Twin Falls Schools See Hundreds More Students

BY JULIE WOOTTON
jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • With a new school year underway, Twin Falls schools are making adjustments to handle a large influx of students.

Administrators recorded 356 more students in the Twin Falls School District on the third day of school this year than on the same day last year.

Elementary Programs Director Ted Popplewell said it's exciting to see the spike in enrollment. But it also means making adjustments.

"This one has hit us harder than last year," he said.

A lot of the growth is happening at the district's seven elementary schools, with 194 more students this year.

Superintendent Wiley Dobbs told school trustees Monday night that administrators projected for a substantial enrollment increase districtwide.

It wasn't enough. On the third day of school, there were 90 more students than what's included in the school district's budget.

Enviro Group Seeks New Executive Director

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

HAILEY • The Western Watersheds Project is seeking a new leader to replace perhaps one of the most controversial anti-grazing advocates in the West.

The Hailey-based organization is currently overseen by Jon Marvel, Western Watersheds' founder and executive director.

However, in mid-August, the non-profit began advertising it was accepting applications for a new executive director.

Marvel is remaining tight-lipped on why his organization is seeking to replace him.

"No comment," he said when asked if he plans on leaving Western Watersheds. "This isn't a story."

Marvel's organization started in the early 1990s as the Idaho Watersheds Project, triggered by habitat degradation along a creek connected to the East Fork of the Salmon River. Over the years, Marvel became well-known throughout Idaho for leading

More Charges, Trial Delayed in Federal Spice Case

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • This month's trial of four Twin Falls residents accused in a federal synthetic drug case has been delayed until November.

New charges have also been added to the case against Allen Nagel, his wife Stephanie Nagel, his brother Gary Nagel and Joshua Cserepes.

The four were accused of distributing synthetic marijuana, known by "spice," "Hayze" and other names. All were arrested along with Joshua Becker of Tigard, Ore., as part of a national synthetic drug operation called "Operation Log Jam," according to details provided by the U.S. Attorney's

What Is Spice?

The term "spice" refers to a range of synthetic forms of marijuana, sprayed on plant matter and usually sold as incense. If misused, the substances can cause a range of health problems, and both state and federal authorities have worked to ban and regulate the substances for a couple of years.

Loss of Local Historian Felt Across Community

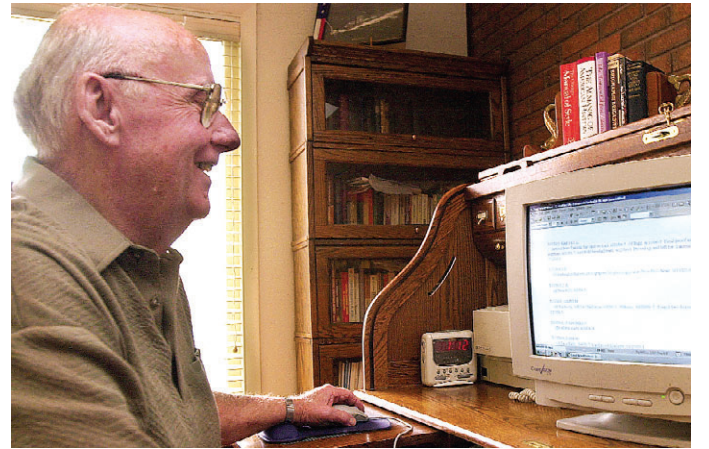

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

TWIN FALLS • The first time James Varley sat down to write a column on the history of Twin Falls, no one thought of him as a historian.

"We didn't know," said Peggy Varley, James' wife. "Not until he wrote that first article. And then it kind of just took off. I think writing the columns was one of his biggest joys in his life."

Varley didn't start researching and writing local history well after he retired from the U.S. Navy. But once he started, Varley quickly established himself as a reputable historian on south-central Idaho events.

That voice was lost this past weekend: Varley, 82, passed away from his long battle with

US Stocks Rise Ahead of Fed Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) • Investors spent Tuesday preparing for two events sure to move markets this week: a Federal Reserve meeting and a court decision on whether Germany can help support its struggling neighbors. And if the stock market's gains Tuesday are any sign, they expect both events to turn out well.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 69.07 points to close at 13,323.36. The average of 30 large company stocks has already gained 1.8 percent to start September, a month which is usually dismal for stocks.

Federal Reserve officials will gather for a two-day meeting today. Many expect the Fed will announce a new effort to revive the sluggish economy Thursday afternoon.

Fundraisers in the Works after Family's Tragedy

After interviewing Kamal Darji about the deadly car crash that killed his mother and brother and left his father with a fractured neck and still in a coma, I told him I didn't think I would be able to talk about the crash if the same thing happened to me.

Smith

Darji spoke solemnly but surely about the crash that so quickly and dramatically changed his life. The only thing he knew about the future was that he won't be able to handle it on his own.

As his friend Chandra Upreti said to me, this is a whole new world for Bhutanese refugees. Upreti has helped Darji communicate with police and doctors caring for his father in Boise, but months of working with insurance companies and other agencies and tens of thousands of dollars in medical bills are still to come.

After the article was published Saturday, I saw readers on Magicvalley.com and our Facebook page asking how they could help. I've since learned a dinner fundraiser is in the works for the Darji family. A bank account is also being set up for donations.

Watch the Times-News for details as they are available, and give me a call at 735-3220 or email alismit@magicvalley.com if you are planning to host an event to benefit Kamal and his family.

Songs for a Well-loved Friend

I went up to Shoshone on an afternoon when I didn't have much to do in the office. I stopped in at 2nd Time Around, an antique store, and met Shoshone resident William "Wid" Tanaka. I ended up writing about him and his dog, Arlo, for my weekly People column.

Dunlap

But before Arlo was at Tanaka's side, he had another dog named Sarah. She was 17 when old age started to slow her down.

"I told Kathy, I think this is the end of it for Sarah," Tanaka said he told his wife. To help ease her pain, Tanaka said he played Irish songs for Sarah until she passed at the age of 17 1/2.

Confidence in Life

While working on a story for the Religion section recently, I met a woman who struggled for years with addiction. More than once she had started a 12-step program, only to fall away from it a short time later. But one day, she said, something clicked. She allowed God to touch her heart.

Weeks

"I had about this much confidence in life," Twin Falls resident Aime Marrs said, pinching together her thumb and forefinger. She then spread her arms wide: "But God gave me this much confidence."

That's one of the neat things for me covering the Religion beat — to hear how people are changed by their beliefs, how God works miracles even today.

-Andrew Weeks

A Coffee Break with History

The smell of smoke and roasting coffee beans filled the air. Times-News reporter Melissa Davlin and I were working on a story about an Eritrean refugee named Mulu Ghebrekidan. The green beans slowly turned a dark brown as Ghebrekidan's wife, Shewaye Meren, roasted them over a charcoal fire. In Eritrea and Ethiopia it is tradition to have three cups of freshly brewed coffee with guests.

Smith

As we sipped each cup, the size of an espresso shot, Ghebrekidan shared his story. He fled fighting in Eritrea at night, avoiding troops as he made his way to a refugee camp in Ethiopia. He met his wife, who was a neighbor of a family member.

Ghebrekidan made the long journey to Twin Falls and has been here since February. He studies during the day and works at night. After he completes his education in America, he plans to work in the medical field. His wife, Shewaye, who finally received her immigration paperwork, arrived in Idaho two weeks ago. She will take English classes and plans to eventually work in a boutique.

It's inspiring to see two people building a new life together in America — and I was wired from the three cups of coffee the rest of the day.

Trailhead Signs Could Use Your Help

After my Aug. 30 story on Independence Lakes, I heard from people who love that particular piece of the Idaho mountains. Among them were Leon and Kay Peterson of Connor Creek, who drove their Jeep to Independence Lakes for their honeymoon 40 years ago.

The trail is closed to motorized traffic now, but the Petersons have made the trip on foot or horseback many times since then. In August, 15 family members celebrated the couple's milestone anniversary by fishing and exploring at Independence Lakes.

Hutchins

"How can those of us who love the lakes advocate for better signage for others to locate the trailhead and have the campground log fence repaired?" Leon and Kay wrote in an email to me. "We had three other groups ask for our help to locate the trailhead because of inadequate signs."

Sounds to me like a great project for a volunteer group who loves the outdoors.

Exciting Times at Canyon Ridge

Last week, freshmen at Canyon Ridge and Twin Falls high schools had a high-energy first day of school.

At Canyon Ridge High, students ran all over the school building on a scavenger hunt — part of freshman orientation activities.

Besides serious talks about academics and anti-bullying policies, instilling school pride in the new high-schoolers also began on the first day.

Wootton

At Canyon Ridge, about 25 student council members shared their favorite memory of being a Hawk. And they showed a light-hearted video they created, as the song "Good Time" by Owl City blasted in the auditorium.

Canyon Ridge High Principal Brady Dickinson encouraged students to be proud of their school and get involved with activities outside the classroom.

Animal Control Work Keeps Police Busy

As a newcomer to Twin Falls, I was surprised at the relatively high number of dogs running loose, at least in my neighborhood. That's why it was interesting to find during research for last week's story about dogs and cyclists that both the city of Twin Falls and Twin Falls County have leash laws covering dogs off their owner's property.

Sgt. Charles Garner of the Twin Falls Police Department provided statistics showing that city police have taken 184 reports of dogs at large since they took over animal control responsibility from the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Office on June 15.

Kadel

Garner said Twin Falls police officers have taken 10 reports of dog bite incidents so far this year. That compares with six dog bite reports in 2011, 19 in 2010, and 13 in 2009.

This Bridge Spans the World

I was impressed with how the seventh annual Perrine Bridge Festival attracted large crowds on Saturday.

Adults, children and everyone in-between mingled under the Perrine Bridge and caught glimpses of thrill-seekers jumping over the ledge.

However, onlookers didn't just stop at admiring the BASE jumpers' lack of fear. It was clear that the crowd also wanted to celebrate the bridge's ability to help bring a community together, especially when it has members from all over the world.

Kruesi

"I like that there are girls and guys out here," said Detri Simmons, 10, from Twin Falls. "It's not just one group of people. Anyone can come out here and that's cool."

Her mom, Elaine, agreed. "People from all over the world come here," she said. "And of all ages too. It's great to see a community embrace that."

Can You Name Them All?

During Monday's Twin Falls City Council meeting, Youth Council president Reylene Abbott announced she is stepping down to attend college — "the real world," as she put it.

Davlin

One highlight of her service, Abbott said, was being one of the only people in her high school class who was able to name all City Council members. The council laughed, and Councilman Chris Talkington jokingly told her she needed to get out more often.

Teasing aside, it's great to see youth who are interested in city government. And Reylene, I'm confident the majority of adult Twin Falls residents can't name all seven council members, so be proud.

Wendell Man Charged with DUI, Battering Officers

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A Wendell man was arrested Saturday after police say he attacked two deputies who were restraining him during a blood draw to check his blood alcohol level.

At about 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Twin Falls police responded to the 400 block of Meadows Lane in Twin Falls for a call about the scene of a car crash where people were fighting.

According to a police report, officers found a 1954 Ford pickup that collided with a tan Chevy Suburban. The driver of the Ford was identified as Ricky Jimenez, 52, of Wendell, and was found holding a rag on his head where he'd sustained a large laceration during the crash, the report states.

"Mr. Jimenez was very agitated and intoxicated," the report states. "He threatened to fight one of the firemen who was offering him medical attention."

Jimenez was reportedly transported to the emergency room at St. Luke's Magic Valley Medical Center for treatment and officers followed in order to get a blood draw for an alcohol blood content test, the report states.

According to the report, Jimenez told officers he wouldn't allow them to take a blood test and would get up and leave as soon as ER staff was finished with him.

Three officers attempted to restrain Jimenez as he tried to get up out of bed after his treatment was complete, the report states. At one point, the report states, Jimenez attempted to grab an officer's radio microphone cord and belt. Jimenez allegedly kicked one officer in the chest and kicked another officer in the head, causing a large laceration to his ear that required medical treatment.

Eventually, Jimenez was restrained and his blood was drawn. Jimenez was held on $11,000 total bond for two charges of assault or battery upon certain personnel, a charge of driving under the influence and a charge of reckless driving. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Sept. 21 for the battery charges; a pretrial for the driving violations is set for Oct. 2.

Police: Woman Attacked Man with Cake Pan, Steak Knives

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A 20-year-old woman was in court Tuesday for a July incident when she was accused of hitting another man with a heavy pan and threatening him with two steak knives.

Jerrica Rose Fatt was arraigned on charges of exhibition or use of a deadly weapon and battery in Twin Falls County 5th Magistrate Court.

On July 15 at about 5:35 p.m., Filer police, Buhl police and Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies responded to the Buhl City Park for a call about a man and woman having a fight.

When they arrived officers spoke to Fatt about the incident, a police report states. According to the report, Fatt told officers she came to the park with her daughter and two other people for a barbecue and later got into a verbal fight with the alleged victim.

The verbal argument escalated and Fatt allegedly went to her car to retrieve a 12- by 8-inch "heavy duty" cake pan and hit the man on the head several times, the report states. The man was able to get away after allegedly punching Fatt in the face, the report states. At that point Fatt allegedly went to her car again, got two steak knives and reportedly came at the alleged victim with both knives in her hands, chasing him around a car until he got in the passenger side and a friend drove him away, the report states.

According to the report, Fatt had swelling on her left cheek, and her inner lip was slightly injured from her braces. The alleged victim had a bump on the top of his head, an abrasion on his neck and reported having a headache, the report states.

Fatt is scheduled for a pretrial conference on Oct. 16.

Parking Meter Prices Reduced

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The city of Twin Falls has once again reduced the price of parking meters that used to be in the city's downtown area.

Mechanical single-head meters are $100, double-head mechanical meters are $60, and both double- and single-head electric meters are $25.

Money raised from the parking meter sales will fund a to-be-determined downtown project.

The parking meter sales have raised about $8,000, said Parks and Recreation Department Director Dennis Bowyer.

"We will be on the [picket] line. This is a difficult decision and one we hoped we could have avoided. We must do things differently in this city if we are to provide our students with the education they so rightfully deserve."

Chicago Teachers Union President Karen Lewis after announcing that intense, months-long contract talks with the school district failed over issues including health benefits and teacher evaluations.

Citizen Involvement Key to Future of Wildlife

As Idahoans, it is easy to take for granted our abundant and diverse wildlife, vast open spaces, and access to both public and private lands.

Randy Budge

Idaho Fish and Game Commission

But as speakers at last month's Idaho Wildlife Summit reminded us, the wildlife we enjoy today are here because of the remarkable vision, passion and foresight of past leaders who were successful in gaining the widespread public support necessary to preserve wildlife and open spaces from ongoing human destruction.

In the late 1800s most wildlife had been decimated. There were no laws or governmental agencies to protect wildlife and no public support for doing so. Then came President Theodore Roosevelt and other leaders who championed a new ethic of resource conservation and created broad-based support for protecting wildlife and establishing public lands.

During TR's presidency over 230 million acres of public lands — nearly 10 percent of the U.S. land mass — were set aside for the public as national parks, forests and wildlife preserves. Similar broad public support developed in Idaho and led to the passage of state laws, establishing that all wildlife is owned by the state, is held in public trust for the citizens, and is to be protected, preserved, and perpetuated and managed to provide hunting, fishing and trapping opportunities.

