School Districts Get Merit Pay Data

But it'll still be two months until teachers find out if they've earned bonuses.

BY JULIE WOOTTON

TWIN FALLS • It will be another couple of months before teachers and school principals find out if they'll receive merit pay.

Preliminary data on who qualified for a bonus on the state level went out to school districts and public charter schools Wednesday.

Melissa McGrath, spokeswoman for the Idaho State Department of Education, said educators won't find out if they'll receive a bonus until mid-November — just before payments are scheduled to go out.

Beth Pendergrass, spokeswoman for the Twin Falls School District, said information about the merit pay timeline will go out to Twin Falls

Families Drop Civil Suit in CSI Student Death

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismsmith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Two years to the day of the death of two College of Southern Idaho students in a car crash, a civil lawsuit by their families was dismissed against the driver who was accused of chasing them.

On Sept. 12, 2010, Kade Laughlin was arrested hours after the single-vehicle crash near Filer that injured 19-year-old Jessica Duran and killed Devon Austin, 19, and Ryan Reinhardt, 18. Both men died at the scene of the crash on Clover Road, near where it intersects with U.S. Highway 30.

According to court documents, Duran, who was the only survivor of the crash, told deputies Laughlin chased Reinhardt's vehicle after leaving Laughlin's home.

In the same document, Laughlin admitted that he and some of his friends got in his pickup and chased Duran, Austin and Reinhardt after one of the men was accused of stealing something from Laughlin's home.

Magic Valley Football Fans Descend on Boise's Bronco Stadium.

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

BOISE • In the ocean of football tailgaters outside Bronco Stadium on Thursday evening, Robert Haun and his wife, Laura, clearly had their act together.

The Paul residents' camp featured an orange and blue Boise State canopy next to the open back end of their red GMC Sierra. Boise State flags were attached above each door. A satellite hookup on top of the vehicle powered televisions on each side of the rig, and the Hauns were tuned in to ESPN more than two hours before kickoff of the game between Boise State and Brigham Young.

Robert tossed a football with his grandson, 10-year-old Jack Nielsen, as Laura enjoyed a cool drink while relaxing with friends under the canopy.

"I'm the football fan," she said. "He's the tailgating fan."

"It's true," her husband replied with a grin.

Kyle Bradshaw, sitting next to Laura and sipping a beer, emphasized their devotion to Boise State football.

"We were here four hours before the game," he said. "We were the second ones in the parking lot. That's how dedicated we are."

Report Tells Idaho to Wait on Medicaid Decisions

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • When the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the health care reform law earlier this summer, states were presented with several questions.

Specifically, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act requires states to decide whether or not they will expand their Medicaid eligibility requirements.

What states were not given was information on how to make the best decision.

Anticipating a need for better data on a possible Medicaid expansion, the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare requested an analysis of newly eligible Medicaid individuals in April.

The report was released Thursday

THE MARKET AT A GLANCE

U.S. Stocks Follow Global Markets Lower

NEW YORK (AP) • A batch of worrying economic figures tugged stock markets slightly lower Thursday. Measures of manufacturing and business activity in both China and Europe slumped.

In the U.S., the railroad Norfolk Southern warned that it's shipping fewer goods, and the government gave investors another reminder that the job market remains weak.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 0.79 of a point to close at 1,460.26. The Nasdaq composite index dropped 6.66 points to 3,175.96. Three stocks fell for every two that rose on the New York Stock Exchange.

Sacred Site or Recreation Area?

Advisory group recommends multiple-use for Cedar Fields.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

JEROME • A federal advisory group recommended Thursday that rock climbing and other recreational uses should continue to be allowed at Cedar Fields, a popular Power County public land site.

The recommendation comes at the end of a long debate between recreationists fighting to maintain access to an area considered sacred to the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes.

The U.S. Bureau of Land Management will make the final decision next spring but the agency's Resource Advisory Council is urging officials to maintain multiple-use.

The group — members of the public recruited to advise on BLM decisions — is suggesting that the BLM enforce maintenance work once a year to help mitigate erosion. Recommendations include requiring rock climbers to camouflage all bolts within the next three years and planting perennial native species within one year in areas vegetation has eroded.

In January, BLM archaeologists warned the advisory group that the site was showing signs of erosion due to increase foot traffic and recreational use.

The site is given a historical preservation status because of its archaeological significance. However, that status can be stripped if the area becomes damaged and eroded from recreational use like fire pits, graffiti and foot traffic.

For the past nine months, tribal members have voiced continual opposition to recreational use at Cedar Fields.

Yvette Tuell, RAC member and American Indian representative, said that the tribal members were disappointed that the advisory group decided to allow multiple-use on the Cedar Fields site.

"Just because you can have multiple-use on public lands, doesn't mean you should have multiple-use," she said.

Tuell was the only RAC member to voice an opposition to the recommendations Thursday. However, multiple group members did mention how difficult it was coming up with the best solution.

"This is one of the more difficult issues I've worked on," said Charlie Howell, RAC member and Jerome County commissioner.

Afton Patrick, who helped draft the recommendations, agreed.

"This is a tough issue," she said. "You had to spill your guts in front of everyone; That's not an easy thing to do."

The group's recommendations now go before the BLM's Burley Field Office for analysis. The proposals will go to the Twin Falls District Office BLM director for a final decision in the spring.

Man Charged with Battery for Tussle with Inmate

BY ALISON GENE SMITH
alismith@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • An inmate at the Twin Falls County Jail has been charged with battery after allegedly grabbing another inmate.

At about 12:15 p.m. on Sept. 11, deputies at the Twin Falls County Jail were gathering inmates into the jail classroom used for video arraignments.

According to the report, while inmate Joseph Cossette was waiting, he began talking with another inmate about how it cost his girlfriend $200 to get his vehicle out of the impound lot because of the other inmate. A deputy told the two to quit talking, but the two began again once they were seated in the classroom, the report states.

According to the report, the conversation escalated, with the other inmate saying Cossette was the reason he was in jail.

Cossette then allegedly jumped out of his desk and headed for the other inmate, the report states. The other inmate stood up and Cossette allegedly grabbed him, report states. According to the report, a deputy stepped in to separate the two and pushed them apart.

When the inmates were pushed apart, Cossette tripped over another desk and fell to the ground, the report states. Then, he allegedly stood up and went aggressively toward the other inmate again. According to the report, the deputy pulled out his Taser, activated the laser sight and placed it on Cossette's chest. Once Cossette saw the Taser pointed at him, he stopped, the report states.

After the commotion stopped, the deputies asked the other inmate if he was alright, but he did not reply, the report states.

Once the arraignments began, the report states, the deputies noticed the other inmate was bleeding from the back of his head. After talking to deputies about the injury, he told them he slipped in the shower earlier that day, the report states.

Cossette was charged with battery. He is already being held on $50,000 bond at the jail for robbery after he allegedly stole money from a woman and fractured her jaw.

Cossette was shot in July by a man who claimed self-defense after Cossette was allegedly pounding on the man's door, refusing to leave. No charges have been filed in that case.

Federal Regulator: Idaho Power Must Buy Wind Power

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho Power's long-term purchase agreement with wind farms requires the utility to buy electricity from the farms even when demand for power is low, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission said Thursday.

Idaho Power officials have contended that the Public Utilities Regulatory Policies Act, or PURPA, should allow the company to halt contractually required electricity purchases during periods of light load, such as at night in the spring and fall. The utility company said the requirement to buy from wind farms even during times of low demand forces it to back down other energy generators like coal-fired plants, and bringing the other systems back up when demand increases costs the utility more. Those costs are passed on to consumers, the company said.

But wind developers maintain that PURPA only allows utilities to limit wind farms' output during operational emergencies, and that Idaho Power is trying to sway public opinion by unfairly basing its cost arguments on historically low natural gas prices. Longer-term pricing models are the proper comparison, the wind farms argue.

Idaho Power spokesman Brad Bowlin said the company was examining FERC's order and evaluating options.

Steve Eisenberg, the managing director of RP Wind ID LLC, the managing partner of Idaho Wind Partners 1, said the wind farms were pleased with the decision.

"We applaud FERC's decision today, which upholds the sanctity of our qualified facility power purchase agreements with Idaho Power," Eisenberg said.

Idaho Power's curtailment plan first went to the state regulatory agency, the Idaho

Public Utilities Commission, for review. Commission staffers testified that limiting wind power during times of light load is allowable under commission rules and under precedent-setting decisions in similar cases. But wind farms, fearing that they'd get an unfavorable decision from the state regulator, appealed to the federal commission.

State regulators argued to FERC officers that the matter simply wasn't ripe for federal review because the state commission hadn't yet ruled.

Idaho Wind Partners 1, which has 11 subsidiary project companies in Idaho, told the federal commission that the Idaho Power plan would violate PURPA and expose the wind farms to immediate financial harm. Each of the farms has a 20-year agreement with Idaho Power that has already been approved by state regulators.

The federal regulatory commission found that PURPA doesn't allow a utility company to unilaterally curtail electricity purchases during times of light load.

Moreover, the commission emphasized, those purchases are part of long-term power purchase agreements, and when those agreements are created they reflect the costs that each party anticipates over the life of the contract in a variety of circumstances, including light loads. In other words, Idaho Power likely considered those costs — or at least should have — when it entered the agreements with the wind farms in the first place.

Peter Richardson, a renewable energy attorney in Boise, said FERC's decision was a major victory for Idaho's wind industry.

T.F. Schools to Host Tech Night

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • The Twin Falls School District and Discovery Education will host a community night next week to showcase technology being used in classrooms.

The event is scheduled for 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday at Canyon Ridge High School. Teachers, administrators and Discovery Education representatives will lead interactive sessions to demonstrate hands-on and digital resources used in Twin Falls classrooms.

The Idaho State Department of Education and Discovery Education announced a partnership in March to give every Idaho classroom access to digital content.

The partnership — funded by a grant from the J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Foundation — allows teachers and students to access Discovery Education streaming content.

Following the community night, there will be a one-day, intensive teacher training opportunity to learn more ways to integrate digital content into lesson plans.

Police: Student in Custody after Making 'Hit List'

HOMEDALE (AP) • A southwestern Idaho student is being held at a juvenile detention center in Canyon County after police say he created a "hit list" with the names of 15 people, threatening violence on school property.

Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller told the Idaho Press-Tribune the high school student arrested Wednesday is being held on at least 15 charges stemming from his alleged threats.

The student, who hasn't been identified by authorities, was suspended from Homedale High School last week. Police say they obtained information indicating the student possibly had some intention of carrying out his alleged threats.

of drunken driving the night of the crash and later charged with reckless driving. He received probation for both charges and was given a 180-day jail sentence, with all but 20 days suspended, for the reckless driving charge.

Austin's family filed a civil suit against Laughlin and the four passengers in his vehicle in June 2011 and Reinhardt's family filed in July 2011. The cases were later merged together. In the suit, the families ask for a total of $50,000 and claims the defendants were under the influence of alcohol and encouraged each other to pursue Reinhardt's vehicle.

In Laughlin's response to the suit, filed in August 2011, he denies all the allegations and states the injuries claimed were caused by the Reinhardt's negligence and Laughlin can't be held responsible.

Calls and an email to Laughlin's attorney, Kent Hawkins, were not returned by Thursday evening.

On Sept. 12, the families' suit against Laughlin was dropped, but still stands against the other plaintiffs.

