As smoke continues to fill the air myriad health concerns exist for residents of the Magic Valley.

BURLEY • For the past several weeks wildfire smoke has filled the air in the Magic Valley, causing itchy eyes, sore throats and forcing many people with chronic health issues to stay indoors.

“Unless we are blessed by some real true rain rather than the lightning storms we’ve been getting we may be in for a long fall,” said Dr. Greg Wickern.

With a medical practice with Asthma & Allergy of Idaho, Wickern travels among offices in Hailey, Twin Falls, Burley and Elko, Nev.

He said people throughout the region have experienced health issues associated with smoke from the wildfires.

In the Wood River Valley, the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality has issued air quality advisories in recent days due to wildfire smoke — rating the area as various stages of unhealthy.

DEQ’s Twin Falls measuring station — the only other in the region — has generally fared better. But the Magic Valley has still dealt with smoke and haze.

Anita Mitchell, 74, of Oakley, said the smoke from the Cave Canyon Fire — west of Oakley in the South Hills — pretty much went up and over them.

She said at night she could see the fire raging on the mountain from her back porch.

“For a few days when the fires were really thick I couldn’t breathe very well,” said Mitchell, whose breathing is assisted by oxygen from a tank. “But it isn’t bothering me much now because I have the sense to stay inside.”

Council Approves Temporary Dog Park

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Good news for dog owners in Twin Falls: On Monday, the Twin Falls City Council approved a temporary dog park, located at a baseball field in Harmon Park.

Earlier this year, the council approved a permanent dog park, called Baxter’s Park, but the location on the corner of Blake St. N. and Shoupe Ave. W. won’t be ready until at least summer 2013.

Last year, the council approved a temporary off-leash enclosure at Frontier Park near the College of Southern Idaho. Parks and Recreation Director Dennis Bowyer said Harmon Park was chosen because the grass is in better condition.

The temporary enclosure will be open from Oct. 1 to March 10. Baxter’s Park doesn’t yet have a set opening date.

The council also approved allowing an off-leash swim day for dogs at Dierkes Lake on Sept. 15. Organizers with the Magic Valley Canine Social Club are charging $10 per dog to swim in the lake. The money will go to Baxter’s Park.

Organizers are also selling $20 T-shirts to raise money for Baxter’s Park. Contact the Parks and Recreation Department, 736-2265, for more information.

TWIN FALLS • A man accused of soliciting men via Craigslist to rape a Twin Falls woman has been ordered to be released from jail.

Justin Matthew Crawford, 32, appeared in court Monday for a preliminary hearing. He was known to his alleged victim.

Crawford waived the hearing and his attorney, Lynn Dunlap, asked the court for Crawford to be released on his own recognizance.

State prosecutors agreed to the release on the condition that Crawford follow court compliance instructions and that he seek treatment for post-traumatic stress disorder.

The reason for Crawford needing treatment was not specified in court Monday or in court documents.

According to court documents, on Aug. 8 and 9, Crawford was examined by a designated examiner for Twin Falls County who is also an

Stocks Slip, but Apple Sets a Record

NEW YORK (AP) • Stocks slipped Monday in one of the quietest trading sessions of the year. Worries about European debt crept up again, and Apple became the most valuable company of all time. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 3.56 points, or 0.3 percent, at 13,271.64. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell a sliver, 0.03 point, to 1,418.13. The Nasdaq composite index fell 0.38 point to 3,076.21. With many traders and investors on vacation, volume on the New York Stock Exchange was light, just 2.7 billion shares traded. The average this year is about 1 billion more.

T.F. County Officials Deny Alleged Discrimination

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office is rejecting charges of sexual harassment and discrimination.

In July, former chief deputy Gerlym "Sam" Walker filed a lawsuit against the county, alleging she was subject to repeated sexual harassment and discrimination from coworkers.

In the complaint, Walker's attorney gave examples of the sexual harassment, including derogatory remarks from male coworkers and SWAT team members allegedly telling her she should lead dangerous entries into structures because "she has no kids, she's old and no one will miss her," according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit also claims Walker was unfairly demoted from her position as chief deputy because of her complaints to Sheriff Tom Carter.

Among other complaints: Carter regularly invited male members of management to coffee, where they made key management decisions. Walker was allegedly excluded from those meetings. Walker also claimed male staff members were allowed perks such as golfing on the clock.

In its response, the county broadly rejects all of Walker's claims, saying little more than Walker was "guilty of negligent or careless misconduct" that resulted in her demotion.

The county is also claiming some or all of the charges are limited by the statute of limitations, and that Walker's complaints do not "rise to the level of a deprivation of rights which are protected by the Constitution."

In the lawsuit, Walker asks for $40,000 per year since her December 2009 demotion, as well as $40,000 every year until she turns 67, yet-to-be-determined damages for emotional suffering and attorney fees.

Why All the Wind?

I live in an area (of Twin Falls) where the houses all have yards right next to each other and the properties are kind of staggered. One neighbor has an old boat she never uses that is filled with wasp nests. Another neighbor's 2-year-old daughter has been stung twice and it's impossible to work in our yards. Is there anything neighbors can do to handle this problem with the city's help?

The first thing to do would be to talk to the neighbor, suggests Sean Standley, code enforcement coordinator for Twin Falls city.

The nuisance of bug infestation can drive a person crazy, especially since it's generally a pest issue rather than a pet issue. Unfortunately, the only code on harboring the critters is if it is a business venture on residential property.

Other than that, there's not much enforcement the city can provide.

One newcomer to the valley asks: Why is it so windy here?

A variety of factors affect the pesky gusts that cause us to reduce the speed of our stroll, make loose-leaf papers come alive as we chase them down the street and ruin perfectly good hairdos.

Valerie Mills, meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Boise, says wind comes from the difference between cool air in the arctic and warm air in the tropics, due to the difference in sun energy reaching these areas.

"The result is a general west wind aloft over Idaho that brings weather systems through the region," Mills said. "West winds align with the Magic Valley's Snake River Plain and are channeled between the mountains of central Idaho and the highlands of southern Twin Falls County. This results in occasionally windy (30 to 40 mph) conditions mainly in March and April."

Jerome Airport Work Nearly Done

TIMES-NEWS

JEROME • After a couple of months of work, renovations at the Jerome County Airport are scheduled to wrap up soon.

Airport Director Linda Nicholson told county commissioners Monday that improvements to the airport's taxiway should be done during the first week of September.

Nicholson told the Times-News the asphalt was aging and had five- to six-inch cracks.

The project is funded through a grant from the Federal Aviation Administration.

Nicholson said the estimated cost is between $850,000 and $900,000.

Renovations at the airport began in late July.

Coeur d'Alene May Do Away with Flagpole Fees

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • A northern Idaho city may do away with a rarely used rule requiring residents to pay $72 in fees if they want erect a flagpole on their property, after a veteran complained to Coeur d'Alene officials about the permit charges.

Doug Shevalier said he found out about the rule from a resident in his community after placing a 16-foot pole in front of his Coeur d'Alene home earlier this year and hoisting an American flag that his children gave to him for Christmas.

"What city in the U.S. would tell a veteran or any homeowner they can't fly a flag without paying?" Shevalier told The Coeur d'Alene Press reports.

Shevalier refused to pay the fees — $47 for a permit and $25 for a site review — and instead decided to approach city officials. The city's Public Works Committee has since recommended that Coeur d'Alene dump the flagpole provision.

The intent of the permit is to ensure residential flagpoles are sturdy and not going to fall over and cause damage, said city building inspector Ted Lantzy. But that scenario is unlikely in residential areas, where flagpoles are typically up to 18 feet and often made out of aluminum, he said.

The City Council is expected to discuss the matter at a meeting Tuesday.

The permitting fee was derived from the International Residential Code, standards that are published by the International Code Council, an organization headquartered in Washington. The code was adopted by the state and most municipalities abide by the rules, Lantzy said.

Salvation Army Offers Help at Trinity Ridge

The group is preparing to serve meals for 100 firefighters over a three-day period.

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With crews battling the Trinity Ridge Fire, a four-member team from the Salvation Army headed out Monday to help with another need.

