TWIN FALLS • Fifth District Magistrate Judge Nicole Cannon resigned Friday afternoon, 15 months after she succeeded retiring Judge

Howard Smyser in Twin Falls County and two months after she was cited for driving under the influence in Boise.

Cannon's resignation was announced in a statement released by 5th District Trial Court Administrator Linda Wright. The resignation was effective immediately.

"I have the utmost respect for my colleagues and the people who helped me serve the citizens of Twin Falls County during my brief time as a magistrate," Cannon, 42, said in the statement.

Cannon's resignation announcement made no reference to her DUI citation, which she has pleaded not guilty to in Ada County 4th District Court. More details about her resignation were not available Friday.

Recruitment for the position will begin Monday, Wright said, with a notice being sent out to all

A Republican Party Party

Complaint Dismissed against T.F. Republicans

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • While Twin Falls Republicans prepared to welcome party members from across the state, they had one big concern: That they would be sent home.

Those worries were alleviated on Friday morning when the Republican State Convention Credentials Committee threw out a complaint and a request to dismiss all Twin Falls County delegates.

Buhl resident Rick Martin filed the complaint on behalf of five Republican precinct committeemen in Twin Falls County. In the complaint, Martin claimed that the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee didn't properly notify all committeemen of a post-primary reorganization meeting, and that a slate of delegates had been approved before the official meeting.

Steve Millington, president of the Twin Falls central committee, rejected all the claims, saying that the committee notified participants with announcements, emails and follow-up phone calls. Notice of the meeting was also posted on the Idaho GOP website. Millington also produced an email proving that one of the complainants not only received notification, but replied to say he wouldn't be able to attend.

Some in the committee questioned the approval of the slate of delegates, but the Twin Falls central committee allows members to vote on a group and object to individuals within that slate.

The afternoon pep rally offered a break from policy meetings at the Republican State Convention, taking place in Twin Falls through Saturday evening. On Friday morning, delegates broke into committees, voting on resolutions and platform changes to present to the full convention on Saturday. At the general session, Republicans heard from outgoing Idaho Republican Party Chairman Norm Semanko, U.S. Sen. Jim Risch, first lady Lori Otter and Superintendent of Public Schools Tom Luna. Convention Planning Committee Chairman Rusty Satterwhite spoke at the start of the meeting, welcoming the delegates to Twin Falls.

"The rest of the nation is going to look at Idaho to re-teach them what it means to be an American," he said.

Risch got a standing ovation for his speech, which included a strong condemnation of out-of-control spending in Washington, D.C. At the end of the session, Otter and Luna gave a presentation defending Students Come First,

Car Crashes into T.F. Apartment, Residents Evacuated

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • Residents of a Twin Falls four-plex were evacuated Friday after a car crashed into a lower apartment in the building.

Twin Falls police and fire department responded to a call at about 10:45 a.m. from the Russell Square apartments at 2140 Elizabeth Blvd.

Police say a 47-year-old woman was driving a red Mitsubishi when she crashed into the corner of an apartment in Building 4. The woman was wearing a seat belt. She was not apparently injured in the crash, but was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center after telling paramedics she had chest pains. The woman may have accidentally hit the gas instead of the brakes, said Lt. Craig Stotts of the Twin Falls Police.

The woman was visiting the people who live at the apartment.

A woman holding a 1-year-old child was standing in the doorway of the home when the crash happened but she was unharmed, Stotts said.

Shortly after the crash, police and the building owner, Bari Fedaie, decided to evacuate residents of the second-story apartment until the structural integrity of the building could be assessed.

Police notified the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho that the evacuated family would need a place to stay. According to the Red Cross, the family just immigrated from Iraq 20 days ago and is staying at a hotel.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stock Market Bounce Back after Yesterday's Loss

NEW YORK (AP) • The stock market bounced back Friday, a day after suffering its second-worst loss this year. Bank stocks had some of the biggest gains even though many of them had their credit ratings cut the day before.

Analysts said the downgrades from Moody's Investor Service late Thursday had been expected for months and removed uncertainty that had been weighing on banks.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 67.21 points, or 0.5 percent, to close at 12,640.78.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 9.51 points, or 0.7 percent, to 1,335.02

The Nasdaq composite climbed 33.33 points, or 1.2 percent, to 2,892.42.

The meeting tied up some of the Twin Falls delegation for more than an hour as they came to defend themselves, including Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb, who is the co-chair of the Platform Committee that was meeting at the same time. Past Twin Falls central committee Chairwoman Gretchen Clelland called the attack personal, and said Martin has filed multiple complaints against the local party over the past four years. Committee member Laird Stone of Twin Falls called Martin a liar. "Let's don't mislead these people, Rick," Stone said. After a heated debate, the committee threw out the complaint. Committee member Sen. Jim Rice, R-Caldwell, chided the complainants for being out of the loop on party communications. "This is nonsense. This is the most frivolous motion that you could make," Rice said. The Credentials Committee also heard challenges against Ada, Gooding and Benewah counties' delegations. All of those delegations ended up being seated, though the committee questioned a potential open meeting violation by the Benewah County Republicans and recommended the Gooding County delegation work on keeping better minutes. The Ada County delegation came to an agreement outside of the committee.

Burley Resident's Family Home Receives the Gift of a Facelift

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • A home in the 1600 block of Schodde Avenue in Burley has taken on a new coat of sunny yellow paint this week as volunteers from Zions Bank stepped up to help out a neighbor.

"I couldn't have begun to take on the cost of this," said Sandra Pyne, 64, of Burley. Pyne is the beneficiary of Zions Bank's 22nd annual Paint-A-Thon. "I'm so excited I can hardly believe it."

Pyne said a representative from Zions Bank told her she was anonymously nominated and her home was chosen for the project. Gooding resident George Black, 66, was also chosen to have his home repainted.

"I live on a great block and this will help out the neighborhood as well," Pyne said.

Zions Bank loan officer Seth Christensen, who is captain of the bank's Burley team of volunteers, said this was his first year participating in the project. Christensen said about 12 volunteers spent the week scraping the old paint from the house and garage and painting.

"She keeps a nice neat place and the yard looks really nice," said Christensen. "She just doesn't have the ability to get up on a ladder and do this. But, she obviously has pride in her house."

More than 3,500 volunteers are painting 50 homes in Idaho and Utah during the service project. The company has painted 837 homes over the past 20 years.

Pyne, who is disabled, lives in the home built by her parents Jesse and Velva Pyne.

"Dad built the house in the 1940s and I moved in five years ago," Pyne said.

Pyne said she lived in the home as a young teenager and her granddaughter now occupies the room she had as a child.

Her father paid $80 for the land in the 1940s with the stipulation that he would build a home valued at no less than $1,000.

Pyne said he built the home for about $1,500 and dug out the basement by himself.

"He was 5 foot 3 inches tall and when people go down there I tell them that's why the ceiling isn't very high," Pyne said. "I think he just got tired of digging."

Pyne said the crew is doing a great job, which should be finished by Friday. Although Pyne can't help much with the painting, she has enjoyed sitting outside and visiting with the volunteers each day.

"I'd be scared to death to get on a ladder," Pyne said. "They've given this little house an incredible facelift. It's a sentimental thing for me."

the package of education reforms that is on the ballot for repeal this November.

"Don't let the union convince them that this is a war on teachers," Luna said to applause.

Platform Proposals

The session came after a morning of meetings for the Platform, Rules, Resolutions and Credentials committees. The Platform Committee considered changes to the party platform and voted on a final draft to present on Saturday.

Among the proposed platform discussions:

- Eliminating the so-called loyalty oath, which asked Republican candidates to acknowledge in writing that they've read the party platform and either sign off on their agreement or explain their disagreement. The cut was suggested in part because the party rules repeat the same requirement.
- Putting a greater emphasis on adoption in the plank on the party's opposition to abortion. "Our feeling was ... that the best argument against abortion is the argument for adoption," said delegate Brad Christensen.

"Don't let the union convince them that this is a war on teachers."

Idaho public schools chief Tom Luna

- Removing the phrase "naturally born" in the definition of marriage as between one man and one woman.
- Keeping the sound money plank, which supports backing up U.S. currency with gold or silver, and support for the repeal of the 17th Amendment, which allows citizens to elect their U.S. senators instead of leaving the decision to the state senate.

The Resolutions Committee also met on Friday to consider 16 resolutions. Among their actions:

- Approving resolutions in support of the Mountain Home Air Force Base and Students Come First, and abolishing the Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Education.
- Voting down resolutions on Social Security reform and opening up the recently closed Republican primary.

Friday's votes aren't the final say. On Saturday, all convention delegates vote on both the proposed platform and the approved resolutions.

Allergies, Stomach Acid Can Cause 'Lump' Feeling in Throat

Over the past few weeks, every time I swallow, it feels like I have a lump in my throat. It is really uncomfortable and seems to be worse at night. What might it be?

- Curtis, Declo

Answered by Dr. Russ Mayes, St. Luke's Clinic, Ear, Nose and Throat:

There are many common causes of the sensation that something is sticking in your throat. The term that is often used is called a "globus" sensation. Frequently people think that it may be related to post-nasal drainage, which can be caused by a number of factors including chronic allergies and sinus problems.

More frequently, it is caused by a condition called Laryngeal-Pharyngeal Reflux, or LPR. The cause of that is acid, which comes up from the stomach through the esophagus and splashes around the voice box, causing localized inflammation to the tissues of your esophagus and voice box. LPR can give people a sensation that it is difficult to swallow, that they have phlegm in their throat that can't be cleared, and can lead to a chronic cough or even a scratchy hoarse voice.

Post-nasal drainage and LPR are probably the most common causes of the sensation something is stuck in your throat, but there is always a risk that it may be cancer. In order to determine what the issue is, it is recommended to go to an ear, nose and throat specialist who can use specialized equipment to look down your throat to determine the cause of the pain and irritation in swallowing. A mirror can be used in this exam, but most frequently a flexible endoscope is used to take a look at the throat. From that exam, a course of treatment can be prescribed. This could be reflux medication, which typically requires two treatments daily.

can also be included in the treatment plan to improve symptoms. After a meal, it is best not to lie down for three hours. Avoiding overeating, caffeine, and dairy products can also help. Tobacco and alcohol can also be a contributing factor to these issues. If allergies are suspected, an antihistamine may be prescribed, along with a nasal spray. If there is a suspicion of cancer after the endoscopic procedure, a biopsy would be done to determine if it is cancerous.

It is most important to make an appointment with your primary care physician first to discuss your issues in order for them to make a proper diagnosis and whether to send you to a specialist who will be able to fully diagnose your problem.

ISP: Bellevue Woman Jumped from Moving RV

TIMES-NEWS

POCATELLO • Idaho State Police say a Bellevue woman jumped out of a motor home while her husband was driving on Interstate 15 in Pocatello.

ISP responded to a call about a person lying on the ground outside of a motor home near the East Center Street exit at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

At the scene, police determined David Blomquist, 55, of Bellevue was driving southbound on Interstate 15 when his passenger, Charlene Blomquist, 52, also of Bellevue attempted to leave the motor home while it was moving, an ISP report stated.

David Blomquist noticed Charlene Blomquist reaching for the door and slowed down as she jumped out of the motor home, according to the report.

"David immediately pulled the motor home over to the side of the highway following her exit," the report stated.

Charlene Blomquist was transported to Portneuf Medical Center in Pocatello with serious injuries.

ISP was assisted at the scene by Pocatello EMS and the Idaho Department of Fish and Game. The incident is still under investigation.

Cannon

Cannon's successor. The commission met Tuesday in Twin Falls, Wright said, though she couldn't confirm why — its proceedings are kept confidential under state statute and administrative court rules.

Judge Upholds DUI Evidence

Earlier this month, a retired Ada County magistrate judge denied two motions by Cannon to have evidence thrown out in her DUI case.

According to court records, Cannon was cited on April 19 for excessive driving under the influence. According to Idaho statutes, a DUI is considered excessive when the driver's blood-alcohol content measures at least .20 — more than twice the legal limit.

Documents show Cannon's test results were 0.239 and 0.221, nearly three times the legal limit to drive.

In May, Cannon and her attorney, Doug Nelson, tried to have her blood-alcohol test results thrown out and the entire traffic stop deemed unreasonable.

Nelson and Cannon had argued that the traffic stop was illegal, noting that a Boise police officer saw Cannon's vehicle's passenger-side tires cross over the fog line on the right side of the road twice. They cited a case where a judge chose not to make crossing over the fog line unlawful.

