WASHINGTON • The father of a U.S. soldier who was taken prisoner in Afghanistan thanked the motorcycle riders of Rolling Thunder on Sunday for raising awareness of missing-in-action troops and prisoners of war.

At the annual Rolling Thunder rally on the National Mall, Bob Bergdahl promised his son: "You will come home. We will not leave you behind."

Army Sgt. Bowe Bergdahl, 26, of Hailey, was taken prisoner in Afghanistan nearly three years ago. He is the subject of a proposed prisoner swap in which the Obama administration would allow the transfer of five Taliban prisoners long held at the U.S. military prison at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Bergdahl said he couldn't be happier with the government's efforts to return his son.

$62K Grant to Help Jerome County's ADA Compliance

BY STEVE KADEL

JEROME • Jerome County will receive a federal grant of almost $62,000 to help the courthouse and airport comply with Americans with Disabilities Act requirements.

County commission chairman Charlie Howell announced the grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

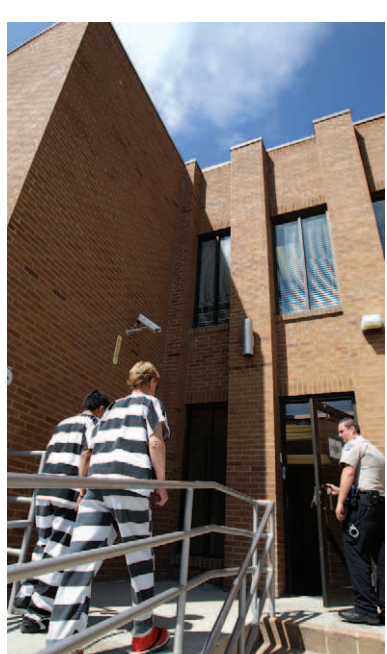

Grant writer Carleen Herring, vice president of community and economic development for the Region IV Development Association, said the money has been awarded and construction should begin this summer following an environmental assessment now under way.

The courthouse ramp to an entrance on the building's east side will get a larger door to accommodate wheelchairs. Also, the entry will get an electronic button to open the door.

The $61,824 grant, which requires a 50 percent county match, also will pay for upgrades in courthouse restrooms to allow greater wheelchair turning radius, grab bars, and lower-level water fountains with push-button controls.

"(The county has) been chipping away at this for a number of years and the block grant will help defray the cost," Herring said of ADA upgrades.

SOUTH HILLS • The replica Sioux Indian teepee was a welcome sanctuary Saturday afternoon when snow began falling.

Jay Edmons, of Buhl, opened the flap and stepped inside to enjoy the warmth of a small wood stove tended by Shoshone resident Leigh Kelley and Jared Crider, of Twin Falls. The latter two men had a comfortable home for the three-day Southern Idaho Muzzleloaders Association rendezvous that concludes today.

Kelley's teepee included buffalo robes and elk hides to keep them warm at night, as well as a candle in a glass holder.

"This is the place to be," Kelley said as he greeted Edmons.

Smoke from the fire escaped through an opening in the teepee's top, and only a few snowflakes filtered down from outside. Fifteen wooden poles kept the canvas structure taut.

Kelley, who goes by the rendezvous nickname of Mangy Moose, was asked how long it takes to erect the teepee.

Grant

Commissioner Cathy Roemer said the county's portion of funding will be spread over a two-year period through its capital building fund. She said some of the grant money will be used for an entrance ramp at the county's airport to bring it into ADA compliance.

Another federal grant will provide $46,000 to pay for nearly all improvements planned at the Silver and Gold Senior Center in Eden. Herring said that will include new vinyl flooring, lighting upgrades, repair of downspouts and drains, new kitchen shelving, and a new kitchen stove, convection oven and commercial dishwasher.

The entire project at the senior center is projected to cost $50,000. Herring said the U.S. Commerce Department requires considerably less matching funding for senior center improvements than it does for other projects because senior centers traditionally operate on narrow financial margins.

Jerome County also has received a $70,000 waterways grant from Idaho Department of State Parks and Recreation for use at Wilson Lake, Commissioner Roger Morley said. The grant, which requires a $10,000 match from Jerome County, will pay for new docks, restrooms and cement retention barriers along the banks to keep sand and gravel from washing into the water, he said.

It follows a $50,000 waterways grant from the state department last year.

"A good squaw can set it up in 30 minutes, but it takes us fat old men about an hour," he said with a laugh.

Humorous banter was plentiful throughout the camp Saturday despite the cold temperature and snow, which began piling up on the ground at 6,000 feet elevation in the Sawtooth National Forest.

It wasn't how the association members hoped to kick off their summer, but no one complained. They saw worse during the 2006 Memorial Day weekend when 4 to 6 inches of snow accumulated.

Edmons, also known as Jaybird, had been at the shooting range testing his black powder rifle a few minutes earlier. He rang a metal target 60 yards away before snowfall became too heavy to continue.

"We figure the mountain men had to hunt in this," he said, taking aim. "I'll do one more (shot) before I freeze up. When black powder gets wet it turns to cement."

compete. Edmons went to his first black powder shoot in 1992 and has rarely missed an event since then. He said it's the camaraderie, not winning or losing, that makes rendezvous weekends fun.

Southern Idaho members travel throughout the West during summer months to renew old friendships and wear their deerskin shirts and pants again. Hats are important, too.

Todd Miller, of Hollister, who is Wounded Wing until he leaves camp tonight, searched a long time before settling on a black and white beauty made from three skunk pelts at a rendezvous in Wyoming. He modeled it with pride outside of his tent.

"I looked for years for the right hat," Miller said. "When you find it, you'll know."

He likes the historical aspects of rendezvous.

"I want to help keep an era alive. There are fewer and fewer kids who know anything about the fur trapper era."

That's association president Ron Corle's goal as well. He and other club members often visit schools to show them their guns and other aspects of the 1800s.

"We're carrying on a tradition," Corle said.

last time Tuesday.

For Pickens, it meant late nights spent packing, but she said having a new building is exciting and thrilling.

"It will be so worth it," she said.

The Wendell elementary school is currently spread out in nine buildings - six portables and three made of brick. The oldest was constructed in the early 1960s, while the modular classrooms were added about 25 years ago.

Rogers said the new school will bring everyone under one roof and improve security.

"I'm looking forward to a safe campus," said Wendell Elementary principal Kevin Rogers.

Wendell superintendent Greg Lowe said construction crews are installing furniture in the new building. On Friday, the school district's maintenance staff started the two-week process of moving teacher supplies.

The New Building

Crews broke ground last summer on the approximately 60,000-square-foot elementary school building, which will replace the current facility.

Phase I of the project - all but six of the 27 classrooms - is scheduled for completion next month.

Wendell Elementary principal Kevin Rogers said he's thankful residents passed a $9.8 million bond in 2010 to construct the facility.

"This has been needed for a long time," he said.

This August, most students will start the new school year in the new building. But two fourth-grade classes will remain in an old modular building until December when Phase II of the construction project ends.

The reason: Six more classrooms in the last phase of the project can't be constructed until all the old buildings are out of the way.

Saying Goodbye

In Pickens' classroom, a few miscellaneous items - like paper clips and scraps of paper - covered the floor. File cabinets were all pushed to one corner of the room.

Pickens spent 15 years teaching in the classroom and has many memories of her time in the space. She pointed out a hook on a wall and remembered that it held a piñata a parent brought in years ago.

In a different building, music teacher Lana Lamm described packing as a "work in progress." A pile of items in the middle of her classroom included xylophones and bongo drums.

One part of the packing process included paring down the number of costumes from previous school musicals.

Teacher Debbie Lancaster is retiring and was packing up her classroom for the last time. She spent 25 years teaching at Wendell Elementary and said she'll miss working with students.

Lancaster said she was feeling sentimental while going through items, especially those that bring back good memories of past students.

"It's a fun thing to go down memory lane," she said.

Magic Valley's Students of the Week

Academic • T.F. Christian Academy Kevin Wilmot

Kevin, a senior, has a 4.0 grade-point average and is the valedictorian of his class. Throughout all of his years at Twin Falls Christian Academy, he has remained actively involved in the school activities. He has played both soccer and basketball, had major roles in each spring play, and mentors a K-4 girl every Wednesday. "She's a sweet girl," he said of that experience. "Just seeing her smile makes me happy, and it makes me realize that I'm making a difference here."

In addition, he has also received two congressional nominations to the Air Force Academy.

His favorite class this year has been chemistry. "It is so interesting to learn how the world around us works," he said. "It's amazing to see how perfectly everything is designed."

Kevin will attend the University of Denver in the fall with a dean scholarship in the amount of $15,000 per year. He plans to study math and science.

Athlete • Twin Falls Zayne Slotten

Of all of Zayne's attributes, the one that impresses Twin Falls High School counselor Bill Hartley the most is that he's a true gentleman. Zayne is a member of Hartley's advisory class at the school. While in class, Hartley wrote, Zayne always handles himself with dignity and is courteous and polite to everyone. He maintains a solid "B" average and is almost always working on something related to school.

