Gooding Man Killed in Accident at Dairy

TIMES-NEWS

GOODING • A 43-year-old Gooding man was killed by an accident at a dairy northwest of Gooding Wednesday night.

At 9:30 p.m., Higinio Ledesma was using a front loader in the process of repairing a semitrailer at Rosa Dairy near 1400 South 1800 East, northwest of Gooding, said Chief Deputy Jerry Pierce of the Gooding County Sheriff's Office.

Ledesma had a chain hooked up between the trailer and the loader and the trailer rolled into him, crushing him, Pierce said.

The dairy owner got to the scene and started CPR until medical personnel arrived and took over, he said.

Pierce said Ledesma was transported to North Canyon Medical Center and taken by air ambulance to a Boise hospital.

This morning, Gooding deputies received a message that Ledesma died from his injuries, Pierce said.

Filer Man Dead After Boat Accident

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

ROGERSON • A Filer man died in a boating accident Wednesday night near the Salmon Falls Dam at Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir.

Two other men, also from Filer, were injured in the accident, said Lori Stewart, spokeswoman for the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department.

Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir is located about seven miles west of Rogerson.

Willis Mullen, 67, was pronounced dead at the scene. Christopher Mullen, 21, was transported by air ambulance and Ronald Stutzman, 65, was transported by ground to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center. Both men were treated and released, Stewart said.

The three men were fishing on the reservoir. While traveling back to shore, the boat hit a rock wall at about 11:30 p.m., she said.

Nearby campers heard what they thought was a crash and went to help. They got a boat in the water and saw flares coming off a boat in the distance, about a mile and a half from the docks at Salmon Falls Dam, Stewart said.

Deputies said the likely cause of the accident was the boat traveling too fast for the night conditions. It appeared no alcohol was involved, Stewart said.

According to Stewart, none of the men were thrown from the boat, but two were thrown through the windshield.

"It was a pretty severe impact," she said.

Supreme Court ruling on health care law leaves Idaho with more questions than answers.

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • So now what?

On Thursday morning, the Supreme Court voted to uphold the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, leaving Idaho leaders wondering how the ruling — and their own actions — will affect Idaho residents.

Right now, there are more questions than answers, said Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley.

The Question of the Exchange

This past session, the Idaho Legislature declined to introduce a bill that would have established a state-run insurance exchange, as mandated by the health care law.

The exchange would act as an online marketplace for insurance plans for individuals and small businesses to compare coverage and premiums.

The deadline for states to submit proposals is Nov. 16. If the state fails to set one up, the federal government will impose one on Idaho.

Last week, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter told the Times-News that he won't consider calling a special legislative session to pass the bill.

Wood, who worked on the insurance exchange bill with Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, said there is a chance the federal government will extend the Nov. 16 deadline in light of the Supreme Court ruling.

If that doesn't happen, and the governor doesn't change his mind on the special session, Idaho won't meet the deadline, Wood said.

Cameron was more optimistic.

"I'm not going to say we missed the boat," Cameron said, adding that Idaho is in a precarious position.

The health insurance legislation is ready for introduction, Cameron pointed out. If the federal government is lenient, and the issue gains momentum, the Legislature could pass the bill quickly.

If that doesn't happen? Expect a federal exchange with premiums and mandates that Idahoans may not want, Cameron said.

Medicaid Expansion

One of the most crucial parts of the ruling, Wood said, is the section that bars the federal government from withholding Medicaid funding from states that refuse to expand their Medicaid program to individuals who fall within 133 percent of the federal poverty level.

Now, Idaho can refuse to do so without fear of losing the federal Medicaid funds it already receives.

But, Wood pointed out, Thursday's Supreme Court ruling upheld the individual mandate, meaning those who fall within that 133 percent of the poverty level still need insurance coverage, unless they meet

Chief Justice John Roberts sided with the court's four liberal justices — Stephen Breyer, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Elena Kagan and Sonia Sotomayor — to form the 5-4 majority.

The court upheld Obama's signature legislative achievement. Final word from the court amplifies the most polarizing issue of his re-election campaign against Republican Mitt Romney.

St. Luke's CEO Wants to See Health Costs Decline

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As the nation focused Thursday on the implications of the Supreme Court upholding federal health care reform, Dr. David Pate had had another topic on his mind: Lowering health care costs.

On Thursday, Pate, the president and CEO of St. Luke's Health System, said regardless of the fate of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, the industry has plenty of other problems to fix.

While Pate said insuring everyone is a laudable goal, there are other problems that the state needs to solve as well.

"If health care costs are out of control, it doesn't seem like the first answer is 'Let's put more people in the system,'" Pate said.

One example: A shortage of physicians willing to treat Medicaid patients for low payments.

"We'll have people on Medicaid, but we may not have enough physicians to see those patients," Pate said.

Pate would also like to see the system reward doctors for preventative treatment and keeping patients healthy.

Currently, doctors are only paid if they see a patient in person, and patients often don't make appointments until they're ill. Pate believes patients would be more likely to seek preventative treatment early on if they could get help from their doctor through other means.

WHAT DOES THE RULING MEAN TO ME?

The Supreme Court decision upholding President Barack Obama's health care law affects nearly every American. The law tells almost everyone they must have health coverage and guarantees it will be available to them even if they are already ill or need hugely expensive care. It helps the poor and many middle-class people afford coverage.

WHAT THE JUSTICES SAID

The high court upheld almost all of the law, including the most disputed part: the mandate that virtually all Americans have health insurance or pay a fine. The court said that fine is essentially a tax, and that's why the government has the power to impose it.

The ruling limited the law's plan to expand the Medicaid insurance program for the poor, a joint effort of the federal government and states. It says the U.S. government cannot withhold a state's entire Medicaid allotment if it doesn't par-filled with marijuana, and prescription pill bottles containing marijuana seeds, the report stated.

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies say a 56-year-old Twin Falls woman was growing marijuana in her garage.

Vernice Tucker lives in the 1100 block of South Park Avenue in Twin Falls County, west of the city of Twin Falls. She was arraigned in Twin Falls County 5th District Court Wednesday on a charge of trafficking in marijuana (between one and five pounds or between 25 and 49 plants).

According to an affidavit by Twin Falls County Sheriff's Detective Matthew Becker, deputies originally heard about the operation on April 26 from Tucker's adult granddaughter, but were unable to act on the information because of a large caseload in the narcotics unit.

On June 14, deputies decided to conduct a "knock and talk" at Tucker's home and ask to search the garage for the suspected marijuana grow, Becker wrote in the documents.

At about 9:30 a.m. the deputies arrived and spoke to Tucker about the plants.

"I noted that the color appeared to drain out of Mrs. Tucker's face," Becker wrote. "After a brief moment Mrs. Tucker admitted she did have a grow in her garage."

According to the report, Tucker consented to allow the detectives to search her garage. Upon entering, Tucker showed the detectives a backpack that held three Mason jars partially

In the garage was a second room that allegedly contained several one- to three-foot-tall marijuana plants, lights and other items the deputies recognized as common for growing marijuana, the report states.

During an interview with Tucker, she told deputies no one knew she was growing the plants, Becker wrote — not even her husband. According to the report, the woman said she was growing and selling the marijuana for extra income to care for her ailing mother-in-law.

The report also states Tucker told deputies she learned to grow the plants by watching videos on the Internet. Deputies did not find any other illegal drugs or paraphernalia in the home, the report states.

Since she was cooperative, detectives decided to file charges for manufacturing marijuana, but held off on arresting Tucker and instead issued a summons to court for the charges, the report states.

In total, deputies said they found 43 live marijuana plants, two plant stems attached to root balls in a garbage can, more than four pounds of dried harvested marijuana, and about 44 grams of marijuana seeds.

After being arraigned Wednesday, Tucker was released on her own recognizance and is expected back in court on July 6 for a preliminary hearing.

BURNED BUHL MAN LISTED AS CRITICAL

TIMES-NEWS

SALT LAKE CITY • A 36-year-old Buhl man was listed in critical condition Thursday at the Burn Center at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City after being injured in a gas tank explosion Wednesday.

On Wednesday morning, Fred Cronmiller was working on scrapping an old vehicle when he cut into the fuel line and the tank exploded, Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office spokeswoman Lori Stewart said.

Farmers who were nearby saw the explosion and ran to the scene. They were able to get the fire out with shovels and get Cronmiller into a canal to stop the burning. He was taken to the Twin Falls airport, then flown to the Utah hospital.

Police Cite another Three People on Prostitution Charges

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls police have arrested three more people on prostitution charges, according to a statement released by the city Thursday evening.

At 11 a.m. Thursday, police were dispatched to Motel 6 at 1472 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. for a call about a suspicious incident in Room 217.

Police conducted an investigation including several interviews, according to the statement.

Police cited Benjamin Breck Glassinger, 56, of Jerome and Mark D. Westland, 61, of Twin Falls for misdemeanor charges of patronizing a prostitute.

Brittany L. Watson, aka "Amber," 23, of Portland, Ore., was cited for prostitution.

This is the third set of prostitution-related arrests made by Twin Falls police in recent weeks.

On Saturday, officers arrested Darcy Dennis Haux, Shaymeeka Monk, Janita Lynn Hammond and Charles Crockett at the Holiday Inn Express and Suites, located at 1554 Fillmore St., for prostitution-related charges.

And on May 24, police officers arrested Christopher Kent Teague and Stormy Todd at the Apollo Motor Inn, located at 296 Addison Ave. W., for prostitution-related charges. Their charges have since been dismissed.

Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies have recently conducted undercover prostitution stings in Rock Creek Park. On one instance, Zachary Williamson, 25 and Billy Turpin, 78, were cited for soliciting a prostitute. On another instance, a man was arrested after allegedly offering the undercover officer a marijuana cigarette.

exemption requirements.

"There's a huge new dimension to this law that was essentially unanticipated," Wood said.

Frustration from Outside

Shawn Barigar, president and CEO of the Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, said the chamber was disappointed in the Legislature's inaction on the exchange during the 2012 session.

"We felt that businesses needed that opportunity to find affordable health care coverage for their employees," Barigar said. Now, he said, policy makers need to set aside politics and focus on moving forward.

"I think the advantage of having the ruling finally is at least the uncertainty is gone," he said.

Small Victories

Attorney General Lawrence Wasden said Thursday morning that although the Supreme Court upheld the law, it also validated Idaho's argument that the individual mandate is an invalid use of the Commerce Clause.

"It's actually very important in terms of how we understand how the Commerce Clause applies," Wasden said. "It's not just for today, it's for the future, that that becomes so important."

The ruling also states that the federal government is barred from withholding existing Medicaid funds from states that decline to expand the program, which Wasden also applauded.

"The court sustained the argument that we made," he said. "I'm quite pleased with that."

The Future of the Law

Some are still holding out for congressional repeal of the law.

In a short press release, Otter didn't discuss Idaho's next steps, instead emphasizing that voters should support candidates who will repeal Obamacare.

Otter is on a trail ride in southern Idaho and wasn't available for comment.

U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo, however, told the Associated Press that though he was

Health Care Reform in Idaho

NUMBER OF UNINSURED: 294,000 state residents are uninsured, or about 19 percent.

WHERE THE STATE STANDS:

Idaho has not implemented health insurance exchanges, over objections from insurers including Blue Cross of Idaho. The GOP-controlled Idaho Legislature declined to accept federal grants for the project and also balked at putting together a scaled-down state-funded version while awaiting the Supreme Court's decision.

