FILER • Tex, a Boston terrier and English bulldog mix, got through half the agility course at the Twin Falls County Fair Thursday evening before he decided he had enough. After sliding down the end of the teeter totter and landing a little too hard, he performed a few more tricks before veering off to say hello to the dogloving audience.

"He does it every year," 4-H leader Marti Kincaid said.

Tex's handler, Avery Gonzales, 14, worked with the dog for about six years and said the teeter totter has a tendency to trip him up. His brother, Preston Gonzales, 11, took a Corgi named Airee through the course. Both got blue ribbons.

While Tex does well at tunnels and other obstacles, a big challenge for him and most other dogs is weaves, where they weave in and out of a series of poles.

"He's never done very well," Avery said.

Cammie Lee said her 5year-old dachshund, Miracle, also has trouble on the weaves. "Weaves are super hard," Cammie said.

Once the dog finally understands how to do it though, they can do it just as well as the other elements in the course.

This was Miracle's second year in agility competition, but Cammie said she only took Miracle to a few obedience classes last year, making this the first serious year of competition.

Cammie's mother, Lori Lee, said Miracle was a natural once they started training her for the agility competition.

"She took to it like a duck to water," Lori said.

Ashley Woods, 14, didn't have a dog in the show, but came to watch. She has a two-year-old blue Australian Shepherd that knows a few tricks including how to herd, sit and shake. Woods said she wants to enter the dog in an agility competition but between showing horses, dairy, rabbits and dogs, she lacks the time.

"I think it's cool," she said of the agility show.

Moderate Weather Keeps Elba Fire in Check

LAURIE WELCH • TIMES-NEWS

A wildfire burning in Elba is 50 percent contained.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

ELBA • Cooler temperatures and calmer winds kept a wildfire burning in Elba in check Thursday.

Pete Gilbert, firefighter with the Malta Fire Department said Malta fire and ACE fire, which covers Albion, Connor Creek and Elba, left the scene at about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Gilbert said the fire damaged equipment and came close to the home of Clair Teeter. "When we left it was still really burning on the west side and they were still dropping retardant," Gilbert said.

According to a press release issued from the Twin Falls District Bureau of Land Management, the moderate weather conditions kept the fire, estimated at 1,994 acres, from increasing in size Thursday.

The fire was estimated at 50 percent contained with containment anticipated at 6 p.m. Saturday. Control of the fire is expected by Sunday.

Resources at the fire include eight engines, one water tender, two dozers and one helicopter.

Getting to the finish line for the project wasn't easy.

State funding was authorized in 2006 for the project. But it didn't move forward because "we never knew whether we'd exist as a school and in what form," Darcy said.

A debate over the future of state services for deaf and blind students intensified in 2006. After a few years, reorganization was completed.

Historical Marker Placed at WWII POW Camp Rupert

A rare photo of guards at World War II POW Camp Rupert, which existed from 1943-1946.

BY LAURIE WELCH lwelch@magicvalley.com

PAUL • The secretive past of Idaho's largest World War II POW camp, Camp Rupert, was unveiled Thursday and marked with a new historical sign.

The work of a small group of volunteers whose efforts uncovered the history of the camp and Idaho Department of Transportation staff who bought into the project and helped erect the sign came to fruition next to a sprinkler-cooled beet field under smoke-hazed skies five miles west of Paul.

"It is history that needs to be recorded," said Arlo Lloyd, who helped with project. "You don't find many people who have ever heard about this history and it's important to Minidoka County."

The camp located at 1100 W. 100 S. on Idaho Highway 25 was erected in 1943 to house up to 4,000 German and Italian prisoners of war and 1,000 U.S. Army personnel.

"There was a small city out here," said Anne Schenk, historical society member who helped compile the history of the camp. "There were no young men here during the war and they needed the prisoners for harvesting and planting crops. It

The camp was one of 21 camps located in Idaho and operated as the base camp for the Idaho camps as well as camps in Montana and Oregon. The camp was built by 1,500 workers for $500,000 on 300 acres of sage brush. There were 172 buildings, including a field office, hospital, barracks, mess-halls, chapel, commissaries, recreational facilities and large warehouses.

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

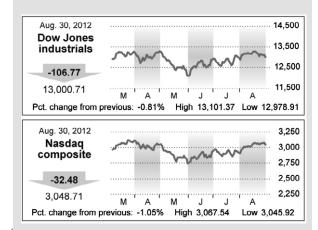

TIMES-NEWS

Market's August Lull Nears an End; Stocks Fall

NEW YORK (AP) • The late-summer lull is about to end. Stocks fell Thursday, with investors too worried about high gas prices and stagnant employment to be impressed by higher consumer spending.

But trading volume was light, the market's direction was steady, and there wasn't much in the way of major economic news.

That could all change Friday. Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke is scheduled to speak at 12 p.m., and investors will be listening closely for his opinion on the economy and whether the Fed will take more action to try to prop it up.

Jerome Wendy's Robber Sentenced

BY ALISON GENE SMITH

alismith@magicvalley.com

JEROME • A good kid who made a serious error in judgment or a dangerous criminal? Both descriptions of 18year-old Nikolas Maria were given at his sentencing Thursday morning.

Maria pleaded guilty in June to robbing the Jerome Wendy's with Taylor Cnossen in January and to being involved in a string of burglaries in Jerome last fall. He also assisted police by admitting to the crimes in court and testifying against others who were allegedly involved in the crimes.

Jerome County 5th District Judge John Butler went along with prosecutor's recommendations to sentence Maria to 10 to 25 years for the robbery along with fines and a four to 10 year sentence for each burglary count, all to run concurrently. He suspended the sentence and placed Maria in the state's retained jurisdiction program to undergo therapeutic programs. He will be considered for probation if he successfully completes the treatment.

"This is only because Mr. Maria came forward and basically made the case," Jerome County Prosecutor John Horgan said. "Without him coming forward, we most likely would not have caught him. Otherwise, I wouldn't do that."

During his comments, Horgan noted that though Maria appeared in court wearing a jacket and tie, his victim in the robbery saw a much different person.

"They were wearing black pants, hooded sweatshirts and paintball masks," he said. "Imagine this kid wearing that."

In the string of burglaries, Horgan said Maria took things that could not be replaced. Not only jewelry with sentimental value that was never located, but peace of mind from the victims and the community as a whole.

"There's no excuse in the world to make that right," he

Despite making poor decisions, Horgan said Maria does listen to good advice and called it his "one ray of hope."

"Maybe if he continues to do that he has a chance," he said. "If not, this is a dangerous man."

Maria's defense attorney John Lothspeich pointed out that this string of crimes makes up the entirety of Maria's criminal record. Lothspeich emphasized Maria was remorseful and acknowledges the seriousness of the crimes.

"Now he's going to have to climb a mountain to make things right with the victims," he said.

Prior to the crime spree, Maria was set up to enter the U.S. Navy after his high school graduation.

"Nik is going to jail," Lothspeich said. "He knows that."

So far, Lothspeich said Maria has earned $3,000 to put toward restitution to his victims and is trying to sell his dirt bike to earn more money.

"That shows a level of maturity," Lothspeich said.

Maria also spoke before his sentence was given and apologized to anyone affected.

"I wasn't thinking clearly, obviously," he said.

He also apologized to his family and said he's looking forward to getting through the rider program and paying the victims back.

Judge Butler said Maria and the others' actions were concerning to him because they didn't appear to have any remorse and compared their willingness to commit the crimes to the willingness to attend a baseball game.

"You didn't care what impact this would have," he told

When he returns from the retained jurisdiction program, Butler said Maria should be truly ready to prove he's a good candidate for probation.

Along with a recommendation for the 180-day traditional rider, Butler sentenced Maria to pay a $5,000 fine, plus more for a crime of violence enhancement for the robbery and $1,000 each for three counts of burglary.

TWIN FALLS • Another suspect has been arrested in connection to the home invasion involving the owners of Fish Processors of Idaho.

Luis Alfredo Sotelo, 19, of Murtaugh was taken into custody by Twin Falls County Sheriff's deputies in the parking lot at the Fawnbrook apartment complex at 647 Fawnbrook Court in Twin Falls.

Dylan Edward Contreras, 20, of Buhl and a 16-year-old male were arrested earlier and charged with robbery and kidnapping. According to a statement from the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office, a fourth suspect is expected to be charged in the home invasion as well.

He was arrested after being identified in a photo lineup, a police report states. The person who identified him also said he was involved in a drive-by shooting on Aug. 6, the report states.

In an interview with investigators, Sotelo allegedly said he, Dylan Contreras, a woman, another man and the 16-year-old drove to an apartment building in the South Park area on Aug. 6. According to the report, Contreras, the other man and the 16-year-old began shooting at the building with handguns.

In the report, Sotelo states Contreras took over driving at one point and drove to Jerome County, where they robbed a home. Sotelo claims in the report that he was near the doorway and heard a gunshot come from inside the house and saw two people lying on the floor with Contreras standing over them.

After leaving that home, Sotelo allegedly told deputies, the other man drove to Leo and Judy Ray's home in Buhl. The Rays own Fish Processors of Idaho. According to the report, the other man in the car told Sotelo he wanted to rob them because he was angry about not being hired by Leo Ray for a job. According to the report, Sotelo stated he was dropped off to be a lookout and then picked up after the robbery.

After the robbery, the report states, Sotelo was dropped off near the Fawnbrook apartments and he went to a cousin's house.

Sotelo is being held on a $100,000 bond on charges of robbery and conspiracy to commit robbery while Contreras and the 16-year-old boy are each being held on a $250,000 bond. Sotelo has a Sept. 7 court date while Contreras is scheduled for a preliminary hearing this morning.

Federal Judge Faults Agency Approval of Mine Drilling Plan

BY TODD DVORAK

Associated Press

BOISE • A federal judge has ordered the U.S. Forest Service to revisit some of the decisions made when officials signed off on a mining company's plans to broaden its exploratory drilling in a historic mining district in the mountains near Idaho

U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge on Thursday vacated sections of the environmental assessment the agency produced on the CuMo Mine project, saying the agency acted arbitrarily a year ago in concluding the expanded drilling does not significantly affect water quality.

