READY FOR TAKE OFF

Air show preparations are in full swing

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • Organizers and performers alike promise this year's Air Magic Valley air show will be jampacked with top notch performers and something for everyone.

Air show director Jim O'Donnell is busy tying up loose ends, but said everything is on track for the show.

While most people buy their tickets at the door, O'Donnell said he hopes more people will buy discounted advance tickets this week.

Online ticket sales have ended, but O'Donnell said they were a huge help for sales.

"It's amazing to me," he said. "People bought tickets from all adjacent states, New Jersey, Illinois, Colorado, California and Germany."

Ticket sales are critical to keeping on budget, he said. While costs pile up, ticket sales lag behind as people wait until the last minute to buy.

The air show's $361,000 budget has already come under scrutiny after a deficit from the 2008 air show had to be absorbed by Twin Falls city and county.

The City Council asked organizers this month to cut about $20,000 from this year's budget if ticket sales were not on track, in exchange for the city advancing $40,000.

"We're diligently keeping the budget under control," O'Donnell said.

sors have helped keep costs down along with cutting down on a few of the aircrafts at the show, O'Donnell said.

Volunteer coordinator Mike Mathews said volunteer turnout so far has been good. He's still looking for people interested in helping with setup and take-down, he said.

"We need help with some sandbags filled, set up fences and tents, handing banners, hanging up signs, those kinds of things," he said.

The showcase U.S. Navy Blue Angels spent Tuesday testing an emergency landing site at the Jerome airport. It's mandatory that the team's jets have access to a runway within 60 miles of the air show with arresting gear installed in the unlikely event the aircraft have issues with their landing gear.

Doug McFall, Jerome County sheriff and Blue Angels liaison for the air show, said Jerome hosting the gear is a great opportunity to spread air show activity around the valley — and it prevents the Twin Falls airport from being too cluttered with equipment and personnel.

People who attend the show will get a good bang for their buck, O'Donnell said, with performers in the air for at least five straight hours each day.

"Obviously the Blue Angels are the showcase of the show," he said. "And the Army's Golden Knights, they're pretty amazing, what they do. They're one of the elite teams in the world."

The Golden Knights are the U.S. Army parachute team and will do two jumps at the show,

He said to expect the unexpected with his show. While many pilots fly as an announcer describes their stunts, he performs to music that he wrote and performed.

Along with sights in the air, there will also be activities on the ground for show attendees. The Air National Guard "Rise to the

Health Care Law a Maze of Opinion, Fluid Data for Idaho Leaders

BY MELISSA DAVLIN

TWIN FALLS • With an insurance exchange deadline looming this November, Idaho's leaders must figure out what steps the state should take next. But first, they must navigate confusing information and a politically charged climate to get there.

Earlier this month, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter appointed two working groups to analyze and make recommendations on whether the state should expand Medicaid and establish a state-run insurance exchange, two optional provisions of the Affordable Care Act. If the state decides not to implement an exchange, the federal government will set one up.

Meanwhile, a legislative Health Care Task Force, co-chaired by Sen. Dean Cameron, R-Rupert, and Rep.

Gary Collins, R-Nampa, is meeting Monday to discuss potential actions the Legislature can take in response to the June Supreme Court Ruling that upheld the Affordable Care Act.

Rep. Fred Wood, R-Burley, will serve on both the task force and the working group considering Medicaid expansion. The key issue, he said, is exploring the big-picture fiscal impact of any given action.

That financial analysis is already murky.

In an opinion released earlier this month, Otter said he wouldn't automatically reject Medicaid expansion and a state-run health care exchange, like Republican governors Bobby Jindal, Rick Perry and Scott Walker. Otter's decision came despite pressure to shun Obamacare from Idaho's Republican leaders, including

Jerome County Puts Halt on Some Development

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome County has halted land division and confined-animal feeding operation permits (CAFOs) in certain areas for up to six months.

The county's concern: inadequate planning for the growth of its cities could limit their options years from now. But at least one county official doesn't believe the matter qualifies for the emergency step.

County commissioners voted 2-1 during a Monday meeting to approve an emergency moratorium for up to 182 days within city areas of impact in Jerome city, Hazelton and Eden. Areas of impact are where cities and counties overlap or cities exert some influence because the zones are areas of possible future

The two major types of development affected are applications for CAFOs and subdivisions that are one acre or larger.

Commissioner Charlie Howell said the ordinance is designed to protect interests within each city's impact zone.

"It's a safeguard measure to keep from creating problems," he said.

In addition to impact zones, the moratorium also applies to land within the A-1 agricultural zone and A-2 rural residential zone in an area stretching from the city of Jerome to Idaho Highway 25, U.S. Highway 93 and Interstate 84.

According to its text, the moratorium is intended "to prevent irreparable harm to the expansion of the cities

Host Families Needed for International Students

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho is looking for several families to assist international students who will attend the college starting this fall semester.

The students are all part of reciprocal scholarship programs funded by the federal government.

There are opportunities for “friendship families” and one host family.

A male German student will need housing with a local host, couple or family. He will be a full-time CSI student who will also complete a six-month internship in his career field.

Hosts can be individuals, couples, families with children or grandparents. They should be prepared to provide food for two meals a day and a private bedroom.

Hosts may request a monthly stipend of up to $225 to help offset necessary costs. The student is required to buy his own telephone, special foods, car and car insurance.

Friendship families are needed for six female and two male students who will arrive soon from Pakistan and elsewhere in Europe and Asia. The students will live on campus at CSI for one or two semesters.

Friendship families will invite students to participate in family activities such as meals, trips to nearby attractions, game nights, movies and other activities.

For more information, contact CSI International Student coordinator Samra Culum at 732-6223 or sculum@csi.edu.

Dancers Bring Culture from Around the Globe

BY LAURIE WELCH

BURLEY • The beauty and rhythms of dancers and musicians from a half-dozen countries will be on display this week as the Idaho International Dance and Music Festival makes its annual stop in Mini-Cassia.

Gary Mittelsteadt, chairman of the Mini-Cassia festival committee, said 144 dancers from Russia, Poland, Japan, France and Indonesia will be joined by local dance team Idaho Rocky Mountain Express. They will entertain crowds on the Rupert Square, teach children about their cultures and dance with them during a youth culture day. There will also be two gala performances Thursday and Friday at the King Fine Arts Center in Burley.

Mittelsteadt said the festival committee raises $15,000 a year to bring the dancers to Mini-Cassia. It's the first stop on the Idaho dance tour, which concludes in Rexburg.

“The hardest part is the fundraising. The rest of it is a blast,” said Mittelsteadt, who became involved with the festival about seven years ago.

He said he took his children to a youth culture day and they just loved it, begging to go to a gala performance.

His involvement snowballed from there and he became a team guide and dance team host.

About 80 families are needed to host the dancers during their stay in the community.

Melissa Morgan, spokeswoman for the festival committee, said her family is hosting two dancers from Indonesia this year.

LAURIE WELCH • TIMES-NEWS

Polish musicians with the Idaho International Dance and Music Festival perform Tuesday at Zions Bank.

“It's a really good experience for my family,” Morgan said. “These dancers are seeing the U.S. for the first time and it's all new for them. And we get to see it from their eyes.”

Morgan said families can often choose to sponsor dancers from a specific country. But “it's somewhat of a gamble,” she said.

This year a dance team from Serbia canceled at the last moment after one of the dancers was diagnosed with cancer.

“They took all the money they were going to use for the trip and donated it to the dancer,” Morgan said. “I think that was pretty noble of them.”

Krista Gammon's family has hosted dancers for about six years. This year they have two musicians from Poland staying with them.

“We couldn't host last year because of a family reunion, and my kids really missed it,” Gammon said. “They really love interacting with people from other cultures.”

During youth culture day, teams teach children about their countries and walk them through traditional dances. Last year about 500 children participated in the event.

During the lunch break that day, children can go to Storybook Park and receive a free sack lunch, Morgan said.

“The experience of having the dancers in the community makes the world a smaller place,” Morgan said. “People become aware of things happening outside of Burley.”

House Speaker Lawrence Denney, House Majority Leader Mike Moyle and U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador.

But, Otter said, he is concerned about how Medicaid expansion will affect Idaho.

“Our estimates now are pretty amorphous, but some approximations put the added cost at $245 million by 2020,” Otter wrote. “That's about as much as we are appropriating from general tax receipts in the coming budget year for all our colleges, universities and community colleges combined.”

The $245 million figure comes from a 2010 Idaho Department of Health and Welfare estimate, said Otter spokesman Jon Hanian. Hanian emphasized there are still plenty of unknowns.

Otter compared the expense to an annual expenditure the state makes for higher education, but that $245 million represents an expense spread over seven years, said Tom Shanahan, public information officer for the Department of Health and Welfare.

Regardless of whether Idaho expands Medicaid, Shanahan said, the state will still pay more for Medicaid coverage.

Currently, the department estimates there are 20,000 Idahoans, mostly children, who are eligible for Medicaid, but not currently enrolled. When the individual mandate kicks in, many will come onto the system, Shanahan said.

Shanahan also pointed out that many uninsured people are likely receiving health care through county indigent funds or catastrophic health care funds.

To further analyze the cost to taxpayers, the Department of Health and Welfare contracted with Utah-based firm Leavitt Partners to study the impacts of Medicaid expansion in Idaho. Those results are due in September, Shanahan said.

But the two working groups and Health Care Task Force are meeting before that September due date, possibly making recommendations on numbers that are still fluid.

On Tuesday, Wood said he hoped group members would set aside politics and look for solutions.

Sen. Dan Schmidt, D-Moscow, will also serve on both the task force and the Medicaid working group. He expressed optimism that group members could frankly discuss the issues.

“We all need to try to work to have open minds and listen to our constituents and listen to other people, too,” he said. “That to me is what the working group is.”

Wood agreed.

“Let's sit back, let's look at the analysis,” Wood said.

“Look and determine how this is going to help or hinder the citizens of the state of Idaho, and then make a decision based upon that analysis as opposed to making a decision based on any other reason.”

Owinza Fire Fades on Schedule

TWIN FALLS • The nearly 34,000-acre Owinza Fire came under full control Tuesday evening, continuing its quiet behavior after its violent, windswept Sunday start.

Weather pushed full containment of the fire — when a fireline or fuel break was completed around it — to noon Tuesday. But fire crews still had the blaze fully extinguished by the evening.

No other significant fire activity was reported Tuesday, said Kyli Gough, spokeswoman for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management.

Former Heyburn Insurance Agent Sentenced for Fraud

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

HEYBURN • Matthew R. Williams, 29, of Heyburn was sentenced Monday for insurance fraud connected to a car accident in Twin Falls, according to Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden.

He was sentenced to 30 days in the Twin Falls County Jail and a $1,700 fine by 5th District Judge G. Richard Bevan. The court suspended the fine and entered a withheld judgment.

Williams previously paid $1,794 in restitution.

According to a press release issued by Wasden's office, Williams was involved in an automobile crash in June 2011 in Twin Falls. He was a licensed insurance agent at the time.

According to the release, Williams contacted Progressive Insurance to report the accident. Progressive Insurance's computer showed that Williams uploaded a policy approximately a half-hour after he reported the crash.

When Williams was questioned about the timing of the policy purchase, he claimed he uploaded the policy 30 to 45 minutes before the crash occurred.

A joint investigation by the Attorney General's Office, the insurance company and the Idaho Department of Insurance led to the criminal case against Williams. He pleaded guilty in May. The case was prosecuted by Idaho Deputy Attorney General Rondee Blessing.

CSI Misfits Raise Funds for Injured Friend

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

TWIN FALLS • On July 6, Andrew Silveria's life was changed forever. Now, some of his friends and fellow club members in the College of Southern Idaho's Misfits Anonymous group are trying to make that change a little easier.

On Friday, July 6, Silveria, 22 of Filer was paralyzed in a rollover crash on Old Stage Road near the Devil's Corral area.

Jimmy Chan, 20, of Twin Falls, was driving Silveria's 2009 PT Cruiser, northbound on the road when he came to a curve too fast for conditions, an Idaho State Police report states. Chan lost control of the car, causing it to roll before coming to rest on the driver's side, the report states. Police used extrication tools to remove the two men and Silveria was transported by air ambulance to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical center in Boise.

Silveria's neck was broken in the crash, said Shawn VanLeishout the club's vice president. VanLeishout is spreading the word about Silveria's recovery and the club's fundraisers on behalf of Silveria and his mother. "All the motor functions below his chest are gone," he said. "The doctors don't think he'll get it back."

Advisory Committee Seeks Forest Project Proposals

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A U.S. Forest Service advisory committee looking to benefit Idaho's national forests is asking for public input.

The South Central Idaho Resource Advisory Committee is encouraging people to submit possible funding proposals for fiscal year 2013. The committee is unsure of what funding it'll have in the coming year, but has a cap of $12,500 per project to be awarded.

Proposals will be accepted until Aug. 17. Projects must be located on National Forest System lands in Cassia, Twin Falls, Camas or Blaine counties, or on nearby lands if the project benefits forest resources. The advisory committee works with the Forest Service to recommend which projects should be accepted.

To submit a proposal, request a proposal form from SCIRAC coordinator Julie Thomas at the Sawtooth Supervisor's Office, 2647 Kimberly Road East, Twin Falls, ID 83301. You can also request a form via email at jathomas@fs.fed.us or by phone at 737-3262.

The SCIRAC will meet Sept. 5 to look over the proposal. Project sponsors and the public are encouraged to attend the meeting at the Idaho Department of Fish and Game Office, 324 S. 417 E., Jerome. The committee will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Driver Arrested after Rollover Crash

TIMES-NEWS

HAZELTON • The passenger of a car involved in a rollover crash on Interstate 84 Tuesday afternoon was arrested on a warrant out of Elmore County after the crash.

At 2:56 p.m., Idaho State Police responded to a one-vehicle rollover crash about a mile west of the Idaho Highway 25 exit to find the white Ford Taurus on its top, an emergency dispatcher said.

According to an ISP press release, Michael Cox, 26, of Washington, was westbound in the Taurus when he fell asleep at the wheel. He drifted off the left side of the road, overcorrected and crossed both lanes of traffic. He then hit an embankment, causing the Taurus to overturn and land on its top.

Cox's passenger, 23-year-old Sean Clarke of Boise, reportedly had a warrant out for his arrest and fled the scene of the crash. Police apprehended him and also arrested Cox for driving without privileges and obstructing law enforcement officers at the scene.

Both men were taken to St. Luke's Jerome with minor injuries, and were set to proceed from there to the Jerome County Jail.

Clarke was not wearing a seat belt, according to ISP; it wasn't clear if Cox wore his.

ISP continues to investigate the crash.

Roadwork Today at Kimberly, Hankins Intersection

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • A pavement project at the intersection of Kimberly Road and Hankins Road in Twin Falls will take place today.

The construction is part of the Northeast Sewer Project. The city of Twin Falls contracted with Granite Construction to install a new sewer line across the intersection, repave the area and grind the repaired pavement to smooth it out.

Workers will also use grinding on several other lanes, forcing traffic to be shifted throughout the day. Flaggers are expected to be on scene to help direct two-way traffic on Kimberly Road. Since delays are expected, the public is encouraged to avoid the intersection.

identified herein; and to avoid the application of inadequate ordinances that may lead to the endangerment of public health, safety and general welfare of Jerome County citizens.”

Officials said it will allow city and county boards time to look over planning and zoning ordinances to possibly make changes to the impact zone for each town.

Local governments can pass emergency ordinances and moratoriums if “immediate peril to the public health, safety, or welfare of the people exists,” according to Idaho Code.

County Commissioner Cathy Roemer voted “no” on the moratorium.

“While I respect the Jerome City Council’s request for an emergency moratorium on development until we get the area of city impact in place, I voted no because I did not think it met the test for ‘imminent peril’ to the health, safety and welfare of the citizens,” she wrote in an email to the Times-News.

Roemer said there may be a less restrictive way to deal with the issue. Also, she said a public hearing should have been included in the process.

County commissioners and the Jerome City Council have met for workshops a few times to discuss the impact zones.

And they’re getting closer to making a decision about a revised map for the city of Jerome’s area of impact.

“We’re very close,” Howell said.

The moratorium could be lifted earlier than 182 days if the process of amending impact zones wraps up early, he said.

Officials haven’t looked at city impact zones for Hazelton and Eden yet. Howell said the commissioners will go to those towns to see if they want to make changes to their zones.

Howell said Jerome County has had impact zones for years, but now they’re “wide open” and there’s a lack of restrictions.

“We need to revise the rules and make them fit better,” he said.

If a city wants to expand its boundaries, it can be costly to annex property, according to the ordinance.

Small acreage land splits — typically allowed for rural housing or other kinds of development — can impact a city’s ability to expand.

Jerome County Studies Employee Pay Options

BY JULIE WOOTTON

jwootton@magicalvalley.com

JEROME • Jerome County commissioners have a number of options on the table when it comes to employee pay during the next fiscal year.

Commissioners held another budget workshop Tuesday to discuss proposals for the preliminary budget.

Commissioner Charlie Howell told the Times-News that a decision hasn’t been made yet about employee pay.

“Everything’s on the table,” he said. “We’ve looked at the 3 percent increase.”

But commissioners have also discussed a number of other options, including a system of bonuses or not awarding pay increases at all.

Commissioners are looking at an approximately $11 million proposed county budget, not including the ambulance district.

“We’re like everyone else. It’s going to be very tight,” Howell said.

Some of the major impacts, he said, include an 8 percent increase in the cost of providing health insurance for employees.

Also, Howell said the county is paying about $100,000 per year to send some Jerome County inmates to jails in other counties due to lack of space.

County commissioners will adopt a preliminary budget in early August. Howell said he expects they’ll hold two more budget workshops before then.

The Jerome City Council also had another budget workshop Monday night. Details from Mayor John Shine weren’t available Tuesday afternoon.