"Accordingly, Nicole violated no clear 'rule of the road' with her driving," they wrote in court documents.

As for the blood-alcohol test, Cannon and Nelson argued the officer didn't follow policy — that Cannon wasn't monitored properly for 15 minutes prior to a breath test and the testing machine was not properly calibrated within 24 hours of the test. To ensure accurate results, the machine's manual advises the person being tested should not be allowed to eat, drink or smoke, and that belching, burping or any sort of regurgitation could introduce contamination.

Judge Darla Williamson denied both requests. In her June 7 order upholding the traffic stop, Williamson cited several cases where officers saw drivers driving in unusual ways, like hugging the fog line, driving 15 mph under the speed limit or crossing the center line.

Even though no traffic laws were actually broken, the officer seeing abnormal driving patterns is reason enough for a stop, Williamson concluded. In Cannon's case, the officer's observation of unusual driving coupled with the time of night — about 11 p.m. — made the stop reasonable and allowed the officer to investigate possible criminal behavior, Williamson wrote.

In a June 13 order regarding the blood-alcohol test, Williamson questioned the officer's process but declined to toss out the evidence for now. She found that Cannon was not properly monitored for the mandatory 15 minutes before the breath test, but that the manual for the particular breath-test machine used doesn't require a 15-minute monitoring period for its results to be admissible in court.

According to court documents, the 15-minute wait before Cannon's breath test was restarted twice because she burped. The officer chose not to restart it a third time when Cannon informed him she "gurgled," assuming it wouldn't affect the results.

Cannon's two breath tests were within 0.02 of each other, the acceptable limit for an accurate result. Williamson found the machine was properly calibrated.

Cannon's jury trial is set for Aug. 28.

Notable Appointment

Cannon, a former Minidoka County prosecutor, became only the second female judge in the history of the 5th Judicial District when she was picked for the job in January 2011.

Her resignation comes shortly after the Magistrate Commission asked for public feedback on her performance to date. All Idaho magistrates are required to complete an 18-month probationary period, which includes at least one appraisal of the judge's performance before the term's end.

As a magistrate judge, Cannon heard misdemeanor cases — among them, charges against Don Garibaldi, a Buhl man who eventually pleaded guilty in connection with starting 2010's Auger Falls Fire. She also handled initial arraignments in larger cases such as that of Damon Azure, accused of shooting and killing his brother earlier this year.

Prior to her appointment as a judge, Cannon spent about 11 years in the Minidoka County Prosecutor's Office, including a year and a half as county prosecutor.

In an interview after she was named to the bench, Cannon said her tenure as judge would emphasize working with "strained resources" — including the use of non-traditional sentences in courts specifically designated to handle mental health, drug and juvenile cases.

In Friday's press statement, Administrative District Judge G. Richard Bevan thanked Cannon for her service, noting her professional dedication.

Wendell City Council delays Wastewater Lagoon Contract

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

WENDELL • The Wendell City Council is awaiting advice from its city attorney before it moves forward with the latest stage of its city wastewater overhaul.

A lagoon construction project is the second phase of the city's wastewater upgrade, for which residents passed an $11.2 million bond in 2006.

During a Thursday meeting, the council delayed awarding a bid for lagoon construction due to confusion about whether state-certified plumbers would be needed for work at a pump house. If so, then two of three bids the city received didn't include the necessary information about who would do the work.

The three bids were received from Summit Excavation of Twin Falls for about $961,000, Waste Management of Boise for $971,000, and Boise's Sawtooth Construction for roughly $1.07 million.

Mayor Brad Christopherson said his understanding of Idaho Code requires a state-certified plumber to do wiring at the pump house.

Project Engineer Rex Harding, with J-U-B Engineers of Twin Falls, suggested the council award the bid to Summit.

"The short answer is no," Christopherson said. "The problem that's going to be here is one of these (contractors) are going to challenge."

City Attorney Calvin Campbell is reviewing state law and will draft an opinion on what the council should do in the coming days.

Harding has also reached out to the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, but said personnel there are waiting for Campbell's opinion before weighing in.

For his part, Harding said that since effluent now directed through the pump house will be diverted around the structure, the project in question doesn't need a certified plumber.

But the council was uncomfortable awarding the bid until all parties had commented on the matter. It decided to table the issue until its July meeting.

Councilman Mike Winmill said he didn't want to move forward "until we get this figured out for certain."

Humane Society Lauds Paul Shelter's Improvements

BY LAURIE WELCH
welch@magicvalley.com

PAUL • Humane Society officials offered encouragement and advice Friday during a visit to the Minidoka County Animal Control Facility.

Heather Bialy, national director of shelter services for the Humane Society of the United States, and Lisa Kauffman, the organization's Idaho state director, stopped by the shelter to offer tips and resources as part of a tour of several shelters across Idaho — most of them in rural areas. A stop in Twin Falls was also on the pair's agenda.

The Paul facility, which is jointly operated by Minidoka County and the cities of Rupert, Paul, Acequia and Minidoka, bounced back from the brink of closure a little more than a year ago through the efforts of facility staff and community volunteers.

"Shelters in rural areas have different needs and sometimes a lot fewer resources," Bialy said.

She said current research shows that animal control problems can be improved by educating the public about responsible pet ownership, and implementing spaying and neutering programs.

Bialy said the Humane Society has a new "Pets for Life" program that offers a toolkit for shelter volunteers to help educate the public. The program also sets up vaccination clinics and gives out spay and neuter vouchers, collars and leashes.

"Those types of things help form trusting relationships and can later lead people to choose to spay or neuter their pets," Bialy said.

Bialy commended the facility for the work its staff accomplishes with few resources. The facility receives $60,000 a year from the county and cities, while the rest of its $86,000 budget comes from fees and donations.

The shelter's policy was originally to euthanize dogs after three days. But it now euthanizes very few dogs due to volunteers who are willing to foster and help transport them to other areas for adoption.

"You are really lucky to have such a dedicated transport system," Kauffman said. "You are saving a lot of lives. No healthy animals should ever be euthanized."

The facility has about 25 volunteers with five to six coming in every day to help clean, feed and water and walk the dogs.

Volunteer Jackie Hinrichs, of Paul, volunteers at the shelter every day.

"Somebody has to take care of them," Hinrichs said of the shelter's animals. "They had a need and I was willing to fill it."

Twelve-year-old Phillip Lee is also a volunteer.

"I just like dogs," he said. "I don't want them to get left out on the streets. Here, at least they get fed."

Bialy said "old school" animal control programs that limit the number of animals a person can have or rely on euthanasia simply don't work. Rather, she said, they drive people away from the shelter.

"You lose the public trust," Bialy said.

Successful communities have implemented responsible pet owner ordinances to replace outdated animal-limit policies, she said.

Bialy said Paul's volunteers could form a "friends of the shelter" nonprofit group, opening up many resources for grant funds and donations. Many grants are available for spay and neuter program as well as other shelter necessities.

"We really need to tie into those resources," said county animal control Officer Steve Mani. "As a government entity, many times our hands are tied."

Hearing Postponed for Man Accused of Shooting into House

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The preliminary hearing for James Scott Christensen was rescheduled for July 13 after he appeared in Twin Falls County 5th Judicial Court Friday.

Christensen was charged with aggravated assault and discharging a firearm into an occupied dwelling. Christensen was arrested June 14 after police say he allegedly fired shots into a house in the 700 block of 3rd Ave. N. early that morning.

Twin Falls police responded to the shots fired call at 12:10 a.m.

According to the police report, the resident of the home was standing in his living room talking on his cellphone with the front door open when he saw another man, later identified as Christensen, approaching him and holding a handgun. Christensen then reportedly fired two bullets.

Jerry Sandusky Convicted of Abuse

BY MARK SCOLFORO AND GENARO C. ARMAS
Associated Press

BELLEFONTE, Pa. • Jerry Sandusky was convicted Friday of sexually assaulting 10 boys over 15 years, accusations that had sent shock waves through the college campus known as Happy Valley and led to the firing of Penn State's beloved Hall of Fame coach, Joe Paterno.

Sandusky, a 68-year-old retired defensive coach who was once Paterno's heir apparent, was found guilty of Friday of 48 counts. He faces life in prison at sentencing, which is weeks away.

Sandusky showed little emotion as the verdict was read. The judge ordered him to be taken to the county jail to await sentencing in about three months.

Eight young men testified in a central Pennsylvania courtroom about a range of abuse, from kissing and massages to groping, oral sex and anal rape. For two other alleged victims, prosecutors relied on testimony from a university janitor and then-graduate assistant Mike McQueary, whose account of a sexual encounter between Sandusky and a boy of about 10 ultimately led to the Paterno's dismissal and the university president's ouster.

Sandusky did not take the stand in his own defense.

He had repeatedly denied the allegations, and his defense suggested that his accusers had a financial motive to make up stories, years after the fact. His attorney also painted Sandusky as the victim of overzealous police investigators who coached the alleged victims into giving accusatory statements.

But jurors believed the testimony that, in the words of lead prosecutor Joseph McGettigan III, Sandusky was a "predatory pedophile."

One accuser testified that Sandusky molested him in the locker-room showers and in hotels while trying to ensure his silence with gifts and trips to bowl games. He also said Sandusky had sent him "creepy love letters."

Another spoke of forced oral sex and instances of rape in the basement of Sandusky's home, including abuse that left him bleeding. He said he once tried to scream for help, knowing that Sandusky's wife was upstairs, but figured the basement must be soundproof.

Another, a foster child, said Sandusky warned that he would never see his family again if he ever told anyone what happened.

And just hours after the case went to jurors, lawyers for one of Sandusky's six adopted children, Matt, said he had told authorities that his father abused him.

Matt Sandusky had been prepared to testify on behalf of prosecutors, the statement said. The lawyers said they arranged for Matt Sandusky to meet with law enforcement officials but did not explain why he didn't testify.

BANKS

Downgrades Could Hurt Loans and Credit Cards

BY PALLAVI GOGOI
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK • When a major bank's credit rating is cut, it deals a psychological blow — to customers, the public and financial markets.

So Thursday's downgrading of 15 of the world's largest banks is almost sure to cause wide concern. Most deposits are perfectly safe, but the downgrades could hurt people in more subtle ways: Banks may jack up fees and might be reluctant to lend, which could affect mortgages, credit cards and even the job market.

"It is normal that the first thing that people worry about is whether their money is safe," said Jim Nadler, chief operating officer at Kroll Bond Ratings Agency. "But the real costs may be hidden."

Bank deposits up to $250,000 are guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

But the downgrades come at a tenuous time for banks. An avalanche of new regulations adopted after the financial crisis has wiped out many of the fees they charged on credit cards and checking accounts. Banks are also barred from making lucrative bets in the stock and bond markets, eliminating billions of dollars in trading income.

So banks are now squeezing income from any place they can. Basic services that were once free now cost money. Checking accounts can cost $8, a bank statement $3, canceling a check $2. The list goes on.

In light of the lower ratings, existing fees might climb further and new ones could appear.

AFGHANISTAN

Afghans hide from militants outside of the Spozhmai hotel on Lake Qurgha where Taliban insurgents killed nearly 18 people, most of them civilians, in an attack just north of Kabul, Afghanistan, on Friday. ASSOCIATED PRESS

Taliban Gunmen Lay Siege to Hotel

BY DEB RIECHMANN AND AMIR SHAH
Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan • Heavily armed Taliban gunmen stormed a lakeside hotel near Kabul, sending terrified guests jumping from windows or into a lake to try to escape the onslaught. Eighteen people were killed in the 12-hour rampage, their bullet-riddled bodies strewn on carpets, on the lawn and a blood-smear patio.

The attack, which ended at midday Friday, was a gruesome reminder of the Taliban's determination to scare the Afghan people and undermine efforts to stabilize the nation as U.S.-led forces prepare to withdraw by the end of 2014.

The insurgents arrived shortly before midnight at the Spozhmai hotel, situated in a wooded area on the banks of the turquoise-colored Qargha Lake, where Afghan families often go to relax and forget about the war.

The gunmen — toting machine guns, rocket-propelled grenades and vests laden with explosives — first killed the hotel's security guards, then pushed their way inside and began firing at guests who were having late-night meals. Gunfire rang out for hours and black smoke rose from the two-story hotel as NATO helicopters circled overhead.

The attack turned the normally placid hotel into a bloody scene of bodies and half-eaten food. One man with a gunshot wound to his torso was found dead under a tree. The bodies of two other men in blood-stained clothes were slumped over one another in the grass. The body of one of the attackers was lying on a blood-stained stone patio.