Zayne is also one heck of an athlete, Hartley wrote. He has competed at the varsity level for four years in football, wrestling and baseball. He has been the captain of all three of these competitive teams, as well as winning numerous team, conference and state awards.

Zayne is currently weighing several collegiate offers to continue his educational pursuits while participating in athletics at the next level.

Bankruptcy Trustee Seeks Money from Canyon County

BOISE (AP) • A bankruptcy trustee has filed a motion asking a federal bankruptcy judge to make a summary judgment and order Canyon County to turn over $171,000 the county received from former Prosecutor John Bujak before Bujak resigned and filed for bankruptcy.

The Idaho Statesman reports that trustee Jeremy Gugino filed the motion Thursday contending he's entitled to recover transfers from Bujak to the county so that the money can be distributed among all creditors.

Gugino filed a lawsuit against the county in July last year in U.S. Bankruptcy Court seeking the money. His request for summary judgment, if granted, would mean the issue wouldn't be decided in a trial.

He said Bujak paid the county $171,000 in the two months before he resigned and that is more than the county would receive through the bankruptcy. The document lists a $598,000 contract Bujak had with the city of Nampa as one of Bujak's assets, compared to $1.3 million in debts. Bankruptcy law allows trustees to pursue debt payments a person makes within 90 days of filing.

Canyon County officials contend Bujak still owes the county more than $230,000, and they will fight efforts to make the county repay the $171,000 received from Bujak.

"We are not surprised by the trustee's filing of his motion for summary judgment on one of the claims he asserted in his complaint," attorneys for the county told the newspaper in a statement. "The county will be filing its own cross-motion for summary judgment on those same issues and opposing the Trustee's motion."

A hearing in the bankruptcy case is set for June 25.

In a criminal case related to the bankruptcy, Bujak in March pleaded not guilty in 3rd District Court to misusing public funds. Prosecutors said he mishandled money from a contract to prosecute misdemeanors in the southwestern Idaho city of Nampa. County officials say more than $734,000 was put into a trust account to cover 15 months of prosecution work and Bujak took $236,000 for his own personal expenses. Bujak resigned over the contract in September 2010. Shortly after his resignation he filed for bankruptcy.

The mediation session in the criminal case is set for Wednesday.

Also in March, U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Jim Pappas rejected a proposed settlement between Canyon County officials and Bujak's bankruptcy estate. Pappas said litigation would be in the best interest of creditors owed money in the bankruptcy.

Bujak declined to comment.

Three Rescued from Plane Crash Site in Remote S.W. Idaho

BY KEITH RIDLER
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho National Guard rescuers plucked a California fireman, his wife and their adult daughter from a snow-covered mountain-side Sunday afternoon, more than 15 hours after the trio survived a nighttime plane crash onto a steep, forested slope in a remote part of the state. Authorities said the group was flying in a Cessna 172 from California to Mountain Home, Idaho, when the plane went down at about 9 p.m. MDT Saturday. One of the three used a cell-phone just after midnight to report that they had survived the crash but had suffered head and back injuries.

A medical helicopter was the first to spot the wreckage Sunday morning, but white-out conditions didn't allow for an immediate rescue, said Col. Tim Marsano of the Idaho National Guard.

Officials said ground rescuers traveling through 6-foot snow drifts and on 60 degree slopes reached the crash site first. They wrapped the family members in blankets and built a fire until a military helicopter could lift them out with a hoist.

"It was inhospitable for a landing," Marsano said. "The use of the helicopter was indispensable for this type of rescue operation."

The three were flown one at a time to a landing area about a half-mile from War Eagle Mountain in southwest Idaho's Owyhee County. The first person came out about noon and the last at about 2 p.m., and each was transferred to a medical helicopter and flown to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise where they were listed in stable condition.

It's unclear what caused the Cessna to go down. Photos taken by rescuers showed significant damage, including a broken front windshield.

Authorities identified the three as Brian Brown of Wilton, Calif., his wife Jayann Brown, and their daughter. Her name was not immediately available.

Brian Brown is a captain at the Cosumnes Community Services District Fire Department in Elk Grove, Calif. He is also Deputy Chief of Operation and Training with the nearby volunteer Wilton Fire Protection District.

Wilton Fire Chief Tom Dark said the couple was flying with their youngest daughter to Mountain Home to visit their oldest daughter. He was relieved they were in stable condition.

"That was our first concern, how he and the family were doing," said Dark. "Knowing what a good pilot he is, something had to have happened."

Dark said it was probably an unusual experience for Brown, a firefighter for more than two decades, to be on the other end of a rescue.

"When the shoe is on the other foot it's kind of strange," he said.

BOISE • Nate Murphy knocked on 8,000 doors and spent just $10 on his successful 2011 campaign for Pocatello's school board, but the 22-year-old's current bid to become Idaho's youngest-ever legislator is exacting a higher price.

He's running for Pocatello's District 29 House seat as a Democrat in a Republican-dominated state. He also has a misdemeanor marijuana conviction from 2008 he knew he'd likely have to explain to voters before November.

And in March, he was accidentally outed as gay after Idaho's only openly gay lawmaker told The New York Times that Murphy would be taking up her legacy.

That's how his father and grandmother found out about his bisexuality.

Given those distractions, Murphy is working hard to refocus voter attention on the topics that matter to him, not diversionary issues he says distract from his core message of improving Idaho education, a theme that won him his School District 25 trustee seat last year.

"At the end of the line, I think the election is going to be my record in public service and the issues important to my district," he said.

Until now, the youngest Idaho lawmaker was former Rep. Branden Durst, D-Boise, 26 when elected in 2006.

Murphy, still a junior at Idaho State University after taking semesters off to run Democratic campaigns in southwestern Idaho, aims to claim that title by telling voters he'll fight Idaho public schools chief Tom Luna's education reforms, passed by the 2011 Legislature to require online classes and student laptops.

Sticking to his message, however, has not been easy.

Earlier this year, Sen. Nicole LeFavour told The Times she was excited to think of Murphy becoming Idaho's second-ever openly gay lawmaker. LeFavour, D-Boise, is the first, and the newspaper was profiling her retirement.

The only problem, Murphy said last week, he wasn't out.

"I didn't solicit that at all," Murphy told The Associated Press in an interview.

LeFavour has since apologized to Murphy for breaking the gay community's cardinal rule: Letting people come out on their own.

"I didn't know he wasn't out," she said. "I felt horrible."

Murphy has since made peace with his outing, accepting the endorsement of the Washington, D.C.-based Gay & Lesbian Victory Fund. The group encourages gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender candidates to address questions about their sexuality frankly — before quickly shifting to matters more important to voters. "If a candidate spends too much time talking about their sexual orientation, they're likely going to alienate voters," said Denis Dison, a spokesman.

Murphy said he's following that advice to win voters in a district where Idaho State University and his school district are the biggest employers.

"The social issues are not going to keep people in my district employed or not," he said.

Catalina Steckbauer, the Bannock County Democratic Party's chairwoman, doesn't think Murphy's bisexuality is going to matter in Pocatello, an old railroad town with a painting of its namesake Indian chief in the vacant train depot downtown.

"I really believe that is a non-issue," Steckbauer said. "In other parts of the state, it could be, but not here."

Americans Honor the Fallen for Memorial Day

Across the U.S. this weekend, Americans are honoring the fallen, veterans and military personnel in ceremonies and private remembrances. Here are a few photos from the Associated Press capturing the Memorial Day weekend around the U.S.

Syria Denies Houla Killings; U.N. Condemns Attack

BEIRUT (AP) • Syria on Sunday strongly denied allegations that its forces killed scores of people — including women and children — in one of the deadliest days of the country's uprising, but the U.N. Security Council after an emergency session condemned government forces for shelling residential areas.

The killing of more than 100 people in the west-central area of Houla on Friday brought widespread international criticism of the regime of President Bashar Assad, although differences emerged from world powers over whether his forces were exclusively to blame.

The Security Council issued a press statement Sunday that "condemned in the strongest possible terms" the killings in Houla. It blamed Syrian forces for artillery and tank shelling of residential areas. It also condemned the killings of civilians "by shooting at close range and by severe physical abuse," but avoided saying who was responsible for these attacks.

The council's statement said the "outrageous use of force" against civilians violated international law and Syrian government commitments under previous U.N. resolutions to stop all violence, including the use of heavy weapons in populated areas. It said "those responsible for acts of violence must be held accountable," and asked the U.N. observer mission in Syria and Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon to investigate the attacks and report back to the council. Britain and France had proposed issuing a press statement condemning the attack on civilians and pointing the finger at the Syrian government for Friday's massacre. But Russia called for an emergency council meeting saying it first wanted a briefing by Gen. Robert Mood, the head of the unarmed U.N. observer mission.

NATO Disputes Report of Casualties in Airstrike

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) • The U.S.-led coalition on Sunday disputed reports that eight civilians, including children, were killed in a NATO airstrike in a remote part of eastern Afghanistan.