WHAT HAPPENS NOW:

Idaho lawmakers were the first in the nation to pass a law in 2010 requiring the state to sue the federal government over the health care overhaul. In 2011, they toyed with the idea of nullifying the law within state borders. Now that the Supreme Court has ruled, Idaho officials are divided over what to do: Rep. Vito Barbieri wants to explore ways to block the measure from taking effect, while U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo says the state will have to follow the law — at least until, as he hopes, Congress and a new Republican president can repeal it.

State Senate Assistant Majority Leader Chuck Winder of Boise says Idaho will likely have to make tough decisions on the health insurance exchange within the year over how to proceed. Either the state will design its own or it will get a federal version of the exchange, according to the law. "The ball is back on our side of the 50 yard line again," Winder said.

Romney have promised to repeal the law if they are in power after the November election.

WHAT NOW?

The 2010 health care law will keep taking effect. It's expected to bring coverage to about 30 million uninsured people. Overall, more than 9 in 10 eligible Americans will be covered.

Some parts are already in effect: Young adults can stay on their parents' insurance up to age 26. Insurers can't deny coverage to children with health problems. Limits on how much policies will pay out to each person over a lifetime are eliminated. Hundreds of older people already are saving money through improved Medicare prescription benefits. And co-payments for preventive care for all ages have been eliminated.

Starting in 2014, almost everyone will be required to be insured or pay a fine. There are subsidies to help people who can't afford coverage. Most employers will face fines if they don't offer coverage for their workers.

Insurers will be prohibited from denying coverage to people with medical problems or charging those people more. They won't be able to charge women more, either. During the transition to 2014, a special program for people with pre-existing health problems helps these people get coverage.

An assortment of tax increases, health industry fees and Medicare cuts will help pay for the changes.

THE TAXING TRUTH

When the law was before Congress, Obama and Democrats avoided calling its penalty for going uninsured a "tax." But the administration argued before the Supreme Court that the law was constitutional as a federal tax. The court rejected two other Obama administration arguments for the law but accepted the tax one.

— Associated Press

What They Said

Comments from around Idaho on the ruling:

"This is a sad day for self-determination and for individual liberty. Change is now in the hands of the American people and we must elect a new president and congressional candidates who will repeal Obamacare and protect our freedom to remain the architects of our own destiny."

— Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter

"This ruling has put these issues squarely in front of Congress and the American people. With increased public awareness and clarity, we can improve our health care system and reform our tax code accordingly."

— U.S. Sen. Mike Crapo

"While the Supreme Court has ruled that Obamacare is Constitutional, they have not said that it is a good idea or that it will bring down costs. Congress should re-double its effort to repeal Obamacare and begin the process of enacting market-based reforms that will truly lower costs and increase access."

— U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson

"The Supreme Court has now ruled that it is a tax increase, underscoring the deception by which this law passed. Those who voted for this, every Democrat in Congress, should join us in repealing this massive tax increase and replace it with a reasonable and understandable plan that reduces costs and allows Americans to choose the health care plan and provider they want."

— Sen. Jim Risch

"In Idaho, our major focus should now be on establishing a state-based health insurance exchange... While questions remain about the implementation of exchanges and health-care reform in general, a state-based exchange ensures Idahoans are clearly represented when deciding how they will purchase individual insurance in the future."

— Statement from Blue Cross of Idaho

"If I just prescribe something over the phone, first of all not only am I not going to get paid, but then if something goes wrong you can sue me for malpractice," Pate said.

If the industry could figure out a way to reward doctors for actions like consulting patients for minor ailments over email or the phone, and minimize that malpractice risk, Pate said that would encourage patients to seek care before they're ill.

Pate acknowledged that would require a business model restructuring, but said the health care industry has the flexibility to make that change, regardless of the federal health care law.

"Rather than us sitting back and waiting for Congress or somebody else to fix this, let's fix it ourselves," Pate said.

Funds Being Raised to Renovate T.F. Main Avenue Plaza

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • A downtown Twin Falls plaza will receive a facelift starting next year.

A proposal for a Main Avenue Plaza and Splash Park has been in the works for a while, but the project is moving forward.

"We've been working on this for a couple of years," said Terry McCurdy, chairman of the Twin Falls Community Foundation.

The $376,000 project — which will be located near the Idaho Youth Ranch Thrift Store on Main Avenue South — will include a new splash park and amphitheater-style theater. It will replace the fountain currently in the area, which is more than 30 years old.

McCurdy said the goal is to start construction on the plaza and splash park next year and finish by the end of summer 2013.

The Twin Falls Rotary Club is spearheading the effort to raise between $150,000 and $200,000 for the project.

McCurdy — a Rotarian — brought the fundraising proposal to club members, and incoming Rotary Club president Dave Foster said he's glad the club had a chance to get involved.

In addition to seeking donations, the group is selling engraved bricks that will be become part of the ground surface at the splash park.

Each brick costs $100 and will include three lines of engraved information. Three bricks can be purchased for $250.

McCurdy said people can choose to put names of their family members on the bricks or they can be in memory of someone.

The goal, he said, is to raise $50,000 to $80,000 through the sale of bricks.

The Rotary Club will also raise money for the plaza and splash park through its annual "Ice Cream Funday" July 14 at Twin Falls City Park. Some proceeds from the group's Death by Chocolate fundraiser in February will also go toward the project.

In addition, other agencies and organizations have committed $158,000 for the project. The City of Twin Falls is paying for the cost of constructing public restrooms in the area. The Twin Falls City Council approved the project in March.

About two years ago, McCurdy met with members of the Twin Falls City Council who wanted to upgrade the fountain area downtown.

McCurdy said he started to put together some ideas and there were a few open houses to get community input. One concern that came up, he said, was that the area isn't conducive to events.

"One of the things they came up with is a place that can have small concerts and recitals," he said.

One example of an outdoor event near the fountain on Main Avenue South is Twin Falls Tonight, a nine-week summer concert series.

When the project is done, McCurdy said the plaza and splash park will be able to accommodate about 500 people.

HEALTH CARE

Coverage for Americans, a Scramble for States

BY RICARDO ALONSO-ZALDIVA
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • President Barack Obama's health care overhaul is on the way to its ultimate jury: the families, doctors, business people and state officials who'll have to grapple with the confusing details while striving to fulfill its promise.

With the Supreme Court hurdle cleared, open enrollment for millions now uninsured is scheduled to begin in just 16 months, in October 2013. Much of the health care industry is ready. People who do have insurance won't have to worry about the loss of popular new benefits, such as coverage for young adult children or improvements to Medicare's prescription plan.

And, starting in 2014, insurance companies will no longer be able to turn away people with a history of medical problems, or charge them more.

But carrying out the law will be a mad scramble for states, especially Republican-led ones where officials had hoped this day wouldn't come. And the court added a new complication by giving individual states more leeway to turn down the law's expansion of Medicaid, expected to provide coverage to about 16 million uninsured people.

After the ruling, chances of repealing the entire law appear much slimmer for Republicans, although they will again make it an election rallying cry. However, a targeted repeal strategy aimed at individual components of the law including cost controls, taxes and spending cuts, may still work.

Vicki McCuiston of Driftwood, Texas, who shuttles between two part-time jobs and is uninsured, said the Supreme Court ruling has given her new hope. Her husband Dan has back problems so bad he can't go to work some days, and with a family history of skin cancer she is worried about a mole that she hasn't been able to get checked by doctors.

"Having access to health insurance that we can actually afford would allow us to improve our lives," McCuiston said Thursday.

Roberts is the Day's Surprise Attraction

BY DAVID GOLDSTEIN
McClatchy Newspapers

WASHINGTON • At his confirmation hearings in 2005, Chief Justice John Roberts Jr. said he saw himself as an "umpire," and that "nobody ever went to a ball game to see the umpire." No doubt nobody did Thursday, either, when spectators packed the U.S. Supreme Court and clogged the front steps awaiting its ruling on the health care law, one of the more anticipated and possibly politically pivotal decisions in recent years.

But Roberts turned out to be the surprise attraction, a conservative nominated by President George W. Bush who'd sided with the court's liberal wing when it announced the 5-4 outcome to uphold President Barack Obama's key domestic achievement.

"I will remember that it's my job to call balls and strikes and not to pitch or bat," Roberts told his Senate inquisitors seven years ago. But in his ruling, he certainly threw a curveball few had expected. Not only did Roberts bail out Obama, who as a senator had voted against Roberts for the court, he also snuffed out one of the Republican Party's biggest lines of attacks.

The chief justice may have had larger, more long-term concerns on his mind than this year's presidential election.

"For him to have taken a very predictable ideological position would have meant that he wasn't a particularly independent legal thinker, and it's very difficult to get your place at the head of the line of justices until you've somehow made your own mark," said Steven Smith, a professor of political science at Washington University in St. Louis. "He found a way to pave the path that was somewhat unpredictable."

Liberals praised Roberts.

Jeffrey Rosen, a George Washington University law professor, called it "a dramatic vindication of the vision of bipartisanship that Chief Justice Roberts articulated at the start of his term."

Conservatives felt a keen sense of betrayal.

"The worst part of the Bush legacy," tweeted Ben Shapiro, a conservative commentator and talk show host.

"His reputation is forever stained in the eyes of conservatives, and there will be no rehabilitating of it," conservative Brent Bozell told the website The Daily Caller. "He will be seen as a traitor to his philosophy."

Americans React to Historic Decision

BY CARLA K. JOHNSON

CHICAGO • The mother of two disabled teens called Thursday's Supreme Court ruling on the health care law wonderful because it bars insurance companies from setting lifetime limits for medical expenses — a big help to her family.

But a retiree on Medicare called it a "sad day" and worries that the law's new rules coming in 2015 will interfere with treatments doctors can provide.

Across the country, some Americans haven't been dramatically affected yet by the law, which will take a few years to reach full force. But many others say they have felt its effects already and have strong opinions about it.

Name: Samantha Ames
Home: Washington, D.C.
Age: 25
Occupation: Recent law school graduate

Insurance coverage: Got back on parents' insurance, thanks to the health care law.

When Ames woke up from ankle surgery, her doctor said her ligament had been in worse shape than he previously thought from previous sports injuries.

"He told me if I had injured it once more, it would likely have torn apart entirely," Ames said. "I may never have fully regained my ability to walk. It's only because I was able to get the operation when I did that I was spared a much more severe, painful and lasting injury."

Ames was able to have the $30,000 surgery because she was covered by her parents' insurance, thanks to a provision in the health care law that lets young adults keep that coverage until they turn

26. Nationally, an additional 3.1 million young people are covered as a result.

Name: Becky Morefield
Home: Mahomet, Ill.
Age: 51
Occupation: Stay-at-home mom of two disabled teenagers
Insurance coverage: Private insurance through husband's employer.

As Morefield sees it, the health law allowed her son Tucker to die peacefully at home with private health insurance covering his care.

Tucker, one of three triplets with cerebral palsy, was always the most fragile of the siblings, Morefield said. Five years ago, he maxed out the $1 million lifetime limit in his family's policy when he went into respiratory failure and was hospitalized for 12 weeks.

Hitting the lifetime limit meant the insurance company would no longer pay Tucker's medical bills. The state of Illinois picked up the slack through a program for children with special health care needs. But the program put strict limits on certain medical supplies, leading the family to wash and reuse equipment meant for single use.

Analysis: Health Care Ruling won't Stop Arguments

BY DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The Supreme Court's 5-4 decision upholding the nation's health care law marks an enormous political victory for President Barack Obama in the heat of a re-election campaign, and affirmation as well for the Democrats' decades-long drive to extend coverage to millions of Americans who now go without.

But if the sweeping changes mandated by the law will go forward, so, too the political controversy. Presidential challenger Mitt Romney and Republicans seeking control of Congress will see to that, seizing already on Chief Justice John Roberts' ruling that the law levies a new tax on anyone refusing to purchase coverage.