In 1938, Idahoans showed overwhelming support for wildlife management, passing our state's first successful ballot initiative, establishing a citizen's fish and game commission to manage wildlife. With Idaho's wildlife again under threat from population growth, development, and shrinking habitat, it is now our generation's turn to lead.

The Summit's keynote speaker, Shane Mahoney (a wildlife biologist, conservationist, and hunter, from Newfoundland), exhorted people to focus on their shared passion for wildlife rather than their differences — to get others involved, and to work together for the benefit of wildlife. Mahoney says strong differences of opinion are a benefit, stating: "I'd much sooner have a world filled with people who are so vitally concerned with wildlife that they fight all the time about it than a world in which nobody gives a damn."

The biggest threats to our wildlife are apathy and divisiveness. Fortunately neither apathy nor acrimony had a seat at the Summit. Participants left closed minds and ears behind. They aired their differences with passion yet respect while demonstrating a common support for protecting and preserving Idaho wildlife for future generations. Most left the Summit with a renewed enthusiasm and commitment to wildlife conservation.

We must recognize that Idaho has, and will continue to change. While our population continues to grow, proportionately fewer are hunting and fishing. This spells financial trouble down the road for the Department of Fish and Game, which is supported primarily by sportsmen's dollars and receives no general state budget funding. If our wildlife is to continue to prosper for future generations, we must find ways to involve more people and to build support for wildlife conservation.

The Wildlife Summit was a tremendous opportunity for those who participated to learn, listen, be heard, and share thoughts. I am happy to report that the 500 people who participated in person throughout the state, and 3,000 others watched and participated in the Summit online. All showed a common concern and passion for the conservation of Idaho's wildlife, all without disruption. Idaho hunters, anglers and wildlife watchers participated with respect for opposing views and open minds, just like Governor Butch Otter urged them to in the Summit's opening message.

Idaho Fish and Game will be adding videos of the Summit speeches, panel discussions, polling questions etc. to the Idaho Fish and Game website www.fishandgame.idaho.gov in the coming days.

The purpose of the Wildlife Summit was not to solve specific problems, change the American model of wildlife management, or embark upon new policies. Instead, the purpose of the Summit was to listen with an open mind and to have a big picture discussion about the future of wildlife conservation in Idaho. It is worth noting that nearly all of the Summit's costs are being paid for by Summit sponsors and by donations from participants.

A common theme heard was that as Idaho citizens we can accomplish a great deal more by working together than by focusing upon our differences. We live in, and love Idaho because of its heritage of vast open spaces, abundant wildlife and public access. We are forever in debt to our predecessors for these things, while recognizing we all have a continued obligation to protect and preserve Idaho's wildlife heritage for our children and grandchildren. In my view, the Wildlife Summit was a watershed event to renew enthusiasm to begin to face the challenges ahead. We have every reason to succeed.

Chairman Randy Budge represents the Southeast Region on the Idaho Fish and Game Commission. He is a lifelong hunter and angler. This letter is endorsed by all six of Budge's Fish and Game Commission colleagues.

9-11 Memories Remain Sharp

The conversation continues 24/7 at Magicvalley.com.

On our Facebook page Tuesday, we asked for your memories of Sept. 11, 2001. Here's what some of you wrote:

Jaime Wynne-Lee Brower: "I was driving to work after taking my then 11 month old daughter to daycare. Very sad day. It still is."

Terise Kelly: "I remember having to go to work at Social Services that morning, and not having access to the news. At that point, we had no idea if other attacks were on the way— scary! Imagine how the people we are bombing in other countries must feel..."

Stephanie May Van Diest: "Getting my kids up for school it changed our lives that day."

Brittnee Turner Horting: "I was on the way to school when the first plane hit, I remember walking in and thinking I was late because the halls were empty and it was silent. I got to class and found that everyone was in their classes watching it on TV. That's all we did all day, we moved to our different classes but all the teachers kept the news on and we didn't do any school work. It was a very quite, somber school day. Several kids at school talked about dropping out and joining the military...none dropped out but several boys did end up joining after they graduated. Thankfully they are all still with us, many still in active duty...my younger brother included. He's currently deployed as an Army Ranger, and he's my hero :)"

Several people commented on Magicvalley.com on the story "No Charges Yet in Alleged Gun Incident":

brand_new_life: "Deep pockets or involved in the process of the law will get a slap on the wrist. And DFrank is right, had it been in the reverse direction, the workers would still be in jail."

Not everyone was pleased by "Twin Falls

Bowling Alley Gets a Colorful Overhaul": marta76: "Too bad they had to dismantle a perfectly good bowling alley to do it. The lanes came from a bowling alley that doesn't have any other bowling alley within 40 miles. Leaving league bowlers without a place to bowl. This means they will not be able to enter any state or national tournaments, unless they drive the icy roads in the winter to Shoshone or Gooding to fulfill the required amount of games to enter those tournaments. The bowling alley could have easily been leased out if the owners didn't want to continue to keep it open."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Car Show Needs Fresh Name

Let me first say that I hesitate to call the recent car show in Jerome by its name, Joe Mama's.

It is painfully obvious that Mr. Joe Skaug has absolutely nothing to do with this car show anymore. I do not know who puts on this car show, and I do not know the legalities of why Mr. Skaug's name is still affiliated with it, but something needs to be done to remove his name.

The current car show is an insult to both Mr. Skaug and all the hard work he did on previous shows.

Poor attendance, poor quality, poor quantity is what this current show provides for Jerome which, in turn, produces low economic windfall for the city of Jerome.

So, to the club or individuals who want to continue providing Jerome and Magic Valley with this kind of car show, feel free, of course, to continue. But you should own up to your work and stop trying to bring people to your show thinking it is a Joe Mama's car show, which it definitely is not.

Reader Found Rodeo Disappointment

To The Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo Board: My husband and I recently attended your fair and rodeo. Most of the activities were fun and interesting, until we got to the rodeo.

I have to say, your choice of a rodeo announcer leaves a lot to be desired! What a hum-drum, boring voice! Several people seated around me commented on his poor ability to hold the crowd's attention, with no enthusiasm whatsoever!

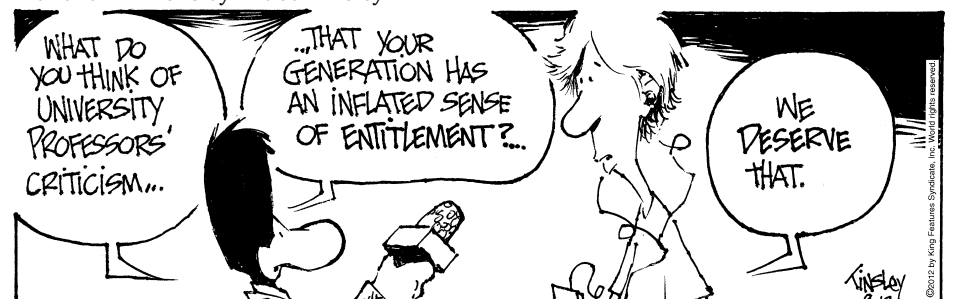

I and others were very disappointed, and I doubt very much that we will be attending again until you find someone else worthy of this job and that can do so much better! Please call me if you need any suggestions!

Schools

Morningside Elementary School will receive another first-grade teacher, while Bickel and I.B. Perrine elementary schools will each receive another part-time kindergarten teacher.

The total cost — which wasn't budgeted — is $88,000. Dobbbs said the cost will be offset by additional state funding due to the increase in students.

In addition to hiring more teachers, schools are also making sure classrooms are equipped with enough desks, textbooks and supplies.

"It hits you in quite a few places," Popplewell said.

Morningside Elementary has seen the most growth of any Twin Falls school this fall, with 94 more students.

First-graders make up the largest group of students at the school. The 141 students are split up into five classes, with another on the way.

Currently, first-grade class sizes at Morningside range from 26 to 29 students.

That's higher than the Idaho State Department of Education's recommendation for lower elementary grades — 20 students per class.

Popplewell said the state has been more lenient about the recommendation during recent years. The average class size is about 25 for Twin Falls elementary schools.

Why the Increase?

During the Monday school board meeting, trustee Mary Barron asked what factors are leading to the growth in student numbers.

Dobbbs said he's not sure yet, but is looking at data to try to get answers.

He called the enrollment increase in some grade levels at Morningside Elementary and Robert Stuart Middle

Also Monday

In other actions, the Twin Falls School Board:

- Recognized employees of the month from Morningside Elementary School: Fifth-grade teacher Lorri Hazen and kitchen manager Sharlyn Bails.

- Awarded a $156,420 bid to VLCM for 110 interactive projectors for classrooms.

Most of the funding came from a $100,000 grant from the Twin Falls School District Education Foundation. The rest is from the state's Students Come First technology funding.

"I think we're seeing people with younger families coming in."

Wiley Dobbbs,
superintendent

School "a head-scratcher"

Dobbbs said there has been a noticeable increase in the number of students in lower grade levels. That could be due to the types of families who are moving to the area.

"I think we're seeing people with younger families coming in," he said.

Even though the school district had the option of pursuing an emergency levy based on the enrollment increase, school trustees decided against it Monday.

The district factored in money for additional students into the two-year, $7.5 million supplemental levy voters approved in spring 2011.

And school district officials promised patrons that if they supported the measure, there wouldn't be any emergency levies.

Moving to the Middles right now," Nagel said. "I don't think I deserve prison time."

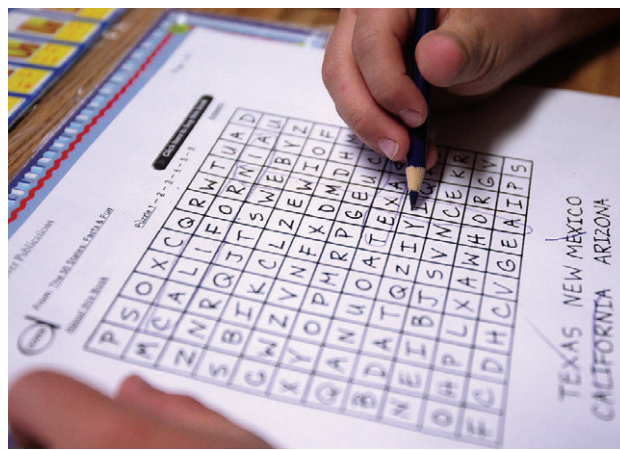

Nagel said he couldn't talk about the ongoing case against him, except that he'll continue to fight the charges.

New Charges

All the co-defendants' federal charges multiplied on Aug. 28.

In late July the Nagels, Cserepes and Joshua Becker were each charged with one count of felony conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance analogue.

Now, in addition, Allen Nagel is charged with six counts of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance and a count of conspiracy to sell, offer for sale and transport drug paraphernalia. Stephanie Nagel is charged with conspiracy to sell, offer for sale and transport drug paraphernalia. Gary Nagel has four counts of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance.

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Morningside Elementary School first-graders complete a word game during class on Tuesday in Twin Falls.

At a Glance

Twin Falls Student Numbers

Numbers are from the third day of school Sept. 6, as compared with the same day last year.

Morningside Elementary: 92 more students (700 total)

Robert Stuart Middle School: 74 more students (834 total)

Bickel Elementary: 43 more students (369 total)

Harrison Elementary: 41 more students (562 total)

Magic Valley High: 33 more students (158 total)

Twin Falls High: 32 more students (1,076 total)

I.B. Perrine Elementary: 28 more students (688 total)

Preschool: 12 more students (71 total)

Canyon Ridge High: 7 more students (1,127 total)

Bridge Academy: 7 more students (79 total)

Vera C. O'Leary Middle School: 4 more students (917 total)

Sawtooth Elementary: 4 more students (550 total)

Lincoln Elementary: 3 more students (461 total)

Juvenile detention: 7 fewer students (11 total)

Oregon Trail Elementary: 17 fewer students (613 total)

Beyond the elementary schools, other Twin Falls schools are also feeling the impact of more students.

At Robert Stuart Middle School, there are 74 more students, the second-largest enrollment increase this fall in the Twin Falls School District.

Principal Kasey Teske said the school was a little short on its projections. But he said it's a pleasant surprise and it's good to have a growing number of students.

"We're just glad they're here," he said.

Even though there was registration at the school during the summer, Teske said not everyone comes. It's sometimes a surprise how many students arrive on the first day of school.

"The difficulty is that you never know who's going to show up," he said.

During the first week of school, employees made scheduling changes in order to have manageable class sizes. Now, the average class has 27 students.

The school is making do with the current number of teachers this year, but that could change in future years.

"If we continue to grow, we will definitely need some additional staff members," Teske said.

strong with those who worked with him over the years.

Born in Buhl, Varley was raised in Pocatello for most of his childhood. He eventually joined the U.S. Naval Reserve Officer's Training Course while studying English at the University of Idaho. It was there he also met his wife. The two married on June 10, 1953.

He served in the Navy for 24 years before retiring in 1976 and returning to Idaho.

"He grew up in Pocatello and hated it," Peggy said. "So when we had the chance, we decided to move to Twin Falls. He loved it here."

Varley's interest in history eventually became "Tales of the Tract," a series of columns that ran in the Times-News from 2002-2005 centering at first on the city of Twin Falls' centennial, then later the history of other towns. He eventually compiled many of the columns into a book of the same name. In recent years, Varley has written columns on the early history of Blaine County.

Diane Van Engelen, executive director of the Twin Falls Public Library Foundation, worked with Varley to help get the "Tales" book published.

"The first time I met him, I asked him if had ever considered writing on a book from his columns," Engelen said. "We worked together for a long time and he became one of my good friends."

Though she's sad to lose a friend, Engelen can't hide a smile when she talks about her fondest memories with Varley.

"He would give you his undivided attention during book signings. He was truly interested in people," she said.

Over the years, Varley was also a cellist with the Magic Valley Symphony and an actor for the Dilettantes. It was during his time with the Dilettantes that Varley developed a friendship with Ted Hadley.

Hadley, now the Magic Valley Symphony's conductor and musical director, said Varley always offered an encouraging word.

Hadley said he was shocked to read that Varley

Varley's Writings

These brief excerpts from columns James Varley wrote for Twin Falls' centennial demonstrate the historian's writing style. Varley eventually bundled his "Tales from the Tract" columns into a book.

"After being anointed, the candidate was hoisted onto a wooden goat cart, and was then wheeled wildly around the lodge room and dismounted in front of the 'Noble Grand' for a no sensical interview. After this, one presumes, the more serious part of the initiation took place." (published in August 2004, describing the initiation process for the Independent Order of Odd Fellows)

"There was a 'great army of the unwashed,' as the newspaper put it, whose only recourse, for a time, was to rent the use of a tub at the Palace Saloon, or A.C. Huff's barber shop. The wife of a newcomer to town is supposed to have gone to an attorney, seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion. She told the lawyer, 'My husband bundled up his clothes and left home weeks ago, and I haven't heard from him since.' 'Be patient, madame,' the attorney counseled. 'He is probably waiting his turn for a bath at the barber shop.'" (published in September 2003, in reference to Twin Falls pioneers' cleanliness) had passed. He had cherished the friendship, despite a brief lapse in communication.

"I'm just going to miss so much," he said. "And now all those opportunities to talk to him are over and that makes me sad."

Spice

scheduled for Nov. 5 at the U.S. Courthouse in Pocatello.

'I Screwed Up'

On Tuesday, Allen Nagel told the Times-News he knows he made mistakes but feels singled out among those who own other smoke shops or convenience stores around town that he says were also selling spice.

