Supreme Court Upholds Land O'Lakes Verdict

The Idaho Supreme Court agrees that the ag company's product led to the deaths of more than 100 calves in 2005.

TIMES-NEWS

BOISE • The Idaho Supreme Court sided Tuesday with the owners of a Twin Falls County ranch, upholding a jury's conclusion that a bad batch of milk replacer led to the deaths of more than 100 calves in 2005.

A 5th District Court trial produced "substantial and competent evidence" that the milk replacer made by Minnesota-based Land O'Lakes was at fault, the Supreme Court wrote. But the court also denied a request by J&J Ranch to add to attorney fees it won during the trial.

In December 2005, J&J owners Jesus Hurtado and John Reitsma alleged about 130 calves died in a four-month period that year after being fed a milk replacer produced by Land O'Lakes. Hurtado and Reitsma said bull calves that were fed a different milk replacer didn't die, only heifer calves given the Land O'Lakes replacement.

A jury ruled in favor of J&J and awarded $150,000 in damages, but Land O'Lakes successfully appealed, arguing the district judge abused his discretion in admitting certain business records. A second jury trial produced the same verdict but damages of only $50,000 that were then reduced by another 40 percent. Of a J&J request for $80,744 in attorney fees, the court approved only $13,520.

Land O'Lakes again appealed, asking the Supreme Court to overturn the second verdict or order a new trial. The company argued the district court improperly admitted expert testimony and that J&J failed to prove the company's liability and damages.

Parking Returns Again to T.F. Council

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls City Council may return soon to the debate over downtown parking and parking meters, after Councilman Shawn Barigar asked Tuesday for a future discussion of the issues.

Barigar's request came after the council approved two property transfers on Tuesday: One to get rid of an underused parking lot near downtown, and one to trade land with the county with the intent of turning the new property into a dog park and community garden.

The parking lot, located on 3rd Avenue North near First Federal Bank, is rarely used, even during peak times, said Community Development Director Mitch Humble.

The disposal of the lot drew criticism from downtown business owners Sarah Taylor of the Historic Ballroom, and Shane Cook of the Twin Falls Sandwich Co., as well as Clark Parrish of Jerome, who participated on the city's parking committee. Please see PARKING, A2

TWIN FALLS • After completing five years of pack tests, Phil Leguineche has finally perfected his own version of a "duck walk."

"You keep your knees low and you just kind of waddle," he said. "You look like a duck."

Leguineche was one of 90 other Bureau of Land Management firefighters required to complete three miles in less than 45 minute while wearing a 45-pound pack strapped to their body.

The BLM hosts the fitness test every year

This year, the BLM Twin Falls District Fire and Aviation Program has more than 40 new recruits, said Chris Anthony, a BLM system fire operations supervisor.

"New hires start today; Returners will move on to advanced training," he said.

Since fire crews aren't allowed to run the course, Leguineche said he had to come up with a way to keep pain in his knees and lower back at a minimum but also maintain a fast

Restitution, Probation for Former Castleford Schools Employee's Theft

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A former Castleford School District secretary was sentenced in Twin Falls County 5th District Court Tuesday.

Brenda Thomson, 55, was sentenced to up to five years' probation for misuse of public funds by a public employee. Judge Richard Bevan said if Thomson paid the balance of the restitution she owed the school district before the five years is up, he will sign an order ending the probation early.

Thomson also must complete 150 hours of community service and pay court costs.

The maximum punishment for the crime is 14 years in prison and a $1,000 fine. Those convicted are also barred from holding public office.

Thomson was accused of overpaying herself $18,800 over three years and incurring another $16,000 in fees and lost payments.

Deputy Prosecutor Pete Hatch spoke briefly at the sentencing hearing, but said some of the things Thomson wrote in her version of events were concerning.

Instead of describing her own conduct, Thomson described reasons that might justify the acts, Hatch said.

Hatch asked for a lengthy probation term in lieu of three to eight years in prison. Though the state needs more time to come up with a final tally for the restitution, he said Thomson would owe at least $17,300.

Thomson's attorney, Philip Brown, said Thomson was not trying to excuse her behavior. Rather, she was trying to explain all the circumstances surrounding the extra payments.

According to the police affidavit, Thomson paid herself between $300 and $900 extra per month for about three years.

According to Brown, this behavior was known to many people in the school district. Brown made a number of allegations: that the Castleford School District was paying for medical insurance for employees' spouses for years, that Thomson was being paid extra for not speaking up about workplace sexual harassment, and that auditors for the district knew about the excessive payments.

Thomson spoke tearfully at the hearing.

"I would like to say I feel remorse and sorrow," she said. "I've been in fear about what everyone thought of me in my town. I've been humiliated and no one will give me a job. Gossip and rumors have put me through hell."

Bevan agreed Thomson never made an effort to hide the truth of her actions to auditors. While the public demands and expects certain conduct from public employees, Bevan said this case was unique.

"Normally I'd be opposed to this resolution," he said.

The court heard arguments in the case on Feb. 8 this year in Boise. In Tuesday's decision, justices wrote that the trial revealed evidence "from which a reasonable jury could find that there are no other reasonably likely causes of J & J's damages" - testimony that ruled out other factors on the ranch, for example.

But the justices also concluded that the district court properly pared down the request for attorney fees, citing factors including that attorney fees had been denied in the first trial and that the billing ledger was in doubt.

Harry DeHaan of Twin Falls represented J&J Ranch, while David Maguire of Pocatello represented Land O'Lakes. Calls to their law offices were not returned Tuesday.

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls City Council unanimously approved an ordinance change Tuesday that tightens the city's ability to crack down on synthetic marijuana and other inhalants.

The amended ordinance prohibits the possession of inhalants with the intent to inhale, possession of related paraphernalia, and being at a place where inhalants are used. It also amends the definition of inhalants.

Synthetic marijuana is often sold under the names Hayze, spice and K2, and is available in smoke shops in Twin Falls.

While the city can already go after people who are caught or admit they're using synthetic marijuana, it's or frequent places where the intoxicants are used, said City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich.

"(The change) makes prosecution of these violations a little bit easier for us," Wonderlich said.

The ordinance also applies to gasoline, paint thinner and other otherwise-legal substances. But people won't get in trouble for filling up their tank.

"It's only when we combine with it the intent to use it as an inhalant," Wonderlich said.

The change comes a couple of months after the Idaho Legislature passed a bill tightening the state's controlled substance ban to include variations of synthetic marijuana. That new law goes into effect July 1.

Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said the Shoup property has enough area for both a dog park and a community garden

But the land isn't parkready yet. The city would have to add grass, irrigate and build a fence for the dog park.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Leon Mills said he and his fellow commissioners support the deal. Mills, a retired fence builder, also said he would volunteer his time to build the fence for the park. City Community Development Director Mitch Humble said it may take until next spring to get the grass hardy enough for the dogs.

Bowyer estimated that materials for the fence would cost about $10,000, and Mills' offer would save the city nearly $20,000 in time and labor. Mayor Greg Lanting also said he had a $10,000 pledge for the park.

Both the city and the county must write ordinances to make the trade official, which Mills said could happen as early as mid-June.

Paul Hogue, the friend of one of four men in their 20s who were killed when a small plane crashed in Utah Saturday.

Stress on Counties Could Cast Shadow on HB519

OUR VIEW

daho House Bill 519 is pro-business and progrowth. It's a good bill with a good story behind it. It was crafted through the efforts of a local developer and sponsored by a local legislator, Rep. Stephen Hartgen. It passed into the law during the last session and offered much-needed tax relief to developers during these difficult economic times.

The bill was crafted by Twin Falls developer Brad Wills, who spent more than a year doing legwork and research to make sure he got it right. It was an impressive commitment by a private citizen.

Until HB 519 was passed, developers were charged a higher property tax rate for vacant lots once infrastructure was installed - water and sewer lines, roads, sidewalks and drainage.

The argument was that no other business is taxed extra for inventory before its sold and that the tax law punished developers for making progress on projects they might not be able to sell immediately in a slow real estate market. It was a disincentive to doing business in Idaho.

While the bill addressed a real inequity in the tax structure, it ignored an entire set of constituents every county resident who relies on services from the county government and every county taxpayer who might face a shift in the tax load because of the sudden and retroactive tax cuts passed in HB 519.

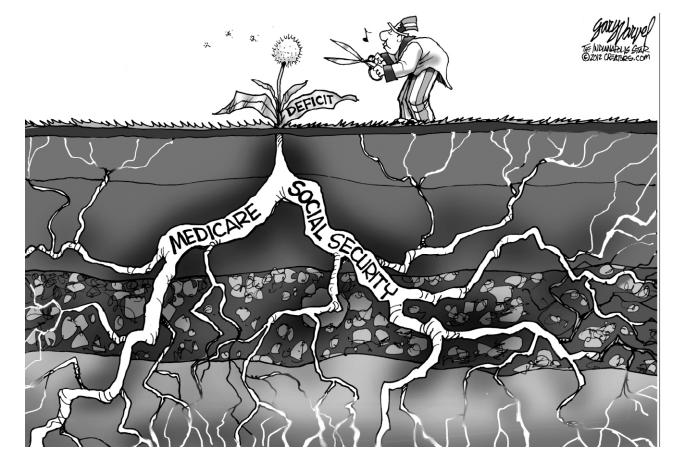

It's not Brad Wills' job to protect county residents, but it is the job of the legislators who were elected by people in the good faith that their legislators would look at the big picture.

Giving the bill a window before it went into effect would have been fair to everyone. It would have benefitted the developers and the counties would have been given the time to react rationally and in a fiscally responsible way.

It's hard to think there wasn't some malice forcing the issue. Passing this bill without considering the counties' budgeting cycle came out of a climate this past session where a bill was introduced by Majority Leader Mike Moyle to force local governments to cut their budgets when property is moved off their tax rolls or when the Legislature gives companies property tax breaks, instead of shifting the financial burden to other taxpayers.

The bill died but revealed a certain mindset - at least among House GOP leadership.

Since the passage of HB 519, Twin Falls County has 55 tax exemption applications from developers waiting for approval and an unexpected shortfall of up to $1 million."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. President, Share Your Wealth

As I sit and listen to the news, all about sharing; so Mr. President, let's take your $8 million and give it back to the people who lost their homes to foreclosure and we'll take your campaign money and do the same, since you are sonm hot on sharing the wealth.

And another thing, stop giving money you don't have to foreign countries. You can't buy friendship; you earn it. You take care of us, the USA, my place of living. This is my country, and we work for our space and well-being. No free stuff like you tell everybody. You stand and smile, but I believe you are a two-faced liar and you are not good for my country.

DAVID KEILLOR Twin Falls

Immigrants May Not Benefit Twin Falls

In the late '30s, both Ger-government - aided by well-meaning but fuzzyheaded local thinkers - is spending American money, time and resources to bring in aliens from countries with questionable motives. With the audacity of dictators, they never asked taxpayers if they wanted their dollars spent this way. Twin Falls has recently been the recipient of aliens from Iran, Pakistan and other countries where they couldn't solve their own problems. What reason is there to believe that these non-English speaking foreigners will solve their own problems while here or add to the economy and wellbeing of our own? In the 19th century, immigrants from Europe came on their own dime and learned the language, the culture and made a living based on their own efforts. They didn't come being supported and coddled by the host country. VAUGHN PHELPS

Twin Falls Filer Schools

It is hard to vote to increase taxes, especially with concerns about the current economy and increased costs for local services. However, this is exactly what the Filer School District community did as you approved a levy that will allow the school district to maintain its existing programs and avoid further cuts to the education provided for the students of the Filer School District.

The Community Finance Committee worked on the passage of this levy for almost two years. A proposed levy for this past November was rescinded when the state revenues changed. After re-examining the needs and various options, the Community Finance Committee and Filer School Board, with community input during a school board meeting, fine tuned the plan for the levy.

In recent months, the Community Finance Committee shared the information concerning the need for the levy and answered community questions that were being raised. The end result was that the questions were adequately answered and the Filer School District community passed the proposed levy. The levy funds are crucial to the education of the Filer School District students as the school budget has been significantly reduced over the past several years. The school district has been forced to make many cuts that have already affected the education of the students. The community vote to support the levy has prevented any further cuts and will allow the district to move forward with programs that will prepare the students for their future after graduation.

There are too many people to thank individually and anytime you mention names, there is a possibility of missing someone. I want tot hank all the people in the community that attended public meeting or took the time to share their ideas and concerns. I want to thank all the people that served on the committee and community members that attended the meetings. Many people took on crucial leadership roles from chairing the committee to going door to door or making phone calls answering questions and sharing information about the levy proposal.

Words are not adequate to express the appreciation for the vote to maintain the existing education programs. The vote truly showed the value the Filer School District community has for its children's education. The children, who are the future of this community, will be the benefactors of your efforts both now and for many years to come.

It's easy to be anti-tax. That's a convenient set of blinders to wear; It makes decisions easy. If it's a tax, cut it. But life (and government) is more nuanced than that. There are services dictated by the state to be provided - like law enforcement, fire and road mainte-nance - and those services must be funded. If the money is not there, those programs must be cut or the tax load must be moved.

In response to Sunday's article about the issue, Hartgen wrote on his Facebook page that county budgets are bloated because they are relying on tax rates that are too high.