New Nuclear Chief Won’t Support Yucca Mountain Waste Site

THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON • The new chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission told Congress the United States needs a permanent site to store radioactive waste and declined to back Republican lawmakers who sought to restart the Yucca Mountain project.

While Allison Macfarlane reiterated that picking a site wasn’t an NRC task, she said cash remains available to evaluate Yucca. She estimated the U.S. has spent $8 billion on the project. House Republicans, who were asking about the slow pace of work, put the cost at $15 billion.

“No matter whether you go direct disposal of spent fuel or you recycle,” Macfarlane, in office for two weeks, said Tuesday at a hearing of two panels of the House Energy and Commerce Committee in Washington, “you will need a final repository.”

Macfarlane’s predecessor, Gregory Jaczko, selectively provided colleagues with information to keep the Yucca project from advancing, the agency’s inspector general said in June 2011. The accusations, along with complaints from colleagues about Jaczko’s bullying and intimidation of staff, led to his resignation in May.

U.S. plans for the waste site at Yucca, about 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, are opposed by lawmakers led by Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev. Jaczko had worked for Reid as a science adviser.

The Obama administration in 2010 sought to withdraw Yucca’s license application, which an NRC panel turned down. The agency hasn’t issued a final decision. Republicans have said Obama’s plan to scrap Yucca lacked a “scientific or technical evaluation.”

Macfarlane, who holds a doctorate degree in geology from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has said Yucca violated a criteria to put a dump in a geologically stable location. “Yucca Mountain is neither seismically nor volcanically stable,” she told the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee on March 2006.

Tuesday, Macfarlane said that she did most of her research on Yucca during the 2000s, when an analysis of the region was limited. Asked by reporters whether her views might change based on new information, she replied, “always a possibility.”

“Right now there is no Yucca Mountain issue before us,” she also told reporters.

Rep. Lois Capps, D-Calif., questioned Macfarlane about cooling pools crowded with spent fuel. The chairman agreed such storage is “an issue” and said dry casks, an option to store used fuel, perform very well.

Macfarlane often deferred to colleagues today on questions about construction at Southern Co.’s nuclear-power plant in Georgia, the performance of Entergy Corp.’s Palisades facility in Michigan and deficiencies with steam generator tubes at Edison International’s San Onofre nuclear plant in California.

In her testimony, she emphasized her collegial and collaborative management style, drawing a contrast with her predecessor.

“I make this commitment to you today: I will devote all my energies to serving on the NRC with the attributes that I consider important to good governance openness, efficiency and transparency,” she said. “I will make a strong commitment to collegiality at all levels. An agency endowed with the public trust such as the NRC requires a respectful working environment to assure its integrity.”

LA Council Bans City’s Marijuana Shops

LOS ANGELES (AP) • Unable to rein in the hundreds of medical marijuana dispensaries that have cropped up across the nation’s second largest city, the Los Angeles City Council on Tuesday voted to ban pot shops outright until it has clearer guidance from the state’s highest court.

The 13-1 vote drew an angry, profanity-laced response from some medical marijuana advocates who attended the council meeting.

If approved by Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, the storefront ban would go into effect after 30 days.

In the interim, letters will be sent to as many as 900 dispensaries advising them of the ban.

The city has fumbled with its medical marijuana laws for years, trying to provide safe and affordable access to the drug for legitimate patients while addressing worries by neighborhood groups that streets were being overrun by dispensaries and pot users.

“Relief is on the way,” said Councilman Jose Huizar, who introduced the so-called “gentle ban.”

Many cities have struggled with medical marijuana ordinances, but none has had a bigger problem than Los Angeles, where pot shops have proliferated.

Webcams Make Alaska Bears Accessible

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) • A new video initiative is bringing the famed brown bears of Alaska’s Katmai National Park directly to your computer or smartphone.

Without having to go there, you’ll be able to watch mature bears compete for salmon at Brook Falls and other sites and cubs tumbling over each other as they play. Starting Tuesday, a live Web stream will allow the public to see the brown bears in their natural habitat.

“I think it’s an unparalleled opportunity for people to get that front row seat of the lives of the bears at Brooks Camp,” said Roy Wood, chief of interpretation for Katmai National Park and Preserve.

The project is a partnership with explore.org, which set up four high-definition cameras in Katmai, spokesman Jason Damata told The Associated Press. Three of them are at existing viewing stands where bear fans come to watch the animals.

The cameras provide access to a national park that is difficult to reach and expensive for most tourists. It is about 275 miles southwest of Anchorage, but no roads lead to Katmai. A trip there involves multiple airplanes and a lot of advanced planning: it’s hard to get a lodge reservation at Brooks Camp before 2014. Camping is allowed, but on a reservation system that goes online Jan. 5.

The park draws just under 10,000 visitors a year, but about 2,200 bears live in Katmai National Park. About 100 of them are in the Brooks Camp area.

One camera is at Brooks Falls, where the bigger male bears compete for salmon, some while the fish are trying to jump the falls. The bears eat mostly the brains and eggs of these fish and let the carcasses flow downstream.

The second camera is about 150 yards away, where females and cubs eat the fish scraps floating downstream.

The third is at the lower falls, where bears will congregate later this summer when dead salmon float downstream after spawning.

The fourth is on Dumpling Mountain and provides an aerial view of the entire ecosystem, including Brooks Lake, Naknek Lake, Brooks River and falls, and in the distance the Valley of 10,000 Smokes, Damata said.

“The placement of the cams is fantastic,” Wood said. “I mean, they’ll be close enough, many of the bears you’ll be able to identify and follow the individual bears as they use the salmon at Brooks Falls and raise their young here.”

Montana Campaign Finance Bill Head to Court

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • The state Supreme Court was asked to remove a campaign finance initiative from the ballot that declares corporations aren't people and that money isn't political speech.

If passed, I-166 would direct Montana's congressional delegation to support a constitutional amendment undoing the effect of aspects of the U.S. Supreme Court's 2010 Citizens United decision.

That high court ruling, in part, declared as unconstitutional some federal restrictions on spending by corporations and unions in elections. The U.S. Supreme Court recently decided its original ruling on the matter also nullifies a separate Montana ban on corporate money, which was passed by voters in 1912.

On Monday, opponents of the new Montana ballot initiative asked the Montana Supreme Court to remove the measure from the ballot, Lee Newspapers of Montana reported.

The opponents argued the measure is a "sham" that has no effect other than to poll the electorate on the question.

The group is called Montanans Opposed to I-166, and includes state Sen. Dave Lewis, R-Heleena and Phil Lilleberg of Billings, who owns FP Inc.

It asks the court to force Attorney General Steve Bullock and Secretary of State Linda McCulloch to remove I-166 from the ballot.

"At its best, I-166 is an odd mixture of resolution, law, constitutional amendment and revision, and as such, is not properly before the people for their vote," the petition said. "I-166 is, quite simply put, a sham or a poll presented in a manner not comporting with law."

The sponsors of I-166 blasted the challenge.

"We are mad as hell," said C.B. Pearson of Missoula, treasurer of Stand with Montanans: Corporations Aren't People — Ban Corporate Campaign Spending.

Romney Speaks in Reno

Presidential candidate highlights his upcoming trip abroad while speaking to veterans.

BY JULIE HIRSCHFELD DAVIS

Bloomberg News

RENO, Nev. • On the eve of a six-day trip to England, Israel and Poland, Mitt Romney is highlighting his foreign policy and national defense differences with President Obama on the Middle East, Russia and Pentagon spending cuts.

During a campaign dominated by domestic economic issues, the foreign voyage provides the presumed Republican presidential nominee with his first chance to assert himself on the international stage.

After an address Tuesday to the Veterans of Foreign Wars annual convention in Reno, Nev., Romney plans to leave politics largely at the water's edge. Campaign aides have said he will refrain from criticizing Obama while abroad, in line with the longstanding custom of not speaking ill of a sitting president from overseas.

"It is time for us to have confidence that our cause is just, to have the kind of clarity of vision in our purpose and to have the kind of resolve behind our application of soft and hard power," Romney said Monday in an interview on CNBC's The Kudlow Report. "If those things are put in place, I think the world is a safer place and our freedom will be more secure."

Romney's VFW speech comes a day after Obama spoke to the group. The president stressed that his record ending the Iraq war, setting a timetable for an Afghanistan withdrawal of U.S. troops, authorizing the raid that killed Osama bin Laden and creating economic benefits for soldiers returning home demonstrates his support for current and former service members.

"As we look ahead to the challenges we face as a nation and the leadership that's required, you don't just have my words, you have my deeds," Obama said. "You have the promises I've made and the promises that I've kept."

While Obama never mentioned Romney by name, he addressed the Republican's criticism of him for setting a timetable for pulling U.S. forces from Afghanistan and his accusation that the president's policies have weakened the American position in the world.

"There are those who argued against a timeline for ending this war, or against talking about it publicly," Obama said. "But you know what? That's not a plan for America's security either."

Veterans, who exit polls showed accounted for about 15 percent of the electorate in the 2008 presidential election, may be influential in such toss-up states as Virginia, Florida and North Carolina.

South Dakota Court Upholds Abortion Law

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) • A federal appeals court has upheld a 2005 South Dakota law that requires doctors to tell women seeking abortions that they face an increased risk of suicide if they go through with the procedure.

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the portion of the law 7-4 in a ruling issued Tuesday. In September, a three-judge panel upheld U.S. District Judge Karen Schreier's decision to overturn the requirement following a lawsuit brought by Planned Parenthood.

The suicide advisory was part of a larger law requiring South Dakota doctors to provide women with certain information before an abortion can be considered voluntary.

Attorney General Marty Jackley and Planned Parenthood were not immediately available for comment.

Chickpeas Feed Appetite for Hummus

KENNEWICK, Wash. (AP) • When Greg Ferrel planted chickpeas at his Walla Walla farm for the first time 25 years ago, he was one of a handful of farmers to experiment with the crop.

Now, he estimates 40 to 50 farmers grow chickpeas in Walla Walla and Columbia counties, many using it as a rotation crop, like he does with his 1,000 acres of dryland wheat.

A steady price helped along with an increasing U.S. demand for hummus has prompted more Washington state farmers to grow the crop in the last five to ten years, making Washington the largest producer of chickpeas in the nation.

Cathleen Williams of Kennewick and her sister, Charlene Flanigan of Touchet, planted chickpeas on their farm near Waitsburg this year. Williams said the price of chickpeas, also called garbanzo beans, at 40 cents per pound makes them an attractive alternative to dry peas, which sell for 12 to 14 cents per pound.

Chickpea production in Washington state has boomed since 2000, with total acres going from 10,000 to 80,000. Ferrel, who represents Washington state on the U.S.A. Dry Pea & Lentil Council, estimates 15,000 of those acres are in Walla Walla and Columbia counties. Exact county acreage data is not available for the crop.

Washington state farmers produced about 39,800 metric tons of chickpeas last year, about 48 percent of all the chickpeas produced in the U.S. last year, according to the U.S.A. Dry Pea & Lentil Council. Idaho represented about 35 percent of chickpea production.

About 13 years ago, more than 90 percent of U.S. chickpeas were exported. Now, he said that is closer to 50 percent.

Most of the rest is made into hummus, a smooth paste eaten as a dip or a sandwich spread. Klaiber said hummus is likely continue to grow in popularity as manufacturers add new flavors.

Hummus is replacing onion dips and other higher-calories snack foods, he said.

Washington state is a great place to grow chickpeas using dryland farming, Klaiber said. The Palouse and Walla Walla areas have weather patterns that are perfect, with moisture in the spring but a dry period before harvest.

Former Utah Mayor Faces Prison Sentence

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • A former Utah mayor faces a year in prison after pleading guilty to bank fraud for falsifying a loan application as part of a plan to skim the equity.

Former Cedar Hills Mayor Eric A. Richardson was teary-eyed and declined to comment as he left the courtroom with his family Monday after entering his plea in federal court, the Deseret News reported.

The 38-year-old resigned last month without explanation, three days before federal prosecutors charged him with bank fraud.

He faces 12 months in prison but could be released early for good behavior.

Authorities say Richardson signed a blank loan application in February 2010 for $57,144 for a 2009 Land Rover and knew that an accomplice would inflate his salary.

Prosecutors say Richardson also failed to disclose other car loans from different banks for $80,000, and a $168,000 mortgage on a rental property.

Prosecutors say Richardson knew the loans were more than the

US, Mexico Battle over Border Fence

McALLEN, Texas (AP)

• An agency that monitors the U.S.-Mexico boundary is agreeing to a U.S. proposal to build border fence segments in a South Texas flood plain, a move Mexico opposes.

The decision by the U.S. International Boundary and Water Commission comes despite objections from its Mexican counterpart. Mexico argues the fence would deflect floodwaters to its side of the Rio Grande and violate a bi-national treaty.

The Associated Press on Tuesday obtained a letter the commission sent to U.S. Customs and Border Protection noting it will not oppose the project. The commission says its analysis found that the fence proposed for three areas in South Texas would not be a significant obstruction to river waters. Half of the 14 miles proposed would be in the flood plain.

"When it comes right down to it, the scientific analysis is what we have to fall back on," John Merino, principal engineer with the U.S. commission, said Tuesday.

In his February letter, Merino wrote that after a thorough review, the agency concluded that the project "will not cause significant deflection or obstruction of the normal or flood flows of the Rio Grande" and is consistent with the treaty.

Jenny Burke, a spokeswoman for U.S. Customs and Border Protection, said that one of the segments, in Los Ebanos, is no longer considered necessary and more funding is needed to build the other two in Rio Grande City and Roma. Merino also pointed out that the government would have to bring back detailed construction drawings of the fence for approval before proceeding.

Still, the green light for a permanent fence made of spaced vertical steel tubes is a significant reversal. A 1970 treaty between the United States and Mexico called on both countries to prohibit the building of anything that "may cause deflection or obstruction of the normal flow of the river or of its flood flows."

car's value. Richardson said he split proceeds with others.

Sentencing is scheduled for November.

Residents of Cedar Hills, roughly 30 miles south of Salt Lake City, lobbied for Richardson's removal earlier in his mayoral tenure, accusing him of improperly moving recreation funds to the small city's golf course so it would seem profitable. But an external audit found the city's finances were in order.

As part of his plea, Richardson must pay restitution.

"With all due respect, Mr. Richardson, your finances are a mess," U.S. Magistrate Judge Paul Warner said. "As they say, you can't get blood from a turnip. We'll see what happens."

Richardson's attorney, Rodney Snow, said his client was a "fallout victim" of a former business partner who is serving a 90-month prison sentence for running a financial scam that took individuals and lending institutions for more than $12 million.

"There's a lot of mitigating factors here," Snow said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If You Think for Yourself, Your Not a Republican

I used to be a Republican. I failed the litmus test and now I have to be an independent.

The Republicans have invented an ingenious one-question litmus test. The test works like this: Do you think for yourself, research issues and vote for what you think is right? If you do, you can't be a Republican. If you vote blindly like your party leaders, Otter, Denny, Luna, etc., tell you, you pass and are a Republican.

It was interesting to watch how through using the litmus test to weed out those who were not true Republicans, the party has become so inbred that it is eating its own. The Republican Party is going to have to call on the fearless leaders of its party to save it. They will have to call on:

- I got a trophy wife, big head and the taxpayers pay me to live in my own home (Butch Otter).
- I hate teachers, public schools (Tom Luna).
- Taxes are for other people (Phil Hart).
- I know everything about everything (Stephen Hartgen).

• I'm the real conservative; I vote like they tell me (Bert Brackett).

Please do the great state of Idaho a favor. If you cannot think for yourself, don't vote and stay home. If you can think for yourself, preserve the independent spirit of Idaho and vote for what's right no matter the party.

Shoshone Falls Park Needs Better Sprinkler Schedule, More Restrooms

On Saturday, July 14, we had a picnic at Shoshone Falls Park. When we got there, the sprinklers were running. Someone finally came and turned them off. Why can't they run them on at night?

Also, they need restrooms closer to the picnic area instead of having to go all the way to the gift shop. Some people have a hard time walking that far or are handicapped.

After all, they charge $3 a car, and I'm sure some of the money could be used for a couple of porta-potties.

OUR VIEW

Right to Hunt Could Cause More Problems Than It Solves

We have to wonder about the need for a constitutional amendment protecting hunting, fishing and trapping. By the amendment author's own admission, Idahoans have been practicing these sports for a very long time.

"The original mountain men, the original Idahoans, were much more involved in trapping, and that's why they came out here," Sen. Lee Heider, who represents Twin Falls, said in a recent interview with the Times-News.

If most people in the state approve of these sports, and they're a part of the state's history, why are we wasting the time and money on a new piece of legislation? We may as well propose amendments protecting our rights to eat potatoes and hug our mothers.

Yes, there is some controversy over trapping. Nez Perce National Forest employee Josh Bransford fueled the controversy just in time for elections when he posed in front of a trapped and suffering wolf, rather than immediately dispatching the creature. But other than a few environmental groups crying foul, we can't find any evidence of Idahoans wanting the practice outlawed. A recent poll on Magicvalley.com showed 343 people still in favor of the amendment, and 229 opposed. A 3:2 ratio among an electorate pretty much guarantees a landslide.

The whole controversy smacks of political opportunism.

Heider and other lawmakers get to build their cachet by supporting something already popular.

Questions remain about the effect of the amendment, as well. While making it clear hunting, fishing and trapping will be further regulated by legislation, it doesn't make provisions for what will happen when laws impede a person's new right to hunt. Occasionally the best thing for a species is to cancel harvesting season so their numbers have a chance to increase. Under the new amendment, would a hunter's right take legal precedent over the need of the species? That remains to be seen.

What is clear is that the proposed constitutional amendment is a pointless piece of legislation that could potentially cause more problems than it solves. We recommend legislators spend time on laws that can actually help the state of Idaho, rather than trying to fix something that isn't broken.

