Grouse Group Leaves Last Meeting with Work Still to Do

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

IDAHO FALLS • Flipping their thumbs up to show their votes of approval, a group of state, industry and conservation representatives waited in anxious silence.

“Alright,” said Tom Perry, nodding his head as a signal when he finished counting. “Class dismissed.”

With that, Idaho’s Sage Grouse Task Force finished approving a series of frameworks Thursday on how to better protect sage grouse populations and habitats.

Federal officials declared the bird a candidate for endangered species protection in 2010. A year later, a federal judge approved a settlement requiring a final listing decision for the bird by 2015.

Gov. C.L. “Butch” Otter originally gave the task force a June 1 deadline to submit its draft recommendations. But by midday on Thursday, Perry — the group’s co-facilitator and legal adviser to the governor — decided the task force’s subcommittees need more time to tie up the remaining loose ends.

There was little disagreement on recommendations pertaining to suppressing wildfires and control invasive species. Members agreed to propose halting new development — including wind, transmission and oil and gas projects — in habitat identified as a priority for sage grouse.

Members are also suggesting that the state should continue to involve local working groups in its sage grouse management. LWGs are volunteer groups spread throughout the state tasked with developing site-specific

Missing T.F. Teen Is Back Home Safe

In small towns like Murtaugh, high-school graduates share close bonds.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

MURTAUGH • As the sound of “Pomp & Circumstance” filled the school gym, it didn’t take long for Murtaugh’s graduating seniors to practice entering the room.

That’s because there are only 10.

It was the morning before their Wednesday night graduation ceremony. Like graduation rehearsals at larger schools, the students practiced going on stage, getting their diplomas and making speeches.

The difference: There weren’t any unfamiliar faces in the room.

“I like it,” Fatima Miranda said about being in a small graduating class.

Many of Murtaugh’s graduates went to school together for years. Others — like senior Vanesa Cabral — moved away, but ended up coming back.

Senior Humberto Pacheco said graduating classes at other schools describe themselves as a “family,” but they don’t compare with Murtaugh.

That family-like feel, though, sometimes means classmates know too much about each other.

“In our Murtaugh school, everyone knows about everything,” Pacheco said.

Murtaugh is one of the smallest south-central Idaho school districts, with about 200 total students. School buildings sit in a sparsely populated area surrounded by agricultural fields.

All of the graduates plan to go on to college — nine to the College of

Another T.F. Teen Reported Missing

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A 17-year-old Twin Falls girl is missing.

Audry Sherline was last seen on May 18 with her boyfriend, 20-year-old Nathaniel Gonzales of Twin Falls, said her mother, Cassandra Tully.

Sherline is 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, has black hair and hazel eyes.

According to a missing person’s flier put out by the Twin Falls Police Department, Sherline and Gonzales have been seen frequenting Boo Boo’s, a skate shop near downtown Twin Falls.

“I think she’s scared to come home,” said Don Tully, Sherline’s stepfather. “There’s nothing to be scared of.”

Anyone with information on Sherline should call 208-735-4357.

Oakley Sixth-Graders to Begin Using iPads

OAKLEY • Oakley Elementary School sixth graders will have iPads to use in the classroom this fall thanks to two of the school's teachers who applied for a $10,000 grant.

The iPads will be used for research projects and to help students share newly learned information. Students will create Podcasts where the students will discuss what they learned in the classroom with online audiences.

Teachers Emily Barnes and Vicki Babbitt received the technology grant from Century Link, which merged with Qwest in 2011.

The grant was presented Tuesday at the school by Century Link Idaho Vice President and General Manager Jim Schmit.

"This is a great opportunity for CenturyLink to make a positive difference in students' lives and help teachers," Schmit said. "Through this grant program, we have seen that there are many teachers across Idaho who are successfully integrating iPads, laptops, digital imaging and other technology into the classroom. It is nice to be able to recognize teachers like Ms. Barnes and Ms. Babbitt for the energy, creativity and passion they bring to their students."

The learning apps on the iPad will be used to increase the number of specially designed learning opportunities for students in special populations. The iPads will also start moving the sixth grade toward becoming a paperless classroom where students learn, complete assignments and share their knowledge through the iPad.

Kimberly Slates Downtown Revitalization Meeting

BY DAVE WILKINS
 For the Times-News

KIMBERLY • Kimberly residents will get an opportunity next week to learn all about the city's proposed downtown revitalization project.

A town hall meeting is slated for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Middle School Commons Room.

Phase one of the project will involve the renovation of a three-block stretch of Main Street, including sidewalks, curb, on-street angle parking and landscaping. The improvements would bring the city into compliance with new American Disability Act requirements.

Kimberly has applied for a $500,000 block grant from the Idaho Department of Commerce that would pay for most of the project. Total costs are estimated to be nearly $800,000.

The resignation of City Administrator Polly Hulsey in early April hurt the city's chances of receiving the grant because she was the city's point of contact with the Department of Commerce. The city has begun interviewing candidates to replace her and is expected to hire someone soon.

Kimberly officials still believe the city has a good chance of landing the grant. They're hopeful the town hall meeting will give them a chance to answer questions and reaffirm their commitment to the project.

"Our goal is to continue to bring the public up to speed, answer questions and try to dispel some concerns," Mayor Tracy Armstrong said Tuesday during a City Council meeting. "We'd like to move forward on the project."

Kimberly lost points on its grant application after Hulsey resigned, but the city has since submitted a letter for reconsideration.

J-U-B Engineers Inc. is handling the design and engineering work.

"The grant is not dead. There is still a good chance we can get it," J-U-B project manager Ivan McCracken told the council.

Parking is likely to be a major issue. Preliminary design plans include "bulb outs," or rounded sidewalk extensions, at the end of each block.

The bulb outs are intended to improve pedestrian safety, but they also reduce the total number of on-street parking spaces, a major concern for downtown shop owners.

A minimum of two hand-capped parking spaces will also be required on each block to meet federal guidelines, further reducing the total number of parking spaces.

"We do have a parking issue," McCracken said. "There may be times when you can't park on the same block as your intended destination."

Library Expansion

Also on Tuesday, the council directed city attorney William Hollifield to draw up a resolution that would designate the old train depot and one-time city hall building at 120 Madison St. W. as a city library. The council also agreed to a transfer of $25,000 in city general funds to establish a dedicated building fund for the library. The library board wants to renovate and possibly expand the building.

Council members discussed at length whether the library board should be able to determine on its own how the funds are spent. Most agreed that the city should hold the purse strings.

If the library board had full discretion over the building funds, it might be less inclined to take advantage of available city resources, Councilman Brandon Hoobler suggested.

"I agree that the money needs to go to library renovations," he said. "However, I believe that there needs to be a little bit more (city) control."

Grads

The graduating seniors spent one of their last school days on a class trip Tuesday to the Lagoon amusement park in Utah.

Back in Murtaugh for graduation rehearsal the next day, each graduate received a present from school employees: an alarm clock. Graduates also received two books hand-picked to match their interests, with handwritten notes inside.

Cabral said the best things about being at a small school are forming strong friendships and getting to know teachers.

Her teachers, she said, pushed everyone to graduate — even if it meant making seniors come in on Saturdays to finish assignments.

"The teachers really care about us," she said.

In other small school districts like Murtaugh, many students grew up with a core group of classmates.

In Castleford, there are 20 graduating seniors this year. The school's graduation ceremony is scheduled for May 31.

"Of the 20, there's probably say three-quarters of them that have spent the whole time here," Superintendent Andy Wiseman said.

It's a similar scenario in Hansen. There, 23 seniors will graduate June 7.

"Out of the group, there was only one that transferred (in) during high school," junior/senior high Principal Bert Hursh said.

Richfield graduated just 12 seniors this spring. It's a fairly typical number for the school, which usually has between 12 and 20 graduates each year.

Superintendent Barbara Thronson said the graduates are all going on to a technical school or college next year.

A crowd of people came to graduation Monday night, she said — including family members, friends, alumni and community members.

"Our community just values high school graduation," Thronson said.

This year's is only the second high-school graduating class for Xavier Charter School in Twin Falls. The school will graduate 13 seniors during a ceremony June 1.

Lead teacher Thad Biggers said there were only seven graduates last year. Next year, he expects the number of graduates to grow to the high 20s.

"We're going to get bigger as we go," he said.

Grants Expand Fruits, Vegetables in School Lunches

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • More than 100 Idaho elementary schools will be awarded Fresh Fruit and Vegetable grants to provide students with healthy snacks during the school day.

The Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program is part of a federal initiative by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to offer schools a wider variety of fresh produce.

The goal is to create healthier school environments by expanding the variety of fruits and vegetables children experience, increasing children's fruit and vegetable consumption, and making a difference in children's diets to impact their present and future health.

This year, 112 Idaho schools will be awarded grants. Students may be given the opportunity to try exotic fruits and vegetables such as mangosteen, persimmon, romanesco or sea beans.

They may also get to try fruits and vegetables they recognize, but in a different form. For example, many

The last Bambi Bell heard from her daughter before the phone call was in the form of a note she found on Mother's Day saying she was running away.

Kayla is being treated for a viral infection, but is otherwise healthy, Bambi said.

"I cannot express my gratitude to the community enough for their help and assistance," Bambi said.

Twin Falls Police Lt. Craig Stotts said Kayla left with a friend, Justin Bartholome, who was arrested Sunday evening in Twin Falls on a warrant for failing to appear in drug court.

Police asked him about

Kayla, but Bartholome denied knowing her whereabouts, Stotts said. Bartholome also denied being in Salt Lake City.

Another Twin Falls teenager, 17-year-old Audry Sherline, is still missing. Sherline and Bell aren't friends, said Sherline's mother Cassandra Tully, and the cases don't appear to be related.

"I'm confident that we'll have something to present to the governor before June 30," Moore said.

They're Training Now for the Wildfires Ahead

JEROME • Its diesel engine straining, a U.S. Bureau of Land Management fire truck climbed a steep dirt road on Thursday.

It's fire-training season again, and BLM firefighters from around the state are in the Magic Valley honing their skills and learning new ones.

A total 15 wildfire engines carried 27 students and 15 teachers Thursday during the training in the Devil's Corral area of Jerome County. After three days of classroom work, the firefighters are in the field Thursday and today.

Seven stations made up the training course on Thursday. Firefighters ran through various scenarios including mobile attack exercises, hosing down an area with water, changing a flat tire and negotiating their vehicles over rough terrain.

"The training helps the crews fight fires more efficiently and safely" said BLM firefighter Mitch Silvester.

They may have a busy fire season ahead of them, as officials say south-central Idaho desert plants are already drying out. Moisture levels in plants considered potential wildfire fuel are low compared to 10-year averages.

"I'm a little nervous about this fire season," Silvester said.

Fire officials ask the public to do its part to prevent fires by being cautious with campfires and making sure vehicles are maintained before heading to the outdoors.

Idaho Town Seeks to Lure Gun and Ammo Makers

BY NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

POTLATCH • This small community in the forested, western foothills of the Rocky Mountains was created as a company town to house workers for the nation's largest white pine sawmill, and its tidy homes and straight, tree-lined streets are a testament to its planners.

But the town has slumbered since the Potlatch Lumber Co. mill closed in 1981, and was searching for an economic future when an ammunition maker decided last year to move its operations from the liberal Seattle area to this more conservative region.

The move by PNW Arms was like a signal flare to business and political leaders in the town of 800 people, who were in the process of trying to determine what industry would be best to pursue.

"We were in the middle of doing our marketing plan at the time and decided that firearms is the niche we would recommend," said Gary White of Kennewick, Wash., a business marketing consultant who is helping develop the town's pitch to gun makers.

Potlatch, they decided, would go from timber town to gun town. It would try to lure firearms and ammunition makers, and plans also called for hunting-themed housing and retail development.

"It will help draw some out-of-towners and out-of-staters," Mayor David Brown said.

Potlatch's efforts piggyback on a national trend in which firearms-friendly states are trying to pry gun and ammo makers out of the Midwest and Northeast, where some states have more restrictive gun laws.

The Idaho Department of Commerce is making firearms manufacturers a recruiting priority. The state recently passed a law that protects firearms makers from liability lawsuits or excessive regulation, White said.

"Lots of states are anti-firearms states," White said. "That is what Idaho is playing against, positioning itself as a firearms friendly state."

Firearms are a $3.8 billion industry that employs 90,000 people in the United States. The industry includes household names like Remington, Winchester, Smith & Wesson and Colt, but also more than 1,000 smaller companies.

"There are a number of states in the South and out West that have pitched to have companies relocate or start businesses in their states," said Lawrence Keane, spokesman for the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the industry trade group.

South Dakota has had some success in luring companies, and states like Alabama, Montana, Idaho and Arizona have also rolled out the welcome mat, Keane said.