The decision was rich in irony as well as in history.

It was the second time in four days — a ruling Monday threw out much of an Arizona state law on immigration — that a Roberts'-led majority upheld the Obama administration's position on a noisy, contentious issue that has roiled the nation's politics for years.

On this case, at least, Roberts seemed to be ruling through gritted teeth.

"We do not consider whether the (law) embodies sound policies," he wrote of the health care legislation that Republicans have vowed to erase. "That judgment is entrusted to the Nation's elected leaders."

Federal Judge Unseals Rape Discipline Case

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) • A federal judge has unsealed court documents against the wishes of the University of Montana that show university officials voted to expel a student accused of rape after he unsuccessfully requested that the judge intervene in his disciplinary proceedings.

The case against the unnamed student is one of 11 that have surfaced amid reports that rape allegations involving university students were going unreported or not being followed through. The university's response to the allegations, some of which involve football players, is the subject two federal investigations and a probe by the NCAA.

Both the university and student requested that U.S. District Judge Dana Christensen keep the case sealed from the public. But Christensen wrote in his order Tuesday that neither could justify keeping it secret.

"The University of Montana is a public institution, and while there may be good reasons to keep secret the names of students involved in a University disciplinary proceeding, the Court can conceive of no compelling justification to keep secret the manner in which the University deals with those students," Christensen wrote.

The student, who is called John Doe in the documents, was accused of raping a female student at her off-campus home earlier this year after she invited him over to watch a movie. He said it was consensual sex. The university accused him of violating its student conduct code.

The student asked Christensen to issue a temporary restraining order preventing the university from proceeding with the case against him. He claimed school officials were biased against him and had imposed a lower standard of proof than is required under the conduct code.

The student said that university officials threatened to expel him if he discussed the case with anyone, forbade his attorney from interviewing the victim and refused to provide copies of documents. The student made other allegations against school officials, some of which were blacked out of court documents.

Christensen denied the request on May 10, citing the high bar in issuing a temporary restraining order. However, Christensen criticized the school's handling of the case, saying it "offends the court's sense of fundamental fairness and appears to fall short of the minimal moral obligation of any tribunal to respect the rights and dignity of the accused."

The judge also said the ruling does not prevent anybody from filing a lawsuit against the university.

Teen Offers No Motive in Northern Nevada Slaying

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (AP) • Police in Winnemucca say they don't know what prompted a shooting that has a 14-year-old boy facing a felony murder charge in the death of his mother.

The teen told investigators he sometimes had overwhelming feelings of anger and previously thought about suicide.

The boy was arrested after he was seen running from the house Monday afternoon, shortly before his mother was found dead. Police say investigators recovered a gun in the house.

The teen is being held at the Humboldt County Detention Center pending a court appearance.

The Associated Press is not identifying the juvenile or his mother due to his age.

Winnemucca is about 100 miles west of Elko.

Police: Man Lured Sex Victims through Craigslist

RENO, Nev. (AP) • A 31-year-old man has been arrested after Reno police say he pretended to be a woman on Craigslist personal ads and sexually assaulted people he met through the site.

Police say David Schmitt was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of sexual assault and coercion.

Authorities say Schmitt pretended to be a woman seeking other women on Internet personal ads. Police say that after the alleged victims contacted Schmitt and gave him personal information, he'd set up meetings and blackmail them into engaging in sex acts with him.

Police say that Schmitt would force himself onto those who didn't cooperate with him.

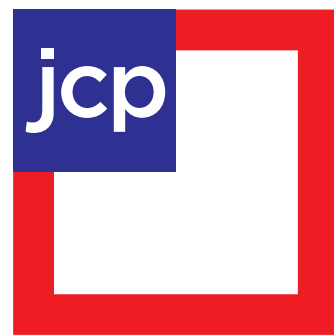

Authorities also say Schmitt researched his alleged victims on Facebook and other sites.

Reno officials say there may be more victims who haven't come forward.

ANOTHER VIEW

If Romney Wins, He Can Still Scrap Obamacare

The Supreme Court's decision Thursday to let the core elements of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act stand kicks the fate of the Obama administration's signature initiative where it properly belongs — into the domain of politics — where a Romney administration would still have ample opportunity to dismantle the main elements of the law. One thing President Romney probably couldn't do, however, would be the politically expedient step of simply repealing the legally controversial and politically unpopular fine levied on people who decline to purchase health insurance. Both Romney (who embraced a mandate as governor of Massachusetts) and Obama (who opportunistically opposed a mandate when running against Hillary Clinton) understand the basic issue here. Requiring insurance companies to accept all customers and charge the same price regardless of their state of health ("guaranteed issue" and "community rating" in wonk-speak) are popular but unworkable ideas. If people can buy insurance only after they get sick, then there isn't enough money coming into the system to cover the bills of the people who are sick.

Matthew Yglesias

Slate

That's why even the Obama administration told the Supreme Court that if they struck down the mandate, the guaranteed issue and community rating provisions should go as well. The court did have the option of being devious, and simply kicking the dilemma of what to do with a mandateless market back to the White House. But a future Romney administration would have to internalize the consequences of stripping the mandate and thus would be unlikely to try to isolate it.

This is where Democrats may come to rue the day that they decided to delay implementation of the main parts of their signature initiative all the way until 2014. The upside of delaying implementation was that it superficially made the cost of the bill inside the 10-year scoring window used by the Congressional Budget Office look smaller than it otherwise would. The downside is that they made it much simpler for Republicans to take some unpopular actions in 2013 than might have been the case. Once the insurance exchanges created by the law are in place, repealing the guaranteed issue and community rating provisions would mean throwing millions of sick people off their insurance plans. That would create a large and concentrated constituency of people who'd be informed by their doctors and their insurers about possible legislative changes.

And it turns out that the provisions a Romney administration would need to repeal to gut the law are wildly popular. According to a Reuters poll earlier this week, 78 percent of self-identified Republicans favor "banning insurance companies from denying coverage for pre-existing conditions" and 86 percent of them support "banning insurance companies from canceling policies because a person becomes ill."

In other words, once the basic framework of the law is in place, it'll be all but impossible to kill. That's probably why no country that's instituted a universal health insurance program has ever rolled it back — even strong conservatives like Margaret Thatcher in the United Kingdom or the current right-wing government in Canada leave existing programs in place.

The problem for Democrats is that if Romney takes office in 2013, none of this stuff will have actually happened yet. Repealing the law in its abstract form is a bit politically risky for Republicans but not nearly as risky as it will become in the future. Already in 2011, House Republicans were thrilled to vote for a "Repeal the Job-Killing Health Care Law Act," even though it was obvious that the president was never going to sign it. If in January 2013 Republicans control all three branches of government, there's no reason to think they'll grow more timid. In a statement immediately following the Supreme Court's decision, Romney promised to "act to repeal Obamacare" on his "first day if elected president of the United States" and if Congress puts a bill to that effect on his desk, he'll do it.

The Health Care Consolation Prize

Editor's note: George Will's column runs Thursdays and Sundays in the Times-News. He wrote an extra column this week in response to Thursday's Supreme Court decision.

Conservatives won a substantial victory on Thursday. The physics of American politics — actions provoking reactions — continues to move the crucial debate, about the nature of the American regime, toward conservatism. Chief Justice John Roberts has served this cause.

The health care legislation's expansion of the federal government's purview has improved our civic health by rekindling interest in what this expansion threatens — the Framers' design for limited government. Conservatives distraught about the survival of the individual mandate are missing the considerable consolation prize they won when the Supreme Court rejected a constitutional rationale for the mandate — Congress' rationale — that was pregnant with rampant statism.

The case challenged the court to fashion a judicially administrable principle that limits Congress' power to act on the mere pretense of regulating interstate commerce. At least Roberts got the court to embrace emphatic language rejecting the Commerce Clause rationale for penalizing the inactivity of not buying insurance:

"The power to regulate commerce presupposes the existence of commercial activity to be regulated. ... The individual mandate, however, does not regulate existing commercial activity. It instead compels individuals to become active in commerce by purchasing a product, on the ground that their failure to do so affects interstate commerce. Construing the Commerce Clause to permit Congress to regulate individuals precisely because they are doing nothing would open a new and potentially vast domain to congressional authority. ... Allowing Congress to justify federal regulation by pointing to the effect of inaction on commerce would bring countless decisions an individual could potentially make within the scope of federal regulation, and — under the government's theory — empower Congress to make those decisions for him."

If the mandate had been upheld under the Commerce Clause, the court would have decisively construed this clause so permissively as to give Congress an essentially unlimited police power — the power to mandate, proscribe and regulate behavior for whatever Congress deems a public benefit. Instead, the court rejected the Obama administration's Commerce Clause doctrine. The court remains clearly committed to this previous holding: "Under our written Constitution ... the limitation of congressional authority is not solely a matter of legislative grace."

The court held that the mandate is constitutional only because Congress could have identified its enforcement penalty as a tax. The court thereby guaranteed that the argument ignited by the mandate will continue as the principal fault line in our polity.

The mandate's opponents favor a federal government as James Madison fashioned it, one limited by the constitutional enumeration of its powers. The mandate's supporters favor government as Woodrow Wilson construed it, with limits as elastic as liberalism's agenda, and powers acquiring derivative constitutionality by being necessary to, or efficient for, implementing government's ambitions.

By persuading the court to reject a Commerce Clause rationale for a president's signature act, the conservative legal insurgency against Obamacare has won a huge victory for the long haul. This victory will help revive a venerable tradition of America's political culture, that of viewing congressional actions with a skeptical constitutional squint, searching for congruence with the Constitution's architecture of enumerated powers. By rejecting the Commerce Clause rationale, Thursday's decision reaffirmed the Constitution's foundational premise: Enumerated powers are necessarily limited because, as Chief Justice John Marshall said, "the enumeration presupposes something not enumerated."

When Nancy Pelosi, asked where the Constitution authorized the mandate, exclaimed "Are you serious? Are you serious?"

she was utterly ingenuous.

People stepped in Congress' culture of unbridled power find it incomprehensible that the Framers fashioned the Constitution as a bridle. Now, Thursday's episode in the continuing debate about the mandate will reverberate to conservatism's advantage. By sharpening many Americans' constitutional consciousness, the debate has resuscitated the salutary practice of asking what was, until the mid-1960s, the threshold question regarding legislation. It concerned what James Q. Wilson called the "legitimacy barrier": "Is it proper for the federal government to do this? Conservatives can rekindle the public's interest in this barrier by building upon the victory Roberts gave them in positioning the court for stricter scrutiny of congressional actions under the Commerce Clause."

Any democracy, even one with a written and revered constitution, ultimately rests on public opinion, which is shiftable sand. Conservatives understand the patience requisite for the politics of persuasion. Elections matter most; only they can end Obamacare. But in Roberts' decision, conservatives can see the court has been persuaded to think more as they do about the constitutional language that has most enabled the promiscuous expansion of government.

Former Prosecutor Indicted on Grand Theft Charge

BOISE (AP) • A grand jury has indicted former Canyon County prosecutor John Bujak on one count of grand theft for his representation of an estate as a private attorney.

Malheur County Prosecutor Daniel Norris is handling the case for Canyon County. He says the grand jury found there was evidence Bujak stole several thousand dollars from a client's estate before he was elected prosecutor.

Bujak was arrested

Wednesday.

The case arose in October 2011, when a complaint was filed with the Idaho State Bar alleging Bujak refused to refund unearned fees and borrowed money from the M.K. Littleton estate without intending to pay it back.

Bujak also is charged with misuse of public funds over his management of a prosecution contract with the city of Nampa. He resigned in September 2010.