Lodge also ordered the Forest Service to step back and do additional research and analysis on the impacts drilling could have on groundwater; develop a strategy for monitoring water quality before, during and after drilling; and craft a plan to treat any waters contaminated during drilling.

In August 2011, the Forest Service gave Mosquito Consolidated Gold Mines permission for exploratory drilling that would develop a more precise picture of the area's molybdenum, copper, tungsten and silver deposits.

"The very nature of drilling holes 1,500 to 3,000 feet into the ground seems likely to impact the underlying surface including the groundwater," Lodge wrote in his 45-page opinion. "The appropriate course would be for the Forest Service to have conducted some baseline study and analysis of the groundwater in the area in order to reach the finding of no significant impact."

While it's unclear how the Forest Service will respond, environmentalists say the decision deals a temporary setback to the Canadian company's immediate exploration plan. Boise National Forest officials did not immediately respond to telephone messages left Thursday by The Associated Press.

Mosquito Gold said in a statement that it will cooperate with the Forest Service to ensure the missing information is provided in a timely manner.

"The court agreed that the drill-and-seal project's practices protect groundwater quality but concluded there simply was not enough information about effects of the drilling itself on the geologic structure that may contain groundwater," President and CEO Brian McClay said in the statement.

In his ruling, Lodge leaves it up to agency officials to determine if an amended environmental assessment is needed or a more exhaustive environmental impact statement is appropriate.

Vancouver-based Mosquito Gold wants to construct more than 10 miles of temporary roads, build 137 drill pads and drill 259 holes in the exploratory phase of the project 35 miles north of Boise. Company officials believe the area holds the world's largest deposits of molybdenum, used in the manufacturing of steel products, and on its website, the CuMo project is described as the company's flagship project.

A coalition of environmental groups led by the Idaho Conservation League sued the Forest Service last year, claiming the agency and the company were overlooking the impact drilling could have on water quality in a drainage where streams and creeks ultimately flow into the Boise River system.

John Robison, the consermining district to be conlead. Although the state reother materials could intronetwork.

Pine Evacuation Order Partially Lifted

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • After serving as the main hub for evacuees and volunteers, the American Red Cross of Greater Idaho's Welcome Center in Pine closed Thursday.

The Elmore County Sheriff's Office is allowing limited access to residents without a permit, which no longer causes a need for Red Cross personnel and volunteers to remain on site. The evacuees were told to leave after smoke from the 141,000 acre Trinity Ridge Fire greatly diminished road visibility.

An evacuation order remains in affect for residents in the Featherville to Paradise area. Residents interested in accessing their properties must contact their Incident Commander Post, but access will be only be allowed on a case-by-case basis. For more information, call (208) 590-3845.

Wash. Gives Targeted Wolves a Reprieve

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) • Washington wildlife managers have given a reprieve to four wolves targeted for killing in the state's northeastern corner.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife said Thursday that it's giving the temporary reprieve to give its team in the field a break, to avoid running into people outdoors on Labor Day and to evaluate what it's learned so far about the pack's activities. Officials say they'll reconsider next week.

The move also came after protests from conservation groups who argued that there's little evidence the Stevens County pack, known as the Wedge pack, were to blame for recent depredations on the Diamond M ranch. Eight livestock have been injured or killed since last month, most recently in mid-August.

Officials killed one wolf Aug. 7 and planned to kill up to four more.

The conservation groups include Cascadia Wildlands and the Center for Biological Diversity. The department maintains that the wolves are responsible.

Idaho Falls Man Pleads Guilty to Christmas Stabbing

IDAHO FALLS (AP) • A 19year-old Idaho Falls man has pleaded guilty to stabbing another man to death during a Christmas Day fight in Ammon.

Joseph Manuel Chavez pleaded guilty Wednesday to second-degree murder in the Dec. 25, 2011 death of 20year-old Buck Garner of Idaho Falls. Garner was stabbed twice in the heart.

Chavez said Wednesday

he was being attacked by Garner and retaliated by jabbing him with a knife.

Bonneville County sheriff's officials have said Garner was stabbed as he tried to be a peacekeeper after seven men arrived at a residence looking for a fight.

Under the plea agreement, both sides will recommend a 10-year fixed and 15-year indeterminate sentence when Chavez is sentenced on Oct. 9.

ISU Partners with College to Offer Medical Program

CALDWELL (AP) • Idaho State University is partnering with a private liberal arts college in Caldwell to expand a master's program for budding physician assistants.

The Pocatello-based university and the College of Idaho announced the joint agreement Thursday, saying it will help address a growing state need for primary health providers.

Idaho State University, with its focus on health and medical education, already offers the two-year Master of Physician Assistant Studies Program in Pocatello and Meridian. The College of Idaho will now provide a third campus for the program, beginning in 2014.

Physician assistants, called PAs, are health practitioners who work under a doctor's supervision. The Idaho Department of Labor has predicted significant growth for the profession, with the number of positions in the state increasing by more than 40 percent by 2018.

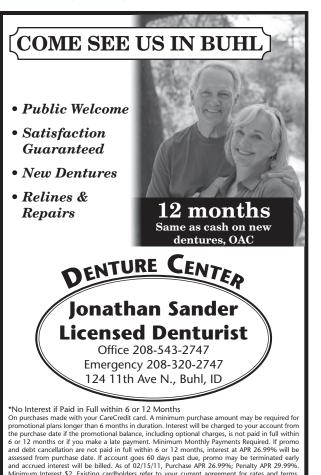

Ex-medical Marijuana Provider Dies in Custody

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • A Montana medical marijuana provider with a history of serious illness died Thursday after his transfer to a federal prison that could give him proper medical care was delayed for months.

Richard Flor's death came weeks after a federal judge denied an attorney's request to release the 68-year-old Miles City resident while he appealed his five-year sentence. U.S. District Judge Charles Lovell wrote in his Aug. 7 order that it was "unfortunate" that Flor's transfer to a Bureau of Prisons medical facility was delayed, but "it is not factually or legally significant."

Lovell sentenced Flor in April after Flor pleaded guilty to maintaining a drug-involved premises. Flor previously was diagnosed with dementia, depression and numerous medical conditions, and Lovell recommended that he be evaluated by federal prison hospital officials to determine what facility would be best suited for him.

Flor had been held at Crossroads Correctional Facility, a private prison in Shelby, while awaiting the Bureau of Prisons' decision on where he would serve his sentence.

Idaho Boy Charged with Petit Theft of Toy Car

LEWISTON (AP) • Police in north-central Idaho say a 9-year-old boy has been charged with petit theft after his neighbor's toy ride-on car was reported stolen.

The Lewiston Tribune reports the neighbor bought the Power Wheels car, valued at about $450, for her kids two months ago and it disappeared from her yard a month later. She called the Lewiston Police Department after seeing what she believed to be the same vehicle, covered in black paint, at the boy's home.

The child's father reportedly told police that the boy claimed to have found the car in a Dumpster, and that he gave the child the black spray paint.

State legislators passed a bill in 2010 that established an independent governing board to oversee ISDB and its statewide outreach services.

Then, the project to construct a new playground and disc golf course finally moved forward. After a design process, construction started in fall 2011 and wrapped up this spring.

The disc golf course, Darcy said, helps expose students to an activity with a growing number of clubs for those who are deaf or hard of hearing.

"It gives us another opportunity to keep our kids into what's trending," he said.

The Challenges

Monday marked the beginning of a new school year at the Idaho School for the Deaf and the Blind.

About 85 students are enrolled at the Gooding campus. And nearly 1,400 children up to age 21 are receiving educational services statewide.

Darcy said state funding for services has declined more than $1 million since 2006, but there are nearly twice as many children being served.

And it isn't always easy to find qualified employees.

"The need for teachers for blind and visually impaired students is still up there," Darcy said.

There aren't any university programs in Idaho to train teachers to work with those students.

But there are area schools -Idaho State University and Utah State University — with programs to produce teachers certified to work with deaf or hard of hearing students.

Darcy said school administrators are looking to create partnerships with other universities.

Some ISU and Utah State alumni have been hired at the Idaho School for the Deaf

A Statewide Reach

Idaho Educational Services for the Deaf and the Blind has a statewide reach beyond its Gooding campus.

The agency has partnerships with school districts around the state. And nearly 1,400 Idaho children are receiving services. For instance, an interpreter may be needed for a student who is deaf or hard of

"We're hoping to go to the Legislature to turn that into a full-time position," Darcy said, since there's a growing population of students in need of services in the Lewiston area.

A New School Year

On the first day of school Monday, about 40 parents tagged along with their child to the campus in Gooding.

"They got to experience the first day with them and meet their teachers," Darcy

Parents also got to meet employees at on-campus cottages where out-of-area students live during the week.

have been a guard tower from the camp from Carl Schrock.

After speaking with DOT officials, he learned the department could help put up a historical sign if they could prove the camp really existed and get approval from the land owner to erect the sign.

"It was hard to prove because they weren't allowed to take photos of a POW camp," Firth said.

The volunteers were able to obtain an aerial photo showing the camp from the Natural Resources Conservation Services.

"This is a project that is great for the community and has both local and national significance," Jerke said.

Gary Schorzman, past president of the Minidoka County Historical Society, said the influences of the prisoners are still in the community today and can be seen in the languages spoken and in some of the local cooking.

The camp provided academic, trade and democracy classes and prisoners received medical, dental and mental health services equal to what American troops received. They also received monetary compensation for their labor equal to the standard pay at the time.

Prisoners also had books, musical instruments, sports equipment and art supplies and they established libraries, theater groups, orchestras and choirs. They also published a camp newspaper.

Minidoka County Historical Society Museum Curator Ginger Cooper said the museum has letters from former POWs at the camp, many who say they were treated well at the camp.

The camp was dismantled and everything put up for bid with the last of it being sold or hauled off by July 1947.

"This is certainly nothing to celebrate, but it is something to commemorate," said Audrey Neiwerth, Minidoka County Historical Society board member.