Europe's Part in Our Gun Culture

Americans mourn the victims in Aurora, Colo. In Europe, too, there is grief — mingled with incomprehension. The media chorus: How many more massacres before the United States adopts European-style gun control?

Christoph Prantner of Austria's Der Standard bemoans American insistence on Second Amendment rights, "even when this freedom occasionally has a very high price and, in a bloody perversion, fatally impairs the freedom of others?"

I wish Prantner had pointed out that James Holmes was allegedly wielding Austrian weaponry when he barged in to that darkened theater: specifically, a .40-caliber semiautomatic Glock pistol.

For all the tut-tutting across the pond, America's gun culture exists in sym-

Charles Lane
Washington Post

biosis with Europe's own culture of precision manufacturing — of which the Glock is a notable expression. Thirty years ago, Gaston Glock designed this lightweight, rapid-fire killing machine and sold 20,000 to Austria's army.

Now his state-supported invention is one of Austria's most successful exports. The tiny alpine nation exported 431,118 handguns to the United States in 2010, according to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives. Only giant Brazil sold more.

The majority of the Austrian guns were Glocks. And while Glocks have replaced revolvers and U.S.-model pistols in police holsters across the land, most Glock imports are destined for the civilian market, according to journalist Paul M. Barrett, author of a fascinating book, "Glock: The Rise of America's Gun." (Some Glocks are assembled in the United States from Austrian-made kits.) Though privately held European gun makers do not report sales figures, Barrett estimates that Glock's U.S. sales are worth $100 million per year.

Glock's customers have apparently included not only Holmes but also Jared Lee Loughner, charged in the January 2011 Tucson massacre that left six dead and then-Rep. Gabrielle Giffords among the severely injured — as well as the shooters in the 2007 Virginia Tech massacre (32 murdered), a 1999 Honolulu shooting (seven murdered), a 1998 Oregon high school shooting (four murdered), a 1998 Connecticut shooting (four murdered) and the 1991 Killeen, Texas, massacre (23 murdered).

You might call Glock the favorite weapon of America's Amoklaeufer, as those who run amok with guns are known in German.

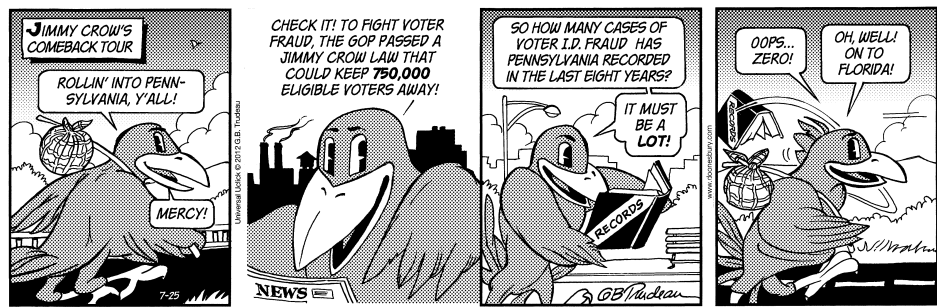

But that wouldn't be fair to the makers of the Walther P22 that Virginia Tech shooter Seung Hui Cho also carried, or the Sig Sauer P232 that Steven Kazmierczak bore while killing five people at Northern Illinois University in 2008. Both of those are German products. With 230,447 handguns exported to the United States in 2010, Germany is the American gun junkie's No. 2 European dealer, the ATF reports; Italy, with nearly 130,000, is third.

Idaho Tribe Divvys up Settlement Money

Each member will receive about $8,600 from federal government.

LEWISTON (AP) • Members of the Nez Perce Tribe will each receive about $8,600 as part of a settlement with the federal government over mismanagement of tribal money and trust lands.

The federal government announced earlier this year that it would pay $1 billion to resolve lawsuits brought by 41 American Indian tribes attempting to reclaim money lost in mismanaged accounts and from royalties for oil, gas, grazing and timber rights on tribal lands.

In northern Idaho, the 3,500-member Nez Perce Tribe received $33.7 million on July 10 as part of the settlement, the Lewiston Tribune reported.

The tribe has previously estimated that each member would receive approximately $9,500 under the agreement. But that was before a notice was posted on the tribe's website earlier this month telling members that $3 million would go to the Native American Rights Fund.

The Colorado-based group represented the Nez Perce Tribe in the lawsuit.

Of the remaining $30.7 million, tribal members will each receive approximately $8,600, according to the letter posted on the tribe's website earlier this month.

Those members who met an initial July 18 deadline to apply for their portion of the settlement funds should receive checks by Tuesday. As for tribal members who are still minors, their money will be held in a trust until they turn 18, the letter said.

To be eligible for the funds, members must have been enrolled in the tribe as of May 4. For tribal members who were alive as of May 4 but have since passed away, their estates may seek the funds on their behalf, the notice said.

Those who applied for tribe enrollment before July 10 also will be deemed eligible if their application was subsequently approved.

The settlement was announced jointly in April by the Justice Department and the Interior Department, which manages more than 100,000 leases on tribal trust lands and about 2,500 tribal trust accounts for more than 250 federally recognized tribes.

A Nebraska National Guard Blackhawk fights the Fairfield Creek Fire on Monday in the bluffs on the north side of the Niobrara River.

Grass Wildfire Threatens Northern Nebraska Town

BY JOSH FUNK
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. • The wildfires burning in north-central Nebraska threatened to force the evacuation of a second small town Tuesday and continued to interfere with boating along the scenic Niobrara River.

Monday's windy, hot weather helped the main Fairfield Creek fire expand to nearly 92 square miles — an area just bigger than the state capital of Lincoln. Two other smaller fires about 20 miles east of the main fire had burned more than six square miles. And Tuesday's high temperature again topped 100 degrees.

Officials estimate the fires, which have already destroyed at least 10 homes, are about 15 percent contained. More than 200 firefighters and 4 helicopters are fighting the fires, and three firefighters have been injured.

A surge of new firefighters is expected to join the fight over the next day or so. Officials said that will allow give some of the crews a chance to take a break and provide additional help in containing the fire.

Nebraska Emergency

Management Agency spokesman Mike Wight said the town of Sparks, which has some cabins and a couple river outfitting businesses, is on alert Tuesday for possible evacuation. A 14-mile stretch of the river valley, which is known for canoeing and tubing, already has been evacuated between Norden and Highway 183. A section of Highway 12 between Springview and Norden is closed.

Much of the fire-swept land near the river is rugged, forested and populated with cabins, so only 17 residences had been evacuated as of Tuesday morning. But the fire covers a large area north and south of the river in Keya Paha and Brown counties, and part of Cherry County. Federal officials have closed the river to boating downstream of Smith Falls State Park.

Part of the challenge is that the densely wooded ravines are difficult for firefighters to reach, Wight said. And when the wind picks up, the fire can spread quickly up those ravines.

Heat and strong winds made firefighters' work difficult again. By Tuesday afternoon, the National Weather Service said temperatures had already reached 106 degrees in Valentine, which is about 20 miles west of the main wildfire. And winds continued to gust up to 25 mph.

While a cold front is expected to move across the state and provide some relief, highs Wednesday will still be in the mid-90s. The front may also bring some rain, but the weather service says major storms aren't likely to develop near the fire. Plus, storms could also bring lightning and spark new fires.

Gov. Dave Heineman visited the area on Tuesday for the second time in less than a week. He received a briefing from officials overseeing the fight about how their priority Tuesday was to stop the westward expansion of the fire. He promised to send any state resources the fire crews need.

"We don't want these fires going on for another two or three weeks," Heineman said to KBRB radio in Ainsworth.

Fire officials told Heineman that the three wildfires near the Niobrara River could be contained within three days as long as more fires don't erupt.

Plan Expedites Solar Development in West

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) • The Obama administration moved Tuesday to streamline the development of large-scale solar projects on public lands by approving 17 vast tracts across the West it says has the highest power-generating potential and the fewest environmental impacts.

As developers scramble to secure utility-scale solar sites, the plan will move the Department of the Interior away from having to consider individual projects on a case-by-case basis and instead direct development to land already identified as having fewer wildlife and natural resource obstacles. "Today's announcement is a roadmap for solar development for decades to come and will help create an enduring and sustainable energy future for America," said Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar.

The announcement means the Department of Interior will begin a 30-day protest period, after which Salazar could adopt the plan. The release of the environmental impact statement was the result of a two-year study involving government regulators, environmental groups and utilities.

"This is a huge step forward for the Bureau of Land Management, which has tended to address energy development on a project-by-project basis in response to the wants of individual companies rather than the values of the American public or the needs of fish and wildlife," said Kate Zimmerman, the National Wildlife Federation's policy director for public lands.

The zones cover a total of 285,000 acres, with five sites in Nevada, four in Colorado, three in Utah, two each in California and Arizona, and one in New Mexico.

Originally 677,000 acres of the 253 million acres managed by the BLM was considered.

Lottery Sends $41.5M to Idaho Public Schools

BOISE (AP) • The Idaho Lottery is reporting another record year, posting more than $175 million in sales during the last fiscal year.

Lottery officials on Tuesday also turned over $41.5 million to funds benefiting Idaho public schools.

That amount is the biggest since the lottery started in 1989 and the ninth consecutive year of record dividends.

For fiscal year 2012, the lottery reported sales of $175.8 million, up 19.5 percent or $28 million compared to 2011 and the single biggest annual revenue jump in the lottery's history.

The $41.5 million dividend is double the $20.5 million payout in 2003.

The dividend is being split among three separate accounts — the Department of Education's public school building account and the state building fund, and a fund that helps match school bond payments.

Universities Cut Costs by Offering Less

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) • Funding cuts by cash-strapped legislatures have prompted many state universities to raise tuition, but some institutions are trying to buck the trend. University Center, an extended campus that offers classes from state universities in South Dakota's largest city, is kicking off a four-year pilot program this fall that offers the first 60 hours of degree work at a reduced cost. The cost of basic courses would be $189 per credit hour, instead of the normal state university rate of $289.

The program is among a number of experiments under way across higher education to help students earn degrees without having to go deeply in debt.

Mark Lee, the executive dean of University Center, said the program will offer students at the Sioux Falls campus center a potential savings of up to $6,000 for the first 60 hours of pre-baccalaureate work.

The courses would be no different than the versions offered on the main campuses, but the selection would be limited to more general classes, such as Principals of Accounting and Composition I.

"People are really nervous about what it costs for higher education. That's the national dialogue," Lee said. "Places like University Center and some of these other places are saying, 'And we're going to do something about it, or at least we're going to try.'"

Lee said he expects the new price to draw students who might not otherwise have enrolled. But the school can't afford to offer all university courses at the lower price, he said.

Students who take basic courses at the discounted rate can move on to more specialized courses at the normal cost.

Recently, top officials in several states have called on public universities to offer more affordable options for earning a college degree.

With financial pressures in higher education growing, universities must find creative ways to serve more students with the same curriculum and resources, according to Henry Eyring, co-author of "The Innovative University," which explores tuition and curriculum variations.

He said some universities can also save costs by providing more online courses or going to a year-round schedule that makes better use of their facilities.

Arizona Sheriff Says He Has No Use for Ku Klux Klan

PHOENIX (AP) • An Arizona sheriff known nationally for his hard-line stance on illegal immigration took the witness stand Tuesday and faced allegations that his trademark immigration sweeps amount to racial profiling against Hispanics.

Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio, testifying in defense at a civil trial, was questioned about statements that critics say show prejudiced thinking.

Plaintiffs' lawyers asked Arpaio about a statement in which he called illegal immigrants "dirty" and another that seemed to express admiration for the Ku Klux Klan.

Arpaio said the statement about immigrants was taken out of context, adding that if a person were to cross the U.S.-Mexico border on foot over four days in the desert that person "could be dirty." That's the context on how I used that word.

He also was asked about a 2007 appearance on a national cable television news show. CNN host Lou Dobbs spoke with Arpaio at the time about comparisons between his department and the KKK, about which the sheriff said, "I think it's an honor. It means we are doing something."

Arpaio on Tuesday said he doesn't consider the comparison an honor, adding that he has no use for the KKK.

Plaintiffs say Arpaio's office disproportionately singled out Latinos in the immigration patrols and accuse him of launching some sweeps based on emails and letters that don't allege crimes, but complain only that "dark-skinned people" are congregating in a given area or speaking Spanish.

Gun Sales Spike in Colorado after Shootings

BLOOMBERG NEWS

Background checks for gun purchases spiked 41 percent in Colorado after 12 people were killed inside a suburban Denver movie theater, according to state data.

In the four days after the July 20 shooting, dealers submitted 3,647 requests for state background checks required to buy a firearm, said Susan Medina, a spokeswoman for the Colorado Bureau of Investigation.

That's 41 percent more than the 2,583 requests during the same four days the prior week and a 38 percent increase over the 2,636 checks during the first Friday to Monday in July.

Debate over gun laws after high-profile shootings, like the one police say 24-year-old James Holmes was responsible for in Colorado, can prompt gun sales.

Last year, one-day sales in Arizona jumped 60 percent after a gunman killed six people in a Tucson parking lot and wounded others, including then-U.S. Rep. Gabrielle Giffords.

"It's not hunting guns they're looking for," said Larry Hyatt, owner of Charlotte, N.C.-based Hyatt Guns, which claims to be the largest independent gun store in the United States. "It's self-protection handguns and military-type firearms."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation declined to release data on background checks nationally since the Colorado shooting, said Stephen Fischer, a spokesman.

State data and interviews elsewhere suggested increased sales.

In Florida, there were 7,905 gun-related background checks from July 20 to July 23, a 10 percent increase over the same Friday to Monday period the previous week, according to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

At Hyatt Guns, customers were waiting when the retailer to opened Saturday, Hyatt said, the day after the shooting. Police say Holmes had a 100-round drum magazine clipped into the Smith & Wesson semi-automatic rifle he fired into a crowded theater.

Hyatt said he reassigned gunsmiths and Internet staff to double to 24 the number of employees available to help customers inside the store.

"It's sad," Hyatt said. "What we see is a lot of people worried these type incidents will cause more gun laws to be passed."

At a gun show in Loveland, Colo., two days after the shooting, customers bought rifles, scopes and ammunition from dealers such as Mike Ellis from Greeley.

Ellis, 43, said he regretted that no one in the theater crowd shot back.

Health Care Law's Cost, Coverage Scaled Back

BLOOMBERG NEWS

WASHINGTON • Fewer Americans will likely get health insurance over the next decade under President Barack Obama's health care law as a result of the Supreme Court's decision to limit it, according to a new analysis of the landmark ruling.

At the same time, the court's decision to allow states to opt out of a major expansion of the government Medicaid insurance program for the poor could also save taxpayers $84 billion by 2022, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office estimates.

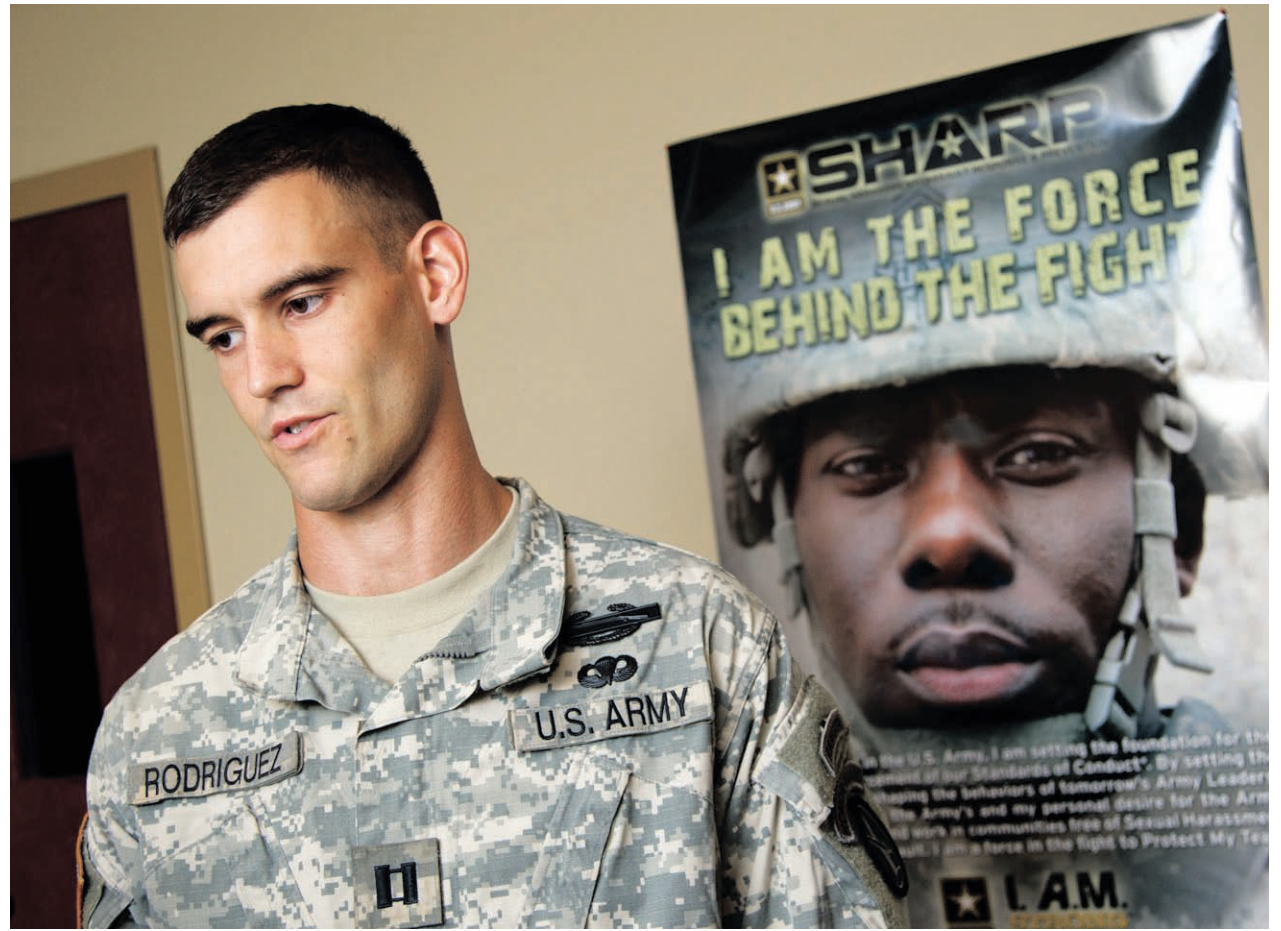

The new projections confirm the court's ruling will not fundamentally alter the law Obama signed in 2010.

