Ham Radio Lives On

Local operators tout the hobby's benefits and seek new club members.

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Like Mark Twain's purported death, the demise of ham radio has been greatly exaggerated. "There is a terrible rumor that ham radio is dead," said Kelly Klaas of the Magic Valley Amateur Radio Operators Club.

The truth is, the activity is more popular than ever with more than 700,000 participants nationwide, he said Saturday during a seminar sponsored by Surviving in Style of Twin Falls.

Eighteen people who have their Federal Communications Commission amateur radio license or are interested in getting one attended the event at Loong Hing Restaurant.

Klaas, who has been licensed since 1966, emphasized the enjoyment that comes from talking with people from Alaska to Scotland. But he also pointed out that ham operators are a key communications link during emergencies because they can broadcast when other avenues are shut down.

Limited Wastewater Capacity Obstacle to Jerome's Growth

Expanding treatment plant would require bond passage and an increase in sewer rates.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • The city of Jerome wants to attract new businesses, but there's a major obstacle in the way: not enough wastewater capacity.

Mayor John Shine said the city is looking to expand the wastewater treatment plant in order to add capacity.

"If we don't do the expansion, we have to essentially close the doors to economic development," he said.

In November, Jerome voters will decide whether to approve the city's request to issue $35 million in revenue bonds to make improvements to the wastewater treatment plant.

The measure hasn't been finalized. The city has an early August deadline to make a decision on the bond amount to ask of voters.

"We're hoping $35 (million) is not the number," Shine said, adding that he wants to find a more economical solution.

Council Seeks Comment on Proposed Shelter

BY NATE POPPINO

TWIN FALLS • Should a center for rehabilitating drug addicts be placed next to medical offices and a pharmacy?

The Twin Falls City Council will seek the public's input on that question tonight, as it weighs an appeal of a city Planning and Zoning Commission vote allowing the Victory Home to move into a building at 570 Shoup Ave. W.

Formerly a professional medical building, the site would allow a sizeable expansion of the Victory Home's existing programs. Pastor Tony Lopez has proposed two uses for the structure, according to a city staff report: continuing the Victory Home's long-term recovery programs, and providing up to 40 beds as temporary housing for the homeless. Participants in the latter would still face restrictions, including a requirement to spend each day at least two miles away from the Victory Home to look for work. Lopez also hopes to take in registered sex offenders as part of the new site's programs.

Eighteen people testified at a June 12 public hearing by the P&Z, some supporting Lopez's efforts and others opposing a Victory Home at the site. The P&Z then approved a special-use permit for the shelter by a 3-2 vote, but nine nearby residents — largely physicians or other medical

The Twin Falls City Council's regular meeting will begin at 5 p.m. today at the council's chambers, 305 Third Ave. E. It will be preceded by a special closed-door meeting at 4 p.m.; the council cites a state code exemption of "deliberations concerning labor negotiations or to acquire an interest in real property which is not owned by a public agency" for the special session. Clouds Obstruct Star Viewing Party

BY DAVE WILKINS
For the Times-News

POMERELLE MOUNTAIN • The clouds started rolling in at dusk. It was an unwelcome sight at the sixth annual Pomerelle Mountain Star Party.

About 60 people had gathered Saturday night to see stars — lots and lots of stars. With any luck they would be able to spot distant star clusters, maybe a planet or two and other spiral galaxies beyond the Milky Way, organizers said.

Telescopes provided by the College of Southern Idaho's Herrett Center and the Magic Valley Astronomical Society were in position at the top of the mountain. With virtually no light pollution, it was the perfect vantage point for stargazing.

But with more storm clouds moving in, organizers announced about 10:15 p.m. that there would be no viewing. Lift ticket refunds were issued and the crowd, which had been waiting pa-

Chris Anderson, director of the Centennial Observatory

It was only the second time in six years that the event had to be canceled.

"I think this is the first time that we have been almost totally socked in, horizon to horizon, without being able to see a single star," said Chris Anderson, director of the Centennial Observatory at the Herrett Center and an organizer of the event.

workers with offices next to the building — appealed that decision.

Those appealing cited concerns including how Lopez will ensure his larger shelter is properly staffed, whether recovering addicts should be housed next to medical facilities with medications and needles on the premises, the safety of medical staff and elderly patients at the nearby offices, and the shelter's effect on property values.

The Victory Home has been lauded by others for the services it provides and the role it plays, and the Twin Falls County commissioners submitted a letter to the city endorsing Lopez's plan. Lopez would acquire the office space from the county.

Also on the council's agenda tonight:

- The council will be asked to withdraw the award of a bid for the Kimberly/Highland Water Extension Project, then grant it to a different contractor after Sawtooth Construction of Ketchum was found not to have a valid contractor's license for necessary electrical work. The contract would now go to a $2.8 million bid by Knife River Corp. of Boise; it's the next lowest bid, but about $500,000 more than Sawtooth submitted as its bid. The council had granted Sawtooth the contract July 9.

- City staff also recommend awarding a $3.85 million bid to McAlvain Construction Inc. for building a pretreatment facility needed for the new Chobani factory.

- The council will continue its budget discussions for the next fiscal year, focused on funds that aren't supported by taxes.

- An official with Recyclebank, operator of the city's incentive program for recycling, will provide an update on that program.

- The council will hold a closed-door special meeting at 4 p.m., ahead of the regular session. Agenda materials cite the state open meeting exemption for "deliberations concerning labor negotiations or to acquire an interest in real property which is not owned by a public agency."

It was a disappointing end to an otherwise fine day.

Earlier there had been water bottle-rocket building and launching for the children and solar viewing.

Three telescopes with specially designed filters allowed visitors to look directly at the sun. The close-up view of the massive fireball at the center of our solar system was a first for many.

"I thought it was spectacular," said Utah resident Jim Hargrave, who had arrived before noon with his son, Jacob, 13. "It was really impressive."

Bonnie Sorensen of Albion attended last year's dark sky star party at Pomerelle and was looking forward to another outing on the mountain.

"The different nebulas were fascinating," Sorensen said. She had hoped to catch a glimpse of Saturn and its signature rings this year, but it wasn't to be.

Folks who missed out this year shouldn't despair. They'll have another opportunity for some dark sky star viewing next month.

The fifth annual City of Rocks star party will be held Aug. 17 at the Smoky Mountain Campground at Castle Rocks State Park. Solar viewing will begin at 2 p.m. Nighttime sky viewing will be held from 9 p.m. to midnight — weather permitting.

Fire Near Hazelton Reaches 20,000 Acres

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Bureau of Land Management reported lightning-caused wildfires near Hazelton and Minidoka on Sunday evening.

No structures were threatened by either fire.

The Owinza Fire near Star Lake north of Hazelton had grown to 20,000 acres as of 9 p.m. Three engines, a bulldozer, a water tender and helicopter were helping to bring that blaze under control, said U.S. Bureau of Land Management spokeswoman Kyli Gough.

The BLM could not estimate when it would contain or control the fire, she said.

A second large blaze, the Rattle Snake Butte fire 15 miles east of Minidoka near its namesake butte, was reported at 11 a.m. and covered 663 acres as of 9 p.m.

Six engines were at the scene with two more en route, Gough said. A water tender and helicopter were helping with work there along with two heavy air tankers and three single-engine air tankers, Gough said.

There was no estimate of when that blaze would be contained or controlled, she said.

"In case of an emergency, your silly little iPhone is going to be a paper-weight," Klaas said.

Club officials said newcomers can get started for as little as $200. As involvement grows, most people sink more money into equipment, said Klaas, who admits he eats, sleeps and drinks ham radio.

The Magic Valley club is a good place to learn the ropes.

"If you have your license and want to get on the air, you will have an abundance of help," club member Jim Kennedy said.

Passing the FCC's required test isn't as difficult as in the past, he added, because it's no longer necessary to learn Morse code. The test is administered by the local club, with questions and answers provided in advance. The $15 cost goes to the FCC.

"Getting a license is not as technical as it sounds," Kennedy said. "It's no longer a guessing game. We have been 100 percent successful getting people ham radio licenses."

He is willing to arrange classes to help beginners pass the test. They are usually held from 7-10 p.m. on four of five consecutive Thursdays, although he will consider other times that work for students.

Having eight or 10 prospective students is enough to prompt classes, he said. Those who are interested can contact him via the club's website at www.k7mva.org.

Meanwhile, the series of seminars sponsored by Surviving in Style continues next month at the College of Southern Idaho in conjunction with the school's Environmental Technology Department. Wastewater

If the ballot measure passes, residents and businesses would see a large increase in sewer rates, Shine said. "It will be a major increase for everybody," Shine said. The city doesn't have specific details yet about how much rates could increase.

As the city moves forward with planning for the election, there will be a series of town hall meetings. Shine said he also plans to make presentations to service groups.

Managers from Darigold, Jerome Cheese Co. and Rite Stuff Foods — a few of Jerome's largest companies — weren't available Friday afternoon to comment on the city's proposal.

Working with the EPA

Improving the city's wastewater treatment plant is also "very closely linked" to issues that arose more than one year ago, Shine said.

Sewage overflow issues in winter 2011 occurred when the wastewater treatment plant's membrane filtration system was clogged by a foreign substance. Sewage overflows violate the Clean Water Act.

After that, city administrators started looking at the details of the situation to see what went wrong.

"That was a wakeup call for us that we needed to expand our capacity," Shine said.

