Schools Rely More on Reserve Funds

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With tight budgets, some school districts are relying more on reserve funds to keep operations running next year. The Twin Falls School District spent more than $1 million in carryover funds during the past year in order to balance its budget. “We continue to consume what I call our safety net,” Fiscal Affairs Director Bob Seaman said during a Monday night school board meeting. The district started with $2.3 million in reserves at the beginning of the school year. That has dwindled to an estimated $1.15 million that will be available at the start of next school year. And by the end of next year, district officials predict there will be just $532,000 in reserves. Superintendent Wiley Dobbs told the Times-News on Tuesday that reserve funds are getting “dangerously low.” But the district planned to use that funding over the past two years and it’s played a role in avoiding larger cuts. “We’ve been able to weather the storm so far without layoffs and program cuts,” Dobbs said. The Idaho State Department of Education doesn’t have any guidelines for school districts when it comes to using reserve funds. Chief of Staff Luci Willits said the average is for districts to have about one month worth of operating expenses set aside. “Over the past three years, we’ve seen school districts rely on federal money both in stimulus funding and

Idaho Executes Inmate for Murder

BY REBECCA BOONE

BOISE • The six correctional officers, wearing surgical masks and stationed three to a side like pallbearers, lifted the inmate off the gurney and strapped him to the execution table inside the Idaho state prison on Tuesday.

Others attached intravenous lines to Richard Leavitt’s arms and electrodes to the convicted killer’s chest and stomach to measure his breathing and heart rate.

A week ago, no one aside from the prison officials would have seen the state’s lethal injection process in its entirety. But a federal judge ordered it open, siding with more than a dozen Idaho news groups, including The Associated Press, who sued in federal

Those first steps — including the insertion of the IV lines that deliver the lethal chemicals — have become increasingly controversial in recent years as opponents question the efficacy of the lethal drug cocktail and the training of the execution team.

Proponents counter that lethal injection is a painless and efficient way to put someone to death.

Interest in Twin Falls Parking Meters Turns Sentimental

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After years of being treated like a pain in the neck, Twin Falls’ retired parking meters are now in high demand.

Just hours after Twin Falls City Council voted to remove downtown’s parking meters, questions began trickling in from Facebook asking how individuals could get one of the parking meters. By Tuesday, city staffers began taking a list of names of people who called in looking to snag a piece of history.

“I didn’t know anyone would that be interested in them,” said Councilman Shawn Barigar. “But I’ve had a lot of people ask me how they could get one.”

City officials began removing the parking meters Tuesday afternoon. The removal project will take several weeks as workers must remove the poles and fill in the holes with concrete.

In the meantime, city staff has 30 days to come up with possible recommendations on what to do with parking meters.

One option may be to donate the meters to the Twin Falls Community Foundation, Barigar said. Donating them to the foundation would allow it to auction the meters in a fundraiser.

However, the city may decide to sell the meters itself to the public.

“It’s one of those things where we’re still waiting to make a decision,” Barigar said.

Interest in how the city will set time limitations in the now-open spaces is also a concern for one downtown business owner.

Martin Accuses Twin Falls Co. of Gerrymandering

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Nearly a month after the primary elections, precinct boundary lines in Twin Falls County are getting extra scrutiny.

Rick Martin filed a petition against Twin Falls County alleging that county officials gerrymandered precinct boundaries to keep him out of a Republican precinct committeeman position. In the petition, he asks the county to redraw those boundaries.

Previously, Martin lived in the Deep Creek precinct, located in the northwest corner of Twin Falls County. After commissioners approved new boundaries on Feb. 22, he ended up in the Castleford precinct with incumbent Republican precinct committeeman Terry Kramer.

In his petition, Martin alleges Twin Falls County Clerk Kristina Glascock and County Prosecutor Grant Loeb influenced the precinct boundaries to move him out of Deep Creek and into Castleford so he would lose his race.

TWIN FALLS • Idaho Power Co.'s Twin Falls Park will temporarily close while work crews resurface the parking lot.

Starting June 25, the park will close to the public until July 1. Crews will be adding sealcoat, gravel and new stripping to the parking lot. The 10-acre, day-use park is located three miles upstream of Shoshone Falls and is owned by Idaho Power.

DNA Confirms Lost Pup is a Wild Wolf

TIMES-NEWS

KETCHUM • Wildlife officials confirmed that a lost pup picked up outside Ketchum is a wild wolf.

Out-of-town campers found the pup on May 25 and took it to a vet clinic thinking it was a domestic puppy. While officials thought the male puppy looked like a wolf, a DNA test result verified it this week.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game officials have been unable to find the pup's pack. The pup is now being temporarily held at Zoo Boise until officials can find a suitable home accredited by the Association of Zoos and Aquariums.

The pup's health has improved since it first arrived at the zoo.

As a reminder, Fish and Game asks people to leave young animals alone in the wild. This pup was probably moving with the pack, but a possible traffic disturbance might have split it away from the rest of the pack.

IDAHO POWER CREWS HELP SAVE LIFE

TIMES-NEWS

HAGERMAN • Idaho Power work crews came across more than just downed power lines during last week's massive windstorm.

While repairing power line damage caused by the storm, a five-person line crew arrived at a job site near Hagerman during the evening of June 5. While working on the line, Apprentice Lineman Kade Searle spotted a man lying on the ground with several people around him, according to an Idaho Power news release.

When Searle learned that the man wasn't breathing, he grabbed a CPR kit and called to his coworkers. Idaho Power reports that the team immediately started doing chest compressions and provided breath support for the 37-year-old man.

Tim Peterson, Hagerman Rural Fire chief, was one of the emergency responders who arrived on the scene while the Idaho Power crews were waiting for an ambulance. While he declined to release the name of the Hagerman resident, Peterson said that the man was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

The man should be released by the end of this week, Peterson said.

"It makes us feel good when we respond to these types of incidents and the guy survives, most of the time that doesn't happen," he said.

Buhl Council, Chamber Work on RV Park

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

BUHL • The Buhl Chamber of Commerce hopes accommodations at a proposed RV park will lure sleepy drivers to pull over for the evening instead of simply driving on through town.

The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation recently awarded the city and chamber an $80,200 grant to construct a recreational vehicle parking area.

During Monday's City Council meeting, the council held a public hearing and then approved amending its budget for the project, as the funds have to pass through the city's accounting records.

Chamber Board President

Rick Stoltenburg told the Times-News the city signed a memorandum of understanding earlier this year giving the chamber permission to build the RV park on property the nonprofit organization leases from the city.

"The idea is to encourage a small number of travelers to stay in Buhl and they'll only be allowed to stay at the park for up to three nights," Stoltenburg said. "We're not trying to compete. We won't be taking reservations, it'll be first come, first-served."

Stoltenburg said the chamber has marketing for other places travelers can park their RVs overnight, along with literature about area shopping and things to do.

Banbury Hot Springs

owner Zippy Deuel spoke during the public hearing. Deuel was concerned with the chamber's park competing with her business and said the "the principle is what's bothersome."

Monday wasn't the last time the council will consider the issue. Prior to construction, the council must approve a conditional-use permit.

The RV park will be built to the west of the chamber office and feature four spots with water and electricity. It will be available for year-round use, depending on weather. The chamber plans on volunteers and donations of in-kind labor and materials to complete the project within budget.

The chamber expects proposed nightly fees of $20 to $25 a night will offset ongoing maintenance and administration costs.

In other Monday business, the city is investigating whether it has ordinances pertaining to the cleanliness of sidewalks.

Councilwoman Pam McClain said "misunderstanding" leads to many business owners believing it is the city's responsibility to clean sidewalks, which are actually private property.

City staff will investigate any standing ordinance and the issue will be further vetted at an upcoming council meeting.

Clinic to Provide Reduced-Cost Dental Care

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Going to the dentist isn't always fun but it doesn't always have to be expensive.

On Friday, the South Central Public Health District will co-sponsor a clinic to provide dental sealants and fluoride treatments for children at the College of Southern Idaho.

SCPHD is working with the CSI Dental Assisting Program to offer reduced rate dental services for children ages 6-14. The clinic will run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the dental clinic at CSI's Health Science and Human Services building, 397 North College Road. The clinic will charge $5 per quadrant, with a maximum cost of $20.

Health officials encourage children to get sealants because they are an effective way to prevent tooth decay in molars. The chewing surfaces of molars have deep grooves where bacteria hide. The plastic coating from a sealant helps protect teeth from the bacteria that don't get brushed away with a toothbrush.

"Placing sealants is painless and easy for children," said Susie Beem, dental health program coordinator for SCPHD in a news release. "The tooth is cleaned, conditioned, dried, and painted with the plastic sealant."

To make an appointment, call Susie Beem at 737-5946.

Water Releases Increase S.R. Flows

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation will release more water into the Snake River from its upstream dams, according to an Idaho Power news release.

The increased flows will start this week in order to help flush salmon to the Pacific Ocean. The releases are overseen by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Association to keep water levels high enough during the salmon migration to the ocean.

Releases will eventually add 4,000 cubic feet per second to the river below Milner Reservoir, including boosts of 1,000 cfs each Saturday and Sunday.

Idaho Power expects the increased water flow will be dramatic in some parts of the river. One example: About 400 cfs is currently falling over Shoshone Falls. By next week, flows could reach 4,400 cfs, according to the news release.

BURLEY MAN GETS PROBATION IN CITY OF ROCKS ASSAULT

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

Wilferth

BURLEY • A terrible incident that could have ended in tragedy: That's how all parties involved now describe the attack on a Mountain Home couple during their November 2011 camping trip at the City of Rocks National Reserve.

Lane Wilferth, 19, was sentenced Tuesday to up to five years of supervised probation and 30 days in the Mini-Cassia Criminal Justice Center for his role in terrorizing the couple. In April, he pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated assault.

According to court records, Brandon West, 24, was driving a pickup with Wilferth and Marlin Egbert, 23, as passengers when they began harassing the couple. The group shook the couple's car as they slept. Then as the men drove away, Wilferth fired a shotgun in the direction of the couple's car.

"This case provides what could have been a very tragic example of when you combine immature young men, beer, firearms, a pickup truck and too much time on their hands, apparently," Cassia County Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Cannon said at the sentencing.

Cannon said he couldn't imagine what made the young men think it was acceptable or funny to do what they did, or to scare the couple at all.

He said he believed the men now understand the gravity of their actions.

Semi Catches Fire, Blocks Interstate

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • A semitrailer that had apparently struck an abandoned vehicle was destroyed by a resulting fire Tuesday evening, according to Idaho State Police.

The crash blocked all or some of Interstate 84's east-bound lanes for part of the evening as crews attempted to clean up the area. No injuries were reported.

Not all details of the crash were immediately available. But it appeared the semitrailer struck an abandoned vehicle on the highway, catching on fire in the process. An ISP dispatcher said the semi burned completely.

Shortly before 9:30 p.m., one eastbound lane was back open and workers were focused on moving the wreck.

More details were expected from ISP late Tuesday. Visit Magicvalley.com for the latest on this story.

Martin

Loeb

In his court filing, Martin alleges that the Deep Creek precinct is oddly shaped and doesn't follow recognizable boundaries or school districts.

That's not a coincidence, Martin said. The change puts him in the Castleford precinct, where he didn't have the name recognition that might have helped him win his election.

"Nobody knew me," Martin said. "I'm a Buhl boy."

Martin has had ongoing conflicts with Loeb, including accusing him of illegally holding two elected offices. In addition to being county prosecutor, Loeb is the Republican Legislative District 24 Chairman — a party position, not a county position. In 2010, the Idaho Attorney General's office issued a letter saying Loeb could legally hold both positions.

Martin stressed he isn't contesting election results or trying to be petty.

"The people have spoken. I'm not contesting that," he said. "...I'm just simply asking for justice."

On Tuesday, Loeb said Martin's latest accusations are baseless, and flatly denied involvement in drawing precinct boundaries.

In an affidavit, Loeb wrote

"(t)hat I had absolutely no part whatsoever in the drawing of the new Deep Creek precinct or any other precinct boundaries; That I have never known, nor cared where Rick Martin lives or has lived; That there is no political nor other advantage to me which can accrue from Rick Martin living in one precinct or another; that where he lives is truly irrelevant to me in every respect."

Glascok declined to comment, citing the ongoing case.

Judge Michael Crabtree heard arguments for the case on Monday and will soon issue a written opinion, which will determine whether the case will go forward to a jury trial.

"Nothing that Rick Martin is alleging in his complaint is based in any way on truth," Loeb said Tuesday. "I expect the judge will conclude that."

Idaho counties redrew their precinct boundaries following the 2010 census. Twin Falls County contracted with Riedesel Engineering for its new map, which was then approved by the county commissioners.

Fire Claims Hansen Home

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

HANSEN • A fire in Hansen gutted a house Monday night, despite efforts of the Rock Creek Rural Fire Protection District.

Chief Jason Keller said at the scene that crews were called at 8:45 p.m. about the fire at the corner of Third Street East and Overland Avenue.

Though it wasn't clear right away how the blaze started, the fire began in the home's garage before spreading to its attic. The owners of the house called in the fire and managed to escape injury, Keller said. Reports of an explosion in the area might have been a propane tank that was bleeding off, he said.

Tip-a-Cop Special Olympics Fundraiser Begins Today

alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Area law enforcement will be trading in their Tasers for serving trays and their patrol cars for delivery cars this week for the annual Tip-a-Cop fundraiser, which benefits Special Olympics Idaho. Together, area agencies have a goal of raising $5,000 for the organization, which reaches 2,500 children and adults with intellectual disabilities throughout the state. The athletes participate in training and competition in 15 Olympic-type events year-round.

The events kick off this morning at 10 a.m. with the Torch Run from City Park to Perkins at 1564 Blue Lakes Blvd. Between 30 and 40 officers and sheriff's deputies have already signed up from Twin Falls, Jerome, Kimberly and Idaho State Police, said Tracy Bramwell, a Twin Falls Police community service officer in the crime lab. Community members are welcome to join in the run at the Fourth Avenue North side of City Park, Bramwell said. People who join can choose to walk or bike, she said.

Once the group arrives at Perkins, two officers will ascend to the restaurant's roof via fire truck ladder and camp out through Thursday, Bramwell said. The "cops on top," as they're known, will collect donations from people who don't have time to sit down and eat at Perkins, she said.

This year is the 15th annual Tip-a-Cop fundraiser, Bramwell said, and the Torch Run has been going even longer. Officers will be serving meals and collecting tips as usual this year at Perkins from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday. There will also be a silent auction all day, Bramwell said. Some of the items include motorcycle helmets, restaurant gift certificates, golf gear and a wine basket, she said.

While officers have been working for tips at Perkins for years, a new option has been added this year. Several officers will deliver pizza for the Twin Falls Maxie's Pizza during the lunch and dinner rush on Friday.

While the fundraiser has fallen a little short of its $5,000 goal in the past, Bramwell said she hopes adding the pizza delivery component will put them over the top this year.

"We hope it becomes a friendly competition between businesses," she said. Bramwell said people should remember to tip generously, as all the donations stay in Idaho.

How to Participate

Wednesday: Gather at City Park at 9:30 a.m. for the Torch Run. Runners, walkers and cyclists leave at 10 a.m. and there's no cost to join in.

Thursday: Officers and deputies will be working for tips at Perkins at 1564 Blue Lakes Blvd. North in Twin Falls from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. There's also a silent auction ending at 6 p.m.

Friday: Law enforcement will deliver Maxie's Pizza and Pasta from the Twin Falls location and collect tips from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Call 733-3963 for delivery.

education job funding and reserve funding to keep districts whole or to minimize cuts," Willits wrote in an email to the Times-News.

In Jerome, the school district plans to use $700,000 in reserve funds next year. That's up from about $100,000 over the past couple of years.

Business Manager Brian Bridwell said the district will have to make some decisions in the future — such as whether to keep using reserve funding, cut jobs or restructure programs.

In Kimberly, Superintendent Kathleen Noh said next year's budget will be "very tight," but the district hasn't used reserve funds yet.

"It's certainly possible," she said.

Gooding Superintendent Heather Williams said the district plans to use $292,429 in reserve funds next year.

At $2.3 million, the district's fund balance is a little higher than some neighboring districts. Williams said efforts have been made over the past four years to rebuild reserves.

In Minidoka County, 11 teachers received layoff notices last month. And the district plans to use reserve funding to balance next year's budget.

Business Manager Michelle Deluna said the hope is to have $1 million in carryover at the end of this year's budget.

Although Deluna said she's optimistic that the economic situation is starting to turn around, the school district is still running low on reserve funds.

"If something happened, we wouldn't be able to make one month's payroll," she said.

Other Actions

During Monday's meeting, Twin Falls school trustees:

- Approved a nearly $40 million budget for the 2012-13 school year. Trustees Mary Barron and Paul McClintock weren't at the meeting.

Fiscal Affairs Director Bob Seaman said the district received about $400,000 less in state funding this year than in the past. And he expects that number to climb next year.