Some of the guests escaped while others were held hostage as the attackers battled more than 100 Afghan security forces who rushed to the scene with support from some coalition troops. The forces helped rescue more than 40 guests from the hotel.

There were differing accounts about the number of attackers. The Afghan police special forces' commander, Brig. Gen. Sayed Mohammad Roshan, said seven gunmen had been shot and killed, while the Taliban claimed only four of their fighters were involved.

Mohammad Qasim, who survived the attack, said he went to the reception desk at the hotel to tell the manager that he suspected militants had entered the building.

"Before I finished talking with the manager, they fired on us," Qasim said. The manager "hid himself behind his desk, but around three to four other guys who were guards and waiters were killed by the attackers."

Windows were shattered. Wicker chairs and tables were overturned on the lawn. A sugar bowl, chipped by flying bullets was lying on a red carpet next to a teapot and a baby bottle filled with milk. One table still had plates of French fries, salad and glasses half-filled with tea.

"Some of the guests jumped from the window into the hotel yard. They were hiding under trees or any safe place they could find," said Mohammad Zahir, criminal director for Kabul police. "Three of the guests jumped into the lake and hid in the water."

An Associated Press photograph showed the three, who survived the attack, clinging to a stone wall that kept them hidden from the gunmen.

Afghan President Hamid Karzai, the U.S.-led international military coalition and the U.S. Embassy in Kabul all condemned the attack, issuing statements accusing the Taliban of deliberately targeting civilians. Fourteen Afghan civilians, three security guards and an Afghan police officer died in the attack, Afghan police said.

U.S. Marine Gen. John Allen, the top commander of American and NATO forces in Afghanistan, also seized the opportunity to nudge Pakistan into taking stronger measures against insurgents hiding on its side of the Afghan-Pakistan border. He said the attack was likely carried out by fighters loyal to the Haqqani network. The al-Qaida-linked group is based in Pakistan and regularly targets Afghan and coalition forces in Afghanistan, and conducts deadly attacks in Kabul.

Rangers Recovering 1 of Their Own After Fatal Fall

BY DOUG ESSER AND SHANNON DININNY
Associated Press

SEATTLE • The family of a Mount Rainier National Park ranger who died while helping rescue four climbers both grieved and celebrated his life Friday, as authorities faced the grim task of recovering the body of one of their own.

Nick Hall, 33, slid more than 3,000 feet to his death Thursday as he was helping evacuate climbers from a crevasse by helicopter near the summit of the 14,411-foot mountain.

Hall, a four-year veteran of the park's climbing program, came from a family of EMTs who aided soldiers in Iraq and car crash victims in his small hometown of Patten, Maine. He was not married and had no children.

His father, Carter Hall, recalled his son as a loner when he was a child, but flourished in high school through a shared love of the wilderness.

"For good and bad, it was my influence of the outdoors," Hall told The Associated Press in a call from his Maine home, his voice breaking.

A Chinook helicopter from Joint Base Lewis-McChord removed three of the four climbers from Waco, Texas, and rangers stayed overnight with the fourth person. Poor weather complicated rescue and recovery efforts Friday.

CHEERS & JEERS

CHEERS to people getting involved in the political process. This has been an exciting week in Twin Falls with the state GOP convention in town. There's an infectious energy from the many people who are attending a convention for the first time. It's fun to see democracy in action in our own backyard.

CHEERS to the many volunteers who took the initiative to bring back Jazz in the Canyon. A group of area jazz lovers who missed the signature event put their time, talent and connections to work. All their efforts will pay off next month — July 14 — from noon to 8 p.m.

This is truly a labor of love — community members volunteering to bring a great event to the Magic Valley.

July's Jazz in the Canyon will return the event to its roots as a jazz event. The eight hours of jazz performances feature music by Jim Mair, Wellstone Conspiracy, Jeff Baker, The B3 Sides and Diva Denise Carter.

Note: Due to unforeseen circumstances, the event will not be held at Centennial Park. It will be held "on the canyon" at Elevation 486 / Magic Valley Center for the Arts outdoor venue. Tickets are $15. Money raised will be used to benefit the Great Basin Jazz Camp. For more details on the event, pick up Sunday's Times-News and look for the Jazz in the Canyon ad.

CHEERS to Ralph Peters who died this past weekend. Why does it often take someone's death to remind us how to live? Peters was a true community servant who gave decades of his life as a volunteer and elected official.

"He had a sincere commitment and concern for his city of Jerome," his daughter Katie Caldwell said.

Roy Prescott said, "The energy and desire to make life better is something that all generations could learn from."

We couldn't agree more.

LETTERS OF THANKS

Thank You to All Who Helped in Senior Center Remodeling

All the patrons of the Ageless Senior Center in Kimberly want to thank the following contractors for their undue diligence and dedication to the completion of the extensive remodeling of the center. The grand opening was a huge success also due to the efforts of many businesses and seniors who met regularly to stage such a memorable event.

The general contractor was John Pearson of Pearson's Gutter Cutters Inc. He was assisted by Williams Construction Inc., Randy Carmen Sheetrock, Custom Quality Heating/Air, CTR Cleanup and Total Restoration, Intermountain Construction Material Testing/Inspection, Grigg Construction, Gentry Floors, Floor Plus, AJ Electric, JR Plumbing, Extreme Concrete Cutting, Brackman Excavating, M&M Construction, BS&R Kitchen Designs and Supplies, Copy0It and the Nehemian.

The businesses who contributed food, employees, door prizes and entertainment for the grand opening were Maverik, Cactus Pete's, First Federal, Wells Fargo, Kimberly Kut & Kurl, Windsor's, Maxie's of Kimberly, Fiesta Ole, Hoagie's Deli, Quilt Barn, TNT Cafe, Gem State Fiddlers, Mr. Burger and Bella Couture.

The board of the Ageless Senior Center hopes the remodeling will make the center viable for many years to come not only for seniors but also for the communities of the Magic Valley.

Thank You for all You Did During Assisted Living Transition

To Woodstone and Ben Knowles, administrator: a big thank you for going over and above the call of duty.

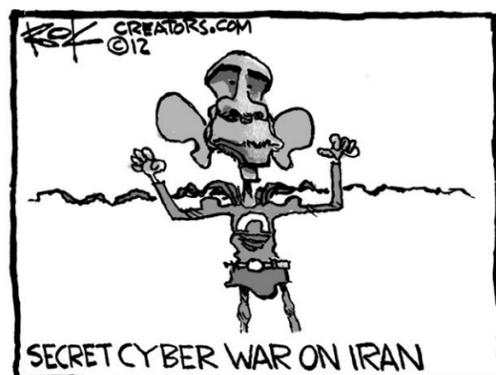

When Chaparelle House Assisted Living was closed and the residents had three days to move into a new place, Woodstone went out of its way.

They did not charge for the few days left in that month. They also remodeled a few rooms with walk-in showers to help the seniors. The rooms had tubs in the bathrooms before and some residents could not use a tub. They put the resident's furniture in storage at no extra charge until the rooms were completed.

The caregivers also have gone above and beyond the call of duty. I have watched what they do for the residents, and I'm impressed! The activities are always going on with entertainment also.

Thank you to Woodstone for all the services you do.

Thank You to Twin Falls Senior Center for the Hospitality

We would sincerely like to thank the Twin Falls Senior Center for hosting such a great Bunco and Lasagna dinner June 9.

Seniors from all over the Magic Valley participated in this fun event where they had the choice of their favorite dish. The atmosphere and hospitality were wonderful and all attendees had a fabulous time playing games and enjoying the competition of an Italian cook-off.

It is fabulous that seniors can have a place where they socialize, have fun and enjoy great food.

Thank you again, and better luck next time.

Thank You for Refurbishing 1940s Seagraves Fire Engine

Thank you!

The Twin Falls County Historical Society wishes to express its gratitude to the Magic Valley Early Iron Car Club for its combined, tremendous effort in refurbishing the museum's 1940 Seagraves fire engine. Talented, shiny chrome and red paint all go together.

Thank you is also due to these local business and individuals who contributed in-kind parts, materials and labor in excess of $4,948: D&B Supply, Diamond Automotive Machine, Fat City Fish Custom Airbrushing, Freightliner of Idaho, Interstate Batteries, Jorgensen Fabric Products, Line-X of Magic Valley, Markey's Super Tow, Mason's Trophies, Bill Patterson, Polishing By Hand, Tony's 2T Auto, Turf Club and Valley Brake.

The fire engine is our "fun for all ages" ambassador!

Remember the museum is open noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday; three miles west of Twin Falls on Addison Avenue West.

It is a complete privilege to have received all of your help.

Historically yours,
RON YATES

Thank you to Magic Valley for your Hospitality to Tour Group

This past week, our area hosted the ForeTravel Motorcoach group from various states in the southeastern United States. This group of 55 folks toured our area and enjoyed Magic Valley's hospitality. We are grateful to the people who assisted these travelers, hosted tours and showcased our valley.

Sincere thanks to Shawn Barigar and Judy Harr of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Center, Dennis Bowyer of Twin Falls Parks and Recreation, John Pitz and staff at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Mark and Lisa Guerry, Steve Soran, Don Olsen and staff at Soran's Catering, and Chef Kirt Martin and staff at the Snake River Grill for their hospitality and service.

Kyle Brown and Terry Patterson of CSI, Gary Fornshell of the University of Idaho, and Bob Turic and Anna Ray of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Hagerman, shared expertise and time to showcase our wind energy and aquaculture programs. Brian Olmstead gave a tour of the canal system, and Carl Morrell and Liz Mack provided a tour of Hilex-Poly in Jerome.

Thank you to all who gave their time and expertise to make this a memorable trip for the ForeTravel group.

Buhl School District Thanks Magic Valley Tennis Assoc.

The Buhl School District would like to express a very appreciative thank you to the Magic Valley Tennis Association for its generous donation.

The goals of MVTA are to develop sportsmanship, improve health and fitness and enhance tennis skills while providing opportunities for competition and encouraging social activities. Because of the MVTA, Buhl School District was able to resurface the tennis courts at Popplewell Elementary School at no cost to the district. The MVTA provided $5,000 to help with the resurfacing project, which will continue to make our tennis courts a valuable asset to our community.

A special thanks to MVTA members Dave Brush, Armand Eckert and Norman Eckert for helping convince the MVTA of the value our courts have to the Buhl community, and to Steve Everton, MVTA president, for making this donation a reality.

The support and service from organizations like MVTA continue to improve the quality of life for our students and community. Buhl School District is fortunate to have the MVTA as a donating partner in this endeavor. Thank you for your support.

Alcoa Plant Celebrates 60 Years

BY SHANNON DININNY
Associated Press

The Pacific Northwest aluminum industry supplied roughly 40 percent of the nation's aluminum in its heyday in the 1980s, with 10 plants producing the pliable, lightweight metal for everything from war planes to soda cans.

Today, just two plants remain — but one of them celebrates its 60th anniversary Saturday with an open house and an idle plant in Montana is considering a restart thanks in part to abundant power supplies.

Aluminum smelters were the first major industrial customers of the hydropower dams built on the Columbia River during and after World War II, and at one time, consumed enough power to light three cities the size of Seattle. In the past decade, though, rising power and labor costs and global market competition forced most plants in the region to close.

The two that remain: Alcoa's Intalco Works in Ferndale, Wash., north of Bellingham in the northwest corner of the state, and Alcoa's Wenatchee Works in north-central Washington.

Since Wenatchee Works opened in 1952 — the first smelter built in the Pacific Northwest after World War II — it has been one of that area's largest private employers, with a high of 1,000 workers in the 1980s.

Today, the plant employs 450 people, but creates an additional 2.9 jobs in the surrounding area for every job at the plant and contributes $52 million to the economy directly through wages and benefits, said Alcoa's Sharon Kanareff.

Alcoa is offering free plant tours Saturday to celebrate the 60th anniversary.

"We're honoring a lot of our partners at the event, because really, we wouldn't be able to be here without our business partners — our customers, our suppliers, our community support," Kanareff said.

U.S. primary aluminum production totaled nearly 2 million metric tons in 2011, an increase of 15 percent from the previous year, according to surveys by The Aluminum Association, a promotional group based in Arlington, Va.

Primary aluminum is product that has not yet been recycled.

U.S. producers also have the infrastructure to recycle aluminum, which requires only 5 percent of the power needed to produce primary aluminum, association President Heidi Block said. And low-cost power availability and future demand for certain products are likely to fuel aluminum production in the coming years.

Demand for aluminum by the automotive sector is expected to double by 2025, along with consumer interest in more fuel-efficient, lightweight vehicles, she said. Companies looking for sustainable packaging and "green" building supplies also are expected to boost demand.

