Schools See Mixed Trends in ELL

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • More than one in every five Jerome students is an English language learner.

It's a number that has increased significantly compared with 10 or 15 years ago, school district superintendent Dale Layne said.

This year, about 21 percent of students in the Jerome School District have been identified as "Limited English Proficient."

That's a 2 percent increase over last school year.

At Horizon Elementary School, the numbers are even higher. About 38 percent of students — or about 250 — are English language learners.

"It continues to grow," principal Teresa Jones said.

Although the number of English language learners continues to grow in some school districts, trends are mixed around south-central Idaho.

In Wendell, superintendent Greg Lowe said the number of LEP students

Grueling Event Draws Hundreds

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI

JEROME • Record numbers of runners and walkers participated in the 35th annual Rim 2 Rim race on Saturday.

Close to 500 participants braved the grueling 7.5 mile race, designed to raise money for Habitat for Humanity of the Magic Valley, said Linda Fleming, area Habitat director.

The run required racers to climb the steep grade of the Snake River Canyon, cross the Perrine Bridge, grab a quick drink of water before turning around to finish at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

"It keeps getting bigger every year," Fleming said. "This is our biggest fundraiser of the year, we love having this many people out here."

While plenty of friends and family members lined Golf Course Road to cheer on their loved ones, the racers also got plenty of encouragement from volunteers.

Wearing a bright tie-dye shirt, lime-green cotton pants and a parrot shaped hat, Peggy DeHaas sprayed a light mist over racers as they reached the top of the canyon.

DeHaas is a member of the Southern Idaho Parrot Head Club, a social club that volunteers every year during the

NEW PROGRAM HELPS NEW PARENTS

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Two months ago, Karen Farmer was looking for help. Balancing two kids and four jobs had left her with plenty of questions on best parenting practices and finding the right assistance.

But first she needed a kitchen table. "We had just moved and we were looking for help but we didn't have enough money to buy a table," she said.

It was about that time when Farmer met Lori Gidney, a home visitor with the Community Council of Idaho. Gidney is one of two employees working in Twin Falls and Jerome counties to assist parents with children under the age of 3.

The program is funded through the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for four counties in Idaho. Home visitors serve as parent coaches for the families, navigate available resources for the families and help provide education for the children.

"Twin Falls and Jerome was chosen because we have high teen pregnancy rates," said Roberta Sheltra, a home visitor with the program. "We know there's a need but right now we're having trouble finding the families."

Currently Gidney and Sheltra work with eight different families but they are looking for clients in Jerome.

The biggest challenge the home visitors face is the apprehension from families who feel they might be penalized for qualifying for the program.

"We're not here to judge," Sheltra said. "We get it, we have dirty dishes in the sink, too. We get it. We just want to help."

For Warner, the program has been critical in finding resources for her two daughters who are both under the age of 3.

Gidney visits Warner's home once a week. She started with finding Warner vouchers to buy a new kitchen table. Today, Gidney helps identify when Warner's daughter needs to go to the doctor and finding a supportive parenting network for Warner.

"It can be completely overwhelming when you become a parent," she said. "If you don't have any help then you can feel like you're sinking. This program is incredible. They don't judge you, they just want to help you."

P&Z Holds Open Houses on Proposed Changes

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning is holding open houses to allow residents to give opinions on proposed code changes on signage and home occupations.

The home occupation classifications deal with businesses that operate out of homes in the county. The signage ordinance gives guidelines for businesses on what types of signs they can place.

The changes are part of meeting goals in the 2008 strategic plan for the county, said planning and zoning administrator Rick Dunn.

If You Go

To see the proposed changes, visit one of the county's open houses:

11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Buhl City Hall, 203 Broadway Ave. N, Buhl.

5-7 p.m. Tuesday, Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Office, 246 Third Ave. E., Twin Falls.

11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Kimberly City Hall, 242 U.S. Highway 30, Kimberly.

Residents may also fill out surveys on proposed ordinances at twinfallscounty.org.

Three of the six vehicles in the community development and engineering departments are non-operational, according to the city council agenda packet, and others have safety concerns and poor gas mileage. "We regularly have to deal with an employee being stranded out in the field somewhere because a car has broken down," wrote city manager Travis Rothweiler.

The total for all of the new vehicles is about $154,000. That money will come from the city's $1.8 million capital expenditures fund.

The Twin Falls City Council meets today at 5 p.m. at the City Council Chambers, 305 Third Ave. E., Twin Falls.

As beach-themed music blasted from their water station, Parrot Head volunteers waved participants on dressed as parrots and pirates.

The runners may compete against each other but the water stations vie to win first place among the runners, DeHaas said.

"Our theme this year was parrots and pirates," she said. "That's why you see us wearing swords and we got the sailboat out here, too. We've won the last three years."

Once racers passed the finish line, volunteers asked them to vote for their favorite water station by using their participant bracelet to cast their vote.

However, it was still unclear who would win by Saturday afternoon. Fleming joked they might have to double count some of

Overall, the race was a good experience for new and

"This was my first time, I did really good for me but it was hard," said race participant Michelle Cover, shinis growing. Last school year, there were 235.

For the Twin Falls School District, the trend is a little different. ELL coach Khrista Buschhorn said the LEP population is a bit smaller this year.

"A smaller number of refugees have come through the schools over the last couple of years," she said, adding that some families have relocated to different states.

The Twin Falls School District has a little more than 400 LEP students this year.

There are teachers in most Twin Falls schools who are certified to work with students who are learning English.

Associate superintendent Patti O'Dell said there are two main populations of English language learners — those who speak Spanish as their first language and refugee students.

O'Dell said trends in LEP student populations evolve based on the number of refugees arriving in Twin Falls.

"Our English language learner population is constantly changing," she said.

DREW NASH • TIMES-NEWS

Fifth-grader Ee Reh, from Burma, works on a computer during an English Language Learners lesson at Harrison Elementary School Thursday in Twin Falls.

For the Blaine County School District, the number of LEP students has remained fairly static over the past few years.

But spokeswoman Heather Crocker said the district has one of the highest percentages out of Idaho's 31 largest districts.

Last year, 23 percent of the district's students in third through 10th grades were English language learners.

The largest percentage was at Woodside Elementary School in Hailey, with 53 percent of the students qualifying as LEP.

Working with English Language Learners

Last year, 16,280 Idaho students were identified as LEP, according to the Idaho

State Department of Education.

Spanish remains the most common first language among that population, accounting for 82 percent of students.

But statewide, about 100 different languages were reported last year as students' first language.

In the Twin Falls School District, there are typically 25 different languages spoken by students.

Buschhorn said it can create a unique set of challenges for teachers.

"It can be tricky," she said. Sometimes, a teacher might be working with a group of students where as many as five different languages are represented.

"A lot of times, English has to be the language of instruction," Buschhorn said.

With multiple languages represented in a group, she said students tend to pick up English words a little faster as they're trying to communicate with each other.

Teachers sometimes use pictures to help students or use a strategy called "total physical response." Students act things out, such as turning off a light or sitting down in a chair.

As ELL coach for the school district, Buschhorn said she looks at the district as a whole to make sure LEP students receive more intentional instruction.

Sometimes, she said, English language learners don't make "adequate yearly progress" benchmarks through the federal No Child Left Behind Act.

"What we're trying to do is have a more focused approach on finding out where some of those gaps are," Buschhorn said.

Chretien

Rita, then 56, and her husband Al, 59, were taking a backcountry road to Las Vegas for a trade show on March 19 when they got stuck in the mud. The couple from Penticton, British Columbia, tried to walk to safety but Rita injured a knee and they returned to their van the same afternoon.

After three days, Al decided to walk for help alone, leaving Rita in the van five miles south of the Idaho border in Elko County near the Humboldt National Forest. She had a small bag of mixed nuts, which she rationed long enough to last a week, and some hard candy along with fish oil capsules.

The latter two items became her staples for the next several weeks. She melted snow for water.

"I asked the lord to satisfy my stomach as if I'd had a full meal," said Rita, who attends a Nazarene church in her hometown.

She said they got lost by "foolishly following a GPS without a lot of experience." It snowed 6 inches the second night they were stuck, making escape even more difficult.

So Al walked. It was the last time they ever saw each other.

Rita wrote details of each day, thinking it would be valuable to rescuers when they arrived. As weeks wore on, she began writing more personal messages to loved ones.

But she didn't give up hope. "I've always walked with the lord ever since I was a little girl," Rita said.

She took a short walk on the 49th day, but had to crawl back to the van. Her strength was almost gone. Her chest hurt and she thought a heart attack was coming. With her will finally ebbing, she put on fresh white socks, wrapped herself in a blanket inside the van, and prepared to die.

That's when she heard engines. Some hunters on four-wheelers appeared.

"I thought I was dreaming," Rita said. "Then I thought, 'Hey, I'm not dreaming. This is really happening!'"