Man Investigated For Child Porn Spotted With Child, Arrested

BY ALISON GENE SMITH alismith@magicvalley.com

FILER • A Filer man who police investigated in 2010 and 2011 for possession child pornography was arrested after a concerned citizen spotted him with a child last week.

Daniel Joseph Roach, 29, was arrested Aug. 24 for 13 counts of possession of sexually explicit material containing children.

In November 2010, Twin Falls Police received a tip from the Utah Attorney General's Office about a Twin Falls area-based email address whose user uploaded six images of naked or partially clothed girls between the ages of 12 and 15. Eventually, police connected the email to Roach, a police report states.

On Nov. 30, 2010, police discovered where Roach was living and spoke with him at the Filer Police Department.

According to the police report, Roach admitted to saving pictures of child pornography on his computer and also allegedly admitted to looking at child pornography in public libraries, including in Salt Lake City.

At the time, Roach was instructed to stay in touch with officers and was again interviewed in January 2011 at the Twin Falls Police Department.

In that interview, the police report states Roach described to officers how he found child pornography and also allegedly confessed to a past lewd conduct offense with a younger female relative.

After the interview, police said they were waiting for forensic examination results in order to file a court summons for Roach. While police were waiting, Roach was again instructed to stay in contact with police, but several months later police were unable to contact him, the police report states.

On Aug. 21 of this year, a woman who knew Roach called police after she spotted him with a young child and adult woman, the police report stated.

On Aug. 24, police arrested Roach at his home in the 800 block of West Midway Street in Filer. He was booked into the Twin Falls County Jail and released on his own recognizance after he was arraigned on the charges on Monday.

he voicemail message played like heartstrings.

Her friend has Stage 4 cancer and they are trying to organize a benefit concert in the park.

She read Wednesday's news that two people in Buhl allegedly used the disease to con people out of money. She wanted to separate the benefit concert from their misdeeds, concerned people will be skeptical of helping someone actually in need.

We don't think she needs to worry. The sad truth is, most people have cancer stories of their own.

Before we heard her message, we sat around a table discussing the news of the day. When this story came up, the conversation shifted from hard news and opinion to personal experiences.

One of us remembered a benefit auction and dinner organized by Wilson Bates for an employee with cancer. There was an outpouring of support for this fundraiser. A letter the staff of Wilson Bates submitted to the Times-News thanked 127 individuals and businesses by name for their volunteer time and donations.

Another of us sat quietly remembering hist child-hood best friends' the elated look when the doctors incorrectly told his mother she no longer had cancer. Unfortunately, when the two were 13 years old, the mother was rediagnosed with cancer. That year, she made his favorite dessert every week, trailing morphine and oxygen, movements slowing each time.

Our own newsroom is not immune. One of our colleagues, who left the newspaper to battle the disease, came for a visit. The reunion was brief, but full of questions, laughter and stories. When he left, a room full of people who make their living from words just stayed silent awhile

Without a doubt, cancer and need exist in our communities. And while it's easy to become cynical when we read stories like the one about the Buhl parents allegedly holding a cancer fundraiser under false pretenses, we prefer to note the humbling amount of support a community was willing to give. Local businesses donated. Youth groups volunteered to wash cars.

People rallied for a supposedly sick girl not even living in their community.

We believe that high level of support, displayed so genuinely by those big hearts in Buhl, will continue here in the Magic Valley. The threat is too real, the need too large, for such kind-hearted people to ignore.

ONLINE COMMENTS

An online reader responded to the letter to the editor, "Environmentalists Have Two Sets of Standards:"

platts: "For many decades we had managed forests, nearly 40 sawmills working south of the Salmon. Proceeds going to the counties, with the Forest Service the only agency that made money in the government. Fires like the Trinity Ridge would be put out before they had a chance to blow up. In today's money we have lost trillions of dollars from renewable resources. Environmental groups opposing logging have won. Our forests are in the worst shape in history and getting sicker. We can't have healthy animal habitat without management. Environmentalists gloat as millions of animals are incinerated with a policy that seems to be lock it up and burn it down."

In response to the article, "Gooding County Jail Redesign Has 184 Beds," an online reader wrote:

Andre Leonard: "It appears Gooding County is on the right track with their plans to build a new jail and the cost savings it will provide in the long run. The County Commissioner's appear to have done a considerable amount of due diligence also in making this happen.

It is hoped that Jerome County will follow suit soon in replacing it's 40-year-old jail facility. It's interesting to note that Jerome County, which currently has spent over $318,000 in a six month period to house inmates in other counties needs to follow suit, as it is not cost effective to continue to house inmates in other counties.

Jails may not be popular topics, but the reality is they exist and are necessary."

nn Romney gave a wonderful speech. What's not deeply appealing about a woman who has struggled with illness and miscarriages and emerged with grace? Surely the day that Ann and Mitt Romney stood in the doctor's office and heard her diagnosis, they didn't think she would be onstage the way she was Tuesday night. She said she hasn't lived a storybook marriage because she and her husband have faced hard knocks. But isn't that what a storybook marriage is? A love that can withstand everything?

But was it a great political speech? I'm not so sure. It depends on what your previous feelings were about Mitt Romney and if you watched it on television or are going to hear about it later.

Thirty-two percent of those who participated in a recent CBS poll said they didn't know enough about Mitt Romney to form an opinion. If any of those voters were watching Tuesday night, this was the kind of introductory message the Romney campaign will be delighted to have them hear.

John Dickerson

Slate

It was a two-part speech. In the first part, Ann Romney tried to show that she understood women. At one point she said, "I love women!" No mistaking that.

More powerful, perhaps, were the little details she offered that showed she knew what women of all socioeconomic backgrounds live with every day. She talked about eating tuna fish and pasta as a newlywed. She described how women have to keep the household in their head no matter what they do: how they're the ones who have to remember the number for the emergency room doctor or stay up late to help the kids finish their book reports.

Having laid the predicate, she dove into the real task: testifying for her husband. "His name is Mitt Romney and you really should get to know him," she said. She didn't really do much to tell us about him though. There were no stories you could hang your hat on. She mostly asserted that he was wonderful and testified to his ethic.

"No one will work harder. No one will care more. No one will move heaven and earth like Mitt Romney to make this country a better place to live!" That line received the loudest applause of the entire speech.

If Mitt Romney's problem is that voters don't think he's authentic enough, listening to a woman testify to her authentic adoration certainly conveys authenticity on the object of her devotion. You can't feel that way about a robot.

But what story from the speech will one person who watched repeat to another person who didn't watch? What's going to stick with that voter who didn't know much about Romney beforehand? Sounds like a nice guy, but such a voter won't be able to explain why in a day or two.

Ann Romney's two best moments were when she said she had a "real marriage," and her description of Mitt Romney's contributions to the community.

"Mitt doesn't like to talk about how he has helped others because he sees it as a privilege, not a political talking point. And we're no different than the millions of Americans who quietly help their neighbors, their churches and their communities. They don't do it so that others will think more of them."

I may be overly influenced by Elizabeth Dole's convention speech in 1996. That was another case in which a popular spouse was called on to humanize her husband. She did it by telling stories about Dole's extraordinary courage and suffering. She told stories of his humor and his generosity and hugged the Capitol security officer who burst into tears when Dole resigned from the Senate. Dole was regularly voted the most beloved member of the Senate by the people who worked there.

Those stories stuck with you. Dole's decency shined through. I am not sure how that works with the Ann Romney speech because it was more assertion than storytelling. "You can trust Mitt," she said. If that message gets across, it will blunt Obama's attacks and open women voters to looking at Romney in a new way, but it takes more than that. Great speech, but Mitt Romney still has to break through the trust barrier himself.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Idaho has Become a Third World Labor Market

Well, I'm out of the closet; I'm a Democrat now.

The vote that was taken on the right-to-work law was incredible, calculated and deceptive. I was one of many who thought I was voting against it but didn't. Every state that has passed this law has had a drop in the wages paid.

Don't be fooled. The statements that were made about attracting business to your state are true. More businesses are coming to the state. Why not? Low wages, low taxes and they only have to provide expensive low-grade benefits — only enough to attract the work force from another employer who has none.

We have turned into the Third World labor market. Leave where you are, come here and we will give you tax incentives, land, infrastructure and, above all, a very cheap work force, with no possibility of organized labor giving you any trouble at all Employers in states that allow organized labor are forced to consider their labor costs with the idea that they need to provide wages and benefits that will persuade their employees not to vote in a union. Now we are in the position that when a company comes into the area, they can cut the percentage they pay for labor drastically but still sell their products for the same amount.

Who do you think sponsored this bill? The system is broken. How can a business lay off half of its full-time work force and then turn around and claim it is creating a great number of new jobs by hiring back its seasonal work force. This results in government grants for infrastructure, even when there has been an incredible loss to the local economy in wages and jobs.

We as the people have allowed business leaders to drive the lawmaking process. Yep, we are at fault. Somebody out there please start the process of repealing this law. I don't have the means or I would. Watch out, whoever you work for may fire you for your effort and you will never know that your involvement was the reason.

Purebred Yellowstone Bison Born in the Bronx

DENVER (AP) • A purebred Yellowstone bison is growing up at the Bronx Zoo after scientists were able to successfully implant a genetically pure embryo into a commer-

The zoo and Colorado State University announced Thursday that the surrogate bison gave birth to a healthy male calf at the zoo on June 20. In October 2011, a team led by reproductive physiologist Jennifer Barfield took embryos from Yellowstone bison kept at the university, washed them free of disease and implanted them in a group of surrogates. An ultrasound two months later revealed that one was pregnant and that bison was taken to the zoo, along with the other bison, in April.

While many bison have been bred with cattle, Yellowstone National Park has one of the world's largest and most genetically-pure bison herds. However, about 40 percent test positive for exposure to brucellosis, which can cause pregnant animals to miscarry. Concern about the disease has prevented the animals from being taken out of the park to reproduce.