In Columbia Falls, Mont., an idle plant is considering a restart, according to the Bonneville Power Administration, the Portland, Ore.-based federal agency that manages much of the Northwest power grid.

Montana Tribes Start Receiving Settlement Money

BY MATT VOLZ
Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • Some Indian tribes have started receiving their shares of a $1 billion settlement with the U.S. government over mismanagement of their money and trust lands, while others are waiting and remain undecided on what to do with their windfall.

The agreement between the government and 44 tribes across the nation was announced in March to settle claims of money lost in mismanaged accounts and royalties from natural resource development.

The tribes sued in an attempt to receive an accounting of the Interior Department's management of the trust funds and to learn how much had been lost.

Their claims dealt with tribal trust funds and not individual trust funds, which is addressed in the $3.4 billion class-action settlement led by Elouise Cobell, the Blackfeet woman who died last year.

Blackfeet chairman T.J. Show said that tribal leaders will soon distribute $9 million of the $19 million his tribe is due to receive. That's about $550 per person, which Show said will help residents on a reservation where the unemployment rate is between 70 and 80 percent.

"I believe it will be an economic benefit to the tribal members to use as they see fit, whether it be for college kids going to school or parents just needing to feed their child," Show said.

Shooting Sparks Fire, Homes Evacuated

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Utah (AP) • Residents of about 400 homes in northern Utah were being evacuated Friday after high winds kicked up a fire started by target shooters.

The roughly 1,400-acre blaze started Thursday near the Saratoga Springs landfill, about 40 miles south of Salt Lake City. High winds then helped fan the flames onto tinder-dry grasslands.

Authorities were initially worried as flames moved toward property owned by an explosives company. But as winds kicked up, the fire began moving toward Saratoga Springs, and crews began focusing on saving the homes of about 1,000 people who were ordered to leave. On Friday, fire officials were calling in additional aircraft and extra ground crews.

Bureau of Land Management officials say they believe the fire was caused when a bullet hit a rock and sparked the fire. This is the 20th target-shooting related fire this year in Utah, they said.

No injuries or structural damage have been reported.

A continued mix of hot, windy and extremely dry conditions has raised the fire danger across Utah and parts of Wyoming, Arizona, Nevada and Colorado.

The Russell's Camp fire burns Thursday in a stand of trees in the Medicine Bow National Forest in east-central Wyoming.

At a wildfire burning on over 68,000 acres in northern Colorado, some homes were being evacuated Friday because of several spot fires started by winds outside the main fire. Some of those residents were evacuated after the fire flared up on Sunday and had only returned home Wednesday.

The mix of conditions that makes it easy for new fires to start and spread and cause existing fires to flare up is expected to last through Saturday there.

The fire west of Fort Collins has now destroyed at least 191 homes. It's also blamed for the death of a woman found dead at her ranch.

Gov. John Hickenlooper's office said Friday that the governor has signed executive orders releasing $6.2 million more in state disaster money to fight the fire and two others.

The northern Colorado fire will have $5 million more available, on top of $20 million made available by a previous order. The fire has qualified for 75 percent federal reimbursement for firefighting costs, Hickenlooper's office said. A fire near Lake George will get $1 million, and the Stuart Hole fire in Larimer County will receive $200,000. The disaster money is coming partly from reserve funds.

Meanwhile, the Village People will perform a free concert Saturday in Ignacio, Colo., to raise money for relief efforts at smaller wildfires in Colorado and New Mexico, The Farmington Daily-Times reported.

DOD Agrees to Halt Plane Transfers — for Now

BY MATT GOURAS
Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. • The Department of Defense is telling U.S. Senate leaders that it will stop scheduled Air Force transfers of aircraft until Congress finalizes 2013 budget plans later this year, which could also further prevent those transfers.

The announcement, released by Montana U.S. Sens. Max Baucus and Jon Tester, comes as several states become increasingly worried about their Air National Guard units losing aircraft missions.

Montana filed a lawsuit earlier this month against the Defense Department, seeking to stop the military's transfer of F-15 fighter jets to California. Montana wants assurances that the state will later get its planned replacement mission of C-130 cargo planes.

But political leaders from the Gulf Coast states are threatening action to prevent movement of the C-130s from their states, where they help with hurricane preparedness.

The aircraft missions also come with full-time jobs in each of the states. Approximately 800 Montana Air National Guard servicemen and women are directly tied to the 120th Fighter Wing.

In Montana, Baucus is using his position as chairman of the Finance Committee to make sure his state gets a mission. The C-130 mission, which Baucus and U.S. Sen. Jon Tester initially announced in February, was not scheduled to arrive until 2014.

"With the F-15 victory now secured, we've got to roll up our sleeves and continue working together to see to it that the C-130 mission arrives on Gore Hill as planned," Baucus said.

Financially Strapped North Las Vegas Declares Disaster

BY CRISTINA SILVA
Associated Press

NORTH LAS VEGAS, Nev. • There are no signs of rioters, wind-damaged homes or flooding. The brand new City Hall features gleaming marble floors and the public recreation centers offer Zumba, karate and Pilates classes.

Despite all of its suburban trimmings, North Las Vegas is officially a disaster area.

After five years of declining property taxes, massive layoffs and questionable spending, leaders of the blue-collar, family-oriented city outside Las Vegas declared a state of emergency, invoking a rarely used state law crafted for unforeseen disasters.

No matter that the statute, which allows municipalities to suspend union contracts and avoid paying scheduled salary increases, doesn't actually include fiscal emergencies among the list of potential disasters.

"It says, in case of 'emergency' such as: You can't list how many different types of emergencies there are in the world," City Council member Wade Wagner said of the move, which will save the city $9 million.

There are many cities

A sign advertising empty professional office space is posted outside a building Thursday in North Las Vegas, Nev.

across the nation grappling with declining property values and growing expenses like North Las Vegas, but few, if any, have declared financial emergency.

Stockton, Calif., and Los Angeles explored similar emergency declarations and were met with legal challenges. In Buffalo, N.Y., court officials upheld a wage freeze in 2006 that allowed the city to address its four-year $127 million deficit and avoid financial disaster.

North Las Vegas is among Nevada's hardest-hit cities, at a time when the state is dealing with the nation's highest unemployment rate and an unrelenting tide of foreclosures and bankruptcies. Every few months, the state threatens to take over the city.

Even so, the financial disaster declaration is unprecedented in Nevada, raising questions about whether North Las Vegas is overreaching at the expense of its employees and reputation.

"It makes it sound like our buildings are all on fire and they don't have water to put it out or something," said Jennifer Meyers, who moved to the city before the housing collapse so her kids could play in the street without worrying about crime.

"It doesn't sound like a place you would want to move to," she said.

Union workers, long among the highest compensated government employees in southern Nevada, claim the city won't be able to defend the emergency designation in court. The police union filed a lawsuit Friday claiming the city was misusing the law.

"Everybody in the city is basically using all their time and all their effort to try to break the unions," said Sgt. Leonard Cardinale, president of the North Las Vegas Police Supervisors Association.

Public perception turned against the city's public safety workers after some union leaders put up billboards last year that read: "Warning: Due to recent police layoffs, we can no longer guarantee your safety!"

It isn't hard to make the case that North Las Vegas, Nevada's fourth-largest city, is in trouble.

As its population more than doubled to 223,394 in 2010 from 115,488 in 2000, the city doubled its staff, built a new park each year and, in 2009, started construction on a sparkling $130 million City Hall.

For nearly two years, the city, where residents have long paid the highest tax rate in southern Nevada, has teetered on the edge of insolvency.

Marshals Find Man Who Escaped Patrol Car in Logan

LOGAN, Utah (AP) • U.S. Marshals have arrested a 23-year-old man who escaped from a patrol car in Logan last week and ran off in handcuffs.

Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal David Carnahan in Salt Lake City says Osvaldo "Ozzie" Miranda put up a fistfight with authorities and eventually was subdued with a Taser before he was arrested in Kearns about 3 a.m. Friday. Officials had arrested Miranda June 13 as part of an investigation by the Cache-Rich Drug Task Force. But he opened the door of the Utah Highway Patrol vehicle that was taking him to the Cache County Jail and fled on foot.

Law enforcement officials have been looking for him since.

Carnahan says Miranda will likely face more charges on top of the drug charges he was arrested for last week.

Alaska Woman Wins $1M Jackpot at Vegas Casino

LAS VEGAS (AP) • An Alaska woman told casino officials she plans to take her son to New Zealand after she won a $1 million slot machine jackpot at the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas.

Linda Fleury of Eagle River hit the prize after putting $20 into a Wheel of Fortune machine on Wednesday night.

Hard Rock officials tell the Las Vegas Sun the jackpot rang in at $1,064,121.24.

Fleury says in a statement released by the casino that she just sat there, stunned.

She says she thought she was seeing things.

TITLE IX TURNS 40

Title IX Shaped Area Athletics

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • For Canyon Ridge High School athletic director Kim Wray, Title IX transcends athletics and it's not a male versus female issue.

"The thing to remember is that you want every student to have opportunities," she said.

Wray had nearly 20 years of teaching and coaching experience before becoming the Riverhawks' athletic director last year.

She was born right around the time Title IX was signed in 1972. And today marks the 40th anniversary of the law.

College of Southern Idaho athletic director Joel Bate said Title IX gave female athletes an equal opportunity to play.

"I just think it's opened many doors for young women that were shut very, very tight," he said.

Hawks Split Two in Idaho Falls

TIMES-NEWS

IDAHO FALLS — Connor Stubblefield's two-run single in the sixth inning closed the scoring and Drew Hurd allowed just two hits over five innings for the win Friday as the Twin Falls Hawks defeated Idaho Falls in the opening game of a doubleheader.

Garrett Basham walked three times, singled and scored two runs to back Hurd's mound effort.

Hurd struck out five and walked three.

In the second game, Idaho Falls jumped out to a 6-0 lead off starting pitcher Gaige Kepner en route to a 7-4 victory.

Tyler Galbreath doubled and scored a run for Twin Falls, which scored four runs despite getting just two hits.

Aaron Burton pitched two innings of scoreless relief for the Hawks.

The Hawks conclude their week-end trip east today with a doubleheader against the Pocatello Razorbacks.

TWIN FALLS COWBOYS 12 (AA), DURANGO, COLO. 0, 5 INN.

LAS VEGAS • The Cowboys earned their first win at the Stoker Tournament, breaking out the bats for 13 hits and eight earned runs in a mercy-rule victory.

Six different Cowboys batted home runs, led by two from Sayer Conrad.

Damon Jones went the distance for Twin Falls, scattering four hits while striking out four and not issuing a free pass. His only real difficulty came in the third inning when two singles and a sacrifice bunt created a second-and-third, one-out situation, but Jones induced a fly out and struck out another batter to escape the threat.

The Cowboys finish up tournament play today before a game at Jerome on Tuesday, followed by hosting duties at the Cowboy Classic starting Thursday.

MOYLE WEARS TWO HATS WELL

BY RYAN HOWE

BURLEY • Mark Moyle and his crew towed their competition jet boat back to the pits and worked fervently to tweak the engine. They had just failed to qualify in their preliminary heat Friday at the Idaho Regatta, and with one last-chance qualifier to go, there was no time to waste.

Just then, a television news reporter cut in and asked Moyle for an interview, and he obliged. During the interview, a voice over the loudspeaker summoned Moyle to the ramp area, where he was needed to resolve another problem.

For the past three months, Moyle has been at a full sprint while wearing two hats — that of Idaho Regatta director, plus as a racer himself.

"As a promoter I want our event to be successful so I have to put time into that and it does take time away from my racing and getting the boat prepared," Moyle said earlier this week. "Then on race weekend it's wide open, that's all I do. Just run, run, run. Between promoting the event, taking care of whatever needs down at the race site and driving the boat, it's a hectic weekend."

A second-generation racer, Moyle is the son of Don Moyle, who was one of the original founders of Idaho Regatta. The Moyle family still donates a mink coat to the fastest boat on the water each year, which is one of the most coveted prizes in all of boat racing.

Idaho Regatta Is A Family Affair

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • For many at Idaho Regatta this weekend, boat racing is in their DNA.

"It's a sickness that gets into your blood that never goes away," said Hal Jones, a Pro Stock and Super Stock racer from Layton, Utah.

His father had a race boat and Jones was hooked from a young age.

"I'm a typical adrenaline junkie. It's an unreal feeling to go that fast on water, right alongside eight other boats and go into a turn."