He cited the 1.67 percent shift in state funding that's being used to pay for Students Come First reforms.

As property values drop, Seaman said there's also less county property tax revenue coming into the district.

"I don't see the economy coming back in a robust fashion for more years than I want to think about," he said.

But the district is adding a handful of job positions next year, including a director of secondary education and at risk/homeless student coordinator.

There weren't any public comments during two budget hearings. Trustees also approved an amended budget for this year.

- Approved a 9.5 percent increase for student lunch prices next year.

- Approved the collective bargaining agreement between the school district and Twin Falls Education Association.

- Approved continuing participation with ARTEC Regional Professional Technical Charter School, which provides programs for Twin Falls High and Canyon Ridge High students.

- Approved a study request from Jim Brown, principal at Bridge Academy. He's a doctorate student in educational leadership at Northwest Nazarene University.

Bankrupt Nampa Broker Sentenced to Prison

CALDWELL (AP) • A former Nampa real estate broker who pleaded guilty to grand theft rather than face trial on allegations he took more than $400,000 from business clients has been sentenced to 14 years in prison.

Jerry Gunstream, 62, was sentenced Monday in 3rd District Court and must serve a minimum of at least two years. He had sought probation based on his having no previous felony convictions and did not pose a risk to the community.

"The factors that favor prison outweigh the factors that favor probation," Judge Thomas Ryan said. "A peni-tertiary sentence is appropriate in this case, Mr. Gunstream. That's now your debt to society."

He was credited with 137 days he's served in the Canyon County Jail. His attorney called that self-punishment because Gunstream could have met the $10,000 bond.

"There hasn't been a day that I haven't thought, and cried, and wondered how I could have done what I did," Gunstream said. "How I could have turned my back on everything I stood for, how I could have disgraced my family and ruined my reputation."

Gunstream pleaded guilty to grand theft in April. He told investigators he transferred money out of tenants' accounts when he needed it to cover his own expenses because his income from real estate sales had declined. He reported $2.1 million in debt when filing for bankruptcy.

His attorney, Alan Coffel, said Gunstream's motive wasn't greed but an "almost biblical" pride.

"Mr. Gunstream is here before this court facing jail time because he couldn't face the ruin of his business," Coffel said.

Gunstream apologized for his actions.

"I'm sorry, your honor, and I'm sorry to everyone in this courtroom," he said. "Sorry" is shallow when you've got money to return, and I know that. I want to be an example of a man who really screwed up, but didn't give up, because I have so much to live for."

One of the victims, Tom Schuveiller, said the money is probably gone for good, though Gunstream said he hoped to make things right eventually.

"Most likely we're never going to see any money out of this," Schuveiller said. "But if this will deter others from doing things like this, then I guess that's the best we can do."

Arrest Warrants Issued for Ex-Idaho Senator

BY JOHN MILLER

Associated Press

BOISE • A judge issued arrest warrants Tuesday for former Idaho Republican state Sen. John McGee after he was charged with disturbing the peace and violating probation terms from a 2011 DUI conviction.

The Caldwell Republican resigned from the Idaho Senate in February amid allegations that he sexually harassed an employee. McGee was the Senate majority caucus chairman.

McGee was charged with disturbing the peace, after he was accused of using profane and offensive language and/or offensive conduct in the presence of an unidentified person on Feb. 7.

"The new charge is based on criminal conduct that occurred in the former senator's office during the 2012 legislative session," Ada County Prosecutor Greg Bower said in a release.

McGee also was accused of violating probation for his misdemeanor DUI.

He was convicted last year after a Father's Day incident in which he drove a car that didn't belong to him. His unsupervised supervision was due to expire July 1.

Magistrate Judge James Cawthon, who oversaw McGee's legal proceedings last year when felony car-theft charges were dropped in exchange for a guilty plea in the DUI, is handling the latest case.

Deputy prosecuting attorney Roger Bourne said McGee's attorney, Scott McKay, has been in contact with the prosecutor's office on efforts to resolve the case. McKay didn't return a call Tuesday.

Following McGee's resignation on Feb. 22, the Idaho State Police conducted a lengthy investigation into McGee's conduct before forwarding their findings to Bower's office in April. McGee, who had survived a confidence vote of senators following the DUI conviction, quit after he was given the choice of facing a Senate Ethics Committee hearing or stepping down.

Prosecutors have asked Cawthon to consolidate the new criminal charge and probation violation charge for plea and sentencing. A court date hasn't been set.

A $1,000 bond was set on each of McGee's charges.

Senators who served with McGee during his four terms were just learning of the criminal charge on Tuesday.

Senate President Pro Tem Brent Hill, who in February suggested involving police in the matter after learning of the unidentified victim's complaint, said he was interviewed by investigators in recent weeks. Hill declined to describe the nature of the allegations against McGee, saying he'd been cautioned by the Idaho attorney general not to discuss the case until it was completed.

"I know some of the accusations that were made, but I really don't know what was substantiated," said Hill, Rexburg.

Hospital Claims Conspiracy by County Officials

POCATELLO (AP) • Officials at Bingham Memorial Hospital in eastern Idaho have filed a tort claim against two Bingham County officials, contending they conspired to oust six hospital administrators and certain hospital board members.

Hospital officials say the negative publicity generated by County Commissioner Ladd Carter and Planning and Zoning Commission Chairman Lee Hammett has caused the loss of at least $250,000 in both revenue and expenses defending against accusations.

The tort claim filed Friday is a precursor to a lawsuit, according to The Idaho State Journal in a story published Tuesday.

The court filing claims that the officials "appear to be motivated by a personal animus against certain individuals within the hospital's administration and other improper motivations." It alleged that the two used "the media and other forms of public pressure" to force out the administrators and change the hospital's board of directors.

The document named the hospital staffers who were allegedly targeted as Louis Kraml, Dan Cochran, Jake Erickson, Jeff Daniels, Justin Dalling and Craig Oswald. Kraml is the hospital's chief executive officer, while Cochran is the chief operating officer. Erickson, Daniels, Dalling and Oswald are administrators.

Bingham Memorial attorney Erik Stidham declined to speculate on possible motives for Hammett and Carter, but said some of those involved had relatives who are former hospital employees.

Blackfoot Police Chief Dave Moore earlier this month said an investigation had started involving allegations of misconduct at the hospital.

A probe by county commissioners alleged that hospital employees were told to hide drugs in cars during an audit because the hospital lacked secure storage cabinets, among other findings.

wheeled, strapped to a backboard on a gurney, into the death chamber. They watched as Leavitt was moved to the table and as three members of a medical team inserted IVs into his arms.

The inmate spoke with them, though witnesses could not hear the exchanges.

They used a blood pressure cuff to enlarge the veins in his elbows, starting with the right, then the left. They cleaned his arms repeatedly with alcohol wipes to prevent infection — in case the execution was called off at the last minute.

A member of the team prodded the inside of Leavitt's arm, feeling for veins. After a moment, he slipped in the needle, sliding the thin plastic catheter that would deliver the lethal chemicals. The process was repeated on the other side.

The team leader placed a hand over the inside of his own elbow, and bent his arm back and forth, to let the executioners watching from another room that Leavitt was ready for the fatal dose of pentobarbital.

Leavitt declined to make a final statement and did not ask to see a spiritual adviser before his execution. He was pronounced dead at 10:25 a.m.

Media groups had argued that Idaho's practice of hiding this first half of lethal injection executions from view violated the First Amendment rights of the public. Brent Reinke, the state's prisons chief, said his agency and its execution team made adjustments to comply with the federal court order to open the process.

"I am happy with how this turned out today," said Brent Reinke, the state's prisons chief, during a press conference.

"I am grateful that we have four media witnesses here to tell you what they saw. Our goal was to make

Relatives of Slain Woman Find Closure in Execution

BOISE (AP) • Relatives of a Blackfoot woman killed 28 years ago by Richard Leavitt say they are finally ready to put the horror and tragedy in the past.

The relatives of Danette Elg issued a brief statement Tuesday, hours after Idaho prison officials executed Leavitt for his role in Elg's brutal and bloody stabbing death.

Family members say they can now focus their memories on Elg's life and find closure after years of living with the fact her murder overshadowed so much else.

Elg was 31 when she was stabbed repeatedly at her home in Blackfoot in 1984. Leavitt was convicted and given the death penalty a year later.

Leavitt was put to death with a single, lethal dose of pentobarbital. At least two of Elg's relatives were witnesses to the execution.

this as professional as possible with dignity and respect, and I believe we met that mark."

Leavitt was convicted in 1985 for stabbing and mutilating 31-year-old Danette Elg. Prosecutors said Leavitt stabbed her repeatedly with exceptional force, and then cut out her sexual organs.

The U.S. Supreme Court rejected his last-minute request to stay the execution, which cleared the way for Idaho to put to death its second inmate in 17 years. In November, Paul Ezra Rhoades died by lethal injection for his role in the slaying of three people in eastern Idaho.

Leavitt had maintained his innocence, but former U.S. Attorney Tom Moss noted that several judges examined Leavitt's case during multiple appeals and none found a reason to justify overturning his death sentence.

Geologist to Receive Award for Yellowstone Work

SALT LAKE CITY • A University of Utah professor will be honored for his work on volcanism and earthquakes around the Yellowstone and Grand Teton national parks.

The Boulder, Colo.-based Geological Society of America says it will recognize Robert W. Smith in November with its 2012 George P. Woollard Award.

The geophysics professor doubles as a coordinating scientist for the Yellowstone Volcano Observatory, which monitors quakes and ground deformation in the Yellowstone region.

A year ago, Smith created an image of a vast plume of magma 60 to 200 miles under Yellowstone. Some of the magma feeds Yellowstone's volcanic activity from a smaller chamber five miles underground.

Smith also picked up the John Wesley Powell award from the U.S. Geological Survey last year.

Man Killed in Farm Equipment Accident in E. Idaho

POCATELLO • Eastern Idaho authorities say a 50-year-old man died after becoming pinned under a tractor in northeast Caribou County along the border between Idaho and Wyoming.

Caribou County Sheriff

Rick Anderson says the accident happened about 8 p.m. Saturday and his body was found by a family member at about 10 a.m. Sunday.

Anderson tells the Idaho State Journal that the man was a longtime resident in the area and was working on the family's farming and cattle ranch, though he didn't have a wife or children.

His name has not been released.

Idaho Supreme Court Won't Reconsider Hart's Appeal

BOISE • Tax-protesting Rep. Phil Hart suffered another setback when Idaho Supreme Court justices dismissed his last-ditch plea for them to reconsider his state income tax appeal.

Hart lost his May 15 primary election.

And on Monday, the Spokesman-Review reported the northern Idaho Republican found out he won't get another shot at convincing the state's high court to deliberate further on the merits of his Idaho State Tax Commission dispute.

In April, justices rejected Hart's contention that he shouldn't have been held to a 91-day deadline to appeal his $53,000 income tax bill.

In this latest decision, justices tersely declined to take up Hart's case again.

Hart, who also faces a big federal tax bill where the Internal Revenue Service aims to seize his home south of Sandpoint, has sought bankruptcy protection.

Boise Man Convicted of 14th DUI

BOISE • A 55-year-old Boise man who was convicted of driving under the influence for the 14th time could be sentenced to life in prison on Aug. 22.

Terry Lee Ash was convicted by an Ada County jury Tuesday. His conviction for being a persistent violator of the law makes him eligible for a life sentence. He is jailed without bond.

Prosecutors say Ash was arrested on Sept. 4 after a single-vehicle crash near Kuna. Court records say his blood-alcohol level was 0.13 percent four hours after the crash. A person is considered legally intoxicated with a BAC of 0.08 percent.

Ash was last convicted of DUI in Canyon County in 2005. His sentence was discharged in October 2010.

Prosecutors say Ash's DUI convictions date back to 1980.

Utah Man Who had Knife Aboard Plane Gets Probation

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • A Utah man received three years of probation Tuesday for boarding an airplane with a 3 1/2-inch folding knife in his briefcase.

David Alan Anderson, 60, pleaded guilty in January in U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City to possessing a dangerous weapon.

Prosecutors dropped a second charge that accused Anderson of threatening police and FBI agents who arrested him.

Anderson was removed Sept. 18 from a Delta Air Lines flight to Las Vegas.

Authorities said he threatened to slit his seatmate's throat in a dispute over a shared armrest.

Anderson was held in jail for a month and then released.

On Tuesday, Judge Dale Kimball ordered Anderson to continue mental health treatment and take medication for what his lawyer says is bipolar disorder.

Trouble started when a seatmate said Anderson elbowed him for an armrest and then put a foot on his leg.

The other passenger politely asked Anderson to "move over."

"If I had a knife, I would slit your throat right now," Anderson replied, according to a federal complaint.

Police said they searched Anderson's bag and found a Gerber knife. They made an arrest as Anderson uttered profanity-laced threats to "cut out your eyeballs and kill you."

He made similar threats to FBI agents, court records say.

"I got a good look at both of you," Anderson reportedly said as two agents took him to jail. "You'll remember this day for the rest of your lives. Your short lives."

Arizona Man Set for Competency Hearing

BY FELICIA FONSECA
Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. • Experts who testified in the case of an Arizona man accused of killing a Utah sheriff's deputy agree that the defendant is mentally ill, but they're at odds over whether he can rationally and sufficiently help his lawyers prepare a defense.

Scott Curley is facing a premeditated first-degree murder charge in the 2010 shooting death of Kane County, Utah, Deputy Brian Harris. Curley has described the shooting consistently, saying he hid under a tree and intently fired an assault rifle at someone who didn't listen to his demands to freeze.

Witnesses for the prosecution testified Tuesday at a competency hearing that Curley can be redirected from delusional beliefs and auditory hallucinations to focus on the case and aid in his defense, which could include a claim of insanity.

But Curley's attorney, Brad Bransky, said his client is intent on revealing his own truth about the shooting, which includes talk of video games, dragons, the cosmos, a trifoce and a test of humanity.

"What if your story is totally psychotic, and you're insisting it's true, and that's your defense?" Bransky asked.

The hearing resumes

Wednesday with final arguments.

Barry Morenz, a mental health expert for the defense, characterized Curley as a paranoid schizophrenic. Although he's highly intelligent, Morenz said Curley is guided by beliefs and hallucinations that he doesn't realize are out of touch with reality.

"I don't think you will be able to successfully dissuade him from his preoccupations and wanting to describe them to the court," Morenz said.

But with changes to medication, Morenz said Curley could be restored to competency.

Morenz did not come to the same conclusion, nor administer the same tests, as the experts for the prosecution.

Prosecutors challenged Morenz's methodology and research, and said he provided no factual basis for his conclusion that Curley is incompetent. Curley's consistency in interviews over 14 months show that he's capable of assisting his lawyers, the prosecution's witnesses said.

"Despite what might happen in Mr. Curley's world, in the jail, in this case, he remains competent to proceed," said James Sullivan, a forensic neuropsychologist who evaluated Curley in March.

Curley had little trouble in a videotaped interview defining or conceptualizing the court process. He also told family members that he understands that he could plead insanity and has a strategy to pursue it.

While he's formally pleaded not guilty in court to the murder charge, as well as charges of aggravated assault on a police officer and a citizen, and burglary and theft, Curley has told authorities and mental health experts that he's guilty.

"He has the delusional system that goes into some explaining regarding what he did, but also in there is his appreciation of wrongdoing," said Steven Pitts, who spent hours evaluating Curley and was a witness for the prosecution.

Curley responded in one interview that he's more likely to take a plea deal, although one hasn't been offered to him, because a lesser penalty "makes sense."

"I'm guilty. If I didn't take an offer, I'd be a fool," he said.

Curley sat silent throughout the hearing, with family members seated behind him in the courtroom. Harris' family members, friends and some sheriff's officials filled the rows on the opposite side.

Harris, 41, was tracking

Curley, who was wanted for burglary when he was ambushed in August 2010, authorities said. Following the shooting, Curley fled on foot into the wilderness along the Arizona-Utah border. He was captured four days later near Kanab, Utah.

"The protections we are voluntarily extending are good for people's health, promote broader access to quality care and contribute to helping control rising health care costs."

UnitedHealth CEO Stephen J. Hemsley in a statement after UnitedHealth Group, Humana and Aetna all said Monday they will continue to cover preventive care without requiring patients to pay a set fee called a co-payment.

OUR VIEW

One-Two Punch Good for Business

We've been critical of the Twin Falls City Council for indecisiveness and a propensity to solicit citizen input and then ignore it.

We questioned what we considered to be waffling on the Canyon Park approval. And we've written editorials for years at each point that the council spent money or requested additional input on downtown parking (studies, parking officers and more than one citizen task force) and then ignored what had been so neatly placed in the proverbial suggestion box.

Remarkably, the council resolved both issues in just eight days. Amazing.

Last week's approval of the final plat for the Canyon Park development paves the way for the next wave of retail growth in Twin Falls. And this week's decision — finally — to dismantle downtown parking meters provides tangible proof that the council is interested in retail economic growth in all parts of the city.