The budget office, which Congress relies on to study the impact of proposed legislation, still estimates that the Affordable Care Act will reduce the number of Americans without health coverage by some 30 million over the next decade.

And the law will continue to lower the federal deficit because the costs of expanding coverage are offset by new taxes and cuts in other federal spending. Repealing the law, in contrast, would increase the deficit by $109 billion, budget analysts said.

But the Congressional Budget Office estimates the court's decision will lead to major variations across the country in how states implement the law.

HOME FROM WAR: NOW WHAT?

BY PAULINE JELINEK

Associated Press

WASHINGTON • U.S. combat troops patrol dusty pathways in Afghanistan, look for hidden roadside bombs, load and fire mortar shells at insurgents' positions. So when they come home, how will that help them land a civilian job?

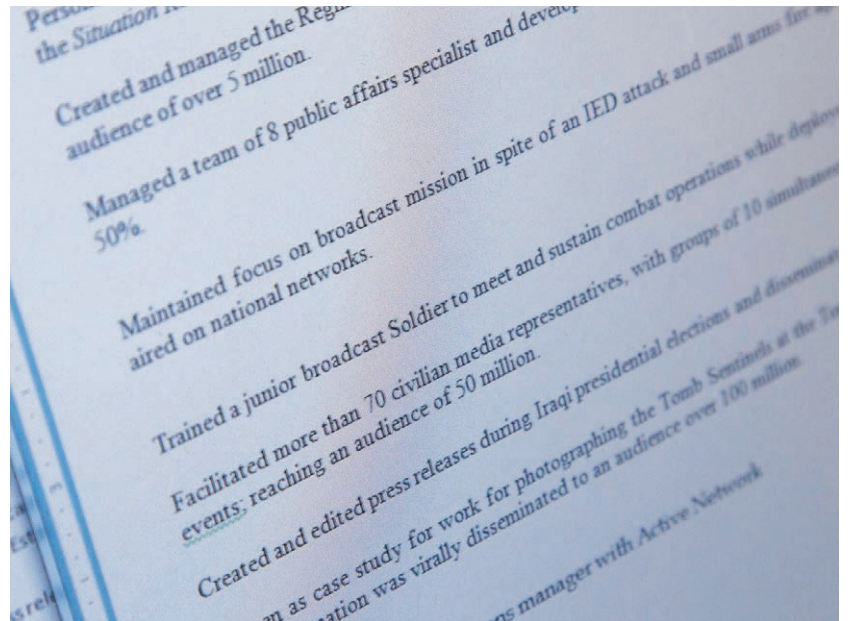

They can "be a mercenary," muses Capt. John Rodriguez, who'll leave the Army soon after six years.

That's the kind of thinking the government wants to change, both among American employers and members of the armed forces. In fact, the skills troops use in combat can be useful for many types of civilian jobs, but employers often don't understand them and people leaving the military need help with presenting those skills or developing new ones.

Rodriguez was attending a recent resume-writing class, part of the Transition Assistance Program, which is run by the departments of Defense, Labor and Veteran Affairs to help soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines successfully make the transition back to the civilian world.

Some 250,000 service members leave the military each year and all must attend counseling on finances and other issues whether they served six years or 26 years, whether they saw the battlefield or not. Other parts of the 20-year-old transition program have been voluntary, such as the resume writing class and one on how to dress for the civilian workplace.

At the class Rodriguez attended, teacher Aleshia Thomas-Miller offered some tips for writing resumes that could help civilian employers understand what veterans did in

Afghanistan and Iraq and how their experience translates to a non-military job.

The vast majority of veterans are employed, but the jobless rate for America's new generation of veterans was 9.5 percent last month. That's down from 12.7 percent the previous month and 13.3 percent in June 2011, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said. But it's still been consistently higher than the country at large, with an unemployment rate of 8.2 percent in June, and for vets from all previous wars.

There are hundreds of jobs in the military — for medics, computer specialists, mechanics, lawyers, finance officers, pilots, electrical engineers, nuclear engineers, food service managers, heavy equipment operators and more. Though officials provided no data on who has the hardest time finding jobs after military service, many say it's infantrymen and those who held other jobs directly involved in combat that have no direct civilian equivalent.

President Barack Obama on Monday announced a redesign of the transition program. Starting later this year, assistance will begin earlier in a military career, rather than at the end. There will be more one-on-one help, a separate focus for those wanting to go back to school or start their own businesses. Classes will be five to seven days, rather than the current three and more things will be mandatory for most people.

Actor Christian Bale and his wife Sibi Blazic visit a memorial to the victims of Friday's mass shooting Tuesday in Aurora, Colo.

Batman Star Christian Bale Visits Shooting Victims

AURORA, Colo. (AP) • Batman star Christian Bale visited survivors of the Colorado theater shooting Tuesday, and thanked medical staff and police officers who responded to the attack that killed 12 people and injured 58 others.

Bale visited with little advance warning and also stopped by a makeshift memorial to victims near the movie theater that was showing "The Dark Knight Rises" when the gunfire erupted.

Carey Rottman, one of those injured in Friday's shooting, posted two photos of himself with Bale on his Facebook page.

Janie Bowman-Hayes, assistant vice president of surgical services at sister hospital Swedish Medical Center, said she and co-workers were attending a luncheon at The Medical Center of Aurora to thank staff who tended to victims. "When we got there, then we found out he was there," she said.

Bale, humble and dressed casually in a black T-shirt and jeans, thanked the staff, shook hands and agreed to have his photo taken with employees, Bowman-Hayes said.

"He just said he wanted to come to thank all of us because he has been thinking about this. He knows the whole world has been thinking about this," she said. "He took it upon himself to come and thank us."

An online campaign had urged Bale to visit survivors of the shooting.

Bale also stopped by a growing memorial near the theater and walked among the 12 crosses erected for each of the slain victims. Many people there didn't realize who he was or chose to leave him alone.

A Warner Bros. spokeswoman told The Denver Post that Bale was representing himself, not the movie studio.

Bale, who stars as Batman in "The Dark Knight Rises," previously issued a written statement saying: "Words cannot express the horror that I feel. I cannot begin to truly understand the pain and grief of the victims and their loved ones, but my heart goes out to them."

President Barack Obama and members of the Denver Broncos also have made hospital visits to some of the survivors.

Bowman-Hayes and her staff cared for patients at both Swedish Medical Center and The Medical Center of Aurora after the shootings, whether it was in the operating room or intensive care unit, or by washing medical instruments.

Most Avoid Higher Taxes under New Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) • Do you make more than $200,000 annually, or $250,000 between you and your spouse? Do you expect to inherit an estate worth more than $1 million next year?

Do you claim the American opportunity tax credit to help pay college costs? Or are you a low- or moderate-income worker who relies on the earned income tax credit or the child tax credit to supplement your household budget?

If your answer to the above questions is no — and that will be most of you — then you're probably in that wide swath of people who Democrats and Republicans agree should not face higher taxes in January.

If you're among the roughly 30 million households who answer yes, then either the Democratic or GOP tax bills the Senate is expected to reject this week could mean paying more taxes.

Despite the high-wattage political theater over taxes dominating Congress these days, there's a lot of consensus between the two parties over what should happen in the short term. In a campaign season dominated by the limp economy, Democrats and Republicans want tax cuts for most Americans to continue through 2013 while lawmakers try to reduce the federal debt and overhaul the tax code.

"The broad range of tax cuts set to expire are ones both parties want to continue. The debate is over a fairly narrow but very symbolic range of taxpayers," said Robert Bixby, executive director of the bipartisan Concord Coalition.

Largely mirroring President Barack Obama's proposals, it has a 10-year phase tag of $250 billion. It would continue the expiring tax cuts next year for everyone but individuals making $200,000 a year and couples earning $250,000, who would see their taxes rise. That would mean higher levies next year for 2.5 million households — just 2 percent of the 140.5 million returns the Internal Revenue Service receives, according to 2009 figures.

Waiting in the wings is a rival bill by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, which had a 10-year cost of $405 billion. It would include high earners in the extended tax cuts next year, but omit some tax breaks Reid would extend for college costs, children and low-income workers. Combined, that would end tax breaks for 25 million households, according to Treasury Department figures provided by the White House.

House Republicans unveiled a tax bill Tuesday similar to Hatch's. Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, plans to push it to House passage next week. Boehner's bill doesn't stand a chance of passing in the Senate, nor does Reid's in the House.

With neither side showing much inclination to compromise, the White House released a report illustrating what a stalemate that results in all the tax cuts expiring in January would mean. It said there would be an average $1,600 tax boost for 114 million households earning under $250,000 for couples or $200,000 for individuals.

Stocks Drop for a Third Day as Earnings Slide
NEW YORK (AP) • A parade of grim news, from weak corporate earnings to a pullback at U.S. factories to spreading fault lines in Europe's debt crisis, sent investors fleeing stocks for a third straight day on Tuesday. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 104.14 points, or 0.8 percent, to 12,617.32. It was the third triple-digit point loss in row for the blue chip index. The last time that happened was September, when fears were rife that the U.S. was on the brink of another recession.

Wal-Mart opposed to $6B card fee settlement

ASSOCIATED PRESS
BENTONVILLE, Ark. • Wal-Mart Stores Inc. urged retailers to reject a proposed $6 billion settlement that Visa Inc., MasterCard Inc. and major banks have agreed to pay retailers for alleged fee fixing. The settlement, reached earlier this month, had been considered a victory for retailers. It settled a lawsuit that claimed card issuers conspired to fix merchants' fees for accepting credit cards. Retailers have long complained about the billions of dollars in "swipe" or "interchange" fees that they have had to pay, which average about 2 percent of the price of a purchase. Under the settlement, stores will be allowed to charge customers more if they pay with a credit card.

JPMorgan to pay $100M in credit card settlement • JPMorgan Chase has agreed to pay $100 million to settle a lawsuit by customers who claim the nation's largest bank improperly increased minimum payments on their credit card bills. The proposed settlement would end a three-year-old case against Chase for raising the cardholders' minimum payment to 5 percent of account balances from 2 percent in 2008 and 2009. Cardholders claim Chase did it to make extra money on fees it charged to people who couldn't meet higher payments.

WIRELESS CARRIERS SELL CUSTOMER DATA TO POLICE

BY DAVID SYDIONGCO AND WILL OREMUS
 Slate
 The nation's wireless carriers spend a surprising amount of time and energy sharing their customers' private data with police and the FBI. Those companies fielded upwards of 1.3 million such requests in 2011 alone, dedicating hundreds of full-time employees to telling authorities what their customers were up to. And when asked by U.S. Rep. Ed Markey, D-Mass., to disclose the extent of these surveillance programs, some of the companies said they are so busy handing out their users' data that they don't have time to keep track of how often they do it. How can these companies afford all the time it takes to comply with these requests? (The numbers show that wireless companies grant a vast majority of the requests, even when there's no warrant.) They can afford it, it seems, because the law enforcement agencies pay them. Your tax dollars at work! Every wireless company insists that the fees it charges for handing over your information are just enough to cover expenses. But most of them including Sprint, the company that gets by far the most requests for customer data have refused to hand over actual figures. First, due credit to the two companies that did open up to how much they're getting in exchange for their customers' data. U.S. Cellular, a minnow in the market, reported in its response to Markey that it had complied with 18,079 requests in 2011, earning more than $460,000 in compensation. Industry giant AT&T, meanwhile, revealed that it took in $8.2 million a nearly 35 percent increase from the year before on a total of 181,100 requests. (It complied with more than 99 percent of them.) Verizon wouldn't give hard numbers, but it at least offered a range, reporting that it had been "reimbursed approximately three to five million dollars in each of the last five years" for the data it shared with authorities. That was in exchange for about 260,000 requests. T-Mobile was the least forthcoming of all, refusing to disclose both the number of requests it received and the amount of money it collected. The company's response letter asserts that "the fees attributable to the costs are considered confidential and proprietary information." And then there's Sprint, which revealed that it had received a staggering 500,000 subpoenas for user data in 2011, plus another 325,982 requests for wiretaps or location information over the past five years. The company did not say how many of these it accepted or how much total money it received, though it did provide a detailed breakdown of the rates it charges for various types of surveillance. When we called Sprint to ask for more information on its surveillance revenues, spokeswoman Stephanie Vinge Walsh declined to elaborate and warned us against attempting an estimate. "Any calculation made based on the numbers reported would not be accurate," she said cryptically.

Plains Ranchers Sell Cattle as U.S. Drought Spreads

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) • Kansas cattleman Ken Grecian sold 20 pairs of cows and calves a few weeks after drought had sucked his pastures dry and no rain was in the forecast. He sold 20 more pairs Friday. Grecian spent years meticulously breeding his cows to improve the genetics in each generation, but with Kansas in one of the worst droughts seen in decades, he's struggling to find enough grazing to feed 300 cows, plus their calves. He hopes to get by with selling only a quarter of his herd, but there are no guarantees with the drought expected to linger through October. Other cattlemen throughout the middle and western part of the U.S. also are selling animals they can't graze or afford to buy feed for. Beef from the animals now flooding livestock auctions will start showing up in grocery stores in November and December, temporarily driving down meat prices. But then prices are expected to rise sharply by January in the wake of dwindling supplies and smaller livestock herds. The number of cattle in the U.S. has been dropping for years, but the pace picked up last year when ranchers in Texas, the nation's top beef producer, sold a massive number of animals amid a severe drought in the Southwest. Farmers in Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas bought some of those cows, however, so nationwide, the loss wasn't as great as it could have been. This year, virtually no one is expanding herds.

Claude Lawrence Hayes

July 11, 1929-July 20, 2012

BUHL • Claude Hayes, 83, of Buhl, passed away Friday, July 20, 2012, at his home.

He was born July 11, 1929, to Claude Carrol and LaRease Ordway Hayes in Modesto, Calif. He grew up farming and milking cows by hand.

A mutual friend introduced him to Una "Faye" Moody. When he saw her sitting on the front porch, he said "I'm going to marry that girl." They were married Oct. 14, 1949. To this union, they had four children, Marsha Sue, Larry, Kevin and Chris. Claude and Faye enjoyed 55 years together, dancing; water skiing; golfing; frequent trips to Jackpot, Nev.; and even a cruise to Alaska. Claude was a very devoted husband and father, always making sure his family and friends were taken care of.

Early in life, Claude served our country as a second lieutenant in the National Guard as well as serving in the Army Reserve. He worked at the shipyards of San Diego before going to work for Dunphy Construction, where he worked up to a superintendent. In 1974, Claude retired from Dunphy to move to Buhl with his son, Larry, to build Hayes Construction. He and Larry ran the company, along with Kevin and Chris, until his "retirement" in July 1999. Claude, being a very active man, could not take retirement long and took the position of building inspector for the city of Buhl only six months later.

Claude was an active volunteer, including Boy Scout leader, COP, president of the Buhl Chamber of Commerce; he also served on the Cemetery and Senior Citizens boards. He was active in many projects, including hanging Christmas lights and Sagebrush Days for the Fourth of July. He and long-time friend, Leonard Sheets, also helped remodel the current chamber building and visitor center. He also volunteered for many community projects.

2005, Claude found companionship with longtime friend, Sharon Sheets. This friendship grew and, on July 8, 2006, they were married.

Claude and Sharon continued working at the city of Buhl until they decided to retire together in 2009. Claude and Sharon made many trips of their own to Jackpot and Wendover, Nev., as well as a cruise to Baja Mexico.

Claude is survived by his wife, Sharon; sons, Larry (Susan), Kevin, Chris (Pamela) and Bill (Sue) Sawers, all of Buhl; Sharon's daughters, Sherri Dawn (Tris) Moore, Charlise (Jeff) Bracken and Hollie Robinson; five grandchildren, Ryan (Sha) Sawers, Carie (Brandon) Higley, Heather Hayes, Beau Hayes and Paige Hayes; seven great-grandchildren; as well as Sharon's nine grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren; sister, Sally Phillips; nieces, Kathy (Jim) Rietkirt and Debbie (Ron) Friese, all of California; and Sharon's sister, Barbara (Mike) Kauffman; and brother, Virgil Wayne Decker; and many extended families. Claude was preceded in death by both parents; daughter, Marsha Sue Bradshaw; and wife, Faye Hayes.

A graveside service is planned for 10 a.m. Friday, July 27, at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be given to the Buhl Quick Response or a charity of choice. Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Farmer Funeral Chapel in Buhl.

A New Way to Drink Gluten-free

Times-News City Editor Nate Poppino blogs on all things beer at "Idaho On Tap." Here's what's on his mind this week:

"Omission, a venture by Portland's Widmer Brothers, has hit an interesting snag. It can't be marketed as friendly for celiacs because it still contains barley.

"But the Widmer brewers have created something special here. Omission has all the flavor and texture of regular beer in a package the gluten-sensitive might find safe. "How does that work?"

Dining Tidbits

For the Times-News

The Freshest of Chips

Keen on keeping its menu light and healthy, the newly opened Quail Ridge Cafe (165 W. Valley Road, Hagerman) has just one deep-fried food: housemade potato chips.

Cafe manager Julie Hyde said the chips, served alongside hand-pressed hamburgers and a variety of sandwiches, are proving popular.