The zoo has long been interested in establishing a breeding herd of genetically pure bison that can help establish herds at other zoos. It says its new calf, which will not go on exhibit, is the first ever genetically pure bison produced by embryo

"The Bronx Zoo played an important historical role in the recovery of the American bison. By establishing a pure herd the zoo will be, in essence, returning to its roots," the zoo's general curator and associate director, Pat Thomas, said in a state-

Idaho Department of Fish and Game veterinarian Mark Drew examines 'Boo Boo,' a bear cub that was found Sunday night by firefighters battling the Mustang Fire near Salmon.

Vets Volunteer to Care for Boo Boo

BOISE (AP) • Veterinary hospitals across southwestern Idaho are volunteering to care for a black bear cub rescued from a wildfire burning in the eastern Idaho backcountry.

The bear nicknamed "Boo Boo" needs daily care for second-degree burns on all four paws. Mark Drew, a veterinarian with the state Department of Fish and Game, said he is checking into a handful of facilities and hopes to pick a place for the bear soon. The cub needs his band-

Boo Boo weighs about 25 pounds and is estimated to be 4 months old. He was discovered Sunday night clinging to a tree in a region recently scorched by a massive wildfire near Salmon.

Efforts to find the bear's mother were unsuccessful, officials said.

The cub likely hadn't eaten for at least four days and couldn't really walk when he was found, the Idaho Statesman reported. Officials had wanted to rehabilitate the bear at a wildlife sanctuary in McCall, but the extent of the burns requires more intensive care.

Boo Boo's story is not unlike the tale of Smokey Bear, a cub that became a national symbol for fire prevention after he was found in a charred tree taking refuge from a New Mexico blaze in 1950. He was also treated for burned paws.

In Idaho, state wildlife officials report they've been flooded with calls from people wanting to help Boo Boo and that once they pick a veterinary hospital, they will let the public know how they can donate for the

Hunter Shortage Costs States Millions

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) Fewer out-of-state hunters are traveling to Idaho and Montana in search of deer and elk, costing fish and game agencies millions of dollars in fees.

The Spokesman-Review reported Thursday that weather, wolves, politics and the economy are depressing the number of out-of-state hunters who would normally be flocking to the two states. Nonresidents pay up to 15 times more than residents for the privilege to hunt big game.

Hardest hit are rural towns where nonresident hunters book motel rooms, eat at restaurants and support numerous other businesses.

But losses are huge in state license revenue alone.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department watched $3.5 million in license revenue vaporize last year because it could not sell all of its allotted nonresident deer and elk tags, said Craig Wiedmeier, license division manager.

That amounted to a 4.5 percent drop in the department's $77 million annual budget, which is funded almost entirely by hunting and fishing license fees.

Idaho's sales of nonresident deer and elk tags have steadily declined each year since 2008. The trend apparently hasn't bottomed out.

Last year, sales of nonresident Idaho deer tags were down 22 percent from 2010 and elk tag sales were down 23 percent, Wiedmeier said. The number of tags sold this year is down about 18 percent from August 2011.

Montana is hurting, too. For the second time in 30 years, the state has a surplus of nonresident big-game combo license tags that used to sell out by March 15.

Montana Wildfire Claims Homes, Causes Injuries

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • Rapidly expanding wildfires across a broad swath of southern Montana have caused injuries and burned homes, buildings and vehicles, authorities said Thursday, as firefighters struggled to contain the flames amid hazardous conditions.

The precise toll of the latest spate of fires to hit the state remained uncertain. But at least three evacuation orders were in place and well over 150 homes were threatened by blazes that in some cases burned unchecked.

High temperatures and erratic winds made the fight more difficult. And with at least nine large fires burning in Montana, officials said there was increasing competition for adequate equipment and personnel.

"We hope for everything but take what we can get," said Karen Tuscano of the U.S. Forest Service.

Tuscano was responding to a new wildfire in the Paradise Valley near Yellowstone National Park. The blaze known as the Pine Creek Fire ignited Wednesday and resulted in minor injuries to firefighters and members of the public, the Park County sheriff's office said.

Coroner Identifies Woman Pulled from Boise River

GARDEN CITY (AP) • The Ada County coroner has identified a 19-year-old woman whose body was recovered from the Boise River.

Erwin Sonnenberg's office said Thursday an autopsy had been completed on Kylie Bierlich of Boise and showed the cause of her death was drowning. There were no signs of trauma or injuries and the manner of death has not yet been determined.

Bierlich was reported missing Aug. 24 and the coroner says the case is being investigated as a possible suicide.

Police in Garden City investigating started Wednesday after two kayakers spotted a body in the river and reported a possible drowning to authorities around 7:15 p.m. Officials removed the body just after 9 p.m.

Nonconference Gauntlet Starts Tonight for Bruins

"We're going to open up tough and hopefully if we do well the rest will be a little easier trying to qualify for the playoffs."

BY DAVID BASHORE

dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • As soon as senior defensive back John Hohnhorst saw the 2012 Twin Falls football schedule, he acknowledged the distinct challenge.

His initial reaction wasn't one of being intimidated, though.

"I saw the schedule and thought, 'OK, here we go,'" Hohnhorst said after Wednesday's practice.

The Bruins could be forgiven for being a little apprehensive ahead of their four-game nonconference slate, a punishing gauntlet that starts with a trip to Hillcrest tonight and continues with visits by Highland, Nampa and Skyline in successive weeks. Three of those teams are Class 5A schools, and 4A Nampa gives as good as (or better than) it gets from Twin Falls. But head coach Allyn Reynolds wanted a challenging start for the new season, in part to get ready for Great Basin Conference play, and in part because he only lost four starters from last season's playoff team.

Twin Falls' old rivalries with Highland and Skyline, from when they were in the same 5A league, could Bruins receiver Ryan Carlson take center stage in normal campaigns. But the Bruins can't afford to take an eye off the next opponent.

"We're just getting more and more excited," receiver Ryan Carlson said. "We're going to open up tough and hopefully if we do well the rest will be a little easier trying to qualify for the playoffs."

Hillcrest provides a good taste of what Minico can offer. The Knights brought coach Dwight Richins over from Shelley, and he converted their vaunted double-wing attack into something resembling Minico's Wing-Toffense.

But it may not matter as much as what the Bruins themselves do. Each game they set 14 team goals. Every time they hit at least half of them last season, they won. When they didn't hit at least seven, they lost.

"It's a winnable game if we play well," Reynolds said.

HAGERMAN • If tonight's Hagerman-Castleford rivalry game can live up to last year's standard, this will undoubtedly be the Game of the Week in the Magic Valley.

Last year in Castleford, the Wolves led 16-14 at halftime. The visiting Pirates scored the go-ahead touchdown with four minutes remaining, then had a four-play goal line stand defensively to seal the 34-30 victory.

That turned out to be the closest any opponent came to beating Hagerman, which went on to an undefeated season and the 1A DI state championship.

"It's probably one of the best rivalries we have right now," said Hagerman head coach Mark Kress. "In years past when I first came to Hagerman, Castleford used to print shirts, 'Beat Hagerman'. It's an important game. Castleford beat us two out of the last three years. It was a monkey off our back last year to finally get it done."

Some guys graduated, but several key players from last year's game will be on the field again tonight, including Hagerman quarterback Kade Kress, who ran for three touchdowns and passed for another against the Wolves.

"He's nothing but trouble," Castleford coach Tracy Vulgamore said. "Whether he's running or throwing, it doesn't matter. He's going to give us a handful. We can't just allow him to just run where he wants to go; we've got to try to force him to throw the ball and hopefully where he's throwing isn't as strong as he Hagerman graduated a couple skills players, but Mark Kress expects big things from guys like Herman Sandoval and Clint Clifford and Braden Crist.

BURLEY • The Minico-Burley rivalry often brings out the best or worst in players. On Thursday, it brought

The Burley boys soccer team beat Minico 3-1, but the Bobcats ended up with more vellow cards than goals in a physical, chippy match.

On one hand, Burley ended its three-game scoreless losing streak. Two early goals by Brandon Castaneda, both assisted by Angel Anguiano, were as pretty as they come.

On the other hand, the Bobcats got four yellow cards - Anguiano picked up two of them and was ejected. ridiculous. "That's There's no excuse for that. We've got to figure it out," said Burley head coach Wes Nyblade. The two early goals were too much for a young Spartan team to overcome.

"Anytime you allow two easy goals early in the game, you always fall into desperation. We couldn't control the ball because we were trying to press too quick," said Minico head coach Armando Tapia. "The whole 80plus minutes we played in desperation mode."

If Minico was in desperation mode, Burley played in combat mode. One Spartan player, Juan Vega, was taken to the hospital with a possible concussion. The Bobcats' other three yellow cards came for displays of poor sportsmanship as frustration - mostly toward each other - boiled over.

"Our team chemistry right now is shot. Our players don't seem to want to trust each other," Nyblade

In Great Basin Conference play, it was Burley's first win (2-3-0 overall, 1-1-0 GBC) and Minico's first loss (1-2-1, 1-1-0).

Geovanni Mendoza scored Minico's goal on a penalty kick in the second half. Burley's Jesus Bracamantes rounded out the scoring with a late goal.

Minico is still coming into form after graduating 13 seniors off last year's squad that earned the conference's regular season title.

"We are having trouble keeping the defense the same as it was last year. We totally had to rebuild the defense and try to figure who to play where," said Tapia. "We're still remaining competitive and we'll get better as the season progresses."

Some chatter around town predicts a blowout in Hagerman's favor, but Mark Kress isn't buying it. Castleford has an advantage, he says, having already played a jamboree and a game. This is Hagerman's first action.

"Any first game, I'd be happy to come out and be competitive. I definitely wouldn't put it as a blowout type of game," said Mark Kress, adding that his team will need to contain Castleford running back Ty Zimmers, who scored two TDs against the Pirates last year.

The Times-News ran a photo of the 100-meter finals of the 2A state track meet last spring. It showed Zimmers and Kade Kress neck-and-neck. The Castleford-Hagerman rivalry is much the same - it's a good matchup. Castleford is slightly bigger up front and will try to play smash-mouth. When it comes to speed, Hagerman has the advantage.

