Recovering from the Flames

A view of the 30,000-acre Cave Canyon Fire near Oakley on Aug. 8.

OAKLEY • After flames ravaged the Sawtooth National Forest, on-lookers became accustomed to the blackened and charred horizon.

But despite the gloom of ash still lingering across the burned Minidoka Complex fire area, hope is pushing through the destruction.

"The fire burned very hot but it also burned very fast," said Scott Nannenga, Minidoka district ranger for the U.S. Forest Service. "You can already see plant growth sprouting from the burned areas."

Because of the fire's activity, most of the flames didn't burn all the way down to the plants' roots, Nannenga said. This allowed many plants to start growing back what was lost almost immediately.

"The plant's hydrologic cycle will still function, will still work," Nannenga said. "The fire didn't destroy that, and that's critical."

The Minidoka Complex Fire consisted of four fires that burned a total of 97,600 acres on federal, state and private land. The Cave Canyon fire was the largest of the four, burning close to 88,900 acres and causing residential evacuations along Rock Creek Canyon Road.

All the fires are contained but fire crews are now focusing efforts on rehabilitation assessments. That includes deciding how many fences need repairing after being destroyed while firefighters worked to suppress the flames, and improving roads that might have been damaged by a dozer, Nannenga said.

Three grazing allotments were damaged in the Minidoka Complex Fire. Fire officials are still evaluating what rehabilitation efforts must be done before ranchers will be allowed to release livestock back onto that land, Nannenga said.

One area of concern is the fire's activity on sage grouse critical habitat.

The bird is currently a candidate for the endangered species list but has yet to be listed. Efforts to keep sage grouse from being listed involve protecting its most critical habitat. However, once a fire consumes its valuable mating grounds — called leks — the bird can have difficulty recovering, said Brad Lowe, a regional biologist for the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

Preliminary maps show the Cave Canyon Fire consuming close to 36,300 acres of critical sage grouse habitat as of Aug. 10, according to Fish and Game. All together, the Minidoka Complex Fire destroyed almost 48,400 acres of sage grouse habitat.

"Sage grouse are loyal birds," he said. "I expect some sage grouse might try to come back to those lost leks next year and after that,

Halstead: The fire has burned more than 94,000 acres just north of Stanley. Fire crews estimate the flames will be contained by October 16.

Trinity Ridge: The 97,400 acre forest fire is located near Feather-ville. An evacuation order is still in place for residents in the Featherville and Paradise area because of poor visibility and thick smoke.

the numbers will be down to zero."

The effects of the fire will continue to challenge the landscape for years to come. However, overall, fire crews remain optimistic about how the forest will heal.

"People who drive through those areas will think, 'Wow, that's pretty devastating,' but people who were out on the team are already seeing seeds sprouting," Nannenga said. "That's a good sign."

11,100 Marijuana Plants Seized

TIMES-NEWS

HAILEY • Law enforcement officers have seized an estimated 11,100 marijuana plants in the Sawtooth National Forest, according to the Blaine County Sheriff's Office.

A multi-agency task force made up of 60 state and federal law enforcement organizations initiated the eradication operation. The plants were in five growing plots throughout five acres of public land.

At full maturity, the plants' street value nears $28 million, according to a Thursday afternoon news release.

Once the plants are removed, officers will move on to eradicating the irrigation system, tubing, chemicals, kitchen and camping materials found at the grow site. Officers believed the plant site had been in operation for several seasons.

"The SNRA (Sawtooth National Recreation Area) is one of the largest and most magnificent national recreation areas in the United States," said Blaine County Sheriff Gene Ramsey in the release. "Growing marijuana in our backyard is simply not acceptable. No arrests have been made at this time, but law enforcement officials from multiple jurisdictions are vigorously working together with unprecedented cooperation to arrest and apprehend the individuals involved in this abuse of public lands."

Thursday's bust is part of "Operation Mountain Sweep," a coordinated two-month effort to target large-scale marijuana grows on public lands. The effort includes participation from law enforcement organizations in Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Utah and Idaho.

"Marijuana trafficking organizations seek to turn our nation's parks and public lands into their own drug

Beer Fest to Return in 2013

BY NATE POPPINO
npoppino@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • The Magic Valley Beer Festival will return for a second year next August, said one organizer of this year's inaugural event.

The Blue Lakes Rotary Club is still adding up the numbers, but the five-hour Saturday festival likely raised close to $13,000, organizer Shayne Carpenter said Thursday. About 450 beer drinkers and an additional 30 designated drivers bought tickets, and sponsors and donations also made up a "big chunk" of the total, he said.

The money will be split between Blue Lakes Rotary projects and the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center.

Meanwhile, the club has agreed to repeat the festival next year with a few changes. On the list, said Carpenter: possibly extending the

Magic Valley Kids Fest Offers Day of Family Fun

BY JAMI WHITED
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • The second annual St. Luke's Magic Valley Kids Fest will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday at the Herrett Center Parking Lot at CSI, 315 Falls Ave.

A similar event was previously dubbed "A Day for Kids" by Pioneer Federal Credit Union. When structural changes threatened the continuation of the event, the Kids Fest was created.

"We picked it up because kids need an outlet," said Matt Hartgrave, promotion manager for Neuhoff Communications. "This is really a day for kids and their families."

St. Luke's is the main sponsor for this year's event. They will be manning multiple booths with games and educational materials. If that's not enough, they're also holding the Youth Engaged in Activities for Health, or YEAH, Fun Run.

The run/walk will be held on the CSI Campus and each participant will receive a YEAH Fun Run T-shirt. Registration is free for children and a suggested $5 donation for adults.

"We've got a lot of great sponsors.

It wouldn't be nearly as successful without the participation of the community," Hartgrave said. "McDonalds is coming to paint the golden arches on kid's cheeks and Idaho Dairy Products Commission is bringing in a bunch of milk samples."

For the second year in a row, the Dairy Products Commission is giving stick-on milk mustaches and a photographer will take pictures for the Great Milk Mustache Photo Contest.

"People get to vote for their child and grandchild," Hartgrave said. "We're going to post them online."

Stocks Down; Fed Moves Seem Less Like a Sure Thing

NEW YORK (AP) • Nobody ever said reading the Federal Reserve was easy. On Wednesday, the Fed appeared to suggest it was closer to taking additional steps to help the U.S. economy. Stocks rallied as a result and finished the day well off their lows.

But the prospect of Fed help seemed much less certain Thursday, and stocks fell. The Dow Jones industrial average lost 115.30 points to close at 13,057.46 — the biggest loss in more than a month and the Dow's fourth straight down day.

Man Lost Vision After Alleged Attack

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man was arrested this week on battery charges stemming from an April incident where police say he punched another man, causing the victim to lose vision in one eye.

On April 3 at about 1:30 a.m., police responded to Woody's Bar in Twin Falls for a report of a fight. According to a police report, police spoke to a man who said he was hit in the face by another man, later identified as Jacob Geno Caputo, 24.

The police report states the man said he was hit in the right side of the face and couldn't see out of his right eye. He was transported to St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center for a ruptured right globe and was later transported by air ambulance to the University of Utah Moren Eye Center for emergency surgery. At the time the police report was written, on June 21, the victim had lost all vision in his right eye and it was still unknown whether his eye could be saved, the report states.

On April 12, in an interview with police, the victim said Caputo was mad at him for looking at and bothering his girlfriend and her friend, though the victim denied looking at them and allegedly told police he stood behind the bar to avoid confrontation.

According to the police report, the man said he was blindsided by a punch to the right side of his face that knocked him down.

According to the report, Caputo came to the Twin Falls police station for an interview on April 18. He allegedly told police he was at Woody's with several friends who wanted to sing karaoke. Caputo said the victim was following his girlfriend and her friend around and wouldn't leave them alone and later stared at them and made them feel uncomfortable, the report states. According to the report, Caputo complained to the bartender, who told him the victim was harmless and a good customer.

The report states police received similar statements from the two women saying the victim began "grinding" against one of the woman as she sang karaoke, making her feel uncomfortable.

Eventually, Caputo allegedly told police, he told the victim to leave the women alone and the two began pushing and shoving, the report states.

According to the report, police received video surveillance footage that shows the victim standing near the bar, first being confronted by one of the woman and then being struck by Caputo.

Caputo was held at the Twin Falls County Jail on $5,000 bond and posted bond Thursday. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Aug. 31.

Paving Project Beginning in Eastern Lincoln County

SHOSHONE • A roadway resurfacing project on Idaho 24 in eastern Lincoln County is expected to begin next week.

Crews will fill ruts in the road with a scrub coat, followed by an asphalt overlay between the Minidoka County line and near Sids Road, a distance of about 12.5 miles. Work is expected to begin Monday, Aug. 27, and extend about three weeks. The project will seal roadway cracking and restore roadway smoothness.

When crews are present, the road will be reduced to one lane. A pilot car will be in operation and drivers should watch for flaggers throughout the construction zone.

Western Construction is the contractor for the $3.18 million project.

Care Model Coming St. Luke's Health System

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • St. Luke's Health System and Regence BlueShield of Idaho are setting out to improve the health and care for patients with multiple health conditions.

A new care delivery model, called the Healthy U Co-Partner Program, will allow doctors and nurses to work closely with Regence patients in their treatment plans and lifestyle adjustments in order to improve their overall health.

Regence's parent company spearheaded a similar program in Washington state several years ago, said Scott Kreiling, president of Regence BlueShield of Idaho.

After experiencing success over there, Regence decided to expand the model to Idaho. The main goal is to cut health care costs along with the chance of duplication of care for patients considered high risk, Kreiling said.

"Health care reform didn't address how to make the cost of care cheaper," Kreiling said. "We found a way to do that by collaborating with St. Luke's."

"Health care reform didn't address how to make the cost of care cheaper. We found a way to do that by collaborating with St. Luke's."

Scott Kreiling, president of Regence BlueShield of Idaho

Regence and St. Luke's are confident the program will have a similar success rate as the model in Washington. According to Kreiling, the program reduced per-capita spending on health care by 20 percent. At the same time, access to health care increased almost 18 percent while physical and mental functioning ability increased almost 15 percent.

The program starts by asking St. Luke's physicians to identify Regence patients who meet the program's criteria. If the patient agrees to enroll in the free program, a nurse care coordinator will be in charge of developing a treatment plan that will involve a health care team, said Renee Watson, director of nursing and physician services for St. Luke's Treasure Valley Medical Center.

St. Luke's currently has 30 nurses selected to serve as care coordinators, Watson said.

"This will break down the silences between inpatient and outpatient care," she said. "It really is a great extension of the role of the professional registered nurse role."

Although the effort is for the entire hospital system, the pilot program will kick off only at the St. Luke's facilities in the Treasure Valley for now.

"We do have plans to bring it to the Magic Valley," said Ken Dey, a spokesman for the St. Luke's Health System. "That is the ultimate goal."

No date has been set for when the program will be made available for St. Luke's facilities in Twin Falls and Jerome, Dey said.

Idaho Child Reunited with Father in Mexico

BY TODD DVORAK
Associated Press

BOISE • A young girl whose custody case was ultimately decided by the Idaho Supreme Court traveled to Mexico earlier this week to begin living with a father she had never met before.

Maria Ramirez, 3, flew to Mexico on Monday and was handed over to her father, Jesus Ramirez, to begin a new life with him and his family in Salamanca, a small town in central Mexico, according to officials with the Consulate of Mexico in Boise.

In April, the Idaho Supreme Court ruled that a lower court erred in severing the man's parental rights even though he had never met his daughter, initially came to the U.S. illegally and was barred from ever returning. The Idaho Department of Health and Human Services argued to have the father's custody rights severed as the agency explored placement options for the child after officials removed the girl from the mother's home.

Mexican officials in Boise cheered the girl's transfer to her father's custody and the legal process that affirmed the rights of birth parents over questions of a parent's immigration status.

"As you might imagine, it was a very emotional moment for the father," said Mexican Consulate in Boise spokesman Sebastian A. Galvan Duque, whose colleagues were part of the team who traveled with the girl to Guadalajara this week.

"The (Supreme Court) decision sets forth an important precedent for similar cases in Idaho and strengthens the judicial framework which allows non-citizen parents to continue enjoying their parental rights," he said.

Robb Tilley, the Nampa attorney who helped on the case of Jesus Ramirez, did not immediately return messages left by The Associated Press on Thursday.

Ramirez married an Idaho woman in 2007, years after illegally entering the United States, according to court records. About a year later, he was forced by court order to return to Mexico and was joined on the trip by his wife. She became pregnant shortly afterward but returned to Idaho and gave birth to Maria in November 2008.

Jesus Ramirez tried to rejoin his family in March 2009, but was caught in Arizona and returned to Mexico, court documents show. That same month, Maria Ramirez was removed from her mother's home in Middleton, a small town in southwest Idaho, amid allegations of abuse and neglect. She was subsequently placed in protective custody after state officials found the mother wasn't providing adequate care.