Many firearms companies have long been headquartered in states like Massachusetts and Connecticut, where the political climate has turned more hostile to firearms. Massachusetts, for example, has passed laws limiting the number of guns people can buy. Several states have passed or proposed laws calling for their gun makers to "micro-stamp" handguns with a mark on the firing pin that would allow bullet casings to be identifiable by gun owner.

No such fears in Idaho, a conservative state where firearms are a daily part of many people's lives.

"The regulatory environment in Idaho is friendly to guns and ammunition and we thought we could take this and run with it," said B.J. Swanson, head of economic development for Latah County.

Potlatch went public in April with its come-hither pitch to gun makers.

"We've had two nibbles already and we haven't even tried," Swanson said.

MEDIATION ORDERED IN IDAHO EXECUTION POLICY SUIT

BY TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge has ordered mediation talks between Idaho prison officials and more than a dozen news organizations that are challenging a policy that limits public access to lethal injection executions.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Lodge handed down the order Thursday, two days after The Associated Press, the Times-News and 15 other news organizations filed a lawsuit seeking to force the Idaho Department of Correction to let witnesses view the execution process from start to finish.

The lawsuit is not intended to obstruct the state's June 12 scheduled execution of convicted murderer Richard Leavitt. Instead, it focuses on a narrow section of the agency's execution protocol.

Like most states with lethal injection, Idaho's policy bars witnesses from watching as a condemned inmate is brought into the execution chamber, strapped to the table and has IVs inserted into his or her arms. The news organizations say reporters must be able to view executions from start to finish so they can accurately report the events — and any complications that may emerge — to the public.

Lodge's order requires the parties to quickly begin nonbinding mediation on or before June 1 under the supervision of Magistrate Judge Candy Dale.

"Any opportunity to mediate a case is a positive development for both parties," said Chuck Brown, the Lewiston attorney representing the news groups. "It avoids some of the uncertainty of how a third party, in this case a judge, might rule in the future."

An IDOC spokesman says agency officials are still waiting to be served with the initial complaint filed Tuesday.

"When we are, we will take appropriate action," said spokesman Jeff Ray.

The agency has defended its policy on grounds that keeping the first few steps private is essential to protecting the anonymity of the execution team. The agency also denied multiple requests by the news organizations to modify its protocol before the media turned to the federal courts.

Other plaintiffs joining the suit include the Idaho Statesman, Lewiston Tribune, Moscow-Pullman Daily News, Spokesman-Review, Boise Weekly, The Idaho Press Club and Idahoans for Openness in Government. The plaintiffs also include newspapers with Pioneer Newspapers with Pioneer Newspapers, including the Idaho State Journal and Idaho Press Tribune.

The lawsuit relies heavily on a 2002 San Francisco-based federal appeals court ruling that found that witnesses should be allowed to view executions from the moment the condemned enters the death chamber until their final heartbeat.

Since the ruling, only two states under the court's nine-state jurisdiction are following it: California, where the case arose, and Nevada, which changed its policy after media challenged rules barring witnesses from viewing the entire process. Idaho, Arizona, Washington and Montana have all barred witnesses from the first portion of lethal injection executions.

Most states nationwide do the same. Of the 27 states that have lethal injection outside of the circuit's jurisdiction, only Ohio and Georgia allow witnesses to see the entire process.

The lawsuit comes at a time when questions have been raised about whether the lethal cocktail of drugs used in the procedure is effective and whether the execution staff is properly trained. Some death row inmates have challenged the constitutionality of lethal injection executions in court, contending that the insertion of the IVs can be easily botched, causing severe pain for the condemned.

Girl with Cancer Can't Walk at Graduation

BOISE • A Boise girl who has battled illness through high school and is four electives shy of graduating is being denied the opportunity to walk across the stage with her Timberline High School classmates at graduation.

KTVB-TV reports Haylee Winters plans to finish her credits over the summer, but school officials won't make an exception to its policy of not letting anyone short on credits to participate in the graduation ceremony.

Winters recently finished a year of intense chemotherapy for a cancerous brain tumor. Her mother, Jackee Winters, says the treatment shrunk the tumor but also made classwork difficult.

Boise School District spokesman Dan Hollar says the district notified the family in February of a plan to make sure Winters could graduate on time.

Graduation is May 30.

Boise Could See Share of HP Layoffs

BOISE • A Hewlett-Packard Co. spokesman says the recent round of layoffs could impact jobs at the company's Boise campus.

Spokesman Michael Thacker told the Idaho Statesman Wednesday the 27,000 company-wide job cuts will hit every business and region.

Thacker did not provide any specifics on the impact to the Boise facility. The company is one of the biggest employers in the Treasure Valley, with nearly 4,000 workers.

Executives said they plan to cut jobs in reaction to the growing popularity of smartphones, the iPad and other mobile devices make it tougher on the personal computer market.

The streamlining represents HP's largest payroll purge in its 73-year history. The reductions will affect about 8 percent of HP's nearly 350,000 employees by the time the overhaul is completed in October 2014.

29 Sandpoint Seniors Punished for Prank

SANDPOINT • Twenty-nine Sandpoint High School students got one final lesson before graduation — you'll pay for a senior class prank that damages the school.

Sandpoint Police Chief Mark Lockwood tells The Spokesman-Review the students took a counselor's keys and entered the building about a week ago. Surveillance video revealed they urinated in the school, put Vaseline on door knobs and wrote messages on windows and doors using washable ink.

Superintendent Dick Cvitanich said he met with the principal and the students Wednesday and is satisfied the students are taking responsibility for their actions.

They have to complete 15 hours of volunteer work to be allowed to walk at their commencement ceremonies. The students also have been asked to pay for nearly $1,000 in damages. No criminal charges have been filed.

Yellowstone Set for Summer Season Kick-off

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. • Yellowstone National Park is ready for another summer season.

All park entrances are open, and the road over

Dunraven Pass linking Canyon Village and Tower Fall is scheduled to open on Friday morning. Also set to open Friday is the Beartooth Highway, which connects the communities of Red Lodge and Cooke City, Mont., and the park's Northeast Entrance.

Most seasonal visitor services are open in time for the Memorial Day weekend. Saturday also marks the opening of fishing season in the park.

There will be no daytime travel delays or overnight road closures due to construction during the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Spring visitors to the park are encouraged to have flexible travel plans and to be prepared for a wide range of weather conditions.

Thousands of drums holding radioactive waste are seen in August 2010 in the Advanced Mixed Waste Treatment project at the Idaho National Laboratory.

Idaho National Laboratory Chief Suggested Revising Nuke Deal

BY ROCKY BARKER
Idaho Statesman

BOISE • Two former Idaho governors are telling Gov. Butch Otter to stick to a 1995 agreement that requires the federal government to remove all nuclear waste from the Idaho National Laboratory in the next 23 years.

Otter responded Wednesday that he has always stood by the agreement.

In separate guest opinions for the Idaho Statesman, Democrat Cecil Andrus and Republican Phil Batt wrote that the agreement, upheld by voters in 1996 by more than 62 percent, should not be renegotiated.

Andrus said Sunday that INL and state government officials were “hatching a secret scheme” to push for a new agreement.

“I have no knowledge of (any scheme), but I can state that we would be foolish, indeed, to renegotiate the agreement and accept commercial spent fuel,” Batt wrote.

INL is the nation’s lead federal laboratory on nuclear energy.

In February, Gov. Butch Otter created the Leadership In Nuclear Energy Commission to examine how the INL can continue its role in state and national economic growth and energy security.

The 13-member panel is chaired by Otter Commerce Department Director Jeff Sayer. When it met April 7, briefing papers by INL officials included a proposal to begin negotiations to revise the settlement to accept additional nuclear waste and to extend the deadline for all waste to leave to 2050.

Andrus’ guest opinion was based on that 2010 document, since obtained by the Idaho Statesman.

Document Now Obsolete

INL Director John Grossenbacher said it was an internal document he shared with staff to outline his thinking at the time and is now outdated.

It was never a formal proposal, he said, and was mistakenly included in the commission’s papers this spring.

But the INL chief said he did present the idea of revising the settlement to Otter in 2010.

“He was appropriately skeptical and serious about this. He didn’t stand up and cheer and say, ‘Let’s go do this,’” Grossenbacher said.

“Very mindful of the settlement agreement, he didn’t decide anything or promise anything.”

In a guest opinion he submitted Wednesday, Otter was clear that he isn’t budging.

“I’ll say this as plainly and as unequivocally as I can: Idaho will NOT be a repository for nuclear waste,” Otter wrote. “There is no scheme — secret or otherwise — and I have stated repeatedly and publicly that Idaho will not be the nation’s nuclear dumping ground.”

Grossenbacher took issue with Andrus’ characterization of his discussion as a “scheme” or conspiracy.

“The thoughts and ideas and proposals of the INL lab director do not constitute a scheme,” Grossenbacher said.

More Waste?

In 2011, Otter ignored Andrus’ opposition to a Department of Energy plan to trade about 880 pounds of federal waste with an equal amount of commercial waste that is used for research at the INL. But Batt backed up Otter and the DOE’s interpretation that the 1995 agreement did allow such trades.

Grossenbacher’s 2010 proposal called for Idaho to accept interim storage of 3,000 tons of “orphan” spent fuel from commercial reactors that have been shut down, such as the Trojan Nuclear Reactor west of Portland. But Grossenbacher said New Mexico already has expressed an interest in the spent fuel.

He said Idaho could create jobs and help solve the nuclear waste storage problems that arose when President Barack Obama decided not to place 70,000 tons of spent fuel in the Yucca Mountain facility in Nevada — and could do that without revising the Batt agreement. But it also could do more if Idahoans chose to make revisions.

“The people of the state of Idaho sustained my nuclear waste agreement by a wide margin,” Batt wrote in Thursday’s Statesman. “Any substantive changes should not be accepted without a similar percentage of Idahoans demanding it.”

Broken Promises?

Former Atomic Energy Commission Chairwoman Dixie Lee Ray first promised to then-Gov. Andrus in 1972 that the federal government would remove buried radioactive waste from Idaho. The feds missed the first deadline in the late 1970s and the second one in 1988.

“We’ve been lied to and we’ve been cheated,” Andrus told members of the Idaho Conservation League at a conference Saturday at Redfish Lake Lodge near Stanley.

Andrus closed Idaho to further waste shipments in 1988, sending the Idaho State Patrol to the border to enforce the ban. Batt allowed several shipments shortly after taking office in early 1995.

But amid a public outcry, he stopped the shipments until the DOE signed the landmark agreement, which included timetables for removing buried waste and spent fuel.

That deal meant commercial spent fuel was specifically banned from storage at the INL, with a few exceptions. If the federal government doesn’t remove all of the waste from Idaho by 2035, it is required to pay the state $60,000 a day.

"Whoever fills the tummy gets the vote."

Naima Badawi, an Egyptian housewife commenting on the elections in her country

Jamie Dimon's Deja Vu Debacle

Sometimes it's hard to explain why we need strong financial regulation – especially in an era saturated with pro-business, pro-market propaganda. So we should always be grateful when someone makes the case for regulation more compelling and easier to understand. And this week, that means offering a special shout-out to two men: Jamie Dimon and Mitt Romney.

I'll come back shortly to the troubles at JPMorgan Chase, the bank Dimon runs. First, however, let me talk about Romney, whose remarks about those troubles were so off-point that they constitute a teachable moment.

Here's what the presumptive Republican presidential nominee said about JPMorgan's $2 billion loss (which may actually have been $3 billion, or $5 billion, or more, but who's counting?): "This was a loss to shareholders and owners of JPMorgan and that's the way America works. Some people experienced a loss in this case because of a bad decision. By the way, there was someone who made a gain." What's wrong with this statement? Well, suppose that someone – say, Jimmy Stewart, in the movie "It's a Wonderful Life" – runs a bank that takes in deposits and invests the money in various ways. And suppose that one of those investments is a risky bet on some complex financial instrument, with Mr. Potter, the evil plutocrat, on the other side.

If Jimmy Stewart's bet pays off, we're in Romney-world: He's made money, Mr. Potter has lost money, and that's that. But suppose Jimmy Stewart loses his bet. If the bet was big enough, he no longer has enough assets to pay off his depositors. His bank collapses, probably in a chaotic bank run that takes down the whole town's economy as collateral damage. Mr. Potter makes money on the deal, but so what?

The point is that it's not OK for banks to take the kinds of risks that are acceptable for individuals, because when banks take on too much risk they put the whole economy in jeopardy – unless they can count on being bailed out. And the prospect of such bailouts, of course, only strengthens the case that banks shouldn't be allowed to run wild, since they are in effect gambling with taxpayers' money. Incidentally, how is it possible that Romney doesn't understand all of this? His whole candidacy is based on the claim that his experience at extracting money from troubled businesses means that he'll know how to run the economy – yet whenever he talks about economic policy, he comes across as completely clueless. Anyway, it goes without saying that Jamie Dimon is no Jimmy Stewart. But he has, in a way, been playing Jimmy Stewart on TV, posing as a responsible banker who knows how to manage risk – and therefore the point man in Wall Street's fight to block any tightening of regulations despite the immense damage deregulated banks have already inflicted on our economy. Trust us, Dimon has in effect been saying, we've got this covered and it won't happen again. Now the truth is coming out. That multibillion-dollar loss wasn't an isolated event; it was an accident waiting to happen. For even as Dimon was giving speeches about responsible banking, his own institution was heaping on the risk.