She was taken to a hospital and asked for a Nazarene minister. Pastor Steve Meyers of Twin Falls volunteered and they prayed together. They've stayed in contact ever since. Meyers said Sunday that Rita had the courage to persevere when circumstances told her to give up. "We lose hope sometimes," he said.

However, Rita's friend, Hannah Hyland of Penticton, British Columbia, who accompanied her to Twin Falls, said Rita wasn't beaten by her experience.

"She's not a basket case," Hyland said. "She misses her husband a lot. He was a great man. But she was courageous from the start."

Al Chretien's body has never been found. Rita held a memorial for him April 14, and 700 people jammed the tiny Penticton church. She smiled as she recalled the day.

"Al's brother spoke a wonderful message of hope," Rita said. "There was more joy and laughter than tears."

AFGHAN ATTACK KILLS 4 U.S. TROOPS

BY HEIDI VOGT
AND MIRWAIS KHAN
Associated Press

KABUL, Afghanistan • Afghan police killed four American soldiers coming to their aid after a checkpoint attack Sunday, the third assault by government forces or insurgents disguised in military uniforms in as many days.

The escalating violence — including a NATO airstrike that killed eight Afghan women and girls gathering firewood — is straining the military partnership between Kabul and NATO as the U.S. begins to withdraw thousands of troops sent three years ago to rout the Taliban from southern strongholds.

The attacks drew unusually strong criticism Sunday from the U.S. military's top officer, Army Gen. Martin Dempsey, who called the problem of rogue Afghan soldiers and police turning their guns on allied troops "a very serious threat" to the war effort.

This year, 51 international service members have died at the hands of their Afghan allies or those who have infiltrated their ranks. At least 12 such attacks came in August alone, leaving 15 dead.

The surge in insider attacks is a sign of how security has deteriorated as NATO prepares its military exit from Afghanistan by the end of 2014. The U.S. is days away from completing the first stage of its own drawdown, withdrawing 33,000 troops that were part of a military surge three years ago. The U.S. will remain with about 68,000 troops at the end of September.

NATO and U.S. forces are working with the Afghan government to tighten vetting procedures and increase security between the forces, but nothing has so far been able to stem the attacks on troops, which NATO frequently asserts are standing "shoulder by shoulder."

A NEW VIEW OF RETIREMENT

David Spoelstra canoes with his dogs across Fernan Lake near Coeur d'Alene. The idea of people who uproot and move when they retire conjures up images of warm, sunny Florida or Arizona. But some of the older members of the baby boom generation are looking elsewhere, and a number of towns in cooler climates from Maine to Washington have become popular retirement destinations.

Retirees Head to Unconventional Destinations

BY CLARKE CANFIELD

CAMDEN, Maine • When Peg Davis was ready to find a retirement community to move to, she looked north — not south — for a place to spend her later years.

Rather than set her sights on Florida, Arizona or some other warm-weather locale, she packed up and moved from Big Flats, N.Y., to the small coastal Maine town of Camden.

Davis, 73, was in search of the slow pace of a small town with natural beauty, cultural opportunities and "a sense of place." She hasn't been disappointed since arriving in 2010.

"I wouldn't go south of Pennsylvania," said Davis, who vacationed here for years before making the move. "My mind operates like a Mainer. It doesn't operate like people who escape to Southern comfort."

The idea of people who uproot and move when they retire conjures up images of warm, sunny Florida or Arizona. But some of the older members of the baby boom generation, the 78 million Americans born between 1946 and 1964, are looking elsewhere, and a number of towns in cooler climates from Maine to Washington have become popular retirement destinations.

Camden is frequently cited in lists of best places for retirees. Others that have merited mention include Coeur d'Alene; Asheville, N.C.; Ruidoso, N.M.; Durango, Colo.; the San Juan Islands in Washington's Puget Sound; St. George, Utah; Medford, Ore.; Kalispell, Mont.; and towns along lakes Superior and Michigan in northern Michigan.

"Boomers and retirees these days are considering a much wider range of destinations for retirement, often choosing states that don't commonly come to mind, such as Maine and Montana," said Mary Lu Abbott, editor of Where to Retire magazine. "Yes, the Sun Belt remains popular, but many people prefer a four-season climate and enjoy the changing of seasons. They seek towns that are safe and have active, appealing downtowns and good hospitals nearby, and increasingly they're looking for places with a lower cost of living and lower overall tax rate."

With baby boomers now reaching retirement age, they're looking for places that are walkable with good restaurants, volunteer opportunities and perhaps college courses they might be able to take, said David Savageau, author of "Retirement Places Rated," now in its seventh printing. They're also looking for places with familiarity, where they've visited on vacation or perhaps spent summers as a child.

For many retirees nowadays, the idea of a "golf kind of idle recreation" retirement associated with Florida isn't appealing, he said.

"That's the old view of retirement," Savageau said. "And it's kind of dying out, the desert Southwest and South Florida. That was for our parents; for us it might be somewhere closer to home, a college town, a ski resort or a historical area that gets some kind of tourism in season."

Black Christians Waver Over Vote

BY RACHEL ZOLL
Associated Press

Some black clergy see no good presidential choice between a Mormon candidate and one who supports gay marriage, so they are telling their flocks to stay home on Election Day. That's a worrisome message for the nation's first African-American president, who can't afford to lose any voters from his base in a tight race.

The pastors say their congregants are asking how a true Christian could back same-sex marriage, as President Barack Obama did in May. As for Republican Mitt Romney, the first Mormon nominee from a major party, congregants are questioning the theology of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and its former ban on men of African descent in the priesthood.

In 2008, Obama won 95 percent of black voters and is likely to get an overwhelming majority again. But any loss of votes would sting.

"When President Obama made the public statement on gay marriage, I think it put a question in our minds as to what direction he's taking the nation," said the Rev. A.R. Bernard, founder of the predominantly African-American Christian Cultural Center in New York. Bernard, whose endorsement is much sought-after in New York and beyond, voted for Obama in 2008. He said he's unsure how he'll vote this year.

It's unclear just how widespread the sentiment is that African-American Christians would be better off not voting at all. Many pastors have said that despite their misgivings about the candidates, blacks have fought too hard for the vote to ever stay away from the polls.

Black church leaders have begun get-out-the-vote efforts on a wide range of issues, including the proliferation of state voter identification laws, which critics say discriminate against minorities. Last Easter Sunday, a month before Obama's gay marriage announcement, the Rev. Jamal-Harrison Bryant of Baltimore formed the Empowerment Network, a national coalition of about 30 denominations working to register congregants and provide them with background on health care, the economy, education and other policy issues.

Yet, Bryant last month told The Washington Informer, an African-American newsweekly, "This is the first time in black church history that I'm aware of that black pastors have encouraged their parishioners not to vote." Bryant, who opposes gay marriage, said the president's position on marriage is "at the heart" of the problem.

Civil War Keeps Many Syrian Children from School

BY PAUL SCHEMM
AND DALE GAVLAK

TEL RIFAAT, Syria • Nine-year-old Rawan Mustafa knew she would miss school this year.

Her primary school is in ruins, blown apart two months ago by an airstrike in rebel-controlled northern Syria.

"I come here to find books to take them home and read — my sister helps me," Rawan said Sunday, picking her way through the rubble of shattered walls, half-burned work books and smashed glass.

Sunday was the official first day of school in Syria, a country of 23 million people, but the country's agonizing civil war is keeping thousands of students like Rawan out of classrooms nationwide.

Many schools have been destroyed or occupied by refugees. Some parents are simply too afraid to send their children to school due over fears of violence. Still others are living in refugee camps outside the country with only limited access to an education.

The U.N. children's agency says it is difficult to know precisely how many Syrian children have been out of school for an extended period due to the conflict, which started 18 months ago and has killed at least 23,000 people.

Dina Craissati, UNICEF's regional education adviser, said at least 200,000 Syrian children who have been displaced from their homes within the country are having difficulty accessing education. Outside Syria's borders, the U.N. has registered more than 250,000 refugees — including children — but tens of thousands more have fled to Jordan, Turkey, Lebanon and Iraq without registering.

A book is left on the ground at the yard of a school destroyed in government airstrike in Tel Rifaat, on the outskirts of Aleppo, Syria, Sunday.

Frank McDonald, Physicist Who Aided Space Exploration, Dies at 87

BY ADAM BERNSTEIN

The Washington Post

Frank B. McDonald, an astrophysicist and former NASA chief scientist who helped design scientific instruments for research flights into space and who was a key force behind several initiatives and programs that helped scientists peer into the reaches of the solar system, died Aug. 31 at a scientific symposium in Ypsilanti, Mich. He was 87.

The death was announced by the University of Maryland, where McDonald had been a senior research scientist at the Institute for Physical Science and Technology. He died of a cerebral hemorrhage shortly after giving a speech, said his wife, Irene McDonald.