"We use locally grown red potatoes, thinly sliced and quickly fried, and hot grease," Hyde said. "They are perfectly crisp, light and fresh."

Hyde finishes off the chips with a dash of salt, which complements the slightly sweet potato variety.

Next year, the tubers likely will be grown in the cafe's own garden, which already produces a hearty variety of greens and herbs for use in the Quail Ridge kitchen.

Zulu (No) After Hours

Zulu After Hours (1970 Addison Ave. E., Twin Falls) is closed for now as the business, including its second-story commercial space, has been put on the market.

Bagels, sandwiches, coffee drinks, and wine and beer by the bottle are still available at Zulu Bagels and Java Jungle, a related but separate business operating on the building's main floor. But the Zulu After Hours nightspot and live music venue on the second level is off limits as the owner juggles the listing and plans for the future.

Theresa Borlase, manager of both businesses, said Zulu After Hours has been listed for sale for several months and received a few offers, but the owners are looking for buyers "that will buy the business and stick with the current vision."

"They are not super motivated," Borlase said. "They don't want to see things change too much."

New Coffee in Town

Leena Beana Coffee is named after Bekah Geisel-Adam's daughter, but the coffee is all her own.

Geisel-Adams recently moved back to Buhl, and on July 4 she opened the drive-through coffee hut in the Ridley's Family Market parking lot (705 U.S. Highway 30, Buhl).

With six years of coffee shop management experience, Geisel-Adams was confident about turning around a stellar product in her hometown.

Although the menu has standard coffee shop eats and drinks, her blended mochas quickly became a hit among locals.

"I start with a medium-roast espresso ... I get my beans weekly from an independent, small roaster in Olympia, Wash.," she said. The chocolate milk blend that's mixed in next is a "secret ingredient" developed by Geisel-Adams.

"I can also do layered drinks like a caramel macchiato," she said.

Bigger Digs

Garibaldi's Mexican Restaurant welcomed customers at its new location (1003 Main St., Buhl) on July 5.

Manager Pedro Cardoso said the Buhl restaurant's move to its new building, formerly That One Place restaurant, opens up big possibilities for Garibaldi's. For one, the customer capacity is now about 200; before, it was 72. Already the staff has grown from four people to 12 in anticipation of increased patronage.

"We're downtown now. I like the atmosphere; it's different, better than where we were," Cardoso said. "Plus, we can cater special events, and we're a family-oriented restaurant but before we couldn't really fit families into the restaurant. Now, there won't be any problems."

Cardoso suggests customers try Molcokete Loco — prawns wrapped in bacon and served with a cheese sauce.

KIMBERLY • If rhubarb were your friend she would be the one who could mingle with anyone at the party, making small talk and winning over strangers. Her skinny frame fitted in a carmine dress. Her huge hair overpowering her slim stalk.

Then again, there would be those who wouldn't like her, saying she left a tart taste in their mouths.

Joan Sargent knows rhubarb's character all too well and has embraced this friend in her kitchen for more than 15 years. Rhubarb is often her dinner date to church potlucks and has won over many who were willing to give this tangy vegetable a second chance.

Sargent describes rhubarb's personality as "fun" because it is so versatile and you can put it in anything — she has more than 100 recipes to prove it.

The Kimberly woman compiled a cookbook to show off the many uses of rhubarb, and she often gives this cookbook — "Rhubarb Recipe Roundup" — to friends or donates it to her church for fundraising.

Sargent has three large rhubarb plants growing in her flower beds. If you didn't know what rhubarb looked like, you might pass by and assume it was a gigantic spinach plant because the red stalks are hidden underneath huge leaves.

But before rhubarb grew in Sargent's soil or any dirt in North America, it was found in China in 2700 BC, according to the University of Illinois.

VIRGINIA'S PICKS

Three Great Market Breads

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS | vhutchins@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When you shop market booths for the freshest local berries or beans, those summer meals deserve beautiful breads, too.

Here are three of my favorite loaves from the Twin Falls

Farmers Market, all baked on Fridays — without preservatives — for sale the next morning. The open-air market operates from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays through Oct. 27, across from the College of Southern Idaho's Expo building on North College Road. Bread doesn't come any fresher than this unless you bake it yourself.

Potato and Dill

Chunks of cooked potatoes fried with garlic, olive oil and a little salt top this white yeast bread, complemented by fresh dill inside and atop the loaf. You'll find it for $4 at baker Sladjana Mandura's Breads & Crumbs market booth, along with other varieties. It's hearty enough to make a simple one-piece meal, Mandura said, but split the loaf horizontally to turn it into a sandwich. Either way, I found that warming the potato-dill bread transforms it into something particularly delectable. One warning: Because of the potato chunks, the toaster isn't a good choice for that job.

Jalapeno and Onion

Kathy Kent buys fresh onions and jalapenos from fellow Twin Falls Farmers Market vendors for this $3 white loaf. The vegetables go into Kent's dough raw, but don't worry: It's enough jalapeno for distinctive flavor, but not enough for heat. "It's one of our best sellers," Kent said at her Heavenly Bites booth. After baking, she butters the top "so it's not hard and crispy, so it's nice and moist." Slice this loaf for a turkey-avocado sandwich, or make grilled cheese sandwiches. If you simply toast and butter it, you won't be able to stop at a couple of slices.

Hawaiian

Eaten plain, this sweet Hawaiian bread is an indulgence; lightly toasted and buttered, it's incredible. Mirla Norwood's recipe uses pineapple juice, orange juice, lemon zest, sugar, eggs and real butter — no lard, no oil. The result is a super-soft loaf with a crust so thin it's hardly there. Slice it for tiny hors d'oeuvre sandwiches of cold cuts, or serve it as a side to a meal that needs a sweet touch. Norwood sells the Hawaiian bread for $2 at her Quilts & Things booth but rotates through several other varieties, so you won't find the Hawaiian bread every Saturday. Buy it when you spot it.

Wonton Skins: What They Are and How to Use Them

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

There's nothing wrong with showing a bit of skin. Especially if it's steamy.

Because while they may appear a rather mundane ingredient, wonton skins are an inexpensive and easy way to jazz up your cooking.

So let's start with the basics. Wonton skins (also called wonton wrappers) are thin sheets of dough made from flour, egg and water. That's basically the same formula as Asian egg noodles, and not all that far off from Italian pasta, except wonton skins are cut into round and square sheets.

You may never have bought wontons as a raw ingredient, but if you've ever had fried egg rolls or steamed dumplings in your Asian take-out, you've eaten them.

Because wonton skins essentially are vehicles for containing other ingredients, their strength is their versatility. They can be filled with just about anything, from ground or chopped meat and vegetables, to cheese and sweet fillings.

They also can be cooked any number of ways — pan-fried, deep-fried, baked, steamed, even boiled. You also can cook them before you fill them.

For an easy party (or kid) food, coat a mini-muffin tin with cooking spray. Line each cup with a wrapper, spritz with more cooking spray, then bake at 375 F for about 8 minutes, or until the wrappers are lightly browned and crisp. Once cooled, the wonton cups can be filled with whatever nibbles you like.

You'll find wontons in virtually every grocer, usually in the produce section next to the tofu and other Asian ingredients. They are available in a variety of sizes, though 3-inch squares tend to be the most versatile. The larger sizes can be a bit unwieldy once filled.

When using wontons to make dumplings, they need to be sealed shut after being filled. You can fold the edges over onto themselves (like folding a sheet of paper in half); you can gather the edges together over the center (like a purse); or you can place a second wrapper over the first.

However you do it, be sure to lightly wet (dunking your fingers in water is plenty) the edges of the wrapper. This effectively glues them shut.

So what should you fill them with? For ideas, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/JvL47u>

Steamed Spicy Pork Dumplings

Start to finish: 45 minutes.
Servings: 6.

For the dumplings:

- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon toasted sesame oil
- 1 teaspoon hot sauce
- 1 pound ground pork
- 1/2 cup finely grated carrots
- 4 finely chopped scallions
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
- 8-ounce can water chestnuts, finely chopped
- 12-ounce package 3-inch square wonton wrappers

For the dipping sauce:

- 3 tablespoons toasted sesame oil
- 2 tablespoons rice vinegar
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh cilantro

- 1 teaspoon sugar
- Pinch red pepper flakes

In a large bowl, whisk together the egg, hoisin, soy sauce, sesame oil and hot sauce. Add the pork, carrots, scallions, cilantro and water chestnuts, then mix well.

One at a time, place 1 tablespoon of the pork mixture in the center of each wonton. Dunk your fingers in water, then use them to wet the edges of the wrapper. Gather the edges of the wrapper over the filling, pinching them together to form a small purse. Repeat with the remaining filling and wrappers.

In a large saute pan, bring about 1 inch of water to a boil. Set a bamboo or other steamer basket over the water, then lightly coat it with cooking spray.

Working in batches if necessary, arrange the dumplings in the steamer (they should not touch), then cover and steam for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare the dipping sauce. In a small bowl, whisk together all ingredients. Serve the dumplings hot with the dipping sauce.

Thai Flavors Add Interest to Potpies

THE WASHINGTON POST

Thai-style flavors — green curry paste, Thai basil and a touch of fish sauce — add interest to this chicken potpie.

The recipe calls for two kinds of crust: puff pastry on the sides and bottom, biscuit dough on top. But we thought the potpies were delicious with just the top crust. To save on calories (and time), omit the puff pastry.

The filling can be made a day in advance, covered and refrigerated; reheat gently before using it to fill the lined ramekins.

Adapted from "Pie It Forward," by Gesine Bullock-Prado (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, 2012).

Thai Chicken Potpies

Makes 8 potpies.

For the bottom crust (optional):

- 28 ounces prepared puff pastry dough, preferably Dufours brand, from 2 boxes

For the filling:

- 2 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 large red bell pepper, stemmed, seeded and cut into thin strips (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 1 medium yellow onion, cut into thin slices (1 cup)
- 1 large carrot, cut in half lengthwise, then cut into thin half-moon slices (1 cup)
- 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 2 cups haricots verts (may substitute green beans

DEB LINDSEY • FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

- cut in half lengthwise)
- 1 small sweet potato, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch dice (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 2 tablespoons green curry paste
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 cup no-salt-added chicken broth, plus more as needed
- 1 cup low-fat coconut milk
- 1/2 cup heavy whipping cream
- 1 teaspoon fish sauce, or to taste (optional)
- Meat from 1 rotisserie chicken, shredded (at least 3 cups)
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons Thai basil, finely chopped
- Freshly grated zest from 2 to 3 limes (1 tablespoon)

For the top crust:

- 3 cups flour, plus more for the work surface
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup frozen vegetable shortening, cut into 8 pieces
- 8 tablespoons (1 stick) chilled unsalted butter, cut into small pieces

- 1 cup low-fat buttermilk
- 2 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons water
- Coarse sea salt, for sprinkling

For the bottom crust, if using:

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Have eight 4-inch ramekins at hand. Cut out as many 8-inch rounds of the dough as you can and use them to line the ramekins; use the scraps to line the remaining ramekins. Use a fork to pierce the bottom crusts in several places, and transfer the ramekins to the freezer for 20 minutes. Line the crusts with parchment, fill with pie weights or dried beans and bake for 20 minutes. Allow to cool, leaving the weights and parchment in place.

For the filling: Heat the butter and oil in a large saucepan over medium heat. Add the bell pepper, onion, carrot and garlic, and cook until softened but not browned, 7 to 10 minutes. Stir in the haricots verts, sweet potato and curry paste.

Sprinkle the flour over the mixture and stir to combine, then add the broth, coconut milk, heavy cream and fish sauce, if using. Cook the mixture until it is barely bubbling around the edges, then cook for 10 minutes, until the sauce thickens. Stir in the chicken, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Remove from the heat, stir in the basil and lime zest, and allow to cool slightly. If the mixture seems too thick, add a little broth.

For the top crust: Combine the flour, salt, sugar and baking powder in the bowl of a food processor and pulse a few times to combine. Add the shortening and butter; pulse a few times, until the mixture resembles coarse cornmeal.

Whisk the buttermilk and one of the eggs together in a small bowl. Add to the dry mixture and pulse until the dough just comes together.

Turn the dough out onto a floured work surface and knead gently until it just holds together. Pat it into a roughly 8-by-16-inch rectangle of uniform thickness. Use a sharp knife to cut the dough into 8 square pieces.

Increase the oven temperature to 400 degrees. Remove the pie weights and parchment from the ramekins, if you have lined with bottom crusts, and divide the filling among them, filling just to the top. Top each filled ramekin with a square of biscuit dough. Whisk the remaining egg and water to combine; brush the tops (avoid the sides) of the biscuit dough with the egg mixture and sprinkle with the sea salt. Bake for 20 minutes, until the filling is bubbling and the biscuits are golden brown.

Rhubarb was initially grown for medicinal uses and given to people to cleanse their bodies. The Rhubarb Compendium and other websites say the Chinese rhubarb was used as a medicine in Europe and wasn't employed as a food there until 1778. The plant's appearance on American tables occurred between 1790 and 1800.

Nowadays rhubarb shows up in many places: It can be made into juices, punches, breads, cakes, cookies, cobblers, sauces, jams and pies and even served on meat.

"I'm a real fan of rhubarb," Sargent said.

One of Sargent's favorite recipes is a frozen rhubarb jam made with raspberry gelatin. The jam can also be made with orange or strawberry gelatin, but she prefers raspberry. Sargent's husband was not a big fan of her rhubarb-inspired dishes at first, but the frozen rhubarb jam has become his favorite, as well. She said he told her: "The world supply of rhubarb should be in that jam."

Sargent also makes a sweet and sour sauce that is tasty over chicken or pork.

Rhubarb is a vegetable that prefers a cool season and wilts on a hot day. But it can be easily stored in your freezer so you can enjoy it all summer long.

"I freeze what rhubarb we do not eat fresh so I can whip up a rhubarb pie in the middle of winter," said Carol Robertson of Twin Falls.

Robertson said her family loves a good, old-fashioned rhubarb pie with only subtle twists, such as some orange zest in the filling to make it sparkle.

"If I feel really wild I throw in a cup or so of sliced fresh strawberries to provide a little surprise," she said.

Rhubarb can be frozen in sauces. Or do as Sargent does and wash, cut and freeze the raw vegetable stalks on a cookie sheet. Then place the frozen pieces in a plastic bag to store in the freezer.

When harvesting rhubarb, trim the leaves from the stalk immediately and do not ingest the leaves. Eating a large quantity of the leaves has been known to cause sickness and even death.

Rhubarb is a perennial plant that is very winter-hardy and resistant to drought. Once your plant becomes established you will need to divide it every four to five years, which will keep the stalks thick and the plant healthy.

"It's a very beautiful plant," said Mary Lou Panatopoulos of Twin Falls. Rather than cutting off the stalk, Panatopoulos twists it off — on the theory that this does not open up the plant to fungus or anything else that could disease it. She said it's an easy plant to grow.

TETONA DUNLAP • TIMES-NEWS

A rhubarb plant grows in Joan Sargent's flower bed in Kimberly.

"You can mix it with other berries. It's very tart and it gives things a snappy taste," Panatopoulos said. She enjoys making rhubarb-raspberry crisp and rhubarb cream pie. "You usually use quite a bit of sugar in the recipe because of the tartness."

Pat Ballard of Kimberly likes her rhubarb sweet and sweet. Neighbors often give her rhubarb during the spring. She makes stewed rhubarb — which is like a pudding — of sugar and rhubarb and not much else. She also makes a rhubarb cake that she found in a cookbook.

Yes, rhubarb is an acquired taste. While some like it sweet others prefer its almost barbed flavor.

So the next time you are invited to a dinner or lunch or host your own, make sure to bring rhubarb along. She always makes an impression and is sure to win over some of your friends with her snappy personality.

Frozen Rhubarb Jam

From Joan Sargent's "Rhubarb Recipe Roundup."

5 cups rhubarb, cut into small pieces
3 cups sugar
1 3-ounce package of raspberry gelatin

Mix sugar and rhubarb; let stand to allow the mixture to become juicier. Cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in gelatin. Pour into containers and freeze.

Variations: Use orange or strawberry gelatins instead of raspberry.

Sweet and Sour Sauce

Use this as a meat topping. Yield: 1 1/2 cups of sauce or about 8 servings. From Joan Sargent's "Rhubarb Recipe Roundup."

1 medium onion
1 tablespoon butter
2 cups sliced fresh or frozen rhubarb
1/2 cup canned or fresh chopped tomatoes
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon dried, crushed rosemary
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice

In a medium saucepan, cook onion in butter about seven minutes until onion is browned. Stir in remaining ingredients except lemon juice. Bring to a boil and cook over medium heat about 15 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in lemon juice.

Serve hot with chicken, pork or other meats.

Rhubarb Cake

Recipe courtesy of Carol Robertson.

For the cake:
2 cups flour
2 cups fresh rhubarb, diced
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/3 cup water
1 1/4 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground

cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs
1 cup chopped nuts (Robertson prefers walnuts)
For the caramel frosting:
1/2 cup butter
1 cup packed dark brown sugar
1/4 cup skim milk
2 cups powdered sugar

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 13-by-9-by-2-inch pan.

Beat all cake ingredients for about 1 minute slowly. Scrape sides of bowl, then beat 2 minutes a little faster. Scrape sides, stir and pour into pan.

Bake 45-50 minutes until toothpick comes out dry.

For the frosting, melt butter in saucepan, stir in brown sugar and bring to a boil while stirring. Reduce heat to low and boil and stir for 2-3 minutes.

Stir in milk and heat to boiling again. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in powdered sugar and put pan in ice water and beat by hand until smooth enough to spread a thin layer.

When cake has cooled, put on a thin layer of caramel frosting. This recipe makes enough frosting for two cakes; you can freeze half of it for the next spice cake.