"I definitely feel like I was a black eye to the community," Nagel said. "I screwed up. I painted my buildings purple, I was boisterous. It's too late. I can't take it back now."

Months before he was arrested, Nagel said he stopped selling spice in his stores and said he began trying to fix his mistakes. Nagel said he's been forced to close one business, the Smokin' Head Smoke Shop, and his family has been negatively affected.

"I'm living my mistake

Joshua Becker has 12 counts of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance and a count of conspiracy to sell, offer for sale and transport drug paraphernalia.

New co-defendant Shyloh Becker was charged with one count each of conspiracy to distribute a controlled substance analogue, and possession with intent to deliver a controlled substance.

For all defendants, each count carries a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

According to the new indictment, all the co-defendants combined earned at least $3.5 million from the distribution of controlled substances. That cash, along with anything else purchased from proceeds made from allegedly selling spice — including properties or vehicles owned by the defendants — must be handed over to the federal government if they are found guilty.

According to the indictment, drug paraphernalia and cash were seized during the July raids. Two boxes of alleged drug paraphernalia, four heat sealers and a mixer were seized from Joshua Becker at A & J Distribution in Tigard, Ore. Another 65 boxes were seized from Fat Ratt Tattoo and one box was seized from Cserepes at Darkside Glass Blowers in Twin Falls.

The indictment also states more than $3,000 was seized from the Smokin' Head, nearly $5,000 from Fat Ratt and more than $203,000 from two accounts linked to Becker.

Joshua Becker and Allen Nagel are also being summoned to either testify or provide documents for a case against a store in East St. Louis, Ill., that was suspected of selling spice.

At a Sept. 4 hearing in Idaho district court, Judge Richard Bevan cleared the way for that testimony, concluding the witnesses and information sought are necessary and that attending or providing the information won't cause Nagel or Becker undue hardship.

Jerome Teachers Receive iPads

BY JULIE WOOTTON

jwootton@magicvalley.com

JEROME • For Jerome elementary and middle school teachers, a new school year means more technology.

About 125 kindergarten through eighth-grade teachers received an iPad a few weeks ago to use in their classrooms.

"The teachers have been very excited about it," Superintendent Dale Layne said.

Teachers in the school district's preschool program — as well as school psychologists — were also included.

Layne said there will be training sessions for teachers throughout the year on how to use the school district-owned iPads.

High school teachers didn't receive iPads from the district because they're scheduled to receive laptop devices from the state in a couple of months.

The school district is paying for the iPads using a portion of the technology funding it will receive from the Idaho State Department of Education.

Under the state's Students Come First reforms, school districts and public charter schools received $9 million in technology funding for the first time last year.

ISDE spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said this year's funding will come at the end of the month.

The Jerome School District will receive about $100,000.

The district is also using a $5,000 grant from the Idaho Leads Project to help teachers purchase applications for the iPads.

Last year, groups of teachers from each elementary and middle school submitted a mini-grant to serve as model classrooms.

The district distributed about $25,000 in state technology funds to each elementary school, as well as the middle school.

Teachers used the funding for equipment such as iPads, document cameras, interactive whiteboards and Net-books.

"From that, we were learning that many teachers were interested in the iPads," Layne said.

GROUP SUPPORTS AIRPORT'S CURRENT LOCATION

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • Users of the Burley airport are banding together in a new airport-users group, aiming to achieve a stronger voice.

Joe Larsen, one of the members of the newly formed Burley Airport Users Association, said the goal of the group is to promote and preserve the municipal airport.

According to a press release issued by the association, the group will gather Thursday for an organizational meeting.

The meeting is open to the public.

The nonprofit association will identify its purpose and define its membership during the meeting, and select officers and a board of directors.

In the release, the group describes the airport as one of the safest long-term use general aviation airports in Idaho.

The release notes it has served as a hub for back-county flight, emergency air transportation of citizens, a refueling point for wildfire suppression and has one of Idaho's aircraft inspection and power plant repair stations.

The association has joined with the National Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association to inform the public of the value and use of the airport and dispel what its members view as inaccurate and uniformed mischaracterizations of safety concerns. The group will also promote the preservation and economical value of the airport.

Larsen was at one point a member of the committee advising the city of Burley on a replacement site for the current airport, representing pilots. But he resigned last December, in part due to the controversy surrounding the project. In a letter of resignation he wrote that he had no desire to receive "continual criticism" for advising on issues he was "not in harmony with."

Researchers Begin Grizzly Trappings in Yellowstone

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) • Scientists are trapping grizzly bears in Yellowstone National Park as part of ongoing research on the protected animals.

Baiting and trapping of the bears starts Tuesday and will continue through Oct. 31 in remote locations in the park, away from established trails and backcountry campsites.

Park officials say warning signs will be posted at all trapping sites and potential access points to them. People in the backcountry who happen upon the signs are asked to stay away from the area.

In June 2010, an Illinois man was killed six miles east of the park by a grizzly who had just reawakened after being trapped and tranquilized. His widow is suing the federal government, claiming researchers prematurely took down warning signs.

The research is required by the Endangered Species Act.

Plane Dropped Tissue at Event Before Crash

MOSCOW (AP) • Idaho authorities say a pilot flying over a Republican gathering had been dropping rolls of toilet paper or streamers from his airplane before it crashed.

The Federal Aviation Administration says early indications are the experimental aircraft stalled or reached a speed and angle at which it lost its lift. The pilot, 60-year-old Randy Humble, of Moscow, Idaho, died at the scene Saturday.

Witnesses say the airplane's engine revved and the pilot appeared to be trying to pull up just before it crashed near Viola, Idaho.

Burley Eyes 6 Airport Sites

Two new locations join four sites considered last year as potential homes to a new Burley airport.

BURLEY • Burley's attempts to relocate the city's airport have taken flight again for the fourth time in more than 15 years.

City Administrator Mark Mitton said Tuesday six sites, include the four sites considered during the city's relocation efforts in 2011, will be submitted to officials in Minidoka and Cassia counties for evaluation.

Last Thursday, Mitton said, a meeting was held with city representatives and the airport manager to rate the sites according to a matrix used in the past attempt.

"Once all the ratings are in we'll compile them and see which ones rate the highest," Mitton said.

The four sites repeated from last year's effort produced a strong backlash from residents upset that the locations were prime agricultural land.

Site 5, which runs between 950 and 1150 West Baseline in Minidoka County, contains some private ground and site 6 is private

At a Glance Burley Airport Replacement

Burley's municipal airport is located on the northeast edge of the city and was dedicated in 1930. In 2002 the airport was renamed the Burley J.R. "Jack" Simplot Airport.

City officials say it should be replaced for reasons including the following:

- The airport's two runways are inadequate for large aircraft and some jets.
- The airport's growth is constrained by the Snake River, U.S. Highway 30 and Hiland Avenue.
- There are flight obstructions that include a grain elevator, cheese factory, streetlights and trees.
- Nearby waterfowl create a hazard for pilots.

Land use issues halted Burley's attempts to build a new airport in 1997 and 2008. In 2011 an airport advisory committee convened to select viable sites, but stepped back from a field of four potential sites after almost unanimous opposition by landowners.

land that is not used for agriculture. Sites 1 through 4 are all privately owned.

Mitton said the criteria used to rate the system include whether the ground is in agricultural use, if there are residences, any possible air quality impact and whether there are non-moveable objects.

The minimum footprint for a new airport is 2,000 feet wide by 10,000 to 12,000 feet long.

Cassia County Commissioner Bob Kunau said Tuesday the commissioners received the packet of sites from the city but did not have time to review them on Monday.

"We only gave them a cursory glance," Kunau said.

Kunau said each site needs to be rated on about two dozen classifications.

No county business meeting will be held next Monday due to Idaho Association of Counties meetings.

"I hope we can spend more time and review them and maybe even hold a public meeting," said Kunau.

Once the top two sites are identified, they will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Administration for approval. Once one or both sites are approved, Burley will move forward with the required environmental impact studies, which take a year to complete.

"Then we'll see how much money we'll have to fund it," Mitton said.

That all presumes the process moves forward smoothly. Past attempts to replace the airport have repeatedly run into problems early on.

The costs for the project over the years have been widely estimated and hotly debated.

Mitton said the actual costs will be determined by the site that is selected, which will in part determine how much money the city will receive from federal and state sources.

In April 2012, Burley Mayor Terry Greenman said the cost estimates were in the $11 million range and the FAA could pay up to 95 percent.

The FAA will not pay the costs for moving the current hangars and the airport's fuel farm.

"If it's located on federal ground there will be one set of numbers and if it's on private land it will be another set," Mitton said.

The biggest cost will be property acquisition for privately owned land.

Buhl Water System Earns Engineering Award

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

BUHL • Buhl's potable water has met the Environmental Protection Agency's arsenic level standards for several months.

Now, Forsgren Engineers of Boise has won an American Council of Engineering Companies of Idaho award tied to the project.

Project Manager Randall Johnson told the council during its Monday meeting the "working relationship" the firm enjoyed with the city was one of the reasons for its second-place finish.

In order to meet the EPA's requirement the city's water contain no more than 10 parts per billion of arsenic. Johnson helped design a system that treated and pooled water from various wells. The project cost $8 million, but treating all the city's water would have been more expensive.

"We designed the treatment to fit the system," Johnson said.

The plaque given to the city by Johnson will be displayed at City Hall, although Councilman Michael Higbee joked it would "look good in the pharmacy" where he works.

City Engineer Scott Bybee also discussed the arsenic treatment facility in his report on Monday.

Bybee told the council warranty work and repairs are being sought for the treatment facility, including work on an arsenic analyzer and data system.

"It's operational and we're in compliance ... but a few things are getting fixed," Bybee said.

Once those items are complete, Bybee said the city should conduct an open house so the public can learn about its newly completed water treatment system.

In other Monday business, two commissioners of the Buhl Housing Authority were approved. Eva Wagner will serve a five-year term, expiring in March 2016 and Dexter Rogers was approved to serve a four-year term, expiring in March 2015.

Court: Idaho Woman Can't Challenge Fetal Pain Law

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • A federal appeals court has ended an Idaho woman's challenge of a law banning some abortions that might cause fetal pain, saying she didn't have legal standing to contest it because she wasn't charged with that crime.

The development came in a broader lawsuit filed by Jennie Linn McCormack, who is believed to be the first person in the nation to sue over bans on conducting abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy based on the premise that the fetus might feel pain. Idaho and several other states have the bans.

The court did rule that some other Idaho abortion laws are likely unconstitutional, including one barring medication-induced abortions.

McCormack, a Pocatello resident, sued Bannock County Prosecutor Mark Hiedeman after she was charged in May 2011 with having an illegal abortion.

Hiedeman alleged that McCormack used drugs she obtained over the Internet to terminate her pregnancy, which was more than five months along. The law requires that health professionals be involved in ending a pregnancy, and it carries a possible five-year sentence for a conviction.

Around the time McCormack was charged, Idaho lawmakers passed another statute making it illegal for women to obtain abortions after their 19th week of pregnancy, under the disputed premise that fetuses can feel pain starting at around 20 weeks.

The law contains a few exceptions, allowing abortions to occur later if the mother is at risk of death or severe impairment or if an abortion is necessary to preserve the life of a twin.

Though McCormack wasn't charged under the fetal pain law, she challenged the constitutionality of such a ban in her lawsuit, contending she could face future prosecution if she became pregnant again.

The U.S. District Court in Boise previously found that she didn't have standing to challenge the fetal pain law, and the three-judge panel of the appellate court agreed.

The appellate judges also said Idaho's fetal pain law doesn't have a chilling effect on doctors' willingness to provide abortions after 19 weeks of gestation. They said the court record showed that even before the law was enacted, there were no doctors in southeastern Idaho willing to perform abortions after that time period.

The judges, however, ruled in McCormack's favor on Idaho's law requiring that health professionals perform abortions.

They found that the lower court's order barring Hiedeman from charging McCormack after that law could stand, and that McCormack was likely to succeed in proving the law is unconstitutional because it puts an undue burden on a woman.

Essentially, a pregnant woman in McCormack's position would have to carefully read the entire law to ensure that she and her provider were in compliance, the appellate court found. Otherwise, she would risk knowingly or unknowingly violating the law, and could possibly face a felony, the panel said, noting the only sure way not to be prosecuted would be to refrain from exercising the right to an abortion altogether.

The case now returns to Boise's U.S. District Court.

McCormack's attorney, Rick Hearn, is also a physician. Though he has never performed an abortion, he has asked the district court to let him intervene in the case as another plaintiff.

He says he would like to offer medication-induced abortions in the future, and that Idaho's fetal pain and health provider laws unconstitutionally limit his rights. The lower court hasn't yet decided whether he can challenge those laws.

Out over Iran's
Nuclear Program

JERUSALEM (AP) • Israel is sounding increasingly agitated over what it views as American dithering with economic sanctions too weak to force Iran to end its suspected drive toward nuclear weapons.

In a clear message aimed at the White House, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Tuesday criticized what he said was the world's failure to spell out what would provoke a U.S.-led military strike against Iranian nuclear facilities. The comments came in response to U.S. refusals in recent days to set "red lines" for Tehran.

With his strong words, Netanyahu is taking a bold gamble. He clearly hopes to rattle the U.S. into doing more, for fear that Israel might otherwise soon attack Iran on its own. But he risks antagonizing President Barack Obama during a re-election campaign and straining relations with Israel's closest and most important ally. Relations between the two leaders have often been tense in the past.

Israeli officials say American politics do not factor into their thinking, but that the sense of urgency is so grave that the world cannot hold its breath until after the November election.

"The world tells Israel, 'Wait. There's still time,'" Netanyahu said Tuesday. "And I say: 'Wait for what? Wait until when?' Those in the international community who refuse to put red lines before Iran don't have a moral right to place a red light before Israel."

Israel views a nuclear-armed Iran as a mortal threat, citing Iran's persistent calls for the destruction of the Jewish state, its development of missiles capable of striking Israel, and Iranian support for Arab militant groups.

Tehran insists its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes only.

Although the United States has accused Iran of trying to develop nuclear weapon capability under the cover of a peaceful program, the Obama administration has said it does not believe Iran has decided whether to build an atomic bomb — if it in fact develops the ability to do so.

Israeli officials believe time is running short with Iran moving perilously close to reaching weapons capability.

They point to Iranian enrichment of uranium, a key ingredient in building a bomb, the movement of Iranian nuclear research facilities to fortified underground bunkers impervious to attack, and Iran's refusal to open its facilities to U.N. inspectors.

On Tuesday, diplomats told The Associated Press that the U.N. atomic agency has received new and significant intelligence over the past month that Iran has advanced its work on calculating the destructive power of an atomic warhead through a series of computer models within the past three years.

The diplomats who spoke to the AP said the information came from Israel, the United States and at least two other Western countries. They demanded anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss classified information member countries make available to the IAEA.

The information could strengthen concerns that Iran has continued weapons work into the recent past and may be continuing to do so. Because computer modeling work is normally accompanied by physical tests of the components that go into nuclear weapons, it would also buttress fears by the International Atomic Energy Agency that Tehran is advancing its weapons research on multiple fronts.

"The two go hand in hand," said David Albright, whose Washington-based Institute for Science and International Security is a frequent go-to source on Iran for Congress and other U.S. government branches.