Man Accused of Shooting at Daughter Goes on Trial

BLACKFOOT (AP) • A defense attorney for an eastern Idaho man charged with attempted murder says Jesse Whipkey didn't intend to kill anyone on Feb. 25 and may not have even known that the gun he's accused of using was loaded.

Much of the testimony at Whipkey's Bingham County trial Wednesday centered on a recording that is sometimes difficult to understand and that prosecutors say contains Whipkey telling a friend he intended to kill Amy Mayer and other family members. Defense attorney Neal Randall says that's a misrepresentation of the recording.

The trial began Tuesday, with 36-year-old Mayer testifying that she and her father got into an argument after a family member's funeral and that the dispute escalated into physical violence.

She told jurors that her husband broke up the fight, but Whipkey later grabbed a revolver from the bedroom, pointed it at her and fired.

Her husband, Daryl Mayer, testified that the gun had a dry-fire and Whipkey recocked the gun before he and another family member were able to get the weapon away. Amy Mayer's sister, Amber Reines Santiago, told jurors that she then took the gun outside. It contained five bullets.

Bingham County Prosecutor J. Scott Andrew said Whipkey told a detective and a friend that he intended to kill his daughter and other family members.

He played a recording for Gary Laird, Whipkey's longtime friend, that he said contained both men's voices in a conversation recorded during a jail time visit.

Senator: Governor's Mansion Budget Vote Illegal

BY JOHN MILLER
Associated Press

BOISE • A Democratic senator contends Idaho officials violated public meetings laws with a hasty email vote this week on the $177,400 budget to cover landscaping, mowing and watering the expansive lawn below the vacant Idaho governor's mansion.

Sen. Les Bock of Garden City sits on the Governor's Housing Committee, which oversees the hilltop mansion in Boise. He said Thursday the committee's budget vote didn't give the public adequate notice to consider whether the spending plan was appropriate.

The five-member panel voted 3-2 on Tuesday to spend the money for fiscal year 2013, with Bock and Democratic Rep. Phylis King of Boise opposing it. Voting in favor were Teresa Luna, director of the Department of Administration, and Boise Republicans Sen. Chuck Winder and Rep. Max Black.

With this latest dustup, controversy that has surrounded the home nearly since it was given to the state by potato mogul J.R. Simplot in December 2004 continues.

The cost of caring for the home, watering its expansive lawn and replacing the enormous billowing flag that flies above the house when it becomes weather-tattered have drained a maintenance fund to less than $900,000 — only enough to cover the bills for the next five years, unless something is done. Bock contends the email vote, completed with no fanfare or public scrutiny, only delays a hard decision over how to dispose of the house.

"Unless some of us start saying no, and saying no emphatically, this probably could go on indefinitely,"

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A U.S. flag flies over the vacant Idaho governor's mansion in Boise on Thursday.

Bock told The Associated Press.

Winder, committee chairman, contends Bock should have first raised the issue of whether the vote was proper with him.

Winder said he scheduled the vote via email to accommodate committee members' schedules during the summer.

With the start of the fiscal year on July 1, he said he'd been advised by the Department of Administration, which oversees the house, that a speedy vote was necessary. If there was a procedural problem with the vote, however, Winder said he would figure out a way to redo it.

"I'm disappointed that Les Bock chose to go to the media rather than talk to me as the chairman about his concern," Winder said. "I see this as very political and divisive."

The house, on a massive grassy expanse in north Boise, has been something of an albatross for Idaho since Simplot's gift eight years ago. Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter, Simplot's former son-in-law, has declined to live in the mansion, preferring instead his ranch west of Boise.

that Idaho's top elected leader is somehow above the people being governed.

The state does use the home as an event venue for agencies that pay to use it, but the endeavor generates little cash.

The Governor's Housing Committee is one of the few state panels with authority to set the house's budget with little input from the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee budget-writing panel.

According to state law: "Upon the direction of the committee, the department shall use moneys in the account for any purpose related to a governor's housing allowance or the acquisition, construction, remodel, furnishing, equipping or maintenance of a governor's residence."

In light of the email vote, however, Bock has asked Capitol bill drafters to draw up a measure to return authority to the Legislature. The earliest that would get debate is 2013.

Utah Fires Destroy Structures and Force Evacuations

BY PAUL FOY AND WHITNEY PHILLIPS
Associated Press

PRICE, Utah • Several wildfires continued to burn across Utah on Thursday, forcing hundreds of people to flee their homes, destroying dozens of structures and briefly prompting the closure of part of Zion National Park. At least six firefighters have suffered injuries in the various blazes, and one man was found dead in an evacuation area while authorities surveyed the damage. The 47-square-mile Clay Springs Fire near

Nephi forced the evacuation of several nearby communities. Residents of Oak City were allowed to return to their homes Thursday. Authorities said the 30,000-acre blaze was threatening about 100 structures and has destroyed one cabin and three outbuildings. Investigators believe the fire was human-caused but were still probing the incident. Two firefighters injured in that blaze were being treated at a Salt Lake City hospital, authorities said. Firefighters worked feverishly across the state to gain control of six fires, with the largest blaze in the central part of the state expected to be fully contained by Saturday. The Wood Hollow Fire in Sanpete County had grown to about 45,000 acres, or 70 square miles, Thursday. Three firefighters there suffered minor injuries, authorities said. It remained at about 20 percent containment Thursday after destroying at least 56 structures. Officials couldn't immediately say how many of the burned structures were homes, but they expected the number to rise considerably as they continue their assessment of the fire-ravaged area between Fountain Green and Fairview and north across the Utah County line. An evacuation order for the roughly 1,200 residents of Fairview was lifted. Authorities still have not released the identification of a man whose body was found Tuesday morning in an evacuation zone. Elsewhere in the state, the New Harmony Fire near St. George that started Wednesday afternoon had grown to nearly 2,000 acres by Thursday. Authorities said it was 60 percent contained.

2 DOS AND 1 DON'T FOR SUMMER WEED CONTROL

by Dawn West, All About Lawns Columnist

When you're fighting weeds, it can be tempting to give it everything you've got, no matter the time of year. But in the heat of summer, it's best to take a tempered approach to weed control.

conditions inhospitable for weeds.

1. Do: Keep your lawn mowed high during the summer. That extra half-inch or inch of height can help shade out weeds.

2. Do: Water deeply a few times a week, instead of lightly every day. Deep watering is a good practice throughout the year, since it encourages development of a strong root system; it's also a summer weed control strategy. Light, frequent watering creates the sort of conditions that help weed seeds sprout. Keeping the water below the surface for most of the week can keep

3. Don't: Apply a chemical fertilizer in July or August, when your lawn is already heat-stressed, and your odds of damaging or discoloring your lawn are greater than at other times of year. Try extirpating most weeds with herbicide in early spring or fall.

While herbicides may be off the table for July and August, any time of year is a good time to get busy with garden gloves and a shovel. Just make sure you drink plenty of water and lather on the sun protection!

COLORADO WILDFIRE DESTROYS HUNDREDS OF HOMES

P. SOLOMON BANDA AND THOMAS PEIPERT
Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. • From above, the destruction wrought by a raging Colorado wildfire becomes painfully clear: Rows and rows of houses — hundreds in all — were reduced to ashes even as some homes just feet away survived.

On one street, all but three houses had burned to their foundations, said Ryan Schneider, whose home is still standing in a neighborhood where 51 others were destroyed.

“I was real happy at first. My wife was happy,” he said. “The emotion of seeing the other homes, though, was instant sadness.”

While the aerial photos helped show the scope of one of the worst fires to hit the American West in decades, they did little to help ease the concerns of many residents who still did not know the fate of their properties.

“Naturally, we’re apprehensive and the spirit is down a little bit,” Bill Bartlett said outside a Red Cross shelter in Colorado Springs. He believes his neighborhood was spared, but couldn’t be sure.

Amid the devastation in the foothills west and north of the state’s second-largest city, there were hopeful signs. More than 120 soldiers helped stop flames advancing on the U.S. Air Force Academy and cooler conditions could help slow the spread of a fire that could become one of the most destructive in state history.

Authorities initially did not know the extent of the damage, saying it was difficult to assess because the fires and smoke were too intense. More than 30,000 people frantically packed up belongings Tuesday night as the flames swept through their neighborhoods.

Community officials were planning to begin the process of notifying residents Thursday that their homes were destroyed.

But for many residents, the official notification is a formality. Residents recognize their street on aerial pictures taken of the devastation and carefully scrutinize the images to determine the damage.

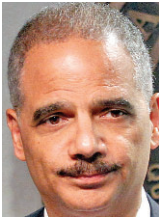

Aerial photos and video from The Associated Press and the Denver Post showed widespread damage.

Colorado Springs, about 60 miles south of Denver, is also home to the U.S. Olympic Training Center, NORAD and the Air Force Space command, which operates military satellites.

Holder Says Contempt Vote Politically Motivated

PETE YOST
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Attorney General Eric Holder said Thursday’s votes holding him in contempt of Congress are the culmination of a misguided and politically motivated congressional investigation by Republican Rep. Darrell Issa and others who focused on “politics over public safety.”

Holder

Speaking in New Orleans, the attorney general called the House action “unnecessary and unwarranted” and defended his performance in regard to the failed gun-tracking program called Operation Fast and Furious that precipitated the unprecedented votes against a sitting Cabinet member.

The House held the attorney general in criminal contempt of Congress for failing to provide documents on how the Justice Department came to the realization that federal agents in Arizona had used a controversial investigative tactic known as gun-walking. A separate vote Thursday on civil contempt passed 258-95. It will allow the House to go to court in an effort to force Holder to turn over the documents.

Issa is the chairman of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee that has been investigating Operation Fast and Furious for the past year and a half.

Holder told reporters that “as a result of the action taken today by the House, an unnecessary court conflict will ensue. My efforts to resolve this matter short of such a battle were rebuffed by Congressman Issa and his supporters.”

When concerns about Operation Fast and Furious first came to light, Holder said he took action by ordering an independent investigation into what happened.

Turkey Fortifies Syrian Border

BY ELIZABETH A. KENNEDY
Associated Press

BEIRUT • Turkey deployed anti-aircraft guns, rocket launchers and other weapons along its border with Syria on Thursday, a military buildup that came as world powers showed new urgency to resolve the crisis before it ignites the region.

A bomb exploded in central Damascus near a busy market and the country’s main justice complex, wounding at least three people, damaging cars in a parking lot and sending a black cloud rising above the Syrian capital. It was not clear who was behind the bombing.

Much of the violence that has gripped Syria since the uprising began in March 2011 has been sanctioned by the government of President Bashar Assad to crush dissent. Activists say more than 14,000 people have been killed.

But rebel fighters are launching increasingly deadly attacks on regime targets, and several massive suicide attacks this year suggest al-Qaida or other extremists are joining the fray.

Assad told Iranian state TV Thursday that his country still supports him, and he warned that any intervention in Syria will cause a “domino” effect in the region. He has given similar warnings before, saying the entire Middle East will go up in flames if others meddle in his country.

Turkey, a former ally of Syria, has become one of the strongest critics of the Assad regime, and tensions between the two countries spiked following the downing of a Turkish military plane last week.

A small convoy of Turkish military trucks towing anti-aircraft guns entered a military outpost in the border village of Guvecci, which faces a Syrian military outpost, according to TRT television video.

Several anti-aircraft guns also have been deployed elsewhere along the border. Some trucks were seen carrying self-propelled multiple rocket launchers, the video showed.

Ties between Turkey and Syria have not been this low since the late 1990s, when the neighbors almost went to war. Tensions ran high in the 1980s and 1990s as Turkey developed military ties with Israel and Syria sheltered Turkish Kurd guerrilla leader Abdullah Ocalan.