The Twin Falls chapter will prepare and serve meals to about 100 firefighters for three days at Pine's senior center.

"Our main focus is feeding firefighters," said Nicki Kroese, the organization's business manager.

But the team will also feed any evacuees who may be at the American Red Cross' shelter.

On Monday morning, the team headed to Costco to buy food for the firefighters before leaving Twin Falls.

Kroese said the organization is spending about $6,300 on emergency response efforts for the Trinity Ridge Fire.

"Donations would certainly help defray that cost," she said.

It's not the first time a team from The Salvation Army has helped out at a fire or other emergency.

Kroese said they help out "whenever there's a big need." And she noted the organization isn't the only one around the state that's helping out with emergency response for fires.

Preparing for the Fire

Crews battling the Trinity Ridge Fire continue to build a handline Monday in the northwest and southeast areas of the fire.

The 90,664-acre fire was 5 percent contained as of Monday evening.

The fire was active to the south on Sunday, moving into the area of Big Trinity Campground and Green Creek.

The Elmore County sheriff has ordered an evacuation from Featherville to the Paradise area due to thick smoke and reduced visibility from the fire.

The American Red Cross set up an evacuation center at Pine's senior center and Pines Resort. And a community meeting was held Monday morning at the senior center.

The road through Pine and Featherville remains closed, except for fire and emergency traffic.

The fire — which started earlier this month — has an Oct. 15 expected containment date.

BLM spokeswoman Heather Tiel-Nelson said the fire was contained at 9 p.m. Sunday. She expected the fire would be controlled Monday evening.

Halstead: A community meeting was planned for Monday night at Challis Junior/Senior High School.

The fire is burning 91,987 acres about 18 miles northwest of Stanley. It was 5 percent contained as of Monday evening, and full containment is expected Oct. 16.

Sunday afternoon rain showers and wind helped clear out some smoke in the air.

Bench Fire: The fire is now 100 percent contained and its closure area was lifted Sunday. Idaho Highway 21 remains open.

Report: Twin Falls Bar, Wood River Businesses among Top Liquor Purchasers

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When it came to purchases from the Idaho State Liquor Dispensary, The Pressbox Sports Bar and Grill topped the bracket among Magic Valley businesses last year.

The popular venue on Kimberly Road bought $114,057 worth of liquor during fiscal year 2012 that ended June 30, according to figures from the state agency. That amounted to 7,564 bottles of booze.

Owner Jerod Bosh isn't surprised by the ranking.

"I think we've been on top the last couple of years," he said. "It's about volume. All in all, it results from more customers."

Statewide, a total of 1,221 establishments spent a little more than $30 million on liquor last year. Some 2,090,371 bottles were purchased.

Runner-up in the valley's liquor-acquiring sweepstakes went to Woody's/Blue Room/Cucina Gemelli with expenses of $78,579 for 3,676 bottles.

Following among Magic Valley vendors were the Log Tavern, $71,463; Clover Klub Lounge, $59,400; and the Anchor Bistro and Bar, $54,045.

Mir-A-Mar in Gooding was the most prolific buyer among Magic Valley establishments outside of Twin Falls with 3,818 bottles at a cost of $52,926.

Even The Pressbox paled compared to the business that bought the most liquor in the state: The Coeur d'Alene Resort, with $336,851 in expenses for 21,834 bottles. The Sun Valley Lodge was No. 2 in the state with $306,940 and 17,534.

Just north of the Magic Valley, Ketchum weighed in with five establishments among the state's top purchasers. They were the Casino Club, $163,586; Whiskey Jacques, $163,209; Pioneer Saloon, $110,833; Cornerstone Bar and Grill, $81,238; and The Cellar Pub, $81,238.

WHEELS UP

A federal grant recently awarded to the Twin Falls airport could add a flight or extra capacity to the airport's offerings.

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Within the next year, travelers might have another flight to consider when leaving Twin Falls by air.

Joslin Field, Magic Valley Airport has received a $500,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Transportation to add a fourth daily flight to Salt Lake City or increase the size of planes now making the trip three times a day.

Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Shawn Barigar said it's uncertain which option will be pursued. That will be decided after talks with SkyWest Airlines officials and local business leaders.

The goal is to create more capacity for morning departures, Barigar said, adding that the earliest flight is always filled.

"If you can't get in the system early in the day it makes for a long travel day," he said. "That's where the bottleneck is. This is really good news for business and leisure travelers."

Barigar noted a total of $565,000 will be used to market the added flight or expanded capacity.

Besides the federal grant, $10,000 has been committed by the airport and another $55,000 had been pledged by the chamber, Business Plus and the Southern Idaho Economic Development Organization. Just less than $20,000 of in-kind contributions, including staff time by chamber members, will sweeten the deal.

A SkyWest flight arrives at the Twin Falls airport on Monday.

The infusion of advertising, including a formal marketing plan, is the incentive for SkyWest to bolster its presence here, Barigar said. "They are very positive about the Twin Falls market."

Passengers currently fill about 74 percent of the 630 seats in planes leaving Twin Falls for Salt Lake City, said city spokesman Josh Palmer. That compares to SkyWest's regional average of 63 percent from other cities serving Salt Lake City.

Palmer emphasized that the early morning flights from Twin Falls have even higher ridership — an average of 86 percent of seats are filled then.

He said the city doesn't have a preference whether SkyWest adds another flight or brings in larger planes for existing trips. "As long as they increase capacity," he said.

Pocatello's airport filed for a similar grant and the airline brought in a larger jet, Palmer said.

Barigar estimated the marketing effort might begin next spring, just before travelers begin flocking to airports for summer trips. The marketing push will start two months before SkyWest upgrades its service and will last for 14 months.

"The goal is to get expanded capacity, but then as a community we need to step up and use it," Barigar said.

Twin Falls Mayor Greg Lanting said in a news release that local air service has helped attract some of the region's largest employers. That attraction took a hit in fall 2011 when SkyWest reduced daily flights from four to three.

"The airport has played a critical role in attracting businesses like Chobani to our community, and it helps retain many important businesses in our area that need air service to operate efficiently," Lanting said.

Apple Sets Record for Company Value at $624B

BY PETER SVENSSON
Associated Press

NEW YORK • Apple is Wall Street's all-time MVP — that's Most Valuable Property.

On Monday, Apple's surging stock propelled the company's value to $624 billion, the world's highest, ever. It beat the record for market capitalization set by Microsoft Corp. in the heady days of the Internet boom.

After a four-month dip, Apple's stock has hit new highs recently because of optimism around what is believed to be the impending launch of the iPhone 5, and possibly a smaller, cheaper iPad.

Apple Inc. has been the world's most valuable company since the end of last year. It's now worth 54 percent more than No. 2 Exxon Mobil Corp.

Apple's stock closed at $665.15. That was an all-time high, up $17.04, or 2.6 percent, from Friday's close.

Microsoft's 1999 peak was $620.58 billion, according to Standard & Poor's.

The comparison to Microsoft does not take inflation into account. In inflation-adjusted dollars, the software giant was worth about $850 billion on Dec. 30, 1999. Microsoft is now worth $257 billion.

Analysts believe Apple's stock has room to grow. The average price target of 38 analysts polled by FactSet is $745.80.

Apple employees welcome hundreds of customers in front of the Apple store at a shopping mall in Oberhausen, western Germany, on March 16 as the new iPad went on sale at the Apple store. On Monday, Apple set a new record for the most valuable company at $621 billion, beating Microsoft's 1999 high.

Despite the surge, Apple's stock is not particularly expensive compared to its earnings for the last twelve months. The company's "price-to-earnings ratio" is 15.6, compared with 16.1 for the S&P 500 overall. That suggests investors, unlike analysts, don't believe the company can grow its profits much from current levels.

Microsoft had a price-to-earnings ratio of 83 at the 1999 peak. The stock was caught up in the Internet mania of the time and investors believed it could boost its future earnings massively.

Analysts believe the launch of a new iPhone in a month or two will be Apple's biggest product introduction yet.