Sure, the Canyon Park approval is more real and the parking meter removal more symbolic, but both are necessary to show that Twin Falls can be an increasingly more robust regional retail hub for shoppers in south-central Idaho and northern Nevada. The City Council's actions infuse a shot of retail adrenaline into a local economy that had already been psychologically bolstered by last year's Chobani announcement and the subsequent decision by Glambia to build a new corporate headquarters and innovation center in downtown Twin Falls.

The Canyon Park and downtown actions occurring in such close chronological proximity to one another should serve as a reminder to all retailers that they will win together or lose together.

It's not smart to pit "the mall area" against the "Blue Lakes corridor" against "downtown." Encouraging shoppers to come downtown accomplishes the very same thing that a new Kohl's store will; It keeps retail dollars in town and keeps them from seeping to Boise, or Salt Lake City, or some further removed vacation/shopping destination. Local retailers will accomplish the most by striving to do so together.

We applaud the City Council's actions on these two issues. They've dealt city retailers present and future a pretty good hand. Now is the time for those merchants to skillfully play, market and promote that winning hand.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

When Choosing a Vet, Emergency Care Should Be Considered

This letter is in response to the article in the June 7 paper regarding animal emergencies. I took an affront to how slanted the article was.

No words or opinions of any local veterinarians were expressed. I have a wonderful vet at Magic Valley Veterinary Hospital. She employs two other vets. These women rotate call for all the needs of their clients. My understanding is that Kimberly Veterinary Hospital also takes calls for their patients. I would not have a vet that did not take emergency calls. This should be a huge consideration when selecting a vet.

Perhaps if this service is not provided with your current vet, then you should consider looking elsewhere. I know my vet does not only work 9 to 5 with no weekends. She cares about her clients and the service they receive. Ask questions before you have an emergency. Make sure your vet is committed to you as a client; if not, find another vet.

Death-penalty Debate Needs a Reality Check

The debate over the death penalty offers a vivid illustration of a tragic flaw in the market of ideas: Strong beliefs attract a lot more attention, and can have a lot more influence, than the truth.

In recent years, five states have eliminated capital punishment, and several others are currently reconsidering their policies. Advocates of the death penalty insist the moves will lead to more murders. They point to a number of studies conducted over the past couple of decades that purport to find clear evidence supporting their view. Experts happily serve up unequivocal congressional testimony, and feed their analyses to lobby groups.

Betsey Stevenson and Justin Wolfers

The reality, unsatisfying and inconvenient as it may be, is that we simply don't know how capital punishment affects the homicide rate. That's the conclusion of the National Academy of Sciences, which typically plays the role of impartial arbiter in these social-science debates. Their expert panel recently concluded that existing research "is not informative about whether capital punishment decreases, increases, or has no effect on homicide rates," and that such studies "should not influence policy judgments about capital punishment."

The panel's conclusions largely echo those from research conducted by one of us (Justin Wolfers) jointly with Stanford University law professor John Donohue. That research replicated and probed the leading studies, finding that even minor changes in how the analyses were conducted dramatically altered the conclusions. As a result, there's "not just 'reasonable doubt' about whether there is any deterrent effect of the death penalty, but profound uncertainty," the authors wrote. Indeed, "we remain unsure even of whether" the effects "are positive or negative."

As big a deal as capital punishment may seem, it's actually quite rare. Since the death penalty was reinstated in the United States in 1976, there have been about 670,000 homicides and only 1,296 executions, a rate of about one execution per 500 murders.

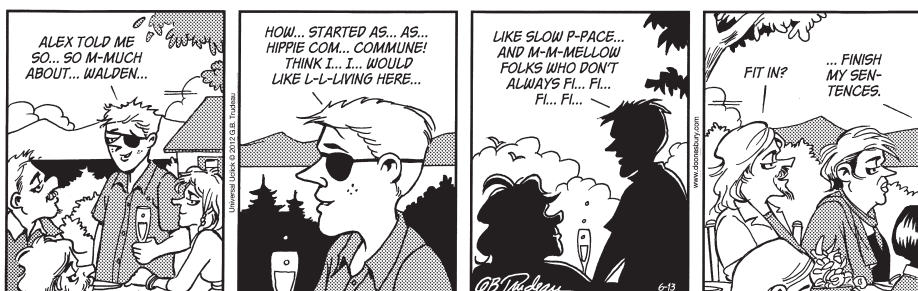

To complicate things further, the homicide rate fluctuates enormously for reasons unrelated to capital punishment. So the correlation between capital punishment and homicide rates can be positive or negative, depending on the specific sample of states or countries analyzed, the sample period chosen, and which other determinants are accounted for.

It's not even clear how to determine whether a state has an active death penalty. Is Connecticut's recent decision to eliminate its death penalty consequential, given that the state executed only one person in the past 50 years? California has issued 951 death sentences since 1976, but executed only 13 prisoners, suggesting that the courts have slowed down the system enough to effectively transform a nominal death sentence into life without parole.

Finally, we have no evidence at all on how would-be murderers perceive the risk of execution if they are caught, which is what really matters for deterrence.

Smoke From Wildfire Blankets Denver

BY DAN ELLIOTT
Associated Press

LOVELAND, Colo. • A northern Colorado wildfire 60 miles away wrapped Denver in a pungent cloud of smoke for several hours Tuesday and complicated the aerial offensive against the spreading mountain blaze, which has killed one person and destroyed more than 100 structures.

In southern New Mexico, a 56-square-mile wildfire threatening the village of Ruidoso damaged or destroyed at least 224 homes and cabins, and that number was expected to increase. Lincoln County workers found only heaps of burned metal and other debris on home sites hit hardest by the Little Bear fire.

"It's truly heartbreaking to see the damage done to this beautiful part of the country," New Mexico Gov. Susana Martinez said after touring the area.

With at least 19 large fires burning in nine states, President Barack Obama called Colorado Gov. John Hickenlooper to assure him that the federal government stood ready to provide personnel, equipment and emergency grants for Colorado and other states battling fire. Obama also tried to reach Martinez, but her office said poor reception in the fire zone kept the two from connecting.

The 68-square-mile High Park Fire in Colorado shrouded downtown Denver, some 60 miles south, in a smoky haze early Tuesday. The smoke temporarily grounded the air attack on the fire, but helicopters and tanker planes took to the skies by midday. The fire was 10 percent contained Tuesday.

Larimer County authorities allowed some residents to return home but issued 25 more evacuation notices in the fire zone.

The wildfires in the drought-stricken West have tested federal resources.

U.S. Forest Service Chief Tom Tidwell announced late Monday the agency was contracting eight heavy air tankers to increase the aging national fleet to 17.

Still, Colo. U.S. Sen. Michael Bennet urged President Barack Obama to sign a bill that would allow the Forest Service to buy as many as seven large air tankers outright. The U.S. House and Senate passed the bill last week.

In Colorado's Larimer County, authorities and family said Linda Steadman, 62, perished inside her mountain cabin. Her home received two evacuation warnings that weren't answered, and a firefighter tried to reach the cabin before fire overtook the site, Sheriff Justin Smith said.

Across the West:

- California: A wildfire that briefly threatened homes in Kern County was fully contained.

- Colorado: The 68-square-mile High Park Fire is 5 percent contained. As many as 800 firefighters are expected on the lines by Wednesday. Ten air tankers and 14 water dropping helicopters are attacking the blaze.

- New Mexico: Nearly 1,000 firefighters and more than 200 National Guardsmen are battling the 56-square-mile Little Bear fire. Containment is 30 percent. More than 500 firefighters bolstered lines around the Gila fire, the country's largest at 438 square miles.

- Utah: Two wildfires blackened 4,000 acres in Fishlake National Forest in southern Utah. A third fire believed to have been sparked by target shooting near Centerville, 15 miles north of Salt Lake City, was quickly contained late Monday.

- Wyoming: A 4-square-mile blaze at Guernsey State Park is 80 percent contained. Six helicopters and 600 firefighters are deployed. Firefighters contained 95 percent of a 13-square-mile fire in Medicine Bow National Forest and completely contained a 1,700-acre fire in Weston County.

LAS VEGAS • State safety regulators in southern Nevada on Tuesday began investigating a fatal construction accident in a water supply tunnel being built at Lake Mead, the latest in a series of mishaps and setbacks at the multi-million dollar project that began in 2009.

A Nevada Occupational Safety and Health Administration investigator visited the 3-foot-diameter tunnel where one man was killed and another injured about 4:30 p.m. Monday approximately 600 feet below ground near the Lake Mead National Recreation Area.

"State OSHA is investigating," Carrie Foley, executive assistant to the state agency's director, said Tuesday. "I can't answer any other questions right now because it is an open investigation."

Thomas Albert Turner, 44, of Henderson, and another worker were alone in a segment of the tunnel when they were hit by exploding grout material after some material became loose, officials for the Southern Nevada Water Authority said.

Turner was killed, while the second man sustained minor injuries, authority spokesman Bronson Mack said. An update on his condition was not available Tuesday.

Are You Subluxated?

Subluxations shut off life supply to the body, as well as cause symptoms such as back pain, neck pain, headaches, breathing problems, bowel disorders and many other symptoms.

Dr. Jill's primary concern is locating the cause of the symptoms, not just the removal of symptoms. Dr. Jill looks to the cause of the dysfunction. Subluxations can be the result of injury, poor posture, or even something as natural as the birth process.

The chiropractic adjustment is the correction of the subluxation to remove the interference in the body and improve the body's ability to express itself normally and more healthfully.

Special Election in Arizona to Replace Giffords

BY KEVIN FREKING AND WALTER BERRY
Associated Press

PHOENIX • Former Rep. Gabrielle Giffords' hand-picked Democratic candidate squared off Tuesday in a special House election in Arizona against the Republican she narrowly beat just months before she was shot. It was a hard-fought preview of the broader fall campaign to come.

Both the GOP and the Democrats were using the race to hone and test their political arguments for the November elections, when everything from the White House on down will be on the ballot.

Republicans, sensing a chance to capture the former congresswoman's seat in southern Arizona, sought to make the contest a referendum on President Barack Obama and his handling of the economy. They argued that Democrat Ron Barber, a former Giffords aide asked by the lawmaker to pursue the seat, would fall in line behind the White House.

Democrats, in turn, played to the senior vote by contending that Republican Jesse Kelly, who narrowly lost to Giffords in 2010, would not protect Medicare and Social Security.

The victor will complete the remainder of Giffords' term. Both candidates are promising to run for a full term in the fall, setting up a possible November rematch in a redrawn district that

George Zimmerman's Wife Charged with Perjury

BY KYLE HIGHTOWER
Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. • The wife of the Trayvon Martin's shooter was charged with perjury Tuesday, accused of lying when she told a judge that the couple had limited funds during a hearing that resulted in her husband being released on $150,000 bond.

Shellie Zimmerman, 25, was released on $1,000 bond. George Zimmerman has pleaded not guilty to second-degree murder in the teen's slaying and had been out on the bond after the April hearing. However, Circuit Judge Kenneth Lester on June 1 revoked the bond and ordered Zimmerman returned to the Seminole County Jail. Lester in a strongly worded ruling said the Zimmermans lied about how much money they had.

An arrest affidavit for Shellie Zimmerman said that records show in April she transferred more than $85,500 from her bank account into her husband's account. The affidavit also said that jail call records show that George Zimmerman instructed her to "pay off all the bills," including an American Express and Sam's Club card.

Zimmerman's attorney Mark O'Mara has said the Zimmermans were confused and fearful when they misled court officials about how much money they had.

George Zimmerman has maintained since the Feb. 26 killing that he shot Martin in self-defense because the unarmed 17-year-old was beating him up after confronting Zimmerman about following him in a gated community outside Orlando.

Tens of Thousands Protest Putin Despite Crackdown

BY LYNN BERRY AND LAURA MILLS

MOSCOW • Undeterred by a sudden escalation in the Kremlin's crackdown on the opposition, tens of thousands thronged Moscow's tree-lined boulevards Tuesday in the first mass protest against Vladimir Putin since he returned to the presidency in May.

The crowd was even larger than at a demonstration on the eve of Putin's inauguration, which disintegrated into violent clashes and ushered in the crackdown. Tuesday's rally ended peacefully, as both protesters and riot police took pains to prevent a confrontation as tensions were already running high.

Putin himself spoke of the need "to strive for mutual understanding and to find compromise." Although in his address on Russia Day, a national

Activists Say Mortars Hit Syria Protest, 10 Dead

BY BASSEM MROUE
Associated Press

BEIRUT • Syrian forces pelted the eastern city of Deir el-Zour with mortars as anti-government protesters were dispersing before dawn Tuesday, killing at least 10 people as government troops kept up an offensive in a coastal province where Washington says regime forces may be preparing another massacre, activists said.

The offensives were part of an escalation of violence in recent weeks that has brought more international pressure on President Bashar Assad's regime faces over its brutal tactics against the opposition. The U.N. accused the government of using children as human shields in a new report. It said children have been victims of detention, torture and sexual violence.

Amateur video of the mortar attack on Deir el-Zour showed some of the dead in a street as survivors screamed in panic and tried to remove their bodies. Other videos showed some of the wounded receiving treatment at a hospital. The Local Coordination Committees activist group and the Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said 10 people died in the shelling.

"It is totally unacceptable and it must stop, and that is why Annan has invited governments with influence to raise the bar to another level, to the highest level possible, and twist arms if necessary, to get the parties to implement the plan."

Kofi Annan spokesman Ahmad Fawzi

Both sides of the 15-month-old revolt to oust Assad have ignored an internationally brokered cease-fire that was supposed to go into effect April 12 but never took hold. The U.S. and its allies also have shown little appetite for getting involved in another Arab nation in turmoil.

Syria is veering ever closer to an all-out civil war as the conflict turns increasingly militarized. Already more than 13,000 have died since March 2011, according to activist groups.

The U.N. special envoy for Syria Kofi Annan has asked governments with influence to "twist arms" to halt the escalating violence in the country, his spokesman Ahmad Fawzi said. Annan is also working to convene a diplomatic meeting soon to discuss the situation in Syria amid worsening fighting between government troops and opposition forces. Earlier this year, he put forward a six-point peace plan, including the cease-fire, to try end the violence.

"It is totally unacceptable and it must stop, and that is why Annan has invited governments with influence to raise the bar to another level, to the highest level possible, and twist arms if necessary, to get the parties to implement the plan," Fawzi told reporters in Geneva. He didn't specify the countries that might be able to pressure Assad into halting its onslaught against the opposition, but Russia, China and Iran are considered Syria's closest and strongest allies.

The two main activist groups reported clashes in areas including the central province of Homs, the northern regions of Idlib and Aleppo and areas around the capital Damascus and the southern province of Daraa.

Feds: Horse Operation Was a Front for Cartel Cash

BY TIM TALLEY
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY • Federal agents raided a sprawling ranch in Oklahoma and a prominent quarter horse track in New Mexico on Tuesday, alleging the brother of a high-ranking official in a Mexican drug cartel used a horse-breeding operation to launder money.

An indictment unsealed Tuesday accused Miguel Angel Trevino Morales, a key figure in the Zetas drug operation, of setting up a horse operation that a younger brother operated from a ranch near Lexington, Okla., south of Oklahoma City. Millions of dollars went through the operation, which bought, trained, bred and raced quarter horses throughout the southwest United States, including the famed Ruidoso Downs track in New Mexico.

"This case is a prime example of the ability of Mexican drug cartels to establish footholds in legitimate U.S. industries and highlights the serious threat money laundering causes to our financial system," said Richard Weber, the chief of the IRS' criminal investigation unit.

Seven of the 14 people indicted were arrested, including Jose Trevino-Morales, who operated the horse breeding company Tremor Enterprises, and his wife, Zulema. Another Trevino brother was also charged.

Prosecutors asked that no bond be set for Trevino-

Morales fearing he would either flee or intimidate witnesses. He declined to comment at the courthouse.

Dozens of federal agents swarmed the New Mexico race track, wearing bullet-proof vests and collecting evidence. At least two horses were taken away.

The federal government seeks the seizure of several horses, claiming they were used to further a crime. Among those sought was Mr. Piloto, the winner of the 2010 All-American Futurity.

A raid was also conducted at the ranch about 40 miles south of Oklahoma City. At least a half-dozen agents wearing fatigues and baseball caps emblazoned with FBI were still at the ranch early in the afternoon, but they declined to comment.

The New York Times first reported the raids and the alleged connection to the Zetas cartel on its website earlier Tuesday.

Campaign

is friendlier to Democrats.

Elsewhere Tuesday, Virginia, Maine, Nevada, Arkansas and South Carolina held primary elections - with most of those states choosing Senate nominees - as did North Dakota, where voters decided to let the University of North Dakota scrap its controversial nickname, the Fighting Sioux.

In Virginia, George Allen brushed aside three conservative Republican rivals in the Virginia primary. Allen's victory set up a November clash with another former Virginia governor, Democrat Tim Kaine, in a campaign closely tied to the presidential race in a state both parties consider vital for victory.