Hal Jones

"I'm a typical adrenaline junkie. It's an unreal feeling to go that fast on water, right alongside eight other boats and go into a turn," said Jones, who attended his first Idaho Regatta in 1980 as a spectator, started competing in 1990 and has been to Burley every year since. "Just the competition and the family-oriented sport that it is, everybody here has got their family here; everybody does it as a family."

According to Idaho Regatta race director Mark Moyle, three families have participated in the Burley race since it began 37 years ago — the Moyles from Burley, the Faulkners from Provo, Utah, and the Paulis from Huntsville, Utah.

While many families are on their second-generation racer, 12-year-old hydroplane competitor Gordon Jennings III is the third generation in a legendary racing family. His grandfather Gordon Jennings Sr. was a successful in K Racing Runabouts, and his father Gordon Jennings Jr. is known as the "K-Boat King" and won a mink coat at the Idaho Regatta in 1993.

But the racing bloodlines don't stop there.

The youngest Jennings racer's mother is Kattie Faulkner Jennings, daughter of the late Bill Faulkner Sr. and sister to Bill Jr. and Lance Faulkner. Idaho Regatta's marquee

More famous for potatoes than for cultivating race car drivers, it's a big accomplishment for anyone from Idaho. Taking into account that it was the 15-year-old's first night of competition behind the wheel of a Super Stocks Series car, it's an even more impressive achievement for the Twin Falls High School student.

"Winning that first race of the season is irreplaceable. It was an ideal race night and it is something I will never forget," Newhouse said.

Cleveland Moves on As LeBron Crowned Champ

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND • On the same sidewalk where fans torched a LeBron James jersey in protest two summers ago, office workers on their lunch hours passed gamblers headed to the new downtown casino.

Just another summer day. While James was in Miami celebrating his first NBA title, fans in the city he scorned to chase a championship had a much more subdued, internal reaction. There were no angry protests, no public outrage, no threats of harm. Those days have long past.

The king got his ring. And Cleveland, where sports despair's roots have grown for generations, seemed to sigh in acceptance.

"In a way I'm kind of happy for him," bartender Natalie Hardik said between serving pints of beer at Flannery's, an Irish bar and restaurant across the street from Quicken Loans Arena, where James once starred.

"But I definitely still feel a lot of bitterness toward him — everyone does." This city, yearning to celebrate its first pro sport championship since 1964, hasn't forgiven James for leaving as a free agent in 2010. Many can't let it go. There's lingering pain and resentment, but there's also a sense that it's time to move on.

Some Clevelanders already had. "I hope they have moved on, and I kind of felt many fans had come to accept this would happen during the season," said TV sports anchor Jim Donovan, a longtime Cleveland resident. "Fans felt him winning it all was inevitable, and I think some of them may have given up because it's exhausting to root against the guy. It's better to root for your team."

Cleveland reveled in seeing James fail in last year's finals.

This time, there was no stopping him. And the sight of James, who grew up in nearby Akron and spent seven seasons with the Cavaliers, hugging and hoisting a championship trophy was tough to stomach.

"I had mixed feelings," said Mike Kubinski, who watched Thursday's Game 5 at home in Cleveland's Tremont district. "It's a lot like when your ex-girlfriend or ex-boyfriend gets married. It's not fun."

As he spoke, Kubinski stood just a few feet from an outdoor clothing kiosk at Westlake's Crocker Park, where "Lyn' King" T-shirts were sold after James' departure in 2010. Now, there's hardly a trace of James anywhere to be found in Cleveland, where his No. 23 jersey was once omnipresent and his likeness loomed above the city on a giant downtown billboard.

Instead of dwelling on James, many Cleveland fans are focusing on what appears to be a bright future for the Cavs. The team has the No. 4 overall pick in next week's draft, four selections in the top 34 and hope to add some quality players to put around guard Kyrie Irving, the reigning rookie of the year.

At last, it's time to look forward, not back.

"I think people have moved on and are at peace with it," said Chuck Kyle, coach of high school football powerhouse Saint Ignatius. "It's been two years since LeBron left. It hurt for a while, but now it's time to forget it."

While there are those who will never forgive him, James has a sprinkling of supporters in Cleveland.

Moyle

He hasn't slept much the past few weeks, but there's no chance Mark Moyle will be asleep at the wheel. He's raced in-board comp jet boats for 22 years, won a handful of championships and has set four world records.

Given his personal and family history in racing, it was a natural fit for Moyle to take over as race director five years ago. It's a big job, but Moyle praises his army of volunteers, plus his secretary and "right-hand lady" Georgia Goodman.

"Racing and directing is hard for him," said Goodman, who has worked alongside four Idaho Regatta directors since becoming secretary in 1994. "He's so laid back, and that's nice for me. He's never up-tight; he's like, 'Oh, we'll just fix it.' There's a solution for everything."

Perhaps one of the most notable improvements in Moyle's five years as director, the Regatta Committee has been able to mostly erase a negative public perception of the Idaho Regatta's party image, which stemmed from the carefree Regatta days of the 80s and 90s.

"We've worked hard to make it a family-friendly event," said Moyle, who doesn't receive compensation for his race director duties. "When I became chairman, my No. 1 goal was to make this a serious, professional motor-sports event like NASCAR. I want people to come for the racing, not for the partying."

Moyle was ready to step down after the 2010 Regatta. But after winning the bid to host this year's American Powerboat Association Flat-bottom National Championships, he committed to see it through.

But this weekend might be Moyle's last ride — as chairman, at least.

"I'm trying to find someone to train who would like to do it," Moyle said. "It is a very big job, it takes a lot of my time. It's taken a lot of time away from my business and my family. I would like to find someone to take it for a couple years because I do need a break."

Germany Beats Greece, Reaches Euro 2012 Semis

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GDANSK, Poland • Germany scored three second-half goals to reach the European Championship semifinals for a record seventh time Friday after a 4-2 win over Greece.

Philipp Lahm gave Germany the lead in the 39th minute before Georgios Samaras equalized for Greece in the 55th. But Sami Khedira, Miroslav Klose and Marco Reus all scored to pull Germany clear. Greece got a consolation penalty in the 89th by Dimitris Salpingidis.

"We made some silly mistakes but at the end we scored four goals," Lahm said. "We had many chances in the first 10-15 minutes."

German Chancellor Angela Merkel made the trip for the match and stood to cheer every time her team scored.

The match was played amid a political background between the countries. Germany has been a major contributor to economic bailouts for Greece and was instrumental in demanding unpopular spending cuts.

Germany dominated nearly the entire match at the Arena Gdansk, but the Greek defense held strong for much of the first half. Lahm finally put his team in front by controlling the ball with his chest and dribbling toward the middle before sending a long-distance shot into the corner off the hand of Greece goalkeeper Michalis Sifakis.

The Greeks looked better at the start of the second half, and even equalized when Samaras knocked the ball past Germany goalkeeper Manuel Neuer after a perfect cross from Dimitris Salpingidis.

"When we conceded a second goal we had to open up and that cost us," Salpingidis said. "I hope the Greeks got some encouragement from watching us fighting."

But after that goal, it was back to being all Germany.

Khedira volleyed in a cross from Jerome Boateng in the 61st, and Klose headed in a free kick from Mesut Ozil in the 68th as Sifakis was late to punch the ball away.

Reus made it 4-1 in the 74th, volleying a shot in off the underside of the crossbar after Sifakis had saved a shot from Klose.

trophy is named after Bill Sr., and Faulkner Racing owns five mink coats.

Another longtime racer with family ties in racing is Mike Stock of Boise, owner of a K-boat driven by Duff Dailey of Florida. His father Phil Stock used to race Grand Nationals.

"There's a lot of tradition here. It's one of my favorite races with great fans," said Stock, who brought along more than 20 friends and family. "I raced here when I was 16, and I'm 43 now."

This weekend Stock and Dailey will debut a brand new K-boat that Stock said they finished at 3 a.m. the night before Friday's test and tune. They, along with about 60 boats competing at Idaho Regatta, got a chance to ready their boats during testing and preliminaries Friday afternoon. Racing begins in earnest at noon today at Burley Golf Course Marina.

"We've got to do some testing this morning down on the water, just to make sure we've got everything set up correctly, get a little practice in and get our tune just right for the temperatures and altitude, and be prepared for all the racing Saturday and Sunday," Jones said.

Title IX

According to Title IX, "no person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

Even though the word "athletics" wasn't included, sports programs fall under in the category of an "education program."

Before Title IX, fewer than 300,000 high school girls — one in 27 — played sports. There were fewer than 32,000 female athletes at the collegiate level.

Now, one out of two girls play high school sports,

As a student at Shoshone High School in the late 1970s, Bate saw the impact of the legislation first hand.

He remembers the addition of women's basketball and volleyball at his high school shortly after the Idaho High School Activities Association made changes in 1976 as a result of Title IX.

For Wray, she said it was never an issue for her to participate in athletics as a student.

But it was for Jan Mittleider, who retired this year from her job as a CSI physical education professor.

Before Title IX existed, she was a competitive tennis player and won a number of tournaments.

Mittleider said her male counterpart got a college scholarship to play tennis, but she didn't have that opportunity.

In order to fundraise for tournaments, she said girls teams used to sell baked goods. Other programs, she said, took care of paying for tournaments for boys teams.

Her 42-year career with CSI began in 1970 and she was the first women's volleyball coach.

At the time, she said the team was enthusiastic, but many of the players didn't have much experience or the skill set.

Mittleider said it's wonderful to see how things have changed since then. Now, CSI has four women's athletics programs and three men's programs.

Bate — who has been the college's athletic director for nearly six years — said a lot of people don't understand fully understand Title IX.

He said opportunities must be reflective of the student population. At CSI, the student body is about 60 percent women and 40 percent men.

Bate said he's proud of CSI's compliance with Title IX. The addition of the softball program about six years ago brought the college into full compliance.

Mittleider said Title IX was a "very important move," even though there was controversy attached to it.

Kimberly resident Shae Bair described the law as "not the greatest thing in the world." It was meant to help women, she said, "but in retrospect, I think it hurt men."

In September, Bair will be inducted into Utah State University's athletic hall of fame for pole vaulting. She competed from 1997-2000 and again in 2002.

She's just one of two female track athletes in Utah State history to earn All-American honors three times.

Now, Bair volunteers to coach pole vaulters with Kimberly High School's track and field program. And she and her husband started a track club in Kimberly last year for younger children.

She said even though Title IX may have harmed opportunities for men, it has been beneficial for female athletes.

"It's done a lot of good for the women," she said.

At Canyon Ridge High, Wray just wrapped up her first year as the school's athletic director. Becoming an administrator wasn't her plan, though.

"I never wanted to leave the coaching world," she said.

But when the athletic director position opened up, she applied for it and was hired. Wray said it was an opportunity to provide stability for the school's athletic programs after a couple of years of turnover.

Now, part of her job involves monitoring the school's Title IX compliance. That includes a variety of tasks, such as making sure there are an equal number of games for boys and girls teams.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

stage of her career. First it's capturing a NASCAR championship in the Commercial Tire Super Stocks division at her hometown track of Magic Valley Speedway. Next...well, Newhouse says the door is wide open.

"I want a lot bigger and a lot faster, but I'll go wherever they take me."

Brett Thompson, owner of the No. 61 late model car driven by Newhouse says that when she came on board with the Jerome-based Thompson Motorsports program an outline was in place that they believed would allow her to realize her NASCAR racing aspirations. "She needs to go through some of the steps - not get above where she needs to be yet," Thompson said. "The short track racing maybe doesn't seem like it gets you ready for the future but it does. It gets your confidence and experience up and anytime you can keep that going, it's a plus."

"You have to master the levels but wins are what they really want to see," he added. "She has already been recognized by some pretty high-up people in NASCAR; they're watching her. Obviously she has gotten their attention."

Having already proven her talent in two different classes Newhouse says she recognizes the value of seat time.

"Go-karts are driven on road courses so you're turning both right and left. The trucks, they have a completely different feel than the late model cars; a lot more than people realize. But you do take with you what you learned from both of them about patience and learning to clear each other."

Even with as much success as she has had this season there have been bumps along the way. After an unusually rough night during the last round of racing the car was back at the shop for repairs. But as usual, Newhouse was there eagerly living up to her other end of the bargain.

"The deal is that she has to work here at the shop," Thompson reported. "She does whatever we need her to do clean the cars, the haulers, or even hand people tools. She is learning as much as she can, and that way she also learns to respect her equipment. This is the first time she has ever really brought the car back with damage, but it was from nothing she did wrong."