Scott Sutherland at Wedbush Morgan noted that some investors sold Apple shares last summer, when iPhone sales slowed down as consumers started holding off for the new model. Those investors missed out on a 50 percent jump in the stock price.

"This time around, investors are a little bit smarter across the board ... they don't want to be caught not involved in the stock on this next iPhone launch," Sutherland said.

Analysts also speculate that a "mini iPad," could expand the number of people who can afford one of Apple's tablets. The cheapest iPad cost $399, compared to $199 for the latest Google and Amazon tablets.

Analysts are speculating — based on rumors — that Apple plans to make a TV set to complete its suite of consumer electronics products.

Lowe's 2Q Results Miss Expectations, Cuts Outlook

BY ANNE D'INNOCENZIO

NEW YORK • For Lowe's, the improving housing market is still a bust.

The nation's second largest improvement retailer cut its full-year-earnings and revenue forecasts Monday after posting a 10 percent drop in second-quarter net income. Revenue at stores opened at least a year, a key yardstick for measuring the health of the retailer, declined 0.4 percent.

Lowe's results were hurt in part by a timing shift in how the retailer reported the quarter and a charge tied to job cuts. But the latest performance also shows the company's efforts to revamp its merchandise and prices aren't working while its rival Home Depot is getting a boost from the improving but still weak housing market.

In particular, Lowe's return last summer to offering permanent low prices in many items across the store, instead of offering fleeting discounts, hasn't yet resonated with shoppers who have been accustomed to seeing big sales signs. In fact, Lowe's said Monday that it will take until the middle of next year to reap the benefits of the strategy. Earlier, Lowe's said it would happen by the end of 2012. The company said it is taking apart its pricing plan to have a better balance between temporary promotions and permanent discounts based on what it's learned from shoppers.

"We knew it would take time to see the full benefits of our actions," Lowe's chairman, president and CEO Bob Niblock told investors during a call Monday following the release. "The team is making progress on these initiatives, but frankly, the benefits are accruing at a slower rate than I had expected."

Lowe's performance is in contrast to last week's upbeat report from Home Depot Inc. The nation's largest home-improvement retailer boosted its full-year outlook, citing its performance so far this year. And said that strong cost controls and healthy sales of paint, bathroom accessories and kitchen installations helped lift its net income by 12 percent during the period. Revenue at stores opened at least a year rose 2.1 percent.

In a conference call last week with investors, Chairman and CEO Frank Blake noted that some of the strongest growth in the latest quarter came from the markets that were hit hardest in the downturn, such as California and Florida.

"These are encouraging signs of stabilization in the housing market," Blake said.

Summertime Blues for Drivers: Gas at August Record

BY SANDY SHORE

Associated Press

You may pay more than ever for a late-summer drive.

U.S. drivers paid an average of $3.72 per gallon on Monday. That's the highest price ever on this date, according to auto club AAA, a shade above the $3.717 average on Aug. 20, 2008. A year ago, the average was $3.578.

More daily records are likely over the next few weeks. The national average could increase to $3.75 per gallon by Labor Day, said Tom Kloza, chief oil analyst at Oil Price Information Service. By comparison, gas prices stayed below $3.70 in late August and early September in both 2008 and 2011.

Retail gasoline prices have gone up about 39 cents per gallon, or 12 percent, since hitting a low of $3.326 on July 2, according to AAA, OPIS and Wright Express. Kloza estimates that U.S. drivers are paying $149 million more each day for gas than in early July. That isn't what the sluggish economy needs, since any extra money that goes to fill gas tanks doesn't get spent at movie theaters or restaurants.

The price at the pump in the U.S. fell more than 60 cents per gallon during the spring when oil fell as the global economy slowed and turmoil in the Middle East seemed to subside.

But oil has risen to $96 per barrel from $78 in late June. Investors have been worried about disruption to oil supplies in the Middle East and North Sea. In the U.S., there were problems with refineries and pipelines in the West Coast and Midwest, including a fire in California. Seasonal factors are also at play: Summer blends of gas cost more and demand goes up as families go on vacation.

Analysts expect prices to drop after Labor Day, so at least drivers shouldn't have to worry about a return to the April high of $3.94 per gallon, barring a hurricane or other unforeseen event.

Still, commuters and vacationers are frustrated, said Michael Green, spokesman for AAA. It's tougher to budget a summer trip and discouraging to see a larger chunk of one's pay check going toward gas costs. As for a post-Labor Day drop, he said in an emailed statement that, "It would take a significant decline in the price of gasoline for most Americans to feel comfortable with what they pay at the pump."

Still, that frustration shouldn't stop people from hitting the road said Brooke Ferencsik, director of communications at TripAdvisor. He said a majority of travelers recently surveyed by the travel advice site indicated they'll stick to fall travel plans even if they pay more for gas.

Whether pump prices impact the presidential election remains to be seen. But the Obama administration appears to be concerned. A senior administration official told The Associated Press Friday that the U.S. is considering a release of oil from the country's strategic reserves. It will monitor gas prices to see whether they fall before making a decision.

Local Gas Prices

AAA Idaho cited the following averages prices for regular gasoline as of Monday:

- Twin Falls: $3.62
- Burley: $3.58
- Gooding: $3.60
- Hailey: $3.88
- Jerome: $3.58
- Rupert: $3.63
- Shoshone: $3.60

NEW YORK • Some of the most promising talent in show business was on the bill one day and night in 1955 at San Francisco's Purple Onion:

Eartha Kitt and Alice Ghostley; Paul Lynde and Robert Clary; a singer and dancer with the stage name Maya Angelou, and an eccentric former housewife, a few years older than her fellow performers, with the married name Phyllis Diller.

Angelou's family, including two small children (Clyde and Joyce), were seated in the front row. Years later, she would remember watching Diller and wondering how her guests would respond to her friend's "aura of madness."

"Black people rarely forgave whites for being ragged, unkempt and uncaring. There was a saying which explained the disapproval, 'You been white all your life. Ain't got no further along than this? What ails you?'" Angelou wrote in "Singin' and Swingin' and Getting Merry Like Christmas," a memoir published in 1976.

"When Phyllis came on stage Clyde almost fell off the chair and Joyce nearly knocked over her Shirley Temple. The comedienne, dressed outrageously and guffawing like a hiccupping horse and a bell clapper, chose to play to the two children. They were charmed and so convulsed they gasped for breath."

The housewife soon became a star.

"AH-HHHAAAAAAAAA-HA-HA-HA!"

Diller, the cackling tem-plate for Joan Rivers, Sarah Silverman and so many others, died Monday morning in her Los Angeles home at age 95. She faced the end, fittingly, "with a smile on her face," said longtime manager Milton Suchin.

"I've accomplished so much more than I ever would have, thanks to BELTONE TRUE™."

Q. What are intergenerational programs?
A. Today's society seems designed to keep older people and younger people apart! Intergenerational programs are bucking that trend by offering old and young alike the chance to experience meaningful, caring relationships. Many schools, child care facilities and senior citizen centers have developed intergenerational programs that bring together individuals from different generations to work in mutually beneficial activities. Perhaps older adults come into schools, read to a small group of children, listen to children read or practice flash card skills. Perhaps young members of a T-Ball team or soccer team adopt an older adult residential facility and develop meaningful relationships through service projects or pen-pal programs. Perhaps seniors are "Storytellers" at a local library or child care center during the summer. Perhaps older adults and high school students enjoy planning and initiating a joint Senior Prom or community beautification project. Whatever the community or school needs, programs are enriched by different generations coming together to contribute and learn from each other. Everyone benefits.

Having More Retirement Accounts Is Not The Same As Having More Money.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying "more is better" is not necessarily true. In fact, if you hold multiple accounts with various brokers, it can be difficult to keep track of your investments and to see if you're properly diversified.* At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

Bringing your accounts to Edward Jones could help solve all that. Plus, one statement can make it easier to see if you're moving toward your goals.

* Diversification does not guarantee a profit or protect against loss.

To learn why consolidating your retirement accounts to Edward Jones makes sense, call your local financial advisor today.