McDonald's career in space physics spanned more than a half-century, starting with experimental research in the mid-1950s to measure the radiation above the Earth's atmosphere. His mentor in this effort was James A. Van Allen, a University of Iowa physicist who became a leader in space research and for whom the radiation belts encircling the Earth were later named.

With the help of the Navy, he and Van Allen concocted "rockoons" — small rockets lifted to 70,000 feet by balloons that would then thrust up to 350,000 feet. The rock-oons carried primitive equipment intended to learn more about cosmic rays, the high-energy particles trapped in Earth's magnetic field.

"The rockoon program was great fun," McDonald said in a 2008 lecture, "but it had its moments that established that we really were not rocket scientists."

One rocket exploded aboard a military ship, severely injuring a Navy officer. "We got him to shore, he made a complete recovery, but I had to come down to Washington and face the Navy," McDonald said. "I must say, in all of my years, I have never been dressed down quite as strongly as they did."

The Republicans' Keep-Down-the-Vote Strategy

There is a huge voting problem in the United States, but it isn't the one Republicans are spending many millions of dollars to correct.

The issue is that not enough people vote: Usually only about three in five of those eligible. Republicans are working frantically to ensure that even fewer do, an anti-get-out-the-vote effort aimed at disenfranchising Democratic-leaning groups: the poor, the young (particularly students) and minorities. Make it hard enough, the theory goes, and they won't vote.

A chilling glimpse at voter suppression efforts came this week from Common Cause and Demos, two progressive public-interest groups. Called "Bullies at the Ballot Box: Protecting the Freedom to Vote Against Wrongful Challenges and Intimidation," the report analyzes laws in 10 pivotal states. Its first paragraph quotes the leader of the tea party-affiliated True the Vote campaign saying the group's goal is to make voting "like driving and seeing the police following you."

Voter suppression has been going on for some time, but with the advent of the tea party, it has become more frenzied. In the George W. Bush administration, Karl Rove pursued voter fraud with zeal, and a pattern emerged: U.S. attorneys who didn't follow his suggestion to bring more such cases got fired. Since then, dozens of states have either enacted or are considering laws that suppress the vote.

Courts have struck down some, such as the U.S. District Court in Ohio that invalidated a state law that would have restricted early voting, but many remain on the books. Even bland, good-government groups such as the League of Women Voters are getting involved: The league's Indiana chapter sued the state to nullify its voter ID law (the league lost).

There are a variety of ways to curtail voting — shorter voting hours, selectively understaffed precincts (in 2004, there were 12-hour lines in Gambier, Ohio, home of Kenyon College), poll watchers with broad rights to bring challenges — but the most prevalent is tighter voter ID requirements. According to the Brennan Center for Justice at New York University School of Law, "as many as 11 percent of eligible voters do not have government-issued photo ID."

The main effect of such laws is to discourage impersonators: the guy who shows up with a fake mustache and sunglasses waving utility bills, trying to pass for a neighbor he knows isn't voting.

By all means, let's stop this guy. It won't take much effort. Although Republicans would have you believe there are thousands of people like him, according to various investigations (including exhaustive ones by the Brennan Center), there are almost none.

For instance, a commission investigating the charge that dead people had voted in South Carolina found no such thing. People die every year, and every year they're removed from the voter rolls. There was no zombie vote.

Let's look at what was uncovered by a huge purge in Florida, where Republican Gov. Rick Scott, sympathetic to tea party complaints, started an investigation. "We've gotta make sure U.S. citizens' right to vote is not diluted," he said in July.

A governor's gotta do what a governor's gotta do. That included casting a wide and expensive dragnet that caught 180,000 suspicious names (how many ending in "-ez," we don't know). Of those, 177,400 were citizens, many military veterans. Of the 2,600 remaining, one, Josef Sever, was nailed, pleaded guilty and awaits sentencing.

Sever doesn't fit the profile of the felon that Republicans are seeking to stop. He's a Canadian citizen of Austrian descent and a gun nut whose animating issue was the right to bear arms.

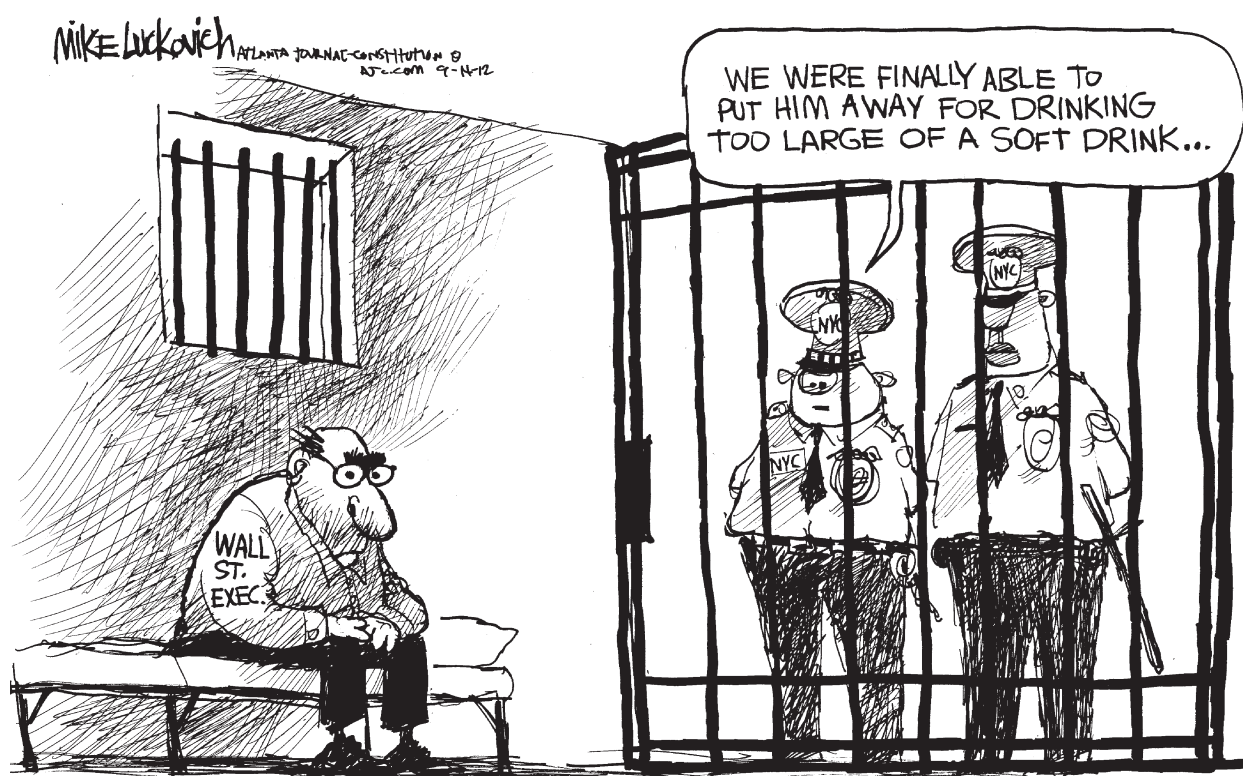

One of the favorite quotes of advocates of voter suppression comes from Joseph P. Kennedy, who is said to have sent a telegram to his son John F. before the 1960 West Virginia presidential primary: "Dear Jack: Don't buy a single vote more than is necessary. . . . I'll be damned if I'm going to pay for a landslide!"

Never mind that the quote is almost certainly apocryphal. The days of vote-buying, if they ever existed, are long gone. There are specific laws on the books that send to jail (or deport) impersonators at the local precinct. Those laws are bolstered by more general ones targeting identity theft. It's pretty tough for a person to get away with masquerading these days.

The misplaced focus on voter ID also detracts from attention we should be paying to more common, and consequential, problems: pamphlets giving the wrong date to vote, missing ballot boxes, voting machines that don't work. Republican groups such as True the Vote are working to sign up volunteers on Election Day to challenge voters as they show up — a poll tax measured not in dollars but in intimidation.

I like to vote. I get time off to do so, there's rarely a line at my fully staffed precinct, and there are no strangers staring at me as if I'm from Mars (or El Salvador, for that matter). But if I were Hispanic and had some unpaid parking tickets, or a mother who was illegal, I would be tempted to stay home.

That's exactly what the Republican governors and secretaries of state instigating these efforts — and they're all Republicans — are counting on. The battle over who gets to vote and how easily is not only legal but also, obviously, political. It could even determine the outcome of Election Day.

The Man Who Brought Tech to Boise

Randy Smelek, who died earlier this month in Boise, was one of the most successful Idaho business leaders both as a business creator and as a major executive in a large company. He wasn't a great self-promoter, so many Idahoans might register a blank at the name.