The city is working closely with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to address concerns, Shine said.

The city is working with an environmental engineering firm, he said, which is about halfway through a master planning process for the wastewater treatment plant.

The master plan will go to the EPA for approval. Shine said the goal is to have the plan completed by the end of the year.

"The EPA wants us to have a master plan," he said. It's not a requirement, but "it shows good judgment to have one."

Why is the City Pursuing the Project?

Zane Austin, lead operator for the wastewater treatment plant, said wastewater issues are sometimes difficult for residents to comprehend because they're not immediately visible.

Once someone flushes a toilet, the problem of wastewater is "out of sight, out of mind," he said.

On Friday morning, Austin stood on a platform in the wastewater treatment plant's membrane building as murky brown water ran through basins nearby.

When it comes time to do monthly chemical cleaning, timing has to be carefully considered.

"We can't hardly shut anything down to do maintenance," Austin said.

Employees have to wait until the middle of the night when wastewater flows are at a low point.

Shine said capacity issues translate into economic development challenges.

"Jerome needs to be in a position to continue economic growth," he said.

He and city administrator Polly Hulsey — as well as Jerome County Commissioners — have been talking with four businesses that are interested in coming to Jerome.

Jan Roeser, regional economist for the Idaho Department of Labor, wrote in an email to the Times-News that wastewater capacity is important for most cities.

"If they want to recruit more industrial manufacturers that are big users of water and generate residual solids, then they have to have the ability to treat it," she said.

Roeser said there are a few food processors looking to come to the Jerome, which is a motivation for the city to make improvements to the wastewater treatment plant.

Police say the motorcycle rider was pinned beneath the Toyota. He was taken to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center where he was later pronounced dead. He was wearing a helmet.

The woman and two children riding in the Toyota were not injured.

Police are continuing to investigate.

Global Economy in Worst Shape Since '09

BY PAUL WISEMAN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The global economy is in the worst shape since the dark days of 2009.

Six of the 17 countries that use the euro currency are in recession. The U.S. economy is struggling again. And the economic superstars of the developing world — China, India and Brazil — are in no position to come to the rescue. They're slowing, too.

The lengthening shadow over the world's economy illustrates one of the consequences of globalization:

There's nowhere to hide.

Economies around the world have never been so tightly linked — which means that as one region weakens, others do, too. That's why Europe's slowdown is hurting factories in China. And why those Chinese factories are buying less iron ore from Brazil.

As a result of this global economic slowdown, the International Monetary Fund has reduced its forecast for world growth this year to 3.5 percent, the slowest since a 0.6 percent drop in 2009. Some economists predict the global economy will grow a full percentage point less.

For now, few foresee another global recession. Central banks in China, Britain, Brazil, South Korea and Europe have cut interest rates in the past month to try to jolt growth. European leaders have begun to focus more on promoting growth, not just shrinking debt and cutting budgets.

The Chinese government, in particular, is expected to do what it takes to protect its economy from deteriorating too quickly. And despite their slowdowns, China and India are still growing at rates America and Europe can only imagine.

COLORADO SHOOTING

Man Behind Columbine Crosses Returns to Colorado

AURORA, Colo. (AP) • An Illinois man who placed 15 crosses near Columbine High School after the 1999 massacre there has returned to Colorado with 12 crosses for the victims of a theater shooting.

Greg Zanis, of Aurora, Ill., began putting up the crosses Sunday on a hill across the street from the theater in Aurora.

Aurora Mayor Steve Hogan arrived later, put his hand on a cross and said a prayer with Zanis. Hogan became emotional and embraced his wife.

The crosses are white, about 3 1/2 feet tall and made out of lumber. Zanis says he was swamped with requests to bring them.

The 15 crosses erected near Columbine included two for the killers, Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold. The father of one of the victims tore those two crosses down.

Shooting victim Rita Mora is surrounded by her family during a visit at Denver Health in Denver Sunday. Mora was shot three times, once in the foot and twice in the elbow, during the shooting rampage at Century Aurora 16 Cinemark Theatre in Aurora early Friday.

Police said Holmes, carrying the AR-15 and the other weapons, walked into the theater about 20 minutes into the movie. He wore a gas mask and a ballistics helmet and vest, as well as groin, throat and leg protectors, they said.

AURORA, Colo. The suspect in the massacre at an Aurora, Colo., movie theater appears to have acted alone, the police chief said Sunday, adding that a computer had been recovered from his apartment, which might provide additional insight into the attack.

"All evidence we have, every single indicator is that it was all Mr. (James) Holmes' activity and that he wasn't particularly aided by anyone else," Chief Dan Oates said Sunday on CBS's "Face the Nation."

Of the computer, he said: "We're hopeful that will yield some information."

Also Sunday, the Associated Press reported that the semi-automatic assault rifle used during the attack jammed during the early Friday rampage, forcing the shooter to switch to another, less powerful weapon.

Twelve people were killed in the attack during a midnight showing of the "The Dark Knight Rises," and 58 were injured.

The AR-15 assault-style rifle used in the attack was equipped with a high-capacity ammunition magazine, capable of firing 50 to 60 rounds a minute, the AP reported. But the shooter also had a shotgun and two Glock pistols. He turned to those weapons when the assault rifle malfunctioned.

Holmes, 24, was arrested in a nearby parking lot after the shooting. He was booked on suspicion of first-degree murder and is scheduled to appear in Arapahoe County Court on Monday, Arapahoe County Undersheriff David Walcher has said.

Walcher has declined to comment on how Holmes is being housed or his demeanor since he has been in custody.

Police said Holmes, carrying the AR-15 and the other weapons, walked into the theater about 20 minutes into the movie. He wore a gas mask and a ballistics helmet and vest, as well as groin, throat and leg protectors, they said. He allegedly released two smoke or gas-emitting devices, and then opened fire, shooting at anyone who tried to escape.

The suspect had legally purchased four weapons in the past 60 days from local gun shops, Oates has said. Holmes also had purchased more than 6,000 rounds of ammunition — 3,000 for the assault rifle, 3,000 for the two handguns and 300 rounds for the shotgun, officials have said.

COLORADANS BOW IN PRAYER FOR VICTIMS

AURORA, Colo. (AP) • Voices and hands raised in prayer, Coloradans of many faiths and no faith are joining to remember the 12 killed in Friday's mass shooting at a movie theater in Aurora.

There were shouts of joy. Tears of relief for loved ones who survived. And questions from those whose faiths were shaken by the massacre.

Congregations sent up prayers for the survivors and the relatives of the dead. Churches sent out social-media appeals for neighbors who wanted to join in remembrance. Elderly churchgoers at an aging Presbyterian church within walking distance near shooting suspect James Holmes' apartment joined in prayer, though none had ever met him.

The prayers came in different languages, but the message was the same — hope and faith in the face of tragedy.

Emboldened Syrian Rebels Push into Aleppo

BY BEN HUBBARD
Associated Press

BEIRUT • A new rebel group boasting some 1,000 fighters launched an operation Sunday to capture Syria's largest city, Aleppo, while government troops using helicopter gunships and heavy artillery rolled back opposition gains in the capital Damascus.

The spread of fighting into a second major metropolis displayed the rebels' growing confidence even though they still can't hold ground against the government's heavy weapons, pushing Syria's civil war toward a new phase of destructive urban combat.

On Sunday, however, a group calling itself the "Brigade of Unification" announced in an online video that it was launching an operation in Aleppo, Syria's most populated city and a key commercial hub that has remained relatively quiet throughout the uprising.

"We gave the orders to march on Aleppo with the aim of liberating it," says Col. Abdul-Jabbar Mohammed Akidi, one of the group's leaders.

The push into Aleppo follows weeks of high-level military defections, soaring death tolls, fierce fighting near President Bashar Assad's seat of power and a bomb blast that killed four top players in his regime's efforts to crush those seeking to end his rule. Rebels also captured several border crossings with neighboring Iraq and Turkey. The opposition's momentum put the regime on the defensive for the first time in the 16-month conflict.

But while the gradual swelling of their ranks and increasing organization have allowed them to push into major cities, they remain largely unable to hold ground against Assad's forces and helplessness before his helicopters.

The week's violence pushed the death toll for the uprising above 19,000, according to the Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights. The group said July is likely to be the conflict's deadliest month so far, with more than 2,750 people killed in the first three weeks — nearly as many as in the previous month.

More than 100 people were killed Sunday, it said, including at least 24 government troops.

Guadalupe R. Lara

Sept. 11, 1933-July 20, 2012

RUPERT • On Friday, July 20, 2012, the matriarch of the Gonzalez/ Lara family, Guadalupe R. Lara, went home to heaven from St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center.

Guadalupe R. Lara was born on Sept. 11, 1933, in China, Nuevo Leon, Mexico, to Maria de Jesus Perez and Octaviano Rodriguez. She was one of nine children. Our mother came to the United States as a young migrant worker to Texas and at the age of 20 she met and a year later, 1954, married the father of her children, Pedro Gonzalez. Pedro died in 1968 from injuries sustained in a car accident leaving behind our mother eight months pregnant and with six other children ranging in ages from 14 to 4 years old.

Our mother worked for Ore-Ida/McCains Foods for 37 years and then during the summer months at whatever farm jobs there were to support her seven children.

Our mother married for the second time in 1975 to Francisco Lara. They enjoyed nine years together before he died on Jan. 13, 1984. During their marriage, Frank and Mom adopted two of her grandchildren, Nicole and Daniel Lara.

