TWIN FALLS • Damon Wayne Azure, charged with the murder of his brother, has been declared competent for trial. Azure, 32, of Rupert, is accused of shooting and killing his brother, Seanachan Azure, 31, on Feb. 12 near Twin Falls Park, along the Snake River Canyon north of Kimberly.

According to court documents dated June 15, filed in Twin Falls County 5th District Court, the court received a psychological evaluation dated June 12. After reviewing it, the court determined Azure is fit and the case may continue. The order also said Azure was to be transported to the Twin Falls County Jail.

Azure was originally sent to the Idaho Security Medical Program and held for 90-days in a maximum security environment. According to a Twin Falls County Jail headcount from Wednesday, Azure was not yet at the jail.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loebs said he expected to hear from Twin Falls County 5th District Judge Randy Stoker in the next week or so to schedule hearings.

Because of the murder charge,

Loebs expects the trial won't be for several months.

On Feb. 12, Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies were called to 3500 E. 4070 N. at about 11:20 a.m. to check on a report of a possible vehiclepedestrian accident. When they arrived, they found Seanachan Azurelying in a pool of blood. His brother was in a nearby car, where deputies found a handgun and ammunition.

Damon Azure was arrested on charges of resisting and obstructing officers. Sheriff's deputies said Azure fought them before and after arrest and continued to be uncooperative once in jail. On March 16, the court found Azure lacked the mental fitness to proceed in the case and that he wasn't competent enough to make his own treatment decisions. At the time, documents showed the court ruled Azure was dangerously mentally ill and presented a substantial risk to other people.

JEROME • Years after his time as an elected official, many Jerome residents still greeted Ralph Peters as "Mr. Mayor."

His daughter Katie Caldwell said her father - who served terms as Jerome's mayor and as an Idaho legislator - was a "man of many hats."

Peters juggled a variety of roles husband, father, businessman, civic leader and active church member and he did it all while retaining a sense of humor, his daughter said.

"He had a sincere commitment and concern for his city of Jerome,"

Peters, 90, died June 16 at his home from complications of Parkinson's

A memorial service - which will be open to the public — is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday at First Presbyterian Church in Jerome. Burial will immediately follow at the Jerome Cemetery.

Peters was mayor of Jerome from 1982 to 1990. For several of those years, he also served as an Idaho state representative.

During Peters' time as a state legislator, from 1987 to 1992, he sponsored two bills that passed. One created the state AMBER Alert system for missing children and the other designated an official Idaho state fossil – the Hagerman Horse Fossil.

"Dad was quite a diverse man," Caldwell said.

hearted prelude to the threeday Republican State Convention, which starts today in Twin Falls. But as the women enjoyed the finger sandwiches and tea, some event attendees were quietly worrying about conflicts that may spring up at the convention.

Since the May 15 primary highlighted in-party rifts, including a bitter fight among House leadership and heated statewide precinct challenges, Republicans have been trying to brush off the image of a fractured party.

In early May, campaign finance documents revealed House Speaker Lawerence Denney and House Majority Leader Mike Moyle had given thousands of dollars to GunPAC, a political action committee that targeted Republican incumbents, including House Majority Caucus Chairman Ken Roberts. That money included $10,000 from the House Victory Fund, which Republican House members contributed to with the assumption that it would be used to help their colleagues, not Denney claimed ignorance, but Moyle told the Idaho Statesman he knew that GunPAC was targeting Roberts, who won his primary. The contribution sparked strong condemnations from Republican House members, including House Assistant Majority Leader Scott Bedke.

The May 15 elections also saw Republican precinct races between traditional Republicans and more conservative candidates - including a group of Ron Paul supporters rumored to be attempting to turn Idaho's Republican national delegates to support Paul over Mitt Romney, who

In an era where critics continue to scrutinize political women's clothing, some Republican women view the color red as taking a stance against the biased attention.

The color red represents both the power and heart of the GOP, said Maya Goodman, president of the Twin Falls Republican Women.

"We have a lot of pull," Goodman said. "It's more of a tradition to wear the color but it represents so many different aspects of our party."

Locally, the Democratic women have not adopted the same political strategy.

"We're fairly casual," said Deborah Silver, chairwoman of the Twin Falls County Democratic Party. "We don't all wear one thing."

Dinges and Goodman's GOP organizations are part of the National Federation of Republican Women, one of the oldest GOP organizations in the nation. The grassroots group started in 1938. Back then, the original conservative did not wear the color red, Jo Freeman, author of "We Will Be Heard: Women's Struggles for Political Power in the United States," wrote in an email to the Times-News.

In post-World War II America, the color red was associated with communism,

"I find it hard to believe Republican women would adopt (the color red) during that time," Freeman said.

By the late 1990s, the "Red Scare" of the 1920s and 1950s were long over. Newscasters were now using red or blue colors to easily identify states' political parties while covering political campaigns. This quickly prompted both parties to dress in blue or red colors, said Lisa Ziriax, communications director for the National Federation of Republican that makes the biggest statement. For those interested in starting their foundational red wardrobe, most Magic Valley retail stores do sell red suits. But more options pop up around the holidays.

"We get them patriotic or red ties," Goodman said. "You wouldn't really see them in a red suit."

The Other Half

Dark-colored pants are acceptable for most political events. However, it's not a bad idea to purchase a full red suit for those special occasions. Feel free to have fun with the shoes, just as long as you can remain comfortable working a room full of politicos in them.

The Pins

Whether it's a simple nametag or bedazzled elephant, pins are almost just as important as the red jacket. GOP women can earn pins by volunteering at events or purchase their own at craft fairs. When do you reach too many? That's up to you.

Matching Red

With such a bold jacket color, it can be difficult to find a complimentary red tone to match. Don't be afraid to play around with different options, and when in doubt ask a trusted friend for input. Simple red belts or scarlethued pedicures are fun and can enhance the outfit.

won the March presidential caucus.

In Twin Falls County, those precinct races involved questionable campaign tactics, including using altered sample ballots that didn't list every candidate, and endorsements from a PAC with a very similar name to the official Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee.

At Wednesday's luncheon, Otter alluded to the divides, saying that the party has been experiencing "growing pains" across the state. She pointed out that Republicans agree on the majority of issues and encouraged the women to set aside any differences they may have with other convention delegates.

"Focus on the end game, which is getting Barack Obama the hell out of the White House," Otter said.

Policy differences aside, procedural moves could tie up some participants.

Jonathan Parker, executive director of the Idaho Republican Party, confirmed that Buhl resident Rick Martin has challenged the Twin Falls County delegation's credentials, but hadn't yet reviewed the specifics of his argument. Martin has filed challenges at past conventions, and is the head of the Ron Paul-supporting Republican Liberty Caucus in the Magic Valley. Martin's grievance is one of four that will be heard during the Credentials Committee Meeting on Friday morning. The other challenges are to delegations from Benewah, Ada and Gooding counties, Parker said.

"That's not unusual," he said. "Every year there is some sort of challenge to the delegates."

Billee Dinges, president of the Magic Valley Republican Women, was worried those actions would eclipse the rest of the convention.

"It's definitely going to be a distraction," she said.

Carrie Hall, co-chairwoman for the planning committee, said that while she knew the challenges were coming, she didn't want to exacerbate the situation by getting defensive or upset.

"If you worry going into it, then you're going to cause a negative result," she said.

Rep. Maxine Bell, R-Jerome, said that the next three days will give the party a chance to get all the factions together for a lively discussion.

"That's what a convention is for," Bell said.

Parker agreed.

"I'm very confident that through the convention, we'll sort out our differences," he said.

Buhl Woman Appointed to Fish and Game Commission

BUHL • Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter Wednesday announced a Buhl businesswoman will serve on the seven-member Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Joan Hurlock of Buhl will succeed outgoing Region 4 Commissioner Wayne Wright of Twin Falls as the commission's south-central Idaho representative.

Appointed in 2004, Wright served as chairman for three of his eight years on the commission. Among the many issues handled in that time, Wright led the commission during Idaho's first modern wolf hunt in 2009.

A retired cardiologist, he took over his commission seat from now-Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, another retired physician.

Otter also announced Wednesday that Challis miner Will Naillon will replace outgoing Region 7 commissioner Gary Power of Salmon.

Naillon has worked for Hecla Mining Co.'s Grouse Creek Unit for 18 years. Most recently, he's been an environmental operations technician. He is active in fishing, hunting, trapping and hunter and trapper education.

Both new appointees will serve four-year terms beginning July 1. They must be confirmed by the Idaho Senate when it convenes in January 2013.

"Both these fine individuals have shown a great passion for and commitment to the protection and effective management of Idaho's fish and wildlife resources for future generations," Otter said in the release. "They understand and embrace the challenge of addressing sometimes contentious issues. Just as importantly, they have demonstrated the ability to work effectively and collaboratively with diverse groups and individuals toward achieving shared goals."

Industry: Sage Grouse Listing Would be 'Devastating' to Cattle

The president of the Idaho Cattle Association says grazing opportunities could be slashed.

BY STEVE KADEL

TWIN FALLS • Idaho Cattle Association members eagerly await Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's draft plan to protect the greater sage grouse in hopes the bird will not be placed on the endangered species list.

"A potential listing would be devastating," said ICA President Richard Savage.

It could severely limit grazing opportunities, he said Wednesday during the association's Summer Round-Up symposium at the Red Lion Hotel Canyon Springs in Twin

The plan relies on recommendations from a 15-member Sage Grouse Task Force that met across the state this spring. Otter's legal counsel, Tom Perry, said the plan should be released within seven to 10 days, followed by a two-week public comment period. After citizen input is gathered, Otter will rework the proposed plan before sending it to the U.S. Forest

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will make the final decision about listing the grouse no later than Sept. 30, Savage said during an interview that he believes fire and invasive plant species are the biggest threats to sage grouse in Idaho. He called grazing "just a secondary issue."

During a discussion at the symposium, ICA members peppered Perry and members of the governor's Sage Grouse Task Force with questions that indicated their apprehension over what might happen. Perry told them Otter believes the soon-to-be-released plan meets the necessary criteria for sage grouse protection. The fact that it has input from state agencies, lawmakers and citizens is a positive factor, he added.

"This is our last shot to have some state sovereignty in this issue," Perry said. "If Idaho is among 11 states where the grouse is a candidate for listing. Many of them are also devising management plans, Savage said. He said the governor's plan is one of five options to be considered in Idaho.

Music Education: Under-funded and Much Needed

y personal journey has been enriched by music as both a "player" and "enjoyer." To play music is to feel the uplift and discipline of the art, and to listen to great music classical, rock, jazz – makes me feel whole each day. Life can be challenging, even vexing sometimes, and music helps me personally to have a "sunny disposition" as I face my own set of problems each day. So when the chance to sign on with a group of concerned Magic Valley citizens wanting to launch a new effort to enrich music education in our region came along, I was happy to join.

Mike McBride

Our first event to support and enhance music education happened last year on July 14 at the then-new Twin Falls Center for the Arts. The fundraising effort was well-supported by our business and professional community, grossing more than $20,000 that year. We offered a dinner event that featured the Great Basin Jazz Camp students and their instructors. This jazz camp, one of the best in the country, has been giving young people from our region and beyond (there are even students from Australia!) an opportunity to learn and play with outstanding professional performers and instructors who give lessons and support them in jazz studies. The students mostly range in age from junior high to high school. They learn about improvisation, music theory, performance, and practice methods every day from morning till night for a solid week at the College of Southern Idaho.

Building on the success of that inaugural event, our committee has even bigger plans, and we are already discussing long-term strategies to reinvent "Jazz in the Canyon." The committee picks up on the original vision and event started many years ago by the Twin Falls Rotary with Dr. Chris Scholes guiding a broad and enthusiastic group of volunteers from our community. After many years of success, the focus of the event was changed away from jazz, and it didn't draw the crowds or support it needed to be successful.