But he was one of the founders and leaders of several successful companies, among them the large Extended Systems tech company which employed many hundreds of people. And more critically for Idaho, he was the man more responsible than any other single person for bringing Hewlett Packard to the state, and launching Idaho's high tech expansion, which now includes dozens of substantial companies in a list that only starts with Micron Technology.

In this time when business expansion is front of mind, especially politically, a review of how HP came to Boise might be useful. We have good information on the subject, since, leaving aside testimony from other people, Smelek wrote his own memoir, "Making My Own Luck," which detailed the process.

It started at a lunch in late 1972 with Bill Hewlett and several other executives, in which Smelek — who was then an experienced engineer though relatively new on the executive side — was tasked with launching a new laser printer division, and finding a new location for it. "Not," Hewlett said, "in California: We have enough going on in California that we're going to grow and we don't want all our eggs in one state basket."

Smelek led a four-employee group considering cities around west as possible locations. They came up with a list of 11, all over the west. When he discussed the possibility of a move with his family, his children "immediately said they would not like moving to Arizona or New Mexico. When I asked why, they said, 'Because I don't want to.' Even though there was no rationality behind that, their words had an impact on me in that I focused the search first on three Northwest cities: Boise, Idaho, Spokane, Washington, and Corvallis, Oregon."

When he arrived in Boise, "Right away, it felt like home to me." There may have been a reason for that, he explained: "In fact, it even looked a lot like my hometown (Pueblo) in Colorado." Both are intermountain cities with a mountain range nearby, were comparable in size at the time, and probably did look a lot alike.

He met with then-Governor Cecil Andrus and then-Boise Mayor Dick Eardley, and walked away with positive feelings. Andrus recalled in his memoir a pre-decision meeting in his office with David Packard (or could that have been Smelek?) in which the HP man asked, "What type of tax concession is the state willing to give?" Andrus said he replied, "We don't believe in existing businesses subsidizing new businesses . . . A few years down the line and you'll be an old-timer. Do you want to subsidize the next guy who comes along?" That argument, he said, sold.

Smelek liked what he saw on his whirlwind tour. He told his superior at HP "that any of the places would likely work." But he also said the smart move would be to suspend the expensive site search, instead to start efforts in Boise and continue on until and unless it became clear that wouldn't work.

Which is what they did. And it worked. Draw from all that what business conclusions you will.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't Trust Certain Insurers

This is a warning to all against being scammed by an insurance company.

On Aug. 2 while sitting in my car listening to the radio, alone in the middle of a huge empty company parking lot on Eastland, I felt the whole car jolt. Getting out, I met my attacker (the woman who hit me was embarrassed and admitted she was completely at fault). She gave me her insurance information. They called me and lulled me into a false sense of security by accepting the facts given them by their insured and assuring me they would take care of the matter. Two weeks later, they sent out a claims adjuster who took another two weeks to decide that they could not prove the damage, and they were refusing my claim.

Even though I had witnesses, their own client admitted guilt and one of the most respected local body shops had identified the damage, I was left with having my insurance company sue them (in which case I would have to pay the deductible and wait for reimbursement) or take the matter to small-claims court.

So beware, all; carry a camera, get witness statements, get admission of guilt in writing, maybe call the police (although without human injury, they probably won't come) and maybe carry a day-glo pen to mark the parts damaged.

When dealing with a disreputable company, it may still not be enough. You may have to surround your car with an iron rail and cover the body with the kind of dye packets used by banks to mark money taken in a robbery.

Crater Has Potential

As I was sitting in a parking lot north of the Albertson's 5 Points, I looked negatively at the large crater where the Episcopal Church once stood. "Such an eyesore," I thought. We now have several beautiful storefronts just south of the crater. And then the crater space that looks to be the remnant of a bombing.

But as I considered the area, a great thought occurred to me. We have Craters of the Moon. My wife and I remember taking our children and walking out in that space. Why not designate this space a Twin Falls City Treasure and name it Albertson's Crater of Twin Falls. The kids can ride their bikes through it; the adults can sit around its edges enjoying their Java coffees. Just a thought!

Workers' Rights Have Suffered

Unions may have survived the right to work but what of the rights for individual workers?

I moved here from Washington state last year and finally found a position in the health care field I enjoyed with the right hours and pay. However, after only 2 1/2 months of work, I was filing for unemployment.

I stood up to a director who had no regard for double shifts without notice, did not take suggestions from staff regarding scheduling seriously (although he asked) and failed to discipline those who did not perform up to standards. As I had previously had no complaints from patients, staff or had any disciplinary actions on my record, I was shocked when I was discharged without notice.

Fortunately, my husband found employment just the week before and, thanks to his union benefits, received a good-sized raise recently when he completed his 90-day probationary period.

However, to say this past summer had been a struggle financially would be an understatement. Although my previous employer petitioned not to grant me unemployment, the state of Idaho saw that I was discharged unfairly, and I am able to collect for a time. I would have loved the chance to sue for my old position; however, due to the right-to-work law, there was nothing I could do.

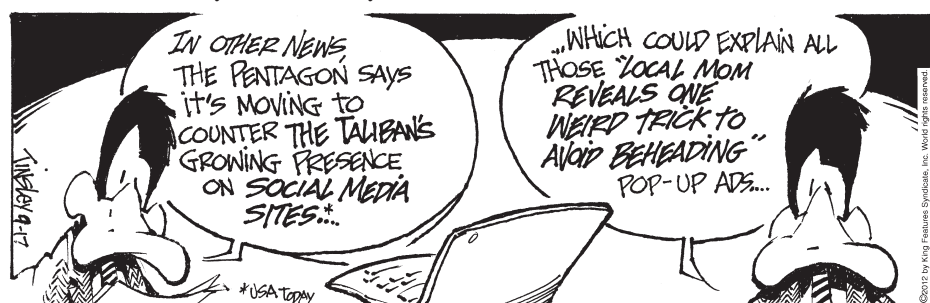

Employment is already limited in this area, even more so if you can only work nights. As my student loans are piling up, the option to return to our home state is looking better and better.

Israeli PM Makes Case on Iran to U.S. Voters

BY ANNE FLAHERTY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON • Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu made a direct appeal to American voters on Sunday to elect a president willing to draw a "red line" with Iran, comparing Tehran's nuclear program to Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh and reminding Americans of the devastating repercussions of failed intelligence.

His remarks were an impassioned election-season plea from a world leader who insists he doesn't want to insert himself into U.S. politics and hasn't endorsed either candidate. But visibly frustrated by U.S. policy under President Barack Obama, the hawkish Israeli leader took advantage of the week's focus on unrest across the Muslim world and America's time-honored tradition of the Sunday television talk shows to appeal to Americans headed to the polls in less than two months.

Tehran claims its nuclear program is peaceful. Netanyahu said the U.S. would be foolish to believe that, using football metaphors and citing example of past terrorist attacks on U.S. soil to appeal to his American audience.

"It's like Timothy McVeigh walking into a shop in Oklahoma City and saying, 'I'd like to tend my garden. I'd like to buy some fertilizer...' Come on. We know that they're working on a weapon," Netanyahu said.

The past week, Netanyahu has called on Obama and other world leaders to state clearly at what point Iran would face a military attack. But Obama and his top aides, who repeatedly say all options remain on the table, have pointed to shared U.S.-Israeli intelligence that suggests Iran hasn't decided yet whether to build a bomb despite pursuing the technology and that there would be time for action beyond toughened sanctions already in place.

Netanyahu disagrees, esti-imating that Iran is about six months away from having most of the enriched uranium it needs and warning that letting them reach the "goal line" would have disastrous consequences.

Obama's Republican opponent, Mitt Romney, has said he is willing to take a tougher stance than Obama against Iran, although his campaign has declined to provide specifics. He has also aligned himself personally with Netanyahu, casting the Israeli leader as a longtime friend.

Meanwhile, Obama is reported to have a strained relationship with Netanyahu, chastising Israel for continuing to build housing settlements in areas disputed with the Palestinians.

America's ambassador to the United Nations, Susan Rice, responded Sunday by saying there is "no daylight" between the U.S. and Israel and that Obama "will do what it takes" to prevent Iran from acquiring a nuclear weapon. But, she said, "we are not at that stage yet."

"Our bottom line — if you want to call it a red line — the president's bottom line has been that Iran will not acquire a nuclear weapon, and we will take no option off the table to ensure that it does not acquire a nuclear weapon, including military," Rice later said.

But Netanyahu has said that's not enough and employed historical examples known to most Americans to make his case: President John F. Kennedy's demand that the Soviets remove its missiles sites in Cuba "maybe purchased decades of peace," Netanyahu said. And absent a similar "red line," then-Iraqi President Saddam Hussein faced a U.S. attack in 1991 after invading Kuwait.

"Maybe that war could have been avoided," Netanyahu said.