Afghan officials said an airstrike Saturday night killed eight members of a family, but a senior NATO official said that so far, there is no evidence of any civilian casualties. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to disclose the information.

Separately, NATO reported that three coalition service members were killed Sunday in eastern Afghanistan — two during an insurgent attack and one from a roadside bombing.

Four others, including a British soldier, were killed in the south on Saturday, bringing to 169 the number of NATO deaths in Afghanistan so far this year. The British Ministry of Defense said the soldier was killed in an explosion in the Nahr-e Saraj region of southern Helmand province. The nationalities of the other three have not been disclosed.

Tropical Storm Beryl Strengthens, Nears U.S. Coast

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tropical Storm Beryl was wrecking some Memorial Day weekend plans on Sunday, causing shoreline campers to pack up and head inland and leading to the cancellation of some events as the storm approached the southeastern U.S.

Beryl was still well offshore, but officials in Georgia and Florida were bracing for drenching rains and driving winds.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said Sunday evening that Beryl was approaching hurricane strength and was expected to make landfall late Sunday or early Monday.

As of 8 p.m., Beryl had maximum sustained winds of 70 mph (113 kph), just below hurricane-strength, which is 75 mph. It was not expected to strengthen much more, and should weaken after making landfall. The hurricane center said the Jacksonville pier was already reporting winds of 50 mph (80 kph). Beryl was moving westward at 10 mph (16 kph).

Florida Gov. Rick Scott urged Florida residents in the affected areas to "stay alert and aware."

People crowd Wrightsville Beach in Wilmington, N.C., as red flags fly, warning swimmers of dangerous conditions and rip currents due to Tropical Storm Beryl on Sunday. The National Hurricane Center in Miami said late Sunday afternoon that Beryl would make landfall in several hours.

Inmates, Corruption Rule Honduras' Deadly Prisons

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (AP) • Inside one of Honduras' most dangerous and overcrowded prisons, inmates operate a free-market bazaar, selling everything from iPhones to prostitutes.

It's more like a fenced-in town than a conventional prison, where raccoons, chickens and pigs wander freely among food stalls and in troughs of open sewage. But guards do not dare cross the painted, yellow "linea de la muerte" (line of death) into the inner sanctum run by prisoners, and prisoners do not breach the perimeter controlled by guards.

"The prisoners rule," assistant prison director Carlos Polanco told The Associated Press. "We only handle external security. They know if they cross the line, we can shoot."

The unofficial division of power at the San Pedro Sula Central Corrections Facility is mimicked throughout the country, where a Lord-of-the-Flies system allows inmates to run a business behind bars, while officials turn a blind eye in exchange for a cut of the profits they say is spent on prison needs.

Almost Half of New Veterans Seek Disability

MARILYNN MARCHIONE
Associated Press

America's newest veterans are filing for disability benefits at a historic rate, claiming to be the most medically and mentally troubled generation of former troops the nation has ever seen.

A staggering 45 percent of the 1.6 million veterans from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan are now seeking compensation for injuries they say are service-related. That is more than double the estimate of 21 percent who filed such claims after the Gulf War in the early 1990s, top government officials told The Associated Press.

What's more, these new veterans are claiming eight to nine ailments on average, and the most recent ones over the last year are claiming 11 to 14. By comparison, Vietnam veterans are currently receiving compensation for fewer than four, on average, and those from World War II and Korea, just two.

It's unclear how much worse off these new veterans are than their predecessors. Many factors are driving the dramatic increase in claims — the weak economy, more troops surviving wounds, and more awareness of problems such as concussions and PTSD. Almost one-third have been granted disability so far.

Government officials and some veterans' advocates say that veterans who might have been able to work with certain disabilities may be more inclined to seek benefits now because they lost jobs or can't find any. Aggressive outreach and advocacy efforts also have brought more veterans into the system, which must evaluate each claim to see if it is war-related. Payments range from $127 a month for a 10 percent disability to $2,769 for a full one.

As the nation commemorates the more than 6,400 troops who died in post-9/11 wars, the problems of those who survived also draw attention. These new veterans are seeking a level of help the government did not anticipate, and for which there is no special fund set aside to pay.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is mired in backlogged claims, but "our mission is to take care of whatever the population is," said Allison Hickey, the VA's undersecretary for benefits. "We want them to have what their entitlement is."

EVA RUSSO • RICHMOND TIMES DISPATCH • ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stephanie Childers, right, follows behind as her husband, Marine Lance Cpl. Caleb Childers, makes his way back to his room at the McGuire Veterans Affairs Medical Center in August 2011 in Richmond, Va.

The 21 percent who filed claims in previous wars is Hickey's estimate of an average for Operation Desert Storm and Desert Shield. The VA has details only on the current disability claims being paid to veterans of each war.

The AP spent three months reviewing records and talking with doctors, government officials and former troops to take stock of the new veterans. They are different in many ways from those who fought before them.

More are from the Reserves and National Guard — 28 percent of those filing disability claims — rather than career military. Reserves and National Guard made up a greater percentage of troops in these wars than they did in previous ones. About 31 percent of Guard/Reserve new veterans have filed claims compared to 56 percent of career military ones.

More of the new veterans are women, accounting for 12 percent of those who have sought care through the VA. Women also served in greater numbers in these wars than in the past. Some female veterans are claiming PTSD due to military sexual trauma — a new challenge from a disability rating standpoint, Hickey said.

The new veterans have different types of injuries than previous veterans did. That's partly because improvised bombs have been the main weapon and because body armor and improved battlefield care allowed many of them to survive wounds that in past wars proved fatal.

"They're being kept alive at unprecedented rates," said Dr. David Cifu, the VA's medical rehabilitation chief. More than 95 percent of troops wounded in Iraq and Afghanistan have survived.

Larry Bailey II is an example. After tripping a rooftop bomb in Afghanistan last June, the 26-year-old Marine remembers flying into the air, then fellow troops attending to him.

"I pretty much knew that my legs were gone. My left hand, from what I remember I still had three fingers on it," although they didn't seem right, Bailey said. "I looked a few times but then they told me to stop looking." Bailey, who is from Zion, Ill., north of Chicago, ended up a triple amputee and expects to get a hand transplant this summer.

He is still transitioning from active duty and is not yet a veteran. Just over half of Iraq and Afghanistan veterans eligible for VA care have used it so far. Of those who have sought VA care:

- More than 1,600 of them lost a limb; many others lost fingers or toes.

- At least 156 are blind, and thousands of others have impaired vision.

- More than 177,000 have hearing loss, and more than 350,000 report tinnitus — noise or ringing in the ears.

- Thousands are disfigured, as many as 200 of them so badly that they may need face transplants. One-quarter of battlefield injuries requiring evacuation included wounds to the face or jaw, one study found.

"The numbers are pretty staggering," said Dr. Bohdan Pomahac, a surgeon at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston who has done four face transplants on non-military patients and expects to start doing them soon on veterans.

Others have invisible wounds. More than 400,000 of these new veterans have been treated by the VA for a mental health problem, most commonly, PTSD.

Tens of thousands of veterans suffered traumatic brain injury, or TBI — mostly mild concussions from bomb blasts — and doctors don't know what's in store for them long-term. Cifu, of the VA, said that roughly 20 percent of active duty troops suffered concussions, but only one-third of them have symptoms lasting beyond a few months.

That's still a big number, and "it's very rare that someone has just a single concussion," said David Hovda, director of the UCLA Brain Injury Research Center. Suffering multiple concussions, or one soon after another, raises the risk of long-term problems. A brain injury also makes the brain more susceptible to PTSD, he said.

On a more mundane level, many new veterans have back, shoulder and knee problems, aggravated by carrying heavy packs and wearing the body armor that helped keep them alive. One recent study found that 19 percent required orthopedic surgery consultations and 4 percent needed surgery after returning from combat.

All of this adds up to more disability claims, which for years have been coming in faster than the government can handle them. The average wait to get a new one processed grows longer each month and is now about eight months — time that a frustrated, injured veteran might spend with no income.

More than 560,000 veterans from all wars currently have claims that are backlogged — older than 125 days.

The VA's benefits chief, Hickey, gave these reasons:

- Sheer volume. Disability claims from all veterans soared from 888,000 in 2008 to 1.3 million in 2011. Last year's included more than 230,000 new claims from Vietnam veterans and their survivors because of a change in what conditions can be considered related to Agent Orange exposure. Those complex, 50-year-old cases took more than a third of available staff, she said.

- High number of ailments per claim. When a veteran claims 11 to 14 problems, each one requires "due diligence" — a medical evaluation and proof that it is service-related, Hickey said.

- A new mandate to handle the oldest cases first. Because these tend to be the most complex, they have monopolized staff and pushed up average processing time on new claims, she said.

- Outmoded systems. The VA is streamlining and going to electronic records, but for now, "We have 4.4 million case files sitting around 56 regional offices that we have to work with; that slows us down significantly," Hickey said.