"The unit at the center of JPMorgan's $2 billion trading loss," reports The Financial Times, "has built up positions totaling more than $100 billion in asset-backed securities and structured products – the complex, risky bonds at the center of the financial crisis in 2008. These holdings are in addition to those in credit derivatives which led to the losses." And what was going on as these positions were being accumulated? According to a fascinating report in Sunday's Times, the reality behind JPMorgan's facade of competence was a scene all too reminiscent of the behavior that brought down firms like AIG in 2008: arrogant executives shouting down anyone who tried to question their activities, top management that didn't ask questions as long as the money kept rolling in. It really is deja vu all over again.

The point, again, is that an institution like JPMorgan – a too-big-to-fail bank, not to mention a bank whose deposits are already guaranteed by U.S. taxpayers – shouldn't be engaged in this kind of speculative investment at all. And that's why we need a return to much stronger financial regulation, stronger even than the Dodd-Frank regulations passed back in 2010.

Will we get that kind of regulation? Not if Romney wins, obviously; he wants to repeal Dodd-Frank, and in general he has made it clear that he would do everything in his power to set us up for another financial crisis. Even if President Barack Obama is re-elected, getting the kind of regulation we need will be an uphill struggle. But as Dimon's debacle has just demonstrated, that struggle remains as necessary as ever.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stop Ruining Twin Falls' Most Beautiful Asset

The Twin Falls City Council should vote "no" on any more development near the canyon rim. "Mother Nature" has already developed the rim as is. Gosh! We are paving paradise, the canyon rim. Why? All for corporate greed and money, money, money! The rim has had enough business saturation. Why spoil Twin Falls' most beautiful asset!

There are many existing commercial buildings for lease in our fair town. Look at the empty Banner Furniture building and other empty buildings in our unique downtown. Surely remodeling existing commercial properties in our town would be less than building anew. Our downtown is so unique and yet, it has not been developed to its full potential. Hmmm. Let's think about where curb and gutter already exist and go from there.

Dog Owners Were Not Responsible Users of the Softball Fields

So, adult softball season is here and as we have few fields in town we have to use what we have. I have noticed that you let our softball fields at Frontier get used as a dog park this winter, which would be fine if people had respect and picked up after their dogs! But they don't.

I'm all for a dog park. I'm a dog owner and lover, but can't you find someplace else for it? We have to pay the city for use of the fields to play ball; it's very rude for dog owners to not pick up after their dogs, and they still think it's a dog park and use it every day. And it's not just Frontier; they also use Harmon Park and let their dogs run all over the fields.

If dog owners want a park, then OK. But stay off our baseball fields and pick up after your dogs!

GOP 'Hostility' Is a Defensive Reaction to Assaults

I would like to add some things to the May 18 article, "Twin Falls County GOP Aims to Settle Infighting."

While most of your facts are correct, the article only addresses a "hostility" toward the "reformers" by the GOP. There is no mention of the hostility toward the GOP from the "reformers."

The multiple frivolous lawsuits, misleading campaign advertising and blogs by "reformer" precinct candidates that use the F-bomb when referencing the local Republican Party and its elected officials. Any perceived "hostility" by the GOP has been purely a defensive reaction to an onslaught of direct hostile assaults.

There are those in the party like myself (around nine of us) who were recruited and supported by the "reformers" in 2010. When we decided that the hostility and negative attacks were not how we wanted to represent our constituents, we were alienated and ridiculed by the Republican Liberty Caucus leadership. Many, if not most, of the people who are recruited by this organization are sincere people with integrity and honor who are truly working toward positive changes in the GOP. I look forward to working with these elected precinct leaders.

Why Did Reporter Only Focus on One Graduate?

graduate 184 seniors. That is what the article on the front page of the Mini-Casasia edition stated.

After reading the article, it appears there is only one graduating. Not sure what happened to the other 183 seniors. Too bad Laurie Welch chose to focus on one. I am sure there are many of the graduating seniors that have worked hard and have future plans of their own.

2 Killed in Separate Wyo. Crashes

CHEYENNE • Two people have been killed in separate highway crashes in Wyoming.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol identified the victims as Randall D. Littlejohn of Elk Mountain and Jovan C. Willow of Fort Hall, Idaho.

Both crashes occurred May 18 but weren't reported until Thursday.

The patrol says Littlejohn was driving a tow truck that veered off Interstate 80 east of Elk Mountain, rolled and landed in a river. The patrol says Littlejohn wasn't wearing a seat belt and was ejected.

Willow was a passenger in a car that rolled off U.S. 20-26 east of Shoshoni and landed on its roof. The patrol says the driver, Lehi L. Aoah, apparently fell asleep.

Investigators say Willow wasn't wearing a seat belt and was ejected.

The driver and two other passengers were hurt.

Council to Assist Native American Farmers

WASHINGTON • Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack has named the members of a council created in a 2010 settlement to ensure Native American farmers and ranchers have access to Department of Agriculture programs.

The Council for Native American Farming and Ranching is part of the $680 million Keepseagle lawsuit settlement. The 1999 lawsuit was named after George and Marilyn Keepseagle of Fort Yates, N.D. It contended Indian farmers and ranchers were denied USDA loans over several decades.

The council will suggest changes to Farm Service Agency regulations and make proposals to improve Native American participation in the loan program and other USDA programs. The 16-member council reports to the secretary and is made up of Native Americans and four USDA officials. Its first meeting is this summer.

Closed Idaho Silver Mine to Start Rehiring in July

BY NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press

WALLACE • A northern Idaho silver mine that was shut down after a series of accidents last year, including the deaths of two workers, will start rehiring in July and should have a full workforce by the end of the year, Hecla Mining Co. Chief Executive Officer Phil Baker said Thursday.

The underground Lucky Friday Mine — one of the nation's deepest — was ordered closed in January for safety improvements.

Baker said the work should be finished by year's end, allowing the mine to resume production. More than 110 of the mine's 250 workers were laid off when it closed.

"We expect all of our positions to be filled by the end of the year," Baker said.

Baker also said at Hecla's annual shareholders meeting that the company is studying the reopening of the closed Star Morning Mine in Idaho's Silver Valley, which would greatly increase employment and silver production.

Hecla is the nation's largest primary silver producer.

Federal safety inspectors ordered the Lucky Friday Mine closed after they determined sand and concrete material that had leaked from a pipe into a mine shaft over the years needed to be removed.

The material is in the mile-deep Silver Shaft, the mine's main access shaft, and workers are essentially power washing the material from its walls.

The closure prompted Hecla to reduce its estimated silver production for 2012 from more than 9 million ounces to about 7 million ounces, all from its remaining Green's Creek mine in Alaska.

Lucky Friday miners average about $100,000 per year in pay and benefits in a depressed region where there are few other job options.

The mine had been shuttered since mid-December, when a rock burst injured seven miners. The burst was the latest in a string of accidents at the mine, which is about 50 miles east of Coeur d'Alene, where the company is based.

Miner Brandon Lloyd Gray, 26, was buried in rubble while trying to dislodge jammed rock on Nov. 17, and died two days later. On April 15, miner Larry "Pete" Marek was crushed when his work area collapsed. Federal inspectors found company safety failures led to his death.

Before last year, the mine had gone 25 years without a fatality.

The two dead miners were remembered before Thursday's meeting.

"This has hit Hecla very hard," Baker said. "We are determined not to let it happen again."

Senate Committee Cuts Pakistan Aid over Conviction

BY DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • A Senate panel expressed its outrage Thursday over Pakistan's conviction of a doctor who helped the United States track down Osama bin Laden, voting to cut aid to Islamabad by $33 million — $1 million for every year of the physician's 33-year sentence for high treason.

The punitive move came on top of deep reductions the Appropriations Committee already had made to President Barack Obama's budget request for Pakistan, a reflection of the growing congressional anger over its cooperation in combatting terrorism. The overall foreign aid budget for next year had slashed more than half of the proposed assistance and threatened further reductions if Islamabad failed to open overland supply routes to U.S.-led NATO forces in Afghanistan.

Pushing aside any diplomatic talk, Republicans and Democrats criticized Pakistan a day after the conviction in Pakistan of Shakil Afridi. The doctor ran a vaccination program for the CIA to collect DNA and verify bin Laden's presence at the compound in Abbottabad where U.S. commandos found and killed the al-Qaida leader in May 2011.

"We need Pakistan, Pakistan needs us, but we don't need Pakistan double-dealing and not seeing the justice in bringing Osama bin Laden to an end," said Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., who pushed for the additional cut in aid.

He called Pakistan "a schizophrenic ally," helping the United States at one turn, but then aiding the Haqqani network which has claimed responsibility for several attacks on Americans. The group also has ties to al-Qaida and the Taliban.

"It's Alice in Wonderland at best," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "If this is cooperation, I'd hate like hell to see opposition."

One of the most forceful statements came from Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., who also serves as the chairwoman of the Senate Intelligence Committee. She pointed out that Pakistan has suffered at the hands of terrorists yet misconstrued what is treason in convicting Afridi. She also insisted that Afridi was not a spy.

"This conviction says to me that al-Qaida is viewed by the court to be Pakistan," said Feinstein, who said it made her rethink U.S. assistance.

The Appropriations Committee approved Graham's amendment to cut the assistance by $33 million on a 30-0 vote. The full Senate will vote on the overall bill, possibly this summer.

At the State Department, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton said the United States believes Afridi should be released.

"His help was instrumental in taking down one of the world's most notorious murderers that was clearly in Pakistan's interest as well as ours and the rest of the world," Clinton told reporters, adding that the United States will continue to press the issue with Islamabad.

Investigators leave a residence in Maple Shade, N.J., Thursday. A woman who answered the door said that it is the home of Pedro Hernandez, who is in custody in the disappearance of Etan Patz in 1979.

Man Arrested in 1979 Disappearance of NYC Boy Patz

BY COLLEEN LONG AND TOM HAYS
Associated Press

NEW YORK • A former convenience store worker confessed to luring 6-year-old Etan Patz from his school bus stop in 1979 and choking him to death in a basement, police said Thursday, ending a three-decades long investigation into one of the nation's most baffling missing-children cases.

Pedro Hernandez, 51, of Maple Shade, N.J., was arrested on a murder charge after he told police he promised the boy a soda, took him to his store — just blocks from Etan's lower Manhattan home — and killed him there, Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said.

Hernandez told police he put Etan's body in some trash about a block from the store, Kelly said, where it's possible it was picked up by sanitation crews.

No body has been recovered, and Kelly said it's possible the remains would never be found.

Hernandez was questioned by police for more than three hours after he was picked up in New Jersey Wednesday, and gave police a signed confession, Kelly said. His motive was not yet clear.

It's not clear if he had an attorney; an arraignment was expected sometime Friday. No one answered the door at Hernandez' New Jersey home Thursday night.

"He was remorseful, and I think the detectives thought that it was a feeling of relief on his part" to confess, Kelly said. "We believe that this is the individual responsible for the crime."

The arrest is the first ever in the decades-old case that gave rise to the missing-children's movement and ushered in an era of anxiety about leaving children unsupervised. Etan's photo was one of the first of a missing child to appear on a milk carton. The anniversary of Etan's disappearance, which is Friday, was named National Missing Children's Day by presidential proclamation in 1983.

Doctors Say Kids Eating Detergent Packs

BY NOMAAN MERCHANT
Associated Press

DALLAS • Miniature laundry detergent packets arrived on store shelves in recent months as an alternative to bulky bottles and messy spills. But doctors across the country say children are confusing the tiny, brightly colored packets with candy and swallowing them.

Nearly 250 cases have been reported this year to poison control centers. Though they remain a tiny fraction of the thousands of poisoning calls received every year, doctors are concerned. The symptoms they see in connection with ingesting the packets — such as nausea and breathing problems — are more severe than typical detergent poisoning. No deaths have been reported.

Romney Running Mate Search Enters Audition Phase

BY KASIE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney's vice presidential search has entered a new phase: auditions.

As his campaign evaluates potential running mates, Republicans with a possible shot at the No. 2 spot on the presidential ticket are starting to engage in unofficial public tryouts for the traditional vice presidential role of attack dog.

Democratic President Barack Obama is "the most ill-prepared person to assume the presidency in my lifetime," New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie declared in a speech in Kentucky this week. Florida Sen. Marco Rubio told South Carolina Republicans that there hasn't been such a "divisive figure in modern American history" as Obama.