Netanyahu also pointed to America's inability to prevent the 9/11 hijackings as proof that intelligence can fail.

Police: Florida Boy, 13, Killed 2-year-old Brother

BY TAMARA LUSH
Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. • A decade before he was charged with murder, a 2-year-old Cristian Fernandez was found naked and dirty, wandering a South Florida street. The grandmother taking care of him had holed up with cocaine in a messy motel room, while his 14-year-old mother was nowhere to be found.

His life had been punctuated with violence since he was conceived, an act that resulted in a sexual assault conviction against his father. Fernandez' life got worse from there: He was sexually assaulted by a cousin and beaten by his stepfather, who committed suicide before police investigating the beating arrived.

The boy learned to squelch his feelings, once telling a counselor: "You got to suck up feelings and get over it."

Now 13, Fernandez is accused of two heinous crimes himself: first-degree murder in the 2011 beating death of his 2-year-old half-brother and the sexual abuse of his 5-year-old half-brother. He's been charged as an adult and is the youngest inmate awaiting trial in Duval County.

If convicted of either crime, Fernandez could face a life sentence — a possibility that has stirred strong emotions among those for and against such strict punishment. The case is one of the most complex and difficult in Florida's courts, and it could change how first-degree murder charges involving juvenile defendants are handled statewide.

Underscoring the unusual nature of the case, Fernandez' defense attorneys said they aren't sure how to proceed since the U.S. Supreme Court threw out mandatory life in prison without parole for juvenile offenders in June. Another complication involves whether Fernandez understood his rights during police interrogations.

Richard Kuritz, a former Jacksonville prosecutor who is now a defense attorney, said everyone agrees that Fernandez should face consequences if convicted — but what should they be?

"What would be a fair disposition? I don't suspect this case is going to end anytime soon," said Kuritz, who has been following the case closely.

Supporters of local State Attorney Angela Corey say she's doing the right thing by trying Fernandez as an adult: holding a criminal accountable to the full extent of the law. But others, like Carol Torres, say Fernandez should be tried in juvenile court and needs help, not life in prison.

"He should be rehabilitated and have a second chance at life," said Torres, 51. Her grandson attended school with Fernandez and she has created a Facebook page to support him.

In other states, children accused of violent crimes are often charged or convicted as juveniles. In 2011, a Colorado boy pleaded guilty to killing his two parents when he was 12; he was given a seven-year sentence in a juvenile facility and three years parole. A Pennsylvania boy accused of killing his father's pregnant fiancée and her unborn child when he was 11 was sent this year to an undisclosed juvenile facility where he could remain in state custody until his 21st birthday.

The Justice Department said that 29 children under age 14 committed homicides around the country in 2010, the most recent year for which the statistics were available.

The defense wants the charges dismissed, saying the U.S. Supreme Court ruling banning sentences of life without parole for juveniles makes it impossible for them to advise Fernandez since the Florida Legislature has not changed state law. Prosecutors say they never said they would seek a mandatory life sentence — they say the old Florida law that called for a 25-year-to-life sentence could apply.

Mitch Stone, a Jacksonville defense attorney who is familiar with the case, said Corey and her prosecutors are in a tough position.

"I know they're good people and good lawyers," he said. "But if a resolution short of trial doesn't occur, this case is on a collision course to sending Cristian Fernandez to life in prison. That's why this is one of those very difficult cases. It's hard to understand what the appropriate measure is."

The Rise and Fall of Occupy

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A look back at the rise and fall of Occupy Wall Street, the movement against corporate greed and inequality that marks its anniversary today:

THE ENCAMPMENTS

Occupy Wall Street protesters first began camping in Zuccotti Park on Sept. 17, 2011. The small granite plaza near the New York Stock Exchange became a crowded encampment where protesters slept in tents, served buffet-style food to the masses and played drums into the small hours of the morning.

The group of young people who harnessed the power of a disillusioned nation was soon joined by people of all ages, with celebrities even stopping by the park on occasion. Occupiers took to the streets chanting about corporate greed and inequality, frequently holding marches and rallies, shouting: "We are the 99 percent!"

On Oct. 1, a march across the Brooklyn Bridge led to more than 700 arrests during a clash with police, garnering worldwide attention for Occupy.

Encampments sprang up in cities across the U.S. and all over the globe.

THE EVICTIONS

On Nov. 15, New York City police officers raided and demolished the encampment. New rules were instituted that barred protesters from bringing sleeping bags or tents back into the park.

In the weeks and months that followed, Occupy encampments in other cities were also dismantled, one by one.

The movement struggled to recover from the loss of the encampments. Without a place to gather, Occupy lost its ability to organize.

A small band of protesters spent some of the winter months living in a series of churches around Manhattan.

THE

Police take Amanda Lodoza, an activist associated with the Occupy Wall Street movement, into custody during a march in New York, Sunday. The Occupy Wall Street movement will mark its first anniversary today.

SPLINTERING

The movement grew too large too quickly for the organization to keep up. Without leaders or specific demands, what started as a protest against income inequality turned into an amorphous protest against everything wrong with the world.

Even before the ouster at Zuccotti Park, the movement had been plagued with noise and sanitary problems, an inability to make decisions and a widening rift between the park's full-time residents and the movement's power players, most of whom no longer lived in the park.

WHERE OCCUPY STANDS NOW

On Monday, protesters will converge near the New York Stock Exchange to celebrate Occupy's anniversary, marking the first day they began camping out in Zuccotti Park. Marches and rallies will commemorate the day in more than 30 cities around the world.

Across the nation, there have been protests organized in the name of ending foreclosure, racial inequality, stop and frisk, debt:

You name it, Occupy has claimed it.

Protesters opposing everything from liquor sales in Whiteclay, Neb., to illegal immigration in Birmingham, Ala., have used Occupy as a weapon to fight for their own causes. In Russia, opposition activists protesting President Vladimir Putin's re-election to a third term have held a series of Occupy-style protests. Young "indignados" in Spain are joining unions and public servants to rally against higher taxes and cuts to public education and health care.

MAGIC VALLEY SPEEDWAY

Quale Wins RMCS Title

BY DERRICK SHANNON
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Bruce Quale of Twin Falls has won a lot of races and championships at his hometown racetrack of Magic Valley Speedway over the years, but none more emotional than the 2012 CarbonX Rocky Mountain Challenge Series title. For the past five years, Quale has traded the Saturday night weekly wars for that of Late Model touring action in the RMCS, which culminated in a third-place run in the Thompson Motorsports "125" on the tricky one-third mile paved oval Saturday evening.

Quale's championship rival Steve Jones of Meridian did everything he could to cut the 70-point gap heading into the series finale. Jones was the quick qualifier, grabbing 12 points, but Quale kept it close, clocking in second quick to earn 10 points. Both drivers finished second on their respective crossed the finish line in third place to secure the 2012 series crown. The finish was his ninth top-four effort of the season, and he was the only driver to complete every lap of competition this season. His consistency throughout the year made all the difference. Burley running back Travis Osterhout carries the football as Minico's Matt Harper gives chase Friday at Minico High School.

Sportsweek for Sept. 17

Monday

The latest twist in a topsy-turvy High Desert Conference boys soccer race should come when Gooding heads to Buhl for a matchup between Nos. 1 and 3 in the league. Kickoff is at around 6 p.m., after the girls finish.

Tuesday

The "other" football takes center stage again in the Mini-Cassia rivalry, as Burley travels to Minico. The Bobcats won the first game 3-1, so Minico goes for revenge and the win at 4:30 p.m.

Wednesday

If Gooding beats Buhl today, the Senators' next trip is to the Community School, also at approximately 6 p.m. Wins today and Wednesday would essentially make it, at most, a two-horse race in the High Desert.

Thursday

If you're not trekking to Boise for the Boise State-BYU game, it might be a nice time to visit Niagara Springs — not for the outdoors, though that'll be an added bonus as Wendell hosts its first cross country meet this afternoon.

Friday

It's the first battle for SCIC supremacy as Gooding trips to Buhl for the conference football opener. It very well could be the game that decides the title, even if it's only the first game. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Saturday

It'll be an all-top 10 battle when Salt Lake Community College comes to town for a Scenic West volleyball matchup with the College of Southern Idaho. The latest edition of this bitter rivalry starts at 1 p.m.

What We Learned: Week 3

TWIN FALLS •

It's hard to believe, but this weekend will mark the midway point in Idaho high school football's regular season. As teams prepare to play their fourth games (some fifth, or in Wood River's case, the third), things are starting to crystallize. By the midseason point, we generally know what teams are going to be.

Before anyone points this out to me, I'm well aware that at this point last year, Lighthouse Christian's defense wasn't very good and couldn't stop the run no matter what it tried. It ended up being a championship-caliber D when it mattered. That said, generally speaking, the Lions were something of an anomaly. Usually, as a football team, you're getting pretty close to being what you are the rest of the way.