He wrote, "... The alternative now is for some counties to roll back their budgets to account for the loss of taxation that was inappropriately levied, not to shift taxes to other groups. If revenue has been 'lost,' it's due to the taxation level being too high"

Perhaps he's right. But blindsiding counties with a retroactive loss of revenue is not the way to encourage change. Few people make good choices when they are cornered. Instead, the counties should have been given the respect of being allowed to budget for the shortfall.

What happens next to county budgets could cast a shadow over what was otherwise a good bill.

Now, though, the Supreme Court could clear the way for that longoverdue legal review with a ruling granting citizens the right to challenge secret wiretapping of international calls and messages out of the plausible fear that their privacy rights are being breached.

Of course citizens shouldn't have to wait to have their privacy rights restored. That's a job for Congress when the 2008 Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act comes up for renewal later this year.

Idaho Still Waiting on No Child Left Behind Waiver

BY JESSIE L. BONNER Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho has been among leading critics of the No Child Left Behind education program, but state officials will have to wait longer to find out if they'll be freed from the federal law's toughest requirements.

A list of eight additional states to receive flexibility from the law was released Tuesday and did not include Idaho. The state Department of Education is still working on Idaho's waiver application based on feedback from the federal government, spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said.

The Obama administration is granting the waivers from No Child Left Behind in exchange for promises from states to improve preparation and evaluation of students. In all, 19 states have been given the flexibility so far, and Idaho is among states with applications that are still under review. "We expect to be approved in August or September," McGrath said.

With a waiver from the federal government, Idaho intends to use a new, five-star system to rate its public schools beginning in the 2012-2013 school.

As part of the waiver application, states were asked to submit a preliminary list of how schools would rate under their new, home-grown accountability systems. Idaho is still collecting the data necessary to make those calculations, McGrath said.

Idaho's proposed new measuring system would use scores from the Idaho Standards Achievement Tests, or ISAT, to measure student academic growth and proficiency in grades 3-10, while graduation rates and student enrollment in advanced courses would come into play in later grades.

Public schools chief Tom Luna has said he chose a five-star scale because it's a rating system the general public can relate to, but the state needs more time to determine how students would fair under it, McGrath said.

"In Idaho, in order for us to complete those calculations for the five-star system, we still are waiting on data from ISAT testing that happened this spring, and from the SAT college entrance exams that happened in April, and then also our graduation rates from the most current year," McGrath said.

Idaho was among a handful of states that spearheaded a rebellion against No Child Left Behind last year, saying it sets unrealistic benchmarks for public schools while failing to accurately measure student growth.

Luna argued Idaho schools could no longer wait for Congress to reauthorize the education law and rewrite it to better gauge student performance.

President Barack Obama announced last September that since Congress had failed to rewrite No Child Left Behind, he would allow states that meet certain requirements to apply for a waiver to get around it. In all, 19 states have been given waivers so far.

During the first round of waivers announced in February, Obama freed 11 states from some of the George W. Bush-era law's most stringent mandates. Those states were Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Tennessee

The eight additional states announced Tuesday were Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, Ohio and Rhode Island.

The waivers are a stopgap measure until Congress can rewrite the decade-old law, which has been up for renewal since 2007. Federal lawmakers agree the law needs to be changed, but they have so far bickered over how to do that.

Search for Idaho Pilot Spreads across Wide Area

LAKEVIEW, Ore. (AP) • The family of a missing Idaho pilot is not giving up hope he'll be found as searchers fanned out Tuesday across 4,000 square miles of mountains, forest and high desert to find a plane they believe went down in Southern Oregon.

Tony Nicholls, 48, of Meridian, Idaho, dropped off his two stepsons in Lakeview on Thursday and was to return home that day because his daughter was graduating from high school over the weekend.

Amy Nicholls told the Idaho Statesman Tuesday that her husband is a marathon runner with a high pain tolerance and called him "the toughest man I've ever met in my life."

She says she had exchanged text messages with him during his return flight and his last message said he had "cleared the mountains." "I don't know what he cleared," she said.

Officials in Klamath County, Ore, have said radar and cellphone records indicate the last known location for the 1978 Grumman "Cheetah" aircraft was near Hart Lake in the area of Plush, Ore.

Authorities say the search area reaches into Nevada and California.

The size of the area is one problem, said Sheriff Tim Evinger of Klamath County, the search spokesman.

He said searchers had identified high-priority spots from cellphone and flight tracking data, but it's still a "needle in a haystack" search.

Besides rough terrain, there are stands of Ponderosa pine 100 feet tall that could conceal an aircraft on the ground.

"There's also been snowfall, and the plane is white," he said.

Aircraft at first were stymied by bad weather, but flights began Tuesday by aircraft sent by the Civil Air Patrol, the Oregon National Guard and the family. Evinger said searchers had gotten reports of a plane that sounded as if its engine were having trouble, but also reports of a plane with a healthy engine.

Man Says He 'Belly-flopped' Plane against Mountain

In this Sunday photo provided by the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office, members of the Idaho Army National Guard airlift one of three people who were rescued after their small plane crashed on a steep and snowy mountainside.

BOISE (AP) • A California pilot who survived a weekend plane crash with his wife and daughter said he intentionally "belly-flopped" his small plane against a snowy Idaho mountainside after its wings iced up.

"Basically we had the weather kind of close in on us,' Brian Brown told KTVB-TV in a telephone interview from Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise on Monday. The family has since been released from the hospital, hospital spokeswoman Elizabeth Duncan said Tuesday.

The firefighter from

Wilton, Calif., his wife Jayann and their adult daughter Heather were traveling to Mountain Home on Saturday to visit another daughter. Brown said he saw a storm brewing, so he landed the Cessna 172 at a gravel airstrip in Rome, Ore., where there were no services. When they saw a break in the storm, they took off toward Idaho.

As they flew into the mountains of southwestern Idaho, an unexpected cold front caused the airplane's wings to ice over.

"The plane stalled. I put it into a complete nose down position to get a little bit of air speed because I saw what we were going to run into on the other side, and then I basically abruptly pushed the nose back up," which caused the plane to belly-flop against the mountainside, he said.

The impact knocked off the doors. Brown said he and his wife went through the windshield.

The family huddled inside as temperatures dropped. They didn't believe they had any way to call for help because the airplane's radio and GPS systems were not working. Several hours later, however, Brown's iPhone rang.

Logistics Give Democrats a Majority on Tax Panel

BOISE (AP) • It's not often Democrats in Idaho cans say they have a majority when it comes to state government.

But a vacancy on the state Tax Commission has given Democrats an advantage they lack in the Legislature and so many other corners of government.

The commission is constitutionally required to have four members, with not more than two from the same party. In February, commission chairman Bob Geddes, a Republican, stepped down and Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter has yet to name a replacement, giving Democrats a 2-1 edge on the panel.

The state Tax Commission is charged with administering and enforcing the state's tax laws, including income, sales and property taxes, and has more than 450 employees.

Geddes' resignation also gave Democrats leadership on the commission, with David Langhorst, a former Democratic senator from Boise, serving as interim chairman.

Otter spokesman Jon Hanian says the governor is content to take his time and find the right person to appoint to the commission. McDevitt joined the House at 22.

Invasive Mussels on the Move toward Northwest

BY BETSY Z. RUSSELL Spokesman-Review

BOISE • North Idaho Rep. Eric Anderson's nightmare involves invasive quagga and zebra mussels slipping into Idaho's waterways and altering the very nature of the state.

"It scares me, it really does scare me," said Anderson, R-Priest Lake.

He was a featured speaker Tuesday at the Idaho Environmental Forum, a periodic forum on environmental issues facing the state, and he had a chilling warning: Only five states -Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Wyoming and Montana – have yet to be invaded by the tiny, fast-reproducing shellfish that chokes out native species and encrusts everything that touches the infested water.

And more and more mussel-infested boats are being intercepted on the way to Idaho, with the vast majority coming from the Lake Mead area. Two more fouled boats were caught on I-90 in North Idaho on Friday, for a total of 41 so far this year — and the summer boating season is just beginning.

If mussels show up in "any waterway in the Northwest here, it's going to eventually end up in the Columbia and out to the ocean," Anderson said. "We're going to lose this whole system."

Lake Mead is a National Park Service-administered recreation area in Arizona and Nevada, site of Hoover Dam, that's now heavily infested with mussels. To demonstrate the magnitude of the problem, Anderson hung Idaho license plates in the water there along a boat dock; he showed one off on Tuesday.

After nine months in the water, it's so encrusted with the thumbnail-sized mussels that the distinctive red, white and blue design of the license plate is almost entirely hidden, and the thin metal plate is now more than an inch thick, including its thick coating of dried mussels.

A longer-lived infestation at the Great Lakes has resulted in the near extincthing will happen here," Anderson warned.

Anderson said he's upset that the federal superintendent at Lake Mead hasn't taken steps to require all boats leaving the infested lake to be decontaminated. A week ago, he fired off an angry letter to Idaho Congressman Mike Simpson. Simpson got $1 million allocated to the park service this year to fight mussels, but Anderson said the park service is targeting the money to "monitoring, prevention, outreach and research."

Anderson called those "things that we don't need," saying, "We need to clean boats." He said, "This money is not going where it was intended."

Simpson's funding bill for fiscal year 2012 specifically required the money to be used for "mandatory operational inspection and decontamination stations at federally managed or inter-jurisdictional water bodies considered to be of highest risk."

Spreading invasive species is a crime, Anderson noted. "They're doing it — it's a crime."

Simpson, an Idaho Republican, confronted parks officials about the issue in March when they spoke at a hearing at the House Interior and Environment Appropriations Subcommittee, which he chairs. "It's a priority for Congressman Simpson to do what we can to stop these invasive quagga mussels from entering Idaho," said Simpson spokesman Nikki Watts, "and he has brought that up numerous times with the National Park Service when they've testified before his committee."

In the meantime, Idaho has 15 boat-inspection stations up and running, to inspect boats coming in from out of state and target any mussels, which in most cases can be cleaned off with high-pressure hot water. "All five states have inspection programs that are coming on line," said Amy Ferriter, invasive species coordinator for the Idaho Department of Agriculture.

Anderson said the biggest problem is boats

Magazine Prompts Evac. of Courthouse

POCATELLO • Authorities say a package containing a magazine with a musical device, similar to those in greeting cards, prompted the evacuation of a federal courthouse in southeastern Idaho.

Police determined the package did not pose a threat.

U.S. Marshals notified local authorities when they found the suspicious package Tuesday morning during a regular search of the Pocatello courthouse building. Between 30 and 40 people were evacuated, and a bomb squad sent a robot into the building to handle the package.

The threat was cleared Tuesday afternoon. The court's websites says the building remains closed for the evening and will be open during normal hours Wednesday.

Romney Clinches GOP Nomination with Texas Win

BY STEPHEN OHLEMACHER Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Mitt Romney has clinched the Republican nomination for president with a win in the Texas primary.

The Associated Press delegate count shows that Romney surpassed the 1,144 delegates needed to win the nomination during Tuesday's primary. Early returns show Romney posting a big win in Texas. It's a triumph of endurance for a candidate who came up short four years ago and had to fight hard this year as voters flirted with a carousel of GOP rivals.

Romney reached the nomination milestone with a steady message of concern about the U.S. economy, a campaign organization that dwarfed those of his GOP opponents, and a fundraising operation second only to that of his Democratic opponent in the general election, President Barack Obama.

Suu Kyi, in Myanmar Since 1988, Starts World Tour

BY JOCELYN GECKER Associated Press

BANGKOK • For 24 years, Aung San Suu Kyi was either under house arrest or too fearful that if she left Myanmar, the government would never let her return.

Now, in a sign of how much life there has changed, the democracy activist and long-time political prisoner is resuming world travels, arriving Tuesday night in neighboring Thailand after an 85-minute flight from her homeland.

With the installation of an elected government last year, and her party's own entrance into parliament this year, she can claim at least partial success for her long fight and feel the freedom to explore the world.

Suu Kyi is to spend several days in Thailand, meeting with poor migrant workers and war refugees from her homeland, as well as international movers and shakers at the World Economic Forum on East Asia.

On arrival at Bangkok's Suvarnabhumi Airport, she was whisked to a car amid heavy security, bypassing a large crowd of waiting journalists.

She'll return to Myanmar briefly and head to Europe in mid-June, with stops including Geneva and Oslo — to formally accept the Nobel Peace Prize she won 21 years ago.

In Dublin, she'll share a stage with U2 frontman Bono, a staunch Suu Kyi supporter, at a concert in her honor, according to Irish media. In England she has been given the rare honor of addressing both houses of Parliament. France's Foreign Ministry says she also plans to stop in Paris. The tour marks Suu Kyi's latest step in a stunning trajectory from housewife to political prisoner to opposition leader in Parliament, as Myanmar opens to the outside world and sheds a half century of military rule, with President Thein Sein getting her back for am ambitious program of reforms. Meetings with world leaders are planned along the way as dignitaries line up to shake Suu Kyi's hand. Earlier Tuesday, Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh met with her in Yangon, saying her "life and her struggle, her determination has inspired

Nations Expel Syrian Envoys Over Massacre

BEIRUT • As U.N. officials cited eyewitness accounts of shadowy gunmen slaughtering whole families in their homes, Western nations expelled Syrian diplomats Tuesday in a coordinated move against President Bashar Assad's regime over the massacre of more than 100 people.

U.N. special envoy Kofi Annan met with Assad in Damascus to try to salvage what was left of a peace plan, which since being brokered six weeks ago has failed to stop any of the violence on the ground.