Today, we feel motivated to try again. Our plan is to take the event back to its roots and feature familyfriendly jazz played by familiar names that made past events successful. We will continue the Thursday night dinner event as a music education fundraiser, and we will have Friday night jazz featured throughout Twin Falls night spots.

All day Saturday jazz is back! We will feature jazz artists, young and old, who represent the best or performance and skill in this art form.

The committee hopes to raise several hundred thousand dollars over the next five years to support music education in our local schools, kindergarten through college. We plan to invest the first several year's profits in an endowment, and the committee will also award grants to music education programs of merit and impact throughout the Magic Valley. The benefits of music education are well-documented and varied, and we believe young people deserve our support in music.

Dr. Chris Scholes, Dr. Jeff Fox, Dr. Thad Scholes, Bob Sojka, Brent Jensen, Debra Wilson, Pattie Lopshire, Art Hoag, and I are encouraged by the excitement and support we have already experienced. We offer you, our fellow citizens, the opportunity to join us and work toward a successful 2012 event. Talk to anyone on our committee, and we will make sure you are included this fall when we begin planning for our 2013 events. Please call me, Mike McBride, at 420-2383 if you would like to be involved.

With government and state support for the arts waning, we need local efforts that will enhance our communities. A successful Jazz in the Canyon event could prove a winning strategy in addressing dwindling funding and support. We believe a strong endowment for music education could become a powerful tool that will enrich the education and lives of our children for a long time to come.

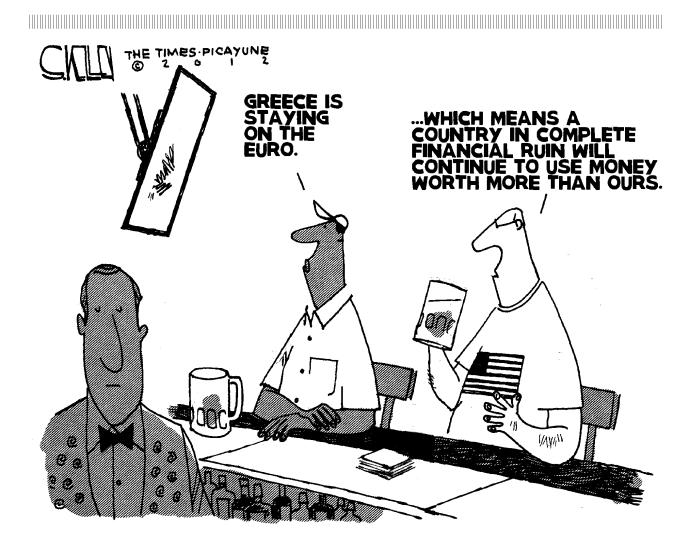

Please join me in supporting upcoming events.

Mike McBride is the 2012 co-chairman of "An Evening of Jazz."

hree hours before showtime, Brian Wilson says: "There is no Rhonda." Sitting backstage, gathering strength for the evening's 48-song, 150-minute concert, Wilson was not asked about her, he just volunteered this fact. The other members of the Beach Boys seem mildly surprised to learn that the 1965 song "Help Me, Rhonda" was about no one in particular.

Not that it matters; the sound is everything. Attention must be paid to baby boomer music-cued nostalgia, and no one pays it better than the Beach

They are currently on a 50th-anniversary tour that has more than 60 concerts scheduled and others still being booked. Their new album, "That's Why God Made the Radio," debuted at No. 3 in Billboard's listing, and with this the Beach Boys topped the Beatles for most weeks on Billboard's top-10 album chart. Their band began in 1961 in Hawthorne, in Los Angeles County, when the parents of Brian, Dennis and Carl Wilson went away for a weekend, leaving the boys with meal money they used to rent instruments and record a song called "Surfin". They rode a wave of fascination with California to the top of pop music.

Given California's

dystopian present, it is difficult to recall that the Beach Boys' appeal derived not just from their astonishing harmonies (which derived from the Four Freshmen) but also from their embodiment of a happy Southern California that beckoned to the rest of the nation.

Political scientist James Q. Wilson grew up there and in 1967, the year after the Beach Boys' "Good Vibrations," he wrote a seminal essay on the political vibrations that produced California's new governor: "A Guide to Reagan Country." Wilson's conclusion was that Ronald Reagan represented the political culture of a region where social structure nurtured individualism.

Southern Californians had, Wilson wrote, "no identities except their personal identities, no obvious group affiliations to make possible any reference to them by collective nouns. I never heard the phrase 'ethnic group' until I was in graduate school." Eastern teenagers had turf. Their Southern California counterparts had cars, the subject of so many Beach Boys songs ("Little Deuce Coupe," "409," "Little Honda," etc.). They hung out in places reached by car and with lots of parking, particularly drive-in restaurants. "The Eastern lifestyle," Wilson wrote, "produced a feeling of territory, the Western lifestyle a feeling of property." The East was defined less by cold weather than social congestion - apartments in ethnic neighborhoods. Southern Californians lived in singledwelling homes and had almost no public transportation, so their movements within the city were unconfined to set corridors. Houses and cars the "Sunday afternoon drive" was often just to look at others' homes strengthened, Wilson wrote, "a very conventional and bourgeois sense of property and responsibility."

When James Watt, Reagan's secretary of the interior, barred the Beach Boys from playing a Fourth of July concert on the National Mall in 1983 because he thought they attracted "the wrong element," Reagan invited them to the White House. This was almost a generation after the Beach Boys were dethroned but invigorated by the challenge of the British Invasion, particularly the Beatles.

Brian Wilson has long been troubled by mental illness, but he responded to the challenge of the Beatles album "Rubber Soul" with "Pet Sounds," including "God Only Knows," which Paul Mc-Cartney called "the greatest song ever written." The Beatles' "Sgt. Pepper" was a response to "Pet Sounds." Leonard Bernstein called Brian Wilson, the Beach Boys' creative engine, "one of today's most important musicians," and the Joffrey Ballet danced to Wilson's music.

Dennis and Carl Wilson died long ago, but today's band includes three original members – Brian, Al Jardine and Mike Love plus David Marks, who grew up down the street from the Wilsons, and Bruce Johnston, "the new guy" who first joined the group in 1965.

Boomers must be served, so Mick Jagger, who long ago said, "I'd rather be dead than sing 'Satisfaction' when I'm 45," is singing it at 68. In 1966, the 31-year-old Elvis Presley asked the Beach Boys for advice about touring; he has been dead for nearly 35 years but they play on, all of them approaching or past 70, singing "When I Grow Up (to Be a Man)" without a trace of irony. Southern California in their formative years was not zoned for irony.

Bridge Work Begins near Hansen, Burley

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME COUNTY • One local project to resurface a bridge over Interstate 84 started Wednesday, while another is expected to start Monday, the Idaho Transportation Department announced.

ITD expects the work on overpasses in Jerome County and north Burley to have only minor effects on traffic, according to a Wednesday press release.

On Wednesday, crews started to resurface Idaho Highway 50 where it crosses I-84 near the Travelers Oasis at exit 182. Next Monday, similar work starts at exit 208, where Idaho Highway 27 crosses the interstate.

In both cases, half of each bridge structure will be closed while crews remove the driving surface, pour a new concrete surface and complete other necessary maintenance. Traffic will be reduced to one lane in each direction, but access to I-84's on- and off-ramps will be maintained throughout each project. Drivers are asked to use caution at each Cannon Builders of Blackfoot is the contractor for both projects. The Jerome County work should finish by the end of July, while the Burley work is expected to finish by the end of September.

Both projects are part of a larger bridge-repair effort focused on multiple sites in south-central Idaho. The overall work is covered by two contracts totaling $3.6 mil-

BURLEY • A casual observer passing by a science camp doorway might think the paper airplanes zipping through the sky are a lesson gone awry.

But to the young scientists, volunteers and instructors at Wednesday's College of Southern Idaho STEM in Space! Science Camp, they were a lesson in flight and a soaring success.

"I really like the camp because we get to learn about my favorite subject, science," said Connor Schneider, 11.

The STEM in Space! Science Camp in Burley drew in 55 students from grades 2-7 and eight teachers from Minidoka and Cassia counties. STEM stands for science, technology, engineering and Macias said CSI puts the camp registration money back into the program, which allows teachers to expose the students to many different experiments and activities. The activities are documented in a journal each child gets to take home, which allows them to replicate the experiments later.

On Wednesday, 11-year-old Ty Wilson learned the power of magnetism - holding a magnet a respectable distance from a paper kite, tethered to his tabletop and with a paper clip taped to its top edge.

"My favorite part of the camp has been making this kite fly," he said.

No information was released Wednesday regarding the trooper's name and the exact circumstances of the crash. Gooding Deputy Richard Eckert said simply that it was a minor traffic accident at about 6 p.m.

No injuries were reported in connection with the crash.

the Idaho Democratic Party, said the debate was thorough.

"This is the first time in a long time that folks have literally gone paragraph by paragraph, issue by issue, through the entire document," he said.

And while state delegates deconstructed and rewrote the platform, there weren't many major changes.

But there were interesting discussions, like regarding safe and legal access to abortion, Silver said. Some participants suggested adding a phrase stating opposition to medical procedures performed without a patient's consent, a reaction to proposed legislation that would have required preabortion ultrasounds. That bill was pulled in March, but the bill's authors have said they will reintroduce it in the next legislative session.

Ultimately, Silver said, state delegates decided to leave out the proposal.

The preamble included direct responses to recent developments in the state, like rejections of the gold standard, which is in the state Republican platform, and of the closed primary system recently adopted by Idaho Republicans.

Grant pointed out there is no litmus test for Democrats, and the platform isn't meant to define all of the party members' beliefs.

"Folks just have to read for themselves and decide what they like and what they don't like," Grant said.

For about 40 years, Peters hosted fourth-grade students on field trips to teach them about gems. About half of his gem collection is now at the College of Idaho.

In 1992, Peters ran for state Senate against Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and was defeated in the primary election.

Cameron said he's deeply saddened to hear about Peters' death. He described Peters as a good friend and "consummate public servant."

Cameron said Peters was professional and kind during the 1992 campaign. That continued once the campaign ended.

Peters' ties with Jerome ran deep. He arrived in town in 1929 when he was 7 years old.

During World War II, he served in the Army Air Corps for four years. In 1945, he married the love of his life, Blanche Callen.

After the war, Peters returned to Jerome where he built his career. His projects included developing a business park south of Jerome and building the KOA campground.

Roy Prescott — a former Jerome County commissioner - knew Peters for decades. He went through high school with a few of Peters' children and they

Dworshak Dam Safety Upgraded

BY REBECCA BOONE Associated Press

BOISE • The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has upgraded the safety rating of a major Columbia Basin dam, but there haven't been any major repairs or changes to the structure itself.

Instead, corps spokesman Bruce Henrickson said Tuesday, the federal agency decided to change the rating of Dworshak Dam from "Unsafe or Potentially Unsafe" to "Conditionally Unsafe" after studying the risks faced by the dam.

"We're not saying the dam itself is necessarily safer," he said. "What we're saying is that we've revised the safety rating after taking a closer look and confirming that it's a robust dam and the likelihood of a seismic event is low."

Officials additionally have determined that the cracks in the dam and leaks don't present an urgent risk of failure.

According to the corps' newest analysis, the biggest risks come from earthquakes, which are rare in the region, and adverse weather events - including heavy snowpack, an abnormally wet spring and a rapid warming trend.

Dworshak Dam, located near the north-central Idaho town of Orofino, is 717 feet tall - only 9 feet shorter than Hoover Dam. It's also the tallest straight-axis dam in the western hemisphere, which means that unlike the Hoover, it relies on a massive amount of concrete rather than a curved design to hold back the force of the water's flow.