"It seems to me first of all from what I understand from doctors that's really rare. If it's a legitimate rape, the female body has ways to try to shut that whole thing down."

Missouri Congressman Todd Akin in a TV interview commenting about a rape victim's chances of becoming pregnant

Killing the Lion in Idaho Was Legal, but It's Not That Simple

Dan Richards has gotten pounded in the last few months, reviled by what he calls "enviro-terrorists," criticized by some of his own hunting brothers, stripped of his president's post on the California Game and Fish Commission. His is a tale of an out-of-state hunting trip, a mountain lion, some trophy pictures, an eco-outcry, political backlash, California social weirdness and staggering hypocrisy.

Richards is 60 and runs a real estate brokerage in Up-land, which is between Los Angeles and San Bernadino. His brother, Mark, lives in Austin, he says. I caught up with Dan on the phone last week, saying I wanted to talk about the lion.

"Get in line," he joked. But he's not joking about his situation nor is he wallowing in self-doubt after months of controversy.

"There is evil in their subterfuge," Richards says from his office. "They are chipping away at the sporting community's rights, and I'm not afraid to challenge them on it."

"This isn't about the mountain lion," he says. "It's about me taking on the enviro-terrorists. They want to take over this department, and it's anything they can do to (achieve that)."

Let's talk about the mountain lion. The lion lived in Idaho. In February, Richards went hunting there and killed the lion. It's legal to do that in Idaho. It's not legal in California except in public safety situations.

Richards posted pictures posing with the lion. Someone alerted the Humane Society of the United States. Critics surfaced, aghast. And a campaign began to boot him from the California commission.

California Lt. Gov. Gavin Newsom at one point called for Richards' resignation, saying that his "actions do not reflect the values of the people of California." Richards can't conceal contempt for Newsom and doesn't try. He points out that the values of the people of California don't allow casino gambling but that many people still go to Las Vegas for their blackjack fix. And therein lies the problem. Legalties versus values. And whose values?

"I went on a legal hunt, in a state where lion hunting is legal," Richards says. Of course, it's not that simple.

Critics focused on the difference between California and Idaho values, not just the difference in the laws. They said the photos of Richards holding the very large and very dead cat showed he does not share the values that he is supposed to support in his public role on the California commission.

Which some folks say is hypocritical. I say it's beyond hypocritical, bordering on absurd.

"This entire department is made up of hunters and fishers," says Adrianna Shea, deputy director of California Fish and Game. Many of those staff members travel to other states to hunt, when they can't hunt in their home state, she says, and they aren't sanctioned for it. Richards has been a lightning rod for anti-hunters, Shea says, because of his in-your-face approach to dealing with them.

"They have a very clear agenda (to change hunting and fishing laws in the state), and they saw this as an opportunity," she says.

Some of Richards' fellow commissioners didn't like what they saw and even a few hunters were dismayed by the photos of Richards with the lion because they fear public demands for even more controls over hunting than exist now in California. Richards' fellow commissioners have gone on to remove him as president of the group, although he remains a member until his six-year term expires next year.

If there is a cautionary footnote to this story, it might be this: Being legal isn't always enough to avoid controversy and criticism. And being out there on the Internet with photos and commentary can be just asking for trouble.

Times-News in Search of Point/Counterpoint Writers

In recent months, the Times-News has published a feature called "Point/Counterpoint" in the Sunday Opinion section.

It's been a chance to hear local voices offering different perspectives on political issues.

We are looking for more writers who would like to offer their opinion (in 400 words or less). Assignments are given weeks in advance on topics of interest to you.

If you would like to contribute to the Point/Counterpoint feature, please send an email to Editor Autumn Agar at aagar@magicvalley.com. In the email, please provide some information about yourself as well as a list of topics or fields of interest that you would like to write about.

In September, we are looking for authors interested in writing the "against" side of the Gay Marriage debate and the "against" side in the Should We Continue to Invest in Wind Energy? debate.

ONLINE COMMENTS

The conversation continues 24/7 at Magicvalley.com.

Sports reporter Ryan Howe kicked up quite the firestorm with his column, "Ditch the 9-iron, Pick up a Drone:"

musmagic: "1. This comment in the article is the opinion of the writer, not fact: "Disclaimer: This column is not intended to argue that disc golf is a sport. At best, it sits on the fringes somewhere between horseshoes and croquet." Calling disc golf a sport isn't even thought of in most minds, because it is a sport. 2. "Disc golf is similar to real golf, though not nearly as frustrating or expensive." REAL GOLF? Most disc golfers will not like hearing these words together in reference to BALL golf. Disc golf is a real thing to do, therefore it is real golf just like ball golf is.

tigerfan4321: "I have to agree with the previous comments. Press is press. The disclaimer was just too much though. So you went and watched a tournament and threw a couple of disc. How about make a statement like that after you played a tour-namment or a couple of rounds and then say it is somewhere between horseshoes and croquet ...

"By making a statement like that you just further the stereotypes that have been placed on Disc Golf. Any good reporter knows that you must truly investigate something before making the statement you did."

dan-da-lion: "... I also wanted to point out that a Crush and a Drone aren't very good beginner discs, they are good discs but both are too overstable for most beginners. The Magnet, however, is a great putter at all skill levels. I know it doesn't really matter but I didn't want someone reading this article and thinking they needed to buy those discs to get started in disc golf."

McBane: "... Ryan needs to get out of his backyard and actually try to play the SPORT before he can compare it to anything. ... I love the attention the SPORT is getting though, thanks Magic Valley Times-News for at least showing people what we do at Lake Walcott ... the best Disc Course in the state. ..."

Obama Making This Country Weaker, Deeper in Debt

This is the way I see it. Obama wants big government so he and his administration can have full control of our lives and our money.

All these trillions of dollars, where do they all go really? Why did Obama say to the Russians that after he is re-elected, then he would have more flexibility? Isn't it possible that he is making our country weak so that people from other countries can come in and have their way with us? How well do you know him anyway? Just because you shake his hand and drink a beer with him, you think he is a friend to our country?

I work for a rich man and so do you – if you have a job, that is. So tell me, if these businesses go broke because of Obama's plan, then what? Miss a payment on something and they will tell you what's what.

I hear people say what a wonderful job he's done and, personally, I don't see that he's done anything except put our country deeper in debt.

His administration and he wants to change our Constitution and amendments or take them away completely in good time.

Why does anyone in their right mind want this for our country and the next generation?

It's just not right.

Bravo to the Twin Falls Municipal Band for another wonderful summer concert season. Thanks to everyone who helped make this possible.

I can't believe 10 weeks of concerts have come and gone. The Twin Falls City Park is now silent, except for a few picnics every so often.

I sure hope other concert-goers would take 10 minutes and send off a note of thanks to the Times-News to show their appreciation to everyone involved in this wonderful endeavor.

Once again, bravo on a job well done!

Less Religious States Give Less to Charities

BOSTON (AP) • States with the least religious residents are also the stingiest about giving money to charity, a new study on the generosity of Americans suggests.

The study, released Monday by the Chronicle of Philanthropy, found that residents in states where religious participation is higher than the rest of the nation, particularly in the South, gave the greatest percentage of their discretionary income to charity.

The Northeast, with lower religious participation, was the least generous to charities, with the six New England states filling the last six slots among the 50 states. Churches are among the organizations counted as charities by the study, and some states in the Northeast rank in the top 10 when religious giving is not counted.

The most generous state was Utah, where residents gave 10.6 percent of their discretionary income to charity. Next were Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina. The least generous was New Hampshire, at 2.5 percent, followed by Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

In Boston, semi-retired carpenter Stephen Cremins said the traditional New England ideal of self-sufficiency might explain the lower giving, particularly during tight times when people have less to spare.

“Charity begins at home. I’m a big believer of that. You know, you have to take care of yourself before you can help others,” Cremins said.

The study found that in the Northeast region, including New England, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York, people gave 4.1 percent of their discretionary income to charity.

The Bible mandates a 10 percent annual donation, or tithe, to the church, and the donation is commonly preached as a way to thank God, care for others and show faith in God’s provision.

