers exposed to roadside bomb blasts and athletes who have suffered repeated concussions show the same long-lasting changes to brain cells, a new study reports.

The research connects two growing — and for many sufferers, chronically debilitating — health problems in the United States. It adds to the evidence that injuries once officially termed "mild" may be anything but.

Specifically, head trauma that doesn't knock a person unconscious may nevertheless kill some brain cells and damage the architecture of others, setting up a semi-permanent state of brain inflammation. That may lead to the foggy thinking and poor memory that thousands of soldiers and football players experience even after they've "recovered" and have been sent back to the battlefield or playing field.

"Whether your head is accelerating because you've been hit by a linebacker or the blast from an exploding improvised explosive device, the injury to the brain appears to follow a similar course," said Lee Goldstein, a doctor and neuroscientist at Boston University who co-led the study, published Wednesday in Science Translational Medicine.

The abnormalities found in the brains of soldiers and athletes studied after death are similar to those found in the brains of mice exposed to the equivalent of a moderate-size bomb blast, an experiment the 35-member research team also conducted.

The study doesn't immediately suggest ways to prevent or treat blast injuries in soldiers or concussions in athletes. The researchers hope that future mouse experiments may point in that direction. But the findings will almost certainly draw more attention to a problem that's now part of the medical histories of thousands of Americans.

"The take-home message is that concussions need to be taken seriously at all ages," said Ann McKee, a neuropathologist with the Veterans Affairs Boston Healthcare System. "We don't want our kids exposed to these injuries in the pursuit of amateur athletics."

Disco Queen Donna Summer Dies at 63

BY MESFIN FEKADU
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Like the King of Pop or the Queen of Soul, Donna Summer was bestowed a title fitting of musical royalty — the Queen of Disco.

Yet unlike Michael Jackson or Aretha Franklin, it was a designation she wasn't comfortable embracing.

"I grew up on rock 'n' roll," Summer once said when explaining her reluctance to claim the title.

Indeed, as disco boomed then crashed in a single decade in the 1970s, Summer, the beautiful voice and face of the genre with pulsating hits like "I Feel Love,"

Summer

"Love to Love You Baby" and "Last Dance," would continue to make hits incorporating the rock roots she so loved. One of her biggest hits, "She Works Hard for the Money," came in the early 1980s and relied on a smoldering guitar solo as well as Summer's booming voice.

Fate

"It's scary," Watson said. "They need to look at this carefully because it is going to affect a lot of people with a lot of bad conditions who are not going to have any health care coverage."

Before PCIP, Watson had been uninsured since 2003, originally turned down because of elevated white blood cells. About three years ago, she was diagnosed with a chronic form of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, a cancer of the immune system. Unable to afford medications, she relied on the emergency room to treat flare-ups.

She tried applying to a major insurance company for a small business plan for her and her employees, and was quickly rejected. Then she heard about PCIP.

The temporary program is meant to serve as a patch until 2014, when the federal health care law will require insurers to accept all applicants, including cancer patients like Watson, regardless of medical history. The law's controversial mandate for individuals to carry health insurance is related to that guaranteed acceptance provision. By forcing healthy people to buy insurance, it would help keep premiums in check.

Initially, Watson could not afford the $800 monthly premium the government was asking for PCIP. High premiums are part of the reason the program has not attracted more people.

But officials retooled to make coverage more affordable. Watson applied again and was accepted. She met the basic requirements: uninsured at least six months, turned away because of pre-existing conditions, having U.S. citizenship or legal residence. Her premium is $363.

In March, Watson went to the emergency room with what she thought was pneumonia. She was admitted, and quarantined the next morning when tests showed she had an antibiotic-resistant bacterial infection, highly dangerous. She spent five days in intensive care.

Without her PCIP coverage, Watson is convinced she would have been sent home from the emergency room after initial treatment to ease her shortness of breath.

"I'm not a candidate for any for type of indigent program, and without insurance they would not have put me in ICU," she said.

"I would have gone into cardiac arrest and probably died," she added. Emergency rooms must treat the uninsured, "but they are only required to get you stable. And then they release you and tell you to go to the health department."

A government report this year found that people in the pre-existing condition plan tended to be middle-aged patients with no access to employer coverage and with medical conditions that require continuous care. The top five diagnoses: cancer, heart disease, degenerative bone diseases, organ failure requiring a transplant and hemophilia.

Overview

Annuals complete their life cycle from seed germination to the production of seed within one growing season, generally from spring until fall. Prized for their quick growth and rich color, annuals add pizzazz to dull gardens and fill in empty spots quickly. Although they can be started inside, many annuals germinate and grow rapidly making them ideal for seeding right in the soil.

Step 1

Select a location that provides proper lighting for your specific flowers. Refer to the back of the package for proper exposure. Full sun is defined as six or more hours of sunlight a day. Partial shade refers to areas that receive less than five hours of sunlight. Shady areas may receive early morning or late evening the joy of gardening[®]

Fred Meyer

light with shade during the day or may receive dappled light throughout the day.

Step 2

Prepare the soil by tilling to a depth of 8 to 10 inches. Amend with compost or well-rotted manure and mix in well with existing soil.

Step 3

Plant annuals in spring after the soil has warmed and all danger of frost has passed. These tender plants cannot tolerate frost and will not germinate in cold damp soil.

Step 4

Follow directions on the seed packet for proper seed depth and spacing. Seeds planted too deep may not germinate and those planted too shallow are subject to withering and dying from even a few hours of dry soil.

Step 5

Spray the area to moisten the soil and keep moist until seeds germinate. Many annuals sprout within a few days to week, depending on the weather and soil temperature. Some may take 10 days or more.

History Blowout

In Twin Falls, it's a great weekend for history buffs. You can spend lunchtime today hearing about mail-boats that ran the Snake River a century ago, a lifeline for miners and homesteaders. This evening, learn about 18th-century explorer James Cook's South Pacific voyage to observe the transit of Venus across the sun. Then spend Saturday morning on a guided walking tour of Twin Falls' historical warehouse district.

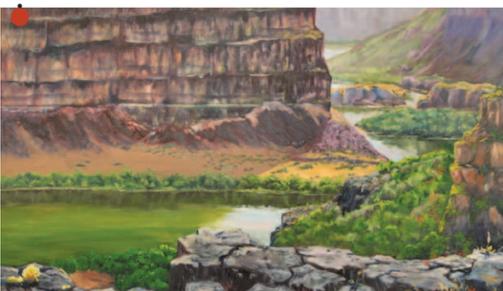

Party While You Putt

The course is creative, the holes are challenging, and the golfers are all in great spirits. The annual Ketchum Wide Open on Saturday afternoon always attracts a Magic Valley crowd to makes the rounds of Ketchum restaurants and bars. Each place concocts an elaborate miniature golf hole — at Lefty's, for instance, you can expect a maze of pipes — and the teams putt in costume. Or in loud plaids, which earn you a lot of credibility on this course.