Here's what we saw in last week's action.

1. The Mini-Cassia rivalry is back. Burley might not have won the game, but this is the closest the Bobcats have come to beating Minico since I've been here. And this isn't a bad Spartan football team, either. It's all representative of the quick turnaround Jed Thomas has made on the south side of the Snake River. A moribund program for most of the past decade, Burley now believes it can not only win, it can compete with the best programs in the area. This column doesn't have enough space to articulate how huge a step that is mentally for the Bobcats, even if they're still looking to snap the eight-year skid against their rivals.

2. It's going to be another long year for Canyon Ridge. The Riverhawks looked promising to start the season, pushing a pretty good Columbia team to the brink in a game they really should have won. But after that, the wheels have come off, and it wasn't one lugnut at a time. Three games into the season, Canyon Ridge has scored 11 points: three field goals in the opening loss to Columbia and a safety last week. The Riverhawks barely threatened to score against a Jerome team that gave up 70-plus the previous time out. There's still some time to sort it out, but things are looking like it's another year of growing pains on the west side of the city.

3. One game into the conference season, Carey is in do-or-die mode. The Panthers have made the playoffs in each of the past seven seasons. But after losing at Dietrich on Friday, there is zero margin for error the rest of the way if Carey wants to make it eight straight. That's because Mackay looms on the schedule this week for the Panthers. The Miners look improved from last year, when they missed the playoffs for the first time in nearly two decades. Carey's already playing catchup sitting at 0-1 in the Sawtooth North; 0-2 would likely be too big a hole to dig out of.

4. This week's Gooding-Buhl matchup might decide the SCIC. If you're going off the season to date, this would certainly look like the case. Kimberly has looked lackluster in the opening three games of the season, and Filer has looked worse. Buhl hasn't been much better, but the Indians at least put a scare into Declo, arguably the best non-4A team in District IV. Gooding

BSU Re-emerges in AP Top 25 at No. 24, Alabama Still No. 1

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK • Alabama and LSU are back atop The Associated Press college football poll, holding down Nos. 1 and 2 the way they did most of last season.

The Crimson Tide is No. 1 for the third straight week, and it was almost unanimous. Alabama received 58 of 60 first-place votes. LSU got the other two.

The Southeastern Conference rivals were ranked first and second for eight weeks during last season before eventually meeting in the BCS title game. The difference last year was LSU was first and Alabama second — until the Tide won the national championship game.

LSU moved up to No. 2 this week after Southern California's first loss of the season. USC slipped 11 spots to 13th after losing 21-14 at Stanford. Stanford jumped from 21st to ninth.

BSU makes its return to the AP poll in the No. 24 spot after beating Miami (Ohio) 39-12 on Saturday in Boise. BYU dropped out of this week's poll following a close loss at Utah.

MAGIC VALLEY'S ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

11-man football: Taylor Seaton, Minico. Seaton had 122 yards rushing, 62 yards receiving and scored three touchdowns in Minico's 26-20 win over Burley in the Mini-Cassia rivalry game Friday.

8-man football: Ty Zimmers, Castleford. Zimmers ran for 360 yards and five scores, and hauled in a 75-yard touchdown pass as Castleford routed Rockland 54-14 on Friday.

Boys soccer: Josh Clark, Canyon Ridge. Clark posted two shutouts, including two saved penalty kicks to preserve one against Burley. He gave up one goal in three games last week.

Girls soccer: Becca Behrens, Twin Falls. Behrens scored the eventual game-winner over Wood River on Tuesday, then netted four times in a rout of Minico Thursday.

Volleyball: Bailey Wilson, Declo. Wilson recorded 23 kills Thursday in a tri-match sweep over Shoshone and Canyon Conference rival Valley.

Boys cross country: Jeremy Stark, Twin Falls. Stark finished third at the Century Challenge in Pocatello on Friday, crossing the line in 17:19 to lead all local finishers.

Girls cross country: Jasmine Nesbitt, Jerome. Nesbitt won the Mile High Challenge in Challis on Saturday, breaking the meet record by finishing in 19:46, six seconds better than the previous record and more than 40 seconds ahead of the next finisher.

ORDINANCE NO. 595

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KIMBERLY, IDAHO, PROVIDING FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH OF WATER CONSUMERS; PROVIDING DEFINITIONS; PROVIDING FOR THE PROHIBITION OF CROSS-CONNECTIONS; REQUIRING BACKFLOW PREVENTION; SPECIFYING APPLICABLE BACKFLOW PREVENTION DEVICES; REQUIRING APPROVED BACKFLOW PREVENTION DEVICES; SPECIFYING INSTALLATION LOCATIONS OF BACKFLOW PREVENTION DEVICES; REQUIRING A PERMIT; PROVIDING FOR THE INSPECTION OF BACKFLOW DEVICES; REQUIRING BACKFLOW DEVICES FOR UNDERGROUND SPRINKLERS; PROVIDING FOR THE TERMINATION OF WATER SERVICE FOR FAILURE TO COMPLY; PROVIDING PREREQUISITES FOR WATER DELIVERY; PROVIDING PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATION THEREOF; PROVIDING FOR A LIMITATION OF THE CITY'S LIABILITY; PROVIDING SEVERABILITY; REPEALING ALL ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT; AND PROVIDING FOR AN EFFECTIVE DATE.

WHEREAS, the City of Kimberly, Idaho, desires to adopt an ordinance prohibiting water service connection to any premises unless the water supply is protected by a backflow prevention device;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF KIMBERLY, IDAHO:

Section 1. Purpose. The purpose of this ordinance is to protect the public health of water consumers by the control of actual and/or potential cross-connections, and the installation of backflow prevention devices.

Section 2. Definitions. As used in this ordinance:

"Backflow" means the flow, other than the intended direction of flow, of any foreign liquids, gases, or substances into the distribution system of a public water supply.

• Back Pressure Backflow - Backflow of a contaminated or polluted fluid due to an increased pressure above the supply pressure, which may be due to pumps, boilers, or other source of pressure.

• Back Siphonage Backflow - The flowing back of used, contaminated, or polluted fluid from a plumbing fixture or vessel into a water supply pipe due to pressure less than atmospheric in such pipe.

"Backflow prevention device" means a device to counteract backpressure or prevent backsiphonage.

"Contamination" means the entry into or presence in a public water supply of any substance which may be deleterious to health and/or quality of the water.

"Cross-connection" means any physical arrangement whereby a public water supply is connected, directly or indirectly, with another water supply system, sewer, drain, conduit, pool, storage reservoir, plumbing fixture, or other device which contains or may contain contaminated water, sewage, or other waste or liquids of unknown or unsafe quality which may be capable of imparting contamination to the public water supply as a result of backflow.

"Health officer" means the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality, or its authorized agent, or a similar agency of the State of Idaho.

"Municipal water system" means and includes all components and facilities of the public water system that is owned, operated, and maintained by the city for domestic and other uses, which system and facilities consist generally of all wells, storage reservoirs, transmission mains, structures, buildings, chlorination facilities, pumps, pump houses, distribution mains, water lines, fire hydrants, valves, service connections, fittings, mechanical equipment, and all other facilities as required for the furnishing and distribution of water as a public system to certain areas of the city.

"Person" means any individual, firm, company, association, society, corporation, or group.

"Private water system" means any water system for domestic use that is not owned, operated, and maintained by the city.

"Public water supply" means any system or water supply intended or used for human consumption or other domestic uses, including source, treatment, storage, transmission, and distribution facilities, where water is furnished to any collection or number of individuals, or is made available to the public for human consumption or domestic use.

"Purveyor" means the city or its authorized agent.

"Maintenance Supervisor" means the person appointed by the city council to be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the municipal water system, or his authorized agent.

Section 3. Cross-connections unlawful.

A. No water service connection to any premises shall be installed or continued in use unless the water supply is protected by backflow prevention devices as may be required by this section and Title 1, Chapter 8, of Idaho Regulations for Public Drinking Water Systems. The installation and maintenance of a cross-connection which will endanger the water quality of the potable water supply of the city shall be unlawful and is prohibited. Any such cross-connection now existing or hereafter installed in violation of this section is declared to be a public nuisance and the same shall be abated.

B. The control or elimination of cross-connections shall be in accordance with this section and Title 1, Chapter 8 of Idaho Regulations for Public Drinking Water Systems, together with the latest additions of appropriate manuals of standard practice pertaining to cross-connection control approved by the maintenance supervisor. The maintenance supervisor shall have the authority to require standards more stringent than state regulations if he deems that the conditions so dictate. The purveyor may adopt by resolution additional rules and regulations as necessary to carry out the provisions of this ordinance.

C. No connection will be made to any fire hydrant in the municipal water system by any person without having received a permit for installation of an approved backflow prevention device or adequate air gap approved by the maintenance supervisor as provided in this ordinance, except for fire-fighting purposes.