Variation: For a change, Robertson recommends substituting zucchini for the rhubarb and says it's just as good.

Lunch Gear Goes Stainless, Makes Food Safety Easy

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

It's entirely likely I spend too much time thinking about the lunches I pack for my 7-year-old son. After all, he probably spends all of 5 minutes inhaling my hard work.

But this is a different era from the days when I proudly toted cheese and mustard sandwiches on whole wheat in my metal "Empire Strikes Back" lunch box. For generations, lunch boxes had been just that — boxes that food got shoved into. And frankly, those boxes were better suited as weapons and shields in schoolyard scuffles than as food storage containers.

Today, parents have choices. Lots of choices. Lunch box styles vary from utilitarian soft-sided cooler bags to epicurean bento boxes or even more worldly tiffin canisters. Lunch boxes can have built-in ice packs. They can be microwaved. They can be made from bisphenol-A-free, lead-free, phthalate-free, PVC-free plastic. They can be forged from 18-gauge stainless steel.

And those changes and choices reflect not just better lunch box technology, but also social changes. What parents pack is different. In the day, my whole wheat was just rebellious enough to have the nuns who ran my school aflutter (good boys ate Wonder bread). Today's lunches of sushi, soy nut noodle salads, nachos and samosas make it seem pathetically pedestrian.

So how does a busy parent make sense of an era when brown bagging it almost never actually involves brown bags?

In my case, I turned it into an obsession and blog (or in 2012 is that redundant?), LunchBoxBlues.com. I researched the many (many!) lunch box options, the many LunchBots' multi-compartment divided container makes it easy to create a bento box-style lunch.

containers that can go inside those lunch boxes (plastic sandwich bags are so passe), the many ways of fitting foods into those containers, and the many ways of keeping the foods in those containers warm or cold.

Along the way I've spied some winning trends and products, and discovered some handy tips for making the most of them. The following are among my top choices:

Stainless Steals the Show

Metal boxes went out of fashion when soft-sided bags came on the scene. And those insulated bags (some of them startlingly large) are still de rigueur. But for the stuff inside the bag — from thermoses to food containers and even drinking straws — stainless steel is where it's at. Stainless is easy to love. It's eco-friendly and won't stain or leach anything into food. It can handle hot or cold, goes through the dishwasher, and is nearly indestructible (even for kids). Stainless items are pricier upfront, but think of all the plastic sandwich bags you won't be buying over the next 180 days of school.

For food containers, LunchBots rock. Available in a wide array of shapes, sizes and colors, including multi-compartment divided containers, LunchBots products (starting at about $15) offer an easy way to pack everything from sandwiches and salads to fruit and dips. The multi-compartment containers even make it easy to create bento box-style lunches (think Lunchables, but with food you choose).

The company's all-stainless (bottom and lid) models are not watertight, but they recently introduced a line of stainless containers that have plastic lids that do seal.

For an all-in-one approach, check out Planet-Box, which looks like a bento box crossed with a lunch tray. These clamshell-style containers (available in small and large, starting at about $40) have multiple compartments into which a surprising amount of food can be packed. Plus, because the covers are integrated into the one-piece design, there are no lids for the little ones to lose.

No Heavy Metal

Stainless not your style? The bento trend has gone plastic, too. The classic choice has been from Laptop Lunches, which makes a plastic snap-shut case that contains a variety of food containers. The whole thing then fits snugly inside an insulated bag. It's rugged, made without any of the aforementioned chemicals and starts around $24.

The size of the Laptop Lunches bento system makes it ideal for younger kids. If you're looking for something a bit larger or with more flexibility, check out Newell Rubbermaid's new Rubbermaid LunchBlox kits, available in snack, salad and entree sizes.

Each modular kit (priced from $10 to $20) contains a variety of bisphenol-A-free containers that can be stacked in various configurations. Each also includes a customized freezer pack that stacks and interconnects with the food containers.

It's About Time

That's what food safety all comes down to — time. Knowing how long food will stay hot or cold in a lunch box or thermos is the best way to know that the food you pack will be safe to eat.

As a general rule, perishable cold foods must be kept below 40 degrees. Hot foods should be held at above 140 degrees. If those temperatures aren't held, you have a two-hour window to consume the food before it becomes unsafe to eat. That sounds scary, but — if you do your homework before shopping for lunch boxes and thermoses — it turns out to be very helpful.

By homework, I mean figure out what time of day your child will eat the food you pack. Now count backward to the time you pack the lunch. This is how long you need to keep the food hot or cold.

Not so long ago, that information wasn't much help. Parents could do little more than guess how long a thermos would keep soup hot or a lunch box (even with an ice pack) would keep food cold. That has changed. Today, a growing number of manufacturers are rating their products so consumers know how long they can hold a temperature.

Lands End, for example, says its soft-sided lunch boxes maintain refrigerator temperatures for five hours (with an ice pack). Thermos' Foogo stainless steel food jar keeps things cold for seven hours and warm for five.

One tip about thermoses — before putting food in them, always prime them to be hot or cold, depending on the temperature you want to maintain. Packing soup? Fill the thermos with boiling water for a few minutes to heat it up, then dump out the water and add the soup. Filling it with yogurt? Toss the empty thermos in the freezer for a few minutes.

Find Great Ricotta for this Sandwich

WASHINGTON POST

The key to this sandwich is lots of good ricotta, so it's worth seeking it out at a cheese shop or Italian grocery. But if all you have easy access to is the supermarket variety, make sure to whisk it with extra-virgin olive oil before building the sandwich.

From Joe Yonan, author of "Serve Yourself: Nightly Adventures in Cooking for One" (Ten Speed Press, 2011).

Ricotta, Zucchini and Radicchio Sandwich

1 serving.

2 thick slices multigrain bread
1/2 cup highest-quality whole-milk ricotta (may substitute low-fat ricotta)

1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil (optional)
Kosher or sea salt
1 teaspoon honey
1 very small or 1/2 medium zucchini
Juice of 1 lemon
Freshly cracked black pepper
4 radicchio leaves (stacked and thinly sliced, if desired)
1 small shallot, thinly sliced

Preheat the oven broiler with the rack set 4 to 5 inches below the flame or element. Toast both pieces of bread under the broiler until they are deep golden brown on one side, 1 to 2 minutes. Transfer to a plate.

Whisk the ricotta vigorously in a small bowl until very creamy. If using low-fat ricotta, whisk in the olive oil. Add salt to taste; whisk to combine. Spread the toasted side of one slice of bread with all but 2 tablespoons of the ricotta, and drizzle it with the honey. Use a vegetable peeler to cut the zucchini lengthwise into paper-thin slices; lay them on the ricotta, sprinkling them with a little lemon juice, salt and pepper. Top with the radicchio and shallot.

Spread the remaining 2 tablespoons of ricotta on the toasted side of the second piece of bread, turn the toasted side down and top the sandwich with it. Cut in half and eat.

WILL BOTTLED JUICE GET YOU KEY LIME PIE?

BY SUSAN M. SELASKY
Detroit Free Press

Question: Can you use key lime juice for key lime pie instead of having to juice those tiny limes? What's the difference between key limes and regular limes? — Mary Schneider, Trenton, Mich.

Answer: Yes, you can use key lime juice. Look for it in the juice aisle or in the alcoholic beverage aisle.

Key limes, also known as Mexican limes, have a bit more tartness than regular limes (called Persian limes) and are much smaller, around the size of a golf ball, with a smooth, thin skin. Limes are available year-round, but stores don't always stock key limes.

It takes about a half pound of them to get enough juice for one pie.

You can get more juice out of limes (or lemons) by microwaving them for 20 seconds or by rolling them around under your palm on the countertop. As you press down, the segments break down, releasing more juice. You can also use a fork to poke the segments.

A Healthy Rethinking of the Classic PB&J Sandwich

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

Most kids — and many adults who want to remember being kids — love peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Problem is, this lunch box staple is high in fat and sugar. So it's time for a remake of that beloved sandwich.

The first fix is the bread. Skip the fluffy white bread and go straight to a multi-grain or whole wheat. If texture is an issue, you can always opt for one of the soft varieties of whole wheat. Just be sure to read the packages, because so-called "wheat bread" often is made with mostly white flour. Opt for one that specifically says "100 percent whole wheat."

The second fix is the jelly. Even the healthiest varieties are jammed with sugar. So we started with a base of all-fruit spread, but add a healthy dose of real fresh berries. This gives the sandwich just the right touch of sweetness and a big boost of fresh flavor.

The final trouble spot in the typical PB&J is the peanut butter. Opting for a natural, unsweetened peanut butter gets you on the right track (most other peanut butters are filled with unnecessary sweeteners and added oils). But even regular peanut butter is loaded with fat. So you want to use it sparingly. But that doesn't taste nearly as good as really loading it on.

The solution? Mix together peanut butter and cooked instant oatmeal. Crazy? Maybe a little. But oatmeal has a nutty, pasty quality to it already. Mixed with peanut butter, it makes a delicious sandwich filling. Of course, be sure not to buy sweetened instant oatmeal. And this recipe works just as well with any of the peanut butter alternatives.

Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich Makeover

Start to finish: 15 minutes.
Servings: 1.

- 1 tablespoon instant oatmeal
- 3 tablespoons nonfat milk
- Pinch salt
- 1 tablespoon natural unsalted peanut butter
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh berries, chopped
- 2 teaspoons all-fruit spread
- 2 slices multigrain or whole-wheat bread

In a small microwave-safe bowl, combine the oatmeal, milk and salt. Microwave on high for 1 minute, or until boiling. Allow to cool for 5 minutes, then stir in the peanut butter. In another small bowl, stir together the berries and fruit spread. Spread the peanut butter-oat mixture on one slice of bread and the fruit mixture over it. Top with the second slice of bread.

Blending Best of S'mores and Puffed Rice Treats

BY ALISON LADMAN
For The Associated Press

School often starts when kids still have summer on the brain. So these easy-to-make bars have summer in mind, too.

We aimed for a simple snack with the flavor of s'mores, but with the texture, ease and portability of puffed rice treats.

We ended up with a layer of marshmallow-rich crushed graham crackers topped with chocolate. To make things interesting, we turned them into peanut butter s'mores bars. But if your kids aren't peanut butter inclined, just leave it out.

Peanut Butter S'mores Bars

Start to finish: 20 minutes (plus cooling). Servings: 12.

- 3 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 10-ounce package marshmallows
- 1/4 cup smooth natural peanut butter

- 3 cups graham cereal, lightly crushed
- 1 sleeve of graham crackers (9 sheets), lightly crushed
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
- 1/2 cup lightly salted peanuts

Coat a 9-by-9-inch baking pan with cooking spray. In a large saucepan over medium-low, heat the butter, marshmallows and peanut butter. Stir until completely melted and smooth.

Remove the pan from the heat and add the graham cereal and graham crackers. Stir to coat. Using buttered fingers, press the mixture into the prepared pan. Set aside.

In a microwave-safe dish, melt the chocolate bits by heating in 30-second intervals, stirring in between. Spread the melted chocolate over the bars and sprinkle with the peanuts. Allow to cool and then cut into bars.

The Best of Salads and Summer Grilling

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Summer is prime time for salads and grilling. So why not bring them together in one delicious dish?

One of my favorite warm weather meals involves just that. I pile my dinner plate with the makings of a robust salad — a mass of greens, sliced carrots, cucumbers, tomatoes, often even leftover grilled vegetables from the night before. Then I thinly slice whatever meat I tossed on the grill and use that to top the salad. A sprinkle of vinaigrette and it's good to go.

For this salad, I went with my favorite grill-friendly steak — flank. It takes well to seasoning rubs, cooks quickly and slices nicely. For the seasoning rub, I went with a simple blend, the highlights of which are fennel seeds and cumin (but you could substitute whatever seasonings you prefer).

Be warned: this is no frilly salad. To stand up to hot steak, a salad must be robust. Plus, the point here is for it to be a meal, not a side.

Fennel-Cumin Flank Steak Salad

Start to finish: 30 minutes.
Servings: 4.

- 1 teaspoon whole fennel seeds
- 1 teaspoon whole cumin seeds

MATTHEW MEAD • ASSOCIATED PRESS

- 1 teaspoon yellow mustard seeds
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- Kosher salt and coarsely ground black pepper
- 1 1/4 pounds flank steak
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1 pint cherry tomatoes, halved
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 5-ounce package baby arugula
- 1 green bell pepper, cored and diced
- 1 avocado, peeled, pitted and diced
- 4-ounce log soft goat cheese
- 1/2 cup dried cranberries

Heat the grill to medium-high. In a mortar and pestle or spice grinder, combine the fennel, cumin, mustard, garlic powder, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1/2 teaspoon of pepper. Grind well, then rub the mixture over both sides of the flank steak.

Set aside. In a medium bowl, whisk together the olive oil, vinegar and 1/2 teaspoon each of salt and pepper. Add the tomatoes and garlic, toss well, then set aside. Divide the arugula between 4 serving plates.

Top with the bell pepper and avocado. Crumble a quarter of the goat cheese over each plate of arugula, then sprinkle with dried cranberries.

Using an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs, oil the grill grates. Add the steak and grill for 4 to 5 minutes per side for medium-rare. Transfer to a cutting board and let rest for 5 minutes. Thinly slice the steak against the grain, then heap a quarter of it on top of each salad.

Spoon a quarter of the tomatoes, as well as any liquid in the bowl, over each salad. Per serving: 570 calories; 290 calories from fat (51 percent of total calories); 33 g fat (11 g saturated; 0 g trans fats); 75 mg cholesterol; 26 g carbohydrate; 48 g protein; 7 g fiber; 920 mg sodium.

Mascarpone Pie Has Gluten-Free Crust

THE WASHINGTON POST

The almond-flour crust here is similar in texture to a graham-cracker crust and has a nice nutty flavor.

Buy almond flour that's finely ground; Bob's Red Mill Almond Flour/Meal is ideal and is widely available.

Adapted from a recipe by Kate Lebo, a baking instructor and the founder of Pie School in Seattle.

Fresh Fruit and Mascarpone Pie with Gluten-Free Crust

Makes one 9-inch pie (12 servings).

For the crust:

3 cups almond flour, such as Bob's Red Mill brand
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
4 tablespoons (1/2 stick) chilled unsalted butter
1 large egg, beaten

For the filling:

2/3 cup mascarpone cheese
1/2 cup sour cream
1/3 cup clover honey

1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
Large pinch nutmeg
1 to 2 cups fresh fruit (try peach and blueberry, plum and pluot, raspberries, blackberries, or any other high-quality, in-season fruit)

For the crust: Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Have a 9-inch pie plate at hand. Combine the almond flour, sugar, salt and baking soda in a medium bowl. Cut the butter into eight small chunks and add them. Rub the butter into the flour by scooping the mixture into your cupped hands and rubbing it firmly between your thumb and fingers, letting the mixture fall back into the bowl. When the mixture resembles coarse sand and no butter chunk is larger than a pea, add the egg and mix it in with your hands until all of the mixture is moist. Refrigerate for 15 minutes. Firmly press the dough into the pie plate to evenly cover the bottom and sides, using your fingers to even the top into a smooth rim. Refrigerate for 10 minutes, then bake for 15 to 20 minutes. The crust is done when it is golden brown, slightly puffy and fragrant. Transfer it to a wire rack to cool completely.

For the filling: Use a hand-held electric mixer to combine the mascarpone and sour cream in a medium bowl. Add the honey and vanilla extract, and mix to combine. Spoon the mixture into the cooled pie shell; use an offset spatula to smooth the top. Sprinkle a little nutmeg over the filling. Arrange the fruit in concentric rings, or in another pattern of your choice, to cover the filling. Serve chilled, and store leftovers in the refrigerator. Per serving: 320 calories, 7 g protein, 18 g carbohydrates, 26 g fat, 7 g saturated fat, 50 mg cholesterol, 150 mg sodium, 3 g dietary fiber, 12 g sugar.

Pea, Mint Couscous Comes Together Quickly

STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

I can put this summery dish together in a half-hour or less. The couscous takes just a few minutes to prepare; I use frozen peas that I always keep stashed in the freezer; and in the summer I always have fresh herbs on hand.

Better yet, it's a side dish that can be easily turned into an entree. If I add feta cheese and grilled chicken, I've got a quick meal. Grilled shrimp is even nicer. To make it heartier, I can add cubed grilled lamb.

Easy as this dish is, there are a few caveats. First, don't omit the parsley. Its bright green hue will mask the less attractive mint that tends to turn black after it has been chopped. Second, use a good-tasting white wine vinegar; there are so few ingredients that its flavor needs to shine. And finally, don't add the peas until right before serving. They lose their vibrant color as they mix with the vinegar.

Sweet Pea and Mint Couscous

Makes a generous 6 cups (8 servings).

1 1/2 cups plain (uncooked) couscous
Salt
8 ounces frozen peas, defrosted (a generous 1 1/2 cups)
1/4 cup finely chopped fresh mint
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh parsley
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar, or more to taste
3 tablespoons olive oil, or more as needed
Freshly ground black pepper

Prepare the couscous according to the package directions. When it's ready, transfer it to a large bowl, fluffing it with a fork to break up any clumps.

Meanwhile, bring a 2-quart pot of lightly salted water to a boil and prepare a bowl of ice water. Add the peas to the boiling water and cook for 1 minute. Pour the peas into a colander and immediately transfer them to the ice water. Let them cool for 5 minutes, then drain in the colander, shaking off any excess water.

Add the mint, parsley, vinegar and oil to the couscous, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Mix to thoroughly combine. Taste, and adjust the seasonings as needed. If the couscous is too dry, stir in more oil, 1 tablespoon at a time. Add the blanched peas and stir to combine. Serve immediately.

A Simple Goat Cheese Tart You Can Prepare in Advance

WASHINGTON POST

This simple tart can serve as an appetizer or can be a main course when accompanied by a green salad.

