BATTLE OF THE BRIDGE

The rivalry is best understood through the perceived differences — not between the schools — but the towns.

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • By getting engaged, couple Brandon Cary, 22, and Stephanie Claar, 22, have simultaneously consummated a relationship and stepped over a not-to-be-crossed line.

Cary, a Twin Falls graduate, and Claar, a Jerome graduate, reside together in unity but for one Friday every year — the day of the “Battle of the Bridge”. Tonight the football rivalry between Jerome and Twin Fall resumes at Murray O’Rourke Tiger Stadium in Jerome.

The couple shudders at the prescient words of Abraham Lincoln: “A house divided against itself cannot stand.”

Is inter-high-school dating between the schools even legal?

Driving While Huffing Causes Crash

TWIN FALLS • A Twin Falls man was arrested for driving under the influence after police say he crashed his car after inhaling compressed air propellant through a method known as “huffing.”

On Tuesday, Twin Falls Police responded to a single vehicle crash at 425 Shoshone St. North in Twin Falls. According to the report by police, the car, a Pontiac Bonneville, traveled south on Shoshone Street, went through the red light at Sixth Ave. North, swerved off the road and came to rest in the rose garden at the Twin Falls County Courthouse.

When officers spoke with the driver, identified as Johnny Yuma Jasso, 25, he explained that he believed he blacked out and told officers he blacked out once before while driving a pickup in Kimberly.

According to the report, the officers on the scene did not detect alcohol on Jasso's breath and believed he may have blacked out due to a medical Idaho Attorney General Lawrence Wasden presented a silver medallion to each recipient.

“I thank God every day that I'm an Idahoan,” said Canyon Ridge High School and Robert Stuart Middle School music teacher Ted Hadley, as he accepted his award for support of arts education.

Hadley told the crowd that he brought greetings from 60 beginning

BLAINE SCHOOLS SEEK PARENTS' INPUT

TIMES-NEWS HAILEY • The Blaine County School District plans two parent meetings to seek input on the future of its dual-immersion language program. Meetings are scheduled for 6 p.m. Oct. 3 at Woodside Elementary School and 6 p.m. Oct. 8 at the Community Campus. Translation and child-care will be available at both meetings. Childcare is available by reservation at 578-5062 or dkelly@blaineschols.org. The school district is looking to make improvements to the 10-year-old dual-immersion program and make it more sustainable in the long run. In the program, kindergarten through fifth-grade students receive instruction in both Spanish and English. Enrollment for the elementary school program has grown from 60 students in 2001 to more than 600 this school year. During a board of trustees meeting earlier this month, the board voted to pursue two options. Option one would create a magnet school at Woodside Elementary for dual-immersion students. The approximately 150 Woodside students not in the program would attend the Bellevue or Hailey elementary schools. Option two would maintain one classroom of dual-immersion students per grade level at each of the district's four neighborhood elementary schools. One class per grade of dual-immersion would continue at Hemingway Elementary in Ketchum with either option.

Subway Spokesman Urges Students Not to Text and Drive

BY JULIE WOOTTON jwootton@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • A driver looks away from the road to write a text message and things go wrong in a matter of seconds.

In a video clip Canyon Ridge High School freshmen watched Thursday, a "crunch" is heard as the car rams into another vehicle. During a school assembly, a couple hundred teenagers heard a presentation about the importance of being responsible behind the wheel. Subway's national spokesman, Jared Fogle, urged students to hold off on texting until they arrive at their destination. Fogle said teenagers are attached to their phones and it can be hard to resist the urge to respond to a message.

Students sign a pledge board not to text and drive after an assembly at Canyon Ridge High School on Thursday in Twin Falls.

"No other generation of students has ever had to deal with these issues," he said.

Fogle was at the assembly as part of Subway's "W8 2 TXT" campaign.

Students were asked to sign a poster pledging they won't text while driving.

As a reminder of the pledge, a few student council members handed out yellow thumb bands.

During Thursday's assembly, a few officers from the Twin Falls Police Department and Twin Falls Mayor Greg Lanting were in attendance.

Lanting reminded students that texting while driving is dangerous.

"The more people we get to realize that, we'll be a safer place," he said.

A statewide ban on texting while driving went into effect July 1. But a ban was already in place in the city of Twin Falls.

Lanting said Twin Falls was the first Idaho city to take action on the topic.

He said he pushed for the local ban after two people he knew died in a car accident.

It happened, he said, after a young woman was texting, lost control of her will learn to drive in the coming years. And texting, he said, is one of the most common causes of car accidents.

Rivalry

"I don't know," Claar said, giggling. "Our friends make fun of us though. They're like, 'You're rivals. That's not supposed to happen!'"

Claar and Cary met in junior high, but did not start dating until their freshman year at the University of Idaho.

"When I was in high school, people from Jerome and Twin never dated," Claar said. "Ever. It never happened, so when we first started dating it was kind of funny. It was kind of weird."

The couple tries not to mention their school loyalties in polite settings, but the sports section sometimes makes it difficult.

"Every time (Jerome) loses I point to it in the paper," Cary said.

hand, but figuring out where to sit could require emergency family counseling.

"You're going to sit on the (Jerome) side, right?" Claar asked. "We're not sitting in that visitors' side."

"Uh...," Cary said. "No, he is going to sit on the home side," Claar said, laughing.

The Millers — Sandra, a graduate from Twin Falls, her husband Bob and their son Trace — are Jerome residents who've resolved their family divide.

"Go Jerome," Bob Miller said.

"It's tough," Sandra Miller said. "I graduated from Twin, my dad graduated from Twin, my brothers from Twin and it's like my heart is in Twin, but I've got to be in Jerome."

The Millers, who have a daughter at Jerome Middle School, will sit in the home stands.

Those surveyed in both towns agreed on just one thing: Gameday is not just about bragging rights for the rest of the year, it's the best chance to let the other town folks know how you feel.

"Jerome is the smaller town," former Twin Falls player Dominique Lewis said. "There is like nobody there. I mean Twin Falls is vastly bigger, we have more people, more talent, and better coaches."

"We didn't like Jerome," Sandra Miller said. "They didn't like us. They are more about agriculture. They were made fun of. Twin Falls people called them 'Cow-kickers.'"

Former Twin Falls player Kevin Tetz, along with Lewis, said that even if it wasn't the most important game of the year for either team on paper, it felt like it on the field, and now that they've graduated, the same palpability is felt in the stands.

"It's always high-tension," Lewis said. "You didn't want to lose to Jerome. How could you lose to Jerome? Even though there was a lot of crap-talking, you knew that it was going to be one of the games that everybody would play for, one that you wanted to go watch. The record didn't matter at all. You want to go out there, have fun and let it be known that you have something on them."

The rivalry, according to those surveyed, is best understood through the perceived differences — not between the schools — but the towns.

ceived differences — not between the schools — but the towns.

"On one side you have the rich kids, and the other side you have the hard-working farmer kids," Tetz said. "It's like the Greasers versus the Socs."

In 1960, Twin Falls graduate Joyce DeFord Pulsifer's dad was a teacher at Jerome. Pulsifer remembers arguments and physical altercations between the student sections, but not a Bruins defeat to the Tigers.

"For our family, there was kind of a divided sense of loyalty," Pulsifer said. "But our rivalries were with bigger schools, like in Boise and Pocatello, so Jerome was kind of easy-pickings."

Jerome will attempt to break Twin Falls' three-game rivalry winning streak tonight at 7 p.m.

band students and encouraged anyone who had some skill in the arts to pass it along to a young person.

Many recipients thanked their families to support.

David Alderson of Twin Falls received an award for excellence in folk and traditional arts. Alderson is a member of the Traditional Cowboy Arts Association and specializes in engraving and silver work.

"My folks didn't try to tell me what to do, but taught me how to be a human being," he said.

Alderson said over the years he learned that life itself is art and it didn't matter what he did, so long as he did it to the best of his ability.

Another local recipient of the Excellence in Folk and Traditional Arts award was Lona Hymas-Smith, whose husband, Dennis Smith accepted the award on her behalf.

Hymas-Smith, who carved wildlife from wood, died earlier this year from injuries sustained after a bicycle accident.

"There was not a bird of a fish she could not carve," read Idaho Commission on the Arts Chair Mark Hofflund from a nomination letter for Hymas-Smith.

Hofflund said the letters about Hymas-Smith described how she took on every challenge and pushed the boundaries of wood carving.

"If she was here she would love it," her husband said at the ceremony. "Anybody who knew her knew that she was somebody special."

Dr. Allen Frost and his wife, Frances Frost of Twin Falls, were presented with the lifetime achievement award to honor their 30 years as volunteers and supporters of the arts in the Magic Valley.

problem. As paramedics checked Jasso out, officers looked for proof of insurance in the car.

When they looked in the car, the report states officers found a few unopened containers of alcohol and a can of compressed air.

Compressed air can be abused to get high by inhaling the propellant in the can, the report states.

"This causes a loss of oxygen consumption to the brain and can cause a person to lose physical control over their body, even to the point of going unconscious," the police report states.

In the report, an officer states that the can was cold and had a light coat of frost on it, indicating it had recently been used.

At that point, Jasso's wife arrived at the scene, the report states. When officers told her about the can of compressed air and told her they believed Jasso inhaled from it. She allegedly told them a similar can of air was found in the pickup Jasso crashed in Kimberly. According to the report, Jasso's wife said that crash happened just a week prior.

Once in the emergency room, Jasso allegedly admitted to a doctor that he inhaled the propellant, the report states.

Jasso was charged with driving without privileges, driving under the influence and failure to provide proof of insurance, second or subsequent offense. A pretrial conference is scheduled for Nov. 7.

Public Hearing Leaves Gooding Residents Frustrated

BY STEVE KADEL
skadel@magicvalley.com

GOODING • Residents opposed to a city of Gooding water improvement project voiced their feelings during a public hearing Wednesday night but came away frustrated, according to two people who attended.

At issue is a proposed new residential water delivery system to replace the current one, which Mayor Duke Morton said has rotting pipes, high sediment levels causing poor water movement and flooding into some basements. He estimates the cost of replacement at between $7 million and $9 million, compared to $14 million to revamp the current system.

Citizen Jo Ann Doerr was among those who were upset about the hearing.

"It was a terrible meeting," she said. "The mayor refused to answer questions."

Ken Huber, a Gooding resident since 1958, said 16 of about 30 people who attended spoke about their concerns with the project. Most mentioned the same issues — a significant increase in water bills to pay for the new system and worry that drilling a new backup well, required by the state Department of Environmental Quality, will lower water levels of residential wells.

Huber said many also were angry that city officials wouldn't respond to questions and that the project is being pushed ahead without a vote of Gooding citizens. Higher water bills will be particularly difficult for the town's senior citizens, he noted.

"There were three or four people who left during the meeting because they were disgusted," Huber said. "(city council and mayor) weren't in the mood to listen to anything. They all just hunkered down like they were ashamed to be there and ashamed of what they're doing to us."

Morton said the public hearing format doesn't allow for comment by city officials. That was provided during past town hall meetings, he said.

"It wasn't really a meeting for explanation, and that was a problem," Morton said.

As for the new well's effect on the aquifer, the mayor is confident there will be no problem. He acknowledged the new system would raise water bills, but said there's no other option.

"The best way to care for our city is to do what we're doing," Morton said.

The next step comes during the Oct. 15 city council meeting when members will vote to authorize a judicial review process, which seeks a judge's approval to bypass a public vote for permission to assume a long-term loan from DEQ at 1 percent interest.

If the issues goes before a judge, Morton said, the city will be represented by a Boise law firm experienced in judicial review cases. The firm will make its case for approval and citizens opposed to the plan may hire an attorney to argue against it, Morton said.

Investors in Broke Resorts Want Documents Unsealed

BY REBECCA BOONE
Associated Press

BOISE • Resort property owners suing an international banking giant over allegations of a loan-to-own scheme say the financial firm has wrongly sealed thousands of pages of documents in the court case, and they want the documents made public.

The multi-billion dollar federal lawsuit was brought by property owners at resorts in the West and the Bahamas against the bank Credit Suisse and real estate brokerage Cushman & Wakefield. The plaintiffs claim Credit Suisse set up an offshore branch to skirt U.S. rules, appraised resorts at inflated prices and then provided loans based on those appraisals, with the aim to foreclose on the properties when the owners couldn't repay the loans.

Credit Suisse has denied those allegations, with its attorneys saying the legal action was based on absurd claims from people who never actually borrowed money from the bank.

The complicated lawsuit has been chugging through federal court in Boise since 2010, brought by investors in Idaho's Tamarack Resort, the Yellowstone Club in Montana, Nevada's Lake Las Vegas resort and the Ginn Sur Mer Resort in the Bahamas.

All the parties in the lawsuit agreed in April that some of the documents in the case should be protected from public view because they contained proprietary or financial information or were otherwise considered private. The parties agreed on two designations for those documents: "confidential" which would indicate the material was generally private and should be kept from public view; and "highly confidential," which would indicate that the information involves trade secrets or other information that is so sensitive it could negatively impact the producing party's ability to conduct business, and so should be more closely protected.

But on Tuesday, attorneys for the property owners filed a motion asking U.S. District Judge Edward Lodge to lift the confidentiality designation on some documents. The property owners say Credit Suisse has produced more than 49,000 pages of documents in the case and more than 95 percent of them have been designated as confidential or highly confidential.

"This motion, like the allegations in this case generally, is without merit and we will oppose it," said Credit Suisse spokeswoman Victoria Harmon.

Cushman & Wakefield has produced more than 58,000 pages of documents, according to the court filing, with 95 percent of them with the confidential designations.

"The great majority of the 109,000 pages of documents cannot properly be so designated under either the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or the Rules of this Court," the attorneys for the plaintiffs wrote in their motion.

Families of Crash Victims Settle Lawsuit

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) • The families of two northern Idaho teens killed in a car accident near Twin Falls have reached a financial settlement with a 21-year-old man who pleaded guilty to reckless driving for his role in the September 2010 crash, a newspaper reported Thursday.

The families of Ryan Reinhardt and Devon Austin, a college baseball player who had been drafted by the Chicago Cubs, agreed to settle their civil lawsuit against Kade Laughlin earlier this month in Idaho's 5th District Court, the Coeur d'Alene Press reported.

The lawsuit filed by the families and a young woman who survived the crash was settled for $50,000, the maximum amount available under Laughlin's insurance plan. Austin's mother criticized the way the criminal case was handled, saying the civil claims were the only way to hold Laughlin accountable.

"Every turn, it's been frustrating," Paula Austin said. Laughlin was accused of chasing Reinhardt's vehicle following a verbal altercation at a party the night of Sept. 12, 2010. Reinhardt's car crashed at a U.S. Highway 30 intersection while traveling at speeds in excess of 94 mph, killing him and Austin. Both were from Coeur d'Alene.

Another teen in the vehicle, Jessica Duran, then 19, survived.