Barry Jesinoski, executive director of Disabled American Veterans, called Hickey's efforts "commendable" but said: "The VA has a long way to go" to meet veterans' needs. Even before the surge in Agent Orange cases, VA officials "were already at a place that was unacceptable" on backlogged claims, he said.

He and VA officials agree that the economy is motivating some claims. His group helps veterans file them, and he said that sometimes when veterans come in, "We'll say, 'Is your back worse?' and they'll say, 'No, I just lost my job!'"

Jesinoski does believe these veterans have more mental problems, especially from multiple deployments.

"You just can't keep sending people into war five, six or seven times and expect that they're going to come home just fine," he said.

For taxpayers, the ordeal is just beginning. With any war, the cost of caring for veterans rises for several decades and peaks 30 to 40 years later, when diseases of aging are more common, said Harvard economist Linda Bilmes. She estimates the health care and disability costs of the recent wars at $600 billion to $900 billion.

"This is a huge number and there's no money set aside," she said. "Unless we take steps now into some kind of fund that will grow over time, it's very plausible many people will feel we can't afford these benefits we overpromised."

How would that play to these veterans, who all volunteered and now expect the government to keep its end of the bargain?

"The deal was, if you get wounded, we're going to supply this level of support," Bilmes said. Right now, "there's a lot of sympathy and a lot of people want to help. But memories are short and times change."

Q. My wife and I plan to do more traveling now that we are both retired. Naturally, we are concerned about our health and safety. Can you give us some advice?

A. While personal safety issues make headlines, travel is generally easy and safe, particularly with planning and reasonable caution. The federal Centers for Disease Control (CDC) offer sage advice to older adults who plan to travel abroad. First, see your doctor for a pre-travel visit at least 4-6 weeks before you are set to leave. The doctor can provide vaccines, medicine, and advice for keeping healthy. He or she will likely conduct a physical exam to affirm that you are fit to travel! Consider purchasing supplemental travel health insurance in case of an injury or illness while you are in another country. Many health plans, including Medicare, will not pay for services outside the US. The CDC encourages older adult travelers to understand their physical limitations when planning trips. For example, if you have heart disease, choose an itinerary that is not full of strenuous activities.

Panetta: U.S. on 'Right Track' in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (AP) • Defense Secretary Leon Panetta on Sunday defended the Obama administration's plans to wind down the more than decade-long war in Afghanistan, saying the U.S. is on "the right track."

"We still have a fight on our hands," Panetta said Sunday on ABC's "This Week."

"The American people need to know that. The world needs to know that ... but we're on the right track," he added.

Last week, NATO allies affirmed a plan to end combat operations inside Afghanistan by the end of 2014. Republicans, including Mitt Romney, have criticized President Barack Obama's insistence on setting a firm timetable for the war because they say it shows a lack of commitment to the region and encourages enemy fighters to wait out a U.S. departure.

Panetta said critics of the plan should be mindful that the timetable has been embraced by some 50 allied nations.

"That is the plan that has been agreed to. And it's a plan that is working," Panetta said.

"And very frankly, the only way to get this accomplished — in terms of the transition that we have to go through — is to be able to set the kind of timelines that have been set here in order to ensure that we fulfill the mission of an Afghanistan that governs and secures itself," he added.

Panetta also reiterated his criticism of the conviction of a Pakistani doctor who helped the CIA find and kill terrorist leader Osama bin Laden, calling the lengthy prison sentence handed to Dr. Shakil Afridi "disturbing."

"It is so difficult to understand and it's so disturbing that they would sentence this doctor to 33 years for helping in the search for the most notorious terrorist in our times," Panetta said. "This doctor was not working against Pakistan."

U.S. officials have urged Pakistan to release the physician, who ran a vaccination program for the CIA to collect DNA and verify the al-Qaida leader's presence at the compound in the town of Abbottabad where U.S. commandos killed him in May 2011.

The capture of bin Laden strained the U.S. relationship with Pakistan, as did U.S. airstrikes that accidentally killed 24 Pakistani soldiers near the border. Pakistan responded to the airstrikes by closing key transit routes into Afghanistan. The chilly U.S.-Pakistan relationship was on public display at last week's NATO meeting, where Obama left Pakistan off a list of nations he thanked for help getting war supplies into Afghanistan.

Panetta called the U.S. relationship with Pakistan "one of the most complicated we've had."

"This is a country that still is critical in that region of the world," he said. "It's an up-and-down relationship. There have been periods where we've had good cooperation and they have worked with us."

Crowds Gather for Golden Gate Bridge Celebration

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) • Crowds gathered along San Francisco's waterfront Sunday, while San Francisco Bay was crowded with pleasure boats, tug boats and other vessels as the city celebrated the 75th anniversary of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Tens of thousands of people were expected to flock to the area to enjoy a number of events taking place along a section of waterfront stretching from Fort Point south of the bridge to Pier 39 along The Embarcadero.

At least several thousand people had gathered along the waterfront by Sunday afternoon, said Mary Currie, public affairs director for the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District.

"Everyone is biking and walking and looks very happy," she said. "We're off to a great start."

San Francisco resident Daniel Sutphin and his family were among those in the crowd enjoying the day and the views of the bridge.

Precinct Committeemen Latest Chess Piece in Political Game in Idaho

Most years, the job of precinct committee person (each major party has them) flies quietly under the radar. In Idaho (and some other places), not this year.

Randy Stapilus
Ridenbaugh.com

Across Idaho, battles for precinct committee positions have erupted, reflecting an ideological struggle inside the Republican Party.

One of the problems Idaho Democrats long have had is the lack, in many places, of precinct leaders. These are important, basic, building-block positions for party organization, important for local organizing and choosing local party leaders, and sometime filling vacancies for offices like state legislator. In Idaho, the Republican Party long has outshone the Democrats in getting many more of those spots filled. (Neither party fills them all.)

Ordinarily, only one person runs for nearly all precinct committee spots, but this year Republicans had an unusually large number of contests, in places around the state. They became intense enough that I spotted something I've not seen before, in any year – a campaign website devoted to one precinct, aimed at one political party. It is Kootenai County precinct 61; the Web writers describe it as "A resource for the Republican Party members of Precinct 61."

In Twin Falls County, the Republican Liberty Caucus ran a slew of challenges to often-veteran precinct officers, and won almost a third of the seats. The mainstream party leaders expressed relief that the challengers hadn't won a majority, but they'd better not count on the pressure to ease off soon. Many races were competitive; one was decided by a coin flip.

Another coin flip came in Ada County, home to a large pile of contests, where Roger Brown, a Ron Paul activist, unseated governor's aide Roger Brown. In another race, a party nominee for state legislator lost a precinct office. One of the most prominent Paul backers in the county, former legislative candidate Lucas Baumbach, was defeated. But Paul backers won more than a third of the precinct seats in the Ada County party organization, enough to have impact.

Overall, the Paul forces fell short of the statewide precinct numbers they would have needed for their more ambitious projects, like the attempt to shift Idaho national convention votes to Paul from Mitt Romney. (That one never felt like much of a starter.) In Bannock County, a county meeting projected by one veteran county party official, Jim Johnston, as "a bloodbath," turned out sedate.

But getting even a third of the votes in a county organization has its uses. Here's an indication how.

Kootenai County Republicans earlier this year asked Texas congressional candidate Richard Mack to speak to the party's Lincoln Day dinner. After the invitation was made, 14 precinct committee members sent a letter to the local party leadership objecting to Mack, saying his "support of the Republican Party and Republican Party candidates is inconsistent, intermittent and questionable." The battle raged for a while and went public. Eventually, the Mack invitation held up, he spoke, and the event was held without incident. Not without trepidation on Mack's part: He told reporters he had never felt as unwelcome as he had before coming to Coeur d'Alene.

It doesn't take a majority to create a civil war. Just ask the South.

Precinct Committee Elections Proved Every Vote Counts

I appreciate your turnout at the polls last week, and I am thankful and honored by the great support and votes of confidence from many neighbors and friends.

Steve Millington won the top spot by one vote, and my congratulations have gone out to him. I hope to keep my feet wet in political waters that affect our everyday lives. I also look forward to Mr. Millington's energy, dedication and listening ear as our Buhl No. 2 Republican Precinct committeeman. He has a wide background to bring to the position.

P.S. There were some other close or tied precinct races. Let's remember these next time (November) as incentives to encourage our circles of neighbors and friends to get to the polls — that "Every Vote Counts!" Politics closest to the people, or local politics are the most efficient. If you have concerns or suggestions, start by contacting your precinct committeeman.

The Republican Party Has Too Much Power in Idaho

Remember years ago when we respected our lawmakers and when the two-party system worked in Idaho? Or were we ever satisfied with the Idaho Legislature? Today, we certainly see dysfunction in the Boise Capitol.

A recent article printed in the Times-News regarding the Republican leadership and its efforts to control and keep legislators "in line" was disturbing. The Republican Party in Idaho serves as an exclusive club — narrow in scope and closed except to those who are the most conservative among the members. What happened to a range of political points of views, including moderate or even progressive Republican voices? They are hardly welcomed in the Republican club anymore and are run off by competitors recruited by the party itself.