D. No person shall make or permit the cross-connection of any private water system to a water line that is served by the municipal water system except as provided in this ordinance. Whenever an owner connects to the municipal water system he shall, at his expense, physically disconnect any private water source from the municipal water source in such a manner that water from a private water source will never pass through the same pipes that carry water from the municipal source, except as may be approved by the maintenance supervisor and health officer.

Section 4. Backflow prevention-Required when. Backflow prevention devices shall be installed at the service connection or within any premises where, in the judgment of the maintenance supervisor, the nature and extent of activities, or the materials stored on the premises, would present an immediate and dangerous hazard to health and/or be deleterious to the quality of the water should a cross-connection occur, even though such cross-connection does not exist at the time the backflow prevention devices shall be installed under circumstances, including but not limited to, the following:

A. Premises having an auxiliary water supply, unless the quality of the auxiliary supply is in compliance with Title 1, Section 8 of Idaho Regulations for Public Drinking Water Systems, and is acceptable to the maintenance supervisor;

B. Premises having internal cross-connections that are not correctable, or intricate plumbing arrangements which make it impracticable to ascertain whether or not cross-connections exist;

C. Premises where entry is restricted so that inspections for cross-connections cannot be made with sufficient frequency or at sufficiently short notice to assure that cross-connections do not exist;

D. Premises having a repeated history of cross-connections being established or re-established;

E. Premises on which any substance is handled under pressure so as to permit entry into the municipal water system or where a cross-connection could reasonably be expected to occur. This shall include the handling of process waters and cooling waters;

F. Premises where materials of a toxic or hazardous nature are handled in such a way that if backsiphonage should occur, a serious health hazard might result;

G. The following types of facilities will fall into one of the categories where a backflow prevention device is required to protect the municipal water system. A backflow prevention device shall be installed at these facilities unless the maintenance supervisor and health officer determine that no hazard exists:

- Hospitals, mortuaries, clinics,
- Laboratories,
- Metal plating industries,
- Sewage treatment plants,
- Food or beverage processing plants,
- Chemical plants using a water process,
- Petroleum processing or storage plants,
- Radioactive material processing plants or nuclear reactors,
- Others as specified by the health officer;
- Other premises where backflow prevention devices are reasonably required to protect the municipal water system;

I. Under circumstances set forth in this section, the maintenance supervisor shall have the right to require a reduced pressure principle backflow prevention device or a proper air gap separation to be installed at the property line, and to require of the property owner a signed legal letter of release to the city and the maintenance supervisor for any responsibility of the quality of water on the property.

Section 5. Backflow device-Type dependent on degree of hazard. The type of protective device required shall depend on the degree of hazard which exists:

A. An air gap separation and/or a reduced pressure principle backflow prevention device shall be installed where the municipal water system may be contaminated with sewage, industrial waste of a toxic nature, or other contaminant which could cause a health or system hazard.

B. In the case of a substance which may be objectionable but not hazardous to health, pressure vacuum breaker, a double check valve assembly, air gap separation, or reduced pressure principle backflow prevention device shall be installed.

C. Where lawn sprinkling systems are installed a pressure vacuum breaker, double check valve assembly, reduced pressure principle backflow prevention device, or an air gap separation shall be installed where there are valves downstream of such device.

D. An atmospheric vacuum breaker may only be used where there are no valves or shutoffs of any kind downstream of the device.

Section 6. Backflow device--Approval required. Any protective device required by this section shall be a model approved by the maintenance supervisor. Backflow prevention devices will be approved if they have successfully passed the performance tests of the University of Southern California Engineering Center, or other technical centers approved by the purveyor. These devices shall be furnished and installed by and at the expense of the customer. Installation shall be according to the minimum standards and requirements of the American Water Works Association (AWWA) Standard C-510 or C-511; Idaho Standards for Public Works Construction (ISPWC); Uniform Plumbing Code; University of Southern California Engineering Center; American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM); American Association of Sanitary Engineers (ASSE); and the International Association of Plumbing & Mechanical Officials (IAPMO).

Section 7. Installation of backflow device-Location. Backflow prevention devices required by this section shall be installed at the meter, at the property line of the premises, or at a location designated by the maintenance supervisor. The device shall be located so as to be readily accessible for maintenance and testing.

Section 8. Installation of backflow device-Permit required. Backflow prevention devices required by this ordinance shall be installed under a permit issued by the supervision of and with the approval of the maintenance supervisor.

Section 9. Backflow device inspections.

A. Backflow prevention devices installed pursuant to this section shall be inspected and tested upon installation, then annually, or more often if necessary, in accordance with IDAPA Section 58.01.08.552.06.c. Inspections, tests, and maintenance shall be at the customer's expense. Whenever the devices are found to be defective, they shall be repaired, overhauled, or replaced at the customer's expense, according to the minimum standards set forth in Section 6 above.

B. Charges for permits, inspections, tests, and maintenance as required by this section are to be established by resolution of the city council. Inspections, tests, repairs, and records thereof shall be accomplished under the maintenance supervisor's supervision by certified testers.

Section 10. Underground Sprinklers - Backflow device required. No underground sprinkling device shall be installed without adequate backflow prevention devices at the point from which the water for irrigation is taken from the municipal water system, or at a location designated by the maintenance supervisor.

Section 11. Failure to cooperate - Termination of water service. Failure of the customer to cooperate in the installation, maintenance, testing, or inspection of backflow prevention devices required by this section and Title I, Section 8, of Idaho Regulations for Public Drinking Water Systems shall be grounds for the termination of water service to the premises, or in the alternative, the installation of an air gap separation at the customer's expense.

Section 12. Prerequisites for water delivery-Cross-connection inspections.

A. No water shall be delivered to any new structure of six thousand or more square feet in area until the maintenance supervisor has received and approved the mechanical plans and a list of plumbing materials to be used, and a permit for installation has been issued, nor to any building of lesser size without a visual inspection by the maintenance supervisor prior to sheetrock and insulation installation, but after all preliminary plumbing has been done. This is required for preliminary cross-connection inspection approval.

B. Any construction for industrial or other purposes which is classified as hazardous facilities pursuant to Section 4(G) of this ordinance, where it is reasonable to anticipate intermittent cross-connections, as determined by the maintenance supervisor, shall be protected by the installation of one or more approved backflow prevention devices at the point of service from the municipal water system or any other location designated by the maintenance supervisor.

C. Inspections shall be made periodically of all buildings, structures, or improvements of any nature now receiving water through the municipal water system, for the purpose of ascertaining whether cross-connections exist. Such inspections shall be made by the maintenance supervisor.

Section 13. Installation permits. If cross-connection control devices are found to be necessary, the owner of the property served shall apply to the purveyor for a specific installation permit prior to installation thereof. If additions are made to the private service line for any purpose such as underground sprinkling systems, or any other additions, the owner of the property shall apply to the purveyor for a specific installation permit prior to installation thereof.

Section 14. Cessation of water service when. In the event an improper cross-connection is not corrected within the time limit set by the maintenance supervisor, or, in the event the purveyor is refused access to the property for the purpose of determining whether or not cross-connections exist, or if a cross connection control device is not installed on the premises delivery of water to the property shall cease until the deficiency is corrected to the maintenance supervisor's satisfaction. In addition, the purveyor may affect the necessary repairs or modifications at the expense of the property owner and refuse delivery of water to the property until the costs thereof shall have been paid.

Section 15. Violation-Penalty.

A. Any person who violates, omits, disobeys, neglects, or refuses to comply with any of the provisions of this ordinance or any other rules and regulation with regard to cross-connections adopted by the purveyor, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall, for each offense, be punished by a fine in a sum not exceeding One Thousand Dollars or imprisonment for a term not exceeding thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Each day on which any such violation shall continue shall be deemed a separate offense.

B. In addition to the penalty provided for in Section 15A above, any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall become liable to the city for any expense, loss, damage, repair, replacement, cleanup, and/or remediation cost incurred by the city by reason of such violation.

Section 16. Liability. This ordinance shall not be construed to hold the city responsible for any damage to persons or property by reason of the inspection or testing herein, or the failure to inspect or test or by reason of approval of any cross connections.

Section 17. Severability. If any one or more sections, subsections or sentences of this ordinance are for any reason held to be unconstitutional or invalid, such decision shall not affect the ability of the remaining portions of this ordinance and the same shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 18. Ordinance No. 374 and all ordinances or parts of ordinances contrary to the terms and provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section 19. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and legal publication.

PASSED by the City Council of the City of Kimberly, State of Idaho, this 11th day of September, 2012.