"I would take average size and superior speed any day," Mark Kress said.

hard and will come and get you. So we're looking forward to a great football game."

The Broncos entered the last two seasons in the national championship discussion with Kellen Moore at quarterback. They beat Virginia Tech in Landover, Md., to open in 2010 and had little trouble with Georgia last year in Atlanta. It ended up not being enough when Boise State lost later in those seasons.

Moore is gone now, and so is standout running back Doug Martin. The Broncos enter this opener ranked 24th in the nation. No. 13 Michigan State is favored by around a touchdown.

Joe Southwick is taking over at quarterback for Boise State. He was Moore's backup a year ago, mostly playing in fourth-quarter mop-up duty.

"I don't think words can ever describe what Kellen did for this program," Southwick said. "But for me personally, I'm just going to control what I can control. That's preparing as much as I can before the game and controlling what I can and not worrying about other things."

In any case, there are some interesting matchups this

Here are our Grid Locks for

The first stop on Twin Falls' nonconference gauntlet leads the Bruins to Idaho Falls, where they'll face 5A newcomer Hillcrest. The Knights might have pulled coach Dwight Richins from Shelley, but they're still employing power football, albeit more of a Wing-T look than doublewing. Caden Neuerburg led Hillcrest in its 27-7 win over Rigby, while Twin Falls is playing its first game of the season. That, combined with the road trip, makes the difference in a tight game.

Hillcrest 27, Twin Falls 20

CANYON RIDGE AT MADISON

It will be Canyon Ridge's double-wing ground game against Madison's aerial attack. Last week, led by RB Eddie Marin, the Riverhawks nearly upset Columbia, losing 12-9 in overtime. Meanwhile, Class 5A Madison was down two touchdowns in the first quarter before rallying to beat Pocatello 29-25 at Holt Arena. Canyon Ridge can take confidence in almost knocking off the No. 5-ranked team in the state, but the 'Hawks definitely need more than Cade Summers field goals to keep up with Madison QB Logan Anderson.

Madison 28, Canyon Ridge

BURLEY AT BUHL

Burley is coming off a dominant 33-0 season-opening win over Filer. This week promises to be a tougher test, but if Burley's offensive line can open holes for RBs Brayden McCracken and Travis Osterhout, plus give QB Zander Cook time to throw, the Bobcats should be 2-0 heading into their bye week. Burley 30, Buhl 21

JEROME AT CENTURY

The Tigers' 40-6 romp over Mountain Home was an eyeopener, while Century lost 35-7 to Class 5A Highland. Jerome moves onto the turf at Holt Arena for this one, where the passing and speed game should help more. Century is probably a bit better than Mountain Home, but go for another Jerome win.

Jerome 28, Century 14

WOOD RIVER AT SALMON

Both clubs have had to deal with smoke and fire in the preseason, and the Mustang Complex Fire is creeping toward Salmon. What effect that will have on the teams is anybody's guess, but Salmon is a quality team even at the 2A level, and Wood River might need some adjustment time trying to replace Greg Lindbloom.

Salmon 24, Wood River 21

VALLEY AT GOODING

Valley is playing its season opener while Gooding already has a win under its belt. The Senators blasted Valley 44-0 last year, and although the Viking front seven is more stout this year, Gooding playing its second of three 2A opponents to start the season shouldn't have much trouble beginning the season 2-0. Gooding 35, Valley 14

NORTH FREMONT AT DECLO

North Fremont brings its 17game losing streak into Declo, where the Hornets have only lost one regular-season home game since 2008. The Huskies' new coach has reportedly gone away from the spread and installed a power run offense, which plays into one of Declo's strengths. Should be an easy seasonopening primer for the fourtime defending Canyon Conference champs, who return 18 starters from last year.

Declo 40, North Fremont 6

AMERICAN FALLS AT KIMBERLY At last, we get to see who steps

The Panthers, and especially senior QB Jordan Dilworth, have been chomping at the bit to return to the field after getting knocked out of the 1A DII state championship game last November. Carey 24, Raft River 18

CASTLEFORD AT HAGERMAN

The Wolves held off Raft River last week, but reigning 1A DI champion Hagerman is an entirely different proposition. The Pirates have plenty back, including reigning state 8man player of the year Kade Kress, who should give Castleford problems both with his legs and his arm. It's a rivalry game that Castleford wants to win, especially after Hagerman nipped a road win last year, but the Wolves don't have the horses.

Choosing the Best Plant Fertilizer for Your Colorful Yard

by Shannon Dauphin, All About Lawns Columnist

Choosing the best plant fertilizer isn't a matter of choosing something that looks good on the shelf. It isn't a matter of how expensive a fertilizer is, either--some of the less expensive varieties might work just as well, and numerous gardeners can tell you that good compost, created in their backyard for free, gives their plants the Plant Fertilizer for a Colorful Backyard How should you go about choosing the best plant

All plants need certain nutrients to grow. The basic three elements are nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium. Most general fertilizers contain all three. When you see a label with three numbers, such as 10-10-10, that indicates the percentage of each of the three basic nutrients in the bag or bottle.

Other nutrients required by your plants are:

- Magnesium
- Carbon
- Sulfur Calcium
- Oxygen Hydrogen

Micronutrients are also necessary for excellent plant growth. These include:

- Chlorine
- Copper • Zinc
- Molybdenum
- Manganese
- Boron Iron

The best all-around plant fertilizer has all of these nutrients. Look for fertilizers that offer at least 16 nutrients on the label, which covers the most basic ones. Anything extra is just icing on the cake, so to speak.

Turn to Fertilizer Experts

If your plants are not thriving, contact a lawn care expert and ask for further help on how to handle your flower beds and container gardens. Sometimes plants have a deficiency in a certain nutrient or mineral that broad spectrum fertilizers can't overcome. In that case, a professional can help you decide what is needed to turn your backyard into a rainbow of color!

OBITUARIES

William Glenn Saxton

Jan. 21, 1919-Aug. 28, 2012

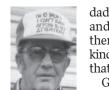

TWIN FALLS • William Glenn Saxton was born Jan. 21, 1919, to William Soloman and Kathlene Saxton.

Glenn was the oldest of eight childeceased dren, brother. Robert (Mary Lou) of Seattle, Wash., brother, Vance of Evanston, Wyo., brother, Max

Glenn spent most of his life in Declo and Twin Falls, Idaho. His school years he spent in Upton and Coleville, Utah, with his mother and father. When he was in his teens, they moved to Declo, where he met his wife, Viola. They were married in February 1942 during the time of World War II. Glenn went into the Navy in 1943, giving the couple one year before he had to go away. He was sent to San Diego, Calif., and from there he was sent to San Francisco, where Viola went to be with him. He was not there long before he was sent overseas. Glenn was on a transport ship, and he was back in port every six weeks, which was how often the couple got to see each other over the next two years.

Viola worked at the shipvards until she went to Coleville, Utah, to live near Glenn's folks, awaiting the arrival of their first child. What a wonderful time in their lives. Glenn wanted a boy but was surprised to find Linda to be the apple of his eve. He came home when she was born for a week, then two months later he was released. Living in Coleville, Glenn worked at the Park City Mines for four years. The second child was William Glenn Junior, and Glenn was such a proud daddy to have a girl and a boy. He said there were no more kinds to have and so that was it.

Glenn felt they had all the good things in life they needed. He taught them both to fish and hunt, the things he loved, and on Fridays when school was out, the family headed for the fishing holes. It didn't make much difference where they went as long as there was fishing. Linda would always tag along, and Viola stayed in camp to do the cooking. Glenn loved the outdoors and loved all living things. He taught his kids what he believed, which was "if you can't eat it, let it live." Glenn was known to put his fishing worms back in the ground if they weren't going to be used. In his later years, he stopped hunting after he could no longer shoot a deer or an elk. He said he had shot his share and it was time to let the rest live.

When Glenn retired in 1985, Glenn and Viola spent their winters in Quartzsite, Ariz., where Glenn continued to fish wherever there was a place. When Glenn's health became too bad for him to do many of the things he enjoyed, his two children stopped whatever they were doing to make sure he still got to go camping and be in the outdoors. They saw to it that he had everything he needed.

William Glenn passed away Tuesday, Aug. 28, 2012. He will be missed deeply but will be remembered for all of the good times he spent together with his family. Glenn always said, "If I die tomorrow, I've had my share of a good life." It is certain that all of our lives have been made greater by the presence of such a great man. We will all miss you dearly.

A graveside inurnment service for Glenn will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 8, at the Sunset Memorial Park Cemetery.

All services and arrangements are under the direction of the Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those wishing to share memories and condolences may do so at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

Hip-hop Mogul Chris Lighty Dies in NYC

BY COLLEEN LONG Associated Press

NEW YORK • Chris Lighty, a hip-hop mogul who helped the likes of Sean "Diddy" Combs, 50 Cent and Mariah Carev attain not only hit records, but also lucrative careers outside music, was found dead in his New York City apartment Thursday in an apparent suicide. He was 44.

He was found at his home in the Bronx with a gunshot to the head and was pronounced dead there, police said. No note was recovered, but a 9 mm handgun was found and there was no sign of forced entry, said Paul Browne, New York police spokesman. The shooting appears to be self-inflicted, authorities said.

Lighty had been a part of the scene for decades, working with pioneers like LL Cool J before starting his own management company, Violator. But he was in the midst of a divorce and had been having recent financial and personal troubles.

Twitter was abuzz with condolences just hours after the body was found around 11:30 a.m.

"R.I.P. Chris Lighty," Fat Joe posted on his account. "The man that saved my life!" Diddy wrote: "In shock." Rihanna posted: "Rest peacefully Chris Lighty, my prayers go out to family and loved ones! Dear God please have mercy."

And Mary J. Blige wrote: "U never know what can send a person over the edge or make them want 2 keep living. take it easy on people."

50 Cent said in a statement issued through his publicist that he was deeply saddened by the loss.

"Chris has been an important part of my business and personal growth for a decade," he said. "He was a good friend and advisor who helped me develop as an artist and businessman. My prayers are with his family. He will be greatly missed."