Newhouse said she is eager to get involved in any aspect of the sport that may prepare her for the future.

"I love working here. I ask all kinds of questions and I am definitely learning a lot," she offered.

Thompson concluded that it's a win-win proposition for both sides.

"She has been a very good representative for Thompson motorsports and her sponsors. This is just what we wanted to do build something for our future so that when she moves on this is a desired ride for the next person wanting to move up."

"She is obviously a fan favorite out there. I have only seen a couple of her races but I was very impressed. She definitely had the fastest car but was very patient and knew what to do. She is an excellent little driver. We're very happy with her."

Choose Hope Over Hopelessness

I've always wondered at what point we Christians became better known for our pessimism than our optimism? Study the cultural caricature of a "Christian" and inevitably the caricature includes an acquaintance, family member or friend cynical about the present and pessimistic about the future.

What if we could launch a new revolution of optimism for the future inspired by the faith in The One we claim authors hope, among other things?

Our marching orders for the new revolution would reflect the first phrase of this verse: "But in your hearts set apart Christ as Lord. Always be prepared to give an answer to everyone who asks you to give the reason for the hope that you have. But do this with gentleness and respect." (1 Peter 1:15)

I love this verse. The radical assumption is that we can live reasonably and rationally with a hope inspired by Jesus. The obvious by-product would be that we naturally and routinely express in conversation and action that we own a uniquely positive spin on future events. By the way, read that verse again and check out how we're to engage the conversation. Pretty revolutionary stuff, isn't it?

I get the concern for "end of days" conversations. But sometimes I wonder if much of contemporary Christianity isn't an adventure in missing the point(s).

Brian Vriesman
Pastor's Corner

The Bible is clear in expressing its anticipation of the end of days and the return of Jesus. Yes, let's be alert, prepared and live with urgency. But let's be alert and optimistic: prepared and hopeful; urgent without being cynical.

Listen, the first reason for my hope in the future is Jesus. The second reason? I'm a lifelong Chicago Cub fan. Cub fans have to believe that the future will be brighter than the past or present. You have to believe. Yes, you have to believe!

As a pastor, I've observed death-bed optimism (hope). It's profound. It's reassuring. It's the acid test of our hope in Jesus. If that optimism could be expressed with the same passion and consistency in our daily routine, Christians might attain an entirely new level of cultural credibility.

I've got an idea: Since this column is confined to the religion page, why not keep this "Revolution of the Hopeful" our little secret? You never know. We might surprise some folks. Impact a few lives. At least we can always hope!

Fellowship on the Field

Magic Valley churches use softball as a way to minister to men.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • They look like any softball team you might see in a city league, down to their uniforms and cleat-bottom shoes.

When one of the men run to home base, teammates clap and shout just as you'd expect at any softball game.

It's how they start their games that is different. They start them with prayer.

"You won't see that in the city league," said Steve Elston of team Lighthouse 2, one of three church softball teams at Lighthouse Christian Fellowship. His team competed Thursday night against Filer First Baptist Church as part of Magic Valley's church softball league, which includes men's and co-ed teams.

Eight teams from seven churches make up the men's league. The games function much like city league games in that each team moves up the ranks depending on their wins until a final contest at the end of the season. Men come out to exercise and share competition.

But then there's this: The league serves as an unofficial men's ministry for area churches.

"We pray. We start the game with 'God bless,'" Elston said. "It's a great way to minister to guys."

The league helps promote the message that the community's churches are not only about Sunday worship, said Jeremy Toothman of Filer First Baptist, but about people.

"What makes this really exciting," said league president Kevin Newbry, "is that when people have church issues it becomes a kind of non-threatening way to fellowship them. It gives them that non-threatening feeling, 'Hey, these guys aren't dressed up in suits and ties; they're just normal people playing softball.'"

But some things make these guys stand out. Beginning each game with prayer, for instance. There also is no profanity on the field, Newbry said, and alcohol and chewing tobacco are not allowed.

"We want to keep it family-friendly," he said, "but we also want it to be safe."

VOICES OF FAITH

What Can Faiths Do to Bring Civility to Society?

MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

Lead by Example

All faiths encourage good actions, positive virtues and personal responsibility and see themselves and the world as sacred. Yet there is still much suffering in the world, and much of it is caused by religions themselves.

Therefore, it seems what is needed is better interfaith understanding. It is through interfaith dialogue that we can find the common quality of all religions that is of humanitarian ideals. By working individually and together we can create the causes and conditions for achieving a more peaceful world.

It is up to each of us to first work on changing our own inner feelings of anger, hatred or prejudice. We must replace those negative emotions with compassion and loving kindness for all people, not just for those who are close to us, but for everyone — even our enemies. Only then can we encourage our political representatives and leaders to do the same. We have seen many times throughout history how one person can make a difference in the world.

We should lead by example, both as individuals and as a nation.

From the Buddhist perspective it is believed that our fundamental nature is basically good. It is our nature to want to help others. Therefore, we can do much to bring about peace in the world. It was Gandhi who said, "You must be the change you wish to see in the world."

mandments show us that we are not perfect, and we need help. They also teach us how to relate to God and our neighbors. The Apostles' Creed shows us where to go for help: God who is our creator; Jesus Christ who saves us from sin, death and the devil; Holy Spirit, whose presence guides and directs our lives.

We believe the Lord's Prayer shows us how to ask God for help. The first three petitions speak about Him. The last four address our personal needs Sacrament of Baptism: This is where God comes into our lives through water and His Word to set us free from our sin, but also to make us one of His beloved children.

Sacrament of Holy Communion: This is gift of God's love and grace freely given to us on a regular basis through eating bread (His body) and drinking wine or grape juice (His blood).

Confession: privately confessing sins strengthens the need for God's forgiveness and love.

What's a typical service? Our service is liturgical in nature, with Holy Communion the first and third Sunday of the month.

Do you offer childcare? Yes.

Describe your children's ministry: We have Sunday education hour for adults and children at 11 a.m..

What other programs do you provide? We offer Bible studies, book studies, quilting, men's breakfast. More info can be found on our website

What community service does your church provide? Service at St Edward's Soup Kitchen.

What mission work does your church do? We support the Luther Heights Bible Camp south of Stanley, and the ministries of the ELCA.

Our Savior Lutheran Church to Hold Silent Prayer

TWIN FALLS • Pastor Doug Kempe will lead morning worship on the Fourth Sunday after Pentecost at 9:30 a.m. Sunday at Our Savior Lutheran Church, 464 Carriage Lane N. in Twin Falls. Refreshments will be served after worship. Children's Sunday school begins at 10:45 a.m. and Adult Education starts at 11 a.m.

An hour of silent prayer continues at 7 p.m. Sundays through July 29. This is a time for people to gather in silence to talk to God, reflect and examine their personal lives. It is not a service or organized prayer so they may stay as long as they wish.

The Luther Heights Women's Retreat will be held July 20 to 22 at the Luther Heights Bible Camp near Alturas Lake. The theme is "Take It to the Lord in Prayer."

Everyone is welcome to any church activity. Information: 733-3774 or www.olsft.org.

Britain is a graduate of Southwestern Bible College and has been a senior pastor of Assembly of God churches for more than 33 years. After serving in Idaho, Colorado, Nebraska and California, his ministry is now directed to help the hurting that attend every service. He is in demand as a speaker for Sunday services, mission conventions and men's retreats.

A love offering will be received to help cover Britain's travel costs.

Information: Pastor Mark Burgess, 208-434-2004.

Terry to Talk at Unitarian Church

TWIN FALLS • Ryan Terry will discuss "To Err is Human" when the Magic Valley Unitarian Universalist Fellowship meets at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Twin Falls Senior Center, 530 Shoshone St. W. in Twin Falls.

Error is typically viewed by most as a hindrance to progress and success. However, Terry will look at how apparent error may serve as an agent of improvement in people's lives. Participants will look at examples of this phenomenon within science and technology and their own lives.

Information: Ken Whiting at 734-9161.

Sermon Series Continues at Church on a Mission

TWIN FALLS • Pastor Paul Jordan will continue his sermon series through the Book of Malachi for worship at 10:35 a.m. Sunday at Church on a Mission, 134 Hansen St. E. in Twin Falls. The study shows what happens when God's people stop worshipping him from their hearts, making religion just a routine. A time of fellowship and breaking of bread follows worship.

Information: 490-0548.

Kimberly Church to Celebrate 100 Years

KIMBERLY • The Kimberly Christian Church will celebrate its 100th birthday with a special church service starting at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Kimberly Middle School Commons.

The celebration includes four special guest speakers from the church's history, previous ministers Jim Keefe, Bruce Thacker and Richard Butler, and Dan Harrod, a previous youth pastor, missionary to Kenya and current professor at Boise Bible College.

A special program at 2 p.m. at the same location will feature the church's history, skits and special music.

Wendell Church Hosts Tent Meeting and VBS

WENDELL • The Berean Baptist Church, 175 Second Ave. W. in Wendell, will host a tent meeting and Vacation Bible School this week with evangelist Steve Cody of Lenapah, Okla., and musicians Jeff and Donna Gore of Coleman, Texas.

Services begin at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday. A meal will be served at 6 p.m., followed by a service at 7 p.m. daily Monday through Wednesday.

Vacation Bible School will be from 9:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Wednesday. Lunch will be provided for the children and workers.

Everyone is welcome.

Cowboy Tent Revival at Gooding Church

GOODING • The First Southern Baptist Church, 2245 California St. in Gooding, will present Steve Cody Ministries in an outdoor event this week. Come join us for five evenings of an old-fashioned Cowboy Tent Revival Meeting.

Cody will feed the congregation with spiritual food 7 p.m. daily, Sunday through Thursday. At 6 p.m., he and his team have prepared some grub to feed the physical needs of the community.

The team has also prepared a free Vacation Bible School. Children will be encouraged to attend this fun time from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Thursday.

A free concert by Blackwood Legacy kicks off the events at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Everyone is welcome.

Spain Man Visits Our Lady of Guadalupe

TWIN FALLS • Father Juan Garatea is visiting from Spain, where he retired in 2006.

Friends are invited to surprise him with prayer and song from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday at Our Lady of Guadalupe, 630 Falls Ave. in Twin Falls, to celebrate the 53rd anniversary of his priestly ordination.

Cards may be sent to Sister RoseMary Boessen, P.O. Box 1962, Twin Falls, ID 83303.

Valley Christian Appoints New Pastor

TWIN FALLS • Valley Christian Church, 1708 Heyburn Ave. E. in Twin Falls, announced the official hiring of Jeremy Fort as its new pastor.

Fort brings 15 years of church leadership from Edge View Church in Phoenix, Ariz., where he was ordained and served as senior pastor for four years.

He graduated from Filer High School in 1990 and holds a bachelor's degree in engineering. His career has focused on operations, consulting, business development and IT program management in both Phoenix, Ariz., and Washington, D.C. He also earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy from Southern Christian University.

"We celebrate the beginning of a new vision for Valley Christian Church. We prayed for guidance during our search, which led us to ask Pastor Fort to serve our congregation. We earnestly know that the Lord led us to select Pastor Fort, who we know will make Valley Christian Church a home for all people," says Dorothy Ihler, charter member of Valley Christian Church.

Fort says he will balance a dual career and remain employed as a solution architect with the same service-disabled veteran-owned small business he's worked for during the past three years. In that role, Fort has secured clients such as the U.S. Veterans Administration, United States Coast Guard, Department of Homeland Security, Department of Energy and United States Department of Agriculture. Recently, he helped win $20 billion in federal contracts with National Institutes of Health.

"I have an abiding passion to impact people with the Word of God through creative and relevant teaching combined with community service. I will work to ensure the vision of this church is fulfilled and its ministry reaches people who have never set foot in a church before. I will only do what only I can do and will allow God to do what only He can do," Fort says.

Fort relocated to Idaho nearly a year ago after residing in Phoenix, Ariz. Today, he lives in Shoshone with his wife, Kara, and daughters, Grace and Daisy Mae.

Information: 733-3222 or email Fort at jeremyfort@hotmail.com.

Quartet to Present Three Concerts

TWIN FALLS • The Blackwood Legacy Quartet will present concerts at three locations in the next week.

Events are set for 6 p.m. Sunday at the First Southern Baptist Church, 2245 California St. in Gooding (934-8556); 7 p.m. Monday at the First Southern Baptist Church, 492 Washington St. N. in Twin Falls (733-4806); and 10:30 a.m. July 1 at the First Christian Church, 334 Fourth Ave. W. in Gooding (934-4542).