Canyon Colors

I've seen a few samples of the artwork assembled for a Snake River Watercolor exhibit opening Tuesday at the Herrett Center. These paintings' gorgeous colors capture the best of the canyon scenes we love. (Particularly lovely is Joyce DeFord's "Pillar Falls.") I can't wait to see the rest.

For details, see the calendar inside.

TWIN FALLS • Patti Lee loves cutting and coloring hair, and she's proud that women leave her Twin Falls beauty salon feeling more confident than when they arrived. But Lee's own salon experience is on the links. Somewhere along 18 holes of golf, strolling a lawn of endlessly rolling green, Lee begins her transformation. "I start to get rid of that salon smell. I relax. I smell the grass and I have a good time," she said. "After I've been inside all week it feels good to go play!" Regardless of her score, Lee said, she can't have a bad time on the golf course — but she has even more fun as a board member of the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course's Ladies Golf Association. The association's three dozen members golf every Thursday morning from April through autumn. The association also hosts a Monday Twilight league.

New Twin Falls Cinema's Chairs Will Rock and Roll

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Chairs lurch to the vibrations on screen, making moviegoers feel they are caught in the action. Earphones describe each scene for the visually impaired. Other viewers may choose to follow the flick's plot via closed captioning in their select languages.

Magic Valley Cinema 13, which opens with shows on all 13 screens at 12:05 a.m. May 25, has just about every new gizmo a film buff could want. Except film, of course.

The new theater in Magic Valley Mall has strictly digital projection and sound in both 2D and 3D.

But it's the "D Box Motion Seating" that has everybody talking. General Manager John Eickhof said it consists of 19 chairs in two rows of one theater that will move as though in an earthquake, avalanche or high-speed chase.

It's not appropriate for romantic comedies, but it's just the ticket for fare such as "Men in Black 3," which will play there in 3D on opening night.

Cinema 13 is the first complex that Cinema West of Petaluma, Calif., has built outside of California, where the company operates 11 complexes. Eickhof said avid customers book the D Box seats online weeks in advance in its California theaters.

"They have their own following," he said, adding that what title is playing seems less important than those seats.

In Twin Falls, Cinema 13's largest screen stretches 55 feet in front of 299 seats. Other venues are mid-sized, while a couple of 49-seat "screening rooms" offer intimate settings. One constant among all rooms is rocking-back seats that Eickhof joked are almost too plush.

chairs between Boise and Salt Lake City. Eickhof said customers can purchase tickets online through www.fandangogo.com, or by paying with ATM or credit cards or cash at the theater.

A spacious lobby can be entered from doors off a parking lot or through a connection to Magic Valley Mall. That creates what Eickhof calls an "open lobby," which people can visit to buy popcorn or personal pizzas from the

"They're so comfortable I'll be waking people up after the midnight shows."

John Eickhof, General Manager of Magic Valley Cinema 13

"They're so comfortable I'll be waking people up after the midnight shows," he said.

The cinema has a beer and wine bar that will serve drinks on special occasions, Eickhof said. He's already planning a Super Bowl party.

Movies will play on all screens starting at 11 a.m. each day, giving a variety of scheduling options for those wanting to take advantage of the $7.50 price for features starting before 6 p.m. Prices increase to $9.75 for adults after that, although seniors and children 11 and younger will still pay $7.50.

Expect a $2 extra charge for 3D screenings and an $8 surcharge for the D Box seats, the only moving movie snack bar even if they don't plan to see a movie.

"I call them drive-by popcorn eaters," he said.

Magic Valley Cinema 13 fills the void left when the mall's previous six-screen theater closed in September 2011. For Eickhof, the offer to become general manager revived a longtime love of cinema.

He's the former owner of Ace Theater in Wendell, which closed years ago.

"We went down with 'Titanic,'" Eickhof said with a grin. He thought that signaled retirement, but he was wrong.

"It's the movie bug. It bites you and it's fun."

College of Southern Idaho art students explored their love for music with a large-scale panel project — but without the images that drew criticism in the past.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

TWIN FALLS • Charlie Lewallen sat on a stool painting goldfish onto two round, green dials.

She demonstrated what they'd do when completed: The dials go behind a colorful panel whose centerpiece is the serene face of a mermaid, her hair flowing off the canvas. The dials, when spun, create the effect of the mermaid swimming with fish.

"It definitely has evolved," said Lewallen, an art student at the College of Southern Idaho. Art rarely turns out the way you first envision it.

The 4-by-8-foot panel is one of 13 that students in Mike Youngman's class were working on at the end of April to replace existing panels on the second floor of CSI's Taylor Building. The project has become something of a tradition for his students — and something to engage the public.

But not a lot of people know about the display, Youngman said.

"We don't really advertise it," he said, noting that conservatives in the community have become offended by some of the art. He has found sticky notes on nude paintings that criticize the work. In the end, however, he said it makes for good discussion as other people respond with their own notes: "Grow up," he said they'll read. "This is the real world."

Every year Youngman gives his students a theme — this time, “The Music in My Head.” It’s up to them to come up with ideas and complete the projects. And everyone’s interpretation is different.

Student Catina Crum’s musical inclination, for instance, inspired her piece:

mounds covered in colorful cloth strips that represent sound waves with fish heads here and there poking out of the “water.”

On the other hand, Lewallen doesn’t consider herself musically talented.

“But I like music,” she said. “I wanted to capture the calm, peaceful, joyous music that I listen to.”

Some of the other panels: Kira Emery’s painting of a wispy figure that depicts the evolution of music; wild animals playing instruments, painted comic style by Kayla Griffin; and the seven dwarfs of the Snow White fairy tale dancing with music notes, by Mari Carter.

The panel project is the largest the students work on all year, Youngman said, and it helps them explore ideas on a much larger scale.

“I think it’s a positive thing,” he said. “I think it’ll be more acceptable.”

CSI staff like the display. “We keep telling Mike we want more art,” said Jasmine Lopez of the Student Activities office, which sits across from the panel display. “We really like to see the artwork from the students. ... It’s interesting to see how each one has a different interpretation of the theme.”

Lee golfs in nearly every league and tournament she can. She’s fiercely competitive — except for Thursdays. “Thursdays is for fun,” she said. “It’s for reconnecting and rejuvenating.”

That’s the kind of camaraderie you’ll find at other women’s golf clubs around Magic Valley.