The Idaho Mountain Express reported 19-yearold Steven Tyler Jameson pleaded not guilty Monday felony vehicular manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident resulting in injury or death.

At the time, investigators said 26-year-old Stephen Ray Franco was guiding Jameson as he backed up near a cliff. Blaine County Sheriff Gene Ramsey said Jameson hit the gas instead of the brake and the Jeep hit Franco, knocking him over the edge.

Experts: Science Lacking on 9/11, Cancer

NEW YORK • Call it compassionate, even political. But ... scientific? Several experts say there's no hard evidence to support the federal government's declaration this month that 50 kinds of cancer could be caused by exposure to World Trade Center

The decision could help hundreds of people get payouts from a multibillion-dollar World Trade Center health fund to repay those ailing after they breathed in toxic dust created by the collapsing twin towers on Sept. 11, 2001.

WASHINGTON • Setting up a potential constitutional confrontation, a Republican-controlled House panel voted Wednesday to cite Attorney General Eric Holder for contempt of Congress, just hours after President Barack Obama invoked executive privilege — for the first time - to withhold documents demanded by the committee.

The party-line vote was 23-17 following hours of caustic debate. The controversy goes next to the full House, where Republican Speaker John Boehner said there would be a vote next week unless there was some resolution in the meantime.

Committee Chairman Darrell Issa of California said that "more than eight months after a subpoena" for the documents — which concern how the Justice Department learned there were problems with an Arizona probe of gun-running into Mexico – Obama's "untimely assertion" of executive privilege was no reason to delay the contempt

Egypt's Election Outcome Delayed

BY HAMZA HENDAWI

Associated Press

CAIRO • Authorities delayed Thursday's planned announcement of the winner of Egypt's presidential election, likely for several days, hiking tension as allegations of fraud swirled and each candidate declared he was the victor.

Amid the atmosphere of political confusion, the Muslim Brotherhood claimed there was an organized campaign of allegations against it to mar the election and keep its candidate, Mohammed Morsi, out of the presidency. The accusation raises temperatures and the possibility of a backlash from the Brotherhood if its rival - former prime minister Ahmed Shafiq - is declared the

On top of the potentially explosive dispute over the election is murkiness over the latest health scare of the 84-year-old former President Hosni Mubarak, who was ousted in Egypt's uprising last year and is now serving a life sentence in prison.

Overnight, state media reported that he suffered a stroke and was put on life support. He was transferred to a military hospital from the Cairo prison hospital where he has been kept since his June 2 conviction and sentencing for failing to stop the killing of protesters during the up-

Security officials said Wednesday he was in a coma but off life support and his heart and other vital organs were functioning. But the ambiguity over his condition has fueled skepticism among the public, where many already suspect that reports of his deteriorating condition are merely a pretext by security and military officials sympathetic to the former boss to get him out of prison to a more comfortable facility.

Immigration Suddenly Roiling Presidential Contest

BY STEVE PEOPLES AND JIM KUHNHENN

Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. • No longer a backburner issue, immigration is roiling the presidential contest as President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney seek to court the nation's swelling Hispanic population. The outcome could influence political battle lines and shape American politics for generations.

By week's end, both candidates will address the same Latino political convention in Florida, showcasing contrasting political ideologies. The Supreme Court is about to render judgment on a get-tough Arizona law, and just last week the Democratic president announced plans to ease deportation rules for some children of illegal immigrants With Election Day less than five months away, Hispanic voters are energized and paying close attention, said Arturo Vargas, executive director of the

this week's convention. "There's a lot at stake. We're talking about a significant share of the American electorate that could well decide this election," Vargas said. "It's only now that both candidates are turning their attention to the Latino vote?"

Indeed, both sides are crafting aggressive strategies to appeal to a demographic that is by no means monolithic but has supported Democrats in recent elections. Some Republicans fear - and Democrats hope - that Obama could capitalize on this moment to help solidify Hispanic voters, much as President Lyndon Johnson hardened the black vote for Democrats as he pushed the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The stakes are high not only for states with larger Hispanic populations such as Florida, Nevada and Colorado, but for a growing number of other battlegrounds where even a modest shift among Latino voters could be significant.

Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan • A suicide bomber killed 21 people including three U.S. soldiers at a checkpoint in a packed market in eastern Afghanistan on Wednesday – the third assault targeting Americans in as many days.

The daily violence is threatening to undermine international hopes of an orderly handover to Afghan forces at the end of 2014. Although American officials stress successes in establishing pockets of governance in some areas, the east and south continue to be plagued by regular attacks and clashes.

What Is Executive Privilege?

BY CONNIE CASS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Presidents dating back to George Washington have claimed a murky power to keep the inner workings of their administrations secret from Congress.

That authority - known as executive privilege - isn't in the Constitution. It hasn't been clearly defined by the courts. Yet invoking it has proven effective for presidents determined to keep witnesses or documents away from congressional investigators.

President Barack Obama is the latest to assert the privilege: He refused Wednesday to turn over some Justice Department documents about a botched anti-smuggling operation that allowed hundreds of guns sold in Arizona to end up in Mexico. Here's a look, in question and answer form, at executive privilege:

Q: How can a president shrug off a subpoena from a congressional committee?

A: Presidents say they should be free to engage in private decision-making with their advisers without fearing how their words or internal memos might look to Congress or the public. Several presidents have argued that this authority also extends to the work of highlevel agency officials, even if they weren't communicating with the president or White House about such

Q: Where does the idea of executive privilege come

A: It's a principle based on the constitutionally mandated separation of powers – the idea that the executive branch, Congress and the courts operate independently of each other.

The concept of executive privilege dates at least to 1792, when Congress was probing a disastrous battle against American Indians that cost the lives of hundreds of U.S. soldiers. President George Washington and his Cabinet decided the president had the right to refuse to turn over some documents if disclosing them would harm the public. In the end, Washington gave lawmakers what they sought. But the idea of executive privilege took root.

Q: Didn't the Supreme Court settle the issue when ordered President Richard Nixon to hand over Watergate tapes recorded in the White

A: Not really. The court ordered Nixon to surrender the tapes in that case -acriminal investigation. But the justices also found a constitutional basis for claims of executive privilege, leaving the door open for presidents to cite it in future clashes with Congress.

Q: Do presidents claim executive privilege often?

A: Most reach for it sparingly. Wednesday was Obama's first time in his 3 1/2 years in office. His predecessor, George W. Bush, cited it six times in eight years. Bush's father invoked it only once in his single term.

The administration of President Bill Clinton, who faced investigation of his Whitewater land deals and then a sex-and-lies scandal, asserted executive privilege 14 times. Some of those claims were kept quiet and quickly dropped, however.

Q: What comes next for Obama?

A: Probably more negotiation. In the past, presidents and lawmakers have been loath to let an executive privilege fight escalate into a court battle.

Q: Why not go to court to settle questions about executive privilege once and for types of lung disease.

"To imagine that there is strong evidence about any cancer resulting from 9/11 is naive in the extreme," said Donald Berry, a biostatistics professor at the University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston.

Yet this month, Dr. John Howard, who heads the federal agency that researches workplace illnesses, added scores of common and rare cancers to a list that had previously included just 12 ailments caused by dust expo-

Lung, skin, breast and thyroid cancer were among those added; of the most common types of cancer, only prostate cancer was excluded.

"We recognize how personal the issue of cancer and all of the health conditions related to the World Trade Center tragedy are to 9/11 responders, survivors and their loved ones," Howard said in a June 8 statement.

He declined requests for an interview with The Associated Press. His decision, based on an advisory panel's recommendation, will go through a public comment period and additional review before it's final.

Several factors about the decision by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health raised eyebrows in the scientific community:

- Only a few of the 17 people on the advisory panel are experts at tracking cancer and weighing causal risks; they were outnumbered by occupational physicians and advocates for Sept. 11 rescue and cleanup workers.
- Exposure to a cancercausing agent doesn't necessarily mean someone will develop cancer. And if they do, conventional medical wisdom says it generally takes decades. But the panel agreed to cover those diagnosed with cancer within just a few years of the disaster.
- The panel members favored adding cancers if there was any argument to include them. They added thyroid cancer because a study found a higher-than-expected number of cases in firefighters who responded to 9/11, even though thyroid cancer is generally linked to genetics or high doses of radiation. The same study found a lower-than-expected number of lung cancers, but it was added because it was considered a plausible consequence of inhaling toxins at the site.

small but fast-growing segment of K-12 education, enroll fewer children with disabilities than traditional public schools, according to a new federal study.

The report, released Wednesday by the Government Accountability Office, examined how many disabled students are served by charter schools as compared with traditional public schools.

About 8 percent of the students at charter schools are percent of students in traditional public schools, the GAO found. Differences in enrollment were seen across a range of disabilities, from autism to speech impairment.

Public schools that accept federal money, including charters, are required by law to provide a "free appropriate" education to all disabled children. They cannot exclude disabled students or otherwise discriminate against them.

Ralph Black Peters

Feb. 3, 1922-June 16, 2012

JEROME • The Honorable Ralph Black Peters, a good and faithful servant, was taken home to be with our Lord on June 16, 2012, at the age of 90. He died at home from complications of Parkinson's disease. He lived a full and rich life. He was much loved husband, father, grandfather, uncle and friend.

He left behind his wife of 67 years, Blanche Callen Peters; his three sons, William Thomas Peters (Susie) from San Antonio, Texas, Robert C. Peters (Monali) from Rock Springs, Wyo., and Thomas Ray Peters (Julia Ann) from Jerome, Idaho; and two daughters, Katherine (Katie) Peters Caldwell (Thomas) from Woodland, Calif., and Margaret (Peggy) Ann Stanley (Donald) from Twin Falls, Idaho. He leaves behind 27 grandchildren and 48 great-grandchildren.

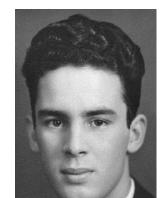

Ralph was born to William Ray and N. Lorene Schleigh Black on Feb 3, 1922, in Huntington Park, Calif. He and his younger brother, Frank, and sister, Dorothy, were adopted during the Great Depression by Wm. Ray Black's second cousin, Axline (Peggy) Fay and William Allison Peters, a childless couple residing in Jerome, Idaho. Ralph, his brother and sister arrived in Jerome by train in 1929 and were welcomed into a loving home. They were the darlings of the Peters' household. Ralph lost his sister, Dorothy, to peritonitis in 1931 and his brother, William Frank, in World War II on the battleship West Virginia off Okinawa in 1945.

Ralph was in the Army Air Corps for four years and flew a B-25 Mitchell bomber out of the Aleutian Islands in Alaska from 1943 to 1945. His college education at University of Idaho was interrupted to join our forces in the world struggle against the evil regime. He struggled throughout his life with his memories of the war.

On Feb. 12, 1945, Ralph married his sweetheart, Blanche Elaine Callen, and they spent part of their first vear of their marriage at Pampa Texas Air Base. After he was discharged from the Army, Ralph was the assistant manager of the Jerome Water Company, which was owned by his father Wm. A. Peters, and was there until it was sold to the city of Jerome in 1956. He then bought the Jerome Abstract and Title Co. and was there until it was sold in 1978. The family farm south of Jerome was also a vital part of his life, and he enjoyed his farming days. He built the KOA Campground between Twin Falls and Jerome with his wife Blanche, and they had many stories to tell of that venture. He and Blanche also built their family home on Avenue A in 1956, and he lived there until his death.

Ralph was a civic leader in Jerome. He was a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, which he resigned to become a city councilman. He served as mayor for two terms in 1982 to 1990. He served as Idaho State representative from 1987 through 1992, a position he truly loved. He sponsored two bills in the Idaho Legislature that were passed, one for the "Amber Alert" and one to create the Hagerman Prehistoric Horse as the Idaho State Fossil. He was written up in US News as one of the only men serving in the city government and the state government at the same time. He was also an emeritus member of the Urban Renewal Agency.