The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare then began working on a case plan for the mother, aimed at reuniting mother and daughter. But at the same time, the father began seeking information and reached out to the agency, telling a case-worker he wanted his daughter to live with him.

By early 2010, the mother showed no signs of progress, prompting the state to begin terminating her custody rights. Agency officials also sought to terminate the father's parental rights, claiming he abandoned the child.

At the time, Maria Ramirez was living with a foster family whose mother was an employee at the agency and willing to provide a permanent home. Agency officials also claimed keeping the child in the U.S. was in her best, long-term interests.

Jesus Ramirez argued against the state's plan and initially lost when a magistrate judge determined that he couldn't support the child financially.

But the state Supreme Court disagreed and even questioned the state's motives in noting an agency employee had hopes of adopting the girl.

Tom Shanahan, spokesman for IDHW, said the court's ruling also reaffirmed an important lesson for the agency: the primacy of parental rights.

"It's the kind of thing that we'll be sure to pay more attention to, especially in situations like this ... when we have someone we're dealing with who doesn't live in the country," Shanahan said.

Idaho Authorities Seek Sex Offender After Shooting

REXBURG (AP) • A sex offender from Rexburg is accused of shooting his friend before fleeing into rural eastern Idaho.

Fremont County Sheriff's deputies are searching for 34-year-old Jerrod Hillman in the sparsely populated area surrounding Island Park.

The 34-year-old Hillman, who has two rape convictions and was already being sought by authorities as a non-compliant sex offender, is now suspected of shooting his friend, 43-year-old Monte Sommer, in the leg.

Authorities say the incident happened south of Ponds Lodge in Island Park on Monday near U.S. Highway 20.

The Idaho Falls Post Register reports that the sheriff's office is asking residents to be on the lookout for the 6-foot-tall, 195-pound Hillman — and to make sure their unoccupied homes or cabins in this vacation region west of Yellowstone National Park are secure.

Judge Orders Mental Evaluation for DUI Offender

Foes of Reforms Say School Laptops 'Unfunded'

BY JESSIE L. BONNER
Associated Press

BOISE • The campaign working to overturn Idaho's education reforms has launched a new radio advertisement calling a laptop program required under the plan an "unfunded mandate" that will require schools to spend millions of dollars they don't have.

But the ad's claim that the laptops are unfunded conflicts with the $2.5 million lawmakers set aside to pay for the devices this fall when they'll go to every high school teacher. Students will start getting the laptops in 2013 under the reforms by public schools chief Tom Luna.

The fight over the three laws in Luna's reform package is heating up with less than three months left before Idaho voters decide whether to keep or ditch the sweeping changes that limited collective bargaining, phased out teacher tenure, introduced merit pay and put more technology in the classroom while requiring students to take online classes.

The ad launched last Friday by Vote No on Propositions 1, 2, 3 says: "Tom Luna and the politicians in Boise are pushing Props 1, 2 and 3. Prop 3 is an unfunded mandate requiring schools spend millions of dollars they don't have on expensive laptops that are all too easily broken by kids when they take them home."

A strong opponent of Luna's reforms in the Legislature, retiring Rep. Brian Cronin, is a now a strategist for the campaign working to overturn the laws with a November referendum. Cronin defended use of the term "unfunded mandate" to describe the $60 million laptop program, saying it lacks a long-term, stable funding source.

"It's a big and expensive program. We've appropriated a tiny bit of money to pay for the first part of it, but we're going to continue to raid the current programs we have to pay for something we probably don't need and is not likely to raise student achievement," Cronin said.

The claim that there's no assured funding for the laptops in the future, leaving schools on the hook, is inaccurate because the reforms are now Idaho law and statutorily require funding, Luna spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said.

"The Legislature has to fund them or they have to change the law," McGrath said.

Also, lawmakers didn't dip into other parts of the public schools budget for the laptop money because it was new revenue, she said.

Luna's reforms did shift $14.7 million from salaries to pay for other changes, such as increasing the minimum teacher pay, restoring salary increases for teachers furthering their education and paying for high school students to earn college credit.

The shift from salaries was one of the most debated pieces of Luna's plan, and further deductions were eliminated with 2012 legislation, leaving lawmakers to find the money for the reforms. That initial $14.7 million withdrawal, however, wasn't backfilled and will continue.

For his part, Cronin takes issue with a new ad from the YES for Idaho Education campaign that makes the case for the reforms, saying: "While we've seen some improvement in the last few years, we hit a ceiling. We could either keep banging our heads against that ceiling, or we could pass the Students Come First legislation."

"The idea that we've somehow hit a ceiling and we can't do any better is rather absurd, given the very low level of investment that we make," Cronin said, referencing Idaho's status among states with the lowest spending per pupil. "There are things that we can do, but they generally require greater investment."

Rammell Gets His Day in Idaho Supreme Court

BOISE (AP) • A continuing dispute over then-Gov. Jim Risch's 2006 order for state wildlife agents to shoot elk rancher Rex Rammell's escaped animals has now reached the Idaho Supreme Court, where justices Wednesday heard arguments contending the state can't just shoot somebody's private property without a good reason.

The escaped elk and Risch's subsequent efforts to kill them caused a furor in 2006, precipitating efforts in the next Legislature to more strictly regulate ranches such as Rammell's offering high-priced hunts for prized bucks behind high fences.

Rammell tried to capitalize on the attention to bolster his political fortunes, including a failed 2008 run against Risch for U.S. Senate.

The Spokesman-Review reports justices Wednesday appeared skeptical of Rammell's arguments that Risch's shoot-to-kill order was illegal. Questioning Rammell's attorney, Justice Jim Jones suggested Idaho law allows state wildlife managers to carry out emergency hunts when animals are on the loose for more than seven days.

"Doesn't Fish and Game have the authority to issue emergency depredation hunts when situations arise?" Jones asked.

Rammell's lawyer, Patrick Furey, countered that Risch's order came unaccompanied by any evidence that roughly 160 elk that fled through a broken fence at Rammell's ranch were diseased or posed a threat to Idaho's wild elk herds near the border of Yellowstone National Park, located some 10 miles away.

"There was nothing at all about these elk to distinguish them as escapees from a neighbor's cattle herd that got out," Furey said. "This wasn't a case of velociraptors escaping from Jurassic Park."

Back in September 2006, Risch signed the order declaring open season on the wayward trophy bulls, citing fear they might spread disease or breed with wild elk, endangering the genetic purity of one of Idaho's prized big game species.

"I don't think we've ever had an escape like this before," Risch told The Associated Press at the time. "This is serious business."

Dozens of animals were ultimately shot and killed.

Rammell objected, and the dustup took on a life of its own over the ensuing six years: Rammell was arrested several times, including for poaching and on charges of obstructing a peace officer when he tried to interfere with Fish and Game agents. Then, he made a statement in 2009 about issuing a hunting tag for President Barack Obama, calling it a joke, and attracted national scrutiny.

Following another failed political bid — Rammell lost a 2012 GOP primary for the state Legislature — he moved to Wyoming to work as a veterinarian in June.

But his Idaho legal fights continue.

Rammell already lost once in the state Supreme Court, when justices in 2009 upheld fines levied against him for violations of rules governing elk ranching dating to 2004.

Schools Gear Up for New Lunch Requirements

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As more students around south-central Idaho return to school, they may notice some changes in the lunch line.

That's because new federal school lunch requirements took effect July 1.

Susan Henderson, food service director for the Twin Falls School District, said the district is ready to go with the new requirements.

"It's a big change," she said.

Henderson said changes could create more work for her employees. For instance, cafeteria workers will have to measure out portion sizes using cups.

And it will also be an adjustment for students.

During the first couple of weeks school, students will have to take a fruit and vegetable during lunch time. After that, they'll get to choose between a fruit or vegetable — or can continue taking both.

Henderson said she's concerned children will throw a lot of food away.

"Hopefully, we can have a good attitude and work with them to eat healthy," she said.

Colleen Fillmore, USDA Idaho child nutrition director, said school districts are "all across the board" when it comes to how much work it will take to adjust to federal requirements.

The state has been hosting meetings to train food service directors.

So what's one of the largest changes this year for students? More vegetables.

Students can expect to see about half their plate filled with fruits and What's Changing in School Cafeterias?

Around the country, here are some of the highlights of the new school lunch requirements.

- Offering fruits and vegetables every day
- Increasing whole-grain foods
- Fat-free or low-fat milk only
- Limiting the number of calories students consume
- Reducing saturated fat, trans fat and sodium levels vegetables. The other half will include protein-rich foods and whole grains.

"Proportionally, you're going to see a lot more color on the plate," Fillmore said.

There may also be different portion sizes due to new calorie limits.

Flavored milk will remain in school cafeterias, but only non-fat varieties.

To cover the cost of the new requirements, school districts in compliance can receive an extra six cents in reimbursements for each lunch served.

Henderson said she plans to submit information in October to the Idaho State Department of Education in order to receive the extra funding.

While changes to school lunches took effect this summer, school districts have a couple more years to make changes to breakfast offerings.

And over the next 10 years, the USDA is requiring districts to gradually cut back on sodium levels.

Fillmore said that may be one of the toughest federal requirements.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Dawn Bolish, who works in the Wendell Elementary School kitchen, places sliced cilantro into a bag on Thursday.

"So many people are used to that sodium flavor," she said.

It's not the first time school districts have responded to tougher school meal requirements. Idaho made changes in 2009, such as cutting fat content and prohibiting the use of deep-fat fryers.

"A lot of changes we started seeing back then were great benefits," Fillmore said.

The state, she said, already has some requirements that are stricter than those at the federal level.

Idaho schools have a limit on the number of pre-fried foods that can be put on menus. There are also stricter sugar and sodium restrictions.

The festival could reach into the early evening, but Carpenter said organizers don't want to push it too late to encourage Idaho brewers to make the trip out to Twin Falls.

Brewers who showed up this year were happy with the festival's vibe, Carpenter said. That was in part because of attendees, who took time to ask questions about the beers and breweries.

"I loved our crowd," he said, adding he only knew of one person who had to be removed from the event and that police were happy with how the festival was conducted.

Attendees included both locals and a number of trav-

Next year's festival will be in early August. Carpenter said Thursday he was already putting in the reservation to use the Twin Falls City Park on Aug. 3. The slightly earlier date should help avoid conflicts with local fairs and the Joe Mama's Car Show in Jerome, he said.

As for turnout, he believes it can only grow.

"I think we should easily be able to double that next year," he said.

OUR VIEW

‘At Any Level’

High School sports rule changes shouldn't single out one athlete.

As a high school freshman, Castleford's Sierra Harr won the state 2A girl's golf championship by six strokes. She did not defend that title as a sophomore.

Rather, Harr spent last season playing on the Castleford boys team, where she finished seventh in the state overall in Division 2A and helped Castleford defend their state team championship. Harr was allowed to compete on the boys team because Castleford did not have enough girls go out for golf to field a varsity team.

Enter the Idaho High School Activities Association. At their July 30 board meeting, IHSAA directors voted to amend rule 11-1-1 in a way that will effectively prevent Harr from playing on the boys team next spring. Bear with us as we explain the details.

Rule 11-1-1 currently states that “if a sport is offered for both boys and girls, girls must play in the girls' program and boys must play in the boys' program.” The proposed rule change inserts the three little words “at any level” after the initial “if a sport is offered.” What this means is that if Castleford offers either junior varsity or varsity girls golf that girls must compete in the girls “program” regardless of whether or not they have enough players to field a team.

Now it's possible that only bureaucrats and IHSAA board members can actually conceive of having a girls golf program that does not field an actual team, but that's what the rule change would say. So next season Castleford athletic director and golf coach Laurie Howard could be asked, “How's the girls golf program doing?” and be forced to answer, “The program hasn't lost a match all season but I sure wish we had a team.”

How foolish.

Golf is one of those sports that is both individual and team, and the rule change will create the very real possibility that Harr will not have any team to compete on next spring. That's both silly and a blatant contradiction of the teamwork and camaraderie that high school athletics should promote.

Yes, we realize that Harr may be taking a position on the boys team away from a boy (not really; she must earn it every week) and that Castleford may benefit from her presence on the team to the detriment of competing schools.

Our advice to whiny competitors, parents and to IHSAA board members is simple — Man Up! Leave the rule as it was and — if Castleford does not have enough girls to field a team next spring — let Harr compete once again on the boys team. That competition will make her better; her teammates better; and Castleford's competitors both physically better and psychologically stronger.

In order for the proposed rule change to take effect, the IHSAA Board must vote again to do so at its Sept. 25 board meeting. We urge them to reconsider and reject the change. High school athletics in Idaho will be better if they are more inclusive and consistently promote a team concept rather than being altered to punish a single top-performing athlete.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Research Agenda 21 to Protect Future Generations

It's nice to read that Sen. Risch won't vote for United Nations treaties that interfere with U.S. sovereignty, but that barn door has been wide open for years and the horses are long gone. I have a copy of the U.S. State Department's Treaties and Agreements in Force as of Jan. 1, 2009. It's 481 pages in 8-point type of international treaties and agreements in force. The listings include only a notation of the agreement, the subject area with dates and locations not the actual text of the agreement.