Jan Hall, president of the Canyon Springs Golf Course Ladies Association, said the course’s Tuesday-night women’s league offers “plenty of sport, opportunity to play and socialization.”

This year, Hall is cranking up the socialization factor. The association’s May 1 opening night of play featured a casual wine tasting in the clubhouse, and similar events will be held throughout the year.

“My goal is to get the ladies to stick around a little bit and maybe talk to one another a little more,” Hall said. “I’d like to build the camaraderie.”

The same is true at Buhl’s Clear Lake Country Club, where its Ladies Association plays on Thursday mornings.

“In the summertime we’ll get some teachers, but mostly we’re retired,” said Marilyn Butler, immediate past president.

Members enjoy course play, but they also help organize annual tournaments and spruce up the clubhouse.

“Our association beautifies the course, buys and plants flowers and makes minor repairs to the clubhouse, like light painting,” said president Chris Kolash, who has been with the league for seven years and lives on the course. “Every day you’re down here is different. The people are wonderful, but mostly golf is just fun.”

Artists’ Books Sought for Traveling Exhibition

TWIN FALLS • The 2013 edition of Idaho Booker’s Dozen, a traveling, juried show of artists’ books, is accepting submissions.

Booker’s Dozen will travel to 10-12 venues in schools, libraries and exhibition spaces throughout Idaho. Jurors will be drawn from professionals in art, design and literature.

Works that are accepted must be available to travel throughout 2013. Others will be available for pick-up or returned with standard shipping insurance.

The deadline for submissions is Sept. 14, and there’s no entry fee. Send works for consideration to Idaho Center for the Book Art Department, Boise State University, 1910 University Drive, Boise, ID 83725-1510.

Information: lili.org/icb or IdahoCenterfortheBook@boisestate.edu.

NEXT WEEK

The Speedway Scene

To illuminate the appeal of a local summer staple, Andrew Weeks mingles with the fans at Magic Valley Speedway. Next Friday in Entertainment

Put the Outdoors onto Your Canvas

TWIN FALLS • Joyce DeFord will teach a two-day plein air painting workshop for the Twin Falls Center for the Arts, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 8-9.

Cost is $175 for Magic Valley Arts Council members and $195 for others. To attend just one day costs $100 or $125. The class is aimed at beginners but open to advanced students, and you’ll receive a materials list upon registration.

What’s plein air? Painting done outside on location instead of in a studio. DeFord will teach how to reduce what you see to manageable shapes and how to understand the colors in nature.

The center is at 195 River Vista Place. Pre-registration required: 734-2787.

Reclaim Glass for Jewelry

TWIN FALLS • Artist Mickey Tanner of Crude Co. will teach a “Prairie Glass Pendants & Bracelets” class next week for the College of Southern Idaho’s Community Education Center.

You’ll learn how to turn pieces of reclaimed and vintage glass into accessories, then leave with a necklace and matching bracelet. See samples of the necklaces at etsy.com/shop/crudeco.

The class will be 6-9 p.m. May 23 at CSI. Cost is $10 plus a $40 supply fee.

Register: 732-6442, 934-8678 or communityed.csi.edu.

STATE BASEBALL

EXTRA WINNINGS

Kimberly needs nine innings before dispatching of Payette on Champlin's RBI double

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

ONTARIO, Ore. — Right off the crack of the bat, Kimberly's Clay Mathews made up his mind that he was going to score. Seth Champlin worked a full count against Payette relief pitcher Spencer Pollock in the bottom of the ninth, before ripping a fastball into left field. Mathews took off running. The race was on. He neared third base by the time Payette fielded the ball and with no hesitation, stormed ahead to home. The relay throw was too late and Mathews easily scored the winning run as Kimberly beat Payette 6-5 in a thrilling first round game of the Class 3A state baseball tournament at Treasure Valley Community College. "I told Seth before the at-bat, you better hit a triple so I can score. Once he hit that, I was going home," said Mathews, who received a hold sign from head coach Tom Myers at third base. "I was kind of looking and it looked like he was sending me and when I rounded third he threw his hands up and by that time I had made my mind up and I was going to score." "We had no outs and had Ridge (Lee) coming up. It was probably a dumb thought on my mind," Myers said. "We would usually hold him there, but in that sort of game you just need to let things happen." Mathews threw up his arms and clinched his fists after sliding across home plate as his teammates rushed from the dugout and Champlin ran across the infield grass to meet the huddle of Kimberly red near home plate. "It's a great feeling. It was a fun game, but it was a lot closer than it should have been," Champlin said. "We didn't finish it and we had lots of chances." The Bulldogs advance to today's semifinal game where they'll play Snake River at 4 p.m. The game is a rematch from last year's first-round matchup, which Kimberly won 9-3. Kimberly, however, nearly gave away Thursday's game. Leading 5-2 in the seventh inning, Kimberly pulled Champlin — who threw a one-hitter —

PILOTS HAVE NO GLOVE IN DEFEAT

TIMES-NEWS

OROFINO • The Glens Ferry baseball team got the pitching it needed against Grangeville in the opening round of the Class 2A state baseball tournament. The fielding? That's another matter. The Pilots committed four errors, leading to three unearned runs, allowing Jasper Sebastian to get the better of his Glens Ferry mound counterpart Adrian Martinez in losing 4-1 to the Bulldogs. Sebastian struck out only two but gave up just three hits, among them John Acord's RBI single in the sixth, scoring Pepper Janousek, to spoil his shutout bid. Martinez struck out 11 and didn't walk a batter. "We've been fairly consistent and steady all year long," Glens Ferry coach Denis Uhl said. "We seemed to be a little tight today and it cost us." Grangeville's Justin Robie had the game's only extra-base hit, a double. He would come around to score as part of a two-run sixth that gave the Bulldogs a 4-0 lead. Sam Salberg scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth, coming home on a squeeze bunt. Glens Ferry, which fell to 18-7, plays Firth in a consolation round game today at 1 p.m. Firth lost its opener 8-7 to New Plymouth.