The Republican Party has too much power in Idaho. It needs competition, even as it tries to fight it. The people of Idaho want and deserve good government. During this 2012 election, help to elect some new voices — even Democratic ones — and provide some balance in the Statehouse. Above all, vote — it is your privilege and responsibility. After all, we get the government we choose.

Poo on Softball Fields Not Leftover from Temporary Dog Park

In response to Robin Waters' letter to the editor, "Dog Owners Were Not Responsible Users of the Softball Fields":

Mr./Ms. Waters: As a member of the Magic Valley Canine Social Club, I take deep offense to the headline of your letter. During the time the city of Twin Falls allowed the public to use the baseball fields at Frontier Park, we meticulously maintained those fields, collecting every morsel of dog waste. We also made sure those who failed to pick up after their dogs understood where the poo bags were located, where the trash can(s) were, and that it was not acceptable to leave any waste behind.

It has not been officially sanctioned by the city to use the baseball fields as a dog park since mid-March. During the time the city of Twin Falls officially allowed the public to use the ball fields, we left it spotless: The current poo you are finding has no relation with that time. On the last day, at least 15 to 20 members of the Magic Valley Canine Social Club spent a couple of hours combing both the large and small baseball fields, and we picked up every single pile that was there.

Stating that dog owners "were not" responsible users — but then actually complaining about current problems suggests either the headline misstates your real position or your letter mixing past tense and current tense statements caused the confusion. If you are currently having problems with dog waste, those are not responsible pet owners, and should be fined accordingly.

Are Elected Officials Fulfilling Their Dreams or Ours?

Maybe it was just a poor choice of words but in the May 24 issue of the Times-News, Rep. Mike Simpson says "he has no idea when 'his' longtime dream will be realized" while speaking to a group of environmentalists.

It doesn't matter to me what the subject was about; but what does concern me is that I was always under the impression that our elected officials were supposed to realize "our" long-term dreams and not their own. Isn't that why we elected them to begin with?

Makes me wonder and worry just how many other elected officials are here to realize "their" own long-term dreams.

Polls on Gay Marriage Not Yet Reflected in Votes

BY DAVID CRARY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Poll after poll shows public support for same-sex marriage steadily increasing, to the point where it's now a majority viewpoint. Yet in all 32 states where gay marriage has been on the ballot, voters have rejected it. It's possible the streak could end in November, when Maine, Maryland, Minnesota and Washington state are likely to have closely contested gay marriage measures on their ballots. For now, however, there remains a gap between the national polling results and the way states have voted. It's a paradox with multiple explanations, from political geography to the likelihood that some conflicted voters tell pollsters one thing and then vote differently. "It's not that people are lying. It's an intensely emotional issue," said Amy Simon, a pollster based in Oakland, Calif. "People can report to you how they feel at the moment they're answering the polls, but they can change their mind." California experienced that phenomenon in November 2008, when voters, by a 52-48 margin, approved a ban on same-sex marriage in the state constitution. A statewide Field Poll that September indicated Proposition 8 would lose decisively; an updated poll a week before the vote still showed it trailing by 5 percentage points. California is an unusual case. It's one of a few reliably Democratic states that have had a statewide vote rebuffing same-sex marriage. The vast majority of the referendums have been in more conservative states, which have a greater predilection for using ballot measures to set social policy. The 32 states that have rejected gay marriage at the polls make up just over 60 percent of the U.S. population. Voters in liberal states such as Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York, where gay marriage was legalized by judges or legislators, might vote to affirm those decisions but haven't had the opportunity.

Most of the states that voted against gay marriage did so between 2004 and 2008. Since then, only Maine in 2009 and North Carolina on May 8 have rebuffed same-sex marriage in referendums, while legislatures in Washington state, Maryland, New Jersey, Hawaii, New York, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Illinois and Delaware have voted for same-sex marriage or civil unions. In all, there are now six states with legal same-sex marriage and nine more granting gay and lesbian couples broad marriage-style rights via civil unions or domestic partnerships. Together, those 15 states account for about 35 percent of the U.S. population.

Driving Season Begins, as Does Gripping about Gas

BY JONATHAN FAHEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK • It's Memorial Day weekend and our national obsession with the price of gasoline is in focus once again. We'll spend a little less at the pump than a few weeks ago, but that won't stop us from muttering to ourselves, griping to friends and pointing fingers in many directions.

Our rants about gasoline and the oil industry may not always be based on facts, but one thing is undeniable: Americans are obsessed with the price of gasoline. More than any other good or service we buy. In the language of economists, the price of gasoline is "salient." That means it sticks in our brains. Here's why: We're reminded of the price every time we pass a gas station and see those huge, numbered signs. We buy gas every week, unlike bills we pay monthly or a couple times a year. Milk is $4 a gallon, but we buy only one. When we fill up with gas, we spend $50 or more.

And the biggest frustration, which comes into focus as the numbers spin ever higher at the pump: There is no alternative. "The oil companies have cornered the market and they are squeezing us for everything we have," says Bob Simpson, 62, of Lodi, N.J., who pays close to $60 to fill up his Ford Escape. Cheap gas makes the wide open spaces of America seem full of possibility and adventure. When it's expensive, we think twice before setting out.

"Driving is a symbol of freedom in the U.S.," says Shanjun Li, an economist who studies consumer behavior at Cornell University's Dyson School of Applied Economics. At a nationwide average Friday of $3.67 per gallon, gasoline is far cheaper in the U.S. than much of the rest of the world, thanks to relatively low taxes. In Japan, gas costs more than $7 a gallon; in Britain, nearly $9. Yet Americans consider cheap gas a birthright, so it's a shock when factors beyond our control drive up the price. People understand why a big TV costs more than a small one, or why tickets to a playoff game are more expensive than a regular season game. But it's harder to appreciate why a local gas station charges more because of high oil demand in China or a remark by an official in Iran. It must be, we reason, that someone is taking advantage of us.

It's not the case, of course: The market for oil and gasoline is global, so rising demand anywhere can push up prices everywhere. And world oil demand is forecast to rise to a record this year. Also, oil and gasoline are priced on financial exchanges, not by oil companies. Investors can buy oil and gasoline futures contracts — and push up prices — if they fear supplies could be disrupted in the future. But they also can bet that prices will go down. When President Barack Obama promised stricter oversight of oil markets and a crackdown on "speculators" last month, he stopped short of saying market manipulation was responsible for the current high prices.

Video Captures Plane Before It Crashes in Utah, Killing Four

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Security video captured a small plane taking off from a southern Utah airport just before it crashed about 300 yards from the runway, killing all four men aboard, a federal investigator said Sunday.

Zoe Keliher of the National Transportation Safety Board said the video shows the single-engine Cessna 172 flying at a low level almost the length of the runway before making a rapid ascent early Saturday morning at St. George Municipal Airport. "Shortly after that, you see a descent of a few flickers of light but not the plane," she told The Associated Press, adding it's too early to say whether the airport's camera video will offer clues into the cause of the crash.

Marc Mortensen, assistant to the St. George city manager, said officials believe the four men aboard the plane were killed upon impact. The wreckage wasn't discovered until more than four hours later because the airport is not staffed at night, he added. The victims were identified Sunday as Colby Hafen, 28, and Christopher Chapman, 20, both of Santa Clara; Tanner Holt, 23, of Washington City; and Alexander Metzger, 22, of St. George.

Work Just Beginning in Case Against Shop Clerk Accused of Killing NYC Boy Who Vanished in 1979

NEW YORK • For prosecutors, the work is just beginning after the astonishing arrest last week of a man who police say confessed to strangling a 6-year-old New York City boy 33 years ago in one of the nation's most bewildering missing children's cases. Pedro Hernandez, 51, was charged with second-degree murder in the 1979 death of Etan Patz, based largely on a signed confession he gave after he spoke voluntarily to detectives for hours, according to police. But to convince a jury beyond a reasonable doubt, prosecutors need more than the confession, even though corroboration isn't necessarily required by law, legal experts say. Piecing together that supporting evidence may be difficult: There's no body and no physical evidence, plus a history of famous false confessions in other high-profile cases. "We live in a day of CSI, fingerprinting, DNA, hand samples, and foot prints and treads on bottoms of shoes and boots. There's going to be none of that here, and that's tough," said Arthur Aidala, a former prosecutor who is now a criminal defense attorney. "You're essentially relying on this guy's own words, and whether he's credible." False confessions are common and happen for many reasons, said James Cohen, a law professor at Fordham University, "whether it's that someone is coerced, scared, or is just a wacko looking for 15 minutes of fame."