In Mormon teachings, for instance, Latter Day Saints are required to pay a 10 percent tithe to remain church members in good standing, which helps explain the high giving rate in heavily-Mormon Utah.

“Any LDS member who is faithful does that,” said Valerie Mason, 70, of Mesa, Ariz., during an interview in Salt Lake City. “Some struggle with it. Some leave the church because of it. But we believe in the blessing. ... Tithing does bring the blessing of God’s promise.”

Missouri Congressman Called Out for Rape Comment

ST. LOUIS (AP) • Rep. Todd Akin fought to salvage his Senate campaign Monday, even as members of his own party turned against him and a key source of campaign funding was cut off in outrage over the Missouri congressman’s comments that women are able to prevent pregnancies in cases of “legitimate rape.”

Akin

Akin made no public appearances but went on former Republican presidential candidate Mike Huckabee’s national radio show to apologize. He vowed to continue his bid for higher office.

“The good people of Missouri nominated me, and I’m not a quitter,” Akin said. “To quote my old friend John Paul Jones, I have not yet begun to fight.”

But Akin seemed to be losing political support by the hour as fellow Republicans urged him to abandon a race the party had long considered essential in their bid to regain control of the Senate. Incumbent Democrat Claire McCaskill is seen as vulnerable in public opinion polls and because she is a close ally of President Barack Obama.

An official with the National Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee said the group’s head, Texas Sen. John Cornyn, called Akin on Monday to tell him the committee withdrew $5 million in advertising planned for the Missouri race. The official spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because the conversation was private.

Publicly, Cornyn called Akin’s comments “indefensible” and suggested he take 24 hours to consider “what is best for him, his family, the Republican Party and the values that he cares about and has fought for.”

The Senate’s top Republican, Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, said Akin’s remarks about rape may “prevent him from effectively representing” the Republican Party.

Two other Republican senators — Scott Brown of Massachusetts and Ron Johnson of Wisconsin — urged Akin to step aside from the Senate race.

Brown, who is locked in a tight race with Democrat Elizabeth Warren, said Akin’s comments were “outrageous, inappropriate and wrong.”

Johnson called Akin’s statements “reprehensible and inexcusable,” and urged Akin to withdraw “so Missouri Republicans can put forth a candidate that can win in November.”

Akin also got a swift rebuke from the campaign of presumptive GOP presidential nominee Mitt Romney and his running mate, Rep. Paul Ryan.

Romney and Ryan “disagree with Mr. Akin’s statement, and a Romney-Ryan administration would not oppose abortion in instances of rape,” Romney spokeswoman Amanda Henneberg said.

Judge Refuses to Toss ‘Shovel Brigade’ Deal

BY MEAD GRUVER
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • A federal judge on Monday refused to grant a request by environmentalists to throw out a settlement agreement between the federal government and local officials in Elko County that would legitimize the existence of a controversial road in northern Nevada.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Roger L. Hunt means the 13-year-old case is likely to grind on for some time unless those involved reach a new agreement. Hunt encouraged all sides to do so.

He called the settlement being contested by two environmental groups “a good effort” and questioned whether closing the road — which the groups contend is the ideal option to protect a population of threatened bull trout — would be all that helpful for the fish.

“I think it ought to be settled,” Hunt said of the lawsuit.

An attorney for two environmental groups that have joined the case, The Wilderness Society and Great Old Broads for Wilderness, pointed out that while Hunt didn’t toss out the settlement on Monday, the deal has yet to take effect.

“We’ll live to fight another day,” Michael Freeman said after the hearing in Las Vegas.

Elko County Commissioner Demar Dahl said the decision sounded good.

“If it would end it, it would be even better,” he told the Elko Daily Free Press.

The case involves an unpaved road along the Jarbidge River in Elko County near Idaho that washed out in 1995. The U.S. Forest Service decided not to rebuild the road, citing fears the road would encourage erosion and wash silt into the water, harming the river’s bull trout.

Protesters known as the “Shovel Brigade” worked to rebuild the road themselves. Their work took place outside of the usual approval process required by federal environmental laws, prompting the federal government to sue local officials.

The two sides agreed to settle the lawsuit but an appeals court has allowed the two environmental groups to try to block the deal. The groups are seeking to either have the road closed or scaled back to a trail open only to non-motorized use.

A lingering issue is the basis for the settlement. The road crosses about a mile and a half of Humboldt-Toiyabe National Forest and Elko County would like for the road to be legally justified as a right-of-way that predates the national forest, which was established in 1909.

Such a right of way would give county officials more control over the road than if it were justified under a later federal law such as the 1976 Federal Land Management Policy Act, which would enable the Forest Service to retain control.

Augusta Gets First Female Members

NEW YORK (AP) • The home of the Masters now has green jackets for women.

In a historic change at one of the world’s most exclusive golf clubs, Augusta National invited former Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice and South Carolina financier Darla Moore to become the first female members since the club was founded in 1932.

“This is a joyous occasion,” chairman Billy Payne said Monday.

For some, it was a long time coming.

Martha Burk and her women’s advocacy group first challenged the club 10 years ago over its all-male membership. The debate returned this year when IBM, one of the top corporate sponsors of the Masters, appointed Virginia Rometty as its chief executive. The previous four CEOs of Big Blue had all been Augusta National members.

The battle ended in typical style for Augusta National, with an understated announcement that left even Burk stunned.

“Oh my God. We won,” she blurted out when contacted by The Associated Press.

Burk was not the first advocate to draw attention to women being left out, but it was an exchange with former chairman Hootie Johnson in 2002 that ignited the issue. Feeling as though the Augusta National was being bullied, Johnson stood his ground, even at the cost of cutting loose television sponsors for two years, when he famously said the club may one day ask a woman to join, “but that timetable will be ours and not at the point of a bayonet.”

WAR EMPOWERS KURDISH MINORITY

BEIRUT (AP) • Last month, while the world’s attention was focused on battles raging in Syria’s two largest cities, a quiet transformation was taking place in the country’s oil-rich northeast where about 2 million minority Kurds live.

In mid-July, regime forces began pulling back from several towns and villages near the Turkish border. They ceded de facto control to armed Kurdish fighters who have since set up checkpoints, hoisted Kurdish flags, and began exercising a degree of autonomy unheard of before.

It is an extraordinary development for a community that has long been oppressed and discriminated against by the Assad regime, one that threatens to upset a decades-long geopolitical balance involving Syria, Turkey and Iraq, and challenge old regional alliances.

“The Kurds are emerging as one of the major winners of the crisis in Syria,” said Fawaz A. Gerges, director of the Middle East Center at the London School of Economics. “They have begun laying the foundation for an autonomous region like their counterparts in Iraq.

tion for them.”

Kurds see their chance to win the kind of autonomy their ethnic brothers enjoy in Iraq.

But this raises alarm bells for Turkey, one of the key state backers of the rebels trying to overthrow President Bashar Assad and a country where Kurdish rebels have been fighting a violent struggle for self-rule for the last 28 years.

Turkey is increasingly worried that the chaos in Syria will open up a new base for Kurdish rebels to press their struggle for self-rule. The government in Ankara warned it would “not tolerate” any rebel threats from Syrian territory and has staged a number of military drills across the border to put a fine point on it.

Council Approves Budget

BY MELISSA DAVLIN
mdavlin@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • After months of work, the city of Twin Falls has a budget for 2013.

On Monday evening, the Twin Falls City Council approved a $49.25 million budget for the next fiscal year. The approval came after a public hearing, in which city residents encouraged the council to remain conservative in its spending.

The main talking point: A 3 percent bump in the property tax rate, the maximum hike allowed under Idaho statute. Though the tax rate is rising, most Twin Falls homeowners will actually pay less in taxes because of decreasing property values, said City Manager Travis Rothweiler.

Along with the tax rate increase comes increases in the water, sewer and sanitation rates.

The budget also includes appropriations using cash reserves for one-time projects, such as a bookmobile and shelving for the Twin Falls Public Library, improvements at city parks, firearms for narcotics detectives and a dual-purpose canine.