Paula Austin, Devon Austin's mother, said Wednesday she doesn't plan to pursue the suit against the other defendants.

"This wasn't really about the money for us," Austin said.

Austin said she and Reinhardt's family wanted Laughlin and his passengers to be held accountable for the deaths and didn't feel the criminal system did that.

"We could see what path it was going," she said of the criminal charges against Laughlin. "We decided to go after Kade and these young men civilly."

If new evidence in the criminal case came up, Austin said she was told it could be opened again, but doubts it will happen.

Austin said the settlement in the civil case against Laughlin will be some money from Laughlin's car insurance company, but feels like she will never get justice.

"We understand the responsibility that our children had," she said. "But we all believe if they hadn't chased Ryan's car there wouldn't be an accident."

Twin Falls County Prosecutor Grant Loeb said Wednesday he's sure everything that could have been done by law enforcement or prosecutors was done.

"We believe we charged everybody who could be charged with everything they could be charged with," he said.

BSU

The pre-game fun was a kaleidoscope of color. One man wore a blue and orange Darth Vader helmet and Boise State cape. In another direction, four bare-chested men painted blue jogged through the crowd holding a BSU flag aloft.

Food ran the gamut: grapes, watermelon chunks, popcorn, cookies, cake. And, of course, lots of sausages on grills.

Debbie Williams, who moved from Boise to Twin Falls a year ago, was enjoying snacks with friends from Boise. She had season tickets last year, but can't attend all the games this year so she buys single-game tickets. Her allegiance to Boise State extended past the usual T-shirt to a watch band made of orange and blue beads.

She lamented the graduation of 17 starters from last year's team, but remained optimistic. "We'll do just fine," she said, taking a drink of bottled water.

The game was expected to be sold out, although a few people offered tickets for sale. In a comical scene, one man held four tickets above his head while another fan, 15 feet away and looking the other direction, held a sign that read, "Need tickets."

One salesman said his tickets were available for $65. That's less than the $100 or more that last-minute tickets fetched a year ago, Williams said.

Several Magic Valley fans spent pre-game hours at a hospitality booth sponsored by Alltech. They included 1963 Filer High School graduate Ralph Taylor, a former dairyman. He wore a Boise State cap and T-shirt, and had a longer attachment to the school than many other fans, having attended the former Boise Junior College.

Meanwhile, a Boise State fan wore a T-shirt that seemed to sum up the tailgater motto. "Come early, stay late, be loud," it read.

Character Witnesses Testify in Trial for Former Teacher Accused of Sex Crime

BY LAURIE WELCH
lwelch@magicvalley.com

BURLEY • A parade of character witnesses took the stand in Cassia County District Court Thursday to testify to the good character of former Oakley High School teacher Alvin Andrew, who is accused of sexual conduct with a 14-year-old student in a classroom closet in 2007.

During cross examination, Cassia County Deputy Prosecutor Doug Abenroth asked most of the character witnesses a variation on a series of questions that started with "Do you agree that sometimes good people make mistakes?"

Andrew is charged with two felony counts of lewd conduct with a child under 16 and one felony charge of sexual abuse of a child under 16.

The trial, in its fourth day, is expected to wrap up testimony today and the case will be handed over to the jury for deliberation.

The jury heard from about a dozen people, who were friends, neighbors, former students or colleagues. Private investigator Stuart Robinson also took the witness stand and said a newspaper article that the alleged victim described Andrew reading on the day of the incident was published on April 12, 2007, more than a month before the incident occurred.

just in time to be distributed to Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter's Medicaid expansion workgroup before it meets later this month. The 15-member workgroup has been tasked with evaluating the impact of expanding Medicaid and must submit their recommendations to the governor by Nov. 1.

According to the report, close to 111,500 additional Idahoans would qualify for Medicaid if the state expanded its eligibility. Close to 10,000 of those newly eligible would be from the Magic Valley, primarily from Twin Falls County.

Idaho's Medicaid federal-state partnership offers medical insurance to almost 235,000 low-income people. Close to 70 percent of those enrolled are children from low-income families but also covers people with disabilities, low-income women who are pregnant and low-income elderly.

Expanding Idaho's eligibility requirements would provide insurance coverage for low-income adults up to 138 percent below the federal poverty line. Currently, Idaho only allows adults — who are not disabled or elderly — to qualify for Medicaid if they have children and an income less than 20 percent of the poverty level. For a family of four, that would be close to $4,500 a year.

The report also showed that four state programs could shift as many as 47,000 individuals to be newly eligible for Medicaid. This includes 35,000 individuals receiving care from Community Health Centers, 6,000 individuals relying on the state's medical indigent services and 4,300 individuals receiving mental health services from the state.

Under the health care reform law, the federal government would pay 100 percent of the state's expansion costs for three years. By 2020, the federal government would reduce funding to 90 percent.

According to the report, Idaho doesn't face a deadline to notify the federal government when it will begin a Medicaid expansion. The state also has the option to opt out of the expansion at anytime without penalty.

Overall, the report urged Idaho leaders to wait to make a final decision until the federal government releases more guidelines on Medicaid expansion, which should be after the November election.

If Idaho does choose to expand, the report recommended implementing changes in 2014. By doing so, the state would have three years of full federal funding but also allow Idaho to opt out of the program by 2016.

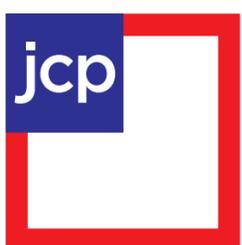

Idaho's Medicaid expansion workgroup will meet Sept. 27 in Boise. Live audio of the event will be available at www.idaho.gov/leglive.

U.S. Census: Idaho's Household Income Drops Again

BOISE (AP) • New U.S. Census estimates show that Idaho's median household income fell for the third year in a row in 2011.

The Idaho Department of Labor released a statement about the census data Thursday. The census estimates put Idaho's median household income at about $43,300. That's a nearly 9 percent drop from 2008.

Only eight other states have had three straight years of declining median household income, and only Nevada and Georgia recorded larger three-year declines than Idaho.

About 16.5 percent of Idaho residents were living in poverty last year, nearly one percent more than in 2010. There were about 78,000 Idaho households receiving food stamps in 2011.

"I know that I'm not going to get 100 percent of the vote and my campaign will focus on those people we think we can bring in to support me, but this is a campaign about helping people who need help. My campaign is about 100 percent in America."

Mitt Romney, to Univision, addressing secretly-taped comments he made last spring to donors that his "job is not to worry about" the 47 percent of Americans not earning enough to pay income taxes.

OUR VIEW

Censorship, Restraint or Simply Intimidated?

S ometime in October each of you will receive a state voter's guide paid for by $250,000 of your tax dollars and distributed through the Secretary of State's Office. The guide should be an accurate, informational explanation of statewide initiatives that will be on the Nov. 6 ballot. It won't be.

John Pfeifer
Publisher

Rather, it will be a collection of unedited pro and con arguments written and submitted by paid campaign strategists on each side. The Secretary of State's Office will do no fact-checking and according to Chief Deputy Secretary of State Tim Hurst, that's a good thing. "The problem that we get into," Hurst said, "is when we start editing them how far do you go?" Hurst went on to say that that there is a point in which fact-checking would become censorship.

With all due respect, Tim, that's nonsense. Censorship, by definition, involves some outside individual or some outside entity telling someone what to publish and what to suppress. Censorship cannot be self-imposed. In other words, the Secretary of State's Office cannot "censor" its own publication any more than the Times-News can "censor" our own content. We may at times exercise restraint — or simply lack the temerity or backbone required to print something — but that's not censorship.

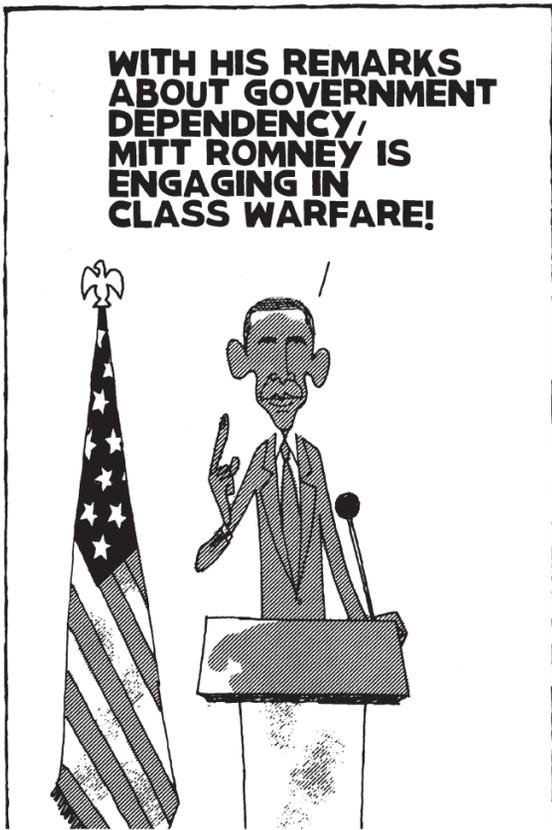

Now, if Hurst or Secretary of State Ben Ysura had argued that they don't have the time or manpower that would be required to fact-check the paid political literature distribution that the "Voter's Guide" has disintegrated into, that we could understand. But censorship? We don't buy it, and neither should you.

Between now and Election Day you will receive paid political literature from groups telling you that the state has fully funded the technology and laptop portion of the Students Come First law. You will receive conflicting information funded by political groups that maintain that no long-term funding exists in the state budget for technology and laptops. While confusing to voters, that's the nature of referendum designed to instigate or eliminate things that are now part of our state law.

However, when you have to endure the same conflicting information in a $250,000 "Voter's Guide" funded by your tax dollars, that's just plain ridiculous.

Censorship — real censorship — still exists in some countries throughout the world where the state dictates what gets published and what gets suppressed. Real censorship is not good. But it should not and cannot be confused with fact-checking. Contrary to what the Secretary of State's Office would have you believe, they're two different things.

When the Legislature convenes in January they'll once again be faced with funding decisions both large and small. Some programs and agencies will get more money; others less. Might we suggest a quarter-million-dollar cut to the Secretary of State's Office for publication of a so-called voter's guide as a great place to start?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Extended Bridge Closure Creating Hardship for Farming Community

The Idaho Transportation Department has a contract with Cannon Builders to repair bridge decks throughout the Magic Valley. A number of them have been closed, repaired and re-opened already.

My question is why has the 300 West structure over I-84 west of Jerome been closed to the public for going on three months? This has posed a terrible inconvenience not only to local residents but also the farming community as it is the only through route within two miles. It was torn up in June and there have been prolonged periods of time (two to three weeks) when absolutely no activity was seen.

What gives?

Republican Legislature Ignores Voices of Parents, Students, Educators

Democrats have come forward in the Magic Valley to offer a new direction for the state Legislature.

Each of the Democrats running for the Legislature in Districts 23, 24 and 25 oppose the Luna Laws. These candidates realize that more technology with fewer teachers was not the choice of local school boards but the only option available given the lack of adequate funding. Our Republican Legislature follows ideological leadership and ignores the voices of parents, students and educators.

We must vote no on Proposition 1, 2 and 3 and sweep out the Republican legislators who voted for those laws over the voices of the citizens of Idaho. These same legislators cut the Idaho tax rate for this year in a way that only the wealthiest Idahoans will notice and ensuring more cuts for next year. Time for them to go, along with the Luna Laws.