Lighty was raised by his mother in the Bronx as one of six children. He ran with a group called The Violators, the inspiration for the name of his management company, according to the company website. He was a player in the hip-hop game since he was a kid DJ. He rose through the ranks at Rush Management mogul Russell Simmons' first company - before eventually founding Violator Management in the late

"Today, we lost a hiphop hero and one of its greatest architects," Simmons tweeted.

Lighty's roster ranged from Academy Awardwinners Three 6 Mafia to maverick Missy Elliott to up-and-comer Papoose and perpetual star Carey. He made it his mission not so much to make musical superstars, but rather multifaceted entertainers who could be marketed in an array of ways: a sneaker deal here, a soft drink partnership there, a movie role down the road.

In a 2007 interview with The Associated Press, Lighty talked about creat ing opportunities for his stars — a Chapstick deal for LL Cool J, known for licking his lips, and a vitamin supplement deal for 50 Cent.

"As music sales go down because kids are stealing it off the Internet and trading it and iPod sales continue to rise, you can't rely on just the income that you would make off of being an artist," he said at the time.

Survivors include his two children. He and his wife, Veronica, were in the process of divorcing. The case was still listed as active, but electronic records show an agreement to end it was filed in June.

He was also having financial trouble. City National Bank sued Lighty, whose given name is Darrell, in April, saying he had overdrawn his account by $53,584 and then refused to pay the balance. The case was still pending.

He also owed more than $330,000 in state and federal taxes, according to legal filings. His tax problems were much steeper a year ago, but he cleared away millions of dollars in earlier IRS liens last October, after selling his Manhattan apartment for $5.6 million.

R. Palmer Beasley, whose Research Linked Hepatitis B to Cancer, Dies at 76

BY CAROL M. OSTROM

The Seattle Times

SEATTLE • Adventurous, meticulous and intensely curious about the world and its people, Dr. R. Palmer Beasley, epidemiologist and infectious-disease expert, used those skills to discover the link between the hepatitis B virus and liver cancer proof that a virus could cause a human cancer, and a finding that ultimately led to vaccinations that saved hundreds of thousands of lives

Dr. Beasley, a former University of Washington faculty member and dean of the University of Texas School of Public Health, died Aug. 25 at his home in Houston from pancreatic cancer. He was 76.

Measles, plague, HIV – they all intrigued Dr. Beasley, who had decided as a student at Harvard Medical School that he wanted to be an epidemiologist, studying infectious diseases. In the early 1970s, as a fellow in what became the UW School of Public Health, he jumped at the chance to go to Taiwan to research rubella (German measles). There, he became determined to delve into the mysteries of hepatitis B, which he considered the least understood unconguered virus of the time.

Architect John Kelsey dies at 86

BY VALERIE J. NELSON Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES • While designing what is now the Norton Simon Museum in Pasadena in the late 1960s, architects John Kelsey and Thornton Ladd expressed a belief: Space that houses art "can be part of the event and experience." When it opened in 1969 as the Pasadena Art Museum, observers saw art in the striking curvilinear exterior, which was clad in mottled tiles that appeared to change color with the sun, and in the curved interior walls conceived to showcase modern

An early review by the Los Angeles Times pronounced the structure "eye-catching" and "undoubtedly superior to its only local competition, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art."

After forming the firm Ladd & Kelsey in 1958, the two University of Southern California graduates built a number of major projects over the next quarter-century, including main buildings at CalArts in Valencia and Busch Gardens, a theme park in Van Nuys. Kelsey, 86, died Aug. 4 of complications related to old age at his Santa Barbara home, his family said. In "An Architectural Guidebook to Los Angeles" (2003), architectural historian Robert Winter wrote that the museum drew upon the Streamline Moderne style of the 1930s while reflecting "a formal classic quality."

Weakening Isaac Drenches Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) •

Isaac hovered over Louisiana for a third day Thursday, shedding more than a foot of additional rain that forced authorities to hurriedly evacuate areas ahead of the storm and rescue hundreds of people who could not escape as the rapidly rising waters swallowed

 $entire\,neighborhoods.$

The huge spiral weather system weakened to a tropical depression as it crawled inland, but it caught many places off guard by following a meandering, unpredictable path. The storm's excruciatingly slow movement meant Isaac practically parked over low-lying towns and threw off great sheets of water for hours.

"I was blindsided. Nobody expected this," said Richard Musatchia, who fled his water-filled home in LaPlace, northwest of New Orleans.

Inside the fortified levees that protected New Orleans, bursts of sunshine streamed through the thick clouds, and life began to return to normal. But beyond the city, people got their first good look at Isaac's damage: Hundreds of homes were underwater. Half the state was without power. Thousands were staying at shel-

And the damage may not be done. Even more rain was expected in Louisiana before the storm finally drifts into Arkansas and Missouri.

Isaac dumped as much as 16 inches in some areas, and about 500 people had to be rescued by boat or high-water vehicles. At least two deaths were reported.

Five feet of water poured into Musatchia's home before a neighbor passed by with a boat and evacuated him and his 6-year-old boxer, Renny.

He piled two suitcases, a backpack and a few smaller bags onto the boat and said that was all he had left. He abandoned a brand-new Cadillac and a Harley-Davidson.

MITT ROMNEY MAKES HIS CASE

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) • Mitt Romney launched his fall campaign for the White House in a Republican National Convention finale Thursday night, declaring "what America needs is jobs, lots of jobs" and promising he has a plan to create 12 million of them.

"Now is the time to restore the promise of America," Romney said in excerpts released in advance of his prime-time speech.

"Many Americans have given up on this president, but they haven't ever thought about giving up. Not on themselves, Not on each other. And not on Amer-

"I wish President Obama had succeeded because I want America to succeed," he said. "But his promises gave way to disappointment and division."

"This isn't something we have to accept," he said, appealing to millions of voters who say they are disappointed in the president yet haven't yet decided to cast their votes for his Republican challenger.

In a speech that blended the political and the personal, Romney talked of the importance of the love he felt from his parents and that he and his wife, Ann, have sought to give their children and grandchildren.

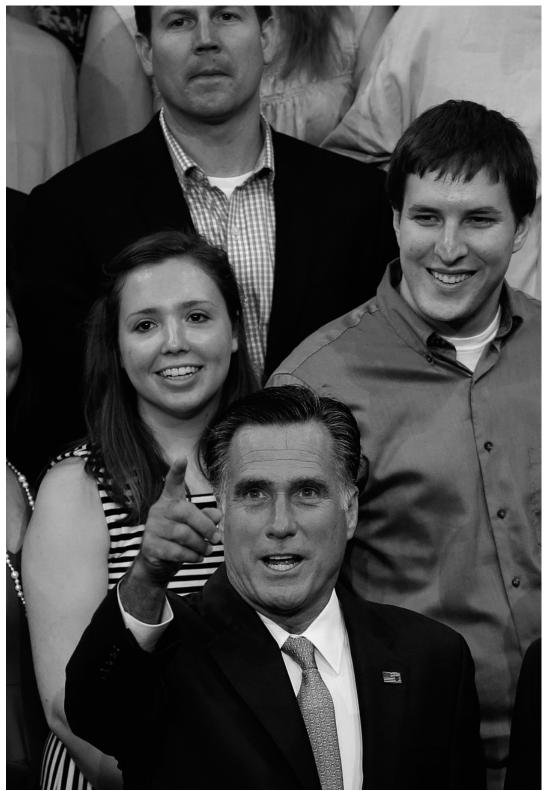

"All the laws and legislation in the world will never heal this world like the loving hearts and arms of mothers and fathers," he said.

Yet the economy is issue No. 1 in the race for the White House, and Romney presented his credentials as the man better equipped than the president to help create jobs.

"When I was 37, I helped start a small company," he said. "That business we stated with 10 people has now grown into a great American success story."

More than the political hoopla, the evening marked one of a very few opportunities any presidential challenger is granted to appeal to millions of voters in a single night.

The two-month campaign to come includes other big moments — principally a series of one-onone debates with Democrat Obama — in a race for the White House that has been close for months. In excess of $500 million has been spent on campaign television commercials so far, almost Romney holds a fundraising advantage over Obama, and his high command hopes to expand the electoral map soon if post-convention polls in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Wisconsin and perhaps elsewhere indicate it's worth the investment.

Romney's aides scripted a Thursday night program that included a video tribute to Ronald Reagan, the two-term president revered still by conservatives. Former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush also had his moment on the podium, and Newt and Callista Gingrich shared one of their own.

their own.

Romney aides said the convention's final night was designed to fill out a portrait of the GOP nominee as a successful businessman, last-minute savior for a troubled 2002 Olympics and a man of family and faith. A portion of the convention podium was rebuilt overnight so he would appear surrounded by delegates rather than speaking from a distance, an attempt to soften his image as a stiff and distant candidate.

Colorado Shooting Suspect Rejected from U of Iowa

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) • The University of Iowa rejected the suspect in the Colorado movie theater shooting rampage from a graduate neuroscience program last year after he visited campus for an interview and left the program director bluntly warning colleagues: "Do NOT offer admission under any circumstances."

James Holmes applied to the Iowa program in late 2010 and was given an interview on Jan. 28, 2011, according to records released by the university.

Holmes wrote in his application that he was passionate about neuroscience and would bring "my strong moral upbringing" to the program. He painted himself as a bright student interested in improving himself and helping the world with a correction cointific research.

with a career in scientific research.

But two days after Holmes' interview, neuroscience program director Daniel Tranel wrote a strongly worded email urging the admissions committee not to accept him to the school.

"James Holmes: Do NOT offer admission under any circumstances," wrote Tranel, a professor of neurology.

Psychology professor Mark Blumberg followed up with a separate email two days later to say he agreed with Tranel about Holmes, one of three students Blumberg interviewed. "Don't admit," he wrote. He recommended admission for the other two. Neither official elaborated on their reasoning in the emails, which are among 12 pages of records the university released about Holmes.

Federal Court Rejects Texas Voter ID Law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) • A tough Texas law requiring voters to show photo identification at the polls discriminates against low-income blacks and Hispanics, a federal court ruled Thursday, wiping out for the November election a measure championed by conservatives and setting up a potential U.S. Supreme Court showdown.