In North Dakota, Rep. Rick Berg defeated businessman Duane Sand in the state's Republican primary. Berg now faces Democrat Heidi Heitkamp in the November race to replace retiring Sen. Kent Conrad. The election is expected to play a critical role in determining which party controls the Senate next year.

In Nevada, Republican Sen. Dean Heller and Democratic Rep. Shelley Berkley easily defeated a slate of political unknowns in their respective primaries. Their fall race also will be one of the most competitive in the country.

In Maine, six Republicans and four Democrats were running to fill the Senate seat being vacated by Republican Sen. Olympia Snowe. The front-runner, former Gov. Angus King, wasn't on the ballot because he's running as an independent.

Of all the races Tuesday, the Arizona House race was the most closely watched, partly because of Giffords' absorbing story and partly because holding onto the seat was important for Democrats if they want to regain control of the House.

The party needs big gains in November to grab the majority from Republicans, who now hold a 240-192 advantage with three vacancies, including Giffords' seat.

Republicans, riding high after a decisive victory in Wisconsin's gubernatorial election last Tuesday, set their sights on Arizona. A victory would give party leaders a chance to claim momentum five months before November and fine-tune their plan to link Democratic candidates to Obama, the incumbent at the top of the ticket.

Giffords, 42, resigned in January to concentrate on her recovery from a gunshot wound to her head. Giffords and Barber were injured in the January 2011 shooting rampage outside a Tucson grocery store that killed six people, including a 9-year-old girl and a federal judge. Giffords largely has shunned public appearances in the race, but in the closing days was stepping out to help Barber.

Outside groups have spent more than $2 million on the race.

Barber, 66, had a sizable fundraising lead in late May, but spending from conservative groups helped reduce the Democratic financial edge.

The Arizona 8th is a rare district that is competitive virtually every election. Giffords defeated Kelly by about 4,000 votes in 2010 when the election focused on immigration and when tea partiers rallied to the tough-talking former Marine.

Penn State Witness Says He Saw Shower Assault

BY GENARO C. ARMAS AND MARK SCOLFORO

Associated Press

BELLEFONTE, Pa. • A former Penn State assistant coach whose account led to Joe Paterno's downfall testified Tuesday that he heard a "skin-on-skin smacking sound" in a campus locker room one night in 2001 and saw something that was "more than my brain could handle."

There was Jerry Sandusky standing naked in the showers behind a boy, slowly moving his hips, Mike McQueary told the jury. He said he had no doubt he was witnessing anal sex.

McQueary, one of the star witnesses in the child sexual abuse case against Sandusky, testified that he slammed his locker shut loudly as if to say, "Someone's here! Break it up!"

Then, he said, he went upstairs to his office to try to make sense of what he had seen.

Sandusky, 68, is on trial on charges he molested 10 boys over a 15-year period. Authorities say he abused them in hotels, at his home and inside the football team's quarters. The former assistant coach and founder of an acclaimed youth charity has denied the allegations.

Paterno was fired last fall, shortly after Sandusky's arrest, after it became known that McQueary had told the head football coach about the shower episode a decade ago. Two months after his dismissal, Paterno died of lung cancer at 85.

McQueary was composed during his testimony, and when asked if he knew Sandusky, he looked right at him with a sharp glance that Sandusky returned.

McQueary's account differed little from the one he gave in December at a preliminary hearing for two Penn State administrators charged with failing to report the alleged episode to authorities. The one difference: He said it took place in 2001 instead of 2002.

Testifying on Day 2 of Sandusky's trial, McQueary said that he was at home, in bed, watching the movie "Rudy," when he decided to go to the football team building. He said he walked into the support staff locker room to put away a pair of new sneakers and, as he opened the door, heard a noise.

"Very much skin-on-skin smacking sound," he said. "I immediately became alert and was kind of embarrassed that I was walking in on something."

He said that he glanced over his shoulder at a mirror at a 45-degree angle and saw Sandusky "standing behind a boy who was propped up against a wall." He estimated the boy to be 10 to 12 years old. He said that the boy's hands were up on the wall and "the defendant's midsection was moving" subtly.

"The glance would have taken only one or two seconds. I immediately turned back to my locker to make sure I saw what I saw," he said.

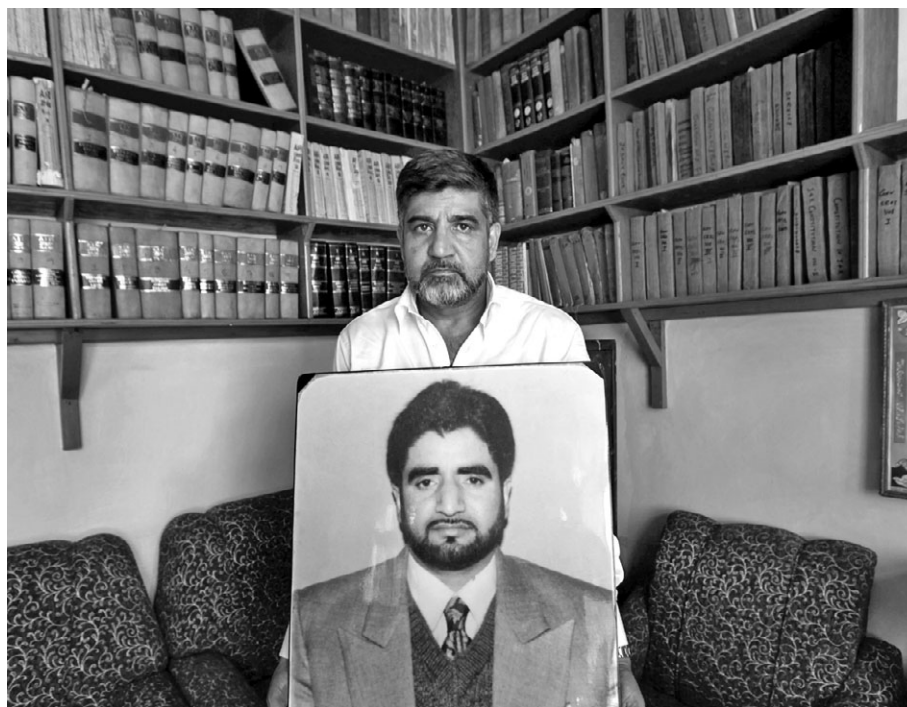

He said he wasn't sure whether Sandusky saw him. After slamming his locker to make some noise, he left.

"It was more than my brain could handle," he said. "I was making decisions on the fly. I picked up the phone and called my father to get advice from the person I trusted most in my life, because I just saw something ridiculous."

He said he was extremely vague with his father, who told him to leave immediately.

McQueary said he went to Paterno's house the next morning and relayed what he had seen, but did not describe the act explicitly out of respect for the coach and his own embarrassment.

He said Penn State administrator Tim Curley called him a week later, and McQueary met with him and another school official, Gary Schultz. They "just listened to what I had said," McQueary testified. A week or two later, he said, Curley called him to say they had looked into it.

Ex-Indian Officer Who Shot Family was in U.S. Illegally

BY GOSIA WOZNIACKA

The Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. • The former Indian army officer who was wanted for murder in his homeland and killed his family in California last weekend had been living illegally in the U.S. for at least five years, federal immigration officials said Tuesday.

Avtar Singh, who killed his wife, two children and himself in their Selma, Calif. home on Saturday, had been arrested by investigators for unlawful presence in July 2007, U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement spokeswoman Lori Haley told The Associated Press.

He was "subsequently placed in removal proceedings. At the time of his death, ICE Homeland Security Investigations was continuing to investigate his case," Haley said in a written statement.

Haley did not say where or why Singh first came to the attention of U.S. authorities, why ICE released him, or whether ICE officials knew of his alleged crimes in India.

Singh was sought with an

Interpol notice for the 1996 killing of Jalil Andrabi, a lawyer and prominent human rights advocate, in the disputed region of Indian-controlled Kashmir.

Andrabi disappeared at the height of protests in the region, where nearly a dozen rebel groups have fought Indian security forces for independence or merger with Pakistan since 1989. More than 68,000 people, mostly civilian, have been killed in the uprising and subsequent crackdown.

A police investigation said Andrabi had been picked up in Kashmir's main city, Srinagar, by Indian troops and killed in their custody. His body was recovered in a local river - he had been shot in the head and his eyes were gouged out.

The probe blamed Singh and his soldiers for that killing and accused Singh of involvement in the killings of six other Kashmiri men.

Singh lived freely in India for years after the charges against him were filed. India did not request Interpol to issue a so-called "red notice" on him until 2009. He is believed to have fled to Canada before moving to California after the Canadian Center for International Justice pressured the Canadian government to locate him, said Hafizullah Mir, Andrabi's lawyer.

Singh, who owned a trucking company in Selma, had been arrested in Selma in February 2011, after his wife said he choked her.

Police then discovered that he was being sought in India on a murder charge, Selma Police Chief Myron Dyck said shortly after that arrest. Dyck said at the time, that he could not keep Singh in custody on the murder charge, so Singh bailed out of jail.

Dyck hasn't responded to calls seeking comment about the 2011 arrest.

Singh was charged with felony domestic violence, pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor of false imprisonment, and was sentenced to three years of probation and a 52-week batterer's treatment program, said Sonia De La Rosa, spokeswoman for the Fresno County District Attorney's Office.

Russia

holiday, he also warned of the dangers posed by attempts to split society.

Putin has taken a tougher stance on the opposition since beginning his third term on May 7, but in recent days the pressure has risen markedly. Some of the most charismatic protest leaders were called in for questioning Tuesday, a day after investigators raided their apartments, carting away computers, cell phones and in at least one case envelopes stuffed with cash. The interrogations are to continue throughout the week. Fines for taking part in unauthorized rallies were stiffened under a new repressive law hastily passed by parliament last week and signed by Putin on Friday.

The Kremlin appeared to be betting that the tougher measures would frighten away the well-educated, civitized protesters, many of them young, white-collar professionals. But those who came out on Tuesday said they were determined to make their voices heard.

"I came just so that I can show this enormous, expansive Russia that there are people who aren't afraid of the laws that the government passes," said Tatyana

Fedorenko, a retired teacher.

Fedorenko, who said her father had spent 20 years in a labor camp as a political prisoner under Soviet dictator Josef Stalin, said the new fines have silenced people in the village where she has a country house.

"The people in that village all hate Putin, but they are terrified of losing what they have," Fedorenko said. "They can't pay that 300,000 rubles (more than $9,000) fine."

The number of protesters has declined since the anti-Putin demonstrations in the months ahead of the March presidential election, which drew as many as 100,000 onto the streets in the dead of a Moscow winter. But a turnout of tens of thousands on May 6 - and again on Tuesday - was still impressive in a country where such political protests attracted no more than a few hundred people only several months ago.

Some of Tuesday's protesters marched under the banners of liberal, leftist or nationalist groups. Others came with groups of friends or co-workers. Young couples pushed baby carriages, and gray-haired men and women supported themselves with canes.

"You can't scare all of us, and if you take away one of us, dozens will come in our place," liberal activist Ilya Yashin told the crowd.

Yashin was among the several opposition leaders who were questioned. He was released just in time to speak at the end of the six-hour demonstration.

"You can't pretend that we don't exist," he said. "A foolish, irresponsible government is fighting the protesters."

In his Russia Day speech, Putin made some unusually conciliatory comments about the unprecedented challenge to his 12-year rule. He said the differing points of view about the future of Russia were to be expected in a "free, democratic country."

FOOD

Send the Kids to Learn Pasta Making

TWIN FALLS • The name of this cooking class says it all: “Kids Pasta Hands-On with the Girls @ Rudy’s.” It’s set for 2-5 p.m. June 19 at Rudy’s — A Cook’s Paradise, 147 Main Ave. W. in Twin Falls. Cost is $35. Ages 8 to 12 will learn how to make fresh pasta from scratch, in three easy steps, and they’ll learn to incorporate herbs and other items to flavor the pasta. Each student will make three types of pasta and take a portion home to share with family. Rudy’s will serve a snack. Students may bring their own aprons to class. This class is limited to 12 students. Sign up: 733-5477.

T.F. Woman Wins Dessert Recipe Contest

Recipe contest winner Renee Thompson of Twin Falls, with Duncan Hines corporate chef Joe DiPaolo.

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Renee Thompson of Twin Falls was among 12 bakers who won food company Duncan Hines’ “Frosting Creations Recipe Challenge” — and a trip to the new test kitchen at the company’s Parsippany, N.J., headquarters.

Thompson’s recipe for Grasshopper Pie Cakepops produces mint-chocolate cakepops dressed up with bright green candy coating and topped with mini creme-filled cookies. Naturally, it makes prominent use of Duncan Hines’ products.

Chosen from hundreds of entries, other winning concoctions included a bubbly Orange Creme-sicle Soda Fountain Cake and a cherry cordial-inspired Cherry Masher Cookie Sandwich. The contest winners from around the U.S. were among the first consumers to visit the test kitchen, where they baked with the company’s pastry chefs and sampled new baking products, a company press release said.

Grasshopper Pie Cakepops

Duncan Hines’ website (duncanhines.com/frostingcreations) features this recipe by Twin Falls’ Renee Thompson.

- 1 Duncan Hines French Vanilla Cake Mix
- 1 cup water
- 1/3 cup oil
- 3 large eggs
- 1 packet Duncan Hines Frosting Creations Mint Chocolate Flavor Mix
- 1 can Duncan Hines Frosting Creations Frosting Starter
- 24 ounces mini creme-filled sandwich cookies (crush 7 ounces; use the rest for toppings)
- 45 cakepop sticks
- Vanilla candy coating or wafers
- Green candy coating or wafers (or mint chips)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease sides and bottom of a 13-by-9-inch pan; flour lightly. Blend cake mix, water, oil and eggs in a large bowl for 30 seconds at low speed. Beat batter for 2 minutes at medium speed, scraping the sides of the bowl often. Pour batter in pan and place in oven. Bake for 25 minutes. Remove cake from oven and allow to cool in pan for 10 minutes. Pour packet of frosting flavor mix into can of frosting starter. Stir until evenly blended. Crush 5-7 ounces of mini sandwich cookies. Mix crumbled warm cake, can of frosting and crushed cookies until they create a soft, moldable dough. Refrigerate dough for 1-3 hours to make rolling and dipping easier. Using a cookie scoop, measure and roll the cakepop dough into balls. Melt vanilla candy wafers, adding enough green wafers to achieve the shade of green you want. Dip cakepop sticks into melted candy coating and press into the cake balls. Allow to set in fridge. When coating is set, begin dipping pops in the candy coating and immediately top with a mini sandwich cookie.

Coq au Vin cooks in the foreground as Hailey chef Chris Kastner teaches French techniques during a June 5 class at Rudy’s — A Cook’s Paradise in Twin Falls.

DON’T HURRY THE CREME CARAMEL

Chef Chris Kastner shared tips for three classic French dishes: Insist on fresh herbs, don’t crowd the searing chicken and take time to enjoy it all.

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Kim Loseke of Kimberly has attempted to make French dishes before, but with lackluster results.

“Any cooking other than so-called American cuisine we need to pay more attention to the terms,” Loseke said. “I enjoy cooking all different ethnic foods, and I am always interested in more of the main dishes.”

So Loseke signed up for a June 5 class in classic French techniques at Rudy’s — A Cook’s Paradise to see an expert at work. About 40 people sat in on a demonstration by chef Chris Kastner, owner of CK’s Real Food, a bistro-style restaurant in Hailey.

On the menu for the night were three of Kastner’s French favorites: Coq au Vin, Salad Frisee and Creme Caramel.

“They’re easy to translate and easy to cook ... but you can screw them up if you’re not careful,” Kastner said.

• • •

In Kastner’s class, simplicity was the theme of the night.

He didn’t learn his craft at a culinary school, but he did learn over years of working in restaurants — and from recognized chef Jacques Pepin. Pepin was invited to a restaurant where Kastner was working, and Kastner said he learned more in three days than he had in three years.

Kastner got his start in the kitchen by washing dishes at the Sun Valley Inn in 1976. When he wasn’t scrubbing pots and hands, he often found a knife in his hand, chopping ingredients for the chefs.

“If you learn enough they slide you into a prep position and you learn a lot,” he said. “I learned the old-fashion way ... it’s learned by doing.”

Paleo Diet Claims Sizeable Following

HAILEY • Carrie Morgridge eats like the cave men did.

Well, kind of. If it’s a nut or seed, she’ll eat it. If it utilizes milk from a cow, resembles a grain or a legume or contains granulated sugar, she’ll wave it off.

Morghridge is among the growing number of people subscribing to the Paleo diet, which dots on meats, seeds, nuts, vegetables and fruits.

“These are foods our Paleolithic ancestors consumed — foods we’re genetically wired to consume,” said Kyl Samway, a personal trainer with 5B

CrossFit, a gym that promotes short, all-out physical conditioning programs of pull-ups, jumping rope and carrying odd objects. “We eat like it’s 10,000 BC. We focus on real foods, that which grow on trees, etc.”