The tart dough needs to chill for at least an hour before it can be rolled out. It can be made and refrigerated up to 2 days in advance; it can also be frozen for a month. You'll have one portion of dough left over for another use (such as an 8-to-9-inch tart). The vegetables can be roasted a few hours in advance and left at room temperature to await assembly.

Adapted from "The Fresh & Green Table," by Susie Middleton (Chronicle Books, 2012).

Roasted Ratatouille Tart with Goat Cheese and Mint

4 main-course servings or 8 appetizer servings.

For the crust:

2 cups unbleached, all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
16 tablespoons (2 sticks) very cold unsalted butter, cut into 1/2-inch cubes

1/4 cup ice water
1 large egg yolk
2 tablespoons heavy cream

For the filling:

6 ounces medium cherry tomatoes, halved (about a heaping 1 cup)
1 small (4 ounces) sweet red or yellow bell pepper, stemmed, seeded and cut into 3/4-inch dice (about 1 cup)

1 small (4 ounces) Italian or other small eggplant, skin scored and cut into 3/4-inch dice (about 1 1/2 cups)
1 small (4 ounces) zucchini, cut into 1/2-inch dice (about 1 cup)

1/2 medium (4 ounces) red onion, cut into 3/4-inch dice (about 1 cup)
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
1/4 cup grated

Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese, reserving 1 tablespoon for the crust
4 ounces fresh goat cheese, crumbled while still chilled (1 cup)
1 tablespoon thinly sliced mint leaves

For the crust: Combine the flour and salt in the bowl of a food processor and pulse briefly. Add the butter and pulse quickly about 20 times or until the butter particles are the size of tiny pebbles. With the motor running, add the ice water in a steady stream. (This will take about 10 seconds.) Stop the motor, then pulse quickly 6 to 8 times, just until the mixture begins to leave the sides of the bowl and clump together. The mixture will still be somewhat loose and crumbly.

Transfer the mixture to a large mixing bowl and knead it briefly against the sides of the bowl to finish bringing it together into a dough. Once you have incorporated all of the crumbs, knead once or twice to smooth it out a bit.

Divide the dough in half. Shape each half into a disk about 1 inch thick and about 4 inches across, handling the dough just enough to smooth out cracks and make a tidy disk. Dust each disk lightly with flour, wrap in plastic wrap, and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 2 days. (If the dough has been refrigerated overnight, you'll need to remove it from the refrigerator 30 to 45 minutes before rolling it.) Alternatively, you can freeze the dough for up to a month. Thaw it in the refrigerator overnight before using.

For the filling: Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Position a rack in the center of the oven. Combine the tomatoes, bell pepper, eggplant, zucchini, red onion, oil and 1/2 teaspoon of salt in a 9-by-13-inch glass baking dish or two smaller shallow glass baking dishes. Toss gently to coat the vegetables with the oil, and spread them in a single layer. Roast until the vegetables have shrunk and caramelized but are still a bit moist, 45 to 55 minutes. Let them cool in the baking dish while you assemble the tart.

When ready to assemble, keep the oven rack positioned in the center of the oven and the temperature at 400 degrees. Line a rimmed baking sheet with parchment.

Whisk together the egg yolk and cream in a small bowl to make an egg wash for the crust. Cover with plastic wrap. Roll out the dough between two pieces of parchment until you have a roughly 12-inch round that is uniformly thick. Peel off and then replace the top piece of parchment and invert the dough and its paper onto the baking sheet. Peel off and discard what is now the top piece of parchment.

Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the Parmigiano-Reggiano over the dough, leaving a 2-inch border around the edge. Top with half of the goat cheese, half of the mint and half of the roasted filling, again leaving a 2-inch border. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of the Parmigiano-Reggiano, and repeat with the remaining goat cheese, mint, and filling. Top with 1 tablespoon of the Parmigiano-Reggiano.

Pleat and fold the edges of the dough up and over the outer edge of the filling all the way around the tart. (You will be folding in that 2-inch border.) Folding in a piece of dough about every 2 to 3 inches around the tart will get you the results you want; you'll have a total of 8 to 10 pleats.)

Brush the edges of the dough with the egg wash (you won't use it all) and sprinkle the remaining 1 tablespoon of Parmigiano-Reggiano over the edges as well as the rest of the tart.

Bake until the crust is nicely golden all over and crisp and brown on the bottom (check gently with a spatula), 38 to 40 minutes. Let it cool for a few minutes, and use the parchment to slide the tart onto a cutting board. Let it cool for 5 to 10 minutes before slicing and serving.

DINNER IN 30 MINUTES: CHICKEN, MANGO STIR-FRY

BONNIE S. BENWICK

The Washington Post

You can't ask for more color or crunch, with relatively little effort.

A quick combination of peanut butter, soy sauce and hot water creates just enough sauce to coat the vegetables and chicken. Another nut butter may be substituted.

Serve with steamed rice. Adapted from "Quick Cook Family Meals," by Emma Jane Frost (Octopus Books, 2012).

Chicken Stir-Fry with Mango and Peanut Sauce

4 or 5 servings.

Water

3 medium carrots
6 to 7 scallions
2 cups sugar snap peas
1 Champagne mango
3 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves (about 1 1/2 pounds total)
1/4 teaspoon kosher salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon canola oil
3 tablespoons chunky peanut butter (may substitute a different nut butter)
2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce

Boil a kettle of water. Peel and trim the carrots, then cut them into 3-inch-long, thickish batons. Cut the white and light-green parts of the scallions crosswise into thin slices. String/trim the sugar snap peas. Peel the mango, then cut the flesh into strips or bite-size chunks.

Trim all visible fat from the chicken, then cut the meat into bite-size pieces that aren't too thick. Pat dry with paper towels as needed, then evenly season the pieces with the salt and pepper.

Heat the oil in a wok or large skillet over high heat. Swirl to coat.

Once the oil is quite hot, add the chicken. Stir-fry for about 6 minutes; the chicken should lose its raw look. Transfer to a plate.

Add the carrots and stir-fry for about 3 minutes, until they just start to soften. Add the scallions and stir-fry for 1 minute, then add the sugar snaps and stir-fry for 2 minutes.

Add the mango and stir-fry for 30 seconds, then remove from the heat.

In a liquid measuring cup, whisk together the peanut butter, soy sauce and 2/3 cup of the just-boiled water to form a sauce.

Return the wok or skillet to the stove over medium heat. Pour in the sauce, then return the chicken to the wok or skillet. Cook for 2 minutes, being careful not to let the sauce get too thick. If it does seem so, add a few tablespoons of just-boiled water to achieve the desired consistency.

Divide among individual plates. Serve right away. Per serving (based on 5): 280 calories, 36 g protein, 14 g carbohydrates, 9 g fat, 2 g saturated fat, 80 mg cholesterol, 460 mg sodium, 3 g dietary fiber, 8 g sugar.

Salad Makes Use of Ubiquitous Greens

THE WASHINGTON POST

Lamb's quarters seem to grow everywhere: on farms and in yards, parks and gardens (and sometimes in the cracks of sidewalks). In the absence of dependable soil testing, check farmers markets for them. Don't be afraid to put in a request; some growers simply don't harvest them.

Or you can substitute another green, such as chard, which grows well all summer.

From Washington food writer Emily Horton.

Warm Farro Salad with Lamb's Quarters

4 servings.

1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1 cup uncooked farro
12 ounces lamb's quarters (about 1 1/2 large bunches)
1 teaspoon cumin seed
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 large cloves garlic, smashed
1 to 2 dried arbol chili peppers (or other dried chilies), crumbled

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup filtered water
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1/3 cup roasted, unsalted pistachios, chopped
1/4 cup golden raisins
1 teaspoon packed mint leaves, torn (about 6 medium leaves)

Drain the yogurt in a fine-mesh sieve for at least 30 minutes and up to several hours. Scrape the thickened yogurt into a bowl. Cook and drain the farro according to the manufacturer's directions.

Rinse the lamb's quarters in cool water 2 or 3 times and pat dry. Strip the leaves from the stems. (You can leave the very small ones.)

Toast the cumin seed in a small skillet over medium-low heat until fragrant, 2 to 3 minutes, then use a mortar and pestle to grind to a coarse powder.

Heat the olive oil in a large, heavy skillet over medium heat until the oil is hot but not smoking. Add the garlic and chilies and cook, stirring, for about 2 minutes, until the garlic is golden and the chili is lightly toasted. Add the toasted, ground cumin; stir for a few seconds, then add the lamb's quarters, salt and water. Reduce the heat to medium-low and cook, stirring occasionally, until the lamb's quarters are wilted and tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in the cooked farro, increasing the heat if necessary to reduce any remaining liquid.

Remove the pan from the heat, drizzle the mixture with extra-virgin olive oil, and add the pistachios, raisins and mint, folding to combine. Serve warm, garnished with the yogurt.

Asparagus, Pecan Salad Relies on Turkey Cutlets

STEPHANIE WITT
SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

Turkey cutlets are easy to find year-round. For this recipe, avoid thin-sliced cutlets (1/4-inch thick) if you can, and buy the slightly thicker ones (usually just shy of 1/2 inch).

The asparagus can be cooked and refrigerated up to 8 hours in advance. The salad is best served the day it is made.

Grilled Turkey, Asparagus and Pecan Salad

Makes about 5 1/2 cups
(5 to 6 servings).

3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard, or more to taste
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives (from about 30 stems)
1/2 teaspoon sugar, or more to taste
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
1/4 cup olive oil
3/4 cup dried cranberries, coarsely chopped (about 3 ounces)
1 pound asparagus, woody ends trimmed
1 pound turkey breast cutlets (see headnote)
2 ounces chopped pecans (1/2 cup)

Whisk together the vinegar, mustard, 1 1/2 tablespoons of the chives, the sugar, and salt and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Gradually whisk in 3 tablespoons of the oil to form an emulsified dressing. Taste, and adjust the seasoning as needed. Add 1/2 cup of the chopped cranberries.

Have a large bowl filled with ice water at hand. Fill a medium, straight-sided skillet with 1 to 2 inches of water. Bring to a boil over high heat. Add a pinch of salt and the asparagus. Return to a boil; cook the asparagus until just tender and still firm: 1 to 2 minutes for thin spears, 3 to 4 minutes for medium-thick ones and 5 to 6 minutes for very thick ones. Use tongs or a large slotted spoon to immediately transfer the asparagus to the ice-water bath. Allow the asparagus to cool for 5 minutes; remove and pat dry with a clean towel or paper towels. At this point, the asparagus can be wrapped in dry paper towels and refrigerated for up to 8 hours.

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for about 4 or 5 seconds. Lightly coat a grill rack with oil and place it on the grill. Place the asparagus on a shallow plate. Drizzle with 1 1/2 teaspoons of the oil. Season with salt and pepper to taste, then roll the spears on the plate to coat evenly.

Lay out the cutlets on a separate plate or on a sheet of aluminum foil. Season with salt and pepper to taste, and drizzle with the remaining 1 1/2 teaspoons of oil; rub the oil over the cutlets to evenly coat.

When ready to cook, arrange the asparagus in a single layer on the prepared grill. Close the lid and cook for 1 to 2 minutes, then use tongs to turn the spears to grill all sides evenly. Cover and cook for 1 to 2 minutes.

When the spears have picked up grill marks but are not charred, transfer them to a clean plate.

Grill the turkey cutlets until they have acquired good grill marks on both sides and are cooked through. The cooking time will vary based on the thickness of the meat: thin cutlets will cook in 4 to 5 minutes, thicker ones in 8 to 10 minutes. Let the turkey rest for 10 minutes.

Cut the asparagus into 3/4-inch lengths, cut the turkey into similar-size pieces and transfer them to the dressing in the large bowl. Add the pecans, and toss to coat evenly. Transfer the salad to a clean serving bowl and garnish with the remaining chopped cranberries and chives.

Serve warm, or refrigerate and bring to room temperature before serving.

Minico Lineman Thompson Eyeing D-I Football Offers

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

RUPERT • Two scholarship offers are on the table and more could be on the way for Minico senior-to-be Brett Thompson.

The Magic Valley's top prospect for the 2013 graduating class, Thompson is a 6-foot-5, 315-pound offensive tackle with the physical tools to be a major college football player. So far, University of Idaho and Idaho State have bitten on his potential and offered scholarships.

Several other schools — including Boise State, Utah State and Weber State — are on the radar, but no offers yet.

"I wouldn't know which to choose, they're all such great colleges," said

Thompson, who carries a 3.4 GPA. "I'm hoping if I have a huge senior season, it will make them look at me and I'll get those offers. I want to play D-I football, that's my only goal."

If he goes to a Football Bowl Subdivision school, Thompson would be Minico's first to do so in at least two decades.

Thompson has spent the spring and summer traveling to a handful of camps, including Nike's SPARQ training camp and combine in Oregon, where he matched up against the country's top talent.

"I saw awesome kids. I saw the No. 1 defensive tackle in America. Just a whole different level of training... I felt like I did well there," Thompson said. "At the Boise state camp I had one-on-ones with some of the best D-tackles and showed I can compete against the best."

In addition, Thompson has been working in the gym with Mitch Hodge, a former Mr. Idaho bodybuilder.

"He has the most wicked workouts I've ever done in my life," Thompson said.

A first team All-State selection as a junior, Thompson tallied more than 30 pancake blocks and helped the Spartan offense average 408 yards and 37.7 points per game.

Once Again, Boise St. a Preseason Favorite

BOISE • A preseason media poll is projecting Boise State as the overwhelming favorite to win the Mountain West Conference title.

Journalists who cover the league gave the Broncos 27 out of a possible 30 first-place votes. Overall, the Broncos earned 296 points in the poll released Tuesday. Nevada was second with 244 points.

It's the fifth straight season Boise State has been favored to win its conference.

Boise State finished second in the Mountain West last season. TCU won the league title after beating the Broncos in Boise in November.

Five Broncos were tabbed with preseason honors, with senior wide receiver Mitch Burroughs topping the list as the conference's special teams player of the year. Joe Kellogg (offensive line), Matt Miller (wide receiver), Mike Atkinson (defensive tackle) and Jamar Taylor (cornerback) were also preseason all-conference picks.

This will be Boise State's last season in the Mountain West. The Broncos will join the Big East Conference for the 2013 season.

U.S. Routs Spain in Olympics Tuneup

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BARCELONA, Spain • Gold medal at stake or nothing at all, the U.S. Olympic basketball team was bringing its best Tuesday.

Being back on the Dream Team's turf required it.

Carmelo Anthony came off the bench to score 23 of his 27 points in the first half, and the Americans beat Spain 100-78 in a rematch of the gold-medal game — and possible preview of the next one.

LeBron James added 25 and Kevin Durant had 13, including 10 in the first 3 1/2 minutes of the third quarter to help the U.S. break open the teams' final exhibition game before heading to London.

"We knew that this was a big game," U.S. guard Chris Paul said. "When Coach K talked to us, he told us this was probably the biggest game here in Barcelona since the '92 team was here, so we approached it like that and it was a good win for us."

The teams played a memorable gold-medal game four years ago, the Americans pulling away for a 118-107 victory after leading by only four points with under 2 1/2 minutes left.

This one turned out much easier once the U.S. controlled the final three quarters.

"It was a good test for us tonight, but the exhibition games are over, the friendlies are over and we look forward to the real challenge of going to London," James said.

Pau Gasol scored 19 points and Oklahoma City forward Serge Ibaka, a native of the Republic of Congo who became a Spanish national last year, had 16.

Both teams have been weakened by injuries, with the U.S. missing Dwyane Wade, Dwight Howard and Chris Bosh, all key contributors in Beijing, along with Derrick Rose. The Spaniards are without point guard Ricky Rubio, and All-Star center Marc Gasol, Juan Carlos Navarro and Rudy Kevin Durant of the United States dunks Spain, with Oklahoma City Thunder teammate Serge Ibaka trailing the play during an exhibition match Tuesday in Barcelona, Spain.

Fernandez have battled injuries this year.

They're still the best two teams in the world and favored to meet again in the Aug. 12 gold-medal game. Spain would have a different look, as Marc Gasol was held out of this one while recovering from a left shoulder injury and backup point guard Sergio Rodriguez also sat out.

It may not matter if the Americans play like this in the games that count.

Spain's players said Monday that while they would try to win this tuneup, the bigger priority was preparing for London. The Americans responded that the Spaniards, playing in front of their home fans, would be compelled to go all out in hopes of a victory.

Spain seemed to be playing for real, but was simply overmatched and the Americans eventually ran away from them.

"Well, it was definitely a game that we would have loved to play better as a team," Gasol said. "We made too many mistakes which they capitalized and they played their game. They're a quick unit, very athletic and once they were able to convert a few fast-break opportunities due to our turnovers, it was hard for us."

Penn State Loses Sponsor, Others Could Follow

ASSOCIATED PRESS

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. • State Farm is pulling its ads from Penn State football broadcasts, while General Motors is reconsidering its sponsorship deal and Wall Street is threatening to downgrade the school's credit rating, suggesting the price of the sexual abuse scandal could go well beyond the $60 million fine and other penalties imposed by the NCAA.

Bloomington, Ill.-based State Farm said it had been reviewing its connection to Penn State since the arrest of retired assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky last November. The insurance company said it will pull ads from broadcasts of Nittany Lion home games but continue to advertise during Penn State's away contests.

"We will not directly support Penn State football this year," State Farm spokesman Dave Phillips said Tuesday. "We just feel it was the best decision."

State Farm had no immediate information on how much money is at stake.

NCAA President Mark Emmert said he relied on a report by former FBI Director Louis Freeh, who found that Paterno and three top officials concealed child sexual abuse allegations against Sandusky more than a decade ago to protect the school and its powerful football program.

With Penn State's on-sterling reputation in tatters, the university could face an exodus of sponsors unwilling to have their brands linked to scandal, said Kevin Adler, founder of Chicago-based Engage Marketing Inc.