Laughlin pleaded guilty to reckless driving in January of this year and was sentenced to six months in jail, with all but 20 days suspended, under an agreement with prosecutors. At the sentencing, relatives of Austin and Reinhardt were disappointed after their request to read impact statements was denied.

Laughlin's attorney declined to comment on the civil settlement.

Reinhardt's mother, Laura Wilson, said the civil claims were not for financial gain but to hold parties accountable for the role they played in the deaths. Both Wilson and an attorney for the Austin family ruled out further litigation against three other people who were allegedly with Laughlin when he chased Reinhardt's vehicle.

"I don't see that happening," Wilson said.

Health Care Costs Rising

Idaho braces for the higher costs of Medicaid expansion.

BY KIMBERLEE KRUESI
kkruesi@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Whether or not Idaho chooses to expand its Medicaid eligibility requirements, close to 37,000 individuals will become newly eligible as of 2014, according to state health officials.

The growth won't be because of a population boom. Under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, Medicaid eligibility will be based on modified adjusted gross income, thus allowing more Idahoans to receive Medicaid assistance.

Currently, Idaho's federal-state partnership only allows adults — who are not disabled or elderly — to qualify for Medicaid if they have children and an income less than 20 percent below the federal poverty level. For a family of four, that would be close to $18,400 in total income per year.

"About 92 percent of Medicaid expansion is mandatory," said Russ Barron, an administrator with the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. "The bulk of what we've done so far is for the mandate."

Barron was one of the several presenters speaking in front of the 15 member Medicaid expansion workgroup on Thursday. The workgroup has been appointed by Gov. C. L. "Butch" Otter to submit recommendations on expanding Medicaid by Nov. 1.

The health care reform law requires states to modernize their Medicaid system, operate under new income eligibility guidelines and connect with a health care exchange. However, since Idaho has yet to decide if they will set up an online insurance market, Health and Welfare is still waiting to see if it should be able to coincide with a federal or state operated exchange.

The health care reform law also allows Idaho to further expand its Medicaid eligibility requirements. But before making a final decision state leaders are re-

"You can't case manage something you don't know about ... all we can do is damage control once its at the hospital."

Dick Armstrong, director of Health and Welfare

questing for more data and research on an expansion's potential impacts.

Idaho has three options it could choose from, according to state leaders speaking at the meeting.

The first option would simply adjust for the new Medicaid requirements but overall, maintain the status quo of the current system.

Using this option will continue to place a heavy burden on counties to cover the costs of indigent care, said Dick Armstrong, director of Health and Welfare. It also doesn't address improving preventive health measures or reducing costs.

"The status quo will be borne by county taxpayer, there are no new tools available," Armstrong said. "You can't case manage something you don't know about, you can't get in front of an incident that is occurring outside of our view, all we can do is damage control once its at the hospital."

The second option would be to maintain the current Medicaid system but redesign the state's indigent program.

The unique system pays for catastrophic medical bills for indigent patients with funds from local property taxes and the state's general fund.

However, the state's indigent program may just need to start over, said Dan Chadwick, executive director of Idaho Association of Counties and workgroup member.

"There is no silver bullet to save this program, none of the providers like this system," he said. "I think we would all like to see it go away, we've worked hard to eliminate the conflicts but it's a difficult system to navigate."

Finally, Idaho could decide to expand its Medicaid eligibility to individuals 138 percent below the poverty level. The federal government has offered to pay for any extra costs to states that choose to expand beyond the bare minimum for three years starting in 2014. By 2020, the federal government will gradually reduce funding to 90 percent.

According to a recent report, expanding Medicaid's eligibility would allow more than 100,000 low-income Idahoans to qualify for insurance.

Creating more opportunities for Idahoans to receive preventive care services will help keep overall health costs down and increase the health of a community, said Mike Baker, "Look around a community, more emergency services are up in counties," he said. "Let's be smarter how we utilize the system."

After listening to the presentations, the workgroup is now requesting a financial break down of how much a Medicaid expansion will impact the state.

The next meeting is scheduled for Oct. 23.

MORE CRYPTO CASES REPORTED

CALDWELL (AP) • State health officials are heightening warnings of a parasite-caused illness in southern Idaho, saying more cases are being reported.

Officials say nearly 30 cases of cryptosporidiosis, known as "crypto," have been reported in Canyon County since August, which is roughly 10 times the average number for this time of year. State health workers reported cases in Gooding, Lincoln, and Twin Falls counties earlier this month.

The parasite cryptosporidium can live in human and animal digestive tracts and can spread through swimming pools and other recreational water sites that are contaminated with human or animal waste. People usually contract the illness by swallowing contaminated water.

In addition to diarrhea, symptoms can include vomiting, weight loss and a low-grade fever.

OPINION

“The big difference is that 100 million people can see football on TV, so the mistakes are glaring. The mistakes that the scabs are making in the factories are behind closed doors.”

Mark Froemeke, who has been locked out of his job as a loader-operator at an American Crystal Sugar Co. plant in East Grand Forks, Minn. for 14 months.

Industry, Universities Must Partner to Train Magic Valley Work Force

The Times-News is to be congratulated on its series of articles regarding employment in the Magic Valley. Those articles identified the obstacles employers have in hiring qualified individuals from the area while at the same time pointing out the problems highly qualified students have in finding employment within the Magic Valley. Finally, they addressed the problem employers have when they hire individuals from out of the local area who come to the Magic Valley only to find out that the surroundings are totally foreign to them. Often, the result is that the employers spend valuable time and money in training those individuals, only to have them leave the area after a short period of employment.

Scott McClure

While these are all accurate observations, I believe they lead us to possible solutions that will benefit the residents of the Magic Valley and the manufacturing facilities in our area. That solution is to provide specialized education for Magic Valley students to make them valuable employees for Magic Valley industries on the day they are hired.

With the concentration of milk, potato and sugar beet processing facilities throughout Southern Idaho there is a noted lack of educational opportunities for students to learn the basic requirements of any processing specialty. While the College of Southern Idaho does an excellent job of teaching basic operational skills, they have only very limited ability to provide introductory engineering, management or specialized technical skills training. This is a need that is not being met.

To provide such educational opportunities would require the commitment of our institutions of higher learning, as well as the processing facilities that would benefit from the program. If this were to be done I believe we would be training, not only exceptional employees for the local industry, but at the same time providing jobs for our children and grandchildren growing up in the Magic Valley who are more likely to stay in the Magic Valley and become loyal and dependable employees.

The question becomes how such an educational program gets started in our area. The first step is to get all involved parties together to determine their willingness to participate in a process industry educational program. Key participants would be representatives of the process industries, CSI, the three state universities and the State Board of Education. That meeting would determine each group's willingness to participate and to financially support such a program. It would also identify what are the greatest industry needs and the universities' ability to satisfy those needs. From that meeting, a plan would be created for introduction to the Legislature and corporate participants to obtain formal buy-in, as would be necessary for the program to move forward.

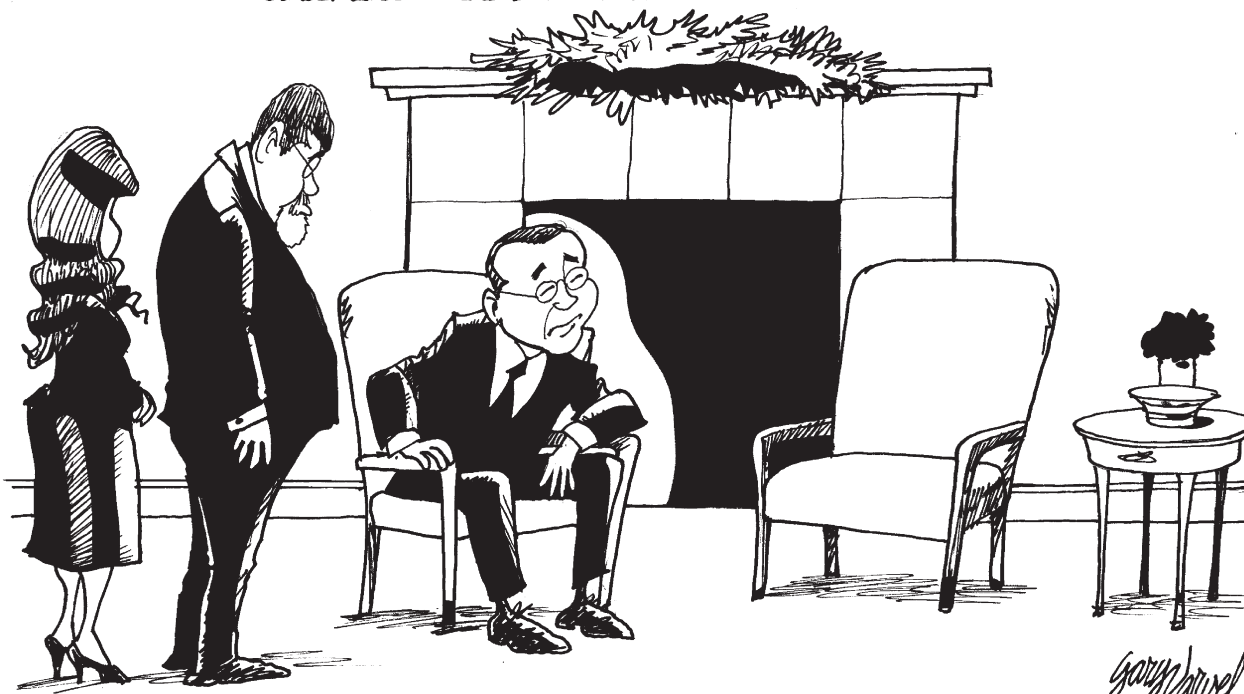

During my years as a member of the advisory council for the Idaho State University College of Engineering, I have seen such cooperative arrangements benefit the University and the industry they serve. An important factor in making such a cooperative effort work is the support of all parties, as well as the community. Neither the universities nor the local industries can create an effective training program on their own. On industry's part, incorporating key management and technical personnel into University educational programs would provide a hands-on knowledge of the challenges faced by the local industries. This would be invaluable in providing the students an understanding of how those industries function.

A further benefit I believe would be in developing a connection between our universities and our industries to the benefit of both. In today's funding climate, universities face serious financial constraints. Any program that allows them to participate in the community while earning additional funds for their institutions should be very attractive to them. On the industry's part, it has been my experience that to survive in today's competitive environment an industry must stay current with modern technology.

So, while the Times-News articles have been very effective in presenting the challenges associated with the Magic Valley employment, I feel their greatest benefit is that they, in an indirect way, have also pointed the way to a solution. If all parties are willing to make the investment in time, money and energy, they can benefit our residents as well as the industries, and take them to the next level of competency, proficiency and innovation.

OUR VIEW

IHSAA Decision on 'Harr Rule' to be Applauded

A month ago, we urged Idaho High School Activities Association board members to re-think what we considered to be a foolish change in the wording of a rule that occasionally allows girls to compete in boys sports.

This past Tuesday they just did that, and in so doing may allow Castleford's Sierra Harr the opportunity to help the two-time state Division 2A champion boys golf team to three-peat this coming spring.

As a reminder, as a freshman Harr won the state 2A girls golf championship by six strokes. Last year, there were not enough girls to field a varsity team in Castleford, which allowed her to compete on the boys team. She finished seventh in the state as a sophomore when competing with boys.

In July, IHSAA directors voted to amend rule 11-1-1 to disallow girls from competing with boys if a sport was "offered" an any level (freshman, JV, varsity) regardless of whether or not a team was formed. We argued that saying a school had a golf program when it didn't have an actual team was semantic nonsense. We also argued that rules should not be altered based upon the circumstances of a single athlete.

The good news is that the IHSAA Board made the right decision, and that female athletes who do not have a sufficient number of teammates go out for a sport will be allowed to play on their school's boys high school team. That's good.

A quote from Minico High School football coach and IHSAA Board member Tim Perrigot, however, indicated that this Tuesday's decision may have still been a little more individual focused that we think is healthy. "It was a very unique situation," Perrigot said, "and I think in the future we'll look at each case on an individual basis." That's not so good. Rules should apply equally regardless of the caliber of how they affect a particular person.

We ended last month's editorial by saying that "high school athletics in Idaho will be better if they are more inclusive and consistently promote a team concept rather than being altered to punish a single top-performing athlete." Going forward, let's be careful not to alter rules to benefit top-performers either.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why Did YMCA Send Out Two Different Letters?

Did you get your letter from the YMCA of Twin Falls yet? Or maybe the question should be which letter did you get from the Y? They sent out at least two different letters (that I know of). The letters were to inform members of fee increases starting Oct. 1, 2012.

However, the letter sent to members paying monthly fees indicated when and how much the fees would be rising. The second letter went to members paying an annual rate and indicated the fee increases, but made note of the fact that if the annual member paid for another year before Oct. 1, they could still get the old rate.

In effect, the annual members get the old rate for one more year, and the only people actually paying the fee increases would be the monthly members or anyone joining after Oct. 1. I take issue with the Y for only giving out this information to the annual members.

While not everyone can afford to pay the annual lump sum for membership, it does not mean that the monthly members should not have had the same access to the information, where they could make an informed decision. According to an employee at the Y this was not a deliberate attempt to keep some members in the dark as to the cost savings, and yet the Y sent out two different letters. That seems deliberate to me. You also have to bring in the "annual" letter if you want the deal. Of course, not everyone got the letter. That seems very deliberate. Shame on the Y.

SUSAN RAMSEYER

Annual Rate Is Available to All YMCA Members

Editor's Note: The Times-News asked the YMCA CEO if he wanted to offer readers an explanation for the two different rate increase letters. He offered this response:

Over the past four years, the board of directors and staff have worked hard and with purpose to improve the YMCA in our community. The community has responded favorably as local YMCA membership has grown from 2,714 to 8,500 members during this time. Every effort has been made to add programs, equipment and staff to meet the needs of all ages and most interests. We currently offer 140 programs and classes weekly and constantly add classes as our member's needs and requests grow. Along the way, a major emphasis has been placed on serving the entire family, especially children.

While none of us want fee increases, investments in the Y must be made in order for us to fully serve our community. The YMCA did, in fact; send out letters to our members to inform them of the fee increase effective Oct. 1, 2012. Because we wanted to be very specific, the annual members received a letter indicating what their new annual fee would be. The members who pay by the month received a letter written to them indicating what their new monthly fee would be. The new fees bring our prices closer in line to what other YMCAs charge in our state for similar services. Over time, these additional fees will help us replace two roofs in need of replacement, repave two parking lots, refurbish four locker rooms, and purchase much-needed major mechanical equipment.