Now, Turkey is hosting civilian opposition groups as well as hundreds of military defectors who are affiliated with the rebel Free Syrian Army.

Madoff’s Brother Enters Spotlight

BY TOM HAYS AND LARRY NEUMEISTER
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Peter Madoff was the quiet one.

While Bernard Madoff was the face of the investment firm that attracted the rich and famous clients with too-good-to-be-true returns, his younger brother kept firmly behind the scenes.

It stayed that way even after Bernard Madoff was arrested in 2008 on charges he orchestrated the largest Ponzi scheme in history. In his 2009 guilty plea, Bernie Madoff maintained that his brother had nothing to do with it — and for more than three years, his brother stuck to the script.

“Peter Madoff is not Bernard Madoff” is how Peter’s lawyers put it when defending him against harsh accusations leveled by a trustee appointed to recover stolen assets.

The younger Madoff is scheduled to emerge from the shadows Friday and plead guilty to conspiracy charges, becoming the only other family member to admit a role in the epic scheme. He will be sentenced to 10 years in prison, a small fraction of his brother’s 150-year term. He also has agreed to forfeit his assets.

Details of how the 66-year-old multimillionaire decided to agree to a plea deal haven’t been made public. His lawyer hasn’t commented on it.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

Stock Market Cuts Its Losses with Late Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) • When the stock market began tumbling Thursday, many people assumed the selloff had something to do with the Supreme Court ruling to uphold President Barack Obama's health care law. But for a lot of investors, it was the same old concerns about Europe, along with a few new worries. U.S. stocks still closed lower for the day, but they bounced back in the last half-hour of trading. The Dow Jones industrial average closed down nearly 25 points, after falling as much as 177.

QUESTIONS, WAITING AFTER HEALTH RULING

NEW YORK (AP) • A big worry for small businesses that were against the Obama administration's health care law was that it would increase their costs. But now that the Supreme Court has upheld it, some small companies could opt to go a route that will save them thousands of dollars each year.

Under the law, companies with more than 50 workers must provide health insurance that the law defines as affordable, or pay a penalty. Paying the penalty may be cheaper and some business owners vow to consider doing just that.

"I have to consider not paying," for health insurance, says Nick Balletta, owner of TalkPoint, a New York firm that runs online broadcasts for businesses. Balletta has just under 100 employees, and he says he's paying $8,000 a year for each employee's insurance and $16,000 for family coverage.

"I have a fiduciary responsibility to shareholders to have that discussion." The penalties are set according to a complicated formula and start at $2,000 per worker, with the first 30 workers excluded from the calculation. "This is a huge savings for us," he says.

In the aftermath of the ruling, the possibilities for small companies may be as varied as the different kinds of business that operate across America. These employers will be forced to decide whether to pay for coverage, accept penalties or find ways to avoid the law. But with key issues like what the plans will cost still undecided, many owners still have a long list of questions.

Willan Johnson, who owns VivoPools, a pool cleaning service in California, Nevada, Arizona and Florida, says the Supreme Court ruling gave him some closure. He had put off buying insurance until the ruling came down. But there is more waiting in his future. Now he's going to wait to see how the law is implemented.

Treasury Lowers Support for Crisis Loan Program

WASHINGTON (AP) • The Treasury Department is reducing its support for loans made during the 2008 financial crisis now that a key program is winding down.

The Treasury will lower its credit protection for the Term Asset-Backed Securities Loan Facility, or TALF, to $1.4 billion, down from $4.3 billion.

The reduction is being made because most loans made under the program have been repaid and officials believe there is little credit risk from the $5.35 billion in TALF loans outstanding.

HOSPITAL STOCKS JUMP AFTER HEALTH CARE RULING

WASHINGTON (AP) • Hospital stocks rose sharply Thursday after the Supreme Court guaranteed them millions more paying customers by upholding the core of President Barack Obama's health care overhaul.

Some insurance company stocks fell in choppy trading as investors fretted about the costs of rules included in the law.

"For the hospitals, it means that they get payment and they get more potential customers," said JJ Kinahan, chief derivatives strategist for TD Ameritrade. Insurers "have to be less selective of their clients, which is bad for them," he said.

The stock of Hospital Corp. of America, the largest private hospital chain in the United States, closed up 11 percent. Community Health Systems rose 8 percent, Health Management Associates 9 percent.

Quest Diagnostics, which runs laboratories, and Laboratory Corp. of America both gained about 3 percent.

The ruling will add 32 million Americans to the rolls of the insured, vastly expanding the pool of health care consumers, said Jeffrey Loo, a stock analyst with S&P Capital IQ, a research group.

Under the current system, about one-fourth of the care provided by hospitals is never paid for, either because debts go bad or because the patient is uninsured, Loo said. He said the law will cut the portion of care that is not paid for in half.

However, Gary Taylor, a financial analyst for Citi Investment Research, warned clients that hospital stocks could "erase all their gains" from the court decision if Mitt Romney is elected president this fall. He has pledged to repeal the law.

Many insurance companies fell sharply after the ruling was announced. They

The Supreme Court decision upholding President Barack Obama's health care overhaul is expected to benefit most of the health care industry by making coverage more affordable for more than 30 million uninsured Americans by 2014. Overall, the ruling could boost health care stocks both by increasing access to health care and by ending months of uncertainty and speculation. Here's a snapshot of how stocks reacted following the court's announcement.

bounced around while reporters and analysts dissected the court's ruling, and they later recovered some of the losses.

UnitedHealth Group, the biggest insurer, closed up half of a percentage point. It had been down as much as 7 percent after the ruling. WellPoint plunged 8 percent, Aetna and Cigna nearly 3 percent.

UnitedHealth escaped the fate of other insurers because it depends less on individual and small-group policies for its revenue. UnitedHealth also has an information technology business and a pharmacy benefits business and is the biggest provider of Medicare Advantage plans for the elderly.

By comparison, WellPoint draws more of its revenue from insurance on individuals and small groups. The health overhaul is seen as more damaging to those businesses because of the costs they would incur to cover more people.

Lee Decides against Reverse Stock Split

TIMES-NEWS

DAVENPORT, Iowa • The board of directors of Lee Enterprises, the parent company of the Times-News, has chosen not to pursue a reverse stock split, the company announced Thursday.

A reverse split is when a company's current shares are cancelled and a new, smaller number of shares are doled out to shareholders, making each share worth more.

Lee stockholders had granted the board discretionary authority until June 30 to decide whether to pursue a reverse split. In a press release, Mary Junck, chairman and chief executive officer, said the board considered current market conditions, business forecasts and other factors that could affect shareholder value, including the prospect for continued listing on the New York Stock Exchange.

Lee was notified in February that it had returned to compliance with an NYSE listing standard requiring an average closing price of at least $1.00 per share over 30 consecutive days of trading. The company now has until February 2013 to return to compliance with a standard requiring average equity market capitalization of not less than $50 million over 30 consecutive days of trading.

According to the release, Lee's average equity market capitalization has exceeded $50 million since February 2012. As of Thursday, with approximately 51.8 million shares outstanding and a closing price of $1.65 per share, Lee's equity market capitalization totaled $85.5 million. Carl Schmidt, Lee vice president, chief financial officer and treasurer, said the company expects future issues, if any, to be successfully addressed within the time frame required under the NYSE rules.

Tepid Economic Growth Weighs on U.S. Job Market

BY CHRISTOPHER S. RUGABER AND MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writers

WASHINGTON • The U.S. economy is growing too slowly to pull the job market out of a slump, according to the latest data that suggest June has been another weak month for hiring.

Applications for unemployment benefits stayed above a level last week that is generally considered too high to lower the unemployment rate. And the annual growth rate for the U.S. economy in the January-March quarter was unchanged at a tepid 1.9 percent.

Two government reports released Thursday added to the picture of an economy that is faltering for the third straight year after a promising start. Job growth has tumbled, consumers are less confident and Europe's financial crisis has dampened demand for U.S. exports.

RICHARD DREW-ASSOCIATED PRESS
In this March 16 file photo, people purchase the new iPad at Apple's flagship store in New York. The Commerce Department reported on Thursday that the U.S. economy expanded at a 1.9 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year.

Most economists don't see growth accelerating much from the first-quarter pace, although some are hopeful that lower gas prices could help lift consumer spending over the summer.

Do you have tips for helping parents move from the family home into a smaller apartment or house? Downsizing can be an emotional process for all concerned. Ease into it if you can. If you know a move is only a matter of time, convince your parents to start sorting even some of their belongings. They will likely want to "re-home" certain items to younger family members. This can turn into a great family get-together where stories and memories are shared across generations. Once the decision to move is made be sensitive and organized! Check the layout of your parents' new home; make a sketch and take measurements. For sorting and packing, start with rooms that are used least on a daily basis—possibly the attic or garage. Not everything will fit in the new place. Your parents, with assistance, must decide what to keep, give to family and friends, sell or donate, or just throw away. Expect both tears and smiles as you help yourself, and your parents, through a huge life change.

A Zany Mash-up of Wagner Operas and the Wild West

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

HAILEY • A mine shaft has gone up in one corner of the Liberty Theatre stage with an ore cart that rolls out on a track. A wooden water tower dominates another corner. And a cantina with swinging Western doors has risen in the center, with a rooftop veranda strong enough for a five-piece band. You'd never guess this had something to do with Norse heroes like Siegfried and Brunnhilde.

But this wild West playground pairs Richard Wagner's "Ring Cycle" with strains from the theme to "Bonanza" and combines Norse mythology with the familiarity of J.R. and "Dallas."

It's "Das Barbecu" — a two-hour, Texas-sized hootenanny of big hair, big dresses and even bigger cowboy hats. Please see DAS BARBECU, E2

Expect Real Cowboy Action at Gooding's Ranch Rodeo

GOODING • Swap your flip-flops and ball cap for a pair of leather boots and a cowboy hat — and celebrate a rugged American way of life at Gooding's Western Heritage Gathering and Ranch Rodeo today and Saturday.

The event began in 2009 to commemorate the area's ranching traditions. This year's festivities include cowboy poetry, music and storytelling, a miniature mule wagon team, Dutch oven delicacies and a fun run fundraiser.

The big draw is the Ranch Rodeo, where 14 four-person teams will compete in timed events like team branding, stock saddle bronc riding, trailer loading and ranch doctoring.

Competitor Jeff Cole said a ranch rodeo isn't like a professional rodeo. Instead, it represents working cowboy situations.

Although semi-retired, the Gooding man continues working on a ranch and expects his team, Lazy J Work Circle, to give the other cowboys a run for their money in trailer loading.

"It's just like if you were out on a ranch and checking the cattle and needed to load one up," Cole said, adding that all Please see HERITAGE, E2

TWIN FALLS • Before the Fourth of July night sky is aglow with streaks of color, make sure you know where to park, walk and sit to make the most out of the patriotic celebration.

The booms will sound over the College of Southern Idaho's campus at dusk, roughly at 10 p.m., north of the main campus. But organizers encourage you to arrive early and enjoy the atmosphere.

On the grassy field by Herrett Center from 6 to 10:30 p.m., enjoy a Freedom Celebration sponsored by Lighthouse Christian Fellowship. There will be free hot dogs and root beer floats, four bounce houses for kids, and a concert by Jason Houser and Lighthouse Rising. Then the melodies of a Twin Falls Municipal Band concert will set the mood and greet crowds at 8 p.m. near the Fine Arts Center entrance.

The municipal band plans a program of patriotic anthems and marches, an armed forces salute and a patriotic sing-along. But its program also mixes in "Mazama," "The Great Locomotive Chase," the "Black Granite" march, Please see FIREWORKS, E2

Think Ahead to 2013

On July 4, grab some breakfast that will help fund next year's fireworks show.