Adler said he would advise current sponsors to pull out of their deals with Penn State, adding that most contracts have morality clauses giving advertisers an out.

While Penn State physical plant workers remove the concrete landing area that held the famed statue of Joe Paterno on Tuesday, support for the school's football program continued to crumble as one major sponsor withdrew its support, while others considered doing likewise.

Penn State Foes Focused

Ohio coach Frank Solich knows what to expect Sept. 1 when his team is the first to play Penn State.

"There's going to be lots of buzz around the game and it's going to be for negative reasons," Solich said Tuesday at Mid-American Conference Media Day in Detroit. "The only thing we can do is come in and play good football. There will be a lot of emotions, I'm sure, but we just have to play good football."

Solich's Bobcats are favored to win the MAC and go to a fourth straight bowl — all of which will be deemed irrelevant in the buildup for the opener in State College, Pa.

The question there, and throughout college football, will be what kind of team will the Nittany Lions have in 2012 and beyond after the crippling sanctions imposed by the NCAA?

On the flip side, are opponents eager to play the fallen traditional power. Or, will they bring heavy hearts into games against a program tarnished by the horrific crimes perpetrated by former defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky?

"I think the public perception is pretty clear and definitive at this point. That brand is damaged beyond the point of short-term repair. It is the sponsorship partner's obligation first and foremost to look after the health of their own brand," Adler said. "None of the sponsors owe Penn State anything."

So far, though, Penn State appears to be hanging on. GM spokesman Pat Morrissey said the automaker is reviewing its sponsorship but has not made a decision. Morrissey did not immediately return a call about the value of the sponsorship deal.

Other sponsors said they plan to stick with Penn State, including Pittsburgh-based PNC bank and the state's largest health insurer, Highmark Inc.

"Highmark's partnership with Penn State is about health and wellness. We do have a sponsorship with the athletics program. While we routinely evaluate all of our sponsorships, we plan to continue at this time," spokesman Aaron Billger said.

PNC Financial Services Group issued a statement after the July 12 release of the Freeh report that its "ongoing engagement with the university signals our support of the students and traditions of Penn State. ... We believe that the university will learn from this experience and become stronger."

Beckham to Feature

He had hoped for more, but David Beckham will at least have some degree of participation in the games. "It is some kind of role in the opening ceremony which I am honored to be involved in because obviously I was involved in the start process with this seven years ago," Beckham told The Associated Press. "And for Seb (Sebastian Coe) to have kept me involved, I'm very proud of that." The 37-year-old Los Angeles Galaxy midfielder had wanted to play for Britain's football team at the games, but he was not included in the squad.

Tickled Pink

Could romance blossom on the Olympic badminton courts at Wembley Arena? China's coach seems to think so.

China's team is familiar with the courts — it won all five events in the arena at the 2011 badminton world championship — but not the new color scheme.

"The pink color — it's romantic," said coach Li Yongbo. "It's like a place where boyfriends and girlfriends meet."

Elusive North Koreans

The North Korean women's soccer team is eligible to play at the Olympics despite being banned from the next World Cup after five players tested positive for steroids.

Team officials at the time said the players failed the test because they'd been given musk deer gland therapy after getting struck by lightning during training.

It seems they're taking no chances this time. Says coach Sin Ui Gun: "There is a hall with some games machines and table tennis. They love to spend the time inside because in Glasgow, as you know, it rains quite heavily on us."

The O-word

Stores and pubs around London are getting in the spirit of the Games — but don't call 'em the Olympics.

With concerns running high about running afoul of Olympics branding rules and confusion over what is or isn't allowed, locals are getting creative in promoting their Olympic offerings. One pub in Camden placed chalkboards on the sidewalk saying "the torch with no name will pass us by" and "can you guess why we'll be open Thursday," highlighting their hours and specials for the torch relay day.

Bartender Georgie Fisher said she'd written the boards for the Lyttelton Arms after hearing she might not be allowed to use the O-word. "My boss said specifically not to use it and instead to try to think of something sassy," she says. <http://bit.ly/Qxmo0B>

Watching in Pyongyang?

It must be one of the last frontiers for Olympics fever.

The chief of Asia's broadcasting union is in North Korea on Tuesday for talks on providing the country with TV and radio coverage of this year's games.

During the 2010 soccer World Cup in South Africa, North Korean state television aired unprecedented coverage of three matches as well as snippets from the opening ceremony — but not the games played by wartime enemies South Korea and the United States.

What are the odds of a UFO sighting during the opening ceremony? Or of the final torch bearer tripping as they ascend to light the flame? Or would you prefer a more traditional wager on who will win gold? London betting houses are offering odds on almost anything and the industry expects to handle a record 100 million pounds ($155 million) in wagers over the next three weeks or so. Miley, Harr Tee Off at America's Cup Event

Competing nearly 3,000 miles from one another, Twin Falls' Kyle Miley and Castleford's Sierra Harr put up similar results during the first round of the Junior America's Cup on Tuesday.

Miley, playing closer to home at Banbury Golf Course in Eagle, shot a 4-over-par 74, good for a tie for 33rd place and third in his Idaho foursome.

Harr completed her round at Wialea Golf Club's Gold Course on the Hawaiian island of Maui at 8-over-par 80, putting her in a tie for 36th place and, like Miley, third among four state golfers.

Stateside, the Idaho boys are tied for 11th along with Utah at 218, one stroke behind Arizona and San Diego's groupings. Idaho's girls are in ninth place at 233, one shot behind Northern California and two shots ahead of Southern Nevada.

British Columbia's boys and Hawaii's girls lead their respective events. The three-day event continues today through Thursday.

Thompson

"He should have a fantastic year," said Minico head coach Tim Perrigot. "The thing that's nice for our offense is, teams know that we're going to run the football behind him, so it sets everything else up." With the start of football practices less than two weeks away, Thompson said his main focus is helping his teammates be successful. He will be Minico's only returning starter on the offensive line this fall.

"Win state," Thompson said when asked about his goals. "We have an opportunity to be really good if people step up."

Horse Racing's Biggest Loser Now A Huge Winner

ASSOCIATED PRESS

GEORGETOWN, Ky. • A horse that never posed in the winner's circle is living the good life this summer on a scenic Kentucky farm, and his losses could mean a big win for retired thoroughbreds.

Zippy Chippy belied his name during a remarkable winless streak, failing to win even any of his 100 starts during a career at track in the Northeast. His futility earned the hapless loser a spot on People magazine's list of the most interesting personalities.

Now, the 21-year-old dark brown gelding who last raced in 2004 has emerged from the pack as a lovable ambassador for the humane treatment of old horses no longer able to bring in money from racing or breeding to pay their feed and veterinarian bills.

Nicknamed Zippy, the horse is spending a few weeks lolling in a paddock and munching carrots and grass at Old Friends, a central Kentucky farm for retired thoroughbreds. He's due to return in September to his permanent home — another Old Friends retirement farm at Greenfield Center, N.Y.

Zippy arrived in bluegrass country last week along with his constant sidekick, fellow gelding Red Down South. They share a spacious paddock at the 92-acre farm that's home to past stakes race winners, Triple Crown also-rans and the offspring of Kentucky Derby champions.

But it's Zippy who's quickly passing them as a star attraction.

Old Friends, which relies on donations to care for dozens of horses, is hoping to capitalize on Zippy's notoriety. A fundraiser is planned next month along with a line of Zippy-inspired merchandise. The farm plans to start selling caps, T-shirts and mugs emblazoned with a cartoon drawing of Zippy along with the motto "Winners Don't Always Finish First."

The marketing campaign may show that Zippy isn't such a loser after all in a region that reveres thoroughbred champions.

Zippy earned just over $30,000 in racing, mostly from a number of second and third-place finishes.

All the money from Zippy-inspired merchandise will go to support the farm, which has about $600,000 in yearly expenses despite a stable of volunteers including veterinarians, Blowen said. The farm is home to 46 horses.

Blowen, a retired movie critic for The Boston Globe, said Zippy's life script resonates with people.

"I think more people can identify with a horse that loses all the time than a horse that wins all the time," he said. "I think that's part of the fun of it. Because there are more losers in the world than winners."

Blowen bought Zippy for $5,000 a couple of years ago from the horse's longtime owner-trainer, Felix Monserrate.

Monserrate acquired the horse in a 1995 trade with Zippy's breeder for an old van.

Zippy eats about $50 worth of food each week, a diet that includes hay and a special feed that includes grains plus molasses and bran oil to help with digestion, Blowen said. But the investment could pay off for the farm and its mission to give horses a comfortable retirement.

Blowen said he sees Zippy as an ambassador in the campaign to find suitable homes for the thousands of thoroughbreds no longer able to race or breed. It's an endeavor that resonated with farm visitor Pam Machuga of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

"They deserve some respect," she said. "Work hard your whole life, this is what you deserve — a big pasture."

Zippy Chippy, front, shares a paddock with his pal and fellow gelding Red Down South, at Old Friends farm near Georgetown, Ky. While the 21-year-old horse failed to win one of his 100 start, he is now emerging as a lovable ambassador for the humane treatment of horses no longer able to bring in money to pay their feed and veterinarian bills.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 12-year-old girl and I hope you will print this because it's about something important. I have an iPod Touch. My friends and I wanted to text, so I asked my mom if I could download a program to talk to my friends. She said it was OK.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I really like "The Hunger Games," so I went into a "Hunger Games" chat room and started talking with some boys there. The next thing I knew there were three men texting me, asking me questions about sex and asking for pictures. (It started with them asking if I was fat, and when I said no, I was asked to send a picture of me in a bathing suit to prove it.) Then they wanted me to send some without the top. I felt really pressured.

I got so scared I couldn't sleep, so I had to tell my mom. She helped me delete my account and told me it was dangerous, but she always loves me. It was hard for me to tell her because I was scared she was going to be mad.

I want your readers to know this can happen and there are chat room apps for iPods. I'm smart. I get good grades in school, but these guys almost tricked me into doing something I didn't want to do. I still have trouble sleeping because I'm afraid one of them will see me on the street and do something to me. What should I do?

- TERRIFIED FROM TEXTING

DEAR TERRIFIED: I'm glad you took the time to write. You are a very lucky girl. You are fortunate to have a good relationship with your mother and that you could go to her right away when you realized you were in over your head.

Remember, once something is on the Web it's there for good. You are intelligent enough that things didn't progress any further.

Thank you for wanting to warn other young people about your experience. Adults can lecture about the dangers of communicating with strangers on the Internet, but it's easy to tune them out. It's also easy to forget that the same rules apply in the virtual world as apply in the real world. If something makes you uncomfortable, listen to your gut and leave the area.

I hope other young women will learn from what happened to you and recognize how careful they must be in chat rooms because as your experience illustrates, not everyone is who they pretend to be.

Bottom line: If anyone wants to text or chat and things progress in a way that makes you uncomfortable, it's time to carefully consider whether to proceed or not. Immediately show the text or chat to someone (a parent or an older, more knowledgeable friend) and ask for an opinion. Remember, you have the ability to block the person at any time. Do not let anyone - whether you know him or her or not - force you to do ANYTHING.

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy, active older man who is in love with a woman my age. Coincidentally, we are in-laws. Her husband and my wife are both deceased. Having known each other for many years, we are very close and have found renewed happiness with each other. We are in love.

Our adult children tell us we are not being rational. Our peers see nothing wrong with it. Do we ignore our children's advice and seek happiness together for the next few years? Please tell me something that makes sense.

- CONFUSED RETIRED ENGINEER

DEAR CONFUSED: You have raised your kids and buried your wife. You deserve to be happy. What makes sense is you and this lady you have known for years being happily together. Your children's attitude is what's irrational.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"A stand can be made against invasion by an army; no stand can be made against invasion by an idea."

— Victor Hugo

In today's deal, North-South get to an excellent slam. (Indeed, South could not be blamed too much for looking for a grand slam.) How would you play six spades on the lead of a top heart?

Best is to win in dummy and ruff a heart immediately. (If you don't do this, there are some lies of the cards where you will find it hard to get this ruff in.) Next, cash the three top trumps to leave East with the master trump. Now you would appear to need the diamond finesse for your contract. But if it is working, you can always take it later. Why not delay awhile and cash your winners to see what happens?

Instead, play four rounds of clubs. If East follows suit, as here, or if he discards a diamond on the fourth club, you cross back to hand with the diamond ace and have reduced to an ending where East is down to two diamonds and his master trump. You exit with your losing trump, forcing East to lead away from his diamond queen into the K-J in dummy. If East can ruff in earlier, he must again lead into dummy's diamond tenace and concede the rest of the tricks, unless he possesses a third heart and three clubs (unlikely after his echo in hearts at trick one). Then he would be able to ruff the club and exit with his heart. Now you would have no choice but to take the diamond finesse.

ANSWER: With a minimum hand in high cards, you nonetheless have a spectacular hand for diamonds. (Partner has shown game-forcing values and five-plus diamonds.) Your plan should be to cuebid four clubs now, hoping to get a heart cuebid in later, or bid three hearts right now. That is initially a stopper for no-trump, but when you bid four clubs next, partner should get the message.

IF JULY 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your powerful ambitions and business focus are fueled by opportunities and success during the next four to five weeks. This is an excellent time to launch plans or formulate new plans, as you have the vision, wisdom and energy to see them through to the end. September is a fine time to take a vacation or enjoy a new romance. In late October and November, be prepared to work hard and be a stickler for punctuality and precision.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mysteries interest us because of what is unknown. While a mysterious stranger may have captured your interest for the moment, when the background facts come to light, the allure may quickly fade away.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't gamble with finances. There's no reason to take a risk on making a fast buck when being thrifty and frugal is the sure way to success. The advice of a trusted mentor could provide infinite wisdom.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Break through the ice. Get to know someone better through frank conversations — and you may find that there's more common ground than you originally thought. Invitations should be accepted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If others are being indecisive, it may fall to you to take charge. Nothing good will be accomplished unless someone steps up and assumes the lead. A new health regimen will meet with great results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spread your social wings. Take a friend to lunch, have a night out with the gang, or find a date. You will be at your best when interacting with others. Put your charms to good use in the work place.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Knowledge is golden. Expand your mind by performing research or learning from an experienced mentor. Even if nothing tangible is gained immediately, you might find facts useful in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can never have too many friends. The people you meet now may have a definite influence on your future and could change the long-term goals you set for yourself. Avoid extra responsibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lady Luck smiles upon you. You will be able to take a few more chances than usual with better than average odds for success. Go with your gut instinct in business affairs and you'll come out on top.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Promote yourself. Put yourself on display and show off the talents you possess that make you the right one for the job. If you exude confidence and act like a superstar, others will believe it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Waste not, want not. You can improve finances by being resourceful and finding little ways to save money. Keep your ears open; you may hear privileged information that you can cash in on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Doubt is an enemy that will erode confidence. Accentuate the positive. If you believe that you will succeed no matter what, it will be so. When faced with tough decisions, go with your first instinct.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Patience is a virtue. It may sometimes seem that you work mostly behind the scenes, and you may often think your efforts are invisible, but someone could notice your talents under these stars.

Today is Wednesday, July 25, the 207th day of 2012. There are 159 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On July 25, 1972, the notorious Tuskegee syphilis experiment came to light as The Associated Press reported that for the previous four decades, the U.S. Public Health Service, in conjunction with the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, had been allowing poor, rural black male patients with syphilis to go without treatment, even allowing them to die, as a way of studying the disease.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1866, Ulysses S. Grant was named General of the Army of the United States, the first officer to hold the rank.

In 1898, the United States invaded Puerto Rico during the Spanish-American War.

In 1909, French aviator Louis Bleriot became the first person to fly an airplane across the English Channel, traveling from Calais to Dover in 37 minutes.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt froze Japanese assets in the United States in retaliation for Japan's occupation of southern Indochina.

In 1946, the United States detonated an atomic bomb near Bikini Atoll in the Pacific in the first underwater test of the device.

In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing commonwealth of the United States.

In 1956, the Italian liner Andrea Doria collided with the Swedish passenger ship Stockholm off the New England coast late at night and began sinking; at least 51 people were killed.

In 1960, a Woolworth's store in Greensboro, N.C., that had been the scene of a sit-in protest against its whites-only lunch counter dropped its segregation policy.

In 1962, the Bell System inaugurated Skyphone, an air-to-ground radiotelephone service, as American Airlines stewardess Hope Patterson placed a call to Associated Press writer Francis Stillely in New York while flying over Lakehurst, N.J.

In 1984, Soviet cosmonaut Svetlana Savitskaya became the first woman to walk in space as she carried out more than three hours of experiments outside the orbiting space station Salyut 7.

In 1992, opening ceremonies were held in Barcelona, Spain, for the Summer Olympics.

In 2000, a New York-bound Air France Concorde crashed outside Paris shortly after takeoff, killing all 109 people on board and four people on the ground; it was the first-ever crash of the supersonic jet.

Ten years ago: Encouraged by a tapping sound coming up from the depths, rescuers in Somerset, Pa., brought in a huge drill in a race to save nine coal miners trapped 240 feet underground by a flooded shaft. Zacarias Moussaoui declared he was guilty of conspiracy in the September 11 attacks, then dramatically withdrew his plea at his arraignment in Alexandria, Va.

Five years ago: A presidential commission urged broad changes to veterans' care that would boost benefits for family members helping the wounded, establish an easy-to-use Web site for medical records and overhaul the way disability pay was awarded. The bullet-riddled body of one of 23 South Koreans held hostage in Afghanistan by Taliban kidnapers was found; eight other captives were released. Pratibha Patil was sworn in as India's first female president.

One year ago: In a prime-time address to the nation, President Barack Obama made a last-ditch call for compromise on raising the government's borrowing ability before an Aug. 2 deadline; in a rebuttal, House Speaker John Boehner said negotiations with the White House had been futile. The NFL Players Association executive board and 32 team reps voted unanimously to approve the terms of a deal to end a 4½-month lockout.