Wisconsin Rep. Paul Ryan, speaking Tuesday at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library — it's a favorite venue for Republicans seeking more attention — said Obama "wants to take us further in the wrong direction." In an Alabama appearance this month, Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal called Obama "the most incompetent president since Jimmy Carter."

Not that any of them — or any of the others who may have landed a spot on Romney's list — are talking about becoming vice president. Nor are any of them acknowledging that they're trying out for the role or saying the Romney campaign has asked them to do so. Top Romney aides are sworn to secrecy, as are potential running mates and their staffs — an example of the Romney campaign's closely controlled, no-leaks culture.

But their high-profile appearances come more than a month after Romney assumed, for all practical purposes, leadership of the Republican Party. His vice presidential search is well under way, with his Boston headquarters engaged in a secretive process of weighing the pros and cons of each potential pick.

With three months to go until Republican National Convention, his campaign has little time to waste as it meticulously prepares the presumptive Republican nominee to make one of his most important decisions. With it will come implications not just for whether he'll win the White House but how he would govern.

Knowledge of the process is limited to a few of Romney's highest-level aides. Information is on a "need-to-know" basis — and as far as those aides are concerned, there are few people inside the Boston headquarters at 585 Commercial St. who need to know, let alone reporters and other outsiders. The Republicans who discussed the vice presidential selection process did so on the condition of anonymity because the campaign has barred staff from talking about the selection in public.

The process is so secret because it's so sensitive. A vice presidential vetting is possibly the most intense background check in politics. Everything is fair game: voting records and the political past, to be sure, but also personal issues.

"You're sitting down with someone and asked if they've ever had a marital problem, if their spouse has ever cheated on them, if they've ever sought mental health counseling — that's just the beginning," said Sara Fagen, who worked for President George W. Bush and for Romney's 2008 presidential campaign.

Nuclear Talks with Iran Set to Resume Next Month

BY LARA JAKES AND ALI AKBAR DAREINI
Associated Press

BAGHDAD • Iran and six world powers wrapped up talks Thursday still far apart over how to oversee Tehran's atomic program, but with resolve to keep dialogue going as an alternative to possible military action.

Envoys said they will meet again next month in Moscow after negotiations stretched out for extra hours and a sandstorm shut the airport in Iraq's capital. But the two sides agreed on little else during two dramatic days of discussions that underscored the serious challenges of reaching accords between Iran and the West.

"It is clear that we both want to make progress, and that there is some common ground," European Union foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton, who is formally leading the talks, told reporters.

"However, significant differences remain. Nonetheless, we do agree on the need for further discussion to expand that common ground!"

Saeed Jalili, Iran's top nuclear negotiator, offered a lukewarm assessment of what the negotiations achieved, in light of European and American refusal to lift tough sanctions as Tehran had hoped.

"The result of the talks was that we were able to get more familiar with the views of each other," Jalili said at a press conference after Ashton left.

The Baghdad discussions began with hopes for progress before each side accused the other of failing to offer meaningful, realistic proposals. More tellingly, they also showed that U.S. diplomats and others are pressing neither for quick deals nor for ultimatums that could derail the sensitive talks.

In this April 28 file photo, the ship 'Lutfallah II' believed to be carrying three containers of weapons, is docked at a Lebanese navy base, in Beirut, Lebanon. Struggling to obtain weapons, Syria's rebels appear to be shifting tactics to smaller-scale guerrilla tactics like roadside bombs and hit-and-run attacks as the regime chokes off the main smuggling routes into the country.

U.S. Poised to Vet Possible Arms for Syrian Rebels

BY MATTHEW LEE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • As one diplomatic effort after another fails to end more than a year of brutal violence in Syria, the Obama administration is preparing a plan that would essentially give U.S. nods of approval to arms transfers from Arab nations to some Syrian opposition fighters.

The effort, U.S. officials told The Associated Press, would vet members of the Free Syrian Army and other groups to determine whether they are suitable recipients of munitions to fight the Assad government and to ensure that weapons don't wind up in the hands of al-Qaida-linked terrorists or other extremist groups such as Hezbollah that could target Israel.

The plan, which has not yet been finalized, reflects U.S. frustration that none of the previous efforts — including diplomatic rhetoric from the United Nations and the multinational Friends of Syria group, and special envoy Kofi Annan's plan for a cease-fire — has even begun to nudge President Bashar al-Assad from power. The vetting would be the first tiny step the U.S. has made toward ensuring that the Syrian opposition uses the weapons to fight Assad and not to turn it into a full sectarian conflict.

While some intelligence analysts worry that there may be no suitable recipients of lethal aid in the Syria conflict, the vetting plan has arisen as the least objectionable idea in a complicated situation.

U.S. officials, most of whom spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the subject, stressed that the United States, which is already providing non-lethal aid to Syria's political opposition, is not supplying military assistance to Assad's foes.

Times-Picayune to Cut Paper to Three Days a Week

BY CAIN BURDEAU
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS • The Times-Picayune, one of the nation's oldest newspapers, will no longer offer print editions seven days a week and instead plans to offer three printed issues a week starting in the fall. The change means New Orleans would become the largest metro area in the nation without a daily newspaper in the digital age.

The changes announced Thursday were combined with similar moves at three major Alabama daily newspapers also owned by the Newhouse family group's Advance Publications. The Birmingham News, the Press-Register in Mobile and The Huntsville Times will switch to publishing three days a week as part of a new focus on online news. At all four papers, there will be unspecified staff cuts. All four papers will continue to publish continuously on their websites, and online access will remain free.

Newspapers have struggled in recent years as consumers increasingly get their news online. Print advertising declined as the economy went into recession, and newspapers have yet to learn how to make online advertising as profitable as its printed counterpart.

"For us, this isn't about print versus digital, this is about creating a very successful multi-platform media company that addresses the ever-changing needs of our readers, our online users and our advertisers," said Advance Publications' president of local digital strategy, Randy Siegel, in an interview with The Associated Press. "This change is not easy, but it's essential for us to remain relevant."

AUCTION OF VIAL THAT HELD REAGAN'S BLOOD IS CALLED OFF

BY DEL QUENTIN WILBER
The Washington Post

The controversial auction of a vial that contained President Ronald Reagan's blood has been halted, and the valuable glass tube is being donated to the former president's foundation.

In a statement issued Thursday morning, the executive director of the Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation said he was pleased by the outcome. "We are grateful to the current custodian of the vial for this generous donation to the Foundation, ensuring President Reagan's blood remains out of public hands," said John Heubusch, the foundation's director.

The vial in question contained residue of blood drawn from Reagan while he recovered from a near-fatal gunshot wound in 1981. It was being sold by an online auction house based on the island of Guernsey, an autonomous British protectorate, in the English Channel. With only hours left in the auction, the vial had garnered bids exceeding $30,000.

The provenance of the vial can be traced back to just days after Reagan was shot as he left the Washington Hilton Hotel on March 30, 1981, and was taken to George Washington University Hospital, where he underwent life-saving surgery.

The president was treated there for 13 days. During that stay, a vial of blood was drawn to test for lead and sent to a laboratory in Columbia, Md. A laboratory worker was given permission to keep the old vial and its paperwork, according to a statement by PFC Auctions, which was selling the items. When she died, her son sold the vial at a U.S. auction in February for $3,550 to a collector of presidential memorabilia, the auction site said in a statement.

The SpaceX Dragon commercial cargo spacecraft approaches the International Space Station on Thursday for a series of tests to clear it for its final rendezvous and grapple today.

Private Supply Ship Flies by Space Station in Test

BY MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. • The world's first private supply ship flew tantalizingly close to the International Space Station on Thursday, acing a critical test in advance of the actual docking.

The unmanned SpaceX Dragon capsule flew within 1 1/2 miles of the orbiting lab as it performed a practice lap and checkout of its communication and navigation systems.

Officials at NASA and the SpaceX company declared the rendezvous a success and said the historic linkup is on track for Friday.

It is the first U.S. vessel to visit the space station since NASA's shuttles retired last summer — and the first private spacecraft to ever attempt a delivery. The Dragon is carrying 1,000 pounds of provisions.

Thursday's accomplishment "is a big confidence boost. Everyone's very excited," said SpaceX mission director John Couluris. After working all night and into the wee hours, he urged his team to go home and rest up for Friday. "It's exciting to be an American and part of putting American spacecraft into orbit, and we're very proud right now."

NASA flight director Holly Ridings said the mood is upbeat on her side as well, but noted "there's still a lot of really new things that the teams need to perform and the vehicles, frankly, need to perform" on Friday.

"This is still definitely a demonstration flight," she said at a news briefing.

As the pre-dawn hours of Thursday unfolded, the space station astronauts struggled with bad computer monitors and camera trouble as the Dragon zoomed toward them, but the problem did not hold up the operation. Indeed, all of the tests appeared to go well.

The astronauts successfully turned on Dragon's strobe light by remote control, but could not see it because of the sun glare and distance of several miles. The Dragon finally popped into camera view about 10 minutes later, appearing as a bright speck of light against the blackness of space, near the Earth's blue horizon. The two solar wings were clearly visible as the Dragon drew closer.

"Can nicely see the vehicle," Dutch spaceman Andre Kuipers said.

SpaceX's near-term objective is to help stockpile the space station, joining Russia, Europe and Japan in resupply duties. In three or four more years, however, the company run by the billionaire who co-founded PayPal, Elon Musk, hopes to be launching station astro-

Egyptian election workers count the ballots following the end of the two day presidential election in Cairo, Egypt, Thursday.

Brotherhood Claims Lead as Egypt Vote Count Begins

BY HAMZA HENDAWI AND MAGGIE MICHAEL
Associated Press

CAIRO • The Muslim Brotherhood quickly staked a claim Thursday for its candidate to advance to a runoff vote, saying its exit polls showed him leading in Egypt's landmark presidential election to succeed ousted leader Hosni Mubarak.

As vote-counting began, exit polls by several Arab television stations also suggested the Brotherhood's Mohammed Morsi was ahead of the pack of 13 candidates. The reliability of the various exit surveys was not known, and a few hours after the end of two days of voting, only a tiny percentage of the ballots had been counted.

But the swiftness of the Brotherhood's claim showed its eagerness to plant its flag and establish in the public eye that Morsi had at least won entry into a second round vote. There are five prominent candidates, but none is expected to win outright in the first round. A run-off between the two leading contenders would be held June 16-17.

The first truly competitive presidential election in Egypt's history turned into a heated battle between Islamist candidates and secular figures rooted in Mubarak's old regime. The most polarizing figures in the race were Morsi and former air force commander and former prime minister Ahmed Shafiq, a veteran of Mubarak's rule.

The Brotherhood is hoping for a presidential victory to seal its political domination of Egypt, which would be a dramatic turnaround from the decades it was repressed under Mubarak. It already holds nearly half of parliament after victories in elections late last year.

The group has promised a "renaissance" of Egypt, not only reforming Mubarak-era corruption and reviving decrepit infrastructure, but also bringing a greater degree of rule by Islamic law. That prospect has alarmed more moderate Muslims, secular Egyptians and the Christian minority, who all fear restrictions on civil rights and worry that the Brotherhood shows similar domineering tendencies as Mubarak.

Israel Steps Up Security Ties with China

BY JOSEF FEDERMAN AND CHRISTOPHER BODEEN
Associated Press

JERUSALEM • After a prolonged chill, security ties between Israel and China are warming up.

With Israel offering much-needed technical expertise and China representing a huge new market and influential voice in the international debate over Iran's nuclear program, the two nations have stepped up military cooperation as they patch up a rift caused by a pair of failed arms deals scuttled by the U.S.

The improved ties have been highlighted by this week's visit to Beijing by Israel's military chief and a training mission to Israel by the Chinese paramilitary force that, among other things, polices the restive Tibetan and Muslim Uighur regions. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is expected to travel to China in the coming weeks.

After their meeting Monday, both China's chief of staff, Gen. Chen Bingde, and his Israeli counterpart, Lt. Gen. Benny Gantz, hailed the growing ties and held out the possibility of even closer military cooperation.

SENIOR

Q. Last week we wrote about ways laughter and humor can help relieve caregiver stress. A fair question is, "So how can I get started? I seem to have misplaced my sense of humor."

A. First, you need to simply lighten up. Find something to laugh at, no matter how serious the situation. Change the "disasters" into something funny. As Bill Cosby once said, "If you can find humor in it, you can survive it." Second, smile more. A smile helps other people feel better, and it makes you feel better, too! Third, look for a funny side to even the most stressful situation. This is easy to say and much harder to do, but there is probably a little humor lurking in even the most frustrating or difficult circumstance. Fourth, keep a humor journal of funny stories, jokes, cartoons, etc. You may enjoy opening this journal when you need a lift. Finally, start laughing today! Why wait? The sooner you begin, the more stress-relieving laughs you will enjoy.