The YMCA stands by the philosophy that "no one will be turned away due to an inability to pay." As such, there are a variety of payment options available to our community members. These individuals then choose the appropriate payment options that best suit their personal circumstances and preferences. The number of members who actually pay for a year in advance is actually a small percentage of the total number of current YMCA members. We did encourage those "annual" members to consider paying for their year in advance in order for us to begin to address some of the aforementioned projects that need attention. Out of respect to their personal payment plan histories and personal circumstances, we felt it inappropriate to send a letter offering a full-price annual membership to our members who have already chosen to pay by other methods. These methods include: paying monthly for an annual membership, paying daily, paying on a financial assistance plan (several hundred YMCA members receive a subsidized rate based on their personal income level), and other short-term membership options. That stated, we naturally would welcome any/all of our members to change their payment plan to the annual payment option and would certainly offer to them the same rate in the letter; which is our current rate. The significant majority of our members have chosen a payment method that is appropriate for their personal or family budget.

We highly value all of our members and appreciate the overwhelming support they have given to us as we have gone through very significant improvement projects, facility changes, and overall upgrades over the past four years. The board of directors and staff feel that the best is still yet to come for our organization, for our Y members, and for our community.

Collapsed Mine Operator to Pay $1 Million in Fines

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) • The operator of the Utah mine that collapsed in 2007, killing nine people, has reached a $1.1 million settlement with the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration over safety violations.

Genwal, an affiliate of Ohio-based Murray Energy Corp., denied Thursday that any of the violations led to the deadly collapse, which leveled a section of the Crandall Canyon mine as large as 63 football fields. From the start, Murray Energy chief Bob Murray insisted that the cave-in was triggered by a natural earthquake.

MSHA chief Joe Main disputed the earthquake theory on Thursday and said Genwal admitted it thinned a coal barrier it should have left standing to hold up the mine. He said the company also failed to revise a roof control plan after ignoring early signs of trouble.

“Our investigation found that it was not an earthquake, but the mining plan and the failure to act” that caused the collapse, Main told The Associated Press.

Genwal accepted 17 safety violations, with four of them contributing to the cave-in, he said. The agency dropped another 3 violations related to the collapse of a coal pillar in another section of the mine five months earlier.

“They allowed the mine to deteriorate and ignored warning signs that contributed to the tragedy,” Main said.

The $1.1 million fine was the third largest ever assessed for a U.S. coal mining operation, said Patricia Smith, the U.S. Department of Labor’s chief lawyer. MSHA levied a $10.8 million fine against the operator of West Virginia’s Upper Big Branch mine for a 2010 explosion that killed 29 workers. It fined Aracoma Coal Co. $4.2 million for a 2006 explosion that killed two West Virginia miners.

Genwal and related subsidiaries previously settled wrongful death lawsuits, together with criminal charges that carried a $500,000 fine.

The collapse at Crandall Canyon was so powerful it registered as a 3.9-magnitude earthquake. It instantly entombed six miners nearly a half-mile underground. Their bodies have never been recovered. Another cave-in 10 days later killed two rescuers and a federal inspector during a frantic effort to tunnel their way to the trapped miners.

Genwal’s mining engineers, Grand Junction, Colo.-based mining consultants Agapito Associates Inc., are fighting a separate $220,000 fine for an allegedly faulty analysis of the mine’s design. Agapito insists MSHA has jurisdiction only over mining operators, not their consulting engineers.

Medical Pot Provider Convicted

HELENA, Mont. (AP) • A jury on Thursday convicted a medical marijuana provider of drug trafficking and firearms charges, upholding the U.S. government’s raids of state-regulated pot dispensaries in its first test at trial.

The provider, Chris Williams, was barred by the trial judge from making the case that he and Montana Cannabis followed the state medical marijuana law that voters approved in 2004. U.S. District Judge Dana Christensen ruled state laws were irrelevant in the case involving alleged violations of the federal Controlled Substances Act.

So Williams all but conceded the federal drug violations of which he is accused — conspiracy and the manufacture, possession and distribution of marijuana. He took the stand Wednesday and told jurors he was the “farmer” for Montana Cannabis’ grow operation in Three Forks and then Helena, from where the drug was distributed to registered users across the state.

George Eberhardt, 107, of Chester, N.J. gets his annual flu shot from nurse Bettie Donnelly last year in Mendham, N.J.

Flu Vaccine Targets New Strains

WASHINGTON (AP) • Time to get your flu vaccine — and a surprising new report shows babies and toddlers seem to be getting protected better than the rest of us.

Last year’s flu shot won’t shield you this year: Two new strains of influenza have begun circling the globe, and the updated vaccine appears to work well against them, government officials said Thursday.

Just because last year was the mildest flu season on record doesn’t mean the virus might not bounce back to its usual ferocity this winter.

“People cannot become complacent this year,” said Dr. Howard Koh, assistant secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, who received his own flu shot Thursday.

A yearly vaccination now is recommended for nearly everybody, but new figures released Thursday show that last year 52 percent of children and just 39 percent of adults were immunized.

Best protected: Three-quarters of tots ages 6 months to 23 months were vaccinated. That’s a significant jump from the previous year, when 68 percent of those youngsters were immunized.

But even though seniors are at especially high risk of severe illness or death if they catch the flu, just 66 percent of them were immunized, a number that has been slowly dropping for several years.

Older adults got a little lost in the recent public health push to explain that flu vaccine benefits all ages — and it’s time to target them again, said Dr. Daniel Jernigan, a flu specialist with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

In contrast, child deaths from flu have made headlines in recent years — the U.S. counted 34 pediatric deaths last year — raising parents’ awareness of the risk, he said.

The only ones who shouldn’t get vaccinated: babies younger than 6 months and people with severe allergies to the eggs used to make the vaccine.

Flu specialists can’t say how bad this winter’s flu season might be. Influenza strains constantly evolve, and some cause more illness than others.

But strains from the H3N2 family tend to be harsher than some other flu types, and a new H3N2 strain is included in this year’s vaccine because it is circulating in parts of the world.

Because of that strain, “I am pretty confident that this year will be a more traditional flu season” than last year, CDC’s Jernigan told The Associated Press. “People won’t have had any real exposure to that.”

Road workers wear protective gear against possible asbestos contamination as they load material from a road resurfacing project in downtown Libby, Mont.

EPA Pushes Tough Asbestos Standard on Montana Town

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) • The federal government is pursuing a tough standard for cleanup of an asbestos-contaminated Montana town that concludes that even a tiny amount of asbestos can cause lung problems.

The Maryland chemical company blamed for the pollution in the town of Libby is fighting the Environmental Protection Agency’s proposal. W.R. Grace & Co. says the standard could cause unnecessary and expensive cleanups nationwide.

The new proposal would demand a standard 5,000 times greater than used in past cleanups for airborne asbestos. An EPA committee held a meeting this week to discuss the objections; a final decision is expected next year.

The cleanup in Libby began in 2000 and is expected to last several more years. About 400 people died of asbestos illnesses linked to a Grace mine.

IDAHO

Idaho Dairy Farmers Can't Get Farm Bill Vote

BY JOHN MILLER

Associated Press

BOISE • Idaho's $2 billion milk industry failed to convince Congress this month to pass the new federal farm bill and its provisions to help dairies mitigate rising grain costs and volatile markets that have pushed them to three quarters of losses.

Though a farm bill cleared the U.S. Senate, it's languished in the House.

Republican House leaders say they didn't have the votes, with conservatives demanding greater cuts in the bill's big food stamp program and Democrats opposing such deep austerity measures. After Congress quit Saturday, the $100 billion farm bill likely won't be voted on until after the Nov. 6 presidential election.

Bob Naerebout, director of the Idaho Dairymens Association, said Wednesday his members are disappointed by the delay, as they want the dairy-related provisions enacted quickly to help them re-emerge from nine months of losses. While grain farmers can wait until next planting season, he said dairies need relief now from rising feed prices that have driven dairies' costs above profitable levels.

"We harvest a crop every day, 365 days of the year,"

"We harvest a crop every day, 365 days of the year. It's critical for us to have stability in the farm bill."

Bob Naerebout, director of the Idaho Dairymens Association

Naerebout said. "It's critical for us to have stability in the farm bill."

Idaho's roughly 553,000 dairy cows and 560 licensed dairies make the state America's third-biggest dairy producer, with about $2 billion in cash receipts. Only California's and Wisconsin's dairy industries are bigger.

But sheer size doesn't equal profitability.

To help make good on losses, Naerebout's members want the federal government to suspend impending new ethanol requirements for gasoline. Ethanol is made from corn, putting refineries in competition with farmers and boosting prices.

But the farm bill was a big hope, too.

The Idaho Dairymens Association has joined similar groups in other states that are pushing the bill's provisions that replace dairy subsidies with an insurance program, to pay farmers when the profit margin evaporates on their milk products. Other changes call for production cuts when demand falls short of supply.

It wasn't these dairy provisions that stalled a 2012 farm bill vote, however.

Rather, stumbling blocks have included differences over how the farm bill's other, higher-profile components should address competing demands: helping low-income families eat, while still contributing to debt reduction.

The food stamp program costs nearly $80 billion a year, 80 percent of the farm bill's spending. House conservatives say that's too generous; some Democrats said cuts to the food stamp program were unacceptable.

In the Senate, U.S. Sens. Mike Crapo and Jim Risch of Idaho voted against the farm bill in June, but it passed 65-35.

In the House, a bill cleared the Agriculture Committee but never got a floor vote despite a dairy industry-backed letter — signed by dozens of House members — sent Sept. 14 asking the chamber's leaders to let lawmakers vote on the bill.

Republican U.S. Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Idaho, signed, too, hoping for a speedy vote to help his constituents in Idaho's dairy country.

Are You Ready for Your Fall Garden Maintenance Tasks?

by Jeffrey Anderson, All About Lawns Columnist

It may not seem like it yet, but summer is winding down and it's almost time to plan your fall garden maintenance. There are some important chores to do before the first frost that can help your flower gardens look their best next spring.

Take time to plan now and you may be able to free up some of those autumn weekends for drives through the countryside in search of pumpkin patches and beautiful changing leaves.

Tips for Fall Garden Maintenance Yard Care

Your summer plants may have provided beautiful blooms, but their time has passed and they need to be cleaned up. Annuals with fading flowers should be removed from the garden along with any weeds that have recently appeared. Also, it is a good time to thin out your perennials by transplanting some plants to other gardens or planting beds. Reducing the number of perennials in an area can help keep them healthy by cutting down on competition for nutrients and water during the winter months.

Planting spring bulbs in the autumn allows their roots to develop all winter, so now may be the time to add some tulips to your landscape.

A few other fall garden maintenance and yard chores to consider include:

- Mulching gardens, shrubs, and trees
- Pruning trees and shrubs
- Fertilizing your lawn with nutrients needed for the long winter
- Removing dead branches, debris, and leaves from your lawn

These are just a few suggestions for getting your garden and yard ready for winter.

Fall is a good time for cleaning and inspecting the gardening and yard tools that served you well all summer, too. Sharpening and lubricating your tools now can keep them in good shape during the winter and save you time next spring.

Grid Locks: Week 5

BY DAVID BASHORE AND RYAN HOWE
dbashore@magicvalley.com
rhowe@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Playoff berths are on the line tonight.

No, you didn't read that wrong. We still have all of October to worry about, but the first playoff berths in the area could be clinched as early as tonight with the right results.

Gooding hosts Kimberly with a chance to earn the first of three 3A playoff berths from the SCIC with a win. Grace visits Hagerman, with the host trying to keep its state-best 16-game unbeaten streak going and deny the Grizzlies an early punch of their 1A-I playoff ticket. Butte County can also wrap up one of the 1A-I spots by beating Shoshone.

For the rest, it's about continuing to jockey for position, bouncing back from a tough loss, or trying to keep from taking on any more water. We sort all that out in this week's Grid Locks.

TWIN FALLS (1-3) AT JEROME (2-3)

The Battle of the Bridge may be a battle for a play-offs spot. Jerome can take a big edge if it moves to 2-0 in the Great Basin Conference, and the Tigers have to feel good about its passing offense going against a Bruin secondary that yielded nearly 300 yards through the air last week. Similarly, Twin Falls has to be happy to have Thomas Corr at quarterback after he missed two weeks with an ankle injury. His presence should add greater balance to the offense and lighten the load on the running back corps, especially since Jason Byce is also the team's anchor at middle linebacker. These games are usually tight, rarely boring. This one's no exception.

Twin Falls 31, Jerome 28

CENTURY (3-2) AT BURLEY (2-2)

In last week's loss at Canyon Ridge, Burley went away from what it does best: throw the football. Quarterback Zander Cook's pass attempts were cut in half: He averaged 33 attempts in previous two games; passed 16 times vs. Canyon Ridge. Sure, it would be ideal if the Bobcats could run the football, but the fact that they average only 64.3 yards rushing per game hints at problems. Meanwhile, Century is a junior-led squad that has found balance with 6-foot-4 QB Shane Rominger and running backs Scot Kuhn and Remy Lambson. The Diamondbacks' losses are to Blackfoot (ranked No. 1 in 4A) and Highland (ranked No. 2 in 5A).

Century 28, Burley 21

WOOD RIVER (1-2) AT MINICO (2-2)

Perhaps the most puzzling outcome of last week was Minico's 36-21 loss to Idaho Falls — a team previously winless and allowing 57 points per outing. Idaho Falls' Post Register dubbed it "the upset of the season. Now the Spartans, who are battling some injuries, look to bounce back with its homecoming against Wood River. Minico has rushed for more than 300 yards in every game so far. The Wolverines are scoring only 8.6 points per game, which won't be enough to top the defending Great Basin Conference champs.

Minico 24, Wood River 16

KIMBERLY (1-3) AT GOODING (5-0)

The Gooding train is rolling right along. Offensively the Senators have gone from spread to smashmouth, with great effect. Win tonight and they'll be in the 3A playoffs with a month to spare. Kimberly finally got its first win of the season last week with an impressive performance at Wood River. Still, the size, speed and depth of Gooding is just too much for the Bulldogs to handle.

Gooding 30, Kimberly 14

CANYON RIDGE (1-3) AT SKYVIEW (3-2)

Canyon Ridge broke into the win column last week when Burley practically gifted the Riverhawks victory by fumbling when all it had to do was run out the clock to win. Skyview is unlikely to be as generous. That, and the Hawks are just plain better.

Skyview 35, Canyon Ridge 14

BUHL (0-4) AT FILER (0-4)

BATTLE OF THE BRIDGE Takes Center Stage

BY NICK RULAND
nruland@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Jerome and Twin Falls have more in common than an innate mutual dislike for each other heading into tonight's "Battle of the Bridge."

They also have more at stake than bragging rights and a tally in the conference win column.

Both the Bruins and Tigers loaded up their non-conference schedules, hoping to thicken their skins for conference play and beyond. And both programs were served a cold plate of comeuppance, combining to lose four games to top teams by an average of twenty points.

"We purposefully toughened up our non-league schedule because the last three years we have gotten to the playoffs and been ousted (early)," Bruins coach Allyn Reynolds said. "Right now, eastern Idaho plays a little more physical football than we do."

The Bruins lost to Hillcrest, Highland and Skyline — two of which are top eastern powers. The Tigers lost to Shelley, Bishop Kelly, and Century — two of which are top powers, one from the east and one from the west.