Ralph was named Citizen of the Year for the city of Jerome in 1985. He served on the Jerome Public Library Board for eight years. He was the Civil Defense director for Jerome County during the Cuban Missile Crisis. He was a Boy Scout leader, commander of the American Legion in 1958, president of Rotary in 1963, a Rotarian Paul Harris Fellow, president of the Idaho Association of Cities in 1989, chairman of the Region IV Development Corporation and a member of the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry. In 1980, he was a People to People International Ambassador to China. He was a champion for Japanese-Americans and was a member of the Japanese American Citizens League. He was instrumental in creating the business park south of Jerome and was director of the Idaho Farm and Ranch Museum. The city of Jerome's water pumping plant east of Jerome bears his name. He and his wife, Blanche, were named Chamber of Commerce Citizens of the Year in 1998.

Ralph was confirmed a member of the Presbyterian Church of Jerome at the age of 15, where his mother was an active member and the choir director. He sang in the choir for more than 60 years. He served as an elder for the Presbyterian Church nine different times for three-year terms, the first term in 1958 and the last in 2005. He was a vital part of his church community.

Ralph was an active member in the Horseless Carriage Club, Jerome Historical Society, Archaelogical Group, and the Minerals and Gem Club. As a young man, Ralph enjoyed his deer hunting trips with his friends; his bowling team; his annual camping trips to the Sawtooth Mountains with his family and best friends, Grace and Duge Pharris; snow skiing and water skiing with his children; and later in life, he loved his amateur photography. He renewed his pilot's license in 1981 and inspired three of his children to attain their pilot's licenses. He loved little children and had nicknames for most of his grandchildren. He had a tender heart for animals and loved his dog, Scotty, as a boy and his cat, Cricket, until recently. His legacy to us all was to keep the door to your heart and the door to your house open to others.

Ralph was an honest, dedicated, uncomplaining servant of his community, his church and his country. His dedication to civil service was a passion for him and his family says, "He's gone to another meeting."

A visitation will be held Friday evening, June 22, at Farnsworth Mortuary, 1343 S. Lincoln in Jerome, where family and friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. The funeral will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 23, at the First Presbyterian Church, 262 E. Ave. A in Jerome, with the Rev. Nate Dreesmann officiating. Interment with military honors will follow in the Jerome Cemetery, 901 W. Ave. I in Jerome.

Ralph's family suggests that, in lieu of flowers, memorials be made in Ralph's name to the First Presbyterian Church, Piano Fund, 262 E. Ave. A, Jerome, ID 83338, or to a charity of your choice

Donna Labrum

Feb. 16, 1925-June 19, 2012

Wife, mother-twovery small words to describe a large and generous soul who has left us.

TWIN FALLS • Donna Labrum of Twin Falls, passed away Tuesday, June 19, 2012, at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center due to complications from cancer.

She was 87 and the youngest of eight children born to Rudolf and Clara Frances Schwendiman. She grew up on a farm in Newdale, Idaho, during the Great Depression, and her great passions were horses, dolls and her family. Her greatest pride were her four children, Ren, Marcene, Wayne and Kevin. She never missed an opportunity to tell them how much they were loved and how incredibly proud she was to be their mother. She was a generous and loyal friend who took great joy in just spending time talking with people. She was never too busy to lend a hand, an ear or a shoulder to anyone in need. She leaves behind a legacy of friends who will remember her as much for her hugs as for her kind and loving personality.

While her first and most important job was raising her children, she worked outside the home as well. During World War II, she worked in a factory in Ogden, Utah, dismantling, cleaning and reassembling guns for the war effort. When the war ended, she returned to eastern Idaho and, on Feb. 6, 1946, married Donald D. Labrum in the Idaho Falls Temple. They lived in the eastern Idaho area and had their first child, Donald Ren. They then settled in the Twin Falls area, where Marcene, Wayne and Kevin were born. She began working the night shift at Universal Frozen Foods so that she could be home in afternoons and evenings for her children. She worked there for more than 20 years on the potato spec line and eventually retired to enjoy time with was a deeply devoted member of the LDS church. She lived and breathed the principles learned there and worked to pass on faith to others by setting an example. She held many positions in church, but her last and favorite was as the ward librarian. Her faith was a great comfort to her.

She is survived by her children, Ren (Pat) Labrum of Twin Falls, Marcene (Lee) Sievers of Glenns Fer-Wayne (Carolyn) Labrum of Boise and Kevin (Kim) Labrum of Boise; her grandchildren, Brenda, James, Marylee, Kathy, Frances, Nicole, Michael, Allisha, Daniel and Ashley; numerous great-grandchildren; and great-greatgrandchildren; as well as four of her siblings, Reed Schwendiman of Washington, Wayne (Verla) Schwendiman of Washington, Melvin Schwendiman of Newdale, Idaho, and Lucile Osborn of Rexburg, Idaho. She was preceded in death by her husband, Donald Labrum (2007); her parents, Rudolf (1955) and Clara Frances Schwendiman (1963); three of her siblings, Madeline, Clara May and Elmer Schwendiman; and one granddaughter, Kaitlin Sievers (1989).

The funeral for Donna will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, June 22, at the Maurice Street LDS Stake Center, 421 Maurice St. N. in Twin Falls, with a graveside service for the family immediately following at Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery. A luncheon will be served at 3:30 p.m. at the stake center for all family and friends. Visitation will be held from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, June 21, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, and from 1-2 p.m. Friday at the stake center. Backcountry Horsemen's Group Assists BLM

The challenging terrain and sheer distance of the signage project called for saddle horses and pack mules to better enable BLM staff and volunteers access to the area.

Nearly a mile of boundary markers delineating land managed by the State of Idaho and the BLM were installed in steep, rocky terrain.

Taking Aim at Carp

Bowfishing targets a small percentage of Idaho anglers, but it's a sport that gives anglers a whopper of a tale.

BY ANDREW WEEKS aweeks@magicvalley.com

JEROME • There's one now, said Zach Blindert, drawing his bow and taking quick aim at the large carp that swam beneath the green surface of the Snake River.

He released the arrow from his compound bow, shooting the arrow through the water ... and missing the carp by a hair.

That's the way it is sometimes when bowfishing,

Blindert said. The water distorts what you're seeing under its surface, a phenomena called refraction. Rays of light bend at the water's surface, making fish appear to be where they are not. To compensate, he said, archers have to aim lower. Practice with underwater targets can improve your aim — or just go bowfishing a lot. Blindert does the latter and said he usually has good luck with his bow and arrows.

SUN VALLEY • Defending National Mountain bike Champion Georgia Gould, who lived in Ketchum for several years, will vie for the Stars and Stripes jerseys that says she's the best in the nation in Sun Valley next week.

Gould will be among an estimated 1,500 mountain bikers expected to descend on Bald Mountain when the USA Cycling Mountain Bike Cross-country National Championships return to Sun Valley for the second year in a row.

Gould will compete in the nine-day event before heading to London where she has been named to the U.S. Olympic women's mountain bike team. "Every pro in the country will be there. Heather Irmiger, Lea Davison, Todd Wells, Jeremy Horgan-Kobelski, Stephen Ettinger, Sam Schultz and Adam Craig - they're all coming," said Greg Randolph general manager for the Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"The word got out about how good an event it was last year so I wouldn't be surprised if we don't see a 15 percent increase over last year." Last year's event drew 1,100 racers plus family and support crew − a big boon for an event that had seen lackluster attendance up until it moved to Sun Valley.

This year's event - like last year's will offer a myriad of fun for spectators, as well as group rides and concerts that non-racers can participate in.

Two-wheel mania gripped Ketchum last year the town as riders poured into the valley from places like Hackettstown, N.J. and Fair Oaks Ranch, Texas, swelling the town with cars and vans with bike racks on top.

Bald Mountain, known for its perfectly coiffeured groom slopes in winter, sported a rock fall of large jagged boulders tumbling into the stadium at the base of River Run. More than a few racers tumbled over their handlebars, prompting spectators to chorus a universal "ohhh." A long stretch of large "Every pro in the country will be there."

The course gave even competitive veterans like Ketchum's Muffy Ritz cause to pause.

"It's a very tough course fitness-wise and technically, which makes it a very good course," she said. "I have to admit I got to the top of the rock fall and stopped. I wished I had had the guts to

On June 15, Blindert was on the Snake River in Jerome, where as of late he's been coming to bowfish. It's a sport he started doing with family and friends in his home state of South Dakota. He is living in Jerome for the next few months, interning at Jerome Cheese Co.

"I don't know anyone here yet," he said, noting that bowfishing is a way for him to keep busy after work or on weekends while away from home.

"I think this is better than regular fishing," he said as we drove to the river in his pickup. "I think it's important because carp are an invasive species. There's so many of them."

Bowfishing in Idaho

Carp are unprotected in Idaho and one of few fish anglers may bowfish, said Doug Megargle, regional fisheries manager with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. Most bowfisherman hunt just carp, he said, because they are easy to identify whereas other allowed species are not. And because of their size and depending on how they are hit, carp usually put up a good fight. Carp's average weight is 8 to 10 pounds but can be as much as 20 pounds.

How popular is bowfishing in Idaho?

Over the past three to four months, Fish and Game randomly selected 16,000 Idaho anglers to participate in a survey, Megargle said. One question: what gear they use. Of the 5,600 people who responded, 4 percent said they bowfish.

"It's really a specialized group," he said. "It typically involves people who, in most cases, already are archery hunters or have an affinity to using bows."

Equipment is a little different than regular bowhunting. Most arrows, for instance, have hinges or barbs that pop out once they hit their target, and most bows have a reel to retrieve the fish.

The rules? There is no bag limit on the number of carp bowfishermen can harvest, though a fishing license is required.

"That's where it becomes confusing for some people," Megargle said, "because it's kind of a cross between bowhunting and fishing. But the state of Idaho technically considers it fishing."

Most anglers do not eat carp, he said, but they are expected to manage their catch. Fish and Game prefers that anglers not litter areas with dead or dying carp.

"That's not a very sportsman thing to do," he said, noting that some anglers instead take the fish home to use as garden compost. In some cultures, he said, carp is considered a delicacy.

All carp in Idaho are of the common variety. Most have scales across their bodies, he said, except for mirror carp, which have very few.

Still Learning Patience

Blindert started bowfishing as a young man in South Dakota, where he said there are plenty of places to shoot arrows. His grandfather sold archery equipment, he said, so it was natural for young Zach to get involved with the sport.

After all this time, however, the thing Blindert hasn't mastered is patience.

"I'm a person who gets extremely flustered when I can't get them," he said. "It's like, 'You trying to mess with me, huh?""

On our outing June 15 -Blindert's 23rd birthday – he shot only one carp, hitting it near the tail. Because the arrow didn't damage any organs, he released the carp back into the wild Snake instead of letting it die on the banks.

"I usually get more fish," he said, noting that he averages about eight to 10 carp per trip. They're a dime a dozen at waters in South Dakota, he said, but a little tougher to hunt in the Snake

As the sun began its slow descent toward evening, we saw a few of the fish swimming near a calm pool near the river's banks.

"These must be 20pounders," Blindert said, as he moved through shrubs to get a better shot.

"One more try," he said, lifting his bow and pointing it at the green water. "Let me see if I can get one of these."

Melissa Bento, a seasonal employee with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, holds a mirror carp caught at Lake Walcott in 2006. The mirror carp, part of the common carp species, is unlike its siblings in that it has very few scales.

go down it and I know if I could have picked a line and done it once I'd have been fine. But the consequences were too high for a 53-year-old."

Janelle Connors, who raced sporadically when she was younger, turned out for the race because it was in her backyard.

"It felt crazy to be around all these big races on trails we ride all the time," she said. "The rock fall was very exciting. You get amped up, pick and line and go for it."