Mom loved visits from her children and grandchildren and would work furiously the day before making tortillas, beans, rice, and some meat dish. During the summer months, there was also calabaza. Mom enjoyed taking road trips with her daughter, dances, occasional trips to Jackpot, Nev., with her bag of coins which she swore gave her more luck than doing the coin exchange at the casino. She loved yard work and detested housework.

Mom was not proficient in English but everyone who did not speak Spanish understood her enough to fill in the gaps. Mom was well known and loved throughout the community. All of the places of business in Rupert loved doing business with Mom because they knew Mom was a reliable customer and paid her bills before the due dates. For years, before she slowed down, she would walk all over town to pay bills and make purchases as she never learned how to drive.

She was a member of the Guadalupanas at St. Nicholas Church and every 4th of July could be found in the kitchen making salsa for the church fundraiser.

She was always available to help out her friends and neighbors. Mom did not know how to read or write but she had an incredible memory which made up for her lack of educational opportunity. We always wondered what career path she would have chosen had she had the educational opportunity.

Apart from her children's and grandchildren's births and weddings, Mom was proud of the day she became a U.S. citizen.

Mom lived in the same house for more than 50 years and shared her fruits, vegetables, and conversations with her neighbors. She was well liked by her neighbors and as Gary, the neighbor across the street, said, "I understood only about 25 percent of what she said but she was the finest lady I ever knew."

Mom was preceded in death by her parents; sisters, Julia, Virginia, Martina, and Joaquina; brother, Benito; her son, Rodolfo Gonzalez; and her grandson, PJ Gonzalez. She is survived by her sisters, Garciela (Chela) and Antonia (Tonia); brothers, Lucito and Ramon; her children, Silvia Gonzalez, Daniel Gonzalez, Jose (Alicia) Gonzalez, Ana (Dwight) Hollinger, Lionel (Marci) Gonzalez, Pete (Janet) Gonzalez, Rudy (Irene) Gonzalez, Nicole Lara, Daniel Lara, and a son of her heart, Chester Bean. Mom was blessed with 19 grandchildren and 22 1/2 great-grandchildren, many of whom were there when heaven opened up to receive a new angel.

Mom, you were both a mother and father to us for so many years. You went without so we could have what we needed. You always gave and expected nothing in return. Thank you, Mom, Grandma, Buena, for the love and kindness you gave each and everyone of us.

Mama, usted fue una madre y un padre para nosotros durante tantos años. Used se fue sin que pudieramos tener lo que necesitabamos. Siempre se le dio y se espera nada a cambio. Gracias mama, abuela para el amor y la bondad que ha dado todos y cada uno de nosotros.

Herbert Vogel, Unusual Art Collector and Philanthropist, Dies at Age 89

BY MATT SCHUDEL
The Washington Post

Herbert Vogel, a retired New York postal worker who, with his wife, Dorothy, created one of the world's most unlikely — and most significant — collections of modern art, then bequeathed much of it to the National Gallery of Art, died July 22 at a nursing home in New York City. He was 89.

His death was confirmed by Anabeth Guthrie, a spokeswoman for the National Gallery. The cause of death was not immediately disclosed.

In 1962, when Mr. Vogel and Dorothy Hoffman were married, they came to Washington on their honeymoon and spent several days visiting the National Gallery and other museums. When they returned to New York, they began to buy a few pieces by artists they met, slowly amassing their collection.

Unlike many collectors, the Vogels were not wealthy people. They lived and collected their entire lives on their salaries and their pensions. Mr. Vogel worked nights sorting mail at New York post offices, and his wife was a reference librarian in Brooklyn.

They bargained directly with the artists, sometimes buying on installment, paying as little as $10 a month. Once, they received a collage from Christo in exchange for cat-sitting.

The Vogels never talked about how much they paid for a work of art and did not sell a single piece they owned until the National Gallery acquired much of their collection in 1991. Estimates of the collection's value range well into the millions, but National Gallery officials and others who have seen it decline to give a specific number.

"We could have easily become millionaires," Mr. Vogel told the Associated Press in 1992. "We could have sold things and lived in Nice and still had some left over. But we weren't concerned about that aspect."

When they began collecting in the early 1960s, the Vogels — known to many in the art world simply as "Herb and Dorothy" — concentrated largely on conceptual art and minimalism. It was difficult, edgy work, often with straight lines and little ornamentation, that stood apart from the better-known abstract expressionist and pop art movements.

Their first purchase was "Crushed Car Piece" by John Chamberlain, who made sculpture from wrecked auto parts. It was not the sort of art that was in strong demand.

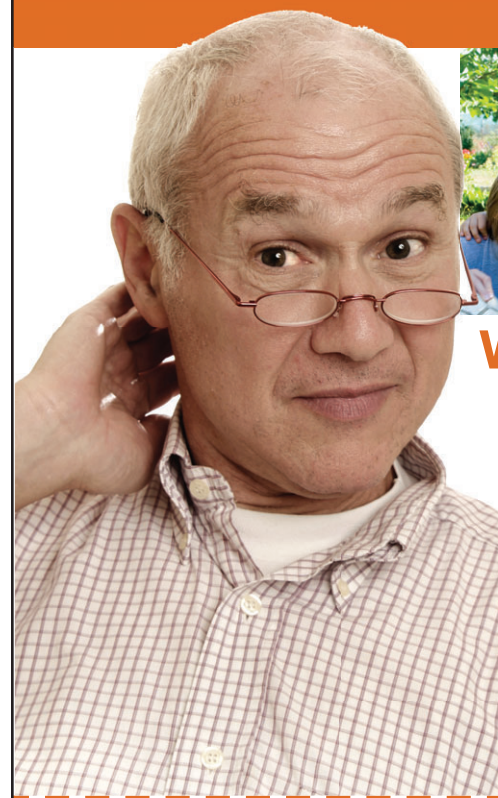

The Vogels visited studios and became close friends with many artists, including Sol LeWitt, Richard Tuttle and the husband-and-wife duo of Christo and Jeanne-Claude. They were often the first collectors to open their wallets to buy from unknown artists. Over a period of almost 50 years, the Vogels amassed more than 5,000 works of art, including drawings, paintings, sculptures and pieces that defied classification.

"Many millionaire collectors wouldn't have the nerve to buy the kind of cutting-edge art that the Vogels embraced enthusiastically," Philadelphia Inquirer art critic Edward J. Sozanski wrote in 1994. The Vogels, Sozanski continued, created "one of the most remarkable American art collections formed in the 20th century, one that covers most of the important developments in contemporary art."

Herb and Dorothy Vogel had three requirements in purchasing art: It had to be inexpensive; it had to be small enough to be carried on the subway or in a taxi; and it had to fit inside their one-bedroom apartment. Over time, the diminutive couple — neither of them much taller than 5 feet — became fixtures in the New York art world. They haunted the city's galleries and studios, attending as many as 25 art events a week. They studied art magazines and kept in close touch with dozens of artists.

Former Chinese Propaganda Chief Ding Guangen Dies

BEIJING (AP) • Ding Guangen, a former chief of propaganda for the ruling Communist Party who oversaw party control of media and the arts in the 1990s, has died at age 83.

Ding, who retired in 2002 after a decade as propaganda chief, died Sunday of an unspecified illness in Beijing, the official Xinhua News Agency said.

Born in 1929, Ding spent the early decades of his career in government maritime and railway agencies.

He became minister of railways in the 1980s but resigned in 1988 after a series of train crashes that killed scores of people. He later was head of the Cabinet's Taiwan Affairs Office and the party's United Front Work Department, which oversees China's noncommunist organizations.

Ding returned to prominence in 1992, becoming the party's chief of propaganda under then-President Jiang Zemin. Seen as a conservative, he affirmed party control of media and called on artists to show political loyalty and adhere to the party line.

Shifting Hunting, Fishing Trends a Political Harbinger

Idaho's glory is its outdoors and the living things in it. The ways Idahoans relate to that world have long helped drive its politics, and over time in various ways. Those ways could be the process of changing again.

One big change occurred in the '60s and '70s with the rise of environmental activism, which had an effect on how people could use the open lands, and drew some sharp, and changing, political lines. For a time those trends helped elect conservation-minded officials (think Cecil Andrus in 1970), later fueling the Sagebrush Rebellion. Those changes happened at a time when Idaho was more rural, and more oriented around resource industries, than it is now.

And more oriented around hunting and fishing, which like much public land use is tightly regulated.

Look over the Idaho Department of Fish and Game's licensing numbers for the last couple of decades, and you'll see some distinct patterns. First, bear this in mind: From 1990 to 2010, Idaho's population went from just more than one million, to nearly 1.6 million. If hunting and fishing are as proportionately large a part of Idaho life now as then, you'd expect license increases of 50 percent or more.

Instead, total resident licenses went from 333,700 in 1993 (the earliest year in the currently-maintained statistics), to 362,567 in 2011.

But that raw number is a little misleading, partly reflecting the changes in the kinds of licenses that have been issued. Many of the individual specific licenses show different patterns. The popular residential combination license, for example, went from 110,954 (in 1993) upward to 113,241 (in 1996), but has fallen consistently since, hitting 88,058 in 2011. Residential fishing licenses have grown modestly (from 102,733 in 1993 to 118,967 last year), but residential hunting licenses have declined from 58,349 in 1993, to 40,539 last year. Per-year sales of deer and elk tags fell during that time.