"They've scheduled us good teams in the state," Jerome quarterback Zach Thibault said. "That will get us ready for conference play."

Jerome started conference play with a 35-2 win over Canyon Ridge. Jerome will be Twin Falls' first conference game. It's the first real conference test for both squads.

But just as common folk from both sides of the bridge would be quick to point out at any mention of the opposing town — the differences end there.

Not just in historical outcomes, as the Bruins have dominated the last quarter century, winning 19 of the last 24 and four of the last five. Not just in schemes, with the Tigers' pass-happy spread and the Bruins' balanced attack. The biggest difference is a known unknown. It's likely that just

BSU to Face New Mexico's New Option

BY DAVE SOUTHORN
Idaho Press-Tribune

BOISE • New Mexico attempted 35 passes per game last season. In coach Bob Davie's first season in Albuquerque, the Lobos are throwing 14 per game.

When the former Notre Dame coach took over this past spring, he implemented an offensive scheme quite a bit different from the quick-passing system the Lobos had used the previous three seasons.

New Mexico is running the option — and doing a pretty good job of it — heading into Saturday's home game against No. 24 Boise State, ranking 21st overall in rushing offense at 234.8 yards per game.

"You don't really see it much anymore, so it's always a challenge," Boise State defensive tackle Mike Atkinson said. "You have to be focused on your assignment, make sure you don't get caught peeking."

Davie and his staff have used various looks for the option attack, often lining up in the Nevada-type Pistol formation, utilizing the triple option, while also using Wildcat formations and speed options.

The result has been two 300-plus yard games (both wins) and 939 yards on the ground thus far. The Lobos had 1,358 yards on the ground all of last season, finishing 103rd nationally.

"I think the option-style offense is the great equalizer," Davie said.

What also has made the option offense successful for the Lobos is an ability to get multiple ball carriers involved.

Five Lobos have at least 14 carries and 86 yards rushing so far, led by junior Kasey Carrier's 192 yards on 37 carries. Carrier ran for a career-high 129 yards in New Mexico's 27-14 win over New Mexico State last Saturday. A high school teammate of Boise State's Sam Ukwuachu, Carrier ran for a team-high 373 yards in 2010, but sat out last season with an ankle injury.

"It's really tough to have to sit and watch and see our team struggle, knowing you can't help," Carrier said. "So, to go out and have my best game and help us beat our rival was pretty special."

Going from a spread offense that averaged 3.4 yards per carry to one that is getting just more than 5.0 yards per carry seems to be a pretty drastic change, but Carrier said the transition was not too difficult.

"It's definitely a lot different," he said. "But we have some good offensive

0-4 Vandals Desperate, Defiant Ahead of N.C. Trip

BY BEN HANDEL
Moscow-Pullman Daily News

MOSCOW • Idaho coach Robb Akey sounded a bit less optimistic than normal and more like the coach of a winless team fighting for his job after falling to Wyoming in a heart-breaking 40-37 overtime loss Saturday at the Kibbie Dome.

"It was a hell of a football game and our players fought their ever-loving tails off," Akey said Monday. "We were one play from sitting in here and talking about how happy we are to finally get the monkey off of our back. We're one play away, one inch away."

Akey said the most frustrating fact was how it was the Vandals' own mistakes that cost the team the game.

"We created our own adversity; we let our mistakes beat us," he said. "We had those two turnovers, which led to 14 points. We had opportunities to put them away and we didn't."

Despite coming up short yet again and dropping to 0-4, Akey emphasized that only one play could have swung the balance and changed Idaho's fate.

"I'm going to focus on the growth that we've had, because really we're talking about the outcome of one play," Akey said. "Why should I let that affect how I treat these guys? Even if we

Declo Wins Battle of the Hornets

BY RYAN HOWE

rhowe@magicvalley.com

DECLO • At Wednesday's practice, Declo volleyball coach Keri Wilson scribbled a simple, straightforward message on the board: "We will beat Oakley. We will do everything in our power to beat them."

It worked. No question, Declo's determination and winning attitude was the difference in its straight-set victory over its Cassia County rival.

"We kept our mindset that we were going to beat them. We had it all together tonight," said senior Mariah Duncan, who dropped eight kills.

The Hornets in orange and black dominated from start to finish, winning 25-11, 25-9, 25-18. Declo remained unbeaten in the Canyon Conference (5-0) and improved to 8-4 overall.

Declo totaled 34 kills, led by Bailey Wilson with 13. Malorie Bowen shut down the middle with 10 blocks.

With one of its best passing efforts of the season, Declo gave setter Kelcie Carpenter good balls to work with as she tallied 27 assists.

"The passing was amazing tonight, and it just made the plays that much easier to make," Carpenter said.

RYAN HOWE • TIMES-NEWS

Declo's Rachel Moore (10) and Kelcie Carpenter block Oakley's Paige Cooper (7) Thursday at Declo High School.

Oakley (7-8 overall, 2-4 Canyon) was led by Malloory Critchfield, who made 11 digs, nine kills and five blocks. Kelsey Martin and Savannah Berlinguet had 10 digs apiece.

With one starting outside hitter already on the bench with her hand in a cast, it didn't help Oakley's cause when another outside, Kindra Lind, went out with an injury in the first set.

"It was a bad night. We're a much better team than that," said Oakley coach Josh Aston. "We just didn't come ready to play."

the performance of the offense, which racked up over 500 yards and tallied 37 points. Ryan Bass led the ground game with 121 yards rushing, while Dominique Blackman passed for 306 yards and three touchdowns.

"I think (Blackman) has come a long ways in a lot of ways and has a good understanding of what needs to be done," Akey said. "I love the swagger and confidence that comes with Dom, but he also needs to be focused and challenged."

Kicker Trey Farquhar had an impressive game as well, hitting field goals from 53, 49 and 29 yards. He was honored by College Football Performance Awards as the national kicker of the week.

"I had a long conversation with my coaches about what we did well because I am tired of hearing about all the negative crap," Akey said. "That focus on what's good, what's right, that's what's going to help us. I let everyone else have fun with the negative crap because there is plenty of it out there."

Things won't get any easier for Idaho this week as it travels to face North Carolina. If the Vandals hope to have success against the Tar Heels, they will need to put the past behind them and execute for a full 60 minutes of football — something Akey is still confident his team can do.

"To the outside world, I've got to be the worst coach in the country, we're one of the worst teams on God's green earth, but that's not where we're at," Akey said. "When we have success on the scoreboard, then everybody else is going to come along and join that party with us."

linemen, and all our running backs and quarterbacks are just good football players. We can adapt. It took a little getting used to, but I think we picked it up quickly. Of course, as a running back, I love it."

With loving the ground game, the Lobos also are loving keeping the ball away from opposing offenses. The ground-centric offense has averaged 31 minutes, 44 seconds of possession per game, including a 38:15-21:45 advantage against New Mexico State.

"It's going to be really tough," Boise State coach Chris Petersen said. "... They hold the ball from you. You don't get a lot of possessions. It's very awkward. You don't see it a lot."

Though the Broncos have yielded just 188 yards on the ground in their last two games combined, they opened against a run-centric team, and Michigan State ran for 213 yards in that contest. It's safe to say the red-hot Boise State defense wants to show it can stop a team completely committed to the run.

"Definitely — can't wait," Atkinson said.

Bruins

one of the teams will prove it has what takes to advance in the playoffs. In the previous three years, only one team from the Great Basin Conference — Twin Falls in 2009 — has won a playoff game.

"We need to start playing with a sense of urgency," Reynolds said.

If the Bruins have a chance at making and advancing in the playoffs, they will have to improve on third downs on both offense and defense. Last week they gave up a game-winning 50-yard touchdown run on a draw. On offense, they've only converted 30 percent of the time — they're shooting for 60 percent. They should improve their numbers this week with the return of quarterback Thomas Corr, who's healthy after suffering a sprained ankle against Highland three weeks ago.

"We did a lot of challenges this week that were third-down oriented," Corr said.

According to Reynolds, the Bruins' biggest key to winning will be keeping Jerome's offense, with Thibault and his 14 touchdown passes, off the field.

"Jerome can score anytime with that spread offense," Corr said. "They are always scrappy, regardless of how good they are."

"Their offense has a chance to score quick and often, so we're just trying to get them off the field by winning third down," Reynolds said.

The perspective from the north side of the bridge is different. Thibault thinks that if his defense can make the occasional stop, his offense can cut down on turnovers — Thibault has 10 on the year — and take advantage of Twin Falls' conservative defensive scheme, it should win.

"I'm working on keeping my eyes on the middle of the field and reading the blitz," Thibault said. "They're a 4-4 cover 3 team. From what I've seen on film, they're not going to stop our screen game if our guards and tackles can get out on them. Their outside linebackers aren't very physical."

Naturally, Thibault and his teammates will deliver a slightly different presentation of that message to the Bruins on the field Friday night.

"There will be some trash talking," Thibault said. "This rivalry is about respect and pride. I know that we're 2-3 and we haven't gained respect from throughout the Magic Valley and conference. People think we will roll over."

As if the Tigers needed more motivation.

Thibault's former teammate is defensive back Michael Roberts, who will take the field in blue instead of orange tonight.

"I'm not sure how it's going to be," Roberts said. "I've been thinking about it all week."

Roberts said he had not shared any inside secrets of the Tigers' personnel or schemes, but Thibault indicated some concern at the prospect of Roberts taking advantage of knowing his passing tendencies.

"He's one of my friends," Thibault said. "On the field I'm going to take it to him, but off the field I have a lot of respect for him."

The team Roberts plays on now downplayed the rivalry Thursday.

"It's the same routine every week," Roberts said. "But I grew up with a lot of those kids there, they are my brothers. I have a deep respect for a lot of them, but I'd like to walk away with a win tomorrow."

because the schools are separated by 9 miles. The Indians need a win both to avoid going 0-2 in the SCIC and to boost its playoff chances, while Filer, which has lost its last 13 games dating back to 2010, just needs a win from anywhere.

WENDELL (2-2) ATDECLO (4-0)

Declo shut out three of its four opponents while averaging 48 points per game. Wendell is coming off a convincing victory against Valley last week. The Trojans have emerged as arguably the second-best team in the Canyon Conference — second to Declo, of course.

Declo 42, Wendell 6

OAKLEY (0-4) AT VALLEY (1-3)

Oakley and Valley both need a win to avoid falling to 0-2 in the Canyon Conference and, essentially, out of state playoff contention.

Valley 28, Oakley 21

GRACE (5-0) ATHAGERMAN (4-0)

Possibly the 8-man game of the year. Grace is unique in that it makes most of its headway through the air, piling up passing yards and points. It worked well enough to beat Butte County, seen by many (us included) as the chief threat to Hagerman's run at back-to-back state titles. Instead it's the Grizzlies that come calling first. But as unique as Grace is, Hagerman's uniquely qualified to deal with it. Athletes all over the field, not least under center with junior Kade Kress, affords Hagerman a chance not only to slow Grace's attack but make counterthrusts of its own. That, combined with home field, should keep the beat rolling for Kress and Co.

Hagerman 36, Grace 24

BUTTE COUNTY (3-1) ATSHOSHONE (1-3)

Shoshone can light up the scoreboard, averaging 42 points last three games. But can the Indians, who allow 51 points per game, stop anyone? That will be a tough challenge against a potent Butte County squad that is coming off its first loss of the season and is undoubtedly hungry to bounce back, especially when a win means a playoff spot.

Butte County 50, Shoshone 27

LIGHTHOUSE CHRISTIAN (4-1) AT ROCKLAND (1-2)

Rockland couldn't stop Castleford's power and defensive discipline. Lighthouse Christian has power and speed. As long as the Lions keep their defensive assignments, look out.

Lighthouse Christian 56, Rockland 12

CAMAS COUNTY (2-1) ATRICHFIELD (0-2)

Richfield has to be champing at the bit. The Tigers have only played two games and are sitting on two weeks' rest, since scheduled games with Jackpot and North Valley were canceled. The time off should neither hinder nor help Richfield, since Camas County is also coming off a bye week.

Camas County 44,

Richfield 34

HANSEN (1-3) ATCHALLIS (3-2)

Hansen goes on the road for its third consecutive week. The Huskies lost to Challis by just one touchdown last year, and this one should be just as close.

Challis 30, Hansen 24

CARLIN, NEV. (1-3) ATCAREY (2-2)

This is pick-up game for Carey, which was originally supposed to play North Valley Academy this week. The Raiders were one of the better 8-man teams in northern Nevada the last few years but the luster has worn off. Similarly, the Panthers are at .500 this late in the season for the first time in ... well, we can't remember. Neither team is what it was a few years ago, but the Panthers have a point to prove, and it's not just that they haven't fallen as far as Carlin.

Carey 48, Carlin 22

Last week: 11-5.

Season: 57-19.

Referee Ed Hochuli (85) signals during the second quarter of a Dec. 24, 2011 game between the Detroit Lions and the San Diego Chargers in Detroit. The NFL and referees' union reached a tentative agreement on Wednesday to end a three-month lockout that triggered a wave of frustration and anger over replacement officials and threatened to disrupt the rest of the season.

CHEERS AS NFL REFS RETURN

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE • Referee Gene Steratore turned on his microphone to greet the captains of the Cleveland Browns and Baltimore Ravens for the pre-game coin toss Thursday night.

“Good evening, men,” Steratore said. “It’s good to be back.”

The stadium erupted in a roar.

Yes, the real refs are back. Official harmony is restored to the NFL.

Steratore and his seven-man crew donned their familiar stripes for the first game of Week 4 after three weeks of replacement officials created moments of chaos throughout the league. For a change, everyone on all sides was happy to see the familiar faces they usually love to boo.

“You know we always pride ourselves in being a face without a name,” Steratore, a 10-year league veteran, told The Associated Press about an hour before kickoff. “This will be a little different, but I don’t expect it to last too long. And that’s the goal — is that we can let them get through that portion of this. It’s happy to be back, it’s happy to be appreciated. But then as soon as the game starts, it’s happy to disappear again and let the entertainers entertain.”

The welcome-back love began early. About an hour before kickoff, the officials walked on the field and heard cheers from the early arrivals. A few minutes later, Steratore was shaking hands with Browns coach Pat Shurmur near midfield and getting a hug from Ravens face-of-the-franchise Ray Lewis at the 30-yard line.

Later, when the crew returned, they walked on the field they received a standing ovation and doffed their caps to the crowd. One fan held up a sign that read: “Finally! We get to yell at real refs! Welcome back!”

“The other refs just made dumb calls,” said Jessie Riley, a 15-year-old fan wearing an Ed Reed jersey. “I couldn’t stand them. Now we won’t get robbed; everything will be fair — hopefully!”

A lockout of the league’s regular officials ended late Wednesday, two days after a disputed touchdown catch on the last play of “Monday Night Football” brought debate over the use of the replacements to a fevered pitch nationwide. The Seattle Seahawks were awarded the score — and a 14-12 win — over the Green Bay Packers, a result that Commissioner Roger Goodell acknowledged “may have pushed the parties further along” in the talks.