Passing On Advice For Stopping Growth of Cancer

Times-News readers, may I share something that may be helpful?

From a friend, Ruth

Dorsett, I learned how to stop the growth of cancers. May I share this with you? There is a powerful book, "World Without Cancer" by G. Edward Griffin.

This book explains how people can stop the growth of cancers. Basically, I take a vitamin B-17 capsule for breakfast each day, and I eat five or six bitter apricot seeds with breakfast. I eat plenty of salads and other natural foods and stay pretty much away from sugary foods. It is simple and healthy.

I am ever grateful that Ruth Hawkins Dorsett in Salt Lake City taught me of these things. She had cancer of the pancreas and overcame that cancer by following the program. She lived to age 96, dying in Utah in 2006.

Teachers

teachers through school principals.

Teachers have been patient, she said, and district administrators have tried to share updates as soon as possible.

"It's so new that we're all just trying to work through it," Pendergrass said.

In Kimberly, Superintendent Luke Schroeder said preliminary data will most likely change during the appeals process.

"I'm reluctant to get it out to people until we know it's set in stone," he said.

District officials have until Oct. 19 to review the data and submit appeals to the ISDE.

McGrath said the state doesn't know how many schools — or teachers — will receive merit pay. That's because school districts haven't yet submitted information about who met local measures.

What of the Election?

The future of the state's pay-for-performance plan hinges on the Nov. 6 election.

The three laws that make up the state's Students Come First reforms are up for a referendum vote. Merit pay will be Proposition 2 on ballots.

If the law is not repealed, a total of $38.8 million in payments are scheduled to go out Nov. 15 to school districts.

Then, money will be distributed to school employees over the next month.

But McGrath told the Times-News last month that if the law is repealed, the state won't have the authority to distribute the money.

Given the timing, the Idaho Secretary of State's Office disagrees with that interpretation, according to the Associated Press.

The results of the Nov. 6 election won't be certified by the state Board of Canvassers until Nov. 21, and the education laws will remain in effect until then regardless of the election outcome, Secretary of State Ben Ysursa told the Spokesman-Review.

That means the bonus money could still go out Nov. 15, even if voters reject the laws.

Teachers Split on Bonus Concern

Dave Gibson, president of the Twin Falls Education Association, said he has talked with quite a few teachers over the past few weeks.

Some are concerned about whether pay-for-performance money will be paid out.

Gibson — a music teacher at Morningside Elementary School — said some teachers feel they haven't been treated fairly.

Educators earned pay-for-performance shares based on work they did last year, he said.

And with Luna's department saying they can't release money until Nov. 15 — after the referendum election — Gibson said it feels like the "money is being held hostage."

"My feeling is if they got information out to districts, why can't they just release the money?" he said.

Meanwhile, Jolene Dockstader, president of the Jerome Education Association, said she doesn't think many educators are concerned about how much they'll receive through pay-for-performance. She said it would be nice to earn a bonus, but other factors still overshadow the program.

"No matter what the bonus is, it's still less than what we made three years ago," she said.

"It just seems like it's not that big of an impact on what we're doing."

Dockstader said other components of the Students Come First legislation — such as technology changes and limited negotiations — are more of a concern.

Timeline

By the time teachers are paid, the merit-pay provision of Students Come First will have been nearly two years in the making. Here is how those events likely looked to a second-grade teacher in Twin Falls:

Spring 2011: State lawmakers pass public schools chief Tom Luna's Students Come First education reforms. Among the changes: a merit pay program for teachers and school administrators.

Fall 2011: School districts craft plans on how educators will earn merit pay. In Twin Falls, second-grade teachers' bonuses are based on growth in student test scores on the Idaho Reading Indicator.

August-September 2011: The baseline's set: Idaho students, including in Twin Falls, take the IRI.

December 2012: The Twin Falls School District's revised merit-pay plan is approved by the state, allowing administrators to also qualify for bonuses.

April-May 2012: Crunch time: The IRI is given again statewide, including to Twin Falls students. The results will determine the second-grade teacher's eligibility.

Sept. 1, 2012: Twin Falls school officials notify the state they intend to keep the same merit-pay plan for the 2012-13 school year.

Sept. 19, 2012: The state gives Twin Falls district administrators information on which teachers qualified for merit pay in 2011-12. Back in the second-grade classroom, the teacher won't learn the results until mid-November.

Nov. 6, 2012: Election Day. Students Come First is up for a vote, and if the public rejects the merit-pay law, state officials say no one will receive bonuses — a statement contested by opponents.

Nov. 15-Dec. 15, 2012: Teachers who qualify will receive merit pay through their school district.

Caldwell Ticket Wins $1M in Powerball Drawing

BOISE (AP) • Idaho Lottery officials say someone who purchased a Powerball ticket in Caldwell won $1 million in Wednesday's lottery drawing.

The ticket matched all five of the first numbers, but not the Powerball. The winner has 180 days to claim the prize.

Officials say this is the fifth time in 13 weeks that a Powerball ticket sold in Idaho has won at least $1 million.

Idaho's winning streak began on June 20 when a ticket sold in Meridian won $1 million. The winner has still not claimed the prize. Since then, Idaho has had three $1 million winners and one $2 million winning Powerball ticket.

What's In Store for 2013?

Idaho public schools chief Tom Luna's budget request for the next fiscal year includes $61 million for pay for performance.

The planned expansion of the program would allow classified school employees — such as teacher's aides, school secretaries, custodians and food service workers — to earn merit pay.

"We want all school staff to participate in bonuses," ISE spokeswoman Melissa McGrath said, adding that all those employees play a critical role in schools.

She said food service employees, for instance, focus on child nutrition. That impacts how students perform in the classroom.

Employees would be eligible for bonuses based on work during the 2013-14 school year. Local school districts will set the goals for different groups of employees.

Districts will also decide which employees will be eligible for bonuses for working in hard-to-fill positions or taking on a leadership role.

Homecoming Bonfires

ED GLAZAR • FOR THE TIMES-NEWS

Hundreds of Twin Falls High School students celebrate Homecoming around a bonfire Thursday at Harmon Park in Twin Falls. A wooden grizzly bear dressed in a t-shirt scrawled with the name of a rival school burned in the blaze. Student Jaxon Pearl, chair of the event, explained, "We play Skyline this week...so we're gonna burn that bear."

Pot Found in Blood of Las Vegas Bus Stop Crash Driver

BY KEN RITTER
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS • Marijuana and less than the legal limit of alcohol was found in the blood of a 23-year-old man accused of driving under the influence in a Las Vegas bus stop crash that killed four people and injured him and seven others last week, according to court documents.

Prosecutor Brian Rutledge said Thursday the evidence shows Gary Lee Hosey Jr. was impaired "two different ways" behind the wheel of a speeding car that demolished the bus stop crowded with commuters a few minutes before sunrise Sept. 13. "Alcohol and marijuana at the same time greatly increases the level of impairment," Rutledge said.

At least one person remains hospitalized in serious condition after the crash on a busy street a couple of miles west of the Las Vegas Strip.

Hosey's lawyers, Kristina Wildeveld and Dayvid Figler, noted a police report of the test results showed Hosey's blood-alcohol level was 0.063 percent about two hours after the crash and 0.054 percent three hours after the crash. The legal limit in Nevada is 0.08 percent. The attorneys said Thursday they intend to challenge the blood test procedure and results, along with the prosecutor's claim that Hosey was impaired two ways.

"Based on our investigation to date and the review of the blood tests, alcohol and/or alcohol and marijuana were not a significant factor in the cause of this accident," Figler said.

A witness told police she thought the 2001 Chevrolet Monte Carlo was speeding at more than 100 mph when it bottomed out crossing a dip at an intersection.

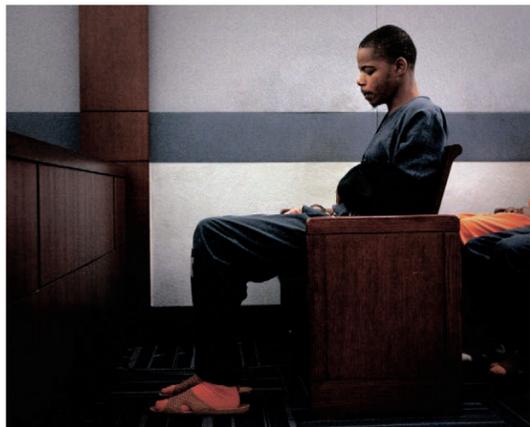

The car belonged to Hosey's girlfriend. Hosey told police he was hurrying home from a bar with three friends in the car because she needed the car to get to work. He said he remembered the vehicle becoming airborne and veering out of control. He said he didn't remember hitting the bus shelter or pedestrians.

A police report shows the investigator assigned to the case first went to the trauma center at University Medical Center in Las Vegas and drew blood from another person injured in the crash. The investigator then found Hosey and oversaw the blood draw at Sunrise Hospital & Medical Center, where Hosey was being treated for rib and shoulder injuries.

Police have variously reported that Hosey had three or four passengers in the car.

"There was a lot of confusion at the scene about who was where," Officer Laura Meltzer, a Las Vegas police spokeswoman, said Thursday. Rutledge declined to discuss the confusion that led to police drawing blood from the wrong person.

Hosey is due for arraignment Friday before a judge who on Monday gave the Clark County district attorney's office several extra days to file charges. Figler has challenged that decision, and is asking Las Vegas Justice of the Peace Conrad Hafen to remove himself from the case.

Prosecutors planned to charge Hosey with four counts of driving under the influence causing death and six counts of DUI causing significant injury, Rutledge said. If convicted, Hosey could face more than 80 years in state prison and tens of thousands of dollars in fines.

Police reported conducting field sobriety and blood-alcohol breath tests at the scene, and Rutledge said prosecutors intend to show Hosey's blood-alcohol percentage was over the legal limit at the time of the crash.

Rutledge said the 2.8 nanograms per milliliter of marijuana detected in Hosey's blood about two hours after the crash was 40 percent above the state legal limit of 2 nanograms.

The prosecutor said the 56 nanograms per milliliter of THC carboxylic acid, a marijuana metabolite, found in Hosey's blood was more than 11 times the legal limit of 5 nanograms per milliliter.

The metabolite test measures the residual level of marijuana chemical components in the blood as the drug is processed by the body and excreted.

Figler called it irresponsible to use a percentage to describe marijuana intoxication in the same way as a blood-alcohol level. He said describing the level of marijuana metabolite in a person's blood as a factor of 11 didn't necessarily equate with intoxication.

Start Saving Now for College

BY DAVE WILKINS
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • It's never too early to start saving for college.

That was the message for parents and students who attended a College for Kids Night Tuesday at Canyon Ridge High School in Twin Falls.

State officials, appearing via interactive video hookup from Renaissance High School in Meridian, promoted Idaho's 529 college savings program known as IDeal.

With in-state tuition and fees averaging $8,244 at four-year public universities ($28,500 at private institutions), it's more important than ever to start saving early, officials said.

"College isn't free, and costs are going up every year," state Treasurer Ron Crane said.

Six people showed up for the event. The low turnout made for great odds of winning a $529 scholarship to open a college savings account. Two were given away.

Derek and Christi Benson of Kimberly snagged one of the scholarships.

"It's a good start," Derek Benson said after the meeting.