More than 200 Wood River Valley residents follow the Paleo diet to some extent, estimates Morgridge. Many, like Morgridge, were introduced to it by 5B CrossFit.

“I find it helps me feel better. I feel clearer, more energetic. My body doesn’t feel weighted down and sluggish, and I don’t have the sugar highs and lows,” said Morgridge, a mountain biker, road biker, trail runner and skate

A Burger for Dad So Good It Seems Bad for Him

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Dads love grilling. Dads love burgers. Trouble is, good burgers don't always love Dad back.

That's because great burgers often start with fatty ground beef. All that fat keeps the burgers juicy and flavorful as they grill. And then of course there is the temptation to pile on toppings and condiments, like heaps of melting cheese and thick spreads of mayonnaise.

We decided to show our love this Father's Day by offering up a delicious burger that also happens to be healthy.

To keep our burger lean, we went with a 95 percent lean ground beef. You also could go for ground turkey, chicken or pork, but read the packages carefully; many ground meats aren't as lean as you might think they are.

Since we removed most of the fat from our burger's meat, we needed to add moisture. We did this by incorporating vegetables. I know, groan! Vegetables don't belong in burgers.

But really, this is a vegetable you would have put on the burger anyway — caramelized onions. They add tons of flavor, moisture and virtually no calories. You also can make the onions well in advance so they're all ready to go when you want to make burgers. They even freeze well if you want to make a giant batch.

To top off the burger, we skipped the cheese and went with a quick homemade barbecue sauce. Best of all, you can make the sauce right on the grill; just bring a little saucepan out with you and do all the cooking in the same spot. You'll want to make the sauce first so that you know it's ready to go when the burgers are.

Caramelized Onion Barbecue Burgers

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 4 regular burgers or 8 sliders.

1 tablespoon olive oil
4 large sweet onions, sliced
1 tablespoon balsamic

vinegar
1 pound 96 percent lean ground beef
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon cumin
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon smoked paprika
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
3 tablespoons apple cider vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
4 standard or 8 slider whole-grain burger buns

In a large skillet over medium, heat the olive oil.

Add the onions and saute until deep brown, about 20 to 25 minutes. If the skillet gets too dry, add 1 to 2 teaspoons of water as needed. Stir in the balsamic vinegar and allow to cool.

Heat the grill to medium-high.

In a medium bowl, gently stir together the cooled onions, ground beef, salt and black pepper. Form the mixture into 4 or 8 patties, pressing a slight indent into the center of each.

In a small saucepan, combine the cumin, cayenne and smoked paprika. In a small bowl, stir together the garlic powder, honey, tomato paste, mustard, cider vinegar and soy sauce. Bring everything out to the grill.

Place the saucepan with the spices directly on the grill. Stir until fragrant and toasted, about 1 minute. Add the tomato-honey mixture to the spices and stir until simmering, about 5 minutes. Use caution, the handle of the saucepan will get very hot. Move the saucepan to the back of the grill or off to the side.

Add the burgers to the grill and cook for 4 to 6 minutes per side for medium-well. Spoon the sauce over the burgers and serve on multigrain or whole-wheat buns.

Per 1 regular burger: 380 calories; 100 calories from fat (26 percent of total calories); 11 g fat (3.5 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 60 mg cholesterol; 45 g carbohydrate; 28 g protein; 6 g fiber; 900 mg sodium.

A Bite at a Time, Aasif Mandvi Earning Foodie Cred

BY MICHELE KAYAL
For The Associated Press

He's played a charming chef in a feature film that he also co-wrote, and had his breakthrough role in an off-Broadway play about a restaurant. Yet actor-comedian Aasif Mandvi still can barely tell dosas from Devil Dogs.

"I enjoy eating Indian food, but I'm not an aficionado," says Mandvi, best known as "Senior Correspondent" for South Asia (or the Middle East, or anywhere else Muslims may live) on Comedy Central's "The Daily Show." He admits to cooking only when it strategically suits him.

"I usually cook when I'm in a relationship," he says. Yes, he can turn out a basic curry, "but ultimately, I just go to my mom and say 'This is what I did. It doesn't taste right. What did I do wrong?'"

But his lack of skill hasn't stopped him from tackling food topics. Through mid-June, Mandvi, 46, is cruising the South Asian restaurants of New York with Madhur Jaffrey, the grande dame of the cuisine, sampling tandoori chicken and sticky sweet jalebis from Midtown to the boroughs in a special on the Cooking Channel.

"It's as he says, he is not a foodie, he doesn't cook, he doesn't know too much about Indian food," Jaffrey said in a telephone interview. "And that is why he's the perfect person to be on the show. He asks the questions that anyone might want to know, and I give the answers."

But just because he works a takeout menu as easily as an audience doesn't mean he lacks an appreciation for great food. For Mandvi, food — and especially the food of South Asia — can be a metaphor for personal transformation. In his 2009 movie "Today's Special" he cast himself as an Indian-American chef who only connects to his roots and culture when he takes over his parents' restaurant.

"Food represents so many things," he says, "family, love, in some movies it even represents desire, passion, sexuality."

The movie was based on Mandvi's 1999 award-winning one-man show, "Sakina's Restaurant," which he wrote and starred in. He chose the restaurant setting, he says, because he was looking for an Indian venue that all Americans would connect with.

"The film is as much about a restaurant as 'It's a Wonderful Life' is about a savings and loan," he says. "It was just a place."

Tour Sheep Dairy on June 20

TIMES-NEWS

SHOSHONE • Laura Sluder of Blue Sage Farm will host a tour of her sheep dairy on June 20.

Check-in begins at 9 a.m. at the Shoshone farm at 796 W. 520 N., with the tour from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., followed by lunch.

The event is presented by Northwest Center for Alternatives to Pesticides as one of its field days in June.

Sluder raises and milks sheep on her farm and produces feta and manchego-style cheese with the farm's cheesemaker, Jillian Greenawalt. The tour will feature the milking parlor, the cheese-making facility, grazing for weed management, alternative forages and a horse-drawn wagon ride.

University of Idaho Extension educators Christi Falen and Mario de Haro Marti will describe their work with Sluder on forages and cover crop trials, and a whey and ofal composting project.

Cost is $15, which includes lunch. Registration is required by Thursday. To register or for information: pesticide.org or Jennifer Miller, jmiller@pesticide.org or 850-6504.

ASK A COOK: CREME ANGLAIS

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: Can I make a creme anglais that I can pipe on a dessert?

Answer: There are a number of classic pastry creams used in baking. If you've ever had an éclair, you've had creme patissierie — AKA pastry cream. Creme anglais is usually so soft that's more of a custard sauce, usually served over fruit.

In its classic form, it would be too soft to pipe. But you can make a sort of hybrid cake icing with it. You simply chill it, then beat heavy cream until it holds soft peaks and fold that into the cold custard. That would make something thick enough to hold its shape when you pipe it out.

Test Your Salt Smarts

WHITNEY FETTERHOFF
The Washington Post

Which is lower in salt: a handful of potato chips or a whole-wheat English muffin? If you guessed the English muffin, you are incorrect. A whole-wheat muffin (without butter) contains 240 milligrams of sodium; one ounce (about 15) potato chips contains 149 milligrams of sodium.

The muffin does pack a more nutritious punch and will keep you full longer, but if you are on a low-sodium diet, the chips are the better choice, at least in the short run.

In a quiz on Goodhousekeeping.com, you can also compare the amount of sodium in common foods such as tomato soup, a hot dog and bun, cottage cheese, saltines, American cheese and spaghetti sauce. A related story offers tips on reducing your sodium intake, such as choosing alternate flavor enhancers: pepper and lemon juice, for example.

Edible-plant Walk Teaches about Nature's Buffet

TIMES-NEWS

BUHL • Nature's bounties are all around us. You just need to know what to look for.

To help you identify what is edible and what is not on your next hike, Surviving in Style is hosting an edible-plant nature walk at Miracle Hot Springs near Buhl. Participants will learn how to survive on Idaho's natural smorgasbord during a walk guided by Larry Olsen, author of "Outdoor Survival Skills."

Reservations are required at 421-2997; if a significant number of people sign up, the Twin Falls survival business might offer a second class. A donation of $5 per person or $12 per family will go to a local refuge program.

At the end of the walk, participants will sample some of the edible plants during a cookout.

Mirin: What It Is and How to Use It

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Mirin is all about getting sauced.

Because that's where Japanese cooking wine really shines — in sauces.

But first, a misconception. The wretched American product known as "cooking wine" probably has you reluctant to try anything similar. Relax and prepare for a delicious discovery. Mirin is nothing like that.

Though once sipped similar to sake, today mirin is exclusively a cooking wine. The clear, viscous liquid has a clean, yet intensely sweet-salty flavor. And while it packs a solid 12 to 14 percent alcohol, it's really the sugar that counts. Mirin often is as much as 45 percent sugar.

That sugar explains why mirin works so wonderfully in marinades, glazes and sauces. It tenderizes meats, thickens sauces and creates a wonderful glaze.

And chances are you've tried it before, though you probably didn't realize it. Mirin is a key ingredient in traditional teriyaki sauce and often is used as a finishing touch for Japanese soups.

Though often inaccurately called rice wine, mirin is made in part from rice. Rice, koji (think good bacteria in yogurt) and a distilled version of sake are combined and held for two months. During this time, the koji converts the starch in the rice into sugar. A lot of it. The solids then are strained and the resulting liquid is the mirin.

Mirin is widely available in the Asian or international aisle of just about any grocer. Some mass produced versions are made from grain alcohol and sugar, so check labels before buying.

For ideas for using mirin, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/Lb77Ba>

Mirin-marinated Short Ribs with Shiitakes and Egg Noodles

Start to finish: 20 minutes active (plus 1 hour marinating). Servings: 4.

1 1/2 pounds boneless

short ribs, thinly sliced
1 cup mirin
2 cloves garlic, minced
Salt and ground black pepper
1 pound wide egg noodles
2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil, divided
7 ounces shiitake mushrooms, stems discarded, thinly sliced
1 medium yellow onion, thinly sliced
2 red bell peppers, cored and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup soy sauce

In a large bowl or zip-close plastic bag, combine the sliced short ribs, mirin, garlic, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1/2 teaspoon of pepper. Refrigerate for at least 1 hour.

When ready to cook, bring a large saucepan of salted water to a boil. Add the egg noodles and cook according to package directions. Drain and set aside.

In a large skillet over medium-high, heat 1 tablespoon of the sesame oil. Remove the steak from the marinade (reserving the marinade) and add to the skillet. Cook until the meat is half cooked, about 5 minutes.

Transfer the meat to a plate and set aside. Return the skillet to the heat and add the mushrooms, onion and peppers, then saute until starting to brown.

Return the meat to the skillet and add all of the reserved marinade. Bring to a simmer and cook for 4 to 5 minutes.

In a small glass, mix the cornstarch and water, then add it and the soy sauce to the skillet. Stir well and simmer for 2 minutes, or until thickened. Season with salt and pepper.

Spoon the steak and sauce over the noodles. Drizzle each serving with a bit of the remaining tablespoon of sesame oil.

skier. "If I go off it, I get a stuffy feeling or a heavy feeling in my stomach like you get from overeating — it just sits there.

"I've also noticed a difference in other people, too. I see them doing things in the gym that they couldn't do before."

Morgridge is so sold on the Paleo diet that she researched and tweaked recipes, eventually introducing a line of Paleo bakery items at her Hailey Coffee Co. She sells some of those items at Starbucks and Main Street Market in Ketchum, as well.

Morgridge's lineup includes Paleo brownies, carrot cake, fig rolls, chocolate chip cookies, date cookies, apricot bars, banana bread, banana coconut muffins, blueberry muffins and chia seed bars.

"We sweeten them with natural sugar from dates, bananas or sweet potatoes," Morgridge said. "We use almond milk instead of dairy milk, coconut flour instead of wheat flour.

"I never expected to be selling this much Paleo, but there is a demand for it. And it's not just CrossFitters. Other people who are interested in eating healthy are buying them because they're sugar free, dairy free and gluten free."

Heidi Watanabe of Hailey is among those who have bought into the Paleo diet concept. She says she follows it about 80 percent of the time.

"I would just as soon eat a big bowl of yogurt, rather than all the meats. But I've found I sleep so well since I've been on it," she said.

Breakfast for Paleo eaters like Morgridge and Watanabe might consist of eggs with spinach and salsa or spaghetti squash accented with nuts and avocado. Lunch might be a big salad with chicken and grapes. Dinner might feature beef stir-fry.

Samway cautions against blending foods like spinach and carrots into smoothies because, he says, it changes the glycemic index of the foods, prompting the eater to get hungry quicker.

"Chew as much as possible," he said. "Cave man didn't have a Cuisinart. And stay away from processed foods — they mess with our hormone level, spiking our insulin level."

Lizzie LeFevre, a dietitian with St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center in Twin Falls, said there's something to be said for eating natural foods. But she worries that the Paleo diet leaves out some good foods.

HOW DO YOU USE BASMATI RICE?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
McClatchy Newspapers

Question: I have a small bag of basmati rice but don't know what kinds of dishes to use it in.

Answer: Like jasmine rice, basmati rice is valued for its lovely fragrance. In the Himalayas, the name translates to "queen of fragrance."

It's used in India and the Middle East, particularly for dishes such as biryani or pilaf. Unlike Thai jasmine rice, it's not a sticky rice. It stays separate and firm when it cooked.

Still, it is also a long-grain rice, similar to the domestic white rice you might know better. So you can use it the same way you would use any other long-grain rice.

French

After years of working in other people's restaurants, Kastner decided to open his own. CK's Real Food opened in 2003.

As a result of Kastner's background, his teaching style is approachable.

"I don't like to make things that other people can't do. The point is to go home and make this for yourself or your family," Kastner said.

Kastner started with the Coq au Vin — a casserole of chicken in red wine — because it takes the longest of the three dishes to create.

Though the recipe called for the chicken to be dusted in flour and browned, Kastner omitted the flour to keep it gluten free and seasoned it with salt and pepper.

"I don't like the texture of the flour," he said. "We'll pretend we're making it in the old time and we are out of wheat and there is no flour."

When trying to get a good sear on protein, he advised, don't crowd it or move it around. If you do it might dump out the liquid before caramelizing starts and will start to steam instead.

When cooking a French dish, he said, make sure you have fresh, quality ingredients and herbs.

"Their culture and cuisine was highly rooted in herbs such as rosemary, thyme, sage and parsley," Kastner said. "In France, it all grows wild, it's pretty cool. Here you're walking through sagebrush, and there you are walking through wild rosemary and thyme."

Kastner substituted cabernet sauvignon for the recipe's more expensive burgundy, and he opted out of the chicken livers because he didn't know how many in the class would eat them. His audience was introduced to the bouquet garni, a bundle of herbs used to prepare stock, soup or stew. In the Coq au Vin, Kastner used a bundle of celery stalk, carrot, thyme sprigs and parsley sprigs that he removed after all the ingredients simmered and braised.

Tossed with noodles, parsley and butter, Kastner said, Coq au Vin is even better the next day.

Though Salad Frisee is more of a winter and fall dish, Kastner said, it is one of the great salads of all time even during summer.

Frisee resembles lettuce but has a feathered appearance and is known for its bitter flavor. The salad is non-complex with a poached egg on top, with lardons (bacon cut in rectangles 1/4-inch by 1-inch), Dijon mustard vinaigrette and croutons.

"When the egg breaks in the salad that's really

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

Salad Frisee

Recipe courtesy of Hailey chef Chris Kastner; 6-8 salads. Interested in making the classic Coq au Vin and Creme Caramel to accompany the salad? Start with recipes from any French cookbook, such as Patricia Wells' "Bistro Cooking," then take note of Kastner's tips in this story.

- 8 cups curly endive or frisee (big stems removed; leaves torn to bite size)
- 4-ounce slab of bacon cut into lardons (1/4 inch across and 1 inch long)
- 2 cups crusty rustic bread where you're getting the richness from," Kastner said.

The vinaigrette, Kastner said, emulsifies easily by hand without the need of a blender because of the amount of mustard.

"There is a lot of mustard in this salad, and it's not a mistake," he said, as he whisked mustard and vinegar in a small bowl.

Traditionally quail eggs poached in shell are better for a small salad, but Kastner poached chicken eggs a day before. They waited in a bowl of water, ready to be reheated and placed atop the salad. If you are hosting a large dinner with many guests, Kastner said, this can cut back on time spent in the kitchen. Even hard-boiled eggs work fine on this salad.

Kastner tried Salad Frisee for the first time in a Paris restaurant on the east side of Notre Dame.

"I almost wanted to have another one. I was like, 'Oh my God, how do they do that?'" he said.

For Creme Caramel, slow is better. Kastner pre-prepared the dessert for the class, but quickly showed the steps in class. The dessert that was cooked faster and at a higher temperature in a hot water bath was a more eggy version of the buttery and light dessert slowly and evenly baked.