China Sends Patrol to Disputed Islands. China on Tuesday deployed patrol boats near a disputed island chain after Japan strengthened its assertion of control over them, escalating a standoff between the world's second and third-largest economies. The official Xinhua News Agency said two ships from the China Marine Surveillance reached waters around the East China Sea islands Tuesday. Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihiko Noda's government earlier reached a deal to buy the islands, from a private owner for 2.05 billion yen, $26.2 million.

France May Intervene in Syria. Although pressure is rising in France and other European nations for military intervention to stop the bloodshed in Syria, leaders are stymied by an unpleasant reality: Lessons learned from last year's NATO operation in Libya suggest that taking down President Bashar Assad would be impossible without large-scale involvement by the United States. The urge to do something is particularly strong in France, which has historical ties to Syria and whose then-President Nicolas Sarkozy rallied the United States and other allies around his proposal to bomb government forces in Libya. — AP

Family Premiums Hit $15,745

WASHINGTON (AP) • Annual premiums for job-based family health insurance went up just 4 percent this year, but that's no comfort with the price tag approaching $16,000 and rising more than twice as fast as wages.

The annual survey released Tuesday by two major research groups served as a glaring reminder that the nation's problem of unaffordable medical care is anything but solved.

Premiums for a family plan are averaging $15,745, with employees paying more than $4,300 of that. And lower wage workers are paying more for skimpy coverage than their counterparts at upscale firms.

Overall, "it's historically a very moderate increase in premiums," said Drew Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation, which conducted the survey with the Health Research & Educational Trust.

He quickly added: "But even a moderate increase feels really big to workers when their wages are flat or falling." General inflation rose only 2.3 percent, by comparison.

Following a 9-percent hike in premiums last year, the 2012 increase quickly became fodder for the political debate. Republicans said President Barack Obama's promises to control health care costs ring hollow in light of the findings.

But the most significant cost-control measures in Obama's law have yet to take effect, along with the president's big push to cover the uninsured. The cost controls include a new tax on the most expensive insurance plans and a powerful board to keep Medicare spending manageable.

Trying to head off critics, the administration issued a report estimating that consumers have saved $2 billion as a result of the health care law. That's due to a combination of insurance rebates for employers and individual policy holders, as well as closer state oversight of proposed rate increases, facilitated by Obama's law.

But hang on to your wallets: The Kaiser survey showed premiums for job-based family coverage have risen by nearly $2,400 since 2009 when Obama took office, with a corresponding increase of nearly $800 for employee-only coverage.

"We aren't happy to see any increase in health insurance premiums," said Gary Cohen, head of the administration's Center for Consumer Information and Insurance Oversight.

On 9/11, a Quiet Remembrance

NEW YORK (AP) • There were still the tearful messages to loved ones, clutches of photos and flowers, and moments of silence. But 11 years after Sept. 11, Americans appeared to enter a new, scaled-back chapter of collective mourning for the worst terror attack in U.S. history.

Crowds gathered, as always, at the World Trade Center site in New York, the Pentagon and a Pennsylvania memorial Tuesday to mourn the nearly 3,000 victims of the 2001 terror attacks, reciting their names and remembering with music, tolling bells and prayer. But they came in fewer numbers, ceremonies were less elaborate and some cities canceled their remembrances altogether. A year after the milestone 10th anniversary, some said the memorials may have reached an emotional turning point.

"It's human nature, so people move on," said Wanda Ortiz, of New York City, whose husband, Emilio Ortiz, was killed in the trade center's north tower, leaving behind her and their 5-month-old twin daughters. "My concern now is ... how I keep the memory of my husband alive."

It was also a year when politicians largely took a back seat to grieving families; no elected officials spoke at New York's 3½-hour ceremony. President Barack Obama and Republican Mitt Romney pulled negative campaign ads and avoided rallies, with the president laying a wreath at the Pentagon ceremony and visiting wounded soldiers at a Maryland hospital. And beyond the victims of the 2001 attacks, attention was paid to the wars that followed in Iraq and Afghanistan.

In Middletown, N.J., a bedroom community that lost 37 residents in the attacks, town officials laid a wreath at the entrance to the park in a small, silent ceremony. Last year, 3,700 people attended a remembrance with speeches, music and names read.

"This year," said Deputy Mayor Stephen Massell, "I think less is more."

Some worried that moving on would mean Sept. 11 will fade from memory.

"It's been 11 years already," said Michael Reneo, whose sister-in-law, Daniela Notaro, was killed at the trade center. "And unfortunately for some, the reality of this day seems to be fading as the years go by. ... I hope we never lose focus on what really happened here."

Chicago Teachers Start Negotiating

CHICAGO (AP) • Negotiators were back behind closed doors Tuesday on the second day of Chicago's teachers strike, but publicly the teachers union and school board couldn't even agree on whether they were close to a deal.

The union issued a statement at midday saying negotiators had returned to the bargaining table and were discussing one of the most serious remaining issues, a new teacher evaluation system. But the union said it had signed off on only six of 48 articles in the contract and that the two sides had "a considerable way to go."

"To say that this contract will be settled today is lunacy," union President Karen Lewis said at one of several sites around the city where teachers gathered to chant and wave placards.

School board officials have repeatedly described the two sides as being close and suggested bargaining could be wrapped up quickly with agreements on the evaluations and a dispute about the recall of teachers who lose their jobs.

Earlier, Mayor Rahm Emanuel reiterated his belief that the strike could have been avoided altogether. At an appearance with principals and former principals, he addressed another sticking point over how teachers are hired, insisting that principals should have full control to pick their team.

"I don't think downtown should be in the business of selecting teachers that the local school principal should select if you're going to hold them accountable," Emanuel said.

Alice Marie Johnson

Aug. 15, 1920-Sept. 7, 2012

VINITA, Okla. • Alice Marie Johnson went home to be with her Lord and Savior Jesus Christ on Friday, Sept. 7, 2012, with her loving family at her bedside.

Alice was born Aug. 15, 1920, to Frank and Delia Miller in Nowata County, Okla. Alice married Steve Johnson on July 2, 1938, in Vinita, Okla. Alice was preceded in death by her loving husband of 30 years, Steve Johnson; her parents; her brothers, Robert Miller, Herman (Bertie) Miller, Raymond (Marie) Miller, Albert (Lucille) Miller, Alfred (Deanie) Miller, Clifford Miller and Leonard Miller; her sisters, Frankie (Aurther Doc) Doerflinger, Mary (John) Perser and Iva (Harry) Smith. Alice is survived by her brother, Lloyd (Pat) Miller of Caldwell, Idaho; daughter, Catherine (Earl) Abram of Vinita, Okla.; son, Steven (Carol) Miller of Laramie, Wyo.; granddaughters, Laura Carter (Chris) of Vinita, Okla., and Bob King of Quapaw, Okla.; Lisa (Bubba Johnson) of Vinita, Okla., and Elizabeth Miller of Laramie, Wyo.; grandson, Chase Miller of Laramie, Wyo.; her great-grandchildren, Cody, (Holly) Carter of Big Cabin, Okla., and Katie King, Cheyenne Carter, Justin King, and Lacy, Megan and Brady Johnson, all of Vinita, Okla. Alice's family is as big as her heart; she also leaves behind numerous nieces and nephews and foster children. Alice loved children and has taken in several orphans. The legacy that Alice leaves for not only her children and grandchildren but also her great-grandchildren and the future generations is one of unwavering faith, undying hope, and unending unconditional love. Her sweet spirit was immeasurable and her compassion never ended.

A small memorial for Alice will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, at Burroughs Manor in Vinita, Okla. Alice has chosen to be buried quietly with her loving husband, Steve, in Twin Falls, Idaho, at which time her children and family will gather to celebrate her precious life. The family has requested instead of flowers, please donate to a charity in Alice's name. The Tipton Home is an orphanage in Oklahoma; Alice would have loved for donations to be made there in her name or the Burroughs Manor Activity Fund. Arrangements are under the direction of Burckhalter Funeral Home in Vinita, Okla. To view the obituary or make condolences online, go to www.burckhalterfuneral-homevinita.com.

Reva Belle Johnston

March 31, 1930-Sept. 8, 2012

KIMBERLY • Reva was born March 31, 1930, at Shelley, Idaho, the second daughter of Joseph and Dora Ruth Abbot Smuin. Shortly after her birth, the family moved to the Mud Lake/Terreton area north of Idaho Falls. She attended first through the eighth grade in that area and graduated from high school in Roberts, Idaho.

Reva married Robert V. Daniels April 10, 1951, in Idaho Falls. They had two children, Renn Val and Gwenda Ruth. Robert died at the hospital Sept. 1, 1964, in Baker, Ore., as the result of a car accident near Halfway, Ore. Reva then relocated back to Terreton, Idaho, where she and her children resided near her parents. Soon after, she got a job as a waitress at Herb's Cafe in Dubois, Idaho. At this time, she moved to her sister's ranch at Montevue to be closer to her job. It was still a long drive to work and she and her children relocated to Dubois. At about the same time, Howard Johnston and his two children moved to Dubois, right across the street from Reva. The four children all got acquainted right away, but it was some time before Howard got up the courage to ask her to attend a Ladies Night at the Dubois Lions Club. Reva and Howard were married in a civil ceremony at her sister, Dorothy's house in Montevue. They honeymooned in the Sun Valley and Salmon areas. They were later sealed to one another in the Idaho Falls Temple on Aug. 31, 1976.

In October 1976, Howard was transferred to Joslin Field at the Twin Falls Airport and, at this time, they purchased a house in Kimberly. Reva worked four years selling life insurance. Howard retired in 1984 due to a back injury. In September 2001, Howard was diagnosed with cancer. Reva helped Howard through these troubled years. Her devotion to her husband never wavered.

In the fall of 2011, Reva started experiencing memory problems. In April 2012, Reva was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease. She passed away at 1 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8, in the loving company of her family.

Reva is survived by her husband, Howard Johnston of Kimberly; son, Renn (Cheryl) Daniels of Alpine, Utah; daughter, Gwenda (Jerry) Lockwood of Hansen; stepdaughter, Connie (Jon) Hunt of Kimberly; stepson, John (Lois) Johnston of Spring Creek, Nev.; brother, Larmie (Laura Lee) Joseph Smuin of American Falls; sister, Janice (Orson) Rawson of Pocatello; and numerous cousins, nieces and nephews, grand and great-grandchildren. Reva was pre-deceased by her parents; and older sister, Dorothy McCrary.

A special thanks to Drs. McKee and Anders and all the other caregivers at St. Luke's, Nikole Hunt, Dori Lockwood, Carol Hunt, Linda Bentley, manager at Ashley Manor as well as all the staff and residents.

Reva's whole life revolved around her family. She was a wife and mother first and foremost. She was an excellent cook, and her children remember coming home from school in anticipation of fresh baked bread and cookies. She was a great friend and confidante to her children. She loved getting together with the entire family and loved her grandchildren very much. She will be greatly missed.

"My marriage to Reva was a perfect merge. We both loved reading, traveling, hiking and dancing. She was a talented amateur oil painter and won many ribbons at the Twin Falls County Fair. We loved and respected each other until the very end. Bon voyage, my love..."

A viewing for Reva will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 14, at Rosenau Funeral Home. Her funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, at the Kimberly LDS Ward Building on Birch Street in Kimberly, with the family greeting friends one hour prior to the service. Burial will be at the Hazelton Cemetery. Bishop Satterfield will be conducting. Among the speakers at the funeral will be her nephew, Glenn Rawson.

Karl R. Brown

March 10, 1925-Sept. 10, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Karl R. Brown, 87, of Twin Falls, died Monday, Sept. 10, 2012, at his home. He was born March 10, 1925, to Claude and Bertha Brown in Twin Falls, Idaho, the youngest of four sons. He developed an interest in airplanes at an early age. He built and flew model airplanes throughout his youth. It was a hobby he enjoyed all his life. He graduated from Twin Falls High School in May of 1943 and went into the Navy the following month as an aviation cadet. He was in the Navy approximately 2 1/2 years, where he realized his greatest dream of learning to fly. He returned to Twin Falls at the war's end and entered the family business, Claude Brown Furniture Co., where he worked for the rest of his life. He married Nellie Mae Morrison in 1946, and they had four children, Joe, David, Connie and Nancy. They later divorced. He married Faye Dunham in 1970. She had four sons who he soon learned to love as though they were his own. He often said how blessed he was to have eight children to love.

Brown of Boise, David (Ann) Brown of Monroe, Mich., Connie Wilson of Fairfield, Nancy Brown of Twin Falls, Dan (Kay) Dunham of Reno, Nev., and Steve, Dirk (Cheryl) and Mark (Heather) Dunham, all of Boise; numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren; and his brother, Doug Brown of Twin Falls.

He was preceded in death by his parents; brothers, Claude Jr. and Mark; and his first wife, Nellie Mae.

Friends may call from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 13, at Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home, 2551 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls. The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Sept. 14, The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 2085 South Temple Drive in Twin Falls. Friends may also call one hour prior to the service Friday at the church. Interment with military honors will follow the service at the Sunset Memorial Park.

Arrangements are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those who wish to share memories or condolences may do so by signing the guest book at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

OBITUARIES

Ronald L. Madsen

April 2, 1932-Sept. 9, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Ronald L. Madsen graduated to be with his Lord on Sunday, Sept. 9, 2012. He was born April 2, 1932, in Twin Falls, Idaho, the son of Harvey and Nora Madsen. He is survived by his wife, Clara (they were still on their honeymoon after 56 years); their children, Kimberly Nora Madsen, Karen Renee Boomhower and Eric Guy Madsen (Dori); nine grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; and his brother, Richard E. Madsen of Lenexa, Kan. Ron was preceded in death by his parents; his stepson, John Anthony Rogers; and one great-grandson. Ron cared deeply for his family and his country and was proud of his military service. He was a member of the NRA, Twirly Birds (an elite international organization), the Military Order of the Purple Heart, and the 118th Assault Helicopter Company. Aviation was an occupation he loved. Ron first discovered this passion while in high school. He would work all day Saturdays at the stockyards and then spend his pay on one-hour flying lessons at the Twin Falls Airport. He joined the U.S. Navy in November 1950 during the Korean War, where he served four years as an aircraft mechanic. In January 1955, he enrolled at Sacramento City College, where he obtained his FAA A&P license and AA degree. He married Clara Olivia Chavez during this period on March 22, 1956, and they left for Guam in the Mariana Islands that November to work for TransOcean Airlines. Ron and Clara returned to Sacramento, Calif., where they lived until 1964. In that year, Ron volunteered for the Army due to the war in Vietnam. He learned to fly helicopters during his Army career earning a Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, Air Medal with 21 Clusters, Cross of Gallantry and a Purple Heart. He also earned a Presidential Unit Citation. After four years of Army service, Ron taught at the Sacramento City College for 12 years. He continued flying helicopters after his separation from the Army, working as a bush pilot in northern Canada during his summer break from teaching. Later, Ron also flew in Alaska over most of the state. After leaving Sacramento City College, he worked as a base manager for ERA helicopters in Deadhorse, Alaska. He also flew as a relief pilot for Bannock Regional Life Flight during his off time. Later, he managed the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport, where he retired May 1, 1997. He ended his flying career with airline transport ratings in both airplanes and helicopters SEL and SMEL, certified as a flight instructor in instruments in both rotor and fixed-wing, and a Canadian commercial license. He also had earned a Teacher's Credential issued for Life by the state of California in Aviation subjects. He looked forward to his "last" flight, so be happy for him.