Survivors of the Houla massacre blamed pro-regime gunmen for at least some of the carnage as the killings reverberated inside Syria and beyond, further isolating Assad and embarrassing his few remaining allies.

A Houla resident who hid in his home during the massacre said the proregime gunmen, known as shabiha, targeted the most vulnerable in the farming villages that make up Houla, a poor area in Homs province. "They went after the women, children and elderly," he said, asking that his name not be used out of fear of reprisals.

LAPD Wins Access to Manson Tapes

PLANO, Texas • Los Angeles police are entitled to audio recordings of conversations between a Manson family member and his attorney, a Texas judge ruled Tuesday.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Brenda T. Rhoades of Plano granted the request allowing police to obtain the eight cassette tapes containing hours of talks between Charles "Tex" Watson and Bill Boyd, a now-deceased Texas attorney who once represented Watson.

Detectives want to listen to the tapes to learn whether Watson described any unsolved killings in the conversations. An LAPD spokesman has told The Associated Press that officers have no specific information on what might be in the recordings.

Iran, Other Middle East Countries Hit by Computer Virus

BY RAPHAEL SATTER AND AMY TEIBEL

Associated Press

LONDON • Iran and other Middle East countries have been hit with a cunning computer virus that can eavesdrop on computer users and their co-workers and filch information from nearby cellphones, cybersecurity experts said Tuesday. And suspicion immediately fell on Israel as the culprit.

The Russian Internet security firm Kaspersky Lab ZAO said the "Flame" virus is unprecedented in size and complexity, with researcher Roel Schouwenberg marveling at its versatility. "It can be used to spy on everything that a user is doing," he said.

Computers in Iran appear to have been particularly affected, and Kaspersky's conclusion that the virus was crafted at the behest of a national government fueled speculation it could be part of an Israelibacked campaign of electronic sabotage against the Jewish state's archenemy.

The virus can activate a computer's audio systems to listen in on Skype calls or office chatter. It can also take screenshots, log keystrokes and — in one of its more novel functions steal data from Bluetoothenabled cellphones.

Patz Suspect's Mental Illness History Could Be Key

BY JENNIFER PELTZ

Associated Press

NEW YORK • Pedro Hernandez has confessed to killing the 6-year-old boy at the heart of one of the nation's most prominent missing-child cases, police say. And he has schizophrenia and a history of hallucinations, his lawyer says.

Court-appointed doctors are still assessing Hernandez's mental state, and it's unclear how much it will factor in the case charging him with the 1979 murder of young Etan Patz.

But if his psychiatric record becomes an issue, he'll encounter a justice system that seeks to strike a balance between recognizing mental illness and holding people responsible for their actions – a balance that has shifted back and forth over more than a century and a half.

Hernandez, 51, remained in a psychiatric hospital Tuesday as authorities continued trying to flesh out his startling admission in a case that galvanized the movement to publicize the problem of missing children. Meanwhile, Etan's father made clear that the attention to the case since Hernandez's arrest last week had taken a toll, telling reporters they had "managed to make a difficult situation even worse."

A newspaper with a photograph of Etan Patz is part of a makeshift memorial Monday in the SoHo neighborhood of New York.

"It is past time for you to leave me, my family and my neighbors alone," Stan Patz said in a note posted on his apartment building's door.

Police encountered Hernandez, who worked in a nearby convenience store, shortly after Etan vanished on his way to school on May 25, 1979. But investigators never considered Hernandez a suspect until a tipster pointed them his way this month, saying he had made incriminating statements. He responded with an emotional and gruesome confession: He said he strangled the boy, hid his body in a bag and a box and dumped it near some trash, police said.

His statements launched police and the Manhattan district attorney's office into a complex process of building a 33-yearold case with, so far, no physical evidence.

FedEx Buying Brazilian Shipper Rapidão Cometa

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) • FedEx said it will buy a Brazilian transportation company, its third acquisition since rival UPS announced its purchase of TNT Express in Europe earlier this year.

The UPS deal is a $6.8 billion acquisition that will dramatically expand its footprint in Europe. FedEx hasn't done a blockbuster deal like that, but it has now made three smaller acquisitions this year that will give it a bigger presence in Europe and now Latin America.

On Tuesday, FedEx Corp. said it will buy transportation and logistics company Rapidão Cometa Logística e Transportes SA, one of the largest logistics companies in Brazil. Terms were not disclosed.

Facebook's stock falls below $30 • Facebook's stock has fallen below $30 for the first time since its much-awaited public debut this month. It closed at $28.84 on Tuesday, down 24 percent since its public stock debut.

The debut was marred by technical glitches at the Nasdaq Stock Market that delayed trading. And the company, along with the investment banks that led the IPO, is the subject of at least two shareholder lawsuits. Wedbush analyst Michael Pachter says Facebook's stock has been hurt by those "near-term issues." He rates the stock "Outperform" and has a 12-month target price of $44.

IDAHO: FIVE WIVES VODKA OFFENSIVE TO RESIDEN

BY JOHN MILLER AND PAUL FOY Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY • Five Wives Vodka was named in bad taste and won't be stocked or special ordered at stores operated by the state of Idaho, regulators said.

The middle-shelf vodka is made by Ogden's Own Distillery in Utah, where the Mormon church is based. Its label carries the name and an image of five women, an apparent reference to polygamy, a practice abandoned by the church more than a century ago.

Idaho State Liquor Division administrator Jeff Anderson said the brand is offensive to Mormons who make up over a quarter of Idaho's population.

Regulators in Idaho notified Elite Spirits Distributor that the brand's concept is "offensive to a prominent segment of our population and will not be carried," according to a letter sent Thursday.

"The bottom line is, we represent everybody," Anderson added Tuesday. "It's masterful marketing on their part. But it doesn't play here?

Anderson said state stores already make hundreds of vodka brands available for sale and don't have room for another brand priced at around $20 a bottle.

Ogden's Own Distillery is trying to make the most of the rejection with a media campaign and sale of "Free the Five Wives" T-shirts.

It says the snub is unfair because a Utah beer named Polygamy Porter is available in Idaho. Anderson said Idaho doesn't decide what beer brands can be sold in grocery and convenience stores.

"We're a little dumbfounded by it all," said Steve Conlin, a partner and marketing chief for Ogden's Own Distillery. "The average person can look at our bottle and they don't find it offensive. It's certainly not obscene, which is what it would require for it to be banned."

Five Wives Vodka has been approved for sale in Utah, a state dominated by members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. It's also available in Wyoming, another state that regulates liquor sales.

Nobody in Utah is raising a fuss over the brand, said Vickie Ashby, a spokeswoman for the Utah Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. Utah regulates all sales of hard liquor, wine and heavy beer, making the products available only at state-owned stores. Idaho and Wyoming control liquor sales with a mix of state-owned and privatelyoperated stores.

"We have a product that has sold nearly 1,000 cases in six months in Utah," Conlin said. "If the reaction is because of a religious concern, we think they are extremely misguided."

Americans Grew Gloomier about the Economy in May

BY MAE ANDERSON Associated Press

NEW YORK • Americans grew much gloomier about the economy in May, causing a critical measure of consumer confidence to suffer its biggest decline in eight months and ending a period of steady optimism.

Worries about jobs, housing and the stock market rattled consumers, even though gas prices are falling. The latest figures suggest Americans will need to see more encouraging economic signs before their concerns start to dissipate.

The Conference Board, a private research group, reported Tuesday that its Consumer Confidence Index fell to 64.9, down from a revised 68.7 in April. Analysts had expected the index to climb to 70.

The May figure, which represents the biggest drop since October, when the measure fell about 6 points, is now at its lowest level since January.

Americans are still worried about slow hiring, declining home values, the stock market and a worsening European economy that they fear will negatively affect the U.S.

"Consumers were less positive about current business and labor market conditions, and they were more pessimistic about the short-term outlook," said Lynn Franco, director of economic indicators at the Conference Board.

Consumer confidence is widely watched because consumer spending accounts for 70 percent of economic activity. May's figure is significantly below the 90 reading that indicates a healthy economy. The measure hasn't been near that level since December 2007. But the latest reading is still well above the 40 figure reached last October and the all-time low of 25.3

in February 2009.

The consumer confidence measure has zigzagged so far this year, dropping in January, rising in February and holding nearly steady after

In this May 6 photo, shoppers carry their purchases along 33rd Street in New York. that. Analysts were hoping a slight rise in May would give some credence to the idea that the economy is stabilizing.

Instead, the data, which was based on a survey conducted from May 1 through May 16 with about 500 randomly selected people nationwide, suggests that "the pace of economic growth in the months ahead may moderate," Franco said.

Mark Vitner, an economist at Wells Fargo, said May's reading is disappointing but consistent with the sluggish recovery so far.

"In some ways, it's a microcosm of the whole economic recovery," he said. "Every once in a while hopes are raised that things are getting better, and then the bottom seems to fall out again."

Analysts say the inconsistent job market is preventing Americans from being more upbeat.

Hiring picked up earlier in the year, but slowed in March and April, possibly indicating that the economy's momentum faded in early spring. Economists say a warm winter led employers to move up some hiring and accelerate other activity that normally wouldn't occur until spring.

URA to Borrow Nearly $6 Million More from Chobani

BY MELISSA DAVLIN mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • At a special meeting on Tuesday, the Twin Falls Urban Renewal Agency Board unanimously approved a two-part request to both extend and increase a line of credit from Chobani to the URA.

Twin Falls City Attorney Fritz Wonderlich explained the proposed deal to the board: The URA borrowed $17.3 million from Chobani at a 3 percent interest rate to pay for needed infrastructure projects, like water and sewer lines. The scope of those projects was based on the company's estimates for their needs, like water capacity.

But now that Chobani has expanded its plans, the URA's investment has also grown, said URA Executive Director Melinda Anderson. She and Wonderlich asked to increase the credit line to about $23 million.

The bigger the development, the higher Chobani's property taxes will be, Anderson said.

They also asked to extend the maturity date from June 1 to July 30. Through no fault of the city or URA, the bond process has hit delays, Wonderlich said. In order not to default on the loan, the URA needs the extension.

Both Wonderlich and Anderson said this might not be the last time the URA asks the board for an extension, but Anderson hoped the bond process would be done.

"Our preference is to pay off that loan by July 30," Anderson said.

DEALS WITH BANKS STACK FEES ON COLLEGE STUDENTS

BY DANIEL WAGNER Associated Press

WASHINGTON • It took Mario Parker-Milligan less than a semester to decide that he was paying too many fees to Higher One, the company hired by his college to pay out students' financial aid on debit cards.

Four years after he opted out, his classmates still face more than a dozen fees – for replacement cards, for using the cards as all-purpose debit cards, for using an ATM other than the two on-campus kiosks owned by Higher One.

"They sold it as a faster, cheaper way for the college to get students their money," said Parker-Milligan, 23, student body president at Lane Community College in Eugene, Ore. "It may be cheaper for the college, but it's not cheaper for the students."

As many as 900 colleges

students who fail to submit certain paperwork. The Education Department called the charging of such "unallowable" in fees guidance to financial aid officers issued last month.

Higher One founder and Chief Operating Officer Miles Lasater said in an emailed statement that the company takes compliance with the government's rules "very seriously," and officially swears that to the government each year.

"We are committed to providing good value accounts that are designed for college students," he said, and students must review the company's fee list when they sign up for an account. He cited a separate study said that declared Higher One "a lowcost provider for this market."

Among the fees charged to students who open Higher One accounts are RUPERT • George Clarence Knight, 90, of Rupert, passed away peacefully Sunday, May 27, 2012, following a long illness. Just the evening before, each of his four children was able to visit with him for a brief time. What a precious memory!

Born to Charles William and Mary Helbertina Jensen Knight on Oct. 31, 1921, in Driggs, Idaho, he was the 12th of 13 children. George attended school in Driggs until his family moved to the Rupert area in 1936 when he was 15 years old. He went on to graduate from Rupert High School, where he met a cute little redhead named Julia Cole. They married on Aug. 30, 1940, in the Salt Lake LDS Temple. Four children blessed this union.

George was a hard worker. Throughout his life, he was a farmer, worked for the Amalgamated Sugar Company and, in 1955, started working as a ditch rider for the Minidoka Irrigation District. He went on to become water master and retired from there in 1983. He continued working for them in the summer spraying weeds and worked for Amalgamated Sugar in the fall.

George enjoyed fishing, gardening and traveling. He will long be remembered for his fabulous garden. He gave away more produce than most of us ever grew! He kept his family and neighbors in fresh vegetables all summer long, as well as the senior center in Rupert. Later in life, he became an avid reader. More than anything, he loved to go for rides in the car with anyone who would take him! He was a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and was a home teacher for several years.

George was preceded in church.

BURLEY • Carl John Lloyd, a wonderful husband,

Lenee Call Dec. 7, 1955-May 27, 2012

BURLEY • Enetta Lenee Call, age 56, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and formerly of Burley, passed away Sunday, May 27, 2012, at St. Mark's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

Lenee was born Dec. 7, 1955, in Salt Lake City, Utah, the daughter of Melvin and Enetta (Jensen) Call. Her family lived in Bountiful, Utah, until the spring of 1959, when they relocated to the Pella area southwest of Burley. Lenee grew up on her family's farm, where she learned the valuable lesson of hard work and about the simple things of life - being outdoors and watching the animals and plants grow. She received her education in Burley and graduated from Burley High School. She then moved to Salt Lake City to attend the Bryman School. She spent most of her adult life working as a shipping and receiving clerk for various businesses.