"I loved the event," said Mike Hattrup, watched the event last year with his son Axel. "It has great energy and it's got to open the eyes of the mountain bike community to what we have here. Sun Valley has the potential to be a better mountain bike town even than a ski town-the riding's that's great."

New Hatchery Aims to Boost Snake River's Sockeye Production

SPRINGFIELD • A new hatchery near Springfield in southeastern Idaho means up to a five-fold increase in the capacity of the sockeye recovery program that has kept Snake River sockeye salmon from ex-

The Northwest Power and Conservation Council recently recommended construction of a $13.5 million hatchery to boost production of Snake River sockeye, listed as an endangered species in 1991, and it will continue a long-term effort to rebuild the population to naturally spawning, self-sustaining levels.

The new hatchery will be funded by the Bonneville Power Administration as part of its obligation to mitigate the impact of hydropower dams on salmon.

"With this production facility we are building on our success to date in restoring these unique and valuable fish to Idaho," Idaho's council member Bill Booth said. "This is an important step for our state and for the Northwest, as we are showing how a species on the brink of extinction can be restored through the dedication and collaboration of state, federal and tribal scientists and policy-makers?

When completed in 2013, the new facility will be operated by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and will be capable of producing up to 1 million juvenile sockeye annually for release in the Sawtooth Basin of central Idaho, the headwaters of the Salmon

Snake River sockeye are the southernmost of their species, and they spawn farther from the ocean more than 900 miles and at higher elevation more than 6,000 feet above sea level - than any other sockeye.

In 1991, Idaho Fish and Game initiated conservation and research projects for sockeye. Just a few years later the number of adult sockeye returning from the ocean to the Sawtooth Basin dropped to zero - in 1995 and 1997 - but reached 1,336 in 2010, an amount not seen since the 1950s.

This success resulted from a captive hatching and rearing program started by Idaho Fish and Game. Today the sockeye are produced at hatcheries in Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

The Springfield Hatchery will provide additional incubation and rearing space so that the program can grow beyond the conservation phase and transition to a recolonization phase. The emphasis will be placed on increased numbers of adults returning from the ocean for use in hatchery spawning plans and to release to the habitat for natural spawning.

Bob Roberts is one of many who enjoy the benefits of fishing small community lakes in Kansas.

Fishermen Find Success on Community Lakes

BY BRENT FRAZEE McClatchy Newspapers

HERINGTON, Kan. • Bob Roberts was getting out-

Oh, he was catching crappies as he worked a cove at Herington City Lake. But a little boy sitting on a rock at the water's edge was doing better.

Dangling a night crawler in the water, Brent Mercer, 4, pulled out a large green sunfish. Then he tugged on his fish basket and revealed a catch that include big crappies, bluegills and a few bass.

"The fishin's good on this rock," said Brent, who was camping on the lake with his family. "This is where all the fish are."

Roberts shook his head and laughed. He had just witnessed the beauty of the Community Fisheries Assistance Program (CFAP).

In the past, community lakes such as Herington were open to the public, but there was a catch. Fishermen who weren't from that city or county had to pay user fees. And often they weren't

"To buy a boat and a fishing permit, it might cost you $100 to $125 on some of these community lakes," said Roberts, who lives in Salina, Kan. "And if you went on a weekend, sometimes you'd have a tough time finding a place to buy permits. At some of these places, City Hall was the only place where you could buy permits, and they were closed on weekends.

"It got to the point where it was a real hassle to fish some of these community lakes."

But it's different now. Ever since 2005, when the Kansas Department of Wildlife, Parks and Tourism started its Community Fisheries Assistance Program, hundreds of community lakes have been much easier to access.

On any given day, you might see a veteran fisherman such as Roberts casting alongside a youngster such as Brent at a lake such as Herrington.

In the program, the state leases almost 250 community lakes across the state in exchange for those cities and counties removing their special fees. The state uses federal funding to pay the communities to compensate for the lost revenue. Now all that is required is a state fishing license.

Wildlife, Parks and Tourism provides the fisheries management, while the city maintains the grounds, doing the mowing and trash upkeep, for example.

It's a marriage that has worked well. The small lakes, most of which are fewer than 1,000 acres, provide peaceful places to fish, with good opportunities from shore and boat alike.

"These community lakes really are our crown jewels," said Tom Lang, fisheries program specialist for Wildlife, Parks and Tourism. "When you look at the sheer number of locations in CFAP, it's the greatest fishery we have.

"We have these lakes all over the state. No one is too far from a CFAP lake. Because they're so close to home, people can go out for an hour after work and still catch fish."

An American Innovation: The Compound Bow

et's start at the beginning, by elaborating on the characteristics that distinguish a compound bow from all the others.

The primary distinguishing feature of this innovative American design is that compound bows are composed of a large number of integrated parts, primarily multiple strings and pulley systems (cams) at one or both ends of the limbs, making them much more complex than their single string recurve and long-bow cousins.

The compound's camming system provides a mechanical advantage that allows a shooter to hold back a greater draw weight (poundage) with less effort (let off). Holding back less weight means you can take time to aim more precisely at the bull's-eye or wait out the shot until your game animal moves and presents you with a better angle.

Despite these obvious advantages, it is this wondrous complexity that makes selecting a compound bow all the more intimidating for those new to the sport. Even though there are many excellent introductory websites, magazines, television programs and videos available for fledgling archers, I believe there is no substitute for some one-onone time with an experienced bow-shooting acquaintance or a local bow shop pro. In fact, the professional shop is probably your best bet since they not only possess the knowledge and expertise to guide your most appropriate equipment selections, most shops have a target range on site that will give you the opportunity to actually handle and shoot a wide variety of models to find the bow that's just right for you.

Modern compounds are generally available with four different styles of cams or eccentrics. They are the hybrid cam, single cam, camplus 1/2 and the two-cam designs. Each style has its own unique advantages and disadvantages - some are faster, some are smoother or more forgiving, some are more compact, etc. You can find out which style best fits your needs by performing a side-by-side comparison at the bow shop.

Clayton Nielson, hunter education coordinator with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, suggests that you select the bow that best suits you in the following three categories: bow's physical size/weight, draw length, and draw weight or poundage.

By hefting as many different bows as possible, you'll discover the one that feels as though it was tailor-made for you.

To calculate your draw length, measure the distance between your outstretched middle fingertips and divide that length by 2.5. My fingertip distance is 65 inches, which, when divided by 2.5, gives me an optimum draw length of 26 inches. Draw weight or poundage also is highly individualistic.

Just be sure to select a bow that offers a poundage range that provides adequate arrow speeds without causing undue physical fatigue. Good shooting!

Canoeists paddle 631-mile trail from Ga. to Gulf

BY THOMAS SPENCER The Birmingham News

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. • David Haynes of Blount Springs and his golden retrievers, Roscoe and Bailey, are just a day or two away from completing a 631-mile canoe trek from the Alabama-Georgia border to the sandy shores where Mobile Bay meets the Gulf of

It's an epic journey to be sure, but Haynes isn't even the first this year to make it.

Two paddlers already have finished and four more launched June 1, according to Fred Couch, the founder and president of the Alabama Scenic River Trail.

Couch attributes the surge in long-distance paddlers, at least in part, to the exposure generated by the 8-page spread in the April edition of Sea Kayaker, an internationally distributed magazine for paddling enthusiasts.

"More people have done the Alabama Scenic River Trail this year than in the entire history of the trail," said Jim Felder, executive director of the nonprofit that develops and promotes the trail.

The trail, founded in 2008, starts on the Coosa River's Weiss Lake and moves through the chain of lakes on the Coosa, then follows the Alabama River to the Mobile-Tensaw Delta. ASRT offers detailed maps of the course, including marked portage trails around dams.

Haynes, a 57-year-old freelance writer, is blogging about his trip as he goes and plans on writing a book about the experience for The University of Alabama Press. Bad weather currently has him stranded at Meaher State Park on the shores of Mobile Bay.

"It is not very much fun right now," he said. "But it will be good material for the book."

Gulf lease sale nets a wealth in winning bids • The federal government's first auction of offshore petroleum leases in the same area where the Deepwater Horizon exploded in 2010 brought in $1.7 billion in winning bids Wednesday. Interior Department Secretary Ken Salazar called the sale robust and said it demonstrated that the drilling industry was returning to levels seen before BP PLC's catastrophic oil spill. "We're back. The rigs are back," Salazar said. "It's proof positive that the oil and gas industry is confident that they can meet the heightened safety requirements that we have instituted since the Deepwater Horizon."

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Fed's Latest Action Doesn't Impress Investors

NEW YORK (AP) • It's going to take more than low interest rates to fire up investors. The Federal Reserve's latest plan to help the economy failed to impress Wall Street on Wednesday. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 12.94 points, or a tenth of a percent, at 12,824.39. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 2.29 points, or 0.2 percent, to 1,355.69. The Nasdaq composite index rose 0.69 points, a fraction of a percent, to 2,930.45.

Hawaii Gov.: Oracle's Ellison to Buy Most of Lanai

BY JENNIFER SINCO KELLEHER Associated Press

HONOLULU • Hawaii Gov. Neil Abercrombie says Oracle Corp. CEO Larry Ellison is buying 98 percent of the island of Lanai.

Abercrombie said Wednesday that the land's current owners, Castle & Cooke, have filed a transfer application with the state's public utilities commission.

Abercrombie says Ellison has had a longstanding interest in the island.

Lanai is Hawaii's smallest publicly accessible inhabited island. It's about 141 square miles and has some 3,200 residents. It attracted more than 26,000 visitors from January through April

Official: Beef Industry Must Combat Misinformation Quickly

BY STEVE KADEL skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The controversy over "pink slime" cost the beef industry several hundred jobs and $90 million in payroll, an industry spokeswoman said Wednesday in Twin Falls.

Season Solorio, senior director of issues management for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, spoke about crisis control during the Idaho Cattle Association's Summer Round-Up at the Red Lion Hotel Canyon Springs.

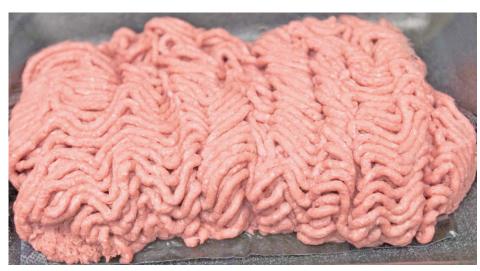

She said it's vital to head off attacks by anti-beef groups as quickly as possible by giving the media facts to combat rumors, particularly those spread by online bloggers.

"The USDA is one of the most credible sources," Solorio said.

Locally, she said, ranchers and other in the beef industry can protect their markets by having good relationships with local retailers, school food program personnel and others who buy the product.

Mike Rucks, director of technical services for Beef Products Inc., said the media used "scare tactics" and "agenda-driven reporting" to smear the image of lean finely textured beef — the so-called pink slime.

Consumer fear of the product was whipped up so

What Is 'Pink Slime'?

Lean finely textured beef is a low-cost ingredient in ground beef made from fatty bits of meat left over from other cuts. After being heated and spun to remove fat, it's then treated with ammonium hydroxide gas to kill problem bacteria like E. coli.

The "pink slime" label was coined by a federal microbiologist several years ago. Activists opposed to the meat's inclusion in many products seized onto the term earlier this year.

quickly that the beef industry failed to respond in time, he said.

"We weren't sophisticated enough to follow social media and didn't realize what was going on," Rucks said during a symposium.

He added that lean finely textured beef, which is combined with higher-fat beef to provide a leaner product, has been a nutritional and safe food for many years. "It isn't scraps, it doesn't come off the floor," Rucks said. The attack wasn't limited to BPI, one of the nation's largest producer of lean finely textured beef, he pointed out. "It has had ripple effects, and we as an industry have to come together and educate the public," Rucks said.

"The critics that attacked LFTB have an agenda and they're going to continue coming after beef."