In Washington, a three-judge panel unanimously ruled that the 2011 law imposes "strict, unforgiving burdens on the poor" and noted that Texas' racial minorities are more likely to live in poverty.

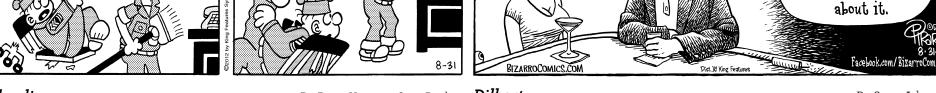

It was the state's second major loss in court in three days, coming after a separate federal panel ruled Tuesday that Texas' Republican-dominated Legislature failed to avoid "discriminatory purposes" when drawing new maps for congressional districts and both houses of the state Legislature.

Why World Markets Focus on Jackson Hole

BY PAUL WISEMAN Associated Press

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP) •

Every August, the world's financial markets shift their attention from the centers of global commerce – New York, London, Tokyo – to a mountain valley in northwest Wyoming. On Friday, they will hear a speech by Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke.

So how did Jackson Hole, Wyo., come to wield such outsize importance in global economic affairs?

In a word, trout.

For four years starting in 1978, the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City hosted an annual conference at different sites and different times of year. The event drew little attention outside the insular world of economic analysts.

Inspired by a conference the Boston Fed held near a picturesque New Hampshire site where the tearjerker "On Golden Pond" was filmed, the Kansas City Fed held its 1981 conference in scenic Vail, Co-

Still no luck. The Vail meeting drew the conference's smallest crowd ever.

Officials at the bank pondered how to draw bigger names and more attention to the yearly confab. That's when they set their sights on Paul Volcker, then chairman of the Federal Reserve in Washington.

They decided to pursue Volcker by dangling the prospect of one of

They needed to find a sure-fire trout-catching spot somewhere in the Kansas City Fed district, which covers Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wyoming, as well as northern New Mexico and western Missouri.

They considered somewhere in Colorado. But a fly-fishing expert said Colorado's waters were too warm for trout in August. Go farther north, he said. Go to Jackson

"I'd never heard of it," confessed Tom Davis, then the Kansas City Fed's research director and point man on the project, according to the bank's official history of the event. The shift was made. And what's been known since 1982 as the Jackson Hole Economic Symposium took its place in economic Jackson Hole isn't even a town.

It's a valley. The biggest town, Jackson (population 9,710), lies at the southern end of Jackson Hole. Arches made of elk antlers mark the entrance to the town square. The Fed conference itself occurs farther north, in a lodge in Grand Teton National Park, about 50 miles south of Yellowstone National Park.

The event now draws 140 people every year, including some of the biggest names in economic and finance. They come to enjoy breathtaking views of the Grand Teton mountain range and Jackson Lake, to hike and fish and to engage in intellectual combat in the halls of the Jackson Lake Lodge.

"Jackson Hole provides a nice opportunity for central bankers to let down their hair a bit - only figuratively speaking, of course and mingle with other members of their tribe and a few academics in an informal setting," says Eswar Prasad, a Cornell University professor who will speak on a Jackson Hole panel this year.

One annual tradition is the Friday night barbecue. There, some of the world's most high-powered economists don cowboy hats, string ties and other Western gear and sometimes join in a line dance.

At each year's Jackson Hole conference, the Fed chairman is a focal point. The head of the European Central Bank normally is, too. (This year is an exception. The current ECB chief, Mario Draghi, who is fighting Europe's debt crisis, can-

BLACK COMEDY

Local playwright writes tongue-in-cheek production about serial killer Lyda Trueblood.

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • It's okay, you can

Local playwright Stephanie Holman hopes you will when you watch her play "Lady Bluebeard."

Holman's play is based on the true story of Lyda Trueblood, also known as Lyda Southard, the infamous local serial killer who was convicted in the 1920 death of her fourth husband, Edward F. Meyer, in Twin Falls. She was also suspected of killing three other husbands and a brother-in-law by boiling flypaper to extract arsenic and putting it in her victims' food. She was finally convicted in 1921 of second-degree murder by a jury at the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

And though the subject of murder by poisoning doesn't sound like typical comedic fodder, many writers, playwrights and films have utilized black comedy over the years. For example, playwright Joseph Kesselring's "Arsenic and Old Lace" and Stanley Kubrick's 1964 film "Dr. Strangelove."

Tony Mannen, professor of theater at the College of Southern Idaho, considers "Dr. Strangelove" the perfect example of black comedy because it is so funny. Other examples include the popular television series "M*A*S*H," which follows medical staff during the Korean War, or "Harold and Maude."

The American Film Institute ranks "Dr. Strangelove" as No. 3 on its list of the 100 Funniest American Movies of All Time. "M*A*S*H" is No. 7 and "Harold and Maude" is No. 45.

'Sometimes making fun of death and war lends itself to comedy," Mannen said.

Especially popular in England, Mannen said, macabre "gallows humor" finds irony or comedy in serious matters such as death.

Mannen said it depends on the mood of the writer. The idea to write a play about Trueblood came to Holman in a single scene. Holman pictured Trueblood's first husband eating a pie poisoned by his wife, and suddenly his face drops into the pie. The first time Holman heard of Trueblood and her trail of victims was during a ghost tour. She was instantly intrigued.

At tonight's walk, Gail Severn Gallery will also feature artwork related to Ketchum's Western heritage: Painter Hung Liu's portraits of Polly Bemis, a slave girl from China who came to Idaho during the late 1800s and finally ended up on the Salmon River east of Grangeville. The story of how she was won in a bet by an Idaho miner was told in "Thousand Pieces of Gold."

Some other things you'll be able to see on today's Gallery Walk:

• Gilman Contemporary, 661 Sun Valley Road, will feature Laura Schiff Bean's paintings of dresses with layered surfaces illustrating life's turning points, along with Donna Rosenthal's sculptural dresses and coats examining the nature of gender roles and social position and Jane Maxwell's collages exploring the mathe of a fermining ideal the old and new together by offering something for everyone. There is so much more we would like to do for Labor Day, but we had to start somewhere."

The Minnie Moore Mine was reportedly discovered by a miner who found a hole full of ore when his dog chased a badger down that hole. About $9 million was taken out of it between 1881 and 1905, making it second only to the Wood River Valley's Triumph Mine, which reaped up to $30 million from the 1930s until the 1950s.

The Minnie Moore Mine has plenty of stories associated with it, including that of a disgruntled employee who shot his tyrannical boss in 1889 after that boss seduced his wife. The shooter then shot himself in the head on the Main Street of Bellevue but lived to tell his story, said Tom Blanchard, a Bellevue historian specializing in mines.

Johnston said there's not a lot left of the old workings — she and her husband removed 30,000 pounds of scrap metal from the mine.

"But we hope we can give a taste of what it was like through pictures and the stories we uncovered in five file cabinets of material," she added.

Blanchard said the success of the Minnie Moore Mine set the tone for economic competition between Bellevue and Hailey, whose Bullion Mines took out $4.5 million between 1880 and 1884. Some hard feelings still linger more than a hundred years later, he added.

Here's the schedule for the rest of Bellevue's Labor Day celebration:

'Mother of Pearl'

(Abingdon Press, $14.99)

BY TETONA DUNLAP tdunlap@magicvalley.com

SUN VALLEY • Kellie Coates Gilbert is a Boise State University alumna, former legal investigator and former resident of Sun Valley.

In her debut novel, "Mother of Pearl," Gilbert combines her 30 years in the legal field with scenes of what it's like growing up in a tight-knit Idaho community.

The story takes place in the fictional town of Falcon, Idaho, but is based on the real-life town of Eagle. It is a tale of a mother who learns her daughter is having an inappropriate relationship with an adult and how she works to bring him to justice.

Gilbert lives in Dallas/Fort Worth, Texas, but will be in Twin Falls for a book signing from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 9 at Barnes and Noble. She will also be at Carey High School at 2 p.m. Sept. 10.

"I write about messy lives," Gilbert said. "And about eternal hope."

She said she writes stories for mothers, daughters, sisters and friends. Gilbert is working on her next book, about three sisters who are struggling to find love.

"Mother of Pearl," published by Abingdon Press, is available on amazon.com. Information: kelliecoatesgilbert.com.

Her book "A Devil in the Pines" is about the legend of the New Jersey Devil: A woman is pregnant with her 13th child but doesn't want it and states, 'Let it be a devil,' with her wish coming true. Holman's book follows two boys named Bobby and Jason on an autumn night with their dad lost in the South Jersey Pine Barrens where the New Jersey Devil dwells.

According to the New Jersey Historical Society, there are several variations of the story. In one version Mrs. Leeds invoked the devil during a difficult and painful labor, and in another version the child was born a monster and Mrs. Leeds cared for the child until her death.

"The kids love it," said Holman, who is also known under the pen name Elizabeth Stephanie Armiger.

But Holman has also written other types of work, such as a musical about the Statue of Liberty and a book that answers, "Where do babies

When Trueblood died Feb. 5, 1958, in Salt Lake City, she was buried at Twin Falls' Sunset Memorial Park under the name "Anna E. Shaw." Shaw was the last name of the last man she married.

Matthews said many visitors, especially around Halloween, come into the museum asking about Trueblood.

But besides the lurid details of Trueblood's crimes, Holman said she wanted to write this play because it's part of local and national history. Just like there are films that depict the exploits of Billy the Kid and Al Capone, Holman said, she wanted to tell the story of Trueblood on stage.

Seattle-Twin Falls Jazz Trio Plans Free Concert

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The jazz trio of Brent Jensen, Bill Anschell and Chris Symer will perform at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 20 in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Recital Hall. The show supports their recent CD, "Blueprints," which was released Aug. 21.

As a follow-up to their duo recording, "We Couldn't Agree More," Twin Falls soprano saxophonist Jensen and Seattle pianist Anschell decided to add Seattle bassist Symer as they explore a set of jazz standards with an uninhibited, freewheeling interplay. Their in-the-moment creations are reminiscent of the great trio recordings of Lee Konitz, Jimmy Giuffre and the like, said a release from CSI, where Jensen is a faculty member.