The Blackwood Legacy Quartet includes Rick Price, Luke Yates, Paul Secord and Daniel Childs. It is said to be one of the most successful and hardest working gospel music groups today, demonstrating the love of God through music, ministry and testimony.

Built on the legendary music of the Grammy and Dove Award-winning Blackwood Brothers Quartet, Rick Price and Chris Blackwood formed the Blackwood Legacy as a tribute to that quartet.

Blackwood Legacy Quartet was signed in 2010 to Mansion Records. It has released its first album under the new label, with a second album scheduled for release this year. Inducted into the Gospel Music Hall of Fame with the Blackwood Brothers, Price has more than 30 years of gospel music under his belt. Luke Yates is a pianist and vocalist from the Spokane, Wash., area. Daniel Childs is a great-grandson to Blackwood Brothers founding father Roy Blackwood and a well-known musician and singer. The newest member is tenor Paul Secord, a powerful songwriter, worship leader and musician.

Catholic Bishops Continue Protest of Contraception Mandate

BY MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • President Barack Obama wasn't mentioned by name, but he was clearly the target Thursday as the nation's Roman Catholic bishops began their "Fortnight for Freedom" campaign with a renewed attack on a federal mandate for private employers to provide free contraceptive coverage to workers.

The mandate, Archbishop William Lori of Baltimore told worshippers at a nationally televised Mass, "will force conscientious private employers to violate their consciences" by making them offer "reproductive services that are morally objectionable."

who plays on the league's co-ed games on Fridays, said during the summer the softball field is like a second home to them because of the hours they spend there. But she wouldn't have it any other way, because she appreciates what it does for her husband.

"They're all friends. They get together and hang out," she said. "I'd rather have him be doing this than some of the other things he could be doing."

The church league started in the early '70s, said Newbry, who's been involved with it for about 25 years — including 17 as president. He said the league was a main reason why Frontier Park, just east of College of Southern Idaho, was built.

Game season goes until mid-August.

"A bunch of us once played on the city league, Elston said. "We love the game, and this is a great ministry to men. ... One guy didn't even know the Lord, but we got him out here."

In trying to reach people, churches try to use all the tools in their toolbox, said Andy Paz, pastor of Filer First Baptist.

"This is just another tool."

OBITUARIES*Wesley (Wes) Beeson

Feb. 22, 1925-June 12, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Our beloved husband, father, grandfather and friend left this earth for his heavenly home with his Lord and Savior on Tuesday, June 12, 2012.

Samuel Wesley (Wes) Beeson was born Feb. 22, 1925, in Star, Idaho, to Roy and Lois Beeson. He was the sixth of seven children. The family lived in Star until he was a freshman in high school and then moved to Homedale, Idaho. He graduated from Homedale High School in 1942. He joined the Navy in 1945 just before the end of World War II and was honorably discharged in 1946.

Wes met the love of his life and, after a four-month courtship, he married Elaine Pace on Nov. 30, 1949, and they were happily married for 62½ years. They lived in Homedale for several years before moving to Twin Falls, where they farmed on the Salmon Tract. In 1967, they moved to Twin Falls where Wes worked as plant manager for Berger & Plate, Magic Valley Bean in Kimberly and for L.W. Moore Bean Warehouse in Hansen. After leaving the bean business, he worked for Gem Spraying.

Wes and Elaine had four children, Dick, Connie, Gary and Keith. His loving care and guidance and patience were evident to his children as he taught them good work ethics by his example. His unconditional love was the guiding factor by which he raised his family and loved his Elaine. His family was his pride and joy. Wes was a member of the Homedale Friends Church, the Twin Falls Christian Church and later the Kimberly Christian Church. He held several church positions on different boards and committees throughout the years.

Wes had a beautiful bass voice and could be heard singing or yodeling while on the tractors or irrigating. He was a dedicated member of the barbershop chorus the Magichords of Twin Falls for 40 years. He was very saddened when his health prevented him from singing with them anymore. He also sang in the church choirs for many, many years. Wes loved to sing!

Wes liked to fish and hunt. He always enjoyed volunteering for community activities, including the Buzz Langdon Visitor's Center and delivering Meals on Wheels with Elaine for 15 years. He served as a Boy Scout leader for all of his boys. He instilled his desire to do your best at whatever you do and his love of his fellow man. He was a kind and loving man who was always willing to help wherever he was needed.

Wes was preceded in death by his parents; an infant brother; two sisters, Pearl and Mary; and his son, Dick in 2004. He is survived by his loving wife, Elaine; daughter, Connie (Bob) Davis of Boise; and sons, Gary (Angie) Beeson and Keith Beeson of Twin Falls. Wes had six grandchildren, Tami Ryals, Travis (Sarah) Ryals, Justin Beeson, Amber Beeson, Krystal Johansen and Jason (Anika) Johansen; plus two stepchildren, Tiffany (Joe) Slaughter and Luke Davis. He was also blessed with seven great-grandchildren, Colton, Shane and Kennedy Wickstrom, Jaidyn Ryals, Emma Jo Slaughter, and Hayden and Jordan Johansen. He is also survived by his brother, Bob (Ruth) Beeson of Nampa; sisters, Evelyn McIntyre of Alaska and Hazel McCracken of Caldwell; and numerous nieces and nephews.

The family wishes to thank all the wonderful doctors and staff at Mountain View Care Center and Oak Creek Rehabilitation Center for the tender care they gave Dad. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations be sent to the Twin Falls Senior Center, 530 Shoshone St. Twin Falls, ID 83301.

A service will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, July 2, at Rosenau Funeral Home, 2826 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

DEATH NOTICES*Ralph Johnson Jr.

TWIN FALLS • Ralph "Jerry" Jerald Johnson Jr., 78, of Twin Falls, died Friday, June 22, 2012, at Alpine Manor in Twin Falls.

A funeral mass will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday, June 27, St. Edward the Confessor Catholic Church, 161 Sixth Ave. E. in Twin Falls; visitation at 6 p.m. and rosary at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 26, at Reynolds Funeral Chapel, 2466 Addison Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Tommy Webb

WENDELL • Tommy L. Webb, 80, of Wendell, died Thursday, June 21, 2012, at the North Canyon Medical Center in Gooding.

A funeral will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, June 27, at the New Life Community Church in Wendell; visitation from 4 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 26, at Demaray Funeral Service, Wendell Chapel.

Violence Follows Removal of Paraguay's President

BY CARLOS CASTILLOS
McClatchy/Tribune

ASUNCION, Paraguay • Paraguay was plunged into a deepening political crisis late Friday after the Senate voted 39-4 to remove President Fernando Lugo from office in a rapid-fire impeachment procedure.

The Senate ruled that Lugo had failed to carry out his duties. Vice President Federico Franco was to succeed Lugo.

Lugo, 61, a left-wing populist, accepted his dismissal, and called on his supporters to demonstrate their opposition to his dismissal — but peacefully.

"Today it is not Fernando Lugo who has taken a blow," he said. "It is Paraguayan democracy that has been profoundly injured."

Violence erupted outside the Congress building when the results of the vote were announced. Police used tear gas and high pressure water from hydrants to disperse demonstrators outraged at Lugo's dismissal. Several shots were heard, although there were no immediate reports of casualties.

Lugo was believed to be at the government palace in Asuncion. Lugo's Health Minister Esperanza Martinez earlier in the day denounced the pending impeachment as a "parliamentary coup d'etat."

"I subject myself to the decision of Congress," Lugo said minutes after the legislature removed him from office. "Today I say farewell as president of the Republic, but I don't say farewell as Paraguayan citizen."

Breivik Ends Massacre Trial by Defending Attacks

BY KARL RITTER
Associated Press

OSLO, Norway • With a rambling monologue depicting Norway's worst peacetime massacre as a necessary evil, confessed mass killer Anders Behring Breivik got the last word as his 10-week trial ended Friday amid conflicting claims about his sanity.

Relatives of his 77 victims said they hope it's the last they hear of him.

"For me this is not about whether he's mentally competent or not," said Unni Espeland, whose 16-year-old daughter Andrine was killed in Breivik's shooting massacre on a political youth camp. "For me this is about him never being let out again."

Since the self-styled anti-Muslim fanatic admitted to the twin attacks on July 22 — a car bomb in downtown Oslo followed by the shooting spree at the governing Labor Party's youth camp — his sanity was the key issue to be resolved in the trial.

Breivik, 33, rejected prosecutors' assertion that he is insane, but it was unclear whether he helped his case with a closing statement that included complaints against the TV show "Sex and the City" and the Eurovision Song contest.

Video of Bus Monitor's Misery Strikes a Nerve

BY RIK STEVENS
Associated Press

The pebble was tossed when a middle-school student in upstate New York posted a 10-minute video on his Facebook page.

The video, showing four other seventh-grade boys cruelly taunting 68-year-old bus monitor Karen Klein, was quickly uploaded to YouTube.

And the ripples began. Millions of viewers from around the world watched her humiliation. There were cries of indignation and sympathy, retribution and recompense. Through posts on social media and the user-generated news site Reddit.com, word spread geometrically, leading to a fund drive that began with a modest goal of $5,000 to help Klein take a nice vacation and scrub the foul memories of the last days of school from her mind.

By Friday afternoon, the drive had sailed past $550,000, with donations from more than 25,000 people.

Even in an increasingly connected, fast-moving world of information flow and echo, the response to Klein's plight is a stunning example of the power of people in the new, Me-Media era.

"Oh, my God," Klein told The Associated Press in an

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bus monitor Karen Klein speaks during an interview Thursday in Greece, N.Y. A video of four boys mercilessly taunting Klein that went viral has turned the victim into an international fundraising juggernaut.

interview Thursday, when the total was around $370,000. She said it was "weird, very weird" to suddenly be an international celebrity and joked she'd have to go out in public disguised by a wig and dark glasses.

"I appreciate everything so much," she said. "It's just hard to believe strangers, people I never talked to, never seen, will send me a message saying, 'We love you, we think you're a great person.'"

Lee Rainie, director of the Pew Internet Project and author of "Networked: The New Social Operating System," said these kinds of moments have occurred before, but he still called the sheer volume of the response to the Klein video

"head-scratching."

"It kind of feels like there aren't boundaries to this stuff," said Rainie.

The formula is pretty simple, Rainie said: A lot of people passionate about what they do keep vigilant eyes on the Web and react instantly when something offends or delights. The speed and reach of the Web do the rest.

"It's clear there are any number of watchdogs, you can call them; cultural or civic observers who scan YouTube or pictures for evidence of bad behavior," he said.

"Once it sort of gets in the line of vision of the people who get mad about these things, they use the Web to sort of, first, exact their version of justice and secondly, to help people who are clear targets or victims. Obviously, there's a cascading networking effect on this."

The verbal abuse was captured in a 10-minute cellphone video recorded Monday by a student of Athena Middle School in the Rochester suburb of Greece. The video shows Klein trying her best to ignore the stream of profanity, insults and outright threats.

One student taunted: "You don't have a family because they all killed themselves because they don't want to be near you!" Klein's oldest son killed himself 10 years ago.

Eventually, she appears to break down in tears.

Max Sidorov, the 25-year-old Canadian man who started the fund drive on the site Indiegogo.com started with modest goals. In an interview Friday with The Associated Press, the kinesiologist and nutritionist said he was bullied when he came to Canada from Ukraine, so he empathized with Klein and likened the taunting to "attacking the little guy."

"Only in my wildest dreams did I think the amount of money raised would reach this much. It's very amazing to put it lightly, the amount that she's got," he said.

Agent: Chemicals Found in Saudi Man's Apartment

BY BETSY BLANEY
Associated Press

AMARILLO, Texas • Prosecutors used scores of photographs to show jurors chemicals and other materials that FBI agents found inside of the apartment of a Saudi man accused of gathering bomb components at his Texas apartment.

Photos presented Friday showed bottles of sulfuric acid and nitric acid, and other materials that included wiring, Christmas lights and a hazmat suit that 22-year-old Khalid Ali-M Aldawsari allegedly ordered online before his arrest in February 2011.

Defense attorney Dan Cogdell elicited testimony that none of the bottles had been opened and were still sealed when seized by the agents.

Cogdell contended his client never had a specific plan to use a bomb.

Aldawsari faces up to life in prison if convicted of attempted use of a weapon of mass destruction.

Testimony resumes Monday.

Internet Group Picks Little-known Executive as CEO

BY ANICK JESDANUN
Associated press

NEW YORK • A businessman with experience in building consensus will be the next CEO of the Internet agency in charge of contentious policies surrounding Internet addresses.