I'm glad he wrote the reader comment, though, because he mentioned the “backdoor.” It is through the backdoor the agenda of the COMINTERN is implemented in our country. Case in point, the Council on Environmental Quality was created within the Executive Branch in 1969 (NEPA). The legislated purpose of CEQ included participation in the international arena. This was followed by the EQIA of 1970. EQIA called for CEQ to oversee and ensure compliance with “environmental quality” in all programs and projects of the other agencies of government.

Those two pieces of legislation set up the administrative mechanism to implement international environmental policy by-passing Congress. All it takes is an Executive Order to mobilize the agencies of government to implement new policy. Such was the case in 1993 when Clinton issued EO 12852 establishing the President's Council on Sustainable Development. The vision statement of this council was straight out of the UN report, “Our Common Future.” The objective was to redesign our way of life to adhere to Agenda 21, the product of the international environmental meeting in Rio in 1992. Three hundred words is not enough space to explain this. It's only enough to tell you that if you care about the future for your children and grandchildren, you'd better find out about it.

Minidoka Site Tells the Story of Thousands of U.S. Citizens

Thanks to the National Park Service and others who have done fine interpretive and restorative work at southern Idaho's valuable Minidoka National Historic Site, creating a touchstone for education and respect.

This summer I was deeply moved by walking the interpretive trail, studying carefully oriented photographs and explanations, following in the footsteps of thousands of American citizens (two-thirds of those detained) and immigrants who lived with courage and dignity despite the injustice of being denied due process: People who were appalled by and denounced Pearl Harbor then demonstrated their loyalty to America by going quietly to concentration camps because they were asked to do so, bearing the brunt of scapegoating during a time of national crisis.

People who left the camp to serve in the renowned 442nd Regimental Combat Team (the most decorated for valor in World War II), military intelligence (which shortened the duration of the war), Women's Army Corps, Nurses Corps and Red Cross while their families remained incarcerated (half of those incarcerated were children).

People who brought in the harvest, earning the gratitude of short-handed farmers whose crops would have rotted, building heartwarming friendships based on mutual generosity and respect.

An individual who upheld the strength of our Constitution, bringing his test case to the Supreme Court.

People who uprooted hundreds of acres of sagebrush to grow nutritious vegetables to feed the camp (making it almost self-sustaining by the end of the war).

People who looked for beauty in the harshness of the landscape, creating art and rock gardens with what they found. Clearly, Minidoka is a rich resource for hands-on learning, relevant to the history of our great nation, our Constitution, and the depths of our humanity in the 21st century.

*Please note that no American or immigrant of Japanese ancestry was convicted of espionage or sabotage during World War II.

Are Obama's Goals for America Your Goals?

Whether you are a Republican, Democrat or Independent, I think you would be interested in the movie, “2016.”

It is very informative movie based on a best selling book by Mr. D'Souza, president of King's College. Mr. D'Souza is from India and has done extensive research on President Obama.

This movie explains a lot of the things President Obama has done, how he thinks and why. I recommend that you go to the movie with an open mind and you will learn what Obama's goals are for America.

After seeing this movie, you will be better able to know whether his goals for the United States of America are your goals. If they are, then you should vote for him; if not, then you should vote for the other candidate.

We need informed voters if the United States is to remain the country of our forefathers.

N. Calif. Fire Near Redding Destroys 84 Buildings

BY JEFF BARNARD AND TERRY COLLINS
Associated Press

MINERAL, Calif. • Twisted sheets of metal, the hulks of pickup trucks and brick walls were all that remained of dozens of homes once sheltered by green pine and cedar trees in several Northern California communities that were the latest to feel the wrath of massive western wildfires.

Thousands of residents of the rural communities just outside Lassen Volcanic National Park were allowed to return home after being forced flee soon after the blaze was ignited by lightning Saturday. They surveyed the damaged Thursday as others in the region prepared to leave.

The Ponderosa Fire was 57 percent contained, with full containment expected early next week. But the blaze threatened 900 other homes Thursday as it burned a new front to the south.

"All our efforts are focused on keeping the fire out of the park," state fire spokesman Don Camp said Thursday.

Sixty-four homes and 20 other buildings were destroyed, mostly in the Mantona area, Camp said.

More than 2,500 firefighters battled the wildfire, which grew to 44 square miles in the hills about 25 miles southeast of Redding.

As he monitored helicopters dropping retardant on the rim of the Battle Creek Canyon in nearby Mineral, CalFire Division Chief Scott Lindgren said Thursday the rugged, densely forested land has been challenging for his crews.

"The farther east we go, the harder it is to stop this fire," Lindgren said. "The problem is, we catch up to it on the top of the canyon at night, but we can't catch up to it at the bottom because of the cliff."

Bob Folsom, who works at an area hydroelectric facility, tended the gasoline generator that was keeping his refrigerator running while utility crews worked to replace power lines destroyed by the blaze when it roared through the area last weekend.

"I was ready for this day," he said. "I try to be self-sufficient."

Folsom and his son never left their home as the fire burned within a half mile of them last weekend, close enough that they heard trees exploding and the flames roaring like a freight train. Over the past 10 years, they had thinned hundreds of trees, dug a pond to store water, and installed hydrants to fill fire hoses.

"When it comes through, it's gonna come fast," he said. "You don't have time to cut down trees."

vacation home if necessary. "We'll get out if we're told to get out," Strong said. "That's 'if' we are get told to."

Asked why they choose to stay, Jenkins said, "It's beautiful up here."

Also in California, a large wildfire in Plumas National Forest continued to expand, helped by gusty winds.

The blaze, about 120 miles north of Sacramento, has consumed 99 square miles since it started at the end of July and threatens about 900 homes. It was 40 percent contained Thursday.

Wildfires also continued burning elsewhere in the West.

In Washington state, fire crews still hoped to fully contain a week-old wildfire that has destroyed 51 homes and 26 outbuildings and damaged at least six other homes, authorities said.

The fire, about 75 miles east of Seattle, has caused an estimated $8.3 million in property damage.

In central Idaho, firefighters started a burnout operation near the town of Feather-ville to deny an approaching wildfire the fuel it would need to reach hundreds of homes that were evacuated last weekend.

Fire managers said favorable weather conditions allowed them start lighting ig-nitions late Wednesday to burn and remove vegetation that could have served as fuel for the massive Trinity Ridge Fire, which has charred 164 square miles.

As of early Thursday, the operation to create a buffer around the town of Featherville had so far been successful and was expected to continue. The area was evacuated Saturday due to heavy smoke from the Trinity Ridge Fire.

The cost of fighting the wildfire is now estimated at $15.6 million.

FBI Believes Serial Bank Robber Hit Bloomington

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. • FBI officials believe last week's bank robbery in central Illinois is the work of a serial bank robber who's now struck in seven states.

WGLT Radio reports that the FBI is investigating the robbery of a PNC Bank branch in Bloomington.

Bloomington Police spokesman Dave White says surveillance photos show a white, middle-aged robber in a light blue polo shirt. White says the images match other pictures of a suspected serial bank robber.

Authorities say the other robberies were in Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, Utah, North Carolina and Tennessee.

White says serial bank robbers aren't that rare, but it is unusual to have them hop from state to state.

Authorities believe the robber is driving a Black Chevy Captiva compact SUV with a silver rack on the roof.

Big Donors Gone, Akin Seeks Small Handouts

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) • Abandoned by deep-pocketed national groups, Missouri Rep. Todd Akin is passing a collection plate among his remaining supporters, asking for a few dollars at a time in hopes of sustaining a Senate campaign threatened by his remarks about women's bodies and "legitimate rape."

Akin claimed Thursday to have taken in more than $100,000 during a two-day online fundraising drive that he portrayed as a grassroots effort to circumvent "party bosses" who demanded that he drop out. But the six-term congressman will need much more than that to replenish a campaign account already diminished by a hotly contested primary.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri 2nd District candidate Rep. Todd Akin, R-Mo., is congratulated upon his 2010 victory over Sen. Ted Hodge, D-St. Charles in Kansas City, Mo.

"It's very difficult, when you have the limited base we have in Missouri, to send emails out asking for $3 at a time," said Pat Thomas, secretary of the Missouri Republican State Committee who has worked as a coordinator for numerous candidates. "I don't know how to build a war chest to do that." Akin now has to go forward without the firepower of well-funded political groups that had planned to pummel Democratic Sen. Claire McCaskill with negative television ads.

If his money runs dry, Akin could confront a difficult choice: whether to end his candidacy or adopt a bare-bones strategy relying on social media and socially conservative activists to counter the millions of dollars of mass media advertising expected from McCaskill and her allies.

First, Akin has to repair his reputation with fellow conservatives and, according to Thomas, "get back to the point where people think you're credible."

THE GREAT MEDICARE

CHICAGO (AP) • Mike O'Malley is 55; wife Sharon is 53. So what?

So they're on opposite sides of the age cutoff in Mitt Romney's Medicare plan, and that could create a bumpy transition for the suburban Chicago couple and others like them. It would be the difference between being in the traditional program for the elderly and a less certain future.

The proposal came from Romney's running mate, Wisconsin Rep. Paul Ryan. But Romney has largely embraced it, throwing a brighter spotlight on the question of whether and how to revamp the retiree health care program.

Ryan wants to reshape Medicare for future retirees — anyone 54 and younger — while people 55 and older would get Medicare in roughly the same form as it exists today.

Starting in 2023, new retirees on the younger side of the line would get a fixed amount of money from the government to pick either private health insurance or a federal plan modeled on Medicare. Ryan says that will keep the program solvent.

Looking at the O'Malleys can help explain how people of slightly different ages would be affected.

Under Ryan's plan, Mike would qualify for traditional Medicare in about another decade. Nothing would change for him.

"So I'm covered," Mike O'Malley says, adding that Ryan's proposal is "a catalyst for thought."

But Sharon, in the new program, would have decisions to make. Whichever way she chooses, eventually she might have to pay more for health insurance than Mike, if costs grow faster than the amount the government provides.

"I'm going to be the one who's not going to have the health care," Sharon O'Malley said. "It makes you nervous when you pay all this money into the system and it won't be there when you need it."

Backers of Ryan's approach say people like Sharon O'Malley should not worry. They say the plan should unleash a wave of competition that wrings waste out of the health care system and delivers quality care at affordable prices.

Given the popularity of original Medicare, however, many experts think the Romney-Ryan overhaul will be a tough sell — like former President George W. Bush's ill-fated attempt to introduce private accounts to Social Security.

"Any change is viewed with skepticism, and that is just a starting reality for most people," said John Rother, president of the National Coalition on Health Care, a nonpartisan group representing a broad range of players in the health care system.

Indeed, even a majority of Republicans — 55 percent — prefer the idea of keeping Medicare as it is, according to a recent Washington Post/Kaiser Family Foundation poll.

"Most people are not thinking of the role Medicare plays in the federal budget," Rother added. "The idea of (Medicare) insolvency is an abstraction. What matters is, 'It's there for me. It works. I can count on it.' The idea of change is a threatening idea, particularly if it's couched as being necessary to fix the federal budget."

As she imagined what Ryan's vision of Medicare might be like for her, Sharon said it could be confusing to shop for insurance among multiple private plans. In her job, she already sees elderly patients flummoxed by the Medicare prescription drug program, which offers seniors a choice among many different plans.

"I truly think they make it very difficult for Medicare recipients to know all the rules of Medicare," she said.

The Tampa Bay Times Forum, site of the 2012 Republican National Convention, is viewed Wednesday in downtown Tampa, Fla. Weather forecasts continue to show Florida in the path of Tropical Storm Isaac.

ISAAC COULD CRASH GOP'S PARTY

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) • Tropical Storm Isaac could force a shakeup of the security plans for the GOP convention in Tampa, because about half of the expected officers come from other parts of Florida and some could be forced to stay home for the storm, authorities said Thursday.

More than 3,500 officers from 59 law enforcement agencies from around the state are scheduled to come to Tampa to patrol the streets as the convention opens Monday. About half would come from outside Hillsborough County and the city of Tampa.

About 1,700 National Guard troops were already expected to help with patrols. Hillsborough County Sheriff David Gee said the number could increase if other law enforcement agencies don't end up sending officers.

The storm is forecast to start affecting South Florida on Monday and could reach the Tampa area by Tuesday.

"We're in a situation right now where we don't know what's going to happen," Gee said. "My primary concern right now is that we will lose resources."

Gee said some agencies, especially in South Florida, might decide not to send officers to Tampa if the storm threatens their areas. "As things change, they might have to prioritize," he said.

Gee's agency is in charge of the county where the convention will take place. The Hillsborough Sheriff's Office is providing the bulk of the staffing for the event because it is the largest agency in the area and also oversees the county jail.