My Flight Plan

by Ronald Madsen

I've flown an airplane high and a helicopter low, Passed through God's own rainbow.

Seen the jungles of Vietnam and its rain,

Experienced war with all its pain.

Landed in paddies full of rice,

Even the arctic with all its ice!

Flew the Yukon with its mountains and streams,

Caught trout beyond my dreams!

Claire was with me on the high mountain peak,

And the children heard the cry from the eagle's beak.

A carefree spirit, like a life without direction,

Even when I received God's correction.

Yet I know He's with me on my flight plan,

That I'll be with Him when I land.

He's wooing and loves you more than you know,

Won't you answer His call before I go?

The family suggests memorials be given to the Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675. A service will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15, at the Light-house Christian Fellowship Church. Burial will be at Sunset Memorial Park.

Kyle Douglas Reynolds

Jan. 12, 1942-Sept 6, 2012

HAZELTON • On Thursday, Sept 6, 2012, we said farewell to a wonderful husband, dad, Pa-Pagrandpa and friend. Doug completed his courageous battle against cancer at his home surrounded by his family.

Kyle Douglas Reynolds was born Jan. 12, 1942, in Twin Falls, Idaho. Doug was the oldest child of Tom and Etta (James) Reynolds. Dad was raised in the Mini-Cassia area. In 1958, he enlisted in the United States Army. After his tour, he returned home. He met and fell in love with his best friend, Darlene Maas. Mom and Dad were married on May 2, 1964. They had three children, to whom they devoted their lives. We could not have asked for better parents.

Dad worked hard. He worked numerous jobs during his lifetime. He retired from Conida Warehouses in Hazelton, but his love was farming and raising calves, which he did until his health declined. Dad also loved to hunt with his boys and grandson, his trips to Jackpot, Nev., playing with his grandkids and great-granddaughters; he loved his family and loved life.

Dad was a very giving man. He was always there to help family any way he could or even a complete stranger if they needed it. We all knew if he ever did win that "big jackpot," he wouldn't have the money long. He would be giving it to everyone else to help them.

Doug is survived by his wife and best friend, Darlene Reynolds; three children, Tina (Pat) Tudor of Hazelton, Jerry Reynolds of Twin Falls and Andy (Jennifer) Reynolds of Meridian; his sister, Debi (Jim) Hondo of Burley; eight grandchildren, Nicole, Tyler, Chayce, Keelan, Brian, Amy, Anthony and Emilee; two great-granddaughters, Madilyn and Jaeleigh; and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, Tom and Etta Reynolds; brother, George Reynolds; an infant brother, Jerry; and sisters, Sandy Murphy and Polly DeNaughel.

In lieu of flowers, donations will be accepted in Doug's memory at St. Luke's MSTI Center Rose Garden Memorial. Please make checks payable to St. Luke's Foundation Rose Garden, in care of Rasmussen Funeral Home, P.O. Box 878, Burley, ID 83318-0878.

The family would also like to take this opportunity to thank Dr. Jared Manning, Dr. Richard Hammond and Hospice Visions for all of their care and support.

"There are no good-byes, wherever you'll be, you'll be in my heart" (Ghandi).

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 14, at the St. Nicholas Catholic Church, 802 F St. in Rupert, with the Rev. Father Justin Brady as celebrant. Military rites will be provided by the Mini-Cassia Veterans Organization. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

Grace Mildred Schlaick

April 19, 1921-Sept. 9, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Grace Mildred Schlaick, 91, of Twin Falls, passed away Sunday, Sept. 9, 2012, at her home surrounded by her loving family.

She was born April 19, 1921, in Stewart, Neb., the daughter of Pearl and Lillian Beach. Grace took great pride in her home, always keeping it clean and nice. She was deeply devoted to her family.

Surviving are her daughter, Dorothy J. Uker and her husband, Jerry; son, Clyde E. Schlaick and his wife, Berdena; brothers, Carl Beach and his wife, Patricia, and Mort Beach and his wife, Jerry; sister-in-law, Belva Beach, four grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and five great-great-grandchildren; along with several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her previous husband, Clyde W. Schlaick; her parents, Pearl and Lillian Beach; brothers, Robert P. Beach and his wife, Ada, and Donald Beach; sister, Eva Hartigan and her husband, Stuart; great-grandson, Garrison Herzinger; and great-granddaughter, Kristy Lynn Thompson.

She will be deeply missed by all who knew and loved her.

A private family service will be held at the West End Cemetery in Buhl. Arrangements are under the direction of Parke's Magic Valley Funeral Home of Twin Falls. Those who wish may share condolences at www.magicvalleyfuneralhome.com.

You Can't Fool the Cheddar Computers

JEROME • The smell of warm milk greets you as soon as you step out of your car in the Jerome Cheese Co. parking lot.

If you work here long enough, it's the kind of odor that might stick to your clothes no matter how many times you wash them, like the milk-stained bib of a baby.

When plant manager Bill Riebesell goes home at night, his children tell him he still smells like work.

"My kids think I smell like stink," Riebesell said with a laugh.

But after 17 years of working within the walls of Jerome Cheese Co., Riebesell doesn't even notice the scent of dairy heated to 162 degrees anymore.

When he opens a vat of pasteurizing milk, a pungent cloud of steam escapes, stinging nostrils and eyes. The state requires milk to be pasteurized at 161 degrees for 15 seconds. Workers here go a step further to be safe and heat the milk to 162 degrees for 16 seconds — one of the first steps in the process of making cheese and dairy products.

In one room of the plant, the milk will go from the consistency of water to pudding and then to the texture of moist scrambled eggs — and it takes place all day and all night, with 275 employees side by side with machines.

"The cows do it 24 hours a day, and so do we," Riebesell said.

Jerome Cheese Co. is owned by Davisco Foods International and is the Minnesota-based company's second cheese production facility and fifth dairy products plant. The Jerome building is more than 307,000 square feet on 58 acres. Inside, work is being done to double production by adding more freezers and processing areas, and the company hopes to add about 100 more workers. The first vat of cheese was made at Jerome Cheese Co. in December 1992. In 1993, 49 million pounds of cheese were produced. In 2005, there were 170 million pounds, and last year 210 million pounds of cheese.

Riebesell joined the company in 1995 as an operator working the night shift. Originally from Minneapolis, he had no idea what to expect moving to southern Idaho. He was fresh out of the military and college. He imagined Idaho as fields and fields of potatoes, and not much else.

And though Jerome, with a population of around 10,000, is no Twin Cities, what Riebesell found was a job at one of the more automated plants in the nation. Tasks like filling a blue plastic bag with 43 1/2 pounds of warm cheese curds used to take four people but now require none. This part of the process is done completely by a machine that knows when a cheese block is complete, even folding and sealing it shut.

As the cheese block rolls along the moving belt to become shredded cheese or ready-to-eat block cheese, it passes through a metal detector — in case a piece of machinery broke off inside — and a camera that detects if the blue plastic seal is broken. Riebesell punctures a hole in one of the blocks to demonstrate the efficiency of the machines. Before the block hits the end of the belt, a red light signals its imperfection and a plant worker diverts it to the right.

A Winning Grill Guy

Bacon-wrapped chicken gets a lot of fanfare for one Twin Falls man.

BY ANDREW WEEKS
aweeks@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Wearing a blue soccer T-shirt that read "Oh Jimmy's," and with a fork in his hand, Jim Jewell poked chicken breasts as they cooked on a grill.

Each piece was filled with bread stuffing and seasoning, wrapped in bacon and doused with barbecue sauce.

Another plate of bacon-wrapped chicken sat beside the grill, waiting a turn over the coals. Jewell would need that and several other plates of chicken to get him through the three-hour food competition Sept. 8 at Twin Falls City Park.

The Wings and Things Ultimate

Tailgate Challenge was a fundraiser for the Optimist Club of Twin Falls. Around 16 teams competed in four categories: barbecue, chili, wings and open.

It was Jewell's first time grilling for a community event, but it likely won't be his last.

"We just thought it'd be fun," the Twin Falls computer tech said, while barbecue smoke wafted in the air. He already had some fans.

"This is the best thing here," said Tony Wunderlich. "You have to taste it." And then: "See what I'm saying? It's awesome. ... I love the sweet and salty combo of it, and that it's soft in the middle."

Jewell's daughter, Kristina Jewell, said the bacon-wrapped chicken breast isn't her father's only winning recipe.

"It's not quite as good as the smoked turkey he makes, but

The ones that make it past the careful eye of the camera are boxed and sent to the cooler where they will go from 92 degrees to 52 degrees, sitting in refrigeration for 18 to 20 hours.

"We might be Mayberry, U.S.A., but when you walk in it's New York City," Riebesell said.

As Riebesell walks around the plant, his black shoes with lime-green shoelaces — indicating these are his plant-only shoes — smear a white sanitizing foam from the floor of each doorway into the hall. The plant does use bacteria in several of its products, but this foam is supposed to kill the bad bacteria that may be tracked in.

"We don't want any competing house cats," he said.

As Riebesell rounds the corner, he fist-bumps a man cleaning the white walls with a brush and pounds on the glass window to say hello to people who are testing the milk hauled in by huge semi-trucks with mirror-finished storage tanks. They test for antibiotics; if any are found, the computer alerts the workers and the milk can't be unloaded.

Every day Jerome Cheese Co. receives 90 or more truckloads of raw milk. It also tests for the amount of fat, water, lactose and other elements that the milk contains.

From a night shift operator to plant manager, Riebesell said his story is not unique.

A number of workers started out performing more manual jobs that are now performed by machines, he said. Now they are managers supervising the machines and computers, and when one malfunctions, they fix the problem.

If one cog in this orchestra of machinery quits, it slows down a plant that processes in a month more than 195 million pounds of milk, producing more than 17 million pounds of cheese, 8 million pounds of whey powder, 23 million pounds of condensed milk and 1.8 million pounds of sweet cream.

Three types of cheese are made in Jerome: barrels or processed cheese that will be used to make canned cheese; block cheese or ready-to-eat cheese in blocks, cubes and shredded; and mozzarella. Stacks of brown boxes in the cold storage construct a fortress of chilled cheese.

Usually when cheese leaves the plant it does not go directly to grocery store shelves. Cheese made in Jerome is often sent to companies like Kraft Foods and Schreiber Foods Inc., which repackage the product. Cream is sold to other plants where it is made into butter and ice creams.

In 2011, Jerome Cheese Co. completed construction on a mozzarella line that can produce and package 36,000 pounds of cheese in an hour.

Some of the cheese stays in the plant for a while, where it is goes from block to shredded cheese in a matter of minutes. It is funneled into plastic bags ready to be sealed and shipped directly to restaurants.

The horde of small ribbons of white and yellow fluttering out of the overhead pipe is never-ending, until the machine starts to beep loudly and a worker calms its cry.

close," she said. "During the summer, he's on the barbecue almost every night."

She said she remembers one Thanksgiving her dad was up 24 hours so he could baste a turkey every two hours.

"It was so good," she said.

Jewell said he's been barbecuing for about 30 years for family and friends and doesn't do anything fancy with his grilling. He prefers cooking with charcoal briquettes rather than gas grills.

"I just like the way they cook," he said, "the way they make things taste."

Others seemed to agree. Jewell and his helpers — members of the Twin Falls Rapids Soccer Team — gave away 500 samples of cooked chicken that afternoon. One group kept coming back for seconds and thirds, Kristina said.

But the family still had one dilemma Saturday: what to name the chicken dish.

Bacon-wrapped chicken breast was too long a name, Kristina said. "I think you should name it Captain Chicken."

Jewell's wife, Angel, peeked her head out of the trailer and offered her suggestion: "Oh Jimmy's Chicken Rolls."

As the event wound down, cooks gathered near the park's band shell to hear the winners announced. Listed in the barbecue category, the announcer declared: "Second place goes to Oooh Jimmy's..."

"It was tough to pick a favorite, because there were so many good recipes," said Optimist president Richard Craddock. "But that was really unique; they were fantastic."

Angel said her husband's grilling just might turn into more than he expected.

"He plans to do more of these events," she said. "He's already gotten offers to do catering."

ASHLEY SMITH • TIMES-NEWS

Jim Jewell prepares bacon-wrapped, stuffed chicken breast — a recipe dubbed Oh Jimmy's Chicken Rolls.

Oh Jimmy's Chicken Rolls

Recipe courtesy of Jim Jewell of Twin Falls.

- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 package Stovetop chicken dressing
- 1 pound mozzarella cheese, shredded
- 1 pound bacon
- Barbecue season salt (of your choice)
- Barbecue sauce (of your choice)
- 1 ball of butcher's twine
- Heavy-duty plastic wrap (or wax paper)

Lay down a layer of heavy-duty plastic wrap on a solid work surface. Place a thawed chicken breast on the plastic wrap. Cover chicken breast with another piece of plastic wrap. Pound out chicken breast with the flat side of a meat mallet, working from the center out to the sides.

Put a layer of dressing on flattened chicken breast. Sprinkle a generous amount of cheese on dressing. Squirt barbecue sauce (as much you like) onto the cheese.

Roll chicken breast. Wrap each chicken roll with 3 pieces of bacon. Tie each roll with three pieces of butcher's twine 1/3 of the way from each end and once in the middle; trim ends.

Heat grill to 300 degrees. Lightly salt chicken rolls.

Put them on the grill to cook for a minimum of 1 hour, turning every 10 to 15 minutes as needed (be careful not to burn). After about 35 minutes, begin basting with barbecue sauce.

Make sure proper internal temperature for poultry has been reached before removing from heat (165 degrees.) Remove from grill, cut twine and enjoy.

Barbecue Asparagus

Recipe courtesy of Jim Jewell of Twin Falls.

- 1 bunch fresh asparagus
- 1/3 cup olive oil
- 1 tablespoon barbecue season salt
- 1-gallon zippered bag

Wash and trim 1/2 inch from bottom of stalk on asparagus. Pour olive oil into zippered bag. Sprinkle season salt in bag.

About one hour before grilling, place asparagus into the bag. When ready to cook, remove from marinade and place directly on grill.

Turn continuously until asparagus softens slightly and grill marks appear. Season to taste.

Grill about 10 to 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

Hominy: What It Is and How to Use It

BY J.M. HIRSCH
Associated Press

Hominy is one of those foods you might think you've never tried, yet almost certainly have. Or at least a close relative of it.

That's because the ingredient that starts as hominy can end as many different dishes across many cultures, from Mexican pozole to Southern grits to the corn nuts down at your neighborhood bar.

But first, the basics.

Hominy is the name given to whole corn kernels, usually white, that have been cooked in a lye or lime solution to remove their thick hulls. The result is a tender, somewhat bulbous kernel with a chewy texture and a clean, corn flavor.

In Latin America, these kernels are used most often in soups and stews, such as pozole, a highly seasoned stew of hominy, pork and chili peppers.

The Southern staple known as grits follows a similar path. In this case, the hominy is dried after processing, then coarsely ground. The resulting meal then is cooked with water or milk to a porridge-like consistency similar to polenta.

Finally, there is the snack food — corn nuts. These are produced much like hominy, except the kernels are soaked in water after the hulls are removed. They then are dried and fried until crunchy, then seasoned and consumed alongside intoxicating beverages.

Cans of basic hominy are widely available at most grocers, either among the canned vegetables or in the Hispanic foods aisle. For ideas for using hominy, check out the Off the Beaten Aisle column over on Food Network: <http://bit.ly/Q4plGV>

Pulled Chicken and Hominy Stew

Start to finish: 45 minutes.