Part of the problem, and the reason consumers can easily be misled, is because many people are disconnected from the process of raising beef, he said. "They have no idea where food comes from and the beef industry is an easy target."

Senate Votes to Retain Sugar Program

BY JIM ABRAMS Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Senate voted Wednesday not to tamper with the Depression-era program that protects U.S. sugar growers as it sped toward completion of a $500 billion bill to operate farm and food programs over the next five years.

The sugar program, which controls supply levels, sets prices and limits imports, has long been a target of those who say the government supports agribusiness over the interests of con-

But in a 53-46 vote, the Senate defeated an amendment to the farm bill that would have reduced the scope of the program, including eliminating a provision of the 2008 farm bill that required the federal government to buy surplus sugar which was then sold to ethanol companies at a loss.

Last week, the Senate by a similar vote also defeated an amendment to phase out the program entirely.

The sugar vote was one of the few remaining contentious issues as the Senate worked through some 73 amendments to the 1,000-page measure that establishes safety nets for farmers, authorizes conservation programs and funds the food stamp program.

A final vote is expected Thursday morning, sending it to the House where it could face an uphill battle. While the Senate bill cuts $23 billion from current spending levels over the next decade, the Republican-led House is likely to seek deeper cuts, particularly to the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, stamps, which $80 billion a year and makes up 80 percent of farm bill spending. The current farm act expires at the end of September.

Fed Extends 'Twist' Program to Drive Rates Lower

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Federal Reserve is trying again to jolt the American economy out of its stalled recovery. It's extending a program that aims to encourage borrowing and spending by reducing long-term interest rates.

Wednesday's decision followed months of concern that the economy is being held back by a weakened job market.

At the end of a two-day policy meeting, the Fed also sharply reduced its forecast for U.S. growth and said it's prepared to take more action if necessary. It reiterated plans to keep shortterm interest rates at record lows until at least late 2014.

"If we're not seeing a sustained improvement in the labor market, that would require additional action," Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke said later in Wall Street wasn't impressed by the Fed's limited response. Stock prices barely budged. And analysts questioned how much benefit the Fed's latest economy-boosting effort would have, in part because interest rates are already near record lows.

If the Fed's more pessimistic outlook proves accurate, President Barack Obama's chances in an election that will turn on the economy would also likely suffer.

Bernanke noted that the economy is under threat from Europe's debt crisis and the prospect of sharp spending cuts and tax increases that would take effect at the end of the year unless Congress acts. European leaders will be seeking a breakthrough at a summit next week in Brussels. Bernanke said he's in regular touch with the head of the European

Bernanke

Central Bank. The Fed said it will continue a program called Operation Twist through year's end. Under the program, the Fed has been selling $400 billion in short-term Treasurys since September and buying longer-term Treasurys. Operation Twist was to expire at the end of June. The Fed said it will extend it using $267 billion in securities. But extending Operation Twist might not provide much benefit. Businesses and consumers who aren't borrowing now aren't that likely to change their minds just because rates dropped

"This move is largely symbolic," said David Jones, chief economist at DMJ Advisors.

Jones estimates Operation Twist will lower long-term rates by only about one-tenth of a percentage point.

At his quarterly news conference later Wednesday, Bernanke said the Fed would consider more aggressive action, such as another bond-buying program. The Fed has completed two such programs. It bought more than $2 trillion in Treasurys and mortgagebacked securities, expanding its portfolio above $2.8 trillion.

The yields on Treasury bonds finished the day slightly below where they were before the announcement. The Dow Jones industrial average finished down about 13 points.

John Canally, investment strategist at LPL Financial, says the Fed delivered just what investors expected and offered a hint at further easing.

"If there's another misstep somewhere - in Europe ... more weak data the Fed's going to do more," Canally

Wis. Company that Sold to Va. Tech Gunman Closes

BY TODD RICHMOND
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. . • An online weapons dealer who sold the handgun used in the Virginia Tech massacre and provided equipment in two other mass shootings has quietly closed up shop amid a flurry of complaints from customers who allege he failed to deliver orders after billing them.

Police say Eric Thompson last month abruptly closed his Green Bay, Wis.-based business, TGSCOM Inc., as they probed scores of complaints from customers in nearly every state.

TGSCOM's connections to three mass shootings have drawn national attention in recent years. Seung-Hui Cho used a .22-caliber handgun purchased through TGSCOM when he killed 32 people at Virginia Tech in April 2007. Stephen Kazmierck, who killed five people in a Northern Illinois University classroom in 2008, bought two empty magazines and a holster through a company site. George Sodini, who killed three women when he opened fire at a Pittsburgharea health club in 2009, bought an empty magazine and a magazine loading apparatus from the company.

Thompson, who has claimed his company generates millions of dollars, has maintained he's not responsible for how people use guns, but he still has had run-ins with federal regulators and now he has dozens of people across the country angry with him.

"It gives everybody who does business online a bad name," said Dennis Johnson, a 60-year-old Web designer in Omaha, Ark.

Sandusky Defense Rests in Abuse Case

BY MARK SCOLFORO AND GENARO C. ARMAS

BELLEFONTE, Pa. • The defense in Jerry Sandusky's child sex abuse trial rested on its third day Wednesday without calling the former Penn State assistant coach to refute charges that he molested boys at his home and on campus over more than a decade.

Closing arguments were set for today in the case that led to the dismissal of Hall of Fame football coach Joe Paterno and the university president and a re-examination of college administrators' role in reporting abuse charges.

The defense called only four new witnesses Wednesday, including a physician who tried to poke holes in the story of a former Penn State coach who testified that he saw Sandusky sexually assault a boy in the campus showers more than a decade

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Former Penn State University assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky, center, leaves the Centre County Courthouse in Bellefonte, Pa., Wednesday.

The defense's case has consisted of character witnesses who defended Sandusky's reputation, a psychologist who said Sandusky had a personality disorder and the ex-coach's wife, who said she did not see her husband do anything inappropriate with the accusers. His lawyers also tried to show that investigators had shared information with an accuser about other alleged victims' stories and repeatedly suggested that accusers have financial motivations for their claims

Sandusky was only heard from via an interview with

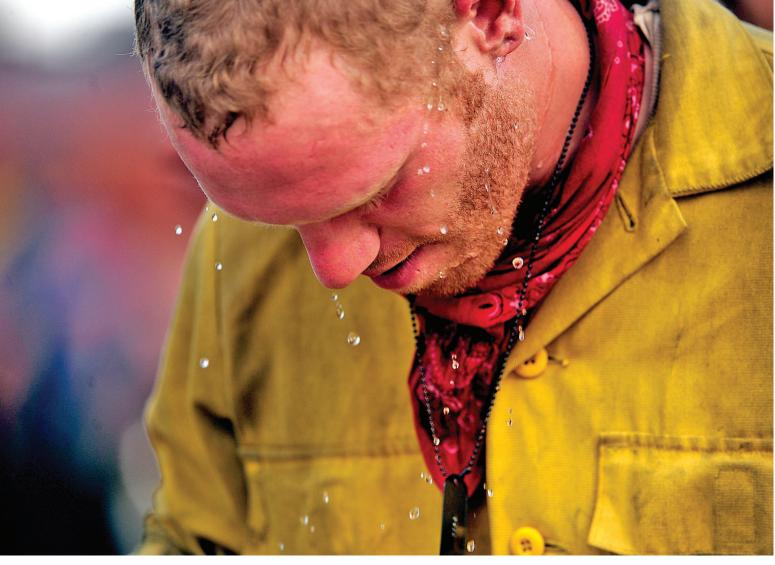

NBC's Bob Costas, saying he probably shouldn't have showered with boys; and in letters he sent to one of his accusers.

Sandusky is charged with 51 criminal counts for the alleged abuse of 10 boys over 15

One of the last witnesses called was Dr. Jonathan Dranov, a physician summoned to the home of Mike McQueary's father in February 2001 to hear McQueary's account of seeing Sandusky sexually assaulting a boy in the campus showers. The boy, known only as Victim 2, has never been identified and isn't known to prosecutors.

Dranov testified that Mc-Queary told of hearing "sexual sounds" and seeing a boy in the shower and then an arm reach around to pull him out of view. McQueary said he made eye contact with the boy and Sandusky later emerged from the showers, Dranov said.

Firefighters Get Break from Hot Weather

BY DAN ELLIOTT
Associated Press

BELLVUE, Colo. • Firefighters took advantage of a break in the heat Wednesday to ramp up their attack against wildfire burning on more than 100 square miles in northern Colorado.

"Mother Nature has allowed us this window, and we have responded very aggressively," said Brett Haberstick, a spokesman for fire managers.

After three straight days of gusty winds and temperatures in the 90s, temperatures were about 20 degrees

"We've been patient through those red flag conditions. Today we're going to be aggressive," said Bill Hahnenberg, who is leading the fight against the 65,738-acre fire west of Fort Collins.

Four single-engine firefighting aircraft were grounded briefly after possible meteor was seen in the sky.

"We've been patient through those red flag conditions. Today we're going to be aggressive."

Bill Hahnenberg, who is leading the fight against the 65,738-acre fire west of Fort Collins, Colo.

The Colorado sighting corresponded with reports of a possible meteorite filed by the crews of two commercial aircraft over Liberal, Kan., said meteorologist Scott Entrekin of the National Weather Service in Boulder.

Ian Gregor, a spokesman with the Federal Aviation Administration, said he had no reports of a meteorite or any disruptions to commercial airline traffic. The firefighting planes were quickly returned to service

Firefighters were working on extending containment lines around the fire but also focusing on protecting homes in unburned pockets of land within the perimeter. Some remained evacuated.

Conditions are also better at a wildfire burning on nearly 2 square miles near Lake George, which is 23 percent contained.

A fire that broke out Tuesday in northwestern Colorado spread to about 3 square miles, or 2,000 acres, forcing some evacuations in a subdivision, but residents were able to return that night. Moffat County Sheriff Tim Jantz said the fire is believed to have started from a cigarette thrown from a vehicle.

The largest Colorado blaze west of Fort Collins was 55 percent contained and has destroyed at least 189 homes since it was sparked by lightning June 9. Hahnenberg said it could be weeks or even months before it's finally controlled.

In Arizona, dense smoke from a wildfire near Payson prompted a health watch in the Phoenix area. Residents were asked to avoid using gas-powered lawn mowers and to limit driving or carpool.

Meanwhile, a 300-acre fire near Sequoia National Park in California is 35 percent contained, U.S. Forest Service officials said Wednesday.

Two hundred firefighters are battling the blaze on the northwest side of Lake Isabella and 200 more are on their way, said Forest Service spokeswoman Cindy Thill.

About 160 structures, including homes and cabins, and a campground near the park have been evacuated.

No structures have burned and no injuries have been reported,

Samaras Takes Over as Greek Prime Minister

BY HOWARD SCHNEIDER

The Washington Post

ATHENS • Conservative leader Antonis Samaras was sworn in as Greece's prime minister Wednesday at the head of a coalition government that will have to reconcile the demands of the country's international lenders with the growing frustration of its recession-wracked citizens.

The 61-year-old politician, head of the centerright New Democracy party, took the oath of office to the chanting of Orthodox priests after successfully concluding coalition talks with the rival Panhellenic Socialist Movement, or PASOK, and the smaller Democratic Left.

"With the help of God we will do all we can to help our people out of this crisis as quickly as possible," Samaras said in a brief statement afterward. "I will ask...the new government...to work hard so we can give our people solid hope."

The coalition agreement ends weeks of political stalemate in the country and puts to rest the imminent threat it might withdraw — or be expelled — from the euro zone. An election Sunday, contested most pointedly between Samaras and antibailout leader Alexis Tsipras, was seen as a virtual referendum on Greece's membership in the currency union.