Michael Haneke's 'Amour' Wins Cannes Film Festival Palme d'Or

CANNES, France • The Cannes Film Festival rewarded one of its favorite directors Sunday, as Michael Haneke won the top prize for a second time with his stark film about love and death, "Amour." The Austrian director's powerful and understated film stars two French acting icons — 85-year-old Emmanuelle Riva and 81-year-old Jean-Louis Trintignant — as an elderly couple coping with the wife's worsening health. Cannes jury member Jean Paul Gaultier praised the performances of the two actors and the "incredible connection" they established in the movie. Haneke said he made the film because "I experienced something in my family that touched me." He thanked his wife and — in a rare personal comment — said he had promised her "we would never leave each other, like in the film." Some viewers were surprised by the movie's frank humanity, coming from a master of tightly controlled cinema whose movies often contain sudden bursts of violence.

China Boom: Outsourcing Surveillance to Co-workers, Neighbors Shows Expanding Police Power

BEIJING • Every workday at 7:20 a.m., colleagues pick up Yao Lifa from his second-floor apartment and drive him to the elementary school where he taught for years. This is no car pool. Yao is a prisoner, part of a China boom in outsourced police control. By day, Yao is kept in a room, not allowed to work and watched by fit, young gym teachers and other school staff. At dinner time or later, he is sent back to the apartment that he shares with his wife and 3-year-old daughter. A surveillance camera monitors the building entrance, while police sit in a hut outside. "At school, if I have to go to the bathroom, someone escorts me. Most of the time, I'm not allowed to speak with others or answer the phone," Yao said in a recent late-night Internet phone interview from his home in Qianjiang city. "When they bring me home, they sign me over to the next shift." Like the blind activist Chen Guangcheng until his escape from house arrest last month, Yao belongs to an untold number of Chinese activists kept under tight control by authorities, even though in many cases they have broken no law.

DECLO • It didn't really sink in with Jacqueline Gibby until she helped unfurl the banner from the gymnasium rafters.

"At school it was crazy, everyone noticed us," said Gibby. "Then we put up our banner on Monday and had an assembly. That was cool."

Gibby is an unassuming state champion. She seems more comfortable talking about Declo's Class 2A team girls golf title than her individual championship.

"I'm proud of our team. We're a close team and I think that helped because we encourage each other to do better," Gibby said. "We believed we could do it. We've been solid all year and got better at state."

For the past four year, Gibby has been instrumental in establishing Declo as a contender on the links. She helped the Hornets finish third at state her freshman year, and fourth in each of the past two seasons.

And now, by delivering her school's first-ever individual and team state championships in golf, Gibby solidified herself as the 2012 Times-News Female Golfer of the Year.

Gibby hopes her achievement inspires more Declo students to take up golf and continue the tradition.

"It helps people realize that golf isn't just some random sport. We don't just go out and play around. We keep it fun, but it's more serious," Gibby said.

Gibby won the District IV tournament, then came out on fire at state, shooting a 5-over par 81 to take a 13-stroke lead after Day 1. She coasted to a 14-shot victory as Declo's team won by 95 strokes.

"Her work ethic is so good. ... It's just determination and grit," Declo coach Dennie Smyer said of Gibby after her final round. "There are times we call off practice because of bad weather, and she goes (anyway). That's just how she is, and she expects the other girls to go, too. That's why they raised their level and that's why we (won state)."

Gibby said her father, Reed Gibby, deserves credit for her success.

"My dad has really helped me," she said. "He reads a lot and he tells me what to do. He watches TV and shows me how to do stuff. He says those who can't do, teach."

Through all her hard work, Gibby said winning championships wasn't necessarily the goal, but has been a fun byproduct.

"It wasn't ever really to finish first," Gibby said. "It was to become better."

Generous Crowd Caps Championship

GOODING • One winner, one prize.

When District V high school rodeo president Devan Hubert took the microphone from announcer Wendell Johnson at the scholarship and awards presentation following Saturday's finals, there was a quietness in the crowd and a feeling that something wasn't quite right.

Hubert went on to explain that like always, each all-around winner is to receive a buckle and saddle. This year, however, there just happened to be a tie for the girl's all-around title. The buckle wasn't really a big issue, but the $1,325 saddle was another story. The district didn't have the funds to purchase a second saddle and unfortunately, there would have to be a coin flip to determine which of the two girls would receive the saddle.

What followed was an eye-opening experience.

People in the crowd started stepping forward to the podium each offering $100 or more and within five minutes, there were more than enough donations for the second saddle. People recognized the determination and efforts that the rodeo kids put in to their sport and were willing to help pay for the reward that

One of the winners, Darby Fox from Glenns Ferry, was in tears.

Vierstra qualified for a trip to state and will compete in goats, breakaway, barrels and poles and Jade Wadsworth will participate in tie down, steer wrestling and team roping with brother, Derek.

One of the districts graduating seniors, Allie Cornie from Kimberly will be making a trip to state and competing in goats.

She recorded a third and fourth place over the weekend and finished second in the event despite suffering a knee injury three weeks ago in Burley.

"The four years of high school rodeo have gone fast," said Cornie, who will attend Treasure Valley in the fall and will play basketball and compete on the Chukar rodeo team. "I don't keep track of points, but my parents do."

Franchitti Wins Third Indy 500

ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS • Dan Wheldon couldn't win his third Indianapolis 500. Dario Franchitti did it for him.

And if it wasn't going to be Franchitti, then it would be Scott Dixon. Maybe even Tony Kanaan.

No matter what, one of Wheldon's best buddies was going to Victory Lane.

In the end, they celebrated a 1-2-3 sweep that honored D-Dub, their missing friend.

Franchitti stamped his name in the record books by winning his third Indy 500 on Sunday, a day that started and ended as a tribute to Wheldon, who won the race a year ago but was killed in an October crash in the IndyCar season finale. As his three friends lined up with six laps remaining for the final restart — Kanaan out front, Chip Ganassi teammates Franchitti and Dixon second and third — they couldn't help but wonder if Wheldon was at play.

"Kind of like old times, the three of us back and forwards," Franchitti said. "I thought, 'Dan is laughing at us right now going at it.'"

It was an absolutely fitting finish, even if the elation for Franchitti's win was tempered by the heartbreak for two other deserving drivers. Dixon, a one-time Indy 500 winner, temporarily relocated his family to St. Petersburg, Fla., to support Wheldon's wife and two sons, and Kanaan, 0 for 11 now at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, had openly wept following the death of his former teammate.

"I think a lot of us that were close to Dan, you know, you wanted it that little bit more," Dixon said. "I guess maybe in the back of your mind, you figured he would probably help you out today, too. I think in that situation, seeing how it lined up with the top three, three of Dan's friends, it was a tough one."

Franchitti won a wheel-to-wheel, last-lap battle, sailing away to the checkered flag when Takuma Sato spun out trying to make one last pass on the inside and slammed into the wall.

The race had shaped into what was expected to be a duel to the finish between Franchitti and Dixon. But when the Scot made his final pass of Dixon with two laps to go, he pulled Sato with him and it sapped Dixon's momentum.

So the last-lap pass attempt was Sato's for the taking, and he couldn't pull it off as he hugged the inside white line through Turn 1. His wheels appeared to touch Franchitti's, he spun hard into the wall, and Franchitti sailed past for the win — this one, just like the first two, under caution.

Dixon crossed the finish line in second, and Kanaan was third.

"Everybody up there was a friend of Dan's, and that about sums it up. Everybody loved him," Franchitti said as bagpipes played over the public address system.

Angels Complete Four-game Sweep of M's

Associated Press

SEATTLE — Kendrys Morales had three hits, including a home run, scored twice and drove in two runs to help the Los Angeles Angels complete their first four-game road sweep of the Seattle Mariners in 27 years with a 4-2 win Sunday.

C.J. Wilson (6-4) earned the win, allowing two hits and one run before leaving after six innings with a blister on his left hand. Scott Downs picked up his fifth save for the Angels, who have won a season-high six straight games, the longest current streak in the majors. They last swept the Mariners in four games here from April 25-28, 1985.

RAYS 4, RED SOX 3
BOSTON • Sean Rodriguez hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning off Boston closer Alfredo Aceves, and the Tampa Bay Rays rallied for the win a day after losing in the final inning.

RANGERS 12, BLUE JAYS 6
ARLINGTON, Texas • Adrian

Beltre homered during a seven-run second inning, Yu Darvish posted his seventh victory and the Texas Rangers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays for a three-game sweep.

YANKEES 2, ATHLETICS 0
OAKLAND, Calif. • Hiroki Kuroda (4-6) pitched eight scoreless innings and Andrew Jones hit a solo homer that helped the New York Yankees win their season-high fifth straight game.

TIGERS 4, TWINS 3
MINNEAPOLIS • Miguel Cabrera's two-run, one-out homer in the ninth inning lifted Detroit to a 4-3 victory over Minnesota, as the Tigers finished a three-game sweep of the Twins in style after leaving 10 men on base earlier in the game.

WHITE SOX 12, INDIANS 6
CHICAGO • Paul Konerko hit a tiebreaking three-run homer — his 400th with the White Sox — and Chicago routed the Cleveland Indians to complete a three-game sweep.