Kastner said one of the torn into 1-inch pieces

1 poached egg per salad
Salt and pepper
For the vinaigrette:
1/4 cup Dijon mustard
1/4 cup good red wine vinegar
1 cup canola or grapeseed oil or other light oil
Salt and pepper

Combine the mustard and vinegar in a small mixing bowl; whisk together and gradually add the oil, whisking as you add it. Season and keep at room temperature.

Have all your salad ingredients ready. In a big, heavy skillet, cook the bacon until almost done.

more important steps is to preheat the oven to 325 degrees and not use convection, which dries out the tops too much. Another tip: When making the caramel never stir it, and moisten the edges of the pan with water using a basting brush to keep the caramel from crystallizing.

"I love French cuisine," said Perri Gardner of Twin Falls, in the audience that night. She has tackled difficult recipes that included raw hamburger, raw eggs and escargot but was eager to try the class's more relaxed approach and simple meal.

"This is really fun," Gardner said. "The custard was amazing. The second one was like mine — mine are always egg soup — but Pour off half the fat and add the bread. Continue to render and fry the bread. The bacon and bread should be done about the same time: the croutons crispy golden and the bacon done but not stone-like. Drain off all the fat and reserve a little in case you think your salad needs it.

Just before tossing and plating, re-poach your eggs for 1 to 2 minutes to warm them. Reheat your bacon and croutons; add a little fat if needed, and pour them over the greens. Add dressing, toss, plate and place the poached egg on top.

I've learned to cook at a lower temperature, longer." She appreciated the pace of the class, too.

"That's kind of the French way of it, time between courses, you cook slow and eat slow," Gardner said. "I think that's nice, and people forget that."

The class combated the misconception that French cuisine is complex and made with heavy ingredients.

"I always envisioned (French cuisine) as very rich," said Desiree Glassinger of Jerome. "It's very simple and light."

One word to sum up French techniques? Reduction, Kastner said.

"It's about intensifying flavors," he said. "It's not a fast cuisine at all ... you take time to touch it and smell it."

Dressing Up and Grilling Angel Food Cake on July 4

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Even for major holidays, I've never been much into spending a lot of time on dessert.

The Fourth of July is no different. Especially since most desserts take me away from the grill and back into a steamy kitchen. So this year I decided to come up with a fast and easy dessert that is festive, delicious and made on the grill.

The trick is using purchased angel food cake. I tart it up by brushing it with melted butter spiked with cinnamon, cardamom, sugar and lemon juice. A few seconds on the grill and my slices of cake get wonderfully caramelized — the perfect host for cool sliced strawberries and whipped cream.

If strawberries aren't your thing, any fresh fruit would be delicious, including mango, kiwis, blueberries and raspberries. Or go crazy and just top the cake with fruit salad. While you're at it, to top the delicious contrasts, top the warm slices of cake with vanilla ice cream.

Spiced and Grilled Angel Food Cake

Start to finish: 20 minutes.
Servings: 8.

1 quart strawberries, hulled and sliced
6 tablespoons sugar, divided
1 cup heavy cream
Zest and juice of 1 lemon
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground cardamom
13-ounce angel food cake, cut into 8 slices

In a medium bowl, combine the strawberries and 2 tablespoons of the sugar. Gently mix, then set aside. In a large bowl, use an electric mixer to whip the heavy cream until soft peaks form. Sprinkle in 2 tablespoons of the sugar and the lemon zest (reserve the lemon juice), then continue beating until stiff peaks form. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Heat the grill to medium-high.

In a small saucepan over medium heat, combine the butter, lemon juice, cinnamon, cardamom and the remaining 2 tablespoons of sugar. Heat, stirring, until the butter is melted and the sugar has dissolved. Use a pastry brush to coat all sides of the cake slices with the butter mixture.

Place the cake slices on the grill and cook for 30 seconds per side, or until grill marks appear and the cakes are nicely toasted. Serve each slice topped with whipped cream and berries.

PART GELATIN, PART STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE, ALL GOOD

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

What happens when you cross a gelatin mold with strawberry shortcake? You get a jiggly trifle.

For a refreshing and so very American dessert for the Fourth of July, we used fruit juice to make jiggly gelatin. We then cut the gelatin into cubes and layered them with cubes of angel food cake, berries and whipped cream. The result is beautiful, delicious and fun.

One tip: to slice an angel food cake, use a slightly moistened serrated knife.

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strawberry Jiggle Trifle

Start to finish: 4 hours (1 hour active). Servings: 8.

4 envelopes (1 ounce) unflavored gelatin (each box contains 4 envelopes)
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
12-ounce can frozen berry blend juice concentrate, thawed
2 cups heavy cream
1/4 cup powdered sugar
2 pounds fresh strawberries, quartered
13-ounce angel food cake, cut into cubes

Lightly coat a 9-by-13-inch baking pan with cooking spray, then line it with plastic wrap, leaving excess wrap overhanging outside the short ends of the pan.

In a medium bowl, stir together the gelatin, sugar and cold water. Let sit for 5 minutes. Pour the boiling water into the bowl and stir to dissolve. Add the juice concentrate and stir. Pour into the prepared pan and refrigerate for 3 hours, or until firm.

When the gelatin is firm, use the plastic wrap to lift it out of the pan and overturn it onto a cutting board. Discard the plastic wrap, then cut the sheet of gelatin into 3/4-inch cubes. Set aside.

Using an electric mixer, beat the heavy cream and powdered sugar together until semi-firm peaks form.

In a trifle dish or a deep glass bowl, place a layer of the angel food cake cubes. Top with a layer of the strawberries, then the whipped cream, and finally the cubed gelatin. Repeat this layering process until you've used all the ingredients. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. • Salvador Michael Batres, 74, died Friday, June 1, 2012, in his home, with his wife, Mary Ann, son, Gabriel, and brother, Jess, by his side in Nashville, Tenn. Sal was born Oct. 23, 1937, in Stockton, Calif., to Jess and Lupe Batres, who both emigrated from Mexico in the early 1900s. Sal attended Edison High School and Stockton College before enrolling at the College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland, Calif., where he pursued his interest in design. He spent several summers working in McKinley National Park, now Denali National Park, in Alaska, where he met lifelong friends. He served two years in the Army as a dental assistant at the Fort Irwin Armored Combat Training Center located in the Mojave Desert near Barstow, Calif. He received an honorary discharge on Aug. 7, 1963.

He worked in general construction and cabinetry and was a journeyman carpenter member of the Carpenter's Union in San Francisco, Calif., and Portland, Ore. He later started and operated his own business designing, building and installing specialty furnishings for commercial interior design firms and private parties in the Portland, Ore., area. Sal and Mary Ann Asson, who grew up in Rupert, Idaho, met in Oregon and were married in St. Andrew's Catholic Church in Portland, Ore., in 1980. Their son, Gabriel was born in Portland in 1986. The family moved to Seattle, Wash., and later to Nashville, Tenn.

He was preceded in death by his sisters, Irene Angoletta and Elvera Batres; and his oldest brother, Richard. He is survived by his wife; son; brother, Jess; and sister, Jessica Escobar.

It can be said that he expressed his love of art and design in everything he did, from cabinetry to cooking and, most importantly, he loved to share it with friends and family. He was a devoted husband, father and uncle. He will be missed.

Services will be held at St. Edward the Martyr Catholic Church in Sisters, Ore. Rosary will be Friday, Aug. 11, and Mass will be Saturday, Aug. 12. Interment will be in St. Winefride's Garden located at the church.

James Allen Vajgrt

Oni Pak Vajgrt

Nov. 20, 1943 - May 14, 2012

PAUL • James Allen Vajgrt, 58, of Paul, Idaho, passed away in his home Sunday, June 10, 2012, just weeks after the passing of his wife, Oni Pak Vajgrt on Monday, May 14, 2012.

James was born in Denver, Colo., on Aug. 28, 1953, to James and Ella Vajgrt. He joined a brother and sister at home and, after the family moved to Idaho, a sister made the family complete. He started school at Pioneer Elementary and graduated from Minico in 1972. He joined the military after graduation and was stationed in Korea, where he met and then married Oni on Apr. 23, 1975. After his time in the military, James and Oni moved to Paul.

He is survived by a brother, Allen Tuma of Rupert; and sisters, Sharon Holt of Paul and Nancy Smith of Beaumont, Calif.

A private graveside memorial will be held at a later date. Arrangements are under the direction of Hansen Mortuary in Rupert.

Andy Hardy Actress Dies

THE WASHINGTON POST

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. • Ann Rutherford, a wholesome supporting actress in Hollywood films of the 1930s and 1940s, notably as Scarlett O'Hara's youngest sister in "Gone With the Wind" and as Mickey Rooney's loyal sweetheart in the Andy Hardy movie series, died June 11 at her home in Beverly Hills, Calif. She was 94 and had heart ailments.

The death was confirmed by a friend, actress Anne Jeffreys.

A demure brunette with strikingly big brown eyes, Rutherford was the quintessential girl-next-door in dozens of films.

SENIOR

Q. What are some safety tips for seniors who are planning to take a trip outside the United States.

A. As you select a travel destination, consider the altitude and climate and how these factors might affect you. Older adults may find that it is harder to recover from jet lag and motion sickness, so plan accordingly. It is sobering to know that injury, not infection, is the most common cause of preventable death among travelers. To make your journey pleasant and safe, follow some simple guidelines. Always wear a seatbelt. Don't ride in cars after dark in developing countries. Avoid small, local planes. Don't travel at night in questionable areas. Wear sturdy walking shoes. Choose brightly colored clothing for evening activities. When crossing streets be aware of traffic patterns that may be different from those you know. Stay mindful of your own limitations. Avoid physical activities that would make you feel uncomfortable or unsafe at home. Be careful, relax, and enjoy your travels.

SALMON WITH CARROT SAUCE

THE WASHINGTON POST

Serve over jasmine rice, if desired. Adapted from “La Tartine Gourmande,” by Beatrice Peltre (Roost, 2012).

Salmon With an Exotic Spiced Carrot Sauce

4 servings.

For the sauce:

1 1/2 cups (12 ounces) carrot juice, preferably freshly pressed
1-inch piece peeled ginger root, sliced crosswise
1 stalk lemon grass, outer leaves discarded, the remaining core thinly sliced
Finely grated zest and juice of 1 orange, preferably organic
1 medium clove garlic, sliced
Juice of 1 medium lime (1 to 2 tablespoons)
1 teaspoon light muscovado sugar (may substitute light brown sugar)
1/2 cup coconut milk (may use low-fat coconut milk)
Dash cayenne pepper
Sea salt

For assembly:

16 to 18 medium stalks asparagus, tough ends trimmed off
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 1/2 pounds skinless salmon fillet, cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes
2 cups cooked jasmine rice (optional)
Leaves from 1 or 2 stems cilantro, chopped (1 to 2 tablespoons)
Sea salt, preferably fleur de sel

For the sauce: Combine the carrot juice, ginger, lemon grass, orange zest and garlic in a small saucepan and cook over medium heat until the mixture begins to bubble gently; cook, maintaining a very low boil, for 3 minutes. Remove from the heat, cover and let it sit for 30 minutes to infuse the flavors.

Add the orange and lime juices and the sugar to the saucepan; return it to medium heat and cook, stirring frequently, until the sugar has dissolved and the mixture begins to bubble gently. Strain into a medium saucepan through a fine-mesh strainer, using a spoon to press the solids in the strainer to extract as much liquid as possible; discard the solids. Stir in the coconut milk and cayenne pepper, and season with salt to taste. Cover and keep warm over low heat.

While the sauce is infusing, bring a large pot of salted water to a boil over medium-high heat, add the asparagus and cook for 1 minute. Immediately drain in a colander and rinse under cold water to stop the cooking and set the color. When cool enough to handle, cut each stalk on the diagonal into 3 equal pieces.

Heat the oil over medium heat in a large saute pan or skillet. Once the oil is shimmering, add the salmon and cook on each side for 30 seconds, keeping the inside rare. Remove from the heat.

Divide the rice, if using, among deep plates or pasta bowls. Top with equal portions of salmon and asparagus. Sprinkle with the chopped cilantro and sea salt. Pour the sauce around the fish; serve warm.

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST; TABLEWARE FROM CRATE AND BARREL

Dinner in 25 Minutes: Kale, Cucumber Salad

BONNIE S. BENWICK

The Washington Post

Even though you might not have had a massage within recent memory, I’m asking that you treat your curly kale to one. The leaves are not stressed, but they could relax a little. Cookbook author Nava Atlas says that a few minutes spent rubbing a bit of salt or olive oil into the leaves yields a crunchy-soft consistency, one that is just right for kale salads.

We’ve used the salt method in this version of the recipe; instead, you could rub a small amount of olive oil on the palms of your hands, then massage the kale leaves for 1 to 2 minutes, or you could drizzle a small amount of olive oil and lemon juice directly over the ribboned kale and massage for 30 to 60 seconds.

Serve with garlic bread. You’ll have about a cup of the dressing left over, which can be refrigerated for up to 3 days in an airtight container. Use it as a dip or stir it into a pasta or rice salad. Adapted from Atlas’ “Wild About Greens” (Sterling, June 2012).

Kale and Cucumber Salad With Avocado-Tahini Dressing

4 servings.

12 ounces curly kale
Kosher salt
Leaves from 12 stems flat-leaf parsley
1 ripe Hass avocado
1 lemon
1/2 cup tahini (sesame seed paste)
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 to 1/2 cup water
1 medium cucumber
1 to 2 medium carrots
2 scallions
Freshly ground black pepper

Strip the kale leaves from the stems; reserve the stems for another use, if desired. Rinse and dry the leaves well. Roll and cut them into thin ribbons, then place them in a large bowl. Sprinkle 1/2 teaspoon of the salt over the kale. Use your clean hands to massage it into the leaves for 1 to 2 minutes, until the leaves soften and their color is enhanced.

Chop enough of the parsley leaves to yield 2 to 4 tablespoons and transfer to the blender. Cut the avocado in half and discard the pit. Transfer the flesh to a blender. Cut the lemon in half, then squeeze the juice into the mixture, being careful not to let any seeds fall in. Add the tahini and cumin. Puree until smooth; add enough of the water to form a pourable dressing. The yield should be about 1 1/2 cups.

As you prep the following ingredients, place them in the bowl with the kale. Peel the cucumber, then cut it in half lengthwise. Scoop out and discard the seeds. Cut the remaining cucumber crosswise into thin slices. Grate the carrot(s) to yield 1 cup. Chop the remaining parsley leaves to yield about 1/3 cup. Cut the light-green parts of the scallions crosswise to yield about 2 tablespoons. Season with the pepper to taste.

Add about 1/2 cup of the dressing to the salad and toss to coat evenly. Taste, and add salt and pepper as needed. Divide the salad among individual plates. Serve right away.

ALMOND BUTTER MERINGUE SHOWS OFF BERRIES

THE WASHINGTON POST

A crisp meringue made richer with almond butter makes a fine platform for berries and cream. If strawberries aren’t available, use raspberries or blackberries. If almonds aren’t your thing, you can replace the almond butter and chopped almonds with hazelnut, cashew or peanut butter and chopped nuts of the same type.

Whatever nut butter you choose, it should contain only roasted nuts and maybe a little salt — no sugar, other sweeteners or emulsifiers. The nut oil will separate in the jar, so thorough stirring is essential.

The baked meringue can be stored in an airtight container for at least 2 weeks. From “Sinfully Easy Delicious Desserts,” by Alice Medrich (Artisan, 2012).

Crunchy Almond Butter Meringue With Berries and Cream

8 to 10 servings.

1/3 cup well-stirred smooth or chunky natural almond butter, at room temperature
Salt (optional)
3 large egg whites, at room temperature
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
2/3 cup sugar, plus more for the cream and strawberries
1/4 cup roasted almonds, salted or unsalted, coarsely chopped
1 1/2 pints strawberries (may substitute raspberries or blackberries)
1 cup chilled heavy cream

Position a rack in the lower third of the oven and preheat the oven to 225 degrees. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

If the nut butter is not salted, add a pinch of salt and stir to combine.

Combine the egg whites and cream of tartar in the large bowl of a stand mixer or hand-held electric mixer. Beat at medium speed (for a stand mixer) or high speed (for a hand-held mixer) until the egg whites are creamy white and hold a soft shape when the beaters are lifted. Gradually add the sugar a heaping teaspoonful at a time, taking 1 1/2 to 2 minutes in all. The meringue should be very stiff. Scatter small spoonfuls of the almond butter over the meringue and use a large flexible spatula to fold the almond butter not quite completely into the meringue; some streaks of almond butter should remain.

Scrape the meringue into the center of the parchment paper and use the back of a spoon to spread it into a shallow shell roughly 9 inches in diameter and with a slightly raised rim. Sprinkle the almonds over the rim.

Bake for 2 hours. Turn the oven off and leave the meringue in the oven to cool. Once it has cooled completely, the meringue can be stored in an airtight container for at least 2 weeks.