Ex-Red Sox Pitcher's R.I. Gaming Firm Lays Off Staff

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) • Former Boston Red Sox pitcher Curt Schilling's faltering Rhode Island video game company laid off its entire staff Thursday.

An email sent by the 38 Studios company to workers and obtained by The Associated Press says they were notified of the "non-voluntary and non-disciplinary" layoffs on Thursday.

38 Studios moved from Massachusetts in 2010 after Rhode Island offered a $75 million loan guarantee officials said would bring hundreds of jobs and millions of dollars of tax revenue. The company was more than two weeks late this month on a $1.1 million payment to the state economic development agency. State officials said the company wasn't able to make its payroll.

Weekly U.S. Jobless Aid Applications Dip to 370,000

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The number of people seeking unemployment benefits changed little last week, signaling modest job growth.

The Labor Department said Thursday that weekly applications for benefits dipped by 2,000 to a seasonally adjusted 370,000.

Applications have leveled off this month after declining from April's five-month high of 392,000. The four-week average, a less volatile measure, has also dropped — it was 370,000 last week.

The lower level indicates hiring could pick up in May from April's sluggish pace. When applications drop below 375,000 a week, it typically suggests hiring is strong enough to lower the unemployment rate.

Ian Shepherdson, an economist at High Frequency Economics, said applications should fall soon given that some recent data indicate the economy is improving.

"We think it is just a matter of time ... before claims start to drop back down again," he said in a note to clients.

Economists forecast employers have added 160,000 jobs this month. That's above April's gains but below the pace set this winter. The government will report next Friday on May job growth.

Some companies are launching mass layoffs. Hewlett-Packard Co.'s chief executive, Meg Whitman, said Wednesday that the company will cut 27,000 jobs, or 8 percent of its work force, over the next two years.

The unemployment rate has fallen from 9.1 percent in August to 8.1 percent last month.

Part of the reason for the drop is that employers have added a million jobs over the past five months. But it has also declined because some people gave up looking for work. The government only counts people as unemployed if they are actively looking for a job.

U.S. 30-year Mortgage Rate Falls to Record 3.78 Percent

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The average U.S. rate for the 30-year fixed mortgage fell to a record low for a fourth straight week. Cheap mortgages have helped boost home sales modestly this year.

Mortgage buyer Freddie Mac said Thursday that the rate on the 30-year loan dipped to 3.78 percent. That's down from 3.79 percent last week and the lowest since long-term mortgages began in the 1950s.

The average rate on 15-year fixed mortgage, a popular option for refinancing, held steady at 3.04, matching the record low hit last week.

The average rate on the 30-year loan has been below 4 percent since early December. Lower rates are a key reason the housing industry is flashing signs of a recovery five years after the bubble burst.

In April, sales of both previously occupied homes and new homes rose near two-year highs. Builders are gaining more confidence in the market, breaking ground on more homes and requesting more permits to build single-family homes later this year.

A better job market has also made more people open to buying a home. Employers have added 1 million jobs in the past five months. The unemployment has dropped a full percentage point since August, from 9.1 percent to 8.1 percent in April.

Still, the pace of home sales remains well below healthy levels. Economists say it could be fully healed.

Many people are having difficulty qualifying for home loans or can't afford larger down payments required by banks. Some would-be home buyers are holding off because they fear that home prices could keep falling.

Mortgage rates have been dropping because they tend to track the yield on the 10-year Treasury note. Uncertainty about how Europe will resolve its debt crisis has led investors to buy more Treasury securities, which are considered safe investments. As demand for Treasuries increases, the yield falls.

To calculate average rates, Freddie Mac surveys lenders across the country on Monday through Wednesday of each week.

$386 million

Costco's 3Q net income rises, sales climb • Costco's fiscal third-quarter net income climbed 19 percent on lower asset charges and the wholesale club pulled in more money from membership fees. The company posted earnings of $386 million, or 88 cents per share, for the period ended May 6. That's up from $324 million, or 73 cents per share, a year ago. The current quarter included a charge related to assets of 1 cent per share, compared with a 7-cent charge in the prior-year period. Revenue rose 8 percent to $22.32 billion from $20.62 billion, topping Wall Street's $22.11 billion. Revenue at stores open at least a year increased 5 percent, with the figure up by that same amount in both the U.S. and overseas.

U.S. Durable Goods Orders Up 0.2 Percent in April

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Orders for long-lasting factory goods edged up slightly in April. But a measure of tracks business investment spending fell for a second straight month.

Durable goods orders increased 0.2 percent last month after a 3.7 percent decline in March, the Commerce Department said Thursday. Gains in volatile commercial aircraft orders and more demand for autos and parts drove the modest increase.

So-called core capital goods orders, which are considered a proxy for business investment plans, fell 1.9 percent in April after a 2.2 percent decline in March. Demand for computers and electronics products and heavy machinery fell.

Durable goods are items expected to last at least three years. Orders rose in April to $215.5 billion, up 52.5 percent from their recession low hit in the spring of 2009. Orders are still 11.6 percent below their peak in December 2007.

The decline in core capital goods could suggest that second-quarter growth is off to a slow start. Still, orders tend to fluctuate sharply from month to month.

Many economists approached Thursday's report cautiously. They noted that the findings conflicted with two other reports that suggest factory activity and production grew last month.

The Institute for Supply Management said factory activity grew in April at the fastest pace in 10 months. The group's closely watched manufacturing index showed strength in new orders, production and hiring.

And the Federal Reserve reported that U.S. factory output rose 0.6 percent in April. Half of that increase reflected a big jump in production of motor vehicles and parts.

Ian Shepherdson, chief U.S. economist at High Frequency Economics, said that the weakness could be the result of lingering effect of the expiration of favorable business investment tax breaks at the end of last year.

"This is disappointing, but given the volatility of the data and the strength of the ISM new orders in manufacturing, not disastrous," Shepherdson said.

Manufacturing has been a leading source of growth and jobs since the recession ended. Economists believe that trend will continue.

For April, orders for transportation goods rose 2.1 percent, led by a 7.2 percent increase in demand for commercial aircraft. This volatile category had plunged 46.6 percent in March.

Orders for autos and auto parts rose 5.6 percent, reflecting the continued strong demand automakers are seeing.

Syria

The administration's position remains that adding more weapons to the conflict is a bad idea and will only fan the fire of instability.

"We don't think that adding fuel to this fire is the right way to go," State Department spokeswoman Victoria Nuland said.

"Our decision is to support the civilian opposition in non-lethal ways," she said. "There are other countries who have made other decisions. That's their sovereign decision to make. We've made our decision."

But she added: "We are obviously consulting with various states about the decisions that we've made, that they've made."

Privately, officials say that as conditions continue to deteriorate, it would be irresponsible not to weigh in with Arab countries such as Saudi Arabia, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and others such as Turkey that have indicated interest in arming the rebels.

NYC Boy

Detectives are often barged with hoaxes, false leads and possible sightings around the anniversary of the boy's disappearance. But Kelly said they believed Hernandez's story because of specific details he gave to police.

Hernandez, then 19, had worked as a stock clerk at the store for about a month and wasn't questioned at the outset, Kelly said. But he later told relatives, as far back as 1981, that he had "done something bad" and killed an unnamed child in New York City, he said.

After a search of a basement near Patz' lower Manhattan home last month hurtled the case back into the news, a tipster pointed police to Hernandez. Kelly said the person wasn't a relative, but knew that Hernandez had said he had done a bad thing, he said.

Hernandez was known to police as being a worker at the convenience store — a popular fixture in the neighborhood — but was never questioned, though other people in the shop were.

He left his job days after Etan disappeared and moved to New Jersey, where he had relatives, Kelly said. Hernandez later worked in construction but has been collecting disability payments since a 1993 back injury, police said. He is married with a teenage daughter, he said.

The focus on Hernandez came after other leads arose and stalled, at one point taking investigators as far as Israel tracking reported sightings of the boy.

For most of the past decade, the investigation focused on Jose Ramos, a convicted child molester now in prison in Pennsylvania. He had been dating Etan's baby sitter. In 2000, authorities dug up Ramos' former basement in lower Manhattan, but nothing turned up.

Three Best Bets

Insider's Archaeology

A guided hiking tour of Castle Rocks State Park on Saturday is an excellent way to spot the pictographs that might escape your notice on a camping or mountain biking visit. Perhaps that's why the group hikes are one of the most popular events at this fairly new addition to the state park system. You're also likely to see remnants of the ranch that was first homesteaded at the site in 1888.

Living History

Here's the kind of small-town party that says summer's almost here: Today through Sunday, Lincoln County History Days will bring antique farm implements and demonstrations of old-time crafts to the spacious courthouse lawn in the middle of Shoshone. Highlights include tonight's street dance and Saturday's parade of wagons and vintage farm vehicles. But don't miss the displays of historical Lincoln County photos, either.

Honor Veterans

Even if you spend most of the holiday weekend in a campsite or at the backyard barbecue grill, start it off by pausing to honor the men and women who died while serving in the U.S. Armed Forces. A Saturday-morning Memorial Day observance at Twin Falls Cemetery — with flag ceremony, balloon release and tribute — begins the weekend's ceremonies around Magic Valley.

For details, see the calendar inside.

Who's in the Bleachers?

Sure, there's some raucous fun among Magic Valley Speedway fans. But you'll find plenty of children there, too, munching hot dogs and bouncing in the inflatable house.

TWIN FALLS • Danesha Campbell stood in the stadium, laughing and clapping at the soccer game in the field below.

But this wasn't ordinary soccer played by traditional athletes. This competition was among racecar drivers — in their cars.

"They wanted to try something different this time," Campbell said. "I think it's hilarious. I love it."

So did hundreds of other race fans, who came to Magic Valley Speedway on May 12 to see oval track races, a demolition derby and the speedway's first racecar soccer game. Laughter and cheers spread across the stadium.

"At first I was a little concerned about the price — I mean, $15 for adults? But it's worth it. It's much better than going to a movie."

Just another night at the Twin Falls racetrack, which is growing in popularity.

On the Saturday before Mother's Day 2011, 800 people attended the speedway, spokeswoman Ashley McKean said. This year: 1,200.

"We definitely have seen the increase in attendance this year over last year," she said. "Every week numbers keep rising, and it looks to be a great season."

Don Tully and his family were among the newcomers. May 12 was their first time visiting the track, but after only an hour they were new fans.

"Oh yeah, man," Tully said. "We're definitely going to come back."

Though he's lived in Twin Falls for 16 years, he never made it to the speedway until that Saturday, when he came with friend Jude Markel and his family. The Markels echoed the sentiment: They plan to return.

"At first I was a little concerned about the price — I mean, $15 for adults?" Markel said. "But it's worth it. It's much better than going to a movie."

The Races

Magic Valley Speedway, at 3389 N. 2800 E., Twin Falls, hosts race events on Saturday evenings from April to September.

Admission: $15 for 13 and older; $6 for ages 6-12; free for 5 and younger.

Get there: From Twin Falls, take Washington Street South toward the airport until you reach 3100 North. Turn right and drive to the next intersection, 2800 East, then turn left.

Fledgling Playwrights Debut Original Show of One-Acts

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • From the first stroke of the writer's pen to the audience's applause, a play morphs as directors and designers interpret the script and actors bring life to the characters.

Drama II students and Bruin High Players at Twin Falls High School learned this process as they tried their hands at writing plays, rather than just acting in them — many for the first time.

For drama teacher James Haycock's eighth year of teaching, he had the class look at the significance of the number eight. In its research the class found a group of eight American painters who together had their only show in 1908. The controversial exhibit by "The Eight" broke away from traditional paintings of the time in style and subject matter, Haycock said.

Each student studied a painting from the movement and wrote a play inspired by it. Eight of the best short plays became "The Playwright Project," which will be on stage tonight and Saturday at Roper Auditorium. The audience will see a lot of variety — from

Montgomery Gentry Performs at Glanbia's Birthday Bash

TIMES-NEWS

FILER • Glanbia is celebrating 21 years in the Magic Valley by hosting a birthday bash June 30 with a Montgomery Gentry concert and a family daytime event at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

All-ages festivities begin 2-7 p.m. with more than 30 activities including giant slides, obstacle courses, moon walks, bounce house, playhouse, rock walls, face painting, games, balloon artists and food vendors. Tickets are $5 for unlimited rides and activities, at glanbia21st.com or at the gate. A portion of the proceeds will go to a local charity, Glanbia said.

The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. with opening act Jason Lugo Band, followed by headliners Montgomery Gentry. General admission is $20 online.

Kentucky natives Troy Gentry and Eddie Montgomery won the Country Music Association vocal duo award in 2000 and reached No. 2 on the country charts with the single "She

TWIN FALLS • MagicFest 2012 in August will feature South Dakota magician Duane Laflin and The Grand Magic Show, the Kiwanis Club of Twin Falls announced.

Laflin will perform at 7 p.m. Aug 25 in the Roper Auditorium. Tickets will be $12 at the door and $10 in advance; organizers were still confirming locations for advance sales.