The public hearing drew

By the Numbers T.F. City Budget

- 3 percent property tax increase
- 2.5 percent performance-based raise for city employees
- 3 percent increase in water rates, 2 percent increase in sewer rates, and 1.16 percent increase in sanitation rates
- $1.18 million of cash reserves spent for one-time projects

Total budget: $49,254,478, a 7.56 percent increase from the 2012 fiscal year only four members of the public out to testify, all of whom encouraged the council to remain conscious of the taxpayers when considering raising taxes.

"Our groceries are going up. Our gas prices are going up. I'm constantly having to cut back on activities for my children," said Marilyn Tarkalson of Twin Falls. "I feel like we're always having to pay more and more (as) a property taxpayer."

Steve Maschek said while he didn't want to pay more than necessary, he did appreciate the city's planning.

"I'm happy to pay an extra five bucks today so we're not paying 50 bucks tomorrow," Maschek said.

Members of the council thanked the small group for their testimony. Vice Mayor Don Hall acknowledged that there are increases in the budget, but emphasized he felt confident that the money would be well-invested.

"If we don't have the resources to serve our community, then we're not doing our job," Hall said.

Councilman Chris Talkington said that while there is a tax increase, he did believe the budget was fiscally responsible. Talkington pointed out that the city has passed up previous opportunities to raise taxes, then defended budgeted raises for city employees.

In an emergency, Talkington said, "I want to have an experienced officer who has decided to stay in Twin Falls and knows the beat and stays calm under duress."

After a short discussion, the council unanimously approved the budget.

Breathe

Twin Falls Animal Shelter Director Debbie Blackwood said it's hard to determine if a respiratory issue in an animal stems from the wildfire smoke.

"But we've had staff members that have been sick from the smoke," Blackwood said.

Blackwood said staff members have complained about congestion and persistent coughs.

"This summer all the wildfires coincided with a prolonged period of overnight inversions that have really kept us socked in," said Colin Baxter, meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Boise.

Baxter said because wildfires are burning in surrounding states, even when the wind picks up it just blows in smoke from another area.

"Unfortunately, there hasn't been enough rain or strong enough wind to blow it all out," Baxter said.

Wickern said he's seen a definite increase in the number of patients coming into his office suffering from smoke inhalation symptoms. The increase in patients began about a month ago and has continued substantially for the past 2 1/2 weeks.

The smoke can cause both upper and lower respiratory symptoms that include coughing, shortness of breath, pain during breathing, a sore throat, and nasal and sinus congestion.

"Coughing is definitely the number one symptom," Wickern said.

He said the best advice for anyone who is susceptible to respiratory irritation is to stay indoors where there is some type of air filtration, and run the air conditioner to moderate the temperature.

Wickern said anyone who has coughing or has any degree of shortness of breath should see their primary physician. People should also make sure they are taking any medications as prescribed by their doctors.

Oakley resident Dorothy Robinson, 89, suffers from asthma so severe at times she has been hospitalized. But she's learned to take care of herself.

"As long as I stay in my house, I'm fine," Robinson said.

Wickern said there will be extra particles in the air until harvest is complete in October.

"We could have a respiratory perfect storm," he said.

Turnovers Will Form Identity of Bronco Defense

IDAHO PRESS-TRIBUNE

BOISE • Boise State's new defensive backs coach, Jimmy Lake, has a simple focus for his group.

"I tell this whole group, all the time, we're going to be defined by how many times we get the ball back for the offense," he said.

Certainly creating turnovers is the focus for any defense, but it has been a point of emphasis all fall with Lake, whose two most recent coaching stops were in the NFL with Detroit and Tampa Bay.

"More emphasis getting our hands on the ball ... it's definitely installed in our head to get turnovers," senior cornerback Jamar Taylor said. "At the right time, if you see it, we're not going to just try to bat down the ball."

Boise State intercepted 15 passes last season, nine by defensive backs and seven were by players returning in 2012. The Broncos created 26 turnovers last season — coach Chris Petersen said if the team can create 30 or more, it would be an elite defense.

If not for a rash of injuries last season, that number may have been reached.

Cornerback Jerrell Gavins had three interceptions in three games before a season-ending ACL injury, while Taylor missed four games with a stress fracture. Gavins was sidelined, while Taylor was only able to play about a quarter in the Broncos' lone loss last season, when TCU threw for 473 yards.

"Just there on the sideline, wanting to help my teammates when I couldn't, that was the biggest thing, especially the TCU game," said Gavins, back for his senior year. "Certainly the games when I knew I recognized something and the ball was thrown and I knew I'd definitely be able to pick it off."

Junior Ebo Makinde and sophomore Bryan Douglas both return. Each made starts with Gavins and Taylor out. Junior college transfer Deon'tae Florence has also impressed, and Petersen considered him his MVP in the team's first scrimmage.

"Especially with what happened last year, you always need depth," safety Lee Hightower said. "... I think we've done well. We've clicked and got on the same page."

Hightower, who started four games at cornerback last season because of the injuries, is slated to start at safety, his more natural position. Fellow sophomore Jeremy Ioane has begun to scratch his potential, but is currently battling senior Hazen Moss at the other safety spot.

"I think there's talent there, I think we've got a very good coach back there — and that's a pretty good combination," Petersen said. "The one thing we don't have in the safety position is a lot of experience. There's no substitute for that, that's going to take some time."

Though the front end of the secondary has much more experience than the back end, the Broncos are certainly intrigued by the potential of the safeties, and there is a heightened sense of awareness for the need to fill key spots.

"It's time to step up," Ioane said.

If this fall's scrimmages have been any indication, the whole group has stepped up — Petersen praised the defensive backs in particular after the first scrimmage, then they picked off four passes in Saturday's final scrimmage.

"That's the focus of every practice, every day, every meeting, so it's good to come out here in front of the fans and actually get it done," Hightower said.

WAC Won't Be Football Conference Beyond 2012

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. • The commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference said Monday that it has become apparent the league won't have enough football members to compete after this season, and his focus now is on trying to keep the conference together for other sports.

The 50-year-old WAC would be the first Division I conference to give up on football since the Southwest Conference dissolved in 1995, and it might go the way of the SWC, too, and cease to exist altogether.

"It doesn't mean we've given up on the idea of football for the future, but it's apparent we don't have enough members in 2013 to play football," Jeff Hurd told

The Associated Press.

That means New Mexico State would have to join Idaho and play as an FBS independent next year. The WAC's five other football members — Louisiana Tech, San Jose State, Texas State, Utah State and Texas-San Antonio — leave the league after this year.

San Jose State and Utah State are joining the Mountain West. Louisiana Tech and Texas-San Antonio will join Conference USA, and Texas State will go to the Sun Belt in 2013.

So, the WAC would have to add six FBS programs to continue playing football.

"The bottom line is those numbers are not out there," Hurd said. "So, my goal is to add enough schools to maintain the conference in 2013."

Making Up for Lost (Football) Time

This corner has told this story countless times to hundreds of people, but with what I'm about to say, it bears repeating. Yours truly had the misfortune of attending the largest school in the state of New York — outside of New York City — not to field a football program.

That would be Spencerport High School, where my graduating class numbered well over 300 students.

I've been trying to make up for it ever since.

This is why I love the high school football season more than any other.

Because of the past shortcomings of my school — the Rangers now have

Patrick Sheltra
Sports Editor

varsity football and within a short time of starting the program, produced a scholarship player to Penn State who eventually played in the NFL in Alan Zemaitis — I gravitated toward basketball.

Autumns were spent watching soccer. It's where my sports writing career began for the local town weekly. In a way, not having football was a benefit in that it helped shape my future career.

And hopefully those benefits are extended to you, the reader.

In Wednesday's Times-News, you will find our preseason football preview — a 24-page special that takes the required glances at each team, does its best to give some underrated players a small piece of the spotlight and breaks down some of the more successful plays from some of the area's more successful teams.

Without revealing too much of what is in the tab, allow me a brief thank-you for the coaches who went along with our request. Not a single coach who was approached turned down our idea, which speaks either to their professionalism or their own passion for football, or probably a lot of both.