DEAR ABBY: America's tradesmen — plumbers, electricians, auto mechanics, roofers, masons and more — get very little respect. In fact, the only time these skilled professionals get our attention is when we have an emergency.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

This lack of regard is leading our nation down an unfortunate pathway, as fewer and fewer young people pursue jobs in these professions. If we don't change our attitude about the worth of tradesmen, who will build our homes and schools, repair our cars, keep our water flowing and our power turned on?

On Sept. 21, we have a chance to thank a tradesman. The date has been earmarked as National Tradesmen Day. Everyone can participate: Drop a box of doughnuts at the job site near your home. Call your plumber and say, "Thank you for your help over the years." Invite a skilled tradesman to speak at your child's school. The ways to honor them are limitless. Abby, would you help to get the word out?

— JEFF D. IN GREENVILLE, S.C.

DEAR JEFF: I'm pleased to help because I agree with your message. Tradespeople don't often receive the respect and gratitude they deserve. Everyone needs to know his or her efforts are valued and appreciated, and failure to extend this courtesy may affect our quality of life in the coming decades.

In years past, skilled trades were handed down with pride from one generation to the next. However, as baby boomers have been retiring, fewer young people have been stepping forward to take their place. In fact, according to a recent talent shortage survey by ManpowerGroup, more jobs for skilled tradesmen go unfilled than any other category of employment.

Why? Because there aren't enough trained replacements to fill openings for electricians, welders, mechanics, plumbers, roofers and more.

Part of the reason may be our emphasis on pursuing advanced college degrees for almost everyone. But another may be the lack of respect that has been shown for these vital occupations. The result has been, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, that for every three tradesmen who retire, only one person is stepping up to fill the gap.

I hear from many readers whose young adult children are unable to find work. Talk with them about this. People in the trades can earn good money. Visit a local community college with your son or daughter and learn more about classes and certifications available for skilled trades.

And please, show tradespeople how much their contributions are valued. Call your favorite handyman, plumber and HVAC technician not to once again scream for help, but to express your appreciation. Treat them to a box of your special home-baked cookies or brownies, refer them to your friends and family so they can get additional business, write to your local newspapers, websites or blogs expressing your appreciation.

Visit nationaltradesmen-day.com, and please remember, these hardworking individuals need to know that although National Tradesmen Day is Friday, we are grateful for their efforts the other 364 days a year, too.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Send your name and mailing address, plus check or money order for $7 (U.S. funds) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Shipping and handling are included in the price.)

THE ACES ON BRIDGE®

Bobby Wolff

"Sometimes these cogitations still amaze

The troubled midnight and the noon's repose."

— T.S. Eliot

In today's deal from the Women's Teams at the 2002 European Championships, declarer was able to restrict her losers in the fourth suit to just one, regardless of the location of the missing honors, by eliminating the other three suits.

Against four spades, West led the heart nine. Declarer rose with dummy's ace and immediately ruffed the heart jack. The spade queen came next, then another spade to the king and ace. At this point, declarer has two sure diamond losers and thus, to insure her contract, needs to hold her club losers to one. It would be easy to guess the suit — but why guess when you have a sure thing?

With trumps and hearts eliminated, declarer set about diamonds by leading dummy's jack. This ran to West's king, and rather than give a ruff and discard or open up the clubs, West returned a diamond to East's ace. East did her best by playing another diamond. Declarer ruffed her winning diamond queen in dummy to lead the club queen. (A low club would have had the same effect in this position.) Irrespective of the location of the missing club honors, this was guaranteed to be the winning play. In practice, East covered with the king, and on taking the ace, declarer conceded just one club trick to the jack.

Had West held the king, she would now have been endplayed into either giving declarer a ruff and discard or returning a club into declarer's tenace.

ANSWER: The opponents have surely reached a 4-3 or 5-3 fit, with dummy likely to offer a ruffing value. One line of defense might be to lead trump, but then declarer's diamonds may well set up. Another approach is to keep leading hearts to try to build trump tricks for your partner. The most passive option is to lead clubs, and I think I'd do that.

IF SEPTEMBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Joining a club, group or organization can be your ticket to success or happiness during the next several months. You can form beneficial connections that help you improve some important facet of your life. Avoid speculation or investments of time, emotions, or money in November and December when you are more gullible than usual. Hold off and wait until after the first of the year to make business or financial decisions. Next April is the prime time to make crucial decisions, ask for favors, or launch key plans. Any opportunity that you accept at that time will, in some way, make a beneficial improvement in your life. You might even find romantic fantasies can come true then.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Polish your shoes and comb your hair; you might meet someone. Most romantic fantasies are too bubbly and delicious to be bottled and labeled. You need to act on your feelings before they go flat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your judgment about investments and people may be slightly off center. Don't dive headfirst into a new relationship. You will be more comfortable with a new contact if you test the waters first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): For he's a jolly good fellow, which nobody can deny. Although you might just go along for the ride, you could discover that a casual contact has the potential to turn into a romantic tour de force.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Get your foot in the door. If you do very well with your sales, investments or bank balance you are very likely to be successful with romantic overtures this evening. Push hard to get face-to-face.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Blend in by following the trends. With Venus in your sign, it might be a good time to upgrade your appearance by getting a haircut to suit your lifestyle or to buy clothing that camouflages physical shortcomings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some things don't go according to plan. It may seem as if unseen forces impede every move. This doesn't mean you'll fail; it just means that you're going to need to watch for every passing opportunity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Look at every stumbling block as an opportunity. If you hold up your end of the bargain, others will do likewise. Opposites may attract for a while, but it is usually birds of a feather that flock together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Real romance requires a sense of timing and sensitivity. The right person will understand your caution and valid concerns about intimacy. Sudden attractions and romantic passions are highlighted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): When you hear the ping, you know to invest in higher octane gas for your car. When energies flag, you might need more than enriched calories. Hook up with people who support your interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is time to show off your leadership abilities. Like attracts like, so meet up with those who can match you step for step. A new relationship could bring out the romantic side of your nature.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A flurry of fun may manifest through social contacts. Your desire for love and intimacy could be satisfied tonight. A brief stalemate with a partner could dissolve under the weight of compassion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Even today's downers can be a springboard to an uplifting experience. Study hard and gain an education in areas where you have found a flaw. Find a congenial partner for mutual enjoyment.

ASIA MAGIC MASSAGE
Open 7 days a week 9:00am-10:30pm 208-948-0178 440 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Twin Falls, ID 83301

Today is Monday, Sept. 17, the 261st day of 2012. There are 105 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:
On Sept. 17, 1862, more than 3,600 men were killed, many more wounded, captured or left missing, in the Civil War Battle of Antietam in Maryland; although the battle itself proved inconclusive, it effectively halted the Confederates' advance into Maryland.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:
In 1787, the Constitution of the United States was completed and signed by a majority of delegates attending the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.

In 1908, Lt. Thomas E. Selfridge of the U.S. Army Signal Corps became the first person to die in the crash of a powered aircraft, the Wright Flyer, at Fort Myer, Va., just outside Washington, D.C.

In 1911, Calbraith P. Rodgers set off from Sheepshead Bay, N.Y., aboard a Wright biplane in an attempt to become the first flier to travel the width of the United States. (The 49-day journey required 69 stops before ending in Pasadena, Calif.)

In 1937, the likeness of President Abraham Lincoln's head was dedicated at Mount Rushmore.

In 1939, the Soviet Union invaded Poland during World War II, more than two weeks after Nazi Germany had launched its assault.

In 1947, James V. Forrestal was sworn in as the first U.S. Secretary of Defense.

In 1962, U.S. space officials announced the selection of nine new astronauts, including Neil A. Armstrong, who became the first man to step onto the moon.

In 1971, citing health reasons, Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, 85, retired. (Black, who was succeeded by Lewis F. Powell Jr., died eight days after making his announcement.)

In 1972, the Korean War comedy-drama "M-A-S-H" premiered on CBS.

In 1978, after meeting at Camp David, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat signed a framework for a peace treaty.

In 1986, the Senate confirmed the nomination of William H. Rehnquist to become the 16th chief justice of the United States.

In 1987, the city of Philadelphia, birthplace of the U.S. Constitution, threw a big party to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the historic document.

Ten years ago: After years of denials by his country, North Korean leader Kim Jong Il admitted that North Korean spies had abducted about a dozen Japanese citizens decades earlier, and that at least four of the Japanese were still alive. NBA star Patrick Ewing announced his retirement.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush nominated former federal judge Michael Mukasey to become attorney general. The Iraqi government revoked the license of Blackwater USA security firm a day after a shooting incident that had claimed the lives of civilians. During a forum at the University of Florida, Andrew Meyer, a student with a history of taping his own practical jokes, was Tasered by campus police and arrested after repeatedly trying to question Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry.

One year ago: A demonstration calling itself Occupy Wall Street began in New York, prompting similar protests around the U.S. and the world. Charles H. Percy, 91, a Chicago businessman who became a U.S. senator and was once widely viewed as a top presidential contender, died in Washington.