For assembly: Transfer the meringue to a serving plate.

Cut the strawberries in half, or into quarters if they are large, and toss with a sprinkling of sugar to taste. Use chilled beaters and a chilled bowl to whip the cream until it is just about to become stiff, then add sugar to taste and whip to stiff peaks. Spoon over the meringue, leaving the edges showing. Top with the berries and serve immediately.

THE TASTE OF SUMMER — A GREAT, BASIC DEVILED EGG

BY ELIZABETH KARMEL

For The Associated Press

When I think about summer, I think about deviled eggs. Beginning with Easter and going straight through September, just about every activity — from camping and cookouts to beach vacations and July Fourth gatherings — can be enhanced by a plate of deviled eggs.

It’s really just a matter of swapping the garnish to fit the activity or mood.

If I am feeling down-homey, I add a little pimento cheese to my basic deviled egg mixture. If I want to spice it up, I add pureed chipotle and substitute lime for the lemon. For the right occasion I’ll even get a little fancy and top deviled eggs with caviar, either the traditional variety or the newer wasabi-infused flying fish roe.

Still, no matter how good embellished deviled eggs are, my favorite remains what I call “straight-up deviled eggs.” They are as advertised — classic and simple. You can use them as a base for any and all flavor mix-ins, or serve them like I do, straight up, simple and sublime.

One of the beauties of deviled eggs is how well they travel. That’s why I call them party eggs. But there are a few tricks to making certain they are sensational.

First, you have to cook the eggs properly. Freshly boiled eggs are key to great flavor and texture. Don’t buy pre-cooked hard-boiled eggs.

The best method is to place the eggs in a saucepan and add enough cold water to generously cover them. Bring the water to a boil. As soon as the water is boiling, turn off the heat, put a lid on the pan and wait 15 minutes. This method really is more like poaching than boiling, and will guarantee a yellow, creamy, well-cooked egg.

After 15 minutes, plunge the eggs into a bowl of cold water. This prevents them from overcooking (and from turning green at the center).

I like to make the deviled mixture right away. This helps the flavors of the ingredients fully meld with the yolk. I am a fan of cutting the eggs in half vertically because I think it is easier to keep all the goodness of the deviled egg mixture in the white. However, for esthetic purposes, you should follow the shape of your deviled egg tray.

The eggs taste better after the mixture has had a chance to sit so that flavors can marry. For that reason, I always make my deviled eggs the day before and refrigerate the mixture in a closed pastry bag. I pipe (squirt) the filling into the whites just before serving or leaving the house. A light hand with the garnish, then you are done.

Straight-Up Deviled Eggs

Start to finish: 30 minutes (plus overnight chilling). Makes 24 halves.

1 dozen large eggs
1/3 cup mayonnaise (I prefer Hellmann’s)
4 tablespoons unsalted butter, softened
1/4 cup strong Dijon mustard (such as Amora or Maille)
Zest of 1/2 lemon
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
Pinch garlic powder
2 to 4 shakes hot sauce
Salt
Smoked paprika or minced fresh chives

Fill a large bowl with cold water.

Place the eggs in a large saucepan or stockpot and cover with cold water. Bring to a boil, cover, then turn off the heat. Let the eggs sit for 15 minutes. Drain the eggs, then transfer them to the bowl of cold water. Let them sit for about 10 minutes, or until cool to the touch.

Carefully peel the eggs, keeping the whites intact. Cut in half across the middle or lengthwise, depending on your desired final presentation. Use your fingers or a small spoon to gently scoop out the yolks into a medium bowl. Set the whites aside on a platter or deviled egg plate, then cover and refrigerate.

Use a fork to mash the yolks until all large pieces are broken up and smooth. Add the mayonnaise, butter, mustard, lemon zest and juice, garlic powder and hot sauce. Stir well. Taste and season with salt. Transfer the mixture to a pastry bag or plastic zip-close bag and refrigerate overnight.

Just before serving or leaving for a summer event, snip off the tip of the piping bag (or one of the bottom corners of a zip-close bag) and squeeze the deviled egg mixture into the egg whites. Alternatively, you can use a small spoon to fill the egg white “boats” with the yolk mixture, but the presentation is less attractive.

Sprinkle the eggs with smoked paprika for classic eggs, or chives for a fancier version. Serve chilled.

RODEO

Good, Bad and Ugly of CSI Rodeo

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@magicvalley.com

CASPER, Wyo. • Some hits, some misses and some bad luck were the story for the College of Southern Idaho rodeo teams at the College National Finals Rodeo on Tuesday.

First, the good: Tyler Nelson increased his odds for advancing to Saturday's championship round in bareback riding by riding Moon to an 80.5-point trip, which tied for the best score in the second go-round. After getting bucked Sunday, Nelson absolutely needed this ride to have any hope of competing on Saturday.

"That's the Tyler we've seen all year," CSI coach Steve Birnie said.

The top 12 averages among a participant's three go-rounds advance to Saturday's short round.

Chuck Povey all but locked down a date for Saturday night in breakaway roping with her second straight 2.8-second time, which put her in a tie at the top with Joey Painter of Black Hills.

"There is going to be a lot of girls that are going to go out who are out of the average, but try and win the round," Birnie said. "All Chuck has to do is stopped bucking with a second to go, knocking down Jones' score through no fault of his own.

It's not something that happens very often at a meet of this stature, where the best bulls in the sport are used.

"Sometimes, (the bulls) just want to be done early," Birnie said.

Jones had a re-ride option, but with a strong first ride in the books, he took his third go-round score of 61.5.

"It was a smart decision," said Birnie, who figured Jones would have scored at least in the high 70s with a full ride. "Two bulls is going to make the show round on Saturday night. In a regular rodeo during the season, he'd definitely take another ride but with as tough as the bulls are here, it's definitely good to keep your score."

Jones also was bucked in his second go-round earlier in the day, as were teammates Trent Jacobson and Johnny Owens, a moment Birnie called the "bad" part of Tuesday's competition. Also falling in that category was Lindsay Davis' no score in the second round of breakaway roping.

"Lindsay had a super-fast calf and got outrun," Birnie said.

make a decent round and she'll be super."

Trasen Jones was on his way to a high score on the final ride of the night in bull riding, looking certain for an 8-second ride on Paycheck. But the bull BURLEY • When his adrenaline is flowing and he's in rhythm, Joe Ferrin is one of the best pitchers around.

The recently-graduated Burley ace had both Tuesday, tossing a one-hit shutout in the Green Sox's 7-0 win in Game 1 of their American Legion Baseball doubleheader against Blackfoot.

"My arm was hanging a little bit, but after the first inning adrenaline kicked in and it went away," said Ferrin, who had seven strikeouts, issued just one walk and faced three over the minimum.

Ferrin worked a quick tempo and had command of his fastball and off-speed.

"My changeup was working better than it has in a while and it makes my fastball look a lot faster because I don't throw extremely hard," Ferrin said.

"I hate waiting. I feel like defense plays better if you just keep it going. The defense stays on their toes," Ferrin said.

Ferrin was perfect through four innings and gave up the only base hit in the sixth.

Burley, which had been averaging 9.8 hits and 10.8 hits per game this summer, struggled to manufacture offense early, but it wasn't for a lack of opportunity. The Green Sox had two men on with no outs in the second and third innings, but couldn't capitalize.

In all, Burley stranded nine baserunners.

The Green Sox finally added some cushion with a five-run fifth inning. Hunter Breshears hit a two-out, two-RBI single, followed by a run-scoring double by R.J.

Burley third baseman Taylor Carson catches a line drive during the Green Sox's American Legion Baseball doubleheader against Blackfoot Tuesday.

Nevarez and a two-run hit by J.J. Timmons.

Coming off a tournament championship at last weekend's Donnelley Sports Invitational, Blackfoot made Game 2 a closer affair, but Jackson Kunz threw a solid 4 1-3 innings and Jake Mills was untouchable in 2 2-3 innings of relief as Burley finished the sweep 7-3.

Jason Boehmer was 3-for-3 with a pair of triples and three RBIs for the Green Sox.

Burley (6-1) goes on the road for the next two weeks, beginning at Sugar Salem Thursday.

DRILL SERGEANTS AT CSI

Football's 7-on-7 drills give teams chance to improve passing game, but there are benefits to building the stop unit as well.

BY PATRICK SHELTRA
psheltra@hotmail.com

TWIN FALLS • In basketball, it would be a 3-on-3 half-court game.

In baseball, it's pre-game batting practice.

And in football, a condensed form of the sport comes in the form of 7-on-7 drills.

Just like the other sports, where there are skills to be polished and talents to be enhanced, 7-on-7 drills like the ones being run Tuesday at the Southern Idaho Football Camp at the College of Southern Idaho campus provide the same opportunity.

There are also some major differences. There are no interior linemen, meaning no blocking or rushing the passer. Snapping the ball is optional, meaning the QB can "take" his own snap from the line of scrimmage, or have a teammate snap it to him in the shotgun formation. And since football rules call for only five eligible receivers, it's really six offensive players against seven defenders on every play.

For offenses that rely heavily on the run game, such a drill, at first glance might appear to be counter-intuitive to building an offense. But even at Minico, there are several benefits to the drills.

"That's why we do it," Minico defensive coordinator Steve Haugeberg joked when asked about the purpose of 7-on-7 drills. "It's good for the defense."

Turning serious, Haugeberg explained further.

"It's an absolutely great drill," he said. "The offense has all of the advantages, with no pass rush for them, so you really got to work hard on defense. It's a great drill for that. And we do throw once in a while."

For teams that do throw more, like Jerome, it's an opportunity to improve on timing between quarterback and receiver, among other things.

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

Jerome's Zach Thibault launches the ball during seven-on-seven drills against Bishop Kelly at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

"Timing is everything," Jerome junior quarterback Zach Thibault said. "We find the windows a lot sooner, and once you have your timing down it makes your offense impossible to stop."

The Tigers' offense certainly looked the part in the team challenge to close the camp's afternoon session. Given four snaps from the 10-yard line to score as many touchdowns as possible in a full scrimmage situation against Caldwell, Thibault completed four passes to as many different receivers, with three going for touchdowns.

When an observer pointed out to Haugeberg that his team's passing offense, too, looked good in 7-on-7 drills, he quickly pointed out, "Right. Again, no pass rush."

His staff counterpart, offensive coordinator Steve Barnes, pointed out how a drill focused exclusively on passing can be beneficial to a run-first offense.

Jerome Selects Case as New A.D.

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • Jerome High School wrestling coach Des Case is the school's new athletic director, the Times-News learned Tuesday.

Case replaces Ty Jones, who earlier this year became superintendent over the Hagerman School District.

"(Jones) has done a great job the last little while at Jerome High School and we're going to try and continue to transition as smooth as possible and keep things rolling," Case said.

The first matter of business for Case as athletic director could surround his own fate ... as Tigers wrestling coach. Currently vacationing in Ashton, where Case was reached for this story, he has a meeting planned with superintendent Dale Lane regarding his coaching duties.

"We'll sit down and hash out specific responsibilities and make a determination at that time," Case said.

Case, who earned his master's in athletic administration at Idaho State, figured his career path in interscholastic athletics would eventually take him into an administrator's role.

"The situation just happened to open up this year," Case said. "It wasn't anything specific that pushed me there. I just want to try and help Jerome athletics be as successful as possible."

Idaho State Football

The Bengals announced the signing of five players, as well as a future contest against Washington.

ISU coach Mike Kramer reached into one of the premier prep and junior college programs in the country for two of his players: Josh Cook, a 6-3, 225-pound tight end from Mater Dei HS in Santa Ana, Calif., and Kevin Park, a 6-4, 325-pound offensive lineman from Hutchinson (Kan.) Community College.

Demetrius Oliver (5-9, 170, defensive back, Rocky Mountain HS, Meridian), Kyle Williams (6-1, 207, defensive back, Jefferson HS, Auburn, Wash.) and Darius Williams (5-11, 185, wide receiver, Carver HH, Columbus, Ga.) round out the latest group of signees. Idaho State will be the second Gem State school to play at Washington when it visits Husky Stadium on Sept. 21, 2013. Boise State will christen the renovation of Husky Stadium — which is being remodeled this off-season and is unavailable for the host school — on Sept. 7. It will be the first meeting between ISU and Washington.

ISU also announced Donovan Henley's addition to the College Football Performance Awards watch list, joining Josh Hill, Kevin Yost and Rodrick Rumble as earlier watch candidates. Henley has an honorable mention all-Big Sky selection last year after intercepting a league-best four passes, while making 43 tackles and breaking up 10 passes in 2011.

Durant Powers Thunder Past LeBron's Heat

Oklahoma City point guard Russell Westbrook and Miami small forward Shane Battier go after a loose ball during the first half at Game 1 of the NBA finals on Tuesday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OKLAHOMA CITY • Kevin Durant showed LeBron James how to play the fourth quarter in the NBA Finals.

Durant scored 17 of his 36 points in another nightmarish final period for James and his team, leading a Thunder storm that overwhelmed the Heat and gave Oklahoma City a 105-94 victory over Miami in Game 1 on Tuesday night.

Teaming with Russell Westbrook to outscore the Heat in the second half by themselves, Durant struck first in his head-to-head matchup with James, who had seven points in the final quarter and was helpless to stop the league's three-time scoring champion.

Westbrook turned around a poor shooting start to finish with 27 points, 11 assists and eight rebounds for the Thunder, keying a strong finish to the third period that gave the Thunder the lead for good.

Durant took over from there. Scoring in nearly every way possible, Durant finished 12 of 20 from the field and added eight rebounds. He and Westbrook outscored the Heat 41-40 over the final two periods, showing that maybe this time it will be offense that wins championships.

James finished with 30 points, his most in any of his 11 finals games, but had only one basket over the first 8:15 of the fourth, when the Thunder seized control of a game they trailed for all but the final few seconds of the first three quarters.

James averaged just three points in the fourth quarters of the Heat's six-game loss to Dallas last year, taking almost all the heat for Miami's finals failure. He was good in this one, Durant was just better.

And when fans chanted "MVP! MVP!" late in the game, they weren't talking about James, the guy who won the regular-season award.

They meant Durant, who is in a race with James for his first ring — and maybe the title of best player in the game.

LATE GOAL FORCES U.S. TO SETTLE FOR TIE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Marco Pappa scored on a free kick in the 83rd minute, giving Guatemala a 1-1 tie with the United States in a World Cup qualifier on Tuesday night.

Clint Dempsey put the United States ahead in the 40th minute, but Fabian Johnson pulled down Carlos Ruiz just outside the penalty area to set up the late free kick in a dangerous position. Pappa, a Chicago Fire midfielder, put a 24-yard shot just under the crossbar that froze goalkeeper Tim Howard.

It was a disappointing result for the 28th-ranked Americans, who failed for long stretches to impose their will against 85th-ranked Guatemala, a team that has never qualified for the World Cup.

Seeking its seventh straight appearance in soccer's showcase, the U.S. (1-0-1) tops Group A of North and Central America and the Caribbean on goal difference over Jamaica (1-0-1), which tied 0-0 tie at Antigua and Barbuda. Guatemala (0-1-1) is last with one point.

The top two teams advance to next year's six-nation regional finals, which will produce three qualifiers for the 2014 tournament in Brazil.

The Americans extended their unbeaten streak against Guatemala to 18 games (12-0-6) since 1988 and improved to 6-0-5 against the Guatemalans in World Cup qualifying.

Dempsey scored his 27th international goal off a play that started with a short pass from Johnson on the left. Dempsey cut across to his right, talking touches as he sidestepped Carlos Gallardo and Erwin Morales, then wrong-footed Ricardo Jerez Jr. with a right-footed shot from 16 yards to the goalkeeper's right.

It was Dempsey's 28th goal of the season for club and country, including 23 for England's Fulham.

Just before the goal, Howard made a diving save on Carlos Figueroa's open 10-yard shot from an angle. Ruiz nearly tied the score in first-half injury time, hooking just wide on a left-footed shot from the top of the arc. When the second half started, Guatemala just missed with a header that went narrowly over the crossbar following a corner kick.

Johnson returned to left back after missing Friday's game because of a strained calf muscle.

U.S. coach Jurgen Klinsmann gave Geoff Cameron his World Cup qualifying debut, bringing him in to start the second half in place of Clarence Goodson, who had gotten a yellow card in the 23rd.

Guatemala coach Ever Hugo Almeida used all three substitutes to start the second half, just as he did Friday. Pappa, Manuel Leon and Dwight Pez-zarossi replaced Figueroa, Jose Contreras and Mario Rodriguez.

Guatemala argued unsuccessfully for a penalty kick early in the second half after American defender Carlos Bocanegra kicked a clearance up off his own hand. Jozy Altidore entered at forward for Herculez Gomez in the 64th minute.

Howard made a diving stop on Rodriguez's 5-yard in shot in the 69th after a corner kick was headed in front of the goal. Then, with the net wide open, Ruiz skied the rebound over the crossbar.