The Tampa Police is the other main agency handling security outside of the convention hall. The Secret Service is in charge of everything inside the convention hall.

Texas Judge Sees Civil War if Obama is Reelected

BLOOMBERG NEWS

AUSTIN, Texas • A Republican county emergency management official in Texas says unrest may erupt if President Barack Obama is re-elected, that the president would respond by sending in United Nations troops, and that he needs more sheriff's deputies to deal with it.

"He's going to hand over the sovereignty of the United States to the UN," Lubbock County Judge Tom Head said this week on a Fox News television station in the northwest Texas Panhandle region. "Then what happens? I'm thinking worst-case scenario — civil unrest, civil disobedience, civil war maybe."

"We're talking take up arms and get rid of the guy," he said. Obama's response? "He's going to send in U.N. troops. I don't want them in Lubbock."

The White House declined to comment on Head's statements. The county Democrat Party released a statement calling the comments "pure paranoid fantasy" and said Head should resign.

Head elaborated in a video interview Wednesday with the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, which serves the county of about 284,000 people that is the home of 1950s rock pioneer Buddy Holly, Texas Tech University and the Prairie Dog Town tourist attraction.

As the county's chief emergency-management official, Head told the newspaper, he must prepare for worst-case scenarios, which he said included Obama's re-election and Democrats retaining control of the Senate and a category 5 hurricane.

"Do I think U.N. troops are going to be rolling into Lubbock? Probably not going to happen," he said. "F-5 hurricane? Probably not going to happen."

Head offered the scenarios as partial justification for a 1.7 percent property-tax increase to hire more deputies and add other law-enforcement resources.

"It's not the first time he's said something ridiculous," Kenny Kettner, who chairs the Lubbock County Democratic Party, said by telephone Thursday.

Carl Tepper, who chairs the county Republican Party, said Head "really is a very nice man. He's been a good officeholder."

"Individual officeholders sometimes say outrageous things," Tepper said.

Household Income Below Recession Levels

WASHINGTON • Household income is down sharply since the recession ended three years ago, according to a report released Thursday, providing another sign of the stubborn weakness of the economic recovery.

From June 2009 to June 2012, inflation-adjusted median household income fell 4.8 percent to $50,964, according to a report by Sentier Research, a firm headed by two former Census Bureau executives.

Incomes have dropped more since the beginning of the recovery than they did during the recession itself, when they declined 2.6 percent, according to the report, which analyzed data from the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey. The recession, the most severe since the Great Depression, lasted from December 2007 to June 2009.

Overall, median income is 7.2 percent below its December 2007 level and 8.1 percent below where it stood in January 2000, which was at $55,470, according to the report.

The findings highlight the depth of the recession and the long road the nation has to traverse before it fully recovers. They also echo other reports detailing the financial carnage.

This summer, the Federal Reserve reported that the downturn eviscerated two decades of Americans' wealth. The central bank said the median net worth of families plunged by 39 percent in just three years, from $126,400 in 2007 to $77,300 in 2010, pushing that measure back to nearly 1992 levels.

Few analysts expect a quick bounce back even as the economy grows, if tepidly. The unemployment rate was 8.3 percent in July, marking 42 months that it has been above 8 percent. About 5.2 million people — 40 percent of the unemployed — had been out of work for more than six months. Another 8.2 million were working part time because they could not get full-time work.

Corporate profits, meanwhile, have recovered. But with workers producing more on the job, the gains in economic output have not been matched by new hiring.

"The character of the recovery has been one that has benefited businesses more than it has workers," said Gary Burtless, a Brookings Institution economist.

An anti-Japan protester tears a Japanese rising sun flag during a rally outside the Japanese Consulate General on Aug. 16 in Hong Kong.

China Reins in Anti-Japan Activists

BEIJING (AP) • Wu Qingjun is no dissident. In fact, this activist's pet issue — China's claim over a set of islands controlled by Japan — aligns him squarely with Beijing's government. But that didn't stop authorities from sending four agents to tail him.

As Beijing continues a tense war of words with Tokyo over a set of islands in the East China Sea, it is quietly reining in anti-Japanese activists at home, trying to keep them from staging protests that could threaten relations with Tokyo or even backfire into criticisms of China's communist government.

The government's sensitivity over protests that took place in several Chinese cities on Sunday over the set of islands — known as Diaoyu in China and Senkaku in Japan — reflects its perpetual fear that allowing its people too much freedom to hold protests — any protests — could snowball into domestic dissidence.

The four state security agents sent to watch over Wu ahead of a planned protest in his hometown of Changsha in southern China tailed him for 24 hours, ended their surveillance only after the protest was well over. He was thwarted in his plan to deliver calcium pills to the local military base in a gesture aimed at telling his government to show more fortitude in the dispute.

"They need to have a stronger backbone," Wu said.

"Our government has failed to protect its own interests."

Veteran activists involved in previous anti-Japanese campaigns say police have prevented them from taking part in protests in several Chinese cities this past week and that they remain under watch. The government has warned boat captains not to take any campaigners to the islands, where likeminded Chinese from Hong Kong landed on Aug. 15 in a move that raised diplomatic tensions.

Britain's Prince Harry watches track cycling during the 2012 Summer Olympics on Aug. 16 in London.

Photos of Naked Prince Raise Security Questions

LONDON (AP) • They were embarrassing, silly, and raunchy. But were they a security breach?

A day after nude photographs of Prince Harry ricocheted across the Internet, security experts were wondering whether the Scotland Yard officers assigned to keep the 27-year-old royal safe from harm might have done a better job of keeping him out of trouble.

"The Yard is going to get some flack over this, and rightly so," said Ken Wharfe, a former bodyguard to Princess Diana and her sons William and Harry.

Security costs for the royal family aren't made public, but security experts estimate that British taxpayers spend between $48 million and $159 million a year keeping the royals safe.

Dai Davies, a former head of the force's royal protection branch, said that at that price, the public had a right to expect Harry's bodyguards to keep a close eye on the prince — and for the prince himself not to take any unnecessary risks.

"He's a single man (but) there has to be a degree of responsibility and caution," Davies said. "Surely we have to learn from history. The press love this."

As Davies suggested, the media has been responsible for a string of high-profile — and occasionally troubling — intrusions into royals' lives. Photographers' long lenses have repeatedly snapped embarrassing pictures of family members in various states of undress, while tabloid staffers infamously eavesdropped on mobile phone voicemail messages belonging to members of the royal household, touching off a scandal which is still reverberating in Britain and beyond.

One reporter from the Daily Mirror even managed to get hired as a palace staffer, filing dispatches about the queen's breakfasting habits and photos of the royal cornflakes.

U.S. WANTS TO BOLSTER MISSILE DEFENSE

BLOOMBERG NEWS

WASHINGTON • The Obama administration is considering the possibility of expanding missile defenses in Asia in response to threats from North Korea and aggressive moves by China, U.S. defense officials said.

Two U.S. officials said the Pentagon has been discussing with Japan a new radar installation on a southern Japanese island. An eventual installation in Southeast Asia would complete a more robust defense system if a location can be found, one of the officials said.

While the Wall Street Journal reported Wednesday night that the United States planned such an expansion of anti-missile defenses, the officials said no decisions are imminent and called the system a possibility in view of the North Korean threat. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss internal deliberations.

The Pentagon's willingness to make it known that new installations of advanced X-Band radar arrays are under consideration is intended to reassure U.S. allies as China increases defense spending and contests jurisdiction over maritime territories with countries including Japan, Vietnam and the Philippines, one of the officials said.

Deploying a second X-Band system to southern Japan, in addition to one already installed in the country's north, makes sense in light of North Korea's saber-rattling, the second official said. North Korean leader Kim Jong Un has shown no willingness since assuming power in December to abandon his regime's nuclear weapons program, and he oversaw an attempted launch of a long-range rocket in April.

"If they are moving down to Southeast Asia, they are probably making an effort to counter Chinese missile systems," Richard Bitzinger, a senior fellow at Nanyang Technological University in Singapore, said.

May 27, 1916-Aug. 21, 2012

GLENN'S FERRY • Paul I. Anderson, 96, of Glenns Ferry, passed away Tuesday, Aug. 21, 2012, at a Glenns Ferry care center, with family by his side.

A service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 25, at the Glenns Ferry VFW Hall, with a viewing from 10 to 10:45 a.m. Burial with military honors will follow at the Glenn Rest Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of Rost Funeral Home, McMurtrey Chapel in Mountain Home.

Paul was born May 27, 1916, to Clarence and Lula Anderson in De Moines, Iowa. He graduated from North High School and was employed by Coca-Cola Bottling and the Rock Island Railroad prior to being drafted into the U.S. Army in 1941. Separated from the service, he hired out to the Union Pacific Railroad as a brakeman in 1945.

Paul settled in Glenns Ferry and was promoted to conductor in 1953. He married Phyllis Lenninger in July of 1966. They moved to Nampa in 1973 after the terminal in Glenns Ferry was abolished. He retired from the UPRR in May of 1977. Paul went to work at Kmart as a night man from 1977 to 1981. He then went to work for ABM, where he was placed at the Idaho Press Tribune until he retired. Paul moved back to Glenns Ferry, where he lived at the Wild Nest Apartments for three years. He then moved to Poplar Grove Assisted Living for the remaining two years of his life. Paul loved playing Keno in Jackpot, Nev., where he made many friends. He also loved traveling to many Bombardier reunions and sharing his stories of the railroad and Air Force at the Glenns Ferry Museum. Paul also loved his family and was a kind and gentle man.

Survivors include six stepdaughters, Patti (Buddy) Allen of King Hill, Suann (Rex) McDonald of Star, Donna (Bill) Pharris of Mountain Home, Bonnie (Tim) Jackson of Mountain Home, Janice Huebert of Bullhead City, Ariz., and Betty Ward of Coalgate, Okla.; 24 grandchildren; numerous great-grandchildren; and his nephew, Paul Bergstrom of Culver City, Okla. He was preceded in death by his parents; wife, Phyllis; stepsons, Jeffrey Lenninger and Ronald Heffner; a brother; and two sisters.

The family requests memorials in Paul's name be sent to the Glenns Ferry Museum, P.O. Box 910, Glenns Ferry, ID 83623, or the Three Island Senior Center, P.O. Box 263, Glenns Ferry, ID 83623.

The family would like to thank Poplar Grove Assisted Living for the exceptional care they gave to our father for the time he lived there.

Charles Huggins, Longtime Head of See's Candies, Dies

BY DENNIS MCLELLAN
Los Angeles Times

Before Charles N. Huggins began working at See's Candies in 1951 as a manager in the company's packing department in San Francisco, his favorite candies were black licorice and, thanks to his World War II service as a paratrooper, Hershey's chocolate.

But as Huggins' sweet tooth remained a constant during his rise up the ladder to become the candy company's president and chief executive in 1972, his taste clearly underwent a See's-influenced evolution.

And like a kid in a candy store, he had no trouble reciting his favorites in a 1998 San Diego Union-Tribune interview: "Butter Creams, Pecan Buds, Candied Ginger, Chocolate Truffles, Chocolate Lollypops, Chocolate Nut Fudge, Victoria Toffee and Polar Bear Paws."

Huggins, who retired as the longtime president and chief executive of See's Candies in 2006 after 55 years with the company, died Sunday at his home in Larkspur, Calif., after suffering a stroke a week earlier, said his wife, Donna Ewald-Huggins. He was 87.

See's Candies was founded in Los Angeles in 1921 by Canadian immigrants Charles See, his wife, Florence, and his mother, Mary, whose original candy recipes were the foundation of their confectionary business and whose grandmotherly visage continues to grace See's trademark black-and-white candy boxes.

The company, which maintains its longtime factory in Los Angeles, is headquartered in South San Francisco.

Huggins was instrumental in the See family's 1972 sale of the company to Berkshire Hathaway Inc., whose chairman, Warren Buffett, appointed Huggins president and chief executive. "It took me about 15 seconds to realize Chuck was the person for the job," Buffett reportedly said at the time.

During Huggins' tenure in those positions, he led the company's expansion to more than 200 stores throughout the western United States.

As president, Huggins tasted all of the new candies that were introduced each year and had the final say.

See's "chief taster," as he called himself, also presided over the "retirement" of certain candies. And he occasionally took the heat for doing so.

In the mid-1980s when he asked store managers which candies weren't selling, Maple Walnut Cream earned the most votes and then disappeared from store shelves.

But it quickly became clear a mistake had been made.

"I got two-page letters with violins telling me how Maple Walnut Creams were important to people's lives," Huggins told The Orange County Register in 1996. He apologized to the letter writers but was not swayed until more letters and even threatening phone calls led the company to give in to customer demand.

After Huggins wrote letters to the complaining customers saying the company had made a mistake and included gift certificates more mail came in from customers, this time offering their thanks for bringing back Maple Walnut Creams.

Said Huggins: "It's easy to make customers for life."

For those who worked at See's, the gregarious Huggins was known as a people person who remembered employees' names and details about their families.