It will be years before the Bensons' two daughters, now 4 years old and 19 months, need the money for college.

The couple plans to open a second 529 account and begin making regular contributions to both accounts.

"The cost is so high, you have to do something," Christi Benson said.

State officials hope that more parents will do exactly like the Bensons. Saving now can help ease post-college debt, they said.

The average loan debt for students who graduate with a bachelor's degree from a four-year public university is now $23,839.

Tax-advantaged college savings plans were first authorized in 1996 under Section 529 in the Internal Revenue Code.

They offer tax advantages similar to those found in retirement plans. Earnings grow tax-deferred, and withdrawals used for qualified educational expenses are tax-free. In addition, Idaho enrollees can receive a state income tax deduction of up to $4,000 ($8,000 if married, filing jointly).

"It's a good deal for the citizens of Idaho," Crane said. "We have a generous tax break."

Plan assets can be used at eligible colleges, universities and vocational schools anywhere in the country, not just in Idaho. The only catch is that the money must be used for qualified educational expenses such as tuition, fees, books and room-and-board.

What happens if your child decides not to go to college?

"Simply change your beneficiary," Crane advised.

College savings plans work much like a 401(k) or IRA by investing contributions in mutual funds or similar investments.

IDeal account owners can choose from 10 different investment options ranging from conservative to aggressive.

Accounts can be opened with as little as $25 ($15 with the payroll deduction option).

Anyone can open a 529 account, including parents, grandparents, relatives and friends. Multiple account owners can open accounts for the same beneficiary.

For more information about the Idaho college savings program, call 866-433-2533 or visit www.id-saves.org to get an enrollment kit.

Raids Shut Down Big Medical Marijuana Suppliers

BY JONATHAN J. COOPER
Associated Press

SALEM, Ore. • Hundreds of medical marijuana cardholders in eastern and southern Oregon will have to find a new way to get their pot after authorities raided two of the state's best-known suppliers and shut them down.

Federal agents raided the High Hopes Farm in Jackson County this week, where James Bowman has said he grew marijuana for 200 medical marijuana cardholders. State authorities last week shut down 45th Parallel, a marijuana cooperative in Ontario that supplies the drug to people marijuana cards.

"James is a great guy," said Casey Moore, a medical marijuana cardholder who has gotten his supply from Bowman for seven years. "He cared about his patients more than anyone I've ever seen."

Moore, who was paralyzed in a diving accident and uses marijuana to help with pain and muscle spasms, said he's unsure where he'll get his supply for the next year. He has enough marijuana left to last three weeks to a month, he said.

Bowman is widely considered the most prolific and outspoken grower in Oregon, but large grow sites like his have proliferated under a quirk in Oregon's medical marijuana law. Instead of getting marijuana from dispensaries like they do in most other medical marijuana states, patients in Oregon must grow it themselves or designate another person to do it for them.

Growers can have up to six mature plants per patient. Bowman could not be reached Thursday. He told The Associated Press in April that he planned to plant about 400 plants this year for 200 patients. That's just two plants per patient instead of the six he's allowed, but enough to give each patient the 1.5 pounds they're allowed by law. He said he wants to minimize the risk of coming under scrutiny by authorities wondering what he does with the excess.

"There are not a lot of ways for people to do this completely legal, so if they are not willing to tread in that gray area, this is not for them," Bowman said in April.

He has not been charged with a crime. The U.S. Attorney's Office in Portland declined to comment on the raid at his farm. Federal law enforcement officials have said they're not interested in going after people who are in compliance with state medical marijuana laws but will prosecute people using those laws as cover for illegal drug trafficking.

Southern Oregon and Northern California form a prime region for marijuana growing.

In Eastern Oregon, authorities last week raided and shut down on Ontario marijuana cooperative, which supplied the drug to medical marijuana patients.

Grid Locks: Week 4

BY DAVID BASHORE AND RYAN HOWE
dbashore@magicvalley.com
rhowe@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Tonight marks the midway point in the regular season. After tonight, teams will start to know what they are.

We think we've got an idea, but it'll take a couple of more weeks before things start to finally crystallize.

Tonight marks an interesting point in the schedule. Teams are in varying positions of "under the gun" in their respective conferences.

Carey needs to avoid defeat the rest of the way to retain hopes of making the playoffs. Canyon Ridge and Burley need to fend off a second Great Basin Conference loss this early in the campaign.

Glenns Ferry and Oakley get together, both looking for their first win. Somebody has to get it tonight.

This week's Grid Locks:

BURLEY (2-1) AT CANYON RIDGE (0-3)
The Riverhawks are yet to score a touchdown, while Burley's rebuild seems to be coming along just fine. The Bobcats even put a scare into reigning conference champ Minico last week. Burley should be prepared for Canyon Ridge's double wing, having run that same offense the previous two years. The biggest missing piece of Burley's puzzle remains its own running game. Figure that out, and the Bobcats will be tough to beat. With Canyon Ridge's homecoming adrenaline, anything could happen.
Burley 21, Canyon Ridge 20

CASTLEFORD (3-1) AT SHO-BAN (0-2)
A blowout loss to defending 1A Division I state champ Hagerman in Game 2 and the rest of the state seems to have written off Castleford, which inexplicably dropped out of the media poll. Never mind that the Wolves have outscored their other three opponents 130-32 and could potentially make a solid 1A-II playoff run behind gifted running back Ty Zimmers. Castleford will make a quick trip to Sho-Ban and mercifully return early to prepare for its big showdown next week with Lighthouse Christian.

Castleford 52, Sho-Ban 6

CLARK COUNTY (2-1) AT DIETRICH (4-0)
After handling regional rival Carey last week, the Blue Devils are flying high as the unanimous No. 1 team in the 1A-II media poll. The Blue Devils will need to be cautious to avoid a letdown, but we don't think Clark County is the team capable of springing that.
Dietrich 48, Clark County 12

DECLO (3-0) AT FILER (0-3)
One more tune-up before both teams begin conference play. Declo showed in the first half last week against Buhl that it's not invincible. Filer is yet to put together all four quarters. Last year at Declo, Filer rallied but fell short 28-20, so expect the Wildcats to keep clawing all night.
Declo 29, Filer 6

GLENN'S FERRY (0-4) AT OAKLEY (0-3)
Not only is Oakley winless, it is yet to score a point. Glenns Ferry hasn't been much more effective, averaging just 10 points per game. The teams have one common opponent in Marsing, which shut out both teams — the Hornets 25-0 and the Pilots 29-0. It's Oakley's homecoming. Glenns Ferry is playing on raw emotion for head coach Rob Spriggs, who is battling health issues.
Glenns Ferry 21, Oakley 20

GOODING (4-0) AT BUHL (0-3)
This game is curious. Gooding, the spread team, has shown great prowess running the football this season. Buhl, which typically subscribes to the "three things happen when you pass and two of them are bad" mantra, has shown signs of an explosive aerial offense. Throw everything you think you know out the window for this one, but Gooding still should have enough in the tank.
Gooding 34, Buhl 20

Gooding, Buhl Renew SCIC Battle

BY DAVID BASHORE
dbashore@magicvalley.com

BUHL • Last Friday, Buhl put a great first half together and put Declo on its heels for the first time all season.

They play two halves in football, and the second was a different story.

That needs to be a lesson learned tonight if the Indians are going to have a chance against Gooding, which comes to town as the teams open Sawtooth Central Idaho Conference play.

"We played a great first half and then just didn't do very many good things offensively in the third quarter. Guys got tired, lost their legs and we were in trouble," said Buhl coach Stacy Wilson. "We've put together two or three good quarters at times this season. Now we've got to get four."

The SCIC is four teams deep, but based on early-season play from Kimberly and Filer, the winner in Buhl tonight should have the upper hand in the race for the conference championship even though there will be two games left to play.

It could be an interesting night at Bowers Field, as both teams are bucking their recent reputations.

Gooding, which lines up primarily in a shotgun/pistol formation with a spread offense, has a big offensive line and has made significant headway rushing the football this season. So much so, in fact, that starting running back Kyle Rison, who suffered

BSU EDGES BYU IN 7-6 SLUGFEST

BY STEVE KADEL

BOISE • Boise State survived a late BYU threat Thursday night for a 7-6 nonconference football victory before a Bronco Stadium-record crowd of 36,864 and a national television audience.

Five Brigham Young turnovers in the first three quarters helped Boise State improve to 2-1 for the season. Crisp tackling kept BYU bottled up most of the night as the Cougars (2-2) lost their second game in a row.

Trailing 7-0 with 8 minutes left in the game, BYU rallied to reach the Bronco 3 yard line with 4:10 remaining, and backup quarterback Taysom Hill ran for a touchdown to culminate an 11-play, 96-yard drive. The Cougars tried for a two-point conversion, but Hill's pass was batted down by Boise State's J.C. Percy.

Boise State ran out the clock to preserve the win.

The Broncos scored the game's first points just 90 seconds into the second half when defensive lineman Mike Atkinson picked off Riley Nelson's pass and rumbled 36 yards for a touchdown. The Broncos converted the kick for a 7-0 lead. Hill replaced Nelson for the remainder of the game on the next possession.

Boise State had another golden opportunity later in the quarter when it killed a fourth-down punt at the BYU 1. The Cougars' Michael Alisa fumbled on the next play and the Broncos' Ricky Tjong-a-Tjoe recovered at the 1.

However, Boise State quarterback Joe Southwick was stopped short on a keeper on fourth-and-goal from inside the 1.

With 5:09 left before halftime, Nelson fumbled and Demarcus Lawrence recovered for Boise State at the Cougar 49. Southwick hit Kirby Moore with a pass for a first down on the BYU 23. But Southwick was sacked — the first of

High Marks For New XC Event at Niagara Springs

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

WENDELL • Last spring, because of coaching turnover at Buhl and Declo, Wendell coach Dave Shepherd was tasked with organizing the first meet in school history.

Forgoing the modesty of holding the meet at a traditional location like a grassy golf course, Shepherd went all in by going all the way to the bottom of the Snake River Canyon — the spectacular Niagara Springs.

"We were looking all over our campus and nothing was good," Shepherd said. "We came down here for bird watching and thought it would be a great place for a meet."

And for a first time event, things went well.

Burley won the boys race with three of the top five finishers, including Ethan Judd (second, 17:51), Braylan Bean (third, 18:40), and Jade Mendenhall (fourth, 18:40). Kimberley finished second, with Gooding third and Wendell fourth.

Gooding's Eliseo Garcia finished first (17:34), while Kimberley's Jordan Kress finished fourth (18:43).

Garcia finished second last year in the 2A District IV meet, but will face tougher competition as his program moves up to 3A this season. The sophomore finished roughly 30 seconds off his best time, but was coming off a calf injury. He also fell down during the meet.

"I didn't really know what happened," Garcia said as a teammate joked that the slip actually improved his time. "I liked the course though. It's really nice. I like the views. It's nice and shady. Not too hilly and not too flat."

Declo, with new coach Brittany Webb, won the girls meet with Abby Treadaway finishing third (22:36) and Alyssa Koyle fifth (23:20). Like their coach, Treadaway and Koyle, transfers from Minnesota and Burley, respectively, are new to the team.

"We only have 14 runners but I think we can get the ball rolling with this program," Webb said. "It's about quality, not quantity."

Individually for the girls, Gooding had three of the top four finishers, with Rachel Youren first (21:06), Ashley Bullers second (22:18) and Brittany Russell fourth (23:14), giving their team a second place finish.