Bruins Rally Comes Up Short

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

NAMPA • Twin Falls wasn't about to give up its moniker as Class 4A baseball champion easily. Middleton ultimately went and forcibly stripped it from the Bruins. Desmond Balderas made a momentum-stuffing catch in left field to squelch a Twin Falls rally and allow the Vikings to escape with a 5-4 win in the 4A quarterfinals Thursday at Lofholm Field. With one out in the bottom of the seventh and three runs already in, Zayne Slotten crushed a ball to deep left, but Balderas ran it down and snared it as he dived into foul territory. "Kids step up and make big plays in big situations," said Twin Falls coach Tim Stadelmeir. "The kid made a helluva catch, and it changed the course of the inning." The offense came too late for the Bruins (22-4), who were left to rue two plays in the early innings as well as self-placed pressure when the hits didn't flow early. They had nine hits,

Transfer Rules Won't Easily Be Changed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The NCAA is examining transfer rules after a spate of high-profile cases that has critics saying too much power is in the hands of athletic directors and coaches. The issue came to the forefront in men's basketball over the winter when 7-foot center Todd O'Brien went public with St. Joseph coach Phil Martelli's decision to block his transfer to UAB. Neither Martelli nor school officials have said why. Elsewhere, Jarrod Uthoff said he had restrictions placed on where he could transfer by Wisconsin coach Bo Ryan before he was allowed to go anywhere outside the Big Ten Conference. Florida International's Dominique Ferguson said he was flatly denied when he requested a scholarship release following the firing of coach Isiah Thomas, and he declared for the NBA draft rather than go back to FIU. Forty percent of students who play men's Division I basketball transfer before they are juniors — that's more than 400 a year, the highest rate of any sport, according to National Association of Basketball Coaches executive director Jim Haney. In all but a handful of cases, he said, releases are granted. Typically, athletes aren't allowed to transfer within the same conference or to a school that is a regular nonconference opponent because it could put the school he's leaving at a competitive disadvantage. "I don't even like those kinds of restrictions," sports attorney Don Jackson said, "but at least there is some rational basis to them." Once a release is granted, a transferring student in football, basketball, men's ice hockey and baseball must sit out one year before becoming eligible at a new school. There is no one-year waiting period in other sports. If a player is barred from transferring to a particular school, he can still go there without a scholarship. That's not practical, or possible, for many players. An athlete whose release is denied can appeal to a committee at his school that is outside the athletic department and to the NCAA itself.

Armstrong Wins Tour of Calif. Time Trial

BOISE • Idaho professional cyclist Kristin Armstrong won the Amgen Tour of California women's time trial, beating the second-place rider by more than a minute. Armstrong won Thursday's Bakersfield time trial, covering the 18 mile course in 39 minutes, 59 seconds, for an average speed of 27 miles per hour.

Alison Powers, a former U.S. national champion time trialist, was second in 41 minutes, 23 seconds, while Jade Wilcoxson was third. Boise-based Armstrong, the time trial gold medalist at the 2008 Beijing Olympics, is among several American riders hoping to be on the U.S. cycling team for the 2012 London Olympics.

Others include Amber Neben of Lake Forest, Calif., and Evelyn Stevens of Acton, Mass. They're due to ride head-to-head in Idaho when the Exergy Tour starts near Boise on May 24.

Van Esch Signs With NAIA Iowa School

TIMES-NEWS

Lighthouse Christian's Dylan Van Esch has signed with Northwestern College in Orange City, Iowa, where the Lions' two-way star will join a team ranked 14th in the NAIA coaches spring poll.

Van Esch, who was a Times-News' 8-Man All-Area selection, gained 1,272 yards from scrimmage and scored 20 touchdowns.

The Raiders are coming off a 9-2 season that saw them win their final eight games, but miss out on the NAIA playoffs. Northwestern finished the season ranked 17th in the final NAIA poll.

U.S. OPEN LOCAL QUALIFYING

Filer's Travis Hofland missed advancing to a sectional qualifier for next month's U.S. Open, shooting an even-par 71, which was good for a tie for fifth, at BanBury Golf Club in Eagle. Another Filer resident, Jake Harr, shot 84. Quinn Carbol (Pocatello) and Kevin Tucker (Scottsdale, Ariz.) earned the berths in the sectional qualifier at Emerald City Golf Course in Creswell, Ore., by shooting 67.

The 112th U.S. Open is June 14-17 at The Olympic Club in San Francisco.

FOLKINGA RAKES IN HONORS

Twin Falls alumnus Bo Folkinga was recently named Great Northwest Athletic Conference co-player of the year after winning the triple crown this season, leading the loop in home runs (11), RBIs (46) and batting average (.453).

Along with co-player of the year honors, the Western Oregon first baseman was an obvious first-team all-conference selection. He also led the league in slugging percentage, doubles and total bases.

The Wolves, who are 40-9 overall and 29-3 in GNAC games, play in NCAA Division II and are competing in the NCAA West Regional through Sunday.

PRESEASON ALL-MWC PICKS

Boise State had 13 players earn all-Mountain West Conference preseason honors from Phil Steele, whose magazine hits newsstands on June 5.

Four were named to the first team — receiver Matt Miller, guard Joe Kellogg, offensive tackle Charles Leno Jr. and punt returner Mitch Burroughs.

The second team featured running back D.J. Harper, defensive end Demarcus Lawrence and linebacker J.C. Percy. Third-team selections were Burroughs (at wide receiver), linebacker Blake Renaud and cornerback Jamar Taylor, while tight end Gabe Linehan, defensive tackle Mike Atkinson, defensive end Sam Uk-wuachu and safety Lee Hightower were named to the fourth team.

Kimberly's Seth Champlin gave up just one hit through 6-plus innings against Payette in the opening round of the Class 3A state baseball tournament Thursday at Treasure Valley Community College in Ontario, Ore.

"I'm not sure (what happened). I thought I made a good pitch, but he just turned on it and crushed it," said Mathews, who hit a first-inning double. "After that, I knew our team could hit, like always. I just sat there and buckled down and knew I had to fight through this."

Mathews worked out of a jam in the eighth inning and picked off a Payette runner at second base with a pretty move.

The Bulldogs squandered a runner in the eighth inning when Matt Courtney got picked off, but they wasted no time in the ninth as Mathews led off with his walk and Champlin followed with his second double and third RBI of the game.

"Those are fun games. (Assistant Kimberly) Coach (A.J.) Schroeder, this is his first year doing this and he's like, 'I hate this,'" Myers said. "It's more fun when you're a player than when you're a coach because you're just sitting there on pins and needles.

NOTES: Kimberly third baseman Bo Petterson was struck in the throat with a sharply hit ball in the eighth inning. He left the game, but is expected to play today. ... The Bulldogs were awarded a trophy after the game for being named the Class 3A baseball academic champions with a cumulative 3.37 GPA.

PACERS POUND HEAT, TAKE SERIES LEAD

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • Roy Hibbert had 19 points and 18 rebounds, George Hill scored 20 and Danny Granger 17 as the Indiana Pacers, showing more balance, toughness and togetherness than Miami, throttled the Heat 94-75 on Thursday night in Game 3 of the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Overlooked during the regular season and given little chance to upset the reigning East champions, the Pacers took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Game 4 is Sunday at raucous Bankers Life Fieldhouse.