Tsipras had threatened to withdraw from the terms of an international bailout agreement if his demands, such as a moratorium on interest payments and a nationalization of the country's banking system, were not accepted by the International Monetary Fund, the European Commission and the European Central Bank.

As it stands, Greece still faces immense challenges, but the acute risk of a euro exit for now appears off the table.

Poll: Just a Third Favor President Obama's Health Care Law

BY MARK SHERMAN

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Just a third of Americans back President Barack Obama's health care overhaul on which the Supreme Court is about to pass judgment, a new poll finds. But there is overwhelming support among both supporters and opponents for Congress and the president to begin work on a new bill if the high court strikes down the two-year-old law.

The overall level of support for the law is relatively unchanged in recent months, with 47 percent opposing it. But an Associated Press-GfK poll shows that only 21 percent of independents approve of the law, a new low in AP-GfK polling.

The Supreme Court is expected to rule on the 2010 law in the next week or so. Most of the law's major changes aimed at extending health insurance to more than 30 million Americans who now lack coverage have yet to take effect, including the requirement that most people have health insurance or pay a penalty. The insurance mandate has been among the least popular aspects of the law. Provisions that have gone into effect include extended coverage for young adults on their parents' insurance and relief for seniors with high prescription drug costs.

But whatever people think of the law, they

But whatever people think of the law, they don't want a Supreme Court ruling against it to be the last word on health care reform. More than three-fourths of Americans want their political leaders to undertake a new effort, rather than leave the health care system alone if the court rules against the law, according to the poll.

the poll.

Large majorities of both opponents and backers of the law share the view that Congress and the president should start anew. The lowest level of support for new health care legislation comes from people who identify themselves as strong supporters of the tea party. Even in that group, though, nearly 60 percent favor work on a new bill.

Gary Hess, a Republican from Discovery Bay, Calif., wants the high court to throw out regardless of their medical condition. "There needs to be compromise on both sides," the retired school administrator said.

Garrett Chase, 51, said he hopes the court leaves the law in place but agreed with Hess that the politicians should get back to work if it is struck down. "Ilive in the ghetto, and I see people dying every day," said Chase, an unemployed car salesman from Baltimore. "They can't get help because they can't afford it."

A new health care bill doesn't seem to be in either party's plans. Republicans say they will try to repeal whatever's left of the law after the high court rules and then wait at least until after the November elections to push replacement measures. Democrats say Obama will push to put in place whatever survives.

the entire law.

Non-Profit Spotlight

Paint Magic is in its 27th year of serving residents in the Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia areas.

Our goal is to paint the exteriors of 18 - 22 homes for qualifying seniors and the disabled who are on a limited income. Paint day will be July 21, 2012.

Paint Magic was formed as a non-profit organization, which was incorporated under the non-profit corporation laws of the State of Idaho in 1986. The purpose of this corporation is exclusively for charitable income. The corporation, through the use of volunteers, paints and beautifies the exterior of senior citizen's homes throughout the Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia areas.

Since 1986 through 2011 Paint Magic volunteers have painted 575 houses for seniors. During this time thousands of volunteers have shared their time, energy and good will for the benefit of older citizens in our communities.

Over the years, the Paint Magic program has consisted of a picnic crew, 15 to 22 paint teams, 1 to 4 paint professionals and many other special contributors. Twenty-three full-corporate donators and eleven associate-corporate donators make Paint Magic possible. Over 500 volunteers work together to paint homes in the Magic

How to be a sponsor: Full Corporate donors will have their name and logo printed on the t-shirts (approximately 500+). Associate donors will have their name only printed on the t-shirts. All donor names and logos will be displayed on a banner crossing Shoshone Street the week prior to Paint Day. All donor names will be printed on the Paint Magic letterhead, applications and posters. KMVT-TV, KTFY 88.1, KART, KEZJ, The Monster, KAT Country, Townsquare Media Hot 100's and The Times-News will advertise extensively prior to and immediately following Paint Day. Paint Magic posters, displaying all donors, are distributed throughout the Magic Valley and Mini-Cassia areas. Along with Paint Magic posters, the applications (showing donors) are also distributed to businesses, the Times News, and online for seniors to pick up and mail in.

How To Be A Paint Team or to become part of one: Simply contact an officer listed on our web site: www.paintmagic.org. After Year Absence, Regatta Returns

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • The Idaho Regatta is back.

After a one-year hiatus due to high water on the Snake River, the 37-year-old tradition of the nation's fastest flatbottom circle boat racing returns to Burley.

"A lot of the racers missed it, and they're excited to be coming back," said Mark Moyle, Idaho Regatta committee chairman. "The racers come to Burley because they love the atmosphere here. The community really opens their arms to the racers. I think our hospitality is what makes Burley special on the race circuit."

About 60 boats will race across 12 classes this weekend, bringing in an expected 5,000 spectators. Race teams will travel in from East (Florida, North Carolina, New Jersey) to West (Idaho, Utah, Arizona, California, Washington) and converge on Burley for a winner-take-all weekend as this year's Regatta plays host to the American Powerboat Association Flatbottom National Championships.

While the event attracts thousands of out-of-towners, Moyle hopes locals can enjoy the races just the same.

"It's a world-class sporting event and you don't have to drive to Salt Lake or Boise or Las Vegas. It's right here in your backyard. Gas prices the way they are, its advantageous to take advantage of local events," said Moyle. "The best drivers in the country are here putting on a show. Those guys spend tens of thousands of dollars and put their life on the line to go out and race. It's really worth seeing." Festivities begin with the Show and Shine, 6 p.m. today at Morey's Steakhouse in Burley, where the public can meet the drivers and get an up-close look at the boats.

Friday is Fan Appreciation Day with $5 tickets. Testing begins at noon at Burley Golf Course Marina, followed by heat racing at 5 p.m. The evening will conclude with a special Grand Prix, where two boats from each of the Super Stock, Pro Stock and K-Boat classes will duel it out in a handicapped race, separated by five-second head

Saturday and Sunday racing begins at noon.

The Idaho Regatta will wrap up 7:30 p.m. Sunday with the awards ceremony at Morey's. It's open to the public with a $10 all-you-caneat barbeque buffet. National champions will be crowned, and the coveted prize of the Regatta — the Moyle Mink and Faulkner Memorial Trophy — will be awarded to the driver who comes closest to his or her class record.

LEGION ROUNDUP

Cowboys Don't Get Bucked Twice

BY PATRICK SHELTRA psheltra@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After kicking the ball around and displaying a neartotal lack of fundamentals in a 9-5 loss in the opening game of its doubleheader on Wednesday to the Blackfoot Broncos, the Twin Falls Cowboys showed the resiliency – or unpredictability – often found in young American Legion teams in winning the nightcap, 9-4.

Kaleb Jones survived a threerun fifth to go the distance, giving up four runs while striking out five and just walking two to help his team salvage a split. Joey Hobson went 4 for 4 with two RBIs from his No. 8 spot in the lineup and the Cowboys responded to the Broncos' fifth-inning rally with one of their own, scoring five runs to provide an ample cushion.

"Kaleb Jones threw a gem of a ballgame for us and our defense played better for us too," Cowboys coach Mark Schaal said. "We played a lot better the second game. All our pitchers threw well today, we just didn't play good defense behind them in the first game."

The Cowboys' downfall in their opening-game defeat came in the fourth inning when Blackfoot scored six runs on just two hits.

That's what failing to turn two tailor-made double plays, com-

Suspicious, sure. College Football Closes in On 2014 Playoff

CHICAGO • The BCS commissioners are backing a playoff plan with the sites for the national semifinals rotating among the major bowl games and a selection committee picking the

The plan will be presented to university presidents next week for approval.

Once the presidents sign off - and that seems likely major college football's champion will be decided by a playoff for the first time starting in 2014.

"We are excited to be on the threshold of creating a new postseason structure for college football that builds on the great popularity of our sport," Notre Dame Athletic Director Jack Swarbrick said Wednesday.

All 11 commissioners stood shoulder-to-shoulder behind Swarbrick, who read the BCS statement from a podium set up in a hotel conference room.

The commissioners have been working on reshaping college football's postseason since January. The meeting Wednesday was the sixth formal get-together of the year. They met for four hours and emerged with a commitment to stand behind a plan.

"I think we're very unified," Big Ten Commissioner Jim Delany said.

The commissioners refrained from providing specifics of the plan in their announcement.

Pac-12 Commissioner Larry Scott did say the two be semifinals would worked into the existing major bowls and the site of the national championship game will be bid out to any city that wants it the way the NFL does it with the Super Bowl.

People with firsthand knowledge of the decision tell The Associated Press the semifinals of the proposed plan would rotate among the major bowls and not be tied to traditional conference relationships.

They also said that under the plan a selection committee would choose the schools that play for the national title.

The people spoke on condition of anonymity because the commissioners did not want to reveal many details before talking to their bosses.

"I am delighted," said SEC Commissioner Mike Slive, who has supported a four-team playoff for years and whose league has won the last six BCS titles. "I am pleased with the progress we have made. There are some differences, but we will work them out. We're trying to do what is in the best interest of the game.

There was some debate about whether to have semifinal sites rotate between the major bowls or link the sites of the games to traditional conference affiliations. By linking sites to leagues Southeastern Conference teams could host games at the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and Pac-12 and Big Ten teams could host games at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

LeBron Has 'A Job to Do'

MIAMI • LeBron James has never been here before.

He's been in nearly every imaginable situation everything over his nine seasons marked by three MVP awards, three trips to the NBA Finals with two teams and one decision that changed everything.

And now this: For the first time, he's one win from a championship.

"I have a job to do," James said Wednesday. "And my job is not done."

The job may get done Thursday night, when the Miami Heat — up 3-1 in this title series - host the Oklahoma City Thunder in Game 5 of the finals. Even after leaving Game 4 late with a cramp, James is on the cusp of finally becoming a champ. He was swept in his first finals trip in 2007, then he and the Heat fell in the 2011 title series in six games.

After countless ups and downs, the 804th game of his career may be the one that ends his title quest.

"I have no idea what I'll say before we go out there," said James, who got treatment against Wednesday but said soreness that followed the cramps in his left leg was easing. "It kind of just comes to me when I'm getting ready to go out there and stand on the floor. But hopefully whatever I say will inspire our guys to go out and give a good show."

James joined the Heat in 2010 after Miami convinced him that he would have enough help to win a championship - more specifically, that he wouldn't have to carry the load by himself, like he did so many times in Cleveland over his first seven seasons. The Heat were keeping Dwyane Wade, adding Chris Bosh and filling out the roster

If that axiom — more options are better – actually needed to be proven, it was done in Game 4. James could not finish the game, though he returned after the first wave of cramps hit and delivered a key 3-pointer. With James watching the final minute, Wade and Mario Chalmers helped close out the Thunder, Miami winning 104-98 to move one win away from the franchise's second championship.

"This team, I think we understand that the moment is the biggest thing," Wade said. "We're excited about the possibility of playing better, doing things better defensively, but also offensively. We don't feel like we've played our best game yet, and we feel that's still to come."

Cowboys pitcher Jacob Visser was hung out to dry and his pitching ultimately suffered because of it, as it would with most pitchers who have to record six or seven 'outs' in an inning instead of three. With four runs already in, a walk and hit batsman - Visser's second of the inning — Schaal removed him in favor of Robert Montoya.

"You're frustrated because you're getting outs and you're not getting any help," Schaal said. "That's a bad deal."

Twin Falls nearly did just as much with less in its half of the fifth, scoring four runs on three walks, a hit batsman, three wild pitches, an error and sacrifice fly by Wyatt Doyle, which accounted for the inning's only RBI. But most of its action came from base-to-base, and couldn't get that hit (or error) to fuel an even bigger inning.

"That's the whole key, if you put the ball in play and make people make plays what people do to us — but if you execute and play defense, you'll be OK," Schaal said. "If you don't, it's going to be a long afternoon."