"He was a charming man and extremely thoughtful," Margaret Moos Pick, author of the 2005 book "See's Famous Old Time Candies: A Sweet Story," told the Los Angeles Times on Wednesday.

"He was one of those people who would approach everyone with the same respect and demeanor of care," said Pick. "Walking through See's Candies stores with him or through a factory with him, people just lit up when he came in because that level of personal touch and personal care was there. And it was absolutely genuine."

Eugene A. 'Gene' Heimgartner

Aug. 16, 1936-Aug. 20, 2012

NAMPA • Eugene A. "Gene" Heimgartner, 76, of Nampa, died Monday, Aug. 20, 2012, at his home.

Gene was born Aug. 16, 1936, to Eldon and Gertrude Heimgartner near Juliaetta, Idaho. He attended grade school at Stoney Point and graduated from Lapwai High School in 1954. He went on to obtain his Bachelor of Science in education in 1958 from the University of Idaho. In 1983, he received his Master of Education in guidance and counseling from the University of Idaho. He taught shop, PE and driver's education in Moses Lake, Wash.; Lapwai, Idaho; Pilot Rock, Ore.; and Buhl, Idaho. He later moved to Post Falls and worked as a counselor until his retirement.

Gene married Evelyn Eberhardt in 1956, and they had three children. They later divorced. Gene married Betty Messenger on June 1, 1984. Betty had a daughter by a previous marriage. Gene enjoyed bowling, woodworking, needlepoint and traveling. He was very active in his church and volunteered for Hands of Hope.

Gene is survived by his wife, Betty Heimgartner of Nampa; son, Rick (Netta)

Heimgartner of Culesac, Idaho, and their children, Mystie Morgado, Darick Heimgartner, Jamie Heimgartner and Lacey Hiersche; son, Jerry (Janna) Heimgartner of Pendleton, Ore., and their children, Nick Heimgartner and Jason Heimgartner; daughter, Teresa (Kevin) Teater of Pendleton, Ore., and their children, Amy Teater, Clint Teater and Kyle Teater; stepdaughter, Janel (Jeff) Pickens of Nampa, Idaho; brothers, Gerald (Venessa) Heimgartner of Lewiston, Idaho, and Larry (Sherry) Heimgartner of Big Sandy, Mont.; his mother, Gertrude Heimgartner of Caldwell, Idaho; and seven great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his father, Eldon Heimgartner.

The funeral will be held at 11:30 a.m. Friday, Aug. 24, at the Karcher Church of the Nazarene, 2515 W. Karcher Road in Nampa. A viewing for family and friends will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday at Accent Funeral Home, 1303 N. Main St. in Meridian.

Services are under the direction of Accent Funeral Home in Meridian (888-5833). Remembrances may be left for the family at www.AccentFuneral.com.

Loughridge, Emergency Care Pioneer Dies at 93

BY MATT SCHUDEL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON • Chalmers A. "Babe" Loughridge, one of four Virginia physicians who created the specialty of emergency medicine in the early 1960s, died Aug. 12 in Alexandria, Va.

He was 93 and had congestive heart failure, said his son, Jeff Loughridge.

By the early 1960s, emergency rooms were becoming increasingly crowded but were poorly staffed and often without doctors on duty. James D. Mills Jr., who at the time was president of the medical staff at Alexandria

Hospital (now Inova Alexandria Hospital) in northern Virginia, envisioned a better way to treat patients seeking emergency care.

In 1961, Mills recruited Dr. Loughridge, who had a private practice as an internist, for what was considered a revolutionary project. Along with two other physicians, John McDade and William J. Weaver Jr., they would provide around-the-clock emergency medical care at Alexandria Hospital.

The Alexandria Plan, as it came to be known, was soon followed around the country and throughout the world, leading to the development of emergency medicine as a specialty.

"The Alexandria four were the first group of American doctors to engage in full-time emergency practice," Brian J. Zink, an emergency physician and professor in Rhode Island, wrote in his 2005 book "Anyone, Anytime: A History of Emergency Medicine."

Dr. Loughridge and the other Alexandria doctors closed their private practices to concentrate on providing emergency care. (Mills died in 1989, Weaver in 1995; McDade lives in Florida.)

The physicians staffed Alexandria Hospital's emergency department in 12-hour shifts. They worked five consecutive days, then had five days off, with a month of annual vacation. Previously, emergency rooms were often supervised by a nurse, with physicians on call.

"The Alexandria Plan appears to have been a success from its inception," Zink wrote in his book.

The only people who seemed unhappy with the new arrangement were other doctors, who feared they would lose patients and money to the expanded services of the emergency room.

Ruggiero Ricci, Violin Virtuoso, Dies at 94

BY VALERIE J. NELSON
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • Violinist Ruggiero Ricci held the audience spellbound when he debuted at the Hollywood Bowl in 1932, a "wunderkind" of classical music with marvelous showmanship and beautiful tone. He was all of 13.

What he accomplished in the ensuing decades is perhaps even more impressive: He made the rare leap from child prodigy to serious artist. He was regarded as one of the greatest violin virtuosos of his generation.

Ricci, 94, died of heart failure Aug. 6 at his Palm Springs, Calif., home, said Shelley Bovyer, a violinist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic who regards Ricci as her finest teacher.

"He was a masterful technician on the violin," Brian Lauritzen, a producer and host at KUSC-FM in Los Angeles, told The Los Angeles Times. "He could play anything. But he also had a lyrical expression that made his violin sing."

Some observers called Ricci "the Paganini of the 20th century" for his devotion to early 19th century compositions by Niccolò Paganini.

"He made the Paganini Caprices for Solo Violin works that are little more than violin fireworks interesting music. He owned those pieces," Lauritzen said, and "showed us it was possible to make substance from style."

The violinist was the first to record the Caprices in their original version, according to the "New Grove Dictionary of American Music."

Because of Ricci, the Caprices have an important place in the violin repertory, Lauritzen said.

Ricci always credited the years he spent as an "entertainment specialist" in the Army Air Forces during World War II with sparking his interest in solo violin repertoire because he usually had to perform without accompaniment.

He "remains a master of the bold outburst, the sentimental indulgence and the pyrotechnical flight," critic Martin Bernheimer wrote of his 1987 performance of Tchaikovsky with the Pacific Symphony.

WHERE THE ARTS THRIVE

Magic Valley is heartily represented among recipients of the governor's biennial awards for excellence in the arts.

BY ANDREW WEEKS

TWIN FALLS • Robert Moore has painted scenic landscapes in a number of places — Italy, China, Canada — but his favorite is southern Idaho.

"I was born and raised here along the Snake River," the 55-year-old Declo man said. "It obviously brings back memories of my home and my childhood."

Moore and five other Magic Valley winners of the 2012 Governor's Awards in the Arts will be honored for their work by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter and first lady Lori Otter at a ceremony Sept. 27 at the College of Southern Idaho. This is the first time that the awards ceremony — which this year honors 10 other Idaho artists, too — will be held in Twin Falls.

Each artist will receive a silver medallion from the governor and first lady; they'll be greeted by their fans at a reception after the ceremony.

"It's very exciting," said Michael Faison, executive director of Idaho Commission on the Arts. "It's people who've made a huge impact in the arts and culture of Idaho. ... It's kind of exciting about those recognized in the Magic Valley. There's a lot of wonderful talent there."

A ceremony for the 2012 Governor's Awards in the Arts, whose honorees include six Magic Valley residents, will be at 7 p.m. Sept. 27 at the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium. A public reception follows in the auditorium's lobby. Tickets are $10 at 734-2787 or at the door.

Faison said it's the right time to come to Twin Falls because of the Twin Falls Center for the Arts' recent opening.

The city "has worked so hard to support the arts, it was clear it was time to celebrate the awards there," he said.

The arts awards, given every two years, were established in 1970 by the commission. It was one of the first such programs in the country. Magic Valley artists have been honored with the governor's awards in the past, said Carolyn White, executive director of the Magic Valley Arts Council. And this year is a

At Wagon Days Parade, It's Horsepower Only

BY KAREN BOSSICK

KETCHUM • Penny Hodges began driving wagons and buggies when age curtailed her horse riding. Now the Buhl woman and her collection of wagons and buggies are regular fixtures at Ketchum's annual Wagon Days parade.

She'll ferry a posse of Red Hat Society ladies from Buhl and Gooding in her "people puller" during the Big Hitch Parade, which starts at 1 p.m. Sept. 1.

"It opens and both sides roll up," said Hodges, pastor of a Methodist church in Buhl. "My husband, Fred, and I take it camping to the Stanley Basin and Smiley Creek. It's neat because you have all the conveniences of home. You have a bed — you're not sleeping on the ground. You can close it in like a sheep wagon; I've insulated it with half-inch-thick insulation. It even has a porta-potty and, at my age, that's pretty important at night."

Hodges has entered a number of wagons in the Ketchum parade over the years, including a doctor's buggy and a tiny covered wagon.

"All my wagons have won ribbons, so I go for fun now,"

With Jake Owen, County Fair Keeps Things Country

BY JAMI WHITED
For the Times-News

FILER • As the headliner for this year's Twin Falls County Fair, country musician Jake Owen should feel right at home. It's a county that loves its country.

Owen performs at 8 p.m. Sept. 2 in the fairgrounds' Shouse Arena. The artist has three albums out, and his concert will feature many of the songs he has written and co-written. Owen has performed with the likes of Brad Paisley and "Brothers of the Sun" artists Tim McGraw and Kenny Chesney.

"He's an up-and-coming artist, and he's got enough new stuff so he's on the rise," fair marketing assistant Nancy Pitz said. "Ticket sales have really increased in the past few days."

No surprise — as the concert is going country once again.

"We seem to always do much better when there's a

But last year's parade marked the debut of a Mongolian camel named Ralphie that caused a stir among parade watchers and horses riding in the parade.

"They've never seen a 'horse' like this before," said Jeral Williams, Ralphie's owner.

The Papoose Club will serve up its all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast to raise money for children's organizations in the Wood River Valley on the mornings of Sept. 1-2 in Ketchum Town Square.

Flipping pancakes is a family affair for Rose Burbank and her daughters, who were 9 and 16 when they started and are now 20 and 26.

"We serve 1,600 people over Saturday and Sunday, but we can always serve more. Come one. Come all," Burbank said.

The Eh-Capa Bareback Riders of Boise ride Indian style without the aid of saddles or bridles. They will show how they control their mounts with leg cues, voices and an inch-wide leather strap around the horse's neck during a free demonstration on the morning of Sept. 1 at Sun Valley's Festival Meadows.

country concert," she said. "Rock concerts don't seem quite as well received."

Fair organizers have tried classic rock a few times to appease requests from concertgoers, but ticket sales didn't justify the cost.

It "could be the rural demographics that affect the music preference," Nancy Pitz said.

Generally rock sells 1,800 to 2,000 tickets, fair manager John Pitz said, while country sells between 4,000 and 6,000 depending on the band.

"We go classic rock because the bigger boys can cost between $150,000 to $250,000," John Pitz said. "That's a lot of tickets."

Opening for Owen's Filer concert will be country singer-songwriter Gwen Sebastian. The fair paid $55,000 for Owen and Sebastian together, Nancy Pitz said, but she wouldn't say how that total was divided.

Sebastian was featured on the television show "The Voice" and has toured with Blake Shelton. Now she is traveling across the nation making a name for herself.

The duo keeps true to the fair's theme of "Blue Jeans and Country Things" with songs like Owen's "Barefoot Blue Jean Night" and "Keepin' it Country" and Sebastian's "V.I.P. (Barefoot Girl)."

"It's going to be a nice, balanced and good quality show," Nancy Pitz said.

Try Out for Symphonic Band

TWIN FALLS • The College of Southern Idaho Symphonic Band is looking for community members who can play moderately difficult music.

If you play a band instrument, even if it was a while ago, this is an opportunity to try out for a CSI ensemble that performs several times during the school year.

High school musicians are welcome to try out.

The band is directed by George Halsell and rehearses from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays starting Aug. 27 in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. The first performance is on Dec. 4. There is no cost to join.

Information: Halsell at 732-6767 or ghalsell@csi.edu.

Calendar Deadlines

Don't miss your chance to tell southern Idaho about your event. The deadline for entries for the Entertainment calendar is 5 p.m. the Friday prior to publication. That means today, if you want your entry to appear next Friday. Send submissions to Ramona Jones: ramona@magicvalley.com.

Awards

good representation of the valley's talent.

"I think all of the recipients are outstanding," she said. "I'm quite pleased that we have so many that are recognized from this area."

Moore's sentiment might sum it up for other winners, too: "I'm honored and humbled at the same time."

Allan and Fran Frost, Twin Falls

The Frosts have been involved with the Magic Valley Arts Council since 1988, when Allan was asked to be its president.

"That started us down that track of participation," said Fran, who has served as program director, been on arts committees and served in various other capacities.