Among over-the-years comparable categories, one has grown big: The senior resident combo license, which sold 12,895 in 1993, and nearly tripled to 36,461. Seniors have been keeping up with hunting and fishing big time. Juniors have not. Sales for the junior combo licenses fell (these numbers compare 1993 and 2011) from 10,267 to 8,854; fishing dropped slightly, from 12,697 to 12,081; and hunting from 15,484 to 13,405. There's a generational shift here, and the likelihood is for continued drops in hunting and fishing as the younger cohort makes up more of the population.

None of this is any kind of judgment against hunting or fishing, and the decline in numbers could become a problem not only because of state revenue loss but also in the wildlife management law-abiding hunters help provide. And Idaho isn't unique in this; Oregon and many other states report similar licensing declines, probably for similar reasons.

It's not hard to see why this would happen. As Idaho becomes more suburban (as overall it is), the more rural-based hunting and fishing traditions soften. At the same time, other outdoors activities remain as popular, or pick up steam. Camping remains a hot activity, and wildlife photography and birding are becoming increasingly active areas.

All these things are likely to have an effect on the way people see their out of doors, the way our policies should deal with them, and the politics that result.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't Give Into Fear of the Big, Bad Wolf

Have any of you heard of a book published in 1942, during the worst of the wartime food storages, called "How to cook a Wolf"? It was written by Mary Frances Kennedy Fisher.

Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf? We all are. Even the wealthiest men and women have investments who have lost all personal assets.

But stop and look at today. We have our own wolf tales of sudden loss of job, putting mortgages in jeopardy, family businesses in need, an elderly parent turning over home to pay for long-term care, roof needing repairs, the termites or leakage in basement, or even school clothes coming up. The wolf arrives.

It's recommended to not run scared when the wolf arrives, not giving into fears, the world will not be blown down.

Why not weed out desires, leaving only the holy hungers, "so that you can live most agreeably in a world full of an increasing number of disagreeable surprises"?

Let's concentrate on the good at hand, a beautiful sunset, a lively conversation, a loving relationship, a good tomato or a good loaf of bread. Enjoying the minute and not looking at hour or day.

Maybe we should look at the twists and turns of fate as just hot air. You have it in you. You are unique and wonderfully made.

Maybe it is time to learn to out-smart, catch and cook the wolf.

My concern is our wonderful state of Idaho is near the top of ratings for suicide in our nation. What would be the harm to have more encouraging stories in our Times-News?

What Ever Happened to Love Thy Neighbor and Do Unto Others?

I was brought up Christian, to "love thy neighbor as thyself"; do unto others as you would want done to you. God is a loving God!

I no longer consider myself a Christian. I do believe in God. I wear my "Celtic" cross my husband bought me years ago.

I see how religious people treat others such as gays, lesbians, etc. They hate, hurt and destroy other people because of who they choose to love and be with.

Is that Christian, you may ask? What happened to love thy neighbor or do unto others?

It seems when Sunday rolls around, people go to church to have fun, chat with friends, gossip and sometimes sing to God. Then when out of church, they act on hate and judgment for others who are different from them or of different religions.

Can you really do unto others? You want them calling you mean, hateful names? Judging your choices and people you love and want to be with?

In the Bible, it says, "Ye without sin, cast the first stone."

So bring it on, if you're so perfect. Stop the hate of others. Love as God does. Everyone!

Iowa Residents Call for Gov. Otter's Resignation

Is there any way to have a governor step down? For crimes against nature and being totally biased against wolves and other wildlife as he is 100 percent a trophy hunter and has enthusiastically signed off on the current plan of killing wolves, pups, pregnant females, all wolves — in every inch of Idaho, 365 days a year — that is extreme!

If there was a huge outcry for him being ousted by Idaho residents and the entire country because the wildlife is not theirs — the wildlife everywhere in this country belongs to everyone.

He is also a member of the Safari Club International, National Rifle Association, Cowboy's Association. This is a clear conflict of interest and biased. This man and his memberships disqualify him for the job of signing bills into laws!

Taxing Internet Sales Is Against the U.S. Constitution

I have read recent articles about attempts to tax Internet sales. However, as a self-appointed constitutional expert (since I can read English), I find that taxing Internet sales is against the U.S. Constitution. Article 1, Section 9 places the following limitation on Congress: "No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State." Further, Article 1, Section 10 prohibits certain powers of states, specifically: "No State shall, without the Consent of the Congress, lay any Imposts or Duties on Imports or Exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection Laws."

I believe that it would be much easier for local businesses that feel unfair competition to consider repealing the local sales tax than to bypass the U.S. Constitution. Perhaps businesses selling on the Internet find it unfair that buyers have to pay for shipping when buying on the Internet. Shipping costs plus sales tax would be very unfair!

The only reason governments want to tax the Internet is so that they can squander more of our money, not protect local businesses! If governments continue spending the way they have been spending, many, many more cities, states and the United States with its trillions of dollars of debt will go bankrupt!

Romney, Please Stop Calling My House for Donations

Well, it's time for Mitt to find himself a running mate.

There's Donald Trump, but Don would need a hair stylist and he would have to show proof of a birth certificate. I don't know about Don.

Then there's Sarah Palin. She's had experience and they make an attractive couple. What Mitt doesn't know about running our country, she does. She's probably ready for a new wardrobe, but Mitt can draw money out of one of his foreign accounts to pay for it. And being the outdoor person she is, Sarah probably wouldn't mind riding in a kennel on top of Mitt's car if things got crowded. We know Donald wouldn't do that; it would mess his hair.

Oh, and by the way, Governor. Tell your people not to call anymore asking me to donate $100 or $200 to your campaign because it would be a cold day in you know where before that will happen. Never mind. They probably know from the way I was laughing it wasn't going to happen. Is that taxable?

U.S. POVERTY ON TRACK TO RISE TO HIGHEST SINCE 1960S

BY HOPE YEN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • The ranks of America's poor are on track to climb to levels unseen in nearly half a century, erasing gains from the war on poverty in the 1960s amid a weak economy and fraying government safety net.

Census figures for 2011 will be released this fall in the critical weeks ahead of the November elections.

The Associated Press surveyed more than a dozen economists, think tanks and academics, both nonpartisan and those with known liberal or conservative leanings, and found a broad consensus: The official poverty rate will rise from 15.1 percent in 2010, climbing as high as 15.7 percent. Several predicted a more modest gain, but even a 0.1 percentage point increase would put poverty at the highest level since 1965.

Poverty is spreading at record levels across many groups, from underemployed workers and suburban families to the poorest poor. More discouraged workers are giving up on the job market, leaving them vulnerable as unemployment aid begins to run out. Suburbs are seeing increases in poverty, including in such political battlegrounds as Colorado, Florida and Nevada, where voters are coping with a new norm of living hand to mouth.

"I grew up going to Hawaii every summer. Now I'm here, applying for assistance because it's hard to make ends meet. It's very hard to adjust," said Laura Fritz, 27, of Wheat Ridge, Colo., describing her slide from rich to poor as she filled out aid forms at a county center. Since 2000, large swaths of Jefferson County just outside Denver have seen poverty nearly double.

In an election year dominated by discussion of the middle class, Fritz's case highlights a dim reality for the growing group in poverty. Millions could fall through the cracks as government aid from unemployment insurance, Medicaid, welfare and food stamps diminishes.

"The issues aren't just with public benefits. We have some deep problems in the economy," said Peter Edelman, director of the Georgetown Center on Poverty, Inequality and Public Policy.

Poverty is closely tied to joblessness. While the unemployment rate improved from 9.6 percent in 2010 to 8.9 percent in 2011, the employment-population ratio remained largely unchanged, meaning many discouraged workers simply stopped looking for work. Food stamp rolls, another indicator of poverty, also grew.

The 2010 poverty level was $22,314 for a family of four, and $11,139 for an individual, based on an official government calculation that includes only cash income, before tax deductions. It excludes capital gains or accumulated wealth, such as home ownership, as well as noncash aid such as food stamps and tax credits, which were expanded substantially under President Barack Obama's stimulus package.

Few people advocate cuts in anti-poverty programs. Roughly 79 percent of Americans think the gap between rich and poor has grown in the past two decades, according to a Public Religion Research Institute/RNS Religion News survey from November 2011. The same poll found that about 67 percent oppose "cutting federal funding for social programs that help the poor" to help reduce the budget deficit.

Condom Lesson Spurs Law change

MARGARET NEWKIRK
Bloomberg News

In a Nashville, Tenn., high school classroom, about a dozen students watched as a woman from an AIDS prevention group demonstrated how to apply a condom using only her mouth.

The scene in an elective class two years ago angered opponents of sex education, and so Tennessee in May adopted the nation's first state law defining activities that legislators said lead to intercourse, mutual masturbation, fondling and oral and anal sex, and banning their "promotion" in public schools.

The law targets groups such as Planned Parenthood, which discusses those behaviors on its website and provides sex education in Tennessee schools. The National Abstinence Education Association says it's encouraging lawmakers to adopt a similar restrictions to ensure that teenagers all across the United States keep their hands to themselves.

"We've never seen anything like this become law," said Elizabeth Nash, state issues manager for the New York-based Guttmacher Institute, which describes its mission as advancing sexual and reproductive health and rights. "It's so weird, it's more of a spoof than anything else."