“Obviously when you go through something like this it is painful for everybody,” Goodell said. “Most importantly, it is painful for our fans. We are sorry to have to put our fans through that, but it is something that in the short term you sometimes have to do to make sure you get the right kind of deal for the long term and make sure you continue to grow the game.”

The deal is only tentative — it must be ratified by 51 percent of the union’s 121 members in a vote scheduled for today and Saturday in Dallas — but both sides nevertheless went forward with the plan to have the regulars back for Thursday’s game.

So Steratore hustled to Baltimore, making the 3½-hour drive Thursday morning from his home in the Pittsburgh area. He’s usually in place the day before a game, but none of his regular pregame meetings had to be changed because the Browns-Ravens game was at night.

“Very elated to be back,” he said. “It feels like being back home.”

Steratore, who is a basketball official in the Big East Conference among others, also was fully aware he would be booed the first time he makes a questionable call — just like always.

“Without a question,” he said. “I’ve been yelled at by my own children many times, so this won’t be any different.”

Steratore and his crew set up shop in the designated “Officials Locker Room” in the bowels of the stadium. He emerged about 2½ hours before kickoff to talk briefly to a stadium official about the wireless on-field microphone the referee wears. He later held a regular pregame meeting with stadium crew, telling them to “make sure we run this thing as smoothly” as they had in his previous visits to Baltimore.

Steratore then walked down the tunnel and onto the field, pacing the sidelines with little fanfare because he was still wearing his coat and tie.

The lockout was ended after marathon negotiations produced an eight-year agreement to end the lockout that began in June.

“Those guys might mess up every now and then, but we can live with that happening with professional guys out there,” Detroit Lions receiver Calvin Johnson said.

For the Packers, Redskins, Lions and other teams who voiced their displeasure with calls that might have swayed games, the agreement doesn’t change their records. The commissioner said he watched Monday night’s frenetic Packers-Seahawks finish at home.

“You never want to see a game end like that,” he said.

The new agreement will improve officiating in the future, Goodell asserted, reducing mistakes like those made Monday and making the strains of the last three weeks worthwhile.

Goodell acknowledged “you’re always worried” about the perception of the league.

“Obviously, this has gotten a lot of attention,” he said. “It hasn’t been positive, and it’s something that you have to fight through and get to the long term. ... We always are going to have to work harder to make sure we get people’s trust and confidence in us.”

Be Wary of Spies at the Ryder Cup

There are, apparently, spies lurking on the golf course, which is why the Americans have been so careful in practice this week to avoid putting toward anything that looks as if it might be a possible hole location in the Ryder Cup.

It seems a bit silly, but for the people involved in this biennial golf match between a country and a continent, this is serious stuff.

That double breaker the Europeans might not see could cost one of them a hole. Cutting the rough down could determine another match.

That could be the difference between Europe retaining the Ryder Cup, or the U.S. winning the little trophy that no one ever cared much about before the Euros started taking it away. And that might be the difference between a golf world dominated by people whose ancestors invented the game or those who helped perfect it.

Should I go on? You want your next sleeve of Titleists stamped “Made in Europe?”

Never mind that the 12 Europeans are fairly sophisticated players who should be able to read a putt if it was in a canyon on Mars. For the most part they’ve all shown they can play under pressure, even if Michael Jordan is following them in his golf cart with a menacing look on his face.

But figuring out a way to win a team match in an individual game has perplexed team captains for years. There’s no logic to it, as evidenced by Tiger Woods being on only one winning team in his career.

When the U.S. did pull out a win at Valhalla four years ago, captain Paul Azinger wrote a book about it. Something about pods and personalities and how that gets the ball in the hole in less strokes than your opponent, it has yet to be made into a movie.

Davis Love III might not have a book in him, even if the U.S. captain manages to lead his charges to a win in this one. That’s a good thing, because there’s been so much analysis in the golf community — including 50 hours of Golf Channel alone this week — about what the two teams have to do to win that watching Justin Timberlake recite a golf poem set to music at the opening ceremony Thursday was as much a relief as it was a giggle.

Still, some questions remain to be answered before play finally begins this morning. Among them are:

- Is it better to have the old Woods — who would barely acknowledge his opponent’s existence — or the new one who is BFF with Rory McIlroy?

Woods is a mediocre 13-14-2 in the Ryder Cup, so his new cheerful attitude with his playing partners — the intimidator McIlroy in particular — can’t hurt.

- Will Medinah Country Club with no rough favor the U.S. as Love hopes? Or should he also have ordered all the ponds drained just in case an errant shot by one of the Americans went toward the water? Europeans, as we have found out in recent Ryder Cups, have special balls that are magnetically repelled from both rough and water during crucial matches.

- Will Europeans understand what a red-out is? The PGA of America is taking a page from collegiate arenas by asking fans to wear red on Sunday to support the home team. Might work, though comically enough the PGA also is asking fans at home to wear red, too.

- Does ping pong really strengthen the soul? For some reason, U.S. players like to play ping pong — and a lot of it. They’re convinced ping pong brings the team together, and to make sure they’ve got three tables in the team room this year instead of two.

- Will the U.S. have another equipment malfunction? It rained at the Ryder Cup in Wales two years ago on the opening day, and U.S. players were soaked in their leaky rain gear. They never seemed to recover, and Europe ended up regaining the cup.

- Will Jordan as an assistant coach advise the U.S. to play zone or man-to-man against the Euros? More importantly, will he step up to take out McIlroy with a well-placed screen if needed?

- Does Love understand the concept of dollar beer day? Imagine the possibilities on Sunday with tens of thousands of well lubricated fans cheering the home team on.

It’s all been analyzed more than Jim Furyk’s swing, picked apart more than Tiger’s brain. If recent Ryder Cup history is any example, though, it’s not all that difficult to figure out.

The team that makes the most putts will win.

Detroit’s Cabrera Chasing Triple Crown

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT • Miguel Cabrera’s drive sailed high into the Detroit night — so high, in fact, that left fielder Alex Gordon had time to drift over to the fence and wait a couple seconds before reaching over and robbing the slugger of a home run.

That snapshot was a good example of why nobody has won baseball’s Triple Crown in 45 years. It takes a special blend of power, discipline, consistency — and yes, luck, if you believe in such a thing. But Cabrera is making perhaps the strongest bid since Carl Yastrzemski accomplished the feat in 1967.

With six games remaining, Detroit’s 29-year-old third baseman tops the American League in batting average and RBIs and trails home run leader Josh Hamilton by only one.

“I heard a lot from the fans about the Triple Crown. I can’t repeat most of it, but I’m sure you can guess,” said Gordon, the Kansas City outfielder who did his part to slow Cabrera’s pursuit by taking that homer away Wednesday night. “Miguel puts up these numbers every year, so it isn’t a surprise that he’s got a chance at the Triple Crown. I think that, some year, he’ll probably do it. He’s just an incredible hitter, and he’s respected by everyone in the game.”

Detroit Tigers first baseman Miguel Cabrera swings in the on-deck circle before batting against the Kansas City Royals on Wednesday in Detroit.

Cabrera won his first batting title last year, hitting .344 to complete a “career triple crown” after winning home run and RBI titles in previous seasons. Now he’s trying to become the first player since Yastrzemski to sweep all three categories at the same time. Since 1967, the Triple Crown has been even more elusive in baseball than in horse racing.

Yastrzemski figures it’s only a matter of time before somebody new joins the club. Since his Triple Crown season, other seemingly unapproachable marks have been surpassed.

“When Rose broke Cobb’s hit record, I never thought that would happen,” Yastrzemski said. “When Ripken broke Gehrig’s consecutive game record, I never thought that would happen either. So it’s going to happen.”

In 1967, Yastrzemski hit .326 with 44 homers and 121 RBIs — a feat somewhat overshadowed at the time by a memorable pennant race in which his Boston Red Sox outlasted Detroit and Minnesota by a single game. Cabrera is in a similar spot. The Tigers are in a tense race with the Chicago White Sox atop the AL Central.

After Thursday’s 5-4 victory over Kansas City, Cabrera is hitting .326 with 42 homers and 133 RBIs.

“I want to keep my game the same way,” Cabrera said recently. “I don’t want to put extra pressure because we’ve got a lot of pressure right now in our division. I think it’s going to be a big mistake if I put extra pressure on myself.”

Greenberg to Get 1-day Chance with Marlins

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI • Adam Greenberg has faced one pitch in the major leagues, a 92 mph fastball that struck him in the head and changed his life.

More than seven years later, the Miami Marlins are giving him a second chance.

The Marlins said Thursday that they have signed Greenberg to a one-day contract, effective Oct. 2, and will play him that day against the New York Mets. Greenberg made his big league debut for the Chicago Cubs on July 9, 2005 against the Marlins, getting one plate appearance but no official at-bat.

“Life’s going to throw you curveballs — or fastballs in the back of your head,” Greenberg said on a conference call Thursday morning. “I got hit by one of them. And it knocked me down and I could have stayed there. I had a choice ... and I chose to get up and get back in the box.”

The Marlins publicly extended the invitation to Greenberg on NBC’s “Today” show Thursday morning. Greenberg, however, said team president David Samson called him Sunday night to actually tell him of the team’s plans to sign him to a one-day deal.

“I’m extremely proud to extend this opportunity to Adam,” Marlins owner Jeffrey Loria said in a statement.

Marlins manager Ozzie Guillen said Greenberg may start.

“I might start him in left field and have him lead off,” Guillen said before Thursday night’s game in Atlanta. “If he hits a home run, he stays!”

Sandra Lynn Eckert

March 5, 1949-Sept. 24, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Sandra Lynn Eckert passed away at her home Monday, Sept. 24, 2012, surrounded by her loving family.

Sandy was born March 5, 1949, in Worcester, Mass., to Robert and Maude Plouf. At the age of 3, she moved to California with her family after her father was recruited by Howard Hughes as a master tool and die maker. Growing up, Sandy loved participating in competitive go-cart racing. Sandy was a driven student where she excelled in her studies. Throughout her school years, she was in the gifted and accelerated learning programs. In 1967, she graduated from Cleveland High School in the San Fernando Valley, Calif.

In 1970, she met Tom, the love of her life, and they were married later that year. They were blessed with three children, Danielle, Wendy Ann and Richard. They were later sealed for time and all eternity in the Los Angeles LDS Temple. As a mother of three, she continued her education at Cerritos Junior College and Long Beach State, where she received her bachelor's degree. She was the only and first female at that time to receive two money scholarships from the same institution at the same time.

Sandy worked as a credit counselor and also worked for the city of Downey California Library. Due to her love of literature, Sandy decided to further pursue her education at San Jose State University in San Jose, Calif., where she graduated with honors with her master's degree in library science. While obtaining her master's degree, Sandy worked full time for the city of Riverside Library. After obtaining her degree, Sandy was promoted to librarian. She was integral in implementing a computer lab into the library program. She was selected to participate in a research program at the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, which included security software and hardware implementation for the library. During this time, Sandy volunteered countless hours teaching underprivileged children how to read and write and helped them with their homework. She was a lifetime member of the Omicron Nu National Honor Society.

On Sept. 9, 2005, after serving more than 25 years in library service, Sandy retired from the Riverside Library, and she and Tom moved to Twin Falls, Idaho. Sandy found great joy in her family. She was a master at sewing, quilting, embroidery and needlepoint.

Sandy is survived by her husband, Tom; her children, Danielle Hession of North Hollywood, Calif., Wendy Ann (Mark) Eckler of Boise and Richard (Jill) Eckert of Twin Falls; five grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren. She is also survived by her sister, Audrey Ware of Twin Falls; her brother, Robert (Colleen) Plouf of Portland, Ore.; and numerous nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents.

A funeral service will be held in her honor at 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28, at the Caswell LDS Chapel, 824 Caswell Ave. W. in Twin Falls, with Bishop Brent Stanger officiating. Burial will be at Sunset Memorial Park. Friends may call from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 27, at White Mortuary, 136 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, or one hour prior to the service Friday at the church.

Gloria Lucy Roach

Oct. 9, 1925-Sept. 26, 2012

TWIN FALLS • Gloria Lucy Roach passed away peacefully Wednesday, Sept. 26, 2012, at her daughter's home in Twin Falls.

She was born in Monongahela, Pa., on Oct. 9, 1925, to William and Mabel Smith. She had three daughters. In 1977, she traveled to Sun Valley while visiting her daughter in Twin Falls and fell in love with the area. In 1979, she made Sun Valley her home. She was a member and elder of the Church of the Big Wood, served on the library board and worked at the SNRA. She retired from the Forest Service when she was 82. Cross-country skiing, hiking, birds and wildflowers became her passion. "If you are going to live in the mountains, you had better learn how to ski and enjoy their beauty." The Church of the Big Wood and the Forest Service became her second and third family. Jason Bacon, Sergio and Ana spent many hours at "grandma's/nana's" climbing her mountain. She was always ready to extend a hand to help.

Robert Dean Samuelson

April 27, 1918-Sept. 26, 2012

DECLO • Robert Dean Samuelson (Bob), 94, of Declo, passed away Wednesday, Sept. 26, 2012, at Countryside Care and Rehabilitation Center in Rupert.

Bob was born April 27, 1918, in Holdrege, Neb. His parents were Swedish immigrants who farmed first in Nebraska and then moved the family to Colorado in 1929 during the dark days of the Depression. Bob learned to work hard at a very young age and to always put family first. He lost his father in 1941 and became the sole supporter of his mother and two of his three sisters. After the war, they sold the farm and moved into town. There, Bob tried mining, construction and ranch help before settling on the trade of mechanic. At a dance in Estes Park, Colo., Bob met Helen Perdue. They married on New Year's Eve 1948 during a record-breaking snow storm. Bob and Helen were married for 64 years before Helen's passing in March of 2012.

In 1953, Bob responded to an ad in a Denver paper for a diesel mechanic in Burley, Idaho. He packed up his family, which now included two children, Vicky and Bobby, and went to work for the Chisholm brothers — a job he kept for the next 17 years. When not fixing farm machinery, Bob was building a small herd of beef cattle and looking to move to the country. In 1970, the family, which now included Larry and Cindy, purchased a farm north of Declo. Soon they were running a small dairy and Bob was able to be an independent mechanic.

After retiring in 1982, Bob and Helen were able to spend time traveling. They were very active in the Burley chapter of the Good Sam and the Burley United Methodist Church. Bob loved horses and continued to ride well into his 70s. He participated in several trail rides, traveling as far as Arco on his beloved horse, Nicky. Bob took his first golf lesson at 75, was still hunting in his 80s, and learned to sing at 93.