LeBron James scored 22 — 16 in the first half before wearing down — and Mario Chalmers added 25 for Miami. However, Dwyane Wade scored only 5 on 2-of-13 shooting for the Heat, already missing forward Chris Bosh because of a strained abdominal muscle and not expected to return for this series.

Indiana outscored Miami 51-32 in the second half, when the Pacers could do no wrong.

They made big shots, challenged everything the Heat tossed in the air and didn't back down from a Miami team that appeared poised to make an easy run to the NBA finals after top-seeded Chicago lost Derrick Rose and was eliminated in the first round.

The Pacers, though, have other plans.

In the second half, Indiana forward David West flung James to the floor in the lane, and Granger later got in the superstar's face after a foul on a breakaway. After winning Game 2 in South Florida by three points, the Pacers wanted to show they're for real.

With his team down 20 in the closing minutes, Heat coach Erik Spoelstra waved the white flag and pulled out first Wade, then James, who quickly removed his headband as he got to the bench and then pulled out the mouthpiece inscribed with XVI — the Roman numeral for 16 — or the number of wins it takes to get a championship.

When the final horn sounded, the three-time MVP quickly exited the floor.

SPURS 105, CLIPPERS 88

SAN ANTONIO • Tony Parker scored 22 points on his 30th birthday, Tim Duncan had 18 and San Antonio beat fading Los Angeles, pushing their winning streak to 16 and taking a 2-0 lead in their Western Conference semifinal series.

Chris Paul responded to his awful Game 1 with only a slightly better encore, scoring 10 points as the Clippers now head home desperate to steer out of what's starting to get the feel of a sweep.

Blake Griffin led the Clippers with 20 points. Game 3 is Saturday night in Los Angeles.

Merritt tried to lay out in center field for a sinking liner from Viking catcher Austin Hutchings, but the ball hit the ground and skipped past him for a two-run triple.

"If I had to do it again, I'd definitely play the short-hop, especially in a 0-0 game. I thought I could get there, but when I got horizontal I knew it was the wrong decision," said Merritt, who redeemed himself by pitching 4 2-3 dazzling innings of relief and starting the seventh-inning rally with a two-run triple of his own. "I think we just tried to do too much, and we started everything going too late."

Middleton led 5-0 in the fourth by the time Twin Falls finally pushed across a run on Tucker Donnelley's single. While Merritt held the opposing lineup in check, the Bruins struggled to rally against Brady Winfield.

When they finally solved him, it looked like they were going to hold on to the mantle of champions for at least another day. But Slotten's drive landed in Balderas' glove, and Winfield struck out Lee Johnson to end it.

McNamee Admits Clemens Story Has Changed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON • During another seven grueling hours of cross-examination that frustrated all sides, Roger Clemens' accuser explained the evidence he kept in a beer can — and why his story about it has changed.

Brian McNamee was on the stand Thursday for a fourth day in the perjury trial of the seven-time Cy Young Award-winning pitcher, holding firm to his testimony that he injected Clemens with steroids from 1998 to 2001 and human growth hormone in 2000.

But Clemens' longtime strength coach again conceded that his memory of some details has evolved over the years, and that he initially told some lies during the drugs-in-baseball investigation conducted by federal agents and former Sen. George Mitchell.

Whether the jurors were still keeping track is another matter: They again expressed concern about the agonizingly slow pace of a trial that still has weeks to go, and the judge opined that Clemens' lawyer was "confusing everybody."

"At this pace," U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton said, "I'll guess we'll be here forever."

Clemens lawyer Rusty Hardin tried to exploit McNamee's inconsistencies, even if it meant taking the case far afield from the principal issue of whether Clemens actually used performance-enhancing drugs. The former baseball star is accused of lying when he testified to Congress in 2008 that he never used steroids or HGH.

The day's testimony ended at a tantalizing moment. After some 19 hours on the stand, McNamee was being challenged by Hardin over the needle and other waste kept in a Miller Lite can after a steroids injection. McNamee said he gave Clemens in 2001. The government is expected to show the waste contains Clemens' DNA.

McNamee indicated to Congress in 2008 that he kept the evidence primarily because he was starting to distrust Clemens, but he told the jury earlier this week he kept it because his wife had starting nagging him to do something to protect himself from being a fall guy in case he ever got caught.

McNamee said Thursday he had hoped to keep his wife out of the story. His change of heart came as he and his wife are going through a contentious divorce.

"Now she's involved," McNamee said, "she's got to take responsibility for her action."

McNamee said the beer can came from the recycling bin in Clemens' apartment, while conceding that he'd never seen Clemens drink a light beer. Hardin insinuated that McNamee manufactured the evidence after Clemens' televised denials of steroids use.

"All of a sudden, the person being accused is fighting back," Hardin said, "and you have to figure out some way to save yourself."

Hardin's aim is to portray McNamee as a serial liar, and he appeared to have some success this day.

"Did you ever tell Sen. Mitchell that you injected Roger Clemens approximately four times in the rear over a two-week period in 1998?" Hardin asked.

"That's possible," McNamee answered.

"If you did tell him ... would that be a lie?" Hardin asked.

"Yes, it would," said McNamee, who testified this week that he injected Clemens about eight to 10 times during Clemens' 1998 season with the Toronto Blue Jays.

McNamee again maintained that he had minimized the number of shots to try to help out Clemens.

"I wanted to make it not look like he was a bigger steroids user than he was. ... I never lied about the usage, just amounts," he said.

U.S. PLAYERS FALTER QUICKLY AT LPGA EVENT

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GLADSTONE, N.J. • Defending champion Suzann Pettersen didn't last long at the Sybase Match Play Championship, and neither did three well-known Americans.

The third-ranked Pettersen was eliminated 3 and 1 by relative unknown Jodi Ewart of England on Thursday in the first round of the LPGA Tour event, while Paula Creamer, Brittany Lincicome and Michelle Wie lost to some equally obscure fellow Americans.

Creamer, the No. 8 seed, was beaten 2 and 1 by Jennifer Johnson, the No. 57 seed. No. 9 seed Lincicome was ousted 2 and 1 by No. 56 Ryann O'Toole. The 20th-seeded Wie was knocked out by No. 45 Mina Harigae, 3 and 2.

Yani Tseng, Na Yeon Choi and Cristie Kerr, the world's Nos. 1, 2 and 5 players, barely advanced to the second round, while the day ended with No. 4 ranked Ai Miyazato being surprised 2-up by Mariajo Uribe in the final match at Hamilton Farm Golf Club.