Despite winning the event, Gooding's Youren, who won districts and state last year, was left unsatisfied.

"I don't feel like I went hard enough," she said.

Buhl lost seven seniors from last season, but has a promising future under new coach McKay Lundgren and a strong middle school class.

"Next year is where we will do really well," Lundgren said.

Lundgren, like many others coaches and athletes, surveyed on the quality of the course, came away impressed with the organization and site.

"It wasn't an overly-friendly spectator course," Lundgren said "But I think it's wonderful that we can use a state

BY DAVID BASHORE

TWIN FALLS • This week of practice has been all about the College of Southern Idaho volleyball team hitting another level.

Keani Passi and Eseta Maka got there Thursday, and brought the rest of the Golden Eagles along for the ride.

Passi had 14 kills and Maka added nine kills and five block assists as fourth-ranked CSI shook off a slow start to beat No. 16 Snow College in straight sets, opening the Scenic West Athletic Conference season with a 25-22, 25-11, 25-22 victory after falling behind 8-1 in the early stages.

"We just had a really slow start, and we knew we had to pick it up a level. We really didn't want this (level of play) to drag along," said Passi, who had eight kills to three attack errors in the final two sets, switching to a power-only game after starting with six kills to four errors with a less forceful game.

"I'm more of a go-hard kind of girl, and I swing hard, block hard. It worked for me."

Maka, a New Zealand-born transfer from San Diego State University, took some time to adjust to life in Idaho after arriving on

HANSEN (1-2) AT RAFT RIVER (1-3)

Finally, Raft River has a home game. The Trojans were road warriors for the first four weeks, coming away with just one win. Two of the three games it lost, though, Raft River could have just as easily won. Hansen hopes to bounce back from a beat-down at Butte County and keep its playoff hopes alive.

Wood River's power running game ran into a brick wall against Gooding last week. Kimberly's definitely not Gooding.

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN (3-1) AT NORTH GEM (1-2)

This is not the same North Gem team that came to Twin Falls and beat the Lions last season. Of course, it's not the same Lighthouse Christian team either. One team's gotten considerably better, the other has gone in the exact opposite direction.

Lighthouse Christian 52, North Gem 24

MACKAY (2-2) AT CAREY (1-2)

Carey's behind the 8-ball. Lose, and it's likely curtains for the Panthers' seven-season playoff streak. Mackay's improved, but we can't see Carey losing two in a row.

MINICO (2-1) AT IDAHO FALLS (0-4)

Idaho Falls is a struggling 5A program that has given up 57 points per game this season. Minico's offense typically has no trouble racking up yardage and putting points on the scoreboard, so the Spartans could really fill up the stat sheet.

RIMROCK (0-4) AT MURTAUGH (1-2)

Rimrock posed a bad matchup for Dietrich earlier this year but has been blown out by a combined 102-6 the last two weeks, albeit by Castleford and Hagerman. Murtaugh beat a lowly Richfield team but has been demolished in its other two games 94-0. We foresee lots of points in this one, but it could just as easily be 8-6.

SKYLINE (1-3) AT TWIN FALLS (1-2)

A lot depends on Bruin quarterback Thomas Corr's left ankle. It would be smart to give him another week to get ready for Jerome, but Skyline has shown greater susceptibility to the pass than the run. It's homecoming, and that should be enough to get the Bruins over the top. But only just. Placekicker Ben Worst might make the difference.

VALLEY (1-2) AT WENDELL (1-2)

Canyon Conference play begins tonight, and this game is huge, as both Valley and Wendell hope to be in the running for a 2A playoff spot. Both teams earned wins against 3A competition, as Valley beat Kimberly last week 22-13 and Wendell edged Filer two weeks ago, 21-20.

hamstring and ankle injuries in the season opener against Oakley but should return tonight, is expected to move to a slot receiver position because Torin Brunson and Josh Finley have been so good.

Buhl, which in normal seasons almost has an aversion to passing the football, has been throwing it around air-raid style with promising results. The Kade Crossland-to-Devon Privott combination has been particularly fruitful.

Buhl might have trouble running the ball this week anyway — Gooding gave up just 21 rushing yards to Wood River's power ground game last week.

"It's all personnel-related.

Still, both teams are confident enough in their knowledge of the other to zone in more on what they're doing well and not doing well, rather than changing things around to combat what the other team is planning to do.

Knowing what to expect allows for an opportunity to keep pressing each team onward to what they hope are even greater things down the road.

"We definitely don't take Buhl for granted. What we saw on film, they're still Buhl. They still tackle really well, they're still very physical and they're coached extremely well. There's no looking past them," Gooding coach Cameron Andersen said. "We're playing good football, but we feel we can do better things. Let's just make ourselves better, and hopefully if we can maximize our potential, it'll be good things on the football field."

the season for Boise State — on the next play, pushing the Broncos back to BYU's 28.

Boise State got to the 20 yard line a few plays later, but faced a fourth and seven. Southwick threw an incomplete pass to kill the drive.

Earlier in the second quarter, a 35-yard run by Harper took Boise State to BYU's 45-yard line. However, the drive stalled and coach Chris Petersen shunned a field goal attempt from the 30. The ensuing pass was incomplete on fourth-and-five.

Boise State tried a trick play with 2 minutes left in the first quarter, calling a fake punt on fourth-and-1 from its own 22 yard line. Percy took the snap and was stuffed by the Cougar defense, turning the ball over.

BYU was successful on a fourth-and-one on a quarterback keeper by Hill. After BYU reached the Bronco 2 yard line, an illegal block by BYU moved the ball back to the 17. Nelson tossed an interception to Jamar Taylor on the next play and the Broncos took over on their own 8.

Boise State had a chance to take the lead midway through the first quarter when they moved to BYU's 33-yard line with a 17-yard pass by Southwick, a 10-yard run by Harper and a pass interference call on the Cougars. However, Mike Frisina's field goal attempt sailed wide right.

Boise State outgunned BYU 155 to 68 in total yards during the first half. The Broncos led in passing yardage, 78-19, at halftime.

Harper gained 77 yards on 14 first-half carries and Southwick was 10 of 16 passing.

It was just the third game between the teams. Boise State won in Provo, Utah, in 2003 and again in Boise a year later.

campus after practice had already started, due to visa issues.

Once she found her feet, her season took off, and she's come into her own after fellow middle blocker Kaylee Holmstead went down with a finger injury.

Maka had four error-free kills and anchored three of CSI's four blocks in the second set, during which the Golden Eagles (16-1) made a good Badger team look pedestrian.

"That second set was scary," Maka said, referring to the level of play CSI attained in that stretch. "Once they started tipping we knew we had done our jobs, because they expected us to block it if they swung (hard).

We could tell they were intimidated."

The Golden Eagles cleared the first hurdle in what could be a great opportunity. Seventh-ranked Salt Lake Community College comes to town on Saturday afternoon, and after that current No. 1 North Idaho visits next Friday.

Win all three, and CSI will be positioned well to try and steal at least one on the road later.

But Maka admitted winning all three won't happen if the team starts like it did on Thursday.

"We saw that we could come back tonight, but Salt Lake is going to take every opportunity we give them," Maka said. "We played average (in stretches) tonight, and we need to be great all the time against them."

goes it was an awesome job for a first time."

With the first meet experience under his belt, Shepherd hopes to refine the meet, which could eventually end up being a premier event.

"There are always kinks to work out at first meet," Shepherd said. "We got help from a lot of schools that chipped in and there are some logistics issues still to deal with here. But it's promising."

OBITUARIES

Werner 'Bill' Graeper

Nov. 5, 1927-Sept. 17, 2012

JEROME • Werner "Bill" Graeper, 84, of Jerome, passed away Monday, Sept. 17, 2012, at his home with his family by his side.

Bill was born Nov. 5, 1927, in Kenora, Ontario, Canada, the son of Werner and Bobbette Graeper. His family maintained a nursery owned by the Canadian Pacific Railroad, which provided flowers for the railroad stations across Canada. At a very young age, Bill began his lifelong career as a brick mason and spent the winter months as a hunting and fishing guide in Southeastern Ontario.

Bill married Clara Litschel on Feb. 18, 1952. Their daughter, Billie, was born four years later. In 1964, the family moved to Oxnard, Calif., where they enjoyed walks on the beach and sightseeing. Summer holidays were spent visiting family in Canada. Bill was also a master craftsman. His love for hunting, fishing and the great outdoors inspired him to build boats, cedar strip canoes, gun stocks and waterfowl carvings. There was never a piece of wood that he could not use to create unique and beautiful pieces of art. His 52 years of marriage ended when Clara passed in 2004.

He then spent his remaining years in the loving company of Gwen Swann. They enjoyed family get-togethers, camping and traveling. She has been a true blessing to Bill and his family.

Bill is survived by: his daughter, Billie (Richard) Holman of Wendell; granddaughter, Whitney (Matthew) Holman-Ginder of Twin Falls; twin sister, Anne (Frank) Johnson of Chase, BC, Canada; brother, Roy (Betty) Graeper of Salmo, BC, Canada; and nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents, Werner and Bobbette; loving wife, Clara; and grandson, William (Willy) Holman.

Although we will miss him, I believe he is out on the lake, fishing with his father and grandson, tending beautiful rose gardens with his wife and mother, and creating majestic masterpieces.

And as my dad would always say, "bye bye for now," with love, Billie.

No funeral service will be held at Bill's request. Arrangements and cremation are under the care and direction of Demaray Funeral Service, Wendell Chapel.

Cottage Grove Clinic to Fill Dental Needs for Kids

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore. (AP) • Back in the fall of 2011, Cottage Grove dentist Park McClung took a volunteer trip to Haiti with Snell Fontus, a surgeon friend from Eugene. For a week, he lent his dental expertise to residents of that foreign land, thousands of miles from Oregon.

Rewarding as it may have been, McClung came to a haunting realization when he returned home: Many of the dental issues he saw in Haiti were also rampant among children in and around Cottage Grove — and there were no aid missions to help address the need.

"We've got to go home and take care of this," he remembers thinking.

South Lane School District elementary school nurse Staci Chambers happened to be thinking the same thing, and almost a year later she, McClung and a dedicated coalition of community members have taken a great step in solving the problem.

Earlier this week, the new South Lane Children's Dental Clinic had its official open house. And, as soon as next week, the clinic — located in a former classroom on Lane Community College's Cottage Grove campus — will be open one day every week during the school year for South Lane district children who are either uninsured or on the Oregon Health Plan.

"My wife and I have been seeing kids from the (South Lane) school district for 18 years," McClung said. "We have tried so hard on our own and we just couldn't do it. So now that we've got everybody together, and have an actual clinic that's set up and geared to do this, it's going to be the best."

The converted LCC classroom accommodates three dental chairs, and McClung estimates that each week's dentist will be able to see around six to eight patients for specific procedures each day the clinic is open. In addition, about a dozen more children will be seen each week for routine cleaning.

Further down the line, those numbers should increase as LCC dental hygiene students arrive to lend their services to the clinic.

Tim Rochholz, the South Lane district's human resources director and head of health services, said there's been a noticeable downward trend in school attendance over the last couple of years. Further investigation of the issue shed a bright light on one of the primary culprits.

"We have a ton of kids who come to school with significant decay and abscess, and man, it makes it hard for those kids to learn," said South Lane Superintendent Krista Parent.