“This is our fourth year to bring a quality magical performance to the stage in Twin Falls,” MagicFest chairman Lance Clow said.

Laflin — who promises a family-friendly magic show — has performed in 18 countries and 47 states, a Kiwanis release said. He has received honors from The Magic Circle in London and was a guest instructor at the Siegfried and Roy College of Magic in Cape Town, South Africa.

After almost 20 years of travel, Laflin and his wife, Mary, moved their show to a theater in Pigeon Forge, Tenn., then later opened their own theater in Custer, S.D., near the Mount Rushmore and Crazy Horse monuments. Their new show is performed nightly throughout summer in the 550-seat Show Barn on the Flintstones theme park property.

At the Twin Falls performance, promoters promise comedy, classic stage mysteries, spectacular illusions, costumes and sleight of hand skills.

Register Now for Civil Liberties Symposium on Children’s Issues

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The seventh annual Civil Liberties Symposium, on June 21-22 in Boise, will explore the effects of curtailed civil liberties on children, their families and communities, and their education.

You can register for the symposium through the College of Southern Idaho’s Community Education Center, but this year it will take place at Boise State University. It’s sponsored by CSI, Minidoka National Historic Site, the Friends of Minidoka and BSU. College credit is available through CSI or BSU.

This year’s theme, “Through the Eyes of Children: Prejudice, Education, and Community,” will address children’s experiences including Japanese Americans during World War II internment, Native American boarding schools, African American schools and Hispanic labor camps. The conference features presentations by scholars and educators and panel discussions by former Japanese American child internees and by children’s literature authors.

Speakers include David Adler, Larry Matsuda, Tetsu Kashima, Linda Tamura and Satsuki Ina, producer of the documentary “Children of the Camps,” a project developed for Japanese American adults incarcerated as children.

A one-day teacher’s workshop June 21 will coincide with the symposium, conducted by the staff of Densho: The Japanese American Legacy Project and educators from the Minidoka National Historic Site. Densho has been conducting teacher training and curriculum development on the internment story for more than 10 years. The workshop will highlight the Minidoka curriculum that meets Idaho, Oregon and Washington state standards. Educators may register for professional undergraduate credit through CSI or graduate credit through BSU on the day of the workshop; for information, contact Russ Tremayne at rtremayne@csi.edu.

Cost to register for the symposium for no credit through CSI Community Education is $70, which includes breakfast and lunch on both days but does not include transportation to the BSU campus. Register at communityed.csi.edu or 732-6442.

To receive one CSI credit is $110 plus a $35 conference registration fee; visit csi.edu/civillibertiessymposium.

NEW ON THE BOOKSHELF

‘Let’s Go for a Ride’ (Xlibris; $15.99; e-book $3.99; rupert-town.com)

TIMES-NEWS

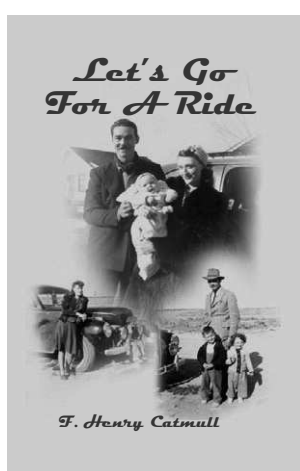

RUPERT • Ferrell Catmull credits a Rupert seventh-grade teacher for inspiring his writing, and the town itself for shaping his life.

After his 2007 western novel — “The Legend of the White Buffalo, and Other Buffalo Bill Stories” — Catmull’s newest book pays tribute to Rupert. The self-published “Let’s Go for a Ride” is a compilation of his childhood memories there.

“It is a trip back a few years when life was simple and work came before entertainment,” said Catmull, now a controller for an Arizona architectural firm. “I wrote this book for everyone who has ties to Rupert. I love so many people there.”

The 1960 Minico High School graduate, son of Ferrell B. and Leah Catmull, owned Catmull’s Interior Furnishings and lived in Rupert until 1980. He writes under the pen name F. Henry Catmull to honor his grandfather, one of Rupert’s first settlers.

In his book, he writes: “I guess the reason this town means so much to me is because my grandfather had one of the first stores in town, a Mercantile Store. Years later he owned a Meat Market. My dad had a Plumbing Shop and I had a Furniture Store. At the present time, my brothers have a Plumbing Shop there. Serving the people in this small community has been in the family for many generations.

“This is a story about .. hardship and toil that needs to be remembered. Rupert is anywhere there are people who have to rely on each other and by doing so they become unique personalities.”

Learn How Railroads Shaped Southern Idaho

TWIN FALLS • Here's a can't-miss for railroad buffs: Former College of Southern Idaho professor Darrell Buffaloe will teach a one-evening "History of Railroad in Southern Idaho" class for CSI's Community Education Center in both Twin Falls and Burley.

Ever wonder why major towns were created 25 to 50 miles apart? And why would the Mormon church build the first railroads to reach Idaho? Railroads have had a major effect on who southern Idahoans are, class promoters said.

The class will be 6:30-8:30 p.m. June 5 at the Twin Falls campus and 6:30-8:30 p.m. June 6 at CSI's Mini-Cassia campus in Burley. Registration for either is $15, at community-ed.csi.edu or 732-6442.

"I stuck with my comfort zone of poetry," said Mariah McMurtry, who wrote "Dancers," one of the chosen eight.

While some of the students had written monologues for themselves, it was completely different to write something and see it taken all the way through to a performance by their peers, said Ashley Alexander, another young playwright.

"We've never put together a full show," Haycock said. "It's their first time seeing their work done by other people. They had to watch the actors and directors interpret it."

That experience was challenging, but also inspiring.

"It was refreshing for me," Julie Malone said.

Malone considered what she wrote to be gloomy, but when fellow student Kenna Nielsen got her hands on the script she took it to a different place.

pretation," Malone said. "It was something I needed to see."

Directing each other also proved a challenge.

"We had to direct our peers, and you don't want to seem bossy or rude," McMurtry said.

On the other hand, Emily Gomsy said she loved directing, maybe even more than writing. "I loved being in charge and telling people where to go."

The chance to write and direct is what drew Harold Chambers to the class in the first place, he said. Chambers, who is interested in filmmaking, jumped at the chance to get beyond acting.

"When I found out we got to direct, write and act I was like, 'Oh my gosh, I'm so glad I got into this class,'" he said.

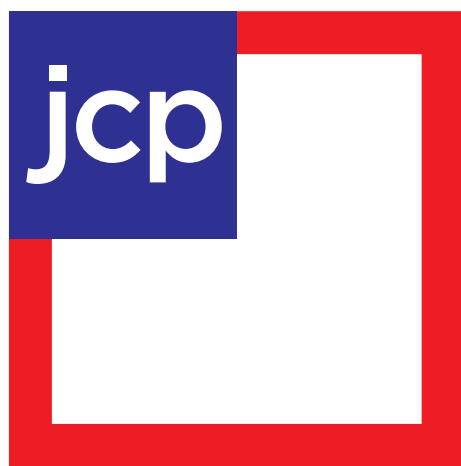

When students join drama classes they expect it will be all about acting, Haycock said.

Gallery Walk Brings Together Magic Valley Art Lovers, Local Artists

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • ARTprojectA.com isn't your typical art gallery.

The e-commerce site had its genesis in the former Anne Reed Gallery in Ketchum and now allows Magic Valley residents and others worldwide to access fine art ranging from $50 to $4,500 from their home computers.

But that doesn't preclude ARTprojectA.com from joining in on the social aspects of Ketchum's Gallery Walk. Founders Barbi Reed and Claudia Aulum are showing some of the art they have for sale by local artists in a pop-up gallery established just for Saturday night's free Gallery Walk.

Art lovers who stroll the streets of Ketchum that evening will be able to meet Kirk Anderson, Kathryn McNeal, Kary Kjesbo, Lisa Holley and Kim Howard and see their art from 5 to 8:30 p.m. at Starbucks, at Sun Valley Road and East Avenue.

"This is a way for us to advertise our business for all the people who will be in town that weekend," said website spokesman Carter Hedberg. "And Starbucks will have a wine tasting and hors d'oeuvres to show that it's much more than just coffee."

The art website offers consumers the confidence that they're getting good art that has been curated at affordable prices, Hedberg said. Barbi Reed has more than 30 years in the art business — and access to art that others wouldn't be able to get.

The website currently offers more than 500 pieces from artists all over the world, including a photographer it just landed from the Philippines and a printmaker from England.

"The website gives Magic Valley residents the chance to shop from their home for art that might not be available in the Magic Valley," Hedberg said. "We also offer education about buying art. And every time someone makes a purchase they have a choice of donating part of our proceeds to nonprofit organizations dealing with such causes as the environment, education, literacy and art."

One exhibit that Magic Valley residents will find of particular interest during Saturday's Gallery Walk is "Shoshone Falls: 3 Perspectives" at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts, Fifth and Washington streets.

tography program who has photographed waterfalls in national parks, in cities and along interstates — will talk at 6 p.m. about what motivated him to photograph the Northwest's iconic waterfalls, including Shoshone Falls.

The Sun Valley Center's artistic director, Kristin Poole, was inspired to create the exhibition by one The Smithsonian had on Tim O'Sullivan, who took an iconic photograph of Shoshone Falls in 1874. The center's exhibit includes photos of the falls in its different seasons and in 2002, when almost no water was flowing over it.

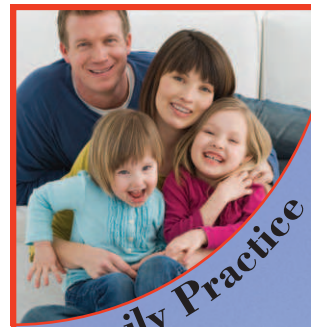

"My favorite part is the paper installation by Wade Kavanaugh and Stephen Nguyen. Even though it's not a literal representation, it enables you to feel as if you're enclosed in this very textural environment with light coming through at different angles," the center's Courtney Gilbert said. "We saw the falls in April when it was really fantastic. Even though it has been built up and dammed, it remains beautiful."

Twin Falls native John Horejs, who now lives near Kimberly, will have new paintings at the Kneeland Gallery, 271 First Ave. N. in Ketchum, for Saturday's Gallery Walk, along with other local painters such as Burley artist Robert Moore, Ketchum artist Lori McNee and Hailey painter Debbie Edgers-Sturges.

Horejs paints his big, splotchy wildflowers and his landscapes on signature 40-by-50-inch and larger handmade box canvases with no frames.

"To me, simplicity is elegance," said Horejs, who uses just two brushes and seven colors.

It's a formula that works, said Kneeland Gallery director Carey Molter: "From these basic hues he creates a rich kaleidoscope of color on his canvas that has become his trademark over the years."

Locals Hit Stretch Run in College Baseball

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The high school sports season has come to a close, but there are still athletes with local ties in action as their college baseball seasons wind down.

This weekend marks the end of the regular season, be it in a final conference series, the conference tournament, or in some cases an idle week.

Teams will be waiting to see whether their season-long bodies of work are enough to earn them one of the 64 spots in the NCAA Division I Tournament. The field is announced Monday morning.

Four Magic Valley high school athletes and nine with College of Southern Idaho ties are running toward the end of the season. Here's where each of these teams stands.

High School

Cy Sneed, Twin Falls, Dallas Baptist
Dallas Baptist made the super regionals for the first time in school history last year, and the Patriots look poised to see another postseason as they posted a 39-17 record during the regular season. They are off this weekend and can only wait until Monday.

Sneed is 8-4 with a 3.98 ERA, striking out 70 batters in a team-high 81 1-3 innings.

Jacob Coats, Twin Falls, Washington
J.D. Leckenby, Buhl, Washington State
The rival schools play a three-game season-ending series in Seattle this weekend, with both likely needing a sweep to remain in at-large consideration for an NCAA Tournament bid. Washington State is 27-26, Washington 28-24.

Swilling Signs With Tulsa

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The process took longer than he anticipated, but Pat Swilling has found a Division I home.

Swilling a 6-2 guard from the College of Southern Idaho signed a National Letter of Intent with Tulsa Thursday.

"The process kind of drug on for him, but he found a great spot. Tulsa's got a long tradition of winning," said CSI head coach Steve Gosar. "The wait was good for him I think and honestly, I'm surprised a guy of his talent was still around this late in the process."

A combo guard, Swilling averaged 12.1 points and 3.2 rebounds as a sophomore at CSI this season, helping the Golden Eagles to a 31-5 record and an appearance at the NJCAA national tournament in Hutchinson, Kan.

He played a solid national tournament, averaging 19 points in three games, including 28 against Three Rivers (Mo.). He scored a career-high 37 points against Chemeketa (Ore.) early in the season.