CASARES, Spain • Three days after his flight to Spain made an emergency landing because a passenger had a heart attack, American Brandt Snedeker used borrowed irons and a putter from the pro shop to win his opener.

Because his luggage got lost, Snedeker also used a driver lent to him by Australian rival John Senden.

Starting out with just 10 clubs in a replacement bag, Snedeker managed to beat Thomas Bjorn 5 and 4.

By the time his clubs arrived at the Finca Cortesin course from Malaga Airport — allowing him to fill his bag to the maximum 14 — Snedeker was 3 up after three holes. Playing well with his pro shop putter and Senden's backup driver, he stayed with them despite having his clubs.

Motion The Hunter, Not Target at Preakness

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE • A year ago, Graham Motion was one of the most popular figures at Pimlico Race Course.

As the trainer of Kentucky Derby winner Animal Kingdom, Motion had the lone horse in the Preakness field with a shot at winning the Triple Crown.

"The pressure is on you," the Englishman recalled Thursday. "The two weeks between the Derby and the Preakness, I felt like I was holding my breath. You're kind of walking on eggshells, hoping everything is going great with the horse."

Animal Kingdom came in second in the 2011 Preakness, a half-length behind Shackleford. Motion can't get the outcome out of his mind — no matter how hard he tries.

"We came that close," Motion said, holding his index finger and thumb a half-inch apart. "I was quite shocked to see Shackleford's picture on the grandstand when I drove in this morning. That was kind of a pit in my stomach."

Motion will saddle Went the Day Well in the Preakness on Saturday. The bay colt finished fourth in the Derby two weeks ago but has won two of his four starts this year.

Went the Day Well was bumped at Churchill Downs and forced to go seven wide in an effort to catch up. He rallied gamely under jockey John Velazquez, but couldn't quite make up enough ground to finish in the money.

"He ended up much farther back than Johnny wanted in the Derby, and that's probably what cost him being second. Maybe cost him the win," Motion said. "It's all about getting a good trip. There's always going to be a horse in the Derby that doesn't get a good trip, and that's what makes it so hard to win the Triple Crown."

If Motion has his way, horse racing will go another year without a Triple Crown winner. I'll Have Another has assumed the role held by Animal Kingdom last year, and Motion is determined to deny the Derby winner from making it two in a row.

"We're going to try our best to make sure it doesn't happen," Motion said. "We're going to make it hard for him. Let's put it that way."

Motion has been operating in relative obscurity this week while I'll Have Another trainer Doug O'Neill and Bob Baffert, trainer of Preakness favorite Bodemeister, are attracting much of the attention.

"I'm more comfortable being under the radar," Motion said.

He did, however, acknowledge that last year was far more exciting.

Oakland Outlasts Texas in 10 Innings

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ARLINGTON, Texas • Kila Ka'aihue hit a tiebreaking single in the 10th inning and the Oakland Athletics bounced back from a disputed call on squeeze play that cost them the lead to beat the Texas Rangers 5-4 Thursday.

Ka'aihue's single off Mike Adams (0-2) drove in Jonny Gomes, who had three hits. Josh Reddick's 10th homer off Alexi Ogando made it 4-all in the seventh.

RED SOX 5, RAYS 3
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Cody Ross homered and drove in four runs, Felix Doubront won his third consecutive start and Boston snapped Tampa Bay's four-game winning streak.

BLUE JAYS 4, YANKEES 1
TORONTO • Jose Bautista and J.P. Arencibia each hit a two-run homer, Drew Hutchison won consecutive starts for the first time and Toronto swept a two-game series from New York.

TWINS 4, TIGERS 3
DETROIT • Justin Morneau hit a two-run homer in his second game back from a wrist injury, and the Twins swept the two-game series at Comerica Park.

ORIOLES 5, ROYALS 3
KANSAS CITY, Mo. • Adam Jones hit a two-run homer, J.J. Hardy also drove in a pair of runs and the Orioles beat the Royals for their seventh straight road win.

WHITE SOX 6, ANGELS 1
ANAHEIM, Calif. • Chris Sale pitched effectively into the sixth inning, giving Chicago's rotation a much-needed solid outing, and the White Sox capitalized on some shoddy defense by Los Angeles for a victory.

INDIANS 6, MARINERS 5, 11 INNINGS
CLEVELAND • Carlos Santana hit a game-ending single with one out and the bases loaded in the 11th inning, capping a two-run rally and lifting Cleveland over Seattle.

Michael Saunders' run-scoring double in the top of the inning gave Seattle a 5-4 lead, but closer Brandon League (0-3) couldn't hold the lead.

Jose Lopez, who tied the game in the eighth with a three-run homer, drew a leadoff walk and went to second on a wild pitch. After Shin-Soo Choo struck out, Jason Kipnis walked. Asdrubal Cabrera's single to right tied it.

METS 9, REDS 4

NEW YORK • David Wright lined his second double of the game, a tiebreaking drive in the eighth inning that raised his major league-leading average to .411 and sent New York past Cincinnati.

Ronny Cedeno's three-run homer capped a five-run eighth against Logan Ondrusek (3-1), a burst that began with a neatly placed bunt single by backup catcher Rob Johnson with one out.

PHILLIES 8, CUBS 7

CHICAGO • Roy Halladay threw eight innings for his first victory in a month and Philadelphia held off Chicago for its season-best fifth straight victory.

BRAVES 7, MARLINS 0
ATLANTA • Brandon Beachy pitched a five-hitter for his first career complete game as Atlanta beat Miami.

PIRATES 5, NATIONALS 3

WASHINGTON • Andrew McCutchen homered twice and James McDonald struck out a career-high 11 while taking a no-hitter into the sixth inning to lead Pittsburgh past Washington.

GIANTS 7, CARDINALS 5

SAN FRANCISCO • Brandon Crawford hit a two-run single for his first RBIs since April and San Francisco capitalized on shoddy fielding by St. Louis to give Matt Cain support on a rare shaky day.

DIAMONDBACKS 9, ROCKIES 7

DENVER • Justin Upton hit a two-out, two-run homer off closer Rafael Betancourt in the ninth inning to help Arizona beat Colorado in a game that was briefly delayed by a swarm of bees.

ASTROS 4, BREWERS 0

HOUSTON • Jed Lowrie hit a two-run homer and J.A. Happ pitched out of trouble for six innings before three relievers completed Houston's shutout against Milwaukee.

Transfer

NCAA President Mark Emmert has said something should be done to make transfer rules less onerous for athletes.

"My biggest concern though, frankly, isn't the optics of it but whether it's fair or not to the young men and young women," he said in February. "What's the rationale for constraining someone to move from school to school?"