It's the exact type of relief that McClung and the five other local dentists he recruited hope to provide on a much larger scale at the new clinic. And, as McClung and Rochholz took pains to acknowledge, none of it would have been possible without the support of the Oregon Community Foundation and local volunteer Frank Simpson.

Charlie Reece Shepherd

June 29, 1930-Sept. 18, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Charlie Reece Shepherd, 82, of Twin Falls, passed away Tuesday, Sept. 18, 2012, at his home.

He was born June 29, 1930, in Tazewell, Va., to William F. Shepherd and Florence Stroud Shepherd. Within two years, the family moved west to Hollister, Idaho, at the convincing of relatives who had reestablished there. He was raised and attended schools in Hollister. In his senior year of high school, he met Barbara Whitney and they were later married Aug. 25, 1949, in Winnemucca, Nev. Together, they had five children.

Charlie was a truck driver before becoming a custom farmer. In the earlier 1970s, he and Barbara opened Shepherd's Lounge and Truck Stop in Hollister, and later Shepherd's Lounge and Steak House in Buhl, Idaho. They operated the lounges until retirement, after which he drove truck for a short time.

Barbara and Charlie loved to travel and visit ghost towns off the beaten path throughout Nevada. These provided the perfect setting for his love of metal detecting, and the old towns provided great treasures for them to find. He also loved to fish, watch sports (especially football), and garden. His greatest pastime of all was being around his children and grandchildren.

Charlie is preceded in death by all his siblings, Joe Shepherd, Nora Bell, Dick Shepherd, Vi Mancil and Della Whitney.

He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Barbara, and their children, Kelly (Vicki) Shepherd of Hollister, Grant Shepherd of Washington, Rebecca (Gene) Jacobsen and Craig (Madlyn) Shepherd of Twin Falls, and Carol (James) Ruhter of Mountain Home, Idaho. He leaves behind 17 grandchildren, and 29 great-grandchildren.

The family would like to thank Dr Dan Preucil and Hospice Visions Inc. for the care he received which allowed him to stay at his home as he desired. A special thank you is extended to his granddaughters, Sarah LuVisi and Emily Shepherd, who tenderly cared for him in the last chapter of his life.

The family is holding a gathering for friends at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 22, at the Dwelling Place, 835 Blue Lakes Blvd. S. in Twin Falls. Cremation is under the direction of Lance Cox and the staff at White Mortuary "Chapel by the Park." Friends may leave messages for the family by visiting www.whitemortuary.com.

Salem Man Carves Second Career Out of Tree Stumps

SALEM, Ore. (AP) • On the final Thursday of August, David Hillesland and his yellow Labrador retriever Loki rolled up the gravel driveway of a rural West Salem home to put finishing touches on a job that's been a year and a half in the making.

It's a nice area with nice homes; a living environs consistent with the clientele Hillesland envisioned serving 10 years ago when he studied finance and initially plied a banking trade, selling insurance and investments.

The job ahead of him on this day though requires sharpened chainsaws and chisels, along with a keen eye; they are the tools of sculptors, not bankers. For the past three years, Hillesland has carved out a new career, literally, having sculpted about 50 tree stumps into works of art. The work before him stands firm and jets forth beneath a gently warming, clear-blue sky. "In school, I thought art was useless," said Hillesland, 31, who grew up in West Salem, attended Walker Middle School, Willamette Christian Academy and Portland Community College. "I studied finance and wore the suit and tie. I thought I wanted the kind of job where you get paid well."

Nearly a decade ago, he became licensed to trade and worked five years with investments and insurance, endeavors which in hindsight he thinks precluded living a life. But Hillesland did endure two life-altering situations: a fall down a 30-foot staircase that broke his neck and laid him up; and an economic downturn in 2008 that staggered his company, which laid him off. Between his recuperation and the quest for an occupation, wood carving came to him, in an almost ineffable manner, and he absorbed it. "People ask me all the time how I started wood carving," he said with an almost bewildered expression as he scratched a fine-tuning file over a Chinook salmon near the statue's base. "I say I don't know. I didn't really pick it; it picked me."

Within months after leaving his finance, he apprenticed with Toby Johnson of Aurora, a seasoned wood-working artist, who has among his pieces the statue on Monmouth Avenue and Third Street in Independence. The work, adjacent to a church, is carved from a towering redwood, and is an iconic statue of Jesus Christ among children.

Under Johnson's tutelage, Hillesland progressed quickly. Within months, he was released out on his own, with Johnson's blessing, and he's been carving ever since for his business called Oregon Chainsaw Sculptures. His work can be seen primarily around the Mid-Valley in Monmouth, Sheridan and Dallas.

It's also his duty and job as a breadwinner in his family of four: wife Heather and toddling daughters, Hannah and infant Lydia. "It was my dream to build a business, family and pleasure within the same thing," he said. "If we're doing that, then we are rich."

Space Shuttle Endeavour mounted on NASA's Shuttle Carrier Aircraft (SCA) lands at Edwards Air Force Base, California, Thursday.

Endeavour Salutes Giffords en route to California

BY ALICIA CHANG and PAUL DAVENPORT
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES • Space shuttle Endeavour returned to its California roots Thursday after a wistful cross-country journey that paid homage to NASA workers and former Arizona Rep. Gabrielle Giffords and her astronaut husband.

"That's my spaceship," said Endeavour's last commander, Mark Kelly, as the couple watched the shuttle loop over Tucson, Ariz.

Later in the day, a 747 jet carrying Endeavour swooped out of the desert sky and glided down a concrete runway at Edwards Air Force Base, 100 miles north of Los Angeles, not far from where the now-retired shuttle fleet was assembled.

The shuttle and jumbo jet take off again after sunrise Friday to make low, sweeping passes over Sacramento, San Francisco, Silicon Valley and Los Angeles.

Next stop: Los Angeles International Airport where Endeavour will be prepped for a slow ride on a special flatbed trailer through city streets next month to its final destination as a museum showpiece.

Endeavour's highly anticipated homecoming was twice delayed by stormy weather along the Gulf of Mexico. Early Wednesday, it departed from its Cape Canaveral, Fla., home base, soared over NASA centers in Mississippi and Louisiana, and made a layover in Houston, home of Mission Control. Crowds craned their necks skyward as the shuttle circled low over Florida's Space Coast and Houston. After refueling in El Paso, Texas, Thursday, it flew over the White Sands Test Facility in New Mexico, an emergency shuttle landing site used once. Kelly requested that Endeavour pass over Tucson to honor Giffords, who is recovering after suffering a head wound in a shooting rampage last year. Before retiring from her House seat, she was a member of the House committee on science, space and technology.

The couple watched from the roof of a University of Arizona parking garage. Former Giffords aide C.J. Karamargin said Giffords was "elated" and started "hooting and hollering" when she spotted Endeavour. Kelley said seeing the shuttle reminded him how difficult it was to land.

"Landing a space shuttle is not easy," he said. "It doesn't glide very well." Endeavour's maiden voyage into space two decades ago ended with a planned touchdown at NASA's Dryden Flight Research Center based at Edwards. Unlike a return from orbit, no ear-splitting twin sonic booms accompanied the latest return. Known as the baby shuttle, Endeavour replaced Challenger, which exploded during liftoff in 1986. NASA lost a second shuttle, Columbia, which broke apart during re-entry in 2003. A replacement was not built. Fourteen astronauts died in the accidents.

Six years after the Challenger tragedy, during Endeavour's first flight, three spacewalking astronauts made a daring rescue of a stranded communications satellite. A year later, it was launched on a service repair mission to the Hubble Space Telescope.

Endeavour flew 25 times, mostly to supply the International Space Station. It spent 299 days in space and circled Earth nearly 4,700 times, logging 123 million miles.

The space shuttle has deep roots in California: The main engines were manufactured in Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley. The heat shield tiles that protected the shuttle during re-entry were invented in Silicon Valley. The shuttle's "fly-by-wire" technology was developed in the Los Angeles suburb of Downey. Shuttle parts from California and other plants around the country were shipped to Rockwell International's assembly factory in Palmdale near Edwards. In the early days, landings occurred in the desert before switching to Florida. Edwards remained the backup landing site.

Endeavour is the second of three surviving shuttles bound for its retirement home. In April, Discovery landed at the Smithsonian Institution's annex in Virginia after victory laps around the White House, the Capitol and the Washington Monument.

After three decades of service, NASA permanently grounded the shuttles last year under a White House mandate to focus on destinations beyond low-Earth orbit with goals to land astronauts on an asteroid and eventually on Mars.

Attorneys Debate the Importance of Past Data in MacDonald Case

BY ANNE BLYTHE
The News & Observer

WILMINGTON, N.C. • Thirty-two years after the murder trial of Jeffrey MacDonald, the closing arguments of defense attorney Bernie Segal were read aloud in front of a judge. MacDonald is back in federal court in this port city, making his latest appeal for freedom.

Sentenced in 1979 to three consecutive terms of life in prison, MacDonald has insisted since his arrest that intruders were responsible for the murders of his pregnant wife and two daughters, Kimberly, 5, and Kristen, 2.

He contends that DNA from three hairs tested six years ago and a statement from a retired U.S. marshal about possible prosecutorial misconduct should win him at least a new trial. If jurors knew that DNA from three hairs found at the crime scene—one on a bedspread, another under the body of a lifeless Colette MacDonald and another under a fingernail of the youngest daughter—were not a match to any of the MacDonald family, MacDonald's defense team contends their verdict might have been different.

Although the DNA testing on the hairs was done in 2006, and those findings are part of the reason for the hearing in a Wilmington courtroom this week, prosecutor Leslie Cooley reminded the judge that theories being offered by the defense as new evidence to support their claims for a new trial have been raised many times over the decades.

Segal, who is now deceased, told jurors in his closing argument in 1979, that hairs not matching the MacDonald family had been found in the house. Segal suggested that those hairs, unidentified fingerprints and candle wax that did not match any of the candles found in the home bolstered MacDonald's claims that a woman wearing a floppy hat, holding a lit candle and chanting "acid is groovy, kill the pigs" was inside his home with three men when the murders occurred.

Although the purpose of the hearing this week was not to be a retrial, there were times that it seemed so. Cooley held up crime scene photos that showed a much different time—the cars, fashions and home furnishings popular more than four decades ago. He introduced Segal's words Thursday through a witness for the prosecution—William Ivory, a former Army crime-scene investigator who photographed the Fort Bragg apartment where the MacDonald was found injured and his family slaughtered.

Ivory explained in detail what he thought was significant about the photographs of the crime scene. He highlighted blood stains, blood splatter, the outlines of the bodies and things he thought unusual. Although MacDonald described a struggle inside the living room that knocked him out for a brief time, Ivory showed a sideboard in the same room where Valentine cards were still upright, on display.

MacDonald's burden during this hearing is high: He must show a constitutional violation and clear and compelling evidence of "his actual innocence."

Photographer Gets Shelter Animals Ready for Close-Ups

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) • Micha Sanders speaks in soothing tones to Tide Pool, a diminutive mixed-breed poodle perched atop a wooden picnic table. He moves his face closer to the animal's snout and strokes his head.

"It's just like with children. Every pet is different so you have to go with their personality and be patient," Sanders says as he attempts to coax the animal to return. Sanders began volunteering at Heartland two years ago after moving from Alaska in 2009. He shoots flattering photos of the animals and helps create posters, flyers and calendars for Heartland's various marketing campaigns.