Swilling underwent surgery on his wrist after the season and took visits to Oregon State and Samford (Ala.). He was first contacted by new Tulsa head coach Danny Manning and assistant coach Justin Bauman about a month ago, he told InsideTulsaSports.com, a Rivals.com affiliate.

"The relationship is beginning well," Swilling said. "I think as whole they have what it takes to get players matured and developed both on and off the court, and the basketball prowess to be able to recruit high major talent and be successful!"

Swilling played at St. Joseph's (Pa.) University as a freshman after graduating from Brother Martin High School in New Orleans, La.

The son of former New Orleans Saints great Pat Swilling, the younger Swilling was a two-sport start at Brother Martin, garnering heavy recruiting interest in basketball and football. Tulsa, among other schools, was one program interested in Swilling's football abilities.

"Pat comes from great bloodlines. He has a tremendous family and wonderful parents. He has grown up around competitive playing his entire life as his father has a great NFL career," Manning said. "His entire family sees this as a wonderful opportunity for growth on and off the court for Pat. Coach Gosar and his coaching staff at CSI have told us numerous times that Pat is one of the hardest workers they've ever had and that we'll be extremely pleased with Pat being a part of our program."

Kimberly's Alan Cazeau is the 2012 Times-News boys track and field athlete of the year.

Boys Track Athlete of the Year. Cazeau's Leadership, Speed, Wisdom Paced Bulldogs

BY STEPHEN MEYERS
smeyers@magicvalley.com

KIMBERLY • Alan Cazeau remembers the exact moment.

It was early in the 2009 season at a track meet in Gooding.

The freshman broke the 20-foot barrier in the long jump for the first time in his career, beating one of the best track athletes the Magic Valley would see that season.

"I remember the exact jump. My coaches told me to just go all out and go for it," said the Kimberly High School track star. "I beat the Spaniard (Buhl foreign exchange student Bertrand Alcaraz Garcia). He had been jumping pretty well, but I had a good day. I was pretty proud of myself that I beat him. That's kind of when it all started for me. That's when I knew I could do it."

Cazeau, the 2012 Times-News boys track and field athlete of the year, has beaten his competition ever since.

He won a Class 3A state title in the long jump as a junior last year, "A leap of faith," he said, and added his second long jump title this season, jumping 21 feet, 5.5 inches at the state meet last week.

"When I finally had it, it was more a feeling of gratitude. Last year it didn't even seem real," Cazeau said. "This year, I knew I could do it and I just had

Two CSI Softball Players Named All-America

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • College of Southern Idaho softball players Kylee Hogue and Nikki Brailsford were named to the NJCAA's Division I All-America teams, the program announced Thursday.

Hogue was named a second-team utility player, while Brailsford was named a third-team infielder.

Hogue, a freshman, was second on the team in batting average, hitting .414. She had 21 extra-base hits, including five home runs, in 49 games.

A sophomore, Brailsford played in team-high 62 of CSI's 63 games, batting .392 with a team-best 20 home runs.

CSI went 45-18 on the season, losing to national runner-up Salt Lake Community College in the Region 18 Tournament championship.

Hogue and Brailsford were two of four Golden Eagles to be named first-team all-Region 18. Only first-team all-region players are eligible for All-America consideration.

Lessons From the 2012 Track Season

The tears in Katelyn Peterson's eyes at the Class 1A state track championships said it all.

From tiny Class 1A Camas County, Peterson, who has a volleyball scholarship to the University of Idaho, has been arguably the top female athlete from our coverage area the past few years.

Owning 1A state meet records in the high jump and triple jump, she looked forward to her final high school state meet with high emotions. Those raw emotions rose even higher after hitting her head on the high jump bar in her first attempt and trainers — with fear that she may have a concussion — erred on the side of caution and recommended she pull out of competition.

She finished the day anyway.

Muddled amid the “thrill of victory and agony of defeat” that we cover in these sports pages every day, we occasionally get a glimpse, ever so slight, into the human soul. Athletes like Peterson, who passionately pursue of their goals, can never be denied. To many of us, it may seem like a sacrifice. To them, it's no sacrifice at all.

Erik Harris would agree. Last Saturday marked the final high school meet for the great Twin Falls distance runner, and Magic Valley may never see another like him. With wins in the 800 and 3,200-meter runs, we all felt a bit of anguish when his quest for an unprecedented 4A distance trifecta came up one-hundredth of a second short in the 1,600. Still, his incredible running career will live on at Brigham Young University, and we'll continue to be inspired by him from afar.

There were many other inspiring feats in track and field this spring, including the 25 individual championships and nine team trophies Magic Valley schools brought home from state; chief among them was the Gooding girls' title, won with just 10 girls.

Other state trophies included Jerome's girls (second) and Twin Falls' boys (fourth) in 4A; boys from Kimberly (second) and Buhl (third) in 3A; Declo boys (second) in 2A; and Oakley girls (third), Carey and Oakley boys (tied for fourth) in 1A.

Perhaps most impressive team finishes were by Jerome's girls and Kimberly's boys. The lady Tigers finished runner-up despite missing the sure points of top distance runner Mikesell Clegg, who was out with an injury.

Meanwhile, the speedy Bulldogs' runner-up trophy was a remarkable feat as they were also without their top distance runner, Wesley Kelly. The former state champ with a 4.0 GPA decided to forgo his senior track season to pursue academic goals, and we applaud him for that.

We will remember the 2012 track and field season for the many highlights, such as Minico senior Marlee Chandler opting out of her other races at state due to a hamstring injury and putting all her eggs in the 400-meter basket, which paid off in a gold medal. Or Richfield senior Sasha Kent breezing to victory in all three distance races. Or Claire Goss bidding adieu to Twin Falls with a hurdles state title before shipping off to a prep school in Massachusetts next year, with the plan of attending Dartmouth to play soccer.

But above all, we will remember the inspiring way Buhl's athletes pulled together and dedicated their performance at the Meet of Champions to their coach, Andrew Moretto, who was struck in the back of the neck by a stray discus during practice and underwent extensive surgery to repair two broken vertebrae.

The best news we reported this season wasn't about trophies or state records. Rather, it was reporting that Coach Moretto, all things considered, is OK.

Here's hoping we learn from folks like Moretto, Peterson, Harris and many other of our talented track athletes, when faced with unexpected hurdles.

May we get up and finish the day anyway.

gratitude that I had done it. It's pretty prestigious to go back-to-back.”

Cazeau's talents extend past the jumping pits, however. He is a speedster in the sprints, finishing third at state in the 100 meters this season with a time of 11.27 seconds. Cazeau also anchored Kimberly's winning 4x100 relay team and placed seventh in the 400 meters.

His leadership and experience was nearly as valuable to the Bulldogs, who finished second as a team at the 3A state meet. In practice, he served as the team's emotional leader and set the standard for what a hard workout should look like by leaving everything on the track.

“I love having him out there to compete with because he pushes us a lot. He's a hard worker,” teammate Winton Miller told the Times-News earlier this season.

As a freshman, Cazeau had seniors to look up to who pushed him to his best, so for him, this season was just his turn to be that senior leader.

Leckenby is 4-6 with a 4.56 ERA in a team-high 13 starts, throwing a team-high 73 innings. Coats has thrown just 2-3 of an inning this year as he continues recovering from an elbow injury that caused him to miss all of the 2011 season.

Remington Pullin, Twin Falls, UNLV

The Rebels began the Mountain West Conference Tournament late Thursday against top-seeded New Mexico. Sitting at 26-29 as of Wednesday, the Rebels probably have to win the tournament to secure a bid.

Pullin has seen action in 34 games, batting .217.

CSI

Parker Morin and Ryan Cooperstone, Utah

With the Pac-12 Conference not holding a postseason tournament, Utah is out of the running for NCAA Tournament consideration at 14-38. The Utes close the season this weekend at Cal State-Bakersfield.

Morin leads Utah in batting average at .317, with three homers and 37 RBI. Cooperstone played 17 games, hitting .143.

Preston Olson, Willie Pratt and Taylor Mangum, Utah Valley

The Wolverines advanced to the Great West Conference championship round Thursday with a win over North Dakota.

The Great West doesn't earn an automatic bid into the NCAA Tournament so the Wolverines will need to wait and see if their impressive 46-12 record, including a 32-game win streak that ended last week, is good enough.

Olson and Mangum are a combined 14-0 on the season, with Olson leading the team in ERA at 3.15. Pratt is batting .338.

Dale Anderson, Seton Hall

Winners of the last three Big East Tournaments, Seton Hall was up-ended by St. John's on Thursday and sent to the elimination bracket for the first time since 2008.

Anderson is hitting .255 with 13 RBI.

Michael Renner and Michael Wesner, North Florida

North Florida wrapped up its season last week, finishing with a 31-24 record.

Renner went 3-7 with a 4.44 ERA, while Wesner batted .234 with two home runs.

Travis Huber, Nebraska Nebraska is still alive in the Big Ten Tournament, eliminating Penn State on Thursday. The Cornhuskers are currently 35-22 and one of five teams still standing in the tournament.

Huber is the team's closer, a role he enjoyed at CSI, saving seven games with a 2.61 ERA.

Recipe to Make IndyCar Relevant Beyond 500

BY PAUL NEWBERRY Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS • James Hinchcliff can't understand it. In this sports-crazed nation, there are skilled athletes who willingly get behind the wheel of exotic-looking race cars and risk their lives at more than 200 mph, yet the interest level in what they're doing 364 days out of the year can be measured on a scale that starts at Zero, goes up to Negligible and roughly peaks out at Where's Danica.

"IndyCar is the best-kept secret in sports," Hinchcliff moaned Thursday from the infield at Indianapolis Motor Speedway. "It's infuriating." For a few hours Sunday, he and 32 other drivers will get a sense of what it's like to be part of an actual, big-time sport. The stands will be (mostly) filled with real, live people, hundreds of thousands of them, in fact. The television ratings will be measured in whole numbers instead of fractions. And the one who crosses the line first at the Indy 500 will get a bit of the Kardashian treatment — or at least hear his or her name uttered on SportsCenter.

Then comes Monday, when IndyCar racing slinks back to a not-so-appealing club, the one it shares with other fading sports genres. The America's Cup. Baseball's All-Star game. The Penn Relays. Heavyweight title fights. The Cotton Bowl. You know, games and events that fans once paid attention to, but are now on a path carved out by the dodo bird.

"If people would just come to a race," pleaded Hinchcliff, who might very well be on his way to stardom if only he could dribble a basketball or throw a football as well as he drives a high-powered machine. "It's such a cool product."

To be truly cool, there's got to be some people who care. (Sit down, gearheads, we're not talking to you.) For IndyCar to regain anything resembling the gravitas it had during that glorious era when icons such as A.J. Foyt and Mario Andretti reigned over the Brickyard, there must be some serious changes.

So, we went to the ones who have more of a vested interest than anyone else — the drivers themselves. All 33 of them were available for a couple of hours Thursday, the perfect time to get their take on curing the ills of IndyCar before the sport flat-lines altogether.

The ideas ranged from pie-in-the-sky (several suggested putting all the races on national TV, which IndyCar would surely agree to if there was a major network that actually thought it would attract more viewers than poker) to those who feel better merchandising is the key ("I want to go in Toys 'R Us and be able to buy a toy Indy car," rookie driver Josef Newgarten said.)