Chehade

The Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, which is pushing through a major change in the way Web and email addresses are structured and assigned, announced Fadi Chehade's appointment Friday. He will replace former U.S. cybersecurity chief Rod Beckstrom as chief executive.

In selecting Chehade, ICANN went with someone who isn't well known and isn't well versed in the organization's core tasks — keeping the Internet address system running smoothly.

Chehade does, however, have a knack for diplomacy. In the early days of e-commerce, he persuaded leading tech companies such as IBM and Hewlett-Packard to collaborate on a system called RosettaNet for exchanging data, even as they competed for customers.

ICANN Chairman Steve Crocker said those achievements outweighed the drawbacks.

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press ahead of the announcement, Chehade, 50, said his work at RosettaNet prepared him for the new role.

"The thrill and the satisfaction of bringing people around some common understanding is tremendous," Chehade said. "I have a personal and deep love of bringing consensus."

He said that when executive recruiters contacted him about the position at ICANN, "I immediately had flashbacks of how much I enjoyed doing a job that everybody told me was impossible and difficult."

As CEO, Chehade will receive a base salary of $560,000 plus up to $240,000 in bonuses based on merit. He is tentatively set to start Oct. 1. His tenure lasts until July 1, 2015.

Beckstrom leaves ICANN this July 1. Chief Operating Officer Akram Atallah will serve as CEO in the interim.

One of Chehade's chief tasks will be guiding the largest expansion of the Internet address system since its creation in the 1980s. The change affects how people find Web sites or send email and could lead to more options for businesses as easy-to-remember ".com" names are harder to obtain.

ICANN has received 1,930 proposals for 1,409 different domain name suffixes, including ".love," ".google" and ".music." They would rival ".com" and others now in use. A florist called Apple can't use "apple.com" today because the computer company has it, but the shop might get "apple.flowers" one day.

Couple Pleads Not Guilty in Suspected Pimp Killing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) • A San Francisco couple accused of shooting and killing a man they suspected of pimping and beating their 17-year-old daughter pleaded not guilty Friday.

Barry Gilton, 38, and his girlfriend, Lupe Mercado, 37, are facing a murder charge in the death of Calvin Sneed.

The 22-year-old Sneed was shot in his car on June 4 near the couple's home.

According to authorities, the couple plotted to kill Sneed after they suspected he was pimping their daughter and were unable to get her back.

They traveled to North Hollywood eight days before the fatal shooting, and one of them fired at Sneed's Toyota Camry, authorities say. Sneed survived that attack with minor injuries.

The couple's attorneys say Sneed had many enemies, and their clients did not shoot him.

"There are many people who had a motive to do harm to him," Tony Tamburello, Mercado's attorney was quoted as saying in the San Francisco Chronicle. "We feel like our clients are being unfairly targeted."

Tamburello said Sneed began beating and pimping the girl after meeting her in Los Angeles six months ago.

The girl refused her parents' pleas to come home, according to Eric Safire, Gilton's attorney. The couple also filed a missing persons and abuse report with San Francisco police, he said.

Gilton, a San Francisco public transit driver who is on disability, and Mercado are each being held in lieu of $2 million bail. They were ordered to return to court Monday to set a date for their preliminary hearing.

DEAR ABBY: I regard my photograph albums as diaries. I don't like to make copies of my pictures for others. My future mother-in-law looked through my albums and chose half a dozen that she would like me to copy for her. I had already given her several snapshots of her son and me, but she wants more.

Abby, I don't understand why she doesn't just take her own pictures of us! I view these pictures as personal items. I don't think they are for others to own and display. Am I wrong? How can I refuse requests for copies of my pictures without offending someone?

— L.E. IN CINCINNATI
DEAR L.E.: I think you're viewing this scenario from the wrong perspective. Perhaps your mother-in-law-to-be isn't as comfortable or creative with a camera as you are. If she didn't have warm feelings for you, she wouldn't want to own and display the pictures she's requesting.

Unless you become less territorial and change your attitude, I foresee a troubled relationship with your mother-in-law looming on the horizon. Get the picture?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for seven years and have two small children. My husband loves me and is good to me. My problem is I no longer feel the same about him anymore.

My former fiance recently came back into my life. I hadn't seen him in eight years, and the moment I saw him all the old feelings came flooding back. We even spent the night together.

I told my husband everything, hoping he would be upset and leave me, but he was forgiving and wants to stay married! Now I don't know what to do — stay with him or be with the one true love of my life. I can't stop thinking about my love. Please help me.

— UNHAPPY IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR UNHAPPY:
Nowhere in your letter have you indicated that your ex-fiance feels the way you do, and is ready to support you emotionally and financially. You have much to lose if you abandon your husband and children. That's why I'm urging you and your husband to seek counseling to try to reignite your marriage, because right now you are living in a fantasy of what "might have been."

DEAR ABBY: My neighbor "Marcella" is 84. She's a lovely woman, but she's dependent on me to do everything for her because she's quite senile. Marcella has been in three auto accidents and goes from doctor to doctor for treatment because she forgets who treated her last.

Abby, this poor woman's "children," who are in their 40s and 50s, live 10 minutes away and visit her only twice a year. They knew about Marcella's car accidents and never even showed up at the hospital.

I have my own family to care for and I work. Marcella demands my attention daily to do her grocery shopping, check her furnace or take her to doctor's appointments. I just can't do it all anymore! Your advice?

— LOYAL NEIGHBOR IN PENNSYLVANIA
DEAR LOYAL NEIGHBOR: You are very kind-hearted, but the responsibility for your neighbor's care should be borne by her children. If you don't want to confront Marcella's children directly, phone or write them a letter explaining what you have told me. If they refuse to help, then senior citizen services in your county should be contacted ASAP.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Today is Saturday, June 23, the 175th day of 2012. There are 191 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On June 23, 1812, Britain, unaware that America had declared war against it five days earlier, rescinded its policy on neutral shipping, a major issue of contention between the two countries. The same day, the British frigate HMS Belvidera came under attack from the USS President and the USS Congress in the North Atlantic; the Belvidera managed to escape.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1757, forces of the East India Company led by Robert Clive won the Battle of Plassey, which effectively marked the beginning of British colonial rule in India.
In 1860, a congressional resolution authorized creation of the United States Government Printing Office, which opened the following year.

In 1931, aviators Wiley Post and Harold Gatty took off from New York on a round-the-world flight that lasted eight days and 15 hours.

In 1938, the Civil Aeronautics Authority was established.

In 1947, the Senate joined the House in overriding President Harry S. Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Act, designed to limit the power of organized labor.

In 1956, Gamal Abdel Nasser was elected president of Egypt.

In 1961, the Antarctic Treaty, intended to ensure that the continent would be used only for peaceful purposes, came into force.

In 1967, President Lyndon B. Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held the first of two meetings at Glassboro State College in New Jersey.

In 1969, Warren E. Burger was sworn in as chief justice of the United States by the man he was succeeding, Earl Warren.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon and White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman discussed a plan to use the CIA to obstruct the FBI's Watergate investigation. (Revelation of the tape recording of this conversation sparked Nixon's resignation in 1974.)

In 1985, all 329 people aboard an Air India Boeing 747 were killed when the plane crashed into the Atlantic Ocean near Ireland because of a bomb believed to have been planted by Sikh separatists.

In 2005, a divided U.S. Supreme Court, in Kelo v. City of New London, ruled that governments may seize property for private development projects.

Ten years ago: Rival groups of Protestants and Catholics clashed on the streets of north Belfast, Northern Ireland, following a weekend of sporadic sectarian violence. Twenty-six North Korean asylum seekers left South Korea and Canadian diplomatic compounds in Beijing bound for South Korea, ending a month-long diplomatic standoff.

Five years ago: Searchers in Summit County, Ohio, found the body of Jessie Davis, a missing 26-year-old pregnant woman, in a park. (Bobby Cutts Jr., a former Canton police officer who was the father of Davis' unborn child, was later convicted of murder and aggravated murder and sentenced to 57 years to life in prison.)

One year ago: Republicans pulled out of debt-reduction talks led by Vice President Joe Biden, blaming Democrats for demanding tax increases as part of a deal rather than accepting more than $1 trillion in cuts to Medicare and other government programs. "Columbo" actor Peter Falk died in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 83.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"A Foreign Secretary ... is always faced with this cruel dilemma. Nothing he can say can do very much good, and almost anything he may say may do a great deal of harm."
— Harold MacMillan

Against six spades, West leads the heart 10, won with your ace, but on the first trump, East discards a club. Can you recover?

You will have to start by discarding dummy's diamond losers on your two spare heart winners. You play the diamond ace at trick three, cross to your club king, and cash the club queen.

You next play the heart king and queen, throwing dummy's remaining diamonds. When you lead the trump five, West does best to split his honors, preventing you from finessing dummy's eight. You win his trump 10 with the queen and ruff the club four with your remaining trump, the nine.

While dummy's last four cards are the trump K-8-3 and club ace, West still has to play to this trick, holding J-7-6 of trumps and a low card in each red suit. He is now on the horns of a dilemma. If he overruffs with the jack, you will be able to ruff his red-suit return in dummy, draw trump, and claim the balance. If he discards instead, you will lead a red card and score a ruff with dummy's trump three. You can then exit with the club ace, which West ruffs. You will score the K-8 of trumps on his return.

(Incidentally, if East had all five trumps, you would need to find him with exactly 5-3-1-4 pattern. If so, you could cash all the side suits, ruff the fourth club, then exit with the spade nine to East to endplay him in trumps.)

ANSWER: It is easy to get carried away here, but you can imagine partner's hand with six solid diamonds and the spade queen, where you would be struggling even in game. For the time being, look for three no-trump first, facing a spade stop. Bid three clubs, asking partner to support hearts or rebid in no-trump with a spade guard.

JUMBLE

Unscramble these four Jumbles, one letter to each square, to form four ordinary words.

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME

by David L. Hoyt and Jeff Knurek

AFTER A LONG DAY OF PLANTING HEDGES, SHE WAS THIS.

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

IF JUNE 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your romantic and sympathetic heart is likely to attract a soul mate in the year to come. If you are already in a permanent relationship, July could bring you peace and tranquility through a real-estate transaction or a dramatic improvement in health. Yoga or meditation would be of benefit in any case. August offers wisdom and good judgment so that is a good time to make crucial decisions or changes. Although your ambitions are stirred in October, that is not the optimum time to launch any important financial or business venture. Early February is a better time to launch major enterprises for lasting contentment.

HOROSCOPE
 Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do the unpleasant task first and get it out of the way. You may have a hankering for the strange and unusual this weekend, but don't let it sidetrack you from important commitments. Don't rock the boat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Beautiful dreamers need no introductions. You might be floating on air due to the attentions of a secret admirer who comes into view. Don't waste money on items that won't stand the test of time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some things are meant to last. This week make an effort to stay in tune with others and in step with enduring values. Unexpected disruptions might briefly distract you from the big picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Meditate on the meaningful. Genius might be 99 percent perspiration and 1 percent inspiration, but it is visualization of results that acts as an incentive for accomplishment. Adopt a soothing demeanor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Use inner imagination. To earn approval from others, put your ability to understand the unseen to practical use. You can easily visualize what others want and utilize your time and talents to provide it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Ugly ducklings may turn into swans. Burn the midnight oil to meet obligations, but be aware that someone's waiting in the wings with eyes only for you. The eyes of the beholder are where beauty lies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't be pressured into doing something you shouldn't. Outside forces may seem to conspire to block or disrupt your personal plans. Don't be detoured or waylaid by an unexpected twist of fate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Tune in to nature's rhythms. Listen to the sounds of waves lapping on the shoreline. Compassion will draw others closer. Don't change horses in mid-stream, but remain loyal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use pictorial tactics that help you achieve success. Imagine that your present happiness will continue and endure. Visualize ways to look younger and feel more attractive. Start an exercise regimen.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tensions are tightening. A major alignment of outer planets that peaks tomorrow may coincide with turbulence in your personal life. Find acceptable ways to relieve the building pressures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Unlike pasta, some subjects aren't cut and dried. You might be the model of efficiency in some areas, but other issues are stuck in a tension matrix. Ask questions before things get out of hand.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Run a mile in someone else's track shoes. You may be up to speed where relationships are concerned, but this is a poor time for financial decisions. A special someone appreciates your understanding.

*To whom it may concern...
Called Jason and ask about the Nissan Murano convertible, came down to look at it and ended up buying. Both Jason and JJ worked very hard to get the best deal. We will recommend anyone to come here and visit Jason and JJ, thanks for the great service...