She enjoyed coming home to the farm as often as she could. She loved her home in Burley and enjoyed spending time with her parents. However, she did not like winter driving and would often come home with other family members. Lenee was very fond of her family and put forth extra effort to acknowledge them. She took special interest in her nieces and nephews. Lenee's gentle manner will be missed. The family expresses their sincere appreciation to Billy for his thoughtfulness, love and understanding care given to Lenee.

She is survived by her parents, Melvin and Enetta Call of Burley; her siblings, Leland (Judy) Call of Park

City, Utah, LaRene (Steve) Woolstenhulme of St. George, Utah, Karen Call of Greeley, Colo., Susan Tyacke of Federal Way, Wash., and Todd Call of Boise; and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her grandparents and one nephew, Shane Thomas Call.

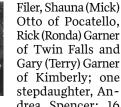

Please join the family at a casual memorial service in Lenee's honor to be held at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 2, at her childhood home at 268 W. 400 S. of Burley, where friends and family may call one hour prior to the service. Burial will be in the Pella Cemetery.

The family suggests memorials be directed to Shriner's Hospital for Children.

Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

are pushing students into using payment cards that carry hefty costs, sometimes even to get to their financial aid money, according to a report to be released Wednesday by a public interest group.

Colleges and banks rake in millions from the fees, often through secretive deals and sometimes in apparent violation of federal law, according to the report, an early copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press.

More than two out of five U.S. higher-education students - more than 9 million people – attend schools that have deals with financial companies, says the report, written by the U.S. Public Interest Group Higher Education Fund.

The fees add to the mountain of debt many students already take on to get a diploma. U.S. student debt tops $1 trillion, according to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

Student loans have surpassed credit cards as the biggest source of unsecured debt in America, according to the CFPB, which regulates cards and private student lenders.

Among the fees charged by Higher One, according to its website, is a $50 "lack of documentation fee" for $50 if an account is overdrawn for more than 45 days, $10 per month if the student stops using his account for six months, $29 to $38 for overdrawing an account with a recurring bill payment and 50 cents to use a PIN instead of a signature system at a retail store.

Higher One has agreements with 520 campuses that enroll more than 4.3 million students, about one-fifth of the students enrolled in college nationwide, according to public filings. Wells Fargo and US Bank combined have deals with schools that enroll 3.7 million, the report said.

Lane Community College's president, Mary Spilde, said in an interview that the real problem is a "lack of adequate public funding," which forces students to seek financial aid and colleges to find ways to cut costs.

"Many institutions are looking at ways to streamline and to do things that we're good at, which is education and learning, and not banking," Spilde said.

Programs like Higher One's shift the cost of handing out financial aid money from universities, which no longer have to print and mail checks, to fee-paying students, said Rich Williams, the report's lead author.

Robert Don Owsley

Nov. 4, 1926-May 25, 2012

BOISE • Robert Don Owsley was born Nov. 4, 1926, in Hagerman, Idaho, and passed away Friday, May 25, 2012, at Willow Park Assisted Living in Boise, Idaho.

Dad was the youngest child of five children born to Millie Gourley Owsley and Alvin "Scott" Owsley. He was raised in Hagerman and graduated from Hagerman High in 1944. He joined the U.S. Navy directly after graduating and was assigned to the USS Gasconader APA-85. His ship was in the harbor in Tokyo, Japan, where he witnessed the signing of the peace treaty between the emperor of Japan and General MacArthur. Dad married his high school sweetheart, Velma Brown, in 1945. To this union, four children were born. Dad was discharged from the Navy in 1946 and returned to Hagerman. After working several jobs to support his family and with mom's encouragement, he applied to the University of Idaho and was admitted under the GI Bill. With his wife and three daughters, dad moved his family to Moscow, Idaho, in August of 1951. His fourth child, a son, was born in January 1952. Dad graduat ed in June of 1956 with a degree in civil engineering. He was the first person in his and mother's family to graduate from college. For the next 30 years, dad worked for the Corps of Engineers. During his working years for the Corps, dad had several projects that he was chief engineer, including the building of the missile silos in the desert north of Mountain Home, Idaho;

Aviv, Israel. After his retirement from the Corps, dad and mom lived in Emmett, Idaho, for a short time before returning to their home town of Hagerman. For the next 20 years, they joined the snowbirds traveling to the Fountain of Youth in Niland, Calif., to spend their winters. From early childhood and into his senior years, dad enjoyed the mountains of Idaho, camping, fishing and hunting with his family and friends. He also loved to pheasant hunt with his cousins, brother and brothers-inlaw in the cornfields around Hagerman and Burley, Idaho. Dad is survived by one sister, Maxine Albertson of Burley; two sisters-in-law and two brothers-in-law; his children, Marie (Russ) Biaggne of Boise and Clark (Vicki) Owsley of El Cajon, Calif.; eight grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; one great-great-granddaughter; and several nieces and nephews. He is preceded in death by his parents; two sisters; one brother; wife, Velma in 2007; and daughters, Patricia Ebding in 2001 and Sharon Wollen in 2012. A private memorial service will be held at a later date. Arrangements are by Summers Funeral Homes in Boise, Idaho. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Hagerman Alumni Association or Hagerman Library in Hagerman, Idaho.

Lasagna Special, $6

Maxie's Pizza & Pasta, 170 Blue Lakes Blvd., Twin Falls

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS

vhutchins@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Don't even enter Maxie's Pizza & Pasta unless you're planning to indulge.

Sure, there's a salad bar. But at the counter where you'll stand and order, you'll see straight into the kitchen. And the warm atmosphere laden with delicious scents simply demands that you eat the locally famous lasagna. Go ahead. You won't regret it. On Tuesdays and Fridays, the lasagna is particularly cost-conscious; the $6 lunch special includes garlic bread and a fountain drink.

Each of the daily 60-80 lasagnas sold at Maxie's is assembled that day in its own miniature casserole dish. So the pasta isn't a square that slides around on your plate, and you don't have to wonder whether part of your cheese

TWIN FALLS • Shake and stir some refreshment: The Rock Creek restaurant's bartending staff will teach a "Mixology: Summer Cocktails" workshop for the College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center.

Participants must be 21 or older and show ID. Two sessions are scheduled: 5-7 p.m. and 7:30-9:30 p.m. June 9 at Rock Creek. Cost for either is $15, plus a $10 supply fee. Bring a designated driver; taxis will be available.

Learn French Techniques

Features Editor Virginia Hutchins [208-735-3242 • vhutchins@magicvalley.com]

TWIN FALLS • Hailey chef Chris Kastner will teach a "Classic French Technique Cooking" class in Twin Falls next month.

It's set for 6-8:30 p.m. June 5 at Rudy's - A Cook's Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. Cost is $45. Expect a menu of classic French bistro dishes: Salad Frisee au Lardon; Coq au Vin with Egg Noodles; and Creme Caramel.

In 2003, after 17 years as chef-partner at Evergreen Bistro, Kastner opened his bistro-style restaurant in Hailey, CK's Real Food. Sign up: 733-5477.

topping pulled off with the previous serving dipped from a pan.

No indeed. There's broiled cheese dripping over the sides.

Maxie's dimly lit warren of dining rooms is a suitable setting for comfort food, and you're likely to find a big lunch crowd there. Seat-yourself informality encourages conversation.

The use of real butter guarantees the garlic bread will be flavorful, but you might also find it dry at times. No matter: The lasagna is the star here.

For his first couple of decades at Maxie's, even general manager Mike Hayes wasn't privy to the spice mixtures that owner Max Humphries prepared for the lasagna and the restaurant's other red sauces.

'That was his trade secret," said Hayes, who got in on the secret five years ago. "I know everything that goes into the lasagna now."

Will he share?

"Nope. Nope, not going to happen. I'm under strict sworn secrecy," Hayes said. "If I were to share that with you I would no longer be alive."

Even the lasagna assembly is regulated, with only five people in the restaurant authorized to build the layers just so in each casserole dish. Maxie's uses a smaller-thanusual lasagna noodle for a prettier presentation. The meat is half ground beef and half Italian pork sausage from Humphries' father's recipe. And what's in the lasagna's cream cheese mixture?

"Oh, oh. Wouldn't you like to know?" Hayes said. But he relented on that one: It's cream cheese, nonfat cottage cheese and buttermilk.

Hayes attributes some of the lasagna's popularity to how well it travels for carry-out and delivery orders. Even after it's transferred to a disposable container the lasagna holds its heat; carry it to a picnic or back to the office and it might still be too hot to eat.

"It's the most frequent ordered pasta on the menu," Hayes said.

BURLEY • Patricia Ganoe will teach a three-night "Gluten Free Cooking Basics" class in Burley for the College of Southern Idaho's Community Education Center.

She'll share inexpensive ways of creating gluten-free snacks, dinners and desserts. Expect both demonstrations and hands-on learning.

Class will be 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays, June 5-19, at CSI's Burley campus. Cost is $35 plus a $15 supply fee.

TWIN FALLS • Even before an omelet hit the pan or a knife opened an onion, an aroma of fresh herbs greeted students as they entered Saucy for Thursday's hands-on cooking course.

The class was the third of the fourpart "Practicing the Art of Cookery" curriculum designed by Mike and Tay Dougherty, chef-owners of the Twin Falls restaurant. They'll offer the classes again this summer.

"We want to make cooking and food more accessible," Mike said. "Getting real, whole and organic foods back in your diet doesn't have to be difficult. That's what we do here, showing how easy it is, really, to eat good."

Saucy has stopped serving lunch to focus on the classes and special events. "We do wellness classes and corporate team-building events and we also host classes for couples, by reservation," Mike said.

Downtown Shop Offers 110 Flavors of Cupcakes

BY AUTUMN MYERS

Special to the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • One might glance at a box of breakfast cereal at the grocery store and not think much of it, but to Krislyn Canary it's inspiration.

"A week or two ago, I went into Costco and saw an oatmeal box. Oatmeal strawberry, oatmeal chocolate chip, and I thought to myself: I could make a cupcake out of that!" said Canary, co-owner of Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery in Twin Falls.

Canary chose to locate her new cupcake business in downtown Twin Falls to tap into a place where community events happen and to capture walk-by traffic.

"I just feel that we would be seen more. On Blue Lakes, you get lost in all the businesses, but downtown, people walk and actually look at my business," she said.

Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery, at 153 Main Ave. E., opened March 5. Like the name suggests, it is a cupcake shop, but it's not limited to cupcakes. It offers cakes by order, cookies and soon cake pops, so any downtown shopper can satisfy a sweet tooth.

Canary has been a businesswoman for four years but has been cooking since she was 10.

After years of selling to friends the cupcakes baked at home by his wife, Krislyn, and daughter Samantha, Gary Canary asked his wife: Why aren't we doing this as a business? They opened Pieces of Heaven Cupcakery in downtown Twin Falls in March and hope to cash in on the cupcake boom.

weeks; the latter lesson included mastering egg fu yung. But before whipping eggs, the class would chop fresh tomatoes and onions for a simple salsa, and that dish came with a simple lesson: Use a sharp knife.

"A dull knife slips off the skin, and usually the next thing in the way is your finger," Tay said.

As Tay related a story about hitting her bone with a dull knife, Mike demonstrated how to chop an onion, creating a grid in the bulbous body.

"See how I don't quite cut all the way through?" he said, passing the blade to Theresa White of Twin Falls, who is taking all four classes with her mother, Donna Ulibarri.

"We just moved here from Elko (Nev.) and we both like to cook and thought it would be a good way to meet some new people," White said. "I've liked the class because it's really basic, like learning how to measure properly and with the right tools. Last week, I learned that I've been using too much flour when preparing a cake pan."

At first, the knife shook slightly in her grasp, but it became more steady with every cut into the onion. Within minutes, White was scooping shining chunks of onion into the salsa bowl.

Egg Fu Yung

For the sauce:

1 cup water 1 tablespoon cornstarch 2 tablespoons soy sauce 1 teaspoon sugar or molasses

For the omelets:

- 6 large eggs
- 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose or whole-wheat flour 1 1/2 cups mung or soy-
- bean sprouts 1/2 cup green onions, thinly sliced
- Vegetable oil for pan

Whisk water gradually into cornstarch in a small saucepan until smooth. Add remaining sauce ingredients. Place over low heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture begins to boil. Turn down heat and cook for 1 minute. Remove from heat while preparing omelets. Reheat to serve. Beat eggs with soy sauce and flour. Add the vegetables and stir. Place an 8inch omelet plan over medium heat for about 30 seconds. Pour in 1 teaspoon oil and spread using a paper towel. Add 1/4 cup egg mixture to pan, forming a thin omelet. When the top is almost set, flip over and cook until set. Serve warm, topped with sauce.

2/3 cup butter

- 1 3/4 cups sugar
- 2 1/2 cups flour 2 1/2 teaspoons baking
- powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1 1/4 cups milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Put butter and sugar together in a bowl and mix until light and fluffy (for about two minutes). In a separate bowl, sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Add eggs and vanilla to butter-sugar mixture. Add flour mixture and alternate with milk, beating well each time. Pour into baking cups. Bake 15-18 minutes. Cupcakes are ready when a toothpick comes out dry. Cool 10 minutes.

rice with steak," Tay said.