We took the best of what was offered and threw in a proposal of our own, all with the idea of turning IndyCar into a major player instead of just a niche:

—Speed, speed, speed. This one seems the most obvious, but the latest generation of cars introduced this year are plodding around the 2 1/2-mile oval at slightly slower speeds than the clunky relics they replaced. While NASCAR has always been about rubbin' and racin', Indy was built on going faster than ever before.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE: The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, payable in lawful money of the United States, in the office of First American Title Company, 199 Country Lane, Jerome, ID, 83338, on 09/04/2012 at 11:00 AM, (recognized local time) for the purpose of foreclosing that certain Deed of Trust recorded 10/29/2010 as Instrument Number 2104683, and executed by JANE GIBSON, AN UNMARRIED WOMAN, as Grantor(s), in favor of MORTGAGE ELECTRONIC REGISTRATION SYSTEMS, INC., as Beneficiary, to RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., the Current Trustee of record, covering the following real property located in Jerome County, State of Idaho: LEGAL DESCRIPTION: THAT PART OF SHEPHERD REPLAT NO. 2, TO THE CITY OF JEROME, JEROME COUNTY, IDAHO, AS THE SAME IS PLATTED IN THE OFFICIAL PLAT THEREOF, NOW OF RECORD IN THE OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF SAID COUNTY, DESCRIBED AS FOLLOWS: BEGINNING AT A POINT ON THE SOUTH LINE OF SAID REPLAT NO. 2 WHICH POINT IS 100 FEET EAST OF THE SOUTHWEST CORNER THEREOF; THENCE NORTH AT RIGHT ANGLES AND PARALLEL WITH THE WEST LINE, 150 FEET; THENCE EAST AT RIGHT ANGLES 50 FEET; THENCE SOUTH AT RIGHT ANGLES, PARALLEL WITH THE WEST LINE, 150 FEET TO THE SOUTH LINE OF SAID REPLAT; THENCE WEST ON SAID SOUTH LINE 50 FEET TO THE POINT OF BEGINNING. EXCEPTING THEREFROM THE NORTH 50 FEET OF THE ABOVE DESCRIBED PARCEL. The Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purpose of compliance with Idaho Code, Section 60-113, the Trustee has been informed that the street address of, 222 4TH AVENUE WEST, Jerome, ID, 83338 is sometimes associated with said real property. Bidders must be prepared to tender the trustee the full amount of the bid at the sale in the form of cash, or a cashier's check drawn on a state or federally insured savings institution. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in that certain Deed of Trust. The default for which this sale is to be made is: Failure to pay the monthly payment due 10/01/2011 of principal, interest and impounds and subsequent installments due thereafter; plus late charges, with interest currently accruing at 4.500% per annum; together with all subsequent sums advanced by beneficiary pursuant to the terms and conditions of said Deed of Trust, and any supplemental modifications thereto. The principal balance owing as of this date on said obligation is $77,501.41, plus interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder and in this sale, together with any unpaid and/or accruing real property taxes, and/or assessments, attorneys' fees, Trustees' fees and costs, and any other amount advanced to protect said security, as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust. Therefore, the Beneficiary elects to sell, or cause said trust property to be sold, to satisfy said obligation. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THIS FIRM IS ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT AND ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THAT THE DEBT MAY BE DISPUTED. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a) IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION. DATED: 04/26/2012, RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., Name and Address of the Current Trustee is: RECONTRUST COMPANY, N.A., 1800 Tapo Canyon Rd., CA6-914-01-94, SIMI VALLEY, CA 80028-1821, PHONE: (800) 281-8219 TS # 12-0030611 FEI # 1006.158252

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Tuesday, September 18, 2012 at the hour of 11:00AM, of said day, on the steps of the Jerome County Courthouse located at 300 N. Lincoln, Jerome, ID 83338, Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as successor trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, cashiers check, certified check or tellers check, (from a bank which has a branch in the community at the site of the sale), money order, State of Idaho check or local government check, or cash equivalent in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the same time of sale, the following described real property, situated in the County of Jerome, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:

Parcel No. 1:

Lot 5 in Block 3 of Bailey Addition to the City of Eden, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

Parcel No. 2:

Lot 4 in Block 3 of Bailey Addition to the City of Eden, Jerome County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 225 Orchard Avenue, Eden, ID 83325 as to Parcel 1 and no address available as to Parcel 2, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Clinton M. White and Jennifer J. White, husband and wife, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of MetLife Home Loans, a division of MetLife Bank, N.A. as Successor Beneficiary, recorded October 25, 2005 as Instrument No. 2055951, Mortgage records of Jerome County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to: Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $76,000.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 6.2500% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated October 18, 2005. Payments are in default for the months of April 2011 through and including April 2012 in the amount of $635.78 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of April 20, 2012 is $70,017.89 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 6.2500% per annum. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $70,017.89, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"The privilege of absurdity, to which no living creature is subject but man only."
— Thomas Hobbes

Today's deal contains points of interest both for defenders and for declarer.

Look at all four hands. Can South make six hearts on the lead of the spade jack?

If South ruffs the opening lead and plays ace and another club, East must ruff his partner's winner and play a trump, restricting South to 11 tricks. If East hoards his trump, not ruffing his partner's winner, then the 4-0 break comes to declarer's rescue. He can simply arrange to ruff his two club losers in dummy and come to 12 tricks painlessly.

Of course, declarer does not know in advance about the bad trump break, but he must plan to counter this line of defense. What he must do at trick two is play the diamond king, then cash the diamond ace, and ruff a diamond high.

He has now established the diamonds as a threat against East. When he now plays ace and another club, East again must ruff and play a trump, or South reverts to the crossruff line. The difference is that when South wins the trump in dummy and finds the bad break, East is left with only two trumps instead of three.

South simply plays a winning diamond from the dummy. East must ruff again, but now a second heart to dummy draws East's last trump and provides access to dummy for the last time. So both of declarer's club losers can be discarded on dummy's two remaining diamond winners.

ANSWER: Your partner's double is takeout, suggesting values and the unbid suit. Obviously you intend to bid hearts. The question is whether to bid three hearts or just make the simple call of two hearts. The fourth trump is exceedingly valuable, but with the queens in the minors instead of one in the trump suit, I'd settle for a call of two hearts, planning to compete to three hearts if necessary.

PUBLIC SERVICE MESSAGE
Selling Property? Don't pay any fees until it's sold. For free information about avoiding time share and real estate scams, write to: Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580 or call the National Fraud Information Center, 1-800-876-7060.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please remind your many readers that the greatest gift we can give to America's fallen is the gift of remembrance? The legacy of those who have died for our freedom — from the Revolutionary War to the present — is something that strengthens and unites Americans. I would like every child to say, "I know why I am free, and I know who died for my freedom."

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Since 1997, Major League Baseball has stopped all games in progress at 3 p.m. on Memorial Day to observe the National Moment of Remembrance. The umpire steps out from home plate, removes his mask, and halts the game so that everyone can pause. The crowd rises as one with hands over their hearts. Along with MLB, the Ironworkers, Sheet Metal Workers and firefighters unions, American Veterans Center, the National Cartoonists Society and Bugles Across America observe the Moment, too.

The Moment does not replace traditional Memorial Day events. It is not an "event" but an act of conscience. Throughout our history, and especially during the past decade, servicemen and women in foreign lands have been dying almost daily to protect freedom and liberty.

We encourage all citizens to make every day Memorial Day in their hearts, but especially on Memorial Day itself. May the love of country always bond Americans together. For all of the fallen, let us continue to make this nation one great American family in spirit. To learn more, please go to www.ngl.org.

— CARMELLA LaSPADA, FOUNDER, NO GREATER LOVE

DEAR CARMELLA: I'm printing your reminder in advance of Memorial Day so that readers can plan ahead for it. I know many of them will be interested in observing it.

Readers, wherever you are at 3 p.m. local time on Monday, May 28, won't you join me in pausing for the National Moment of Remembrance and honoring those brave individuals who died for us? And when you do, make a commitment to give back to our country in their memory by putting your remembrance into action.

DEAR ABBY: My parents were married 25 years. When Dad died last year, Mom was devastated. Then she got in touch with an old flame. She told us they were just friends. A few months later, she informed us she was moving across the country with him for a "mutually beneficial situation." He gives her a place to stay, and she takes care of his house and the bills. She called recently to tell me that she has loved him since she was young and they are now getting married.

I'm worried because she has jumped into this so quickly. When they marry, Dad will have been gone not quite a year. I feel she is showing lack of respect for my father's memory and their marriage by doing this so soon. Should I be worried about her, or just happy she has found "love" again?

— DREADING THE WEDDING IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR DREADING THE WEDDING: While the man your mother is marrying is a stranger to you, he is obviously no stranger to her. They have a history that predates your father. Going on with her life is not disrespectful to your father's memory. Be happy for your mother and cross your fingers that everything works out for her the way she wishes. Worrying about her will help neither of you.

IF MAY 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may be more adept at business and wiser than usual during the next four to eight weeks. Rest assured that you have good luck on your side and avid supporters to help you rise a bit higher in any profession or career path that you choose. Promises made during the first week of July will be kept in good faith. That may be a good time to initiate a key project or personal enterprise. Business smarts combined with opportunity will allow you to improve your financial security. Good advice will let you keep your head above water in October when a new romance tempts you, but you must avoid making crucial changes or lapsing into bad habits in November.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Throw traditions out the door. This is an excellent time to experiment with new theories or to act independently. The results will prove you right not to give in to the pressures urging you to conform.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Spotlight your specialty. It might be time to escape from your ordinary routines. You might need to rub shoulders with numerous people to find an opportunity to show off your best traits.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone once said that the key to happiness is a bad memory. If you can put your doubts, suspicions and misgivings behind you and update your focus, you will find something grand to smile about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Bring it on. You won't be tempted to back away from a challenge today. On the contrary, you might be passionate about improving your future. When enthused by a plan, it is easy to put it into motion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stars shine brightest in the night sky. You can shine in the right environment. Albert Einstein once said that, "If you judge a fish by its ability to climb a tree, it will live its whole life believing that it is stupid."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The simplest explanation is usually the correct one. Your instincts and intuitions may be off base in some instances. Under these stars, you are easily duped — so ask for feedback from others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Break away from the herd mentality. You don't need to go it alone, but you do need to think for yourself. Toss out outworn customs and ideas in the same way you would dispose of outgrown clothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep it under your hat. When you explore new technical areas or try something new, you might be more comfortable behind closed doors. You should make clear to others your need for privacy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't be afraid to feed a fascination for the innovative. Ideas from the Internet, computer software or an electronic gadget might brighten your day or at least make work run more smoothly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Hoist the flag of your self-image and enhance your self-esteem. This is a good time for social networking and for receiving positive feedback. Surprise someone by being cheerful rather than forceful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Fly by the seat of your pants. It isn't always logic or an instrument panel that guides you. Intuitive knowledge and a grasp of what is popular with the masses can help you put unique ideas into motion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your feet planted firmly on the ground. You might understand how a shell game is played, but it might be only the illusion that rivets your attention. Don't get caught up in an emotional wild goose chase.

Today is Friday, May 25, the 146th day of 2012. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On May 25, 1787, the Constitutional Convention began at the Pennsylvania State House (Independence Hall) in Philadelphia after enough delegates had shown up for a quorum. (The Convention ended four months later with the delegates adopting the Constitution of the United States.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1895, playwright Oscar Wilde was convicted of a morals charge in London; he was sentenced to two years in prison.

In 1916, the Chicago Tribune published an interview with Henry Ford in which the automobile industrialist was quoted as saying, "History is more or less bunk. It's tradition. We don't want tradition. We want to live in the present and the only history that is worth a tinker's dam is the history we make today."

In 1935, Babe Ruth hit the 714th and final home run of his career, for the Boston Braves, in a game against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In 1942, U.S. Army Lt. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, frustrated over being driven out of Burma by Japanese troops during World War II, bluntly told reporters in Delhi, India: "I claim we got a hell of a beating."

In 1946, Transjordan (now Jordan) became a kingdom as it proclaimed its new monarch, Abdullah I.

In 1961, President John F. Kennedy told Congress: "I believe that this nation should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth."

In 1968, the Gateway Arch in St. Louis was dedicated by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

In 1979, Six-year-old Etan Patz disappeared while on his way to a school bus stop in lower Manhattan; his fate has never been determined.

In 1981, daredevil Dan Goodwin, wearing a Spider-Man costume, scaled the outside of Chicago's Sears Tower in 7 1/2 hours.

In 1986, an estimated 7 million Americans participated in "Hands Across America" to raise money for the nation's hungry and homeless.

In 1992, Jay Leno made his debut as host of NBC's "Tonight Show," succeeding Johnny Carson.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush, during a visit to St. Petersburg, joined Russian President Vladimir Putin in pressuring Pakistan's president to curb cross-border violence in Kashmir and ease tensions with neighboring India.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush signed a bill to pay for military operations in Iraq that did not contain a timetable for troop withdrawals. Radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr resurfaced after nearly four months in hiding and demanded U.S. troops leave Iraq. Atlanta attorney Andrew Speaker, infected with drug-resistant tuberculosis, was quarantined by the federal government after returning from his European wedding and honeymoon. (It turned out Speaker had a form of TB less severe than what authorities had feared.) Tony Award-winning actor Charles Nelson Reilly died in Los Angeles at age 76.

One year ago: President Obama and British Prime Minister David Cameron confronted complex security debates over Afghanistan, Libya and economic growth during Obama's state visit to London. A judge in Salt Lake City sentenced street preacher Brian David Mitchell to life in prison for kidnapping and raping Elizabeth Smart, who was 14 at the time of her abduction in 2002. A judge in Tucson, Ariz., ruled that Jared Lee Loughner, the man accused of wounding U.S. Rep. Gabrielle Giffords and killing six in a shooting rampage, was mentally incompetent to stand trial. Scotty McCreery, a 17-year-old high school student from Garner, N.C., won "American Idol" on Fox. After a 25-year run, "The Oprah Winfrey Show" aired its final broadcast.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

WARNING
When purchasing a vehicle, make sure that the title is in the name of the seller. Under Idaho motor vehicle code a vehicle cannot be sold unless the title is in the name of the seller (exception: Idaho licensed dealer). The seller shall provide the new purchaser a signed bill of sale showing the following: Full description of the vehicle, vehicle identification number, amount paid and name(s) and address of the new purchaser. The bill of sale must be signed, dated and show actual mileage at the time of sale. If you have any questions, please contact your local assessor's office.