Throughout the years, the couple has been involved with many aspects of the arts community. It's something they haven't tired of yet, and they are well known for their hard work and support of Magic Valley artists.

"They are fabulous," White said, noting that the Frosts were instrumental in heading up funding for the council's current building.

"As I call Allan, he is my No. 1 stage hand," she said. "He's always ready and willing to come out and help with whatever needs to be done, whether that's setting up tables and chairs or taking out the trash. ... They have lots of energy and are involved with the community on many levels."

Fran summed it up: "We have just really enjoyed supporting the arts."

The couple will receive the governor's award for Lifetime Achievement in the arts.

Robert Moore, Declo

Moore has been oil painting for 30 years and describes his work as landscape art with an impressionist theme.

Moore

Though he's "painted it all," he said, including figures and portraits, he feels most comfortable with nature's landscape. Growing up on the family farm influenced his work.

"Farming has such a close relationship with nature and with being responsible — there's seed time and harvest, for instance — and I knew that I wanted to be responsible for my own actions and my own work. But I didn't like sitting on the tractor, so I thought if I were an artist I could be outdoors in the mountains or along the river and could still work hard, sowing seeds and being productive."

Early in his teaching career, Ted Hadley made a commitment to join and encourage volunteer community musical groups. Here, he conducts one in Twin Falls.

He earned a bachelor's degree with teaching credentials in art from Eastern Oregon State College. He then received a full scholarship to attend The Art Center College of Design in California, where he majored in illustration and earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts.

Moore likes to paint on location so he can best express the immediate impression of each subject. He will be honored for Excellence in the Arts.

Lona Hymas-Smith, deceased, Burley

Hymas-Smith, who created detailed wood carvings, died March 9.

Hymas-Smith

"She was an incredible wood carver," said Alice Schenk of Burley, who nominated her for the governor's award. "Her carvings were so real."

How real? One time at a Sun Valley gallery, two women were looking at a fish Hymas-Smith had carved. After a while, Schenk recalled, one of the women said: I have to get out of here, that fish smell is killing me.

"It was that real that the woman actually thought she smelled fish," Schenk said.

Hymas-Smith's work included carvings of wildlife and other objects in nature. "She knew I had nominated her," said Schenk, who also nominated Moore. "She was just pretty amazing."

In her nomination letter, Schenk wrote of Hymas-Smith: "You who believed in following your dreams and making them a reality. You, who loved life and those around you with a passion. ... I really loved & admired you."

Hymas-Smith will be honored for Excellence in Folk and Traditional Arts.

David Alderson, Twin Falls

When Alderson left high school, he needed a job. So he used his skill and became a silver-smith and engraver in about 1977. It has provided a nice living for the Twin Falls man.

Alderson

"I had to find my own way," he said. "I had an uncle that was a saddle maker; he had engraving tools. I'd use them to practice. Then I went to work." He said he first wanted to work with guns, but that didn't last long. "The NRA had a summer school at the time, and I took a couple of courses there. But because of the bureaucracy I decided to stick with bits and spurs."

Belt buckles, jewelry and saddle spurs are Alderson's specialty. "This is my job," he said, noting that he spends most days in the shop behind his house. "Sometimes I come out here at 2 in the morning."

Alderson has been featured in a number of magazines and in a book about Idaho artists. He also won several awards, but this honor for Excellence in Folk and Traditional Arts is the first from a governor.

Theodore Hadley, Twin Falls

Ted Hadley is well-known in the Magic Valley music scene, and rightly so. He's been teaching band and orchestra at Twin Falls schools for 38 years. He currently teaches band, orchestra and guitar students at Canyon Ridge High School and Robert Stuart Middle School. He also directs the Twin Falls Municipal Band and conducts the Magic Valley Symphony.

Even after all these years, Hadley said he's still learning.

"One of the reasons I wanted to teach school students," he said, "is that I get to teach different songs every year. So in that way, it's fresh and new. And then to work with the kids, to see them learn. ... There's not a day that goes by that I don't learn something new."

Hadley was born and raised in Sandpoint and earned bachelor's and master's degrees in music education and music theory/composition from the University of Idaho. Early in his teaching career he made a commitment to join and encourage volunteer community musical groups and activities, according to a biography for the awards ceremony. He decided that children who are educated in music during their school years need places in the community to use and develop those skills and cultivate a love of the arts throughout their lives.

Hadley will be honored for Support of Arts Education.

"A lot of my heroes have received this award before me; it's very distinguished company," he said.

Why Isn't My Grass Green

by Laura Horwitz, All About Lawns Columnist

Diseases can attack any type of grass, turning your lawn from a vibrant green to a dying brown. But the good news is that other causes, such as stress, injury, or deficiencies, can cause the grass to mirror these disease symptoms.

My Grass Has Stress?

Environmental changes and improper lawn maintenance can make your nice green lawn wither or turn brown. What are some common causes of stress?

- Watering too much or too little
- Using too much fertilizer (leading to excessive growth) or too little fertilizer (leading to nutrition deficiencies)
- Using too much pesticide
- Extreme weather changes, such as very hot or very cold temperatures

Green grass can also fall victim to injuries, such as heavy foot traffic and compacted soil, both of which can be fixed by aerating.

But What if My Grass Really Is Sick?

Unfortunately, disease-causing fungi tend to permanently lurk in the soil just waiting for a moment when the grass's defenses are down, such as when it's been injured, under stress, or suffering from a water or nutrition deficiency. That's why proper lawn maintenance is so important for keeping your luscious grass green. But if disease has struck, don't fear. There's usually a cure. Most diseases have very specific symptoms. For instance:

- Fairy ring: signs include dark green circle or semi-circle, either with or without mushrooms present.
- Leaf spot: signs include a gray, tan, or brown appearance to the grass, with tan, red, or purple spots.
- Powdery mildew: grass looks like it's been covered in dust and eventually turns brown.

Fortunately, these symptoms make diseases easy to identify. Simply consult a local gardening center or gardening book, examine the symptoms, and find out what you need to do. You should have your green grass back in no time.

GAME OF THE WEEK

Gooding Welcomes Oakley to 11-man Ranks

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

GOODING • The Gooding Senators are licking their chops. Not because tonight's game has them ushering Oakley into its 11-man era. Not because Gooding returns almost all of its key players from a team that reached the Class 2A quarterfinals.

It's just that time of year. "It's time to play football, there's no doubt about that," Gooding coach Cameron Andersen said. "We had a full scrimmage last week, and they're definitely getting a little chippy and ready to hit someone else."

Gooding returns to the 3A ranks this season, starting the 2012 campaign against the team that replaces it in the Canyon Conference. Oakley lost a

First year Canyon Ridge Head Football Coach Justin Alsterlund listens to what his coaches have to say along with his Riverhawk team Thursday in Twin Falls.

HISTORY BEGINS TONIGHT

Four of the six first-year football coaches, including half of the Great Basin Conference coaches, begin their journeys tonight with season-opening games.

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It may not hit Sid Gambles until shortly before kickoff. That, he said, is when he'll take a moment and soak in the last few minutes before he leads the Jerome football team onto the field for the first time as the Tigers' head coach when they visit Mountain Home.

"It's been quite a journey," said Gambles, a longtime assistant coach with stints at both Jerome and Gooding. "I'd be lying if I said I knew I wouldn't be nervous. It didn't even really register until we were getting ready for the (junior varsity) game. Out there on the road, when it comes, I'll sit back and soak in the moment a little bit."

Gambles, along with Canyon Ridge coach Justin Alsterlund and Burley hire Jed Thomas, represent half the coaching fraternity in the 4A Great Basin Conference.

They're all new this year, and with the exception of longtime Minico head coach Tim Perrigot, none of the other five has more than five years' head coaching experience at their current spot coming into this season.

"I think that's going to happen at this level, but it's a great time for the conference with three younger guys bringing in a new spark," said Alsterlund, 30. "It helps that I've been here since 2010 and I'm a familiar face with those kids. They know we're going to do things largely the same, with some tweaks here or there."

All three coaches come into different circumstances. Gambles replaces Gary Krumm, who led Jerome to a state championship berth in 2008. Alsterlund, the Riverhawks' third coach in what will be the program's fourth season, takes over for Dave Slotten, after Slotten resigned in March following a DUI charge that was later dropped.

"It wasn't great the way that I got the job, because Dave is a good friend of mine," said Alsterlund, who'll lead the

VOLLEYBALL

Mixed Bag to Start Season For Bruins, 'Hawks

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls and Canyon Ridge volleyball teams had an unenviable test right out of the chute in the 2012 season: Class 5A program Highland and perennial 4A powerhouse Century.

Neither passed with flying colors, but one had far more to be happy about than the other after play wrapped up Thursday at Canyon Ridge High School.

Twin Falls topped Highland in four sets, winning 23-25, 25-9, 25-15, 26-24 before dropping a straight-setter to Century, 25-19, 25-19, 25-20.

Still, the Bruins were pleased with the way they performed, especially against a tough test in the very first matches of the year.

Dolores Kruese anchored the defense, digging 29 balls against Highland and 16 against Century.

"We're really proud of ourselves, with how we played. The serving could have been a little better, but our serve receive was great and our attacking was pretty good," said junior outside hitter Sierra Starley, who had 23 kills against Highland and 14 against Century. "There's no place to go but up for us from this, so we're really happy."

Canyon Ridge wasn't quite as thrilled but seemed equally optimistic despite getting straight-setted by both Highland and Century.

The Riverhawks fell to Century 25-15, 25-7, 25-13, and to Highland 25-11, 25-17, 25-18.

"Now the work begins," coach Staci Boer said. "We have two sophomores and a freshman who are in this for the first time, and we have Keri (Schwarz) and Kennedy (Bell) who are trying to lead the team. It's a great test for us, because now we know where we stand."

Schwarz had a total of 11 blocks and Bell had 36 digs for the Riverhawks, who are at the Peg Peterson Tournament in Pocatello next weekend.

GRID LOCKS: ZERO WEEK

STORYLINES ABOUND AS FOOTBALL STARTS

BY DAVID BASHORE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

Editor's Note: The following is a new weekly feature that will appear on game days during the 2012 high school football season. The Times-News staff will analyze and predict results for the week's gridiron contests.

TWIN FALLS • At last, football season is here.

Zero Week presents 11 games involving teams from District IV, including eight taking place within the area. Storylines abound, including Oakley's debut in 11-man football; Canyon Ridge, Jerome and Burley all breaking in new coaches; Minico reuniting with a familiar foe, albeit coaching a different squad.

Without further ado, this week's Grid Locks:

Kuna at Minico

On paper, this appears to be a mighty mismatch.

Minico spanked Kuna 41-6 in the 2011 season opener and went on to an undefeated (9-0) regular season and Great Basin Conference championship. Kuna has gone 1-8 for three straight years and hasn't had a winning record since 2007.

But Kuna has a new coach on the sidelines, Lee Leslie, who previously coached arena football's Boise Burn, then spent two seasons at Bishop Kelly from 2009-10 and led the Knights to a state title in 2010.

The Kavemen defense will look to linebacker and three-year starter Austin Silsby to slow down Minico's wing-T offense. The Spartans amassed over 3,600 yards on the ground last year, but all-state tackle Brett Thompson is the only returner on the offensive line.

Filer Spikers Edge Burley

BY RYAN HOWE
rhowe@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • For a regular season opener, Thursday's Burley-Filer volleyball match was a dandy as each team had role players step up in key moments during the five-set thriller.

Led by a gritty back row defense and Sarah Sharp's 19 kills, Filer won 25-23, 24-26, 18-25, 25-19, 15-9.

"It's really early and we made a bunch of mistakes," said Filer coach Ed Richards. "I played all 12 kids. ... We're going to be really good when we get a little more control and confidence. We hit a lot of balls tonight, just not very hard. When we start putting them down, we're going to be good."

Filer middle blocker Katie Trammel left the match with an ankle injury in the third set, but the Wildcats moved the 6-foot-3 Sharp to the middle and the team adjusted just in time to take the fourth and fifth sets.

Led by senior libero Meg Jeffries, the Wildcats' back row was solid, digging up 50 of Burley's 73 attacks. Those quality passes allowed setter Katie Hughes to tally 22 assists.

"She did a great job controlling the game. She's going to be a really good setter," said Richards.

Sophomore Haley Ackerman had four aces and was 21-for-21 from the serving line.

Senior Allison Hepworth was key for Burley, which had several young players step up in the absence of three regular starters who haven't logged the required number of practices.

"I was impressed, we had freshmen and sophomores stepping up," said Burley coach Don Terry. "I'm proud of the team. We should have all our players Tuesday against Declo. ... We're trying to find ourselves now and I think we're going to be really good later in the season."

UFC 151 Canceled, Leaving White Mad

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The UFC canceled its Sept. 1 pay-per-view show Thursday after light heavyweight contender Dan Henderson injured his knee and champion Jon Jones declined a replacement fight with Chael Sonnen.