KAHNE WINS AT CHARLOTTE

BY PETE IACOBELLI

Associated Press

CONCORD, N.C. • Kasey Kahne powered to victory in the Coca-Cola 600 on Sunday night, taking NASCAR's longest race for the third time for his first win with Hendrick Motorsports.

Kahne also gave car owner Rick Hendrick his 201st Sprint Cup series victory.

Kahne crossed the finish line nearly 5 seconds ahead of Denny Hamlin. Kyle Busch was third and series points leader Greg Biffle fourth.

"It's just so great to win for Mr. Hendrick," Kahne said.

As Kahne celebrated, teammate Jeff Gordon gave him a bear hug and told him, "Proud of you."

Kahne became the 16th Hendrick driver for to take the checkered flag.

It was Kahne's 13th career win and first since last November in Phoenix.

Hendrick drivers were all near the top. Dale Earnhardt Jr. was sixth, and Gordon seventh — just his third top 10 finish of the season.

Five-time series champion Jimmie Johnson was 11th. He was in contention until the final pit stop when he left with his gas can still engaged, dragging his crew member along. NASCAR docked him with a stop-and-go penalty to end his chances.

Danica Patrick, the first woman to drive in the race since Janet Guthrie in 1976, was five laps down in 30th. Still, it was her best finish in three career Sprint Cup races.

Car owner Chip Ganassi flew to Charlotte after celebrating Dario Franchitti's win at the Indianapolis 500 earlier Sunday. Ganassi, part of Earnhardt Ganassi Racing, had hoped to double up with drivers Jamie McMurray and Juan Pablo Montoya. But 250 laps in, McMurray was a lap down and Montoya two behind after needing an extra pit stop to tighten a loose wheel.

"The minute I walked into the garage, people were high-fiving me," Ganassi said. "Right now, we've got to get our cars up the grid."

It didn't happen as Montoya finished two laps down in 20th and McMurray right behind in 21st.

For much of this race, it looked as if Biffle wouldn't be caught. He led 204 laps to dominate early and was clearly best as the race began in the hot, bright sunshine. Once the night cooled off the track, Biffle was no match for Kahne.

NBA PLAYOFFS

SPURS RALLY, PUT THUNDER AWAY IN GAME 1

BY PAUL J. WEBER

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO • Manu Ginobili scored 26 points and the San Antonio Spurs won their 19th in a row to tie the NBA record for longest winning streak kept alive in the playoffs, beating the Oklahoma City Thunder 101-98 to open the Western Conference finals on Sunday night.

Obeying orders snarled by coach Gregg Popovich in a fourth-quarter timeout to play "nasty," the Spurs erased a nine-point deficit that stunned the Thunder, who had looked on their way to finally kicking the perception that they're the underdog.

Kevin Durant led the Thunder with 27 points. Russell Westbrook had 17.

The 2001 Lakers are the only other team to carry a winning streak this long in the playoffs — and they did so on their way to a championship.

Game 2 is Tuesday night. The Spurs matched the fourth-longest streak in NBA history, and with one more will become just the fourth team to surpass 20.

Tim Duncan had 16 points and 11 rebounds, and Tony Parker shook off a dismal start to finish with 18 points. But it was Ginobili who steered the Spurs to strike first in a highly anticipated matchup of the West's top two teams for practically the entire regular season.

"They got us on our heels. We were not aggressive," Ginobili said. "And in the second half, we did have it."

On the other end, Oklahoma City's own Big Three struggled to find its shot early before awakening in the second half. Yet Westbrook still finished just 6 of 15 and took a nasty, face-first spill late in the fourth that had the entire Thunder bench crossing the court to check on their All-Star point guard underneath the opposite basket.

Westbrook appeared to favor his left leg when he got up, but he never left the game.

It was a tantalizingly close near-upset for the young Thunder, who were ousted in the Western Conference finals a year ago and were in position for home-court advantage throughout the playoffs until being overtaken by the Spurs in the final month of the season.

But it was a fittingly close opener for two franchises with so many similarities.

That includes Thunder general manager Sam Presti — the architect of the Thunder's rapid turnaround from a 23-win season to consecutive Western Conference finals in just four years — getting his big break in the NBA as intern in San Antonio.

And the Thunder didn't even need their own Big Three to keep things close.

Durant, Westbrook and Harden at one point through the second quarter were 5 of 21 — a typically ominous stat line for a trio that had been responsible for nearly 70 percent of Oklahoma City's points through the playoffs so far. But for all the talk about San Antonio's superior bench, it was the Thunder's reserves who picked up the slack.

None more so than Derek Fisher, whose famous game-winner for the Lakers on this same court in the 2004 playoffs has made "0.4 seconds" a phrase that needs no further explanation to the Spurs. Eight years later, and the oldest player in this series at 37, Fisher already met his playoff average at halftime and finished with 13 points.

Gary Neal added 12 points and was the only other Spurs player in double figures.

cowboy in the district.

"Winning the all-around shows you how much the hard work you put in at practice and your events means," said Parke.

The top boy rookie was Cole Lickley from Valley and top girl rookie was Bailey Gough from Gooding.

"The toughest part of high school rodeo is that it takes a lot of practice and the competition is so tough," said Gough who was the top barrel racer in the district and finished sixth in the all-around standings. "I've learned that you have to make your own run and not to worry about everyone else."

Gough may sit in the saddle but feels her horse, Tex, is her life and the rock of the team.

"Tex got hurt last July and had to have surgery at the Idaho Equine Hospital in Nampa," said the Gooding freshman, who also runs poles on Tex. "If it weren't for Brian Silva at the North Valley Veterinary Clinic, who treated him before his surgery, we wouldn't be here now. He wasn't supposed to come back sound but I got lucky. After surgery, we started rehab by walking him slow and bringing him back slow. I started riding him in January and teaching him how to run poles. He learns so quick and picked it up."

The future plans for Gough is to concentrate on the mistakes she made this year and work hard in the areas where she needs.

The Idaho State High School Rodeo is June 11-15 in Pocatello.

TENNIS RODDICK OUSTED ON FIRST DAY AT FRENCH OPEN

PARIS • Easy to understand why Andy Roddick never enjoyed playing on red clay all that much.

First and foremost, the footing is tricky as can be. The soft courts take his booming serves and forehands down a notch, too.

Simply, his game is built for hard or grass courts. As if that weren't enough, he arrived at this French Open having played only 16 matches in a season interrupted by injuries to his right hamstring and right ankle.

If Roddick was tempted to sit out Roland Garros altogether — or tempted to use his health or rust as an excuse for playing poorly — he did not. The 26th-seeded American, once ranked No. 1 and once a Grand Slam champion, gave it a shot and came up short Sunday, exiting in a major tournament's opening round for the first time since 2007, and at the same venue.

His 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 loss to 88th-ranked Nicolas Mahut at the French Open dropped Roddick's record to 7-10 this season, 0-4 on clay. Of the seven previous major title winners in action on Day 1 in Paris, including Venus Williams in her first Grand Slam match since revealing in August she was diagnosed with an autoimmune disease, only Roddick was beaten.

"Wasn't playing really well. I move just horrendously out here. My first step is just so bad on this stuff," Roddick said. "I feel like I'm always shuffling or hopping or not stopping or something."

Like Roddick, and for much the same reasons, Williams is not nearly as comfortable on clay as faster surfaces.

She's also dealing with the difficult process of learning to live with Sjogren's syndrome, a condition that can cause fatigue and joint pain. But the 31-year-old Williams, a seven-time major champion, overcame a slow start Sunday to beat 19-year-old Paula Ormaechea of Argentina 4-6, 6-1, 6-3.

"A lot of it, I have to figure it out. It's physical and emotional and all kinds of different things. Mental," Williams said of her medical condition. "It's a big accomplishment for me to be here right now."

She looked glum on court, not even smiling after most of her 41 winners (Ormaechea had 15). But she laughed frequently during her news conference, such as when she talked about what she's been going through as "definitely an adventure and journey; it's life happening."

The other past major champions who won Sunday were Juan Martin del Potro, Juan Carlos Ferrero, Sam Stosur, Ana Ivanovic and Svetlana Kuznetsova. Monday's schedule includes Novak Djokovic, Roger Federer, Victoria Azarenka and Li Na.

GOLF Johnson Overcomes Dufner to Win at Colonial

Tommy Gainey was a distant third at 7 under after a 67, a stroke better than Jim Furyk.

In what was essentially a match-play final round for the winner's plaid jacket, Johnson won the Colonial for his first victory since also winning at Hogan's Alley two years ago, pulling ahead Sunday when Jason Dufner finally faltered.

Johnson was assessed a two-stroke penalty for failing to replace his ball to its original position after marking it on the 18th hole. That left him with a 2-over 72 and a one-stroke victory.

"I'm going to focus on the positives, because I hit a really solid putt and it's a good thing I made it," Johnson said. "No harm, no foul. It was my fault."

Johnson moved his original ball mark out of the line of Dufner's putt on the 18th green. But he forgot to move it back before his final 5-foot putt.