For the Magic Valley Citizens' Fourth of July breakfast, 8-11 a.m. July 4 at Twin Falls' City Park, local All-state Insurance agents will cook up blueberry pancakes, regular pancakes, Falls Brand ham, eggs, hash browns, coffee, milk, juice and more.

A $5 donation for the breakfast will go toward next year's fireworks display.

Other ways to donate: online through twinfallsfireworks.org, or in person at Garibaldi's Mexican Restaurant, 645 Filer Ave. in Twin Falls.

TROUT SCRAMBLE RETURNS TO BUHL SAGEBRUSH DAYS

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

BUHL • What do freshwater fish have to do with the Fourth of July? In Buhl, more than you'd think.

Last year the popular trout scramble was missing from Sagebrush Days events, but Avid Sportsman is bringing it back at Wednesday's annual Buhl festival, said shop owner Jerry Eggleston.

Eggleston is changing the way the game is played, but children still get to take home any trout they catch. As waves of brightly colored rainbow trout stream from a truck, children squeal and splash in a pool of icy water and dive for a fish. Youth knowing the game typically watch and wait for a trophy fish — with the possibility of a larger prize — distinguishable by its bright white color or large size.

But this year's trout scramble won't have any easy-to-spot "winning" fish among the masses of rainbow trout, said Eggleston, the scramble sponsor.

"We're probably just going to put a small tag on a regular trout," he said.

Eggleston said his business will award fishing pole prize packages to the children pulling out the tagged fish in each of three age categories, and a local fish farm is donating several hundred trout. This year, even adults may participate.

"There are usually about 40 to 60 kids in each group," he said. "But adults pushing and shoving and trying to get that winning fish is always a problem so this year we figured that if adults want to participate too much they can have the pool all to themselves for a round and we'll see if that alleviates some of the problem."

Hailey, Ketchum Offer Big Variety for Holiday Week

HAILEY • The Wood River Valley will let the good times roll as it celebrates Fourth of July this year.

Company of Fools will open its doors wide to roll out a water tower with three river nymphs into the Fourth of July parade, which starts at noon Wednesday on Hailey's Main Street. Fools artist R.L. Rowsey said the idea is to advertise the Fools' new musical, "Das Barbecu," which kicks off that night at 7 p.m. "And we just want to make people smile."

Members of Caritas Chorale will ride an antique wagon and horses to advertise their upcoming performance of the work "Nez Perce: Promises" on July 14-15.

"Right now we have about 60 entries, and we always get a few entries come in right before the parade," said Geegee Lowe, manager of the Hailey Chamber Visitors Center.

The Fourth starts early with a pancake breakfast from 7 to 11 a.m. at the Grange Hall near Third Avenue and Elm Street in Hailey; a children's carnival from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Main Street; and live music from the Celtic rock band Swagger at 10:30 a.m. in front of Sun Valley Brewery on Main.

The second annual Fourth of July Criterium bike race will follow the parade, offering a fast-paced, energetic spectator sport. And the Sun Valley Center for the Arts will throw its traditional free Ice Cream Social at 314 Second Ave. S. following the parade.

Antique fairs will be set up in Roberta McKercher Park, which borders Idaho Highway 75 at Hailey's south end, and on a lot near McDonald's at the north end of Hailey.

Rodeo: The Sawtooth Rangers' Days of the Old West Rodeo will take place July 2-4. Pre-rodeo shows begin at 6:30 p.m. and the rodeo at 7:30 p.m., with tickets available at Atkinsons' Markets and at the gate. Adults pay $10, and children 10 and younger pay $5; children get in free on Monday when accompanied by a paying adult.

Sawtooth Rangers spokesman Bill Bobbitt said rodeos have gotten more polished since he began attending them in Twin Falls and other Magic Valley locales while living in Rupert.

"The barrel racers go a lot faster today, and the cowboys are better, too. They're athletes, they practice and work out more than the kids did back in 1947 when the Days of the Old West Rodeo started," he said.

Fireworks: The grand finale of Hailey's Fourth of July is the 25-minute fireworks show produced by the city. The fireworks will be staged on a field near the high school on Fox Acres Road near the east end of town and can be viewed most anywhere in town.

Music: While the Fourth is bursting with activities, it anchors a week's full of activities in the valley.

The nod to the nation's birthday starts with a performance by international diva Alyson Cambridge and the American Festival Chorus and Orchestra, which will present a Sun Valley Summer Spectacular concert at 8 p.m. June 30 in the Sun Valley Pavilion.

Cambridge and Craig Jessop, former director of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, have worked out a program that features several patriotic numbers. It will also feature a variety of operatic favorites from "La Boheme" to "Carmen," as well as a medley of popular American standards like "Summertime" and "Can't Help Lovin' That Man."

"When we were conceiving this concert we wanted to put together a program that had a little something for everyone and that reflected all the things I love to sing, not just opera," said Cambridge, who is singing the parts of Donna Elvira in "Don Giovanni" with Deutsche Oper Berlin and Julie La Verne in Lyric Opera of Chicago's "Showboat" this year. "It's a big misconception that opera is always stuffy, boring, or that classically trained singers don't sing in different styles."

Tickets are available at seats.sunvalley.com or 208-

622-2135.

And more: Sun Valley will present its Fourth of July Ice Show featuring Ryan Bradley and ice skating prodigy Nathan Chen at dusk on July 4 with fireworks following. A second ice show will follow July 7 featuring Jeremy Abbott. Purchase tickets at seats.sunvalley.com, 208-622-2135 or 1-888-622-2108.

Ketchum art galleries will hold their monthly Gallery Walk from 5 to 8 p.m. July 6.

The Sun Valley Shakedown featuring JJ Grey and Mofro and DJ Logic will be 6-11 p.m. July 7 at Festival Meadows on Sun Valley Road in Sun Valley; tickets are at sunvalleyshakedown.com or Atkinsons' Market.

And the San Francisco Ballet will perform at the Sun Valley Pavilion at 7 p.m. July 8; tickets at 415-865-2000.

Das Barbecu

Company of Fool will open the zany musical July 4. It runs through July 28 at Hailey's Liberty Theatre.

The plot is convoluted to say the least, said Mike Tilford, one of the actors in Jim Luigs and Scott Warrender's zany spectacle. But if you must know, it involves a guy who has a ring and a girl and some scheming connivers who want the ring.

Its characters include a psychically gifted triplet played by Rachel Abrams and a one-eyed king of gods who is slightly irascible and wants to do right but finds it so against his nature. There's a river maiden played by Beth Hilles and Siegfried played by Duke Lafoon.

Those who know opera will recognize bits and pieces from Wagner's "Das Rheingold," "The Valkyrie," "Siegfried" and "Götterdämmerung." Those who don't will enjoy it anyway, actors say.

The back of the set is even more intricate than the front, with mazes of runways, staircases and five dressing cubicles.

"As fun as it is on stage, it's even funner back there because actors are going in one door and coming out another," said Debra Wagoner, whom Company of Fools devotees will remember from her portrayal of Patsy Cline. "It's more tightly cho-

The dressing room below is stuffed with suede jackets, sequined cowboy vests, horned hats and a bunch of boots and wigs hung on color-coded hangers for each actor. Costume director John Glenn even found three dresses with matching hats on a church lady's website.

Three dressers will help the actors shed and pile on clothes, using Velcro as no one has time for buttons.

ranch rodeo events are on horseback. "You try and be as efficient as you can, just like on the ranch."

In previous years, more than 1,100 people have attended the rodeo. Organizers anticipate similar attendance this year.

"When people think of rodeo this isn't what they think about," said Western Heritage Gathering volunteer Mark Russell. "It's a lot of fun to watch but an eye opener because this is what cowboys really do."

This year's event is a bit safer, Russell noted, after organizers decided to scrap the livestock round-up down

Main Street. A slight mishap led to liability concerns last summer.

"A couple of steers got loose," Russell said.

New to the lineup are children's carnival on Saturday and a stock dog show today.

"Next year it will be a sanctioned event, and that will help draw people who have registered dogs," said Gathering committee chairwoman Carmen Stevens. "We think this will help build attendance and be another draw ... we're excited to see working dogs show off their skills."

Some of the money raised from the Dutch oven dinner, buckaroo breakfast and other events tied to the gathering will go to Gooding County 4-H.

Dance Camp

TWIN FALLS • The CSI Fine Arts Center is still taking registrations for its annual CSI/IDAA Summer Dance Workshop, held in July on the Twin Falls campus.

Tuition, with or without board, ranges from $80 to $765.

The camp provides intensive training to students 12 and older who have a minimum of two consecutive years of dance. Students take five to seven hours of class per day in ballet, jazz, tap, lyrical and modern techniques, plus musical theater, world dance, choreography and related areas. Students may choose between a one-week workshop, July 15-20, and a two-week version, July 15-27.

A one-day junior camp on July 21 introduces ages 9-11, regardless of dance experience, to an intensive workshop taught by the regular camp faculty.

Registration: csi.edu/dance-camp or 732-6288.

"Chicago" and a tribute to Irving Berlin.

Roads will start closing before the fireworks, so arrive early.

North College Road will close at 7 p.m., and at 9 p.m. sections of Falls Avenue and Washington Street North that surround the college will also close.

"The amount of pedestrian traffic has increased, we noticed," said Staff Sgt. Dennis Pullin of the Twin Falls Police Department. "Washington Street will remain closed until all pedestrian traffic is clear."

Pullin said fireworks watchers can park anywhere in the area where parking is legal. However, he suggests parking on the CSI campus and estimates it will take only 15 to 20 minutes to clear all traffic off campus after the fireworks.

But be patient. Thousands of people attend the display, and it may take time for police to direct vehicle and pedestrian traffic off the campus safely. If you are driving, expect to be routed in a different direction than you would normally travel home. Drivers should expect delays.

Pullin also reminded people not to drink and drive: Extra police will be out patrolling this year, and the area surrounding CSI will be heavily patrolled.

Once you've settled into a spot on the CSI lawns, sit back and enjoy the dazzling pyrotechnic show put on by Neil Christensen and a crew of three.

Christensen became involved in the fireworks show four years ago after thinking "it would be cool to light fireworks." The Twin Falls man received training and now is a licensed fireworks technician for Utah-based Lantis Fireworks.

"Come support a great community event," Christensen said.

Locally Owned Radio will synchronize music to the fireworks on its four radio stations: 104.7 Bob FM, I-Rock 102.1 FM, La Poderosa Puro Mexico 100.7 FM 1270 AM, and KTPZ Music Monster 92.7 FM.

"It's very moving," fireworks committee member Ruth Pierce said.

This year's show will be at least 20 minutes long.

"It's a tradition in Twin Falls and something the community looks forward to," Pierce said.

"We have all kinds of seasonings and bags at the store, and we'll have people at the park if people need help cleaning up their fish after the event," Eggleston said. "We don't want the fish going to waste."

If wrestling with trout by hand isn't your thing, the Sagebrush Days schedule likely has something else you'll enjoy.

Musicians hoping to compete in Buhl Jam are instead simply playing live in Eastman Park on the afternoon of July 4, as the chamber of commerce canceled the competition.

"There were only two entries, and so our only option was to cancel Buhl Jam and try again next year," said Rick Stoltenburg, chamber president, adding that the chamber will expand advertising for the competition to include Magic Valley bars and other places where musicians may play.

Among the performers will be up-and-coming easy-core/pop-punk band All That Falls. The Oakley band has some 30 original works but looks forward to

"We were really excited to compete, but our philosophy is 'a gig is a gig is a gig, you know?'" said Jacob McBride, who plays guitar and sings back-up.