I can't think of a project we do with high school sports on an annual basis that is more enjoyable to put together than the football tab. Sure, covering a team playing for a state championship in a packed house provides the rush big-time events usually provide. However, such games are often anticlimactic and the pressure to win that is placed on kids — yes, our media efforts sometimes add to that pressure — can take away the fun of it all.

In the preseason, optimism reigns. Every team is a playoff contender, many have state trophies of varying significance as a goal

2012 BOYS SOCCER PREVIEW

FAMILY TIES

'Papa Bear' Nyblade knew most of his players first as younger siblings of since-graduated players.

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • To Burley High soccer players, Wes Nyblade is more than a coach. "He's Papa Bear," said senior Angel Anguiano.

The Burley soccer program feels like a big family — both literally and figuratively. Of Burley's 16 current varsity players, eight have older brothers who played for Nyblade.

"That tradition has been going on since our older brothers, and now us," said senior forward Brandon Castaneda. "And we have younger brothers and we expect a lot out of them. We bring them to games and we encourage them to play soccer so that they can be like us because we have a lot of pride for our school."

Zach Searle is the fourth out of five soccer-playing brothers in his family. He said watching his older brothers win with Nyblade helped him prepare for when it became his turn to don the green and white.

"It's a tradition to win," Searle said. "Coach Nyblade is hard on you, but he's relaxed, too. He's the best of both worlds."

Burley, which won the Class 4A District IV title last season, is a perennial contender, having gone to state eight of the past 11 years. Much of the success can be attributed to the program's patriarch, who is now in his 19th season as the school's soccer coach.

"He knows so much about soccer. When we listen to Nyblade, good things happen. We found that out last year and we won the district title because we listened to him," said Anguiano, who is the third brother in his family to play at Burley.

With 189 career wins, Nyblade could reach the 200-win plateau this season

AREA TEAM CAPSULES

Class 4A Great Basin Conference

MINICO made it to the state tournament for the first time ever last year, but graduated 13 seniors from that team. Goals should still pour in, which could help a young defense. ... WOOD RIVER is looking to get over the hump and back to the state tournament. The Wolverines always seem to be in good position at season's end, no matter how it starts. ... JEROME came within a whisker of reclaiming the district championship last season, then was bounced by Minico in the final elimination game. The Tigers have a decent core returning and should again be in the running. ... TWIN FALLS has a strong defense coming back, but scoring goals could be a concern, as might the search for positive chemistry after a few turbulent seasons. ... CANYON RIDGE has a new coach in Derek Riddle, who hopes to improve the team at both ends of the pitch. The Riverhawks are still seeking their first state tournament berth.

Class 3A High Desert Conference

THE COMMUNITY SCHOOL boasts 18 experienced upperclassmen, putting the team a leg up in the chase for conference supremacy — provided it can score enough goals, a big problem last season. ... BUHL was one of the better teams in the conference a year ago but stumbled in the district tournament. The team is just as talented this year, though not as deep. ... GOODING has made state tournaments a habit in the last few years, but the Senators are looking to bounce back from missing out in 2011. Coach Roger Johnson always has an attack-minded club that will be in the conversation. ... WENDELL struggled down the stretch last season but still has a few 2010 state champion holdovers to lead the way. Can the defense, which conceded less than two goals per game last season, hold out? ... BLISS returns some experienced attackers but has to rebuild its back five, including goalkeeper. Twin Falls High grad Darren Van Hofewegen takes over as coach. ... FILER came from down the conference standings to win the district championship a year ago, but almost all the vital players from that team, as well as the head coach, are gone. Former player Jesus Mejia takes over, needing to build cohesion and chemistry in a hurry. ... DECLO nearly lost its program due to insufficient numbers a season ago, but the Hornets have 17 players and hope being able to play a full schedule again will lead to further growth.

if Burley plays to its potential. The Bobcats return 12 players from last year's team, including eight seniors.

"I have great expectations for these kids. We're going to be there at the end of the year," Nyblade said.

Burley has won numerous district titles, finished state runner-up in 1995 when soccer was a club sport, and has earned two third-place state trophies. But so far, the state title has eluded Nyblade and the 'Cats.

"My goals are always to see the kids progress and compete hard," said Nyblade. "But it would be nice to have some vindication for all the years. I'd be lying if I said it doesn't feel good to win those championships ... It would be nice for these guys. We have a lot of stuff hanging in the rafters in the gym, but we don't have that state championship and we don't have that big picture with the trophy yet. It would be cool, but it takes a lot to win that. And 4A this year is absolutely loaded."

A young squad, Burley went 8-8-4 last year, but went two-and-out at the 4A state tournament.

"Last year's team I really felt overachieved," Nyblade said. "They were a good team, but we maxed out our potential. This year, our kids have been to the state tournament two years, they expect to go there and they know what to expect. They're really focused this year."

Burley returns a solid midfield and forwards, including the Bobcats' leading goal scorer from a year ago in Castaneda, who netted 17. However, the entire defense graduated, leaving some question marks to surround goalkeeper Trevin Whitehead.

But the players trust Papa Bear will figure things out and do what's best for the family.

"What makes us special is when we go on the field we're not friends, we're family. We just connect," said Anguiano.

Sheltra

and every player is ready to deliver on his all-league promise - maybe even be player of the year.

For those of you who actively followed our Two-A-Day preseason accounts of high school teams, you probably noticed the same enthusiasm and optimism. Here are some final observations from preseason drills:

Mike Nunnelee has been around: Whether it's upstate New York, Kansas, Southern California or right here in south central Idaho, the Murtaugh coach and I have plenty of common talking points about our past. Things change slightly when the talk is about pro football; as a Broncos fan, Nunnelee thought Denver made a mistake by trading Tim Tebow to the Jets, but this corner would never subject a future Hall of Famer in Peyton Manning to the loud, incessant cries for his backup.

Tea Jay Berry is on to something: Most coaches talk up their teams in the preseason, and it's usually easy to tell between which ones believe in what they say and the ones who hope what they say is true. Berry falls in the former category, which isn't saying a lot until you realize his Hansen Huskies went 1-7 last year. Everything he cited as a reason behind why the Huskies will be noticeably better made a heaping lot of sense, so I'm all in on Hansen winning at least four games.

Final predictions: Great Basin Conference - Jerome, Twin Falls, Minico, Canyon Ridge, Burley, Wood River.

Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference - Gooding, Kimberly, Buhl, Filer.

Canyon Conference - Declo, Wendell, Valley, Glenns Ferry, Oakley.

Snake River Conference - Hagerman, Butte County, Hansen, Grace, Shoshone, Raft River, Challis.

Sawtooth North - Carey, Mackay, Dietrich, Richfield,

North Valley Academy, Clark County.

Sawtooth South - Light-house Christian, Castleford, North Gem, Murtaugh, Rockland, Sho-Ban.

And don't forget - preseason predictions exist just so you can tell those making them the error of our ways.

GARAGE SALE SEASON IS ON!

Place your garage sale ad in the Times-News.
6 lines of text, 3 days, $26.
Deadline is Wednesday at 1:00pm.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to respond to "Where the Boys Aren't" (May 26). We're right here every day, lady, working in the same building, going to the same functions, eating at the same diners and attending the same churches. But we don't measure up to the standards you have set.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

You can find us after work at sports bars with friends having a beer, early morning weekends on the lake or stream fishing, kicking back watching a game on TV or working on a hot rod or motorcycle like the one we had — or wanted — in high school. We are NOT on a cruise, at the mall, upscale bar or wine tasting. In short, we're not doing what YOU like to do. Think about the guy you were married to who had to be dragged or nagged to the outings you enjoy.

You want to find a guy in your age range? That's easy. Step back, be honest and really look at yourself. How do you act, dress, talk? Would YOU date you? Do YOU measure up to the standards you have set for the right guy? If there's something you would change, then change it. Take the time to see who he is, what he enjoys and remember, he's not going to change, and if he did, he wouldn't be what you wanted anyway.