Up next: Caramelized Onion & Sun Dried Tomato Couscous - though Tay admitted the onions are just browned.

"I just called them caramelized because I thought it sounded better," she said, laughing.

As Mike dutifully chopped more onions, Tay let the class in on a secret: awakening herbs. This recipe called for 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, but Tay dumped a much larger portion into the palm of her hand and worked the dried leaves into a fine dust with her thumb.

The smell was wonderful.

"Wake up your spices like this and it will release the aroma and oil," Tay said. "This is the way your herbs and spices are supposed to smell."

As the couscous sat, the class prepared the main course: egg fu yung. Fresh bean sprouts gave these Asian omelets a tasty crunch, and they took only minutes to prepare.

"I didn't know the fu yung just meant the sauce," Ulibarri said.

Surprisingly, they tasted great alongside Spanish rice and couscous.

"You don't need to make an entire Mexican meal," Tay said. "If you are in a rut and tired of making the same old thing it's easy to switch it up and serve something different and try different tastes."

New Progress in Gluten-Free Beer

BY GREG KITSOCK

Special to The Washington Post

The Craft Brew Alliance in Portland, Ore., announced that it's going national with its Omission Gluten Free Lager and Pale Ale.

Unlike most glutenfree beers, which are made from sorghum, rice, buckwheat or other alternative fermentables, the Omission brews are crafted from barley that has been deglutenized through a proprietary process involving an enzyme called Brewer's Clarex. The aim is to make a product indistinguishable in flavor from a normal beer.

"They have their own value in the marketplace," comments Terry Michaelson of sorghumbased beers, "but this (Omission) is something that matches my expectations of what a craft beer is."

Michaelson, chief executive of the Craft Brew Alliance, has more than an academic interest in the product: He found out he has celiac disease 12 years ago. Joe Casey, the brew master who formulated the Omission beers, has a wife with the same condition.

The Omission beers, brewed by Widmer Brothers Brewing in Portland, Ore., will be in six-packs of 12-ounce bottles.

The catch is, to market the beers across state lines, Widmer had to alter the original labels to eliminate the phrase "gluten-free." Indeed, the label cannot make any statement about gluten at all. "We'll be relying heavily on the social media to get the word out," Michaelson acknowledges.

First Lady on Growing Seeds, Healthy Kids

BY NANCY BENAC Associated Press

WASHINGTON • From the beginning, Michelle Obama's kitchen garden has been an overachiever, churning out more peppers, parsley and eggplant than expected, and generating interest that – yes, really – crosses oceans.

Now, the first lady has added a 271-page book to her gardening resume, and Americans can read all about the planting misses that came with the hits, get tips on gardening at home, and, Mrs. Obama hopes, draw some inspiration that just might change their lives. Oh, and if it happens to help her husband's reelection campaign, that would be nice, too.

Lofty goals for a book about a garden.

In "American Grown: The Story of the White House Kitchen Garden and Gardens Across America," Mrs. Obama holds out the raised vegetable beds on the South Lawn as "an expression of my hopes" for the nation's children. "Just as each seed we plant has the potential to become something extraordinary, so does every child," she writes.

The $30 book, released Tuesday by Crown Publishers, traces how a city kid from the South Side of Chicago who became a working mother and then a political spouse found herself fretting on that first planting day, March 20, 2009, about whether an Lshaped stretch of soil would prove fertile ground for a national conversation "about the food we eat, the lives we lead, and how all of that affects our children."

The book, which answers that question with a resounding yes, arrives just in time for her husband's re-election campaign.

And while the book is decidedly non-political, that fits perfectly with the Obama campaign's view that the first lady can do her husband a world of good simply by pushing the non-threatening causes such as healthy living that have made her a far more popular figure than the president himself. Mrs. Obama's favorability rating in the latest AP-GfK poll was 70 percent, compared with 58 percent for her husband. The book's release comes with a flurry of media appearances. She's already been a TV frequent flyer to promote her "Let's Move" campaign to combat childhood obesity – doing pushups with Ellen De-Generes, playing tug-ofwar with Jimmy Fallon in the White House and serving veggie pizza to Jay Leno. She says she gets asked about the garden wherever she goes, around the world. "It turned out exactly as I envisioned. It's a beautiful book, wonderful pictures," she said in an appearance Tuesday on ABC's "Good Morning America."

The book is chock full of colorful, glossy photos of luscious-looking vegetables, complete with a cover picture in which the first lady's blouse seems to be color-coordinated with the eggplants in her bulging basket of produce. Bo, the popular family dog, gets plenty of cameo appearances. There are maps tracing the growth of the garden over the past three years, and stories about gardens community around the country. Even a how-to on creating a compost bin.

The book is divided into four sections marking the seasons, and includes a complement of recipes for each.

There are inside stories about planting travails that will ring true with any weekend gardener: pumpkins that wouldn't grow, cantaloupes that tasted blah, blackberry bushes that wouldn't play nice with the raspberry bushes and an invasion of cucumber beetles, among them. The first lady makes clear she's not the one doing most of the hoeing and weeding, crediting school kids, White House chefs and grounds crew and enthusiastic volunteers from all over the White House chain of command with providing lots of manpower.

And there are bits of hiswoven torical trivia throughout: John Adams ordered up the first White House garden, but it was never harvested after he lost re-election. Thomas Jefferson was obsessed with trying to grow a fourfoot-long cucumber. Heiress Rachel "Bunny" Mellon, at 101 now a figure in the John Edwards' corruption trial, helped redesign the Rose Garden for President John Kennedy.

There are also bits of personal history: Mrs. Obama's father worked as a boy on one of the vegetable trucks that would deliver produce to neighborhoods, and had a reputation for sneaking pieces of fruit. Her mother's family had a plot in a neighborhood victory garden on the corner of an alley, and the kids had to eat their vegetables or go to bed without supper.

Pomegranate Molasses: What It Is and How to Use It

BY J.M. HIRSCH

Associated Press

Are you about over the pomegranate trend yet?

If so, you might want to revisit it just once more. But this time we aren't talking about chugging the juice or turning it into fancy cocktails.

This time it's pomegranate molasses, a thick, syrupy concentrate that is sweet and tart and as delicious as it sounds.

To explain pomegranate molasses, we ought to start with the fruit itself. Pomegranates originated in western Asia and the Mediterranean, with the best supposedly coming from Iran. The trees produce large, usually red orb-like fruits filled with edible seeds, each of which is covered by a juice-filled membrane.

The seeds (or rather the juicy membrane around them) have a sweet, tart and fairly astringent taste. They can be eaten as is, or crushed to extract the juice.

Likewise, that juice can be consumed as is or mixed with sugar syrup. The latter is called grenadine, a popular flavoring for cocktails (though many modern grenadines are synthetic and no longer made from pomegranate juice).

If you take the unsweetened juice and boil it down until it is thick and syrupy, vou have pomegranate molasses, a popular flavoring in Middle Eastern cooking. Pomegranate molasses once was unheard of outside of ethnic markets, but today can be found in the international aisle of most larger grocers.

And if you can't find it, it's easy enough to make. Buy a bottle of pomegranate juice (or juice concentrate), then boil it until it has reduced and become thick.

The thick, deeply red syrup has an intensely sweet-tart flavor that pairs surprisingly well with savory dishes, especially grilled meats. For example, pomegranate molasses and walnuts are a classic flavoring for poultry.

Opened bottles can be refrigerated for long periods. But it's not likely to sit around for long. You don't

- molasses
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black
- pepper Two 15-ounce cans
- chickpeas, drained 2 tablespoons olive oil 2 tablespoons lemon juice Ground black pepper
- 4 cups arugula
- 2 cups baby spinach
- Kosher salt 4-ounce log soft goat cheese
- Heat the oven to 450 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper.

In a medium bowl, whisk together the pomegranate molasses, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Add the drained chickpeas and toss to coat evenly. Arrange the chickpeas in an even layer on the prepared baking sheet. Roast for 15 minutes, or until the chickpeas are dried and starting to get crunchy.

Remove the chickpeas from the oven and set aside to cool.

Meanwhile, in a large bowl whisk together the olive oil and lemon juice. Season with pepper, then add the arugula and spinach. Toss to coat.

Broccoli Soup With Cheddar Croutons

Makes about 6 1/2 cups (4 servings).

- 4 thick slices (about 4 ounces) country-style bread
- 2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 1/2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese
- 1 medium onion 2 pounds broccoli (with stalks)
- 1 1/2 teaspoons cumin seed
- 1/2 teaspoon fennel seed
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1 1/2 teaspoons kosher salt, or more as needed
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, or more as needed
- 2 cups no-salt-added vegetable broth
- 3/4 cup water
- 8 stems flat-leaf parsley
- 1/2 lemon
- 1/2 cup low-fat or nonfat Greek-style yogurt

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper. Cut the bread into 1/2inch cubes; the yield should be about 4 cups. Arrange in a single layer on the baking sheet. Drizzle with 1 teaspoon of the oil and toss to coat, then scatter 1 cup of the cheese evenly over the top. Bake for about 12 stalks, then cut them into thin slices.

Heat the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil in a large Dutch oven over medium-high heat. Add the cumin and fennel seed and the ground coriander, salt, pepper, onion and broccoli stalk slices, stirring to coat. Cook for about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables are crisp-tender. Add the broth, water and florets; once the liquid comes to a boil, reduce the heat to medium or medium-low and cook uncovered for about 10 minutes.

While that mixture is cooking, coarsely chop the parsley leaves and tender stems (to yield 1/2 cup loosely packed) and squeeze 1 teaspoon of juice from the lemon half into a small cup. Remove the Dutch oven from the heat; stir in the parsley. Working in two or three batches, transfer the hot mixture to a blender with the center knob of its lid removed and a towel placed over the opening to avoid splashups. Puree until smooth, transferring the soup to a clean bowl as you work.

Stir in the lemon juice, yogurt and the remaining 1/2 cup of cheese. Taste and add salt and/or pepper as needed. Divide among individual bowls, stirring in a bit of water or broth as needed. Garnish each portion with some of the croutons. Serve hot. DON'T TOSS THE PINEAPPLE SKIN; USE IT ON THE GRILL

Associate Press

As I stood at the cutting board slicing slabs of thick skin off a fresh pineapple, a thought occurred to me the strips of skin were an awful lot like the cedar planks some people use to add flavor to food on the grill. Perhaps they could be used the same way.

Cedar plank grilling is pretty basic. You soak a cedar wood plank (be certain they are meant for cooking and have not been treated with anything) in water for a bit, then set your food (salmon and chicken are nice) on it. Place the whole thing on the grill and let it cook. The plank gets charred and infuses the food with an earthy, savory, smoky flavor.

I wondered what would happen if I used pineapple skin, or "bark." And I wouldn't even need to soak it because the skin contains its own juices.

I tried it both on the grill and in the oven and it worked great. The pineapple infused the meat with a delicate sweetness, and kept it moist and juicy. The enzymes in the pineapple also helped tenderize the meat (I sandwiched chicken breast cutlets between two strips of pineapple bark and let them "marinate" for a bit).

The same technique also worked on fish. I tried it with hake with delicious results, though any firm white fish would be appropriate. Just don't prep the fish or meat with the pineapple skin too far ahead of time, as the Juice of 1 lime 1 tablespoon chopped fresh cilantro

Carefully cut off the top and bottom of the pineapple. These can be discarded. Stand the pineapple upright. Cut the skin off the pineapple, removing it in 6 long strips. To do this, begin cutting at the top of the fruit and slice downward, letting the knife follow the curve of the fruit. Leave about 1/2 inch of flesh on each strip of skin. Rotate the fruit and repeat. Set aside.

Place each chicken breast between sheets of plastic wrap and use a meat mallet or rolling pin to pound to an even 1/2 inch thickness. Season each on both sides with salt, pepper, cumin and cayenne. Lay each piece of chicken over the cut side of one of the slices of pineapple skin. Set a second strip of pineapple skin, cut side down, on top. Use kitchen twine to tie the bundles to hold them together. Refrigerate the chicken bundles for about 30 minutes.

When ready to cook, heat one side of the grill to high, the other side to low. Meanwhile, cut the skinned pineapple (the flesh) into thick rounds. Use a small round cookie or biscuit cutter (or a paring knife) to cut out and discard the core from each round.

When the grill is hot, arrange the chicken bundles on the cooler side of the grill. Cook for 15 minutes per side, or until the chicken reaches 165 degrees at the center. During the final 10 minutes, add the pineapple rings and cook for 5 minutes per side.

While the chicken cooks, prepare the guacamole. In a small bowl combine the red onion, jalapeno, avocados, lime juice and cilantro. Gently mix, then season with salt and pepper. To serve, place one chicken bundle on each plate. Set a grilled pineapple ring next to it, then spoon some of the guacamole into the center of and over the pineapple ring. A Milkshake That's Creamy, Sweet and ... Healthier

BY ALISON LADMAN For The Associated Press

Milkshakes are gloriously frosty, creamy, sweet concoctions made from ice cream, syrups and other empty calorie delights.

They're the sort of thing you want to indulge in all the time, but shouldn't. So we set out to make one that would not be quite so bad for you, but still satisfying.

Of course, the obvious route would be to go directly to milkshake's sometimes healthier cousin, the smoothie. Made from yogurt and fruit, this blended beverage lives in gyms and health clubs. But while smoothies are fine, they aren't "real" milkshakes. We really wanted a milkshake.