Servings: 8.

1 tablespoon olive oil
1 large yellow onion, diced
4 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon smoked paprika
1 teaspoon mustard powder
1 pound steak tips, cut into 1-inch chunks
1 quart beef broth
2 cups red wine
6-ounce can tomato paste
Juice of 2 limes, divided

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 pounds boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into large chunks
2 red bell peppers, cored and chopped
29-ounce can hominy, drained
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
Salt and ground black pepper
1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro

In a large saucepan over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the onion, garlic, cumin, cinnamon, cayenne, paprika and mustard powder. Sauté until the onions are tender, about 4 minutes. Add the steak tips and sear, turning to brown, about 3 minutes.

Add the broth, wine, tomato paste, juice of 1 lime, and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a simmer. Add the chicken, then cook for 15 to 20 minutes.

Use a slotted spoon to transfer the chicken to a cutting board. Use 2 forks to shred the chicken, then return it to the pot.

Add the bell peppers, hominy and brown sugar. Simmer, uncovered, for 5 to 6 minutes. Season with salt and pepper, then stir in the juice of the remaining lime and the cilantro.

Reaching Back for an Old Favorite, Give or Take the Pasta

BY JOE GRAY
Chicago Tribune

I don't know whether this is a tale about the glories of pesto or one of faulty memory.

With summery basil pesto on my mind, and the desire to do something other than dressing pasta, I recalled a favorite dish from the famed Zingerman's Delicatessen in Ann Arbor, Mich. It was a cold chicken, pesto and fresh tomato salad, the alchemy achieving greatness beyond the simple ingredients. But I couldn't remember: Did it have walnuts too? Or another something? It was years ago, nearly 20, so memory failed.

A conversation with Rick Strutz, a partner in Zingerman's, confirmed that, yes, they have such a dish (and, yes, with walnuts), but it has always been made with pasta. Did I have it wrong? Did what I ate include pasta?

Either way, it's delicious. Strutz shared the recipe, which revealed that the sauce was bolstered by a little mayonnaise (for creaminess) and lemon juice and vinegar, which impart contrasting acids. We've adapted their deli-size recipe for the home kitchen, leaving out the pasta, just because that's the way I remember it.

The dish here makes a light supper for a hot summer night. But if you want something more substantial, stir in a pound of cooked and cooled penne pasta.

And remember to toast — both the dish and our food memories — with a crisp, cold rose.

Chicken with Pesto, Tomatoes and Walnuts

Prep: 15 minutes. Cook: 12 minutes. Servings: 4.
Adapted from Zingerman's, which uses an imported jarred pesto. Sub with homemade pesto, if you're inclined to take advantage of summer's bountiful fresh basil and make it.

3 boneless, skinless chicken breast halves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup basil pesto, jarred or homemade
1 to 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon balsamic vinegar
Freshly ground pepper
2 pints cherry tomatoes, in assorted colors, halved
1/2 to 1 cup walnut pieces, toasted
6 ounces arugula leaves or other salad greens

Place the chicken in a large saucepan; add water to cover. Add salt. Heat to a simmer; cover, cook until just done, 12 minutes. Do not allow to boil. Cool to room temperature. Thinly slice crosswise.

Meanwhile, stir the pesto, mayonnaise, lemon juice, vinegar and pepper to taste together in a small bowl to form a dressing. Combine with the chicken in a large bowl. Stir in the tomatoes and walnuts. Serve on a bed of arugula leaves.

Soup's On: Campbell Soup Looks Beyond Iconic Cans

BY CANDICE CHOI

Associated Press

CAMDEN, N.J. • If your lunch still consists of a bowl of Campbell's tomato soup and a grilled cheese sandwich, chances are you grew up using a type-writer.

Generations of Americans have moved on from Campbell's condensed chicken noodle and tomato soups in search of heartier varieties with more sophisticated flavors. Now, the world's largest soup company is racing to do the same.

Campbell Soup Co. last year began a quest that led executives to a diverse group of cities including Portland, Ore., and London to figure out how to make soups that appeal to younger, finicky customers. In the year ahead, the 143-year-old company plans to roll out 50 products such as Moroccan Style Chicken and Spicy Chorizo. The ingredients may surprise those used to a plain bowl of chicken soup: tomatillos, coconut milk and shitake mushrooms.

The new soups also won't look like the big, gelatinous chunks that came in the steel cans that built Campbell into an iconic brand. These soups come in plastic pouches that are easy to open and heat up in a microwave in less than three minutes.

The remake could be a do-or-die task for Campbell. Overall canned soup consumption is down 13 percent over the past decade, according to the research firm Euromonitor International, as fresh soups have become more widely available at supermarkets and restaurants. And Campbell now has about 53 percent of the market, down from 67 percent a decade earlier.

Campbell's changes also illustrate how difficult it is for brands that appeal to older customers to become relevant to Millennials. This group, defined as those ages 18 to through early 30s, is heavily sought after by companies and marketers. But Millennials have little in common with their parents, whether it's their tastes, eating habits or cooking methods.

"I grew up with salt, pepper and ketchup," said Chuck Vila, who heads Campbell's customer insights division, which surveys the marketplace for trends. "These guys are playing around with really interesting spices from around the world."

For older Millennials who may just be starting families or advancing in their careers, the company created Skillet sauces in flavors such as Green Thai Curry and Creamy Chipotle. The directions are simple: Heat up some protein and vegetables. Mix in the sauce. Serve with rice or pasta.

The idea is to give consumers the sense that they're creating their own dishes, without them having to shop for hard-to-find ingredients or do too much tedious prep work.

And then there's the can. Red and white with the distinctive cursive lettering — immortalized by Andy Warhol — it has become a piece of Americana.

"For many millions of people, the can is a very sensible package," said Mary Gregg, who heads packaging for North America. "It's been around for years and people are very comfortable with it."

But executives say with younger consumers, a can just doesn't convey freshness. So the new Go soups come in white pouches featuring colorful fonts and photos of expressive, young faces. The Skillet sauces are meant to be a bit more sophisticated; they come in black pouches designed to evoke the chalkboard menus at sidewalk cafes.

But the new looks come with a price. A can of Chunky soup costs about $2.30 and has a shelf-life of about two years; the new pouches will cost about $3 and are good for about half that time.

U.S. Rum Subsidies Hammer Caribbean Producers

BY DAVID MCFADDEN

Associated Press

KINGSTON, Jamaica • Rum, the sugar-based liquor that has fueled the development of the Caribbean for centuries, has become the focus of an increasingly bitter dispute with the U.S.

Small producers in countries such as Antigua, Guyana and Jamaica complain they are being punched by unfair trade and marketing advantages for global beverage corporations operating in U.S. territories, and say U.S. rum subsidies threaten to drive some beloved top-shelf Caribbean labels out of business, or force them to sell out.

"The amounts that are being doled out now are staggering," said Frank Ward, chairman of the West Indies Rum & Spirits Producers' Association. "We were able to live with the level of U.S. subsidies as they once were. But the massive increases, we believe, have skewed the market."

It's a high stakes battle because rum, first developed on Caribbean sugar plantations in the 17th century and deeply engrained in local culture and history, is one of the few competitive industries for the tourism-dependent region's tiny, vulnerable economies. The tippie, which can range from colorless to coppery, from almost tasteless to richly layered, generates roughly $500 million in foreign exchange for independent Caribbean countries and more than $250 million in tax revenue.

The subsidies come from money raised through an excise tax on liquor sold in the U.S. Under an obscure federal law, almost all of the money generated by rum goes to the treasuries of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Those tropical territories in turn hand a share of it to the producers as a subsidy to do business there.

Distillers in other countries say they lived fairly comfortably with the U.S. subsidies for decades, even if they thought the rebates gave advantages to rum giant Bacardi Limited in Puerto Rico and Cruzan Rum, a U.S. Virgin Islands brand now owned by Beam Inc., the U.S. maker of spirits such as Jim Beam and Maker's Mark.

But they are alarmed by recent deals that sharply increased the subsidies for already powerful corporations in the two territories.

Hard Cider Takes Bigger Slice of Beverage Market

BY MICHELLE LOCKE

For The Associated Press

Autumn's a great time to fall for apple appeal, with cooler temperatures setting the stage for the fruit to star in gently steaming pies and alongside fragrant roasts.

Or, you could drink your apple a day, the fermented way.

Hard cider, which came to the U.S. with the pilgrims but was lost in a sea of sweet, unfermented juice after Prohibition, has been making a comeback with increased sales and launches of new styles and flavors that have brought a bushel of options to store shelves.

"It's the most exciting beverage category in the market," says Jeffrey House, founder of the California Cider Co., the Sebastopol, Calif., based company that produces ACE Premium Hard Ciders, a major player among domestic producers.

Hard cider still is a small part of the overall alcoholic beverage market; sales don't come close to the multibillion-dollar beer industry. But it is a rapidly growing niche.

According to data from Chicago-based market research firm SymphonyIRI Group, hard cider sales at supermarkets and other stores (data exclude Walmart, club stores and liquor stores) totaled about $71.5 million for the 52 weeks ending Aug. 5, more than a 50 percent increase over the same period a year before.

More sales means more products. Anheuser-Busch has a cider out, Michelob Ultra Light Cider. And Boston Beer Co., makers of Samuel Adams, this spring introduced three varieties of Angry Orchard cider — Crisp, which is a little sweeter, Apple Ginger, and Traditional Dry, a mellow, slightly tangy drink in the style of an English draught cider.

To get the cider right, Angry Orchard cider maker David Sipes and his team traveled around the world studying cider making and sourcing apples, getting their fruit from Europe, including Northern Italy. "We found just some fantastic apple varieties really well-suited for cider production," he says. They also use traditional cider apples — bittersweet fruit that isn't very tasty raw — from Normandy and Brittany in France.

"A lot of the same things a winemaker would be looking for in their grapes we're looking for in cider apples. We're looking for certain balance of tannin and acidity and Brix (sugar levels) and the cider apples really lend a lot of those characteristics," he said. "The end result is just a cider of really uncommon complexity."

The attention to detail includes aging some of the ciders with wood; oak staves or chips are put into the tanks to add a subtle touch of the vanilla and baking spices that come with oak aging.

Cider is made by pressing apples for the juice, adding yeast, then allowing the juice to ferment. As with wine, the yeast consumes the sugar in the juice and turns it into alcohol. But not a lot of alcohol. Hard cider can range from 4 percent to 12 percent alcohol, but generally comes in at around 5 percent or 6 percent, comparable to the strength of beer (and half that of wine), but with a fruitier taste.

Specialized Coupon Distribution Promotes Healthier Eating

JANE BLACK
Special to The Washington Post

Cook from scratch. Eat foods in season. Buy locally. That is the conventional wisdom on what Americans must do to become healthier.

Ben Gardner does not agree.

The founder of Linkwell Health knows that Americans, especially those with chronic diseases, should eat better. Consumers with diabetes buy twice as many candy bars and more than twice as much Mountain Dew as their healthy peers, according to the research firm Nielsen, while patients with heart disease buy 10 times as many frozen dinners. But instead of trying to persuade these customers to purchase fresh produce and prepare a home-cooked meal, Linkwell offers them coupons for more healthful frozen dinners or diet soda.

In short, Linkwell doesn't let the ideal be the enemy of better eating, and the strategy is working.

Gardner's approach reflects his background, which is health care, not food. (He admits that for most of his life he was one of those people who would have happily taken a pill to fulfill their nutritional needs, though, he says, "the older I get, the more I enjoy food.") Health insurers had spent decades building sophisticated, and expensive, disease-management programs. And yet, given the skyrocketing rates of obesity and chronic disease in the United States, it was clear that they couldn't compete with slick marketing campaigns for chips, candy, soda and other unhealthy foods. Why not, Gardner thought, steal a page from the food companies' playbook to encourage more healthful eating?

"Instead of sending someone a 100-page booklet, which nobody reads, about how to manage your health, why not just give them a coupon that they can actually use?"

Ben Gardner, founder of Linkwell Health

"Instead of sending someone a 100-page booklet, which nobody reads, about how to manage your health, why not just give them a coupon that they can actually use?" says Gardner.

Americans do love coupons. More than 80 percent say they use coupons regularly, according to NCH Marketing, which tracks usage. In 2011, fueled by tough economic times, we redeemed $4.6 billion worth of coupons, a 12 percent rise over the previous year. Most of those, a quick peek through the Sunday papers will prove, are for unhealthy foods: soda, chips and snack cakes instead of low-fat cheese or whole-wheat pasta.

Gardner's task was to target the consumers who most need to change the way they eat. The answer was to utilize an innovative program implemented by — wait for it — the U.S. Postal Service. When you move and file an official Postal Service change-of-address form, you can elect to receive useful discounts on moving trucks, household appliances, furniture and storage. It's what you need, when you need it.

To target needy consumers, Gardner reached out to health insurers, which have detailed health data on patients who struggle with their weight and diseases. He asked them to include healthful food coupons in their regular mailings. To protect patients' privacy, Linkwell never sees the health data nor do the brands that sponsor the coupons.

Over the past four years, Linkwell has partnered with 20 health plans, including EmblemHealth, Humana, United Healthcare and WellPoint, which cover 120 million consumers. To date, the company has mailed about 100 million coupons from well-known brands such as General Mills, Kellogg's, Kraft and Quaker Oats.

Orthodox food reformers might shake their heads at some of the "healthful" foods that Linkwell promotes. There are coupons for packaged Hormel Natural Choice deli meats and Smart Balance Buttery Spread, the latter of which author Michael Pollan, a leader in the food-reform movement, might classify as a "foodlike substance." Linkwell does have criteria about what foods it promotes. For example, a food cannot have more than 480 milligrams of sodium per serving and must have two grams or less of saturated fat per serving.

"We realize that Lean Cuisine is not a home-cooked, organic meal," Gardner says. "We are a pragmatic solution that is not letting perfection get in the way of progress."

Are Nonstick Pans Safe to Use?

BY KATHLEEN PURVIS
The Charlotte Observer

Question: How do I know if my nonstick pans are safe? I have a nonstick skillet and a grillpan that I use for eggs and fish. Can these pans withstand the normal heat of a cooktop without toxins leaching out?

Answer: Despite concerns and conflicting reports about the danger of toxic emissions from nonstick pans, most sources consider them safe if you take some precautions.

Don't overheat the pans, which can cause the nonstick coatings to break down. Most manufacturers direct you to keep the pans below 500 degrees, or use them only up to the medium setting on the stove. So you wouldn't want to use one to sear a steak, but gentle cooking something like eggs or fish should be fine. You also shouldn't preheat the pans, particularly an empty pan, and it's a good idea to use the exhaust fan while cooking, to dissipate any fumes.

When you buy a nonstick pan, it's worth paying a little more to get a heavy pan that will hold up longer. Lighter pans will overheat more easily. And if your pan shows any sign that the nonstick coating is flaking or scratching off, stop using the pan.

Chicken Kebabs Pack a Lot of Flavor

STEPHANIE WITT SEDGWICK

Special to The Washington Post

Skewered foods are the way to go when you want the food to look special and you want to control portion size. One skewer can suffice per person: You'll have about 3 ounces of meat on each skewer.