UFC President Dana White was left furious with Jones and his trainer, Greg Jackson, after the UFC was forced to scrap a major card for the first time in his 11 years in charge of mixed martial arts' dominant promotion.

"This is probably one of my all-time lows," White said. "The one thing that I never thought in a million years would ever happen — it happened."

White said Jones is the first UFC champion ever to turn down a match even on such short notice, calling the decision "selfish" and "disgusting."

UFC 151 was scheduled for Sept. 1 at Mandalay Bay Events Center in Las Vegas.

Jones agreed to defend his title against former champion Lyoto Machida at UFC 152 in Toronto on Sept. 22 in a rematch of their bout last December in the same city.

But that did nothing to curb White's anger at one of his promotion's biggest stars — and an athlete personally sponsored by the UFC. Last-minute matchup changes occur frequently in MMA shows due to injuries, and White rarely has a problem getting his tough-guy fighters to take risks.

"We've never, ever had a fighter refuse to fight somebody, especially a fighter who is a world champion as well as one of the top pound-for-pound guys in the world," White said. "It's baffling to me, and I've never seen it before."

Jones and Jackson didn't immediately respond to requests for comment.

The 41-year-old Henderson was forced to drop out of his title shot against Jones after partially tearing a ligament in his knee during training, according to White.

Sonnen immediately agreed to take the assignment on eight days' notice, even moving up from 185 pounds to 205 to do it. The trash-talking, attention-loving Sonnen was stopped by middleweight champion Anderson Silva on July 7 in their entertaining rematch at UFC 148, the UFC's biggest show of the summer.

"Chael Sonnen says, 'I'll fight him tonight,'" White said. "He's that kind of a person. He puts his money where his mouth is. He goes out and delivers. He's willing to step out and fight."

But White said Jones and

Jackson decided the champion couldn't be ready to fight the dangerous Sonnen. White was particularly enraged by Jackson, the respected Albuquerque-based trainer of several elite MMA fighters, calling him "a sport-killer" and "a weirdo" before saying: "Greg Jackson should never be interviewed by anybody ever again, except a psychiatrist."

Jones is among the sport's top handful of pound-for-pound fighters after his meteoric rise to the title in March 2011 in just his eighth UFC fight, yet his previously squeaky-clean image has taken enormous hits this year after his arrest on a drunken-driving charge in May, followed by his decision to decline this fight.

The 25-year-old Jones, a former college wrestler and the brother of two NFL players, has been open about his financial motivations for fighting in recent months, saying he hopes to retire young to pursue other interests.

"Jon Jones has been one of these guys who, as much as he's won and all the things that he's accomplished, he's been a champion that hasn't been very popular, and I don't think this is going to do wonders for his popularity," White said.

The UFC 151 undercard featured fights for Jake Ellenberger and Germany's Dennis Siver, yet it lacked a headline-quality bout, leading the UFC to scrap the entire show. The UFC has put on a huge slate of promotions during the first year of its new television deal with Fox, leading to criticism from fans who claim they're getting watered-down shows.

The UFC will give refunds on all tickets, costing the promotion an enormous amount of "money that's already been spent," according to White, on everything from Times Square billboards to extensive television advertising. But thousands of fans who converge on the UFC's hometown for its big events already have booked plane tickets and hotel rooms.

White is also apoplectic that the cancellation forced the cancellation or rescheduling of UFC 151's 10 preliminary bouts, lamenting the wasted money and training time spent by the undercard fighters with a fraction of Jones' wealth.

Charlie Brenneman, a journeyman welterweight scheduled to fight Australia's Kyle Noke in a preliminary card bout to be aired on Facebook, tweeted at Jones: "U can send my check to PO box 198. EH NJ. Rent is due the first, so preferably by then. Thanks."

Columbia at Canyon Ridge

The Riverhawks certainly haven't forgotten the 35-0 stomping they received at Columbia in the season opener last season. First-year Canyon Ridge head coach Justin Alsterlund will have a stiff test in his debut with Columbia, which lost to Hillcrest in the 2011 Class 4A state quarterfinals and is ranked fifth in the state's preseason media poll.

Canyon Ridge brings in new quarterback Eddie Marin and running back Vincent Burke to go with an experienced offensive line. Alsterlund has professed to be opening up the playbook more than last year's double-wing attack, but expect the Riverhawks to run clock and play ball-control offense.

The big question surrounding this matchup is how the Riverhawk secondary will handle Austin Schaffer, Columbia's all-SIC quarterback who threw for more than 1,500 yards last season. His favorite target is back, too, in second-team all-state receiver Eric Cotton. Plus, running back Mario Jenkins, who ran all over Canyon Ridge last year, will be a handful.

Columbia 28, Canyon Ridge 14

Oakley at Gooding

Welcome to 11-man football, Oakley.

Class 3A returnee Gooding returns most of its key players, including offensive linchpin Cole McGinnis at left tackle. The pass-happy offense revolves around quarterback Josh Faulkner and running back Kyle Rison, who were integral parts in the Senators' run to the 2A quarterfinals a season ago.

Oakley replaced Gooding in the 2A Canyon Conference, but the Hornets have also had to replace stud running back Stephan Ortiz, as well as account for three new guys on the field on both sides of the ball. Which side has the advantage is up for debate, but we don't see a winning opening for Oakley.

Gooding 31, Oakley 14

Filer at Burley

Both teams are desperate for a win. Last year, Burley went 2-6 while Filer was 0-8. Both programs are in rebuild mode, with coach Bill Reynolds in his second season at Filer and Jed Thomas making his head coaching debut tonight. This game is far from a state championship, but we'll forgive the players of whichever team wins if they celebrate as if it were.

Burley 18, Filer 14

Jerome at Mountain Home

The Sid Gambles era at Jerome kicks off tonight, with the Tigers itching to get their new coach a win in his debut.

These two teams met Oct. 7 last year, with Jerome taking its first victory of the season, 38-27, on the way to a 2-6 finish. Mountain Home went 0-9 in 2011, though four of those losses were by seven or fewer points.

It's always a hard-fought game between these two, and tonight should be no exception.

Jerome 24, Mountain Home 21

Raft River at Castleford

Castleford went into Malta for the season-opener a year ago and thumped Raft River 46-22. The Wolves were hit harder by graduation, however, while the Trojans return their biggest contributors. How will Raft River's smaller defense stop Castleford's backfield duo of Ty Zimmers and Samoa Etelu? How will Castleford's secondary fare against the quick legs and strong arm of Tanner Anderson in first-year coach Brian Poole's veer option? The Wolves have the edge playing at home.

Castleford 36, Raft River 24

Melba at Wendell

Wendell has high hopes going into this season after performing well at the team camp of two-time Oregon 2A champions Gold Beach. There, the Trojans played Brookings-Harbor, which runs a scheme similar to that of this week's opponent. The Mustangs have never really gotten the football program rolling despite quality in the basketball and wrestling programs over the last few years. Could be great, may be ugly, but go for a Trojan win.

Wendell 24, Melba 16

Glenns Ferry at Nampa Christian

Nampa Christian was a decent team that made the playoffs last season. Glenns Ferry was a decent team that got rolled in the round of 16. Both lost key guys, and in Glenns Ferry's case it was pretty much everybody.

Nampa Christian 32, Glenns Ferry 14

Shoshone at Dietrich

The Lincoln County rivals love nothing more than getting after each other to start the season. Shoshone scored a late win last season on its home field, but Dietrich may have been the better team on paper. Both have depth issues, and injury or conditioning could settle this one in the fourth quarter. Home field plays a factor tonight.

Dietrich 32, Shoshone 30

Jackpot, Nev., at Richfield

Jackpot has sorted through a coaching change and the fallout of being taken out of Idaho conference play, while the Tigers have more than 20 players out this season. This has payback written all over it for Richfield, which was stomped 51-22 by the Jaguars last season in Nevada.

Richfield 26, Jackpot 12

Lighthouse Christian at Idaho City

The reigning 1A Division II champs kick-start their title defense, as the Lions trek west to Idaho City, a program they beat 46-0 to open the 2011 season. Lighthouse Christian also has most of its key players back, including quarterback Logan Bosma, linebacker Dillon Wilson and running back Adam Taylor.

handful of key cogs in its 1A Division I semifinal team last season, including running backs Stephan Ortiz and Eleazar Tellez.

But the Senators haven't worried too much about what they'll see across the field, in part because they aren't exactly sure how Oakley plans to utilize the three extra guys it'll have on the field. Gooding's in a different place in the building of the program.

"We haven't focused on Oakley as much as we have ourselves. There are so many things we have to look at ourselves to get better," Andersen said. "Early on there's the unknown factor and I'm sure Oakley has a little bit of the same. We don't know what they're going to do in the end. We have thoughts, but we don't know what they're going to run or how they're going to run it.

"To combat that as a coach, you teach your guys to be sound fundamentally. That's what we've been working on the last couple weeks."

After months of debate whether Oakley can compete in 11-man football, the Hornets can finally settle it on the field.

The players are fully aware of the chatter surrounding Oakley's petition to Class 2A.

"We (coaches) believe they can do it. Ultimately they have to believe in themselves as players," said coach Tim Behunin.

Behunin led Oakley to a 25-6 record in three seasons at the Class 1A Division I 8-man level. He helped push the petition to the IHSAA to move Oakley's athletic programs to Class 2A.

"We have a great core that matches up well in this classification," Behunin said. "Ultimately it comes down to execution and the preparation that we've put in."

The Hornets will rely heavily on junior Gerrit Wybenga on both sides of the ball, along with senior Jamison Jones, who returns as the starting quarterback.

Oakley may have an advantage, because at least the Hornets can look at game film from Gooding last year and have an idea of what the Senators might do. On the other hand, Gooding could lack an edge since Oakley's new to 11-man and had to install new schemes?

Neither coach thinks an advantage necessarily exists.

"I'm not sure that anybody has the edge. It's the first game of the year and it's football," Andersen said. "Your goal is to get out of it getting yourself better. Do you want to win it? Absolutely. They're going to come ready to play, and I'm sure they think they have an advantage. And they should, because it would be terrible for any team coming into any game thinking you don't have the advantage."

Said Behunin: "Both teams have an advantage because you have the excitement of a new year."

ARMSTRONG WON'T FIGHT USADA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN, Texas • The U.S. Anti-Doping Agency said Thursday night it will strip Lance Armstrong of his unprecedented seven Tour de France titles after he declared he was finished fighting the drug charges that threaten his legacy as one of the greatest cyclists of all time.

Travis Tygart, USADA's chief executive, said Armstrong would also be hit with a lifetime ban today.

Still to be heard from was the sport's governing body, the International Cycling Union, which had backed Armstrong's legal challenge to USADA's authority.

Armstrong, who retired last year, declined to enter USADA's arbitration process — his last option — because he said he was weary of fighting accusations that have dogged him for years. He has consistently pointed to the hundreds of drug tests that he has passed as proof of his innocence during his extraordinary run of Tour titles stretching from 1999-2005.

"There comes a point in every man's life when he has to say, 'Enough is enough.' For me, that time is now," Armstrong said in a statement sent to The Associated Press. He called the USADA investigation an "unconstitutional witch hunt."

"I have been dealing with claims that I cheated and had an unfair advantage in winning my seven Tours since 1999," he said. "The toll this has taken on my family and my work for our foundation and on me leads me to where I am today — finished with this nonsense."

USADA reacted quickly and treated Armstrong's decision as an admission of guilt, hanging the label of drug cheat on an athlete who was a hero to thousands for overcoming life-threatening testicular cancer and for his foundation's support for cancer research.

"USADA cannot assert control of a professional international sport and attempt to strip my seven Tour de France titles. I know who won those seven Tours, my teammates know who won those seven Tours, and everyone I competed against knows who won those seven Tours."

Lance Armstrong, seven-time winner of the Tour de France

"It is a sad day for all of us who love sport and athletes," Tygart said. "It's a heartbreaking example of win at all costs overtaking the fair and safe option. There's no success in cheating to win."

Tygart said the agency can strip the Tour titles, though Armstrong disputed that as he insisted his decision is not an admission of drug use, but a refusal to enter an arbitration process he believes is unfair.

"USADA cannot assert control of a professional international sport and attempt to strip my seven Tour de France titles," he said. "I know who won those seven Tours, my teammates know who won those seven Tours, and everyone I competed against knows who won those seven Tours."

USADA maintains that Armstrong has used banned substances as far back as 1996, including the blood-booster EPO and steroids as well as blood transfusions — all to boost his performance.

The 40-year-old Armstrong walked away from the sport in 2011 without being charged following a two-year federal criminal investigation into many of the same accusations he faces from USADA. The federal probe was closed in February, but USADA announced in June it had evidence Armstrong used banned substances and methods — and encouraged their use by teammates. The agency also said it had blood tests from 2009 and 2010 that were "fully consistent" with blood doping.

Included in USADA's evidence were emails written by Armstrong's former U.S. Postal Service teammate Floyd Landis, who was stripped of his 2006 Tour de France title after a positive drug test. Landis' emails to a USA Cycling official detailed allegations of a complex doping program on the team.