The Tennessee law bans teachers and outside speakers from promoting or demonstrating "gateway" activities. The term is defined as activity that involves the groin, upper thighs, buttocks, breasts and genitalia. The concept is modeled after the idea that so-called gateway drugs — marijuana, for instance — can lead users to stronger intoxicants like heroin or cocaine.

The law lets parents bring complaints against teachers or organizations that violate the ban. It creates civil liability for outside groups, which can be fined $500 if the parents prevail in court. Teachers are exempt from the fines.

"We have every hope that this will serve as a model for other states," said Valerie Huber, executive director of the Washington-based abstinence education organization.

Planned Parenthood is among groups that have provided sex education in Tennessee schools.

Memory Pill Does for the Brain What Prescription Glasses Do for the Eyes, Claim Doctors at Leading University

Remarkable changes observed, helps restore up to 15 years of lost memory power in as little as 30 days!

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON —

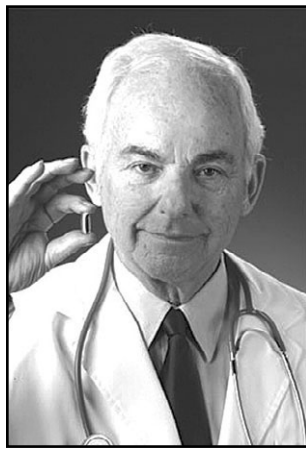

Help is on the way for those who routinely lose their car keys, forget to call people back, or misplace their TV remote control.

Just like a good pair of glasses can make blurry vision, sharp and crystal-clear, there's a new, doctor-recommended memory pill that can do the same thing for your brain, sharpening your memory and mental powers, and making that slow-thinking, sluggish brain as sharp as a tack.

In controlled research studies, the prescription-free formula, known as Procera AVH® has been shown to increase memory, mood, and mental clarity, but it does much more than that.

Time Travel for Your Brain?

If you have ever dreamed of traveling back in time, this drug-free compound may be the next best thing.

Emeritus Professor, UCLA Medical School, Robert Heller, MD, uses and recommends a drug-free method to increase memory, mental focus and concentration.

During research trials at the prestigious Brain Sciences Institute, clinical researchers witnessed a remarkable transformation in study participants' brains.

Over a period of a few weeks, scientists observed the formula "biochemically coaxing" aging brains to function more youthfully, helping restore the speed, memory abilities and mental powers enjoyed as far back as 15 birthdays ago.

Younger Brain in 30 Days?

If the results of this randomized, double-blind, placebo controlled study, published in JANA, a leading scientific journal, are to be believed, it is entirely possible that you can get your new, younger-functioning brain in as little as 30 days.

This is old news for Robert Heller, MD, Emeritus Professor UCLA Medical School, who uses and recommends the formula "It's not a drug," says Dr. Heller, "it's a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become a sharper, quicker, and healthier brain."

Wake Up Call for Tired Brains

For years, Dr. Heller looked for an effective solution to patients' complaints about mind and memory.

"I searched for a remedy or treatment that could help my patients, even friends and family, regain the memory and mental sharpness we all seem to lose with age. I am quite happy to now recommend Procera AVH as it gives the brain much needed support against free radicals, inflammation and improve the decline in neurotransmitters, and blood flow and oxygen."

"It's like reading an eye chart with the right pair of glasses instead of an old pair of lenses. Everything comes into focus, your brain is more crisp, more focused, clearer, and sharper."

Dr. Con Stough at the Brain Sciences Institute concurs, "It's a fairly unique, fast-acting process that pumps the brain full of more energy, improves blood circulation to the brain and increases the key neurotransmitters that are responsible for cognitive functioning."

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study on what may be the world's first truly effective memory pill was conducted at this university research facility.

Elizabeth K. of Rochester, New York experienced a night-and-day difference in her mind and memory.

At the age of 54, her memory was declining at an "alarming rate."

"I was about to consult a neurologist when I read about Procera AVH." Elizabeth decided to give it a try.

"It took about a month for the memory benefit to kick in. Six months later, even my husband was impressed with my improved memory. And I am very happy with my renewed mental clarity and focus!"

A 'Bonus' Effect?

Elizabeth was pleasantly surprised with one of the formula's 'bonus effects.'

"Within a week I felt a wonderful change in my mood. It was such an unexpected bonus," smiles Elizabeth.

Pharmacist Gene Steiner, Pharm.D, was relocating to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate's mastery of pharmacy law.

Dr. Steiner took Procera AVH daily for two weeks prior to the test, and passed with flying colors. "The recall I experienced was near fantastic," says Steiner.

Curiosity piqued, Dr. Steiner did his own research to learn more about the formula

He read about a US cognitive researcher who had taken a new approach to treating memory loss, addressing the "energy crisis" that occurs naturally in human brains around the age of 40-50.

Author, researcher, preeminent brain expert, and lead formulator for Procera AVH, Joshua Reynolds, explains, "One-third of your brainpower may be lost by the age of 40, and 50 percent may be lost by the age of 50!"

Half-Blind... and Can't See It

"If you were to lose half your vision, essentially go half-blind, you would surely notice it," says Reynolds.

Days before seeing a neurologist for her "alarming rate" of memory loss, 54-year-old Elizabeth K., Rochester, New York, discovered a natural memory pill that changed her life.

"But the gradual loss of mental acuity and brainpower over many years may be too subtle for people to notice."

This explains why many Procera AVH users seem surprised at the effects.

Mark S. in Alego, Texas, was worried about being at his best during sales calls.

"I really needed something to help with mental clarity, focus and memory. I have to be at my best when I meet with clients."

Shortly after he started taking Procera AVH, Mark was amazed at how sharp and mentally focused he was during his appointments.

"Students can do better in school when they take it," adds difference. I was very pleased with Procera AVH and happy to know it will help me stay at my best."

Neural Pathways, Energized!

Three clinically validated brain energy nutrients in Reynolds' formula have been shown to "light up aging brains like a Christmas tree."

Procera revitalizes tired sluggish brains cells with a fresh supply of oxygen and key vital nutrients. Plus, it helps restore depleted neurotransmitters, which increase and enhance alertness, concentration, and memory.

"We included acetyl-L-carnitine, a natural modified amino acid with a proven record of memory enhancement," says Reynolds.

"It's the same brain nutrient found in cold-water fish, but you'd have to eat over 20 servings of fish to get what's in one daily dose of Procera AVH."

The formula also contains vinpocetine, a substance that helps deliver increased oxygen and glucose to your brain.

"Vinpocetine helps increase circulation in the brain, so your brain feels more alive, like a breath of fresh air," says Reynolds.

The third ingredient is huperzine, a potent plant chemical shown to improve learning and memory at all ages.

"This product is not intended to diagnose, treat, cure or prevent any disease. These statements have not been evaluated by the FDA.

Reynolds. "And the US government has been studying huperzine's neuroprotective powers against the brain-damaging effects of pesticides in food!"

Selwyn Howell credits Reynolds' memory pill with bolstering his confidence.

"It helped me speak out more than I used to. I am growing more confident every day."

Carey S. reports, "I feel so much more focused and with the new energy I'm now ready to tackle the things I've been putting off for years!"

Docs at Odds over Kids' Cholesterol Test Guidance

BY LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press

CHICAGO • Should all U.S. children get tested for high cholesterol? Doctors are still debating that question months after a government-appointed panel recommended widespread screening that would lead to prescribing medicine for some kids.

Fresh criticism was published online Monday in Pediatrics by researchers at one university who say the guidelines are too aggressive and were influenced by panel members' financial ties to drugmakers.

Eight of the 14 guidelines panel members reported industry ties and disclosed that when their advice was published in December. They contend in a rebuttal article in Pediatrics that company payments covered costs of evaluating whether the drugs are safe and effective but did not influence the recommendations.

It also is not uncommon for experts in their fields to have received some consulting fees from drug companies.

Even so, the ties pose a conflict of interest that "undermines the credibility of both the guidelines and the process through which they were produced," says the commentary by researchers at the University of California at San Francisco. The authors are Dr. Thomas Newman, a researcher and former member of a Food and Drug Administration pediatrics advisory committee, and two heart disease researchers, Drs. Mark Pletcher and Stephen Hulley.

Pletcher has received research funding from drug and device makers; the other authors said they had no relevant industry ties.

Other criticism was published earlier this year in the Journal of the American Medical Association. That critique raised concerns about putting children on cholesterol drugs called statins, noting the medicine has been linked with a rare muscle-damaging condition in adults. Those authors were heart specialist Bruce Psaty and pediatrician Frederick Rivara, both of the University of Washington in Seattle.

JAMA included additional criticism from a dissenting member of the panel that produced the kids' cholesterol guidelines, Dr. Matthew Gillman of Harvard Medical School. He recommends more narrow screening based on family history of cholesterol problems.

The guidelines are endorsed by the Academy of Pediatrics, which publishes the journal that carried the critical commentary Monday. The panel recommends that all U.S. children should get blood tests for high cholesterol as early as age 9 and that testing should begin much earlier for kids at risk of future heart disease, including those with diabetes or a family history of heart problems. Treatment should generally begin with lifestyle changes including diet and exercise, the guidelines say.

Cholesterol drugs would be recommended for some kids, but probably less than 1 percent of those tested. But the advice says those drugs, including statins, shouldn't be used at all in children younger than 10 unless they have severe problems.