For the frosty part of our milkshake, we went with sorbet, a frozen blend of fruit and sugar. Though high in sugar, sorbets generally have no fat. Plus, they pack an intensely fruity flavor. You could substitute a low-fat sherbet, sorbet's milkier cousin, but the flavor would not be as strong.

For creaminess, we went with cottage cheese. It may sound unusual, but the curds blend smooth with a rich and creamy texture. Add in a bit of fat-free halfand-half and we had a seriously good milkshake. For a chocolate version, blend 2 tablespoons of cocoa powder into the mix until smooth.

Orange Dreamsicle Milkshake

Start to finish: 10 minutes. Servings: 2.

1 cup orange sorbet (mango also is good)

1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

1/2 cup fat-free half-andhalf

In a blender, combine all ingredients. Blend until smooth. If you prefer a thinner consistency, drizzle in additional half-andhalf while the blender is running until you get the desired consistency. Serve immediately. Per serving: 200 calories; 10 calories from fat (5 percent of total calories); 1.5 g fat (1 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 5 mg cholesterol; 44 g carbohydrate; 8 g protein; 0 g fiber; 320 mg sodium.

Adult Milkshakes Anything but Plain Vanilla

BY MICHELLE LOCKE For The Associated Press

Smooth, sweet, cold and just the ticket for contracting a case of brain freeze on a sweltering summer day. There's a reason milkshakes are a staple of American childhood.

But why should the kids have all the fun?

Sure, strawberry, chocolate and vanilla make fine beverages for summer. But for an after-dinner twist just for the grownups, how about stirring in a little black raspberry liqueur or a dash of bourbon? Bartenders around the country are doing just that as they shake up the seasonal staple.

At Hill Country Barbecue Market in Washington, the maple bourbon milkshake pays homage to the retro diners and soda fountains of the 1950s. Served in the classic style with two straws in one large glass, this shake made for sharing combines a rich blend of bourbon with vanilla ice cream and maple syrup infused with vanilla beans. The whole thing is topped with maraschino cherries in the classic tradition.

In Seattle, chef Walter Pisano of Tulio Ristorante has a "desserts for grown-ups" menu that includes a prosecco float made of honey gelato, honey-infused whipped cream and prosecco.

And how about revisiting that old favorite, the root beer float? At Harry Denton's Starlight Room in San Francisco, bar manager Joel Teitelbaum serves a hard root beer float that includes Zaya aged rum with vanilla notes and Averna, an Italian bitter that adds a chocolate note.

Want to try this at home? Here are a couple of recipes to let you shake up your own summer indulgence.

Purple Velvet Milkshake

Purely for adults, this silky smooth milkshake is perfect for an after-dinner treat. The deep, rich flavors of black raspberry ice cream combine with the barrelaged smokiness of bourbon to make a dark, silky indulgence. Start to finish: 10 minutes. Servings: 2. Recipe by Alison Ladman.

1 cup black raspberry ice cream

1/2 cup vanilla ice cream 2 ounces bourbon 1 ounce Chambord liqueur Fresh blackberries Fresh mint leaves

In a blender, combine both ice creams, the bourbon and Chambord, then blend until smooth. Divide between 2 glasses, then garnish each with fresh blackberries and mint leaves.

Toasted Malt Milkshake

This milkshake combines the creamy richness of the classic malted milkshake with the flavor of a toasted almond cocktail. The result is a toasty, malty, frothy treat. Malted milk powder can be found in the grocer's baking aisle, or sometimes with the coffee and tea. Start to finish: 10 minutes. Servings: 2. Recipe by Alison Ladman.

1/4 cup Ovaltine Classic Malt

1 cup vanilla ice cream 1 ounce amaretto liqueur 1 ounce Kahlua liqueur 1 ounce Frangelico liqueur Finely chopped toasted almonds, to garnish

In a blender, combine the malted milk powder, vanilla ice cream, amaretto, Kahlua and Frangelico. Blend until smooth. Slightly moisten the rims of 2 glasses, then overturn them and dip the rims in the toasted almonds. Pour the milkshake into the center of the glasses without disturbing the rims.

Filling Vegetarian Dish Courtesy of Egypt

BY J.M. HIRSCH

Associated Press

To enjoy authentic koshary, you'll need to travel to Egypt. Or spend a couple hours in your kitchen.

But hoping for some middle ground, I decided to see whether I could craft a weeknight-friendly version of this classic vegetarian Egyptian street food.

But first, some basics of what you're in for. Admittedly, koshary seems like a confused dish - a little Middle Eastern, a little Italian, perhaps a nod to Asian. But once you take a bite, you realize that amalgamation of unlikely influences is what makes it so wonderful.

Of course, there are countless recipes and variants of koshary around Egypt. I've tried to stay true to the basic ingredients and flavors, while speeding up the process.

MS. DADS

Most koshary starts with a base of rice. Layered over that are seasoned chickpeas and lentils, followed by fried onions, followed by a boldly vinegary and spicy tomato sauce.

I saved a bit of time – as well as a few pots and pans by cooking the onions, chickpeas and lentils together. No flavor is lost, and everything gets mushed together when served anyway. I also opted for canned chickpeas and lentils, rather than cooking dried. Few weeknight cooks can afford the time or patience to cook dried beans.

The tomato sauce was the easy part. Saute a little garlic in olive oil and seasonings, then dump in canned crushed tomatoes and let it simmer while you prepare the rest of the dish.

Note that I didn't include an amount for the vinegar used to season the tomato sauce. Traditional recipes of this volume call for 1/4 cup or more of vinegar. That might be a bit much for many people, so I decided it was best for people to add that item as it suits their taste.

Also, while elbow and ditalini pasta are the traditional choices, any variety of small pasta is fine. You also could use leftover cooked pasta. Just skip the browning step and add at the same time as the chickpeas and lentils.

Koshary

Start to finish: 40 minutes. Servings: 8.

- 1 1/2 cups basmati rice 2 tablespoons olive oil,
- divided
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper 1 teaspoon ground dry ginger
- 28-ounce can diced
- tomatoes
- 1 large yellow onion, thinly sliced
- 12 ounces elbow or ditalini pasta
- 15-ounce can chickpeas, drained
- Half of a 15-ounce can brown lentils, drained 4 cups water
- Salt and ground black pepper
- Cider vinegar

In a medium saucepan over high heat, bring 3 cups of water to a boil. Add the rice, cover the pan, then reduce heat to simmer. Cook for 20 minutes.

When the rice is done, fluff with a fork, then cover and set aside.

Meanwhile, in a medium saucepan over mediumhigh, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil. Add the garlic, cumin, cayenne and ginger, then heat for 30 seconds. Add the diced tomatoes and bring to a simmer. Reduce heat to maintain a simmer.

While the tomatoes simmer, in a large saute pan over medium-high, heat the remaining tablespoon of oil. Add the onion and saute until starting to brown, about 6 minutes. Add the pasta and continue to saute until the pasta begins to brown, about another 5 to 6 minutes. Stir the chickpeas, lentils and 4 cups of water into the pasta mixture. Bring to a simmer. CSI's Bunch Signs With Emporia State

BY STEPHEN MEYERS smeyers@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • College of Southern Idaho big man Paul Bunch has found a home – and a potential mentor – after signing with Division II Emporia State.

The 7-foot Bunch, known more for his defensive skills rather than his offensive prowess, will play for former NBA Draft pick, Shaun Vandiver, who enters his second year as head coach of the Hornets.

At 6-10, Vandiver knows a thing or too about post play and CSI head coach Steve Gosar said Emporia State and Vandiver present a great opportunity for Bunch to work on his game for two more seasons.

"He knows Paul; they're both Chicago guys that go back a few years and Paul has the chance to work with a guy who was drafted in

Bunch

Vandiver was drafted by the Golden State Warriors in the first round of the 1991 NBA Draft, but never played in the league, bouncing around a number of European teams before retiring in 2001. Since then, he's been an assistant coach at various D-I schools, most recently at Boise State under Leon Rice in 2010-11.

"He is a big man that can really help Paul develop his offensive game. I'm excited for Paul," Gosar said.

Bunch averaged just 10.5 minutes per game this season for the Golden Eagles, but his impact was felt on the defensive side of the floor where he averaged a team-leading 1.4 blocks. He also grabbed 3.8 rebounds per game.

He averaged 1.6 blocks as a freshman on CSI's NJCAA national championship winning team.

"Paul had the ability to change the game. When he stepped on the court, he just affected the game on defense. Please see BUNCH, S2

CSI Qualifies for College National Finals Rodeo

THE CASPER (WYO.) STAR-TRIBUNE

The College of Southern Idaho men's team saved its best for last.

Entering the Rocky Mountain Region's final rodeo on March 24, CSI was in third place in the team standings, nearly 200 points behind second-place Utah State University.

While Utah Valley University had already clinched the region's top spot, CSI needed to overtake Utah State to earn the No. 2 spot and qualify for the College National Finals Rodeo.

CSI did just that, winning the rodeo with a season-best 955 points while Utah State managed just 195. The victory enabled CSI to finish with 5,152.5 points for the season; Utah State finished with 4,572.7.

Bruin Stadium Getting New Look

Chain-link fence will replace the old wooden fences around TFHS's football field

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A complaint about the "cage" around the Twin Falls High School parking lot is leading to a new look for the football field.

Later this summer the chain-link fence along the parking lot's perimeter will find a new home surrounding Bruin Stadium, replacing the decades-old wooden fences that guarded the school's football field.

"Basically what happened was we had the class of 1966 that came to the school, and they didn't like the fence around the parking lot," said Twin Falls athletic director Mike Federico. "They asked the school why it was there, and we told them we had a lot of problems with kids driving off the curb after school and things like that. They said they wanted to take it down and they raised some money to re-do that."

Federico asked what would come of the fencing, saying he was told it would sit at the district's maintenance facility. He asked whether it could be moved to replace the aging wood fences around the stadium. When it was measured, the difference was only about 100 feet, so the work was sanctioned.

TWIN FALLS • There was a time in her life when McKenzi Baggett hated tennis.

She was 9 years old and just learning the sport from her grandmother Karla Hollifield.

"I thought it was boring. You just hit the ball back and forth, back and forth," Baggett said. "I also wasn't very good, so that's another reason why I didn't like the sport. In every sport I've played, I don't like it if I'm not good at it. It was frustrating."

Along the way, however, the 2012 Times-News girls tennis player of the year learned to love the sport - and became quite good at it.

She picked up tennis again as a freshman at Twin Falls High School, making a varsity doubles team. She transferred to Canyon Ridge as a sophomore and in her junior and senior years at CRHS, Baggett won back-toback District IV singles titles for the Riverhawks.

"My whole family plays and as I got older, I got more and more into the sport and really started to like it," Baggett said. "I love the competition and really like that it's a mental game as well as a physical game."

It is Baggett's mental game that sets her apart from other players, said her Canyon Ridge coach, Tiffany Moilan.

"She's a great competitor. She goes out there and gives her all against whoever she plays and she's really progressed in the last year and matured with her mental game," said the coach. "Sometimes your mental game can be detrimental in wanting to win so badly and she would lose and really get down on herself, but this year she learned to use her emotions and competitive spir-Please see BAGGETT, Sz

FRENCH OPEN

Serena Williams Bounced in French Opener

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS • For more than a decade, whatever the state of her health or her game, no matter the opponent or arena, Serena Williams always won first-round matches at Grand Slam tournaments.

Always.

Until Tuesday at the French Open. Until Williams came within two points of victory nine times, yet remarkably failed to close the deal against unheralded and 111th-ranked Virginie Razzano of France.

Until a theatrical, 23-minute final game filled with 30 points, more than enough for an entire set, featuring ebbs and flows, high-pressure shotmaking and nerves — and even thunderous protests from the crowd when the chair umpire docked Razzano a point. That look-away-and-youmiss-something game included five wasted break points for Williams, and seven match points that she saved, until Razzano finally converted her eighth, 3 hours and 3 minutes after they began playing.

All told, until Tuesday, Williams was 46 for 46 in openers at tennis' top venues, and those encounters tended to be routine and drama-free, befitting a woman so good that the goal - and 13 times, the end result - was a major championship.

Not this time. Now Williams' firstround Grand Slam record is 46-1 after as stunning a denouement as could be in a 4-6, 7-6 (5), 6-3 loss to Razzano on the red clay at Roland Garros.

The fifth-seeded Williams, considered by many a pre-tournament favorite, led 5-1 in the second-set tiebreaker, before dropping the next 13 points in a row. Suddenly, her shots didn't always carry their usual oomph; her court coverage was ordinary.

Parker Leads Spurs to 2-0 Series Lead

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO • San Antonio is halfway to turning the Western Conference finals into a runaway.

Tony Parker scored 34 points, Manu Ginobili added 20 and the Spurs stayed perfect in the playoffs with a 120-111 win over the Oklahoma City Thunder in Game 2 on Tuesday night.

The Spurs set an NBA record with their 20th consecutive victory bridging the regular season and the playoffs. They came in sharing the longest such streak with the 2000-01 Lakers, who won 19 straight before losing to Philadelphia in the first game of the finals.

Those Lakers went on to win the championship and there's no reason yet to think the Spurs won't do the same. They put on an offensive clinic for three quarters, shooting 60 percent from the field and leading by as many as 22 points in the third quarter.