McBride said the band is pioneering its own sound but is influenced by bands like Blink 182 and Green Day.

Track Gets Boost at All-comer Meets

Meets' appeal comes in form of short seasons, easing younger athletes into a new sport.

KIMBERLY • One moment, Shea Bair is holding a clipboard, taking down distances for the triple jump. The next minute, she's politely telling a little boy that his race isn't starting just yet.

Outside of the track, parents and their participating children seek shade under trees. On the track, what most people would recognize as football sideline yard markers make do as hurdles for younger runners.

The last of four All-comer track meets was held Thursday at Kimberly High School and Bair, the meet's organizer

Oakley Selects Noble As Boys Hoops Coach

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

Noble

OAKLEY • Former Minico High standout Travis Noble has been hired as the new head boys basketball coach at Oakley High School.

A 2004 Minico graduate, Noble has spent the past three seasons as the assistant men's basketball coach at Montana State University-Northern.

"He has good expertise. We feel really good about his knowledge and his capability to be a great coach," said Oakley athletic director Matt Mallory. "We're honored that Oakley will be his first head coaching job."

Noble, who will teach health and physical education at Oakley, played two years at Walla Walla Community College, where he was voted first-team all-Eastern Region in the NWAACC. He then spent two seasons playing at MSU-Northern, where he was a two-time first-team all-Frontier Conference selection, led the Lights to their first NAIA national tournament in 10 years and set school records in career 3-point percentage and season free throw percentage. He was voted MSU-Northern's Male Athlete of the Year for 2008-09.

After his collegiate playing career, Noble had a short professional stint with the Central Oregon Hotshots of the International Basketball League (IBL).

Noble, 26, said he wanted to return home with his wife Katy to southern Idaho, where he will be close to family. Plus, he's been chomping at the bit to become a head coach.

"I'm ready to build my own program," Noble said. "I've been an assistant for three years and have seen both sides of the coin — what it takes to have a successful program, and how you don't want to lead your program."

Noble replaces Tyler Matlock, who resigned as Oakley's boys basketball coach after a 21-47 record in three seasons. Matlock will continue to coach track and cross country at Oakley.

"I'm excited to be at Oakley and to help this program," Noble said. "I want to change the culture and start to establish programs in the lower grades... It's going to be different for a while. It's going to be a change. I am going to require a lot, but that's the way you build a good program. It's been made known to me that the people in Oakley want a successful program, and I'm willing to do that. It's going to take hard work, but we're going to change some things and get the ball rolling."

Burley's Taylor Carson pitches as Kimberly baserunner Matt Courtney takes off for second base during an American Legion Baseball doubleheader Thursday at Burley.

Carson, Green Sox Pound Kimberly

BY RYAN HOWE

BURLEY • With one of their veterans on the mound and their youngsters coming up with timely hits at the plate, the Burley Green Sox remained unbeaten in Area C with a 9-3 win over the Kimberly Astros in Game 1 of an American Legion Baseball Single-A doubleheader Thursday.

Dealing off-speed pitches and breaking balls, Miles Community College-bound Taylor Carson struck out 10 Kimberly batters and allowed five hits in a complete-game effort.

"I've always lived off-speed because my fast-ball is not really going to beat anybody. I keep the hitters guessing and it worked well," Carson said.

The win moved Burley to 13-4 overall, 7-0 in league play.

"We're just having fun," Carson said. "We come out to win, and when we win we have fun... Losing isn't fun, so we decided to just go out there and win and that would be our fun. We're playing our hardest and battling every game and it's

Despite the game starting one hour, 40 minutes late due to an accidental sprinkler-flooded infield, Carson started fast, tossing three hitless innings.

Kimberly loaded the bases in the fourth, but Carson got out of the jam with a strikeout.

The Astros threatened again in the seventh with loaded bases and no outs. But with a handful of players missing due to various commitments, Burley had limited arms available. Burley coach Devin Kunz visited the mound, but left Carson to finish.

"Toward the end I felt pretty confident," Carson said. "I was like, 'Give me the ball, let's go!' I

COWBOYS START HOME TOURNEY WITH A WIN

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • It won't always be as easy as the Twin Falls Cowboys made it look Thursday.

Twin Falls' top American Legion Baseball squad played near-flawless ball and got a good-enough pitching performance to open its home Cowboy Classic wood bat tournament with a 7-2 win over Reno, Nev., at Skip Walker Field.

The Cowboys' run parade started on a routine bases-loaded grounder by Marcus Donaldson, who reached on a throwing error that allowed a second run to score. Braden Stutzman came around on Thomas Corr's grounder to give Twin Falls a 3-1 lead that proved more commanding than it first looked.

Nada for Nadal at Wimbledon

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WIMBLEDON, England • Chasing a drop shot in the second set, Rafael Nadal stumbled and tumbled into the net as his racket went flying to the sideline.

It just wasn't his day. Nadal rose slowly to cheers from the Wimbledon crowd but found himself off balance the rest of the way and made his earliest Grand Slam exit since 2005.

Nadal was overpowered in the second round Thursday by Lukas Rosol, a Czech ranked No. 100, 6-7 (9), 6-4, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

The 26-year-old Rosol earned the biggest win of his career playing in Wimbledon's main draw for the first time. He lost each of the past five years in the first round of qualifying.

As the match stretched beyond dusk, the conclusion came with the retractable roof closed for the final set on Centre Court. The upset on tennis' biggest stage was no fluke: Rosol served brilliantly and repeatedly stepped instead the baseline to hit aggressive groundstrokes, while Nadal found himself pinned deep and on the defensive.

Among those shocked by the result was Rosol.

"I'm not just surprised; it's like a miracle for me," he said. "I never expected something like this."

Nadal saved three set points to win the opening set, but his demeanor grew glum as Rosol overtook him. After falling behind in the third set, Nadal grumbled to the chair umpire during a changeover, apparently irritated by Rosol's movements as he awaited serves.

"I was concentrating on myself," Rosol said. "I don't know what he was complaining about."

Two games later, Nadal bumped into Rosol — and didn't acknowledge

STATE ROUNDUP

BSU President Praises Playoff Plan

BOISE • Boise State University President Bob Kustra is giving early praise to a new college football playoff system for crowning a national champion.

This week, a committee of college presidents voted to scrap the Bowl Championship Series and replace it with a four-team playoff. The new system will start in 2014.

Kustra has long been a critic of the BCS, saying it favors teams from bigger conferences at the expense of smaller, upstart teams like Boise State.

Kustra says the playoff is a positive step for college football and opens the door for a new method of determining a national champ. Kustra says he is eager to learn more as details emerge on revenue and access, but believes the college football world is now headed in the right direction.

Felix Named Top Male MWC Athlete

Boise State decathlete Kurt Felix was named the 2011-12 Mountain West Male Athlete of the Year on Thursday. The award goes to the conference's top athlete across all sports.

Felix joins Jerry Hughes

(TCU, football) and Jimmer Fredette (BYU, basketball) as winners of the three-year-old award. TCU's Whitney Gipson (track and field) was this year's women's winner.

Felix won every award of note the MW had to offer in both indoor and outdoor track and field, and will compete in the decathlon for his native Grenada in the London Olympics. The decathlon is scheduled for Aug. 8-9.

Ex-Bronco Earns Olympic Bid

Former Boise State discus thrower Jarrod Rome earned a spot on the U.S. Olympic team by placing second at the Olympic Trials at the University of Oregon.

Rome, a 2000 BSU grad, tossed the discus 207 feet, 10 inches, or 63.35 meters. Fellow Nike teammates Lance Brooks and Jason Young also made the team, with Brooks' winning toss covering 213-9.

This is Rome's second trip to the Olympics, having also competed in the 2004 games in Athens.

Italy Tops Germany to Reach Euro 2012 Final

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WARSAW, Poland • Mario Balotelli finally showed some quality finishing, scoring twice Thursday to give Italy a 2-1 win over Germany and an unexpected spot in the European Championship final.

Extending its winless streak against Italy in major tournaments to eight matches, Germany had no answer for Balotelli nor Antonio Cassano's creativity.

In the 20th minute, Balotelli had no trouble getting past Holger Badstuber to head in a pinpoint cross from Cassano. Then in the 36th, the 21-year-old striker received the ball behind the defense and blasted a long shot into the top right corner.

While he did score against Ireland, Balotelli was criticized for wasting numerous chances against Spain, Croatia and England.

Germany failed to trouble Italy for much of the match, but Mesut Ozil scored on a penalty kick in injury time after Federico Balzaretti was whistled for a handball.

champion Spain in Sunday's final in Kiev, Ukraine — a rematch of their 1-1 draw that opened Group C.

While Italy has won four World Cups, it's only European Championship came in 1968. Like when they won the 1982 and 2006 World Cups, the Azzurri have managed to maintain their focus despite a match-fixing and betting scandal at home.

On a pleasant evening at the National Stadium Warsaw, Cassano set up the opening goal by befuddling Germany defenders Mats Hummels and Jerome Boateng to lift the ball in Balotelli's direction.

The second goal began with a long vertical pass from Riccardo Montolivo, whose mother is German. Balotelli collected the pass with his back to the goal, controlled the ball with his chest and then sprinted forward and unleashed a blazing shot from the edge of the area as Germany goalkeeper Manuel Neuer again stood immobile.

Balotelli took off his jersey after his second goal, which drew an automatic yellow card, although he will not miss the final.

AS EXPECTED, DAVIS GOES NO. 1

NEWARK, N.J. • Best in the country and No. 1 and 2 in the NBA draft. The celebration goes on for Kentucky's kids.

The Wildcats became the first school to have the top two picks and tied a record with six players taken over-all Thursday night.

After the New Orleans Hornets made the long-expected selection of forward Anthony Davis with the first pick, Charlotte followed by taking fellow freshman Michael Kidd-Gilchrist.

"It's crazy," Davis said. "Michael is a great player. We have two down and four more to go. Hopefully, all of them will go in the first round."

They didn't, the only disappointment for the Wildcats. They settled for four in the first round and a tie with North Carolina, which won the race to four picks — all in the top 17 selections.

The Utah Jazz selected Tennessee Tech guard Kevin Murphy with the 47th over-all pick.

and a Kimberly High assistant track coach, is expending as much energy as a middle-distance runner.

At the same time, Bair is careful not to overindulge on a good thing, which is exactly why the 'season' is only a month long.

"Summer starts going and people have a lot going on," said Bair, who estimated there were at least 100 kids ages 5 through 18 taking part, including her three sons Peyton, Jaxon and Gatlin. That's down from a first-week count of 150. "But it gives kids another option ...

everybody plays baseball and softball and I guess I wanted to get kids interested in track and field at a younger age.

"When they get to high school or middle school they're like, 'I don't want to run in circles.' But if they learn there are other events and that it's a fun thing before they get there, I think we'll have better numbers with our high school team as well."

One of Thursday's competitors was exactly the kind of child Bair is trying to reach. Autumn Heck, 8, was at her first meet because her softball team wasn't playing this week, along with younger sister Tavia, 5.

Her father, Joey Heck, had a bit of advance knowledge of the meet since his brother, Alan, is part of the local track and field community as an assistant track coach at Canyon Ridge High School.

"They love to compete, especially my oldest," Heck said. "She loves sports. It's probably good to get them started at an early age."

Another parent, Noel Mendonca, whose son Cody was running in several events, agreed.

"They start baseball early, they start football early," she said. "They might as well start track and give the kids an idea of what goes on."

And unlike baseball and softball, where teams can play dozens of games in a season, the all-comers' season is compact and short. The only organized practices are on the Tuesdays which precede each of the four meets.