The guidelines aim to help prevent and treat conditions in children that put them at risk for later heart-related problems. At least 10 percent of U.S. children have unhealthy cholesterol levels and one-third are overweight or obese.

The dispute may leave parents wondering whether to have their kids screened.

Dr. Sarah De Ferranti, an American Academy of Pediatrics spokeswoman and director of preventive cardiology at Boston Children's Hospital, said the question should be part of a conversation parents should have with their pediatrician about heart disease risks, including weight, blood pressure and lifestyle.

"Almost all of us could do better in that area," she said.

"My kids are about to turn 9 and I'm going to have them screened," said De Ferranti, who has a family history of heart disease risks.

Experts on panels that create screening recommendations for various diseases frequently have at least some financial ties to industry.

"The problem is the people who care about this issue are doing research on it and there's no way to get research done without some involvement of industry," said De Ferranti, who has done industry-funded research herself.

The critics say there's little evidence that widespread cholesterol testing and treatment in children will reduce their chances of having later heart problems. They argue that widespread testing is costly and could cause anxiety in healthy children who don't need treatment.

ety in healthy children who don't need treatment.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute appointed the guidelines panel. Dr. Susan Shurin, the institute's acting director, said there are few qualified specialists who have no industry relationships, and that panel members were selected for their expertise.

"We got the best people in the country to do this," Shurin said.

Watching the Olympics? Here's a List of What I'll Be Watching

THE NEWS: The London Olympics begin this week, with the opening ceremony on Friday.

THE MUSE: This corner is an unabashed Olympics fan. But the competition is often secondary to the stories of the individual athletes and the hurdles — both literal and figurative — they had to leap and conquer just to get to London.

Many of those stories will be told in great detail in the opening ceremony by NBC's Bob Costas, who has assumed quite nicely the mantle of Olympics host from the late Jim McKay at ABC. And if I could suggest one piece of must-see TV from the Olympics, it would be the opening ceremony.

For true fans of the Olympics and sports in general, there are several events and athletes worth following. What is of most interest to you? Here's a short, and certainly not all-inclusive, list of what I will be watching.

Men's basketball: You might think LeBron James, Kobe Bryant and Carmelo Anthony are spoiled, self-centered, selfish and egotistical money hounds, but damnit, they're our spoiled, self-centered, selfish and egotistical money hounds. Not to mention that basketball is sport — more than any other sport contested at the Olympics. And just like it was in 2008, the gold medal game — likely again against Spain — will be the best basketball played on the planet for the year.

Idaho connections: Kristin Armstrong is certainly to get a lot of attention as she defends her gold medal in the time trial portion of cycling. But if you're into anti-establishment athletes looking to tweak the noses of stuffy, backward-thinking sports administrators, then Nick Symmonds is your guy. The Bishop Kelly alumnus is the top 800 meter runner in the U.S., but in an event dominated by runners from African nations, is not expected to medal.

But Symmonds has already won gold in drawing attention to the silly rules placed upon elite track and field stars who chase and

Ernie Els Wins Stunning Open When Scott Collapses

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England • Ernie Els plucked the ball from the hole after one last birdie and heaved it into the grandstand. At the time, it looked like nothing more than a classy gesture by a former British Open champion — not the next one.

The name on the claret jug was supposed to be Adam Scott, who had a four-shot lead with four holes to play.

But in a shocking turnaround Sunday, Els returned to the 18th green less than an hour later to claim the oldest trophy in golf. Scott joined a list of players who threw away a major.

That was not lost on Els, whose heart sank when he looked over at the 32-year-old Australian.

"Sorry," Els told him. "You're a great player, a great friend of mine. I feel very fortunate. You're going to win many of these?"

Scott might not get another chance like this.

After hitting a 3-wood into a pot bunker on the final hole, Scott had one last chance when he stood over a 7-foot par putt to force a playoff. It stayed left of the cup, and Scott dropped into a crouch. Standing off to the side, his chin quivered as the magnitude of the meltdown hit him. Instead, he mouthed one word: "Wow?"

Wow, indeed.

Even though Els had gone more than two years without winning, and had thrown away two tournaments in recent months with shaky putting, the Big Easy felt all along that something special was going to happen at this British Open.

And it did — all because of a collapse by Scott that no one saw coming.

"I know I let a really great chance slip through my fingers today," Scott said.

On a wind-swept afternoon at Royal Lytham & St. Annes that blew away the hopes of Tiger Woods and a handful of others, Scott looked steady as ever by going eight straight holes without making bogey. And that's when it came undone.

"I had it in my hands with four to go," Scott said.

A bogey from the bunker on the 15th cut the lead to three. That was followed by a three-putt bogey on the 16th, where his 3-foot par putt spun in and out of the cup and made the gallery gasp. From the middle of

TWIN FALLS • Double mains for the American Speed Association Trucks produced wins for two different contenders Saturday night at Magic Valley Speedway.

In an off night for the Super Stocks, Hannah Newhouse climbed behind the wheel of a Pro Truck and started in the front row for the first main-event race of the evening. After breaking away from the rest of the field early in the event, Newhouse began increasing her advantage until the caution came out at Lap 23 when Scott Luttmner went off the Turn 4 embankment. After the restart Newhouse soon had company in the form of Jeff Pohlman, who quickly began a series of bumper attacks while trying to make a low-side pass. Meanwhile, former champion in the division Jerry Rice had worked his way up from the tail of the field to get in on the mix bringing Alan Larson along with him. As the

It was Newhouse's first main event win the Pro Trucks Series.

NCAA to Punish Penn State; Paterno Statue Removed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • The NCAA announced Sunday that it will issue sanctions against Penn State in the wake of a scathing report that found that top university officials buried child sex abuse allegations against a now-convicted retired assistant and led to the tearing down of the famed statue of once-sainted coach Joe Paterno.

Shortly after Paterno's statue was removed Sunday, six months to the day after he died, the NCAA came forward to say that it will levy "corrective and punitive measures" against the school. The sanctions will be spelled out Monday, the NCAA said without disclosing further details.

NCAA President Mark Emmert hasn't ruled out the possibility of shutting down the Penn State football program in the wake of the scandal, saying he had "never seen anything as egregious?"

The Paterno family issued a statement saying the statue's removal "does not serve the victims of Jerry Sandusky's horrible crimes or help heal the Penn State community!"

"We believe the only way to help the victims is to uncover the full truth," said the family, which vowed its own investigation following the release of an investigative report by former FBI Director Louis Freeh that found that Paterno and three other top Penn State administrators concealed sex abuse claims against Sandusky.

The family called the report "the equivalent of an indictment — a charging document written by a prosecutor — and an incomplete and unofficial one at that."

The bronze statue, weighing more than 900 pounds, was built in 2001 in honor of Paterno's record-setting 324th Division I coaching victory and his "contributions to the university." Students chanted, "We are Penn State" as the statue came down.

Penn State President Rod Erickson said he decided to have the statue removed and put into storage because it "has become a source of division and an obstacle to healing."

"I believe that, were it to remain, the statue will be a recurring wound to the multitude of individuals across the nation and are worthy of individual endorsements. He sold space on his arm to an advertising agency and collected $11,000 from Hanson Dodge for the right to have its logo temporarily tattooed on Symmonds' left shoulder. But because such an "endorsement," if left uncovered, would make him ineligible to compete at meets, Symmonds puts tape over the tattoo while he's running.

To see if Symmonds would experience a "wardrobe malfunction" on the medal stand — and how national and international track bodies would respond — would be worth the emotional investment in cheering him on to gold if he already wasn't a native Idahoan.

Oscar Pistorius: The South African 400-meter runner — a double leg amputee who is nicknamed the Blade Runner for the appearance of the artificial limbs that allow him to run — has overcome numerous obstacles, most of them geared toward questions regarding the competitive advantage Pistorius may or may not enjoy from his carbon-fiber limbs. Pistorius has long dominated the Paralympic sports scene, but how he fares against able-bodied competition will create many new admirers and skeptics.

THE NEWS: Penn State football to receive "unprecedented" penalties from the NCAA for how it handled Jerry Sandusky's known history of sexually abusing young boys.

THE MUSE: Last week in this space, this corner figured the NCAA couldn't — or wouldn't — do much in terms of punishment toward Penn State football. The collegiate sports governing body has done little muscle-flexing in criminal cases, which is what People of the State of Pennsylvania v. Sandusky first and foremost.

That is about to change, if numerous news reports from Sunday are believable. "Unprecedented" could be applied in a variety of ways. It could be the speed with which the NCAA has acted. It could be the length of the punishment handed down, or its severity.

The standard that must be applied here is what happened to Southern Methodist University in the 1980s. The NCAA handed down a one-year "death penalty," meaning the football program at SMU could not play or practice for a year, and the school itself tacked on a second year.

This corner's prediction: Penn State football will not be closed down. It will be allowed to survive up to a point where it can play Big 10 Conference games and nothing more. That means a multi-year ban on non-conference games, scholarship reductions that will put Penn State on the same level as Idaho State and its FCS brethren, and a multi-year TV and bowl ban. Ultimately, I think the Big 10 will get a few swings of the sledgehammer as well.

Under such penalties, it would be impossible for Penn State to compete for anything significant. It will be able to field teams, because there are players out there who would rather play in the Big 10 and get drilled than play in the Big Sky or another FCS conference and win big. But Penn State football will be reduced to one step short of having to forfeit games. In some aspects, such punishment might be more damaging than the death penalty itself.