Even with the penalty assessed before signing his scorecard, Johnson's 12-under 268 total was enough to edge Dufner, who closed with a 74.

NOTICE

The Department of Health and Welfare is seeking to identify community-based nonprofits and government agencies that show the interest, ability and financial stability to implement and operate a Housing First program for homeless families with children in Idaho. This Housing First program would serve the purpose to house families, provide them with basic household furnishings, and provide them with the resources necessary to find sustainable employment. Through Intense Case Management provided by the selected agency, families should be able to pay their own rent within six months and attain the ultimate goal of self sufficiency.

The agency implementing the Housing First program will provide housing and basic household furnishings; resources to obtain and maintain employment; and hands on case management. Subgrantees spending $500,000.00 or more in federal funds during the subgrantee's fiscal year shall have an audit performed in accordance with Circular A-133 and provide proof. The Department will award up to $260,000 per year to the successful agency. Awards may be made to multiple agencies. Each subgrant will be awarded for up to a 3-year period. Continuation and/or expansion of Housing First subgrants will be dependent on success of the existing contract and the availability of federal funding. Funding for this program comes from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) Block Grant CFDA# 93.558.

Applications to apply for a Housing First subgrant may be obtained at Health and Welfare website: <http://healthandwelfare.idaho.gov/FoodCashAssistance/CashAssistance/CashAssistanceforFamilies/tabid/172/Default.aspx>.

Proposals must be received by Program Manager: Rosie Andueza at the Department of Health and Welfare at anduezar@dhw.idaho.gov; or by mail at 450 W. State Street, Boise, ID 83720 by 5:00 pm Mountain Standard Time June 6, 2012.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

“The downhill path is easy, but there’s no turning back.”
— Christina Rossetti

One recurring theme of the 1st World Mind Sports Games was the difference that the opening lead could make to the outcome of a contract. For example, here’s a deal from the Women’s Match between England and Poland.

In the first room, Nicola Smith, East for England, bid one club, and South overcalled one heart. North-South explored further, then settled in three hearts. Sally Brock led her singleton diamond; Smith took her ace and returned the diamond nine, suit preference for spades. Brock ruffed, returned a spade, and received another diamond ruff. Another spade return completed a perfect defense that saw the contract one down from the get-go.

In the other room, the auction went as shown, with Catherine Draper as North sensibly evaluating her diamond fit and aces to be worth a shot at game, once she found her partner with length in both red suits.

West looked no further than the club king for her opening salvo. Anne Rosen won in dummy, drew trump, knocked out the diamond ace, discarded a spade on dummy’s fifth diamond, and claimed 10 tricks.

Should West have read more into the accelerated bidding after diamonds were mentioned? West has five points and her partner had opened the bidding. Simple arithmetic reveals that North and South are unlikely to have the normal number of high cards usually associated with a major-suit game. The inference is that they have found a second fit, and the diamond ruff may therefore be critical to defeat the game.

ANSWER: It is often right to lead a trump when declarer ends up in his second suit. (One can infer that dummy will be short in declarer’s first suit.) Here, though, partner should be able to overruff spades, so a trump lead seems unnecessary. I’d lead the unbid suit — and while a good case could be made for a high spot-card, I’d simply lead the two (or the four if playing third-and-low leads).

DEAR ABBY: How important are a dying person’s last wishes? My dad died recently and said that he wanted to be buried with his first wife in a state far from where we live. If his estate — or his current wife — can’t afford to comply with his request, would it be horrible to do something else?

In today’s economy most seniors don’t have any extra income. To follow Dad’s final wishes would take a sizable chunk of his estate. His wife feels it’s not important to follow his last wishes because of the cost, but it really bothers me.

Dad was in the Navy during WWII. If his wife isn’t willing to spend the money, would I still be a good guy by scattering his ashes in the ocean? I know he’d rather be in the deep than sitting on a shelf in the work shed. Please help.

— DISTURBED SON IN NEVADA

DEAR DISTURBED SON: Your letter illustrates why it is important for people to have their wishes in writing. In this case, your father’s wife would have the right to his ashes, unless it was stated otherwise in black and white.

As far as granting a personal last wish, you need to use your best judgment, particularly if doing so would cause financial hardship. In this case, cremation would be a creative way to make everyone happy. Your father’s ashes could be divided into thirds, with one portion placed with his first wife, another with his second wife, and the rest scattered at sea.

DEAR ABBY: My spouse, “Jack,” and I were married four years ago. Three years ago he made me choose between him and my then 7-year-old son. I haven’t spoken to or seen my son for three years. Not having my child in my life has made me become depressed, but I keep it bottled up inside. Jack has three children — all adults. We rarely see them. I brought two children into our marriage, ages 7 and 14. Jack says he doesn’t want to be a father or grandfather. (We have three grandchildren.) I am scared to question why it is like this.

Am I a terrible mother/grandmother? Does this mean he doesn’t really love me since my children are a part of me? I want to be a grandmother and enjoy my grandchildren. He knew I had kids when we were dating, but both of them lived with relatives at the time because of custody issues.

— SAD GRANDMA IN ARIZONA

DEAR SAD GRANDMA: It isn’t that Jack doesn’t love you. He appears to be so preoccupied with his own needs, desires and controlling you that he probably doesn’t think about much else. That you are “scared” to question him speaks volumes about your relationship.

If you want to be a part of your children’s and grandchildren’s lives, you will have to do so without his blessing or participation. You will also have to strengthen your backbone and emancipate yourself.

DEAR ABBY: One of my neighbors regularly uses power equipment before 9 a.m. on Saturday mornings. I think people should refrain from using loud machinery before 10 a.m. on weekends. Am I being unreasonable?

— DEB IN TACOMA

DEAR DEB: Not in my book. Most municipalities have noise ordinances in place that regulate sound levels that might become an annoyance. To find out if there is one in your neighborhood, inquire at City Hall. If there isn’t, consider gathering signatures on a petition so regulations can be established. You may not be the only neighbor who is bothered by the disruption.

DEAR READERS: Along with the millions of Americans who are observing this Memorial Day, I would like to add my prayer of thanks to those men and women of our armed services who sacrificed their lives in service to our country. May they rest in peace.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Today is Monday, May 28, the 149th day of 2012. There are 217 days left in the year. This is the Memorial Day observance.

Today's Highlight: On May 28, 1912, the Senate Commerce Committee issued its report on the sinking of the Titanic. Sen. William Alden Smith, R-Mich., chairman of the special subcommittee that looked into the disaster, cited a "state of absolute unpreparedness," improperly tested safety equipment and an "indifference to danger" on the part of the ship's captain, Edward Smith, as being among the causes of an "unnecessary tragedy."

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date: In 1863, the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, made up of freed blacks, left Boston to fight for the Union in the Civil War.

In 1892, the Sierra Club was organized in San Francisco.

In 1918, the Battle of Cantigny began during World War I as American troops captured the French town from the Germans.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt pushed a button in Washington signaling that vehicular traffic could begin crossing the just-opened Golden Gate Bridge in California. Neville Chamberlain became prime minister of Britain.

In 1940, during World War II, the Belgian army surrendered to invading German forces.

In 1959, the U.S. Army launched Able, a rhesus monkey, and Baker, a squirrel monkey, aboard a Jupiter missile for a suborbital flight which both primates survived.

In 1961, Amnesty International had its beginnings with the publication of an article in the British newspaper The Observer, "The Forgotten Prisoners," by lawyer Peter Benenson.

In 1972, Edward, The Duke of Windsor, who had abdicated the English throne to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson, died in Paris at age 77.

In 1985, David Jacobsen, director of the American University Hospital in Beirut, Lebanon, was abducted by pro-Iranian kidnappers (he was freed 17 months later).

In 1987, to the embarrassment of Soviet officials, Mathias Rust, a young West German pilot, landed a private plane in Moscow's Red Square without authorization. (Rust was freed by the Soviets the following year.)

Ten years ago: NATO declared Russia a limited partner in the Western alliance. President George W. Bush told Pope John Paul II at the Vatican he was concerned about the Roman Catholic Church's standing in America because of a sex-abuse scandal. NBC announced that Brian Williams would succeed Tom Brokaw as anchor of its "Nightly News" after the 2004 presidential election. Mildred Wirt Benson, creator of the "Nancy Drew" children's mystery stories, died in Toledo, Ohio, at age 96.

Five years ago: The United States and Iran broke a 27-year diplomatic freeze with a four-hour meeting in Baghdad about Iraqi security. President George W. Bush, during a Memorial Day visit to Arlington National Cemetery, honored U.S. troops who had fought and died for freedom and expressed his steely resolve to succeed in the war in Iraq. Miss Japan Rita Mori was crowned Miss Universe 2007 at the pageant in Mexico City.

One year ago: President Barack Obama praised Poland's transition to democracy following a meeting in Warsaw with President Bronislaw Komorowski. After a four-year blockade, Egypt permanently opened the Gaza Strip's main gateway to the outside world. North Korea freed Eddie Jun, an American it had held for a half year for reportedly proselytizing.