NCAA spokeswoman Stacey Osburn wrote in an email to The Associated Press that NCAA schools are "currently evaluating the rule structure with the goal of simplifying the rules. The

"My biggest concern ... isn't the optics of it but whether it's fair or not to the young men and young women. What's the rationale for constraining someone to move from school to school?"

transfer rules will be examined as a part of this process."

Jackson says it just might take an act of Congress to make it so athletes can move freely from one school to another. Fellow sports attorney Christian Dennie predicted that the issue "will be a topic of discussion for the next 10 years."

Jackson said he doubted

NCAA members would rush to make meaningful changes to rules that tilt in their favor.

Transfer requests are scrutinized more by coaches now because of the possible effect they can have on a program's APR, Haney said. A program is dinged a "re-temptation point" under Academic Progress Rate rules if the departing player does not have a grade-point average of 2.6. Low overall APR scores can jeopardize a program's postseason eligibility.

An advocacy group, the National College Players Association, has begun a push to get state legislatures to force the issue.

The most progress has been made in California, where the Senate Education Committee last month passed a so-called "Student-Athlete Bill of Rights." The bill, which addresses myriad issues, would require state colleges and universities to "approve without delay a student-athlete's request for transfer to another institution of higher education without imposing restrictions or conditions."

Dennie, a Fort Worth, Texas, attorney who regularly represents athletes and institutions on NCAA matters, said he doubted a state statute would stand up to a legal challenge by the NCAA. Short of NCAA members changing the rules, Jackson said his hope would be for Congress to pass a student-athlete welfare act that would force NCAA schools to apply transfer rules uniformly.

As it is, he said, a coach can deny a transfer out of vengeance or without giving any reason.

Jackson said he considered asking for an injunction against the NCAA that would have allowed O'Brien to play for UAB this past season. But Jackson decided against it because UAB's administration feared any wins in which O'Brien participated would have to be forfeited if the NCAA prevailed. Dennie said he's never taken a transfer case to court because the chances of winning are slim.

Coaches have argued that the time and financial resources they put into recruiting and developing players should give them the right to block certain transfers. They also say some schools tamper with players and that coaches can counter the hijinks by blocking a transfer.

Meanwhile, athletes on one-year renewable scholarships say they are liable to get run off if they underperform athletically. They point to regular students who are allowed to move from one school to the next and accept a scholarship from their new school.

How to Make Children's Pets Part of Your Family

One must-ask question: As a family, are you able and willing to provide the care (and space) that your desired pet will need? Pets — especially puppies — are very time-consuming (and that's an even bigger deal when you've got a toddler who needs you, too). So think carefully about whether you have enough energy and patience for both. An older dog or cat (or a fish or a bird) may be a better choice than a puppy, especially for young families.

It's important to research the best pet for your family before purchasing it; it's also smart to prep your toddler/children on proper pet care and behavior if you want him to reap the full benefits of having a pet. If you're introducing dogs, cats, or other furry, feathered, finned children's pets into your home for the first time, here's advice on how to transform your toddler/children into a kinder, gentler pet owner: Set up a pet play date: Hang out with a friend or relative's good-natured pooch, kitty, or other cute critter before you bring yours home.

Keep playtime sessions short and sweet: Keep those first getting-to-know-you sessions brief so neither your tot nor the animal gets overwhelmed.

Stay by her side: For your child's safety, always, always, always supervise her when she's around an animal.

Teach gentleness: Make sure your tot knows that she needs to be gentle with the new family pet.

Manage mealtimes: Don't let your little one eat around the pet and vice-versa.

Fair Housing Resolution
Resolution # 2009-14

LET IT BE KNOWN TO ALL PERSONS OF the City of Shoshone that discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, gender or national origin in the sale, rental, leasing or financing of housing or land to be used for construction of housing or in the provision of brokerage services is prohibited by Title VIII of the 1968 Civil Rights Act (Federal Fair Housing Law).
It is the policy of the City of Shoshone to encourage equal opportunity in housing for all persons regardless of race, color, religion, gender or national origin. The Fair Housing Amendments Act of 1988 expands coverage to include disabled persons and families with children. Therefore, the City does hereby pass the following Resolution.
BE IT RESOLVED that within available resources the City will assist all persons who feel they have been discriminated against because of race, color, religion, gender, national origin, disability or familial status to seek equity under federal and state laws by referring them to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Office of Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, Compliance Division.
BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the City shall publicize this Resolution and through this publicity shall encourage owners of real estate, developers, and builders to become aware of their respective responsibilities and rights under the Federal Fair Housing Law and amendments and any applicable state or local laws or ordinances.
SAID PROGRAM will at a minimum include: 1) publicizing this resolution; 2) posting applicable fair housing information in prominent public areas; 3) providing fair housing information to the public; 4) preparing a fair housing impediments analysis; and 5) declaring April as Fair Housing Month.
EFFECTIVE DATE
This Resolution shall take effect April 6, 2010.
Re-affirmed this 21st day of February, 2012.

NOTICE OF FEE INCREASE

The Jerome School District #261 has proposed to increase its lunch fees by an amount that exceeds (5%) of the fee charged last year. The proposed increase of (9.4%) is (4.4%) percent above five percent (5%) of the fees charged the previous year for elementary and the proposed increase of (9.5%) is (4.5%) above five percent (5%) of the fees charged the previous year for secondary. The following is an estimate of what these changes may mean to students.

	Last year Fee	This year Fee	Percent Increase	Last year cost per student	This year cost per student	Exceptions
Elementary,	$1.60	$1.70	9.4%	$275.20	$292.40	Qualifies for
Middle & High School	$1.85	$1.95	9.5%	$318.20	$335.40	free or reduced lunch

This fee increase is due to an increase of food and non-food costs, and Federal Government regulations for the 2012-2013 school year.
All citizens are invited to attend a public hearing on the increased fee request. The hearing will be held at the regular board meeting held on May 22, 2012 at 6:00 p.m at the Jerome School District #261 board room at 125 4th Avenue West, Jerome, Idaho.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorced man with a live-in girlfriend I'll call Donna. Her two boys also live with us. Donna's older son will graduate from high school this year, and she has planned a party that her mother and other family members will attend from out of state.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

My daughter, "Sara," is graduating from the same high school. Sara has shared her concerns with me that Donna's family won't care about celebrating her graduation. I tried to assure her that it's my day to celebrate her accomplishment with her.

I discussed this with Donna and asked if we could recognize Sara at her son's party. Donna refused because my ex is having a party for Sara, and her son would be an invited guest but not the celebrated graduate there.