Wiggins Makes British History at Tour de France

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS • Twenty-three years ago, Bradley Wiggins marveled as Greg LeMond blazed a trail as America's first Tour de France winner. Now, he has blazed his own.

The 32-year-old from gritty northwest London became Britain's first winner of cycling's greatest race on Sunday, ending a 75-year drought for his country with an imperial conquest of the roads in cross-Channel neighbor France.

Wiggins had locked up the yellow jersey a day earlier by winning the final time-trial and Sunday's ride onto the Champs-Élysées was largely ceremonial for him.

But putting the coveted shirt to work one last time, he added a touch of class by providing a leadout to Sky teammate and fellow Briton Mark Cavendish to get his third Tour stage victory — the 23rd of his career — in a sprint. The Isle of Man native is a main contender to win road race gold at the Olympics in London, which has been a hovering presence over the peloton in this Tour.

Wiggins congratulated his teammates after crossing the line, hugged his wife, and clutched the hands of their two children. A soprano sang "God Save The Queen," and Wiggins thanked the crowd with a touch of British humor.

"Cheers, have a safe journey home, don't get too drunk," he quipped after hoisting the winner's bouquet, with the Arc de Triomphe behind him.

"It's been a magical couple of weeks for the team and for British cycling," Wiggins said. "Some dreams come true. My mother over there, she's now — her son has won the Tour de France."

Bradley Wiggins of Britain, center, is followed by teammate Mark Cavendish of Britain as they pass the Arc de Triomphe during the 20th stage of the Tour de France cycling race over 74.6 miles with start in Rambouillet and finish in Paris, France, Sunday.

U.S. Men Hold Off Argentina in Basketball Exhibition

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARCELONA, Spain • Dressed like the Dream Team, tested like its predecessor never was.

The U.S. Olympic men's basketball team held on for an 86-80 exhibition victory over Argentina on Sunday, insisting it didn't expect an easy game and not believing there's benefit to one, anyway.

"I love it. You hate to breeze through exhibition games and then you get into London, and then you start getting competitive," U.S. forward LeBron James said. "So we have a very good team. It doesn't matter about how many points you win by, you just want to play well and get better that night, and I feel like we got better tonight."

Kevin Durant scored 27 points for the Americans, who wore the throwback uniforms of the 1992

Dream Team for their return to Barcelona. They looked like the Hall of Fame squad during a superb opening 10 minutes, but their lead was down to four with 2:50 left after Manu Ginobili's three-point play.

Durant and Chris Paul then hit big 3-pointers as the Americans won after being pushed for the second time in their four exhibition games. Kobe Bryant added 18 points and James had 15 for the U.S., which beat Brazil 80-69 in a similarly rugged game last week in Washington.

"It's tough. Argentina's a very good team, very tough-minded," Bryant said. "They continue to play hard and for us it was a big challenge to try to put the game away, we could just never do it."

Ginobili scored 23 points, Carlos Delfino had 15 and Luis Scola 14 for Argentina.

Larkin, Santo Inducted into Baseball Hall of Fame

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. • Barry Larkin lost it before he even started. Vicki Santo never wavered as she honored her late husband, Ron.

Baseball's highest honor always seems to leave a special impression on those directly involved.

Larkin, the former star shortstop for the Cincinnati Reds, and Ron Santo, a standout third baseman for the Chicago Cubs and later a beloved broadcaster for the team, were inducted into the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum.

After wiping away tears as his teenage daughter sang the national anthem, Larkin began a litany of thank-yous to the important people who helped him along his journey, none more important than his mom, Shirley, and father, Robert, who were seated in the first row.

"If we were going to do something, we were going to do it right," Larkin said. "Growing up, you challenged me. That was so instrumental."

Born and raised in Cincinnati, Larkin was a two-sport star at Moeller High School and thought he might become a pro football player after accepting a scholarship to play college ball at Michigan for Bo Schembechler. That changed in a hurry.

"He (Schembechler) red-shirted me my freshman year and told me that he was going to allow me just to play baseball," Larkin said. "Occasionally, I'd call him while I was playing in the big leagues and told him that was the best decision he made as a football coach. He didn't like that too much."

the 17th fairway, he hit a 6-iron that turned left, ran down the slope and took one last bounce in shin-high grass.

"I thought, 'Hold on. We've got a problem here,'" said Graeme McDowell, playing with Scott in the final group.

By then, Els had posted a 2-under 68 with a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole, a cheer that Scott recognized while playing the 17th. Scott failed to get up-and-down for par from the rough and suddenly was tied.

Els headed to the practice green, where it rarely works out for him. In perhaps the most crushing defeat in a career filled with them, Els was on the putting green at Augusta National in 2004 when Phil Mickelson made an 18-foot birdie putt to win the Masters.

In the second main in was all Doug Dugger through the first 39 laps of the race. Unfortunately for Dugger, Lap 40 was the one that really counted and Dan Doan, who stuck with Dugger throughout the race, gathered enough momentum to gain a slight advantage through the final turn. In an edge-of-your-seat finish Doan crossed just .081 seconds ahead of Dug-ger, who was followed very closely by Newhouse and Drew Reitsma. Rice, Larson, Luttmer and Pohlman made up the second pack battling for position on the track.

It was also Doan's first win in the series.

"I felt I could catch him but I didn't know if I could catch him and pass him," Doan said of his gut feeling of getting around Dugger. "Some of the trucks were getting worse and some were getting better, I was just fortunate that I could stay with him."

Dugger knew what direction his truck was going.

"When you're out in the lead the whole time it seems like a really long race," he reported. "It was really good all but the last lap."

It was immediate chaos for the Pro 4's when cars collided along the front stretch at the start of the main event race, eliminating several from the competition. At the checkered flag it was Jordan Fitch with the win, followed by Phil Dugan and Jim Bailey.

In other action a late race caution came to the aid of Bob Bachman in his attempts to catch Jasen Skyberg in the Super Sixes main event. After the restart Bachman took over the lead and held on to edge Skyberg at the line by .207 seconds.

In just her second start Makayla Woll captured her first main event win in Jr. Stingers division action and, weaving his way through lapped traffic, Josh Black got around leader Jeff Peck late in the race for the Hornets main event win.

beyond who have been the victims of child abuse," Erickson said in a statement.

In Washington, a White House press secretary said President Barack Obama believed "it was the right decision."

By many of those watching the statue's removal stared in disbelief and at least one woman wept, while others expressed anger at the decision.

"I think it was an act of cowardice on the part of the university," said Mary Trometter, of Williamsport, who wore a shirt bearing Paterno's image. She said she felt betrayed by university officials, saying they promised openness but said nothing about the decision until just before the removal work began.

Dozens later gathered to watch and listen to the sound of sawing, scraping and shoveling as workers removed Paterno's name and various plaques from the walls behind where the statue had stood. Shortly before midday, all that remained was the bare concrete and stone.

Few watching said they understood the decision and feared what kind of punishment the NCAA would pile on.

Cloesa Turner, who drove up from Martinsville, Va., to see the statue, clasped her hand over her mouth when she saw the statue was gone.

"He's done so much for this university. It's sad," she said. "To wipe it all away is like he meant nothing."

Do-It-Yourself Ideas

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Vic," and I used to work at the same company. While I worked there I noticed that one of the women who worked in the building cafe seemed to have a crush on him.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I left work to be a stay-at-home mom. I trust my husband and know he would never do anything with this woman. However, I'm uncomfortable because he talks about her often, and she gives him free food just about every day and jokes around with him. If I have lunch with Vic there, she won't look at me. She and I used to talk often.

I haven't said anything to him about how I feel. Should I worry about this? Should I ask him to be careful around her?

— ALLERGIC TO WHAT SHE'S SERVING

DEAR ALLERGIC: Mention to your husband that you have noticed a change in the server's reaction to you, if you wish — but I don't think you have anything to be worried about. She probably does have a crush on Vic, and the reason she can't look at you may be she feels guilty for flirting with him, or your presence is a reminder that he is unavailable, which spoils her fantasy.

DEAR ABBY: I'm the mother of three sons. Over the years, I would sometimes play rough and wrestle with them, all in good fun. Now that they're almost all grown and out of the house, I find myself getting carried away with this type of play with my spouse. He was on the wrestling team in school, so invariably I always lose. But he knows how to play without hurting me.

Is there something wrong with me for wanting to play so rough at times? He seems to enjoy it, but there have been times when I've walked away bruised if I let him go too far. Otherwise, I'm an ordinary female who you'd never guess would love to wrestle. How many other women out there do this?

— FEELING WEIRD IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR FEELING WEIRD: I don't have the figures, but some women like to wrestle as a form of foreplay. However, because it is leaving you with bruises, you and your spouse may be carrying the wrestling a bit too far. If it's not foreplay, but some form of competition, perhaps you should consider taking up another sport with him where you'll have a chance of winning sometimes rather than always being the loser.

DEAR ABBY: How does one politely but firmly turn down door-to-door salespeople? How should I respond to salespeople who become rude once I tell them I'm not interested? Many of them become hostile once they realize I can't be persuaded to buy what they're selling.

— NO THANK YOU IN LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR NO THANK YOU: If this is happening regularly, the first thing to do is post a sign next to your door that says "No Soliciting." When someone you don't know knocks or rings your bell, don't answer it. If you somehow get trapped into hearing the sales pitch, when the person pauses for breath say firmly, "Not interested," and close your door. Remember, the person is not trying to make a friend of you; the person WANTS something. You do not have to tolerate rudeness.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby — Keepers Booklet, P.O. THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"A strict observance of the written laws is doubtless one of the high duties of a good citizen, but it is not the highest."