The fun part is the seasoning. Here, Chinese five-spice powder packs a lot of flavor. A mix of hoisin sauce and toasted sesame oil makes a quick glaze. The scallion pieces add color and flavor and cook along with the chicken.

Serve with rice, sliced scallions and grilled mushrooms.

The chicken needs to marinate in the refrigerator for 2 to 8 hours.

Five-Spice Chicken and Scallion Kebabs

Makes 5 or 6 skewers.

- 1 teaspoon Chinese five-spice powder
- 1/4 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast halves (trimmed of fat and tendons), cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 teaspoons distilled white vinegar
- 2 teaspoons seasoned rice vinegar
- 1 tablespoon olive oil, plus more for the grill
- About 8 scallions, white and light-green parts, cut crosswise into 1-inch lengths
- 1 1/2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
- 1 1/2 tablespoons toasted sesame oil
- 1 1/2 teaspoons water

Combine the five-spice powder and salt in a 1-gallon resealable plastic food storage bag, shaking lightly to blend the mixture. Add the chicken cubes, vinegars and olive oil. Seal, pressing as much air out of the bag as possible. Massage to make sure the chicken is evenly coated. Refrigerate for 2 to 8 hours.

Prepare the grill for direct heat. If using a gas grill, preheat to medium-high (450 degrees). If using a charcoal grill, light the charcoal or wood briquettes; when the briquettes are ready, distribute them evenly under the cooking area. For a medium-hot fire, you should be able to hold your hand about 6 inches above the coals for about 4 or 5 seconds. Lightly coat a grill rack with oil and place it on the grill. Have ready six 10-inch bamboo skewers. While the grill is heating, thread the cubes of marinated chicken and the scallions onto the skewers, starting and ending with the chicken. You should have 5 or 6 cubes of chicken on each skewer. Discard the marinade.

Combine the hoisin sauce, toasted sesame oil and water in a small bowl. Lay aluminum foil on the grill so the parts of the skewers not covered with chicken will be shielded from the heat by the foil. Position the skewers on the grill. Cover and cook for about 5 minutes, then turn the skewers. Brush the cooked side with the hoisin sauce mixture. Cover and cook for 3 minutes. Turn them again and brush with the sauce mixture; cover and cook for 3 minutes. Check for doneness. If the chicken isn't done, cover and cook for 3 to 6 minutes or until fully cooked; continue to brush lightly with the sauce mixture on any parts of the skewers not already coated with the sauce. The size and shape of the cubes will affect the cooking time. The chicken is done when an instant-read thermometer registers 165 degrees in the thickest piece of chicken. Serve warm. Per skewer: 140 calories, 18 g protein, 3 g carbohydrates, 6 g fat, 1 g saturated fat, 45 mg cholesterol, 160 mg sodium, 0 g dietary fiber, 2 g sugar.

Sneak Some Spinach into Potato Salad

BY SUSAN M. SELASKY
Detroit Free Press

Potato salad is popular at many family gatherings, but it sure does spark a lot of debate.

Should you use red or white potatoes? Russets or Yukon Gold potatoes? Skin on or off? Quartered or cubed? And then there's the dressing.

It's all a matter of preference.

Today's potato salad recipe includes leftover ingredients typically used in making potato salad: eggs, potatoes, celery, etc. But the spinach adds a nice twist along with extra vitamins and some fiber.

You can add as much spinach as you like (larger, curly leaf spinach is best). Just be sure to rinse and pat the leaves dry before using.

When cooking the potatoes, follow this tip I picked up from Martha Stewart: Slightly undercook the potatoes (it's best to cook them in their skins to retain their nutrients) and then transfer them to a colander. Let the potatoes rest in the colander with a dish towel draped over them; they will continue to cook slightly.

Another great thing about this salad is the addition of crumbled bacon. I opted to bake the bacon in the oven so I didn't have to constantly tend to it in a skillet. Cooking bacon in the oven is simple. Preheat the oven to 375-400 degrees. Place the bacon strips on a parchment- or foil-lined sided baking sheet for easy clean up. The bacon will cook into flat strips.

If you want to get fancy, you can bake the bacon so it curls. Here's a trick I learned in a food-styling class. Set an oven-safe cooling rack on a sided baking sheet that is lined with foil. Spray the rack with vegetable oil cooking spray. Lay the bacon slices on the rack, tucking intervals of the bacon down in between the rungs of the cooling rack. Either way (flat or curly), bake about 20 minutes (for thin bacon) or until it is crisp. Check for doneness after 15 minutes.

Sue's Sneaky Potato Salad

Serves: 16. Preparation time: 20 minutes. Total time: 1 hour.

- 3 pounds small red skin potatoes (or substitute russets)
- 2 teaspoons olive oil, optional
- 3 shallots, peeled, sliced, optional
- 6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 1/2 pound bacon, cooked (see note)
- 4 cups chopped spinach
- 1 1/2 cups sliced celery
- 1 bunch (about 6) green onions, thinly sliced on the diagonal
- 1/3 cup chopped fresh dill
- Morton Nature's Seasons seasoning blend
- Salt and pepper to taste,

- optional
- For the dressing:
- 2 cups reduced-fat mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup reduced-fat sour cream
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
- Morton Nature's Seasons seasoning blend

Scrub the potatoes and cut them into quarters. Place the potatoes in a large pot, and add cold water to cover by at least 1 inch. Bring to a boil and continue boiling about 20 to 25 minutes or until potatoes are cooked. Test with a knife; it should easily pierce the potatoes and cool.

Meanwhile, if using the shallots, heat the olive oil in a small skillet. Add the shallots and saute until caramelized, about 6 minutes; they will be a golden brown.

In a large serving bowl, combine the shallots, eggs, crumbled bacon, spinach, celery, green onion and dill.

Add the cooled potatoes, and gently combine all the ingredients. Sprinkle with Morton's seasoning, salt and pepper to taste.

In a medium bowl, whisk together all the dressing ingredients. Taste and adjust seasonings as desired. Pour the dressing over the salad and gently mix together.

Serve immediately or refrigerate until ready to use.

Note: You can cook the bacon as you wish, but I like it sprinkled with brown sugar in the oven. Here's what to do: Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Place the bacon strips on a parchment- or foil-lined sided baking sheet. Or place on a rack set on the baking sheet. Sprinkle with 2 to 3 tablespoons brown sugar. Bake until crisp, about 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from the oven and, when cool, crumble the bacon into pieces.

Twin Falls-Wood River Boys Match Abandoned

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

HAILEY • What should have been a straightforward win turned into a fiasco Tuesday as the Twin Falls at Wood River boys soccer match was abandoned in the second half with the Wolverines leading 3-0. The Bruins voluntarily left the field in protest of what they felt was unsporting behavior.

Two goals from Alex Lopez and another from Keegan Heneghan put Wood River well in control. Coach Luis Monjaras then instructed midfielder Trevor Brand to intentionally pick up a yellow card. Brand had three yellow cards entering the match, and under new rules, accumulating five yellow cards results in a one-match suspension.

The rationale from Monjaras was that the Wolverines have a nonconference game on Saturday, and Brand picking up a yellow both Tuesday and Thursday against Burley would have earned him a suspension for that game against Highland rather than a more important Great Basin Conference game down the road.

“It’s an issue of not teaching kids that you can manipulate things. For me it was about sending the right message to the kids.”

Twin Falls coach Ben Harman

Monjaras said he understood from a fall coaches meeting that earning strategic yellow cards was discussed and it was generally accepted that they would occur from time to time, so long as it didn’t result in trying to injure another player. Brand attempted to enter the field without shin guards, which resulted in a yellow card to the bench, and ultimately was carded for delaying the game.

“I’m not a coach that breaks the rules or anything. I follow everything that was discussed and agreed upon,” Monjaras said. “If all of us agreed and left the meeting with a clear understanding that we shouldn’t do that, then let it be. I can see how it could be unsportsmanlike conduct in my part, but on my team’s behalf I’m just thinking strategically.”

In response, Twin Falls pulled its players from the field and drove home, essentially forfeiting the match and ditching the junior varsity match altogether — JV games are generally played after the varsity games.

“It’s an issue of not teaching kids that you can manipulate things,” Twin Falls coach Ben Harman said. “For me it was about sending the right message to the kids.”

The card accumulation rule was implemented by the Idaho High School Activities Association this season, with the goals of curbing rough play and promoting sportsmanship. But multiple area coaches told the Times-News on Tuesday that concerns were voiced about teams operating in gray areas within the rules and strategically picking up yellow cards to make suspensions fall at a time least harmful to the team.

District IV soccer commissioner Peter Doble confirmed Tuesday evening there is no rule prohibiting intentionally accumulating yellow cards.

The match was reported to the Times-News as a 3-0 Wood River win and will likely stand as such.

Wood River is at Burley and Twin Falls hosts Minico on Thursday.

TWIN FALLS • Round 1 goes to the champs.

Behind a dominating offensive performance and a bend-but-don’t-break defense, the Twin Falls girls soccer team asserted itself as the top team in the Great Basin Conference with a 3-0 win over Wood River on Tuesday.

A tight, nervous game broke open in the 30th minute, when from four yards away Becca Behrens nudged in a cross from Ryleigh Glascock to put the Bruins ahead in a game where they were on the front foot almost from the opening whistle.

“I just drove to the net and got a foot on it,” Behrens said.

JEROME • Four different Tigers scored and the Jerome boys soccer team finished the first half of its Great Basin Conference regular season schedule unbeaten after a 4-0 home win Tuesday against Minico.

Now that Jerome has seen all its league competition, senior captain Jose Hernandez says the Tigers know exactly what they need to work on.

“First time around, we were a little down, but the more the time goes we’ll build up our strategy and we’ll get better,” Hernandez said. “We need to fix our mistakes right now. Just putting it in the net, that’s one big thing we need

Hagerman, Dietrich Remain No. 1 in Respective Polls

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • There wasn’t much change in the prep football rankings.

There was none among the No. 1-ranked teams.

Hagerman and Dietrich remained atop the Class 1A-I and 1A-II rankings, respectively, in the new state media poll released Tuesday.

The Pirates (2-0) picked up nine of 12 first-place votes and led Kamiah, Butte County, Grace and Troy. Dietrich had all but one first-place vote and was followed by Lighthouse Christian (which got the other top vote), Carey, Kendrick and Garden Valley.

Two other District IV teams were in this week’s polls, both at No. 3 — Gooding in the 3A ranks, up two spots from last week, and Declo holding firm in the 2A ranks.

Gooding picked up 29 votes and trailed Fruitland and Shelley. The Senators came in ahead of Timberlake and American Falls.

Declo was a solid third behind Grangeville and Firth, and ahead of Salmon and Marsing.

Minico received votes in the 4A poll, as did Camas County and Castleford in the 1A-II poll.

Patriots Top Pro32 Rankings

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • While Tom Brady cares for his damaged nose, New England Patriots fans can gain comfort from having their team lead the AP Pro32 power rankings.

Thanks to Brady's impressive work at Tennessee, even with a possible broken nose, the Patriots moved into the top spot of the first regular season poll released Tuesday. New England's convincing win and Green Bay's home loss to San Francisco jumbled the rankings at the top. Further down, Washington, Tampa Bay, Dallas and Denver surged thanks to opening victories.

In voting by 12 media members who regularly cover the NFL, the Patriots received eight top selections to earn 378 points, 10 in front of San Francisco. The 49ers moved from fourth to second and earned one first-place vote.

"Business as usual," is how ESPN's Chris Berman explained placing Brady's bunch on top.

"The Patriots looked just OK in the preseason. Not so fast!" said former All-Pro safety John Lynch, now with Fox Sports. "They whooped up on a good Titans team. Brady and the youth-infused defense looked like a team deserving of the No. 1 ranking."

New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady (12) calls a play in the first quarter of Sunday's game against the Tennessee Titans in Nashville, Tenn.

Chicago Tribune selected the 49ers as the best team, reasoning that their showing at Lambeau Field warranted a jump from No. 4.

"People don't want to believe this team can be this good with Alex Smith at quarterback," Pompei said. "Believe it!"

Also getting strong support were Baltimore, third with 357 points and two first-place votes, and Houston with 336 and one.

"Ravens show in no uncertain terms how ready they are to get back to the AFC championship game — and perhaps beyond," Newsday's Bob Glauber said. "After honoring the memory of the late Art Modell in a rousing pregame ceremony, Joe Flacco engineers the rout. More where that came from."

And more from the Texans, whose 30-10 demolition of Miami persuaded Rick Gosselin of the Dallas Morning News to vote them No. 1 — even if the Dolphins rank 32nd and last.

"Andre Johnson is healthy. The AFC is in trouble," Gosselin said.

Green Bay rounded out the top five with 326 points.

Making big jumps in the rankings were Washington, up eight spots to No. 16; Tampa Bay, improving from 26th to 19th; Dallas, up six spots to No. 9; and Denver, from 11th to sixth.

"The RG3 show is off and running," said Rich Gannon, the 2002 NFL Most Valuable Player now working for SiriusXM NFL Radio and CBS Sports.

GOMEZ GOAL LIFTS U.S. OVER JAMAICA

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio • The

United States rebounded from a loss at Jamaica and moved back into a tie for its group lead in World Cup qualifying, beating the Reggae Boyz 1-0 Tuesday as Herculez Gomez curled a free kick in the 55th minute.

After hitting the frame three times in a dominant first half as goalkeeper Dwayne Miller made several sparkling saves, the U.S. went ahead after Clint Dempsey was fouled by Rodolph Austin. Gomez's drive from 28 yards went over the defensive wall and to the left of a diving Miller, who was only able to lightly brush the ball with his fingertips.

"It was important for us to regroup after what happened in Jamaica," Gomez said. "We knew it wasn't our best performance and we had to step forward and apply today. With the help of the crowd, we pushed deep and persevered. It wasn't always pretty, but I think we did it very well."

A rowdy, partisan crowd of 23,881 erupted into chants of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" on a night American players said they were thinking about the 11th anniversary of the 9-11 terrorist attacks. Fans received small American flags to commemorate the anniversary and there was a moment of silence before kickoff.

Players circled the field after the game, waving to fans and raising their arms in celebration.

The U.S., which made five changes to its starting lineup from Friday's 2-1 loss in Kingston, is tied with Guatemala (2-1-1) at seven points in Group A of the North and Central American and Caribbean semifinals. Jamaica (2-1-1) also has seven points but trails on goal difference.

The top two nations advance to next year's six-team regional finals, which will produce three qualifiers for the 2014 tournament in Brazil.

Seeking its seventh straight World Cup appearance, the U.S. plays at virtually eliminated Antigua and Barbuda on Oct. 12, then completes the semis four days later against Guatemala at Kansas City, Kan.

The 30-year-old Gomez, born to Mexican-American parents, grew up in Las Vegas and was a member of the U.S. team at the 2010 World Cup. It was his fifth international goal and second in qualifying this year.

It was a key moment for a U.S. team missing injured midfielders Landon Donovan and Michael Bradley. Failing to win would have put enormous pressure on the Americans to win their final two qualifiers this year.

"That's my distance. I feel comfortable on the ball, on a free kick, striking the ball," Gomez said. "Thankfully coach had confidence in me. So did my teammates. I struck it and it went on. I'm fortunate and happy."

Bruins

While Wood River struggled to force the issue, Twin Falls put the match to rest in the 52nd minute when Ellen Bartlett, with her back to the goal, controlled a high cross into the box, swiveled and slammed it into the net.

Mehli Marcellus scored on a free kick 11 minutes later to round out the scoring.