The Thunder made a late surge to get within six points, but Parker, Ginobili and Tim Duncan helped San Antonio put the Thunder in a 2-0 deficit with Game 3 Thursday night in Oklahoma City.

Kevin Durant had 31 points and James Harden rebounded from a rough Game 1 to score 30 for the Thunder, who have lost two straight for the first time since early April. Oklahoma City dropped to 15-4 in games after losses this season.

San Antonio picked up where it left off from the 39point fourth quarter that turned Game 1 on Sunday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Antonio's Boris Diaw (33), Kawhi Leonard (2), Tim Duncan (21) and Danny Green (4) pressure Oklahoma City center Kendrick Perkins (5) as he looks to shoot in the first half of Game 2 of the Western Conference finals.

With sharp passes and hot shooting, the Spurs jumped to a 19-9 lead after the Thunder missed six of their first seven shots and had three turnovers in the first 4 minutes.

Durant settled down Oklahoma City with four early baskets, including a 3-pointer. The Spurs shot 52 percent (12 for 23) in the opening quarter, though, and led 28-22.

Durant was on the bench at the start of the second quarter, and Parker and the Spurs put together a 14-4 spurt to stretch the gap to 13 points.

Russell Westbrook hammered Parker's arm on a drive and he crumpled to the court. That didn't faze Parker, who scored the Spurs' next seven points to keep San Antonio rolling.

The Spurs shot 58 percent (22 of 38) and had 13 assists in the first half. They also cut down their turnovers, committing only six in the first half after giving away 14 in the first two quarters of Game 1.

After taking six shots in the first 9 minutes, Durant managed just four shots the rest of the half.

The Spurs resumed picking apart Oklahoma City's defense with precision passes after the break, scoring on five straight possessions. San Antonio was shooting 63 percent from the field and 64 percent from 3-point range at one point (7 for 11).

The biggest cheer from the crowd came after Ginobili flipped a behind-the-back pass to Parker in the corner for another 3 and the lead ballooned to 78-58.

Oklahoma City called a timeout, and Durant screamed at his teammates in the huddle. He started a modest 6-0 run with a pullup jumper and Spurs coach Gregg Popovich called a timeout, yelling at Parker as he came off the court.

screaming in the huddle, but by the time the teams headed back to the court, he and Parker were arm-in-arm, talking and nodding in agreement.

Late in the third quarter, the Thunder began intentionally fouling Tiago Splitter, a 32 percent free-throw shooter during the playoffs.

That backfired, too. Splitter went 5 for 10 over a 54-second span before Popovich replaced him with Duncan, and Oklahoma City trailed by the same margin -16 – that it did when Thunder coach Scott Brooks called for the "Hack-a-Splitter" strategy.

It may not have showed on the scoreboard, but the Spurs seemed to lose their edge after that.

Parker returned with 10:58 left and San Antonio leading 92-78, but he was shaky on offense for the first time. Gary Neal promptly curled around a screen and swished a 3-pointer, the Spurs' 10th of the game.

Parker, Ginobili and Duncan were on the court together at the 8-minute mark, after the Thunder cut the deficit to eight. Ginobili's floater in the lane was only the Spurs' third field goal of the fourth quarter and put San Antonio up 99-89.

Westbrook made four free throws over the next minute to draw the Thunder within six with more than 5 minutes remaining. The Spurs missed 12 of 15 shots during one stretch, but Parker hit an off-balance, high-arcing jumper with 3:39 left for a 107-96 lead and San Antonio controlled the game from there.

CSI cowboys had the only three qualified bareback rides, finished 1-2 in saddle bronc and captured the top four places in bull riding.

"The kids were healthy and they rode well," Birnie said. "And having Cody De-Mers as our roughstock coach helps out a bunch."

DeMers is a four-time National Finals Rodeo qualifier and won two CNFR allaround titles while riding for CSI in 2000-01.

DeMers and Birnie will have an impressive group of roughstock cowboys competing for CSI at this year's CNFR, which is June 10-16 at the Casper Events Center.

Freshman Tyler Nelson was the Rocky Mountain Region bareback champ and also finished atop the national standings.

"Tyler's one of those kids that's just a gifted athlete," Birnie said. "On top of that, he's coachable and talented."

Other Golden Eagles joining Nelson at the CNFR are bull riders Trent Jacobson and David Hutchison, bareback rider Bradley Dyck and two-event cowboy Orin Larsen (bareback and saddle bronc).

Baggett beat Wood River's Erin Murphy 6-3, 6-1 to win last year's District IV girls singles title, but was overwhelmed at her first state experience, losing in the consolation round after her third match.

She made it a goal this year to not only defend her District IV title, but also improve her standing at the 4A state tournament.

She beat another player from Wood River, Lily Richards, 6-1, 6-2 for this year's title - joking that if you beat a Wood River tennis player, "You must be doing something right."

"They're always really good, so I was proud of myself for winning two years in a row," she said.

Baggett won her first match at state in Boise this year, but lost her second round match, knocking her to the consolation side of the bracket for the second straight year. She beat Minico's Liza Plitkova and then lost to Skyview's Amy Agenbroad 6-7, 6-1, 7-5 to finish seventh.

"State is always way different, there is so competition," much Baggett said. "I did better this year and when I look back at the last two years I'm proud of those two district titles. I'll always play tennis now."

"I've been through so much in my life, and ... I'm not happy, by no means," said Williams, her eyes welling with tears. "I just always think things can be worse."

The 30-year-old American returned to action last year after missing about 10 months because of a series of health scares, including two foot operations and blood clots, a scary stretch she says altered her worldview.

The rowdy spectators in Court Philippe Chatriwould have been er pulling for Razzano anyway, of course, because of her citizenship. But their support was particularly strong because of her recent heartbreak, wellknown in France: Razzano's fiance - Stephane Vidal, also her longtime coach – died at age 32 of a brain tumor in May 2011, a little more than a week before her firstround match at last year's French Open. He had encouraged her to go ahead and enter the tournament, so she did, honoring his memory by stepping on court to play, a black ribbon pinned to her shirt. When she walked out of the locker room for what turned out to be a straight-set loss, she wore a gold chain that Vidal had given her as a Valentine's Day gift a few years earlier. "Honestly, the past is the past," Razzano said Tuesday, when she dealt with leg cramps starting in the second set. "I think now I did my mourning. I feel good today. It took time." Said Williams: "I know of her story and her husband. We all have stories. I mean, I almost died, and Venus is struggling herself. So, you know, it's life. You know, it just depends on how you deal with it. She obviously is dealing with it really well." Williams' exit was by far the most newsworthy development on Day 3 at Roland Garros, where Maria Sharapova won 6-0, 6-0, and Rafael Nadal began his bid for a record seventh French Open championship with a straight-set victory.

Stadium

Bruins' practice field between the school and football stadium, stood for at least half a century, built when there were little more than farm fields around the stadium and neither adjacent street existed.

In recent years, portions of the fence needed to be propped up on a yearly basis, and graffiti was an occasional issue.

The wood fence, which has already been removed, gives way to better aesthetic both inside the stadium and out.

"This is a nice neighborhood," Twin Falls football coach Allyn Reynolds said at Monday night's Shrine All-Star games at Bruin Stadium. "I really like the openness of it all."

Federico said the district is keeping most of the cost in-house, using maintenance workers to take care of the labor. The only major potential outof-pocket costs could be plastic slats designed to shield activities from passers-by.

Reynolds said he'd prefer there be no slats at all, but he acknowledged the district's concerns about facility safety and fans watching the game from beyond the fence without buying a ticket.

"I know Allyn's concern is more for the look, but we're worried about safety of the facility, and even at the Shrine Game we had people parking on Stadium and watching the game," Federico said. "It just depends on where we find some money because it's probably going to have to come out of some building fund. It might come in phases, or not at all."

The new fence is the most obvious part of the complex's summer renovations, but it's not the only aspect. The track will be resurfaced next month, at an estimated cost of $61,000, and the district is still hoping to upgrade the visiting fans' bleachers with ramps for disability access.

Washington's Ian Desmond is out at second as Miami shortstop Jose Reyes throws to first to retire Rick Ankiel and complete a double play in the seventh inning of their game Tuesday.

Marlins Break Club Month Record for W's

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI • Anibal Sanchez allowed only an unearned run in seven innings to remain unbeaten in 19 starts against Washington, and the Miami Marlins beat the Nationals 3-1 Tuesday night to break the franchise record for victories in a month.

The Marlins are 20-8 since May 1, best in the majors, and they're six games above .500 for the first time since last June 4.

BRAVES 5, CARDINALS 4 ATLANTA • Dan Uggla hit a three-run homer, Michael Bourn also went deep and the Braves snapped their longest losing streak in more than two years, holding off the Cardinals after an eight-game skid.

CUBS 5, PADRES 3

CHICAGO • Alfonso Sorihomered, ano Jeff Samardzija struck out eight in seven innings and the Cubs beat the Padres.

METS 6, PHILLIES 3 NEW YORK • Jeremy

Hefner earned his first victory in the majors, high-

American League

WHITE SOX 7, RAYS 2 ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. • Philip Humber won for the first time since throwing a perfect game in April, helping Chicago extend its winning streak to seven games.

MARINERS 10, RANGERS 3

ARLINGTON, Texas • John Jaso drove in three runs, Jason Vargas pitched into the seventh inning and Seattle beat Texas to snap a five-game losing streak.

RED SOX 6, TIGERS 3

BOSTON • David Ortiz homered and hit two doubles, and Boston moved above .500 for the first time this season, tagging Justin Verlander for 10 hits in a win over Detroit.

BLUE JAYS 8, ORIOLES 6 TORONTO • Brett Lawrie had three hits and three RBIs, and Ricky Romero won for the seventh time in nine starts against Baltimore to lead Toronto.

Phillies' Halladay Out 6 to 8 Weeks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Philadelphia Phillies ace Roy Halladay is expected to miss six to eight weeks because of a strained right shoulder, the latest major setback for the five-time NL East champions.

Halladay was put on the 15-day disabled list Tuesday, two days after he was hit hard and pulled from a start in St. Louis after just two innings because of shoulder soreness.

The two-time Cy Young winner will be shut down for a minimum of three weeks, then work toward rejoining the rotation, Phillies assistant general manager Scott Proefrock said.

Proefrock said tests done in Philadelphia indicated Halladay doesn't need surgery to recover and that the injury doesn't affect his rotator cuff.

"We hate to have him down, but it's nothing that requires anything other than rest," Proefrock said.

Halladay is 4-5 with a 3.98 ERA in 11 starts. He has pitched at least 220 innings in each of the past six seasons, and four times led the league in innings. His 721-3 innings this year tied Houston's Wandy Rodriguez for the NL lead.

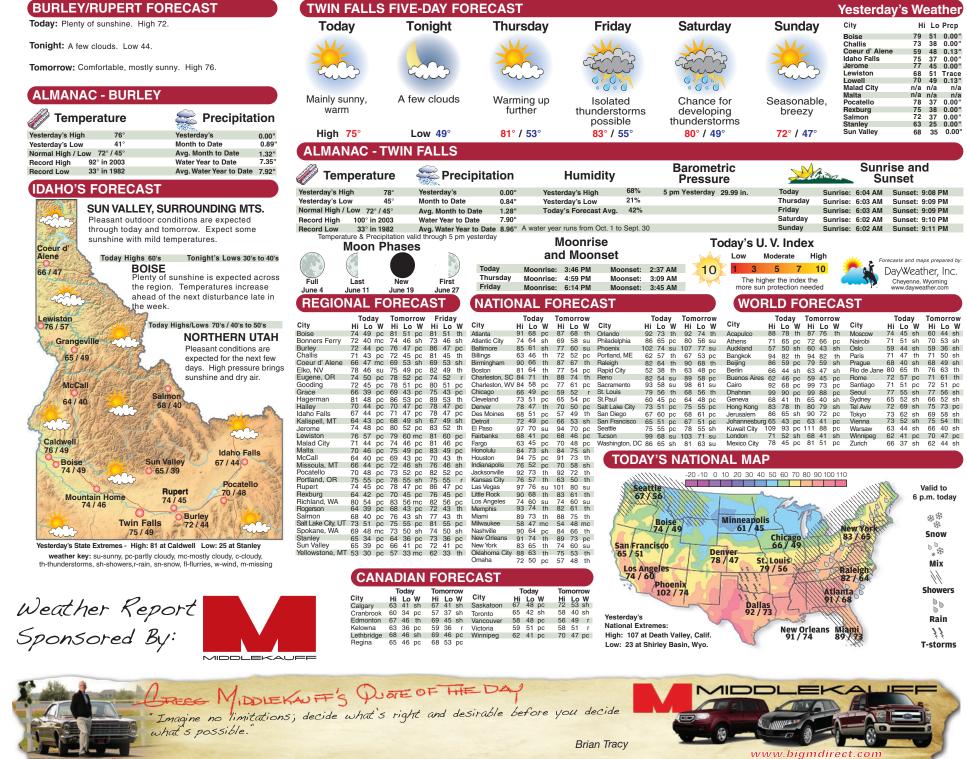

The move with Halladay, which came two years to the day since he pitched a perfect game in Florida, was made retroactive to Monday. Catcher Erik Kratz was recalled from Triple-A Lehigh Valley.