Bob is survived by his son, Larry Samuelson (Cindy) of Declo; daughters, Vicky Estridge of Twin Falls and Cindy Povlsen (John) of Heyburn; six grandchildren; and eight great-grandsons. In addition to his wife, Helen, he was preceded in death by his parents; three sisters; one brother; and two sons, Danny and Bobby.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 1, at the Burley United Methodist Church, 450 E. 27th St. in Burley, where friends and family may call one hour prior to the service. Officiating will be the Rev. Kathy Abend. Burial will be in the Pleasant View Cemetery under the direction of the Rasmussen Funeral Home of Burley.

'Moon River' Crooner Andy Williams Dies at Age 84

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) • For the older — OK, squarer — side of the generation gap, Andy Williams was part of the soundtrack of the 1960s and '70s, with easy-listening hits such as "Moon River," the "Love Story" theme and "The Most Wonderful Time of the Year" from his beloved Christmas TV specials. The singer known for his wholesome, middle-America appeal was the antithesis of the counterculture.

"The old cliché says that if you can remember the 1960s, you weren't there," Williams once recalled. "Well, I was there all right, but my memory of them is blurred — not by any drugs I took but by the relentless pace of the schedule I set myself."

The 84-year-old entertainer, who died Tuesday night at his Branson home following a yearlong battle with bladder cancer, outlasted many of the decade's rock stars and fellow crooners such as Frank Sinatra and Perry Como. He remained on the charts into the 1970s and continued to perform into his 80s.

Williams became a major star in 1956, the same year as Elvis Presley, with the Sinatra-like swing number "Canadian Sunset." For a time, he was pushed into such Presley imitations as "Lips of Wine" and the No. 1 smash "Butterfly."

But he mostly stuck to what he called his "natural style" and kept it up throughout his career. In 1970, when even Sinatra had temporarily retired, Williams was in the top 10 with the theme from "Love Story," the Oscar-winning tearjerker. He had 18 gold records, three platinum and five Grammy Award nominations.

Movie songs became a specialty, including his signature "Moon River." The longing Johnny Mercer-Henry Mancini ballad was his most famous song, even though he never released it as a single because his record company feared such lines as "my huckleberry friend" were too confusing and old-fashioned for teens. The song was first performed by Audrey Hepburn in the cherished 1961 film "Breakfast at Tiffany's," but Mancini thought "Moon River" ideal for Williams, who recorded it in "pretty much one take" and also sang it at the 1962 Academy Awards. Although "Moon River" was covered by countless artists and became a hit single for Jerry Butler, Williams made the song his personal brand.

He had been a constant presence on television with "The Andy Williams Show," which lasted in various formats through the 1960s and into 1971. It won three Emmys and featured Williams alternately performing his stable of hits and bantering with guest stars. It was on that show that Williams — who launched his own career as part of an all-brother quartet — introduced the world to another clean-cut act: the original four singing Osmond Brothers of Utah. Four decades later, the Osmonds and Williams would find themselves in close proximity again, sharing Williams' theater in Branson.

Williams did book some rock and soul acts, including the Beach Boys, the Temptations and Smokey Robinson. On one show, in 1970, Williams sang "Heaven Help Us All" with Ray Charles, Mama Cass and a then-little known Elton John, a vision to Williams in his rhinestone glasses and black cape. But Williams liked him and his breakthrough hit "Your Song" enough to record it himself.

For many families, Williams and his music were a holiday tradition. His annual Christmas specials continued long after his show ended, featuring Williams dressed in colorful sweaters singing favorites that almost always included "The Most Wonderful Time of the Year," a song written for Williams that became a holiday standard.

He and his second wife, the former Debbie Haas, divided their time between homes in Branson and Palm Springs, Calif., where he spent his leisure hours on the golf course when Branson's theaters were dark during the winter months following Christmas.

Williams is survived by his wife and his three children.

Possible Hoffa Burial Site Draws Visitors

ROSEVILLE, Mich. (AP) • There are innumerable theories about where former Teamsters leader Jimmy Hoffa was buried years ago, but his remains have never turned up.

The latest tip has taken investigators to a concrete driveway behind a neat brick ranch-style home about four miles north of Detroit, where a man told police he thought he saw Hoffa buried about 35 years ago. Soil samples will be taken Friday and sent to a forensic anthropologist at Michigan State University to test for human decomposition. Results are not expected before next week. News of the search has brought attention to the mostly working- and middle-class suburb from both the curious and naysayers. Slowly moving vehicles have clogged the residential street as camera-wielding neighbors snapped photos for keepsakes.

Hoffa was last seen July 30, 1975, outside a restaurant in Oakland County, more than 30 miles to the west. Feisty and iron-willed in contract talks, Hoffa was an acquaintance of mobsters and adversary to federal officials. The day he disappeared, Hoffa was supposed to meet with a New Jersey Teamsters boss and a Detroit Mafia captain.

After the latest tip, Roseville police contacted the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, which last week used ground-penetrating radar to detect an anomaly, or shift, in the soil. Police Chief James Berlin told The Associated Press Thursday that his office is "not claiming it's Jimmy Hoffa" beneath the slab, but that they

Christians Hold Prayer Assembly on Independence Mall

PHILADELPHIA (AP) • Christian conservatives who blame "moral depravity" for everything from the recession to terrorism are converging on Philadelphia for a rally they hope will spark a religious revival as Election Day nears.

Called "America for Jesus 2012," the prayer assembly on Independence Mall is attracting support across a spectrum of Protestant clergy and activists. Among the scheduled speakers are religious broadcaster Pat Robertson and Family Research Council president Tony Perkins, along with preachers such as Cindy Jacobs of Generals International ministry who say they're prophets with a direct line to God. Many backers had also endorsed "The Response," the prayer rally hosted last year by Texas Gov. Rick Perry just before he entered the GOP presidential primary.

John Blanchard, national coordinator for "America for Jesus 2012," said the two-day event starting Friday night is nonpartisan. It's modeled after the 1980 "Washington for Jesus" rally, considered a pivotal show of organizational strength by the then-fledgling Christian right. Bishop Anne Gimenez, whose late husband John helped lead the 1980 assembly, is a lead organizer of the Philadelphia gathering.

"We are praying that God would touch America," said Blanchard, executive pastor of Rock Church International in Virginia, which the Gimenez family founded. "We're not Democrats and Republicans. We're Christians."

Still, many of those offering prayers at the event have been outspoken critics of President Barack Obama. Steve Strang, the influential Pentecostal publisher of Charisma magazine, wrote in a blog post inviting readers to join him in Philadelphia that America is under threat from a "radical homosexual agenda" and Obama "seems to be moving toward some form of European socialism."

Jacobs blamed a mysterious Arkansas bird-kill last year on Obama's repeal of the policy known as "don't ask, don't tell," enabling gays and lesbians to serve openly in the military.

David Barton, a self-taught historian who emphasizes the Christian roots of the U.S., is another rally supporter. Barton wrote in a Feb. 29 article that Obama has shown "hostility toward Biblical people of faith" while giving "preferential treatment" to Muslims. (Obama has said he was raised in a nonreligious home and later became Christian.) The publisher Thomas Nelson last month withdrew Barton's book, "The Jefferson Lies," citing historical errors. The book challenged the belief that Jefferson was largely secular and promoted the separation of church and state.

Anne Gimenez said in a phone interview that although the event is Christian, the assembly will not advocate that the U.S. government be limited to Christians.

"I have no boundaries or limitations on that. I would just like to see someone who is God-fearing" in public office, she said.

Gimenez said Philadelphia was chosen because of its importance in U.S. history. The rally will be held outside the building where the Declaration of Independence was signed. Pennsylvania is also where evangelist George Whitefield preached during the first Great Awakening, the 18th-century religious revival that spread through the American colonies. Blanchard said his group successfully petitioned Pennsylvania lawmakers to declare Saturday "William Penn Day" in honor of Pennsylvania's founder, who championed religious freedom.

"America is in a state of emergency evidenced by the symptoms of widespread moral depravity and economic meltdown," organizers wrote on the rally's website. "Education, government, and man's wisdom cannot solve this problem."

This image released Thursday by the New York Mayor's Office is an artist's rendering of a proposed 625-foot Ferris Wheel, billed as the world's largest, planned as part of a retail and hotel complex along the Staten Island waterfront.

WORLD'S TALLEST FERRIS WHEEL TO BE BUILT IN NYC

NEW YORK (AP) • The Big Apple is getting another "biggest": the world's tallest Ferris wheel, part of an ambitious plan to draw New Yorkers and tourists alike to the city's so-called "forgotten borough."

The 625-foot-tall, $230 million New York Wheel is to grace a spot in Staten Island overlooking the Statue of Liberty and the downtown Manhattan skyline, offering a singular view as it sweeps higher than other big wheels like the Singapore Flyer, the London Eye, and a "High Roller" planned for Las Vegas. Designed to carry 1,440 passengers at a time, it's expected to draw 4.5 million people a year to a setting that also would include a 100-shop outlet mall and a 200-room hotel.

It will be "an attraction unlike any other in New York City — in fact, it will be, we think, unlike any other on the planet," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said as he unveiled the plans against the backdrop of New York Harbor. While the privately financed project faces various reviews, officials hope to have the wheel turning by the end of 2015.

The wheel would put Staten Island on the map of superlatives in a place where "biggest" is almost an expectation — home to the nation's biggest city population, busiest mass-transit system, even the biggest Applebee's restaurant. As a visible addition to the skyline around the harbor, the wheel "gives Staten Island an identity beyond its role as a suburban community," while letting it tap into the stream of tourist money in a city that drew 50.9 million visitors last year, said Mitchell Moss, a New York University urban policy professor.

The project is expected to bring $500 million in private investment and 1,100 permanent jobs to the borough's St. George waterfront, and the developers will pay the city $2.5 million a year in rent for the land.

But Staten Island, the only one of the city's five boroughs not accessible by subway, tends to get overshadowed by its bigger neighbors, so much so that some have at times suggested it secede from the city.

And residents often bristle at an image shaped by such television shows as "Mob Wives" and "Big Ang" — and by a former New Jersey beach town mayor who portrayed Staten Islanders in a blog post as heavy on hairspray and light on class. (The ex-mayor, Ken Pringle of Belmar, visited Staten Island in 2008 to make amends.)

Resident Miatta Bryant also thinks the wheel might bring the borough more respect.

"People always say Staten Island is so boring," the 26-year-old certified nursing assistant said.

The Ferris wheel, state Assemblyman Matthew Titone hopes, will show the world a different Staten Island than the one they see on TV.

"They will see our cultural institutions and will see that we are not idiots," he said, "Shirtless, musclebound idiots."

Israel's Netanyahu Draws his 'Red Line' for Iran

UNITED NATIONS (AP) • In his most detailed plea to date for global action against Iran's nuclear program, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Thursday the world has until next summer at the latest to stop Iran before it can build a nuclear bomb.

Netanyahu flashed a diagram of a cartoon-like bomb before the U.N. General Assembly showing the progress Iran has made, saying it has already completed the first stage of uranium enrichment. Then he pulled out a red marker and drew a line across what he said was a threshold Iran was approaching and which Israel could not tolerate — the completion of the second stage and 90 percent of the way to the uranium enrichment needed to make an atomic bomb.

"By next spring, at most by next summer at current enrichment rates, they will have finished the medium enrichment and move on to the final stage," he said. "From there, it's only a few months, possibly a few weeks before they get enough enriched uranium for the first bomb."

Israel considers a nuclear-armed Iran to be an existential threat, citing Iranian denials of the Holocaust, its calls for Israel's destruction, its development of missiles capable of striking the Jewish state and its support for hostile Arab militant groups.

On Thursday he presented his case to the world just why a nuclear-armed Iran would be a danger to many other countries as well.

Casting the battle as one between modernity and the "medieval forces of radical Islam," Netanyahu said deterrence would not work against Iran as it had with the Soviet Union.

"Deterrence worked with the Soviets, because every time the Soviets faced a choice between their ideology and their survival, they chose survival," he said. But "militant jihadists behave very differently from secular Marxists. There were no Soviet suicide bombers. Yet Iran produces hordes of them."

Netanyahu has repeatedly argued that time is running out to stop Iran from becoming a nuclear power and that the threat of force must be seriously considered. This week Iranian leaders suggested they may strike Israeli preemptively if they felt threatened, stoking fears of a regional war.

President Barack Obama has vowed to prevent Iran from becoming a nuclear power but has rejected Netanyahu's demands for setting an ultimatum past which the U.S. would attack. His administration has urgently sought to hold off Israeli military action, which would likely result in the U.S. being pulled into a conflict and cause region-wide mayhem on the eve of American elections.

"I believe that faced with a clear red line, Iran will back down. This will give more time for sanctions and diplomacy to convince Iran to dismantle its nuclear weapons program altogether," the Israeli prime minister said. "Red lines don't lead to war, red lines prevent war" Netanyahu did not detail what should be done if his "red line" was crossed, but the insinuation was clear. "To understand what the world would be like with a nuclear-armed Iran, just imagine the world with a nuclear-armed al-Qaida," he said. "Nothing could imperil the world more than a nuclear-armed Iran."

Tenn. Search for 2 Children Focuses on Fire Debris

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn. (AP) • Authorities looking for any trace of two missing children doggedly sifted the ashes of a deadly house fire, searched rolling farmland nearby and untangled complicated family relationships.

Investigators aren't sure if 9-year-old Chloe Leverette and her half brother, 7-year-old Gage Daniel, died along with an elderly couple raising them in a fire that incinerated their home Sunday night. Two bodies tentatively identified as 72-year-old Leon "Bubba" McClaran and his 70-year-old wife, Mollie McClaran, were recovered Monday but fire investigators said they found no remains of the children.

At the same time, the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation has found no indication of foul play or a reason to believe the children weren't trapped in the fire.

When the agency was called in Wednesday, it issued an endangered children alert in what spokeswoman Kristin Helm called "an abundance of caution." Search teams with dogs fanned out around the property and helicopters hovered above.

"We want to know. We want to know where those children are, if they were in the fire or if they were taken," she said. On Thursday, investigators focused on the fire debris at the home, located in horse country roughly 50 miles southeast of Nashville.

It was still not clear what caused the fire, which burned for hours, in part because firefighters had trouble getting water to the remote location. Local investigators from the Bedford County Sheriff's Department referred all questions to the TBI.

Helm said investigators determined Mollie McClaran was the children's grandmother. Agents have interviewed Cheryl Leverette, the mother of the youngsters, and Christopher Daniel, Gage's father. Chloe's father is deceased, she said.

So far, authorities haven't gotten any new leads. Forensics expert Dr. William Bass, who founded the Body Farm research center at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville to study the decomposition of corpses in a variety of circumstances to aid scientific and criminal research, said even in an intense fire some bones and teeth should remain. Finding them could be difficult, though, because the fragments might be only a couple of inches long, he said.

Family members aren't sure what to think.

Daniel, Gage's father, said he believed the children were in the house when it caught fire but was holding out hope they might be found alive.

Unionville firefighters battle a blaze on Sunday at a home on Kingdom Road near Rover, Tenn. Investigators announced on Wednesday that they are looking for two children they initially believed had perished in the fire.