Twin Falls (7-1-0, 5-0-0 Great Basin, 15 pts.) won its seventh straight game, six of them by shutout. The Bruins have given up three goals, two in the season-opening loss to Highland.

Wood River (5-2-0, 4-1-0, 12 pts.) didn't do much to threaten that mark, managing just one shot on target, a looping free kick that was easily saved. The Wolverines had five shots off target, while the Bruins had 13 total shots, six on goal.

One of the reasons they didn't get more attempts off was the Bruins' back five — defense and goalkeeper Allison Simmons — were quick to react and nip opportunities in the bud.

Another was being passengers in a game Twin Falls had under control from the moment Behrens bundled her goal home.

"We were just ball-watching a lot," said Wood River coach Jenni Conrad. "We had maybe 10 great minutes in the second half. But it's early in the season and even this is really like practice for districts. We'll work to get better from this."

The Bruins enter the second half of the Great Basin schedule knowing that if they win their next four games as they expect to, they'll go to Wood River only needing a draw to secure the outright regular season title.

"There are still some things we can work on to get better," Marcellus said. "We know they're going to try to take it to us at their place."

Jerome

to get down."

Jerome (4-0-3, 3-0-2 Great Basin, 11 pts.) had little trouble finding the net four times out of its 10 shots on goal.

Sophomore Fredy Gonzalez struck first in the 11th minute. Seven minutes later, senior Alejandro Vidaca made it 2-0, prompting Minico coach Armando Tapia to move goalkeeper Edgar Tapia to left defender.

In the second half, junior Alberto Vidaca, with a defender riding his hip, punched one through in the 46th minute. Hernandez capped the scoring in the 66th minute, crossing the box and firing a low rocket inside the post.

Jerome coach Robert Garcia said he wasn't surprised to see four different goal scorers.

"The players are not selfish," Garcia said. "I always tell them to look up and if you see someone that is open, give them the ball. They respond very well with that. I tell the players to be patient and wait for the moment."

That patience paid off, as Jerome controlled possession. Minico tried quick counter attacks, sending long passes over the top. But Jerome's quickness on its back end limited the Spartans to just four shots on goal.

"They're a great team, but we just read the plays and that's how you stop them," Hernandez said.

The game was physical, but not unfair. However, three Spartans were helped off the field with injuries, including one of Minico's biggest scoring threats, Geovanni Mendoza.

Jerome will try to keep its conference unbeaten streak going at Canyon Ridge on Thursday. Garcia warned against reading too much into the Tigers' record.

"There's still a long way. You just never know. You can see a team that's not playing well, then come district time they're up and going," Garcia said.

Minico (3-4-1, 2-3-0, 6 pts.) travels to Twin Falls on Thursday.

No. 3 LSU Hopes to Keep Developing Depth Vs. Idaho

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BATON ROUGE, La. • Two games into the season, third-ranked LSU is now playing without two of its top players and a projected starter at a third spot.

It's just a little hard to tell when they've won their first two games by a combined score of 82-17.

"We have a quality two-deep," LSU head coach Les Miles said. "We lose a guy and someone has to step into the breach. That guy has to play to the responsibility of the position."

The big losses to the lineup so far are 2011 Heisman Trophy finalist Tyrann Mathieu at cornerback and punt returner, left tackle Chris Faulk and linebacker Tahj Jones.

Mathieu was dismissed in August for failed drug tests, Jones is barred from playing because of unspecified academic matters and Faulk hurt his left knee in practice last week, requiring surgery that is expected to sideline him for the season.

Mathieu's replacement at cornerback has been freshman Jalen Mills, who had seven tackles and an interception during the Tigers' 41-3 demolition of Washington last Saturday night.

"From his high school film, you could see Mills' competitive nature," Miles said. "You don't know how that competitiveness will translate to our campus. Does he fit? Is he starry-eyed? For him, it happened right away. While he's defending passes or tackling, you just see the competitiveness in him."

Josh Dworaczyk, a sixth-year senior who missed the 2011 season with a knee injury, stepped in for Faulk at left tackle. Dworaczyk, who was the starting left guard during the 2009-10 campaigns, had no problems taking over for Faulk.

The Tigers rushed for 242 yards against Washington. The first LSU touchdown — a 21-yard run by Alfred Blue — came behind the left side of the line. Moreover, quarterback Zach Mettenberger was not sacked after being sacked twice in the first week by the North Texas defense.

"When Josh was at left guard, he was always used as our backup left tackle," Miles said. "He can step in at any left side slot. We are fortunate to have him."

Odell Beckham Jr. is the punt returner in Mathieu's absence. He's averaged 13.2 yards on six punt returns. Beckham returned a punt 70 yards for a touchdown against North Texas. He had another punt return for a touchdown nullified by a penalty in the game against the Mean Green.

Luke Muncie has replaced Jones in the starting lineup. Through two games, Muncie has six tackles, including one behind the line of scrimmage.

With three ex-reserves now playing starting roles, Miles seemed satisfied with the way his team overwhelmed Washington.

"We had to be ready to play and we were," Miles said Monday. "Our football team approached that game correctly."

Miles added, however, that the Tigers "are not ready to play our best opponents yet."

Regardless, the next team on LSU's schedule is not one of its best opponents.

Winless Idaho visits Tiger Stadium this Saturday night.

The Vandals have lost their first two games to FCS member Eastern Washington and Mid-America Conference member Bowling Green.

Miles stressed Monday that the Tigers must focus on themselves and not the opponent as they get ready for their Southeastern Conference opener at Auburn the following weekend.

"We do not take anybody lightly," Miles said. "If we are going to improve, our team has to make strides this week against this opponent. If we bring the intensity we need to, we'll accomplish something this Saturday."

If the Tigers were at full strength, Dworaczyk, Mills and Muncie could have expected a lot of playing time this weekend. Instead, it is now some of their backups who could see more action — if LSU exerts full command over the game and does not falter like Arkansas did against Louisiana-Monroe last Saturday.

"I'm sure it will be mentioned in our meetings," said Miles, referring to the Razorbacks' upset loss. "There is one of those games like that every year. You have to respect every team you play!"

REQUEST FOR FINANCING PROPOSALS

Southern Idaho Regional Solid Waste District (District) will accept written lease purchase proposals to finance the acquisition of solid waste management equipment. The preferred terms of this financing are a seven year lease-purchase period; a prepayment at closing and 14 semi-annual payments thereafter; and all equipment covered in one lease purchase agreement. The written proposals must clearly identify the financing rate and all fees, a proposed schedule of payments, the level of detail of legal opinions required, and a listing of any other documentation which may be required.

Written proposals will be accepted up to 2:00 pm MDST, September 19, 2012 at the District's office located at 1050 West, 400 South, Burley, Idaho. For further information contact Stephanie Thompson, 208-432-9082 or by email at sthompson@sisw.org or Josh Bartlome, 208-432-9082 or by email at jbartlome@sisw.org. The District reserves the right to reject any or all proposals not deemed to be in the District's best interests.

Lot 4 in Block 5 of The Amended Plat of Ambrose Subdivision, Gooding County, Idaho, as the same is platted in the official plat thereof, now of record in the office of the Recorder of said County.

THE TRUSTEE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE OF A MORE PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF THE ABOVE-DESCRIBED REAL PROPERTY, BUT FOR PURPOSES OF COMPLIANCE WITH IDAHO CODE, SECTION 60-113, THE TRUSTEE HAS BEEN INFORMED THAT THE STREET ADDRESS OF: 185 Tuttle Loop, Wendell, ID 83355, MAY SOMETIMES BE ASSOCIATED WITH SAID REAL PROPERTY.

If the successful bidder cannot provide the bid price by means of one of the above means of payment, the sale will be postponed for 10 minutes only to allow the high bidder to obtain payment in a form prescribed herein above. If the high bidder is unsuccessful in obtaining payment as directed within 10 minutes, the sale will be re-held immediately and any bid by the high bidder from the previous sale, will be rejected, all in accordance with Idaho Code 45-1502 et. Sec.

Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty regarding title, possession or encumbrances to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in the deed of trust executed by Michael L. Myers and Marilyn J. Myers, husband and wife, as Grantor to Alliance Title & Escrow Corp., as Successor Trustee, for the benefit and security of Federal National Mortgage Association as Successor Beneficiary, recorded December 28, 2007 as Instrument No. 224698, Mortgage records of Gooding County, Idaho. THE ABOVE GRANTORS ARE NAMED TO COMPLY WITH SECTION 45-1506(4)(a), IDAHO CODE. NO REPRESENTATION IS MADE THAT THEY ARE, OR ARE NOT, PRESENTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS OBLIGATION.

The default for which this sale is to be made is failure to: Make principal and interest payments as set forth on said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note. The original loan amount was $170,000.00 together with interest thereon at the rate of 6.8750% per annum, as evidenced in Promissory Note dated December 27, 2007. Payments are in default for the months of December 2010 through and including August 2012 in the amount of $1,116.78 per month and continuing each and every month thereafter until date of sale or reinstatement. The principal balance as of August 21, 2012 is $164,305.12 together with accrued and accruing interest thereon at the rate of 6.8750% per annum. In addition to the above, there is also due any late charges, advances, escrow collection fees, attorney fees, fees or costs associated with this foreclosure.

The balance owing as of this date on the obligation secured by said deed of trust is $164,305.12, excluding interest, costs and expenses actually incurred in enforcing the obligations thereunder or in this sale, as trustee's fees and/or reasonable attorney's fees as authorized in the promissory note secured by the aforementioned Deed of Trust.

DEAR ABBY: I'm really bad when it comes to speaking. It's hard for me to squeak out the few words I can. I am shy and not very sociable, so when I'm with people, even my two friends, I feel like I come across as rude. I never have the right things to say. When I'm with my family, I don't usually have this problem.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

In public, it seems like everyone else is so much more interesting than I am. Making conversation is a lot of trouble. I know this sounds silly, but do you know if there is anything that can be done about it? I heard you had a booklet about being more social. Is it still published? If so, how can I get one?

— VICTORIA IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR VICTORIA: Making conversation may seem like "a lot of trouble" to you because making conversation is a SKILL that you haven't yet mastered. A surefire way to contribute in social situations is to become informed about what is going on in the world by reading books, magazines, the Dear Abby column (of course) and going on the Internet. The more informed you are about the world, the better you will be.

You don't have to be an "authority" on everything. A good conversationalist is interested in what other people have to say instead of feeling pressured to fill the air with the sound of his or her own voice. My booklet "How to Be Popular" is filled with suggestions about how to polish one's social skills. It isn't meant to be read just once and then put aside. Read it often because it covers a variety of social situations. It can be ordered by sending your name and address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds) to Dear Abby Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. Shipping and handling are included in the price. There are tips not only for what to say, but also what NOT to say, which is one of the keys for becoming the kind of person other people find interesting, attractive and want to know better. If parents, teachers and clergy know people who need help in this regard, it might make an inexpensive gift that could help change the course of their lives.

Most people can concentrate on only one thing at a time. One of the best cures for shyness is to forget about yourself and concentrate on the OTHER person by asking about what he or she is interested in. Try it, and you'll find it works.

DEAR ABBY: I have this little boy I tutor. He is 7 and says he loves me. I'm 18. I try to tell him I'm way too old and he isn't my type, but all he says is, "Age ain't nothing but a number." Help! I need to know what to do.

— ALEX IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR ALEX: Start by telling him that the word "ain't" isn't appropriate — that what he should be saying is, "Age isn't anything but a number." Then tell him that while you are complimented, he is there to study — so you'll revisit the subject when HE is 18.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE Bobby Wolff

"Life is the art of drawing sufficient conclusions from insufficient premises."
— Samuel Butler

Today's deal emphasizes the point that bridge is not a game that you can learn by mastering one theme and extrapolating it to other deals.

First of all, let's see what happened at the unsuccessful table in a teams match. Against three no-trump, the heart queen was led to the ace. The diamond 10 went to the ace, and declarer took the losing spade finesse. The next heart was ducked and South won the third round of hearts, throwing a spade from dummy. At this point he must have felt confident he was going to succeed. After all, if West had the diamond queen, the finesse would work. If East had it, the hearts were not a threat.

But when declarer led the diamond nine and West showed out, East ducked. Now the contract was no longer makable. With no entries to dummy there were just eight tricks.

Declarer had in a sense done well. If he takes the diamond finesse immediately, East clears hearts and the contract will depend on the success or failure of the spade finesse. However, at the other table South led the spade jack from his hand at trick two, a truly unnatural play, but one that would generate nine tricks no matter how the defense played. When West took the trick and continued the attack on hearts, South ducked, won the third round, and now ran the diamond 10. Whether East took this or the next diamond, South had four diamond winners and nine tricks.

ANSWER: A simple raise to two spades gets your values across satisfactorily, and if you are on defense against a club contract, you will know what to lead. But what if West plays four hearts? To get the diamond lead you want, you are much better advised to bid diamonds now or to double, suggesting values, diamonds and spade tolerance.

IF SEPTEMBER 12 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You might be considered to be a smooth operator in the year ahead, especially if you take advantage of helpful opportunities that knock on your door early next year. During the next six to eight weeks, people find you more attractive than usual, but you may be easily distracted from what is most important. A new romance or business proposition could come your way, but you might be blind to pitfalls. Wait until February or March to make irrevocable decisions, job changes, or romantic commitments.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Honey catches more flies than vinegar. You don't need to let it all hang out. Keep criticisms and concerns to yourself. An aura of mystery and allure can attract the kind of attention you hope to receive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Appreciate social interchanges to make pinball progress. You can go from one great bell ringing score to another. You may have the opportunity to make a great ambition a reality by rallying supporters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friends or family members can distract you. Take pride in your ability to remain tenacious about the job, the project, or the relationship that you are working hard to perfect. Loyalty is the key ingredient.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put all your eggs safely in one basket today. Your judgment is better than usual, so you are likely to make wise financial decisions. A new heartthrob might have amorous plans for the weekend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get grounded. This can be a productive and fun day if you don't let group dynamics interfere with reaching your personal goals. Spinning wheels go nowhere unless they are in touch with a firm base.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Success comes to those who are too busy to look for it. Family and group activities might briefly prevent you from concentrating on career or distract you from what is really important. Get back in step tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can overcome obstacles through sheer willpower. The answer to all your prayers is right at your fingertips. This is a time when you should go along with the crowd and accept public opinion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Passions can carry a powerful punch, so much so that you might resent any interference. You have big dreams, but shouldn't forget about support and loyalty. Be especially kind toward a special someone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Enjoy commitments just as much as you enjoy freedom of action. Use your superb business know-how to handle finances with finesse or partner with someone else who has the skills you lack.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cooperation doesn't cost a cent. Overwhelming jobs get handled quickly when you ask for assistance. A cheerful, positive attitude and team spirit will outwit and overcome the competition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Kindness counts. There may be more than one worthy cause that requires your support and generosity. It is admirable to work hard to achieve recognition within a group — but just don't ignore the little guy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Smile upon youthful exuberance or energetic overtures. What someone else criticizes as childish, you might appreciate as whimsy. Remember that you must play by the same rules you always defend.

SUDOKU

Sudoku is a number-placing puzzle based on a 9x9 grid with several given numbers. The object is to place the numbers 1 to 9 in the empty squares so that each row, each column and each 3x3 box contains the same number only once. The difficulty level of the Conceptis Sudoku increases from Monday to Sunday.