For the second day in a row, the Cowboys' bats couldn't muster much of an offensive attack, and unlike yesterday, Twin Falls pitching couldn't keep the game close in a loss at the Stoker Tournament.

After giving up an unearned run in the first, starting pitcher Damon Iones ran into trouble in the third by giving up a pair of singles and two walks to start the inning. Lee Johnson came on and gave up an RBI single before getting out of the frame, but not before Jones had three more runs charged on his behalf.

The Cowboys got within a run at 4-3 in the fifth. Marcus Donaldson's RBI single in the fourth, and an error and Sayer Conrad's RBI groundout supplied the scoring.

After consecutive 1-2-3 innings, Basic touched Johnson, John Hohnhorst and Braden Stutzman for six runs in the final two in-

Blatter: Goal-line Technology a 'Necessity'

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland • The most powerful man in soccer called goal-line technology a "necessity" Wednesday, only hours after Ukraine was denied what appeared to be a legitimate goal in its mustwin match against England at the European Championship.

"After last night's match GLT is no longer an alternative but a necessity," FI-FA President Sepp Blatter wrote on Twitter.

Marko Devic's shot in the 62nd minute of Tuesday's match looped up off England goalkeeper Joe Hart and appeared to cross the goal line before it was cleared by defender John Terry. The official standing near the post didn't signal for a goal, leaving the referee no option but to play on.

If the goal had been awarded, Ukraine would have pulled even at 1-1. But the co-hosts instead lost 1-0, a result that eliminated them from the tournament.

Ukraine's players complained furiously, coach Oleg Blokhin raged on the touchline and Twitter was quickly awash with indignation, reaction and opinion on goal-line technolo-

The high-profile incident added to the momentum behind providing referees with high-tech aids to make accurate decisions.

UEFA is using Euro 2012 to trial the five-official system that features a referee, two linesmen and two additional assistants beside the goal. It's UEFA President Michel Platini's preferred alternative to goal-line technology.

FIFA will decide on July 5 whether to approve the five-official system and either of the two goal-line technology systems currently being tested in England and Denmark.

Speaking at a media briefing in Warsaw on Monday, Platini said he expects goal-line technology to be approved at the IFAB meeting.

"Yes, Blatter will do it," Platini said. "He will (introduce) the technology, but I think it's a big mistake. ... it's the beginning of the technology, the arrival of the technology."

There have been a number of memorable goalline incidents to which critics often hark back whenever a fresh controversy occurs.

The most famous came in the 1966 World Cup final, when Geoff Hurst's shot that hit the underside of the crossbar and bounced down was ruled a goal. It gave England a 3-2 lead and Hurst later completed his hat trick for a 4-2 win.

Baseball purists would like a bit more clarity. In a game built on statistics and records, both players hold gaudy marks that would otherwise guarantee their selection to the Hall of Fame on the first ballot. Some of those statistics and records -Bonds' all-time career home run mark, in particular have been widely discredited. But if numbers alone are the prime criteria for entrance to the hall, they're in. Members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, who hold the keys to Cooperstown, are a discerning bunch, for the most part. Fooled for a long time by players who turned to modern chemistry to make the game look like child's play, they're done playing the dupes who glorify them without question.

They've already pretty much decided Mark McGwire won't get in the Hall of Fame. Neither will Rafael Palmeiro, whose positive steroid test put his 569 career home runs in a different

The balloting gets a lot tougher come December for veteran members of the BB-WAA. That's when Bonds, Clemens and Sammy Sosa are eligible for the first time in what will be a closely watched referendum of the steroid era.

Bonds is a convicted felon, so my guess is he won't get a first-ballot nomination, despite his 762 career home runs. Sosa, according to a New York Times report, tested positive in 2003 for steroids, and his numbers are so freakish (66 one year; 63 the next) he may never be allowed in. But what do you do with Clemens? How do you make a judgment call on a player who swears he never used steroids or HGH, even if his wife admits she did?

The statistics show he was the greatest pitcher of his time, and one of the greatest of all time. He won seven Cv Young Awards, two more than anyone else, and was dominating batters into his mid-40s, when pitchers before him had long lost their fastballs. Just as important, a few days ago a jury wasted little time in finding him innocent on charges he lied to Congress about using steroids and HGH.

That doesn't mean he didn't use steroids or HGH. Trainer Brian McNamee claims he injected him often, and former teammate Andy Pettitte testified Clemens told him during a workout in Texas that he had used HGH, though he later backed off that claim. There was certainly enough circumstantial evidence introduced in the trial to raise more than just a little suspicion, even if the jury decided against convicting him of lying.

Second Round

Venue Change Sought in Auburn Tree Poison Case

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OPELIKA, Ala. • An attorney for the University of Alabama football fan accused of poisoning two landmark oak trees at rival Auburn renewed calls for a change of venue, saying Wednesday a new jury pool is needed after a student newspaper reported that his client had confessed.

do, something you are, something you give away

Attorney Everett Wess said before the second day of jury selection started that Harvey Updyke denied telling The Auburn Plainsman that he committed the crime, while prosecutors argued that they had reason to believe the report.

The newspaper said it stands by the article, and the reporter was subpoenaed.

The longtime Alabama

fan, who has previously worn crimson ties to court appearances just a few miles from Auburn's campus, is accused of poisoning the century-old trees after the Tigers beat the Crimson Tide during Auburn's 2010 national title season. The 63-year-old has pleaded not guilty by reason of mental disease or defect on charges that include criminal mischief and desecrating a venerable object.

The 130-year-old trees at an entrance to campus show clear signs of poisoning.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

06-21-A

"The man who makes no mistakes does not usually make anything."

- Edward Phelps

In today's deal, North's raise to two hearts is the most flexible action with a single spade guard, even though three no-trump would have been an easier spot as the cards lie.

How would you play the heart game when West leads the spade king?

Suppose you win with the ace and begin to draw trumps. The 4-1 break means you will not be able to set up a 10th trick in diamonds before you have lost control of the hand. So after winning the spade lead, you should immediately lead a low diamond to the nine.

West wins with the jack and persists with another spade. You ruff in hand and play three rounds of trumps, leaving East with the trump 10, and yourself with the jack. You then cross to dummy with the club king and lead another low diamond, hoping to see an honor appear from East. East produces a low diamond, but you guess to put in the eight, which forces West's ace.

West now leads a spade, which you ruff with your last trump (the jack), but when you play the diamond king, the suit proves to have been 3-3. East is welcome to ruff the fourth round of diamonds with his established trump 10 because he will have no spade to return. So the game comes home.

The moral is that whenever it may take some time to establish a needed trick in a side suit, consider playing on the side suit before drawing all the trumps.

ANSWER: The answer to this question is more about personal style than what is right or wrong. I'd simply raise to three no-trump without using Stayman, an action I tend to take whenever I have square shape and enough highcard values to suggest that game should be easy. There are two reasons why this may work: It gives away less information about declarer's shape, and even if we have a spade fit, the suit may not break.

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

DEAR ${f A}{f B}{f B}{f Y}$ Jeanne Phillips

I am a male. When I was married I got up with the kids, made breakfast, packed their lunches, cleaned the kitchen and left for work. I did 90 percent of the grocery shopping and prepared dinner four or five nights a week. On weekends, I cut the grass, trimmed shrubs and repaired whatever needed fixing. I took care of the cars and found time to have fun with the kids.

My wife liked late-night TV and was too tired to get up in the morning. She also loved the morning talk shows and shopping. She did laundry, but I paid for a cleaning lady because vacuuming hurt her back.

When I resisted her controlling ways, she would become violent. She was jealous, dependent, possessive and angry. After 29 years, I finally decided to get a life. She got the house, the money, the anger and the dog. And me? I got the happiness!

– FRÉÉ MAN INFLORIDA DEAR FREE MAN: It is no longer shocking to hear about long marriages being dissolved. In your case, while the financial penalty may be sizable, it appears to have been worth it. When a relationship becomes one-sided and counseling can't resolve the conflicts, divorce is the answer.

Because of the years of domestic abuse you endured, I hope you will consider counseling so your future relationships will not be adversely affected by your long, unhappy marriage.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, "Tammi," is attending college in a neighboring state. When I text or call her, she doesn't respond. I have asked her to please just text me back saying she's OK. She says my texting her once a day is "overkill" and I should stop doing it so often - once a week is often enough. I feel it is disrespectful of Tammi not to respond to my texts, even with a simple "OK" or "fine." She texts her friends all the time, so I don't think five seconds is too much to ask of her.

I'm willing to compromise and text Tammi every other day or every three days. She is my only child and I want to know that she is well. Am I being unrealistic or asking too much?

TAMMI'S MOM IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR MOM: Tammi may be your only child, but she's a young woman now, and she needs room to grow up and establish some emotional independence. What you're demanding is an example of helicopter parenting. If you are worried for your daughter's safety, ask her to carry a card in her wallet identifying you as the person to be notified in case of an emergency.

DEAR ABBY: Would you settle a small disagreement? When we are being seated in a restaurant, my husband thanks the maitre d', the server when he is handed the menu and again when his order is taken.

He also thanks the server when his meal arrives at the table, when his iced tea is served, when it is refilled and when the bill is handed to him. As we are on our way out, he again thanks the maitre d' or hostess. Isn't this overdoing a good thing?

- SUFFERING IN SILENCE DEAR SUFFERING: I don't think so. Your husband was taught to verbally express his appreciation when something is done for him. He takes nothing for granted. And that is an admirable trait, not something to complain about.

Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

IF JUNE 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: With Neptune making a positive and uplifting aspect to your part of the cosmic pie, this may be a good year to form enduring partnerships. Because you are more sensitive than usual, you should steer clear of chemicals and additives. Make key plans or decisions in late July or August when you are wiser than usual and will have the benefit of trustworthy advice. If you are offered a chance to make a change, grab it right away; opportunity won't knock twice. In October, your imagination and sensitivity are balanced by a strong sense of responsibility. Don't shoulder any additional burdens out of a sense of pity or misplaced altruism. Wait until late November to make smart financial moves.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Run reality checks. Be sure you aren't rebelling just for the sake of rebelling when dealing with career, business, or status. Concentrate on finding common ground with others, so that you can keep the peace.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A thief thinks that everyone steals. Don't judge everyone by your own sense of morality. Let all you meet reveal themselves before you make commitments - or assumptions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Impulses can sometimes be a good thing. Act on your instincts and you will very easily charm the type of people who can do you the most good. This might be a good day to apply the common touch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There is something to be said for lasting pleasures. This might be the time to find artwork that will give you joy for years to come. Or this could be a good day to lay the foundation of a future relationship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be a poster child for compassion. Your charitable instincts should be given free rein whenever you see someone in need. Draw others into the fold and freely share your joys, hobbies and inspirations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It's deja vu all over again. Someone or something seems familiar, perhaps because you are attuned on a spiritual level. A serendipitous chain of events could occur. Treat fairly those who help you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Become a handmaiden to harmony. Reduce discord by concentrating on the underlying unity behind perceptible differences. You and an adversary may actually have a common cause or commitment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get the respect you deserve by being respectful of the rights of others. Accommodate the whims and wishes of those who hold the reins of power. Beneficial secrets may be revealed by ac-

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Earn what you yearn for. It isn't likely that a stranger on the street will simply give you the winning lottery ticket, so you will probably need to exert some effort. Set a goal and work towards it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept a shift in priorities without being shaken. Keeping romantic fires burning brightly may become a compelling incentive. Don't be bashful about sharing your enthusiasms with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Head off on a rescue mission. You might feel that you can rush in and save people from their own follies when, in reality, it is your own roller-coaster ride of emotions that needs a helping hand.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Trust others and they will trust you. Don't feel threatened by mysterious failures or blockages within existing relationships. Exercise your charm when meeting new contacts to make tremendous headway.

SUDOKI

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