I say it's a different scenario because I'm Sara's father and if I were remarried, we'd celebrate the step-sibling graduation together. Donna then told me she has some issues with the way Sara behaves at times. I feel this has given me an insight that I don't like. How should I handle this upcoming graduation and other important issues?

- MIXED FEELINGS IN MISSOURI

DEAR MIXED FEELINGS: Handle the graduation and other important issues by keeping them SEPARATE. While it would be generous for Sara to be acknowledged at Donna's son's party, it isn't mandatory — and I'm sure the reverse isn't planned for the party your ex is hosting for Sara.

What the circumstances "would be" if you and Donna were married instead of living together is irrelevant because you are not married and the graduates are not step-siblings. However, this does point up that Donna has not warmed to Sara as much as she might have and you might wish she had. And, because it could be a deal-breaker, this is an issue that should be examined carefully in the very near future.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl. I love my mother, but she puts very little effort into how she looks. She has been divorced since I was a baby and hasn't dated much. When it comes to how we dress, we are complete opposites. I like to put on real clothes, even if I'm accompanying my mom to the grocery store. She goes out wearing sweats and no bra.

Sometimes I try to help her by picking out her outfits for the week, but she gets mad when I say anything about her no-bra rule. She says I'm trying to pressure her to be someone she's not. Maybe I am, but I want her to meet people and go on dates. It feels like she has no pride in what she looks like. I care about her, but I can't help but see that she could improve.

- DOTING DAUGHTER IN MARYLAND

DEAR DOTING DAUGHTER: We could all "improve," but if your mother is comfortable with herself as she is, you should try to accept her that way. Many women find bras uncomfortable, and if they don't have to wear them they don't — especially when wearing loose sweatshirts.

Your mother appears to be happy with her circumstances. When she's ready to try to attract male attention, she will. You are sweet to want to help her, but trying to manipulate her isn't working, so for both your sakes, cut it out.

IF MAY 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are riding on a cloud of blissful inspiration during the next four to six weeks. You are feeling optimistic with good cause, since all is right with your world, and your business sense is honed to a sharp edge. You will have sound cosmic assistance for any plans you put into motion and could receive valuable advice or opportunities. Plan ahead so you don't need to put any major plans into motion during August and September when unfavorable conditions are in process. Next February, you will find love in all the right places and can make a successful job change, ask for promotions, or make a key romantic commitment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Networking helps you work. New contacts can highlight hidden talents and showcase buried brilliance. The contacts, counselors or groups you meet now may foster beneficial future progress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. You may feel that you don't fit into a group. Let a companion sweet talk you into attending a meeting or seminar and you will find plenty of reasons to join.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The brain is more than an educational toy. Use your knowledge to translate inspiring words into action. Don't become immersed in fantasies, but use them as stepping stones towards accomplishment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Social pressures may put you on the spot. You would love to live up to your fantasies but simply can't afford champagne on a beer budget. The novel and extraordinary might attract your interest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Even a mirage will break up the monotony. Existing relationships may seem slightly dull or tiresome compared to a fantasy romance. Hang out with new faces for a few hours or escape from the ordinary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): If you work your fingers to the bone, you might end up with bony fingers. You could be discontented if you don't receive adequate rewards for your efforts. You might imagine your work is worth more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your worst fault might be your preoccupation with the faults of others. The largest problem is the tendency to see how much others have and compare it to what you have and then imagine you have less.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence. That might be because you haven't looked at it up close or examined all the angles. Think twice before breaking off a relationship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Choose a side rather than straddling the fence. You might have one foot in the present and one foot in a fantasy. Commit yourself to taking a positive course of action that leads to a better future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tackle jobs that require deep concentration. Shake off self-imposed limitations and bypass obstacles. Ignore pipe dreams; get right to the point and using dynamic interpersonal skills.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fleeting fantasies might give you a case of the fidgets. You might become dissatisfied with your present situation compared to others. You must work very hard to preserve valuable relationships.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A sharp wit can make a point that is hurtful. Mingle with others at a group function or community event and you might stumble upon the missing ingredient needed to launch an idea or future project.

ANSWER: There is no need to panic and pass; your partner has shown a very good hand with 5-6 pattern, and longer diamonds than spades. You have very little to offer him, but you know diamonds rate to play better than spades because of the extra trump. So just bid three diamonds now, and let your partner decide where to go from there.

Today is Friday, May 18, the 139th day of 2012. There are 227 days left in the year.
Today's Highlight:
On May 18, 1926, evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson vanished while visiting a beach in Venice, Calif. (McPherson reappeared more than a month later, saying she'd escaped after being kidnapped and held for ransom, an account that was greeted with skepticism in some quarters.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1012, Theophylact, son of Gregory, Count of Tusculum, became Pope Benedict VIII, succeeding Pope Sergius IV.
In 1642, the Canadian city of Montreal was founded by French colonists.
In 1765, about one-fourth of Montreal was destroyed by a fire.
In 1896, the Supreme Court, in Plessy v. Ferguson, endorsed "separate but equal" racial segregation, a concept renounced 58 years later in Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka.

In 1910, Halley's Comet passed by earth, brushing it with its tail.

In 1912, singer Perry Como was born in Canonsburg, Pa.; movie writer-director Richard Brooks ("Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"; "Elmer Gantry"; "In Cold Blood") was born in Philadelphia.

In 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a measure creating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

In 1953, Jacqueline Cochran became the first woman to break the sound barrier as she piloted a Canadair F-86 Sabre jet over Rogers Dry Lake, Calif.

In 1969, astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Thomas P. Stafford and John W. Young blasted off aboard Apollo 10 on a mission to orbit the moon.

In 1980, the Mount St. Helens volcano in Washington state exploded, leaving 57 people dead or missing.

In 1982, a jury in New York City convicted the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, founder and leader of the Unification Church, of tax evasion and conspiracy. (Moon served 13 months in prison.)

In 1991, Helen Sharman became the first Briton to rocket into space as she flew aboard a Soviet Soyuz spacecraft with two cosmonauts on an eight-day mission to the Mir space station.

Ten years ago: India and Pakistan exchanged fire across their shared border, renewing fears the countries were on the brink of another war over the Himalayan region of Kashmir. War Emblem won the Preakness Stakes, setting up a shot at the Triple Crown. (However, War Emblem came up short at the Belmont Stakes, which was won by long shot Sarava.)

Five years ago: The White House and Congress failed to strike a deal after exchanging competing offers on an Iraq war spending bill that Democrats said should set a date for U.S. troops to leave. France's new president, Nicolas Sarkozy (sahr-koh-ZEE'), named a radically revamped cabinet which included seven women among its 15 members.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