A THIRD OF PUBLIC FEARS POLICE USE OF DRONES

WASHINGTON (AP) • More than a third of Americans worry their privacy will suffer if drones like those used to spy on U.S. enemies overseas become the latest police tool for tracking suspected criminals at home, according to an Associated Press-National Constitution Center poll.

Congress has directed the Federal Aviation Administration to come up with safety regulations that will clear the way for routine domestic use of unmanned aircraft within the next three years. The government is under pressure from a wide range of interests to open U.S. skies to drones. Oil companies want them to monitor pipelines. Environmentalists want them to count sea lions on remote islands. Farmers want them to fly over crops with sensors that can detect which fields are wet and which need watering. They're already being used to help fight forest fires. And the list goes on.

But privacy advocates caution that drones equipped with powerful cameras, including the latest infrared cameras that can "see" through walls, listening devices and other information-gathering technology raise the specter of a surveillance society in which the activities of ordinary citizens are monitored by the authorities.

Nearly half the public, 44 percent, supports allowing police forces inside the U.S. to use drones to assist police work, but a significant minority — 36 percent — say they "strongly oppose" or "somewhat oppose" police use of drones, according to a survey last month.

As Tour Hits Twin Falls, Expect Mash-up of Chicano Rap, Romance, Hip-hop

BY BLAIR KOCH
For the Times-News

TWIN FALLS • Fans know him as Brown Boy. But to his family, church and community in California, the musician is Dario Perez, a husband and father committed to family.

It took a three-year hiatus from performing, an intended step away from the industry, for Perez to focus on his spirituality before coming back to music.

Perez is headlining the Turnt Up Tour with Zig Zag and Dos of the Phoenix-based NB Ridaz during an Oct. 6 concert at the 360 Main Event Center in Twin Falls.

Throughout the early 2000s, Perez was known for his hardcore Chicano rap. But after the success of the softer, romantic “Superman” off his 2005 al-

Thousand Springs Weekend

Richard Morris, who runs JDM Silvery, solders a bezel to a back plate for a pendant Sept. 24 at his home near Buhl. He’ll be among 62 artists offering their work at this weekend’s Thousand Springs Festival of the Arts.

Magic Valley’s premier arts festival is in a gorgeous setting — where you’ll want to linger for canoe rides, tidbits and live music after shopping.

HAGERMAN • For two days the only thing that may rival the beautiful landscape of Ritter Island might be the artwork on display at the 20th annual Thousand Springs Festival of the Arts, Sept. 29-30.

If you decide to make the drive outside of Hagerman this weekend, you won’t be disappointed. Park your car at the top of the Thousand Springs Grade and jump onto the school bus that takes you down a one-lane road into the Snake River Canyon. Here you will find such wares as silver jewelry, pottery, paintings and sculptures made by local artists, with natural springs as the backdrop.

“It is stunningly beautiful,” said Richard Morris of Buhl, a silver jewelry maker. “I think it’s one of the more fun art shows.”

Morris, a retired welding engineer, and has been creating silver and gem jewelry for 16 years. He owns JDM Silvery in Buhl and will be one of 62 local and out-of-state artists displaying their work for sale.

Artist Betsy Horner Morishita, the Thousand Springs festival’s artisan coordinator, attends shows throughout the year looking for artists for the festival. They are invited to apply and submit photos of their work to a jury of five who then decides if they will be part of the festival based on their artwork and booth, among other things.

“Juried shows are a little more refined. It’s higher-end quality work, but we try to have art for everyone and not just expensive art,” Morishita said.

Jacob Novinger is a self-taught metal sculptor from Gooding.

“I work with all types of metals ... I like to use rust, copper and make it look old,” Novinger said. “I like to go contemporary with a twist of abstract.”

He likes showing work at the Thousand Springs festival because of the direct interaction with buyers.

“You get to talk to the artist and buy from the artist,” Novinger said.

Novinger said he goes for the gallery look when it comes to his sculptures, but his most popular pieces at the festival are wine racks.

“They sell,” he said. Not in the buying mood? Art won’t be the only thing you find at the Thousand Springs Festival of the Arts.

Nashville Artist Returns Home to Play T.F. Show

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Korby Lenker was introduced to music the same way some children are: His parents signed him up for piano lessons.

But rather than hating it, Lenker found he had a knack for music.

At Twin Falls High School he was part of the alternative rock band Clockwork Orange, and since graduating in 1994 he has built a reputation as a fresh voice who has toured Europe and played alongside such artists as Ray LaMontagne, Keith Urban, Steve Earle and Willie Nelson.

On Oct. 10, Lenker will return to his hometown, where he got his start as a musician, and play a solo show on acoustic guitar at the Lamphouse Theater in Twin Falls’ Old Towne.

It has been two years since Lenker played in Twin Falls. He is in the middle of a tour that will end at the Kerrville New Folk Finalists Fall Tour in Austin, Texas, on Nov. 8.

Lenker was a bluegrass musician early in his career with his band, The Barbed Wire Cutters. SPIN magazine called the band “young riders of the bluegrass revolt” in early 2000. But now Lenker is taking his skills to a genre that he describes as acoustic folk.

Five years ago he left Seattle and bluegrass and moved to Nashville, Tenn., to better showcase his writing skills.

His seventh album, “Heart of Gold,” was released this year, and his eighth is planned for released in 2013.

In Twin Falls, Lenker plans to play a combination of old and new songs, even pulling out the ukulele. “It will be a good time.”

Hear Him

Korby Lenker performs Oct. 10 at the Lamphouse Theater, 223 Fifth Ave. S. in Twin Falls. Tickets are $10 at the door. This is a small-capacity venue, so early arrival is advised. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.; music starts at 7:30 p.m. for this 21-and-older show.

Lose Ludwig while Raising Money for the Arts

BY TETONA DUNLAP
tdunlap@magicvalley.com

TWIN FALLS • Roll over Beethoven, you are about to be beaten.

The Magic Valley Arts Council is hosting the Beat Beethoven 5K run/walk Oct. 6 at the Twin Falls Center for the Arts as a fundraiser to support its arts education outreach.

The challenge: run a 5k in the time it takes to play Beethoven’s Fifth Symphony, which is about 30 minutes long.

If you can run a 10-minute mile, or faster, you should hear the ending of Beethoven’s Fifth Symphony just as you cross the finish line.

The idea came from a similar fundraising event that takes place in Fairbanks, Alaska, as a way to raise money for the Fairbanks Symphony Orchestra. There is also a Beat Beethoven run/walk held in Caldwell.

“We took the idea and put a twist on it,” said Carolyn White, program director for Magic Valley Arts Council.

The start of the race will be orchestrated by none other than Ludwig van Beethoven — or at least someone dressed up like him — clanging a pair of cymbals.

Also included will be a children’s run/walk of 1/4 mile, 1/2 mile or one-mile. Instead of the Fifth Symphony, children will run to Rondo a Capriccio, more commonly known as “Rage Over a Lost Penny.”

White said the story goes that Beethoven, who was known to be temperamental, often having

For Water Book, Hailey Scientist Challenges 'Her Inner Hypocrite'

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

HAILEY • Wendy Pabich has made a living telling people how to reduce their water consumption.

So the environmental scientist and founder of Water Futures Inc. was chagrined when she got a monthly water bill for 30,000 gallons of water after installing an irrigation system in her yard.

"That was an eye-opening event. I felt like such a hypocrite. And I thought: If I can't conserve water in my own house with all the training I've had, how can I expect others to?" the Hailey woman recalled.

Pabich began systematically attacking her water waste, installing drip irrigation and low-flow fixtures, and cutting down on the food she wasted. She installed water meters so she could understand how much she saved with each step.

And then she wrote a book: "Taking on Water: How One Water Expert Challenged Her Inner Hypocrite, Reduced Her Water Footprint (without Sacrificing a Toasty Shower) and Found Nirvana." The book, distributed by Random House, is $23.95.

Far from a dry treatise, it spills over with personality. "At 5 feet 5 inches tall, I weigh in at about 130 pounds soaking wet. I wear a women's 8 1/2 shoe. I am neither tall nor big, yet my reach is far greater than you might think. I have the power to coax small children in India to work cotton looms until their hands are raw. ... American farmers grudgingly sign up with Big Brother to provide soy for my tofu. I am but one in 310 million hallowed Americans, daily wielding the power of choice ...," she writes.

"With this truth in mind, I stared at ... half the contents of our pantry splayed across the kitchen table. Plastic bags filled with brown rice, quinoa, lentils ... an impressive array of herbal teas ... My task: to determine the sum volume of all water used to produce the food and beverages, personal hygiene products, clothing and consumer products that my husband and I consume."

Why care? Even if you ignore the extreme drought that has ravaged mid-America's farmland, surveys suggest that by the mid-century half of the counties in the U.S. will face water scarcity, said Pabich, who launched her book tour Sept. 16 in Colorado.

The average American's water footprint is 750,000 gallons per year — slightly more than the 660,000 gallons needed to fill an Olympic swimming pool.

"All these problems seem overwhelming, and you may feel that your individual effort is inconsequential. But if you reverse that thinking, you realize that each of us can make a difference," she said.

For instance, it takes 2,200 gallons of water to make one pair of blue jeans. So if enough people cut back on the number of blue jeans they buy, it could make a big difference, she said.

Marie Kellner, who works for the Idaho Conservation League, praised the book.

"Water conservation is important to many people and they want to do something about it, but it seems so big and overwhelming that they don't know what to do," she said. "Wendy used her vast amount of water knowledge to change her daily household habits, and then wrote a book explaining how she did it and providing a template for what we all might do. Additionally, I think she does a great job of weaving important water facts into her storytelling, making it really readable."

Dayna Gross, Silver Creek Watershed manager for The Nature Conservancy, says she's confronted with water conservation every day as she works with farmers north of Twin Falls. One farm she works with has been able to cut water use 10 percent, seeing groundwater rise between 6 inches and 2 feet according to models.

The changes included speeding up the pivots so they don't overwater the ground, changing the nozzles for more even watering and dropping sprinklers so less is lost to wind and sun.

"Agriculture uses a ton of water, so anything we can do is great," she said. "Books like Wendy's make you think about what you can do."

"I continue doing Brown Boy, but it's entertainment," he said. "When my set is done I give praise to God in hopes that I'm sending the crowd the right message ... it's not about Brown Boy anymore."

One of his new songs to be performed at the Twin Falls concert is "I Know." The lyrics tell about losing someone close and the importance of not taking people for granted.

"I want my music to be deep ... mean something," he said.

That's true of Isaac Bayley's music as well. The Burley man — known as the performer Menase, who is also one of the show's promoters — said his set will include a lot of romance.

He's bringing a couple of local female singers onto the stage with him, including the fresh talent of Twin Falls rapper Marcella Juarez, who goes by Cella.

"It's rare for this area; we don't have a lot of female performers, so this will be different," Bayley said. "Especially to have a female rapper; she's young and new but has a lot of potential."

Joe Garcia, who performs as Joey Garcia and is helping promote the concert, said a

Throw in the Dark at Tonight's Bocce Championship

BY KAREN BOSSICK
For the Times-News

KETCHUM • Bocce has been played throughout the world since the days of the Roman Empire. But Danny Walton claims to have hosted the only night bocce all-terrain tournament on record two years ago.

Walton will stage the second Night Bocce World Championships at 6 p.m. today at Atkinsons' Park in Ketchum. He hopes to get 32 two-person teams to throw it down NCAA-tournament style.

"We had 150 people show up last time — it's just so much fun," said Walton, who has a long history of organizing telemark ski races, Marley in the Mountain reggae concerts and other events through his Mountain Niceness Productions.

Bocce is traditionally played on dirt, grass or asphalt courts, said aficionado Debbie Jester. It takes on various forms depending on whether you're playing Italian, French, Slovenian or even Brazilian style.

But, basically, it involves trying to throw a wooden ball nearest to a jack. In this case, a lighted ball.

"It's something you can do with a beer in your hand," Tod Hakes said. "We have a second home in California where they often play beach bocce as a game to work your way through the crowd. You spot someone you want to meet so you throw your ball near theirs."

A number of Sun Valley and Ketchum residents have bocce courts. And Idahoans often take bocce sets on river trips or camping.

"It's fun because you encounter different kinds of obstacles on the Middle Fork than you might in another setting," Walton said. "Those who make it into the Sweet 16 at Atkinsons' Park will play on the mounded area along the playground. So they'll have to play hills and angulation. You need to bring your full game!"

Entry is $20 per person, with registration starting at 5:30 p.m. today at Atkinsons' Park. The fee includes beer and a bocce set, live music, a DJ and a barbecue.

Kids are welcome; they'll have their own brackets and lower entry fees. And a junior world champion will be crowned alongside a world champion.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the scholarship fund for the Idaho Social Learning Center, which opened this month in Ketchum.

The center was founded by Jaime Rivetts, who has a master's degree in special education with an emphasis in autism and has worked at speech pathologist Michelle Garcia Winner's Center for Social Thinking and at the Lee Pesky Learning Center in Ketchum. Social learning can be useful for those who struggle with social relationships, those with autism, Asperger's syndrome, attention deficit disorder, learning disabilities, anxiety disorders and bipolar disorder.

It can also be useful for those who are gifted and talented or "twice exceptional," said Rivetts, executive director of Idaho Social Learning Center.

In one case, Rivetts said, she worked with a client dressed in black Goth clothes who insisted she didn't need friends. It turned out the client wanted to make friends but didn't know how. The two worked on how to make an impression via actions and talk.

"My client looked at how she came across and realized she wasn't going to attract any peers that way," Rivetts said. "Eventually the dress, hair and makeup began to change as she began revealing a friendlier, warmer person underneath. She's in a much happier, healthier place, and she realizes that having friendships is important and much more possible."

ICE AGE CONTINENTAL DRIFT

A Floating Golf Game from Paddleboards: It Has to Be Idaho

BY KAREN BOSSICK

For the Times-News

REDFISH LAKE • Northern Idaho has a golf green on a lake. Now Redfish Lake is about to get a golf game on the lake.

A Palo Alto, Calif., inventor is about to introduce paddleboard golf championships at the Sawtooth Splash, Sept. 29-30 at south-central Idaho's premiere lake resort.

The golf game will be part of two days of paddleboarding that include clinics, demos, races, live music, DJ and barbecue.

"This guy created a stand-up paddleboard golf game using floating golf balls," said Danny Walton, who organized the event. "The game gives people a chance to explore the lake while playing in a foursome."

The event is sponsored by Bigfly Aviation, Mountain Niceness Productions and the Idaho Social Learning Center.

Saturday will feature paddle clinics, tips, demos, a point-to-point classic paddleboard race, team relay races, yoga, live music, a DJ and a barbecue.

Sunday will feature the Sawtooth SUP (Stand Up Paddle) salutations, the Sawtooth SUP Cup and golf championships. There will be a raffle to win a stand-up paddleboard; tickets are $5 each or five for $20, available at the event.