Typically, animals get adopted faster when they have a good photo, according to Heartland director Andrea Thornberry.

"People can see the animal and connect with them better," she says. "A lot of people shop for their pets at home, so it helps them to get engaged before they even have to walk into the shelter."

WHO'S THAT OWL?

The Barking Owls build a parliament of fans as they work on their first album.

BY TETONA DUNLAP

KIMBERLY • What's in a name? For The Barking Owls the name might be the best way to sum up their style of music.

Because even the band's own members have a hard time pinpointing a genre they represent.

"I think the best way to describe it is alt country or indie pop, indie poppy folksy ... grunge grass, bluegrass with drums ..." said Erik Wenninger, The Barking Owls' vocalist and guitarist.

When the four — Wenninger, Andy Cluff (banjo, mandolin, guitar, vocals), Adam Crofts (bass, vocals) and Karl Sloth (drums, percussion) — started thinking of names for their new band, they flipped through a book of American phrases and came across "barking owl": an unidentified owl. "It sort of spoke to the rough-around-the-edge pop sound we have," Wenninger said. "Luckily people like it, they just don't know how to describe it."

The Barking Owls formed in March and already have gained a following in the Magic Valley. They are in the process of recording their first album.

Their single "Long Tall Country Boy" recently beat out the Swift N Sassy Band on "Repeat It Or Delete It," a weekly contest that pits the popularity of local bands against each other on 98.3 FM The Snake.

According to the radio station's website, The Barking Owls took the lead quickly and garnered 83 percent of the votes, which came from as far

New Holiday-decor Festival Joins Magic Valley's Charity Schedule

BY VIRGINIA HUTCHINS
vhutchins@magicvalley.com

FILER • For years, charity-minded Magic Valley folks have decorated Christmas trees and donated them to festivals around the valley that display the trees to the public, then sell them to benefit nonprofit causes.

This winter, a new festival will join that lineup as Southern Idaho Landscape Center, at 21150 U.S. Highway 30 east of Filer, introduces its Magic Valley Festival of Giving, set for Nov. 30-Dec. 3.

But wasn't there a fundraising display of holiday decorations at the Filer business last year?

Yes, but don't be confused: Last year, the St. Luke's Magic Valley Health Foundation held its 2011 Festival of Trees at Southern Idaho Landscape Center.

"We're hoping to make it a permanent location," Rebecca Southwick, then the foundation's event coordinator, said at the time.

But it wasn't a relationship that lasted.

"It just didn't work out logistically that well for us, in the middle of a retail store," the health foundation's Executive Director Larry Baxter said this week, also citing the distance from Twin Falls.

Instead, Festival of Trees — which has been in various venues over the years — will move to downtown Twin Falls this year. And the landscape center will host a similarly themed event of its own.

"Our hope is that the Magic Valley Festival of Giving will be an annual event where the public can join together and support our local charities and nonprofits. Not one, but many, will benefit from this festival," Ken Ashley of Southern Idaho Landscape Center said in a press release.

Need help keeping the two festivals straight? Here are the basics:

• Magic Valley Festival of Giving, Nov. 30-Dec. 3 at Southern Idaho Landscape Center, Filer. The fledgling event kicks off with a Gala of Giving on the evening of Nov. 29.

Corporate and individual donors and local nonprofit organizations will team together to decorate trees and wreaths, for display during the festival. Proceeds will go to Magic Valley charities and nonprofits.

"Guests may linger over cocoa in the lobby or browse among the trees in the beautifully decorated landscape center," the release stated. "The event will include breakfast with Santa, a silent auction and daily entertainment. A senior social on Monday will round out this glittery holiday festival."

JAMS AND JAVA

The newly named Golden Grind Coffeehouse hopes to attract more students, public with music.

BY TETONA DUNLAP

TWIN FALLS • Every Thursday at 3 p.m. you can hear music from the Michael Frew Jazz Trio streaming from the Student Union Building on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

If the harmonious blend of guitar, bass and drums isn't enough to entice you on a fall afternoon, perhaps a hot cup of coffee or tea might make you take a moment to sit down and listen.

The cozy nook in the lower level of the Student Union offers a number of small tables, perfect for two, or a pair of chairs and a sofa for groups wanting to get their Starbucks fix.

"I think it makes it unique. We don't have enough of this atmosphere," said Will Bossert, manager of the Golden Grind Coffeehouse, formerly known as the CSI Coffee Shop. "And why not have a place where musicians can get their feet wet?"

CSI student body president Jeremy Bridges announced the CSI Coffee Shop's new name,

Expect a Larger CSI Corn Maze This Fall

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Here's a not-too-scary way to get in the October mood: Students in the College of Southern Idaho's Horticulture Club will begin their 10th corn maze season next weekend at their cornfield northwest of the school's Health Science building on North College Road.

The student-run maze will be open 5-10 p.m. every night from Sept. 28 through Oct. 31, and it's larger this year though it's in the same location.

"We had to give up some of our acreage last year to Washington Street construction materials. We got all that room back this year, so the maze is more than 11 acres," club spokesman Roy Galindo said.

The corn is also taller this year.

But adults will pay a little more than they did last year. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students of all ages with their school ID. Ages 6 and younger will be admitted for free. Groups may reserve daytime visits by calling horticulture professor Dave Kiesig at 732-6431.

Refreshments will be sold at the warming fire by the maze entrance each evening and will vary depending on which CSI club is in charge of them. They will include hamburgers, hot dogs, chips and hot and cold drinks. Other students helping with the maze this year are from diesel, equine, law enforcement and renewable energy clubs.

As Halloween nears, horticulture students plan frigit nights that will include some scary enhancements to the maze experience; watch the Times-News' weekly Events Calendar for details.

Planning to visit the maze after dark? Bring your own flashlights, and dress for the weather.

Golden Grind Coffeehouse, as voted by students, Sept. 15 on the college's website.

The shop's grand opening will be 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 26 with drink specials, cake and music throughout the day.

And though Michael Frew, an adjunct guitar professor at CSI, isn't new to the music scene, Bossert said he likes the idea of the coffee shop becoming a venue where local musicians or artists could display or hone their skills.

In addition to the weekly jam sessions Frew leads at Golden Grind, Frew would like to see an open mic session as well.

"I'd like to get more people; I just can't provide any sort of payment ... but it includes a good cup of coffee," Bossert said. "I want to make it a unique hangout."

CSI student Thomas Aitken, 23, of Twin Falls said the Sept. 13 jazz jam session hosted by the Michael Frew Jazz Trio is something he would like to see more.

"It shows that we have a little culture left in this town," Aitken said. "It's refreshing for students and for students from out-of-state and the country."

Aitken sat at a table, his green Converse sneakers tapping, as he listened to the trio. Aitken was joined by 10 other people who drank coffee while watching the performance.

Nashville, Tenn., fretless guitarist Ned Evett will perform at 1 p.m. Sept. 28 at Golden Grind. This event is free and open to the public. Evett has played with musicians such as George Thorogood, Jonny Lang, John Fogerty, the Smashing Pumpkins and more.

Though the coffee shop's target audience is college students, Bossert said, that doesn't mean the public isn't invited as well.

"I would love to bring in people from the community ... that would be great," Bossert said. "I would love to stay open later."

away as Italy and Canada.

On Sept. 19, The Barking Owls played at Anchor Bistro and Bar to a packed patio of people.

The audience included a little girl doing the robot and a guy doing a jig as Wenninger played harmonica and then kazoo.

"They're very good," said Curtis Hanson of Twin Falls.

Hanson said he heard a couple of songs on the band's Facebook page and decided to check out The Barking Owls when they played at Cucina Gemelli on Sept. 15.

"I like local music," Hanson said. "It's a good style ... it's alternative bluegrass, with a modern take."

The Barking Owls were formed from another band Wenninger started with a similarly cryptic name — 54 40 or Fight. It was the battle cry and slogan of U.S. expansionists in the Pacific Northwest.

During the day, Crofts is an assistant professor of Spanish and Portuguese at the College of Southern Idaho. He also plays in jazz bands and has been a part of several albums, but he was drawn to The Barking Owls because of their fun, poppy style. He also credits his father's love of bluegrass. He remembers his father playing fiddle in the bathroom because he liked the sound quality.

"It's good to have several musical outlets," said Crofts, who called the Owls "a high-energy band with witty lyrics."

Wenninger, an assistant entomology professor at the University of Idaho Extension office, writes most of the band's songs with help from a friend, Matt Marsh of Twin Falls.

Sloth joined The Barking Owls after answering their Craigslist ad. Sloth has been in a number of local bands — jam bands, punk, reggae — but said he hadn't played for a couple of years until he came across the ad.

Sloth, a software developer, said anytime you can get a banjo in the band, it's going to be good.

Cluff used to host open mic sessions at Applebee's, where he met Wenninger.

"I heard him play and I liked his songs," Cluff said.

Cluff is a mechanical engineer; between the four band members they have four bachelor's degrees, three master's and one doctorate.

They all have day jobs so they don't play for the money, Cluff said, but it doesn't hurt to get paid to do what you love.

Political Columnist Opens Sun Valley Lecture, Performance Series

TIMES-NEWS

KETCHUM • Popular writers and performers will come to Sun Valley as part of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts' 2012-13 Lecture Series and Performing Arts Series, starting with journalist Frank Rich on Oct. 14 and chamber music group SYBARITE5 on Oct. 27.

Series tickets are on sale to center members now. Members can purchase individual tickets starting Sept. 24, and remaining individual tickets will be for sale to the public Oct. 3.

Lecture Series speakers are:
 • Frank Rich, Oct. 14. Formerly the theater critic and an opinion columnist at The New York Times, Rich joined New York Magazine in June 2011 as writer-at-large. He will speak on the upcoming presidential election.

Known as the "Butcher of Broadway" for the influence he wielded as a theater critic, Rich became an Op-Ed columnist for the Times in 1994. He continues to write about politics at New York Magazine and nymag.com but also opines on popular culture, the media and current events.

"Frank Rich is a brilliant writer who is known for speaking his mind. No doubt he will have plenty of provocative comments about the upcoming presidential election," the Sun Valley Center's Britt Udesen said. "The timing of his talk couldn't be better — it's two days before the second presidential debate and three days after the vice presidential debate."

Individual tickets to the Rich lecture are $30 for center members and $40 for others; students pay $20. It's set for 6:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Church of the Big Wood in Ketchum.

• Daniel Handler, Nov. 18. Author of the popular series of books "Lemony Snicket's A Series of Unfortunate Events," Handler will speak about fairy tales and scary stories.

• Richard Rodriguez, Jan.

The Performing Arts Series lineup:

CSI Theater Season: Mystery, History and Intrigue

TIMES-NEWS

TWIN FALLS • Tickets are now available for the College of Southern Idaho theater department's 2012-13 season.

Season tickets for all four shows are $24 for adults or $18 for students and seniors. Tickets for individual plays are $8 and $6.

The lineup:

• Oct. 3-6 and Oct. 10-13: "Antony and Cleopatra," a William Shakespeare tragedy.

Arguably the most seductive of Shakespeare's heroines, as well as a powerful and controversial historical figure, Cleopatra VII was queen of Egypt in the first century BC. Her love affair with Roman general Mark Antony, their influence on the Roman Empire and their untimely deaths form the basis of the play.