Anschell has played or recorded with jazz greats including bassists Richard Davis and Ron Carter, guitarist Russell Malone and saxophone legend Benny

Bill Anschell is a first-call pianist on the Seattle jazz scene. He'll play Twin Falls in September as part of a jazz trio the Earshot Jazz organiza-Golson. He received several tion in Seattle including

"Golden Ear" awards from NW Jazz Instrumentalist of the Year (2010 and 2011) and the Year (for his solo piano CD, "Figments").

Symer keeps busy in a variety of musical situations such as the unclassifiable Southern California-based group Headless Household; his work with saxophonist Bennie Maupin, guitarists Charlie Byrd and Robben Ford and pianist Roger Kellaway; and orchestral playing for film scores. Since moving to Seattle from Los Angeles in 2002 he has become part of the city's jazz scene.

The evening's performance is open to the public free of charge. A suggested $5 donation to the CSI Jazz Club will be accepted at the door. For information on "Blueprints," visit originarts.com/recordings/recor the 2011 NW Recording of ding.php?TitleID82621.

TWIN FALLS • Next time you're enjoying a day of vibrant colors — inviting greens, rich reds, cool blues and bright yellows consider the fact that the human eye sees only a narrow range of color.

The newest program at the Faulkner Planetarium, "Cosmic Colors: An Adventure Along the Spectrum," will illustrate what a colorful world we live in but how much we miss because we can't see beyond the wavelengths of visible light, a College of Southern Idaho press release

"Cosmic Colors," beginning at the Twin Falls planetarium Sept. 4, is designed for all age groups. Expect a lively presentation on the nature and origins of color. "Cosmic Colors" will show at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, and at 4 and 7 p.m. Saturdays.

Other programs at the planetarium will be "Lifestyles of the Stars" at 2 p.m. Saturdays, "Lynyrd Skynyrd: Fly On Free Bird" at 8:15 p.m. Fridays and "Led Zeppelin: Maximum Volume 1" at 8:15 p.m.

Admission to the Faulkner Planetarium is $4.50 for adults, $3.50 for seniors and $2.50 for students and children. Family specials are available. Information: CSI's Herrett Center for Arts and Science, 732-6655 or csi.edu/herrett.

JEROME

And cut a flower beside a ground bird's nest

Before it stained a single human breast."

— Robert Frost

Today's deal was a fascinating clash between Zia Mahmood and Tony Forrester, with the latter coming out on top, as he did in the event as a whole. A big win in the last round gave the Gold Cup team a clear victory, allowing Andy Robson to equal Mahmood's record of seven wins.

When Forrester led the club king against three no-trump, Mahmood won and fired back a club, which Forrester ducked. Quite reasonably, Mahmood took the diamond finesse now. Forrester won and faced an awkward problem. He cashed the club queen (on which dummy threw a heart) to avoid being thrown in with that card, then exited with the spade jack. This should have been fatal. Mahmood put on the queen, but failed to unblock the 10 from his hand.

Had he done so, he would have been able to get home in two ways. The first is to lead the heart king, and when West wins and returns the heart jack, declarer ducks and West is endplayed. Or Mahmood could have crossed to the spade ace, cashed all his minor-suit winners, and exited with his last spade. If that were the 10, West could duck it, but as it is, declarer would have been able to put West on lead and come to his ninth trick in the majors.

Mahmood did not know the diamonds were 5-1 at this time, but the spade-jack exit might have given him a clue to the layout.

ANSWER: You have three choices: an invitational two notrump; a reverse to two spades to show the major-suit pattern; and a cautious two clubs, planning to come in again if partner does not pass this call. The first two bids are right on values; the third leaves you space to explore. Put me down as a two-club bidder, but don't ask me to justify it!

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

By Bil Keane

Today's Highlight: On Aug. 31, A.D. 12, Caligula, who was Roman Emperor from A.D. 37 to A.D. 41, was born.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1886, an earthquake with an estimated magnitude of 7.3 devastated Charleston, S.C., killing at least 60 people, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed an act prohibiting the export of U.S. arms to belligerents.

In 1941, the radio program "The Great Gildersleeve," a spinoff from "Fibber McGee and Molly" starring Harold Peary, debuted on NBC.

In 1954, Hurricane Carol hit the northeastern Atlantic states; Connecticut, Rhode Island and part of Massachusetts bore the brunt of the storm, which resulted in nearly 70 deaths.

In 1962, the Caribbean nation of Trinidad and Tobago became independent of British colonial rule.

In 1972, at the Munich Summer Olympics, American swimmer Mark Spitz won his fourth and fifth gold medals, in the 100-meter butterfly and 800-meter freestyle relay; Soviet gymnast Olga Korbut won gold medals in floor exercise and the balance beam.

In 1980, Poland's Solidarity labor movement was born with an agreement signed in Gdansk that ended a 17-day-old strike.

In 1986, 82 people were killed when an Aeromexico jetliner and a small private plane collided over Cerritos, Calif. The Soviet passenger ship Admiral Nakhimov collided with a merchant vessel in the Black Sea, causing both to sink; up to 448 people reportedly died.

In 1987, the Michael Jackson album "Bad" was released by Epic Records.

In 1991, Uzbekistan and Kyrgyzstan declared their independence, raising to ten the number of republics seeking to secede from the Soviet Union.

In 1992, white separatist Randy Weaver surrendered to authorities in Naples, Idaho, ending an 11-day siege by federal agents that had claimed the lives of Weaver's wife, son and a deputy U.S. marshal.

In 1997, Prince Charles brought Princess Diana home for the last time, escorting the body of his former wife to a Britain that was shocked, grief-stricken and angered by her death in a Paris traffic accident hours earlier.

Ten years ago: Vibraphone virtuoso Lionel Hampton died in New York City at age 94. The Los Angeles Sparks beat the New York Liberty 69-66 to defend their WNBA championship. Five years ago: President George W. Bush met privately at the Pentagon with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who conveyed their concern about a growing strain on troops and their families from long and repeated combat tours in Iraq. President Bush announced a set of modest proposals to deal with an alarming rise in mortgage defaults. Mike Nifong, the disgraced former district attorney of Durham County, N.C., was sentenced to a day in jail after being held in criminal contempt of court for lying to a judge when pursuing rape charges against three falsely accused Duke University lacrosse players. One year ago: The Wartime Contracting Commission issued a report saying the U.S. had lost billions of dollars to waste and fraud in Iraq and Afghanistan and stood to repeat that in future wars without big changes in how the government awarded and managed contracts for battlefield support and reconstruction projects. Betty Skelton Erde, 85, an aviation and auto racing pioneer once called the fastest woman on Earth, died in The Villages, Florida.

I have had them ever since.

To this day, my siblings say mean things about Dad, claiming he was a "terrible" father and husband. I'm a lot vounger than the rest of them, so it's possible I never saw the bad side of him. The father I knew was a caring, loving man, and it drives me crazy to hear my siblings speak ill of him. They don't remember his birthday, the date of his death or even how to get organized is now. Begin by cleaning your room and making sure you have a study area that is not messy. After that, you should always put your projects and completed assignments in ONE SPOT, and they won't be lost. You'll be able to find them easily once you have only one place to look.

- NEEDS A QUICK OUT DEAR NEEDS: It's difficult to remain on decent terms after there has been indecent exposure, but tell your manager your conscience demands that the hanky-panky stop. Then, if he tries to get you alone, tell him, "Nothing doing - I've turned over a new leaf."

I'm sure he'll find a way to handle the rejection. If it breaks his heart, he can seek comfort from his wife, from whom he shouldn't have strayed in the first place.

IF AUGUST 31 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: During the next four to six weeks, you could be at the peak of your ability to charm others and receive attention. If you deal with the public to make a living your business will soar — but at the same time, those closest to you might be feeling left out or that you have not been honoring your commitments. Wait until things settle down in December to make a decision about your love life, when everyone will be impressed by your sincerity and trustworthiness. Singles could find their true love or their true calling through a fabulous career move or promotion. A golden opportunity to improve your life in some significant way may be offered.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Count to ten. A big weekend ahead might mean that little details are on your mind. You need not be in a rush to get everything completed at the very last minute. Take time to be extra polite and considerate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It is Friday the 31st, which is the reverse of the 13th, so relax. Put your superstitions aside and think about a weekend full of fun. You might however be obligated to mix business with pleasure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't tempt fate. Be on your best behavior if you sense that background tensions are building to a crescendo. Accuracy is crucial with paperwork today. Put off making major decisions until next week.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reevaluate. When a full moon occurs, your emotional levels may shift. As this 28-day cycle ends, you might become aware of how an intimate relationship shapes up on the balance sheet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): With your gift of gab, you can get any key idea across succinctly. But others may jump to conclusions, make incorrect assumptions or promise more than they can deliver. Ask for final decisions next week.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The full moon in your opposite sign lights up more than the night skies. You may become increasingly aware of the importance of a special someone in your life. Find extra time for intimacy this weekend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It isn't Halloween, but Labor Day weekend, so forget trick-or-treat about schemes. Plotting can get you in the door only if your motives are pure and heart is in the right place. Don't launch new initiatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Everything that glitters isn't gold. Even if it isn't a real golf course, and you will never be mistaken for Arnold Palmer, a game of miniature golf played under tonight's full moon can be a great deal of fun.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get a grip. Don't be fooled into thinking a passing fancy is anything more than a passing fancy. Do exactly what you already promised to do so you won't get tripped up by past commitments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Measure twice, cut once. Take pride in your knack for precision and cautious when handling delicate matters even if it seems time consuming. Extra care may be the only way to realize your dream.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Muddy water clears up if you let things settle. A confusion involving paperwork can be caused by one wrong digit. You aren't likely to be taken in by false promises if you take your time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen to the calm voice of reason. With a full moon in your sign, you may fall prey to irrational wants and needs for a few hours. Recharge your psychic batteries by reading something inspirational.