"I can handle it," Mendonca said.

Prior to starting the allcomer meets, Bair and her sons often drove up to Boise, where there are schools that have similar meets all summer long. The driving demands helped inspire Bair to find something closer to home and she's optimistic that other schools will follow her lead. Although most of the participants are part of the Kimberly School District, the meets attract athletes from nearby Murtaugh and Hansen.

Bair is quick to note that all are welcome, from "5 until you can't run," regardless of the school district in which they reside.

"I've talked with other coaches and the wheels are turning," Bair said. "Hopefully we can make it a (Magic) Valley thing, not just one school."

Sayer Conrad single. Lee Johnson capped the scoring with a two-run single in the sixth.

"It looked like the defense was on its heels early, and we got a couple bunts down and they made some errors," Slotten said. "That worked long enough for us to get the hitting going."

The offense was more than enough for Michael Garcia, who mostly achieved coach Tim Stadelmeir's pitching goal of throwing strikes and limiting extra opportunities — he struck out five, drew eight ground-ball outs and walked one in his first six innings before tiring in the seventh.

"I didn't have my best outing on the mound, but you just have to battle," said Garcia. "There are some good teams here and we feel like we've got a good chance to be in that top four come Sunday."

Garcia loaded the bases with two walks and hit batter in the seventh, but he worked his way out of trouble by getting a strikeout and a ground ball. Thomas Corr got him completely off the hook by spearing a line drive to end the game, when it would have scored two more runs — runs conceded is the second tiebreaker in criteria for advancing to the semifinals.

Twin Falls plays Mountain View and Pac Tech (Wash.) today, knowing a split will put the Cowboys on the edge of qualifying for Sunday's semifinals, and a sweep would almost certainly get them there.

"Obviously it would be nice to win both, but our goal length ahead of the field when he touched in 1 minute, 53.65 seconds. The real race was for second place - and another spot on the Olympic team. Tyler Clary, who lost out to Phelps in the 400 individual medley, rallied from behind for a time of 1:55.12, edging Bobby Bolli's touch of 1:55.79.

Clary pumped his right fist and pounded the water when he saw a "2" beside his name on the scoreboard. When Phelps got out of the water, he walked side-by-side with Clary along the deck, patting the first-time Olympian on the back of the head.

Phelps isn't the only one building a busy Olympic schedule. His training partner, Allison Schmitt, was equally dominating in the 200 free. She broke her own American record with a time of 1:54.40, the best in the world this year.

Seventeen-year-old Missy Franklin locked up another Olympic race, claiming the second 200 spot in 1:56.79. Franklin already won the 100 backstroke and looks poised to have another huge performance in London, after breaking through at last year's worlds with five medals.

IF JUNE 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You've been able to enjoy pleasant sailing throughout the past few weeks, but batten down the hatches as the summer unfolds. Don't make major changes, add to your debt load or make crucial promises in July or August when your luck is temporarily on hiatus. With minimum effort, you can successfully launch a pet project in October and as that month unfolds, you might be blessed by opportunities to improve your circumstances or receive beneficial advice. Center the hinge of your future on the plans you launch in October or the people you meet at that time since something good should come from whatever occurs at that time.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Making critical career changes now is like putting lipstick on a pig. Not that there is anything wrong with pigs, or lipstick, but under these stars any efforts to break the glass ceiling could prove futile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Change your tune to change your luck. A fleeting taste of fame or fortune might make you realize that the only person holding you back is yourself. Try new things and test out some different ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Think. You are sensitive to subtle nuances and smart enough to understand what they mean. You are also lucky enough to possess the tools and character to put instinctive knowledge to good use.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your pleasantly playful antics might make someone sit up and take notice. Your outgoing friendliness and sincerity may attract new playmates or facilitate a meeting of the minds with a close friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Rise to the occasion. If you remain true blue even when others are seeing red, everything will turn out all right in the end. Pay attention to the people and activities that will enhance your reputation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This could be a good time to speak to others, hold discussions or write something that others will enjoy. Celestial conditions might not be ideal to sign a binding contract, but fine for making favorable impressions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You don't have to yield to pressure. Concentrate on work, career and reputation even if there are other enticing distractions. There will be plenty of time for amorous activities later this weekend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unpredictable events might work out in your favor. Welcome sudden breaks in routine or an unexpected visitor. There may be something of great interest or value that appears right under your nose.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be prepared to brush shoulders with unusual people. Get ready to put out the welcome mat for surprise visits. Although you may be spending money like water, you will be delighted with results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Risky business is risky. You may have more irons in the fire than you can safely handle. Don't add more projects to your pile. Write down your inspirations so you can refer to them in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone may approach you with startling ideas that may revolutionize your outlook. It's not necessary to accept everything at face value. Reserve judgment; one pearl of wisdom could be valuable.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"The opinion of the strongest is always the best."
 — Jean de La Fontaine

When North chose a negative double after West's overcall, you had far too much playing strength to rebid at the two-level. Your leap to four hearts may have been an overbid, but was certainly all North needed for him to commit to a small slam. West leads the club king, taken by dummy's ace. How do you plan to make 12 tricks?

You should try to set up and enjoy your spade suit, as it needs little more than breaking no worse than 4-2. However, in some layouts a little care is required.

In today's layout, if your first move in trumps is to play dummy's ace, you will go down! Instead, you should tackle spades immediately by playing the ace and king, then ruffing a spade high once West follows with a third spade. Next, return to hand with a trump to the 10 (discovering the 4-0 break) and ruff a second spade high. Then you will play the trump five and cover East's card as cheaply as possible. You can now draw East's remaining trumps and claim the contract, losing just one club trick.

This plan would also succeed if spades were 3-3. After ruffing one spade, you could draw trumps and claim 12 tricks via four spades, a spade ruff, five trumps, a diamond and a club.

As you can see, you need both the ace and king of trumps for ruffing purposes. If you waste one of those at trick two, there would be no way to recover.

ANSWER: Your action here may depend on the vulnerability — just as you'd be more cautious facing a two-spade opening if the pre-empt were in first seat nonvulnerable (when I would guess to pass) or second seat vulnerable, when I might go all the way to game. With quick tricks, but no trump spots, I would pass, expecting game to be poor, facing a nonvulnerable pre-empt.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has decided to let her 14-year-old son have a girlfriend. This is contrary to every value we grew up with as kids into adulthood.

DEAR ABBY
 Jeanne Phillips

She has met the girl's parents and says they "immediately clicked" and she knew right away that they share the same morals. The parents now set up situations where the two kids can get together. Not only have my nephew and the girl bonded, but the parents have become fast friends.

I see no problem with a little puppy love that happens in school, but is it asking for trouble when parents start to create dating situations when kids are so young? What happens if they are eventually allowed to be alone? Or one of them wants to break up but is afraid to hurt not only the other, but also the parents?

My sister says she's "guiding her son through his first romance." I say an eighth-grader is too young and she's inviting a myriad of problems. We have fought over this because she says I'm not being "flexible" and because this hasn't happened to my child yet. I offered my opinion only after I was asked what I thought of my nephew's girlfriend after she posted pictures on the Internet. Am I right to think this is crazy, Abby?

— SANE AUNT IN GEORGIA

DEAR SANE AUNT: Let's just say it is ill-advised rather than crazy. But I agree that your sister is headed for trouble because she isn't allowing her son's "first romance" to develop naturally.

First love often peaks and burns out quickly. When there are two sets of intermeshed parents involved, it can lead to lasting hurt feelings and sometimes enmity.

However, if you think your sister is going to listen to either of us, you're dreaming. So quit offering unsolicited advice and stay tuned for what's coming because there are lessons to be learned for everyone involved.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married this year and I'd like to challenge the notion that it's rude to ask for gifts toward a honeymoon or other big-ticket items such as home improvements or a car. My fiancé and I own our home and we don't need a lot of the traditional items couples receive at their wedding.

Our families have been very understanding, but I'm sick to death of hearing or reading that it's rude to ask for money. Shouldn't wedding guests be happy to celebrate the couple in a way that they need and not force them to register for a bunch of material things they won't use?

— ALREADY HAS A BLENDER

DEAR ALREADY HAS A ...: Your question is very common. I receive variations on this theme in every batch of mail that arrives.

It is considered rude to ask for money on a wedding INVITATION, just as it is considered rude for brides and grooms to raise the subject themselves. When a wedding invitation is accepted, the guests usually contact whoever issued the invitation to inquire where the couple is registered. Once asked, it is then appropriate to reply, "They're not registered for gifts because they already have everything they need, but monetary gifts would be appreciated."

Some couples set up financial registries for this purpose with their bank or other financial institution, and there are also honeymoon registries and charitable gift registries if guests would prefer to donate to a worthy cause chosen by the happy couple.

If you've lost that special pet, advertise to find them in the Classifieds. They'll be home soon.

REPAIRS

PAPA JOHN'S REPAIR
We Fix 'em! Small

Today is Friday, June 29, the 181st day of 2012. There are 185 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On June 29, 1972, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Furman v. Georgia, Jackson v. Georgia and Branch v. Texas, struck down a trio of death sentences, saying the way they had been imposed constituted cruel and unusual punishment. (The ruling prompted states to effectively impose a moratorium on executions until their capital punishment laws could be revised.)

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1613, the original Globe Theatre in London was destroyed by a fire.

In 1767, Britain approved the Townshend Revenue Act, which imposed import duties on glass, paint, oil, lead, paper and tea shipped to the American colonies. (Colonists bitterly protested, prompting Parliament to repeal the duties — except for tea.)

In 1911, the Maryknoll Fathers and Brothers had its beginnings as Pope Pius X gave his blessing for the formation of The Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America.

In 1927, the first trans-Pacific airplane flight was completed as Lt. Lester J. Maitland and Lt. Albert F. Hegenberger arrived at Wheeler Field in Hawaii aboard the Bird of Paradise, an Atlantic-Fokker C-2, after flying 2,400 miles from Oakland, Calif., in 25 hours, 50 minutes.

In 1941, Polish statesman, pianist and composer Ignacy Jan Paderewski died in New York at age 80.

In 1954, the Atomic Energy Commission voted against reinstating Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer's access to classified information.

In 1956, actress Marilyn Monroe married playwright Arthur Miller in a civil ceremony in White Plains, N.Y. (the marriage lasted 4 1/2 years).

In 1966, the United States bombed fuel storage facilities near the North Vietnamese cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

In 1967, Jerusalem was reunified as Israel removed barricades separating the Old City from the Israeli sector.

In 1970, the United States ended a two-month military offensive into Cambodia.

In 1988, the U.S. Supreme Court, in Morrison v. Olson, upheld the independent counsel law in a 7-1 decision (the sole dissenter was Justice Antonin Scalia).

In 1992, the remains of Polish statesman Ignacy Jan Paderewski, interred for five decades in the United States, were returned to his homeland in keeping with his wish to be buried only in a free Poland.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush transferred his presidential powers to Vice President Dick Cheney for more than two hours during a routine colon screening that ended in a clean bill of health. Singer Rosemary Clooney died in Beverly Hills, Calif., at age 74.

Five years ago: British police defused two car bombs left to blow up near packed nightclubs and pubs in central London. The first Apple iPhones went on sale. Death claimed movie critic Joel Siegel at age 63 and George McCorkle, a founding member of the Marshall Tucker Band.

One year ago: In the first ruling by a federal appeals court on President Barack Obama's health care overhaul, a panel in Cincinnati handed the administration a victory by agreeing that the government could require a minimum amount of insurance for Americans. Greece fended off bankruptcy as lawmakers backed austerity measures in the face of riots that left more than 100 injured.