— CONTENT, SECURE, SINGLE 58-YEAR-OLD MAN

DEAR SINGLE MAN: Thank you for taking the time to write. Apparently, these ladies need to find new hunting grounds. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I had to chuckle at "Where the Boys Aren't." Most guys would pay handsomely for the addresses of the clubs where women go to meet men. What is "Where" doing that prevents her from meeting all the men she wants? My guess is she doesn't walk up and introduce herself. She doesn't grasp that dating rules get reversed at some point. She's hoping to be swept off her feet like a schoolgirl.

My advice to older women is to stop hanging out in escape literature and move over to the magazine rack. After a certain age, even sex won't sell itself like it used to. Drive your own car and, if you plan to stay after the introductions, buy your own drinks. Arrive in pairs only with an agreement to split up if opportunity knocks. And remember, going to expensive bars will only net you a higher class of bum.

"Where" has repeatedly failed Dating 101. There's hardly a middle-aged guy in America who would turn down a woman who offered him a pizza, a cold beer and a quiet Friday night at home. I'd even help with the dishes. But everything about her spells HIDDEN AGENDA!

— NAMELESS IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: We're all at the gym burning off that 40-year-old fat.

— LAWRENCE IN MAINE

DEAR ABBY: I can speak only for myself. Yes, I AM at home watching bad cable TV — not because I want to, but because some of us choose to be here for our elderly parents. We're not out and about except to take our mothers on errands, our dads for haircuts and both for medical appointments, on top of managing their finances and looking after their home.

Guess what? Society looks down on us because we have put their needs ahead of ours. We might not be at the typical social events, but we're out there. The next time you see a middle-aged man with a little old lady in the grocery store, bump into his cart and you might find a nice, lonely guy like me.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE® Bobby Wolff

"It had been easy fighting in some plain, Where Victory might hang in equal choice. But all resistance against her is vain, Who has th' advantage both of Eyes and Voice."
— Andrew Marvell

Today's deal comes from an Internet game where South did not take full advantage of his extra chance.

After South's one-no-trump rebid, a jump to three diamonds by North would have been merely invitational, so North jumped in the fourth suit to hear more about South's hand. When all he could do was reiterate his heart strength, North was happy to settle for three no-trump.

The defense was accurate. West started with three rounds of clubs, East pitching a small heart. West then switched to a spade. Declarer won and cleared diamonds, giving West a chance to discard a small heart to deny interest there too. On winning his diamond jack, East astutely played back a spade rather than a heart, hoping his partner would have a spade stopper. And so it proved: Locked in dummy, declarer had to concede the fifth trick to West.

It looks as if declarer needed either spades or diamonds to break, and with neither suit cooperating, he was destined to fail. However, there was an extra chance. When declarer finds that diamonds don't break, he should cash a second top spade before giving East his diamond trick. Now, when East wins this trick, he has no more spades to play. He must therefore lead a heart, allowing declarer access to the winners in his own hand as well as to those in dummy, since South still has a spade left to reach all of dummy's winners.

ANSWER: With no fit and no great spade stopper, there is a case for going low and bidding just one no-trump, which normally has an upper limit of 10 HCP. The alternative is to bid two clubs and hope you can get to game if partner produces a spade honor. The first route looks simpler and more realistic to me.

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 21, the 234th day of 2012. There are 132 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Aug. 21, 1912, the Boy Scouts of America named its first Eagle Scout, Arthur Rose Eldred of Troop 1 in Rockville Centre, N.Y.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1609, Galileo Galilei demonstrated his new telescope to a group of officials atop the Campanile in Venice.

In 1831, Nat Turner led a violent slave rebellion in Virginia resulting in the deaths of at least 55 white people. (He was later executed.)

In 1858, the first of seven debates between Illinois senatorial contenders Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas took place.

In 1878, the American Bar Association was founded in Saratoga, N.Y.

In 1911, Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" was stolen from the Louvre Museum in Paris. (The painting was recovered two years later in Italy.)

In 1940, exiled Communist revolutionary Leon Trotsky died in a Mexican hospital from wounds inflicted by an assassin the day before.

In 1959, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed an executive order making Hawaii the 50th state.

In 1961, country singer Patsy Cline recorded the Willie Nelson song "Crazy" in Nashville for Decca Records. (The recording was released in October 1961.)

In 1972, the Republican National Convention opened in Miami Beach.

In 1987, Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, the first Marine court-martialed for spying, was convicted in Quantico, Va., of passing secrets to the KGB. (Lonetree ended up serving eight years in a military prison.)

In 1991, the hard-line coup against Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev collapsed in the face of a popular uprising led by Russian federation President Boris N. Yeltsin.

In 1992, an 11-day siege began at the cabin of white separatist Randy Weaver in Ruby Ridge, Idaho, as government agents tried to arrest Weaver for failing to appear in court on charges of selling two illegal sawed-off shotguns; in the resulting shootout, Weaver's teenage son, Samuel, and Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan were killed.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush told reporters at his Texas ranch that ousting Iraq's Saddam Hussein was "in the interests of the world" but indicated the United States was in no hurry. Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien announced he would not seek a fourth straight term, and would step down in 2004. A jury in San Diego convicted David Westerfield of kidnapping 7-year-old Danielle van Dam from her home and killing her. (Westerfield was later sentenced to death.)

Five years ago: Hurricane Dean struck Mexico's coast as a Category 5 storm. The postwar Iraqi tribunal trying former Saddam Hussein aides opened its third proceeding, putting former Defense Minister Ali Hassan al-Majid, known as "Chemical Ali," and 14 other men on trial. Space shuttle Endeavour, with teacher-astronaut Barbara Morgan aboard, safely returned to Cape Canaveral, Fla.

One year ago: Euphoric Libyan rebels raced into Tripoli and took control of the center with little resistance as Moammar Gadhafi's defenses collapsed and his four-decade regime appeared to be crumbling. In a statement from Martha's Vineyard, where he was vacationing with his family, President Barack Obama called on Gadhafi to acknowledge reality and step down.

IF AUGUST 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Wishful thinking could slow you down and prevent you from making the grade during the next four to six weeks. Avoid getting caught up in group dynamics or a wild goose chase that distract you from what is most important in your life. December is the very best month for financial, investment, or work-related decisions because your street smarts are in tiptop shape at the same time that your vision of possibilities is clear. If you are single, a new relationship that develops at the end of the year might be more than a passing fancy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You fight the good fight. But there may be times when you might fight when it isn't necessary. Try not to become defensive or irritable when your authority is challenged or if others will not commit to action.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Every if you only have one dollar in your pocket, you may feel satisfied, rich and successful. When you show appreciation for the good things that come your way, it maximizes your influence on others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): There is plenty for everyone. Your heart is in the right place where business is concerned, but you should be somewhat cautious about wearing that heart on your sleeve. Share without being foolish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Ambition could be your middle name. A natural desire to do your best or excel at work may be perceived by someone else as aggressiveness. Let others guide your hand when purchasing tasteful items.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remain respectful toward others and avoid misunderstandings. There is a slight chill in the air. You may get a case of frostbite if you make an issue out of minor details or challenge those in authority.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pessimism can prevent progress. Trying to instill hope and enthusiasm for something new and adventuresome might be like making headway swimming in a vat of molasses. Wait out a brief downturn.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Concentrate on improving yourself instead of others. You set the bar high and can exceed your own expectations. Put off discussions about key issues for a few so that there is less chance of misunderstandings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you can't change the world around you, then change your expectations. Your boss or a partner could seem more demanding or inscrutable. You might not be able to come to a satisfactory agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do your best and pass the test. Scrutiny and faultfinding might put your teeth on edge, but won't mean anything at the end of the day. Bite back sarcastic retorts and avoid disagreements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Towel off. It may be difficult to burn with enthusiasm if the universe throws ice water in your face. Stifle resentment and wait a few days until celestial conditions improve to make a key decision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Enjoy being on the inside track. You know people in the know, so will receive a head's up right when needed. Avoid evasiveness and you will be able to protect yourself from potential problems.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Remain supportive of mates. Some key issues are clear as mud right now, so hold off on having a heart-to-heart discussion. Apply common sense to guard your wallet; act quickly when changes are needed.