"It gets a little cold at night, but it should be 75 and sunny during the day," Walton said. "We'll do a snow salutation on paddleboard for a deep powder season. We're looking for one of the deepest powder stashes in history."

Stand-up paddleboarding on boards that resemble surfboards but are thicker, wider and longer has become an increasingly hot sport, even in landlocked areas like Idaho, said Casey Schaefer, who sells paddleboards at Backwoods Mountain Sports.

"They're a great challenge — something new and different," river guide Jo Schroder said. "They're a little hard to figure out, but once you learn how to balance and once you realize you're not going to tip over every second, they're great fun and great exercise."

Paddleboarder Chrissy Gove, a Ketchum Realtor, said paddling and balancing use more leg and core muscles than you'd think.

• Opportunities to try paddleboards free of charge will be offered starting at noon Saturday and Sunday at Redfish Lake's Sawtooth Splash, courtesy of Backwoods Mountain Sports in Ketchum and Idaho River Sports and Glide Paddleboard in Boise.

• A point-to-point classic paddleboard will start at 1 p.m. Saturday. Entry fee is $10, with the proceeds going to the new Idaho Social Learning Center in Ketchum.

• Matt Cifrese will perform alternative country music from 3 to 6 p.m. that day.

• Sunday's events kick off at 11 a.m. with a free yoga session on paddleboards. The free paddleboard golf championships tournament will start at noon Sunday, using floating golf balls.

Tiny Community's Fun Raises Money for Emergency Services

ATLANTA • This tiny mountain community will celebrate Atlanta Days on Oct. 5-7. The event — which had to be delayed this summer because of fires and road closures — benefits Atlanta Emergency Medical Services.

Throughout the weekend there will be music, dancing, food and beverages, games, competitions and silent and live auctions. T-shirts will be sold.

Music will be featured Friday night and Saturday afternoon and evening. There will be a pizza party on Friday night, food booths on Saturday afternoon, a Saturday-night dinner and a Sunday-morning pancake breakfast. A full outdoor bar will be offered throughout the weekend.

The first Atlanta Days was held after the death of Rodger Barnard in 1980 shocked the small Elmore County town, organizers' press release said. The 20-year-old was helping his grandfather Harold Lanning work on Lanning's electric power lines when he died. No medical aid was available, and funds raised that year were used to organize First Aid classes and organize the first Quick Response Unit under the leadership of retired nurse Dorothy Roeber.

Interested in camping at either of the two Forest Service campsites? Contact the volunteers at the Atlanta Guard Station, 208-864-2124. Another overnight option is Beaver Lodge, 208-864-2132.

For more information on Atlanta Days, call Allen Lake at 208-864-2151 or Karen Sayko at 208-859-6371.

Getting there: For visitors traveling from the Twin Falls, Jerome and Shoshone areas, the best way to reach Atlanta is to take U.S. Highway 20 west to the turnoff for Pine and Featherville, Sayko said. Go around Anderson Ranch Reservoir and on to Pine and Featherville. From Featherville it is a dirt road to Rocky Bar.

"We describe James Creek, the original route into Atlanta, as 'eight miles up and eight miles down,'" Sayko said. This steep dirt road is suitable for four-wheel-drive vehicles with high clearance. This route will take travelers two miles below Atlanta. "Others should drive over Pfeifer Creek which is not as steep and will bring them on to the Middle Fork Boise River Road about 18 miles downriver from Atlanta."

There is no gas in Atlanta, she said, so visitors should top off their gas tanks on the way in.

throughout the two-day festival featuring jazz, acoustic guitar, blues and classic rock 'n' roll.

"We try to get a good mix of music for all ages," musician coordinator Carter Wilson said.

Artisans will give demonstrations of their work, and there will be food vendors, information booths, children's activities and the opportunity to take a canoe or hay ride to further explore Ritter Island.

With more than 4,000 visitors last year, organizers hope for a big crowd to celebrate the festival's 20th.

"The scenery doesn't get any better than that," Novinger said. "It's definitely worth going to."

Thank You

Our family would like to express our sincere appreciation to all of the people who helped in making the David Webster Memorial Ride for the Y a great success. All proceeds from the ride will go into David's YMCA Endowment Scholarship Fund that continues to help young people become involved in programs to promote self esteem and a healthy lifestyle. During the barbeque after the ride the director of the Y announced that as of today, 350 children have benefited with swim lessons during the past two Spring Breaks from David's Endowment Fund. We would like to thank you all for your time, effort, and contribution in honoring our beloved Dr. David Maurice Webster, who continues to make a difference in our lives, our community, and in our world. Our sincere apology for any names misspelled or not on the list... We thank you all.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

Bobby Wolff

"I am tired. Everyone's tired of my turmoil." — Robert Lowell

In today's deal South was a solid performer, but one who believed that the cards always conspired to gang up against him. After he had finished declaring four hearts here, he could add another heart to his long litany of woes. Was he entitled to whine? You be the judge.

Against his game, West led out the three top diamonds. South ruffed and announced he was not going to risk a defensive ruff. So saying, he led out the heart ace and jack. West ducked this, and now declarer found himself in trouble. If he played a third trump, West would win and force dummy with more diamonds, whereas if he played on the side-suits, West would score both his trumps for down one.

It may be unlikely that four trumps will lie with the long diamonds, of course, but the point of the deal is still a valid one. If you can protect yourself against a bad break, you should do so. After declarer ruffs, he must play the heart 10 — otherwise, West will prevail. When this holds, South continues with the heart jack, leaving the defense powerless. If West wins his king, he can play another diamond, but South ruffs in hand, crosses to the club queen, and can use dummy's high trumps to draw West's last two hearts.

Incidentally, declarer cannot afford to cross to dummy to take the trump finesse. He might run into an unexpected ruff.

ANSWER: It's very tempting to double to show the unbid suits, but what are you attempting to achieve? Your partner rates to have a Yarborough, and you have no real shape. So all you are doing is setting yourself up for a large penalty. Let the opponents bid to their game and hope to beat it. If the opponents stop low, you may change your mind, of course.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Board of Jerome Commissioners will be holding a Public Hearing at 1:30, p.m., during their October 9, 2012 County Commissioner Meeting. The Commissioner meeting room is located at the Jerome County Courthouse, 300 North Lincoln, Room 301, Jerome, Idaho. The purpose of this Public Hearing is to receive input regarding the need to increase the refuse fee for the maintenance and operation of the Landfill/Jerome County Transfer Station. The maintenance and operation of the Landfill/Jerome County Transfer Station is fee based. Pursuant to Jerome County Amended Ordinance No. 2011-4 adopted by the Jerome County Commissioners on October 17, 2012 the following fees were established and have been charged accordingly:

Category	Annual Base Rate	Annual Excess* Rate
Commercial	$ 132.00	$ 66.00
Residential	66.00	33.00
Circuit Breaker	33.00	16.50
Exempt Property	66.00	33.00
Apartments	66.00	33.00

*"Excess" is every nine cubic yards of a particular category of refuse, or any part thereof, that exceeds the first nine cubic yards allowed accumulated for each specific month. The new fee increase in the above-stated categories would be a 15% increase from the fees established by Jerome County Amended Ordinance 2011-4 except for exempt property, which would be an additional $86.00 to compensate for the shortage set forth in Amended Ordinance 2011-4 of the annual base rate. Increase would be as follows:

Category	Annual Base Rate	Increase	Annual Excess* Rate
Commercial	$ 152.00	$ 20.00	$ 76.00
Residential	76.00	10.00	76.00
Circuit Breaker	38.00	5.00	76.00
Exempt Property	152.00	86.00	76.00
Apartments	76.00	10.00	76.00

*"Excess" is every nine cubic yards of a particular category of refuse, or any part thereof, that exceeds the first nine cubic yards allowed accumulated for each specific month. This fee increase is to assist in payment of continuing contractual obligations. Anyone desiring accommodations for disabilities at this Public Hearing should contact the Jerome County Auditor's Office, (208) 644-2714 at least 48 hours prior to the hearing. Today is Friday, Sept. 28, the 272nd day of 2012. There are 94 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight:

On Sept. 28, 1787, the Congress of the Confederation voted to send the just-completed Constitution of the United States to state legislatures for their approval.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1066, William the Conqueror invaded England to claim the English throne.

In 1542, Portuguese navigator Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo arrived at present-day San Diego.

In 1841, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow completed his poem "Excelsior"

In 1850, flogging was abolished as a form of punishment in the U.S. Navy.

In 1920, eight members of the Chicago White Sox were indicted for allegedly throwing the 1919 World Series against the Cincinnati Reds. (All were acquitted at trial, but all eight were banned from the game for life.)

In 1924, three U.S. Army planes landed in Seattle, having completed the first round-the-world trip by air in 175 days.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Bonneville Dam in Oregon.

In 1939, during World War II, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union signed a treaty calling for the partitioning of Poland, which the two countries had invaded.

In 1962, a federal appeals court found Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett in civil contempt for blocking the admission of James Meredith, a black student, to the University of Mississippi. (Federal marshals escorted Meredith onto the campus two days later.)

In 1974, first lady Betty Ford underwent a mastectomy at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in Maryland, following discovery of a cancerous lump in her breast.

In 1987, U.S. Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., announced in Denver that she would not run for the Democratic presidential nomination. "Star Trek: The Next Generation" premiered in syndication.

In 1989, deposed Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos died in exile in Hawaii at age 72.

Ten years ago: Iraq defiantly rejected a U.S.-British plan for the United Nations to force President Saddam Hussein to disarm and open his palaces for weapons searches. Finance leaders meeting in Washington directed the International Monetary Fund to work on new approach to resolving global debt crises. U.S. Rep. Patsy Mink, a 12-term Democratic congresswoman from Hawaii, died in Honolulu at age 74.

Five years ago: The International Monetary Fund chose France's Dominique Strauss-Kahn as its new leader. (Strauss-Kahn resigned the post in 2011 following allegations he'd sexually assaulted a New York hotel employee; prosecutors ended up dropping all the charges.) Traveler Carol Anne Gotbaum of New York died in a holding cell at Sky Harbor International Airport in Phoenix; authorities say Gotbaum, 45, accidentally asphyxiated herself after being chained to a bench.

One year ago: The Obama administration formally appealed a federal appeals court ruling striking down a key provision of President Barack Obama's health care law requiring Americans to buy health insurance or pay a penalty. (The U.S. Supreme Court later upheld the individual mandate.)

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 35 years. We have one daughter. My husband has this "thing" about grabbing other women's behinds. He hugs them and then goes in for a grab. It bothers me so much. It hurts my feelings and I have told him so, but he still does it.

DEAR ABBY
Jeanne Phillips

Men have told me they don't want him touching their wives this way. Others have said it's disrespectful to me. He says he will try to stop doing it. Try? That doesn't set well with me.

What do you think about this? Am I overreacting? After all these years, I just don't know what to think.

— HANDS OFF IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR HANDS OFF: I agree that pinching other women's bottoms is disrespectful (unless you're in Italy, where it's the norm). It appears you have spent 35 years married to an unrepentant lecher. I'd think that by now he would have trouble hugging any woman twice if she saw him with arms outstretched.

Because you can't convince your husband to change his ways, try this: When a man complains about your husband's misbehavior, tell him he should deliver that message directly to your spouse. Perhaps that will get the point across.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a wonderful man, and I like my in-laws very much. They're nice, welcoming people and we get along well. There's just one problem: They are the biggest enablers I have ever met!

With my husband it isn't a big deal because he's very self-sufficient. On the other hand, his 30-year-old brother has lived with them for three years. He is jobless and has a drinking problem. His parents don't encourage him to look for work. They give him an allowance, pay all his court costs and drive him around because he got a DUI. They even pay his cellphone bill.

What is my place in all of this? Should I say anything? My fear is that when my husband's parents die, his brother will become OUR problem.

— LOOKING AHEAD IN COLORADO

DEAR LOOKING AHEAD: Don't say anything to your husband's parents. The pattern they are following is one that was set long ago, and nothing you can say will change it. It may, however, cause serious hard feelings.

The person you should talk to is your husband, so that well in advance of his parents' demise, you will be in agreement about his brother finally taking responsibility for himself or suffering the consequences of his actions.

DEAR ABBY: I love my co-workers, but several of them have an aggravating habit of walking into my office, uninvited, while I'm eating lunch at my desk. They then proceed to tell me their latest news, joke or war story.

Abby, those of us who eat at our desks do it so we can keep working and be ready to respond to work-related contacts as they come in, NOT to socialize. Besides, isn't it just as rude to interrupt someone while they're eating as it is while they're talking? I wish my beloved co-workers would save it for the water cooler.

— "SANDWICHED" IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SANDWICHED: I don't think it's rude. But because YOU do, it's up to you to tell your well-meaning co-workers that when you're working at your desk, you'd prefer not to be interrupted because it breaks your concentration. If you speak up nicely, I'm sure they won't love you any less, and then you will love them even more.

IF SEPTEMBER 28 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Life is good to you during the next eight to 12 weeks. You can sit back and enjoy increased popularity, but might not be able to distinguish between lasting commitments and passing pleasures. In January and February, your ambitions head upward — but the need to embrace traditional values increases, as well. April is a good time to search for a new job, make crucial relationship commitments, accept opportunities, make decisions or obtain professional advice. Wait until your business sense is at its best, in May, to invest money or time into any new financial scheme.

HOROSCOPE

Jeraldine Saunders

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't let your heart rule your head — and vice versa. In the frantic rush to make changes, you could overlook common sense. Obtain sound advice from trusted counselors before implementing new ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Beauty might be only skin deep. However, if your skin is scrubbed and a smile is on your face, people will think you are more attractive and desirable than usual. Get your way with an adoring fan club.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Curb your desire for romantic conquests under these stars. It is possible to meet someone who tweaks your heartstrings, but it is also possible that you are completely misreading that someone's signals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Relationships that begin now may be exciting and entertaining while they last. People are willing to perform favors for you, but in return, you may be expected to dig deep into your own pockets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your strength lies in your ability to be a faithful and trustworthy partner. Remember that like attracts like. Ambiguity could cause mix-ups, but a whimsical attitude puts a cheerful veneer on rough edges.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bend like a tree in the wind. Keep an open mind when intriguing concepts are presented. A few surprises may be in store, so hang loose and don't let abrupt changes put you off your feed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Entertainers need a stage and a spotlight. This might be a good time to make presentations or appear in public. People could think you are better at what you do and more attractive than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Jump out of the frying pan and into the fire. Boredom with a sedentary pace may tempt you to accept invitations that hold excitement, offer you the promise of change or let you take undue risks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Prest-o, change-o. Some progress could come to a screeching halt, while other matters on the back burner come to a boil. This isn't a good time to implement spur-of-the-moment changes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't pass the buck or buck the system; you can get bucked off that untamed horse. Creative juices are flowing, but you might find that the world just isn't ready to give you recognition for originality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Mingle if you're single. This isn't a good time to make a commitment or promise, but you might find a window of opportunity to make the first move or approach someone who lights a fire in your heart.