USADA also said it had 10 former Armstrong teammates ready to testify against him. Other than suggesting they include Landis and Tyler Hamilton, both of whom have admitted to doping offenses, the agency has refused to say who they are or specifically what they would say.

"There is zero physical evidence to support (the) outlandish and heinous claims. The only physical evidence here is the hundreds of (doping) controls I have passed with flying colors," Armstrong said.

Armstrong sued USADA in Austin, where he lives, in an attempt to block the case and was supported by the UCI. A judge threw out the case on Monday, siding with USADA despite questioning the agency's pursuit of Armstrong in his retirement.

"USADA's conduct raises serious questions about whether its real interest in charging Armstrong is to combat doping, or if it is acting according to less noble motives," such as politics or publicity, U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks wrote.

Now the ultra-competitive Armstrong has done something virtually unthinkable for him: He has quit before a fight is over.

Notice of Public Hearing
Heyburn Urban Renewal Project
Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency

Proposed Amended Budget for Fiscal Year 2012

A public hearing for consideration of the proposed Urban Renewal Project amended budget for the fiscal year that began October 1, 2011, and ends September 30, 2012, will be held at the Heyburn City Hall, 941 18th Street, Heyburn, Idaho on August 27, 2012, at 11:00 a.m., pursuant to Idaho Code 50-1002. Written or oral comments about the proposed amended budget are welcome. Written comment may be submitted prior to the meeting to: Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency, c/o Heyburn City Hall, P.O. Box 147, Heyburn, ID 83336.

The Agency budget funds the programs, services, and capital projects that the Agency Board and the City Council have determined to be important to meet the Agency's strategic goals.

City Council Resolution No. 2010-6 adopted on July 14, 2010, authorized the establishment of the Urban Renewal Agency. The Agency conducted its first meeting on January 31, 2011. Since January 2011, the Agency has worked on the preparation of the urban renewal plan. Those activities have been funded by the city of Heyburn in an amount of $292,178, including capital improvements. Expenses for FY2011 totaled $24,458. Expenses through July 2012 totaled $29,720. The Agency expects to account for additional expenses of $238,000, for capital improvements through September 30, 2012. The amended budget below shows the breakdown of anticipated expenses for FY 2012. Again, for FY 2012, the Agency's revenues will be limited to the remaining amount of the City's initial advance. The Agency has received a second advance from a private developer of $6,000 to consider a second project area.

This public hearing on the proposed amended budget is required for formal adoption of the FY 2012 amended budget. The proposed expenditures and revenues for FY 2012 have been tentatively approved by the Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency Board of Directors on August 6, 2012. The changes are as noted below.

The City Hall is accessible to persons with disabilities.

Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency
Proposed Budget for Fiscal Year 2013

A public hearing for consideration of the proposed Urban Renewal Project budget for the fiscal year that begins October 1, 2012, and ends September 30, 2013, will be held at the Heyburn City Hall, 941 18th Street, Heyburn, Idaho on August 27, 2012, at 11:00 a.m., pursuant to Idaho Code 50-1002. Written or oral comments about the proposed budget are welcome. Written comment may be submitted prior to the meeting to: Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency, c/o Heyburn City Hall, P.O. Box 147, Heyburn, ID 83336.

The Agency budget funds the programs, services, and capital projects that the Agency Board and the City Council have determined to be important to meet the Agency's strategic goals.

City Council Resolution No. 2010-6 adopted on July 14, 2010, authorized the establishment of the Urban Renewal Agency. The City Council established the Northwest Industrial Urban Renewal Project by adopting City Ordinance No. 541 on October 26, 2011. The Agency expenses have been limited to legal expenses and other planning expenses. Those activities have been funded by the city of Heyburn in an amount of $292,178. Expenses for FY2011 totaled $24,458. Expenses through July 2012 totaled $29,720. The Agency expects to incur additional expenses of $238,000, through September 30, 2012. The budget below shows the breakdown of anticipated expenses for FY 2013. For FY 2013, the Agency's revenues will be limited to the remaining amount of the City's initial advance along with note revenue from the Northwest Industrial developer and the city of Heyburn for Northwest Industrial.

This public hearing on the proposed budget is required for formal adoption of the FY 2013 budget. The proposed expenditures and revenues for FY 2013 have been tentatively approved by the Heyburn Urban Renewal Agency Board of Directors on August 6, 2012.

The City Hall is accessible to persons with disabilities.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

On Thursday, the 6th day of December, 2012, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock a.m. of said day at Alliance Title & Escrow, 1411 Falls Ave. E., Ste. 1315, Twin Falls, in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, Ryan M Fawcett, as Successor Trustee, will sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, in lawful money of the United States, all payable at the time of sale, the following described real property situated in the County of Twin Falls, State of Idaho, and described as follows, to wit:
LOT 6, BLOCK 2, FEDERICO SUBDIVISION, TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO, ACCORDING TO THE OFFICIAL PLAT THEREOF, RECORDED IN BOOK 5 OF PLATS, PAGE 52, RECORDS OF TWIN FALLS COUNTY, IDAHO.

The Successor Trustee has no knowledge of a more particular description of the above referenced real property, but for purposes of compliance with Section 60-113, Idaho Code, the Successor Trustee has been informed that the street address of 2054 11th Ave. E., Twin Falls, Idaho, is sometimes associated with said real property.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the Deed of Trust executed by DEBRA E. PARKER, an Unmarried Person, Grantor, to Ryan M Fawcett, Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of FIRST SECURITY BANK OF IDAHO, N.A., recorded July 30, 1990, as Instrument No. 973849, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho; and assigned to the IDAHO HOUSING AGENCY by Assignment of Deed of Trust recorded on July 30, 1990, as Instrument No. 973850, Mortgage records of Twin Falls County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTOR IS NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506 (4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT SHE IS, OR IS NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is the failure to pay when due, monthly installment payments under the Deed of Trust Note dated July 30, 1990, in the amount of $409.00 each, for the months of March through July, 2012, inclusive; and for each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reimbursement. All delinquent payments are now due, plus accumulated late charges, plus any costs or expenses associated with this foreclosure. The accrued interest is at the rate of 8.43% per annum from February 1, 2012. The principal balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said Deed of Trust is $21,531.56, plus accrued interest at the rate of 8.43% per annum from February 1, 2012.

DATED This 7th day of August, 2012.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Death, be not proud, though some have called thee Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so..."

— John Donne

Today's deal comes from the Premier League, a domestic competition in the UK that is used to select the international team. The heroine is the late Michelle Brunner, who died last year. Ironically, Brunner had been co-opted herself as a substitute on the Hackett team after the sudden and unexpected death of John Armstrong.

The auction to four spades was competitive, and a minor-suit lead would have set this contract, but West led his singleton heart — a reasonable choice. Careful play and accurate timing was needed to emerge with 10 tricks, and Brunner was well up to the task.

Correctly spurning the free finesse because of the entry problems to the South hand, she accurately rose with dummy's heart ace, then drew trumps to remove the ruffing danger. Next came the finesse of the heart seven, followed by the heart king. It might look natural to discard a club loser from dummy. However, it was critical to pitch a diamond rather than a club from the board. Now came the heart jack, and Brunner ran this to East's queen, pitching another diamond from dummy. This established the heart 10, which would later take care of the club loser.

When East was in with the heart queen, he could cash two but not three diamond tricks. Five spades, four hearts, plus the club ace — the entry to the fourth heart — added up to declarer's requisite 10 tricks. Very well played.

ANSWER: Your partner's three-diamond cue-bid shows extras and should initially be asking for a diamond stop. Presumably, he has a good hand, either with a singlesuiter in clubs or some degree of heart support. With your extras, you just want your partner to pick the best game now, and the easiest way to do that is to bid four diamonds and abide by his decision of a final contract.

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.

Today is Friday, Aug. 24, the 237th day of 2012. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Aug. 24, 1992, Hurricane Andrew smashed into Florida, causing $30 billion in damage; 43 U.S. deaths were blamed on the storm.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In A.D. 79, long-dormant Mount Vesuvius erupted, burying the Roman cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum in volcanic ash; an estimated 20,000 people died.

In 1572, the St. Bartholomew's Day massacre of French Protestants at the hands of Catholics began in Paris.

In 1814, during the War of 1812, British forces invaded Washington, D.C., setting fire to the Capitol and the White House, as well as other buildings.

In 1821, the Treaty of Cordoba was signed, granting independence to Mexico from Spanish rule.

In 1912, Congress passed a measure creating the Alaska Territory. Congress approved legislation establishing Parcel Post delivery by the U.S. Post Office Department, slated to begin on Jan. 1, 1913.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart embarked on a 19-hour flight from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., making her the first woman to fly solo, non-stop, from coast to coast.

In 1949, the North Atlantic Treaty came into force.

In 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the Communist Control Act, outlawing the Communist Party in the United States.

In 1968, France became the world's fifth thermonuclear power as it exploded a hydrogen bomb in the South Pacific.

In 1970, an explosives-laden van left by anti-war extremists blew up outside the University of Wisconsin's Sterling Hall in Madison, killing 33-year-old researcher Robert Fassnacht.

In 1981, Mark David Chapman was sentenced in New York to 20 years to life in prison for murdering John Lennon.

In 2006, the International Astronomical Union declared that Pluto was no longer a planet, demoting it to the status of a "dwarf planet."

Ten years ago: The FBI uncovered human remains in an outbuilding behind the Oregon City, Ore., house of Ward Weaver III, a suspect in the case of 2 missing girls who lived across the street.

(Authorities recovered the remains of 12-year-old Ashley Pond and 13-year-old Miranda Gaddis; Weaver later pleaded guilty to aggravated murder and was sentenced to 2 consecutive life terms in prison.)

Five years ago: A judge in Inverness, Fla., sentenced John Evander Couey to death for kidnapping 9-year-old Jessica Lunsford, raping her and burying her alive. (Couey died in 2009.) James Ford Seale, a reputed Ku Klux Klansman, was sentenced to three life terms for his role in the 1964 abduction and murder of two black teenagers in southwestern Mississippi. (Seale died in 2011.) Major wildfires broke out in Greece, burning half a million acres and claiming 65 lives in 11 days.

One year ago: A defiant Moammar Gadhafi vowed in a broadcast to fight on "until victory or martyrdom" and called on residents of the Libyan capital and loyal tribesmen across his North African nation to free Tripoli from the "devils and traitors" who had overrun it. Steve Jobs resigned as CEO of Apple Inc.; he was succeeded by Tim Cook. Mike Flanagan, a Cy Young winner and part of the Baltimore Orioles' 1983 World Series championship team, was found dead outside his home in Monkton, Md.; he was 59.

IF AUGUST 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Nothing can hold you back this coming year unless you let it. During the next six to eight weeks, too many social obligations or group activities can eat into your time, and your judgment might be out of kilter. Steer clear of new partnerships and avoid making unnecessary changes. Ambitions increase, but you must be sure to pay your dues throughout the fall. In late December, you can make headway with career, business or financial plans. That is when your business acumen comes to the forefront. Celestial alignments favor your sector of the zodiac in February and March so that is an excellent time to make crucial decisions or accept unexpected opportunities.

HOROSCOPE
Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Love really is a game of give and take, but remember that you must give to get. Tonight might bring a perfect opportunity to make the first move or approach someone who has built a fire in your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take things a step further. It might be time to make arrangements to introduce the love of your life to your relatives. This also is a good time for a heart-to-heart talk or to initiate a change of relationship status.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your cup runneth over and you are brimming with hopeful plans. Exert some extra effort and find new ways of pleasing your partner. A little TLC will work magic and bring the two of you closer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You glow with attractive power. You will find that those who are good for you are moving closer and beneficial bonds are developing. Remain cautious about investments; don't spend impetuously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put finishing touches on crucial details and put disputes behind you. A meeting of the minds, or even more, is possible later tonight. You and a special someone might have the same fantasies in mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It might be your turn to breathe life into the party. You can hook up with like-minded individuals who are thrilled by your viewpoints. If you receive a gift today, it might have a double meaning.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There is more than one way to say, "I love you." You can send flowers or an email — or head for the jewelry store. When you are passionate about being with the one you love, your feelings will be reciprocated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hook up and team up. You are under pressure to excel, but everything flows more smoothly with someone by your side. If love is the tune you sing you will find someone to second that emotion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use progressive techniques to make the workload easier. Someone new in your circle may provide thought provoking perspectives. A romantic friend can brighten the domestic scene this weekend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your world revolves around a special someone. Don't be surprised if you are asked to put your money on the line to prove it. To please a loved one, it might be necessary to indulge in extra spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make an effort to reach an accord and restore the peace. An earnest one-on-one conversation can straighten out a misconception. Sincerity and diplomacy can heal a schism that developed recently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your latest connection may offer indications of a romantic possibility. You might turn a corner with a relationship that has grown into more than a friendship.