— Thomas Jefferson

For today's deal, put yourself in the East seat. After South had opened a strong no-trump, North's call of two no-trump showed diamonds, and South's three clubs indicated a maximum with a diamond fit, meaning that if his partner could invite three no-trump, he would accept that invitation. West, your partner, leads the heart three, and declarer plays low from dummy. Plan the defense.

Everybody knows the rule "Third hand plays high." Are there exceptions? Yes, and today's deal provides one.

Consider what suit your partner has led from: You can see all the low hearts from the seven down. Your partner must have led from a four-card suit, which can be only A-10-8-3 or Q-10-8-3. In either case there is nothing to be gained from playing your jack, since declarer will take the trick whatever you do. But can you see why it is important for you to withhold your heart jack? If you do not do so, you will be left with four small cards — and each is smaller than the three cards your partner has left. Consequently, your suit will be blocked, and declarer will knock out your partner's diamond winners while you cannot cash out your suit. Take a look at the full deal to see why playing the heart jack at the first trick would let declarer make his game.

ANSWER: Leading a spade rates to cost a trick a fair amount of the time when declarer might take a finesse. But, then again, it helps to establish your side's long suit, and you know partner has the entries to finish the task. Since the lead of any four-card suit might cost a trick or tempo or both, lead your spade.

IF JULY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make the most of smooth sailing between now and mid-August. This is a delightful time to make plans or execute plans because your judgment is in tip-top shape and you have good advice and support at your fingertips. Others may tag you as the leader or recognize your talents. Through mid-August, your ability to be businesslike and sympathetic at the same time can give your career aspirations a boost. Put your ambitions on hold from mid-August through September, however, when hard work is required. New friends will help you handle responsibilities sensibly.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sticks and stones may hurt more than words, but a poor choice of words could also land you in the doghouse. Mind what you say as misunderstandings can happen when others have their heads in the clouds.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep a low profile. You may find yourself in a situation where you can assume the lead or take center stage but better results occur if you offer to cooperate. Stay out of arguments and confrontations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Turn the other cheek. You can make a bad situation worse by trying to get in the last word. Be the bigger person and just walk away when faced with confrontations. In this sort of argument, there is no winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look out for No. 1. Others may urge you to take advantage of a lucrative opportunity that can be more to their benefit than yours. This is a time when it would pay to take care of your own interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Being vague earns no confidence. If someone's presentation leaves you with more questions than answers, you may take your business elsewhere. Don't sign agreements or contracts unless facts are clear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good things come to those who wait. There's no time limit on romance. Let a relationship develop naturally, rather than forcing it to a timetable. Treat yourself or someone special to something nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take the high ground. Don't get so caught up in the latest office gossip that you overlook your responsibilities. What may be a juicy tidbit of info today will probably be completely irrelevant tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay poised and pretend you are better than you are. Your best bet is to stay out of any petty spats and focus on the task at hand. You can diffuse volatile situations by being pleasant and friendly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Communication is your key to success today. If you are in doubt, just ask. Don't be afraid to call on colleagues and contacts to get all the facts and figures straight. Be prepared to fulfill promises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Follow your head, not your heart. An item may have captured your fancy, but you would be wise to sleep on it to determine if it's really worth it. Draw the line between what you want and what you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't withhold facts. Be completely honest and forthright in all your dealings. Even a seemingly harmless half-truth could backfire, as could putting a spin on a story to improve your standing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good friends give good advice. Pay heed to the words of a pal who may see a situation more objectively than you can. Take care of essentials, but remember that money spent foolishly is wasted.

Why keep it when you don't need it? Sell those unwanted items in the Classifieds today. call 733.0931 ext 2

Personnel Plus
Clerical, Welding/Machinist,

Today is Monday, July 23, the 205th day of 2012. There are 161 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On July 23, 1962, the first public TV transmissions over Telstar 1 took place during a special program featuring live shots beamed from the United States to Europe, and vice versa.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1885, Ulysses S. Grant, the 18th president of the United States, died in Mount McGregor, N.Y., at age 63.

In 1886, a legend was born as Steve Brodie claimed to have made a daredevil plunge from the Brooklyn Bridge into New York's East River. (However, there are doubts about whether the dive actually occurred.)

In 1914, Austria-Hungary issued a list of demands to Serbia following the killing of Archduke Franz Ferdinand by a Serb assassin; the dispute led to World War I.

In 1945, French Marshal Henri Petain, who had headed the Vichy government during World War II, went on trial, charged with treason. (He was convicted and condemned to death, but the sentence was commuted.)

In 1952, Egyptian military officers led by Gamal Abdel Nasser launched a successful coup against King Farouk I.

In 1967, a week of deadly race-related rioting that claimed 43 lives erupted in Detroit.

In 1977, a jury in Washington, D.C., convicted 12 Hanafi Muslims of charges stemming from the hostage siege at three buildings the previous March.

In 1982, actor Vic Morrow and two child actors, 7-year-old Myca Dinh Le and 6-year-old Renee Shin-Yi Chen, were killed when a helicopter crashed on top of them during filming of a Vietnam War scene for "Twilight Zone: The Movie." (Director John Landis and four associates were later acquitted of manslaughter charges.)

In 1986, Britain's Prince Andrew married Sarah Ferguson at Westminster Abbey in London. (The couple divorced in 1996.)

In 1997, the search for Andrew Cunanan, the suspected killer of designer Gianni Versace and others, ended as police found his body on a houseboat in Miami Beach, an apparent suicide.

Ten years ago: Thousands of Palestinians marched to bury their dead after an Israeli airstrike killed a top Hamas leader and 14 civilians, including nine children. Welsh archbishop Rowan Williams was chosen to be the 104th Archbishop of Canterbury, spiritual leader of the world's Anglicans. A frail but determined Pope John Paul II arrived in Toronto at the start of an 11-day trip that also took him to Guatemala and Mexico. Novelist Chaim Potok died in Merion, Pa., at age 73. Actor Leo McKern died in Bath, England, at age 82.

Five years ago: In the first political debate of its kind, all eight Democratic Party contenders, appearing on CNN, fielded questions submitted by the public on YouTube. A violent home invasion in Cheshire, Conn., resulted in the deaths of a prominent doctor's wife, Jennifer Hawke-Petit, and their daughters, Hayley and Michaela; two suspects, Steven Hayes and Joshua Komisarjevsky (koh-mih-sahr-JEV'-skee), were almost immediately arrested (both were convicted and sentenced to death). Comic Drew Carey was tapped to replace legend Bob Barker on the CBS daytime game show "The Price is Right."

One year ago: Singer Amy Winehouse, 27, was found dead in her London home from accidental alcohol poisoning. Retired Army Gen. John Shalikashvili, the first foreign-born chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, died at Madigan Army Medical Center near Tacoma, Wash., at age 75. Nguyen Cao Ky, 80, the flamboyant former air force general who'd ruled South Vietnam for two years during the Vietnam war, died in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. A bullet train crash in southern China claimed 40 lives.

IF JULY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Make the most of smooth sailing between now and mid-August. This is a delightful time to make plans or execute plans because your judgment is in tip-top shape and you have good advice and support at your fingertips. Others may tag you as the leader or recognize your talents. Through mid-August, your ability to be businesslike and sympathetic at the same time can give your career aspirations a boost. Put your ambitions on hold from mid-August through September, however, when hard work is required. New friends will help you handle responsibilities sensibly.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sticks and stones may hurt more than words, but a poor choice of words could also land you in the doghouse. Mind what you say as misunderstandings can happen when others have their heads in the clouds.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Keep a low profile. You may find yourself in a situation where you can assume the lead or take center stage but better results occur if you offer to cooperate. Stay out of arguments and confrontations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Turn the other cheek. You can make a bad situation worse by trying to get in the last word. Be the bigger person and just walk away when faced with confrontations. In this sort of argument, there is no winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look out for No. 1. Others may urge you to take advantage of a lucrative opportunity that can be more to their benefit than yours. This is a time when it would pay to take care of your own interests.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Being vague earns no confidence. If someone's presentation leaves you with more questions than answers, you may take your business elsewhere. Don't sign agreements or contracts unless facts are clear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good things come to those who wait. There's no time limit on romance. Let a relationship develop naturally, rather than forcing it to a timetable. Treat yourself or someone special to something nice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take the high ground. Don't get so caught up in the latest office gossip that you overlook your responsibilities. What may be a juicy tidbit of info today will probably be completely irrelevant tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay poised and pretend you are better than you are. Your best bet is to stay out of any petty spats and focus on the task at hand. You can diffuse volatile situations by being pleasant and friendly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Communication is your key to success today. If you are in doubt, just ask. Don't be afraid to call on colleagues and contacts to get all the facts and figures straight. Be prepared to full-fill promises.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Follow your head, not your heart. An item may have captured your fancy, but you would be wise to sleep on it to determine if it's really worth it. Draw the line between what you want and what you need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't withhold facts. Be completely honest and forthright in all your dealings. Even a seemingly harmless half-truth could backfire, as could putting a spin on a story to improve your standing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Good friends give good advice. Pay heed to the words of a pal who may see a situation more objectively than you can. Take care of essentials, but remember that money spent foolishly is wasted.