• Nov. 28-Dec. 1 and Dec. 5-8: "New Jerusalem, The Interrogation of Baruch de Spinoza at Talmud Torah Congregation: Amsterdam, July 27, 1656."

As the Inquisition bears down on them, a small Jewish community flees Portugal to seemingly liberal Amsterdam. But Spinoza, the rabbi's heir apparent, is a revolutionary thinker. When the boldness of his ideas strains Amsterdam's professed tolerance, it leads to a confrontation between powerful political forces and his own community. Based on true events, this recent off-Broadway hit is from playwright David Ives.

• Feb. 27-March 2 and March 6-9: George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan."

It's the tale of Joan of Arc, the girl who led the armies of King Charles of France against the British occupiers and their collaborators in 1400s in France. Believing she is chosen by God, Joan rallies her armies to victory until she is finally taken by the Burundians and sold to the British to go to trial for sorcery and heresy. Listening only to the voices of her saints, Joan stands against the bureaucracy of the Holy Inquisition of the Catholic Church, confessing and then recanting her guilt as a heretic just before she is put to the flames.

• April 24-27 and May 1-4: "Mousetrap," an Agatha Christie mystery that mixes a newlywed couple, an old British manor, a snowstorm and a variety of strong personalities.

Once all the players arrive, the murders will begin. And only the murderer is safe from destruction.

All four plays' performances will be at 7:30 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Theater.

Tickets: 732-6288 or tickets.csi.edu.

Top 5 Fall Lawn Care Tips

by Joe Cooper, All About Lawns Columnist

Taking advantage of the change in seasons is smart. Thinking of your lawn in terms of a person who needs food and nutrients to survive is a good tip. For lawns, fall is all about rejuvenating before winter. Here are few tips to help you make that happen.

1. Aerate for lawn health. Aerating your lawn to loosen the soil after a summer of heat and use is a good idea for fall. Aeration punches holes in your lawn, allowing water, fertilizer, and nutrients to reach deeper toward a lawn's roots.

2. Fertilize your way through fall. Fall is a great time to fertilize, offering your lawn the nitrogen it needs for healthy growth. Some fertilizer can do double duty and help fight weeds: these are called "weed-and-feed" fertilizers. You also want to fertilize well before fall ends, and cold temperatures make your lawn go "dormant" and take a rest for the year.

3. Hate raking? Mulch instead. If raking isn't your favorite fall chore, put these fallen friends to work. You can turn your leaves into mulch and spread them right across your lawn using a "materials collection system" attachment with your mower, available at your hardware store. You can trim your lawn and turn your leaves to mulch in the same forward motion.

4. Reseed to fix patches before the cold. Reseeding is a great fall practice, before the winter comes and cold temperatures and ice or snow settle in. Using a fast-growing grass like ryegrass is a common choice, to restore patches before winter sets in. You can also hire a contractor or landscaping service to perform "power seeding," for more serious patching and restoring.

5. Evict unwanted residents. Fall is a good time to take care of pesky pests like weeds, dandelions, bugs, and grubs. Break out the herbicides, organic weed killer, and pesticides to help keep your lawn free and clear before the cold sets in.

You should always continue the basics, like mowing and edging. Depending on how much rain your region gets, you may want to continue watering, too. Considering these tips above can help your lawn stay healthy and strong through the winter season.

Cowboy Poetry Tickets to Go on Sale Oct. 4

BY JOHN RASCHE
Elko Daily Free Press

ELKO, Nev. • Tickets to the annual National Cowboy Poetry Gathering — which typically draws a lot of Magic Valley folks to Elko — will become available to the public Oct. 4.

The gathering is a celebration of the people, culture and traditions of the American West, and it includes poetry and musical performances as well as films, workshops, dances and discussions.

This year's gathering, Jan. 28 to Feb. 2, will include a new breed of cowboy: the buttero.

Butteros are cowboys from the Maremma region of Italy, where they have raised and herded large lyre-horned cattle for centuries.

"For the past 10 or 15 years we have been bringing in different cattle cultures from across the world," Western Folklife Center communi-

The 29th annual National Cowboy Poetry Gathering will include more than 50 poets, musicians and musical groups performing at four venues across Elko.

To purchase tickets or see the event schedule, visit www.westernfolklife.org or call toll-free 888-880-5885. Tickets also can be purchased at the Western Folklife Center's ticket office, 501 Railroad St. in Elko.

ANSWER: As my problems go, this one is a bit of a gimme. Your choice is to rebid one no-trump or to repeat diamonds. Just for the record, a call of two hearts would be a reverse, forcing partner to give preference at the three-level and showing at least an ace more than you hold. Of the two choices, rebidding one no-trump limits the hand and describes what you have; two diamonds wrongly emphasizes diamonds.

IHC '8

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old wife and mother. My husband, "Jake," works 40-plus hours a week, while I am a stay-at-home mom. My daughter, who is almost 3, keeps me on my toes.

In the evenings and on weekends, Jake does yard work or works in the garden. I hate it because I'm with our daughter all day, every day, and he expects me to watch her while he's outside working.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

I dislike yard and garden work and don't like being outside unless I am completely comfortable. I also have health/physical issues that keep me from being as active as I would like. Every weekend I feel my resentment and anger growing over this issue.

Jake says it is necessary for us to have a garden, and I agree. But why must I have all the responsibility of caring for our daughter even on weekends? I'd like it if Jake would stay in with us and give up on some of the outside activities. This is something we argue about at least once a week. What do you suggest?

— SECOND TO A SHRUB IN OREGON

DEAR SECOND TO A SHRUB: While tending to the yard and the garden may be necessary, it is also very important for your husband to devote some time to nurturing his relationship with his daughter. Mention that fact to him, and while you're at it, tell him she should be at least as important to him as the tomato plants and the zinnias. You should not be saddled with all the child care responsibilities 24/7. Marriages are like gardens. If they're not given care and feeding, they will wither as yours appears to be doing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged and being married soon. I have always had very close non-romantic relationships with males. I was raised around guys, so it's natural for me.

People told me that when I fell in love with someone it would be easier to let my male friendships fall by the wayside. This hasn't been the case.

These friendships are the ones I prefer now more than ever. The conversations are better. I find men more emotionally stable than women. They also let me talk without interrupting to give their opinions as women do.

I love my fiance dearly and he has been incredibly understanding about this, but I can tell it upsets him. I have been known to talk all night with friends, especially when I'm overwhelmed. My fiance is hurt that I don't come to him with these issues, but he's in medical school and has his own stress.

Do I need to eliminate these friendships that come so naturally to me for the sake of my husband-to-be? Is it inappropriate for me to have close male friends after I'm married?

— PREFERS MEN

DEAR PREFERS MEN: Why are you presenting the issue as all or nothing? It's not. Nor is it inappropriate for you to keep close male friendships after you marry — because that has been your lifelong practice.

However, I do think some behavior modification is in order. The first thing you should do is cut out the all-night dump sessions with these men.

For one thing, the man you marry should be your BEST friend and the person you go to first to express your concerns when you're overwhelmed. This is part of intimacy, and he may be feeling hurt and shut out because you are denying that to him.

For another, he may have concerns of his own that he'd like to discuss with you. Being on the phone all night talking to someone else is really neglectful of the man you love.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS By Bil Keane

© 2012 Bill Keane, Inc. Dist. by King Features Synd. www.familycircus.com

Today is Friday, Sept. 21, the 265th day of 2012. There are 101 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight: On Sept. 21, 1912, magician Harry Houdini first publicly performed his so-called "Chinese Water Torture Cell" trick at the Circus Busch in Berlin, escaping after being immersed upside-down in a vertical water tank, his ankles secured in a set of stocks which made up the tank lid, which was locked into place.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date: In 1893, one of America's first horseless carriages was taken for a short test drive in Springfield, Mass., by Frank Durvea, who had designed the vehicle with his brother, Charles.

In 1897, the New York Sun ran its famous editorial, written anonymously by Francis P. Church, which declared, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

In 1912, legendary cartoon animator Chuck Jones was born in Spokane, Wash.

In 1937, "The Hobbit," by J.R.R. Tolkien, was first published by George Allen & Unwin, Ltd. of London.

In 1938, a hurricane struck parts of New York and New England, causing widespread damage and claiming some 700 lives.

In 1948, Milton Berle made his debut as permanent host of "The Texaco Star Theater" on NBC-TV.

In 1962, "The Jack Paar Program," a weekly, prime-time show that followed Paar's stint on "The Tonight Show" began a three-year run.

In 1970, "NFL Monday Night Football" made its debut on ABC-TV as the Cleveland Browns defeated the visiting New York Jets, 31-21.

In 1982, Amin Gemayel, brother of Lebanon's assassinated president-elect, Bashir Gemayel, was himself elected president. National Football League players began a 57-day strike, their first regular-season walkout ever.

In 1987, NFL players called a strike, mainly over the issue of free agency. (The 24-day walkout prompted football owners to hire replacement players.)

In 1989, Hurricane Hugo crashed into Charleston, S.C. (the storm was blamed for 26 directly-caused U.S. deaths). Twenty-one students in Alton, Texas, died when their school bus, involved in a collision with a soft-drink delivery truck, careened into a water-filled pit.

IF SEPTEMBER 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You may find that you are more interested in career and business matters during the coming six months. Between now and the end of the year is a poor time, however, to make financial or job decisions. Plan ahead so that you are not forced into making major changes or decisions during that time period. People will receive a favorable impression if they meet you for the first time next April or May, so that is a much better time to ask for a promotion, apply for a new job, change careers or make any major decision. Romance will run more smoothly and with fewer unrealized fantasies if you pursue a new love interest in March or June.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look further afield. Break up the regular routines by trying something new and exciting. It may not be your cup of tea, but a change of pace and experimentation will do wonders to brighten your spirits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Only risk money you can afford to lose. Give your bank account and budget a frank appraisal before you consider further investments. Get more bangs for your buck by letting the buck stop here.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Consider the common good. You can offer a solution that helps everyone. A party or outing might give you a prime chance to show off your knowledge about new age ideas and alternative lifestyles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Indecisiveness is a decision to not make a decision. You may be torn several ways about your financial situation or career prospects. Don't be pressured into making choices without adequate preparation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Achieving high-minded principles is worthy of effort, but that doesn't mean you can overlook obvious dangers. If too much work and no play make Jack a dull boy, consider changing to the other way around.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Blend old and new for a better present. Although you are tempted to break away from traditions, you must preserve a certain amount of continuity. Positive thinking can be inspiring if you stick to the facts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Structures can become shackles. Escape through creativity and bravely color outside the lines. Exercise your inner artist by engaging in activities in which you can truly express your true colors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A little criticism could be constructive. You shouldn't take offense at someone's critical remarks as the assessment might be correct. Go out of your way to prove them wrong if people doubt your ability.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Roller coasters eventually coast to a stop. Thrill seekers might encourage you to participate in something exciting that might interrupt your own plans. Keep on working to fulfill goals.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be on your own, but you are not alone. Friends and well-wishers may lend you a hand. The kindness of friends and co-workers can be used to support you when the going gets tough.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Count your pennies as though every penny counted. If you want the best value for your dollar, you should take responsibility for financial activity. Situations arise in which unsolicited advice is appreciated.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Tackle tasks with determination and confidence. Give those you love space to make mistakes, as sometimes people need to learn lessons on their own. If you are sympathetic, you will win friends.