Minutes before the injury was announced as a Grade I/Grade II strain of the latissimus dorsi, Phillies manager Charlie Manuel said he thought Halladay needed a break.

Halladay has "thrown a lot of bullets over his career," Manuel said, suggesting the 35-year-old pitcher could step back for a bit and still be dominant. The durable Halladay had not been on the DL because of shoulder trouble since 2004.

Unlikely Duo: Kings, Devils Set for Stanley Cup Final

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEWARK, N.J. • A little less than two years after battling for the services of high-scoring free agent forward Ilya Kovalchuk, the New Jersey Devils and Los Angeles Kings are going after a bigger prize the Stanley Cup.

To tell the truth, hardly anyone picked the Devils and Kings to get this far.

The odds were lottery like, and the teams beat them with authority in reaching a series that will open Wednesday at the Prudential Center.

"You hear it every year, but it doesn't get old: Once you make it in, you have a chance

"It's all about winning here, and eliminating distractions and doing what it takes to be successful," said Brodeur, who led the Devils to Cups in 1995, 2000 and 2003. "That's worked for us this year, and really my entire career. For me, to be a part of that is great. To come to the rink every day during my career, knowing we had a chance to win every night is something special.

To start, this is an East-West series featuring two of the nation's biggest media markets in Los Angeles and the New York metropolitan area.

But the Kings and Devils also present great story lines.

Los Angeles, which heavily courted Kovalchuk in free agency, is making only its second appearance in a Cup final, having lost in 1993 to Montreal. The Kings are back, though, after a midseason shakeup that saw Sutter replace Terry Murray just before Christmas and a late trade that added skilled scorer Jeff Carter to the lineup. Still, they didn't clinch a playoff berth until the final week of the season.

I'll Have Another Trainer Responds to Chenery Criticism

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Doug O'Neill says he's dismayed that Secretariat's former owner criticized the connections of Triple Crown candidate I'll Have Another for employing him as the horse's trainer.

He thinks Penny Chenery would change her mind if she were to see him work.

"It's disappointing because of how much respect I have for Mrs. Chenery," O'Neill said Tuesday. "I would love to have her hang out with me for a week and would stress to her, 'Don't believe everything that is written? "

O'Neill has been fined four times and currently faces a 45-day suspension because one of his horses was found to have an excess level of total carbon dioxide following a race – frequently a sign of an illegal practice known as milkshaking.

However, the California Horse Racing Board agreed with O'Neill that his horse in that 2010 race at Del Mar had not been fed a mixture of bicarbonate of soda, sugar and electrolytes that enhances performance and combats fatigue. The board did not indicate what might have caused the excess level.

The 90-year-old Chenery, one of the most respected figures in thoroughbred racing, questioned why J. Paul Reddam would work with O'Neill in an article published by The Atlantic magazine.

"I think it is regrettable. And it isn't the horse's fault and this is probably a very good horse," Chenery said. "I don't know Mr. Reddam personally, but I think he should be embarrassed that the trainer he has chosen does not have a clean record."

O'Neill continues to insist that he abides by the rules. He believes Chenery would approve of his operation if she was more familiar with it.

"I think she'd be happy with the way things happen around the barn," he said.

I'll Have Another, bidding to become the 12th Triple Crown champion and the first since Affirmed in 1978, turned in another strong gallop Tuesday morning at Belmont Park. He finished so powerfully that his final three furlongs resembled a workout.

NOTICE

The Department of Health and Welfare is seeking to identify community-based nonprofits and government agencies that show the interest, ability and financial stability to implement and operate a Housing First program for homeless families with children in Idaho. This Housing First program would serve the purpose to house families, provide them with basic household furnishings, and provide them with the resources necessary to find sustainable employment. Through Intense Case Management provided by the selected agency, families should be able to pay their own rent within six months and attain the ultimate goal of self sufficiency.

The agency implementing the Housing First program will provide housing and basic household furnishings; resources to obtain and maintain employment; and hands on case management. Subgrantees spending $500,000.00 or more in federal funds during the subgrantee's fiscal year shall have an audit performed in accordance with Circular A-133 and provide proof.

The Department will award up to $260,000 per year to the successful agency. Awards may be made to multiple agencies. Each subgrant will be awarded for up to a 3-year period. Continuation and/or expansion of Housing First subgrants will be dependent on success of the existing contract and the availability of federal funding. Funding for this program comes from the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) Block Grant CFDA# 93.558.

Applications to apply for a Housing First subgrant may be obtained Health Welfare at and website: http://healthandwelfare.idaho.gov/FoodCashAssistance/CashAs sistance/CashAssistanceforFamilies/tabid/172/Default.aspx.

On May 30, 1922, the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., was dedicated in a ceremony attended by President Warren G. Harding, Chief Justice William Howard Taft and Robert Todd Lincoln.

${f T}{f O}{f D}{f A}{f Y}$ IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1431, Joan of Arc, condemned as a heretic, was burned at the stake in Rouen, France.

In 1883, 12 people were trampled to death in a stampede sparked by a rumor that the recently opened Brooklyn Bridge was in danger of collapsing.

In 1911, the first Indy 500 took place at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway; the winner was Ray Harroun, who drove a Marmon Wasp for more than 61/2 hours at an average speed of 74.6 mph and collected a prize of $10,000.

In 1912, aviation pioneer Wilbur Wright, 45, died in Dayton, Ohio, of typhoid fever more than eight years after he and his brother, Orville, launched their first airplane.

In 1937, ten people were killed when police fired on steelworkers demonstrating near the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago.

In 1943, American forces secured the Aleutian island of Attu from the Japanese during World War II.

In 1958, unidentified American service members killed in World War II and the Korean War were interred in the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1962, Benjamin Britten's War Requiem had its world premiere at the new Coventry Cathedral in England.

In 1971, the American space probe Mariner 9 blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla. on a journey to Mars.

In 1972, three members of the Japanese Red Army opened fire at Lod Airport in Tel Aviv, Israel, killing 26 people. Two attackers died; the third was captured.

In 1981, the president of Bangladesh, Ziaur Rahman, was assassinated in a failed military coup.

In 2005, American teenager Natalee Holloway was last seen leaving a bar in Aruba before vanishing; her fate remains unknown, although Joran van der Sloot remains the prime suspect in her disappearance. Ten years ago: A solemn, wordless ceremony marked the end of the agonizing cleanup at Ground Zero in New York, 81/2 months after September 11. Attorney General John Ashcroft issued new terror-fighting guidelines allowing FBI agents to visit Internet sites, libraries, churches and political organizations as part of an effort to pre-empt terrorist strikes. Nine climbers fell into a crevasse near summit of Oregon's Mount Hood; three died. Five years ago: The Taliban claimed responsibility for shooting down a Chinook helicopter over southern Afghanistan, killing five U.S. soldiers, a Canadian and a Briton. Abdul Rahman Maadha al-Amry, a Saudi being held at the Guantanamo Bay prison since 2002, was found dead, an apparent suicide. One year ago: President Barack Obama selected Army Gen. Martin Dempsey to be the Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman. Germany announced plans to abandon nuclear power over the next 11 years, outlining an ambitious strategy in the wake of Japan's Fukushima disaster to replace atomic power with renewable energy sources. Jim Tressel, who guided Ohio State to its first national football title in 34 years, resigned amid NCAA violations from a tattoo-parlor scandal that sullied the image of one of the country's top football programs.

Knowledge of welding with on-the job training. Be able to pass an agility test and a drug test. Day and night shifts available with opportunity to travel.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

"Who saves his country, saves himself, saves all things, and all things saved do bless him! Who lets his country die, lets all things die, dies himself ignobly, and all things dying curse him!" – Benjamin Hill

In six spades, after winning the club queen in dummy, you should cash the trump ace. If trumps are 5-0, you will need the hearts to be 3-2 on most layouts. As a result, you will cash the heart ace and king and ruff a heart with the trump queen before returning to hand with a trump to play on hearts. All you will lose is a trump.

When both opponents follow to the first round of trump, it would be a mistake to draw a second round. If you do, you no longer have the entries to establish the hearts when both majors are 4-1.

So, cash the heart ace, then lead a low heart to the next trick. If instead you try to cash the heart king, East will ruff and the contract will fail. (When East returns a trump, you cannot then ruff two hearts and draw East's last trump, so you will have to concede a heart trick to West.)

But when you correctly play a low heart at trick three, what can the defense do? You can win a minor-suit shift and return to hand with a trump to ruff a low heart with dummy's queen. Then, since there will still be a trump remaining in dummy, you can draw the remaining trump ending in hand and follow by running the hearts. You will make four trumps, four hearts, a heart ruff and the three minor-suit winners.

ANSWER: Anyone who responded one spade for fear of losing the spade fit should go to the back of the class. It works far better to respond two diamonds, bidding long suits before short ones, then. if necessary, introducing the spades over a two-heart rebid. By making the two-over-one response, you set up a forcing auction and describe your hand more accurately.

DEAR ABBY: I do online dating. For safety, I use an alias. I look much younger than my 43 years, so I went out with a 29-year-old who thinks I'm 33. I have horrible luck with relationships and didn't think this one would be any different. Boy, was I wrong! We have been dating three weeks now.

How do I tell him I'm 43, have two kids he doesn't know about and a different name? Or should I just break it off now?

- INCOGNITO IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR INCOGNITO: Do not "just break it off" with no explanation. Tell the man what you told me – that you have had such poor experiences with online dating that you used an alias, that you "fudged" about your age and that you have children. If it's a turn-off for him, you need to know it before you become more emotionally involved.

P.S. Because many people on dating sites don't tell the whole truth, it's possible he not only won't be shocked but will have a few things to fess up about, too.

DEAR ABBY: My 37-yearold son, "Dave," has two children, a daughter who is 18 and a son who is 10. He's a single parent.

Until she was 15, my granddaughter, "Nicole," was the perfect child. Then she started getting into trouble, stopped going to school, ran away repeatedly and caused our entire family a great deal of stress. She was arrested at 17 for credit card fraud and was caught soliciting.

Dave has decided he never wants to see Nicole again because of her actions. He has given me an ultimatum. Either I have him in my life or I have her, but not both. He doesn't even want me to talk to her on the phone. He says that Nicole "killed a part of him" by doing everything she did, and me talking to her would be like talking to my son's murderer.

Please tell me what you think. I understand how hurt my son is and don't want to hurt him further, but I don't think he should tell me what I can do.

- FLORIDA GRANDMA DEAR GRANDMA: I agree with you. Your son may have written Nicole off, but he does not have the right to dictate that you must do the same. You may see and speak to whomever you wish, and that includes the granddaughter you obviously love. However, by maintaining contact with her, there may be a steep price to pay, not only because it may estrange you from your son, but also because your granddaughter is a deeply troubled girl.

DEAR ABBY: If you're walking down a hallway with a full plate of hot food and someone who is texting comes around the corner and bumps into you, sending your food to the floor, who should clean up the mess? And should the texter be obliged to reimburse the victim whose lunch was lost?

- SPILL SURVIVOR IN SAN FRANCISCO DEAR SPILL SURVIVOR:

Since you are asking me, I suspect that the person who bumped into you took no responsibility for what happened.

People who perambulate are supposed to watch where they are going. That the texter didn't offer to reimburse you for the meal or at least help clean up the mess shows a distinct lack of class. While the texter should have felt obligated to help, there is no way to "compel" someone to do the right thing.

IF MAY 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: If you follow your heart in July, you might find you are challenged to keep one commitment to accept a chance to better yourself. Because people are willing to give you the benefit of the doubt, this is a good time to ask for favors – and since you have Lady Luck on your side, it is a good time to start something of importance. You are wise in the ways of the world and might find that you can be an astute businessperson and achieve your ambitions without being a cutthroat player. Your love life might take wing during July and August.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Being in too much of a hurry can be hurtful. Give yourself plenty of time to reach your destination and stop to think before you speak. If you compete to have the last word and win you may have regrets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be tempted to separate yourself from the herd. Try to force yourself out of your shell. Have a good time, but don't count on proposals and propositions working out if made under these stars.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): When trying to add more zip to your life you can get zapped. Your ideas might get shot down. Enjoy outdoor activities where you can let off steam and use your competitiveness in the best possible venue.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Discipline your mind. You may have been a heavy thinker lately, but someone will lighten your mood. Don't lash out at someone for merely chattering, as people show they care in unusual ways.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Someone may surprise you with sudden changes to plans. Misplaced words can create trouble. Sarcastic remarks or innocent teasing can be misinterpreted. Don't overreact or throw good money after bad.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Avoid arguments by being very clear and precise about what you say. It will be easy for others to take offense at your words or your actions. It is best to put off important discussions until tomorrow.

21): Romantic chemistry is in the stars. Knowing that people trust you and have faith in you means that you have a responsibility to live up to their expectations. Don't play around on the side or have a fling.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get a leash and take your brain for a walk. The world is in the mood for physical exertion, but you may prefer to exercise your mind. Serious studies may answer your questions about life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Although you still feel invincible, you may be alarmed by upcoming trends. You will be made aware of things that concern your mate or significant other. Spend quality time with those you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ambitions could begin to simmer and stew. You might consider making changes so that you can achieve your dreams. Warning: Anything that boils too long eventually evaporates.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could easily be stopped in your tracks if you disobey the laws of attraction. If you feel unappreciat ed or believe you are no longer the center of attention, you might slam the door on the way out. Just remember that it locks.