"It's a good time for us to work on our two-minute offense," Barnes said. "There will be times when we need to jump into that. And we're going to be throwing the ball a little more this year. Our offense is still evolving (from last year). It's a work in progress."

With 2,000-yard rusher Brady May gone from last year's squad, Shay Chandler will get the chance to throw the ball, and Barnes rattled off a list of guys, Jordan

Browning, Caleb Worley and Taylor Seaton among them, that he believes can be difference-makers in the air game.

"He came a long way in a very short time," Barnes said of Chandler. "He's a year older, the arm's stronger and he keeps growing and has filled out."

Vote Lets UND Scrap Nickname

FARGO, N.D. (AP) • North Dakota voters decided Tuesday to let the state's flagship university dump a controversial Fighting Sioux nickname that sparked threats of NCAA sanctions, ending — at least temporarily — a dispute simmering for decades that divided sports fans, alumni and even tribes.

The matter boiled over seven years ago when the University of North Dakota was placed on a list of schools with American Indian nicknames that the NCAA deemed hostile and abusive.

Weather Report Sponsored By:

Greg Middlekauff's Quote of the Day: "Let us not be content to wait and see what will happen, but give us the determination to make the right things happen." Horace Mann Kings goalie Jonathan Quick holds up the Stanley Cup after Los Angeles beat New Jersey on Monday night. Quick also won the Conn Smythe trophy for being MVP of the playoffs, just the third American to win the award.

L.A. Kings Savor First Stanley Cup Triumph

LOS ANGELES • The Stanley Cup barely had the Los Angeles Kings' fingerprints on it before Darryl Sutter suggested they should start preparing to win it again. "The first thing you think about as a coach, these guys are all young enough, they've got to try it again," the coach said Monday night, mere moments after raising the Cup for the first time himself. That's just how a pragmatic farmer from Alberta thinks about everything, and Sutter didn't allow his mental preparations for a sequel to stop him from celebrating this irreplaceable moment with his players. The Kings partied until well after midnight at a restaurant overlooking the Staples Center ice, where Los Angeles completed its 16-4 rampage through the postseason to the franchise's first NHL title. After nearly 45 years without a Cup, after 4 1/2 decades with one division title and one conference crown to show for their existence, and after eight straight years from 2002-10 without making the playoffs, Los Angeles and its Kings had earned every minute of it. Music boomed and drinks flowed for a few hundred friends, family members and Kings employees hanging with the players. Everybody seemingly got a chance to raise the Cup above their heads for triumphant photos, and a few unhappy toddlers were forced to sit in the bowl. The Conn Smythe Trophy also attended, and plenty of people borrowed Jonathan Quick's hardware long enough to chant "M-V-P!" for themselves.

U.S. Open: Five Best Without

BY DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

SAN FRANCISCO • One of the most popular labels in golf is the best to have never won a major. Here's another one — best to never win a U.S. Open. Sam Snead might have won his national open if he had only known the score. Greg Norman is the only player to lose all four stroke-play majors in a playoff, and it started with the U.S. Open at Winged Foot. Phil Mickelson has more silver medals than he wants. All of them are major champions. All of them are in the Hall of Fame. Here are the five best players to never have won golf's second-oldest championship:

- 5. Harry 'Lighthouse' Cooper
No player won more PGA Tour titles without capturing a major than Harry "Lighthouse" Cooper, who won 29 times. The U.S. Open is the major that haunted him more than the others. Cooper was a two-time runner-up in the U.S. Open, and both times he had the lead going into the final round. In 1927 at Oakmont, he was one shot ahead of Tommy Armour, closed with a 77 and lost to Armour by three shots in an 18-hole playoff. Nine years later at Baltusrol, Cooper had a two-shot lead over Vic Ghezzi. Tony Manero came out of nowhere with a 67 on the final day to win by one shot over Cooper, who shot 73.
- 4. Nick Faldo
Always a thinker, Nick Faldo was looking for the secret to winning when he met with Ben Hogan and asked him what it takes to win the U.S. Open. "Shoot the lowest score," Hogan replied. Faldo, a three-time Masters and British Open champion, never quite figured that out. Even during his 10-year run in the majors, and despite having U.S. Open qualities of accuracy off the tee and grinding away at pars, his best chance came in 1988 at The Country Club. Faldo fell into a tie with Curtis Strange with three holes to play when he took bogey from a bunker. Still tied after Strange three-putted the 17th, Faldo had a 25-foot putt from the fringe to win and settled for par. Strange made a superb bunker save on the 18th for par to force a playoff.

3. Greg Norman
Greg Norman was lucky to get into a playoff at Winged Foot in 1984 when he holed a 40-foot par putt. Back in the fairway, Fuzzy Zoeller assumed it was for birdie and twirled a white towel. Norman's putt allowed him to get into an 18-hole playoff Monday, and while the Shark was favored, Zoeller put on a clinic. This time, it was Norman waving the white flag in mock surrender. He was runner-up that day, though surely there would be more chances in his bright future. There were. But he never won a U.S. Open. Norman was atop the leaderboard going into the final round at Shinnecock Hills in 1986 and in 2005, both times watching someone else (Raymond Floyd, Corey Pavin) hit the shots and hole the putts required of a U.S. Open champion. Norman only won two majors in his Hall of Fame career, both in the British Open. He won more than 70 tournaments around the world, was No. 1 longer than any other player until Tiger Woods came along and was a dominant figure in golf for a decade.

2. Phil Mickelson
Phil Mickelson has been playing the U.S. Open for 20 years, and all he has to show for it is a silver medal. But only because the U.S. Open doesn't award the purple heart. Mickelson might have won at Shinnecock Hills in 1995 if not for playing the par-5 16th in 6 over for the week. He nearly got into a playoff at Pinehurst No. 2 in 1999 until Payne Stewart made a 15-footer for par on the last hole. Five shots behind going into the last day at Bethpage Black, he made Tiger Woods sweat until Woods delivered a key birdie. Mickelson also was runner-up at Bethpage Black in 2009, missing a 3-foot putt on the 15th hole to kill his momentum. Nothing was more memorable than Winged Foot in 2006, when he had a one-shot lead playing the 18th. After a tee shot into the merchandise tents left him a decent lie, he tried to carve a 3-iron around the tree, didn't pull it off and made double bogey to finish one shot behind.

1. Sam Snead
Phil Mickelson has more heartache at his national open than Snead, but when it comes to the best without a U.S. Open, none was better than the Slammer. Snead owns the PGA Tour record with 82 wins. He won a British Open at St. Andrews. He won the Masters and PGA Championship three times each. All that keeps him from joining the other greats to win the Grand Slam was the U.S. Open. Snead was runner-up four times, but the one U.S. Open that lives in infamy was in 1939 at Philadelphia Country Club. Snead only needed a par on the 18th hole to win, but not knowing the score (there were no scoreboards posted on the 18th back then) and under the impression he needed birdie, he played aggressively off the tee and went into the rough. By the time he chopped his way through the hole, he made a triple bogey and tied for fifth.

Luck Returns to Colts' Field

INDIANAPOLIS • Andrew Luck couldn't wait to start his new job, and the Indianapolis Colts couldn't wait to get him back on the field. On Tuesday, both sides finally got their wish. After a 5 1/2-week absence from the Colts' offseason workouts, the No. 1 overall draft pick showed up in a red No. 12 jersey and started showing everyone what he'd learned while attending his final classes at Stanford. "I'm just trying to soak everything in, and I'm starting to have a good understanding of what's going on here," Luck said after Tuesday morning's light one-hour workout. Admittedly, he's still trying to master the playbook, get on the same page with his new teammates and figure out how to get around Indianapolis. But none of that mattered Tuesday as dozens of reporters, photographers and television cameras monitored each pass Luck threw. Vice president and general counsel Dan Emerson, who has been negotiating Luck's contract, watched the first half of a two-hour afternoon practice. Team owner Jim Irsay and two of his three daughters watched the second half of the afternoon session from a golf cart.

Today is Wednesday, June 13, the 165th day of 2012. There are 201 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On June 13, 1942, the first of two four-man Nazi sabotage teams arrived in the United States during World War II. The first group disembarked from a U-boat off Long Island, N.Y.; the second one arrived several days later on the Florida coast. (The eight were arrested after one of them went to U.S. authorities; six of the saboteurs were executed.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1842, Queen Victoria became the first British monarch to ride on a train, traveling from Slough Railway Station to Paddington in 25 minutes.

In 1886, King Ludwig II of Bavaria drowned in Lake Starnberg.

In 1927, aviation hero Charles Lindbergh was honored with a ticker-tape parade in New York City.

In 1935, James Braddock claimed the title of world heavyweight boxing champion from Max Baer in a 15-round fight in Long Island City, N.Y.

In 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the Office of War Information, and appointed radio news commentator Elmer Davis to be its head.

In 1944, Germany began launching flying-bomb attacks against Britain during World War II.

In 1962, "Lolita," Stanley Kubrick's film adaptation of the Vladimir Nabokov novel, had its world premiere in New York City.

In 1966, the Supreme Court ruled in Miranda v. Arizona that criminal suspects had to be informed of their constitutional right to consult with an attorney and to remain silent.

In 1971, The New York Times began publishing excerpts of the Pentagon Papers, a secret study of America's involvement in Vietnam from 1945 to 1967 that had been leaked to the paper by military analyst Daniel Ellsberg.

In 1982, King Khalid of Saudi Arabia died at the age of 69; he was succeeded by a half-brother, Crown Prince Fahd.

In 1992, Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton stirred controversy during an appearance before the Rainbow Coalition by criticizing rap singer Sister Souljah for making remarks that he said were "filled with hatred" toward whites.

In 1996, the 81-day-old Freeman standoff ended as 16 remaining members of the anti-government group surrendered to the FBI and left their Montana ranch.

Ten years ago: U.S. Roman Catholic bishops opened an extraordinary closed-door meeting in Dallas on the sex scandal that was shaking the church as they crafted a plan for a zero-tolerance policy for pedophile priests. Backed by the United States, Hamid Karzai overwhelmingly won 18 more months as leader of Afghanistan's fledgling government. The Detroit Red Wings won the Stanley Cup, beating the Carolina Hurricanes 3-1 in game 5 of the finals.

Five years ago: In Beirut, Lebanon, a powerful car bombing killed Walid Eido, a prominent anti-Syrian legislator. Insurgents blew up the two minarets of a revered Shiite shrine in Samarra, Iraq, a year after the shrine's golden dome was destroyed in a bombing.

One year ago: Facing off in New Hampshire, Republican White House hopefuls condemned President Barack Obama's handling of the economy from the opening moments of their first major debate of the 2011-2012 campaign season, and pledged emphatically to repeal his historic year-old health care overhaul.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"How happy is he born and taught That serveth not another's will; Whose armor is his honest thought And simple truth his utmost skill."
— Sir Henry Wotton

When the opponents pre-empt and you end up in an awkward contract, you've got to fight back somehow. In this deal from a 1993 pairs game, Chuck Said (playing with Kathy Ford) found the solution to his problem by playing the cards practically double-dummy. At matchpoints, West's choice to pre-empt at the three-level on a six-card suit may seem wild, but the extra playing strength from the five-card minor makes the choice a reasonable one. Now Said opted for the heart game after his partner doubled three spades for takeout. And yes, a bid of three no-trump by North would probably have been a better alternative. Declarer found himself in a precarious spot, but he made the most of what he was dealt. When West led the spade king, Said won the ace in dummy. He cashed the heart ace and queen, noting the fall of the nine from West. Said suspected trumps were 4-2, so he turned his attention to clubs, and his suspicion was confirmed when he cashed the club king and West pitched a spade. Said now played a club to the nine, cashed the club ace and ruffed a club with dummy's heart two. Next came a spade ruff, stripping East of that suit. Said cashed the heart king and threw East in with a club. The hapless defender had the long trump, so he could cash the trump jack, but then was forced to play away from his diamond king into dummy's A-Q. Said's fine dummy play resulted in plus 450 and a matchpoint tie for a top.

ANSWER: In a perfect world, you would double for takeout and simultaneously bid three no-trump to show a good hand and one prepared to hear partner bid spades. Alas, this is not an option today; you have to commit yourself one way or the other, and bidding three no-trump is far more descriptive of what you actually have.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, "Wally," and I have been friends for several years, and a couple for nearly two. He recently brought up the subject of marriage, and we agreed that we are likely altar-bound.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Only one thing gives me pause. A few months ago, Wally got plastered and had a fling with a female friend. He regretted it immediately and said it was what made him realize I am "The One." (He is getting help for his drinking now.)

The problem is, the woman is still pursuing him. She buys him gifts or brings him vegan meals. He has asked her repeatedly to stop, to no avail. Because Wally is a vegetarian and I'm not, I suspect she's trying to prove she would be a better partner for him.

I have asked Wally to cut off contact with her, but he won't. He feels bad for her because she has few friends and lives in an isolated little town. What do you suggest I do?

— UNWILLING TO SHARE

DEAR UNWILLING TO SHARE: Raise the subject of marriage with Wally again, and tell him his continued contact with the woman he cheated with is hurtful to you and a threat to your relationship. Ask how he would feel if you continued to see and accept gifts from a man you'd had a drunken fling with. If he says he wouldn't be thrilled, perhaps he'll be able to understand your reaction to what's going on. If he says he'd be fine with it, then Wally isn't the man for you.

DEAR ABBY: My 13-year-old niece, "Amelia," is a beautiful young girl. She has only two flaws — she lies constantly and she's boy-crazy. I have to listen to my sister talk on and on about how hard it is to trust her. My sister and brother-in-law have set many rules and limits for my niece. I think her punishments for breaking rules fit the crime — grounding, having things taken away, etc.

Amelia knows she can't have a boyfriend until she's 16. Lately, she keeps trying to get boys' phone numbers and meet with them. She has also been caught sexting three times and lying about it. As her punishment this time, my sister and her husband shaved Amelia's head. I am shocked and devastated for my niece. I think it was extremely inappropriate.

When I try to talk to my sister about my concerns, she tells me she had no choice because her daughter had so many warnings. I don't know what to do. I think my niece will need counseling. My sister says I am overreacting. Am I? Or did she?

— WORRIED AUNT IN UTAH

DEAR WORRIED AUNT: Amelia's parents went off the deep end. What was done to her was awful, and you are not overreacting. Instead of shaving her daughter's head, your sister should have tried to understand why she is lying and desperately seeking attention from boys.

If I ever heard of a family in need of family therapy, it is your sister's. Love, attention and less draconian punishments are what Amelia needs, not months of public shaming.

DEAR ABBY: My husband committed suicide 20 years ago. He left a note, but I never shared it with our children, as they were very young at the time. They are all happy, successful adults. Should I share the note with them? I still have it.

— ANONYMOUS DOWN SOUTH

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your children are probably curious about why their father chose to end his life. Let them know the note exists, share it with them if they would like to see it and answer any questions they may have. They have a right to know.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

IF JUNE 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might feel that you are wearing a strait-jacket and unable to wriggle out of a restrictive situation during the next four to six weeks. Just keep on doing what is expected and don't try to break loose from obligations. It will be helpful to focus on being organized, since being more efficient will give you more time for yourself. Wait until August to put your financial ideas and business projects into action. A new group of friends could make life more exciting in September and you might even meet up with a member of the opposite sex that brightens your life.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): With few exceptions, people are not mindreaders. If you have something on your mind, no one is going to know unless you tell them. Avoid causing misunderstandings by being direct and honest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Planning is half the battle. Action can wait, as now is the time to create plans that will make your next project a triumph. Hold off on making crucial decisions and major purchases until next week.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take a breath. Step away from the situation that has you flustered and clear your mind so you can attack the problem more objectively. Getting angry and frustrated only increases the chances of errors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nothing worth having is easy. There's no magic wand that will make your problems go away. Take each situation as it comes and deal with it the best way you can. Perseverance will be rewarded.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Bend a little, but don't break. You may have to work around a set of self-imposed rules to reach a compromise with another party. The shortest path to harmony is not necessarily the easiest one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pace yourself. The grind of the workweek may have your battery running low. Conserve your energy by taking on a light load. Stay in tonight, avoid confrontations and keep your money in the bank.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What is valuable and what is expensive are not the same thing. Value can come from something as simple as a few kind words that make you feel better, while something with a lofty price tag can be a pile of rubbish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you want to be a rebel, make sure that you have something to rebel against. Bucking convention just for the sake of doing it is foolish. You could benefit by focusing all that energy into something creative.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lock your door. There will be no accomplishment if distractions keep popping up to occupy your attention. Focus on doing what you set out to do today and the problems of the world will have to wait.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rules are not meant to be broken. Others may have differing opinions about sticking to the rules, but you know there's no gray area between right and wrong. Don't start anything important today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink. You can try to curb a friend's foolish behavior but if they are happy doing it, you won't be successful. Being too helpful could backfire.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stand on your own two feet. Don't rely on others to pull you out of trouble. Work on being independent and handling your affairs on your own. Let major expenditures wait until next week.
